Avalanche Of Bitter Criticism Falls On General Nobile

Member of Crew Charges Commander With Desire To Leave Men

RESCUES PUSHED

Daring Krassin Crew In Effort to Save Third Stranded Group

ROME, July 15. (UP)—The Italian government tonight issued an official denial of "slanderous" reports published in foreign newspapers regarding the disaster of the transpolar dirigible Italia.

"Many foreign newspapers have specialized in slanderous campaigns against Italy and affirmed that the polar disaster was due to an order to General Nobile to reach the north pole May 24, the anniversary of Italy's intervention in the World War," the official statement said.

"Such an order never was imparted and therefore the story is another lie."

Desertion Charge

MOSCOW, Russia, July 15. (US) Charges that General Umberto Nobile wanted to leave two injured members of his crew while he and the remainder of his party set out on foot to reach the mainland of North East Land were made today by Professor Behunek, one of the seven men in the gondola of the dirigible Italia when it crashed off Foyn Island the night of May 25.

According to this charge, reported by Tass (the official Russian news agency) by one of its correspondents aboard the rescue ship Krassin, after the Italia crashed, Nobile wanted to strike out immediately for land, leaving behind Natale Cecclone and Dr. Finn Malmgren, the two seriously injured members of the group.

Nobile proposed, according to Professor Behunek, that the inured men could be housed in a shelter built of the wreckage of the gondola, and provided with food.

Suggestion Argued

Long and heated arguments met this suggestion, said Professor Behunek, and Nobile was outvoted by his men who declined to leave Cecclone, suffering from a broken leg, and Dr. Malmgren, who had a fractured wrist.

Then, Behunek's story continued, it was decided that some of the party of eight endeavor to reach the mainland and send back help, while the rest remain to care for the two injured. The three who were in the best condition were Captains Zappi and Mariano, and Guiseppi Biagi, the radio operator, and it was decided that these should make the effort to reach a settlement and send back aid to their comrades.

Malmgren Objects

This procedure was objected to by Dr. Malmgren, who said that he thought the radio man should be left to operate the wireless, thus giving a double chance of summoning help. Malmgren himself volunteered to accompany Mariano and Zappi. He argued that the handicap of his injuries would be offset by his greater knowledge of the Arctic.

Professor Behunek's statement of the occurrences at the red tent camp contradicts that of Commander Nobile, versions of which were printed here today. Nobile was quoted as saying that it was with the greatest reluctance that he permitted any of his men to leave the camp, being convinced that they would never reach the coast of North East Land. His greatest hope, Nobile said, was in getting word to the world through the radio operated by Biagi.

Rest for Ancient Dead Egypt's Aim

KARL H. VAN WIEGAND

BERLIN, July 15. (US)—"Let the dead rest! The ancient dead have the same right to respect and rest that the dead of today have."

That, according to advices from Cairo today, is a new national slogan in Egypt. Sentiment against the public exhibition in museums of the mummies of the royal dead of ancient Egypt, and especially against the removal of mummies from their tombs and taken out of their native land to New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, London, Paris and other cities, has been growing for some time.

The nationalists are beginning to make it a political issue.

TWO-GUN MAN STOPS BULLET

Gangland Claims Another Victim in Duel

CHICAGO, July 15. (US)—Gangland guns barked again in Chicago today and when the smoke of a mysterious duel cleared away one notorious gangster had paid with his life. Another was perhaps fatally wounded.

The dead man was identified as Danny Hartnett, a two-gun terror of the underworld. He was slain, police were told, in a duel with Patsy Pardi, 23-year-old ally of the Jack Zuta vice interests.

Once Beer King

Hartnett, according to investigators, was once a powerful chieftain in the Joe Saltis beer running gang. He was killed with one of his own guns, wrested from him by Pardi after the latter had been shot in the abdomen. Padi, it is believed, will die.

The shooting occurred in a west side hotel, said to be noted as a rendezvous of gangsters. This hotel, recently under fire of police for its alleged vice activities, was said to be operated by Zuta, who employed Pardi as a clerk.

Motive Obscured

The motive behind the shooting is obscured by gangland's traditional veil of silence. Police view it, however, as a manifestation of the seething conditions in gangland which flared forth anew with the assassination recently of "Big Tim" Murphy.

The accepted theory is that while Zuta was conveniently out of the city some of his henchmen tried to reopen his vice resorts. Hartnett, it is believed, was employed by rival interests to "muscle" Zuta's men out of the notion.

It is known that Hartnett swaggered into the hotel and that hot words passed between himself and Pardi. A few minutes later they were "saying it with bullets."

Trial of Pryor and Shook May Be Postponed for Additional Inquiry

The case of Ed Pryor and Tom Shook erstwhile officers of Electra who were indicted for burglary on three counts each, set for trial Monday morning at 9 o'clock in 30th district court, may not go to trial at this time, it was indicated Sunday.

A special prosecutor, tentatively secured by citizens of Electra, said Sunday night that it was probable that the court would be asked to continue the case until the grand jury may be called again by Judge E. G. Thornton to investigate further into the activities of the two men.

Ben P. Allred, district attorney, declared Sunday night that he was anxious to press the charges against the two men at the earliest possible opportunity and was against postponement of the trial.

A number of county officials who declared that they would not appear against the Electra men until their activities were further investigated and the findings passed upon by the grand jury were issued subpoenas to appear in 30th district court Monday morning.

Judge E. G. Thornton declared that so far as he was informed there was nothing which might necessitate recalling the grand jury which adjourned last week. So far as he knew, he said, Shook and Pryor will go to trial Monday morning.

Charges Follow Escape

The charges of burglary against Shook and Pryor followed the escape from the county jail and recapture of Henry Shumate. Shumate was captured by Sheriff W. G. Bralley and Warren Belcher, deputy, about a day after the break. At the time he was found Shumate was sleeping with Pryor, at that time constable at Electra, Sheriff Bralley said.

When the matter was investigated by the grand jury in 30th district court the three men were charged with burglary of the King News stand in Electra on May 29. Each man was indicted on counts of principal, accomplice and accessory after the fact. Their bond was set at $1500 and the two men were released until Monday, when they are ordered to appear for trial.

SMITH FRIENDS FEAR INCREASE IN CONFIDENCE

Supporters of Nominee Get Uneasy Over Growing Opposition

SOUTH SENSITIVE

"Play" Made to Win Wet Votes of East Hard To Take in Dixie

NEW YORK, July 15. (SS)—Developments in Democratic circles the last few days have caused some of the politically seasoned Smith supporters to counsel against the over-confidence which has crept into the Smith camp as a result of his easy triumph in the Democratic convention at Houston.

The old wheel-horses of Democracy today were discounting the notion that Smith is a "man of destiny" who will sweep the country.

They realize that several entirely new factors, which cannot be gauged accurately at this time, will enter into the campaign and that it behooves the Democrats to prepare for one of the bitterest political battles in American history.

Many Sided Fight

While the Democratic managers plan to carry the fight to Herbert Hoover with their candidate, it was pointed out that Smith's long public record will probably be attacked by the Republicans from many angles.

Not only must the Democrats meet the onslaughts of the Republican opposition, but they must guard against defections in their own ranks, which might prove even more destructive. Although most of the Democratic leaders are falling into line behind the party candidate there is ample evidence that some of them never will become reconciled to Smith.

South Watched

In view of the danger of some reputable Democrat throwing a brick in the midst of the campaign, which might be damaging to Smith's candidacy, the old leaders are warning against taking the south too much for granted as a Democratic stronghold.

It is not only Smith's candidacy that they have in mind but the possibility of defeat for southern congressmen in several districts in Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Missouri, which are normally Democratic but close. If Smith is elected he will need a Democratic congress to carry out his program and his supporters feel he cannot afford to

DAWES MOUNTS HOOVER WAGON

Vice President Puts Quietus On Rumors

CHICAGO, Ill., July 15. (US)—Vice President Dawes hopped on Herbert Hoover's band wogan today with a prediction that the G. O. P. standard bearer will have "a fine victory in the election."

"I think that the great issue in the mind of the people is continuance of prosperity and competent management of governmental affairs," declared Vice President Dawes.

He announced that he will do all he can for Hoover's election and success of the Republican party in the national elections.

Outlook "Good."

The outlook for Republican success in Illinois and the country as a whole is "Good," in the vice president's opinion. Hoover will have a large majority in Illinois, he said.

Thus did Vice President Dawes put the Quietous on rumors that he would not give the nominee, Hoover, his whole hearted support in the campaign. Dawes has been on the "outs" with Secretary Hoover and President Coolidge on farm relief proposals.

The vice president championed the often vetoed McNary-Haugen bill, while Secretary Hoover opposed it. Announcement by Dawes that he will actively support the party standard bearer was expected to strengthen the candidate in the middle west.

Hoover Greeted

Dawes greeted Secretary Hoover and Mrs. Hoover at the railroad station upon their arrival here this afternoon. He received the nominee and Mrs. Hoover cordially and then they motored to the Dawes home at Evanston.

Several thousand persons greeted Hoover upon his arrival here. They cheered him as he walked through the railroad depot to waiting automobiles. The nominee smiled broadly to the crowd and on a balcony in the railroad station he lifted his hat in acknowledgement of the cheers.

Maid Spends Night Adrift in Canoe After Boy Friend Makes Swim in Vain

OAK BLUFFS, Mass., July 15. (US)—Nineteen-year-old Helen McNamee was safe today at Davisville, Mass., where her rowboat washed ashore in the fog after she had been adrift alone for more than 15 hours. Scores of pleasure boats and fishing vessels had joined the coastguard yesterday afternoon when her young man companion swam ashore to get help after losing an oar.

Although she was exhausted by the ordeal of a helpless night on the ocean, Miss McNamee said she was not nervous. All of her energies were needed to keep the rowboat's prow headed into the waves to prevent it from swamping. This she did with the single oar that remained.

Miss McNamee, who lives in Providence, and a companion went for a row late yesterday afternoon. One of the oars was lost and her companion, unable to handle the boat, jumped overboard and attempted to swim ashore and drag the small boat with a towline. Failing to make progress he swam ashore for help.

NOBILE CENTER OF CRITICISM

Explorer Brings Wrath Of Press On His Head

—Mario Carli and Emilio Melli—have challenged the editor of the Paris Matin to a duel for its articles disparaging Italy in connection with General Nobile's Arctic expedition.

The challengers declare that if the editor of the Matin is not available for the duel they will fight his representative.

The newspaper Giornal di Italia in referring to the insinuations about Nobile says:

"We reject scornfully the rumors and insinuations of a number of Swedish and Norwegian newspapers in connection with Roald Amundsen and Prof. Finn Malmgren. We are unable to tolerate such language at the moment when there are many proofs of the daring, chivalry and companionship of both countries."

MOSCOW, Russia, July 15. (AP)—The Russian ice breaker Krassin reported by wireless today that she was proceeding cautiously in dense fog in an effort to locate the unrescued group of the Italia crew as well as Captain Roald Amundsen, who it is believed, may be with them. The sturdy Soviet ship was in the vicinity where the Viglieri group of survivors from the ill-fated dirigible was picked up last Thursday.

The Italia group sought is known as the Alessandri group and there are supposed to be six men in it. Captain Amundsen had five companions with him when the French seaplane in which they were winging their way northward to the rescue of Nobile and his crew disappeared on June 18 after leaving Tromsoe Norway. Included in this party was Lieutenant Lief Dietrichsen, Norwegian Aretic explorer, and Captain Rene Gilbaud, noted French pilot.

May Make Flights

If the Krassin is unable to make her way through the ice fields and foe it is thought by the Russian relief committee here that she will return to a point near Cape Pizen and pick up the Russian aviator Chukhnovsky and his four companions who have been marooned there since forced to land because of damage to their plane. With Chukhnovsky aboard it would be possible for him to make observation flights into territory that the ice breaker cannot penetrate. Chukhnovsky and his companions are reported well.

The relief committee still is receiving telegrams of congratulation from all parts of the world on the feat of the Krassin in rescuing the Viglieri group and the "walking party" of Mariano and Zappi last week.

Rumor Discredited

MOSCOW, Russia, July 15. (AP)—The report received in Stockholm that Captain Roald Amundsen and Capt. Rene Guilbaud have been rescued by the Russian ice breaker Maligin was discredited in responsible quarters here today.

Malmgren's Death Told

MOSCOW, July 15. (AP)—A graphic account of the tragedy that befel Dr. Finn Malmgren, noted Swedish meteorologist including his burial alive in an icy grave, is given in a radiogram to Tass Soviet News Agency from Professor Samoilovich. Companions of the scientist were rescued by the ship last week and are recuperating from their harrowing experience.

The three men left the main group of Italia survivors to try to find help and wandered aimlessly about in an ice-bound world until Dr. Malmgren could go no further, according to Professor Samoilovich's request for details as to how Malmgren died, Zappi said:

Untold Suffering

"In our march landword we suffered untold privation. For days were drifted on floating ice. Several miles southeast of Island Brok, Malmgren was unable to march on and told us to go ahead and take all the provisions. Before leaving Malmgren asked us to dig a grave in the ice and he lay down. Quietly he stretched out his hand bidding adieu and handing his compass requesting us to give it to his mother."

Rescue Related

MOSCOW, July 15. (AP)—An eyewitness account of the rescue of the Viglieri group of Italia survivors by the ice breaker Krassin last Thursday is given in a radiogram to Tass, the official Soviet News agency from its correspondent, Shipanov, on board the steamer as follows:

"The group rescued and now aboard the Krassin consists of Viglieri, Ciceoni, Trovani, Behunek, and Biagi.

Rockets Guide Ship

"Heavy ice made approach difficult, but pushing on vigorously the Krassin rapidly covered the distance, steering for the smoke signals and rockets sent up. At 9:50 the Krassen crew climbed on the ice and open-handedly received five men who appeared in fine condition save Ciceoni, whose leg was broken.

"The Krassen halted in close ice at 80 meters distance, 15 meters away was the radio mast of the Italia on a heap of wreckage of the chief gondola.

Group Well Off

"The rescued group was well provided with food and warm clothing as well as sleeping bags and three pneumtoic boats held ready for emergencies such as the smash-up of the ice.

"Lundberg's plane lay upside down on the very edge of the ice field. The plane's upper wings were smashed, the lower wing being utilized as a floor for the tent.

Women Wear Kilts In Short Skirt Vogue

EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 15. (US)—It is not Scotsmen, but their women-folk, that one sees in kilts nowadays. Kilts of the clan tartans are exceedingly fashionable, and it is not the pleated skirt, but a real kilt, that is to be seen in very general use. In some cases the pleating is continued all the way around but in most there is little or no difference from the kilts worn by men, which are plain in front and full skirted behind.

It is no doubt the vogue of short skirts that has popularized the kilt among women. When dresses were long they dared not be seen in a knee-length kilt, but now that picturesque "Higland" attire is all the fashion.

IT'S A HIM

Al Makes Interesting Discovery About Pet Burro

HOUSTON, Texas, July 15.(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democratic nominee for president, has a new mascot.

"Mrs. Smith brought 'Baby Houston' safetly home to me. We gave her a royal welcome and installed her in my menagerie.

"I deeply appreciate your good wishes and thank you.

"Yours truly,

"ALFRED SMITH."

Scrawled in the governor's handwriting was this postscript: "Just found out its a him, not a her."

GOLDEN GRAIN FILLS BANKS

Kansas Prospers With Bulging Wheat Crops

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 15. (UP)—Wheat has well earned its name as the golden grain, and borrowing Kansas of yesterday today has millions of dollars in Kansas City banks.

With the crop made, the business of financing it is now under way. Although the wheat is yet to be delivered to the miller or baker, the flow of money has started into the pockets of the farmers.

The increase in deposits in Kansas City banks this week is largely a story of wheat. At the present time, Kansas City is serving its customary part as the finance center in financing the marketing of the wheat crop. To permit the grower to be paid, the grain dealer had to be advanced the money until the wheat moves to the millers or bakers or is shipped to foreign ports.

And thus, the increase in deposits is part of the checking account, the new purchasing power of Kansas and the southwest. One bank reported an increase in deposits of 10 million dollars in the last fortnight.

Back home in Kansas the small town banks are receiving the proceeds from the sales made here. Wichita, Kan., one of the grain centers in Kansas, reported an increase of $4,000,000 in deposits.

6,000 Cars Shipped

Starting with a shipment of 1,499 cars Monday long lines of cars loaded with the valuable grain have been pulled into here every day this week. About 6,000 cars reached Kansas City this week, it has been estimated, with 891 arriving today. This is estimated to be approximately eight and one-half million bushels with a value of 10 million dollars.

Youngest Stenog

Honor Claimed for Girl, 12, Who Has Been Secretary to Peace Justice for Two Years, Taking Notes and Typing

Dorothy McDonough and her employer, Justice Frank Campbell.

By EARL B. DOUGLAS
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Record News.

O'NEILL, Neb., July 15.—The youngest private stenographer and secretary in the world, it is claimed, is Dorothy McDonough, 12, of O'Neill, who is office stenographer and secretary to Justice of the Peace Frank Campbell.

Justice Campbell, who combines insurance writing with his duties as justice of the peace, is loud in his praises of the little girl, whose salary he pays each week. "She doesn't waste time powdering and primping," he declares, "and she's the most efficient office assistant I've been able to find." Campbell is 79 years old, so there is a difference of 67 years between his age and that of Dorothy.

Dorothy, a pupil in the seventh grade, was only 10 when she began to work for the justice after school hours on week days and on Saturdays. She types her employer's insurance policies, court records and testimony taken in his municipal court.

Though small, even for her age, Dorothy is accurate and competent. Justice Campbell says, and handles the typewriter with the confidence of a veteran. He avers he would have to close his office if it were not for her. Dorothy returns the compliment by replying that any girl could work for him, as he is so patient and helpful in assisting her over the rough spots.

Police court often is crowded by persons curious to observe this small girl type court proceedings and testimony. She has won a number of honors for swift and accurate typing and shorthand writing, both of which subjects she still is studying in commercial classes in her school.

TIPTON PLANS ANNUAL FAIR

Celebration to Open On August 2

TIPTON, Okla., July 15.—The Tipton picnic, an annual county celebration, in conjunction with the 19th anniversary fair, is to be held this year, August 2, 3, and 4.

The affair is to be held in the city park and the city trustees have made arrangements with three of Tipton's business men, Flynn Testerman, Fred Simpson and "Brownie" Padgett, to stage the annual picnic and 19th anniversary.

Exhibits Increased

An extensive advertising campaign has begun and efforts are to be made to build up the fair features this year. More exhibits than ever before will be shown, it has been said, and it is hoped more interest can be directed to this department. Although it is impossible to say just what prizes will be given it is understood that several hundred dollars will be given as awards for prize-winning live stock and agricultural displays.

Many contests and other fun-making stunts are scheduled and a real "old timers'" celebration is promised.

Booster Trip

The promoters are planning an extended booster trip this year. Practically every town in Tillman county, as well as the surrounding counties will be visited. This trip is to be made July 30 or 31.

A part of the proceeds derived from concession rights will be returned to the city. This money will be used by the trustees to purchase needed furniture and equipment for the newly completed city hall.

Smith Friends Fear Confidence

lose those seats by asking the southerners to swallow his present policy designed to appeal to the wet, industrial east, without giving southerners some sort of an "out."

Up to Committee

Just what this "out" will be is one of the many matters yet to be ironed out by the candidate and the new national chairman, John J. Raskob. In all probability, it will be furnished by the advisory committee or board of strategy, headed by Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, which will be named early this week.

Meanwhile, it was indicated that southern congressmen intend to run very much on their own rather than the party ticket. In so doing they will base their appeal for election largely on the race question and raise the old issue of the Force bill.

Smith Holds Tongue

ALBANY, N. Y., July 15. (AP)—For the present at least Governor Smith apparently intends to rest on his counter-attack to the assault of William Allen White on his legislative record.

The Democratic presidential nominee made no further comment today regarding either the Kansas editor or the Rev. O. R. Miller, superintendent of the New York Civic league, who, he charged yesterday, furnished White false information on which he based his attack.

Even the denial from the Kansan that he had received any information from Miller and a new assault from White on Smith's stand on prohibition and his connection with Tammany hall failed to move the governor to open up again on his critics.

Editor Optimistic

ATLANTA, Ga., July 15. (AP)—Confidence that the Democratic party would be successful in the November elections was expressed today by Major John S. Cohen, editor of the Atlanta Journal and Democratic national committeeman from Georgia in a statement issued on his return from the meeting of the committee at New York last week.

"Since 1892, either in the capacity of a newspaper reporter or as an official of the Democratic party, I have been attending Democratic national conventions and meetings of the Democratic national committee," said Major Cohen in his statement. "At the recent meeting of the committee in New York, there was an unmistakable air of confidence and militancy. From all parts of the nation men and women expressed the belief that Democratic victory at the polls in November was more nearly assured than at any other previous similar time in the history of the party. The conference of Democratic leaders in the east was matched by the confidence of Democratic leaders from the south, and it is apparent that victory is practically assured. If Smith carries the eastern states and the south remains Democratic.

States "Solid"

"Naturally, there was the keenest interest manifested as to the situation in Georgia, the two Carolinas, Florida and Alabama, these states having been most active in their opposition to Governor Smith's nomination. During the pre-convention fight and at Houston, I made many useful, interesting and agreeable contacts with the Democratic leaders from the five states above mentioned. Many of these were present in New York at the meeting of the national committee and they expressed the hope and the confident belief that the usual Democratic majorities in their states would be accorded the nominee.

"It is significant that, without exception, every Democratic senator and congressman from these five states and the editor of practically every newspaper in these five states is giving wholehearted support to the Democratic ticket."

Texas in Toils

Texas Guinan, New York night club hostess, whose club was raided with those of other prominents in a drive by prohibition agents to dry up Broadway, snapped at the Federal building, New York city, as she surrendered to answer charges of violating the prohibition law.

BOXERS SEEN OVER RADIO

Another Step Taken In Television Test

NEW YORK, July 15. (AP)—The day when radio owners will be able to tune in on sporting events and other happenings of interest in any part of the country and see them, instead of merely hearing an announcer's description, has moved one step closer.

The Bell Telephone laboratories today demonstrated their improved sunlight television apparatus which shows several full-length figures as they move about an area roughly the size of a boxing ring. Previously television had been restricted to recording no more than a head and shoulders.

At today's demonstration a man served tennis balls, drove a golf ball, boxed with a companion, and went through other motions on the laboratory roof, and on another floor every action was shown in perfect detail on a screen about two inches by three.

The television images were as clear as the average movie and were marred only by an appearance of being under a near-thin sheet of water moving slowly upward across the picture. This defect engineers attributed to the fact that the elegtric eye of the televisor scans its field through holes in a revolving disc. Increase in the number of these holes or adjustment of their position, they believed, would eliminate the trouble.

LIQUOR DRIVE ALONG BORDER

Federal Agents to Battle Smuggling

WASHINGTON, July 15. (US)—Treasury officials will start a drive this week to make prohibition more effective in the states along the Canadian border.

Encouraged by the cooperation now being rendered by the Canadian government in helping to suppress rum smuggling, as evidenced by the recent seizure of $10,000,000 worth of liquors in a Windsor, Ont., warehouse, those in charge of federal enforcement profess to see a new era in handling the difficult border problem.

The first step in the new campaign was the recent enlargement of patrol forces on the Great Lakes.

Another move in this direction will get under way tomorrow when representatives of all railroads crossing the international boundary line will gather here for a conference with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman and Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

The object of this session is to devise ways and means of curbing the illegal use of railroad equipment in the outlawed rum trade.

The railroad conference will be followed with a general session of all prohibition administrators in Washington. Each of the administrators will make a report on conditions in his respective zone of operations. More particularly, however, the field bosses will hear plans which are now being worked out by treasury officials to dry up the more admittedly wet spots in the country.

DETROIT, July 15. (AP)—George Souders, of Lafayette, Ind., winner of the 500-mile automobile race at Indianapolis two years ago, was seriously injured here today, when his car hurtled through the inner rail during a dirt track race. At a hospital where the driver was taken, little hope was entertained for his recovery.

Flapper Granny Reveals Some New Beauty Tips to London Audience

LONDON, July 15. (US)—"Three or four of my friends are dead today because they took internal things to make them grow thin. And what's the good of being dead?"

This was one of the many amusing things that Fanny Ward, the famous "flapper granny," told the audience at the Coliseum the other day.

Fanny gave her listeners some excellent beauty tips, which many women present immediately wrote down in small notebooks.

Among the health and beauty rules were the following:

Go to the dentist three or four times a year.

Do not use soap and water on your face. After thirty water on the face makes the skin like leather. Use an oily facing lotion and cleansing cream.

Rub your face and neck with a piece of ice every morning on getting up.

Never eat more than you can hold in your two hands at a time.

Beefsteaks are High Now But Worst Is Yet to Come, Cattle Traders Aver

DENVER, Colo., July 15. (UP)—Housewives who have been perturbed over the highest meat prices since the war may be interested to know the worst is still ahead.

The cost of a nice thick beefsteak, already at a level not approached since 1920, has not yet reached its peak, say commission merchants who trade at the Denver Union stockyards. Added to that cheering bit of news is the assertion that pork, lamb, veal and the rest of the table meats are steadily mounting price scale.

Cowmen Happy

Here in the plains country there is jubilation and talk of new prosperity. It is not to be wondered at, for the lot of the cattleman since the war has been a hard one and this is his first really good year since the post-bellum slump.

To quote statistics briefly:

Mature beef steers and yearlings brought from 25 to 50 cents more a hundred last week than the week before. Some of the mixed yearlings gained 75 cents a hundredweight. Ninety-eight head of 810-pound mixed yearlings sold for $15.50 a hundred pounds. When the price is compared with the rate of $7.50 and $8.50 paid after the decline of 1921, the high spirits of the cattlemen are not to be wondered at.

Each week has been setting new records and there is no telling when the top will be reached.

Prices Permanent

"The present cycle of high prices will be more permanent than the one during the world war period," said A. G. Prey, president and manager of Prey Brothers Commission company, "and it has been brought about under normal conditions.

"The livestock producer has weathered a long period of liquidation. This year he again has been able to derive a profit. Herds gradually are built up, but not overstocked as they were during the war."

That overstocking and the sudden decline of prices brought hardship to many cattlemen. Whole herds had to be thrown overboard, but while they were going prices dropped dizzily.

Memories of lean years caused a quick reaction through the west, to talk of meat boycotts in eastern cities. The ranchers feel that they have as much right to periods of good times as the next fellow. Perhaps when the cattle supply is built up again, prices will get down to a point where both consumer and producer can be happy.

Vacation Starts

Mrs. Ora Turner, cashier and voucher clerk in the office of W. E. McBroom, city clerk, is starting her annual two weeks vacation Monday morning, according to Mr. McBroom.

COUNCIL FACES TORRID SESSION

Bond Issue, Depositing And Other Matters Up

One of the most vital meetings of the city council in many moons is scheduled for Monday night, according to those with their ears close to the ground of city government.

A gigantic bond issue, discussed in a private letter by the city manager to the aldermen, may be presented; bids on the depository for city funds from August 1 of this year to July 31 of 1929 will be received; bids for the legal advertising of the city will be received, and the city ordinance to permit two-hour alley parking will come up for second reading.

The bond issue, accented for many months as inevitable, is mainly for the water department. It calls for $1,400,000 for improvements to the system. A second issue of $252,899 would retire numerous debts that have piled upon the city in the past few years. The total of the two issues would be $1,652,899.

The cost of minor items in the completion of the city auditorium amounting to $125,000 is the largest single item in the smaller issue. Street improvements call for $65,000, cemetery debts call for $20,000 and the miscellaneous floating debt for which time warrants have been issued by the council total $42,899.

The water works improvements would include pipe lines from Lake Wichita to the filtration plant, a high pressure pumping station, a 12,000,000 gallon purification plant and other items suggested in the Black and Veatch water survey report.

G. O. P. Committeeman Of Fort Worth Resigns

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 15. (AP)—Declaring he is out of harmony with the idea of R. B. Creager, national committeeman, dominating the Republican party in Texas, C. C. Littleton of Fort Worth, resigned as a member of the Republican state executive committee.

In his letter Littleton charged that Creager is dominating the party in Texas.

"Stop, Look, Listen" Shows Good Results

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Long reiteration of "stop, look, listen," has apparently begun to have some effect.

The number of persons killed in grade crossing accidents in 1927, as compared with 1926, declined four percent, the American railway association announced today, in spite of the fact that there was an increase of five percent in the number of fatalities due to accidents on highways.

FRANCE, ITALY ACCEPT PACT

State Department Pleased At Attitudes

WASHINGTON, July 15. (AP)—Unqualified acceptances by Italy and France of Secretary Kellogg's treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy, the preamble of which was revised and resubmitted to 14 principal nations on June 23, were made public tonight by the state department.

American government officials, while refusing comment on the replies, indicated their gratification over the attitude of the two European governments toward the new pact. Germany already has accepted without reservation and unofficial information indicates Great Britain will present a favorable reply this week.

Brief Acceptance

Premier Mussolini's acceptance for Italy was brief. Dated today, it said:

"The royal government, which has attentatively examined the last draft of a treaty for the elimination of war proposed by the United States, takes note of and agrees with the interpretation of the said treaty which the government of the United States sets forth in the note of June 23 last and on this premise declares that it is disposed to proceed to the signature thereof."

Briand's Note

Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, in his note dated July 14, said, "it follows from the new preamble that the proposed treaty indeed aims at the perpetuation of the Pacific and friendly relations under the contractual conditions in which they are today established between the interested nations; that it is essentially a question for the signatory powers of renouncing war as an instrument of their national policy,' and also that the signatory power which hereafter might seek, by itself resorting to war, to promote its own national interests, should be denied the benefits of the treaty."

M. Briand said France was happy to declare that it is in accord with these new stipulations and to take note of the interpretations Secretary Kellogg had given to the new treaty in his note of June 23 with a view to satisfying the various observations which had been formulated from the French point of view.

Wurzbach Boosted As Vet Leader

The United Spanish War Veterans of the department of Texas will thrown their support for national commander to Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin at the coming national convention of the organization in October at Havana, according to W. R. Duke, immediate past commander of the department of Texas.

"The United Spanish War Veterans do not know or recognize political party affiliations within their ranks," Mr. Duke said. "Mr. Wurzbach is a hard worker and a man worthy of the support of the Texans, so at the state convention a week ago in El Paso he was endorsed as Texas' choice for the national honor. Whatever the Texas department can do to win this high honor for Mr. Wurzbach will be done."

Race Horses Shipped To Dallas for Fair

The first stable arrived this week and is in training on the three-quarter mile track at the fair grounds.

Women More Often Make Lifelong Friends Than Do Counterparts

Lifetime Friendships Between Women Are the Rule Rather Than the Exception, Whereas Few Men Have Closer Friends Among Their Sex Than Business Associates or Club Acquaintances.

A man asks: "Why are there no great friendships between women like that between David and Jonathan, and Damon and Pythias? Are women by nature too catty or don't they care for friendships with each other?"

But there are great friendships between women. Women have a genius for friendship, and their friends figure far more importantly in their lives than men's friends do in theirs. Also the average woman has far more friends than the average man has.

Virtually every woman has an intimate woman friend with whom she chums and to whom she turns in her joy and sorrow, certain of sympathy and understanding and help, but very few men have anything more than a business and club acquaintance among other men. Their close friendships nearly always end at the college gate. Not many middle-aged men have men friends in whom they confide, of whose society they never tire and who are as necessary to their happiness as women friends are to their wives.

Indeed, a woman friend is essential to a woman, and poor and lonely and forlorn is the one who has not some Mary or Sally on whose steadfast affection she can depend, on whose loyalty she can rely with implicit faith, whose congeniality has stood the wear and tear of years of daily association and who is first at the cradle and last at the grave in every crisis of her life.

I know hundreds of such friendships between women. Women who for half of a lifetime have wept and rejoiced together; who have borne each other's burdens and triumphed in each other's successes. Women who have bathed each other's babies and folded the hands of each other's dead. Women who have helped each other give bridge parties and trodden each other's Gethsemanes. Women who have kept each other's secrets and listened with unfaltering patience to each other's tales of woe. Women who have divided their last dollar with other women and given of themselves when they had no money to give.

And it is perhaps because such friendships between women are common and not rare that no one notices them.

Nearly every woman has some woman friend to whom she flees as to a temple of refuge in times of stress in her life. Almost every woman has some woman friend who is an integral part of her existence, on whom she largely depends for companionship, with whom she likes to run around, as the phrase goes; whom she sees or calls up on the telephone if they live near together, and with whom she corresponds regularly if they are parted.

But not many men have that kind of a friend. Few men care enough for another man to bother to write him a letter or to remember his birthday or to do any of the thousand little things by which women express their friendship for each other.

The old theory that women are by nature antagonistic to each other and that they instinctively claw each other dies hard in spite of the fact that all observations and experience disprove it. And it is part of this erroneous belief that women are hard on women and incapable of friendship with each other.

Why women should not be permitted to judge each other as men judge each other and to feel toward each other as men feel toward each other, nobody knows. But they are not. Nobody accuses a man of having a prejudice against his sex because he thinks that a man who commits a cold-blooded murder should be electrocuted, but a woman is considered hard and cruel to her sex unless she sheds gobs of tearrs over a murderess and thinks that a female bandit is a poor, persecuted creature who should be set free to rob somebody else.

And it is the same way with friendship. Not every man likes every other man or finds him congenial. Not every man spends his time hurling bouquets at other men, but the minute a woman doesn't fall on the neck of a sister or a woman criticizes another woman somebody says, scat! and cries out that there is no real friendship between women.

Which is utter nonsense. So is the often expressed idea that a woman's best friend is a man, and that if a woman wants help it is better to go to a man friend than a woman friend.

Perhaps if a woman wants money she is more likely to get it from a man that from a woman, for the simple reason that men generally have more money than women have; but in the cases where women have independent fortunes of their own they nearly always give lavishly and generously to their friends in distress. Often they give it when it means deprivations to themselves. Furthermore, they give altruistically; whereas only too often the man's gift must be repaid with the recipient's self-respect.

Men are also nearly always fair-weather friends. They like a woman to be always at her best, and for her to be bright, cheerful and entertaining and able to amuse them. They have morbid horror of tears and scenes and hard-luck stories, and so when a woman falls on evil days she nearly always finds that her men friends fade out of the picture and that it is only her women friends who stand by her through her dark hour.

It is her women friends who let her sob on their shoulders and who listen sympathetically while she tells them over and over again about her troubles that they cannot help, but they know she somehow gets a strange comfort out of just talking about them. And it is the women friends who stir men friends up into finding some place where the poor women who are left penniless by the loss of their providers can make a living.

Why, there is nothing in the world more beautiful than the friendship between women, and most of us, thank God, have what little Emmy Lou in the story called a "nintimant friend" who makes life better worth living for us and to whom our heart cleaves as did David's to Jonathan's.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I once had a wonderful and lovable wife and a beautiful child. On account of my disagreeable disposition, she left me and took with her our child and went back to her profession of nursing. Why I ever treated her so I don't know, because I love her beter than anything on earth and I never dreamed that a love like ours could ever be killed, but I guess I have killed hers, because she refuses to come back to me. I feel I can't go on living without her. How can I get her back? DICK.

Answer—You have made the same mistake, Dick, that a great many other men make in thinking that a wife's love is indestructable, and that because a woman loves you once, she is bound to go on loving you to the end of the chapter because she can't help herself.

Most husbands cherish a belief that there is some peculiarity about the feminine heart that makes it a sort of perpetual motion machine that makes it go on automatically functioning no matter how they abuse it.

Never was there a greater mistake.

A woman's love is a sensitive plant that shrinks up at the slightest touch, and that withers and dies under neglect. It is true that not every wife leaves the husband who treats her badly, but she may stick to him through pride, through a sense of duty to her children or because he is a meal ticket, but it is not because she loves him. He has killed her love by his cruel treatment.

And let me tell you, Dick, that now that women are becoming self-supporting, as your wife is, husbands will have to mind their manners and mend their ways if they expect to keep their wives. The woman who has a good profession at which she can earn her own living will not stand for ill-treatment from her husband.

The only thing you can do is to court your wife all over again. You won her once, perhaps you can do so again if you can convince her that you have really learned your lesson. And you will have a powerfully ally in your child.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—About a year ago I met a man who professed to love me dearly, and with whom I fell in love so that I care for him more than anything else in the world. Now, after a year of devotion, I find that he is a married man and that his wife is returning from Europe. He begs me not to tell his wife about his affair with me, but I am going to tell her everything and ruin his life as he has ruined mine. He has no children, so I do not see any reason why I alone should suffer. What do you think? LOST AT LOVE.

Answer—Two wrongs never made a right, and I do not think that you will ease the hurt in your own heart by making others suffer.

Instead of dwelling on thoughts of revenge and filling your mind with bitterness, why do you not try to see the thing straight? If you could behold this man as he really is, it would effectually cure your love for him.

You love him because you have idealized him and believed him a real man, a fine, brave, honorable gentleman. See him as he is: a lying cad who decives a girl into believing him free and so wins her love, disloyal both to the girl and to his wife, and at the last a trembling coward who tries to hide behind the skirts of the girl he has wronged.

What do you see to love in a man with a yellow streak in him? Instead of wanting to be revenged on so poor a creature, you should thank your heavenly stars that you missed getting him. It is his wife I am sorry for, not you.

Texas Vegetable And Fruit Shipments Up

AUSTIN, July 15. (AP)—June shipments of fruits and vegetables in Texas were the heaviest ever recorded for that month, the current issue of the Texas Business Review, published by the Texas University business research bureau, says.

Crops generally are of excellent quality and yields are good, despite unfavorable spring weather, Bernard Nichols, editor, said in a survey.

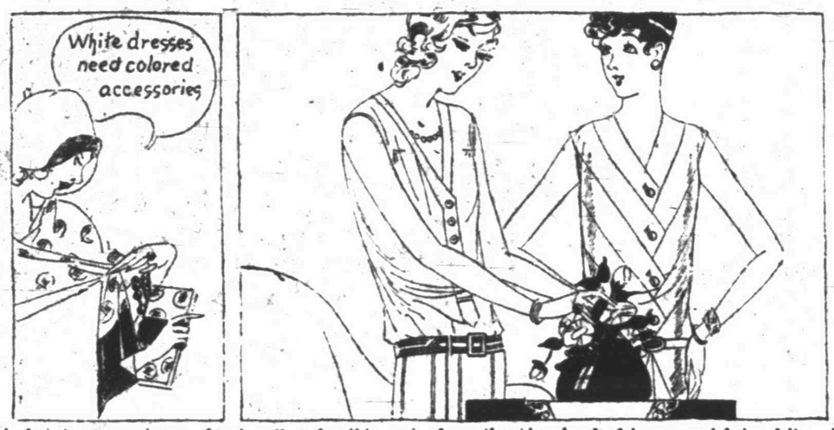

Judge Not to Talk Of "Merits" in Campaign

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15. (AP)—Presiding Judge W. C. Morrow, of the state criminal appeals court, has announced that he will not "argue" his "own merits" in his campaign for reelection.

"I cannot argue my own merits," he said, "and I am unwilling to boast of my qualifications. I invite inquiry and I am content to be tested by my work and the report of those acquainted with my official service."

CHIC CHERIE

(Copy't, 1928, King Features Syn.)

Dina's hat is a smart one—for ourselves we don't see why Cherie is remarking that it isn't at all the sort of hat to wear. It's felt with a curving brim and bows of ribbon for trimming—it looks all right to us. But Cherie is insisting that for this sort of weather there is only one sort of hat to wear and that's a new wide-brimmed felt. We suspect it's because she has just bought herself half a dozen of them. Or almost that many. There's the one on her head of brown and beige felt, there's the one in her hand of blue felt with the pointed black applique instead of a band. It's noticeable that both of them have brims wider at the side than in front or back.

LATEST FASHIONS

There's this hat, too. It shows the same general outline—a wide brim, wider at the side, a rather low crown. This one is trimmed with a wide band, a bow and two tails of velvet, and Cherie really cannot decide which of the three to wear. In view of the heat and the sunshine and the fact that she is going to play tennis or something.

She did just what one would expect. She wore no hat at all. Sunburn after all, is so smart this Summer—even smarter than broad-brimmed hats. And this sports bandeau—it's made of ribbon and the gilt buckle on the side can be adjusted so that the bandeau—fits snugly—and why should she care if the sun bleaches the hair on the top of her head?

ACREAGE IN COTTON GAINS

Nine Per Cent Increase In Texas

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15.—A nine per cent increase in cotton acreage and a decrease in feed crop acreage, with 18,366,000 acres reported in this year's cotton crop, is recorded by H. H. Schultz, statist, and F. E. Finley, assistant, in the July 1 crop condition report for Texas of the U. S. bureau of livestock and crop estimates.

Rain is needed for cotton in the south, west center and northwest sections of the state. Wheat is later than usual. Corn promises a good crop almost universally. "Owing to the large amount of replanting necessary and the trouble from grass and weeds, it is costing more than usual to make crops this year. Labor is scarce in places, but sufficient for present needs."

The Texas increase in cotton acreage of nine per cent is in line with the 11 per cent increase for the nation as a whole, over 1927. A total of 18,366,000 acres for Texas and of 46,695,000 for the United States is recorded for the cotton crop this year.

Rice Acreage Unchanged

Texas retained its same rice acreage as last year, with 161,000 acres; while the acreage for the entire nation dropped from 980,000 to 923,000 acres. The national condition of 88.2 per cent as compared with 90.9 per cent a year ago, indicates a production of about 35,445,000 bushels of rice as compared with 40,200,000 for last year.

Sweet potato acreage for the nation is estimated at 102,380,000, an increase of three per cent over last year. The 78.1 per cent condition estimate points to a national crop of 2,735,617,000 bushels, a decrease of 38,000,000 bushels from last year.

Corn Crop Slumps

For Texas, the 4,826,000 acres of corn, and 80 per cent crop condition of July 1 indicates a production of about 98,450,000 bushels this year, compared with 119,347,000 bushels in 1927.

Most of the Texas corn crop has been made, but the considerable late planted acreage needs another rain, the estimate said.

The wheat crop stands to reach 22,176,000 bushels this year for Texas and 256,155,000 bushels of spring wheat, or a total of 799,937,000 bushels this year, against 872,595,000 bushels last year. The Texas acreage remaining for harvest is estimated at 2,016,000 acres, with an 11-bushel average, while last year the crop in Texas averaged 9.7 bushels.

A total production of 35,751,000 bushels of oats is indicated, a decrease of 6,500,000 bushels from last year.

Wichita Pastor Closes Revival At Nocona

Special to The Record News.

NOCONA, Texas, July 15.—J. H. Childress, local minister Nocona Church of Christ, reports a very successful revival meeting held at this church recently. Services were conducted by Evangelist L. S. White of Wichita Falls, an able preacher and interesting speaker, assisted by B. M. Taylor of Irving, Texas, who led the singing. Mr. Taylor, an excellent singer, with a fine voice did his part well and was a great help in the meetings.

The revival had a larger attendance than any series of meetings in history of the Nocona Church of Christ, according to Mr. Childress.

Twelve were baptised, three placed membership and one was restored.

Delegations came twice from Wichita Falls and many towns of Montague county were represented at the revival, including Bonita, Bowie, Montague, Belcherville and St. Jo.

The series of meetings lasted 12 days, closing Thursday night of last week.

London Chatter About Americans

By Universal Service

LONDON, July 15.—American notabilities are conspicuous in London these days. One restaurant the other night included among its guests Miss Tallulah Bankhead, the actress, "Big Bill" Tilden, of Tennis fame, Chaliapine, of the opera, and three or four others whose names are well-known.

"Big Bill," who captains Hunter, Hennessy and Lott in the American quest for the Davis cup, was comfortably attired in a lounge suit, with a soft collar attached to his shirt.

The practice of wearing day clothes in the evening is spreading rapidly in dear old London. Of course, some blame it on the war, but the truth of the matter seems to be that a number of the younger generation are working longer hours than their fathers or grandfathers ever contemplated. These young men work late into the evening, and then don't take the time and trouble to change to a dinner jacket.

Even so notable a fashion arbiter as the Prince of Wales often is seen out of an evening clad in ordinary clothes that formerly just never would have done at all after dark. And Prince George appeared in a fashionable restaurant the other night in a brown suit and a blue shirt—and with a red carnation flaming in his lapel.

Chaliapin is an interesting eater. He eats, but one hardly notices the fact. Apparently, he is so interested in conversation that his food just slips into him in an elusive subconscious fashion. The transfer from table to mouth takes place so rapidly and furtively that it must be expected to be seen. And mastication—well, Dr. Fletcher would have graded the singer well below zero on performance.

But Chaliapin does enjoy conversation of the meal. Leaning forward from his waist, he drinks in every word spoken by his companions of the table. Occasionally, his head goes back and laughs unrestrainedly, his great frame shaking. He seldom gesticulates, but his facial expressions are most expressive. As he leaves, he dons a great black hat, punched in at the side and worn at a tremendously rakish angle.

Grace Moore of the Metropolitan opera gave a spectacular party at her villa near Mougins the other evening. The combined noise of fireworks and popping champagne corks well nigh drowned out the epigrams of Michael Arlen, who, with his vivacious young wife, was among those present. Beatrice Lillie gave some satirical imitations. Leslie Nenson and Ernest Truex, who have taken a villa near Antibes, also were among the guests.

Ellis Janis is coming over to take the part play by June in "Clowns in Clover." June herself goes to New York in the autumn to play for Arthur Hammerstein.

New Depot and Track Improvements At Childress Approved by Denver

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, July 15.—A new depot for Childress costing $85,000 and yard and track improvements around building to cost $38,000 are assured soon by announcement made here Saturday that appropriations for these items have been approved by officials of Fort Worth and Denver railroad. According to information made public here, plans are in the hands of Superintendent J. W. Mode, whose headquarters are in Amarillo. With announcement of a building budget amounting to $123,000, Childress is assured of a fine station.

In the building program, tracks approaching the station will be rebuilt. With the opening of regular traffic on the South Plains line rapidly drawing near, the need of a new and more commodious station in Childress has been foreseen and steps are being taken to provide modern facilities to care for the increased business.

All trains over the South Plains road will start from Childress or terminate their run here. Much additional business will be brought to Childress by the opening of the new road.

Rains Injure Cotton Crops in Terry County

Special to The Record News.

BROWNFIELD, Texas, July 12.—Forty days ago the crop conditions of Terry county was better than at any period within the last 10 years with a larger cotton acreage than ever before and all of it up and growing nicely with sufficient moisture to maintain it for several weeks. However heavy rains, followed by hail and sandstorms began to visit us, causing great damage over the larger portion of the cultivated area and it became necessary for us to replant about 80 per cent of the entire crop.

Grade of Cows In Plainview High

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, July 15. — June records of the Hale-Swisher Testing association disclose the fact the grads of milch cows in these counties is steadily rising.

June tests place one cow belonging to J. E. Rigler, Plainview, in the 80-pound fat class. She is a registered Jersey named Rigler's Annette, and during the month made 88.2 pounds of butter fat, the highest record of any of the 340 cows entered in the testing association.

Following is the tentative report for the Hale-Swisher Testing association for the ninth month (June): Cows in the association, 340; cows in milk, 280; cows making between 40 and 50 pounds of butter fat in June, 44; 50 and 60 pounds, 22; 60 and 70 pounds, 4; 70 and 80 pounds, 3; and 80 pounds, 1.

Wolf Trapping To Become Industry

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15.—Wolf extermination next year will become a $100,000 industry in Texas, a sideline of the livestock growing industry.

This was revealed by C. R. Landon, director for Texas of the cooperative state-federal wolf and mountain lion extermination work.

Every dollar spent effectively in killing predatory animals means a saving of $10 to the stockmen of the state, it is said.

Texas this year appropriated $25,000 for the work. The federal government gave nearly as much. Wolf clubs are being organized among the ranchmen, which contribute two-thirds of the cost of the work.

The old bounty system has become obsolete, and the wolf extermination is now done by trained government trappers and hunters, Mr. Landon pointed out.

A wolf has been known to kill over $500 worth of ewes and lambs in one night, Mr. Landon said.

For the second consecutive year the town of Roxbury, N. H., has not had a marriage, birth or death.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, July 15.—With the advent of June, the summer bachelors are having their fling. Wives and children have been seen off safely to the country, and the temporary bachelors step out gayly. You can see them in scores around the "Bohemian" cafes and the dance halls.

At the cafe the summer bachelor is surrounded by persons chatting together, and he begins to feel lonely. It is so long since he was a rounder that he has forgotten the technic. He eyes the stenographer or saleagirl having a night out at the adjoining table, and as the band strikes up wonders if he dare invite her to dance. Just as he gets to his feet up comes some young chap whom the girl has met before, and as the pair go over to dance floor, the summer bachelor sinks back into his seat looking and feeling foolish.

He does finally encounter a young woman with bold eyes, who stays at his table just long enough to make him pay her check and then fades mysteriously away. The summer bachelor, realizing that he has been worked and, looking apprehensively into a mirror on the wall which shows the gray hair around his temples, sadly departs.

The next evening he goes to a dance hall and buys a dollar's worth of tickets, good for so many dances with one of the professional hostesses. The absolute impersonality of the young woman he selects causes his heart to sink lower than ever and, collecting his hat, goes into the night.

Somehow the gilt is off the gingerbread. The summer bachelor had looked forward to casting off the fetters at this period, but now he finds himself wishing that Mary and the children were back.

"To me it had always been one of life's pleasant little mysteries," said the Broadway citizen, "how traffic cops managed to blossom out in their slickers and rubbers with the first drops of rain. It was certain that they didn't carry their shower equipment in their hip pockets, etc. but let a sudden rain come and they miraculously would be protected against the vagrant elements.

"I put it down as a deft bit of magic, until the mystery was solved for me the other evening. Overtaken by a shower just as the theaters were letting out, I stepped into a corner cigar store in the upper Forties, just in time to see the corner traffic cop dive into a little cubicle between the telephone booths. A minute later he came out clad in slicker, rain cap and rubbers. He resumed his post without having missed more than two blasts of a whistle.

"The shower over, I wandered out into Longacre Square and picked out a jovial appearing copper for questioning. He said that all the traffic men kept their shower-proofs planted in convenient caches along their beats. As for himself, he said he kept his in a tee-ayter, in th' property room. The coppers on the beats, however, are extended no such boon. When a sudden shower catches them they must either sprint for the nearest station house or take shelter in a doorway until it passes."

Second Water Well To Be Dug for Quitaque

He says he has been in this game for a number of years, but has never found a better indication for a heavy producer than this well.

One-Minute Sermon

Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but God: the powers that be are ordained of God.

Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. —Romans, xiii, 1-2.

Faith and Cynicism

ERNEST BOYD writes a spirited defense of cynicism in the current issue of Harper's Magazine.

The cynic, he says, is the man who, by sad exeprience, has been disillusioned about human nature. He does not expect too much; indeed, he usually expects the worst, since he knows that is what mankind so often produces. Thus he is seldom or never disappointed. Life does not continually jar him.

This, believes Mr. Boyd, is an enviable state. The cynic, as he sees him, is not a bitter, discouraged person; he is one whose enjoyment of life is all the greater because he is too wise to look for more than he will get.

Probably this is all very true. Yet the world cannot do with too many cynics. Especially it cannot do with them in the high places. Its great need is for people who dare to expect the best, not the worst; people who can retain a deep faith in human nature in spite of Chicago gang wars, Philadelphia primaries, New York night clubs and Hollywood publicity seekers.

For faith, after all, can move mountains. It is a lie that we cannot lift ourselves by our own bootstraps. We have been doing it for many centuries, and we must continue to do it. Cynicism is a fine armor for the man who does not dare face the unpleasant shocks of life, but it is next to useless for the big jobs of the world. Idealism, preferably of the impractical, visionary kind, is what is needed.

If you do not expect too much of human nature you will never ask too much of it. And it is the great askers—the men and women who demand that their fellows transcend their limitations of selfishness, blindness and timidity—that push the world forward.

Cynicism would have helped Washington endure his squabbles with the Continental congress, the grasping Tory traders and the self-seeking army officers with much more comfort. It would have made Valley Forge more bearable. But it would not have won the Revolution. That took visionary idealism that could persist in spite of plain common sense.

Likewise a cynical Lincoln would have been happier than the gaunt idealist who occupied the White House from 1861 to 1865; happier, and less successful. For the world somehow does not respond to cynicism. It demands ideals, even if it flouts them. Seeing as through a glass, darkly, it nevertheless can recognize that which is higher than itself; and, in the fullness of time, it will follow it.

This is especially true in a democracy, like ours. To the cynic the problems of democracy are insoluble. They call for an impossible improvement in human nature. Yet they will be solved, in time; solved because there will be, from time to time, Lincolns, Roosevelts and Wilsons who dare appeal to their fellows to do the impossible.

Genius and the Rod

"SPARE the rod and spoil the child," is a very ancient adage. Now comes Miss Florence M. Hale, editor of the magazine "Kindergarten" of Boston, and state supervisor of rural schools in Maine, to declare that "genius cannot be slapped into a child with a strap."

Too often, says Miss Hale, parents try to make their children learn to do things which are beyond their powers. Instead of finding out what a child is fitted for, a parent often tries, willy nilly, to force the child into a preconceived mold—and then punishes the youngster when it won't work.

One tragic result, she adds, is that the child frequently is made to feel that it is inferior when it really is not.

Parents have a terrific responsibility in this matter. Long study and careful planning are essential. No father or mother should shirk the duty.

Children's Teeth

A BULLETIN from the New York Health Department points out the importance of caring for the teeth of young children.

Too often, it says, parents do not see to it that young children are periodically examined and treated by dentists, since the children's milk teeth, so-called, will eventually fall out anyway.

However, the bulletin points out that many infections in milk teeth may do serious harm to the permanent teeth which come in later. In addition, an infected tooth, even if it be only a milk tooth, can have a bad effect on the child's system.

The child, as well as the grown person, should make the dentist's acquaintance.

An Indianapolis man drove his car head on into a truck loaded with dynamite, but it didn't go off. Lots of drivers cross railroad tracks without looking, too.

We are disappointed. Neither the Democratic nor Republican platforms made a single promise about the elimination of political oratory.

Texas-Oklahoma Press

Great industry today operates on an amazingly narrow margin of profit. The ideal of mass production, with tremendous turnover and a small individual profit, has taken firm hold. A good example is the American telephone industry, which has reached peak efficiency in giving service by centralization of facilities. Co-ordination has replaced cut-throat competition and small-time business methods.

The impossibility of any small localized company being able to furnish adequate telephone service is obvious. Where once "big business" was considered a manifest danger to public welfare, it is now commonly understood as an economic necessity. Mass production is the way in which expensive, necessary services and commodities can be sold at bedrock prices.

—Collingsworth (Texas) Standard.

FARM SUCCESS BRINGS CHEER

This sort of news ought to be cheering to local business men. One Cooke county farmer made 12,000 bushels of oats and sold them for more than $6000 during the past few days. Another made 4000 bushels of wheat, which he disposed of for more than $4000. Still another made 800 bushels of Irish potatoes, in addition to a big yield of grain. It is safe to estimate that this trio of enterprising rural residents have added at least $12,000 to the wealth of the county, and there are hundreds of others yet to be heard from.

U. S. Aviator Inspector Urges Sign Near Tracks to Identify Cities

The name of all cities should be on the roofs of the railway stations for the greatest convenience of the airplane pilots, according to Robert J. Hazen, inspector of the aviation section of the United States department of commerce, who has been in Wichita Falls for the past few days.

"I would like to urge this city and all other cities in this territory paint the name of the city in large, plain block letters on the roof of the railway stations," Mr. Hazen said.

"The reason is that a great part of the time the aviator follows the railroad tracks. When following the rails, it is easy for him to spot the railway station. If the station carries the name, it is a great aid and it saves him circling over the town until he finds out that there possibly is no name on any building. Wichita Falls has a well marked field and a well marked up town building, but the marking of the railway station here and in nearby cities would be an additional aid."

Donley County Produces Largest Wheat Crop

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, July 15.—With combines finishing up their cutting and moving on north this week the wheat harvest in Donley county will come to an end with the largest production in the history of the county. 60,000 bushels have already been shipped, in something over 45 cars, whereas the county has never shipped over 10 cars before from Clarendon, all of the above wheat having moved from this point. Wheat in the northern part of the county which will not be shipped from this point it is thought will bring the county production close to 100,000 bushels this year. Other crops in the county are doing exceptionally well due to a general rain which fell over the county this week. Winds have ceased and there is now plenty of moisture.

Paducah Celebrates Arrival of Gas

Special to The Record News.

PADUCAH, Texas, July 15.—An imitation gas well, and a band concert on the public square, celebrated the turning of gas into the mains here. The gas comes from the Wheeler county fields, and is being brought in by J. H. Jackson and C. T. Davis, former citizens of Shamrock, by a connection with one of the major gas companies lines at Childress. This addition gives Paducah all the public facilities that the larger cities have.

Congressman Rathbone Dies After Operation

CHICAGO, July 15. (AP)—Congressman Henry R. Rathbone of Illinois died in Presbyterian hospital today following an operation.

Mr. Rathbone, who was a candidate for reelection, had been ill two years and an operation finally was deemed necessary. Apparently he was recovering satisfactorily and was able to talk to hospital attaches.

While he was talking to an interne, he complained of difficulty in breathing, and died a moment later.

Houston Convention Hall Rented to Negroes

HOUSTON, Texas, July 15. (AP)—Sam Houston hall, where Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York was nominated for president by the Democrats has been rented for the first time since the convention.

For $100, the mammoth hall will be rented to 12 negro churches for contests among their choirs on August 12. Each choir will number 40, the winners to get a loving cup.

OUTLAW BANKS CAUSE WORRIES

Transfer of Funds Into Call Loans Deplored

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, July 15, (US)—The rapid development of outlaw banking in New York has hindered and delayed the efforts of the Federal Reserve authorities to divert funds from speculative channels.

The campaign to hold brokers' loans in check has been partically blocked by the increasing money lending operations of non-banking interests. New York banks, in reporting on the volume of brokers loans, segregate loans made for their own account, for the account of out of town banks, and "loan made for others."

Loans "made for others" represent the surplus funds of non-banking companies and individuals. Such funds are arranged outside the protection of banking law, and are not subject to public supervision of restrained by a necessity for reserves. They represent outlaw banking, and come from sources which are prely opportunistic and feel no responsibility for the stability of the New York money market. They dump funds in when they suit their convenience, and ruthlessly yank them out when they desire, with no thought of the effect on the situation as a whole. The rise of the call money rate on January 2 to 10 per cent was in part due to the heavy withdrawel of funds from the call money market by corporate lenders, who needed the funds for their own dividend and interest disbursements.

New Methods

In recent months, there has been a wholesale transference of bank deposits by wealthy individuals and corporations into call loans. The incentive is plain. Bank deposits yield the bank customer only 2 per cent, whereas call loans have been yielding well over 5 per cent for months.

The growing magnitude of call loans "made for others" in part springs from a new method of financing business. Corporations of good standing have a large extent freed themselves from dependence on bank credit by taking advantage of the favorable securities market to sell new stocks and bonds and thus greatly increase their supply of working capital. Frequently the cash on hand is greatly above the actual needs of the business, and this money has in increasing amounts flowed into brokerage loans. The practice of operating on small inventories, with frequent turnovers, also tends to reduce the amount of working capital needed for the successful operation of a business.

Two Remedies

There are two ways of looking at the situation. One would be the method of Laissez Faire, which would entail a hands off policy. The other method entails centralized supervision. Under the federal reserve system, the country has committed itself to the second viewpoint. The central banking authorities in a semi-caternalistic manner seek to prevent excesses in the use of credit. The so-called loans for others, however, constitute a leak in the system, which retards the effective carrying out of federal reserve policy.

Some bankers believe that the New York clearing house should act to make outlaw banking unprofitable through imposing so high a fee on loans made for others as to make the operation relatively less attractive. Such a maneuver would help to bring the brokers' loans situation under more immediate banking control.

Oil Men Called To Austin for Meeting

BIG SPRING, Texas, July 15. All the testimony and suggestions from interested parties, producers and royalty owners, will be heard at the meeting, the notices assert. The rules adopted will be for a period of six months unless changed by order of the commission, and will be mandatory on the operator.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

"Oliver, don't talk nonsense. You might remember y ou're married."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, upon losing both father and wealth, goes to live with Clarissa Dean and her father. Her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, objects to this for he mistrusts Dean's motives. A misunderstanding between the lovers occurs when Virginia phoned Niel's studio late one night and his model, Chiri, answers.

Meanwhile, Dean plots to get Niel sent away from Virginia, but fails.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter resolves to leave but Dean insists that she marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal that her father cheated him out of $100,000 in a deal. Recklessly, Virginia declares that she will earn the money to pay him in one year—or marry him if she fails.

Realization of her plight comes to Virginia when she discovers her bank balance overdrawn, and she has to pawn a ring before finding a reasonable hotel in which to live. She goes to Niel's studio to tell him of her break with the Deans, but she does not dare reveal her compact for Niel insists that she marry him at once. Niel takes her out to dinner in the "Village" but they happen upon a place where his model is dining with another man, and the familiarity with which she treats Niel, does not help to reassure Virginia. Next day she calls upon an old friend, Oliver Cutter, who is a successful broker.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXII

"Of course not," Virginia said emphatically. "I'm surprised you ask me that, Oliver. It seems that everyone doubts my sincerity," she complained with a touch of exasperation.

"I'm sorry, Virginia. Misunderstanding," he apologized shortly. "Most of us haven't any stardust left, I guess."

"It makes me think none of you have ever been in love," she said recklessly. That she had been indeed reckless she saw in his expression the next instant.

"That's hardly fair," he protested, "coming from you, because it's entirely your fault that I've never lived for that much-talked-of emotion. I like to think I could have experienced it with you, Virginia, but you wouldn't listen to me and no other woman has given me even one little heart tug."

"Oliver, don't talk nonsense. You might remember you're married."

He smiled. "It would amuse Jeanie to hear that. She's quite aware that our friends all know we've never mentioned love to each other. She wouldn't mind my admitting it to you. In fact I think she rather boasts of it. It's about all the claim either of us has to distinction, I fear."

"It's a decidedly unworthy distinction," she told him with an edge on her voice. "But I don't believe you mean what you say and I think you're simply corrupt to pretend it."

"Well, never mind," he replied placatingly. "It doesn't matter so much does it? It's apparent that you still believe in Santa Claus, and let me tell you I'm glad of it. When you jumped on me so hard a moment ago for my hasty conclusion I was just going to tell you how disappointed I'd be if you suddenly turned out to have feet of clay. I always did worship you a bit, you know, Virginia."

"I wish you wouldn't say such things Oliver! It isn't decent, especially in a business office."

"Ah, so the cat's out of the bag. This is a business call!"

"Of course. What did you think it was?"

"Now you know you don't want me to answer that one. Watch your step, Virginia, especially in a business office."

"A fair hit," she agreed and laughed with him.

"But seriously, if there is anything in the world I can do for you, Virginia, just let me do it."

"You know how to make money," don't you?" she returned directly.

"At times, yes. Is that what you wish to do? Make money?"

She nodded wordlessly but her eyes spoke volumes.

"It's always a risky game making money on the Street," he pointed out discouragingly. "And I thought you said you wouldn't need money to be happy with the man you're going to marry."

A long moment slipped by before Virginia answered.

"I must have it to pay an obligation that father left," she said quietly, but her low voice carried overtones of emotion so poignant they stirred her hearer to at least a faint perception of her need.

"I'll help you, if I can," he promised as quietly. It was as though both were aware of some invisible but powerful force that subdued their voices and made speaking difficult. He had caught the feeling from Virginia, who was completely in the grip of suppressed excitement. To obtain Oliver's aid had been her one big, her only hope to make the money she must have to secure her happiness.

"Thank you," she tried to say, but the distance between them increased with the speed of thought and the next thing she knew she was prone on the floor while his secretary was wiping her face with a wet towel and Oliver Cutter, prominent broker, was on his knees, chafing her hands.

"Too stupid," she murmured apologetically. Then her white lips parted in a heart-wrenching smile. "You were overwhelmingly kind," she whispered.

"Come out of it Virginia," he begged in great distress. "I'm going to send you home in my car."

Virginia struggled to sit up. Between them, the secretary and Oliver, they got her back in her chair.

"Don't bother, please," she urged. "I'll be all right in a moment. I want to go on with our business now."

"Indeed we will not. I'll come up and see you this evening, or this afternoon, if you prefer. Staying with the Deans, aren't you?"

Virginia shook her head. "Not any more," she said; then to the secretary who was standing by with a glass of water, "it won't happen again."

"That's all, Miss Evans, thank you," Oliver followed up in dismissal.

"Now Virginia, out with it. What went wrong at the Deans," he demanded when they were alone. I heard you were with them."

"You don't expect me to talk about it, Oliver! Clarissa and I seem to have drifted away from each other. Please let it go at that."

"All right, if you say so, but I've an opinion of my own. Where are you now?" he added abruptly.

"In a hotel." She thought it best not to name it at the moment.

"You ought to go to someone," he advised her. "If Jeanie were back from Aiken I'd invite you to put up at our place. I could move over to the club," he suggested on second thought.

"That would be a topic for bridge table conversation," Virginia exclaimed, laughing a little.

"I suppose so. Pity we can't do as we please."

"Well, I please to stay where I am, Oliver, with all appreciation of your kindness, but I'd rather have you help me in another way. I've got three hundred dollars and I want you to make it a hundred thousand."

"Oh good lord! Do I look like John D? If I were an alchemist would I be here or would I be fishing in Maine?"

"You have a year to do it."

"All of that? Well, that does make a difference. I think, though, it would save a lot of time if I lent you the money."

"I'll never have a hundred thousand dollars, Oliver, unless I make it, so it's out of the question to borrow."

"Well, let's see your three hundred, I suppose you brought it with you?" He was teasing but Virginia opened her bag and handed him the money she had gotten from "Uncle Simon."

"Poor little babes in the deep black woods of Wall Street," he sympathized over the bills. Then catching sight of Virginia's forlorn expression, he laughed. "But I'll be their papa and bring them up right," he promised heartily. "Don't you worry, mama. Come in day after tomorrow and I'll have news for you."

He was at the door with her before the thought struck him that this might be all the money she had.

"I believe I could do as well with two hundred," he said and started to separate $100 to give back to her.

"You mustn't risk it, Oliver, I've just got to have that hundred thousand. Perhaps I'll have more to bring you when the estate is settled, but please do the best you can with this money. Keep all of it, please."

"As you say, Virginia. See you day after tomorrow."

She nodded and went over to his secretary's desk to thank her for her ministrations. Miss Evans was a capable-looking woman in the early thirties, and it came to Virginia as she talked with her that here was a person who could give her some helpful advice. Everyone else had driven her nearly distracted with their refusals to see her in anything but the social butterfly who should cling to her place even if she had to assume the role of little sister to the rich in order to hold it.

"All except Nathaniel, of course, and he made it hardest of all for her to pursue the course she had set her feet upon, but she could forgive him because of his motive.

"I wonder if you would have lunch with me?" she asked Miss Evans rather doubtfully. She was afraid the secretary might suspect her of a patronizing attitude. "It would be doing me a great favor," she hastened to add. "I want to ask your opinion about something."

"I shall be glad to, Miss Brewster," Miss Evans assured her after a slight pause of consideration.

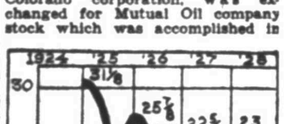

Virginia glanced at her wrist watch. Why, she had forgotten all about it at "Uncle Simon's!" "It's 11:30," she announced. "May you go now?"

"In five minutes."

Virginia waited in the reception room, looking out over the rooftops of Manhattan. For the first time in her life the immensity of the city frightened her. What was her pitiful strength compared to the power that had built this great, roaring metropolis? Would the brains represented by these incredible piles of steel and concrete allow her to wrest even the comparatively small sum of $100,000 from them? Virginia shivered with awe.

But once on the street, tea room-bound with Miss Evans, her balance was restored. When finally they were ensconced in wall seats with a dolly-covered table before them she turned to her companion with a thrill over the novelty of what she intended to do.

Ty Cobb

Meet Ty Cobb, grand exalted czar of swat, who is one of the greatest baseball players in the history of the game. His batting average with the Detroit Tigers made him a champion during the years of 1907 until 1915, and 1917 until 1919.

Baseball scandals have come and gone—other stars have been roped into trouble—but they couldn't tie Tie Cobb to anything like that!

Cobb's favorite laugh provoker concerns young Cohen, the second baseman from the Texas league, who has so acceptably filled the place of Rogers Hornsby with the New York Giants.

"A few seasons ago," the big hit-and-run man told me, "before Cohen became a regular with the Giants, he was sent to the bat one day in a pinch.

"'Cohen batting for Murphy,' yelled the announcer.

"There was a momentary lull, and all eyes were focused upon Cohen. A big Irishman, sitting in the bleachers, immediately rose, and cried out at the top of his voice:

"'Yeh? Well, Callahan leaving the park!'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

A Successful Life

One who wishes to obtain the keenest enjoyment of life must be well read and thoroughly conversant with all of the affairs of the day. The mind must be constantly alert, but if we wish to obtain the fullest and best expression of our mental faculties, we must possess strong, healthy bodies, for the mind, no matter how well developed, can only express itself through this physical organism.

Most people do not develop to their most splendid capabilities. They just "grow up" like Topsy did. They become short or tall, fat or thin, and develop biliousness, anemia, high blood pressure, gout and, in fact, everything from falling hair to fallen arches. One who is in perfect health develops keen faculties.

You would not think of driving you automobile with a dirty windshield through which you could hardly see. Then do not be satisfied with traveling about through life with your senses dulled and clouded by toxins in your body.

When one is in health the palate senses the delicate flavors of delicious foods, while one who is sick will probably be nauseated. All who are healthy are therefore rich because they are able to bring the problems of life to a successful conclusion. They lead happier lives, and in this way they benefit the world because happiness is contagious as well as disease.

In order to explain to you in a very definite way just what I consider a good regime for a successful life, I am going to give you some instructions which, if carefully observed and followed, will undoubtedly be helpful.

Upon arising in the morning, it is a good plan to take about 10 minutes' time to perform some vigorous calisthenics. Do these exercises before an open window, and then take a cold shower bath after you have become thoroughly warmed with the exercises.

Your breakfast should consist of one or two eggs prepared in any manner except by frying, two or three pieces of Melba toast which is prepared by cutting white bread one-fourth of an inch thick and toasting it in the oven until it is a golden brown all the way through. This toast should not be buttered until it is to be eaten. In addition, you may choose one of the following stewed fruits: prunes, pears, apricots, figs, raisins, peaches, or ripe figs. Use only the pure, sundried, unsulphured fruits. An average of five prunes or an equal quantity of the other foods is sufficient to obtain the greatest value. These fruits must be prepared and served without cream or sugar, except the ripe figs on which you may have a little cream but no sugar.

After eating, it is better to spend a few minutes in relaxation or reading some light literature such as the morning paper. If possible, it is better to have regular hours of work, and one should not be afraid to overwork within definite limited hours.

For luncheon, one may use one or more of the succulent non-starchy vegetables that are so prevalent on the market at the present season. The best of these are celery, asparagus, spinach, small string beans, summer squash, cucumbers, egg plant, beet tops, small beets, small carrots, small turnips, pumpkin, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant, kale or zucchini. These vegetables should be cooked in plain water and seasoned only with butter and a little salt after being cooked and when ready to serve. One may also have a choice of any of these vegetables as a raw salad. Ripe olives and alligator pears, or avocados, make good additions. I do not advise the use of sour salad dressings since they cause gas with most people. One may, however, use a small amount of olive oil if desired.

It is better to do your exercises before eating and relax after eating. Work as hard as you wish during the afternoon, but make it a rule to stop at a definite hour if it is possible.

Questions and Answers

Question: Mary W. writes: "Some time ago I saw advertised in the paper a new electrical device to cure sleeplessness. As I have been suffering from insomnia for quite a while, I would like to know what you think of this, and where I could find it."

Answer: Many experimental machines have been devised for use in attempting to induce sleep, but I do not know where any such apparatus is obtainable on the market. The main object is to produce a sort of hypnosis, but you can do this just as well yourself by completely relaxing, and mentally repeating the word "sleep" over and over again. As long as you have no physical irritation which keeps you awake, the repeated suggestion of the word "sleep" or "sleepy" will always get results, and is a sure cure for insomnia.

Question: Mrs. G. W. asks: "Will boiling food 10 minutes kill botulism if it is present? I use the cold pack method of canning string beans, but am always a little afraid to use them afterwards, even though I boil them 20 minutes."

Answer: If string beans are canned properly there need be no fear of botulism, as these micro-organisms are destroyed if the beans are boiled or steamed long enough. When you open a can of string beans notice if they have a normal odor and even if so, re-boil them for about 10 minutes. When there is an unpleasant odor or bubbles, or a discoloration of the can, they might cause botulism and should be discarded.

Question: Mrs. H. G. writes: "We have adopted a child who was born of a consumptive mother. She has many tubercular glands in her neck. Do you think there is any way of preventing consumption in this child? Should we have the glands lanced?"

Answer: Young children frequently have glandular enlargements which are not necessarily tubercular. These can be cured by diet even if they are tubercular. Lancing will only make more trouble, as an added burden is thrown on the other lymphatics.

SPUDDERS SWEEP THREE-GAME SERIES WITH EXPORTERS, 9-3

Morris Norton Beats Stayton Bonner For Golf Championship, 3 And 2

JENKINS, LAPAN SMASH HOMERS

Tom Cops Loop Lead By Clouting Year's 16th

BY LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

It is well for the Houston Buffs that the Fort Worth Cats were impotent at bat again yesterday. Else the Spudders would be in first place. Jim Galloway's hustling pennant chasers swept the three-game series with the Beaumont Exporters and won their fourth straight to still menace the pace-setters, whom they trail by one contest.

The score was 9 to 3 and it was a pastime marked by lusty hitting and brilliant fielding mixed with erratic defensive play. The looseness in the field, however, was on the part of the Exporters, who made five errors.

Wichita Falls hammered Buzz Phillips for 11 hits, and made them count. Tom Jenkins took the league lead in home runs by smashing his sixteenth circuit drive of the season over the center field wall. None was on base. Tom now tops George Blackerby, the Waco Cub slugger, by one.

Lapan Batting Leader

Peter Lapan also banged a home run over the garden wall and drove in a comrade. Lapan was the batting leader of the day with three hits in as many times at bat.

The Exporters pounded Herbie Cobb with eclat. They smashed out 12 safe drives off the slender right-hander. But, thanks to some fast fielding including three double plays, and his own bearing down at dangerous moments, Herbie managed to last the route.

Swanson and Campbell each cracked three hits, including a double apiece. Eldred, Jenkins, Ezzell and Marshall helped their averages along with two smacks each.

Fast infielding by the Spudders, in which Turgeon and Benton in particular scintillated, and flashing running one-hand catches by Fitzgerald and Petrie in the outfield, enlivened the slugging contest.

Phillips yielded all the Spudders' runs and hits. Eberhard, who tossed the eighth inning, turning back the Spudders in order.

Spuds Start Scoring

The Spudders scored three runs in the second inning. Jenkins led off with his homer. Lapan singled to center after two were out and scored when Swanson dropped Cobb's fly. Benton's bunt put Herbie on second. Turgeon singled to center, Cobb scoring.

Beaumont tallied one in the third. Ezzell, first up, walked and went to third on Marshall's single to right. Ezzell scored while Benton was throwing out Bailey.

Wichita Falls scored twice in their half. Fitzgerald strolled and went to second on Eldred's hit to right. Bailey took Jenkins' lift. Petrie dropped Roetz' fly, filling the bases. Stanton forced Fitzgerald at home. Schliebner to Campbell. Lapan singled to center, Eldred and Roetz scoring.

Exporters Tally in Fourth

Robertson's men scored their last two in the fourth. Kirkham batted for Odom with one out and singled to center. Campbell doubled to the same territory. Kirkham stopping at third. Kirkam was run down on Phillips' grounder to Benton. Singles by Ezzell and Marshall scored Campbell and Phillips.

The Spudders promptly regained the pair of tallies in their part of the fourth. Benton was safe on Bailey's boot at second. Turgeon sacrificed. Schliebner to Bailey. Fitzgerald lifted to Marshall. Eldred doubled to left, Benton scoring. Jenkins singled to left, Eldred scampering home.

Galloway's Ten Gallons scored a brace of runs in the seventh. Roetz singled to left after one was out, but was forced at second by Stanton, Bailey to Marshall. Lapan hit over the right center fence for a home run, Stanton ambling home ahead of him.

Notes of the Game

The Spudders and San Antonio Bears open a three-day battle for second place today out at the lot.

Mike Cvengros probably will be Skipper Galloway's hill choice.

Wally Swenson has been out of the game a couple of days, nursing a severe cold.

Bill Bagwell, who was hit on the head Friday by a thrown ball while running bases, was back in uniform yesterday and got in the game as a pinch hitter for Eberhard in the ninth inning. Bill's contribution was a double.

Fitzgeraldl made a sensational running one-hand snatch of Swanson's drive to the fence in the seventh.

Then Petrie, in the Spudders' half, went to the centerfield wall to pull down Jenkins' smash, with one hand. Petrie made sparkling catches of drives by Turgeon and Eldred in the first inning.

An airplane furnished amusement and some concern, to players and spectators by doing a nose dive over the field.

Turgeon and Benton handled nine chances flawlessly, and figured in two double plays. The Rabbit also started another two-ply killing.

Roetz continues to hit the ball hard and after making one boot the kid then flashed a keen game at the hot corner.

The boy Stanton grabs the throws whether they're good or not and digs the grounders out of the dirt.

The youngster Marshall roamed all over the infield in a superb display of glittering defensive work.

Hagen Not to Defend Western Golf Crown

CHICAGO, July 15. (UP)—Walter Hagen, western golf champion, will not defend his title in the tournament to be held here July 25-28, it was announced today by Leslie S. Gordon, secretary of the Western Golf association.

Hagen has an engagement at the time to play a return match with Archie Compston in the metropolitan district.

Approximately 300 golfers will be entered in the tournament. Qualifying rounds will occupy three days in order that the course will not be crowded during the play.

Texas Electrics Blank Panhandle

Robertson Hurls Two-Hit Ball to Best Lupher

By GORDON FULCHER

Deciding that the "ox was in the ditch," Lefty Robertson, Texas Electric star left-hand hurler, consented for the first time yesterday to pitch baseball on Sunday. He hurled one of his best games of the season, allowing only two scratch hits and defeating the Panhandle Longhorns 2 to 0, in a Twilight league contest at Katy park.

Lefty's team played airtight ball behind him as did the Longhorns for Lupher, who was touched by the Electric batsmen for six scattered knocks.

Johnny McMahon, Electric shortstop, played an excellent game, stopping several hard hit grounders that might otherwise have gone for two base hits. Score:

'Twould Be No Surprise if Latzo Gets Nod Over Loughran Tonight

Pete Always Improves In Return Battle and He Stands Excellent Chance of Winning Light Heavy Title

(Copyright by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, July 15. (UP)—Up in that thriving, bustling little city of Wilkes-Barre Monday night we have Thomas Loughran the phantom of Philly, meeting Peter Latzo, the anthracite man, for the light heavyweight campion of the world.

I shall take great pleasure in journeying into the coal mining region of Pennsylvania to see this come off.

I anticipate a terrific battle, and I wouldn't be utterly flabbergasted if the anthricite man grabbed Thomas Loughran's title.

For Peter Latzo is a peculiar critter. He rarely fails to lick a man he meets the second time. He may make a terrible showing against the man in their first meeting, but he apparently stocks up with information as to the man's style that he brings into play when they meet again.

And Peter Latzo has always been a great "home town fighter," some of them can't fight a lick away from home, but are invincible in their own town. Peter Latzo differs from the average fighter of that type, in that he fights well away from home. But not as well as he fights in the shade of his old family tree.

Of course, Wilkes-Barre isn't really Latzo's stamping ground, but it is close enough to Scranton, his old home town, to give him some claim to the territory.

And Peter has even abandoned Scranton as a place of residence of late months, pitching himself over around Atlantic City. I don't know whether this is regarded as treason in Scranton or not.

Latzo Whipped Walker

Peter Latzo fought Mickey Walker, then welterweight champion of the world, some years ago, and Mickey had no trouble licking Peter.

So lightly did Mickey regard Peter, after that Mickey urged the ubiqitious John Leo McKernan, otherwise Kearns, to accept an offer of $30,000 to defend the welterweight title against Latzo in Scanton. Kearns acted on Mickey's urging, and the result is pugilistic history. Peter Latzo won the title by decision.

It was a close fight, to be sure, but Latzo certainly fought better than Walker that night in his old home town. Up to then Kearns had argued that Walker never made weight properly for his battles—that he was always too heavy—and he got Walker down to 144 pounds.

Then Kearns suddenly saw that Walker's real trouble was not his failure to take off weight but failure to put it on. He decided that Walker was rightly a middleweight, though he took one more welterweight battle as a further experiment—the disastrous affair with Joe Dundee.

So Walker stepped over into the middleweight division, and everyone thought Peter Latzo would follow him before long because Latzo, too, found 147 pounds no cinch for him. Oddly enough, however, after he lost his welterweight title to Dundee, Peter Latzo bulged right on over the middleweight mark into the light heavyweight division. That poundage is catchweights for him.

Gave Tom Terrific Go

The average ringworm had an idea that Peter Latzo was about done when he lost his title. They thought that as a light heavyweight he must be a fat little man who wouldn't be able to get out of his own way.

But Peter Latzo disclosed himself as one of the strongers and most rubbery gladiators of these times as a light heavy. He was always inclined to pudginess, even as a welterweight. And he was always strong as a welter. But being able to eat what he pleases and drink what he pleases as a light heavy, with no worries about weight, he has added to his strength.

When he was matched with Thomas Loughran over in Ebbets field some weeks ago, he was regarded as just a good trial horse for Thomas. The experts thought the phantom of Philly would stab Peter Latzo silly. To their great astonishment, the anthricite man carried the battle to Thomas Loughran from start to finish, and not only wasn't stabbed silly, but gave Loughran a terrific fight.

Only the fact that Peter Latzo couldn't seem to find any defense against an overhand belt to the region of his kidneys lost the fight for him. I say the punch borders on the illegal, but I've never found many supporters for my theory around here. The referee let the fighters who use it get away with it.

May Have Defense Now

Peter Latzo may be able to fend off that punch in some manner up at Wilkes-Barre. It is really his own fault that it lands on him, as he has a way of bending over and turning his side invitingly toward an opponent. Perhaps the punch doesn't hurt him a great deal, but it looks bad for him.

Thomas Loughran, in my opinion, is one of the greatest boxers the ring has known in many years. A master workman with his hands, the phantom of Philly can lick most of the heavyweights in the game without any trouble whatever. I think he would give Mister Tunney a great fight. But he has been going a long time now, and it is conceivable that Peter Latzo may have caught up with him. The short route is to Peter Latzo's advantage, I would say.

They are both Pennsylvanians. Thomas Loughran has fought often enough up through the anthracite regions of his home state to give him a big following. But sentimentally, at least, I imagine Peter Latzo will be the favorite Monday night. They are loyal to the home boys up that way.

The passing of Thomas Loughran as a champion would be something to regret, because he has been a fighting champion. But Peter Latzo would also be a fighting champion, because he has a new manager in Mr. James J. Johnston, the old boy bandit, who can't see any nourishment for the Johnstons in non-fighting champions.

Heeny's Parents "Hear" Title Go by Wireless

FAIR HAVEN, N. J., July 15. (UP)—Tom Heeney and Geene Tunney will answer the gong for the first round of their heavyweight title bout at Yankee stadium, July 26, about 10 o'clock at night. Out in New Zealand, 12,000 miles away, it will be 3:30 in the afternoon.

Hugh and Elizabeth Heeney, parents of the challenger, will get a blow by blow account of the bout via wireless. The challenger's mother, unlike other mothers, is a great fight fan. She used to attend the bouts in New Zealand and Australia when Tom was fighting there and only her age prevented her from coming to New York for the coming match.

Parelli Grapples Kopecky Tomorrow

Joe Parelli will wrestle Joe Kopecky in a finish mat match on a card arranged by Alec Ross, Tuesday night at the ball park.

Two ten-round mitt pushing contests will be on the card, in addition to the "rough an' tough" wrestling match.

Dempse Moore, who went to the highest rungs of the boxing ladder as an amateur, will meet Sailor Jock Bentley. Both are "stepping boys" and the bout, according to Ross, will be "fast" from gong to gong.

In the other ten-round bout, Jack Matlock will hook up with Ted Lewis.

M'ELREATH NINE WINS

RECORD CROWD SEES CONTEST

Victor Retains Lead After First Nine Holes

Morris Norton is the new all-city golf champion. Shooting superb golf, the runnerup for medalist honors yesterday defeated Stayton Bonner, the defending titleholder 3 and 2, in their 36-hole match at Wichita Falls Golf and Country club.

Although Norton's game was more steady than that of his opponent, he was pressed throughout by Bonner's excellent game, and the result of the match was in doubt until clinched by the new champion on the 34th green.

100 in Gallery

A gallery of 100, probably the largest crowd that ever saw a golf match here, excepting those played by noted professionals, saw the championship final in the all-city tournament.

Norton took the lead at the fourth hole, when he shot a par 4 to Bonner's 5, and he held his lead to the sixth, where the match was evened. Bonner also won the seventh but Norton recovered and shot birdie 4s on the eighth and ninth and was 1 up at the turn.

Morris increased his lead in the last nine in the morning round to be 3 up at the end of the eighteenth.

Norton Wins at 34th

Norton was only 1 up when Bonner won the 23rd but he went ahead, 2 up at the 26th, and maintained that advantage to the 34th. They halved the 34th in 4s, to give Norton the match. Their cards:

Babe Far in Front Of Record Season

NEW YORK, July 15. (AP)—Home run hitters had their innings in the second Yankee-Indian game here today as the home team won by 6 to 4. Babe Ruth hit his 34th with Koenig on base in the first inning and Lou Gehrig smashed his 19th in the fifth with the bases empty. Joe Sewell hit for all the bases in the eighth.

Gehrig remains well behind his 1927 mark, but the Babe now is 15 games, 13 days and four home runs ahead of his record pace of last season. On July 15, 1927, he owned 30 home runs and got his 34th off Stewart of St. Louis in game number 98 at the Yankee stadium on July 28 as the Yanks won, 9 to 4.

The second game today was number 83 of 1928. Ruth's 35th last year was collected off Smith of Detroit at the Yankee stadium on August 5, in game number 106. The champions won 5 to 2.

BURKBURNETT

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, July 14.—Mrs. Lola Sellers Patterson, the bride of the week, was the honoree of a beautiful bridal shower Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lewallen, where the latter was joint hostess with Mrs. A. L. Gregg and Miss Mildred Smith.

The rooms were bright with vases of cut flowers and soft lights, that formed a pretty setting for the 30 friends of the bride.

The shower was uniquely introduced by the hostess directing the honoree to follow a much tangled cord running over the house and finally ending with a key to the "magic chest" of cedar, which contained many beautiful and useful gifts.

A pretty wedding story in contest form and other social games furnished amusement.

The party was closed with a shower of good wishes for the popular young honoree.

Linotype Operator on City Newspaper Turns Aviatrix to Compete for Cash Offered for Pacific Flight

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Record News

HOUSTON, July 15.—Operating a linotype machine and the controls of an airplane are to most persons accomplishments in themselves, but to Dorothy Thompson of Houston, either one is equally simple.

And Dorothy knows, for she has done both. The former to such an extent that she does "full time" with men workers, setting type on a city newspaper. And the latter—well, that's the story.

Dorothy Thompson is planning a flight over the Pacific—from Dallas, Texas, to Hong Kong, China. She's after a prize of $25,000 offered for the first flyer to successfully navigate a three-stop flight between the two points.

And Dorothy knows her airplanes. She has 100 hours of solo flying to her credit, and has completed an intensive coure in aeronautics. Experts have declared that she's capable of making the hop.

Dorothy is 22. Ten years ago, as a school girl in a small town near Minneapolis, Minn., she sold her bicycle for her first airplane ride. Now she's out on the brink of a flying career.

Motor Fuels Show Strength

Naptha Prices Go Up On Better Demand

TULSA, Okla., July 15—Optimism continues to prevail among Mid-Continent refiners, with big orders still coming in. All grades of gasoline naptha were advanced one-eighth of a cent, the new price on 58-60, U. S. Motor gasoline now being 8¾ cents.

Natural gasolines are also looking very good, prices being advanced on all grades, the average price on AA and A grade being from 8¼ to 8½ cents, a number of sales being made Saturday morning for five and 10 car lots, all of it selling at 8½ cents. These prices are expected to hold for just a few days. This commodity is very scarce.

Increased demand for motor fuel, indicating a steady consumption by tourists and the new avenue of consumption, developed by aviation, is giving refiners considerable thought. Many are inclined to contemplate increased runs to stills, and manufacturers are all pleased at the strengthening situation.

Only burning oils show weakness. The semi-strength of kerosene early the past week, following the one-cent a gallon reduction in tank-wagon, has disappeared and fuel oils are soft.

A railway has been applied for and within a year or so it is expected that a fair-sized city will be established.

Juniper Tree Grows One Inch in Six Months

The two small juniper trees received from the federal government a year ago by the park department, have grown an inch in the past six months.

These two little trees are now nine inches high and are in flower pots in the office of C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks. They were sent here for experimental purposes from the Baleric islands to see how they would live in this climate. Slow growers, the trees are not expected to reach maturity for a number of years.

Pastor Raps Sunday Golf

CHICAGO, July 15. (UP) — Bad boys who play golf on Sundays had better beware or the "bogey man" will get them.

The golfer steps up to the tee on Sunday morning and trusts in God that his drive will send the ball close to the green but beyond that he has no divine thoughts on the course.

Rev. D. A. McGregor, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church at Glen Ellyn, a suburg, thinks golf is a "great game," even on Sunday but he asks how many men worship God on their trips along the fairways.

He doesn't like the game to the extent of substituting golf for religion and avers the latter should come first as the church is not a stymie to Sunday recreation.

"It is all very well to say one can worship God in other places than in church, but the fact is that people don't," Rev. McGregor said. "There is no harm in a game of golf on Sunday, but there is harm in substituting recreation for religion or making a holiday out of a holy day."

Sunday gardeners, who till the soil in their back yards instead of cultivating the garden of their souls also were told they were violating the true spirit of the Sabbath.

"They should be watering the garden of their souls with the grace of God," the rector continued. "If the men continue to spend their Sundays on the golf course, in the gardens or joy-riding in automobiles, the result will be Godless communities."

It is just as easy and just as necessary to worship God in the summer time as it is in the winter, Rev. McGregor said in his appeal to his parishoners.

"Make the resolution that you are going to use the Lord's day as He intended that you should, in caring first of all for the things of the spirit and then going out to spend the happiest day of the week," he concluded.

If his church is packed next Sunday like the golf courses have been since the season opened, Rev. McGregor said he would be as happy as the golfer who shoots the course in par.

Dr. S. S. McKenney already has been designated to deliver the commencement sermon at the First Methodist church, Sunday, July 22.

There seems to be quite a difference of opinion among the beer dealers as to just what beer is worth, retail, these days. Some sell good beer at 25 cents a bottle while others charge 35 cents or three for a dollar. There are a few who charge four bits a bottle, but at that a four bit seller recently expressed "regrets" that he was all out of aged beer and that the best he had was two days old. The two bit bottle sellers on the other hand claim that a good profit can be made on beer at that price and that there is no reason why beer at this price should not be as clean as beer at any other price. They claim that the other difference in price is all but due to sales conversation.

While the writer was siting in a theater the other day, the racket of someone tooting the life out of an automobile horn disturbed the fans quite a bit. The racket kept up for about 15 minutes. A few weeks ago, an automobile horn near a local hotel tooted at 2 o'clock in the morning and it tooted for 15 minutes. Every guest in the hotel on the side where that horn was tooting was awakened. This city should get in step with other cities which pass nuisance ordinances on the automobile horn tooters. They draw fines in exactly the same way the violators of other ordinances draw fines. Horns which are not used for the purpose for which they were placed on cars should come under such an ordinance.

Road Network Covers State

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15. (AP)—A vast network of good roads—some concrete, some macadam, nearly all of permanent type, is spreading over the broad expanse of Texas.

Contracts for constriction of 1553 miles of highway have been let during the 18 months just past, by the highway commission appointed by Governor Moody soon after he took office. These contracts represent a total outlay of $21,340,107.89, including $1,393,511 for bridges and overpasses and underpasses at railroad crossings.

New construction contracts during the first six months of 1928 alone called for expenditure of $11,480,811.97.

In addition, the commission has awarded maintenance surfacing contract on 1056 miles of highway.

The figures were secured from Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, who works under the direction of Chairman R. S. Sterling of Houston and Commissioners W. R. Ely, Abilene, and Cone Johnson, Tyler.

During the 18 months period, 441½ miles of concrete paving has been contracted for. Seven hundred 71 miles of highway has been given grading and drainage structures preliminary to paving. Contracts for bituminous macadam paving cover 219½ miles. Continuing its policy of favoring a permanent type of highway, the commission has contracted for 59 miles of gravel, caliche and iron ore surfacing so far this year.

Maintenance work has cost the state 13 to 16 cents a square yard, on an average. This includes all work and all material, including gravel or crushed stone, furnished and hauled by the contractor. During the previous administration, the state supplied the gravel and stone, delivered to the job.

Of the 18 months total cost, $6,770,231.43 represents federal aid. The state furnished $6,544,919.63. Counties which benefitted from the road work have paid $8,025,856.83.

FAME HUNTERS END IN WOE

Men Beat Women in Fight For New York's Glory

NEW YORK, July 15. (US)—Each year an army of pilgrims of adventure, burning with ambition buoyed by hopes often illusory, descends upon metropolitan New York from all parts of the country.

From this vast potpourri of humanity emerge eventually the famous orators, writers, poets, painters, sculptors, money kings, lawyers and surgeons who dazzle and astound the world with extraordinary impact of their ideas and achievements.

From these hundreds of thousands—the annual influx is estimated at more than 200,000 from the states alone—only an infinitesimal few attain the pinnacles of eminence they had dreamed of.

What becomes of the residue?

Harsh Survey

A survey by welfare workers discloses that two out of every nine of these young men and women go home beaten before the passing of a single month.

These further startling points were revealed by welfare workers whose duty is to minister to the defeated:

—Girls succumb more quickly than the boys to the painful readjustments often required of them.

—Many squander their vital resources on "putting up a front," that they think the city demands.

—The majority fail because of the lack of the minimum of $25 a week required for sustenance while waiting for a job.

—Contrary to popular impression, the youthful adventurers come from all sections of the country, the west, the middlewest, the south, with an amasingly high percentage from the extremely small towns.

—Accustomed to the high standard of living, many cannot, even temporary, endure a lesser scale of existence required of the virtually penniless.

—Rebuffed, hungry, friendless, discouraged, amidst the teeming, regimented millions, not a few suffer permanent distortions of morale.

Reach Level

—Where they go to constitutes a perpetual, unsolved mystery of mysteries, but the majority accept secondary lot in city, or gravitate to their former milieu, there to attempt to piece together the shattered strands of life.

—New York is a friendly city to the impetuous wooer, who comes prepared with funds to tide him over the rough spots.

Miss Virginia M. Murray, executive secretary of the Traveler's Aid society, No. 144 East 44th street, caravansary of many of the woebegone—has this to say:

"Girls and young women give up the battle to win a foothold in New York more frequently than boys and young men, according to statistics we have compiled.

"Pride, which makes the newcomers ashamed to let their friends and relatives at home know of their failure, keeps many in New York after their funds are exhausted. What becomes of them, I can not tell. The proud ones flee the registries and never return when advised to write home for money to buy a return ticket.

"There is a great deal of suffering in this group."
