

DEFENSE RESTS CASE IN CRAWFORD TRIAL

Testimony in the trial of Jessie Lee Crawford, 35, charged in the pistol death of his former wife, Bertha Lee Bostick here on July 4, came to a dramatic close at 10:40 a. m. today shortly after he broke down on the stand when asked if he had any intentions of killing Mrs. Bostick.

Showing emotion for the first time since arrest on July 4, Crawford cried out to the jury:

"I did not. I didn't intend to hurt her because I loved her."

Tears fell in the audience too. Asked to describe his actions on entering the house, the defendant said:

"I entered the screen door and Bertha and Kelly were laying on the bed. Bostick said, 'I told you I was going to kill you. Now I am going to do it.' Then he started coming at me. I circled to the northeast part of the room and he circled over near Bertha. I slid my hand in my pocket and pulled out the pistol and started shooting. I don't know how many times I shot. I was afraid of him; he was going to kill me."

He said during questioning that the first thing Bertha Lee Bostick had said to him after he returned from the service, where he saw combat in the Southwest Pacific with the Navy, was that she wanted a divorce. He had returned to Pampa in October of 1945.

He said he had sent $120 home each month for the support of her and his son, William Glenn Crawford, now seven.

Crawford stated "She said I never would stay with her the way she had done while I had been gone." He said he had not known that Bostick had been seeing her until about a week after he got home, that the first one that told him was his son, William Glenn. His son, Crawford stated, told him, "Daddy, I can tell you what the trouble is, if you want me to." He said the child then told him about Kelley Bostick and that he had been there many times.

Crawford told her he had asked his wife about the affair that night, but she denied it. He added:

The next morning she owned up to it and admitted she had had relations with Kelly. Several other people told me they were having an affair."

The defendant said they had talked several times about a divorce, but that he didn't want one because he loved her. His voice broken he admitted she got her uncontested divorce on December 3, 1945, and he was awarded the custody of Glenn. He said she gave him the custody willingly.

Crawford said he saw his former wife several times after this. He said on April 5, 1947, she came to him at Dumas and told him she and Bostick had separated and that she was going to get a divorce soon. She asked for money, he said, and he gave her $50 and a check for $250. The (See CRAWFORD, Page 3)

City Commission Okays Purchase New Trucks

The City Commission yesterday approved the bid of the Chevrolet Motor Company for one two-ton dump truck at a cost of $2,568.45 to add to the city's dump truck fleet.

The commission also approved the sale of two garbage trucks to raise enough funds to purchase two new Garwood packers for two new trucks already ordered. The new trucks will replace the eight-year-old ones now on duty.

At the same time new members of the Board of City Development was approved by the commission. They are: Irvin Cole, Reno Stinson, John Pitts, Ralph Juillard, and J. W. Garman. They will serve a three-year term.

The commission discussed the possibility of enacting a new ordinance for the regulating of door-to-door peddlers. The ordinance is expected to be discussed for some time before final passage. It will resemble, strongly, a similar ordinance now in effect at Plainview.

The commission meeting was completed shortly before noon yesterday.

Lynn Boyd Speaker At Dallas Meeting

DALLAS —(AP)—Seventy-five Dallas area lumber dealers last night heard details of the "industry-engineered house program" which it was estimated would cut costs of new homes by ten percent.

Lynn Boyd, lumber dealer and one builder from Pampa, explained how he had built several models of a five-room frame one last year to sell for $5,400 in Pampa where comparable houses were costing $7,000 to $7,500. P. J. Goodnight of Dallas estimated a comparable house of sound construction could be erected in Dallas at today's costs to sell at a figure between $6,000 and $6,400.

Boyd said the saving was based on "modular coordination" which he described as "coordinating dimensions of building products and equipment with dimensions of a standardized house."

Marshall Heads For Big Four London Meet

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Secretary of State Marshall leaves for London today to put American policy toward Russia to a new and perhaps crucial test.

Traveling in President Truman's original plane, the Sacred Cow, Marshall scheduled a 12 noon (CST) take-off for the Big Four foreign ministers conference. His chief traveling companion is Charles E. Bohlen, State Department counselor and veteran adviser on Soviet relations.

President Truman arranged to talk with the Secretary of State at the White House at 11:15 (CST) for a final review of aims and plans for the London conference. From there Mr. Truman planned to accompany Marshall to the airport to see the Secretary off.

Marshall's announced goal is the same elusive objective of four previous sessions: (1) Agreement with Russian Foreign Minister Molotov on a peace treaty with Austria and (2) a decision on at least the main outlines of a German settlement.

But while those are the immediate problems, the underlying issue is the mounting tension between Russia on the one hand and the Western powers on the other.

Pointing up that issue, the Brookings Institution, a private research and educational agency, declared in a report made public today that a continuation of the present "nightmare" of big power relations could result in war at any time.

The previous foreign minister's sessions ended in complete stalemate on both the German and Austrian questions.

This time, if Russia again balks, France may join the United States and Great Britain in setting up a "trilateral area" engaging their combined occupation zones in Western Germany.

Russia would be left in control in Eastern Germany, but this step would not necessarily mean making peace with Germany without the Soviets.

Christmas Decoration Contest Is Announced

The Retail Trade Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will again be sponsors of the annual Christmas Decorations contest.

Prizes will be awarded in two divisions, one division being the best decorated residence and the others for the best decorated business house, churches, schools, and organizations will compete in the business division, the committee announced.

The committee stated that any type of decorations will be eligible including cut-outs and other original ideas depicting the Christmas theme.

Judging will take place December 23. No entry blanks will be required. Judges will visit all the decorated residences and others for the best decorated business house, churches, schools, and organizations will compete in the business division, the committee announced.

All Briton Cheers as Princess, Philip Wed

LONDON —(P)—Princess Elizabeth and her beloved, the newly named Duke of Edinburgh, were married today in the solemnity of Westminster Abbey and rode back to Buckingham Palace to the cheers of a million Britons beneath a clearing sky.

The wedding day, greatest occasion for Britons since George VI became King, brought a bright splash of color to the fabric of a nation rent by bombs and economic crisis.

Elizabeth, her face radiant above an ivory satin gown embroidered with thousands of pearls, wore a diamond tiara and a lipstick suited to television cameras.

Newspaper Men, Women of Texas Meeting Today

WACO —(P)—More than 150 veteran newspaper men and women of Texas were expected here today for the opening of a three-day session of the Texas Editorial Association.

The guests were to be welcomed by Dewitt T. Hicks, president of the Waco Chamber of Commerce.

Great possibilities exist in the exchange of talents between newspaper and radio, according to Calvin Clyde, Jr., assistant manager of the Tyler Courier-Times and Morning Telegraph, in a talk prepared for delivery today before the association. Clyde outlined how high interest in a continuing newspaper feature or news story can be supplemented over the air waves.

He was discussing "economics and potential possibilities of joint ownership of local newspapers and radio station." His observations were based on the operation of Tyler's two daily newspapers and Radio Station KTBB.

Clyde explained why the Tyler newspaper established a radio station, including "future of television, FM and facsimile broadcast." He said the newspaper with which he is associated wanted to bring these progressive developments to the public as they are proved practical.

"Actually we have noticed little 'no economies' in either the radio or newspaper business for some time," he said, but the Federal Communications Commission recently published an excellent study on the "economics" of the operation, "particularly in regard to new stations."

Clyde said "The Federal Communications Commission has been uniformly fair in its treatment from the stage of application to operation. Also, we have received fine cooperation from Texans already in the radio business."

He said that Tyler has one full-time radio station, KTYL, and a part-time station in a city of about 45,000 population and that the radio field is crowded both according to the Federal Communications Commission and the findings of his own station.

Bill Carpenter Is Legion Commander

MCLEAN —(Special)—Bill Carpenter was named commander of the American Legion here during a meeting last Tuesday night.

He succeeds Spencer Sitter, who recently resigned from the command post. Carpenter has been serving as adjutant. Raymond Glass was named to succeed him at that post.

The Legionnaires voted to sponsor once each week an entertainment night for veterans.

Called back to the stand when the committee resumed today, LaMarre first replied to a series of written questions submitted through the committee by John H. Amen, attorney for Meyers.

Amen wanted to know whether LaMarre had signed a letter dated Sept. 27 of this year listing approximately $18,000 worth of repayments of loans which the letter said Meyers had made to LaMarre and his wife.

Meyers has told reporters that money which LaMarre testified he "kicked back" from his salary was actually due him in repayment of personal loans.

"It's obvious I signed the letter because the photostat indicates it," LaMarre said, adding that (See MEYERS, Page 3)

Taft Decision On Rationing Being Proposed

WASHINGTON —(P)—Opposition cropped out in both Republican and Democratic ranks today to any plan for delaying Congressional action on President Truman's request for stand-by rationing and price control power.

The opposition was prompted by the announcement of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) that the Senate House Economic Committee which he heads will shut aside these two proposals to take a look first at other parts of Mr. Truman's 10-point anti-inflation program.

Two other members of the committee, Senator Flanders (R-Tx) and Sparkman (D-Ala), said they are against any such procedure.

While stressing that this stand should not be interpreted as a full endorsement of the Presidential program, they said they believe the controversial rationing and price control proposals should be debated during the current session, even though they appear to be doomed.

This whole matter was slated for further discussion today at a meeting of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. Taft, also chairman of this group, said plans for putting a $597,000,000 aid for Europe bill before the Senate also would be discussed by the policy committee.

The stop-gap aid legislation was approved unanimously by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday. Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich) said the administration-backed measure will have the right-of-way over all other business once it reaches the Senate floor.

The Senate meets today, but Taft said the plan was to adjourn almost immediately until Monday.

It remained to be seen when a similar bill would be ready for House action. The Foreign Affairs Committee decided yesterday to write its own measure rather than using either the Senate or State Department draft.

Meanwhile Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich) of the House Banking Committee announced his group will meet Tuesday to consider the whole 10-point Truman program, including the controversial price control and rationing items.

Taft himself told a reporter he had no intention of slamming the door on consideration of price control and rationing.

"But I did mean to say we are (See ECONOMIC, Page 3)

Shamrock Has Some Interesting Visitors

SHAMROCK—(Special)—Interesting visitors in Shamrock last Thursday were M. C. Jacob and S. G. Bhogle, representatives of the forest service of India.

Jacob and Bhogle are in the United States making a study of soil and forestry conservation and stopped in this city while en route from Oklahoma City to Amarillo. They were accompanied by I. E. Wells of Oklahoma City, member of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Forestry Division.

The young, well educated Indians, both of whom speak excellent English, declared they were enjoying their business trip to America. They commented on the Panhandle wind and said they liked American coffee.

New Interest Shown In Hospital Project

MCLEAN —(Special)—The Board of Directors for the proposed community hospital here have been given the "go ahead" for the project during a meeting of townspeople Tuesday night.

The project had been halted temporarily, when it was thought that interest had lagged. An added interest is shown in the endeavor.

Mayor Harris King told the assemblage the foundation for the structure would be completed this week, and the POW building, formerly used as nurse quarters at the POW camp, would probably be moved into town and set up by this weekend.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE WITH MAJOR HOOPLE

OUT OUR WAY BY J. R. WILLIAMS

Silver Foxes Are Kitten's Playmates

NEWHALL, Calif.—(AP)—A black kitten is sharing her quarters under the U. S. Forest Service look-out tower at Warm Springs with three silver foxes.

District Ranger Earl Madrey says his kitten became very lonely, some with no playmate and disappeared deep into the forest for several days. Eventually, she reappeared with the three foxes in tow.

"They stayed on and have become so domesticated they eat out of the rangers' hands," Madrey says.

"In all my experience I've never seen anything like this," Madrey reports. "The foxes try to play with the kitten, but they don't understand her antics and are unsure whether she's playing or fighting when she snaps and spits at them."

"Two of the foxes are very young and the other apparently is the grandfather, although I won't go on record."

"They get along well, eat out of the same dishes and the kitten seems to feel she had made a good deal in getting her new playmates."

Texas Today

By JACK RUTLEDGE Associated Press Staff

Of three things you can always be certain—Texans like Texas. No matter where you go you'll find a Texan. They're more certain than tides. Some places don't have tides.

Take Caribbean cruises. Ship officials say they never sail without a handful of Texans aboard. On a cruise that left New Orleans Oct. 18 the passenger list included Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Bone of Sherman, Texas; Miss Helen L. Poe of Dallas; Col. and Mrs. Hoxie Thompson of Trinity; Miss Gladys Walter of Dallas; Miss Mary Walker of Dallas; and Mr. and Mrs. John Majors of Dallas.

There were a lot of Texans among the crew members, too. The chief purser was Murray F. Paige of Fort Worth.

Texans have fun, no matter what happens. Mr. Bone, for example, had trouble buying a fly swatter in Havana. He couldn't talk Spanish, and his hissing, flying and swatting motions caused willing but puzzled clerks to bring out everything in stock except fly swatters. He finally got the swatter. And he has a lot of fun telling the story.

Another Texan brought back the story of the store owner who kept a pet rattlesnake as a watchdog. The snake, the store owner said seriously, would grab a robber by the leg, then stick its tail out the window and rattle until a policeman was attracted by the noise and investigated.

The ship's captain (Captain Walter W. Koch) matched Texans' tall tales with this one: A Cuban was milking his cow in a barn. A plane accidentally dropped a bomb which exploded over the barn, blowing it and the cow to bits.

"What happened to the man?" one woman asked.

"He was left holding the bag," said the captain.

Mrs. Clara Wohl, who operates the Siboney Shop in mid-town Havana, said there were more Texans than Americans in Cuba during the war. Men and women in uniform made her place headquarters, and she still cherishes pictures and letters of scores of Texans who call her "mom."

And believe it or not, Texans on board our ship did less bragging than persons from other states!

check was exhibited in Court. Under examination by the state he said she had wanted this money to buy part interest in a cafe.

Bertha Lee Bostick on various occasions told him that Bostick had threatened him, Crawford said. "Kelley had said he was going to drive up to me some day and start shooting without saying a word," he added. He said the threat had been communicated to him 12 or 15 times.

It was brought out in questioning that Crawford and Bostick had had a fight in front of a Cuyler St. cafe later. Crawford stated Bostick had "come trotting" up to me and said, "I'm going to beat hell out of you." He said Bostick had hit him and started choking him, that he had hit Bostick a time or two. He said then Bostick headed to a car, saying "he would get me." He said he saw Bostick no more until the day of the shooting.

He said he had been at Bertha Lee Bostick's home July 1 on her invitation, that he saw no sign of Bostick's clothes or belongings there at the time. He said, "She had told me at Dumas that I could come down there any time I wanted to," and that at Dumas they had talked of getting remarried.

He said on the day of the shooting he had started to Erick, Okla. from Dumas. His son, William Glenn Crawford, wanted to go by to see his mother, he stated. He said they drove up to the front of the house shortly after 3 o'clock the afternoon of July 4. He said he honked and Mattie Lee Wright, Mrs. Bostick's daughter, came out to the car. He said he told her to ask her mother to come out. Mattie Lee then came out and said, "Mother said come on in," he stated.

District Attorney Tom Braly, opening up in a violent cross examination of Crawford, warned him about the oath he took on the stand. Defense attorneys objected to Braly's verbal attack. The objection was sustained and the DA smoothed on with a repetition of the earlier defense questioning until he came to the incident of the shooting.

"Jessie Crawford, isn't it a fact you went to that house with the intentions of shooting both Leonard and Bertha Bostick?" "No sir, I did not."

"You have been telling about the threats communicated to you. How many times did you threaten the Bosticks?"

"I never made any threats," Crawford answered.

Crawford admitted he had been carrying the .32 pistol since his fight with Bostick in May of 1947 in front of the Royal Cafe.

Braly pressed for specific dates and number of times Crawford had threats communicated to him. He was unable to specify any dates except April 5 when he made out the $380 check.

At 10:30 the jury was sent out of the court room while attorneys argued the admissibility of threats used by the defense. The objections were sustained by Judge Lewis M. Goodrich.

The prosecution gave up the witness shortly after the objection was sustained.

Two character witnesses were called by Attorney J. F. Spivey. One, J. S. Holland, who had helped to post Crawford's bond and operator of the Last Side of English history, as two great-grandchildren of Queen Victoria were linked in matrimony.

Princess Elizabeth and Philip officially are considered to be third cousins, although the distant blood relationship admittedly is complicated in the line of descent. Actually they stand between second and third cousinship—a "relatively remote" blood kinship which has linked many partners in royal marriage in Europe in the past.

The ceremony was packed with the ancient symbolism of a thousand years of English history. It lightened, somewhat, the hearts of the Princess' millions of future subjects, adding a splash of color and romance to a national life which has become progressively more dreary since the legions of Hitler first threatened Britain.

Throughout the country, in every town and village and farmhouse and upon the high seas, millions of loyal Britons rejoiced, not thinking of the ceremony as something to be shared only by those comparative few who witnessed it.

Radio and television provided a personal link between the Princess and many of her people. Scotland Yard estimated the crowds jamming the route of the wedding procession at more than 1,000,000 people. They assembled hours before the ceremonies began, waiting patiently in a chill, intermittent drizzle.

Service Station in Borger, testified that he knew Bertha Bostick and saw her twice after she was married to Bostick. He said she had been to see Crawford in Dumas and told him (Holland) that Bostick was jealous and she was afraid he was going to kill Jessie.

With the conclusion of a short character sketch by George Quible, the defense rested. The state also rested.

Charges on both sides and by the court were being prepared. Court was adjourned until 2:30 this afternoon when final arguments will be given by counsel and the case goes to the jury.

This, one of the shortest murder trials in the history of Gray County opened at 10 a. m. Monday with the calling of the special veniremen. The jury selection took two full days of court proceedings. The first witness, Mattie Lee Wright, nine-year-old daughter of Bertha Bostick, took the stand at 9 a. m. yesterday. The state rested its case at 2:26 p. m. and the defense rested less than a day later.

The state rested its case at 2:26 yesterday afternoon with the recall of little Mattie Lee Wright to the stand in an attempt to get more detailed account of the actual shots at the time they were fired.

Showing no fear, Mattie Lee repeated her earlier testimony of seeing "Daddy" get up off the bed and shot in the top of his head."

District Attorney Tom Braly asked her to describe exactly what happened to her mother. "Mother got off the bed and knelt down to help daddy."

"Did Jessie hold the pistol close to your mother's head?" "Yes."

Attorney Aaron Sturgeon asked the child if she actually saw a pistol in Crawford's hand and if she actually saw her mother shot. Mattie Lee answered, she wasn't sure what he had in his hand and added, "but I saw him shoot 'em with something."

Earlier former Deputy Sheriff C. M. Tucker created some laughter when he tried to remember the clothing worn by the victims. Tucker was asked by the prosecuting attorney how Bostick was dressed and said "in khakis."

And Mrs. Bostick?

"Well I guess in some sort of pajamas or something. Durned if I remember what she had on anymore."

"Was it a bathing suit?" "Well, yes it might have been something like that."

Later Tucker dropped a bombshell into the testimony when told to tell what he did at the scene of the shooting.

going to put off discussion of those points until we get rid of the others," he added. "I don't want to bar them absolutely, but I don't want to bind myself that they will be considered during the special session."

The Economic committee is scheduled to start hearings tomorrow afternoon on what Taft considers the less controversial phases of Mr. Truman's program designed to check living costs. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, the first witness, is expected to discuss parts of the plan which call for (1) inducing the marketing of animals and livestock at grain-saving weights and (2) development of agricultural conservation practices.

Meyers "asked me to send him this letter to carry out the story we had agreed to tell."

Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich.) wanted to know whether LaMarre and his wife, who was formerly Meyers' secretary, had borrowed money from Meyers.

"That is absolutely false," LaMarre said. "I never at any time borrowed any such sums from General Meyers."

Amen wanted to know whether LaMarre, assuming the truth of the testimony he has given at the public hearings, regards himself as equally responsible with Meyers.

"I couldn't answer that question," LaMarre said.

Amen asked what committee attorneys had said to LaMarre about responsibility or immunity. "Counsel has told me nothing about immunity," he said.

The witness, in response to other questions, labelled as "absolutely false" the contention that he had paid for decorating the general's various living quarters "out of appreciation for what the general had done for him."

He also denied that he had requested purchase of a $2,995 blue Cadillac automobile or had used the car frequently over a long period of time.

He said he never at any time drove the car and rode in it only when Meyers had asked him to visit his wife who had just given birth to twins.

The committee has received testimony that Aviation Electric paid the bills for a $10,000 decorating job on Meyers' Washington apartment and a $3,600 one on his Patterson Field (Dayton) quarters.

Elliott Proclaimed National Loop's Most Valuable Player

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bob Elliott, heavy hitting third baseman of the Boston Braves, today was proclaimed the National League's most valuable player for 1947 by a vote of a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Association.

becoming the first member of a permanent winning team to gain that distinction since Ernie Lombardi of the fourth-place Cincinnati Reds won the award in 1938. Elliott also had the honor of becoming the first baseman in either league to win the title since its inception in 1911.

The 31-year-old native of San Francisco polled a total of 205 votes in the balloting for the Kenesaw Mountain Landis Memorial award to win by a comfortable margin over Ernie Blackwell, right-handed Cincinnati ace pitcher to no-run, no-hit fame, who had 175 points.

Johnny Mize, slugging first baseman of the New York Giants, was third with 144 and Catcher Bruce Edwards led a sizeable delegation of champion Brooklyn Dodgers with 140 points.

Twenty-six players figured in the voting, an unusually low total, and net received at least one first-place vote.

Jackie Robinson, Negro rookie first baseman of the Dodgers, finished fifth; Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner was sixth; Lerry Jansen, freshman pitcher for the Giants, seventh; Pee Wee Reese, Dodger short stop, eighth. Tied for ninth and tenth were Harry Walker, fleet outfielder for the Phillies, and Whitey Kurowski, third baseman for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Stan Musial of the Cardinals who breezed in an easy winner in the 1946 poll, could do no better than 20th.

Last year Elliott received only one vote to just get in under honorable mention.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK—(AP)—Since this is the season when the football "experts" acquire their biggest headaches trying to pick All-America, all-sectional, all-conference and all-mostanything teams, this department will start the ball rolling by naming the guys who were best-of-the-day we saw 'em team. It's one sure way of picking an "all" team without comebacks—we don't say which games we saw...the line: ends, Swiacki, Columbia and Brodnax, Georgia Tech; tackles, Bryant, Army, and Shimsak, Navy; guards, Suhey, Penn State, and Steffy, Army center, Scott, Navy.

Week's Worst
Indiana's Cook-Miller publicity team checks in with a note that the Hoosiers may come up with a backfield of Nick, Dick, Chick and Tick-Nick Sebek, Dick De-mick, Chick Jwade and Huh (tick-tock) McKinnis. This backfield, they add, might click. And, if you want our opinion of the gag, you'll have to put an "N" in the word and spoil the rhyme.

Pigskin Pickins

Harvard vs. Yale

Pappenheim and Parker Re-Matched For Tonight's Main Wrestling Event

A rematch of the thrilling, best two out of three match between Sailor Parker of Jacksonville, Mississippi and Jack Pappenheim of a month ago is on tap for the feature bout of Promoter Vic Burnett's Sportatorium card tonight, which gets underway at 8 o'clock.

The previous bout, which was held opening night at the local wrestling arena, was awarded to Pappenheim when Referee Ken Mayne disqualified Parker in the third and final fall because of unnecessary roughness. The rough and tough Sailor from Jacksonville has won his other two appearances in the Pampa ring since opening night.

Tonight's battle between the Sailor and Pappenheim will be a one-fall event with a 90 minute time limit, and the winner will receive all of the purse.

The first event will bring a newcomer to the Pampa ring in the person of Al Szasz, the Hungarian-American wrestling ace from Gerald, Missouri. Szasz will tangle with another Missouri grappler, the bewildered Stock Nelson, of Blue Eye, Missouri, who made his first appearance in the local ring last week.

Dad's Club Honors White Deer Team

WHITE DEER (Special)—Presentation of gifts to the coaches and announcement of the letterman were the highlights of a banquet given by the Dads Club in honor of the Bucks' football squad, Monday evening, in the Skellytown cafeteria.

Also present were the members of the Pop Squad, mothers of the football boys, and others who had had some part in the season's football program.

J. P. Weatherall, president of the Dads Club, was master of ceremonies. After the singing of the school song, led by Dolores Kaika, and the invocation by E. T. Ross, Fred Mullinga, principal of the high school, welcomed the guests.

Frank Godsoe, Jr., sportswriter for the Amarillo News-Globe, presented a small trophy to Johnnie Harvey, in recognition of his being selected as a "Player of the week."

Coach Tyson Cox, Assistant Coach Dennis Lowery, and Ray West made brief talks. Coach Cox announced the seventeen lettermen: Gilbert Dickens, Ethel Ross, James Weatherall, Roy Lee West, Harold Staats, Vernon Thurman, Johnnie Harvey, Teddy Harvey, Tommy Thornburg, Jon Scott, Doyle Meadows, Wendell Jordan, Harry Buchanan, Ronnie Buchanan, Willis Chapman, G. B. Crawford, and Hoyt Taylor.

Following the talks, E. W. Meadows presented each of the coaches with a fishing rod as a gift of the Dads Club; and Gilbert Dickens and James Weatherall, representing the football squad, presented Coach Cox with a handsome set of matched luggage, and Coach Lowery with a gift certificate for a suit of clothes.

Lujack Throws Fine Fast Ball, But Graham Has Better Curve--Hoopie

By MAJOR AMOS E. HOOPLE
Father of Finesse

Egad! I am able to offer only two upsets this week, gentle readers.

Most notable of these is UCLA to defeat the mighty Trojans of Southern California.

In some circles a victory by Dartmouth over Princeton would be regarded as amazing, but this would not surprise me a bit. In fact, I foresee a triumph for the Indians over the Tigers. I'm talking about football, you understand.

I do not write often about the professionals, preferring to keep my column simon-pure. But I would like to see a game between the champions of the two big leagues, and the winner play Notre Dame for the world title.

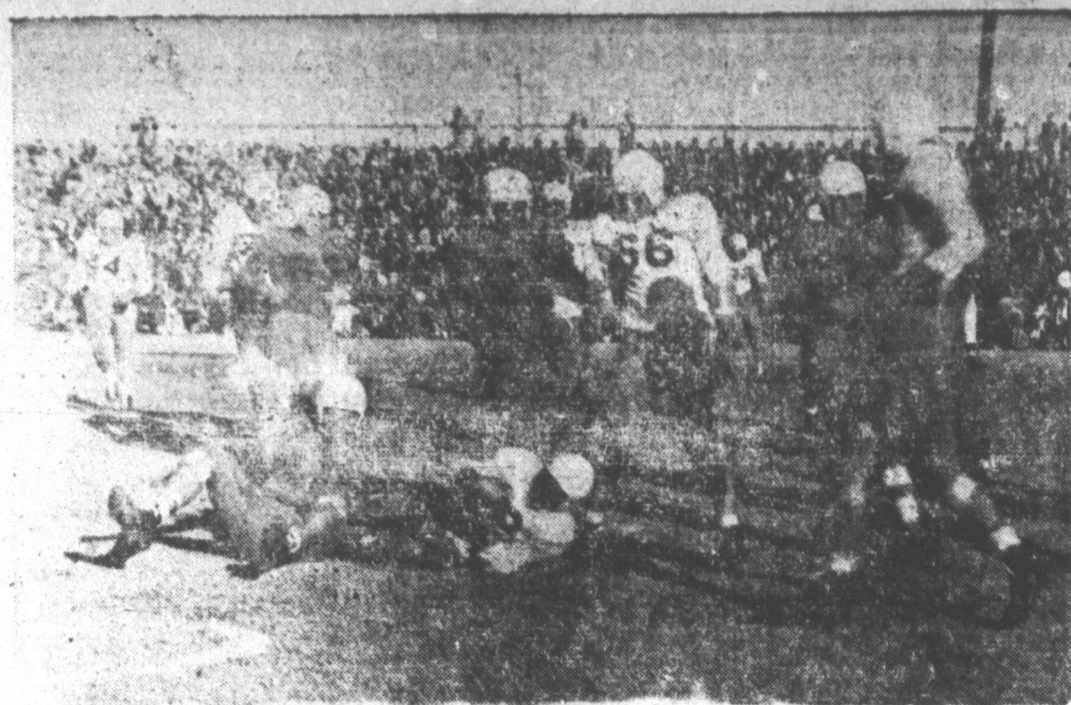

This brings up the possibility of Otto Graham in a pitchers' battle with Johnny Lujack, which I'd enjoy while Lujack is still in school. The Browns might have an edge in catchers in Lavelli and Speedie. Lujack throws a fine fast ball, but I believe Graham has the better curve.

So much for now-on to the Hoopie Ratings for Nov. 22:

Yale 34, Harvard 0
Dartmouth 20, Princeton 14
Boston U. 13, Colgate 13
Holy Cross 27, Fordham 6
Lehigh 20, Lafayette 13.

Gorillas Begin Basketball Drills
Coach John Bond started Gorilla basketball practice yesterday afternoon with approximately 25 boys trying out for the squad.

Several boys were put down from Coach Dick Livingston's Harvester team, but most of the squad consisted of boys coming up from last year's Reeper Squad, with a few men left over from last year's Gorilla team.

Indians Announce Trade of Pitcher And Outfielder

and outfielder-first baseman Walt Juchnick. The Indians also gave the Browns a "substantial amount" of cash in the deal, Veck said.

Juchnick, 30-year-old left-handed thrower and batter, was transferred from his usual center field post last season to play first base for the Browns. He achieved a .262 batting average this year.

Muncie, 31-year-old right-hander, nursed a sore arm most of last season and had his best year with St. Louis in 1945 when he won 13 and lost 4.

FAIR ENOUGH...

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — In the general public discussion of Communists in the movie industry, someone on our side of the question, that is to say, some right-minded, 100 percent American, made the mistake of proposing the repeal of one of the laws of nature. This patriot recalled movies in which the American banker had been portrayed as a bleak and bloodless rascal who celebrated Christmas by turning the widow and her little brood out into the snow. This was held to be a wicked slander on a noble school of Americans, intended to undermine confidence in the holy edifice of liberty and so forth.

Actually, this is just a familiar working of the fatal attraction of the plug hat for the snowball. The same theme, written and acted by men and women of respectable motives, has been applauded for generations. Horatio Alger was no revisionist but, in Jed the Poor-House Boy and many repetitions of the same artless tale, he made the banker so downright mean that you were likely to lay down the book and hiss out loud.

In the fargon of the ideologues, the plug hat and the snowball are artistic symbols of social contrast. They are easy to draw, there is nothing wrong with either, and I hope no jumpy irresponsible on our side is going to hop up now and say there ought to be a law declaring the snowball to be un-American.

But we take some things from some people without a blink. When others say them, we get the things themselves that we resent as the nasty way some red-necked. And it isn't so much people say them. If a fellow American remarks that we certainly did give the Indians an awful deal, we shrug and wish it were not so. But if a captured Nazi on trial before Americans should say that we set Hitler the example of conquest, repudiation of treaties and genocide—the new gullah for extermination of a race—we want to hang him for impudence and are glad of a more plausible excuse.

So it is not merely that the movie industry has treated harshly our bankers, our Congress, our publishers and our economic system. We could write and act worse criticisms of ourselves. The objection lies against the fact that certain persons are selected to write and produce and act so many shows, with never a film to balance things by showing the freedom and general abundance of American life under our system. We have become a head of guardhouse lawyers since the thirties, given to arguing Constitutional questions in the Stork and our rights in unemployment in the Little Gem, but we remain, fundamentally, an impulsive and instinctive lot.

If we can't find a law to make somebody do or quit doing something, we find a way to make him nevertheless. A thing that can't be done by law may still be done under law. We have been known to condemn the boycott as an un-American weapon which can't discriminate between the guilty and the blameless and many of our right-minded Americans came out against it in the twenties when the modern Ku Klux Klan was shunning Catholics, Jews and Negroes as such. Since then, many of the same Americans themselves have used the boycott to suppress pinions which they oppose. And now, our side can do the same to those Hollywood producers who say they can't get rid of Communists because they can't be sure that the Communists in question aren't sincere liberals. They got rid of a lot of actresses for personal revenge, and many individuals in the writing trade and incidental branches of

The industry have suddenly run into their iron curtain of economic persecution inflicted for the most obscure reasons. But when the subject is a writer, musician, or actor who has notoriously run with Communists, attended their meetings, signed their manifestos and given to their collections, the industry becomes fastidious and, for its delicate conscience, demands a degree of proof that cannot be produced. After all, the United States Supreme Court held that Harry Bridges was no Communist after the learned referee and the attorney-general had held that he was and two federal courts had refused to upset that considered judgment. So actually the gall to say that it will condemn the moving picture industry has time to employ all Communists who deny that they are or merely refuse to answer. In favoring these, the industry confers on them their only importance, fire them, and they wither and vanish. They no longer strut but sink. They can't donate to Henry Wallace's collection in the bowl as so many of them did last spring. And, inasmuch as the hiring of all such is done by choice, individually and not from a union hall or seniority list, the right not to renew contracts is too plain to be doubted even by a jury. There are only a few hundred of them altogether. If they all should perish in some wreck, that would be dramatic, but the industry and civilization would carry on. Just drop them, one by one, over a year or two until they are all gone, and the change will not be noticeable.

There are no real writers among them. The best can be replaced out of newspaper shops where most of them came from anyway. The actors are not artists but mere personalities with facial trademarks. Normally, they come and they go. What harm then, to hurry them a little? (Copyright, 1947.)

Prettiness Rules Elizabeth's Gown Of Traditional Style in Ivory Satin

This is Princess Elizabeth's wedding gown, shown in an official sketch made by one of Designer Hartnell's staff. The hand-embroidered design on the skirt, inspired by Botticelli paintings, is in crystal and pearls.

By MARIE DAERR
NEA Special Correspondent
LONDON — (NEA) — Picture book prettiness won out over the "new look" as a royal headdress for the altar at Westminster Abbey.

Like many another bride in many another country, Princess Elizabeth said no to extreme fashion lines and picked a wedding gown of traditional style.

The Norman Hartnell gown which Buckingham Palace had labeled top-secret until the wedding day itself, was cut on princess lines, from ivory satin. It had a full court train, 15 feet long, of transparent ivory silk tulle. A tulle veil was held by a tiara of pearls and diamonds.

The sweetheart neckline of the fitted bodice was delicately embroidered with seed pearls and crystal in a floral design. The sleeves were long and tight. At the pointed waistline was a grille of pearl-embroidered star flowers.

The skirt was gracefully swirling, hand-embroidered in a design inspired by Botticelli paintings and representing garlands of white York roses, of raised pearls, entwined with wheat ears minutely embroidered in crystals and coat-shaped pearls. Alternating with the garlands of roses and wheat and forming a border around the hem of the skirt were bands of orange blossoms and star flowers, applied on transparent tulle, with seed pearls and crystal embroidery.

The train, attached to the shoulders, was edged with graduated satin flowers, ending in a deep border. Here, again, the motif was star flowers, roses and crystal embroideries.

For Elizabeth's all-white wedding, eight bridesmaids wore ivory silk tulle gowns that were inspired by the pictures of Winterhalter, Tuxen and Sir George Hayter, in Buckingham Palace.

Tight-fitting bodices of gathered tulle were shirred down the center front. The shoulders were swathed in a deep fichu of pearl dotted tulle bordered with delicate applied sprays of white satin syringas.

Victorian skirts of billowing applications, embroidered to repeat the effect of the bridal train, white tulle had scattered flower headresses were garlanded tiaras of wheat-ears and roses.

The eight bridesmaids were Princess Margaret Rose, Princess Alexandra of Kent, Lady Caroline Montagu-Douglas-Scott, Lady Mary Cambridge, Lady Elizabeth Lambart, the Hon. Pamela Mountbatten, the Hon. Margaret Elphinstone and Miss Diana Bowes-Lyon.

For both bride and bridesmaids, toeless and heel-less choice. Elizabeth, breaking precedent by wearing high heels, marched down the aisle in slippers draped over the foot and finished off with a silver buckle studded with small pearls.

Her maids were shod in ankle-strap sandals of narrow interlaced satin strips, piped in silver kid, with pearl-studded buckles.
The two little pages, Prince William of Gloucester and Prince Michael of Kent, wore Royal

Stuart kilts, in which scarlet predominated.
Elizabeth's wedding gown will be sent to the Victoria and Albert Museum, where Britons who did not have a chance to see it at the wedding may gaze on it to their hearts' content.

For her going-away ensemble, Elizabeth again scorned extremes. She chose a simple, straight dress of misty blue crepe, with a cross-over bodice draped to the left hip. A pleated panel is inset on the left side of the skirt.

Over the dress Elizabeth wore a velvet cloth traveling coat, in the same shade of blue. Cut with soft revers and rounded shoulders, it has inset bands across the front that are held with three buttons. The gently flared skirt is mid-calf length.

To complete her costume, Elizabeth chose a blue beret with feather pompon and mushroom-beige suede step-in pumps. Designed to give a high-front appearance, the closed-toe, closed-heel shoes have a short outside counter and front perforations. Again, Elizabeth chose high heels.

British Seamen Being Rescued

HALIFAX, N. S. — (AP) — The British freighter Empire MacCallum reported today she had begun taking aboard survivors of the shipwrecked freighter Langlecrag after the five-day ordeal of being marooned on leak Sacred Island, off the northern tip of Newfoundland.

The empire MacCallum, one of four ships which plunged through heavy seas toward the island on rescue missions, reported she arrived at midnight, and stood by until daylight to take aboard the crewmen. The Langlecrag also was a British ship.

For five days the seamen—variously estimated at from 30 to 44 in number—were lashed by icy rain and buffeted by giant breakers while their radio operator sent out frantic messages that time was running out. One man was lost when the ship smashed on the shore reefs and broke in two early Saturday.

History Is Still Repeating Itself

The following editorial is reprinted from the Wichita Beacon: "Lack of understanding on the part of men who are running our government appears to be as much to blame for the chaotic condition of prices and supply as any other one factor."

"Remember back in the days of the depression when the government was recommending plowing under crops because there were in too abundant supply? Those same experts today are trying to 'plow under' markets because the demand is too great. 'It doesn't take a student of economics to tell our government that prices are governed almost entirely by supply and demand—regardless of the controls placed on either as an artificial stimulus for increased or decreased prices."

"The plain truth is that our supply is high, but our demand is greater because of the export policies which the country has followed. Suddenly there has been a drastic cut in export allocations of grain and flour in an effort to retard the upward trend of prices."

"Looking back over the years, it isn't difficult to see that history repeats itself. Wheat after the Civil war sold for $2.85; after the Russo-Turkish war it soared to $2.45; it went to $1.85 after the Spanish-American war, and to $3.50 after the first World War."

"Regardless of who is running America, the first truth which must be realized is the old fundamental economic law of supply and demand. It has never failed. It never will, regardless of subsidies, grants, doles, price-pegging or other artificial stimuli. When the supply is good, prices tend to be lower. When supply is short, prices are high (provided there is no price control, in which case the short supply usually finds better customers in the black market—at higher prices)."

"We are experiencing high wheat prices because 40 percent of the crop is going out of the country. We are experiencing high meat prices for the same reason. However, we are witnessing high corn prices because the crop this year was 800,000,000 bushels short because of weather factors. In any instance, the available home supply is not sufficient to meet the demand."

Army Sells 3R's To Isolated Pupils

FANKFURT—(AP)—The U. S. Army is preparing to bring school instruction to the homes of American children who live in German communities having American populations too small to support an American school.

Home instruction courses will be offered at a charge of $5 per semester—only a small fraction of the cost," Army headquarters announced. Parents or privately employed supervisors can conduct the courses.

American schools are operated in any community where there are 10 or more American pupils.

BUBBLE GUM THAT WHISTLES by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON —(NEA)—A great big guess as to what life will be like in 1960 has just been made by Kiplinger's Magazine, published here. It is based primarily on a voluminous Twentieth Century Fund study called "America's Needs and Resources." But the Kiplinger experts have doctored up this high-powered economic treatise with some original ideas of their own. Such as the one that bubble gum of 1960 will also whistle. Do you think you can stand it?

Right at the beginning, the predictions are based on two big ifs—if the world can avoid war and if it can avert another depression. If it can't do both—well, the book says a lot of people just won't be around to compare notes.

Even taking the optimistic view that war and depression can be averted, the experts predict Europe still won't be settled down. At home there will still be strikes and lockouts and racism, sickness, poverty and crime. Human nature and the economic machinery will still have kinks.

U. S. population will be about 125 million, roughly 10 percent more than today. Sixty million people will be at work, but there will always be some three million temporarily unemployed. The work week will be 35 hours. In general, people will be making and doing about the same things they make and do today.

HOW BOTH HALVES WILL LIVE

The living standard will be about a third higher than it was in 1940, but, to show what this means, examples are given for three typical families, with incomes of $100, $200 and $1000 a month.

The $12,000-a-year family will live in a custom-built house in the suburbs, and may commute by helicopter to city limits. Mrs. Twelve Thousand will still go in for antiques, but her husband will have a remote-control lawnmower and a car that runs on the porch. At the other end of the scale, the $1800-a-year family will still have tough going. It will live in a 20-year-old house, with a second-hand radio-phonograph and mechanical refrigerator, but still no car.

The average guy will be making $3194 a year, including a little profit-sharing and a guaranteed annual wage. The house the average family lives in should be better than today's.

Garbage cans will be fewer because more house disposal units will be in service. Insects will be fewer. Home industries will be more automatic. Maids will be scarcer, but house-cleaning corporations will send a squad around once a week to scrub floors and wash windows. In spite of gadget, housewives will still work longer hours than husbands.

People will still be eating too much starch and sugar, not enough green and yellow vegetables. There will still be just as much indigestion, and patent medicines will still be sold, but dentists will have television on the ceiling. There won't be enough doctors, but prepaid health

Victory Of De Gaulle and State Department

By MELCHIOR PALY, Ph.D.

Leaving for Europe a junket of Congressmen received from the State Department a "background report" dated August 21—just two months before the latest French municipal elections, from which De Gaulle emerged as the leading statesman of France. The report contained the following paragraph about M. De Gaulle:

"This frankly totalitarian concept have irrevocably alienated organized labor, both Communist and non-Communist. Consequently his only firm adherents are the discredited men of the Right, and his chances of a successful comeback are considered slight so long as constitutional government prevails in France."

Urban — The Democrats, in short, are making a deliberate play for the vast urban vote in cities like Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Jersey City, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle and Spokane.

It is obvious that if they can maintain their grip on this important element of the electorate, and run fairly well in smaller industrial centers, they should carry the states in which these municipalities lie.

If their program enables them to capture such electorally important commonwealths as Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and California, they have no worries. For these states, with the 120-plus electoral votes of the Solid South and the border states, would give them many more than the magic 268 necessary for victory.

FOREIGN — The McGrath-Sullivan confidence that they will cop the votes of numerous racial minorities is grounded on the Administration's general foreign policy. Although the Republicans have supported this program with some reservations, the hard political reality is that President Truman and Secretary Marshall have been the individuals who have sponsored it.

Both parties, for instance, pledged a Jewish homeland and unlimited immigration to Palestine in 1944, but it is President Truman, through his United Nations representatives, who is now practicing what the politicians promised and preached. The problem has come to a head during his tenancy of the White House.

Even if the effort should fail because of Arab and Russian recalcitrancy, it is believed at Democratic national headquarters that Mr. Truman's Palestine role will not hurt him next year in many metropolitan centers, especially New York.

COINCIDE — His general anti-Russian stand should also profit him politically with the peoples whose homelands and kin have been victimized by Moscow—the Scandinavians, the Germans, the Poles, the Italians, the Balkan bloc.

The Marshall Plan, with its provision for aid to the Dutch, insurance and clinics for group practice will be coming on, Memorial hospitals will still be crowded.

CARS WITH TELEVISION AND ICE-CUBES — There will be more federal aid for education, but it will still be difficult for many people to see things even half-way straight. There will be 45 million cars on the road, instead of today's 30-odd million. New cars will have television, telephone, one tray of ice-cubes and ideoselect toilets. Tires and upholstery will last as long as the car. The traffic problem will be terrific, but a few cities will have eliminated rush hour by making people park cars in suburbs and use high-speed urban transit systems.

Private flying will still not have caught on. Airplane fares will be three cents a mile. The 1947 "train of tomorrow" will be on a branchline milk run in Georgia. Atomic energy will just be coming into general use. A rocket will have been shot to the moon.

The clothes of all three income groups will look pretty much alike, though they differ in quality. Cotton and wool will still be competing with synthetics. Some clothes will have electric welded seams, instead of being sewed.

Prices will be a little lower than in 1947 but won't be back to prewar levels. In the 1960's the wholesalers and retailers will finally get together and begin to shave prices to stop the recession from getting too serious.

That is something you simply must wait to see.

two main and inter-related objectives: to pacify France by overcooking the communist sabotage, and to make the Marshall Plan work. In other words, he is against Russia and for America. What is wrong with that? It certainly does not help either our prestige or our cause to have picture the man, who is now to carry out our program, as a fascist. For purely personal reasons—a heritage of the Rooseveltian personalized policies, such as preferring the arch-reactionary Petain to De Gaulle—official Washington dislikes the haughty General. It would prefer the soft-spoken Leon Blum. That is a matter of taste, of course, but there is another aspect to it.

What Washington would like is a socialist regime to continue in France as in England, at least some kind of New Deal with a radical—but not bolshevik—tinge. De Gaulle is something of a noddescript in economic matters, which may be a sign of shrewd opportunism or of plain ignorance. What is apparent is that he is not a socialist, nor even New Dealer. They are just the plain common folks of France, the kind that is not organized in trade unions, communist or otherwise.

That brings me back to the State Department "background report" quoted at the outset. Reading it carefully discloses an ignorance about France that could not be tolerated from any student of foreign affairs. To the State Department, apparently, there are only two kinds of Frenchmen: the members of organized labor, and the discredited men of the Right.

Obviously, Washington does not know that French organized labor even with their families does not constitute more than 25% of the total population. If that much, it does not know that more than 40% of the French live on the farm, and that another 30% consists of teachers, artists, professionals, and other unorganized middle class people. What would you think of a "foreign expert" calling everybody but organized labor and the members of the "discredited men of the Right" a "reactionary"? In France, the middle class constitutes an even higher percentage of the population than in this country.

Of course, there is a serious threat that De Gaulle may become a dictator, but not because he is a "totalitarian," a charge for which there is no basis in his past record of words or deeds. He would be a dictator if the communists should try a general strike or some other revolutionary monkey-business. As a matter of fact, it is on account of this communist threat that the French voters are streaming to his support, with the result that the mere shadow of a "man on horseback" may restrain the communists from doing what might be a dictatorship in France.

The real problem is not whether De Gaulle is a would-be dictator. The political problem in France today is: What if the General comes out with similar results in the next national elections (by May, at the latest) without acquiring the absolute majority in Parliament? With some 40% of the vote, his party alone cannot form a stable cabinet. Having no experience in parliamentary tactics, and lacking the subtlety of the compromise-wise routines, he is most unpopular with the party bosses.

On the domestic as on the international scene, he is a distinct head-on to work. The socialist hate him profoundly; the President of the Republic, Monsieur Auriol (a socialist) threatens to resign if De Gaulle becomes prime minister. Of course, collaboration with the communists is out of the question, which leaves the Popular Republicans the party of Bidault, as the only groups with which to form a solid majority. However, Bidault was originally a De Gaulle, and ousted his master, who now retaliated by ousting Bidault's party. Could the latter return to his former chief, and on what terms? The middle-of-the-road (so-called radical socialist) J. Delbois, who was just becoming Vice Premier in the reorganized Remadier cabinet, told this writer a short time ago while in Chicago: "Two enemies can make peace and get together again. But two former lovers who separated in hatred can never reconcile."

In other words, unless De Gaulle gets 50% of the vote in the coming national election, it may be extremely difficult for him, and more so for anyone else, to form a working cabinet that is so badly needed at this most critical time.

Versailles Peace Conference.

RESENTMENT — Messrs. McGrath and Sullivan pin their greatest hopes, however, on signs that the Nation's organized and unorganized workers will vote Democratic in resentment over enactment of the Hartley-Taft Act. Fact is that they have received such assurances from top men in the A. F. of L. and G. I. O., and the November 4 results, in numerous municipal elections heartened them that labor has a "mad" on the G. O. P.

The third great asset, as Democratic strategists view the present scene, is the colored vote, which is a distinct political potential in such states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, especially in a close race. They can and have tipped over a state when the margin was tight.

RIGHTS — Mr. Truman asked permanent establishment of a Fair Employment Practice Commission and failed in his request only because of Southern members' opposition. He has also favored an anti-poll tax and anti-lynching law. The report of his Civil Rights Committee will be included in the party platform, provided Southern delegates agree.

Cross-Bred Brahman Gaining Popularity

If you were to take a trip through the coastal area of the Gulf of Mexico, or southern Texas, you might think part of the time that you were in some strange land, with the Brahman and cross-bred Brahman cattle running the range. However, this would not be the case, for Santa Gertrudis Brangus, Beefmasters and other Brahman crosses on the native cows are becoming common in the area.

As a matter of fact, unless you are quite observing, some of these strains have been so well developed that you may fail to notice they are a new type in the South. These cattle with one-fourth to one-half blood of a Brahman breed and the remainder from a domestic breed have demonstrated unusual ability to produce beef from grass in the hot, insect-infested area of this region.

It is believed that their greatest value will be to convert grass into beef in the areas adjacent to the Gulf of Mexico, rather than to produce grain-finished beef in the feedlots of the Midwest. However, it is felt that the story of their growth and the apparent part they are playing in the beef cattle industry of the South will be of interest to cattlemen everywhere.—American Brahman Journal

To Become Better Citizens Through Home Improvement Is Aim of County Home Clubs

By Mrs. Chas. Warminski
Hello, friends of Pampa and vicinity, this is Mrs. Chas. Warminski, reporting for the Bell Home Demonstration Club.

The aim of home demonstration workers is "To become Better Citizens Through Home Improvement." The goals for 1947 for all home demonstration members were to provide good lights for each member of the family, to improve the appearance of the home, to provide good beds and ample bedding, to plan and prepare wholesome meals and to clean and improve yards. Although all of the club members have strived towards these goals there has been some outstanding work done by some of the demonstrators.

One of the outstanding projects being completed this fall is that of the yard demonstrator Mrs. Fred Haiduk, who has worked on her yard project for the past three years, as landscaping a yard and planting trees and shrubs according to plan cannot be completed in one year.

Mrs. Haiduk became yard demonstrator for Bell club in 1945. The county home demonstration agent referred her to E. W. Johnson, associated silviculturist at Southern Great Plains Field Station at Woodward, Okla. In starting her project Mrs. Haiduk received wholehearted cooperation and help from her husband. In fact, Mr. Haiduk, who has been in the landscaping business for the past three years, has been helping her with the plan and the execution of the plan. Mrs. Haiduk drew a sketch of their entire place, showing location of buildings and giving dimensions of the house, yard and out buildings that they had at that time. They drew a proposed plan and listed new out buildings that would be built later to aid Mr. Johnson in landscaping the farm.

The finished landscaped blueprints show that the pasture fence had to be moved, to make room for windbreak plantings, the ground had to be leveled, several trees had to be dug out, yard fence had to be moved so that shrubs could be planted. The yard area was to be increased to 80 by 120 feet, or more than double to original size.

All of this has been accomplished. The landscaped area which includes the house, yard and out buildings covers five acres. The windbreak of trees and shrubs are located so as to form a screen for the outbuildings and machinery. To date they have planted 292 trees and 128 shrubs in the windbreaks. Some of the varieties are Cherysune juniper, Colorado juniper, redbud, flowering willow, kasagar tamriss, small leaved elm and Chinese elm. They have 78 windbreak replacements due to weak and poorly rooted plants. There are 46 varieties of trees. The plans include planting a windbreak completely around as soon as coral, old garage and barn are torn down. This will include 178 additional trees and probably will be completed this winter.

The yard fence and gates were made by Mr. Haiduk from pipes that he welded together. The house is centrally located in the yard. The trees, shrubs and Bermuda grass were planted in February of 1946. The yard contains the shrubs and trees that are best adapted to this area and include Pfitzer juniper, red cedar, spirea, coralberry, winterberry, yonimus, rose of Sharon, fortune fontanesia winter honeysuckle, cotoneaster, dwarf privet, Persian lilac, sweet mockorange, crepe myrtle, Colorado juniper, Lilac chaste tree, Russian olive, Chinese elm, small leaved elm, smooth honey locust, waukegan juniper and amur privet.

Two large trees in front of the house will be moved but were left for the present as they will furnish shade until they are large enough. The cellar is located on the northeast of the house, but due to its poor construction a barbeque pit will be made from it and a new storm and storage cellar built just outside the yard fence.

Everything has been planned according to the landscape plan and planting suggestion of Mr. Johnson with the exception of three Chinese elms and a smooth honey locust which were planted to form shade for a children's play ground.

In working on their project, Mr. and Mrs. Haiduk have had a lot of experience for instance: the plants did much better on the east side of the house. The west side had some blue weeds that had to be killed. The spirea behind the cellar hasn't done as well as it should, probably because there was once a coal pile out there. They have found that fall or February planting is the best, also that seedlings develop a faster and stronger root system. The Yard Improvement Project has proved successful for Mr. and Mrs. Haiduk because they first made their plans and then followed them. They started with five trees, and when the project is completed they will have about 725 trees and shrubs.

Anyone desiring to improve and beautify their yards would be interested in seeing what Mr. and Mrs. Haiduk have accomplished. They live 16 miles south of Pampa, close to the Grandview school and enjoy showing their yard.

Methods of Hay Chopping in Use Are Analyzed

The inventive genius of the American farmer is being put to the test by the problem of handling and storing chopped hay, with the result that a number of curious contraptions are appearing on the national farm scene.

From Ohio clear across the Corn Belt to the Pecos Valley in New Mexico crop raisers, agricultural engineers, agronomists, and animal husbandry men are beating their brains for the mechanical means to mow and stow the favored type of fodder.

A nationwide survey conducted for Country Gentleman collected some of the best thoughts on the subject. They appear in the November issue under the title "Labor-saving with Chopped Hay."

Printed in the opinion poll were ideas suggested by Henry A. Smith of Madison County, Ohio; E. J. Kaderly and R. L. Preston, of Green County, Wisconsin; Dr. G. Bohstedt, of the Wisconsin agricultural station; Dr. H. J. Barre, head of the Agricultural Engineering Department at Purdue; and Professor J. H. Bamser, head of the same department at Illinois; Bob Mather, of Union County, Ohio; E. L. Barger and Donald M. Kinch, agricultural engineers at the Iowa station; Dr. W. B. Nevins, dairy husbandry man at Illinois; J. W. Duffee and H. D. Bruhn, of the Wisconsin agricultural station; Clyde Monson, dairy farmer of Webster County, Iowa; and Max Drake, of Seneca County, Ohio.

The problem, as the magazine defines it, is to mechanize one of the hay chopping methods now in use, incorporating in it the best features of all other methods. "As the farmer usually speaks of chopped hay, he means hay chopped in the fields," says the magazine. "Some, however, bring it to the barn with a buck rake or wagon and chop it there with stationary silage cutter and blower. An increasing number are only partially curing it in the field, and finish the job in the mow."

Chopping the hay into the preferred four to six inch lengths has been solved by Kaderly, Dr. Barre and Professor Bamser, who experimented with removing some of the blades from the chopper. Others suggested a change in the machine's gear ratio to permit hay to feed through faster.

It was the next problem with chopped hay. On his Wisconsin farm Bob Preston uses a short, high-sided model with a canvas top to catch all the high-flying fodder that is blown into it. Along the same line others suggest a vehicle with a wire netting mounted on top of the sides to hold the hay and permit circulation of air when a man must work inside to unload it.

Unloading the wagon is a problem in itself. On the Kaderly farm an endless chain apron built into the bottom of the wagon and run off an electric motor does the job. E. L. Barger and Donald M. Kinch, the Iowa agricultural engineers, have developed a vehicle with a false endgate which literally rakes the hay out of the carrier. It was a double endgate which opens outward, and the additional false endgate. Before loading, the extra endgate is placed at the front of the bed. It is connected by two steel cables to a winch at the rear end. To unload, the winch is turned and the cables slowly pull the hay into the hopper of a blower. In another device a canvas sheet spread in the bottom of a wagon before loading can also be drawn out by winch so that the hay is dumped. This plan was suggested by Wisconsin agricultural engineers.

Getting the hay into the barn is the last link in the operational chain yet to be solved and that too has prompted some novel ideas, according to the article. Objecting to the widely used practice of blowing it in, Doctor Bohstedt, of Wisconsin, says:

"My idea is that the ideal way to make quality chopped hay is to do away with blowing and use an elevator both in the fields and the barn."

That same thought caused Dr. W. B. Nevins, dairy husbandry man at Illinois, to develop an elevator that is described in the article. Slatted snow fencing is placed in the bottom of the wagon and the hay loaded on top of these. At the barn the ends of the fence are joined and the hay raised to the mow as in a net. Pictures of this operation are among the photographs illustrating the article. Others show Lloyd Bishop, of Delaware County, Ohio, operating a wagon

Concluding the account of its findings Country Gentleman says: "Agronomists view chopped hay as a means whereby farmers can adopt a system of grassland farming for the future. It will build up the soil, prevent erosion, and make better, high-protein hay possible."
