Workers relieved to find no body in rail car

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Local law enforcement officials did not find a body inside a rail car despite evidence someone had been in the compartment at one time.

By noon Thursday, all of the plastic pellets had been removed from the rail car and the only evidence found during the 22 hour off-loading process was a crushed soda can, cigarette butts and a three liter bottle of Coke.

"The off-loading provided items to show that someone had been in the tank car but did not provide a body or anything else to cause further investigation of this matter," said Capt. Lonnie Smith.

"The tank car and material will be disposed of by the company that originally manufactured the product. This department expresses their appreciation to all the parties who participated in this investigation," said Smith.

He added various law enforcement agencies and businesses were involved in the process and all were concerned a tragic event may have occurred. "(Everyone) was greatly relieved when the search ended and there was no one hurt or anyone found dead as had been believed Tuesday night when we received the information," Smith continued.

The product, PET pellets, are manufactured by Hoechst-Celanese based in Charlotte, N.C. The company had the pellets produced at a plant in Queretaro, Mexico, and the rail car took a month to travel from there to Western Container.

The investigation began after Western Container employees tested the material for purity when it arrived late Tuesday night. They discovered a foreign matter and found it to be suspicious because of the smell.

The police department was contacted and officers watched the car all night then moved it to the Benton Street viaduct for better access to off-load the pellets. The liquid foreign matter was tested at Scenic Mountain Medical Center and it contained red and white blood cells indicating a human may be inside the rail car.

"We are not sure what kind of liquid it was but we do know it was not blood. It could have been urine or liquid from a decomposing body. There was also skin particles and a high level of bacteria in the liquid. This could indicate a decomposing body or, as we later found out, the person could have had a urinary tract infection," Smith explained.

School lunches going up

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees voted to increase lunch prices for the first time in five years. The increase will go into effect for the 1995-96 school year.

Food Service Director Joann Knox addressed the board during a special meeting Thursday afternoon about her concerns of an anticipated deficit of $20,000 in her budget due to unexpected equipment replacement purchases this school year. The department does not receive any money from the district and relies on money paid for lunches and commodities from the government.

"My opinion is that in order for the food services department to continue to be self-sufficient that an increase in lunch prices is very relevant, Knox stated in a letter to the trustees dated April 21.

"A recent survey conducted by my office shows that BSISD is considerably lower in school lunch prices than surrounding school districts. During our recent Child Nutrition Program audit we were also cited for insufficient adult lunch prices. We have no choice but to increase these prices to comply with the federal regulations," Knox stated.

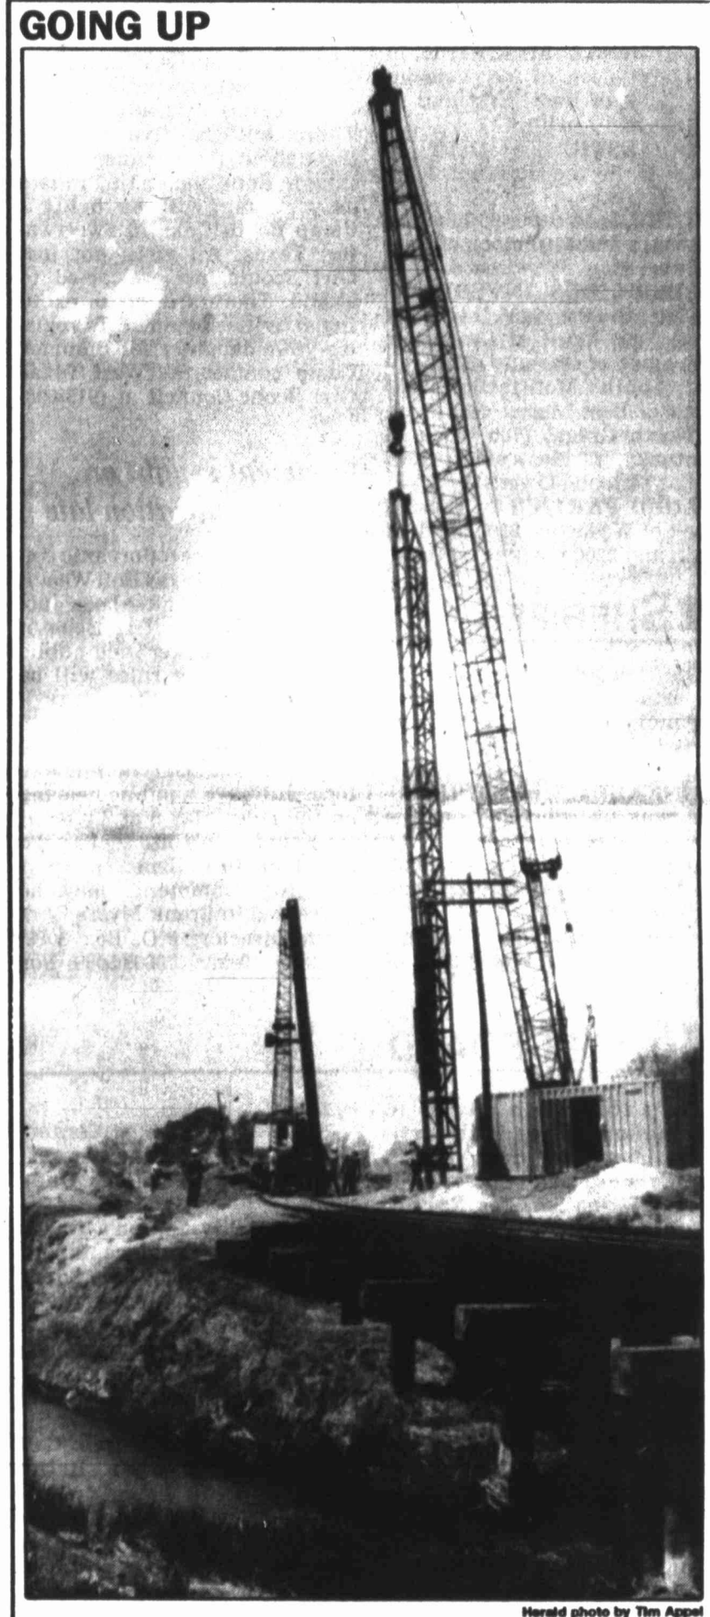

At the meeting she recommended the elementary lunches increase 20 cents a meal to $1, the secondary lunches to be raised from 95 cents to $1.25 and the adult meals from $1.55 to $1.85. Her recommendation was unanimously approved.

The district also provides food for the Meals on Wheels program and will increase the price from $2 to $2.30 per meal.

"The reason we are increasing the elementary lunches by 20

A hero to child's family

Gentle giant meets child he helped save

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — As the 6-foot, 300-pound truck driver recalls rescuing a child minutes after a bomb crumbled the federal building, the gentle giant's voice cracks and his eyes fill with tears.

"There were so many children that were hurt and that were killed," said Richard McKnight, who had just finished paying a traffic ticket with his wife a few blocks from the building when the bomb exploded.

Fifteen children were among the victims killed, five are still missing and six remain hospitalized.

"Christopher was the only child I held in my arms," said McKnight. "I thank God that he's alive today. I will always, always remember Christopher and Christopher's face."

McKnight didn't know that the 44-pound boy he carried to an ambulance was 5-year-old Christopher Nguyen until he recognized him on a television newscast Thursday, recovering in Children's Hospital.

He telephoned the hospital. "I wanted to know, I wanted to see, I wanted to meet," said McKnight, 42, who lives in Moore, a suburb of Oklahoma City.

In a tearful reunion Thursday afternoon, McKnight met Christopher's mother, Phuong Nguyen, and his father, Thu Nguyen. Mrs. Nguyen hugged McKnight and held his hand. Nguyen and McKnight embraced.

"When I first stepped in the room and saw Christopher, I definitely realized it was the child in my arms," said McKnight. "I was just overwhelmed. I was glad that he was alive."

"You're a hero to us," Mrs. Nguyen told McKnight.

"I don't consider myself a hero," McKnight said. "I just consider myself a person that has some medical background and knew that I could be of service to my city. I was just a small person that helped rescue Christopher, but thank God I was part of it."

McKnight said that in the late 1970s he drove ambulances in Oklahoma City. In the 1980s, when he was living in Dallas, he worked as an emergency medical technician and helped rescue victims from two Delta Air Lines crashes.

On Wednesday, April 19, McKnight and his wife, Lisa, were in the Oklahoma City traffic court, a few blocks from the federal building. Christopher was in a day care center in the building.

Mrs. McKnight was answer-

Tolcher sent to Oklahoma to help with relief efforts

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Salvation Army Maj. Roy Tolcher headed to Oklahoma City to help with the relief effort in the wake of the bombing of a federal building which has left more than 100 dead so far.

Tolcher was once stationed in Oklahoma City as director of Salvation Army social services, and the offices are just a few blocks from the federal building that was destroyed.

Part of Tolcher's responsibilities included being the coordinator of the Army's disaster services and canteens in Oklahoma City and surrounding areas for more than two years.

"I recognized many of the people on screen, particularly the firefighters who are doing such a tremendous job. No words can express my feelings internally as I watch the events unfold. I cry every time I see someone else I know. I worked with many of the firefighters in Oklahoma City when I was stationed there," he said.

The major joined officers from both the Midland and Odessa offices on a flight Thursday. He will join or

Blalock seeking re-election to Glasscock school board

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

GARDEN CITY - Glenda Blalock has served on the Glasscock Independent School District board of trustees for nine years and is currently seeking another term.

"I am real proud of the school. I would like to continue to maintain the school as best I can plus there are some new projects in the district that I would like to see through to the end," Blalock said when asked why she wanted to run again.

Some of the new projects underway in the district are the construction of a media center and new administration building.

"With the state mandates plus us participating in the Weighted Average Daily Attendance program, we are having to send our money out of the district. It concerns me but that is one of the laws made by the Legislature. The district is in good shape financially," she adds.

Blalock has been married for 28 years to Charles who is a rancher. She was raised in Midland, graduating from Lee High School and then from University of Texas in Austin.

They have one daughter who is attending the University of Colorado and one son who is enrolled at Midland College.

She has served as board secretary for three years.

Early voting is currently underway and anyone wanting to cast their ballots before the regular election have until May 2. You can do so at the Glasscock County Courthouse in the county clerk's office. The election is slated for May 6.

City looking for residents to serve on committee to move ballpark complex

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Members of the Big Spring City Council are currently looking for residents to serve on a committee who will make recommendations on where to move the Roy Anderson Ballpark Complex.

It was announced this month a factory outlet mall would begin construction early next year at the intersection of Highway 87 and Interstate 20. The ballpark is located there, necessitating the move before the mall can be built.

During the Tuesday's council meeting, Mayor Tim Blackshear requested residents interested being on the committee to contact their city council representative.

There will also be officials with the city's parks and recreation department selected to serve along with the organizations that use the fields.

Acting City Manager Tom Decell suggested the city use the prisoners to dismantle things and help with the moving of the ball park. City council members will submit their recommendations to the mayor and city manager at the May 9 meeting.

Failure to yield sends three to hospital

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Three people were treated and released from the hospital Wednesday night after an accident at Third and Owens streets.

According to reports, officers were called to the scene around 8:20 p.m. in reference to an accident. Marie Moreno Rodriguez, 35, of 503 Bell, was westbound in the 800 block of East Third and James Dearld Fryar, 61, of Route 1 Box 423, was northbound in the 300 block of Owens.

As Fryar entered the intersection, he struck Rodriguez's vehicle on the driver's side, causing her car to spin around in the intersection.

The accident report states Fryar said he did not see the other car because it did not have its headlights on. Rodriguez says she did have them on but turned them off after the accident.

The fire department was also dispatched to the scene and used the Jaws of Life to remove Rodriguez because her door was jammed shut. She, along with two children aged 10 and 14, were transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

A nurse at the emergency room reported all three people were treated and released.

Fryar was cited for failure to yield right-of-way at a flashing red light. He was not injured.

"We have three lunch lines at the high school plus we have to stock the snack bars. Also, the size of the portions are bigger as well," Knox continued.

Superintendent Bill McQueary pointed out more than 50 percent of the students in the district receive free meals and will not be effected by the price increase.

On Wednesday afternoon, the equipment arrived and the offloading process began around 2 p.m. About three hours later, the soda cans and cigarette butts were found. Because of some equipment problems, the process took longer than anticipated. There was 45,000 pounds of pellets to be removed.

By midnight Thursday, three-fourths of the material was removed and 12 hours later, the compartment was empty and officials were able to determine there was no one inside.

"We are considering our options to make sure this does not happen again. We will begin increasing our security at the border to check our shipments and we are changing our hatch design on the rail cars to keep anyone else from getting inside," said Patrick Buskill, manager of communications and public affairs for Hoechst-Celanese.

It is still not clear how the liquid and other evidence found its way into the compartment that was sealed when it arrived at Western Container.

ing a citation for sliding through a stop sign during a winter storm. She was fined $5.

The McKnights left the court about 10 minutes before 9 a.m., heading home southward on Interstate 35. At 9:02 a.m., the 4,800-pound bomb exploded.

"I felt the explosion in the car," McKnight said. "I saw the smoke coming from the top of the building." He instinctively turned back.

He went in the south entrance and found a crater. Rescue workers were handing out injured people.

McKnight was down on his knees, three or four steps down into the crater. A firefighter handed Christopher up to him.

Christopher was in fair condition Thursday with multiple bruises of the brain, severe cuts on his head and some possible bruises of his heart and lungs, said Jake Lowrey, a hospital spokesman.

"His condition is improving a lot," Christopher's mother said.

He has been in and out of consciousness the past few days. One thing he seems to recognize is his favorite toy, a red Power Ranger, as he reaches out his right hand and tries to hold on to one of the legs or arms for a few seconds. Mrs. Nguyen said he has been having nightmares, shaking and screaming.

Twenty years ago, Christopher's father, Thu Nguyen, 40, survived the end of the Vietnam War. An officer in the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese regime, he fled the country on April 30, 1975, the day Saigon fell to the North Vietnamese.

Thanks to people like McKnight, Christopher survived the terrorist bombing at the federal building.

For that, the Nguyens are grateful. A Disney store in San Diego had sent Christopher a Winnie-the-Pooh bear.

Court stays execution of convicted rapist-murderer

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court issued a stay for Texas death row inmate Clarence Lackey about four hours before he was to be executed for the 1977 rape and murder of a 23-year-old woman.

About 8:05 p.m. CDT Thursday, the full court granted the stay pending a federal court's consideration of Lackey's petition that carrying out his execution after 17 years on death row would amount to cruel and unusual punishment.

Lackey, 40, was sent to death row for the abduction, rape, beating and near-decapitation of Toni Diane Kumpf in Lubbock.

He won a stay last Friday from U.S. District Judge Royal Furgeson in Midland after attorneys argued that because of his lengthy stint on death row, executing him now would be cruel and unusual punishment.

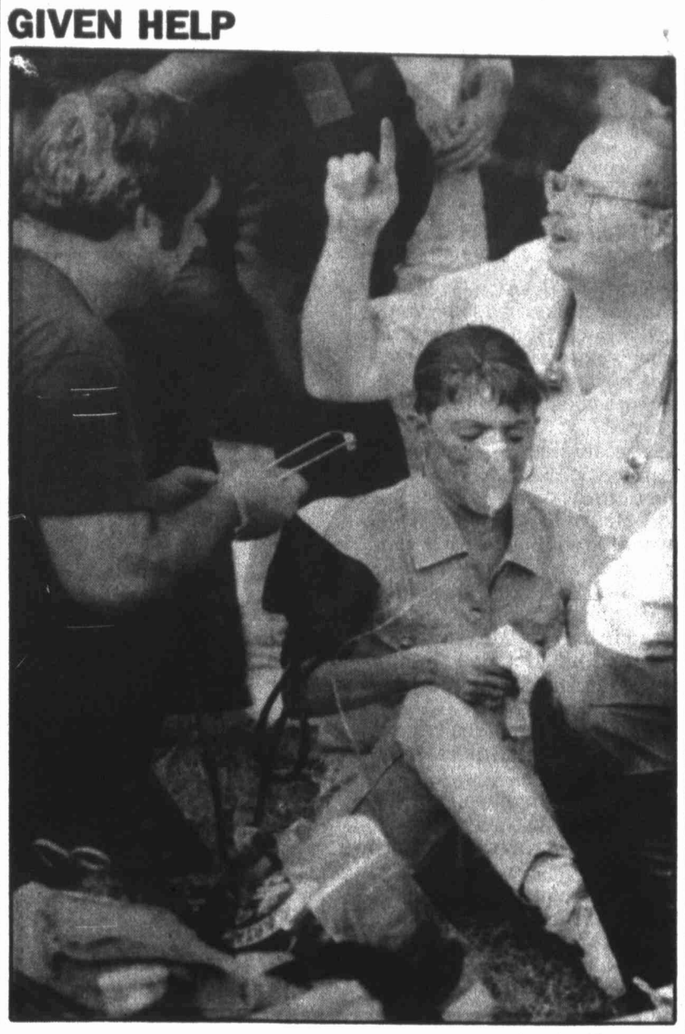

State attorneys appealed and the reprieve was lifted late Wednesday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

The argument about lengthy death row imprisonment has won some sympathy from Supreme Court Justice Paul Stevens, who last month wrote the subject was important and novel and deserved high court attention but only after it had been addressed by lower courts.

Lackey's attorneys said as a result of his lengthy death row imprisonment, the ninth-grade dropout suffered mental stress and was physically ill because he worried so much about dying.

In 1982, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals threw out his conviction, ruling a juror improperly was dismissed at his trial, which had been moved to San Angelo because of publicity about the case in Lubbock.

Sentence outrages scarred officer

HOUSTON (AP) — When the teen-ager who pumped three blasts of birdshot into officer Richard Pena was sentenced to a 30-year prison term, the permanently scarred officer was outraged.

"It's nice to know my life is worth 30 years!" Pena, yelled Thursday at defense lawyer Frances "Poppy" Northcutt.

Northcutt, meanwhile, was being complimented by other attorneys for saving her client, James Derod Balca, from a life sentence. Northcutt said nothing and left state District Judge Mike Wilkinson's courtroom in a hurry.

It wasn't so easy for Pena to leave.

The 27-year-old limps around on crutches while his left leg bears a large scar from repeated operations and his body is marked by nearly a thousand tiny wounds left by the blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun.

Pena was wounded March 9, 1994, during a routine check on the night clerk of a food store in a high-crime area. He saw two youths leave the store and he saw someone inside with a shotgun.

After radioing for help, Pena got out and was shot almost immediately in the right side. He began scrambling away and was shot again along his left side, then was hit by a third blast that was fired from about 20 yards.

Pena said 350 pellets were in each round that hit him, and that doctors opted not to remove all the tiny ones that hit him in the legs, arms and sides. A bullet-resistant vest saved him from more serious injuries.

The $2,400-a-month officer is now doing desk work at a substation.

Crying too much for father who killed son

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Only 3, John-John Torres cried a lot after his mother went to jail. His father admittedly "couldn't take it" and today he's charged with brutally killing the child.

Anthony John Torres, 37, is being held without bond at the Bexar County jail after confessing to sedating the boy, slashing his throat and leaving him soaking in his blood for six days before returning and dumping the body in a trash bin.

The gruesome details come from a statement by Torres and a police affidavit used to search his apartment Thursday. He was then taken into custody and he appeared before a magistrate Thursday afternoon.

Killing a child under age 6 is a capital offense, meaning a conviction could result in the death penalty.

Police had been warned the father may be up to something by the child's aunt, who first was told of the possibility of danger in a letter from the boy's jailed mother.

They were suspicious but couldn't confirm anything until Torres broke down Wednesday while being interviewed by a child protective services specialist.

When asked to produce the child, Torres stammered "I can't! I can't!" and he refused to answer when asked if the child was safe, the affidavit states.

A search warrant was executed at Torres' apartment early Thursday and police found what appeared to be blood spatters on a wall adjacent to a bed, apparent blood stains on a blanket and a section of the bedspring cut out.

Confronted with the evidence, Torres then gave his statement to police. He also admitted to having bought a hunting knife and to giving the boy a prescription medication so he would go to sleep on or about March 28.

Torres claimed he slit the child's throat and left him in bed. Torres left the apartment and spent three nights at a motel and another three nights under a bridge.

Upon returning to his apartment, a manager told Torres there was a "smell" coming from his home and that there were flies.

Torres said he sprinkled a disinfectant around the room to hide the smell.

Watch what you say about Brussels sprouts! Legislature passes anti-veggie libel bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Legislature has sent Gov. George W. Bush a bill that would allow agriculture producers to sue people who falsely disparage food products.

But he might not have the appetite for it.

"Can he line-item veto beets and Brussels sprouts?" quipped his spokeswoman Karen Hughes, adding, "The governor said he's also interested in looking out for his father's interests when it comes to broccoli."

Ms. Hughes said that Bush's policy advisers hadn't had a chance to review the bill, so she didn't know whether he would sign it.

The Senate passed the measure sponsored by Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, with a 29-2 Thursday. Sens. Peggy Rosson, D-El Paso, and Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, voted against it. Truan said it was a matter of freedom of speech.

"Did Senator Lucio 'beet' all opposition, or did he 'squash' all opposition?" asked Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria.

The bill earlier passed the House, which deleted a provision that would require the person who makes a disparaging statement to prove it's based on scientific data. Instead, the person suing would have to prove the statement is false.

Quote of the Day

"If we would guide by the light of reason, we must let our minds be bold."

Louis D. Brandeis, Supreme Court Justice, 1932

Saving Jessica could not save her rescuer

While we focus on the heroes both living and dead in Oklahoma City, let's take a moment to remember a fallen hero closer to home: Robert O'Donnell, who lived near Stanton.

O'Donnell became a nationwide hero Oct. 16, 1987, when television viewers watched him perform what seemed to be an increasingly impossible miracle: free Jessica McClure from a well in her aunt's back yard in Midland.

Twice he descended into a dark, dangerous shaft to free the little girl. On the second try, he succeeded, and a classic American memory was born. Video clips of the triumphant moment have been played over and over since that moment.

What couldn't be played over and over was O'Donnell's personal sense of triumph. He was the center of attention for a span of months, even playing a reporter in the television movie about the event.

The past glory of saving Jessica wasn't enough to save O'Donnell. Indeed, it may have destroyed him. "Ever since that Jessica deal, his life fell apart," the former firefighter's brother, Ricky, has said.

We may never know what finally drove him to shoot himself. What we must remember, because apparently we forgot for too long, is that while an entire nation watched, he risked his life and took a gamble to save a little girl.

We failed to remember Robert O'Donnell in life. We owe him at least a moment of remembrance in death. Jessica, if you're out there, perhaps you can say a prayer for him, too.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

Body of a mortgage broker

Bob Greene
Columnist

The message said to call my sister. I was in a hotel room on the road. When I reached her, the sound of her voice registered the terrible news even before the three words could sink in.

"Leon was murdered," she said, that last word pronounced with a combination of mourning and fury and pure despair.

She didn't say his last name, and she didn't need to. She lives in California now and I live in Illinois, and it has been 30 years since we were kids on the streets of the peaceful central Ohio town that we both love so much, love so much now and in memory. When you're kids in a town like that, it's as if everyone you know is a member of the cast of characters in some long-running, free-form stageplay. It's a stageplay that's never supposed to end -- at least you don't think of it ever ending when you're young -- and the characters require no last names. Tim asked Sherry out for Friday night. Rick broke his arm at football practice. Wendy got a job as a lifeguard at the pool this summer.

Leon was murdered.

That's not supposed to be a part of the stageplay. "Police Find Broker Shot to Death." That was the headline above the brief story about the murder of Leon in the Los Angeles Times. Broker? "The body of a mortgage broker who had been shot to death after returning from a Clippers game was discovered Thursday morning, authorities said." So Leon was a mortgage broker. That somehow didn't seem any more right than the murder itself. Is this how it's destined to end? With a newspaper headline that says you were a broker, and that the police have found your body?

The part about the Clippers game at least made sense. Every basketball game, every football game, every pro wrestling match, Leon was always there. The arenas had changed -- had the year been 1965 instead of 1995, Leon would have been watching a basketball game in the high school gym in the town where we lived instead of at the Los Angeles Sports Arena in the town where he died -- but at least that much about Leon hadn't changed. He loved to watch sports, and he loved to listen to music. "The body of a mortgage broker ..."

The shocking thing is that it isn't shocking. In the most recent year for which figures are complete, there were 23,760 murders in the United States. It's quite common. The day is coming fast when everyone will probably have known someone who was a victim of murder. The details of Leon's murder -- what an awful phrase, "Leon's murder," as if it's something he possesses -- may offer clues to what happened to him, but very few clues to what has happened to us.

Found dead in his own garage, police said. May have been followed home, police said. Shot once in the upper body, police said. Car missing -- stealing the car may have been the motive, police said.

I called my friends from the town where we all grew up -- the fellow actors in the stageplay that was supposed to go on forever. Not believe it? Not believe a murder? Of course we believed it. As peaceful and safe as our world always seemed -- always was -- Leon's murder wasn't even the first murder of a man who had once been a boy in the neighborhood. Safe neighborhood, safe town. The boy who lived in the house right next door to mine also grew up to be a man who was murdered. He was murdered a few years ago, a few miles away from the neighborhood; Leon was murdered in his garage in California. Big country; no escape.

Who is supposed to solve this, make sense of it? On the day of the murderous bombing at the Oklahoma City federal building last week, the FBI agent in Oklahoma giving briefings to the press was another one of us, another boy from our old town -- another character from our stageplay that once seemed so easy. Friend of mine, friend of Leon's. First name Dan. Now an FBI agent trying to explain what is unexplainable.

My friends back home were crying as we talked about Leon. Crying for him, crying for all of us, in every town. A story in a Los Angeles paper said that Leon, on his way to the Clippers game the night he was murdered, was playing a collection of oldies he had just bought. "He was listening with fond memories," a friend who had ridden with him to the game said. Going to a basketball game, just like when the stageplay was new. Listening to the same songs as when the fond memories weren't memories, but were forming and being acted out, lived out, every cloudless day.

Ex-lawmaker's son arrested in 1983 KFC murders

HENDERSON (AP) — While an ex-lawmaker's son went silently to jail on five capital murder indictments, relatives of restaurant kidnapping victims were vocal about their 1983 slayings.

"We're so thrilled about the indictments," Lana Maxwell Chiles, the widow of victim David Maxwell, said Thursday. "We waited so long for this man to go to trial. We are encouraged. But there is no honor among thieves."

In addition to Maxwell, 20, other victims included Joseph (Joey) Johnson, 20, Monte Landers, 19, Mary Tyler, 37, the assistant manager of the restaurant, and Opie Hughes, 39, another employee.

They were kidnapped Sept. 23, 1983, during a $2,000 robbery at around closing time at the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Kilgore, about 110 miles east of Dallas. Their bodies were found on an oil lease in neighboring Rusk County the next day. Each victim had been shot in the head.

James Earl Mankins Jr. was in Rusk County Jail today in lieu of $2.5 million in bonds after a special grand jury indicted him Thursday afternoon in the slayings of those abducted from a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, in announcing the indictments, said grand jurors' terms have been extended three months to consider any additional evidence, with the belief that others were involved in the shooting deaths.

"We are going to seek justice. I believe that the nature of the crimes that were perpetrated here speaks for themselves," he said. "Frankly, in my personal opinion, I would characterize what occurred not really as acts of murder. I believe these were acts of coldblooded execution."

His eyes shaded by dark, round sunglasses, the handcuffed Mankins appeared before state District Judge Donald R. Ross, who ordered him held on $500,000 bonds in each of the five counts.

The judge also agreed to appoint Mankins an attorney after the defendant's sworn statement that he was poor and could not afford one.

"Judge Ross, at this time I have no attorney. I am indigent and need an attorney immediately," Mankins, wearing blue jeans and a green shirt, said in a handwritten statement to the court. "I have turned myself in to Rusk County and seek your consideration."

Mankins quietly answered that he understood his rights with, "Yes, sir." He offered no comment to reporters as he was led across the street to jail.

"I felt bad when I seen him — that's how I felt," said Jimmy Johnson, the older brother of victim Joseph Johnson. "I had never seen him until today.

"I've never felt like he (Joey) was at peace until now," said Johnson.

The attorney general, who took over the case from local authorities in November 1993, declined to discuss evidence or what led to the indictments in what he termed a complex, difficult case. Prosecutors have not announced whether the death penalty will be sought.

"We have made a determination about what we are going to seek in this case," said Morales.

"I know that there is a high degree of interest in this case, particularly in this part of the state. However, we intend to bend over backwards in terms of proceeding with a prudent and cautious approach," he said. "The victims and the victims' family members and the residents of this community have waited 12 years for justice."

Mankins was identified as a suspect in an affidavit filed in March by Morales' office to support issuing a warrant requiring him to give blood for DNA testing.

The 42-year-old suspect was linked to the slayings by a torn fingernail discovered on Johnson's body during an autopsy, according to an affidavit filed by investigators.

Attorney J. Paul Nelson, who was representing Mankins in March, said earlier that Mankins contended the fingernail in question was not his.

Mankins' father, owner of a Kilgore transportation company, served several terms as a Democrat in the state House of Representatives. James "Jimmy" Mankins Sr., 69, was re-elected in 1982 but ousted in the next election.

Morales would not elaborate on how many others might be suspects or whether police believe Mankins was the shooter.

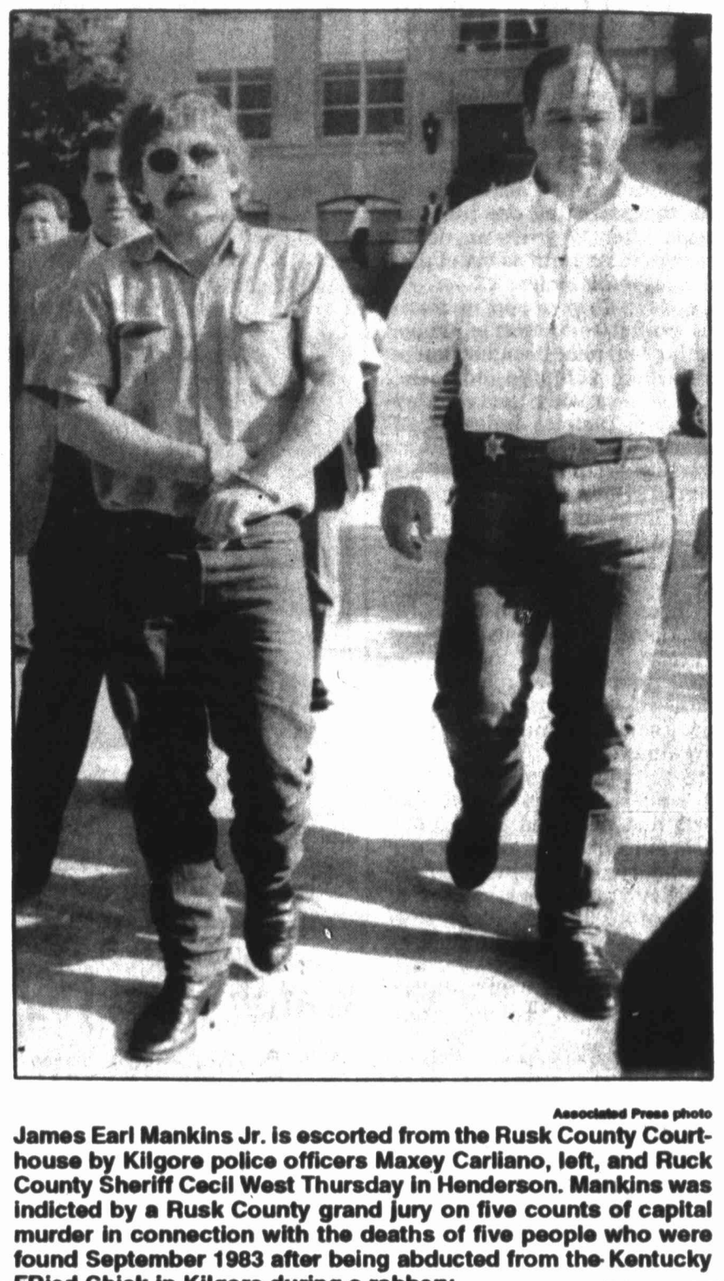

"It is our belief that Mr. Mankins was not the only person involved in regard to the perpetration of these crimes," Morales said.

For Maxwell's widow, Mrs. Chiles, and other victims' relatives who came to the courthouse Thursday, the indictments were bittersweet.

Johnson's mother, Kathryn Hamilton, was wearing one of her son's shirts with his name emblazoned on the back.

"It was his favorite shirt. I thought today might be a good day to wear it — for good luck," Mrs. Hamilton said, pleased that it paid off with the indictments.

But she added, "I'll always be angry (about the killings). It's something you can't ever get over. I don't know why it took so long. We're finally going to get some justice."

Workers rush a gurney into the Oklahoma City Medical Examiner's building in downtown Oklahoma City Thursday. More than 100 people have been confirmed dead in the April 19 car bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

McVeigh sightings mount; manhunt continues for second suspect

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — One witness spotted Timothy McVeigh driving a rental truck toward the federal building. Another saw him minutes later, speeding away in a car just before an explosion ripped through the building.

The alleged sightings, and those of several other witnesses, are part of the mounting evidence against the only person charged so far with the deadly April 19 bombing.

A manhunt continued today for a second suspect, known only as "John Doe No. 2" — who authorities fear may bomb again.

At a hearing Thursday, U.S. Magistrate Ronald Howland found sufficient evidence to hold McVeigh without bail pending a trial. A grand jury will be asked to return an indictment. McVeigh, 27, is charged under a federal anti-terrorism statute that carries the death penalty.

"I could not imagine a more heinous offense than this," federal prosecutor Merrick Garland told Howland.

The death toll stood at 110 today, including 15 children killed in the destruction of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

At the building, a firefighter and an FBI agent sustained minor injuries overnight, and a major part of the search was called off early today after a slab of concrete broke loose and slid into the area that held a Social Security office and day care center, Assistant Fire Chief Jon Hansen said.

Hansen did not know when the search could continue in the area known as "the pit," where firefighters expect to find many bodies. Authorities had expected to have all the bodies out by early next week, but Hansen said that may no longer be possible because of the delay.

"It sets us back at least 50 percent," he said. "We made good progress in the past two days and to be only 50 percent effective yesterday is very frustrating."

During McVeigh's preliminary hearing, FBI Special Agent John Hersley testified for four hours, describing accounts of several witnesses. He also testified that authorities fear John Doe 2 may strike again.

The success of the manhunt may hinge on Arizona license plate LZC646.

When McVeigh was stopped by a state trooper less than 90 minutes after the explosion, his yellow Mercury Marquis was missing the plate. The FBI is still looking for the plate, said Special Agent Weldon Kennedy, in charge of the investigation.

Investigators have recovered a videotape showing that the "plate was on a vehicle in Oklahoma City before the blast," according to a federal law enforcement source.

FBI want better tools to fight domestic terrorism threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning that "the face and hand" of terrorism are changing, FBI Director Louis Freeh wants better intelligence-gathering tools to prevent another Oklahoma City-type bombing.

If it had expanded resources, the FBI would use them without trampling on constitutional protections, Freeh promised at a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing Thursday.

"We must intensify our focus on the threat to America from within by individuals and domestic groups who may have no foreign connections," Freeh said, testifying for President Clinton's new anti-terrorism proposals.

"Intelligence ... should not be considered a dirty word. The FBI is entirely comfortable with the Constitution, due process rights, congressional oversight, legal process, and the American jury system."

Jamie Gorelick, the deputy attorney general, presented Clinton's plan, which she said carried a price tag of $1.25 billion over five years, including the addition of $150 million to the current 1995 budget.

"We think we have a strong and solid and cohesive approach," she said.

Clinton wants to hire 1,000 new law enforcement personnel, place traceable materials in chemicals, make terrorism a federal crime, and allow the FBI to gather more information about potential domestic terrorists. Among the proposed methods: giving the FBI better surveillance techniques and access to credit reports and telephone records in terrorism cases.

"The face and the hand of terrorism are changing dramatically," Freeh said.

Committee Chairman Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. introduced legislation Thursday that encompassed many of Clinton's proposals — but added language to curb appeals by death row inmates.

That move upset Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., who said that controversial issue should be fought out in separate anti-crime legislation.

Herion sales up as dealers slash prices to attract younger users

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heroin sales are reported to be picking up, attracting younger users with prices in some areas as low as $3 a bag, the government's anti-drug office reports.

"Heroin of high purity continues to be a major story in many areas of the country with use in the Northeast and South having stabilized at a high level or with increasing use," Lee P. Brown, director of the White House Office on National Drug Control Policy, said Thursday.

Brown's quarterly report on national trends in drug abuse also said that heroin is attracting younger users and that cocaine and marijuana are readily available across the country.

While older users still dominate the heroin market, researchers in New York, Colorado, New Jersey, Connecticut, California and Georgia interviewed by Brown's office said that younger users are increasing.

Police in New York, Seattle and Washington reported similar trends, but treatment providers said the average heroin user they see remains essentially the same: over 30 years old and male.

"Street sales of heroin are reported as brisk, with areas like Connecticut reporting as many as seven or eight sellers on a single street corner," according to the report.

Hutus welcome home hostile

Hutu refugees, one who's face was hacked and set on fire, recuperate after treatment in Butara, Rwanda, following attacks by the Rwandan Tutsi-led army on the Kibeho camp in southwestern Rwanda. More wounded are arriving in the hospital from Kibeho where the standoff continues between the Rwandan army which is trying to empty the camp and Hutu refugees who are afraid to move.

NGENDA, Rwanda (AP) — It was a scene being played out across southern Rwanda: Widows stood outside the town hall, angrily pointing out suspected killers among the Hutu refugees returning home.

In villages such as Ngenda, survivors of last year's massacres are slowly coming eye-to-eye with those they say slaughtered their families.

The welcome for the returning Hutus was hostile — but far worse may lie ahead.

Human rights workers say unless Rwanda's shattered justice system can identify and punish the guilty, the return of refugees will end in disaster.

"People have to have some faith that the guilty are going to pay for their crimes," Alison DesForges of the New York-based Human Rights Watch/Africa said Thursday. "Until that happens there is no starting point whatsoever."

About 200,000 ethnic Hutus were returning home this week after the new Tutsi-led army forced them out of refugee camps in southwest Rwanda.

The Hutus are members of the ethnic majority blamed for shooting, bludgeoning and hacking to death at least half a million Rwandans last year, most of them minority Tutsis.

As they arrived in the tiny, hillside villages throughout this lush farming country, some were pulled out and arrested as suspects in the bloodletting, then locked up in health clinics, shops or abandoned houses hastily turned into jails.

In Ngenda, about 25 miles south of Kigali, there were nearly 300 prisoners, some held in an open field. They were selected from more than 2,000 returnees brought to the town hall to be registered before being allowed home.

Those arrested were accused of being members of the Interahamwe, the Hutu extremist militia blamed for killing thousands with clubs, machetes, guns and hand grenades.

"They were pointing at people they don't like and saying 'you're Interahamwe,'" said Viateur Simugomwa, one Hutu who registered and was allowed to continue home. "But maybe they were Interahamwe and maybe they weren't."

In Rusatira, another village just north of Butare, about 300 accused Hutus were crowded into a cell, and 28 of them died of suffocation.

The international Red Cross, which visits and monitors detainees worldwide, said it had no estimate of the number of those arrested in Rwanda this week.

Human rights observers said the number was sure to grow as thousands still in transit centers reached their villages.

The forced homecomings could eventually double the national prison population, which stood at about 30,000 a week ago, DesForges said.

For many, just being in prison here is a death sentence. Even before this latest wave of arrests, U.N. officials said prisoners were dying daily of exposure, dysentery and other diseases in Rwanda's filthy, overcrowded lockups.

Months after the international community pledged to rebuild the Central African nation's shattered judicial system, there is still no hope of speedy trials for the accused.

The Justice Ministry still lacks equipment, investigators and money to prepare its cases. And it has not found enough judges and lawyers to replace those slain in the genocide or who fled following it.

"Unless and until it appears that the legal system will begin functioning effectively, an increase in false accusations, reprisal killings and general lawlessness is inevitable," said DesForges.

Despite the problems, the Rwandan government is unshaken in its determination to punish those responsible for the genocide, because it says survivors will turn to revenge.

Noose around Sarajevo tightens

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian government and Croat troops jointly fought rebel Serbs in the northeast, but front lines remained unchanged, U.N. officials said today.

Two days before a collapsing four-month truce expires, fighting flared on a number of fronts, with Bosnian Serbs tightening the noose around Sarajevo. An aid worker was wounded on his way to the besieged capital.

The warring sides issued conflicting accounts on the battlefield situation in the northeast, and Lt. Walt Natynczyk, a U.N. spokesman in Zagreb, said he could not confirm any gains by either side. "But no significant changes were reported," he said.

The Croatian state-controlled HINA news agency spoke of a "great victory" of joint Bosnian government and Croat forces around Brcko, 75 miles northeast of Sarajevo.

It claimed that after bitter fighting late Thursday, Serbs had been pushed from the villages of Boderiste and Vranovaca, located on the narrowest point of a key corridor of land, controlled by the Serbs, which stretches from western Bosnia to Serbia proper.

A Bosnian Serb military spokesman said that Vranovaca had always been in government hands and Boderiste was recaptured only after being seized by the Serbs shortly before.

Bosnian Serb local TV showed footage of what it said were some 20 dead Croat soldiers in several trenches.

Heavy fighting was also reported in several other trouble-spots in Bosnia on Thursday and this morning. Explosions and skirmishes occurred in Sarajevo.

Platform collapse leaves 13 dead in New Zealand

GREYMOUTH, New Zealand (AP) — Thirteen college students and a park guide plunged 100 feet to their deaths today when a wooden viewing platform on a cliff collapsed onto rocks below.

Officials said the platform, which overlooked a spectacular narrow valley, was built three years ago and was designed to carry the weight of only 10 people.

Police are investigating claims that 18 people crowded onto it before it collapsed.

The students, from the nearby town of Greymouth, were on a field trip at Cave Creek in the Paparoa National Park, a rugged and remote forest on the west coast of New Zealand's South Island.

Senior Sgt. Phil Deazley said four people were hospitalized with serious injuries. Five others, who had not climbed onto the platform, escaped.

Clyde comeback crushes Coahoma

By DAVE HARGRAVE

SWEETWATER - History will have to wait.

The Coahoma Bulldogettes, playing for the first softball playoff win in school history, sat three outs away from that goal Thursday against Clyde. Unfortunately for Coahoma, Clyde scored two runs in the seventh to send the game into extra innings before plating the game-winner in the eighth. Clyde won 4-3.

"With a two-run lead, and the defense that we've been playing all year, and the way Audra's been throwing lately, I honestly didn't think that there was a snowball's chance that it would come back around on us," said Coahoma coach Danny Randolph.

Indeed, Audra - Coahoma pitcher Audra Bingham - was dominating the game. Clyde scored in the first inning on an infield single by Teela Clark - remember that name - but until the seventh Bingham frustrated opposing hitters. The Bulldogettes scored three times in the fourth and were about ready to order bi-district patches for their letter jackets.

BINGHAM

Still, Clyde (19-6) was the team that beat Coahoma in bi-district last season, in the first softball playoff of the Bulldogettes' two-year history in the UIL. Clark, the winning pitcher, led off the bottom of the seventh with a sharp single. It was Clyde's first hit since the third inning.

"The biggest thing that goes through my mind about that last inning is just watching their leadoff batter get on," Randolph said. "The girl was probably really and truly looking fastball as much as anything, and Audra threw a little change-up. She kept her hands back and stroked a nice little shot, and that got them going.

"That one pitch is probably going to freeze in my mind forever and a day."

Angie Shelton followed Clark's hit with a single, putting runners on first and third. Shelton wasted little time stealing second, and when Coahoma catcher Dolores Garcia tried to throw her out the ball sailed past second. Center fielder Julie Hernandez backed up the play but came in so far the ball rolled past her. Clark and Shelton scored to tie the game.

Clyde worked quickly in the eighth. Clark retired Coahoma 1-2-3, then Clyde's Amanda Cozart led off the bottom of the inning with a single. Stephanie Davis singled to move Cozart to third. Bingham fanned Krissy Niger for her ninth strikeout of the game, but Clark, already the pitching star after relieving starter Barthlow and pitching 4 2/3 innings of no-hit ball, laced a two-strike pitch over a drawn-in Coahoma outfield to score Cozart with the winning run.

"Today both teams deserved to win," said Clyde coach Lonny Davis. "Coahoma was after us, cause we beat them last year, and they've got a good ball club. They've got a good ball club.

"But we knew we had a chance. We went to the Georgetown tournament this year, we played 4A and 5A schools, we beat Victoria, a 5A; and Del Valle, a 4A; and we got beat by Georgetown, a 4A; and we got beat by San Marcos, a 5A. And the ones that we beat, both of them, we came back from behind - 4-0 and 8-3. So we've been there before."

Coahoma bounced back from a UIL rules violation that makes its final record 14-11 instead of a sparkling non-forfeit mark of 21-4. The Bulldogettes put themselves in position to win:

Hernandez and Krista Jeffcoat led off the fourth with singles. Hernandez came home on an error, then Brenda Austin hit a go-ahead RBI single. The third run scored on Tori Elmore's sacrifice fly to first baseman Lindsey King, who was moving away from the plate and couldn't throw out Belinda Turner.

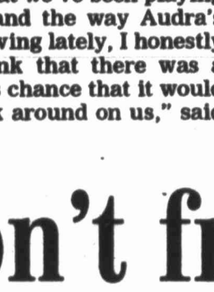

History will indeed have to wait, but Randolph couldn't be prouder of his team.

"Minus what the UIL says, when you go somewhere in the neighborhood of 21-4, you don't have a whole lot to be ashamed of."

Don't fret for the Steers - it could be worse

Steve Reagan
Sports Writer

With only three starters back from last season, Big Spring baseball coach Bobby Doe knew this year would be different. What he didn't know was how different it would be.

Few expected the Steers to contend for a playoff spot. However, despite having only one proven pitcher, despite losing their last three games and despite the team's youth, they have their playoff destiny firmly in their hands.

Big Spring (14-11 overall) is in third place in the District 4-4A standings with a 4-4 record and face a crucial showdown tonight at Pecos against the second-place Eagles. If the Steers win tonight, then defeat San Angelo Lake View Tuesday, they will clinch their fifth straight playoff appearance.

The district race has mirrored Big Spring's yo-yo season so far. The Steers finished the first half of league play with a 4-1 record, and seemed a lock for the playoffs. Then came the disastrous second half, with consecutive losses to Fort Stockton, Monahans and league leader Andrews.

"I think we came out against Fort Stockton a little too cocky and headstrong, and they beat our heads in," senior first baseman Trey Terrazas said. "And against Monahans, we just flat didn't show up. Then, against Andrews, we played pretty well but still lost."

All in all, it's made for a weird year, Doe agrees.

"It's been strange," he said. "But I don't think this team has reached its potential on offense. Defensively, we're not bad, but we haven't broken out yet on offense ... Like any baseball team, you're going to hit a slump, and we've hit ours."

The anemic bats – the Steers have scored only five runs in the past three games – are certainly a major concern, and the team desperately needs a second pitcher to take some heat off staff workhorse Zac Leslie.

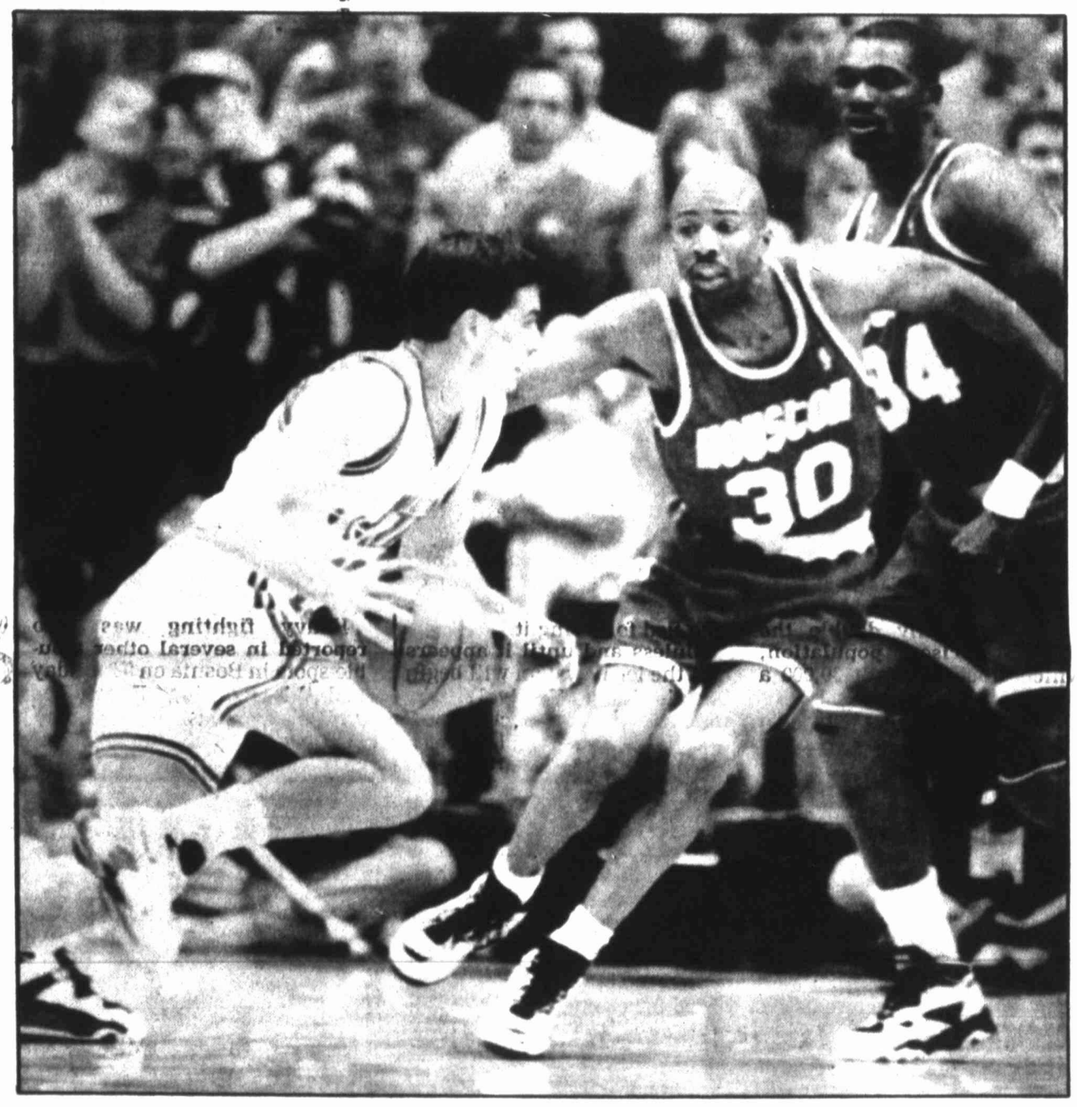

> You can look at Big Spring's situation two ways: Dismay that their youth and inexperience has them painted into a corner, or amazement that they're still standing this late in the season.

There have been bright spots, however, starting with Leslie, a junior who has become one of the best pitchers in the district with an 8-5 record. Seniors Terrazas and second baseman John Oliva have shined both in the field and at the plate.

But like any young team, the Steers have struggled to find consistency.

It's a cliché to talk about must-win games, but that's exactly what faces the Steers. They must beat Pecos, then they must beat Lake View.

You can look at Big Spring's situation two ways: Dismay that their youth and inexperience has them painted into a corner, or amazement that they're still standing this late in the season.

Utah guard John Stockton drives past Houston guard Kenny Smith (30) to score the game-winning basket Thursday. Utah beat Houston 102-100.

Jazz get the jump on Rockets

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Usually, it's John Stockton's uncanny passing ability that unravels Jazz opponents.

However, with Utah's playoff opener against defending champion Houston in peril Thursday night, the NBA's assist leader poured in 28 points, including a scoop shot with 2.4 seconds left that salvaged a 102-100 victory.

Kenny Smith's 16-foot jumper with 17.9 seconds to play tied the game at 100 when Stockton, unable to pass inside, drove into the paint and flipped the ball in through four defenders.

Vernon Maxwell's 3-point attempt, a 30-footer at the horn that would have won it for Houston, bounced off the rim.

Stockton hit 12 of 19 shots, including a pair of 3-pointers, to go with 10 assists. Karl Malone, his longtime fellow all-star, added 25 points and 14 rebounds.

It was barely enough to negate Hakeem Olajuwon's 45 points for Houston, garnered on 20-for-30 shooting.

Stockton said the series will only get tougher — and so must the Jazz, if they hope to take a 2-0 lead when the best-of-5 matchup resumes Saturday in the Delta Center. The series moves to Houston for Game 3 next Wednesday.

The win was the third for Utah in eight days against the Rockets. Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said improved rebounding is critical if Houston hopes to take a series split back to Texas. Utah held a 42-31 advantage on the boards Thursday night, including a 15-7 offensive rebounding edge.

"That did us in," the coach said. "When you give them second chances, you'll lose it. We can't do that."

Robert Horry finished with 13 points for Houston, while Pete Chilcutt had 12. For Utah, Adam Keefe had 11.

Area players reach state

An all-area boys' singles championship match guaranteed Forsan and Stanton will be represented at the UIL state tennis finals May 12-13.

At the Region 1-2A tennis tournament Thursday in Abilene, Forsan's Shane Sims defeated Stanton's Michael Martinez 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 to win the boys' singles title. However, both qualified for the state finals - Sims for the second time in as many years.

Sims, the second seed, beat Haskell's Kurt McCord 6-2, 6-1 in the semifinals, while No. 3 Martinez beat top-seeded Clinton Williams of Rotan 7-5, 6-4 to reach the finals.

Sims and Martinez were the only area players to reach the semis in Abilene. In Region II-A action Wednesday, Grady's Aaron Gibson beat May's Daniel Buitron 6-1, 6-3 before falling in the quarterfinals. Klondike's Brent Kirkland fell in the first round.

In girls' play, Grady's Alison Cooper won 6-0, 6-3 over Paint Rock's Kristi Willberg before losing in the semis. Borden County's Bobbie Armstrong lost in the first round.

Forsan boys 13th at golf tourney

In the Region 1-2A golf tournament Thursday in Abilene, Forsan shot a first-round 352, putting the Buffs in 13th place but out of contention for a state finals berth.

Rusty Baker had the best score for Forsan, carding an 82. He was followed by: Chris Evans 89, Chris Spivey 90, Mike Spivey 91 and Jeremy Etheredge 91.

Baird and Cisco were tied for the lead at 307 going into today's final round.

Sapp signs deal with Tampa Bay

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Warren Sapp, selected 12th in the NFL draft, signed a four-year contract with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers worth significantly less than a deal he would have commanded as a top-five pick.

The former Miami defensive tackle was expected to be among the first players taken Saturday until reports of Sapp's alleged drug use surfaced in the weeks leading up to the draft. He was believed to be seeking a two- or three-year deal at just over $1 million a season before settling on four years.

Steelers may say goodbye to Foster

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers all but said goodbye to star back Barry Foster, signing free agent Erric Pegram to a three-year contract.

Pegram gained 1,185 yards for Atlanta in 1993, but slipped to 358 last season while sharing time with Craig "Ironhead" Heyward.

Are the Jets on the move?

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — The future of the Winnipeg Jets was jeopardized when Manitoba Entertainment Complex Inc. failed to gain controlling interest.

The unsuccessful bid comes after the NHL asked for assurances that the team remain financially healthy for at least 10 years. Otherwise, the league will consider moving the team.

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Doug Collins confirmed he will replace Don Chaney as coach of the Detroit Pistons.

Collins, a former Chicago coach now working as an analyst for TNT, reportedly will receive a five-year contract worth $5 million.

FISHING

■ Brace yourself for stiff wind on area lakes

West Texas' wicked winds took their toll on fishing this past week, and the hopes for more favorable weather conditions were voiced by more than one fisherman.

Even with the windy conditions, black bass fishing continued to be good-to-excellent - at least on Lake O.H. Ivie - with all types of bait proving successful in the flats, along the points, in brushy areas and in the main lake. Best fishing for blacks was found at depths of up to 20 feet.

Also, some nice stringers of crappie still are being caught up in small coves along the main lake. Minnows and jigs worked best at depths up to 20 feet as the crappie fishing was rated fair-to-good as the spawn draws to a close.

Some fishermen also reported luck with channel and blue catfish as well as with white bass.

The channel and blue cats were hitting stink and blood bait as well as shad. Best results were in depths up to 20 feet along flats, in the main lake, mid-way and on the Concho and Colorado rivers on both trotlines and rod and reels.

The best white bass fishing came when trolling or casting along rocky and sandy shorelines and using small spinners and crank baits.

The windy conditions and cooler weather saw a drop in the surface temperature on the lake - to 60.5 degrees from 64.2 a week earlier - while the temperature on the bottom rose slightly to 57.5 degrees (from 57.1 on April 17 and 51.1 on April 4). Elevation was 1550.6, while the spillway elevation is 1551.5.

'March for Jesus' May 27

By JANET AUSBURY
Features Editor

The third annual March for Jesus in Big Spring is scheduled to start 10 a.m. May 27, and city organizer Steven Howard thinks it will be the most successful year yet.

Howard said past participants will recognize this year's march route as the same one used in 1993.

The march will begin at the courthouse, go up Scurry Street, down Eighth Street to Gregg Street, then to 10th Street, and then Main Street back to the courthouse.

"March for Jesus" is a worldwide event, drawing 12 million Christian participants last year. In Big Spring, approximately 1,000 people participated in 1993; last year, the march in conjunction with the rodeo parade drew slightly fewer people.

Howard anticipates more than 1,000 participants this year, primarily because smaller communities such as Andrews are planning to participate in the Big Spring march.

MARCH FOR JESUS

Although all participants from all communities are welcome, "I would encourage them to have their own marches," he said. "It's not about numbers."

Planning meetings for this year's march, with the theme "Together for the Gospel," will be 2 p.m. May 6 and May 20th at Cornerstone Bookstore. At the May 6 meeting, schedules will be given out for flag practice, rehearsal and other parts of the march.

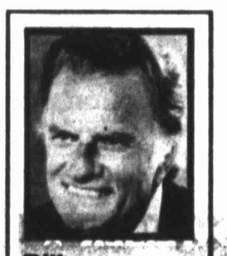

The highlight of this year's march will be the appearance of Jerry Williams and Harvest as the praise and worship band. Williams and Harvest will then give a free concert 7 p.m. in the Comanche Trail Amphitheatre.

"We expect turnout from all over the Permian Basin," Howard said. "They're professional recording artists, and they're known."

Cornerstone Bookstore features t-shirts, cassettes, hats and other goods related to the march. All proceeds go to the march, Howard said; the bookstore will not retain any profit from the sales.

Elderly people or those who cannot walk but would like to participate in the march should contact Cornerstone Bookstore, 267-6442, or their church. Vans will be available for those who cannot walk.

Learn to trust your faith in God

Billy Graham
Columnist

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I made a decision for Christ two months ago, and at first I had a great feeling of peace and of God's presence. But that seems to have faded and now I wonder if I even actually became a Christian at all. What do you think? -- T.U.

DEAR T.U.: Satan will do everything he can to discourage a new believer and to get him or her to think that they must not have come to Christ after all, or that God did not receive them.

But that is not true. If you truly and sincerely asked Christ to come into your life as best you knew how, then trust His promise: "All that the Father gives me will come to me, and whoever comes to me I will never drive away" (John 6:37). God cannot lie, and His Word says that "God has given us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has the Son has life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have life" (1 John 5:11-12).

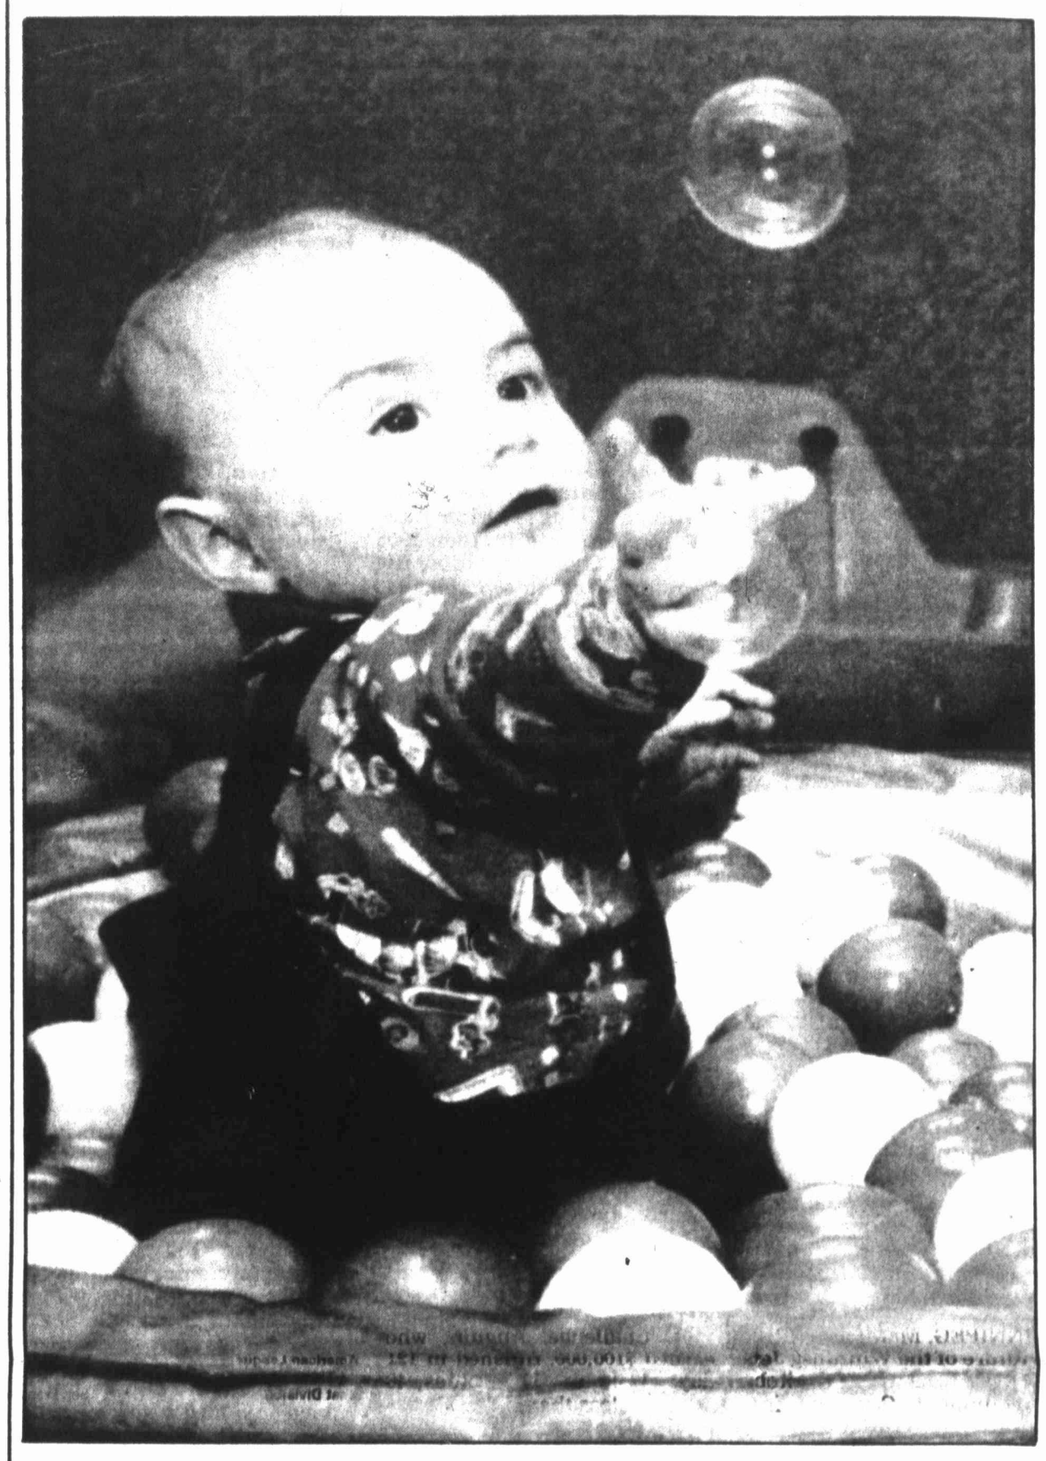

Don't depend on your feelings; they will change and are not reliable. Depend instead on the unchanging truth of God's Word -- the truth that God loves you, that Christ died for you, and that He has promised to save all who come to Him in faith. The Bible says, "Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life" (John 3:36).

At the same time, realize that you need spiritual "food" to be strong spiritually -- just as you need food to stay strong physically. Make the Bible a part of your life every day. Set aside time to read it, and also to pray. In addition, ask God to guide you to a church where Christ is taught and lived, for you need the fellowship and encouragement of other believers. Let others know of your commitment to Christ also.

May God bless you as you learn to walk with Christ every day.

Plano pastor will return to India 'when God says to'

By CATHY SPAULDING
Plano Star Courier

PLANO — "Did I hug everybody?" J.O.Y. Family Church Pastor Gary Stewart asked as dozens from his family and congregation swamped him with greetings at Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport last week.

The greeting, punctuated with balloons and "Welcome Back" signs, was worlds away from the anger that greeted Stewart while he was leading a religious crusade in remote northeastern India.

Stewart and three Early Church members — Fran Hunt, Blake Woodall and Russell Hobbs — were arrested and charged with use of drugs and "magic remedy" April 2 while conducting a healing crusade in Siliguri, India. Also arrested were two Florida men and some Indian nationals, Stewart said.

After being bailed out by an attorney several hours later, the group was detained in Siliguri while officials with the American Embassy worked to have their charges cleared. The four from Plano were allowed to leave last Wednesday.

"We were so concerned about him," church member Cheryl McCauley said, shortly before Stewart's arrival on British Airways, Friday afternoon. "We had just asked that the Lord would take care of him and I know he's in the Lord's hands."

Stewart's father, Clarence Stewart, of Jacksonville, said, "I'm concerned enough with him going to a friendly country, not just an unfriendly country."

"We have a family church," Stewart said over the cheers that welcomed him home. "And you have stood in the gap until I got back."

Stewart's daughter, Karen Phillips, said his church and the Early Church, which meets in the same East Plano building, held prayer vigils until members were assured of the four's return.

Stewart recounted his tumultuous week, which began with the two-day pastors' meeting and crusade, which he said was conducted with government permission. He said some 3,000 people attended, and many blind and deaf people were healed the first night of the crusade. On the second night, Sunday, "some non-Christian zealots got angry and took the stage," he said.

The crusade leaders were arrested and charged with "magic remedies and drugs," Stewart said. He denied the evangelists were using magic and drugs. He said they were using "just the name of Jesus."

Earlier, 10 evangelists, mostly from the Houston area, had been detained for a week after a rally they held southwest of Calcutta turned violent.

Stewart said no violence accompanied his arrest, although the possibility was there. He said the main reason his group was in jail for a few hours was that one of those arrested was a prominent area citizen. Upon their release, they were allowed to move about the city but could not leave until they posted bond or the charges were cleared, he said.

The freed pastor praised the efforts of U.S. embassy worker Judith Grace. "She stayed in the faces of the local officials and was constantly on the phone with the Bengali government," he said. "She even gave me her home telephone number in case I needed it."

Stewart said that during his detainment he experienced some chest pains and was cleared to leave India early, but he waited until the others were freed.

Stewart said the experience taught him that his church "knows how to be a family, how to be an army."

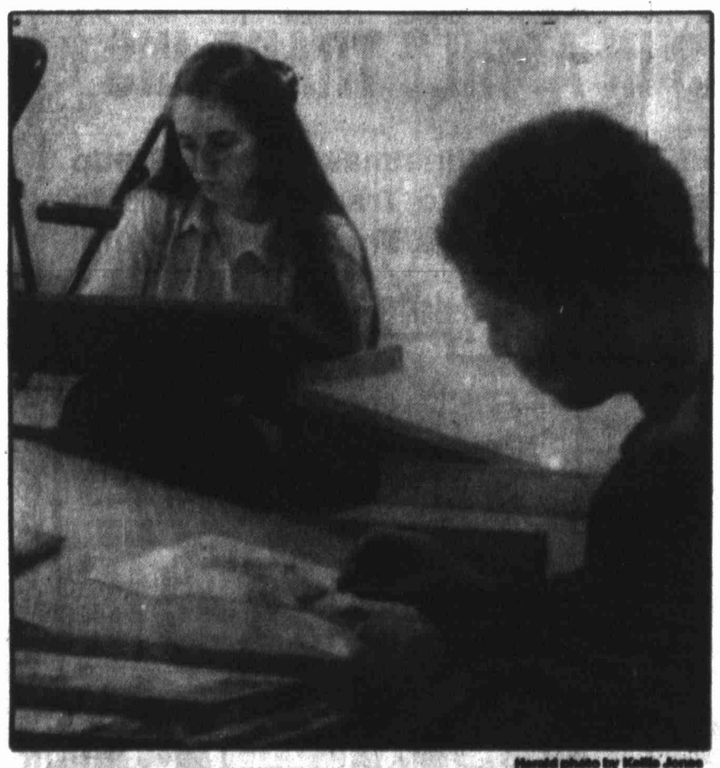

"My wife told me how the citizens of Plano and the media made this known," he said. "And I learned God takes care of his own."

Stewart said his trip was funded partly through offerings at his church.

And, despite the turmoil he faced, Stewart said "I'll go back, when God says to."

Art students from the West Texas Center for the Arts will be displaying their works May 4 and 5. The students, ranging in grades two through twelve, have been taking art classes from instructor Sheree Moates since September of last year.

On May 3 from 5 to 6 p.m. there will be a show by invitation only with the students asking their parents and others to attend.

The art show on Thursday and Friday will be at the art center located on the Howard College campus.

During the first few months of the class, the students worked on drawing exercises then in November began working on the paintings of their choice for the art show.

"I have beginner, intermediate and advance classes. The students draw from greeting cards, pictures or other works of art. We will have a special display at the art show this year.

"Big Spring High School senior Stacy Hollar will be displaying various art works she has done over the past several years. There will be judges who will hand out ribbons for best of show in each of the three classes then an overall best of show as well," explained Moates.

Catholic radio: Church-friendly broadcasting

BRECKSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Two attorneys who bought a radio station with Christian programming and switched to an all-Catholic format are hoping it strikes a chord with the region's 900,000 Roman Catholics.

Attorneys Steven J. Kurdziel and Peter A. Carfagna, two veterans of big-name Cleveland law firms, instituted the new format in February at WMIH, which stands for Mary's Immaculate Heart.

The station is independent from the 815,000-member Diocese of Cleveland, but has Bishop Anthony M. Pilla's blessing.

Kurdziel said WMIH's independence makes it different from other church-run stations.

"It's something we've been very clear about with the bishop," he said. "We're not the 'Church of the Air.' The church is the church. We happen to be some lay Catholics who are covering the church. And we're trying to be a voice for the church."

Kurdziel, the station's president and majority owner, said his family background publishing a now-defunct Polish newspaper and his interest in his Catholic faith led him to test the all-Catholic broadcast market.

The demographics of Cleveland, where 30 percent of the ethnically diverse population is Catholic, could provide fertile ground. The station's signal, which originates from the Cleveland suburb of Brecksville, reaches more than 3 million people in a region

Message from the American heartland

By TERRY MATTINGLY
Scripps Howard News Service

It isn't unusual to hear God's name dropped at major American civic events, such as presidential inaugurations, Super Bowls, graduation rites and the Academy Awards.

The role of this civil deity is to bless the winners, hopefully without offending any lawyers, while hovering safely above the details of public life. This is the God of the chamber of commerce, not the Holy of Holies.

But people in Oklahoma City needed more than a sprinkling of generic God talk at last Sunday's memorial rites for victims of the April 19 federal office building bombing. Yes, it was a day for civic pride. But it was also a day when public leaders had no choice but to stand in a media spotlight and ask questions about life, death, sin, forgiveness and eternity. This service was held at the corner of Bible Belt Boulevard and Heartland Lane.

President Clinton's brief message focused on the wounds the bombing inflicted in the body politic. But he didn't avoid spiritual issues, from the all-consuming power of hate to the ultimate hope of heaven.

"Let us teach our children that the God of comfort is also the God of righteousness," he said. "Those who trouble their own house will inherit the wind. Justice will prevail. ... As St. Paul admonished us, 'Let us not be overcome with evil, but overcome evil with good.' "

It was left to the Rev. Billy Graham, in his familiar role as Middle America's senior pastor, to face the deepest wounds in people's souls. The Bible promises that God will heal those with broken hearts, he said. But God also understands that tragedy plants seeds of doubt.

"Since I have been here," he said, "I have been asked the question ... many times. 'Why does God allow it? Why does a God of love and mercy ... allow such a terrible thing to happen?' "

There is no simple answer. Many biblical heroes — from Job to Jesus — also cried out, "Why?"

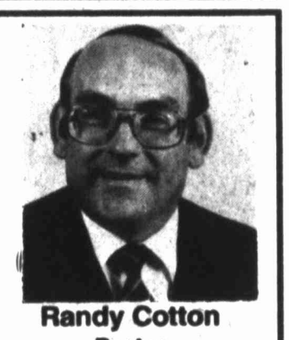

The Bible says that God is not the "author of evil" and describes evil as a "mystery," noted Graham. "There is something about evil that we will never fully understand this side of eternity. ... But the Bible says two other things that we sometimes are tempted to forget. It tells us ...that Satan is real and that 'He was a murderer from the beginning.' And it also tells us that ... the human heart is capable of almost limitless evil when it is cut off from God and from the moral law."

These are tough words in an age when the gurus of popular culture produce waves of best-sellers, songs, movies and television shows telling people that there are no absolute rights and wrongs and that they should follow their hearts.

Meanwhile, centuries of Judeo-Christian tradition warn that human beings are mysteriously and terribly free to hurt others. It was the prophet Jeremiah, Graham reminded those gathered at the memorial service, who said, "The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked. Who can understand it?"

In one form or another, this is another question that people in Oklahoma and across America have to ask as they watch emergency crews sift through the crushed concrete shell of a day care center, looking for the bodies of the innocent.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

CONCUBINES, THE SAME AS HARLOTS ? ....NO!

WESTERN CIVILIZATION HAS VIEWED A MAN'S CONCUBINE ON THE SAME LEVEL AS A PROSTITUTE—BUT NOT SO IN EARLY HEBREW SOCIETY! LARGE FAMILIES WERE ESSENTIAL FOR ECONOMICAL SECURITY AND POLYGAMY WAS COMMON. IN THOSE DAYS, A MARRIAGE CONTRACT AFFORDED THE HUSBAND-TO-BE A GENEROUS DOWRY FROM THE BRIDE'S FATHER—BUT THE HEBREW MAIDEN WHOSE FATHER WAS TOO POOR TO GIVE A DOWRY COULD BE A MAN'S WIFE IF HE PAID HER FATHER A SUM OF MONEY, THUS SHE ENTERED HIS HOUSE WITHOUT MARRIAGE CONTRACT AS A SECONDARY WIFE (CONCUBINE), BUT EVEN SO HER RIGHTS WERE PROTECTED BY LAW (DEUT. 21:10-14) AND HER CHILDREN HAD EQUAL RIGHTS WITH THE CHILDREN OF THEIR FATHER'S WIFE BY MARRIAGE!

NEVERTHELESS, EVEN THE OLD TESTAMENT POINTED TOWARD MONOGAMY. MOSAIC LAW (DEUT. 17:17) FORBIDS A KING "...TO MULTIPLY WIVES." HOSEA PREACHED MONOGAMY, MALACHI ADMIRES A HUSBAND'S LOYALTY TO THE "WIFE OF HIS YOUTH (2:14FF) AND LO, BY NEW TESTAMENT TIMES, A JEWISH HUSBAND USUALLY TOOK BUT ONE WIFE!

NEXT WEEK: LOT'S WIFE—SALT OR NOT?

College holds rare Bibles

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Religious reformer William Tyndale was burned at the stake in 1536 by the Church of England for translating the Bible. But a copy of his work survives at Pensacola Christian College.

"They paid a great price so Bibles could sit in our collection and on our coffee tables," said Joel Mullenix, college vice president for public affairs.

The Tyndale translation is among the rare copies in the college's Bible Manuscript Room, which also contains ancient Hebrew scrolls, and Latin, Greek and English versions of the Bible from the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries.

The most valuable are two complete King James Authorized Versions published in 1611.

"They certainly have a treasure room there," said David Szewczyk, a Bible specialist for the Philadelphia Rare Books and Manuscripts Co., who places the value of the collection at close to $1 million.

To the college's pastor, the Rev. Jim Schettler, the monetary value is unimportant.

Radio

that includes Akron, Canton and Lorain.

WMIH's format fits in with the increasingly specialized nature of religious broadcasting, said Sarah Smith, a spokeswoman for the National Religious Broadcasters, a trade group. By the NRB's count, 1,328 U.S. radio stations program full-time religious broadcasting.

"As a whole, religious radio is becoming more niche-oriented, more specialized," Smith said.

Ten or 20 years ago, religious stations offered religious news, "teaching and preaching." Today, she said, the fœus has narrowed.

The large Catholic population in the Northeast and Midwest makes Catholic radio a viable format, said the Rev. John Catoir, president of the Christophers, a private, nonprofit broadcast production company and publishing house in New York.

"Every radio station is in competition for a segment of the market and they have to find their niche," he said. "If they find a niche, they can attract advertising and so survive."

The WMIH format includes devotions such as the rosary and daily Mass from Cleveland's St. John Cathedral, contemporary and traditional religious music, and taped programming from educators and preachers, including the late Bishop Fulton Sheen, a pioneer in Catholic broadcasting.

On-air personalities encourage listeners to call with prayer intentions. On a recent day, they included a cancer victim, a drug-addicted son and an anti-abortion message.

Guest interviews emphasize parish life. A pastor discussed the joys and rigors of running an inner-city parish with a declining congregation, for example, and a lay church musician encouraged listeners to attend a Byzantine rite Mass.

"It's trying to mirror the church here in Cleveland, which basically is a conservative church," Kurdziel said.

The station sometimes hears complaints that it is either "too close to the bishop or too far away from the bishop," he said.

For example, some listeners complained after an on-air interview with nun-theologians who discussed the messages for women in St. Luke's Gospel. Others complained the next day after an interview with cloistered nuns.

The station has not had to contend with a church scandal, but Kurdziel said such matters would not be ignored.

"I think we would miss our mark if we were to pretend stuff like that isn't out there," he said. "There can be coverage in a way that isn't finger-pointing."

The Rev. Michael Dimengo, the diocese's spokesman, said the church respects the station's editorial independence and would insist only "that there be clarity when there is an official church teaching."

Lesson in government milked to max

DEAR ABBY: About five years ago, you had a letter in your column from a teacher who taught economics in a high school. The letter explained in a humorous way the various types of governments throughout the world. Will you please try to find it and run it again? I need it for a speech. -- NO NAME, PLEASE

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

DEAR NO NAME: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I teach government and economics at Grant High School in Van Nuys, Calif. This is a belated thank-you for one of your columns. I have been using it for years to explain the difference between communism, socialism, capitalism and a few other "isms." My students love it. --BARBARA HALPERN, VAN NUYS

DEAR BARBARA: Thanks for your thank-you. I'll run it again for others to enjoy. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: A friend gave me these definitions of the various forms of government, and I thought you might want to share them with your readers:

COMMUNISM: You have two cows. The government takes both of them and gives you part of the milk.

SOCIALISM: You have two cows. The government takes one and gives it to your neighbor.

FASCISM: You have two cows. The government takes both cows and sells you the milk.

NAZISM: You have two cows. The government takes both your cows, then shoots you.

BUREAUCRACY: You have two cows. The government takes both of them, shoots one, milks the other, then pours the milk down the drain.

CAPITALISM: You have two cows. You sell one of them and buy a bull.

Abby, what happens in a democracy? -- MRS. J. MC C.

DEAR MRS. MC C.: In a democracy, everyone has two cows, then a vote is taken, and whatever the majority decides to do, you do, and that's no bull!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl. My birthday is next month, and I can't wait. I'm looking forward to being a teenager, but more than that, when I'm 13, adults won't think of me as a "little kid." Most adults think when you are 13 you are more responsible than you are when you are only 12, but actually, you aren't.

It makes me angry when adults assume that I'm irresponsible because I'm a "little girl." (Some of the teen-agers I know act like 2-year-olds.)

Please publish my letter, Abby, so adults will know how people my age feel when we are treated like "little kids" when we are not. -- NICOLE QUINTERO, GAINESVILLE, FLA.

DEAR NICOLE: You appear to be very mature for your age, but please don't be in a rush to grow up. People have only a short time to be children, but a very long time to be adults.

Abby shares more of her favorite, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, More Favorite Recipes, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
