House Slash in Foreign Aid Fund Is Termed 'Cynical Reversal' in Policy

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) today called the House cut in foreign aid funds a "cynical reversal" of American foreign policy, done through "back door" and with "meat axe technique."

He said it is a dangerous one which "guts the enterprise" of strengthening Europe against communism as "insurance" the United States will not have to fight another great war.

With these words, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee launched a fight to get from Congress the funds he believes are necessary for foreign aid. He spoke them before the Senate Appropriations Committee at the opening of its hearing on the House-passed foreign aid appropriations bill.

What the House did is this: The administration asked $6,533,000,000 for a 12-months program, and said it had to be spread over 15 months. Secretary of State Marshall has said that would mean cutting European aid from a recovery program to mere relief.

Vandenberg went before the Senate Appropriations Committee simply as a witness. Seated by his side was Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Senate Democratic leader and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. Directly across the long committee table was Chairman Bridges (R-NH) of the appropriations group.

Spectators filled the small hearing room to the overflowing.

In slow, majored tones, Vandenberg read a prepared statement which concluded:

"I beg of you — for the sake of the hopes by which free men live — that you give ECA (Economic Cooperation Administration) a fair chance. Its mere creation already has paid heavy dividends. I ask it for what I profoundly believe to be the national interest of our own United States."

While Vandenberg was testifying, Rep. Taber (R-NY) got out a statement saying he has received over a thousand letters and messages about the House cuts and they run 2-1 in favor of them. Taber is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee which recommended the cuts. Taber added:

"I will fight to the end to retain this reduction in the bill and resist all the special pressures which are being mustered to make a treacherous raid on the American taxpayer."

Vandenberg said the House cuts in the Economic Cooperation Administration have been variously estimated from one half to two billion dollars. He said the latter figure "is probably closer to the net effect."

He said that in effect Congress had voted last spring to undertake the job of helping Europe back to economic health, but now the House was refusing the money to back up that policy.

Earnestly, Vandenberg said the declared policies of Congress should not be vetoed in that manner and branded "before the world as capricious, unreliable and impotent."

HST Offers Challenge to GOP Congress

Aboard Truman Train Enroute to Spokane, Wash., —(AP)— President Truman today challenged the Republicans to keep Congress in session until price control, housing and farm bills are passed.

He made a slashing attack on the Republican Congressional leadership, mentioning the opposition party for the first time since he left Washington last Thursday on a western tour.

The attack came in an address at Butte, Mont., last night.

The President charged that Congress, under Republican domination, had wrecked price control, stymied the housing program, virtually abolished the Labor Department, tried to tear up the Employment Act of 1946, torn the budget apart, and practiced "economy in the reverse."

Congress weakened the Labor Department, Mr. Truman declared, after the Republicans had said in their platform "they were going to make a strong Labor Department." The Republican platform, he added, "is the platform of the Congress now."

"One of our candidates for president has said the best way to control prices was not to buy," Mr. Truman said. He did not identify the candidate, but added, "I guess he would let you starve. I don't know. I am not in that class."

The challenge to Congress to stay on the job was put in these words:

"If this Congress goes away without passing an agricultural bill, without passing a housing bill, without doing something about prices, then this Congress has not done anything for the country.

"They should stay there until they get those things done."

He will be the guest at Olympia tonight and tomorrow night of Gov. Mon. C. Wallgren, frequently talked of as a candidate for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Mr. Truman got out of bed at Missoula, Mont., and, clad in pajamas and robe, greeted the

Pampa News Asks 'Straw Ballot' Vote On Alternatives Left to Commission

There is a difference of $85,000 between Gray County's available funds for the proposed 100-bed hospital and the lowest bid submitted by the building contractors. The Court has no way to meet this difference except by asking you, the taxpayers, for a bond issue in that amount. This would be done by an election. The alternative to that is to reduce the bed-capacity of the hospital from 100 to 70. According to the Hospital Board this would not meet the needs of this county. You are asked for an opinion as to what the Court should do. Fill out the following form and mail it to Hospital Editor, Pampa Daily News, Pampa, Texas. Signing this straw ballot is not binding, and your name will not be revealed.

NEWS RECEIVES BOND BALLOTS

Ballots from The Pampa News' straw vote on whether an additional $85,000 bond issue should be floated to raise funds for equipping and furnishing Gray County's Highland General Hospital or reduce the institution's size to a 70-bed hospital were still coming in and being tabulated this morning.

Several voters commenting on the additional delay that would be caused by the time needed to call an election and hold it sent legal authorities scrambling through Texas Election Laws to learn how much of a delay would be incurred. They found, according to state law, that the County Commissioners Court can call such an election to be held within 15 days after it had received a petition from qualified voters asking that such an election be held.

It was learned yesterday that such a petition will be circulated should The News' straw poll indicate that the bond issue would pass if brought to an election. Results of the straw poll, as tabulated by noon Friday, will be exhibited to the joint meeting of the County Commissioners Court and Hospital Board on Friday afternoon.

As the situation now stands, the Commissioners Court is ready to go on the hospital's construction, but are undetermined whether to reduce the hospital's size or call the additional $85,000 bond issue election.

The low bid of $837,708 was submitted last Friday afternoon by the Harmon Construction Co. of Oklahoma City. The amount now on hand coupled with the federal government's participation will just meet the construction but leaves nothing for equipping the 100-bed institution. To build and operate the hospital at a 100-bed capacity, county commissioners and Hospital Board members figured the overall cost will amount to approximately $1,014,000. Government aid is also counted on for the additional expense of equipping the hospital with beds, operating table, X-ray machines, laundry, and kitchen equipment, obstetrical equipment and surgical tools as well as office equipment and hospital room furnishings. All of this is without the fancy frills that can be done without until the hospital begins to pay its own way and additional funds become available.

Today will be the last time the straw ballot blank will appear in The News columns for the benefit of those who may have put off filling them out and mailing, or bringing, them to The News office. As stated above the ballit results will be published but names will be kept confidential.

Streetcorner opinion has been found to vary on the question, although, most commenters declare the county needs a full 100-bed-capacity hospital while others assert they will be lucky to get even the 70-bed hospital.

County officials, speaking off the record, indicated when queried by reporters, that their final decision would be guided to a great extent by the straw ballot returns Friday afternoon. All bids were submitted on the basis that the Commissioners Court would have 30 days to accept or reject any and all bids.

One thing apparently seems certain — the hospital at long last

IN TRUE BUFFALO BILL FASHION—

'Buff' and 'Mommy' Cody Make Many Friends During Stay in County Jail

Lawton, Okla., may have its Jesse James, but Pampa has its "Buffalo Bill"—or had.

"Buff" hit town early last week, after detaching himself from a carnival, and started in on his own. The five-foot figure with his flowing iron gray hair and his equally diminutive wife, whom he affectionatley calls "Mommy," opened their show in front of the former site of Peg's Cab, Foster and Francis, where he put on several acts of acrobatics, balancing and tricks with the Australian bull whip. But, Bill and "Mommy" ran into difficulties after accepting the generous offer of some local citizens to reside in their chicken house. Then Buff and "Mommy" disappeared and so, claimed the locals, did five of their chickens and a suitcase. A charge of theft was filed by Lizzie and William Garrett of E. Craven. The police radio went to work. The two—Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cody—were picked up by Borger Police, and the Gray County Sheriff's Department made a trip to the Gasser City.

Lodged in the County Jail to await trial, the couple vigorously denied ever having stolen anything. In addition none of the peace officers were able to find the missing suitcase or any of the chickens, but Borger authorities claimed to have found several feathers in Buff's duffle. Now Buff owned an Indian headdress, all trimmed with feathers and the like, and officers discovered the feathers found in his duffle matched those of his Red Man's bonnet.

The case came to trial and the prosecuting witnesses were called before the court to testify against the show couple. However, the prosecuting witnesses got into a wrangle and the case was postponed until Monday. Nobody showed up for trial, but the Codys. It was again postponed until yesterday afternoon and still no trial. Sheriff's Department officials were disgusted. So was the judge and the county attorney.

Peace officers declared: "They didn't steal those chickens anymore than we did."

Late yesterday afternoon the old couple were turned out and the charges against them ordered dismissed.

'Ol Bill and "Mommy" made quite a few friends during their stay with the county and even posed for pictures shortly after their release.

Bill, who claims to be the nephew of the original Buffalo Bill Cody, told reporters that while Buffalo Bill was his uncle he had never seen him and verified the fact that the old frontiersman, when he knew he was dying, ordered his boots brought to him and put on his feet with his two six guns at his side. The fabulous pony express rider truly died with his boots on and was later buried on Lookout Mountain in Colorado.

The modern "Buffalo Bill" added he was born in Hollis, Okla., and plans to go to Borger to seek a part in a rodeo with his show. On his curbside shows he passes the hat for collections. Some of the collections are rather slim for the buckskin-clad, booted little man and "Mommy."

Sheriff's deputies gave the Codys a little coin of the realm yesterday as Buff called, "Come on Mommy, let's go." So Mommy picked up the luggage and duffle and followed Bill out of the courthouse and on toward Borger.

Armistice Becomes Effective Friday

CAIRO—(AP)—Arabs and Jews replied today to the United Nations mediator's proposal for a four-week truce in Palestine. A Trans-Jordan spokesman said all Arab states accepted unconditionally, and the President of Israel indicated the Jews would accept.

The Arabs replied well before the deadline set by the mediator. The Jewish reply, probably because of communications difficulties, arrived from Tel Aviv 50 minutes after the deadline.

Foreign Minister Fawzi Pasha Mulki of Trans-Jordan announced in Amman that all Arab states accepted unconditionally Count Folke Bernadotte's nine-point armistice plan, proposed to become effective at 1 a.m. (EST) Friday. In Paris, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of Israel, told newsmen "we are, in general, disposed to accept a truce."

The Arab answer to the United Nations mediator's proposal was delivered to Bernadotte in Cairo (at 5:30 a. m., EST), 90 minutes before the deadline set for replies. The text of the reply was not disclosed here immediately.

In Trans-Jordan, Fawzi Pasha said there would be no difficulty from the Arab side in beginning the truce Friday morning, as Bernadotte proposed.

Count Bernadotte declined to say whether the Zionist reply had been received in Cairo by the deadline. He said there would be no further news until early evening. This indicated he was allowing several hours for his advices to reach interested authorities and the U. N. at Lake Success before making any public statement.

Egyptian Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha told reporters the Arab reply already has been sent to Arab delegations at Lake Success.

While the Israeli cabinet met in Tel Aviv said it was feared Egyptian planes bombed the central business and residential sections of that city. A dispatch from Tel aviv said it was feared casualties were heavy.

Jewish Army headquarters said that during the night Israeli planes bombed Arab artillery positions at a former radar station near Kfar Biddu and Nebi Samwil, from which shells had been jurled at Jerusalem.

While the truce was being considered, fighting continued in the south of the coastal route to Tel Aviv, where the Jews have part of an Egyptian force encircled, and in the north at the Arab triangle of strength.

Ross Appeal Is Up Again

AUSTIN —(AP)— Oral arguments in the appeal of Dr. Lloyd I. Ross from the death sentence were scheduled before the Court of Criminal Appeals here today.

Dr. Ross, San Antonio surgeon, was convicted of murder in the death of Mrs. Gertrude York, 34, one of four members of the Willard York family slain on a Comal County country road May 22, 1947.

Defense attorneys had based their case in trial court on a plea of insanity. The trial was held at La Grange after failure to select a jury in Comal County.

Besides Mrs. York, the 43-year-old doctor had also been charged with the rifle slaying of her husband, Willard H. York, 36, San Antonio investment broker; their son, John, 9, and York's mother, Mrs. Mary York, 67. They were slain as they were driving to church from their ranch home in Comal County.

The Ross and York families had been friends for years. The defense sought to show during the trial that Ross "cracked up" after he lost his savings, about $150,000, which he had entrusted to York for investment.

PREVIEW OF NEW MODEL FORD STAGED

NEW YORK —(AP)— The new model Ford was unveiled today in a strictly private preview, and you would never know that she is the great granddaughter of old tin lizzie. (see pictures page 2.)

The car is lighter, lower, longer and more expensive than old models. Interior and exterior color is imaginative, but there is a marked reduction in the use of flashy chrome finishing inside and out that characterized so many post-war automobile models.

Private unveiling ceremonies took place in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on Park Avenue. The car goes on display June 18 in showrooms of 6,500 Ford dealers.

What strikes the eye immediately is the styling. It's described as "functional," with a low silhouette which is unbroken from the blunt nose to the fenderless rear. A balance was achieved by moving the body forward five inches to cradle it between the wheels.

Mechanical improvements are stressed by Ford engineers who made scores of changes such as rubber engine mountings to reduce vibration, a 10 percent increase in gasoline mileage in normal operation and a 25 percent improvement with the optional engine overdrive.

The style change is emphasized by the large windshield and windows, a maximum of 20 square feet of glass. Color choice is wide and vivid in label bayview blue metallic, birch gray, sea mist green, Arabian green, colony blue, gun metal gray metallic, midland maroon metallic, black, fez red and Miami cream. Interior fabric also departs from tradition with a gray tweed mixture with a blue stripe, green striped broadcloth, or mohair in a green and maroon stripe and a green and gray stripe.

For the mechanically minded, here are a few specifications of the new 1949 model with 1948 comparisons in parenthesis:

Wheelbase 114 inches (114), weight 3,174 pounds (3,414), overall length 196.75 inches (196.08), maximum width 71.7 inches (73.25), height 62.75 inches (66.15), V-8 engine displacement 239 cubic inches (239), six-cylinder displacement 226 cubic inches (226), V-8 horsepower 100 (100), six horsepower 95 (90), brakes hydraulic (hydraulic), tire size 6.00 x 16 (6.00 x 16).

Mrs. George Lowe Dies at Home

Mrs. Clara Isabelle Lowe, 60, died at her home 10 miles south of Pampa at 11 a.m. yesterday. She was the wife of George Lowe, who has been employed by the Skelly Oil Company for the past 20 years.

Mrs. Lowe was born Oct. 4, 1887, in Willow Point, Tex., and has lived in the Pampa vicinity for the past 22 years. She has been a life-long member of the Baptist Church.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Rudy Mac Lowe of Pampa, and Sgt. Walter Lowe of the U. S. Army; by two brothers, W. N. Koeninger, Duncan, Okla., and A. C. Koeninger, Plainview, Tex.; by three sisters, Mrs. Mary Beck, Temple, Okla., Mrs. Evelyn Strickland, Springtown, Tex., and Mrs. M. C. Franklin, Boonesville, Tex.; and by two granddaughters.

The body will remain at the Clegg Funeral Home until the funeral services, which will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church, with the Rev. Douglas Carver officiating. The body will then be taken to Mrs. Lowe's birthplace, Willow Point, Tex., for burial Friday.

Pallbearers will be W. W. Hughes and Dave Ray of Kellerville; C. B. McTyre and Gus Rice of Pampa; and M. N. Osborne and R. W. Talley of Skellytown.

Harvest to Begin Here About June 17

Early varieties of wheat are being harvested at present, and it is anticipated that the main swing of harvesting in Gray County will begin about June 17, County Agent Ralph Thomas said today.

"The early varieties will nearly be finished up this week. Main harvesting will be about ten days earlier this year because of the recent rain followed by the extremely hot spell," Thomas added.

Bertie M. Vaught, farmer northwest of Pampa, delivered the first load of 1948 wheat harvested in Gray County, to the E. F. Tubb Grain Company, Friday. His wheat is yielding about 10 bushels to the acre and testing 60, the elevator reported.

The first load of wheat harvested in the Kingsmill area was delivered to the Barnett Elevator yesterday.

The wheat, harvested on the Carl Smith farm three miles south of Kingsmill, was averaging 15 bushels to the acre and testing 60.

Smith, who is operating his own combine, delivered two loads of 150 and 160 bushels to the elevator yesterday.

"Only one truck load of wheat has been unloaded in McLean, S. R. Jones, operator of the Paul Allison Company elevator announced today.

Wheat around McLean is still green as a whole and will probably not be ready for harvest until about June 25, Jones said.

The one truck load delivered averaged nine bushels to the acre and tested 63 with 14 percent moisture.

Harvesting of wheat will be staggered as to time in this area, according to L. P. Fort, manager of the Texas Employment Commission in Pampa. It is known that at least 1,500 acres will be harvested this week near White Deer. Another farmer from Roberts County plans to harvest 40 acres this week, while the same farmer has 1,000 acres in Gray County that will not be ready until June 20 or later.

Harvesting will get underway in Hemphill, Roberts and Wheeler Counties about the 20th to 25th of June, Fort estimates.

"There is no foreseeable shortage of equipment or labor," Fort says. "The local Employment Office has been swamped with laborers the past two weeks, who are applying for both industrial and agricultural work. About an average of 300 people each day of the present week have contacted the office seeking work."

The Texas Employment Commission is handling placement of harvest machinery and labor this year, channeling information over

Premier of Turkey and Cabinet Quit

ANKARA, Turkey —(AP)— The government of Premier Hasan Saka collapsed today under harsh fire from critics of its domestic economic policies.

Foreign policy played no part in the disputes which led up to the Saka cabinet's unexpected resignation early this morning. Turkey is receiving American aid under the Truman doctrine, intended to protect Greece and Turkey from Communist pressure.

President Ismet Inonu accepted the cabinet resignation but immediately asked Saka to form a new government. Informed political sources said the new cabinet probably would have new ministers of economics, labor, commerce and perhaps of agriculture. Necmeddin Sadak is expected to continue as foreign minister.

The President instructed the cabinet to continue the administration of the nation until the new government is chosen. Informed quarters said the new government probably would not be completed before the end of the week.

Saka has been premier since last September, when the cabinet of Premier Recep Peker fell in a similar dispute. Saka had been foreign minister in the Peker government and as such helped set up the arrangements for the $100,000,000 American aid program.

Shortages of staple foodstuffs, charges of irregularities in the export of grains and the failure of the government to adjust the weak economic structure of the nation combined to force today's cabinet upheaval.

One of the loudest complaints, and the most frequently heard, concerned the wheat shortage. Normally, Turkey produces more wheat than she consumes, but recently she has been importing grain to meet consumer demands.

In the Grand National Assembly last week a formal report blamed this situation on excessive export permits granted by Atif Inan, the commerce minister under Peker.

Briton Sums Up Importance Of German Reconstruction

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Writer

A British general was talking with newspapermen in Berlin the other day when he dropped a remark that must have jolted even those professional shock absorbers.

He put it into two sentences: Yet those two sentences probably are more important than all the thousands of words that went into, and accompanied, the recommendations for unifying Germany which were announced Monday. This is what General Sir Brian Robertson told the correspondents:

"Just as we are a Christian, civilized people, the Germans are also a Christian, civilized people. They should be treated accordingly."

Assuming that the general was expressing official British policy—and it would be difficult to assume otherwise considering his position—that is a statement of tremendous magnitude. General Robertson is the head of the British Control Commission in Germany.

Let your mind go back three years to the summer of 1945.

In entering Germany, General Eisenhower announced: "We come as conquerors not as liberators."

American soldiers were forbidden to "fraternize," as the saying was, with German girls. At that time, German girls were neither "Christians" nor "civilized."

At Dachau and Auschwitz, the corpses were found, piled up like cordwood, the four powers were rushing to establish the tribunal that finally brought Goering and Keitel and the others to Nuernberg.

That was only three years ago.

But today, if General Robertson's statement can be taken as a statement of policy, all this is past, done and forgotten. It is forgiven. The German people, as of today, stand absolved of all war guilt. Henceforth, they are to be treated as equals.

It seems very unlikely that this was an isolated pronouncement. More probably it is directly connected with the announcement of the London conference recommendation for Germany.

The conference has concluded that "German reconstruction is essential to the well being of Europe."

The conference also noted that Germany needs a responsible German government. Without such a government, no democratic processes can come into being nor can the full effect of the Marshall Plan be realized.

So, American, British and French delegates have advanced a plan to unify Western Germany, establish a supervised German government, and start the economic engines again.

But more important, there must be a foundation for this in a new status for the German people. The Germans must be induced to work willingly and with a purpose, which they would never do so long as the status of a conquered people, much less the policeman—and—criminal pattern, remains.

Three years after VE day, the Germans are coming back into the family of nations.

They should be very grateful to the Russians. It is Russian obstructionism and intractability that made this step necessary for the western powers.

Gates said he thought the Texans took his remarks in ill grace. Now, he is certain.

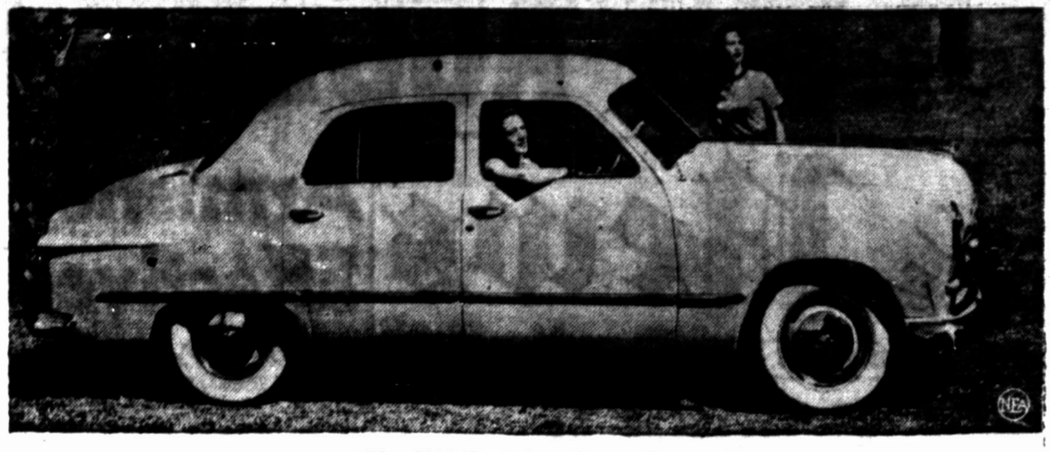
An expressman called at Gates' office with a collect parcel. He paid. The expressman lugged in the parcel—a cage.

Inside was an armadillo. Gates dubbed it "Blue Bonnet" and shipped it to the Little Rock Zoo.

Nomination of Truman Is Set

WASHINGTON — (AP) Missouri's Gov. Phil M. Donnelly will place Harry S. Truman's name before the Democratic National Convention next month as a candidate for the party's nomination for President.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D-R.I.), Democratic national chairman, made the announcement Saturday.



The 1949 Ford four-door sedan

RADICAL CHANGE — These are the first pictures released of the new 1949 Ford cars. They show a radical change from previous models, featuring a sweping silhouette so low that rear fenders have been eliminated. Front seat widths have been increased six inches and the rear seats nearly eight inches. The 114-inch wheelbase is the same as in the 1948 model. Top picture shows the four-door sedan, featuring increased windshield visibility. At right is the front view, showing the air-scoop grille. The convertible, below, has full fender-width body. Some of the new models will be shown at the Rose Motor Co. here on June 18.

Symington Trip to Texas Focuses Attention on Corpus Naval Base

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The recent trip of Air Secretary Stuart Symington to Texas focused attention on the Naval Air Base at Corpus Christi.

The odd part of it is that the base does not come under his jurisdiction — not now at any rate.

Symington's real reason for visiting Corpus Christi was in the nature of a tribute to Rep. John E. Lyle of that city in recognition for his services to the armed forces. The Air Force chief had flown down to Texas to inspect several airfields which are under his command.

When the big four-motored plane carrying him roared over Corpus, Symington reportedly glued his eyes to the window and expressed awe at the size and efficient layout of the $100,000,000 Naval air installation.

Enroute to Texas he was in communication with top officials Randolph Field at San Antonio an air academy on an even footing with West Point and Annapolis.

Traveling with him were several Texas congressmen, including Lyle and Rep. Paul Kilday of San Antonio. Kilday is author of pending legislation to establish Randolph as "The U. S. Air Academy."

The bill has been endorsed by Symington and Kilday has expressed hope that if it gets caught in the jam of the closing days of the present Congress, it will at least be in a position for prompt approval early next year.

That is where the Naval Base at Corpus Christi enters the Air Force picture.

If Randolph Field is made the air academy, units now in training there will have to move. What with the 70-group Air Force just authorized by Congress, the question of finding a sufficient number of top-rate fields becomes of keen concern to Symington.

All of which pleases Lyle no end, because a year ago he was hard put to keep the Navy from virtually abandoning the Corpus Christi air center.

During the war it had established an amazing record in turning out skilled Naval air pilots. But with the fleet reduced to a fraction of its former size there was little use for its facilities. Through the efforts of Lyle and Senator Tom Connally, who took the matter up with every high Washington official including President Truman, it was agreed to keep a force on duty at Corpus in assembly and repair shops.

The question that now undoubtedly will be discussed in top defense brackets, and probably be put up to Defense Secretary James Forrestal or President Truman to decide, is whether Corpus will serve better in the future as a Naval or an Air Force base.

Around the Capital:

Some of the young fry living in one of Washington's big modern apartment developments are becoming indoctrinated as Texans.

Jack Rutledge, former Brownsville newspaperman, who was transferred here from the Dallas office of The Associated Press, is responsible.

He and his wife have conspired, with the help of science, to see that the youngsters living near them get properly grounded in Texas folk lore and atmosphere. They have a television set, and every evening they have several youthful visitors who come in to see a Western movie.

After the televised movie, the kids browse through Texas books, pictures, and miscellaneous items the Rutledges have in a room furnished and decorated in Western ranch style. They play from a large album of cowboy musical records. Incidentally, the apartment development is McLean Gardens, owned and operated by Dallas business interests.

A Texas girl, Miss Phyllis Hoyland, 18, formerly of San Juan, will sing the Star Spangled Banner when the Democrats open their national convention in Philadelphit July 12.

Through the efforts of Rep. Milton West of Brownsville and others she was selected, an honor seldom given to any but already nationally-known professional singers.

Miss Hoyland came here from Texas several years ago with her mother, who went to work in the offices of a Maryland congressman. The Maryland delegation also helped in getting the Democratic National Committee to choose Miss Hoyland. A soprano, she has been studying music in Baltimore.

Recent visitors included: Tom Craddock of Seymour; G. A. Tunnel, Stephenville, and Raymond Hampel of McGregor, all here conferring on rural electrification problems affecting REA cooperatives in their part of the state.

The board on geographic names now is considering a proposal that the second highest peak in Texas be called Mount Livermore. The 8,382-foot peak, midway between Fort Davis and Valentine, long has been known by that name for Lieut. Col. William Roscoe Livermore, a Massachusetts West Pointer who directed Army engineers' surveys in Texas in the 1890s.

The tallest peak in Jeff Davis County, it also has been listed, on various maps, as Apache Peak, Bald Peak, Boulder Peak, Crown Mountain and Old Baldy.

The board will make its decision on or after June 24.

From Mink Mother To Foster-Mom Cat

CHICAGO —(AP)— Five baby minks, whose mother died last Monday, a day after they were born, have a foster-mother—a cat already busy caring for her three newly-born kittens.

Joseph Zona of suburban Chicago Heights didn't know what to do for the five orphan minks after the mother mink died. Then he thought of the mother cat at the home of his neighbor, Mario Caruso.

With Caruso's permission, Zona brought the mother cat and the three kittens, who also were born last Sunday, to his home and put the five minks in with them.

Nobody Loves Forever

By Margaretta Brucker

Copyright by Arcadia House, Inc.; Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Jessica Blake has almost forgotten the gay, carefree life she once knew in the drab, monotonous existence she shares with her husband's mother and sister, Lucy, while she waits for Tom Blake to return home from overseas. The only bright spot is her two-year-old daughter, Betsy. Jessica Blake had been Jessica Gordon, home from finishing school in June of '42 to find her sleepy, southern town overrun with soldiers from a nearby camp. One of them—a tall, blond Yankee—took to following her everywhere. Tom Blake. "He's gone on you, honey," said Mary Belle, her best friend. Jessica tried to discourage him at first, but when they were out driving one day Tom kissed her. Her heart raced with joy. "I love you—and you love me," he told her triumphantly.

IV

SHE denied it and he kissed her again. He was articulate for the first time. He was masterful, almost brutal, but the next minute tender. He was no longer shy or afraid of her. He had broken through her defense. Her pride was shattered. He had given her a taste of happiness she had never experienced.

She turned her face against Tom's uniform coat and clung to him. She pulled his face down and shamelessly kissed him.

Driving back to town she closed her mind to the reckless promises she had made Tom. She was mad, of course, she told herself after he left and she was back in her own room. Physical attraction—that explains what you feel for Tom. You should hate him.

After that, she managed to arrange meetings with Mary Belle present, much to Tom's disgust.

"You scared of that big brute?" Mary Belle teased.

Even Mary Belle guessed how serious her feelings were. Luckily, no one else knew and then suddenly everyone knew.

One evening after dinner, when her father had been cool and aloof and uncommunicative, he called her into his study.

"Come in and close the door," he said curtly.

His eyes were cold. He sat beneath the portrait of the young dark-eyed mother Jessica had never known. Jessica stood, her back against the white paneling of the door, her slender figure trembling with fear.

"WHAT'S this I hear about you and a Yankee soldier?" Mr. Gordon demanded.

Jessica tried to speak and failed.

Her father said, "So it's true." His voice hardened. "How far has this affair gone?"

The words stung. Her face flamed. "I love Tom," Jessica said.

"You plan to marry him?"

She stammered. Tom had begged her to marry him. Until now she had rather shunned a real decision. But her temper matched her father's as she said, "Why not?"

She did not believe her father capable of such rage. A torrent of words poured from his lips. His black eyes blazed.

"When you marry that man you'll leave my house!" He rose, and for a moment she thought he might strike her. "Go to your room," he concluded, "and stay there until you regain your senses."

Jessica fled from the study, tears blinding her as she ran up the stairs and closed the door behind her. What would she do now? Oppose her father? Would she dare? No, she thought woefully, she must obey and try to forget Tom. Then a hot loyalty for Tom flamed in her heart. Tom loved her. Was that a crime or anything to be ashamed of? Dared she defy her father and continue to meet Tom?

When she heard the telephone in the hall below she waited. No one answered. It rang again.

Finally she went down and took down the receiver. Tom said, "I must see you, Jess."

"I can't come out."

"But you must," he pleaded. "Otherwise I'll come over there."

"Please don't." She was terrified that he might run into her father. She consented to meet him in a few minutes at an appointed spot several blocks away.

THE night was warm but she snatched up a short, light coat. She shivered as she sped though the darkness. Luckily, the door to her father's study had been closed. She felt relief when Tom's big figure appeared against the shadow of a hedge. "Hello," she said.

He reached out and pulled her to him. All her resolutions to forget him vanished as his eager lips touched hers. Tom released her.

"This is it, baby," he said.

"You mean—?"

"I'm being shipped out," Tom was saying. "I have a few days furlough so—we'll have to get married right away."

She stared at him blankly. "Married?"

"Of course. You planned to marry me, didn't you?"

She hadn't planned that.

"You told me that you loved me."

"Yes. I do, but—"

He laughed. "Just for a minute you had me scared. But I didn't believe you'd stand me up. My friends think I'm a fool to hang around a girl like you. They swear you're just having fun and will forget me when I'm gone. But I fixed that."

"How?"

"A buddy of mine is picking us up in a few minutes. They make everything easy for you here in Kentucky. You and I are going to get married—now, tonight."

A rickety car swept up to the curb and a man in uniform sang the wedding march off key. Tom lifted her into the back seat and a gum-chewing girl who sat beside the driver said, "Don't be scared, honey."

DON'T GO, her better judgment told her. Refuse and humiliate Tom and let his friends think what they please, but don't do this. Then she thought, Haven't I told Tom I loved him? Did I lie? Can I make a laughing stock of a man who is going into danger?

$10,000 Bonus Offered for Discovery of Uranium Field

TORONTO, Ont. — The ground over which North American prospectors have long walked in search of gold is today being rewalked in search of the most dynamic metal of all time—uranium. The spur is the safety of the world, both war-wise and economy-wise, and countless riches!

Today the whole universe over, man and technical instrument are culling the rocks and the undergrowth in search of the mineral that makes the atom bomb possible. That also makes possible a great industrial tomorrow. This is uranium—power source of the atom bomb and also power source of immense steam and power plants that in the not-too-distant future will provide heat and energy for all our daily living.

Nations like the United States and Canada urgently desire to fill their larders with uranium stockpiles because of two unusual situations that have developed. First: the Canadian government recently removed uranium from the "hush-hush" list and came out in full encouragement of general uranium prospecting. As an outstanding inducement they are offering producers of pitchblende, (ore of uranium), $2.75 per pound for the uranium oxide recovered from this ore. Since pure pitchblende normally contains over 80 percent uranium oxide, the value per ton is over $4,600. This tremendous incentive already has many mines such as Murmac Lake, Athabaska Mines and others, who came into being on the basis of gold findings, but who have reversed their plans to bring forth the broad pitchblende content of their properties, which was previously disregarded.

Following up on the Canadian government's direct appeal for more uranium development, the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission has now put up a $10,000 bonus for the discovery and production of highgrade uranium ores from any new deposit, anywhere in the great republic. The Atomic Energy Commission offer is part of a three-point program announced to "stimulate the discovery and production of domestic uranium by private competitive enterprises."

The outcome of the Canadian and U. S. backing of uranium search is that mining in both countries has been "revitaminized." For example, today the entire and literally untapped Canadian north is alive with prospectors, miners, geologists and others, in search of pitchblende—the dull, somewhat greasy mineral whose gift to humanity is today recognized and desired.

THE STORY: Jessica Blake has almost forgotten the gay, carefree life she once knew in the drab, monotonous existence she shares with her husband's mother and sister, Lucy, while she waits for Tom Blake to return home from overseas. The only bright spot in her two-year-old daughter, Betsy. Jessica Blake had been Jessica Gordon, home from finishing school in June of '42 to find her sleepy, southern town overrun with soldiers from a nearby camp. One of them—a tall, blond Yankee—took to following her everywhere. Tom Blake. "He's gone on you, honey," said Mary Belle, her best friend. Jessica, annoyed at first, later fell in love with him. Her enraged father threatened to turn her out. One day Tom asked Jessica to meet him on a street corner, announced he would have a few days furlough before being shipped overseas, and that he had made arrangements for their immediate marriage. A buddy drove up and Tom lifted Jessica into the car. Jessica's first reaction was DON'T GO. Then she thought: Haven't I told him I loved him? Did I lie? Can I make a laughing stock of him?

ASKING herself these questions, she knew there was only one answer.

No. She must go through with a hole-in-the-corner marriage ceremony in a shabby little parsonage parlor with the light from a kerosene lamp shining on Tom's blond head and on the slender gold ring he slid on her finger. She felt her heart constrict when the minister pronounced them man and wife, but she lifted her face gallantly for Tom's kiss and for a moment everything seemed all right.

The soldier with the stubble of red beard gave her a hearty smack and thumped Tom on the back. The girl, in a cheap, shocking pink sports outfit with a bunch of artificial flowers tucked in her frizzled pompadour, giggled and made crude jokes.

Tom was sober. His eyes held her own for a moment and she tucked her hand in his. His hand was cold. They went out onto the narrow porch and overhead a great white moon rode high and washed the whole landscape with light. Then they were crowded into a car and off down a highway which wound like a ribbon across the hills. Past cabins and tobacco fields until the driver brought the car to an abrupt stop in front of a huddle of all-night cabins.

"This the place?"

Tom nodded and jumped out and lifted Jessica to the ground.

Tom said awkwardly, "It's all set. I was here this afternoon. Ours is the third from the end."

LONG after Tom slept, Jessica lay wide-awake, staring through the small open window of the over-night cabin at a lopsided moon which shone across the bed and touched Tom's handsome face.

Tom was her husband. There was no going back now. The decision was made and she belonged to him. She must forget her doubts and uncertainty and remember instead the wild emotion which swept over her when Tom held her in his arms.

Was it love? Would it last? Why worry about the future now, with Tom's arm across her slender shoulders? Rather think of the happiness they had shared. Have faith in Tom.

But Tom planned to go away and leave her soon.

Jessica sat up in bed and pushed back her heavy hair.

Where would she live? Not at home. She had turned her back on home and the gracious living to which she was accustomed. To ease and luxury and idleness.

Tom stirred, opened his eyes and grinned and drew her close. "Hello, baby," he said sleepily, "I can't believe you're really here."

Neither can I, thought Jessica soberly, and promptly forgot her uneasiness as Tom held her mouth in a long, hard kiss.

It was broad daylight when he wakened her. He tumbled out of bed, seizing his clothes. He was brisk and alert. He said, "Golly, I hope Red won't forget his promise to pick us up this morning. I have to report at camp."

"I didn't like him," said Jessica.

"Why not?"

"He's common, and his wife—"

"He's not married," said Tom.

Jessica sat up. The blood surged to her soft, tumbled hair. "But—" she began.

TOM frowned as he tugged on his GI shoes. "I don't go in for that stuff myself," he said with a note of smugness. "Mom brought me up right. You can thank her and Lucy that you have a decent guy for a husband."

"Lucy?"

"My sister. We all live together."

He sat down on the bed and reached over and pulled her curls.

"I'm not your type, Jess," he said soberly. "I know that. Maybe I was wrong to rush you into something you may regret, but unless I had married you now I'd have lost you. I had to have you."

Jessica said, "Nothing matters if our love lasts forever."

"I'll see to that," he promised.

"But you won't be here."

"I'll come back," said Tom confidently. "Now get into your clothes. We'll have to step on it."

She washed at the stationary stand in the corner of the cabin, ran a comb through her curls and made up a brave face. No regrets, she told herself.

Red never came. Instead they walked a mile to a bus stop and waited by the side of the road. They stood up the whole trip to Titusville. Tom suggested that Jessica leave the bus three blocks from town and go home and pack her things.

As the bus rolled away bearing Tom, her marriage began to assume enormous proportions. She was leaving home, possibly forever. She was going away with a man who was almost a complete stranger, to live alone and await his return. Jessica ran the last block feeling stifled and frightened and hysterical. Why had she done this insane thing? Her father? What would he say or do? Should she tell him? How escape telling?

Representative Government Takes Its Time on Bills

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Congress is trying to finish in a rush by June 19, so it can go to the political conventions.

And when it tackles unimportant things, it acts like it's going to a fire. The Senate last Wednesday rammed through 52 minor bills.

But on the big stuff it's still pretty slow going. Long debates. Jockeying around.

Maybe you wonder: If Congress is in such a hurry, why all the talk? Since Congress is made up of Democrats and Republicans, why can't each side let a couple of men talk for them and then go ahead and vote?

It's not so simple as that. That might work in some place like England where Parliament is sharply split beteen Labor and Conservative members.

There's no such sharp division between Democrats and Republicans. In both American parties there are "conservatives" and "liberals."

True, on some issues the Democrats and Republicans close their ranks and vote pretty strictly along party lines.

But most of the time — on big issues — plenty of members of both parties want to get up and speak their pieces. Why?

Because they think they can influence other members; or they want to be on the record for or against something; or they feel so strongly about an issue they have to talk.

As a result — party lines are crossed and on some things Republicans line up with Democrats, Democrats with Republicans.

Even the President can't always lead the members of his party in Congress along the road he wants them to take.

Although he's head of his party, its members may turn against him bitterly on a big issue.

That happened this year when President Truman urged Congress to pass a civil rights program that would have benefitted Negroes mostly.

The Southern members of Mr. Truman's own Democratic Party in Congress promptly jumped on him, their leader.

Texas' Oil Lifts National Average To New Record

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—The nation's crude oil production spurted to a new all-time daily average record of 5,473,645 barrels during the week ended June 5, the Oil & Gas Journal reported.

The figure was 33,420 barrels over the previous week's production.

Texas output was a major factor in the increase. This largest oil producing state was up 27,175 barrels to 2,446,500 barrels.

Other big gains were by Oklahoma, up 2,950 barrels; New Mexico, up 1,650; Kansas, 1,400; Louisiana, 1,200; Mississippi, 1,085; and Colorado, up 2,230 barrels.

The eastern area, Indiana, Kentucky, Alabama and Arkansas reported increases of 1,000 barrels or less.

Declines of more than 1,000 barrels were registered in Michigan, and Wyoming, and smaller losses were recorded in Illinois, Montana and California. Production was unchanged in Florida and Nebraska.

Freak Accident Injures Five

COLUMBUS, O. —(AP)— Five passengers of a Pennsylvania Railroad sleeping car were injured—two seriously—in a freak accident in Union Station here Monday night.

The victims were among 17 passengers trapped in the sleeping car of the New York-bound Spirit of St. Louis when two cars were uncoupled and smashed into the engine of the Metropolitan Limited.

The second train was waiting to pull into the station. None of its passengers was injured.

Railroad Group Asserts Truman Sabotaged Labor

FORT WORTH — (AP)—A Texxas railroad labor group Monday night heard President Truman accused of "putting a bayonet in the backs of railroadmen."

The charge was made by L. A. Aucoin of Fort Worth, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen for the Texas & Pacific, who addressed the opening session of the 17th annual convention of the Texas state association.

Aucoin struck at what he termed the "inconsistency of the President in drafting labor to operate the railroads, but leaving them in the hands of their executives and not drafting revenue, too."

He also criticized Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough for granting an injunction against the workers and said the judge allowed the carriers to go scot free.

The BRT's bitterness towards Truman, Aucoin related, dates to 1946 when the President broke the BRT's strike by threatening to draft strikers into the Army.

"Truman put the pressure on us and we had to give in, in spite of the fact this own emergency board supported our stand on rules changes," the railroad man asserted.

Market Briefs

WALL STREET STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 8—(AP)—A rising stock market reached a climax late today when a new surge of demand swept prices upward by fractions to more than 3 points.

Steel issues led the late spurt. Earlier steels had shared market leadership with rail and oil shares.

Volume expanded rapidly as orders poured into the floor of the exchange. Turnover for the full day amounted to around 1,500,000 shares.

The advance was the most decisive since last month's buying spree lifted the market to a 21-month peak.

Highs for the year or longer were scored for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Richfield Oil, Celanese, Wesson Oil & Snowdrift, Westinghouse, and American Telephone.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 8—(AP)— Hedge selling in wheat and profit cashing in corn and oats reduced prices from their best levels at today's Board of Trade session.

Soybeans, however, were independently strong. The advance came on reports of sales of soya flour to the Army, and held at about 8 cents, the daily limit, most of the session.

The harvest in northern Texas is advancing so rapidly that private reports say elevators are full and wheat is being piled on the ground.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ¼ lower than yesterday's finish, July $2.29-29¼. Corn was ½ higher to 1¼ lower; July $2.16¾-⅞. Oats were ⅛ to ¾ higher, July 93⅝-¾ and soybeans were 4½ to 5½ higher, July $4.22.

Texas Today

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

The Gulf, Colorado and Santa the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad began in Galveston with a quarrel and has just celebrated its 75th anniversary in the same city with a surplus of affection.

Hundreds of Texans and out-of-staters were present to wish the railroad well. Even in the island town where conventions are everyday stuff, the diamond anniversary had plenty of sparkle.

The Santa Fe Building modeled the latest in holiday bunting; the Galvez Hotel lobby was crowded with early-railroad displays; a marker was dedicated at the spot where the first rails were laid and 500 guests attended the banquet Saturday night.

It was at the banquet that Dr. Chauncey D. Leake, vice president and dean of the University of Texas medical branch, commented that the GC&SF was born "with Galveston as the mother and yellow fever as the father."

Dr. Leake spoke the truth—yellow fever gave the railroad its start.

Here's what happened:

In the early 60's Galveston had only one railroad — a line connecting it with Houston. In those days, mild yellow fever epidemics occurred each summer along the coast.

Then Houston business interests would get quarantines declared on all passenger and freight traffic from Galveston to Houston.

During these quarantines, Galveston was virtually isolated and the business men of Houston cornered the rich East Texas market.

Galveston tempers boiled over this situation. Some of the boys wanted to load their shotguns and shoot it out. But conservative men of the island city had a better plan — a new railroad from Galveston that would go around Houston into the interior of the Lone Star State.

Financed almost entirely by Galveston business interests, the line was chartered in 1873 and begun in 1875. There were hardships and delays. Not until 1877 did the rails touch Arcola, a community 43 miles from Galveston.

Two years later the road went into bankruptcy and was reorganized. Operations were resumed in 1880. In 1881 the rails crawled to a town laid out as a division point and named Temple in honor of B. M. Temple, chief construction engineer. Later the same year, the line reached Fort Worth.

Houston was not to be ignored. The railroad, by 1883, no longer could afford not to tap its wealth. A branch was built from Alvin to Houston.

In 1886 the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, ambitious of reaching from Kansas to California and to the Gulf Coast, began trying to buy the Texas railroad that had been born of trouble in Galveston. GC&SF stockholders met in March of that year and authorized the line's president, George Sealy, to handle the negotiations. A short time later the sale was consummated. The Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe became a part of the Santa Fe system.

Today the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe extends from Galveston to Purcell, Okla.; from Temple to Sweetwater and from Sommerville to Silsbee, High Land to Longview via Beaumont; from Dallas to Paris and from Fort Worth to Menard.

tA the diamond anniversary banquet, Col. Ernest O. Thompson, Texas Railroad Commission, joked that "the Santa Fe talks about Santa Fe but doesn't go there."

And he suggested: "Texas should replace Atchison in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe system."

Virgil Mott Attends Church Music Clinic

R. Virgil Mott, director of music and religious education of the First Baptist Church, has just returned from Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, Okla., where a church music clinic was conducted for choir directors and musicians.

Dr. Ira C. Prosser, director of the Department of Church Music for the state of Oklahoma was in charge of all arrangments for the school. Mott reports that Dr. Prosser secured a well balanced faculty, consisting of Dr. Hines Sims, associate director of the Church Music Department of Southern Baptists, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Gordon Psalmonds and Mrs. Cecil Hamilton of the faculty of Oklahoma Baptist University; Dr. W. J. Reynolds, choir master of the First Baptist Church, Oklahoma City, and Mrs. J. N. Clancy of Shreveport, La., who is a specialist in the art of building graded choirs, and who has 200 members in her youth choirs. Dr. R. Lofton Hamilton, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Shawnee, taught a class in the art of building music and worship programs. Dr. W. Plunkett Martin, director of music in the New Orleans Baptist Seminary, taught class and choir voice.

Dr. Warren Angell, former arranger and soloist with "The Fred Waring Show," now dean of music of Oklahoma Baptist University taught choir repertoire. The school began at 8 a. m. and closed at 5 p. m. daily. This program of church music is designed to reach every Baptist church in the Southern Baptist Convention regardless of size. Mott states that "Southern Baptists are offering the most comprehensive church music program in the world."

Slipcover Drapes and Chairs to Lighten Your Burden of Summer Housework

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

Sheathe winter draperies as well as chairs with slipcovers of plastic fabric, if you want to simplify hot-weather housekeeping.

Plastic-coated cottons can be wiped clean with a damp cloth. The plastic coating weights the cotton so that the fabric is as adaptable to the tailoring needs of slipcovers and curtains as any other fabrics.

New idea in decorating for the lady who does her own is slipcovers for winter curtains as well as slipcovers for chairs. Easier than making a complete set of summer curtains is to make slipcovers which are merely fabric "bags" to slip over winter draperies. To make a drapery "bag," measure the length and full width of the curtain to be covered. Cut two lengths of slipcover fabric slightly longer and wider than these measurements to allow for seams. Sew cut lengths together along the sides and across the bottom. Fit the top with a drawstring so that the fabric can be gathered after the bag is pulled over the draperies. Slipcover curtains may be hooked to curtain rod or pinned in place at the top to the winter drapery fabric underneath.

You needn't be an expert seamstress to stich up your own chair slipcover of easy-to-clean plastic fabric. With the help of a simplified pattern which gives step-by-step procedure for covering a chair, even a novice can turn out a neatly tailored fabric sheath. Sewing experts advise the amateur to pick the slipcover style with the fewest frills or ruffles to tax her skill. Solid-colored fabric is usually easier to work with than patterned material which requires careful matching of design.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Instructions for making slipcovers for chairs may be obtained by sending your name, address, and 15 cents in coin plus one cent postage, for pattern 5018 to Anne Cabot Pampa News 1150 Ave. of Americas, New York, 19, N. Y.)

Use Left Hand To Speed Up Work

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Dr. Irma H. Gross of Michigan State College advises housewives to remember their lazy left hands.

On household jobs, a good left hand can cut down on the time needed for each job, she explains. And the savings in time mean less of that tired, flustered feeling of always being rushed.

Dr. Gross is in charge of the home management reseach projects of the college's Agricultural Experiment Station. She is interested in how housewives can save steps, motions, and energy in running their homes.

Experts in industry work out ways to simplify jobs, to get more done with less effort. The same kind of research is being applied to benefit housewives.

Generally, Dr. Gross said, considerable time can be saved by putting the left hand to work. Women should dust or polish with a cloth in each hand, and wash windows the same way.

Both hands should be used in removing or replacing dishes and glasses from cupboards, or in placing silverware and dishes at the table. When drying dishes, the left hand should use the towel as well as the right. In molding cookies, the dough can be spooned up with the right hand, rolled into balls and placed on the baking sheet with the left hand.

On cleaning spinach, the time saving was 20 percent. On washing the woodwork, the saving was 10 percent. On the spinach bath process, some time-saver recommendations are:

Use lukewarm water, not cold; arrange the work set-up to cut the spinach as it's taken from the bag, and have the waste bowl next in line; wash in a double sink or two containers that can be alternately filled with water, to avoid waiting; and use both hands to lift the spinach and floating bits from the water.

For washing woodwork: Put the pail on something at a convenient height, instead of on the floor; use a cleaning agent, that doesn't require rinsing, like trisodium phosphate, instead of soap; use long strokes, not short ones in washing, and keep the drying cloth handy in an apron pocket.

The time savings weren't big, but if all jobs are properly organized, the minutes and seconds mount up to an hour or more in an eight-hour day.

PLASTIC AIR MATTRESSES

New air mattresses of plastic are tufted to afford greater comfort than the conventional designs. Holes in the center of each tuft permit it to breathe. A tube container is fastened to a valve in the mattress and is inflated in a few minutes.

RAINFALL RESERVOIR

The extensive root system of the sahuaro "giant cactus" spreads in all directions from the main trunk for as many as 50 feet. Rainfall is easily assimilated and stored in the pulpy interior of the main plant, since the roots are close to the surface.

A party dish may be made from crabmeat mixed with almonds hard-cooked eggs and a rich cream sauce. Serve in patty shells. If desired, mushrooms may also be added.

A one-pound package of frozen fruit will thaw in the refrigerator in about 6 hours; at room temperature in about 3 hours.

New Look (Jr.)

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

The littlest lady will be dressed in clothes just as fragile, feminine and downright glamorous as any the designers have dreamed up for mother this year.

With the return of imported organdies, batistes and cobwebby laces, baby clothes are more beautiful than ever, with delicate embroidery and hand-work adding the final touch to delicate christening robes and exquisite coat-and-bonnet sets.

There is a skirt length controversy in the youngest set, also. Strictly modern babies like their christening robes a mere 21 inches long, while the conservative type infant still insists on the conventional 27-inch length. So designers make them both ways.

About Roller Skates. . .So Sonny is going to have his first pair of roller skates this summer?

He's more apt to remain perpendicular on wheels if Mom knows her stuff about the skates he buys.

Ball-bearings on his skates will be a help in getting him going quicker. Sonny's feet will react more flexibly on skates if he's given the kind which have rubber shock absorbers under the front wheel shaft. You cannot always tell whether skates are equipped with this cushion of rubber because sometimes it is covered by metal, but you can check on this detail.

If you don't want to have to play nursemaid to the young skater every time he feels athletic, give him skates which he can strap on himself. Such skates have straps over toes instead of clamps.

★ WE, THE WOMEN

BY

It has come at last, and it was long overdue. An educator has come out in favor of parents having some rights of their own.

"Parents must be people in their own right, not just the stock figures of the hard-working father and the self-sacrificing mother," says Miss Edna Marion Hill, headmistress of a New York school. "Otherwise children will get to feel they are the center of attention."

So move over, Junior, and give the grown-ups a chance to develop their personalities for a while.

You've had it all your own way far too long. Your poor old Mom and Pop are nervous nonentities from worrying about getting you off to the right start in life, happy and uninhibited.

Now, maybe, they can occasionally tell you to stop doing something without giving you a long, involved explanation or a coaxing "Wouldn't you rather play with the nice red wagon than with Papa's shotgun?"

NO MORE FEAR

Given time to develop their personalities a little, perhaps they will even stop being afraid of you.

They may even stop being afraid of the child experts.

So be quiet, Junior. You aren't the only member of the family whose personality must be allowed to expand. Mama and Papa are expanding theirs, too.

Save the liquid after you have cooked tongue. It gives a different flavor when used for making onion soup.

Oilers Come From Behind To Defeat Hubbers, 8-7

LUBBOCK — The league-leading Pampa Oilers took advantage of shoddy fielding to salvage the final game of their three-contest series here with the Hubbers, winning last night 8-7. It took a five-run rally in the seventh inning, which was sparked by Bob Bartholomew's homer over the rightfield fence, to win, after the Oilers faced a 7-3 deficit.

Bob Clodfelter started the seventh by walking Dick Samek and Roy Parker, who was pinchhitting for Howard Bass, the winning hurler. R. C. Otey flied out to left field, but Bartholomew smacked a two-two pitch over the rightfield barrier for three runs.

Earl Harriman kept the rally alive when he was safe on Jackie Wilcox's error. He moved to second on Jack Riley's single to center and to third when Tony Range's drive to short nipped Riley at second. Joe Fortin took two strikes then lashed a single to left that scored Harriman with the tying run.

That was all for Clodfelter and Royce Mills came on to chuck. Bob Belford, the first batter to face him, promptly drilled a single to right to score Range with the winning run.

Pampa had opened the game with two unearned runs when Otey was safe on Wilcox's first miscue. Bartholomew bounced to Clodfelter on the next pitch for what should have been an easy double play. But Clodfelter heaved the ball into centerfield, Otey scoring and Bartholomew moving to third. He scored on Range's Texas Leaguer.

The Hubbers moved ahead on three singles and a three-run home run by Don Moore after the first two batters had gone down. They upped their margin to 6-2 in the second when four singles counted two more runs.

The two teams traded runs, the Hubbers getting one in the fifth and the Oilers equalizing it in the sixth. Then the roof caved in and the game was over.

Avon Driggers did some neat relief hurling, setting the Hubbers down without a run in the ninth, after the first two batters had singled.

Graziano Meets Zale for Middleweight Title Tonight

By TED SMITS

NEWARK, N. J. —(AP)— The noisy extrovert, Rocky Graziano, meets stolid Tony Zale in Ruppert Stadium tonight in the rubber match of their violent ring series.

At stake this third time is Rocky's World Middleweight Championship, won from Zale July 16, 1947, in Chicago. In the first fight, Sept. 27, 1946 in New York's Yankee Stadium, Zale was victor by a knockout.

Both previous battles were bloody, boisterous affairs ending in the sixth round. Odds are 8-1 this one also will not go the full 15 rounds scheduled. The fight starts at 9 p.m., EST.

Betting odds that last week favored Graziano 5 to 12 narrowed on the eve of the clash to 1 to 2. Zale is 34 years old and Graziano 26, and this age differential is counted Zale's only handicap. As punchers go, there's little to choose between the two.

Graziano weighed 157 and looked sharp after his final light workout yesterday. Zale rested the entire day. He weighed 158 when he wound up training Monday.

The official weigh-in was scheduled at 11 a.m. EST, in the Newark City Hall.

Fair, warm weather after weeks of cold and rain brought a rush of late ticket sales. Promoter Andy Niederreiter predicted a turnout of 22,000 and a gate of $350,000.

Of this pot the champion is assured $120,000 or 40 percent of the net. The challenger is guaranteed $60,000 or 20 percent of the net.

Few Rivals For Citation in Belmont Race

NEW YORK —(AP)— Officials of the Westchester Racing Association were scraping the bottom of the three-year-old barrel today for a few courageous colts to oppose Citation in the $100,000 Belmont Stakes.

At the moment they're hopeful that five or six might forget the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and other Citation romps long enough to try another fling with the Calumet Farm star Saturday.

The latest Belmont census shows the following list from which opposition might develop:

W. L. Brann's Escadru, Glenn Riddle Farms' Faraway, C. V. Whitney's Dinner Gong and Vulcan's Forge, A. J. Sackett's Gasparilla, Belair Stud's Whirling Fox, William Helis' Salmagundi, and King Ranch's Better Self.

Athletes Get Break

LONDON —(AP)— Britain's customs rules will be relaxed for athletes arriving for the Olympic games.

Foreign athletes will be allowed to bring in equipment, clothing, food and specified baggage free of customs duty, purchase tax and deposits normally made pending re-export.

It is estimated here that more than 200 horses, 100 rowing shells, 50 yachts, firearms, massage equipment, hundreds of fencing foils and about 400 cycles will be part of the baggage of the expected 4,000 or 5,000 competitors.

Sportsmen Club to Sponsor McClellan Lake Fish Rodeo

The newly organized Pampa Sportsmen Club met last night in the County Court Room and decided to sponsor a Fish Rodeo at Lake McClellan from July 1 through Sept. 30.

This organization, formerly the McClellan Rod and Gun Club, will operate the rodeo on the same principle as the nes now being conducted at various lakes around the country.

Fish will be tagged and any fisherman catching one with a tag will receive a prize. To be eligible for the contest, one must be a member of the club. Membership cards can be acquired from any member of the club and the fees are $1.00 for a card which established the holder as a member for one year.

Anyone catching a tagged fish must register the fish with Bert Howell, concessionaire at the lake, while the fish is still alive.

Any member who desires to enter the rodeo must have his card with him at the time of registration. The card also gives his wife and children under 16 the right to enter.

At last night's meeting, the club appointed the following committees: Rodeo, Dr. Roy Webb, Earl Casey, A. M. Thorn, and Earl McConnell; Advertising, W. A. Noland, Ralph Juillard and Coleman Williams; Prize, Jim Arndt, E. O. Wedgeworth, and E. L. Lane. Also serving on the Prize Committee are Carl Homer of Groom, George Graham of McLean, and Red Estlack of Clarendon.

Merchants who wish to donate prizes should get in touch with some member of the club. All prizes must be designated by June 25.

Fish will be tagged somewhere between June 25 and July 1 under the supervision of the district game wardens. The organization will have a called meeting June 25 in the County Court Room. At this meeting all families of members and merchants are invited to attend. Movies will be shown at the meeting and the club will elect permanent officers.

At last night's meeting, the group was shown a moving picture entitled "Hunting Wild Elephants," by Mr. McConnell.

This club has several goals set before it and invites new members. Membership fee is $1.00 year's membership and a one-year years membership and a one year subscription to the Texas Wildlife Magazine.

Herman Is Back

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind. —(AP)— Billy Herman, once manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and now a paint purveyor, isn't letting the pigment pushing interfere with his passion for the national pastime.

Herman plays second base on the Jeffersonville semi-pro club and he's one of the leaders in a campaign to bring organized baseball to southern Indiana.

His team has lined up games with Bedford, Bloomington, Vincennes, Tell City, Jasper, Huntingburg, Edinburg and Princeton. One of these days some or all of these towns probably will blossom out as a new Class D league.

Eight Games To Be Played By Softballers

Eight more games remain to be played in the Industrial Softball League this week with Master Cleaners scheduled to meet Magnolia at Skelly and Ideal set to go against Texas Elf at Phillips in the only two games tonight.

In last night's games, the loop-leading Skelly literally had a field day when they romped over the hapless Pampa Bus 40-11, and a rejuvenated Pampa Jaycee nine took the Cabot Shops, Inc. 12-9.

In Skelly's route of the Bus Company, the issue was never in doubt with the winners setting an early pace and failing to relinquish it throughout the game.

Skelly rounded the bases for five runs in the initial frame and then ran wild in their portion of the second for 15 tallies. They pushed across seven more in the third and led, 27-2 at the close of this inning. The only "half-way" threat by the Bus Co. came in the fourth where they scored seven runs.

Three hurlers went to the mound for Skelly while the Bus boys used almost every man on the squad, but all attempts proved futile. Henly, Yeager, and Bogart worked on the mound for Skelly.

Cabot jumped to an early but short-lived 5-0 lead over the Jaycees but the big bats of the winners coupled with numerous Cabot errors proved to be the deciding factor.

Three of the members of last night's Jaycee aggregation were ex-members of last season's Harvester baseball team. They were Raymond Hernandez at second base, and Derral "Pee Wee" Davis at first base and Charlie Laffoon at shortstop. Also on this team was the three boys' football, track and baseball coach, Tom Tipps, who played centerfield.

Sam Keel received credit for the win allowing only six hits while his teammates got nine off Cabot Hurler Lloyd Gooch. The Cabot team committed seven errors.

The remainder of the weeks schedules is as follows:

Tomorrow night at Skelly, Phillips will meet Skelly and at Phillips, Cabot will meet The Pampa News.

Friday night Texas Elf will play Master Cleaners at Phillips and Ideal will meet Furr Food at Skelly. There are no games Saturday, but Sunday afternoon at Lions Club Park the Jaycees will engage the Pampa Bus and Humble will meet Magnolia.

Gene Bearden Looks Like Key Hurler of Indian Staff

By The Associated Press

A "throw-in" in a deal between the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians two years ago, Gene Bearden, loomed today as the key player in the Indians' American League pennant chances.

The wavy-haired southpaw came along as excess baggage when the Tribe acquired Allen Gettel and Hal Peck in a trade that sent Sherman Lollar and Ray Mack to the Yankees. He has proved to be the best pick-up the Indians have made since they plucked Bob Feller from the Iowa sandlots.

The 27-year-old rookie thus far has outshown the great Feller on the mound and currently rivals Bob Lemon as the No. 1 hurler on the staff.

The Los Angeles knuckleballer gained his sixth victory last night when he pitched the Indians to a 2-0 triumph over the Red Sox in Boston. The victory increased the Indians' first place lead over the Athletics and Yankees to three and a half games.

The Yankees moved into a second place tie with the Athletics, coming from behind to edge out the Chicago White Sox 3-2 in a 12-inning night battle at Yankee Stadium. The Detroit Tigers nipped the A's 2-1 in another close one at Philadelphia.

The Senators came from behind three times to tie the score then tallied twice in the seventh to nip the St. Louis Browns 6-5 in a night game in Washington.

The St. Louis Cardinals advanced to within four percentage points of the National League leading New York Giants by defeating the Philadelphia Phillies 7-5 in a night game in St. Louis. Harry (The Cat) Brecheen gained his sixth victory against one defeat, but Ted Wilks saved the game for him with some brilliant relief pitching.

Scoring six runs in the first two innings, the Brooklyn Dodgers staved off a couple of desperate Cincinnati rallies to nip the Reds 6-5 in Cincinnati.

Young Vernon Bickford gave up only four hits in pitching the Boston Braves to an 11-1 victory over Johnny Schmitz and the Cubs in Chicago. It was the Cubs' seventh straight loss.

The scheduled night game between the Giants and Pirates in Pittsburgh was postponed by rain.

Runner Aims for Records

MOSCOW—(AP) — Feodosi Vanin, one of the Soviet Union's best distance runners, is going to try this summer to beat two world marks—Nurmi's performance for the one-hour race, and the 20 kilometer event.

The difference between Vanin's all-Union performance in the 20 kilometer race and the world record is but 50 seconds.

"Vanin," thinks a Russian sports commentator, "should be able to send that mark by the boards."

He is one of the bright hopes of the Soviet in distance running.

America Can Become a Desert

Early in May, a national conference on land-use policy, the first meeting of its kind and magnitude that has occurred in our history, was held at Omaha. It was attended by businessmen of all kinds, agricultural experts, government officials, public utility executives, and others. While it didn't make dramatic headline news, it dealt with a problem which concerns the survival and existence of the United States — the fact that our soil resources are wasting away at an appalling rate.

Fairfield Osborn, president of the Conservation Foundation, touched the keynote when he said, "We are face to face with the fact that we have been travelling the wrong road — that America is riding the downhill spiral — that we have to get on the right road or else the future of our country will be violently imperiled."

The United States has 1,000,000,000 acres of farm croplands, open grazing lands and farm pasturelands. More than 250,000,000 of those acres have already been ruined or severely impoverished, and the rest have been damaged to some degree. In the last 36 years alone, the nation's "woodpile" has declined by 44 percent, according to Mr. Osborn. The effect of this on our water sources — which are the arteries of our life as a people — is evident almost everywhere. Many rivers have declined in flow. And the underground water table, which supports whole regions, is steadily falling at critical point after critical point.

All of us have read about the government's enormously costly flood control work — work which is supposed to protect our arable land. But it is now becoming evident that the politicians have, in many instances, sold the people a bill of goods. Enormous hydroelectric dams have been built in the name of flood control. But these dams must be full of water if they are to produce power, and when the floods come they overrun them. They in no way control floods at their source. Some of the dams are swiftly filling with silt carried from farm land hundreds of miles away, and will be worthless in a relatively short time.

Real flood control — like real conservation — lies in the complex field of scientific land use by landowners. That means that floods must be controlled in the headwaters and the valleys, where their damage to the soil is greatest. It means that we must develop and plow and cultivate our agricultural land so that the water does not carry off the topsoil.

America can become a desert. It will unless the nation moves to save its land and water resources. The hopeful sign is that men who have no political axe to grind or political cause to serve, who are interested only in the future welfare of the nation, are organizing to do this tremendous job.

POST SETTLED ARGUMENTS

There were no signals in the early days of railways. When engineers met on a single track, they had to argue it out. Later a post was erected midway between stations so that "he who passed the pillar must go on, and the other go back."

Fair Enough.... by Westbrook Pegler

WASHINGTON — You might think that I had some personal motive in calling Henry Wallace to account, but it will one day be established that I am performing a public service in revealing this clown's true character. So far he has managed to duck the question whether he did or did not write the idiotic guru letters to Prof. Nicholas Roerich. If we could get him under oath we would have him dead to rights because, waiving the question of these particular letters, I would confront him with proof that he once did admit that he wrote Roerich a great many personal letters in longhand which went through the forwarding office at the New York lamasery of the weird oriental cult and wrote one to Reorich's wife, who was known as "mother" in the cult, which would make him appear "very foolish." He said he could not remember just what he did write in that letter to "mother" but did know that he had put on paper some "idiotic things." Those were his own words in discussing it. Boy, I'll say he did.

Now whether Wallace was fool enough to have been completely taken in by Roerich's theatrical manner, or was himself guilty of promoting a crazy scheme to create a new nation of Siberia with Roerich as "head" of the state in a politico-spiritual role, we have to take our choice. The evidence I have seen and which Henry knows I have seen, shows that he was no more to be trusted with great public responsibility than a village idiot. That is why I say it was a shocking betrayal of the interests of the American people by Franklin D. Roosevelt to make this awful bubblehead vice president from 1940 to 1944. That was an outrage that the United States should never forgive Roosevelt. It is useless to say that he didn't know the truth about Wallace. Those people were spying on one another all the time and the State Department was fairly hissing with the story of Wallace's grass-seed mission to Asia under Roerich's command. Yet, Wallace was so gullible, and that kind of gullibility is incurable, that he may not have realized the meaning of Roerich's glib recognition of the Japanese conquest of Manchuria when our government was lambasting the Japs for unprovoked aggression and following a political and diplomatic line that led straight to Pearl Harber.

Of course Wallace will not be elected president, but his juvenile credulity then is useful as an explanation of his present willingness to go to the country as Stalin's candidate for president.

He may doggedly refuse to discuss the goofy guru letters, but I will surround him with so much other evidence that he will never be able to break out.

A great heap of letters from Roerich to the headquarters of his cult in New York shows beyond question that he was having the time of his life at the expense of the Department of Agriculture and, ultimately, of the American taxpayers in the summer of 1934 and winter of 1935. He was wined and dined by Japs and other Orientals who were baffled by his status as emissary of the secretary of agriculture when our State Department wouldn't even give him a letter to whom it may concern. He carried on a vein of reference to the state of "Kansas" which was a code word for the new nation of Siberia and he continually rasped against Howard G. MacMillan and James L. Stevens, the regular department botanists who refused to obey instructions from Roerich which would have put them in the position of "recognizing" the conquest of Manchuria by Japan. Nevertheless, in response to Roerich's complaints, addressed to the joss-house in New York and then forwarded to him in Washington, Bubblehead ordered MacMillan and Stevens back home under humiliating conditions. Some Americans would have walked right into his office and kicked hell out of him for this rotten doublecross. That might have made a man of Wallace.

Here were two good Americans trying to warn someone of the conduct of Roerich in the Orient and yet Wallace wrote to George Hanson, our consul general in Harbin, Manchuria, on Sept. 27, 1934: "This department is fortunate in having secured the cooperation as leader of this expedition of Prof. Roerich, one of the greatest authorities on Central Asia and deeply respected in these countries. I am transmitting this information to you for your use if any inquiry should reach the consulate. I will also ask you to transmit it to any authorities who have made inquiry or who may have been confused by the action of the botanists (MacMillan and Stevens").

There was the devil to pay at the State Department because Wallace lacked the brains, the manners or the honesty to direct communications to State Department people through the State Department.

He is a sly and slippery one with his drooling grin and that Hitlerian bang. He knew he was doing wrong but just didn't want the State Department to know.

George Hanson gave him a brush-off. He said the activities of MacMillan and Stevens had caused no confusion and that their attitude "toward the authorities both of Manchuria and Japan was correct and tactful."

Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, the chief of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department, had warned Bubblehead not to send Roerich to China on any mission under any circumstances. Henry replied that he knew Roerich personally, that the guru was his friend, and that he needed no advice from anyone. Afterward, Wallace said he regarded Roerich as his own superior in the cultish layout. He was Roerich's boss in the Department of Agriculture, but the guru's peace outfit outranked the D. of A. in Henry's rating.

Wallace even sent to Roerich's secretary at the joss-house copies of letters from MacMillan telling of Roerich's activities. Roerich then needled Wallace with arrogant squawks about the two Americans whose only fault was that they were acting the part of good Americans under the authority of a fantastic slob in the Department of Agriculture. Henry believed Roerich and threw down his own men.

That was what Roosevelt knowingly gave us for vice president from 1940 to 1944 in time of the wildest war in the dismal history of mankind. Fellow Wallace is what he is. You can hate him or feel sorry for him, but he can't help being a bubblehead. But Roosevelt knew Henry and he knew all about this daffy affair and Henry's silly infatuation for the guru. And still, in a matter of seconds, a phone conversation from the White House to Madam Frances Perkins at the Chicago Convention he said, "Yes, I guess it will be Wallace" for vice president and for four years we were threatened with this rattle-brain the instant anything happened to the great conman himself.

What the hell was the matter with our people, anyway? How did we ever let ourselves get talked into this crazy fix?

Twelve men in just half an hour could bring this nation to a standstill.

'MINORITY MACHINE' .... by Upton Close

WASHINGTON — "One of the largest, best paid lobbies in the city of Washington," said Congressman Ed Gossett in the House of Representatives, "is the so-called displaced persons lobby.

"They are backed by a nationwide organization that has spent and is spending millions of dollars on propaganda.

"These organizations have filled the press and the radio, a large part of which they control, with canned editorials, syndicated columns, sentimental appeals, feature stories and a vast array of misleading information.

"They have lined up many politicians in both parties who seek to acquire or retain the foreign bloc votes in the pivotal states."

Such is the indictment by a U. S. congressman of the most conscienceless international machine in America's history. The organization, or constellation of organizations, is becoming known as "the minority machine."

President Truman long ago became subservient to it, and places the facilities of the United States government at its disposal. In fact, Truman was nominated vice president with the consent of Sidney Hillman, a key member of the machine.

Though the machine itself is made up largely of immigrants from Eastern Europe and Russia it is succeeding in snaking into this country hundreds of thousands of kinsmen who also flaunt Americanism and add to minority influence.

Any senator or congressman who stands up and fights this machine is subjected to a calculated campaign of "smear" in his state or district.

That is why the mighty United States Senate the other day bowed before the lobby and voted to increase immigration quotas to admit 200,000 more displaced persons within two years.

WANT AN FEPC

The machine tramples on immigration laws to bring in Communists and fellow travelers, while reports show that it is difficult for a known antiCommunist to get in.

Rep. Gossett said untold thousands of undesirables are coming in illegally while "under existing laws we probably will receive into this country through various channels not less than 200,000 to 300,000 immigrants per year."

Figures which he said were official placed the number of inhabitants of recent immigrant origin at "around 35,000,000".

These immigrants are being crowded almost entirely into the industrial cities of the seven big states which dominate national elections and policies. The president of the Chicago Real Estate Board last week said that about half of the people of Chicago were foreign born. New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and many other cities have become host to masses of immigrants.

The incoming "minorities" are mercilessly propagandized and refimented by the machine and voted almost as a captive bloc for such unAmerican measures as an FEPC and the "civil rights" program, and for lifting of immigration restrictions.

Both the minority lobby and the Board of Immigration Appeals deserve a thorough airing by Congress, but that need not be expected until a fearless president can be elected.

The Board of Immigration Appeals apparently is without legal standing. It was set up by presidential order Aug. 30, 1940, when the old legitimate Board of Review was transferred from the Immigration and Naturalization Service and placed under the attorney general. The new board has been wholly subject to the will of the President and his attorney general.

TO PRESERVE AMERICANISM

Board members are appointed and removed by the President and his attorney general. That they are responsive to the wishes of the minority machine their rulings make clear.

No laws passed by Congress will have much if any influence on this board. Speculators have been admitted to the country under the quota for professors, and we may be sure that persons who never saw a plow will come in the guise of farmers if the new quota is voted by the House.

Communists have been admitted on the ground that adherence to the Communist Manifesto, published in 1848, does not constitute revolutionary aims today.

Several decisions written by board member A. L. Montaquila once ousted but now back on the board, have enabled prostitutes to come in and therefore apply for citizenship.

Informed observers do not believe that a known antiCommunist prostitute, not a member of a minority group, would be greeted at the border with such a favorable ruling.

Americans who would like to preserve what remains of Americanism would do well to write, wire or telephone their representatives to kill the pending bill to increase immigration.

Common Ground

By R. C. HOILES

The Higher Law

Today's column is a continuation of the speech delivered at the opening session of the Conference of Federal Judges of the Ninth Circuit in San Francisco last September by Harold R. McKinnon, of the San Francisco Bar.

At the conclusion of yesterday's column, Mr. McKinnon was reviewing the writings of the most prolific textbook writer in America today and his textbook treatment of American history. Mr. McKinnon stated that this man who is molding the minds of millions of our children quoted Jefferson's historic statement that while the will of the majority is to prevail, that will to be rightful must be reasonable and respect the equal rights of the minority; and then this textbook writer proclaims that this statement of Jefferson's is an example of undemocratic reactionaryism.

I continue:

"As might be expected, this teaching has borne fruit. It permeates all the social sciences. Let me refer to two, politics and jurisprudence.

"First, let us look at political theory. One of the leading political scientists in this country today, in a book recently published by him, says, 'There are, of course, no such things as inherent and inalienable rights. They are purely a figment of the imagination, wishfulfillment in political thinking . . . Only by collective action can men lay down universal rules of conduct and give them body and viabiltiy; the attempt to trace human rights to any other source is sheer fantasy . . . Popular sovereignty is a doctrine that goes inevitably with the theories of social contract and natural rights. When Thomas Jefferson wrote in the Declaration of Independence that all governments derive "their just powers from the consent of the governed" and Abraham Lincoln in the Gettysburg Address spoke of "this government of the people, by the people, and for the people," they were merely giving utterance to what seemed to them to be self-evident truths.'

Another prominent author on this subject maintains that there are no absolute ethical limits to the state's power, and that the individual has no inherent, absolute rights which belong to him as a person and which therefore may not be infringed by others. Accordingly this author contends that the state may legitimately exercise its controlling power for the rendering of whatever affirmative aid it can for the advancement of the welfare of its citizens, and that 'whatever state action will tend to secure this end is ethically justified', and 'If this can best be done by establishing a socialistic or even a communistic regime, this will be ethically justified.'

"Another modern political philosopher of note, in a book on this subject, says, 'Most of the best thinkers on politics of the present day, I believe, will agree that there is no such thing as a natural right. Each man may do things, ought to do things that will be for the benefit of the community, but he has not the right to demand anything from the community. Moreover, the criterion of what is for the benefit of the community at large must be settled by the community itself, not by any individual . . . The citizen, then may and must do what the community determines it is best for him to do . . . He must not do what the state forbids . . . (and) we may not properly speak of a natural right as opposed to the power of the state.' Please note that there is the quintessence of totalitarianism. The citizen has no rights from the state; he has a duty toward the state, to do whatever the state determines is for the benefit of the state; and that determination is absolute and not open to question by him, and it is unrestrained by any natural right which is inherent in him as an individual. And this is not Nazi Germany; it is not Facsist Italy; it is not Communist Russia. It is America. It is an American university professor, an American author, an American public official."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Henry A. Wallace's third-party candidacy as the self-appointed apostle of "Roosevelt reforms" and more tender treatment toward Russia has had the political effect on the Republican Congress that he wanted and anticipated, although his role in the 1948 presidential picture means that millions of prospective beneficiaries of his own humanitarian pledges will be disappointed at least temporarily.

As the Eightieth Session moves toward possible adjournment on June 19, it becomes increasingly clear that the GOP's legislative bosses will shelve or sidetrack a tremendous batch of social and economic legislation designed to improve the lot of FDR's famous "one-third of the nation."

Rarely has any Congress since the depression shown such reluctance toward strengthening and broadening the reforms which enabled Mr. Roosevelt to win four elections.

DEFIANCE — It is a daring defiance of the nation's mass vote. And congressmen would not have shown such disregard for this vast segment of the electorate if they did not believe that the Iowan's desertion of the Truman faction alone assured their triumph next November.

Had Mr. Wallace remained loyal, it is doubtful if the Capitol Hill opposition would have taken such a gamble in so critical a year. But believing that he will capture millions of leftish and liberal voters, who might otherwise have cast their ballots for President Truman, the GOP has deliberately confined its appeal to the solid, conservative, middle-class group.

STRATEGY — It is no secret that the more enthusiastic sponsors of the Wallace movement are delighted at the success of their strategy They count on this kind of Republican reaction to pave the way for the election of a Roosevelt or Wallace believer in 1952. Their politically selfish philosophy seems to be that eventual good will come from a GOP landslide next autumn.

The Republicans recognize that Mr. Truman will try to capitalize on Congress' neglect of social, economic and labor advances. In their opinion, he has demanded last-minute action on these proposals in recent weeks only so that he can blame Congress for their failure.

But the Republicans do not feel the President's belated support of this program will weaken the Wallace appeal in this direction. They think Mr. Truman has left himself open to the indictment that he lacks force and determination.

ORDER — It is expected that their ultra-conservative attitude will be reflected in the Republicans' platform, and presumably in its presidential ticket, at Philadelphia.

In view of their legislative record, it would be difficult and politically unwise to promise or repromise the measures they failed to enact at the current session. It would make it easy for their opponents to hurl the charge of "hypocrisy" at them.

There may be an ulterior motive behind all this conservative lawmaking at Washington. If the platform accords with the record of the Eightieth Congress, it will be a document designed for the men who hold these views.

In that event, it will be made to order for the following candidates, in order: Senator Taft of Ohio, Speaker Martin of Massachusetts, Governor Dewey of New York, Senator Martin of Pennsylvania, and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan.

It would be less acceptable to such prospects as Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, Governor Earl Warren of California or even "Ike" Eisenhower, whose ideas on many major problems appear to be more "liberal" than those which formed the basis of 1947-1948 legislation.

DOOMED — Although some of the following measures may be rushed through in a last-minute burst of energy, here is a partial list of so-called liberal and vote-getting bills which seem doomed:

Social Security: Congress may add 3,500,000 people not now covered. But it will rebuff President Truman's demand that 20,000,000 additional be benefited. It will also refuse to increase the monthly payments.

Wages: There is little likelihood of any increase in the minimum hourly wage from 40 to 75 cents or $1. Also, the proposals for the high cost of living bonus to federal and postoffice employees are in danger.

Consumers: The House-passed bill to repeal federal taxes on colored margarine may die in the Senate or conference.

SLASHED — Power: Appropriations for numerous projects extremely popular to California and Northwest interests have been slashed heavily. Administrative staffs have been reduced to such a degree that Secretary J. A. Krug doubts whether he will be able to supervise properly vast reclamation, conservation and power undertakings.

Education, housing and health: It seems unlikely that any of these schemes for federal aid in these fields will be enacted in the form asked by President Truman and social welfare groups throughout the country.

Civil Rights: Fair employment practices legislation, which is regarded as the most essential measure by sponsors of economic equality of opportnity, has almost no chance of becoming law. A majority of Republicans and Democrats oppose it.

• SO THEY SAY

There is no misunderstanding or difficlty between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R. which can be settled by force or fear and there is no difference which cannot be settled by peaceful, hopeful negotiation.

—Henry Wallace's "open letter" to Premier Stalin.

Provided we keep our heads, I do not fear runaway inflation nor do I look for the great depression whose failure to appear has so chagrined the Marxian economists and statesmen.

—Emil Schram, president, New York Stock Exchange.

Nobody knows what Eisenhower politics is and I'm sure the Democrats will not nominate a pig in a poke.

—Sen. J. Howard McGrath (D), Rhode Island.

If there are any children in Seattle, Wash, who imagine hey've been chased by hobgoblins lately, they ain't seen nothin' yet.

Their education board has thoughtfully arranged a portable classroom that detaches itself from the main school building and goes after children who live in outlying districts and can't get to a school.

Goodness, in my time we children were scared enough at the idea of a truant officer with flat feet coming after us. You can imagine how the Seattle Kiddies feel about having something that's flat on all four sides on their trail.

However, this portable room isn't such a bad idea. I guess my husband George wouldn't be late for dinner so much if he knew our dining room was out prowling the town looking for him.

And it certainly would be nice when I get all tired out shopping if my comfy little bedroom would come for me to take me home.

Yugoslavs Favor Return of Colonies

ROME —(AP)— Yugoslavia spoke up today in favor of letting Italy continue to administer her pre-fascism African colonies.

A note delivered in London to the deputies of the Big Four Foreign Ministers set forth the Yugoslav view that the consolidation of peace and world security would best be served by making Italy the United Nations' mandatory power for Libia, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD -(NEA)- Jimmy Stewart will enter a sky-going hot rod in the annual Los Angeles to Cleveland Bendix Air race in September. The plane is a Mustang, which Jimmy bought from Uncle Sam's war surplus at Kingman, Ariz. Jimmy and his pals are "souping" it up at Santa Monica's Clover Field. The pilot will be Joe DeBonda, the Beverly Hills real estate man who finished 36 seconds behind winner Paul Mantz last year.

Jimmy is back in Hollywood, co-starring with Joan Fontaine in "You Gotta Stay Happy" after appearing in "Harvey" for a month on Broadway. And this story he tells on himself:

At one performance of the play he forgot the rabbit Harvey's name and, after stumbling around, called him Charley! A lapse of memory that happens to the best of 'em. "You mean Harvey," said a fellow actor. "Yeah," said Jimmy, with a relieved smile, "Harvey." Then he ad libbed to the audience: "You know, a fellow can get mixed up in this play."

Paramount has writers working on "The Life of Paul Whiteman." . . .Leo Durocher has dedicated his book, "The Dodgers and Me." to Laraine Day. It reads: "To Laraine, The Manager's Manager."

OLD GAG, NEW TWIST

Kenny Washington, the Rams' All-American football star, played a barracks scene with Dick Powell in "Rogue's Regiment." A pixie prop man couldn't resist putting a sign over his bed: Kenny Washington Slept Here."

Richard Greene came back from the war six years older, but Fox still thought of him only as a dashing young juvenile. "And that," Dick told me, "is why I asked for a release to free lance. I couldn't go on dashing around with a tennis racket under my arm forever."

But Dick's fans can stop worrying about his future. He has four pictures lined up, including a change of pace as a likeable heavy in his current role with Doug Fairbanks, Jr., in "The O'Flynn." Then he goes back to Fox for "The Fan" (economy wave title for "Lady Windermere's Fan").

SECOND CHILDHOOD?

Who said cowboy star Roy Rogers was just a kids' star? He just received a fan letter and a request for a photograph from a 102-year-old lady in a Seattle nursing home. . .Ray Bolger's musical version of "Charley's Aunt" will be re-titled to avoid confusion with all the other revivals. . . .Lloyd Gough, who played the crooked fight promoter in "Body and Soul," knows about type casting now. He's playing a crooked baseball manager in "The Babe Ruth Story" and is being paged to play a crooked basketball manager in a Broadway play.

Bill Lundigan probably will join Joel McCrea and Zachary Scott in "South of St. Louis.". . .Charles Korvin's warbling on the Bob Hope airshow has his agents looking for a musical role.

A new daffy song, "Nursin' One Bear," may be driving you crazy soon. It was written by Joe Schwartz, newly elected mayor of Gower Gulch (hang-out of movie extras). Joe is a bit player with an Iving Berlin complex.

After dark: Cary Grant and his latest, Betsy Drake, at the Dells. . . .Gloria Jean will probably sign a three-year deal at Columbia.

'Egbert' Is Full Of Information

NEW YORK —(AP)— "Egbert," who met an untimely death about 62,000 years ago in what now is Lebanon, is in New York City.

During his stay, he may provide information on man's development.

"Egbert," the skeleton of a boy about eight years old, arrived here aboard the Marine Carp, with 140 cases of specimens dug up by archeologists at Ksar 'Akil north of Beirut.

The Nation's Press

BRITONS SEEING THE LIGHT?
(New York Daily News)

Great Britain's Labor (Socialist) Party is throwing its 47th annual conference just now, at Scarborough England, and some interesting dope is dripping out of the deliberations.

We're particularly intrigued by the notice which Herbert Morrison, one of the Laborite big shots, serving on his party a couple of days ago concerning further nationalization of industries.

The Labor Government has taken over coal, transport, electric power, civil aviation, and the Bank of England, and has been making sheep's eyes at the iron and steel companies. Morrison says, however, that the nationalization plans are now nearing their end. The party, too, is reported split on the question whether to tackle iron and steel after all, or to leave them in private hands.

We gather that some of the British Socialists, at long last, are seeing the light—or having the light flashed dazzlingly in their eyes by their shrinking pluralities in local elections.

Anyway, Morrison says: "We are getting to that very perilous stage in which peaceful revolutions have foundered. If we don't adapt ourselves to our new role of responsibility, the electors wil answer us in brutal and no uncertain terms."

That sounds like a politician's way of saying: "Gents, we haven't delivered the goods we said we would, and the voters are wising up to us, and we'd better consult their wishes for a change, or they'll toss us out first chance they get."

It is true that the Socialist haven't delivered the happines and prosperity they promised the British people. Instead of increasing their country's wealth, they have dissipated large amounts of it, have run through the $3.75 billion U. S. loan like a house afire, and are now making a disguised levy on capital. Meanwhile, Britons continue hungry, ill housed, and ill clad.

If the Labor Party really is going to taper off on the plans for Utopia in Britain, we think the British people will benefit. But if said people carry on from their present mood of disgust with this outfit and just boot it out of office as soon as opportunity offers, we think they'll benefit a great deal more.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK —(AP)— The greatest cheer leader of our time—"the man who looks like somebody else"—is ready again with slogan, flag and megaphone.

And that means J. Henry Smythe, the world's most persistent slogan writer, will be a delegate—unofficial, as usual—to the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia this month.

"I advocate a new deck to succeed the New Deal's long misdeal," said the Republican Party's oldest living unpaid press agent. "I won't really get down to coining slogans in earnest until after the convention of course."

A recent illness has slowed the pep of this silver-haired, 64-year-old veteran, a figure as familiar at Republican conventions as the elephant symbol. So he may come up with only 100 or 200 slogans this year, way below par.

Smythe—he pronounces it with a distinct "y"—is one of the characters of our era, one with a strong aversion to seeing his name out of print. He is a gentle, enthusiastic man gripped by a series of lifelong cases of hero worship.

His chief passions have been, slogans, Benjamin Franklin, the American Flag, the Republican Party, Teddy Roosevelt, and looking like somebody else. They have kept him so busy he has never smoked, tasted liquor or married.

He first got into the public eye by grabbing a flag and a megaphone after President Theodore Roosevelt had been nominated at Chicago in 1904 and bellowing to the surprised delegates:

"Three cheers for the President! Hip, Hip Hurrah!"

He has been yelling "hurrah" hard ever since. He has acquired and rejoiced since then in such titles as "The Boy Orator," "The No. 1 Flag-Waver," "Slogan Smythe," "The Grand Old Party's Megaphone Man," and "The Republican with a Democratic Face."

The last came from his startling profile resemblance to the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. He is pleased with the resemblance, but voted four times against his illustrious double. Looking like other people rather runs in the Smythe family.

"My father looked like George Washington," he said gravely "and once he was mistaken for President McKinley."

December Worst Month for Wreck At Road Crossings

WASHINGTON —(AP)— If it's a Saturday, in December, and shortly after 6 p. m., you better "Stop, Look and Listen," like they say on the railroad crossing warning signs.

The Interstate Commerce Commission said in a report on 1947 rail-highway grade crossing accidents that the day, month and hour seem to provide the most likely setup for something undesirable to happen.

The commission reported that Saturdays kept on being the top day for grade crossing collisions last year — just as the have been since 1935.

And for the fourth straight year, December produced more accidents of this type than any other month.

Society at Fault In Some Cases Is Doctors' Opinion

NEW YORK —(AP) Social cruelties actually cause some sexual perversions they are designed to halt, Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey says.

However, the Indiana University professor told the American Psychopathological Association, the code of society has a stronger hand in restraining such perversions than do laws.

The association, holding its annual meeting here, consists of physicians, biologists and psychologists who deal with abnormal persons.

Dr. Kinsey, author of the best seller "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male," presented statistics which he said showed that social customs are the main reason why many refrain from the practice of homosexuality.

People do practice it, he said, where there are no restraining social penalties, and among certain "segments of the population" the practice runs to 50 or 60 percent.

All of a person's experiences in life probably are involved in causing perversions, Dr. Kinsey asserted, adding that he believes physical differences are to some extent a factor. Heredity also might be a cause, he declared, but not a strong one.

Service for Patients Is Scheduled

North Plains Council escort service schedule for patients of the Amarillo Veterans Hospital for July-September has been completed, Lisette M. Anderson, field director of the Amarillo branch of the American Red Cross announced.

Pampa Red Cross Chapter will assist the wheel chair patients going to, during and returning from the Aug. 25 softball game in Amarillo. The recreation section of the hospital has arranged a full schedule of attendants for softball games that the patients will attend.

Other counties volunteering assistance to the wheel chair patients are Donley, Deaf Smith, Randall, Hutchinson, Ochiltree, Potter and Swisher. Miss Anderson announced that six volunteer workers are necessary for one night's service, but eight or ten could be used.

Volunteers have been asked to report at the Red Cross office of the hospital not later than 6:30 p. m. on the day assigned. The volunteers will meet the wheel chair patients at the elevators on the ground floor and assist them to the field. They should also be on hand during the game to give assistance, Miss Anderson said.

The ball game program is replacing the bimonthly parties council members have been sponsoring. The North Plains Council suggests regreshments be served to the patients in the court outdoors just before they are returned to their wards at 9 p. m.

"Some type of entertainment should be provided for the bed patients, as in the past," Miss Anderson added. "Some type of entertainment — games with prizes, a singer, a magician, a guitar player or any other 'mobile' kind of amusement — would be most welcome for them."

Care of Food Is Important

AUSTIN — Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, has issued a warning to parents that this is the season for an increase in dysentery, diarrhea and "summer complaint."

"The chief cause of these intestinal diseases are contaminated milk; water or food; allowing the child to get overheated or exhausted; excessive sugar in the babies' formula; and improper amount of food," Dr. Cox said. "All foods should be fresh and clean, and left-overs should be properly refrigerated to prevent spoilage."

Dr. Cox urged extreme care in the preparation of a feeding formula for infants. He said it should be prescribed by a physician, and that cleanliness and refrigeration were absolute essentials. Babies should be fed at regular intervals and on a definite schedule, since their stomach and bowels can be easily upset if fed irregularly or whenever they are fretful or restless.

The state health officer declared that dysentery is transmitted by flies and said every home should be well-screened and free of flies.

"If dysentery or diarrhea develop, consult your physician at once," Dr. Cox advised. "This so-called 'summer complaint' can be a very serious menace to your baby's health, if not an actual threat to his life."

Youth Charged With Aiding Prisoners

BELTON — (AP) — A 21-year-old youth has been indicted by the Bell County Grand Jury on charges of aiding the escape of three prisoners from the county jail here. All are now back in custody.

The jury returned the indictment against James Ferrell, Temple, and also recommended construction of a fence around the jail and new locks.

Southern Demos Beaten in Efforts to Amend Draft Bill

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Southern Democrats were beaten today in their efforts to amend the draft bill to allow enlisted men to serve in separate white or Negro units at their own request.

The Senate rejected by voice vote an amendment sponsored by Senators Russell (D-Ga.) and Maybank (D-SC).

The action came as Republican leaders planned a third straight day and night session in effort to pass the peacetime selective service measure and speed it to the House.

The decision was another step in the drawn-out draft-civil rights fight. Several other moves to attach civil rights amendments to the selective service bill have been disposed of.

The defeated amendment would have given every enlisted man or draftee in the Army, Navy, Marines or Air Force the right to request service only in units made up of men of his race. If this request was made in writing, officers would have been required to respect it.

In its second overtime session last night, the Senate adopted an amendment to limit the selective service law to two years instead of five as originally proposed.

Earlier it approved a provison to permit 25,000 aliens to serve in American armed forces here and abroad. At the end of five years the foreigners would qualify for U. S. Citizenship.

Once the issue of separate white and Negro units is decided by the 10:30 a. m. (CST) ballot, Senator Gurney (R-SD) floor manager of the bill, said he is confident the measure can be cleared swiftly to tthe House.

There, however, Chairman Leo E. Allen (R-Ill) told reporters "there is a very good chance" his Rules Committee will vote against putting a draft bill up for prompt House debate.

The Republican leadership has been pressing for enactment of the draft measure before the GOP National Convention 12 days off.

But Allen said only four committee members now favor sending the bill to the House floor, with four others — including himself — opposed, and the positions of the remaining four not yet known.

A Rules Committee turn-down on the measure would mean it would have to be pried out by a petition signed by 218 House members — a device that could be used only if Congress comes back to work after the party conventions.

Rocky and Tony to Do All Right With Title Bout Purse

NEWARK, N. J. —(AP)— The "seven millionaires" who are promoting the third Rocky Graziano-Tony Zale fight here tomorrow night won't get rich but Rocky and Tony will do all right.

A little matter of a guarantee posted in New Jersey assures Graziano, the Middleweight Champ, or at least $120,000. The ex-champ from Gary, Ind., will get $60,000 or more.

Neither Graziano nor Zale are close to the Dempsey-Tunney payoffs but they should have a little stacked away for their old age. In the first fight they each took down $78,892. As defending champ in Chicago last July, Zale was paid $152,968 and the Rock $76-484.

Despite early optimistic estimates of a Ruppert Stadium gate of $450,000, it looks now as though they'll settle for $350,000. At $30 tops the house is scaled for a $540,000 sellout.

Apparently the eight-year youth advantage of Graziano, who is 26 to Zale's 34, is the most important factor with those who bet on fights. Rocky was established as an early favorite and remains 5 to 12 despite the late hour. Some think Graziano may go into the ring at close to 1 to 3.

"I understand it was announced I would speak here. I am sorry I had gone to bed," he apologized. "But, I thought I would let you see what I look like, even if I didn't have on my clothes."

the entire Texas wheat front.

Hot harvest weather has put combines in the Panhandle wheat fields over an ever-expanding front, Bob McKinney of the TEC in Amarillo says.

On the South Plains cutting is underway on small patches around Plainview, McKinney reports. Dry land wheat is ripening fast, but irrigated wheat is still green.

In the northeast corner of the Panhandle early wheat is ripening rapidly, C. J. Warner, manager of the Borger TEC offices says. He estimates 150 to 200 combines will be cutting in the area by the end of this week.

In the county by county summaries, the TEC harvest official notes:

"Childress County—Harvest 20 percent complete, will end June 15. Weather hot and clear. Full swing operations, but with surplus of 20 combines and 25 trucks.

"Cottle County—harvest 20 percent complete. Will end June 15. Hot and clear. County reports surplus of 10 combines and 15 trucks.

"Hall County—Just 3 percent complete and expects to end June 20. A surplus of 5 combines and 8 trucks reported. Hot and clear with only small scale operations now."
