Colonia aid

AUSTIN (AP) — Eagle Pass has become the first city to receive money under the $250 million state bond program to bring water and sewer improvements to colonias, or substandard subdivisions, state officials say.

The Texas Water Development Board closed a $2.48 million loan with Eagle Pass Thursday under the Economically Distressed Areas Program.

The money will go toward building a new regional wastewater treatment facility.

Defense sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says he does not favor government ownership of companies but declined specific comment on the proposed sale of LTV Aerospace and Defense Co. to a French-owned firm.

"As a general proposition, I have not been an advocate of government-owned corporations. I think the private sector is the backbone of our economy. I support a strong private sector," Cheney told a Senate panel on Thursday.

Summer school set June 15

Summer school for Snyder ISD begins June 15, administrators have announced.

The summer school curriculum is designed for students in grades kindergarten through 12 who need additional work in order to be promoted. It is also for those who have not mastered the state-mandated essential elements in language arts or mathematics.

Classes will meet Monday through Friday from 8:15 a.m. until noon. A bus will pick up students at their current home campuses in the mornings and return them to their home campuses at the end of each session.

Dates for these classes are June 15 through July 17.

Students attending elementary summer school in an effort to be promoted must maintain passing grades and regular attendance throughout the session. Five days of absence will result in the student being dropped from the summer school roll.

At the end of summer school, the student's grades will be added

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A pessimist is one who endures life with a grain of sulk."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Some local sports fan who has endured years of basketball rivalry might ask, "Has anything of value ever come out of Lamesa?"

The answer is yes. Russell Skiles, writing in the Lamesa Press-Reporter, wrote about the claim that a Texan's favorite food — chicken fried steak — was invented in Lamesa.

Skiles reported that a former Austin newspaper columnist invented the Lamesa legend about the chicken fried steak.

According to the well-publicized story, a fellow by the name of Jimmy Don Perkins created the chicken fried steak at a Lamesa cafe in 1911 when he misread a customer's order.

Perkins, so the story goes, was a draw-bridge oiler who traveled to West Texas looking for work. But since drawbridges were rare in West Texas, Perkins took a job as a short-order cook to make ends meet.

Perkins went to work for a place named Ethel's Home Cookin'. It was named that because newcomers to the cafe always asked, "Where's Ethel?" Luther, the owner, would reply, "She's home cooking."

The invention of the chicken fried steak is said to have occurred on Dec. 11, 1911 when Darlene, the establishment's only waitress, wrote out an order for "chicken" and "fried steak."

Not wanting to admit that he had never heard of such, Perkins decided to give it his best shot, rolling a piece of round steak in flour before frying it — just like he would a piece of chicken.

And that's how chicken-fried steak, now a Lone Star favorite, was invented — by accident in Lamesa.

Kim Pease, in the Rotan Advance, said, "The ladder of life is full of splinters, but you realize it the most when you begin to slide down."

Burnet chosen as site for 500-bed facility

Burnet, just northwest of Austin, was chosen today by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice as a site for a 500-bed substance abuse treatment facility.

The nine-member criminal justice board, meeting in Huntsville, chose Burnet on a split vote. Also nominated were Abilene, Neuces County and Carrizo Springs. The unit originally had been awarded to El Paso on April 10.

El Paso rejected the unit, saying its incentive package warranted a 2,250-bed facility. The TDCJ said the 22 towns not selected on April 10 would be considered for the remaining unit.

Snyder had suggested that unit be placed on state-owned land located just north of the 1,000-bed Price Daniel unit. A 500-bed facility would employ 170 with an annual payroll of $3 million.

Azerbaijan threatens to enlist Turkish aid; U.N. mission arrives

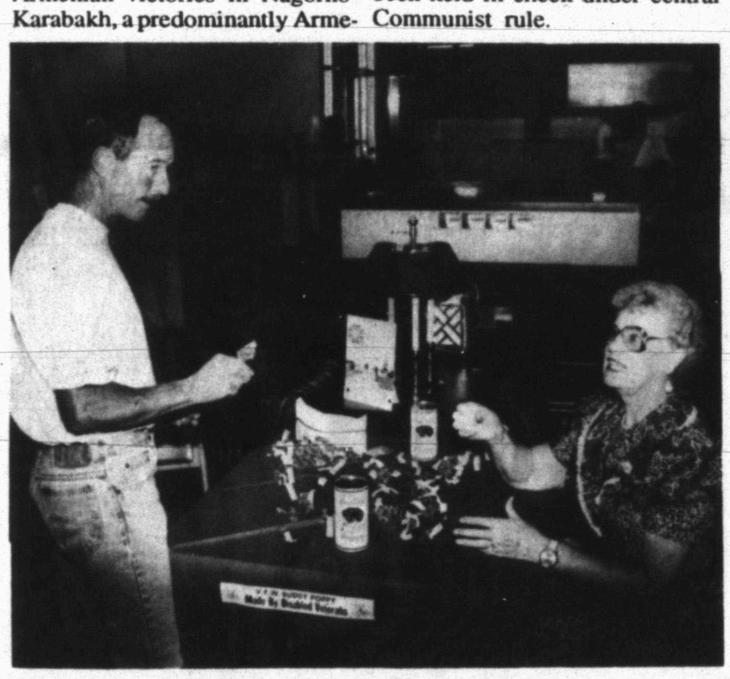

YEREVAN, Armenia (AP) — A U.N. fact-finding mission arrived in Armenia's capital today en route to Nakhichevan, site of new Armenian-Azerbaijani fighting. Azerbaijan threatened to ask Turkey, Armenia's historic enemy, to intervene in the 4-year-old war.

The war spread this week to Nakhichevan, an Azerbaijani territory surrounded by Armenia, killing at least 16 people.

The flare-up followed decisive Armenian victories in Nagorno-Karabakh, a predominantly Armenian region within Azerbaijan, where an estimated 1,500 people have died in 4 years. Armenia established a land-corridor to the enclave this week.

Commonwealth of Independent States border troops in Nakhichevan were placed on alert for their own protection, and Iran offered to send observers to the region.

Turkey and Russia also showed signs of being drawn into the conflict, one of several in the former Soviet Union stemming from longtime ethnic animosity that had been held in check under central Communist rule.

Other county buildings to observe a holiday Monday include the courthouse, health unit and library.

Also closing will be City Hall and the local ASCS and SCS offices. The post office business desk will be closed and mail will not be delivered on routes.

Scurry County citizens are invited to take part in observing Memorial Day. Flag raising ceremonies will begin at 9 a.m. Monday at the Veterans of Foreign Wars post home, and will proceed to the American Legion post home, Snyder Cemetery and Hillside Memorial Gardens.

At 10:30 a.m. the public is invited to the north side of the courthouse for a memorial service and to honor Gold Star mothers.

Medical help for underserved areas delayed

DALLAS (AP) — Governmental red tape is delaying implementation of a six-month-old law designed to help ease doctor shortages affecting millions of Americans.

The law would make it easier for foreign medical graduates to practice in the United States by granting them an easier-to-obtain six-year work visa instead of a "green card" that allows foreigners to work in the country.

But the federal Health Resources and Services Administration must first decide what foreign medical tests it will accept.

No decision is imminent, putting some doctors and hospitals in a legal limbo and leaving rural residents with inadequate medical care.

"We don't have a specific timetable on when a decision is going to be made," said Patricia Campbell, a spokeswoman for the agency, a part of the Department of Health and Human Services.

The agency will make a recommendation to HHS Secretary Dr. Louis Sullivan, whose ruling will become law.

Dr. Fitzhugh Mullan, director of the Bureau of Health Professions at HHS, is helping formulate the recommendation. He did not return repeated phone calls by The Associated Press.

Insiders say the agency is delaying a decision because powerful American medical lobbies are pressuring it to limit foreign doctors' entry into the United States.

Officials at HHS deny the allegations, and the country's two largest medical groups, the American Medical Association and American Hospital Association say they have not taken a position on the law.

In the meantime, hospitals, doctors and patients wait.

"There are communities that literally have no surgeons, no obstetricians, no pediatricians who relied on the new law and signed contracts with doctors who have now had the door slammed in their face at the border," says Jan Pederson, chairwoman of a rural health lobbying group in Washington, D.C. "It doesn't make sense."

Thirty-three million Americans live in rural areas that are experiencing shortages of medical professionals, Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., said Wednesday at a news conference in Washington, D.C.

An estimated 4,100 medical providers are needed to relieve the shortages, said Roberts, who is co-chairman of the House's Rural Health Care Coalition which introduced its own legislative program.

Dr. Darlene Antosh, a 33-year-old family practitioner from Canada, is one of a number of physicians caught in the red tape.

Dr. Antosh left her practice in Regina, Saskatchewan, sold her home and bought a new one in Altus, Okla., with hopes of starting work there June 1.

She has been licensed to practice in Oklahoma, one of at least 40 states which accept the Canadian certification.

But the state acceptance is meaningless without a work visa.

"It's annoying to say the least that we have ended up with all this red tape with what was supposed to be the answer to a major problem," she said by telephone. "There is a rural hospital that needs a doctor and I am eager to practice there."

Hospitals and lawmakers are lobbying aggressively for acceptance of Canada's exam, the Licentiate of the Medical Council of Canada. The test is already accepted for Canadian doctors seeking a green card.

"Why the government would accept the LMCC for permanent residents and not for those seeking a temporary work visa boggles the mind," says Joseph Hawkins, who heads an Irving-based national physician recruitment firm.

Foreign medical graduates from other countries have always been required to take the American tests, which are time-consuming and bog down recruiting efforts, Hawkins says.

"Clearly the advantage of this law for rural hospitals is recruiting doctors from Canada," says Hawkins who already has 12 Canadian doctors lined up to practice in underserved communities. "We could have them here in weeks because their license is readily accepted in over 40 states."

But unless the government clears the way, Dr. Antosh will be forced to return to her practice in Canada or begin studying for the comprehensive American tests.

That idea is not appealing.

"If taking the (U.S. test) was part of the deal from the beginning I may not have decided to go," she said.

Drug conviction thrown out

HOUSTON (AP) — An appeals court has thrown out the conviction of a young mother who was sent to prison for cocaine possession after the drug was found in the liver of her stillborn baby.

The 14th Court of Appeals ruled Thursday that there was insufficient evidence to convict Traci Jackson, 21, who was sentenced to 12 years in prison.

The ruling means that laboratory studies revealing cocaine in a body are not enough to establish illegal possession of the drug, officials said.

Harris County appellate prosecutor Alan Curry said he will seek a rehearing before the 14th Court and, if that doesn't work, a review by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

State District Judge Woody Densen, who sentenced Ms. Jackson last July, said the decision "effectively prevents prosecution of 'crack baby' cases in Texas."

Alexander Bunin, a lawyer who represented Ms. Jackson on behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the ruling was fair.

"If you could convict (Jackson) of that, you could do it to anybody who went to Harris County Pre-Trial Services and had to give a urine test," he said. "You could charge people based on hospital or employment records if that was the law."

Prosecutor Casey O'Brien was shocked that Jackson's conviction, based on what he called "overwhelming evidence," was reversed.

"That's a stupid opinion," he said. "I'm upset by this."

Prosecutors contended Jackson spent the entire day of July 9, 1989, smoking crack cocaine and presiding over a dish of dope at an apartment.

That night, a woman who came to the apartment to buy cocaine found the dead baby's body in a plastic bag in a small closet.

An expert testified that genetics tests showed there was a 99.06 percent chance Jackson was the mother of the stillborn baby.

A medical examiner testified the dead baby's liver contained enough cocaine to kill one in 10 adults. The cause of death, he said, was a massive overdose of cocaine.

Justice department expected to file lawsuit

DALLAS (AP) — The state has inspected a landfill in Ellis County, but found no reason to prohibit the Environmental Protection Agency from trucking loads of lead-contaminated soil from west Dallas, a state official says.

The landfill near the southern Ellis County town of Avalon is adjacent to a creek that flows into the Richland-Chambers Reservoir watershed, which supplies the cities of Fort Worth and Corsicana.

"Right now, there is no basis on which to pull the permission from them to deposit any of this (lead waste) material," said Jesus Garza, executive director of the Texas Water Commission in Austin.

Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, has urged the commission to declare a temporary moratorium on any soil shipments to Ellis County.

"There are still too many unanswered questions about the contents of the West Dallas soil and the ability of the local landfill to safely handle the material," Sibley said.

Garza said the commission will continue to study Sibley's complaint.

"We will evaluate the specifics of the senator's request," he said. "And if one of those things give us pause, we will act on it."

The Ennis City Commission voted Wednesday to join the city of Italy in hiring an environmental attorney to fight tainted soil shipments. A judge had already blocked several routes to CSC Disposal and landfill in Avalon, about 50 miles south of Dallas.

The EPA sought access to the landfill, located between Ennis and Italy, after the agency was blocked by injunctions in attempts to first dump the soil in Monroe, La.

Ennis City Manager Steve Howerton showed a videotape Thursday of water flowing from a landfill near the southern Ellis county town of Avalon.

"We found two points on the perimeter of the landfill discharging water into a creek," Howerton said. "It's a practice that's very unsafe with the landfill.

"What this makes us do is question operating procedures at the landfill and whether the water could be contaminating municipal water supplies," he said.

But the water commission, after an inspection late Thursday at the landfill, said it found no violation because crews were only draining water from fresh trenches that contained no waste.

Howerton said he is concerned about possible threats to a school less than one-half mile from the dump site and Avalon's 250 residents.

Ed Clark, a commission spokesman, said the landfill previously had a good record of meeting its permit requirements.

The EPA warned Thursday that it may sue the cities for noncompliance.

Ennis and Italy officials missed the EPA's Wednesday deadline to lift temporary restraining orders against the soil shipments from near a closed lead melter in west Dallas.

The two cities could soon face fines up to $25,000 a day until they comply with the agency's request, EPA spokesman David Bary said in Dallas.

"The agency over the past several months did everything within its power to convince officials in Ennis and Ellis County and in Louisiana that the proposal to dispose of soil in no way, under any circumstances, would pose a threat," said Bary. "But it fell on deaf ears."

Bizarre items found during beach cleanup

AUSTIN (AP) — Before September, you could've found a trampoline at the Sea Rim State Park. On Galveston Island, you'd have a choice between a washing machine, plastic toilet seat, hatchet and a car fender.

But this wasn't a garage sale — it was trash removed from the beach by more than 12,000 volunteers.

An analysis of last year's international beach cleanup project was released Thursday, and those bizarre items were among more than 216,000 pieces of debris found on Texas beaches.

"I do not know how I can tolerate it. I don't see how the people of the United States can tolerate it and I don't think the people of Texas should tolerate it," said Butch Farabee, superintendent of the Padre Island National Seashore.

"Unfortunately, it's happening. I think it's an embarrassment to everyone," he said.

In just three hours last September, 12,716 Texas volunteers spread over 169 miles at 21 coastal sites and collected 216,370 items.

Texas, which held the nation's first cleanup campaign in 1986, had the third-highest number of volunteers last year, behind Florida and California, which led with 29,337 helpers.

Texans picked up 399,140 pounds of garbage, second only to North Carolina, where volunteers sacked 420,000 pounds.

"There were a lot of people who felt we were just moaning and groaning because a couple of beer cans were left from spring break. But we're talking about deadly trash," said Lisa Maraniss, who directs the Gulf Coast office of the Center for Marine Conservation.

Among the breakdowns provided by the Conservation Center was a list of the 12 most commonly found items, known as the "Dirty Dozen."

The second string isn't broken

By Phillip Alder

When an archer breaks the string of his bow, he stands no chance of hitting the target with his arrow. Sometimes a bridge player is faced with the same problem. He has one chance to make the contract. If it works, he succeeds; if not, he fails. But often the bridge player will have a second string to his bow — if he can spot it and take advantage of it.

Cover the East-West cards in the diagram. Against your contract of six spades, West leads the heart king: ace, 10, six. You cash dummy's spade ace and lead a spade to your king, but West discards a heart. How do you continue?

Faced with a trump loser, South thought he needed to find East with at least three clubs (so that he could discard his heart loser before East ruffed in) and West with the diamond king. Consequently, South finessed the diamond queen at trick four. But East won with the king and returned his last heart: two down.

South might have deduced from West's vulnerable pre-empt and the play to trick one that East had started with a doubleton heart. (With eight hearts, West would probably have opened four hearts.)

As East must have at least three clubs, declarer should try that suit first. And when East turns up with four clubs, declarer should discard his heart loser, ruff the heart three in hand, play a spade to dummy's queen and lead dummy's last club.

If East ruffs, he must return a diamond into dummy's A-Q. So he discards. But declarer exits with dummy's last spade, endplaying East anyway.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I smoke about two packs of cigarettes a day and have no willpower to quit. I can go a short time until I see someone light up, and then I'm off and running. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER: You have an addiction to nicotine, which can be every bit as hard to overcome as addiction to narcotics or alcohol. In fact, I have had drug abusers tell me that compared to kicking cigarettes, hard drugs were a breeze. I believe this is probably hyperbole but, clearly, nicotine addiction is serious.

Because you depend heavily on nicotine, you will not be able, in all likelihood, to give up cigarettes on your own. Fortunately, help is readily available.

First, see your doctor to investigate the possibility of using the new nicotine patches (Habitrol, ProStep or Nico-derm), which will reduce your craving and make stopping easier. At the same time, you will need some sort of support group because after you've used the patches (for two to four weeks), you'll still need encouragement to stay on the straight and narrow.

Many hospitals offer smoke-ending courses and can tell you what support groups are available in your community. In addition, acupuncture and hypnosis may help smokers; your doctor can advise you. In my experience, these last two techniques are less effective. The reason for this is that cigarette smoking is a powerful habit and, without certain changes in your motivation and lifestyle, you won't stay off cigarettes indefinitely.

Remember that inveterate smokers often stop for several days (Lent and New Year's are the popular times), only to relapse. Smoking cessation is a long-term commitment that requires long-term support.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help II — Substance Abuse and Mental Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have two sons in junior high school and have learned that wearing support is not stressed or even mentioned in their PE classes. How important is wearing a jockstrap, and why isn't support being stressed anymore?

DEAR READER: Athletic supporters are not considered to be as important as they used to be. I never could see much purpose in them anyway — they were always a source of locker room humor; jockey shorts work just as well.

The purpose of genital support is to keep these vital organs out of harm's way during athletics. Obviously, in contact sports, special precautions must be taken. But for routine activities, such as baseball, basketball, tennis, soccer and track, jockstraps are not, in my opinion, necessary.

Certainly, athletic supporters are not particularly appropriate for regular physical education classes. Support is still being stressed; it's the equipment that's changed.

To The Veterans

On this Memorial Day
Let's take time to remember,
All our loved ones and comrades
Who loved America, and fought to defend her.

They were our friends and our families;
Some have gone home to rest.
But where would we be today,
If they weren't the best?

Their blood was red,
Their loyalty, true blue.
So on this special day
Let's give them their due.

We'll all wear a poppy.
We'll fly our flags high.
Today we say thanks and remember
To you guys we'll never say goodbye!

Secretary of State Baker on the road again

By Barry Schweid
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If this is Tuesday, it must be Belgium.

In the case of Secretary of State James A. Baker III, if this is the Memorial Day weekend, look to the skies. You may spot a shimmering jet with "United States of America" emblazoned on its side.

Baker is airborne again, to London to pay his respects to recently re-elected British Prime Minister John Major, and then to Lisbon to try to put the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, or START, to bed and to consider efforts to assist the former Soviet republics.

Never one to hurry back to Washington when there are other places to go, Baker then will fly 2,644 miles across Europe to Georgia, the last of the 15 former Soviet republics to be visited by the secretary of state.

It's an opportunity to signal U.S. approval for recent turns in Georgia toward democracy and a market economy, and to get together with Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the former Soviet foreign minister with whom he worked closely before the Soviet Union fell apart.

The State Department says Baker will return to Washington on Tuesday night, after the 12,028-mile trip, but experienced Baker-watchers know by now to pack a couple of extra clean shirts. He's liable to go anywhere he sees an opportunity to pursue a Bush administration foreign policy objective.

AP news analysis

At 62, Baker is fit, energetic and ready to hit the road. Last year, for instance, he made eight separate trips to the Middle East just to set up Arab-Israeli negotiations.

At the moment, Baker's overriding objective is to get final approval of the START treaty. It's a job he is disinclined to delegate to subordinates.

Baker has spent long hours getting Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Belarus together on a protocol to the treaty signed last July by President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. As the four nuclear states, their commitment to the pact is essential.

Ukraine and Kazakhstan have signed on. Russia and Ukraine's approval should be a formality, but as Baker's predecessor, George P. Shultz, was fond of saying: "The devil is in the details."

Baker is hoping the officials going to the aid conference from Moscow, Kiev, Alma-Ata and Minsk will have the authority to give the treaty final approval. In fact, there may be a signing ceremony Saturday.

But if there is a hitch, one thing is certain: Baker is prepared to keep going to get the job done. And with good reason.

Approval of the treaty would set in motion Senate ratification of the accord to reduce arsenals of long-range nuclear missiles and lead to negotiations to make even sharper cuts in U.S. and ex-Soviet stockpiles of the world's deadliest weapons.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Barry Schweid has been covering diplomacy for The Associated Press and traveling with secretaries of state since 1973.

Speakes to return to work soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House spokesman Larry Speakes, recovering from a heart attack, should return to work in a few weeks, a spokesman said.

Speakes, 52, vice president of communications for a company that makes telecommunications equipment, was stricken May 13 during a seminar for public relations executives in Laguna Niguel, Calif., said John Callahan, spokesman for Northern Telecom.

He's hospitalized in California, and is expected to return home to Virginia in a few days, Callahan said Thursday.

Speakes served under President Reagan from 1981 to 1987.

Couple Steps on Friends' Toes By Making Plans Without Them

DEAR ABBY: I desperately need your help — or else a 40-year friendship will go down the drain.

Our closest friends introduced us to another couple. This new couple invited us to their country club for dinner, along with our best friends. We enjoyed a most pleasant evening, so to reciprocate we, in turn, invited this new couple out to dinner — without including or advising our best friends. Well, that's when the you-know-what hit the fan!

Our "old" friends called to inform us that we had failed to obey basic ethical and social standards by not letting them know of our plans, and failing to invite them to join us. ("They are 'our' friends, not yours," was the cry.)

We couldn't believe their attitude. Were we supposed to call them and ask permission? Must we include them in all such engagements with "new" couples we are introduced to by them? Is my wife required to call her "old" friend when she invites this "new" friend to join her for lunch or a shopping tour?

Please let me know your thoughts, Abby. It will go a long way to save our friendship and guide us in future arrangements.

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: You would have been gracious and wise to have included your "old" friends the first time you invited your "new" friends out for dinner. But nowhere is it written that you were obligated to do so.

DEAR ABBY: Why is all America laboring under the impression that teen-agers are sex-starved animals who will grab any partner they can get? Well, it's not true!

I am an 18-year-old girl who has never had sex. I am considered pretty, I date, I'm friendly and outgoing, and I'm an A-minus student. Not all virgins are ugly, homosexual or weird. My friends and I believe we should not have sex until we are married, and there are many of us.

The media play up the cheap and promiscuous among us, which is very unfair. Most teen-agers are upright citizens with morals and high standards. I wish people would quit concentrating on the scum. I guarantee that if you keep looking for weeds, you'll never see the flowers.

ONE OF MANY IN FORT MYERS, FLA.

DEAR ONE: I know that what you say is true, but your letter touches upon the danger of generalization.

I am all for virtue, self-control and saving one's virginity for marriage, but as noble as it is to make it to the altar intact — failing to do so doesn't make anyone "scum."

DEAR ABBY: For nearly two years, I was distressed that my son woke from his naps far too often crying uncontrollably for 30 to 40 minutes. I thought maybe he hadn't slept long enough or had slept too long. I didn't know what to do. Other parents with 1- and 2-year-olds said their children woke cranky, too.

I finally figured out the problem — monosodium glutamate (MSG)! My child loves several popular brands of noodles, soup and flavored rice. Checking the ingredient labels, I discovered they all contain MSG. My poor little son is too young to tell me his head hurts, or explain other symptoms the MSG causes.

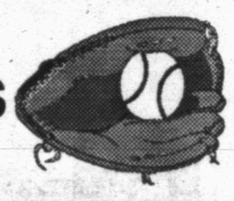

Ever since I removed MSG from his diet, he miraculously has awakened happy every single day.

New USDA policy may mean higher prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Schools will charge students more for a hot lunch this fall, when the Agriculture Department ends the flour giveaways that have helped cafeterias nationwide stretch their budgets, officials say.

They say the department can no longer give surplus flour to school cafeterias, nursing homes, Indian reservations and feeding programs for the poor because the government's grain bins are bare.

One reason for the dwindling reserves, officials say, is the aggressive use of export subsidies that have helped U.S. farmers sell wheat, flour and other goods at bargain prices around the world.

"The victims of the new policy are the school lunches, the elderly nutrition programs and the charities — those without powerful lobbies to defend their cause," said Rep. Bob Wise, D-W.Va., who chairs the House Government Operations subcommittee on agriculture.

Advocates of the Export Enhancement Program argue that it has little effect on the school situation because the cafeterias get government flour and foreign countries are buying privately owned wheat. Also, they note, the bonus flour amounts to just a fraction of the wheat being exported.

"To that I simply say: sell it to the American taxpayers. Ask them if they would prefer to spend their money on helping foreign consumers or American school children," Wise said Thursday at a hearing by his panel.

The Agriculture Department is spending $1.2 billion this year on the Export Enhancement Program, much of it to subsidize wheat sales abroad. "Bonus" flour donations, on the other hand, will total $22 million.

Schools and other feeding programs also receive wheat and other commodities as "entitlements," based on how many meals or individuals are served.

Although flour will still be available as an entitlement next year, school officials argue that their budgets will be stretched thin by the loss of the bonus flour.

"The loss of bonus commodity flour will have a disastrous economic impact on the child nutrition programs within the state of West Virginia," Wade R. Leech, director of food service for Wood County Schools in Parkersburg, W.Va., said at the hearing.

Leech said it would result in "a necessary raise in prices charged to students for school breakfast and lunch."

He said that with every 10-cent increase in price, participation falls by 10 percent, "therefore depriving more students from partaking in a nutritious lunch."

Rep. William H. Zeliff Jr., R-N.H., agreed that schools cannot suddenly absorb the entire cost of replacing the bonus flour.

National park concessionaires said to be raking in profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business seemed good at the Mount Vernon Inn outside the nation's capital. One year the restaurant earned $4.3 million — thanks in part to its landlord, who charged only $115 a month in rent.

A busy art studio in California sold $2 million in artwork the same year and did even better, paying $265 to use six buildings all year.

Nothing wrong with cheap rent. But this time the landlord is the U.S. government. And some members of Congress wondered Thursday why Uncle Sam has been so generous.

Government investigators said that concessionaires — such as those who run the Mount Vernon Inn near George Washington's estate and the art studio at Yosemite National Park — have benefited for years by using government-owned buildings and facilities for low, or no, rent.

Investigators from the General Accounting Office told a House hearing Thursday that the government owns more than 1,400 facilities in parks and federal recreational lands, from luxury hotels and restaurants to horse corrals, cabins and maintenance sheds.

Of 31 concession contracts examined, in most cases concessionaires paid little or no money to use the government-owned facilities, the investigators said.

Officials of the U.S. Park Service conceded the agency does not even know exactly how many buildings and facilities it provides to park concessionaires. Nor can it estimate what the fair market value of the buildings might be to gauge the fairness of the "user fees" it charges.

"We have recognized problems in this area," John Davis, an associate director of the U.S. Park Service, told the House Government Operations environment subcommittee.

Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla. and the panel's chairman, listed examples gathered by his staff and investigators from the GAO in which concessionaires appear to be running prosperous businesses but paying next to nothing to use the facilities, ranging from hotels to boat houses.

It was the latest in a series of criticisms by lawmakers of the Interior Department's handling of concessions at federal parks.

Your Birthday

May 23, 1992

You could be rather fortunate in the year ahead in endeavors you either mastermind or personally direct. If your talents urge you to be up front, don't relegate yourself to the rear.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends might do things for you today just because you're you. However, if you bring others into the picture, your benefactors may back off. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In a commercial arrangement, try to do all the pioneering work today, but don't be too hasty about closing the deal. Poor timing could puncture your profits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Unless you have a firm grip on the tiller today, you could find that the control of an important situation is slipping out of your hands. It might be very difficult to get it back.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take pains to treat co-workers with kid gloves today. Disagreements could go unresolved until next week or, perhaps, even a bit longer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you are going to take any risks today, take them on your own abilities and not on those of others about whom you know little. Betting blindly is a no-no.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone you're closely associated with might try to take credit today for something you've done. But, as long as you've accomplished what you've set out to do, don't make a big deal of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you attempt to take on more than you can comfortably manage today, your effectiveness will be severely diminished. All your endeavors could suffer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're required to make a choice about doing something today with people you like or with those you feel obligated to, choose the former. It may be impossible to please the latter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to prove your self-sufficiency today, you might reject the assistance of competent helpers. Later, you could regret your decision.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a keen observer today, but it might be wise to keep your observations to yourself, especially if you spot negative tendencies in individuals with whom you'll be involved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is one of those days where unrectified mistakes are apt to be quickly compounded. Don't let things get out of hand where friends and finances are concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Individuals who are most pertinent to your present aims could be the ones you isolate today through some type of behavioral infraction. For your own benefit, be careful how you deal with others.

General of the Armies

Gen. John J. Pershing, the only living American to have held the rank of General of the Armies, was authorized to prescribe his own U.S. insignia — but he never wore more than four stars. The rank was established by Congress for George Washington in 1799; but he wasn't promoted to it until a joint resolution of Congress was approved by President Ford on Oct. 19, 1976.

Class A baseball playoffs...

Baird ends Bulldogs' season

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

ABILENE — Baird pitcher Tom Whitecotton drew praise from Ira coach Lynn Cauley, following the Bears' 11-1 bi-district Class A baseball playoff victory over the Bulldogs Thursday.

"He did a great job," Cauley exclaimed. "He had good movement on his fastball and he mixed his pitches up well.

"He made some of us look downright foolish."

Whitecotton went the distance giving up three hits and two walks as Baird advanced to the area round of post-season play. The Bears will face Hedley at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Vernon as the Class A playoffs continue.

Baird's offense made itself heard in Thursday's battle, as well, hammering Ira pitchers Jason Hartley and Wyatt webster for 12 hits, including a back-breaking two-run home run by Calvin Joy that gave BHS a 7-1 advantage in the fourth frame.

Ira drew first blood when Kory Clark, who reached on an infield hit, walked in on a free pass to Mike Hughes in the bottom of the first.

Baird answered with a run in the top of the second on a Whitecotton single, two walks and a fielders' choice from Steven Kirkland.

The Bulldogs avoided further trouble when Odom Scott ground into an inning ending double play.

Whitecotton took command of the game, however, in the last of the second and only one Ira base runner, Chris Haynes in the sixth, got past second base from that point on.

The Baird senior, 5-1 on the season, finished the game with a dozen strikeouts.

"We haven't seen a pitcher of his caliber all year," said Cauley. "But I though we played our best game of the year defensively,

"Baird got the hits, we didn't."

"I couldn't be prouder of our team," the IHS coach continued. "We only have one player who's ever played any organized baseball, and for them to make the playoffs the first season of baseball at Ira was just beyond our expectations."

"I think this bunch has started the foundation for a winning tradition in baseball at Ira High School."

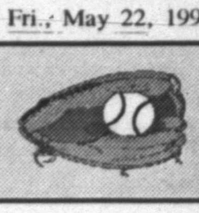

The Bulldogs wind up their initial season with a 9-6 record.

Junior Jason Hartley took the loss, going five innings and giving up eight runs, nine hits and eight walks.

Cavaliers slaughter Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Unlike the Chicago Bulls, the Cleveland Cavaliers were true to form.

"If we play a poor game, we come back strong the next time," Cleveland coach Lenny Wilkens said Thursday night after the Cavaliers silenced their critics and the defending champion Bulls 107-81 to even the best-of-7 playoff at one game each.

"I never sat through an exhibition of basketball like that in my life," said Bulls coach Phil Jackson, somewhat unable to fathom the devastation brought upon his team.

"It was 8-2 and then 10-2 and we thought we could come back and play through it," said Scottie Pippen. "But it never happened."

Actually, the Bulls fell behind 11-2, and that was as close as they would come all night.

Led by Brad Daugherty with 28 points and Mark Price with 23, the Cavaliers, who lost the opener 103-89 Tuesday night, were ahead 20-4 before Pippen scored the Bulls first field goal with 3:46 left in the quarter.

A 10-0 run to open the second quarter, with Price hitting two 3-pointers, gave the Cavaliers a 40-14 lead. At that point, Price had as many points as the Bulls.

In the first two periods, the defending NBA champion Bulls were 12 of 43 from the field, 27.9 percent, and the Cavaliers 21 of 33 for 63.6 percent.

"The first half was the best half we played all year," Price said.

The Bulls, missing their first 13 shots of the game, could never get closer than 19 points and once trailed by 35 points.

"It was a lackluster effort on our part and a stellar effort on their part," said Jackson. "My congratulations to the Cleveland coaching staff for the job they did in getting their players ready for the game."

Wilkens had no doubts about his team coming back.

"I was confident we'd come out and play harder and better and with a lot more intensity than we did in the first game," said Wilkens. "We were all unhappy with that performance."

The series shifts to Cleveland for games Saturday and Monday afternoons, with the fifth game scheduled in Chicago next Wednesday night.

Michael Jordan led the Bulls with 20 points, with reserves B.J. Armstrong scoring 16 and Stacey King 13. Pippen had 11. King was one of the replacements for center Bill Cartwright, who left the game in the first quarter with a strained back.

Jordan, who missed his first six shots and was 7 of 22 from the field, had a sore throat and left immediately after the game, instead issuing a statement.

"We have confidence in ourselves and we'll be ready for them," the statement said.

Boosters plan awards celebration

Snyder High School booster club members will sponsor their All-Sports Celebration Saturday at Snyder Country Club.

The theme for the event will be Hawaiian. Swimming at the club pool begins at 5:30 p.m. followed at 6:30 p.m. by a hamburger supper.

The awards portion of the evening is slated to begin at approximately 7 p.m. and a dance, from 8 p.m. to midnight, will wind up the festivities.

Awards for athletes in football, volleyball, tennis, basketball, track, golf, cross-country and baseball will be presented.

Angels injured in bus accident

DEPTFORD TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Members of the California Angels credit a tree-lined highway for sparing them serious injury when their chartered bus careened out of control on the New Jersey Turnpike.

The bus slid off the roadway toward a 15-foot embankment, eventually landing on its side. It rested precariously against trees after snapping branches.

"What was holding it up was one or two trees," said third base coach John Wathan, who was not seriously hurt. "Otherwise, it would have careened down about 15 or 20 more feet and rolled over once or twice."

Twelve team members, including manager Buck Rodgers, were injured. Rodgers, who broke a rib, his left knee and elbow, and three others remained hospitalized today.

The accident early Thursday jolted the team, which was traveling from a loss to the New York Yankees to a weekend series with the Baltimore Orioles.

"It could have been a lot worse," said Hall of Famer Rod Carew, a hitting instructor with the team who was among the 12 passengers injured. "I'm surprised that more of us didn't get hurt."

Carew left Underwood-Memorial Hospital in Woodbury carrying a neck brace. He said he suffered a whiplash injury and bruised his knee.

Denver City edges Iowa Park, 3-2

Denver City catcher Manuel Tovar broke a 2-2 tie in the third inning with a solo homer at Moffett Field Thursday that lifted the Mustangs to a 3-2 bi-district baseball win.

The Ponies move to 17-6 on the season and will take on the Canyon-Friona bi-district winner in the area round of the 3A playoffs.

Each team scored twice in the first inning, Denver City's coming on Brad Gilbert's double, an RBI rap from Ralph Rodriguez and winning pitcher Alfonso Hurtado's ground out that scored Rodriguez.

Hurtado allowed six hits in six innings of work. Reliever Patrick Sturdivant earned the save pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh.

Moffett Field will be the site of today's Loraine-Eula Class A bi-district tilt.

The Bulldogs come in with a 10-2 record on the year and carry the District 3 crown. They are hosting District 4 runner-up Eula.

Game time is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

In other playoff action today, District 2-4A champion Frenship will tangle with District 3 runner-up Big Spring in a 6 p.m. bi-district game at Chaparral Stadium in Lubbock. The Tigers and the Steers were to have played Thursday but were rained out.

Also, District 2-4A runner-up Lamesa takes on Sweetwater today at 5 p.m. at Howard College in Big Spring.

Bullpen drops 5-1 advantage

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Three times is no longer a charm. For Nolan Ryan, it's a curse.

Ryan left his relievers a lead once again Thursday night, and for the third straight time, his bullpen blew it.

Mike Macfarlane hit a three-run homer off Jeff Russell in the ninth as the Royals ruined Ryan's bid for his first victory of the season with a 7-5 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Ryan gave up just one hit and left the game with a 5-1 lead after seven innings. He had retired the final 18 batters.

Ryan, who has never gone this deep into a season without winning a game, is stuck on career victory No. 314. His last victory was Sept. 25 against Seattle.

"It's a heck of a shame that Nolan's still stuck on that number," Russell said. "Somebody's got a hex on him. We've got to work extra hard to get him the win."

PUBLIC NOTICE

For the past two years, Anhydrous Ammonia has been used in the chemical treatment process at the W.S. Bigham Water Treatment Plant in Snyder, Texas. Anhydrous Ammonia is used for the reduction of Trihalomethanes which occur when free residual chlorination comes in direct contact with organic matter naturally present in our lake. Every city in Texas with a population over 10,000 residents who operates a public water supply is required by the Texas Water Commission to treat for the reduction of Trihalomethanes.

Recently, we have received calls from some of our customers with complaints of a definite change in the taste and odor of their water. The complaints have ranged from an earthy taste and odor to a sewer taste and odor. Well in advance of the start date for the usage of this chemical two years ago, a series of public notices were published in our local newspaper explaining our intentions to begin utilization of this chemical. The notification contained information which we felt our customers should be made aware of. Based on the recent rise in customer complaints, we feel it is necessary to republish this information.

Anhydrous Ammonia is fed in conjunction with chlorine for the purpose of eliminating any bacteria, whether harmful or not, that could be present in our water. In years past, we have only been required to treat with chlorine as a means of disinfection. It is the belief of our Regualatory Agencies that by adding Anhydrous Ammonia to the disinfection process, the chemical reaction which occurs between these two chemicals creates a longer disinfection process thus assuring that our water is exposed to a means of disinfection for a longer period of time. The addition of this chemical is in no way harmful to our customers although it does create a problem with the taste of your water. Unfortunately, this chemical gives water an earthy taste. As most people associate their drinking water as being odorless, and tasteless, as was the case with our water before the additon of Anhydrous Ammonia. It is logical for one to suspect that something may possibly be wrong with their water if an odor or taste is detected. Please be assured that your drinking water is tested hourly here at the water plant, and a monthly sampling is collected throughout the City and tested by the Texas Water Commission. For the past nine years, all of our samples have surpassed the minimum requirements set forth by our Regulatory Agencies. The taste and odor, although present year round, is more noticeable during the summer months. This stems from the fact that during warmer weather the temperature of the water coming in from the lake rises. As warm water intensifies odors, the taste is more detectable during the summer months.

Another problem associated with Anhydrous Ammonia relates to owners of tropical fish. Exposure of tropical fish to water containing Anhydrous Ammonia is unadvisable as these fish cannot tolerate this chemical. We strongly advise tropical fish owners to consult their pet store as chemicals are available to remove Anhydrous Ammonia from the water, or either utilize a distilled water.

Our water plant personnel are required by both the Environmental Protection Agency and the Texas Water Commission to be fully trained and licensed in the production of drinking water. All of our personnel either meets or exceeds the licenses required by these agencies. It is ourgoal to produce a quality water that not only meets the requirements set forth by these agencies, but to exceed them. Please be assured that the safe production of your drinking water is not only a law, but a dedication that each of our water plant operators maintain.

If you have any questions concerning Anhydrous Ammonia or ever suspect that there may be something wrong with your drinking water, please do not hesitate to contact the W.S. Bigham Water Treatment Plant at 573-3782 or Customer Service at City Hall at 573-4969.

Three decades of Carson show ends

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The studio audience laughed, then cried. So did Johnny Carson.

Thursday night was the end, as America knows it, of three decades of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

He ends his reign as the undisputed king of late-night TV tonight, but he will not have guests on the finale and the show will be taped before an invitation-only audience of family members and celebrities.

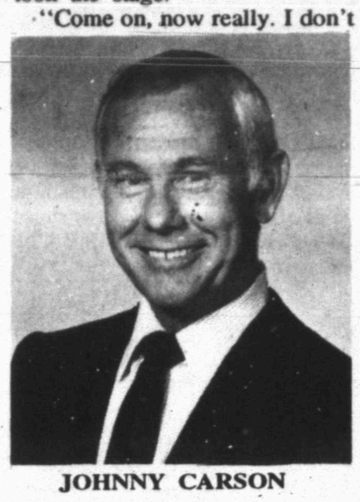

On Thursday, despite a numbing avalanche of media hype, Carson was somehow able to sit back and come through with one of his greatest shows.

It was Carson's last chance to thump his double-erasered pencil in the presence of celebrity guests — Williams and Bette Midler were the last ones — and a public audience.

The finale will include a monologue and clips of old shows, as well as farewells from sidekick Ed McMahon, bandleader Doc Severinsen and executive producer Fred de Cordova.

Fans at Thursday's show, some of whom camped out on the sidewalk outside the studio to get tickets, ignored Carson's countless pleas to stop applauding as he took the stage.

"Come on, now really. I don't

think I can stand any more of this," he said, clearly embarrassed.

It was two minutes and 15 seconds before the crowd in NBC's Studio One settled down and Carson began his trademark monologue, getting in one last swipe at Vice President Dan Quayle's controversial criticism of the single motherhood portrayed on the CBS show "Murphy Brown."

"Now he's got a beef with 'Hee-Haw,'" Carson said of Quayle. "He claims that when Minnie Pearl wears that price tag on her hat, it encourages prostitution."

"It's almost over," he said. "You know what I feel like? A chicken. And the Colonel is whipping up 11 herbs and spices."

Things turned sentimental with Midler, one of Carson's favorite entertainers.

Carson, 66, allowed himself a rare indulgence: Seated behind the desk known to millions, he and Midler launched into an impromptu duet of "Here's That Rainy Day," one of Carson's favorite songs.

Midler belted out a tune with Severinsen's band, warbled a letter she had written titled "Dear Mr. Carson," and ended the show by lovingly singing "One More For My Baby" to a misty-eyed Carson.

Many in the audience were crying, too. His staff was in tears.

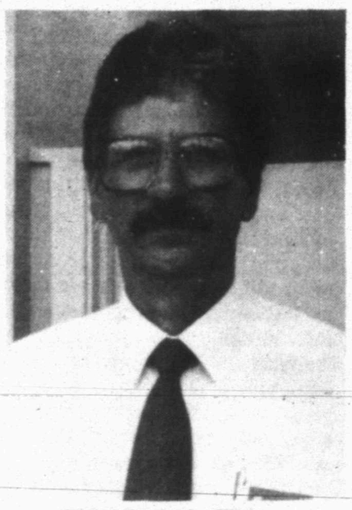

Before the show, Todd Schwartz, one of about 100 fans who camped outside to get a ticket, said: "The truth is that Johnny is really a living legend. We're witnessing the passing of an era."

Carson has said he wanted his last shows void of indulgent sentimentality.

"He wants very much to keep the last shows from being self-serving," de Cordova said recently. "It's an enormous record of contentment. It's been first class."

Carson's ratings were never seriously threatened, even by such popular newcomers as Arsenio Hall and Dennis Miller, who have their own late-night talk shows.

Jay Leno, who has been Carson's permanent guest host for several years, takes over as host on Monday night.

RON RAMSAIER

Furr's has new manager

Ron Ramsaier, a 16-year veteran with Furr's supermarket, has been named manager of the Furr's store in Snyder.

Ramsaier replaces Duane Mozingo who has become store manager in Los Alamos, N.M. Monzingo served as manager of the Snyder store since July 5, 1989.

A native of Abilene, Ramsaier comes to Snyder from Midland. He has also served as store manager in Abilene and San Angelo.

Ramsaier also served as a district manager for Furr's prior to the March, 1991 company reorganization. At one time, the Snyder store was in the district under his supervision.

Prior to joining Furr's, Ramsaier was a sales representative for Scott Paper Co. Several years ago, he was active in the Lions Club and Toastmasters. He and his wife have two daughters, ages 16 and 21.

Ramsaier said no major changes are expected since the store was recently remodeled.

Police work theft case

Snyder police began an investigation into a theft and worked two traffic accidents Thursday.

At 12:50 p.m., police were notified that an air compressor had been stolen from a residence in the 2500 block of Avenue I. Upon investigation, officers were able to trace the compressor to another residence in the 3000 block of Avenue J, approximately six blocks away.

Police obtained a search warrant to enter the Avenue J residence and recovered the compressor. No one was at the residence at the time, and no arrests have been made. An offense report for Class A theft has been filed, and the case is under investigation.

Also at 12:50 p.m. Thursday, officers took a report of Class B criminal mischief in reference to a windshield being broken out of a 1970 pickup in the 1200 block of 21st Street.

Police worked a two-vehicle mishap at 3:41 p.m. in the 3500 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1989 Mercury driven by Lillian Clarkson of Rt. 1 and a 1973 Ford driven by Cynthia Neves of 3725 Avondale.

At 6:37 p.m., police investigated a traffic accident in the 2600 block of 37th Street. Involved were a 1985 GMC pickup driven by German DePaz of 3118 Ave. T and a 1985 Dodge driven by Cody Shields of 2202 40th St.

Smoking at lowest level in 37 years

ATLANTA (AP) — Americans are extinguishing their cigarettes in record numbers, leading federal health officials to predict the nation will meet its health objective on smoking by the year 2000.

The Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday that 25.5 percent of Americans smoked in 1990, the lowest level in 37 years. 1990 is the latest year for which figures are available.

If smoking continues to fall at a rate of 1.1 percentage points a year — as it has since 1987 — the country will reach its goal of 15 percent within eight years, the CDC said.

"This tells us that Americans are responding perhaps in even greater numbers to the public health education campaign that's occurring," said Gary Giovino, the CDC's chief smoking epidemiologist. "An awareness of the health consequences, the increased cost of cigarettes and the declining social acceptance all contributed to this."

The Atlanta-based CDC surveyed 40,666 people in 1990.

Smoking was most prevalent among American Indians (38.1 percent); high school dropouts (31.8 percent); and people ages 25 to 44 (29.7 percent).

It was least common among people over 75 (6.5 percent) and college graduates (13.5 percent).

"We have reason to believe that this innovation of not smoking will diffuse throughout society," Giovino said.

Some of the sharpest declines occurred among blacks and women.

For the first time, blacks and whites smoked at about the same rate — 26.2 percent for blacks and 25.8 percent for whites.

Blacks have smoked at higher rates — up to 8 percentage points higher — since the CDC began measuring smoking in 1955. In 1965, 43 percent of blacks smoked.

From 1965 through 1985, 39 percent to 45 percent of women ages 20 to 24 with high school educations or less smoked. In 1990, the percentage dropped to 33.4.

The average cost of cigarettes jumped from 23 cents a pack in 1955, when 42 percent of all Americans smoked, to $1.74 last year. The average smoker puffs 19.1 cigarettes a day.

Pentagon eases battle-coverage guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, concluding an eight-month negotiation with major news organizations, is adopting new guidelines to foster freer and more open battlefield reporting of combat involving U.S. forces.

Defense officials and news executives agreed on nine principles regarding combat news coverage, but could not agree on a policy concerning military review of news material.

The war-coverage principles were developed after journalists expressed dismay over rules that restricted or delayed coverage of the Persian Gulf War.

"I have directed that those nine principles be made part of Defense Department policy," Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said in a statement Thursday.

Representing the news media group — 20 organizations — Louis D. Boccardi, president of The Associated Press, said in a statement:

"It is the consensus of our group that the guidelines offer the promise of the kind of coverage the citizens of a democracy are entitled to have, while they also recognize the need for security ground rules in combat zones.

"We began this effort because what unfolded in the Persian Gulf was unacceptable in many ways," Boccardi said. "Despite the appearance of a flood of coverage, the restrictions on reporting were severe, well beyond the undisputed need for military security."

Cheney agreed in September to seek common ground on methods that would improve combat coverage.

The guidelines unveiled Thursday establish "open and independent reporting" as the principal means of covering U.S. combat operations. They restrict the use of pools of journalists to report to the entire press corps. The Pentagon imposed pool coverage as the principal means of covering the Gulf War.

The new guidelines require reporters to abide by military security regulations and state that disregard of the rules could lead to a reporter's expulsion from the combat zone.

They commit the Pentagon to permit reporters access to all large military units and to give journalists the means to transmit news reports. Liaison officers are forbidden to intervene in the reporting process.

The guidelines have been endorsed by the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the Radio and Television News Directors Association, as well as by the chiefs of many major newspapers and broadcasters.

Area man's case to be reviewed

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has ordered a lower court to review the case of a Scurry County man convicted of aggravated sexual assault and indecency with a child.

Kenneth Milton Bailey was sentenced to 40 years in prison after pleading guilty to the sexual assault of a 14-year-old girl in December of 1989. He was sentenced to 10 years on the indecency charge.

Bailey filed a motion for a new trial, claiming jury misconduct during juror's deliberations on his punishment.

Testimony at a hearing on Bailey's motion showed that a jury member argued against probation because his sister suffered an "everlasting effect" from being sexually abused as a child.

The judge, however, refused to consider the testimony and denied the motion for a new trial.

Bailey's conviction was affirmed by the Eastland Court of Appeals in January, which said the judge did not err in refusing to hear the testimony.

The criminal appeals court disagreed, however, and remanded the case to the Eastland court for further consideration.

Mexico's birth defect rate jumps same time as Texas'

MISSION, Texas (AP) — Two cities on different sides of the border seem to be experiencing the same problem with an unusually high rate of brain and spinal birth defects, a Texas health official says.

The rare disorders, known as neural tube defects (NTDs), began occurring in Brownsville, Texas, and Matamoros, Mexico, in 1989.

U.S. officials studying the Texas birth defects already knew of the high rate in Matamoros.

But during a meeting with Mexican health officials in Mexico City Thursday, they learned the increases began at the same time in both cities, said Dr. Dennis Perrotta, director of epidemiology for the Texas Department of Health.

"The increase occurred at the same time and to the same degree," Perrotta said Thursday.

The new data will be included in a joint state-federal study of the clusters in Brownsville and surrounding Cameron County. A report is due by mid-July, Perrotta said.

But Health Commissioner David Smith warned the report will only represent the first phase of a long-term study. Even when the studies are done, there may be no answers, he said.

"The Centers for Disease Control have looked at a number of (cluster) cases," Smith said. "In almost every case they haven't been able to find a direct cause and effect."

Medical investigators have been studying the problem since last spring when they learned three anencephalic babies had been born at a Brownsville hospital during a 36-hour period.

Summer school set together with the first and second semester averages of the 1991-92 school year and divided by three. If the average is a passing grade, the student will be promoted to the next grade.

The building principal will hold the student's final report card and permanent record until the student completes summer school. At that time, the average will be computed and the student will be promoted or retained.

Students who failed to show mastery on the TAAS reading, mathematics or writing test may wish to attend summer school in order to improve their chances of passing when the test is administered again.

Another area of summer school instruction is designed for the bilingual child in grades kindergarten through first grade. Dates for these classes are June 15 through Aug. 7. Classes will be held from 8:15 a.m. until noon.

If a child attended the 1991-92 Snyder ISD four-year-old program, he or she is eligible to attend summer kindergarten. If a child attended the SISD kindergarten program, the child is eligible to attend first grade.

Also, a bilingual child who attended first grade this year but who still needs extra help may attend the summer session.

A bus will pick up bilingual students at their homes and return them at the end of each session. If a student is absent from class five times, he or she will be dropped from the roll.

Parents are urged to enroll their students in summer school if there is a need for remediation. A parent letter requesting permission for the child to be enrolled in summer school has been sent home with elementary students. It is important that parents complete the accompanying form and return it to their present campus promptly.

Letters for junior high school students will be sent out with the final report card. Letters from high school recommending students for summer school have been mailed.

For further information, call Margaret Presswood at 573-9364.

No contest plea entered in sexual assault case

A former Ira girls' basketball coach pled no contest last week in 132nd District Court on a charge of sexual assault. Sentencing in the case is pending.

Steven Ray Howard, 33, was indicted by a Scurry County grand jury in October of 1991 for the April 30, 1991 sexual assault of a 16-year-old student. Howard was Ira girls' basketball coach at the time of the alleged incident, and was employed as a physical education teacher when the charge was brought against him in September.

Howard was suspended from his duties at the school following report of the incident.

Greyhound executives to meet shareholders

DALLAS (AP) — Nearly seven months after leaving bankruptcy, Greyhound Lines Inc. is still trying to reorganize — not finances but its reputation.

Improving its safety record, customer and worker relations, even cleaning up bus stations are Greyhound's priorities now, president and chief executive Frank Schmieder said in preparation for today's stockholders meeting, the company's first since 1987.

"There's no excuse for a dirty restroom, a dirty bus," Schmieder said in an interview this week. "People say, 'Well, what about accidents?' The answer is we want none. That's an incredible standard but that's what we're going to try to hold ourselves to."

Schmieder joined Dallas-based Greyhound from merchant banker Mason Best Co. in 1989. He became chief executive a year ago after creditors urged the departure of Fred Currey, who took Greyhound private in a leveraged buyout in 1987.

Since Greyhound emerged from bankruptcy in October, Schmieder said he has been studying other travel and service companies for profitable ideas.

"I read about one company that found if they could retain about 5 percent of their (new) customers, their profit would double," he said. "We started talking about that around here. About 30 percent of all our customers say they have never traveled with us before."

Last year, the company cut out regional boundaries and layers of managers. It used some of the savings to hire 250 additional customer service workers for bus stations.

Bus travel may never revisit the glory days it enjoyed before air travel became so common. But Schmieder said such service improvements will boost the company's competitiveness with airlines and Amtrak.

Greyhound's reputation was tarnished most severely by the strike of its drivers that began in March 1990. It initially prompted violence on some routes and bus stations and later drove the company into Chapter 11.

Greyhound hired replacement drivers who critics charged were less experienced and less cautious.

The company and the Amalgamated Transit Union unit that represents the striking drivers have talked several times this year about ending the dispute. But differences remain over how the strikers should be reinstated.

Since early March, when the union adopted a stance that members could return to the company, Greyhound has rehired 106 as vacancies have become available.

The union and the National Labor Relations Board continue to pursue an unfair labor practices complaint against the company. The case was split in two this spring, with one on the large issues that separate the parties and the other on specific complaints filed by striking drivers after the walkout began.

Also this spring, Greyhound made a deal with federal safety regulators to improve driver training.

Texas man executed for hiring hitman to murder his wife

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas death row inmate Robert Black, acting cheerful and joking with friends and reporters, was executed early today for hiring a hitman through an ad in Soldier of Fortune magazine to kill his wife.

Black, 45, became the second condemned Texas man to receive lethal injection this week. Early Wednesday, Jesus Romero, 27, was executed for the rape-slaying of a 15-year-old Rio Grande Valley girl.

Black's death brought to 50 the number of executions in Texas since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982. Eight of those have occurred this year. The totals by far are the highest in the nation.

As reporters, three family members and his attorney entered the death chamber, Black was jovial and greeted those he knew by name.

"I look stretched out like a cooked goose," he said from the death chamber gurney.

Then he began reciting the poem "High Flight," which includes verses that glorify a pilot's thoughts of freedom as he soars through the air.

"I have slipped the surly bonds of earth," he said as the lethal drugs began. When he reached the line, "And done a hundred things you have not thought of," he gasped about four times and stopped breathing.

He was declared dead at 12:20 a.m. CDT, five minutes after the drugs began flowing into his arms.

The execution came after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected by a 6-3 vote appeals from Black's attorneys that the former Marine captain should be spared from death because of post traumatic stress syndrome brought on by his combat service in Vietnam. The issue of psychological problems never surfaced in his trial.

Black was convicted of hiring hitman John Wayne Hearn to kill his wife, Sandra, at their Bryan home Feb. 21, 1985.

East Side will present teen lifestyles lectures

Dr. Carley Dodd from Abilene Christian University will be the guest speaker Sunday, May 31, at East Side Church of Christ.

The first lecture begins at 9:30 a.m. and will deal primarily with teenage sexuality. During the worship hour, Dr. Dodd will discuss the subject of adolescent substance abuse. The concluding lecture, at 1:30 p.m., will focus on the teenager's thoughts about mom and dad, church, friends, rock music, self-image, God, faith and other important topics.

Dodd is the dean of the graduate school and professor of communications at ACU. He has authored or co-authored seven books and serves as a speaker, lecturer and consultant for churches and other organizations, including several Fortune 500 companies. He received the Teacher of the Year award at ACU in 1985.

In recent years, he has done extensive research among teenagers who go to church regularly to learn more about their lifestyles and attitudes on current issues.

Dodd and co-authors, David Lewis and Darryl Tippens, have published two books on their findings, and another another one will be released soon.

Churches are planning annual Spring Bazaar

The Joint Women's Group of Grace Lutheran and St. John's Episcopal Churches of Snyder will be having its fourth annual Spring Bazaar on Saturday, June 6, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church, 5500 College Avenue (Western Texas College road, south of Cogdell Memorial Hospital.)

Activities are being planned by the Joint Women's, Men's and Youth groups.

The Men's Group will feature barbecue sandwiches, grilled sausage, potato salad and baked goods.

The Youth Group will be selling beverages. The Women's Group will feature a rummage sale, craft room and drawings. Some of the craft items include wooden heart wreaths, long-spinning tops, lawn decorations and soft sculpture. The drawings will include a full-size quilt, lap quilt and $50 savings bond.

The tickets for the drawings are available from members of the congregations or at the bazaar. The drawings will take place at 5 p.m. and winners do not need to be present.

All the proceeds will be used by the churches for various activities.

The Joint Women's Group meets every Tuesday at 6:30 a.m. at Grace Lutheran Church for crafting, fellowship and Bible study. All women are invited to attend.

Church services each Sunday are at 8:30 a.m. at Grace Lutheran and 10:45 a.m. at St. John's.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

MEAT AND MILK NOT TO BE EATEN AT THE SAME MEAL!

THREE TIMES THE BIBLE SPECIFICALLY STATES "THOU SHALT NOT SEETHE (BOIL) A KID IN HIS MOTHER'S MILK." (EXODUS 23:19, EXODUS 34:26, DEUT. 14:21). THIS WAS GOD'S LAW LAID DOWN TO ISRAEL BY MOSES AND, TO THIS DAY, THE ORTHODOX HAVE NO MEAT AND MILK AT THE SAME MEAL. MANY PEOPLE THINK THIS WAS A DIETARY LAW—THAT MILK AND MEAT TOGETHER WOULDN'T DIGEST WELL, ESPECIALLY IN THE HOT DESERT CLIMATE—WHICH IS NONSENSE! MILK AND MEAT, BOTH HIGH PROTEIN FOODS, DIGEST AS EASILY TOGETHER AS THEY DO APART—HOT WEATHER OR COLD...BUT THERE WAS A GOOD REASON, IN MOSES' EYES, FOR THIS LAW—VERY UNDERSTANDABLE WHEN WE EXAMINE A CUSTOM OF THE IDOL WORSHIPPERS WITH WHOM THE ISRAELITES CAME INTO CONTACT IN THEIR DAILY LIVING....

MOSES CONSTANTLY ADMONISHED HIS PEOPLE TO STAY PURE IN GOD'S EYES—TO HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH HEATHEN IDOLATERS. THE YOUNG MEN WERE FORBIDDEN TO "GO WITH THE DAUGHTERS OF BAAL", WHICH MANY OF THEM DID! MOSES COULD FORSEE THE DANGER OF HIS YOUNG NATION DISAPPEARING FROM EARTH, NOT BY WAR, BUT BY THE SIMPLE PROCESS OF INTER-MARRIAGE—SO HE ORDERED ISRAEL TO AVOID ALL CUSTOMS OF THEIR HEATHEN NEIGHBORS TO FORESTALL ANY OF THEIR WAYS CREEPING INTO THE LIVES OF HIS PEOPLE. JUST AS ISRAELITES BROUGHT SACRIFICES TO GOD'S ALTAR, SO DID THE HEATHEN TO THEIR IDOLS—A POPULAR OFFERING WAS A TASTY DISH OF BOILED YOUNG KID OR LAMB IN ITS MOTHER'S MILK (OR ANY MILK FOR THAT MATTER). THE MEAT JUICE AND THE MILK BOILED INTO A SAVORY SAUCE SO DELICIOUS THAT THE PRIESTS AND TEMPLE PROSTITUTES COULD HARDLY WAIT TO GRAB AND EAT IT BEFORE THE DONOR, WHO HAD BROUGHT IT, LEFT THE TEMPLE!

NEVER A DAY WENT BY THAT SOME HEATHEN FAMILY DIDN'T TURN UP AT THE TEMPLE WITH THIS DELECTABLE DISH, CONVINCED THEIR GODS WOULD ENJOY IT AND SO SMILE DOWN ON THEM WITH FAVOR! IS IT ANY WONDER, THEN, THAT MOSES ORDERED HIS PEOPLE TO HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH THIS DISH AT ANY TIME—EVER! THE IDEA THAT SOME ISRAELITE MIGHT OFFER TO GOD THE SAME THING THAT WAS GIVEN TO A STONE IDOL WAS UNTHINKABLE! YE SHALL NOT DO AS THE HEATHEN DO, WAS THE ORDER OF THE DAY SO THAT ISRAEL MIGHT CONTINUE.."A PECULIAR (SPECIAL) PEOPLE...ABOVE ALL THE NATIONS THAT ARE UPON THE EARTH". (DEUT. 14:2)

NEXT WEEK: GIANTS THEN AND NOW!
