Nixon Returns Home From Summit Meets

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon is home from a summit journey which he says advanced the cause of world peace and brought the elusive goal of curbing offensive nuclear weapons "significantly closer."

In the windy and remote setting of an airbase in Caribou, Maine., Nixon was welcomed back Wednesday evening by Vice President Gerald R. Ford, two bands, a little girl with a bouquet and a cheering crowd of 4,500.

While the Spirit of 76 that had carried him 25,000 miles through the Middle East, Europe and the Soviet Union during the past month was refueled, Nixon told Americans on nationwide television he was glad to be back "from a journey that has advanced the cause of peace in the world."

After the 20-minute speech he and Mrs. Nixon, with their daughter Julie and, son-in-law David Eisenhower, who had met them in Caribou, reboarded the big white and blue jet and flew to Key Biscayne for a weekend of rest.

They bypassed Washington, where most of the Congress had already left town for the Fourth of July holiday, but where the House Judiciary Committee is considering Nixon's impeachment, a District Court is trying his former aide, John D. Ehrlichman, in the Ellsberg break-in case and where the Supreme Court considers Monday whether the President can refuse prosecutors' subpoenas.

His White House chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, said Nixon is "feeling fine" but "really needs a break and a rest in Florida."

From Loring Air Force Base in Caribou, Nixon told Americans that while he and Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev did not reach agreement to limit offensive nuclear weapons, "we did bring such an accord significantly closer." He said each agreed to negotiate a new offensive arms agreement well before 1977, when an interim agreement signed in 1972 expires, and that each is sending new instructions to representatives at Geneva disarmament talks on the subject.

Nixon said the accords reached at the summit — limiting defensive missiles and underground nuclear tests, providing for cooperative research on health, energy and housing and for long term trade —are part of a "growing network of agreements" with the Soviet Union.

He said that on a broader international scale, his visits to the Middle East and Europe as well as Russia were all interconnected and all part of an overall purpose to seek solutions through negotiation.

The summit agreement on underground nuclear tests forbids such explosions over 150 kilotons beginning March 31, 1976. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger told a news conference Wednesday that before that date both the United States and Russia are expected to continue tests of new generations of missiles.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., criticized the agreement as "close to a charade," giving both sides "every incentive" to test before the 1976 deadline.

The atmosphere at Loring Air Force base was almost that of an election campaign as Nixon arrived. There were welcome home signs, but none of protest. Six-year-old Joyce Pavio gave Pat Nixon a bouquet of yellow roses. Maine Gov. and Mrs. Kenneth Curtis were on hand. Nixon smiled and shook hands among the crowd.

Vice President Ford said in a welcoming speech that Nixon's trip had made the world "a little safer and a little saner."

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger briefed America's European allies today in Brussels on the results of President Nixon's summit trip to Moscow.

Fireworks Show Set For Tonight

Pampa observance of the anniversary of the 198th signing of the Delcaration of Independence will end tonight with the "Honor America" program beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Recreation Park.

Motorcycle contests and races will began at 7:30 in front of the grandstand.

Following the motorcycle show at 9:15 p.m. will be the "Honor America" program. Rex McAnelly, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will deliver a brief patriotic speech and Gene Steel, Chamber vice president, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Burnett Fireworks Company of Enid, Okla. will produce a show containing $1000 worth of fireworks for the city.

Presentation of the colors, pledge of allegiance, singing of the national anthem and invocation by the Rev. John Hansard, pastor of Highland Baptist Church will make up the patriotic program.

Pampa Jaycees will operate the concession stand and Pampa High School Key Club will handle decorations.

Pampa and area citizens crowded area lakes and recreation areas in the mid-90 degree holiday weather.

City, county, state and federal offices in Pampa closed for today in addition to business and professional offices.

City Hall and Court Houses employes did not work today but will continue business as usual tomorrow. Police and sheriff departments were on the job today as well as Highway Patrol employes.

Except for box patrons, the Post Office was closed and there was no rural or city mail delivery.

First National Bank and Citizens Bank and Trust Company closed, as did Security Federal and Panhandle Savings and Loan.

Some food and department stores and service stations remained open while others chose to close for the holiday.

Industrial businesses shut down with the exception of several necessary institutions.

Warnings concerning firecrackers were issued by police and sheriff departments. Citizens were urged to observe all safety rules.

Fireworks are forbidden by law in the city limits because of danger of serious injury and fire hazard. Extra cuation is urged for the areas outside the city limits that are dry due to the lack of rain.

Lower Death Toll Expected

As holiday vacationers crowded onto the nation's highways, safety officials hoped the Fourth of July holiday traffic death toll would be the lowest in years.

The National Safety Council estimated that from 450 to 550 persons would die in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and midnight Sunday. The estimate was the lowest the council has made in 24 years for a four-day Independence Day holiday weekend.

The council said reduced speed limits born of the energy crisis and lower death tolls in holidays since the crisis accounted for the reduced death toll estimate.

A survey by United Press International showed at 6 a.m. CDT that 12 persons had died on the nation's highways since the holiday period began.

A breakdown of deaths:

Traffic	12
Drownings	0
Plane	0

ACROSS THE NATION

Parades And Fireworks Mark July 4 Celebration

United Press International

Patriotic parades, historical pageants, fireworks spectaculars, watermelon eating contests, apple pie bakeoffs and pet parades were some of the ways Americans celebrated the 198th anniversary of independence today.

President Nixon, in a Fourth of July message to the nation, urged Americans to promote throughout the world the "basic American message of independence, liberty and human dignity."

This could be the last big year for private fireworks displays, as strict, new federal regulations could remove dangerous fireworks from the hands of most consumers.

To commemorate the event, Expo '74 in Spokane, Wash., scheduled a 2½ hour fireworks display which promoters claimed would be the largest in the country.

Promoters expected a paid crowd of 26,000 to watch the display at the city's Joe Albi Stadium, with additional thousands watching from outside.

At Bristol, R.I., thousands of visitors were expected to flock to the 300-year-old seaport for its 198th Fourth of July parade, said to be the oldest such celebration in the nation.

The seaport planned an ornate display of pomp, pagantry and patriotism to begin with a 2 ½-mile march.

The McNeill Island federal penitentiary near Tacoma, Wash., planned to celebrate the day by staging an inmate motorcycle show, but admittance was by invitation only.

The Southern Illinois town of Flora —population 600 — scheduled a baby contest, free stage acts, a carnival and fireworks display.

At Charleston, W.Va., 300 members of the Rashid family began gathering for Friday's 46th annual convention of the Rashid Family Club of America. Members from 30 states, Canada, Latin American and Lebanon were expected to attend.

A flag pageant was to be held at Independence Hall, where the Declaration was signed, and troops in colonial costume will fire cannons at old Ft. Mifflin on the Delaware River.

A grocery chain donated 150 watermelons and a pie company supplied free pies for melon and pie eating contests at Seattle's civic center.

In Salt Lake City, there was to be a parade from the Utah state capitol to a downtown sports arena, where ballet, square dancing, singing and Shakespearian drama were scheduled.

Hey, Patty! Where Are You Now?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Where is Patty Hearst?

The FBI in San Francisco has asked approximately 16,000 people that question and the Los Angeles office several thousand more and all indications are they don't have a clue.

Five months ago today the heiress was carried screaming from a Berkeley apartment, presumably a kidnap victim. Now she herself is wanted for kidnaping, bank robbery and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

Last Saturday, June 29, was to have been the day of her wedding to Princeton graduate Steven Weed. Instead she is a fugitive, with her life on the line if she resists arrest, and facing years in prison if she surrenders.

Miss Hearst was last seen in Los Angeles on May 18, the day after six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army died in a wild shootout with police on the edge of the black section of Los Angeles.

John Morrison, the FBI spokesman in Los Angeles, is asked daily what progress is being made in finding her and two other surviving SLA members —William and Emily Harris.

"Obviously, we do not know where she is," he says. "She was last seen in the Los Angeles area and we are operating on the premise she may well be here. It is a good place to hide. We follow up every lead."

Although he terms it still definitely a major case, Morrison makes it clear that some of the urgency has gone out of the matter now that the SLA has been crushed as a terrorist organization.

"We look on it now as primarily a hunt for three fugitives wanted on federal and state warrants," he says.

At one time more than 150 agents were working there fulltime on the case, but now the number has been reduced by about half.

The Hearst family is reported by a family spokesman to be in utter despair, thinking there is no way out for their daughter now no matter what she does.

ALL GOING WELL

Cosmonauts Dock On Space Station

MOSCOW (UPI) — A two-man Soviet spacecraft has docked with a Russian space station orbiting the earth and "everything is going well," a spokesman for visiting American astronauts said today.

Moscow Radio said the manned Soyuz 14 spacecraft was launched Wednesday night to link up with the Salyut 3 space station sent into orbit June 25.

"They told us it had docked and everything was going well," said Jack Reilly, spokesman for the nine American astronauts training with Soviet cosmonauts for their 1975 joint Soyuz-Apollo space mission.

The radio said Soyuz, manned by Col. Pavel Popovich and Lt. Col. Yuri P. Artyukhin, was launched in Central Asia at 9:51 p.m. Moscow time Wednesday, just four hours after President Nixon flew back to the United States from his Soviet summit.

Reilly said the U.S. astronauts had been given no advance notification of the flight but were told about it this morning on their way to breakfast at the Yuri Gargarin Space Center where they are training with the cosmonauts.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford, the Apollo commander for the joint flight, "wished them every success," Reilly said.

Diplomatic sources speculated last week about a possible Soviet manned space flight during Nixon's visit. The sources said the Kremlin presumably held off to avoid risking failure with Nixon on Soviet soil.

Joint Experiments

"The flight program of the Soyuz 14 spaceship envisages joint experiments with the orbital scientific station Salyut 3," the Tass report said.

The launch was the Kremlin's first manned space shot since two cosmonauts made an eight-day flight last December in a Soyuz 13 craft.

There was no immediate official word how long the cosmonauts would remain aloft or when their craft would dock. Boris Petrov, chairman of the Intercosmos Council, said Wednesday the Soviets did not plan a "prolonged flight."

Three cosmonauts docked with Salyut 1 in 1971, but died on the flight back to earth when their vehicle lost pressure. Salyut 2 went up in April, 1973, but disintegrated after an unexplained accident.

IN ELLSBERG CASE

Colson Accuses Nixon, Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles W. Colson, who goes to jail Monday for obstructing justice in the Ellberg break-in case, says it was President Nixon and Henry Kissinger who spurred the effort to discredit Daniel Ellsberg after he leaked the classified Pentagon Papers.

Testifying Wednesday in the trial of former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman, Colson —himself a defendant before pleading guilty —said Nixon, Kissinger and others requested any information possible about Ellsberg.

At issue is whether Ehrlichman specifically authorized the White House plumbers to burglarize the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He has admitted approving a "covert operation" to get information on the former defense analyst, but denies knowing the plumbers had a burglary in mind.

After six days of testimony and a recess for Independence Day, the prosecution is expected to rest Friday.

At the House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings Wednesday, two former Nixon re-election aides, called as defense witnesses, testified on the question of "hush money" payments to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Some committee members from both parties said witnesses Frederick C. LaRue and Paul L. O'Brien, the first of six men requested as witnesses by Nixon lawyer James D. St. Clair, added little to Nixon's defense.

'Truth Embellished'

But some Republicans said their testimony shows that John W. Dean III, Nixon's chief accuser, "embellished the truth" when he told Nixon the payments were intended to keep Hunt quiet about "seamy" campaign operations.

O'Brien, former attorney for the re-election committee, testified he had understood Hunt's demand for $120,000 from the White House was to be for legal fees and living expenses.

Carmichael Leaves School Board Post

BOB CARMICHAEL
...in second term

Bob Carmichael has resigned from the Pampa Independen District school board, it was learned by The News early today.

Questioned this morning, Paul Simmons, board president, confirmed the fact that Carmichael had notified him of the resignation in a telephone conversation yesterday.

Simmons said Carmichael told him the letter of resignation, effective immediately, was placed in the mail Wednesday.

According to the board president, Carmichael said he was resigning because his daughter - in - law is an applicant for a teaching post in Pampa. The state nepotism law states an application from the relative of a board member cannot even be considered for appointment.

Simmons said at 8:30 a.m. today Carmichael's letter of resignation had not yet beep delivered to his P.O. mailbox.

Carmichael was serving the second year of his second three-year term on the board. He was re-elected to his post in April of 1973. His term would have run until April of 1976.

Usual procedure following a board resignation, Simmons said, is for the board to appoint a seccessor who would serve until the next regular school election. In this case that would be next April.

Simmons also stated the school board has received a dozen or so applications for the post of school superintendent vacated by the recent resignation of Dr. James F. Malone.

Simmons said an emergency executive session of the board would be called at 4 p.m. Friday in Carver Center to consider a successor to Carmichael and study applications for the superintendent's job.

Pampa Youth Dies Of Critical Injuries

A Pampa boy who was involved in a car-bicycle accident here June 30 died last night at Northwest Texas Hospital, Amarillo, of injuries suffered in the accident.

A spokesman at the hospital's Intensive Care Unit said this morning that Danny Glen Downs, eight-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Winford Downs, 325 Jean, died at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Kelso Funeral Home, Wellington.

The boy suffered a fractured leg and severe head injuries when he rode his bicycle into the path of an automobile at the intersection of Tyng and Jean Sts. at about 3:45 p.m. last Sunday.

A group of Pampa residents, headed by Kirk Duncan, had started earlier this week a fund campaign for the Downs family to assist with hospital and other expenses.

When informed of the death of the boy, Duncan said he believed the campaign should continue.

"If anything," he said, "they may need help now more than ever."

The boy's father, who is a truck driver for Moody Farms, is unable to work consistently because of an old back injury. His mother was worked occasionally as a waitress.

In order to utilize an organization already set up and thereby speed the process of lending aid to the family, Duncan has asked that donations to the Downs family be addressed to the First Prebyterian Church "Helping Hand Fund," at P.O. Box 2232 in Pampa.

Survivors of Danny Glen Downs, in addition to his parents, include a sister, Deanna, age two; and three brothers, Shane, 5; Daniel Oliver, 11; and David, 12.

Israelis, Arabs Trade Truce Violation Charges In Threats

United Press International

Israel and the Arabs stepped up their war of words today, trading truce violation charges in a possible new threat to the fragile peace in the Middle East.

The Arabs accused Israel of "aggression" in launching reprisal raids against Palestinian targets in Lebanon. The Israelis charged Egypt with cease-fire violations in the Sinai Desert.

Field Marshal Ahmed Ismail, the Egyptian war minister, said Wednesday at the opening of an Arab military conference in Cairo his nation was prepared to go to "the ultimate extreme" to defend "every inch" of Lebanese territory.

Two hardline Arab states — Syria and Algeria —offered to station warplanes and troops in Lebanon to defend the Palestinian targets from Israeli attacks.

Conference sources said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam and Algerian Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika made the offers during a three-hour closed session Wednesday night.

The sources said Lebanon, which has stayed out of the last three Middle East wars, was unlikely to accept troops or warplanes for fear of being dragged into a major conflict with Israel.

The conference sources said Lebanon would prefer Arab financial aid to bankroll a 10-year, $1 billion defense plan to revamp its own armed forces.

The Palestine Liberation Organization asked for increased Arab military aid, but promised to stage future raids from bases inside Israel to "deprive the enemy of any pretext to launch aggression on Lebanon."

Military sources in Tel Aviv accused Egypt Wednesday of violating the Suez Canal ceasefire agreement by extending fortifications 100 yards into the U.N. buffer zone in the Sinai Desert.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE will be the colors for the 1974 Gray County 4-H Fashion Festival Thursday, July 11. 'ROCK OF AGES'

Mrs. King Given Eulogies, Tribute

ATLANTA (UPI) — As mourners packed Ebenezer Baptist Church and thousands more stood outside in the broiling sun, Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. was eulogized Wednesday near the spot where she was murdered during Sunday services.

Tribute after tribute was offered to the memory of the mother of martyred civil rights champion Martin Luther King Jr. She was pictured as the mother of "the most peaceful warrior of the 20th Century," sturdy as "the Rock of Ages."

Dignitaries led by the wife of Vice President Gerald Ford and including civil rights leaders who had marched with her son crowded into the church for the 2 1-2 hour ceremony honoring Alberta King, 69.

Security was tight. Several of those on hand, including the slain woman's husband, reportedly were on a "target list" attributed to the accused killer.

Mrs. King and a church deacon, Edward Boykin, 69, were slain by a gunman who began shooting wildly during Sunday's services.

The FBI meanwhile checked out reports that the suspect, Marcus Wayne Chenault, 23, of Dayton, Ohio, was a member of a conspiracy aimed at black ministers and civil rights leaders.

The alleged "target list" which police said they found in Chenault's belongings included the Revs. Martin Luther King Sr., Ralph D. Abernathy, Jesse Jackson and Hosea Williams, all of whom attended the ceremony.

Abernathy described Mrs. King as "a tower of strength ... a reservoir of courage and consolation. Through her, God gave the country and the world the most peaceful warrior of the 20th Century."

Mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta, the first black to head a major Southern city, said Mrs. King was "a Rock of Ages. No bullet will ever change that fact. She had a will that saw her through tragedy after tragedy after tragedy after tragedy ... until her own."

3 More Grass Fires Reported

City firemen made four runs on Wednesday, three of them to grass fires attributed to children playing with firecrackers.

The fires were as follows:

At 1:44 p.m., northeast of city limits, 2:22 p.m. at Marie Foundations factory area; and at 10:45 p.m., Santa Fe Railroad right of way southwest on Atchison.

The other run was to 1052 Neal Road, where a flooded carburetor caught fire, causing light damage to a car belonging to Norman Hale.

Groom School Board Meets

GROOM — The Groom Independent School District, at their regular meeting Tuesday night, discussed budget matters and organized the board of equalization.

Board chairman is Frank Grantham. Bob Pool is secretary, and Ray Britten is the third member.

July 18 is the date set for a public hearing on the budget.

At Tuesday's meeting the school board also considered action to be taken regarding extra - curricular activities of married students.

No final decisions were taken.

Some Trouble!

File this one under "You Think You Got Troubles"

A Pampa man complained to police that he went out celebrating his up-coming wedding, had a few beers here and there, and that, somehow, the wedding rings he was showing off "got misplaced."

At one of the tavern stops his bride - to - be threw all his clothes out onto the parking lot, then locked the car.

From there on, details are a bit sketchy.

Haile Selassie Intervenes With Army Leaders

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — The army pulled back from the brink of a full military takeover today and agreed to seek a solution to Ethiopia's worst crisis in 40 years through the dmocratic process.

The military's decision followed a dramatic confrontation Wednesday between Emperor Haile Selassie — intervening directly for the first time — and leaders of the army revolt and the civilian government.

At the talks in the Jubilee Palace, the army presented five demands, including the implementation of a new constitution as soon as possible, amnesty for political prisoners and the extension of parliament through the summer recess.

Western diplomatic sources said the army's emphasis on parliament indicated moderate elements in the military had gained the upper hand over radicals and they were now prepared to seek a peaceful solution.

The meetipg, which appeared to be the turning point of the crisis that was sparked when troops seized control of key installations in Addis Ababa Friday, coincided with a thinning out of troops in the capital.

Diplomats said the army might pull back further in the next few days while discussions continued with Prime Minister Endalkachew Makonnen on the makeup of a new cabinet.

Mourners Gather At Peron Funeral

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentine mourners flashing the Peronist "V" sign gathered in downtown Buenos Aires today to attend a state funeral with full military honors for President Juan Domingo Peron.

Peron's widow and successor, Maria Estela "Isabel" Peron, led the South American nation of 25 million in paying final respects to the dead president after four days of official mourning.

The blonde, 43-year-old widow, Peron's vice president, assumed leadership of the country last Saturday as her husband's health was failing. Peron, 78, died of heart and kidney diseases Monday afternoon.

Tens of thousands of grieving Argentines began lining the city's broad Avenida Libertador early today to await passage of the president's casket on an army caisson.

Peron's body was to be taken from the downtown National Congressional Palace, where it lay in state since Tuesday, to the official presidential residence in the northern suburb of Olivos.

The government gave 12 prominent speakers 90 minutes to deliver final eulogies before the funeral march to the Olivos residence. The speakers included the nation's top political, labor and military leaders.

The government's press office said Peron's body would remain at the residence for about two weeks and then would be returned to public view after a proper shrine is readied.

Four days of national mourning were ordered to end at noon Thursday. Banks, stores, government and private offices, closed since Monday, were ordered to resume normal business at the same hour.

Thousands of mourners, many weeping openly and others giving the Peronist "V" signal with their fingers continued to filed silently by the corpse until 4 a.m., when the congressional palace was closed off from the public.

AT NEW LOCATION

Day Care Center Plans Remodeling Of Building

Community Day Care Center of Pampa held its third monthly meeting July 1 in the Catholic School building, which has been donated to the Center as a future home.

Members of the Board discussed remodeling of the building so that the Center could move from its present location at 401 Oklahoma.

The building will receive a new roof, chain link fence and paint on the walls and ceilings.

Purpose of the Center is to provide working mothers with a place to leave their children while they work. Workers are graduates of a 32-hour college course in child care in the mental, physical and home areas.

Donations were acknowledged at the meeting and donors report will be available later.

Visitors attending the meeting were Mrs. Mike Martinez, Billy Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Reed, Angela Williams, Mary Summers and Cora Mae Hood.

Director for the Center is Mrs. Alice Grays. Board members are Robert Ellison III, president; Rev. Wayne Lemons, vice president; Shirley Meaker, treasurer; Fay Williams, secretary; and Mike Martinez, Rita Mills, Rev. Earl N. Meaker, W.E. Vinson, Jessie Williams, John Fuller, Judith Ellison, Hattie Williams, Mae Williams, Margaret Hunnicut and Claudett deason, members.

Community citizens are invited to attend the meetings at 600 W. Browning on the last Monday of each month.

Persons wishing to donate items to the Center may call 669-2232.

Swimmers Should Know Capabilities, Safe Action

By ALICE M. ALLEN

Whether you intend to or not, you might find yourself swimming in Lake Meredith. It doesn't matter whether it is intentional or accidental, you should know what you are doing whenever you are in the water.

Spring Canyon swimming area is the only supervised swimming area at Lake Meredith. Throughout the summer it is open daily and is supervised by trained lifeguards. The National Park Service discourages swimming in the lake itself.

Natural beaches around the lake may look inviting, but the water hides holes and sudden dropoffs. The non-swimmer or small child who steps in a hole could panic and drown.

Swimmers going away from the shore could get too far out to return to the beach without exhausting themselves.

The water in Lake Meredith averages about 70 degrees in summer. The cooler the water, the more energy it takes just to swim normally. Once a swimmer starts shivering, he should get out of the water. Shivering is a natural alarm to warn when body temperature and energy level are low.

Some swimmers in Lake Meredith never intended to get in the water. Usually, these unintentional swimmers are associated with swamped boats.

In case of such a dunking, reach for your life preserver — that's what it is for. Stay with your boat. Even filled with water, it will float and provide something to grasp. Often the wind will move the boat to shore saving you the tiring swim.

If you see someone in the water needing help, don't jump in after him. He will probably panic, grab you and drag you down with him. Instead, throw him something buoyant such as an empty styrofoam ice chest.

An empty thermos or empty gas can will also float if sealed. A spare tire or an inner tube can also help. Anything you throw should be aimed near the victim — not on top of him.

The best protection against drowning is a thorough knowledge of your capabilities as a swimmer. The second best protection is wearing a Coast Guard approved personal floatation device.

Price To Seek Early End To DST Program

WASHINGTON — Congressman Bob Price has welcomed the recommendation of the U.S. Department of Transportation for an early end to Daylight Savings Time and pledged to continue his work in the Congress toward that end.

"As I contended last fall when I opposed winter-time daylight savings time, it saves little energy and instead presents an increased danger to school children who are going to school in the dark," Price said.

The Transportation Department recently reported last winter's experiment with daylight savings time saved only about three-quarters of one percent of what energy consumption would otherwise have been. Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar also admitted an increased safety hazard for school children.

"It is now up to the Congress to reverse itself," said Price, "and I intend to work for an early end to daylight savings time."

Under current law, the winter - time daylight savings time experiment is to extend until November, 1975. The Transportation Department recommended it end this November instead.

Attorneys Protest Action Of Judge Selecting Jury

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Judge Preston Dial is questioning prospective jurors in the Elmer Wayne Henley mass murder trial and, over the objections of both defense and prosecution attorneys, has qualified one woman convicted of a criminal offense.

Dial, who may have already made one mistake serious enough to get a conviction reversed, accused defense attorney Will Gray Wednesday of trying to trick prospective jurors with his questions and began questioning them himself.

He qualified a woman to sit on the panel who was convicted on a misdemeanor bad check charge although both sides wanted to dismiss her.

Dial had said earlier in the day he wanted to select 32 prospective jurors by Wednesday night so each side could strike 10 Friday and the trial could begin Monday. But when the trial recessed Wednesday until 9 a.m. Friday, only 27 of the 32 panel members had been agreed on.

State and defense attorneys questioned 66 persons Wednesday before Judge Dial finally called an Independence Day recess.

Henley is charged with killing six of the 27 young men in Houston who were lured to their sexual torture ad eventual death.

Defense attorneys indicated in their questioning Wednesday they intend to make the state prove the identities of each of the six persons Henley is accused of killing and also that insanity will play a part in their defense.

During questioning of another prospective juror, court appointed defense attorney Rudy Esquivel of San Antonio said:

"Will you follow the law that insanity is a defense to murder? Will you following the law that insanity is a defense to even six murders?"

Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance hinted at prosecution tactics during his questioning.

"Insanity could be a defense to a crime," he said. "Drugs or alcohol is not a defense."

McLean Hires Two Teachers

McLEAN — Two new teachers have been employed for McLean public schools.

They are Martha Hendricks, for Home Economics; and Robert Mears, junior high coach. Both taught at Texline last year.

Their hiring was approved at Tuesday's regular meeting of the board of McLean Independent School District.

The board also awarded a $2,200 contract to Z.A. Myers for repainting of all exterior trim on elementary school buildings and authorized purchase of a five - man sled for the football program.

CRANBERRY FEAST, U. S. A.

Celebrate the Fourth of July with the all-American, all-season, native cranberry bursting with flavor and colorfully right for the occasion. Jellied cranberry sauce forms the stripes for a Cranberry Flag Cake, and cranberry juice cocktail is the perfect base for a merry red Cranberry Rocket Punch. For your main course, grill chicken and meat tidbits on skewers and serve with taste-tingling Cranberry Catsup.

MIXED GRILL WITH CRANBERRY CATSUP
(Serves 8)

- 1 pound boneless chicken breast, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 pounds sirloin steak, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 1 package brown and serve sausages, cut into halves
- 4 tomatoes, quartered
- 8 whole mushrooms
- 1 can (1 pound) boiled whole onions, drained
- ½ cup melted butter or margarine
- Salt & pepper

Spear cubes of chicken, beef, sausage on skewers. On separate skewers spear tomatoes, mushrooms and onions. Brush all with melted butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place kabobs 6 inches above gray coals and broil 5 to 6 minutes on each side. Serve with Cranberry Catsup.

CRANBERRY CATSUP

Combine 1 cup tomato puree, ½ cup mashed Ocean Spray jellied cranberry sauce, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1 tablespoon horseradish and 2 tablespoons vinegar. Bring to boil, simmer 5 minutes and then spoon warm over kabobs.

CRANBERRY FLAG CAKE
(Makes 1—9x13x2 inch cake)

- 1 package (18½ ounces) yellow cake mix
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 3 squares (3 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate, grated
- 1 package (9 ounces) frozen whipped topping, thawed
- 1 can (1 pound) Ocean Spray jellied cranberry sauce
- ½ cup fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries

Prepare cake mix according to package directions adding nutmeg and grated chocolate to cake batter. Pour batter into a greased and floured 9x13x2 inch baking pan. Bake as directed on package. Remove from pan and cool on a rack. Place cake on a serving platter and spread top and sides with whipped topping. Chill until ready to serve. Just before serving cut jellied cranberry sauce lengthwise into ½ inch thick slices. Cut slices lengthwise into strips 1 inch wide. Drain strips well on absorbent paper. Place blueberries in rows in upper left hand corner of the cake to resemble the stars on the flag. Place cranberry strips across cake to resemble stripes on flag. It will be necessary to piece cranberry strips to make stripes long enough for cake. Place strips close together to hide joining.

CRANBERRY ROCKET PUNCH
(Serves 12)

- 2 quarts (8 cups) Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
- ¼ cup grenadine syrup
- 2 quarts club soda, chilled

Combine chilled cranberry juice and grenadine in a punch bowl. Slowly add club soda. Add ice cubes and garnish with strawberries and cherries.

Home Shopping Guide

How To Buy Intelligently

In these days of the shrinking dollar, it makes good sense to try to get the most for your money. When considering a purchase, either in a store or in your own living room from a member of the $6 billion a year direct selling industry, follow these proven tips:

—Shop carefully and buy only what you really want or need.

—Ask questions about comparable products.

—Obtain a copy of any guarantee in writing. The guarantee should state its scope and limitations, clearly defining who is responsible for honoring it.

—Before you sign a contract or order, be sure you have read it carefully and that all blank spaces are filled in, as required by law in many states.

—Get an itemized receipt at time of purchase or delivery. Tax, if any, or other additional charges should be separately noted. The name and address of the seller should appear on the receipt.

—Know with whom you are dealing.

When taking advantage of the high-quality products, personal service, convenience and economy of shopping at home, request identification of the salesperson.

If the company whose products are being sold is a member of the Direct Selling Association, the salesperson will be bound by one of the toughest code of business ethics in retailing, independently and impartially enforced.

For detailed information on the code, write for the "Direct Selling Association Opens the Door to Consumer Protection" brochure to: Direct Selling Association, Dept. M1, 1730 M Street N.W., Washington, DC 20036, and when it arrives, keep it in a convenient place for ready reference.

SOUTHERN SPICED TEA

7 Cups boiling water
5 Tbs. tea leaves
2 Cups sugar
1 Tsp. whole cloves
2 Sticks cinnamon
1 Cup water
Juice of 1 lemon
Juice of 6 oranges

When water boils put in two sticks of cinnamon and boil ten minutes. Add tea leaves and let stand five minutes. Make a syrup by boiling sugar, water and cloves together. When mixture thickens add to tea and juices. Serve cold with ice cubes and a sprig of mint. Makes 18 cups.

Better Eating... FROM START TO FINISH

The Kitchen Almanac

Appetizing appetizers . . . Cut peeled carrots into two-inch lengths and hollow them out using an apple corer or peeler. Fill with creamed cheese or any firm spread. Refrigerate . . . or, thread pitted ripe olives on thin celery or carrot sticks.

* * *

Staggering Statistics—It's estimated that one in three Americans are overweight—that adds up to more than 70 million people . . . The average homemaker with a family of five washes over 48,000 dishes, glasses, silverware, pots and pans in a year . . . The longest sausage ever made exceeded 3,100 feet.

* * *

What's the world of cooking coming to? How about this: some processors are now inserting a pop-up timer on roasts and poultry. The timers resemble a golf tee and when cooking is completed, a center stem "pops up" indicating the food is ready. What next?

* * *

To get the most out of your automatic dishwasher, experts at KitchenAid offer the following tips:

1. Use only detergents made specifically for use in automatic dishwashers. Other detergents can cause excessive sudsing and flooding, and slowing or complete stopping of wash arm action.

2. Load dishes in a manner permitting free circulation of water. Avoid "crowding."

3. To save energy and money, wash only full loads. Partial loads can be rinsed to prevent foods from sticking. Use the "Rinse and Hold cycle," if your unit has one.

Keep baking soda handy in the kitchen. It makes a good extinguisher for grease fires that may flare up while cooking.

* * *

If members of your family are sweet potato fanciers, take note: experts say "sweets" are one of the world's most all-'round nutritious foods . . . Try whipping sweet potatoes with a bit of orange juice—or mash them with butter and chopped pecans. Delicious!

* * *

To give cauliflower a tang, try adding any of the following: caraway seed, celery salt, dill, mace or tarragon . . . Frozen, reconstituted orange juice provides the same vitamin C as the juice from fresh oranges.

All Hail The Hero

Nothing can satisfy hunger faster than a truly heroic hero sandwich. But a hero isn't a hero when it's just meat-and-mustard. To make it right you've got to add the pickles and peppers that give it an authentic taste. Luckily for busy homemakers, these "exotic" ingredients are as close as the local supermarket.

1 large loaf Italian bread
Olive oil
Provolone cheese slices
Progresso pepper salad
Thin-sliced Genoa salami
Anchovy fillets (optional)
Progresso Mushroom salad
Sliced tomatoes

Slice bread lengthwise. Brush both sides with olive oil. Salt and pepper to taste. Layer all ingredients on bottom half. Cover with top. Slice in half or quarters.

BURN TREATMENT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of the Pacific School of Pharmacy has reported development of a new "dry foam" preparation for burn treatment that eliminates the need to apply ointment. The foam is sprayed on the burn.

LONGEVITY PAYS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Kemper Life Insurance companies have announced two new term life insurance policies which are renewable until age 100. The policies have to be started before the insured reaches the age of 70 and can be converted to other types of life insurance until age 80.

Miss ½'s gift list reflects full-blown greed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Listen to this: We are 2½ girls living together. [The "½" girl lives here half the time, and with her fiance the other half.]

The ½ girl friend is getting married next month, so the other roommate and I offered to give her a shower.

We asked "Miss ½" to give us the usual type list for both wedding and shower gifts. [We wanted to know what colors, and pattern of china, silver and glassware she selected, in case someone wanted to add to it.]

Her list floored us. It went something like this: "Enamel pots and pans only. No Teflon—I hate them! A battery-run kitchen clock. I won't accept one that's electric. No tea towels. I hate them. I don't want any cheap glasses, only crystal. Money is always best."

My roommate and I were embarrassed to read such a list. When I asked "Miss ½" to be a little more specific, she said she didn't have time to go into it, but if people didn't want to give her what she wanted, she didn't want anything.

What should we do? She's 30 years old and has never been married. TWO CONFUSED ROOMMATES

DEAR CONFUSED: "Miss ½" gave you an out: Give her what she wants, or give her nothing.

DEAR ABBY: There must be many others with my problem.

Two years ago I was "the other woman." Today I am "a wicked stepmother" to four teen-agers.

The children and I get along fine. More importantly, my husband and I are very much in love. His "ex" and I do not speak [her terms; not mine].

Problem: My husband wants us to spend a fortune traveling to see his son graduate from high school. While his "ex" hasn't objected, I know this will be an uncomfortable day. Should I stick by my husband's side like glue—or skip the whole scene and stay home by myself?

HAPPY AT HOME

DEAR HAPPY: Stay home and make everyone happier.

DEAR ABBY: Lately you've published several letters about people who have sent gifts and never received an acknowledgement. It happens to me nine out of ten times.

I blame parents and grandparents for furnishing the names of their friends who should be good for at least one $20 spoon toward completing the set of silver.

Now I mail everything insured and if I don't get an acknowledgement in 30 days, I file a claim. Don't think that doesn't shake 'em up. Sometimes I get three thank-you's in one week. From the kids, Mama, and Grandma. L. W. R.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

$11.5 billion helps meet medical bills

Insurance Companies pay record $ in health benefits

Nineteen-forty was the year when President Roosevelt ran for a 3rd term, women were rushing hosiery counters for the latest in fashions—nylon stockings; Cornelius Warmerdam became the first man to pole-vault 15 feet, and the big song hit around the country was "South of the Border." It was also a year when just about the only people who could really afford to get sick, stay out of work or be hospitalized without bringing financial havoc to their family, were the well-to-do.

There were only 12 million Americans—less than ten per cent of the country's population—with any form of health insurance to protect them in case of an illness or accident in 1940.

Today, according to the Health Insurance Institute, some 182 million persons—about 9 out of every 10—have private health insurance protection.

During 1973, the Institute reports, an estimated $11.5 billion in benefits was paid out by insurance companies to help meet Americans' medical bills. This was well ahead of the record payments of $10.6 billion in 1972. Total benefits from all types of insuring organizations were nearly $23 billion in 1973.

The benefits from insurance companies alone averaged out to $31.5 million per day, according to figures released by the Institute in its annual estimate of health insurance coverage in the United States.

Insurance company benefits during 1973 included hospital expenses of some $4.0 billion, surgical and dental expenses of $1.2 billion, medical expenses of $525 million, major medical expenses of over $3.6 billion and disability income benefits of $2.1 billion.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, JULY 5

Your birthday today: Opens a year of revision, experimenting in search of a better way of life. Much skill is added to your ready resources, eventually results in higher earning capability. Relationships are somewhat delicate, need a vast amount of understanding and insight. Today's natives pursue their own specialties, usually are somewhat impractical, often extremely talented.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Work if you must, take the day off if you possibly can. Precautions are essential in all activities, particularly where machines are used.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Concentrate on the fine touches, smooth out recent differences. One thing at a time, be sure you get the sequence right to begin with.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your finances are a bit tight, while spending is as wide open as you let it be. Someone you love proves distracting if you're trying to work.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: There's plenty to do even though you're off your usual routine or away from the job. Be busy on your chosen projects, prepared for interruptions.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Nothing goes quite as planned. If you have several irons in the fire, so much to the good—you'll have less time in which to cause mischief.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: The unusual appeals to most people today, brings you passing inconvenience. Being overly emphatic merely makes matters more complicated.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Make no major changes, put business or career questions aside altogether. Evening can be special fun, let go and laugh.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Preserve some semblance of a normal schedule. Ignore advice from those who don't put themselves forward to take a full share of responsibility.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Old ideas are disproven today. Give yourself the luxury of long study before you plunge into improvised projects, new ventures.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Tomorrow's conditions are beyond reach of yesterday's planning. Be willing to start over. Improved personal outlook doesn't replace need for care in planning.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Theory, technicalities are abundant but are no substitute for human acceptance, sympathy. See that you're in step with emotional trend of world.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Joint finances are sensitive, needn't be made a subject for argument. Competition stirs debate, brings out a fuller story. Stay out of it.

Grill-Top Beef Blade Steak

Place 1 or 2 beef blade steaks, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick, and Coffee-Citrus Marinade in utility dish or plastic bag, turning meat to coat all sides. Cover dish or close bag securely and place in pan. Marinate in refrigerator 4 to 6 hours or overnight, turning at least once. Remove steaks, reserving marinade, and place on grill top 4 to 5 inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature 15 to 25 minutes, depending upon thickness of steak and degree of doneness desired (rare or medium). Turn and brush steaks with marinade occasionally. 4 to 6 servings.

Average ordinary policy purchased shows gains

Who buys the most life insurance? Brides and bridegrooms starting new households, expectant fathers, people with growing families to protect, house mortgages to be paid off, and children to be sent to school, that's who.

Based on a study by the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association, persons between the ages of 20 and 35—those in the family-forming years accounted for the largest share of ordinary policy purchases in 1972, reports the Institute of Life Insurance.

The average amount of the ordinary life policy purchased in 1972 was $13,690, an increase of 74 per cent over the average policy purchased ten years earlier. Since 1962, there has been a steady upward trend in the average size of policies purchased.

Ordinary life insurance, usually acquired through an agent, is the most widely used form of life insurance protection. The term includes whole life, endowment and individual term policies.

Among the buyers of ordinary life insurance policies purchased in 1972, men accounted for 60 per cent of the total policies acquired, women accounted for 24 per cent, children, 16 per cent.

MRS. DAVID C. MICKEY
...nee Miss Margaret Ann Hinkle

Margaret Hinkle Becomes Bride Of David C. Mickey

Miss Margaret Ann Hinkle became the bride of David C. Mickey Wednesday, June 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church chapel, Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm E. Hinkle, 2326 Aspen, are parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Claude W. Mickey, Tulia, are parents of the bridegroom.

THE CEREMONY

Altar arrangements of mixed summer flowers in Grecian urns and globe covered tree candelabra entwined with salal foliage, provided the background for the exchange of nuptial vows.

The Rev. Claude Cone, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Jerry Whitten, organist, and Mark Turner, guitarist, provided traditional wedding selections and played "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white silk organza gown. The highrise fitted bodice featured a wedding-ring neckline and cap sleeves. Daisy and leaf appliques complemented the bodice and floor-length skirt of the gown styled with an attached chapel length train. She wore a garden hat and carried a gavotte nosegay of white roses, stephanotis with seed pearls and satin leave streamers.

ATTENDANTS

Candace Gaye Hinkle, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, attired in a light green organza dress. She carried a colonial nosegay of mixed summer flowers.

Billy Holland was best man and Mickey Fly and Quinton Ely both cousins of the bridegroom, were ushers.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor. A white satin floor length cloth covered the serving table, centered with a floral arrangement flanked by hurricane candles. Miss Roxanne Crossman poured punch and Miss Jan Hart served cake. Mrs. Janet Moler registered wedding guests.

For the wedding trip to Santa Fe, N.M., the bride wore a red and white three-piece pant ensamble. Her flowers were white rose buds.

The couple will reside in Tulia.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a mid-term 1972 graduate of Pampa High School. She attended West Texas State University and Amarillo Junior College. The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Tulia High School and attended WTSU.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS

A miscellaneous shower recently honoring the bride was hosted by Mmes. Arthur Aftergut, Hansford Ousley, and Floyd Watson.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Attending the event from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ely, and A.R. Mickey, Canyon; Mr. and Mrs. Randy Johnson, and Mrs. Jerry Woods, all of Amarillo; and Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Moler, Denver, Colo.

Permanent Care Labeling

COLLEGE STATION — Proper labeling is the only hope today's homemaker has for proper care of modern fabrics, according to Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Modern fabrics may be deceiving — fiber content as a clue to care isn't always obvious from the look or feel of the fabric. Synthetics may look like fabrics from natural fibers but require different car," she said.

The Federal Trade Commission now requires that specific care instructions be permanently attached to ready mades in a conspicuous place and remain legible for the life of the garment.

"This eliminates the need to save hang tags and takes the guesswork out of clothing care," Miss Rhoades explained.

Completely washable items that sell for $3 or less may be exempted by FTC along with headwear, handwear, footwear (except hosiery), no care apparel, and items whose use or appearanca would be greatly impaired by a permanent label, she noted.

On yard goods, the number in a small triangle appearing on the end of the bolt provides a clue to permanent care imformation.

With each fabric purchases, a small, numbered label should be provided which gives necessary care instructions for maximum performance of the fabric.

"The label number should correspond to the number on the bolt end," the specialist reminded.

Sew the label into the garment during construction or affix it with a fusible for permanent reference, she said.

America's Birthday: Think!

Generally a birthday anniversary is a happy occasion during which, apart from celebration, some assessment is made of the accomplishments of one's life.

Today is the birthday of the United States of America. Technically, perhaps, that is not true because the government of the United States as framed by the Constitution did not come into being until 1789 which is 13 years after the Founding Fathers declared the 13 American colonies were independent of the government of George III.

But this is the anniversary of the written document which declared a new idea in political government, an idea that men are free to pursue their own happiness in their own way; that they are equal under the law.

The Declaration of Independence clearly expressed rejection of the government of King George III because that government did not recognize the basic rights of human beings. The document further stated the right and duty of the people to divorce themselves from tyrannical government.

But the men who led the new land in its journey away from the British government led the people back to another form of political government which in time has become destructive to individual freedom in greater degree than that which they overthrew in 1776.

Those who might question that statement are urged to examine the countless govenment edicts which prohibit or interfere with the individual's choice in such matters as medical therapy, vitamins and food supplements. Consider compulsory school attendance laws and laws which enforce union membership, restrict the use a person can make of his private property and which interfere with the exchange of goods and services. Consider the thrust of the entire government machinery which forces conformity throughout the land.

The Constitution is a revered document in the minds of most Americans because it is believed the document limits government power over the people.

This belief stems from the early school training and from commentary by politicians who frequently refer to the "constitutionality" of certain actions.

Over the years the people have held the notion that there actually is a limit on the action of political government in the United States.

But on this birthday anniversary perhaps it would be worthwhile for Americans to examine that idea from a practical standpoint and not from rhetoric and textbook statements.

It should be valuable to examine the idea of separation of powers which we have so frequently been told is established by the Constitution.

It is true that the words are there. It is true that legislation is passed by the Congress. It is true that the judiciary examines the cases in law and consitutionality of actions. And it is true that the executive branch appoints persons to office and conducts the administration.

The facts just stated may provide ample fodder for politicians to talk about to suggest that the political government of the United States remains as it was outlined by the Founding Fathers and the architects of the Constitution.

But in the real world we know this is not the case.

Power of political government has shifted overwhelmingly to the Executive Branch of government so that in actual operation the checks and balances talked about in such revered terms seldom exist.

The creation of the vast bureaucracies has effectively bypassed Article I, Sec. I of the U.S. Constitution which states "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States which shall consist of a Senate and the House of Representatives."

Legislation is the passing of laws. Yet any student of government must recognize that the actions of such bureaus as the National Labor Relations Board, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Food and Drug Administration and countless others are legislative actions in practical application. Not only do they administer as is their established role as part of the Executive Branch, they write their own rules (laws) which change repeatedly without representation of the people and they make judicial rulings which in most cases are not subject to the control of the Judiciary.

Clearly the operation of the Presidency has effectively sidestepped the Congress in such matters as conducting armed conflict and countless other activities the enumeration of which seems unnecessary.

It should be obvious that the government of the United States has become a single branch operation which hinges on the popularity of the man holding the office of President.

This has not just happened in the Nixon administration. The current President is simply the heir to the vast power shift which has been building ever since the Constitution was ratified.

We have commented many times on the nature of political government. It has an insatiable appetite for power, and after 197 years, the power grab by the Executive Branch is almost complete.

The best birthday present Americans can give themselves today is to examine carefully the Constitution and to compare what was established with what has developed.

Examine particularly the powers and duties of the Executive Branch.

If there are to be happy birthdays in the future, make this one a day of deep thought.

The Question Box

QUESTION: A legislative advocate says the federal government has the primary responsibility to provide "adequate financial aid to students through grants and supplements based on demonstrated needs." Does this individual believe the federal government has some source of funds that does not come out of the pockets of the people?

ANSWER: We have no way of knowing what individuals connected with the state school system think, since we make no claims of ominiscience. We can only judge from the statements and actions of these people.

Apparently there is a feeling among those connected with the state colleges and universities that there is some magic money machine in Washington that cranks out a sufficient supply to take care of whatever their hearts desire. Not all is their fault though. The politicians have been leaving that impression for years, and the young people seem to accept blindly what they have been told.

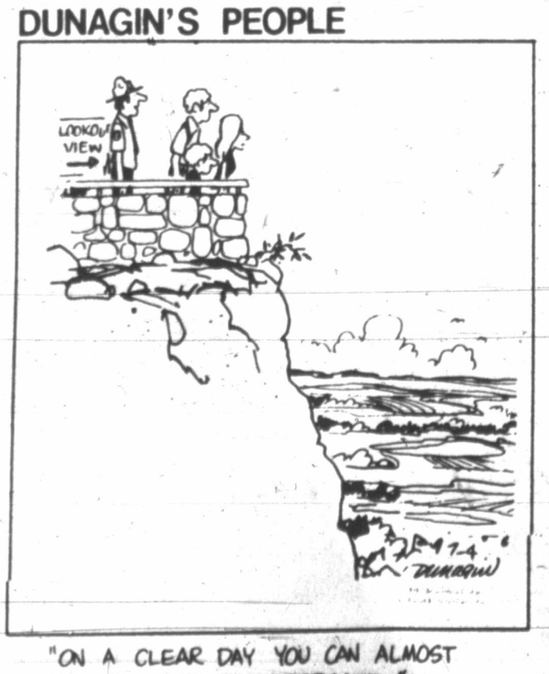

We suppose they are only human in believing what they want to believe, and rejecting the truism that the government has no money that it does not first take from the people. They may believe that the taxing situation does not touch them and that the money is coming only from the pockets of the wealthy, but they are mistaken. Recent disclosure of low or no payment of taxes by politicians and other wealthy persons should have demonstrated that fact clearly.

But they seem blind to reality and continue to believe they can have democratic socialism, which has been described as a system under which everone seeks to live at the expense of everyone else.

Promoters of the state schools, including colleges and universities, frequently make the claim that the institutions benefit the community and therefore should be paid for through taxes. Whether that is true may be subject to question. But conceding it is true, having everyone well fed and clothed also could be considered beneficial to all and therefore subject to being financed by taxes.

But it seems to be natural that individuals enjoying privileges at the expense of others believe that their particular activity is more necessary than others and therefore should be paid for by all the people — except the true beneficiaries. And in that direction lies total socialism.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Reassessing Mr. Churchill

By WILLIAM RUSHER

This year marks the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Winston Churchill, and naturally the great British statesman is coming in for a lot of reevaluation.

For my generation, Churchill will probably always loom considerably larger than life. And maybe we are right, at that. I remember my father's remark, when he first noticed his teen-age son's extravagant admiration for Churchill: "Well, if you had to have a hero to worship, I guess you picked a pretty good one." I have since outgrown the need for heroes, but Winston Chruchill remains, for me, something pretty special.

On the other hand, there is no lack of serious historians nowadays to study the Churchillian achievement coolly and put it in its context, or of outright denigrators whose delight is to diminish the reputation of a man whose shoes they were not fit to shine.

On of the former is the respected British hisotrian of World War II, A.J.P. Taylor, who contributed a thoughtful and balanced reassessment of Churchill to the "New York Times Magazine" a few weeks ago. Taylor argues that Churchill, as Prime Minister in 1940-45, made three major strategic decisions, all of which were at best open to criticism: to approve the mass bombardment of German cities; to concentrate on minor victories in the Mediterranean, thereby delaying victory in the main theater of war; and to gamble that Japan would not attack Britain's defenseless Far Eastern empire.

He also thinks Churchill allowed Britain to be treated shabbily by her American ally in everything from gold reserves to nuclear technology, and points out that Churchill's determination to destroy Germany's war potential altogether assured the postwar emergence of the Soviet Union as the dominant power in Europe. Taylor is quick to concede, however, that many of these decisions, and especially the last, many have been inevitable.

But to dwell on this or that alleged Churchillian mistake has always seemed to be to miss the essential point about the man. In a political career spanning sixty years, mistakes, and even disasters, were inevitable. In a way, Churchill's and even disasters, were inevitable. In a way, Chruchill's experiences illustrate the vanity of human hopes: he knew defeat and rejection and futility as only an active and energetic figure can know them. But the real story, and the real triumph, are not to be found in Churchill's accomplishments, vast though they were, but in his life itself.

Born into a noble house, he started near the top and stayed there, by right of his own spectacular qualities, for ninety years. Educated to be a soldier, he had his hat shot off on India's Northwest Frontier in 1897, participated in history's last great calvary charge — at Omdurman in the Sundan — in 1898, and was captured by, an escaped at 25, he was elected to Victoria's last Parliament in 1900 and ultimately held almost every major post in the British government.

And always at the most ticklish times: Home Secretary in 1909-11, First Lord of the Admiralty and Minister of Munitions during World War I, Colonial Secretary in charge of the explosive Middle East in 1921, Chancellor of the Exchequer during the General Strike of 1926, then First Lord again in 1939 and Prime Minister at last in 1940, in Britain's "finest hours." And from his pen there flowed some forty books — reminiscences, military history, essays and biography — of a quality so high that he justly received the Nobel Prize for Literature.

And they talk about "mistakes"! The British humorist A.P. Herbert hit it on the head in a sentimental moment at a Churchill birthday party after World War II, when he tossed off the following little poem:

"Many happy returns of the day
To the father of purpose and plan;
To the one who was first in the fray—
Never doubted or rested or ran.
May he live to hear History say,
'This was their finest man.'"

Have You Ever Been Polled By Pollsters?

By PAUL HARVEY

Who are all these people telling you what you think?

Almost daily you read or hear what purports to be "public opinion" on some subject, legislation or political candidate. You are the public — and nobody's asked you!

Public opinion polls were fun when nobody took them seriously. Today, however, merchants are influenced, lawmakers are intimidated and conceivably elections are decided by what the public opinion polls reflect.

Yet in the weeks since I began asking around, I've found no one who was ever polled by any pollster. I have asked cross - section audiences in six states for a show of hands and have seen not one.

Some TV and radio talk shows have launched similar research. Out of a potential audience of 50,000, one show found one person who'd been queried. Others report none.

The official polling organizations admit they base their findings on what they call "samplings." The big three make no effort to represent their findings as comprehensive — yet it is possible that a monumental constitutional issue is about to be decided in the U.S. Congress because of what the polls say you want.

Similarly out of hand is the prevalent news media practice of crediting "usually reliable sources" or "sources close to" somebody or something. However valid such sources may sometimes be, this dubious practice allows limitless latitude for misrepresentation, distortion — lying.

This is not meant to bite the hand that feeds me — just to "nip it" a bit. This is to remind our once - proud profession that we are sowing seeds of disbelief which will eventuate in our discredit.

If there are to be any constructive side effects to the Watergate agony, let it be that our tendency to act as lawyer, judge and jury was brought into sharp focus — and subsequently voluntarily restrained.

In addition to the representative surveys which I'm beginning to believe are not at all representative, and the intoxication of power which has some media people roaring drunk, there remains the unhealthy concentration, centralization of the major national press and information facilities — all epicentered on Manhattan Island.

With AP, UPI, the TV and radio networks and most major news - related publications home - based in New York City, the likelihood of Hudson River myopia is obvious.

While Vice President, Spiro Agnew once dared to challenge this tail - wagging - the - dog aspect of our mass media. Perhaps unfortunately, the critic himself was vulnuerable to criticism.

Even were we to assume that there is no dominant political persuasion characteristic of Manhattan, the cloistered rewriters are inexorably kept off balance by the undulating Atlantic tides of philosophical fashion.

I don't know how painlessly to behead the octopus, but it is out of date and has our nation's vision out of focus.

Secretary Dent said the economy is stable but is subject to some strains. That's like saying Lincoln would have never been shot if he hadn't been president.

Checkbook Diplomacy

It doesn't take a degree in higher mathematics to add up the costs to the American taxpayers of the "peace settlement" of the October Middle East War. A pencil and paper will do nicely. This little exercise in simple addition will give those citizens who have recently signed their names to IRS Form 1040 a whole new perspective into the workings of "checkbook diplomacy" and "share- the-wealth detente."

The first figure to write down is $2,200,000,000. Label this item "emergency military loans to Israel during the October War." Congress, in approving this amount last fall, specified that $700 million should be repaid. However, highly-placed sources in the Administration revealed recently that the entire amount soon will be considered as a free gift to Tel Aviv, at the insistence of the State Department. Chalk one up for Dr. Kissinger's checkbook, drawn on your account.

Now, jot down under the heading, "foreign aid to Egypt to cover the costs of renewing diplomatic relations," the sum of $250,000,000. Of this amount, $20 million will be used to clear war debris from the Suez Canal, $80 million for farm and industrial credit sales and $150 million to rebuild war-damaged Egyptian property. Despite the fact that diplomatic relations were broken at Egypt's request 6½ years ago, some $34 millior in U.S. aid has gone to Cairo during the last two years alone.

Include another $19,000,000 to build and fortify a U.S. military installation on the tiny speck of land in the Indian Ocean called Diego Garcia. This is necessary, says the Pentagon, to keep an eye on the Russian ships going through the Suez Canal, after we reopen it for navigation.

Deposit two additional checks to Dr. Kissinger's credit.

Now write down $350,000,000 under the column headed "Israel." Label $50 million of this "security assistance" and $300 million as "military credit sales." Label Dr. Kissinger "a big-time spender with taxpayers' money."

Make a note of $207,500,000 for "foreign aid to Jordan." Credit $100 million of it as outright military aid gifts, with $30 million as military credits and $77.5 million in economic aid.

Under the heading, "Middle East Slush Fund," the State Department prefers to call it a "Special Requirements Fund" write down $100,000,000. This is Dr. Kissinger's "miscellaneous detente kitty" to be used to bankroll the U.N.'s peacekeeping forces, refugee aid and various development projects.

Now draw a line and total the figures. Of course, there are other "low profile accounts" tucked away in the massive State Department budget, but these are the largest ones. My arithmetic places the known total of money syphoned from the U.S. Treasurey into the Middle East at $3,136,000,000.

In announcing his proposed budget for foreign aid spending for fiscal year 1975, President Nixon said that the $5,180,000,000 he wants Congress to give him and Dr. Kissinger is "the minimum essential to support the responsible and constructive American role of international leadership and cooperation." This request by the President is a staggering 72 percent increase over present foreign aid spending levels. If this is the "minimum" amount our government thinks we should lavishly hand out overseas, Heaven help the beleaguered American worker and taxpayer if the State Department ever demands the "maximum" to buy more "detente victories."

Any member of Congress who has a shred of fiscal responsibility or any respect for the current domestic situation, knows what his answer to this globar giveway will be. It is a loud, "NO."

WATCH FOR INTRUDERS

Author Nat Hentoff says he worries the Watergate break-in might take the public's eye off more serious and personal invasions of privacy.

Speaking at the local branch of Miami University, Hentoff said the federal government now maintains computerized information on more than 150 million Americans. Hentoff, author of "State Secrets: Police Surveillance in America," to be published next year, said the information fed the federal computers comes from police agencies, school systems, armed forces, credit agencies and insurance companies.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

Enrollment In WTSU Art Department Increases 10 Percent

AMARILLO — West Texas State University's Art Department added the bachelor of fine arts degree to its curriculum this summer, and at the same time the department's enrollment increased almost 10 percent.

The Art Department added the BFA degree to provide a "program to fit the needs of students who requested a degree in professional art, says Dr. Emilio Caballero, head of the department.

"We've had to find new directions to supplant old directions," explained Caballero, "to offer students a greater field to choose from."

West Texas State wanted to offer programs that would be in competition with other colleges and universities in the Texas system, the Southwest and the nation, says Caballero.

The WTSU Bachelor of Fine Arts degree "now is as good as or maybe better, hour wise, than most universities in Texas," adds the department head.

A BFA candidate must complete 81 semester hours in art, as compared to the 42 semester hours required for the Bachelor of Arts degree, 48 hours for the all-levels teacher certification, and 18-24 hours for an elementary education concentration.

WTSU has a strong teacher education program, Caballero, said and now with the BFA and its four year program of practical studio discipline, WT can produce graduates who are highly qualifed performing artists.

Students seeking the BFA degree may study either studio art or commercial art. Majors in studio art are drawing, painting, sculpture, graphics, desgn, ceramics, metal-smithing, textiles and weaving.

The Department of Artand its seven full-time faculty members, offer 70 courses and approximately 357 semester hours from the freshman to the master's degree level. Before the BFA was implemented, only 32 classes and 147 hours were open to students.

Caballero credits the rise in enrollment this summer to this "tremendous variety of choice" students have in selecting classes. Last year the department offered "at most ten courses" and this summer about 35 classes were listed.

A system of multiple listing of classes allows one instructor to teach several sections of a subject in a single class period. For instance, a senior and a freshman watercolor class may meet together, instead of requiring two classrooms and an additional instructor. Under this system the faculty-student ratio is still approximately 18 to 1.

Employment for the fine arts graduate varies from requests for medical artists, to advertising designers, foundry artists and printmakers.

Prowling the Panhandle:

The Towers of Tule Canyon

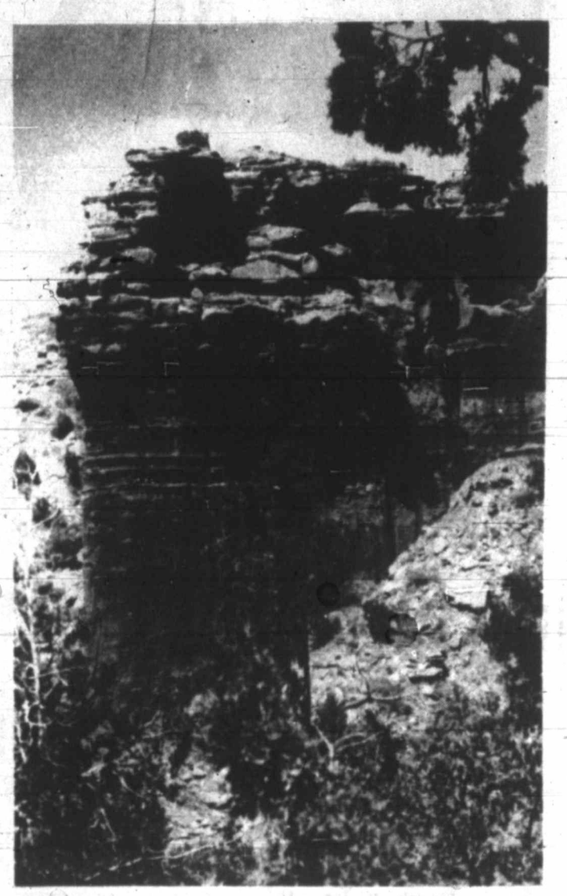

Towering pinnacles, ornate temples carved from solid rock by wind and water erosion, soaring stone spires, and cliffs and rock walls that drop several hundred feet from the elevation of the surrounding plains — all of this and more await the visitor to Tule Canyon.

Although smaller than Palo Duro Canyon, of which it is a tributary, Tule Canyon boasts a greater variety of rock strata and unusual rock formations sculptured by centuries of wind and water erosion into the Llano Estacado.

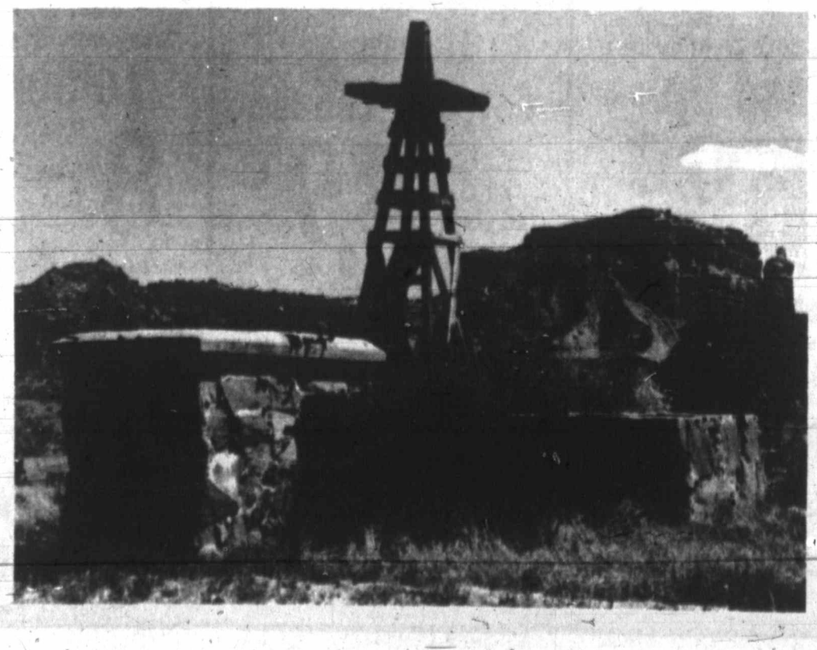

Tule Canyon was one of the canyons encountered by Coronado in 1542, was crossed by the Texas Santa Fe Expidition in 1841, and is the site of the last major Indian engagement in Texas. Leading the Fourth U.S. Cavalry in September of 1874, Col. Ranald S. Mackenzie discovered a large camp of Comanches. Descending the canyon walls, Mackenzie's soldiers captured the camp and some 1400 horses. Although the Indians fled to other parts of the canyon, the village was burned and most of the horses were destroyed. Afoot and without supplies or shelter, the Comanches had no choice but to return to their reservations in Oklahoma.

State highway 207 cuts across one of the more senic portions of Tule Canyon a few miles northwest of Silverton (see map, above left).

Final Stages Include Social Isolation

This article is part of a series on "The Progression of Alcoholism" produced by the Alcoholism Council of San Fernando Valley, Calif. The stories are made available locally by the texas panhandle Community Action Corporation.

After 40 years of heavy drinking, a San Fernando Valley man recently found himself unemployable. He was in the last stages of alcoholism. He no longer could get to work, barely able to make it to the doctor.

He and his wife asked for help through the Alcoholism Council of San Fernando Valley.

As a result, he is sober for the first time in decades. He is abstaining. He no longer is retrogressing. His grateful wife told a relative, "We know alcohol did this to Bill, but we don't want any of our friends to know the awful truth."

How sad. Bill is not a moral leper with weak will. He is a victim of a killer disease as are nearly 9,000,000 others among the 80,000,000 drinking citizens of the United States.

He should let others know his story and his recovery. Besides, all of his co-workers already knew he was a drunk.

The late chronic stage of alcoholism sees the disease culminate in:

1. Total social isolation from normal people and circumstances.

2. Gross physical deterioration with marked susceptibility to disease."

3. Ever-increasing mental confusion.

Previous articles have seen the alcoholic making a gallant, but losing battle to regain control and get back at least a trace of social standing. His addiction makes that first morning drink vital. He hates being a drunk. He doesn't want the affliction.

A drink on waking up, removes the problem of facing up to reality. The daily eye-opener makes it impossible to hide his abuse of alcohol and begins to destroy his ability to hold a job.

Because everyone around an alcoholic now knows of his problem, he stops trying to hide it. He may go on prolonged benders during which he ignores all responsibilities and his normal obligations.

His ethical standards slump. He has no regard for the rights, wishes and feelings of others. His every thought and action is to coddle his own desires. His comfort and convenience come first.

Troubled thinking enters. He cannot reason out the simplest matters. Naturally, he is greatly embarrassed. He is ashamed to have his peers note his condition, and hence he may be motivated to lower his standards.

He often turns for companionship to people for below his station in life. Anyone who will buy him a drink is an instant buddy no matter how crude, vulgar and uncouth these new friends may be.

In fact, he is fast becoming crude, vulgar and uncouth himself. He grows less and less concerned about the loss of old and dear friendships.

The typical alcoholic in the late chronic stage finds that his chief concern is to get enough liquor to satisfy his growing thirst. Life is becoming more and more unbearable. Jobs are hard for him to find.

When he does go on a payroll, chances are that within a few days the lid will blow off and he is on another drunk.

Eventually, some sobriety comes when his financial resources are exhausted. At such times, he bums all the drinks he can manage to promote. If he cannot afford anything better, he will consume rubbing alcohol, bay rum, mouthwashes, hair tonics, canned heat or flavoring extracts.

Some of it is pretty rugged stuff, but it does the job needed — causes reality to fade so that the alcoholic escapes into a hazy world of fantasy and pleasant dreams. When the alcoholic moves into the stage of deep problem drinking, he discovers a marked increase in tolerance.

Suddenly, he must drink a great deal more in order to get the same satisfaction that a smaller amount afforded previously.

Usually he is in for yet another surprise. He finds that a small amount, "a sissy slug," gives him a powerful jolt. He goes into a stupor after taking what he considers an insignificant amount.

Next comes the fear. The daylight hours are the worst, because he feels there are no dark places for hiding. He believes he is naked and transparent before the world — that his life is an open book for all to read. He is certain that everyone knows about his boozing.

Lassen Peak, the most recently active volcano on the U.S. mainland, last erupted in 1917.

WORRY CLINIC

By... George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Vera's dilemma shows it is high time we gave the straight facts to our youth. For they have been tricked by a false story about our type of government. "Our Republic," said John Marshall, "differs from a democracy as order differs from chaos!" See below!

CASE A-676: Vera D., aged 16, is a Girl Scout leader.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "some of the girls have asked me what kind of government we have.

"Our Congressman recently talked to us and called the U.S.A. a democracy.

"But our Civics teacher says it is a 'representative democracy.'

"Yet in the 'Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag' we salute it as a Republic.

"So really what is the United States of America?"

HEED JOHN MARSHALL

Chief Justice John Marshall presided over our U.S. Supreme Court for 34 years.

He really put the starch into the judicial arm of our 3-part government.

And was called the "Second Maker of our Constitution."

He said the difference between our Republic and a democracy is the difference between "order" and "chaos!"

Please note that those are opposite or antonyms.

They are antithetical terms, not remotely alike!

In a democracy, John Marshall added, the will of the Majority immediately prevails.

But thereafter the minorities enjoy no rights or privileges and may be looted, enslaved, burned or consigned to "salt mines of Siberia" at the whim of the majority.

"A democracy," thus warned John Marshall, "means mobocracy."

A democracy is a "might makes right" system of government where a mere 51% majority can pillage and enslave or kill the 49% who are the minority.

But in our Republic, the Golden Rule prevails, where "Right Makes Might."

"Oh, but Dr. Crane," many teachers have protested, "this is a 'representative democracy,' isn't it?"

Not on your life!

Regardless of whether you speak of a "true democracy" like that in ancient Greece, where everybody met on the town square and voted directly on bills, or whether population is so great we must send representatives to state or federal legislatures, the same vicious "mob" majority rules in a democracy.

Instead, our American government is a Constitutional Republic, so please tutor your children accordingly!

Russia calls herself the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics or U.S.S.R.

But our Constitutional Republic has a very unique safety measure to protect all minorities, whether racial, religious or occupational.

And that is the written list of rights retained by every citizen as codified in our U.S. Constitution and faithfully guarded by the 9 "Watch Dogs," namely, our 9 U.S. Supreme Court Justices!

Even if both the U.S. Senate and House were to try to invade the rights of any minority group and if the President were to sign such a bill into law, it would still be invalidated by the U.S. Supreme Court!

"The U.S. Constitution," said brilliant Prime Minister Gladstone of England, "is the greatest document ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

So send for my booklet "How to Save Our Republic," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and tutor your kiddies correctly!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Mellott, Indiana 47958. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Almanac

United Press International

Today is Thursday, July 4, the 185th day of 1974 with 180 to follow.

This is American Independence Day, its 198th anniversary.

The moon is full.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

American song writer Stephen Foster was born July 4, 1826.

On this day in history:

In 1802, tte U.S. Military Academy was opened at West Point with the arrival of 10 cadets.

In 1826, former Presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both died, on the 50th anniversary of their signing of the Declaration of Independence.

In 1946, the Philippine Republic came into existence after 27 years of U.S. sovereignty.

In 1960, the U.S. flag officially grew to 50 stars after admission of Hawaii into the Union almost a year earlier.

A thought for the day: In the U.S. Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776, Thomas Jefferson said, "...We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

The record weight for a dozen crawfish is two pounds and 11 ounces, set at the 1974 Crawfish Festival in Breaux Bridge, La. This is the first year crawfish have been weighed and records kept.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The immediate market outlook remains dependent on inflation and interest-rate trends which, though expected to improve in due course, offer little promise for the moment," says Standard & Poor's Corp. ?ankers now insist that business credit demands are actually slowing, the firm points out. But even if a brighter picture is not far off, "prudence suggests that a fence-sitting position not be relinquished for the time being," it adds.

The first signs inflation is beginning to bate have appeared, says the Predictor, indicating higher stock prices between now and year-end. The West Hartford, Conn., firm cites an easing of commodity prices, consumer resistance to higher prices, strong capital spending, and continued technological advances. "All of this will help turn the tide against inflation," it says, "and although we do not expect the turn to come overnight, the wheels are already in motion."

"We are now on the way to the ultimate windup of the bear market which has plagued Wall Street since the 1968 top and by some yardsticks since 1966," according to Comparative Market Indicators of Bellevue, Wash. Te firm says the market will have to drop lower before the start of the new major bull market. The market could go down for "the final flushout almost immediately," it adds, or launch another advance within the next few days delaying the market bottom until the October-November period.

Hypoglycemia, Nervous Tension

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After having doctors tell me for several years there was nothing wrong with me but my nerves, I went to the hospital for a five-hour blood sugar tolerance test and found that is what is wrong with me.

I would like to have your booklet on hypoglycemia, or low blood sugar, and enclose 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed evnelope for it. — Mrs. F.P.

That's the aggravating thing about hypoglycemia. It can resemble nervous tension, and your letter is by no means the first I have received telling the same story. Physically everything tested out normal — except for a tendency for the blood sugar to fall to too low a level at times.

In fact, that is another deceptive aspect about low blood sugar. A single blood sugar test can appear perfectly normal, and sometimes several tests in succession will look normal enough.

But a five-hour (I have a preference for a six-hour) test, with the sugar level checked at hourly intervals, will show a marked decline in the sugar level, and often an abrupt one. The more abrupt, the more troublesome to the patient when it happens.

Obviously hypoglycemia isn't the cause of every case of "nerves," so it isn't wise to jump to conclusions either way. If the blood sugar tests show normal levels, then look elsewhere for the nervous spells. But when in doubt, the sugar test is wise — as in your experience.

In a good many instances of low blood sugar, there are other symptoms that are hard to miss: sudden spells of weakness and feeling famished; visual disturbances; semi-blackouts, and such. Then a sugar test confirms what already is strongly suspected.

Some folks may fight off these symptoms, or not mention them, but the strain of trying to keep going right through the symptoms can cause enough tension to make the patient behave in a way that can be misinterpreted as "nerves."

It's not a very difficult condition to control, usually, but it can be a mean one to diagnose at times.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Before the discussion of burning feet dies down, may I add one little thing which for me has proven very successful.

That is, never wear a pair of shoes without first shaking in some foot powder of medicated powder. I do this religiously every day. The powder seems to give the feet free movement in the shoes and also cuts down on the perspiration.

My husband laughed at this little ritual of mine, but on our last vacation we walked as much as eight and ten miles a day. He was the one who complained about his feet, but when he tried the powder routine, he also got relief. — Mrs. B.D.

Okay, but I would not call it necessary for everyone every day. For persons with chronic foot problems of this kind, check for arch or circulation defects. Type of shoe, size, and height of heel, as well as fabric of hose may be factors.

You made a believer of your husband, and I'm glad to pass along your advice.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have read that pulling hairs from the nose will cause cancer. If so, what are the symptoms? — L.J.

I don't know of any indications to support the cancer notion, but the habit is bad because it can cause infection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 60 and have reduced my weight by 40 pounds. My hair is not gray and my face is young-looking except for a horribly wrinkled and baggy double chin.

Is there anything I can do to improve this other than surgery? I deal with the public and like to appear at my best. What are the pros and cons of that type of surgery at my age? — Mrs. L.S.

I don't know of any method except plastic surgery, but there is no reason who you should not consider it at your age. Your regular doctor can refer you to a dependable plastic surgeon.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of him Dr. George C. IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Fourth Of July A Dear Date

NEW YORK — I'm elated that this year the Fourth of July seems to be getting celebrated on July 4. It is less confusing than celebrating the Fourth of July on June 30, for example, and I'm confused about so many other things that to find one thing I'm not confused about is almost as wonderful as getting a tax refund.

The Fourth of July is a date dear to me. Not so much for firecrackers, because I can do without them. The first July 4 I remember was in the year 1919.

I was a Boy Scout — oh yes, I was — a tenderfoot. Our troop had gone on a hike. It was so boiling hot in rural Ohio that my father, suspecting the kids would be perishing, came and transported us back home that afternoon and I fell asleep in the front yard.

My father woke me up very suddenly. He had big news!

In Toledo, Jack Dempsey had won the world's heavyweight championship by knocking out Jess Willard. I never suspected that I would some day be on Broadway seeing Jack Dempsey around on a cane at the age of 79, one of the most beloved men in town. He got the only standing ovation the other day at a Friars' luncheon for George Raft who is also 79 this year.

It was around July 4, 1946, that I interviewed Al Jolson in Hollywood when he said he was in his 50s. He was trying to cash a check for $2,500 that he wanted to take to the racetrack. The bookie who cashed it on the street really had only $500 so Al said, "OK, you owe me $2,000."

"I figured you didn't want any tens," the bookmaker said.

"Whoever heard of tens?" Al said, waving away such trifling currency.

That was the same trip that Groucho Marx invited me to a July 4 dinner and then said, when I asked him the address, "Wouldn't you like to know?"

I remember July 4, 1952, because Marilyn Monroe was confessing that she wore no underwear, Johnnie Ray was crying three shows a night at the Copacabana, there were "I Like Ike" buttons around on lapels, and Mike Di Salle, the candidate for the U.S. Senate in Ohio, convered those buttons to his own use by putting an M in front of the Ike.

July 4, 1960, found me in Los Angeles for the Democratic Dizzyland Convention that nominated JFK for President. Comedian Joe E. Lewis was circulating through the bars telling how he'd worn a Kennedy button all night, right up to 6 a.m. He loved to say this to any Kennedy enthusiast who would say, "But where is your Kennedy badge now?"

He would answer, "Oh, now I'm sober!"

Five years later at Fourth of July time, a prominent Dallas woman was quoted, "Now that Mister Johnson is in the Whiyut House, Isn't it nahas to havuhv a PrezzziDENT who hasn't got any accent?"

By 1971, they were getting into Spiro Agnew's golf style. When he hit a spectator, one of the photographers yelled, "We already have that picture from last year." And President Nixon's adversaries were circulating an alleged prayer, "I shall not work, he maketh me to lie down beside empty factories, etc." It was beginning to get rough on Our Leaders.

And so a couple of more July Fourths spun around and it was 1973. Betty Grable died. George Raft mourned the beauty he could never marry ... "Watergate, No Laughing Matter," I said in a piece about David Fry's jokes ... and ... believe it or not ... July 3, 1973 ... "LIZ AND DICK APART AGAIN" — "BURTON IS DRYING OUT" — "he and Liz will get back together again in Rome a week from tomorrow ..."

That should bring us up to July 4, 1974, and we wish we could say it's a very good year but how can we lie like that?

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT

Today's Best Laugh (July 4, 1946): A man told singer Jayne Manners, "You were wonderful. May I pat you on the back?" "Sure," she said, "—but keep your hand as high as your praise."

Wish I'd Said That (July 4, 1954): Bill Cullen described baldheaded Yul Brynner: "He once had wavy hair. Now the waves are gone and there's nothing left but the beach."

Remembered Quote (July 4, 1950): "Marriage gives some men a new lease on life — at double the rent."

Earl's Pearls (July 4, 1953): Announcer Ken Bonghart said it on his NBC "Weekend" show: "The Russians spread their propaganda on a country-wide Nyet-work."

Broadway gamblers have a new title for the movie, "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers." They call it "Fourteen the Hard Way." (July 4, 1955).

And that WAS all, brother, on July 4.

Texas Tech To Display Ancient Brass Rubbings

LUBBOCK — Brass rubbings made from ancient tombs in England will be on display at the Museum of Texas Tech University July 6 - Aug. 25. The rubbings are by Mrs. Joseph B. Bailey.

Mrs. Bailey spent two years in England and made a comprehensive study of monumental brasses and made rubbings in all categories and sizes, from the earliest of 1277 to 1650 when they declined in use. The smallest is of a girl, a brass only seven inches long. The tallest is six feet.

The oldest surviving brass in England, of six - foot - tall Sir John D'Abernon of Stoke D'Abernon, Surrey, depicts the knight in full armor of chainmail holding his lance. Enameling is on the shield. He died in 1277.

The brasses marked tombs of nobleman, knights and their ladies, the clergy, medical and professional men, and children. Some are shrouded figures and there occasionally is a skeleton. Full of symbolism, they reflect the fashions of their day.

Mrs. Bailey's first brass rubbings were made using the classic method of black heelball, a composition of beeswax, tallow and lampblack on white detail paper.

Later she used color combinations. A favorite is gold heelball on black paper because it most closely resembles the original brass.

Her first exhibit was in the Wichita Falls Museum and Art Center, and the interest in the rubbings was so great that they have since been in demand for exhibitions elsewhere.

A shepherd dog named Chips won the Distinguished Service Cross in 1943 for "single handedly eliminating a machine gun nest," but had to surrender it in 1944 when the Army decided the medal could only go to humans.

Under Twenty

By NANCY WILTON

One of the finest athletes of his era, and probably one of the least known until his historic 715th homerun, is Atlanta Brave Hank Aaron.

Sine that historic hit and during the time Hank Aaron was approaching it, a great deal has been written about the Alabama lad who always wanted to play baseball. Among the latest books is B. E. Young's "The Picture Story of Hank Aaron," a book particularly aimed at young readers.

Young relates how Hank's parents in Mobile, Ala., had hopes for their son to finish high school and go on to college. Young Hank, however, delivered ice to earn the money for a ticket to watch major league exhibition games.

Some credit his strong wrists with the heavy work lifting ice from the truck to the iceboxes in Mobile.

In the exhibition games Aaron saw baseball's first black player, Jackie Robinson, and became more determined than ever to become a baseball player. When he was only 15 he played with the Mobile Black Bears, earning between $5 and $10 each time he played.

His first time at bat for the Bears he smashed a homerun over the fence and a career was on the way.

Young tells how he graduated to the Indianapolis Clowns of the Negro National League, eventually was bought by the then-Boston Braves and lost by the New York Giants because they offered $50 less a month than the Braves.

Had the Giants been more generous Hank Aaron and Willy Mays would have played in the same outfield on the same team. What a combination that would have been!

Young's text is easy to read, yet doesn't talk down to young readers. The story from boyhood to the top of Aaron's career is told in both words and 40 photographs and the bookkkcontains Aaron's batting record from 1952 through 1973.

The Picture Story of Hank Aaron, by B. E. Young Messner, $1.95 paperback, Certified Edition $4.79.

It Sims To Me...

Reliable sources in Dallas are saying that Cowboys Rayfield Wright, Robert Newhouse and Charlie Waters are committed to the World Football League under future contracts.

That means six Cowboys are leaving Dallas to jump to the new league, which begins its season next week. Earlier in the year, quarterback Craig Morton and running backs Calvin Hill and Mike Montgomery were signed to future pacts with the WFL.

Wright, veteran all-pro offensive tackle, will play for the Cowboys until 1977, his option year. It was not disclosed what team he has been dealing with. Running back Newhouse, according to sources, is committed to the WFL Houston Texans. It isn't known which team Waters, who is in his option year, has been doing business with. Waters is a defensive back.

KDFW-TV in Dallas, citing the sources, also said receiver Otto Stowe is close to signing with the defector league.

★★★

Dallas Cowboy veteran offensive tackle Ralph Neely will not play for the WFL, at least not for several years, as he signed a new multiyear contract Tuesday with Dallas. Concerning the new league, Neely said, "I don't know about the security there. After all, I've never had any trouble cashing Clint Murchison's Cowboy owner checks.

"I feel my roots are in Dallas and my security is here."

★★★

The New York Stars and Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League will play next Thursday at 8 p.m. Texas Panhandle time. The game will be televised on KGNC in Amarillo and will open the WFL's weekly TV schedule.

Among the familiar people in the game will be All-America defensive back Mike Townsend of Notre Dame and linebacker Glen Gaspard of Texas. Both play for Jacksonville. Other familiar names include split end Gelorge Sauer, defensive tackle John Elliott and defensive end Gerry Philbin. The three Stars are ex-NFL All-Pros.

Perry Wins 15th Straight

United Press International

It's now 15 down and one to go for Gaylord Perry.

The "reformed" greaseballer stretched his winning streak to 15 straight Wednesday night as he shrugged off an 84-minute rain delay. He now needs just one more to match the American League record and four more to match the major league mark.

"I never think of the record while I'm on the mound. I'm only thinking of the game and the hitter. The pressure doesn't affect me but I know its there. I think it makes me a better pitcher," Perry said after his seven-hitter gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The American League record of 16 straight is shared by Smokey Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and Schoolboy Rowe. The major league mark of 19 straight was set by Rube Marquard for the old New York Giants in 1912.

The game in Milwaukee was delayed in the top of the seventh inning, but Perry picked up right where he left off before the delay and retired the Brewers in order the last three innings to finish with 13 straight.

John Lowenstein drove in all four Cleveland runs with a three-run homer in the fifth inning and a squeeze bunt in the seventh. Jim Colborn took the loss.

Perry often was accused of throwing the greaseball in the past, but there have been few complaints this season.

In the other games, Detroit downed New York, 8-6, Kansas City beat Chicago 5-3, Texas downed Minnesota, 7-1, Baltimore swept Boston, 9-2 and 6-4, and Oakland beat California, 3-2.

In the National League, New York beat Phildelphia, 6-2, San Francisco edged San Diego, 3-2 in 10 innings, Los Angeles beat Cincinnati, 4-1 but lost the second game 6-0, Pittsburgh edged Montreal 2-1, Atlanta downed Houston 5-4 in 11 innings and St. Louis blanked Chicago 5-0.

Baltimore 9-6, Boston 2-4

Baltimore tightened up the AL East race by sweeping the Red Sox. In the opener, Don Baylor got three hits to pace the Orioles' rout. In the second game, Paul Blair capped a four-run first inning with a two-run double.

Tigers 8, Yanks 6

Jim Northrup hit a three-run homer to start a five-run sixth and enjoyed it so much that he came back with a two-run homer in the ninth off Sparky Lyle to give Detroit the victory over New York. John Hiller got the win, his 11th, in relief.

Rangers 7, Twins 1

Cesar Tovar celebrated his 34th birthday by driving in four runs with three hits against his former teammates to hand Texas the victory over Minnesota. Ferguson Jenkins pitched a six-hitter for the victory.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

Vada Pinson and Amos Otis hit homers to pace Kansas City past Chicago. Paul Splittorff, with relief help from Doug Bird, registered his ninth straight win over the White Sox.

A's 3, Angels 2

The Oakland A's apparently can win for or against Dick Williams. The A's were managed to two straight world championships by Williams. But now he's lost three straight to the A's as the Angels' manager, Bert Campaneris' infield single scored two unearned runs in the ninth and gave Oakland the win.

Giants Rained Out

United Press International

Randy Trapp hit a game-winning homer in the ninth inning to give Arkansas a 2-1 Texas League win over Alexandria Wednesday night.

In other games, Midland beat El Paso 6-3 and Shreveport and Victoria split a doubleheader. Victoria won the first game 2-1 and Shreveport came back to win the nightcap 3-2. Amarillo at San Antonio was rained out.

Trapp's homer capped a night of tight pitching for Jackson Todd who played the entire game, giving up only three hits and earning his sixth win against four losses.

The losing pitcher was Tom Diedel (5-6).

Shreveport came from behind two times in taking a 3-2 win over Victoria in the second game of the doubleheader. A two-run double by Jerry Matlow in the seventh put Shreveport ahead, and pitcher Robert Alexandria held onto the lead for his fifth win against six losses.

At El Paso, Wayne Tyrone and Jerry Tabb knocked in two runs each, which gave the Midland Cubs the edge over the El Paso Diablos. Midland got 13 hits off losing pitcher Jim Officer, while winning pitcher Don Shcroeder gave up six for three runs.

Willie Propels Pirates By Expos

United Press International

Willie Stargell is beginning to get into the act, and that just about guarantees future rave notices for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates have been doing pretty well of late without Stargell contributing very much, but they know if they are to challenge seriously for the NL East Division title in the second half of the season they'll need plenty of help from the defending major league home run king.

Stargell feels he is ready to make his move, and he showed it Wednesday night by drilling a homer in the last of the ninth inning to give the Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The triumph was the Pirates' sixth straight and their 14th in a row at home.

Stargell went into the Montreal series batting around .250, and in the discomforting position of having to be carried by his teammates. He blasted out of it Tuesday night with three hits and topped it off with the homer Wednesday.

Stargell's homer made a winner out of southpaw Jerry Reuss, who went the distance to get his eighth win in 13 decisions. It was also his eighth complete game in the last 10 starts.

In other NL contests, St. Louis blanked Chicago, 5-0, Atlanta edged Houston, 5-4 in 11 innings, Cincinnati beat Los Angeles, 6-0, after losing the opener of their doubleheader, 4-1, San Francisco topped San Diego, 3-2, and New York defeated Philadelphia, 6-2.

Baltimore swept a pair from Boston, 6-4 and 9-2, Cleveland downed Milwaukee, 4-2 as Gaylord Perry won his 15th consecutive game.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Look for the announcement any day now that the Giants have unloaded still another holding to keep baseball afloat in San Francisco.

In the past three years, the Giants have traded away or sold four star players — Willie Mays, Sam McDowell, Willie McCovey and Juan Marichal — because they couldn't afford their salaries. They also sold their Phoenix and Amarillo farm clubs for the same reason and next to go is the club's spring training hotel-resort complex at Casa Grande, Ariz.

The Casa Grande complex never turned out to be the money-maker Giants owner Horace Stoneham had envisioned. It sits smack in the middle of the Arizona desert 40 miles south of Phoenix and at best is a way station for travelers.

While Stoneham and the National Exhibition Co., which in effect is the San Francisco Giants baseball club, have been trying to get out from under the past two years, there have been no buyers. But now, a Japanese firm, anxious to build its American holdings, has made an offer in the $5 million range for the Casa Grande complex, which includes four baseball diamonds and a golf course in addition to a high rise hotel, and the deal is near completion.

The sale will help write off the red ink losses of the baseball club in six of the last seven years and provide a little reserve while the Giants try to figure a way out of their financial dilemma.

It's a sad state of affairs for one of the most attractive franchises in major league baseball, but short-sighted management and losing ball clubs have backed the Giants against the financial wall.

Through the team's first 35 home dates this season attendance is only 311,834, down 43,000 from a year ago when the club drew only 834,193. There has been only one million-plus season (1971 when attendance was 1,106,043) since the A's moved into Oakland seven years ago.

With the Giants floundering in or near the National League West cellar, there is little reason to believe attendance this year will go beyond 650,000, which, despite a reduced players payroll, will add up to still another red-ink season.

While the Giants have been taking blow after blow on the financial chin, Charlie Finley, with a reduced operation in Oakland, has made money all six years since he moved the A's West. Attendance is down in Oakland this year, but if the team goes on to play in the World Series for a third straight season, Finley will wind up in the black again.

Finley has a bigger player payroll this year then he ever has in the past, but he has trimmed expenses in other areas.

The Giants, on the other hand, continue to operate on a grand scale. They have a top-heavy front office payroll, foot complete road expenses for traveling writers and operate in general as if there is no end to the rainbow.

Sale of the Casa Grande complex will keep the ship afloat for another year or two, but if the club doesn't produce a winner by then, Stoneham and the Giants will be in real trouble.

Stoneham soon will celebrate his 71st birthday and his aides and confidants on the Giants all are in the same age bracket. There is talk of inpending sale of the club, but the Giants deny those reports vigorously.

Stoneham and his heirs hold controlling interest in the Giants, something like 60 per cent, but the other shareholders in the club are getting restless. Six red-ink seasons in seven years may be more than they can take and a push may be made to force Stoneham to sell.

For the time being anyway, it's still business at the same old stand. All of that could change, though, next winter at the annual stockholders meeting. Nothing will happen at least until then.

New Mexico Long Jumper Joins With WT Track Team

CANYON — Curtis Lindley from Texico, N.M., who was unbeaten in three years of high school long jumping competition, has signed an athletic scholarship agreement with West Texas Sate University track coach Bob Kitchens.

Lindley was the high point man in the Class AA division of the New Mexico state track meet both his junior and senior years — establishing new records in the 100-yard dash and the long jump his senior year.

As a somphomore he won the state long jump title with a 21-11 effort. He totaled 19¼ points at the state meet during his junior year — taking second place in the 100-yard dash with 10.0, winning the 220 in 23.0 and the long jump with a 22-3 effort.

The 6-2, 170-pound athlete ran 9.8 to win the 100-yard dash at the state meet this past spring in a record clocking for Class AA. He won the 220 in 22.3 and his 23-9 effort in the long jump was also first place. The 23-9 effort came in the preliminaries, but the win allowable for recods was too much by one mile per hour. He leaped 23-5¾ in the finals the following day and, as there was no wind that afternoon, that mark is recorded as the state record.

The long jump record set this spring cracked one of the two oldest records in New Mexico.

On the second place 880-yard relay anchor lap, Lindley ran a 21.3 time. Texico placed second to Jal in the running for the team championship, after a fourth place finish in 1973.

"Curtis always does what is asked of him and does it without supervision," said Texico coach W.B. Walters. "He has tremendous spring for long jumping. Despite the fact he was recording good distances, he still was chopping his steps down the runway. In time, when he get that corrected, he can progress even further with his jumping."

One of Lindley's stronger points is the fact he was highly consistant with his jumping this spring. He was over 23-feet in each of his final four meets. He leaped 23-4, 23-4½, 23-2½ NS 23-9 in those final four competitions.

"Curtis is one of the finer prospects to ever be recruited at West Texas State," said Kitchens. "He has a fine attitude toward work and his potential is great."

Besides being a standout in track, Lindley was a three-year stater for Texico High in both football and basketball.

In football he played quarterback and safety. He earned Class AA all-state first team honors both his junior and senior years as a safety. He was an honorable mention all-state pick this past fall as a quarterback.

The son of Mrs. Ruthie Lindley maintained a B average in the classroom. He was elected Senior Class President at Texico High and plans to major in physical education at West Texas State.

West Germany, Holland Only Teams Remaining To Fight For World Cup

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Holland and West Germany, conquerors respectively of Brazil and Poland, triumphantly won passage Wednesday to Munich, there to contest the soccer championship of the world.

Texas 7, Twins 1

BLOOMINGTON (UPI) — Cesar Tovar celebrated his 34th birthday by driving in four runs against his old mates and Ferguson Jenkins threw a six-hitter as the Texas Rangers defeated the Minnesota Twins 7-1 Wednesday night.

The game at the Olympic Stadium Sunday will be seen by some 800 million persons — more than have ever watched a single sporting event.

Holland earned its ticket by riding some of the roughest play in the 1974 World Cup and coming back to hit Brazil for two opportunist second-half goals by Johan Neeskens and the sport's superstar Johan Cruyff and a 2-0 victory.

West Germany, the long-standing favorite, splashed to a 1-0 victory in a sometimes farcical match on a waterlogged pitch with a well-taken 75th minute goal by Gerd ("The Bomber") Mueller.

It is Holland's first appearance in a World Cup final, but West Germany's second in the last three competitions.

British bookmakers gave the high-flying Dutchmen the edge, quoting them at 4-5.

Ten minutes from the end, referee Kurt Tschenscher of West Germany sent off Brazilian right fullback Luis Pereira for a hip-high tackle on Neeskens after which Neeskens himself limped off.

King, Goolagong Fall In Matches

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Chris Evert escaped.

But, she was one of the few that did Wednesday as top seeds and defending champions were sent reeling in the Wimbledon championships.

The top-seeded woman and defending champion Billie Jean King was dethroned by Russia's Olga Morozova. Shortly afterwards, third-seeded Evonne Goolagong joined Billie Jean on the sidelines, a victim of fellow Australian Kerry Melville.

The men's play followed the same script with top-seeded John Newcombe and defending champion Jan Kodes falling by the wayside as three Americans gained berths in the semifinals.

That required a lot of overtime for one segment of the British work force — the bookmakers, who were forced to revise completely their odds.

They made second-seeded Chris, who meets sixth-seeded Kerry Melville of Australia today, an odds-on 4-5 to go on and win the biggest championship of her career. Miss Melville, who disposed of former titleholder Miss Goolagong, is rated 5-1.

The other semifinalists are Virginia Wade of Great Britain, the fifth seed, and Miss Morozova. The British girl is 7 to 2 and the Russian physical education teacher is 5 to 1.

Despite his startling upset of Newcombe, Australian Ken Rosewall, the ninth seed, is third in the betting at 4-1. His opponent, fourth-seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., is the betting favorite at 5-4.

The other men's semifinal match pairs Americans Jimmy Connors and Dick Stockton.

Players Start Picket March

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a touch of levity in San Diego Wednesday as the National Football League players marched on their first picket line but the situation is grim in Miami where some of the Dolphins are debating whether to cross the lines.

Ed Garvey, the executive director of the NFLPA, and about 50 players marched with picket lines and sweat shirts reading "no freedom, no football" in San Diego where the Chargers became the first team to open their camp for rookies.

Garvey quipped, "we won't be able to tell how effective our line was until we get a chance to study the films."

Bill Curry, the association president, chuckled, "we'll make adjustments at halftime."

Eugene Klein, the owner of the Chargers, joined in the jovial spirt of things but, noting the line was "rather ragamuffin," he added, "but you have to remember they haven't had any coaching or a chance to run through formations."

WTSU Ducat Renewals Going At Steady Pace

CANYON — Renewal for 1974 West Texas State Universty season football tickets have reached 1,731, through this past weekend.

Jimmy Campbell, the school's new athletic business manager, expressed pleasure with the total and said additional order are arriving daily.

"We are extremly pleased that our fans are renewing their tickets at the same pace they have in the past few years," siad Campbell, who moved into his new position last week. He has been an assistant football coach at WTSU for the past three years.

The Buffaloes of coach Gene Mayfield host five opponents in Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium in 1974 — three of which are Missour Valley Conference foes.

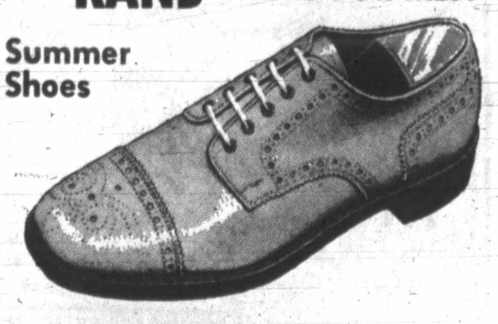

In MVC games at home the Buffaloes face New Mexico State Sept. 21, Wichita State Sept. 28 and North Texas State Nov. 16. Southern Mississippi faces the Buffaloes here Oct. 5 and Lamar University will be hosted Nov.2.

The New Mexico State, Wichita State and Southern Mississippi contests start at 7:30 p.m. The Lamar and North Texas State games have 1:30 p.m. starting times. The Lamar game will be homecoming for the Buffaloes.

In road games the Buffs play at Drake Sept. 14 to open the season, at Idaho Oct. 12, at Tulsa Oct. 19, at Utah State Oct. 26, at Tampa Nov. 9 and at Louisville Nov. 30. Drake, Tulsa and Louisville are Missouri Valley opponents. The Drake, Idaho and Utah State games have 1:30 p.m. starting times, while the other three contests start at 7:30 p.m.

Season tickets in the chair sections at Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium sell fo $25, or $5 per game. That represents a savings of $1 per game over tickets purchased on a single game basis. Bench seats for the season are $20, or $4 per game. That is also a savings of $1 per game over tickets purchased at the gate for each game.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The fur industry, barking back at what it calls the "antifur" groups, shows furs for fall and winter exotic enough for most any taste. It emphasizes this is done without a U.S. harvest of endangered species.

There is the opulence, for instance, of a floor length coat in natural chinchilla, which will cost the customer around $13,000. But the furriers point out that the chinchilla, now ranch-raised like the mink, is not in danger.

Matter of fact, a spokesman said, there is now a clause in the management-labor contrat providing that no worker will be required to work on an endagered species. These include leopard, cheetah and tiger.

These still can be bought, however, in foreign salons.

The American Fur Industry's policy was outlined the other afternoon by its president, Irvin H. Hecht, who also is president of the Fur Conservation Institute of America, which represents every segment of the industry from trappers and ranchers to the finished product.

"Scientists, mammalogists, environmentalists all tell us that it is essential and necessary to cull the wildlife," Hecht said, "or they will suffer from a variety of diseases, starvation and a weakening of the species.

"We in the fur business practice conservation as prescribed by the experts in the field ... we depend upon the continuing growth of the product we use ... we deal with a renewable resource and we must conserve it."

Tower Seems Optimistic

MIDLAND, Tex. (UPI) —Se. John Tower, R-Tex., said today he's optimistic that attempts to pass punitive legislation against the oil industry will be defeated.

"In order to cope with the energy shortage, we need to broaden incentives for exploration and production — not reduce them through such punitive measures as the one to abolish the oil depletion allowance," Tower said.

"Many people seem completely unable to comprehend the economics of the oil industry," he told a breakfast meeting of the West Texas Geological Society.

"What we need to abolish are the regulations on natural gas."

Tower said proponents of abolishing the oil depletion allowance and other similar measures want to cripple the oil industry as the first step toward nationalizing it.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

What happens when you're recovering from an illness and are not sick enough to stay in a hospital and yet not quite well enough to completely care for yourself?

If you're lucky, you live in an area served by a Home Health Agency and can receive the needed services in the friendly confines of your own home, says the State Health Department.

Skilled and specialized care is given daily to thousands of Texans through one of the 45 Home Health Agencies in the state. The individual agencies may be small, from a minimum of two or three employees to more than a hundred, but they add up to a network of home care services covering a large segment of the state's population. Most of the patients are elderly.

What exactly does a Home Health Agency do?

Take the case of a man who suffered a stroke and was totally bedridden, could not talk and didn't recognize family members. The choices for his family were these: extended, expensive hospitalization; a nursing home, which also is expensive; or, home care with skilled health personnel from a Home Health Agency.

The patient was brought home. Acting under a physician's written orders (necessary in all cases), the patient was placed under the care of a nurse, physical therapist and speech therapist and soon was able to walk with a quad-cone, talk to a limited extent, recognize relatives and friends and was able to remember.

In another instance, a woman in her early seventies underwent surgery for cancer of the lower intestine and had a colostomy performed. Her children were married and lived elsewhere and her husband was older and partially blind.

Through a Home Health Agency in her small town, she was able to receive visits at home from nurses and home health aides who taught her how to care for herself while she regained her strength.

What happens if you live in an area not served by an agency? It's possible that one nearby may be able to extend services through a branch office or sub-unit of an existing agency. In some cities and counties, the local health department operates such an agency.

Can a Home Health Agency be formed in your community?

Definitely yes, says the State Health Department. Information may be obtained from Dr. T.E. Dodd, director of Home Health Services Division, 1100 West 49th St., Austin, 78756.

What must a Home Health Agency have for certification?

The requirements are many, says Dr. Dodd, but they basically are these: Each agency must have a physician or registered nurse as director and have an advisory committee. It must be a non-profit organization, or a public organization like the health department, and must offer skilled nursing plus one additional therapeutic service such as physical therapy.

The Home Health Services Division will work with a fledgling agency in getting started and send out a consultant to assist in filling out the required forms.

When the paper work is completed, notice is sent to the Certification and Consultation Division and an inspection of the facility is requested. If approved, a recommendation is made with Social Security that the agency be certified.

Since Home Health Agencies are non-profit organizationsd, payment to them is for services rendered. Medicare payments come through a third party, of fiscal intermediary. This can be an insurance company or Social Security.

The intermediary, based on the orders from a doctor, will determine the length of the related home care needed in each case. Progress reports are made by the nurse-director and given to the physician on the case, allowing the doctor to keep abreast of progress. Often a patient advances more rapidly than the schedule originally proposed.

Home Health Agencies are providing a great service to the homebound in Texas, says the State Health Department.

Finances certainly are a part of the contribution. Rising costs of hospitalization greatly increase the financial strain on anyone unfortunate to have an illness demanding hospitalization. It is much less expensive the Home Health Agency way.

And, the shortage of hospital beds makes it mandatory that patients be released as soon as it is medically practical.

Another point arrived at over the years is this, says a State Health Department spokesman: Patients able to gohome to continue their rehabilitation are much happier and seem to respond more quickly.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — In just a few weeks, we can expect another Texas hurricane season, since historically most of our big storms have occurred from August to October. And we've just come through our traditional spring tornado months.

As Texans, we are familiar with natural disasters and the misery they can bring because we have suffered through some of the worst: the Great Galveston Storm of 1900, Hurricanes Carla and Beulah, and the Lubbock Tornado are just a few.

Often the worst aspect of a disaster is the aftermath, when victims face the heartbreak of cleaning up and the strenuous task of rebuilding.

It is often at this point, too, that consumer fraud becomes another problem to be faced by residents trying to pick up the pieces.

At a time when many are confused, tired, and vulnerable, it is unfortunate but true that unscrupulous persons may move in to take advantage of the situation.

Many consumer decisions and transactions are necessary to get back to normal after a disaster. And most will require the expenditure of large amounts of cash or heavy use of credit.

Attorneys in our Consumer Protection Division warn that consumers who find themselves in such a situation should use extreme caution before making major purchases or home repairs.

Most businessmen and repairmen are honest, reliable, and trustworthy, and in such trying circumstances will attempt to be as fair as possible with consumers.

But many times the reports of a disaster will bring an influx of itinerant salesmen and repairmen — many from out-of-state — who are determined to make their fortune at the expense of others.

These "hit and run" operators who sell goods and services door-to-door may never deliver what they promise but, instead, will drive off to new territory with a consumer's money or a contract that they may immediately sell to a finance company.

Our Consumer Protection attorneys recommend that you take a few precautions that may save the money and anguish associated with disaster frauds.

—Do not pay in advance for materials or repairs

—Remember that high pressure and scare tactics are often the mark of a phony deal

—Make sure that a contractor or salesman has a permanent place of business, preferably in your area

—Get at least three estimates before selecting a contractor for any construction or repair work

—Insist that all estimates include a starting and completion date, description of the work to be performed and the type of materials to be used, total cost, guarantees provided, and method of payment (lump sum upon completion, installment, etc.)

—When you have selected a contractor, ask for a written contract based on his estimate. Make sure before signing that you understand all parts, that there are no blanks, and that the contractor himself has signed first.

Remember that both Texas and federal laws allow you to cancel any door-to-door sale for $25 or more if you notify the seller of your intention within three days.

And remember, too, that in cases of disaster many state and federal agencies stand ready to assist victims. If you have a question about disaster-related problems, they can help.

For information about consumer protection at such times, consult our attorneys, your conty or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

TV In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — CBS, which has been regarded by some critics as being in the basement of television sports coverage, is hoping to change its image by appointing an executive who once covered space shots and national elections.

"He's a real sports buff," said a CBS network spokesman about the appointment of Robert Wussler, who is now a v.p. at Chicago's WBBM-TV.

Wussler, 37, who was named to the post Tuesday, admitted in a telephone interview that he has never set foot in the offices of CBS Sports in New York. And, he added, that the last sporting event he participated in was the 1960 Olympics.

This, of course, may sound absurd that the media barons at CBS would choose a man who was has had so little experience with sports coverage, especially to head up an operation that has been behind NBC and ABC.

But, if one analyzes the choice, it seems sound, at least on paper.

"CBS has been successful in daytime programming, in night-time programming, in news, but the least successful in sports," said Wussler. "We pioneered many areas of sports coverage such as pro football and golf, but in the past few years we've seemed to have lost our touch. We haven't been aggressive enough and we're a little lackluster.

Despite Wussler's enthusiasm, his job seems to be cut out for him.

CBS Sports has lost the coverage of the prestigious Kentucky Derby to ABC. CBS had the Derby for more than two decades. Although the network still has contracts for the other two segments of racing's triple crown, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, it is expected they will be the subject of intense bidding by ABC and NBC.

In the areas of professional hockey and basketball, CBS's coverage of these events has been criticized by some critics as being below par. And, perhaps, the most difficult chore for Wussler will be his handling of his staff, which has been without a leader since William MacPhail abruptly quit May 9.

Nevertheless, Wussler is optimistic and eager to begin his new assignment Monday, July 8. And he brings to the new post a wealth of experience gained as a producer for CBS's coverage of Apollo space flights, the Republican and Democratic national conventions, and election night reports.

He also was in charge of the coverage of several presidential trips, including President Nixon's visit to China in 1972. For his coverage of the Apollo 13 flight he won two Emmy awards.

But what has this to do with sports and its coverage, Wussler was asked.

"The kinds of planning for a major event are very similar," he said, "especially with the editiorial and technical personnel. Then there are similarities in the coverage and types of facilities you would have use on a day to day event, or one that is prolonged for a week or so."

TV Notes: ABC has announced that "That's My Momma," a new half-hour situation comedy, will premier Wed., Sept. 4, at 8 p.m. The show stars Clifton Dabis and Theodore Wilson.

Dick Cavett will host the TV news Emmy Awards show on ABC Sept. 4 from 10-11:30 p.m.

BRIDGE PROBLEMS

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — At least 15 cars a day run out of gas, sputter and come to a full halt on the more than eight mile long Rio-Niteroi bridge, this city's Transit Department recently revealed.

For drivers who find themselves in such a predicament, highway police in charge of the bridge's custody will tow the stalled ccars, free of charge, to the nearest gas station. Besides being towed, the hapless driver also gets a piece of free advice: "Next time, please make sure you have enough gas before crossing the bridge."

The Rio-Niteroi bridge inaugurated in 1974 connects the city of Rio de Janeiro to the city of Niteroi across Guanabara Bay.

1828 Exhibit On Display

LUBBOCK — Texas as it appeared at a traveler in 1828-29 is the subject of an exhibit to go on display in the museum of Texas Tech University July 6.

Jaen Louis Berlandier, French born and trained in Switzerland as a botanist, traveled into what is now Texas and recorded the range of life he found in the region in 1828-29.

The exhibition of material based on his sudies was organized by the Smithsonian Institution for display in conjunction with the publication of Berlandier's account, "The Indians of Texas in 1830" edited and introduced by John C. Ewers. Ewers is senior ethnologist of the Smithsonian's Department of Anthropology.

The exhibition now is owned by the Museum of the Southwest in Midland and is on loan to the Museum of Texas Tech University.

Jean Louis Berlandier saw Texas as plains, deserts, woodlands and seacoast propled by more than 40 Indian tribes.

Along with voluminous notes on the geography, natrual resources, plant and aniaml life of Texas, he carefully recorded what he learned of the native tribes— their origins and relationships to neighboring peoples, their languages, beliefs, dwellings, clothing, eating habit, techniques, war tactics, burial customs and more.

His accounts have been accepted as among the most accurate of America's first European travelers, and they are the basis for the exhibition which illustrates his findings through the use of watercolor reproductions showing the dress of the tribes, the plants he found, and illustrations of a group of artifacts found by Berlandier and acquired by the Smithsonion in 1853.

The singnificance of Berlandier's work is indicated by these artifacts. They represent Comanche material culture in the second quarter of the 19th Century and appear to be the oldest documented Comanche collection in any muesum.

The exhibit will close Aug. 25.

UNOPENED DOORS

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Highly visible women's liberationists haven't opened the doors to women's equality to any great extent, says a Stanford University psychiatric social worker.

They, "are out of phase with the average middle-class woman in the U.S.," said Jewelle Taylor Gibbs.

"They are not typical U.S. women," Mrs. Gibbs added. "When they go out to make a speech they do not leave behind a husband, children and household chores which must be cared for in their absence."
