Texans hit polls for runoff election

Voters to select Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate

By John Gonzalez and Mary Ann Roser
N.Y. Times News Service

AUSTIN — Texans return to the polls today to pick a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate along with several state office nominees in runoff elections that have failed to muster much voter interest.

Voter turnout is not expected to exceed 11 percent of those registered.

Democrats will be settling a bitter contest between former Attorney General Jim Mattox and Dallas businessman Richard Fisher to try to unseat Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in November.

As Fisher and Mattox trekked across the state Monday to make last-ditch appeals to voters, each predicted victory by a nose in today's balloting.

"Now it's in the hands of the voters," Fisher said in Austin.

Democrats also will decide another vitriolic race: whether to return Justice Raul Gonzalez to the Texas Supreme Court Justice or accept his challenger, attorney

NATO air attacks

Marking the first NATO attack on ground positions in the alliance's 44-year history, warplanes continued attacking Bosnian Serb forces in Gorazde Monday. Monday's strike, led by two U.S. FA-18 jets, continued an effort launched Sunday, when United Nations peacekeepers requested NATO air protection.

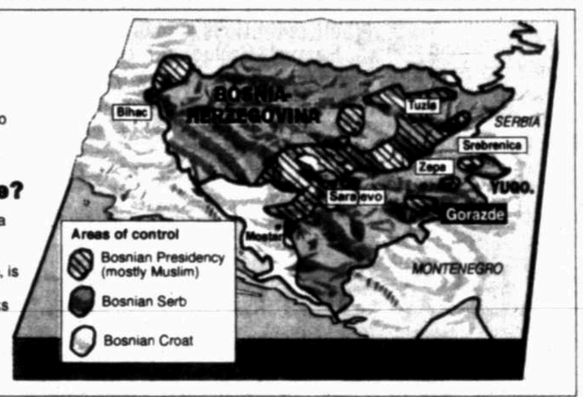

Monday's attack
Three Serb armored personnel carriers and a truck were destroyed Monday along the frontlines. The NATO air forces used FA-18 planes—part of a U.S. Marine Corps contingent based in Aviano, Italy. The FA-18 combines the F-18 fighter and the A-18 attack aircraft, and is used most often by the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps.

Sunday's attack
The F-16C Fighting Falcon used in Sunday's attack is a U.S.-made multipurpose fighter-bomber. Sunday, the planes were used to blast a Serb Army command post with Mk-82 bombs. The Mk-82 is a general-purpose bomb used primarily on high-speed aircraft.

T-55 tank
Mortar 120 mm shell
Howitzer 105 mm M56 gun fires up to 16 rounds per minute.

Safe zones
Gorazde is among six areas the United Nations ruled "safe zones." Theoretically, those areas are off-limits for the ethnic fighting that has ravaged Bosnia for the past two years. But most of the safe zones have suffered intermittent violence.

Why attack Gorazde?
Despite Gorazde's designation as a U.N. safe zone, the Serbs have pounded the town for nearly two weeks. Gorazde, a Muslim enclave, is prized because of its strategic location along the highway that links the Serbian capital, Belgrade, with the Adriatic coast and with Bosnia-Herzegovina.

U.S. strikes again; Serbs stand defiant

■ U.N.: Bombs destroy tank, armored personnel carriers that were firing into Gorazde.

Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — U.S. bombs destroyed a tank and struck several personnel carriers outside the besieged Muslim enclave of Gorazde on Monday in NATO's second air strike on Bosnian Serb positions in two days.

After two F-18 warplanes based in Aviano, Italy, ended their bombing mission, the Serbs responded with renewed fury, firing a barrage of artillery shells on Muslims holed up in the battered town 35 miles southeast of Sarajevo. Later, the Serb attacks were reported to have stopped.

But Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic indicated Monday that if air strikes continue, the Serbs could "shoot down planes." The Serbs have denied assaulting the town.

Following Serb refusals to stop assaulting Gorazde, NATO began attacking Serb positions Sunday around the town, one of six designated U.N. "safe areas" for Bosnian Muslims.

The strikes were called officially to protect U.N. personnel in the enclave, although they seem aimed more at halting an assault that has left an estimated 156 people dead and 646 wounded in the past 12 days.

NATO's resolve, Serb resistance add up to trouble

By Dusan Stojanovic

■ Analysis

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — NATO's new toughness in Bosnia and the defiant Serbian response has created new concern that turmoil in the Balkans might spread if the world community's push for peace is mishandled.

Twice in as many days, U.S. fighter jets under NATO command have struck at Bosnian Serb forces attacking Gorazde, one of three U.N. "safe areas" in eastern Bosnia. The aim was to force a halt to Serbian shelling of the town, but the Serbs renewed their tank and artillery fire after the first strike.

Considered the chief aggressors in the 2-year-old war, the Serbs are determined to carve out large sections of Bosnia, particularly in eastern Bosnia, which borders Serbia proper, to create a "Greater Serbia." The air strikes reflect the international community's resolve not to let this County, sheriff reject one-time state funds for medium-security barracks

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court rejected about $768,000 in one-time emergency funding by the state of Texas toward building temporary barracks for housing 192 inmates and hiring 20 jailers in part of a statewide effort to help alleviate overcrowded jails and prisons.

County jails are jammed with state prisoners because of Texas's overcrowded penitentiary system.

Accepting the state money for building and operating the medium-security barracks would not be "a cost-effective venture" for Midland County, said County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer on Monday, and would result in a tax increase to Midland taxpayers.

Minority contractors often fall after graduating from SBA aid

By Tim Bovee
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Florence Alexander started her management consultant firm in the basement of her home, equipped with a typewriter and a dream.

Success came quickly after she joined the Small Business Administration's 8(a) program, the government's flagship effort to develop minority entrepreneurs.

Her company's first federal contract, for $1,000 in 1988, set it on a path that led to a $233 million contract to work on the Justice Department's asset forfeiture program.

At its peak, Ebon Research employed 1,450 people at 350 sites nationwide, nearly all in minority neighborhoods. Alexander's workers processed data, analyzed information, cared for laboratory animals and monitored safety at government work sites.

Substance in broccoli appears to be potent anti-cancer agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broccoli contains substances that can block or retard formation of breast tumors in rats by promoting anti-cancer enzymes, Johns Hopkins medical researchers report.

In a study to be published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences on Tuesday, the Hopkins scientists said that doses of compounds that are found in broccoli and in some other vegetables provided cancer protection for a group of rats that had been exposed to powerful cancer-causing chemicals.

Dr. Paul Talalay, a Hopkins researcher who is co-author of the study, said Monday that sulforaphane and some related compounds are apparently able to amplify the body's own defenses against chemicals that can lead to cancer.

FUNDS: Commissioners, sheriff reject state's one-time offer

dent of each other," decided against accepting the funding," Seltzer said.

Meanwhile, the Commissioners' Court still is exploring the feasibility of Midland County playing host to a 500-bed privately funded and privately operated regional jail to siphon off inmates from the already-overcrowded West Texas county jails.

Additionally, Painter said the state's overcrowded penitentiary system, which is operated by the Institutional Division of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, will open thousands of new beds by September 1995, when "the state claims it will have all of its inmates out of county jails."

Of the 500 inmates in Midland County's two jails, 286 are state prisoners — convicted and sentenced felons — who are "paper ready" to be sent to the penitentiary.

"We've got a small penitentiary," Painter said.

Year-round staffing for the nownixed barracks proposal for Midland County would "run approximately $600,000 for those 192 beds," Painter said. Staffing would amount to 20 jailers.

"We need the space bad, real bad," Painter said in alluding to the state's offer. "I can't say I rejected it, (but) there are some problems inherent with accepting the money, such as the increased cost of manpower. We need manpower now (in existing Midland County jails). We also need space."

Midland commissioners turned down the state's offer after they "extrapolated the cost out of hiring those extra (20) deputies," considered the number of Texas penitentiary space that is supposed to be coming open during the next year and computed the cost to the Midland taxpayers of building and operating the barracks.

"The Commissioners' Court would have to raise taxes approximately 5.8 percent just to cover the cost of those additional jailers," Seltzer said.

A condition on the state funding for building and operating the barracks would be that they would be built and "on line" by June 1 or in about six weeks. Seltzer said the time limit was unreasonable. While possible, Painter said the six-week project necessarily would be a daily 24-hour operation and would be extremely costly in overtime pay.

The funding was offered through a $25 million state program to about 30 counties wherein jails are beyond capacity. The offering was to such counties as Harris (Houston); Tarrant (Fort Worth); Dallas (Dallas); Bexar (San Antonio); Ector (Odessa); and Midland.

For Midland County, the long-term effects of this "temporary fix" would be "very negative for the Midland County taxpayers," Seltzer said.

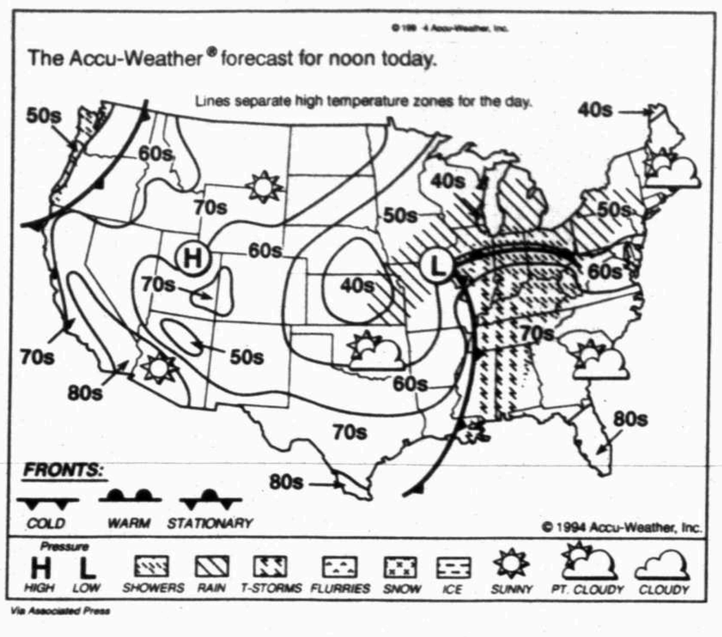

In other business, the Commissioners' Court approved funding for a bailiff to serve Midland County Court-at-Law No. 1, which is presided over by Judge Al Walvoord.

Walvoord, whose court was the only one of five judicial courts in the Midland County Courthouse without a full-time assigned bailiff, earlier had requested a bailiff for the sake of safety, security and order.

"They (the judges) are vulnerable," said Commissioner Win Brown.

The "mere presence of a bailiff and the knowledge of the people in the courtroom that the bailiff is there, that he or she is an armed officer, and that he or she can control a situation" can have a calming effect in a possibly hostile or explosive circumstance, Seltzer said.

VOTE: Texans to pick Democratic candidate

(From 1A)

Rene Haas of Corpus Christi. The winner will face GOP hopeful Oliver S. Kitzman of Brookshire.

Meanwhile, Republicans will choose either Pat Lykos or Don Wittig — both Houston district judges — to oppose Attorney General Dan Morales in the Nov. 8 general election.

State election officials estimate that only 1 million people will vote in the two party primaries.

The runoff races for U.S. Senate, attorney general and Supreme Court have captured the most attention, but they're not the only statewide offices up for grabs.

Both parties are selecting finalists to compete for an open seat on the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. The GOP candidates for the court's Place 2 are Sam Bayless of San Antonio and Sharon Keller of Dallas. The Democrats are Betty Marshall of Fort Worth and Gene Kelly of Universal City.

But those races have been vastly overshadowed by the political warfare over the Senate nomination, which pollsters rated as too close to call last week.

Mattox, a former legislator and congressman, has lost only two elections in his 20-year political career — once for a precinct chairmanship in Dallas and his 1990 defeat by Gov. Ann Richards in an acrimonious primary. He's running as "the real Democrat" against Fisher, who has contributed to Republicans and who worked in Ross Perot's 1992 independent presidential campaign.

Mattox said he could not fathom Democrats electing someone like Fisher to lead their ticket in the fall. But a newspaper poll last week showed Mattox with 48 percent of the vote to Fisher's 46 percent — a difference that is insignificant given the poll's margin of error.

General wisdom is that a low turnout favors Mattox, who, according to the poll, has a strong lead in vote-rich Harris County.

Fisher, a millionaire investor, is making his second race for statewide office. He sought the same Senate seat in the 1993 special election won by Hutchison. In the two bids for the seat, Fisher has spent about $3.5 million of his own money calling himself a fiscally conservative Washington outsider.

"Fisher has already lost to Hutchison," Mattox said Monday, referring to Fisher's defeat in the special election. "He can't win and won't win."

Mattox has painted Fisher as someone who is using his wealth to try to buy a prestigious office, without having paid his dues. Fisher vigorously disputes that, noting that he helped found the Democratic Leadership Council and was appointed by President Clinton to the Russian American Enterprise Fund.

"Really, what this comes down to ... is whether you want Kay Bailey Hutchison to be your next United States senator or whether you want Richard Fisher to be your next United States senator," Fisher said.

He claimed that Mattox can't beat Hutchison because Mattox's negative ratings among voters are "almost four times what mine are."

Fisher said he regretted the negative tone of the campaign and would not run a similar campaign against Hutchison, if he wins Tuesday. He declined to say, however, whether he would bring up her indictment by a Travis County grand jury on ethics charges even though she was acquitted.

Area races, polling places

Staff Report

When Midlanders head for the polls today in the Republican and Democratic primary runoffs, they will be helping to select their parties' nominees for the November general election.

The Republican ballot will include three local races. They are:

County Judge: Jeff Norwood and Teresa Clingman.

Judge, County Court at Law, No. 2: Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer and Marvin Moore.

County Commissioner, Precinct 4: Bruce Blake and James Brezina.

There are two statewide races on the GOP ballot.

There are no local races on the Democratic ballot. However, Democrats will be selecting their nominee for the U.S. Senate. The winner of the Jim Mattox-Richard Fisher runoff will meet Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison in the general election. In addition, there are four other statewide races on the Democratic ballot.

Voting will be done from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

FALL: Many firms fail after SBA graduation

(From 1A)

But the fall came swiftly.

The company graduated from the SBA program in 1990 and, without the edge given to minority contractors, lost the Justice Department business.

"It was such a devastating loss to me," Alexander said. "I'm struggling to stay alive."

Today, Ebon Research has laid off two-thirds of its workers and 90 percent of its management. Alexander is suing the Justice Department to get the contract back.

And her story is common, according to the SBA.

An agency study shows 46 percent of the companies that graduated from the 8(a) program from October 1989 to September 1992 went out of business or cut back their operations substantially.

Parren Mitchell, a former Maryland congressman who chaired the House Small Business Committee in the mid-1980s, said the program's record reflects the high failure rate of small businesses generally.

"Once they were out of the 8(a) program and tried to compete in the private sector, they ran into difficulties — the old boy network and all of that stuff," he said.

Alexander says bluntly that the SBA program failed to prepare her company for real-world business competition, "all of the things you're sheltered from in the 8(a) program."

Graduates who survive warn that relying solely on SBA business can harm a company's prospects.

"We didn't wait for SBA to knock on the door," said Bob Tucker, owner of a Louisiana high-tech counseling firm that left the program last year and continues to prosper

"We've gone through little doorways, big doorways and no doorways at all to effectively market ourselves. We have been able to effectively compete," he said.

Faced with mounting criticism, the SBA is working to make changes, said Cassandra Pulley, the deputy administrator who is drafting the reforms.

STRIKES: Serbs respond with renewed fury spokesman Ron Redmond said in Geneva.

U.N. officials quoted reports from Gorazde as saying that 200 refugees were wounded Monday morning in a single artillery attack on a former schoolhouse.

The Serb shelling on Monday was "perhaps at a heavier rate" than it was Sunday, and it was "was directed right at our U.N. military observer facilities, even more directly than was the case yesterday (Sunday)," Adm. Mike Kramer said at a Pentagon briefing in Washington.

Later in the day, NATO planes struck again, hitting several Serbian tanks and armored personnel carriers, a senior Pentagon official said. The United Nations said three bombs were dropped, destroying a tank that was "firing directly into the town."

Olivier van Bunnen, a representative of Doctors Without Borders in Gorazde, and Gorazde official Esad Ohranovic said Serb attacks intensified after the NATO air raid.

"The city is literally burning," Ohranovic said.

Lyndall Sachs, a spokeswoman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Belgrade, reported "indiscriminate shelling" of Gorazde. She said a shell landed close to UNHCR offices in Gorazde, blowing out all the windows. There were no casualties.

The Serb fire later decreased, then stopped around 8 p.m. (1 p.m. CDT), van Bunnen said.

Shortly before the attacks ceased, Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, commander of U.N. forces in Bosnia, telephoned Bosnian Serb commander Gen. Ratko Mladic, telling him to quit shelling "in 10 minutes" or face more bombing.

CANCER: Broccoli blocks tumors until they enter cells where they are converted to enzymes which are highly reactive and are capable of initiating tumor formation," said Talalay.

Sulforaphane and its chemical cousins, he said, cause the body to produce another type of enzyme that blocks the cancer-causing action of the first enzyme.

"The second family of enzymes tend to detoxify the effects of the other enzymes," said the researcher. He called the results "quite dramatic."

In the study, Talalay and his colleagues exposed 145 rats to a powerful cancer-causing chemical called DMBA. Twenty-five of the rats were used as controls and received no drug treatment. The rest received various doses of sulforaphane and related compounds. The drugs were synthetic copies of the compounds found in vegetables.

At the end of 50 days, 68 percent of the control rats had developed mammary tumors, but only about 26 percent of those receiving high doses of sulforaphane developed cancer. Similar results were found for another substance, called compound 2, that is related to sulforaphane. Other related compounds also were effective, but to a lesser degree.

Talalay said the studies showed the sulforaphane-type chemicals tended to either prevent or delay tumor formation, and that when cancer did develop, the tumors were smaller and less numerous.

Talalay emphasized that the vegetable compound seems to work only as a cancer preventer and has no effect on tumors that have already started. As a result, he said, cancer patients should not expect benefit from broccoli binges.

The experiment, which follows an earlier test-tube study by the Hopkins group that identified sulforaphane as a possible cancer preventer, is the first by the laboratory to prove that the vegetable compound can work in animals. Talalay said a clinical study with human volunteers is planned.

Sulforaphane and related compounds are found in what are called cruciferous vegetables. These include broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and cabbage. Earlier studies have shown that people who regularly eat these types of vegetables tend to develop less cancer than those who avoid this type of food.

happen.

"The safe areas designated by the United Nations must remain safe areas," U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said Monday. "I will not hesitate to use air power again" if U.N. commanders in Bosnia request it, he added.

But Bosnian Serb leaders remained defiant, saying they will use all available means to reach their goal.

"We cannot abandon Gorazde, or a centimeter of our territories," said the head of the Bosnian Serbs' self-styled parliament, Momcilo Krajisnik.

Serb reaction to NATO strikes was tough and uncompromising. Politicians and military criticized the West and threatened to "flatten" the Muslims, expel the United Nations from Bosnia, break off peace talks and widen the war.

Continuing Serb attacks signal the ascendance of a hard-line faction, led by Bosnian Serb army commander Gen. Ratko Mladic, over more moderate Bosnian Serb leaders such as Radovan Karadzic, who is prepared to trade land for peace.

"God knows what Serb hard-liners can do when they are desperate," said Belgrade's leading military analyst Milos Vasic. "And they have military means to do some nasty things, not only in Bosnia and the Balkans, but further afield in Europe."

He and other analysts argue that the pinprick strikes, such as those carried out near Gorazde, are insufficient to deter the Serbs. They may only induce them to retaliate.

Yet any use of broader force brings other risks. Gorazde is only about 12 miles from the border of Yugoslavia, now made up only of Serbia and tiny Montenegro.

Yugoslav army officials have said they would consider the falling of a single NATO bomb in their territory as an act of war.

Slobodan Milosevic, Serbia's president and the region's chief power broker, has accused the United Nations of taking sides in the Bosnian war by ordering the NATO strikes.

The Bosnian Serb leadership has closely followed Milosevic's suggestions in the past, and is now likely to demand the expulsion of the United Nations from Bosnia.

Russian ultranationalist leader Vladimir Zhirinovsky throws an uprooted garden plant at demonstrators in Strasboury, France.

■ Zhirinovsky stirs trouble in France

STRASBOURG, France — Russian ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky tossed insults, plants and stones at a group of Jewish demonstrators who protested his visit to Strasbourg on Monday.

A day after arriving in France on a limited visa, Zhirinovsky continued his tradition of making outrageous remarks — reportedly saying at one point that Italy's Aviano airport — home of NATO warplanes — should be bombed.

He lost his sang-froid in front of demonstrators outside the Russian consulate who screamed "Zhirinovsky neo-Nazi" and "fascist out."

He spit on one protester, then, taking refuge behind the gates of the consulate, threw uprooted garden plants and stones at the crowd. "I'll kill you," one witness quoted Zhirinovsky as saying.

■ Mexican candidate tours, trails doubts

MEXICALI, Mexico — In another Mexico, it might have been a comforting political set piece: the governing party's new presidential candidate back to see his humble roots, the smiling neighbors, the church where he was an altar boy.

But when Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de Leon had come and gone in a pack of cameramen and a cloud of dust, his visit only reminded Felipe Ballesteros of the government's stale promise to pave the street in front of his house, of the hope that people felt last year and how the last of it seemed to dry up after Zedillo's predecessor was killed two weeks ago.

On a campaign swing that began at the grave of Luis Donaldo Colosio and stopped in the Tijuana neighborhood where he was assassinated after a rally on March 23, Zedillo, 42, might have been forgiven his recourse to the familiar. For now, the polls suggest that most Mexicans will turn to him when they choose their next president on Aug. 21.

■ Crackdown unable to quell violence

UMLAZI, South Africa — Almost two weeks after the South African government sent troops to the Zulu heartland to stem factional violence and protect voters in the country's first nonracial elections, an increasingly insecure populace here views the crackdown as having done little.

More than 150 people have been killed in the last week, an unusually high toll even for Natal province, where politically motivated violence is commonplace. With elections scheduled for April 26 through 28, this month's toll could match or surpass the record of 311 politically related deaths reported in March.

■ Russia, U.S. plan joint maneuvers

MOSCOW — The Americans are coming!

Some 250 U.S. troops will hold joint maneuvers this summer with the Russian military, the first such exercises on Russian soil.

Monday's announcement signaled that despite differences over Yugoslavia and other issues, Russia and the United States want to continue moving away from the tense decades of Cold War confrontation.

Now, instead of planning for war on the plains of Europe, they are holding military exercises to help prepare for future U.N. peacekeeping operations.

■ Excavators find 2,000-year-old ruins

AMMAN, Jordan — Excavators have unearthed ruins of what appears to be a 2,000-year-old Roman settlement, the Department of Antiquities said Monday.

The ruins, found in an area called Yajouz, six miles north of Amman, contain remains of a large Roman temple with Corinthian capitals, portraits, relief friezes and sculpture, said Safwan Tel, the department chief.

"Indications are that the site must have comprised large buildings and that a Byzantine church could have been set up on the ancient Roman temple found there," he said.

West gambles on force bringing Serbs to talks

By Roger Cohen

■ Analysis

ZAGREB, Crotia — In twice bombing Serbian positions around the Muslim enclave of Gorazde, the United States and its Western allies have wagered that force will bring the Serbs back to the negotiating table because force is the one thing Serbian soldiers in Bosnia understand.

It is a big gamble. Ever since the president of Serbia, Slobodan Milosevic, began whipping up Serbian nationalist sentiment in 1987 as a means to consolidate his power, Serbs have been fed an unrelenting diet of myth and history in which their warrior attributes, heroic struggles against the Ottoman Turks and the Nazis, and their capacity for martyrdom have been a constant theme.

The basic nationalist message is that Serbs never bow to pressure, and there is no more fervent believer than the commander of the Bosnian Serbs' army, Gen. Ratko Mladic, who ordered the recent onslaught on Gorazde. Mladic, whose father was killed in 1945 fighting Nazi and Croatian fascist forces in Bosnia, is apparently driven by the conviction that only military might will save Bosnia's Serbian minority.

AP Laserphoto

Two Bosnian policemen try to restrain a woman participating in a demonstration in Sarajevo on Monday. Demonstrators claimed that U.N. action was too little, too late.

One American official said: "When we bomb, we are telling Mladic and the Serbs that their aggression will no longer be tolerated and we want them back at the negotiating table. But we have not even been able to see Mladic yet, and his aims remain hard to gauge."

The nature of those aims are crucial. From a bunch of often undisciplined militias, the Serbian force in Bosnia has evolved in two years into a highly centralized army under Mladic's command, Western diplomats say.

Thus if Mladic wants to prosecute the war, he has the means to do so.

"Milosevic surely wants peace because he wants to free Serbia from economic sanctions, but it's questionable that Milosevic can stop Mladic at this stage," said John R. Lampe, the director of East European studies at the Woodrow Wilson Center, in Washington. "General Mladic appears to be worried that the recently formed Muslim-Croat federation will eventually have the effect of freeing the Muslims to attack the Serbs."

Western diplomats believe the Serbian military commander may also be worried by the prospect of a large U.S. troop deployment in Bosnia in the event of the peace settlement, the possibility of war crimes trials and the effect on his army's morale of any territorial concessions made to secure peace with Bosnia's Muslims and Croats. So he acted by blasting Gorazde.

Chaos, despair, blood flow through Rwanda for 5th day

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — Chaos, despair and blood flowed through Rwanda for a fifth day Monday. The air was heavy with the stench of thousands of corpses and smoke from villages burned by marauders.

As foreigners sought escape from the ethnic warfare that has left an estimated 20,000 dead, U.N. efforts to broker a cease-fire between the rebels and the army failed again.

The bloodshed that began last week is a grisly outgrowth of a decades-long feud between majority Hutus and minority Tutsis. The violence, which erupted after the presidents of Rwanda and Burundi died in a plane crash Wednesday, has ruined a fragile peace between the Hutu-led government and the Tutsi-led rebels.

Automatic weapons fire echoed through Kigali, the capital, on Monday, and rebel troops at a stadium and government troops at the parliament building exchanged mortar and machine-gun fire.

In the Rwandan capital, the roar of shells could be heard on the city's outskirts. Armed men, many of them clearly drunk, manned checkpoints and went house-to-house looking for victims.

The rebel Rwandan Patriotic Front told Africa No. 1 Radio that its forces had advanced into Kigali and would not sign a truce.

"We have not signed any cease-fire agreement and we don't intend to do it," said Christine Omutonyi and Bosco Butera, members of the RPF's political bureau in Kampala, Uganda.

The RPF's Radio Muhabura, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp., said the rebels could not sign an agreement with a government it does not recognize. "As far as the RPF is concerned there is no government in Rwanda," the radio report said.

Rwanda's military and police named an interim civilian government Friday, headed by Theodore Sindikubwabo, the former head of parliament. Six ministers were announced, including Jean Kambanda as prime minister. They were drawn from parties represented in the previous coalition government.

The fighting has also spread outside the capital.

In Butare, Rwanda's second-largest city 50 miles south of Butare, refugees from the countryside told of gangs of men setting fire to villages and hacking residents to death with machetes.

Efforts to evacuate foreigners from Rwanda continued amid the fighting.

Two French convoys evacuating foreigners were shot at Monday by snipers going through what they thought was a safe area. There were no injuries.

U.S. officials said all of the 250 Americans, mostly missionaries and aid workers, who wanted to leave Rwanda had been evacuated by late Sunday, along with hundreds of French, Belgians and other expatriates.

Team of observers scouts Hebron amid tension, violence, suspicion

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — An advance team of international observers scouted the tense city of Hebron on Monday, and a clash between Israeli soldiers and Islamic militants broke out in their wake. Three Arabs were wounded.

The violence was an indication of the challenge facing the observers, who will be sandwiched between Islamic fundamentalists and Jewish militants, and face suspicion from both Israelis and Palestinians.

It could well become a mission unpopular.

Leaflets from Islamic militants have threatened attacks on observers, and opponents said they viewed the 160-member observer unit as a token designed to assuage Palestinian anger but powerless to protect the 80,000 Arabs.

"We reject the international observers, and the international presence in this city," said Taisir Tamimi, a spokesman for the Islamic Resistance Movement, or Hamas. "They will not be able to protect us. I will be surprised if they can protect themselves."

Jewish settlers were no warmer.

"It seems they are coming with a predisposition against the presence of Jews in Hebron," said Yehiel Leiter, a spokesman for West Bank settlers. He said there were fears that terrorists would "continue to operate behind their coattails."

The formation of the observer group from Denmark, Norway and Italy rescued the Israel-PLO talks and responded to PLO demands for greater security after the Feb. 25 massacre in which a Jewish settler killed 30 Muslim worshipers in the Ibrahimi Mosque. Called the Temporary International Presence In Hebron — TIPH — it has a three-month mandate.

Mustafa Natche, the PLO-appointed mayor, credited the observer presence with persuading Israel to lift a curfew on the city center Monday for the first time in a week.

TUESDAY, APRIL 12, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You and your mate will have more time to spend together. Treat each other well and every aspect of your life will improve. The financial outlook seems especially bright in early fall. Your civilized, thorough way of doing business will produce a big payoff. Keep your standards high. By early 1995, the career picture will be very much to your liking. Have faith in your creative ideas.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: jazz musician Herbie Hancock, actress Shannen Doherty, actor Andy Garcia, TV talk show host David Letterman.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A frantic search for peace of mind will be counterproductive. Relax. Once you have made an important decision, do not look back. Second-guessing yourself is a waste of energy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): To make more money, you must be willing to make tough decisions. Simple techniques work best today. Unexpected developments enable you to create a positive cash flow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Long-range financial planning will produce excellent results. A stock market tip could lead to a very nice dividend. Set aside money for a small child's education.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The reason you do not use a resource may be that you do not know enough about it. Market research helps expand your professional and personal horizons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Romance looks promising. A lively, fresh approach will bring success. When the chips are down, an old friend rises to the occasion. Be appreciative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get serious about physical fitness. It will improve your looks as well as your health. Be certain your doctor approves of a special diet. Ask probing questions about an investment plan; expect revealing answers!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Things will go swimmingly if you exert yourself sufficiently. The lure of financial gain should provide lots of incentive! You feel a new sense of freedom in your personal life. Be discreet about romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): With the spotlight shining your way, you would be wise to assert yourself in positive terms. An ingenious idea may await your go-ahead. A romantic setting prompts a heart-felt declaration. Be gentle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Try not to complicate things by experimenting with new methods if the ones already being used are perfectly satisfactory. Be cautious in pursuing a new romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Letting your imagination run out of control could lead to an unpleasant confrontation. A practical approach works best. Keep any suspicions to yourself until proof is available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep an open mind. A lively exchange of ideas will give you plenty to think about — as it should. Avoid taking financial risks, even small ones. A so-called "bargain" could turn out to be a lemon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep a low profile today, especially when around people who behave oddly. Studying art, science or the past will inspire you. Write a family history to give to your offspring; they will love it!

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

The trouble with playing a lot of conventions is that you like to trot them out on the faintest excuse, often on hands that are not quite suitable. Here's an example of how an ill-judged decision can backfire.

North-South were playing the Precision system, where an opening bid of one club is artificial and shows 17 points or more with any distribution. East's double showed the major suits, an intervention that can charitably be described as fatuous. Neither the strength of the hand, nor the distribution, warranted that action. North-South had their bidding boots on and a tortuous, aggressive auction carried them to the diamond slam.

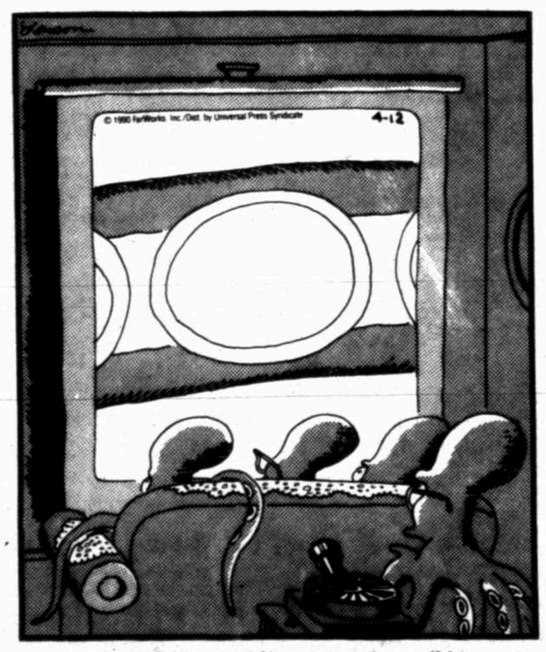

West led the jack of spades and, with nothing to serve as a guide, declarer might well have taken every finesse in sight, with disastrous results. Warned that East held all the missing high cards in the major suits, declarer rose with the ace of spades, led a heart to the jack and cashed the king of hearts.

Just in case West held the king of diamonds and would cover, declarer continued with the jack of diamonds. When West followed low, dummy's ace was played, a spade was discarded on the ace of hearts and the queen of spades was ruffed in the closed hand. After conceding a trick to the king of diamonds, declarer was forced to try the club finesse for the 12th trick. But since West was known to hold the club length, declarer was not too surprised when that succeeded.

Debra Winger, Sen. Bob Kerrey appearances restart rumor mill

OMAHA, Neb. — Is the on-again, off-again relationship between Debra Winger and Sen. Bob Kerrey back on again?

On-again, off-again relationship is off, Winger says.

No, says Ms. Winger, even though he accompanied her to the Academy Awards last month, and she served as host for his political fund-raiser Sunday.

"Bob's one of my best friends," she said. "I don't have many of them."

Whatever their relationship, Ms. Winger says she still supports Kerrey, who is running for re-election.

"He's still one of the good guys and it's important that we keep the good guys in," she said. "Besides, he has no private life anyway, he may as well be in government."

GULFPORT, Miss. — Vince Gill spent the day watching golf. Many of the spectators spent the day watching Vince Gill.

Grammy-winning Vince Gill spends day in golf gallery.

The Grammy-winning country music star was in the gallery of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Classic on Sunday to support golfer Bob Wolcott, a longtime friend.

But he spent plenty of time talking to fans and signing autographs on things like admission tickets and golf balls.

Wolcott shot a 2-under-par 70 Sunday, good enough for a share of fifth place and $7,546 in prize money.

"We've been friends for a long time," said Gill, whose albums include "I Still Believe In You" and "Pocket of Gold." "He's an old golfing buddy. I'm a 2 handicap myself."

LOS ANGELES — It's a boy for supermodel Kim Alexis, the pregnant cover girl on the spring issue of Shape magazine.

The 8-pound, 13-ounce boy, named Noah Fernand, was born Saturday at an Orange County hospital, publicist Michelle Bega said Monday.

"Mother and baby are doing splendidly. She's delighted," Bega said.

Alexis, who has two sons from a previous marriage, is married to former National Hockey League star Ron Duguay. He has two daughters from a previous marriage.

BEVERLY HILLS Calif. — Ella Fitzgerald had both legs amputated below the knee because of complications with her diabetes, her spokeswoman said Monday.

Ella Fitzgerald has both legs amputated below the knee.

"She's in really good shape and good spirits," spokeswoman Mary Jane Outwater said.

Fitzgerald underwent the amputations last year, but the operations were not disclosed at the time. Asked why there was no announcement at the time, she said, "I really can't tell you. All I can tell you is that was done."

Fitzgerald, the "first lady of song," turns 76 on April 25. She is known for her improvisational "scat" vocals, and has recorded more than 250 albums.

OMAHA, Neb. — John Quinones rose from migrant farm worker to correspondent for the ABC news program "Prime Time Live." And if he can do it, he's sure anyone can.

"I wasn't supposed to become a network television correspondent . . . but I persevered," Quinones told about 200 people Sunday at the 14th Annual Hispanic Education Workshop. "And I'm here to tell you . . . to try and try no matter what odds are in front of you."

Quinones, who was raised in the barrios of San Antonio, said his family was poor and often traveled to Michigan during the summer to pick fruit as migrant workers.

"If a former migrant worker like John Quinones can make it to prime time, you certainly can," he said.

Quinones said he used loans, grants and scholarships to pay for his education at Columbia University in New York, where he earned a master's degree in journalism.

After graduating from Columbia, Quinones went to work for CBS in Chicago, he said. He joined ABC in 1982 and worked more than 10 years in Central America.

Quinones said he is discouraged that there aren't more Hispanics in television news.

Double tragedy ripping Africa

The tragedy now coming into focus in central Africa is sobering, although to this point many Americans have been only fleetingly aware of continuing massacres in Burundi. Since last October, more than 100,000 people have been killed while 700,000 people have fled this central African country. A civil war between the majority Hutu and minority Tutsi tribes has spilled over into neighboring Rwanda — and now both countries teeter on anarchy.

Burundi's new president, Cyprien Ntaryamira, and the Rwandan president, Juvenal Habyarimana, were killed on Wednesday when their aircraft crashed, possibly downed by a rocket, as they were returning from a peace conference in Tanzania. This ignited a full-scale massacre in Rwanda that has claimed thousands of civilians, peacekeepers, and Burundi's prime minister, Agathe Uwilingiyimana. Trapped in the melee is a U.N. force of 2,500 peacekeepers from a score of nations that has been vainly trying to enforce a cease-fire.

Amid this appalling loss of life, chaos and crop failures are spreading hunger and disease through refugee camps. As dismaying is the prospect of a conflict without end, adding another failed state to a list that already includes Bosnia, Somalia, and Liberia, with others likely to follow.

Neighboring states, the Organization of African Unity, and the U.N. all have a primary responsibility to provide emergency relief and keep open doors for peacemaking. But at some point the world may need to ask, if these efforts fail, whether or not it should stand aside if belligerents cannot agree.

It has almost reached that point in Burundi and Rwanda. Rivalry between the now dominant Hutu and their former feudal overlords, the Tutsi, predates the countries' independence from Belgium in 1962. The present round of fighting in Burundi began last October when the army, the Tutsi stronghold, assassinated a Hutu president. His successor was also a Hutu; so was his fellow passenger on the fatal plane, the president of Rwanda. Thus the presumptive blame for the orgy of slaughter falls on Tutsi warriors seeking to reimpose their past dominance.

Yet Hutu radio broadcasts are just as bloodthirsty as those of the Tutsi, which only heightens the tragedy of a failed cease-fire and the assassination of the peace-seeking presidents. The Security Council may have no ready answer to this terrible riddle, but the first urgent need is to establish what happened and to pinpoint political responsibility for all these horrible killings.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, April 12, the 102nd day of 1994. There are 263 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 12, 1861, the Civil War began as Confederate forces fired on Fort Sumter in South Carolina.

On this date:

In 1606, England adopted as its flag the original version of the Union Jack.

In 1862, Union volunteers led by James J. Andrews stole a Confederate train near Marietta, Ga., but were later caught. (This episode inspired the Buster Keaton comedy "The General.")

In 1877, the catcher's mask was first used in a baseball game.

In 1934, the F. Scott Fitzgerald novel "Tender Is the Night" was first published by Scribner's in New York.

In 1945, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the 32nd president of the United States, died of a cerebral hemorrhage in Warm Springs, Ga., at age 63. Vice President Harry S. Truman became the nation's 33rd chief executive.

In 1955, the Salk vaccine against polio was declared safe and effective.

In 1961, Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin became the first man to fly in space, orbiting the earth once before making a safe landing.

In 1981, the space shuttle "Columbia," carrying astronauts Robert L. Crippen and John W. Young, blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on its first test flight.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered for publication.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations. The shorter the letter, the better its chance of publication.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis.
- We do not publish 'open' letters or copies of letters sent to others.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

MIKE ROYKO

If we want blood, why stop at flogging?

About three weeks ago, I made a prediction. That's when I wrote:

"Michael Fay. At the moment his name might be unfamiliar, but I doubt if anyone has a greater potential to arouse heated emotions, headstrong opinions and emotional talk-show babble. Before long it will happen."

Royko

Boy, has it ever.

I doubt if there is even one talk show that hasn't opened its phones to bloodthirsty howls of joy that Fay, 18, should be flogged in Singapore.

Most major papers have had editorials condemning the flogging as barbaric; other columnists have jumped in, and my mountain of letters and faxes on this subject is growing by the minute.

The latest tally shows that about 90 percent of them are enthusiastic about young Fay being flogged.

As many of them say: "That's what we should do in this country."

And as more than one has said: "Let the punishment fit the crime."

Which is kind of ridiculous, when you consider the crime and the planned punishment.

The crime: Fay and other young men went on a binge of vandalism. They spray-painted and threw eggs at cars, switched license plates, tore down traffic signs and committed other stupid acts.

The punishment: Several months in jail, a $2,000-plus fine and flogging.

It's the six strokes on the butt that stirred the controversy. And the bloodthirsty cheers.

We are not talking about a mere spanking. In Singapore, you are flogged with a bamboo rod, wielded by a martial arts expert. Skin and flesh fly. Blood flows. The floggee is scarred for life.

And if he faints, as some do, a doctor revives him so he feels the next whack.

I concede that vandalism is nasty. And I'd be upset if someone egged or spray-painted my car.

But is it a crime that justifies what amounts to torture?

Well, if you think that, then you have led an amazingly blameless life and have raised children who are models of virtue.

And I doubt that most of those who are baying for young Fay's blood qualify on either count.

However, if this is what people want, I say give it to them. So I propose that we revise some of our laws.

Let us begin with traffic. Speeding causes deaths. So does lane-hopping, jumping stop signs, going through red lights and failing to use turn signals. So let us apply a bamboo rod to the bare butts of those who break these laws.

What's that you say? You have never, ever broken a traffic law? Sorry, but unless you don't know how to drive, I don't believe it. Even the pokiest fuddy-duddy on the road goofs up once in a while, even if he isn't caught.

Littering is a form of vandalism against society as a whole, since we have to spend countless millions of tax dollars to pick up after those who toss a wrapper or a cigarette or a Kleenex on the sidewalk or street.

So let us lop off one finger on all litterers, young or old. If your kid flips that Popsicle stick in the gutter, I want to see that finger plop. If granny blows her nose and tosses the tissue in an alleyway, let the doc revive her after her pinky is zapped.

Ask any cop how much of his time is spent going on calls for domestic disputes. Most of the time, they result in little more than a disorderly conduct charge, a mere misdemeanor.

Yet they tie up the police and waste the time of judges, clerks, bailiffs and other public servants. Sometimes they escalate into more serious offenses — assaults, even homicide.

So this offense should be nipped in the bud. Forget about disorderly conduct, a mere slap on the wrist. The key is to remove the root cause of domestic strife — the genitals. In all such cases, the man should have his male appendage sliced off, and the woman's parts should be mutilated and rendered useless. Then people would think twice before getting in kitchen fights and throwing stuff at each other and calling the cops.

So how about it, all you Michael Fay-haters. Have you given any thought to how much Windex it takes to clean your glass house?

CHARLEY REESE

'Urban neurotics' seek Indians' knowledge

My favorite actor is Wes Studi, a Cherokee, a Vietnam combat vet, former Indian activist and the author of one of my favorite quotes.

Reese

Studi played Magua, the sinister Huron, in "Last of the Mohicans," and "Geronimo" in the film of the same name. He can do more acting with his eyes than many of the male and female bimbos can with their whole bodies.

Interviews with actors are generally a waste of time. The actors are only there because they have to plug their picture, and the journalists generally know so little about the industry and are in such childish awe of a celebrity that they do nothing but embarrass journalism — assuming that's still possible.

But dumb questions or not, old Studi put it plainly in the interview I read:

"After (expletive) us for 500 years, white people are now asking us to give them advice about how to make their lives better. They should have thought of that 200 years ago."

What he was referring to is the current mania among the urban neurotics for books about Indian medicine and religion. There is a booming business in such stuff.

But as P.T. Barnum once observed, there is a sucker born every minute, and so a few Indians are lightening the bank accounts of the naive by writing books that purport to be about Indian religion and rituals for good health.

Of course, anybody but an urban neurotic could figure out that Indian medicine and religion didn't do much to save the Indians and is therefore unlikely to be of much help to urban palefaces.

Furthermore, what they are getting is a con job. Although I have kissing cousins among the Western Cherokee, the only Indian I know is a Kiowa. And the Kiowa says no Indian will tell a white person the truth about his religion. They won't even tell another Indian from a different tribe. He gets a big laugh out of the whole business.

After all, as Studi is brave enough to point out, there is no reason why American Indians should feel particularly warm toward American whites. Some contemporary Americans, however, have such a high opinion of themselves that, despite what terrible things we do to people, they can't conceive of Americans not being liked and believe it a monstrous injustice when we aren't.

At any rate, you can't blame an Indian for cashing in on the current fad of sappy, paternalistic appreciation of all things Native American, whether he's an actor or a medicine man with a word processor and a book agent.

But most Native Americans have no desire to lead white folks to the promised land of psychic or spiritual bliss for the reasons Studi mentioned.

Years ago when I was an assistant city editor, a young reporter bugged me about going down to the Everglades and doing a story on the Seminoles. He was part Indian, he said. He was very much into the togetherness bit. He was sure he would establish rapport.

I told him he wouldn't, but I cleared it with the newsroom bosses and he set off. I didn't think he'd get a story, but he was a hard worker and deserved the chance. He came back very tired and very much mosquito bitten.

"How'd it go?" I asked.

"Not too well," he said. "They wouldn't talk to me."

If it makes you feel good, wear feathers, beat a drum and howl at the moon, but don't expect American Indians to love you. You may not know anything about American history, but they do.

Team represents Midland

Congratulations are due the Midland High School boys soccer team for reaching the final four of the state championship. Their skills and determination have carried them further than any soccer team from this area has gone before.

But congratulations are also in order to the families, students, faculty, school trustees and larger community these young men represent. You see, this team has not only played soccer well; they have done a great job as ambassadors for everyone living in Midland.

At the UIL Regional Tournament in Dallas recently, the Bulldog soccer team won the hearts of the crowd. All eight teams (boys and girls) had their partisan fans at the stadium, and there were plenty of folks from the metroplex who just came out to see good soccer. As their teams were eliminated, the partisans turned to cheer for the Bulldogs. As they watched the quality of the skills and the character of the coach and players, the crowd clearly chose the Midland team as their favorite.

Often those involved in school sports are tempted to trade character for wins, sportsmanship for intimidation, long-term enjoyment for one rabid moment. Your team won the soccer matches that weekend, but the public relations victory belonged to all of Midland.

Resignation remains mystery

Why would Coach Steve Green willingly resign after such an outstanding season? That is a question a lot of people would like to see answered.

I suppose it is a good thing that Nolan Richardson isn't the coach at MC. Dr. Daniels might not like his personality or the way he wears his hair, therefore Coach Richardson would have to be "let go" four days after winning the 1994 NCAA Basketball Championship. After all, if you've got a good ball team, the only thing left to do is force him to resign. I have a feeling that is what happened to Coach Green. Come on, the team had just returned four days earlier from Hutchinson after finishing sixth in the nation. No one except for maybe Jimmy Johnson would resign after the season MC had. Coach Green helped some outstanding athletes form one of the best teams MC has seen in years.

Next year, 1995, was certain to hold even bigger and better things for this ball team, the college and the many MC fans as well as the coach himself. Since that will never happen, let's see if we can bring mediocrity back to MC basketball.

Thanks to Dr. Daniels. He is the one I believe should receive the credit for the "mystery" resigning of a great coach.

It was a great three years, Coach Green. You'll be missed!

Resignation doesn't add up

I am a longtime Midlander, and consequently a loyal supporter of Midland College. I am not personally acquainted with Steve Green, but because I am a big fan of our Midland College Chaparral basketball team, I have watched with interest the television coverage and news reports of his resignation (what little there has been). I listened intently as Becky Neighbors interviewed Coach Green on the day of his resignation. Thinking I missed something I tuned in to the 10 o'clock news that same night to make certain I had the facts straight as reported, but they just didn't add up. Coach Green did not sound like a coach who was voluntarily resigning his position as head coach of the Midland College Chaparral basketball team.

It's very hard for me to believe that there isn't more to this situation than has been made public. I also heard Dr. Daniel's (MC president) statement on TV that they would soon be forming a committee to search for a new coach. He didn't say a word about Coach Green's success with the team in the three years he has been coaching them, nor did he mention the fact that the team went to Nationals for the first time since 1987. I wonder why? I find this very strange; after all, look what the Chaps have accomplished under Steve Green's excellent coaching. So — if Steve is leaving happily, OK, but if he isn't, I certainly think that someone should take a closer look at why he is leaving.

Diamond's mission: Get rid of $60 million

By N.R. Kleinfield
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Irene Diamond has $60 million and less than three years to get rid of it.

Of course, everyone should have her problem. Such charming circumstances make her limitlessly popular. Scarcely a day goes by that supplicants don't write or call beseeching her for money.

Ms. Diamond, the widow of Aaron Diamond, the millionaire builder, is now final arbiter of the work of the Aaron Diamond Foundation, which a decade ago charted an unorthodox destiny for itself.

Unlike most foundations, which seek to exist in perpetuity, annually distributing just a small percentage of their wealth and thus never dulling their philanthropic glow, the Diamond Foundation chose to have a constricted but lively life.

Once it had received its major financing of $150 million from Diamond's estate, which came by the beginning of 1987, it was to give away all the money in 10 years and then go out of business.

"Most foundations spend very little of their money," Ms. Diamond said. "They're almost in the investment business. That wasn't our style."

This puts the deadline at the end of 1996. The clock ticks away. There are about 1,000 days left. That computes to $60,000 a day. The checks better get in the mail.

"It's interesting," Ms. Diamond said. "There's no trouble finding places for the money. I only wish I had four times as much. If I can help it, there won't be a penny left."

The calls for aid do pour in. "There is an acceleration of requests recently to get the last of it," said Vincent McGee, the foundation's executive director. "We get out of the blue: 'We know you're going out of business, how about an endowment grant.' "

The pleas for money number 1,500 a year, roughly twice as many as came in before 1990. The answer has been yes to organizations like the AIDS Action Foundation, New Yorkers Against the Death Penalty, the Chinatown History Museum and the Dance Theater of Harlem.

The answer in about 1,200 instances is a polite no. "It's a difficult morale situation in the office," McGee acknowledged, "because we're mostly saying no these days."

Irene Diamond is a small, gracious, chirpy woman slowed perhaps no more than a half-step at the age of 83. She very much runs the rather lean foundation — just 11 staff members in a suite of offices by Radio City Music Hall — but happily tolerates discord.

She was once outvoted 9 to 1 by the foundation board on a grant proposal and afterward declared it one of the best board meetings she had ever been to.

Long before she settled into dispensing money, she dreamed of becoming an actress. Instead, she found herself more attracted to judging scripts.

Society of desperate souls exists in tunnels

By Rick Bragg
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Homeless, stoned and dirty, Bob Kalinski hit bottom in 1986. Then he went deeper, into the dark.

For eight years he lived underground in a train tunnel, safely away from the lights of Manhattan that bored straight through his closed eyelids. He came out only in the early morning when most of the city was asleep, to pick up aluminum cans to sell for food. Then he would scurry back into his hole.

Now, after more than 2,000 nights under a concrete sky, he realizes that the only thing he found down deep in the Amtrak tunnel at 95th Street and Riverside Drive was a place to hide.

Kalinski, 53, one of New York's Mole People, came out of the tunnels in February to live in the light.

"I was feeling dirty," he said.

Advocates for the homeless say he is among the few who choose to leave the underworld once they settle into the shadows. Most stay until they are too sick to live underground and their neighbors send them above ground to be treated, or to die.

"It is hard to get them out," said Joel Sesser, the executive director of the Partnership for the Homeless in New York. "And hard to keep them out."

It seems a short journey, just a few steps up a flight of concrete stairs, but not if you are accustomed to the tunnels, Sesser said. If Kalinski lives out his small hopes — his own apartment, a full-time job — the hardest part might be ahead of him.

Kalinski, a former short-order cook from Chicago who has flipped burgers in places all over the nation, spent the last several years of his above-ground life adrift on a river of booze. It washed away much of his self-respect, a dangerous thing for a man who had already given up his family, his home and his dreams.

He was wandering, looking for a place to sleep, when a tall man with long dreadlocks offered him sanctuary. Kalinski followed him under the city to a community where the people lived by candlelight and their own special code.

It did not matter that he was dirty, or that his hands shook badly, or that his only friends were whiskey and amphetamines. Everybody down there had warts.

His face does not have that blank look some longtime homeless have, as though life had just used them too hard and then forgot to put them away. He is a small man with bright, shining eyes on either side of a magnificent nose, an elf who chain-smokes Salem Lights.

Kalinski was born in a Polish neighborhood on the South Side of Chicago, to parents who called him a mistake.

"I used to sit and listen to them yell at each other about me," he said.

He ran away from home at 16 and never went back, not even for the funerals of his mother and father. He drifted most of his life, got married and got divorced, and finally wound up in New York. The downward slide was well on its way.

By the mid-1980s he was homeless, and hopeless, and was receiving no social-security benefit or public assistance. That is when a man named Bernard Isaacs took him by the hand and led him underground.

Kalinski lived in a concrete-block structure inside the Amtrak tunnel. He had a cat named named Dudley, and a key to an outside gate that gave them access to their home.

Police officers and transit workers knew they were there, and mostly left them alone, Kalinski said.

The neighbors, a community of seven or eight, were prostitutes and drug users and people like him, who had given up on the world topside. They lived without conflict, respecting The Rules:

No yelling at night, while people slept. No brutality. No entering the space of another person. No borrowing.

"If you caused problems, you had to leave," he said.

His only responsibility was to gather enough cans to buy food. His favorite was tunnel stew, which was a big pot of whatever happened to be at hand. The smell of cooking onions would permeate the tunnels for hundreds of yards.

The only entertainment was conversation, and the world was saved over and over again before they drifted off to sleep.

But misery was at home in the tunnels, too.

Of the seven people who were underground when Kalinski arrived, all but three are dead, he said. Some died of AIDS and some just died.

Almost everyone goes above ground to die, he said. That is just the way it was done.

He goes over their names in his mind like a boy touching fence posts with a stick on a country road. Sometimes he smiles, but most times he just looks sad.

"There was Fran, the hooker, and Shorty, who lived off Fran. There was Willy. I think he died of AIDS. There was Sheila. I think she's in Brooklyn with her sister."

Sheila was raped by three men who did not live in the tunnel. Kalinski and others testified at the trial, he said, and the men are in prison.

Kalinski did not use needles. Over time, as the people died around him, he kicked the drugs and alcohol. It was too easy to die down there without ushering death through your door, he said. It might seem like an odd place to rediscover the joy of life, but amid all the misery, it happened.

But every time he looked at his reflection in a storefront window, he saw a man with wild hair and a dirty face. It never, ever matched the person he thought was still alive inside him.

In February, he said goodbye.

Caseworkers at the Partnership for the Homeless fear that the pull of the tunnels is strong enough to take him back underground.

Bobby Galvin and Adrienne Terry, two caseworkers, tried for weeks to get Kalinski to come out of the tunnels.

"When you deal with any homeless person, it is a very difficult process to establish and develop trust," Galvin said.

The tunnels are even more difficult, because those are homeless people who have not only given up on the real world, but on the surface world of the homeless.

"The tunnels, that's where people go to hide," Galvin said.

But Kalinski swears he will never go back. There are things to do, things he has been hiding from for a lifetime.

Kalinski did not walk out of the tunnels and into heaven. He simply went from being a homeless man underground to a homeless man above ground.

He sleeps in a bed at Peter's Place, a shelter in Chelsea run by the Partnership for the Homeless, and life is not too complicated.

Soon, he wants to try a part-time job. He can already see his future.

Astronomers: Strange force tugs galaxies

By John Noble Wilford
N.Y. Times News Service

Somewhere far out in the universe, something is exerting a tremendous pull on the Milky Way galaxy, which includes the solar system, and most of its neighboring galaxies, astronomers have found. The unexpected discovery may force a revision of some basic notions about the universe.

What is tugging at these galaxies is not known, but it may be invisible matter clumped on much larger scales than can be readily explained by any current theory.

The astronomers who discovered the magnitude of these peculiar galactic motions say their observations "strongly challenge our understanding of how the universe evolved."

The first reactions of scientists to the findings have run from astonishment to skepticism to earnest debate over the implications for theories straining to answer one of the most puzzling questions in cosmology: how did the universe evolve from an early state of virtual homogeneity to the observed lumpy conditions today in which stars congregate in galaxies, galaxies in clusters and clusters of galaxies in superclusters that stretch across hundreds of millions of light-years of space?

These theories are based on the well-established idea that some unknown invisible matter, called dark matter, accounts for more than 90 percent of the mass of the universe and presumably helps account for its structure.

But many of these theories were already tottering and undergoing drastic revisions. Since the new findings indicate that the universe has clumps of matter, or structure, on much larger scales than had been predicted, cosmologists may be facing intellectually turbulent times searching for more satisfying theories.

The unsettling discovery was made by Dr. Tod R. Lauer of the National Optical Astronomy Observatories in Tucson, Ariz., and Dr. Marc Postman of the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore.

They conducted a study of galaxy motions over the entire sky out to distances of more than 500 million light-years, 30 times the volume of space that had been previously surveyed. The results, which have been widely discussed in seminars, will be published in the April 20 issue of The Astrophysical Journal.

The two astronomers found that in addition to moving with the general expansion of the universe the Milky Way and the nearby universe appear to be drifting in a particular direction with respect to the more distant universe.

They are moving with an average velocity of 425 miles a second in the direction of the constellation Virgo.

■ Chemical explosion injures workers

ST. LOUIS — An ammonia leak triggered an explosion Monday at a state psychiatric hospital, injuring at least eight kitchen workers and forcing a partial evacuation.

The explosion at the Missouri State Hospital occurred when ammonia fumes that had built up in the bakery ignited. Windows were shattered and debris was thrown 50 feet, witnesses said.

Up to 13 kitchen workers were cut and bruised by flying glass and debris, authorities said.

Eight people were taken to Barnes Hospital for examination and were expected to be released later in the day, said hospital spokesman Dave Trousdale.

Fumes forced the evacuation of workers in the bakery and main kitchen, as well as patients in one unit, said Billie Harris, the hospital's quality management officer. Harris did not know how many people were affected.

■ Ceiling over exercise class collapses

AUGUSTA, Maine — A ceiling fell into a YMCA swimming pool during an adult exercise class Monday, pitching the room into darkness and sending swimmers into a panic.

No serious injuries were reported.

The class of 14 women and one man and their instructor were in the pool when more than half the ceiling of acoustic tiles fell into the water, said John Coughlin, executive director of the Kennebec Valley YMCA.

"It was horrible," said Patricia Van Orman, who needed stitches for a cut over one eye. She said she heard an odd noise and looked up to see the ceiling peeling away.

"Everybody started screaming," said Van Orman, 57, who was trapped under a section of ceiling until she poked her head through a hole.

Electrical wiring and fixtures also dropped but didn't reach the water, Coughlin said. A circuit-breaker cut power when the ceiling collapsed, leaving scant emergency lighting to guide rescuers who led swimmers from the water.

The cause of the collapse was under investigation.

■ High court upholds clinic injunction

BOSTON — A sharply divided state supreme court upheld an injunction Monday that bars Operation Rescue from blocking abortion clinics.

In a 4-3 ruling, the Supreme Judicial Court said the injunction against the anti-abortion group protects the civil rights of women seeking abortions.

The injunction in place since 1991 at the request of the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts bars anyone connected to Operation Rescue from trespassing on or blocking abortion clinics.

Operation Rescue members had appealed the ruling on grounds they had not violated anyone's civil rights by threat or coercion, noting that no woman had testified that this had occurred.

Planned Parenthood said the women were silent to protect their privacy.

In its majority opinion, the court said: "There is no doubt that the defendants' conduct involved physical confrontations accompanied by threats of harm."

The dissenting judges said the injunction was too vague and undermines free speech.

A state law enacted last year prohibits anyone from blocking abortion clinics, but did not displace the injunction, which specifically names Operation Rescue.

Clintons pay over $14,000 in back taxes, interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clintons failed to report $6,498 in income that Mrs. Clinton made in commodities trading in 1980, the White House disclosed Monday. They wrote checks totaling $14,615 in back taxes and interest to cover what the White House called an oversight.

The checks were written to the U.S. Treasury and to the state of Arkansas.

"The Clintons do not know how the error occurred but accept responsibility for it," the Clintons' personal attorney, David Kendall, said in a statement.

The income is in addition to a nearly $100,000 gain that the White House previously reported Mrs. Clinton made in 1979-1980 in commodities trading.

The White House has said Mrs. Clinton made the money after staking $1,000 of her own money on risky cattle futures.

New documents made available by the White House on Monday showed Mrs. Clinton put up $5,000 of her own money in a second trading account in October 1979.

A review of the records showed "that a short term capital gain of $6,498 from 1980 commodities trading was not reported," Kendall said. "The federal tax on this gain would have been $3,315; the state tax would have been $514. The Clintons are today paying these taxes plus accrued interest."

In addition to the check for the back federal taxes, Kendall said the Clintons paid $10,134 in federal interest. They paid Arkansas $652 for back interest, he said.

The Clintons did not pay any penalties on the amounts.

A source close to the Clinton's tax situation, made available by the White House to reporters, said penalties were not paid because the failure to pay the taxes was an oversight — and not willful.

The Clintons came voluntarily, he said. He noted that the statute of limitations on back taxes is three years — five years if the IRS suspects criminal wrongdoing.

The source said the accounts on Mrs. Clinton's trading "are confusing. We don't know how it happened."

The White House also disclosed that the Clintons were audited by the Internal Revenue Service in 1982 with respect to their 1979 taxes and not required to pay back taxes.

In 1980, the year covered by the new disclosures, the Clintons had originally paid $17,680 in federal taxes and $2,836 in Arkansas taxes.

Kendall, in his statement, said the taxes on the previously unreported capital gain of $6,498 in 1980 were slightly offset by an $80 loss from commodities trading that was not reported that year.

The existence of a second trading account for Mrs. Clinton, with the brokerage firm of Stephens Inc., had been previously reported. Earlier, it was said that she put up $5,000 of her own money and closed the account after losing about $1,000.

The earlier statement "is inoperative," a senior administration, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said Monday.

Actually, the new document revealed, Mrs. Clinton opened the account in 1978, put $5,000 into it in October 1979, and closed it in May 1980, withdrawing $10,489.

The new documents also contradict earlier suggestions by White House officials and the president that Mrs. Clinton got "cold feet" when the market started to turn sour while she was pregnant with Chelsea, and that she got out.

Anti-melanoma vaccine holds promise for other cancers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Researchers using the diseased cells of melanoma patients have developed a vaccine that they say dramatically reduces the recurrence of the deadliest form of skin cancer.

The method also could be used to develop vaccines for other forms of cancer.

The researchers used the vaccine on high-risk patients with advanced melanoma. Even after surgery, most of these patients develop additional tumors and die.

People with the advance form of melanoma represent a small fraction of the disease, which is diagnosed in 32,000 Americans annually.

Dr. David Berd of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia said his team treated the patients with a vaccine made from their own cancer cells and another chemical to stimulate the immune system.

After three years, 70 percent of those vaccinated remained cancer-free, compared with 20 percent in patients treated with surgery alone, Berd told the American Association of Cancer Research on Monday.

"There is no reason why it's not applicable to other cancers," Berd said. "A great deal of this work has been concentrated in melanoma merely for tradition."

Berd said he believed anti-melanoma immunizations for high-risk patients could be available within five years from now, if scientists can synthesize the vaccine.

Dr. Joseph Bertino, head of pharmacology at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, said other anti-cancer vaccines are being tried, but the Jefferson results are the most striking yet.

He said he was particularly excited that the researchers were closing in on particular peptides, molecules that trigger the body's anti-tumor defenses.

He said he would like to see longer-term studies, but agreed that if the results hold up, they could help develop vaccines for other forms of cancer as well.

Berd agreed the peptides are the key.

"Our advantage at Jefferson is that we already know our immunization is effective, so the peptides we pull off the cells are much more likely to be clinically meaningful," he said.

The idea of coupling cancer cells and immune stimulators is not new. But previous vaccines have not been as successful in getting the body to distinguish between cancerous and healthy cells.

The vaccine now must be made from the victim's own tumor cells, requiring a large tumor to produce it, Berd said.

Man plans to begin liquid fast to protest U.S. policy on Haiti

WASHINGTON (AP) — Randall Robinson says he feels betrayed by the Clinton administration's policy toward Haiti. He calls it "profoundly racist" and plans not to eat until it changes.

Robinson, best known for protests against South Africa a decade ago, said he'll start a juice and water fast today to protest the administration's policy of forced repatriation of Haitians.

Denying Haitians the right to flee brutal military rule, he said, is tantamount to "sealing them into the death chamber of their own island."

"This makes President Clinton complicitous in the behavior of Haitian military leaders as they murder anyone who favors democracy in that country," said Robinson, 52.

Clinton believes that the most inhumane policy off all would be to encourage Haitians to flee on boats that would be no match for the 600 miles of restless seas that lie between Haiti and southern Florida. The resulting loss of life, he has said, would be catastrophic.

Administration officials acknowledge that the policy is distasteful but they say it the best of several bad options. They say Haitians who fear persecution are free to apply for refugee status at U.S. consular offices in Haiti. That admittedly is a less-than-ideal solution but, as the administration sees it, the problem of oppression in Haiti won't be solved until the oppression ends.

Faced with widespread criticism, the administration is undertaking a review of its overall Haiti policy. But State Department spokesman Mike McCurry said Monday the policy of repatriating boat people will remain unchanged.

However, he suggested the administration may take steps to speed the process by which refugees returned by the Coast Guard can apply for political refugee status inside Haiti. He said the policy review is prompted in part by an escalation in human rights abuses in the Caribbean nation.

On the political front, the administration has been trying to reinstate deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. But Haiti's military rulers have resisted international sanctions designed to force their surrender.

Lions solicit camp applications

■ Lions Committee is accepting forms for Midland-area handicapped children who wish to attend clubs' summer camp.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Every child, regardless of their disability, needs a chance to swim, go fishing, ride a horse or enjoy one of many other camp activities, say Midland Lions Committee officials.

Comprised of members of the eight Midland Lions clubs, the Lions Committee is taking applications for any Midland-area handicapped child who wants to attend summer camp, said committee member Darrell Adams.

Last year, 11 children from Midland attended the one-and-two-week camps. That amount should be about twice that number considering the size of Midland, Adams said.

The Texas Lions Camp is staffed and equipped to handle all kinds of disabilities. "It doesn't matter how they are handicapped," Adams said. All that is asked is that children be able to take care of their basic personal needs, he said.

The problem is, many parents are convinced that no one else can properly care for their child, Adams said. For this reason, Lions Club members try to get as many parents to visit the camp as possible. "Sometimes we have a problem getting moms to let them go," he said.

The camp is located deep in the Texas hill country near Kerrville. All campers, regardless of disability, are able to swim, fish, camp out and ride horseback. A vast array of specialized equipment is on

TUESDAY DAY WATCH

Water pressure

Residents of Greentree North and adjacent areas may experience decreased water pressure beginning Wednesday for about a week and a half due to construction nearby. The 12-inch water line in Midland Drive north of Greentree Boulevard will be out of service beginning at approximately 6 a.m. Wednesday while contruction continues for about 10 days. Affected residents should conserve water and pressure by limiting usage to essential needs, city officials said.

Scholarships

The Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce is still accepting applications for college scholarships. The deadline has been extended to April 29. The Hispanic chamber's 1994 scholarships are available to high school seniors from Midland Independent School District who will be attending a school of higher learning, college students, or persons returning to school to pursue certification or a college degree. Applicants must have a minimum grade point average of 2.75 on a 4.0 scale. Applicants must also be able to demonstrate that he/she or the applicant's family is not financially able to contribute all the funds necessary to pursue a college education. Two letters of recommendation are needed to apply. Applications may be picked up at the chamber, Midland College or Midland and Lee high schools. For more information call Mary Lopez at 685-4553.

Local baker gives Midlanders taste of Mexican treats

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

When Midlander Higinio Anzures, 52, visits his native homeland of Mexico, he'll stop in a bakery for ideas.

"When I see something and it's good, I want to make it," he said. "I buy one and make a better flavor one."

The new pastry or bread will be added to the more than 35 others that line the display cases at his Midland bakery.

That assortment is also the result of several years' experience at an American bakery in Odessa and a job that turned into an apprenticeship in Ojinaga, Mexico.

Anzures happened upon the bakery business when he was 12-years-old and living in Ojinaga.

"I was just looking for a job," he said. His family needed the money.

A local baker hired the young Anzures to clean and sweep.

"He paid me three pesos a day," Anzures recalled with a smile.

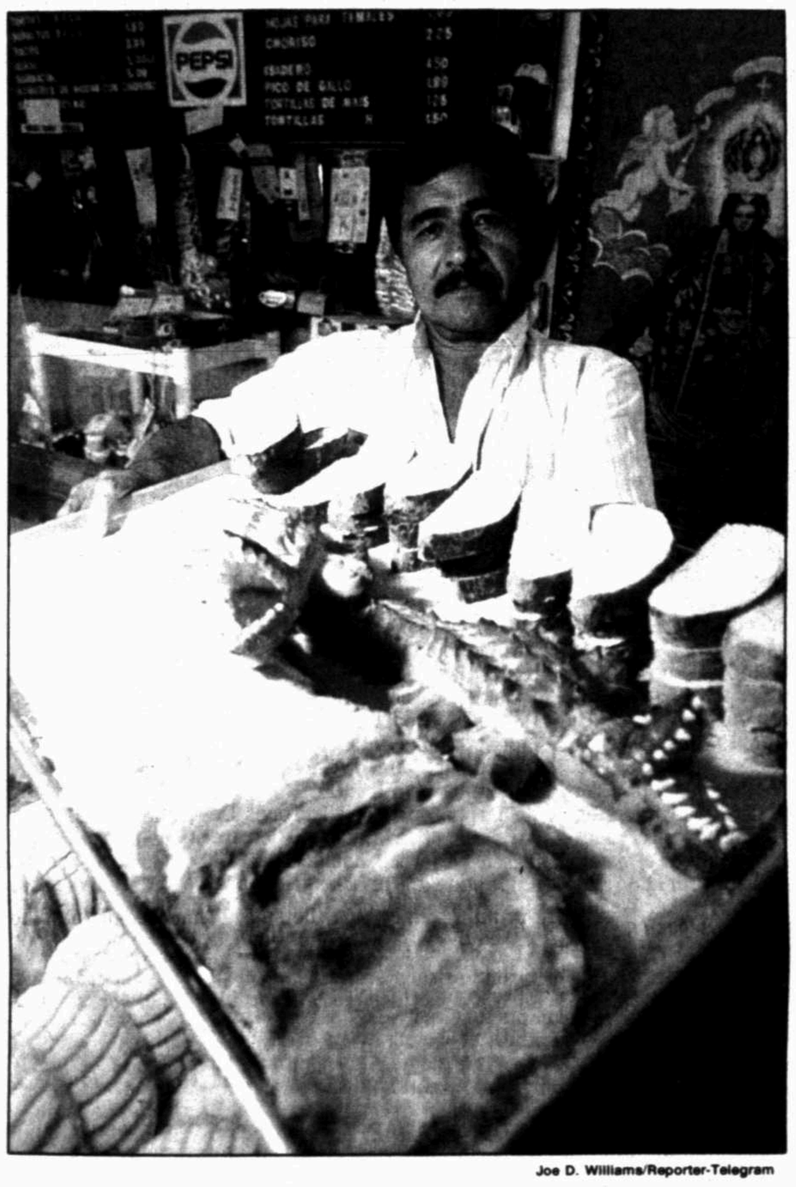

Eventually the baker taught Anzures to make breads and pastries. Anzures said he enjoyed the job and stayed on for about four years.

For many years, Anzures abandoned baking as a livelihood.

Anzures, who first came to the United States in 1965 and returned to settle in Midland in 1970, worked several jobs over the years from chopping onions on farms in Pueblo, Colo., to fixing large appliances.

In the 1980s, he returned to making pastries — mostly cookies — at an Odessa bakery, where he worked about five years.

FBI agents arrest area man accused of kidnapping son

Staff Report

An Odessa man accused of kidnapping his child was arrested Friday by FBI agents in Austin.

According to FBI report, Jackson was arrested for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

William Duane Jackson, 30, was arrested for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, according to an FBI report. The FBI filed a complaint on Jackson alleging that Jackson was traveling out of state with the intent to avoid prosecution of state law.

Jackson is accused of kidnapping his son on Feb. 12 from the child's mother's home in Ector County. According to an investigating agent, Jackson took his son from his mother's custody by forcing the child into a vehicle and driving away.

The boy's mother told an FBI agent that before the kidnapping, Jackson told her he was returning to his hometown in Georgia.

Since Jackson's arrest, the child has been returned to his mother, according to the report.

Jackson faces a state charge of interfering with a child custody order and a federal charge of parental kidnapping in Ector County.

Jackson was to appear before a United States Magistrate in Austin Monday or today and will then be returned to Odessa.

Man gets 18 months for threats to judge

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel

A jail inmate who threatened a federal judge was sentenced in U.S. District Court in Midland Monday.

Ricky Dion Williams, 25, was sentenced to 18 months in a federal prison for threatening U.S. District Judge Joe Fish of the Northern District of Texas in Dallas.

Williams was in the Ector County Jail when jail officials there intercepted the letter Jan. 6 and notified the U.S. Marshals' Service.

In the letter, Williams told Fish he planned to kill him and send him "to hell."

The FBI was called in to investigate Williams and discovered he had been sentenced by Fish for a burglary of a U.S. Post Office in 1992.

Also sentenced Monday was Roberto Benavides, 44, of Garland for impersonating a federal agent. He was sentenced to 14 months in prison.

Benavides was arrested Oct. 21 by INS officers after he attempted to sell fake immigration documents. On Oct. 11 at Midland International Airport, agents met with Benavides posing as buyers for the phone documents and recorded their conversation with a body wire microphone.

Benavides allegedly handed the undercover agents a business card and introduced himself as a U.S. Border Patrol officer in Sierra Blanca. The agents purchased 10 fraudulent U.S. Immigration documents, giving Benavides $600 in cash and a $10,000 post-dated check.

He had been employed by the border patrol but was fired in the early part of 1980, officials said.

Tammy Marie Schnaubert was sentenced for bank fraud. She was ordered to serve one month in custody, 150 days under house arrest and five years of su-

The Nation

■ Chemical explosion injures workers

ST. LOUIS — An ammonia leak triggered an explosion Monday at a state psychiatric hospital, injuring at least eight kitchen workers and forcing a partial evacuation.

The explosion at the Missouri State Hospital occurred when ammonia fumes that had built up in the bakery ignited. Windows were shattered and debris was thrown 50 feet, witnesses said.

Up to 13 kitchen workers were cut and bruised by flying glass and debris, authorities said.

Eight people were taken to Barnes Hospital for examination and were expected to be released later in the day, said hospital spokesman Dave Trousdale.

Fumes forced the evacuation of workers in the bakery and main kitchen, as well as patients in one unit, said Billie Harris, the hospital's quality management officer. Harris did not know how many people were affected.

■ Ceiling over exercise class collapses

AUGUSTA, Maine — A ceiling fell into a YMCA swimming pool during an adult exercise class Monday, pitching the room into darkness and sending swimmers into a panic.

No serious injuries were reported.

The class of 14 women and one man and their instructor were in the pool when more than half the ceiling of acoustic tiles fell into the water, said John Coughlin, executive director of the Kennebec Valley YMCA.

"It was horrible," said Patricia Van Orman, who needed stitches for a cut over one eye. She said she heard an odd noise and looked up to see the ceiling peeling away.

"Everybody started screaming," said Van Orman, 57, who was trapped under a section of ceiling until she poked her head through a hole.

Electrical wiring and fixtures also dropped but didn't reach the water, Coughlin said. A circuit-breaker cut power when the ceiling collapsed, leaving scant emergency lighting to guide rescuers who led swimmers from the water.

The cause of the collapse was under investigation.

■ High court upholds clinic injunction

BOSTON — A sharply divided state supreme court upheld an injunction Monday that bars Operation Rescue from blocking abortion clinics.

In a 4-3 ruling, the Supreme Judicial Court said the injunction against the anti-abortion group protects the civil rights of women seeking abortions.

The injunction in place since 1991 at the request of the Planned Parenthood League of Massachusetts bars anyone connected to Operation Rescue from trespassing on or blocking abortion clinics.

Operation Rescue members had appealed the ruling on grounds they had not violated anyone's civil rights by threat or coercion, noting that no woman had testified that this had occurred.

Planned Parenthood said the women were silent to protect their privacy.

In its majority opinion, the court said: "There is no doubt that the defendants' conduct involved physical confrontations accompanied by threats of harm."

The dissenting judges said the injunction was too vague and undermines free speech.

A state law enacted last year prohibits anyone from blocking abortion clinics, but did not displace the injunction, which specifically names Operation Rescue.

Clintons pay over $14,000 in back taxes, interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clintons failed to report $6,498 in income that Mrs. Clinton made in commodities trading in 1980, the White House disclosed Monday. They wrote checks totaling $14,615 in back taxes and interest to cover what the White House called an oversight.

The checks were written to the U.S. Treasury and to the state of Arkansas.

"The Clintons do not know how the error occurred but accept responsibility for it," the Clintons' personal attorney, David Kendall, said in a statement.

The income is in addition to a nearly $100,000 gain that the White House previously reported Mrs. Clinton made in 1979-1980 in commodities trading.

The White House has said Mrs. Clinton made the money after staking $1,000 of her own money on risky cattle futures.

New documents made available by the White House on Monday showed Mrs. Clinton put up $5,000 of her own money in a second trading account in October 1979.

A review of the records showed "that a short term capital gain of $6,498 from 1980 commodities trading was not reported," Kendall said. "The federal tax on this gain would have been $3,315; the state tax would have been $514. The Clintons are today paying these taxes plus accrued interest."

In addition to the check for the back federal taxes, Kendall said the Clintons paid $10,134 in federal interest. They paid Arkansas $652 for back interest, he said.

The Clintons did not pay any penalties on the amounts.

A source close to the Clinton's tax situation, made available by the White House to reporters, said penalties were not paid because the failure to pay the taxes was an oversight — and not willful.

The Clintons came voluntarily, he said. He noted that the statute of limitations on back taxes is three years — five years if the IRS suspects criminal wrongdoing.

The source said the accounts on Mrs. Clinton's trading "are confusing. We don't know how it happened."

The White House also disclosed that the Clintons were audited by the Internal Revenue Service in 1982 with respect to their 1979 taxes and not required to pay back taxes.

In 1980, the year covered by the new disclosures, the Clintons had originally paid $17,680 in federal taxes and $2,836 in Arkansas taxes.

Kendall, in his statement, said the taxes on the previously unreported capital gain of $6,498 in 1980 were slightly offset by an $80 loss from commodities trading that was not reported that year.

The existence of a second trading account for Mrs. Clinton, with the brokerage firm of Stephens Inc., had been previously reported. Earlier, it was said that she put up $5,000 of her own money and closed the account after losing about $1,000.

The earlier statement "is inoperative," a senior administration, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said Monday.

Actually, the new document revealed, Mrs. Clinton opened the account in 1978, put $5,000 into it in October 1979, and closed it in May 1980, withdrawing $10,489.

The new documents also contradict earlier suggestions by White House officials and the president that Mrs. Clinton got "cold feet" when the market started to turn sour while she was pregnant with Chelsea, and that she got out.

Anti-melanoma vaccine holds promise for other cancers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Researchers using the diseased cells of melanoma patients have developed a vaccine that they say dramatically reduces the recurrence of the deadliest form of skin cancer.

The method also could be used to develop vaccines for other forms of cancer.

The researchers used the vaccine on high-risk patients with advanced melanoma. Even after surgery, most of these patients develop additional tumors and die.

People with the advance form of melanoma represent a small fraction of the disease, which is diagnosed in 32,000 Americans annually.

Dr. David Berd of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia said his team treated the patients with a vaccine made from their own cancer cells and another chemical to stimulate the immune system.

After three years, 70 percent of those vaccinated remained cancer-free, compared with 20 percent in patients treated with surgery alone, Berd told the American Association of Cancer Research on Monday.

"There is no reason why it's not applicable to other cancers," Berd said. "A great deal of this work has been concentrated in melanoma merely for tradition."

Berd said he believed anti-melanoma immunizations for high-risk patients could be available within five years from now, if scientists can synthesize the vaccine.

Dr. Joseph Bertino, head of pharmacology at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York, said other anti-cancer vaccines are being tried, but the Jefferson results are the most striking yet.

He said he was particularly excited that the researchers were closing in on particular peptides, molecules that trigger the body's anti-tumor defenses.

He said he would like to see longer-term studies, but agreed that if the results hold up, they could help develop vaccines for other forms of cancer as well.

Berd agreed the peptides are the key.

"Our advantage at Jefferson is that we already know our immunization is effective, so the peptides we pull off the cells are much more likely to be clinically meaningful," he said.

The idea of coupling cancer cells and immune stimulators is not new. But previous vaccines have not been as successful in getting the body to distinguish between cancerous and healthy cells.

The vaccine now must be made from the victim's own tumor cells, requiring a large tumor to produce it, Berd said.

Man plans to begin liquid fast to protest U.S. policy on Haiti

WASHINGTON (AP) — Randall Robinson says he feels betrayed by the Clinton administration's policy toward Haiti. He calls it "profoundly racist" and plans not to eat until it changes.

Robinson, best known for protests against South Africa a decade ago, said he'll start a juice and water fast today to protest the administration's policy of forced repatriation of Haitians.

Denying Haitians the right to flee brutal military rule, he said, is tantamount to "sealing them into the death chamber of their own island."

"This makes President Clinton complicitous in the behavior of Haitian military leaders as they murder anyone who favors democracy in that country," said Robinson, 52.

Clinton believes that the most inhumane policy off all would be to encourage Haitians to flee on boats that would be no match for the 600 miles of restless seas that lie between Haiti and southern Florida. The resulting loss of life, he has said, would be catastrophic.

Administration officials acknowledge that the policy is distasteful but they say it the best of several bad options. They say Haitians who fear persecution are free to apply for refugee status at U.S. consular offices in Haiti. That admittedly is a less-than-ideal solution but, as the administration sees it, the problem of oppression in Haiti won't be solved until the oppression ends.

Faced with widespread criticism, the administration is undertaking a review of its overall Haiti policy. But State Department spokesman Mike McCurry said Monday the policy of repatriating boat people will remain unchanged.

However, he suggested the administration may take steps to speed the process by which refugees returned by the Coast Guard can apply for political refugee status inside Haiti. He said the policy review is prompted in part by an escalation in human rights abuses in the Caribbean nation.

On the political front, the administration has been trying to reinstate deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. But Haiti's military rulers have resisted international sanctions designed to force their surrender.

Lions solicit camp applications

■ Lions Committee is accepting forms for Midland-area handicapped children who wish to attend clubs' summer camp.

By Gary Shanks

Every child, regardless of their disability, needs a chance to swim, go fishing, ride a horse or enjoy one of many other camp activities, say Midland Lions Committee officials.

Comprised of members of the eight Midland Lions clubs, the Lions Committee is taking applications for any Midland-area handicapped child who wants to attend summer camp, said committee member Darrell Adams.

Last year, 11 children from Midland attended the one-and-two-week camps. That amount should be about twice that number considering the size of Midland, Adams said.

The Texas Lions Camp is staffed and equipped to handle all kinds of disabilities. "It doesn't matter how they are handicapped," Adams said. All that is asked is that children be able to take care of their basic personal needs, he said.

The problem is, many parents are convinced that no one else can properly care for their child, Adams said. For this reason, Lions Club members try to get as many parents to visit the camp as possible. "Sometimes we have a problem getting moms to let them go," he said.

The camp is located deep in the Texas hill country near Kerrville. All campers, regardless of disability, are able to swim, fish, camp out and ride horseback. A vast array of specialized equipment is on

FBI agents arrest area man accused of kidnapping son

Staff Report

An Odessa man accused of kidnapping his child was arrested Friday by FBI agents in Austin.

According to FBI report, Jackson was arrested for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

William Duane Jackson, 30, was arrested for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, according to an FBI report. The FBI filed a complaint on Jackson alleging that Jackson was traveling out of state with the intent to avoid prosecution of state law.

Jackson is accused of kidnapping his son on Feb. 12 from the child's mother's home in Ector County. According to an investigating agent, Jackson took his son from his mother's custody by forcing the child into a vehicle and driving away.

The boy's mother told an FBI agent that before the kidnapping, Jackson told her he was returning to his hometown in Georgia.

Since Jackson's arrest, the child has been returned to his mother, according to the report.

Jackson faces a state charge of interfering with a child custody order and a federal charge of parental kidnapping in Ector County.

Jackson was to appear before a United States Magistrate in Austin Monday or today and will then be returned to Odessa.

TREATS: Bakery sells variety of pastries

(From 1B)

Several years ago, Anzures decided to go into business for himself. His store on Lamesa Road, Alan's Bakery and Tortilleria, also called Alan's Panaderia, was named after his son.

"When I opened, it was slow, slow," he said.

Business picked up after about four months, and sales are now steady.

Most of the baked goods are Mexican, a few American, although Anzures sees pastries as pastries.

They include the popular Mexican "pan de huevo" or egg bread topped with colored sugar, often referred to as "esponjas" or sponges.

A special treat for youngsters are the foot-long alligators made from a sweet bread. Anzures got the idea for the alligators after an employee made one just for fun.

"Pan blanco," a white bread roll, is among the most popular items.

Other sweets include butter breads, gingerbread pigs, pineapple and cherry filled cone-shaped breads, Mexican wedding cookies, and a variety of other cookies, cakes and breads.

In addition to the baked goods, Anzures sells tortillas, masa (the corn dough for tamales), tortas (Mexican sandwiches), tacos, asado and barbacoa (tender meat from the cow's head usually served in tacos).

Anzures — who runs the bakery with his wife, Olivia — begins work at 5 a.m. and bakes for about three hours. The days are long, with store hours from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. during warm weather.

Pointing to the bars on the storе's window, Anzures said the work is sometimes like being in jail. He welcomes periodic trips to his small farm in Ojinaga, where he's free working outdoors tending to pecan trees and some cows.

SOLICIT: Lions accept camp applications

hand to make these activities possible, Adams said. Other camp activities include arts and crafts, a petting zoo, rifle range and archery practice.

Speaking of past camp experiences, Adams said the children learn to interact in ways they may never have had the chance to. At one camp he saw a blind girl pushing a boy's wheelchair while the boy gave directions aloud. With the wide variety of children, this combining of strengths happens regularly. "That's just as common as it can be," he said.

One eight-year-old child was allowed to attend camp only after a bitter struggle with the boy's mother. After a week of camp, the child had mastered several skills and was not ready to go home. "He'd stay down there all summer if they'd let him.

"That kid learned more self-assurance in that one week than he had in the last eight years," Adams said.

Counselors at the camp are given no more than three children each. These counselors care for the children 24 hours a day, Adams said. Although all counselors take a short class in sign language, there are about 12 staffers at the camp who are fluent in sign. The skills of a child's counselor are directly related to that child's special needs.

Other medical problems are planned for when the applications are approved, Adams said. Those whose applications are received by the end of May can usually choose the week they want, Adams said. After that, the week- or two-week periods may not all be available.

Camps begin in the first part of June and continue non-stop through the summer. There is no cost to the parents, since the camps are paid for by Lions Clubs around the state. When possible, parents are asked to pick up their children, so that they can attend the awards presentation at the end of each camp, Adams said.

When a committee member is contacted with an application, the local Lions are responsible for arranging transportation to the club, and getting the child's application approved through the camp office. A physician must complete the back portion of the application, but if one is not available, local Lions Club members will help, Adams said.

For further information or applications, contact Vernon Shock in Midland at 684-4851 or Adams at 689-3452.

Lions have been operating the camp since the land was deeded and the camp built in 1951. Famed Texas legislator and President Lyndon Johnson was instrumental in getting the federal lands given to the Lions Club, Adams said.

Comptroller's report shows prison system lost money

AMARILLO (AP) — Farm operations of the Texas prison system lost $7 million in fiscal 1992, according to a report by State Comptroller John Sharp.

But prison board member Jerry Hodge of Amarillo says auditors failed to take into consideration the savings gained when inmates grow their own food.

Sharp's report on the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, released last week, included a look at the state's 30 prison agricultural operations on more than 140,000 acres.

Farms and food processing facilities at prisons aren't as efficient as TDCJ has depicted, according to the Sharp report.

"In fiscal 1992, the agency's agriculture operations actually lost $7 million, although they reported to the (prison) board a net profit of $5.6 million," he said.

Auditors found inefficient accounting methods, Sharp said. And overhead costs for salaries, farm shops, the cannery and a packing plant were not counted against the agricultural operations, the report said.

Moreover, Sharp's audit said the prison system sells its produce back to itself at prices higher than supermarket costs. Hamburger bought from the agriculture division for $1.10 per pound, for instance, could have been purchased from commercial suppliers for 77 cents per pound, according to the report.

"If food service had purchased all the ground beef supplied by the packing plant in fiscal 1993 (2.2 million pounds) at the open-market rate ... it would have saved $730,000," the report said. "Clearly, the cows are not the only ones getting trimmed."

But Hodge, who oversees the agricultural operations for the prison board, said major meat suppliers refuse to sell directly to TDCJ, because the state is slow to pay its bills.

Hodge called the report's conclusions "off base." Prison farm operations are efficient, he said, and they teach job skills and a work ethic to inmates.

"Even if they're just chopping weeds out in the pasture, that is a lot better than if they're sitting around doing nothing," Hodge said.

The Sharp report also called a $10 million Amarillo meat processing plant a TDCJ plan "guaranteed to waste taxpayers' money."

Charles Brown, a spokesman for the prison system, said officials have not set a start-up date for the meat plant because state auditors want to study it again.

Farrakhan speech attracts 13,000 to Houston church

HOUSTON (AP) — Controversial speaker Louis Farrakhan, the leader of the National of Islam, told black men Monday night they should stop the violence among themselves and support one another.

"The thing that black men don't have in America and in the world is force and power," said Farrakhan.

The "men only" address at Pleasant Grove Missionary Baptist Church drew an astounding 13,000 black male residents, including Evander Holyfield, the current heavyweight champion.

The speech was held at the church after a scheduled speech site — Houston's Texas Southern University — was canceled because Farrakhan excluded women from the address.

After university officials denied Farrakhan access to a TSU facility, the church offered itself as sanctuary for the speaker, who has in the past been accused of bigotry and sexism.

Monday night's speech did not contain any anti-Semitic references.

He told his audience to respect women, but only because, "a woman has been made by nature to be your helper."

Security was tight at the event. All audience members were frisked for weapons before they were allowed entrance. Some of those attending waited as long as three hours to hear Farrakhan's 7:30 p.m. speech.

Farrakhan urged his audience to look beyond the Christian martyr Jesus Christ, to find guidance.

"If the lord is our shepherd, than we would never be in the condition that we are in," Farrakhan said. "So we have to replace the old shepherd."

Austin is site of annual Spamarama

AUSTIN (AP) — It was a Spam lovers dream.

Blackened Spamfish and Spam etoufee were just a couple of the dishes created with the famous canned pork product at the 19th annual Spamarama over the weekend in downtown Austin.

Spam was cooked, chilled, crammed, sculpted, tossed and revered by roughly 2,000 people who gathered to celebrate the lunchmeat.

"Spam is in the common unconsciousness of the American public," said David Arnsberger, the founder of the event now known as "The Potentate of Potted Pork Parties."

"It's a malleable meat. Not only can you eat it, you can mold it," said Arnsberger, explaining the appeal of Spamarama.

Judges wandered through the aroma of the potted pork and sampled such dishes as Spamalamadingdong, a bite size Spam sandwich covered by chocolate and packed with whipped cream in the middle.

Baptists disagree on effect firing at seminary will have

FORT WORTH (NYT) — A month after the firing of Russell Dilday, the 86-year-old Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary finds itself on the threshold of an uncertain future, with some observers predicting that its best days are ahead and others warning of a precipitous decline.

Conservatives say Dilday's ouster will rid the 4,000-student seminary of liberalism and put it in line with the conservative-based leadership that has emerged in the Southern Baptist Convention during the past decade.

That change will draw ever more students and donations, they say.

Not so, say moderates who support Dilday.

That group says the firing of the seminary president will trade away academic freedom and transform the mainstream Baptist institution into an indoctrination center for rigid conservative beliefs, draining its enrollment and drying up major contributions.

Who is right probably won't be determined for years.

But there is little doubt, according to several church officials interviewed in recent weeks, that Dilday's dismissal was fueled by the classic elements of power struggles: Denominational politics, clashing egos, past grudges.

Dilday's abrupt dismissal on March 9, which has brought a wave of protests from faculty, students and moderate Baptists, involved behind-the-scenes political entanglements and personality conflicts and epitomized the bitter struggle between conservatives and moderates that has plagued the Southern Baptist Convention for 14 years.

The crisis began in a white-walled conference room dominated by a large portrait of Baptist legend George W. Truett.

Thirty-three seminary trustees looked at one another from tables arranged in a horseshoe.

Trustees Chairman Ralph W. Pulley Jr., who in 1977 voted against hiring Dilday as the seminary's president, took the podium. This time, he was standing before trustees to make the motion to fire Dilday.

The Rev. Gerald Dacus, a California trustee who begged other trustees to not dismiss Dilday, described the scene: "It was very subdued, tense. We knew what was coming."

Trustee Larry Brown of New York, a retired Exxon Corp. executive who voted against firing Dilday, admonished trustees during the closed-door meeting.

"I told them that during my 33 years with a major corporation, I had never seen the kind of mean spirits exhibited in the firing of Dr. Dilday," Brown said in a recent interview.

But conservative trustees had clashed with Dilday for years and many of them said that he earned what he got.

They said he was not cooperating with them and was cold to the conservative leadership of the Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant group.

Conservatives now in power believe in a more literal reading of the Bible, but moderates allow more freedom for individual interpretation.

Trustees are elected through committees named by the denomination's elected president. Since 1979, the presidents have been conservative.

Consequently, committees that make appointments have gradually become filled with conservatives.

Although Dilday, 63, was the first seminary president to be fired by the conservative majority, conservative trustees are also in control at the five other Baptist seminaries.

The firing came as more of a surprise because the night before Dilday's dismissal, he and trustees had reportedly settled their differences.

But before the final trustee session, Pulley and four other trustees stopped Dilday in a hallway and during a meeting in the president's office offered him a $400,000 "golden parachute" to immediately retire. He refused to even consider the offer. He was then fired, but trustees voted to give him virtually the same severance package.

It includes, according to trustees, full pay of a base salary of about $85,000 until age 65; $3,000 a month for an off-campus office and a $150,000 housing allowance; and continuing insurance coverage.

"The firing was political; it was personal," said Dacus, who said that he cried after the firing. He was in the minority in the 26-7 vote on Dilday's future. "The thing goes back a long way. I tried to stop it for five years, but I couldn't."

Two other serious attempts to fire Dilday took place in 1989 and 1990, both based on claims that he had sided with moderates in the controversy.

Other power struggles between Dilday and trustees had been going on over many issues. Trustees accused him of sympathizing with the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship, a group of moderates within the denomination, and of balking at emphasizing popular evangelical music in the seminary music school, Dacus said.

Jury awards $100 million in insurance dispute

Ken Dilanian
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

All Morris Poston wanted, he explained recently in his north Fort Worth living room, was the sum he thought he was entitled to: $20,000, an automobile claim on his late wife that State Farm had refused to pay. What he got was something more.

FORT WORTH — By the time he took the stand to tell his story, Morris Poston had made his peace with fate.

He was not angry at God, and though he was suing State Farm, he certainly was not angry at the insurance company.

To be sure, what Poston went through in the months after he buried his wife and daughters in 1986 was a hell that most people never experience.

But the 81-year-old great-grandfather knew that no lawsuit would make him forget the day the women in his family went visiting in Gainesville and never came back, their bodies later pulled from a car wreck on Interstate 35 in Denton.

All he wanted, Poston explained recently in his north Fort Worth living room, was the sum he thought he was entitled to: $20,000, an automobile claim on his late wife that State Farm had refused to pay.

What he got was something more.

On Dec. 10, after a day and a half of deliberations, the jury's foreman stood to announce one of the largest verdicts in Tarrant County's history.

"Did we win?" Poston asked his trial lawyer, David Singleton, after the jury had filed out.

"Yes, sir," Singleton answered. "They gave you a hundred million dollars."

"A million dollars?" asked Poston, a bit hard of hearing.

"No, Mr. Poston, one hundred million!"

"One hundred million?" Poston exclaimed. "That's too much!"

In one sense, he was right.

The stunning verdict undoubtedly was more money than Poston would actually receive; legal experts say giant jury awards for punitive damages are almost never completely upheld on appeal.

Last month, however, Poston and State Farm settled the case for an undisclosed amount. It's surely nowhere near $100 million, but it's enough that Poston is doing estate planning.

But the settlement could have been $100 for all it's changed his lifestyle.

He still lives in the tiny house he bought in 1955, with his 10-year-old TV and a dilapidated recreational vehicle parked outside next to the '69 pickup he can't bear to sell. He mows his own lawn, goes every Sunday to the Riverside Baptist Church, and travels to nursing homes on occasion to play in a kazoo band.

"Money don't change me," Poston said with a smile, sitting on his couch and spitting tobacco, his white crew cut bristling atop skin leathery from years in the sun. "I feel just like I'm broke. I'm just like I was before it happened."

The people really affected by the settlement will be Poston's five grandchildren, he says. "It's all going to them." Anything to make him forget.

Virgie Pauline Poston also cared a lot about family.

Morris Poston's wife was 74 on Memorial Day weekend in 1986, and she didn't drive. So her two daughters, Margie Thompson, 53, and JoAnn Johnston, 45, decided to take her to visit relatives in Gainesville, where she and Morris grew up on farms five miles apart.

On the way back, a three-vehicle collision on the northbound side of I-35 sent a car careening across the median. It hit them head on. All three died in the crash.

"I was the one, I guess, who took it the hardest," Poston said. He had been married 54 years. "It like to killed me."

Poston had long since retired from his job as a mechanic for Santa Fe Railway when he buried his family members. But there was no way he was going to sit inside all day haunted by memories.

Instead, he carved fresh calluses into his hands doing odd jobs and yard work that summer — anything to keep busy, anything to make him forget. He couldn't sleep. He couldn't eat. He lost 41 pounds.

Officials confirm 14 cases in 1st botulism outbreak in decade

EL PASO (AP) — Health authorities on Monday confirmed the detection of 14 cases of botulism in what officials say is the first Texas outbreak of the potentially fatal illness in more than a decade.

Medical officials investigating the outbreak were also trying to track down other people who ate at a restaurant where the illness may have originated.

"Nobody needs to panic. There is no need to panic in this community," said Dr. Laurance N. Nickey, director of the El Paso City-County Health District, noting the disease cannot be passed from person to person.

But he urged people to seek immediate medical attention if they begin feeling botulism symptoms, which include headaches, vertigo, double vision, weakness, difficultly swallowing and speaking, and progressive respiratory paralysis.

The food-borne illness can kill by paralyzing the respiratory system. Even a person who recovers can have residual effects for as long as a year, Nickey said.

"The botulism toxin is one of the most dangerous toxins that can be emitted by any bacteria," said Nickey.

Health officials learned of the outbreak Sunday morning, when a 59-year-old man and his 17-year-old son were admitted to Sierra Medical Center with botulism symptoms.

The two and at least two others, who were admitted to other area hospitals, were reported in critical condition Monday and were being kept on ventilators to assist their breathing, Nickey said.

The others were also hospitalized throughout the city with varying degrees of infection, which can range from mild to severe, said Nickey.

Authorities have declined to identify any of the patients.

Nickey said up to 30 people may have been exposed to botulism at Tassos Greek restaurant, where all 14 victims reportedly ate during the weekend before falling ill. Symptoms develop from four hours to a week after exposure, said Nickey.

Botulism usually surfaces in food that has been improperly cooked or processed and is often associated with potatoes, said Nickey.

In this case, the common denominator may have been a potato-based dip called skordalia, Nickey said.

Nickey said restaurant workers told investigators that more than 30 people ate skordalia last weekend.

Officials are still investigating the restaurant and analyzing food samples, however, and have not confirmed the dip was the cause the outbreak.

Maria and Tassos Rammos, the owners of the restaurant, said in a statement that they will close the restaurant while authorities investigate the outbreak.

Richards touts merit of weapons systems during Washington visit

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Gov. Ann Richards assumed the role of traveling salesman for the Texas defense industry on Monday, touting the merits of the V-22 Osprey, the F-16 fighter and other home-state weapons systems in a series of high-level Pentagon meetings.

Richards, whose rounds at the Defense Department included a meeting with Defense Secretary William Perry, said she won assurances that the Clinton administration remains committed to the V-22. The hybrid aircraft, designed for use as a troop transport, is being developed by Bell Helicopter Textron of Fort Worth and Boeing Helicopters of Ridley Township, Pa.

"I feel confident that the development and testing aspects of the project are on track," Richards said after meetings with Perry, Navy Secretary John Dalton and Deputy Defense Secretary John Deutch.

The Texas governor said she also sought Perry's backing for the Fort Worth-built F-16, the state's largest defense program. Richards said she asked the defense secretary to help her overturn a State Department policy prohibiting fighter jet sales in South America.

Richards became involved in the issue last month after the State Department barred Lockheed Fort Worth Co. from displaying the aircraft at a regional air show in Chile. The air show, which attracted potential customers from throughout the Southern Hemisphere, included displays of aircraft from Russia, France, England, Sweden and South Africa.

"My concern is whether the State Department is going to allow U.S. firms to be competitive," Richards said. "I'm concerned about this country and Texas losing market share."

Richards also protested the State Department policy in recent letters to Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, with copies to U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor.

"Ron — What in the world is going on?" Richards scrawled in a handwritten postscript to Brown's letter. "How can we compete? This situation is an outrage!"

The State Department has a longstanding prohibition against F-16 sales in South America because of fears about upsetting the balance of power in a region with a history of instability.

Leaders of gangs agree to cease-fire

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mediators of a cease-fire among four warring street gangs say it's too early to know if members will honor the agreement when they return to their turf.

"We're not asking them to put down their colors," said mediator Wayne Crooks, director for My Father's House of Ministries in San Antonio. "The colors represent camaraderie and loyalty. We're saying, 'Put down your arms and let's work toward a better community,'" he said.

A dozen teen-agers representing gangs comprising 100 to 150 members reached the pact Sunday after three days of peacemaking at Grace Lutheran Church.

"Right now, they're in a cease-fire. They've never ever been used to that," Crooks said. "We're trying to help them cope with what that means and how to deal with others who will try to test their fortitude."

More than 100 gang members packed the church to announce their agreement.

"We're fighting just to die for no reason," said a young man who identified himself as a gang leader. "We want to have a better life."

Another gang leader said the cease-fire won't work unless community leaders come through with promises of help with jobs and education.

"We've wanted this for a while," he said.

Although four other gangs involving 100 youths from other areas of the city failed to reach a truce, police Chief William O. Gibson called the conference a "significant first step."

But he said it's too early know whether the cease-fire will help reduce San Antonio's record number of homicides during the past two years.

1994 Catoico Court

Staff Report

The 65th annual Catioco Coronation of Midland High School was presented 8 p.m. Saturday at MHS Auditorium. Catioco dance followed from 10 p.m.-1 a.m. at Midland Center. Masters of ceremonies were Carrie McKague and Greg Landreth. Crown bearer was Donnie Evans, son of Susie and Don Evans.

■ Catioco Queen for 1994 is Emily Ann Spears, daughter of Robert A. and Susan Spears and the late Marilyn Dulaney Spears. Miss Spears has been a member of National Honor Society for two years, student council treasurer for three years, a member of the swim team and varsity tennis team (earning three letters) and Homecoming Queen for 1993-94. She plans to attend Texas Christian University or the University of Colorado at Boulder. Her escort was Holt Johnson, son of Bert and Ann Johnson.

Members of the Catoico Court are:

■ Julie Ann Chancellor, daughter of Jim and Linda Chancellor. She is a member of National Honor Society and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. Her basketball honors include Newcomer of the Year her sophomore year, All-District her junior year, Co-Most Valuable Player of district her senior year, member of All-Permian Basin Team, second team in All-Region, and Texas Girls Coaches Association All-Star selection. She plans to play basketball in college. Her escort was Blake Robert Henry, son of Bobby and Janice Henry.

■ Heather Christine Crowder is the daughter of Larry and Wendy Crowder. She is a member of D-FY-IT, Young Life, Senior Girls, Symphony Belles, Teen Court, Gazebo Teen Board, Holy Trinity Episcopal Youth Group and National Honor Society; is baseball batgirl, student council secretary, winner of Optimist Award for Student Council, named Outstanding English III Student and winner of four academic letters. She plans to major in psychology at Texas A&M University. Her escort, Curtis Simmons, is the son of Jim and Vicky Shaw and George and Ruth Simmons.

■ Marisa Ann Guzman is the daughter of Gonzalo and Linda Guzman. She is a member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, D-FY-IT, National Honor Society, Who's Who Among American High School Students and student council; is secretary of Business Professionals of America; and a member of Hispanic Youth Society, volleyball, basketball and Senior Girls; and received Outstanding Student in Business Information Processing Award. She plans to major in education at Southwest Texas State University. Her escort was Adolfo Urquieta, son of Adolfo and Mary Urquieta.

■ Buffy-Marie Knight, daughter of Buddy and Jean Knight. She is a Symphony Belle, member of National Honor Society, secretary of Drama Club, president of Close Up, an Optimist Outstanding Student in Drama and member of the All-Star Cast in UIL One-Act Play Contest. She plans to major in fine arts at TCU. Her escort, Anthony Maynard Mills, is the son of Larry and Brenda Mills.

Sloppy foods take right moves

By Susan Phinney
Hearst News Service

Break out the finger bowls, the plastic table covers, the damp face cloths and the floss. Messy food season is nearly upon us.

Etiquette experts adore it. They see every artichoke, asparagus stalk, corn cob and fried drumstick as fodder for a how-to lesson. And they're conspiring with messy-food marketers to get Americans not just eating those foods, but eating them nicely.

The California Artichoke Advisory Board, for example, has produced a brochure called "Artiquette, or The Art & Etiquette of Eating California Artichokes." They've even hired Marjabelle Young Stewart, author of 17 etiquette books, to travel from city to city spreading the word.

"Artichokes are so romantic," she coos. "And you simply must eat them with your fingers." She says they're turning up at toney cocktail buffets in her hometown of Washington, D.C., and they're being served as a first course at fancy dinners.

She tells of watching a couple share an artichoke at a party, biting off leaf tips in a suggestive manner. "Then they went off together," she smiled.

Stewart is high on artichokes because they beg to be eaten slowly. Each bite can be savored, diners can talk as they nibble. It's so civilized.

She says the leaves should be stacked neatly on the plate if a container isn't provided. If butter, mayonnaise or sauce accompany the artichoke, leaves should be dipped only once. "Never double dip a food," Stewart admonishes.

THAT GOES FOR everything from artichokes to carrot sticks. Taking a bite, then sticking the bitten end back into the dip is unsanitary. It's also social suicide.

Stewart says she's seen too many powerful people in their Rolex watches and Gucci shoes have what she calls "power failure" when dining. In her book that means holding a fork incorrectly, eating limp asparagus with their fingers, or, heaven forbid, fumbling with the finger bowl.

Finger bowls? Aren't they almost extinct?

No way. Stewart says to be prepared for more of them. Although they're usually presented just before dessert, they're sometimes seen before the fruit course.

"The finger bowl usually comes with a dessert spoon and fork. ... If the finger bowl arrives without utensils, it means 'use me now,'" Stewart explains.

She's not the only one promoting finger bowls. Deborah Kane-Wood teaches etiquette workshops in suburban Seattle. Kane-Wood, an American who spent her teen years in an English girl's school and then lived abroad, teaches children how to use them.

"It's the doily that gives them away," she says of finger bowls.

Children in her classes are taught to dip the fingertips of one hand into the bowl, then put the fingers onto the napkins in their laps to dry. The process is then repeated with the other hand.

"Ninety percent of my children have never seen an artichoke," Kane-Wood says. "They look at it and say, 'Now what?" She shows them how to remove and eat one leaf at a time, how to put leaves on the plate if there's no bowl for them ("A good host always supplies a bowl for the leaves"), then demonstrates how to remove the "hairy bed" above the artichoke heart with a knife and fork. The heart is then cut into small bits and eaten.

IT'S DIFFICULT TO imagine these well-meaning women kicking back with a bag of Cheetos, but while they may seem out of touch with day-to-day dining rituals, they do know the right way around anything from corn on the cob to spare ribs to cherry pits.

Bet you didn't know, for instance, that corn on the cob is buttered one or two long rows at a time. Those rows are then consumed before butter is added to another row or two. This prevents butter from dripping.

Small pieces of fried chicken — basically anything but the whole breast — can be eaten with the fingers, unless the hostess is using a knife and fork. Then guests are expected to use utensils, too.

In spite of what Nancy Kerrigan does in those Campbell Soup commercials, soup and broth is to be spooned away, toward the far side of the bowl, before being lifted to the mouth.

The mouth is not to be opened until just before the soup spoon, or any other utensil bearing food, arrives. To spoon up the last bit of soup, the bowl is also tipped away.

IF A SPOON OR fork has been used to transport a pitted food (olives or cherries, for example) to the mouth, the pit can be gently deposited (never spit) from mouth to spoon, and returned to the plate. If it has been a finger food and no utensil is available, make a fist, deposit the pit into the top of it (in the circle made by thumb and forefinger) and transfer it to the plate.

Stewart says crispy asparagus can be picked up, but "avoid fingers whenever you can." If it's limp, it's fork food.

Spare ribs are another matter. They're meant to be held in both hands, daintily. "Nibble, nibble, nibble," Stewart says. "Handle delicately. Don't gnaw. And never throw bones over your shoulder. That's what King Henry VIII did. They have paintings of him throwing his ribs."

One last bit of advice from Stewart: "Dining is an art. Animals feed. Humans dine."

Dig into ettiquette hints for eating difficult foods

Hearst News Service

Never be embarrassed to tackle difficult foods. Just tackle them properly and enjoy! Here's what the experts recommend:

■ Cracked crab:
Use crab crackers and picks. If no pick is available, use a claw tip.

■ Caviar:
Put a tiny portion on a piece of toast. The emphasis here is on tiny.

■ Rolls:
Tear off a piece at a time, buttering each piece separately as you eat it.

■ Egg cups:
Tap around the top of the egg with a knife. Lift off top and put on serving plate. Salt and pepper the egg in the cup and spoon from the shell.

■ Bone-in fish:
Fillet it on the plate. Either lift off the exposed bones, or eat the top portion of the fish and flip the bottom half over and cut flesh from the top. (Bones will be left on the bottom of the plate).

■ Spaghetti:
Marjabelle Young Stewart advises moving a few strands to the side of the plate and twirling onto the fork. "Never start twirling a fork in the middle of the mound." If a large spoon is served with the spaghetti, it goes in the opposite hand, pasta is twirled into the bowl of the spoon. The spoon catches the bits that fall away.

■ Food encounters of the weird kind:
If dining with Moroccans eating couscous with their fingers, it's OK to say, "I've never eaten couscous this way; may I watch?" Or, "Can you show me?"

DEAR ABBY
Supermarket sacker feels miffed when he gets 'stiffed'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old male who works as a sacker at a large supermarket. Today a young couple came into the store and bought $310 worth of groceries (approximately $250 was in food stamps).

Van Buren

I worked for nearly 15 minutes, sacking at full speed to get their groceries loaded into three baskets. (The load was so big, I had to call another sacker over to help me carry their groceries to their car — which happened to be a taxi.)

Guess what kind of a tip I got? Nothing! Not even a quarter. I suppose some people would say, "Well, that's just part of the job for which you are getting paid." Well, so are waiters and waitresses. Their pay amounts to very little, but if they give good service, their tips are what they live on.

Please comment. — STIFFED BAG BOY

DEAR STIFFED: A tip is always optional. I agree, it would have been gracious of that couple to have tipped you, but some people feel that those who are employed are well enough paid, so they either tip very little or nothing at all.

Perhaps they are not aware that most people who work as waiters, waitresses, bellboys, doormen, etc., live on their tips — not their salaries.

I recently saw a neatly printed little sign posted on the wall of a checkroom. It read: "Tips are optional; our people are paid a living wage."

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance of ours invited my husband and me to spend the day on their new boat. There were eight of us. When we got on the boat, I didn't see any life jackets, so I asked our host (I'll call him Fred) if he had any. He replied, "Yes, we have lots of them," but he didn't offer us any or point out where they were stored.

As we got into deeper water with more boat traffic around, I asked Fred if I could please have one of those life jackets. He said, "What's the matter, can't you swim?" Then his daughter, who was piloting the boat, asked jokingly, "Don't you trust my driving?"

Abby, first of all, as hosts, they should have offered us life jackets as soon as we got into the boat — it would have put us at ease. Second, they should know that even a gold medal Olympic swimmer could drown in a boating accident if seriously injured.

Please print this with your comments. Maybe someone will write in to say that a life jacket saved his or her life. — MRS. N.M. IN MARYLAND

DEAR MRS. N.M.: Your hosts were irresponsible to have invited guests aboard their boat without giving them life preservers and explicit instructions on how to use them in case of an accident. Furthermore, their "humor" was inappropriate. Water safety is no joke.

DEAR READERS: Your chuckle for today: "If all the economists were laid end to end, they would not reach a conclusion." — George Bernard Shaw

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. ■ Ondrea Dawn Mize, daughter of Steve and Sherry Rogers and Kenny Mize. She was in chorale/Legend; placed 10th in Regional Choir; is a member of Senior Girls, Young Life and church group; is a student council representative and choir queen. She plans to major in physical therapy and participate in Rush at Texas Tech University. Her escort, Dustin Shay Fellows, is the son of Judy and Cecil Fellows.

■ Gina Perez is the daughter of Lupe and Tony Perez. She is an officer in Golden Girls, a member of student council and active in the youth ministry at St. Ann's Catholic Church. She danced at the Citrus Bowl in Florida and for the Universal Dance Association in Paris. She plans to major in psychology and minor in choreography in college. Her escort was Jason Hewett, son of Diana and Charles Hewett.

■ Yvonne Terrazas, daughter of Albert C. and Mary A. Terrazas. She has lettered in tennis for three years and has been team captain 1992-94, was editor of The Bulldog school paper for a year, was student council representative, staff writer for the school paper for three years, elected Most Valuable Player in 1991-92, placed third at District 4-5A Spring Tournament '92, been a member of National Honor Society for two years, Optimist Club recipient for journalism and tennis, was honored by the Hispanic Youth Society for journalism and tennis in 1993, ranked No. 12 in girls 18 singles in 1993 and No. 8 in girls singles in 1994, Tennis Sweetheart 1993-94, member of Senior Girls, model for The Gazebo Teen Board, member of Project Graduation Steering Committee, St. Ann's Church Youth Organization and D-FY-IT, and listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students for two years. She plans to attend Cooke County Junior College on a full tennis scholarship.

AT WIT'S END
Children say 'no way' to mother's will

By Erma Bombeck

When a woman reaches a certain age and the Oil of Olay isn't cutting it, she begins to disperse her treasures to her children and friends.

Bombeck

My mother did it. One day out of the clear blue sky, she said, "How would you like that daisy afghan after I go?"

"Where are you going?" I asked.

"Probably somewhere I don't need an afghan," she said dryly.

"Oh, THAT place! That's maudlin, Mom."

"There's nothing maudlin about it," she said. "I saw a group of relatives on Sally Jessy Raphael the other day who were ready to kill one another for a set of antique andirons their mother left."

Her remark triggered a vision of my sons with forks poised over the last piece of pizza, ready to fight each other to the death. Somehow, I felt the time had come for me to award the jewels of my lifetime to my waiting heirs.

Since my daughter is the oldest, I confronted her first. "Don't leave me anything you have to dust, finish or feed," she said.

"That narrows it down to money."

"Right," she said.

The boys were even less charitable. "I'll be up-front with you," one of them said. "Leave me that gas guzzler you drive, and I'll sell it quicker than you can say, 'I'll take a personal check ... food ... anything.'"

When I approached the other son about the armoire, I asked him if it would fit in his apartment. "Mom," he said, "The armoire IS an apartment."

Right now, they're all acting pretty cavalier about what they want and what they don't want, but I have a feeling they will mellow with time. They remind me of the story of the lawyer who had a will to probate and needed the services of a minister. He found one, and said he wanted him to conduct a funeral service for his client's dog, Shep. The minister explained, "I can't do that. Dogs do not have souls."

The lawyer said that may be, but his client left $10,000 for the funeral of his pet.

The minister threw back his shoulders and assumed a pious stance: "Why didn't you tell me Old Shep was a Methodist?"

REASONS TO RE-ELECT JUSTICE RAUL GONZALEZ

What is the real story behind the high-dollar, negative campaign against Texas Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez?

Justice Gonzalez's opponent, Rene Haas, is a personal injury lawyer from Corpus Christi. Her law partner/husband is David Perry, a former president of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association and one of the wealthiest personal injury lawyers in the nation. According to campaign reports filed with the Texas Ethic commission, a small number of personal injury lawyers have funded the Haas campaign with well over $1 million in an effort to get their hand picked candidate elected. One might wonder why.

Just think, if Hass wins the April 12 run-off, she, her husband and their trial lawyer buddies stand to make millions from her decisions on the court. That's why they are willing to invest so much cash in character assassination, innuendo, and misleading TV ads.

Let's send a message to the trial lawyers on April 12. Our Supreme Court is not their money-making machine. Support Justice Raul Gonzalez and ruin a trial lawyers day.

Let's Keep An Honest Judge on the Bench!

Many Burmese feel resentment living in long shadow of China

By Philip Shenon
N.Y. Times News Service

MANDALAY, Myanmar — U Aung Than is putting the finishing touches on the Great Wall of China. The six-foot-high outdoor mural he is painting smack in the middle of this most Burmese of cities will greet guests to Mandalay's newest high-rise hotel, the Great Wall Inn.

Unlike many of his neighbors, the 41-year-old painter has no thoughts — or at least none he cares to share with a stranger — about what they are calling here the "Chinese invasion" of Myanmar, the nation still better known to the outside world by its former name, Burma.

"I am an artist, not a politician," said Aung Than, squinting as he turned his gaze once more to the mural, which would probably have been considered evidence of sedition if it had been painted only a few years ago. "I am just happy to have this job."

For the hundreds of traders who make the trip each day, the road to Mandalay now begins across the border in China, Myanmar's northern neighbor and, increasingly, its most important trading partner and military ally.

Every morning, dozens of overloaded trucks rumble onto the streets of this lyrically named city, lugging everything from textiles to toys, curry powder to condoms to computer software, all made in China.

The growing Chinese trade is changing the face of Mandalay, the last capital of the Burmese kings and the site of some of Myanmar's most sacred religious shrines.

Today Mandalay is the nation's boomtown, a reflection both of Chinese investment and of the junta's decision in 1988 to abandon a generation of disastrous central planning in favor of the free market in this nation of 43 million people.

There is construction on almost every block as colonial-era Burmese row houses are torn down to make way for hotels, restaurants, and shops. Property values have been doubling and tripling in a matter of months, and then plummeting, only to rise again in the new chaos of the real-estate market.

But among ethnic Burmese the explosion in cross-border trade with China, illegal until a few years ago, is stirring up as much envy and fear as excitement. "The people who put up these new buildings say they are Burmese, but we know they are really from China," an ethnic Burmese shopkeeper said. "They are taking over our business and pushing us out of our homes."

While comments like that might seem simple bigotry, the truth is that some of the biggest new investors in Mandalay have a lot of trouble explaining exactly who they are and where they come from.

Many of them carry Burmese identity cards, but they have no relatives in Mandalay to speak of. They look uncomfortable in the traditional sarongs, known as longyis, that are worn by almost all Burmese men and women. And when they do speak, they speak Chinese.

"They are Chinese," said a foreign businessman who frequently visits northern Myanmar. Two hundred miles away, on the border between Myanmar and Yunnan Province in China, he said, a Burmese identity card — effectively, Burmese citizenship — can be bought for as little as 30,000 Burmese kyat, or about $300. "With a card, you are free to do business, buy a house," the businessman said.

Myanmar's neighbors are worried less about China monopolizing trade than they are over the new military cooperation between Myanmar and China.

Relations between Myanmar and its larger neighbor were strained for decades. China long supported Burmese communist rebels — the guerrilla army has since disbanded — and for many years, the anti-communist Chinese guerrilla army of Chiang Kai-shek kept some of its soldiers in Myanmar, along the border with China.

But Burmese-Chinese ties warmed in 1988, when other nations cut off weapons supplies and economic aid to Myanmar to protest the junta's brutal crackdown on democracy demonstrators.

As other nations isolated Myanmar, the Chinese stepped in. The first large batch of Chinese weapons was shipped to Myanmar four years ago, and diplomats say that Chinese-made arms worth about $1 billion have since turned up here.

In exchange for the arsenal, the Burmese military has reportedly given China access to sensitive military installations along the Bay of Bengal.

At a Burmese radar post in the Coco Islands, not far from India, newly installed Chinese equipment is reportedly allowing Beijing to monitor maritime traffic in some of the world's most heavily trafficked sea lanes.

CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING WAREHOUSE SALE

Dear Friend,
Yes, it is absolutely true, you can actually replace your old (and probably inefficient) heater and air conditioner for at least $1,000.00 less than you would have to pay at any other time.
Let me explain...
We have had two mild seasons in a row and the months of Feb. thru April have "killed" my business each of these seasons. I lost of ton of money during those "killer" months and it took me the remaining 9 months each year to make up for them. Even with the past cold wave. I'm looking for the same thing to happen this year.

My Problem Is Your Opportunity
I have decided to give up trying to make a profit during the "killer" months. If I can only minimize any losses during Feb. thru April. I will come out ahead the other nine months.

I Have 25 Air Conditioner Systems
They are brand new units. They are not seconds, or blems or standard builders models. They are factory fresh premium air conditioners and heaters, and have a full factory warranty.

The Concept Is Simple
By letting you win big now, I will win at the end of the year. I am betting that if I make you an offer that is "irresistible" (at least it should be if your heater or air conditioner is over 10 years old) and I barely mark it up above the price I paid, I will accomplish two things:
1. I will cover my rent, utilities, insurance and taxes in the "killer" months.
2. I can pay my professional staff of technicians to work instead of paying them to sit at home.
If I can accomplish these two objectives. I will minimize my losses and the rest of the year can be a winner.

YOU CAN BUY WITH NO CASH DOWN
Consider this, if you decide to make monthly investments instead of paying cash, the entire amount of your payments can be offset by the savings on your utility bills. It's like having your cake and eating it too.

ARLINGTON — A woman fell from the upper deck of the Texas Rangers' new stadium shortly after the end of Monday's season opener.

A security guard was on the way to tell the unidentified woman from Plano to get off the right-field rail when she slipped and landed in the lower deck, team officials.

The woman was taken by helicopter to a Dallas hospital where is was listed in serious condition.

Among the criticisms of the new $189 million stadium The Ballpark in Arlington is that the front rail around all sections was too low.

Morrison mows down Wichita

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Keith Morrison (above) limits Wichita to one hit into the ninth inning in the Angels' 5-1 win Monday night. Morrison allowed just two hits and four walks before leaving in the ninth.

■ Midland pitching limits Wichita to three hits as the Angels improve to 3-1 on the season.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

You can forgive Midland pitcher Keith Morrison if he wasn't overly thrilled at almost getting a one-hit shutout at Angels Stadium Monday night. After all, Morrison is new to run machine that is Angels Stadium and the Texas League West.

Morrison, making his Texas League and Midland debut, carried a one-hit shutout into the ninth inning against the Wichita Wranglers, but gave up a hit to Brad Gennero to lead off the ninth. That's when Midland manager Mario Mendoza lifted Morrison, who was one of the winningest pitchers in the California organization last year at Palm Springs with 14 victories.

Reliever Ron Watson came in to seal up the win, but not before giving up a hit and two walks to lose the shutout in the 5-1 final verdict.

And even though Morrison was disappointed in the fact that he didn't get the complete game and the one-hitter, he wasn't thrilled with his overall performance.

"I wanted to finish off real bad," Morrison said after being lifted. "Mario was going to let me go until I gave up the second hit. I think I was more tired than I thought. I had trouble in the eighth inning and really didn't bear down. I was starting to spot pitches and was too picky with what I was throwing.

"But the whole game wasn't exactly pretty for me. I was behind hitters all night, and walked four. It wasn't neat, but I threw the low pitch to get the ground ball when I really needed it."

If Morrison only knew. Hundreds of former Texas League pitchers have entered the confines of Angels Stadium wishing to

Kruk makes comeback to Philly lineup

■ Phiadelphia's John Kruk returns to action with three hits in loss to Colorado.

By John F. Bonfatti
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA — John Kruk slid his nameplate into the lineup board in the Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse. General manager Lee Thomas came by later and started to slide it out, then stopped.

Thomas' change of heart signaled good things for the Phillies on Monday, who nonetheless lost their home opener to the Colorado Rockies, 8-7.

Kruk, seeing his first major league action since doctors removed a cancerous testicle March 8, went 3-for-5, had an RBI and scored two runs.

Six hours after undergoing the 16th of 18 low-level radiation treatments he is scheduled to receive, Kruk forced himself into the lineup by talking manager Jim Fregosi into starting him.

"We had discussions," he said. "The concern was if I played one game and then I couldn't play for two-three days, then why take me off (the disabled list). I had to convince them to let them know that I didn't think it would be any problem. They bit."

Kruk said he felt like he was ready to be an every-day player, but Fregosi said otherwise.

"I will not play him every day," Fregosi said. "He will have rest. I'll probably play him four-five times a week."

"That's up to him," Kruk said. "I'm just glad they let me play today."

Kruk was told the radiation treatments, which are designed to assure that the cancer does not spread, might make him weak. But he insisted he felt ARLINGTON — Forget that overgrown minor-league dump. After 22 seasons in Arlington Stadium, the Texas Rangers moved Monday into The Ballpark in Arlington, a $189 million throwback to the great old parks.

"Coming in here is just an exhilarating feeling," Texas closer Tom Henke said. "It gives you an adrenaline boost compared to playing in the old park. I felt like a kid being out there."

■ Baseball Roundup/2C

The distance between the two is several hundred yards. The feel and the amenities are light years apart.

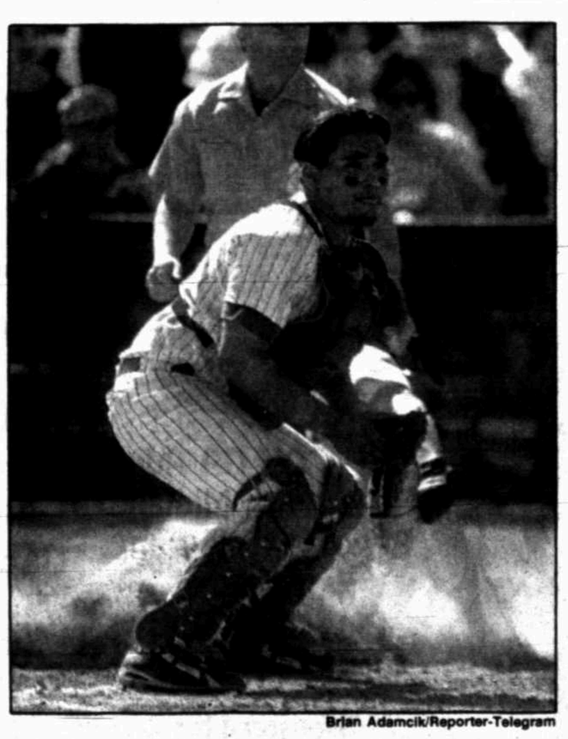

"You can't compare the two," Rangers third baseman Dean Palmer said. "The facilities here are 10 times better. You're a lot more comfortable here and I think you look forward to coming to the park more. They did it first class."

Rave reviews for The Ballpark have flowed in, with some of the most heartfelt coming from Bud Selig, baseball's acting leader.

"To think you could build a new ballpark that has the character that this park does, that reflects the history and tradition not only of the region but of the game, is remarkable," said Selig, who is trying to raise funds for a new stadium for his team, the Milwaukee Brewers.

Lee, MHS hope to continue surge

■ Midland High meets Odessa Permian in a key district matchup while Midland Lee hosts Odessa High.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

If the District 4-5A baseball race was a novel, then this chapter would be the 'who wonit' rather 'who dunnit.'

Midland High looks to take a giant step towards the postseason playoffs as they travel to Odessa to face Permian while Midland Lee can clinch a playoff spot with a win over Odessa High at Ernie Johnson Field today.

The Bulldogs have won three of there past four to crawl back into the playoff hunt after an 0-3 start to begin league play. Permian, after beginning the district slate 3-0, has two losses in the district and a win by Midland would pull the 'Dogs within one-half game of the third place Panthers.

"I don't know that the game is huge for us, but it is important to us," said Midland coach Rick Wood. "Odessa High beating Permian the other day doesn't make today's game huge for us. If they hadn't won, then it would have been huge."

A loss to Permian would put the Bulldogs two-and-a-half games behind with four games remaining.

Midland will start senior Chad Benson. Benson has won his last two starts over Abilene High and Odessa High and leads the team in earned run average with a 3.64 in 4-5A action.

The Rebels are unbeaten in district play at 8-0 after a 12-4 win over San Angelo.

Lee scored four runs in the fourth and sixth inning for the win. Catcher Mike Phillips broke a 1-for-11 slump in district play with a 2-for-4, 3 RBI performance.

The Rebels enter the game with a league-best .415 with six players hitting above. 400. Leftfielder Chris Connally leads the team with a .600 average and 14 RBI.

"I expect Odessa to come out and compete real well," said Lee coach Jesse Benavidez. They beat Permian and then it took Cooper 12 innings to beat them so that's got to tell you something. We won't take them lightly."

Lee will start junior Lance Watters. Watters is 3-0 in district with a 3.50 ERA.

Odessa enters the game 4-12 overall and 2-6 in district. The Bronchos lost to Abilene Cooper 5-4 in 12 innings at Fly Field in Odessa Saturday. Cooper reliever Brad Hicks did not allow a hit in 7⅓ innings while striking out 14 and walking one.

The Rebels third baseman and pitcher Alex Hale will have a cast from his left leg removed today. Hale, a two-time all-district performer, has been out since the team's first three games with a stress fracture.

Elsewhere in District 4-5A, San Angelo travels to Abilene to meet Abilene High.

Brewers ruin Rangers home opener, 4-3

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — The Texas Rangers unveiled their new home, The Ballpark in Arlington, to rave reviews Monday.

But they'll have to wait for their first victory.

Texas' new $189 million home mixes a blend of old-fashioned design and modern luxuries, and two of the stadium's most distinct aspects — a short right field and tight foul lines — came into play immediately as the Milwaukee Brewers posted a 4-3 victory.

■ AL Roundup

Dave Nilsson christened the Home Run Porch in right with a homer in the fifth, and Kevin Seitzer hit a triple in the sixth that fooled right fielder Rob Ducey as the Brewers took a 2-0 lead.

David Hulse, who had the stadium's first hit in the first, also scored Texas' first run, scoring on Doug Strange's sixth-inning single.

The Brewers upped their lead to 3-1 in the seventh when Nilsson reached on an error and scored on a double play. But Will Clark's first homer brought Texas to 3-2 in the bottom half of the seventh.

Milwaukee tacked on a run in the eighth on Seitzer's single.

Texas loaded the bases with none out in the eighth against Milwaukee starter Jaime Navarro and two relievers, but was only able to push one run across on Jose Canseco's bases-loaded walk.

Before yielding an unearned run and Clark's homer, Navarro (1-0) shut down Texas, retiring 17 straight at one point. He allowed five hits and three runs in seven innings. Jesse Orosco got two outs in the ninth and Bob Scanlan finished up for the save.

Texas starter Kenny Rogers (0-2), rocked in his first appearance of the season against New York, gave up eight hits in 7 2-3 innings.

Indians 9, Angels 6

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Rookie Manny Ramirez homered in consecutive innings and had five RBIs to lead Cleveland to a victory over California in another sparcely attended home opener for the Angels.

A crowd of 37,285 — more than 27,000 short of capacity at Anaheim Stadium — watched Cleveland starter Mark Clark (1-0) allow only two hits over seven innings to secure the victory.

And they saw Ramirez, a 21-year-old who won the starting right field job this spring, hit a two-run homer off John Dopson (1-1) in the fifth, then add a three-run shot off Bob Patterson in the sixth to put Cleveland up by nine runs.

The Angels rallied for five runs in the ninth after their first two hitters struck out, but Steve Farr got pinch-hitter Bo Jackson to strike out with two runners on to end the game.

Ramirez went 3-for-3, including a single in the third inning, and Sandy Alomar Jr. hit his first homer, a solo shot off Dopson in the fifth. Paul Sorrento drove in two sixth-inning runs with a double off Patterson.

Clark, who struck out five and walked two, gave up just a first-inning double to Dwight Smith and a solo homer to Chili Davis in the seventh.

Blue Jays 14, Athletics 5

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rookie Carlos Delgado drove in five runs with two homers, and John Olerud and Paul Molitor added four RBIs apiece to lead Toronto to a victory over Oakland.

Olerud, last year's batting champ, also homered twice. He and Molitor each went 4-for-5 for the world champions, who have lost only once this season.

The Blue Jays led 8-1 after seven innings, and after the A's rallied for four runs in the seventh, Molitor hit a two-run double off Oakland reliever Bill Taylor to extend the lead to 10-5. Molitor scored on center fielder Stan Javier's two-base error, and Olerud hit an RBI double. Then Delgado hit his second homer of the game and fifth of the season to make it 14-5.

Delgado's first homer of the game, a three-run shot, keyed a four-run first inning for the Blue Jays. Struggling with his control, Oakland starter Bobby Witt walked three batters of the nine batters he faced and threw 34 pitches.

Witt (0-1) wasn't wild after the first inning but was done after five. He gave up seven runs on eight hits, walking four and striking out five.

Olerud's second homer of the season put the Blue Jays up 5-0 in the third, and his third gave them a 7-0 lead in the fifth.

Orioles 7, Tigers 4

DETROIT — This time, Baltimore didn't need any homers.

The Orioles, who hit at least two homers in each of their first five games, got seven shutout innings from Ben McDonald and a two-run triple by Cal Ripken in a victory that spoiled Detroit's home opener.

Baltimore scored four unearned runs in the third inning, and added three runs in the sixth. Ripken and Rafael Palmeiro each had two RBIs for the Orioles.

McDonald (2-0), carried a one-hitter into the eighth before giving up two runs. He allowed three hits in 7 2-3 innings, struck out eight and walked three. McDonald retired the first 11 Tigers before yielding a double to Eric Davis and a walk to Cecil Fielder. He then set down the next 10 before yielding run-scoring grounders to Junior Felix and Tony Phillips in the eighth.

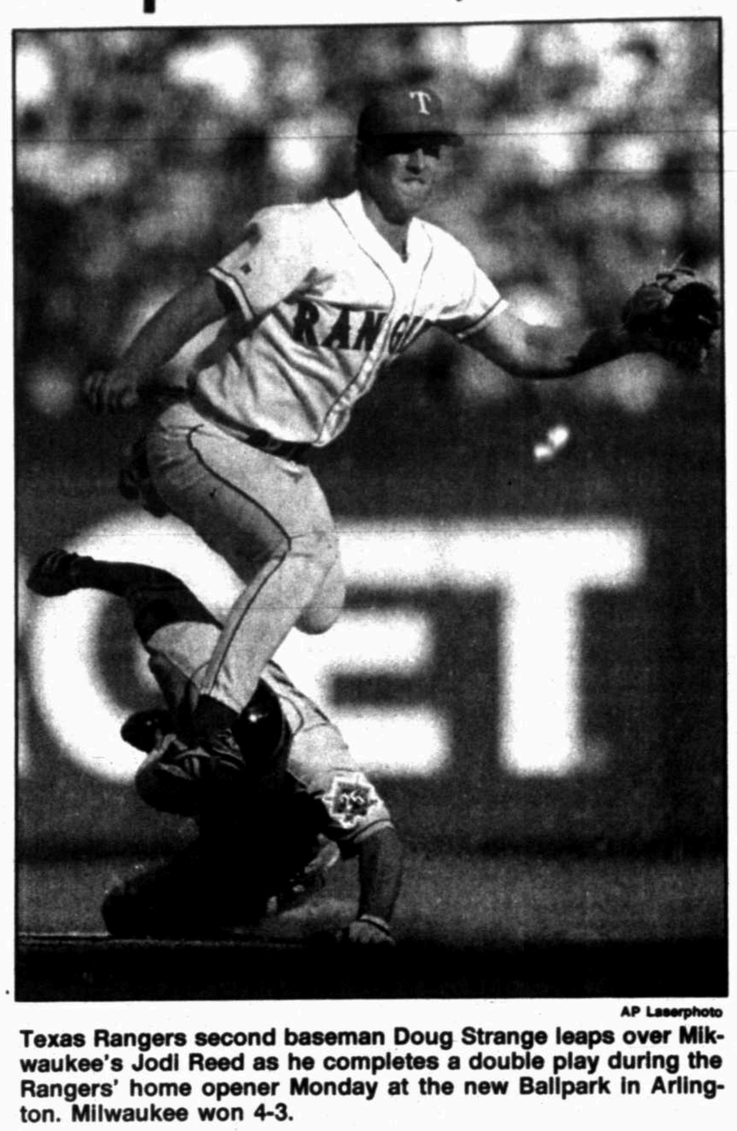

Detroit starter Tim Belcher (0-2), acquired as a free agent in the off-season, will probably try to forget his first start in Tiger Stadium. He gave up seven runs — three earned — six hits, and seven walks in 5 1-3 innings.

Red Sox 8, Royals 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Otis Nixon tripled leading off the 10th inning and scored the lead run on Billy Hatcher's sacrifice fly, and Tim Naehring added a two-run triple as Boston beat Kansas City.

Cubs spoil Mets opener, 9-5

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Steve Buechele drove in four runs with a double and homer, and the Chicago Cubs ruined the Mets home opener with a 9-5 victory Monday over New York.

■ NL Roundup

Buechele doubled home Chicago's first run in the second inning against Bobby Jones (1-1) and then hit a three-run homer off Dave Telgheder to highlight a six-run third.

Willie Banks (1-1), beaten by the Mets in their three-game sweep last week in Chicago, earned his first National League victory, allowing six hits in six innings. Banks, who pitched for Minnesota last year, struck out five and walked four.

The Mets loaded the bases in the ninth against Dan Plesac and Randy Myers but Myers struck out David Segui to end the game.

Chicago nicked Jones for two runs in the second. Rick Wilkins walked with two outs and scored on Buechele's double, jarring the relay away from rookie catcher Kelly Stinnett. Buechele took third on the play and scored on Shawon Dunston's single.

Kent hit his second home run of the season in the bottom half.

The Cubs got a gift run in the eighth when Thompson misplayed Willie Wilson's fly ball into a triple and Karl Rhodes blooped a single behind shortstop.

Rockies 8, Phillies 7

PHILADELPHIA — On a day the fans cheered loud and long for John Kruk, former Midland Angel Dante Bichette silenced them with one swing.

Bichette hit his fifth homer of the season, a two-run shot in the eighth inning that sent Colorado past Philadelphia and spoiled the Phillies' home opener.

Kruk, playing only six hours after undergoing radiation treatment for testicular cancer, got three hits in his first game this season. He got up with the tying run on second in the ninth inning with one out, but looked at strike three.

A sellout crowd of 58,627 saw the NL champions receive their rings in a pregame ceremony and reserved its loudest ovation for Kruk. He rewarded the rooters with an RBI double in his first at-bat and went 3-for-5.

Kruk batted only twice in spring training before undergoing surgery March 8 to remove a cancerous testicle. He played three games for Double-A Reading last weekend, and was activated after receiving the 16th of his 18 radiation treatments earlier in the day.

Phillies reliever Roger Mason (1-1) struck out Roberto Mejia with the bases loaded to end the seventh, preserving a 7-6 lead. He retired the first two batters in the eighth, then walked Joe Girardi and gave up Bichette's home run.

Reds 9, Expos 4, 11 innings

MONTREAL — Thomas Howard hit a go-ahead single in the five-run 11th inning as Cincinnati beat Montreal and extended its winning streak to five games.

Jacob Brumfield doubled with one out in the 11th off Gil Heredia (0-1) but was trapped off second base. Instead of being tagged out, Brumfield advanced when third baseman Sean Berry misplayed shortstop Mike Lansing's relay for an error.

Howard singled and scored on Lenny Harris' double for a 6-4 lead. Jeff Branson hit an RBI single and Brian Dorsett hit his first homer of the season, a two-run drive.

fine.

"Everything will be all right," he said. "They had a concern about whether I could play back-to-back games or three-four in a row, but I don't think it would be that much of a problem."

The first game certainly wasn't a problem, although Kruk wasn't happy that he dropped a one-hop throw from shortstop Kevin Stocker on his first fielding play in the first inning.

Joe Girardi reached on the error charged to Stocker and then scored on Andres Galarraga's double to put Colorado up 1-0.

But in the Phillies' first, Kruk, batting third, drove a high fastball off Mike Harkey deep to center field, bringing home Mariano Duncan with Philadelphia's first run.

His thought at the time?

"It's a tie game, thank God, because I dropped that ball Stocker threw and let them score," he said.

The sellout crowd, which saved its loudest and most sustained pregame ovation for Kruk, roared again.

"I didn't know whether I should tip my hat or stand there and be stupid," Kruk said. "So I just decided on that."

Mason said Kruk, whose final two radiation treatments are Tuesday and Wednesday, "should be the ingredient we need. He is more support than we realized."

BALLPARK: Fans rave over new stadium way Park, Wrigley Field and Tiger Stadium.

(From 1C)

A lot of the credit for The Ballpark's beauty goes to architect David Schwarz, whom fans made feel like a player Monday by asking for his autograph as he toured the concourses.

"They've been coming up gushing to me," Schwarz said. "Everyone's response is somewhat equivalent of the word 'wow.'"

Gates opened four hours before the game was scheduled to start, but fans missed seeing batting practice because the tarp covered the field during afternoon rains that delayed the first pitch by almost an hour.

The ceremonial first pitch was tossed out by Arlington Mayor Richard Greene, who was instrumental in getting taxpayers to pay most of the stadium's cost. The great pianist Van Cliburn, a Texan, performed the national anthem.

During the rain delay, players lounged around their spacious new clubhouse doing typical opening day things like signing baseballs and breaking in the caps that go with their new red and white uniforms.

They've been settling in since exhibition games April 1-2 against the New York Mets, a short series that started giving this a reputation as a hitter's park.

"Both days it shot out of here like it was shot out of a cannon," Henke said. "There's little foul ground and the ball really carries to center."

The wind comes in over the four-story building that fills in the space between the home run porch in right and the left-field seats. The building includes a sports art gallery, the Rangers' offices, a radio station, an office for Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman and a dentist's office.

"I wonder whether they built the offices around the stadium or the stadium around the offices," Brewers announcer Bob Uecker said. "I'd sure hate to be in that dentist's chair with a game going on."

■ NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 29 points and Willie Anderson added 23 to lead San Antonio to a 101-89 victory over Minnesota on Monday night, ending the Spurs' three-game losing streak.

San Antonio moved within two games of Houston in the Midwest Division race, but the Spurs have only six games remaining and the Rockets have eight.

Although the Spurs avoided the first-quarter doldrums that hurt them in their three losses, the Timberwolves kept it close until midway through the fourth period.

J.R. Reid, starting in place in the injured Dale Ellis, added 14 points for San Antonio, and Floyd had 11. Dennis Rodman grabbed 15 rebounds.

Hornets 99, Heat 97

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Dell Curry scored 21 points, including 14 straight in Charlotte's key second-half rally, to lead the Hornets to a victory over Miami.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Hornets, who are fighting to catch the three teams currently bunched together in the sixth through eighth playoff spots.

Magic 108, Knicks 100

NEW YORK — Nick Anderson scored 23 of his season-high 36 points in the second half and Orlando broke the New York Knicks' nine-game home winning streak with a victory.

Anderson hit six of the Magic's 11 3-pointers on a night when the two teams combined for the most 3-point attempts (47) in league history, breaking a five-year old mark.

Warriors 122, Mavericks 108

OAKLAND, Calif. — Latrell Sprewell scored 33 points and became Golden State's single-season leader in 3-point baskets as the Warriors beat Dallas.

Sprewell, 11-of-17 from the field and 8-for-8 from the free throw line, made three 3-pointers to increase his season total to 130.

Pacers 121, Celtics 108

INDIANAPOLIS — Rik Smits scored a season-high 32 points and caused two centers to foul out as Indiana defeated Boston to sweep a season series against the Celtics for the first time since the Pacers joined the NBA in 1976.

Kings 118, Clippers 97

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Wayman Tisdale scored 26 points and Olden Polynice grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Sacramento to an easy win.

Sacramento broke the game open in the first quarter, opening up a 13-point lead that it stretched to 20 by halftime.

ANGELS: Wind keeps ball in yard

(From 1C)

have his bad luck. This is where balls think extra bases.

"In spring training, I always heard that there were always a lot of home runs and fly balls in Midland," Morrison said. "You try not to think about the wind and watch the flags, but I catch myself watching to see which way the flags are blowing when I get to the stadium."

The wind was blowing in most of the night Monday, but Morrison's ace in the hole was 14 balls hit that didn't get above waist high to his infielders. He did walk four, and struckout only two Wranglers, but he didn't allow a Wichita runner to reach third base until the eighth inning after walking Vince Moore and Ira Smith to open the inning. Moore went to third on a grounder by Scott Bream, but was left stranded.

Morrison gave up a hit to Smith with two outs in the second inning, a clean shot to right center. He wasn't touched again until Gennero's grounder to center to lead off the ninth.

Meanwhile, the Midland offense handed Morrison an early lead when Chris Pritchett doubled in Tim Harkrider for a 1-0 lead in the first. The Angels got to Wichita starter Ryan Whitman (0-1) again in the fourth for four runs on five consecutive hits. Luis Raven knocked in two runs with a triple and Emmitt Cohick brought in Raven with another triple. Cohick scored on a wild pitch by Whitman.

ANGEL DUST: The Midland victory insures that the Angels will win the series against Wichita. Midland owns a 3-1 lead in the five-game series ... At 7 p.m. today Midland will send Korey Keling (8-8 last year at Palm Springs) against former major leaguer Mike Schooler, who has had some great years in Seattle ... Raven and Cohick are dealing the troubled Wichita pitching staff miseries. Raven and Cohick are leading the Texas League in RBIs with nine each after just three games. They could have more. Cohick struckout with no outs and runners on first and third in the sixth, and Raven lined out to center with a runner on second in the first ... Raven is batting .412 with a homer, three triples and a double. Cohick is batting .533 with two homers, a triple and two doubles. Pritchett is also batting .533. All three were in Midland last year ...

Oklahoma maps out plan to replace Tubbs

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — University of Oklahoma officials met Monday to discuss their strategy in replacing basketball coach Billy Tubbs, who left during the weekend for the job at Texas Christian.

Among the names speculated upon in the media have been Tubby Smith of Tulsa, John Calipari of Massachusetts, Jim Crews of Evansville, Bob Huggins of Cincinnati and Charlie Spoonhour of St. Louis.

Oklahoma athletic director Donnie Duncan repeated Monday that he has not contacted any coaches, and wouldn't until he met with university personnel and the board of regents. The regents hold their monthly meeting Tuesday and Wednesday in Norman.

"I've spoken with the president today and there has been discussion about what can occur, what should occur and how it should occur in terms of timing, from the standpoint of the rules and regulations we operate under," Duncan said.

It was not certain what day Duncan would outline his plans to the regents, who would have to approve any hiring.

"I think the discussion would be one of a report and providing information and discussion with the regents on how we proceed," Duncan said.

"We all have our jobs to do and our roles from an institutional standpoint. My position always has been that I want involvement from the administration and the regents."

Bob Marcum, athletic director at UMass, said he would allow Calipari to speak with Sooner officials "based on if John is interested in the job."

"I think John's made it very plain he's not interested in going elsewhere right now," he said.

Calipari, who has built a powerhouse at UMass, recently was sought by the University of Pittsburgh but decided to stay put. He is under contract with the Minutemen through the year 2000, Marcum said.

Smith was thought to be locked in at Tulsa with a five-year deal. The agreement was reached on Friday, but Smith hasn't formally signed a contract.

Christopher Small, a university vice president who also is acting athletic director, said he expected Smith to stand by the deal.

"I think, based on all our experiences with Tubby, he's a man of his word and I see no reason to assume he's going to change his mind at this point," Small said.

He also pointed out that even if Smith had already signed the contract, that wouldn't necessarily keep him from taking a job elsewhere.

Smith turned down a lucrative offer from Kansas State before agreeing to stay with Tulsa. His name also has been mentioned in connection with the job at Iowa State if Johnny Orr retires.

Spoonhour just completed his second year at St. Louis and is mulling a contract extension that would keep him with the Billikens through 2000.

St. Louis sports information director Doug McIlhagga said athletic director Debbie Yow had not been contacted by Duncan. He also said Spoonhour has not talked with anyone at Oklahoma.

'Toppers name coach

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Matt Kilcullen, who guided Jacksonville to a big turnaround last season, was hired Monday as basketball coach at Western Kentucky.

He signed a four-year contract and succeeds Ralph Willard, who took the coaching job at Pittsburgh last week.

Last season Jacksonville went 17-11 after going 5-22 in 1992-93 — the third best improvement in NCAA Division I. He had a record of 34-50 record in three seasons at Jacksonville.

Western Kentucky offered Kilcullen the job after two other candidates — former Auburn coach Tommy Joe Eagles and Delaware coach Steve Steinwedel — visited the campus last week.

Kilcullen inherits 12 of the 13 players from a Western Kentucky team with a 20-11 record, a Sun Belt Conference title and an NCAA tournament berth.

Langston to have surgery

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — California Angels left-hander Mark Langston was scheduled to undergo arthroscopic surgery on his pitching elbow Tuesday and will miss at least six weeks.

Dr. Lewis Yokum, the Angels' team physician specializing in orthopedics, examined Langston on Monday and will perform the operation at Centinela Hospital.

Langston has bone chips and spurs in his elbow and he has tried resting it, but that didn't help, Yokum said.

Chargers try to free up money

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers, trying to manauever in the salary cap, Monday traded defensive back Marquez Pope to the Los Angeles Rams for a sixth-round draft pick in 1995 and signed punter Kent Sullivan.

General manager Bobby Beathard said Pope was traded because the team has a stockpile of players at safety. Pope, who can play cornerback and safety, made $345,000 last season.

"I would have liked to keep Marquez, but then we would have had to do something at another position," Beathard said. "At least we have depth at this position."

Pope was a second-round draft pick out of Fresno State in 1992.

Protect your investment: with Midland Muffler and Brake

Of all the mechanical systems on a vehicle, there is one which is, perhaps the most crucial, and yet at the same time, one of the most overlooked when it comes to regular maintenance.

Why the brake system on your car or truck should be regularly overhauled is painfully obvious, but few people actually get them checked on a regular basis.

Mike Murrey, the owner of Midland Muffler and Brake Inc. stresses that regular maintenance is crucial, not only for the car's performance, but also for your safety.

At Midland Muffler and Brake, they recommend having your brake systems checked about once every 35,000 miles (more frequently if it is a front-wheel-drive vehicle).

Mike and his team use 'Raybestos' products for their brake work, because as Mike puts it, "they are the leader in brake technology and they produce a wide range of quality brake parts such as: shoes, drums, rotors and pads".

As their name implies, Midland Muffler and Brake Inc. don't just deal in quality brake services. They are also highly trained in servicing exhaust systems. Using a full line of 'Walker' products (a top manufacturer of exhaust components which carry a life-time guarantee), they can handle all types of servicing and repairs.

They also stock catalytic converters, and recommend that if your vehicle is losing power or running hot, you may need to get your catalytic converter checked.

Getting your exhaust system checked every 75,000 miles is a good idea because regular inspections can reduce engine emissions as well as noise.

Midland Muffler is also equipped to align vehicles using state-of-the-art computer technology.

Having your vehicle aligned can save a lot of money in the long term by reducing tire wear and decreasing the stresses put on the vehicle by running it with the wheels out of line.

In addition, a properly aligned vehicle steers and performs better, and more safely: great benefits from an inexpensive service which only needs to be performed once every 10,00 miles (or once a year, whichever is first).

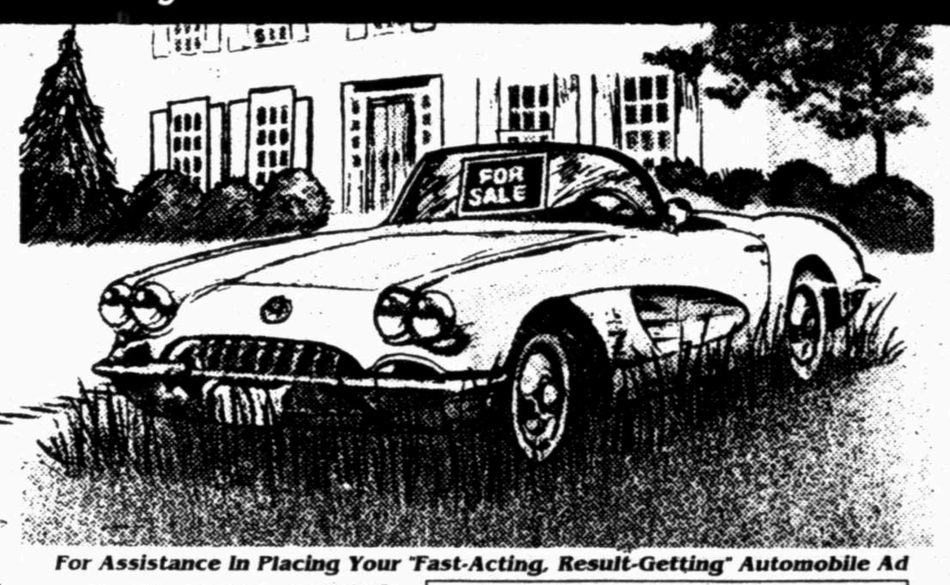

For more information on Midland Muffler and Brake's range of services which include front-end repairs, and for more details on their competitive prices, call 699-7925 or stop by 3201 West Front Street in Midland.

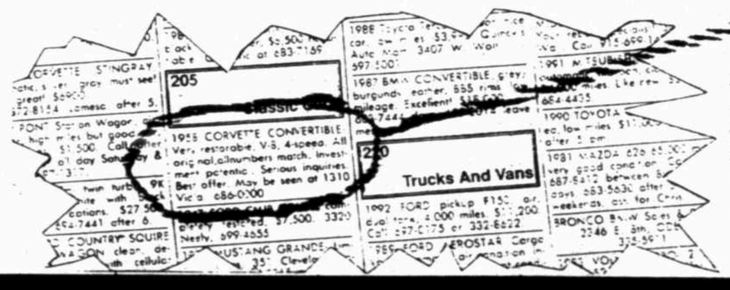

Midland Muffler and Brake's professional staff are from left, Mike Murrey, the owner, and his team, Larry Eads, Russell Dolan and Tim Smith. For more information about their full range of services which include complete front-end repairs call 699-7925.

What if the guy who needs your car never drives down your street?

Many people who try to sell a car this way end up with a semi-permanent lawn ornament. If you want to sell your car and not just stare at it from the front window, call the Midland Reporter-Telegram where it can be seen by over 62,000 readers daily. A "fast-acting", result getting Reporter-Telegram Classified Ad can put some money in your pocket fast without putting treadmarks on your lawn.

■ NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 29 points and Willie Anderson added 23 to lead San Antonio to a 101-89 victory over Minnesota on Monday night, ending the Spurs' three-game losing streak.

San Antonio moved within two games of Houston in the Midwest Division race, but the Spurs have only six games remaining and the Rockets have eight.

Although the Spurs avoided the first-quarter doldrums that hurt them in their three losses, the Timberwolves kept it close until midway through the fourth period.

J.R. Reid, starting in place in the injured Dale Ellis, added 14 points for San Antonio, and Floyd had 11. Dennis Rodman grabbed 15 rebounds.

Hornets 99, Heat 97

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Dell Curry scored 21 points, including 14 straight in Charlotte's key second-half rally, to lead the Hornets to a victory over Miami.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Hornets, who are fighting to catch the three teams currently bunched together in the sixth through eighth playoff spots.

Miami needs just one more victory to secure a playoff berth.

Magic 108, Knicks 100

NEW YORK — Nick Anderson scored 23 of his season-high 36 points in the second half and Orlando broke the New York Knicks' nine-game home winning streak with a victory.

Anderson hit six of the Magic's 11 3-pointers on a night when the two teams combined for the most 3-point attempts (47) in league history, breaking a five-year old mark.

Warriors 122, Mavericks 108

OAKLAND, Calif. — Latrell Sprewell scored 33 points and became Golden State's single-season leader in 3-point baskets as the Warriors beat Dallas.

Sprewell, 11-of-17 from the field and 8-for-8 from the free throw line, made three 3-pointers to increase his season total to 130.

Pacers 121, Celtics 108

INDIANAPOLIS — Rik Smits scored a season-high 32 points and caused two centers to foul out as Indiana defeated Boston to sweep a season series against the Celtics for the first time since the Pacers joined the NBA in 1976.

Kings 118, Clippers 97

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Wayman Tisdale scored 26 points and Olden Polynice grabbed 18 rebounds to lead Sacramento to an easy win.

Sacramento broke the game open in the first quarter, opening up a 13-point lead that it stretched to 20 by halftime.

ANGELS: Wind keeps ball in yard

(From 1C)

have his bad luck. This is where balls think extra bases.

"In spring training, I always heard that there were always a lot of home runs and fly balls in Midland," Morrison said. "You try not to think about the wind and watch the flags, but I catch myself watching to see which way the flags are blowing when I get to the stadium."

The wind was blowing in most of the night Monday, but Morrison's ace in the hole was 14 balls hit that didn't get above waist high to his infielders. He did walk four, and struckout only two Wranglers, but he didn't allow a Wichita runner to reach third base until the eighth inning after walking Vince Moore and Ira Smith to open the inning. Moore went to third on a grounder by Scott Bream, but was left stranded.

Morrison gave up a hit to Smith with two outs in the second inning, a clean shot to right center. He wasn't touched again until Gennero's grounder to center to lead off the ninth.

Meanwhile, the Midland offense handed Morrison an early lead when Chris Pritchett doubled in Tim Harkrider for a 1-0 lead in the first. The Angels got to Wichita starter Ryan Whitman (0-1) again in the fourth for four runs on five consecutive hits. Luis Raven knocked in two runs with a triple and Emmitt Cohick brought in Raven with another triple. Cohick scored on a wild pitch by Whitman.

ANGEL DUST: The Midland victory insures that the Angels will win the series against Wichita. Midland owns a 3-1 lead in the five-game series ... At 7 p.m. today Midland will send Korey Keling (8-8 last year at Palm Springs) against former major leaguer Mike Schooler, who has had some great years in Seattle ... Raven and Cohick are dealing the troubled Wichita pitching staff miseries. Raven and Cohick are leading the Texas League in RBIs with nine each after just three games. They could have more. Cohick struckout with no outs and runners on first and third in the sixth, and Raven lined out to center with a runner on second in the first ... Raven is batting .412 with a homer, three triples and a double. Cohick is batting .533 with two homers, a triple and two doubles. Pritchett is also batting .533. All three were in Midland last year ...

Oklahoma maps out plan to replace Tubbs

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — University of Oklahoma officials met Monday to discuss their strategy in replacing basketball coach Billy Tubbs, who left during the weekend for the job at Texas Christian.

Among the names speculated upon in the media have been Tubby Smith of Tulsa, John Calipari of Massachusetts, Jim Crews of Evansville, Bob Huggins of Cincinnati and Charlie Spoonhour of St. Louis.

Oklahoma athletic director Donnie Duncan repeated Monday that he has not contacted any coaches, and wouldn't until he met with university personnel and the board of regents. The regents hold their monthly meeting Tuesday and Wednesday in Norman.

"I've spoken with the president today and there has been discussion about what can occur, what should occur and how it should occur in terms of timing, from the standpoint of the rules and regulations we operate under," Duncan said.

It was not certain what day Duncan would outline his plans to the regents, who would have to approve any hiring.

"I think the discussion would be one of a report and providing information and discussion with the regents on how we proceed," Duncan said.

"We all have our jobs to do and our roles from an institutional standpoint. My position always has been that I want involvement from the administration and the regents."

Bob Marcum, athletic director at UMass, said he would allow Calipari to speak with Sooner officials "based on if John is interested in the job."

"I think John's made it very plain he's not interested in going elsewhere right now," he said.

Calipari, who has built a powerhouse at UMass, recently was sought by the University of Pittsburgh but decided to stay put. He is under contract with the Minutemen through the year 2000, Marcum said.

Smith was thought to be locked in at Tulsa with a five-year deal. The agreement was reached on Friday, but Smith hasn't formally signed a contract.

Christopher Small, a university vice president who also is acting athletic director, said he expected Smith to stand by the deal.

"I think, based on all our experiences with Tubby, he's a man of his word and I see no reason to assume he's going to change his mind at this point," Small said.

He also pointed out that even if Smith had already signed the contract, that wouldn't necessarily keep him from taking a job elsewhere.

Smith turned down a lucrative offer from Kansas State before agreeing to stay with Tulsa. His name also has been mentioned in connection with the job at Iowa State if Johnny Orr retires.

Spoonhour just completed his second year at St. Louis and is mulling a contract extension that would keep him with the Billikens through 2000.

St. Louis sports information director Doug McIlhagga said athletic director Debbie Yow had not been contacted by Duncan. He also said Spoonhour has not talked with anyone at Oklahoma.

'Toppers name coach

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Matt Kilcullen, who guided Jacksonville to a big turnaround last season, was hired Monday as basketball coach at Western Kentucky.

He signed a four-year contract and succeeds Ralph Willard, who took the coaching job at Pittsburgh last week.

Last season Jacksonville went 17-11 after going 5-22 in 1992-93 — the third best improvement in NCAA Division I. He had a record of 34-50 record in three seasons at Jacksonville.

Western Kentucky offered Kilcullen the job after two other candidates — former Auburn coach Tommy Joe Eagles and Delaware coach Steve Steinwedel — visited the campus last week.

Kilcullen inherits 12 of the 13 players from a Western Kentucky team with a 20-11 record, a Sun Belt Conference title and an NCAA tournament berth.

Langston to have surgery

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — California Angels left-hander Mark Langston was scheduled to undergo arthroscopic surgery on his pitching elbow Tuesday and will miss at least six weeks.

Dr. Lewis Yokum, the Angels' team physician specializing in orthopedics, examined Langston on Monday and will perform the operation at Centinela Hospital.

Langston has bone chips and spurs in his elbow and he has tried resting it, but that didn't help, Yokum said.

Chargers try to free up money

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers, trying to manauever in the salary cap, Monday traded defensive back Marquez Pope to the Los Angeles Rams for a sixth-round draft pick in 1995 and signed punter Kent Sullivan.

General manager Bobby Beathard said Pope was traded because the team has a stockpile of players at safety. Pope, who can play cornerback and safety, made $345,000 last season.

"I would have liked to keep Marquez, but then we would have had to do something at another position," Beathard said. "At least we have depth at this position."

Pope was a second-round draft pick out of Fresno State in 1992.

Protect your investment: with Midland Muffler and Brake

Of all the mechanical systems on a vehicle, there is one which is, perhaps the most crucial, and yet at the same time, one of the most overlooked when it comes to regular maintenance.

Why the brake system on your car or truck should be regularly overhauled is painfully obvious, but few people actually get them checked on a regular basis.

Mike Murrey, the owner of Midland Muffler and Brake Inc. stresses that regular maintenance is crucial, not only for the car's performance, but also for your safety.

At Midland Muffler and Brake, they recommend having your brake systems checked about once every 35,000 miles (more frequently if it is a front-wheel-drive vehicle).

Mike and his team use 'Raybestos' products for their brake work, because as Mike puts it, "they are the leader in brake technology and they produce a wide range of quality brake parts such as: shoes, drums, rotors and pads".

As their name implies, Midland Muffler and Brake Inc. don't just deal in quality brake services. They are also highly trained in servicing exhaust systems. Using a full line of 'Walker' products (a top manufacturer of exhaust components which carry a life-time guarantee), they can handle all types of servicing and repairs.

They also stock catalytic converters, and recommend that if your vehicle is losing power or running hot, you may need to get your catalytic converter checked.

Getting your exhaust system checked every 75,000 miles is a good idea because regular inspections can reduce engine emissions as well as noise.

Midland Muffler is also equipped to align vehicles using state-of-the-art computer technology.

Having your vehicle aligned can save a lot of money in the long term by reducing tire wear and decreasing the stresses put on the vehicle by running it with the wheels out of line.

In addition, a properly aligned vehicle steers and performs better, and more safely: great benefits from an inexpensive service which only needs to be performed once every 10,00 miles (or once a year, whichever is first).

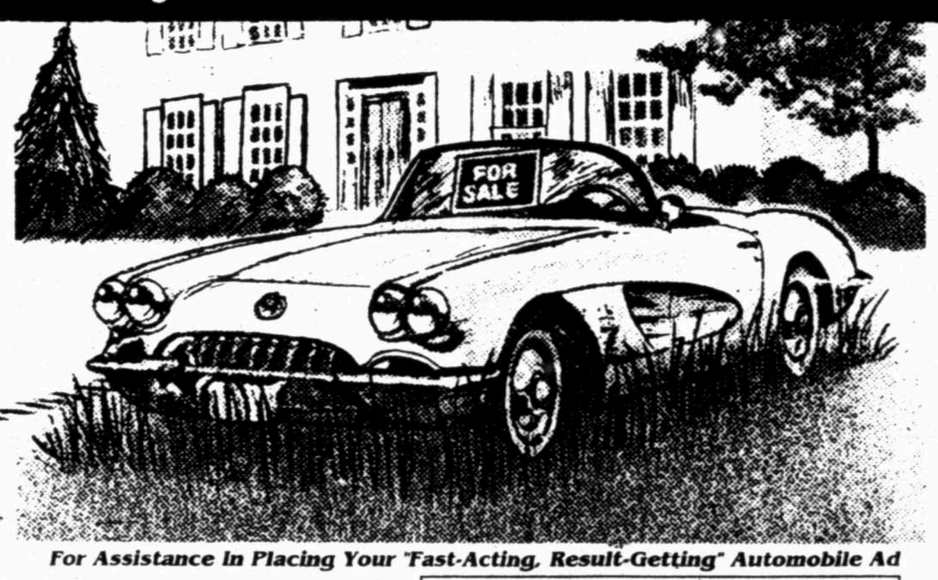

For more information on Midland Muffler and Brake's range of services which include front-end repairs, and for more details on their competitive prices, call 699-7925 or stop by 3201 West Front Street in Midland.

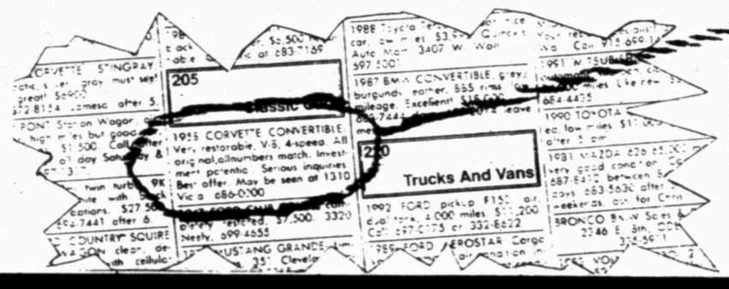

Midland Muffler and Brake's professional staff are from left, Mike Murrey, the owner, and his team, Larry Eads, Russell Dolan and Tim Smith. For more information about their full range of services which include complete front-end repairs call 699-7925.

What if the guy who needs your car never drives down your street?

Many people who try to sell a car this way end up with a semi-permanent lawn ornament. If you want to sell your car and not just stare at it from the front window, call the Midland Reporter-Telegram where it can be seen by over 62,000 readers daily. Prices rally

NEW YORK — Oil prices rallied on Monday, ignoring a report of higher OPEC production and word that Iraq was courting Russia's support to end a U.N. imposed trade embargo.

May delivery of light sweet crude oil settled 30 cents a barrel higher at $15.87 at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $14.25 a barrel.

The Middle East Economic Survey said OPEC pumped 24.99 million barrels per day in March, 470,000 barrels more than its limit. The increased output by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was expected, but the estimate by the newsletter was greater than other estimates.

The newsletter also reported that Iraqi officials had visited Moscow seeking Russia's support to lift the embargo, which includes a ban on oil exports, that was imposed on Iraq after its invasion of Kuwait.

The Iraqis also discussed the possibility of Russians resuming work on one of Iraq's largest oil fields, the newsletter said.

Iraq has been lobbying individual members of the U.N. Security Council seeking an end to the embargo.

Natural gas prices were higher, with contracts for delivery in May settling at $2.068 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 0.2 cent.

Dollar retreats

NEW YORK — The dollar fell against major currencies in subdued activity Monday as traders awaited inflation figures from Washington and kept an eye on the political turmoil in Japan.

Gold prices dropped sharply. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold for current delivery closed at $377.90, down $6.30.

In New York, the dollar closed at 103.45 yen, down from 105.15 yen Friday.

Other dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday: 1.7120 German marks, down from 1.7125; 1.4410 Swiss francs, down from 1.4450; 5.8635 French francs, down from 5.8670; 1,627 Italian lire, down from 1,633; and 1.3872 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3836.

In New York, the pound fell to $1.4705 from $1.4765.

On the New York Comex, silver for current delivery closed at $5.257 a troy ounce, down 22.5 cents.

Stocks gain

NEW YORK — Blue-chip stocks rallied Monday, while the broader market ended mixed ahead of key government data on inflation.

While the Dow Jones industrial average rose 14.57 points to 3,688.83, advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 9 to 8 on the New York Stock Exchange. Other major market barometers ended little changed.

It was the lightest full trading day for the NYSE since Jan. 17.

Oil companies eye remote Siberia

■ Texaco, three others to spend about $100 million in 3-year appraisal of field.

N.Y. Times News Service

Texaco Inc. said Monday that it and three other oil companies had formed a company to explore for and possibly develop oil fields in a remote area in Siberia.

Situated above the Arctic Circle on the Pechora Sea, the 2,847-square-mile area is in the Timan Pechora Basin, where temperatures can reach 70 below zero. The area is estimated to have reserves of about two billion barrels, about one-fifth the reserves of the Prudhoe Bay area of Alaska.

Texaco and subsidiaries of Exxon Corp., Amoco Corp. and Norsk Hydro, a Norwegian oil company, plan to spend about $100 million in a three-year appraisal of the field, where oil already has been found by the regional Russian oil agency.

More than 130 wells have been drilled by the Russians, with a success rate of 60 percent, which is considered quite high.

Russia abounds with areas where successful wells have been drilled but never developed, usually because of a lack of capital and equipment. One of the first things the consortium will do is test the existing wells to see if they can be developed commercially.

The venture is exactly the kind that major oil companies are seeking. After spending huge amounts of money exploring all over the world with mixed success in the 1980s, most large companies have shifted strategy and are only going into areas where they know there is oil.

Texaco said it had been working on this project for four years and had already invested about $50 million.

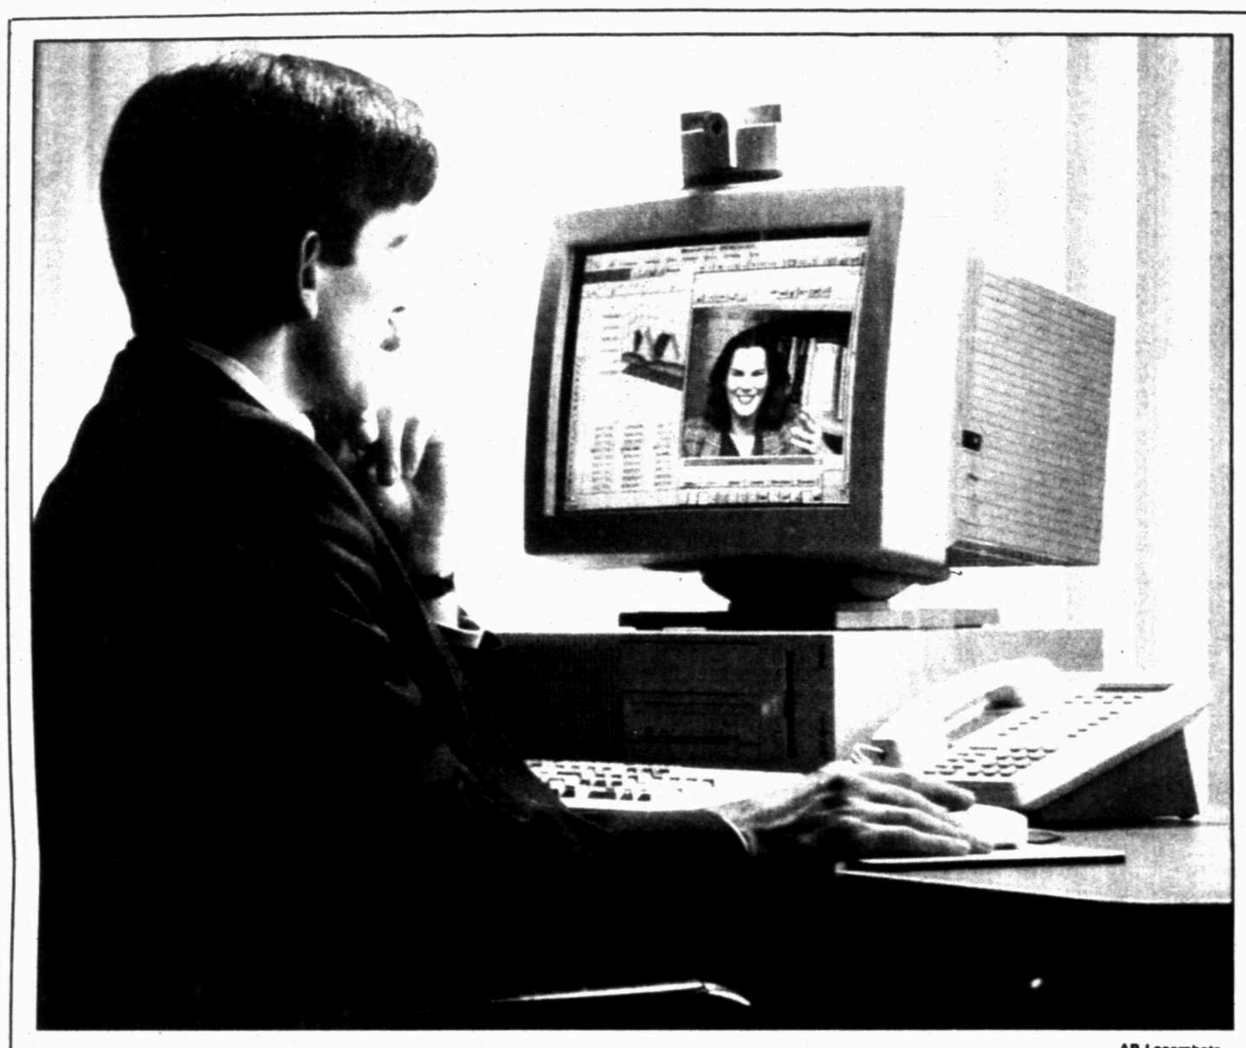

The production agreement that has been negotiated with the Russian oil agency is subject to final approval by the Russian government.

The joint venture, Tima Pechora Co., hopes to produce oil, mostly for export, for 46 years. Texaco and Exxon each control 30 percent of the venture and Amoco and Norsk Hydro 20 percent each.

Peter I. Bijur, a senior vice president of Texaco who is overseeing the project, said the consortium brought together "marvelous expertise and experience in different areas," including dealing with a harsh climate in Alaska.

In Siberia, he said, a port and a pipeline will have to be built so that the oil can be put on tankers.

"It's very hostile," he said. "There is absolutely no infrastructure in the area. We are going to have to build roads and drilling pads in a very environmentally sensitive area. Everything will have to be brought in from the outside by ship or helicopter."

Southwest flies past American, becomes No. 1 airline in quality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southwest Airlines last year surpassed American Airlines to become the No. 1 major carrier in overall quality, a private study says. TWA continued its recovery from bankruptcy by showing the greatest improvement.

"It's not so much that American performed worse," Brent Bowen, director of the Aviation Institute at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, said Monday. "It's just that Southwest performed better."

The fourth annual study, a joint effort between the Nebraska researchers and the National Institute for Aviation Research at Wichita State University in Kansas, found that total airline quality had dropped slightly in 1993 compared to the year before.

"Even though (quality) scores continued a downward trend, they do reflect a more stable industry over the past 12 months," said Dean Headley, faculty research associate at the Wichita State institute.

The research ranked nine airlines with annual operating revenues of $1 billion or more on 19 factors, including on-time performance, baggage handling, how often people get "bumped" from flights, fares and frequent flier programs. The factors are weighted based on customers' comments on what is most important to them.

Southwest came out on top in handling baggage, on-time percentage and in frequency of low fares, the researchers said.

"Southwest is noted by many airline observers as the nation's model air carrier," Bowen said.

Dallas-based Southwest, the nation's seventh-largest air carrier in terms of passengers, praised its 13,500 employees for the top ranking. The airline emphasizes direct flights from smaller airports instead of huge connecting hubs, fewer in-flight services and lower fares.

"It validates what our employees strive for on the job," said spokeswoman Ginger Hardage. "We're hitting on all cylinders."

American was tops in having the fewest passengers "bumped," while Southwest had the worst figure. Headley said that was partly by design and is compensated for by the high frequency of available Southwest flights for bumped passengers.

'Listening to America' forum comes to city on April 20

A grassroots policy-development initiative, "Listening to America," is scheduled to visit Midland from 2 to 4 p.m. April 20 at the Midland Hilton.

The non-profit "Listening to America" is sponsored by the National Policy Forum: A Republican Center for the Exchange of Ideas.

Wendy Gramm, co-chair of the forum's policy council on natural resources and energy, will head the listening panel. Others on the panel will be Texas Railroad Commissioner Barry Williamson and State Representative Tom Craddick.

Area residents, regardless of party affiliation, are invited to attend and give their views on government policies impacting oil and gas exploration, production and refining and offer ideas on improving those policies.

Gramm, wife of Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, chaired the U.S. Commodities Futures Trading Commission from 1988 to 1993. Before this appointment, she served as administrator for information and regulatory affairs at the White House Office of Management and Budget from 1985 to 1988, overseeing and reviewing all regulations issued by the Executive Branch of the government. In conjunction with these duties, she served as executive director of the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief, implementing President Reagan's efforts to reduce the growth of government regulation and red tape and reduce the cost of government regulations on the U.S. economy.

The Midland meeting is part of a series of meetings on a wide array of issues held in communities across the country. The views and ideas of Midlanders and others will be included in a July 1994 report, "Listening to America," designed to put forth policy recommendations on a broad range of critical issues facing the country.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Fed's 'Regulation D' confuses bank customers

By Bill Doyle

Q: A recent monthly statement from my bank included the following notice: "All banks must notify customers with interest-bearing checking accounts that the bank reserves the right to require at least seven days' advance notice before you make a withdrawal."

Doyle

Being unhappy about that, I phoned the bank, asked to transfer my money to a regular checking account and stated my reason. The woman who answered said the bank's regular checking account is also subject to that withdrawal restriction.

Not being convinced, I wrote to the branch manager for confirmation. He did not even reply.

Is what the woman told me true?

A: It is — only if that regular checking account pays interest.

Most people equate "regular checking" with "non-interest-paying," but the lady banker might have confused regular checking with some interest-paying checking account at that bank.

These days, many banks offer a number of different types of checking accounts. Bankers keep coming up with various names for different kinds of accounts. Strange as it might seem, nothing prevents a bank from calling an interest-paying checking account "regular checking."

Non-interest-paying checking accounts are "demand deposits" from which money can be withdrawn without prior notice by the simple action of presenting a valid check.

And remember, although banks may require advance notice on withdrawals from interest-bearing accounts, they rarely do.

Q: I have money in four banks. At each one, I have asked some white-haired man why banks can require "not less than seven days' notice" before withdrawal from an interest-bearing account — but not from a non-interest-paying account.

The man I ask invariably leads me to some young woman who "has been to seminars on that."

The explanations are all just about the same, and usually have to do with one bank taking over another or with stopping a run on the bank if an ugly rumor gets started. If I really press them, they end up waving their arms in the air, like NFL officials signaling an incomplete pass.

Surely, there must be some federal law or regulation permitting the withdrawal delays on only some types of accounts.

A: You are correct. It's the Federal Reserve Board's Regulation D — a rule with which anyone holding a responsible banking position should be familiar. It allows banks to require that written notice before each withdrawal from an interest-bearing account other than a "time deposit," such as a certificate of deposit.

The explanations you received were on target. Some depositors get so upset when their banks are merged into other banks that they pull all their money out. And rumors have caused such runs on banks. I remember a neighbor who was frightened by a radio broadcast and emptied the family bank account.

Q: Doesn't "not less than seven days" also mean "as long as a year"?

A: It could and be grammatically correct. But you are smoking funny stuff if you think banks will delay withdrawals for long periods.

Think it through. If Bank A starts requiring seven days' written notice for withdrawals from interest-bearing accounts, it soon will lose most of its deposits to competitors.

Q: Banks must comply with the Federal Reserve Board's Regulation D. How about savings and loan associations?

A: Regulation D applies to all depository institutions in the United States, including commercial banks, savings banks, trust companies, S&Ls, credit unions and various lesser-known places where money can be kept.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?
YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?
Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s), Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?
Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
An initial $100 refundable deposit is required.
