ON THIS

The Texas Transcontinental Trail was elected as the name of the highway from Dallas and Fort Worth to Lubbock by way of Breckenridge, Albany, Stamford, Spur, Crosbyton, Ball, Lorenzo, and Idalou, when forty-one members of the executive committee of the highway association met in Stamford Wednesday afternoon, according to W. K. Dickinson, chairman of the highway committee of the Chamber of Commerce who returned here late last night from Stamford.

The highway association was formed at Spur February 17 when delegates from each of the towns between Dallas and Lubbock were present. The route is the old Fort Worth, Lubbock, Russell trail which was organized in 1914.

The object of the association at this time is to work in close cooperation with officials of the various counties along the route, to encourage the hard surfacing of the entire line from north Texas to the heart of the Plains and to give the highway such publicity and advertising as will be necessary to secure the greatest amount of tourist and commercial travel between these two points over the route. This route is the shortest line between Lubbock and Fort Worth and Dallas.

The association expects the major part of the transcontinental traffic between Florida and California over this route when the highway has been hard surfaced and well advertised. The route between Dallas and Lubbock will be known locally as the Plains Short Line. The name "Dallas, Fort Worth, Lubbock Highway" will also appear on the advertising booklets which will be printed in the next few weeks, according to action of the executive committee, Dickinson said.

Stamford was selected for headquarters of the highway association for the coming year at the meeting yesterday in view of the fact that the President, Col. Penick, and Secretary-Treasurer, Hamilton Wright, both live at that place. One general meeting of the highway association will be held each year at the call of the president in addition to meetings of the executive committee as often as the president may deem necessary, it was decided yesterday.

Lubbock will secure a large number of transcontinental tourists from eastern states thru Dallas, Fort Worth en route to California. These as a result of this highway. These

LEAGUE ADJOURNS WITHOUT ADMITTING GERMANY TO COUNCIL

DREAMS OF PEACE, BORN

TEST OF VITALITY

ASSOCIATION STANDS OR
FALLS BY PRESENT
CRISIS

GENEVA, Mar. 17.—The League of Nations with the departure of its leading statesmen from Geneva Wednesday night, is facing a test which may develop into a fight for its existence.

As ministers of six European countries left for home prepared to encounter domestic dissension over the league's fruitless session, they realized that adjournment of Wednesday's session marked the greatest diplomatic disappointment since the treaty of Versailles. New international problems, impairment of the dreams of European peace built at Locarno, and unlimited opportunity for the enemies of world accord were all suggested by the failure of the league meeting to accomplish the purpose for which it was called—the admittance of Germany.

The statements given when the league adjourned, by Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, Premier Briand of France, by Chancellor Luther of Germany and Foreign Minister Stresemann all pointed to the September meeting of the league and held out hope for a solution.

"If the league is able to survive the present crisis," said M. Motta, the Swiss delegate, "it will be the final test of its vitality. But if it crumbles Europe will face international chaos and despair."

Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany received in their hotel of the assembly's final action postponing Germany's admittance to the league. They had previously given out statements that Germany would not withdraw her application for league membership. Advised of the final action, the two merely shrugged their shoulders, and Luther said:

SOLD BOOZE TO SCHOOL CHILDREN; GOES TO PEN

By United News
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Mar. 17.—It will be two years in prison on the rock pile for Joseph Spano, the shoemaker and bootlegger who sold cocktails and high balls to Kansas City high school students who congregated in his shop between classes and after school.

The conviction of Spano ends what was perhaps the most sensational liquor case in Kansas City. The Italian's arrest and indictment precipitated an investigation into drinking among high school students which roused the city.

In imposing the first prison sentence of a liquor charge in this county the judge remarked that he was getting off lightly. "It should be longer," he said. "Conditions in our high schools are bad enough and I hope this will serve as a warning to bootleggers to cease serving high school students."

Phantom Sniper is Ready for Chair

By United News

Carter was on the witness stand, presumably in his own defense, for an hour Wednesday afternoon but he did everything in his power to help the prosecution, which is demanding the death penalty.

"I'm guilty of these murders," he said. "Why don't the judge sentence me to the chair and have it over with?"

John N. Baldwin, his attorney, explained it was necessary to have Carter take the stand to prove himself insane. This, however, Carter denied.

STOPS TO MARRY ON WAY TO SERVE PEN TERM OF 20 YEARS

RAY MAJORS, NEW JESSE
JAMES, HALTS LAW
FOR CUPID

RHYME WON HER

WIDOW SAW CONVICT'S VERSE IN PAPER AND FELL FOR IT

WICHITA, Kan. Mar. 17.—Ray Majors, whose prodigious criminal enterprises in the southwest rival those of the James boys of an earlier day, stopped off in Wichita Wednesday long enough to get married before resuming his journey to the state penitentiary where he may remain for twenty years.

This bit of unscheduled drama in the life of the former bank robber whose life reads like the pages of a 10 cent thriller, was caused by a five line verse, written by Majors when he was serving a sentence in the Missouri state penitentiary in December 1924.

Mrs. Clara Jane Hupp, a widow, read the verse in a Wichita paper, it follows:

"Perhaps there is some one up here in the pen,
Who still has the heart of a boy;
Perhaps you could spare him,
Perhaps you could spare him,
A bit of your Christmas joy."

It struck a responsive chord. She wrote to Majors and the correspondence continued until Majors was released. She met him in Kansas City and they planned to be married. Majors made many statements telling of his ambition to go straight.

Several other charges were pending and Majors, fearing another prison sentence, dropped out of sight.

Last winter he appeared at the home of Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, pleading for help in his ambition to go straight. Majors finally resolved to stand trial at El Dorado, Kansas, for a bank robbery committed in 1919. Allen testified in his behalf and although Majors was convicted and sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years, the judge and prosecutors said no efforts would be made after a year to prevent his obtaining a parole.

Majors was being removed to the penitentiary at Lansing when he induced the sheriff to stop off here long enough for him to be married.

MORTON COMMUNITY ORGANIZES TO GET CHIPLEY-ENOCHS RAILROAD; WILL SUBSCRIBE HALF MILLION

BY RAY B. MCKORLE
Staff Correspondent

MORTON, Tex. Mar. 17.—Voting unanimously to raise five hundred thousand dollars for the construction of a new railroad which will operate between Chipley and Enoch's citizens at a mass meeting here this week took the first active steps toward securing the new road. Representatives from several counties were present at the meeting.

John W. Blalock of the Blalock Land Company of Littlefield called the meeting to order and acted as temporary chairman. A committee appointed several days ago to investigate the proposed route and learn just what legal steps would be necessary for the organization to take made its report which was accepted. After the report it was decided to perfect a permanent organization.

With all preliminaries disposed of the chairman called upon interested parties for private opinions, and while there was a goodly number present it appeared every man and woman in the house had only one thing in view and that was get the railroad, so after a brief discussion a committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions. The committee will

Today is Bad Day for Old Brer Rabbit

All of the rabbits on two sections of the Buel Boles ranch will be driven into a wire trap by scores of Lubbock county farmers, women and children this afternoon.

The drive is scheduled to begin promptly at three o'clock and all Lubbock people who wish to attend and to participate are urged to meet at the effort Tin Shop on 13th St., at two o'clock where they will receive directions as to how to reach the place and will be given instructions in working the drive.

Wire netting fence has been placed in a corner of two sections pasture, and a small enclosure, into which the rabbits will be driven and which can be closed after the last of the frightened animals have made their entrance, has been arranged.

Gene Wofford and farmers of the Canyon community have completed preparations for the drive, and they declare that there are more rabbits on the two sections over which the drive will be made than on a tract of similar size anywhere in the county.

The drive is being made to rid the community of rabbits, which in the past have ruined much of the crops planted in that vicinity.

The Canyon school will be dismissed at three o'clock in order that the children may participate in the drive.

OFFICERS

Frank Howard, 35, died last night at 9:30 o'clock on the old Billy Howard ranch six miles north of Brownfield, of knife wounds said to have been received in an argument over a horse trade during the afternoon. Will Fisher, his brother in law, was seriously wounded, and Terry county officers were looking for a man named Collins of Ropesville, in Hockley county.

Collins, according to telephone reports from Brownfield, went to the ranch with Fisher and Howard to swap horses. The three were standing near the horse lot when the argument arose. Fisher said he saw the other two scuffling and went to separate them, at which time he too was wounded. Lence Price, another brother in law, seeing the fight, hurried over, and found Fisher and Howard bleeding and helpless on the ground, officers said.

Sheriff Ellington of Terry County made a search for Collins, and failed to find him. Deputy Sheriff George Tietzen went out after the man later in the night. No charge had been filed at Brownfield, as far as could be learned.

Dr. D. B. DuBoise and Dr. G. W. Graves of Brownfield attended the wounded men. They said, after Howard's death, that Fisher was seriously but not dangerously cut.

Howard was cut on the face, neck and body.

Afternoon Frocks of Crepe Reveal Cunning Detail

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

IT IS time to buy a new frock for Easter. Easter draws near. What shall its fabric be? Comes the answer straight from fashion's headquarters—choose some one of the durable yet sheer materials, for the thin-silk weaves are going to be very stylish this season. In the darker colors they are thoroughly practical, and navy blue particularly gives promise of widespread vogue. The last word from Paris is for black georgette frocks, for very smart occasion wear. These show little trimming except a lavish fluttering of draperies and set-on panels and multitudinous godets, shirrings and ruffings. The extreme of the mode finds expression in georgette combined with taffeta. Two outstanding favorites are navy georgette with matching taffeta, also gray.

If your preference is for other than a sheer transparent fabric, the mode recommends any of the handsome silk crepes, notably flat crepe and crepe de chine. From force of habit, the woman of conservative taste will select a dark shade, but the trend of fashion is just as surely toward joyous springtime colorings. It will take real strength of mind to resist such alluring shades as the lovely new rose tones, artistic greens, blues, yellows, mauves, grays and many more as charming which may be summed up in one word—pastel.

Fabric, however, as expensive as it is these days, is not the only expressive part of a charming springtime frock. So much depends upon the making. This season's modes abound in intriguing detail which bespeak the consummate art of the stylist. The frock in the picture is representative of the trend of the mode to create types which interpret a charmingly feminine spirit. One of the newest colors, verdigris green, is chosen for this dress of crepe Louise. The front shows gathered panels in apron effect, finished with deep band of cream lace.

Little Theater Play Changed for Next Production

Miss Ruth Pirtle has announced the change in plays to be given by the Lubbock Little Theater April 29. Instead of "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" the play will be "The Charm School," by Alice Duer Miller and Robert Milton.

Irene Townsend will play the lead, the other characters have not been definitely selected.

The cast is composed of Austin

Bevans, an automobile salesman with ideas, which David McKinsie, a law student considers impractical, though George Boyd, an expert accountant is willing to co-operate and also Jim Simpkins and Tim Eimpkins, who toil not and have never seriously considered spinning.

Homeer Johns is the guardian of Elise Benedotti, the president of the senior class at a school presided over by Miss Hays, who is loved and feared by all who know her, including her secretary, Miss Curtis. Miss Curtis is always trying to think well of the senior class, consisting of Sally Boyd, sister of George, and five girls, Muriel Doughty, Ethel Spelvin, Alix Norcier, Lillian Stafford and Madge Kent. The other character in the play is Dottie, a junior, who is always in the way.

The play is a comedy and it is the opinion of the committee that it will be exceedingly popular among the patrons of the Lubbock Little Theater.

WHY I WANT A Y. M. C. A. AT TEXAS TECH

The following article also appeared in the Intercollegian:

When the Texas Technological College first opened its doors for students on October 1, 1925, my first impression was that the student body was made up of a rather large number of units floating around in a detached way, with comparatively little to hold them together except the classroom activities. I felt at once the need of some agency to bind the group together. There were practically one thousand students in the group during the first month. This, so far as we knew, was a record-breaking number for the first year of a state college. We were glad to have so many, and yet the very number was more or less an embarrassment.

It is true that we had buildings that had been carefully planned, and various courses of study, likewise, carefully planned. Nevertheless, I had a feeling that the students came to these buildings, attended to certain matters in connection with the courses of study, and then left. I had a general feeling of dealing with people who were strangers to me, and largely strangers one to another.

By and by little groups began to form. Various crowds began to develop. There was the football crowd, the musical crowd, the dramatic club etc. Still I had the feeling that these groups were nevertheless, unrelated one to the other. After a little the religious life of the institution began to manifest itself. There was an organization for Baptist students, another for Methodist students, and so on. Still, even these were more or less unrelated. I still felt the need of an agency that should cement the entire student body. We needed an agency that would be interested in every individual upon the campus, and one to which every individual could turn when in need of help.

About one-fourth of our students were women. These organized a Young Woman's Christian Association. This organization took an interest in every woman on the campus. A little later the young men organized themselves in to a Young Men's Christian Association. It is true that not every man on the campus belongs to this group. On the other hand, it is true that every man can become a member of this group and that this group is interested in the welfare of every man on the campus.

The Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association are performing a most excellent function in that they are affording a common feeling upon which I can stand. One special work which they have undertaken is the work of student help and employment. They are going far to bring our student body into one coherent whole. My experience at Texas Tech has caused me to see more than I ever saw before in the typical song of the Young Men's Christian Association, "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds."

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Announcement was made Wednesday of the candidacy of Richard Cavett and Olive McEllya for the offices of Chiefs of Staff of the Trenchard for the 1926-27 term.

Both these students are well known in the school, and are both qualified for the positions for which they ask the Students' support in gaining. Cavett, who has announced for Editor, has been of the staff of the Trenchard during the past school term; McEllya, better known as "Chick" is now business manager of the Concert Band.

The Cavett-McEllya platform is a clean school paper, worthy of the institution to which it belongs—a students publication of the college classification.

Students voters are asked to consider carefully qualifications of entrants in the race for editor and business manager. These candidates ask consideration and will appreciate whatever may be done toward that aim.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

SOUTHERN TEXTILE BULLETIN PRAISES WORK OF TECH

The following article appeared in the March issue of the Southern Textile Bulletin:

"In addition to the well-known textile school at College Station which operates on an educational basis twenty-three looms and gives instruction in spinning, weaving, warping and dyeing, there is now being established at Lubbock, in West Texas, another school, Texas Technological College, which is installing machinery for the manufacture of both cotton and woolen cloth, special courses are being offered which fit the graduates to hold positions as superintendents of cotton and woolen mills. This is unquestionable one of the greatest steps taken by the state toward the fostering of the textile industry in Texas."

MISS FORD VISITS COLLEGE

Miss Frances Ford, the newly appointed County Librarian was a visitor at the College both Monday and Tuesday of this week. She spent most of her time in the office of Miss West. Miss Ford was well pleased with the school and plans to cooperate with the Library in every possible way.

DR. GRANBERY TO GIVE SERIES OF LECTURES TO LABOR UNION

A new line of extension work is being started by Dr. J. C. Granbery head of the department of history. Last Monday night he delivered a lecture to the Central Labor Union and the men enjoyed his talk very much. At the request of the educational department of the Lubbock Labor Union, Dr. Granbery will give a series of lectures on Economic Problems. These lectures will be given once a month. The first of the series will be delivered on the night of April 19. Following are the subjects which he will base his talks on:

1. The Federal Constitution - and Our Economic Evolution.
2. Government Regulation and Economic Life.
3. Our Economic System and Efficiency.
4. Our Economic System and Industrial Democracy.
5. Socialism and Individualism.

BLOOD AND SAND FROM EL TORO

Like the little bird, poor and pitiful, held prisoner by the baleful gaze of a python, unable to move, and in a trance waiting for its doom—we run around in circles, waiting for the thread to break and the sword of examinations to sever our connections with the past and the future.

Excitement reigns supreme over the campus today, yesterday, and day after tomorrow. It's all about a little over nothing, and a little under something big. It has to do with the Editor-ship of the Trenchard for the coming year, 1926-27, and the office of business manager for the same time.

There's Koen and Flannigan, the artist boys; McWilliams and Hayhurst, the boys running for their health; Harry Montgomery and Johnnie, the boys we all know; and lastly, but not least by any means, the pair of canary birds "Dick and Chick," who are spreading a bit of bunk (high class, as that) over the campus. Subject to preliminary contest Monday and Tuesday, March 22 and 23rd, your vote and influence will be appreciated."

As a result, the photographers are busy; private "bull sessions" are in progress; and the black boards at the school are become streaked with white (the head-boards are)—and everybody's makin' stump speeches.

Press Club meeting last night had a mighty interesting meeting, we understand. Good attendance—and some dandy progress.

Speaking of progress, the Concert Band is certainly making some outstanding steps forward lately. Going to have a real band, after all, out of that bunch.

LaMaier says that they have the stuff—and they have. He's going to take 'em to Amarillo to the contest and bring back the cup, and he's going to take 'em over the South Plains, we think, for a tour. Which will be mighty nice for the Tech, too.

Little Art And Less Kick to Painters' Exhibition in N. Y.

By United Press

NEW YORK, March 17.—The day when the annual exhibition of the Society of Independent Artists used to draw excited "oh's" and "ah's" and not a few blushes from the uninitiated and an occasional visit from the police, has passed.

Possibly it is due to the fact that one can see live nudes and near-nudes on the New York stage that has robbed the painted ladies and gentlemen portrayed by the society's artists of their former thrill. The knee-length skirt and greater all-round familiarity with the human form divine may have had something to do with it.

Whatever the cause, this year's show holds few thrills, even for the shocking exhibits is nil. Folks have small and the number of really unsophisticated. The attendance is become accustomed to such sights as can be seen in the art galleries on the Waldorf roof and even the spinsters now can gaze affected upon vivid one time shockers. The exhibit is now drawing drawing to a close. Critics remarking upon the current exhibition, have found a furious desire to paint, but little willingness to learn how.

LARGEST FROG FARM PLANNED FOR TEXAS

DENTON, Texas, March 17.—One of the largest frog farms in the country is under construction near here. Several dams are being built and a low, swampy section, already plentiful with frogs, is being further stocked.

The frogs will be raised for Texas and other markets. One of the preliminary operations was the draining of the lakes to get rid of fish, a menace to frogs. Several miles of fence will be built around the lakes to keep out snakes another enemy of frogs. The several lakes will be used for frogs of different ages.

REVOLVERS.

Pistols and revolvers would be prohibited from the use of the mails according to a bill now before Congress. Many of the large mail order houses have discontinued selling these weapons, notwithstanding the profit involved. The easy purchase of guns is responsible for much of the crime and other countries have passed similar laws restricting the right of purchase. Opposition to the proposal is that the passage of such a bill would be another article in the hands of bootleggers. The laws against the carrying of concealed weapons, if enforced would do much to rectify the evil complained of but in actual practice it has been found very hard to prevent political officials issuing permits to their friends to go armed. The right of a person to have protection in his home should not be curtailed but the law against the carrying of concealed weapons should be rigidly enforced.

A CONFUSED SECRETARY.

The French have an old proverb, "Noblesse Oblige" which liberally translated means that rank has its obligations. We have a right to expect wise counsel from men chosen to fill the high places in our Government. We are not always so blessed, as may be recognized by some of the utterances of our Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Jardine. Some of his recent utterances at Fort Worth as reported by the press are hardly creditable to a man holding his important position. His economics are as twisted as those of some of our college professors. He may have gotten started wrong or later become confused through associations. He is quite right when he says, "economic pressure is forcing the surplus farm population to the city to make more money." One questions the term "surplus farm population" but it is "economic pressure" that is causing the drift from the farm to the city and town. Does this movement "leave more income from agriculture for those who remain in the country?" All reports indicate the contrary. The drift towards the city continues and there is little promise of that day "when the farm income rises sufficiently" that "some of them will go back." We are all supposed to have mental "blind spots." Secretary Jardine must have a very large one when he says that "it is not hurting the farms to lose some of their folks." Farmers know better than that and they seem to vision the reason for this unnatural migration. It will do no good to suggest the opposite view to the confused secretary but it will do good to repeat to the readers of this paper the declaration made by a Conference of farmers last December when they said, "every increase in the profit or productivity of the farm—whether through individual or through co-operative efforts of the farmers—is invariably met by exorbitant increases in the price of land, due to the activities of land speculators, traffickers and monopolists" and that "exorbitant land prices are at bottom the worst evil with which the actual farmer and his descendants must contend. We might learn something from the French farmer. France has an area one-fifth less than that of Texas yet approximately half of her 40,000,000 population live on the land. We are justified in emphasizing the statement that these 20,000,000 people not only "live on the land" but live out of it. The French farmer has learned that land is a place on which to live and make a living. He is not a borrower but a lender. He is that reserve depository on which the Government confidently relies when an internal loan is offered. These facts are most suggestive and our would-be statesmen might analyze them to advantage. Texas has more arable land than France. We will need to accommodate a like population in little more than a generation. We can easily do it if we recognize now that speculation in land is the chief obstacle to be overcome and adopt the remedy proposed by the representative of more than 100,000 working farmers when they assert that taxation of land values is the effective tool ready for our hands to destroy this imminent danger, speculation in land, and thus make it easy to use for our common needs.

AN OPTIMISTIC VIEW.

A few billion dollars in war debts will be too insignificant to worry about a hundred years or so from now, says the American Exchange National Bank, referring to the funding of indebtedness of foreign nations in its review. It states that the next hundred years will be better than the last hundred years; in fact, "there is nothing in the present to lead us to believe that the world of 2025 will not be as far ahead of the world today as 1925 is ahead of 1825. During the last hundred years we have been busy applying engineering to industry; during the next hundred years the world will devote itself increasingly to the application of science to industry, to the evolving of less wasteful and more productive economic machines. Against the billions now wasted that will be saved in this way, the few hundred millions that annually must be paid upon war debt will appear too tiny to worry about. Debts must be paid in goods, of course, and some goods may be tendered in payment that the creditor nations do not want to receive, but time will also show us the way to adjust these difficulties. It may be that the necessity of overcoming the difficulties will lead us to a solution of the world's most dangerous problem, that of the correlation and co-ordination of world production."

FRENCH TAXES.

Briand has taken the premiership of France again, for an international emergency, and gone to Geneva to deal with the grave problems of League membership and European peace. When he returns, it will be to plunge into the same old struggle that has wrecked every French ministry for years, and will probably wreck his again. It is the struggle to save the French government from bankruptcy. And that is a hopeless struggle to make the French people pay taxes. Theodore Burton, one of the foremost American authorities on international finance, points out that during the war the French paid less taxes than in normal peace times, and that since the war it has been one long scramble on the part of every tax-paying class to avoid paying and put the burden on other classes. As a result of meeting current expenses by borrowing, nearly two-thirds of the national revenue recently has had to go for interest on the public debt and short-term loans. "It has been a saying of some Frenchmen," he observes, "that they are willing to shed their blood for their country but were unwilling to submit to further taxation." This is what the big French political crisis is all about. There is no solution in sight unless the French people will consent to let themselves be taxed as other countries have been.

A BAD PROPHECY.

Extreme cold was predicted by many weather prophets for the winter of '25-'26. Our readers will probably recall several of these oracular statements. It is interesting now to know that the data of the government weather bureau throughout the United States reveals that the winter has been unusually warm. In the South, the weather has not yet been very bad, but, relatively, this section has had the coldest weather in the country.

FARMERS NEED HELP.

Those who believe the agricultural population is always getting undue attention from legislators and unfair advantages over the general public will do well to consider a few facts brought to mind by a recent report of the National Industrial Conference Board, which is supported by manufacturing, mining, transportation and public utilities industries. This organization represents no farmers but it advises business men to think about the plight of the agriculturalists because the success of urban dwellers is dependent upon a similar success on the farms. The rate of farm failures has increased 1,000 per cent in less than fifteen years while commercial failures, in the same period, have remained about the same. The survey shows that thousands of farmers "have had to forego payment of interest on debt, or taxes, to say nothing of repairs, equipment and maintenance and proper care of the fertility of the soil, in order to secure living expenses. In the last quarter of a century the cost of the things that the farmers buy has risen 300 per cent while the price of the products that the farmer sells has gone up only 120 per cent. The per capita income of the farming population of 1921 was given as $186 as against $701 for city dwellers. In 1924, says the board, actual earnings of the average farmer were computed at $730 as compared with $1,572 for transportation workers, $2,141 for clerical lines and $1,650 for governmental employees. No wonder, then, that the report discovers a drift from conservatism on the farm and towards radicalism, and calls it "one of the most significant reversals in the political life of the United States."

HAULING PASSENGERS.

The development of bus transportation throughout the United States is due solely to the fact that the railroad executives went to sleep on their jobs. Apparently convinced that the public must travel on trains or stay at home the railroads made practically no effort to meet the threat of the motor car by adapting their physical properties to the growing demand for quicker and more frequent schedules. The Boston and Maine have recently made a study of the possibility of attracting passenger traffic by speeding up train schedules and apparently, the idea works. On one route where the speeding up test was made patronage increased 9 per cent whereas everywhere else on the line it decreased! This is an indication that the railroad will come again as a passenger service if the officials will give the public what it wants.

Little Avalanches

Farmers know that they feed the world. What they want to know is what is the world going to pay for the food.

We hereby award an extra slice of pie to the young lady who said last week that this was an interesting newspaper.

His Last Stronghold

SO THINK WE

We think the Panhandle and Plains section of the state will always be the white spot of the globe when it comes to prohibition, and the general moral status of the country. It has always been depended upon as the stronghold of the prohibition forces and will no doubt continue as such.

We think the Shamrocks were more numerous in Lubbock yesterday than ever before on St. Patrick's day. One reason there were more people in Lubbock to celebrate the occasion.

We think the dairying industry should be encouraged in every way in this section of the country. It is an industry that will make money for the producer, and can be successfully carried on on the South Plains.

We think that it is a good thing that the land boom slowed up in Florida when it did, or Cuba would have been annexed to make a suburb of the state.

We think that about the easiest job that some folks ever had was convalescing in some good hospital, at the expense of some insurance company.

We think there is a lot more candy now than there was forty years ago but to our taste it is not near so good. Still people claim it is better and purer.

We think east Texas should take her cap off to west Texas. West Texas Chamber of Commerce officials are going to help east Texas to organize an east Texas chamber of commerce. How is that for showing the east a few things.

We think it should be good news to people of France that the government no longer has to issue bulletins about the condition of the franc.

We think that learning to keep your mouth shut at the proper time is one of the important arts that the people of America should study, and especially teach their children. We are sure that it would save the hide of many a man and reduce the large number of black eyes in the United States.

We think old battle axe had quite a good day yesterday, as we noticed that he was able to get around in different parts of town as usual, however, his favorite place seemed to be in the entrance to the postoffice, better known as no man's land.

We think about the most pitiful thing we have seen lately was a dignified man trying to be funny. It was funny all right.

We think in this day and time the kisses of many of the wives is probably not instigated by affection but investigation.

We think there is very little roar heard from the men on the street about the scant dress of the women. It is nearly all of fice talk.

IT IS REPORTED

That there is one man in Lubbock who will not read about women in the papers without first removing his hat. That is what we call being real polite.

That the cooking school is gaining in attendance each day, and many compliments are heard among the ladies of the manner in which Mrs. Chase presents her lectures. The Avalanche is pleased to learn that our efforts along this line are appreciated.

That four of the churches of this city will enter into a revival meeting campaign next Sunday morning. This is a pre-Easter campaign, and one that should result in much good for the community.

That the Rotary Club put over a real St. Patrick's day program yesterday, and it was enjoyed by every Irishman present and also all the friends of the Irish, which seemed to be unanimous.

That Chicago has deported thirty-six carloads of criminals and there is still a large amount of "hic" in that city. No telling how many carloads of criminals might have been deported out of Texas had the law abiding people of the state done their duty.

That one man in Lubbock is practicing rigid economy. He was seen placing a tooth pick back in the container after he had used it.

That some of the seniors are beginning to think about graduation, while others are not giving it a "passing thought."

That in the school of experience that a fellow is allowed to think as many times as he wishes before he puts down the answer, and of course has an opportunity to make a good grade.

HERE AND THERE

Times Have Changed

When I married 20 years ago, we got $33.48 worth of presents, thus lacking $8.24 making actual expenses, not counting overhead or our honeymoon trip. Cousin Sallie got married week before last and hooked enough present to buy two tickets to Niagara.

Don't Cry Honey

But I tell you what hurt Sallie's husband feeling powerful bad was the bank turned down that checks Sallie's pa gave them as a starter, drawn in the sum of $500.00 and a check kprotektor was used in making it out too. This is a secret, folks, so don't ever let it get back to any of Sallie's folks as they know it already.

Some critics are saying things about George Washington. They seem to think that he danced and stayed out late at night and smoked and played poker and so on. Why, all great men did that. To tell the truth I have done a few of those things myself.

Notice where a preacher fell dead in his pulpit in a western town the other night. He must have seen somebody drop a dollar in the collection plate.

I never disobey my wife, so to the doctor I went. Now when you go to see a doctor that means you are going to be sick whether or no. I thought there was a little something wrong with my throat, so he examined that, and pronounced it entirely swallowable.

The poor old farmer that I have been feeling so sorry for the past six months came to my office yesterday and wanted me to change a 100-dollar bill. He said he was keeping 1 other 100-dollar bill to buy guano with. I think he ought to feel sorry for me a while now.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AGE

They say that youth is much the fairest age
And once I laughed and sang its songs of glee,
But youth long since has turned its back on me
To lead some other spirit on life's stage.
Now I am come unto life's middle page
And find much charm in all that I can see,
I still hold hope for joys that are to be.

Tomorrow's dreams my courage still engage,
Life does not lose its charm. There always stays
Some promise that we long to see fulfilled,
Some joy to hope for in the distant days.
Some little castle which we hope to build.
That old gray-beard half dozing through the day
Watches with joy his great grand children play.

DRAW FOR DAVIS CUP TENNIS PAIRINGS

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17.—The 1926 Davis cup draw has been made by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, with the customary attendance of foreign diplomats.

Under the rules governing competition for this most coveted of all tennis trophies, the defending American team does not play until the challenge round.

There are 19 teams in the European zone and five, aside from the United States in the American zone. Australia has not challenged this year, and France is expected to defeat the field and play for the cup at Forest Hills.

The French team meets Denmark in the second round of the European zone, having a bye in the first round. If they defeat the Danes, they will play the winner of the match between India and Czechoslovakia.

South Africa plays Portugal in the first round, the winner meeting Austria and the winner of the Sweden-Switzerland encounter.

The result of the draw probably will be to bring France against Switzerland in the fourth round and against Spain and Great Britain in the fourth round.

The winners in the European zone in the American zone, probably Japan will play against the winners in the American zone, Cuba, Mexico and the Philippines.

PORTO RICOAN HAS HARD TIME LEARNING ENGLISH LANGUAGE

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 17.—The Porto Rican school boy has great difficulty mastering the intricacies of the English language, according to a letter received by Eva Lewis-Coutter, Waxahachie, from her sister Lola Coulter, graduate of Trinity University and now a teacher in the Presbyterian missionary school at San German, Porto Rico. Lola enclosed a copy of a theme turned in by one of her pupils.

The brown-skinned youth wrote: "Traveling By Air."

By Angle Diaz

"It was one summer evening before the sun had spread his beautiful rays, plethoric of harmony over the earth that we started our travel. It was in a great plain; and I and Lydia take and airplane and after some minutes we were apart from earth. A little incident was caused as we were afraid. The 'Elites' stopped. Suddenly the air, with a great force blew upon us and the airplane make a 'sizzac' going down."

"I took Lydia and both were afraid. She began to pray. Her heart was moving rapidly and she look me all times. Then both were embraced and both closed eyes."

"We fell in the sea and the airplane was destroyed. With a great trouble we reached the shore. We were glad because we reach home safe. Then we kissed, trying to forget the terrible moment we spent in the air, and looking for a happy time."

Poker-Face Keeps Up Winning Stride

BAGGENBAGGAGE WINS LOUISIANA DERBY

By United News

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 17.—Turf events of the coming spring were foreshadowed Wednesday when a field of ten crack three-year-olds met in the Louisiana derby at the annual event of winter racing at Jefferson Park.

The Idle Hour Farm's Baggenbaggage lowered the track record by three fifths of a second in winning from his stable-mate Boot to Boot, with the Green Tree stable's Navigator third.

A Baggenbaggage already was quite as low as 10 to 1 in the future books on the Kentucky Derby, the colt's victory in the Louisiana derby is expected to establish it as one of the fastest horses on the American turf in the Kentucky derby to be run at Louisville two months hence.

MISS RYAN GOES TO SEMI-FINALS AT NET

By United News

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 17.—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the California star, won her way into the semi-final round of the women's national indoor singles tennis tournament Wednesday, beating Mrs. Charles J. Hubbard Jr., of Boston, 6-2, 6-4.

The other feature third round singles match, in which Miss Mary K. Browne of California is to meet Mr. J. Dallas Corbiers of Boston, is to take place Thursday morning along with the postponed match between Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., the defending champion, and Miss Katherine Gardner of Cambridge.

COOKING SCHOOL

Mrs. Chase also called attention to the importance of giving time to the finer side of life—to absorb help from music, such help as which soothes the jangled nerves and tired minds.

One cannot find response in a room where there is a jarring note. Just the wrong lamp shade can have just as much influence to upset one as a harsh word—and rugs are so mighty in their reflection as to cause the homemaker the greatest care in the selection of them. A rug that is high grade in its plan of workmanship and in its design, is of untold joy in any home. This does not mean that one must buy the most expensive in rugs. There are medium priced rugs that the discriminating know instantly and buy.

The domestic science subject, sandwiches, cookies and desserts for children, pastries, was of wide appeal.

Most women think the making of a sandwich is a very simple matter. A real sandwich requires a little brain work. To be delectable it must appeal by its daintiness as well as its taste. No sandwich must be dry or appear to be lumpy.

Various kinds of sandwiches from the plain ham on up to the fancy-shaped ones with fillings to match, were demonstrated in the day's program.

"The children of today are the men and women of tomorrow," Mrs. Chase said, "and in the hands of the home makers is the power to determine the physical fitness of the future citizens. Every child has the right to be healthy and strong. It is his portion and the thing which governs his success throughout his life. Good food is essential in building strong bodies and cultivating alert minds," she declared.

"Children are fastidious," Mrs. Chase continued. "Often what the mother feels is just a notion on the part of the child in his refusal to eat certain things which she is sure are good for him, in a sign that the food has failed to appeal to his discriminating taste. Children love color. A bit of garnish of a bright tint will dress up the dish of which the child has tired, to the point of attractiveness."

"Cookies for the youngsters, as well as the grown-ups should not only be wholesome, but pleasing to the eye—so pleasing that to contemplate they are appetizing. The bigger boys as well as the father, will take a substantial interest in this part of the menu."

The program:

Thursday
Art Subject: An interesting dinner room (including the furnishings and table decorations.)
Domestic Science Subject: Party dishes for various occasions.

Friday
Art Subject: Kitchen furnishings and equipment, selected for their beauty and practicability.
Domestic Science Subject: Cakes.

118 YEAR OLD NEGRESS IS DEAD IN KANSAS

WEIR CITY, Mo.—Annie Morton, a negress who was 118 years old, died here Wednesday at an age estimated at 118 years. Officials records of her age and the papers liberating her from slavery were destroyed recently in a fire.

GOOD DEMAND FOR SPORT GOODS IS REPORTED

Sports goods dealers of Lubbock are already displaying baseballs, bats, mitts, gloves and all the other requirements which go to make the great national game possible. And the dealers report that sales along this line are beginning to pick up. All of which is to show that this town just like thousands of others is looking forward to the opening of the baseball season.

Representative Newton, Minnesota, republican, introduced in the house a bill for a survey of the nation's water resources by the geological survey which would present a manner program of development.

Newton would allow 20 years for the survey.

Representative Dempsey, New York, republican, who is leading the fight for the all-American route, meanwhile was completing his bill providing for the sale of the New York barge canal to the federal government and its utilization as an outlet from the Great Lakes via New York City. He is expected to introduce it Wednesday. Newton's survey would include irrigation and power projects as well as waterways.

"Some commodities that can not be moved by rail could be shipped at greatly reduced prices if available waterways were properly developed," he said.

"The waterways would not eliminate the railroads but would supplement them."

Senator Wadsworth and Representative Wainwright of New York joined him in urging development of the New York route while a number of northwestern members appealed to members for the Lawrence route, declaring that they would be the first to support the all-American route if it were necessary for national defense but that the people view the New York claim as merely a move to block the St. Lawrence project.

Miss Mildred Benson, aged 16, is making her way through a Massachusetts college by canning fruit in spare time, having put up 1,600 jars of 69 varieties of fruits and vegetables in the past year.

While on the subject of money consider the case of Mr. Wally Pippen, ball player, sold by the Yankees to the Reds for the sum of $20,000 and wonder his demand that he be given half of the amount above the waiver price of $4,000.

It may not be in line with what the financiers of the game want but it seems only just that a player, able to bring a good price on the market, should get a cut of the pie. Especially is this true of a young player going up from a smaller league. On the other hand, a star player, worth $100,000 on the market but unsold because of his great value to his team, would get no opportunity to demand a cut.

Since 1920 the American tennis stars have lost only 2 out of 30 individual contests in the Davis Cup matches. This would indicate marked superiority but the showing made by the Frenchmen, Borotra and Lacoste, on the indoor courts last month, and the recollection of the hard matches with Tilden last summer incline some experts to believe that the French have a chance to win the international match this summer.

The new football pro league, headed by Big Bill Edwards, in the Landis role, and with the redoubtable Red Grange as a drawing card, will probably be a success next fall. The growth of football, as a professional sport, and the popularity of hockey, has been marked this season.

Chess players are interested in the international competition at Semmering, Austria, and while Lasker, Bogolubow, and other experts are missing from the tourney, there will be no lack of brilliancy with Alechine, Dr. Vidmar, Reti, Rubinstein, and Dr. Tartakower. While the first two named are popularly supposed to have the greatest prospect of success it is significant that the great Alechine lost his first game and that almost any sort of an upset is looked upon as possible. None of the experts on this side of the ocean engage in the present tournament.

make its report two weeks from today.

The proposed road will be known as the Chioley, Morton, Enochs & Northwestern, and will connect with the Santa Fe at Chioley. The road will pass through Morton and on to Enochs, though no agreement was reached as to where the northern terminal should be. It is possible the road will end at Enochs, though an effort will be made to extend the line to Baileyboro.

It is not known at this time just what the proposed road will cost, but the body voted to capitalize for half a million dollars, and it is thought the entire sum will be subscribed by local citizens and land owners within the next ten days. There will be five thousand shares of one hundred dollars each.

The proposal is meeting with much encouragement and many conservative men say the road is sure to be constructed. It is not a matter of raising money to build it, but rather the meeting of conditions exacted by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Texas Railroad Commission.

ADVOCATES SURVEY OF U. S. WATER RESOURCES

By United News

WASHINGTON, arch 17.—As advocates of both the St. Lawrence and all-American route for outlets for the Great Lakes waterway system was argued before the army and navy board of engineers Tuesday, steps were taken in congress to provide for a national waterway program.

Representative Newton, Minnesota, republican, introduced in the house a bill for a survey of the nation's water resources by the geological survey which would present a manner program of development.

Newton would allow 20 years for the survey.

U. S. SURVEY ORDERED OF ALL ALIENS HERE FOR MORAL TURPITUDE

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17. (U.P.)—The Countess Cathcart exclusion case has stimulated a "moral turpitude" crusade on the part of immigration officials all over the country.

During the next six months aliens in the United States will be subject to rigid investigation by the authorities to determine whether there is cause for their deportation.

The information will be sought whether any of those examined have committed a crime involving "moral turpitude"—the grounds for the ruling in Vera's case and the basis for the warrant against the Earl of Craven.

The flight of the Earl after being admitted by the Labor Department, has given reason for apprehension on the part of the immigration experts in the department, that despite careful scrutiny of every alien admitted, there may be some whose legal status in the country may be questioned.

The survey, according to Assistant Secretary White, has been contemplated for some time, but has been delayed in its start because of economy and a lack of time to devote to it.

CHINESE FINANCIERS RESENT FOREIGN RULE

SHANGHAI (United Press)—Strong opposition to foreign control of China's internal finances has developed as the latest expression of the new nationalistic spirit in China.

In resolutions addressed to the Chinese Government at Peking, a number of local organizations, chief them the Chinese Bankers' Association, strongly citizen the reported decision of the Peking Government appointing Sir Francis Aglen, British Inspector-General of Chinese Maritime Customs, to take charge of the new bonds to be issued by the Chinese Government.

The protest reiterates the demands for removal of foreign control of China's governmental enterprises and says: "This proposal will not only fail to restore the privileges lost by China, but it will make the Inspector-General more powerful, and this is contrary to the wishes of the people and to the declarations issued by the government. You are earnestly requested to abandon this proposal."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS SHOWS BIG INCREASE IN TEXAS FACTORIES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Mar. 17.—The last twenty-five years has seen an increase of over 1,000 per cent in the volume of manufacturing done in Texas, according to George Knobel, executive vice-president and general manager of the Texas State Manufacturer's Association.

Texas manufacturers are turning out produce that are valued at more than a billion dollars annually, he said. "While everyone knows that Texas leads the Union in the value of its agricultural production many do not appreciate the rapid strides the state is making in manufacturing," Mr. Knobel said.

In further discussing the subject he declared that the rapid development of the industry had not come about by chance but was based on right conditions for manufacturing and distribution.

TRACK SQUAD DEFEATS SLATON

Yesterday afternoon the Western track squad defeated Slaton in dual track meet, the score being 42. The contest was snappy from start to finish. Both teams had some fast men and made some good time in several events. This was the first contest of the season for the local squad, but they showed up mighty strong, having three high point men, Payne of Lubbock was high point man with points to his credit. Thomas of Lubbock second with 13 1-4 points. Bowen of Lubbock and Stone of Slaton tied for third with 13 points each.

The 880 yard run was made in 17; the mile in 5:01; the low hurdles in 27 second broad jump was 13; high jump was 5:3; from these records we can see that there will be some keen competition at the county and district meets this year.

SUPERINTENDENT DUNCAN MAKES TALK TO SENIORS

On Tuesday afternoon, March 16, Mr. M. H. Duncan made a talk to the seniors at their regular class meeting. This was the first talk of a class and will perhaps be the last. The attitude of the class and the attention given the speaker show that the class was really enjoying the talk and that all were deriving great benefit from it.

Supt. Duncan said that he had never dealt with a more congenial class and complimented the whole school on its attitude toward the school, the splendid conduct, and the work being done.

This talk dealt especially with those seniors who are preparing to enter college. He gave some good advice as to the subjects to be taken in college to prepare for life's work. First on the list, with the exception of one book, was the thorough knowledge of our own language. English is the richest language in literature in the world and with this Mr. Duncan placed his speaking. Nothing is to be more desired than the ability to read and before a crowd and express oneself in clear and forceful language.

Next in importance he placed history—to learn what men have done and how they have met and solved their problems, so that we can know better how to meet the problems of every day life. Economics deals with such problems and should be studied, not for a grade, but to learn of the problems facing communities, cities, states, and the nation today.

Then there are the natural sciences to be studied so that we may know and understand men.

In his next point Mr. Duncan expressed the wish that we remember it above the other advice given—and that wish was that we never come to the point where some teacher who claims to be a scientist but who in reality knows almost nothing of science, can persuade us to believe in evolution, that man evolved from a lower form of life. This belief clashes with the teachings of the greatest book of all times, and as considered by scientists who really know, as a mere theory or guess. Although these teachers say that the theory of evolution and the bible do not clash this is not so, and men are tuning more and more to this great book all the time. One hundred and fifty years ago Voltaire said give him one hundred fifty years and the bible would be wiped from the face of the earth. But is this so? Indeed not! Now there are, over 30,000 Bibles being printed and distributed in the United States annually. And in the same his speech, there is now a printing shop which prints thousands of Bibles yearly.

Something has been said of late concerning the high school cadets, and only today we see evidence of that organization. Old glory floated from their staff today. The cadets have replaced the old flag pole with a new one and they expect to have the stars and stripes flung to the breeze each morning. They have planned to have flag drill every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. As a mark of respect to the flag all civilians are supposed to stop and stand until the drill is over. Let us remember this, folks, and show respect for this organization in our midst.

At last Harold Bowen and Roy Sawyer's persuasive powers have accomplished results and the panels for the Senior year book left Lubbock Monday for the engraver's hands. The boys are faithfully working, and they hope to have the book out on time. The material for class will, prophecy etc, is being worked up and the class hopes to put out a book to which seniors of '27 will refer with pleasure in after years.

The money derived from the sale of tickets for the picture display is to be put into pictures for seven rooms ranking highest in the ticket campaign and for the three study halls. The following rooms ranked first:

Mr. Reid, Miss Wallace, Miss Morton, Mr. Cox, Miss Atwood, Mr. Levy Witt, Mrs. Harrison.

BARRIER BROS. DEPARTMENT STORE OVERCROWDED; BUYERS FLOCK TO SALE CELEBRATING NINTH ANNIVERSARY

Barrier Brothers, Department Store is accorded the liberal patronage and undivided attention of the people of the large Lubbock Trade territory in their ninth Anniversary Celebration sale that started yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock and sixteen days.

At 9:40 o'clock—ten minutes after the doors of the big store were thrown open to welcome the celebration crowds—it was necessary to close the doors and after all patrons that had been admitted had been waited upon and had made their purchases they made their exit through the rear door and again the store was filled by a part of the crowd that waited at the front. This method of keeping the store from being crowded that the sales people could look after their patrons without difficulty was continued until the noon hour, when the doors were thrown wide open and remained so throughout the afternoon.

Seven hundred fifty cent coupons that had been prepared by the management were given out one to the patron as they entered through the front door, and this supply was exchanged early in the morning and many hundreds filed into the building after these coupons had been exhausted.

More than a thousand entered the building during the morning according to the door keeper.

Much Buying

Each and every department of the large store was active throughout the day, with sharp buying shown on the part of a majority of those who attended the sale.

Barrier Brothers, Department Store has always received liberal response to its advertising and its sales have been successful, but it is believed by those watching developments at the store since Wednesday morning that this event eclipses any that has ever been staged by the company and prevailing enthusiasm outranks by a large degree any showing that has ever been made at the big and fast growing store.

Preparations Complete

Minute preparations for the big celebration had been completed before the doors swung open Wednesday morning.

Shade Wilson, of Minneapolis, a merchandise and store efficiency expert, addressed the 135 sales people that are employed at the store before the doors opened Wednesday morning, giving them helpful instructions that made for greater ease in taking care of the large crowds.

Mr. Wilson insisted that the clerks give every possible attention to even the smallest needs of their patrons, and his talk was perhaps responsible for the smoothness with which the organization functioned throughout the day.

That the values that are offered in the sale are such as to commend heavy purchases on the part of patrons of the store was seen in a sale aggregating more than $200 to one Lubbock county man yesterday. His purchase involved 100 blankets, a number of pillows and other merchandise.

Salesmen in the gents' furnishings department reported several sales of two suits of clothes to one buyer.

Crowds Easy Handled

Despite the large crowds that filed through the store throughout the day little or no difficulty in taking care of the masses was experienced, as much respect for the old folks in the crowd and to the mothers with small children was especially noticeable.

INTERNATIONAL FAMILY QUARREL IS NOW BEING AIRED AT CLOSE QUARTERS IN SUIT OVER LEITER MILLIONS

BY EARL J. JOHNSON

United News Staff Correspondent. CHICAGO, Mar. 17.—Titled litigants from across the sea attacked the character of an American relative Tuesday as the opening of the Suffolk-Leiter suit over one of this country's richest estates turned a drab Chicago court room into a glittering spectacle of wealth and nobility.

Eleven stories above rumbling Clark street a family row going back to peppery old Lord Curzon's marriage to Mary Leiter was coming to a head after years of international bickering.

It gave attorneys for Lady Marguerite Hyde, countess of Suffolk, their first opportunity to come into the open with charges of fraud against her brother, Joseph Leiter, of Chicago, and they painted him in vivid colors as the worst Yankee spendthrift of all time.

Stories of Joe's attempts to corner the world wheat market with a loss of nine million American dollars and his purchase of "dude" ranches in Wyoming at $2,000,000 apiece were recounted by Frank H. Scott of Lady Marguerite's counsel.

Scott declared that Leiter was totally incompetent to administer the vast estate which his father, the late Levi Z. Leiter, had left in his care. In support of Lady Marguerite's suit to have Joe removed as administrator Scott asserted that Joe had appointed trustees whom he could dominate and that the English heirs were in danger of heavy losses through "this and other incidents of mismanagement."

The trouble between the two branches of the Leiter family seems to have started when Lord Curzon offered Joe by marrying his sister, the late Mary Leiter. While he was serving Great Britain as viceroy of India Lord Curzon had several long distance spats with Joe but the row has been a long time in getting into court.

The value of the estate involved in the present hearing is estimated variously between thirty and sixty million dollars. It includes department stores, coal mines, one short railroad in southern Illinois and considerable Chicago real-estate.

A large crowd of spectators filled the little court room for the queenly entrance of the countess of Suffolk. There was just the least hint of the famous old Leiter smile on her face as she walked in and took a seat opposite Joe, who was resplendent in spats, gray tweeds and a fancy vest.

The countess sat a little apart from Joe and his other sister, Mrs. Nancy Lathrop Carver Campbell, who is supporting his fight to remain administrator. Both women busied themselves with fancy work while Joe took notes on the arguments of the attorneys and dozed intermittently.

Lady Marguerite dropped a handkerchief marked with a coronet and the bailiff set the crowd laughing when he fell over a chair scrambling to pick it up for her. Otherwise the first day's hearing was as formal and dignified as a reception in Buckingham Palace.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY FINDS IRELAND PEACEFUL

By United Press

DUBLIN, Mar. 17.—St. Patrick's Day finds the Irish Free State continuing to enjoy the first breathing spell it has had in many years.

The two previous years found the Government almost completely absorbed in suppressing the disorders which grew out of the acceptance of the Anglo-Irish Treaty; this year for the first time, there has been enough peace and quiet to enable reconstruction work to begin and St. Patrick's Day sees the country accordingly rejoicing.

Among the chief events of the year, from the standpoint of the Government, are:

The passage through the Dail and the Northern Parliament of the bill settling the border boundary dispute.

Passage through the Dail of the contract granted to Siemens-Schuckert of Berlin for the harnessing of the River Shannon for the production of cheap electric power.

Contract with a Belgian group for the erection of the first beet-sugar factory in the Free State.

Establishing drastic Government control of the marketing of Irish eggs so that now, it is asserted, they compete with Danish eggs for freshness, cleanliness, proper packing and grading.

Establishment of similar drastic control of the export of butter and of cattle guaranteed free from disease.

Passage of a Trades Loan Guarantee Act, providing Government credit for the establishment of new and necessary industries.

And above all, general decrease of the disorders of 1923 and 1924, credited not so much to the superior force of the Government as to public sentiment.

Supreme Court Calls for 9 Volume Testimony Record

WICHITA, Kan., Mar. 17.—A. E. Jacques, clerk of the district court, received an order from the supreme court of the state requesting a complete transcript of all the testimony in the cases of John N. Richardson, president and O. A. Powell vice president of the American State Bank.

Those men were convicted of receiving deposits in the American State Bank when they knew it to be insolvent and were sentenced to form nine to forty years in prison and fined $45,000 each. They appealed to the supreme court. This request in the opinion of Walter Blake, county attorney, indicates the higher court is making a thorough review of the cases. The decision was expected March 6, but word was received that it would be after the first of April before the court would make an announcement of its findings. The testimony is contained in nine volumes approximating 1,000,000 words.

The French are still busily engaged in civilizing the Rif and Arabs, but are censoring accounts for their activities.

GRADUATES FROM HIGH SCHOOL HERE WILL ENTER TECH

Enrollment at the Texas Technological College during the 1925-26 term, will be swelled by the release of some 115 graduates from the Lubbock High School this spring, a majority of who have expressed eagerness to take work at the school of technology and have decided that all advantages offered in older established institutions of the country plus numerous local advantages will be afforded them.

M. H. Dancan, superintendent of the schools, who is eager to have the graduates continue study, will encourage the graduating class to enter the Tech College.

Numerous other graduating classes of 1926 from high schools throughout the state will crowd the buildings of the Tech College next year. In fact many of the graduates will take some work in the special summer term.

NO LIGHT ON LOCAL BURGLARIES AS YET

Police investigations of burglaries of four local homes and College Inn dormitory Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning have not yet resulted in arrests, though several suspects have been watched and clues gathered early Wednesday morning have been traced to abandonment without expected results.

Police believe the work was done by amateurs, as the small gains made despite wholesale efforts of the thieves lead to that conclusion.

Groceries valued at only a few dollars were taken from the kitchen of the College Inn dormitory, a pair of trousers were taken from the Tom Simpson home on Eighth street and relieved him of $8 in cash. The trousers were left on the lawn at the front of the Simpson home. Another pair of trousers was also taken from the home of T. P. Edgar on Eighth street and relieved of slightly more than three dollars in change. Someone was heard in the home of B. D. McLarry adjoining the Edgar home, but were routed by Mr. McLarry who made an investigation. Nothing was taken. R. W. Matthews, a school teacher, whose home is east of the McLarry home, saw someone in his bedroom between 2 and 3 o'clock Wednesday morning but was unsuccessful in keeping the visitor from escaping with his trousers which contained some small change, a bunch of keys and some papers of no special value.

Burlington Denies Reports of Change In Extension Plans

Officials of the Burlington system have denied rumors that have been heard to the effect that changes in their plans have been made since the Plainview hearing before Examiner Boles of the interstate commerce commission last fall, and indicate that the dilatory action of the examiner in filing his report is not chargeable to any "swaps" made by the companies represented, and that the lines as contemplated will be built as soon as authority has been granted by the interstate commerce commission.

This information, which was received yesterday by the members of the local railroad committee, is expected to cause some action to hasten the filing of the examiner's report at Washington.

FLOYDADA STUDENTS TO ATTEND CO. FAIR

Special to The Avalanche.

FLOYDADA, Tex., Mar. 17.—500 students of the Floydada Public Schools will attend the Floyd county school fair to be held at Lockney the 26 and 27 of this month, according to Superintendent J. C. Wester. "We are going to try to uphold our record by winning the meet," said Mr. Wester. "We will have about sixty entries in the literary and athletic events." During the six years he has spent in the Floydada public schools, Floydada has won five county championships. At the present time Floydada schools hold eight literary loving cups, four athletic and one all-round county championship cup. There are thirty-three loving cups given each year, a school must win a cup three consecutive years before it becomes their property.

Of the thirty-two rural schools in the county, twenty-five are registered in the league and it is estimated at least fifteen hundred students from all parts of the county will attend the meet.

BOOM NOW SEEMS PROBABLE FOR TULIA

TULIA, March 17.—The past year has seen a wonderful improvement in Tulia, in many ways. At least eight new brick business houses have been built and possibly twice that number of homes have been constructed. This may not seem large to some towns, but it marks the beginning of good things for Tulia.

Street paving will begin about the first of next month and this is probably the best one thing that Tulia has done in her existence. With this improvement will come a sidewalk building campaign. This is also badly needed.

With the coming of warm weather the new ice plant will be ready to furnish all the ice we can use.

We are expecting the Mistletoe Creamery Co., to build a creamery on the lots recently bought by them. We now have four wholesale oil companies here and prospects are bright for another one soon.

A 50x100 foot brick and tile building will be erected by Duckett Bros., where the produce building now stands. This will be used as a garage and filling station and house the Studebaker agency.

Others are making arrangements to build and it is probable that building this year will surpass that of last year.

The new free tourist camp will be placed in the Sharrock & Sale camp. Many other improvements are being planned for Tulia, which at this time cannot be disclosed. Truly Tulia is growing, no over boom, but a gradual, healthy growth.

Rumors of Purchase Of Q. A. & P.

MEMPHIS, Texas, March 17.—The following item from the Wichita Falls Times, indicates that the Denver has a deal on foot about which they have said very little, which may, if it is consummated, have an important bearing on the proposed extension of the Denver from Estelline west.

"Testifying before the hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission at Dallas Friday, the manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce said that the purchase of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific by the Fort Worth & Denver was imminent."

"The Quanah, Acme & Pacific was built by Sam Lazarus of St. Louis, who died a few days ago in New York. It extends southwestward through Hardeman, Cottle and Motley Counties from Quanah to Me-Bain. It is headed into the South Plains over one of the most available routes that has yet been found. It was evidently the plan of its builder that it should some day become a part of the Frisco system. But the Frisco found itself unable to assume additional financial obligations and that system is now being merged with the Rock Island, and it is understood that negotiations were under way at the time of Mr. Lazarus' death for its sale to the Burlington system, of which the Fort Worth & Denver is a part. The Quanah, Acme & Pacific ought to be a valuable feeder for the Fort Worth & Denver. Its extension as a part of the Burlington system would give the South Plains section a direct connection with commercial centers of Texas which it has long lacked. It would open up new territory under favorable freight rates for Wichita Falls."

"There is much territory both west and north of the Fort Worth & Denver which needs transportation facilities, and especially direct connections with the commercial centers of North Texas, including Wichita Falls, Fort Worth and Dallas. The acquisition by the Denver of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific would make a very considerable section tributary to the Burlington system."

Good Showers of Rain in Scurry

SNYDER, March 17.—Scurry county got a good shower last night and it is still cloudy and gives promise of more rain. This shower will greatly benefit the wheat and also help to give a season for planting. The recent frost did not kill all the fruit, but some damage was done by it.

Cochran County May Produce Ribbon Cane

MORTON, March 17.—Ribbon cane on the South Plains may be new to some people, but in Cochran county farmers are signing up to plant a large acreage this year. Soil and climatic condition are very favorable to the successful growing of this product and it is to be given a trial.

W. T. Jones Jr., formerly of the Bialack Land Co. is to be given credit for originating the idea, and it has been through his efforts the 1926 crop is to be planted. Mr. Jones has promised to establish a large syrup mill if farmers in this territory will agree to plant a total of 500 acres this year. The local chamber of commerce is working with Mr. Jones, and it is thought the necessary acreage will have been pledged before the close of the week.

If the project proves successful, and Mr. Jones is sure it will, he promises to enlarge his plant here, and will also open plants in other South Plains cities.

COCHRAN COUNTY TO RECEIVE COURTHOUSE SOON

CLARENCE SAUNDERS STORE BOUGHT BY H. E. MILLER

H. E. Miller, who for the past 10 years has been in the grocery business in Lubbock, yesterday announced his purchase of the Clarence Saunders store and will open the place of business this morning.

Hines & Kenney sold their interest in the business to Mr. Miller who immediately started plans to move the $5,000 stock of groceries from his old place of business at the corner of 13th street and Ave I into the Clarence Saunders store on Broadway, assuming management of the business and will be in charge when the doors are opened to the public this morning.

Many changes have been seen in the methods employe in handling the grocery business since Mr. Miller first entered the field here. Ten years ago large wagon loads of groceries were hauled from the store opened by Mr. Miller here to the various ranches over the plains, and the popularity of city delivery but not reached its peak at that time.

"I am more interested in the business than ever before, and while some of the changes have seemed awkward, experience has proven the necessity of handling a larger volume of merchandise with the least possible overhead expense, and in adopting the Clarence Saunders plan I believe I have made it possible to sell more groceries at less cost than by methods I have employed in the past," Mr. Miller said yesterday.

Button Gwinnett, singer of the Declaration of Independence, from Georgia, left only nineteen autographs. One sold for $22,000 recently.

Kiwanis-Rotary Junior League At Plainview

PLAINVIEW, March 17.—The Junior League which was organized a short time ago by the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs is creating a great deal of interest among the younger aspirants of the city. It is presided over by the above clubs who furnish all the equipment and a member of the club is appointed each day to umpire the games between them. There is already about eight or ten teams organized. A handsome silver loving cup is the trophy that goes to the winner, and each team is hot after it. This will give Coach Allen better material to work with as the boys grow older, and many of them bid to become fair players.

Judge Kinder a well known citizen and baseball enthusiast has been chosen to preside over the league, and he will officiate in the same manner as commissioner K. M. Landis of the big league, and he will settle all of their controversies as though they were a real organized major league. He takes a great deal of interest in it and we feel as though a better man could not have been chosen.

"Ducky" Allen started his team off Monday as though he was working for a game with a big league club, and when he called them in they were ready to quit. He is letting the pitchers cut them a loose a little now and they are showing some promising stuff. With Teague back at third working with Jim Craig and McMurray back in the box the team is, beginning to look like a million dollars. Allen has more men out this year than he has ever had before. He has about 25 men out aspiring for positions and it's going to be hard to choose a team from them until they have played in a game or two. They will probably have the chance to show what they can do this week as a practice game is being arranged with the strong Wayland nine.

PLACE ANY ELECTRIC STOVE BESIDE THE
WESTERN ELECTRIC. COMPARE THEM!

We realize, probably more fully than others, that women of today are turning enthusiastically to the electric stove. We have concentrated our efforts for some time on electric stoves, have tried most all the best known makes. We're willing to be good sports and have everyone interested in buying an electric stove place the stove that they might have in mind beside the Western Electric. If we can't positively convince you of Western Electric superiorities and bigger value we deserve to lose the sale. If we do convince you we will win. Don't you want us to show you?

UTILITIES CO. STARTS MILLION DOLLAR BUILDING

A million dollar building program will keep more than sixty men busy throughout an entire year has been started here by the Texas Utilities Company and when the program has been completed the electrical equipment in the new and modern power plant will be driven by motors with a combined force of twelve thousand horse power.

Already construction work is well under way on a power plant building immediately east of the present plant of the company that is located on the Santa Fe tracks from the passenger station. The building is 4 feet long, 107 feet wide and when completed will be 30 feet high, an unusual height of the building.

has been planned to accommodate the mammoth Busch-Sulzer engines that will drive the generators in the new plant, District Manager Hubert L. Allen who has charge of the company's business in this territory said.

The new power plant building is of brick, concrete and steel construction, and the machinery and equipment that will be installed therein will represent the very latest developments in the electrical world. No power could be built at this time of a newer or better electrical equipment Mr. Allen said, as the program that has been started and which cannot be concluded in less than a year embodies plans that will be the ultimate fruition of ambitions of President R. Nelson, of St. Louis, to make the plant of the Texas Utilities Company here equal to the best that can be erected.

The power plant of the company that is now in operation here will be kept intact until two of the twelve hundred and fifty horse power engines and generating equipment has been installed in the new building.

when the old plant will be relieved of its mighty task of supplying "juice" for the lines of the company in and radiating out of Lubbock and its equipment will be moved out to give way for the enlargement of the ice manufacturing equipment that is now contained in that building. A workshop will also be located in the old power plant building, Mr. Allen said.

The first three power units that will be installed in the new plant will be in operation about September 1st, and the twelve hundred and fifty horse power Busch-Sulzer engine that was just recently installed in the old plant will then be moved into the new plant. The small engines that are now in use here will not be used in the new plant.

The building program that is under way here will be carried out by Texas Utilities engineers and builders who will be directed by Manager Hubert Allen. Walter S. Barrett, who has been connected with the company for a number of years, is chief construction foreman in charge of the erection of the new power plant building.

SAYS PROPOSED BILL FAVORS FOREIGN SHIPPING

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17.—Passage of the Bacon bill embodying the Coolidge re-organization of the shipping board would aid foreign shipping and be a detriment to American shipping, Malcolm Stewart, representing the Cincinnati chamber of commerce told the house merchant marine committee Wednesday.

If management and operation of the government merchant fleet were removed from the shipping board and placed in charge of the emergency fleet corporation, as proposed in the Bacon bill, Stewart said, the fleet "would be kicked around between the two political parties like a football."

"We would not be surprised," Stewart declared, "if the bill was passed by the British admiralty."

Representative Bacon, republican, New York, author of the measure, frequently interrupted Stewart to disagree with his views.

"The newspaper controls opinion by fixing the prospective, distributing the emphasis and manufacturing the impressions that breed opinions. The illusion of universality is exploited and commercialized by such expressions as these: 'It is the consensus of opinion here,' 'telegrams are pouring in from all sides,' 'the controversy that has been raging,' etc. Surely a matter must be of great importance and universal interest that calls for such 'saring' headlines, we say to ourselves."

"My idea is that we cannot hope for a reform of the papers apart from reform of their readers. The newspaper not only creates but echoes opinion. It is really a public utility. Papers with high ethical standards should be given a chance to survive."

"The real danger is not sensationalism, but grows out of the fact that the newspaper has the means of controlling and shaping public opinion. This is a function that belongs also to the school, the church, and the state, but unlike them the newspaper is controlled by private enterprise. The press is a business working for profit."

BROWNFIELD WORKING FOR INTEREST OF LUBBOCK

BROWNFIELD, March 17.—Brownfield is again pulling for Lubbock's interest. This time it is in behalf of the new proposed Federal Court to be established at Lubbock. Telegraphic requests and communications have been submitted from Brownfield signed by the Terry County Bar Association with Judge W. W. Price as President, and the Brownfield Chamber of Commerce signed by Judge H. R. Winston, Morgan L. Copeland has submitted figures and statistics of Brownfield and Terry County to substantiate these requests.

All the above have been directed to Senator Morris Sheppard, Senator Earl B. Mayfield and Congressman Marvin Jones at Washington, asking that a Federal Court be established at Lubbock which would alleviate the time and expense of citizens in this section incident to attending Federal Court now in districts some ways off, Brownfield's pleas in the main urge these Texas Senators and this district Congressman to support the bill during the coming session of congress and try to effect its passage. Lubbock is now engaged in the same effort to land this Federal Court and subsequent Federal building and should it be successful it will mean much to the South Plains.

The make-up man on the morning daily of my town recently placed the "Change of Location" notices under the "Death" notices.

OLD RESIDENT OF PLAINVIEW BURIED

PLAINVIEW, Mar. 17.—R. C. (Dick) Ware, 65 years old, pioneer of Plainview and the South Plains, died of pneumonia in a Fort Worth hospital at 4 o'clock Sunday morning and was buried in the Plainview cemetery at Plainview Tuesday afternoon following the funeral services conducted from his home in Plainview Tuesday.

Mr. Ware left Plainview the last of February to attend the cattlemen's convention at Amarillo and then went to Fort Worth to the Fat Stock show. While at Fort Worth he contracted the pneumonia. His wife and daughter, Mrs. F. A. Hart, who live in Plainview went to his bedside and were with him at the time of his death.

He was vice president of the First National Bank of Plainview, and one of the most prominent business men of the city. He had retired from active participation in mercantile circles. He was always conspicuous in civic and public movements and many improvements are directly due to his efforts.

He was born in Pennsylvania, and moved to Plainview twenty-five years ago. He first organized the Plainview Mercantile Company and later the Donohoe-Ware Hardware Company, and then the R. C. Ware Hardware Company. He married a daughter of J. N. Donohoe, his business associate. Mr. Ware was the principal stockholder in the Hotel Ware at Plainview which was named for him.

He was widely known throughout the Panhandle and was the leading Mason of this section. His funeral was widely attended, and Dr. E. E. Robinson conducted the services, having been a long time friend of the deceased. The active pallbearers were Dr. J. L. Guest, J. H. Slaton, M. L. Faulkner, R. A. Underwood and F. L. Brown.

Pure Tested Cotton Seed Are Received

LOCKNEY, Mar. 17.—Floyd county farmers are importing pure tested cotton seed for planting the 1926 crop, information received by the local chamber of commerce in answer to cards sent to farmers shows that the cotton acreage will be cut about ten per cent, the information also shows that Floyd county farmers have planted 110,000 acres to wheat, and about the same amount will be planted to feed, with about

Embroidery Glorifies Mary's Frock

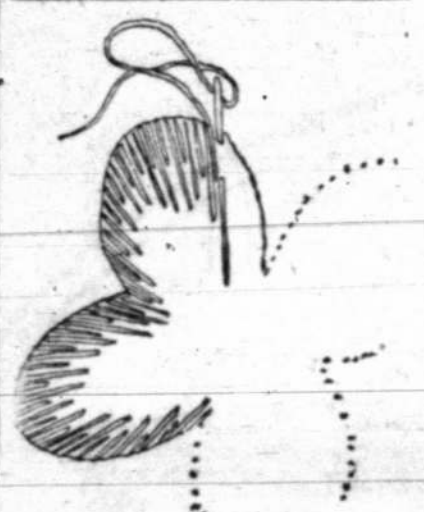

The details show so plainly how the handwork is done that words could not make it clearer. Outline the flowers, then take stitches along the edge of the outline, making one long and one short. There is no looping of the thread or anything of a similar nature to complicate the work for the inexperienced needleworker.

Of course, if one is very timid, there are ways of achieving the same effect without resorting to embroidery, for some of the handsome printed silks may be used for the sleeves of the dress. Fabrics and colors are so closely related this season that it is not at all difficult to harmonize them, even when the contrasts are rather bold.

The skirt of this dress is laid in plaits on either side and there is a narrow belt of self-material, which is attached to the sides, then carried to the back and tied in a bow.

The revers and collar are of self-material and there are buttons on the Long and Short-Stitch Detail of Embroidery.

Front of the blouse to correspond with those used on the belt. Carried out in ruff this dress would be ideal for sports or general wear. As a summer model, it would be ideal in lines, the linen and cotton mixtures or the smart knit fabrics.

Ladies' and Misses' Dress No. 259, cut in sizes 14 years and 20 to 44 sizes bust. Will be mailed, postpaid, upon receipt of 15 cents. Be sure to give correct number and size of pattern desired when ordering. Write name and address plainly. Send orders to Pattern Editor, this newspaper.

Granbery Talks to Tech Press Club

The public demand for sensation is what makes newspapers sensational, when they are so, Dr. J. C. Granbery declared last night to a meeting of the Tech Press club at Tech College. He found the danger from the press was not in sensational stories and flaring headlines, but in the power held by newspapers to control public opinion.

He said in part: "My own experience and observation have abundantly illustrated both sides of this question, but by far the preponderance is on the side of the good."

"The wide-awake modern man would as soon go without his breakfast as his newspaper, and if it does not come on time he is out of sorts. The newspaper is an indispensable factor in our civilization. Thru the newspaper the individual sees the world. Gossip and discussion in small isolated communities are replaced in larger centers by the newspaper."

"The newspaper is the medium thru which progressive thought is disseminated, and the newspaper is most often on the side of progress. As a rule it is just as forward looking as the people will stand for. If some papers are sensational, it is because there are sensation-loving people to appeal to. Life is often sensational. Experience is dramatic. The 'sensational' paper enables the reader to forget the monotony and hardness of his life for the time being."

"The real danger is not sensation-

NEW YORK FINANCE

BY E. WALTER MOCKLER

cial.

NEW YORK, Mar. 17.—Wednesday's trading offered concrete evidence of the unwillingness of the public to take more than an academic interest in stocks at the time.
Either the general public has more pressing uses for its money or is still endeavoring to recover from the shock it received early in the month when the top of the market caved in. Inasmuch as the general list is not so very far below the levels then existing, it is fair to assume that the outside element is waiting for more advantageous levels before entering on the long side again.
Here and there abortive attempts were made to bolster the market but no sooner did the pool buying lag than offerings increased. As a matter of fact there were plenty of stocks offered, even on the moderate rallies. The market suffered more from lack of real support than from this pressure, however. Stocks were for sale but not on the dips. Furthermore there was no definite sign of aggressive bear operations. In general, the list, both industrial and rail, sagged from its own weight.

Part of the answer to the current unsteadiness of stock prices might be found in the cables. While not all stock traders are capable of making the fine analysis necessary to strike judgment on condition, it does not require an expert cook to tell when the food is burned. By the same token it does not require an economist to see that the result at Geneva were anything but satisfactory and that the situation behind the Belgian franc is anything but reassuring.

With German entrance into the League of Nations postponed at least until September and Locarno threatened as a result of the disclosure of secret pacts, with Belgian authorities endeavoring to pass along the blame for the collapse in the franc it would require something very definite in the way of bullish developments here to offset the cables. Nothing of this nature is in sight or in prospect.
Belgian francs dipped below the four cent level Wednesday and closed considerably below the previous closing a new lower for the year has been reached. After having been pegged at 4.54 for many months, the current break in the Belgian franc might mean anything. Bankers in close touch with the situation are inclined to discredit reports emanating from Brussels, that the collapse was due to the failure of foreign banks to keep verbal promises regarding the support of the rate. It is pointed out here that Belgians probably figured the 4.54 peg was too high to be maintained and that a lower stabilization level was being sought.

Call money continues at 4 1-4 per cent with little drain on the market.
The recent drastic shake out in the stock market has gone a long way toward correcting the monetary position of the market and money conditions are now a secondary consideration. In the many cases where investments yields has been forced below the going rate for money, the position has been re-adjusted.

TRIAL OF FIVE ITALIAN FASCISTS ACCUSED OF MATTEOTTI MURDER IS UNDER WAY NOW AT CHIETA

By THOMAS B. MORGAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
CHIETA, Italy, March 17.—(U.P.) The trial of five Fascists for the murder of Giacomo Matteotti, socialist deputy in the Italian chamber, has opened here although Counsel for Matteotti's widow and children, as the "parte civile," withdrew from the case charging that "proper legal procedure was prohibited."

The accused are: Amerigo Dumini, aged 32, born in St. Louis, U. S. A., of an American mother and Albin Volpi, Giuseppe Viola, Amleto Poveromo and Augusto Malacra, all native Italians.

The crime was committed on June 10, 1924, the day before the murdered deputy was scheduled to make an address in the chamber of deputies in which he was expected to disclose financial irregularities of the Fascist regime.

The transcripts of the evidence is contained in 400 closely typewritten pages and took the examining magistrates and experts over a year in its compilation.

The death of Matteotti caused a storm of protest throughout the country. The press was occupied for months giving grim account and gruesome details on how the assassination was perpetrated. It was charged by the newspapers opposed to Fascism that the murder was political and that men in the government were involved. To the insistent demands of the public and a considerable group in his own party, Prime Minister Mussolini gave the solemn assurance that justice would be done and the guilty brought to trial.

According to the testimony gathered by the examining magistrates, Deputy Matteotti was seized by a gang of men of June 10, near his home on the Tiber. He had just left his wife before entering the house and had gone back to buy a package of cigarettes. The gang rushed him into an automobile and fled into the Roman campagna.

The next day, Signora Matteotti reported to the Rome police authorities that her husband was missing. The police confessed to know nothing. Socialist deputies interpellated Mussolini in the chamber of deputies on the fate of the missing deputy. The premier reported that there was no information at hand. The mystery increased. No trace could be found of the victim's whereabouts.

The existence of a "cotecha" was charged by the opposition parties. Matteotti was claimed as a victim. Subsequently, Dumini was arrested as he was about to board a train for Milan. Public indignation grew and it was then that the group of Fascist deputies, headed by Carlo del Croix, asked Mussolini to rid Fascism of its turbulent elements. Mussolini then made the promise that those participating in the affair would be brought to justice even if it involved his friends.

No trace of Matteotti, dead or alive, was found for months. In the meantime, press and public were in a continual uproar. Finally, the coat of the missing deputy was found in a culvert about twelve miles from Rome in early August. On August 16, a body was found through the barking dog near Riano, not far distant from the place where the coat was discovered. Examination of the remains, which by this time had been reduced to a skeleton, removed all doubt that it was the body of Matteotti.

teotti. An automobile file was picked up lying on the chest of the victim. Further investigation showed that he had been stabbed to death.

In the meantime, the police had been active in running down those alleged to have committed the crime. The other four defendants were arrested in various parts of Italy and brought to Rome. The unraveling of the crime was commenced from the statements of persons who reported they had seen the struggling gang rush the victim into an automobile and carry him off.

Parallel with the apprehension of the perpetrators of the act, a series of arrests were made amongst men high up in the Fascist ranks.

The automobile used in the crime was that owned by Filippo Filippelli, editor of the Fascist newspaper, "Corriere Italiano." He was therefore arrested on the charge of complicity as he was attempting to flee the country for France. With him, on the same charge, also were arrested Cesare Rossi, chief of Mussolini's press bureau, and Giovanni Marinelli, financial secretary of the Fascist party.

In the general scandal, Aldo Finzi, deputy and under-secretary of internal affairs, was forced to resign because of the violent attacks his administration of his office suffered.

Serious charges were then brought forward against General De onio, who was director of the bureau of public safety. Inasmuch as he was a senator it was necessary to try him before the Senate assembled as a high court. He was acquitted on the grounds that no crime was involved in his conduct of his office.

The examining magistrates finished their investigations late last year. The case was then taken up by the "sezione di accusa," which formulated the indictment. On December 1, the "sezione di accusa," announced its decision and ordered the release of Rossi, Filippelli and Marinelli inasmuch as they had not actively participated in the murder and thus the charges against them, as accomplices, came under the king's amnesty of that time. Several other minor defendants identified with the Matteotti affair also were released.

The trial is expected to last about ten days. The mass of evidence will be read by the chamber of the court. The court is composed of a president of the court and two judges. The state is represented by the procurator of the crown. The withdrawal of counsel for the Matteotti family makes the trial practically without opposing counsel under the Italian system. The trial is therefore expected to be without much incident. The crown prosecutor will establish the law in the case.

Kemper Fired for Saying Roads Won't Take Second Course

By United News

AUSTIN, March 17.—The report filed by W. P. Kemper to the state highway commission following his inspection of the 419 miles of highways which were included in the re-surfacing contract held by the American Road Co., and which was cancelled as the result of suit brought against the company by Attorney General Dan Moody, was the immediate cause of Kemper being relieved of his duties as acting state highway engineer, it was learned from a reliable source Tuesday.

He reported that in his opinion a second course treatment on the roads in the existing condition would not be feasible. Kemper declared that the highways already had an over supply of asphalt on them and that another treatment would cause gumming of the surface during the summer months.

SECRET OF MY FLAKY, TENDER

Pie crust

NECESS I have always been rather proud of my crust. But recently I have found a way to make it "shorter," flakier and more tender than ever.

Secret is in the shortening I use. Since I changed to I wouldn't think of using any other cooking fat.

Are if you will try Crisco in the following recipe for pastry, you too will never return to your former old-fashioned shortening with its uncertain results.

Mrs. Florence Austin Chase

Plain Pastry

2 cups flour
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup Crisco
Ice water

Sift flour and salt. Cut in the Crisco with a knife. Add only water enough to hold the ingredients together. Do knead. Chill thoroughly. Divide dough in two parts and roll thin on a slightly floured board. Line a pie pan with half the pastry. Pinch pastry with the fingers to make a tight edge and prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in very hot oven (460 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes. For a 2-cup pie, line pie pan with pastry, put in a filling, cover with crust, trim and press edges together. Prick top to allow steam to escape. Bake in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate oven (325 degrees F.) and bake 20 minutes.

For a less rich pastry is desired, use only 1/4 cup Crisco.

DIFFERENT AND DELICIOUS PIES

Cream Pie

1/2 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 egg whites

Beat pie shell.
Four, milk, chocolate (cut in salt, and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Remove from the fire. Yolk and vanilla. Pour shell (see Plain Pastry). Pour the mixture on the beaten egg whites. Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown.

Pineapple Pie

1/2 cup flour
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup pineapple juice
1 cup hot water
1 tablespoon Crisco
Beaten pie shell

Mix flour, sugar and salt together. Add the pineapple juice and water and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Cook 15 minutes over hot water. Remove from fire, add Crisco and well drained pineapple. Pour this mixture on the beaten egg yolks and mix well. Pour the filling into a baked pie shell (see Plain Pastry). Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown.

CHILDREN BOUND OUT TO VIRTUAL SLAVERY IN 12 OF UNITED STATES FEDERAL BUREAU FINDS IN INQUIRY

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United News Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, March 17.—Child bondage—or more properly child indenture—is legalized in one fourth of this states in this great free land of law and order, according to a report just issued by the Federal Children's Bureau.

In all states, the adult is now adequately protected from the horrible effects of 2.75 beer and worse, but in 12 of them, the helpless child of unfortunate parents may be put out under contract until it is of age where its protection from abuse and mistreatment is about equal to that afforded an ill-tempered mule, except that the child, unlike his brute contemporary, has no physical means of retaliation.

The underlying principle of all of these laws which are inherited from the enlightened days of Henry VIII is that a farmer or housewife can obtain cheap help by supplying board and room to unfortunate children. These indentured children usually are freed at the age of 18 or 21 with a small amount of money—$50 or less, and an outfit of clothes. Agents of the Children's Bureau have found that keep them virtual peons until 1928 or 1940.

Since the federal child labor amendment is unlikely to be ratified activities are now being turned toward wiping out some of these medieval atrocities. In most states new legislatures are being elected and efforts will be made to obtain repeal of these laws in various states next winter.

States which legalize child indenture—some laws are worse than others—are: Arkansas, Illinois, Kansas, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia, West Virginia, Indiana, Michigan, Nevada and Wisconsin, the old free-soil states being fairly well in the majority.

Of the children bound out in Pennsylvania, federal agents discovered that more recent indentures provide for six months schooling. Clothing and sums of money ranging from $1 to $25 were provided under the various indenture forms in vogue there.

In Wisconsin, one boy recovering from pneumonia was bound out to do farm work.

A girl of 12 did house work, helped care for three children, prepared breakfast, milked five or six cows, helped with the farm work, but the man who had under contract told the federal investigators "he would never take another child unless I get one young enough so I can break them in to work."

"Many of the children," the bureau found, "worked virtually as unpaid servants in households or on farms, often deprived of schooling and recreation and sometimes cruelly treated." Of 540 indenture homes visited in Wisconsin 48 per cent were judged as detrimental to the children, only 8 per cent were classed as high grade.

Wisconsin state officials have complained that the child indenture report was issued by the federal government as part of a campaign to discredit everything in the home state of La Follette.

"That is ridiculous," replied Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau. "We issued the report as soon as we could. The report was submitted in manuscript form to Wisconsin officials. We incorporated in the printed report the statement of these officials that conditions have been improved in the two years that elapsed since the field investigation was completed. We have no desire to attack the state of Wisconsin or any other state." The investigations were made to assist in correcting conditions and usually were conducted upon invitation from or with the co-operation of local officials, it was explained. Some data that has been collected is being withheld from publication out of deference to state authorities who are trying to correct conditions.

Great Missionary Lecturer Will Be Here Friday Night

Dr. Royal J. Dye, pioneer missionary to Africa and popular lecturer and author, will appear at the First Christian church here Friday evening at 7:45 to deliver one of his stirring messages that have thrilled audiences throughout many states.

Dr. Dye is the outstanding missionary speaker of America; his strength as a speaker lies in the fact that he, himself, for many years, was a pioneer missionary in the midst of difficult conditions in Central Africa.

Dr. and Mrs. Dye were in the group that established the work at Bolenge, in the Belgian Congo, one thousand miles inland from the West coast of Africa. He began work in Bolenge in 1899, having been attacked by germs of sleeping sickness he was compelled in 1907, to return from that field.

Since that time he has been a flaming torch for Africa all over America.

For many years Dr. Dye was the only doctor within 1,100 miles from the Congo River. The work there was very difficult and the influence of the White Doctor very strong.

With Dr. Dye's medical science, however, he was able to overcome the terror of witchcraft, and after four years the first converts were baptized.

Dr. Dye was instrumental in establishing a great church at Bolenge which now has a membership of two thousand.

A study of the development of the work in Bolenge and the stations in the back country which sprang from it is one of the most interesting and thrilling in missionary history. Dr. Dye is a master in his description of conditions in this remote district of the world, and also in his portrayal of the power of the gospel to save the lowest and most superstitious of the world's population.

According to Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the First Christian church, the people of Lubbock are given a great opportunity in the appearance of Dr. Dye here, and all are invited to be in attendance. No admission charge will be made.

In an incautious moment Henry Ford said the other day: "The Jews are highly necessary in America. They keep the people stirred up with their business ability. Otherwise we'd sit back and take it easy."

A recent check disclosed that over one hundred cities and towns in Texas have organized Little Theatres and that an unusual amount of activity and interest centers around the community theatre. The week of April 5th the Dallas Little Theatre will sponsor the first annual Texas Little Theatre Tournament, in an effort to further stimulate interest in the movement. The following cities will be represented in the tournament: Houston, Denison, T. C. U. Ft. LARGE SKELETON IS FOUND NEAR MCKINNEY

McKINNEY, Texas, March 17.—The skeleton of a giant, over seven feet tall has been uncovered at Walnut Grove, near here, by two men doing excavation work.

According to the men the skeleton was buried in a sitting position and gives indications of having been buried for over a century. It is believed to be that of an Indian. Old residents have expressed the belief that the site of the discovery was formerly used as an Indian burial ground long before the advent of the white man to this section.
