Fools prance around in St. Stupid's Day parade

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Socks were down at the Pacific "Sock" Exchange and the Deep Fat Friars lost all cents at Bank of America on Friday in a goofy, garish St. Stupid's Day parade.

"You have to love St. Stupid and demand his presence in this life," said a prancing curiosity lathered with face paint and sporting a bulb for a nose. "Because you are going to get it anyway."

Traffic stopped when the crowd of 100 pranced through the city's Financial District, chanting "Jump, jump, jump," to a couple in a fifth-floor window and singing the hymn of St. Stupid's Day: "Hymmmmmmmmmmmm."

It was the fourth annual St. Stupid's Day, held religiously on April Fool's Day. "Corporate Christi" wore a crown of phony dollars bills, dragging on his back a 6-foot-high green dollar sign bearing the words: "Who died for your sums?"

"When the moon is in its second mortgage and the Japanese are alone with cars," he chanted, "then pieces will be the planets and nukes will eat away the stars."

Ten-foot-tall Drew Letchworth, a stilted "fork" with prongs flopping over his head, praised St. Stupid.

"St. Stupid will descend upon us and pour upon us the sweet nectar of stupidity, which does not stain," he declared.

"We're fire and ice," announced the Wizard of Odd, otherwise known as 51-year-old Gloria Beisky of Berkeley, who was there with her daughter the Ice Maiden, 20-year-old Elena Beisky.

"I am a dancing pickle usually," Odd Wizard announced. "We have a troupe of dancing dill pickles."

Zippy the Pinhead, from Nutley, N.J., carried his sign: "All life is a blur of Republicans and meat," his yellow polka-dotted robe swaying like the hair sprouting from the top of his pin, and all was fine in the land of the stupid.

But when the gunny sack-robed Deep Fat Friars of St. Stupid deigned to arrive at the Bank of America, there was trouble at the steps.

A bank security guard who asked the crowd to move to the property line got a chorus of protest before abandoning his post, while the friars tossed all their cents on a reposing Groucho Marx look-a-like.

"St. Stupid lives," cheered Ed Holmes, the organizer and drummer.

It was four years ago that Holmes and the Deep Fat Friars — about two dozen people in all — first paraded down the sidewalks of the financial district on April 1. "We didn't have a permit so we couldn't parade in the street," he said. "Besides, a permit would have gone against the whole idea."

Farther along the route at the Pacific Stock Exchange, footwear was flung through the crowd and a bevy of balloons was let loose over gawking spectators.

"I have never seen anything like this," said 53-year-old Fred Daly, an engineer.

Louisiana twister kills elderly couple

COLLINSTON, La. (AP) — A tornado skipping through a rural area ripped across this small North Louisiana town Friday, leaving two dead in its trail of wreckage.

Rescue workers identified the dead as Mr. and Mrs. Semmie Morgan, an elderly couple who lived in a house trailer. It was one of six buildings smashed by the twister.

Larry Crymes and Willie Island, the first men on the scene, said the twister came from the southwest at about 4:30 p.m., passing near a votech meat processing plant, leveling a church and then wrecking five homes.

Collinston has about 500 residents. It is six miles southwest of Bastrop, in Morehouse Parish, on Louisiana 138. All electric power was reported out in the immediate area.

It was one of several tornadoes in Louisiana during a day of turbulent winds, spurts of torrential rain and scattered bombardments of hail as a clashing weather front moved across the state from Texas into Mississippi.

One of the other twisters, in Caldwell Parish, badly damaged several homes in Hebert and demolished the Hebert Church of God, said sheriff's deputy Fred Grant.

Other tornadoes exhausted themselves in farm fields, with little damage reported.

Jeff McCain, a police juror who lives about a quarter-mile from Collinston, said the twister, moving with a characteristic freight train rumble, would swirl up and then touch down, and every time it touched it threw up a spray of debris, tin roofs, trees, dirt.

State Police Trooper Frank Carroll, who also lives nearby, said a heavy rain preceded the twister. After a spray of hail, the area cleared as though a curtain had lifted and the twister formed.

Carroll said it was not particularly well formed, and moved erratically. He said he took his son to the window to show it to him.

Odell Brown was dozing in his house trailer when he heard the ominous freight train roar and the trailer began moving. The roof ripped off and the walls went to pieces but he got out without a scratch.

One Collingston home was half stripped away, with the remaining walls standing, with furniture neatly in place, looking like a kingsize dollhouse.

Hail the size of golf balls covered the ground at Bastrop. One driver reported the hail broke the windshield of his car.

In Shreveport, one of the severe thunderstorms booming across the state whipped the city with window-breaking 70 mph winds, hard rain and hail.

Several windows were blown out in the Beck building in downtown Shreveport and a large plate glass window at an apartment complex was smashed.

Telephone company officials said fallen trees disrupted service to some 500 customers for hours.

All afternoon, radar showed tornadoes forming here and there in sparsely populated areas.

At Winnfield, Deputy Sheriff Rayford Bundrick said a twister touchdown five miles south of the city and chewed its way through a field and across Louisiana 167, upending trees and tearing down power lines.

Bundrick said a second twister touched down in fields north of the city and Winfield was bombarded with hail big enough to dent exposed cars.

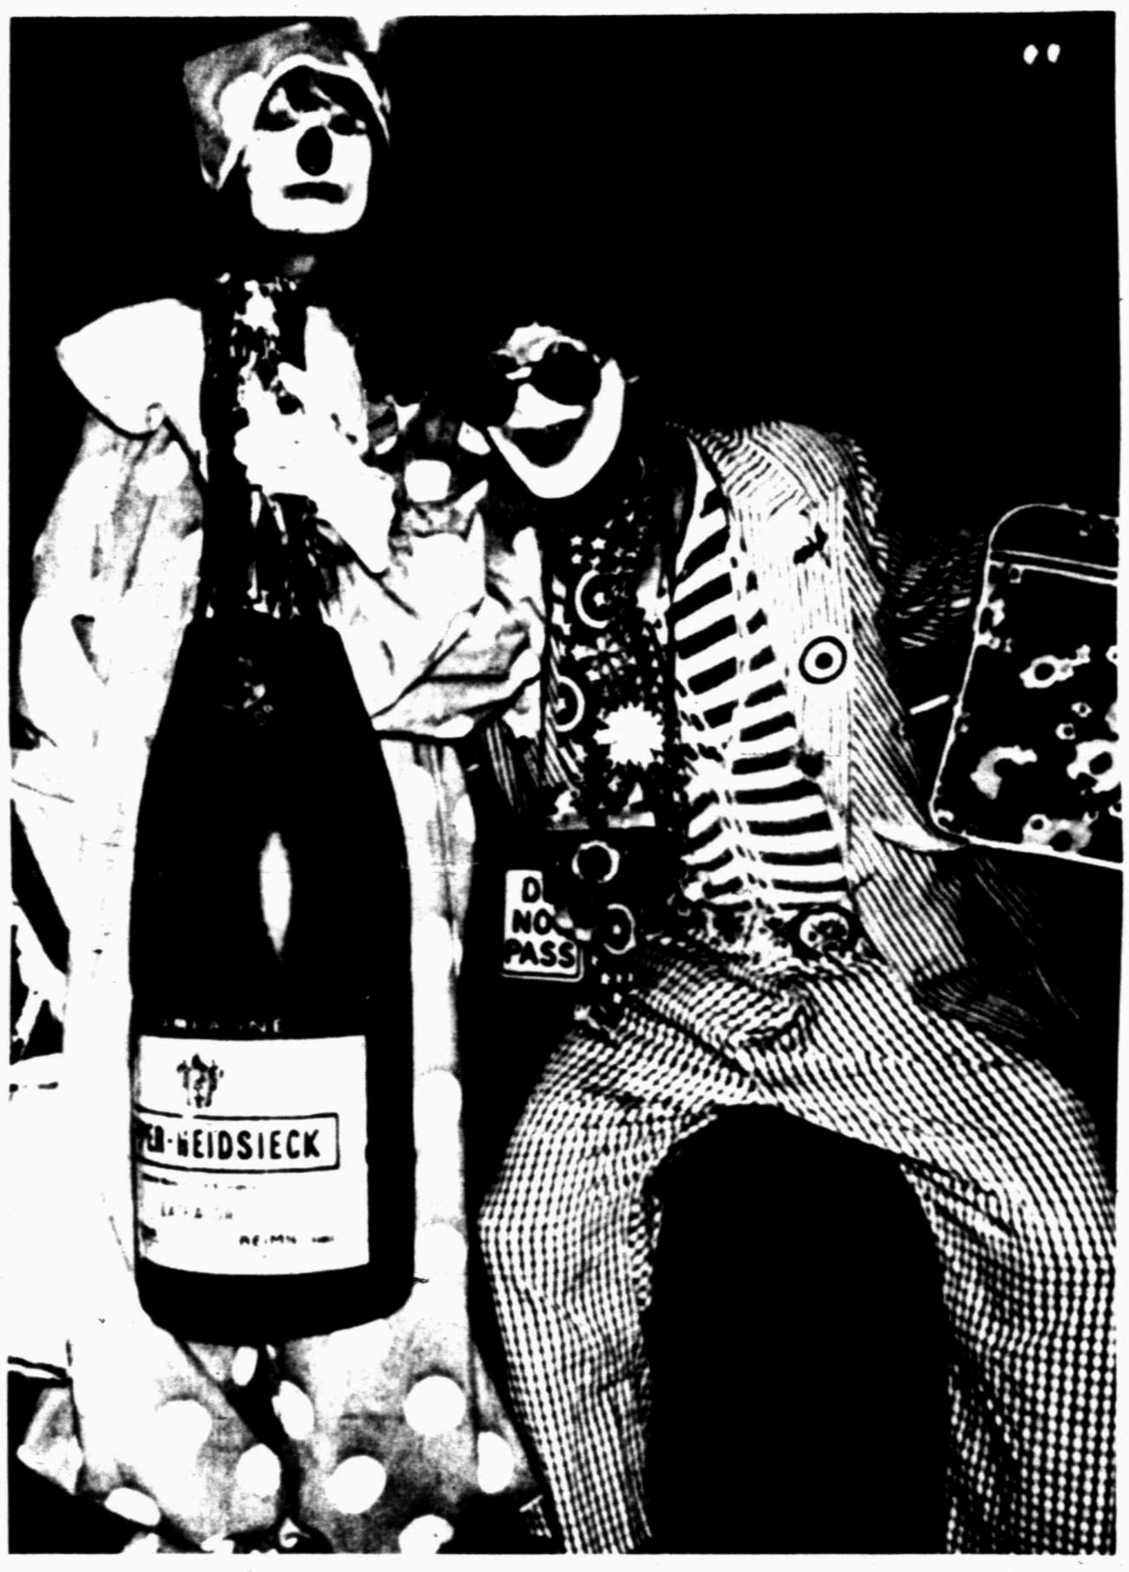

In the Shreveport area, a tornado touched down across the Arkansas border in the vicinity of nearby Hope, Ark., but no injuries were reported.

Southwestern, central and northern areas of Louisiana were under severe thunderstorm warning or a tornado watch much of the blustery spring day as a weather front from Texas moved through Louisiana at 35 miles an hour, headed for Mississippi and West Tennessee.

In addition to Shreveport, small areas here and there were bombarded with hail — some of it big enough to bruise.

Radar at Shreveport showed hail that fell west of the city ranged "upwards to baseball size." Fortunately, the hail in Shreveport was small.

Most of the sprays of hail, created by a turbulent mix of warm rain and cold air aloft, were marble size. Areas that reported hail included Baton Rouge, Minden, Stonewall, Homer, Danville and Jonesboro.

Wind storm pummels area

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

Bred by an intense low pressure system in the Panhandle, a sirocco-like storm pummeled West Texas Friday with hurricane-force winds which racked buildings, reduced visibility to near-zero and spawned a 27-vehicle pile-up on Interstate Highway 20.

"When you get such an intense low pressure system, the gradient is tight and it just causes winds to circulate around it," explained Charles Nichols, specialist with the National Weather Service. "It's like a tornado on the ground, only it's bigger — like a hurricane."

The winds eclipsed the hurricane-level mark at 7:20 a.m., as a gust of 76 miles an hour was recorded at the NWS instrument station at Midland Air Terminal. The greatest one-minute average noted during the day was 52 mph.

"The highest gust of wind that has been recorded here was 86 mph, Feb. 9, 1960, and the fastest observed wind speed, 67 mph the same day," said Nichols, who personally observed the force of Friday's blast. "I was lying in bed this morning and looked out and saw a 40-foot section of fence rock back and forth a couple of times and then go right up into the air."

It was the Sahara-like dust on the currents which blinded motorists on I-20 near its intersection with FM 2599 west of Big Spring and forced a chain-reaction pile-up involving 27 vehicles. Although the Department of Public Safety reported late Friday no serious injuries resulted from the 7:15 a.m. accident, Malone-Hogan Hospital director of nursing Jean Connelly indicated the driver of an express package bus suffered severe leg injuries and a possible fractured hip.

Nine other persons, including three bus passengers, were treated at Malone-Hogan's emergency room, she said.

I-20 was closed for three hours by the pile-up and traffic was re-

Jury does not indict man in mercy killing of his wife

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A grand jury refused to indict a 79-year-old man after hearing him tell how he fired a bullet into the head of his beloved wife, who had suffered from a hopeless brain disease that turned her into a helpless, howling animal.

"I was afraid I missed or something and only hurt her," Hans Florian, a retired butcher, testified about the day he killed Johanna, his wife of 33 years.

On Thursday, a Broward County grand jury which could have indicted Florian on first-degree murder charges refused to indict him for any wrongdoing.

The 62-year-old woman was a victim of Alzheimer's disease.

"He had a wife who was a living body with no mind," said Florian's lawyer, Jon Gutmacher.

Florian was found, pistol in hand, standing over his fatally wounded wife on March 18 in a stairwell of Hollywood Memorial Hospital as she slumped in her wheelchair, shot in the right temple.

The German-born immigrant said he could no longer bear to see the suffering of his wife, whose mind had started unraveling in the late 1970s.

"First, she started panicking whenever he would step away from her, wanting to know where he was," Gutmacher said. "Then her handwriting declined. Within a few months, she couldn't write at all. Then she couldn't drive; she'd drift into the oncoming lane."

As the mysterious disease ravaged her brain, Florian and his son by a first marriage, Ralph, bathed Johanna, pried open her mouth at feeding time, woke to her screams, picked her up when she stumbled and changed her clothes five or six times a day as she wet and soiled them.

For most of the past two years, friends said, Mrs. Florian screamed constantly, howling unless heavily drugged. She would only utter two words — the German words for "fire" and "pain."

MMH told to go ahead with dependency unit

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

AUSTIN — Midland Memorial Hospital administrators were told to proceed with the game when the Texas Health Facilities Commission made a bid, forcing them to move ahead with the development of a $3.4 million chemical dependency facility Friday.

The unanimous decision by the two commissioners thwarted MMH's attempt to further postpone development and completion deadlines for the substance abuse facility.

"They ruled the deadlines are still in place as established in our order," Carol Daniels, THFC deputy administrator, told The Midland Reporter-Telegram Friday afternoon.

MMH had filed a "declaratory ruling," which asked for a delay in development of the 50-bed chemical dependency facility because of a pending law suit filed by a rival hospital against the THFC.

The suit was filed by Parkview Hospital after the THFC rejected its proposal for a similar drug rehabilitation service July 2, 1982 — at the same time it approved MMH's. Although MMH is not being sued, the hospital is listed as a defendant in the case.

The THFC decision to approve MMH's application became effective 15 days after the announcement. Under THFC rules, MMH then had 180 days to begin development or forfeit its application. Originally, MMH was to have commenced development by Jan. 13, 1983.

Because of pending litigation, however, MMH was not sure if the deadline was in effect.

Friday, THFC commissioners played their cards: The ruling will be honored.

"Our position is that we will continue to achieve development and continue to proceed with our chemical dependency project," John Holt, MMH vice president/quality assurance, said. "We feel that the commission has not considered fully all of the issues that we felt were important to this matter."

Holt specified two difficulties MMH now faces.

"By requiring us to continue the development of this project, we will have to contend with difficulties of obtaining financing while the matter is tied up in litigation," he said.

"Although we're not named in the suit, we feel we're influenced greatly in the ease or difficulty of obtaining financing (for the project)."

A similar application for a chemical dependency facility, submitted by Southwest Health of Midland/Odessa, Inc., was approved at the same time MMH's application was and Parkview's was not. Holt said MMH had accepted the victory of West Plains, however, the possibility that Parkview may win its appeal would increase the stakes.

"We'll have to contend with the possibility that more than the two original projects will be approved," Holt said.

Medical officials fear a saturation of three similar chemical abuse centers in one area would not be beneficial to the community.

"That is like a grocery store on every corner," Holt said.

Pope re-creates Jesus' journey

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II, clutching a large black cross to his chest, led a torchlit procession on Good Friday around the Colosseum in a re-creation of Christ's painful journey to Calvary hill for his crucifixtion.

The pontiff, wearing a white skull cap and a dark red shawl of mourning over his white vestments, stopped 14 times for the stations of the cross — the traditional stages of Jesus' suffering from his condemnation to death on the cross.

John Paul pressed his forehead against the 4-foot 2-inch poplar cross, which weighed three pounds, at each stop. He was joined in prayer by several thousand pilgrims, many of whom were carrying candles.

Millions of people in 21 nations watched the procession on television.

A choir sang hymns that echoed through the cool night air around the Colosseum where early Christians were martyred by being thrown to lions.

A huge wooden cross covered with candles burned in front of the nearby arch of Constantine, the first Christian emperor.

At each stop, the pontiff offered specials prayers in Italian for the suffering and persecuted. The prayers were repeated in six other languages by priests.

At the eleventh stop — where Christ was nailed to the cross — the pope prayed for "all the victims of envy, hate, of violence, of terrorism."

He then gave a brief sermon calling on the pilgrims to "unite themselves with the Church in this year of redemption."

Last Friday, the 63-year-old pontiff opened the 1983 extraordinary Holy Year of Redemption to commemorate the 1950th anniversary of the death of Jesus. For Christians, redemption refers to Jesus giving his life to save mankind.

A thunderstorm with pelting rain broke over the city only minutes after the pontiff ended the ceremony and entered alimousine to return to Vatican City.

Earlier in the day, the pope held a special ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica, kneeling and kissing a crucifix to mark the death of Jesus.

The pope removed his shoes, dark red robes, white miter and gold ring and wore a simple white robe to show his humility during the service on Good Friday, the only day in the Christian year when Mass cannot be said.

There was no incense during the 2½-hour service. The marble altar beneath Bernini's towering bronze Baldacchino was bare except for a thin, seven-foot wooden cross.

All the bells in Rome's 917 churches were silent.

The 62-year-old pontiff was greeted by applause from the packed basilica. There were seats for 15,000 and thousands of others jammed into every side nook of the largest church in Christendom.

Italian police checked everyone who entered the church with metal detectors in what has become a normal security measure to protect the pontiff, who has been the target of two assassination attempts.

John Paul began his long day of mourning by hearing the confessions of 15 women and two men for 90 minutes, following a tradition he began three years ago to stress the importance of confession to the Roman Catholic faith.

Nearly 1,000 people who had been waiting for hours inside St. Peter's basilica greeted the pope with applause as he entered one of the 27 hand-carved mahogany confessional booths to the right of Bernini's main altar.

Dressed in white robes and a skull cap, he first heard the confession of a 20-year-old student, Charles Henry of Rimonge, France.

Vatican officials selected at random those to offer their confession, and they included six Italian nuns.

One of the nine other women, 55-year-old Marissa Missul Di Ciocco of Milan, approached the confessional with a handful of white and yellow roses.

"I have waited for this moment for so long," she said before kneeling for confession after Vatican officials took her offerings aside.

The Franciscan priest whose confessional was used by the pope said the number of women selected outnumbered men because they managed to get to the front rows first.

On Holy Thursday, the pope washed and kissed the feet of twelve homeless boys from five continents in a 400-year-old ceremony symbolizing Jesus' humility.

"If I, the Lord and the Master, have washed your feet, you shall also wash one another's feet," the pope said.

Wind storm causes 27-vehicle pileup on I-20

routed, though by noon the highway was open again.

Midland was particularly battered by the windstorm, as law enforcement agencies were swamped in the early morning by reports of damage and few residents escaped unscathed.

Cindy Jones of Southwest Mobile Home Park 33, for example, looked outside at 7:39 a.m. to find in her yard a garage that hadn't been there the evening before. Sheriff's deputies referred her to the road and bridge crew for assistance in removing it.

Elsewhere, Midland was a tangled mess of downed power lines, broken glass and debris-laden streets. Reports included roof damage at the Rolls Royce dealership, an irrigation line blocking County Road 120, an uninvited recreational camper in the roadway at Stanley's Mobile Home Park, an overturned trailer home at A Street and Scharbauer, damage at Berg Motor Company, windows shattered at Briercroft Savings at 200 N. Loraine, plywood battering houses on Garfield between Fannin and Cimmaron, a wind-borne building crashing into a parked car at Maxwell and Durant, and windows broken at Edbert's of Midland in Imperial Shopping Center.

The ability of the wind to toy with normally stationary objects was exemplified by the events at Weatherford and Griffin between 7:28 and 7:45 a.m. A caller reported a metal building blocked the roadway, but by the time officers reached the scene, the zephyr already had removed the structure.

Several blocks of downtown Midland were cordoned off at 7:54 p.m. when First National Bank officials feared the building's roof was in danger of flying downward to strike motorists and pedestrians.

In Odessa, meanwhile, similar wind-incurred damage was reported. "It was mostly roofs blown off homes," said an Ector County Sheriff's Department spokesperson.

Throughout that city and its surrounding county, power lines and poles were downed, windows shattered, signs destroyed, trees uprooted, and streets blocked by debris. Pleasant Farms Fire Department sustained considerable damage while trailer homes were overturned, though no injuries were reported.

The winds also caused similar damage in outlying areas of the Permian Basin. Signs were downed and roofs damaged in Andrews, a trailer home totally destroyed in Stanton, roofs battered in Rankin, trees bowled over in Garden City, and flying masses of corrugated metal spawned by collapsed tin structures in Crane.

About the only good aspect of the force of Friday's wind was that West Texas motorists did not have to worry about tumbleweeds blocking roadways as they have on recent occasions.

"It was blowing so hard," said a DPS spokesperson, "they went right on over the fence."

No more jurors chosen in capital murder case

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Three prospective jurors were interviewed Friday in the capital murder trial of 28-year-old Clarence Allen Lackey, but none was chosen to add to the five jurors selected earlier in the week from the 109-member jury panel.

In a week of jury selection, prosecuting and defense attorneys questioned 32 prospective jurors but selected only five — a school teacher, an accountant, a construction worker, a housewife-real estate agent and a groundskeeper — to serve on the 12-member jury. In addition, the attorneys are to choose two alternate jurors. Jury selection is to resume Monday morning in Midland's 238th State District Court.

Lackey is charged with the rape and murder of Toni Diane Kumpf, a 23-year-old Texas Tech University secretary, on July 31, 1977, after he allegedly broke into her apartment near the Tech campus about 6 a.m. that day.

In selecting jurors, the prosecutor and defense counsel each used five of their allowed 15 strikes each in eliminating prospective jurors who were qualified under the law as "fair and impartial jurors" as deemed by Presiding Judge Robert Wright of Lubbock. But the defense and prosecution each rejected five jurors whom the lawyers apparently surmised would not be favorable to their respective causes.

Rejected by the state on Friday was a landman who said he "would feel very uncomfortable" in deciding a capital murder case in which the death penalty might be exacted.

"I would love to be on a jury and go through the (judicial) process," he said, "but in a case like this, I would be very uncomfortable."

Commented the judge: "I doubt seriously that any fair-minded juror would be comfortable in a capital murder case."

Another prospective juror, a business manager, was dismissed by the judge after he allowed that a "very close" friend of his was murdered in Odessa.

Refused by the defense was a widow who said she wished the death penalty "wasn't there, but it's the law. It's for the protection for other people."

She said she viewed capital punishment as a deterrent to the person on trial, but "it's hard to say what it does for other people."

A former elementary schoolteacher who said "I think the Bible says that you should have capital punishment" was disqualified by the judge. The woman said that she had read about the case in the newspaper and of Lackey's previous conviction of the capital murder of Ms. Kumpf. That 1978 conviction was overturned due to a pre-trial technicality over the dismissal of a prospective juror.

"I should be fair and impartial," she said, "but I don't think I could be."

Columbians mourn victims of earthquake

POPAYAN, Colombia (AP) — Five thousand mourners, some weeping uncontrollably and others quietly sobbing, buried loved ones Friday who died in the Holy Thursday earthquake that devastated this Andean provincial capital.

Most of the dead were elderly people, babies and teen-agers caught unaware when the quake struck. Many were killed in Popayan's 17th century Roman Catholic cathedral, which collapsed during early Mass.

President Belisario Betancur attended the burial ceremony at a local cemetery, at which Archbishop Silverio Buitrago presided. The archbishop told reporters he granted a special dispensation so that Mass could be said on Good Friday.

An emergency committee headed by provincial Gov. Amalia de Salazar said 194 bodies had been identified by Friday afternoon, 179 in Popayan and 15 in surrounding towns. Rescuers said there were at least 40 more bodies that had not been identified, and searched through tons of rubble for more victims.

Army helicopters ferried in tents, food and other emergency supplies and evacuated seriously injured victims.

Some relatives of the dead fainted as Archbishop Buitrago, helped by 15 priests, said Mass before a makeshift altar erected on a pile of broken bricks. The bodies were buried in a corner of the cemetery untouched by the destruction.

Much of the cemetery was heavily damaged by the temblor, which exposed hundreds of coffins and broke most open. Sanitation teams began collecting the remains, disinfecting them with quicklime and reburying them in a common grave. But many families objected and took their relatives' coffins to neighboring communities for reburial.

With 700 people reported injured, the city's hospital and two clinics were jammed. Six helicopters were flying more severe cases to Cali, 66 miles to the north.

Defendant yells when sentenced

FORT WORTH (AP) — A defendant tried to bolt from the courtroom and had to be forcibly subdued after he and his wife were sentenced to a total of 75 years in prison for operating a "speed" manufacturing ring.

James David Daniel, 31, yelled, "I want to see my mother!" and tried to run from the courtroom Thursday when State District Judge Gordon Gray announced that he was sentenced to 50 years in prison and fined $10,000.

Sandra Kay Daniel was sentenced to 25 years in prison and fined $2,500.

Stunned and tearful jurors later asked for escorts to their cars and inquired whether defendants would be able to find out their names.

Among five defendants, only Sandra Daniel's 20-year-old sister, Belinda Faye Bartley, received probation in the punishments handed down by the eight-woman, four-man jury. The 20-year-old also was assessed a $2,500 fine.

Sentenced to 15 years in prison were Stephanie Gail Holman, 23, and Percy Edward Wilson, 35.

The five were accused of helping operate an East Texas amphetamine laboratory in Cass County.

Man not indicted in wife's mercy killing

"I was counting all the time the years," Florian told the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel in a copyright story published Friday.

Florian studied the disease, learning that scientists know neither its cause nor its cure, only the results — the brain withers and fills with bubbles and granules.

"You know, there was only one feeling — that she should go before me, that she shouldn't be left alone," Florian told the newspaper.

The childless woman, who met Florian after she came to the United States following World War II, would lie on the kitchen floor and act out giving birth. She would talk incessantly to the walls, mirrors and clocks, acting out two or three roles.

And she screamed so loudly the neighbors heard. "They figured I wanted to kill her," Florian said. But he held off confining her to a home.

One night, the woman Florian called "Hannie" crawled out of bed and fell against a nightstand, gashing her head. For her sake and his, Florian put her in a nursing home, where he visited her every day. She aged so quickly that relatives who visited the home walked past without recognizing her.

In the last three months, her screaming increased, terrifying fellow patients. She had to be bound hand and foot. The staff asked Florian to remove his wife. On March 8, he took her to Hollywood Memorial.

Ten days later, Florian made his final visit to Johanna, taking along a .38-caliber revolver he bought two years ago. There was a single bullet in the cylinder. He never contested the police version of events — that he lifted his wife from bed, wheeled her into a stairwell and put a bullet into her brain.

After Thursday's grand jury decision, Gutmacher said Florian's secret testimony to the panel had apparently convinced jurors the killing was one of mercy.

"The only way for the grand jury to understand what he did would be from listening to my client alone," the attorney said.

Prosecutors said they would drop the case. "If 12 people on a grand jury don't indict, why would another jury convict?" asked Chief Assistant State Attorney Ralph Ray.

Dr. Stanley Goodman, president of the Broward Medical Association, said he thought the decision reflected the public's growing awareness of the trauma of long, difficult illnesses, although physicians will never recommend killing.

"The juries seem to be sympathetic," said Goodman. "The grand jury seems to say that under certain conditions, euthanasia is all right."

Gutmacher said when he called Florian to tell him he hadn't been indicted, his client was "not exuberant."

Hans Florian

"You could hear the sadness in his voice," Gutmacher said. "He just said he was so relieved, and then he started talking about his wife and the good times they had."

Shooting victim in serious condition

A 40-year-old Midland man was in serious condition in Midland Memorial Hospital late Friday after sustaining a shotgun wound to the lower left leg.

The victim was identified as Arizona Lee Simpson of 2312 Cottonwood. The shooting occurred at North Parker Acres Trailer Park at 7:15 p.m. as the result of an earlier disturbance, according to Midland County Sheriff's Department officers.

A suspect was questioned, but no charges had been filed by late Friday and officers had taken no one into custody.

Correction

In the Church Section published Wednesday, it was reported that First Assembly of God Church groundbreaking will be held Sunday.

The groundbreaking was held some time ago. The story of that event inadvertently was included in copy for the church section.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets any confusion or inconvenience this may have caused.

Have we made an error? Call us at 682-5311, Ext. 130, and a correction will be published.

White pulls joke

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White pulled an "April Fools" joke on the Capitol press corps Friday.

"I am today reversing my position and no longer calling for an elected Public Utility Commission," White announced somberly.

With furrowed brows, most news reporters wrote urgently, aware that White has been pushing for an elected commission.

"I think it's important that we appoint the commissioners, especially after the fine job that I've done to date," White said, quickly adding with a big grin, "and before you get to the wire with that story, let me tell you it's an April Fools joke."

DEATHS

C.G. Garrett

CLOVIS, N.M. — Services for Claude G. Garrett, 80, of Clovis, father of Charles Wayne Garrett of Midland were to be at 3:30 p.m. today in Resthaven Chapel in Lubbock with the Rev. Bobby Stice of Houston and the Rev. Don Prince of Lubbock officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Cemetery in Lubbock. Steed-Todd Funeral Home of Clovis handled local arrangements.

He died Thursday in a Clovis hospital.

Garrett was born Oct. 3, 1902, in Bowie, Texas. He had been a resident of Clovis for 27 years, and was formerly of Brownfield and Anton. He was a member of Central Baptist Church of Clovis.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Ruby Faye, in 1978, and a daughter, Denny Stice, in 1982.

Other survivors include a daughter, six brothers, a sister, six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The family has requested memorials be directed to the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. Mattie Tom

Mrs. Mattie Tom, 78, of 2009 Neely, died Friday morning in Midland Memorial Hospital.

Services are pending at Ellis Funeral Home.

Aliens killed on Texas highways

EL PASO (AP) — About one-third of El Paso's pedestrian fatalities are desperate, job-seeking illegal aliens who dart across border highways and are run over by motorists, officials say.

"They dash across the highway like they're crazy. Those who never look don't make it," El Paso County Sheriff Mike Davis said Wednesday. "It's a common occurrence on the U.S.-Mexico border."

One who didn't survive was Esther Rodriguez Reyes, a 56-year-old illegal alien who worked as a $10-a-week maid in El Paso. Mrs. Rodriguez Reyes was killed Sunday when she bolted in front of a car on the Border Highway that separates El Paso from neighboring Ciudad Juarez.

"I'm sure she wasn't committing suicide," said El Paso Hit-and-Run Division patrolman Elaine Roundtree. "They're just trying to beat the traffic."

Officials say 10 of the 28 pedestrians killed last year in this far West Texas city of 450,000 were illegal aliens.

"That's 35 percent. That doesn't surprise me," Davis said.

Through the first quarter of 1983, two of El Paso's six pedestrian fatalities were illegal aliens, including Mrs. Rodriguez Reyes, who police said was traveling to her job in El Paso.

U.S. Border Patrol officials say March is the third successive record-breaking month for illegal alien apprehensions in the busy El Paso sector, which covers 340 miles of the New Mexico-Mexico border and Rio Grande riverfront.

February's 18,000 alien apprehensions in the El Paso sector, the second busiest along the border behind Chula Vista, California, rose 60 percent over the same month in 1982, El Paso sector chief Alan Eliason said. "And the scary thing is we're not even in the peak season yet."

Traditionally, July and August are the busiest border apprehension months, when most aliens try to sneak into the Southwest to work at summer fruit-picking jobs.

Illegal aliens are fleeing the economic woes of their nation, which is suffering from its worst monetary crisis since the 1910-20 Mexican Revolution. The Mexican peso has been devalued three times, and now is worth one-sixth its value of February 1982.

The peso currently is valued at about 155 to the dollar.

Juarez, El Paso's sister city of 900,000, is the largest border town along the 1,900-mile U.S.-Mexico border, and has been particularly struck by its nation's economic problems. Officials in Juarez, Mexico's fourth largest city, estimate 40 percent of its workers are unemployed.

"Most of the people who are seen dashing across the highways come across to work in the morning and go back (to Juarez) at night," Ms. Roundtree said.

AP Laserphoto

The "Tortilla Curtain" between the United States and Mexico deters some, but most illegal aliens are crossing in record numbers into neighboring El Paso and disappearing. Some who don't dash across the border highways quickly enough are being struck and killed by unsuspecting motorists.

Gas company cutoff results in frostbite

DALLAS (AP) — A 75-year-old woman who suffered through several chilling nights after her gas was turned off may lose her feet to frostbite, doctors say.

A social worker found Mary Jane Hancock in her small home in the Oak Cliff section on March 22, suffering from hypothermia and frostbite on her feet and hands.

Lone Star Gas Co. turned off service March 2 because of nonpayment of bills since December, officials said. The company refused to say how much Mrs. Hancock owes.

Lone Star spokesman Bob Jett said the utility company tries to arrange continuation of service and reduced payments, "but the person has to come to us first."

Jett said Lone Star doesn't "cut off the gas when the weather is cold.

"The weather at that time, the first part of March, was just like spring," he said.

Mrs. Hancock, a widow who lived alone with her two cats, was listed in serious condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital, a hospital spokesman Greg Graves said. She was undergoing tests to determine if doctors can save her feet, the spokesman said.

"Amputation is a possibility," Graves said.

Jeanne Denton shared a hospital room with Mrs. Hancock until Wednesday.

"If you could see her feet, it would make you hurt," Ms. Denton said.

Mrs. Hancock awakended from a bad dream early Wednesday, Ms. Denton said.

"She was hollering about 'that storm,'" Ms. Denton said. "She would ask us, 'Did you get cold during that storm? I guess I'll never be warm again.'"

The storm she referred to, Ms. Denton believes, is a cold snap March 11, when temperatures dipped to 29 degrees.

Records show the mercury fell to 33 on March 12, followed by a brief warm spell. But on March 21, the low was 35 followed by a 34-degree reading on the day Mrs. Hancock was found.

Some firefighters start fires

DICKSON CITY, Pa. (AP) — A dress factory was damaged. A lumberyard and a department store were burned. Vacant houses were torched.

And authorities say the men who set some of the fires, went back to fight the flames. Eight volunteer firefighters, including the fire chief and captain of Eagle Volunteer Hose Company No. 1, have been arrested in connection with eight of the 59 fires that have plagued this small, northeastern Pennsylvania community since 1977.

Eight other volunteers, ranging in age from 15 to 17, were charged with summary offenses for allegedly setting minor fires and face juvenile proceedings, said state police Lt. Michael Jordan.

Jordan said "a code of silence" within the fire department stopped firefighters from telling authorities about the alleged arsons.

"The majority were what we classify as thrill and excitement. They were set for the fun of it," said state police fire marshal Walter Mochowsky.

"You get an individual who joins a fire department to fight fires and isn't content unless he does," he said. "They'd get to drinking and decide they haven't had a fire for a while, so they'd set one.

"The unique thing about this situation was the number of firemen involved," said Mochowsky, whose investigation into other fires, including the torching of the local high school and the borough building, is continuing. More arrests are expected.

The first arrests on Feb. 3 shocked many of the town's 6,700 residents.

In Pennsylvania there are no statistics on the number of volunteer firefighters who are arrested for starting fires. State police logs, for example, do not list volunteer firefighters as an occupation.

But according to state police figures, 50 percent of those arrested for arson in Pennsylvania are under 18 and 74 percent are under 25. Many volunteer firemen come from that age bracket, said Ernie Rojahn, spokesman for the Pennsylvania Firemen's Association.

"There is a definite correlation between the age group of people who come into the fire service and the age group that experiments with arson," said Rojahn.

"When 60 percent of your membership is young adults, and 74 percent of the arson arrests in Pennsylvania are those same young adults, we're bound to get some of them."

The Dickson City arrests involve a 1978 fire at a dress factory that caused $300,000 damage, two fires at the C&S Wood Products lumberyard and several vacant homes. Police say flares taken from fire trucks were used to start some of the fires.

A number of the fires also included brush fires and garbage bins.

One firefighter, 19-year-old Robert Lark, has already pleaded guilty to six counts each of criminal mischief and conspiracy. He was sentenced to two years probation, fined $400 and has agreed to testify for the prosecution.

House member faults Medicaid plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's plan to allow states to force people to pay for the nursing home care of relatives who are Medicaid patients is coming under fire from a House subcommittee chairman.

"Last year, the administration told the elderly poor that if they needed nursing home care, the states could place a lien on their homes," Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., said earlier this week.

"Having recognized that it can't squeeze any more blood from this turnip, the administration is now going after their children, their brothers, their sisters, and any other relative available. It wants to income-test everybody close to an elderly poor person who needs Medicaid," he said.

Ousted coroner loses administrative battle

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — Ousted Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas T. Noguchi lost his last administrative battle to get his old job back when the county Civil Service Commission voted 4-1 earlier this week to stand by its former decision upholding his demotion. It also unanimously refused to grant Noguchi a rehearing.

The two votes, taken after a seven-minute hearing, marked the end of the road for Noguchi's Civil Service hearing process. But Noguchi's attorney, Godfrey Isaac, said he will file suit in Superior Court within 90 days, starting a legal battle that he predicted will last up to three years.

Isaac wants the Board of Supervisors' demotion of Noguchi overturned.

"I can't say I'm shocked," Isaac said after the votes. He called the commission's decisions "political rather than factual" and said that they marked "the death of the Civil Service system."

Noguchi, 56, when asked if he were surprised by the outcome, said, "I am not." Talking to reporters after the votes, he added, "I am more convinced I'm going to work hard in maintaining independence of the medical examiner system and I will work for the people (because) the Civil Service system must be preserved."

The commission on Feb. 23 voted to uphold the Board of Supervisors' decision to demote Noguchi to a job performing routine autopsies.

In removing Noguchi as chief medical examiner-coroner nearly a year ago, the board accused him of mismanaging the department, being absent too much and making inappropriate public statements about the deaths of celebrities. The demotion came after a series in the Los Angeles Times outlined serious management problems in the department.

Lunch helps children

From Wire Reports

WASHINGTON — The 23 million public school children who participate in the federal school lunch program tend to be better nourished than those who get their noon meal elsewhere, but the chief nutritional benefit that 3.5 million poor students receive from the school breakfast program is that they eat a meal they otherwise might skip.

These were among the conclusions of a two-year Agriculture Department study of 7,000 families participating in USDA nutrition programs that provide breakfast, lunch or milk to students.

About 10 percent of school children participate in the school breakfast program, targeted toward poor children, and about 60 percent participate in the school lunch program, available to all students.

According to the 600-page report, prepared by System Development Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., several of the nutrients provided by the lunch program, including vitamins A and B-6, calcium and magnesium, are "typically deficient in the diet of the school-age population."

The study also noted that "the biggest single determinant of School Lunch Program participation is meal price." It added that "contrary to some speculation, families in general do not reduce their food expenditures when their children receive subsidized meals at school." Both lunch and breakfast programs, the report said, tend to supplement a family's food supply, not its income.

Between the 1980-81 and 1981-82 school years, when eligibility requirements were tightened and the average price of the lunches raised, USDA internal reports showed that about 3 million students dropped out of the program.

Girl's Easter gift is chance to hear

HOUSTON (AP) — A 5-year-old girl who underwent an operation that doctors hope will let her hear for the first time should be able to go home "in time for the Easter bunny to visit," her doctors says.

Amy Fisk was recovering very well Friday at Memorial Hospital, said Dr. Ed Maddox.

Maddox, an ear-nose-throat specialist, placed a two-part device that converts sound into electrical current to stimulate the hearing nerve.

During the two-hour operatioin Thursday, Maddox said, an induction coil and wire were implanted on the bone above Amy's left ear. The wire is placed inside her inner ear.

Man indicted in wife's death

EASTLAND (AP) — The former mayor pro-tem of this West Texas town has been indicted in the shotgun slaying of his 27-year-old wife.

Loyal Edward Lundstrom, 59, was indicted Thursday by an Eastland County grand jury.

Lundstrom disappeared for nearly two weeks after the March 3 slaying of Doris Eileen Lundstrom, but surrendered to authorities at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport March 16.

Mrs. Lundstrom's body was found March 5 at the Cisco Motel, which the couple owned and operated. An autopsy determined she was killed two days earlier.

Lundstrom was charged with murder and released from county jail in Eastland March 21 after a $200,000 property bond was posted for him.

Injunction issued against publisher

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday a permanent injunction has been issued against Garland Publishing Co. of Lubbock on charges of misrepresentation in advertising solicitation for telephone books.

Named in the injunction were Vivian Hall and Garland Hendricks.

The injunction, issued by District Court Judge John R. McFall of Lubbock, calls for a default judgment against the defendants for $4.4 million, plus civil penalties of $10,000 each against Ms. Hall and Hendricks.

Mattox's office alleged the publishing company solicited advertising for area phone books throughout West Texas and then did not publish and distribute the books as represented to potential advertisers.

White names job training council

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White named a 34-member State Job Training Council Friday to spend $150 million in federal funds annually for training and retraining Texas' unemployed.

Ray Marshall, former U.S. Secretary of Labor, will be chairman and Travis County Commissioner Richard Moya, Austin, vice chairman.

White said the recently approved federal Job Training Partnership Act will provide about $150 million a year to Texas in federal funds for training and retraining the unemployed and economically disadvantaged.

"This program provides us with an unprecendented opportunity to train Texans for productive employment," he said.

Campers vacate The Shelter

NEW CANEY (AP) — All 20 homeless and jobless campers had vacated a modern-day Hooverville of tents and shacks by Friday, said the self-styled preacher who organized the settlement.

The Shelter, located 45 miles north of Houston, was the second makeshift community in Southeast Texas to be closed this year.

Ray Meyer, 38 and minister of the House of Israel Bible Church, said residents at The Shelter had moved in with relatives, neighbors or landowners who allowed them to camp on their property.

Montgomery County commissioners ordered March 7 that the campground be vacated by Friday. Because of the Easter holiday, commissioners said they would wait until Monday to inspect the site.

County officials cited massive health and safety problems at the camp, stemming from the lack of adequate septic facilities.

Officials said the camp had been discharging raw sewage into a branch of the San Jacinto River. That river flows into Lake Houston, from which the city of Houston gets part of its water supply.

Inspectors also said the camp had faulty electrical wiring, overloaded circuit breakers, a half-buried propane tank and an uninsulated stove pipe.

Meyer organized The Shelter late last year on 2.8 acres of low-lying property he rented for $250 a month. He said county officials have done nothing for unemployed workers who were evicted.

Justice refuses to postpose union's merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court Justice refused Friday to block a federal judge's order that two black Galveston longshoreman's union locals merge with two other locals.

Justice Byron R. White turned down the emergency request aimed at postponing the merger until the full Supreme Court can study a formal challenge to it.

Locals 329 and 851 of the International Longshoremen's Association argued a portion of the order will cost them seniority and work opportunities.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black ruled March 22 that 29 locals in Texas ports must combine into 12 groups Friday. But the black locals argued the judge's system of figuring seniority by status in the old locals as well as by years of service will cost their members work.

Attorney Leonard Cruse said the longshoremen were only opposing the seniority list merger, not the merger concept in general.

"You've got 25-year men on the same level as 35-year men," Cruse said. "It was an immediate promotion for a lot of people and others got bumped down the line."

Bullock dry as a bone, aide says

AUSTIN (AP) — If the officer who gave Comptroller Bob Bullock a ticket for speeding at 106 mph believed Bullock had been drinking, he should have taken him to jail, a spokesman for the comptroller said Friday.

John Moore, Bullock's press aide, insisted the comptroller, a recovered alcoholic, has been "dry as a bone for the past year and a half" and was not drinking March 25 when Bullock was cited for driving 51 mph over the limit on Interstate 35 in Williamson County north of Austin.

The Department of Public Safety officer who clocked Bullock's new BMW, Ruben Duran, said he smelled alcohol on Bullock's breath and saw two beer cans in the car — but did not consider Bullock legally intoxicated and cited him only for speeding.

"He didn't report any alcohol to his captain or to any of his superiors," Moore complained. "Apparently he just had a revelation."

Bullock was vacationing in Colorado when press reports of the incident surfaced and was not available for comment, but Moore said he reached the comptroller by phone Thursday night.

"He said if the officer thought there was alcohol and clocked him at 106 mph, that officer should have taken him to the jailhouse," Moore said. "This thing stinks. Mr. Bullock said the officer seemed to be upset that he was going that fast and delivered a stern lecture, and this could be a reason he later exaggerated his account."

Duran said he did not realize he was dealing with a prominent state official at the time — "It hadn't dawned on me who Robert Douglas Bullock was." He said Bullock was cordial and "very apologetic."

Politicians switch sides on interest withholding issue

By OWEN ULLMANN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rancorous congressional debate over withholding taxes on interest and dividends is recycling arguments that have been around for years. But the combatants have switched sides.

Listen to Sen. Bob Dole on the issue: "It is also clear that withholding would impose significant record-keeping and reporting burdens on financial institutions. This can only increase costs to the customers..., further penalizing those who want to save and invest and concealing the true cost of this tax for our citizens."

Listen again to Sen. Dole: "...millions of dollars have been spent by certain members of the banking industry, led by the American Banking Association, to, in effect, I think, mislead many of their customers into believing that somehow we have proposed some new tax. If you pay your taxes on interest and dividend income, it is not a new tax at all."

The Kansas Republican made the first remark in June 1980, when he was ranking minority member of the Democratic-controlled Senate Finance Committee. It was just a few months after the Democratic administration of Jimmy Carter proposed to withhold taxes on interest and dividends.

THE SECOND remark was made in the Senate last month as Dole, now chairman of the GOP-controlled Finance Committee, led the fight against repeal of a similar provision. It was proposed by the Republican administration of Ronald Reagan and approved by Congress last year with strong GOP support.

Listen to what the Republican Party Platform said in 1980: "We also oppose Carter proposals to impose withholding on dividend and interest income."

Listen to what Reagan had to say last week about the banking industry's campaign to repeal the measure: "We should not accept an amendment designed to prevent the collection of taxes that are already owed on interest and dividends."

Reagan even promised this month to veto a politically popular jobs program if the withholding repeal were attached to it.

An Analysis

A number of Democrats have switched as well. Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, who swapped Finance Committee posts with Dole in 1981, thought enough of the withholding idea in 1976 to propose it. Now, he's opposing it, borrowing some of Dole's arguments in 1980.

THREE YEARS AGO, when Long was running the show, Dole sponsored a resolution opposing interest and dividend withholding as being "detrimental to the economic well-being of the United States." Thirty-four of the Senate's 41 Republicans were co-sponsors, along with 26 of the 58 Democrats. Long was not among them.

Last year, a move in the Senate to defeat the provision was blocked by the Republicans. Only 10 of 54 GOP members voted against it, but 37 of 46 Democrats were opposed.

One might get the feeling that partisan politics has more currency in this city than devotion to principle. Why else would Republicans who once resisted withholding as a needless tax on savers and investors now defend it as a necessary drive to crack down on tax cheats? Why else would Democrats who once saw the need for improving tax compliance now cast themselves as the small saver's protector from the greedy tax man?

Long explained his conversion on the grounds that "I am in a position to be somewhat of a statesman about this issue. I have heard both sides and made both arguments." He obviously believes the bankers' arguments are correct, according to his spokesman, Raphael Bermudez.

DOLE JUSTIFIES his conversion on the grounds that the current withholding law is better than the 1980 proposal — it withholds a smaller percentage of income and has broader exemptions for elderly and low-income savers.

Public finds 1040EZier than IRS anticipated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new 1040EZ tax form is proving to be more popular with single Americans than the Internal Revenue Service had predicted.

Of the 52.5 million individual returns received during the first 12 weeks of the year, 11.5 million were the single-page 1040EZ forms. When the form was unveiled last year, IRS forecast about 11 million of the 22 million single people with incomes under $50,000 and no itemized deductions would use it.

State Department calls memorandum 'forgery'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is denouncing as "a clear forgery" a memorandum purportedly drafted by former national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinksi detailing an alleged 1978 U.S. plan to destabilize Poland.

The alleged plan included a strategy to influence the election of Pope John Paul II, who became the first Polish leader of the Roman Catholic Church.

Scientists unearth mastodon teeth

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Two 4-inch molars belonging to a prehistoric mastodon have been uncovered at a construction site near Chula Vista, according to the San Diego Natural History Museum.

The scientists said the molars came from the pig-toothed mastodon family known as Gomphotheriidae. When fully grown, these prehistoric elephants stood as high as 9 feet from ground to shoulder.

The discovery is the first evidence that the ancient elephant roamed coastal areas of San Diego County, the museum announced Thursday.

Scientists Richard Cerutti and Dan Parker are credited with discovering the fossils Saturday in a sandstone bed formed 2 million to 3 million years ago and excavated during recent construction.

Gallos donate for abuse research

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — The Ernest Gallo Foundation has given $3 million to the University of California-San Francisco to study alcohol abuse, a school spokeswoman said.

The neurology department at the university's medical school opened an alcohol treatment clinic six months ago and plans to build a research laboratory this year.

Researchers will concentrate on the cause and treatment of alcohol-related maladies and study ways of predicting and preventing alcoholism.

Gallo and his brother, Julio, own the world's largest winery, based in Modesto.

Man has to pay for fake jeans

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A man serving a year in prison for fraud has been ordered to pay $2.4 million to a designer jean manufacturer for selling counterfeit Calvin Klein jeans.

John Yunker violated federal trademark and fair competition laws and was guilty of theft, U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich said in her summary judgment Thursday. She ordered Yunker to pay New York fashion designer Calvin Klein and Centerfold Industries Inc., the company that makes the jeans.

She said Yunker sold at least 56,184 fake jeans in 1979 and 1980, primarily in Georgia, Alabama, New York, Pennsylvania and Florida.

Anti-war protestors arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — A total of eight antiwar demonstrators was arrested by Pentagon police Friday on a variety of charges, officials said.

Six of the demonstrators were given tickets and released and two were taken into custody and brought to a federal magistrate's office, officials said. They said the demonstrators were part of an organization called the Atlantic Life Community.

Interfaith Church 'will rise again,' bishop says

Fire guts church built after pope's visit

URBANDALE, Iowa (AP) — A 19th century-style country church built after a 1979 visit by Pope John Paul II and destroyed in a spectacular fire "will rise again," an official said Friday.

The Interfaith Church of the Land, built of wood with $250,000 in donations at the 600-acre Living History Farms in this Des Moines suburb, was insured and the coverage should be enough for another sanctuary to be built, said Farms Director Steve Green.

"Unofficially, of course, there has been no board meeting," said William Murray, president of the farm museum's board, "but the people are saying it will rise again."

The church was heavily damaged late Thursday by flames which could be seen miles away. More than 100 firefighters from Urbandale and other Des Moines suburbs slogged through ankle-deep mud to reach the fire. Within an hour of the time firemen arrived, all that remained were scorched, sagging walls.

The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined, although state Fire Marshal Wilbur Johnson said an anhydrous ammonia tank found next to the burning church may have been in violation of state law.

Firemen try to extinguish a fire that destroyed the church in Urbandale, Iowa, which was built on the spot where Pope John Paul IIcelebrated Mass in 1979.

Johnson said the tank was filled with liquid propane gas which apparently was used to heat the church during the winter months. He said it was not clear whether the tank was related to the fire.

Firefighters had to string a hose to a water hydrant a half mile away and additional tanker trucks were called. Last December, Living History Farms announced plans to install hydrants this spring.

The non-denominational church was built atop a slight hill where the pope addressed and held Mass for a quarter of a million people on Oct. 4, 1979.

The church, which had been planned before the pope spoke at the site, was modeled after an 1870 Iowa country church, and was part of a pioneer village being developed at the farm museum.

Bishop Maurice Dingman, the head of the Des Moines Diocese who helped bring the pope to the rural setting, said Friday, after surveying the rubble: "It's always sad to see a building burn. But...as sure as I know that there's going to be an Easter Sunday, I know that there will be a church on this site on another Easter Sunday."

It was not the first setback for the church. Officials had early troubles with building code requirements and fund-raising, and a windstorm in 1981 blew down the sanctuary's partly-completed frame.

Holland first recognized U.S.

John Adams, the second president, was also the first Americn ambassador to The Netherlands, which in 1792 became the first nation to recognize the fledgling United States.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, April 3, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: American essayist and novelist Washington Irving, Time-Life founder Henry Luce and comedian Georgie Jessel were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: actresses Doris Day and Marsha Mason, San Francisco '49ers' Russ Francis, entertainers Tony Orlando and Wayne Newton, hockey's Bernie Parent and Detroit Tigers coach Alex Grammas. Make intelligent compromises in the months ahead and the sky will be the limit where success is concerned. Profits rise slowly at first, but then take off! A new love stands in the wings. Loans are easier to negotiate. Athletes and performers receive special awards. You finally come upon the perfect job.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Women are particularly kind to you today. Do not be overly protective of a famliy member who needs to spread his wings. A flirtation leads to true love. Spend time with children.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You gain family support when you speak your mind. Control impulsive buying. Stick to the essentials until a financial problem is resolved. Sports hold your attention this afternoon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are less tense now. Romance progresses nicely. Although a change of plans angers you, the results will be pleasing. Be suspicious of any promises made by an old flame.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pool your talents with someone else's and there is no limit to how far you can go. A family get-together provides you with the platform you have been seeking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your demands may be driving mate away. Back off a bit. Partner would like to make the first move occasionally. A money shortage eases, but you still need to keep spending down.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A competition with a member of the opposite sex could bring a commitment. Romantic relationship hits a new high. A slip of the tongue could get you in hot water with mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct.22): Two people who think alike are a perfect romantic match. Be careful not to spend too much money on expensive entertainment. With the right companion, even staying at home is fun!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Curb a tendency to indulge in jealousy. A family reunion reminds you of lessons learned in the past. Share your good fortune with a close friend or relative.

SAGGITARIUS (Nov.22-Dec. 21): Your friends are very helpful now. Follow their practical advice. A social event could provide a splendid opportunity for combining business with pleasure. Accept all invitations! Tout your talents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A conference with someone influential will help you map out a business campaign. Admit your mistakes, but emphasize your strengths. Loved ones are happy to follow your lead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Differences of opinion regarding childrearing can be resolved with a frank talk. A long-term romantic commitment will work out well. Spend more time helping others. Your concern works wonders.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Gadding about town is expensive! Entertain your close friends and neighbors at home. A candid discussion with an older person helps close the generation gap. Put your cards on the table.

'Beantown' not on par with 'MTM'

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — The liability in doing any comedy about television news is that it will never be as good as "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

CBS's new romantic comedy, "Goodnight, Beantown," doesn't come close. It doesn't work as comedy, or social commentary on TV news, so it concentrates on the chemistry between its two strong leads, Bill Bixby and Mariette Hartley.

"Goodnight, Beantown," which begins its spring tryout on Sunday, joins NBC's "Cheers" and "St. Elsewhere" as Boston-based, but Hollywood-originated series with nary a BAHstAHn accent in earshot. But CBS obviously has faith, allowing this five-episode run to coast on Mike Wallace's top-rated coattails in the slot following "60 Minutes."

The program focuses on the kiss-and-kick relationship between WYN's news anchors, Matt Cassidy (Bixby) and Jennifer Barnes (Miss Hartley). Mary Richards and her regular gang at WJM never allowed incestuous love to develop, unless you count Ted Baxter's affair with himself.

Matt is a no-nonsense anchor for Boston's bottom-rated newscast — the one without Happy Talk. Shades of Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters: Matt resists sharing his solo anchor with Jennifer. "I won't do 'Punch and Judy Do the News,' " says Matt.

Jennifer is no pushover on the set. But at home, where she's divorced, raising a stereophonic teenager and living in the same apartment building as Matt, she's flighty. Just because TV gives women key roles doesn't mean they won't be stereotyped.

On "Mary Tyler Moore," Ted (Ted Knight) raised buffoonery to new lows. That's not the approach here, although there's a foolish on-camera snit between Matt and Jennifer.

One point from their disagreement is that hard-core journalists are blind to the humanity in some stories, like male strippers, while another lesson is that there is too much male-female typecasting in story assignments.

After the tiff, viewers call and say they liked the friction, so the news director (George Coe) deems the pairing a success.

If Happy Talk news can be a ratings winner, so can "Goodnight, Beantown." Hard-core journalists may ask who, what, where, when and WHY?

Makeup man becomes true artist

Hearst Feature Service

The old vaudeville response to the call for "makeup" was an exaggerated application of white powder slapped on the face via an over-sized puff, but in these more realistic times, the artist responsible for preparing movie faces must move in more subtle ways. And he must know his latex and plastics, bread dough leavened with propane, and electronics.

John Caglione Jr.'s sensational makeup effects and otherworldly creatures in such films as "Scanners," "Amityville II," and more recently, for his work in creating various prehistoric men and women in "Quest for Fire" — for which he received an Academy Award nomination — are examples of what movie audiences both see and remember in films today. Caglione, also credited with inventing the Coneheads of NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live," is currently creating mechanical monsters for the upcoming "Amityville 3D" movie.

While growing up in Troy, N.Y., the 25-year-old Caglione was first exposed to the marvels of makeup through such classic monster movies as "Frankenstein" and "The Wolf Man."

"I had been doing monster makeup on myself and my buddies ever since I was about 8 years old. I used to put on plays in my basement. We pretty much ad-libbed them: "Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man," "The Wolf Man Meets Frankenstein," that sort of thing.

Reagan ready to exercise veto

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Conservative Republicans say President Reagan will veto any tax-increase measures sent to him and is prepared to shut down the government next fall in a funding confrontation with Congress to protect the heart of his Reagan Revolution from the "liberal Democrats."

Reagan told GOP conservatives on the eve of the House budget vote last week that he would veto attempts to repeal the third year of his 1981 tax cut or the tax-indexing plan — and also he would veto any extra tax increases.

In addition, he vowed to veto one spending bill after another if necessary to protect his basic plan of curtailing most government growth except in defense.

White House aides said last week Reagan had backed away from commitments made to GOP Senate moderates to back at least standby taxes for 1985 as part of a deficit-reducing budget package. Reagan's fervent 10-minute talk with GOP House conservatives confirmed that.

"IT WAS music to our ears," said Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif., not the least because Reagan indicated he would fight GOP senators whose proposed budget is strikingly similar to the Democratic plan approved a week ago last Wednesday.

A veto strategy has long been urged by GOP conservatives as a way to take the initiative again, to launch the 1984 campaign against the Democratic "tax-and-spend" policies and to keep at arms length the Senate Republicans who persuaded a reluctant Reagan to support a $97 billion tax increase package last year.

At last, conservatives said, Reagan is rebelling and is launching a strategy that will please his core conservative constituency, responding to the appeal made best by Interior Secretary James Watt when he said "Let Reagan be Reagan."

GOP moderates and Democrats say the risks are substantial in a veto strategy.

"THEIR REACTION right now might be to start throwing grenades," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., one of the Democratic budget architects. "But the system has a way of working itself out. If Reagan does opt out of any more tax increases and starts vetoing money bills, it could create chaos for the next eight months — but I wouldn't like to be a poor Republican politician with a finger in the (economic) dike if that happens."

Rep. Benjamin Gilman, a New York moderate Republican, held out hope that the Senate Budget Committee would write a more acceptable budget. He said a veto strategy could have adverse economic impact, no matter how politically attractive it appears.

"Vetoes may be the ultimate weapon but I hope we don't have to go through that. It's a very difficult strain and it wouldn't help the economy one bit," Gilman said, with political pluses "offset by the damage this would do to the economy."

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Tex., however, said the economic risks were minimal and the political and fiscal gains from a stalemate-veto strategy were worth the try--even if it destroys the beleaguered congressional budget process.

LOEFFLER, THE chief strategist in rounding up conservative Democratic votes that gave Reagan a working majority in the previous Congress, said the 26-vote gain by Democrats last November has made a change in tactics mandatory.

"The only way the conservative coalition will be effective is if there are vetoes by Reagan," Loeffler said, with the GOP-Democratic conservative bloc able to sustain nearly all vetoes.

He predicted Wall Street would be heartened, not alarmed, by a veto strategy even if it leads to a protracted stalemate between the White House and Congress because ultimately spending would be reduced.

"We are in a unique position," Loeffler said, because the recovery will be strong enough to withstand temporary business nervousness from Reagan's confronation with Congress.

"A recovery psychology is in effect. Consumer spending will be way up, we'll have better economic indicators soon on growth and deficits than we had in January and, because industrial utilization capacity won't rise rapidly this year, we won't have a collision over credit to drive interest rates up," Loeffler said.

THE SAME optimism about the economy is fueling Reagan's inclination to stand his ground against a rebellious House and Senate moderates.

In an emotional outburst against the Democratic budget on the eve of its passage, Reagan outlined to conservatives his plan to resist further tax increases or reinstatement of social spending. Lungren said Reagan was "back in his old fighting frame of mind on taxes, in marked contrast to his muted appeal for votes last summer on the $97 billion tax-increase measure."

"He obviously didn't have his heart in it," Lungren said. "But now he's all fired up; he feels these are fundamental shifts in the direction he brought to Washington, that he's being challenged. And he's clearly at his best when he's challenged."

The emergency for Republicans is clearcut, Lungren said.

FAA proposes ending quotas on flights to New York, Chicago

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administraton has proposed ending quotas on flights at two major New York City area airports and O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

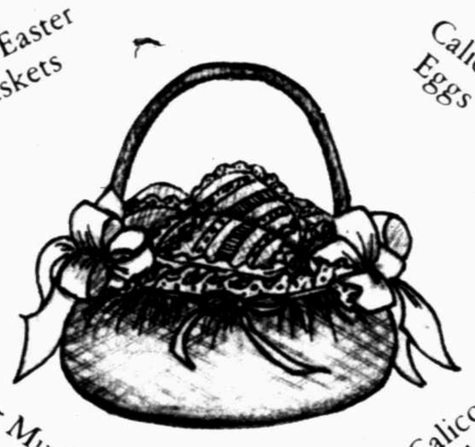

The restrictions were imposed in 1969 because air traffic controllers and airport ground facilities could handle no more flights.

Furniture to have safety features

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most upholstered furniture sold after July 1 will have fire-resistant safety features, but all furniture won't be fire safe without a mandatory standard, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has been told.

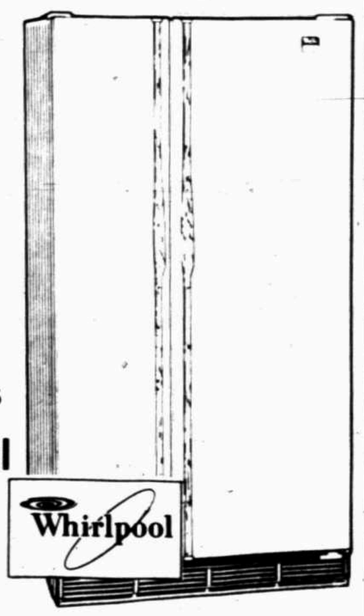

Commission experts said earlier this week that furniture with the label of the Upholstered Furniture Action Council will be made with a heat-conducting welt cord used as trim around the seat and a fire-resistant fabric between the cushion padding and outer material.

Houston vs. Louisville: Dunks and Blocks

AP Laserphoto

Houston coach Guy Lewis, who has been voted College Coach of the Year, talks with forward Clyde Drexler during an NCAA playoff game. Lewis' Cougars ended regular season play as the country's No. 1 ranked basketball team.

'Dogs vs. Wolfpack: The other game

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Today's showdown between top-ranked Houston and No. 2 Louisville in the NCAA semifinals shapes up as a contest between college basketball's prolific shot-blockers and dunk-shot artists.

The game overshadows the other semifinal between No. 18 Georgia and No. 16 North Carolina State, two teams which stunned the basketball world by reaching the Final Four.

CBS will televise the doubleheader starting at 2:39 p.m. CST from the University of New Mexico's 16,000-seat arena. The Georgia-N.C. State game will be the opener.

THE WINNERS meet at 8:12 p.m. CST Monday for the championship.

Houston is a 2½-point favorite, while Georgia is a 2-point pick.

With an awesome front line headed by Akeem Abdul Olajuwon, a 7-foot Nigerian, Houston has been intimidating the opposition all season while rolling up 25 straight victories en route to a 30-2 record.

Louisville, 32-3 with 16 straight wins, relies on a full court press and has a big front line.

"Maybe we can't press Houston," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "I don't know, but I'll guarantee you we'll try. You can't change what you do all year. You've got to do what you do best."

Both have been to the Final Four before, as recently as last year when they were knocked off in the semifinals. Louisville won the NCAA title in 1980 when this year's starting forward, Rodney McCray, was part of the "Doctors of Dunk" and Darrell Griffith was the Cardinals' key man.

"It should be a terrific ball game," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis, in his 27th season. "I just hope that the teams don't come up tight and neither team plays well."

Crum, who has guided Louisville to the Final Four five times including three of the last four years, said, "I haven't seen a weakness on the Houston team. If you get this far, there can't be any weakness."

Houston, winner of the Southwest Conference, has blocked 247 shots this season, two more than Louisville, the Metro Conference champion.

"We try to intimidate teams," said Larry Micheaux, a 6-9 senior forward for the Cougars. "We have great ability. I hope Louisville takes the ball to us."

SCOOTER MCCRAY, a Louisville senior, shrugged off Houston's intimidation factor.

"I've had more shots blocked in practice than by opponents," he said.

Olajuwon, a sophomore who has been playing basketball only since 1979, has improved 100 percent from last year, according to Lewis. He has blocked 156 shots this season while scoring at an average of 13.5 points and leading the Cougar rebounders with a 10.9 average.

Also heading the attack for the Midwest Regional champions is Michael Young, a 6-6 guard who is averaging 17.7 points, 6-7 Clyde Drexler (16.2) and Micheaux (14.3).

Freshman Alvin Franklin is the point guard. Bennie Anders, 6-5, and 6-7 Reid Gettys, the team's assist leader, are the first off the bench.

"There's a big difference this year," said Young, who can hit from the outside or penetrate. "Last year we were just glad to make the Final Four. This year we have more confidence and know what it takes to win."

Lewis, 61, who was named the AP's Coach of the Year Friday, said, "The experience helped. I won't know for sure until Saturday, but I hope something rubbed off."

In 1967 and 1968, Houston reached the Final Four behind Elvin Hayes, finishing third, then fourth.

"That team was more physical," Lewis said, "but this team has more depth."

Louisville, coming off an emotional overtime victory over Kentucky for the Mideast Regional title, features a balanced offense, led by guards Milt Wagner (14.0) and Lancaster Gordon (13.6).

The Cardinals' front line is 6-7 Rodney McCray, averaging 11.1 points; 6-8 center Charles Jones, 10.8, and Scooter McCray, 9.1. Billy Thompson, a 6-8 freshman, is the key reserve. The rebounding is evenly distributed.

"This is the last one (Final Four) and it'll be the best one for the University of Louisville and myself," said Rodney McCray, also a senior.

GEORGIA, 24-9, and North Carolina State, 24-10, got off to poor starts and were hardly rated as NCAA playoff contenders this season.

Georgia, best known as a football powerhouse, stood at 9-9 and N.C. State at 9-7 at one point this season.

Coach Hugh Durham of Georgia, who led Florida State to the NCAA runnerup spot in 1972, knows he must stop the Wolfpack backcourt of Dereck Whittenburg and Sidney Lowe, who have been teammates since high school, and 6-11 forward Thurl Bailey.

"Their backcourt is one of the best in the country," said Durham.

"We don't think they (N.C. State) are a team of destiny," said James Banks, 6-6 Bulldog forward who starred in upset wins over third-ranked St. John's and No. 8 North Carolina for the East Regional triumph. "We are out-heightened inside but we can use our quickness."

The quick Georgia team, which won the Southeastern Conference tournament, plays nobody taller than 6-7 Terry Fair, its second-leading scorer with a 13.9 average and a 6.6 rebounding mark.

Vern Fleming, a 6-5 guard, leads the Bulldogs with a 17-point average, while Banks is hitting at a 14-point pace. Guard Gerald Crosby (10.8) is an outside threat, while 6-5 Lamar Heard and 6-6 reserve Richard Corhen bang the boards.

Whittenburg, N.C. State's leading scorer with a 17.5 average, mostly long-range shots, apparently is recovered from his bout with the bout. The 6-1 senior worked out with the Wolfpack Friday after resting and taking medication Thursday.

Lowe, 6-0 senior, is the point guard, averaging 11.4 points. Bailey, 16.6 points, heads the front line.

The Atlantic Coast Conference tourney champions also get help up front from 6-11 Cozell McQueen, 6-7 Lorenzo Charles and in the backcourt from Terry Gannon and Ernie Myers, two freshman who filled in during Whittenburg's midseason injury.

Micheaux has to earn pro respect

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston sophomore center Akeem Olajuwon and junior forward Clyde Drexler seem to have their tickets to the professional ranks assured but Larry Micheaux, the only senior starter, must get his chance the hard way — he must earn it.

That is nothing new for Micheaux, the serious, non-smiling "Mr. Mean," who could be improving his pro prospects by displaying his talents in the NCAA Final Four championship tournament.

Micheaux grew up as the skinny kid on the block being pushed around by the older kids. But he's all grown up now and he gets his nickname naturally.

His idea of getting ready to play is to "do a lot of banging around in the first couple of minutes of the game just to get the feel of the other team."

When the Cougars meet Louisville Saturday in the NCAA championship semifinals, Micheaux will wear his best "Mr. Mean" expression and play his usual game — intimidation.

"We've got three great shot blockers on our team in myself, Akeem (Olajuwon) and Clyde (Drexler) and we try to intimidate the other team," Mixheaux said. "We have the leaping ability and the talent to do it.

"In my mind, the key to the game is to take the ball to them."

Micheaux, often overshadowed by the emergence of Olajuwon, has played some of his best games in the past two seasons in the NCAA playoffs, making the Midwest Regional all-tournament teams both years.

Micheaux played his best game of the season in the Midwest finals this season when he scored 30 points, got 12 rebounds and blocked six shots in an 89-71 victory.

While Olajuwon and Drexler are projected as sure pro prospects, several pro scouts have said that Micheaux could improve his chances of earning a pro shot by his performances throughtout the playoffs.

Micheaux hopes the Cardinals will come out with a physical game because that's the only kind he knows how to py.

"We should know in the first two minutes what kind of game the officials will call and then we can adjust ourselves," Micheaux said. "I hope their team brings the ball right at us. Then we can help each other out. I know we are going right at them."

Micheaux and Olajuwon's teammwork has been a key factor in Houston's charge through the playoffs to their second consecutive Final Four appearance.

Final Four grows year after year

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Scalpers are asking up to $1,000 this weekend for tickets to college basketball's Final Four, tickets that 10 years ago might have gone begging.

Just seven years ago, when the NCAA announced the field and bracket for its postseason tournament, three people showed up — one reporter from each of the major news services and a sports writer for the Kansas City Star. Now, the announcement itself is an event, commanding live television coverage and in-depth analysis by many newspapers.

Even the people on the scene have been amazed at the growth of the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

In 1971, the tournament's gross receipts, from first-round games through the championship, were $1,937,009 and the total attendance was 207,200. Last year, gross receipts topped $20 million and attendance approached 430,000. NCAA officials expect to approach those record numbers again by the time this year's champion is crowned in Albuquerque Monday night.

"It's been phenomenal, really phenomenal," said Tom Jernstedt, an assistant executve director of the NCAA and the tournament director since 1975. "A few years ago, nobody even dreamed the tournament would be this big. Its popularity has been surging every year."

It has surged to the top. The entire tournament, specifically the Final Four, has taken its place with the Super Bowl, the Indianapolis 500, the Kentucky Derby and the World Series as a premier American sports event.

So what happened?

For starters, say many observers, UCLA stopped winning every year.

"People simply got bored seeing UCLA win year after year," said Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, who was chairman of the Division I Basketball Committee from 1978-81, the years of the tournament's greatest growth.

The John Wooden-coached Bruins smothered the opposition from 1964 through 1975, winning 10 championships in 12 years. As interest in college basektball waned, professonal football took off like a rocket.

But since UCLA's last championship in 1975, 25 different teams have captured the 32 Final Four spots, creating heightened interest on 25 separate campuses and regions around the nation.

"It became a national tournament again," said Duke, who also worked with the tournament while on the NCAA staff from 1952-63. "And at the same time the tournament was becoming more national in scope, the bracket was expanded to take in more teams."

Before 1975, the field every year ranged from 22 to 25 teams.

"Several times the field went below 25 because the (Division I Basketball) Committee decided there were fewer worthy teams," said Duke. "The at-large spots were optional only if you had worthy teams, in the eyes of the committee, to complete the bracket."

Once they started, tournament administrators found bracket-expanding a tough habit to break — going to 32 teams in 1975, to 40 in 1979, 48 in 1980 and 52 this year.

As the field was enlarged, the committee acquired unprecedented powers from the NCAA Convention and Executive Committee.

"Instead of being limited to taking only two teams from a conference, we could now take as many as we felt deserved to go," said Duke.

"I still drive my 3-year-old Toyota with 55,000 miles on it. I don't want material things to identify me. I want people to like me for what I am." Releiver Greg Minton, former Amarillo pitcher, after signing a $4 million contract with the San Francisco Giants.

Pressure produces ulcer factory

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) - It's the most productive ulcer factory in sports —the role of college basketball coach in today's fast-paced, highly charged environment.

"The pressure is unbelievable," says Lou Carnesecca, the volatile coach of St. John's University. "It's tough on the coaches, but tougher on the players - that big TV eye zeroed in on you and the whole country watching."

Carnesecca's team, ranked third in the nation, was eliminated by Georgia in the NCAA Eastern regionals. But he appreciates what four of his brethren will got through in the Final Four this weekend at the arena here called The Pit.

"NERVES WILL be twanging like banjo strings," he says. "There has to be a release valve. It's my personality to be excitable and demonstrative. But all the coaches have different ways of dealing with the pressure."

Carnesecca is like an uncaged animal on the sidelines when his team is playing.

He rants. He raves. He storms up and down the sidelines. He is a little bundle of exploding TNT.

Carnesecca throws towels. Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas chews on them.

"Some coaches keep the pressure in their stomachs," Lou said. "That's like swallowing hydrochloric acid. Ulcer bait. Cardiac country."

The diminutive fireball is in Albuquerque for meetings of college coaches in connection with the tournament finals.

Stress is one of the subjects being aired at the sessions. The profession — with its escalating emphasis on recruiting and necessity to produce winning teams — is one of the most demanding and insecure.

DICK VERSACE, whose Bradley University team won the National Invitation a year ago, says there will be no more "lifers" in the game such as the late Adolph Rupp, 42 years at Kentucky, and Ray Meyer of Depaul, whose career also has touched four decades.

"Some of the young guys coming in now may last 10 years, if they're lucky," he said. "Then they'll move to something else. Recruiting and winning pressure is the main reason. Part of it is that they build up outside involvements."

Norm Stewart of Missouri's Big Eight champions gave the matter another perspective.

"It's the players' game and our profession," he said. "And all we can do is wait to get fired."

Carnesecca mentioned coaches with good records who had been fired — apparently for failure to reach the Final Four — and added:

"You've got to do it quick or you're gone."

Houston's veteran Guy Lewis, honored Friday as The Associated Press Coach of the Year, had a wry but suggestive comment in his acceptance speech.

"Three years ago, they tried to run me off," he said, perhaps half in jest. "Last year they named a gym after me and this year I am Coach of the Year.

"That is some comeback."

LEWIS, WHOSE career dates back to those great duels with UCLA, has won 529 games and lost 245 over his 27 years.

He is one of those who established firm roots before network TV turned the game into a national craze which has put everybody on the spot.

"Like me," suggested Carnesecca. "I came in at a time when I was allowed to develop. The school gave me an opportunity to grow with the job.

"If I were coming in now I'd have to produce in three or four years. If I couldn't do it, it would be my neck.

"That's the pressure of the game today. That big tube is insatiable. I feel a lot more sorry for the kids. They don't get a chance to mature. They're expected to be overnight stars."

Eastwood finds golf touch

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bob Eastwood, a journeyman tourist who has yet to win, birdied his final hole for a 3-under-par 69 and moved into a tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

Eastwood, in his 12th season of PGA Tour activity, finished two trips over the soggy, 6,984 yard Forest Oaks Country Club course in 139, five shots under par.

He was tied at the tournament's halfway point with Mark Lye, also seeking his first American title. Lye had a second-round 70 in the cool, cloudy weather.

"I came in full of confidence, but I really didn't know what to expect this week. I thought I might have a let-down," said Eastwood, who took second place — his career high finish — and won $75,600 in the rich Tournament Players Championship Monday.

"He had a great season last Monday," said the flip Lye.

They shared a one-shot advantage over Buddy Gardner, another nonwinner who has been in a slump since a 1979. Gardner managed a 67, the best round of the tournament, and was at 140.

Craig Stadler, who will defend his Masters title in Augusta, Ga. next week, managed a 70 and topped a group at 141, two shots off the lead.

Niland indicted for suitcase theft

Compiled from Wire Reports

Former Dallas Cowboys lineman John Niland has been indicted on a charge he stole a suitcase from an ex-girlfriend. The misdemeanor theft indictment, returned Thursday, stemmed from a complaint filed by Sheree Reeves. She told police Niland, 39, offered to return the suitcase if she would give him $3,000. When she refused, he allegedly left her apartment with the suitcase filled with clothing, jewelry and personal items, a prosecutor's report said.

BASKETBALL

High school basketball teams will be limited to two timeouts per half instead of five per game next season under rules changes adopted by the National Federation of State High School Associations. The federation put off a decision on three-point field goals for another year. The timeout rule was one of several modified for the 1983-84 season this week during a meeting of the association's basketball rules committee in Kansas City. NFSHSA rules are used by about 18,000 high schools in boys' basketball and 17,000 high schools in girls' basketball.

Having his team in the NCAA's Final Four provides one rejoinder for Houston's Guy Lewis to those who questioned his coaching abilities. Being named Friday as the Associated Press' Coach of the Year provides another. "Three years ago, they were trying to run me off and last year they named the gym at Arp (Lewis' hometown in East Texas) after me," Lewis reflected. "Now I'm the coach of the year and I think it's a great comeback. I'm thrilled to be here."

Red Sox destroy Yankee streak

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox jumped all over the streaking New York Yankees Friday in the highlight of a busy day of baseball exhibition play.

The Yankees, whose pitchers had a 30-inning scoreless string ended during a 6-5, 10-inning triumph over Houston the previous day, were raked for 19 hits in Boston's 12-4 victory that stopped a six-game New York winning streak.

In other exhibition games Friday, Philadelphia beat Toronto 3-0; the New York Mets defeated the Cincinati Reds 3-2; Faltimore downed Texas 3-2 in 10 innings; the Chicago White Sox edged Kansas City 7-6; Pittsburgh clubbed Detroit 13-6; Atlanta downed Houston 3-1; Montreal edged St. Louis 5-4; San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 2-0; Oakland beat Cleveland 12-3; and Seattle and San Diego played to a 1-1 tie in 10 innings.

Jim Rice, who hit his seventh homer of the spring, and Dave Stapleton each had three hits for the Red Sox, who came up with an eight-run sixth-inning against the Yankees. Every Boston batter except Carl Yastrzemski joined in the assault on pitchers Doyle Alexander, Ray Fontenot, Dale Murray and Clay Christiansen.

For the Phillies, four-time Cy Young winner Steve Carlton gave up one hit in his three-inning stint and Bo Diaz broke up a scoreless duel with a run-scoring double in the sixth. Four errors by the Jays led to all three Philadelphia runs.

Mark Bradley, acquired by the Mets from the Los Angeles Dodgers earlier this week in a trade, hit a homer in the seventh inning to provide the winning run for New York's National League team. It was his first hit as a Met. Ron Gardenhire and Tom Veryzer drove in the other New York runs with singles.

Claudell Washington's two-run homer in the third inning gave Atlanta its victory over Houston, which now has lost seven straight games and 15 of 18 since the start of the exhibition season. Bob Walk, who gave up five hits in six innings, combined with Pete Falcone and Steve Bedrosian for the shutout.

Montreal's Andre Dawson hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning and Brad Mills led off the ninth with a triple and scored the eventual winning run as the Expos won their 18th game of the spring. It was the third straight loss for the Cardinals, who got a ninth-inning homer from Darrell Porter to draw within one run.

The A's major league roster players were working out in Oakland Friday in preparation for a home-and-home series with the Giants, but what will mostly be their Tacoma farm club of the Pacific Coast League filled in well. Danny Goodwin singled leading off an eight-run sixth and added a three-run homer, while Mike Woodard ripped an RBI single then stole second, third and home on consecutive pitches. Bill Krueger pitched six scoreless innings for the bogus A's.

Rookie Ron Kittle and Marv Foley each hit an RBI single in the ninth inning to carry the White Sox to their baseball-leading 19th victory of the spring. Kittle and another rookie, Lorenzo Gray, each had three hits for Chicago, while Greg Luzinski added a solo homer and two runs batted in. For the Royals, hot-hitting Amos Otis came up with three hits and now has 22 in 45 at-bats for a .489 exhibition average.

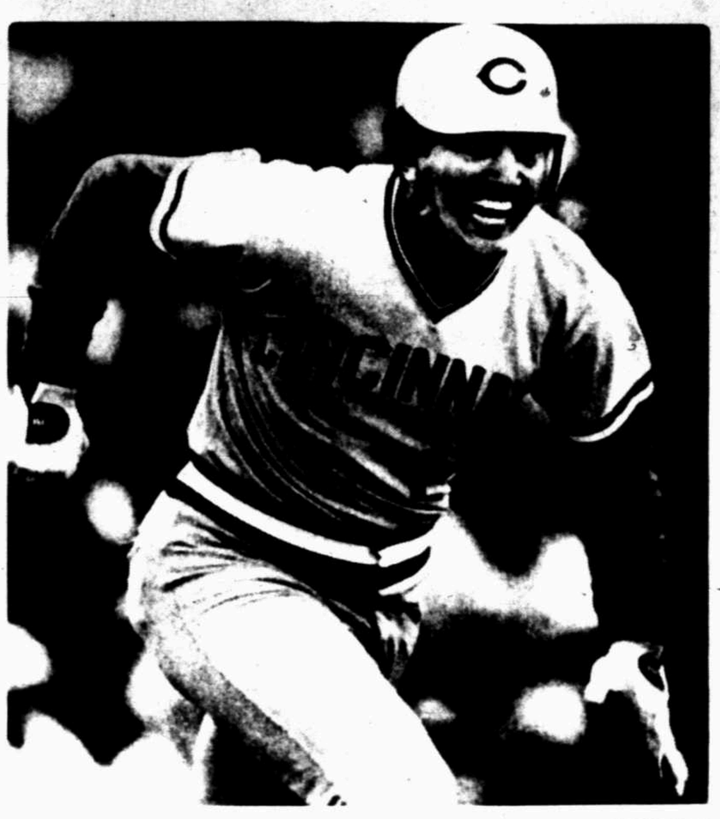

San Francisco pitchers Mike Krukow, Renie Martin, Andy McGaffigan and Gary Lavelle combined for a seven-hit shutout against the Cubs. The Giants scored both runs in the second, with Tom O'Malley scoring the first at the front of a double steal.

Rookie John Shelby hit an inside-the-park homer with one out in the 10th to give the Orioles their victory. It was the third hit of the day for Shelby, who scored all three Baltimore runs, and gave him a spring average of .444. Mike Flanagan became the first Orioles pitcher to go seven innings this spring, giving up just four hits.

The Pirates came up with five runs in the seventh inning to erase a 6-5 deficit. The rally was capped by a bases-loaded pinch double by Richie Hebner.

The San Diego Padres and Seattle Mariners played to a 1-1 tie before 13,878 people, the largest crowd ever to see a baseball game in the state of Nevada. The game was played at the home of the Padres' AAA farm team and was called after 10 innings because of travel committments.

Midland's Zachry paces Texas Tech sweep

By The Associated Press

Third baseman Jimmy Zachry hit three home runs as Texas Tech buried the University of Houston in a windy Southwest Conference baseball doubleheader Friday, 9-6 and 21-4.

Midland's Zachry went 3-for-3 in the first game, hitting two homers and driving in three runs. His two-run homer in the first inning scored the game's first runs. He followed that with a solo homer in the third.

The Red Raiders, whose record rose to 13-13 overall and 3-5 in conference play, pounded out 21 hits and scored in every inning of the second game, which saw eight Cougar pitchers.

Houston's record fell to 31-4 for the season and 6-2 in conference games.

The Cougars rallied in the third, scoring five runs to make the score 6-5. They were led by pinch-hitter Trey South's three-run homer.

Houston third baseman Charlie Rizzo hit his fifth homer of the season in the bottom of the seventh, but not before Mark Michna drove in three runs for Tech with a two-out homer in the top of the inning.

Mark McDowell, 5-1 for the season and 2-1 in conference play, went all the way for Tech. Doug Drabek, 7-1 and 2-1, took the loss.

In the second game, Tech scored six runs in the fourth inning and four more in the fifth.

Rice 9, Baylor 4

Mike Fox slammed a three-run home run in the fifth inning to lift Rice to a 9-4 victory over Baylor in another SWC baseball game Friday.

Rice's record is 25-7-1 overall and 5-5 in SWC play. Baylor is 18-15 and 5-5.

The Owls rapped out 12 hits and took advantage of four Baylor errors.

Junior right-hander Tim England struck out seven and walked only one in improving his season record to 5-0. He is 3-0 in SWC games.

Baylor starter Stan Hilton also went the distance, but took his first loss of the year, making his record 6-1 overall and 3-1 in conference play.

Heartbreaker Breakers set sights on Stallions

By The Associated Press

The Boston Breakers are fast becoming the heartbreakers of the United States Football League.

The Breakers, 3-1 and tied with the Philadelphia Stars for the lead in the Atlantic Division, lead off a six-game weekend schedule with a Saturday game at home against the Birmingham Stallions, 2-2.

Boston is the winner of three in a row since an opening loss to the Tampa Bay Bandits, the only remaining unbeaten team in the league. And the last two Boston victories have been the heart-stopping come-from-behind variety.

Coach Dick Coury's team stopped the Washington Federals 19-16 two weeks ago by taking advantage of two bad snaps for 10 fourth-quarter points. The Breakers then came from far behind to beat the New Jersey Generals 31-21, turning three recovered fumbles in the fourth period into two touchdowns and a field goal.

"When you're good, you tend to be lucky," Coury says. "A lot of those fumbles weren't the result of poor ball handling. They're the result of getting hit."

Tonight, Tampa Bay, 4-0, will get a bit of home cooking after two tough weeks on the road, taking on the Chicago Blitz, 2-2.

On Sunday, Philadelphia, whose only loss in four games came last weekend against the Bandits, are at home against Washington, 1-3; the struggling Generals, 0-4, are at Arizona to play the Wranglers, 2-2, and Oakland's Invaders, 2-2, trek to Los Angeles to meet the Express, 2-2.

The Denver Gold, 2-2, plays the Michigan Panthers, 1-2, in the Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome Monday night in a game that will not be televised by ESPN due to the NCAA basketball finals.

The big question in the USFL still is when — not if — New Jersey running back Hershel Walker will come up with the kind of outstanding performance expected of him after his college exploits at Georgia.

"He's just waiting to explode," said Arizona Coach Doug Shively. "I just hope it isn't against us."

Walker, the 1982 Heisman Trophy winner and the new league's prize million-dollar catch, goes into Sunday's game a distant fourth in league rushing statistics behind Philadelphia's Kelvin Bryant. Bryant has 454 yards in 91 carries to just 261 in 69 tries for Walker.

Ralph ignores 'The Race'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The "Race for Ralph" continues in the National Basketball Association, but the object of the pursuit, Virginia's Ralph Sampson, said Friday he wasn't paying attention to it.

"I still have one month of college left and I'm enjoying it, going around and accepting these awards," Sampson said after being named college basketball's Player of the Year for the third straight year by The Associated Press.

"I won't think about professional ball until after I graduate. I'm taking it one step at a time."

The Houston Rockets and Indiana Pacers are in a close race to earn the first pick in June's NBA draft and either team would use it to select Sampson, who helped the Cavaliers to a 112-24 record during his four years.

Houston has clinched last place in the Western Conference and will get the No. 1 pick in the draft if the Cleveland Cavaliers finish last in the Eastern Conference because the Rockets own Cleveland's first-round pick.

But if Indiana finishes last in the East, a coin flip will decide who gets to pick first.

"It's not my choice anyway, as to where I get drafted in the NBA," Sampson said. "I definitely look forward to playing pro ball. But right now I'm enjoying what is happening now."

Sampon had hoped to lead Virginia to the Final Four — something the Cavaliers had never accomplished while he played for them — but North Carolina State thwarted his desire by beating the Cavs 63-62 last weekend in regional competition.

Daniel's second 69 produces Shore lead

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Beth Daniel shot her second straight 69 Friday to take the early second-round lead in the $400,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore women's golf tournament.

Going into the second day of competition over the Mission Hills Country Club course, the 26-year-old from Seabrook Island, S. C., had shared the lead with Sandra Spuzich.

The latter was among the late starters and opened with bogeys on the first two holes.

Susie McAllister and Amy Alcott, who shot opening rounds of 70, were also among those teeing off late.

Daniel wasn't pleased with her start.

She managed to par the first two holes despite a couple of poor shots. She went one over par on the third when her drive went into the woods.

Daniel didn't go over par again on this hot day. She carded birdies at the 7th, 9th, 12th and 17th.

On Thursday, Daniel sank a 40-yard wedge shot on the 11th hole to tie with Spuzich.

After finishing 36 holes of the 72-hole event, she commented, "With the course playing the way it is today, it is very scoreable."

Barbara Moxness finished three shots behind Daniel at 141 after shooting a 4-under-par 68 to go with her opening 73.

Wind stops 4-5A golf

High winds, gusting up to 76 miles per hour Friday, caused the Midland stop of the District 4-5A golf tour to be postponed until Tuesday at 9 a.m.

The third round of the district schedule will be held at Green Tree Country Club.

"We just decided to wait," said Midland Lee Coach Van Tom Whatley. "You can't get a fair performance from anybody in conditions like that so it was better to wait."

Ratings services jealously guard participating television viewers

ENTERTAINMENT

Copley News Service

Both Arbitron and Nielsen keep their TV ratings households well-hidden. Not only are the companies prohibited from identifying these viewers, but anonymity also prevents outsiders from influencing the viewing habits — and thus the survey results — in the ratings household.

Arbitron and the A.C. Nielsen Co. are in the television ratings business. Their surveys gauge how popular various programs are with viewers. The results — ratings — influence how much TV stations and networks charge for airing commercials and tell advertisers where to find potential customers. The process is done with relatively few people, carefully selected and shielded to minimize bias.

"We're not real insistent they don't tell their friends," said Larry Frerk at Nielsen. "We just don't want people from the media trying to get to them."

"Names are never released," said Arbitron's Shelly Cagner. "We can't tell you that Mr. Jones is in the survey. But if he tells you...We can't police these people. They're on their honor."

HOLLY AND Ellen are sisters who share a home and belong to a select group in the country. They are one of Nielsen's 1,200 "metered" households. They reluctantly agreed to participate two years ago and gladly grabbed an opportunity to talk about it, though they asked that their names be changed for use in this story.

"We said no," Ellen recalled. "But they came back again," Holly interrupted. "We told them we didn't want it and that they should go next door. They told us they couldn't do that because the homes are selected by computer. The fellow said if we turned him down, it was his job to convince us."

"Then he made an appointment to come over," Ellen said. "The next thing we knew, there were lines all over the yard and holes drilled in the house."

"I got a phone call out of the blue one day," said Kate, a member of another Nielsen household. "That was really unusual since my number was unlisted. It was a Nielsen person who read a prepared thing and said our family had been chosen to do a diary for a week in February."

Kate laughed during a recent interview, remembering that her "family" at the time consisted of herself. It was January 1979 in a Cleveland suburb and Nielsen was on its quarterly hunt for households to keep diaries during the ratings period. Kate tried to decline, saying she really watched very little TV.

"IT WAS a very social time of my life," she recalled. "I was working from 4 a.m. to noon. I would sleep in the afternoon and go out in the early evening. But I was always in bed by prime time."

That was fine with Nielsen, Kate was told. She was part of the population, too. She acquiesced and about a week later her diary arrived in the mail. A few more days passed and she received a crisp $1 bill — mailed in cash — for her trouble.

"It was very simple to fill out the book," said the 33-year-old college graduate. "If you're the head of the household, then you're viewer No. 1 and you fill in the blanks by 15-minute increments. If the TV is off, that's what you put down. If it's on, then you mark down what channel you're watching and list the station's letters.

"It wasn't hard for me. I only watched 4½ hours of TV that week — the local news and an Ohio State basketball game. The guy I was dating was a former player and he had to fill out the diary, too, as a visitor. But I can imagine the misery of keeping track of everybody's TV viewing in a household with a husband, wife and three or four kids."

"Don't tell anybody it's not a nuisance," Holly added.

Nielsen watches like a hawk. Holly and Ellen get frequent calls from the ratings service.

"THEY'LL SAY, 'Our computer shows that one of your televisions isn't registering anything,' and we know that because it's in the guest room where no one usually watches TV," said Ellen.

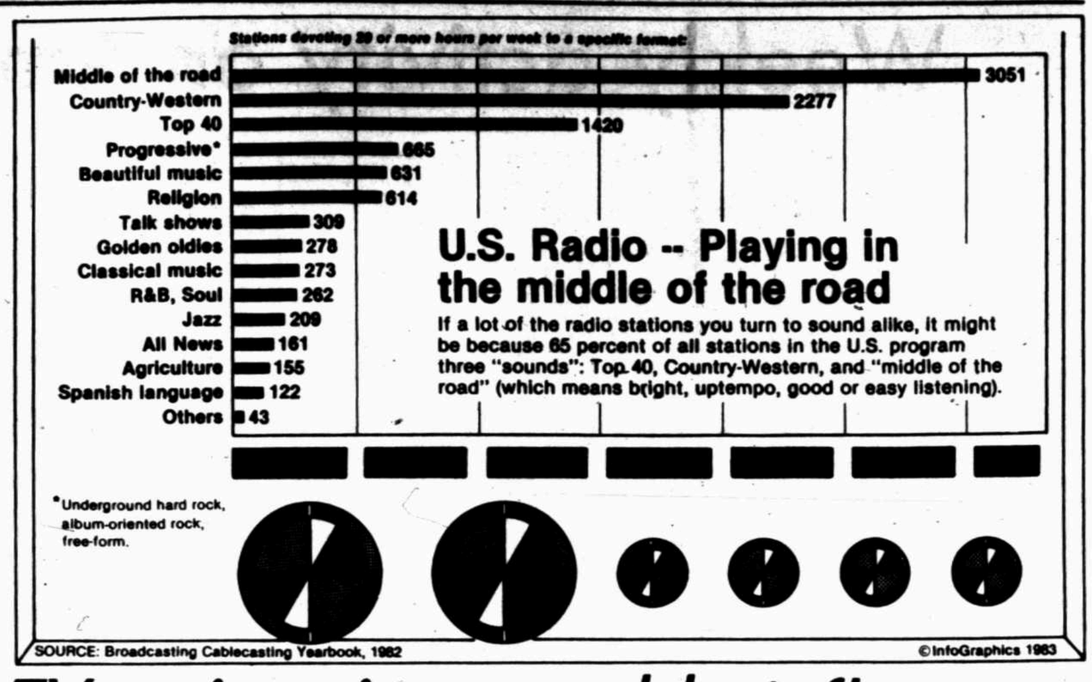

"They have called at other times to say they are getting nothing from our house and when we tell them we're watching, they will send someone out to check the lines," Holly said.

Although electronic devices measure every TV moment, Holly and Ellen are aware of their power to manipulate the meters and the numbers.

"I try not to let a stupid program get a rating," Ellen said emphatically. "Every time I realize I've got that thing on, even if I'm in the shower, I'll come out and make it a point to turn a program off or on. If a darn good program is on, I'll make sure it gets a rating, even if I don't sit down and watch it."

"DON'T KID yourself," Holly said, "I don't believe there's a Nielsen household anywhere not conscious of being monitored. It very definitely influences you when you know the set is being 'watched.'"

"And with the limited number of homes," Ellen added, "one TV can make a big difference.

TV ratings inescapable influence

By JANE CLIFFORD
Copley News Service

The ratings. Television networks wage war over them. Viewers argue about them. Folks who swear they never watch the tube have something to say about them.

But even the most outspoken critics — and they are legion — must concede that the TV ratings maintain an almost inescapable influence over the American consumer, affecting what he sees, what he hears and, ultimately, what he buys.

So, who is A.C. Nielsen and why do people say such terrible things about him?

Such a person does, indeed, exist. But he is far from the image of a power-crazed magnate who delights in seeing your favorite show canceled. Instead, he's the epitome of a researcher — low-key, deeply involved in his work and somewhat oblivious to the effect his data have on you.

During a presentation last fall in Los Angeles, the soft-spoken, gray-haired fellow calmly dispensed his latest findings to a roomful of fidgety cable TV executives anxious to learn how their industry is doing.

"It would appear," Nielsen said dryly, "that the viewer fails to utilize much of what is available." That's what Nielsen is paid to know. No matter that what the viewer is failing to utilize are programs that cost a lot of money to produce and may eventually disappear.

Well, it's not really Nielsen, the man, who draws the heat anyway. Rather, it's The Nielsens — those weekly reports rating the top television shows in the country — that attract so much flak.

Which brings us to an essential question: What are ratings?

From "Understanding Broadcast Ratings," a handbook published by the Electronic Media Rating Council, an organization set up to oversee the ratings services and award them accreditation, comes this assessment: "The most popular program is not necessarily the 'best' program or even a 'good' program. Ratings measure quantity, not quality."

Basically, TV ratings are nothing more than market research, and Nielsen's been at this for years.

"We were first doing that in the '30s," said Larry Frerk, Nielsen promotions director. "Some of our clients said, 'Gee, we're doing a lot of advertising on radio. Who is actually listening to my ads?' That's when we developed the metered system for radio."

The A.C. Nielsen Co. was founded in 1923. Now, 50 years later, it's a $644 million corporation. Only 10 percent of the business is ratings.

"We act as a clearinghouse," Frerk continued during a telephone interview from the company's headquarters in Northbrook, Ill. "We count the coupons, sort them out and pay the retailers.

'Love is Forever' adventure weakened by melodrama

By FRED ROTHENBERGER
AP Television-Writer

NBC has its own journalist Sunday night in the movie, "Love Is Forever," an exciting adventure saga, political thriller and gentle love story that is weakened by excessive and syrupy melodrama.

Based on a true story, American-accented Michael Landon plays Australian John Everingham, the last Western journalist in post-war Laos who was expelled in 1977 for alleged spy activities. A year later, he secretly returned by swimming under the Mekong River, with communist patrol boats overhead, in a daring mission to rescue his Laotian girlfriend. The underwater footage is spectacular.

Landon is self-assured and intense, and proves to be an effective superhero in his first major movie role since gaining TV stardom on "Bonanza" and "Little House on the Prairie."

He plays a photojournalist who sends anti-communist reports out of Laos. A popular playboy, he throws good parties, but also speaks of a love for the country. With pictures of communist atrocities, he's able to turn the head and heart of Keo Sirisomphone, played by Indonesian actress Moira Chen.

Jurgen Prochnow ("Das Boot") imbues Gen. Kapler with more human qualities than most Russians ever get on American TV. But the boxing match between Kapler and Everingham, although well-staged, brings "Love Is Forever" close to incredulity.

Legendary jazz songstress Ella Fitzgerald hits a happy note in Beverly Hills, Calif. recently at the unveiling of artist Leroy Neiman's original painting, "Ella in Flight," which was commissioned by Continental Airlines to commemorate her performance at 35,000 feet inaugurating the airline's Pub Service.

Mr. Wizard returns to TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mr. Wizard, who spent many years making science both understandable and interesting to young people, is returning to television.

Don Herbert, who was Mr. Wizard in the science series on NBC from 1951-64, is returning with a weekly series for children on the Nickelodeon cable television channel.

Herbert is taping 26 half-hour episodes of "Mr. Wizard's World," using a magazine format to cover a variety of scientific subjects.

He revived the Mr. Wizard show in 1971 and then appeared regularly on the CBS children's show, "Razzmatazz." He has also produced a series of 80-second science inserts called "How About" for news and information shows on 110 television stations. It was funded by the National Science Foundation and General Motors.

Statue of Liberty to fade from view

NEW YORK (AP) — First it was a Ferrari automobile, an act of levitation. Then, a Learjet plane — vanished. Now — Friday night on CBS — the Statue of Liberty will fade from view, and return, the work of a master illusionist.

"Can it be too amazing? Absolutely," says David Copperfield, who performs the feat of magic in an hour-long special taped before a live audience last fall.

CBS will broadcast the program, "The Magic of David Copperfield V," at 8 p.m. on channel 7.

"With the Statue of Liberty, if I just pointed my finger at it and it disappeared," Copperfield says, "that would be too amazing. I have to give the audience some room for doubt, to examine and question what I do.

"You have got to make people believe," he says. "I wouldn't want to walk on water. No one would believe it."

Great care was taken to "lead people to believe" in the Statue of Liberty illusion, he says.

"We have a curtain attached to a scaffold," he explains. "The curtain goes up, and when it comes down, the statue has disappeared. That's amazing to begin with, but because the statue doesn't actually move, I felt I needed something else to convince the audience. We did it with radar."

With the curtain covering the statue, the landmark appears as a blip on the screen. When the curtain is dropped, the statue has disappeared — and so has the blip. The curtain is drawn up once again, for Copperfield to make the statue reappear, and the blip returns to the screen.

Perish the thought that Copperfield would perform the illusion with a camera. "When I began doing these spectacular disappearances on TV," he says, "I asked myself, 'How are people watching at home going to believe they aren't being fooled by some camera trick?'

"We came up with the idea that a live audience would have to be shown, to be talked to. And we decided we would never interrupt an illusion with a commercial."

The film crew knows how the illusions are done, but members are sworn to secrecy.

For the latest television special, Copperfield's fifth since 1978, 20 tourists were assembled on Liberty Island to watch the famed landmark disappear.

The illusion works, but then Copperfield — a tall, dark-haired young man from Metuchen, N.J. — was "pretty sure" it would.

"Long before I decided to go ahead," says the 26-year-old illusionist, "I visited the statue in disguise — wig, glasses, buck teeth. I measured out the statue, built all kinds of models, spent $200,000 before I knew I had the rights to do it."

Indeed, the U.S. Park Service was reluctant to allow the performance. "I was told," Copperfield says, "I couldn't be disrespectful to the statue."

Quite the contrary. His objective in the first place was to use Miss Liberty to suggest the fragility of freedom in the world.

Williams not good with snap decisions

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — For a guy who can't make up his mind whether he's a singer, composer, actor, producer, race car driver, motorcycle racer or sky diver, you wouldn't expect any snap decisions when Paul Williams encounters a restaurant menu.

"Decisions, decisions, decisions," mutters the 5-foot-2 musical giant as he wrestles with a menu nearly one-fourth his size.

"Goulash, how 'bout some good 'ole goo-lash?" he says to no one in particular.

A waitress begins to scribble.

"Or maybe Chinese food? They serve Chinese food here, don't they?"

Scratch the goulash.

Williams: "How about this stuffed tomato and chicken salad?"

Waitress: "Gotcha."

Williams: "Yuk, that sounds terrible. Just bring me a martini, awfully dry and awfully cold."

Having settled on an olive for lunch, Williams talks excitedly of his career and a "star" for son, Christopher Cole.

"I'm getting my own star on Hollywood Boulevard this summer," the diminutive entertainer says. "Can you believe it! You can't buy one of those, you know. And the exciting thing is that it will be something for my son.

"Now watch, they'll probably put it out in front of a big man's shop. I can just see it — right in front of Ed's Clothes for Big and Tall Men."

The 2-year-old son of Paul and Katie Williams is a favorite topic.

"When I was a kid, we had only two rules in the house: Treat your mother with respect and don't lie," Williams says. "I want to raise my son with the same kind of values. If he respects his mother, he'll listen to her. And if he listens to his mother, I know the kind of woman I married and he'll turn out all right."

Williams, in Las Vegas recently for a sellout stint at the Riviera Hotel, has just completed work on the third "Smokey and the Bandit" movie, with Pat McCormick and Jackie Gleason. He begins filming in Old Tucson April 11 on "Ride Cowboy, Ride," a spoof on old cowboy movies.

He'll also be going to London for rehearsals of "Bugsy Malone," a musical he scored with an all-children's cast.

Solo sailor gives birth to girl

WINCHESTER, England (AP) — Solo round-the-world sailor Dame Naomi James, whose husband Robert died in a boating accident 12 days ago, has given birth to a baby girl, her family said Friday.

The 7½-pound baby was born Thursday night at the Royal Hampshire County Hospital in Winchester, 66 miles southwest of London, her father-in-law John James said.

The baby will be called Lois, a name chosen by Dame Naomi and her husband before he died.

Dame Naomi, 34, became the first woman to achieve a single-handed global voyage in 1978, trimming two days off the 274-day record set by the late Sir Francis Chichester.

Observatory reopens in Peking

PEKING (AP) — Peking's 540-year-old astronomical observatory, a stone platform covered with ancient instruments for observing the stars, reopened to the public Friday, the official Xinhua news agency said.

It had been under repair at a cost of more than $500,000 since a rainstorm in August 1979 caused part of the structure to collapse, Xinhua said.

Authorities plan to collect and display more ancient instruments and meteorites from all over the country, and to turn the surrounding area into a science park for young people, Xinhua added.

The ancient metal instruments on the platform consist of rings and globes for sightings and measurement, and some are adorned by dragons.

Belgians demonstrate at embassy

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — About 250 people demonstrated in front of the U.S. Embassy Friday, saying protesting what they called American support for Honduran guerrillas fighting to overthrow the left-wing regime in Nicaragua.

In a communique one group of demonstrators said the "assistance given by the United States to those who seek to overthrow the government of Nicaragua is unworthy of a democratic nation."

No incidents were reported.

The United States has neither confirmed nor denied claims that it supports the guerrillas.

Romania urges against emigration

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — President Nicolae Ceausescu urged German and Hungarian minority groups to stay in Romania, but said "we cannot tie anybody to the ground" if they seek to emigrate.

"Nobody can have a better life somewhere else," Ceausescu said in a speech Thursday to the Magyar and German Working Peoples' councils.

Some of the 1.7 million ethnic Hungarian minority have protested against what they call government mistreatment. The government is seeking to convince the 300,000 ethnic Germans, many of them skilled workers or technicians, to stay.

The United States suspended Romania's preferential trade treatment last month after Ceausescu said people wishing to emigrate must repay the cost of their education in hard currency. It is illegal for Romanians to hold hard currency.

Five people die in plane crash

TOKYO (AP) — A private, twin-engine plane crashed in rice fields in northern Japan while trying to land in heavy fog Friday, killing all four adults and the child aboard, police said.

The Piper Seneca II was bound for Sendai airport, about 200 miles north of Tokyo, from Nagoya in central Japan.

U.S.S.R. to produce equipment

MOSCOW (AP) — The Politburo has approved a program to produce improved, heavy farm equipment as part of the Soviet food program calling for intensive capital investment, the official Tass news agency said Friday.

Reagan refuses jet sale

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Friday that President Reagan's continued refusal to sell 75 F-16 fighter planes to Israel until it withdraws from Lebanon is "regrettable."

Interviewed on Israel Television, Shamir rejected Reagan's statement that the planes could not be sold to Israel while its "forces are in the position of occupying another country."

Shamir said, "The American government knows that we did not enter Lebanon to capture its territory or occupy it. We entered to disperse and destroy the terrorist organization."

He said that Israel and Lebanon were "close to agreement" in their troop withdrawal talks. He did not give details of matters in agreement, but said that Israel would continue its aerial surveillance of Lebanon following a troop withdrawal.

Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6 to drive out Palestinian guerrillas and still has about 25,000 soldiers there.

Earlier, a senior Israeli source described the Reagan statement as "curious" and "infuriating."

The source, speaking on condition he not be identified, said Israel felt its invasion of Lebanon was a defensive act and that Reagan understood this.

The source said Israel also was annoyed because it was being denied U.S. weaponry at a time when the Soviets were continuing to supply Syria, which also has troops in Lebanon, with massive quantities of arms.

Reagan told the World Affairs Council in Los Angeles on Thursday that the law prohibits sale of the jets while Israel still has forces in Lebanon. He said the reason is that U.S. weapons may be supplied to other countries only for defensive purposes.

The Reagan administration announced the proposed $2.7 billion sale of the jets in May.

Women peace protesters, some in fancy dress, scale a fence at Greenham Common, England, air base on Friday, the second day of an Easter protest by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament. About 40 demonstrators were detained by police.

14-mile human chain protests against missiles

ALDERMASTON, England (AP) — With balloons soaring and firecrackers popping tens of thousands of anti-nuclear campaigners linked arms Friday in a 14-mile human chain spanning three key defense installations in rural England.

Before the mass protest, 200 demonstrators at one end of the chain outside the Greenham Common U.S. Air Base scrambled over a 12-foot-high barbed-wire fence into the waiting arms of military police.

The protesters, including one dressed as an Easter bunny, were detained inside the base. Four women who clambered over the Greenham fence at dawn were later released without charge.

In West Germany, an estimated 10,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators blocked entrances to six U.S. bases and staged scattered protests. Police used tear gas and attack dogs to rout protesters in the southern town of Neul Ulm.

British protest organizers claimed as many as 80,000 people joined the human chain, although they said it was impossible to tell if they linked arms at the same time. Police put the figure at 40,000.

The protesters converged on the rolling countryside by bus, car, horse and foot, causing traffic jams and other havoc in a wealthy commuter region in the Thames River Valley 50 miles west of London.

Problems were compounded because demonstrators had no public sanitary facilities. And one local farmer complained to police that low-flying helicopters monitoring the protest were disturbing pregnant cows.

The linkup was the main event in a four-day Easter weekend of protests aimed at halting deployment of new North Atlantic Treaty Organization missiles in Britain and forcing the government to scrap its own nuclear arsenal.

When the sponsoring Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament determined the human chain was complete, cascades of multicolored balloons bobbing at 14 checkpoints along the route were freed, sailing into the gray, chilly skies.

"Whoopee!," protesters screamed as some ignited firecrackers and bands broke into protest songs such as "We Won't Live With a Nuclear Submarine."

"It was the most moving and highly successful demonstration of all time in Britain — a victory for commitment and determination," said Joan Ruddock, the campaign's chairwoman.

"The rest of the world will know that the people of Britain are determined to do something about these terrible nuclear weapons," she said. "We are not anti-American but we are determined we will not have the NATO missiles here."

Earthquake shakes Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A moderate earthquake shook western Greece on Friday but there were no reports of damage or casualties, the Athens Seismological Service reported.

It said the quake was centered 171 miles west-northwest of Athens in the Ionian seabed off the island of Lefkas.

The service said the tremor registered 4.6 on the Richter scale of ground motion, meaning it was capable of causing damage in the local area.

The quake was centered in the same spot as another tremor March 23 that injured seven people and damaged more than 70 dwellings.

Office space deserted but swathed in red tape

EL PASO (AP) — El Pasoans looking for a tranquil spot above downtown might ride up to the 14th floor of the old First National Bank building.

There they would find it quiet, peaceful and empty. But it is an expensive solitude.

The federal government has doled out more than $3,000 a month to rent the nearly 5,000 feet that — except for one small corner, — has been vacant since 27 federal workers moved out in March 1982.

Why more than $40,000 has been spent to allow dust to settle on tiles and rust to grow on door hinges is a mystery as tightly bundled in red tape as four government agencies can wrap around it.

With a downtown courthouse bulging with agency employees, the federal government spent $1 million last year leasing space for 17 agencies in non-governmental buildings.

The Office of Personnel Management occupied the 14th floor of the former bank building.

The General Services Administration, which handles government housing, signed a five-year lease in August of 1980, agreeing to pay $8.75 a square foot a year.

THE AGENCY working there helped coordinate the employment of 13,271 El Paso federal job holders. But with the dawning of Reaganomics, the office fell to the budget-cutting axe. A third of the workers transfered to Albuquerque, N.M., leaving about 1,000 square feet of office space empty.

By March 31, 1982, the El Paso branch had been whittled to three people. The three employees — later reduced to one — used just one small office in the corner of the floor.

The agency paid the GSA rent on the space and was supposed to give the GSA 120 days notice before moving out, said GSA district manager for leasing in Fort Worth.

He said his agency did not release the personnel management office from its lease contract until March 1, 1983.

During that time, was the government paying for empty rooms?

"You could put it that way," he said. "I'm not sure what we could do about it."

But OPM's Management Services Director Paul Leslie said his files show a letter was mailed to Leonard's office a year ago requesting the release and anouncing the agency's departure.

Leonard said he could not find such a letter in his file. Leslie said his files show no record of a response from Leonard's office.

BOTH MEN ARGUE that the other's agency should have been paying for the floor but agree that to the taxpayer, it's all the same.

"We have separate budgets but it's all from the same pool when it comes down to it," Leonard said.

While the 14th floor remained deserted, El Paso's three immigration courts were squeezed into one office, about 1,000 square feet, in the federal building.

With nine secretaries and clerks, the three immigration judges hold court in their offices.

"We fall all over each other," Judge William Weinert groused. "Its dangerous."

Sometime late last year or early this year — none of the agencies are sure — someone requested the 14th floor for the immigration courts.

Leonard said GSA got a request from the Immigration and Naturalization Service, he's not sure when, for the 14th floor.

Although his agency approved the move, Leonard said that INS decided not to move the court from the federal building because of the cost.

But finding who made the decision is another matter.

IN WASHINGTON, D.C., the chief immigration court judge, William Roby, pins the call on INS.

"They made the original proposal," he said. "We (the Executive Office for Immigration Review) had just taken over the agency. We weren't ready to do anything."

Roby said if INS wanted the room, he had no problem with the idea. But his agency has no plans to alleviate the El Paso courts' close quarters, he said.

In Dallas, INS associate regional director Wayne Joy denied any connection his agency might have with the decision not to move into the bank building.

"We would not know anything about this," he said. "I do know that the local judges made the proposal. Their agency would be paying for it. It would be their call, not ours."

In El Paso, Judge Weinert calls the decision "too bad."

In Fort Worth, Leonard said he will try to negotiate with the bank building landlord to get out of the lease. But he said early efforts to do so got "a negative response."

The last El Paso Office of Personnel Management employee, Rueben Guaderama, has quit working in the loneliness of the 14th floor. He now operates out of his home.

Urban pioneer gets city's goat with her unique ways

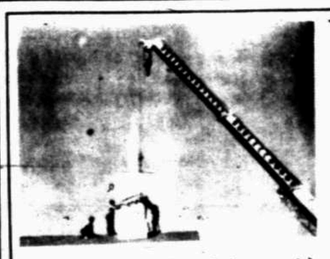

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Urban pioneer Marion Clements insists her goat provides food, mows the lawn and is not a nuisance, but health and housing officials say the animal must go.

"Maggie (the goat) is real special," said Ms. Clements, 32. "She will give milk, she doesn't have diseases, she doesn't bark or bite. Goats are smart and have a lot of character."

Nevertheless, Grand Rapids housing inspectors and the Kent County Health Department have told Ms. Clements to get rid of the Great Dane-size animal she keeps in her yard on the city's southeast side.

The health department also has ordered Ms. Clements to remove her alternative waste disposal system, install conventional plumbing and fill a well she has used for water.

"The goat is a farm animal and is not permitted within 100 feet of a dwelling house," Walter Bagby, a city neighborhood improvement officer, said. "Our report is that she has this within her dwelling."

Ali: 'When I quit boxing, it died'

Muhammad Ali

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, former heavyweight champion of the world, says he's not trying to be egotistical, but "when I quit boxing, it died."

Ali, in town for a United Negro College Fund banquet Thursday, was asked by reporters whether anything could revive boxing.

"Yes, my return," he said with a grin.

Later he spoke to about 1,000 people who paid $25 each at the fund-raising dinner.

Asked to name his toughest fight, Ali said, "my first wife."

Willie Stargell, former outfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, shared the stage with Ali and was featured speaker at the banquet.

PARIS (AP) — Entrepreneurs of Marilyn Monroe memorabilia around Europe are getting a visitor who may not be welcome — an American lawyer seeking to enforce the rights of her estate.

Roger Richman launched a nine-nation trip Friday by reaching an agreement with a Paris shop that sells nothing but Marilyn Monroe-related items. He did not disclose the terms of the agreement.

Richman said the actress' name was being widely exploited by shops selling everything from T-shirts to pill boxes bearing her image.

Miss Monroe died 20 years ago from an overdose of medication. Her death was ruled a suicide.

Richman's trip also will take him to Britain, Belgium, Denmark, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and West Germany. He said he is acting on behalf of six trustees of the actress' estate, as well as for her mother, who receives part of the royalties.

John Anderson

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — John Anderson says that judging from what people tell him, he should be in the White House right now.

"When I go through airports, hotel lobbies and coffee shops as I travel around the country, I never meet anybody who hasn't voted for me," Anderson said Thursday.

The 60-year-old former Republican congressman from Illinois ran as an independent candidate for president in 1980, finishing a distant third behind Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter with 7 percent of the vote.

But despite that defeat, he told students at Valparaiso University that he thinks "the political soil of the country is ripe for the seeding of new ideas that will have to come from other than one of the established parties."

Anderson acknowledged that if a new party was formed and nominated him, he would run again for the presidency.

"Sure I would logically be considered I suppose," he said. "I'm being modest only because I'd like to emphasize parties over candidates at this time."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed Shaw, who distributed $5 million in prizes to lure California voters to the polls last year, is back — this time with a gold ore giveaway aimed at boosting the vote in the April 12 city elections.

At a party to which virtually every city resident of voting age is invited for free hot dogs and beer, Shaw will raffle off 100 gift certificates, each for a ton of gold-laden ore.

Each ton of ore contains gold worth between $30 and $400 at current market value, Shaw claimed.

At stake in the off-year election are seven city council seats, four Los Angeles Community College board of trustees posts, four Board of Education seats and nine proposed city charter amendments.

"I looked at the ballot, and I thought, 'Gosh, is this boring,'" the 43-year-old film producer-promoter said Thursday by telephone from his Woodland Hills home. "How is anyone going to go to the polls, why would anyone even want to think of voting April 12?"

Judge believes jury was wrong

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The judge in the Groucho Marx estate trial, apparently disagreeing with the jury, refused Friday to increase a half-million-dollar damage award, saying she saw evidence that Erin Fleming was a positive influence on the aged comedian.

"I find the defendant did not obtain the two houses, her (half)-interest in Groucho Marx Productions (Inc.) or ($100,000 in) stocks by fraud, or menace or undue influence or breach of her fiduciary trust," Superior Court Judge Jacqueline Weiss said in a surprise ruling on the "equitable issues," which involved property owned by Miss Fleming.

Miss Fleming still must pay damages awarded to the Bank of America, executor of the Marx estate, unless the verdict is overturned on appeal. It was not immediately clear if the judge's decision would have an effect on her ability to pay those damages.

The jury's decisions on the "special findings" were merely recommendations to the judge, who had sole responsibility to deciding the issues of property — primarily whether Miss Fleming used fraud, menace and undue influence to obtain her two houses, a car, bonds and half-interest in Groucho Marx Productions Inc.

Ms. Weiss found on two minor issues in favor of the bank, ruling that Miss Fleming used some contracts as a subterfuge to disguise her role as Marx's artist manager and obtained her 1973 Mercedes Benz sports car through breach of trust.

However, she awarded no damages in either case.

The judge had been asked by the Bank of America to give the Marx estate all of the property in addition to the $221,000 in general damages and $250,000 in punitive damages awarded by a jury Wednesday.

But Ms. Weiss said such an award would constitute "double recovery" since the jury award was based on property it felt Miss Fleming had obtained by undue influence over Marx during their six-year relationship.

"Of course Miss Fleming influenced Groucho Marx in a significant way in the later years of his life," the judge said. "But in my view, plaintiff has failed to carry the burden of proof (of fraud and undue influence)."

Stressing that she was making her ruling independent of the jury findings, the judge said she had evaluated the often-emotional testimony during the 10-week trial.

She pointed to testimony from two doctors who "had ample opportunity to see Miss Fleming had given Marx loving care. Both have testified to the positive influence Miss Fleming had on Groucho Marx," Ms. Weiss said.

She also was impressed with testimony from attorney Hermione Brown, called by the bank, who said that Marx had wanted Miss Fleming to be executor of his estate.

Miss Brown, the judge said, attested to "Miss Fleming's amazing good judgment and restraint in refusing to act as executor and refusing to accept a larger bequest (than the $150,000 she was scheduled to receive in the Marx will)."

The judge also refused defense attorney David Sabih's motion for a mistrial on the general verdict, saying "I don't see any inconsistencies" between the damage award and special finding recommendations.

Bank attorney J. Brin Schulman hammered away at the issue of the production company in his shouted, often angry final argument to the judge Friday, saying Miss Fleming should be forever banished from the board of directors of the company, which has the rights to reruns of Marx's television and radio shows "You Bet Your Life."

"The heirs will ultimately become the sole beneficiaries of Groucho's life effort," Schulman said.

"What the bank wants is the last possible pound of flesh from Miss Fleming and they want the court to get the last pint of blood," Sabih said in a brief statement.

Outside court, Sabih called the judge's ruling a "complete victory" said he would seek a new trial, and, if necessary, would appeal the jury ruling and denounced his own "stupidity to believe in the jury system."

Although Miss Fleming contends she has no money and has been living off money borrowed from Sabih, Schulman, when asked if he would try to collect the damages, said, "I can certainly try."

Chickens may dream like people, doctors say

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — People who fret about the meaning of dreams could be wasting their time, because the nighttime images may be no more than random pictures strung together by the brain, a sleep researcher says.

"There is no evidence for a psychological purpose of dreaming. It is obvious that this exact same state exists in the dog, the cat, the ape, the chicken and the rat," said Wilse Webb, a behavioral psychologist who has done sleep research for more than 20 years at the University of Florida.

"And if the chicken has the same sort of thing, how can the chicken be worrying about its Oedipus complex?" asked Webb, who conducted research last year to test a theory of two Harvard University professors.

According to the theory of Robert W. McCarley and J. Allan Hobson, every 90 minutes during sleep the central nervous system is stimulated by messages from the primitive brain stem area. The brain then synthesizes stored memories and images into dreams.

"It's like when your foot falls asleep when you're in a picture show. You kick your foot to bring it back alive," Webb said in a recent interview. "When your brain goes to sleep, you have to keep 'kicking' it every once in awhile so it won't go out on you."

During the University of Florida study, 41 subjects were asked to record their dreams for a week. They were also asked to view seven series of three slides, dubbed Artificial Dream Episodes (ADEs), picturing random images.

The subjects were asked to make up dreams from the slide images and quickly record details of the artificial dreams.

Judges asked to put the dreams into "real" and "fake" categories were unable to tell them apart, Webb said.

"We suggest that if we can present random pictures and a subject's brain synthesized them to look exactly like dreams, that maybe that's where the dream is coming from — random pictures being presented to the brain," Webb said.

"According to McCarley and Hobson, what the brain is likely to be doing is making the best of a bad job in producing even partially coherent dreams from relatively noisy signals sent up from the brain stem. That's why you get bizarreness and unusualness in dreams," the scientist said.

The theory does not preclude learning something about people from their dreams, Webb said. Clues to a dreamer's personality may be found in the way the dreamer synthesizes random imagery.

"I'm quite sure a very sensitive person can listen to a dream and tell something about the dreamer," Webb said. "That's what clinicians are always doing, throwing up pictures and saying, 'Tell me a story about this picture.'

"So there's no reason to think we are throwing away the meaning of dreams. What we're trying to do is learn the biology of dreaming so that we can have a little more accurate picture, rather than a mysterious picture of these things rising out of our souls," Webb said.

'The Thornbirds' second to 'Roots,' Nielsen ratings show

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Thorn Birds" bumped "The Winds of War" as the second most popular miniseries ever shown on network television, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings released Friday by ABC.

"Roots," which was shown in 1977, remained in first place. All three programs were shown on ABC, which claims seven of the top 10 all-time miniseries.

"The Thorn Birds," a four-part, 10-hour adaptation of Colleen McCullough's novel of love, money and religion in three generations of an Australian family, was watched in 41.9 percent of all American households with television sets and on 59 percent of the sets actually turned on. The concluding episode Wednesday night got a rating of 43.1 and a 62 share.

ABC estimated that 110 million people saw some part of "The Thorn Birds" and that, on average, 34.9 million viewers were tuned in each minute.

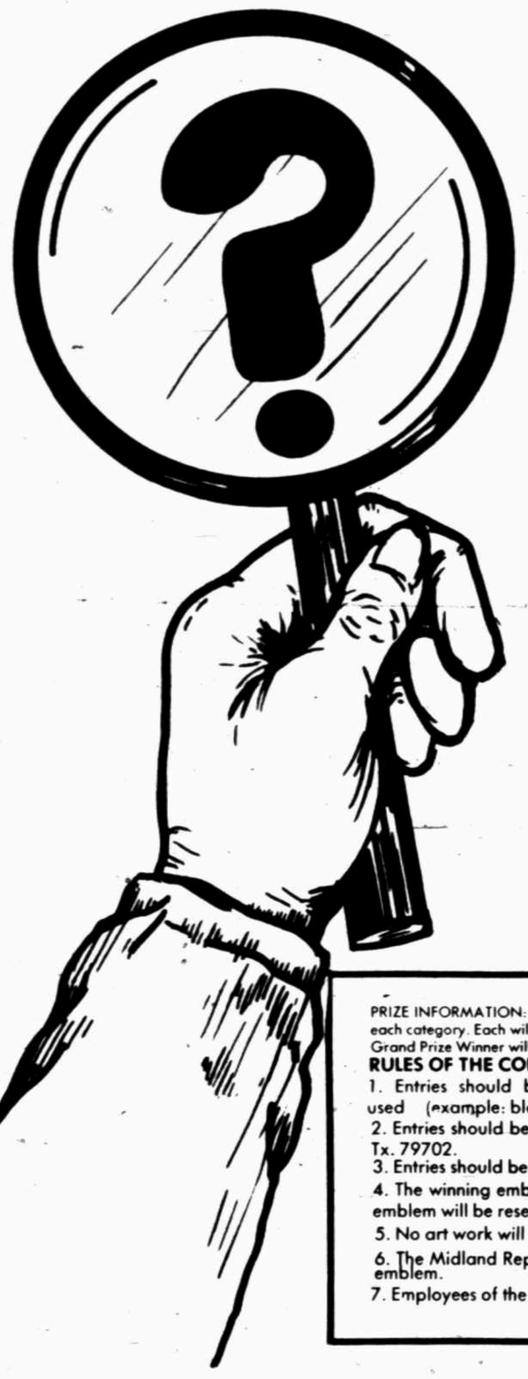

"The Winds of War," shown in February, had a 38.6 rating and 53 share for its seven-part, 18-hour run.

"Roots," which ran 12 hours over eight nights, had 45 percent and a 66 share. Its total audience was put at 135 million.

ABC had planned to show "The Thorn Birds" in May, but moved it up to March so that it would count in the ratings for the 1982-83 season.

With only three weeks left to the season, however, ABC seems destined to end up second in over-all prime time ratings to CBS, which has what appears to be an insurmountable 0.5 percent lead.

DESIGN AN 'AWARD WINNER' FOR MIDLAND AND WIN $500.00!

COULD YOU FILL THIS SPACE? IF YOU WERE TO CHOOSE A SYMBOL OR SYMBOLS WHICH MOST REPRESENT OUR CITY, WHAT WOULD YOU CHOOSE? WE WANT YOU TO DESIGN AND ANSWER!

A Logo is a representation of an idea or ideas that convey the personality and character of a particular subject. And we at the Reporter-Telegram have decided that is the perfect time to acquire a Newspaper Logo that would represent the city of Midland as a whole, in addition to the Reporter Telegram. And we want you, our community, to help us design it what do you think would best represent Midland? The Logo should convey both the image of the city as a whole as well as the entire Permain Basin Area. So get out your drawing pens, Midland, and get going!

It is not a pretty picture

The crosses in the shadows were real. Three hung there and died in agony . . . two for their own wrongdoing . . . one for yours.

That chapter to which the Book lies open — it tells of the scandal . . . the indignity . . . the injustice — and the pain.

and were afraid to believe He was risen . . .

IT is not a pretty picture. IT is the stark reminder of man's distrust of God . . . and God's love of man.

IT happened.

For you — IT happened.

Preparing for Sunday's community Easter service are, from left, the Rev. Steve Church, the Rev. David Baker, the Rev. Fred H. Tinsley and the Rev. J. Allen Lowe. The service, which is sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches, is being held at Memorial Christian Church, corner of Andrews Highway and Cuthbert Street, at 7:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend this nondenominational service.

Non-denominational service set by church association

A non-denominational community Easter service, sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches, will be held at Memorial Christian Church, corner of Andrews Highway and Cuthbert Avenue, at 7:30 a.m. April 3.

Participating in the service will be the Rev. David Baker of Hope Lutheran Church, the Rev. Steve Church of First Christian Church and the Rev. Allen Lowe of Memorial Christian Church. Lloyd Cole of Trinity Presbyterian is coordinating the music and the Rev. Fred Tinsley of Holy Trinity Episcopal is delivering the sermon. The service is being coordinated by Lowe.

The association is a voluntary organization of 17 area churches, six service agencies and individual participants, both clergy and laity.

The Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance is having a sunrise service at 6 a.m. at the Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ. Host pastor is the Rev. C.S. Johnson. Delivering the Easter message will be the Rev. John F. Campbell. President of the alliance is the Rev. David Henderson.

Other area churches who have special services planned for this week include the following listings:

Antioch Baptist Church, 1400 E. Golf Course Road, is holding special services at 11 a.m. Sunday followed by an Easter egg hunt. Then the church will host a children's talent show followed by an Easter parade at 5 p.m.

Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas St., will celebrate Easter with services at 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. Both services will feature the Sanctuary Choir singing selections from the musical "Joy Comes in the Morning" and the choir, congregation and percussion ensemble "opening the tomb" with Crestview's traditional singing of "Low in the Grave He Lay — Christ Arose." The church's minister, the Rev. Kenneth Hall, will speak on "The Meaning of the Gospel."

Crestview's 7 p.m. Easter day service will feature Melanie Finley singing the Dallas Holm classic "Rise Again" and will conlude with observance of "The Lord's Supper."

First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., will celebrate Easter with a special presentation musical presentation. The Chancel Choir, local instrumentalists and members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony will be presenting selections from Handel's "Messiah" as well as a premiere anthem by Hal Hopson. The Chancel Choir is directed by Tom Roberts with Judy Congdon as organist. The Rev. Robert Boynton Smith, minister at First Presbyterian, will deliver the sermon. He will be assisted by the Rev. F. Ray Riddle.

Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road, will hold an Easter sunrise service on the church's south lawn at 6:30 a.m. The Rev. Donald Hafemann will speak on "Grave for Rent."

Breakfast, sponsored by the church's Sunday School, will follow the service.

At 10:30 a.m. in the sanctuary, Grace Lutheran will hold Easter Sunday services. Hafemann will speak on "Where Are You Looking for Christ?" All of the church's choirs will participate in the service.

Kelview Heights Baptist Church, 407 W. Alta Ave., will present "His Glorious Love," at 9 and 10:30 a.m. The special musical presentation, compiled and directed by Stan Glover, is being presented by the church's adult choir.

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave., will hold three services Easter Sunday. A sunrise service will be held at 6:30 a.m. This service will consist of an informal liturgy including the sacrament of Holy Communion.

A breakfast will be served by the Festive Ringers at 7:30 a.m. The breakfast, whih includes eggs, sausage, rolls, juice and coffee, cost $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12.

Special festive services, which include a trumpeter and a handbell choir, continue at Midland Lutheran at 8:30 and 11 a.m.

St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, will have three Easter celebration services. Times are 8:30, 9:45 and 10:50 a.m.

All services listed above are open to the public.

Christianity, Judaism based on real events

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

With a kind of hardheaded realism, Judaism and its offspring, Christianity, base their faith on worldly events — on actions witnessed, experienced and recorded by people.

Those key happenings are being commemorated this week in observances of the Jewish Passover and the Christian holy week, culminating on Easter.

Both are festivals of redemption. The impact of the occasions are seen as continuing in the present. In both, divine intervention is seen in human affairs, and both involve luminous personalities, Moses and Jesus.

In their closely connected heritages, Judaism and Christianity draw their convictions from occurrences on earth, in the human grain.

The shared outlook is that humanity, in its limitations, can know of God only as he chooses to reveal himself in the human dimension — in the confines of time and history.

That is the biblical view and method, a record of earthly occurrences in which God's participation is seen as showing his will and ways to people to the extent they are able to grasp it.

The approach makes Judeo-Christianity a religion of history, rather than of metaphysical abstractions, as characteristic of Oriental religions, and the distinction is underlined in the occurrences celebrated this week.

The week-long Passover observance, which began Monday evening, recalls the liberation of the enslaved Jews from ancient Egyptian tyranny. "Let my people go!" Moses demanded, and ensuing strange disturbances made pharoah yield.

"I will sing to the Lord, for he has triumphed gloriously," goes a hymn for the occasion, from Exodus 15. "The Lord is my strength and my song and he has become my salvation."

The amazing deliverance of the powerless from the powerful became a key sign of what God is like, attesting that he is one who saves, who frees from oppression, who cares for the lowly, whose love redeems the lost.

"He raises the poor from the dust and lifts the needy from the ash heap," reads the Psalms chanted at Passover. "Our God is merciful... He has delivered my soul from death...His steadfast love endures forever."

The event is seen both as past and present, as not only a deliverance from ancient despotism, but signifying ultimate redemption from all domineering exploitations, allying God with the oppressed and suffering, and summoning belivers to that purpose.

A kindred message of hope and triumph over wrong is expressed in the Easter events recalled by Christians this week, climaxed with the celebration this Sunday of the resurrection.

Jesus was crucified by Roman military rulers, but he, similar to his Jewish forebears, broke loose — even from death. "He is risen!" the astounded witnesses exclaimed, and that "good news" echoed through the centuries.

His ordeal on the cross is regarded as mirroring the very agony of God at human sin, taking its consequences on himself, thus offering redemption from it and signalling victory over it in the resurrection.

"Behold, I make all things new," Jesus said. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have enternal life."

The resurrection is not considered a past event, but a continuing reality and a glimmering of the future, heralding the opening of a new frontier and a new world for humanity into which Christ has pioneered the way.

Television documentary follows pope through his daily routine

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — From the time he prays and breakfasts with visitors in the morning until he retires at night, Pope John Paul II's daily work is traced in an unusual television documentary being shown Easter Sunday evening.

The hour-long program, for which ABC-TV news crews were granted rare access to the inner functioning of the Vatican and its staff, offers an intimate look inside that central Roman Catholic institution.

"The Pope and His Vatican," a year in the making, also provides a close-up and vivid study of that remarkable man, once an aspiring actor himself, as he goes about the business of running a world-wide church.

Asked at one point about some people saying he went on the road too much, away from his regular workplace, the pope said:

"Yes, I am convinced...that I am traveling too much, but sometimes it is necessary to do something of what is too much."

As becomes clear on the program, this pope takes a direct, open approach to his job, much more informal than customary for that office, chatting easily with co-workers and dinner guests, greeting callers with personal warmth.

A "people's pope," some call him.

Before some visitors are presented to him, a monsignor advises them not to kiss his ring, a long-time but receding approach to bishops, especially popes, but that "you instead shake his hand and engage his eyes."

He apparently prefers that natural mutuality, instead of the old deference.

Camera crews trailed the pope throughout his day, which he insisted should consist of typical activities rather than special occasions, and so the routines unfolded, in individualistic John Paul style.

He's not a meticulous administrator like Paul VI, concerned with technical details, but "he pays attention only to those issues that interest him, leaving others to pick up the slack," observes correspondent Bill Blakemore.

The pope heads the oldest bureaucracy in the world, made up of nine major departments, called congregations, led by cardinals who are comparable to cabinet officers. They coordinate matters such as education, missions and doctrine.

Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia, who offers an occasional commentary as his fellow Pole goes about his job, says "there is nothing he can do...to satisfy everyone, no way."

The pope's day starts about 6 a.m. He prays alone in his private chapel until about 7, and then joins in a private dawn Mass with invited groups, this time including some young priests from Ireland and Krol.

Then comes a group breakfast.

"When you have breakfast with the Holy Father, you get the same buns and the same kind of coffee which is served in Italy," Krol says. But the pope "is not just simply entertaining.

"He's looking for information and he wants guidance...It's a kind of working expedition, but in a very light vein. He's not wasting time at the table."

Afterward, the pope returns to his rooms for two hours set aside daily for reading and writing, in longhand Polish. The papal notes and messages are then sent out to secretaries for translation into appropriate languages.

At 10:30 a.m., his "people" schedule begins, this time with Colombia's new ambassador to the Vatican presenting his credentials.

Next comes discussion with three bishops, some of the far-flung local church overseers on whom the pope relies for information, along with the Vatican cabinet, or Curia.

Afterward, he receives lay visitors, joking with them, exchanging small talk.

"He takes on more than any normal person should," says Krol. "His responsiblity as chief shepherd cannot be limited to the bureaucratic operation of the Roman Curia...he must also attend to the flock."

Following lunch, about 1:45 or 2 p.m., the pope, like the rest of Italy, takes an afternoon break, and then come meetings with advisors, more receiving of visitors, sometimes public appearances, often visits to local parishes.

On this particular day, despite advice against it because of the political overtones, he goes to a disarmament rally of youths in Rome's sports stadium, evoking loud cheering.

Music minister nominated for office

Tom Roberts, director of music ministry at First Presbyterian Church, has been nominated for national treasurer of the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers, Inc. Voting will take place later this year.

Roberts has been associated with the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers, Inc., since attending his first handbell festival in 1963.

His handbell choirs from First Presbyterian Church have attended numerous festivals and concert events, including a 1980 tour to Hawaii and the 1981 AGEHR festival cruise to Nassau, Bahamas, with a 1982 appearance in New York's Carnegie Recital Hall and General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Columbus, Ga.

In addition, Roberts currently serves as president of the Midland Arts Assembly, Inc., a member of the board of directors for the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale In., and as a member of the Midland Opera Theatre. He has also directed several Midland Community Theatre musicals since his arrival here in 1980.

The Newspaper BIBLE

SO YOU WANT HAPPINESS?

Jesus turned to His disciples and said, "What happiness there is for you who are poor, for the Kingdom of God is yours!

"What happiness there is for you who are now hungry, for you are going to be satisfied! What happiness there is for you who weep, for the time will come when you will laugh with joy!

"What happiness it is when others hate you and exclude you and insult you and smear your name because you are Mine!

"When that happens, rejoice! Yes, leap for joy! For you will have a great reward awaiting you in heaven. And you will be in good company--the ancient prophets were treated that way too!

"But, oh, the sorrows that await the rich. For they have their only happiness down here.

"They are fat and prosperous now, but a time of awful hunger is before them. Their careless laughter now means sorrow then.

"And what sadness is ahead for those praised by the crowds--for false prophets have always been praised.

"Listen, all of you. Love your enemies. Do good to those who hate you. Pray for the happiness of those who curse you; implore God's blessing on those who hurt you.

"If someone slaps you on one cheek, let him slap the other too! If someone demands your coat, give him your shirt besides.

"Give what you have to anyone who asks you for it; and when things are taken away from you, don't worry about getting them back."

U.S. Catholic bishops complete work on draft of pastoral letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Catholic bishops have completed work on the third draft of their proposed pastoral letter on war and peace, which is expected to challenge various aspects of U.S. nuclear strategy.

Drawn up during more than two years of consultations, discussion and controversy, some of it directly with Reagan administration officials, the document now is to be acted on by bishops at a meeting May 2-3 in Chicago.

The committee has med once since its last session in November, when the White House sent its objections to the 300 bishops, most of whom supported the letter.

Woman joins staff of church as Christian education director

Peggy Brown has joined the church staff at First Presbyterian Church as director of Christian education.

A native of Odessa, Ms. Brown is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Joe Brown. Brown was, before his retirement, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Odessa.

Ms. Brown, a graduate of Odessa High School, graduated from Austin College at Sherman with a bachelor of arts degree. She then received a masters degree in Christian education from the Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Va. Her speciality is in youth ministry.

She has served on the staff of the Ridglea Presbyterian Church in Fort Worth and comes to Midland from the staff of the Westminister Presbyterian Church in Arlington.

In addition, Ms. Brown has been actively pursuing a part-time career in contemporary Christian music, recording an album of her own music in 1983.

Series reveals Revelations

The Rev. James R. Otterness will begin a teaching series at 8 p.m. Wednesday on the Book of Revelation. Many area residents have become acquainted with Otterness through his Bible studies Sundays on KOSA-TV.

The preaching and teaching service is a missionary endeavor of the Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord in Odessa. The Sunday services, Sunday School at 8:15 a.m. and services at 9:15 a.m., as well as the 8 p.m. Wednesday studies are held at 5200 W. Illinois Ave. This new congregation is being served by Otterness, the Rev. John V. Halvorson and the Rev. Brad Calley.

'Believers in Heaven' to air

The Northeast Baptist Chapel will show the film "Believers in Heaven" at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. The church meets on the second floor of the Tesoro Crude Oil Company, corner of E. Highway 80 and County Road 1130 North.

The film will be presented by Johnny Bynum from First Baptist Church. A nursery will be provided.

John Hyde from the First Baptist Church of Stanton and formerly of the Permian Basin Baptist Camp will be guest speaker Sunday at the 11 a.m. service. Other service times are Sunday School at 9:45 a.m., evening worship at 6:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Wednesday Bible study.

Marriage seminar to begin

The North Midland Drive Church of Christ will present an eight-week special film series: "Marriage Enrichment Seminar," beginning Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Each consecutive film will be shown on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. A nursery will be provided. The public is invited to attend these free showings.

New bishop consecrated

The Rt. Rev. H. Edwin Caudill of San Antonio is expected to succeed the Rt. Rev. Robert Harvey as bishop of the diocese in November.

A sung Holy Communion will be celebrated at St. Paul's Angelican Church at 11 a.m. Easter.

Christians must defend poor

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Christians are obligated to defend the poor and the disenfranchised "because politicians don't pay much attention to people without power," says a noted Presbyterian scholar.

The Rev. Donald Shriver, president of New York's Union Theological Seminary, spoke during a seminar sponsored by the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission.

Paul troubled by lynching

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first installment of a five-part series about Paul, the violent persecutor of the early followers of Jesus, but later a prime advocate who spread the message across the known world despite arrests, stonings, shipwrecks and other ordeals.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

From the Hall of Hewn Stone where the meeting of the Sanhedrin had broken up in disorder, an inflamed mob shoved the accused man down the Temple ramp, through Jerusalem's north gate and out to the place of stoning.

"Blasphemer!" the crowd railed as the victim, Stephen, was knocked into the rocky pit. He was a radically outspoken follower of the crucified Jesus. The shouting grew shrill. "Death to the demon! Destroyer of the law of Moses!"

A troubled participant in that illegal lynch party was a young scholar from the distant pagan city of Tarsus. His Jewish name was Saul, but he also held Roman citizenship and bore the Roman name, Paul.

He was a fiery opponent of the outbreak of fervor for Jesus, raiding and punishing followers, yet paradoxically, he became history's pivotal champion of that cause.

"Apostle to the Gentiles," he called himself and he flung wide the gates of the once religiously confined movement to the world. The master persecutor became the promoter extraordinary.

His ceaseless, far-traveling missionary work through heathen lands of Asia and Europe laid the foundations for a universal faith, for the rise of Christian civilization. He was, next to Jesus, its most extensively recorded founder and source of church teachings.

"It was like a torch that had been handed to him and that he had to carry to everybody else," says Christian theologian Alec Vidler. A "religious genius," he's termed by Jewish scholar Samuel Sandmel.

YET THE URGENT, impassioned Paul is also an enigmatic figure, tender yet forceful, physically weak yet tough, argumentative, conciliatory, demanding, loving, apologetic, torn with conflicts, yet surging with confidence.

"I do not understand my own actions," he writes. "For I do not do what I want, but I do the very things I hate...It is not that I do it, but sin which dwells within me...Wretched man that I am! Who will save me from this body of death?"

Yet he jubilantly affirms, "Thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ...Through him we have obtained access to this grace in which we stand...It depends not upon man's will or exertion, but upon God's mercy."

It was that sense of overwhelming divine acceptance of humanity despite its frailties that fired and empowered Paul and kept him roaming the known world to proclaim this "inexpressible gift!"

He never calls it "Christianity" but rather "the Way," and saw it not as a rejection of Judaism but the authentic flowering of it, avowing his loyalty to it to the end.

"I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the tribe of Benjamin," he declares. "I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees...circumcised on the eighth day...a Hebrew born of Hebrews."

While he insisted that "all Israel will be saved" and that Judaism was the indispensable, vital root of its new branch embracing Gentiles, he continually challenged Jews, and also Jesus' immediate apostles, to accept that broadened view.

"FOR IN JESUS Christ you are all sons of God through faith," he writes. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus. And if you are Christ's then you are Abraham's offspring, heirs according to the promise."

Of the 27 books of the New Testament, one of them, Acts, is half about Paul, and 13 other books bear his name, his epistles, or letters. They are the oldest of all Christian literature. He usually whipped them off in hurried, spontaneous style to the widespread congregations he started, dictating to a scribe, an amanuensis. At times he added passages in his own bold scrawl.

"See with what large letters I am writing to you with my own hand," he notes in one emotionally upset letter to groups in Galatia where intervening critics had demeaned him. "I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting...and turning to a different gospel — not that there is another gospel!"

A candid, headstrong man, Paul alternately showed irritation and affection, sarcasm and encouragement, humility and pride. "Let no one think me foolish; but even if you do, accept me as a fool, so that I too may boast a little," he writes.

"For I am not at all inferior to these superlative apostles, even though I am nothing...Let him who boasts, boast of the Lord."

In his 12,000 miles of travel by foot, muleback or ship, he endured all sorts of adversities — imprisonments, lashings, stonings, shipwrecks, bandits, apparent battle with beasts in the arena and finally, like his Lord, execution.

"WE KNOW THAT in everything God works for good with those who love him," he writes. "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril or sword?...No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us."

It was that unwavering assurance and courage that characterized the ancient church and enabled its believers to face arrest and tortures without flinching, to walk to their deaths in the arena singing hymns.

Unlike the rural Jesus, whose teachings swarmed with countryside images, and his rustic, mostly uneducated apostles, Paul was a city man, a cosmopolitan, Hellenistic Jew from the diaspora, those dispersed from Judea. He spoke the international language, Greek, while they spoke provincial Aramaic, a dialect of Hebrew.

Paul was reared in the commercial and cultural center of Tarsus in the Roman province of Cilicia, now southern Turkey. "No mean city," he called it.

The son of well-to-do parents, he was given the Jewish name Saul, after the ancient warrior king of Israel, but his parents also held Roman citizenship, giving him "civic Romanus" status, with the Roman cognomen Paulus, or Paul.

That was a privileged and keenly sought standing. A census by the emperor Claudius in A.D. 47 showed only 6 million of 180 million inhabitants of the empire held Roman citizenship.

PAUL LIKELY was educated at the Tarsus university, and he also learned a trade, apprenticed to his father's leather-working business, producing the black, goat-hair tents used by nomads and merchandising caravans.

"We labor, working with our own hands," the tentmaker apostle writes. "If anyone will not work, let him not eat."

In his young manhood, his affluent and religiously orthodox parents sent him to Jerusalem for advanced studies at the feet of the renowned and tolerant Gamaliel of the liberal school of Hillel, in contrast to the rigid legalism of the Shammaite school.

Paul himself became a perceptive, dedicated Jewish scholar, committed heart and mind to his biblical heritage. "I advanced in Judaism beyond many my own age among my people so extremely zealous was I for the traditions of my fathers," he writes.

It was sometime in that period of his absorption in Jewish studies that the ecstasy about Jesus burst in Jerusalem, bringing the broken apostles out of despair and hiding, to flood the streets with excitement about the Resurrection.

Trudi S. Staples

Women's Aglow speaker set

ODESSA — The Odessa Chapter of Women's Aglow Fellowship will have Trudi S. Staples as its guest speaker for its 10:30 a.m. Wednesday meeting and salad luncheon.

The mother of four, Mrs. Staples is also the wife of a Church of Christ minister. A graduate of Abilene Christian University with a degree in social work, she has been a caseworker for the state of Texas. Mrs. Staples teaches around the state and is a partner in an interior design business.

Nursery facilities are available at Morning Star Fellowship Church, 325 W. County Road. Mothers are asked to send a sack lunch with their children.

Church communicator retires after 30 years

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Everett C. Parker, pioneering church communications and press relations expert, says he is retiring Aug. 31 as director of the Office of Communications of the United Church of Christ.

He has held the post for nearly 30 years, since establishing the department in 1954. Besides raising the professional level of church communications, Parker also has spearheaded efforts for citizen rights in broadcasting.

Dubbed a "gadfly" in that field, he was cited as one of its most influential figures by Broadcasting Magazine in reviewing the past decade. Going to court, Parker forced various policies on rights and fairness in the industry.

His office was the first church agency to combine press, broadcasting, films, research and educational functons under one head, a structure that has been adopted by most denominations.

Auto industry suffers 'Grosse Pointe myopia,' writer says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forget, for a minute, the Japanese and orbiting gasoline prices. One reason Detroit almost got blindsided by imports is that 10,000 auto executives are provided with cars by their companies, says iconoclastic auto writer Brock Yates.

These executives, in Detroit and around the country, "are supplied with cream-of-the-crop cars that never break. And if they do, they are fixed," he said in an interview.

"Any kind of real-world exposure to the frustration and grief of owning a car...would be very educational and would generate improvements."

Yates has been flaying "Grosse Pointe myopia" for years as editor of Car and Driver magazine. Now he has expanded his observations into a book, "The Decline and Fall of the American Automobile Industry."

The myopia, Yates says, also affects car design.

THE SHIFT to small, sporty, hi-tech cars was in the works throughout the 1960s and 1970s. It happened with other products too.

"Suddenly the trendsetters in our society were tossing out their old Kodak Brownie Hawkeyes and buying 35mm single lens reflex cameras from Nikon and Pentax and Canon," Yates writes.

"The public's fascination for hi-tech in the 1960s passed the executive staffs of the Big Three automakers by... "

Many of the people Yates quotes on the Detroit mind are not identified. They live in the industry, or have to deal with it.

"They live together, they work together, they drink together, they play golf together, they think together," he quotes "a former GM executive" as saying.

Their similar thinking, Yates says, has extended to cars that "are designed essentially to meet three criteria: (1) to ride comfortably on the area's wide, billiard-table-flat streets and highways, (2) to start and stay warm in the murderous Michigan winters and to keep cool in the humid summers and (3) to carry a family and their gear on summer vacation trips.

"THIS LAST arises from auto executives' tradition of owning summer places or visiting hunting camps in Michigan's Upper Peninsula and regularly hauling wives, offspring and fishing rods up and down the state."

And the state of their art fell behind. Europeans introduced or spread disc brakes, radial tires, overhead cams, reclining seat backs, fuel injection, independent rear suspension, sleek aerodynamics, for instance.

The breakthrough Honda Accord carried many of these fixtures to high craftmanship in 1976. But General Motors Corp.'s underpowered and overpriced J-cars, designed as import fighters, flopped when they hit the showrooms in May 1981. They had no five-speed transmission and no overhead cam engine — items now available.

How could an industry that spends millions on market research miss the evolution in public taste?

Because the car clinics of captives audiences who size up a new model against the competition only looked — or at least for the J-cars, only looked — and never drove a one, Yates says, and never knew how much the shiny newcomer would cost.

Not all of the executive cars are "red-tag" cars, cars assembled on the line with a red tag on the grille for special attention.

JUST HOW MANY of these are essentially care-free cars is a closely guarded secret. A Chrysler source who cannot be identified says his company has 7,000 cars leased to employees in the Detroit area alone. The number of people holding these leases is much smaller since many are leasing more than one car.

The leases last a year. The company keeps title to the car and sells it on the used car market when the year is up.

"...And gentlemen, this is the car the American public has been waiting for."

If anything goes wrong, repairs are made by a dealer under warranty.

Just how many cars are taken care of completely is a closely guarded secret. The Chrysler source estimated that only about 100 top executives now get their cars washed every day in the executive garage. These are the people whose cars are pampered by the garage attendants, who take them out to nearby dealers for any repairs.

Such pampering is an example of a caste system that creates executive dining rooms and executive parking lots — "which Honda doesn't have at Marysville, Ohio," where it builds its four-door Accords, Yates notes.

THE POINT is not that all Japanese cars, or all European cars, are thrillers and all Detroit cars mushmobiles, Yates says. The Honda had fender rusting problems, but survived. Fiat never caught on and is pulling out of the country.

In addition to all the evidence of better Japanese quality and cost advantages, car buyers increasingly think they're more advanced.

Is there hope? The jury is still out, according to Yates.

He counts Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca, Ford President Donald Peterson, and Chevrolet division chief Bob Stempel in a small group of "progressives," working to change things. And he sees encouraging signs in the attitude of the United Auto Workers, willing to renegotiate contracts.

Manufacturers introducing low-salt, no-salt products

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of food manufacturers are learning that what they leave out of their products can be as important as what they put in.

They are introducing no-salt or low-salt lines to attract consumers who are concerned about sodium in their diets.

At the same time, the Food and Drug Administration is almost ready to issue a final rule requiring some processors to list the sodium content of their foods and setting standards for terms like "sodium-free" or "low-sodium."

Sodium is a necessary part of the diet. It attracts and holds water in the blood vessels, helping maintain blood volume and pressure. Too much sodium, however, has been linked to high blood pressure, a condition which affects about 60 million Americans.

The National Academy of Sciences has said that a daily sodium intake of about 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams is safe and adequate for most people, but government estimates indicate the typical adult consumes up to three times the maximum recommended amount.

You can start cutting sodium by leaving the salt shaker off the table, since one teaspoon of salt contains 2,000 milligrams of sodium. If you don't know how much salt you use, try this test:

Cover a plate with paper or foil. Salt the plate as you would your food, then collect the salt and measure it. If you used only one-eighth of a teaspoon — which doesn't look like very much — you used 250 milligrams of sodium.

The salt we sprinkle on our food ourselves is only a small part of the problem, however, and that's where the new regulations and products will help.

Processed foods — particularly canned vegetables and frozen vegetables in a sauce — often are high in sodium since salt is added during cooking. But until now, it was hard to tell just how much sodium was included in a serving.

The situation has changed in recent months. More than half of the processors surveyed late last summer by the American Frozen Food Institute said they either already labeled their products with the sodium content or had plans to do so. The Del Monte Corp. of San Francisco began marketing a no-salt-added line of canned vegetables. Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis introduced a canned tuna with 50 percent less sodium than the regular variety. The Campbell Soup Co. of Camden, N.J., has low-sodium soups. Some restaurants are posting signs giving the salt content of menu items or promising their food is prepared without monosodium glutamate or MSG.

Peter Thomson, group product manager for Del Monte's No Salt Added vegetables told Advertising Age, a trade publication, that there is a large potential market for the new items. "The target group is not skewed to those with hypertension (or) older people," he said. "We're defining our target broadly. We intend to cast our net as widely as we can."

Virginia Knauer, President Reagan's adviser for consumer affairs, says the introduction of the low-sodium and sodium-free products is an example of how the marketplace can work — without regulation — to meet a demand. She says mandatory sodium labeling — urged by some groups — is not necessary.

James Greene, a spokesman for the FDA, said the agency has been encouraging voluntary labeling "with some success."

But the FDA is going ahead with mandatory labeling for at least one segment of the market — those processors who already are required to use nutritional labels.

The rule was proposed last summer and Greene said a final version is expected late this spring. It would take effect in 1985.

Under the regulations as proposed, a product described as "sodium-free" could contain no more than five milligrams of sodium per serving. "Low-sodium" would mean 35 milligrams or less per serving and "moderately low-sodium" would be 140 milligrams or less. The words "reduced sodium" could be used if a product had been specially processed to remove 75 percent of the sodium which would be found in a traditional version of the item.

Condor chick dines on minced mice

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A California condor chick, the first hatched in captivity, was listed in good condition Friday, dining on minced mice, water and regurgitated food, San Diego Zoo officials said.

The condor, given the Indian name of Sisquoc, was being kept at a secret location at the Wild Animal Park near Escondido, where it was transported by ambulance Thursday after being hatched in a zoo laboratory, said Martha Baker, a park spokeswoman.

The most perilous time for the fragile, salmon-colored chick is the next two to four weeks, and the bird's feeding habits and digestion will be closely watched for any signs of trouble, Ms. Baker said.

"If the bird makes it to 1-month-old, it will probably be pretty much home free," she said. "But any wide number of things could (still) go wrong."

Sisquoc has gained three grams since two zookeepers helped the chick break out of its light blue egg shell Wednesday night, Ms. Baker said. The chick now weighs 203.5 grams, about 7½ ounces.

Scientists won't be able to determine the sex of the chick until it is strong enough to withstand a blood test in about six to eight weeks.

The bird is "fed on demand," usually about every two hours. Each meal consists of four "pinkies," or chopped-up mice. Condor keeper Bill Toone began using look-alike condor puppets Thursday to feed the chick regurgitated food, its natural diet in the wild.

THE PROMISE OF PERFORMANCE.

KZ550C KZ750H

One look is all it takes for you to know what the Kawasaki LTD is all about — performance. A race-bred DOHC four-cylinder delivers breathtaking power. Air-adjustable forks and damping-adjustable shocks provide responsive handling and control. And the LTD design promises unmistakable style. Long leading-axle forks, alloy wheels and megaphone mufflers give the LTD a sleek, unique look and feel. Because great performance is also a matter of style. Test drive a Kawasaki LTD today.

THE SWITCH IS ON

Thousands of bottled water users have already changed to Reverse Osmosis (RO) Drinking Water Systems. At present there are over 5,000 Reverse Osmosis (RO) Systems in use in homes and offices in the Permian Basin. Why are so many turning to RO? The process of Reverse Osmosis has the remarkable ability to remove almost all pollutants from water and produce for you and excellent tasting drinking water at an affordable price. Water pollution is an age old problem. Today there are thousands of new toxic chemicals introduced into the environment and many have or will contaminate our drinking water sources. Some of these chemicals can cause cancer, genetic mutations and birth defects. Recently scientists from The World Health Organization and The National Cancer Institute estimated that up to 90% of all cancer is caused by chemicals in our air and drinking water. "Safe Drinking water in this country can no longer be taken for granted" (L.A. Times January 2, 1980) Today after several decades of research and development costing many million of dollars reverse osmosis is reguarded as the most effective, efficient and economical of method of water purification. Little wonder thousands of people in West Texas are turning to these marvelous systems to provide for themselves and their families pure great tasting drinking water. At Pure Water Reverse Osmosis we are bringing to the Permian Basin the very best reverse osmosis systems at the best price. Best product. Best price. Our guarantee: Quality Product at the Best Price in the Permian Basin. To find out just how inexpensive a Pure Water Reverse Osmosis System is call 699-7378. Or when a pure water representative knocks on your door invite him in. You will appreciate the information he has to share with you.

LUXURY FAIRGATE TOWNHOMES FOR $92,500

If you're like most renters, the tax man's got you down and you're ready to cry uncle. You have no interest to write off, and, to make matters worse, you don't own a home. Each month those rent dollars go out the window with no hope of retrieval.

LIVE-IN TAX SHELTER

At Fairgate you'll enjoy a beautiful home and tax relief. You can deduct a considerable amount of interest expense from your income tax, and because our homes are priced below market value but presently sell for $92,500, you have built-in equity.

DISTINCTIVE 2 & 3 BEDROOM FLOORPLANS

To visit Fairgate in northwest Midland, take Wadley Avenue west to Midland Drive; then north to Fairgate and the models.
