Eisenhower Asks General Overhaul Of Election Laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, speaking out on the eve of a presidential election year, says it is time federal election law was thoroughly overhauled. Congress might start by requiring politicians to disclose, in full, their finances, he said.

"If a man has nothing to conceal, why should he object?" Eisenhower argued in an article written for the January Reader's Digest.

Mandatory financial disclosure "should be part of the price of public office," he wrote, and Congress should make sure the whole process of election financing is subject to "pitiless publicity."

"As citizens with the priceless right of franchise, we must insist upon the highest code of honor in public life," he added.

Some Opposition

The former President's position on financial disclosure put him at odds with some members of his own party, including Senate GOP leader Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., and some Democrats as well.

But it lined up with the view of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who issued a detailed, unprecedented financial accounting shortly after announcing his candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination.

Eisenhower also suggested a revision of "antiquated" and "virtually meaningless" campaign election laws to shut "loopholes and require full disclosure of political expenses."

But he opposed the Johnson administration's proposal for congressional appropriations to help pay for presidential campaigns, or any other plan to "tap the public till." Instead he proposed income tax deductions f · "a modest political gift—up to perhaps $50 to $100."

"In order to prevent the far too lavish giving by the affluent, widely practiced in both parties, all loopholes must be closed, and all gifts then be limited to, say, 1 per cent of the donor's adjusted net income," he said.

Eisenhower also suggested congressmen adopt the same conflict of interest standards that are applied to federal office holders.

"If it is wrong for such an official to make decisions on any matter affecting his own private business or any business in which he has large holdings then it is equally wrong for a congressman to vote, or in any way influence votes on similar measures."

9 Die in Explosion Of Apartment Building

Sleeping Muscovites Killed

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Christmas night gas explosion which destroyed a six-floor section of an apartment building filled with sleeping Muscovites killed nine persons and injured several," it was officially announced today.

The first official confirmation of the death toll, reported earlier by policemen at the scene, came in the newspaper Evening Moscow, nearly 24 hours after the blast. Erroneous reports had placed the death toll as high as 20.

Evening Moscow said the gas explosion occurred in one of the apartments of the building and that a special Moscow city council commission had been set up to investigate the blast.

"Nine persons were killed and several wounded," the newspaper said. "The wounded persons were given medical assistance. The families made homeless are being given new comfortable flats and material help is being rendered."

Most such disasters in the Soviet Union are never publicly reported. It was believed Evening Moscow carried the report in some detail because the blast was heard by Westerners and had been reported to the rest of the world.

More than 100 policemen sealed off the area of the explosion, only a mile from the Kremlin.

Another blast a short distance away ripped the front of a car owned by Henry Bradsher, manager of the Associated Press bureau in Moscow. Bradsher said a mechanic examined the car and told him the damage was caused by a bomb.

He said he knew of no reason for the bombing, which occurred in an apartment compound for foreigners about two hours before the gas explosion. No one was in the car at the time of the blast.

There were no injuries.

Officials at the apartment explosion said the blast was touched off by a ruptured gas main underneath the building. The force of the explosion went straight up and the two-room apartments were sliced away as if chopped by a huge cleaver.

The dwellings were reduced to a heap of plaster, pipes, beams and furniture that spilled into the street and blocked traffic.

Weary Workers Trying to Halt Lowland Flooding

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — The Snohomish River crested at its all-time high here early today while weary dike workers battled to prevent extensive lowland flooding.

The flood was held responsible for at least one death. Three minor roads in the area were under water and impassable. Water swirled over the tops of cars and nine families were evacuated in the Snohomish area, east of here.

A fleet of trucks loaded with sandbags rumbled through the night as about 100 dike workers labored to reinforce and build up 23 miles of retainer.

Burt Baker, 66, a rancher, suffered a fatal heart attack Christmas Day while pushing his house trailer out of the water's path two miles east of here.

At 4 a.m. (CST) the Snohomish was at 30.17 feet, rising slowly. It was expected to crest at 31 feet.

The highest previous reading was 30.10 feet in the mid-1940's.

A light drizzle fell in the area and the river moved upward under the impetus of melting snow from unseasonably warm weather.

Authorities had asked more than 200 families to evacuate their homes on Christmas Day but only about three dozen responded. Most were veterans of previous floods and chose to stick it out.

Gilbert Bean, public information officer of the corps, said 10,000 sandbags had been trucked into the area, along with about two dozen dump trucks, a tractor and a road grader for use by the dike crews.

Some dikes were reported crumbling, but Bean said there was no widespread collapse.

Bean said 600 acres were inundated Monday evening when a dike burst on Eby Island, east of Everett, sending water gushing over the lowland.

Snohomish County search and rescue units, equipped with landing craft-like "ducks" evacuated nine families in the Snohomish city area. A few other families in the flooded area left themselves.

Probe Begun On Defense Pacts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today shady practices in the defense industry are making the taxpayer pay twice for some military hardware. He said he would make public the names of the guilty contractors.

Investigation by a subcommittee of the house-Senate Economic Committee Proxmire heads showed the government has been losing millions because certain contractors misused some of the $15 billion worth of government-owned equipment in private hands, Proxmire said.

"Single machines that cost more money than most people see in a lifetime are being diverted from public to private use without the government's permission and for virtually no reimbursement," Proxmire charged in a statement announcing the forthcoming disclosures.

As a result, he said, "the man in the street pays twice instead of once to get a jet engine built to equip a plane for Vietnam."

1968 Paving Program Moves Into High Gear

Pampa's 1968 residential street paving program, consisting of 75 to 80 city blocks, moved into its first phase today.

The city commission passed on first reading an ordinance determining necessity for improving streets named in the ordinance.

Approximately 140 city blocks were paved in the overall street improvement program completed early in the fall of 1967.

City Manager Jim White told commissioners this morning all streets where there was any interest shown in having them paved were included in the legislation introduced today.

This does not mean that we have 100 per cent signatures of all property owners on the street," White said.

The Pampa News will publish tomorrow the full list of streets included in the ordinance approved on first reading today.

The commission awarded a contract to Ray Boswell for paving the Santa Fe parking lot west of Cuyler and south of Atchison. The low bid was $2,747.20. Half of the paving cost will be paid by the Downtown Business Association.

Authorization was given for the purchase of $100,000 in U.S. Treasury Bills from the 1967 street improvement bond fund.

Commissioners also approved release of $8,758.93 escrow funds to the Texas Securities Corp. and authorized purchase of $13,157.47 in paving certificates which had been underwritten by the city in homestead and hardship cases in the overall paving program, and okayed payment of that amount to Texas Securities Corp.

Romney Meets With South Viet Leader Van Thieu

SAIGON (UPI) —Gov. George Romney of Michigan returned to Saigon today for talks with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu after two scheduled meetings with the ailing U.S. Marine commandant in Da Nang were called off.

Romney toured the northern provinces during a Christmas visit to U.S. troops.

Romney, the only announced major candidate for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, spent 35 minutes with the South Vietnamese president in Independence Palace in downtown Saigon. Then he talked for 45 minutes with Prime Minister Nguyen Van Loc, who is responsible for carrying out Thieu's policies.

Details of his discussions with Thieu were not announced but informed sources said the governor asked the chief of state for his views on the progress of the Saigon government, the military situation, the pacification program and the prospects for social and political

Searchers Find 2 More Bodies

POINT PLEASANT, W.Va. (UPI) —Two more bodies were recovered today from the Ohio River at the spot where the Silver Bridge collapsed 11 days ago.

The known death toll stood at 35. Fourteen other persons were listed as missing, police said.

The two bodies were recovered from a submerged auto.

The two victims were identified as James O. Pullen, 48, Middleport, Ohio, and Frederick D. Miller, 27, Gallipolis, Ohio. Miller was a passenger in the vehicle, owned and driven by Pullen.

Late Christmas Eve the body of Bobby L. Head, 35, Gallipolis, was pulled from the river.

Three cranes worked throughout Christmas Day salvaging twisted steel beams and slabs of concrete from the submerged wreckage.

Workers took time out to eat a Christmas dinner served by Red Cross volunteers.

The steel and concrete pulled from the river was loaded on barges and taken to a nearby pasture where the bridge will be re-constructed to determine the cause of the collapse.

NCEC PREDICTING

Close Presidential Race

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nonpartisan National Committee for an Effective Congress is predicting a close presidential election and Republican inroads in the House next year as a result of new psychological influences on the voters.

The liberal study group, primarily composed of businessmen and college educators with an interest in Congress, said in a yearend forecast that the presidential race might be so close it will have to be decided by the House of Representatives.

This could occur if former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama drained off enough electoral votes with a third party movement to deny a majority to either of the major party candidates, the committee said.

Possible GOP Control

As for the House itself, "it is highly possible" the GOP can gain the 31 seats needed for control, in the committee's estimate.

It added that a "prudent estimate" would indicate a gain of six Republican seats in the Senate, where the Democrats now have a 64 to 36 majority.

In all contests, Vietnam will be the central issue, according to the group's analysis. The old Democratic coalition is breaking up, it added, and President Johnson's support for his war policies is being reduced "to elements of the military-industrial-labor complex and others with a stake in the war economy."

However the elections go, the group said, they may need to be interpreted in the language of Sigmund Freud, father of psychoanalysis, rather than that of James A. Farley, the master politican of the Franklin Roosevelt era.

It said the nation may be on the brink of a crisis comparable to the Civil War and great depression—"a depression of the national spirit."

"It is because of these factors —The rapid changes taking place, the crumbling tradition, the public neurosis—that 1968 may be more Freud than Farley," the survey said. "It will be more deeply affected by the psychological mood, by intangible things that touch the emotions, such as a candidate's inner calm and confidence, his appearance of credibility, than by such things as pork chops, property taxes and farm subsidies.

The committee analysis pointed to the increase in the number of independent voters as evidence there is dissatisfaction with the old parties, particularly among younger people.

Mom Charged With Poisoning Son

CORDELE, Ga. (UPI) —An attractive 35-year-old woman, whose husband, three sons and grandson all died within the past two years, faced a hearing today on charges that she murdered one of them by lacing his coffee with arsenic.

Authorities also reported that the mother of Mrs. Janie Lou Gibbs had entered a hospital over the weekend.

Mrs. Gibbs was so well-liked that about 25 children were taken each day by working mothers to her nursery. But police accused her of poisoning one of her teen-aged sons, and launched an investigation into the swift decimation of the remainder of her family.

Lt. James Perry of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation said he thought officials would have no trouble in getting Mrs. Gibbs bound over to a grand jury.

Hunt on in Plainview for Jail Escapees

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (UPI) — Five trusties broke out of the Terry County jail in Brownfield late Monday and clashed with Plainview police in an exchange of gunfire in a residential area of the city.

One of the five was captured with four still at large.

The men, described as armed and dangerous, were afoot on the city's north side after abandoning a stolen auto, but are believed to have escaped in a second car reported stolen from that area.

The trusties' escape was reported in Plainview about 10:50 p. m. The men were spotted by police there at midnight.

It was not known how long the trusties had been free since authorities said there was no full time jailer at the Brownfield jail. The Terry County sheriff's office said the men escaped by breaking down a door to get to the jail keys in the office.

The trusties were believed to have headed for Plainview, 10 miles away immediately after their escape from Brownfield in a stolen car. Police said the auto was taken from a hospital parking lot across from the combination county courthouse jail.

The vehicle belonged to a hunter who had packed the car with a shotgun, deer rifle and pistols for a hunting trip today. It also had several liquor bottles and a suitcase in it.

The auto was spotted by Plainview police at a downtown intersection shortly after midnight.

A high speed chase through city streets by police, sheriff's deputies and highway patrolmen followed. A highway patrol car finally stopped the vehicle.

As officers ringed the car, four of the escapers leaped from it firing two volleys from a shotgun. No one was injured.

One man, Charles Cleve Brooks, Jr., did not leave the car and was captured by police about 12:10 a. m. He was returned to Brownfield where he had been jailed on a murder charge.

The other four jailbreakers were on foot in the north section of town but now are believed to have escaped police in a 1960 blue and white Plymouth missing from that area today.

Brooks told police the five had gone to Plainview to meet an unidentified man who recently was released from the penitentiary. Police said Brooks told them they would "have to figure the rest out" for themselves."

Roadblocks were set up over western Texas and New Mexico.

Police identified the four fugitives as:

James Thomas Stephens, 24, charged with felony theft and burglary.

James Earl Adams, a fugitive from justice.

Joe Audon Gutierrez, 27, charged with robbery by assault, burglary and with assault with intent to murder.

Decidoro Villarreal, 29, charged with abandonment.

The state police spokesman said law enforcement officers were considering all the men "extremely dangerous."

Chinese Mum On Bomb Blast

HONG KONG (UPI)—Chairman Mao Tse-tung turned 74 today but Communist China maintained official silence on its reported Christmas Eve atom bomb test.

There had been speculation that Peking would mark Mao's birthday with announcement of its seventh nuclear blast, but official propaganda outlets did not mention it.

In Tokyo the Japanese radioactivity countermeasures headquarters reported today a record fallout of 17,960 micromicrocuries of radiation per square meter had been measured. It said a jet fighter Monday gathered air samples at 30,000 feet.

There was no immediate explanation of why the latest test, involving a relatively small device of 20 kilotons, should produce higher radioactivity than the Dec. 28, 1966 blast of a 30-kiloton device, which produced 9,700 micromicrocuries.

Japanese scientists said the

Naked Sword-Brandishing Teen Shot, Killed

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — A naked teen-ager ran wild with a sword on a residential street Monday before being shot and killed by police.

One patrolman was slashed by the sword and another wounded by a bullet while trying to subdue Daniel Bruce Brown, 19, Sunnyvale. Brown was hit with four slugs and died about 20 minutes later at a hospital.

A coroner's inquest, including an autopsy, was scheduled this week to examine all aspects of the incident. Police announced they would conduct a separate investigation into Brown's background in hopes of determining what may have prompted his Christmas Day rampage in this community 35 miles south of San Francisco.

Pedestrians ducked for cover when Brown strolled unclothed down a street about a block from his home and swung a four-foot "cavalry style" sword at anyone who came near him. His parents called police.

Patrolmen James Brice and Richard Malvini responded in separate patrol cars. They remained inside the cars when Brown ran up and slammed the sword against the vehicles and windows.

Lt. Glenn Rake arrived in a third car and said Brown thrust the sword inside a window on the driver's side while he dived out the other side of the vehicle. Meanwhile, the two patrolmen left their cars.

Brown then began slashing wildly at Malvini. The patrolman drew his revolver, backed away and fired one warning shot.

Brown lunged at him and nicked his left leg with the sword as Malvini stumbled backward over a knee-high fence and fell to the ground, firing four shots.

Rake fired once. Four slugs hit Brown. Brice was struck in the right side by a bullet from Malvini's gun.

Brice was hospitalized in satisfactory condition. Malvini was treated for the minor wound.

Police said Brown's parents were too distraught to discuss their son's behavior.

DANGER ON HOPES

ALGIERS (UPI) — The rapid collapse of the armed revolt staged by a fugitive ex-army chief of staff, Col. Tahir Zbiri a week ago is expected to dampen any hopes in the ranks of the Algerian opposition for the rapid overthrow of President Houari Boumediena.

State's Road Deaths Lead Entire Nation

By United Press International

Texas today had the dubious distinction of racking up more traffic fatalities than any other state but California over the Christmas holidays.

A count by United Press International showed 48 of the 58 persons who died violently between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday were victims of highway carnage. There were six homicides, one death by fire and three miscellaneous deaths.

Only California, also with 48 traffic deaths, came close to the Texas figure.

Pedestrians and children did not escape the slaughter.

The tragedy in broken families was beyond counting.

The parents of Tania Y. Davis, 2, could not take much comfort that their daughter was one of the last victims of the holiday period.

The Davises and Tani's twin sister were injured in the Houston accident Monday.

A Christmas Day hit-and-run driver killed Geradro Jiminez-Castaneda, 47, of Mercedes.

Even those trying to protect the lives and property of others were not immune.

Department of Public Safety patrolman Billy Winn, 34, died in a two-car crash Sunday two miles south of Kirbyville.

Two other persons died in that pileup, which occurred as Winn and a partner were answering a call about a drunken driver.

Auto accidents near Alice and Gregory left four persons dead, two in each mishap.

Car-train collisions at Burleson and in south Harris County left two more dead.

Two men were killed near San Antonio when their auto struck earth moving machinery.

Amother man was found in his submerged car at a lake near the Amarillo zoo.

A Dallas man died when his car plunged down a 40-foot embankment on Highway 75.

Mrs. Palmer Dies In Groom Hospital

McLEAN (Spl) — Mrs. Sarah Frances Palmer, Alanreed, born Apr. 18, 1873, in Fairburn, Ga., died at 7:35 a.m. Sunday in Groom Memorial Hospital. She had been a patient three days.

She moved to Alanreed from Lelia Lake in 1922 and was married to John J. Palmer in Garden Velley in 1895. She was a member of Alanreed Baptist Church.

Funeral services were held today in Alanreed Baptist Church with Rev. M. B. Smith, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. I. Herndon, Wellington. Burial was in Rowe Cemetery in Hedley, and was directed by Lamb Funeral Home of McLean.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. May Moreman, Alanreed; Mrs. Nellie Mendenhall, Wichita Falls; Mrs. Blanche Grice, San Antonio; two sons, June Palmer, Vancouver, Wash.; and Ralph Palmer, Pampa; 15 grandchildren, and 13 great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be James Morgan, Jerome Henry, Alex Holt, W. M. Griffin, Lewis McJunkins, Emmett Stover, Leslie Morgan Sr., and Isaac Pollard.

heavy fallout had not reached a point where it endagered humans. The fallout was carried from China to Japan by the high-altitude jetsteam.

Communist China is still having domestic problems, according to reports.

Moscow Radio reported Monday that Maoist Red Guards and anti-Maoists have clashed fiercely in Shanghai for the past few days.

"Red Guards are committing outrages in the city as they do not want to return to their educational establishments," Radio Moscow said. "At the same time gangsterism and profiteering are growing in Shanghai."

Mao recently told the teenaged Red Guards to stop the cultural revolution — Mao's purge—and return to their schools, some of which had been closed for more than a year.

In another development Ming Pao, an independent Chinese language newspaper usually well-informed on developments on the mainland, said Peking has instructed Hong Kong Communists to stop their terrorist attacks on the British in the crown colony.

Yule Decoration Winners Named

Winners of the Christmas home decoration contest have been announced by the Pampa Garden Club and the Chamber of Commerce, co-sponsors of the contest.

Plaques were awarded to first place winners in each of the four divisions, which were drawn according to the boundaries of the four city wards.

Division winners and runners-up were:

First Division: Dwayne Mercer, 2225 N. Sumner; Bob Curry, 1126 Charles; and Kirby Hyman, 2107 N. Sumner.

Second Division: Eddie Polnac, 1337 N. Starkweather; W. L. Epps, 1909 N. Duncan; and Richard Wilson, No. 121, 26th. Street.

Third Division: Lester Herr, 449 Pitts; unknown occupant, 936 Campbell; and unknown occupant, 620 Foster.

Fourth Division: Richard Burkhart, 1101 S. Christy; J. L. Williams, 1101 Campanella Dr., and Lewis McJunkins, 839 S. Gray.

Proxmire said the committee's panel on economy in government had initiated a Defense Department crackdown on contractors using some of the government-owned equipment supposed to be used primarily for federal contracting work.

"A number of defense contractors were using government equipment most of the time for their own commercial gain rather than on defense work," he said.

Investigators for the committee and for the General Accounting Office also turned up violations of the Truth-in-Negotiations act, Proxmire reported, and the Pentagon agreed to crack down on that.

The act, described by Proxmire as "the taxpayers only defense against blatant overcharges on purchases by the government where the competitive bidding mechanism cannot be employed," governs 85 per cent of the Defense Department.

Pallbearers will be Earl Casey, Jack Howard, Earl Tennant, Bedford Cox, Phillip Jackson and Jack Prather.

SURPRISE!

BRIGG, England (UPI)—Gordon Dunderdale, 38, awoke to find his wife gone. He called police who told him she was in a hospital, where she gave birth to a six-pound boy, their 11th child. "I didn't even know she was pregnant," he said.

development in Vietnam.

After the meeting with Loc Romney said he considered his current visit to Vietnam more meaningful than the one in 1965 when, he later said, he had been "brainwashed." The governor said he had covered "a lot more" in one and one-half days this time than he did in three full days in 1965.

The governor, who heads for the Mekong Delta then Indonesia on Wednesday, spent Monday night in Da Nang, the giant base of the U.S. Marines in the northern quarter. He was to have visited Lt. Gen. Robert C. Cushman, Marine commander in Vietnam, but Cushman was touring the Demilitarized Zone with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of all U.S. forces in Vietnam.

When Cushman returned to Da Nang Monday and again this morning, he pleaded illness for not seeing Romney, aides of the governor said. Marines close to Cushman said the general was not happy about a visit from Romney, perhaps because of his charge that official briefings in 1965 had "brainwashed" him.

Services Slated For Guy Saunders

McLEAN (Spl) — Guy Cecil Saunders, McLean, born Oct. 9, 1893, in Lefors, died at 4 a.m. today at Groom Memorial Hospital after a lengthy illness.

He moved to McLean from Hale Center in 1950, and had lived his entire life in the Texas Panhandle, where he operated ranches.

He was married to Miss Ora Viola Robertson Oct. 9, 1919, in Lefors. Mr. Saunders was a member of McLean Church of Christ.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at McLean Church of Christ directed by Lamb Funeral Home of McLean. Rev. Curtis Kemp, Bell Avenue Church of Christ, Amarillo, will officiate. Earl Smith, pastor here, will assist. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery in Pampa.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Lou Hall, McLean; one son, George Saunders, McLean; seven grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; and one brother, Horace Saunders, Pampa.

Inhabitants of the Isle of Man in the Irish Sea are called Manxmen.

Urges Parents To Stress Safety With BB Guns

The Pampa Police Department warned parents today that BB guns are potentially dangerous and urged parents to stress the importance of safety in their use.

A rash of minor incidents involving BB guns prompted Lt. Preston Bailey to warn that there is a $100 fine for shooting BB guns within the city limits if charges are filed.

"A lot of youngsters received BB guns for Christmas," Lt. Bailey said, "and a lot of them will be getting into trouble. We urge all parents to stress the importance of safety and to remember the city ordinance against firing B B guns within the city limits."

County Prisoners Granted Holiday

Ten prisoners in the Gray County jail got perhaps one of their best Christmases Friday — an amnesty that allowed them to be in the homes of friends and relatives for the holiday.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said the prisoners, all of them in jail for misdemeanors, were allowed to go free in line with the Sheriff Department's annual yuletide amnesty gift.

Deputy Sheriff D. L. Day said one of the released men was so happy — and leery—about the whole thing that he went running out the door, throwing a hasty, departing "Merry Christmas" greeting over his shoulder.

And for the other prisoners there was also a Christmas gift. Each of the prisoners received a sack containing candy, fruits, nuts and tobacco.

JAKARTA (UPI)—Indonesian surveyors Saturday reported finding statues and other artifacts believed buried 5,000 years ago by members of an advanced civilization in southwest Sumatra.

It's the Law in Texas

Reviews That Sting

Tart reviews of movies, plays, books, and works of art have won many a chuckle from the reading public.

One reviewer was "underwhelmed' 'by a movie. Another said he saw a play under bad conditions: "the curtain was up." A third, having called an actor the worst he had ever seen, described his next performance as "not up to his usual standard."

But while readers chuckle, the person on the target end may be seething. If the criticism is really rough, may he collect damages for defamation of character?

He may — if the reviewer steps outside the legitimate bounds of critiéism. The law frowns on attacks that are directed not at the work itself but at the character of the person who created it.

For example, an art critic was held liable for saying not only that a certain work of art was bad but also that the artist was a swindler.

But within his proper scope, the reviewer has enormous leeway. His honest opinion, however severe, is protected by the constitutional guarantees of free speech and freee press.

Furthermore, the law recognizes that a critic may have to use pungent language to make his point. As one court put it, the critic may indulge in "all those delightful touches of style which go to make an article readable."

What about adverse comments outside the field of the arts? By and large, if it is a matter of legitimate public concern, the same broad freedom of opinion prevails.

Thus, courts have rejected the complaint of a public contractor, criticized for his workmanship; of a financier, criticized for promoting a new transit system; and of a football coach, criticize for his strategy.

True enought, such brickbats may be hard to bear. But the spublic is benefitted. Not only is freedom upheld but also taste is fostered — by the encouragement of work that is good and the discouragement of work that is bad.

As for the hapless victim, he himself has invited criticism by submitting his work to the public in the first place.

"He should not be thin-skinned," commented one judge, "if the criticism so invited is not gentle."

RED CROSS APPEAL

GENEVA (UPI) — Samuel Gonard, president of the International Committee of the Red Cross, appealed Saturday for safe repatriation of white mercenaries held in Rwanda. Gonard appealed to Rwanda President Gregoire Kayibanda. Official sources said Gonard's message reflected fear that the 121 mercenaries will be kidnaped or extradited to the Congo.

IRISH-SOVIET TALKS

DUBLIN (UPI)—An Irish trade delegation will leave Dec. 26 for three days of talks with Soviet trade officials in Moscow. An Irish Trade Board official said Ireland bought more than $3.6 million worth of goods from the Soviet Union in the first nine months of this year. The Soviet Union bought $91,404 worth of goods from Ireland in the samd period.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"Defense Department."

"Who do I speak to to report an unidentified flying object?"

"One moment, please. I'll connect you with the duty officer in the UFO section..."

"UFO section. Captain Winken speaking."

"Are you the one I talk to about an unidentified flying object?"

"That's right, sir."

"Well, I saw one."

Infiltrates Rooftop

"You did? Where was it?"

"When I first saw it, it was out on my lawn. Then it flew up to the rooftop."

"And what time did this happen?"

"It was about midnight. Mamma was in her kerchief and I in my cap. We had just settled down for a long winter's nap."

"If you were already retired, how did you happen to see it?"

"There arose such a clatter I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter."

"Could you describe the object, please?"

"I sure can. It looked like a miniature sleigh."

"How's that aain?"

"Sleigh. S-L-E-I-G-H. And there was a little old man inside."

"Now calm down, sir. Did you say a little old man?"

"That's right. He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot, and his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot."

"Oh, brother! This gets better as it goes along. Anything else?"

Pipe Smoker

"Yes. He had twinkling eyes and merry dimples. He had a droll little mouth drawn up like a bow, and a white beard and he was smoking a pipe."

"Was he fat or skinny?"

"Fat. He had a broad face and a little round belly that shook when he laughed like a bowl full of jelly."

"A bowl full of jelly, eh? How did you manage to see all of this if it was midnight?"

"The moon on the breast of the new fallen snow gave the luster of midday to objects below."

Each Student Must Be Treated Different, All Aren't Alike

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

One of the long held understandings in education is that each student is different. His ability, interests, and background are unique. Research has continued to emphasize these individual differences.

The real need in education is to recognize these many differences. But more important, the school must provide a program which is designed to instruct students in a way suited to their specific individual requirements. The quality of an educatonal program depends in great part upon how successful it is in the pursuit of individualization. Obviously, there are many approaches and methods for achieving this purpose.

Recent studies have shown a wide variation of reasons why children do not learn. These range from environmental factors such as lack of experience to specific physical handicaps such as brain damage or deafness. A school program which intends to individualize instruction must be in a position to diagnose the needs and subsequently provide an appropriate program.

Such a program requires special materials, teachers trained in the necessary teaching techniques, as well as class sizes and facilities which permit the specialized program.

Gifted students need programs designed to challenge their talents. There is a need to encourage independent study and enrichment of the learning process.

The majority of students fall into the middle ability group and are usually treated as having similar needs and talents. We all know that this is not so. It is in this area that the least amount of individualization might produce the most exciting results.

The need in education is to throw away the many traditions and methods which really do not provide the desired success.

The problem facing many school districts is the limited opportunity to experiment.

HELPING TO SPEED Christmas mail to its destination is this conveyor belt with a "brain" at the new Air Mail Facility at San Francisco's International Airport. Both incoming and outgoing mail drops down chutes and is carried by belt to a control panel (left). Operator reads bag's destination, punches button which "writes" its destination electronically on the belt. When the bag reaches the proper switch-off point, an electronic device reads the code on the belt and triggers a blade (right) to sweep the mail in a different direction. Belt's message is automatically erased. Bags can be sent to any of 20 destinations in or out of the building without any hand labor. Similar but smaller systems, developed by Goodyear, are in use in Memphis, Tenn., and New York City post offices. The belt also serves commercial firms in sorting and dispatching of packaged items.

Viet War is 4 Wars

By PAUL ANDERSON

DALLAS (UPI)—Gen. Paul D. Harkins, former U.S. commander in Vietnam, said today the war in Vietnam is not one war but is actually four wars, all of which are related but different.

Harkins, who commanded U.S. forces in Vietnam from February, 1962 to June, 1964, said in an interview there is a war of bullets, a war for the hearts and minds of the people, a political war in Vietnam and a political war in the United States.

He said the war of bullets which "we backed into and really didn't want to get involved in" was going better. "To win," he said, "we have to have negotiating strength and give the people security. We have to continue to do what we are doing—we have to keep the pressure on — we speak from strength now."

Security from VC

Harkins said the war for the hearts and minds of the people depends on giving the people security from the Viet Cong. He said, under Diem, the strategic hamlet program provided this kind of security until the government was overthrown. After that, he said, the program completely broke up because there was no protection.

At that time, the Communists saw the disruption and speeded up their infiltration. Many of the infilitrators were part of the 60,000 people who went to North Vietnam after the Geneva Accords of 1954 were signed.

He said many of those infiltrators are still living in the villages of South Vietnam. "We have to get intelligence units into the villages to find the Communists and either teach them that communism is wrong or eliminate them in some way. You have got to establish security in the villages— until you get it the people just won't believe you," he said.

Concerning the political war in Vietnam, Harkins said, "they're not ready for democracy and won't be for years: They don't have the free enterprise system. They need a benevolent dictator during wartime and until the country tets on its feet."

He said elections and democracy are not new on the village level but the idea of unifying a country with so many disparate elements is not very practical, especially under present conditions. He said there are many factions and ethnic groups in Vietnam who feel only they should lead the country and this attitude leaves little possibility of an effective central government. Politically, the situation is just as bad, Harkins said there are 26 recognized political parties and 12 unrecognized parties in Saigon.

The many changes in government did not help the country, he said. "I was opposed to the overthrow of Diem, personally. I didn't think the generals were ready. All indications at the time showed he had done a hell-uva good job."

Kitchen Whiz Hates Those Pots and Pans

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK (NEA)— Ardent cuisinier Raul Rubinstein may be a whiz in the kitchen but he retains a certain masculine apathy there. He doesn't like to do the dishes.

How many hours his kitchen cohort and wife Leslie spent cleaning pots isn't recorded in any references to their book for chic entertaining, "The Night Before Cookbook," (Macmillan). The time must have been considerable since the unique collection includes 200 recipes, all based on the idea of preparing a gourmet meal a night or two before hungry guests appear. Supposedly, each meal takes only 60 minutes of additional preparation for serving.

Rubinstein's collection runs the gamut of blue cheese hamburger to sikbaj, a Baghdad meat-fruit casserole. It lists suggested menus that guests will enjoy eating as much as the cook revels in preparing them.

More and more men and women wandering into the kitchen to try their hands at the range realize what Rubinstein discovered years ago. Cooking is relaxing and fun.

Although he likes sports, the opera, collecting rare books, photography equipment and records, a weekend in the kitchen is his idea of a hole in one thrill. For example, on Mondays this summer, Rubinstein relates, he listened to complaints of his fellow workers at RCA Victor Red Seal Records where he is advertising director with a Lucy Van Pelt smirk. While they cursed and sweated through the weekend traffic to the beach or got up at 5 a.m. to tee off, he and Leslie cooked away happily in their large, L-shaped Manhattan kitchen.

Outside in the foyer gurgled their son, the first grandson of pianist Arthur Rubinstein.

Rubinstein explains that he was a slow starter, more or less, in the cooking department, beginning seriously when 20. "I burned a lot of things on the electric stove during my bachelor days in West Los Angeles." living away from the family wasn't the impetus for his cooking. Rubinstein grew up on national cuisine. His mother is such a good cook that wife Leslie says she "got sick with worry" when preparing her first bride's meal for her. During his California school days Rubinstein claims he swapped his cheese sandwiches for some movie mogul son's caviar goodie.

Basic Training: Is Creating The 'Ultimate Weapon' for Fighting Men

Basic Training: Creating the "Ultimate Weapon"

By FREDERICK H. TREESH

FT. DIX, N.J. (UPI)—A young soldier runs forward, rolls into a sawdust pit and regains his feet in front of a lifelike dummy in black pajamas and bamboo hat. At his sergeant's command "attack!", the trooper chops the dummy in the neck with his bare hand or drives his booted foot deep into its midsection.

A few yards away, another teen-aged soldier advances on a bayonet target, parries its riflelike arm and cracks its head with a vicious stroke of his rifle butt. Crack! Another butt stroke and then a killing thrust with a six-inch bayonet blade in the target's straw-filled gut.

From a bunker on a windy rifle range, a private aims at a silhouette that popped up 75 meters in front of him and squeezes the trigger. Copper slugs rip into the cardboard target shaped like the head and shoulders of a man.

This is basic combat training, the first step in the creation of what the U.S. Army calls its ultimate weapon—the individual soldier.

Demands Grow

Tens of thousands of young Americans will undergo eight gruelling weeks of basic training in the year ahead as U.S. military manpower demands continue to grow. Draft calls for 1968 are up sharply over 1967 in anticipation of the release from service of the large number of men inducted in the initial Vietnam buildup two years ago. And Vietnam needs continue to rise with U.S. troop strength there expected to reach 525,000 by midyear.

In January alone, 34,000 men will be drafted, a major increase from the 22,000 inducted in November and 18,200 in December.

It is estimated that 360,000 men will be drafted in 1968. They all will be sent immediately to basic training along with thousands of Army enlistees and National Guard and reserve personnel.

Every soldier entering the Army undergoes basic training and then moves into advanced individual training. There he learns to be a combat soldier—a rifleman, machine gunner, tank crewman or artilleryman. Or he may be trained as a specialist such as a cook, driver, clerk or radio operator.

9,000 a Week

In a normal week, about 9,000 young men are undergoing basic training on this 32,000-acre Army base in the central New Jersey flatlands a few miles inland from the state's famed beach resorts. Ft. Dix, where millions of men have been mustered and trained since World War I, is one of the Army's 12 basic training centers around the nation. They graduated more than 400,000 men this year.

The training differs little from post to post. It consists of a standard 352-hour course in which the men are physically toughened, instructed to move and act like soldiers, acquire skill with the Army's basic weapon—the M14 rifle—and are taught to protect themselves.

"Shooting and saluting" get the most emphasis. The biggest blocks of instruction are rifle marksmanship (83 hours) and drill and ceremonies (40 hours). Physical training, hand to hand and bayonet combat, individual tactical training and first aid also are taught intensively.

Training Varies Little

The training does not vary substantially from that of World War II or the Korean era, although over the past quarter century the length of the course has ranged from the present eight weeks to a maximum of 17 weeks. Some subjects are added or dropped periodically but the fundamentals remain the same.

The biggest change in recent years has been in the quality of the instruction and the instructors.

A reporter who served as a platoon leader in a basic training company at Ft. Dix a decade ago visited the post again this month and immediately sensed an aura of professionalism not present in the post-Korea period. It was especially noticeable among the noncommissioned officers.

The "Smokey Bear" program is responsible for this upgrading of NCO caliber.

Nickname From Hat

A Smokey Bear is a drill sergeant. He gets the nickname from the hat he wears, a World War I style campaign hat identical to that worn by the celebrated bear on the forest fire posters. The hat and a gold medallion worn on the right uniform pocket are the drill sergeant's prestigious badges of professional competence and special training as an instructor.

Each drill sergeant was selected because of his military skill, leadership ability and record of personal deportment and stability. He then was put through an uncompromising seven-week course which emphasized bearing, leadership and teaching methods. Thirty per cent of the class flunked out.

Sensing some tightening up was needed in its basic training procedures, the Army borrowed the drill sergeant concept from the Marine Corps in 1964. But there's a difference between the Army drill sergeant and the Marine DI (drill instructor).

No Softie

The Army's drill sergeant is not so much of a hardnose as the DI, whose tough-as-nails demeanor is designed to add psychological pressure to the boot camp trainee's physical ordeal during the molding of a Marine and his pride in the Corps.

Don't for a minute think the Army drill sergeant is a softie. He's tough. Right now he's probably a Vietnam veteran and may be carrying the scars of a war wound.

But, as Col. Bryan E. Gill Jr., commanding officer of a 4,500-man training brigade, points out, the trainee is "in shock" for the first four or five weeks of his basic training. The drill sergeant is trained to counsel as well as drive the men through their transition from civilian to soldier. Toward this end, the Smokey Bear is taught such unsoldierly subjects as psychology and mental hygiene during his own training course.

There is at least one Smokey Bear supervising each platoon of basic trainees (about 5 men). Theoretically, each senior drill sergeant—a sergeant first class or staff sergeant—has one or two assistant platoon sergeants of slightly lower NCO rank who also are "Smokey Bear qualified."

Hemisfair Exhibit Is Governor's Yule Gift

By KYLE THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) —Gov. John Connally already has received his most prized Christmas present, but it can't be unwrapped until April 6, 1968.

The present, somewhat too big to put under a tree, is the $10 million Institute of Texan Gulf which will be one of the main attractions of San Antonio's HemisFair '68.

Connally is like a child with a new toy every time he talks about or makes a new inspection of the institute site on the southeast corner of the 92.6-acre HemisFair grounds.

On a recent inspection of the three-story building, his enthusiasm spilled over like water from the 60-by-300 foot fountain planned at the entrance.

"This is the most tremendous, impressive building I've ever been around," the governor said.

The institute will house a collection of various items and historical papers giving the history of the various ethnic groups which contributed to the founding and developing of the state of Texas.

"No other state will have anything even approaching this, Connally said. "As a matter of fact, I don't know of any place anywhere that has anything like the Institute of Texas Cultures."

"The building itself is an architectural triumph. It is the size of four football fields with three floors, each having about 70,000 square feet.

While the institute will be one of the features of HemisFair, it will remain a permanent structure after the world's fair closes next Oct. 6.

It will contain a wide selection of movies, slides, exhibits, books and articles on the rich culture of Texas taking in the eras of cattle, oil and space. These facilities will be available in future years for use by the schools and colleges across the state.

The idea behind the institute is summed up in a statement by R. Henderson Shurffler, director, when he said "most Texans have absorbed the phony myths perpetuated by the popular modern media."

"They think of early Texans as a bunch of hell - roaring bumpkins in buckskin who came brawling across the frontier, shoved the Indians and Mexicans out, and settled down to shooting each other at high noon in front of the village saloon."

But Shuffler said, "the truth happens to be just as colorful, just as fascinating, and tremendously more self-respecting than the myth. We need to use the modern means of communication to tell the truth as effectively as we have the myth."

Designs of New Stamps Have Been Made Public

The designs of the new 10-cent air mail stamp and the first class 6-cent stamp for use when postal rates increase Jan. 7, 1968, were made public today in Washington, according to Acting Postmaster R. W. McPhillips, Jr.

The airmail stamp will be issued in sheet, coil and booklet form, with first day ceremonies January 5 at San Francisco, California.

Booklets for over-the-counter sales will consist of five panes of eight 10-cent air mail stamps and will sell for $4. The coils will be issued in rolls of 100, 500 and 3,000.

In design, the stamp marks a departure from previous regular air mail stamps which have reproduced elements associated with flight, ranging from airplanes to eagles. The new stamp is poster type art. Fifty white stars, set in horizontal rows of five, their points joined, rise in perspective. Above these, in white capitals, appears U. S. Air Mail." The denomination "10 cent," also in white, is to the left. The stamp will be printed in red.

An American Flag postage stamp, in the new first class denomination of six cents, will be issued with first day ceremonies Jan. 24 in Washington, according to McPhillips.

This regular stamp, which will have an unlimited printing, repeats the theme of the 5-cent stamp it replaces. It shows the Flag towering over the White House.

The Flag Stamp of 1963 reproduced the White House as seen from the Ellipse; the new stamp is a bird's-eye-view from the Pennsylvania Avenue side, with the Washington monument and the Jefferson memorial visible in the distance.

The Flag will be printed in natural colors. The White House will be detailed in blue and trees will be green. The inscription "United States 6 cents," in blue, bisects the vertical stamp.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. 20013. A close-fitting enclosure of postal card thickness should be placed in each envelope and the flap either turned in or sealed. The envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 6 cents Flag stamp." Requests must be postmarked no later then January 24, 1968.

Bougainvillea, colorful climbing plant of South America, and Bougainville, largest of the Solomon Islands, are named for 18th century French explorer Louis Antione de Bougainville.

An estimated 40 per cent of the laboratory procedures used today could not have been carried out 10 years ago.

Migrating whistling swans fly so high and fast they are almost invisible from the ground, says the National Geographic.

PIGGLY WIGGLY

No. 1 in Texas!

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Mrs. Smith proudly writes that she has solved her children's birthday problems by taking ice cream and cake to school and treating the whole class. "The teacher," she says, "cooperates, and so there is no fuss, no muss, and no frayed nerves." For whom? Perhaps not for the mother. But, I am a teacher, and if a mother came to me with such a suggestion I would quickly tell her that I am paid to teach, not to give parties. Furthermore, multiply this scene by 30 or 35, and considerable teaching time is lost.

When I first began to teach (and taught in a school that allowed it), I "cooperated" with one of those "no-fuss, no-muss" mothers who brought the birthday party to school. Games were played and the excitement ran high. The mother sat in the back wringing her hands while I tried my best to control the over-stimulated youngsters. Two children up-chucked their hastily gulped refreshments all over the floor. (No fuss, no muss, aye?)

Abby, please tell mothers to give their children's birthday parties at home. Thank you.

PAID TO TEACH

DEAR PAID: Hundreds of teachers share your views and wrote to tell me so. The only teachers who had a kind word to say about the classroom parties were kindergarten teachers. And they qualified their enthusiasm with, "IF the mother tidies up the room and leaves it as she found it."

DEAR ABBY: The woman who complained about her husband going to stag parties reminds me of this story:

Two men were in the barber shop getting haircuts. The barber finished with the first and asked, "Would you like a little hair tonic?" The man replied, "Oh, no, my wife might think I've been in a house of ill repute!"

About that time, the second man was finished and the barber asked him if he wanted some hair tonic. He replied, "Yes, please. MY wife has never been in a house of ill repute."

The point of my story is this: How does a complaining woman know so much? I have never seen a naked woman at a stag party, but I have seen some strippers come pretty close to it in some public bars where women sat in the front rows. Also, I understand that some women are not averse to going places where they are served by topless waitresses, so what are they complaining about?

ANN ARBOR, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for the wife who signed herself "IGNORED."

You are not alone. My husband eats his dinner like he is a fugitive from a good meal, then he rushes to the TV set without a word, and leaves me sitting alone at the table. In the morning he eats his breakfast with his head buried in the newspaper, then dashes out of the house.

I keep flexing my tongue to give it some exercise so it does not go into a state of paralysis. Take Abby's advice and condition yourself to the silent life. Some men never change.

Students Present Soldiers' Program

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — Skellytown and White Deer students presented a program recently in the high school auditorium entitled "A Different America" sponsored by Future Homemakers of America and featuring a "Salute to Soldiers."

The play told the story of a boy in Vietnam thinking of his family, friends and memories of these people. He expressed his reason for being in Vietnam and fighting for a different America.

A choir sang "The Old Rugged Cross," "Cruel War", and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Participating in the presentation were Byron Thomas, Billie Woodward, Harold Beck, Chadd Smith, Cheryl Lavake, Lynda Stephenson, Cathy Jordan and narrator, Gaye Allen.

Area Church Class Has Salad Supper

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — T.E.L. Sunday School Class of Skellytown First Baptist Church attended a salad supper recently in the home of Mrs. Dellie Grant. Mrs. Bill Thompson gave a devotional taken from 103 Psalms. Mrs. Walt Shair gave the benediction.

The Christmas supper was held recently in the home of Mrs. Bill Thompson. Each member brought a gift for the gift exchange.

Attending were Mmes. M. L. Mills, Bill Thompson, Walt Shair, J. C. Jarvis, Emma Gores and Dellie Grant.

Modern Method Is Better

Contrary to what many people believe, young women suffer from dry skin. One survey revealed that the greatest usage of bath oil is among woman under 35, who are perhaps more sophisticated in skin-care techmniques than their mothers. Today's bath oils are a vast improvement over the skin treatment used by women in the Renaissance. They plastered pieces of raw bacon on their skin to alleviate dryness.

Fashion Newest Leg-acy

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK (NEA) — The female leg has gone out on a limb. Hosiery designers have kicked up their fashion heels this season with an array of underpinnings that are dressed up, dressed down, beglittered, bejeweled, whitened, darkened and even neon lighted.

Footloose but definitely not "Fancy" free, legs have made such an impact that dress designers start with the stems and think up. And whether skirt lengths end up being mini, maxi or midi, the leg's the look.

The more zany the stocking, the more exposure of skin. For example, meshes have moved from molecular to modest to immense. Suggested for daytime wear, these sport goodies are in colors from white to dark —with all the gay shades in between and wear equally well with jaunty bootery and shoes.

More adventurous cut-ups, however, will indulge in peephole cutouts, provocative and pretty, particularly for evening. The scoop here is that the best cut-up of all is an asymetrical design — no match, natch.

The leg to stand on for the up-to-the-mode miss is the ministocking or maxi-sock. Knee hi or slightly below, these are strictly for those who are uninhibited enough to enjoy giving their knees an airing. Faintly reminiscent of the traditional knee sock, the contemporary versions show up in the most formal tones of silver and gold as well as in casual patterned knits. Either way, the style's deceptively demure, fetchingly young and kicky.

But you won't be covering a multitude of skin with this season's hosiery, so you will want to keep your legs looking smooth and free of unsightly fuzz.

Area Circle Group Attends Meeting

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — The Elizabeth Cash Circle met in Mrs. Bill Price's home for circle program entitled "Culture and Worship Ways in Nigeria and Yugoslovia." Mrs. Price directed the program. Mrs. Myrtle Thompson gave the invocation and read the prayer calendar. Special prayer requests were made. Prayer was led by Mrs. Neoma Mercer. Those having part on the program were Mrs. Bernice Bewley, Mrs. Neoma Mercer and Mrs. Bill Price.

Attending were Mmes. Dellia Grant, Bill Thompson, Neoma Mercer, Bernice Bewley and two guests, Miss Billie Price and Kim Simmons.

Scouting Scoops

By Mrs. G. J. Boyd

Brownie Troop 21 recently delivered tray favors made by the troop to Casa Del Nursing Home and sang Christmas songs to the patients. This troop is led by Mrs. Jeff L. Anderson, assisted by Mrs. Owen Willis. Members are Pam Nite, Cala Willis, Karen Anderson, Melinda Young, Susan Utzman, Kristie Ledbetter, Kelly Dougal, Leslie Johnson, Beth Beard and Lisa Burrell.

Cadette Troop 214, busy as usual made houseshoes of washcloths and yarn to send to Indian children in New Mexico. The troop also made chocolate fudge, butterscotch fudge, peanut brittle and bon-bons to send to the seven children. The troop packaged houseshoes, candy and a 1968 Girl Scout calendar and mailed early.

The troop held its Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Cox Jr., 705 N. Wells. Slick streets and bad weather prevented the members from caroling this year. The leaders gifted each girl with a small silver charm shaped like the Girl Scout emblem.

Members of Troop 214 are: Debra Brumfield, Cathy Collinsworth, Jeannie Cox, Lou Ann Fulcher, Cindy Hatfield, Cindy Hicks, Jeannine Maness, Carol Rose and Marva Rowan.

Nightin' Gals Club Plays Table Games

GROOM (Spl) — The Nightin' Gals Club met in the Hospitality Room at the State National Bank Building recently with Mrs. Charley Fields, Mrs. Kenneth Black and Mrs. Ernest Lamberson serving as hostesses for the table games.

Games of pinochle were played with Mrs. Jim Hermesmeyer and Mrs. John Quirk winning high score prize and Mrs. Lucille West, low score prize.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Pete Fields, guest, and members, Mmes. John Quirk, Mike Homer, Glynn D. Harrell, Rap Britten, John L. Witt, Joe Davis, Ted Friemel, Jim Hermesmeyer, John Krizan, H. C. Swank, Bob Milton, Eldred James, Ruby Denton, Stella Patterson, Lucille West and Miss Beulah Shockley.

A pot-luck supper is planned by the club to be served at 6:30 p.m., Dec. 28.

Wear Velvet for Elegance

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Velvet does something for you. It doesn't just cover your figure. It casts an aura of rich elegance. It puts you in a dress-up mood—just what you need for the holidays.

Ever since the advent of St. Laurent's velvet "smoking" suit, velvet has made spangles and sparkles fashion's second-class citizen.

Many of the velvet-dressed women this season will reflect the influence of medieval fashion's reconstructed for the film, "Camelot." The opulence of the Middle Ages is interpreted at its romantic best by rich-textured boulevard velvets. There are long-sleeved, flowing gowns of classic simplicity, formals lavished with jewel embroidery on bodice or cuffs, hooded streaks of velvet touched with ruffles and bows.

There are also exciting and unexpected shirt-type dinner dresses with white satin collars and cuffs. Short, off-side buttoned cocktail coats and elegant theater costumes are important on the gay holiday scene, too.

Although black velvet is still one of the greatest favorites, colors in deep, bright and pale tones also star in the picture. The new shadovel matte velvet produces colors in a new medium, with a closely loomed surface that eliminates any hard sheen.

The new boulevard velvets have both crush-and-spot resistant finishes and require only a minimum of upkeep and care. To refresh the surface, just hang the dress over a steaming tub for 30 minutes and brush upward when thoroughly dry.

Lefors Residents Exchange Presents At Annual Party

LEFORS (Spl)-Businesses and individuals of Lefors sponsored an annual Christmas party with 21 attending.

The group was served refreshments amid the Christmas scene decorations in the civic center. On the stage was a scene of an early American living room with tree and stockings hung. The table for serving was covered with a Christmas cloth.

The group exchanged gifts gifts and were presented Christmas stockings. Mrs. D.C. Read, Mrs. Elaine Barnes, Mrs. Pat Youngblood and Mrs. Luther Welborn were the serving hostesses. Door prizes were won by Jessie Smith and Mrs. John Prichard.

Needle Club Elects Officers of 1968

GROOM (Spl) — The Thimblette Needle Club met in the home of Mrs. C. L. Culver, Sr., for their annual Christmas party and buffet supper recently. hostesses were Mrs. Charley Fields, Mrs. Bob Newton, Mrs. E. S. Craig and Mrs. Culver. After supper gifts were exchanged.

Officers elected for the coming year were Mrs. Crim Goodlett, president; Mrs. Lee Kirk, vice president; Mrs. George Eschle, secretary - treasurer; Mrs. Robert Milton, sunshine chairman and Mrs. John Hickox, reporter.

Those attending were two guests, Mrs. C. L. Culver, Jr, and Mrs. Dan Witt. Members attending were Mmes. Velma Evans, Preston Harden, A. W. Knorpp, Rudolph Tucker, Lee Kirk, Mert Kendrick, L. A. Hudson, Turner Kirby, Ross Nix, Emalea London, George Eschle, Nath Helton, Jake Lacy, John Hickox and the hostesses.

Eight-Year-Old Has Birthday Celebration

CANADIAN (Spl) —Kay Lynn Thrasher celebrated her 8th birthday with a party recently. Her mother, Mrs. Mildred Thrasher, served refreshments.

Guests were Ronda Bailey, Camille Lewis, Diane Horton, Donna Fuller, Charlene Chaffin, Mrs. Buddy Hobdy and Amy, Mrs. Tilda Chaffin, Mrs. Frankie Wiedner and Mrs. Madelyn Hyatt.

NONGREASY STAINS

Black coffee, tea, fruit juice and carbonated drink spills should be flushed with cold water before they dry.

Umbrella Fashions Turn Into Conversation Pieces

NEW YORK—(NEA)— Take a bright outlook on the weather. No matter how gloomy the forecast, umbrella creator Polan Katz has come up with a collection that will turn cloud-hopping into a matter of fun and fashion.

There are prints as novel as the latest in art and others that derive inspiration from treasures in an antique shop. There are psychedelic prints, classic, tartans, abstracts and geometrics.

But a sure conversation piece is his take-off on the Tiffany lampshade that hung in grandma's dining room. It took more than three years to develop this design that duplicates so faithfully the effect of the stained glass shade, the translucency, even the unique dome shape.

There are unusual combinations of umbrella and accessory items for holiday shoppers in the Polan Katz collection, too. You'll find umbrellas to match handbags and shoes, to co-ordinate with raincoats and boots. There are matching scarves and umbrellas, Gluvumbrellas, with their own gloves that stretch to fit any size hand and the Beltbrella that unlatches its shoulder strap sling to double as a leash belt.

For gala holiday evenings in the rain there are gold and silver umbrellas, others that shimmer in colorful vinyl-coated brocade and gayest of all, the after- five "clocktail" brolly that duplicates the clock dial on the black nylon cover with numerals and hands set in glittering rhinestones.

It's a whole new world walking between the raindrops this season.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Teach Child To Write Own Thank-You Notes

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Teaching children to write thank-you notes can be a problem, and with Christmas over most mothers will be faced with it again. I have found an easier way with my youngest boy. I bought a name stamp for him. He puts this on a plain sheet of paper which he has folded in half for his very own personal thank-you notes. This makes the job more interesting for this one as my other boys thought letter writing was just for girls.

FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY — Children just do not like to write letters. To solve the problem, get pretty picture post cards that show your city or any other nearby places of interest. Rule pencil lines on them and have the child write just two or three sentences as thank-you notes for gifts. They can be quickly home before interest lags. Grandparents, other relatives and especially cousins their own age love them. Good habits are more easily established in a pleasant way.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I hope one of the girls can tell me how to prevent mildew. When our house was recently remodeled the small closets were sheetrocked on the inside and now some of our clothes have mildew on them.

LOUISE

DEAR POLLY — I am a volunteer worker in a nursing home and in our activities therapy class we help the patients cut nylon stockings for filling small pillows. Cutting them in places makes the pillows fluffier and easier to wash. Hope this helps.

—Pauline

DEAR POLLY— When opening a jar of instant coffee or tea I put a small hole in the jar sealer and it is easier to pour out the amount needed. The coffee and tea also seem to stay fresher longer.

Methodist Class Meets at Church

The Ida Isabelle Sunday School class of St. Paul Methodist Church held its annual Christmas party and gift exchange recently in the home of Mrs. S.T. Holding.

Mrs. Holding gave the Christmas story, taken from Luke 2-1-20 and Rev. 19-6. Mrs. Kit Autry gave the benediction.

Gifts were exchanged around ping and silver Christmas tree, with Mrs. John Walton, acting as Santa Claus.

Mrs. Arthur Heflin received the door prize.

Refreshments were served from a table decorated in the Christmas manner.

Present were Mmes: Y.E. Turnbo, N. C. Cotten, Blanche Jordan, E. B. Jones, O. H. Moore, Heflin, Holding, Walton and Mrs. Kit Autry.

Library Staff Has Dinner Program

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — The Carson County Library Staff met in Panhandle for dinner, sponsored by the Carson County Free Library at Panhandle and under the direction of Mrs. Reba King, librarian.

The serving table was covered with white cloth, with Christmas place mats and a centerpiece fashioned of green holly with red elves sitting in the center. Table favors were red elves sitting at each place. Mrs. W. L. Potter gave the invocation.

Dr. Witt Honored At Party, Dinner

GROOM (Spl.) Dr. Dan Witt was honored with a going-away party recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Newton. Dr. Witt has gone to San Diego, Calif., to begin training with the U.S. Navy.

Those attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Jimmy Finley of Claude, Jake Lacy, P.P. Blackwell, Bill Blackstone, Gaylord Cook, Kenneth Friemel, Dr. and Mrs. John L. Witt, Odell Cunningham, Jerry Thornton, Mrs. Audy Martin, Mrs. Emalea London, the honoree and wife, Dr. and Mrs. Dan Witt, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Newton.

Dr. Witt was also honored with a birthday dinner and party in the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. John L. Witt, before he left for San Diego.

Those attending the birthday dinner and party were: Dr. and Mrs. John L. Witt and children, Miss Lynell Witt of Commerce, Miss Lita Witt of Dallas, Gary Wood of Denver, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wood of Sherman, Mrs. Jimmy Finley and Terry of Claude, Mrs. Audy Martin, Dr. and Mrs. John L. Witt and Jay.

Altrusa Club Has Christmas Program

Altrusa Club met in the Coronado Inn for its Christmas meeting recently. Christmas carols, led by Miss Rosemary Lawler were sung.

President, Mrs. Lora Dunn introduced guests: Mmes. Virginia McDonald, Marion Heare, Oma Drew, Frances Cree, Doris Wilson from a Pampa radio station and Miss Wanda Huff, women's editor of Pampa Daily News.

Altrusa girl for December, Miss Ann Hudson, was introduced by Louise Sewell and presented the Altrusa charm bracelet.

Mrs. Elma Vanderberg, Altrusa information chairman, presented members of her committee: Mmes. Leah Behrman, Mildred Prince, Fidelia Yoder, Genevieve Henderson, and Katherine Sullins, who each gave an Altrusa Alert about Christmas.

A report on the Christmas party for Altrusans with Mrs. Floy Heath, Mrs. J. Flanagan and Mrs. Ann Kay in the home of Floy Heath was given. This has become an annual affair.

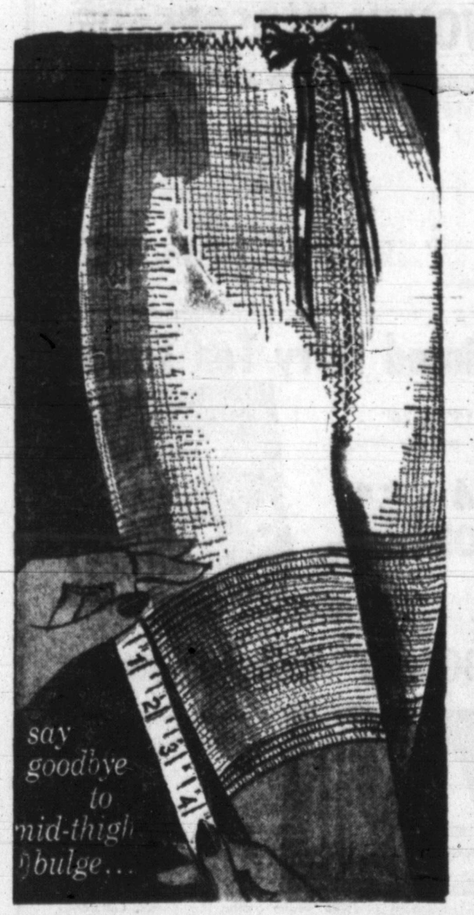

Mrs. Lular Wilkerson, program leader, presented Mrs. Viola Jordan, who presented the story "The True Meaning of Christmas" as experienced by a humble stable keeper.

The simple, but tender story of how the stable keeper felt as he made room in his stable for the Christ Child to be born, expresses the thought that "Christmas must come fro the heart to have real meaning, Mrs. Jordan said.

Area Science Club Takes Field Trip

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — White Deer High School Science Club members took a field trip recently to Southwestern Bell Telephone Office in Pampa. At another meeting the club discussed the science fair to be held in Amarillo and Pampa, and set a Christmas party for the December meeting.

SNOW JOB

for the winter driver can be a very serious matter—even of life or death. Light reflected from snow, dirty windshields and other highway hazards accompanying winter add extra hazard to driving. The smart driver can play it cool and safe by following a few tips compiled by the Society for Visual Care.

In 1818, the Christmas carol "Silent Night, Holy Night," composed the day before by Franz Gruber, was sung for the first time in Oberndorff, Germany.

Pope Issues Goodwill Appeal

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—In a fervent appeal for goodwill, Pope Paul VI urged mankind to accept the "great gift of Christmas" in a world "fraught with ever more serious and fearsome offensives and menaces" to peace.

"It is not vain to hope that at last men will realize that they can and must love one another, and not arm themselves to the point of fatal risks, not fight one another, and not kill each toher, "The Pope declared in his annual Christmas message.

The advance text of the message, beamed around the world, reached President Johnson as Air Force I winged toward Rome from Vietnam war zones. The 2,500-word appeal avoided direct mention of Vietnam but the war was clearly preoccupying the 70-year-old Pope.

Seeks Peace Day

Pope Paul called for an international "Day of Peace" on Jan. 1, following up a statement Friday in which he urged an end to American raids against North Vietnam, pleaded for some evidence of a "serious desire for peace" from Hanoi and offered his services as a peace mediator.

"Christmas once again proposes for us the consideration of the theme of peace," the Pope said in his Saturday night message.

"The message which this holy season place on our lips cannot pass over in silence the wish of peace which Christ brought to this earth of ours, so avid for peace and so in need of it, yet so fraught with ever more serious and fearsome offenses which seem to compromise peace.

Repeats Wish

"Allow us, brothers, to repeat in our Christmas greeting that same wish which descended from heaven during the mysterious night of the birth of Jesus Christ here among us, on the soil of our earth, this small atom in the universe, and, at the precise moment that compromises our history, in the immense flow of thousands of centuries."

The Pope said too many people believed "it is impossible to attain peace, much less preserve it.

Washington Window

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John M. Bailey is a Democratic team captain who is supposed to play the game under conflicting sets of rules.

As chairman of the Democratic National Committee representing the party in power, he presides over a national political headquarters which is regarded as an arm of the White House.

But the national party organization is supposed to stay neutra neutral in pre-nomination contests involving the presidency, seats in Congress or other omices.

This second tradition exists in theory only. Both political parties treat incumbents eligible for reelection as candidates already nominated. Hence Bailey feels no neutrality toward Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who is challenging President Johnson in presidential primaries.

Bailey's Feeling

Long before McCarthy had announced his candidacy, Bailey was telling Democrats that they already had their ticket for 1968 when they would renominate Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. Indeed, Bailey feels that he should quit the party chairmanship if he favored the nomination of anyone but Johnson.

The party has confronted similar situations in the past. Its national chairman during Franklin D. Roosevelt's first two terms was then Postmaster General James A. Farley, who opposed the renomination of Roosevelt in 1940 for a third term. However, there was no organized oppsition to Roosevelt. Farley stepped out after the third term nomination.

In 1948, the national chairman was J. Howard McGrath, then a senator from Rhode Island, who was openly supporting the nomination of President Harry S Truman. Again there was no organized opposition. Some Democrats were trying to draft Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who turned up as the Republican presidential nominee four years later, but they went nowhere. Much of the South was backing Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, who was ont an active candidate and did not even attend the National convention.

With the Democrats out of power at the end of the Eisenhower administration, Truman himself refused to attend the 1960 convention. He accused then Chairman Paul M. Butler of rigging the convention to help nominate John F. Kennedy. Butler, of course, denied the charge.

Before McCarthy's announcement, Bailey sent letters to the entire Democratic leadership—members of Congress and county chairmen to state chairmen and governors. He wrote that there was a jog to be done "to quiet some within our own ranks who would rather be heard than helpful."

Nearly all political professionals dread factional warfare within their own party on grounds that it is an expensive luxury. Such warfare creates enmities that cost votes on Election Day.

People on the higher rungs of the Democratic party apparatus yiew the McCarthy candidacy as a serious irritant that could hurt the Democratic Party Nov. 5.

REDUCE SENTENCE

WARSAW (UPI)—The Polish Supreme Court Friday reduced the sentence of Karol Kot, known as the Vampire of Cracow because he killed two children and a woman in vicious knife attacks, from death to life imprisonment.

ANCIENT ARTIFACTS that date back 3,000 years were discovered when construction workers enearthed an Indian burial ground and garbage dump on California's Tiburon Peninsula. Spear point, left, and shells were among items said to relate to similar findings that have been dated by radio-carbon analysis to go far back as 4,400 years.

President's Visit With Pope Serves To Dramatize U.S. Desire for Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson's Yuletide visit to Pope Paul VI serves to dramatize U.S. desires for "peace with honor" in Vietnam at a time when prospects for an end to the fighting remain very dim.

The Viet Cong were laying down their arms for a three-day Christmas truce at about the hour of Johnson's arrival in Rome. The allies will begin a 24-hour truce 17 hours later.

But the holiday truces in Vietnam during Christmas, New Year's and the lunar new year of Tet have proved in the past to be fragile respites at best. Consequently, this year the United States is leaving itself elbow room to counter militarily if violations get out of hand.

At home, the United States is beginning Christmas celebrations and men of goodwill will be hoping and praying for peace.

This year, in contrast to last year, the President has opened up some new avenues for a negotiated end to the war.

Johnson said in a Sept. 29 speech at San Antonio that he would halt the bombing of North Vietnam if it would bring prompt, productive discussions with Hanoi. He said he assumed Hanoi would not take military advantage during the talks.

Before leaving on his trip to Australia and beyond, the President said that "good results" could come from informal talks between South Vietnamese leaders and members of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

This position was endorsed by Johnson and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu in a communique at Canberra, Australia, which seemed to bridge some differences of approach.

Now, in an expansive gesture, Johnson has flown thousands of miles to meet one of the world's great advocates of peace, who only Friday voiced his distress over the Vietnam hostilities.

U.S. officials in Washington said the Pope's call for an end to U.S. bombing and his appeal to the Communists "to give a sign of serious will for peace" accorded with the American approach.

But for the moment, American diplomats have detected no hopeful signs that a response might be forthcoming from either Hanoi or the Viet Cong in the immediate future.

The diplomats, falling back on their professional optimism, are reluctant, however, to discount the two Johnson offers in the longer run. Mindful of Oriental indirection, they insist that one day, somehow, the President's offers may take on great significance.

At Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, while visiting American troops, Johnson described American resolve with these words:

"We have set our course. We are not going to yield. We are not going to shimmy and we are going to be there to the end—until we achieve peace with honor."

DEATH SENTENCE

WARSAW (UPI)—A Warsaw military court Friday ignored Jerzy Strawa's emotional plea for "a chance to be rehabilitated and to work for the good peoples of Poland." It sentenced the 52-year-old engineer to death for allegedly spying for the United States.

In 1964, the British frigate "Ajax" captured 22 Indonesian guerrillas in the Straits of Malacca.

Vietnamese Conflict May Go Down as 'Economy War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Vietnamese conflict still has a chance of going down in history as an "economy war" compared to Korea if it can be held to a similar length, Pentagon statistics indicated Saturday.

Counting from the start of the big U.S. buildup in mid-1965, this would mean ending major military operations some time in 1968.

Should that come about, the Defense Department pointed out, there would be several respects in which the average annual cost of the Vietnam struggle could be considered less than for other wars. These include:

—U.S. fatalities, last reported at 15,646, are less than half the total for Korea.

—With 3.4 million men in uniform, the armed forces are more than 200,000 below the Korean peak, even though the troop strength in Vietnam is greater.

—Although dollar figures are comparable, because the nation's productivity has doubled and money values have declined, the effect on the budget has been similar in percentages.

—As a proportion of the Gross National Product, military spending for Vietnam apparently will not go much above 9 per cent, compared to 12.1 per cent during Korea.

A gauge on the war's annual cost in the future was made possible this week when the Treasury Department announced that military spending, at just over $6 billion a month, finally has stopped going up.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

Because of the Geneva agreement of 1962 establishing Laos as a neutral off limits to all foreign troops, the battle for control of the Ho Chi Minh Trail largely is a secret one.

Yet to the war in Vietnam and especially its duration, it is as vital as the recent battle for Dak To in the Vietnamese Highlands, or the "McNamara Line" at the border of the Demilitarized Zone at the 17th parallel.

The North Vietnamese never admit their violation of Laotian neutrality. We hear of the battle only in an occasional communique from Vientiane, administrative capital of Laos.

Largely, it is fought by Americans flying jets from Thailand by Laotian pilots flying antiquated, American-supplied T28 fighter-bombers from Laotian bases at Pakse and Savannakhet in Laos and by commando types striking occasionally from South Vietnam.

Estimates Vary

Intelligence estimates place the number of North Vietnamese troops in Laos at anywhere from 14,000 to 25,000.

Of these, some 5,000 are believed assigned to guarding the Ho Chi Minh Trail and the thousands upon thousands of coolies assigned to maintaining its network of roads and trails as an all-weather supply route.

The Ho Chi Minh Trail could be cut by ground forces.

But to do it would mean the U.S. must openly violate the Geneva agreement and bring Laos into the war.

To the Ho Chi Minh Trail has been added the Sihanouk Trail in nominally neutral Cambodia.

For both the United States and North Vietnam, and its Red Chinese and Soviet allies, a principal problem is one of logistics.

And as the U.S. 7th Fleet has cut drastically into seaborne supplies shipped directly to the Vite Cong in South Vietnam, Cambodia has become of increasing importance.

Two Directions

Through the port of Sihanoukville on the Gulf of Siam, these supplies may find their way to the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese by two directions, down the Mekong River to the south or through the capital of Phnom Penh, along winding truck trails into southern Laos below Attopeu.

Cambodia had a good rice crop last year, and in Cambodia the Communists also can fulfill much of their food and clothing needs.

But despite frustrations imposed upon the United States by Laotian and Cambodian neutrality, it is not all beer and skittles for the Communists.

Allied intelligence claims that bombing losses are forcing the North Vietnamese to ship in two bags of rice for every one they shipped before. Mounting opposition inside Laos is forcing them to take over an increasing burden of defense of the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

And in Cambodia there is always the possibility that Prince Sihanouk will change his mind about who is going to win the war.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bache & Co. says that once tax considerations run their course, it anticipates some near term improvement which could run into January. The analyst says the State of the Union and budget messages could prove pivotal in shaping the market's direction.

Wright Investors' Service offers the opinion that 1968 should not offer greater problems than this year offered. It says the most prudent as well as the most aggressive investors "would be well advised" to put their money into top quality stocks.

E.F. Hutton & Co. says there is a possibility the market will attempt another rally very soon although the overall technical picture continues to weaken. In view of this type of background, the analyst adds, investors over the near term should emphasize selling on strength rather than buying on weakness.

PAMPA Business News...

FAST, FAST SERVICE — Vogue Cleaners drive-up door assures you of getting fast service when you leave your clothes with them at 1542 N. Hobart. Sherilyn Porter, bottom left, Larry Farber, center and Cinthia Bennet, right, are youths employed parttime at Vogues Cleaners. Mr. Malone usually makes room for youths to work after school and gain valuable experience.

Vogues Drive Up Door Assures You Fast Service

Vogue Cleaners is "open all the time". Any hour of the day you decide to 'take your clothes to the cleaners' you can do just that, at the Vogue Cleaners. Their Drive Up Door plus the Night Depository makes it impossible for you not to get your clothes to the cleaners.

The Night Depository was designed to deposit your garments any time of the day and night. Just write your name and the articles you are leaving on a pad and drop the bundle in the shoot and Fred Malone and his 'professional employes' will process them in their inimicable way.

Vogue Cleaners has only SERVICE to sell you. There are untold numbers of little things that go into our service. All our cleaning is done right on the premises and we have 'Minute Man Service' if you desire (in case you need cleaning done in a hurry). We are proud of our complete service and we know you will be pleased too, just give us a try and see the difference.

Vogue Cleaners, 1542 N. Hobart is Pampa's diversified cleaners which includes all these services. . . dying, reweaving, alterations of all kinds, gloves, leather and suede cleaning. We specialize in cleaning slip covers and drapes which are finished and returned with decorator fold.

When new techniques are formulated, we are one of the first to accept it as our regular process from then on, which assures you that your wardrobe will look fresh and neat at all times. You'll appreciate the 'extras' our personnel gives your clothes, all this that is termed service by us, might be thought of as extras by you, yet you get them without even asking for them.

We know you'll like our cleaning service, we'll be looking for you. Fred Malone, owner and operator of Vogue Cleaners, 1542 N. Hobart, invites your patronage.

Frostbitten 13-Year-Old Doing Well After Rescue

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (UPI) —A frostbitten 13-year-old Navajo Indian girl, whose father plodded five miles through snow in subzero weather to summon rescuers, was reported "doing very well" Saturday in the nearby Fort Defiance Hospital.

Also said to be in good condition in the same hospital following their rescue were Mrs. Mary Blackgoat and her newborn son.

Harold E. Mott, general counsel for the Navajos, said the Indian girl, Alta Rose Tsosie, was rescued Friday night by a snowmobile after her father walked five miles to a highway from the snowbound hogan (hut) to summon aid. The temperature at the time was five degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Mott said the girl had severe frostbite on both legs. He said doctors at the hospital managed to save both limbs although she had "blisters as big as silver dollars."

Military and civilian rescuers have been working around-the-clock at the sprawling Navajo and Hopi Indian reservations in the northwestern part of Arizona where the state joins Utah Colorado and New Mexico.

An eight-day blizzard that dumped three feet of snow on the region has ended, but misery continues in its wake for the estimated 40,000 persons stranded in the area.

At least eight persons have died, including four babies and two elderly sheepherders, and thousands of men, women, children and animals have been cut off from food supplies.

Jordanian, Israeli Troops Trade Shots

TEL AVIE (UPI) —Jordanian troops and Israeli patrols traded shots for an hour Saturday along the Jordan River, Israeli officials said. No casualties were reported.

The exchange occurred two miles south of Tirat-Zvi in the Bet-Shean Valley, Israeli officials said.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Chief of Staff Itzhak Rabin charged the Soviet Union is not interested in seftlement of the Mideast crisis or the region's stability.

"I believe they (Russians) are keen on maintaining permanent tension because in such a way they can best advance their own interests in our area," Rabin said in an interview with the newspaper Haaretz.

He said anyone who chose to overlook the fact Soviet pilots took part in fighting in Yemen was evading realities.

NAMES NUNCIO

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI Saturday named Msgr. Giovanni Gravelli apostolic nuncio to Bolivia and titular archbishop of Suas, the Vatican announced. Gravelli has served the Vatican in the Philippines, France, Colombia and El Salvador.

BRIEF STRIKE

PARIS (UPI)—Taxi drivers struck for a few hours Friday night to protest the Christmas shopping rush. The drivers joined in a nunofficial work stoppage "to protest traffic jams and the lack of parking space."

The several thousand white squirrels that bound about Olney, Ill., constitute the only known albino squirrel colony in the world, says the National Geographic.

OLD-FASHIONED MINISKIRT rates quizzical glances on a London stree from a pair of girls done up in what ist he very latest fashion in the mod capital — maxiskirts.

Huge Dogs Kills Girl

FAIRYLAND, Ga. (UPI)—A huge dog attacked and killed a four-year-old girl Saturday as she played in a trailer park on lookout Mountain near here.

Darle Harper was dead on arrival at Childrens Hospital in nearby Chattanooga, Tenn. Doctors said she bled to death from multiple bites.

Last Sunday, a pack of dogs attacked and killed two young brothers as they played near their home at Lynchburg, Va. Eugene Goodman, 4, and Kenneth Goodman, 3, were bitten to death by a pack that included two German Shepherds. The dogs were destroyed.

STATE FUNERAL

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)—The government Saturday ordered a state funeral with full military honors for six Thai soldiers killed Wednesday in a battle with Viet Cong guerrillas near Saigon. The Thais, members of the "Queen's Cobras," killed 54 Viet Cong.

FLOOD REFUGEES

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—Hundreds of Middle East war refugees took refuge in Mosques Saturday after floods swept away 90 per cent of the tents at the camp at Zyzia, 25 miles from Amman. More than 4,800 refugees were housed at the camp.

MEDICAL DRAMA that held the world's attention came to an end in Cape Town, South Africa, with the death of Louis Washkansky, center. He lived for 18 days after Dr. Christian Barnard, right, for the first time attempted to transpplant a human heart. Donor was Denise Darvall, left, killed in an auto accident.

Weary Travelers Glad to be Home

By MERRIMAN SMITH

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT JOHNSON (UPI) — Those who have circled the globe with President Johnson in little more than five days approached home and Christmas, weary and glad the ordeal was nearly over.

Starting last Tuesday morning in Washington and winding up when the jet caravan descends once again at home port, the President and his party covered more than 27,000 miles; ate most meals aloft at 30,000 feet or higher, and during the entire trip spent only one night in a hotel—and then only for a few hours.

The White House party in Australia alone consisted of more than 400 men and women, according to government figures, including a traveing White House press party of about 100.

A thousand more were involved in planning and execution of these plans as the President sped from continent to continent.

On such gruelling trips it is standard practice for the White House to insist on the Chief Executive getting plenty of rest while in flight.

But all one had to do was to look at Johnson at Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam Friday to tell that he, like other mortals, was showing the marks of fatigue.

Realizing that the President receives vastly better care on such trips than does the accompanying press party, and as one who has been at this sort of thing since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt, I can testify that this trip was rigorous, depleting and incredibly hard work.

To go more than five days without getting to bed except for one four-hour stretch in Australia would be wearing on decathlon champions. Yet the enormous White House party managed to survive with only a few casualties.

Two men suffered heart attacks and had to be left in Canberra and Korat, Thailand. Both were technical communications men.

Prbably he most irritating aspect of the trip was not knowing where we were bound once we left Melbourne, Australia. In the interest of security the White House staff kept destinations secret until the party was airborne for the next stop.

BROADCAST GREETINGS

MOSCOW (UPI)—Moscow Radio broadcast Christmas greetings Saturday to the United States. In its English-language transmission beamed at North America, the radio included messages from the U.S.S.R. Baptist Alliance, the Soviet-American Institute in Moscow and Intourist travel agency.

Yvonne Paul Wants to Go Home to N.Y.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (UPI)—Yvonne Paul, 38, sat in Schiphl Airport Saturday, wearing the same summer dress and borrowed raincoat she wore on her arrival from New York last October. She has a return ticket in her purse.

The only Christmas she wants is to go back home to New York. She has even offered to go to Vietnam to show she loves her adopted country.

For 11 weeks, the Indonesian-born Dutchwoman has camped out at the airport in a protest against the U.S. Immigration. Service. She has twice been deported from New York.

"But I am confident they will let me back in again," she said. "This season of good will should be reason enough for the authorities to permit my return."

December Storm Wasn't Worst in WT History

By CHARLES RICHARDS

The snow storm which moved through the Texas Panhandle and into the remainder of the state in mid-December was not the worst autumn storm in history, although it was blamed for 22 West Texas deaths, weather officials say.

It was the most bitter in several years and fit the general pattern of West Texas weather in 1967—"a combination of the second and third best, or worst, of everything."

The weather bureaus at Amarillo and Lubbock, the hubs of the two areas where the most inclement weather occurred, said there was hardly anything outstanding about the weather the past 12 months, in contrast to other years, with a few exceptions.

The 5.70 inches of rain that accompanied a tornado at Lubbock June 1 was the greatest amount ever recorded in a 25-hour period in West Texas.

And on the opposite end of the scale, no rain fell in the South Plains in January—the first time no precipitation ever fell in a one-month period—and only .14 inch fell in February. That made a total of .38 inch in five months—the region's driest winter in 56 years.

But then the rains came. The 2.09 inches in March was considerably above average, and the same was true of the 3.45 inches in May, the 7.95 inches in June and the 3.29 inches in July.

In the Lubbock area, the months of August, September, October and November all were below normal but the early summer rain was more than enough to send the annual total above the norm. By the end of November, the area already was more than two inches above its 18.08 inches average annual rainfall.

In he High Plins, he mnh-inches average annual rainfall. average until April, with a 1.95 inch shower. July rains totaling 3.70 inches and September rains of 2.47 inches were the only other months where more rain than the average fell.

For the year, the Amarillo area received 16.73 inches, about 2.7 inches below the average rainfall of 19.44 inches.

Surprisingly, the temperature never reached the 100-degree mark at Lubbock in 1967. The closest it got was 99 on July 31 and Aug. 8. On the latter day, Amarillo hit 100 on the thermometer.

Lubbock's low of the year was 3 degrees on Jan. 8 and Jan. 9, and Amarillo got as low as 6 degrees on Jan. 9.

One of the most fierce windstorms in recent years roared through Lubbock, Jan. 6, a couple of days before the year's first cold spell set in. Gusts of up to 80 miles per hour toppled three 10-story-high light standards on the Texas Tech campus.

Tornadoes were reported at numerous West Texas cities throughout the year. The one in Lubbock destroyed several war houses and knocked out the Weather Bureau's radar.

Other tornadoes were reported near Hereford, New Deal, Littlfield, Rotan, Snyder, Midland and Spur.

Hail came along with the heavy rains in May, June and July, causing extensive damage to wheat, cotton and grain sorghum. A hailstorm, short in radius but extremely potent, wiped out cotton at Slaton and pounded out scores of downtown windows.

In the tornado and thunderstorm that hit Lubbock June 1, almost all of the rain fell in a three-hour period. Water ran curb deep downtown and crept into businesses.

An elderly couple drowned midway between Lubbock and Levelland after a tide of water swept them off the highway and into a ditch.

Later in the month, similar rains hit Plainview and Snyder. The Snyder downtown area was cut off by high water that made bridges impassable.

Cardinal Pacini Dies of Tumor

ROME (UPI) — Alfredo Cardinal Pacini, named a prince of the Roman Catholic Church only semven months ago, died Saturday of a malignant tumor. He was 79.

Pacini's death reduced to 122 the College of Cardinals.

He was the third cardinal to die this month. Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, died Dec. 2 and Antonio Cardinal Riberi, 70, died in Rome, Dec. 16.

Pope Paul VI visited the cardinal Friday night in a Rome clinic.

Before Pope Paul named him a cardinal last May 29, Pacini was apostolic nuncio in Switzerland. He was born in Capannori, Italy, Feb. 10, 1888 and ordained July 25, 1913.

He spent the first five years of his priesthood teaching and served as a chaplain with the Italian army in World War I.

Young Girl Sets Record Every Day

DENVER (UPI)—Julie Rodriguez, a 2'-month-old girl who sets a new record every day she lives, spent Christmas day at her home in Pueblo, Colo.

Doctors at Colorado General Hospital said they decided to let the young liver transplant patient go home to celebrate the holiday with her parents and new-born brother.

The girl, who has survived a lever transplant operation longer than anyone in history, was allowed to spend several hours with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rodriguez.

Earlier, doctors had said she would not be able to leave the hospital.

The youngster has been at the hospital since undergoing the operation last July 23.

Snow Men Seen In Hot San Juan

SAN JUAN, Tex. (UPI)—Winter temperatures in the tropical tip of Texas soared toward the 60's Saturday, but that didn't keep the people in San Juan from building their snow man.

In fact, they found it such perfect snow man weather, they decided to add a snow lady.

"This is going to be an annual affair," said Chamber of Commerce president Dave Polk. "We built the first one last year, and it was such a success, we decided to do it again. They're beautiful this year."

A successful snow man in San Juan, takes a bit of engineering, and not a little supervision from people who have seen real snow at some time or another.

None of the eight fifth-grade boys enlisted for the task ever had, so Polk rounded up some experts—35 tourists who had come to southern Texas just to get away from things like snow.

But they pitched in, offering tips, and encouragement, and before long, two 6-foot- 4 inch giants—composed of some four tons each of shaved ice—were staring at each other from adjacent corners in the downtown district.

Pickets Go Back To Work Again

SILVER CITY, N.M. (UPI)—Pickets were to resume today in front of Kennecott Copper Co. facilities, ending a three-day Christmas truce by striking workers.

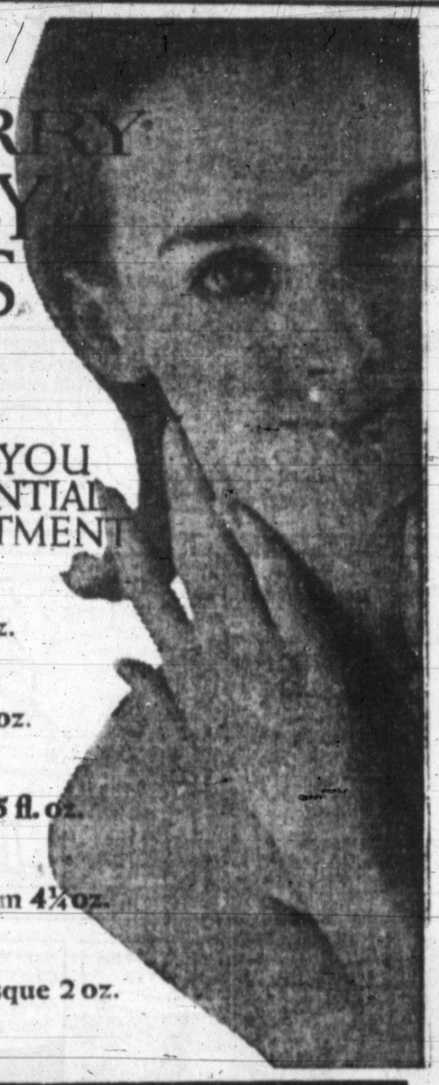

S. C. (Chano) Merina, president of Local 890 of the United Steel Workers, announced the resumption of picketing Monday following a special Christmas party for some 4,000 children of the striking workers.

The party was paid for by union collections funds, including donations from New Mexico Gov. David F. Cargo and other state officials.

Some 1,200 New Mexico copper workers were idled by the strike that began July 14 and spread throughout the copper industry.

Labor Day is celebrated everywhere on American soil from the Virgin Islands to Samoa.

Printing, publishing, and allied industries rank among the top five of the nation's industries in terms of number of employees and weekly earnings; the combined sales volume of the industries is approximately $16 billion annually. The scope and size of the industry demands college-trained executives, and the supply of qualified personnel falls far short of meeting the needs. For this reason opportunities are great, advancement is rapid, and salaries are outstanding.

Bob Kennedy Jolly Despite New Job With A's

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Kennedy is having a great season.

This is the season to be jolly, isn't it? Then nobody is following instructions any better than Bob Kennedy, the new manager of the Oakland A's.

People are going around scratching their heads about Bob Kennedy. They wonder what he has to be so jolly about inasmuch as he's taking over a 10th place ball club and has signed on to work for Charlie Finley, a man who cans managers at almost the same rate that Campbell's cans soups.

Bob Kennedy doesn't live with his head in the sand. He knows all about the long procession of managers that worked for Charlie Finley before him. But he's jolly, anyway.

"I feel we can get along all right," says the new Oakland manager. "In my small way, I have as much at stake as he does. By that I mean my family, my future and my livelihood. But I'm not the least bit worried about my relationship with Mr. Finley. My association with him has been fine. All I know is that he's the man who pays me and I'll give him the best I have in me. I want to be a success. Whether it's for Charlie Finley or anyone else."

Tough Job Ahead

Bob Kennedy isn't exactly walking into the most enviable job in the world with the A's. All the players were especially fond of his predecessor, Alvin Dark, and showed their resentment when Finley fired him last summer.

Relations between the players and Finley deteriorated so rapidly during one stretch that it no longer was a question of what place the club would finish but whether it would finish at all.

This is pretty much the atmosphere Bob Kennedy is walking into but it doesn't upset him. He also had some headstrong youngsters with their own ideas when he led the Cubs in 1963, 1964 and part of 1965 and some of those same kids came up with lumps in their throats when Bob Kennedy was let out.

Ron Santo still says, "They don't come much better than Bob Kennedy."

At 47, Kennedy knows this is the job that could make him or break him as far as his managerial future is concerned.

"I did not accept the job immediately," he says. "Something else was pending. When I did accept, Mr. Finely said, 'This is great. I'm sure glad you're going to manage my ball club.' That reception made me feel good. Awfully good."

Open-Minded

Bob Kennedy isn't coming into his new job with many preconceived ideas. He's open-minded, as the saying goes, and he's willing to be shown.

"I don't know too much about the personnel of the ball club," he confesses. "I've been discussing it with Mr. Finley, our scouts and with Luke Apiling, (who succeeded Alvin Dark and finished out the season). I think we have good pitching with depth and we're fairly strong through the middle altough, like most people, we could use a catcher.

"Actually, I'm rather anxious for February to roll around. I look forward to spring training."

Bob Kennedy is more than optimistic.

He doesn't care what people say about Charlie Finley, he ignores them and remains jovial, cheerful and jolly.

One thing you have to say about him. He sure picked the right season for it.

One other thing you have to say: he'll find out.

UCLA Far Out in Front

NEW YORK (UPI)—Unbeaten, unbeatable UCLA, collecting victories and first place votes with consummate ease, received unanimous support from the nation's coaches Tuesday as the top team in college basketball after the fourth week of the 1967-68 season.

For the third week in a row coach Johnny Wooden's Bruins (5-0) were named first on all 35 ballots cast by United Press International's Board of Coaches and racked up a perfect 350 points to easily outdistance runnerup Houston (10-0) in ratings based on games played through Dec. 23.

The remaining eight spots in the top 10 went to Vanderbilt, North Carolina, Indiana, Tennessee, Kentucky, Boston College, St. John's and Kansas.

Despite some minor reshuffling, all of last week's top eight teams remained in that group, but Louisville dropped from ninth to 12th and Davidson fell from 10th to 11th, making room for St. John's and Kansas in the select circle.

UCLA waltzed past previously unbeaten Bradley 109-73 and stunned highly regarded Notre Dame 114-63 last week, raising the nation's longest winning streak to 39 straight.

But the Bruins still lost a bit of their season-long lead over Houston.

Vanderbilt (7-1) lost its first of the year to Florida, but won both games it played in the Vanderbilt Classic to hold onto third place with 223 points, 21 less than last week.

Far back in fourth was North Carolina, which was idle last week, but retained its position in the ratings despite polling only 149 points, 47 fewer than in the third week's balloting.

Indiana (6-0) moved up a notch to fifth, only eight points behind the Tar Heels and Tennessee (4-0) and Kentucky (6-1) also jumped a notch as all three leapfrogged past previously fifth-ranked Boston College, which was stunned by St. John's 92-91 in overtime last week for the Eagles' first loss of the campaign.

Coach Bob Cousy's quintet successfully defended its Boston Garden Christmas tournament crown in its other two games of the week, but still dropped to eighth with 104 points.

The Redmen (6-1) from New York made the biggest move of the week, soaring eight places from their No. 17 ranking of a week ago to ninth largely on the strength of their victory over BC.

Erratic Kansas (6-2) which has bounced all around the top F20, surged upward again this week, advancing from their tie for 13th of last week to 10th. The Jayhawks downed Louisville in double overtime during the week.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The fourth weekly United Press International major college basketball ratings for the 1967-68 season with first place votes and records of games through Dec. 23 in parentheses:

Team	Points
1. UCLA (35) (5-0)	350
2. Houston (10-0)	314
3. Vanderbilt (7-1)	223
4. North Carolina (4-1)	149
5. Indiana (6-0)	141
6. Tennessee (4-0)	130
7. Kentucky (6-1)	122
8. Boston College (5-1)	104
9. St. John's (6-1)	64
10. Kansas (6-2)	61

Second 10—11. Davidson 51; 12. Louisville 30; 13. Utah 29; 14. (tie) New Mexico and Wisconsin 19; 16. Duke 17; 17. (tie) Bradley and Princeton 16; 19. Florida 13; 20. (tie) California and Tulsa 10.

Cage Tournaments to Open Today

By United Press International

The Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden gets a day's jump on the rest of the college basketball tournaments which swing into action throughout the nation this week with Boston College and St. John's competing in the first round today.

Bob Cousy's eighth-ranked BC team opens against Penn State followed by St. John's, rated No. 9, against Syracuse in the second game of the New York afternoon-night doubleheader. Columbia meets West Virginia and inconsistent Louisville, the favorite, takes on LaSalle in the nightcap twinbill.

Lew Alcindor and top-ranked UCLA team seek their 40th consecutive victory Wednesday night in the Los Angeles Classic. The Bruins are favored to run up the second best major college winning streak of all time when they meet Minnesota in the first round. Long Island University and Seton Hall currently are tied with UCLA with 39 consecutive victories apiece. UCLA also has a shot at San Francisco's record of 60 in a row.

UCLA which scored a 114-63 victory over Notre Dame last Saturday, is in the LA tourney along with sixth-ranked Tennessee, Wyoming, Utah State, Iowa, St. Louis and Southern California.

Second-ranked Houston, which takes on UCLA in a Jan. 20 showdown at the Astrodome, plays in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu sarting Wednesday. The Cougars have won all 10 starts, including last Saturday's 94-85 triumph over Nevada Southern. Bradley is expected to provide the toughest competition.

Vanderbilt, rated No. 3, heads a four-team contingent in the Sugar Bowl tourney, which begins Friday. Davidson, ranked No. 11, Memphis State and Michigan State complete the field.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina and unbeaten Utah (8-0) head the field in the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., against Oregon, Oregon State, Princeton, Stanford, Texas and Washington State.

Indiana, rated No. 5, is in the Allid-Sports Classic at Dallas against Southern Methodist, Western Kentucky and California.

Big Eight teams get together in their own tournament at Kansas City, Mo.; and the All-College Tourney brings together Arkansas, Auburn, Brigham Young, Fordham, Idaho, Virginia Tech, Xavier and host Oklahoma City.

In Philadelphia's Quaker City tourney, the field includes Arizona, Duquesne, Penn, Providence, St. Francis (Pa.), Temple, Villanova and Wisconsin.

All told, 67 holiday tournaments get underway this week, 29 of them "major," according to the NCAA.

Dampier Pushes Colonels Win

By United Press International

The Kentucky Colonels have found a capable replacement for injured backcourtman Darel Carrier in Rubin Russell, a recent acquisition from Dallas.

Hitting from the outside, Louie Dampier scored 28 points and Russell 27 in leading Kentucky to a 112-98 victory Monday night in the only American Basketball Association action. It was Russell's first start.

With 2:12 remaining in the game, the Colonels went on a 13-2 spurt after leading 97-95. Jim Hadnot's 24 points and Lavern Tart's 22 paced Oakland.

Kentucky is last in the Eastern Division with an 11-20 record. Oakland, fourth in the West, suffered its 20th loss against 13 victories.

Pampa to Open Play in Hobbs Meet Thursday

The Pampa Harvesters were packing their suitcases today in preparation to leave Wednesday morning for Hobbs, N. M., a place they remember only too well.

The Harvesters, beaten in the finals of this cage tournament a year ago, will be up against some of the toughest competition they've faced this season.

Pampa will open play in the eight-team affair at 6:30 p.m. Thursday when they meet Midland. A victory here would pit them against the winner of the El Paso Jefferson and Abilene Cooper game at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Jefferson is first seeded and Pampa second-seeded in the affair, which has seen host Hobbs win 'em all.

But Hobbs will go into the affair with a 4-1 record and will not be averaging the 100 points per game they were last year when they ripped the Harvesters in the finals.

Packers Have Faith

By United Press International

There is, believe it or not, one "new world" left for the Green Bay Packers to conquer.

No team ever has won three consecutive National Football League championships, but the Packers will have their chance to do it next Sunday when they meet the explosive Dallas Cowboys in Green Bay.

The winner of this game will go on to play the American Football League champion in the Super Bowl on Jan. 14. The Packers, of course, are the defending Super Bowl as well as NFL champions.

The Packers won the NFL's Western Conference title with a methodical 28-7 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Saturday while the Cowboys won the Eastern Conference crown with an impressive 52-14 romp over the Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

The Houston Oilers and Oakland Raiders also meet next Sunday with the AFL title at stake. The Oilers clinched the eastern crown with a 41-10 triumph over the Miami Dolphins Saturday night and the Raiders closed out their season Sunday with a 28-21 win over the Buffalo Bills. The New York Jets beat the San Diego Chargers 42-31 in the other game on a big weekend of pro activity.

Travis Williams scored two touchdowns, one on a 47-yard run that gave the Packers a 14-7 halftime lead and Bart Starr completed 17 of 22 passes for 211 yards. Roman Gabriel, the Rams' star quarterback, was harrassed continuously by the Packer defense and completed only 11 of 31 passes.

Bob Hayes and Don Meredith were the stars for the Cowboys, who led 24-7 at halftime and went on to score the most lopsided victory in NFL divisional playoff history. Hayes scored on an 86-yard pass play with Meredith, returned punts 64 and 68 yards setting up touchdowns and caught a 36-yard pass from Meredith that set up a fourth. Meredith wound up with 10 completions in 12 tries and 212 yards.

Overwhelm Dolphins

Hoyle Granger and Woodie Campbell each scored two touchdowns for the Oilers, who took a 14-3 halftime lead and simply manhandled the Dolphins in the second half. Ken Houston scored a fifth touchdown and John Wittenborn kicked field goals of 29 and 32 yards plus five conversions for Houston.

The Raiders completed their season with a 13-1 record, becoming the first AFL team to go through a season with only one loss, when Hewritt Dixon's one-yard plunge with 2:13 left snapped a 21-21 tie. The Raiders scored their other touchdowns on a 23-yard pass from Daryle Lamonica to Billy Cannon and on fumble recoveries by linebacker Dan Connors and end Carlton Oats.

Joe Namath passed for four touchdowns and set an all-time pro record of 4,008 yards gained passing in one season in leading the Jets over the Chargers. Namath completed 18 of 26 passes for 343 yards as he surpassed the record of 3,747 yards gained passing in one season set this year by Sonny Jurgensen of the NFL's Washington Redskins.

IN SHRINE GAME

Anderson Proves Point

By United Press International

Max Anderson, a 5-foot-8, 180-pounder from Arizona State, hopes his performance in the annual Shrine North-South All-Star football game convinces pro scouts that he can make it with "the big boys."

Anderson, who says a fellow his size can make it among the pros "if he's got the heart," was the North's key runner and shared honors with quarterbacks Greg Landry of Massachusetts and John Cartwright of Navy Monday in the North's 24-0 victory over the South.

As always, the biggest winners in the charity game were the crippled children benefitting from the proceeds of the 17,000 fans who viewed the game in the Orange Bowl.

Anderson didn't score a point but was the driving force in the North's ground attack throughout the contest and his seven-yard dash set up a three-yard touchdown plunge by Dwight Lee of Michigan State in the third period.

Landry, a six-foot, 200-pounder, directed the North on a 48-yard drive in the second period which ended with his two-yard scoring pass to Bob Baltzell of Purdue and led a 93-yard march in the fourth period which ended with a two-yard touchdown plunge by Oscar Reed of Colorado State.

Cartwright, the hero of the Army-Navy game, was at the helm for the North during a 56-yard first-period drive climaxed by a 46-yard field goal by Dale Livingston of Western Michigan. Livingston also kicked all three of the North's extra points.

Drives Cut Off

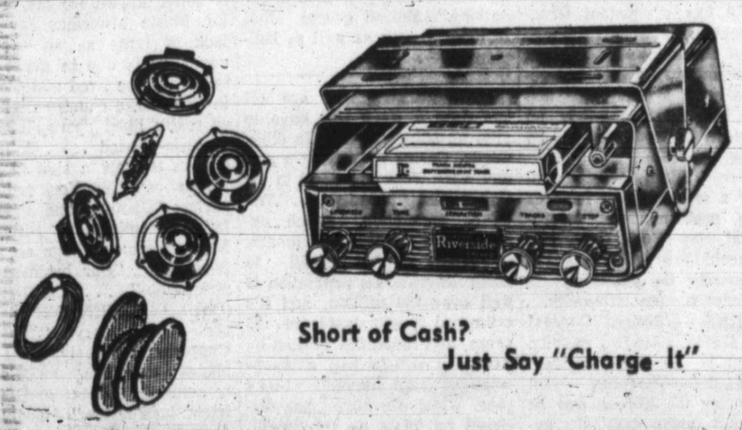

The South penetrated inside the North's 10-yard line twice but the drives were ended when Rebel quarterbacks were thrown for losses trying to pass.

In bowl games played on Saturday, Colorado downed Miami 31-21 in the Bluebonnet Bowl and the North beat the South 23-7 in the Potato Bowl.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Seat Belt Use Declines

The failure of Prohibition, with its companions of gangsterism, corruption and increased consumption of alcohol, should have taught the believers in the use of force in human relations a lesson but, apparently, they haven't learned a thing. Political actionists just don't appear capable of grasping the fact that force and coercion generate a counterforce—resentment and rebellion.

Take the case of automobile seat belts, for example.

The use of seat belts in autos at today's high speeds is, by almost any test, a prudent practice. An accumulating wealth of statistics, gathered by both market place and government surveys, shows that the proper use of properly installed seat belts, especially in high speed driving, reduces the number of deaths and injuries caused by people being thrown out of or tumbled about inside automobiles when highway accidents occur.

Even in downtown and urban driving at slower speeds, the record seems to show that use of the belts cuts death and serious injury rates.

And, until just recently, as long as the installation of seat belts in new cars was optional —that is voluntary—the public seemed to be gradually becoming educated to the wisdom of making use of the safety devices.

Then, the Federal Government got into the act. Seat belts, according to the political and bureaucratic way of "reasoning," were "good" for people; therefore, the people, by crickey, would have seat belts — like it or not. Effective January 1, 1968, all new cars must have seat belts installed when sold under federal law.

Moreover, the automotive industry, seeing the coercive handwriting on the wall, has, in most cases, been installing the belts for some time now. And this, of course, added just that much more to the price the consuming public must pay for cars.

Result? That's right, even before the law becomes effective, the reaction to the use of force and coercion has already set in. An item in the December 11 issue of U.S. News and World Report tells the story and, at the same time, indicates the probable trend.

Although the number of cars equipped with safety belts has increased to nearly two thirds, the item noted, citing the results of a nationwide sampling conducted by the Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee, the use of the belts percentage wise by drivers has declined from a year ago. For example, added U.S. News and World Report, of cars equipped with seat belts in 1966, 60 percent of drivers always used them on long trips; but, for 1967 the number of users has already dropped to 55 percent.

So much for the use of force.

We suppose that the next step the feds will take will be to make it a criminal offense to be caught behind the wheel of a car without a seat belt buckled around one's middle. And THAT, in addition to opening up a real can of legal worms, should be ample excuse for adding thousands of additional coercers to the taxpayer paid payrolls.

Chinese Slant on Taxes

If it's true misery loves company the overburdened American ought to be Happy. He can join a long groaning line stretching back to antiquity.

Taxes have never been popular. A Chinese scholar examining the history of his country in Confucius' time noted:

"There was a tendency for taxes to proliferate and increase, often in hidden form, as each dynasty conceived an urgent need for additional revenue." Somehow, that complaint has a familiar sound.

The same savant also remarked moodily, "Special taxes imposed in time of crisis are seldom repealed."

Times have changed but not the system. How many World War II levies lasted until 1965; More than 30 excise taxes, and heaven knows how many others.

One of the most irritating features of the American tax system is its gross inequality. Louis Eisentein wrote in The Idealogies of Taxation, "Tax legislation commonly derives from private pressures exerted for selfish ends."

If this is the case it follows that those who exert the pressures hope they will not be those who pay the taxes.

James C. Carter, a noted lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, put it very bluntly:

"One class struggles to throw the burden off its shoulders," he said. "If they succeed, it must, of course, fall upon others. Finally the load falls upon those who cannot or will not make a successful effort for relief."

Carter didn't say so but the implication is plain in his remarks. The least powerful pay the taxes. Those with political or financial power are able to achieve success in the struggle to throw off the burden.

There may be some who will not struggle to throw off the burden. The great majority of taxpayers cannot. The don't know the right people.

Why isn't something done?

The Chinese historian had an answer to that centuries ago. "The people no longer know what a just tax is," he complained, "so downtrodden have they become."

The ancient Chinese lack of imagination isn't so difficult to understand; for, trying to imagine a "just tax" is tantamount to conjuring up a circular triangle, honest politics, or dry rain.

Executives by Computer

How's your M. Q.? Mobility Quotient, that is.

Thanks to the computer and the new science of "mobilography," a corporation president can now turn to a scanning board and watch his potential successors scrambling to succeed him, much as he would read the tote board at a race track.

The computer must be properly programmed, of course, says the inventor of mobilography, Dr. Eugene E. Jennings of the University of Michigan. But he says mobilography enabled him to predict nine out of 11 winners in a field of 200 candidates in firms scheduled to select new presidents in 1966.

Executives are moving to the top faster today, says Jennings. The average age of a new president has dropped from 61-63 to 51-53 and the time required to make the climb from the first managerial level has dropped from 29 years to under 20.

Any man who holds the same position in a company for more than five years today hasn't left the starting gate and can just about be scratched out of the executive race, says the professor.

A WARNING!!

From time to time I try to bring to your attention some particular message of national significance. In doing this I hope that I am performing a service of social import, thereby discharging my obligation to society.

Recently I became aware of a trend in many major cities that, if allowed to proceed unheeded and unchecked, could have such serious effects on each of our daily lives that it may well shatter the very roots of our present social structure.

My area of grave concern is this: At certain intersections controlled by traffic signals, motorists are granted permission to make right turns while the red light is on, provided that they are certain the intersection is clear and the action will not be harmful to anyone. Now you may scoff at my concern, but bear with me and consider where this innocent-appearing traffic procedure may lead us.

Here drivers are being told, in effect, "Don't stop just because a red light is glowing — use your own judgment and exercise individual responsibility. We trust you. We don't think you will drive in a manner dangerous to yourself and others."

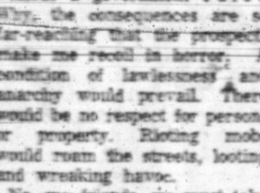

THINK! Think what this can lead to!

If enough of these permissive right turns are allowed, some drivers will go out in search of such intersections and make right turns all day long, controlled by no one but themselves. No one will want to make left turns anymore. Automobile manufacturers, in their lust for more profits, will make cars that only turn to the right. People will get so used to using their own minds in making right turns they will start demanding to be allowed to make left turns, too and to proceed PAST intersections without a government edict. Why, the consequences are so far-reaching that the prospects make me recoil in horror. A condition of lawlessness and anarchy would prevail. There would be no respect for persons or property. Rioting mobs would roam the streets, looting and wreaking havoc.

No, my friends, we must take action to halt this menace while we still have time. We live in a complex society, one that requires controls for the public good. Our population is growing and therefore MORE controls are in order. Let's remove the permissive right turn signs NOW. In addition, let's install traffic signals in the MIDDLE of each block. Pedestrians have the right to cross the streets anywhere they want to. Why should they be forced to walk to the corner? In fact, let's not allow any turns ANYWHERE. If someone wants to turn he can leave town, turn back!

In this way we can provide safety, security and comfort to everyone. No one will be called upon to act on his own judgment or make any decisions for himself. We will proceed ever onward, ever upward, and we will arrive at the point we are striving so hard to reach.

A society where all decisions are made by a few and the masses of the people won't have to think — just follow blindly and obey.

Well, he was on again. I wish somebody would write a new Johnson speech.

This wasn't supposed to be a speech. It was called a news conference. But the newsmen didn't take any notes. They don't need to, in fact, most of them knew the speech better than he did.

In case you missed it don't give it any thought. Did you hear the speech in 1964? Or the State speech last year? If you have heard one you've heard them all.

If memory serves me right he added a couple of mumbles right after the phrase 'model cities' that wasn't there the last time.

Also he mentioned something about the heart transplant in Africa — he would like to have that operation for everybody in the world.

Of course, the bad part about a news conference is that the prompters can ask questions. One feller asked him what he was going to do about crime and riots.

And then do you know what he done? He turned around and asked the news feller what he should do. He kept hounding him to tell him.

Now when you start asking reporters how to run your job then you are in sad shape. I've just got to award him the Dingleberry of the month for that boo-boo.

Most OEO Reform Provisions Axed In Secret Closing Conferences; Political Loophole

ROBERT ALLEN — PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The administration got away with a lot more than is publicly realized in the long-fought-over legislation continuing the battered and scarred anti-poverty program.

A detailed study discloses that most of the tightening and plugging up revisions approved during the measure's progress through Congress either were eliminated entirely or considerably watered down in the secret Senate-House conferences during the closing days of the adjournment rush.

Thanks to the unyielding stand of the House, spending by the Office of Economic Opportunity was cut to $1.773 billion instead of the $2.06 billion sought by the President. Also due to adamant House insistence, state and local authorities will have some control over the turbulent and widely controversial community action agencies.

But with these two major exceptions, the scandal-tarred anti-poverty program emerged practically unscathed. In fact, in a few instances Director Sargent Shriver's latitude was even enlarged.

A particularly significant case of this, in view of next year's elections, is the diluting of Section 603 barring political activity by anti-poverty employes either during or after working hours. As modified, this restriction now applies "only to that portion of their time for which they receive compensation provided directly or indirectly under the authority of this Act."

In other words, anti-poverty workers will be free to engage in politics outside of working hours — a loophole that could prove highly useful to Democratic politicos and candidates.

Also important, the program was authorized to continue for two years instead of one, as in the past. That means the administration will not have to go back to Congress to seek new authority next year — another valuable advantage in a stormy election period.

THE AXED REFORMS — A careful analysis reveals a long list of scuttled revisions, foremost among them the following:

—An amendment by Representative Edward Gurney, R-Fla., overwhelmingly voted by the House 332 to 79, prohibiting the use of anti-poverty funds or personnel to "organize civil disturbances or to defend any person participating in such disturbance against the criminal charges resulting therefrom." As watered down in the secret conferences, this flat ban was eased so that the OEO director can provide "adequate legal assistance (if) not otherwise available for an indigent criminal defendant."

—An amendment by Representative James Garner, D-N.C., decisively approved by the House, barring anti-poverty workers from engaging in "picketing, protests, demonstrations, riot or any similar group activities." In the secret conferences, the effectiveness of this restriction was largely destroyed by the inserion of one word — "unlawful." As a consequence, anti-poverty employes are now free to riot and demonstrate as long as it is tagged "lawful".

—An amendment by Representative John Dellenback, R-Ore., sweepingly adopted by the House, directing the General Accounting Office to make an exhaustive investigation of every aspect of the anti-poverty program, to submit findings by May 1, 1968, and earmarking $2 million of OEO funds for this much-needed examination. But in the secret conferences, this was modified in two key respects: The reporting date was shifted to Dec. 1, 1968, well after the crucial November elections, and the money to make the inquiry was completely eliminated. As a result, to undertake an investigation, GAO will have to specifically ask Congress for the necessary funds, and there is no chance there will be any findings that could adversely affect the Democrats before the balloting.

—An amendment by Representative John Erlenborn, R-Ill., repealing Section 616 under which the OEO director is empowered to juggle funds from one activity to another as he sees fit. In the secret conferences, Erlenborn's provision was junked, and the money switching authority was restored.

—Two amendments by Representative John Ashbrook, R-Ohio; one revoking the director's power to employ "experts" and "consultants" at from $50 to $100 a day, and the other limiting the number of "supergrade" anti-poverty officials. At OEO's Washington office, 49 are drawing salaries ranging from $19,000 to $30,000. In the secret conferences both provisions were axed.

—By Representative William Steiger, R-Wis., an amendment requiring OEO officials to make public all contracts for studies and evaluations, and to reveal their findings. In the secret conferences, this was ditched because, it was explained, it would be "mistreating OEO to require them to hang out their dirty laundry in the form of evaluations paid for by the taxpayers."

As one disgusted minority conferee exclaimed, "How bureaucratic can you get!"

—Also discarded in the secret conferences was a House-approved amendment by Representative John Byrnes, R-Wis., barring participants in anti-poverty programs from also receiving public welfare payments. Under the new law they can continue to draw money from both sources.

SECRET ASPIRATION — Justice Hugo Black, who will be 82 on Feb. 27, harbors an unusual personal ambition.

The Alabaman wants to serve longer on the tribunal than any other jurist.

Record holders so far are famed Chief Justice John Marshall, who was on the bench 34 years and some months; and Justice Stephen Field, a Californian named by President Lincoln, a few months less than Marshall.

Black, appointed by President Roosevelt on Aug. 12, 1937, is serving his 31st year. His goal is 35 years.

In general good health, Black has undergone two cataract operations since 1966. He still is an enthusiastic tennis player, and is on the courts whenever his work and weather permit. At his age and with his long service, Black can retire with full pay whenever he wants to, but doesn't give it a thought.

His eye is fixed on that 35-year longevity record.

Newly-installed Justice Thurgood Marshall, first Negro on the tribunal, has an all-white staff. His secretary, who has been with him a long time, is white, and his two law clerks, whom he took over from his predecessor, Justice Tom Clark, also are white.

Chief Justice Earl Warren has taken off 25 pounds by rigorous dieting.

He feels better and looks better, but has a constant struggle keeping his weight down. Most of the time he adheres meticulously to his diet, but occasionally at a party eats and drinks heartily and winds up putting on five pounds in an evening.

Justice William Douglas will deliver a series of four lectures on the problems of "federalism" at New York University in March. The lectures will subsequently be published in book form by the university.

SPARKS — Retired General James Gavin, a leading dove on Vietnam, is carefully not mentioning the interesting fact that during the Korean war he advocated using tactical nuclear weapons against the Communists, and urged U. S. intervention with an airlift in the Hungarian uprising in the 1950s. At that time Gavin was still in the service and one of the most militant of the Pentagon war hawks. . . .

Dictator Fidel Castro is tightening the screws still further on Cuban workers. He has ordered that all workers who are off two days a week will have to give up one of them. In other words, Castro is making a six-day work week universal in his Communist "paradise". . .The U. S. population, which exceeded 200 million last month, is running a poor second to Latin America. Its population is well over 250 million, and it's estimated it will double in 25 years, and reach 600 million by 2000. . . Russia had a disappointing grain harvest this year. While the Soviet has disclosed no totals as yet, intelligence experts have compiled figures revealing state purchases of grain were 57 million tons, some 18 million tons less than were bought in last year's bumper crop. On the basis of these compilations, it is figured the total grain harvest was quite a bit less than in 1966. It will be no surprise if some leading Russian heads roll.

HUNT FOR TRUTH

By H. L. HUNT

INJURING THE POOR

Abraham Lincoln once said: "Property is desirable, is a positive good in the world. . . Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently to build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence." This wise statement by one of the greatest Americans of all time should be carefully studied by the federal bureaucrats who plan and promote the War on Poverty.

The War on Poverty takes property away from those who have earned it and gives it to those who have not. In the short term, it may appear that the poor have been helped, but such help is illusory. When the right to private property is violated, no one's property is safe. Those who receive unearned wealth become totally dependent on those who hand it out. Men are told in effect that they can't care of themselves, so they cease to try. Although the collectivists refuse to face the facts, this is what has happened in every completely socialized country. The famines in Russia, Red China, and India are not accidents; they are the result of a philosophy which discourages productivity.

When the producers of a society are deprived of an ever-increasing part of their earnings, their ability to increase their productive capacity and thereby increase employment opportunities is lessened. Again the poor suffer because fewer and fewer jobs are available. If the government would encourage productivity by allowing the producer to keep what he has earned, all of society, rich and poor alike, would benefit.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Can one rationally reason without first having an assumption or postulate from which to compare and thus rationally draw conclusions?

ANSWER: We cannot imagine how anybody can draw mathematical or rational conclusions without having a premise from which to start.

If one doesn't know the multiplication table or know how to add or subtract, it's hard to see how he could rationally solve mathematical questions.

Just so in reasoning on moral and ethical questions and what is right and what is wrong, it seems impossible to know the difference between right and wrong, justice and injustice, without having a standard from which to compare. If your standard is right to begin with and if your conclusion is in harmony with that, then it is just and fair and right.

But these postulates or assumptions are always subject to examination.

And if there are any exceptions to this postulate, it is worthless. There is no principle or postulate or axiom that has an exception. Once an exception is found, then you know the assumption or postulate is not true.

One often hears the phrase "It takes the exception to prove the rule," which has come to be generally incorrectly understood to mean that the exception is proof of the validity of the rule. This of course, is in error. That statement comes from the fact that it takes the exception to TEST the rule, and when there is an exception, there is no principle, no rule, no postulate, from which to reason.

We can think of no exception to the postulate or moral principle, "Thou Shalt Not Steal," individually, or collectively or legally by consent of the government.

Most people accept this for individuals, but they think the group or the majority has a right to do things that no individual has a moral right to do. But if it is an axiom, it applies to individuals, to groups and to government.

As Thomas Jefferson said, "I know of but one code of morality, whether it be for men or for nations." And of course that includes groups as well as individuals.

Pull Up A Chair

By FRANK JAY MARKEY

Elevators are the safest form of transportation, according to statistics. A recent study shows they handle four times as many passengers as airlines, buses, subways and railroads. Last year the 142,000 elevators in the U. S. carried an estimated 32 billion passengers 540 million miles. The accident rate was only one occurrence for every 97 million passengers and most of the mishaps occurred at the elevator's entrance, not while it was in motion.

Today's smile: A woman called the police to report her car had been stripped by thieves. She told the desk sergeant: "They've stolen the steering wheel, the brake pedal, the accelerator and even the dashboard." The Officer listened patiently and said he would send a cruiser to investigate. A few minutes later the woman called again and said: "Don't bother to send anyone. I got into the back seat of my car by mistake."

Pablo Picasso is the high priest of abstract art these days, but he had a good education in the classic forms before he branched out in the modernistic field. Like all other great artists he was a child prodigy who mastered all of the traditional styles in his boyhood. This enabled him to pass the entrance examination at the Fine Arts Academy in Barcelona when he was only 14, an examination that usually lasted a month. He repeated the same feat a few years later at the Royal Academy in Madrid. His present style is a gimmick that pays him well, and if he had to he could emulate many of the old masters in the traditional forms.

Thoughts while shaving: London is shrinking like the rest of the British Empire. Once rated the world's largest city, Greater London comprising an area within 15 miles of New York's center now has a population of nearly 8.5 million. The area within 15 miles ofNew York's Times Square has a population of more than 10 million . . . . Columbus is credited with having discovered America, but in his voyages he never saw the mainland and only visited the islands offshore. Ponce de Leon was the first European to land on this continent in 1513, about 20 years after Columbus' first voyage. De Leon called the place Florida and the name has remained since. . . . Handel was one of the most prolific and successful of all operatic composers, but only the famed "Largo" and a couple of other arias are heard these days. He is better known for his oratorios. Music historians say his lack of fame as an operatic composer is due in great part to the fact he lived and worked in England, a country that never really liked opera, but was oratorio-minded . . . A friend told us he saw a sign in the window of a New York reducing parlor: "Come in and shoo the fat." Recently in Pittsfield, Mass., we saw a sign on a refuse truck: "Our business is picking up." . . . . .The Defiance (Ohio) CRESCENT-NEWS reported in a story: "The new company has 11 types of airplanes available, and seven commercial pilots and three fright instructors." Hardly enough to get the company off the ground.

Country Editor speaking: "It's easy to reduce if you eat only the things you don't like.

A thought for the day—British novelist George Eliot (Marian Evans) once said, "Blessed is the man who, with nothing to say, abstains from giving in words evidence of that fact."

Television In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Violence in films is the subject of the December issue of the Journal of the Producers Guild of America, and one of the articles by David Levy, novelist and former network television executive.

Levy recalls in his article: "The early success of nationwide television, and the competition of foreign films, induced Hollywood virtually to scrap its production code. Films heavily loaded with intimate sex, brutality and violence, were produced for big screens and offered to the paying public—films quite different from programs offered on home television.

"The television networks and stations responded by redoing the television code. Now the cycle is complete. Many of those same films, once considered unlikely prospects for television, are now broadcast with only minor deletions of the too provocative or excessively violent."

Later in his article, Levy asks: "Has it not become disturbingly pertinent that in a time of increasing crime, domestic violence, and war, some greater caution in the use of violence in entertainment might be a wise course to pursue? This becomes even more acutely disturbing when we view the real events of war (broadcast often within hours of the actual action) and witness the terrifying impact of domesti violence as such acts occur."

Society Becomes Immunized

"Our society may be in very real danger of becoming immunized against violence . . . in any given week dozens of people 'die' on our own living room floors, knifed, beaten, or shot by pistol, rifle, or shotgun. Is it any wonder that thoughtful observers are concerned that many who are impressionable may grow complacent about real violence?"

Levy suggests that "standards of common decency, good taste, courtesy, virtue, moderation, etc., are under assault . . . with children spending more time with television viewing than they spend in school, are we not possibly helping to create a society that carries with it its own seeds of discontent and violence, and a rejection of all we have cherished?

The time is 5 a.m. EST

18t add 027 x x x cherished.

"That is why each segment of activity which plays a dynamic role in shaping our society had better take time to ponder voluntary moves that will provide for more self-restraint. The impact of what is permissible on television cannot be equated with what is acceptable in a motion picture theatre or on the stage, for how can one equate the needs of 56 million homes with the needs of a few thousand theatres?"

Florida has a total land area of 54,282 square miles and a total water area of 4,298 square miles.
