THE gas showing in the Marland-Slaughter No. 1 test well in Cochran county, 67 miles west of Lubbock, has approximately doubled in the past two days, and slight showings of oil have been encountered, according to reports received here last night from the well.

The report stated that drilling is progressing at a slow rate, only about eight additional feet having been drilled since Sunday. The gas continues to become stronger as the depth increases.

Reports current in Lubbock late yesterday afternoon said that oil had been flowing over the top of the derrick. These were denied in a report from Morton last night through it was said there had been slight showings of oil.

Black Lime Reached. The well is drilling near 4,770 feet and is in black lime at this time. Control heads have been installed and a great amount of caution is being taken to ward off any possible danger of fire. The gas is the non-poisonous variety.

The Lubbock delegation will reach home Thursday night.

Nearly thirteen hundred Kiwanians agreed that the 1930 convention of the Texas-Oklahoma district should be held in Lubbock, climaxed three days of hard and consistent campaign work on the part of the two dozen Lubbock representatives and a large group of friends from every part of the two states.

Famous "Wailing Wall" Of The Jews In Jerusalem Is Focal Point Of Latest Clash Of Jews And Arabs

The "Wailing Wall" at Jerusalem. It has been regarded throughout the centuries as the sacred remnant of a great epoch in Jewish life...

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Three thousand years ago King Solomon completed the great temple that was to become famous throughout the world. Beside it he put up a huge stone wall as a measure of protection...

the Jews since Titus destroyed the temple in the year 68 A. D. Generation after generation of Jews has come to the wall to offer prayers, confess sins, shed tears and cherish hopes.

The Litanies They Chant There is a litany which devout Jews chant at the wall, after they have finished their prayers: For the palace that is destroyed We sit in solitude and mourn.

For the walls that are overthrown We sit in solitude and mourn. For the majesty that is departed We sit in solitude and mourn. May the Kingdom soon return to Zion: Comfort those who mourn over Jerusalem.

Oddly enough, there was less trouble at the walling wall between Jews and Moslem during the days when the Turks governed Jerusalem than there has been since. In the days of the Turks, the Jews held divine services at the wall daily.

After the World War, however, came the Palestine mandate, the departure of the Turkish officials and the Jewish renaissance. The Arabs, became fearful, and foresaw a day in which the Jews would claim, not only the walling wall, but the Mosque of Omar itself.

With their temple gone and the very site it occupied forbidden to them, the Jews have made a sacred shrine of the exterior of the wall itself. It is the famous and revered "Wailing Wall"—a shrine sacred to the League of Nations forbidding them even to erect temporary shelters, screens or benches on the site. Lately it is the Jews that have become suspicious. It has been reported that the Moslems were preparing to erect a new mosque on the outside of the wall and thus bar the Jews forever from their shrine.

Another "Wailing Wall" Second to the walling wall at Jerusalem in importance is the walling wall at Hebron, built near a cave in which Abraham is said to have buried his wife, Sarah. Unfortunately enough, conditions at Hebron are exactly parallel to conditions at Jerusalem.

The Moslems are in possession of the site of the tomb, and have built a mosque upon it. Just as in the case in Jerusalem, the Jews at Hebron are not allowed to set foot upon what is one of their most revered shrines; they can only use the pavement outside the wall, and can offer prayers there only under rigid restrictions.

Bloodshed Marked Clash A year ago, on the great religious occasion of Yom Kippur, Jerusalem had a taste of bloodshed because of the clash between Jew and Moslem. On that occasion, because of the special significance of the day, the Jewish worshippers had erected screens against the walling wall to segregate the sexes, according to their ancient ritual.

Once protested to the British governor. Strictly speaking, the erection of the screens was in violation of the law; so the governor ordered the police to remove them. The Moslem police, though led by an Englishman, abruptly interrupted the service and tore down the screens. There was rioting and considerable bloodshed; the police used their clubs freely, and all of Palest-

Hoover Does Not Fish On Sunday

DALLAS, Sept. 3. (AP)—Dr. J. B. Cranfill, Dallas Hoover leader in the elections last fall, has been assured that President Hoover does not fish on Sunday. Dr. Cranfill, concerned over reports that the president had fished on Sunday, wrote to Lawrence Richey, the executive's secretary. Richey replied today: "I have been with Mr. Hoover on his week-end outings for years. He never fishes on Sunday."

time was stirred by the conflict. Thus, since the close of the World War, the walling wall at Jerusalem, together with its counterpart at Hebron, has been a focal point for trouble. Bitter rivalries and hatreds have centered about it; always there has been a situation which could easily develop into a dreadful outburst of violence.

Coffee... From The Mountains Of Central America With A Flavor That's Different

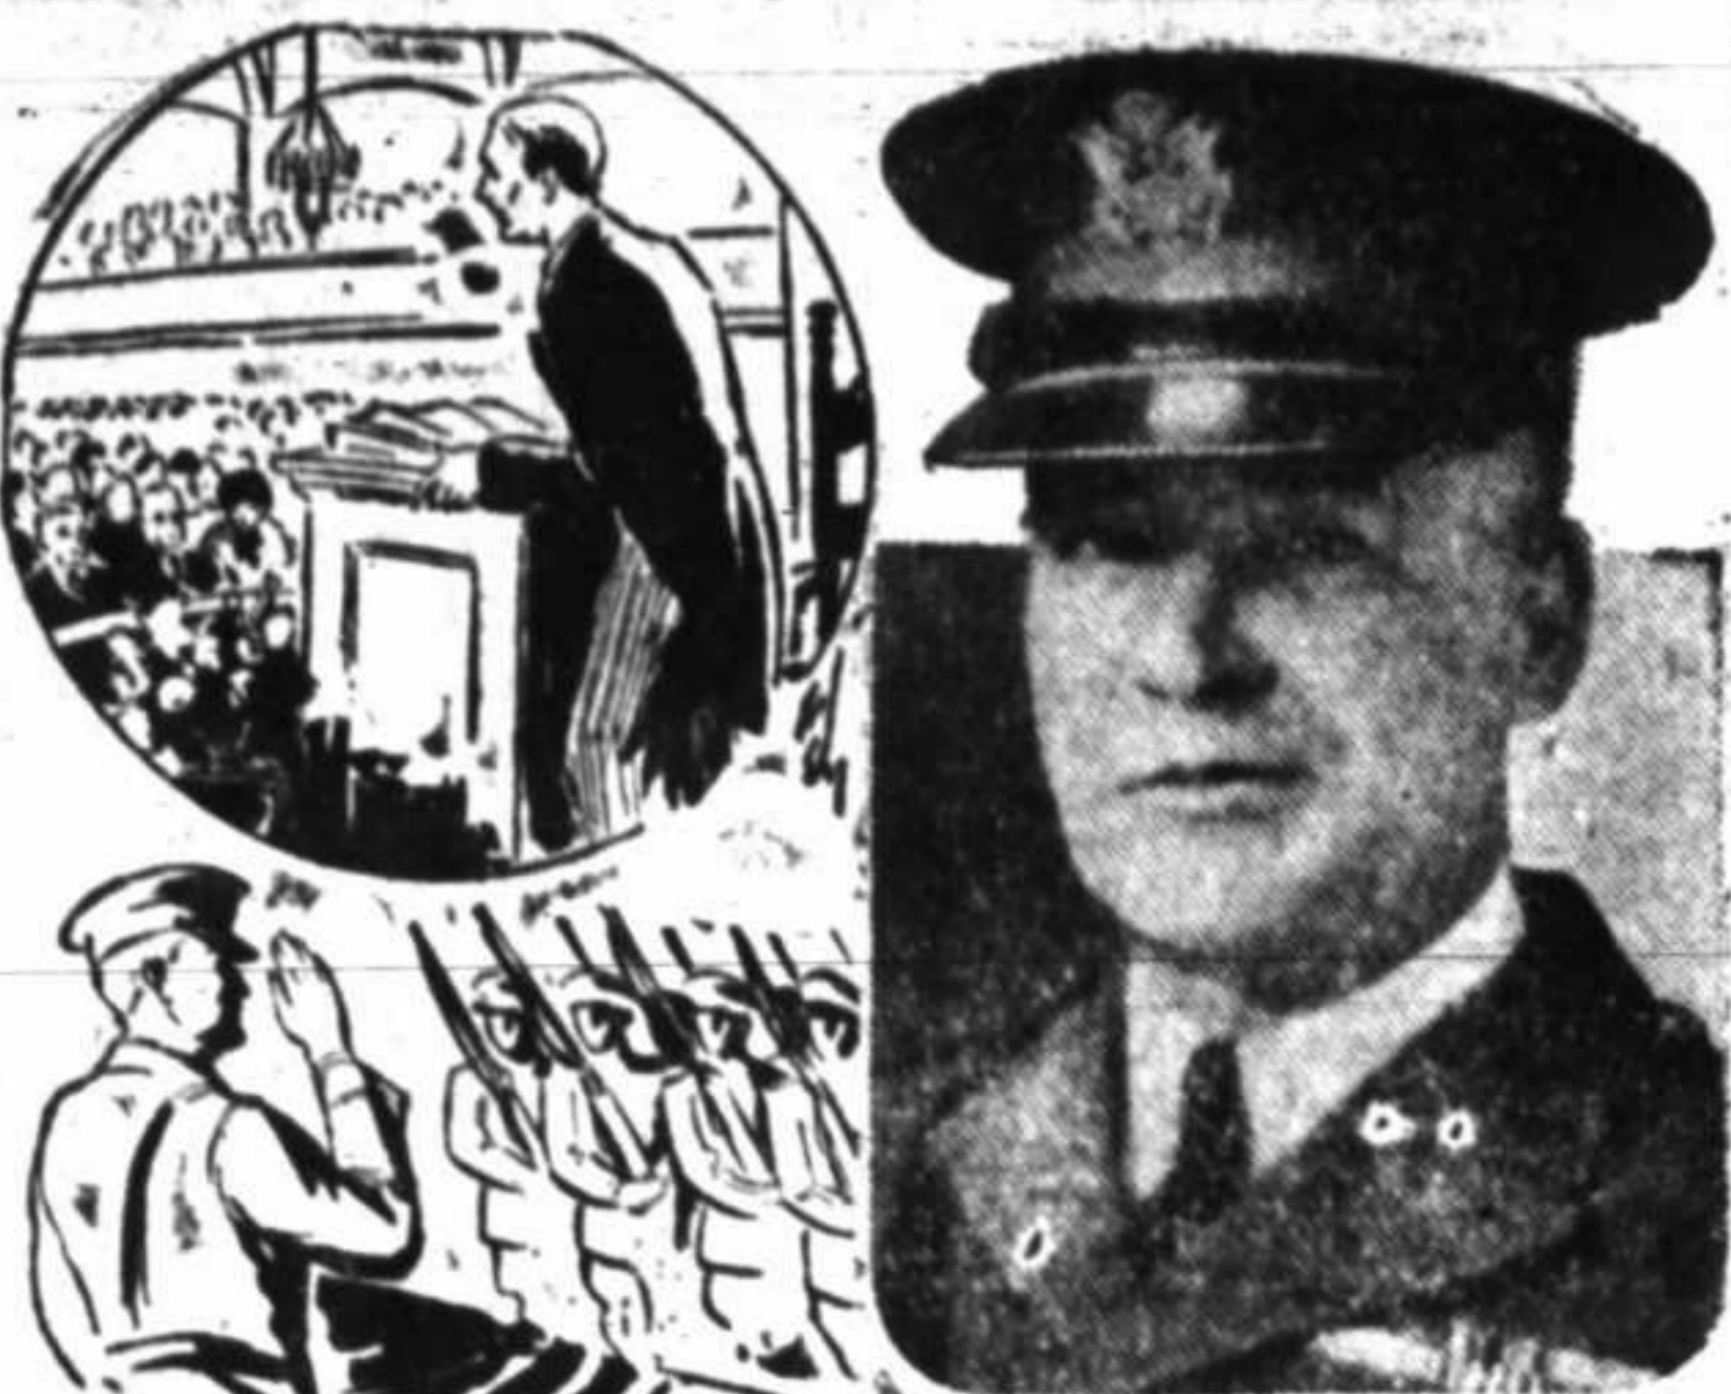

Have you tried these coffees whose rare tang and full-bodied flavor, experts agree, are not duplicated anywhere else in the world? Never "flat" or "thin."

If you are tired of having coffee turn out "flat" or "weak" and tasteless, no matter how carefully you make it, it will pay you to read this through. In the high volcanic districts of Central America grows a coffee that leading experts concede is not duplicated anywhere else in the world. It has the tangiest flavor, the richest, mellowest body of probably any coffee known today.

Indiana's "Fighting Parson" Will Battle With Cross and Sword; Is Named New Adjutant-General

By NEA Service. INDIANAPOLIS, September 5. — Preaching the message of the Prince of Peace on Sunday and managing the affairs of Mars on the six other days of the week is the new task of the Rev. William Graham Everson, for 30 years a Baptist minister.

The preacher, already a general in command of an infantry brigade, is assuming the duties of adjutant general of Indiana, heading the state's military forces. He had been assumed by Governor Harry G. Leslie that he can take over the command of the military affairs of the Hoosiers and still retain his position as pastor of the First Baptist church of Muncie, Ind.

Soldiering and preaching are far from incompatible so far as Pastor Everson is concerned. He has been at both for more than a quarter of a century and in each profession attained distinction. His appointment as adjutant-general makes him the only minister holding such a post at present and perhaps in the history of the United States.

Rev. William Graham Everson, the new adjutant-general of Indiana, is shown here with the First Baptist Church of Muncie, of which he is pastor. He plans to retain his pastorate while commanding the state's military forces.

Nothing saves slaughter and sacrifice like properly trained and officered troops. I hope to make Hoosier guardsmen from the framework of an organization. To do this I will try and bring home to the citizens the idea that the guard is of interest to every family in the state with males between the ages of 18 and 45.

Let pacifists pray for me. "Let the pacifists pray that I'll make good in this adjutant-general's job," he comments. "I'll need their prayers, for I intend to make the Indiana National Guard an efficient war machine capable of handling the youth of the state in an emergency with the least possible loss of life."

Just now the pastor-general feels that he will be able to do this and retain his pulpit in the new $345,000 church, which was erected through his efforts. "Should the soldier's work prove a greater challenge to service" than the church, he will surrender his pulpit, he asserts.

Montenegro. During the hectic post-armistice days he conducted the American investigations into the trying situation at Fiume.

Has World War Record. The new adjutant-general will retain command of the 76th Infantry brigade, Indiana National Guard, to which he was appointed following the World War. The appointment came as a result of his war record, which was not that of a chaplain, but as an infantry colonel commanding 6,000 troops in five foreign countries.

Holds Many Decorations. So when he dons his general's uniform there are citations and decorations from England, France, Italy, Serbia and the United States, including three battle clasps.

Crippled Youth Miraculously Saved From San Juan

SEVEN persons are believed to have lost their lives when the coastal steamer, San Juan, and the tanker S. C. T. Todd (shown above) collided in a dense fog about 50 miles south of San Francisco. The photo shows the first of the rescued, numbering about 40, to reach San Francisco. Hollis Pfeifer, a 12-year-old boy, whose mother handed him over the rail of the San Juan to a rescue boat from the tanker, just as the ship was sinking, is shown being carried to an ambulance on his arrival at San Francisco.

NEW YORK — Colonel William Hayward is back with four live Polar bears from the Arctic, where his party shot 16. But he found it poor sport, nothing like big game hunting in Africa. The bears simply dive into the water to escape the hunters and then are helpless.

NEW YORK — Mighty and clever are the Vikings when it comes to salt water. Eight huskies from the Norwegian ship Americano won an international lifeboat race in the harbor. At the finish it was discovered the bottom of their boat had been greased. Loud were the protests, but it was not forbidden in the rules. It will be taboo hereafter.

Navy Increases Observation Range Of Planes, Adding Landing Gear

CLOSEUP OF WASP VAUGHT AMPHIBIAN SHOWING WHEELS IN FLYING POSITION

WHEELS IN POSITION TO LAND ON CARRIER DECK

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 3. — The usefulness and range of Uncle Sam's navy observation planes have been doubled recently.

For the first time single pontoon seaplanes have been converted into amphibians. Now they may alight with equal facility on the land, on carrier decks or on the water.

These Corsair observation planes powered with the navy's famous 425-horsepower Wasp engines are part of the aviation equipment of the battleship divisions. Each battleship carries three such planes.

Now they may be catapulted in the same manner by the same length of time, and on a carrier deck for refueling. Thus their range away from the battleship may be increased several fold.

When ready to come down on a carrier, the pilot prepares his secret arresting gear and mechanically or by hand winds down the wheels which meantime have been tucked away on the pontoon.

Thus the machine becomes a land plane until it takes off again from the carrier. Always while in the air the plane is a seaplane, with the wheels hauled out of the way.

This is regarded by navy officials as one of the most important recent developments since it at least doubles the effectiveness of the aerial scouting squadrons.

Princess Silhouette Is Seen In Fall Fur Coats

For afternoon and for formal wear, black furs are very much approved by fashion, cut on the new simple lines, but for sport wear nothing is more appropriate than lapin, which comes in the most subtle of tan and gray tones.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

NEA Service: Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. Collars and silhouettes are the telling factors in fur coats for winter.

There is wide diversity this year between fur coats for dressy wear, fur coats for sports and the glamorous fur wraps for evening.

Perhaps the outstanding innovation is the suggested princess silhouette. Fur coats are made enough to cut their expensive furs into exaggerated princess lines. But most of them pay a lot of respect to waistline and the flare in the skirt portion is the new thing. There is much greater width around the bottom than in former years. Women will be able to keep their fur coats across the knees when sitting down, this winter.

Collar treatments are extremely important, varied and flattering. High cushion collars, collars that lie like rocks or scarfs, cape collars, fur coats, long, tapered, of-fores in contrasting flared, standing collar and high collar collars all are seen.

Cuffs In The Mode.

Cuffs are correspondingly interesting, with many pointing back to the elbow, some flared circular ones, a few puff cuffs or exaggerated wide flares from the elbow.

Browns and blacks predominate, with lapin the outstanding sports coat, dyed practically any color. Swagger coats come in muskrats, leopard, squirrel and novelty furs. Coats for daytime use persian lamb, broadtail, caracul mink, beaver, muskrat, sable, seal and other staple furs. Evening still prefers ermine, though capes, dolmans and other luxurious wraps in mink lined with luscious color are new and stunning.

Greater length is shown in most of the coats. One may have a couple of furs on her coat or the collar and cuffs made of the same, with equal authenticity of style. Fur furs for afternoon, however, are a way of originating a collar and cuff treatment in their own right that is exceedingly satisfactory.

The deep cape collar is an example of this. A dark eastern mink coat has a cape collar of itself that swings almost to the waistline when the coat is open and reaches shoulder-blade height when Milady gets cold.

A beautiful adaptation of a Paquin coat is a black broadtail lustrous fur. This coat is cut with somewhat of fullness above the waistline and hips and when gathered about one gives a swell silhouette like time fabric. It has swinging fullness in its skirt portion so that its front laps over almost to the side. The sleeves are stuffed with broadtail too so that the whole effect is of extremely fine tailoring of luxurious fur.

Novel in several ways is a black caracul with kolinsky collar, and cuffs, a copy of Drecoll Beer. It sponsors the long tunic silhouette with a circular flounce that is decidedly new and graceful.

The sleeves swing into fullness and end in puffs, with kolinsky making a pointed panel up the sides and back well above the elbow. The kolinsky collar rounds and fastens in a manner that frames the face becomingly and emphasize the long uncuffed effect of the front as well as the back.

Striking Youthful Note.

Young and very feminine is the little swaggar coat of parchment lace lapin, worn with or without a belt of suede.

Its soft lines suggest the prevalent femininity in styles. The raglan sleeves are cut full and pleated into smart little cuffs that fasten with cuff-bottoms of fur. The collar has notches in it so that its rounded portion can be buttoned right up tight around the neck, like a shirt collar, also fastened by those cute little fur buttons. There are pockets that the college or business girl always welcomes.

The raglan cut of this coat gives it welcome fullness through the body, so necessary to the freedom required by this type of sports coat. Belted, it can be bloused slightly, to show off to advantage that slender waistline admired by all.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MISS HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Lovely hands must be well-dressed and well-attended. The gloves you wear, the rings and bracelets that gleam from fingers and wrists, can add to or detract surprisingly from the charm your hands may have. Gloves today are no less important than they were in the more precise days of earlier years. We have passed the era when gloves were necessary only for formal occasions. Modern fashion demands a glove for almost every occasion of the day—sports gloves of suede or doeskin, golf gloves with the knuckles cut out to allow free play of the fingers and to provide for ventilation—trim kid or suede gloves for daytime and street wear—more formal, longer gloves of suede or kid for afternoon and evening. And these last are now worn in delicate colors to match or harmonize with afternoon and evening gowns. Instead of the formal white which alone was considered proper, formerly.

In choosing gloves to flatter your hands for any occasion, be sure to have them large enough. Formal and informal gloves alike should be close-fitting, certainly, but comfortable and a little more loose than tight. Tight gloves make the hands seem larger, however paradoxical this sounds. For colors, choose shades that are neutral, harmonizing with your hose, or use tones that match or harmonize with your costumes. A pull-on type of glove that fits loosely over the wrist is a most flattering fashion to nearly all hands, and is equally appropriate for day-time or evening.

Jewels are the lovely accents of attractive hands and arms. Colors and shapes of rings and bracelet can emphasize the line and texture of your skin and the shapeliness of the hand and arm contour. In selecting the fashionable semi-precious stones, choose colors that blend or contrast favorably with your natural coloring. Green and blue stones make the skin seem more dazzling white or creamy.

Athletics Complete Rout Of Champs To Increase Lead In Pennant Chase To 14 1-2 Games With Earnshaw Up

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—The Athletics completed their rout of the Yankees here today by placing the champions with a 10 to 2 defeat which gave the home forces three straight in the series and increased the Mackian pennant lead to fourteen and one-half games.

The three triumphs over the holiday ran the Athletics string to 12 victories and only eight defeats in hand-to-hand combat with the fading champions of 1928. The season's series between the two will be wound up at the Yankee stadium on the last two days of the season, when results apparently will have ceased altogether to matter. George Earnshaw fairly breezed to his 20th victory. The Philadelphia right hander thus became the first major league pitcher to reach the 20 mark.

One of the four hits off Earnshaw was Gehrig's 29th home run hit in the fifth inning. The Yankees were held to one run and two hits. The visitors missed scoring in only one inning, the third, Sullivan and Benton, each with four hits, led the Spudder attack. Gullie, the leaders' new outfielder from the Western League, bagged a homer.

Join Macks

Two players from the Des Moines Western League club have just been sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. Here they are: Glenn Liebhart, top, and Newell (Bud) Morse. Liebhart is a 19-year-old right-handed pitcher and a son of the Liebharts who pitched for Cleveland years ago. This was his first season of professional baseball and he won eight and lost eight games, though Des Moines was in or near the cellar most of the season. Morse is an infielder whose hitting and fielding have attracted attention.

GIBSON DUNLAP FINISHES TWO-DAY QUALIFYING PLAY BEHIND JONES WITH 147; THIRD TIE FOR TITLIST

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Somebody must have lost a few good old fashioned college cheers before the battle of Pebble Beach began for the national amateur golf championship.

For the second successive day an undergraduate club swinge jumped out of the pack to give the defending champion, Bobby Jones, a fight for scoring honors. Today bespectacled, deliberate Eugene V. Homans of Princeton University, took over the hon taming role from Gibson Dunlap, Los Angeles collegian and sensation of the opening round. After a half gale had swept hopes all over the seaside course, Homans was tied with Jones for the medal and lead in the 36th hole, two-day qualifying test.

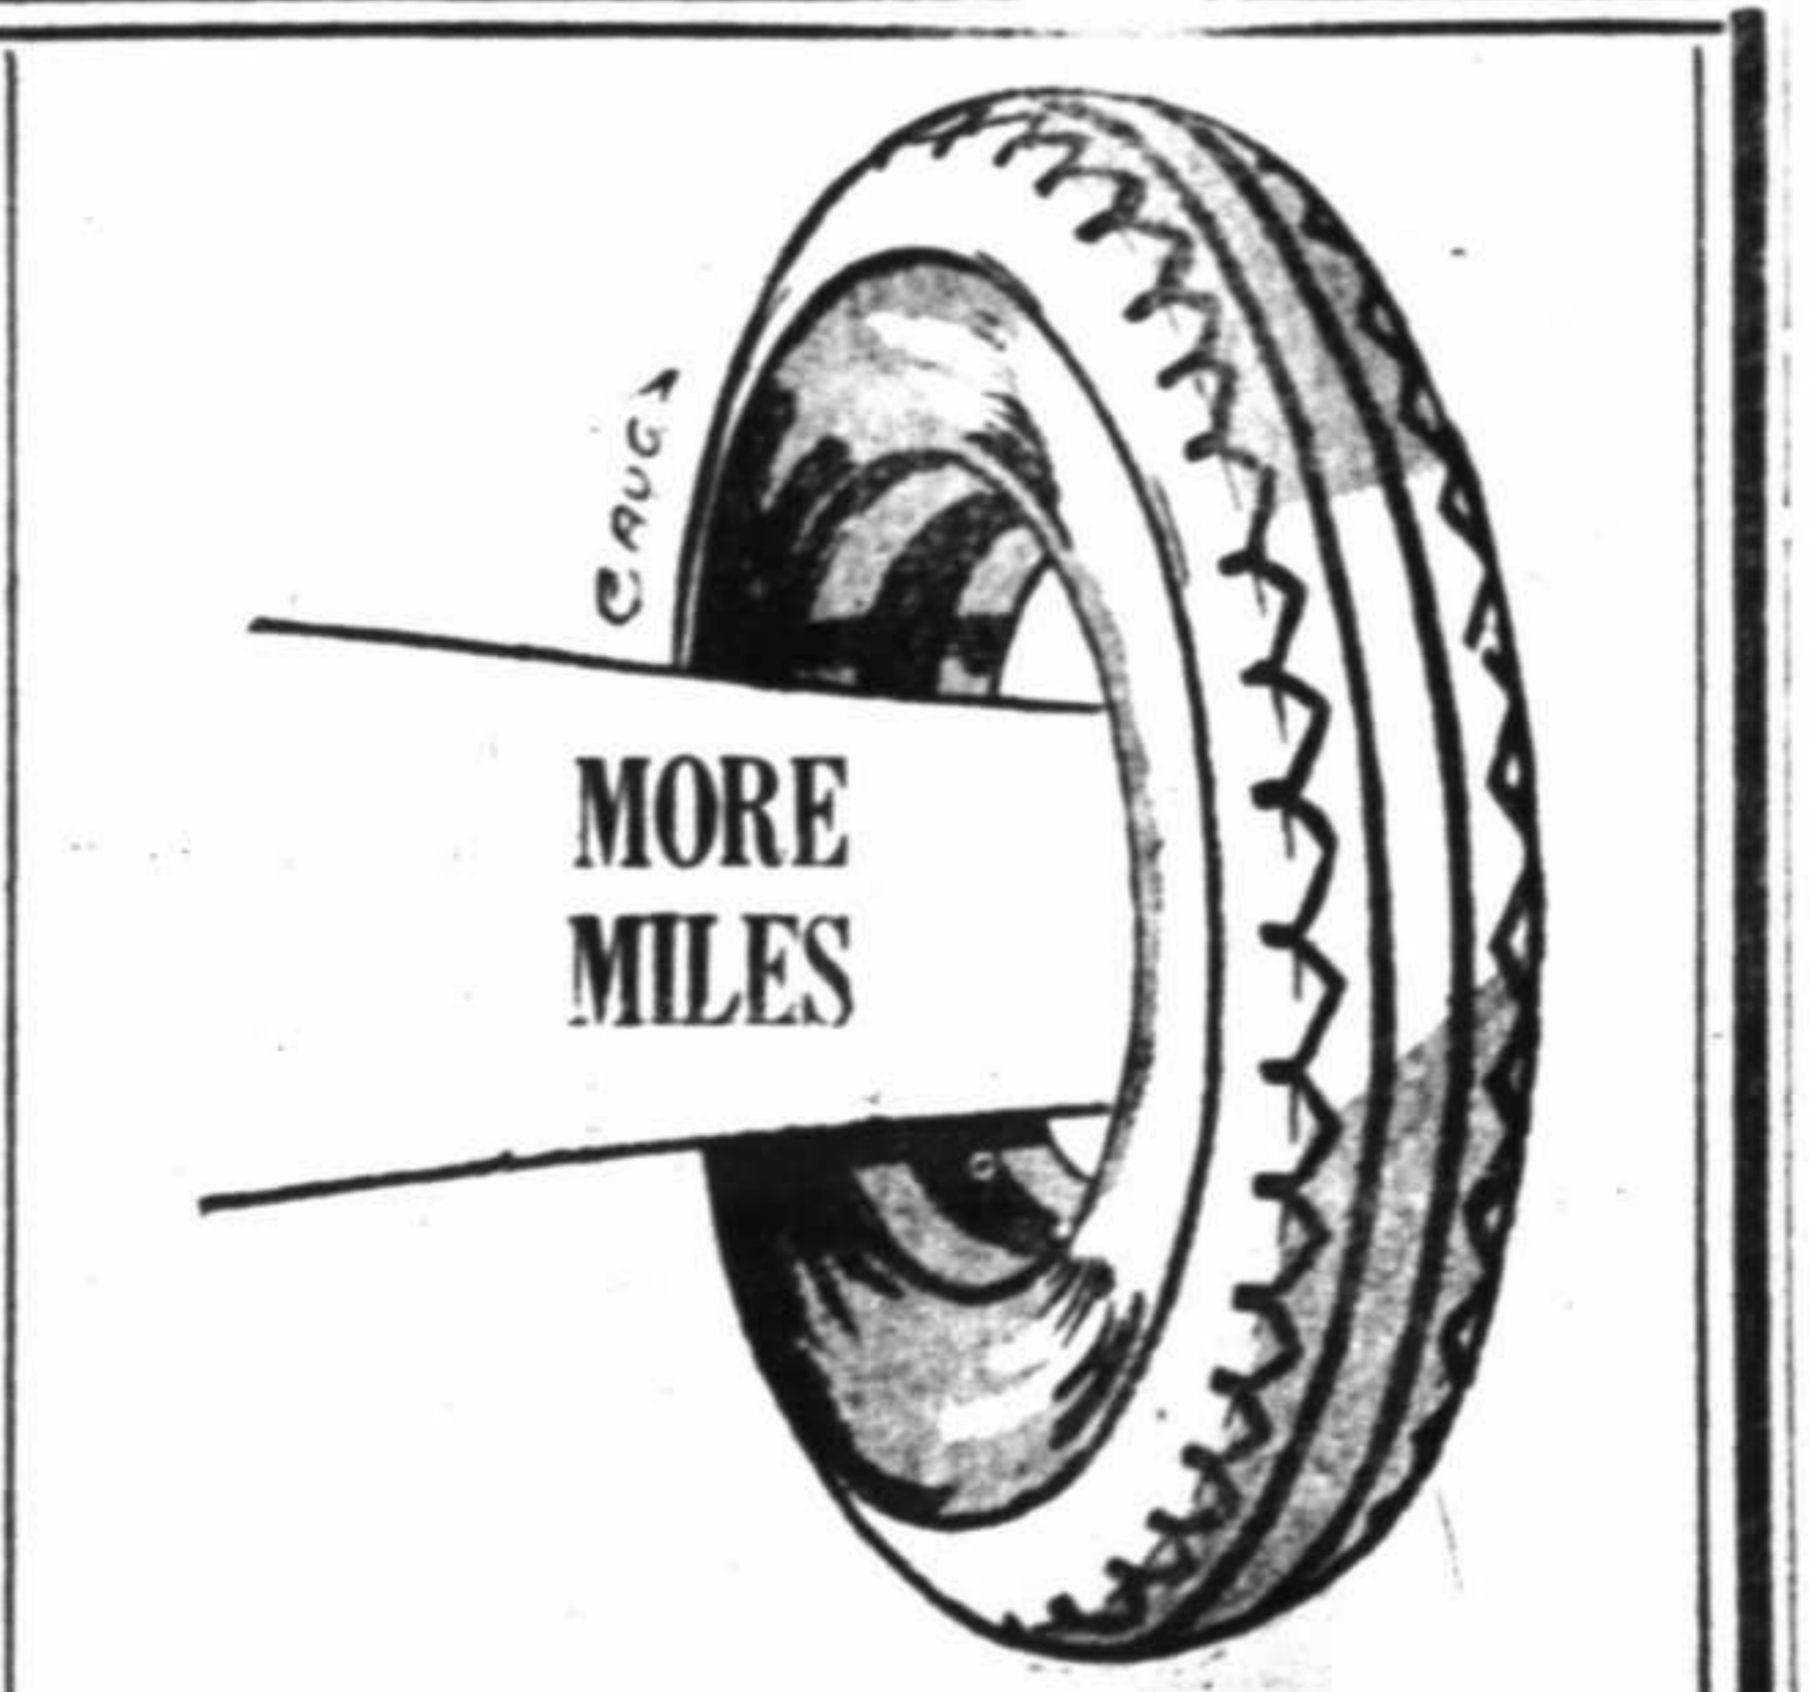

Both Turn In 145
Before the wins gathered full force to ruin most prospects of low scoring Homans finished with 73-73-145. Jones, playing under less favorable conditions, wound up with 70-73-143.

Fighting gamely in the wake of the Georgian, Dunlap finished with 69-73-142. The Los Angeles youth at no time was in danger of repeating his record performance of the opening day, losing control of his teeshots and on several occasions narrowly escaping disaster on the ocean's brink.

It was the third time in his career that Jones has figured in a tie for the qualifying medal. The Georgian, who has won the title four times in the last five years, deadlocked with Fred Wright, Jr. of Boston, at the Engineers club in 1926 and again in 1927, at Pocomoer with Chapman of Chicago. Jones won the medal outright in 1928 at Baltusrol.

SPORT SLANTS

They will be the pickin around in another ... and among the squads worth giving some earnest attention to, we can mention Duke, Fla., and the championship Georgia Tech array in the South, Notre Dame coast, Army and Pittsburgh in the east.
 Any time Professor Knute Rockne displays optimism, Notre Dame can be counted upon for better than an average year. And an average year for the Hoosiers is not far short of a national championship. Any time the Army has at Fred Cagle to break loose, the Cadets are dangerous for any foe—Harvard, Yale, Stanford and Notre Dame included.
 Georgia Tech loses Captain Pund, and Frank Soper, a great tackle, but has such ball carriers as Mizell, Thompson and Lumpkin to worry the opposing defense. Florida has most of its great 1928 array back, including Quarterback Crabtree and line men in Steele and Van Sickle, the latter an all-American and last fall, Duke, with the most ambitious schedule in its history, will bear as much watching as any team below the Mason and Dixon line.
 Stanford loses a flock of stars in Sims, Hoffman, Post and Robesky, the latter a fine brace of guards. Washington loses the great Chuck Carroll and Jesse Hibbs has wound up his career at U. S. C. But there will be no lack of talent to take their places.
 Ken Strong, New York U's all-American carrier, is through but one of his running mates on last year's mythical aggregation, Earl (Dutch) Clark, will roam the wide open spaces once more for Colorado college.

 ... optimism in college football, especially among the coaches, has gone out of style. When Gil Doble was turning out undefeated teams at Cornell, his consistent pessimism always furnished some good copy and comic relief. It seemed good psychology for Mr. Doble to say he expected his underdog, if not actually under-nourished, Phi Beta Kappa boys to be slaughtered by Dartmouth, Pennsylvania or Columbia. If Kaw and Pfann happened to run a trifle wild, as they did most of the time, Gloomy Gil lifted astonished eyebrows.
 ... coaches quickly caught on, absorbing some of the Gilded Age influence. But the consistent failures of Doble's Cornell teams in recent years altered the situation. The ballyhoo now is in favor of optimism. Even Cornellians, who enjoyed the general laugh over Doble's pessimism a few years ago, have swung around to thinking that it is not so good, after all. At any moment the veteran coach of the Ithacans may sally forth himself with something approaching optimism over the prospects for 1929.

Lucky For Zack

Thirty-one years ago, in Yulu, Fla., the stars must have been favorable for people named James Wren Taylor. That's when James Wren Taylor was born, anyway, but he soon outgrew the James. Wren part of the handle and came to be known by his mates as Zack. Zack was holding an obscure position behind the bat for the Boston Braves this year when things began to happen to all the catchers that the Cubs could assemble on one premises. Gabby Hartnett threw his arm out into the bleachers and injuries and hard luck beset his successors at the job. Then came Zack and he has been catching for six weeks now without falling down an elevator shaft or stepping on a forgotten pineapple in the loop district. The beginning of the present season for Zack was a dreary enough prospect—catching whatever balls batters opposing the Braves whimsically chose to let drift past—but now it begins to look like the world series for Mr. Taylor.

Lady Got Stronger and Color Came Back After She Had Taken Cardui.

New Richmond, Ohio.—Mrs. Lizzie Blavin, of this place, says that when she was a young woman her health was not always as good as it should have been.
 "I was so weak sometimes I could hardly walk," she says. "I grew pale and thin, and my mother worried a lot about me."
 "My back ached and frequently I had bad headaches. I moped around the house for days at a time, and it looked like I could not get any better."
 "I read about Cardui. My mother had taken Cardui, and it had done her good, so she decided for me to try it. She got me a bottle of it, and started me to taking it."
 "I took three bottles of Cardui and improved wonderfully. After taking it a short time, I began to feel better. I began to have a good appetite. I ate more and I picked up in weight. I got a good color in my cheeks, and I felt strong and well. I can recommend Cardui to other young women, for it helped me."

HE SUFFERED FOR TEN YEARS

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief in 2 Months—Doctor Recommended It

Constipation is dreaded not only for its own insidious self, but because of the many serious conditions and diseases it causes. Mr. Lind was a sufferer—but read how he found relief.
 "For the past 10 years I have suffered from piles. At times I have been unable to work. I have tried aspirin, ointments, etc., but to no avail.
 "Two months ago my grocer called my attention to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I began taking it regularly. Immediately the pain and annoyance from the piles was relieved. I found that it relieved my piles. I am ALL-BRAN to give nature a fair chance to effect a cure."—WALTER J. LIND, R. 2, Box 127, Appleton, Wis.
 Don't neglect constipation. At any time its poisons may take terrible toll from your health and well-being. Protect yourself. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly—two tablespoons daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. ALL-BRAN brings sure, natural relief. It is what doctors call a bulk food. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action.
 Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Also try the recipes on the package. Results guaranteed. Doctors recommend it because it is 100% bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants, and dining cars. Sold by all grocers.

"The wisest thing I'll do whatever you say." "Atta girl. I'll make the reservation in the name of Mrs. William Blake. Don't take any bags. There's a crowd in front of your place now. I suppose? Well, don't excite their suspicions. You can have your stuff sent up later. Everything a. k. y."

"Fine!" she said. "You're a great little manager, Red." "You need a manager," he growled. "Better get married. Molly."

"Don't talk to me about marriage." "All right. I won't. Run along now, and do everything the way I've told you. I'll keep you posted. Don't forget your name—Mrs. William Blake." "Oh, say, I almost forgot to tell you—I ran into a bird last night who thought Ashes of Desire was a crime book. What do you know about that?"

"Why not?" she retorted. "You don't think I'm kidding myself that everyone reads my stuff, do you?"

"Well, this particular bird was a chap named Jack Wells," he declared. "I've sent him one of the copies you autographed for me. That's the fact, Molly. He said he thought it was another one of those things. Meaning, I take it, that he didn't think so much of Delphine and Sacrifice."

Molly laughed. "He used to want me to write poetry," she said. "Poetry, or fairy stories. You'll let me know if you hear anything special from him, Red?"

"Sure," he promised. "I'll shoot you a wire tonight." Molly telephoned the Rita, and made an appointment for a facial, a massage and a shampoo. When the reporters waiting on the steps, besieged her, she told them, truthfully, that she had an engagement at the beauty shop. Being suspicious folk, by nature and by training, they trailed her in another hour.

When she went in the Rita, one of them phoned to ask if Miss Burnham had an appointment there. Having ascertained that she would be there for at least two hours, they relived their vigilance. When the coast was clear, a clerk came to tell Molly, and she slipped out the service entrance into a waiting cab. She hunched alone at a quiet hotel. And reached the station in ample time to board the train leisurely with Rita and Marie. Some hours later Bob discovered that she had left town and taken Rita and the nurse with her. She had left no word as to her destination, and he was beset with fears. If he reported her disappearance to the police, he would be making a laughing stock of himself. If he took no notice of it, she might remain away indefinitely. Perplexed and worried, he made the fatal error of calling on Red Flynn.

"World's Richest People" Are Facing Poverty

Incomes Of Indians Dwindle As Oil Wells Fail

PAWUSKA, Okla., Sept. 3.—The golden flood of wealth that the rich Oklahoma oil fields, through an inexplicable oversight on the part of the Great White Father, turned into the laps of the Osage Indian tribesmen a decade or more ago, is subsiding to a mere trickle.

The Osages, for a time the richest people in the world, per capita, are sliding back into the poverty from which they emerged some 15 years ago and the 2279 "head rights" on the rolls, each good a few years ago for an annual income of more than $13,000, are today worth just $35 a week.

Thus comes to an end one of the queerest, most ironic dramas of the history of a tribe of American Indians who in the past 15 years have received $375,000,000 in oil royalties.

The oil, found most unexpectedly beneath the barren hill country of this part of Oklahoma, made the Osages rich. It brought them the things that go with riches—luxury, soft living, comfort, not to mention decay, tragedy and bloodshed.

Wells Now Failing Out Now the oil is petering out. The Osages, for the most part, apparently will be worse off than they were before. Some of them have squandered their money—but many, many more have fallen into habits of idleness and face an extremely dismal future.

The strange story of the Osage nation began in the early days of the 20th century. The Osages had been a docile, unwarlike tribe, migrating to Oklahoma from the eastern part of the country a century and more ago; and when Oklahoma began to fill up with white men, it became necessary to find a place for the Osages.

The red man has never been dealt with any too generously by the white man, and the case of the Osages was no exception. The rocky hill country in this part of the state was given them, chiefly because it was considered the least valuable land in Oklahoma.

But it turned out to be about the richest of all. Sudden Leap to Wealth In 1917 came the oil boom. The Osages' tribal property was found to cover one of the richest oil fields in the southwest. Each member of the tribe had a "head right" or proportionate share in all tribal funds; and in a short time the Osages were drawing average yearly incomes of $12,000 apiece.

Nor was that all. "Head rights" were inheritable. In the course of time some Indians came into possession of 10 or more "head rights." Indians with incomes of $50,000 and $100,000 a year were not uncommon. Many intermarried with the neighboring Kaws of which tribe Vice President Curtis is a member.

Some of the "head rights" were bought by a few whites, who quickly became a boom town. They went to the finest stores and shops of any city in its size in the land. High-grade automobile salesrooms, piano stores and furnishing houses were opened.

The Osage spent his money freely—like a child playing with toys—and everybody had a grand time. Inevitably, many and many an Indian was fleeced mercilessly. Also, many an Indian squandered his money with unbelievable foolishness, even though he was fortunate enough to steer clear of unscrupulous whites.

There were Indians who bought a new auto every month or so, driving it until it got smashed—and then gaily buying another. Big mansions were built, white servants were hired, fine furniture was bought.

Few Invested Wisely A few Indians invested their money wisely. A few sold themselves up as stock raisers with their new wealth, or went into business. But not many. Most of them acted precisely as might be expected of a people, one generation removed from barbarism, given almost unlimited funds in a modern world.

The government is holding several million dollars for some of them until such time as they shall be adjudged "competent" to receive it. Now the great wells are playing out. The "head rights" until recently good for $10,000 and more a year, are now paying just $35 a week; and there is every indication that they will shrink still farther.

Pawhuska business men have seen the handwriting on the wall. One dealer in musical instruments, disposing of his stock preparatory to leaving, remarked that when times were good he sold as many as 50 high-grade player pianos a month. Now, says he, he is getting away. Others are following suit.

Bacon, chief of the picturesque former chief of the tribe, explains that he repeatedly warned the Osages to save their money, but that they refused to listen to him. Fred Lookout, the present chief, has had the same experience.

"For 10 years," Bacon Rind says, "I have been warning my people that some day the oil and the easy money would go. I have urged them to go back to their own lands, to become farmers and cattle and horse raisers, as I and my sons are doing. Now the oil has gone and they cannot blame me. I have spoken."

Reckless Spenders There are many stories like that. One boy, who has enjoyed the income from 10 "head rights"—which means that for years he drew more than $100,000 a year—is today in debt $100,000. Another came into $47,000 on his 21st birthday, bought a new auto each week, smashing them all, and finally was forbidden by a court order to operate an auto any more.

Above, left, is Fred Lookout, present chief of the Osage tribe and owner of one of the finest cattle ranches in Oklahoma, who has repeatedly warned his band to economize. How his advice has been ignored can be judged by the expensive suburban home of an Indian near Arkansas City, Kan., below. At right, Joe Mills, an Osage 'half-blood', is enjoying his golf. The inset shows Dorothy Simpkins of Hardy Okla., a beautiful daughter of the Osage and a second cousin of Vice President Curtis.

There are exceptions, of course. One young man, holding five "head rights," has invested his money and is said to be worth half a million. Another owns a fine home, several autos and an airplane, is an official in a big amusement corporation and has made other investments. Another is a prominent lawyer in Pawhuska. But such men are not common.

OSBURNING, N. Y. — The pole vault has been abolished in track athletics at Sing Sing. You're right. Of course the reason must have been that some one of the state's guests would be prompted to scale the walls of their residence.

NEW YORK. — Monsieur Jules Ansaldo, who runs a big bar in gay Paree popular with Americans, is here to arrange for a supply of fresh clams. A consignment will be shipped to him every 10 days. His patrons demand juice from fresh ones; the bottled stuff will not do.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass.—James Quirk, steely-jack whose albinism aloft has earned him his bread and butter for years, is in a hospital with concussion of the brain. He fell ten feet to a sidewalk from the coping of a rooming house.

Turkish Princess Must Pay Damages Of $5,000 To Former U. S. Farm Girl

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3. (AP)—Turkish courts today condemned the Princess Chivekiar to pay $5,000 damages to Madame Salda, the former Sidi Worth Spreckles, Kansas farm girl and divorced wife of John D. Spreckles, Jr., San Francisco millionaire, in the final outcome of the famous Turkish scandal which she caused.

In her action Madame Salda, who was once Princess Sued Chakir, charged the Princess Chivekiar had shamelessly used her name in a divorce suit against her husband Selim Bey, the Egyptian princess, Chivekiar, had charged unfaithfulness and cited Princess Sued Chakir as correspondent.

Moonlight Is Blamed A moonlight ride on the Bosphorus in 1924 was the origin of suits and counter suits embroiling Madame Salda and the Egyptian princess.

In April, 1928, Princess Chivekiar was fined five lire (about $1) by the general court of Stambul for insulting the American born former wife of Prince Sued Chakir.

Princess Chivekiar, former wife of King Fuad of Egypt, sued her husband Selim Bey for divorce for his alleged indiscretion in taking the Bosphorus ride with the Kansas princess. A fine of ten Turkish pounds was assessed against her in 1928 in a suit brought by a Madame Salda.

Whitely Walker To Tell About Pistol

Alleged Desperado Makes Promise After Failing To Tell Where He Got Small Automatic Gun

BORGER, Sept. 3. (AP)—The explanation of how William J. (Whitely) Walker got the pistol which he carried strapped to his leg on a lonely night automobile trip in the custody of officers from Colorado Springs, Colo., to Stinnett, near here, still remained with the alleged desperado today, but he had promised to give it to Sheriff Joe Ownbey.

Ownbey found the weapon when he put Walker in jail at Stinnett Sunday. Walker said he had meant to try shooting it out before submitting to extradition to Oklahoma, where he is sought on an aggravated robbery charge.

Wanted in Oklahoma Oklahoma and Texas both demanded the prisoner in a hearing at Denver last Saturday, and this state won.

Walker escaped during his murder trial in Stinnett in 1927. He is under indictment for the slaying of three Hutchinson county peace officers. Newspapermen tried to get him to explain the source of the pistol, but he parried queries belligerently and said he would tell Ownbey "later."
