Crops Get Much Needed Rainfall

Hearlded as a million dollar rain by county agent Billy Roach, general thundershowers poured much needed rain on area crops last night with continued showers reported this morning.

The telephone company also reported that as many as 300 lines were out due to high water and lightning.

Texas electric company reported that the high winds blew down 4 poles yesterday afternoon, near lake Thomas leaving several families between Snyder and the lake without electricity for a short while.

Lake J.B. Thomas reported only .2 of rain last night and another .2 inches this morning. Little run off was reported in the lake although Gail received up to an inch last night and a steady shower was reported falling this morning.

The official rain gauge at the water plant in Snyder measured 2.15 inches but some residents reported more than that in their gauges.

It was also raining in Fluvanna this morning with an overnight fall of 2.8 inches. Hermleigh reported a little less than an inch and Ira recorded .4 inches but farther west Dunn reported 3 inches.

Roach said that the rain could not have come at a better time for the cotton crop and it is hoped that the rain will ease the grasshopper problem by greening up the grass in the bar ditches giving the hoppers somethings to eat besides the cotton.

The downpour caused some damage to terraces and washouts but no significant damage was reported.

Very heavy thunderstorms also moved through the San Antonio area early today, prompting forecasters to warn of the possibility of flash flooding.

Forecasters said the very heavy thunderstorms in the San Antonio area were capable of producing up to three inches of rainfall per hour and warned of the possibility of flash flooding at low water crossings. and low lying areas.

The thunderstorms extended northwestward from San Antonio towards Boerne, Helotes and Medina Lake.

Other thunderstorms were being reported early today in Southeast Texas near Lake Livingston and across a vast section of the northern half of the state from the southwestern mountains to just east of the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies and scattered thunderstorms statewide

Clements Responds

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday President Carter's cabinet was conducting "a planned media event" by offering their resignations.

"The president can terminate or recruit any of them at will. To have a big mass movement of this kind is obviously a planned media event," the Republican said in a statement distributed by his office.

"To me, this is just another indication of a general lack of management skills in running anything as complicated as the executive department of the United States government," said Clements, an outspoken Carter critic.

Still Low In Polls

NEW YORK (AP)—Confident of the strength of U.S. technology, Americans strongly support some of President Carter's initiatives to cut energy use and increase domestic oil supplies, The Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

But the public - deeply worried about inflation as well as energy - remains skeptical of Carter's leadership, reserving judgment on his actions in the future. One indicator of this attitude is the president's overall job rating, which the poll found is at the same level now as at the first of May.

Gold Tops $300 Mark

LONDON (AP)—The price of gold topped $300 an ounce for the first time in history today amid uncertainty in the world's financial markets that President Carter will be able to implement his energy policies. The dollar dropped.

Gold, an investor's traditional hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, opened on the London market at $302.25 an ounce. This was an advance of $3.875 from Tuesday's closing rate in London of $298.375, the previous record price.

A month ago an ounce of gold was selling for around $280, and at the start of the year it was $225.20.

At Work And Play Aggies Having Unusual Summer

By SHERI SELLMEYER

Sending up weather balloons and being held in an underground cavern by gunmen has provided a less-than-ordinary summer for two Texas A&M students working here.

Based at Big Spring, Phil Zamora, 20, and Dan Tschoepe, 19, have been launching weather balloons at the Snyder airport since May 16. Their work, part of a project funded by the Bureau of Reclamation for the Department of Interior, will end Friday.

The two students spent a day off from work July 10 touring Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico. During their visit four armed men held a National Park worker hostage for 5½ hours, making a series of demands related to American Indian rights.

About 100 tourists and five park service employees were confined to the caverns next to the lunchroom where the gunmen were. The four men finally surrendered to FBI authorities.

The students weren't frightened, though. "It was really funny," Tschoepe said.

"We weren't in any danger," Zamora explained. "They (the gunmen) were a quarter of a mile away."

Five other participants in the weather balloon project were also trapped in the caverns. After the ordeal, Tschoepe said, "I called my folks and said 'You're not going to believe this.'"

The students are collecting data about isolated thunderstorms and clouds. Their work is part

Rodeo Tonight!

A 5 p.m. downtown parade today was scheduled to launch the 44th annual Scurry County Rodeo which begins tonight.

Complete with the annual-rodeo week rain, the performances will continue each night through Saturday. The competition, however, will be out of the water, inside the dry and spacious confines of the Scurry County Coliseum. The rodeo begins each night at 8 o'clock.

More than 500 cowboys and cowgirls from throughout the region will compete in bareback bronc riding, saddle bronc riding, calf roping, team roping, barrel racing and bull riding.

Special events will be a wild cow milking and a junior goat sacking. Tickets will be on sale at the door before each performance and are $4 and $3 each, depending on location.

Bill Zimmerman, president of the Scurry County Rodeo Association, said some 12,000 persons are expected to attend the rodeo during the four-night run.

Competitors are expected from Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Louisiana. Stock for this year's rodeo will be provided by Buster Webb of Blanco, N.M.

Zimmerman said this year's stock will feature an outstanding line of bucking horses--perhaps the best in amateur rodeo circles.

A traditional rodeo dance will be held each night of the rodeo from 9 p.m. until midnight in the coliseum annex. Music will be provided by Hoyle Nix and his West Texas Cowboys.

Some things are not worth the trouble required.

Take the case of the two old farm bachelors who were discussing the subject of cooking.

"I got one of those cookery books once, but I never used it. Too much fancy work in it," said one.

"How come?", asked the other.

"Why every one of them recipes began: 'Take a clean dish,' and that stopped me."

A Toronto newspaper says one of man's greatest needs these days is a superior rat.

"Canadian rats are absolutely the puniest, sickliest, the all-around crummiest rats in the entire world. Stuff a Canadian rat with the equivalent of 400 tons of diet pop a day and what does he (or she) do? Keel over, that's what, and develop bladder trouble.

"It's the same story is you ask a Canadian rat to puff three packs of non-filter tip cigarettes a day, heap cyclamates on its din-din, take if out on the town for 10 or 12 martinis before beddy-bye for 500 or 600 nights running.

"In fact, you can't seem to do anything with a Canadian rat without its going belly-up, coughing its lungs out, or wandering around with a liver that's in tatters. As a result, we all suffer. Every time a Canadian rat comes down with the nasties, or has its nose fall off, some scientist comes along, attributes the trouble to something the rat has done and wants to take away from us another of life's little pleasures.

"So far, we know the Canadian rat can't handle saccharin, butter, Bloody Marys, excessive TV watching, homemade blueberry pie with ice cream for dessert, fried eggs for breakfast, bacon and heaven-knows-what-else.

"Why is it the Canadian rat is such a limpwristed, party-pooping drag? Why can't he enjoy a double order of lasagna, some artificial sweetener, a good smoke, or anything else without whining about a sore stomach, or dropping dead? Obviously, Canadians must develop a sturdier strain of rat before there is nothing left in life for us but rats, berries and mush made from the bark of trees."

Fire Destroys All But Pews

About the only things that can be salvaged from Monday's fire at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church are the pews, reported Thomas Jordan, church priest.

He added that not even all of them can be saved, but he estimated that possibly as many as three-quarters might be.

Citing an estimate made by an insurance adjustor, Father Jordan placed the dollar loss on the interior of the building at about $25,000. The total damage caused by the fire, however, will run much higher than that.

The church building was gutted and destroyed by the fire, and Jordan said, "It would probably cost about $200,000 to replace a church of that size from the ground up."

Fire Chief Alfred Kohl speculated the fire was started by lighted candles, but Jordan said he believed it was started by faulty electrical wiring.

Jordan said church services will be held in the Latin American Center, next door to the church, until the church can be rebuilt.

Insurance Experts Suggest Increase

AUSTIN (AP)-State Insurance Board experts said today auto insurance rates should be increased by a statewide average of 8.9 percent this year.

The staff members presented their figures at a conference called by the board to lay ground rules and define issues for the annual statewide auto insurance hearing scheduled for Aug. 1.

The insurance industry asked for an average statewide increase in automobile rates of 21.7 percent.

Rate increases recommended by the board staff would add $98.6 million to Texans' total auto premiums, while the insurance industry request would generate $239.9 million in new premium income from private passenger car owners.

Actual premium changes will vary from county to county and from driver to driver based on differences in each area's accident experience and in each driver's age, type of automobile and how the car is used.

The staff recommendations were based on previously used rating formulas, but both Chairman William Daves and board member Lyndon Olson Jr. have indicated they want to examine the formula and determine whether changes are in order.

Ask Us

Q--What are economic indicators and how are they used?

A--There are six statistics that comprise the major economic indicators. Of these, three are released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, two by the Department of Commerce and one by the Federal Reserve Board. The three by Labor are consumer price index; producers price index, formerly called the wholesale price index; and the unemployment figures. Commerce issues the gross national product and housing starts. The Federal Reserve compiles the money supply figures. Together, these six statistics help economists forecast how the economy has fared and what can be expected in the near future.

Says Oil Official...

Large Profits Misnomer

"Windfall profits are a misnomer," declared E.E. "Ed" Hagan, manager of Mid-Continent Production Division of Chevron U.S.A., Inc.

Hagan, the guest speaker at the Tuesday noon luncheon of the Snyder Lions Club, said that although the profits made by the oil companies may seem enormus, the costs involved in oil recovery and production are enormus.

Hagan started in the oil industry 40 years ago as a chemical engineer and progressed through various engineering and management assignments in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Austrailia, and Venezuela. He was president of Chevron Oil of Venezuela until December of 1975.

Hagan said, "We're going to get a lot of money for it (oil), but let me tell you one thing; the price SACROC is getting for its oil is less than what it takes to replace it."

Although opposed to the windfall profits tax, Hagan said President Car-

open letter to president

An open letter to President Carter:

Dear Mr. President:

Put the jogging shoes on the shelf and let's go to work. Playtime in the White House is over, it's time to get serious.

From what we can see, hear and read, the influence of the office you hold is on the line. It hangs in the balance. When you decided to cancel your television show and run up to Camp David for the weekend, speculation really became intense.

What the Congress, the House, the American public wants, Mr. President, is someone to come before them to project a tough decision-making man who will utterly seize the initiative on the problems facing this country and make some hard-nosed (not hard-headed) announcement to get things straightened out.

We believe it's time you surrounded yourself with some folks who can help - not hinder that decision-making dilemma you find yourself in. We believe it's time for political clout, not Southern niceties.

The day of the goody gumshoes is over with, Mr. President. Get some people who can help rather than smoke pipes on national television. Get some guys who can make a decision based on common sense, not pass out useless rhetoric based on theory and public exposure images before subcommittees.

This country, Mr. Carter, wants someone who will look them in the eye, will not be apologetic, will not project an image of weakness and ineptness. Someone who will make a decision based on the simple facts of life.

You should well-know this nation can do what it wants when it has to.

If we have to give up our gasoline luxury to get the message across to the Arabs, let's do it. Nothing would suit the American public better than to watch the Arabs water their gardens with that crude. rather than hold up and stick it down our throats.

I don't know about you, but I'm tired of the Arabs telling us what we will pay them for their crude. I'm tired of their blackmail, their attitude, their lousy terms and their foreign oil. Tell them to keep it! Tell us to walk, if necessary.

It's time this country became a leader again. It's time we projected our image as "Uncle Sam" pointing his finger on the old war time posters seeking recruits. It's time we look determined rather than sickly in the face of other nations while they pick our pockets.

Washington, D.C. and the broad expanse called America wants a leader, not wishy-washy talk and debate.

It's time for action Mr. President.

Come down off the mountain, toss the jogging gear on the shelf, send Amy back to play school and Rosalyn back to the kitchen and let's get to work.

I'm tired of Arab oil, Russian terms on SALT, Panamania terms on the Canal, Schlesinger's pipe, Kahn's appearances before committees and the terrible inept, decision-less months and months of White House mumble jumble.

The American people elected you as our president. That's a position of LEADERSHIP Mr. Carter.

To heck with the second term. Let's make sure the first one works before we surround ourselves with a bunch of Georgia hucksters who worry about polls, positions, images, re-election, and all the other mush we've been fed for months.

Turn this country loose. Let it produce. Let the law of supply and demand, of free enterprise work.

We believe, Mr. President, that it's time you dissolved your peanut warehouse operation in Washington. You're in the big leagues now and America wants to see a pro in action.

Let's get with it!"

lizard power?

The researchers aren't sure exactly why, but the preliminary evidence indicates pets may do more than provide company in their owners' lives.

Furred and feathered friends may prolong life.

A year-long follow-up study of people treated for serious heart problems at a Philadelphia hospital, as reported by the Health Insurance Institute, found the survival rate significantly higher for those with pets than for those without.

The pet-human bond may give individuals something more to live for, it is theorized, or it may be that the pet-owning type is somehow different and more resilient.

The type of pet, mostly dogs and cats, seemed to make no difference in the survival statistics with one interesting exception. Perhaps it shouldn't be mentioned to avoid starting a run on the limited market, but one-person category posted a 100 percent survival rate.

The pet was an iguana.

To The Daily News:

Two weeks ago I was surprised to see several young men repainting faded curbstones and parking lines in a bright yellow. Last week I saw more young men painting sign posts a shiney silver. A few days later I saw a cluttered drainage ditch across from the motel being cleaned out. How nice to live in Snyder!

Art and I have been here six years this month and we don't think we could live in a better place -- especially from the standpoint of community pride and spirit.

We enjoyed your picture and notes of the clean-up project and hope you will have more. These young people are gaining good experiences as well as brightening up our town.

Snyder will not see the "recession" if we all keep making it an attractive place to live and visit.

Sincerely,
Helen Feinsod

It isn't often I have a chance to do something for my country. But China needs me.

It seems Peking has just suffered an invasion of Western styles and trends which our children introduced in the '60s. Or as the Chinese press put it, "long hair, bell-bottom trousers and other outlandish fashions that are decadent and quite bourgeois."

Cartoons in Communist newspapers are already showing the effects of what happens to a nice boy in a crew cut, Mao jacket and baggy trousers who turns into a long-haired freak and gets drunk on heady spirits and eventually engages in "billing and cooing."

Believe me when I say American parents have empathy and expertise on how to handle these problems. In the interest of friendly relations, we are willing to share with Chinese parents the stages and their progression so that you may know what to expect and how to handle the problem.

First, the hair-in-the-eyes phase. Your child will develop an affliction in which he will snap his head to one side and, for a few seconds, you will actually see his eyes. They will be hostile and you'll be glad when the hair falls back over them.

The second stage develop when you suggest he gets a haircut and he combs it over to one side and secretly uses your hairspray to make it stay. He has begun to do other things like not wear socks with his tennis shoes and uses words like "Chin laing" (tougho) and "Ho Meingh" (No way!).

The third stage is when he appears for school one day wearing pants he has worn for the last five days. He now owns his own hair dryer.

In the fourth stage his hair is down to his shoulders and he is sprouting hair all over his face. With pure belligerence he will tell you, "Confucius had a mustache this long and no one complained."

The fifth stage, you have lost control. Trousers are frayed, holes are secured with pins, your newspapers have no rubber bands on them since they are wrapped around his pony tail and you arrange for financing for shampoo. You pray he is only "billing and cooing."

The solution is an old American proverb: Parents who adapt style of young people and begin to look like them will soon have young people clamoring for crew cuts and leisure suits!

my turn

by jo ann nunley

"Cleanliness is next to godliness" seemed to be a second golden rule accepted in our home when I was growing up. I always thought it must come from a scripture in the Bible. Mother worked from early in the morning until late at night to keep us and the house clean.

The dishes would begin to vanish right before my eyes while I was trying to finish my meal as quickly as the rest of the family.

I was dressed in jeans and dresses starched and ironed stiff enough to stand alone. Shoes were polished then buffed to a brilliant shine.

Monday was wash day. Tuesday was spent ironing all the starched pieces of clothing that had been sprinkled, rolled up and placed in a bag where they remained damp. Wednesday was in-depth house cleaning. And so on through the week.

These chores were as regular as clockwork and usually took most of the day because of hanging the clothes on a clothesline to dry. If a shower fell, it meant hanging them twice. And before the job was finished, the clothespins had to be picked off the line and placed in a bag and put away in their place.

Speaking of place, I heard more than once "there is a place for everything and everything in its place."

Nowadays with the aid of the modern sophisticated machinery at our fingertips, there still doesn't seem to be enough hours in a day for some unexplainable reason.

Statistics show that more now than ever teenagers and men are doing more in the area of homemaking. This is one advancement in our domestic domain that I've not witnessed much change, if any.

A standard of priorities is inevitable in this case. "If you can't lick 'em--join 'em" is not scriptural either, but a lot can be said for the peace it can bring. For instance, at the end of the day when the father comes in and is greeted with "Hello, dear, how was your day?" instead of "Don't step on the kitchen floor, I just cleaned it."

Cleanliness is next to godliness may or may not be a guideline for raising children or maintaining a home but it is well to ponder over these words that have been said before, "If I had it to do over, I would spend more time with my children. They grow up and leave, but the housework will wait."

WASHINGTON (NEA)— The right-to-life movement has made the 1980 election a key battleground in its war for political power. And Paul Brown, director of the Life Amendment Political Action Committee, plans to emerge in November of next year as a winner.

He has set his sights on six senators and five House members who have led the fight in Congress for federal funding of abortion for poor women covered by Medicaid. Brown, who was a department-store salesman until 1977, says he will not be happy unless all 11 are defeated.

Liberal activists take Brown and his committee seriously. They know that pro-life supporters provided important votes in several close 1978 races, most notably the upset defeat in Iowa of Democratic Sen. Dick Clark by Roger Jepsen.

Brown's group draws its strength from its single-mindedness - its determination to pass a constitutional amendment to ban abortions. That proposal has been bottled up for years by the House and Senate judiciary committees, but Brown hopes that candidates backed successfully by his group in 1980 will force approval of his amendment by 1982. When that happens, he says, his committee will go out of business.

"We have a different twist than other political groups," says Brown. "Our concern is a moral issue and it involves God." His supporters often work with church groups or distribute their political leaflets at church parking lots.

"This is a life or death issue with a certain urgency," he says. "Every day we don't have the amendment, more children are killed."

Brown bolsters that argument by pointing to a political advertisement showing a "16-week-old unborn child" - others would call it an aborted fetus - who he says needs the voter's help.

His committee picked its races carefully, looking for incumbents who favor abortion and are expected to have tough re-election challenges. By appealing to the 5 to 10 percent of the electorate that strongly opposes abortion, Brown believes his side can provide the votes to swing the balance.

Most of the targets of the anti-abortion activists are liberal Democrats, including Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana, John Culver of Iowa, Frank Church of Idaho and Patrick Leahy of Vermont. However, Republican Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon is a leading nemesis because of his active support of pro-choice groups.

House targets are Democrats Robert Drinan of Massachusetts, Joseph Fisher of Virginia, Robert Edgar of Pennsylvania and Morris Udall of Arizona plus Republican John Anderson of Illinois, who is running for president.

The right-to-lifers upset a lot of politicians who believe religious and moral issues should be kept out of politics.

Because Brown's committee and other right-to-life groups lobbying Congress are not going to disappear, however, they have caused the other side to create its own groups, such as the National Abortion Rights Action League.

These groups reflect the proliferation of single-issue lobbies in Washington, each battling to get the attention and support of the nation's politicians. Altogether, they threaten the traditional coalition-building concept of political parties as they force lawmakers to take a stand on one side of an issue or another.

But that's fine with Paul Brown. Sitting under a large poster that shows a car on the edge of a lake and reads "All the way with Teddy K," he contemplates his biggest quest. In 1982, he wants to convince the large Roman Catholic population of Massachusetts to defeat its senator, Edward M. Kennedy, because he has supported abortion in some cases.

"People in Massachusetts generally don't know where he stands," Brown says.

Brown has set large goals - some would call them brazen. But his past success has assured he will not be ignored.

NEW YORK (AP)—The dollar's value slid on world markets, while prices of gold rose. Stock market averages barely moved. Economists left short-range forecasts unchanged.

Except for increases in shares of certain companies that might benefit immediately, investors weren't encouraged by President Carter's energy proposals. Nothing that wasn't anticipated, they said in unison.

The most pronounced changes, in bonds and commodity prices, were generally negative. Bond prices fell; traders feared the program was inflationary. Commodity traders felt the same way; they bid up prices.

In all, initial reactions from investments markets provided very little support for the Carter energy program, a program designed not only to resolve the energy crisis but to save his presidency as well.

First reactions, however, might not be the final judgment, especially since the program was so complex, and vague in some areas, that assessments might take several days, and perhaps weeks or months.

But an analysis of first-day results, plus interviews, shows clearly that:

-Investors weren't charged with confidence by the speech, despite the long buildup and the suggestions during the week that it would be hard-hitting, the President's most important address, a "turning point."

-Many apparently feel the proposals would prevent a balanced budget, might add to or prolong the life of existing inflation, and could involve the federal government more deeply in business decisions.

-Some feeling exists that the President's acknowledged problems of leadership might make it difficult for him to enact any packge of long-range energy proposals.

-Comments were made that the program does little to change immediate conditions. While solutions to short-range problems weren't really expected, their scarcity removed a potential jolt to markets.

To business people, the Sunday night address and two subsequent speeches on Monday, contained a disturbing contradiction in that Washington was berated for limitations and looked to for solutions.

Your Birthday

July 19, 1979

Be prepared this coming year to let go of situations that have proven to be unprofitable and unproductive. There is great hope for you once you are willing to try the new.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) When dealing with others today, be sure to lay all your cards on the table. Do nothing that could lead them to suspect you kept an ace up your sleeve. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) In your efforts to try to be all things to all people today you may cause yourself unnecessary complications. Unfortunately, you can't please everyone.

VIRGO (Aug.23-Sept.22) It's extremely important today to clearly define your goals and objectives. If you aim for too many targets, you may miss them all.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct.23) Someone who respects your opinion may come to you for advice today. Tell this person the truth, and not what you think he'd like to hear.

SCORPIO (Oct.24-Nov.22) Make no important changes impulsively today. You may find that you jumped from the frying pan into the fire. Sit on things for a bit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec.21) It may be a shade difficult to make decisions today, owing to the fact that you are too easily influenced by others. It's best to use your own judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan.19) Tasks for which you have small fondness are likely to be made even more difficult today because of your attitude. Avoid negative assumptions.

AQUARIUS (Jan.20-Feb.19) In your social involvements today make it a point to treat everyone equally. Showing favoritism will cause hurt feelings.

PISCES (Feb.20-March 20) Don't look upon domestic disagreements today as incapable of being immediately resolved. Clear the air quickly, even if a one-sided compromise is necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be very careful today how you phrase what you say. There's a chance you could unintentionally offend one you care for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) Financial conditions are a mixed bag for you today. Unless you're very prudent, you could wind up in the red instead of the black. Spend sensibly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're usually very capable of taking on two projects simultaneously and doing a good job. Today, however, you're better off sticking to just one.

Handy Ground Beef Flexible Resource For Flavorful Entrees

Ground beef makes more than beefburgers! Meat loaf, spaghetti sauce and chili are but a few examples of its flexibility. For additional ground beef variety, look to other foreign cuisines for inspiration.

Reba Staggs, home economists of the National Livestock and Meat Board, suggests Jiffy Chow Mein. Quick to prepare, it provides a change of flavor.

In only 20 minutes browned ground beef, simmered with onions and celery, soy sauce and bean sprouts, is table-ready and tasty. It's served on Chinese noodles for a complimentary contrast in both taste and texture.

JIFFY CHOW MEIN

1½ pounds ground beef
1 medium-sized onion, sliced
1½ cups chopped celery
1 cup water
1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts
¼ cup soy sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Chinese noodles

Brown ground beef and pour off drippings. Add onion, celery and 1 cup water. Cover tightly and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Add bean sprouts. Combine soy sauce, sugar, 2 tablespoons water and cornstarch. Add to meat mixture and continue cooking for 5 minutes or until sauce is slightly thickened. Serve with Chinese noodles, if desired. 6 servings.

Summer will be singing in the air soon, so serve beef sirloin steaks from the outdoor grill. For a new flavor twist, add a flaming fruit sauce. Two sirloin steaks, inch-thick or thicker, are a great choice for a group of 5 or 6, be it family or friends. When broiling steaks on the grill, be sure the heat is low to moderate for best results, advises Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

BROILED SIRLOIN STEAKS

Allow charcoal to burn until covered with gray ash before putting steaks on grill. Steaks cut 1 inch thick should be placed 2 to 3 inches from heat; steaks cut 2 inches thick, 3 to 5 inches from heat. When one side is browned, turn, season cook side, finish broiling on second side and season. Steaks cut 1 inch thick require approximately 15 to 20 minutes for rare, 20 to 25 minutes for medium. Steaks cut 2 inches thick require approximately 35 to 40 minutes for rare, 40 to 45 minutes for medium.

FLAMING FRUIT SAUCE

Drain 1 can (11 oz.), mandarin oranges, 1 can (16 oz.) dark sweet cherries and 1 can (16 oz.) sliced peaches, reserving ½ cup peach juice. Combine fruit and reserved peach juice with 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon vanilla and almond extract in a saucepan. Sprinkle with ½ cup sugar and dot with 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Heat on grill. Just before serving, top with sugar cubes soaked in lemon extract and ignite.

BRIDGE

A guessing game quandry

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In Frank Stockton's story "The Lady or the Tiger", he presented a very difficult problem and then left his readers in limbo. He did not give the solution.

South studied the hand for a moment and proceeded to play the first six tricks in rapid fire order. At trick two he cashed the ace of trumps. Then he took the second high spade and the ace and king of diamonds. Then he threw West in with the queen of trumps.

It looked at first glance to be a classic elimination play. West knew he had to either lead a club or give South a ruff and discard.

Unfortunately for South, West had learned how to count to 13. He knew that South held four clubs — the same number as dummy.

With only three clubs, South would have had another spade or diamond and would have ruffed it to complete the elimination play. So West led a spade.

South ruffed in dummy and discarded a club from his hand, but was still left with a two-way finesse for the queen of clubs.

Which way should he go? Was West's failure to lead a club due to his holding the queen or not holding the queen?

South, normally a slow player, is still sitting there thinking.

Be Careful When You Mail Film

A little extra care when mailing film for processing could mean the difference in preserving the memories of your summer vacation, Postmaster Jack Tilson advised.

He offered the following tips for mailing film:

--Put the film in a sturdy envelope, and when possible use envelopes supplied by a film processing company.

--Write the film processor's mailing address, return address and ZIP Code legibly on the outside of the envelope.

--Tape your name and address to the film roll or cartridge before putting it in the envelope, and put your name and address on the back of any photographs being sent for copying, re-touching or other purposes.

Basic calorie equation

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — No, no, a thousand times no. Your statement that overweight people are warmer because they have the insulation of fat simply cannot go unchallenged. There is an important area that you people in medical science forget. You're always saying that the calories consumed must be less than the calories expended. That's frustrating even if it is true.

You've forgotten about basal metabolism. My thin husband can sit and read in the depths of winter in a cool house wearing a sleeveless shirt with perfect comfort. It seems reasonable to assume that he can do this because he's able to burn food for warmth. On the other hand, overweight people are only warm during or following vigorous exercise.

I realize that for some, thyroid deficiency is the culprit. I've had my thyroid tested and it's normal. Of course, the thyroid is involved in metabolism. I suggest that researchers should study the thin as well as the obese to find out what the problem is. We deserve a better answer than simply that the outgo must exceed the intake.

DEAR READER — You have quite a few misconceptions in your letter that deserve to be clarified. In the first place, whether you feel hot or cold has very little to do with what your body temperature really is. We know that skin temperature is not a reliable indications of body temperature. That's one reason that we prefer to put the thermometer under the tongue and some prefer a rectal temperature. We have such a thing as core temperature which is the temperature we use to study metabolism.

A person may feel hot or cold in relationship to the blood flow to the skin. That's where the nerve fibers are that give you the sensation of being hot or cold regardless of what your body temperature really is. Exercise, particularly if it's vigorous, increases body temperature and stimulates an increased circulation to the skin so that excess body heat can be lost. When this occurs, the skin is warmed and you feel warmer.

So the real culprit isn't necessarily thyroid, but it has a lot to do in many instances with the circulation in the skin.

To give you more information about body temperature, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature And Fever. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

And what makes you think that most fat people are cold? I've received letters from numerous overweight people complaining about feeling hot while their spouses were perfectly cool. And what makes you think people haven't studied thin people? The truth is they have.

And what makes you think that outgo or use of calories doesn't include basal metabolism? Of course it does. The calories used by your body depend on the calories used at rest and during exercise. So the basic equation used by nutritionists that "calories in" equals the "calories used" by your body plus the "calories stored" as fat applies whether you like it or not. I wish I could change it for all the people who have trouble with calories but there's no way I can.

Retired Gig To Aid In River Disasters

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Its last assignment was carrying naval officers between a giant cruiser and the French Riviera. Its next task will be to carry local emergency crews to scenes of river disasters.

"We've been looking for years for something like this for water rescue," said Richard Gray, chief of emergency services for Charleston and Kanawba County, of the retired captain's gig.

Gray has a crew of 15 volunteers who have taken a U.S. Coast Guard course in boat handling and will be able to man the 28-foot vessel.

Poetess Elizabeth Barrett Browning died in 1861.

Cheerleaders Busy Off The Field

DALLAS (AP)-Once upon a time, the only place you saw the Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders was on the sidelines, where they pranced to the music of the day and mouthed an occasional yell to justify their title.

Television cameramen and directors were fond of "cutting away" to the cheerleaders to give viewers something to look at while the action on the field was at a halt.

Some of the cheerleaders posed for a poster, which sold well.

Television executives at ABC liked the way the girls looked on the tube, so they made a television movie featuring them. Viewers liked it a lot. ABC liked the ratings enough to ask the cheerleaders to do a sequel.

Now CBS-TV has entered the picture.

Several members of the cheerleading squad leave today for the West Coast to tape a segment of that network's "Celebrity Challenge."

The eight cheerleaders appearing in "Celebrity Challenge" will jog through an obstacle course in a program to be broadcast in November.

"They wanted us to compete in several other events, but we just didn't have the time," said Suzanne Mitchell, the group's leader and director.

Back at ABC, it's possible that the girls will take a voyage on the "Love Boat." Ms. Mitchell says there's a "good chance" that a segment of that show might be taped next month.

If television doesn't tempt you and you're not in the market for a poster, then how about a nice yearbook? The cheerleaders are in the process of putting together 64 pages of color photographs, expected to go on sale in September.

Carter's Staff Offers To Quit

WASHINGTON (AP)— With all of his Cabinet and high-level staff offering to resign, President Carter is expected to decide by Friday where the ax will fall as he works on a new lineup to revive his presidency.

Senior officials were shaken by the move - the latest surprise in Carter's self-declared turning point - which left the government in limbo.

The 34 top officials affected said little in public beyond confirming that they had been asked Tuesday to tender their resignations.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the offers, made orally and not in writing, would be considered "Carefully and expeditiously" by the president.

Cabinet secretaries were led to believe they would hear whether Carter would keep them on "in two or three days," one source said. Another source said the president's decision would come sometime "this week." Both sources asked not to be identified.

One White House official, reflecting the extremely secretive nature of the day's developments in this city that thrives on rumors, said, "Whatever the president's decisions may be, I can assure you he is keeping them to himself."

The number of resignations the president will accept remained unclear, but one White House official said "the president will accept some."

Members of Congress called Tuesday's announcement "strange" and "curious." Republican reaction was the harshest, but several Democrats also questioned the president's actions.

Powell's brief announcement that several high members of the administration had tendered their resignations left unanswered several questions:

What motivated the mass offer? Were the resignations solicited? And by whom, the president or his chief aides as they seek flexibility in restructing the administration to bolster Carter's re-election odds?

Dodging such questions, one official who asked for anonymity, would say only that the resignations "were offered."

Asked why dozens of top people in government would be moved simultaneously to offer to quit without prodding, the official responded: "We felt it to be an appropriate step to take at this time."

Besides the 12 Cabinet officers, resignation offers came from all presidential assistants and special assistants, including Hamilton Jordan, Carter's de facto, but untitled, chief of staff. When the smoke clears, Jordan is likely to emerge with that title.

Powell, a Georgian like Jordan, could also be given expanded authority.

Speculation on those most likely to leave the Cabinet focused on embattled Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, who has said he would leave before Carter opens his anticipated re-election campaign.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumental, and Joseph A. Califano Jr. the secretary of health, education and welfare, both of whom have raised the ire of senior Carter aides, were also possible targets.

Reflecting the scope of the resignations, Warren Dunn, spokesman for Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris, said, "my boss and everybody else's boss in Washington resigned today."

Texas OCS Royalties Top $50 Million Mark

Federal royalties on production of natural gas, oil and other petroleum products on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) off Texas topped the $50 million mark in 1978 -- nearly five times the previous record-high in 1977 -- because of a 168 percent increase in gas production and a doubling of gas prices, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

Federal offshore royalties for the year totaled $51,813,251, an increase of 387 percent over the $10.6 million in Texas OCS royalties collected for 1977, USGS officials said.

Gas production accounted for nearly 93 percent of the Texas OCS royalties in 1978, said A. Dewey Acuff, Metairie, La., the USGS conservation manager for the Gulf of Mexico Region. The USGS supervises OCS oil, gas and mineral exploration, development and production and collects the federal royalties.

Royalties for Texas OCS gas production in 1978 totaled $47.8 million, an increase of 450 percent over the $8.7 million in royalties in 1977.

Production of gas on the OCS leases off Texas jumped from 87 trillion cubic feet in 1977 to 233 trillion cubic feet last year, Acuff said. Meanwhile, the average price for each thousand cubic feet of natural gas produced on the leases increased from 60 cents in 1977 to $1.23 in 1978.

The higher production and prices pushed the value of the gas produced from $52 million in 1977 to $287 million last year, the USGS official added.

Oil royalties totaled $1,589,149 for the Texas OCS, an increase of 405 percent, mainly because of a 384 percent increase in oil production to 941,669 barrels and also because the average price of a barrel of oil produced on the federal leases increased from $9.81 in 1977 to $10.33 last year.

Royalties from condensate totaled $2.27 million, an 89 percent increase, and royalties from production of gasoline and liquified petroleum gas in conjunction with natural gas production totaled $165,315, a drop of 75 percent.

Royalties from production of gas, oil and other petroleum products on federal lands onshore in Texas in 1978 added another $255,511 to the federal royalty income. This was an 11.7 percent decline from 1977. Half of these onshore royalties are returned to the state government.

All of the royalties from OCS production go to the general fund of the U.S. Treasury, and portions are available for allocation to the Land and Water Conservation Fund and to the Historic Preservation Fund.

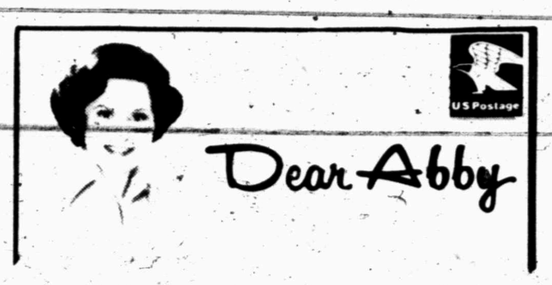

The total federal royalties of $52,068,762 from both onshore and offshore production in Texas in 1978 are 3.5 percent of the record-high $1.5 billion in royalties collected nationwide last year from production of oil, gas, coal and other minerals on federal and Indian lands and offshore areas.

Louisiana accounted for most of the national total, with royalties from Louisiana OCS production topping the $1 billion mark last year for the first time.

On Dec. 31, 1978, there were 388 federal leases in the Texas OCS covering 2,075,358 acres. There also were 375 federal leases on onshore federal lands in the state on 298,070 acres.

Divers Discover Drowned Persons

Lady Lawyers— Legal Sheagles?

By Abigail Van Buren

1979, Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I note that you frequently advise readers with legal problems to "consult a lawyer, and pay him for what he knows."

That's excellent advice. But today, when approximately 25 percent of the graduating classes of most law schools are women, your readers could wind up paying a lawyer for what she knows. And it would still be a good investment.

MS. PERLMAN, ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR MS. Thanks for keeping me on my toes. Mandy Stellman, a lady lawyer and vocal feminist in Milwaukee, has been chastising me for years for referring to lawyers as "him." Sorry. Old habits die hard. But I'm learning.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked why so many children from "better" homes who have never known poverty or deprivation have turned to crime and violence.

By way of explanation you quoted PARENTS magazine: "A peek inside the middle-class home will reveal a child who lives with two adults -- but has no real parents."

As a veterinarian, I have noted a similarity between the behavior of pet dogs left unattended all day long while the family is at work or at school, and the behavior of children who also, unfortunately, receive little attention or love because so-called parents are too preoccupied to spend time with their children.

Dogs become destructive and chew furniture, shoes, pillows and the like in an effort to get attention. You will find that children also become destructive, vandalizing property and injuring people in an effort to secure the attention that they, as individuals, desire and need. Thirty years of teaching experience has taught me that the child without love in the home is the problem individual in the classroom and on the street.

DAVID C. TUDOR, V.M.D.

DEAR DR. TUDOR: Well said.

DEAR ABBY: Now that vacation time is here, I have a word for those who take pictures and show them around:

Please, do not feel that you have to identify every person in every picture. For example:

"See the man on the right -- the one with the red jacket? Well, his name is John Smith. He lives in Ferndale. His wife, Stella, is the one standing next to the woman in green who's holding the poodle whose name is Fifi who used to belong to the couple on the left who live in Podunk. Now the ones in the middle are Betty and Harry...

A grass fire was extinguished Tuesday afternoon at Lake J.B. Thomas.

It was reported at 3:10 p.m.

Oil, Gas Finds Rise Slightly

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas operators reported 24 oil discoveries and 61 gas discoveries during the first half of July, the Railroad Commission said Tuesday.

The commission said through July 15 operators have reported 247 oil discoveries, an increase of four from the same period last year. There have been 709 gas discoveries, 127 more than in the first 6½ months of last year.

The new oil discoveries included six in the Refugio area, five in North Texas, four in South Texas, three in the Lubbock area, two each in Southeast and West Central Texas and one each in East Texas and the San Antonio area.

The new gas discoveries included 26 in South Texas, 12 each in the Refugio area Southeast Texas, four near San Antonio, two each in East Central and West Central Texas and one each in North Texas, East Texas and the Panhandle.

Operators reported 164 dry holes in the July 1-15 period.

New Time Set For Marathon

The Big Spring YMCA will sponsor a marathon run Saturday at 8 a.m. It was previously set for 7 p.m.

Five and ten mile courses will begin at the Big Spring YMCA, 801 Owens. Awards will be given in each distance for age groups 18 and under, 19-29 and 29-39. An award will be given in the five mile run only for participants 40 years of age and older.

Each marathon participant will receive a T-shirt and individual pictures.

Entry fee is $8 per person and must be paid and turned in with an entry form no later than Thursday.

Anyone interested in further information may contact Nadine Teague at the YMCA at 915-267-8234.

of a project that extends west to Midland, north to Seagraves, east to Colorado City and south to Sterling City. The observation network also includes stations at Post, Lamesa and Big Spring.

Zamora and Tschoepe, both from San Antonio, launch five ballons at 3 hour intervals on days when forecasters at Big Spring predict isolated thunderstorms in the area.

The latex balloons, about 8 feet high and 5 feet in diameter, reach heights of about 50,000 feet and expand to 50 feet in diameter before bursting.

A rectangular box attached by string to the balloon sends signals to a dish-shaped antenna at the airport. The antenna, in turn, relates messages to equipment monitored by Zamora and Tschoepe in the airport hangar.

Temperature, dew points, relative humidity and the ratio of water to oxygen in the air are all recorded. The ascent rate and height of the balloon are also measured.

The students use World War II equipment donated by NASA for the project. Their balloons are filled with helium, unlike the hydrogen-filled balloons used by the National Weather Service.

"We won't blow ourselves up. Hyrdogen is too flammable," Tschoepe said.

Neither of the students is studying meteorology or a related field at A&M.

"It's very intriguing," said Zamora, a sophomore journalism major. "Being a nonmeteorology major, I've learned lots of interesting things about clouds and weather."

"It's been different," added Tschoepe, a junior engineering major.

A job chance affects the whole family unit, not just the individual involved, points out a family life education specialist, Diane Welch, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Oil Companies Cleared Of Creating Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP)—A joint investigation by the Energy and Justice departments has found no evidence of any deliberate actions by oil companies to create the current gasoline shortage, an informed administration official says.

But the source, who asked not to be identified, said the investigation's final report may question the judgment of the companies, suggesting they may have been overcautious in trying to make their oil supplies last longer.

The investigation, cited by President Carter in a speech Monday in Kansas City, Mo., has been underway for several months and is near completion, administration sources said.

Several drafts of its findings have been written and shunted back and forth for review by investigators in both departments and a final version may be sent to the White House within the next few days, these sources said.

Carter said in his speech the Justice and Energy departments were assigned to find out whether the current gasoline shortage, which created long lines at gas stations in many areas, involved any "improper activity."

An administration official familiar with the investigation told The Associated Press the two departments had found no evidence so far of "massive hoarding or conscious manipulation by major refiners at a critical time of need."

The official said the main emphasis of the investigation report probably would focus on "judgmental factors."

These may include questions of whether the companies were too "conservative" in stockpiling oil and petroleum products for the future, in setting production rates for refineries and in determining the allocation fractions that regulate the flow of gasoline to customers.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. White

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Bell-Seale Chapel for Mrs. Bobbie Lorene White, 59.

Mrs. White died at 4 a.m. Tuesday at her home in Snyder, 1001 21st. Cause of death was ruled as natural causes.

Officiating at the final rites will be the Rev. Danny Williams, pastor of the Lighthouse Church, and the Rev. James Jackson, pastor of the First Assembly of God Church.

Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens under the direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Carter County, Okla., she has been a resident of Snyder since 1949. She was a retired motel manager. She married Elvin C. White Dec. 19, 1942 in Little Rock, Ark.

Survivors include her husband; two sisters, Lizzie Johnson of Snyder and Daisy White of Hearldton, Okla.

Mrs. Lewis

Services will be held Thursday at 10 a.m. in Lamar Street Baptist Church in Sweetwater for Mrs. Annie Margaret Lewis of Sweetwater. Burial will be in Sweetwater Cemetery.

Mrs. Lewis, 78, died Tuesday at 9:50 a.m. in Rolling Plains Hospital. She lived at the Holiday Retirement Center.

She is survived by five daughters; Helen Watson of Dallas, Grace Wilkinson and Annie Preivitt of Sweetwater; Francis Green of El Paso and Ann Kiker of Mineral Wells; four sons, J.C. Lewis of Sweetwater; Howard of Waco; Weldon of Big Spring, Richard of Esceno Calif.; one brother, Jack Thomas of Fort Worth; one sister, Sue Armstrong of Fort Worth; 27 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchilgren. She was preceded in death by her husband and twin daughters. She was a life long resident of Sweetwater.

Mrs. Nunn

Services are pending in Sweetwater for Lillian Etta Nunn, 71, mother of H. Carl Nunn of Snyder.

Mrs. Nunn, a resident of Sweetwater, died at 2:45 p.m. Monday in Rolling Plains Hospital in Sweetwater. McCoy Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

She was born March 5, 1908 in Mereta and was a member of the Highland Heights Methodist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Leo; a daughter, Betty Carter of Dallas; another son, L.D. Jr. of Sweetwater; a sister, Pauline Mifflin of Odessa; five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Wilson Rites

Graveside services were held at 10 a.m. today at Snyder Cemetery for Mrs. Greta Wilson, 47, who died about 4:30 a.m. Tuesday in an Abilene Hospital following a brief illness.

Officiating at the service was the Rev. Glen Border, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church.

Mrs. Wilson, an employee of the Spanish Inn in Snyder, was born in Snyder on April 3, 1932.

Survivors include two sons, Terry and Mickey of Snyder; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Lewis of Snyder; a sister, June Dillard of Houston; and a step-brother, Louis Blount of San Diego.

All-Star Bout No Drag, Though...

National League Wins Again

SEATTLE (AP)—Baseball's annual All-Star game can be counted on for surprises and the 1979 edition came up to that standard except the National League won again and that's routine.

But who would have thought the arm of Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, the muscular giant, would win the Most Valuable Player Award for him? After all, it was his bat that won him MVP honors for the league last season.

And who would have thought the Mets' Lee Mazzilli would homer in his first All-Star at bat and then outduel Ron Guidry of the Yankees in a confrontation 3,000 miles from New York?

Or that in the intimate confines of the enclosed Kingdome that four walks in the ninth inning would decide the 7-6 game for the eighth straight NL victory and their 16th of the past 17.

"When you're not hitting, you have to do something," said the 6-foot-5 Parker, who weighs 230 pounds.

What he did was throw out Jim Rice at third base after the Boston star hit a sky high fly that dropped for a double to open the seventh inning with the AL leading 6-5.

Then in the eighth, when the Angels' Brian Downing tried to score from second on a single by the Yankees' Graig Nettles, Parker threw him out at home. The ball reached catcher Gary Carter of Montreal on the fly and he blocked the sliding Downing from the plate.

"That play was perfect all the way," declared Manager Tommy Lasorda, who has to hope that some of the All-Star good fortune will rub off on his defending champion Dodgers, who languish in last place.

Mazzilli, a 24-year-old outfielder and All-Star reserve, evened the count with his home run in the eighth inning on a 0-2 pitch from Texas' Jim Kern.

Kern, who had given up only one home run this year, observed wryly, "He went with the pitch and hit it 317 feet fair."

The dimensions of the Kingdome are 316 feet down the foul lines and Mazzilli's shot landed at the top of the fence.

It was Mazzilli again in the ninth only this time he drew a bases loaded walk from Guidry who was called into the game by Manager Bob Lemon after Kern had walked the bases full.

"He didn't throw anything close to the plate," Mazzilli commented. "I really wanted to get a hit and I swung at one bad ball and missed it. Truthfully, I liked the home run better than the walk."

Guidry appeared angry with Lemon, the man fired earlier this season as manager of the Yankees. The Cy Young Award winning pitcher who helped the Yanks to the World Series title last season said:

"I'm not happy with the circumstances of going in there. When you come in with the bases loaded, you ain't got no room to play with."

'Bum' Praises Baker; Elated Over Rookies

SAN ANGELO (AP)--Houston Oiler Coach Bum Phillips says, rather surprisingly, that second round draft pick Jesse Baker of Jacksonville, Ala. State has been the surprise of the Oiler training camp.

"His ability wasn't a surprise because we knew about that when we picked him," Phillips said. "It's his willingness to do everything that has been such a surprise.

"We'll work on pass rush, and everybody else will do nine rushes. Jesse will do 14 because he's jogging back to the end of the line.

Rumors spread quickly after the Oilers drafted Baker in May that he had an attitude problem. Baker answered his critics by saying he would report to training camp ready to prove himself.

"He was the best defensive end when he reported but he wasn't satisfied," Phillips said. "He wanted to get right to work and practice what would make him better."

Phillips, in fact, is pleased with the entire rookie crop that has been working out at Angelo State University. He says as many as 10 first-year players could make the team.

"If I've done anything smart in my time it's drafting this group," Phillips said. "It's something we all worked on, our scouts, coaches, other staff members and the scouting combines. It's paid off.

"I'm not naming them but that would be 10 of 43 players or nearly one-fourth of the roster. We told them from the first that we were trying to improve our team. And that's what they've tried to do all along."

Phillips said the 1979 rookies had more athletic talent than any group in his five years as as Oiler coach.

"We cut guys last year that would have made it two years ago," Phillips said. "And this year's group is better than last year's."

The Oiler rookies meet the Kansas City rookies tonight in a scrimmage at Kansas City.

Oiler veterans are due in camp by midnight tonight but most are already on campus.

GSA Sets West Texas Tourney

MIDLAND -- Snyder Odessa and Midland Girl's Softball Association teams will stage their annual West Texas State Tournament here July 26-28.

A managers and coaches meeting will be held July 25 to draw for opponents. The tournament will be of double-elimination format.

Though opponents will not be decided until Wednesday's meeting, Snyderites can schedule for the games already. Division I will play at 9 a.m. July 26; Division II will vie at 9:30 a.m. on the same day; Division III will play at 6 p.m. of that evening; and Division IV will battle at 11 a.m. Friday, July 27.

All championship games for the tournament, held at Lancaster Park, will begin July 28.

Winners of Division I and II will advance to the Regional Tournament in Abilene the following weekend. Division III and Iv and II winners will attend the National Tournament in Big Spring, beginning Aug. 8.

Watson Laughs Off St. Annes 'Hex'

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP)—Tom Watson, a two-time winner of the British Open golf title, laughs off suggestions that the Lytham St. Annes course holds a hex for American players.

No American has won an Open here since Bobby Jones, an amateur, in 1926. But Watson, whose two victories have come in the last four years, hopes to change all that.

"I don't think there is much significance in the fact that no American pro has ever won here," said Watson. "We have been close, but just haven't succeeded. Maybe this year will be different."

If the jinx is to be finally laid to rest, Watson is the man most likely to do it.

The 29-year-old Kansas City, Mo., resident is in the midst of a phenomenal season that has seen him win four tournaments and finish second in four others. He has collected close to $400,000 in prize money, confirming himself as the new world golfing power.

He has had a few poor tourneys recently, and missed the cut in the U.S. Open. But he remains optimistic about doing well.

"I am certainly hopeful," he says modestly. "You can never tell, but I hope to play well."

According to Watson, driving will be the key to success on this 6,822 yard, par 71 course.

The rough here is rough in the extreme - more than 2 feet deep in places - and Lytham is the sort of course that can severely punish errors from the tee.

Wednesday's first round was expected to claim some unwary victims.

"In any major tournament you have to drive the ball straight," said Watson. "That is what I will be working on this week.

"It is very difficult to hit second shots from the deep rough here and then get them on the green. "I hope I hit the fairways more than I did in our own Open. But if I hit the ball straight there will be no problem."

Orantes Falls From Star Meet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fritz Buehning, a 19-year-old amateur from UCLA, was the lone player to solve the patient games of the clay-court specialists, beating Spain's Manuel Orantes 0-6, 6-3, 6-4, in the first round of the Washington Star International men's tennis tournament.

Otherwise, the clay-court specialists advanced easily, all in straight sets, the with top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina beating Jay Lapidus 7-6, 6-1, Harold Solomon routing Haroon Ismail of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-3, and Paraguay's Victor Pacci defeating Erick Iskersky 6-3, 6-4.

In other matches, Raul Ramirez of Mexico beat Australian Ross Case 6-3, 6-3, Emilion Montano of Mexico topped Australian John James 6-3, 6-0, Argentina's Jose-Luis Clerc beat Sherwood Stewart 6-4, 6-1 and Spain's Jose Higueras defeated John Sadrie 6-3, 6-4.

LTA Pairings For Thursday

The Ladies Tennis Association will have their weekly play at 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

Pairings are as follows.

Janet Hall-Judy Grimmett; Venoa Gilstrap-Patty Chorn; Loretta Dodson-Patty Grimmett; Shirley Grosshans-Charlene Light; Demar Harris-Susie Reed; Finnie Seale-Rhylene Stoker; Lisa Dollins-Diane Osborne.

July 12, Greathouse defeated Sneed in the final round of play, 99-79.

BADMINTON

Chris Edwards proved to be the best of the eight by defeating Sneed in the finals on July 10, 11-9.

Scurry County Boy's Club members will begin playing for the championships in various sports and recreation events next week. An all-star basketball team as well as softball, football and volleyball squads will be named. There will be individual champions crowned in shuffleboard, darts, badminton and tennis.

Cowboys Say G'Bye To Another Handfull

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP)-Six free agent rookies were given their walking papers Tuesday by the Dallas Cowboys as veterans underwent physicals and walked through a light workout.

Place on waivers were running back Delmar Jones of Montana State and linebackers James Grady of Alcorn State, Dan Cernansky of Waynesburg and Will Withers of Utah State.

Defensive lineman Dennis Freeman of Colorado State and defensive back Ray Threlkeld of Carthage was released after failing their physical examinations.

Coaches scheduled two-a-day workouts in full pads to begin Wednesday.

The Cowboys are the pre-season openers this year, taking on Oakland in the Hall of Fame game July 28 at Canton, Ohio.

A&M Tank Figures To Roll Once More...

Woodard Back In Shape

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Texas A&M fullback George Woodard's weight--or lack of it--is once again a topic of conversation.

Woodard weighed as much as 290 pounds his junior year and soared over 300 pounds last year when he missed the entire season with a broken leg.

He was given an ultimatum by Coach Tom Wilson to get down to 245 or not bother reporting for fall practice.

The Aggies will have to dust off Woodard's old No. 33 jersey because Woodard now weighs a trim 248 and plans to come back for his final collegiate season.

"I know pro football plays a big part in his future plans, and that had a great deal to do with it," Wilson said. "We told him what he had to do to come back. George does have some character."

"Tom put his foot down and George knew he meant it," A&M assistant coach Paul Register said. "From what I've seen so far, he has more endurance than ever. I'll damn sure take a bet now that George will play. Not too long ago, I wouldn't have."

Woodard rushed 2,864 yards and scored 35 touchdowns during three varsity seasons with the Aggies.

"I'm tickled to death," Wilson said. "We presented him with an ultimatum and he took the challenge."

Wilson said Woodard's future still is uncertain.

"I'm not trying to go overboard," the coach said. "George does have medical clearance but we still don't know if he'll have that quick start or how the leg will hold up when it's hit for the first time."

Woodard won't automatically be installed as the starting fullback in the Aggies' I-formation offense, a position now held by senior David Brothers.

"We're not putting Brothers in the background," Wilson said, "but we'll plan on using two sets of backs."

George Blanda, quarterback and place-kicker, played for 26 season in both the National and American Football Leagues.

THREE INJURED-This collision at 3:50 p.m. Tuesday sent three people to the hospital. Heavy damage was sustained by two of the three vehicles involved. (SDN Staff Photo)

Wreck Tuesday Hospitalizes 3

A three-car collision Tuesday afternoon on North College Ave. and Highway 84 service road sent three persons to the hospital.

Admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital were Maria Garcia, 25, and her 6-year-old daughter, Becky Garcia, both of Groesbeck. Taken first to Cogdell and later transferred to a Lubbock hospital was Rachel Boulware, 6, of 2301 Peyton St. here in Snyder. The Garcias this morning were listed in good condition.

The accident occurred about 3:50 p.m. and involved a 1976 Chrvrolet pickup driven by Mrs. Garcia, a 1978 Ford pickup driven by Laredo Hernandez of Snyder, and a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Debra Sue Henderson of Snyder.

Heavy damages were listed for the Garcia and Hernandez vehicles and minor damage to the Henderson car, police reports show.

The reports also indicate that the Hernandez vehicle was traveling south on College and that the Henderson car was stopped at a stop sign at the intersection. The Garcia pickup, the reports show, was traveling north on College and attempting to make a turn.

In other reports, a criminal mischief complaint was made by Ricky Mason. He told officers several windows at his residence had been broken resulting in about $300 worth of damage.

A minor hit and run was reported at Snyder National Bank. Involved in it was a parked 1977 Chevrolet pickup owned by Julie Clinkenbeard. It was reported at 2:39 p.m.

A minor two vehicle accident was reported at 4:17 p.m. at the intersection of 35th St. and El Paso. It involved a 1961 Ford driven by Loyd Holley and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Larry Smith.

Area Pair Attend Land Use Meet

A Snyder area couple were among some 250 persons attending the first annual National Land Use Conference held in Washington, D.C. July 11-13.

Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Sterling, who live between Snyder and Big Spring, were in attendance with delegates from 38 states.

Presiding over the conference was Ben A. Wallas Jr., chairman of the National Association of Property Owners. Other sponsors of the conference were the American Farm Bureau, American Petroleum Institute, Citizens for Management of Alaskan Lands, Association of Home Builders, National Forest Products Association, and National Park Inholders Association.

Representatives of each organization expressed their concern with the increased takeover of privately held lands by the federal government.

Mrs. Sterling reproted that the federal government presently owns one-third of all land in the United States and that this land produces no tax revenue and only a small percent of the land is available for mineral production. Sen. Ted Stevens said 95 percent of his state is owned by the federal government.

Forums were held on economics, constitutionality, energy and denial of resources. Rep. Jim Wright of Texas was the featured speaker at the banquet. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling of the Vincent community were joined at the banquet by Rep. Charles Stenholm of the 17th District. Also seated at the table were Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stuart of Sterling City, John Brooks of Exxon USA in Houston and Ed Squkelewica of Washington, D.C.

On July 16, a suit was filed in Washington against the Secretary of Agriculture to challenge the constitutionality of the 1978 Boundary Waters Wilderness Act. Plaintiffs in the suit are represented by Ben Wallis of The National Association of Property Owners.

While in the capital, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling also visited with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and with Rep. Kiki DeLa Garza.

The Irish Saint Columba landed on Iona in 563 and established the first religious community on the island. Columba and his monks settled in huts, built a tiny chapel, and later expanded their settlement to include a monastery.

Abilene Ordered To Open Meetings

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court today ruled Abilene city agencies must hold all their meetings in public - even those involving personnel issues - and keep minutes that citizens may read.

The court reversed an Eastland Court of Civil Appeals decision and upheld a district judge's injunction requiring open meetings and records.

On a key issue that brought the case statewide attention, the standing of any Texas reporter or a newsgathering organization to sue to require open meetings, the court was silent.

But it called attention to a 1979 amendment to the Texas Open Meetings Act that specifically allows "bona fide members of the news media" to file suit to prevent closed meetings of government bodies.

KRBC-TV, the Abilene Reporter News and KRBC-TV reporter Jerry Shackelford filed suit after the Abilene Equal Employment Opportunity Board went into secret session to deliberate a job discrimination case in 1977.

The suit also sought minutes of the closed meeting, including a record of how each board member voted.

Family Hosts Summer Guest

HACKETTSTOWN, N.H. (AP)—When you already have 10 children, not to mention four rabbits, a tank of fish and an English sheep dog, what difference does one more youngster make?

Barbara and Robert Grenon simply add a 13th chair around the kitchen table to make room for their annual summer visitor - a youngster sponsored by the Fresh Air Fund of New York City.

This is the fourth summer that Monique Townsend, now 8, has made the one-hour bus trip from bustling Manhattan to this quiet rural community in north-western New Jersey for a visit with the Grenons.

The Grenons head a multiracial family of eight adopted children and two of their own. They are one of about 40 families in North Jersey who invite youngsters into their homes for two-week summer vacations.

A favorite outing for Monique and the rest of the Grenon family is the ride to the store for a weekly supply of groceries - about $150.

Profits

ter's new energy policy is basically good.

Referring to the energy policy Carter outlined Sunday night, Hagan said, "We're doing something now that we should have done eight or nine years ago."

Without a windfall profits tax, Hagan predicted that domestic production of oil could be increased by one and a half million barrels a day by 1985.

With the tax, Hagan said, "The project (of oil production) will be just as large as the amount of windfall profits we're allowed to keep."

"If they're left along to do it," Hagan said of the oil companies, "they can do it."
