Walesa Blocks Strikes After Grim Warning

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Independent labor movement leader Lech Walesa today won a no-strike pledge by threatening to resign and Deputy Prime Minister Mieczslaw Rakowski warned the union it was risking Soviet intervention, Solidarity sources said.

Polish TV said the nation's fate may be at stake.

Solidarity union chapters around the country today heeded an urgent appeal by the union leadership not to strike or carry out protests at least pending a "life or death" emergency meeting later today of the union's national coordinating commission.

A Solidarity spokesman said the union had received confirmation from all over the country that no strikes would be conducted.

The Solidarity sources said the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Poland had been extended at least two days, but that could not be confirmed.

In the Soviet capital, Radio Moscow in a special broadcast accused Solidarity's leadership of wanting to become a "political opposition and setting up dual power in Poland."

The Soviet news agency Tass warned Solidarity today to stay out of the political arena, including conducting strikes of a political nature.

In a dispatch from Warsaw on the meeting of the Polish Communist Party Politburo, Tass said Solidarity oversteps its bounds in carrying out "activities of a political character when it illegally assumes the constitutional functions of elected and executive bodies. All this creates an anarchy."

It said the strikes now planned in Poland "are of a purely political character. It is the duty of all party members to oppose resolutely these strikes."

Solidarity sources said Walesa threatened to resign unless the union's chapters promised not to stage wildcat strikes prior to a meeting later today of the union's leadership in Bydgodszcz, where a police beating of union members provoked the crisis.

The sources said the Warsaw chapter called off a two-hour warning strike today and the union received Telex confirmation from all over the country that no strikes would be staged.

But four regional Solidarity branches issued statements claiming the national leadership, headed by Walesa, was "too mild" and "too liberal" in the face of the unbending stance the government has taken in the current crisis.

Government negotiators, meeting with Solidarity, refused to condemn the police beating despite the threat of a mass strike and the present strike alert by the 10 million-member union. Instead, the ruling Politburo accused Solidarity of creating "anarchy."

Solidarity sources quoted Rakowski as telling the union bloodshed was unavoidable, and they said he raised the specter of Soviet intervention unless the situation returned to calm.

A member of the union's national leadership, Marian Jurczyk, said "life or death" decisions would be taken at today's meeting. "The situation is very tense. We don't want bloodshed."

A Polish TV commentator on a special broadcast Saturday night said "We are crossing the last frontier. We still have 36 hours to think over that last step, which this time the fate of our country really depends on."

Polish TV indicated Sunday night that the Alliance 81 maneuvers in and around Poland may have ended, with a TV commentator saying "the exercises took place for one week."

But Solidarity sources said the exercises were extended at least two days. This could not be confirmed, as military officials did not say how long the exercises were scheduled to last.

Polish TV and the East German ADN news service reported Polish Premier and Defense Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski met Warsaw Pact commander Marshal Viktor Kulikov and the defense ministers of East Germany and Czechoslovakia in southwest Poland Sunday.

The maneuvers were the largest since the year after the Soviet-led 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Court Action Backs States

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court ruled today that state "statutory rape" laws do not discriminate against men, and that states may require parents be notified when a daughter seeks an abortion.

By a 5-4 vote, the justices upheld a California law that makes it a crime for men or boys to have sexual intercourse with consenting females not yet 18.

The court's majority said the law does not represent a form of unconstitutional sex discrimination just because women and girls cannot be charged with the same crime for having sex with boys not yet 18.

In a separate, 6-3 decision, the high court upheld a Utah law which requires parental notification in abortion cases.

The law was challengd by a girl identified only as "HL," who sought an abortion in 1978 at the age of 15. Within the first three months of pregnancy, she challenged the law in court because she did not want her parents to be told, but Utah courts upheld the law. Her lawyer said she left Utah and had the abortion elsewhere.

The high court's opinion by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the court in the past had ruled it was unconstitutional for states to legislate "a blanket, unreviewable power of parents to veto their daughter's abortion," but he said a simple requirement of parental notification "does not violate the constitutional rights of an immature, dependent minor."

In a case involving Texas, the Supreme Court, voting 8-1, today refused to reinstate the murder conviction of longtime Death Row inmate Jerry Lane Jurek.

The justices left intact a ruling that struck down Jurek's 1974 conviction in the Aug. 17, 1973, murder of 10-year-old Wendy Adams in Cuero.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last summer ordered Texas authorities to conduct a new trial for Jurek. The appeals court ruled that one of his confessions to police had been unlawfully obtained.

Jurek remains imprisoned pending a second trial.

The nation's highest court used Jurek's case and two others in reaching its landmark 1976 decision that capital punishment can be a constitutional penalty for convicted murderers.

That ruling upheld the constitutionality of Texas' death penalty law.

Jurek subsequently asked a federal trial judge to rule that his trial resulted in several violations of his constitutional rights. The judge denied the so-called habeas corpus request, but the 5th Circuit court granted it.

The appeals court said Jurek must be

Sheriff Bares Plan To Hike Jail Staff

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Sheriff D.L. "Sonny" Keesee today advised county commissioners that his manpower management plan for the new $4.8 million jail calls for the addition of 29 staff members.

County auditor Dale Gallimore estimated that salaries and benefits for those personnel additions would cost the county around $471,000 extra in a year's time.

In a sometimes tense meeting this morning, Keesee noted that he was not asking at this time for the commissioners court to approve or disapprove any additional manpower.

The purpose of today's meeting, Keesee said, was to apprise commissioners "of certain deficiencies in the presently allocated positions for personnel in the jail budget." Keesee also said he wanted to present commissioners "with a management plan we feel can keep federal court action against the county to a minimum.

"It is the position of this office that we do not wish to burden the taxpayers of our county with one cent of unnecessary cost," Keesee said. "But at the same time, those taxpayers must be made aware that pinch-penny budgeting, severe supervisory shortages, lack of adequate manpower and no preventive maintenance were the conditions which led to the federal court decisions that ultimately forced the county to construct this $4.8 million facility."

County Judge Rod Shaw took strong issue with some of Keesee's statements. According to Shaw, commissioners were not forced by the federal court to build the new jail.

"We were contemplating building the jail before we were brought into federal court," Shaw emphasized.

Commissioner Coy Biggs also took issue with Keesee's management plan. Biggs noted that the high cost for personnel kept the county from continuing to use its old jail facility.

Keesee outlined 29 positions which he said are not provided for in the budget commissioners approved for the jail division. These include an assistant jail administrator, classification officers, environmental officers and men to operate food service, laundry and the inmate bank and comissary.

Also at today's meeting was Joe Slater, inspector for the Texas Commission on Jail Standards. He noted that the TCJS does not set personnel numbers for jails. "We just look at the end result," Slater explained.

To determine what would be reasonable staffing for the new jail, Commissioner Alton Brazell requested Slater to send the court a report on the size, prisoner loads, staffing and cost of operating other similar jails around the state.

Commissioners asked County Architect Arnold Maeker, who designed the new jail, to study Keesee's plan and were to resume discussion of the sheriff's request in this afternoon's session.

Solar Plant Operating

CROSBYTON (Special) — Water heated by the sun bubbled into steam and powered a turbine this morning to produce the first commercial electricity generated by the Crosbyton Solar Power Project.

The $6-million project, the first to produce electricity from solar steam for commercial use, was to be inaugurated last Friday. Overcast skies delayed the ceremony, however, and the power was finally turned on at 11:30 a.m. today.

Sponsored by Texas Tech University, the prototype system will generate about 10 kilowatts of electricity and provide electricity for 15 homes here.

Auto Import Parley Gets Under Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito, opening high-level talks with U.S. officials, is hoping to keep a large foothold in the giant American market for his country's automakers as the Reagan administration considers seeking a curb on Japanese cars.

The auto import issue was expected to dominate Ito's meetings today with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and special trade representative William Brock. Ito meets Tuesday with President Reagan.

Before leaving Japan, Ito expressed sympathy for the plight of the U.S. auto industry, which lost $4.2 billion last year, and said he favors voluntary restraints by Japanese automakers. He added, however, that the principle of free trade must be maintained.

In Tokyo today, Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa said Japan would take no action on the "considerable sacrifices" involved in limiting imports until it hears "what Washington has to say."

West Germany's economics minister, Otto Graf Lambsdorff, warned over the weekend that blocking imports of foreign cars could touch off a trade war among the allied countries. His country, which has only 3.2 percent of the U.S. car market compared with 23 percent for Japan, is the only major European nation not already limiting Japanese cars.

As the auto issue comes to a head, economists and dealers are warning that import curbs could boost all car prices.

An administration task force which studied the question estimated that prices of Japanese cars would rise by $300 to $460, with an unknown effect on prices of U.S. makes. Japanese cars generally are cheaper than comparable U.S. models, by up to $200.

Ito's talks here are not be restricted to the auto issue. He also is expected to be questioned about Japan's defense spending.

The Carter administration complained loudly last December about Japan's proposed $10 billion defense budget for fiscal 1981. At the time, Japanese officials said that was the most Japan could afford.

Audit Puts Hospital In Black

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

After presenting a preliminary audit report showing Lubbock General Hospital's 1980 operations $2.8 million to the good, auditors for the county teaching hospital had some cautionary predictions for the coming year in view of Reagan administration cutbacks.

Auditor Gene Neiswander of the accounting firm of Ernst & Whinney told hospital district board members today the hospital's financial turn-around since last year has been "very remarkable," in particular noting that patient service revenues and collection rates at the hospital had increased greatly.

Neiswander also pointed out that tax collections in November and December were up $600,000 to $700,000 from the same period last year, contributing to the improved financial picture.

But Neiswander board told members to beware of Reagan plans to slash Medicaid reimbursements to hospitals. He also remarked that although Reagan has

U.S. Aid To El Salvador Assailed By Protesters

By The Associated Press

Scattered groups of Americans fasted, marched and prayed for an end to violence in El Salvador as churches and groups in several cities prepared to mark the anniversary of the assassination of Salvadoran Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero.

Churches planned memorial services, while groups opposed to U.S. support for El Salvador's military-civilian junta were organizing more rallies and vigils in memory of the cleric slain a year ago Tuesday.

But in San Salvador, a priest criticized calls by American clergymen for a halt in military aid.

"I am not going to discuss the theory of whether it is right or wrong to send guns to El Salvador," the Rev. Roberto Amilcar Torruella said. "What I want to do is to denounce the conduct of these persons, who without ever having been in this country, without knowing the roots of our problems ... take options that are so tremendous they can affect the destiny of our country."

On March 24, 1980, an alleged right-wing terrorist fired one bullet through Romero's heart, killing the 62-year-old archbishop instantly as he celebrated Mass in a San Salvador hospital chapel.

In Hartford, Conn., about 30 people, protesting what they say is U.S.government support for "right-wing terror squads" in El Salvador, fasted 24 hours in memory of Romero.

The Hartford Coalition for Justice in El Salvador sponsored Sunday's fast, which spokesmen said was staged in support of a three-day hunger strike being conducted by about 150 other organizations opposing U.S. aid to El Salvador.

Meanwhile, the prospect of U.S. involvement in El Salvador sparked the Boston area's largest protest demonstration since the Vietnam war.

Several thousand demonstrators opposed to U.S. support of the government in El Salvador marched from Copley Square to Boston Common on Saturday, chanting in Spanish and English, "No draft, no war. U.S. out of El Salvador."

The march and rally were sponsored by several groups, including the Boston Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador. Organizers said the protests were held to build support for a march on the Pentagon, scheduled for May 3.

Romero was also being remembered by the U.S. Catholic Conference, representing all U.S. Roman Catholic bishops, and organizations representing orders of nuns and priests. They asked for observance of Romero's assassination and denounced U.S. military assistance to the Central American nation.

New York's Cardinal Terence Cooke said a memorial Mass would be held today at St. Patrick's Cathedral, and sent a letter to the 405 parishes of the archdiocese urging special services for Romero and "all the blood of all the martyrs."

Two Maryknoll nuns, Ita Ford and Maura Clarke, Ursuline Sister Dorothy Kazel and lay worker Jean Donovan were slain in December, allegedly by right-wing terrorists.

In Washington, D.C., St. Matthew's Cathedral was planning to hold a memorial service Tuesday.

Romero had gained a world-wide reputation as an outspoken critic of El Salvador's government, an advocate for the country's poor and a forceful opponent of U.S. intervention in the country's political affairs. He was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979.

"They can kill me," he once said, "but they cannot silence the voice of justice."

The New York Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador is sponsoring a weekend rally for Romero, with Carlos Federico Paredes, a former member of Salvador's military-civilian junta, as keynote speaker. A commemorative march down New York's fashionable Fifth Avenue was to follow.

An El Salvadoran representative to the United Nations said Sunday that his government will try to strengthen its position by initiating "a cultural battle" to counter the military struggle being waged against leftist guerillas.

NOT STRONG ENOUGH FOR COMBAT MARINES

General Limits Role Of Women

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Most women are not strong enough — physically or emotionally — for combat roles, says the brigadier general who helps supervise training of female recruits at the Marine Corps' East Coast boot camp.

"I would not want to see my daughters or female friends of mine in a combat situation if I could avoid it," Brig. Gen. William Weise said as he watched female recruits receive defensive combat training.

"I do not feel the average woman is equipped physically or emotionally to handle it."

Despite his statements, Weise, 52, defended the familiarization training in defensive combat techniques the Corps began giving female recruits last week.

"Basically, we are teaching them how to live in the field," he said as he watched women rappel down a 46-foot tower in front of him.

"On the modern battlefield, the enemy can land a force in your rear, and you have to know how to defend yourself."

Weise served as a mortar section leader and rifle platoon commander in the closing days of the Korean War. He won the Navy Cross, the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit with Combat "V" and three Purple Hearts during a 1967 tour in Vietnam as a battalion commander.

Still an athletic man who jogs almost 6 miles daily, Weise said he was speaking primarily of women in ground units who could be caught in combat.

"They are capable under certain circumstances, like defending their homeland, but not generally as a professional organization," he said.

Females in combat would face considerable physical problems, said Weise.

"The average woman is 105 pounds. If you put 35 pounds of combat gear on her plus her helmet (6 pounds) and her weapons (a 6-pound M-16 rifle and 14-ounce grenades), it is a great physical strain," he said.

Ernie Banks Releases Single

CHICAGO (AP) — For years, he sang in the sanctuary of locker rooms after a big win on the diamond. Now Mr. Cub is going to sing on the record.

Ernie Banks, the baseball Hall of Famer who clouted 512 home runs in a 19-year career as first baseman and shortstop for the Chicago Cubs, has batted in a 45 rpm single, "Teamwork." Banks' baritone is backed by the Chicago Bear and Chicago Bull cheerleaders and a horn section, guitar, keyboards and drums.

The disc will be released on Wanna Records next month to coincide with the opening of the major-league baseball season. But the record — which Banks says will be his only one — is not an ode to the good life in baseball or his beloved Cubbies.

Cronkite Blows Into Florida

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Walter Cronkite literally blew into town, spinning tales of days spent in submarines and flight simulators since leaving the CBS Evening News two weeks ago.

Cronkite, his son Chip, a friend and two crewmen had been sailing from Miami to Charleston, S.C., in his 42-foot ketch Wintje when gale winds interrupted his No. 1 avocation late last week.

In an interview, Cronkite said he has been preparing the weekly news magazine show, "Walter Cronkite's Universe" for its June debut.

"I was just out in California doing a 900-foot dive in a two-man sub, looking at bioluminescence — 90 percent of the creatures in the water manufacture their own light," he said.

Activist Plans To Run For Office

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Roman Catholic civil rights activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, still on crutches after being shot five times in a Jan. 16 assassination attempt, says she will run again for a seat in Parliament.

Mrs. McAliskey announced Saturday that she would run as an independent April 9. The by-election follows the death last month of legislator Frank Zaguire, also a Catholic, who sat as an independent.

Mrs. McAliskey said she was returning to politics to focus world attention on a hunger strike at Northern Ireland's Maze Prison. Convicted IRA guerrillas there are demanding political-prisoner status.

In 1969, the 21-year-old activist became the youngest member elected to the British Parliament in 200 years and sat as an independent for the mid-Ulster constituency until her defeat in a February 1974 general election.

She is married to schoolteacher Michael McAliskey and is the mother of three children.

Stunt Causes Commotion

FONDA, N.Y. (AP) — An unsuspecting pilot pulled a stunt that sent volunteers in airplanes and a helicopter scampering to join state and local police in a search for a plane that never really crashed, authorities say.

The Lighter Side Of The News

The Montgomery County Sheriff's Department swung into action Sunday after an afternoon telephone call from two women who said they saw a light plane crash in the town of Florida, N.Y., near here.

The sheriff's department dispatched four cruisers, put the fire department on standby and notified the state police, who sent out their own search team.

About two hours later, a resident reported seeing an airplane take off from near the search area and the sheriff's department called off the search.

Deputy Maryanne Murphy said the unknown pilot apparently was performing a stunt maneuver known as stall-out training and cut his plane's engine, landed successfully, then took off again — oblivious to the commotion he left behind.

National Enquirer Libel Suit Nears Completion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Minus three of the original jurors and three of the original co-defendants, Carol Burnett's $10 million libel suit against the National Enquirer was drawing to a close today as another celebrity's legal attack on the tabloid was beginning.

Miss Burnett's final testimony and both sides' closing arguments were expected today. Deliberations are likely to begin Tuesday after jurors receive instructions from the judge.

Meanwhile, baseball Hall-of-Famer Bob Feller has filed a $3 million libel suit in Cleveland against the Lantana, Fla., publication, charging it defamed him in an April issue.

The item that triggered the complaint referred to Feller as "a shameless moocher" who is "living on handouts," the suit contends.

Another celebrity recently challenged the Enquirer to sue him. Drawing applause from the studio audience, Johnny Carson denounced the publication on Tuesday night's "Tonight Show" for an item that his marriage was heading for divorce.

Two jurors hearing the Burnett case were sent home after they disclosed that they knew about Carson's televised attack on the Enquirer. The panel, which originally numbered 12 panelists and two alternates, shrank to 11 during the trial. One juror was dismissed for undisclosed reasons.

On Friday, Judge Peter Smith removed three co-defendants, leaving the Enquirer as sole defendant in Miss Burnett's suit. He dismissed accusations against editor Iain Calder, gossip columnist Steve Tinney and a distributor, ARA Services Inc.

Miss Burnett contends the Enquirer article about her "boisterous" behavior in a Washington, D.C., restaurant implied she was a drunk, distressing her because she had alcoholic parents and has worked to combat the disease.

Enquirer attorney William Masterson sought to show that Miss Burnett's career was not harmed by the report, that the tabloid retracted the item and that the item did not say she was drunk.

The March 2, 1976, item accused Miss Burnett of arguing with then-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. It said she "traipsed around the place offering everyone a bite of her dessert," spilled wine on another diner and "started giggling instead of apologizing."

Miss Burnett's lawyer, Ed Bronson, said he wouldn't ask for the full $10 million the entertainer sought in damages against the Enquirer. But he refused to specify the amount he planned to seek instead.

Other celebrities who have charged that the Enquirer printed untrue stories about them include:

—Actress Shirley Jones and her husband, Marty Ingels, who filed a $20 million suit over a full-page Enquirer story saying that Ingels' misbehavior was driving his wife to drink.

—Actor Rory Calhoun, who filed a $10 million suit in connection with a story reporting that the actor has cancer.

Mayor Byrne's Plan Praised, Criticized

CHICAGO (AP) — Some officials were praising Mayor Jane Byrne for her courage and others were accusing her of grandstanding after Chicago's chief executive officer announced she will start looking for an apartment Tuesday in a crime-plagued public housing project.

The mayor and her husband and political adviser, Jay McMullen, are moving from their luxury Gold Coast apartment to Cabrini Green, where 10 people have been killed in the past two months. Mrs. Byrne said she will move to "prove that those who live decently can live there."

She said she will stay "as long as it takes to clean it up."

Cabrini Green is a 70-acre complex on the Near North Side. Police blame the violence on armed gangs warring for control of drug trafficking and prostitution, and routinely shaking down tenants for "protection" money.

A 28-member task force was appointed last week to patrol the 81 high-rise buildings and rowhouses. A number of other measures, such as assigning off-duty police officers to work as security guards, are under consideration.

Mrs. Byrne, saying that where the mayor goes "there are city services galore," said in her announcement Saturday that after the project is "cleaned up" she will make surprise visits to the area to ensure continued security.

The mayor is guarded by several police officers who accompany her wherever she goes and protect her home.

Some project residents were heartened by their prospective new neighbor. Frances Stephens, who lives at Cabrini with her six children, said: "Everybody's kind of excited about the mayor's coming. They think maybe there'll be less trouble and maybe they'll find out who's causing the problems and evict them."

She added, "I would love it if she moved into my building, so she can see some of the things that go on here, the garbage on the ramps and the broken elevators and the stopped-up incinerators with the rats climbing up out of them."

Unemployed Fighter Dies After Bout

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Ronald Miller's relatives tried to talk the 5-foot-7 former Marine out of competing in a local fight, but he was unemployed and desperate for the $500 prize money.

As Miller zeroed in on his third opponent in the Toughman Championship fight, his nose started to bleed and he got sick to his stomach. Early Sunday, after emergency surgery, the 23-year-old man died of brain hemorrhaging, authorities said.

"I tried to talk him out of it. But he was desperate. He needed the $500. He thought he had a chance, but he was too small," said Miller's father, Robert.

Miller, who weighed 169 pounds, started three bouts at the Johnstown War Memorial, where preliminary competition was held in the Third Annual Toughman Championship. The title fight, scheduled for October in Pontiac, Mich., has a top prize of $50,000.

Miller knocked out one opponent Friday night and his first opponent Saturday.

"The audience went crazy over him. They gave him a complete standing ovation," said Robert Law, Miller's uncle.

Miller had been seeing double and had been dizzy after the first bout Saturday. Yet he started the second.

"The big man who was running it said to my brother, 'You have five minutes.' My brother said, 'I'm too tired. How about giving me 10 minutes?'" Robert Jr. said.

Miller then was knocked down several times, and when his nose began to bleed, the referee called the bout. When the fighter threw up, a doctor in the audience said Miller should be hospitalized.

Ford Delivers Reagan's Reassurances To Deng

PEKING (AP) — Former President Ford met with China's most powerful leader, Deng Xiaoping, today and said he delivered President Reagan's reassurance that he wants good relations between the United States and China to continue.

Ford told reporters he gave Deng, the vice chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, "the message President Reagan requested, one of very best wishes and one of reassurance of the continuing relationship between the United States and the People's Republic of China."

The former president said his talks with Deng and other Chinese officials had been "very, very enlightening, interesting and constructive."

Ford's visit to China is part of an 11-nation tour representing an American oil company during which he is delivering messages from Reagan to foreign leaders.

The ex-president and Deng met in the Great Hall of the People. During a brief opening exchange before reporters were escorted from the room, Deng recalled that when the two last met, in 1975, Ford said he wanted to normalize relations with China. That did not happen until December 1978, under Ford's successor, President Carter.

"It was a great pity that normalization of our relations was not carried out by you," Deng told Ford.

The two noted that the following year, they both were out of power — Ford because of an election defeat, Deng because he was purged by the radicals who got the upper hand after the death of Premier Chou En-lai.

"Unfortunately I was struck down by the Gang of Four, and I was out of office," Deng said.

Deng, who is 76, also told Ford he is hard of hearing in one ear, but "apart from my hearing, there is nothing wrong with me."

Ford met later with Premier Zhao Ziyang in the Pavillion of Purple Light in Chungnanhai, the walled compound where government and Communist Party leaders have their offices.

Mongolian, Russian Head For Rendezvous In Space

MOSCOW (AP) — A Mongolian cosmonaut and his Soviet commander were traveling through space today, on their way to join two other Soviets in the Salyut-6 space station.

Jugderdemidiyn Gurragcha, 33, and mission commander Vladimir Dzhanibekov, 38, rode into space Sunday aboard the Soyuz-39 capsule. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said they would link up with Salyut-6, which cosmonauts Vladimir Kovalyonok and Viktor Savinykh boarded March 13.

Gurragcha is the eighth foreign cosmonaut sent up in the Intercosmos series of flights for space travelers frher communist countries accompanied by Soviet cosmonauts. Those sent up earlier were from Cuba, Poland, East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, Vietnam and Czechoslovakia.

"I feel with great pride that my homeland, along with other socialist countries, is playing an active role in the exploration of space," Gurragcha told Tass.

Mongolia, on the Sino-Soviet border, has been a strong supporter of Moscow in its ideological feud with Peking. It has received extensive economic aid from the Soviet bloc, and three divisions of Soviet soldiers are believed stationed inside its borders.

The selection of Gurragcha, son of a Mongolian shepherd, ahead of a Romanian also in training appeared to underscore the Kremlin's disapproval of the independence of Romanian leaders.

OPEC Trying To Improve Image Among Third World Countries

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is campaigning to improve its image among the Third World nations that find their development plans stymied by high oil prices.

OPEC accuses the Western media of poisoning world opinion by creating the image of a ruthless cartel grabbing billions of dollars and strangling the economies of rich and poor nations.

It has launched a campaign among Third World journalists to get across the message that OPEC is really an organization of developing countries that have money only temporarily, help their brethren in the developing world and aren't responsible for high oil prices.

Since November 1979, OPEC has sponsored five workshops for journalists — three at its headquarters in Vienna, one in Bali, Indonesia, last December and one this weekend in Nairobi. Another is planned for Latin America later this year

The organization of 13 oil-producing nations paid all expenses to bring more than 30 journalists to the Nairobi workshop from all over Africa and from African-oriented publications in Paris and London. Reporters from Western media were allowed to attend the opening and closing sessions but were barred from the workshop discussions.

"We in OPEC have the answers to the unjust charges which are leveled against us in certain hostile quarters," OPEC Secretary-General Rene G. Ortiz said as the conference closed. "But we need the understanding of the Third World media, here in Africa, in Latin America and in Asia, in putting those answers across to the peoples of the developing countries."

Topics covered in the three-day workshop were OPEC's birth, current activities and aid record as well as general energy issues.

When the meetings were over, many but not all of the journalists said they were persuaded by OPEC's presentation.

"Most Sierra Leoneans are of the opinion that OPEC is just one giant cartel whose sole business is raising oil prices," said Alhaji S.A. Kabba of the Daily Mail in Sierra Leone. "OPEC is aiding developing countries, particularly in Africa, in major projects, but unfortunately most of this aid has not been publicized."

Demos Hit Trail Again

MANY OF THOSE attending the recent meeting of the Democratic National Committee came away expressing optimism about the party's chances to sharply rebound in the 1982 congressional elections.

They reasoned that their problems at the polls last fall were largely caused by former President Carter and that his departure would enable them to make a strong showing next year.

Neutral observers consider this to be just so much wishful thinking.

They say that the Democrats could do even worse at the polls in 1982 than they did in 1980. The basis for this contention is the disorganization of the Democratic Party.

IN THE PAST two years, the National Republican Congressional Committee raised $27 million for House candidates. Its Democratic counterpart raised $1.6 million.

In the same period, the National Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee raised $20 million. Its Democratic counterpart raised $2 million.

Republican Party officials recently launched a massive effort to raise at least $40 million for the 1982 elections; $13.5 million of which is to go directly to House candidates and $8.5 million to Senate candidates.

In addition, the Republican Congressional Committee expects to spend $20 million this year to prepare for 1982.

Several million of those dollars are to go for television advertisements and for a staff to work with state legislatures in redrawing congressional districts to favor the conservatives.

In contrast, DNC Chairman Charles Manatt is having only limited success at convincing the three party campaign organizations to coordinate their fund-raising efforts for 1982.

THE HOUSE and Senate campaign committees as well as the Democratic National Committee had planned largely competitive fund-raising campaigns.

But the Democrats still have far lower fund-raising goals for 1982 than do the Republicans. For example, Manatt has expressed the hope that the House and Senate committees can each raise $3 million in large donations and perhaps a like amount in small donations from direct mail.

It now appears that the Democrats will give up two more Senate seats and perhaps even lose their majority in the House. "Their prospects will be especially bleak if President Reagan is thought to have done a good job during his first 1½ years in office," predicts Robert J. Wagman, a nationally syndicated political columnist.

Small wonder, then, that so many observers question whether the Democrats can hold onto what they have in 1982, notwithstanding all the brave talk of a comeback.

Inner Circle Open To Squares

WASHINGTON—Well, they were right. It worked.

Lo these many years, I have kept my shoulder to the wheel, my nose to the grindstone and my ear to the ground. And now, just six weeks or so shy of my fortieth birthday, I've achieved it: the American Dream!

(Actually, I haven't achieved it, my wife has. But, what the heck. I'm her husband and if she's achieved it, I've achieved it, right?)

The hands tremble as I read the letter, the personalized letter to "Ms. J. Lofton Jr.," from John Fairchild, publisher of "W"—"America's most glamorous journal," which is put out by the same Beautiful People who produce Women's Wear Daily, "the bible of fashion professionals" written for "fashion independents."

WOW! IMAGINE. "Celebrities get it! Society gets it! Grand duchesses get it! Great designers get it! People from San Francisco to St. Tropez get it!"

Inviting my wife to "join the inner circle of international Fashion Leaders," Fairchild writes:

"Our compliments, Ms. Lofton Jr. for being one of the best-dressed people in Laurel! For turning 7606 Woodruff Court into a home that sizzles with decorating excitement! For giving parties that are the talk of the whole state of Maryland! For getting the fun out of the fashionable living you do!"

Why my wife? you're probably asking, as I was. Because, Fairchild explains, "you're you." I love it!

As incredible as all this may seem—and I'm still 10 feet off the ground I don't mind admitting—it is not everything. No siree. With Fairchild's letter is a full-color print, 14 1/6 inches by 11 inches, on which "W" lists:

"WHAT'S IN! WHAT'S Out! What's Best! What's Next! What's You!" Among the "in people" are: Katharine Hepburn, Halston, Lady Diana Spencer, Estee Lauder, Luciano Pavarotti, Yves St. Laurent, Prince Charles and Jackie O.

But, this isn't the entire list of "in people." Guess whose name is typed right in the middle of these folks? You're gonna die. Yep—"Ms. J. Lofton Jr." Now you know why I'm 10 feet off the ground!

There's more, much more. Among the "in entertaining" activities are: ranch barbecues, formal dinner parties, late suppers and one-course dinners.

AMONG THE "IN travel destinations" are: Sumatra, Maine, Private Acapulco, Venice, and San Miguel de Allende. Is this list conclusive? Au contraire. Once more, personally typed, are the words: "any party at the Lofton house." I'm so happy I could scream!

"In gifts" for me include: a Donegal tweed cap, red underwear, a Porsche 928, a private seaplane, a Prince of Wales plaid suit and anything from L.L. Bean.

"In gifts" for the "Ms." include: a hair appointment at Jean-Louis David of Paris, a real ballgown with yards of ruffles, a new living room designed by Dennis and Lean of L.A.

To be sure, things are not going to be the same around the old neighborhood.

The guy next door isn't going to be happy with the seaplane in my front yard. And the wife will certainly attract annoying stares as she shops in the A & P wearing her ballgown with yards of ruffles.

As for the new living room designed by Dennis and Lean in L.A., I think I'll hold off on this. Our old couch is really quite comfortable and I like it—even though it looks like it was run over by the Budweiser team of Clydesdales.

BUT, ALL THESE qualms are nit-picking. These are sacrifices I'm willing to make. I've decided to take the plunge. These things are the price of being "in."

Excuse me, but I've got to answer the doorbell. I think it's Jackie O. Oh, hi, Jackie. How'd you know this was my house? Of course, the seaplane in the yard. How silly of me.

Now, I'd like you to meet my wife. She's the one wearing jeans and the Jean-Louis David hairdo. Forgive her appearance, but she just flew in from Paris...

Human Life Bill Alive, Well

WASHINGTON—Suddenly a remarkable prospect looms: legal abortion may be abolished—far earlier than even its most ardent foes dared hope just a few months ago.

Both houses of Congress are now pondering a Human Life Bill, sponsored in the Senate by the great Jesse Helms, R-N.C. and in the House jointly by Henry Hyde, R-Ill. and Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky.

Feminist lawyer and former Carter aide Sarah Weddington moans that the bill would be as effective as a constitutional amendment banning all abortions.

It wouldn't do that, and therein lies the catch. Ironically, the real threat to the bill may come from anti-abortionists who don't think it goes far enough.

THE NATIONAL RIGHT to Life Committee contends that the HLB would make it harder to pass an anti-abortion amendment without, however, imposing the categorical federal ban most abortion foes seek.

What would HLB do? In effect, it would return the issue to the states. How can that be, when it was precisely the laws of all 50 states the Supreme Court summarily threw out in 1973?

That's the intricate knot which has been brilliantly unraveled by a young Washington lawyer, Stephen Galebach, in a widely discussed article in the current Human Life Review.

Galebach gives careful attention to Justice Harry Blackmun's majority opinion in the 1973 "Roe vs. Wade." He doesn't denounce the decision, or urge the legislative branch to invite a constitutional showdown by simply overturning the Court's decision.

Instead he meets Blackmun's argument on its own ground. And his solution takes full account of the Court's own position.

Unlikely though it may seem, Galebach thinks the court has actually left room for an abortion ban. Blackmun held that the law had simply failed to establish the clear personhood of the unborn child.

HE CONCEDED THAT the question was beyond the Court's own competence. From all this he concluded that the Court could not support the application to the unborn of the 14th Amendment's guarantee against deprivation of life without due process of law.

Galebach treats this reasoning respectfully, but invokes other Court decisions recognizing Congress' competence in political areas where the Court iself must be restrained from deciding.

Even the Court has acknowledged that Congress must have the last word in certain matters of discretion.

One of these, says Galebach, must be a definition of human life. Under the 14th Amendment, Congress has power to enforce the equal protection provision by such legislation as it deems appropriate.

IT FOLLOWS THAT Congress can pronounce unborn human beings to be "persons" within the meaning of the 14th Amendment. It would be hard indeed for the Court then to deny the Congress what it has denied itself: the competence and discretion to provide a legal resolution to the question.

Congress has often made similar discretionary definitions. Does a military draft constitute "involuntary servitude?" Few deny Congress' authority to settle the matter, and it has always said No.

The Court has even held that Congress has the power to decide that "affirmative action" is not a form of illegal racial discrimination.

Galebach proposes that Congress, having said the unborn are entitled to state protection, turn the matter back to the states themselves. This is what the HLB would do—and this is why many pro-lifers, fearing that some states would fail to pass anti-abortion legislation, opposed the bill.

HLB supporters replied that the bill would not exclude a future amendment, and might in fact help hasten it along. HLB would establish a strong national position in favor of the unborn, while removing the issue from the jurisdiction of lower federal courts.

THEY ARE RIGHT. If murder laws can be left to the states, so can abortion laws. At least the presumption should be in favor of states' rights—especially considering that nearly all the states had strong anti-abortion laws before 1973.

If the Supreme Court wanted a constitutional showdown with Congress—and if it dared to provoke one—it could certainly have one. It would only have to strike down HLB.

But Galebach, by taking its arguments at face value, wisely allows the Court a graceful line of retreat, which it would be wise to take.

Jamaica Dances Out Of Limbo

KINGSTON, Jamaica—The U.S. airliner bound from Atlanta to Montego Bay was well out over the Caribbean when the captain's voice delivered its unexpected message.

It would be necessary to return to Miami, he said, because the air controller at Havana had refused to grant routine permission to fly over Cuba. As a result, we would have to refuel and take the much longer route to Jamaica via Haiti.

Such occasional harassment could be as random as the airline crew maintained, or it could have a darker meaning. For Jamaica, since last October, has moved near the top of Fidel Castro's hit list.

And the same events that have agitated the Cuban dictator have excited U.S. businesspeople, tourists and investors with the prospect that Jamaica, after eight years of socialist torpor, may be reviving spectacularly.

IF JAMAICA MAKES it, that will be big news not just for the 2 million people on this lush and verdant isle, but for all those interested in this hemisphere's security and prosperity.

Jamaica dominates the sealanes between Mexico and Cuba, and its enormous bauxite deposits make it the world's leading exporter of that vital aluminum ore.

Additionally its profusion of fertile hillsides, rushing waterfalls and beguiling beaches give it a plausible claim to being the most attractive large tropical island east of Hawaii.

Considering such natural assets, the decline of Jamaica under the left-wing government of Michael N. Manley appears even more appalling. Gross national product fell every single year from his election as prime minister in 1972 until his ouster in October.

THE AVERAGE JAMAICAN'S income dwindled by 25 percent. Instead of dealing rationally with the problems presented by rising world prices, Manley preferred to feud with the International Monetary Fund and to blame his woes on capitalistic hostility.

Castro, in contrast, was his hero. And, to what should have been the surprise of no one, tourism stagnated, agricultural production tumbled and mining of bauxite fell by fully a half. Unemployment approached 40 percent officially, and painfully more in reality.

That is not an economic syndrome susceptible to immediate cure, even by the wisest of new governments. But Prime Minister Edward P. G. Seaga is off to a remarkable start.

After his Jamaica Labor Party won 57 percent of the votes (and 95 percent of the parliamentary seats), he moved swiftly to cool Jamaica's relations with Cuba and to warm ties with Washington.

The U.S. response has, in turn, been extraordinary. President Reagan honored Seaga as his first official foreign visitor.

And the White House subsequently announced an ultra-blue-ribbon committee, headed by David Rockefeller and including an array of other top-rank executives, to encourage new private American investment in Jamaica.

Jamaica still has its problems, of course, even if Seaga succeeds. It remains a country with a startling proclivity for violence: more than 600 people were killed in 10 months leading to the 1980 election, and the newspapers routinely report fatal beatings administered to suspected goat stealers.

But the violence has been restricted primarily to such strictly Jamaican areas as the Kingston ghettos, sparing the tourist span of the north shore.

There, the limbo dancers, fire-eaters and reggae bands are playing to the biggest crowds in years. Slowly and carefully, and still with an eye back over their shoulders, the tourists—and Jamaica itself—are coming back.

Miners Can't See Light At The End Of Tunnel

NEW YORK—* For John Lippian, who worked for 40 years in the Ohio Valley coal fields, his security is a pension of $275 a month plus union medical insurance.

* For Elizabeth Turvey, whose husband died after 26 years in the mines, her security is a union medical card—and no widow's pension.

* For Helen Stefani, widow of a miner who was past retirement age but still working when he died, there is nothing—no pension, no medical benefits, nothing.

There are approximately 114,000 retired miners and their widows, such as these, whose subsistence itself depends in large measure on the contract negotiations now reaching a climax between the United Mine Workers Union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. And they are scared.

THEY ARE SCARED because they are crucially involved in the contract bargaining—but they have had no official representation at the negotiations.

They now say they had "blind faith" that they would be taken care of by the union, the companies and the government.

But because of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the union cannot force the coal operators to talk about benefits for pensioners and widows. Legally, the union can bargain only on behalf of working miners.

The same ruling applies to all contract negotiations, but it is particularly serious for retired miners because, unlike other retirees, they are covered by pension and health plans that are separate and distinct from the plans to which active miners belong.

THE TWO-PLAN agreement dates from 1974 contract negotiations, and the history of the split is complicated.

But the result is that a miner retiring now after 40 years gets a pension that is more than twice as large as John Lippian's and a miner's widow gets lifetime survivor's benefits.

Lippian, Turvey and Stefani denounce this as unfair. They say they (or their husbands) were the ones who built the union—working in much harder times and under far more difficult conditions.

But recognizing there is no one else to represent their interests, they have formed a group to help themselves, called "Coal Power."

The organization has held monthly meetings, appeared on local TV, met with individual congressional representatives and union officials to present their case.

THEIR VULNERABILITY has been highlighted by one of the stickiest issues in the contract talks.

In sum: The coal operators want to switch to company-by-company pension plans for active miners to replace the current industrywide pension plan.

A change of this sort would make it virtually impossible for the benefits of the pensioners to be increased, since many of them worked during their active years for companies which were shut down and disappeared years ago.

Charlotte Walters of Jacobsburg, Ohio, president of "Coal Power," is well aware that while demand for coal is up (and well may be in for an upsurge as the U.S. shifts its priorities among sources of energy), the union's share of production as of today is down.

AND RIGHT NOW, in these days, is when the contract between the miners and the companies is being decided.

Reconciling the need to keep the price of union coal competitive with the needs of retirees and widows for better benefits won't be easy, she admitted to my associate, Brooke Shearer.

But in contrast to most other unions, the United Mine Workers permits its retired members to vote in all union elections, and the voting power of the retired miners may make a big difference.

There is also an unusual sense of solidarity in the coal fields between old and young. Walters quotes one union member's view: "I hear the fear in my own mother's voice when she talks about the future. I can't easily forget that."

SALT Follow-Up Talks Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is postponing technical talks with the Soviet Union on living up to the original SALT treaty while taking a first step toward new negotiations on nuclear arms control in Europe.

Administration officials said Sunday night that the lack of someone to head the U.S. delegation and a need for further preparation necessitated a postponement of the SALT review, which had quietly been planned to begin Wednesday in Geneva.

"It's not a major, substantive development," said one official, who asked not to be identified. He explained that Robert Buchheim, who had headed the U.S. delegation, resigned at the end of the Carter administration and has yet to be replaced.

The two sides have met twice a year since former President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev signed the treaty at a Moscow summit in 1972, placing restrictions on some nuclear weapons systems.

The meetings provide a forum for exchanging complaints about possible violations and other technical information.

While this week's SALT session has been postponed, sources here said the Reagan administration has agreed to send a delegation to Brussels later this month to map plans with West European allies on reducing nuclear missiles in Europe.

U.S. officials are cautioning, however, that negotiations with the Soviets may not even start by the end of the year.

Heading the U.S. delegation to Brussels is Lawrence Eagleburger, acting assistant secretary of state for Europe, who concurs in the administration's hard line toward the Soviets.

Even while considering arms control talks, the administration is moving ahead with plans to deploy nuclear missiles aimed at the Soviet Union. The Pershing and cruise missiles will be deployed beginning in 1983 in Britain, West Germany and Italy.

The Soviets already have hundreds of SS20 nuclear missiles aimed at West Europe.

The NATO allies agreed to take the U.S. missiles in December 1979 only if the United States would push negotiations with the Soviets for a cutback on both sides.

Eagleburger's mission grows out of that promise and appeals from the Europeans who favor arms control talks.

Richard V. Allen, director of the National Security Council, said Saturday that "the only way to deal with the Soviet Union is from a strong position."

"Only if it is absolutely clear that we are in the process of fielding weapons of our own will they (the Soviets) agree to serious bargaining on their weapons," he told the Conservative Political Action Conference here.

Allen also said he was distressed to see "outright pacifist sentiments" being expressed in Western Europe. He cited as an example a recent split in the British Labor Party over basing nuclear weapons in Europe.

Reagan's South Africa Policy Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A perceived Reagan administration tilt toward the white minority government of South Africa is producing a backlash among black leaders in both Africa and the United States.

Officially, administration policy on South Africa is still under review but President Reagan indicated earlier this month he will take a more benevolent attitude than former President Carter did.

In an interview with CBS News, Reagan said the United States should still be concerned about South Africa's policy of racial separatism, called apartheid. But he suggested that as long as a "sincere and honest" effort was being made to achieve racial harmony, the United States should not be critical.

Reagan then asked: "Can we abandon a country that has stood by us in every war we have ever fought, a country that is strategically essential to the free world in its production of minerals that we all must have?"

South African officials were delighted. Black African leaders were not.

"We hope sanity will prevail in Washington," Zimbabwe Prime Minister Robert Mugabe said last week. "It would be most regrettable and harmful to the good relations between us and the United States if ... the Reagan administration were to lend its support to the South African regime and its policies of apartheid and regional hostilities."

His remarks echoed statements earlier in the week by President Siaka Stevens of Sierra Leone and President Samora Michel of Mozambique.

In the United States, Randall Robinson, director of Trans-Africa, a private anti-apartheid group in Washington, said that if Reagan persists, black America "will use every available weapon to fight the administration."

Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., chairman of the foreign affairs division of the congressional black caucus, said Reagan's message gives the wrong signal to U.S. "hate groups" by suggesting the president will "tolerate racial division and inequality."

Former U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry said Reagan's statement was likely to "encourage South Africa in its blindness" on the Namibian question.

During the Carter administration, the United States and four other Western nations undertook a concerted effort to persuade South Africa to agree to surrender its 60-year control over neighboring Namibia, also called South-West Africa, through elections leading to independence and black majority rule.

McHenry says South Africa has balked at the Western proposals because it fears that Namibia's main guerrilla organization, SWAPO or South-West Africa People's Organization, would win an election and thus pose a threat to South African security.

Nigerian President Shehu Shagari, whose country is the second-leading supplier of U.S. oil, said last week his government would give "all necessary aid" to the Namibian guerrillas.

But he stopped short of criticizing Reagan administration policies. "We can give the administration the benefit of the doubt until we see what they are going to do," Shagari said.

Supreme Court Will Determine Legality Of Male-Only Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will hear arguments this week on the male-only military draft registration, a case in which both men and women are claiming they are the subjects of discrimination.

The issue that comes up before the nine justices Tuesday is whether male draft registration system discriminates against men. But the National Organization for Women says the draft violates women's rights and makes them second class citizens by excluding them from possible conscription.

A three-judge federal court in Philadelphia, ruling in a case originally brought by Vietnam War protesters, found last July that male-only registration discriminates against men. It said Congress must decide whether to include women or give up the draft.

The government claims registering women for a possible draft would hamstring military preparedness and flexibilty, since women are barred from many combat roles.

Although the high court refused to allow several women's groups to join the arguments on the case, they have submitted legal papers outlining their views.

When President Jimmy Carter sought revival of registration, he recommended women also be signed up. But Congress vetoed the idea.

If the court rejects Congress' decision, it will be intruding "into military matters that the Constitution expressly has entrusted to Congress," U.S. Solicitor General Wade McCree contends.

The Supreme Court is expected to issue its decision in the draft case before it ends its term this summer.

Congress restricted registration because female conscripts would reduce the military's access to combat-eligible troops, McCree argues. It would be a waste for the military to devote "limited training facilities to conscripts ultimately ineligible for combat, close combat support, or combat rotation positions."

Besides, the system is not discriminatory because both men and women who are "unqualified for combat training and assignment are equally exempt," McCree said.

But the National Organization for Women argues that the barrier to women signing up for the draft "consigns them to a second-class status" in society.

NOW, the country's largest women's rights organization, opposes any draft. "But, if there is one, we want women to be included," said Eleanor Smeal, NOW president. Excluding women "reinforces harmful stereotyped beliefs about women and their role in our society," she said, adding, "It creates the myth that all men are competent and better.

Other women's groups filing briefs as friends of the court include the League of Women Voters and the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Woman's Stories Cause Concern In Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the spring of 1979, Paula Clifton sported a gold necklace that bore the legend "perfect."

"I'm not perfect yet," blond, beautiful Miss Clifton told guests at a party. "But I soon hope to be. I'm having silicone implants ...."

Since then, a more robust Miss Clifton married lobbyist Hank Parkinson, became a registered lobbyist herself and posed in the buff for a Playboy magazine spread on Washington's working women.

Lately, she's been sending shudders through Congress by attempting to sell stories about her special lobbying efforts.

"There has been a lot of talk," said a congressional aide. "Everyone is waiting — anxiously."

The gossip and tremors began this month when it was disclosed Mrs. Parkinson, 30, shared a vacation house in Florida last year with eight men, including Reps. Thomas Evans, R-Del., Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., and Dan Quayle, R-Ind.

Railsback and Quayle, now a senator, have denied any mischief.

"I deeply regret having any association with her," Evans said in a statement. "It is clear to me that Mrs. Parkinson is a troubled person and I resent and regret that this woman is using my name in an effort to gain publicity for a possible book."

Spokesmen for Playboy and Penthouse magazines say Mrs. Parkinson offered her stories of Washington intrigue, but they rejected them.

An insider says Playboy questioned her credibility and was turned off by talk that she secretly videotaped some encounters.

Mrs. Parkinson, who separated from her husband in January, has been unavailable for comment. Friends said she has been staying with her parents in Dallas, but has made frequent trips back to Washington.

The Cotton Patch Acclaimed As Misses, Junior Specialty Store

Fashion ideas and fashion fulfillment are just as near as the Cotton Patch, regionally popular junior and misses specialty store at a convenient Hwy. 62/82 location in Idalou!

Enjoying wide appreciation and growing patronage throughout its existence, the Cotton Patch has kept pace, even leading in trends and in merchandise to best meet the preferences of its valued clientele.

In this continuing devotion to best serving the customer, the Cotton Patch has evolved into an exclusive junior and misses specialty store of note, stocking sizes 3 to 18 for the style-conscious women of West Texas.

Even the advertising logo of the Cotton Patch is being changed to more correctly define its concept, its role and its merchandise. Watch for it. The name remains the same, the location and phone number (892-3023) remain the same, and the owner and active operator still is Janis DeBusk.

Added Lines

New lines of prestigious sports wear have been added.

A delightful variety of junior, misses and designer dresses is included in the specialized stock.

Spring and summer apparel is in abundance, with everything from sundresses to after-dinner wear.

"Cottons are definitely 'in' for summer '81, Janis correctly observes, "with really stylish wear of cotton and cotton fabrications, with variety, fashion and quality evident.

One of the largest and very nicest blouse selections in the area is at the new-look Cotton Patch where rearranging and remodeling has just been completed, with antique displays adding to the provocative decor.

Special Value

A special group of pastel corduroy overalls and jumpsuits is presented, marked down in price in a limited time offer.

From this group, regular $31.50 overalls are now just $19.50; and the $39.50 jumpsuits are at only $27.50 . . . for a limited time, remember, so early selection is advised.

The entire line of prestigious cosmetics from Elizabeth Arden is available at the Cotton Patch, and the following related announcements are made:

New From Elizabeth Arden

The Elizabeth Arden spring colors have arrived, with the new "Rainbow" palette of really pretty pastels.

Elizabeth Arden has come out with a new Millenium Skin Care System of four products, which the Cotton Patch is glad to enthusiastically introduce and stock.

Created to speed the cell renewal process and to help any age skin function better, the Millenium selection includes (1) hydrating cleanser, (2) revitalizing tonic, (3) day renewal emulsion, and (4) night renewal cream.

Thoroughly researched, proven and appreciated, the Millenium by Elizabeth Arden is a choice addition to "what's new" at the Cotton Patch where the whole attitude of ownership and staff is refreshing, where the welcome and the stock and the expertise join in meriting and inviting one's trade and confidence.

COTTON PATCH IN KEY ROLE — Fashion needs for the junior and missy style-conscious women of the South Plains is the delightful situation at The Cotton Patch, with owner Janis DeBusk shown here with display from the selective stock. New lines of prestigious sports wear are featured, together with Elizabeth Arden cosmetics in the redesigned shop.

Plastic Pipe Distributors Aids Region With Modern Products

Plastic Pipe Distributors, at 2402 Erskine, phone 763-6531, backs its image of exceptional service with a record of service and growth from its beginnings over 20 years ago as the first plastic pipe distributor in Lubbock.

Add to this the fact that over 50 years of experience is totaled for its key staff-members and that new products and services are added as customer needs are anticipated and dealt with . . . and there you have Plastic Pipe Distributors, truly a customer-oriented firm.

Dennis Casarez is longtime owner, and Stephen Thrash is assistant manager, with Walter Johnson as sales manager.

In brief, the following are included among today's expanded services and supplies at Plastic Pipe Distributors.

Nelson Sprinklers

The firm is master distributor for Nelson lawn and garden sprinklers, with units to meet the landscape and turf irrigation equipment needs, whatever your situation.

There are the spray and impact heads with all the performance features, part of the inventory including a varity of products such as valve boxes, bases, traveling sprinklers, impact sprinklers, the gear driven rotary sprinklers, impact driven rotary sprinklers, pop-up spray heads, shrub spray heads and nozzles, automatic controllers and valves, etc.

Microjet Remarkable

Be sure to learn about the new Microjet, too, "the most advanced irrigation system in the world," available from Plastic Pipe Distributors.

And the new spot systems with vortex emitter for low-volume irrigation, suitable for residential landscapes, pecan orchards, etc.

Plastic pipe is stocked, of course, and one can choose from PVC, from ABS for drains, waste and vents; and from polybutylene tubing that is the same size as copper tubing and can connect or replace copper tubing. (It takes freezing to -50 degrees!)

Stocked, also are UL electrical access fittings, conduit, boxes, plastic and brass gate and globe valves, even a full line of fittings including metal ones.

The product list goes on and on, and detailed description of many of these needed items will be discussed in future reports on these pages, but best advice is to "come on in and see what we have, discuss your needs with us, and let us be of service."

Design Service

"On our staff is a licensed irrigator to design systems for homeowners. If you will bring a drawing of your lot, we can design and give a material list and cost of the complete lawn or other landscape irrigation system, even recommending someone to do the trenching if desired.

"We want to be of service to you as we have been for others during the past two decades. Whether the need is sprinkler supplies, irrigation system design, rough-in supplies for housing, or even other related products and service, we invite you to check with us at 2402 Erskine, phone 763-6531, in Lubbock."

MULTIPLE PRODUCTS AND SERVICES — Stephen Thrash (right) of Plastic Pipe Distributors discusses here with customer David Latham of Rainmaker Sprinkler Systems (installation contractor) the Nelson line including pictured auto controllers. # Business & Industrial Review

STOCKED WALL TO WALL — A really tremendous stock can be a first and correct impression at The Yarn Tree in Briercroft Shopping Center. Against a backdrop of Patenayan yarn, owner Vicki Nesbitt calls attention to a needlepoint canvas for which she is selecting yarn. 'Tomorrow's treasures' are just as near as The Yarn Tree in Lubbock.

Yarn Tree's Selection Backs Claim Of 'Everything You Need'

"With the largest stock of yarn in town, and with a really exciting array of kits, accessories, etc., together with qualified instruction and a very friendly atmosphere, the Yarn Tree fully justifies its motto of 'Everything You Need!'"

Located at 5302 Ave. Q (in Briercroft Shopping Center), the Yarn Tree, phone 763-5257, was opened last August by Vicki Nesbitt, native of the city. Vicki is a graduate of Monterey High School and will be remembered by many as Vicki King.

She has stocked the Yarn Tree in a fantastic and astute manner, providing what is desired and appreciated in large selection.

"Response has been most gratifying, and I thank every one of you," is the sincere message from Vicki who invites dependence upon her intriguing shop by new and old friends alike.

The Yarn Tree is open from 10 until 5:30 Mondays through Fridays, closing at an earlier 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

Aside from the tremendous stock, the Yarn Tree certainly deserves appreciation for such other features as free instruction aid with purchases there, with Vicki glad to assist in the many problems or questions normal with purchases at a better yarn shop.

Following, at random, are listed only some of the things to be found at the Yarn Shop, but the best suggestion is to come in and see for yourself!

There is a wide selection of yarns from fingering weight to bulky, including designer yarns.

A complete color range of Paternayan yarn for needlepoint and crewel is stocked . . in 344 colors!

Tapestry Yarn

There's a good selection of DMC tapestry yarn.

And crewel kits, needlepoint canvases and kits, cross stitch items including tablecloths and quilts, latch hook rug kits, canvas and pre-cut yarn;

Instruction books and leaflets for knitting, crochet, needlepoint and tatting.

Corcheting supplies include DMC sizes 10-50 wt. Coats knit cro sheen, in over 30 colors!

A good selection of patterns for tablecloths and doilies is offered, and counted cross stitch items including all DMC floss colors, a wide selection of fabrics and good choice in books.

A Christmas Corner, fully stocked the year around, includes needlepoint, crewel, cross stitch, etc.

There are accessories such as frames (many small specialty frames), a complete selection of knitting needles, crochet hooks, stretcher bars, self-stick mounting board, magnifying lamps and knitting bags.

Vinyl Needlepoint Canvas

Plastic canvas kits and books, too.

Featured items include the new Skip-a-Stitch vinyl needlepoint canvas, machine washable with no blocking required; it will not ravel or shrink, and soft and flexible, actually can be machine sewed.

On and on the long list could continue, but let us simply re-emphasize in this report that we have "everything you need"! Other items will be listed in future stories on these pages. Watch them and our ads for up-to-date happenings and new arrivals at the Yarn Tree.

"Classes are available, scheduled as demand warrants, and with needlepoint, and 4-way bargello classes soon to start. Ask for details about day and evening schedules, and please come see us, whatever you do!"

Bookbinding & Bible Repair Rebounds From Fire Damage, Changes Location

Bookbinding & Bible Repair again is open for business now at corner of 34th and Boston.

"Disastrous fire in early February at our former 2235 34th St. location almost put us out of business, but with the blessings of good friends, understanding customers and the care of our Lord, we again can serve."

Moises Perez, owner and operator, continues in his sincere message:

"As in the past, Bookbinding & Bible Repair pledges to all that we will give our best in every job or problem or project that you entrust to us. We treat your projects as our own, serving your personal interest.

"Some of our equipment still is not functioning at full capacity, and repairs are being made, at times on an around-the-clock basis.

"We have been most fortunate to secure the facilities at southeast corner of the Boston Avenue-34th Street intersection where there is lots of off-street parking and easy access. The building is clearly marked and has been remodeled for our particular functions.

"Our phone number is new (795-7796), and the location is new, but the operation, dedication and quality remains the same for each of you, our appreciated customers. Please bear with us until we can operate at complete full speed ahead in our every operation; in the meantime we are turning out every job just as rapidly as possible and in an efficient manner to which the customer is entitled.

Visits Urged

"We want you to become acquainted with our new location and facilities, coming in to visit at earliest opportunity. We think you'll like what you find, and we appreciate you sharing in our enthusiasm of our 'come-back' from disaster."

"Bookbinding & Bible Repair is five years old, marking our anniversary this month. For this we give tribute to our God and to you, our customers as instruments of God."

"For those of you who may not know of our range of services, we point out the following in brief; it is quite likely that one or more of these services can be of benefit in your own situation.

(1) Books rebound or restored;

(2) Restoration of Bibles that are out of use because of their condition but that can be rebound and re-used again and again.

(3) Binding of favorite magazines such as special years of the National Geographic Magazine, or any other professional or hobby magazine or journal;

(7) Restoration of heirloom family Bibles for family records and future memories;

(8) Lamination;

(9) Spiro ring bindings, and

(10) Name imprinting in gold.

"Our phone is 795-7796, and our location is 34th at Boston. We're easy to find!"

AT SMOKER'S CLINIC — Staffmembers demonstrate the 'painless' but specialized treatment for physical addiction to smoking, part of the treatment program offered there to 'break the smoking habit'. Inquiry for full details is welcomed by the Smoker's Clinic, 2415 6th St. in Lubbock, represented as one of the few of its type in the nation.

Business & Industrial Review

'Breaking Your Smoking Habit Is Smoker's Clinic Guarantee'

Stop smoking . . . with a money-back guarantee!

The message from Smoker's Clinic of Lubbock, 2415 6th St., phone 747-9400, is simple and direct:

"Our doctor-developed treatment program will break you of your smoking habit."

Part I, Physiological

"The treatment is within a doctor's office, conducted by licensed personnel, and is painless and safe, and it does not involve needles, injections, medicines, hypnosis or any scare techniques whatsoever. There are no withdrawal symptoms or side effects. The treatment takes 20 minutes and will totally eliminate your physical addiction for cigarettes and without withdrawal symptoms."

And the cost is just $75, with a money-back guarantee!

"The technique is sometimes called neuro-stimulation or electro-acapuncture. By stimulating certain nerves, the treatment effectively eliminates your body's need to smoke. Most people are cured by this one treatment alone, but a second electro-stimulation treatment is afforded without added cost when this is determined necessary.

Part II, Psychological

"The treatment for the second part of one's habit, the psychological dependence upon cigarette smoking, is part of the program, too, and consists of a program supervised by a trained counselor. Since your physical addiction will already have been cured by the neuro-stimulation, it is much easier and more effective at this point to stop the 'automatic' part of your unhealthful, expensive and dangerous habit.

"And look at this, adding emphasis to our certainty about the program's effectiveness, our concern about you getting your money's worth:

"If you have completed the entire treatment program within one month and have not stopped smoking, simply smoke your usual brand of cigarette at the fourth counseling session and sign an affidavit that you are still smoking your usual brand of cigarettes. You will be given a refund of your payment in full, without any further qustions!"

Isn't this fantastic?

"The Smoker's Clinic treatment is the only program that has been specifically designed to cure both your body's addiction for cigarettes and your mental habit. Physically and psychologically, the program is effective. The Smoker's Clinic of Lubbock is the only one of its type in the entire state, and is located right here in Lubbock, remember, at 2415 6th St., phone (806) 747-9400.

"The real facts are that if you stop smoking, you will probably lose your bad cough, your food will taste better, you will save money and you will feel better all over."

"So . . . if you are sure you are ready to make the commitment to stop smoking, we urge you to take advantage of the Smoker's Clinic money-back guarantee treatment program, for a convenient appointment call the Smoker's Clinic office, phone 747-9400."

Wind, Sand Discomforts, Other Factors Focus Attention On Insulating Windows

Insulating Windows, Inc., 327 E. 74th St. in Lubbock, asks two pertinent questions, urging you to read these even if you don't read a bit further!

(1) "Don't you wish that you had been enjoying the protection of storm windows and storm doors from Insulating Windows when that tremendous wind and sand blasted through?"

(2) "Have you wanted to discuss your insulating window needs, related energy saving, costs, etc., with us, but you just didn't know how to reach our offices? Some have reported a problem here, and we'll try to give full directions. If still confused, call us at 745-5768 and we'll possibly be able to give you specifics that can help.

"We are at 327 E. 74th St., with our big manufacturing facilities and our offices all at the same address. One can easily locate and reach us by going east on Loop 289 South, taking the first exit east of Avenue H; continue eastward along the frontage road and watch for the West Texas Millwright or Cummings Diesel facilities; we are just to the south of these, about one block south of Loop 289."

Practical In Every Season

As for wishing you had storm windows and doors custom made at Insulating Windows, Inc., we still urge you to get full details and discover just how practical thse can be. Sure, these would have been great for winter . . . but there are other winters to come! And the protection can be doubly appreciated during the sandstorms, or when energy saving is considered, with related cost savings.

"We want to work with you in every way possible" is the message from the owner at Insulating Windows, Inc., phone 745-5768, at 327 E. 74th St.

The conscientious and capable folks there invite visits and inquiry about any aspect of their products and services.

Everything is custom made at Insulating Windows, Inc., with primary products including picture storm windows, patio sliding storm doors, aluminum replacement windows, storm windows and storm doors.

Consider this: "Dead air space in all our windows manufactured at Insulating Windows, Inc., involve 1 1/2-in. to 2-inch dead air space for energy efficiency, and if attached to existing windows enable 2 1/2-in. to 3-in. dead air space.

A vinyl bulb seal is featured, eliminating caulking; and we know it lasts longer!

A rubber seal is utilized for glass mold.

Seams are caulked at the precisely mitered corners.

Storm doors are available with numerous options (2 lite or 4 lite).

"And one does not have to do the entire home at one time to get started on an energy efficiency program via way of storm windows. Let us measure your home, and then you purchase a few units (a room at a time, as example) if your financial planning finds this most advisable.

Ada Van Horn is owner and manager of Insulating Windows, Inc. She is an area native understanding the needs imposed by sandstorms, snow, sleet, wind, weather changes, etc. . . . and wants to make your home more comfortable and beautiful . . . at a saving one can appreciate.

Insulating Windows, Inc., serves superbly from its large facilities in Lubbock, at 327 E. 74th St., just south of Loop 289, with dealers including the Muleshoe Home Center in Muleshoe, and others in Brownfield and Sweetwater.

Actually, Insulating Windows, Inc., can open a whole new world in one's enjoyment of the home every day of the year, summer and winter.

If the consideration is beauty, economy, quality, health, investment, design or service, then take advantage of the finest in each, afforded by Insulating Windows, Inc., phone 745-5768, at 327 E. 74th St., where sole owner Ada Van Horn and a capable staff can go into detail on each aspect, standing ready to assist you as they have helped others."

"Yes, new spring merchandise is arriving daily . . . and prices are right; we invite your comparing."

Special Award

"Also, please come in and register for a $25 gift certificate to be given at 2 p.m., Saturday, April 4. You do not have to be present to win; and the certificate may be used for selections in either the maternity or baby departments at Storkie's."

At Storkie's there are new maternity bathing suits, shorts, spring dresses, pants and tops, all available for selection . . . and the colors are yummy!

The maternity size range is from the small size 4 to the full figure 24.

Lingerie Sale

"There is a complete lingerie department, and to acquaint you with our store, there is a sale in all lingerie and gowns and robes throughout this week: 10 per cent off panties, slips, bras, nursing gowns and robes. You'll want to take advantage of this special.

"Remember, at Storkie's we put sale items in layaway, just as other merchandise, so it would be wise to take advantage of the many markdowns now available."

Other Reductions

There is one rack of nursing smock tops, in pretty prints, that are reduced; all bathing suits are marked down; and some spring dresses already have been reduced in price; so come and browse and take advantage of the layaway, not only on regular merchandise but on sale items as well.

Remember those maternity sizes 4-24, and the fantastic nursing bras at $8.50 and up, sizes to 44F.

The many items that are arriving in the infant and children's department are truly becoming "adorable affordables."

Sizes in the baby department are girls 0-6X and boys 0-4T.

For one week, this week, there will be a sale featuring 10 per cent off on anything not already marked down in the baby department!

"For your shopping pleasure we ask you to drop by and browse; there are many sale items in the baby department, with values throughout the store.

Gift wrap service is available; use of Master Charge and Visa is welcome; store hours are 10-6, six days a week.

"If inflation is eating into your dollar and if you are appreciative of friendly, courteous service, then you need to shop Storkie's, at 34th & H, Family Park Shopping Center, phone 747-8331, next door to Anthony's. Owner Faye Spoth and staff are anxious to serve you and save for you."

Specials, Landscaping Service Told By A-One Nursery In City

A-One Nursery, 7500 82nd St., enters another season with "what's right" and "what's desired" for South Plains landscapes. Long a leader in design, installation and maintenance services, A-One traditionally has a huge nursery stock presented at appealing and advertised prices.

Winfred Self, owner and operator, takes whatever steps he believes best in assuring A-One's continued leadership.

As example, this week's report is focused on three significant A-One situations:

(1) A long list of low prices is posted in the A-One ads;

(2) Special 1-week specials are announced on selected items; and

(3) Services of the Landscaping Design department of the firm are re-emphasized.

Landscaping Specialist

Mike Sandlin is in charge of this complete Landscaping Design department. A Lubbock native who is a '74 graduate of Monterey High School, and a '78 graduate in Landscape Architecture from Texas Tech, joined the A-One firm a year ago, and reception of his services has been most gratifying.

Sandlin can check at the landscape site with prospective customers, learning of the purposes and preferences, then returning to the nursery to draw plans as determined necessary. All plants, trees, etc. are available from A-One, of course.

The customer can exercise two choices. (1) purchase the landscaping plan and use it as desired, or (2) let A-One install in part or in full, affording a turnkey job when desired.

In either event, the cost likely is much less than one would expect, Sandlin emphasizes.

No long landscaping waits are involved, and only qualified, experienced crews are utilized.

"Isn't it time to think landscaping?"

One-Week Specials

The One-Week Specials revealed at A-One for the current week include:

Giant size pecan trees, 10 ft. to 12 ft. height, 1 1/4-1 1/2 cal., regular $49.95 trees at A-One, marked for sale at one-half price!

Giant size oaks (red and live oak) also are half price this week.

All 1 gal. and 5 gal. shrubs are 35 per cent off regular price in the limited-time offer; and Giant size fruit trees are at half price.

Other Values

Another "buy" of immediate interest at A-One is the 6 pack (at 99 cents) of cabbage, broccoli or Brussel sprouts.

Everbearing strawberry plants, in 2 1/2 in. pots, are 49 cents each or $4.95 per dozen.

Extra nice silver maple and sycamore trees, 12 ft. to 14 ft., are at 35 per cent discount. Giant size maples, sycamore, locust, golden rains and catalpa are 50 per cent off marked price.

Select, too, from pom poms and poodles, from the windbreaker Arizona Cypress, Keteleri, Hillspire and Wichita Junipers.

Peach, pear, apricot, plum, nectarine, cherry and apple trees are all at 50 per cent saving.

All 1-gal. roses are $1.49 each, with 2-gal. sizes at $2.99.

A very good selection of shrubs is evident, with savings of 35 per cent.

Or maybe the need is aggregate stepping stones, now at $1.88.

Fertilizers are on hand, too, including Fertiloam Weed and Feed Special, and Zipp 16-8-8 with iron and zinc added.

"On and on the values could be listed, but one should visit the big A-1 facility to fully realize how this long-established firm can meet your lawn and landscape needs."

A-1 is open from 9 to 6, Mondays through Saturdays, and on Sundays from 1:30 to 5 o'clock.

Area residents long have benefitted from the installation and maintenance services and landscape design from A-1, together with such benefits as the new shipments and unique sale prices right here at beginning of the season.

For more than two decades, actually, folks throughout the region have been assisted by the services of Winfred Self, owner and operator of A-1 Nursery, since 1973 at its present expanded quarters.

Everything at the modern nursery is coordinated for the very best in products and service.

Even with the big stock, the know-how of Self and his experienced crew possibly is the biggest asset of A-1, as hundreds of customers can attest.

(There are other really super specials in addition to the ones mentioned above; come on out and discover these for yourself.)

Shop A-1 Nursery today and save!

SPECIALIST IN LANDSCAPE DESIGNING — Mike Sandlin is on hand at A-One Nursery to afford landscape planning and execution to extent desired. He is a Landscape Architect graduate of Texas Tech and is entering his second season with A-One.

Business & Industrial Review

SALE BEGINS TODAY — Ed Barclay, owner, and Vicki Whisenhunt, longtime staffmember at Ed's Wagon Wheel Western Wear, call attention to the extensive stock, new arrivals and now the sale opportunities at the 5015 University Ave. firm.

Ed's Wagon Wheel Western Wear Announces 'Rodeo Sale' Values

The big Rodeo Sale begins today at Ed's Wagon Wheel Western Wear, the time-honored store now at 5015 University Ave. providing western clothing for all the family, for work and dress-up, and with appreciated accessories and horse tack.

Just in time for the ABC Rodeo beginning Wednesday, Ed's sale should not be overlooked if quality and pricing advantages appeal. (Tickets for the rodeo are available at Ed's, too.)

Specials Listed

These are among the specials:

Short-sleeve shirts and straw hats are 25 per cent off, right here at the beginning of the season when they are most needed!

One rack of men's suits is a whopping 50 per cent off!

Big Bell Levi's and Wranglers are as low as $9.95.

All no-fault Wranglers are now $14.95.

Check Wranglers, Lees and Levis are a low $5.95.

One rack of long-sleeve shirts is at one-half price.

Saddle Value

Ed's has a really good selection of tack, and for the ABC Rodeo, Ed is giving $100 off on any Longhorn or Billy Cook saddle in stock!

Look at these other items among the great bargains Ed has arranged:

One rack of ladies suits is at half price.

Ladies regular stock long-sleeve shirts are 25 per cent off.

Boys and students Levis are $7.95 and $9.95.

One style of Laramie boots, regular $139.95, now carries an $89.95 price tag for the sale!

All Justin calfskin boots are now $89.95!

Ed's Wagon Wheel Western Wear, at 5015 University Avenue, with scads of off-street parking at its University Park Shopping Center location, is open from 9 until 6, and on Thursday evenings until 9 o'clock.

(Remember, after 14 years at a downtown location, Ed Barclay last summer moved to the new and larger quarters in the all-new University Park Shopping Center just south off 50th Street on University Avenue. The location is convenient from "anywhere," and the stock and service is the best, typically Ed's Wagon Wheel Western Wear!)

Pick Up Pals Maintains Large Stock Accessories, Tells One-Week Special

Proving the claim of "easily affordable" accessories for the pickup, made available by Pick Up Pals, is the one-week sale on wood grain side rails, regular $97.45 installed, but for this week marked at unbelievable $59.95 installed!

Functionally protective and attractive accessories from the best pals one's pickup has ever had is the whole story at the Lubbock-owned Pick Up Pals, Broadway at Avenue Q, and in Amarillo at 3330 S. Western.

Pick Up Pals right here in Lubbock has an extensive stock, and some may not realize that the skilled folks there offer installation on any item handled by the firm.

Check these within the wide variety at Pick Up Pals, many of these items especially desirable at this time of year:

There are floor consoles, always convenient;

And tool boxes of all kinds (side or cross-bed).

There are aluminum grille guards, and a complete line of running boards.

Aero Shields

Select from chrome tailgate covers, rear window louvres, and the Aero Shields for deflecting bugs, etc., with an air screen quite a protection in the spring and summer months, too.

Custom fitted and made of unbreakable space-age polycarbonate, the Aero Shield helps keep the windshield clear of bugs, spray, grit and all. (It is guaranteed for two years against breakage, and is available in five transparent colors.

Recognizing that cost of vehicles keeps increasing day by day, one can see the added reason to let Pick Up Pals help protect the pickup investment. (Most likely this one-of-its-kind local firm has the very accessory desired, but in event it is not available from the big stock, then the friendly folks at Pick Up Pals can locate most items on short notice.)

"To introduce you to the big stock or to refresh your memory, check the following as among items at Pick Up Pals where whole new world of enjoyment of your pickup begins . . . at a cost likely less than imagined!

Line-A-Beds

Don't fail to see the popular, and so-practical, Line-A-Beds, in choice of black or white. These are the liner protectors for truck beds, vacuum molded as a tight-fitting insert and made from a high-density extra high molecular weight polyolefin base material. Made of the same high-impact materials that go into crash helmets and football helmets, it is almost impossible to break or stain. One solid piece covers and protects a pickup floor, headwell, sides and side rails. The Line-A-Bed is often used for auto parts delivery because of its durability.

Pick Up Pals stocks units to fit all import and U.S. pickups. No long delays to wait for a unit. Installation, when desired, most usually can be the same day ordered.

"Anyone who uses a pickup should consider a Line-A-Bed, whether the truck is for business, pleasure or combination. It is one of the options available that returns your investment!"

Multiple Needs

Or maybe the need is a bumper, auxiliary lighting, grille guards, headache racks, seat covers, ropes and hooks, mirrors, fog lights, driving lights, wire mesh headlight guards, spare locks, sliding rear windows, visors, and more it all is at Pick Up Pals, the friendly business at Broadway and Q in Lubbock.

Business & Industrial Review

AT FRANK BROWN PONTIAC-HONDA — The exciting Accord 2-door, by Honda, is shown here by Ronnie Burns of the Frank Brown staff in Lubbock, with Ronnie pointing out that a Honda is available at prices as low as $5,499.

Frank Brown Points Out Honda Popularity, Savings, Styling

Frank Brown Pontiac-Honda in Lubbock has made a lot of friends with its sales and service of Honda, the "we make it simple" car.

Frank Brown, at 4637 50th St., actually has sold over 2,000 Honda cars in the past 10 years! There must be a reason!

"One of these reasons, of course, is attractive pricing. Did you realize that a Honda could be yours for as low price as $5,499!"

Growth of Honda sales and popularity has had close kinship in time with the growth of the entire Frank Brown operation.

Frank Brown Pontiac, Inc., dates its founding to mid-1970, with the present facility completed for move-in in early '72.

The Honda 2-cylinder air cooled model, in August of '71, was the first Honda handled by the Lubbock firm.

Then in 1973 there came the new 4-cylinder water cooled Honda cars.

The rest is history . . . a rapid acceleration of Honda popularity and sales and improvements.

Today, Frank Brown Pontiac-Honda is proud to present the Civic and Accord models and the Prelude 2-door sports car. All models and colors are in the big Frank Brown inventory.

Parts, Service

And equally as important: A parts inventory of over $75,000 is maintained by Frank Brown for Honda alone. Technicians attend regularly-scheduled out-of-town schools staged by Honda to keep abreast of all that's new.

It adds to this:

Frank Brown is proud to be a Honda dealer, proud to represent the superb craftsmanship, quality and over-all desirability that are hallmarks of Honda, "the car Detroit should study in evaluating their new designs if interested in quality!"

"May we show how a Honda might be the very unit for you, just as it has been for hundreds of your friends and neighbors right here in the Lubbock area?"

Lauded In Report

Attention is directed to report in the Feb. 1981 "Road & Track" magazine, explaining the Honda Accord was voted "simply the best" in front wheel drive sedans.

In part, the report said:

"Refinement and delicacy typify the Accord, coming away with 13 '1sts' among the 21 categories and amassing 817 points to place 1st in the subjective ratings . . . the Accord also did very well in our personal preferences: two staff members had it 1st on both lists."

"The Accord's engine is a smooth and responsive powerplant, free-revving up to around 5000 rpm . . . the Accord's gearbox and linkage were considered best of the lot . . ."

"The most impressive thing about the Accord is a fit and finish that would do justice to a car costing considerably more. One staffmember termed it 'jewel-like' and another called the Accord 'the Mercedes-Benz of small cars' and the rest of us agreed."

"So . . . let the homefolks at Frank Brown Pontiac-Honda in Lubbock prove all this to your own satisfaction. We invite you to inspect and consider a Honda . . . it might be just what you have wanted but did not realize is available."

Price Advantage, Top Selection Appeal At Red Barn Meat Market

"For those of you who like to eat well and economize at the same time, Red Barn Meat Market, 8112 Indiana, can be your best friend!"

Yes, it still is true at Red Barn Meat:

A half of beef (U.S.D.A. Choice) Yield 1 and 2, still is $1.29 per pound!

Purchase of beef and pork cuts at this time could be a very wise move, Red Barn Meat Market owner Willis Watts points out.

"Prices are sure to get higher, and I really believe now is the time to buy freezer beef and save. We like to help you hedge against short supplies and high prices; we like to save money for our customers just as we like to provide the finest meat."

Greg Watts, son of owner Willis Watts, is now actively associated in the business, and both emphasize that "there is a difference" in meat quality and meat preparation, and for this difference an eye-opener awaits at Red Barn

Reports on these pages previously have pinpointed the many superior aspects of the market's operation, service and products, but special emphasis again is directed to the meticulous process involved in bringing to the customer the very finest in beef . . . at Red Barn Meat Market.

Not one, but three, coolers are utilized.

First, beef is brought into the aging cooler where it is kept a minimum of 10 to 14 days, with longer aging when requested by the customer.

Then, the meat is taken into another cooler where it is cut for placement in the cases.

So, finally, one observes, compares and selects from the cases, last of the three cooling operations.

Not just some of the beef, but all of the beef sold at Red Barn Meat Market is subjected to this process for greater customer satisfaction.

"We urge you to look for the grade on the beef you buy," is the further suggestion from this veteran butcher. All beef made available at the Red Barn Meat Market is U.S.D.A. Choice corn-fed cattle. Also, it is yield graded; we just will not buy anything above a '2' yield, meaning that we maintain the best of quality and still keep the fat content as low as possible. In addition to this, we also age our cattle, adding to the flavor and tenderness.

All cattle are from feed lots in the Hereford area.

This quality in every product, plus the across-counter service by knowledgeable staffmembers, is just part of the convincing story that unravels at Red Barn Meat Market, a logical place to trade!

Whether reason for a visit here this week is to stock up the home freezer, to secure meat for a special dinner, to pick up convenience-type items or just to browse and select where you know quality comes foremost, shopping at Red Barn Meat is a rewarding experience.

A lengthy service case is noticed upon one's entry to the spacious market. In another area, a self service case is provided.

Then, as further service, convenience type items (necessities for picnics, barbeques, etc.) are stocked, including milk, bread, chips, sauces, cookies and more.

Watts and his most capable staff take pride in introducing the customer to this "better and complete service market", a description to which a lot of area residents have attested since the market's opening in mid-1976.

The South Indiana market was planned and functionally designed to not only be attractive, but to be convenient, efficient and thoroughly service oriented. Watts opened this big market in May 1976, as the largest independent retail meat market in all West Texas, comprising about 4,275 sq. ft. floor space under roof, plus a large parking apron with access from both Indiana and from 82nd Street.

It is neat, sanitary, attractive and easy to reach from just about anywhere!

A full variety of beef, pork, poultry and fish is stocked, the public has found. As a complete service market, orders for special cuts are welcomed, and full quarters, halves and full beeves are available.

A full line of cheese is stocked.

Master Charge and Visa are accepted.

From the spacious service area one can see through expansive glass windows into the processing room, noting the efficiency of the butchers and the firm's devotion to cleanest quarters possible. Seventeen art pieces by Bill Leftwich are tastefully arranged on the service area walls.

Owner-operator Willis Watts has been a Lubbock resident 13 years. He was born and reared in West Texas and appreciates the area residents' recognition of quality meats and quality service.

For a revelation in superior products and service, a complete service market provided by "your kind of folks", a visit to Red Barn Meat Market, 82nd at Indiana, is heartily recommended. Likely such visits will become a habit for your better eating!

Britons Alarmed By Report On Former Spy Chief

LONDON (AP) — Legislators called on Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government today for a statement on allegations that the late Sir Roger Hollis, a former head of British counter-intelligence, was suspected of being a Soviet "mole" and perhaps "the most damaging spy in history."

Hollis was director-general of the MI5 counter-intelligence service from 1956 to 1965.

The Daily Mail newspaper said in an exclusive story today that following his retirement, Hollis was strongly suspected of having worked for the Soviets but he died in 1973 before investigators could prove anything.

As some legislators demanded a statement in Parliament by Mrs. Thatcher, a spokesman for her office said: "We have noted the report but have no comment. We don't make comments on security matters."

Lord Trend, former Secretary to the Cabinet who was said by the report to have investigated the affair, said: "I have no comment to make on this at all. The government has no comment and therefore I have no comment."

The Defense Ministry also declined all comment.

Labor Party lawmaker Dennis Canavan said he will file a formal House of Commons question on the affair to Mrs. Thatcher.

"This seems like yet another cover-up by the establishment," he said. "If it is true it is quite appalling. There is a great deal of public concern about the way in which our so-called security services are operated."

Daily Mail defense specialist Chapman Pincher wrote that Hollis, son of an an Anglican bishop, "may have been the most damaging spy in history."

He said that soon after Hollis retired, he faced an "unprecedented interrogation covering the 30 years during which he stood either near or at the top of this country's security forces."

Pincher said that although Hollis never cracked, "his answers to questions were regarded as unsatisfactory."

Pincher added: "I have established that loyal MI5 officers who uncovered the evidence that led to Sir Roger's dramatic interrogation believed that the Russians penetrated the security and intelligence services so deeply and for so long that they not only neutralized them, but effectively ran them."

Pincher said that in 1974, Lord Trend, who as Sir Burke Trend had been Cabinet secretary from 1963 to 1973, was secretly recalled from retirement to investigate.

Pincher said Trend reported "weighty ... circumstantial evidence" that Hollis had been a Soviet spy and "a strong prima facie case that MI5 had been deeply penetrated over many years" by Hollis and other agents not yet publicly identified.

Britain's security services have been shaken by a series of scandals since the end of World War II.

In 1951 spies Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean defected to Moscow, where they were joined 12 years later by Harold "Kim" Philby. All three had worked at the British Embassy in Washington and other key diplomatic posts. Philby was head of the Soviet desk at MI6, the secret service which runs British intelligence overseas.

In November 1979 following revelations in Andrew Boyle's book "Climate of Treason," Mrs. Thatcher confirmed that Anthony Blunt, a former MI5 operative and Queen Elizabeth II's art adviser, had been a Soviet agent. She said Blunt was unmasked in 1964, but no action was taken against him because he cooperated with authorities.

In another case with security overtones, Sir Peter Hayman, 66, former British High Commissioner (ambassador) in Canada who held several sensitive defense posts, was named in the Commons last week as being involved in a child pornography scandal. Conservative legislator Geoffrey Dickens said Hayman's alleged sexual predilections had left him wide open to blackmail.

Members of Hollis' family said today they were hurt by the allegations against him. His daughter-in-law, Margaret Hollis, said: "There are absolutely no grounds for these allegations."

Hollis' 82-year-old brother, the Right Rev. Michael Hollis, former Anglican Bishop of Madras in India, said: "I have not seen these allegations and I am not interested in them."

Miners Given Raise In Coal Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for the soft coal industry and the United Mine Workers union early today reached tentative agreement on a new three-year contract. But a strike Friday by the union's 160,000 members still appeared inevitable and union president Sam Church predicted it would last four to five days.

"We have a settlement," Church exclaimed to reporters five hours after union and industry bargainers began meeting at a Washington hotel at 1:45 a.m.

The two sides had not talked since last Tuesday and were felt to be farther apart on several issues than today's surprise agreement seemed to indicate.

Church said the union won a compromise 36-percent increase in wages and benefits over the next three years, but told an interviewer the industry had dropped its fight to open the mines on Sundays and drastically alter miners' pension plans.

The union's 39-member bargaining council, summoned to Washington by Church, will take up the proposal Tuesday, union officials said.

If ratified by the council, the proposal must still be approved by the rank-and-file — a process that normally takes 10 days. Church expressed confidence that the pact would win approval.

While the union had said last week that process could be shortened, a strike of at least a few days' duration appeared certain. The current pact expires at 11:01 p.m. CST Friday.

Church also said the bargaining council would discuss the possibility of a contract extension. But union sources said it was highly unlikely the UMW's leaders would support any move to keep the current contract in effect during the ratification process, given the union's tradition of refusing to extend contracts.

A contract was desperately needed because, Church said Sunday, "our people must not suffer."

Asked today what had led to the breakthrough, Church said, "I'm not going to get into details of the language of the contract before the bargaining council has a chance to see it."

As he spoke to reporters, Church was accompanied by B.R. Brown, head of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association team of negotiators.

Brown said he was pleased that an agreement had been reached and added, "The only comment I could make would be to second what Mr. Church has said and to say it would be inappropriate to comment at this time on terms of the tentative settlement."

But Church did predict that both the bargaining council and the membership would approve the package, with a wage-and-benefit hike 15 percent less than the union had asked. The companies had initially offered a 19 percent boost.

Church also said in an interview with CBS' Morning News that the industry had agreed to keep the operator-financed multi-employer pension fund and not to open mines on Sunday.

The two sides agreed to study the industry's proposal to replace the pension fund with company-by-company plans conducted through individual insurance companies.

The industry had sought a seven-day production schedule with miners given the option of not working on Sunday. The union had said it would accept that schedule — but only if work on both Saturday and Sunday were made optional. Under the current contract, miners can be compelled to work Saturday overtime.

Church said after the tentative agreement was announced that Sunday work was "no longer an issue."

He was then asked if "it will be possible to mine coal under this contract" on Sunday?

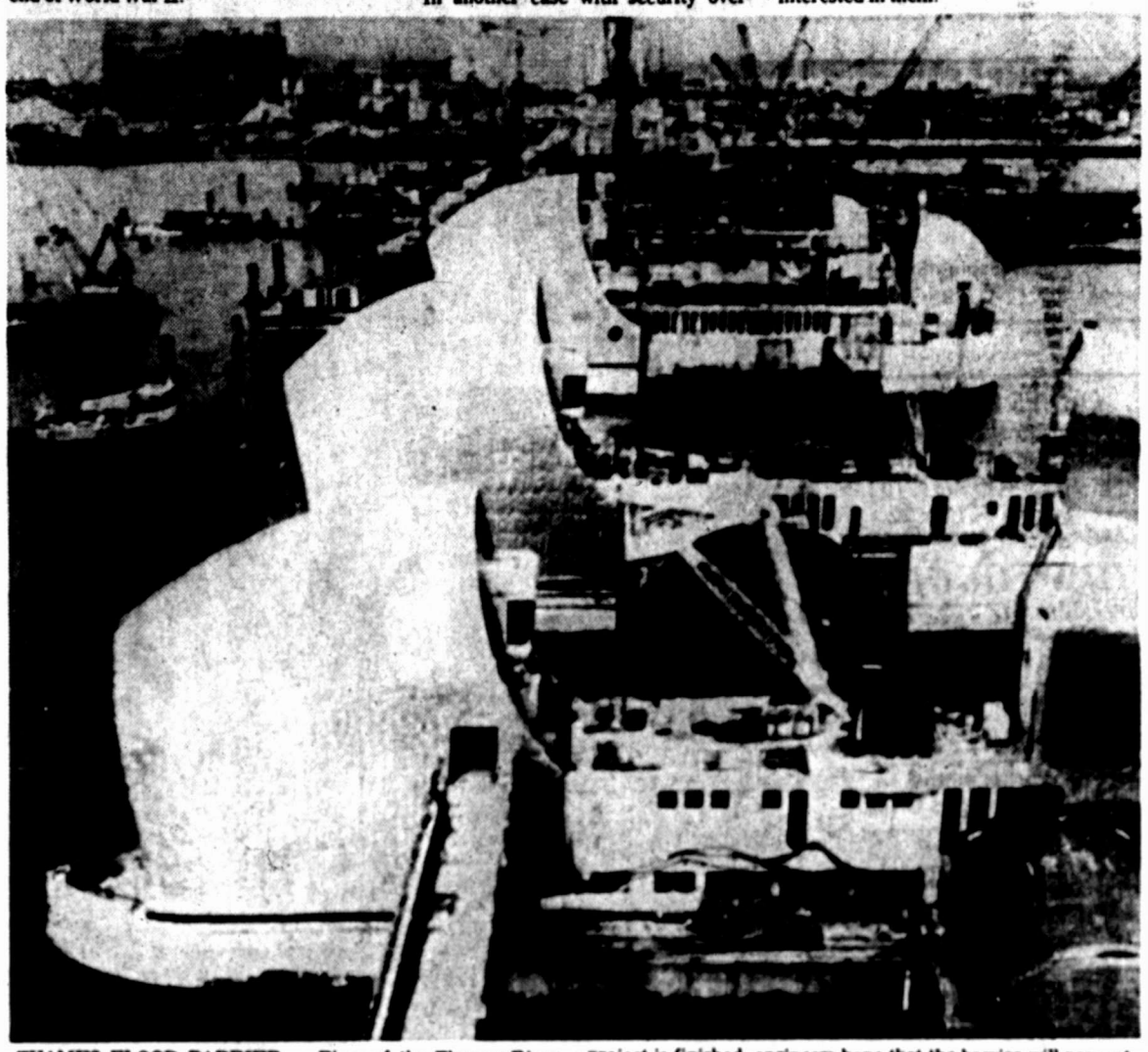
"No," he answered.

"Not even on a voluntary basis?"

"No," Church repeated.

Church had said before today's talks that the industry negotiators were continuing to demand the union relinquish a provision, first negotiated in 1964, requiring the BCOA's 130 companies to pay roughly $1.90 a ton to the union's health and retirement funds for each ton of non-union coal purchased.

Both Brown and Church said that issue had been settled — but neither man would say what compromise was reached.



THAMES FLOOD BARRIER — Piers of the Thames River flood control barrier near the mouth of the estuary are almost complete, as shown by this photo taken last weekend. # House Debating Interest Rates

AUSTIN (AP) — Interest payments on auto loans, credit card balances, home improvement notes and installment purchases at department stores could rise as a result of a bill that comes before the Texas House today.

Speaker Bill Clayton predicted the House would wrangle into the night over Rep. Bill Messer's bill hiking state-imposed ceilings on interest rates.

Messer, D-Belton, says he has 96 votes to pass the bill, which he contends is necessary to make credit available to Texas borrowers and, perhaps, reduce the prices of some consumer goods.

"He's got the votes to pass it, but not in the shape it's in," says Rebecca Lightsey, legislative director of the Texas Consumer Association.

Messer's bill replaces a hodge-podge of ceilings on different kinds of loans with — in effect — two ceilings.

There would be an 18 percent cap, except when the rate on six-month U.S. Treasury bills exceeds 18 percent.

If double the T-bill rate topped 18 percent, then what Messer calls an "escape valve" would come into play. The ceiling then would be twice the T-bill rate, up to an outside limit of 30 percent.

Existing limits include 12 percent for credit unions; 8 percent add-on (or about 14.5 percent annual percentage rate over 36 months) on bank and savings and loan installment loans; 7½ percent add-on (or 13.7 percent annual percentage rate) on dealer-financed cars; 18 percent on bank credit card balances below $1,500; 18 percent on department store credit below $500 and 12 percent above $500; and 12 percent on dealer-financed appliance purchases below $500, with 10 percent on balances between $500 and $1,000.

Messer is bothered by the implication that if his bill passes, rates would reach 30 percent.

He contends interest rates actually charged will be determined by fluctuations in national money markets, not by the state's usury ceiling.

Interest rates on dealer-financed automobile purchases can go to 13.7 percent on a three-year note under Texas' present ceiling, and the highest rate in the nation is only slightly higher, 15 percent, Messer said.

"That would mean a difference of $8 to $15 a month. ... To me that is preferable to having it hidden in the price of a car," he said.

Messer believes Texas' ceilings are forcing merchants and auto dealers, who must borrow at higher rates to finance inventory, to recover their money costs by increasing the prices of their goods.

Miss Lightsey said one objective of the TCA in today's debate will be to eliminate a provision allowing bank credit card companies to jack their rates higher than those previously agreed to by their cardholders.

Bill Change Criticized By Activist

AUSTIN (AP) — A campaign reform activist said today she is "disappointed" with last-minute changes in a bill to regulate lobbyists.

The bill as filed by Rep. Anita Hill, R-Garland, would have required the Secretary of State's office to monitor the filing of lobbyists' disclosure forms, and initiate prosecution of violators.

But the measure was changed after representatives of Secretary of State George Strake met with Mrs. Hill on Friday. The new measure does not require the secretary of state to oversee the filings, but merely allows "any person" to complain to the office.

"I'm disappointed, but I'm not going to make a big deal about it," said Donna Mobley of Common Cause after the morning hearing before the House State Affairs Committee. "I would have liked to see the amendment. The first I heard of it was when I got (to the hearing) this morning."

The bill was referred to subcommittee.

Mrs. Mobley said Common Cause had worked with Mrs. Hill on the original bill.

Assistant Attorney General David Herndon said the changes were made to ensure the law could be enforced. He said the secretary of state's office should not be required to survey the records because "quite frankly, there's no way to do it."

Under present law, there is no procedure to enforce the lobby registration and disclosure laws, Mrs. Hill told the committee.

She said cases are rarely prosecuted because the mechanism for enforcing the law is time-consuming.

"I came across a violation last session and was frustrated in trying to get anyone to do anything about it," she said. "I was told I had to go down and file a sworn statement with the district attorney's office."

The last prosecution for violations of the reporting act was in 1977, she said.

"But there are many more violations. In the last quarter of 1980, almost 200 (lobbyists) were delinquent," she said.

Deadline Extended On Ford Rebates

DETROIT (AP) — Owners of certain 1981 Ford models now have until April 5 to claim their 10 percent cash rebate. The automaker has followed the example of General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. and extended the deadline on its program.

Ford Motor Co. is offering rebates of 10 percent off the base price on 1981 Ford Granada, Fairmont and Mustang and Mercury Cougar, Zephyr and Capri models.

The Ford announcement came three days after GM said it was extending $500-$700 rebates on sporty and mid-sized 1981 models and Chrysler announced a scaled-down extension of its own rebate program.

Reagan's Program Faces Major Tests This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's economic program hits Congress in force this week, with his proposal to scrap an increase in dairy subsidies headed for final action and the bulk of his multibillion-dollar budget cuts ready for preliminary Senate approval.

The Senate was debating both issues today.

By week's end, the dairy subsidy bill could be on Reagan's desk and his budget cuts could be through the Senate.

The bill to eliminate a scheduled April 1 increase in the dairy price supports — saving the government an estimated $147 million and sparing consumers an increase of as much as a dime on some products — is scheduled for a Senate vote Tuesday. The House is to vote on it later this week.

Leaders in both parties predict the measure will clear easily. If so, it would be a clear victory for the president in the first skirmish of his campaign to restrain government spending and cut taxes.

The administration said eliminating the subsidy increase would save consumers an extra 7½ cents for a gallon of milk, a dime per pound of butter and 9 cents for a pound of cheese.

The measure stalled on the Senate floor last week because of a Democrat-led amendment to limit imports of the milk protein casein. Republicans said that with less than two weeks until the dairy subsidy increase is to take effect, the amendment could kill Reagan's plan because there would not be enough time for the House Ways and Means Committee to study the import quota.

But GOP leaders, chiding the Democrats as obstructionists, said they were confident they could reverse the vote on the amendment.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker predictedy that the dairy bill will pass easily, unencumbered by the casein amendment both he and the administration oppose.

"It looks like we might be able to defeat the amendment by a handsome margin," Baker told reporters.

The House Agriculture Committee overwhelmingly approved elimination of the price support increase last week, prompting leaders in that chamber to predict easy passage on the House floor.

Baker said he will push for a vote by Saturday on a budget-cutting package calling for $36.4 billion in 1982 spending reductions — $2.3 billion more than Reagan requested in the areas covered.

A floor fight is likely over a Budget Committee proposal to use private financing to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, at a savings of $3 billion.

That's one recommendation Reagan didn't make, and the Senate Energy Committee rejected the idea overwhelmingly only a few hours after budget writers endorsed it.

The budget-cutting package is just the first step of the congressional process. Technically, the Budget Committee's package is a set of instructions to individual committees which would have to make the actual cuts in programs under their jurisdictions.

On another issue, the House Appropriations subcommittee for foreign operations will vote Tuesday on Reagan's proposal for $5 million in military aid for El Salvador. The money is earmarked for purchase of helicopters, patrol boats, radar and other equipment for use by Salvadoran troops against leftist guerrillas who the administration contends are armed by communist countries.

The subcommittee is chaired by Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., who visited El Salvador last week. Long opposes the presence of U.S. military advisers in the war-torn Central American country, but he refused in advance to say how he would vote on the aid.

Lubbock General Audit Cites Big Improvement

said Medicare funds would not be touched, he feels that program may be in jeopardy, too.

Neiswander pointed out, however, that Lubbock General has a reasonably low financial load tied up in Medicare and Medicaid reimbursements, which total 23 percent of its patient revenues.

He said that although the hospital will feel the effects of a cutback, the loss will not be as substantial as that for some other hospitals his firm audits. He noted one client hospital in which the federal programs totaled 63 percent of patient revenues.

Concerning Lubbock General's audit, Neiswander said the collection rate at the hospital was substantially higher than other public hospitals audited by the firm.

The teaching hospital reported a collection rate near 70 percent for 1980, according to hospital finance director Charley Trimble.

Hospital administrator Jake Henry Jr. said that although the hospital has improved its collections, he also attributes the higher revenues to the low indigency level in Lubbock County.

Earlier today, hospital district administrative committee members heard a report from emergency room medical director Dr. John Farquhar.

Farquhar pointed out areas of improvement he plans to initiate at the hospital since recently taking over the emergency room post. He said his objectives include not only providing quality care for all patients but development of service and continuation of faculty-staff programs in areas of medical treatment, nursing and associated duties.

Farquhar has set down requirements for state board certification and continuing education for emergency room personnel which he hopes to have completed by the end of 1983. He has also put cardio-vascular resuscitation, including the instigation of training sessions in rural areas, at the top of his priority list, he said.

High Court Upholds Statutory Rape Law

retried without the use of the tainted confession as evidence. Prosecutors would remain free, however, to introduce as evidence a separate confession Jurek gave to police.

The justices today refused to hear a separate appeal from Jurek seeking to have his first confession ruled inadmissible as evidence at a second trial.

Prosecutors say Jurek abducted the Adams girl, sexually attacked her, strangled her and threw her body into the Guadalupe River.

Jurek has been on Death Row since receiving the death sentence on Feb. 27, 1974.

Only Justice William H. Rehnquist voted to grant full review to the state's appeal today.

In the California statutory rape case, four of the court's members, led by Rehnquist, said such state laws do not violate the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection.

Justice Harry A. Blackmun supplied the vital fifth vote necessary to uphold the California law. In a separate opinion, he said the California law was a legitimate — and constitutional — effort to control the problem of teen-age pregnancies.

Joining Rehnquist's opinion were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr. dissented, stating that such laws are not "substantially related" to the goal of controlling teen-age pregnancies.

Past Supreme Court rulings have established that laws treating men and women differently must serve important government interests and be substantially related to those interests.

Joining Brennan were Justices Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall.

Justice John Paul Stevens filed a separate dissenting opinion, stating, "Local custom and belief — rather than statutory laws of venerable but doubtful ancestry — will determine the volume of sexual activity among unmarried teenagers."

In other actions today, the court:

— Agreed to decide how much of a pay raise federal employees are entitled to when they switch from blue-collar to white-collar jobs. The court will review a ruling that, if upheld, could cost the government at least $22 million in back pay.

— By a 5-3 vote, turned down the appeal of a young Texas man stripped of his parental rights to a daughter born out of wedlock and put up for adoption by her mother.

— Agreed to decide whether Amish employers and employees must pay Social Security and federal unemployment taxes. A federal judge in Pennsylvania had ruled that forcing Amish to pay such taxes violates their freedom of religion.

Challenging the California statutory rape law were lawyers for a young Sonoma County man identified in court documents only as Michael M., who is charged with statutory rape.

Michael was 17 when he and a girl identified only as Sharon, then 16, engaged in sexual intercourse.

Because Sharon was not his wife and was under 18, Michael was charged with statutory rape. He now will have to stand trial. If convicted, he could be sentenced to eight years in prison.

In his opinion, Rehnquist said, "We need not be medical doctors to discern that young men and young women are not similarly situated with respect to the problems and the risks of sexual intercourse."

Baby Hospitalized In Sexual Assault

DENVER (AP) — A 23-month-old girl was in stable condition after she apparently was kidnapped from a relative's home, sexually assaulted and dumped at a junior high school, police said.

The child was being treated this week at Denver General Hospital. Police said one youth was questioned in connection with the incident and detained at Juvenile Hall.

The baby's mother was visiting relatives in Denver when the child was reported missing, police said.

Judge Dismisses Juror In Child Custody Case

LIBERTY (AP) — Annie Mae Searles, a juror in the child custody case involving the children of Vickie Daniel, was dismissed today after family District Court Judge Sam S. Emison Jr. said she became disabled.

The case, in which Jean Daniel Murph is attempting to gain custody of Mrs. Daniel's two young children, continued with 11 jurors.

"Mrs. Searles has become disabled," Emison explained.

Mrs. Searles refused to comment on her dismissal, however, as she left the courtroom.

"Don't have time," she said as she left the jury room carrying a cake she had brought for other jurors.

Asked why she was dismissed, Mrs. Searles said she did not know.

"They didn't ask me any questions," she said. "No, I didn't have a conference."

Testimony in the suit was 45 minutes late in starting today because of a conference among attorneys in the case.

More witnesses are expected to be called today by attorneys for Mrs. Murph, sister of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., whom Mrs. Daniel is accused of murdering. Mrs. Murph wants custody of the couple's two young sons, claiming Mrs. Daniel is an unfit mother.

Mrs. Daniel spent 10 hours on the witness stand last week in the custody suit but, because of a pretrial agreement, much of her testimony concerned events that she said led up to the shooting death of her husband and, according to attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, outlined a portion of her defense on the murder charge.

"A significant part (of the defense) will focus on the right of a woman to be treated like a human being," including the right to defend herself against abuse to the point of killing, said Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Mrs. Daniel's lawyer.

On the stand, Mrs. Daniel claimed Daniel abused her mentally and physically throughout their rocky, four-year marriage.

Mrs. Murph maintains that Vickie Daniel is an unfit mother because of emotional instability.

However, several witnesses — including Mrs. Daniel's first husband, Larry Moore, and his current wife — testified that Mrs. Daniel was a good mother.

Among her more sensational claims from the witness stand, Mrs. Daniel claimed her husband came toward her angrily after she admitted throwing out a large stash of marijuana, claimed Daniel spent much of their marriage "drunk in bed," said the former speaker once exposed his buttocks to a group of boys playing basketball near the Daniel house and once sexually fondled his 3-year-old son.

Police charged Mrs. Daniel with murder after her husband was shot to death at their home the afternoon of Jan. 19. She has admitted the shooting but claims it was self-defense, and testified that Daniel beat her earlier in the day.

Court officials predicted the murder trial would begin later this spring.

Former Nazi Recalls Effort To Save Jews

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Former Nazi Munitions Minister Albert Speer says he tried at times to save thousands of Jews from the gas chambers and charges that SS Chief Heinrich Himmler ruined the Nazis' V-2 rocket program.

In his new book, Speer, who turned 76 last week, was careful not to paint himself as a hero, conceding his main motive in saving Jews was to supply labor for the Nazi war machine.

In a report Sunday on Speer's soon to be published book, "The Slave State," Der Spiegel quoted Speer as saying:

"Only very carefully did my ministry attempt to improve the lot of Jews, and surely it often took place only to keep their labor output. Thousands of Jews were given a tiny chance of escaping the mass murder."

But only a few escaped because of the determination of the leader of the SS, the Nazi elite force, to carry out the extermination campaign, the book said.

Speer's new book, Der Spiegel said, makes Himmler and his SS staff resemble the Marx Brothers.

He recalls Himmler's attempt to get the Germans to eat oatmeal for breakfast because he attributed the vigor of the English to their diet and says the SS chief also tried to produce gasoline from the roots of pine trees and alcohol from the exhaust gas of German bakeries.

He says Himmler persuaded Hitler to transfer production of the V-2 rockets from Speer's ministry to the SS and "in January 1944, instead of the planned 650 rockets, only 50 were delivered."

Near the end of the war, Himmler also got control of the production of all important weapons, Speer writes.

Speer was convicted in 1946 by the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg and he served 20 years in Spandau, West Berlin's four-power war crimes prison.

Speer's earlier two books, "Inside the Third Reich," and "Spandau Diary" were best sellers in West Germany and the United States.

Water Leaks Plague City

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The city of Hoboken, facing a water shortage, has lost millions of gallons of water because of leaks in the water system, a county grand jury has found.

Reports published recently said the Hudson County grand jury found that leaks in water mains leading from Jersey City to Hoboken cause an estimated loss of 50 million gallons a year.

The jury also found that there is no inspection program for possible leaks — even though the region currently faces a water shortage that has caused restrictions on water use.

In reviewing billing records, the grand jury also found that up to half the water bought by Hoboken's utility from Jersey City between 1970 and 1978 cannot be accounted for.

In addition, the panel found that the Jersey City Water Department cannot account for almost 50 percent of the water it says was pumped into the system from the Boonton Reservoir.

The jury recommended sweeping changes in the public utility, saying it is being run in an "inefficient manner, resulting in the waste of a precious natural resource."

Shooting Victims Identified

MERTZON (UPI) — Two men who were shot to death as they fished from a boat in Spring Creek east of town were identified today as San Angelo residents David James Adams, 32, and John Barnardon, 34.

The bullet-riddled body of one of the men was found in a boat late Sunday by other fishermen. Law enforcement officers discovered the body of the other man at the bottom of the creek.

Irion County Sheriff Delmon West said he had a suspect in custody but declined to release the suspect's name, age or hometown. He said the suspect probably would be questioned most of the day.

West said the bullets were fired from the bank into the boat, adding that several weapons were found at the scene.

Irion County Justice of the Peace Le Roy Covey said the victims were hit in their heads and the upper parts of their chests. Investigators reported finding five bullet holes in the right side of aluminum boat and one in the rear seat of the craft.

The boat was sighted by other fishermen about 7:30 p.m. at creek 7 miles east of Mertzon.

"Right at dusk, one of the fishermen saw a boat partially submerged in the water and it had a man hanging out of it," said Randy Flint, Department of Public Safety officer from Mertzon.

"A neighbor took the sheriff to the capsized boat, and we brought the body back across the river and it had several bullet holes in it," Flint said. The second body was discovered a few minutes later on the bottom of the creek.

"We found it from a boat with flashlights," the highway patrolman said. "The water's only about 4 or 5 feet deep."

DR. LAMB

Hemorrhoid Differences

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate your opinion of tying enlarged hemorrhoids. I had an examination by my doctor, and there was nothing seriously wrong, just enlarged hemorrhoids on the outside. The doctor suggested tying them. Is that a reliable procedure?

DEAR READER — Hemorrhoids are very common. They are really varicose veins of the rectal area. And I think you have misunderstood your doctor.

There are two types of hemorrhoids, the internal type and the external type. You can have both at the same time.

External hemorrhoids are the ones that cause pain and itching. There are sensory nerve fibers around the anal area under the skin.

There are no such fibers inside the rectum where the internal hemorrhoids occur. They may bleed, though, and a common cause of painless rectal bleeding is internal hemorrhoids. You can also have a fissure, or crack, of the anus which can be painful, particularly with bowel movements.

You don't tie off external hemorrhoids. If you do, the patient is going to be very unhappy because those sensitive nerve fibers will cause a lot of pain. You can tie off internal hemorrhoids — but not around external hemorrhoids.

The various methods of treating hemorrhoids are discussed in The Health Letter number 13-12, Hemorrhoids: New Treatments for an Old Affliction, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Maintaining good bowel habits and avoiding straining is important, too. Many of the commercial preparations that are highly advertised will provide no more relief for hemorrhoids than you could obtain from plain Vaseline.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In this promiscuous age, is it even safe to kiss a person's lips without the fear of contracting herpes, which is incurable, or even other diseases of which I am unaware? Is fear going to produce a class of which I am unaware? Is fear going to produce a class of unmarried celibate people?

DEAR READER — I'm not sure whether they will be married or single, but current trends certainly suggest that people will not be celibate.

Let's face it, kissing is not a healthy practice from a germ standpoint. Infectious mononucleosis is called the kissing disease because it can be transmitted that way. So can the common cold and any number of infections. But kissing has been going on for centuries and the human race is still here.

Incidentally, a lot of diseases — particularly the common cold — are transmitted by hands. So I guess we will just have to live with these problems while we find new treatments for viral diseases. Interferon may be one such treatment. There are some basic practices that even the threat of disease won't stop.

Investigators Find Top Scientist Guilty Of Unauthorized Cloning

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Internationally recognized scientist Ian Kennedy has been convicted of violating national cloning guidelines and conducting unauthorized experiments by an investigative unit of the National Institute of Health.

Kennedy, a 38-year-old virologist at the University of California, San Diego, cloned the genetic material of a rare virus not permitted to be cloned under federal safety guidelines, the unit found.

When word of the cloning incident leaked, Kennedy's research in the university's recobinant DNA laboratory generated a worldwide controversy and triggered fears among some scientists of a public backlash against all "genetic engineering" projects.

Sunday, the National Institute of Health's Executive Recombinant DNA Committee released its final report on the incident and ordered sanctions that may end Kennedy's research career.

The investigators found Kennedy guilty of cloning fragments of genetic material from semlici forest virus instead sindbis virus, which he had received approval to work with.

Kennedy has steadfastly denied he deliberately cloned the prohibited virus.

The controversial cloning experiment dealt with Kennedy's pursuit of the construction of an anti-viral gene, initially against the sindbis virus. Kennedy said he cloned the virus — which turned out to be a semliki — because he needed "a lot of the anti-viral genes to do the experiment."

The institute investigators also found that Kennedy committed a second infraction in using the viral genetic material generated by the cloning to infect mouse cells, another unauthorized recombinant DNA experiment.

Through a spokesman, Kennedy said he would have no comment on the report. He resigned from the UCSD faculty last year asserting that he was not granted a fair hearing during an internal campus investigation of the cloning.

The institute's final report concluded that "the seriousness of these infractions would be sufficient to warrant consideration of specific sanctions of remedial action if Dr. Kennedy still were receiving NIH support."

The committee recommended that if Kennedy applied for National Institute of Health research grants or support in the next two years, the reviewers should be supplied with a copy of the report on the cloning incident.

Fellow scientists concurred that being outside the field for two years could end Kennedy's research capabilities.

Crime Line Seeks Information On Burglaries

Crime Line Inc. this week spotlights two separate house burglaries in which three ceiling fans and a microwave oven were stolen.

Police were called to a home at 2150 Globe Ave. at 9:25 a.m. Tuesday, where the victim told police the living room ceiling fan had been taken, its wires neatly cut. There was no sign of forced entry into the home under construction.

About two hours later, someone kicked in the side door of a home at 5403 87th St., and two light fixtures were taken. A microwave oven was also taken in this burglary, and the stove, a door, a window and several other light fixtures were damaged.

The fixture taken in the first burglary is a Ritz model 528-Y, and is valued at $375. Loss in property and damage in the second burglary was estimated at $2,345.

Crime Line offers a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of the suspect in the burglaries. Anyone having such information is urged to call Crime Line at 741-1000. Informants may remain anonymous.

Crime Line is supported entirely by private donations. Tax-deductible contributions may be mailed to Crime Line Inc. at P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, 79457.

A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of a suspect in the more than $2,500 burglary of Walter's Automotive at 3606 Ave. A.

The victim called police at 9 a.m. Wednesday, and told investigating officers that someone had pried the hasp off of a south alley door to the business. Taken were a battery charger, a red double-deck Craftsman tool box containing assorted tools, a Super Link citizens band base radio and a Cobra XLR mobile citizens band radio.

Also taken were sixteen cases of Coca-Cola, half of them empty, 40 starter drives and a half-inch drive Ingersol impact wrench. Loss was estimated at $2,505.

A 19-inch brown portable Zenith color television set was taken in a March 15 burglary of a home at 2805 E. Eighth St., and a $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of the suspect.

Also taken were three men's suits, one from S & Q Clothiers and two from Hemphill Wells, all size 46 longs, one blue, one wine and one black. Two men's rings were taken, both gold and one with four diamonds and the other with three diamonds, and a Home Box Office receiver.

Entry was made through an unlocked south window, the items were taken from the southwest bedroom and police believe burglars left through the front door which was found unlocked.

A warrant for the arrest of Laura Young, also known as Laura Holloman and Laura Smith, has been issued from Judge Thomas L. Clinton. Information leading to her arrest will bring a $300 reward from Crime Line.

Miss Young, charged with forgery, is a black female born Feb. 21, 1961.

A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of Daniel R. Farris, a fugitive charged with revocation of probation and possession of a controlled substance.

Judge Denzil Bevers issued the warrant for the arrest of Farris, who is described as a white man born Sept. 4, 1958, 5-foot-11 and 140 pounds with blonde hair and blue eyes.

DOWN IT COMES — The 15-story Dallas Athletic Club building in downtown Dallas fell to implosion Sunday afternoon to make room for a new 50-story office building. # Newspaper Says Wood Watched By Suspects

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge whose May 1979 assassination in San Antonio prompted the most intensive federal investigation since 1963 was followed closely for four months by suspects in the case before the shooting, a Dallas newspaper reported today.

In a copyright story, the Dallas Morning News said it had learned that U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was put under surveillance after a secret meeting of three men in San Antonio, and quoted another source in San Antonio confirming that such a meeting did take place.

Neither of the sources was identified by the newspaper.

The News said the meeting, in a lawyer's office, was called to check out the movements of "a top federal official" targeted for a contract murder, according to one of the participants in the meeting.

That man, the newspaper said, has given investigators a statement in the Wood case investigation. The News said the man contends that at the San Antonio meeting he was offered $100,000 and a source of cocaine if he would provide the weapons for the murder of a high-ranking federal official and dispose of them after the killing.

He said he was told the official lived near San Antonio International Airport, according to the News. Wood's condominium was a five-minute drive from the airport, the newspaper said.

Part of the surveillance included renting a beach cabin on the Texas Gulf Coast and hiring a charter boat to cross a bay and look at Wood's vacation home there, the newspaper said.

The FBI has seized records of the men's visits to the coast, according to resort manager Brent Harding.

District May Lose Taxing Power

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Yellowhouse Canyon Water Control and Improvement District could find itself powerless to impose taxes in 1982, according to an official with the State Property Tax Board in Austin.

"They (water district officials) have no authority to generate their own tax rolls after this year," said Robert Mott, SPTB coordinator of education.

"That authority rests exclusively with the tax appraisal district," Mott explained.

However, directors for the water district have indicated they don't want anything to do with the countywide tax appraisal district, which they described as another level of bureaucracy.

And the water district board voted unanimously last Tuesday to deny payment to the appraisal district, even though participation is mandated by state law.

Fred Jones, chairman of the water district board, recommended no payment be made to the tax appraisal district because, he claims, forced participation constitutes "taxation without representation."

One of Jones's chief complaints is the water district has no say about the election of board members for the appraisal district.

Jones also said paying the $2,393 the appraisal district says it's due will force the water district to raise taxes by at least 2.6 percent.

The water district serves the Village of Lake Ransom Canyon, which numbers only about 560 residents, Jones noted. Paying the annual fee to the appraisal district would cost the water district

DEAR ABBY

Apology For Definition Wasn't Necessary

DEAR ABBY: You were right the first time and need not have apologized for using the term "concentration camps" in connection with the internment of Japanese-Americans during World War II.

I was one of 110,000 Americans of Japanese descent who were interned in what was euphemistically referred to as a "war relocation center" for the duration of the war. It was a concentration camp. What else would you call row after row of tar-papered barracks (one room per family) surrounded by barbed-wire fences and guard towers with armed soldiers on duty night and day?

This in no way belittles the experience of the Nazi Holocaust victims. That their concentration camps were also death camps and ours were not is hardly a cause for patriotic pride. Senator Hayakawa may be a recognized authority on semantics, but he can hardly be considered a spokesman for Japanese-Americans. He was born in Canada and spent the war comfortably in Chicago.

HISAKO TAKAMI, CHICAGO

DEAR MR. TAKAMI: Thank you (and the many others) who wrote to set the record straight. My Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary defines "concentration camp" as follows: "A camp where persons (as prisoners of war, political prisoners or refugees) are detained or confined."

Score: Takami, 1; Hayakawa, 0.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I was delighted to read your comments on the popular misuse of the word "hopefully," which is probably the second most commonly misused word in our language today — the first being "feel."

Ever since it became acceptable, even stylish, to be open and frank about one's feelings, otherwise educated people are saying, "I feel that he is right," or, "I feel it's a good idea." In almost all cases, they mean, "I think" or "I believe."

It's easy to remember: One feels feelings and thinks thoughts.

J.B. IN DALLAS

DEAR J.B.: I think you're right and feel as you do.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Four months ago the daughter of some very close friends of ours was married in a late-afternoon church ceremony. We sent them a very generous gift. My husband, who is in construction work, got home that day about an hour before the ceremony. He had had no lunch, so I made a sandwich for him. There wasn't enough time for him to eat, shave, shower and dress and get to the church in time for the wedding, so we decided to skip the wedding and go directly to the reception immediately following the ceremony.

When we arrived for the reception, several people told us that the bride's parents kept looking for us at the church. We found them, went up to them and apologized for missing the wedding. We told them exactly what had happened. They were very cold, said they were hurt and insulted and that our excuse wasn't good enough to suit them. Two days later I called and tried to explain again, but there was just no talking to these people!

We've heard nothing from them since. We were really sorry to have missed the wedding, but it couldn't be helped. What should we do now? We were such close friends.

ON THE OUTS

DEAR ON: Their reaction was hardly that of "very close friends." The explanation of your absence was honest and reasonable, and for them to have ended their friendship with you over it was childish. Forget it.

Q.1 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ872 ♡AQ32 ◇1052 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ◇ | 1 ♡ | Pass | ? |

What do you bid now?

A. — There is nothing to be gained and a lot to lose by introducing your spade suit. You have found an adequate fit, so why tell the opponents more about your hand than they need to know. Issue a game invitation to partner by jumping to three hearts. A jump raise of an overcall is not forcing.

Q.2 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠85 ♡KQJ6 ◇J10 ♣AJ532
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A. — Why temporize with two clubs? Counting high cards and distribution, your hand is worth a full game force of three hearts. Any other bid earns a severe reprimand.

Q.3 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠976 ♡Q72 ◇AK43 ♣Q76
The bidding has proceeded:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | Pass | 1 ◇ | Pass |
| 2 NT | Pass | ? | |

A. — You have a very useful hand, but is it enough for slam? The answer can be arrived at by simple arithmetic. Partner is showing 19-20 points and you have 11. That gives you a maximum of 31 in the combined hands, which is at least a queen short of what you would want to even consider contracting with for twelve tricks. Since you have no interest in slam, there is no need for you to bid any more than three no trump.

Q.4 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♡AK1096 ◇AJ7 ♣A9853
The bidding has proceeded:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 2 ♠ | Pass |
| ? | | | |

What do you bid now?

A. — If you are a direct person, we would not blame you for either leaping straight to six clubs or using the grand slam force in an attempt to get to seven clubs. A more scientific method would be to start off with a jump shift to three diamonds, and then support clubs vigorously. That will convey to partner that you are very short in spades and could put you on the way to bidding a grand slam with confidence, rather than just bashing away.

Q.5 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10763 ♡KQ10743 ◇6 ♣92
The bidding has proceeded:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| ? | | | |

What do you bid?

A. — With such a good suit, it is tempting to bid two hearts. However, that is a dangerous tactic, since it will force your side to the three-level on hand that is a potential misfit. To make a free bid in a suit ranking higher than the opening bidder's you need a hand of near opening bid strength. Pass. If partner can reopen the bidding, you can then come into the auction with vigor.

Q.6 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ64 ♡1092 ◇A42 ♣43
The bidding has proceeded:

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 3 ♠ | Pass | ? | |

What do you bid now?

A. — Smile, you're in slam country. But don't go ahead and bid it, or do something silly like asking for aces. Your doubleton club must flash a warning signal. For the moment, you can do more than tell partner that you are interested in slam by cue-bidding four diamonds. The next move must come from him.

Extension Homemakers Will Convene Tuesday

The South Plains District of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association will convene for its annual meeting Tuesday in Seminole.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. The general assembly will follow at 10. Coffee and cookies will be served by Gaines County ladies at that time.

Guest speaker for the event will be Mrs. Jimmy Crawford, state treasurer for TEHA. Mrs. Crawford has served in the organization as state "Family Life" chairman, District Seven director, president and council delegate for her local club, TEHA chairman, council vice-chairman and council chairman of her local county club. She graduated from Sydney Lanier High School in Austin. She attended Trinity University in San Antonio. Her home is in Ballinger, where she is active in her local church and community. She has worked as a bookkeeper.

TEHA is a part of the National Extension Homemakers Council, the largest organization of homemakers in the United States. The NEHC currently has a membership of 25,000.

TEHA supports the 4-H program, giving scholarships to deserving young people. These scholarship award winners are chosen by a state committee and awarded at the State 4-H Round-Up in College Station in June.

The South Plains District also awards a scholarship — "The Aubrey W. Russell Scholarship" — named in honor of Mrs. Aubrey W. Russell of Lubbock, past district agent, now retired.

Also speaking at the Tuesday meeting will be Mrs. Wynon Mayes of Plainview, Hale County extension agent. Mrs. Mayes also is serving as president of the Texas Association of Extension Home Economists. She will be reviewing "A Medley of Erma Bombeck."

The Gaines County Extension Homemakers will be serving a salad lunch. Tickets for the luncheon are $4 and should be purchased in advance. However, a limited number will be available at the meeting.

Entertainment during the luncheon will be provided by the Seminole High School "Pops" Quire, under the direction of Fred Mays.

Three education workshops are planned for the session after lunch: "Cultural Arts" — Swisher County; "Family Resource Management" — Lynn County; and "Safety" — Terry County.

There will be a registration fee of $1. The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Revolutionary Teaching Aids Gain Popularity

NEW YORK (Special) — Ninety-five percent of the children in school today can master any given subject well enough to deserve an "A" when they're allowed to learn at their own rate.

That positive assumption is the basis of "Mastery Learning," a revolutionary teaching technique started in the mid-60s and now used in about 3,000 schools in Chicago, Denver, New York, San Jose, and other major cities. So says a current Family Circle magazine report, "The Schools Where Everyone Gets A's," by Anthony Brandt.

Mastery learning, says Brandt, challenges the system of instruction used in most schools that insists children leasrn the same things at the same time, with no regard for the different rates at which children learn.

Research studies at schools urging mastery training, says the magazine, show that this technique is a great success with parents, teachers and — most of all — kids. A controlled study in Chicago, for example, showed that mastery-taught students studying a second language achieved scores 25 percent higher than non-mastery students.

Eighty percent of the mastery-taught students as the Edward B. Shallow Jr. High School in New York "are doing B-level work or better, which is three times the usual rate," says that school's principal.

The logistics of setting up a mastery training program vary from school to school. In Family Circle, Brandt describes one of the most innovative programs, at Johnson City, New York, where different grades are combined under a single teaching team. In that city's Harry L. Johnson Elementary School, for example, the second, third and fourth grades are combined in two groups taught by two separate teaching teams. These groups are divided into smaller subgroups (of about six or seven children) according to the students' rate of learning in a given subject, not necessarily according to their grade level. (For example, a third grader might learn arithmetic with fourth graders, reading with second graders and social studies with other third graders.)

A team of teachers, often three or four to a team, divide their time among the small subgroups, giving each child individual attention directed to his or her specific learning needs at the moment. This allows teachers to monitor each child's progress. When a student in a subgroup has difficulties with a learning task, he receives individual attention.

Benjamin S. Bloom, professor of education at the University of Chicago and chief proponent and developer of Mastery Learning, advocates in the article, breaking subjects down into short, clearly defined "learning tasks" (such as a chapter in a textbook, a group of vocabulary words, a specific math operation) and then making sure the child masters the task before moving on to the next one.

Naturally, says Brandt, there are limits on the extra time a child is given to master a specific task. Dr. John Champlin, superintendent of schools in Johnson City, N.Y., where mastery learning was introduced in 1971, notes in the magazine: "Usually it's only a matter of a few days' extra learning on any given task."

In this system, a teacher measures mastery of specific tasks with frequent tests which aren't graded unless the child has achieved mastery; if the child hasn't mastered the task, the test is used to diagnose his or her problem with the material being taught.

According to Brandt, mastery learning also has psychic benefits. Children feel better as well as learn better. The Johnson City superintendent of schools Dr. John Champlin explains: "As children enjoy success, very positive feelings toward school; they want to attend."

The Family Circle report also offers advice to parents who want to find out more about Mastery learning and suggests what they can do to have their school system adapt this technique.

QUICK SUPPER — With or without microwave, frozen creamed spinach makes Spinach-Beef Pie a quick, delicious super supper. The rice crust is a tasty touch.

Microwave Ovens Create Tasty Meals

NEW YORK (Special) — More and more households are discovering something restaurants have known for some time: microwave ovens can help you create ambitious-looking and tasting dishes in less time than conventional methods. Another great shortcut, with or without microwave, is planning meals around frozen prepared vegetables with sauce. Here, the two team up and turn out super supper dishes that need little else to make a meal. They are as long on taste as they are short on time.

Spinach Beef Pie is an inspired meal-in-a-pie that feeds six using only a half pound of meat. Microwave makes it quick. Frozen creamed spinach in boilable bag makes it delicious. And more than delicious, the frozen vegetable is so easy to prepare. You just pop it in the microwave, "pouch" and all, for three minutes thawing time, and then proceed with the recipe. The result is a prize package, with an unusual rice crust and a flavorful ground beef and creamy, custardy spinach filling. It's a supper dish suitable for family and party guest alike.

When you try these marvelous dishes, you'll be convinced that super suppers are, indeed, the wave of the future.

SPINACH-BEEF PIE

1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen creamed spinach in boilable bag
1½ cups packaged enriched pre-cooked rice
1½ tsps. butter or margarine
½ tsp. salt
1½ cups boiling water
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ lb. ground beef
1 small onion, sliced
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
3 eggs, beaten

Place vegetable pouch on non-metal plate; cut 1-inch slit near center. Cook in microwave oven for 3 minutes, just to thaw. Measure rice, butter and ½ teaspoon salt into 9-inch glass pie plate. Add boiling water and stir. Cover with aluminum foil and let stand 5 minutes. Stir in 1 egg and the cheese. Press into bottom and up sides just to rim of plate. Brown beef well with onion in skillet, adding 1/2 teaspoon salt and the pepper. Remove from heat. Mix in spinach, Worcestershire sauce and 3 eggs. Spread in rice-lined plate and sprinkle with additional grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. Place in microwave oven and heat for 15 minutes, or until set. Let stand in microwave oven and heat for 15 minutes, or until set. Let stand at least 5 minutes before cutting. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: To bake in conventional oven, thaw vegetable pouch in bowl of hot water, then proceed as directed. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes or until set.

CHIN UPS

If your chin is starting to show signs of doubling, try this firming exercise. Lie flat on your bed with your head handing over the edge. Keeping your body straight, lift head slowly until you can see your toes. Then lower head back slowly. Do five times a day to start and work up to 20.

Risks Of Working Women Cited

America's female work force numbers more than 40 million individuals. Statistically, more than one million of them can be expected to become pregnant. The potential numbers of pregnancies in the workplace merit special concern from both women of childbearing age and their employers.

Not all pregnancies are placed at risk in the occupational environment, but certain fields pose potential hazards, William D. Kuntz, M.D., M.P.H., assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, said. Kuntz is certified in the medical specialties of obstetrics and gynecology and occupational medicine, and may be the only physician in the country holding such dual certification.

The physician's job is to examine the patient's and her husband's working environment conditions as well as their medical and family medical histories, Kuntz said. If the physician finds that the pregnant woman works in a potentially hazardous environment or under particularly stressful conditions, further investigation is warranted and steps should be taken to ascertain the exact nature of her work.

Work exposure in settings with peculiar odors or exposure to substances such as benzene, lead or mercury may present risks to the fetus. Benzene is a known cancer-causing agent and prolonged exposure may result in aplastic anemia and leukemia. Lead can cause sterility, spontaneous abortion, stillbirth, birth defects, infant mortality and premature delivery. Mercury poisoning can cause cerebral palsy in the unborn infant.

If a potentially threatening situation exists, the physician could report his findings to the patient and the patient's employer in an effort to affect a transfer to a less hazardous situation. The employee should be forewarned that if a transfer is not possible, her employment might be jeopardized, Kuntz said.

In addition to environmental factors, pre-existing medical problems may be taxing to the pregnancy. Systemic, liver, cardiovascular or renal (kidney) conditions may be present in the working patient's history, and, combined with employment factors, cause the patient to evaluate working during pregnancy, Kuntz said. "Even office work can be fatiguing to a woman, especially in the second half of the last trimester of her pregnancy, but more and more firms are providing increased rest periods for pregnant women," he said.

Kuntz believes most women can continue employment without much trouble if they, with their physician, plan a suitable program. He stresses that women should not work longer than four to six weeks before delivery without consulting their doctors. Patients wo prefer to work until labor begins should be allowed to do so, following evaluation by their doctors two to four weeks before delivery. Petients should not return to work for four to six weeks following delivery.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

One of the most-often-asked questions I get from readers is, "How many children do you REALLY have?"

The answer is six.

I have the three "at home" children. They're the ones who give me varicose veins of the neck from shouting, "Sit up straight! Say thank you! Clean up your plate. Get your feet off the furniture. Don't slam that door! Turn off the lights. Go to bed. Don't talk with food in your mouth. Get off the phone. Use your napkin. Tie your shoes. Wash your hands. Pay attention! I'm only saying this once."

Then there are the three "away from home" children people tell me about, who clear their own dishes away from the table, hold the door open for them, run errands, compliment them on their brownies, help them carry the groceries in from the car and devour vegetables they never touch at home.

The first time I heard of this phenomenon, I refused to believe it. My son had gone to spend the weekend at his friend's house. There was no doubt in my mind they would send him home by 10 in the evening, convinced he was sired by a tornado and raised by werewolves.

Morning came and still there was no frantic phone call. Around noon, a joyous voice came over the phone begging me to let my son stay through dinner.

"Who is this?" I shouted. "Is this some kind of a sick joke?"

She said my son was not only a pearl to have around and talk with, but he set a spiritual example for her son by washing out the tub, hanging up his towels, making his bed, and at this very moment was cutting the grass.

"Describe this child," I ordered.

"He's seven years old, has blond hair, a wonderful smile, and impeccable table manners."

"Put him on the phone," I said suspiciously.

The next sound I heard was one large surly whine. "Whadya want? I suppose you want me to rush home and clean my room or get your glasses for you and be your slave!"

It was him all right.

Only other mothers understand this phenomenon. The child who chews other people's gum out of an ashtray at home, but returns a spoon that has dropped on the floor to the cafeteria cook. The child who throws up eating cocoanut at home, but raves about Mrs. Miller's at Scout meeting. The kid who is so sick at home he cannot come to the table for his food, but becomes hysterical laughing at the doctor's riddle in the office.

A teenager visited our home last week and when he met me said, "Didn't I see you on the cover of Glamour magazine last week?"

Why call his mother? It would only depress her.

DAVID STOCKMAN
Budget Director

Stockman Labels Oil Allowance Obsolete

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil depletion allowance, that sacred cow of Texas oilmen, gets a low mark from Budget Director David Stockman.

"My personal opinion is that it's an obsolete benefit that we probably don't need in the tax system any longer," he said last week at a Senate Finance Committee hearing.

Stockman was asked to give his personal view on the depletion allowance by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

The Texas Democrat said he was hearing a "continual rumor" that the Reagan administration was studying whether to phase out the longstanding allowance that the oil industry considers an incentive to produce.

"The administration has no positon in the sense that we have not recommended any change in the depletion allowance," Stockman replied before he was pressed to give his personal opinion.

Even though he emphasized that it was strictly his own view, the remarks set off a tremor among some oil industry supporters.

"I am surprised and shocked that anyone within the Reagan administration would even consider or publicly say they were for doing away with the depletion allowance," Rep. Kent Hance, a Lubbock Democrat, said later. "I think it's bad judgment on their part."

The oil industry considers the depletion allowance its equivalent of business depreciation, a tax break given because the natural resource used to generate oil income cannot be replenished.

The depletion allowance was established when oil prices were at rock bottom, and opponents claim that there is little need for it now that prices have soared.

Current tax policy gradually is reducing the amount that independent producers and oil royalty owners can deduct from their gross oil income on their income tax, until 1984 when the phasedown will reach 15 percent of the first 1,000 barrels of daily production.

This year the depletion allowance is 20 percent, and some Texans — including Bentsen and Hance — are calling for it to be restored to its previous 22 percent level.

Bentsen was leaving that finance committee hearing to get to another appointment when he heard Stockman start to discuss the formula to divide low income energy assistance funds among the states, a sore point in Sun Belt-Frost Belt bickering.

The Texas senator changed his mind about leaving in order to argue with Stockman, who had said he felt that the funds should go mainly to cold weather states.

"Then it's been some time since you have experienced a hot summer day and night in Texas," Bentsen said before reminding the budget director about the many fatalities in last summer's heat wave.

"And a lot of them were poor people, aged people, who couldn't afford the price of a fan, a window air conditioner, or pay that bill and had it unplugged."

Stockman, from Michigan, replied he was aware of that but still believed that last summer's heat wave had to be considered something of a fluke.

"It doesn't occur every year, but it does get cold in Michigan and Maine every winter," he said.

The budget director said there is a need to weight the distribution formula to take care of the states with the most persistent problem.

"Clearly, that is those states with very severe winter temperatures rather than those states that have sporadic or occasional severe heat in the summer," Stockman said.

The billionaire Hunt brothers of Texas and their forays into the silver market have not been forgotten by Congress, which last year conducted several hearings on the troubles they ran into when the price of silver plummeted.

Reps. Henry Reuss, D-Wisc., and Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., last week urged Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker to require the Hunts to sell their silver as had been expected to pay back a $1.1 billion bank loan.

The Hunts took out the loan as a result of their losses when silver prices dropped drastically.

"The enormous sums tied up in the bank loans to them have not only been dangerous to the market, but have highjacked from the nation's scarce supply of credit what might otherwise have gone into inflation-fighting loans for business investment, large and small," the congressmen's letter to Volcker said.

Rep. Charles Wilson, a Democrat from Lufkin, has announced he plans to resume participation in congressional trips abroad this year.

The East Texas congressman said he refrained from traveling overseas at government expense for the past three years because of press criticism of "junkets."

But Wilson told reporters the trips are necessary because he is a member of House appropriations subcommittees that dispense foreign aid and it is impossible to do the job without seeing where the money goes.

Chief Predicts Average Year For Crops

By LARRY ARNOLD
Avalanche-Journal Staff

On a scale of one to four, this year will be a three.

At least that's one way of looking at the early morning prediction of Chief Runkles, who performed the annual Taba'na Yuan'e ceremony Sunday at sunrise at the Garza County Junior Livestock Pavillion in Post.

Taba'na Yuan'e is an authentic Indian "sunrise wind ceremony" which used the wind's direction at the exact moment of sunrise each March 22 to determine the success of the coming year.

Although winds were gusting so powerfully that the ceremony had to be moved indoors, a special messenger pegged the wind direction to be from the north, northwest.

Chief Runkles prefers to predict an "average" year based on the wind ceremony but the other three choices would have been a "bumper crop" year, a "poor year" or a year "to go fishing."

The farmers who were first told about the ceremony in 1906 kept accurate records and since that time, including the years since 1973 when the ceremony became a Post Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event, the predictions have been found to be 94 percent accurate.

The wind must be from the east or northeast for the very good "bumper" crop prediction and the Taba'na Yuan'e has yet to experience the first of these.

Between 75 and 100 persons watched the ceremony and then participated in the Appreciation Breakfast sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. The high winds and chill factor may have frightened off some spectators as nearly 200 persons watched the event last year.

The ceremony began with Chief Runkles lighting the council fire in the traditional "rubbing two sticks together" way.

While his grandson Douglas Runkles kept time on the drum, Runkles' granddaughter D'Lane, both of Midland, performed the tribal prayer dance followed by the peace-pipe dance. Chief Runkles asked the blessings of the four directions and "Mother Earth who gives us food."

A dance by the grandchildren together preceded Chief Runkles rattle dance to chase away evil spirits. As he danced, his grandson noted the wind's direction and the spear with four eagle feathers was placed in the ground to mark the direction and the "average year" prediction was announced.

Chief Runkles, alias Frank A. Runkles, is the owner of The Runkles Family Collection, Indian Antiques & Artifacts in Post. He said he has taught Indian lore for 50 years and spent 30 years with the Boy Scouts of America in teaching and studying Indian lore.

The annual ceremony was changed somewhat this year by the merchants of the Post Chamber of Commerce, who offered to feed breakfast to everyone who visited for the modest fee of $1. The breakfast had previously been used for a farmers-only appreciation meal.

And with a meal like the one presented Sunday, the year already is off to a better-than-average start.

Water District May Lose Taxing Power

about $6.07 per resident, he said.

Officials at the tax appraisal district note the water district is not the only local taxing entity delinquent in its first quarter payment. By late this past week, three other units still had not paid.

But the water district apparently is the only local governmental unit that plans to refuse to pay.

The decision by water district officials to deny payment to the tax appraisal district is not unique statewide, according to Mott. "The situation has cropped up in several places around the state," he said.

One of the appraisal districts facing the most serious problems is in Palo Pinto County in North Central Texas.

Russell Graham, attorney for the Palo Pinto County appraisal district, said only seven of the 16 taxing jurisdictions served by the district have made their 1981 first quarter payments. And the district already has filed suit against the county and the City of Mineral Wells, Graham noted.

"This is the first time payments have been required," Graham said. "Everybody is a little confused about what is required of them under the law."

Graham formerly served as general counsel for the property tax board. Since entering private practice in 1979, he has represented several tax appraisal districts around the state.

"I frankly don't see any legitimate defense for jurisdictions that have refused to pay appraisal districts," Graham said.

Most of the delinquent taxing units "just have not looked down the road far enough," Graham said. "At the end of this year, all statutes under which their tax rolls are prepared will be repealed."

The taxing units that do not pay a county appraisal district will not be entitled to receive their property appraisals from the district, the attorney said. "The net effect," he said, "is they won't have a tax roll starting in 1982."

Graham estimated that between 30 and 40 tax appraisal districts in the state have one or more jurisdictions that have refused to pay.

By delaying payments to the appraisal district, Graham said, the taxing units are likely to delay the district in its property appraisals. The delinquent units probably will hurt themselves because their tax rolls will be late next year, he added.

Graham said appraisal districts have the option to sue delinquent taxing jurisdictions, seeking declaratory judgments concerning the payments. If a judgment is obtained, he said, the court can issue a writ to force an entity to pay.

Officials with the tax appraisal district here said they hope to avoid a court battle with the water district. "We intend to work with them in any way they will let us," said Roland Wilkinson, assistant chief appraiser.

Legal remedies would be used only as a last resort, Wilkinson said. "We are trying to do everything in a positive way," he added.

But if the water district or any other local taxing authority continues to withhold payments, the tax appraisal district board already has indicated its willingness to go to court, Wilkinson said.

Joe Chagra Says FBI Accepting Polygraph

EL PASO (AP) — El Paso lawyer Joe Chagra says FBI agents have agreed to accept the results of a polygraph examination Chagra took in California in connection with the 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Chagra, 34, is the younger brother of convicted drug trafficker Jimmy Chagra and attorney for convicted contract murderer Charles Voyde Harrelson. Federal authorities have told Joe Chagra that the three are prime suspects in the assassination of Wood.

"I'm not going to sit back and let them indict me for conspiring to kill the judge," Chagra said Sunday night after returning from San Antonio, where he underwent a five-hour interrogation by FBI agents.

Chagra said FBI agents refused to allow him to take a second polygraph examination — this time in the agents' presence — during the interview with Justice Department officials.

Chagra repeatedly has proclaimed his innocence in the case. Two weeks ago he spent $1,000 to take a polygraph test in Santa Ana, Calif. Chagra said he went there to take the test because of the good reputation of the polygrapher.

Chagra had planned to take the California polygraph specialist with him when he would take the second lie-detector test in San Antonio.

The three main questions asked in the California polygraph test, he said, were:

"Whether I had in fact shot Wood."

"Whether I had planned or conspired with anybody to shoot the judge."

"Whether I had any knowledge that he was going to be murdered."

Chagra said he answered "no" to each one.

Wood Slaying

matched the description of convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, one of the key suspects in Wood's death, according to the newspaper.

The other man identified as a key suspect, according to the newspaper, is convicted drug smuggler Jimmy Chagra, now serving a 30-year prison sentence at the federal correctional institute in Marion, Ill.

Chagra was to have on trial before Wood the day the judge was killed. Chagra later was tried and convicted in Austin.

Wood was shot once in the back by a sniper as he left his home May 29, 1979. Federal agents have said their efforts to find the killer have become the most intensive investigation since President John F. Kennedy was killed in 1963.

Police Warn Atlanta Citizens

ATLANTA (AP) — After a spate of confrontations with "self-defense patrols," police are warning Atlantans there will be more arrests if citizens with guns and baseball bats persist in patrolling neighborhoods frightened by a series of child slayings.

Four men arrested over the weekend were going to court today to face weapons charges.

Deputy Chief Eldrin Bell said Sunday that he will not tolerate outsiders "taking up arms and attempting to present themselves as law enforcement.

"I will continue to make arrests if they do," Bell said, before a group of about 50 demonstrators disbanded a protest at the city jail over the latest arrest.

Meanwhile, police in suburban DeKalb County announced the arrest of a second man on charges of making telephone calls claiming responsibility for some of the 20 child slayings here.

Police stressed that Billy Ray Pope, 26, arrested Saturday night at his Rome, home, and Sylvester Long, 33, who was arrested Friday at an Atlanta hotel, were not suspects in the deaths.

The two were charged with making harassing telephone calls. They were accused of telephoning the Rev. Earl Paulk of the Chapel Hill Harvester Church, who has told authorities he received calls in the past few weeks from men claiming to be the killer.

Most recently, the clergyman received a call from a man who said he killed four children, including Curtis Walker — the 20th victim — whose body was found near Paulk's church.

The patrols at Techwood Homes, a public housing project, were organized last week in response to the slayings and two disappearances since July 1979. None of the victims lived at Techwood.

Bell said he felt the police department is "perfectly capable of patrolling the neighborhood and giving it the kind of security it needs."

In addition, the vigilantes do not have unanimous support among Techwood's 5,500 residents.

Klan Wizard Wants Attack Investigated

MERIDEN, Conn. (AP) — Protesters who pelted Ku Klux Klansmen with rocks and bottles in an assault that left at least 25 people injured were part of "a clear-cut conspiracy to deny us our rights to free speech and freedom of assembly," says a national Klan leader.

Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said he hoped to meet today with Justice Department officials to request that they investigate the Saturday violence by "cowardly communists."

"We want to do all we can to see that the people involved are investigated and hopefully indicted," Wilkinson said Sunday, surrounded by heavily armed police.

A female Klan member remained in guarded condition today at Yale-New Haven Hospital after surgery for head injuries suffered when she was hit by a brick. Her name was not released.

Others who were injured, inluding five Klan members and 19 police officers, were given hospital treatment and released or did not require treatment.

The Klan rally was called in support of a white police officer who recently killed a young black man suspected of shoplifting. The officer contends the man tried to run him down with a car.

Police attempting to escort Klan members from City Hall, where they had taken refuge from an initial outbreak of violence, also came under assault.

Two Hartford men were arrested and charged with breach of peace.

Wilkinson said the Klan would sue the organizations he alleges were responsible for the violence: the International Committee Against Racism and the Communist Workers Party.

Rufus Blanshard, a founder of the International Committee Against Racism, said Wilkinson's charge that the group is communist is "red-baiting" reminiscent of the McCarthy era.

Wilkinson warned that if in future demonstrations police do not "provide assurances of safety" for Klan members, he will be forced to "activate special forces."

Surrogate Mom Fights To Keep Unborn Child

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — As the birth of her child drew nearer, "surrogate mother" Denise Lucy Thrane continued her battle for custody of the baby she once agreed to give away.

The divorced mother of three from Arcadia, Calif., agreed last year to conceive and bear a baby for James Noyes of New York City and his wife. But after she was artificially inseminated in June with Noyes' sperm, she decided she wanted to keep the infant.

Noyes and his wife sued for custody of the baby, which is due to be born any day now.

When the case went to trial Friday, Superior Court Judge Robert M. Olson said it had him "really in a quandary." The trial was to resume this week.

Over objections by Noyes and his wife, the judge ruled that Mrs. Thrane could give the baby a name. But at the couple's request, he ordered blood tests to help determine the child's father.

Olson also is considering an argument by Mrs. Thrane's lawyer that the case be dismissed on grounds that California law does not treat semen donors as natural fathers or give them custody rights.

Noyes and his wife asked Olson to give them the infant or place it in a foster home until the case is decided, but the judge deferred a decision on their request.

He also delayed ruling on their request for a study of the Thrane and Noyes households.

Pro-Khomeini Group Blamed For LA Violence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police blame supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for most of the violence in a three-hour clash with anti-Khomeini protesters that forced the closing of Wilshire Boulevard and prompted the arrests of 10 people.

Mounted police drove back the angry crowd of about 1,200 Sunday. One man was treated for a broken nose and two anti-Khomeini demonstrators were tossed into a lake as several scuffles flared up between the two groups near downtown MacArthur Park, police said.

No serious injuries were reported.

Police Capt. Robert Taylor said his officers confiscated tear gas, bottles, pipes and chains from the pro-Khomeini demonstrators.

"They're the ones throwing rocks. They're the ones beating people up," Taylor said.

Supporters of the Iranian revolutionary leader and members of the Communist Revolutionary Party gathered and began chanting "Death to fugitive criminals" hours before a scheduled 11 a.m. demonstration in the park by the anti-Khomeini Iranians in Exile group, police said.

The anti-Khomeini group held up pictures of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his son, with inscriptions in Farsi. The groups traded shouts in Farsi across the police lines.

"We're here to protest against a group of people who belonged to the Shah's regime," one pro-Khomeini demonstrator said. "They are betrayers of our revolution, and we're going to protest their presence and whatever they are going to say."

"We are hoping that soon we will be able someday to go and free the other hostages in Iran, and bring law and humanity back to the country," said Kanran Hakimi, the organizer of the anti-Khomeini demonstration.

Hakimi, 28, said his group was "protesting the illegitimate government of Khomeini and to speak out in favor of a constitutional monarchy."

Crime Higher Among Veterans Of Vietnam

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly one-fourth of the men who saw heavy combat in Vietnam have since been arrested on criminal charges, according to a government study which concludes that Vietnam veterans as a whole "are plagued by significantly more problems than their peers."

The degree of alcoholism, drug abuse and medical and psychological problems attributable to combat in Vietnam was found to be "statistically significant" by researchers in the government's most comprehensive post-war inquiry.

Vietnam combat veterans who are black or members of other minority groups were found to be severely disadvantaged in post-war schooling and jobs, the study said, noting that the age of most of those veterans now could make most of those career setbacks irreversible.

The five-volume study, to be made public today by the New York-based Center for Policy Research, was begun in 1973 by a group of Vietnam veterans with private grants. Sponsorship of the $8 million project later was taken over by the National Institute of Mental Health and the Veterans Administration.

The study was based on interviews in 10 cities with 1,340 men. Half of those interviewed were veterans and about half of those veterans had served in Vietnam.

According to reports in this week's Newsweek magazine and today's New York Times, the study said that more than one-third of heavy-combat veterans are still suffering from delayed stress reactions.

The latter figure compares with a 10 percent arrest rate among veterans of light combat, 17 percent among other Vietnam veterans.

On the other hand, the study concluded that many of veterans had been strengthened by their Vietnam experiences and were inclined to "work through" rather than suppress difficult problems.

Workers Push To Finish Repairs On Space Shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After two weeks of round-the-clock work, technicians pushed to complete repairs today on the space shuttle Columbia and clear the way for another series of tests before its scheduled maiden flight in April.

"We're not going to set the (launch) date until after we finish the remaining tests but we're still aiming for sometime in the week of April 5," Kennedy Space Center spokesman Hugh Harris said Sunday.

Before ordering the test Tuesday of repairs on the shuttle's external fuel tank, space agency officials waited for approval from an investigating board appointed last week after a fatal accident in the Columbia's engine.

"We don't know if the board has come up with any procedural changes" that would push back the test, Harris said.

He said the investigators would evaluate each test and pre-launch procedure on a case-by-case basis.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration appointed the investigating panel after one technician was asphyxiated and another critically injured Thursday upon entering a shuttle engine compartment filled with nitrogen. The accident came at the end of a countdown dress rehearsal.

Conflicting Views Mar Reagan Foreign Policy

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — Internal confusion and stalemate with the Soviet Union have marked President Reagan's foreign policy as it steams forward on a cruise that has at times given Western allies a nervous stomach.

Administration officials have spoken with conflicting voices, while differences with the Soviets, according to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., "have brought the state of world peace to a rather precarious level."

Analysis

The bobbles seem to be piling up. Last week they included:

— Remarks by a top White House adviser, Richard Pipes of the National Security Council, that angered the West Germans and made a number of West Europeans nervous.

Pipes was reported saying West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher might succumb to Soviet pressure for East-West negotiations and the Kremlin would eventually have to choose between abandoning its Communist system or war with the West.

The former Harvard historian claimed he was misquoted. His boss, NSC director Richard Allen, warned him against any more talks with reporters.

— Haig testified to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the Soviet Union had a "hit list" for domination of Central America. Salvadoran government officials accused him of having an "incredible imagination" and said his view of the Soviet threat to their country was speculative.

— Undersecretary of State Walter Stoessel said the administration had worked out contingency plans, including the use of force, to block arms supplies from Cuba to leftist guerrillas in El Salvador. Haig then said no decision had been made.

— Haig, meanwhile, through a spokesman, backed off his statement that Communists had gained control of Nicaragua as part of a programmed conspiracy to take over Central America.

— In another incident, Reagan's spokesman undercut Haig and John Bushnell, the ranking State Department policymaker on El Salvador, by saying the president did not agree with their criticism of the attention the press was giving to U.S. actions in that divided country.

— The Pentagon got on the roller coaster by first announcing that 18 of the 54 U.S. advisers in El Salvador would return home in July after completing their training missions. This indicated a cutback in the U.S. military presence. But then Defense officials came back to say the 18 might be replaced by new instructors.

Through all the ups and downs, though, the administration is steering a steady course in confronting the Soviet Union.

And that also is causing problems. Many West Europeans want to see arms control negotiations continue and stronger business and other ties with the East. They are worried that the tough U.S. line heightens tensions and risks a showdown.

NSC director Allen did not share their feelings. After keeping a low profile for two months, Reagan's adviser said Saturday that in some countries the slogan "Better Red than dead" was being heard again.

Short-Circuit Cited In Residential Fire

An electrical short-circuit apparently was the cause of a Sunday morning fire that caused substantial damage to the 2116 28th St. home of D.H. Palmer, according to Lubbock Fire Department reports.

Firefighters were dispatched to the residence at 9:04 a.m. The 18 firemen had the blaze under control in four minutes after their arrival, a fire department spokesman said.

The fire caused an estimated $1,000 damage to the structure and contents of the home. Reports indicate the heaviest damage was in the bedroom and bathroom.

No injuries were reported.

Syrians Arrest, Jail Clymore Pending Extradition Efforts

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Former American hijack hostage Craig Richard Clymore has been arrested by Syrian authorities and is in jail pending efforts to return him to the United States to answer drug smuggling charges, U.S. Embassy sources said today.

Clymore, 24, of Laguna Hills, Calif., was taken from his hotel to a Damascus prison Saturday, the embassy sources said.

Clymore was among more than 100 hostages freed March 13 in Damascus after being held for 13 days on a hijacked Pakistani airliner by three gunmen from a Pakistan opposition group. After Clymore's release the State Department revoked his passport and he stayed at a downtown Damascus hotel.

The Syrians declined today to extradite the three hijackers. A Syrian official said the three would not be turned over to Pakistan because "there is no agreement to extradite criminals between the two countries."

The official, who declined to be identified, was responding to a statement by Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, who told a news conference in Islamabad on Sunday he had asked Syrian President Hafez Assad to extradite the hijackers.

The Syrian official said the hijackers were granted "temporary stay with political asylum and will have to leave Syria in the shortest possible time," as soon as another country willing to accept them was found.

Asked if the United States would demand Clymore's return despite the lack of an extradition treaty between the United States and Syria, an embassy source who asked not to be identified said, "We are discussing this."

But Syria's response to the American request that Clymore be arrested was seen as an indication that it would cooperate.

Clymore was indicted by a federal grand jury in New York while he was being held on the plane. He and eight other people were charged in connection with an alleged conspiracy to smuggle hashish oil into the United States from Pakistan and Afghanistan.

Another freed hostage, who was traveling under a passport identifying him as Lawrence Clifton Mangum of New York City, also has been held in a Syrian jail. Canadian officials believe the "mystery man" is Lawrence Lorne, who escaped in 1976 while serving a sentence for a drug conviction.

Reliable diplomatic sources said the man had refused to confirm his identity to authorities in Syria.

The sources said a Syrian civil court judge had ordered the former "mystery man" hostage turned over to Canadian authorities, but the ruling is being reviewed by an appellate panel.

"At this point, we cannot say what will happen with his case," said one diplomatic source, who declined to be identified.

Cowboys, Singers To Give Christian Testimony

The Cowboy Chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes will hold a free public meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Municipal Coliseum.

Several professional cowboys and several local gospel singers will share their Christian testimony at the session.

The program will precede the opening round of the 39th annual ABC Rodeo, scheduled at 8 p.m. nightly at the coliseum Wednesday through Friday, according to rodeo chairman Don Stringer.

The FCA meeting will be hosted by Wilbur Plaugher, rodeo clown-bullfighter who founded the cowboy chapter of the organization.

Roger Miller will headline the rodeo, which is expected to draw more than 250 members of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Special events include the Coors "chute-out" competition, a beard-mustache growing contest and the Owens Country Sausage six-pony hitch. Bob Romer will team up with Plaugher in the arena and Bennie Beutler will furnish the stock. Hadley Barrett will serve as emcee of the rodeo. The rodeo queen, Shelly Harris of Silverton, also will make appearances.

A parade through downtown Lubbock, slated to begin at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, will kick off the four-day run. Dr. Lauro Cavazos, president of Texas Tech University, will be the parade marshal.

Proceeds of the rodeo go to the capital improvement fund of the Lubbock Boys Clubs.

Myasthenia Gravis Clinic Scheduled

South Plains and Panhandle residents can receive free diagnosis and treatment of myasthenia gravis April 3 and 4 at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

Dr. Bernard M. Patten, chief of neuromuscular diseases at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, will conduct the free MG clinic.

Patients may register for an appointment or obtain further information by calling (806) 358-3151, Extension 5440. Physicians may refer patients or individuals may register themselves.

Myasthenia gravis is a neuromuscular disease characterized by fatigue, drooping eyelid, loss of balance, double or blurring vision, a nasal-pitched voice, difficulty chewing and swallowing, loss of facial expression, slurred voice and weakness in the arms and legs.

Doctors and nurses can obtain continuing education credit for attending an MG seminar prior to the free treatment clinic. Patten will discuss diagnosis and treatment at 8:15 p.m. April 2 at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in Amarillo.

In addition to his post at Baylor, Patten also is a member of the medical advisory board of the National Myasthenia Gravis Foundation.

Jenne McVicker, secretary of the Northwest Texas MG Foundation chapter which is one of the coordinators of the annual clinic, says Patten will stress the importance of early and correct diagnosis of MG.

Also helping coordinate the clinic is the Xi Rho Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. The Edie Brooks Memorial Myasthenia Gravis Clinic in Amarillo is named for the child of a sorority member who died of MG.

Co-sponsors of the annual clinic include High Plains Baptist Hospital, Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, Northwest Texas Hospital and School of Nursing, St. Anthony's Hospital and Southwest Osteopathic Hospital.

Researchers say thousands have died without knowing they had the disease because it often is misdiagnosed as vitamin deficiency, anemia or other problems. In its mild form, one of the most basic symptoms is chronic fatigue. MG is a disease in which communication between muscle and nerve fails, rendering the patent very weak. In its fatal stages, MG can cause severe muscle weakness in the respiratory system leaving patients unable to breathe.

Calm Weather Forecast For South Plains

A-J News Services

The unpredictable weather of March was expected to be placid today and Tuesday as fair skies and light winds, contrasting with the vicious sandstorm that struck here a week ago, pamper the Lubbock area.

Temperatures were forecast to be in the upper 60s today, upper 30s tonight and low 70s Tuesday.

Winds will be out of the southwest at 10 to 15 mph today and variable at 5 to 10 mph tonight and Tuesday, weathermen said.

Skies were cloudy over Northeast Texas and Southeast Texas early today and clear over the rest of the state.

Highs were to range from the 60s in the northern half of the state to the 70s in South Texas and low 80s in the Big Bend.

Overnight lows ranged from the low 30s in the Panhandle-South Plains to the low 50s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The low was 32 in Lubbock this morning after a high of 58 Sunday.

Snow that blanketed the central Appalachian Mountains changed to rain early today as thunderstorms reached from Virginia into northern Florida and across the eastern Gulf states.

Rain and snow fell over western Montana into eastern Washington.

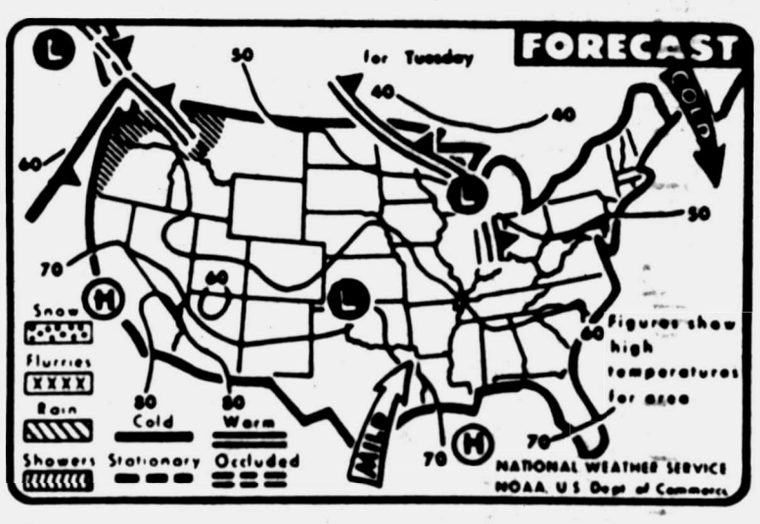
A winter-storm warning for heavy snow and strong winds was extended over the mountains of southwest Virginia early today, and gale warnings remained in effect over the coasts of Virginia, the Carolinas and Louisiana.

The wintry weather glazed roads, caused sporadic loses of electricity and forced the closure of some schools in Virginia, leaving up to 7 inches of snow in southwestern parts of the state.

After a weekend of heavy rain and thunderstorms in parts of Alabama, strong winds damaged a lumber company and two homes at Mobile on Sunday afternoon. Tornadoes and hail were reported in Alabama's Baldwin County but no damage or injuries were reported.

Rainshowers were expected to be scattered across the southern Atlantic coastal states later in the day, and rain, occasionally mixed with snow, was forecast for the Virginias. Scattered light rain was expected along the northern Pacific coast.

Temperatures ranged from 16 degrees in Montpelier, Vt., to 72 degrees in Key West, Fla.



WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is predicted Tuesday for the Pacific Northwest and into western Montana. Milder air is moving in through Texas. (AP Laserphoto)

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Registers Slight Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today, following through on Friday's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 6.22 on Friday, rose 3.60 to 996.40 by noontime today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 4-3 margin in the mid-day of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Although open-market interest rates turned upward last Thursday and Friday, analysts noted hopes for an early resumption of their recent decline.

Last week the market was turned back once again in its latest bid to gain a firm foothold above the 1,000 level in the Dow Jones industrial average. But brokers noted that it had remained within striking distance since, keeping optimists' hopes alive that another attempt might be coming soon.

American Home Products led the active list, up ⅝ at 34⅛. A 125,000-share block changed hands at that price.

Day Mines, traded on the American Stock Exchange, climbed 3 to 30, while Hecla Mining dropped 1⅝ to 34¼. Hecla proposed a merger of the two companies.

The NYSE's composite index rose .33 to 77.42. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.30 at 353.69.

Big Board volume totaled 23.07 million shares at noontime, against 25.52 million at the same point Friday.

Gold Prices Climb $26

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices rose as much as $26 an ounce in Europe today, reflecting concern over the latest labor unrest in Poland. Expectations of a halt in the decline of U.S. interest rates helped the dollar gain against major currencies.

The threat of a general strike in Poland, and possible Soviet intervention at a time of Warsaw Pact military maneuvers, had boosted the gold price $30 dollars in New York on Friday, where it closed at $540 a troy ounce.

Today, Solidarity's Warsaw chapter called off a two-hour strike and the union's national leaders called on all chapters to refrain from strike actions for the time being.

London's five bullion houses fixed a recommended morning gold price of $535.75 a troy ounce this morning, up from $516 on Friday.

In Zurich, gold traded for $537.50, up from Friday's $511.50.

Earlier in Hong Kong, gold fell $7.86 from Saturday's sharp advance to close at $535.91.

Silver was quoted in London at $13.45 a troy ounce, up from $13.17 on Friday. Silver ended last week at $13.47 a troy ounce in contracts for current delivery on New York's Commodity Exchange.

Trading in the Italian lira was calm following the Italian government's decision Sunday to devalue the lira by 6 percent against other currencies in the European Monetary System.

The lira was down 1 percent to 4 percent against EMS currencies and 2 percent against the dollar.

Sounds From Afar

LAST WEEKEND, WHILE musing about the effect of Ronald Reagan's budget cuts on the Gross National Product, a really important thought came to mind. What is Dallas Cowboy wide receiver Butch Johnson's reaction to trade talk by Denver's new coach, Dan Reeves? Reeves' first attempt to deal didn't get past midfield, but the issue still is very much alive.

Dallas president Tex Schramm said, perhaps with tongue in cheek, that he would consider swapping Johnson for Denver's All-Pro cornerback, Louis Wright. Reeves retorted that he knew the Cowboys had been asking a lot for Johnson, but that suggestion was ridiculous. Johnson, who has been demanding a chance to start, remained suspiciously silent.

This war of words and gridiron intrigue raised the possibility of an interesting and informative column. If I could get Butch to talk, he might tip me off on a deal in the making. Or he might rip the hide off the Dallas moguls.

Oh, what fun it would be to beat those smarty Big D writers to a story in their own backyard!

SO IT WAS WITH high hopes that I dialed Butch's number. A muffled voice answered. It sounded like a youngster still learning to talk or a fellow with his mouth full of peanut butter.

"Hello, Butch?" I inquired. "Is that you?"

"Ystsme. Hwhuerl."

"Hey, kid, get off the line," I snarled. "I want to speak to your dad!"

"T-h-i-s i-s B-u-t-c-h," the distant and barely audible voice slowly answered. "C-a-n y-o-u u-n-d-e-r-s-t-a-n-d m-e?"

"I can barely hear you, Butch. We must have a bad connection. Hang up and I'll get the operator to give us another line," I instructed.

"N-o-o-o. D-e-n-t-a-l s-u-r-g-e-r-y. J-a-w-s w-i-r-e-d."

There went my sensational column idea. How can you interview a guy who sounds like he has his face in a bowl of mush?

STUPID AS I AM, after a lifetime around athletes, I tried. I could understand only about half of Butch's words, but it was enough to get his meaning. I hope.

It wasn't easy, though. At one point I thought he was telling me he would not go back to the Cowboys under any circumstances. Then I discovered he was saying his wife soon would be back and could serve as an interpreter for us. We had a lot of trouble with players' names, too, before I learned that "Mottn" was Martin and "Grew" was Drew.

Whatever, I got the distinct impression that Johnson would like to play for Denver. Butch has high regard for the team and fans at Dallas, but he is frustrated by the fact that Coach Tom Landry rates him behind Tony Hill and Drew Pearson at wide receiver. Butch never has — and never will — consider himself as just another second-teamer.

The fiery pass-catcher from California-Riverside made no threats against the organization if he is not traded, although he pointed out that he will be unable to start the off-season conditioning drills with the other veteran players later this month. The dental surgery and wired jaws, you know.

Butch did say, according to my interpretation of the strange sounds coming over the line, that he would have a talk with Landry very soon (possibly today), in the hope that something can be worked out.

COWBOY FANS WILL have mixed emotions about a trade involving the scrappy receiver. Everyone would like to see Butch get a chance to start, because of his ability and crowd-pleasing enthusiasm. He is a 100-percenter, no doubt about that.

Butch has made some remarkable plays for the Cowboys during his five years with the team. Remember the diving touchdown catch against Denver in Super Bowl XII? Or his great grab of a deflected pass that beat Philadelphia in a crucial Eastern Division tussle late in 1979?

Only the Pearsons — Drew and Preston — have made more big catches than Butch during the last five seasons.

But Cowboy fans know that Preston probably will not be back this year and Drew definitely is contemplating retirement after another season or two. So the loss of Johnson would seriously deplete Dallas' strength at an important position, as well as giving a big boost to an opponent.

SOME DALLAS INSIDERS also have a sinking feeling that the Cowboys are losing the players who made the team great during the last decade, namely the super competitors who turned a good club into a championship outfit. Several teams in the NFL have had more raw physical ability than the Cowboys, especially Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, but only the Steelers could match the 'Pokes in the number of guys who never knew when they were whipped and could snatch victory out of the jaws of the Redskins, Cardinals and Rams.

Of those super competitors, Roger Staubach, Cliff Harris and Lee Roy Jordan have retired. Charlie Waters may not return because of his gimpy knee, and center John Fitzgerald won't be around much longer.

So of those super blues who were the heart and soul of the Cowboys' championship teams, only a few remain. Drew Pearson, of course, gutsy Robert Newhouse and the fierce Randy White.

If Butch leaves, the leadership loss will be much more serious than just finding another guy to grab Danny White's passes.

LSU, Hoosiers Sail

By The Associated Press

Louisiana State coach Dale Brown doesn't want his Tigers to become fat cats just because of a regional championship in the NCAA basketball playoffs.

"Tomorrow morning, when we wake up, " he said after Sunday's 96-85 decision over Wichita State in the Midwest regionals, "we'll be ready to charge the mountain again."

The "mountain" he refers to, of course, is the Final Four in Philadelphia next weekend.

The Midwest champs will go to the summit conference with the three other regional winners — Indiana, Virginia and Noroh Carolina. Indiana won the Mideast championship with a 78-46 decision over St. Joseph's (Pa.) in another game played Sunday. On Saturday, Virginia won the East with a 74-60 triumph over Brigham Young and North Carolina won the West with an 82-68 rout of Kansas State.

LSU will play Indiana and Virginia will meet North Carolina in the national semifinals, and the winners will play for the NCAA title Monday night.

In other NCAA action over the weekend, Florida Southern won the Division II championship with a 73-68 victory over Mount St. Mary's and Potsdam (N.Y.) State won the Division III title with a 67-65 overtime victory over Augustana (Ill.)

Westark (Ark.) won the national junior college tournament with a 67-50 victory over Lincoln (Ill.)

Durand Macklin led the way for LSU Saturday, scoring 21 points and collecting 10 rebounds. The Tigers were in command after Macklin and Greg Cook triggered a 14-0 burst early in the first half. Cook finished with 19 points.

When the buzzer sounded, Brown led his team across the court in the New Orleans Superdome where he and his players gestured their thanks to the supporters in a crowd of 32,474, some of them 19 stories above the floor.

Wichita State coach Gene Smithson said his players let the game get away from them midway through the first half.

"We didn't get our share of the easy buckets, and LSU got theirs," he said.

Macklin said he got some pre-game advice from Darrell Griffith, the star of the Louisville Cardinals last year when they beat LSU in the Midwest Regional championship game on their way to the national championship. Griffith has gone on to the National Basketball Association, but he and Macklin continue a friendship that began when they played against each other in the eighth grade in Louisville, Ky.

"I told him I couldn't get any sleep thinking about everything," Macklin said. "He told me to get out of the room and do something crazy. He said to play like we were going one-on-one."

Macklin did do something crazy, he said, but wouldn't say what it was. Once the game started, however, LSU's star forward was all business.

Landon Turner and Ray Tolbert each scored 14 points and anchored a fearsome front line, and guard Isiah Thomas provided direction, as Indiana overwhelmed St. Joseph's in Bloomington, Ind., and spoiled the Hawks' Cinderella season. The team from Philadelphia had won three playoff games by a total of four points before Sunday, including a 49-48 upset of top-ranked DePaul in subregional play.

The victory put Indiana into the Final Four for the second time in six years. Bobby Knight's Hoosiers won the NCAA championship in 1976, one of three in their history.

"Isiah has done a great job taking over," said Knight of his All-America guard who had 12 assists Sunday. "If you're going to be good, this leadership has to come from somebody on the floor. By doing this, Isiah not only made the team better, but it made him a better player, too."

St. Joseph's coach Jim Lynam called Indiana "a terrific defensive team. They took us out of what we tried to do very early. Baskets were very hard to come by."

Ralph Sampson led Virginia over BYU in Atlanta, scoring 14 of his game-high 22 points after intermission as the Cavaliers broke open a close game.

The victory put Terry Holland's team against North Carolina for the third time this season. They played earlier during the Atlantic Coast Conference season, with the Cavaliers winning both by close scores.

"There's not much scouting to do since we played them twice already," Virginia guard Jeff Lamp said of North Carolina. "They're very competitive and we've had two tough games with them"

Bumblebees Swarm, Win Championship

AUSTIN (AP) — The last-minute plan for Port Arthur Lincoln, which saw a 12-point lead melt to a five-point deficit to San Antonio Marshall, was simple.

The Bumblebees trailed 84-79 with 1:27 to play, but coach James Gamble knew what had to be done if Lincoln was to win its first-ever state schoolboy basketball crown.

"I felt confident we could still beat them," said Gamble. "We wanted to get it inside to Leonard (Allen) and let him put it up."

Allen, the biggest Bee of all at 6-foot-8, put on a final-minute show, scoring 10 points, blocking a shot and stealing a pass, to give Lincoln, 36-3, a 92-84 Saturday night win in the finals of the Class 5A tournament.

Three defending champs joined Lincoln as tournament winners. Snook beat Henrietta Midway 41-33 in Class A, Gladewater Sabine beat Shallowater 62-43 in Class 2A, and Beaumont Hebert squeezed by Canyon 59-57 in Class 4A.

Altair Rice took the Class 3A title with a 56-52 win over Powderly North Lamar..

Marshall's miracle-workers made it to the finals with an improbable 74-73 win over Dallas Roosevelt in the semifinals. The Rams, led by senior twins Vince and Vern Vittatoe, stayed close to Lincoln in the first half. Vern Vittatoe had 18 first-half points, including six of eight from the field.

Lincoln's running game clicked in the third period and the Bees buzzed to a 60-48 lead with 4:40 to play.

The Rams looked inspired when the final period opened, picking up several steals and tying the game at 68 when Reggie Simmons hit a layup with 6:04 to play. The Rams rolled on and led 84-79 with 1:27 to play.

Then Allen went to work, tapping in a missed free throw, hitting a soft turnaround jumper and adding six straight free throws for his 10 points in the final 55 seconds. He finished with 26 points and 15 rebounds.

The Bees outscored Marshall 13-0 after trailing 84-79 at the 1:27 mark of the final quarter.

Allen sealed the win with a blocked shot and an interception in the last 12 seconds.

"If I could bottle the feeling and sell it. I'd be a rich man," Gamble said after the game.

Marshall coach Bob Murphy split the final quarter into two parts. "The thing we did right was suck up our guts and play hard defense," he said about the strong comeback.

"What we did wrong was take a couple of bad shots," he said of the last-minute collapse.

Vern Vittatoe finished with 26 points and 10 rebounds. Brother Vince added 18 points.

Tracey Smith came off the Lincoln bench to give the Bees 14 points.

Hebert had the hardest time of the three defending champs. The quick Panthers bolted to a 51-31 lead over Canyon, but looked helpless as the Eagles took over in the last 9½ minutes.

Andre Bouttee and Donald Mickens, Hebert's top scorers, missed crucial free throws, allowing Canyon to pull within one point at 58-57 with 33 seconds to go. The Eagles had a chance to win but 6-9 Butch Bearden was called for walking with 11 seconds remaining.

Bearden fouled Mickens, who missed his first free throw but made his second. Canyon's long in-bounds pass with four seconds to play was stolen by Mickens.

Bouttee scored 22 points and Mickens 18, but they hit only 10 of 18 free throws.

David Harbin scored 16 points, Bearden 14 and Ken Walling 12 for Canyon.

Snook's win gave it its fourth consecutive championship, tying a record set by Bowie in the early 1950s It was the Bluejays seventh title, tying a record held by Buna, which won its last crown in 1963.

Clint Thomas led Snook with 20 points and 10 rebounds in the 41-33 win over Midway.

Sabine had no trouble with Shallowater, bolting to a 32-16 halftime lead. Mark Johnson, a 1980 all-tournament player, tallied 15 for Sabine, and Mark Allen — coach Carl Allen's son — had 13.

Robert Sanders led Shallowater with 20.

Altair Rice used Larry Haynes' 19 points to hold off Powderly North Lamar 56-52 for the 3A crown, its first ever. The losers were led by Merritt Williams, who posted 18 points.

Ali Unknowingly Received Stolen Funds, Times Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali received more than $1 million from the $21.3 million allegedly embezzled from the Wells Fargo Bank, according to a story in today's editions of the Los Angeles Times.

However, there is no evidence that the 39-year-old former world heavyweight boxing champion knew the funds were embezzled, the newspaper quoted sources close to the investigation as saying.

An attempt to reach Ali for comment on the report was unsuccessful. His hmme telephone has been disconnected and no new number was given.

George Caulfield, a Wells Fargo vice president, declined to comment on the story.

The Times said the information on Ali's financial transactions are contained in about 1,000 pages of documents that Wells Fargo lawyers were expected to file today in Los Angeles Superior Court.

The newspaper said it was told by sources close to the investigation that the payments, in the form of Wells Fargo cashier's checks, were personally endorsed by Ali and drawn on accounts held by the Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc. (MAPS) of suburban Santa Monica.

Ali previously has admitted receiving about $1 million for selling his name and providing other promotional help to MAPS and its founder, Harold J. Smith.

The bank is suing MAPS, Smith, L. Ben Lewis and others connected with the boxing promotions firm to recover the money allegedly embezzled.

The Times said this evidence is the first indicating that Ali received some of the $21.3 million that Wells Fargo claims was siphoned illegally from the bank over a two-year period.

Ali, a close friend of Smith, who has been charged by the bank with taking part in the bank fraud, has been interviewed by the FBI but is not considered a suspect in the probe, the Times quoted sources as saying.

Smith had claimed that his life is in danger and he is a pawn in a massive conspiracy that includes various Wells Fargo officials he has said he believes bilked the bank of between $200 million and $300 million. Smith has been in hiding for several weeks, although he has given interviews.

As recently as January, the Times quoted sources as saying, Ali was paid about $100,000 from embezzled funds. But the sources said Ali's lawyers returned the money when the scandal surfaced.

It is unclear whether the bank will try to force Ali to return some or all of the rest of the funds he received from MAPS, the Times said.

Confident Orangemen Journey To Final Four

NEW YORK (AP) — Can Syracuse win away from home?

The Orangemen, 21-11, venture from the friendly setting of their 26,000-seat Carrier Dome for the first time in two weeks tonight when they take on Purdue, 20-10, in the second game of the National Invitation Tournament semifinal double-header at Madison Square Garden. Tulsa, 24-7, plays West Virginia, 23-8, in the opener, with tonight's winners meeting Wednesday night for the title.

"Two weeks ago we would have been happy to be in any tournament. We were really down," said Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim. "But this is a different team now. Our team has really come together."

The Orangemen, only 15-11 in the regular season, have won six tournament games at the Carrier Dome in the last two weeks — three to capture the Big East Conference crown, then three in the NIT.

"There's no question that playing those six games at home was a big, big factor," said Boeheim. "We haven't had to play on the road in a long time. But we're playing so well now, I don't think it's going to make much difference where we play."

Syracuse is led by 7-foot senior center Dan Schayes, a reserve his first three varsity seasons who has blossomed into a 15.1 scorer and 8.6 rebounder. Schayes says the Orangemen, snubbed by the NCAA tournament selection committee even though they won the Big East Tourney, have put that disappointment behind them.

"We're wrapped up in this now," Schayes said of the NIT. "A lot of the guys were bitter at first, but we've beaten three really good teams (Marquette, Holy Cross and Michigan) to get to New York."

But can Syracuse win on the road?

"We've played some good basketball on the road, although we haven't won much (a 4-8 road record)," said Boeheim. "But we're such a different team now, we feel we can play well anyplace we play. And besides, we're not going far away."

That was also pointed out by Purdue coach Gene Keady, who took over the club that made the NCAA Final Four a year ago after Lee Rose left to go to South Florida.

"No matter what Jim says, Syracuse is going to have the homecourt advantage because they're going to have a lot of their fans here," said Keady, whose team relies on seniors Keith Edmonson, Drake Morris and Brian Walker, and freshman center Russell Cross.

"We're kinda psyched out after watching that 16-for-16 second half," said Keady, referring to Syracuse's third-round NIT game against Michigan, when the Orangemen hit their first 16 shots from the field in the second half en route to a 91-76 victory. "They were shooting so well. That concerns me. We'll have to get hitched up to play with a team like that."

Coach Nolan Richardson, who won the 1980 junior college crown at Western Texas JC, brought four stars from that 37-0 team with him to Tulsa and produced the winningest record in the school's history. The transfers — center Greg Stewart, guards Paul Pressey and Phil Spradling, and forward David Brown — all scored in double figures.

The key to Tulsa's success, says Richardson, came in its third game of the season, against defending NCAA champion Louisville.

"I've always thought that winning is a habit and losing is a habit," said Richardson. "I felt that if I could get the four guys I brought with me to instill that winning spirit, it would catch on. When we beat Louisville (68-60 on Dec. 4), it brought everything together."

What kind of ball does Tulsa play?

"We're not married to any system," replied Richardson. "We've played slow and got beat, we've played fast and got beat. We'll try to speed it up, press, double-team, do whatever we can to take the other team out of its game."

Coach Gale Catlett says this West Virginia team has come further than he expected.

"We have a young basketball team, with nine freshmen or sophomores," said Catlett. "At times we've been outstanding, at other times we've been horrible. These kids aren't the most talented, but they don't know that. They are unselfish and they believe in themselves. They will never give up."

West Virginia's top scorer is 6-1 guard Greg Jones, who averaged 15.7 points per game. The Mountaineers have outrebounded their opponents in 25 of their 31 games, helping fuel their running game.

"We try to fastbreak as much as we can, but sometimes we have a tendency to throw the ball up in the stands," said Catlett. "If we play with the same kind of consistency we've had the last two weeks, we could go all the way."

Pete Carlesimo, the NIT's executive director, noted that tonight's crowd will set an attendance record for the tournament. The NIT is just 150 short of last year's record total of 293,820, with the semifinals and finals yet to come.

"This Final Four compares very favorably with the NCAA's Final Four," contended Carlesimo. "Any one of them, with a basket here or there, could have been in the NCAA's Final Four."

Steinbrenner, Weaver Demonstrate Top Form

By The Associated Press

George Steinbrenner is in the warpath again and Earl Weaver has lost another run-in with the umpires. So what else is new?

Well, among other things, Bill Russell is back in the swing of things for the Los Angeles Dodgers and it looks like the Atlanta Braves can count on John "The Count" Montefusco.

Montefusco, a 29-year-old right-hander acquired in a trade with the San Francisco Giants last December, is bringing back memories of 1975 and 1976 when he won 15 and 16 games, respectively.

In 1975, he was the National League Rookie of the Year and his 215 strikeouts were the most by an NL rookie since 1911. A year later, on Sept. 29, 1976, he hurled a no-hitter against ... of all people the Atlanta Braves.

The Count has posted only 25 victories over the past four seasons but he continued his impressive exhibition work Sunday with five scoreless innings in the Braves' 8-7 triumph over the Dodgers. In three outings totaling 11 innings, he has yet to surrender an earned run.

Russell, the Los Angeles shortstop whose right index finger was shattered by a pitched ball last Sept. 12 — pins were inserted two days later — appeared in only his second spring game and collected two doubles, both off Montefusco, and a single. Russell has four hits in seven at-bats.

"I've been hitting all spring, even though I haven't been playing in games," he explained. "It's good to get back out there. I'm tired of watching."

The Braves scored in each of the first three innings against Dave Goltz, nicked Steve Howe for a run in the eighth and ripped last year's Rookie of the Year for four more in the ninth, offsetting a five-run Los Angeles rally in the bottom of the inning.

Meanwhile, the day started badly for Steinbrenner when he was informed of a published crack by Frank Cashen, general manager of the New York Mets, that the movie "Fort Apache, the Bronx" about a high crime area should have been named "Fort Apache, Yankee Stadium."

Steinbrenner said he reported the remark to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who fined the Mets $5,000 a year ago for disparaging comments about the Yankees by the head of their advertising agency. "I assume the commissioner and Mr. Wilpon (Mets' president Fred Wilpon) will take care of it," he said.

The Yankees' owner also said he never thought much of Mr. Cashen. He's not much of a man to say that. If Frank Cashen cares to come and discuss it with me in a room ... he wouldn't have the guts to say whether he really said it."

The Yankees' performance wasn't calculated to improve Steinbrenner's disposition. They lost to the Mets 9-6 as Dave Kingman hit two tape-measure home runs and Lee Mazzilli slammed a solo shot.

Kingman hit a 430-foot blast off Rudy May in the first inning and a 480-foot smash off Rich Gossage in the ninth while rookie left fielder Mookie Wilson had five hits and drove in two runs. Meanwhile, Dave Winfield, the Yankees' $15 million left fielder, went hitless in five at-bats, striking out three times and bouncing into a double play. He is batting .158 for the spring with one RBI and is 0-for-10 with runners in scoring position.

"I'm not concerned about Winfield," Steinbrenner said. "I'd be concerned if it were the Fourth of July. But we've got to put the screws on. 'Stick' (anager Gene Michael) has to put the screws to this club and we'll start tomorrow (Monday)."

Dan Duran hit a tie-breaking, three-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Texas Rangers a 10-7 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. Texas scored its first six runs against Jim Palmer, who allowed eight hits in five innings and was hurt by four Baltimore errors.

It was a finale of sorts for Baltimore manager Weaver, who begins a three-game suspension today — his fourth career suspension — for pulling his team off the field last Thursday during a game with Kansas City in a lineup-card dispute with the umpires.

American League president Lee MacPhail said the next time Weaver yanks his club off the field "I'd have to consider the most severe punishment." For his part, Weaver said he would "stage a three-day sit-out ... in support more or less of President Reagan's program. He wants more productivity and wants us to eliminate stupidity, waste, bureaucratic uselessness and red tape."

Meanwhile, home runs by Mike Ivie, Milt May and Johnnie LeMaster powered the San Francisco Giants over the Chicago Cubs 8-3. Lamar Johnson hammered a home run and two singles to lead the Chicago White Sox past the Kansas City Royals 12-5. The White Sox collected 19 hits before the game was called after eight innings. Another group of Royals dropped a 3-0 decision to Montreal behind the six-hit pitching of Bill Gullickson, Steve Ratzer, Stan Bahnsen annd Elias Sosa.

Tony Armas' 10th-inning sacrifice fly gave the Oakland A's a 10-9 victory over Cleveland, nullifying six RBIs by Jorge Orta of the Indians. Daryl Sconiers' pinch single with two out in the bottom of the ninth drove in the winning run and gave the California Angels a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Mike Phillips' pinch single capped a four-run San Diego rally in the bottom of the 10th that carried the Padres past the Seattle Mariners 12-11.

Donna Caponi Overtakes Field

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It's difficult to determine which was more eye-catching in the $200,000 Desert Inn Pro-Am over the weekend — the comeback by Donna Caponi or the comedown by Nancy Lopez-Melton.

Mrs. Caponi, the defending champion of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, opened with rounds of 74 and 75 and seemed hopelessly out of contention. She trailed the leader, Mrs. Lopez-Melton, by 10 shots halfway through the 72-hole event.

Mrs. Lopez-Melton, meanwhile, started with a 67 and followed with a 72 to take a 2-stroke advantage after Friday's second round.

Mrs. Caponi got into contention in the third round Saturday, making up eight shots by firing a 3-under-par 69 as Mrs. Lopez-Melton soared to a 77. Despite her 5-over-par score, Mrs. Lopez-Melton maintained her 2-shot advantage over the field entering Sunday's final round.

Mrs. Caponi finished with a 68 on the 6,237-yard, par 36-36—72 Desert Inn Country Club course to win the event going away. Mrs. Lopez-Melton, meanwhile, came in with a 76 and wound up in a tie for fourth place, six strokes behind Mrs. Caponi.

Mrs. Caponi, who earned $30,000, called the comeback "my best ever in terms of distance." She finished with a total score of 286.

"Lots of experience and I hit the ball well today were reasons that I won," said Mrs. Caponi, a 36-year-old veteran. "I was able to hit a lot of high, cut shots which held these hard greens. It boiled down to good course management on my part."

Kush Vows To Keep Approach In Wake Of Case's Acquittal

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Claiming he's "never been embarrassed by the way I coached," former Arizona State University football coach Frank Kush said he will not stray from his hard-nose style in the professional ranks this year.

"I have no reason to change. I have no regrets about what I've done," Kush told The Associated Press in an interview last Friday, moments before he was acquitted on a charge of punching one of his ex-collegiate players in a 1978 game.

"I know there's going to be people watching my every move now. Everytime I go near a player, I'm going to be under a magnifying glass. But I'm not concerned about that. It's the least of my worries. If I was concerned about it, I wouldn't have taken the job."

Kush, hired to coach the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League last December, is currently embroiled in a $2.2 million civil suit filed by former Arizona State punter Kevin Rutledge.

The 21-year-old Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, claims Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" following a 27-yard punt in the Sun Devils' 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

Friday, Kush was vindicated by a 5-3 jury verdict on the battery charge and won 7-1 on Rutledge's charge that Kush misrepresented a scholarship situation before the punter enrolled at Arizona State in August 1977.

"This thing is not going to follow me. It won't be a monkey on my back," said Kush. "I could care less what people think. They either believe you or they don't."

EHS Baseball Hosts Opponent

Estacado will stay at home while Coronado will go on the road in city baseball action today.

The Matadors will host Palo Duro at 4 p.m. on the Estacado Diamond and the Mustangs will travel to Amarillo to take on Caprock in another 4 p.m. starter.

Estacado, now 7-3, was a consolation finalist in last weekend's Snyder Invitational Tournament. The Mats opened the tourney with a 9-5 loss to Andrews Friday, but rebounded to whip Brownfield 17-6 to earn a berth in the consolation finals against Levelland.

The Matadors took a 3-1 lead into the fifth inning, but Levelland exploded for three runs in t hat frame and added two more in the sixth for the win. The losing pitcher was Joe Benavidez, whose record drops to 3-2. His fielders committed four costly errors.

Coronado, 7-1, has not played in over a week because its Saturday double-header against Midland Lee was blown out. The last time the Mustangs played was Saturday, March 14, when they swept a double-header from Permian 8-7 and 13-2 at home.

RAIN DELAYS TPC

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A series of thunderstorms forced a one-day postponement Sunday in the final round of the $440,000 Tournament Players Championship. Barry Jaeckel held a three-stroke lead in the chase for the $72,000 first prize with a 211 total, five under par, after 54 holes. Tied for second at 214 were John Mahaffey, Canadian Dan Halldorson and Jim Simons. Curtis Strange was next at 215.

Chaparral Wins For Rutherford

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Johnny Rutherford has served notice to the rest of the Indy car circuit that the domination in 1980 by his yellow Chaparral was no fluke.

The 43-year-old Texan, the defending national champion, overcame early handling problems Sunday and charged to victory in the season-opening Kraco Jimmy Bryan 150 at Phoenix International Raceway.

"I've felt all along we've got the fastest car," Rutherford said moments after crossing the finish line 22 seconds ahead of second-place Bobby Unser's sleek new Penske PC-9B.

Referring to statements by Unser that the Penskes and some other cars would give the Chaparral all it could handle this season, particularly on longer tracks like the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 2.5-mile oval, Rutherford said, "We'll find out in May, but I think we're capable of staying on top."

It was the first appearance for Rutherford on the one-mile oval since he flipped the Chaparral in a spectacular wreck last November and surprisingly wound up with only scratches and a sore neck. But, despite a slow start, the memory of that frightening moment didn't deter him.

Rutherford, who was third on the 22-car grid, fell back as far as fifth early in the race.

Unser, the polesitter, and Mario Andretti, who started next to Rutherford in the second row, took turns leading the race during the first 73 laps of the 150-lap event.

But Rutherford, who won his third Indy 500 and four other races last year in the ground-effects "Yellow Submarine," solved his handling problem during the first pit stop by the leaders on lap 40.

"Once we got things going okay, I found the places on the track where the car liked to run, and it was okay from there."

With Andretti's Wildcat leading and Unser in second place, Rutherford made an impressive move to take over the top spot on lap 74.

He took the Chaparral high coming out of the fourth turn, whipped past Unser and dived to the inside, taking advantage of heavy traffic to rocket past Andretti going into the first turn.

"I caught them in some traffic and everything just seemed to work out right there," he explained. "I didn't plan it, but the opportunity was there for me and I took it."

Blanton, Haigoods, Clark Winners In Drag Strip Opener

Dragster driver Jimmy Blanton was the Super class winner Sunday as Lubbock Dragway launched its 1981 racing season before a hefty crowd and with a strong competitor lineup.

Rounding out the winners' circle were Mike and Terecia Haigood of Plainview, winners in the Pro and Heavy divisions, respectively, and Craig Clark of Lubbock in Street Stock.

Blanton, of Idalou, defeated the '69 Camaro driven by Lubbock's Jim Dailey in the final round.

Haigood's '69 Roadrunner was too quick for the '67 Camaro campaigned by Manuel Pacheco of Hereford in the Pro class and Terecia's '69 Chevelle took out the '67 Camaro of Steve Kaufman, Lubbock, in the Heavy showdown.

Clark piloted a '76 Trans Am to his win over Thomas Haywood of Lubbock in a '71 Chevelle.

Driver Tandem Wins Sebring

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Standing in the victory circle, Al Holbert smiled and said, "The speeds get faster every year, and the track gets worse..."

Holbert had every reason to be happy. He and his team overcame time-robbing mechanical problems Saturday to win the 29th annual Hours of Sebring sports car race.

Holbert and teammates Hurley Haywood and Bruce Leven charged 1,274 miles through heavy traffic at an average speed of 106.004 to take the win — despite a 22-minute pit stop about 4 p.m. Saturday to repair a broken rear suspension and a 14-minute lap during which Holbert stopped on the course to repair electrical problems.

But the team had plenty of other problems with the winning car during the day. An electrical failure slowed the car in the early hours and later the team had to replace brake pads twice and the car's front end once after it was damaged when tipped by another spinning auto.

"The good teams don't compound the problems — they fix them," said the elated Holbert, who also was a winner over the treacherous, winding airport runway in the 1976 competition.

The winning team drove a Porsche Turbo, the car that dominates the International Motor Sports Association's sports car circuit. The top four finishers Saturday were using Porsche Turbos. Seventy-eight cars started the race.

Holbert wrested the lead away from the runnerup team of Ralph Kent Cooke and Roy Woods going into the 10th hour.

One serious accident marred the first six hours. Driver Chuck Kleinschmidt was hit by a Porsche Carrera driven by Nort Northam as Kleinschmidt was running through the pit area on foot.

The impact knocked Kleinschmidt onto the hood of the car and through the windshield. He was taken to Winter Haven Hospital, where he was reported in stable condition with a broken right leg and two broken arms. Officials said he appeared to have no serious head injuries.

Cycle Track Winter Racing Standouts Receive Trophies

Brandon Black won the most improved rider trophy Sunday as Lubbock Trik Trak wound up its winter cycle racing season — but wasn't around to receive it.

Brandon, 8, involved in a hot contest with Kaylom Young for the 60cc division trophy, did a forward endo that earned him an overnight stay at a Lubbock hospital for observation and treatment of bruises.

Kaylom got the 60cc trophy and doubled as the 80 Junior winner.

Other season-end trophy winners were Mark Blankenship, 80 Senior; Kent Elliff of Tulia, 100cc; Tony Wright, 125 Expert; Beaver Cottrell, 125 B; Eddie Tivis, 125 C; Gary Tucker, 250 Expert; Tommy Barber, 250 B; Ron Revert, 250 C; Cary Pendley, Open Expert; Mike Scott, Open B; Tony Schertz, Over 30 B, and Rod Christie of Muleshoe, Over 30 C.

Tim Mandrell, who rides in the 125 C division, joined Black as the other special trophy winner, taking the sportsmanship hardware.

Physician Says Underprivileged Need More Help In Cancer Fight

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In most wars, generals concentrate their forces where the threat is greatest. But in the war on cancer, those most at risk get the least help, experts say.

Repeated studies show that the poor — white and black — have the highest incidence of cancer and other disease and the lowest chances of survival. And in the United States, one-quarter of the population lives below the official poverty line, Dr. Harold P. Freeman said Sunday.

"The problem of cancer survival is not race as much as economic level," he said during the annual American Cancer Society science writers' seminar. "Poverty should not be an offense punishable by death.

"If the 25 percent of people below poverty are at greater risk of dying from cancer, more resources should be devoted to the group of highest risk," Freeman said, contending the accepted medical principle of concentrating resources on high-risk groups to improve cure rates has not been followed consistently with cancer.

The director of surgery at Harlem Hopital in New York City said studies of both white and black cancer patients show the survival rate is lower among the indigent for every type of cancer.

Two-thirds of the nation's poor are white and the other third black and Hispanic.

The National Cancer Institute recently reported that blacks, who tend to be poor, have a five-year cancer survival rate of 30 percent, 25 percent less than Americans as a whole, Freeman said.

The promptness with which poor cancer patients seek care is one factor in the survival rate, but doctors don't know what the other factors may be.

A 1977 University of Iowa study, in which almost all patients were white and everyone got the same care, indicated the survival rate for indigent patients was at least 10 percent lower than for those in all other categories, Freeman said.

Dr. LaSalle D. Leffall, past president of the cancer society, agreed with Freeman's assessment but said the situation is not hopeless. Since 1979, the society has given priority to educational programs aimed at cancer in blacks, he said.

This effort will be expanded to include other minority groups, such as American Indians and Hispanics, and will result in a second national conference on cancer and minorities in 1983, Leffall said.

The cancer society, a private group, and the federal government also have agreed to cooperate on overall programs aimed at cancer in minorities and the poor, he said.

Leffall, of Howard University Medical School in Washington, D.C., said the cancer society and the National Cancer Institute have agreed to put together a number of teams of cancer experts to work at hospitals dealing with the poor.

New Interferon Testing Has Promising Results

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Drug companies are producing a much purer form of the promising anti-viral drug interferon and initial tests indicate it works in humans.

Dr. Frank Rauscher, vice president of the American Cancer Society, which has pioneered in the interferon studies, reported Sunday the first batches of the protein made by bacteria "factories" were given to three cancer patients in January.

Initial and very preliminary results indicate the new interferon has a strong anti-viral action. Rauscher said it is too soon to know whether the interferon from bacteria will have anti-cancer activity.

Up to now, scientists have had to use interferon obtained painstakingly from human blood cells. Although the human material was diluted, studies indicated it had some anti-cancer activity as well as being an effective anti-viral agent.

This prompted drug companies to start making interferon using the new gene-splicing technology on bacteria.

The new form of interferon is 1,000 times more pure, Rauscher said.

He said the earlier studies showed that interferon produced an anti-cancer response in 25 to 40 percent of people with breast cancer and two more rare forms of malignancies. Only 10 to 15 percent of deadly malignant moles had a response.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be tactful and diplomatic in important one-to-one relationships tomorrow. Brusque actions could cause larger-than-usual problems.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) People upon whom you can normally rely may not be able to bail you out of sticky situations tomorrow. Look only to yourself for help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your priorities in order tomorrow and concern yourself more with your duties than with frivolous pursuits. Neglect may spell trouble.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to place too much emphasis on winning tomorrow in your athletic activities. Play the game for the fun of it and you'll have a better time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful tomorrow if you have to deal with someone who holds strong opposing opinions. One or both of you may let the discussion get out of hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't rely on verbal commitments in financial or business matters tomorrow. Important points should be spelled out and put in writing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Protect your self-interests tomorrow, but don't do so in ways that could offend people with whom you're involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally you're a take-charge type, but tomorrow you might let something you should be controlling slip from your hands and get fouled up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to become involved tomorrow with groups of cliques with which you don't feel comfortable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Tomorrow will be one of those days when you might struggle very hard for something, only to learn after you get it that it wasn't worth your efforts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Unfortunately, tomorrow you may be a better talker than a doer and in the process disappoint someone who was counting on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be afraid to ask hard, probing questions tomorrow if you're involved in something that could cost you out of pocket. You need all the facts.

Coalition Expected To Pass Programs

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There are people on Capitol Hill who say there are working majorities in the Democratic-controlled House as well as the GOP-led Senate to pass President Reagan's budget cuts.

That could be, because it has been true for years that party labels in Congress mean very little when ideological issues or constituent interests are at stake. And there is an entirely plausible argument that the House now contains enough conservative Democrats to give the minority Republicans the votes needed to push the Reagan program through.

That certainly was the case during the Eisenhower years, when so many Southern Democrats regularly crawled into bed with the Republican House leadership that their coalition was regarded as the controlling power bloc. The crowning achievement of that political marriage was the Landrum-Griffin labor law, the creation of a Georgia Democrat and a Michigan Republican.

Reapportionment in 1961, a GOP surge in the South and development of significant black voting below the Mason-Dixon line changed that picture in the 1960s and 1970s. Not until late in that period could conservatives of both parties make common cause with enough strength to have their way.

Now, some congressional observers believe the old coalition is going to rise again with conservative Western Democrats as well as Southerners providing the key votes for GOP economic programs.

That theory will be tested as soon as the Reagan budget cuts start reaching the voting stage in the House committees and on the floor.

That also will provide the opportunity to test another theory about Congress: that it does not require a majority of the votes in the Senate or House to kill a bill; that a disciplined minority led by people who understand the rules of Congress frequently can keep legislation from passing.

Quarter Becomes Dime In Trick

By SHARI LEWIS

Anybody can make money disappear. We all do that every day! But here's how you can turn a quarter into a dime, right before your friends' eyes. Here's what they'll see: You start by putting a quarter on the table. Next, you take a deck of cards (still in the package) and place the pack over the quarter. Suddenly, you slap the top of the papckage, lift it up, and the quarter beneath it will have changed to a dime!

Here's how its' done: When you are alone, before you start, you stick double-faced tape (two-sided tape) onto the back of the package of cards. (If you don't have double-faced tape, you can make a little circle of regular tape, with the sticky side facing OUT.) Under the quarter, you hide a dime. So when you place the pack on top of the quarter and slap it, that causes the quarter to stick securely to the package. And when you lift off the package (keeping that part of the pack facing yourself, and hidden away from the audience), the dime will be revealed!

Friday's Brain Twister: Make four double-decker boxes, using seven toothpicks to create each stack of boxes. Now by removing toothpicks, how many words can you create?

Answer: I found bell, fell, leap, peep, sell. How about you?

Today's Brain Twister: Most of you have a pet of one kind or another at your house. The following scrambled words might spell out the pet you have: BTIARB, UYPPP, LETTRU, EKNTIT, LFODIGHS. (Look for the answer in Tuesday's Kids-Only Club column.)

You can get Shari's books — How Kids Can Really Make Money, Toy Store In-A-Book, Impossible, Unless You Know How, and Spooky Stuff — four for the price of three. # Lubbockite Wounded In Assault

A Lubbock man lost a large amount of blood and was in serious condition today after being assaulted by a man who barged into his ex-wife's residence while the victim was visiting, police said.

Andy Martinez, 24, of 410 Ute St. suffered multiple injuries and was in Methodist Hospital's intensive care unit.

Martinez told police he was visiting a female friend about 12:05 a.m. today when the woman's former husband forced his way into the residence and kicked him in the head. The woman said she saw the intruder pull something from his clothing, possibly a gun, and begin beating her friend about the head.

Reports state Martinez broke free from the assailant and ran to his brother's house, where police were found him about a half hour later.

Investigators said the woman's walls were splattered with blood and a woman today there was a large pool of blood near her residence. Police said they believe the blood came from Martinez as he was fleeing to his brother's house.

Reports indicate the woman was not hurt by the suspect. No arrest had been made by early today.

In other activity, authorities today were looking for two men who allegedly robbed the Ham's Food Mart at 7901 University Ave. about 10:45 p.m. Sunday and made off with a meager $25 in loot.

Attendant Bennie Keck, 17, said he was cleaning up when the pair entered the store. The teen-ager said one suspect told him "to go about your business. We're going to rob you."

Keck said he was ordered to open the cash register after the robbers failed to do so. Police said a customer entered the store, made a purchase and left, never realizing he had just walked into a robbery in progress.

Reports state that when one of the bandits reached in the cash register he tripped the Crime Eye camera and set off an alarm. The attendant said that when he told the men they had activated the alarm they fled, running north into a residential area.

Both suspects were described as young Mexican-American men. One of the bandits was about 6-feet-7 inches tall, wearing a tan coat, white T-shirt and black pants. His companion was about 5-feet-10 inches tall, and of medium build. One man allegedly threatened the employee, but apparently no weapon was displayed in the holdup.

A 30-year-old Lubbock woman told police she was raped about 2:15 a.m. today by a man who climbed up a fire escape and crawled through a broken window.

But officers said the woman appeared intoxicated and could not tell the same story twice. Police confronted the alleged rapist, who claimed he had taken the woman home from a club because she was drunk and causing a disturbance.

Reports state the man was sober and did not appear as if he had climbed through a broken window. He was released after being questioned.

A burglary at Buck's Irrigation Engine Co., 515 Amarillo Highway, netted the thieves eight new engines, totaling about $10,800, police said.

Business owner P.D. Cunningham said the engines, which were still in their crates and stacked in a fenced-in storage yard, apparently were taken between noon Saturday and 5:30 p.m. Sunday. He said when he arrived at the business he found the gate open and a lock missing.

The engines, Cunningham said, were made by Oldsmobile.

A 32-year-old Lubbock man was arrested for alleged public intoxication and resisting arrest after he attempted to break into his former wife's house about 12:40 a.m. today.

Police said the man's father was attempting to hold his son back when they arrived on the scene. The woman said her former spouse had broken a glass door and she was afraid of the man.

Reports state the suspect scuffled with police and attempted to evade arrest.

David Eaton of 2606 32nd St. told police his car was burglarized between 5:40 p.m. and 11 p.m. Sunday while it was parked on a lot at 19th Street and Quaker Avenue. The victim said about $2,100 in CB radio equipment, scanners and his wallet were stolen.

A disturbance early Sunday morning at a 42nd Street residence left two Lubbock men with minor gunshot wounds, according to police reports.

When police arrived at the address about 3 a.m. Sunday, they found 28-year-old Scott Euresti of 1610 45th St. lying on his back on the living room floor. He had been shot once in the left leg and had suffered a deep cut to the middle of his forehead, police said.

According witnesses Euresti was wounded in a fight with the 22-year-old man who lives at the residence.

A witness said he, Euresti and another man went to the suspect's house, where the suspect was in the front yard changing a tire on a car.

The victim reportedly walked out of the house carrying a knife, and a scuffle ensued. Details of exactly what happened were unclear, but witnesses reported hearing several gunshots.

When police confronted the suspect in the back bedroom of his house, they found that he, too, had been shot in the left leg. A .25-caliber pistol was found under the mattress of the bed, reports show.

Both the victim and the suspect were treated for their wounds at Lubbock General Hospital and later released.

In other activity, a Lubbock police juvenile officer was injured Saturday night while arresting a 19-year-old Lubbock man at South Plains Mall, 6002 Slide Road, reports show.

Officer Tom Mann, working as a security guard at the mall, said in his report he saw sheriff's deputy Bill Ervin, who also was working security, chasing a man outside J.C. Penney's about 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Mann, driving a pickup truck, gave the deputy a lift, and the officers searched the parking lot for the suspect, whom Ervin had seen vandalizing a fence inside the mall.

The suspect was found squatting among some bushes in the parking lot, reports show, and he was placed under arrest on suspicion of criminal mischief and evading arrest.

As the man was being taken into custody, a second man, apparently the first suspect's companion, approached and said, "You can't do that."

The man continued to tell the officers they couldn't arrest his friend, and he too was arrested, police said.

When Mann attempted to handcuff the suspect, he pushed the officer down, but Mann grabbed the suspect's coat and Mann's forehead struck a tree branch, reports show.

Ervin then caught the suspect, and Mann handcuffed him, but the man continued to try to punch and kick the officers, police said.

The second suspect was jailed on suspicion of aggravated assault on a police officer, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Mann was not seriously injured.

Leroy Gonzales, 18, of 906 E. Stanford St. was treated and later released from Methodist Hospital after suffering a stab wound to the stomach late Saturday night.

Gonzales and his 17-year-old brother, John, told police they were at a dance at the Koko Palace, 5101 S. Ave. Q Drive, when three Mexican-American man began beating the younger Gonzales.

Leroy Gonzales told officers he was attempting to intervene when one of the suspects stabbed him in the stomach.

Conservative Trend To Benefit Thurmond

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 27 years in the Senate, Strom Thurmond is finally in position at age 78 to act on conservative views long held but never fulfilled.

Thurmond's strident views are well known on everything from the Constitution to gun control to the death penalty to school busing.

But until this year, there was little likelihood that his views would become policy. Now people listen.

It is not that the South Carolina senator was ever ignored in Washington. He has always been a formidable if unpredictable figure during a career that included his 1948 break with the Democratic Party and his Dixiecrat campaign for president as head of the segregationist States' Rights Party.

Now, though, Thurmond is the new chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, with the new Republican majority in the Senate, the election of Ronald Reagan and a conservative tilt in the country all in his favor.

Age is apparently not a limiting factor. Thurmond, who has four children aged 5 to 9, jogs daily and bypasses elevators for stairs. He appears almost as vigorous as the day in 1970 when he stood on his head in response to reporters' questions about his fitness to marry a woman half his age.

Liberal groups from the American Civil Liberties Union to Americans for Democratic Action to the National Abortion Rights League are trembling with concern over what Thurmond's committee will produce on a wide range of issues.

In fact, during the two months since the 97th Congress convened, the committee has done little, mainly because the Senate has been preoccupied with President Reagan's budget cuts.

Some congressional sources speculate that Senate Republicans are not yet anxious to be counted on votes on volatile subjects like abortion.

But in an interview, Thurmond said he expects to get at least preliminary action from his committee on limiting abortion and court-ordered school busing, restoring prayer in schools and requiring a balanced federal budget.

"I think by June the economic program will be on its way," the senator said in an interview.

In the meantime, however, Thurmond has moved swiftly to reshape the committee in line with his own views of the country and the Constitution.

Three of the most conservative new Republican senators, John East of North Carolina, Charles Grassley of Iowa and Jeremiah Denton of Alabama, were named to the committee after more moderate Republicans were passed over.

Frontiersmen, Prisoners Of War Share Oklahoma Burial Grounds

EL RENO, Okla. (AP) — Agronomists now work where Indians, settlers and horse soldiers once competed for the land, near weathered headstones that stand in military precision inside a low stone wall.

Beneath the ground lie the remains of Cpl. Patrick Lynch, killed in 1878 in a battle with the Northern Cheyenne at Turkey Run Creek in Indian Territory. There are markers for J.E. Shaffer of Co. B, 5th U.S. Cavalry, Frank Ross of the 2nd Iowa Cavalry, and dozens more.

But across another low wall, this one of brick topped by a steel stile, the thoughts of Indian wars are shattered with memories of a more recent, mechanized conflict.

There, separated from the rest of the cemetery, the tombstones bear inscriptions like "Karl Metzger, Pvt., German" and the date of his death — July 4, 1945.

The Germans and Italians came to the United States as prisoners of war, men captured in the fighting that ravaged Europe. They were imprisoned behind barbed wire and guarded by machine guns. And, unlike the Allied prisoners held in Europe, they had no hope of fleeing across the flat plains back to a nearby friendly country.

Seventy who died at the POW camp at old Fort Reno — most of them of illness — are buried in the fort cemetery. Local historians say visits from relatives have been few, and even fewer inquires have been made about having the bodies returned to their homelands.

"I remember when the trains brought them in," recalls Ray Dyer, publisher of the El Reno Tribune. "The Red Cross was down at the station with coffee and donuts and they were marched through town to the barracks that were built to house them."

Unlike POWs in some other areas, Dyer says those imprisoned here did no field work for local farmers. "There just wasn't that much to do," he says.

"We really didn't even think about them being out here," Dyer adds. "They brought them in and took them right out to the barracks. Then, when the war was over, one day they weren't here any more. They had been taken out by train before dawn to be sent home."

The small fort is about 25 miles west of present-day Oklahoma City, a site ideal for a frontier outpost, on the Chisholm Trail and the stage line between Fort Sill and Kansas.

It was named for Maj. Gen. Jesse L. Reno, one of the U.S. Army's most promising officers before he was killed at the Civil War battle of South Mountain, three days before Antietam. Its first mission in 1874 was to watch over Darlington, the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indian Agency across the North Canadian River.

Today the silence atop the undulating hill is broken only by the incessant wind ruffling the needles on the sentry-like cedars and the occasional bawl of a steer outside the gate.

Stubbornness Helped Woman In Surviving Ordeal

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — The 5-foot waves sloshed over her face, the chilly water of Lake Marion numbed her body and for a moment Lynne Heath thought about giving up and drowning. But her stubborn temper took over and she kept struggling toward shore.

"I fussed at God. I didn't want to die that way," Miss Heath, 20, said in an interview with UPI Sunday.

"My father is dead and I talked to him. I told him, 'Hey Dad, put in a good word for me with God. I'm too young to die.' I was stubborn."

The interview was the first time Miss Health has talked with the news media about the boating accident March 14 in which her fiance and two other people died. She managed to survive by swimming 90 minutes in the 52-degree water of Lake Marion until she reached shore.

Miss Heath, her fiance, Kevin Brown, 22, Kevin Morris, 20, and assistant county solicitor Harrison Heller III, 29, were on a fishing trip on the huge lake about a mile from shore when the wind picked up and the water became rough.

The gas tank in the 16-foot fiberglass boat shifted, Miss Heath said, and the boat took on water and quickly sank.

Heller — who could not swim — was the only one wearing a life preserver. The other preservers went down with the boat.

Miss Heath said they looked around for something — flotsam or a stump or anything to hold onto — but there was nothing but high waves whipping across the 20-foot-deep water.

"I didn't realize how much danger we were in," she recad. "Kevin (Brown) looked back at Kevin Morris. He couldn't have lived with himself if he had not gone back to help. Please tell everyone that he went back to help the others.

"I looked at him and I said, 'It's all right. I love you.' The look on his face is one I'll never forget.

"I started swimming toward some houses I had seen on shore. I would swim a little way and the waves would push me back. Waves would come over my head and you would have to hold your breath and then just keep going.

"I have never been a strong swimmer, but I was determined to make it. I swam with the back stroke awhile, the breast stroke, the side stroke. I saw white birds flying over and it made me mad, because I wondered why I couldn't just fly out there.

"The sun was shining and it made me feel better. I knew I had to get out of my clothes and shoes. I took off my tennis shoes and my jeans were waterlogged and heavy. I had trouble getting them off.

"Soon I had stripped down to my purple tube top and panties. I am 5-foot-2 and one-half and I weighed 122 then. I weigh 112 now. Maybe the baby fat helped with hypothermia."

Couple Found Shot To Death In McKinney Home

McKINNEY (UPI) — A middle-aged couple was found shot to death in their home, police said today.

Alonzo Tyler, 56, and his wife, Frances Tyler, 45, were both killed by a single shot to their head. Police have yet to determine whether a rifle or pistol was used. Ballistics tests were expected to be completed today.

The bodies were found by their son, Alonzo Tyler Jr., 19, who was home from college on spring vacation. The son told police he had taken his 14-month-old halfbrother for a drive and was gone about three hours. He returned, around 3 p.m., to his parents home in northeast McKinney and found them slain, police report.

The son was questioned by authorites but was not detained. He has remained in McKinney to make funeral arrangments.

"Apparently the murderer was someone they knew because there was no forced entry and no sign of a struggle," said McKinney police Sgt. Joe Barton.

McKinney police would not comment on any possible suspects. They said nothing apppeared to have been taken from the house.

Tyler's body was found in the home's den. His wife's body was discovered in the bedroom.

Police report the couple had not been dead long when the bodies were discovered. The bodies were sent late Sunday to the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office for autopsies.

Son Accused Of Throwing Mother Out Window

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A man accused of throwing his mother from an eighth-floor hospital window while shouting "Hallelujah" allegedly told police he did it because she "was keeping Jesus from returning to the world," officers said.

Police said they probably would seek a psychiatric examination for the man, whose name has not been released.

Formal charges would be prepared today, said police.

The man was arrested Saturday after Fausta Lopez of Mathis was tossed out the window to her death. He was found sitting on the floor of the hospital room, clad only in his underwear and chanting "religious stuff," police Capt. Carlos Cavazos said Sunday.

He had recently been depressed and had undergone several "religious experiences," his wife told police.

According to officers, she said she was waiting for her husband to return from the hospital room to their car when she heard glass breaking and looked up to see Mrs. Lopez falling. She heard a man at the hospital window shout, "Hallelujah," she told officers.

Mrs. Lopez, a paraplegic and recent stroke victim, had been hospitalized at the Memorial Medical Center for treatment of high blood pressure, hospital officials said. Her disability prevented her from uttering a cry for help during the incident, investigators said.

Her son, whose last name is not Lopez, was held without bond in the Corpus Christi city jail, said police.

Pilot, Passengers Safe After Crash

GRAHAM (AP) — A pilot and two passengers escaped serious injury Sunday when a light plane flipped over in mid-air and landed on its top in a field about 15 miles south of here, officials said.

Larry Raymond of Desoto and passengers Randy and Mary Fowler of Garland were treated for minor injuries at a Graham hospital and released after the 9 a.m. crash, a Young County Sheriff's Department spokesman said.

A witness told officials the plane was flying low when it flipped over and dropped into a field near State Highway 16.

Deputies said the plane was en route to Abernathy where the trio planned to attend a gun show.
