Red River Convention Hears Bourland Plead For State Bonds

By FRANK O. HALL
Staff Correspondent

DECATUR, Texas, Nov. 23.—R. S. Sterling of Houston, chairman of the Texas highway commission, indicated here Friday that he would be willing to meet Elwin Gerron, representative-elect from Ellis county, in debate on the manner in which state road affairs have been handled by the commission.

News dispatches Friday morning stated that Gerron had forwarded a letter to Sterling which carried the challenge of a debate and sharp criticism for Sterling's activities as chairman of the state highway commission.

Sterling, who was in Decatur Friday to address the Red River district meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, said he had not been advised of Gerron's letter but would investigate the matter immediately on his return home.

Debate "Possible"

"I do not know what the man is criticizing me for and I did not know he had written me a letter," Sterling said when told of the news dispatch. "However, if the matter is worthy of a debate I imagine he could get one."

During the course of his address before the district chamber of commerce meeting here, Sterling explained briefly the proposed $300,000,000 state road bond issue which he is advocating. He proposed that the bonds be paid out by a gasoline tax not to exceed three cents per gallon.

An endorsement of the proposed bond issue by A. M. Bourland of Vernon, president of the West Texas chamber, followed Sterling's address. Mr. Bourland expressed the hope that the next legislature call such an election and that it be carried when presented to the people.

WILL CONTEST JURY RELEASED

Second McDonald Trial Ends in Disagreement

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Disagreeing as to whether the late William J. McDonald had "insane delusions" when he made a will bequeathing $1,250,000 to the University of Texas for an observatory, a jury was discharged here today without having reached a verdict.

Representatives of the university and surviving relatives, who contested the instrument, presented testimony from many witnesses, including experts, during the four weeks of this, the second trial.

Early this afternoon, the jury reported to Judge Newman Phillips that it had been unable to reach a verdict because of differences over the delusionary theory, ten jurors holding that McDonald was free from delusions. The judge was told the jury probably would not reach an agreement even though it was ordered to deliberate further.

After proponents of the will had asked that the jury be instructed to deliberate for another day, attorneys held a conference, and the judging body was discharged at 3:30 p. m.

The second trial of the case lasted almost twice as long as the first here nearly two years ago, both sides not only covering the same ground with evidence but offering virtually double the amount of testimony in support of their contentions. Contestants emphasized evidence intended to support the theory that McDonald had "insane delusions," the phase of their cause which won from them a reversal from the jury's first decision.

Nephews and nieces contesting the will were Mrs. A. N. Rodgers, Dallas; Mrs. Lillian Brinton, Westchester, Pa.; Charles McDonald, Paris; Dr. William McDonald, Newsome, Texas, and other relatives, more distantly related, who were intervenors.

KING SPENDS QUIETER DAY AS COLD WANES

Lung Congestion Shows No Further Advance, Says Physicians' Report

PRINCE KILLS LION

Heir to Throne in Wilds Of Africa Unaware Of Father's Illness

LONDON, Nov. 23, (UP)—King George V was officially reported improved tonight after a day of increasing uneasiness and alarm for the 63-year-old head of the house of Windsor who is confined to bed by a cold and congestion of one lung.

The king had a "quieter" day, his physicians announced, and there was no further extension of the lung "mischief" which was causing concern to millions of subjects of the man who has dominion over Great Britain, Ireland and British dominions beyond the seas.

Official Bulletin

The official bulletin issued to night said:

"The king had a quieter day. His temperature is lower and there is no further extension of the mischief in his lung.

"Signed, Stanley Hewett, Dawson of Penn."

While the rapidity with which the king's illness has developed caused great uneasiness in official circles, attention also was focused on the remote position of the Prince of Wales, who is hunting lions deep in the African jungle and apparently unaware of his father's condition.

The Duke of Gloucester also is hunting in Africa and Prince George, fourth son of the king, is in Bermuda, aboard the battleship Durban—five days from London.

York at Palace

The Duke of York, second heir to the throne, was at Buckingham palace today, having been recalled from Northampton. He conferred with Sir Stanley Hewett, surgeon apothecary to the king.

Princess Mary, who is in Yorkshire, will return to remain with Queen Mary during the king's illness, it was announced tonight.

Although it was learned that government officials had seriously considered sending a special message to the Prince of Wales, latest indications were that he would be notified of the king's illness through the regular telegraphic communications. If it became necessary for him to return to London, a long journey either by air or train and ship would be necessary.

The trip probably could be made in a week if permission was granted for the prince to return by air, but that was considered unlikely in the circumstances. By rail and warship, with short airplane flights in-

HUNDREDS PAY FINAL HONORS TO BRADLEY

Life Should Serve As Example to Others, Says Pastor

FLOWERS COVER BIER

Business Man's Tribute Given By Harrison At Rites Friday

Funeral services for John W. Bradley, 53, prominent Wichita Falls business man and one of the most active civic workers in the community, who died early last Wednesday morning on the Denver and South Plains special train at Plainview, were conducted from the First Christian church Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

More than a thousand persons who filled the church to its capacity in standing and seating space witnessed the services. Hundreds were turned away from the services because there was not enough room to accommodate all of those who came to attend the last rites of the prominent Wichitan.

Guard of Honor

Many beautiful floral offerings in all forms and sizes were placed around the casket and over the church. The greater part of the offerings were made of chrysanthemums of different colors while a wreath made of white chrysanthemums covered the casket.

The body lay in state from 12 until 3 o'clock Friday afternoon with the Wichita Falls commandery No. 59, Knights Templar, acting as an honor guard.

The county courthouse closed at 1 o'clock for the services as did most of the downtown shops and business establishments. Traffic around the church before and after the services was so heavy that several officers were required to keep it from becoming congested.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. F. F. Walters, pastor of the First Christian church at Blackwell, Okla., and a former minister of the First Christian church here.

Rev. Mr. Walters' sermon was based on the Christian life of Mr. Bradley and his great service to the church. The church work that was done by Mr. Bradley and a sketch of his life were told by the pastor from friendship and association with Mr. Bradley during his days as pastor here. He urged the people not to mourn the loss of Mr. Bradley but to let the memory of his life serve as a noble example of Christian living.

Shepherd Sings

Dr. Floyd A. Bash opened the services with a prayer which was followed by addresses of praise and respect for Mr. Bradley by Rev. Patrick Henry, pastor of the Southside Christian church of San Antonio, and Dr. T. T. Roberts, president of Randolph college at Cisco.

"Crossing the Bar" was sung by R. E. Shepherd which was followed by a resume of the civic activities and work of Mr. Bradley by Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce, of which Mr. Bradley was an active member. In

WOMAN VICTIM IDENTIFIES MAN UNDER ARREST

Heavy Guard Takes Fiend To Penitentiary At Lincoln, Neb.

BLACK WANTS HELP

Negro, Defiant, Asks For Lawyer Soon After His Arrest

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 23. (UP)—Under heavy guard, Jake Bird, young mulatto, accused of a series of axe murders that terrorized Omaha and vicinity this week, was brought to the state penitentiary in an automobile today as a precaution against possible mob violence.

The negro, arrested in Omaha, was identified by Mrs. G. Harold Stribling as the "hatchet man" who struck her husband down with a blow on the head with his weapon and made a similar attempt on her in the Stribling home early Tuesday morning.

Three persons were killed by the slayer who entered Omaha homes and crushed his victims' skulls with an axe.

Mrs. Stribling was the only person alive who could identify the negro. Her husband was injured, probably fatally, by blows from the axe wielder, and was not in condition to view the suspect.

Sight Repulsive

"That's the man," she said, when the negro was brought into her room at an Omaha hospital. "Take him away."

Mrs. Stribling was awakened by the struggle of the negro with her husband. After knocking the husband down, the negro struck Mrs. Stribling and forced her to accompany him away from the home. She walked in a daze along a road for several minutes, she said, and finally broke away. A motorist found her and brought her to Omaha. She suffered a broken nose.

Feeling in Omaha has been running high since the axe man began his attacks. Hundreds of volunteer citizens joined detectives and police in searching the swamps near Omaha on both the Nebraska and Iowa sides of the Missouri river for the attacker.

All available police and citizens were pressed into service to patrol the residential sections of Omaha for several nights because of fear the negro would continue his attacks.

Negro Defiant

Bird raved defiantly at all persons who questioned him after his arrival here this afternoon.

"I want a lawyer," he said.

Authorities regard Mrs. Stribling's identification as positive evidence that he is the man who entered her home.

She told authorities she had a good look at the negro as he brought his axe down on her hu-

Groom of 64 Gives Views on Life and Love and Such

Man Gets Tired of Fussing Around With Laundry, He Opines

It is not well that a man should spend the evening of his life struggling with darning and counting out his own laundry affirms S. E. Sawyer, 64, who, with Mrs. W. L. Youngblood, 48, Friday morning stood before Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs to be joined in matrimony.

Mr. Sawyer is the owner of the Jumbo cafe. He has been in business in Wichita Falls for many years, and for many years he has been a widower. Until Friday Mrs. Youngblood was connected with the Antlers hotel. Beginning Saturday she will take her place behind the cashier's desk of the Jumbo cafe. With the bride's little daughter, age 11, the two will make their home at 1100 Indiana avenue.

"Well, it's a lonely thing coming home after a hard day's work with no one to tell your troubles to," Mr. Sawyer said Friday in discussing his new domestic arrangements. "We're widow and widower and if we aren't old enough now to have a little sense and make a go of it we might; as well go out and knock our blocks off."

The romance which culminated in the marriage Friday began 14 months ago when Mrs. Youngblood first came to Wichita Falls, the bridegroom said.

"A man gets tired fussing around with clothes and laundry and such," she went on. "Life is more than working like a mule all day and sleeping like a horse all night. A man wants someone to look after and to talk to when the day's over. We've come to know each other and we're congenial, so it seemed the best thing to do."

Mr. Sawyer has two sons and a daughter-in-law living in Wichita Falls. He is glad to welcome his little step-daughter and happy at the family he has acquired.

"In short, I think I've done right well, but she's played the deuce," was his summing up of his new matrimonial venture.

Trainmen Accept Wage Increase Meaning More Money For 42,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (AP)—Conductors and trainmen of western railways accepted a 5½ per cent wage increase, retroactive to May 1, 1928, when their former agreement with the railways expired.

Announcement of the agreement was made by J. W. Higgins, chairman of the conference committee of managers of western railways, at the close of a week of secret conferences with representatives of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainman and the Order of Railway Conductors.

The increase is that approved by the federal fact finding commission, which recommended that the employes be given a 6¼ per cent increase with no change in the working rules, or a 7½ per cent raise in case of a change.

Railways had asked abolition of the doubleheader rule. The trainmen and conductors insisted on the retention of the rule, contending the use of two-engined freight trains was dangerous.

The wage increase affects 42,000 employes and adds $6,500,000 to the pay rolls of the western railways, according to Higgins' statement. It will be in force until May 1, 1929.

band's head twice. She pleaded for her life and that of her baby and after talking to him for a long time, agreed to accompany the mulatto from the home.

Police believe Bird also is the negro who murdered Mrs. Waldo Resse, 21, and Miss Greda Brown, her sister, in the Resse home early Monday morning.

J. W. Blackman, 75, expressman, the axe man's first victim, was killed Sunday.

Served Pen Term

Despite the fact that authorities learned Bird served a term in the Utah penitentiary for rape, physicians found no evidence that any of the Omaha victims had been assaulted. Mrs. Stribling said the negro did not molest her after striking one blow with an axe.

Although police had known Bird as a dapper, sheik type, he was dressed roughly when brought to Lincoln. He appeared frightened but able to compose himself.

The difference in dress of the negro was said to have confused Mrs. Stribling in the Omaha hospital but she identified him after carefully examining his features. Bird made no comment.

OMAHA POLICE CONTINUE SEARCH

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 23. (UP)—Despite the announcement by deputy sheriffs that Jake Bird, negro, was positively identified by Mrs. G Harold Stribling as the man who made an axe attack on her husband, Inspector of Detectives Danbaum tonight ordered the search continued for the "hatchet" slayer.

Bird was taken in an automobile to the state penitentiary from where detective forces first learned of the capture.

Danbaum said that Mrs. Stribling, whose face is swathed in bandages covering an injury received from the negro's axe, could see only through a narrow slit in the cloth over her right eye. He reported Mrs. Stribling said the man "resembled her attacker."

Deputy Sheriffs Dunn and Flannigan, however, said the woman's identification was positive and they were convinced the right man was under arrest.

The dispute between the two forces indicated the Omaha police department may have been irked because they had not been notified immediately of Bird's arrest.

King Spends Easier Day

cluded, the trip could be made in three weeks and Britishers already were visualizing a dramatic race with time.

Tour Not Shortened

So far there has been no question of shortening the prince's tour, officials here announced.

Official circles today were discussing the rapid development of the king's illness, recalling that he had given no indication of sickness until Tuesday although it had been noticed during the last few weeks that he labored in climbing stairs. Many persons were of the opinion that he would be forced to take a vacation at some warm resort every winter in the future in order to retain his health.

The "mischief" or congestion in one lung might easily turn into broncho-pneumonia, leading physicians pointed out. The "mischief" was interpreted as a troublesome congestion such as was reported early today, at which time the king had a temperature of 101 degrees. At no time, however, did he appear to be losing any strength, his physicians said.

Probable Cause

It was recalled that one cause for his illness might have been the fact that the king stood bareheaded in a drizzling rain on armistice day during the service at the cenotaph in Whitehall.

The sudden visit of Sir Stanley Hewett, Lord Dawson of Penn, and a noted bacteriologist to the palace late last night was revealed today as an ordinary investigation of bacteriological conditions, such as is customary in all cases of microbic infection. The physicians remained at the palace until shortly after midnight and returned several tmies today, conferring with the Duke of York on one occasion.

Daily ceremonies at the palace attracted a great crowd again today. On all sides was discussion of the king's condition and it was noticed that anxiety was increased considerably due to the announcement of lung congestion. The guard was changed without the usual stirring military music.

PRINCE UNAWARE OF FATHER'S ILLNESS

NAIROBI, South Africa, Nov. 23. (UP)—Whole communities from throughout the countryside turned out to give the Prince of Wales an enthusiastic greeting when he arrived at Dodoma, center of the white settlement in the Tanganyikan highlands, dispatches received here today reported.

A magnificient Tanganyika diamond was presented to the prince after the addresses of welcome.

The prince plans to proceed to Rhodesia, via Lake Tanganiyka, the dispatches said, although at that time he had not received word of his father's illness. Communication is very difficult.

The prince shot an excellent lion, measuring eight feet, eight inches, while hunting in the Ufiume district Wednesday. He was in fine spirits, sun-burned and in good health.

Over a Billion Deadly Germs in a Single Drop of Water

Germs are so small that there may be as many as one billion, seven hundred million of them in a drop of water. And just a few of these tiny germs, if they get into your blood through a cut in your skin, may make you so sick you will be in bed for weeks—may cause the loss of a limb through blood poisoning—may even infect you with that most dreadful and fatal of diseases, lockjaw.

Just because you can see no dirt in a cut does not mean that it is clean. You cannot see germs. The only safe and sane thing to do, is to thoroughly wash every cut, no matter how small, with Liquid Borosone, to kill the germs, and then dust it with Borosone Powder, to hasten the healing. Liquid Borosone costs 30 cents, 60 cents, $1.20 and $1.80; Borosone Powder, 30 cents and 60 cents and can be had at Miller's Drug store.—Adv.

WILL REVEALS LIFE OF RICH

Whitney's Last Papers Are Open to Public

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The public was given a chance to see today just what it means in the way of worldly possessions, to be a multi-millionaire.

This glance into the private affairs of one of the country's richest men, came when the appraisal of the estate of the late Payne Whitney of New York was filed.

It revealed that the estate was worth $178,893,000 after the claims against it are paid. It is the largest estate ever put through the New York courts. Other millionaires have died leaving vast sums, but usually their property has been disposed of by deed or by other means before their deaths, rather than by will.

Whitney died suddenly several months ago while playing golf near his Long Island home.

Had 22 Overcoats

The appraisal contains many pages, and it reveals many things.

It shows that Whitney had underwear worth $100 in his personal wardrobe. He owned 22 overcoats.

But his automobiles exceeded his overcoats in number. He had 29 cars, including four Rolls-Royces, four Lincolns and four Fords.

Apparently he was no lover of books for his libarary consisted of one set of semi-classics and a few miscellaneous volumes, the whole worth only $250.

Yet, in his will, he gave to Finley Peter Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley" and noted for his writings $500,000 in cash and forgave him debts of $3,290. It was shown that previously he had given Dunn $917.65.

His art collection was equally peculiar. His paintings were few. An unnamed Raphael headed the list and was valued at $20,000. It is in storage in London.

But among the paintings in Whitney's Manhasset home was an Ives print of the world's champion rat killing terrier, valued at $35 and in one of his houses was a painting of Tom Heenan, British prize fighter, appraised at $20.

Pullman Has Claim

He owed a clothing bill of $2,221 at the time of his death and the Pullman company put in a claim for $24,000 for repairs to his private car. The car itself is worth $97,000.

Tapestries were more to Whitney's liking than books, and one series of Gothic hunting tapestries is appraised at $100,000. A table in daily use, proved to be an old Venetian walnut piece, worth $5,000 and it sat among Isphan Persian rugs worth $100,000.

Whitney's house boat, the Captiva, was appraised at $76,000.

He gave his brother St. Germans, a valuable stallion and he left his wife, among other possessions, six brood mares for her racing stable.

A Gothic-style, stained glass window entitled, the "Last Supper" which is in the Whitney town house was valued at $1,000, which is the same value attached to seven polar bear rugs in the same house.

Whitney's funeral cost $8,885, that including $2,800 paid for a burial plot in Christ church cemetery, Manhasset, L. I.

Whitney had real estate worth $3,149,000 which included three homes. His Manhasset, Long Island estate, was valued at $1,185,756 his town house in New York at $625,000 and a country place at Saratoga, New York, at $47,000.

Accounts in Four Banks

When he died he had cash in the bank amounting to $1,630,177. He maintained four bank accounts in New York and one which had a balance of $24,569, in the Bank of Thomasville, Georgia.

The largest single item among the assets of the estate was the controlling interest in the Northern Finance corporation. He owned most of its stock and it, in turn, was a holding company for his investments. Thus Whitney had practically all of his money in stock and bonds and took little part in business enterprises himself.

Among the holdings of the Northern Finance corporation were $87,000,000 worth of Standard Oil stocks; heavy investments in American and British Tobacco stocks such as R. J. Reynolds and company, Liggett and Meyers, P. Lorillard company and the British-American Tobacco company, 67,000 shares of Prairie Oil stock; 50,054 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph company stock, and many other valuable paying issues

$45,000,000 to Charity

Forty-five million dollars of the estate was willed to charity, Yale university gets $2,823,057; the Medical college of Cornell university gets $2,823057; the New York public library $6,210,725; and a $25,000,000 trust fund is set up to be used for educational and charitable purpose.

Whitney's two children, Mrs. Joan Whitney Payson and John Hay Whitney, receive temporary estates in $27,101,347 each until they are 40 years of age, when the money will go to Whitney's granddaughter, Miss Payne Whitney Payson. The widow will receive the income from an estate of $54,000,000 set up for her and about $3,000,000 in real estate, jewelry and the like, including the Whitney Long Island estate.

The taxes on the inheritances will amount to approximately $15,000,000.

Japan's "First Rotarian" to Appear At Club Convention in Dallas

DALLAS, Nov. 23. (AP)—Umekichi Yoneyama, one of Japan's leading financiers and "first Rotarian" in Asia, has promised definitely to attend the international convention of Rotary clubs in Dallas next May, information received by Rotary international headquarters at Chicago disclosed. He will bring with him his son and the largest delegation from Japan ever to attend a Rotary convention.

Yoneyama is president of the Mitsui Trust company and a director of the Mitsui bank, which has branches throughout the world. He was the first to introduce several modern banking practices in the commercial life of Japan.

In 12 years spent in American universities the Japanese Rotarian familiarized himself with the English language. He holds both B.A. and A.A. degrees for academic work at Amherst college and Ohio Wesleyan university.

On account of Yoneyama's intimate knowledge of the language of this country, his government has honored him with many special missions to America. In 1921 he was a member of the delegation of prominent Japanese business men who came to the United States to study conditions here and to create a better understanding between the commercial interests of the two countries.

Yoneyama was president of the first Rotary club in Japan at Tokyo. This year he was appointed first governor of the Rotary district which includes the clubs in Japan, making him the "first Rotarian" of the Far East. It was due largely to his leadership that ideals and customs of Rotary took firm root in Japanese life, despite the novelty to the Japanese of many of the things customary in a Rotary meeting.

Inventor Devises Silencer for Planes

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (UP)—Harry Ahrens, of the Fairchild Aviation corporation, and the Maxim Silencer company, has invented, after two years' work, a silencer for airplane engines, it was announced tonight. The familiar explosions that call attention to airplanes high in the air will become a mild hiss.

Author and Members Of Play Acquitted

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (UP)—The author, manager and 10 members of the cast of the suppressed play "The Night Before" were acquitted today of a charge of presenting an indecent play. "Hell" and "damn" were the strongest words in the dialogue, but the plot was of a woman who entered a house of ill fame rather than contract a loveless marriage, and met there her future husband—an innocent youth seeking experience.

Japanese Pilot Dies When Plane Hits Sea

TOKIO, Nov. 23. (UP)—Masao Iwata, noted Japanese pilot, was drowned today when his plane fell into the sea while he was returning to Kyoto with photographs of the emperor and empress arriving at the Ise shrines to worship the imperial ancestors. Another plane carrying photographs is missing and it was feared that it crashed in the mountain area.

TORAL'S FATE KNOWN SOON

Judge to Decide Appeal Within Week

By GEORGE H. SCHREINER

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23. (US)—After a brief hearing before the seventh chamber of the superior court of appeals of Mexico City, the presiding justice announced that the court's decision on the appeal of Jose de Leon Toral and Mother Superior Concepcion Acevedo would be reached within a week and would be issued privately to the counsel for the defense.

The defense attorneys placed their appeal before the court for a setting aside of the jury's verdict at San Angel which resulted in a sentence of death for Toral, confessed slayer of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, and a sentence of 20 years' imprisonment for the nun on her conviction as the intellectual author of the crime.

In anticipation of the invasion of members of the chamber of deputies on the appeals courtroom in a manner similar to the invasion of the little courthouse at San Angel, authorities took extraordinary precautions to frustrate such attempts.

Senor Sodi, the chief counsel for the defense, reviewed briefly the grounds for the appeal, stating that the jury had been improperly selected, and that the invasion of the armed congress members had placed the jury under intimidation. He declared further that Toral's crime was not a felony, but a political crime, and therefore not punishable by death.

Coming to the nun's case, Sodi asserted that the evidence of her intellectual authorship of the crime was insufficient to warrant her conviction on the charge.

The hearing was attended both by Toral and Abbess Concepcion. The nun appeared in good health, and showed her habitual calm. Toral addressed a few words to the court, in which he branded as absurd the intimations that he had killed General Obregon for pay.

Dorothy Dix Doubts That Men Really Abhor Fat Women So Much

Dorothy Dix Gives Advice on How to Hold a Husband—Straight Talk to the Girl Who Is Sick of Matrimony—Do Gentlemen Prefer Blondes?

Dear Miss Dix—Is it true that nobody loves a fat woman, and that husbands tire of their wives if they get stout and do not keep a boyish figure? My husband is very dear to me, and I don't want to lose him to a flapper, and if the only way to keep him is by counting my calories, I will do it, but, frankly, starvation is an acid test of love.
—PERFECT FORTY.

Answer: I know the theory prevails that for a woman to be a lady love she must have a lean and hungry look, and that for a wife to put on fat is first aid to divorce; but, myself, I doubt if men are so enamored of bones as women think they are.

Therefore, I am strongly of the opinion that a wife can do more to hold her husband's affection by doing a little mental arithmetic about a husband's prejudices and likes and dislikes before she speaks than she can by figuring how many calories there are in every bit of food before she eats it.

For it is not what goes into a woman's mouth, but what comes out of it, that promotes the peace and harmony of a home.

No man is going to bother about the weight of a wife who is always pleasant and agreeable, who never nags or whines or complains, and who says to him the words of appreciation and affection and admiration that are the music of the spheres to his ears. When it comes to holding a husband's love, I would back the wife who counted the effect of what she said rather than the one who counted the calories in what she ate.

And this new fad of face-lifting and wrinkle-eradicating which is guaranteed to make a middle-aged wife over into a girl again!

I wonder if the average husband wouldn't rather have his wife's spirits lifted than her face, and if he wouldn't a lot rather have the wrinkles ironed out of her disposition than out of her cheeks? After all, not many men are beauty mad, but the thing that every man likes in a woman is for her to be cheerful and bright and good-natured and amiable and easy to get along with.

Somehow, when women get along toward middle life they are very likely to slump, to let themselves get depressed and peevish and fretful and dull, and to make no effort to be gay and entertaining companions to their husbands. And it is because they are poor company that so many men are driven away from home to seek jollier comradeship.

It is the sag in most women's morale, not the sag in their face muscles, that needs to be taken up, and they can be their own surgeons and not only save money, but be sure of turning out a successful job.

Therefore I commend this new school of beauty culture to all middle-aged women. Its methods always work. And its results are always a charm to conjure with.

If women would do their daily spiritual dozen as religiously as they do their daily physical dozen; if they would constantly exercise their minds and their hearts and keep from getting rigid and stiff in their opinions; if they would keep themselves standing on tiptoes with new ideas and interests and enthusiasms, they would keep perpetually young. Or if they didn't, nobody would know it or care, because they would have the charm that makes them ageless.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am 18 years old and have been married three years and have one child. I am tired of my husband and sick of matrimony and thinking of leaving and going away with a young man who says he loves me and will take care of me.—A HEART-SICK GIRL.

Answer: If you are disillusioned with matrimony, you are taking a strange cure for your trouble by running off with another man. What advantage do you think a common-law wife has over a legal wife? What charm will there be in an illicit relationship that a respectable relationship lacked?

The thing that rubs the gilt off the gingerbread of matrimony is the daily companionship of a man and a woman. Romance can't survive a woman's seeing a man in his stocking feet, with a two day's stubble of beard on his face and a soiled collar.

Illusion perishes when she finds out that he has funny, fussy, little ways, and that he swears a blue streak when his collar button rolls under the chiffonier, and is irritable when dinner is three minutes late, and that he is unreasonable about bills and hard to get along with, and thinks he is about to die every time he has a headache, and, in general, is just a plain, ordinary, faulty human being instead of being a demigod, as she supposed he was.

But believe me, my poor, foolish child, you would find just exactly the same things to contend with in a lover, if you had to live with him every day, as you find in a husband.

Only more so, because in addition you would always be afraid that your lover was about to leave you, and he would visit upon you all the irritations arising out of a situation that is not countenanced by decent society. Every time people looked askance at him and snubbed him, you would have to pay.

And what about your child? Are you going to abandon it? Do you think you will find much happiness when you lie awake at night wondering if your baby is crying for its mother? And do you think you have any right to bring up a child in the atmosphere in which you are proposing to live? Do you think any child would respect a mother living the kind of life you are thinking of living?

Answer these questions honestly to yourself and you will stick to your job.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Will you please tell me why it is that gentlemen prefer blondes to brunettes?
—CURIOUS.

Answer: They don't. Just as many men admire dark women as they do fair ones. It is a matter of individual taste.

Look around among the married women of your acquaintance and you will see that there are blondes and brunettes and browns and tans and redheads and whiteheads, and short and fat, and living skeletons and bean poles and betwixt and betweens. Also, there are morons and highbrows and clinging vines and bosses, and some man has picked one of them out as his choice. So there is hope for all.

Besides, Anita Loos, who knows all about it, says that even if gentlemen fall for blondes, they marry brunettes.—DOROTHY DIX.

$3,000 GIVEN TO RED CROSS

Wichita Fund Is $4,000 Short of Goal

Only $3,000 had been reported Friday night in the annual roll call of the local chapter of the American Red Cross for $7,000, according to the campaign managers.

This sum is far short of what is needed, and an appeal to Wichitans to give when asked Saturday was issued as the drive will close Saturday in order not to interfere with the opening of the Community chest drive.

Due to the closing of the stores and the attendance at the funeral of John W. Bradley, the drive came to a practical halt Friday. Because of this, Wichitans are asked to make a special effort Saturday to do what they can for the Red Cross.

Campaign headquarters is in the offices of Walter S. Curlee in the Perkins-Snider building, and is in charge of Mrs. T. B. Smith, executive secretary of the local Red Cross. Mrs. Smith asked Friday night that those who could come to the office with donations do so at once. She also said that an effort would be made to get in all the group roll calls, a number of which had not been returned to the office Friday night.

Recipe for fried ham

A famous cook gives these simple directions

It is sometimes so simple to improve the flavor of foods. For example, a certain household is noted for its delicious fried ham which is a specialty for Sunday morning breakfast and other "occasions." The cook was asked for the recipe, and here it is:

Take a slice of smoked ham one-half inch or more thick. Sear each side to a golden brown, then reduce the flame and sprinkle two teaspoons of granulated sugar on the exposed side, keeping the flame low so that the sugar does not burn. Then turn the ham and sprinkle two teaspoons of sugar on the other side, keeping the flame low until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved and absorbed into the ham. When it is finished, you will have a delicious ham flavor such as you never found before.

The uses of sugar in bringing out and improving the flavors of foods are practically unlimited. Sweeten cereals and note how much more children enjoy them. Add sugar to grapefruit or any other health-giving fruit that may be harsh to the taste. Sugar does not injure the beneficial acids and vitamins in any way.

A sweet dessert adds a feeling of satisfaction to the meal. Baked fruits, or fruit or berry pies, are especially delicious.

Eat nourishing foods and enjoy them. A famous food authority recommends one raw and one cooked fruit and vegetable a day, sweetened to taste. Sugar is Nature's perfect flavor. The Sugar Institute.

USES OF COAL ARE EXTENDED

Supply Extended by Science Conference Told

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 23. (AP)—America's coal supply has been extended hundreds of years by the chemical and mechanical wizardry which is making one pound of coal do much more work than it did a few years ago.

This was the report given to the second international conference on bituminous coal today at Carnegie Institute of Technology by F. G. Tryon, fuel economist, United States bureau of mines, Washington.

The oil possibilities of the United States were appraised by Dr. David White, principal geologist, United States geological survey, Washington.

"Our concern over our future oil supplies—the reserves remaining available in the ground—should outweigh casual interest in our stupendous drafts on these reserves to meet our still growing annual requirements," he said. "It would be clearly unwise not to face squarely the need for ascertaining from time to time and so nearly as possible how much petroleum remaining in the ground we have to draw against with hope of recovery."

Declaring "we are on the eve of great things," Harold Nielson, consulting engineer, London, admitted "the propensities of coordinated science in the future almost frighten me with the vast possibilities they possess."

Fears Held For Catholic Priest

ROME, Nov. 23. (UB)—Grave fears are felt in vatican circles here regarding the safety of Father Joseph Bielokolov, a Russian Catholic priest, who has been deported by the Soviet regime to the Isles of Solovosi. Unconfirmed advices received here indicate the priest was assassinated on the way to his exile.

Father Bielokolov was one of the few Catholic priests who declared himself in favor of the Soviet regime at the time of the Red revolution. Because of this stand on his part, he was held in high estimation by the Soviet authorities.

About a year ago, a movement was started to establish a "Red Catholic church." Father Bielokolov was to become the head of this new Soviet state church, after having received Episcopal consecration from some orthodox bishop adhering to the Bolshevik regime.

It is known that the priest declined to accept this position, despite strong pressure which was brought to induce him to consent. This refusal was followed by methodic persecution against the priest by the Soviet authorities, and he was finally banished to the isles. Nothing has been heard of or from him since.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Some of the recent stories about the doings of pickpockets put the old sergeant in a reminiscent mood. He had read of how some of the old school dips had gone straight and how some others could not be reformed. The cop wanted it known that he had the story of one of the most unusual of thieves who stopped doing crooked work himself, but made a good living by teaching children to steal.

"I have always insisted that the worst crook to deal with is the Fagin, who, so far as it relates to this story, had no less than three children stealing for him," went on the seargeant.

"This man was 25 years old when I first came across him. At that time he was picking pockets in subways and on street cars. Then he dropped out of sight and I did not see him for nearly a year, when I ran across him one day on the Bowery. He had a 10-year-old girl with him. Curiosity as well as duty caused me to stop him. I noticed the child was inclined to shrink away from the man, although he held her by the hand. The thief obviously was anxious to get away from me and after a few impersonal questions I let him go his way.

"But I did not let him get out of my sight. That night I went around to the house I had seen them enter, but I could not find the child, although I learned on what floor the man lived. The following day I got around early and it was fortunate I did, for I learned that he had taught this particular child to 'work' worshipers in the many churches on the lower East Side, where early morning services were held. In most instances the girl robbed women, with whom she easily mingled. Complaint followed complaint, but it was some time before we had a concrete case where we got the child to give us the necessary evidence to send the man to jail.

"Then it was that I learned more about the methods pursued by this particular crook. After he had been sentenced to prison for four years I went down to the Tombs and had a talk with him. He was very bitter at the turn affairs had taken and whiningly said the child had turned out to be a thief as well as an informer and that he had been double-crossed by some smart grown-up, who had told this particularly successful child thief to hold out some of the stolen money.

"While the man was in prison he had a bit of hard luck that almost made an honest man of him. He fell from a scaffolding while painting and broke both wrists as well as an ankle. He was thus incapacitated to be a pickpocket himself and added that it was often necessary for a crook to attempt an escape by running. This he was unable to do, so in a way he was at least partly reformed. I never heard that he had any children working for him either.

"Sometimes a physical injury has the effect of making a person honest. Yes, I ran across some queer cases while dealing with the underworld."

Three times before lunch and four times afterward, the traffic manager despatched the office boy down to the nearby five-and-ten—each time for the same order of 10 cents worth of assorted chocolates.

Curiosity there was aplenty in the office, but either through good grace or a recognition of office caste, no underling made any comment aloud. The whispering campaign that went on, though, all began with the statement that the boss never before had been known to eat candy, and that perhaps he was working too hard or something and that his brain was getting just a bit fatigued or something. The staff really was somewhat concerned.

The staff did not shadow the boss when he sallied forth to the elevators at 5 p. m., and hence the staff knows nothing of the sequel. The traffic manager posted away to the nearest—and consequently, his favorite—speakeasy.

"Charlie, my boy," he said, weakly, to the bar gentleman, "you see before you a very sick man. It must be something I ate."

"I'm very sorry," said Charlie. "Do you remember anything out of the ordinary that you ate?"

"Well, I did eat some chocolates today. I heard that if you ate candy you would not have a craving for alcohol, but it must have been the cholocates that did the work."

"Well, now, that's too bad," sobbed Charlie. "What'll it be? A little straight?"

As they say in Latin, etcetera.

Pioneer Misses Sunday School Only Three Times

SALTILLO, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—H. H. Weaver, organizer of the first Sunday school in Mt. Vernon, Texas, 80 years ago, has put forward his claim for another record, that of constant attendance at religious services.

Weaver is authority for the statement that he has missed only three Sunday school services in 87 years. He served as Sunday school superintendent for 50 years and in recognition of his long record was made superintendent emeritus.

Healing the Wounds

THE human race can be counted on to make a rather impressive string of blunders every year of its existence. But once in a while we get a glimpse of the things that will be possible to it, once it has reached the high level of intelligence and devotion already attained by a few of its members.

Representatives of the republics of North and South America are now working on a plan for a great memorial laboratory in Panama to carry on the long fight against tropical diseases. The laboratory, fathered by the United States government, is to be the new world's memorial to William C. Gorgas; and it happens that Gorgas is one of those men who, by their lives and achievements, point out for the rest of us the race's real possibilities for neighborliness and brotherhood.

In 1928 the United States plunged into the war with Spain. It took away the last of Spain's new world possessions, set Cuba free, annexed the Philippines. A little later it began work on the Panama canal. A few years later it extended its economic and political influence more and more deeply into various Central American and West Indian countries.

These things were spectacular. They aroused a good deal of suspicion in various quarters in Latin America; this country began to look, to some South Americans, like a colossus that would eventually swallow all of its neighbors. Naturally, this did not make for any increased friendliness.

But during that same period William Gorgas was doing his work. First he rid Havana of yellow fever. Then he made the Panama Canal Zone, long one of the world's deadliest spots, a region of health. He showed various South Americans how to do similar things in their own cities. He saved no one knows how many thousands of Latin-American lives.

As a result, Gorgas became the 'idol of Latin America.' This year's move to establish a memorial laboratory to him instantly won the hearty cooperation of every republic south of the Rio Grande.

There is in all of this a great deal of food for thought. One or two more Americans like Gorgas would make the people of Latin America our friends forever. He gave the new world an object lesson in brotherhood and international cooperation that can never be forgotten.

President-elect Hoover's voyage to South America is important, for that reason. Mr. Hoover, apparently, has had a vision of the things that might be done if the Gorgas method is followed. The old system—Wall street loans and Marine corps bayonets—hasn't worked any too well. Mr. Hoover deserves the thanks of his country for deciding to copy Gorgas instead.

A Word From the Earl

THE Earl of Birkenhead, until recently a member of England's cabinet, is a bit nettled by President Coolidge's Armistice day speech.

"My answer to the president of the United States," said the earl, in a speech at London, "is that we ask nothing from them except good will. When we discuss questions of naval construction, we do not specially invite lectures as to whether we are pacific or not in our purposes."

Spoken like an earl, to be sure. But someone should tell the gentleman that the surest way for England to lose this country's good will is to indulge in militaristic gestures like the recent military-naval accord with France, which provoked President Coolidge's speech. No Englishman should be surprised that that has evoked a storm of criticism in the United States.

Too Many Children Out of School

THE parent-teacher organization of Wichita Falls is told that out of a total enrollment of more than 10,000 in the city schools, the average daily attendance is something like 9,000.

This means that approximately 1,000 children of school age who have been enrolled in the schools are absent for some cause or other. Some of them are out of town, others are unable to attend because of illness either themselves or in their families, but probably the greater number are absent because of truancy either on the part of the parents, the child or both.

Parents who would willingly or deliberately permit their children to be denied the benefits of education are, perhaps, beyond the reach of reason and the only recourse in their case is the application of the law.

But there are doubtless many other cases where reason and a little sympathetic help for the parents and the child would put the child back in school and keep him there.

If there are some hundreds of truants in Wichita Falls as the attensance figures seem to indicate it is a situation that steps ought to be taken to remedy.

The Army of Deer Hunters

UPWARDS of 50,000 deer hunters are expected to visit the upper peninsula of Michigan during the next few weeks. An extra ferry has been put into service at the Straits of Mackinac to serve them, and the wild land of the peninsula is being dotted with camps.

Yet, despite this influx of hunters, which was paralleled last year and the year before, deer are said to be more plentiful in upper Michigan this fall than in many years. Furthermore, state game wardens believe they will be even more plentiful next year.

The answer, of course, is the fact that Michigan is carrying forward a sane, far-sighted program of conservation. The woods are well patrolled by game wardens, regulations are rigidly enforced, and the wolves that used to decimate the wild herds are being exterminated. Sportsmen are satisfied, yet wild life is on the increase. Michigan can be proud of this achievement.

New Naval Building

NOW that the matter of new cruisers is again being pressed by the administration, it is to be hoped that someone can give us a detailed, unbiased account of our navy that will tell us exactly where it stands in comparison with the navies of other powers.

Our own naval officials insist that our cruiser strength is woefully inadequate. England's navy men, on the other hand, are just as sure that our cruiser and auxiliary strength far outclasses their own. Both sides cannot be right. If someone only could sift the wheat from the chaff and tell us, authoritatively, exactly how the two navies compare, we could decide on this new naval construction bill a lot more intelligently.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

(Copyright, 1927, Dodd Mead & Co.) (Copyright, 1928, Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York)

During the summer, Jonifer takes Gerane and his nephew, Peter, to Edelweiss on a pleasure jaunt. They are disguised as gypsies. While there, they see Starcourt acting as the escort of the princess on her return to the palace. One look at Gerane's face, when she sees Starcourt, tells Jonifer that she loves him. Peter arrives at the same conclusion, and is none too pleased, for he secretly loves Gerane. However he knows he can never marry her, for not only was his father, Jonifer's half-brother, of illegitimate birth, but he himself was born out of wedlock. Jonifer, being the legitimate descendant of the Duke of Droon, who was made an outlaw, many, many years ago, after his attempt to seize the throne, exercises his prerogatives as head of the family in a way that the son of his deceased illegitimate half-brother often finds distasteful. Peter instantly becomes jealous of Starcourt, who, according to a spectator, is about to undertake the extermination of the bandits in the Forest of Droon and has been made a colonel, for he has voluntarily undertaken the task.

Urged on by his mother and his brothers, who hate Jonifer, Peter contemplates a revolt against his uncle's authority.

Jonifer, who, on learning that Gerane is in love with Starcourt, makes some secret plans that involve the soldier, takes a trip to Moscow. On his way home, near the Axphain border, the stage-coach is held up—not by his men however. The arrival of a troop of soldiers results in the capture of the robbers. The incident serves to inform Jonifer that Starcourt, with 500 picked men, is in the Forest of Droon to run down the Davos band, no matter how long the task keeps him there. Jonifer and his companion,

John Crispo, quietly disappear that night and MAKE their way home, realizing that the situation is too serious to permit of their running the risk of capture.

Jonifer's return puts an end, for a time, at least, to Peter's thoughts of rebellion. The chief's next move is an attempt to capture Starcourt in a surprise attack at night. He is defeated, however.

Later, coming upon Starcourt while he is swimming in a mountain pool, Jonifer captures him. The colonel's men believe him to be drowned.

INSTALLMENT XVIII

Starcourt, blinking, gazed about him. His arms were so numb he could not lift them. The weak, pale light of dawn, coming through the small window at his right, revealed the figures of three men. The tallest of these, doffing his hat, bowed low.

"We have met before, but I fear my face is unfamiliar to you. I am Jonifer Davos. This gentleman is Julius Snook, and here is my excellent nephew, Peter. And this"—with a spacious wave of his hand—"is your home. Make yourself comfortable, sir."

The captive looked hard at each of the three men. The tall dark leader was smiling, his white, even teeth showing below his fierce mustache, his black eyes sparkling. Julius Snook, broad of shoulder and bearded, took that moment to yawn prodigiously. Peter, young and beardless, was scowling. He was coatless.

Starcourt suddenly shrugged his shoulders.

"You promised me water," he said.

"Peter! Two pails of it at once, hot and cold, and a guard. This house," Jonifer went on, turning to Starcourt "—or, if you prefer, this villa, or even chateau, belongs to me. My own humble dwelling is but a short distance from here, beyond the hill. You may see it by looking out of this wondow. I am sorry to say that there is but one room in this palatial abode. I rarely sleep here. My daughter objects to having her sleep disturbed when I happen to be out till all hours of the morning attending to business. But I can assure you that the couch is comfortable. And how do you like the furnishings? My daughter spent days decorating the room and—"

"I remember your daughter," interrupted the other, with a sneer. "A slender lad in brown breeches, if my memory serves me right."

To his surprise, Jonifer was not offended. On the contrary, he beamed. "Will you ever forget how she stood up to me and ordered me to set you free? And to this day she wonders whether I finally obeyed her and sent a couple of men back to release you. I wish you would tell her, when you have the chance, that I did that very thing. I fear she has doubted my word about—"

"So those fellows were not honest wood-choppers, eh?"

"Well," said Jonifer, "they chop wood as honestly as any two men I know of, when it is needed. Hullo! Does your head pain you? Sit down on this bench, Colonel. Now, do not behave like a child! I am not going to hurt you."

Starcourt sat down on the bench, his hand feeling tenderly of the large bump above his temple. Jonifer ran his fingers over the injured spot.

"Quite a knob. I will send for our apothecary, Professor Grats—a most excellent man. He will rub it with a liniment, and before you know it, the swelling will be—"

Peter came in at that juncture, bearing two pails of water, one of them steaming.

"Jahn Crispo is waiting outside," he announced. "He says he cannot go home without his breeches. And Gerane would like his boots, Uncle Jonifer."

. . . he knew who she was, long before she came within speaking distance.

He eyes Starcourt balefully, as the latter drank greedily of the cold water.

"In that case," said the chieftain, "you will have to get into bed, Colonel, and wait until I return with some clothing of my own—to which you are more than welcome. We are pretty near of a size. Now, here is cold and hot water. Drink your fill. Lave your face and body, and then get into bed. You will feel better. In half an hour I will return with a hot breakfast for you—or did you tell me that you never intend to eat again?"

"I will eat," said Starcourt resignedly. He stood up and looked out of the window. "Is day just breaking?"

"The sun is hardly up. In case you have lost track of time, this happens to be the eleventh of September."

"A most important day with us," explained Broadaxe.

"Thanks," said Starcourt dryly. "I will never forget the eleventh of September.

"Just toss these garments out of the window, as soon as you have stripped," ordered Jonifer. "Wait outside for them, Peter, and see that they get to their owners. We will leave you now, Colonel Starcourt. Remember that you are free as air. You are at liberty to come and go as you please. It is only fair, however, to inform you that you cannot escape from this valley. You will waste your time, if you try to do so, and you will meet with nothing but disappointment. If I were in doubt about it, I would not leave you unguarded for a moment."

The captive faced him. "You are a very civil fellow, Jonifer Davos. It is too bad that you are a robber. You could quite easily be a gentleman, I am bound to say."

Jonifer scowled. "If you were not a gentleman, Colonel Starcourt, I would take that as an insult and shoot you on the spot."

"I begged you to shoot me not so many months ago. I wish you had."

"I may still have that pleasure, sir."

"How long do you purpose holding me a prisoner?"

"That depends entirely upon the way the wind blows," returned Gerane's father.

"I do not understand you. That is no answer."

"It is all I choose to give at present," said Jonifer, curtly.

He went out, closing the door. Peter and Broadaxe had preceded him. Starcourt listened for the turn of a key, but there was no such sound. Nothing could have been more convincing than this. He knew that Davos had spoken the truth when he said there was no chance of escape.

"They've got me," he muttered, setting his jaw. "No use kicking against the pricks. I am in for it." He sat down, his elbows on his knees, his chin in his hands. Several minutes passed before he lifted his head suddenly, a gleam of inspiration in his eyes. "That daughter of his! By gad, I'd forgotten about her. She took my part that morning on the—"

A harsh voice interrupted him. Peter was speaking to him through the window.

"Hi, Are you going to be all day about it?"

Starcourt began to divest himself of the ill-fitting garments.

Ten minutes later he was in bed. He was beginning to feel drowsy and would have fallen asleep despite his efforts to keep awake, had not the door opened suddenly to admit a small, bent old man wearing spectacles. He had scraggly white whiskers and carried a leather bag in his hand.

"Hullo! Who are you?" demanded Starcourt.

"I am Professor Grats come to attend you. Force of circumstances—list still, young man, there's a good fellow,—force of circumstances has made me a man of many parts, many professions, you might say. I am a doctor, a surgeon, a leech, a dentist, a barber, an apothecary, a taxidermist, a tinker, an undertaker, an astrologer—I could go on, ad captandum vulgus, for hours, but, as it takes more than one to make a crowd I shall confine myself to the business in hand. Now, let me see. Let me have a look at it. A slight accident, Jonifer Davos informs me. Accidents are likely to occur at—ah, so it hurts, eh? Hum! Ha! I see. Well, a little of this liniment—good for man, beast, and woman. And a powder to soften the pangs of—Do not be alarmed, young man.

And presently he took his departure, having cautioned his patient not to stand on his head, if he wished to avoid pain or complications. He paused at the door to remind the young man that he was always at his service, in case he needed a barber, an undertaker or an astrologer.

Funny old codger, thought the patient, and there was a smile on his lips when he fell asleep, a few minutes later. He slept as one drugged.

When he opened his eyes and stared hazily about him, the sun was almost on the point of plunging down behind the western peaks. For a long time he lay perfectly still. Then his gaze rested upon a pile of clothing on the bench against the wall. He got up, drank half the contents of a gourdful of water, and went over to inspect the garments.

"Well, I'm dashed!" he exclaimed aloud.

He found a comparatively new suit of gray English tweeds, together with shoes, stockings, shirt, underwear, and a white stock, such as was being worn in London by well-dressed men of the period. (A certain sergeant would have remembered seeing a suit of clothes similar to this one on the person of the courageous traveler who had killed two robbers on the road to Dalak, not so many weeks before.)

"Well, speaking as a beggar without a stitch to his back, there's nothing to do but choose the gray tweeds—so here goes, fit or not fit."

And, in a little while, he opened the door and walked out, fully and quite satisfactorily attired in the suit Jonifer Davos had purchased in St. Petersburg the season before. Colonel Starcourt's new wardrobe, however, did not include a hat. He was rather thankful for that. "Not clothes," said he, "but hats make the man. Ha's and shoes."

He found himself in what he supposed to be the fringe of the forest. Scarce fifty yards separated the house from open country beyond. Striding quickly toward the edge of the wood, he stopped short and stared about him in amazement.

Before him lay fields in which men were toiling with scythe and fork and rake. He rubbed his eyes. Then he looked to the right. There he beheld houses, quaint, squat houses, with thatched roofs, blue doors, flower-gardens, and vines—and women in skirts and short smocks, working among their vegetables.

"Good Havens!" he gasped. "Am I in some Swiss valley? Am I—" Then his gaze went up to the snow capped peaks that first had caught his eye; he shook his head. "No, this is the valley from which there is no escape. This is the land of Jonifer."

A woman was approaching. As she drew nearer, he observed that she was young and slender. She was not dressed as were the other women.

Her face was not brown, her dress was not that of a gypsy, but he knew who she was, long before she came within speaking distance.

THE DENSE (LIKE MYSELF)

No, I never could place a very great faith
In abnormally "know-it-all" men;
In seeking advice, I will turn to the ones
Who can say "I don't know" now and then.

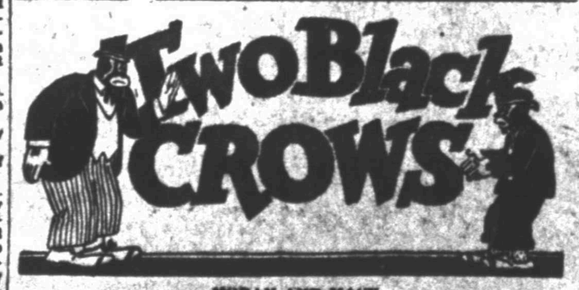

No matter how broad that our knowledge may be,
We can't hope to know everything; so
When one's put to question on something he lacks,
He is smart to admit, "I don't know."

MORAN AND MACK

Moran—Say, Big Boy, didn't you tell me to go down to Wall Street and watch the TICKER.

Mack—I didn't tell you nothin' else. What did you SEE?

Moran—I seen a lot of people watching a fish bowl on a hitchin' post.

Mack—Is that ALL you see?

Moran—And nothin' come out of that fish bowl but a tape worm.

Mack—Did you read what was WRITTEN on that tape worm?

Moran—It didn't make no SENSE.

Mack—You don't know you A, B, C's.

Moran—I know my A, B, C's all right, but these wus all 2, W, X's. It didn't make no more writin' than wolf tracks in snow. I wants my ten dollars BACK.

Mack—You is RICH, Oscar. You ten dollars has how TRIPLED ITSELF.

Moran—I don't want TRIPLETS. I wants my SAWBUCK.

Mack—Very sorry, Oscar. You is on the road to wealth except you is takin' a SLIGHT DETOUR.

ABILENE HOST TO HOTEL MEN

Association to Hold Meet On Dec. 3-4

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Arrangements for entertaining the annual meeting of the Texas Hotel association, to be held here Dec. 3-4, are practically completed, officials of the Abilene Hotel association, which will act as host for the 200 or more visitors expected to come to the convention, have announced.

Features of the entertainment program include a luncheon, banquet, and a barbecue at the Abilene Country club. The concluding part of the meeting will be a dance.

Several outstanding men in the hotel business will appear on the program of the meeting, which will be directed by W. C. O'Leary, Houston, president of the association.

Fred McJunkin, Dallas, will respond to the welcome address to be given by Mayor Thomas E. Hayden Jr.

Other items on the program include addresses by J. Anderson Fitzgerald, dean of the School of Business administration, University of Texas, Austin; Alfred S. Ames, regional vice president of the American Hotel association, New Orleans, and Paul Simon, Chicago.

R. W. Haynie, former president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Abilene, will be toastmaster at the banquet. Dr. E. E. Surface, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, will be the principal speaker.

Mothers of C. I. A. Students Organize

DENTON, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Mothers of girls in the College of Industrial Arts are forming into groups all over the state as C. I. A. Mothers clubs.

The clubs are for the purpose of enabling mothers better to understand the problems of the students and to promote more efficiently their interest in the school. The clubs assist in promoting school spirit and in supervising the welfare of the student body.

In Fort Worth, where there are 100 homes represented in C. I. A., an enrollment of at least 70 mothers is expected by the president, Mrs. O. M. Davis. Thirty members enrolled as charter members at the first meeting. The organization at Waco is also expected to have a large enrollment, the president, Mrs. J. O. Lusk, said.

The movement for establishment of mothers' clubs is becoming a popular one, according to school officials, who expect many Texas towns to follow the larger cities in building similar organizations.

Captured German Gun Loaned to Museum

ALPINE, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—A German machine gun captured in France in the drive on the Champagne sector in October, 1918, has been loaned to the West Texas Historical and Scientific society museum here by Bartlett Coan, superintendent of schools at Fort Davis.

Coan, a graduate of Sul Ross, was a company commander in the 142nd infantry of the 36th division.

The weapon was one of five in a German machine gun nest which was taken by Coan's company after a terrible struggle in which all of the German gunners and several men in Coan's company were killed. Marks of the battle still may be seen on the water jacket. It was for this action that Coan—then a captain—was awarded the French Croix de Guerre for exceptional bravery under fire.

Study of Loco Weed In Big Bend Planned

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov 23. (AP)—The first study of the U. S. department of agriculture of the loco weed in the Big Bend country will be made next spring when a number of men will be sent by the department of the highlands on a tour of investigation, it has been announced by C. D. Marsh, in charge of the poison plant work.

This will be only a preliminary survey and will be followed later by a more exhaustive study if another appropriation topping the $5,000 one on which the preliminary work is to be done is made. There has been little or no loco this year due to a dry winter, but recent rains promise a good crop next year.

Beaumont Lad First First Airplane Stowaway

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—H. C. Edge Jr., 11, son of a Beaumont newspaper man, has the distinction of being the first Beaumont airplane stowaway.

When he heard that his dad was to "cover" a commission meeting to be held aboard a tri-motored Ford plane here, he set his brain to working. The lad asked to go to the airport to see them off. He disappeared from the crowd and after the plane had reached an altitude of 1,300 feet he burst forth from rear compartment of the fuselage. He was congratulated by the commission for his "nerve," and is the hero among his schoolmates.

Rice Students Roll Their Golf Socks Now

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Hose or socks rolled down the limit is no longer a comfort to be enjoyed by females only. Five Rice institute studes have shown that both sexes can play that game.

The boys recently were the center of campus attraction when they appeared wearing golf nickers with brilliantly hued golf hose rolled down about their ankles.

"We're keeping up with the girls," was their only excuse. A few weeks ago several Rice girls introduced the stockingless effect by wearing to class bright colored socks rolled around their shoe tops.

EXTRA SESSION URGE GROWS

But Opinion Is Divided on Legislation

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Pressure for a special session of congress immediately after Herbert Hoover takes office is increasing.

This is due only partially to the demand for farm relief. Equally powerful—if not more so—is the desire of important business groups of see higher tariff protection.

Whether there is to be an extra session or not lies entirely with one man—Herbert Hoover. He has absolute power under the constitution to call or not to call congress here in advance of its regular December session in 1929.

Obligation Recognized

"We have an obligation to the farmers in this matter and we also are obliged to recognize that it is time to revise the tariff to meet new conditions," one senate authority told the United Press today. "The Fordney-McCumber act was passed soon after the war when conditions were changing rapidly. We had to revise many schedules several times after the bill came out of committee to meet new information regarding costs of production abroad. Conditions have changed all over the world and we cannot longer delay bringing the tariff up to date. It is going to be unpleasant business in some respects and the new administration will run some risks but it isn't going to be any easier to postpone it another year."

Senator Borah, who is credited with having persuaded Hoover to issue his campaign pledge to call a special session if farm relief is not granted in the coming short session. Addressing the national grange here today insisted that farm relief demands an extra session.

"If we hesitate," he said, "The party in power will be subjected, and properly subjected, to great criticism. The farm question is not an easy one to solve and we ought to deal with it deliberately at a special session."

Hoover's intimate friends are divided. Some are saying the farmers would be prejudiced against farm legislation passed at the coming short session because of the unsympathetic view which they feel President Coolidge holds toward farm relief legislation. One of Hoover's friends said today that the same legislation passed under Coolidge or under Hoover would be far more favorably received if it came from the new administration. Another equally good friend insists it will save Hoover trouble to pass farm relief now and avoid an extra session.

Sugar Big Question

Sugar is likely to be one of the big questions when tariff revision comes up. Western beet sugar interests have been seeking to get restriction on importation of Philippine sugar which now comes in duty free and undersells domestic sugar at some points.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee which will have charge of tariff revision measures in the senate, told President Coolidge today something must be done to check Philippine sugar competition. Smoot said three-fourths of the Philippine sugar was backed by foreign capital and should not be granted tariff immunities. He advocated as an alternative to duty on Philippine sugar, limitation of importations from the islands to 500,000 tons a year or possibly only 300,000 tons. Sugar is a basic product in Colorado, Utah and Idaho and is developing rapidly in Nebraska.

New England textile interests are insistent upon higher tariffs and representatives from New England states are agitating for a special session for this purpose.

The demand for high tariffs on corn and hides will continue to be strongly opposed by some South American countries, particularly Argentine which has developed considerable feeling on the subject. There is some curiosity here as to how President-elect Hoover will deal with the problem when he returns from his South American tour. He probably will find it hard to please both the American farmers and the South American exporters.

175 Full Year Courses Offered at T. C. U.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—If a student should enter Texas Christian university with the beginning of the fall semester of 1928 with the intention of taking every course now offered by the university at the rate of five courses a year, it would take him 51 years, and he would still lack one half-year course at the opening of the 1979-80 school year, according to the fall catalog of T. C. U. which shows 161 half-year and 175 full year courses now being offered.

The school of fine arts leading the university in the number offered with 40, and Brite college of the Bible is second with 30. The department of business administration offers 19 courses and the English and sociology departments offer 18 each.

Four Ambassadors in Mexico Quit Posts

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23. (UP)—Four ambassadors had resigned today, as is the custom before inauguration of a new president. Ambassador Telles to the United States; Pascaul Ortiz Rubio to Brazil; Alfonso Reyes to Argentine; and Charlos Puig Casaurano to Guatemala, were the officials to tender resignations. It is expected that the cabinet members will resign shortly.

Auto Accident Death Percentage Increases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (UP)—The percentage of deaths due to automobile accidents is increasing, department of commerce figures show. In 1927 deaths chargeable to automobiles were 19.5 per 1,000, having risen steadily from 14.9 in 1923.

Conservation of Forests Urged

AUSTIN, Nov. 23. (AP)—Within the past few years increased expenditures which the state highway department has had to make for long leaf timber as a result of the shortage have been more than sufficient to finance an adequate conservation and reforestation program in Texas, according to Cone Johnson, member of the commission.

Johnson said the state is now paying $100 per 1,000 feet for prime long leaf timber while 25 years ago the entire output of big mills could have been purchased for from $9 to $15 per 1,000. The quality in those days was much better than that obtainable now, he said.

Timber is practically all gone and while it is being exhausted nothing has been done toward conservation and reforestration.

"We get stirred up and are greatly concerned, spending much time and money, over who shall occupy some state office, but sit idly by and watch our natural resources steadily slip from us," Johnson said.

First Negro Little Theatre to Give Play

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—The first negro Little theater in the United States, recently organized here, soon will present three one-act plays under direction of Louis J. Hexter, pioneer of the Dallas Little theater movement. Rehearsals have been under way for three weeks on Eugene O'Neill's "The Dreamy Kid."

That there is inherent in the negro race enough of artistry to build a negro theater is Hexter's belief. Many of the players are college and high school graduates.

"The negro has a richer voice than most white people," Hexter said. "It is capable of intonations, depths and range beyond the scope of the Anglo-Saxon. Moreover, the negro has an instinctive histrionic ability and a natural tendency toward pantomine."

Gulf Coast Oysters May Yield Pearls

HOUSTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Belief that pearls indistinguishable from the natural ones might be obtained from the gulf coast oysters was expressed by R. E. Lambert, New York university faculty member, at the annual convention of the American Association of Port Authorities here.

Lambert said he was of the opinion that pearls found in the gulf coast oysters were the same kind as those oysters along the Japanese shores and would respond to the same kind of treatment.

The process is a tedious one but yields large returns, he said. It begins with an injection into each oyster. The oyster is allowed to develop and after sufficient time has elapsed the pearl is removed.

SUSPECT ARRESTED

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (UP)—Virgil Litsinger, suspect in the $139,000 Evergreen park mail train robbery here last February, was arrested. Charlie "Limpy" Cleaver, alleged leader of a bandit gang, is serving life sentence and several others short terms in connection with the holdup.

Bond Issues Face Galveston Voters

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Two bond issues, aggregating $800,000, will be placed before the electorate of Galveston county at a special election on Nov. 30.

One of the issues for $700,000 would be devoted to highway improvement, under plans announced by the county commissioners' court including the paving of highway 58, from Galveston to the Brazoria county line, there to connect with a paved highway from Houston; surfacing the Texas City-Kemah road, and surfacing of "S" road on Galveston island.

Ferry landings at Bolivar Point and on Galveston island would also be provided for from the proceeds of the $700,000 issue. The Bolivar ferry would be a link in a new road between Galveston, Port Arthur and Beaumont. Contract for ferry operation has been signed with A. L. Burge and associates of Port Arthur, to become effective with establishment of the landings. A $100,000 corporation has been organized to operate the ferry.

The second issue, for $100,000, would be devoted to remodeling and renovating the building occupied by the first court of civil appeals, and to improving the county jail.

Jefferson County May Lose Farm Club Head

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Jefferson county is facing the possibility of having to do without a county home demonstration agent because of a disagreement between clubwomen and Miss Gertrude Blodgett of A. & M. college as to the efficiency of the incumbent, Miss Martha Bridges.

Miss Bridges, who has been in the office for the past several years was asked to resign by Miss Blodgett. Clubwomen appeared before county commissioners and issued an ultimatum that Miss Bridges should remain or clubs of the county would withdraw their support.

The college stuck by its guns and Miss Bridges handed in her resignation, effective Dec. 1.

The demonstration agent's salary is paid in part by the college and in part by county commissioners.

Gift of Building to Bring Beaumont $10,000,000 For Future Charities

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—By an unusual gift to the city, Beaumont has a fund of $10,199,698.80 to be distributed to charities during a period of 99 years.

The unusual condition was brought about by a gift to the city several years ago of a downtown three-story building known as the "Temperance Hall." It was built when a fight for prohibition was at its height and at about the same period when George W. Carroll of this city was the prohibition candidate for president of the United States.

The structure was the home of the Jefferson county temperance organization and when the need for such an organization ceased the physical property was given to the city, with the understanding that all income was to be distributed to various charities. It was used as a city hall until the present new municipal building was constructed. Then it became necessary to make some disposition of the structure.

A lease has just been signed with a graduated scale estimated to bring the amount named above in the 99-year period of the lease.

The present value of the property is estimated at $130,000 and it is estimated that at the end of 99 years it will increase to $5,500,000.

MOTHER INSISTED SHE TAKE CARDUI

New Orleans Lady Describes Her Condition Which Showed Rapid Improvement After Taking Cardui

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Mrs. A. J. Borrelli, of 526 St. James street, this city, has given the following account of her use of Cardui:

"About a year and a half ago, I had a very serious illness. My nerves were 'all torn to pieces,' and I was so weak I could not walk without help.

"I did not seem to gain my strength, and I was so discouraged, I fretted all the time.

"My mother suggested that I take some Cardui, which I at last consented to do, having little faith because I had tried other things and had gotten no relief.

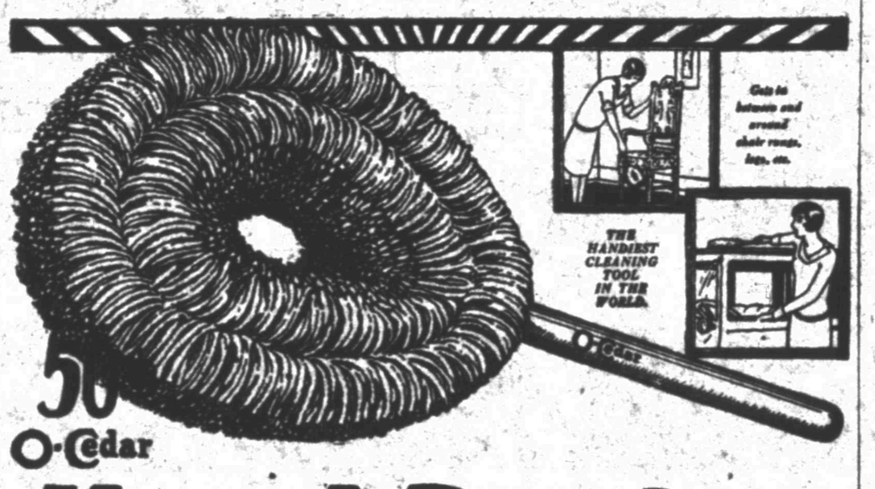

"After having taken about the second bottle I felt better. I had more strength. My mother kept insisting, and I kept on taking Cardui. By the time I had taken five bottles, you would not have known that I had been sick. I felt just fine. Nervousness was gone, and my strength had come back. I have been well and strong ever since."

Thousands of other women have been helped by Cardui after long suffering from weakness and nervousness.

It is a harmless extract of mild-acting medicinal herbs. Please try it.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

(Copyright, 1928, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Influence Heredity

Although doctors have claimed for some time that diseases are not hereditary, we must not assume that there is no influence from heredity. In Nature, like produces like. Fig trees cannot be propagated from grapevines. To humans are born human offsprings. General characteristics both physical and mental are transmitted to children, and there is no doubt that the latter may inherit special traits of strength and weakness that either or both parents possess.

This tendency to pass on characteristics sometimes undergoes peculiar forms and changes.

It is just as important for a person contemplating marriage to choose for a partner one who has a good sound mind and body and a history of qualified ancestors, as for a farmer to select good seed for his next year's planting. He would be foolish if he selected seeds haphazardly from runt plants as well as good, saying that it made no difference. A good farmer always selects seeds from the strongest stock, showing that there is an inheritance of heredity throughout all living things. Only the finest and strongest parents produce the best children. There is an old saying that a great man must have had a great mother.

It is interesting that most of those who achieve the great success in life come from the ranks of ordinary people who have lived for generations on a simple diet and hard work. There is a natural tendency to transmit the best characteristics to the offspring so that the general tendency of a race is toward a higher type.

We sometimes notice the peculiar fact that a man who lives abstemiously becomes old, permatively, and that a man who drinks and smokes heavily and uses little or no care in the selection of his food, lives to a ripe old age. Although this is the exception rather than the rule, it is frequently brought up as an argument to show that it makes very little difference how we live. It will be found, however, that heredity plays an important part in these cases. In every case where a man is careful with his diet and yet lives but a short time it will be found that his parents or grandparents extending back for several generations were very short lived and, in the case of a person who is careless with his living habits and yet lives for a long time, his parents or grandparents were remarkably long lived—probably longer lived than he will become.

Parents owe it to themselves to be as healthy as possible, but they have, perhaps, a greater debt to their children if they undertake the responsibility of parenthood. Children brought into the world without their consent are entitled to the gift from their parents of strong bodies and minds, unhampered with the taint of disease or weakness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Large Pores

Question: W. S. asks: "What is the cause of large pores in the skin on the nose and cheeks? What ointment or lotion would you advise using or would you let Nature take its course and depend upon them disappearing in time?"

Answer: The large pores in your skin can be partially closed if you will use an application of ice to your skin each day. Move the ice about for several minutes over the entire face, and bathe your face frequently in cold water. Besides doing this you should wash your face several times daily with soap and water to keep the pores as clean as possible.

Growing Taller

Question: H. J. asks: "Is there anything a young person can do to grow taller?"

Answer: Anyone under the age of 30 can increase his height to some extent through a combination of dieting, exercising and taking certain treatments. The diet must contain plenty of bone-building materials, which is found in the leafy green vegetables and in whole grains. Exercise should be designed to twist and stretch the spine. The treatment should be with manipulative therapeutics, such as given by the osteopath, naturopath or chiropractor. You are about a half inch taller in the the morning than in the evening. This is due to the settling of the bones of the body, principally in the spine. Treatments given the spine to loosen up and separate the spinal segments will help the circulation of blood to these parts, and tends to stimulate the growth of bones.

Historic Old Building Burns

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—The last dream of an old-time resident of Beaumont went up in smoke last week, when the "Threadneedle" building, erected by Mark Wiess in 1900, was burned.

Wiess had made a tour of Europe in that year and came back to find Beaumont in the midst of the famous Spindle Top oil boom. He set out to reproduce the Threadneedle place of London, in the heart of what he believed was to be the metropolis of the gulf coast. The building, erected as a temporary structure, was put up with the provision that it was to come down in three years, when he intended to erect a permanent structure. A clock, the largest in this section of Texas, was purchased and erected in a post. Wiess planned to build a large bronze monument of a woman threading a needle.

After Wiess' death heirs sold the clock to a local jewelry store and it was removed across the street where it is still in use.

One of the institutions of the old Threadneedle building was Ducky Swan's coffee shop, known throughout the south for its southern coffee.

West Texans Seek to Eradicate Blow Fly

OZONA, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—Three counties in West Texas have passed resolutions unanimously asking that a systematic eradication of the blow fly in the area be instituted over a wide region, the limits to be determined later.

These counties which have communicated with offices of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' association here are Jeff Davis, McKinney and Edwards, with McKinney county the first to take such action.

The Sheep and Goat Raisers' association recently sent out letters to counties in the west asking their attitude on the question.

SOUTHWESTERN TEAMS DRILL FOR THANKSGIVING DAY GAMES

COACHES WORK ELEVENS HARD

Conference Title Hangs In Balance in Last Tilts

DALLAS, Nov. 23. (AP)—Except at Fayetteville, Ark., Southwest conference football stadiums which a week ago reverberated with cheering thousands, will be barren and deserted tomorrow as teams go through their paces before only the unadmiring eyes of coaching staffs.

Arkansas university meets Oklahoma Baptist in an "outside" game, but elsewhere followers of the gridiron game must turn to other sources of amusement for off-days are the program at all Texas colleges which compose the organization.

Fandom may have a holiday, but training programs outlined by mentors suggested that not by the greatest stretch of imagination could the afternoon be called a gala occasion for six squads. Earlier in the week Rice, Texas A. & M., Texas university, Baylor, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian university athletes were given brief rest periods in order to allow those who had borne the brunt throughout the season an opportunity to rest.

Hard Work on Now

That period is now over, and ceaseless training on new plays, the perfection of old ones and specially planned defensive tactics is the program that faces teams until training is tapered off with light workouts on the eve of Thanksgiving day.

The principal object of coaches will be that of nursing injured players. Hume of S. M. U., still has an injured ankle, received three weeks ago and it is undetermined whether he will be able to be in the lineup when the Ponies finish their schedule against Texas Christian. John Roach, stellar tackle who has not played since the Army game, is expected to be ready.

Captain Williams and others of the Frogs have been nursing minor injuries but have recuperated.

Aggie Ace Out

At A. & M. Coach D. X. Bible is confronted with the task of grooming a successor for Zarafonetis, his best defensive back and kicker extraordinary. Zarafonetis was stricken with influenza on the eve of the Rice game and may not be able to participate in the Texas contest on which hinges the final outcome of the conference race. Conover is due to take over the punting assignment and Dorsey will fill in at the halfback berth.

Wray and Shelley, both aces, have been the object of attention at Texas. Neither played against Baylor nor T. C. U. due to hurts. With the conference bunting in their grasp, the Texas team has staked everything on having them in shape for the fray.

The Baylor squad is in good condition but Rice, yet unable to annex a victory against member teams, has been weakened by injuries to Allnoch and Ables, its best offensive bets.

VERNON TRIMS QUANAH, 25-6

Lions Tie Lubbock For Runnerup in District

VERNON, Texas, Nov. 23.—The Vernon Lions defeated the Quanah Indians, 25 to 6 in an uninteresting game here this afternoon, going into a tie with Lubbock for second place in the district. Neither team displayed anything interesting and Quanah never seriously threatened the Vernon goal line until late in the fourth quarter after Coach Weir sent in an entirely new team of third-string players.

The Lions were outplayed in the first half of the game, when they recorded only two first downs to the visitors' six. Recovery of a Quanah fumble gave Vernon the ball within the 20-yard line and straight football carried the oval over for the only counter of the first half. Vernon displayed more strength and considerably more strategy in the second half and the game ended with the first downs 13 to 8 in Vernon's favor.

Quanah resorted to the air 13 times and completed five for 41 yards, accounting for most of their first downs. Vernon took to the air nine times, completing four. Passes were responsible for two of the Vernon touchdowns and Cox intercepted a Quanah heave for the fourth Lion counter. Lineup:

Crowell Takes Thrilling Game

Scores 13 Points in Last Minutes to Win, 19-13

In those last minutes of the game, Captain Swain intercepted a forward pass and ran 65 yards for a touchdown. He then caught a pass to score the point and make it 13-all. A few seconds later Ashford snatched a Munday pass and dashed 50 yards for the winning touchdown.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THE FOOTBALL SEASON is rapidly waning, next week being Thanksgiving, as the thousands of readers of this column have been advised before. Grid schedules for today indicate that the end of the campaign is near; it is marked by the number of meetings of traditional foes, and also by the absence of several teams which are preparing for their final games Turkey day.

◆ ◆ ◆

Texas members of the Southwestern conference will spend today preparing for last games next Thursday. Arkansas engages Oklahoma Baptists at Fayetteville. The Porkers should win after a hard game by a couple of touchdowns.

◆ ◆ ◆

OKLAHOMA and Oklahoma Aggies engage in their annual game at Stillwater, the classic of Sooner state football. An erratic Sooner team is expected to win, the Aggies being far below their usual standard this season. Missouri and Kansas resume ancient rivalry in the outstanding game of the Missouri valley area. There isn't much to choose. Missouri has the edge, if any. Also a hesitant vote for Drake against Iowa State.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP of the Western conference will be at stake when Wisconsin and Minnesota renew an old grudge. The Badgers are the only unbeaten leaders of the Big Ten. Illinois and Ohio State, whose rivalry is of comparatively recent years, but none the less intense, will fight it out evenly. Indiana and Purdue meet for the championship of the Hoosier state. A toss-up with whatever margin there is to Indiana. Iowa looms favorite over Michigan. Northwestern and Dartmouth engage in a noteworthy intersectional game at Chicago. Both teams have been erratic this season, in which they showed flashes of power and disappointing weakness. The absence of comparative scores also makes this game impossible to forecast.

Except for the Big Ten combats, eastern gridirons will be the scene of feature games today. Two clashes, one of which involves the eastern championship and both of which have bearing on the national title, stand out not only in the effete section, but as the most colorful of the day. They are the meetings of Army and Nebraska and Carnegie Tech and New York university. Despite the upset by Notre Dame, the Cadets may come back today to beat the Huskers, who are unbeaten, although tied.

◆ ◆ ◆

CARNEGIE TECH, unbeaten and untied, and ranking team in the East and as contender for national honors, meets the mighty New York university team at Pittsburgh. New York's sole defeat this season was by Georgetown, on a field under water and hardly a test of the Violet. New York has a powerful offense built around Ken Strong, the leading individual scorer of the nation, and a defense that no team this season has attacked with any success. But I string along with the Skibos today, in view of their impressive record this season culminated by their decisive defeat of Notre Dame last week.

◆ ◆ ◆

YALE AND HARVARD. Until a few years ago this would have been the game of the day. But the "Big Three" has disintegrated, and the grid supremacy of its former members has waned. Still, a meeting of Yale and Harvard on the gridiron is an outstanding event of the day, in view of the rivalry of the institutions extending more than half a century. The game today between two mediocre elevens looks like a toss-up. A vote for Harvard, based on Yale's slump in recent weeks. And the Blue probably will arise and smite the Crimson, to show that dope means little, or nothing in football, particularly when Yale meets Harvard.

◆ ◆ ◆

Princeton's unbeaten team and conqueror last week of Yale, meets Navy in another eastern feature. The Tigers figure to win, but it will be a gruelling game. Boston college, another undefeated and untied club, should dispose of Connecticut Aggies and Brown will have little difficulty with Rhode Island. Georgetown, beaten only by Carnegie this season, should rout an indifferent Fordham club. Holy Cross will best Providence. Lafayette will run a crusher over the weakest Lehigh team of years, and Rutgers should trim Swarthmore.

◆ ◆ ◆

OUT IN THE FAR WEST Calif-ornia and Stanford meet in the "big game" of that section. California and Southern California are leaders of the Pacific coast conference, each being unbeaten and with their own scoreless tie as the only blots on their records. Stanford lost to Southern California, 10 to 0, indicating the edge today for California, which has regained lost grid prestige.

East Football Play Ends Today

Most Elevens to Conclude Schedules Today

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (UP)—The 1928 football season nears its end Saturday. After this week's games and the traditional Thanksgiving day contests, all eastern teams save Army and Boston college will call it a season.

Many eastern elevens play their final games Saturday. Among them are Yale, Harvard, Carnegie Tech, Navy, Princeton, Dartmouth, Lafayette, Lehigh, Fordham and others.

The big eastern games tomorrow find Carnegie Tech and New York university battling for national prestige at Forbes field, Pittsburgh; Yale and Harvard clashing in their traditional game at Yale bowl, New Haven; Princeton and the navy resuming relations at Franklin field, Philadelphia, and Nebraska charging the Army at West Point.

Other eastern teams will be idle this week awaiting their final games Thanksgiving. The outstanding games for next Thursday are the Cornell-Pennsylvania clash at Philadelphia, the Columbia-Syracuse game at New York, the Pittsburgh-Penn State encounter at Pittsburgh and the New York U.-Oregon State intersectional duel at New York.

After Thanksgiving only two games remain on the eastern schedule—the Stanford-Army game at New York and the Boston college-Holy Cross game at Boston, both scheduled Saturday, Dec. 1.

The final ranking of the eastern teams will depend largely upon the outcome of Saturday's four big games, but the seven best teams divided into two groups appear to be:

FIRST GROUP

1—Carnegie Tech.
2—New York U.
3—Army.
4—Princeton.

SECOND GROUP

1—Boston college.
2—Georgetown.
3—Pennsylvania.

This ranking leaves out many good teams which have demonstrated real strength, but only in flashes. Among this group are the Navy, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth, Yale and Harvard.

Capacity crowds will pack at least four stadiums in the East to get a final glimpse at their favorites. Probable attendance at the four big games Saturday follow:

Harvard-Yale—80,000.
Princeton-Navy—70,000.
Carnegie-N. Y. U.—45,000.
Nebraska-Army—35,000.

INDIANS PLAY AT PLAINVIEW

Tribe Meets Wayland Baptists Today

Scalps haven't been gathered with any great profusion by the Wichita Falls Junior college Indians this season. But the Tribe has hopes of bringing back victory from Plainview, where they meet the Wayland college Baptists today.

Coach Baggett and his gridders left yesterday morning on a bus for Plainview, after a final drill Thursday afternoon. They arrived in Plainview late yesterday and had no opportunity for a workout.

Injuries and ineligibilities cut their usual swath this week in the Indian squad. Walter Pinney and Henry Barton, centers and Bill McMillan, end and halfback, will not be able to play on account of injuries, and Bill Habern, guard and Olin Dickey did not make the trek on account of ineligibility.

The probable starting lineup today will include Penn and Castleberry, halfbacks; Mitchell, fullback; Harvey, quarterback; James and Stephens, ends; Captain Edmondson and Hutto, tackles; Pruett and Ramey, guards; and J. T. Barton, center.

"Spooks," Say Blacks; "Cats" Say Cops

Shotgun and Electric Buzzer to Decide

"Spooks" is what three dark black boys say.

"Cats" is what three white coppers say.

But the white man in whose back yard the negroes live has allowed them to put an electric buzzer in his home so that the next time the spooks come he can, lean out of his window and shoot the spooks with his shotgun.

It started 10 days ago when night noises of all kinds made those in the servant house white with fear. Wednesday night the police were called. Officers Davis and McKelvie decided, after inspecting the servant house in the rear of 1705 Austin, that the trouble was with the negroes and not spooks.

Thursday night the police were called again, so three instead of two officers were sent to the place. Officers Belcher, Rohatsch and Lowery drove over to Austin street and found some cats at play but the negroes still claim spooks.

Friday night brought a lull, and everyone in the neighborhood is now set for the big week-end celebration of the spooks, or cats, which they say is sure to come.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—The cotton market showed continued activity again today and at times considerable strength, but further advances encountered a good deal of realizing and were not fully maintained. After selling up to 20.45 early on a continuance of yesterday's buying movement, January eased off to 20.20 and after recovering nearly all of this loss, eased again, closing at 20.32. The general market closed barely steady at net advances of 4 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 8 to 16 points with the active months soon showing gains of about 12 to 20 points on a renewal of trade and speculative buying, which was probably encouraged by steady Liverpool cables and reiterated reports of improved trade in Manchester. December contracts sold up to 20.50, and March to 20.40, but the demand was supplied by realizing and Southern selling at these figures, and prices eased during the middle of the day.

There appeared to be some doubt as to whether advances in the Southern spot market were keeping pace with the upward movement in futures which probably promoted a tendency to take profits on long cotton. At any rate, the market eased during the middle of the day, with December selling off to 20.24 and March to 20.21 or about 15 to 25 points from the high prices of the morning, and 4 to 6 points below yesterday's closing quotations.

This reaction seemed sufficient to bring in a renewal of Western and Wall street buying, particularly in the later months, and the highest prices of the day for March and later deliveries were reached on the afternoon advance. March sold up to 20.27 or 22 points net higher, while December did not fully recover and the market eased again in the later trading when there was renewed realizing and a little more Southern selling. Closing prices showed reactions of about 13 to 26 points from the best with near months relatively easy.

Trade buying to fix prices on call cotton was reported during the early trading and again in the early afternoon but seemed to be less in evidence during the middle of the day and again toward the close. Private cables reported trade calling and continental buying in Liverpool and said that Manchester was more optimistic with an increased cloth demand from India and an improving demand for yarn. Exports today 36,393, making 3,-315,702 so far this season. Port receipts 89,714. U. S. port stocks 2,222,093.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23. (AP)—Liquidation and profit-taking followed an opening advance in the cotton market today but the resultant decline was checked near midsession by trade buying on reports of an active demand in New York. January contracts rallied from 19.58 to 19.80 and closed at 19.70, or 7 points higher for the day. The general market closed steady at net gains of 7 to 10 points.

Liverpool cables were higher than due at the start here and this coupled with execution of some overnight buying orders caused an opening advance of 13 to 15 points. Prices gained a point or two additional in initial trading but the advance was soon checked by realizing by early buyers and some liquidation in the December position. The break carried December contracts to 19.53, January 19.58 and March 19.67, or 15 to 20 points off from the highs and 2 to 6 points under the previous close.

Weekly statistics proved to be disappointing and may have added to the weakness. In the early afternoon, however, advices from New York reporting an active demand there brought out a renewal of buying by the trade which carried prices up to new highs for the day and slightly more than $1 a bale up from the lows. December advanced to 19.74 and March 19.90, or 21 to 23 points up from the low and 17 to 19 points over yesterday's close.

In final trading another flurry of realizing was absorbed on setbacks of 9 to 12 points and December closed at 19.62 and March 19.81, or 7 to 8 points net higher.

General Motors Leads Entire Stock List Higher in Record Trading

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (US)—General Motors was the outstanding feature in the record session of the stock exchange today.

Trading broke all records and totalled 6,942,500 shares with the tape 50 minutes behind at times despite the elimination of reports of volume.

Motors led the entire list higher early in the day but the buying lost its vigor when the exchanges governors announced they would close tomorrow. At the same time, rumor was in circulation of an important announcement from the reserve bank. The reserve announcement turned out to be the appointment of successor to the late Governor Strong and those who had sold in fear of a "money warning" jumped back for the securities.

Motors finished 5¾ points higher, Nickel gained 12, but other recently favored industrials closed lower with Steel off 1, Montgomery Ward off 5½, Wright off 15 and Smelting down 5 points. Railroads were in better demand, led by Canadian Pacific with a gain of 5½ points. Sinclair held strong but other oils were irregular. Money remained in fair supply at 6½ per cent.

Lesser Funds Used

Increase of $176,000,000 in brokers' loans was larger than expected but was offset by a further decline of $58,000,000 in borrowings from the reserve by member banks. This puts member bank borrowing about $400,000,000 below the high point of last July. It was considered as bullish but had a bearish significance in that it showed that the tighter money resulting from unprecedented activity in the stock market has resulted in lesser funds being used in commercial quarters.

The small merchant and manufacturer does not like to borrow at a time when seasonal expansion usually calls for larger borrowings.

The heavy selling that followed the rumor that the reserve would "have an important statement at 1 o'clock" was indication of what will happen when the money powers really decide to curb trading. When the statement naming the successor to Governor Strong was issued, the market recovered but the nervous character of the market had been fully demonstrated.

Pittsburgh Coal was influenced by buying orders from both Pittsburgh and Detroit. Buying was based mostly on developments expected after the turn of the year.

While earnings now are running ahead of those of a year ago, it was stated, the main accumulation of the stock was for account of those who have reason to expect closing of important developments after Jan. 1.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron remained prominent, due to seasonal increase in earnings and the revival of the old rumor of a special distribution being planned. Union Carbide and Westinghouse were the favorites of active individuals in the "big ten." Air Brake was mentioned as likely to go in holding company planned to take over Westinghouse and Baldwin.

Favorable Contract

Simmons buying recently, it was learned, resulted from knowledge that a favorable contract had been made with the Pullman company. Skelly took a more prominent place in the oils coincident with the report that earnings for October were the largest for any month in the last three years.

Texas Gulf continued to reflect activity of those who were replacing the position given up a year ago.

Continental Baking was the subject of special analysis estimating that earnings should run over $4 a share next year.

Recapitalization talk was responsible for further demand for Chicago Pneumatic Tool, it being claimed that directors would recommend such action at their next meeting.

Returning from the home of General Motors, certain leaders in the street talk more optimistically regarding the outlook of the corporation than they ever did before. They seem particularly impressed with the new Chevrolet and are of the opinion that it will mean a further increase in earnings of the corporation during the early months of next year.

Thought of the effect of the new General Motors' output has been responsible for some selling of other motors but Nash was again well bought. The operation in Nash, it is learned, is sponsored by some of the strongest interests in the street who believe the stock is far behind other motor shares. The current period is expected to be the best fourth quarter in the history of the company.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 23. (AP)—No material price changes were registered around the 11-market circuit today with values weak to lower. The severe slump on killing classes of cattle this week should result in a curtailment on the supply the forthcoming week which would tend to clear up conditions at Eastern dressed beef markets; trade interests expect a lighter supply of stockers and feeder steers as the movement of Colorado offerings is almost completed; aggregate receipts were estimated at 14,900 as compared with 13,546 a week ago and 33,723 the same day last year.

Hog prices dropped to new low levels for the season and are the lowest since the fore part of this week; declines of 10 @40c were general at most points around the loop; the day's top of $8.60 was paid at Chicago while at Kansas City and St. Louis the best mark was $8.50; total offerings were around 74,400, an increase of 6,000 over last Friday and 3,000 less than a year ago.

In the sheep division killing classes were fully steady at most centers with Chicago showing an advance of 25c on fat lambs; strictly choice native lambs at Chicago scored $13.50; the supply totalled around 24,500 against 30,249 a week ago and 34,-526 a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (AP)—Wheat turned downward in price toward the last today owing a good deal to enlarged estimates of 1928 wheat yield both in Argentina and Australia. Reports of increasing receipts of domestic wheat Southwest were also the subject of considerable notice.

Closing quotations on wheat were easy, ¼@⅝c net lower, corn ⅝@1¼@1¼@1⅝c off, oats unchanged to ⅛@¼c up, and provisions unchanged to 35c down.

Word of favorable weather for wheat harvest operations going on in Northern Argentina tended to emphasize the bearish effect of news that a leading British authority estimated Argentina's probable surplus wheat production at 220,500,000 bushels, compared with 185,000,000 bushels cleared so far this season.

Cotton Advance Halted; Milk Deliveries Slow

Following a slight advance daily for some days, cotton prices halted at least for the day Friday, with local buyers offering 18.50 on middling basis.

Milk deliveries are only fair, due chiefly to the season. Movement of turkeys has subsided until after Thanksgiving. A mixed carload of chickens and turkeys for New York left the Wichita Poultry & Egg company plant Friday night.

DUN'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—Dun's Review tomorrow will say:

Interest in commercial conditions is largely centering now on developments in the retail field, where seasonal forces are exerting an increasingly potent effect. Apart from fluctuations in demand caused by variable weather, it is significant that holiday trade is opening earlier than usual, and that indications point to an exceptionally heavy turnover. Convincing proof has been frequently given that the general buying power, despite depressing influences in some localities, is sustained at a high level, and dealers are making active preparations to meet the further extensive purchases by consumers that are foreshadowed. Attractive prices in many instances furnish an additional stimulus, and returns of railroad freight traffic continue to reflect a distribution of merchandise exceeding that of a year ago. Most other statistical measurements reveal similar results, and the recession in some manufacturing operations that normally comes at this period is less marked, on the whole, than ordinarily is the case. There is, in fact, a trend toward rising production in certain lines, as in different divisions of textiles and the great steel industry, although disclosing the expected letdown, maintains noteworthy buoyancy.

Weekly bank clearings $13,440,855,000, an increase of 32.1 per cent over the corresponding week a year ago, in which there were only five business days.

Pure Begins Gaines County Oil Operation

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 23.—A new oil test in Gaines county has just been begun by the Pure Oil company. The company has the biggest oil lease held by any company in the South Plains. It has a total of 116,000 acres leased around the test, which members of the oil fraternity take as evidence that the company plans to make several tests.

A deep test of more than 4000 feet will be put down. The location is on section 110, block 10, on the home section of A. A. Williams. It is 15 miles southeast of Seagraves.

NEW PRODUCER IN JENNINGS

Tests Find Salt Water In Overall Pool

COLEMAN, Texas, Nov. 23.—The completion of a new producer in the Jennings pool, southeast of Santa Anna, and the striking of salt water in tests in the Overall district, seven miles south of Coleman, were developments of most interest during the past week in the Coleman county high gravity fields.

Promising to be one of the best producers in the Jennings field, Cunningham and associates' No. 5-C Jennings, A. S. Lipscomb survey No. 94, swabbed 90 barrels of oil during the first 12 hours after striking pay Wednesday at a depth of 1137-52 feet. The hole was drilled to 1152 feet and shot with 10 quarts of nitro, which operators think will increase the production of the well. The hole was being cleaned out and swabbed Thursday and a test was not made of the production.

The new producer is an offset to the Cunningham, Simpson, White and Pinkerton No. 4-C Jennings, completed recently a 100-barrel producer.

New Work Expected

Further activities in the Jennings area are expected with the completion of the Ross Drilling company's No. 1 Hays, Bonds and Sanders survey No. 92, mile south of the Cunningham production. The well was estimated to be making between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 cubic feet of gas. Pay was encountered at 1078 feet. The well is located between the Texas company's wells on the Hays and the Dunnigan field on the Rice estate.

A showing of oil was struck in the Turman, Shields, Maddox No. 2 Kingsberry, southwest 330 acres, Wharton school survey No. 496, four miles west of the Ross well, at 1279 feet. The pay was drilled through to explore lower horizons. The well is contracted to go to 1650 feet. Kingsberry No. 1, half-mile east of the No. 2 location, was completed a gasser at 1050 feet.

The northwestern limit of the Overall pool was probably defined with the completion of three dry holes northwest of the Continental, Atlantic, Mid-Sun, Anzac and Cheney No. 1 Overall, J. H. Barclay survey No. 700, this week at depths varying from 2167 to 2182 feet. An unexpected dip developed in formation of the three tests and salt water was found in the Fry sand from which the discovery well is producing approximately 625 barrels of 43.5 gravity oil daily.

Tests Strike Sand

Independent Oil and Gas company's No. 1 Overall, 800 feet northwest of the producer, struck the sand at 2167 feet. Continental, Humble, Mid-West, Anzac and Cheney No. 9 Overall, struck the sand at 2170 feet and shut down at 2174 feet. Texas Producing company's test, J. H. Barclay survey No. 701, approximately 1200 feet northwest of the discovery well, found the sand at 2180-82. It has been indicated here that one of the three tests will be drilled deeper. Pay was struck in the Continental et al No. 1 Overall at 2110 feet.

Another of the Overall tests, Continental, Atlantic, Mid-Sun, Anzac and Cheney No. 2 Overall, 450 feet northwest of the discovery well, is expected to make a good producer. Pay was topped at 2128 feet Thursday and was shut down to underream to the sand. The hole was making oil faster than it could be bailed out when the pay was penetrated one foot.

Continental, Anzac and Cheney No. 2 Hinds, 2000 feet southeast of the producer, is regarded as one of the important tests in the Overall sector. Drilling at 1350 feet, the well was running structurally with the Overall producer.

Three offsets from the producer are yet to be tested. Both the Independent and Continental and associates are planning extensive drilling programs. A location 450 feet east of their No. 1 location has been made by Continental, Atlantic, Mid-Sun, Anzac and Cheney for their No. 3 Overall. The Independent is moving in a rig for their No. 2, approximately 900 feet east of their No. 1, which was a dry hole.

Jameson and Pollard No. 1 Hinds, one and one-half miles southeast of the Overall pool, has been underreamed at 2150 feet, where they struck a pay that is bailing live oil.

Continental-Anzac No. 2 Sealy-Smith, section 13, G. H. & H. railway survey, after being placed on the pump at 1614 feet, is making 15 barrels daily. E. W. Price No. 1 Stickney Lefevre, northeast corner section 70, a half-mile south of the new producer, on the Sealy-Smith tract, is being plugged a dry hole at 2395 feet.

Moody Field Activity

Two important tests in the Moody field, mile west of Santa Anna, are now drilling. Sherwood Owens' well on the Banister tract, J. Scott survey No. 665, has spudded in. Humphrey Bros. and Union Oil company's No. 3 Matthews, C. Raguet survey, was drilling Thursday at 900 feet. Pay is expected at about 1850 feet. Jonny Cox has also spudded in a test in the Moody field, the well being located on the Westbrook tract.

Levi Smith and others are drilling their No. 3 in the Breneke field, passing 1100 feet early in the week. The Breneke pay is expected at 1850 feet. The new test is located southeast of the original Breneke producer in the S. Sprague survey No. 664.

After drilling to a total depth of 1224 feet to the Gardner sand, Howard Samuell et al No. 1 J. A. Robertson, E. Votau survey, four miles south of the Jennings pool, has been plugged back to the Breneke pay, found at 1054-68 feet. It was shot with 10 quarts of nitro, and Thursday was being cleaned out after the shot. Oil rose about 300 feet in the well after the shot. The Fry sand was encountered at 1105 feet but no oil was found. A showing of oil and about six bailers of water per hour was found in the Gardner pay at 1224 feet.

The Howard Samuell et al No. 1 J. B. Pitts, J. Johnson survey, west of Coleman, is being plugged, a dry hole at 3503 feet, after striking the Ellenburger at 3475-3503 feet. A show of gas was struck in the hole at 3110-90 feet.

Henshaw's test on the Anson lands, mile southeast of Valera, has been shut down at 2584 feet, with no show, waiting for orders. Independent Oil and Gas company's No. 1 O. B. Featherstone, 15 miles north of Coleman, has been shut down at 4300 feet for a fishing job.

Haskell County Tracts Leased

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 23.—Purchases of oil leases on acreage in southeast Haskell county by the Texas company and the Union Exploration company, for reported considerations of $150 per acre are evidenced by documents filed the past week in the office of the county clerk of Haskell county.

According to advices received here the Texas company purchase is 139.2 acres out of the southwest quarter of the J. Mathis survey No. 104. This property sets in about a quarter of a mile northeast of Superior Oil company's 60-barrel producer, No. 1 Reynolds, in the north part of the J. Fenner survey No. A-582, which was completed several weeks ago in a sand at 1730 feet. The acreage acquired by the Texas company is a part of the Reynolds Cattle company's holdings.

Union Exploration company's deal in that section involves 273 acres in the S. T. Blakeley survey No. 1, which sets in about 1000 feet northwest of the Superior producer. This lease was taken by Union from T. C. Mather, who originally acquired it from the Reynolds interests. The contract on this deal calls for the drilling of a test to below 1700 feet immediately.

Trouble Encountered In Jones County Test

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 23.—Disappointment followed the drilling of Sinclair Oil & Gas company's No. 2 Bickley in the Shaheen area of southwest Jones county into the Noodle Creek lime.

This well topped the pay horizon at 2468½ feet Monday and had oil bearing formation to 2460½. During Monday 36 barrels of oil was swabbed out of the hole and the rest of the day was devoted to cleaning out. The oil did not show up well Tuesday and the well was drilled deeper, going into a redbed at 2475 feet.

Tuesday the well was plugged back to 2430 feet and shot with 25 quarts of nitroglycerin. The shot bridged the hole and it will have to be cleaned out before its results are learned.

Big Bend Mountains Swarm With Hunters

ALPINE, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—The Big Bend mountains of Texas, the state's last wilderness, have been swarming with hunters since open season on deer began.

The mountain regions of southern Brewster county and territory of old Mexico is the last rendezvous of unmolested wild game, but the influx of huntsmen has been so great this year that the sportsman's paradise apparently cannot last much longer.

GAS COMPANY HEAD DROWNS

Two Companions Die With R. H. Timmons

PARSONS, Kan., Nov. 23. (AP)—Colonel R. H. Timmons, Wichita, assistant to the vice-president of the Kansas Gas and Electric company, and two companions were drowned today in the Lake of Service, nine miles east of here, when their heavily laden boat capsized.

The other dead are Oren Ward, fireman helper in the power company's plant at Service, and R. G. Menefee, Towanda, Kas., veterinary surgeon.

C. L. Karr, Wichita, superintendent of power of the Kansas Gas and Electric company, who also was in the boat, swam to shore.

The four men were on a fishing trip. Karr said the boat was so heavily loaded that its gunwales were but little above the water.

About 200 feet from shore, Karr said, the boat began to sink and the four men jumped overboard. Karr, leaving his companions clinging to the overturned boat, swam to shore.

Later the wind drifted the boat ashore and it was used to recover the bodies of Timmons and Ward. Menefee's body had not been recovered.

The children will choose real presents if you let them look over the Shop-O-Scope first. Beginning Dec. 1 in the Classified Section.—Adv.

200 APPEAR IN ZUNDY CONCERT

Pleasing Show Presented By Music Pupils

(By The Record News Critic)

Piloted by six young red-clad aviators and conducted by a fanciful guide in the person of Nann Campbell, reader, several hundred persons sailed happily over Europe Friday night in imaginary airships their senses attuned to the music of many nations as it was given out from colorful settings by more than 200 pupils of Zundelowitz Junior high school, under the direction of Hermione S. Vaughan.

Colorful Scenes

Training such a number of young musicians for the presentation of a widely varied program less than three months after the opening of the school year constitutes an ambitious undertaking. A precedent of successful annual concerts has been set in preceding years at Zundelowitz Junior high, however, and the music department members of 1928-29 under Mrs. Vaughan's directions carried on the standard Friday night, judging by the hearty response of the large audience.

Of the English numbers which opened the program, the "Hunting Song" (Gurlitt), sung by the boys' glee club was perhaps the most popular, their bright scarlet hunting jackets lending a pleasing atmosphere for a well rendered number.

Two numbers by an orchestra of 22 pieces were applauded generously as was the following, "O Sole Mio," in which Fay Humphries, Irma Cline and Nell Grounds combined three pleasing voices.

As the fancied flight brought the hearers back toward New York, a chorus of 80 voices joined in singing "Land of Mine" to close the program. The solos in this last number, sung by Eugene Peacock, were especially well received.

Program

Juanita Ferguson, Mary Frances Walker, Jo Catherine Gee, Lucile Snyder, Mary Marie Dollard and Myrl McBee were accompanists. The program follows:

Captain Jenks: An old tune—Low seventh grade chorus.

"Low, Now the Dawn Is Breaking" (Salut d'Amour), Elgar—Low seventh grade chorus.

"Ah! No! John," English folk song—Jane Clayton, Euleen Wynn, Edna Frances Bevers, Kariten Brink, J. Paul Lynn and Jack Peterson.

"Hunting Song"—Boys' Glee club of unchanged voices.

"Russian Dance"—Margaret Spangle.

"Knights and Ladies" (minuet) Paderewski—Seventh grade girls glee club.

Intermission.

"March Militaire" Schubert—by orchestra.

"All for Love" Mackie-Byer—orchestra.

"O Soie Mio," di Capua—Fay Humphries, Irma Cline, Winnie Beth Beatty.

"The Shepherd's Dream," C. Taylor—Harry Strief, Orval Malone, Phillip Hays.

"Drowsily Come the Sheep," Proctor—Girls glee club.

"Wyoming Lullaby"—Eugene Peacock, Jerome Jenks, Johnnie Cameron, Wayne Henson, J. Paul Lynn, Truett Oakes.

"Kentucky Babe," Giebel—Boys glee club of changed voices.

"The Dream Boat Passes By" (Andantino in D flat) Lemare—boys glee club of changed voices.

Solo, "Land of Mine"—Eugene Peacock.

Chorus—boys glee club, girls glee clubs.

◆ ◆ ◆

The drinking scene in "Rio Rita" was so realistic that Lewey Robinson, the reviewer for the Birmingham, Ala., Post said his throat became dry and that he wanted to go back to the theater to see every performance.

◆ ◆ ◆

That was the essence of the head on a critic's review of the gigantic Shubert musical show which will ze here at the Majestic theater the night of Dec. 3.

◆ ◆ ◆

H. C. Federer, city manager for Dent theaters, received copies of the reviews in Birmingham as of Nov. 15, and promptly handed them over for persual. They started with light enthusiasm such as just referred to and then got into superlatives of all kinds in the otner papers. Not a single knock of any kind was registered in any of the reviews, and Marzoni's review in the Birmingham News was the most enthusiastic.

◆ ◆ ◆

This is all by way of giving a little advance dope on "Rio Rita" so Wichitans won't have to depend on press publicity or stunts, but will know exactly what the public thinks of the company and show. A reviewer can get mean if a show is flat, and he can get enthusiastic if a show is good, but when the critics of a city the size of Birmingham all are infected with California like boosting, the show must be good.

There isn't enough room to print these reviews, or this column would, for it is the belief of the Today column that there is nothing that helps folks to happiness and forgetfulness of trouble as well as a good show. However, here is a little of the review from the Birmingham News:

If you wait long enough for anything it is bound to happen eventually, so after a long, long wait Birmingham has the chance to see and hear "Rio Rita," queen of musical comedies, which opened Wednesday evening at the Erlanger. But none can say that anything so colorful in setting, so carefully chosen as to cast and with such excellent dancing as "Rio Rita" just happened.

It's a fine production that brings to Birmingham the musical comedy success of the decade, a play with a plot, with music that is familiar through radio and phonograph but still refreshing and with stage groupings and ballet settings that mark the new in the girl and music show.

"Rio Rita" is one of those rare things that managed to live up to a world of advance acclaim. Everybody has been hearing about it through the press and by word of mouth from those who visited New York, until it didn't seem possible that it could be as tuneful, colorful and quite as entertaining as everyone declared.

Macmillen Called Finest Artist To Appear in Musical Concert Here

By FRIEDA van EMDEN

To describe the joy Francis Macmillen gave his listeners at the Woman's Forum last night would be unkind on my part, for it might cause a feeling of deep regret, a feeling of grief for a lost opportunity in life, to those of our citizens who did not attend. Thanks to the forum for bringing the finest artist we ever had here, and do not forget that we have had Talley and McCormick. But Macmillen is the best artist any organization has ever given us. And it was a lucky thought, though not originally the intention of the givers of the concert, to have him play at the forum, for in the intimacy of the surroundings not even the finest modulations were lost.

Concert For Children

He played first in the afternoon at the auditorium for the school children, who filled nearly the whole lower floor. It is certainly commendable in the parents to allow their children to avail themselves of opportunity to hear one of the world's finest violinists, even though they themselves did not feel the urge to go. Maybe therefor later in life these very children will have a greater love for the beautiful, an honest desire to hear and encourage the truly worthwhile artists of their day and time, than their parents have. These children will feel the emotions that their elders willingly denied themselves and their lives will be the fuller and happier for it.

It is true that mechanical reproduction and the radio will make people lazy, but above all in the latter, there is such an element of chance, there is static, fading, the tuning in of a neighbor to contend with, that once listening to something good, one is always more or less on edge. Nothing surpasses the unadulterated joy of watching the artist at his work. At a concert one listens without fear of interruption. one attends the very re-creating of a masterpiece.

Macmillen's playing is flawless, at once masterful and extremely sensitive. His ease imparts itself to the listener. He reminds one of Thibaud in his delicacy of touch. the hairfineness of trills and pizzicatos and his sureness of tone. He is true, his bowwork and fingering are remarkable. Macmillen is a superbly endowed violinist who has fully mastered every phase of technic and plays joyfully and artistically.

Both his programs were well chosen, the afternon program not too heavy, with base familiar numbers. At the children's concert he opened with two numbers not mentioned on the leaflet, namely, "Spanish Serenade" by Carnivall, and "Gigue" by Rust. The first named number he repeated again in the evening, playing it as an encore after the Goldmark concerto The "Gigue" was one of the fourth groups played in the evening.

The children seemed to enjoy most of all "Turkey in the Straw," with thematic variations, by the Texas composer David Guion, and such old favorites as the "Ave Maria" and the "Meditation" from "Thais."

Plays Own Composition

At both concerts he played his own composition "Barcarolle" and at night it was so well received that he repeated the last half of it.

The "Prelude and Allegro," Pugnani-Kreisler, was majestic in its breadth and tone quality. The "Valse Caprice," by Saint Saens, violin arrangement by Ysaye, was one of his most brilliant pieces. Pierne's "Serenade a Colombine" brought out his wonderful sense of rythm. To enumerate the numbers in which one could admire the extrem efragility of his tone would be too much like merely copying from the program. He is technically perfect, a virtuoso with all the good qualities this word implies. The exquisite "Habanera," by Ravel, he played twice and left us entranced. From long associations, his accompanist, Mr. Ralph Angell, has learned to entirely adapt himself to the artist.

After the strenuous evening Francis Macmillen, feeling the hold he had on his audience, was liberal with his encores, giving "Saltellato-Caprice," by Randegger; "La plus que lente," by Debussy, and Kreisler's transcript of the Prelude in E Major.

16 Boy Scouts Attend Banquet Of Order Here

Three boys were named to receive first and second initiatory degrees at the next meeting at Camp Ephraim Griffin at Diversion dam on the second Saturday in January. Taylor Cash, Electra scoutmaster, and Frank Creighton, local scout executive, were in charge of Friday night's meeting.

Davis Main Speaker At Labor Convention

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23. (AP)—A man who hoboed his way to New Orleans 36 years ago to get a $1 a day job driving a mule team, delivered the principal speech here today at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

He was James J. Davis, secretary of labor.

"Thirty six years ago, I happened to be in New Orleans with a little labor matter on my mind," he said. "I was a youngster very much in need of a job, and anxiously hunting one."

Davis explained he had been an iron puddler in Birmingham but a dispute had closed the mill.

'Solid South' Plea Carries Convention

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 23. (AP)—A gentle mannered woman from Tennessee raised her voice in the convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy here today and with a plea for a "Democracy which sticks" won for Biloxi, Miss., the next convention of the organization.

"Oh, daughters of the broken Solid South," she said, "come to Mississippi and let us show a 'Democracy which sticks.'"

Mrs. A. R. Howard made the motion that Mississippi's invitation be accepted and said, "As a former Mississippian, I say let us accept Mississippi's invitation and learn to become a Solid South once more."

A cheer swept over the room and by almost unanimous vote the delegates honored with the next convention of Confederacy's daughters the state which recently demanded that Virginia send back to "Democratic soil" the bodies of Jackson, Lee and other southern heroes.
