BIG SPRING MEET VOTES CONFERENCE TO THIS CITY FOR 1928

By HAMILTON WRIGHT
Special Correspondent

BIG SPRING, Nov. 11.—Lubbock was chosen for the 1928 session of the Northwest Texas Methodist conference here this morning. Floydada and Vernon were the other contenders. Amarillo withdrew before balloting. In the vote Floydada got 16 and Vernon 36. The vote for Lubbock was overwhelming and the choice was made unanimous.

Bishop John Moore delivered a superb address on Armistice day, told of his visit to the European battle fields this summer, and prayed that war should be eliminated from the earth. He said that future civilization lay in the hands of Great Britain, United States and Germany.

Annual Reports

Presiding elders of five districts made their annual reports. Dr. D. B. Doak for Lubbock district reported net gain of 500 members. Dr. Robinson for Plainview district reported 1,700 accessions. Stamford district through Rev. J. H. Hamblen reported 900 conversions. The

Matador Rooters Storm Abilene In West Texas Style

(Special To The Journal)

ABILENE, Nov. 11 — "Fight Tech Fight". That was the cry which reverberated over Abilene shortly after 12 o'clock today when the Avalanche-Journal-Matador special train arrived in the Taylor county seat and emptied 259 football players and fans, who were augmented by numbers of Tech boosters who made the trip by automobile.

All told, about 500 Tech boosters were swarming the lair of the Wildcat today as the Abilene Christians prepared to defend their gridiron before 500 home-coming ex-students and hordes of present students and local admirers. Between three and four thousand people are expecting to gather at the West Texas Fair Park to view the hostilities this afternoon.

The trip to Abilene was made without an outstanding occurance save at Sweetwater, when an overzealous Texas and Pacific railway policeman slapped Hollis Hill, Tech student, for marking "Beat A. C. C." on a special train car. Investigation disclosed that Hill was not one of the offending markers and a near riot was avoided when the train continued with Hill aboard.

No betting odds were reported in Abilene shortly after the special train arrived. Theo Powell, of Ralls, ace of the Christian team was reported as being suffering from three broken ribs but will likely start the game.

WOMAN TAKES LIVES OF FIVE

TURNS GAS ON HERSELF AND FOUR CHILDREN IN DESPONDENCY

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—Separated for five years from her husband, believed to be in Fort Worth, Texas, and depressed over the destitution of her family, Mrs. Hildegarde Wywias, 45, today opened the jets of a gas stove and brought death to herself and four small children.

The bodies were found by neighbors in their 31st street apartment. Police said the woman's husband, Ludwig, is a government employe at Fort Worth.

The bodies of the children, attired in night clothing were in bed. Their mother had died on her knees by the side of the cot on which her youngest child, Carl, aged 4, lay. Her arms were about him, protectingly.

Mrs. Wywias' meager earnings as a clothes presser amounted to about $25 a week. After her rent of $22 a month had been paid, there was not enough to feed and clothe the children and herself properly but it was denied that she had been accepting charity from a nursery which yesterday had purchased new shoes for each of the children.

Even on the gas bill Mrs. Wywias had gotten so far behind in payment that the company had locked the meter. Grim testimony of the family's destitution was furnished by the fact that she was obliged to break the meter to kill herself and her children.

FALL RESTS WELL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Albert B. Fall was more rested today following another night of sleep. The former interior secretary, put to bed by his physicians a week ago, expects to leave for New Mexico tomorrow night.

ARMISTICE DAY RECALLS HERO OF THE RANKS

WILLIAM AMEY DOESN'T THINK HE DID SUCH A GREAT THING

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

LONDON, Nov. 11.—If you were introducing William Amey, former lance corporal in the Warwickshire infantry, to an American, the best way to do it would be to say:

"This man is the Sergeant York of England."

Sergeant York, you will recall, was selected as the greatest individual hero of the A. E. F. Similarly William Amey could easily be picked for a corresponding rank among England's heroes. And Armistice Day is an excellent time to tell about him.

Hard Prize to Win

Amey, to begin with, holds one of the most highly-prized decorations in the world—the Victoria Cross. The V. C., granted only for deeds of the highest heroism, usually goes to a man after his death, for the simple reason that a deed that merits the honor usually ends fatally for the doer. An officer has to recommend the hero for the V. C.; the colonel of the regiment the brigadier general and various lieutenants and major generals have to approve the recommendation, and finally the king himself must pass on it.

But Amey got one—and is alive today to tell about it.

Amey joined up in 1916, at the age of 35, from Leamington. His army career was without any unusual incidents until the closing fortnight of the war, when the 13th British army corps was engaged in the last "big push" in the vicinity of the St. Quentin canal, near the spot where uentin Roosevelt lost his life.

At 5.30 on a chilly, foggy morning Amey's battalion went over the top, with the village of Landrecies as its objective.

"The whole country was wrapped in a thick blanket of fog," says Amey. "Part of our outfit went forward so fast that it failed to mop up, and our men were falling victims to machine gun nests that had been left undisturbed. It was easy to get lost or separated in that fog. Directly, I found myself accompanied by only one man.

Lindbergh Flays Lack Of Training For Plane Pilots

(Copyrighted by the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has responded to a request by the Associated Press that he write his impressions on aviation in America and its future, based upon his observations during his recent unique flying tour of the United States under auspices of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

In Colonel Lindbergh's statement he stresses the menace to aviation caused by improper training schools and their product of inexperienced fliers; he urges the regulation of all flying activities by the department of commerce and further regulations to promote the factor of safety in the air.

Statement Is Given

His statement follows:

"One of the gravest problems facing the advance of aviation is that of personnel. Flying is safe today but it must be combined with training and experience. We have not yet reached the stage in the development of aircraft where the pilot plays a minor part in the operation of an airplane and until we progress to that stage it is essential to have trained and experienced operators for safe flying.

"Thousands of miles are flown each day over the airways of America with a record of which any ground transportation company might be proud.

Personal Safety

"It has been strikingly demonstrated both in America and in Europe that there need be no fear for personal safety in traveling with modern equipment over organized airways.

"There is another phase of commercial aviation, however, which is in need of regulation. There are not enough experienced pilots to meet the rapidly increasing demand for their services. New men must be trained and schools have been established for their training. In these schools lies the greatest menace confronting aviation.

"Young America wants to fly and is going to fly. Thousands of young men are entering and preparing to enter aviation schools. Most of them have limited financed and consequently must enter a school which has a small tuition fee.

Graduates Not Fliers

"Unfortunately there are many of these institutions operating today and often graduating students with less than ten hours of fly-

Airplane Victims Are Resting Well

The condition of Miss Anna Burson, Clinton Reese, Tech students, and Leo Amonetto, pilot, who were hurt in an airplane crash late Wednesday were unchanged this morning according to reports from the sanitariums where they are confined. All three were restful a major part of last night and feeling better today.

Miss Burson's condition is the more serious of the three, attending physicians say. Her right cheek is crushed and the roof of her mouth and jaw badly bruised. Her right eye is also seriously crushed and fear is being given that she may lose the optic.

The other two victims are assured of recovery unless complications set in.

ORGANIZED CELEBRATION FOR U. S. NOT PLANNED BUT OTHER NATIONS COMMEMORATE DEEDS

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Just nine years ago today a tumult of ecstacy and joy swept its winged way around the world. America joined with her European Allies in one majestic pean of thanksgiving. From a battered railroad car in a remote section of war-torn France where uniformed men sat making history had come a message that struck straight to the heart. The great conflict was over; peace at last had come.

Excitement and emotion knew no bounds. The realization that America and her allies had triumphed, that America's armies would soon be embarking for familiar shores, was tinged and dampened only by the thought of the many empty places in the ranks of that victorious home coming. The gold starred service flag took on a new meaning.

Problems Presented

"The boys" came home, and America poured out a heart filled with gratitude. But with peace came also problems to vex and perplex the world throughout the nine years that have passed since that first Armistice day. The world set itself to the task of reconstruction.

As on all of the succeeding anniversaries, with one exception, there was today no organized celebration. Only in 1921, when the Unknown Soldier was laid at rest in Arlington cemetery has America voiced a tribute of nationwide significance.

There was, however, a new note in the day's observance. Dedicated to the memory of Americans who fought and fell beside her own sons, the government of Canada had erected at Arlington a magnificent cross of sacrifice. Carefully laid plans called for its unveiling today in a ceremony in which Canadian and American troops united.

Coolidge Places Wreath

President Coolidge, as usual on Armistice day, planned to visit the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and lay upon it a wreath. Afterward, the Canadian contingent was invited to lunch at the White House.

The day's program also called for a gathering at the tomb of the group of army chaplains who participated in the dedication in 1921 and later for services honoring their own war dead, at the separate memorial they themselves have erected.

Wreath Is Placed By German Girl

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The spirit of Locarno was exemplified in Westminster Abbey today, at the grave of the Unknown Soldier, where a small circle of yellow flowers placed there by "a German girl" was found amongst the many floral tributes sent in honor of Armistice Day.

On the flowers was a note reading: "To the Great Unknown Soldiers of all nations: From a German girl."

WARNING NOTE ON WAR GIVEN

WARS NOT ENDED, SAYS LEGION COMMANDER IN ST. LOUIS

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11:—People of this country more and more are coming to a realization that the last war did not end war, Edward E. Spafford, national commander of the American Legion, declared here today in an Armistice Day address prepared for delivery at a luncheonn given by Legion posts of St. Louis.

"They realize," he added, "that as a matter of fact only an Armistice was signed. With the exception of a very few in this nation the people are determined that when another war begins, the resources of the nation shall be completely mobilized at the beginning of the war."

Warning Is Sounnded

"We should be warned by past experience and realize that the words of those who sit at the council tables only have such weight as is given by the power or force of arms which they represent," continued the Legion commander. "In 1922, we gave up 880,000 tons of new capital ships. Great Britain gave up 500,000 tons of old ships and Japan 325,000 tons of similar old junk. Today we stand probably third in naval values, but thanks is fervently given that the Geneva conference last summer opened the eyes of many thinking Americans and we may look orward to this next congress to answer our prayers for adequate military preparedness."

Legionnaires who made the pilgrimage of France last summer were regarded by their commander as agents of good will, aiding in "cementing ties that bind."

Girls Avert Panic In Fire At Hotel

DALLAS, Nov. 11. (AP)—Possible panic among hundreds of guests at the Adolphus hotel when fire broke out on the sixteenth floor early today was averted by two telephonen operators who remained at their posts and assured frightened guests that the "fire is across the street." Frightened by smoke, a few guests clad in night clothes ran into the street or the lobby. The fire originated in a storage room and caused olny a small loss.

THINK THIS OVER

Suppose that the laws of the country did not permit you to own land. You would feel so great a resentment that you would be eager to fight for what you considered the right of a citizen. It happens that it is easy for you to buy real estate. No arrogant feudal laws stand in your way. Why not then buy and own a piece of your world? The real estate columns of the Avalanche-Journal offer a convenient way to find the property which will satisfy.

Legion Members Today Aiding In Friendship Move

While Lubbock today was paying respects to honored war dead in a general cessation of business pursuits and a memorial service at the First Methodist church, sponsored by the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the American Legion, at least three representatives of the local Post of the Legion were in other cities helping to cement the spirit of friendship and comradeship between former buddies who engaged in the great conflict of the World War.

Harley D. Woods, executive committeeman of this district in the Legion, and former commander of the local Post, was in Slaton, assisting in organizaton there of a Legion unit, and the settings falling as it did on Armistice Day, was ideal.

W. T. Strange, valued member of the Post here, is in Borger, representing the local organization at the district convention under way there today and tomorrow, and Chas. Whitacre, also a leader locally, is in San Angelo on a similar mission.

The local Legion Post, in a measure termed the god-father of several Legion units in this vicinity, has always extended a willing and co-operative hand to other buddies and through this spirit is aiding materially in perpetuating the aims and ideals of the organization as a whole.

COLD WAVE IS MOVING FAST

MOST SEVERE WEATHER OF SEASON FORECAST FOR SOUTHWEST

(By Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 11—Termination of a six weeks' armistice between fall and winter that brought record high temperatures in the middle west and southwest was in sight today, as a cold wave moved eastward from the Rocky Mountains.

With the mercury scuttling down this morning the most severe weather of the season was forecast for tonight in states eastward to the Mississippi river.

Snow Reported

Snow was reported at some points in western Kansas and Central Nebraska, but forecasts called for generally fair skies along with the cold snap.

Temperatures from 10 to 20 degrees in Kansas, from 5 to 15 degrees in Nebraska and from 20 to 28 degrees in Missouri were predicted for tomorrow morning. Lower minimum readings were in store for states northward, while Oklahoma was due for the first freezing weather of the season. The cold wave will be felt in Texas, as well.

Two States Are Snow Covered

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 11 (AP)—Winter had invaded Montana and parts of Wyoming today with heavy snow and freezing temperatures.

Three inches of snow covered Billings, Mont., today with indications that the storm reached from Livingston east to Glendive. At Billings the temperature hovered around the 25 degrees mark. A heavy snow fall was reported in the Judith basin about Lewiston. The eastern part of Montana appears to have shouldered the brunt of the storm which started early Thursday morning sweeping across the state for the greater part of the day and into the night.

Eight inches of snow is reported at Great Falls. Butte yesterday reported the coldest day of the fall with an average mean temperature of 36 degrees and a maximum of 22 degrees. Livingston also reported an eight inch blanket of snow. A slight snow fall was reported at Casper, Wyo.

I. W. W. Leaders Fall In Expansion Move

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 11 (AP)—An apparently unsuccessful attempt is being made to expand the I. W. W. strike in the Colorado coal fields to the sugar beet fields of the state. Nearly 2,000 striking coal miners of northern Colorado late today went into the sugar beet country only a few miles away and urged the beet field workers and the sugar factory employes to join them in striking for higher wages.

The monster mass meeting was held at Fort Lumpon where numerous strike leaders exhorted beet workers to go on strike. The beet harvest is now at its h and many hundreds of tons a ing harvested daily in no Colorado only a short distanc the coal fields. There was no cation today that the beet w were heeding the plea.

PLAYING THE GAME

Officials' Task Difficult

By FIELDING H. YOST

(Director of Athletics, University of Michigan)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 11.—Officiating in any game or sport is very difficult.

The machine called the mind must interpret and translate what the machine called the eye visualizes, and in few men is this interpretation and translation the same.

Even when it comes to the description of immobile objects the eyes and minds of two men seldom function exactly alike. When action is added and especially swift and dramatic action, as in football, the chance of any two men seeing one specific bit of action the same way is lessened. For this reason football and basketball are the most difficult of games in which to officiate.

This difference in faculties of observation was clearly presented in an instance happening here at Michigan years ago. It was in a field entirely removed from sport.

A talented professor of the law school had an impromptu fight ending in gun play staged in his class room without the preliminary knowledge of his class which was in evidence. As soon as the apparent arrests had taken place he ordered the class to write briefly a description of both men and the incidents of the fight. Virtually none of these descriptions tallied, the professor finding that the students had seen short, tall, slim and rotund fighters, garbed in both light and dark suits, with hair ranging in color from black to red. This, the professor pointed out, was the way honest evidence sometimes would differ.

In addition to eyes not seeing the same, psychologists tell us that we see what we most desire to see and that it is dificult for two men desiring to see different things to come anywhere near seeing the same thing in any set of facts. This makes officiating in football doubly difficult, for while the officials are trained to see correctly and are picked as impartial they are surrounded on every side by partisan crowds, each bent on seeing just what the other side does not wish to see.

If it were possible to eliminate differences of seeing and interpretation in a hard fought game like football, it might be possible to eliminate officials altogether and send 22 men on the field to play football according to the rules. This would be the ideal condition, the Valhalla of sport, but one that is not possible under present conditions of mind and eye.

It is approximated to some degree in games for small numbers like tennis and golf, but none of the games in which bodily contact occurs has yet reached that height.

From the standpoint of the development of a certain battling spirit in youth, it might not be an ultra-desirable condition when reached although, it is probable that the youth of today and tomorrw might be trained to attain it.

Football has added to its officials instead of reducing the number.

In the original rules, a referee and an umpire were in charge of the game. The third official was named headlinesman, an assistant to the two officials. He was given the duties of keeping track of downs, the point to which the ball was advanced and holding the time-keeping watch.

With the new game, having more open play, a fourth official was named. This fourth official was first dubbed an assistant umpire and then named field judge his duties being the same under both names. He was placed far down the field, where long passes and punts would treminate. He was therefore in position to judge who first recovered a fumble and to decide just when a ball was dead, as well as to take charge of violations that might occur in that part of the field. This change again allowed the major officials to remain near the point where play was initiated and watch development there.

The referee in general has control of the ball and the umpire control of the players. Both are assisted in their duties by the head linesman and the field judge.

While custom and in some cases college organizations have defined that these officials watch the game from certain positions, if they could see better and judge better what was taking place on the field from a seat in the stands it is probable they would be so placed. It seems to be generally agreed, however, that the man trained to see what happens and to interpret that happening correctly—the official—is better placed at present, even though occupants of the stand seats disagree with him.

In football games, officials have one status that should always be remembered—they have been mutually agreed upon by both sides and represent not only the players on the field and the athletic departments but also the supporters of both teams. It also probably is correct to say they represent, in the very highest sense, all the friends of clean sport.

AGGIES EXPECT HARD FIGHT IN RICE CONTEST

WEEK'S WORK DESIGNED TO BRING PROPER FRAME OF MIND

(Special To The Journal)

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 11—In preparing for the game with Rice institute on Rice Field today the Texas Aggies are taking into consideration the prospects of a hard fight, realizing that Rice will go into the game keyed up to a high point of inspiration. Coach Bible, in consequence, mapped out a program of thorough preparation though the opening workout of the week, following the game with the Mustangs last Saturday.

Proper Frame of Mind

The primary object of this week's practice was to get the Aggies in the proper frame of mind for the coming game at Houston, Coach Bible said. The Owls always put up their best fight against A. and M. and it is usually a very determined team which is sent onto the field by Coach Heisman to combat the Aggies. It is a realization of this fact that the Aggie coaches hope to give their players.

Brooks Conover, halfback, suffered two broken bones in his right hand in the game with the Mustangs and will probably be out of the Aggie lineup until Thanksgiving. Bible is planning to use Dorsey to take Conover's place. Dorsey, who hails from Fort Worth, turned in a good game during the period he was in the lineup against the Mustangs Saturday.

Varnell, fullback, is getting in shape rapidly again, having about recovered from the effects of an ankle that was sprained in the game with Texas Tech, and will likely get in the game with Rice.

Leave Friday Morning

The Aggies will leave here Friday morning on special train to Houston. This special will leave at 8 o'clock and will return after the game Friday night. It is expected to carry spectators as well as the players.

Indications are that the starting lineup Friday for the Aggies will be: Sikes and Petty, ends; Lister and Sprott, tackles; Bartlett, center; Holmes and Figari, guards; Hunt, quarterback; Dorsey, left half; Alsabrook, right half; Burgess, fullback.

A. and M. will staged a dual cross country meet with Rice at Houston the same day as the game. The Aggie cross country team defeated the University of Texas team 18 to 41 in the dual meet held here Saturday.

Matador Special Leaves With Mass Of Howling Fans

Chanting fight-instilling yells with which they hope to rouse their team to a frenzy this afternon, more than 300 Tech students and fans boarded the Avalanche-Journal special train this morning at 7:30 for Abilene where they will watch the Matadors do battle against the Abilene Christian college Wildcats in what has been predicted to be one of the hardest games the locals have entered on a foreign field. Nine cars loaded to the doors with a howling mass of fans, pulled out of the Santa Fe station to support the boys today.

The Tech representatives will be bolstered by several hundred other fans who left yesterday and last night in cars for the game. Estimations place the Tech fans in Abilene today at approximately 500.

The reports of the Tech game will be received at the Avalanche-Journal office by quarters and reported to the Tech field where they will be announced.

The special will leave Abilene about seven and is due to arrive in Lubbock about 11:30.

Startling Turn In Probe Predicted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—While the grand jury was moving forward today in its investigation fo the Teapot Dome jury tampering charges, District Attorney Gordon predicted a startling development in the case within the next few days. He declined to indicate the nature of the new evidence which would be submitted to the investigators but hinted that its importance might transcend even the first developments in the original Teapot Dome inquiry. Presentation of this phase tomorrow or Monday will mark the wind up of the inquiry.

Formal Judgment In State Suit Entered

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 (AP).—Formal judgment giving the state about $3,400,000 in its recent recovery title to 265 acres of oil land in the San Jacinto river botoms of Harris county, was entered in district court Friday after operating expenses of several oil companies, mainly the Texas company, had been deducted.

High School Exes In Session Today Plan Party Here

Recalling the days of old when Lubbock high school was somewhat puzzled at the actions of a group of lads who had piled up and fought over an oblong-shaped ball, several of the "old heads," members of Westerner elevens of yore featured with talks at the first annual homecoming of the school at the high school building this morning. About 50 ex-students and graduates of the high school were present, pledging to support the team to the last in the game with the Plainview Bulldogs this afternoon.

Chief among the ex-athletes of the school were "Daddy" Dickinson, who was a member of the first football team, Ross McWhorter, star of the famed 1917 team, Earl Bullock, of the 1917 squad, Carlisle Tubbs, best all-time center, Jenks Ater, fastest runner the school has known, Homer Hardberger Tech slime, of the 1926 team and others. Dickinson told of the various ups and downs of the first team while the other players recalled how the teams had improved down through the years, giving much praise to the present team and their coaches.

The meeting was pepped up considerably by the presence of the high school band and pep squad who made the auditorium resound with their yells of support for the team.

This afternoon after the game, the students will be hosts to a "weenie" roast at the Tumble Inn park northeast of the city to be given for the visiting Plainview fans and students. The party will start at 7 o'clock.

In a tug of war between a giant storage battery locomotive and one of the steam variety at Chicago, the former won easily despite the fact that it was 17,000 pounds lighter than the steam engine.

Prohibition Law Topic Of Debate For Two Leaders

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—Dudley Field Malone, New York attorney, last night debated prohibition with William I. (Pussyfoot) Johnson.

Johnson declared that he would oppose "any law telling a man what he should or should not drink. What he drinks is his own business, as long as he offends nobody else. But when a person opens a place to sell liquor, then he commits a social crime, and society has a right to protect itself."

Malone said: "If sixty million people in the United States want prohibition, they have no right to inflict it on the forty millions who do not. One thing the drys will never understand, the difference between use and abuse. They think the problem half through and then get tired, leaving it at that."

HONOR WAR DEAD

ican legion. Mrs. Wilson arrived from Washington this morning.

Britain Observes Moment Of Silence

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP).—Great Britain kept the great silence today in commemoration of the signing of the Armistice nine years ago today.

With King George and the royal family leading in the homage paid the war dead at the Cenotaph in Whitehall, millions of men, women and children throughout the British empire stood with heads bared and bowed for two minutes at 11 o'clock in silent thanksgiving for the end of the war, in sorrowful tribute to those slain in battle.

Day Of Prayer Is Observed In China

SHANGHAI, Nov. 11 (AP)—Armistice day was observed as a day of prayer for China, foreign missionaries throughout the country, supported by six thousand Chinese Christians, asking divine guidance in the solution of the nation's problems.

The military and naval forces of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Portugal and Japan gathered at the international settlement here and placed wreaths on the war memorial. United States Consul General Cunningham delivered the principal oration.

Paris Gathers At Unknown's Tomb

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP)—The people of Paris—several thousand of them clad in black and with drawn, memory seared faces—massed reverently around the tomb of the Unknown Soldier today to commemorate the ending of the world war.

Hundreds of battle scarred flags fluttered in gusts of winter's first snow fall as the shivering crowds observed the two minute silence at 11 o'clock.

Colorful Parade

Every branch of France's military service was represented in the long columns of marching men which filled the Champs Elysee under the Arc de Triomphe around which men bearing the marks of the great conflict sat proudly erect in wheel chairs.

President Doumergue, Premier Poincare, Marshal Foch and others prominent in the life of France attended the simple ceremony.

Americans who served in France before 1917 as well as some of those who came to France under the stars and stripes participated in this morning's ritual. At the American cathedral of Holy Trinity—as at hundreds of houses of worship throughout the city—special services were held in memory of those who gave their lives in the war, scores of wreaths being placed in the churches.

Throughout France delegations paid tribute to the war dead, burying the soldiers' monuments under masses of the bright flowers of fall. These monuments are to be found in ever yvillage and hamlet.

British Regulars Meet In Brussels

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11 (AP).—A company of 200 of the "Old Contemptibles," survivors of the British regular army forces that helped to stem the first rush of the German troops at the beginning of the world war, observed two minutes silence today in honor of Armistice day at Mons on the ground over which they fought their first engagement in 1914.

The customary one minute of silence at 11 o'clock this morning was observed here by regimental delegations with bands and colors lined up before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The celebration was held in the midst of a snow storm.

A salvo of artillery followed the minute's silence. Church bells rang out and the troops presented arms as the band played the national anthem and the half masted flag was hoisted to full staff.

Celebration At Rome Mild Today

ROME, Nov. 11 (AP).—Celebration of Armistice day at Rome was less celebrated of any capital of the allied nations inasmuch as she celebrated her own Armistice on November 4, and also because today is King Victor Emmanuel's birthday in whose honor busses, cars and public buildings were flying Italian colors and bunting.

Wreath Placed On Grave Of Unknown

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Coolidge laid a wreath upon the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington cemetery today and then paused for a moment along with several hundred who had gathered there in silent tribute.

When the president stepped back Mrs. Coolidge placed a single white rose upon the marble slab and the army band in new uniforms played the Star Spangled Banner, the low rumbling of the drums penetrating into the hills which rim the Potomac.

ing our men. I took my rifle and shot down one crew. The others saw us, but they couldn't pull their machine guns out of the hedge and turn them on us, and they didn't have time to pull their service revolvers. They just ran for it and disappeared in the fog.

"Come on," I said to my pal, "we're going after them."

"You know, when your blood is up you don't think about danger or the odds against you or anything of that sort. You just keep going. Well, we went. We saw no trace of the gunners. But directly we saw something big and dark loom up in the fog. I thought it was a little fortress, but it was only a French farmhouse.

"There was no sign of life, and I barged in through the open door. The rooms were empty, but there was a stairway that led down to a deep cellar. I shifted my rifle, took a hand grenade and started to tiptoe down that cellar stair.

"For a minute I was dazzled by the light. The Germans might have been short on food but there certainly was no candle shortage. In one corner of the cellar there were 50 Germans, and it seemed like every one of them had lit a candle. Near the stairs huddled the French family—two old men, two old women and some kids.

"I raised my hand grenade and told that German crowd to put their hands up and keep them up. They did.

Captured Whole Crowd

"One of the old women was so glad to see me she kissed me, and one of the old men slipped me a glass of cognac. I told him in my best French—which isn't much—to go upstairs and call my pals. Then I told those Germans I was going up and that they were to follow me in single file, every man with his hands up. Every man was to leave arms of every kind down in that cellar. I said that the first man that disobeyed would be shot dead.

"They came up, the whole 50. By that time some of the soldiers of my section had been summoned by the old Frenchman and we bagged the whole lot.

"I suppose I owe my life to a fluke. Those enemy soldiers probably thought the farmhouse was surrounded by our men and if they tried anything on me they'd be killed like rats in a hole by hand grenades. Lucky they didn't know I only had one man with me."

That's Amey's story. But he didn't tell the whole of it. The colonel in command of his regiment finished the tale in an order of the day, posted up for all the regiment to see:

"Later, single-handed, he attacked a hostile machine gun post situated in another farm house. Exposed to a heavy fire he advanced unhesitatingly, killed two of the garrison and drove the remainder into a cellar until help arrived.

Took Another Chateau

"Again, later and unaided, he attacked a chateau in Faubourg Soyers, which had been strongly held and was holding up our line of advance. With determination and disregard of personal safety he rushed the chateau, killing two Germans and holding the remainder until reinforced. This gallant action was instrumental in the capturing of a further 20 prisoners, and cleared away the last of the opposition in the sector.

"Throughout the day the conduct of Lance Corporal Amey in the face of such opposition and danger was of the highest type, and beyond all praise."

And now?

Well, William Amey, today a quiet man of 46, his dark hair just streaking with silver threads, has his pencils sharpened and is back at his old job of turf accountant, just as if there had never been a war.

PROGRAM HERE HONORS CIVIL WAR VETERANS

BADGES OF HONOR ARE CONFERRED ON SIX CONFEDERATE VETS

Co-operating with the American Legion, the Stephen W. Wilkinson chapter of U. D. C. fostered a patriotic program at the Methodist church this morning and a feature of the affair was the decorating of six civil war veterans with crosses of honor.

The ex-soldiers upon whom these honorary marks were placed were E. P. Earhart, J. T. Lokey, J. B. Green, W. N. Green, C. W Mallard and Dr. H. O. Westlake. George Beatty was to have received a cross of honor but he was not at the meeting. However, the cross will be given him, it was announced.

Auditorium Filled

The main auditorium of the church was filled for the program this morning. Music was furnished by the Lubbock high school band, directed by James Crowley, throughout the program and W. R. Waghorne played a group of organ selections, including Southern melodies and the national airs of France, England and the United States.

Durwood Bradley introduced Judge Clark M. Mullican and the latter made a short talk on Armistice day, representing the American Legion. A tribute to the men who wore the grey in the civil war was given by Mayor Pink L. Parrish and Mrs. Eppie Bowner, U. D. C. president, made a short talk. Mrs. W. N. Woods, assisted by Mrs. Lon A. Mullican, bestowed the crosses on the Civil War Veterans, with the exception of Mr. Earhart, who was decorated by his daughter, Mrs. Bowder.

Other Members on Program

Other numbers on the program included a reading, "The Blue and the Gray," by Miss Kathryn Sowder a piano trio, "Listen to the Mocking Bird," by Mesdames A. B. Ellis, H. O. Waters and A. W. McKee; a soprano solo, "Love's Old Sweet Song," Miss Maurine Mullican, accompanied by Mr. Waghorne, and a piano solo by Mrs. H. O. Westlake. Rev. L. G. H. Williams of the Episcopal church said the invocation and Rev. Walter P. Jennings of the First Baptist church, pronounced the benediction.

It was announced at this program that the next work of the local U. D. C. will be the placing of markers on the graves of civil war veterans in the local cemetery.

Boy scouts, Camp fire girls, veterans of other wars and other patriotic organizations co-operated in the program this morning.

Legion Sponsors Reproduction Of "Dulcy" Tonight

Appearing under the sponsors of Allen Brothers Post of the American Legion, the Little Theater play "Dulcy" will be presented at 8 o'clock this evening at the high school auditorium.

This play was initially produced here on October 25 by the Little Theater as the first play of the season and the cast will be the same for tonight's play. Mrs. E. White is director.

This three-act comedy was well received at the first showing and pronounced by those who saw it as one of the best plays to have been presented by the local Little Theater. It moves swiftly and evenly to an end with all the characters playing their parts with ease.

Mrs. Byron C. Dickinson has the title role and is supported by a cast consisting of Dr. G. H. Ater, Gaylord Hankins, Horace Grady Mood, Jimmie Allen, Ralph Carpenter, W. Provence, Miss Ernestine Watson, Miss Eunice Cox, Edgar Shelton and Copas Bowen.

Seamen say that Americans returning from abroad are less experienced at buffeting the storm than at storming the buffet.

NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov 11 (AP)—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 13 to 21 points on covering combined with trade and commission house buying, probably stimulated by relatively steady cables and reports for a cold wave in the northwest. Later sold up to 10.82 and May 10.62, but realizing and southern hedging checked the advance and reactions of 10 or 15 points from the best in early trading.

Cotton closing off to 19.44 for January, within 26 points of yesterday's quotation, the market on renewed covering by shorts and continued trade buying. Offerings were comparatively light. The rally extended to 19.60 for January, active months showing net advances of about 27 points at midday.

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP).—Stock prices displayed a strong undertone at the opening of today's market. Dupont, which has large General Motors holdings, opened 3½ points higher and initial gains of a point or more were recorded by Atlantic Refining, U. S. Steel common, American Snuff and Liggett and

There was a good sized accumulaiotn of overnight buying orders as a result of the declaration of an extra dividend of $2.50 by the General Motors corporation about which some doubts had been raised in the last few days. General Motors common opened 1½ points higher. American Machine Foundry moved up four points and a score of others including Radio, International Harvester Westinghouse Electric, New York Dock and By-Products Coke advanced a point or more. Considerable profit taking developed, however, on the bulge and many of the initial gains were cut down or wiped out before the end of the first half hour. Some of this selling may have been inspired by the increase of nearly $13,000,000 in federal reserve broker's loans. Victor Talking Machine, Warren Brothers and Corn Products Refining touched new high records. Insurance stocks were heavy, Continental and Rossia falling back 2 points. ing training. These graduates must find some way to continue flying and, since they have not money enough to rent or buy a plane, they must also earn at least their expenses as they fly.

"This situation results in inexperienced pilots carrying passengers for hire, often under adverse conditions, in flights which should be under supervision as part of their trainjng. Even if an accident is averted during the first hundred or two hundred hours, the pilot still lacks much of the knowledge and technique of the art of flying which should have been learned during the training period.

Very Few Accidents

"We have surprisingly few accidents on our air lines and with our experienced operators but we read only too often of crashes which upon investigation are found in almost every instance to have resulted from inexperience and lack of judgment on the part of the pilot.

"Apparently the only method of combating the existing situation is first through regulation of flying schools and second through regulation of the qualifications required of a pilot engaging in commercial flying and especially in passenger carrying.

"The department of commerce through the bureau of aeronautics is regulating interstate flying very successfully, but it has no control over flying activities within individual states and, of course, the student -pilot confines himself to the borders of his own state during his most dangerous period.

Ever Increasing Safety

"During the two and a half decades of its existence aviation had progressed toward ever increasing safety.

"The next advance will come through regulation of air activities including certain minimum requirements of flying school courses, but before extensive regulation can become effective the department of commerce must be given the right to regulate all flying activities instead of interstate traffic only.

"Either through federal or individual state action we are in need of uniform flying regulations throughout the union.

"A number of states have adopted the department of commerce regulations but the majority have no regulation whatsoever or have enacted special rules which will in the end only serve to retard aeronautical development. I say this in the interest of the safety of the men who want to be pilots and of those of our people who want to fly.

"Charles A. Lindbergh."

Owsley Address And Election Are Meeting Features

(By Associated Press)

EL PASO, Nov. 11.—An Armistice day program featuring an address by Colonel Alvin M. Owsley, Dallas, past national commander of the American Legion, vied with the election of state officers for interest at the thirteenth annual convention of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs here today.

Balloting in the election was begun after a delay of several hours caused by debate over whether delegates from the Texas Federation of Music clubs should be seated following an irregularity in registration with club officials. The music clubs delegates were seated on a motion by Mrs. J. C. Burney, Wichita Falls, who declared failure to seat them would sever relations between the two organizations.

Committee Report

Report of the nominations committee, unanimously adopted, placed names of Mrs. W. R. Porter of Bowie, Mrs. M. H. Haggaman of Ranger and Mrs. D. L. Stephens of Anson, before the convention as candidates for the presidency of the federation. There were no nominations from the floor. An election committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Walter Robinson, Dallas; Mrs. J. I. McDowell, Big Spring, and Mrs. W. W. McCrory, San Antonio.

In the New England dictionary, which after 53 years of work is nearing completion, 52 columns of references are devoted to the word "put."

The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a promising man—soon he will sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity.

What a deadly affliction constipation is! Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It destroys health! It kills beauty!

What a blessing that there is relief from this dreadful scourge! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—promptly.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, gently distending them—cleansing, eliminating poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products which contains so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Different from habit-forming drugs

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream — and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Recipes on every package.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's — the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

WINTER FOLLIES

Why it's also folly to say "Give me a quart of oil" with Winter just ahead

When you say "Give me a quart of oil" in cold weather you will usually get an oil too light and too thin in body to correctly lubricate your car.

Engines start harder in winter. Slow starts put additional strain on the battery.

To remedy this winter condition many people use "a light oil"—sometimes too light an oil to meet the lubrication needs of an engine that is operating under nearly the same heat and friction conditions as in summer.

Such oil rapidly breaks down and becomes diluted with gasoline and water until the crankcase is full of a dirty sludge instead of lubricating oil.

Gargoyle Mobiloil Arctic recommended for the cold weather lubrication of many cars meets this problem with scientific exactness. It is fluid enough to permit easy starting even in zero weather. And it has the full, rich body and character that will prevent dangerous dilution and provide thorough lubrication for all friction surfaces.

For real winter protection, don't say "Give me a quart of oil." Ask for

PLAINVIEW HAS MUCH BUILDING GOING ON NOW

EIGHT HOUSES PLANNED AT TOTAL COST OF QUARTER MILLION

(Special To The Journal)

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 11 — Eight brick buildings of major proportions aggregating in cost a total of a quarter of a million dollars are under construction at Plainview or contracted to be built within the next few months.

The buildings include office buildings, automobile agency buildings, postoffice building, and miscellaneous business locations.

Four Story Office

The largest single piece of construction in prospect for Plainview is the four story office building to be erected by Mrs. H. E. Skaggs of this city on the site of the well known one story Skaggs building which has been razed to make way for the new structure, plans for which are being drawn by Mrs. Skaggs' architect. The new building as planned is reported to cost in excess of a hundred thousand dollars.

Guy B. Speed is rushing to completion a two story office and business building which will cost approximately fifty thousand dollars. The new structure will house the postoffice and have several modern office suites on the second floor. It is being built three blocks north of the present postoffice location and follows specifications laid out by the postal authorities for handling the Plainview postal business. Speed plans to have the building ready for occupancy within 90 days.

Automobile Building

Harder and Dysart are building a one story automobile building which will cost approximately fifteen thousand dollars and which will house the Biard Motor company.

Next to the Harder and Dysart structure, J. D. Steakley and associates are erecting a large automobile building which will house the Blackman Motor company. The expansion of the automobile distributing business at Plainview by those two firms is given as the reason for building these buildings.

T. J. Shelton, pioneer realtor of Plainview, is erecting a brick business house costing approximately ten thousand dollars.

D. M. Thompson has contracted for the construction of a brick building joining the Speed office building on North Broadway and the ground has been broken for the foundation. It will house the Cox and Thompson Farm Machinery company.

Two Story House on Ash

E. F. Green has practically completed the construction of another two story business house on Ash street which will house his tin plant and sheet metal works.

The Security State bank has practically completed the construction of a $20,000 addition to their building which will have a number of office suites and two store rooms.

In addition to the business house expansion which is taking place, numerous residences are under construction to alleviate the house shortage situation which is ever present at Plainview.

Little Halt Called In Sinclair Probe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—There was no Armistice today in the government's fight to pin upon Harry F. Sinclair responsibility for the mistrial in the Teapot Dome oil trial.

The grand jury investigating the charges of jury tampering agreed to postpone the beginning of its day's activities for five minutes at 11 o'clock, out of respect for Armistice Day, but after that the district attorney ordered the offensive to continue.

Gotham Welcomes Ruth And Her Aide In Typical Style

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—The metropolis today roared its welcome to two daring aviators who called King Neptune's bluff—Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman.

Just a month from the day of their take off in "The American Girl", for a non-stop flight to Paris—a flight that came to grief when they fell into the ocean off the Azores and were rescued by a Dutch tanker—they came back to their starting point to receive the cheers of thousands.

Typical Reception

New Yorkers, who have had lots of practice in welcoming returning aviators in the last few months—Lindbergh, Commander Byrd and his fellow adventurers Chamberlin and Levine—gave them a typical reception.

Harbor craft shrieked a greeting; the mayor's reception committee met them down the bay and took them from the Acquitania at Quarantine, and thousands roared them welcome as they proceeded from the battery up Broadway to their hotel.

Greeted By Husband

The aviators had their first taste of New York's welcome when the city tug Macom drew alongside the steamer and Miss Elder rushed into the embrace of Lyle Womack, her waiting husband. He came to New York from Panama to greet her. But it was a new Ruth Elder who climbed over the Macom's side. Gone were the knickers and broad hair ribbon with which she started her ill-fated flight. Instead she wore one of the gowns Paris had provided her.

Captain Haldeman, striving to remain in the background and leave the honors to Miss Elder, affectionately embraced his wife, who had come with the welcoming party on the Macom. There were tears in Mrs. Haldeman's eyes and it was a touching moment when the flier tore himself away for a moment to answer the flood of questions that was directed at him and Miss Elder.

Says Won't Quit

Informed that her husband had expressed the hope that her flying days were over, Miss Elder smiled and said, "I'm sorry about that but I've no intention of quitting now."

"Won't you go back to washing dishes for him?" she was asked.

"I've washed lots of dishes", she answered, adding that she did not intend to go back to Panama with her husband, "right away".

"Would I like to do it over again? Well, I should say so, and I hope to be able to, but I have no plans now for the future."

Captain Hulderman joined her in this sentiment.

"If Miss Elder wants to go again next year and if she wants me as co-pilot", he said, "I'll be tickled to death to go with her."

Wants Another Trip

Patting her husband's hand as he sat near her in the center of an admiring crowd on the Macom, Ruth sighed: "I'd like to organize another expedition and I'd like a plane just like the American Girl. She was a good ship."

Mr. Womack grinned but was silent. This was his wife's show and any discussion of the future, he indicated would be postponed until there could be a little more privacy.

If you will grease the cork of a mucilage bottle thoroughly it will never stick to the bottle and cause trouble.

A counter man in the Los Angeles terminal storeroom wears roller skates and does the work of three men on foot.

A wire wheeled 1928 model Buick coupe, belonging to W. D. Green, was taken from in front of the Lubbock hotel early this morning and efforts to locate the car were futile at noon today. Mr. Green had just had a tire repaired on the car and returned a few minutes later to find it gone.

ortly after our arrival Miss Tracy came in and told the rest her story in direct business like ion.

didn't give you all the particu- rs this morning," she said; "and I didn't care to do so now unless I are willing to regard them as fidential, for my telling you ght cost me my position."

I promise you," Markham as- ed her, "that I will entirely re- ct your confidence."

She hesitated a moment and then ntinued.

"When I told Major Benson this rning about Mr. Pfyfe and his other, he said at once that I uld come with him to your office tell you also. But on the way r, he suggested that I might t a part of the story. He didn't ctly tell me not to mention it; he explained that it had noth- to do with the case and might ly confuse you. I followed his ggestion, but after I got back to office I began thinking it over, d knowing how serious a matter Benson's death was, I decided tell you anyway.

"In case it did have some bear- on the situation, I didn't want be in the position of having with- d anything from you."

She seemed a little uncertain as the wisdom of her decision.

"I do hope I haven't been foolish. t the truth is, there was some- ng else besides that envelope. ich Mr. Benson asked me to ng him from the safe the day and Mr. Pfyfe had their quarrel, was a square heavy package and, e the envelope, was marked fyfe-Personal.' And it was over package that Mr. Benson and Pfyfe seemed to be quarreling."

"Was it in the safe this morning en you went to get the envelope the Major?" asked Vance.

"Oh, no. After Mr. Pfyfe left last week, I put the package back in the safe along with the envelope. But Mr. Benson took it home with him last Thursday—the day he was killed."

Markham was but mildly interested in the recital, and was about to bring the interview to a close when Vance spoke up.

"It was very good of you, Miss Hoffman, to take this trouble to tell us about the package; and now that you are here, there are one of two questions I'd like to ask. . . . How did Mr. Alvin Benson and the Major get along together?"

She looked at Vance with a curious smile.

"They didn't get along very well," she said. "They were so different. Mr. Alvin Benson was not a very pleasant person, and not very honorable, I'm afraid. You'd never have thought they were brothers. They were constantly disputing about business, and they were terribly suspicious of each other."

"That's not unnatural," commented Vance, "seeing how incompatible their temp'raments were. . . . By the bye, how did this suspicion show itself?"

"Well, for one thing, they sometimes spied on each other. You see their offices were adjoining, and they would listen to each other through the door. I did the secretarial work for both of them, and I often saw them listening. Several times they tried to find out things from me about each other."

Vance smiled at her appreciatively.

"Not a pleasant position for you."

"Oh, I didn't mind it," she smiled back. "It amused me."

"When was the last time you caught either one of them listening?" he asked.

The girl quickly became serious. "The very last day Mr. Alvin Benson was alive I saw the Major standing by the door. Mr. Benson had a caller—a lady—and the major seemed very much interested. It was in the afternoon.

"Mr. Benson went home early that day—only about half an hour after the lady had gone. She called at the office again later, but he wasn't there of course, and I told her he had already gone home."

"Do you know who the lady was?" Vance asked her.

"No, I don't," she said. "She didn't give her name."

Vance asked a few other questions after which we rode up town in the subway with Miss Hoffman, taking leave of her at Twenty-third street.

Markham was silent and preoccupied during the trip. Nor did Vance make any comment until we were comfortably relaxed in the easy chairs of the Stuyvesant club's lounge room. Then, lighting a cigar, lazily, he said:

"You grasp the subtle mental processes leading up to my prophecy about Miss Hoffman's second coming—eh, what, Markham? Y' see, I knew friend Alvin had not paid that forged check without security, and I also knew that the tiff must have been about the security, for Pfyfe was not really worrying about being jailed by his alter ego.

"I rather suspect Pfyfe was trying to get the security back before paying off the note, and was told there was "nothing doing'. . . . Moreover, Little Goldylocks may be a nice girl and all that; but it isn't in the feminine temp'rament to sit next door to an altercation between two such rakes and not listen attentively.

"I shouldn't care, y' know, to have to decipher the typing she said she did during the episode. I was quite sure she heard more than she told; and I asked myself: Why this curtailment? The only logical answer was: Because the Major had suggested it. And since the gnadiges Graulein was a forthright Germanic soul, with an inbred streak of selfish and cautious honesty, I ventured the prognostication that as soon as she was out from under the benev'lent jurisdiction of her tutor, she would tell us the rest, in order to save her own skin if the matter should come up later. . . . Not so cryptic when explained, what?"

"That's all very well" conceded Markham petulantly. "But where does it get us?"

"I shouldn't say that the forward movement was entirely imperceptible."

Vance smoked a while impassively.

"You realize, I trust," he said, "that the mysterious package contained the security."

"One might form such a conclusion," agreed Markham. "But the fact doesn't dumbfound me—if that's what you're hoping for."

"And, of course," pursued Vance easily, "your legal mind, trained in the technique of ratiocination, has already identified it as the box of jewels that Mrs. Platz espied on Benson's table that fatal afternoon."

Armistice Day

It is so easy to forget; and 1918 was nine long years ago.

Yet there are some things that we must never let ourselves forget. And Armistice Day brings some of them to our minds.

There is no danger, of that we will actually forget the war. Yet already the details of it are getting a bit hazy for some of us; already memory is beginning to play her old trick on us, softening the harsh light that makes them seem casually enjoyable, in retrospect.

When the average non-combatant thinks of the war, for instance, what are his emotions? He thinks of the easy money that prevailed then. He thinks of the waving flags of the pleasant, gone-carousing thrills of patriotism that came to him so often. He thinks of the wave of idealism that swept the land in those days, under which the humblest citizen could feel that he was part of a great army of brothers. All in all, the war doesn't seem half bad, in retrospect.

And the ex-service man; how does he feel about it?

As like as not he, too, has memories that, on the whole, are not unpleasant. The horror and the terror that were part of his life do not intrude themselves so much nowadays. Instead he remembers the easy comradeship, the happy-go-lucky good fellowship of the army. He recalls the songs he used to sing, the mates with whom he drank and went on gay escapades, the times when he went gally A. W. O. L. and eluded the M. P.'s in Paris.

This is as it should be. Yet today, the ninth anniversary of the war, is a good day for jogging our memories, for reminding ourselves that the war wasn't all skittles and beer.

War is quite all that General Sherman said it is, and a casual inspection of one's memory of the days of 1917 and 1918 will bear out that statement.

The non-combatant might recall the daily casualty lists; the worry and anxiety over absent loved ones; the unsightly spectacle of profiteers waxing fat on a situation that was bringing grief and destruction to all of Europe; the regimentation of mind and speech throughout this country, with jail sentences for those who did not think as the majority thought; the skyrocketing prices, so often rising faster than wages and salaries rose.

And the soldier might recall—well, he knows what scenes of horror he can turn his mind to, without our telling him. He can recall the mud, the filth, the hard-boiled officers, the machine guns, the shrapnel and the rest; and he knows that, however many tricks his memory may play on him, these things were not pleasant.

Such are the memories we might stir up for today. And why?

Not to advance the cause of "peace at any price," surely. Not to make ourselves a pacifistic nation, willing to accept any situation rather than fight to end it.

Simply to remind ourselves that we went through a terrible experience a few years ago, and that that experience had a definite purpose. If we pledge ourselves again to the task of seeing to it that that purpose—the bringing of freedom and peace closer to every man on earth—is brought nerer fulfillment, it will be well. If we do not, our memories may arise to torture us again.

Chicago's New Move

The police of Chicago, advancing on the crime wave, lately have undertaken the mental examination of leaders of the underworld. A gang leader is caught, he goes to the hospital where they look into his ABCs.

There is this much about it—publication of the results of these tests should take feathers from the thugs' hats in considerable number. Imagine the feelings of a member of the Gashouse gang, for instance, upon reading that Tuffy McGuiad has been discovered lacking in the mentality every nine year old school boy has—won't this slightly jar Tuffy's prestige with the boys?.

These gang leaders are supposed to be bright fellows, smart enouch to make their way through the world without a great deal of effort, except the overworking of the trigger finger. With the notions of their smartness cast to the winds, their gangs no longer will look up to them for help and advice.

It is a good move in undermining thug prestige.

THE PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway has a newly married friend who has fallen out with her butcher. She ordered a steak and the stingy old thing didn't send her gravy with it.

Lubbock has just had its first aerial mishap but don't let that worry you. Most of us will live to see the day when they will be just about as ordinary as auto smashes are today. The aerial age is upon us now and whether we like it or not will make no difference. People who are flying now—even those who are flying for a 'thrill'—are helping to pioneer the age of the air and history proves to us that pioneers in all things have to pay, and sometimes dearly, for their daring.

Many people are frankly wary of an airplane. They admit that flying holds no claim upon their desires. They regard people who fly as foolish, unnecessary risk-takers and they cite accidents to prove their point. But is flying as dangerous as it appears? Let's look at these figures. Down at Kelly field 43,000 flights were made before an accident befell an airman there. Flying is becoming more and more common every day but are accidents increasing in direct ratio to the converts of the clouds? They are not and figures prove they are not.

Man's fear of the air is innate. It is natural to him. The risk of height is in all of us to a certain degree. Generations before us have possessed the fear and have had no experience to still it. Man is used to having one foot on the ground. Until he shakes that habitual desire to stay close to terra firma the fear will remain. If we could look ahead several generations—into what is destined to be an age of air travel and commerce — the chances are we would see race with little respect for the tremors of flying and heights. Nature will take care of that.

You may or may not agree that flying does not present more of a risk, if carefully done after close inspection of the plane, than automobiling or crossing a traffic jammed street in the middle of the block. Yet The Plainsman cannot believe that in 43,000 attempts a pedestrian could cross city traffic mid-block without a serious accident to equal the record made by Kelly field fliers. He doesn't believe that you can drive a car on the aver age of 43,000 times across an intersection without an injurious smashup. Of course these points cannot be proved. They are too abstract. But you must admit, after thinking the question over, that they appear logical upon the surface.

The Plainsman has nothing but sympathy and hopes for early recovery, for the trio of plane crash victims of Wednesday. You may be sure that everyone with a spark of human kindness feels the same way, regardless of whether they feel that flying is sensible or other wise. Yet he does not feel that this lone mishap among hundreds of flights here should delay the advance of aviation in Lubbock or on the South Plains and he certainly hopes it will not.

Since flying is strange to most of us we must look at it through a parallel with which we are familiar. If Bill Smith drove his automobile into a telephone pole, or tried to take a corner at 40 miles an hour and turned over, you wouldn't say Bill was crazy for driving a car, would you? If a passenger were hurt with him you wouldn't say the passenger was crazy for riding with him, would you? You might say that Bill was an idiot to take unnecessary chances but you wouldn't blame the mishap upon the automotive theory. If on the other hand, Bill was driving carefully and his gas feed jammed, his steering apparatus broke, thus causing the accident, you wouldn't tirrow your car away and advise friends and relatives never to ride in one. That would be senseless. Automobiles are man-made and anything man-made is apt to misfortune, regardless of how much care is taken in construction. Automobile driving is man-conceived and the human judgment in operation is liable to error at any time. These things we all realize.

Now apply these arguments to airplanes and what do you find? You find that aviation, admittedly in the experimental, is fundamentally no different from auto travel. The age of the air is almost upon us and thinking, far-seeing people already realize that this swifter method of getting from place to place is bound to ascend to the heights of public use and favor.

Coming Battle Over Smith-And Vare Renews Prattle Of 'Invisible Government', Says Dutcher From Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Congress will open with a great boeptе-doo over the question of whether or not Senators Frank Smith and Bill Vare are such awful persons as they are said to be and if so, they are to awful to be allowed in the senate.

As this titanic battle approaches, the ordinary citizen undoubtedly will be asking himself a question which long has caused considerable puzzlement among the unsophisticated. That question is:

It will be recalled that something like $4,000,000 was spent in Illinois and Pennsylvania on behalf of three candidates and that half of it was wasted on the Hon. George Wharton Pepper, who was defeated by Boss Vare, the man who cost his backers only a million.

Why those four millions? Did millionaire public utilities men, bankers, secretaries of the treasury and manaufacturers chip in out of the kindness of their hearts? Or was it because they were determined that the people must have the best men, at all costs, who would represent the public's interests alone?

One suggests reluctantly that we must seek further for the answer. Samuel Insull, the multi-millionaire utilities magnate, gave $125,000—or was it $300,000?—to the Smith campaign, but he also kicked in with at least $25,000 for George Brennan, Smith's democratic opponent.

And Mellon, after announcing that the money he poured into the Pepper sieve was given in as good a cause as money to the church swung to the support of Bill Vare along with the whole Mellon machine, despite the fact that the Mellon organization had nearly broken its neck and put up all the money in the attempt to beat Vare in the primaries.

That would make it appear that, after all, it never made much difference from the standpoint of public interest whether Brennan beat Smith or Vare licked Pepper. And we still have the question before us why, in that case, anyone should want to shell out in such large quantities.

Attempts at answers, one observes, come more profusely from the self-alleged pure than from the so-called unclean. The candidates are all glad to explain why they needed all that money, but their angels are reticent as to why they produced.

Thus, one turns to consider the explanation of such an ancient enemy of political sewers as the Hon. Robert L. Owen, for 18 years senator from Oklahoma and now president of the National Popular Government league. It should be remembered of course that the Hon. Bob, for all his sincerity, is not invariably dead right and that if the wealthy angels ever undertake to explain, their words should be given due consideration.

Owen explains, as he has been explaining for a long time, that we are governed by an "invisible government" of plutocrats who have usurped the ruling power supposedly held by the people. Three or four hundred men, he believes, buy elections and nominations, fill the White House and the chambers of congress, appoint judges and control all branches of government. They control everything necessary to allow them govermental favors and a clear, unobstructed sweep, at the expense of us, the people.

"The Illinois and Pennsylvania scandals showed up the plutocracy in action," he says. "It was the invisible government of money, in process of buying or unduly influencing the governing powers of the people and establishing a secret and often an unconscious control over the men who are supposed to represent all the people impartially."

This system, says Owen, is responsible for retention of corrupt officials, relief of the rich from a fair share of taxation, attempts to give away Muscle Shoals and abolish the federal legislation, failure to provide for flood sufferers, connivance at defeating prohibition enforcement and so on. It protects "plundering monopolies" through the tariff. It instituted a deflation policy which wrecked 3,000 banks, still keeps commercial bankruptcy figures three times as high as before and cost farmers and stock men $20,000,000,000, according to Owen.

He quotes Roosevelt and Hiram Johnson about an "invisible government" by an "unholy alliance of corrupt business and corrupt politics" and Woodrow Wilson's charge that the "Government of the United States at present is a foster child of special interests."

Owen is one of those few who believe the American people can be made to believe all that and then get excited about it. Most practical politicians don't believe anything of the sort.

A New Yorker in Paris

PARIS, Nov. 11—If you believed the average guide books, you would conclude that Paris contained little else than churches, museums and tombs.

If you believed the average myth, you would conclude that Paris was little more than a den of iniquity, with nude chorus girls at every theather and the churches, tombs and so-forth brooding tragically and crumblingly over the sad spectacle.

After one of those hectic hunts conducted with the aid of trained jungle beaters, guides and sharpshooters I can report that whether in brothels or cathedrals, Paris is one place where it is impossible to move without stepping on history. The mere business of buying a necktie, or a cravat if you will, is accompanied by the reading of a pamphlet telling you that you now stand on the very spot where Napoleon I quartered for three nights or where Louis IV made a date with his latest mistress.

In fact, after a few weeks of Paris, I got about gingerly on tip toes murmuring: "Don't step on it, it might be Napoleon." And, if that fails, you can substitute Jeanne d'Arc with reasonable certainty of being right.

The shadow of Napoleon is likely to fall over you wherever you stand and when, for a moment you get out from under it, behold you are on the spot where something-or-other happened in the French revolution or you are sipping your "cafe finn" across the street from the oldest cathedral in France.

Coming fresh from New York, so much antiquity is extremely difficult to swallow at first. In Paris they have reached that age where they hold eternal wakes for their dead. In New York, where a century is still a long time, nothing is so sacred that it may escape the hand of the wrecker. In New York the air is filled with chaos; girders climb to the skies and landmarks go tumbling over to make way for the next skyscraper. New York is brutal, uncouth, parading its strength like the muscle-bound gents of the physical culture advertisements.

France has long lived in the past, refighting old wars, venerating old tombs, bowing to old traditions. It is coming out of that and, while so doing, it is saving those rare spots of beauty and classic architecture which deserve being saved.

As for its naughtiness—well I've seen a much better "hootch" dance on 42nd street than they serve you between acts of the Moulin Rouge. And, before the Shuberts were forced to buy costumes for their chorines, I have seen almost an equivalent amount of undress. Really vulgar places are vulgar in the same sense as "the circus" at Montreal or the old Barbary Coast in San Francisco. Slummers have forced their women-folk into many of these "peep show" affairs that flourish in sidestreet bars and cafes and for a few francs a visiting woman from Brooklyn can enjoy the spectacle of a fellow woman reduced to most sorry straits.

True, it is possible in Paris to see depravity at close range a bit more easily than in New York. But the pretense of depravity is one of the "rackets" of the Montmartre belt, staged particularly for the quick tourist money and with a dullness that would be difficult to equal.

There really is no need to spend the money if you are coming to Paris to be naughty. New York will do very well. But to come to Paris to get a new perspective on life—that's something else again, Mauruss.

GILBERT SWAN.

I stood in Venice on the Bridge of Sighs,
A palace and a prison on each hand:
I saw from out the wave her structures rise
As from the stroke of the enchanted wand;
A thousand years their cloudy wings expand
Around me, and a dying Glory smiles
O'er the far times, when many a subject land
Looked at the winged Lion's marble piles,
Where Venice sat in state, throned on her hundred isles.

With Our West Texas Contemporaries

BY JAMES L. DOW

THE LADIES AND POLITICS

There has been so much talk about the ennobling influence of women beautifying politics that we might have come to look upon the polling place as a sacramental privilege, if we had known a little less about human nature.

Now the startling fact develops in an eastern state that the hand that rocks the cradle also can rock the ballot box just a wee bit. Not much rocking is required, you understand, to purify an election one way or the other in some localities. We are just naive enough to ask the women will purify politics people if little things like this are what they meant when they predicted the milleaium of spotlessness.

It is against our wish to drag Mother Ferguson back from the obscurity she so richly merits to ask if, possibly, such gubernatorial administration is what they had in mind. Ask anybody in Texas. They know.

Now we have the investigation of Mrs. Florence E. Knapp's administration of the 1925 New York state census. A man named Patrick Hogan, duly appointed to the census bureau went to Albany and his consternation knew no bounds when he found there was nothing to do but draw his pay, he testified.

Here we have the spectacle of an innocent man, whose conceptions of ideal politics probably have been irreparably ruined by the discovery that certain politicians didn't work. While we don't see how a man named Partick Hogan could be so guileless, there certainly must have been a brunet in the kindling somewhere along the line.

One of the women in Mrs. Knapp's bureau says the expenses were not all they might have been, either. Her testimony was to the effect that certain expenses charged to her were used by someone else. Perhaps it was a couple of other fellows.

Maybe the women will purify politics—some day. But just now they seem to be having a dreadful job of it.—Corpus Christi Caller.

There was a great cry of pure politics, when the matter of woman suffrage was being sought, and possibly this has been the result. However, we sometimes think that possibly it has had the opposite efect and possibly instead of women purifying politics, politics has lowered the standard of the women of the country.

We do not wish to be understood as opposed to woman suffrage. We believe they have as much right to a vote as the man, but we are just doubting whether or not they are going to purify the political situation. They are rather prejudiced, we thing to their own sex, and we are doubting in some cases, especially in the matter of national and state politics whether this is the wise thing.

We hope that since the women have the right to vote that they will make a thorough study of politics and that they will lay aside all thoughts of sex and vote for those candidates who are for the high standards of moral living and cleaner politics.

School Paper At Plainview One Of Livest In State

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 11. — The Plainview public schools boast of one of the largest semi-monthly school publications of any school in Texas with the appearance of the eight page publication, "The Bow-Wow" this month.

The Bow-Wow has been published for two years now but was only recently increased to eight pages and is a complete newspaper carrying all the different types of news concerning the school and the different activities of the teachers and students. It has a personal section, society column, sports page and practically every other well defined section carried by the ordinary newspaper.

Wayne Henly is editor in chief of the publication of Lucille Eoff and Irel Wilson, business managers. Mrs. Anna Morgan Kelley is the faculty sponsor to the paper. The publication carries advertisements of local merchants to defray the cost of publication.

PHILADELPHIA—If milady desires, when she travels by train she may puff in luxury, sitting in a compartment with gray walls with a rug on the floor to match and a vanity table handy. Such compartments at the end of chair cars are to be tried between Philadelphia and New York. If popular they will be extended to pullmans on other lines.

A Patootie and Some Potatoes

Co-Operation Is Watch-Word Among Super-Service Stations' Employes And Expansion Is Natural Result

Whenever any business is marked by the success which has attended the Super-Service Station, Incorporated, of Lubbock, since it was first opened for business less than two years ago, the reason is usually found in the fact that the entire organization works as one man.

This rule holds good in the case of the Super-Service Station company. The members of this organization are like the members of a big family, and they work together with a teamwork that would put a colony of ants to shame.

The company is owned by D. E. Mansell and Mrs. J. T. Ashford, who are president and secretary-treasurer of the corporation. Miss Alene Patterson aids Mrs. Ashford in the general offices of the company located on the northwest corner of Broadway and Avenue M.

Large Force Employed

Morton J. Smith and H. W. Cherry attend to the gasoline and oil wants of the motorists who drive in the front of the station. J. M. Waggoner who has the reputation of being among the best in car greasing, is in charge of the Alemite greasing service. Washing and polishing is in charge of Ray Higgins, who is assisted by W. C. Briggs. Lee Wallace is in charge of the tires, with Neely Pinkston and W. C. Benn aiding in the tire repair department. R. E. Saunders, C. D. Kennedy and H. L. Terrell are mechanics in the service department of the building located on the northeast corner of the same street intersection.

Mansell Is Designer

To Mr. Mansell belongs the credit of designing and planning the station which was opened for business January 3, 1926. Immediately on opening the company took on a line of tires which they sold in small quantities until they decided to change to another line, which gave them better results. The decision was given to the United States tires, and the accuracy of the selection is proved in the fact that the company increased from a volume of $400 a month to $2,000 per month within the short period of four months.

Correspondingly, each phase of the service rendered by the company has increased to such an extent that two buildings are now necessary. Mr. Mansell has decided to open up the agency for Packard automobiles, and in addition

Elephant Holds Record For Long Time Friendship

(By Associated Press)

LONDON Nov. 11 (AP)—Elephants play the chief roles in reminiscences of the "Barnum of Britain," E. H. Bostock, who spent 50 years on the road with circuses, menageries and theaters. Bostock tells how, when boxing kangaroos were all the rage, he had to train the animals for these stunts, and finally, seeking something new, he gained a great lead over other rival circus men by producing a wrestling lion.

His favorite elephant was Lizzie, born in the African jungles. While showing one day in Tenbury, Lizzie was taken with a severe attack of colic and was obviously in such pain that, the local "vet" not being within call, Bostock called in the best known Tenbury chemist. Though unused to prescribing for elephants, the chemist made up a bucket full of a mixture which Lizzie swallowed without demur when told to do so by her trainer. The good effects were immediate. The colic was conquered, and within a day or two Lizzie was herself again.

Here is the sequel:

"Four years later the menagerie was back in the same town. The local chemist, keen to have a look at his former patient, was standing on the curbstone watching the entrance of the show.

"The moment Lizzie came abreast of the chemist she recognized her former benefactor, swung round, deserted the formation and with a 'honk' of joy almost rushed the gentleman off his feet. Playfully and joyfully she then fondled him with her trunk, and the procession was held up several minutes by the animal's evident exuberance."

Bostock recalls many narrow escapes. He has been attacked by lions, leopards, snakes, bears, monkeys, kangaroos and other animals, but never by an elephant.

New British Hall Burned At Dublin

DUBLIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—The new hall of Inchicore, Dublin branch of the British legion, which was opened Saturday was burned last night.

Dublin was placarded today with anti-British posters. In view of this and fiery speeches, by republicans denouncing carrying union jacks in some sections by former service men in past Armistice Day parades trouble is feared tomorrow, Armistice Day, if such flags are carried again.

Fifty years ago, Sir Norman Lockyer announced that there was a relation between sun spot cycles and rainfall.

WHY-

Did you know that Bowen's Drug Store was going to occupy one half of the building now occupied by W. J. Garrett? The building will be divided, work to begin January 1st. While work is going on the store will be torn up, the entrance will be more or less blocked, which will make it almost impossible for us to hold the annual January Clearance Sale. So we must do our CLEARING and RE-ADJUSTING of STOCK right now rather than in January.

This step takes the place of the ordinary January Sale with values as great—and we think in almost every instance they are greater than any January Clearance.

We must clear certain shelving and show cases of stock because we will have no place to put them—they must be sold quickly!

We shall do everything possible to see that everyone who comes to this sale will be served as quickly, courteously and correctly as possible. We urge you to attend the first few days before the broken lots and small quantities of super-values are gone.

NOTICE

After January first the store will be re-modeled and we will occupy only one-half present space. We will specialize in Ladies' Ready-to-wear, Piece Goods and Millinery and women's furnishings only.

M SYSTEM HAS BUYING POWER

BUT STORES OWNED BY INDIVIDUALS WHO OPERATE THEM

The outstanding characteristic of M System stores, the largest of which is now located in Lubbock, is the fact that while the stores use the co-operative plan of buying their merchandise, each of the stores is locally owned, and is therefore not a "chain" store.

Stretching from Florida on the eastern coast to California on the west, there are 534 of these stores. The one just completed here is the fourth in Lubbock and the five hundred and thirty-fourth in the United States. The majority of the stores are in Texas.

Headquarters In Ft. Worth

General headquarters and manufacturing headquarters for all the stores are located in Fort Worth. Galveston is the site of warehouses to hold the merchandise bought co-operatively and shipped by water in order to take advantage of the cheaper rate thus made possible.

The system gets its name from the patented arrangement of the interior of each of the stores. The shelves on which the goods are placed are arranged so as to form the letter "M" The organization is not quite four years old. The growth that it has enjoyed during these four years is amazing.

Self-Service Is Principle

Self-service is the basic principle upon which the business is founded. Customers come in, look over the goods, take what they want, and pay as they leave. Cash-and-carry is another principle which has proven itself popular and profitable.

The local stores are headed by J. G. McLarty. It is the intention of Mr. McLarty to have all of the local stores incorporated.

As evidence of the interest the stores take in public and civic affairs, an Armistice Day program will be broadcast Friday night from radio stations at Dallas, Waco and Beaumont.

Chain Store Owner Is Dead In Dallas

DALLAS, Nov. 11 (AP).—After a three weeks illness, R. G. Lewis, 46, owner and operator of a chain of clothing stores in Texas and Louisiana, died at his home here Wednesday.

Oysters or clams are delicious if baked, covered with chopped spinach, cream sauce and sprinkled over the top with crumbs and cheese.

Tells How He Slew Petlura

Samuel Schwartzbard, clockmaker, is shown above in the Paris court as he related how he killed General Simon Petlura, called the "butcher of the Ukraine." Schwartzbard declared he killed Petlura because the general incited the terrible pogroms against the Jews in the Ukraine a few years ago. In the foreground is Henri Tore, his attorney. Schwartzbard was acquitted, many witnesses testifying that killing was "too good for Petlura."

SEED DON'T ROT

Contrary to general supposition, weed seeds do not rot within a few years if buried in the soil. In an experiment begun in 1902 by the Department of Agriculture, 107 species of seeds were buried in pots of soil at various depths. In 1912 ten years after being buried, 69 species grew, and in 1923, after 20 years burial, 51 species still were able to grow. Most weed seeds plowed under will not perish during the period of any normal crop rotation.

Articles made from stone, bone and ivory, including a beautifully carved little figure of a polar bear, have been dug up on Mill Island, in the Hudson strait. The carving is believed to have been done by Eskimos about a thousand years ago.

The year 1927 corresponds with the year 5687-8 of the Jewish era.

Proclamation On Armistice Day Is Okeyed By Women

(By Associated Press)

BELTON, Nov. 11. — Endorsement of President Coolidge's Armistice Day proclamation by the Texas Women's Centennial Movement was made in a resolution adopted by the executive board here. The resolution follows:

"The Texas Women's Centennial Movement does hereby most heartily endorse the Armistice Day proclamation of President Calvin Coolidge, especially in its call for a spirit of prayerful Thanksgiving; and in conformance with programs and requests formerly issued by the Women's Movement, most earnestly asks that the day be commemorated by the schools, churches and people of Texas with services for those of all nations who made the Supreme Sacrifice in the great struggle which ceased November 11, 1918; and that in the assemblies held on that day prayers be offered and talks made that will lead to the noblest citizenship that our country of the world may have.

"Let trivial thoughts, words and deeds be put away, especially from eleven o'clock till noon, and let each man and woman, boy and girl seek to find a place in world work and peace and service, with Thanksgiving to the Great Giver of Peace."

BREEDING STOCK

Breeding from good stock is desirable and fundamental yet the tremendous losses among young livestock are due only to a very limited extent to faulty breeding. Pure bred animals generally receive better care than ordinary stock because they are more valuable, and they usually are the property of the more skillful stockmen. But, equal care should be extended to young animals in general, regardless of whether they are purebred. Livestock owners must drop any attitude they may have toward fatalism and indifference to deaths of young animals, and challenge every death to show cause why it occurred.

Home-Made Shells

Substitutes for pattie shells can be made satisfactory from biscuits by cutting out most of the center before baking.

The same fresh crispness as when they leave the vines

STRAIGHT from dewy fields, these choice cucumbers are hurried into preparation the same day they are picked. To make certain none of their crisp tenderness is lost, Libby maintains hundreds of pickling stations right in the midst of the finest producing regions. Always you get that spicy crispness which is so refreshing, when you buy Libby's Pickles.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF LUBBOCK, TEXAS, IN REGULAR SESSION NOVEMBER 10, 1927.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our City Manager, Mr. W. H. Perkinson, who died in the City of Lubbock on November 5, 1927, and,

WHEREAS, Each member of the City Commission and each employee of the City feels a deep personal loss in the death of Mr. Perkinson, who had been associated with us and faithfully served the City for the past eighteen months, and,

WHEREAS, the City of Lubbock in the death of Mr. Perkinson has lost a valuable City Manager, whose chair will be hard to fill, who gave the best that was in him in his service rendered the City, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the City Commission in regular session, this November 10, 1927, that we extend to his bereaved wife, children and relatives our sincere sympathy in their sorrow.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED and ordered that a copy of these resolutions be placed on the Minutes of this Commission, a copy furnished his wife, and that a copy be published in the Avalanche-Journal.

Term Defended

NEW YORK—Criticized by Germans, Theodore Roosevelt defends his use in magazine articles of the word "Boche," maintaining that crtics are unduly sensitive. He writes: "It is a similar term to the word 'Yankee' as applied to our own men or 'Frog' as applied to the French. Incidentally let me remind them (the critics) that 'Yankee' was applied to Americans first as a term of opprobrium by the British."

Ruth In Films

SS AQUITANIA—It looks as if Ruth Elder might go into the movies instead of housekeeping in the canal zone. Joseph M. Schenck has been talking to her about a contract. He says she is much interested and would screen very well.

WASHINGTON—This was a flying tackle by cupid. Harold D. Cothran led his LaFayette football team against Georgetown last Saturday. The same day he met Peggy Tackett, freshman at George Washington university. They were married Monday.

Useless Beauty

ATLANTIC CITY—It looks as if the country will be saved next year from the danger of floods from tears of disappointed beauties. The Hotel Men's association hopes that the annual pageant for the selection of Miss America will be discontinued, believing it has outlived its usefulness.

Beauty Recipe

NEW YORK—Here is the beauty recipe of a girl of sixty: "The greatest secret is eating the proper food. Never touch starchy foods. Eat no white bread. Leave meats alone." Fannie Ward, eternal flapper, says she has followed that rule for 20 years.

Church Uplift

NEW YORK—Smoking by clergymen displeases the Rev. George Rittenhouse, evangelist, who uses the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton's Calvary Baptist church as a home base. During testimonials at the church regarding healing by means of prayer, with anointments of oil and bay rum, Mr. Rittenhouse told of attending a church council at the Waldorf for the uplift of the drama. "Father Duffs and Bishop Manning," he said, "were the only ones who refrained from use of cigarets. The august president of the church league for the uplift of the drama, Dr. Cadman, was smoking and so were the other clergymen. It semed to me that the church needed uplift more than the actors."

By the way, what ever became of the starving Armenians?

SUPER SERVICE EXPANDS SCOPE

NEW LOCATION, ACROSS FROM PRESENT ONE, OPENED TODAY

Opening for business less than two years ago, later incorporated by D. E. Mansell and Mrs. J. T. Ashford, president and secretary-treasurer respectively, the Super-Service Station incorporated, located on two corners of the intersection of Broadway and Avenue M, can now justly lay claim to being one of the finest service stations in the state.

The completion of additional units to the station, and the addition of the agencies for both the Packard automobile and the Dayfan radios, will mark another 'era in the growth which has rewarded the aggressiveness of its owners since the company first opened for business on January 3, 1926.

Occupies Two Buildings

The company is now located in two buildings, both occupying corners at Broadway and Avenue M. The northwest corner of this intersection is occupied by the original company site. Here the motorist can buy Simms gasoline and oils, Quaker State oils, Pennzoils, Mobiloils, and United States tires and tubes; and obtain authorized Alemite greasing service, tire repair service, and battery and ignition service.

The building on the northeast corner is occupied by the Packard automobile agency, which has recently been opened here by D. E. Mansell, president of the corporation. The addition of this agency is a mark of distinction for Lubbock as well as a tribute to the aggressiveness and ability of the owners of the station. In the same building is located the agency for the Dayfan radio.

In the rear of the Packard agency building, washing and polishing service in which the latest available methods are in use, can be obtained. Mechanical repair work, done by expert mechanics, is also obtainable in this building, as is storage service.

Hot Snow That Some Day May Bury a City

Here is the largest mass of "perpetual snow" in the world. It lies in the burning heart of New Mexico's desert, 27 miles from the town of Almogordo. The snow is drifted gypsum sand—270 square miles of it—and gradually is drifting eastward to toward Almogordo. In several centuries, the residents of Almorgordo may have to move geologists says.

Largest M-System Store In America Opens Here Saturday; Investment Of McLarty In New Business $100,000

Facing 75 feet in width of Broadway, and a greater distance in depth on Avenue L, the largest M System store of the 534 stores in the organization over the United States is now located in Lubbock, and will be opened tomorrow according to statement, by J. G. McLarty, owner of the local stores, and his son, Marvin McLarty.

The store and property will represent an investment of approximately $100,000. The building is owned by J. F. Baker, and is leased by Mr. McLarty.

Many Departments Planned

The store will include departments to satisfy practically every want of the housewife, so far as food is concerned. In addition to the full line of standard nationally advertised groceries there will be fruit and vegetables, a department for bakery products, another department for dairy products, a delicatessen, a meat market and a drug store.

The groceries will be placed on shelves arranged in the eastern side of the store in the shape of the "M" from which the M System derives its name.

Drugs On the West

The meat market will be located in the center of the store, and the drug store in the western side, nearest Avenue L. The drug store will have a soda fountain in addition to the regular line of medicines and other drug store articles.

Most modern of equipment has been placed in the building. One of the most important features of this phase is the esthlishment of three of the largest Frigidaire machines ever built. Two of these will be in the meat market, and the third in the drug store.

Lights Well Arranged

The lighting system has been arranged so as to give the best possible view of the articles on the shelves. In addition to the lights within the store, a large electrical sign will be placed on front of the building on a steel pole forty feet in height. The sign will bear the lettering, "M System Grocery and Market." The sign itself is twenty feet in length.

The floor of the interior has been covered with Battle Creek linoleum.

Outwardly, the store presents an especially pleasing appearance. The chief material is brick, with glazed tile used as roofing. The building was designed by Peters and Haynes architects.

The store has three openings, all of which face on Broadway. There are, however, no divisions by partitions, all the departments being in one large room. This allows patrons of one department to pass freely to any other department desired.

HANDLING RABBITS

Rabbits raised for commercial sale require careful handling. If occasion arises to pick them up, it always should be done by grasping the skin at the back of the neck, and if the animal is to be held any length of time, it should be placed in the arms, or rested on the floor or some other stationary object. Rabbits never should be held by the ears, as sometimes is a common practice. In many instances it not only injures the outer ear but does serious damage to the inner ear.

There are 45,000 miles of electric railways in the United States.

PLANTING PECANS

Because some fine-quality wild pecan trees grow on land that is sometimes flooded, some growers have made the mistake of planting pecans in wet soil. Overflows rarely damage pecans, but for good development there is need drained and friable subsoil which the taproot and lat extend readily. Soil that la times and well drained a is desirable. Soils that sta will kill pecan rees.

Lovers' Fairs In France Again In Vogue On Border

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The "Lovers' Fair" is in vogue again. At Givet near the Belgian frontier, the boys and girls from all the country around can meet and look each other over. They gather, frankly, to begin the courtships that end in marriage.

For generations, there as well as under other names in other towns, the "Lovers' Fair" has been an annual affair. The war interrupted these traditional country festivals, but that they served a real purpose is apparent in their revival. Young people on farms meet few of their own age, and the choice of mates is narrow. Authorities and older people favor the larger gatherings where all day long the young men and women talk over their likes and dislikes and make new acquaintances.

There are dances and little country fair attractions, candy booths, games of chance, fortune tellers and sometimes a movie show with ancient films. The fair is the excuse; the real business is Courtship.

There formerly were real "Husband Fairs" at Deux-Sevres and in towns in Vendee, where there were mngy marriages performed under an umbrella-canopy in the village square.
