TOPOGRAPHY WORK IN TEXAS WILL CEASE.

Austin, April 10.—Funds for topographic surveys in Texas have become so low that the representatives of the United States Geological Survey are about to be withdrawn from Texas and will leave within 30 days, it was learned Friday at the State Board of Water Engineers. This does not apply to the joint stream measurement work under C. R. Ellsworth, United States Geological Survey engineer, with offices in the Board of Water Engineers headquarters.

As a result of the depletion of the small appropriations, the conservation and reclamation interests are arranging to ask the next Legislature for an adequate appropriation to renew the work on a large scale, as was done four years ago when $600,000 was provided and duplicated by the Federal Government. The State dollars are matched by the Federal Government.

Under the agreement made with the Federal authorities, the surveys on the South Fork and the Llano will be made and a dam site located for the storage of water to irrigate close to 40,000 acres. This is the last work possible under the present conditions, and was made possible only by the Federal authorities financing it. The dam would be located a short distance above Junction, county seat of Kimble County.

Since only $5,000 is available for the next fiscal year, hardly enough to make a start with, there will be no more surveys of consequence under the major plan of conservation and reclamation until after September 1, 1927, unless the 40th Legislature should make emergency appropriations after it meets next January. Without that action there would be no surveys, as it would be unlikely that the Governor would approve large deficiencies for such purpose.

All members should attend the Parent-Teachers' meeting at the school house, Saturday, the 24th. This will be an important meeting.

LOCAL LAUNDRY HAS BEST WEEK'S BUSINESS.

Our local laundry, while small and not yet adequately equipped, is an example of what service will do when continually and enthusiastically applied to any line of business.

When the laundry was established a year or so ago, many predicted that it would not receive enough patronage to make it a going proposition.

Messrs. Haselwood and Sons have been operating the laundry for several months and their business has been gradually increasing, and from information gathered in talking with their customers, there is no question but that the business is going to continue to grow, for their work is meeting the exacting requirements of the public, and the Haselwoods are establishing themselves as necessary factors in the town's rapid development.

During the first four days of last week, the laundry did more than they had done in any previous week, which, with the work turned out Friday and Saturday, put their gross business for the week, far ahead of any previous week.

SCHOOL BOND VOTE LOSES AT ROOSEVELT.

An election was held in the Roosevelt Common School District last Saturday for deciding whether the district would vote a bond of $6,000 for the purpose of constructing a modern fireproof school building.

A rather light vote was cast, and the result was 24 for and 36 against the bonds.

Joe P. Riddle and son, Joe Jr., were here last week from Stanton, where they moved about the first of the year. Mr. Riddle says prospects are excellent in his country, and he likes the location, but he still likes the Hill Country better than any other place, and expects to return before many years and make this his permanent home. The Eagle was glad to see Joe and to learn that he and his family were getting on nicely.

FLOWER CARAVAN TO SPEND NIGHT HERE.

The following letter was recently received by A. W. Brown, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in regard to the caravan of some fifty or sixty cars that will leave Houston Saturday week, and will probably spend the second or third night out in Junction.

The letter follows:

"Gentlemen: We call your attention to enclosed clipping from the Post-Dispatch giving the particulars of our wild flower caravan. The caravan is to leave Houston April 24, and is being sponsored by the Post-Dispatch and the Out Door Nature Club.

The party will be largely composed of lovers of nature, photographers and wild flower experts. In the party will be Lawrence H. Daingerfield, world traveler. In this connection our Mr. Daingerfield offers to give a lecture with moving slides on outdoor nature life of Hawaii. This is provided your organization can arrange a suitable hall with stereopticon and screen. The lecture is free to the public and without obligation on your part except to provide the lecture, lasting one hour.

"As your city is included in the itinerary we are sure that you will become interested and give our tour as much publicity as possible. Many automobiles have already signed for the trip and we hope the caravan to assume considerable size.

"Anything you may do for us will be greatly appreciated.

Yours truly,

S. W. Pigue,

Automobile Editor."

Arrangements have been made for the lecture by Mr. Raingerfield, as Mr. Hankins has kindly offered the Hall for their use the night they are in Junction. Other arrangements for taking care of the crowd and welcoming them to the Hill Country, will be made shortly.

Mr. Pigue, the Automobile Editor of the Houston Post-Dispatch, and Mr. J. Frank Thomas, reporter and photographer.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THE DUMP GROUND FUND.

The following gave $2: Butt & Garrett, Wiggley's Drug Store, Wahl Brothers & Jordan, Junction Eagle, Junction Hardware Co., Schreiner-Hodges Co., and J. A. Heyman; the following gave $1: A. G. Farmer, Caviness Brothers Garage, Arthur Smon Store, S. F. Filling Station, E. O. Lowgren, Junction Tailor Shop, Bissett's Market, Wright's Bakery, Junction Grocery Co., William's Cafe, Phillip Joseph, Alex J. Hamer Co., O. K. Meat Market, Powell Garage, Stevenson, Baker & Knetsch, S. A. Griffith, and Fritz Hotel. The State Bank gave $2.50, the National Bank $1.50, and the following gave 50 cents each: L. R. Hodges, Howell Wright, Albert Taylor, and Buster's Barber Shop.

The committee has expended the funds collected. A little more work is needed and will be looked after by the committee, if other funds can be provided. Any one who has not contributed, and who wishes to do so, please see George Braley or H. G. Perry, or Mrs. W. F. Riley. Any additional funds received will be used to further improve the dump grounds. Ten to fifteen dollars more is needed.

TRUSTEE ELECTION.

In the recent trustee election, only seven school districts held elections, at which candidates for local trustees and a county trustee at large and one for Precinct No. 2, were voted on.

Frank L. Wilson and Wilson Buster were candidates for trustee at large, and received the following vote: Wilson 121, and Buster 53. A. L. Mudra was elected county trustee from Precinct No. 2.

The schools at which elections were held were: Roosevelt, Copperas, Cleo, Eight Mile, London and Evergreen.

No information is available as to who were elected local trustees in the several school districts. Where no election was held the old trustees hold over until successors are elected or appointed.

For Summer Sports

Simplicity is the key-note of this practical two-piece frock for Summer sports wear. Of striking heather-toned jersey, the inverted plaits on the shoulder, and the buckled belt relieve it of much of its severity of line, while the skirt, with the popular 'E'ek' plait, allows the perfect freedom necessary to sports.

BAPTISTS ASK HELP FOR ORPHANS HOME.

The ladies of the Baptist Church are arranging to send a shipment of eggs to Buckner Orphans' Home, as they have done in the past.

This is a worthy undertaking and one that this paper is more than glad to assist in giving publicity to, and one in which any one can help.

All who desire to help will bring or send the eggs they can give to the home of Mrs. J. A. Heyman, where they will be packed for shipment. Attention is especially called to the fact that all eggs must be delivered here not later than April 27th, which is Tuesday week.

The following is a part of the statement of Joe D. Buckner, superintendent of the home in requesting eggs for the orphans:

"For the past two years the children at Buckner Orphans Home have enjoyed a bountiful supply of eggs donated by people from all over the State in response to an appeal published in the Baptist Standard. Figured at the nominal price of 25 cents per dozen, our friends gave to the Home in this way last year more than $5,000. Had we bought as many eggs thru the year, paying prevailing prices according to the season, they would have cost much more than that amount.

"There are many people who love the orphans and want to help who are not able to give much money but who can give a few dozens of eggs. Judging by the fact that the market in Dallas is flooded with eggs at this time, offered at a very low price, the supply over the State must be plentiful. So now is the time to give the orphan children another egg shower. Remember our cold storage facilities are such that we can take care of an almost unlimited supply, so don't be afraid of sending too many."

Mrs. Frank Cowser and children are visiting relatives here. They live at McAllen, where Mr. Cowser is stationed as a game warden.

CHURCH NOTICE.

Not desiring our meeting to conflict with the meetings of the other churches of our town, in December of last year we published in the columns of this paper, that we had arranged with Elder Lyle Price, of Wills Point, Texas, to conduct a protracted meeting for the Church of Christ, here in Junction, beginning June 26th, 1926, and continuing till the 14th of July.

We would be glad if the public would remember the above dates, and help us to make this a great meeting; Bro. Price is one of our most interesting speakers, and it will do you good to hear him.

AN EXAMPLE IN CIVIC ENTERPRISE SET BY A WEST TEXAS TOWN.

The Anniston (Ala.) Star:—Anniston is making splendid progress, has a citizenship alive to the opportunity for making Anniston a big city and eager to do its part in the making, but Anniston can get pointers on aggressive work for the town from at least one West Texas town of a few thousand population, situated out in the barren Hill Country, where building a town is no easy task.

One of Anniston's progressive citizens and one who has done much for this city in many ways, is recuperating from an illness in Kerrville, Texas. Not many people around here ever heard of Kerrville, for it is a small place, but it is a live, growing and coming town and its enterprising citizens are making it so.

Writing to The Anniston Star from Kerrville, W. W. Stringfellow, of Anniston, known to everyone here for his public-spirited works, says:

"Kerrville is a little Western village of four thousand population, out in the hills seventy-five miles from San Antonio. You will see from the enclosed notice from the San Antonio Express that in a recent drive for new members for the Kerrville Chamber of Commerce, which lasted one day and a half, they secured over five hundred new members. Now, suppose Anniston with its many advantages and over five times the population of the little village of Kerrville, should display a civic spirit like this and secure proportionately as many new members for our Chamber of Commerce, and all of these with the old members, put their shoulders to the wheel and gave their hearty support to the president of our Chamber of Commerce? At this time, when the eyes of the country are focused on the South, don't you believe we could soon double our population?"

"Every man in Anniston who owns a home, a building or a piece of land or who is interested in any way in the upbuilding of the town should at once join the Chamber of Commerce. It is only by co-operation and team work that Anniston can progress, and these are golden opportunities that we are allowing to slip by us."

W. W. Stringfellow.

The clipping from the San Antonio Express mentioned by Mr. Stringfellow, said under a Kerrville date of March 25:

"The two teams which were selected at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night to solicit members for this organization, brought their campaign to a close Wednesday noon, with the result of 575 members being secured and a budget of $6,000 being pledged for the year."

"This is the largest membership the Chamber of Commerce has ever had and wonderful results are expected to be accomplished this year."

"Charles Mason, the newly-elected president, is a young business man, born and reared in Kerrville, and he has entered upon his new duties with the hearty support and indorsement of the entire Chamber of Commerce as well as the citizens of Kerrville."

Annistonians should give serious consideration to Mr. Stringfellow's suggestion that everyone in Anniston who is interested in any way in the upbuilding of the city should belong to the Chamber of Commerce and give support to that organization's efforts to make Anniston the city we wish it to be.

The Anniston Chamber is doing a wonderful work, but it is not receiving the wholehearted support of the citizenship generally that it should have. The several new industries secured for Anniston through the efforts of the Chamber during the past year and thus far this year are but some of the fruits of that body's work. It constantly is working for a greater Anniston.

Unless such business organizations are given adequate financial support and have the hearty co-operation of the citizenship of a town they cannot do effective work. With five hundred more members than it now has and each member a working unit in the organization, the Anniston Chamber of Commerce would do marvelous things for Anniston. Why not put on a membership effort in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce and make it an aggressive one, such, for instance as the little town of Kerrville staged.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME "APRIL" IS IN DOUBT.

The commonly accepted explanation of the derivation of the name "April" comes from the Latin aperio, I open, referring to the time when buds open. But doubt has recently been cast on this explanation by scholars who say the Romans did not give recognition to Nature's processes in naming the months, and certainly they did not do so with the other months.

A later explanation is that April was considered by the Romans as the month of Venus because the reproductive powers of Nature are set going in April, that the Latin Aprilis (the name given the month by the Romans) was Aphrodis, founded on the Greek name of Venus—Aphrodite.

LYNCH DAVIDSON AS WE FIRST SAW HIM IN HIS HOUSTON OFFICE.

(By Tom P. Cooper, Editor Tyler American.)

There are three principal candidates in the race for governor of Texas. Two of these candidates have been more or less prominent in the public press during the last few days. It is about the Houston candidate and his everyday routine affairs that I wish to tell my readers in order that they too, may get the same insight into the affairs that have shaped the destiny of Lynch Davidson and that may cast their influence upon the history of the State of Texas if he is elected to the high office to which he aspires.

It is a well known fact that two years ago Lynch Davidson was only eliminated from the second primary by a few thousand votes, having made a most remarkable campaign, in the face of the fact that he was surrounded on all sides by strong and able opponents. Immediately after the results of the first primary election were declared, Mr. Davidson announced that he would be in the race two years from that time, again asking the people for their suffrage. Since that time neither Mr. Davidson nor his many friends in all parts of Texas have deviated from that decision, nor has the announcement of other candidates for governor called for any material change in his plans. Therefore, it is not amiss at this particular time to state that Lynch Davidson is in the race to the finish.

The writer was recently called to Houston on important business and while in the South Texas metropolis had several hours to spare before train time. I telephoned Mr. Davidson and he invited me up to his office on the twelfth floor of the Second National Bank Building. I had never had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Davidson personally, although I supported him in the first primary two years ago, and could only hazard a guess as to the nature of the man I was about to meet. Naturally a country newspaper man stands just a little bit in awe at the prospect of shaking hands with a millionaire, and though his voice over the phone sounded pleasant enough, I was not sure of the kind of reception I would receive at the hands of one of Texas' most outstanding political and financial figures.

A walk of two or three blocks from the Rice Hotel brought me to the building in which Mr. Davidson has his office. Stepping into a crowded elevator, I was whisked skyward altogether too fast to have time in which to frame a fitting and proper salutation for the governor, but after entering a door on the opaque glass of which appeared the legend, "Lynch Davidson & Company," I forgot the phrases I had framed in contemplation of the sight which greeted me. Seated at desks, a number of people were scattered about over a large office, typewriters were clicking industriously and all were busily engaged at their respective tasks. A soft voice at my elbow inquired my business and when I told her Mr. Davidson was expecting me, she replied that for the moment he was engaged in his private office, but escorting me to another door labeled "private," she assured me the governor would "not be long," and handed me a copy of the morning paper, telling me to just "make myself at home." The young lady, I soon learned, was Mr. Davidson's private secretary.

When I asked her if Mr. Davidson had many callers, she answered in the affirmative, and I soon found that her answer was correct. I learned to my surprise, however, that very few of these calls were of a political nature. An atmosphere of business seemed to permeate the length and breadth of the entire suite of offices occupied by Lynch Davidson & company. The click of typewriters and adding machines could be heard on all sides and the old fashioned air of secrecy which I had always associated with the headquarters of gubernatorial candidates was entirely lacking. Callers and employees alike had their minds on the business at hand and everything moved along like clock work, without the least friction or delay, showing that business was being transacted in the least time and in such volume as to be entirely incomprehensible to one used to the less hustling activities of a country newspaper office. But I knew it all spelled system, and that's where Mr. Davidson "shines." Lack of system has put many thriving and otherwise substantial business enterprises on the rocks. So it dawned upon me, sitting there in Lynch Davidson's office, that it was by hard work, close application to business, and system, that the one time young country sheep herder had step by step, climbed the ladder of success until he was now chief executive of this powerful smooth working business machine. Unconsciously I contrasted this scene with the cumbersome, unwieldy machine we call State Government, and wondered if the latter, too, could be made to function as smoothly under the guiding hand of Lynch Davidson.

While thus absorbed, I suddenly became aware of another's presence. Standing before me was the man of whom I had asked a few minutes of his time. With a smile on his face, and in most pleasant voice, he spoke. It was like meeting an old time friend from the start of our conversation, and I half expected him to ask me how were the folks, and if business was good with me. Lynch is one of those kind of fellows and one just can't but feel at home around him. When I told him that my visit was purely of a personal nature, that I had other business in Houston and while waiting for my train, he came obsessed with the desire to see and talk with him, he seemed to dismiss all else from his mind but that which pertained to my individual welfare. He insisted upon taking me for a drive over the city and pressed upon me an invitation to be with him in his home. But being convinced that my visit was of short duration and that I was going to take the next train home, he was not long in getting down to cases. By cases, I mean politics and his race for governor. Knowing that I had supported him in his last campaign, and having the assurance that I was for him in his present one, he felt no hesitancy in delving into the political situation pertaining to his candidacy, and for two hours or more, while attending also to his routine office work, he went over with me and explained in minute detail matters that were nearest his heart and soul concerning and looking to the best interests and welfare of the people of Texas.

When I saw Mr. Davidson in this intimate "close-up" and heard him tell of the many beneficial things he can do for Texas as its governor, I then got a true insight into the real reason why a man, more than twice a millionaire, would be willing to sacrifice his time and money in serving his State. Lynch Davidson is not an idealist; his financial rating denies that. He is an honest-to-goodness, successful business man, who is anxious to apply successful business methods to the functions of State Government, and he knows it will work because it worked in all cases where he has applied these principles while Lieutenant Governor and resulted in the successful rehabilitation of the state railroad. That such principles applied all along the line of state government will work wonderful changes in Texas, I am not the least bit inclined to doubt.

One of the surprising things about Lynch Davidson—and it

IF IT'S PAGAN, IT'S HARMLESS

When Gitché Manito, the Good Mystery, created the earth it was bare, without trees or shrubs. Then he created two Indians, a man and a woman. This, in Indian Mythology, represents the Creation. Long ago a great storm came. The Indians baked a great earthen pot and in this pot two of them saved themselves. Also two rattlesnakes were saved in a like manner. When the waters sank a dove was sent to find land. It came back with a grain of sand which immediately stretched becoming dry land. This is the Indian version of the Flood. Thunder has a nest where a very small bird sits upon her eggs during fair weather. When an egg hatches, the skies are rent with bolts of thunder. Such is Indian mythology which is to be taught to the young people of the Cheyenne high school by Chief Brave Hawk, a full-blooded Sioux chieftain from the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota. Fifty years ago Sheridan sent Custer to the Little Big Horn to teach the Indians the power of the Great White Father. Today the grand-nephew of Chief Rain-in-the-Face teaches the descendants of the white soldiers the beauties of Indian lore as told to the dusky boys and girls who knelt at the knees of some old Nokomis hundreds of years ago.

And it is all permissible. No one objects. Why should they? For this is not the forbidden Biblical cosmology, it is only a pagan cosmology, and therefore wholly unobjectionable.—Dearborn Independent.

DISTRICT JUDGE DIES

R. H. Burney, for more than seventy years a resident of Kerr County and for the past twenty two years, District Judge, died in Uvalde on April 2nd.

Judge Burney was recognized as one of the outstanding members of the judiciary in the State. More than seventy years ago, he moved to Kerr County with his father, who was engaged in ranching and operating the first steam saw mill in the county. From 1886 to 1894 he served as State Senator for what was the largest district in Texas, extending west to El Paso.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. P. Dickey, of the Presbyterian Church and the Masonic Order, at Kerrville last Sunday.

L. J. Brucks of Uvalde, has been appointed to succeed him.

The appearance of the Heyman Drug Store was made more attractive last week when two new soda booths were placed on the right of the entrance. The material is of solid oak to match the other fixtures of the store. Two large mirrors are in place on the east wall running the length of the two booths. Battleship linoleum has also been placed on the floor recently. Mr. Heyman is alive to the needs of his business in keeping pace with the town's progress, and his store is one of the most up-to-date to be found in this section of the country, far above the average for a town of this size.

showed the greatness of the man—that he knew so many people, not only in Smith County, but in all parts of Texas, as well, people of moderate means and standing in their respective communities. Without the least effort at remembrance, he would ask me how so and so was getting along, and so and so was neither a banker nor a big lawyer, but ranked among the common herd. However, after I had come to know Lynch better, and after realizing that he, himself, had come up from the common herd, I readily understood why it was that his thoughts were of the common people—people who earn their living by the sweat of their brow. To illustrate: He is the head of a number of lumber companies in Houston and South Texas, as well as other parts of the State. These companies build homes and sell them on long time to people unable to own a home by any other means. To these people he is known as a just and reasonable man, and none hesitate to go to him with their troubles, knowing that he is always the friend of the poor man.

Mr. Davidson showed me many telegrams 'stacks of them' to be exact) of encouraging nature, and letter after letter some of them written by the trembling hands of aged mothers, wishing him God speed in his undertaking and assuring him of their loyal support. I was reminded then that Lynch Davidson enjoys a greater heritage in the loyalty of his friends than could possibly accrue to him through office holding—even the highest within the gift of the people of Texas.

Notwithstanding his talk and demeanor smacked not least of egotism—and that from one who has every right to feel just a little proud of himself—plain as an old shoe, yet wearing the polish of a true Southern gentleman, Lynch Davidson made a lasting impression upon me. That impression is if he is elected governor, he will be the servant of all the people and not pressed under the thumb of a favored few. He will not only give Texas a business administration, but will give Texas an honest administration—for one has only to look Lynch Davidson squarely in the eye to become convinced that he is inherently honest; an honesty instilled into him by a Christian home and a hand that led him rightly along the perilous paths of boyhood.

FRIENDS OF RIGHT KIND.

The editor likes friends as well as anybody and appreciates them as much; yet it has never been his policy to try to make friends. His position is that friendship should be a normal quality, and the artificial variety is not worth much. Some people make friends for business reasons, and play the part of friends for policy sake; but it would be a better idea if everybody would live upright lives, and always be duly respectful to others, but never fawning. Then the friends who would be of the right kind, be sincere, and to be relied upon in emergencies—or when there is no emergency. At least such a man will have the confidence of others, if not their friendship.—Christian Commonweal.

Shoes That Arouse One's Envy

"It's really remarkable!"

"What in the world are you talking about, Edith?"

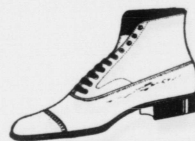

"Remember those stunning pumps Louise was wearing yesterday?"

"I should say I do. I'd certainly like to know where she had them made."

"Well, here's the remarkable thing about it. She didn't have them made at all. She bought them at Joseph's, and, can you imagine, they cost only $5.00. She told me that they carry only the finest quality, and that they wear and wear and wear."

A most distinguished array of Spring models, with the new notes carried out in the most whimsical manner.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF COWARDICE.

(Wesley Peacock, Ph. B.)

When I scolded the fox terrier for attacking the cat he ran under the house. I have never punished this dog. Then why does he manifest such fear and cowardice upon the slightest show of resistance? For the same reason that some boys at school lag behind in the class room, on the playground, or in public exhibitions; and for the same reason that some men are unable to speak in public. When this dog was a puppy a little boy used to whip it, whereupon it hid under the house. In the same litter were five other puppies that were whipped by the same little tyrant, and they too, will run under the house when it thunders. They always will.

Fear is an instinct, natural and benign, making for self-preservation; but when associated with the emotion of terror, it becomes baneful and destructive, making for cowardice. The hen's fear of the hawk would lead to flight but for the natural emotion of mother love excited by the presence of her brood. Thus in the new situation attack takes the place of flight, and the hawk is routed.

Punishment may be necessary, but it is always serious to punish a child. The purpose of punishment is correction. There can be no character without correction. The puppy does not know why it is punished, and it hides. If the child doesn't know why it is punished it hides. If the hiding impulse becomes habitual in childhood, cowardice may develop as a rule of conduct, physical, moral, mental, and spiritual. Thus the whole personality may be warped. By the same law bird dogs may become gun shy. They stand only till the gun fires. I have never known a bird shy or gun shy dog to be reclaimed, because a fright in early life can never be explained to him.

I know a "gun shy" lawyer who trembles and fails if he tries to speak while standing before the jury, but he can argue a case while sitting. The cause was an emotional shock in childhood of which he is no longer conscious. He may get relief by analysis. Peter may have labored under such a complex when he denied his Master. He got relief.

YEARLING GOATS AND KIDS SELLING WELL.

Yearling mutton goats are selling at $3.50 per head for immediate delivery, compared with $2.25 to $2.50 a year ago, and kids are being contracted at $3 for fall delivery in Sutton and Edwards Counties, the heart of the goat raising section of Texas, reported Oscar Appelt in San Angelo Saturday, from his ranch below Sonora.
Kids were contracted last spring at $2 and in the fall brought only $2.50.

Mr. Appelt recently sold 700 wether goats to L. L. Ellis of Rocksprings and made delivery early last week. He says that goat men are finding an outlet
in Mexico for their aged goats, three-year-olds and up. These animals are being sold out of the shearing pens at $3.50 per head for movement across the Ro Grande, a more satisfactory means of disposal than shipping to the packers.

"Goats after passing three years old produce lighter mohair of inferior quality and are hard on the range," Mr. Appelt explained. "They stand on their hind legs and skin the foliage and bark off trees as high as a horse can reach, at the same time tramping the weeds and grass. These goats are taken to Mexico largely for meat purposes, being cheaper to feed to ranch labor than sheep or cattle. As a result of these sales, there are a few mutton goats over 2 years old left in the country to the south."

Prices of 57 and 58 cents a pound for grown hair and 70 cents a pound for kid clips paid in opening sales of the season show that mohair now is as staple a commodity as wool or cotton, said Mr. Appelt. More uses are being found for mohair, which is making its appearance in clothing lines mixed with silk and other ne materials.

The goat country is in fine shape with timely rains recently, Mr. Appelt reported. The freeze early last week, although blighting corn and fruit, did not damage vegetation or brush.
—San Angelo Standard.

DO FIGURES LIE?

One statistician explains the coming results in the governor's race as follows: "Ma" will receive her usual 170,000 votes; Lynch Davidson will bring along his 280,000 votes; Dan Moody will have around 215-000 labor and enthusiasts who will stick with him to the last.
This will mean Lynch and Dan in the run-off with Lynch getting 70,000 Ferguson votes (non-labor) and Dan getting the 100-000 labor votes who will stick to Ferguson in the first primary leaving the final count something like this: Davidson 350-000 votes with Moody 285,000.
—Richardson Echo.

THE GOAT.

A schoolboy's essay: "A goat is about as big as a sheep if the sheep is big enough. A female goat is called a buttress;
a little goat is called a goatie.
Goats are very useful for eating up things. A goat will eat up more things than any animal that ain't a goat. My father had a goat once. My father is an awful good man.
Everything he says is so, even if it ain't so. That's all I know about goats." — Boston

THE END OF "CALICO JACK"

A MOSG the pirate crew of Capt.
Charles Vane, the scourge of the Carolina coast, was a quartermaster named John Rackham, or Calico Jack,
as he was known among his mates.
Calico Jack succeeded Vane as captain when the pirate leader refused to fight a big French ship and as a result was deposed by his crew and marooned on a little island off the coast of America. On the first day of his command Rackham captured several small vessels and thus established himself solidly with his crew of swashbucklers.

Their next prize was a ship from Madela which they captured off the island of Jamaica. This was early in December, 1718, and with their plunder the pirates retired to a little island near Jamaica and prepared to celebrate Christmas. The crew of drinking and carousing that followed was perhaps the strangest celebration of this festival ever held.

Then cheered up by their revels, the pirates sailed away seeking new victims. Their next prize was a most unexpected one. When they boarded the ship they found its cargo consisted of thieves from the famous Newgate prison in England on their way to a life of slavery in the plantations!

After capturing two more ships, Rackham sailed to the Bahamas where the governor, Capt. Woodes Rogers, sent a sloop and deprived the pirate leader of his prizes, but let him go his way unmolested. Rackham then sailed to a little island near Cuba where he and his crew retired from their pirating until all of their provisions were exhausted. After a narrow escape from capture by a Spanish vessel the pirate again took to the sea and began prey-ing upon the shipping, large and small, in the West Indies. He was not above cattle stealing and robbing fishermen's nets, and his prosperity waned.

At last he was captured by a government vessel and taken to Jamaica for trial. Among his crew were two women pirates, Anne Benny and Mary Read (whose exploits are told elsewhere in this series), the former being his wife, in pirate fashion. Just before Rackham's execution he was allowed to see his Anne, but all the comfort he received from her was to be told that she was sorry to see him there, but "if he had fought like a man, he need not have been hanged like a dog." So on November 17, 1720, Gallows Point at Point Royal in Jamaica, saw another victim swing aloft to pay for piracy on the high seas.

BRIDGE PARTY.

Mrs. H. O. Denman was hostess Friday afternoon at a delightful bridge party, complimenting the Merry Wives Club and invited friends.

Six tables of players enjoyed Mrs. Denman's gracious hospitality.

Mrs. Alex J. Hamer and Mrs. U. D. Kendrick each were awarded dainty trophies for success in the game, while Miss Clara Fritz was consoled with the booby prize.

The yellow color scheme was featured in all details.

Tuna fish salad on lettuce leaves, nut bread sandwiches, potato chips, saltine flakes, hot tea, angel food cake topped with yellow icing were served by the hostess.

See price list on Cleaning & Pressing, Junction Tailor Shop.

Alex J. Hamer and son, Kip, were San Antonio visitors the first of the week. Mr. Hamer says the country along the highway looks better than for many years.

Henry Land, one of our farmer friends from the Yates community, was in town Monday. Mr. Land is Kimble County's champion cabbage raiser and says he has a fine showing of this vegetable in his garden and hopes to supply the local demand this summer.

Election of officer for the year will be one of the important items of business to be taken up at the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association when they meet on Saturday, the 24th, at 4 p. m., in the High School Auditorium. Members are urged to come and visitors are always welcome.

rapher for the same paper, in company with D. H. Smith and E. H. Tucker, Houston Crystals salesmen, spent Saturday night in Junction and left early Sunday for Rocksprings, Leakey, and Uvalde, logging the route for the caravan. The trip from Houston will pass through Hempstead, Austin, Fredericksburg, Kerrville, Junction, Rocksprings, Leakey, Uvalde, and San Antonio.

It is expected, from inquiries received by the Post-Dispatch, that a large number of cars will join the caravan as it moves along the route.

Since the price of milk has been reduced in some instances, we will quote our prices as follows: quarts, 12½ cents; pints, 7½ cents; gallons, regular, 40 cents. We appreciate your patronage.

John Kennedy, Fort Worth business man, owner of the Globe Laboratories of that city, and of the Cleo ranch, is at the ranch this week. He bro't a carpenter with him and is having some improvements made at the ranch house.

Dr. Hardy, president of Baylor Female College at Belton, and one of the great Baptist educators of the South, was here a short while Tuesday. At 9 o'clock Tuesday morning he addressed the students of the public school and at 10 he spoke to a number of ladies gathered at the Baptist Church. Quite a number of Kimble County girls have attended Baylor, Belton, and Rev. Dekle, Baptist pastor, states that there will be at least 4 or more who will attend that school this summer.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Combined Treatment, both local and internal, and has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years. Sold by all druggists. F. J. To Those Who Judge Quality by Price

The quality of Ford cars can not be judged by the prices at which they are sold—because Ford prices are made possible by conditions that are absolutely unique in the automotive industry.

From mine to market the Ford car is the work of a single organization. The Company owns and operates the mines and forests that furnish the raw materials for its products. This material is carried over Ford transportation routes, fabricated in Ford mills, manufactured in Ford plants—and the finished product is sold to the public through the Ford dealer organization.

Thus there is but a single manufacturing profit on the car.

The following statement, previously made in an advertising message, is repeated here because of its great significance to the motoring public.

"If any other manufacturer endeavored to produce a car similar to the Ford, according to the high standards of quality in material and workmanship used by the Ford Motor Company and with the same tried and proved design, it would be impossible to offer it at anything like Ford prices. And it is well to note that even with less costly design they have not been able to meet Ford prices."
