Fall's Son-In-Law Called To Tell Of Evidence Against His Kin Anent $100,000 Loan From Edward Doheny

Oil Magnate's "Little Black Bag" In Which Funds For Loan Were Carried To Fall Again Figures In Oil Fraud Testimony

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. (AP)—Twelve government witnesses piled up a small mountain of evidence today in the Elk Hill naval oil reserve conspiracy trial in the supreme court of the District of Columbia. Buttressing its case against Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, California oil magnate, with more than 60 documentary exhibits, the government went into the first night session tonight with the bulk of its material in the trial record.

Today's testimony and exhibits presented a connected narrative of the negotiations which culminated in the award of the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval base construction program to Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, in April 1922, and the subsequent leasing of the Elk Hills, Calif., petroleum reserve to the same interests in December 1922.

These were the principal points in the government's offensive today in its effort to convict the two defendants of criminal conspiracy in the lease and contract awards."

Daugherty Testifies.

Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty testified he never had rendered an opinion upon the legality of the proposed leases and that he could not recall the subjects ever having been discussed by former Secretaries Fall or Denby of the navy department in a cabinet meeting. Attempts to draw from Daugherty's testimony concerning discussion of the projects in the cabinet were wrecked on the shoals of government objections.

E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of interior, testified Fall personally authorized acceptance of the Pan-American bid on the Pearl harbor storage project in April, 1922, and identified Fall's telegram from his Three Rivers, New Mexico, ranch, in which he was authorized to notify Doheny of acceptance of the bid. The government then directed testimony to the fact that the Pearl Harbor contract contained a clause pledging to the Pan-American interests "preferential rights" in such portions of the Elk Hill reserve as should thereafter be opened by the interior department to leasing.

Fall's Kin on Stand

Clarence C. Chase of El Paso, Texas, a son-in-law of Fall, testified Fall told him in December, 1921, that the $100,000 loan which enabled him to extend his New Mexico land holdings was from Doheny.

The prosecution has previously submitted in evidence a letter from Fall to the senate investigating committee in 1923 in which Fall explained he obtained the loan from Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

Chase testified he met Fall a few days after his father-in-law left Washington with $100,000 in cash which Edward L. Doheny Jr., carried from New York in a little black satchel. Fall had approximately $100,000 in his possession when he arrived in El Paso, the witness said, and he then told of banking operations through which Fall acquired the Harris ranch, adjacent to his previous holdings near Three Rivers.

Describing a visit to Cleveland, O., soon afterward, in the interest of Fall, Chase said his father-in-law told him the late Price McKinney of that city had offered during the presidential campaign of 1920 to loan Fall up to $250,000 for his New Mexico land purchases. Defense objections as to his conversation with McKinney were sustained.

The handsomely-built and appointed structure, which cost $175,000, served as the main reception hall for the day's festivities culminating in a dinner attended by the honorees, two bishops of the Methodist church, university officials and the board of trustees of Southern Methodist university.

Many Are Present

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Snider and Miss Helen Snider, who were in the reception line, among their friends present from out of the city were Mrs. D. B. High praise of the generosity of Wichita Falls people toward the making of a great southwestern educational center at Southern Methodist university was given by President C. C. Selecman.

The appointments in Snider hall are exceedingly handsome and the beauty and taste used in the furnishings, all of which were made possible by the donors, were objects of great admiration by the hundreds of visitors who called.

Fine Furnishings

A venetian glass chandelier brought from Italy last summer by Mr. and Mrs. Snider and a grand piano also placed in the reception hall by them were only two such objects of admiration. Two small semi-private rooms on each end of the main reception hall attracted much interest. These are known as "beaux rooms," Dr. Selecman explained, adding that they were incorporated in the design at the express wish of Mr. Snider.

Now no one knows who gets the money—but the police have it.

CLIMAX TODAY IN HALL-MILLS MURDER TRIAL

State's Motion for Mistrial Expected to Be Made During Day

TESTIMONY END NEARS

State Presents 17 Rebuttal Witnesses; Defense To Present Few

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 30 (AP)—Testimony of 17 witnesses today brought the rebuttal in the Hall-Mills case to within a few minutes of its close. If a motion for a mistrial is made by the state it will be made tomorrow when the evidence is all in.

The defense will offer few witnesses in sur-rebuttal— perhaps only one—and the testimony will probably be concluded by noon tomorrow.

The defense is known to have a handwriting expert in readiness to reply to the testimony of two state experts and he may be the only defense introduction.

Mistrial Move Incomplete

Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor tonight said that he had not completed plans, announced yesterday, to move for a mistrial on the basis of a letter from a Somerville man that prejudical conversation against the state had gone on among the jurors in their hotel quarters, and affidavits from newspaper reporters that jurors had been observed in court "nodding, and apparently asleep."

If the motion for a mistrial is abandoned or refused the case probably will be given to the jury Thursday.

One of the state's rebuttal witnesses called today did not testify. She was Charlotte Mills, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills who was slain with the Rev. Edward W. Hall September 14, 1922. Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, are charged in this trial only with the murder of Mrs. Mills.

Miss Mills Tardy

Miss Mills failed to respond the first time her name was called and although she entered the court room later, she was not summoned to the stand. She was a state's witness in the presentation of the case in the chief.

Santa Claus Letter Contest

NORTH POLE PALACE,
NOVEMBER 30, 1926.

(Via Alaskan Radio)

Dear Kiddies,

I had a hard time picking the winner today for the $2 prize in the Santa Claus contest being staged by The Wichita Falls Record News. There have been so many good letters delivered by the mail man that I've been kept quite busy reading them. I finally decided on the one which appears printed here in this little box as the best for the day and so the $2 prize will go to little Claude Hasford, who lives at 2106 Harvard street. Don't forget now, kiddies, this letter contest will last only two weeks, and three days of this time are already gone. Hurry your letters in as quickly as possible in order that may be considered in the contest. All children twelve years of age or under are eligible to compete.

I'm having a busy time up here at the North Pole getting ready for Christmas and checking my list to separate the good children from those who have been behaving badly. I don't know yet what I'm going to do about the latter.

Goodbye until tomorrow,

SANTA CLAUS.

WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS

MOODY TO RULE ON BEST BIDS

Attorney General Must Decide Who Is to Buy Goods For Dormitory

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Nov. 30.—The disagreement betyeen the University of Texas regents and the state board of control, over which has authority to select the furniture and furnishings for the Alice T. Littlefield dormitory, was taken to the attorney general's department Monday for a ruling.

Senator E. E. Witt and W. W. Naman of Waco, who are supporting adoption of the bids by Mrs. May Smith of Austin, which the board of control is unofficially said to want to accept, conferred with Assistant Attorney General L. C. Sutton, and it was stated a ruling will be made defining the extent of the regents' power to specify what make and type of furnishings will be bought. The regents, by a resolution adopted here insisted that the offer of another bidder, several hundred dollars lower than Mrs. Smith's be accepted.

Difference in kind and quantity of the furnishings offered by Mrs. Smith account for the difference in price, Senator Witt said.

The attorney general's department is said to have ruled in 1924 that the highway department was within its right to specify, in the purchase of automobiles, types of cars wanted, whether open or closed, but not the make of the cars. Senator Witt said if the new ruling follows that given the highway department, it will uphold the board of control's position as to buying the dormitory equipment.

LOVER'S PLEA WINS GIRL FREEDOM BUT JAIL FOR HIMSELF

FORT WORTH, Nov. 30. (AP)—Charles Wheeler, 52, made an impassioned plea for clemency for his love mate, Edith Stine, 20, when both were tried here Tuesday on forgery charges.

She was released on a suspended sentence and he was committed to the penitentiary for four years on evidence that he wrote a bad check and she passed it on a local department store.

The girl met Wheeler about two years ago when he was director of the Missouri State Penitentiary band of which Harry Snodgrass, "king of the Ivories," radio favorite, was a member. Miss Stine, an orphan, said she did not know Wheeler was married when she ran away with him and that he promised to marry her. Wheeler admitted having a wife, but said he left her after the first night following their marriage.

Arguing his own case before a jury, Wheeler claimed that the convict onus pursued him in his unsuccessful efforts to get work.

LAND FAKE AT DALLAS BARED

Women Tell Police Details Of Fraud Contest By Agents

DALLAS, Nov. 30. (AP)—Three real estate agents, charged with posing as the good fairies in a lot drawing contest, were arrested here Tuesday.

The arrests were made on complaint of Miss Ruth Gaskins that she had been victimized in a fraudulent real estate scheme.

According to the district attorney, the men tricked women into buying lots with pretense that the property was being given to them.

Miss Gaskins said one of the men called at her home and told her she had won a lot in a drawing, and that she paid $75 as a fee which the agent told her was necessary to have the deed perfected.

When the man returned with the deed she said he told her to sign a receipt for it, but that the receipt turned out to be a contract binding her to make payments of $7.50 a month until an additional $225 had been paid.

She took the paper to an attorney who laid the matter before the district attorney.

One of the women victims said when an agent of the company called on her, he said: "Good morning; I'm Santa Claus. You have been lucky and won one of our lots in a drawing contest."

District Attorney Cox said it was thought a number of Dallas residents had been victimized.

Childress Steer Grand Champion

Winner at Chicago Livestock Show Is Top-Fed Texas Steer

CHILDRESS, Nov. 30. (AP)—A Texas range steer, raised near Childress and fed by a 17-year-old boy, has won the grand championship over all breeds in the junior feeding contest of the International Livestock exposition at Chicago.

A Hereford baby beef steer, bred by Crews Brothers of Childress and fed by Ray Greathouse of Coles county, Illinois, has turned back the best high brow offerings from the agricultural colleges and the best feeders of the nation from Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois and Iowa.

It is said that this is the first time that a range steer has won the junior feeding contest. Crews Brothers stock has won honors at the International exposition for several years. Their cattle are raised in Childress and Collingsworth counties.

(AP) Mayor Lee Bivins and a score of other witnesses were called before the Potter county grand jury today which, acting on instructions from District Judge Henry Bishop, is conducting an investigation of the Amarillo police department. Judge Bishop told the jurors to investigate complaints of indiscriminate arrests without proper authority and alleged mistreatment of prisoners. Charles J. Blackwell, a former ranger captain is police chief.

HIS FAME AND FORTUNE.

The barefoot boy climbed the tree
And waded through silvery pools
And swam the sparkling river,
And watched the birds nesting,
And saw the first crocus,
And made merry—oh, so merry!
Amid woods, up hill, and down dale
Over valley, and on mountain-top,
And left it all behind—the beckoning roads of dancing spirits,
And happy hours,
To tramp the hard, over beaten path
Of fame and fortune.
Years, many years went by,
Many lives he lived,
Many deaths he died,
With the struggle to reach
The throne of worldly achievement.
And at last, breathless, tired,
Donned the laurel wreath
Fashioned by men.
Ah, how, he thought, I am through at last,
I want to go back to my streams and my woods,
And my first crocus.
And feel again the thrill of wading in the brook.
Back, back, to the joys
Back to do what memory has laid so dear.
But alas! He did not reckon
With the great taskmaster—Time,
Who had warned him so often
That in his great stride for fame and fortune
Made by men,
He was losing the capacity
For the greater and simpler joys
The one source of satisfaction.

Cotton Control Bill To Be Debated At Austin By Opposing Leaders

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Nov. 30.—The cotton control bill of Representative-elect M. C. Parrish of Austin will be debated at the Travis county courthouse Thursday night by Representative W. P. Alexander of Mexia, opposing it, and O. H. Cross, of the state Cotton Control association, upholding it.

The Parrish bill will, if enacted, prohibit planting cotton on the same land two years in succession. Its legality has been upheld in an opinion of the attorney general department. It will be the first major crop-reduction measure offered in the 40th legislature. Copies have been sent to all house and senate members.

The public debate on the merits of this bill was arranged by the Cotton Control association Monday, according to notice received by Mr. Parrish. Representative Alexander has recently been making vigorous speeches attacking the proposed measure, and he was challenged for the debate by the Cotton Control association and O. H. Cross was selected to meet him. After Mr. Alexander's recent speech on the bill at Mart, John Gorman, farmer, favored the bill and the audience voted 2 to 1 for the Parrish measure, according to Associated Press dispatches.

The Parrish bill will probably provide it will become effective only when a similar law has been enacted in eight other cotton-producing states.

Agricultural Commissioner George B. Terrell has declined to take part in a public debate on the merits of the Parrish measure, it was announced by the Cotton Control association. Mr. Terrell has been quoted as holding the opinion the bill would be unconstitutional.

The Parrish cotton measure is composed of five brief sections and the emergency clause. It is supported by an argument of 11 points in favor of the measure. The Parrish measure follows:

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Texas:

"Section 1. That in order to conserve the fertility of the soil and protect it from deterioration and final destruction in its productivity, hereafter it shall be unlawful for any owner, lessor or tenant of land within this state to plant or cause or permit to be planted, or to cultivate or cause or permit to be cultivated after the planting, on any land, owned, leased or rented by him, cotton for a second year in succession.

"Section 2. That it is hereby made the duty of the commissioner of agriculture to carefully investigate any and all violations of this act and report same to the county or district attorney of the county having venue of the offense herein provided for.

"Section 3. That in order to make the enforcement of this act more certain it is hereby made the duty of the tax assessor to note upon his rolls from year to year the acreage of land planted in cotton which may be rendered to him, to which he may assess for taxation, and to require from each owner of land so rendered to said tax assessor, or which may be assessed by said tax assessor, as to the acreage of said land planted in cotton.

"Section 4. Any person violating section 1 of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined in the sum of $25 for each acre of land so planted or cultivated or caused or permitted to be planted as provided against in section 1.

"Section 5. If any section of this act shall be held unconstitutional such holding shall not affect the validity of any other section or sections of this act."

Man Admits He Carved Up Body

Dismembered Torso of Girl Found in His Room By Police

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP) Frank Trapia of Brooklyn was charged with homicide today after the torso of a woman whose body he admitted dismembering was found in his home. He was arrested by a policeman who saw him throw a package, believed to contain the missing portions of the woman's body into East river.

After discovery of the torso in his home police said Tarpia at first told them he had killed the woman whom he knew only as "Marie," by a blow on the head in a fit of anger.

Later, they said, he retracted this story and said the woman died of heart failure while in his home and that he cut the body up to dispose of it in fear that he would be charged with her death.

DALLAS BRIDE HITS TWO MEN

For Second Time in Period Of Two Months She Is Held in Jail

DALLAS, Nov. 30. (AP)—For the second time in two months, Mrs. Louise Hassan, 25, is in jail, here charged with a shooting, and two men, said by police to be victims of her bullets, lie fighting for life in Dallas hospital.

Mrs. Hassan was charged with assault to muder following the shooting last night of James T. Broadnax, who was shot three times as he left a parked automobile and started to walk across a street. A woman fierd the shots from an automobile and then stuck the pistol in the side of her chauffeur and ordered him to drive away, police stated.

Wanted Her Clothes

The district attorney announced that Mrs. Hassan stated she had shot Broadnax because he would not return some of her clothes she charged he was keeping.

Two months ago Ahmed Hassan, a Syrian lace and silk dealer, was shot in a hotel, a few days after he had married Mrs. Hassan. He is still in a hospital and Mrs. Hassan was out on bond on a charge in connection with his shooting.

As he lay on the sidewalk with emergency doctors working over him, Broadnax stated that Mrs. Hassan shot him as he started to walk across the street. At the city hospital he said he did not want to prosecute the woman.

Speeds Off in Car

A. D. Robertson, chauffeur for a taxicab company, who had been driving the couple about, told police that as soon as the shots had been fired the woman jumped back into the automobile and forced him at the point of the gun to drive away.

One bullet penetrated Broadnax's back, and the other two took effect in his left arm. Witnesses said five shots were fired.

Southern Presbyterian Circles Hold Meeting

An old-fashioned "music box," the ever-present photograph album of the past generation, an old gourd dipper, and an earthenware churn furnished part of the setting Tuesday for the study of "The Land of Saddlebags," the home mission study book used this year by the Women's Auxiliary of the First Southern Presbyterian church, when members of all of the circles of the auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. H. E. Wilson, for an all-day review of the book.

Chapters were summarized in short talks by Miss Vivian Railey, Mrs. Robert McBee, Mrs. R. S. Riggs, Miss Eleanor Fleming, Mrs. W. A. Goolsbee, Mrs. P. F. Lesh and Mrs. R. C. Anderson, Mrs. F. C. Cooley, chairman of home missions, presided. The devotional was led by Mrs. George Fleming and music was furnished by Misses Vivian Railey and Bertica Gibson.

At noon, the dining room was opened to the guests, and the hostess, Mrs. H. E. Wilson, in the calico dress of the typical mountaineer invited all in to a "real" mountaineer dinner. Mrs. Wilson was assisted by Mesdames T. N. Colligan, Burke Taylor and D. B. Reed, all in the voluminous dress of the Applachians.

The table was covered with oilcloth and the menu included turnip greens, corn bread, "molasses," fresh onions and the like, and the quaint talk of those serving, who urged all to "make out their dinners," was entertaining to all.

Old masterpieces of mountain song, such as "Barbara Allen" were "fiddled" during the afternoon by Miss Vivian Railey, and several of the members entertained with short stories of the mountain work.

Those present were: Mesdames F. R. Johnson, D. B. Read, P. F. Lesh, O. C. Dickson, J. E. Railey, T. N. Colligan, H. E. Collins, George Fleming, F. C. Cooley, Burke Taylor, Kirkwood, J. D. Hall, R. S. Riggs, Robert McBee, W. A. Goolsbee, H. J. Burchfield, T. J. Griffin, Muehlberger, W. E. Beckhart; Misses Vivian Railey and Eleanor Fleming and Rev. Gaines B. Hall.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

MAKING MODERN MENUS MENU HINT

Hominy is a nice change from the regular breakfast foods. The stewed prunes take the place of orange or orange juice and the omelet may be omitted if the breakfast is too hearty for the family. Whole wheat toast and honey or jelly without the omelet will give a fairly hearty and nourishing meal.

Stewed Prunes
Hominy with Milk
Omelet Toast Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Hominy—One cup of hominy to seven of salted water. Cook in steam cooker four hours.

Omelet—Four eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately (whites first) one tablespoon flour stirred into the yolks, a pinch of salt, nine tablespoons milk, stirred in with the flour and yolks of eggs; then whip the whites in lightly. Cook until brown on one side in a well greased frying pan, then put in oven to finish. Fold over and turn on a hot platter. A small dish of corn, peas or other leftover vegetables may be added to the omelet when it is cooking or a little chopped ham or other meat.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Don't get the very young child intricate mechanical toys. He cannot work them and gets more fun out of a train of cars or other wheeled toy that he can pull about with a string or that works by friction. The things that have to be wound up are too stiff for little fingers to manipulate and they are usually worn out by the older members of the family before the child gets old enough to enjoy them.

STYLE WHIMSIES

Genuine reptile is employed extensively for trimming shoes.

The fur hat to match the fur coat is appearing frequently as the season advances.

A narrow circular ruffle set on near the hem with a strip of braid on a giraffe kid coat was seen recently at Longchamps, Paris.

Two-piece tailored suits will be worn a great deal next spring, is the present prognostication.

Brocaded metal cloth, silver and gold kid and dyed pastel satins matching the gown with which they were worn were conspicuous at a recent brilliant social function. With exotic gowns rhinestone sets and vivid red heels were seen.

Marriage Will Not Reform Man Who Refuses to Work Says Dorothy Dix

A Pitiful Letter From the Child of Divorced Parents — Why Marriage Will Not Reform the Man Who Won't Work—The Spinster Who Is Satisfied With Her Lot.

Dear Miss Dix:—I am one of those unfortunates—a child of divorced parents. I have a mother and a near-mother, a father and a near-father. I have two homes, between which I am thrown back and forth like a shuttle-cock; and with all of this I feel that I have no real home and no real parents. I don't seem to belong anywhere or to have anybody who belongs to me.

Miss Dix, we children didn't ask to be brought into the world, and when we are born I think our parents owe it to us t osttick together and make us a home until we are grown. And I think they are darn poor sports when they don't do it, don't you? GLADYS.

Answer: I certainly do, Gladys. I think when men and women thrust life upon a poor, little, helpless baby that they are in honor bound to see it through and do the very best they can t ogive it the right start in the world.

I don't think that they have any right to consider their own happiness or their own pleasure of their own inclination. It is the child's good that should be of paramount importance to them, and because marriage isn't just the picnic they thought it was going to be or because the man doesn't come up to all the woman's romantic dreams or the man gets tired of the woman doesn't give them any right to break up a home and half orphan poor, helpless, defenseless little kiddies.

Every child has an inalienable right to be brought up in a quiet, peaceful home. Every child has a right to a whole father and a whole mother, and to regular, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle parents, instead of synthetic parents that it acquires by second marriages. And the men and women who deprive their children of real homes commit an unforgivable sin against them.

In every household where there are quarreling parents, in every case of divorced parents, the children are the victims. Psychiatrists tel lus now that the reason why many men and women fall in life and many more have nervous breakdowns around middle life can be traced back to the fact that they were brought up in homes of discord in which the parents were perpetually wrangling.

One of our leading neurologists has made the statement that he has never known a man or woman who was reared in a happy, cheerful home to have a nervous collapse. That fact alone should be enough to make high-tempered, selfish, irritable men and women control themselves just to keep their children from having to pay the price of their fighting.

And what happiness can children have in homes where there is a step-father or a step-mother, when they know that there is a real father and a real mother somewhere else? And what home influence can bind a child who spend part of the time with one set of parents and part with another set of parents? And how is a child to feel any reverence for a father or mother on whom it sits in perpetual judgment?

No wonder the children of the divorced cry out against the injustice that has been done them, as Gladys does, or that they become hard and cynical little worldings who believe in neither God nor man. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix:—I am a woman 30 years old and for five years have been keeping company with a man who says he loves me very much. He is 40 years old. He hasn't any money and only works part of the time, but he wants me to marry him. Would you do it? E. L.

Answer: I certainly would not. Any able-bodied man who has reached the age of 40 without settling down to some good steady job isn't worth the powder and lead tha it would take to kill him, and any woman is an idiot who marries him.

Such a man is a bord loafer and idler. He is lazy to the bone and nothing in this world is ever going to make him work. His habits are formed and he is going to sit on the do-nothing stool the balance of his life.

And to a hustling, thrifty, up-and-coming woman, no other fault on earth is so hard for her to endure as just shiftlessness. Nothing else fills her with such a withering contempt for him. She could forgive him for being an energetic burglar easier than she can for just slumping down and doing nothing.

Many women make the mistake of thinking that they can inspire a lazy man to work and that their sacred influence will put vim and energy into him. They believe that as soon as a man realizes that he has a wife and children to support he will ge busy doing it. Fatal error.

Marriage works no miracle in a man, and when a lazy man gets married he just simply folds his hands and lets his wife do it. It may shame him for her to take in washing or boarders to support him, but he would rather be mortified than work.

Believe me, my friend, marriage with such a man will bring you nothing but misery. If a man of 40 isn't making a good living he never will.

He has qualified as a charter member of the Sons of Rest, and no mere wife can galvanize him into action.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix:—Insn't it strange why girls worry about not finding husbands? When I look around and see the husbands whose favorite indoor sport is arguing and the husbands who think that wives were made to work like slaves and the husbands who doll themselves up and go out sheiking while the wives stay at home with the babies and the husbands who are gentlemen everywhere except in theeir own homes, I am glad enough I haven't got one.

SINGL EAND GLAD OF IT.

Answer: It is a good thing to know when you are well off, sister, and there is no denying that the lot of the spinster who has a good job and her own latchkey and her individual pocketbook and nobody with a legal right to boss her or remind her of her faults, is full of peace and happiness, if she only has sense enough to appreciate it.

There are, as you say, husbands who are slave drivers, husbands who are grouches, husbands who are tightwads, husbands who marry in order to get somebody they can pick on, but, thank God, these are not the only brands of husbands.

There are also husbands who are good and kind and generous; husbands who are patient and long suffering and understanding and sympathetic; husbands on whose tenderness a woman can throw herself as she could upon the mercy of Christ. And it is because every girl hopes to get a good husband instead of a bad husband that keeps the marriage bells jingling on and the divorce courts busy.

For you never can tell until after you get him what sort of a husband a man will make.

DOROTHY DIX.

YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

About a million weary clerks,
A hundred thousand drivers,
A mighty multitude that works
At duties long and divers,
Have asked of me to ask of you,
Amid the hurly-burly,
If you won't kindly try to do
Your Christmas shopping early?

About a million errand-boys,
A hundred thousand postmen,
Who, anyway, have less of joys,
It seems to me, than most men,
Implore upon their bended knees,
In words more sad than surly,
If you won't try to do it, please—
Your Christmas shopping early?

About a million merchants wait
To show where that or this is.
Why any longer hesitate,
Oh, Mister, Miss or Missus?
Don't think alone about yourself,
But think about the girlie
Behind the desk, before the shelf,
And do your shopping early.

About a million will delay,
Yes, maybe millions of you:
And yet there still remains a way
To cause the clerks to love you:
For one thing still will help them some
If, on some morning pearly,
Although you're late, at least you come
To do late shopping early!

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB Says—

THE ART OF HOSPITALITY.

I went to a country home for the week-end. A number of other guests were there. I did not know them all. In fact knew very few. But when I had been there only a few hours I felt very much at home with each and every one of them.

I tried to analyze it. I considered that there was a home well appointed in every way, with just enough help to keep it moving smoothly. I reflected that we couldn't have any thought of giving trouble. Perhaps that was the cause of our ease.

And yet I have been in homes, most palatial ones, where we could not do anything for yourself under any circumstances. It was all done for you.

As a general thing, I felt glad to get away. The place was usually so stiff and stilted, I could hardly breathe for fear I would move something out of its geometrical space.

Many homes of wealth are precise and cold. On the other hand, I have been in very, very poor homes where the one extra bedroom could be little spared for the comfort of the family, yet the visit was filled with pleasure. Every minute spent there seemed so happy.

So I pondered over the week-end as to what made everybody feel so much at home where I was staying, as though they all belonged there and had met before.

I found it. It was our host. He it was who created the chime of cheer and the glow of gladness. He has the great sense of real hospitality.

He made you a part of the entertainment. There were no wallflowers or favorite o es. Everyone was made to join in every activity—young and old.

And yet you had not the feeling that you were being entertained, because you were entertaining yourself. As some wise soul has said, you had a good time "because you brought your good time with you," and our host knew how to bring it out of you.

You felt at home. You felt you were very much wanted and belonged. He seemed to be everywhere. And the heartiest laugh in the place was his.

He laughed at your jokes, no matter how often he had heard them before. One of the greatest elements of friendship is to be able to laugh at each other's jokes. One who always throws cold water on things usually enfolds himself with disapproval.

Another fact I noticed was that no guest was "touchy." If you poked fun at any one he took it good-naturedly. Nobody laughed at you, but with you. And all because the host led the pace of pleasure. There was no formality.

In a word, you felt at home. You were made to feel that while you were there you were master of all you surveyed. This after all is the spirit of sincere hospitality.

As against this I have been to places where the host or hostess continually wore the fixed smile. They tried so hard to be pleasant. But you felt it was forced and they were trying to "entertain" you.

The spirit of congeniality was not there. Here it was so different. Time sped so speedily. You felt so free and unrestrained. You were given much leisure—to do as you pleased. You knew you were welcome. And the host was having as good a time as you. It was mutual interest all the time.

I have found this same thing in the humblest of homes. Somebody has said that hospitality is an art. But like all other arts, it comes from the heart. After all, "art is the beautiful way of doing things," and you can't do a thing beautifully unless you put yourself into it. Therefore, hospitality may be found in the hovel of the pauper as in the palace of the peer. The kind you only lend is readily recognized. It is what you give of yourself that counts in the long run. If you want to be hospitable put your heart into it.

TWO-HOUR CHAT IN TAVERN TOO SHORT TO PACIFY EUROPE

PARIS, Nov. 30. (AP)—"Grave differences with Germany still exist." Foreign Minister Briand told the chamber of deputies today, "but at least we are talking with Dr. Stresseman (the German foreign minister) and every day marks progress.

"Every day brings real peace nearer. It isn't through a two-hour talk in a tavern that the events of history can be changed and the past wiped out."

This declaration was taken as a reply to German newspaper charges that the French were not willing to reach a complete understanding with Germany. The differences between the two countries chiefly concern the regulation of German quasi military assertions and control of arms exports.

Black and Gold Is Motif In Hats

RABBIT BALL AIN'T NO MORE.

Departure o fthe "rabbit ball" is evident fro mthe team batting figures for the American league disclosed recently among the league stars for the past season. The Washington Senators led with a mark of .292, Detroit was second with .291 and three clubs tied at .289. In 1921, second year of the "fast" ball, Detroit led with .316, Cleveland was second with .308 and both the Browns and Yanks hit over .300.

BY MME. LISBETH.

Gold and black seems to be a favorite color combination of the Paris milliners. It is used in both informal and formal types, but is particularly well liked for dress wear. For dancing and restaurant wear black velvet trimmed with heavy gold lace is much worn and plain and gold striped black velvet is combined in a turban form.

Pictured are three examples of the gold touch. All are small hats with scarcely any brim which milady favors for wear with her fur collared coat. At the top is a velour with crown very high and pointed. An edging of gold ribbon peeps from under the banding of rose ribbon which is fashioned into a pert bow at the side.

The hat in the center is also a velour with a jewel as the only touch of gold. The brooch is placed high on the crown of this hat and a narrow ribbon gives a little touch of trimming around the crown.

The third hat is a felt and gold ribbon is placed under a strip of felt and bunched at the side under felt binders. All the crowns are very high, the brims narrow and not a crown is left plain, but is folded over, draped or otherwise manipulated.

BLUE NOSES AND LIQUOR

ONTARIO is the prohibition province of Canada. First the war came and wartime prohibition was enforced. Then the war closed and those who did not like prohibition asked for a referendum. It was held and those opposed to the referendum proposition won by 100,000 majority. Two years later a second referendum was held and the drys won by 50,000 majority.

Now December 1 another election will be held on the bald proposal that sale by government permit shall be submitted for the socalled dry system which has existed since the world war was on. Now the conservatives gave this dry law to Ontario, and yet Premier Minister G. H. Ferguson is responsible for the sale by government permit proposal instead of the prohibition statute. He carried a majority of the provincial legislature with him when he declared "we propose to control the liquor traffic by education and bring about sobreity among the people of Ontario."

There are three political parties in Ontario—the conservatives, the liberal and the progressive. W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party, and W. E. Raney, leader of the progressive party, are fighting, the Ferguson proposal for sale by government permit in the province. According to the Canadian newspapers, it is the hottest political contest that Ontario has known for years and the wisest of Canadian political prognosticators are waiting to see which way the cat is going to jump December 1 before they make positive predictions.

FORD AND STRAUS

HENRY FORD is a multi-millionaire. He is a great captain of industry. Nathan Straus, is a multi-millionaire. He is a great captain of finance. Straus has challeged Ford to a show down. Straus says among the christian millionaires, there are some who use their wealth for the benefit of mankind and others who use it for destructive purposes and for breeding trouble. For instance, he says, the Rockefellers are great public benefactors while Henry Ford, "who has become one of the richest money kings of the world has engaged in a campaign of slander against the Jewish people, has told malicious lies about them and stirred up trouble, mischief and hatred here and in Europe."

Millionaire Straus is a bit charitable. He insinuates that the wizard of Michigan is a victim of men around him who poison his mind. Hence, he has invited Wizard Ford to select eight members of a committee of 10 which would prove to Ford that, "some of the sycophants in his surroundings, for their own personal reasons, misinformed and deceived him on Jewish questions."

Millionaire Straus appears to be deadly in earnest. He is willing for Millionaire Ford to select eight of the 10 and after this has been done, Millionaire Straus will select two outstanding christians, "tried and true," to go on the committee. This will lead to more talk. Christmas is coming, the Yuletide is almost here. Let us have peace.

There should be room on the face of the earth for men of all creeds and colors and men of no creed who are in doubt as to their color. It is a direct challenge, however, and the man who wasn't a millionaire 25 years ago has permission to take the center of the stage.

TOWN TALK—By H. F. J.

WHEN TRAGEDY STALKS

Five thousand persons, press dispatches say, lined the banks of a lake up in Hall county a few days ago while a search went on for a gruesome thing at the bottom.

Five thousand persons stood around hoping that the body of a dead man, submerged for a week, might be brought to the surface so that all might see. Few knew the victim. Few had any interest in him. Yet morbid curosity dictated the day's program for far more persons than went to church that Sunday morning.

And that is no indictment of Memphis. The same thing would have happened in Wichita Falls except that instead of 5000 people, 10,000 would probably have turned out there.

Of course there is an element of mystery in the thing. The lake refused for a solid week to give up its dead. Hundreds of men prodded and raked at the bottom. Even a diver went down for a search and could not find the victim. It was puzzling yet they knew the body was there. Eye witnesses saw Joe Parven fight desperately against the clutches of the sinister waters. They saw his boat turn over; they saw him battle for his life; they saw him gasp and sink. He had to be on the bottom.

Puzzling it was, yet this was not the prime motive for the throng. They wanted to see a thing at which most men flinch.

The psychology of all this is a product of an advancing civilization that makes of death a thing increasingly abhorrent. In days of old and, in countries today where life is held lightly, such tragedies as that which befell Parven would go utterly unnoticed. No self-respecting savage would walk through a poison ivy bush to take a look at such a thing. But because such things are not common where the fires of enlightenment have burned, Tragedy is not held lightly. Thus the crowd.

Human Nature Topics

A FREAK OF COINCIDENCE

Henry Stevens, on trial with Mrs. Hall and his brother "Willie," for the murder of Mrs. Mills, offers the alibi that on the night of the crime he was fishing on the beach at his seaside home, 60 miles from the scene of the tragedy.

He brings a flock of dough-faced neighbors and friends to substantiate his story.

None of these witnesses, on demand, could tell you, to save his soul, what he was worrying about this time last year. Not one of them knows what he was doing at 6 o'clock at night last Christmas or what he had for dinner on the October 25, 1924.

Yet one by one these broad-minded birds climb creakily to the witness chair, and solemnly relate, with amorous precision, Henry Stevens' movements during the daylight and early evening hours of Sept. 14, 1922, the date of the Hall-Mills tragedy.

They're sure Brother Henry was fishing the night of the murder. Couldn't it have been the following night they saw him fishing? No, it wasn't the following night, it was that night. How do they know? They don't know how they know. They just know. Has anyone talked to them to refresh their memories? No. Can they detail their actions on the day before? No. Can they remember what they did, where they went, whom they saw the day following? No. Just that one day sticks in their minds? Yes. Why? They don't know. Just a freak of coincidence.

Ralph Gosline was a vestryman and a warbler in the choir of the Church of St. John the Evangelist. He was in De Russey's lane the night of the murder, with an unmarried member of the choir. Brother Gorsline has a wife and daughter who left him following the disclosures of the trial.

Miss Agnes Storer, organist of the church, was on the stand the other day. Aleck Simpson was questioning her about Gorsline.

Was he very regular in his attendance? Oh, yes, very regular. And what did he sing. Baritone.

"Was he a soloist?"

Brother Simpson might have been a musician, launching inquiry, soft as velvet, with respect to a rival.

"Yes," replied the witness, "Mr. Gorsline was a soloist, but he didn't sing the hymns as soloist. He sang the solos in anthems."

Could she pick out one that he could sang?

The little organist's eyes brightened perceptibly at the recurrence of a sweet memory.

"Oh, yes," she said, "If You Love Me, Keep My Commandments."

It is impossible to describe the utter irony in Simpson's tone as he repeated her words.

"That was a very great favorite of his: 'If You Love Me, Keep My Commandments.' That's all.

The little witness smiled. Mrs. Hall and her brothers smiled. Counsel for the defense smiled. The jury stared in bovine stolidity. And the prosecutor, sighing wearily, resumed his seat.

TIME AND THE TIDE

WE ARE ALL SHORT-SIGHTED

No reputable publisher in New York, this day, would care to print the political jibes hurled at Lincoln, in slavery campaigns. We have gone far since we called Lincoln an ape, a clown and an ignoramus; yet many of our fathers believed exactly—that.

Few public men could bear to have embalmed in permanent form their utterances along the road that led to power.

And for that matter what a monster he would be who undertook to engrave in marble, "lovers' oaths."

All, all is change; all is for the day.

Each generation feels called upon to revise verdicts of the past, especially names and their relative importance.

Thus men today cursed, reviled, cast out as impossible, may be in years to come be held "great characters, misjudged by their own short-sighted time."

This very day the present writer chanced across two books intended to reverse past decisions; one on Caesar, the other on Major Wirtz, who was in charge of Andersonville prison, and has been held responsible for 13,000 graves. Fifty years ago Wirtz was hanged in the yard of the old Capitol prison at Washington.

But step by step through many pages, this author urges for Wirtz sympathy, kindness and humanity, claiming that men "higher in rank" were really responsible for many black crimes. And such a book, after 50 years.

The other volume does not tell of Caesar's power, but his weakness, his epileptic fits, his crazy superstitions, his self-impostures, his fear of thunder and lightning, comets, the moaning of winds at midnight.

Considering the various names mentioned on this page, from Lincoln to Caesar, men cursed and men praised, be charitable. Most men are better than they appear, in their worst moment. Take the lesson to yourself.

Pepper Paragraphs

BY SCISSORS

Sardines in a box have long been regarded as representing a condition of about as nearly the perfect fitting of a great deal into a small space as was possible. But, according to word from the United States department of commerce, this simile is outgrown, for one reads that new machinery for cutting the fishes so that they can be fitted more compactly into tin containers has been put into use in California. From now on, presumably, as loose as sardines in an old-fashioned box will be no more nearly correct. Times change and sardine-packing changes with them!

KELLYGRAMS . . . . . By Fred C. Kelly

MAIL ROUTE LOVE

A 16-year-old youngster has vanished after joining a "love-letter exchange." Her family is distracted. At the same time the mail of a newly-made heiress is being littered with lovelorn letters.

When will you realize that love doesn't come that way?

When will young people understand that the person worth while doesn't seek a mate by mail route? It is only the adventure seeker who stoops to such methods.

When will we recognize the truth that he who offers marriage to a woman who has just acquired money is after an easy life, and doesn't appreciate the first principle of love?

Finally, and most important of all, when will the truth sink in, the long-distance love is just what it implies, a long distance from the real thing!

There is only one reason for the "love letter exchange." There are so many people who are lonesome and loveshorn. That is to say, they seem to have no means of meeting and making friends.

They deserve our attention and our help. To them the right suggestion will lead to the desired end; but the last thing in the world to do is to write love letters to people you have never met, or suggest marriage to them.

It is a sorry method and a desperate chance. Rare are the cases indeed where two people who have never known each other have come together and "lived happy ever after."

The kind of love that is framed only with romance and adventure ends with the romance and the adventure.

In matches made on a chance it is not even a fighting one. Although you have been forewarned you are not forearmed.

You are groping for happiness in the dark. You take the plunge in the same blackness and you only see the light when it is too late.

Also it is the wise young woman, with money, who will believe that the many suitors who lay their hearts at her feet are really extending their hands for her pocketbook.

And now about the lonesome. One thing is certain, you can't force acquaintances. You can't write love letters and secure real love. What you can do is to meet it half way.

Every vicinity is full of organizations. There are Young Men's Christian associations as well as women's.

There are small civic circles and groups all about you. It is not difficult to enter most of them. Join one or two that seem interesting. You are bound to meet people. And if you are friendly you will make friends.

One acquainatnce will introduce another. And before you know it, you will have a little circle of friends. The trouble with most people alone is that they do not seek to break the loneliness.

It is what you give out in the way of cordiality that comes back to you, often manifold. In the old Biblical expression, "Seek and ye shall find."

If you have a good time it is because you bring a good time with you.

In the words of Burroughs, "Nor time, nor tide, nor waste, nor sea, can keep my own away from me." But the shortest way is the personal interest, the personal touch and not by the way of the 2-cent stamp.

BO BROADWAY . . . . . By Josef Van Raalte

NEW YORK, (EFS).—Sometimes it is difficult to decide whether the average New York newspaper is a fiction magazine or a record of current events. Most of them give the effect of having been compiled by Elinor Glyn, Conan Doyle, Bertha M. Clay and Nick Carter.

The other day there was a chapter which seemed to have been contributed by the early H. G. Wells in collaboration with Bellamy, the author of "Looking Backward." The actual contributor was Alfred C. Blossom, an architect, who emitted a prediction of what the big cities would be like in 20 years.

It seems that the metropolis of the future will consist entirely of huge buildings as high as 100 stories. The first 15 stories will be devoted to business, and then the residences will begin. These will be spacious, and have gardens, pools large enough to float a canoe and all sorts of appurtenances of country life.

Why this should ever be so, with so many square miles of unoccupied land within 15 minutes of Wall street by airplane, the prophet does not explain. Transportation, not building, is the problem of the future.

"Deep River," a new idea in operetta which did not take with New York audiences, is closing with the result that the prima donna of the company, who is very young, pretty, and new to Broadway, and who made an individual hit in the piece, is being beseiged with offers by producers of musical comedy.

Two of her friends were discussing her good luck. One remarked that the failure of the production was the best thing that could have happened to the actress, as it lets her out of her engagement and permits her to cash in immediately on her success.

"But what a bother of having to go through all of the work of rehearsing a new show!" the other moaned.

This recalls the reply of a pessimistic farmer who had just raised a tremendous crop of flax to a friend who congratulated him on his clean-up. "It takes an awful lot out of the soil," he complained.

From Rutgers university comes the report that a member of the freshman class registered a mark of 107 per cent on the "intelligence exams."

Just how anyone can possess more than perfect intelligence is something the solemn professors do not explain. Possibly the youth demonstrated that he had more sense than the professor who was conducting the examination, and the 107 per cent was the professor's alibi being shown up.

These intelligence examinations in colleges always strike me as pretty silly stuff. The teacher "A cat is an animal that barks and untangles its whiskers with a celluloid comb." The student writes "False" opposite this statement, and gets 100 per cent in intelligence, provided he does not take too long to come to the conclusion.

This is called "applied psychology."

A New Jersey prohibition enforcement official has warned railroad companies that if shipments of liquor continue, he is going to seize the freight cars that contain it, the locomotives that draw the trains, and arrest the train crews. Such moderation is amazing. That the president of the road should be allowed to go free is proof of the tolerance of the Volstead agent.

NATIONAL POLITICS . . . . . By F. W. Wile

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.(EFS) Old age in the dock, youth in the jury box, is the combination presented by the Fall-Doheny trial.

Fall is 65, Doheny is 70 years old. The average age of the men in whose hands the defendants' fate rests is around 32. The youngest is 23. Two are aged 25. Half of the jurymen are below 30. The oldest is only 48. As a whole, the 12 present a composite of ordinary, homespun American citizenship. There's not a "high-brow" among them—clerks, a steam-fitter, a newsdealer, an express driver, a grocery salesman, an electrician and a hotel steward make up the panel. Their answers to counsel's penetrating questions, before final acceptance, were prompt and intelligent. Government and defense seem satisfied they have a jury capable of passing upon the mountain of evidence awaiting presentation.

The legal technicalities with which the trial will bristle may baffle the Fall-Doheny dozen. But they look like men able to distinguish between elementary right and fundamental wrong.

Whether by accident or design, the presiding judge at the Fall-Doheny trial is a man with naval traditions. Justice Adolph August Hoehling is the son and namesake of the late Rear-Admiral Adolph Hoehling, United States navy. One wonders whether defense counsel had his ancestral origin in mind when prospective jurymen were excused on the mere ground of having sisters, cousins, or aunts now or formerly employed at the navy department. The underlying suggestion, of course, was that men with such "affiliations" would be undesirable members of a jury that must deal with the basic question of the navy's oil reserves.

Justice Hoehling is a Philadelphian by birth. He does not look his 58 years. He was admitted to the District of Columbia bar in 1890 and has been an associate justice of the district supreme court since 1921.

Newspapermen and radio broadcasters—this observer is a member of both professions—had their pride rudely jolted while the oil-case veniremen were being X-rayed Not a mother's son of them could be induced to confess he had formed airy opinion, either from what he'd read about it on the air! Man after man blurted out that he had "glanced at articles now and then." Others said they'd "seen the headlines." None acknowledged real acquaintance with the facts from anything printed or spoken. One talesman declared he "never read editorials. Another boasted: "I never listen in; don't like radio."

The big laugh of an otherwise solemn session came when defense counsel extorted an admission that a would-be juryman "never heard of any of the government counsel, even by reputation." Atlee Pomerene, democratic presidential white hope, smiled broadly, as he mused over the elusiveness of fame.

"Big Stick" Use Hinted.

There's a distinct hint of the big stick in the published diplomatic correspondence with Mexico. Secretary Kellogg does not say that he will recall Ambassador Sheffield or give Ambassador Tellez his walking papers in Washington. But between the lines of Kellogg's last note is a suggestion of firmness hitherto not conspicuous in our polite and punctilous pleadings with the Mexican government. What Senor Calles now does know is that the United States is thoroughly "fed up" with side-stepping and dilly-dallying, and demands action. Cynics point out that we have demanded it before, and not got it. They are inclined to believe that history is on the verge of repeating itself, despite the evidence of "punch" in the latest declaration of American rights and expectations.

Mills' Plans Well Laid.

Rep. Ogden L. Mills, slated to succeed Garrard B. Winton as undersecretary of the treasury, seems to have anticipated that the Empire state would not ask him to displace "Al" Smith at Albany. At any rate, the late republican candidate for governor of New York renewed the lease of his granite mansion on Rhode Island avenue, Washington, some time before election day. His action was duly noted as indicating Mills' expectation of remaining a resident of the national capital, in some capacity.

Oklaunion Is Thriving City With Good Schools And Active Churches

A public school system housed in buildings whose cost and equipment amounts to $75,000 is the pride of Oklaunion, Texas, a thriving little town of 400 population, located on the Fort Worth and Denver railway near Vernon. Three brick buildings are maintained by the district for the education of its children, and 15 teachers are employed. A modern teacherage forms a part of the progressive school system of Oklaunion. Under the able directorship of the superintendent and his corps of co-operating facutly members, the school has attained 16 1-2 units of affiliation.

Active In Churches

Oklaunion is an active town in a religious way also. Methodist, Baptist, and Christian church organizations hold services there each Sunday.

Poultry raising and the dairying industry are gaining much impetus in the Oklaunion section. Chicken farming is increasing materially, a number of people having taken it up in the last year or two. In addition to these industries, Oklaunion farmers produce cotton, wheat, oats, and corn, and many truck products. Potatoes, tomatoes, melons, cantaloupes and all kinds of grain sorghums are grown quite successfully in the section. Diversification is practiced by farmers of Oklaunion, who own cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry in addition to raising crops and truck gardening.

Oil Big Factor

Oil is an important factor in the development going forward in Oklaunion. About ten miles south of the town 10,000 barrels a week are produced at a depth of from 1500 to 2500 feet. Wells in the Rock Crossing area are especially productive.

Natural gas is to be installed in Oklaunion within the next few days as the Lone Star company line is to pass through the town. Another indication of the development and progressiveness of Oklaunion is shown in the fact that its population has more than doubled in the last two years.

Needs of the town at the present time are cotton pickers and a better cotton price. — West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch.

LINES TO A FOOL

You likely consider you're likely a fool;
You likely are nearly correct;
But since that is really the general rule,
What more could you likely expect?
The proof of your wisdom is not being wise,
But standing a different test.
You really are smart if you just realize
You're as much of a fool as the rest.

There's hope for a fool who his folly admits,
There's hope that his folly will end;
For holes in your sotckings or holes in your wits
You first must discover, to mend.
We all make mistakes, but more than we might
If we looked for the holes all along;
The fellow who thinks he's eternally right
Is really eternally wrong.

Take comfort from this, and take comfort you can,
Whenever you stumble or fall;
The fellow who scorns you is some other man
With some other folly, that's all
You'll find, if you figure statistics and such
And a general average strike,
That different men do not differ so much—
We're all of us likely alike.

Memphis Cotton Sleds In Demand

Blacksmith Shops Operating Overtime to Handle Rush Of Orders

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 30—The blacksmith shops of Memphis are working full capacity in Memphis making a machine called cotton sleds, which the farmers of Hall county are using to gather their cotton. With the use of these machines enables the farmers to gather their cotton more rapidly, some of them gathering as much as four bales per day and the difference of price received for this kind of cotton is very little less, if any, than for the cotton that is pulled by cottonpickers.

Some of the gins in Memphis have refused to gin the sledded cotton on account of its affecting their insurance, while others are paying a higher premium on their insurance and going right on ginning the farmers' cotton.

YES, YES, YES

Still audible 20-point gestures relative to whipping our nine Saturday but haven't seen in person any lads professing such financial suicide idea. Or is it?

* * *

The Super-Optimist, If Any

Brace of the boy friends bubbling over with assertion patriotic Ranger citizen the other night thought so much of Bulldog chances he favored with even-money wager and 21-point donation. Endeavored to catch optimistic gent on 'phone for verification, but he had departed for Ranger to report to the clientele what "soft pickin's and how lavish certain misguided Wichita brethren are with their purse linings."

* * *

'Tis inferred there will be no football game at Spud pasture this week-end. Just an animated foot race.

* * *

THESE DOPESTERS?!!?

Yeah, and it's granted in some sectors Ranger has two-touchdown stronger club than the Mac brothers. Not three! It was granted Army two touchdowns better than Notre Dame. Notre Dame was believed three to five touchdowns meaner than Carnegie Tech. So, perhaps our nine isn't in such a hard row, after all.

* * *

PERHAPS AN OMEN

Hunting friend of mine declares a harassed coyote can lick the tar out of a bulldog any day. Corner the plains beast and he'll cut your bull purp to ribbons.

* * *

Speaking of Army and Notre Dame, that was an unkind quirk of fate, that Mick 7-0 win over the Cadets. Had the Soldiers, whom nine out of ten of your critics believe to this minute a stronger club than the Rockne Ramblers, come away victor the two service teams in their spectacular 21-21 tie Saturday would have wound up the greatest season in history of the service institutions. Both would have been undefeated and finished the season in a sensational deadlock. As it was, the Mick victory over Army ruined the Army and marred the Midshipmen's record when they were forced to take a tie as their end of the annual service clash.

* * *

AD ON WAY BACK

Ad Santel, the world's greatest light heavyweight wrestler of all time and an idol more or less of Wichita Falls fandom, plans a visit to the city sometime soon. Santel's last match here was with Joe Stecher early last summer.

* * *

Nearly Unanimous Now

And the gray-thatched Tris Speaker has stepped down with Eddie Collins, Ty Cobb and the rest of the major league managers who lost out in the greatest managerial turnover ever registered in one year on major league rosters. It is the same old story—that of the star ball player who in later years finds himself slipping as a player but refuses to accept a cut in his salary as a manager.

* * *

THAT COBB COMPLEX

Speaker, the master fielder, ranks second only to Cobb in color. Were he of a disposition anything similar to the Georgia Peach's, Tris may have surpassed Cobb. There's many an anecdote told of the colorful one. Cobb's fiery spirit, his attitude of never-give-up, ever kept him in the limelight.

* * *

NEVER CONQUERED

Billy Evans, the umpire who as a news writer, incidently, is throwing many bouquets Cobb's way these days, had several run-ins with Ty. As one baseball man words it, "Evans beat Cobb almost to a pulp but never conquered him." During one melee, Evans, who is quite a tiffster if need be and who is well-versed in the boxing and wrestling holds, worked the Peach into a touch situation. Cobb had cussed Bill. Bill put some kind of a sinew-ripping jiu jitsu hold on Tyrus and practically paralyzed the Georgian's throwing arm. Still applying the hold, Evans ordered Cobb to "take back" what he had said "or I'll break it (the 'it' meaning Cobb's arm) and ruin your baseball career!" Stubborn Ty, agony written on his face, merely shook his head, cussed Bill all the harder and said, "Go on, break her you blankety-blanked blank." Evans, rather than ruin a good ball player, finally let go.

* * *

Cobb had quite a few battles with Charley Schmidt, former Tiger backstop and one-time coal miner. Charley is swarthy complexioned. Cobb got to calling him "nigger." Schmidt is said to have whipped Ty fully a dozen times, but the fiery one always came back with his favorite epithet and asked for more, as it were.

Schmidt was quite a card himself, perhaps still is. The Tigers had swung into the Gulfport hotel preparatory to opening the training season. Many of the natives stood around in the lobby asking where the "great Cobb" was. Everybody wanted a glimpse of the Peach. Schmidt stood by, jealous ire aroused, getting angrier and angrier. Suddenly he bawled out, "To hell with Cobb! I'm SCHMIDT! I eat 'em raw!" and he plunged a hand into a nearby goldfish bowl, grabbed up a couple of finny fellows, stuck them in his mouth, chewed 'em up and swallowed.

MICK FANS PASS THROUGH COWTOWN ON WAY TO GAME

FORT WORTH, Nov. 30. (AP) Notre Dame football fans passed through Fort Worth Tuesday afternoon enroute to California to see the Notre Dame-University of Southern California game on Saturday. They were traveling in five special Pullmans and spent 30 minutes in Fort Worth before going to El Paso. The football team, taking another route, will meet the fans in El Paso.

LEAGUE RACE NARROWS WITH WICHITA FALLS-RANGER GAME DRAWING WEEK-END SPOTLIGHT

Bulldog Coach Ranks Mills Above Francis As Backfield Star and Says His Team Will Wage Tough Battle

With the 27-10 Waco victory over Temple Tuesday for the championship of district 8, Texas interscholastic league football narrows down considerably. Waco plays San Jacinto high school of Houston, district 7 champion, next week in a bi-district game.

Wichita Falls and Ranger, champions of district 1 and 2, meet Saturday at Spudder park in bi-district conflict. Oak Cliff of Dallas plays Cleburne, district 4 champion, either Friday or Saturday. The date had not been announced Tuesday. McKinney and Marshall, champs of district 5 and 6, are to meet in a bi-district game but this date has not been announced either.

The Wichita Falls-Ranger game draws the bulk of the spotlight in the week-end squabbles because it is generally believed the winner of this melee will rock right on into the finals.

Ranger with one of the greatest teams in the history of the West Texas city is rated a two-touchdown margin over the Coyotes. That is, many Central and West Texas critics are of this opinion. Wichita Falls, howeved, sends into the titular scramble this year perhaps the most powerful eleven that ever has represented the section. It is a team that has come along very slowly, improving gradually, until it is expected to be near the peak of its form Saturday against the Bulldog invaders.

Both Hard at Work

Both Ranger and Wichita Falls squads are drilling carefully for the titantic struggle scheduled to be staged on the Spudder gridiron. Coach Blair Cherry of Ranger told The Record News Tuesday night over telephone that his squad is in great physical condition and looked very good during the afternoon in a scrimmage session.

Cherry said his team was crippled just a bit, however, losing a regular and a reserve player due to recent injuries. Knott, giant 210-pound tackle, was unable to play in the Cisco-Ranger game Thanksgiving day because of injuries received in an automobile accident. He will not enter the lineup Saturday, according to Cherry. Reeves, fleet halfback, will be held from the affray, said Cherry, because of a collar-bone fracture incurred in the Cisco game but not realized until an X-ray was taken Monday.

The Ranger coach upon being told that Ranger fans were wagering 20-point odds on a Ranger victory, yelled, "Why, they're crazy! Where do they get that idea? If we beat you it can't be by more than two touchdowns and I don't expect that. All I can say is we hope to give you fellows a mighty tough battle."

Flowers for Francis?

Cherry lavished praise on Coyal Francis, Wichita Falls backfield man, declaring "he's one of the best high school football players I've seen."

How about your Buster Mills, Ranger quarterback, the coach was asked.

"Well, I consider Mills a better all-around player than Francis. You see, Mills is much faster and he can kick better and pass more effectively."

One listening between the lines, as it were, could tell that the Ranger coach is fairly confident of victory but in keeping with what Doc Stewart would term "smart football psychology," doesn't want to admit it.

Ranger fans have reserved 750 seats for the game, Spudder Sec. Guy Airey said Tuesday. A host of other fans are expected from the Bulldog home.

Tickets are on sale at Renfro's drug store, said Airey.

The Coyotes worked until past dark Tuesday on the scene of the battle, perfecting formations and plays. There was no scrimmage other than blocking exercises. The squad is rounding into form rapidly.

Perk Ray, halfback, who has been slowed up with a leg injury, was improving.

Hoodoo Means Little to Them

Latzo and Flowers Plan To Defend Crowns In Jinx Year

This has been a bad year for ring champions.

Dempsey, Berlenbach, Greb, Walker, Kansas and Kaplan have passed out of the picture as kings for one reason or another—usually a good stiff kick from the left or right mitt of a better man.

But apparently the hoodoo worries two of the present monarchs not at all. For they are planning to risk their titles before the close of 1926.

One is Tiger Flowers, world's middleweight champion, and the other Pete Latzo, welterweight king.

Flowers meets Mickey Walker, once head of the welterweight class, in Chicago, December 3. Latzo risks the title he won from Walker in a battle with one Joe Simonich, December 8, in Newark, N. J.

Now ordinarily neither bout would worry followers of either king. But Tunney didn't worry Dempsey's friends, Rocky Kansas' friends thought he was too clever for Sammy Mandell. Few knew Harry Greb was within a few months of death—suffering from an injured head and blind in one eye when he faced Flowers early in the year.

All "Agin" Tiger

So there may well be some conjecture as to the advisability of these kings climbing into the ring, even to be introduced, let alone subjected to a few wallops from an opponent.

Flowers, first negro to hold the world's middleweight title, will step out of the ring a rich man, no matter what happens to him. He has made a neat pile to date and the coming battle will net him $65,000. Walker's end, oddly enough, will be almost as much as he received for some of his bouts while wearing the welter diadem. Walker never was a colorful fighter. He drawa the battle with Flowers because—well, frankly few want the Tiger's stuff.

Latzo's Hand Hurt

Latzo will be defending his title for the first time. He has been kept out of the ring for months because of an injured hand. At one time it was feared the injury might spell the end of his fighting days. The coming bout will give him some idea of how strong the injured mitt is and how it will stand the gaff.

Nothing so very thrilling is expected in either of these bouts, as said before, but you never can tell in the fight game.

Not in these days when a champ becomes an ex-champ before his first mail reaches home.

PLAY AT DECATUR

Wilson's Archer City eleven invades Decatur Friday to play for the district class B championship. Efforts had been made to bring the game to Wichita Falls but Decatur refused to play in this city.

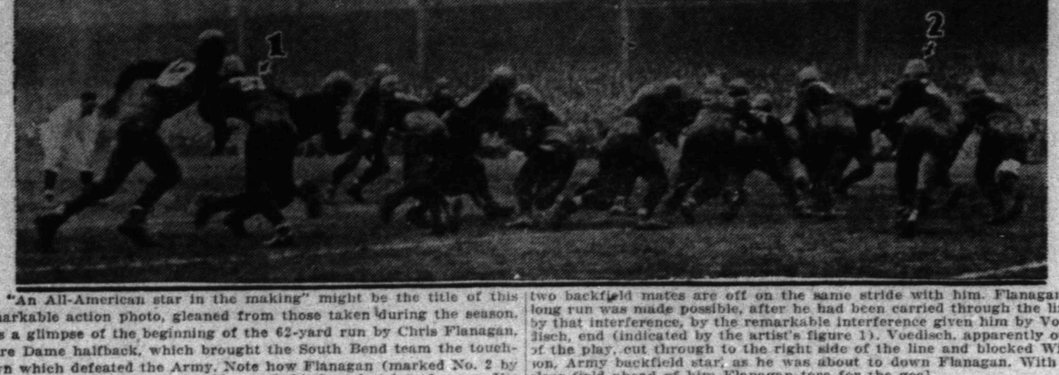

AUSTIN STAR INJURED

TEMPLE, Texas, Nov. 30.(AP)—Captain Charlie Wolfe of the Austin high school football eleven was painfully injured near Belton this morning when the automobile in which he and four other members of the squad were going to the Temple-Waco game in Waco, overturned shortly before noon today. He was picked up by Mrs. Dan Moody, wife of the governor-elect, and rushed to a hospital in Belton for X-ray examination which disclosed two broken ribs. He was not unconscious.

AGGIES LOSE SIX VETS.

BRYAN, Texas, Nov. 30.(AP)—Six members of the A. and M. college team will be lost to the 1927 eleven through graduation, it was announced today. Those who will not be back are: Captain Dieterich, G. A. Sprott, Babe Watts, Jell Woodman, D. C. Arnold, and P. M. Price.

Chris Flanagan Off for Victory Touchdown! That's Way All-American Stars Are Made

"An All-American star in the making" might be the title of this remarkable action photo, gleaned from those taken during the season. It is a glimpse of the beginning of the 62-yard run by Chris Flanagan, Notre Dame halfback, which brought the South Bend team the touchdown which defeated the Army. Note how Flanagan (marked No. 2 by the artist) is getting away for his run behind perfect interference. His two backfield mates are off on the same stride with him. Flanagan's long run was made possible, after he had been carried through the line by that interference, by the remarkable interference given him by Voedisch, end (indicated by the artist's figure 1). Voedisch, apparently out of the play, cut through to the right side of the line and blocked Wilson, Army buckfield star, as he was about to down Flanagan. With a clear field ahead of him Flanagan tore for the goal.

WACO SLOUGHS TEMPLE CREW

Meadows Runs Back Two Punts for Scores In 27-10 Win

WACO, Nov. 30. (AP)—The Waco high school Tigers now hold the undisputed championship of district eight of the Interscholastic league as a result of their victory today over the Temple Wildcats by the score of 27 to 10. The Wildcats made all of their points before the Waco team scored. The Waco team staged one of their sensational come-backs and not only held the Temple team scoreless, but made 27 points themselves. Meadows, brilliant Waco safety man, was the star of the game, returning two punts for touchdowns through broken fields. Each time it appeared that he would be downed. The Waco line co-starred with Meadows.

$75,000 RECEIPTS

Longhorns Clean up Financially on Turkey Day Game.

AUSTIN, Nov. 30.(AP)—A complete report of the receipts from the Texas university-A. and M. game is not abailable yet, but the figures are approximately $75,000, including $4,000 from the blanket tax fund of the Texas students and the admission for the cadets, according to L. Theo. Bellmont, director of athletics. The sale of programs brought $1,000 which will be turned over to the Walter Camp memorial fund. Approximately one-half of this will go to A. and M. as their share of the proceeds.

Approximate figures from the other games show the Vanderbilt game as the best financially, clearing about $13,500. The game with Rice brought about $5,000; Baylor $4,500; S. M. U. $13,000, half of which goes to them.

Of this amount about $40,000 goes to the salary budget for coaches, trainers and other assistants. All the other sports show a deficit which football must carry, Bellmont said.

HOPEFUL FOR GOOCH.

Giant Texas Tackle May Be Eligible to Play Another Year.

AUSTIN, Nov. 30.(AP)—Texas university supporters are hopeful that Aubrey (Tiny) Gooch of Ennis, 260-pound tackle, who was named all-Southwestern tackle for 1926 by some critics, will be eligible for competition in 1927.

Southwestern conference officials probably will be called on to rule on Gooch's case at their next meeting.

Whether the big tackle will be eligible depends upon interpretation of the three-year rule.

HARVILLE ELECTED

Olney Center Chosen Again to Captain Football Team

OLNEY, Nov. 30.—Bratton Harville, captain and center of the Olney high school eleven, was re-elected to lead his teammates during the 1927 campaign at a meeting Monday afternoon.

The season was brought to a close Thanksgiving day with a record of five victories out of eight games played, two defeats and one tie.

Coach O. P. Herm said that 16 letters will be awarded this year to players who have taken part in a majority of quarters.

HIP AT SAN ANTONIO.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 30.(AP)—Hip Lee Sing, of the Leo P. Flynn stable of boxers in New York, dubbed the "Celestial Typhoon," has arrived in San Antonio to begin training for his ten-round bout Thursday with Kid Lenche, promoter Al Edwards announced today.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

"The Rule Book Makes No Provision and Situation Is Not Hopeless," Says Moriarty

Boxing Is Hardest of Athletic Careers

Dundee Still Going After 350 Engagements

Took Titles When Most Fighters Retire

Fought Men Who Are Ancient History Now

The real champion, it matters not what line he is in, when he carries on to the last, or rather the unseeming last ounce of his strength, then it is time to start talking of his ability to stay in the game.

There is no greater comparison, as to the athletic ability, than boxing. A professional fighter must live right to be right and to live that right way is as much a test for championship strength as his ability to stay up under punishment or remain strong enough through the milling to deliver a knockout punch.

In other sports a man may live a more or less ordinary natural life. A fighter must content himself with a morning and evening meal. The good fellow never eats at noon, his meals come in the morning and evening. Us regular athletes can stow away enough at 12 o'clock to last us all day and the ordinary athlete can even go out and get "pie-eyed" once in a while for luck, and still stay with the crowd.

But the short-lived professional boxer must train his very life to stay the limit, and spend the rest of his life punch-drunk for hard work in the ring.

Why shouldn't we marvel at the long-lived fighting careers of some of the best battling men. Jack Britton was a wonder man, as well as Greb, and Kilbane took good care of himself.

* * *

Still there is one ring marvel on the war path, until his recent hand break. That was Johnny Dundee. The "Wop" veteran of the ring has had more than 350 ring engagements.

He did the best he could recently against Tod Morgan, and fought on while his bones were breaking. His super strength kept him at it until the referee stopped the fight on an inquiry as to fighting style and found Johnny was badly injured, but far from willing to stop fighting.

The tough little Italian reached the pinnacle of fighting fame when he knocked out Crique. He practically left-hooked the Frenchman from the world's feather-weight title.

Johnny's first fight was nearly 17 years ago when he climbed through the ropes and fought his very head off for five bucks and came out with two of the most beautiful cauliflowered ears ever to be recorded in sportdom.

Th most marvelous measure of stamina can only be calculated by his 350 fights; in all these encounters he has only been knocked out once. His lot has been known with his age and fate was peculiar in twisting time to 30 years. Of all the years of his battling he never had a chance to clean up until 13 years after he had started in the fistic game.

In gaining the world's title he took it at a time when most fighters are far beyond their careers and ready to retire. Fate frowned further on the game little "wop" in setting him too heavy for the game. He relinquished the crown upon finding he could no longer make the weight.

Johnny has been through with the game for the past 10 years. After every fight the crowd sings his swan song for him, saying "it will be his last" and then from some remote corner comes Dundee to finish off some newly touted lad for the count or ruin him for the rest of his natural boxing career.

The ringside started singing for him as far back as 1917 when he was smacked down for the count in his once and only K. O. Johnny got up and fought the greatest battles of his life for the next five years.

* * *

His most remarkable stage was set when he fought Willie Jackson a return battle and forced the fighting all the way, knocking his conqueror to all four posts, winning a decision in grand style and nearly knocking him from the mat.

Jackson was through with the game after that, but six years later we hear Johnny Dundee annexing the featherweight crown, while Jackson was sitting by, an old man as the fight game goes.

To look over Dundee's record and find he fought Leach Cross, Benny Leonard, Johnny Kilbane, Willie Jackson, Joe Shugrue, Matt Wells, Rockey Kansas and a host of others, is like reading ancient history, but his kind is still in the game to fight and for titles, wherever there is one to be fought for, and the authorities are quick to recognize they would be doing an injustice if they didn't make the match.

When will he be through? It's hard t tell. There may be another new title holder born the da he started fighting and grow up to manhood to fight Johnny Dundee, the "Scotch Wop," for the world's title and you'll just know he'll stay the limit even if he doesn't win.

There can never be another Dundee. The game is too strenuous for the average man; he must be built for the action and be content to care for himself, but they d 't.

ROUGH WRASSLERS

Heave Each Other Overboard, Ref Declares Foul,Fans Object

DALLAS, Nov. 30.(AP)—A referee's decision gave the wrestling match between Billie Edwards and Hugh Nichols here last night to Edwards on a foul.

A crown of 1000 refused to accept the ruling of Referee Harry Denstral and remained in the theatre half an hour to voice an almost unanimous protest.

Nichols won the first fall from Edwards in 16 minutes with a wrist and arm lock. The second phase of the battle had barely started when Edwards tossed Nichols through the ropes and then seized him by the head and yanked him back into the ring. Nichols came out of the head grip and went after Edwards. Throwing him in turn through the ropes and went through after him.

The referee and several spectators pulled Nichols back into the ring. Edwards was unable to rise, and Denstral declared Edwards winner on a foul by Nichols. Doctor G. H. Huddle and Isaac Jones, after an examination, said Edwards had suffered a concussion of the brain. He was given first aid treatment in his dressing room by emergency hospital doctors.

B TITLE PLAY AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Nov. 30.(AP)—The championship of district No. 5, class B in the state interscholastic league football contest will be the stake for which a team from Farmersville high will invade Dallas next Friday afternoon to tackle the Highland park high school team.

Nocona Football Season Success

Crites to Lead Indians In 1927 After Title Grid Honors

Although the Nocona Indians failed to go through the season undefeated, they have boasted one of the best class B football teams in this section of the state. They have just completed an eleven-game schedule, nine of these being hard tussles. In these eleven games the Indians have scored 288 points to their opponents' 78, this giving them an average of 26 points for each game played while their opponents average only 7. Eight of the contests were victories for the Indians while they tasted defeat three times.

Captain Maddox playing his last season for the locals has proved himself to be one of the outstanding quarterbacks in this section. He passes, punts and runs with equal ability. Harold (Hally) Crites, captain-elect for the coming season, has been a very consistent factor in all of Nocona's victories. He has carried the heavy work for the backfield on the offense and proved himself very capable in plugging up the holes for the defensive forwards. A wave of encouragement was carried around the Indians camp ground when it was learned that Lee Russell, the giant tackle and one of the main clogs in the line for three years, would answer the call for the 1927 squad. Byron Story, Ralph Knight, Bill Pribble, Harold Cates, Jesse Russell, Charley Howard, Abner Wall and several others will be on hand next September to help build up what promises to be a strong contender for the class B championship of this district 4. The annual banquet for the football boys will be on the night of December 10, there the awards will be presented.

ECKMAN CAPTAIN

Bowie Starts Basketball and Track Practice Soon

BOWIE, Nov. 30.—L. D. Eackman, star fullback, has been elected captain for next year, he succeeds Captain Sadler, one of the best linemen in the district who has just led the Jack Rabbits through a successful season.

Another good team is expected for '27 although several good men are lost by graduation. Those finishing this year are: Watson, Sadler, Brite and Kilcrease.

Bowie will start basketball and track practice soon. Good teams are expected in both.

TEDDY WATERS WINS.

BORGER, Texas, Nov. 30.(AP) Hurling his opponent from mid-air to the mat, "Teddy" Waters, 155-pound Borger wrestler, last night took two out of three falls to a finish over "Bull" Smith, 158-pound Oklahoma City middleweight, to mark the first mat show staged in this city.

GRID OFFENSE SLOWS DOWN

Nation's Elevens Develop Stronger Defense In 1926 Drives

NEW YORK, Nov. 30. (AP)—The attack in football, after a brief forward surge last year, again has felt the checking influence of sturdier defensive work. Records for the season just closed reveal the average scoring power of college teams throughout the country to be at its lowest ebb in five years.

These figures, covering the regular campaigns of 120 representative aggregations in all sectors of the gridiron front, show that a grand total of 13,960 points were rolled up in 917 games.

This is an average of 116.3 points per team, representing a sharp decline from the 1925 average of 122 and an especially marked drop from the 1922 figure of 133 points.

The decrease in the average game score also is notable for the five year period, scaling down 19 to 14.6 points, but the latter figure represents a slight advance over the 1924 average, which was 14.5. There has been comparatively little change in the game average, in fact, over a four-year stretch.

Passing Attacks Fail

The downward scoring trend for 1926 may be traced directly to the general ineffectiveness of passing attacks that flourished last season on a wide scale, to the increased emphasis on all-around team defense and to the development of more close order attacks.

There were plenty of thrills for those who like the features of the "open game" and the pass, but, among major teams, there was a distinct return to the more old-fashioned running games, with variations, and to the use of the field goal as a vital scoring weapon.

Where the University of Washington led the scoring brigade in 1925 with 459 points in capturing the Pacific coast championship, this year's high scoring honors went to La Fayette, only eastern team neither beaten or tied, with 330 points. Georgetown, with 308 was the only other team to pass the 300 mark.

Among major elevens Alabama, Pennsylvania and Northwestern exhibited consistent defenses, the southern champions permitting only 20 enemy points while rolling up 242 themselves. Penn also allowed only a score of points. Northwestern yielded 22 points and La Fayette 35.

Tech Stands Out

Notre Dame's goal line had been crossed only once in eight games when Carnegie's 19-0 avalanche buried the Hoosiers. This sensational victory emphasized Carnegie's defensive as well as attacking strength, the "Skobos" having yielded only 23 points, 17 to Washington and Jefferson and six to New York university in the team's only defeats. They scored 267 in capturing seven out of nine games.

Analysis of the team figures disclosed 33 games decided by field goals and 25 by the margin of a single point after touchdown, both totals setting new records. Safeties were the only scores in four contests while 30 ties, many of them in the most important games were recorded.

The trend of scoring power over the last five year period is shown in the following table:

Year	Colleges	G.	T.Pt.	T.Av	G. Av.
1922		82	5482	11,000	122 19
1923		100	6814	12,684	127 18.5
1924		95	7896	13,568	119 14.5
1925		108	8955	13,150	122 14.7
1926		120	9057	13,960	111.3 14.6

JUST TOO FAST TO BE BASEBALL PLAYERS

"Billy Fox Counldn't Slow Up On a Gro und Ball—Demontreville Thought Faster Than His Legs Could Carry Him," Says Moriarty

BY GEORGE MORIARTY

Ran into Billy Fox a few days ago at Minneapolis. Fox played second base for the Millers about 15 years back. He was one of the speediest infielders in the business. Many of his friends used to say that he was "too fast for an infielder," on account of his speedy underpinning. Like Jimmy Callahan, who once took a flier at second base, Fox had the habit of charging in on a ground ball without retarding his speed to field it; this caused him to boot many grounders that a slower fielder would have handled with ease.

* * *

Fox started a reminiscing bee about players whose brains are more agile than their legs. We agreed that Gene Demontreville, who once played the keystone position for Washington, was the champion of that class. He knew when and how to pilfer a base, and stretch a hit. Demontreville knew that his success as a base stealer was dependent upon the start and finish of the effort. I played with him at Toledo, and he taught me most of the base running tricks before I started in the American league.

* * *

Incidentally, Demontreville is credited with being the first player to pull the "delayed" steal. While it is generally thought that Herman Schaefer originated the "reverse steal," from second to first, I saw Demontreville pull it at Toledo long before the versatile Schaefer attempted the ludicrous stunt. It was recorded in an exhibition game in 1906. It seems that Gene and the visiting backstop were enemies of long standing, and it was his pet wish to show-up the receiver. Accordingly, during the latter part of the game when Toledo was enjoying a safe lead, Demontreville reached first base. At this period, he openly advised the catcher of his intention stating that he would not start his steal till the catcher had the ball in his hands. Gene made good his threat on the first pitched ball, and "stole" back to first base on the following delivery. He also confided to me that he had worked the same trick on the same catcher five years previous.

* * *

The crowd got a big kick out of Gene's clowning. The success of the "delayed" steal depends upon the carelessness of the shortstop and second baseman who are caught sleeping, but the catcher is usually blamed when it is put across.

The "delayed" steal is a direct contrast to the legitimate pilfer, because the latter effort is started when the pitcher is about to shoot his delivery to the plate. The "reverse" steal, while utterly unprofitable, and a barefaced travesty, nevertheless displayed the ingenuity and craftiness of Demontreville. These tricks undoubtedly have awakened the modern players to the great possibilities in base running. Demontreville, although one of the slowest men on the paths, was one of the cleverest because he possessed rare sliding ability and generalship.

Indians In Recent Sensational Display of Speed And Form Menace World's Sprint and Distance Records

Leoncio San Miguel, a Tarahuamara Indian, has made a new world's long distance running record. Leoncio won the 100-kilometer race from Uachuce, state of Hidalgo, to the City of Mexico. This is Mexico's marathon. It is more than a marathon, nearly three marathons in distance, being just 62.1 miles. It is the greatest test of endurance in all the world's modern athletic contests.

Leoncio ran his 62.1 miles in 9 hours, 37 minutes, over trails and desert and paved roads, hills and plains.

During the race Leoncio's only nourishment was derived from chewing gum called chicazopote, a species of chicle that comes from the roots of a pine that grows in the high sierras of Chihuahua. The ancients used this same chicazopote during their long runs. It has been said that the Indians can outtravel a horse over long distances.

The Tarahuamara Indian, who knows no other language than his Indian dialect, is much like the ancient Indian inhabitants of Mexico, who have changed little since they were conquered by the Spaniards 400 years ago.

Those old Incas and Mayas were great fighters, athletes and runners. In South America there is an ancient Inca paved road across the Andes from the old Inca cities to the sea, a road 1200 miles long. There is a tradition that the Inca emperors in the interior cities have fresh lobsters and salt water fish brought over that road by runners. There are still remains of stone post houses along the road, at intervals of about 10 miles, where squads of runners waited to take up relays carrying the messages that bound the Inca empire together long before any white man set foot on the continent. According to tradition these runners covered tremendous distances each day, and probably they were the best trained and fastest runners the world has ever known. They had to be well trained, for their road crossed the mountains at great heights.

May Be Entered in Olympic Games

Leoncio's modern feat is hardly to be compared with marathon runners in Greece and other countries, for the City of Mexico is at an elevation about equal to that of Denver in the United States. American athletes who have run in high altitudes can appreciate the difficulty of going through such a race.

Leoncio is almost a vegetarian, like most of the Indians in Mexico. His chief articles of food have been frijoles, or beans, and tortillas, cakes made of ground corn. He also eats dried veneson, the meat of a large lizard that is considered a delicacy in some parts of Mexico, rabbits and chicken, all cooked with the Hexican red peppers.

With two or three other Mexican Indian runners, Leoncio will be sent to run in some of the American marathon races next summer, and prepared in that way to compete in the next Olympic games. Athletic sports have become very popular in Mexico as well as in all the South American countries, and no doubt we will see some champions of the old Inca blood mingling with the Finns and other famous long distance runners.

Several years ago an American scientist studying the wild Indians of the Island of Tiburon, off the coast of Lower California in Mexico, found a native named Nozo, who could run down jackrabbits and was locally famous for his speed. The scientist laid out a hundred yards on a hard sand beach and induced Nozo to run over it while he held a watch. He timed Nozo in nine seconds flat. Probably this was not expert timing, and the scientist may have used an alarm clock instead of a stop watch, but his later publication of the affair produced a small sensation. A sport promoter sent down to Tiburon, located Nozo, got him into a shirt and pants and shoes, and started to the United States expecting to clean up a lot of coin by running the wild Indian against local sprint champions. He reached Arizona, where Nozo, who was bewildered by the trains and automobiles and other strange sights, disappeared. They never found Nozo again. Perhaps he found his way back down the Mexican coast and to Tiburon. Or perhaps he hopped off the train to chase a jackrabbit, and found the rabbit meat in Arizona so much to his taste that he located there in the desert permanently.

Indian Runners of Note

There have been many great Indian runners.

A century or so ago Deerfoot, an American runner of the Senecas, was taken to England, where he easily defeated all the best English long distance runners and made a flock of world's records that stood for many years. Alfred Shrubb broke some of them 20 years or so ago.

Longboat, a Canadian Indian, won several marathons and other big long distance races. Longboat was a lengthy, skinny Indian with a smooth, effortless stride that carried him over the ground at a tremendous pace. He never seemed to tire. In course of time Longboat became too fond of firewater to keep in training. Last I heard of him he was a runner for a Canadian regiment at the front in the world war.

The Hopi Indians have held a long distance race across the desert in New Mexico each year for centuries. It is a religious ceremony with the Hopis, and they have had some great runners. They don't care about traveling to show their speed and endurance in athletic competition away from home.

When Nurmi was touring America several Indians from the government's Sherman Intsitute at Riverside, Calif., ran against him and one or two showed very good speed. These American Indians have kep ton running with the hope o fproducing an Indian Nurmi, and have monopolized the far western cross country running events this past year.

YAQUI BEATS WOW WOW IN TWO STRAIGHT

Carlin Calls Joe Tramp And Says Beat Him With Ease

Yaqui Joe tagged it on Chief Wow Wow in straight falls Tuesday night at the Majestic theater by the simple but rather rough process of clipping his adversary on the chin and then slamming on a variety of flying holds.

The Indians mixed in freely on several occasions, stepping about in lively fashion and clouting away with doubled knuckles. The pace began to tell on Wow Wow who didn't appear in the best of condition, along about the 25-minute mark. Yaqui copped the first fall in 38 minutes with a series of flying head locks followed by quick application of a head-scissors and wrist lock, stretching Chief out flat. The second fall came in 15 minutes, Yaqui cracking Wow Wow on the chin and as Chief sagged, grabbing an arm and flipping him with a flying mare.

Carlin Derisive

Johnny Carlin of Chicago, styled the Swedish welter champ, stood at ringside and sniffed. At the close of the match he remarked, "I used to take tramps like that and beat 'em quick every night before I ever learned to wrestle." Then he rushed over and issued a challenge to Yaqui. Joe referred him to the promoter with, "I wrassle anybody. Ask Ross."

Carlin declared, "If I can't beat either one of those guys in two falls in 30 minutes I don't want a cent." Chance there for the Indian and Matchmaker Ross to make a little extra money.

Pope Beats Checco

Charley Grip, originally billed with Jack Vincent under New York commission rules, refused to take on the bulky Oklahoman unless Police Gazette edicts were in vogue. Vincent was obstinate in resolve to work under the rougher rules or not at all. He worked not at all. Silvio Checco and the husky Eddie Pope were substituted in a finish match. Checco captured first honors in a rough and tumble affair, winning in 28 minutes with a flying headlock, but lost the succeeding falls. Pope won the second in seven minutes after an exchange of headlocks, slamming Checco to the mat with terrific force. He took the deciding fall in 13 minutes with a "merry go round" and body slam.

Carlin and Jack Larry, of New Orleans, put on a fast 15-minute exhibition as the curtain raiser. There were no falls.

Carlin, incidentally, beat Dutch Mantell the other night.

POPULARITY PLUS!

Gerald Mann Leads Critics' Poll Of Votes

FORT WORTH, Nov. 30.(AP) The comparative popularity of the Southwest conference football players with the nine sports writers who picked all-conference teams is shown by figures in a table compiled here by Flem R. Hall, sports editor of the Star-Telegram.

Each man is given five points for every time he was selected for first team, and three points for every time on second team. Gerald Mann, Southern Methodist university quarterback, was the only man to receive the full 45 points possible, although Rags Mathews, Texas Christian university end, was close behind with 43.

Who Renders Decision Should Umpire Be Knocked Out?

By GEORGE MORIARTY

This column has been asked to decide a very peculiar baseball problem, and we, in turn, submit it to the gentle reader for consideration.

The score was 2 to 2, runners on second and third, two out, and a count of two and two on the batter, in the last of the ninth. Pitcher delivered a high ball inside, at which the batter swung and missed. The ball went through the catcher's hands, striking the umpire behind the ear, and rendered him unconscious for several minutes. After striking the umpire, the ball rolled to the grandstand. From there, the ball was relayed to the pitcher who covered the plate, and the runner from third crossed home on a close play.

Our questioner further states that the arbiter upon recovery from the blow, decided that the ball was dead, sent the runner back to third, and ordered the batter to return to the plate. The batter was retired on the next pitched ball, and the game was then called.

* * *

In arriving at a conclusion, it is plain that the umpire acted without authority in declaring the ball dead. Obviously, the ball was in play. However, the most interesting part of the incident is faced when the question is asked: "Who shall render the decision when the umpire is knocked out?" The rule book makes no provision for such emergency, but that is no reason why the situation should be hopeless. It seems to us that it would be the fair thing to have the umpire appeal to the fielder closest to the play, and abide by his decision in the matter. With such a rule in effect, the pitcher would have been the legal substitute for the umpire in this instance. The spirit of sportsmanship should guide said fielder in rendering a conscientious decision.

* * *

The demise of the football season probably prompts the baseball fan to come forth with some problems that have been disturbing his tranquility. Here is another one we have just received. One out, runners on second and third, batter hits a sacrifice fly to left, scoring the runner from third, but the runner at second was caught before he could get back to the bag, making the third out. Does the run score? It certainly does as long as it was over the plate before the third out was completed. Many fans confuse this play with a similar one wherein a run passes the plate just before the third out, but does not count because it happens on a force, or a play in which the batter is retired at first base.

Victor Artists Score Another Triumph In Appearance at Junior College

When the Eight Popular Victor Artists took the concert stage for the first time a number of years ago they were popular enough because of their success in making Victor records. But they probably were not as popular as they are today, and certainly they were not as popular in Wichita Falls then as they were last night when their rapid-fire concert was concluded.

The big crowd that heard them in the Junior college went expecting something out of the ordinary. They got just that. They heard a concert such as only the artists of the Victor type can give. It was a thing thoroughly befitting the Victor organization in all respects.

From the opening number to the finale it was a thing of beauty—a succession of enchanting solos, brilliant duets, amazingly beautiful quartets and scintilant ensemble numbers, both instrumental and vocal.

It would be hard to pick the favorite of the evening although, as is usually the case, the ponderous and wonderous Henry Burr awed the audience with his tenor solos. His number "My Dream of the Big Parade" stilled the auditorium to an impressive silence; and his encores, included in which was "Silver Threads Among the Gold," were bursts of melody that echoed long after he had left the stage.

Billy Murray, tenor comedian, had another arrangements of lively and humorous solo numbers to give in his excellent tenor voice. As a sort of generalissimo of the whole troup he was a frequent, genial, comical, entertaining and musical dignitary before the footlights.

Frank Banta, pianist, was back as a prime favorite with the Wichita Falls audience. His solo numbers at the first, his duet and trio numbers with Sam Herman and Stanley Baughman, and his accompaniments for all the others left nothing to be desired from any standpoint. Banta is one of the most finished pianists to appear in this city in some time and he thoroughly demonstrated last night just why he is able to hold an exacting place in a high-class musical organization.

Monroe Silver, the Kosher monologist, whose Cohen yarns mixed in with Abie and Goldstein solos have always been popular, had a new arrangement last night for the edification of his hearers. And as usual, he was well received.

Four new faces were in the Victor line-up on this appearance, chief of whom was Carl Mathieu, lyric tenor with a voice of amazing range and silver timbre. Mathieu took the notes in the high C region with an effortless ease and stability that was a joy to hear His solos and work in the ensembles was one of the outstanding high spots.

James Stanley, baritone, sang what was perhaps the most gripping solo of the night when, after some preliminary warm-ups, he gave "The Blind Ploughman." His was a voice full, resonant and clear that came in swelling bursts and then dropped away to melodious whispers.

The basso this time was Stanley Baughman, also a pianist of parts, whose deep and rolling intonations were clear and pleasing In the quartet numbers he gave a solid foundation for the runs the thrills of the others, and in his infrequent solo appearances he was well up to the standard set by the others.

The instrumental attractions were offered by Sam Herman whose flashing xylophone hammers playing over his reeds enticed some melodies and harmonies of unsurpassed beauty. Herman also showed himself to be a piano artist of no mean ability. He appeared in some duet numbers with Banta and in some trio offerings with Banta and Baughman.

Made up of Mathieu, Murr, Stanley and Baughman, the 1926 edition of the Peerless quartet was after all, perhaps the most popular feature of the concert. It certainly got the most encores.

ON CAULIFLOWER ALLEY

Two boxers, each recognized by some states and boxing bodies as bantamweight champion, were in the ring Monday night, one winning a newspaper decision and the other being outpointed.

Charley (Phil) Rosenberg beat Georgie Mack of Jersey City, N. J., in a 10-round battle in the eastern city, while Bud Taylor of Terra Haute, Ind., was outpointed by Joey Sangor in 10 rounds at Milwaukee. In both contests the fighters entered the ring at catch weights.

LaFayette Some Kind of Champ

Rockne Would Coach This All-International Grid Eleven

We're going to weaken just once this season to delve into comparative scores to prove something that doesn't mean a thing.

We're doing it just because—well for the same reason that you eat peanuts at a ball game and suffer afterwards.

Lafayette defeated Muhlenberg 35 to 0, Muhlenberg defeated Lehigh 30 to 0, Lehigh defeated Princeton 7 to 6, Princeton defeated Harvard 12 to 0. Harvard shaded Dartmouth 16 to 12 while Dartmouth held Brown to a 10 to 0 score.

Which should give Lafayette something or other in the line of a title. But we can't figure any one out.

Speaking of freak football topics, Will Wedge, in the New York Sun, steps up with his "All" team but he doesn't confine his selection to an "All-American" affair. He makes it an international one.

After selecting the following team because of the nationalities of the players he coyly suggests that Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, be named mentor of the team so that "the trick plays of this mythical bunch can be copyrighted in all countries, including the Scandinavian."

Here's his team:

Lindenmeyer, German, University of Missouri.

Korkian, Armenian, Brown.

Akonahoi, Hawaiian, University of Dayton.

Hageage, Syrian, Georgetown.

day were experts who gave technical testimony and successfully cleared out most of the seats in the court room reserved for what the court crier called the "audience."

Two hand writing experts, August Hartcorn and John G. Harring, said entries of four lines in Henry Stevens diary of 1922, under date of September 14, were written with three different pencils and differed from other entries in the diary.

Gibson Veracity Assailed

Introduced by the state to testify as to the reputation of Mrs. Jane Gibson for truth and veracity a witness created a mild sensation in court during the trial of the Hall-Mills case today by saying that it was "not so good."

The defense had offered a dozen witnesses to say that Mrs. Gibson, regarded as the star witness for the prosecution, bore a poor reputation for truthfulness in the community in which she lived and Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson announced that he would offer character witnesses for Mrs. Gibson in rebuttal.

Dr. Walter Madden of Trenton, first character witness called, was not permitted to testify when it was developed that he has not known Mrs. Gibson for 12 years.

Cooper Gives Surprise

Another physician, Dr. J. H. Cooper of Millstone, then furnished the surprising testimony from a state's witness.

The crowd in the court room seemed bored as a handwriting expert testified as to the pencilled entries in Henry Stevens' 1922 diary. There was no great interest when the prosecutor asked Dr. Cooper the stereotyped question:

"What is her reputation for truth and veracity, good or bad?"

Later the witness said in reply to a question from state's lawyer that her reputation was "about 50-50." There was no cross examination.

adopted, there will be a margin between the recommendation of the board of control and the estimated available revenue of $9,438,106," the statement read, the margin being left for appropriations to the public schools.

"These figures do not take into account the request or amount for the state highway department, as that money does not come out of the general revenue of the state. The amount recommended for the highway department is $1,565,700."

Salary Increases

In the board of control's recommendations to the 40th legislature, there has been a general increase of salaries at all of the educational institutions, but the building programs requested by the institutions have been materially reduced.

Salaries recommended at the institutions for presidents are: University of Texas, $10,000; A. and M. college, $9,000; Texas Technological college, $8,000; an increase from $7,500; College of Industrial Arts $7,500; North Texas State Teachers college, $7,000, an increase from $4,500, with all other state teachers college, an increase from $4,500 to $5,000, except Sul Ross, which would be increased from $4,500 to $6,500.

The most radical sling of requests was in the educational division. State schools asked for $32,716,890 but this was reduced to $18,065,964 in the recommendations of the board.

The board recommended appropriations of $209,000 for a state psychopathic hospital to be established in Dallas. The 39th legislature authorized such a hospital but failed to make the necessary appropriation. Of the amount recommended, $150,000 is for building and equipment, with the provision that the site be furnished free to the state.

BUILDING HERE GAINS STEADILY

November Total in Permits Is Reported At $468,515

The city of Wichita Falls is steadily increasing its volume of building and improvement, and evidenced a sheer gain of nearly 2½ percent over last year in building permits during the past month.

Building permits for November totalled $468,515, compared with $228,279 for the same month last year.

The months permits show a total of $9,086,353 for the year to date, or a little more than $900,000 short of the 10 million dollar goal set at the first of the year.

There are several industrial projects under advisement at this time ,permits for which may be registered during December, and the contract for the new municipal auditorium, which will amount to a half million, will undoubtedly be let this month. All of these will easily run the year's total over the mark.

TALKS ON TREES

Bunnenberg Speaks to Realtors On Tree Setuation.

A recommendation that Wichita Falls should have city supervision of tree planting on the different streets was left with the Wichita Falls Real Estate board by C. C. Bunnenberg, park superintendent, Tuesday at the regular meeting, when he called attention to the varieties of trees growing on the same street in the city.

"The one thing we should have in Wichita Falls is city supervision of tree planting on the different streets. It is common to go through one of our streets and find in front of a house hackberry trees, another cottonwood, still another umbrella chins, and Lombardy poplars. You gentlemen are familiar with these plants and can see that it shows poor taste to set one alongside of another and that it is leaving our streets ragged and unkempt in appearance. Look over some of our new additions, where uniform tree planting has been made, and note the contrast to that of other sections of the city," the superintendent said.

Trees need water in the winter months, too, Dunnenberg said, and the winter is the time to fertilize them.

Country Club Estates To Glow With Light For First Time Wednesday

Another step marking the extraordinary progress made in development of Wichita Falls as a city of beautiful homes and attractive residential sections will be taken Wednesday night at 6:30 for the first time, the underground illumination system of the Country Club Estates, one of the finest sub-divisions of the southwest, will be turned on. The winding drives and wide boulevards on long sweeping grades will be bright with the light that comes from the novel street lighting system used by the Hamilton-Martin Investment company in developing the Estates.

Several hundred ornamental street lights, stately posts with a single light, will present a pleasing effect on the boulevards.

Wiring Underground.

All the wiring for this subdivision is underground and carries out the superior qualities characteristic of the Country Club Estates. This is the only addition in Wichita Falls that has the underground system of lighting. The system was installed at a cost of more than $100,000, it was said, and is the only system of its kind in this section of the state.

In honor of the occasion, a concert by the Municipal band will be given between the hours of 7:30-9 o'clock at the plaza on the Harrison street entrance of the Estates.

The Hamilton-Martin Investment company has extended an invitation to the citizens of Wichita Falls and community to visit the sub-divisioin and to look over the improvements.

15 Homes Going Up

Fifteen new homes are under construction; the park at the end of Harrison street is assuming definite proportions; and the trees which are being planted afford another item of interest to the visitor.

In addition to the trees that have already been planted, the planting of large pinoak trees has been resumed. The owners plan to cover the entire sub-division with these beautiful forest trees which are arriving in carload lots.

THIRD PEAK

Oil and Gas Journal Report Shows 20,000 Barrel Gain

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 30. (AP)—The Oil and Gas Journal says today that for the third time in November daily average production of crude oil in the United States mounted to a new level in the week ending November 27. Total daily average production was given as 2,382,553 barrels, an increase of 20,642 barrels over the week ending November 20, which also was a record week.

The big gains were traceable largely to spurts in the output of heavy crude in the gulf coast field and light crudes in California. Oklahoma dropped off more than 4,000 barrels daily for the week and production in the Seminole field, which has been considered a large factor in the recent cuts of mid-continent prices, dropped nearly 2,000 barrels daily. All restrictions on production and drilling in the Seminole field were lifted yesterday by the operators.

No one had even appeared before the highest court without a tie, was the reply to the cowboy lawyer's protests, but his objections were overcome when it came down to the ultimatum, "no tie, no admission."

A tie was borrowed; the cowboy lawyer was admitted; he left the court room and tore off the tie at the door way.

"Honey Lou"

BY BEATRICE BURTON

READ THIS FIRST:

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against her will.

JACK WALLACK, who comes to his father's mills to learn the business, falls in love with Honey Lou the minute he sees her. Brought up by an old-fashioned mother, Honey Lou is a mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

ANGELA ALLEN pretends to be a friend of Honey Lou and tells her not to take Jack seriously. Jack is very jealous of DR. STEVE MAYHEW, a friend of MARGRET, Honey Lou's sister.

Honey Lou goes to work with Margret in the office of Holy Cross hospital. One day she goes to tea with the wily Angelia and meets Jack's mother, whom Jack calls The Head, because she manages everything at home. She tells Honey Lou that "Grumpy" is not satisfied with his new secretary, ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp. Jack asks Honey Lou to work for his father, who is at home sick with lumbago, and Honey Lou promises that she will.

Honey Lou meets Angela, who tells her that Jack Wallack is taking her out to dance that evening. Honey Lou calls up TIM DONEGAL, determined to have him take her to the same place.

Honey Lou goes with Tim to the restaurant and he has been drinking. The place is raided by dry agents and Honey Lou escapes with Jack Wallack. Jack tells Honey Lou that he thought she was tricking him and ends by telling her that he loves her and wants her to marry him.

Honey Lou tells her mother that she is to marry Jack Wallack the next day but her mother asks her to wait and have a wedding. Honey Lou's engagement is announced and plans are made for the wedding.

Jack and Honey Lou have a quiet home wedding and spend their honeymoon camping at Lake Tamay. In the meantime Steve visits the flat and breaks under the realization that Honey Lou is lost to him now.

Honey Lou and Jack settle down in their own flat with Mary Delaney, the cook. Margret comes home with Honey Lou for dinner and Steve Mayhew calls to take her home.

Angela comes over to help Honey Lou prepare dinner on Mary's night out. Jack phones he will not be home and Angela says she will call Tim Donegal and ask him to play cards with them, much against Honey Lou's wishes.

Influenced by Angela, Honey Lou buys a dress which she knows she cannot afford. Angela tells Honey Lou Jack seems very much interested in his new secretary, Miss Ayres.

Margaret overhears Angela telling Jack she tried to stop Honey Lou from buying the dress because she knew he could not afford it.

Tim Donegal tells of the card parties he has had with Honey Lou which angers Jack and he forbids Honey Lou to have Donegal in their home.

Honey Lou, angered by Jack's objections to Donegal leaves the flat for her mother's home. Margret tells her she has no reason to be jealous of Jane Ayres but to watch Angela. Honey Lou returns to the flat, a quarrel follows.

Honey Lou moves into the guest room and further complicates her domestic affairs by her "silent treatment" of Jack.

Honey Lou on a motor ride with Angela and Donegal decides in regard to Donegal.

Donegal's arrest delays Honey Lou's and Angela's return until 2 o'clock in the morning.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVII

It was two o'clock when Honey Lou walked up the three flights of stairs to the flat that night.

At first she thought that Jack must be asleep and she thanked fortune for it.

But as she started throught the hall on tiptoes and softly pushed open the door of the guest room that was now her room, she heard him snap on the light above his bed. The tiny sound seemed to crash like thunder in her ears.

"Honey Lou" he called in a voice not like his own voice, "come here"

Honey Lou stood still. At six o'clock she could have told him where she had been. She had meant to tell him that she had spent the day with Angela and Timothy Donegal. But now, at two in the morning, she just couldn't! Particularly after what had happened—

"I'm tired, boy," she said and her utter weariness sounded in her tones. "Don't scold me until tomorrow morning. Wait 'til I've had some sleep."

Silence. Then his voice again: "Who brought you home just now?"

"Angel," Honey Lou answered shortly, and closed the door.

She could never tell him now that she had been with Donegal—after what had happened. She would just had to trust to luck that he would never find it out. If he did—

Honey Lou's thoughts stopped at that thought, and refused to go any further. She put her head on the pillow, and was instantly asleep like an excited tired baby.

It seemed to her only a minute afterward that she was awakened by a pounding on the door of her room.

She sat straight up in bed and rubbed her eyes to get the sleep out of them. Why, it was morning! Gray light came from under the drawn blinds, and the fresh smell of the breakfast coffee swept up to her nostrils when she opened the door.

Jack stood there in his blue suit. He had stopped wearing overalls during the past week, and Honey Lou had wondered about it — but had not asked him about it.

Above his white collar, his face seemed very white, too. White and angry looking. His blue eyes seemed to blaze at Honey Lou between his narrowed lids.

In one of his hands was the morning paper. "You know all about this ,of course," he said coldly to her, "but it may be interesting to you to read about it. This is the way your friends will hear about it!"

"A joy ride ended in an arrest yesterday when two well-known young women of our town waited in an inn just outside the city for a bootlegging friend who was being held in the jail there.

"Miss Angela Newton Allen and Mrs. Jack Wallack ,junior, bride of six months, were the women. Miss Allen pawned two diamond rings to obtain money with which to bail Timothy Donegal, alleged bootlegger, out of the jail.

"Donegal's car has been held by the marshal there since early last week when two gallons of whisky were found hidden under some leopard skin rugs in the rumble. Yesterday Donegal arrived at the garage where he had left it, to claim, it and was immediately arrested."

Honey Lou read no more. Ice seemed to be gathering around her heart, and her head began to throb with terrific pain.

She looked up with an effort and met Jack's accusing eyes.

"But let me explain" she begged him, "oh, please let me explain!"

"Go ahead," he answered roughly. "I'm not stopping you. What is your explanation?"

Honey Lou wrung her hands. "I —I didn't want to go." she wailed, "Angela—"

"Bah!" His scorn of her was like a lash across her body. He turned on his heel and left the room.

Honey Lou did not try to follow him. She sat, still and white and terrified, in the middle of her bed and listened to him moving around in his own room.

Then his footsteps came along the hall, passed, died away. The door opened and closed. He was gone.

All day she stayed alone in the quiet flat, where Mary's padded slippers made the only sound. She tried to read. She washed her hair. She wandered from room to room, unable to settle down for more than five minutes anywhere.

The telephone rang toward noon. "It's Mrs. Huntley," Mary told her, but she shook her head. She couldn't bear to talk to her mother just then. This was something she had to work out for herself. This was something that was just between herself and Jack.

It didn't make any difference what anyone thought. That wasn't the thing that mattered. People! what were they? Donegal had told her once what they were. "Just cabbage heads," he had said.

But of course they weren't. They were important, and what they thought of you really did matter. And you couldn't have your name dragged through the mire and still have them think well of you.

She looked at her own name in the mire of that newspaper story —"Mrs. Jack Wallack, junior." Jack's name! Of course, he would leave her now.

Then, all at once, she remembered what Angela had said the morning before when she was persuading her to go on that trip.

"I'll go to Jack myself, if there's any trouble, and explain to him that I made you go with us," she had promised. Well, there had been trouble!

She hurried out to the telephone in the hall and like a drowning man clutching to a straw she gave the telephone number.

"Miss Allen, please," she said to the voice that answered her.

The voice paused a second and then came again, over the wire: "Miss Allen is out of town," That was what it said, and then the receiver was hung up.

Angela refuses to tell Jack the truth about Honey Lou's trip with her and Donegal int omorrow's installment.

"But Please Let Me Explain!" She Begged

PACIFIC COAST RUM KING HELD

Federal Agents in Concerted Drive to Eliminate Liquor Syndicate

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30. (AP) Prohibition forces moved against the organized liquor traffic of the Pacific coast from four directions yesterday.

While a royal commission at Victoria ,B. C., was learning in its investigation of ru msmuggling that great quantities of liquor are being shipped by Canadian exporters with the full knowledge that it later will find its way into the United States, indictments were returned here against alleged leaders of what the San Francisco newspapers call a $10,000,000 smuggling combine which has been operating all the way from Canada to Mexico.

Customs Patrol.

In addition the federa lgovernment today set up a 24-hour customs patrol which will operate against liquor running at every port of entry in California. This force wil lsupplement the coast guard by patrolling the shores.

The name of a picturesque rum ship was wiped off the shipping register when the three-masted schooner Marion G. Douglas recently confiscated as a runner of contraband, was sold at auction here and will become a fishing craft.

While indictments returned by the federal grand jury here were kept secret pending arrest of those named, they are assumed to accuse several men of wealth and influence on the Pacific coast of connection with the rum circle.

Rum King Jailed.

Previous to the meeting of the grand jury federal officials had arrested Joe Parente, known as king of the San Francisco rum runners; J. W. Nard, millionaire British Columbia liquor exporter; certain members of the board of directors of the Consolidated Exporters Inc. ,of British Columbia; officers of vessels known to be in the rum running business and other men connected with the exporting firm as agents in this country.

At Los Angeles federal officials announced that evidence against several persons believed to be connected with rum running activities would be placed before a grand jury in a few days.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.(AP)—The cotton market after an extremely dull morning during which prices moved downward slowly and up to noon showed losses of only five to eight points, became more active during the afternoon and made additional losses which carried the price level 11 to 13 points below yesterday's close by mid-afternoon. The afternoon dip was due to liquidation of December and January and considerable hedge selling due to freer offerings of spots in the interior. Pre-bureau liquidation also was much in evidence. The market continued to decline in the late trading on rather more liberal liquidation, and made new lows right at the end, the close showing net losses for the day of 11 to 17 points.

Liverpool came in a little lower than due and first trades here showed losses of three to five points. After a slight rally prices again eased off and tradng became quiet. There was a little hedge selling which forced December down to 12.38, January to 12.39 and March to 12.52.

Trading became more active during the afternoon under renewed hedge selling and pre-bureau liquidation and by the middle of the aftesnoon session December had eased off to 12.32, January to 12.34 and March to 12.46.

The market continued to decline in the final trading, making new lows at 12.28 for December, 12.30 for January and 12.42 for March, or 14 to 17 points under the previous close. The market closed at the bottom.

Exports for the day totaled 70,041 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.(AP)—The cotton market was easier today under reports of increased hedge selling and reiterated claims of freer spot offerings in the south. January sold off to 12.26, or 11 points net lower and closed at that figure, the general list closing barely steady at net declines of 8 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of one to four points under overnight selling orders from the south and local selling probably promoted by the relatively easy showing of Liverpool cables. There appeared to be fairly good demand for May around 12.80, which held the early market fairly steady within two or three points of the opening figure but there was very little buying on bulges, and it seemed that the early buying orders were gradually filled up.

Further trade buying was reported on almost every point decline, but in comparatively small volume, while spot house brokers continued selling, particularly the spring months, presumably against purchases of spot cotton in the south. About 50 December notices were reported in circulation at the opening, but they were stopped promptly, as the December premium increased in late trading and was 22 points over January at the close, compared with 19 points at the close the previous day.

Local selling in anticipation of increased spot offerings before the holidays was probably promoted by talk of more hedge selling here today, and seemed to become a little more active as prices broke through the early point of resistance. May sold off to 12.72 and March to 12.50 in late trading and last prices were at the lowest on most positions.

A private crop report estimated the yield at 18,235,000 bales, but indicated that three per cent of it would probably be left unpicked.

Private cables reported liquidation in the Liverpool market and said that reports from Manchester were discouraging.

Exports today 70,041, making 4,006,072 so far this season. Port receipts 126,364; U. S. port stocks 2,913,817 bales.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment imparted considerable irregularity to today's stock market. Trading appeared to be confined largely to professional operators, with bears forcing a few issues to new low levels for the year while "pulls" bid up others to record high prices. The volume of business showed a sharp reduction.

Call money renewed at 5½ per cent and then advanced to 5½ as banks called between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 in loans. This was regarded however, as the usual month-end shifting of funds, as there were no indications of a change in time money and commercial paper rates. However, commission houses reported that the high charge on day to day loans had a tendency to keep speculative operations for the rise in check, and probably encouraged some short selling.

U. S. Steel common, Baldwin, General Motors, American Can and most of the other standard industrials showed only mixed fractional changes on the day although some of them fluctuated within a range of several points.

Sugar shares responded to the higher commodity prices under the leadership of South Porto Rican which jumped nearly nine points to a new record high at 156¾ and then yielded two points on realizing. American Sugar Refining preferred crossed 11 to a new top, and new peak prices also were registered by Vividieu common and preferred, Bayuk Cigar, Phillips Petroleum, American Horse Products, American Can preferred, Columbia Gas (new) and Bloomingdale.

Resumption of the upward move in Eureka Vacuum which touched a new high at 61 coincided with the announcement that the company was manufacturing 1300 machines a day, a new high record. A jump of 12 points in Porto Rican Tobacco and the establishment of a new high in Congress cigar was associated with rumors concerning a possible merger of those companies.

Texas and Pacific Land Trust engaged in another of its sensational movements by jumping 110 points to a new record high at 1195. Sharp gains also were recorded by Commercial Solvents "B," Congoleum, Ward Baking "B" and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe. On the other haud, new low records were recorded by Pearless Motors, Goodrich Rubber, Pathe Exchange, Savage Arms, American Snuff preferred, Real Silk Hosiery and Advance Rumeley preferred.

Rails failed to make much response to the announcement that the first 70 class one roads to report showed combined net operating income nearly 5 per cent above the same month last year, and 2.49 per cent above September. Rock Island 7 per cent preferred touched a new high. Rock Island directors meet here tomorrow and are expected to place the common stock on a $5 annual basis.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Demand sterling ruled steady just below $4.84⅛ and French francs were back to around 3.62¾ cents. Italian lire sold just under 4¼ cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.(AP)—Heavy selling in which houses with connections east took the lead carried wheat values decidedly downgrade today at the last. The selling was more or less associated with reports that Argentine wheat abroad is under selling Canadian. Closing quotations on wheat were weak, ⅝ to 1⅞c net lower, corn unchanged to ¼c up. Oats unchanged to ⅛c off and provisions unchanged to a rise of 37c.

With only moderate deliveries of corn on December contracts here looked for tomorrow, the corn market showed a firm undertone. Oats were easier affected by an outlook that tomorrow's deliveries will be of liberal volume.

Provisions tended upward in line with action of the hog market.

WICHITA FALLS MEN TAKEN IN WITH HILARITY

Frederick, Okla., Visitors Put On Big Display For the City

One more organization for Wichita Falls was completed Tuesday afternoon and evening amid fun and hilarity, a parade and fireworks, when the "Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux" was completed. Sixty members of the Pat Carrigan Post of the American Legion were initiated into the local voiture which was installed by the Frederick, Okla., vioture.

Visitors began arriving for the meeting Tuesday morning and the "poor goofs" or novices, were put through many ceremonies. Boxes of "kisses" were distributed to the fairer sex, and the wearing of the sackcloth was nothing unusual on the streets. The poor goofs did other strange and unheard of things, some of them while chained to downtown lamp posts.

Parade Begins

The parade began at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night, starting from the corner of Indiana and Eleventh and headed through the downtown section with the 25-piece band from the Frederick voiture leading. Following the parade, the "wrecking crew" held forth in the National Guard armory on Scott avenue, where the final rites of initiation were given. Not the least of the evening's ceremony was the brilliant display of fireworks.

Among the ex-service men and American Legion members who were initiated last night are:

Instances of Welfare Work In City Illustrate Community Chest Value

In a shack down on the river bank a few weeks ago there were two little tots whose chances for health and happiness and even for life seemed pretty slim.

Both were badly undernourished for there was no money nor care for them and one had bronchial pneumonia without medical or nursing attention. These pitiful mites of humanity, in such circumstances through no fault of their own had what was certainly a losing fight against disease and poverty.

The Darkest Hour.

But the "darkest hour is before the dawning" and the dawning for these youngsters was the hour that the car of the Wichita County Red Cross stopped at the door. The sweet-faced nurse was kind and gentle and the babies and their miserable, destitute mother sensed at once that this was a friend.

First of all medical attention was secured for the little pneumonia patient, the physician giving his services free, and the nurse who had first come to their aid came each day to give the nursing care.

The nutrition nurse carefully worked up a feeding outline including the nourishing, wholesome food which was necessary for these under-nourished and poorly fed children and the nurse who came to visit the patient showed the mother how to properly prepare the food, for the babies and herself.

Army Gives Aid.

Warm clothing was brought from the Salvation Army and with all of these kind friends the little family soon began to feel that the world is not such a bad place after all. Work that she can do has been secured for the mother and the color is coming into the pale cheeks of the babies.

This is only one of the hundreds of cases which are handled every year by the Red Cross, always with the same co-operation from other welfare organizations if it is needed.

During the past year the bedside nurse made over a thousand nursing care visits, 387 visits of instruction, 305 visits of investigation, 301 visits on various other matters pertaining to the Red Cross work and 354 visits to the Day Nursery. These trips to the nursery are made every day and the youngsters there are inspected to see that all is well with them. Whenever sickness occurs care is given immediately and whatever medicial attention is necessary is secured at once.

Nurses Give Help.

Other service rendered by this nurse includes hundreds of patients accompanied to doctors offices, to dentists and to and from the hospitals.

This past year the Texas-Oklahoma Fair Child Health conference was held, "Get Ready for School" Health conference and the weekly Child Health conferences.

At these weekly conferences mothers come and bring their babies for advice and guidance. The right health habits are suggested and the nurses go home with the mothers to show them how to fix the necessary food and care for the babies in the proper way.

The nutrition nurse is working in the schools weighing and measuring the children and conducting a survey to determine the "why" of the condition found. Sometimes a child seems underweight until the facts concerning its parents and relatives are obtained and it may be discovered that it is from a naturally thin people and is not underweight—hence the important work of the survey.

Junior Red Cross.

The organization of the Junior Red Cross is another feature of this work and a great deal of attention has been given to getting children up to the proper physical and mental status before entering school. Food selection classes are being held for adults as well as for children, one great object being to increase resistance to disease.

The Red Cross with its wide and important field of work is one of the 11 organizations participating in the Community Chest campaign, for which a budget of $65,000 has been prepared.

Hundreds of Wichitans Visit New Home of Producers Creamery Plant

Hundreds of Wichita Falls people responded to the cordial invitation extended by the Producers Creamery to attend their formal opening of a new plant at 1209 Indiana Monday, and officials of the company were much pleased with the showing made at the plant.

Visitors swarmed the place throughout the entire day and in the evening many were forced away without having seen all of the various departments, it was stated.

Souvenirs, flowers for the ladies and cigars for the men, accompanied by plenty of music, furnished by Yancy Cummings orchestra, were included in the entertainment features along with a full tour of the plant and the demonstrations of the operations of each piece of machinery.

The visitors were first shown the receiving station where the milk is poured into a big weighing machine. They they followed the route of the milk from that point to the final machine where it is bottled and ready for delivery.

A giant churning machine that will hold several barrels of milk was a source of wonderment, as were the big machines that are used to pasteurize the milk.

Cream separators, can washing machines ,and refrigerating machinery were all shown in actual operation, and many persons were forced to admit that they did not know so much investment was required in just the handling of milk and butter.

The Producers Creamery, which is composed of a number of local producers of dairy products are just beginning operation of their new plant and have moved practically all their equipment from the old plant at 104 Pecan street. They have a fine new brick building with all floors and walls concrete and all so constructed that they can be washed regularly and kept in a sanitary condition.

The plant now is one of the best equipped and most modern in methods in the state of Texas, and is a credit to the city of Wichita Falls.

FIREMEN SAVE AUTO

The city fire department did somebody a good turn Tuesday but as yet have not learned who the lucky man is. The department was called out to extinguish a blaze that was rapidly destroying the back seat of a Ford car on Travis street, between Ninth and Tenth. The owner of the car did not appear during the excitement and the department completed their work none the wiser.
