Clinton raps drug firms

More children to be vaccinated

■ The president, critical of the cost of vaccines, announces a $300 million immunization program.

Associated Press

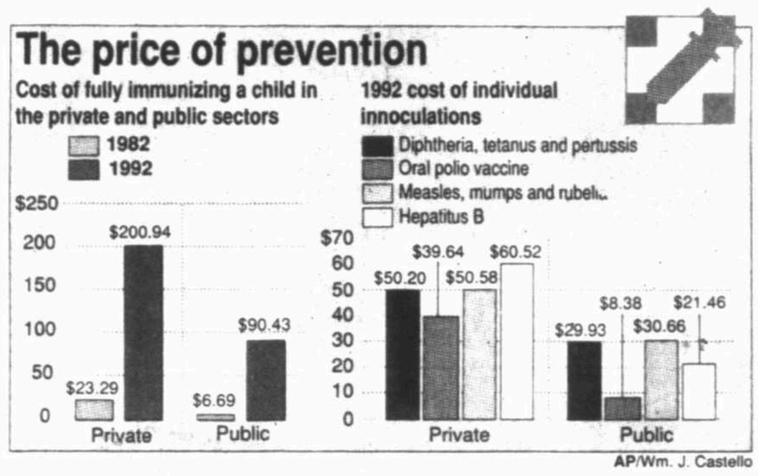

ARLINGTON, Va. — A $300 million program that will make vaccines available to a million more children was announced Friday by President Clinton, who visited a community clinic and sharply reproved drug companies for charging "unconscionable" prices.

"Our nation is the only industrialized nation in the entire world that does not guarantee childhood vaccinations for all children," Clinton said. "It ought to be like clean water and clear air. It ought to be a part of the fabric of our life."

He had strong words for the nation's drug makers, saying it was a "cruel irony" that American pharmaceutical companies make most of the world's vaccines but charge more for them here than they do in other countries.

Two leading vaccine makers said Clinton was unfairly singling out drug companies for blame and giving a false impression of undue profits.

How to pen a letter to win your beloved

By Patricia Bibby
Associated Press writer

My darling dirty rotten puppy dog,

If only this piece of paper were my body so when you unfolded it, it would be as if you were opening my arms out wide to expose th contents of my soul within. That way we could do away with these silly words.

But since I'm stuck with pen and paper, I've decided to write you a special sentiment for Valentine's Day. And because I'm a mere novice at this, I've asked a few literary types: Just how do I write a love letter that will capture the rapture?

Actually, that "I'm a mere novice" line comes from George Plimpton, who says it helps me appear more sincere (DON'T FRET, DEAR, I AM!). "The key is to put a lot of qualifiers in the letter, such as, 'I don't know how to put this,' or 'I'm not very good at this sort of thing,' or 'I've never said this to anyone before, but . . .,'" says the editor of the Paris Review. "This gives you free rein to

Gunman faces execution in shooting spree

■ Jury finds George Lott guilty of capital murder in courtroom rampage.

Associated Press

AMARILLO — George Lott was found guilty of capital murder Friday in last summer's shooting rampage at a Fort Worth courtroom that left two lawyers dead and three people wounded.

The jury took just under an hour to reach its verdict after Lott delivered a quiet and unemotional closing argument that centered on what he called the "power of suggestion." He showed no reaction, no emotion to the decision.

Study shows roles differ for black, white churches

NEW YORK (AP) — Black churches remain the center for social and political action in their neighborhoods, while white churches are more involved in national issues such as abortion and refugee relief, a study found.

In what researchers say is the first national study of its kind, predominantly black congregations were found to be far more active in promoting civil rights, community development and health education in their neighborhoods.

White churches aren't less socially active, but concentrated more on national issues such as opposing abortion and providing aid to refugees, according to the study published in the current issue of the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion.

The research provides the first evidence the central role of black churches in their communities hasn't been taken over by secular civil rights groups, said study author Mark Chaves, a University of Notre Dame sociology professor.

'Ultralight' cars: 'A different kind of car industry'

BOSTON (AP) — Think of it: driving from New York to Los Angeles on 29 gallons of gasoline.

Researchers say safe, dependable "ultralight" cars that get 100 miles per gallon could be built with existing technology if automakers were willing and consumers wanted them.

Cars made of a carbon-fiber composite like that used in the Voyager, the first plane to fly nonstop around the world, could be produced for about the same cost as conventional automobiles with production changes, said Amory B. Lovins of the Rocky Mountain Institute in Old Snowmass, Colo.

"This is not simply a different kind of car," Lovins said. "This is a fundamentally different kind of car industry."

In a symposium at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Lovins noted, however, that the move to ultralight; ultraefficient cars would require radical shifts by car makers, auto workers and consumers.

"I think there's some merit in what he's saying," said Jerome P. Bishop, spokesman for General Motors' technical center in Warren, Mich.

While the cost of carbon-fiber composites is prohibitive, Bishop said producing experimental cars allows GM to "take a look at the technologies and see which

STUDY: Churches' concerns differ

(From 1A)

Instead, organizations such as the NAACP and National Urban League have found themselves turning to the churches for support, said one authority on the black church.

"One could look at the NACCP as being the black church extended," said C. Eric Lincoln, a religion and sociology professor at Duke University. "The needs are the same, the concerns are the same and the people very often are the same."

Chaves and Lynn M. Higgins, a graduate student at Loyola University of Chicago, based their study on a random sample of 1,529 predominantly white congregations and 58 predominantly black congregations surveyed by Gallup in 1988.

Chaves said the margin of error for the black church responses is around plus or minus 11 percentage points, but the overall results comparing black and white churches provide "compelling evidence that the differences are statistically significant."

In a surprising number of secular activities, Chaves said, there were no differences in the involvement of black and white churches.

Black and white churches reported similar patterns of involvement in elementary and secondary education, housing and shelter for the homeless, cultural programs and institutional health care.

But where there were differences, they were striking, Chaves said Thursday.

Black churches were more active in addressing neighborhood concerns such as meal services, civil rights issues and education on disease.

For example, nearly three-quarters of black churches reported being involved in community development programs, compared with 44 percent of white churches. Three-fifths of black churches were involved in civil rights and social justice activities, vs. 40 percent of white churches.

White churches reported being more active on a broader scale on "right-to-life" issues and refugee programs. Thirty-five percent of white churches said they were active in refugee programs, compared with 18 percent of black churches.

Lincoln said the black churches may one day be as active as white churches on larger issues but abortion and immigration reform "are in a sense luxury concerns."

"The black church is primarily involved in responding to needs that are not taken care of," Lincoln said.

The study also refutes some sociologists' predictions that the church would lose influence as secular organizations took over social-service roles and blacks became leaders in politics and professions other than the clergy.

But the secular black organizations cannot separate themselves from the churches, Lincoln said.

Device appears to be grenade

LONGVIEW (AP) — Federal agents are investigating a device found after a traffic accident that may have been a hand grenade.

Jeff Pearce, agent-in-charge for the Tyler office of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said remains of the device have been sent to a lab in San Francisco, Calif., for testing.

Jim Walters, police spokesman, said emergency medical personnel found what appeared to be a hand grenade Thursday inside one of the cars in which they were working to free a trapped driver.

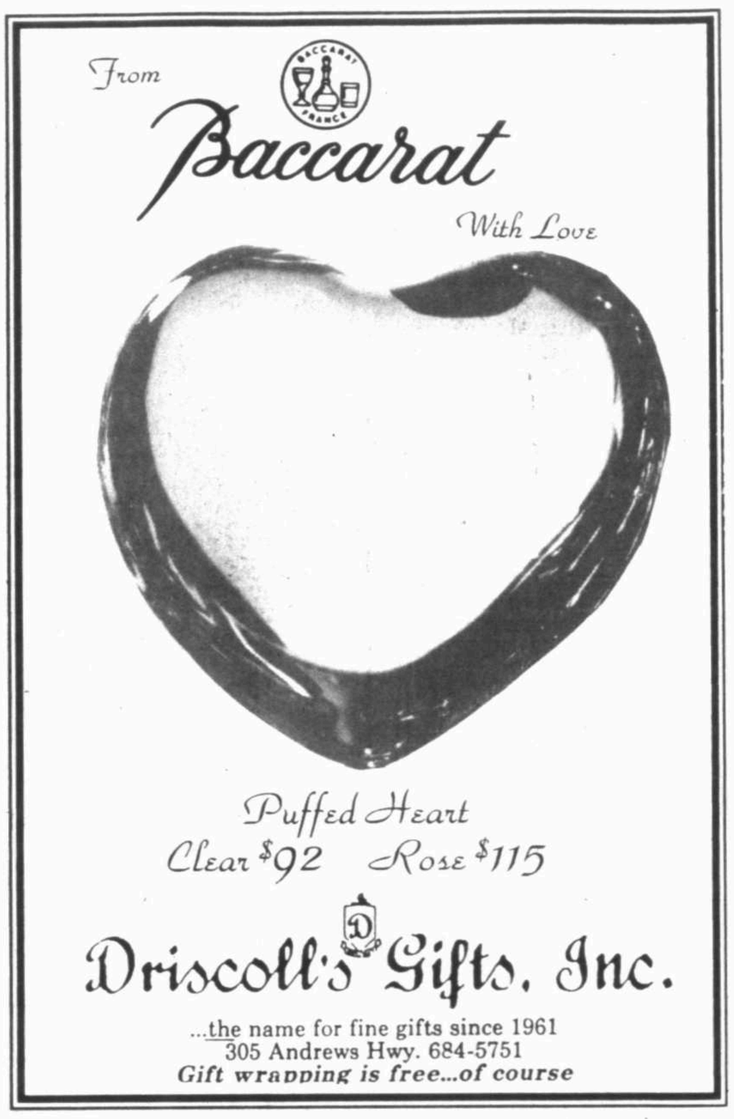

Members of the U.S. Army Explosive Ordnance Detonation Team from Fort Polk, La., took the device to the Longview Police Department's Firing Range where it was defused.

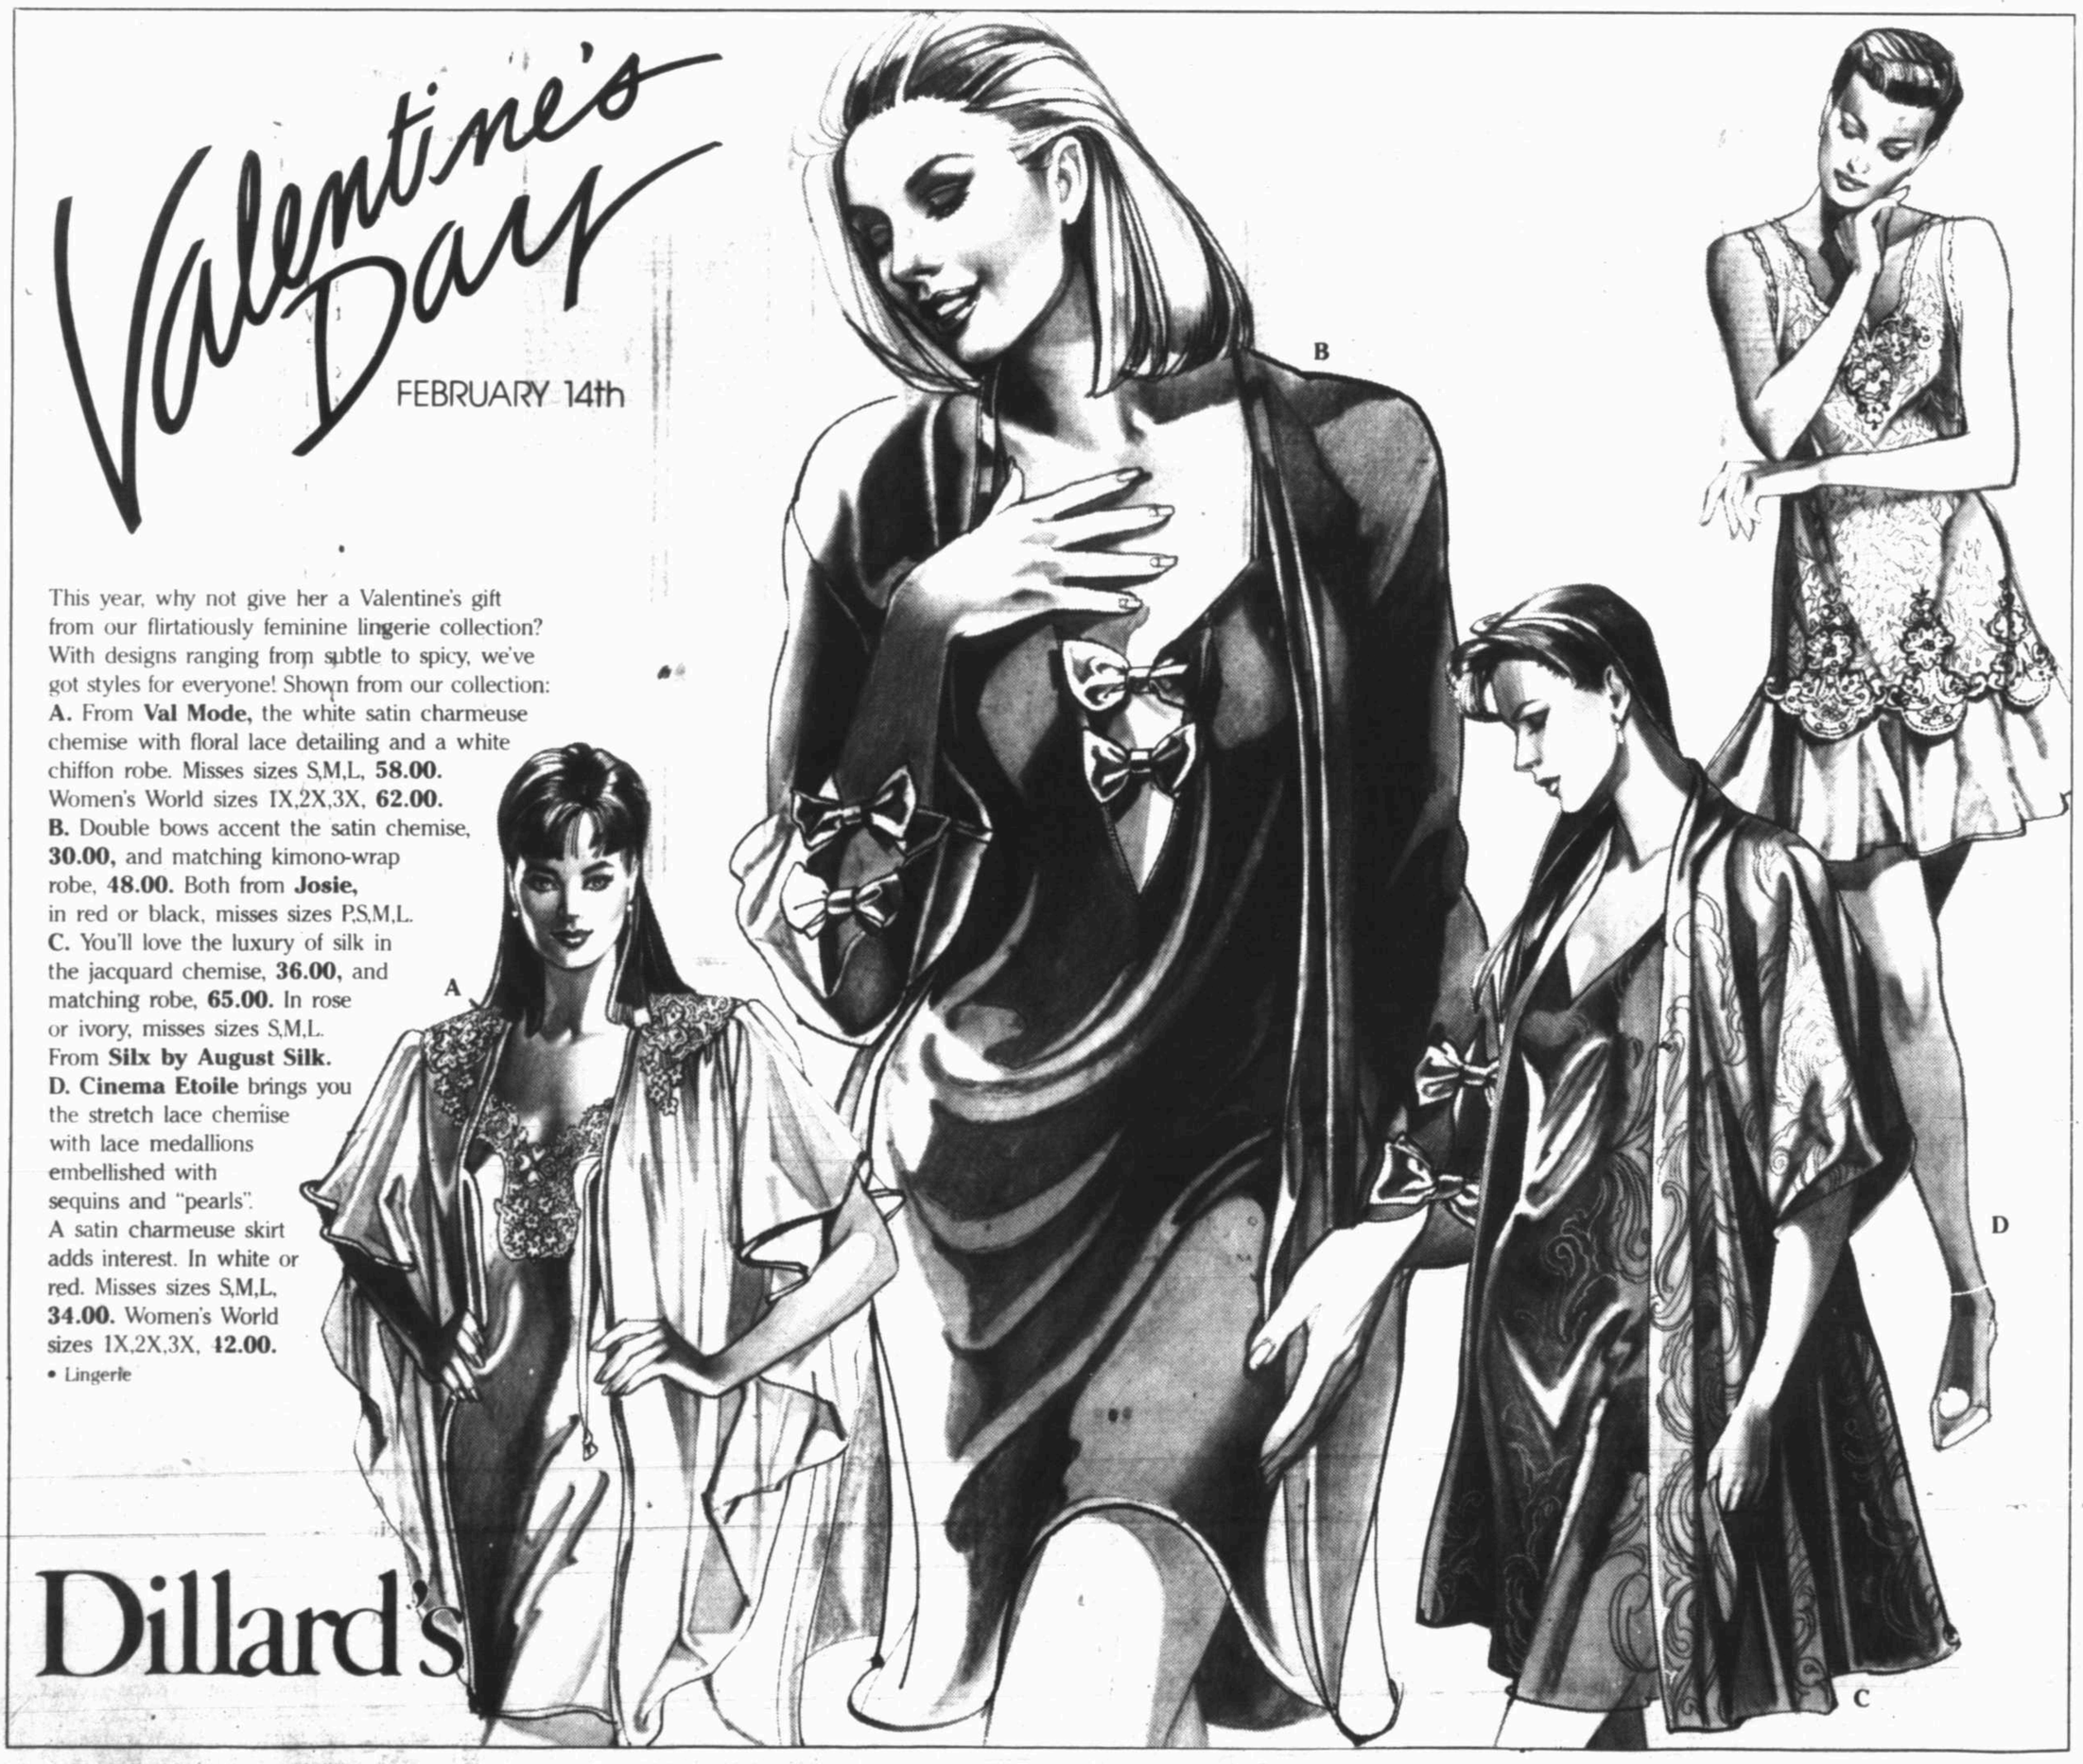

Pearce said the team blew off the top of the device with a shotgun and removed material located inside.

Results of the tests will be forwarded to the U.S. Attorney's Office which will determine whether federal charges will be filed in the case.

uties who testified that Lott had a belligerent attitude in jail. They said Lott called officers derogatory names and deliberately walked on one officer's heels 60 to 100 times during a jail cell transfer.

Lott surrendered to authorities last summer after going to WFAA-TV in Dallas and telling an anchor he was the gunman. After an interview, he was arrested.

Lott, 45, who was representing himself, told jurors a third-person tale in which a man was arrested for the crime because he was seen outside the courtroom and because he told WFAA-TV he was the gunman.

In Lott's scenario, "a fella" not satisfied with the legal system hears about the shooting and gunman on the loose and decides to turn himself in at a TV studio. Broadcasts of his confession would provide wide publicity for his criticism of the courts, Lott said.

The Arlington man also pointed to discrepancies between his own appearance and the descriptions witnesses gave of the gunman last summer.

But prosecutor Mike Parrish said Lott can't explain why the Glock pistol he surrendered at WFAA is the one experts testified was used inside the courtroom.

"Because people got his height wrong, that doesn't mean he's not guilty," Parrish told the jury. "When someone was standing there spewing death around, they look a lot bigger."

Seven witnesses testified on the trial's opening day Tuesday that Lott was the man they saw stand in the 2nd Court of Appeals and begin firing July 1. Several jurors cried as witnesses — including two judges — described how the gunman methodically shot without warning.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Today's high to hit mid-60s

Staff report

You'd hardly know that Midland is in the middle of winter, since the days are more warm than chilly.

Today's high is expected to be in the mid-60s, with winds southeasterly at 5 to 15 mph, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

The sky is to be increasingly cloudy today.

The low temperature tonight should be near 40 degrees.

Sunday's forecast is for a 50 percent chance of rain and a high in the mid-50s.

The peak temperature on Friday was 64 degrees, and the overnight low was 25. The record high for Feb. 12 is 86 degrees in 1962, and the record low temperature for Feb. 13 is 13 degrees in 1963.

STATE

Fair weather will continue in North Texas today, but clouds are expected to move in over the rest of the state.

Skies were mostly sunny over West Texas as temperatures ranged from 48 degrees in Chil lress to 69 degrees at Sanderson. Winds were variable at 5 to 15 miles an hour.

High pressure centered over South Texas, keeping winds light and variable over inland areas. Clear skies and abundant sunshine brought the mercury to the 80 degree mark over deep South Texas.

A thin layer clouds shielded North Texas as fair weather settled over the area. Afternoon temperatures ranging in the 60s were considerably warmer than the morning lows, which ranged from 29 degrees in Abilene to 37 degrees in the Dallas area.

The forecast for South Texas calls for partly cloudy skies through Saturday with lows in the 40s and highs in the 70s.

West Texans can expect increasing cloudiness from west to east today through Saturday night. Lows will range from the upper teens to mid 20s in the Panhandle and northern South Plains with mainly 30s elsewhere. Highs Saturday will range from the upper 40s in the Panhandle to the mid 70s in the Big Bend River Valleys.

Mostly sunny today in North Texas with highs from 58 to 65. Considerable cloudiness with a chance of rain Sunday and Sunday night. Highs from 52 to 58 and lows in the 30s.

NATION

Snow, freezing rain and ice stretched from the Plains across much of the East, as two low-pressure systems collided Friday. Thunderstorms dumped hail on parts of the Southeast.

Strong winds also buffeted the Northeast and Midwest, downing power lines in Indiana, Illinois, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Schools were closed across the Great Lakes region and in parts of the Midwest and East Coast as heavy snow and ice made roads treacherous.

Meanwhile, temperatures in the 40s and 50s were scattered across the nation's southern tier, and Florida had balmy weather, with lows in the 60s.

The stormy weather caused numerous traffic accidents in the Midwest, the Plains and along the East Coast.

In Oklahoma City, three people died and 20 were injured in a 26-vehicle pileup on an icy highway overpass late Thursday.

By Friday afternoon, snow had fallen on parts of Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Four inches was reported at Detroit and up to 8 inches was recorded in southern New York state and in neighboring Pennsylvania. Heavy snow and icy rain also fell on New York City throughout the day.

In the South, thunderstorms produced pea-sized hail near Lizella, in eastern Tennessee, and in the Atlanta area.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Lawmen arrest two on drug charges

Staff report

ODESSA — A 27-year-old woman and a 33-year-old man were charged on cocaine-related offenses on Thursday following a chase by Odessa Police Department officers in the neighborhood of Fitch and Electric streets in south Odessa.

Arrested were Tammy Rochelle Dixon, who was charged with possession of "crushed rocks" of crack cocaine, and Kenneth Earl White, who was charged with possession of crack-cocaine paraphernalia.

The arrests followed ongoing investigations into street sales of illicit drugs in south Odessa, according to Police Chief James H. Jenkins.

Undercover agents had sought out Ms. Dixon after receiving a tip she was selling crack. As agents approached Ms. Dixon and other suspects, they fled on foot. She was arrested a few minutes later in her car.

Seized by police along with the crack cocaine was $1,300 in cash and the car which Ms. Dixon was driving. The police drug-detection dog, Bonni, aided in the investigation and arrest.

be utterly foolish."

Plimpton also suggests writing sweet nothings in code. He says he once wrote a love letter all in numerals, with each number corresponding to the letter in the alphabet, because the words were "sort of embarrassing on the page." So, my darling, if all of this is making you blush:

2-1-25, 25-15-21 13-5-1-14 5-22-5-18-25-20-8-9-14-7 20-15 13-5.

(Hint: Always double check the code, lest you bare your soul by saying, "Honey, I muv you.")

By the way, I hope you're not blushing over my salutation. It's just that pet names create a cozy tone, opines Cathy Davidson, an English professor at Duke University who has just come out with "The Book of Love, Writers and Their Love Letters."

And I'm in good company. Hemingway called his inamorata "Pickle," Davidson said. Zelda Fitzgerald called F. Scott Fitzgerald "Goofo." Chekhov favored the zoological — "River Perch," "Pony," "Pup," "Sweet dog," "Crocodile," "Dogman," "Goldfish" and the oh-so-charming "Cockroach." Not to be outdone, John Middleton Murry endeared himself to Katherine Mansfield by calling her "My darling Worm."

Pet names also work for short story writer Jill McCorkle, who avoids mush in favor of humor.

"Find something that is funny and something that is maybe cryptically funny, so that it's intimate, but not mushy," says McCorkle. "It's best if you can refer to some private joke."

Brevity may be the soul of wit and your lingerie but it's not at the heart of love letters, according to Norman Mailer, who advises lovescribes: "It is the only situation in writing where the basic law — keep it short — does not apply."

Erica Jong says Cupid's arrow reaches its target best with poetry. As a teen-ager, she says, she had a beau who sent her "these beautiful lines from Ezra Pound." Only he didn't attribute them to the King of Cantos, says Jong, who warns that when lifting a clever line, it should always be credited "so you don't get in trouble with your beloved."

If the heart is talking but you still aren't writing, Jong has another idea: "If you can't send poetry, just send emeralds."

Some prefer hyperbole over subtlety as away to capture their feelings — the excess of the ecstasy! The exaggeration of the palpitation! The deep chasm of the spasm!

This reminds me of why I am writing to you in the first place, my sweet.

"Do exaggerate!," says Dr. Ruth Westheimer. "Do say little white lies." (NEVER, SWEETHEART!) "Say this relationship was made in heaven and none of your other relationships meant as much to you.

"And instead of ending it with 'love' say something like, 'Every night before I fall asleep, after I've said my prayers, my last thought at night and my first thought in the morning is of you.'

"That should lead, if they are sexually active, to a super night between those two," Westheimer promises. "Very tender — not just good sex — but very tender sex."

So, sweetie, I'll close by telling you that every night before I go to sleep, after I've said my prayers, my last thought at night and my first thought in the morning is of you.

Your darling Patricia

Jackson's disorder not contagious, doctor says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The buzz over Michael Jackson's interview with Oprah Winfrey continued on several fronts Friday and included a statement from the pop star's dermatologist about Jackson's much-discussed skin condition.

Dr. Arnold Klein said he diagnosed Jackson's discoloring vitiligo skin disorder in 1986 and said, "Mr. Jackson has requested that I make this statement."

"It is not contagious and is a result of the loss of pigment producing cells of the skin," the Beverly Hills dermatologist said.

Also Friday, the A.C. Nielsen Co. confirmed that more than 62 million people watched the 90-minute special Wednesday night.

The chalky-faced Jackson revealed the skin disorder when Miss Winfrey asked why his skin was becoming whiter.

He said he is proud of being a black man and hurt by insinuations that he is bleaching his skin or trying to be white. He wears pale makeup, Jackson said, to even out the appearance of his skin and control the condition.

Los Angeles Times television critic Howard Rosenberg said Friday: "If Oprah was wondering why dark makeup wouldn't work just as well, she didn't give a clue."

The Jackson interview also raised eyebrows at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences among those who wondered where Jackson got that 7-foot statue of Oscar that stands on his theater stage.

"We're just curious, but we're not going to make any effort to find anything out," said John Pavlik, an academy spokesman. "If Michael wanted to let us know where he got it, we'd like to know."

The movie academy is scrupulous about protecting the copyrighted image of Oscar. There are more than a dozen of the wood-and-plastic Oscars similar to the one adorning Jackson's stage and one of them is missing.

"A few years ago, one walked off somehow from the academy's lobby in Beverly Hills," Pavlik said. "We don't know where it went."

Among viewers of the reclusive entertainer's first interview in a decade were many critically ill children. The kids, their parents and donors deluged the Make-A-Wish Foundation of America with inquiries after seeing Jackson's sprawling Neverland Ranch in Santa Barbara.

"It was wonderful," said Judy Lewis, executive director of the local Make-A-Wish group.

The entertainer regularly invites terminally ill children to visit the ranch.

DEATHS

John O. Denman

Services for John O. Denman, 90, are set for 11 a.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Billy Hudnall of Anderson Mill Baptist Church officiating.

Denman

Denman died Thursday at an Austin hospital.

He had moved to Austin from Midland in 1987.

Denman was born on June 20, 1902, in Madisonville, moved to Midland in the early 1920s from Madison County, and began his working life as a West Texas cowboy with the Cowden family ranches.

Later, he worked for the Scharbauer Cattle Co. for more than 50 years with four generations of the Scharbauer family.

For most of those years, he and his wife lived on and managed the Scharbauer North Curtis Ranch just north of Midland.

Denman officially retired in 1985, when he moved to Midland, but continued to do day-work for Scharbauer Cattle Co.

In a 1983 interview in the Reporter-Telegram, Denman recalled a faded aspect of the Old West — trail drives.

"I've seen a lotta changes," he recalled. "There are no more trail drives. I miss 'em — especially the old chuck-wagon cookin'. And the dadgum pickup has ruined the cowboy, made him soft."

Denman said that the Scharbauer family "are good people to work for. We're just one big family."

Survivors include his wife, Marie Denman of Austin; one sister, Lois Denman of Houston; two nieces, one nephew, four great-nephews and three great-nieces.

Memorials may be directed to Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, P.O. Box 1890, Amarillo, 79174.

CARS: Ultralights get 100 miles a gallon

(From 1A)

ones can become practical."

For workers, a consequence could be lower-paying jobs that would lead to a decline in American living standards and a rise in social inequality, said Gerald Lazarowitz of the United Auto Workers union.

"Labor has to be involved early in decisions about new product technologies," Lazarowitz said.

He cited the example of the current move by the auto industry to switch from steel for many car parts to plastic, improving gas mileage by reducing weight.

"Making plastic mold requires less labor, and less skilled labor at that," he said. "It can eliminate some of the highest skilled jobs in the auto industry."

The radical shift envisioned by Lovins and others could be far more damaging to workers, he said, unless labor was consulted early in decisions about new technologies.

Lovins said government policy to increase mileage slightly with gas taxes or fuel-economy standards "completely misses the point." A better approach is to redesign cars — and the car industry — from the ground up, he said.

As an example of what's possible, he described a General Motors ultralight car unveiled in January 1992 that got 100 miles per gallon at a speed of 50 mph, accelerated as quickly as a Mustang and could drive coast-to-coast on 29 gallons of gas.

It comfortably accommodates four large adults, has only one one-hundredth as many body parts as a conventional car and because it doesn't rust could last decades, Lovins said.

By the time it was built, auto engineers "could already see a lot of ways to make it better," he said.

Although carbon-fiber composite costs about 100 times as much as sheet steel per pound, the savings in fabrication and assembly means "the cars should cost about the same as steel cars to produce," Lovins said.

They are also likely to be safe in crashes for several reasons, he said. Their low weight often allows them to bounce off of other vehicles rather than be crushed, and drivers with seat belts and air bags would fare well in such accidents, he said.

Another reason is that in cases in which the carbon-fiber composite is crushed, it crumbles rather than breaking into sharp, jagged pieces as sheet metal does, Lovins said.

Just as personal computers have eaten away at the market for large mainframe computers, ultralight cars will deeply diminish the demand for conventional cars, Lovins predicted.

DRUG: More youth to be vaccinated

(From 1A)

Only about half of America's 2-year-olds are fully vaccinated, and the rate is as low as 10 percent in some inner-city areas, according to federal health experts. In the Western Hemisphere, only Bolivia and Haiti have lower immunization rates than the United States.

Clinton, accompanied by his wife, Hillary, watched as an oral polio vaccine was administered to 20-month-old Danielle Bailey in Arlington's Fenwick Center health clinic, where vaccinations are administered for free. The child whimpered just a little, and then smiled for the TV cameras.

The president then told a group of children and parents, "We should be under no illusion that every family and every child in America has access to a health clinic as good as this one."

Clinton promised his economic stimulus package would include an extra $300 million to promote immunization efforts this year at clinics in underserved urban and rural areas. The money would be added to the $342 million already allocated to the Centers for Disease Control for immunization programs.

In addition, he directed Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala to negotiate with drug companies to make sure states and federally assisted health programs can buy vaccines at "reasonable" prices. He accused pharmaceutical companies of refusing to make vaccines available to many states at affordable rates, even for bulk purchases.

"Compared to other countries, our prices are shocking," Clinton said. "We must tell the drug companies to change those priorities. We cannot have profits at the expense of our children."

Overall, he said, vaccine prices have risen at six times the rate of inflation over the past 10 years and drug companies are spending more on advertising and lobbying than on developing new drugs.

Clinton said he hoped drug companies would be involved in developing legislation to further expand immunization programs, but added, "Whether they are or not is up to them. But this is unconscionable. We are running the risk of new epidemics spreading out in this country."

Shalala offered more conciliatory words, saying she looked forward to negotiations with the drug companies and had "every reason to believe that they care about America's children, too."

Craig Engesser, a spokesman for Lederle-Praxis, one of the nation's top vaccine makers, said Clinton was unfairly blaming drug companies.

He said the cost to fully vaccinate a child has increased because the number of recommended doses has nearly doubled over the past 10 years and because of rising biotechnology research costs, a new excise tax, inflation and higher product liability insurance costs.

In addition, he said, low immunization rates have more to do with access to health clinics and with parental education than with prices.

David Williams, president of Connaught Laboratories, another major vaccine manufacturer, said Clinton was choosing a convenient target in criticizing drug companies when the real "profiteers" were lawyers filing product liability suits.

Clinton said that in addition to lowering the costs of vaccines, the country needs to improve access to immunizations.

Also on hand for the announcement were Democratic Sens. Donald Riegle of Michigan and Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, active in drafting legislation to expand immunization programs.

Clinton said the legislation would be aimed at guaranteeing the immunization of every American child, establishing a tracking system to follow up on children who have not been vaccinated, and improving services at inner city and rural clinics.

The plan drew high praise from the Children's Defense Fund, an advocacy group that has long supported expanded immunization efforts. Mrs. Clinton once chaired the group's board.

"No longer will anyone's young child needlessly die of measles because parents couldn't afford the shots," said fund president Marian Wright Edelman.

Midland College schedules seminar on Payroll Issues

Staff report

Because small business operators frequently spend more time trying to figure out federal and state payroll regulations than they do running their businesses, Midland College is holding a seminar Tuesday on Payrol Issues.

The seminar costs $5, payable at the door. The session is from 7-8:30 p.m. in Meeting Room A, Student Center.

Burt Clyde, U.S. Department of Labor in Albuquerque, is one of four presenters for the seminar. Others are: Belle Harris, Internal Revenue Service; C. R. Gillard, Texas Employment Commission; and Mary E.Glenn, CPA.

The Tuesday session is the sixth of seven workshops. The final program is slated for Tuesday, Feb. 23, on Income Tax Topics. Leaders for that program are to be Ms. Harris and Ms. Glenn.

More information is available by calling the Midland College Business and Economic Development Center at 684-4100.

LOTTERY: Hobbs couple wins $3.9 million in Texas game

(From 1A)

Mrs. James and her husband have owned the Bernina Sales and Service sewing machine shop in Hobbs for 20 years.

Mrs. James said Friday that she sat down at the snack bar in Jackie's Exxon in Gaines County, bought two lotto tickets, and picked her numbers at random.

"I don't have any method. Whatever comes into my mind," she said.

She also bought three scratch-card tickets, one of which was a $2 winner.

Mrs. James said she didn't know what she would do with the money. "I'm still in shock," she said.

She received her first payment of $199,783, and will receive 19 more annual payments of $196,500.

The couple has two daughters, one son, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

State Lottery Director Nora Linares noted that the New Mexicans have Texas ties because they own land in Graham, and one of their daughters lives in Austin.

"We know that this $3.9 million that we are about to present to you is going to be spent in Austin, Texas as well," Ms. Linares said.

Last month, another New Mexican, Rosemary Larsson of Las Cruces, won $1 million in the Texas lottery's drawing from scratch-card tickets.

Republicans vow to fight funding plan

AUSTIN (AP) — State GOP Chairman Fred Meyer said Friday Democratic leaders have broken a promise against new taxes by supporting a share-the-wealth school funding plan. Democrats said he's wrong.

Meyer predicted that the proposed constitutional amendment, if approved by lawmakers and voters, would cost Texans an additional $2.4 billion in school property taxes over the next two years.

Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and other Democrats who said there wouldn't be a state tax increase this legislative session "must have had their fingers crossed behind their backs when they did it," he said.

But Democrats noted that the proposed constitutional change, which would allow some sharing of local property tax money among rich and poor school districts, doesn't set a tax rate.

The measure instead limits how high a particular property tax rate could be when lawmakers approve a separate spending plan, which would implement the amendment. The $2.4 billion estimate is figured using that cap.

"They (Republicans) need to get their facts straight," said Janet Warren, spokeswoman for House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center.

No spending plan under consideration would raise taxes "anywhere near" $2.4 billion, she said. "In fact, enabling legislation under consideration would require school districts to ask the voters before raising their taxes beyond a certain level."

The proposed amendment by Rep. Libby Linebarger was prompted by a Texas Supreme Court order for lawmakers to come up with a constitutional plan by June 1 to equalize school funding, or face a cutoff of state money to schools. Public education relies on state aid and local taxes.

"If we left this issue up to Fred Meyer, I'm sure he would have 3 million children staying at home watching TV, come September," said Ms. Linebarger, D-Manchaca.

Meyer said Democrats are trying to "blackmail the voters of Texas with threats the schools will close unless we pass their tax increase plan."

He said Republicans would fight the measure if it goes on the state ballot. Ms. Linebarger and Bill Cryer, spokesman for Richards, said there would be a campaign in favor of the proposal. Sydney Rubin, spokesman for Bullock, had no comment.

The Texas Supreme Court last year ruled unconstitutional the current school funding system, in which some local school property tax money is redistributed within single or multi-county education districts, or CEDs.

Space station project head quits under fire

HOUSTON (AP) — The head of the embattled space station project at Johnson Space Center quit Friday, two hours after his ouster was called for by Sen. Bob Krueger.

Krueger, D-Texas, announced that the White House would continue to provide federal money for the space station, but blamed project manager John Aaron for huge cost overruns and the difficulty in selling the project to Congress.

"John Aaron and I have agreed that in the interest of the space station program, he will step down as project manager of JCS's portion of the space station," Johnson Space Center Director Aaron Cohen said in a prepared statement.

"I am reviewing additional steps which will be implemented in the near future to strengthen management oversight of the space station project and to provide an independent assessment of JSC and contractor performance on this vital project."

Cohen said he hoped to get results of that assessment within two weeks.

He said the decision to replace Aaron "is part of ongoing reviews throughout the program as we move into the hardware-building phase."

Jack Boykin, deputy manager of the project, will serve as acting manager until a permanent replacement is selected, Cohen said.

Krueger, while calling for Aaron's ouster, could provide no specifics on what the Clinton administration's budget request would be.

"I do not have a specific dollar amount," Krueger said at a hastily called news conference. "I don't think the numbers are in the budget yet. If they are, I wouldn't be free to release it. I don't have any evidence there are plans to scale back in the future but I think there will be some restructuring."

Reports in Washington indicated the White House would ask Congress to spend $1.35 billion on the station next year, down from the $2.25 billion the space agency wanted. Such a significant reduction would result in a major redesign of the station on which more than $8 billion already has been spent for design.

"Numbers changed almost day by day," Krueger said of the NASA budget. "I was told that the baseline NASA budget probably would be continued at present level, but not all areas within that would be continued at present level."

Krueger said Aaron should quit because almost a half billion dollars in cost overruns were linked to Johnson Space Center alone.

"I will not defend waste," Krueger said. "This project has been scarred by cost overruns. There's no question about that. It seems to me if half a billion dollars disappears, is misspent during your watch, maybe you'd best be somewhere else. I think this is important to the health of the project."

Asked if he thought the space station project ever would fly, he replied: "I certainly hope so."

Massacre survivor lives with fear

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Ida Holguin says that when she goes into stores, she's afraid of being shot.

"I go knowing what I want and I'm in and out," says Holguin, who survived a shooting three years ago that left four other people dead.

Holguin was left for dead Feb. 10, 1990, when seven people were shot by two men during an apparent robbery at a Las Cruces bowling alley. Three children and the father of two of them died.

Holguin, who was bowling alley's cook, and the other two survivors, Stephanie Senac and her daughter Melissia Repass, gave police information to make composite drawings of the men. But the men have never been apprehended.

Holguin, 36, carries constant reminders: a bullet in her shoulder and bullet fragments in her brain.

"Everyday I wake up and go to sleep thinking about that day. It's like something doesn't let me forget," she says.

McDuff testifies, denies killing Waco woman

HOUSTON (AP) — Kenneth McDuff took the stand in his own capital murder trial Friday, describing for jurors a shadowy underworld of prostitution, drugs and theft but denying he kidnapped and killed a Waco convenience store clerk.

McDuff, 46, is charged with the March 1, 1992, abduction-slaying of Melissa Northrup, 22, a clerk at a Quik-Pak where McDuff once worked.

"I had nothing to do with that," McDuff said repeatedly when asked about the abduction.

Mrs. Northrup's partially clad, decomposing body was found floating in a Dallas County gravel pit about two months after her disappearance. Authorities could not determine how she died, but her hands and feet were tied.

Both sides rested their cases Friday. State District Judge Bob Burdette ordered jurors return Tuesday morning for final arguments and deliberations.

McDuff calmly looked at jurors as he answered questions from the defense, but gave rambling answers and frequently admonished his own attorneys when he was interrupted.

McDuff discounted the testimony of prosecution witnesses who said he had asked them to join him when he robbed a Quick-Pak where he once worked.

"No, that wouldn't have been reasonable. I usually had more money in my wallet than $50," he said.

Defense attorney Mike Charlton said McDuff testified against his attorneys' advice, but his client felt compelled.

"You witnessed what is a personal tragedy," Charlton told reporters outside the courtroom. "You saw a man determined to tell his side of the story."

Charlton maintained the case by McLennan County prosecutors was circumstantial and that public opinion was biased against McDuff.

But McLennan County District Attorney John Segrest said McDuff's testimony hurt the defendant's case.

"I think he's an absolute liar," Segrest said. "The only thing he can do to save himself at this point is to lie. And he knows how to do that...

McDuff was arrested early last May in Kansas City, Mo., working as a trash collector under an assumed name.

In his testimony, McDuff said he fled Texas because he feared his parole would be revoked after he was arrested in Bell County on a charge of public intoxication and after a job offer in Victoria fell through.

Judge denies dismissal of Tilton lawsuit

DALLAS (AP) — An attorney for Robert Tilton failed in a bid Friday to dismiss a lawsuit by one of more than a half-dozen plaintiffs against the television evangelist.

State District Judge John Marshall denied a motion for summary judgment on two elements of the civil lawsuit by Andrea Johnson of Dallas, a former member of Tilton's TV audience.

Rhonda Byrd, a Tilton attorney in Dallas, had asked the judge to reject Ms. Johnson's allegations of fraud and intentional infliction of emotional distress, said her Tulsa, Okla. attorney, Gary L. Richardson, who has a Dallas office.

Richardson also represents seven other clients in lawsuits against Tilton, whose Dallas-area ministry has been the subject of a Texas attorney general's investigation.

Neither Ms. Byrd nor Tulsa attorney J.C. Joyce immediately returned telephone calls Friday from The Associated Press. Tilton has earlier denied the accusations.

"We are thrilled with finally getting the lawsuit in the posture to where we can proceed toward trial," said Richardson.

He said that Ms. Johnson's lawsuit and others, which had been dismissed because of an earlier summary judgment threat, were refiled last year after Tilton's deposition was secured.

Ms. Johnson, whose family suffered economic hardships, had called Tilton's prayer line for help.

"She was praying for miracles. She received letters from Tilton. He claimed that if she would show her faith by sending him money, he would help," said Richardson. "But it was all a lie."

Ms. Johnson even sent Tilton's ministry her food stamps, her attorney said.

"We're talking about pure fraud," said Richardson, adding he did not know when a trial date would be set for the case.

Officials charge mayor with assault

DAYTON LAKES, Texas (AP) — The mayor of Dayton Lakes says he has resigned after being charged with aggravated sexual assault of an 8-year-old girl.

"I'm not the mayor no more. I resigned," Mayor Albert Lee Ewing said Thursday. "I can't talk about it. But put it this way, I've been framed."

Appointed as mayor of Liberty County's smallest incorporated community last year, the 66-year-old retired carpenter is free after posting a $10,000 bond on the charge.

Liberty County Sheriff's Detective Patrick Hardin said the charge was filed last week after a girl told Dayton Independent School District officials that she had been molested over a two-year period.

Bulldogs clinch playoffs

Staff report

SAN ANGELO — Midland High waltzed into the postseason here Friday night, clinching third place in the District 4-5A boys basketball race with an 84-74 victory over the San Angelo Bobcats.

The Bulldogs are now 19-9 for the season and 7-4 in district play. Odessa Permian, which had been but one game behind MHS, lost at Abilene Cooper Friday 87-58, bowing out of the postseason hunt. In Friday's other 4-5A action, Abilene High defeated Odessa High 80-63 while Midland Lee took the night off.

The postseason berth is the second in the last three years for the Bulldogs. MHS last appeared in the playoffs in the 1990-91 season, when it went 19-12 and Plainview defeated the Bulldogs 65-63 in the bi-district round.

MHS can chalk up a 20-win season Tuesday by taking another road win at Abilene High. That game will be the regular season finale before the Bulldogs begin playoff action against District 3-5A's second-seeded representative.

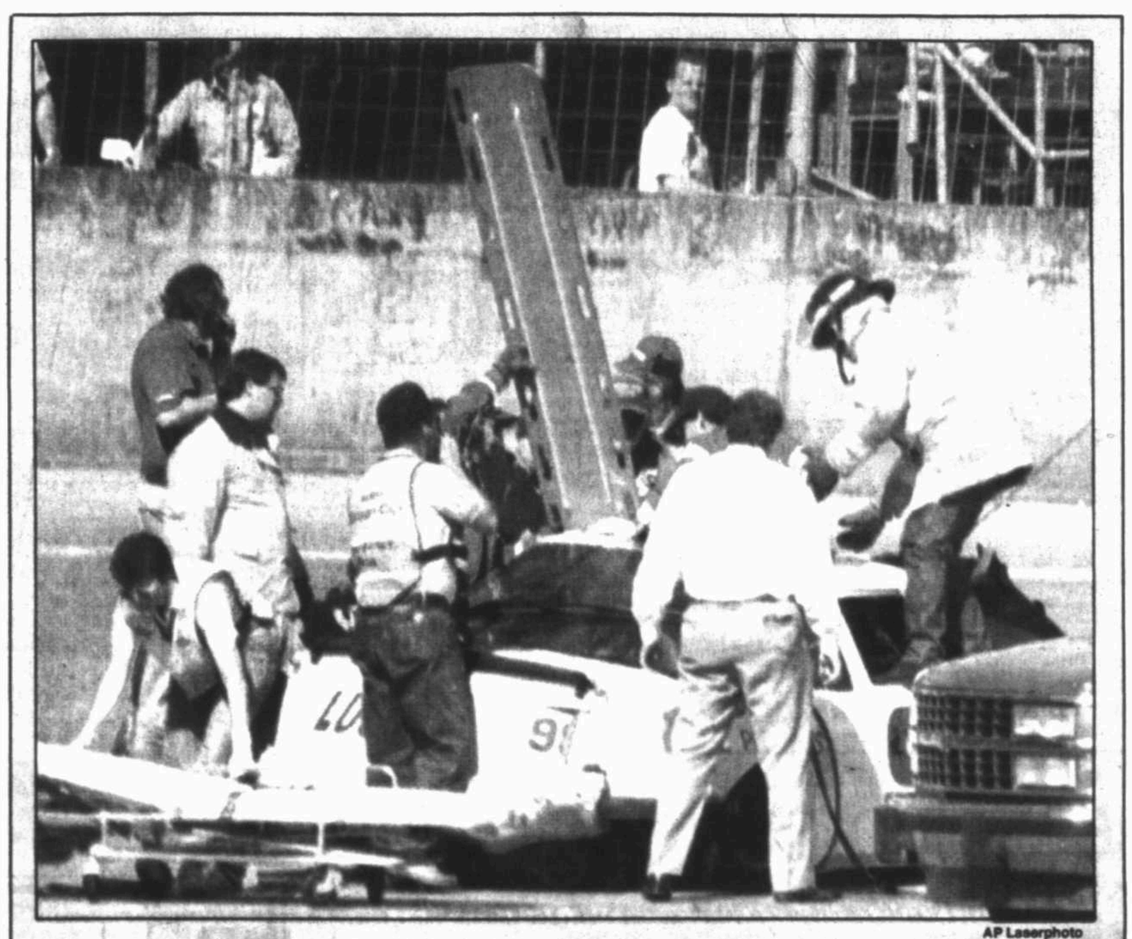

On Friday, the Bulldogs scored 58 first-half points on the way to a 58-35 lead. Though San Angelo (3-25, 0-11) outscored MHS 39-36 in the second half, it was too little, too late for any hopes of a comeback.

Senior forward Antwan Goodley scored 22 points to lead the Bulldog scorers, leaving him 32 points shy of the 1,100 mark for his career with one game to play.

Also scoring in double figures for MHS were senior guard Mike Melzer (13 points) and Donald Carter (12). Andre Gill had nine points for the Bulldogs

Fatal crash

■ Jeff Gordon, Bobby Labonte and Kenny Wallace are all expected to compete for NASCAR's Winston Cup Rookie of the Year.

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — So far, Jeff Gordon is living a dream.

The 21-year-old posted the 12th best lap in time trials, then showed the more experienced drivers the way to Victory Lane in one of Thursday's 125-mile qualifying races for Sunday's Daytona 500.

He was elated, because the big crowd rooted against the traditional favorites to help the kid to the win and the media praised this wunderkind.

But there are at least two other drivers at Daytona International Speedway this weekend who can't afford to get too impressed with Gordon's achievements.

Bobby Labonte and Kenny Wallace, both of whom, like Gordon, have graduated from the Busch Grand National series to NASCAR's Winston Cup series this season, are expected to fight Gordon for rookie of the year honors.

An executive of Maxwell House, Labonte's sponsor, talking to a group of writers Friday, said: "Don't be giving that rookie of the year to Jeff Gordon just yet."

It could be the best rookie race ever.

There is Gordon, a former midget and sprint car champion who left California for Indiana as a 14-year-old because he was too young to get a license to race out West. He has succeeded everywhere he has raced, winning more than 500 short track events and going on to become the top rookie in the Grand National series in 1991 and, last year, winning three races and a series record 11 poles while finishing fourth.

Labonte, 28, the younger brother of former Win-

State approves girls in football

By Chip Brown
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Texas high school football, a near religion long observed only by boys, is opening its huddle to girls.

The State Board of Education voted 9-3 Friday to amend a University Interscholastic League rule allowing girls to hit the high school gridiron effective this fall.

"This is a gender equity issue," said Mary Knotts Perkins, a board member from Lufkin who voted for the rule change. "It's a matter of giving the opportunity to girls. That does not mean they have to be selected or they have to play."

The three votes against the change all came from men who feared for girls' safety.

"My concern is for girls' health," said board member Jack Christie. "I am voting against it because of compassion. Maybe it's chivalry."

In a state known for having a "good ole boy network," allowing girls on the high school football field with anything other than pompons or marching band instruments is quite a coup, officials said.

"Friday night lights would take on an entirely different

Jordan forks over $58,000 for fight

■ An NBA-imposed fine of $10,000, plus the salary Michael Jordan will miss for a one-game suspension leaves the superstar a little short on coffee money.

By Joe Mooshil
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — The NBA answered critics Friday who said Michael Jordan got away unscathed from a game brawl with Indiana's Reggie Miller, suspending the Chicago superstar for one game and fining him $10,000.

Jordan participated in a shoot-around at the Bulls' training facility even though the league ordered him to sit out Friday night's home game against the New York Knicks. He left without commenting.

The fine cost Jordan an additional $48,480. He isn't paid for missing games because of a suspension. The Bulls prepared for the game hoping the suspension wouldn't cost them, too — prior to Friday they had lost all four games since 1986 in which Jordan didn't play. All were on the road.

Miller was fined $6,000; he was ejected along with Pacers coach Bob Hill following Wednesday's fight at Indianapolis.

Bulls coach Phil Jackson said the team will not protest the decision, but he was not pleased with the wording of the league's announcement.

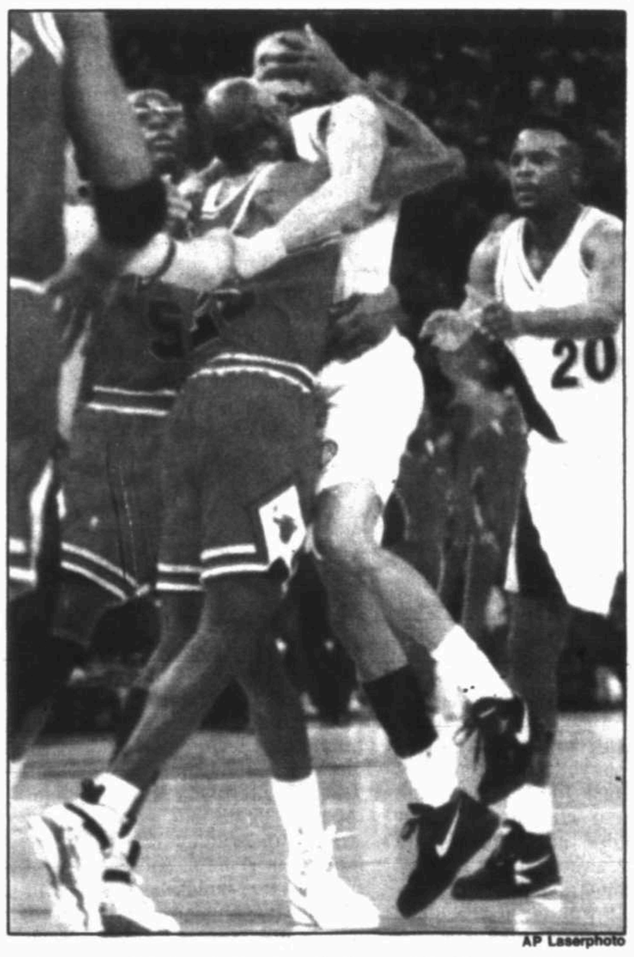

"I had a hint it was going to happen, but I was upset by the way they stated it," Jackson said. "In their statement, they said Michael clearly was the aggressor. It is not true. Reggie Miller was the aggressor and pursued him (Michael)."

None of the Bulls players wanted to talk about Jordan's suspension after Friday's practice, except for backup center Scott Williams, who said Jordan was depressed about the league's action.

"We will try to represent ourselves as well as we can (against the Knicks)," Williams said.

The altercation between Jordan and Miller occurred during the first quarter of the game, after Miller scored and

Parish mum in face of charges

Associated Press

DALLAS — Boston Celtics center Robert Parish said Friday that the discovery of marijuana in a package addressed to him and sent to his home would not affect his role with the team.

"Not particularly. It's just something that I've got to deal with," Parish said before Celtics practice at Reunion Arena, where the team was to face the Dallas Mavericks Friday night.

Parish, who was expected to play, was charged with possession of marijuana.

Criminal complaints against Parish and Heather Graves were filed in Waltham District Court in Massachusetts Friday. Both are scheduled to appear for arraignment March 3, said Kurt Schwartz, a Middlesex County assistant district attorney.

Schwartz said Graves, 24, of Atlanta, was with Parish at his home in Weston, Mass., when police discovered the marijuana Thursday.

Asked whether he expected any repercussions, Parish said, "Not to my knowledge. I don't think so. I don't anticipate it being a problem. Time will tell."

Neither Parish nor Graves appeared in court Friday. Asked how he planned to plead to possession charges, Parish

Meadowlark back

NEW YORK (AP) — Meadowlark Lemon is returning to the Harlem Globetrotters.

Lemon, who played for the Globetrotters from 1957-79, signed a contract to play for the touring team through April 10 — the balance of the 1993 domestic tour, team president Michael R. Booker said.

Lemon will launch the beginning of his second farewell tour when the Globetrotters face the Washington Generals on Saturday at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Before retiring, Lemon played in more than 7,500 games.

"The players I'll be sharing the court with are my children's age," Lemon said.

MHS girls fall in practice game

SAN ANGELO — San Angelo's Bobcats, the District 4-5A third place basketball playoff representative, handed the league champions a 60-54 loss Saturday in a post-season warm-up game.

Tiffany Hall led the Lady 'Cats with 23 points.

Amy Alcala led MHS with 17 points while Lisa Koss added 14 for MHS.

The Lady Bulldogs held a sizeable 22-8 lead after the first eight minutes, but San Angelo chipped away and took the lead after three quarters, 45-40. San Angelo outscored MHS 20-12 in the second quarter and 17-6 in the third.

Rangers clinch playoff berth

BIG LAKE — The Greenwood Rangers used a stifling defense along with the scoring of Greg Adams and Ray Seales, nailing down a postseason bid and at least a piece of the District 6-3A boys basketball championship with a 47-23 victory over Reagan County here Friday night.

Greenwood, 8-1 in district and 14-8 for the season, held only a 17-10 lead at halftime. But Adams scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half to launch the Rangers into the playoffs. Seales also scored in double figures with 14 points.

Reagan County dropped to 5-4 in league play with the loss and did not have a player score more than six points.

The Rangers finish the regular season Tuesday, when they play at Crane. A victory over the Golden Cranes would give Greenwood sole possession of the district title. The Rangers will play a representative from District 5-3A in the bi-district round of the playoffs.

In junior varsity play, Reagan County won 67-65. Josh Jones led the way for Greenwood with 20 points, while Carlos Lopez and Blake Durham scored 12 each.

GIRLS: Spots may be hard to come by meaning," said Will Davis, an education board member from Austin, who voted for the rule change.

Davis was referring to the weekly migration that occurs in rural and urban areas across the state to high school football stadiums on fall Fridays.

While the decision is considered a victory in gender equality for girls, many of the state's education leaders believe only a handful will try out.

Tam Hollingshead, coach of traditional football power Odessa Permian, said while he will give girls a fair try out, he is concerned about injuries.

"My concern is football is a very violent sport, and I don't know if there are any young ladies that are physically and mentally prepared for that," Hollingshead said Friday.

"We must afford them the opportunity," he added. "We are going to carry 55 players and we have 103 in the off-season conditioning program right now. Spots on this team are going to be hard to come by."

But don't tell that to the players and coaches involed in today's game, a contest which starts at 2 p.m. at the Midland High soccer field.

In other district action, Odessa High visits Abilene High while Abilene Cooper will be at Odessa Permian. Midland Lee, idle on Saturday, will likely be watching the MHS-San Angelo game with great interest. In girls' action, Lee visits Ector's consolidated Mighty Ducks, while San Angelo hosts the Lady Bulldogs.

An MHS win would establish the Bulldogs as the sole possessor of second place in District 5. Both San Angelo and MHS hold 3-1 league records. Should the Bulldogs come out on the short end, MHS and Lee would be tied for third, with both having 3-2 records.

San Angelo is 7-4 overall; MHS is 9-1 this season.

The Bobcats, who have averaged 2.2 goals through their first 11 games, are led by Kyle Doty, who has accumulated 11 points. Doty has eight goals and three assists. Juan Gutierrez and Sean Siegler both have scored five goals and assisted on two each.

The Bobcats use mainly a two goalkeeper rotation, with Jeffrey Williams and Bobby Taylor getting most of the playing time. Against the competition, the two keepers have allowed an average of a mere 1.5 goals per game.

Olympic committee welcomes back Witt

Associated Press

HAMAR, Norway — Two time Olympic figure skating champion Katarina Witt was allowed back into the Olympic fold Friday and will be allowed to compete in next year's Winter Games if she qualifies on the German team.

American Brian Boitano, however, is still on the waiting list, officials said.

"She is now eligible again to compete," said Beat Hasler, Secretary General of the International Skating Union.

Witt became eligible again under a rule set up by the ISU last June relaxing the "amateur" status to allow professionals performing in shows and competitions back into the Games.

Informally, it is known as the Boitano rule, but the U.S. skater has yet to profit from it.

"The (U.S.) association must still ask for it," said Hasler, but added he was convinced "Boitano will come at the June meeting."

Meanwhile, two American skaters previously were reinstated — Renee Roca and Gorsha Sur, winners of the ice dance title at last month's U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

Roca had given up her eligibility, then asked for reinstatement, while Sur had been doubtful because he had skated for the Soviet Union.

Witt, 27, who also won four World championship and six European titles before turning professional in 1989, announced early this year that she hoped to make a comeback at the Lillehammer Games.

"I have been skating all the time since the Calgary Olympics. As a professional I hardly didn't even leave the ice," Witt said at the time.

But Hasler stressed it was not going to be easy. Witt must qualify in the German championships to be selected for international competition.

"I can well imagine it will be very tough," he said. Depending on the upcoming World Championships in Prague, which are a qualifying event for Lillehammer, Germany will get three Olympic spots if it ends up in the medals, or two if has a top-ten finish.

Hasler said he had doubts about all veterans coming back from the pro ranks.

"In most cases they won't have a chance to qualify," he said.

Sepp Schoenmetzler, a German doctor who has done research on the skaters, said during the European Championships in Helsinki last month that Witt could have problems qualifying.

"Katarina is still hungry for competition, but she could even miss qualification in Germany."

Figure skating changed with new rules introduced in 1990, two years after Witt won her second Olympic gold in Calgary.

Compulsory school figures were dropped. With the emphasis on skating, judges now reward more the athletic ability in executing triple jumps.

Lillehammer going wild over '94 Games

Associated Press

LILLEHAMMER, Norway — With all the celebrations in Lillehammer on Friday, it appeared that somebody got the date wrong.

There is still a year to go until the Winter Olympics open in this small town on Feb. 12, 1994.

But Norwegians, who started counting the days with 1,000 to go, just couldn't wait.

"This is a joyous day for us, with 365 days to go," said Tor Aune, spokesman for the Lillehammer Olympic Organizing Committee.

Lillehammer, a town of about 23,000 in southeastern Norway, was decked out in banners and snow sculptures for Friday's celebrations leading into a two-week Winter Festival locals hope will endure after the Games.

At the opening of Haakons Hall, a hockey rink in the new Olympic Park overlooking town, about 10,000 Norwegians sang a national song of triumph — "Victory is Ours" — premature perhaps but reflecting their hopes for 1994.

Norway won 30 medals at the 1992 Winter Games, third overall, and this country of 4.3 million wants more of the same next year.

Thousands in Lillehammer marched through town in torchlight parades, leading off a party expected to last all night.

"The Olympics are the best thing that has ever happened to Lillehammer," Knut Jevne, a 36-year-old Lillehammer native, said. "I think it's great. It's wonderful.

"Sure there'll be chaos. But it will turn out OK."

If chaos does strike next year, it probably will be because Lillehammer and nearby towns are so small and remote. Only Lake Placid, N.Y., was a smaller Olympic host city.

Aune said about 3,100 hotel and hostel beds were counted in the Lillehammer region last year. The Savoy region of France, where the 1992 Games were held, had 450,000 beds.

Not counting 1,800 athletes from 75-80 countries, and thousands of volunteers, journalists and staff, about 100,000 spectators a day are expected to overrun Lillehammer during the Feb. 12-28 Games.

To cope, locals will have to limit use of their cars so narrow streets and winding roads won't be clogged. Schools will close because the LOOC needs the rooms for accommodations and the school buses as part of a 1,750 vehicle fleet to help transport fans the 110 miles from Oslo.

But such concerns seemed petty in Lillehammer Friday, when the one-year countdown erupted with the largest fireworks display ever in Norway.

Preparing for the $1.05 billion event is a national task for this winter sports crazy country: in terms of pride and price. The state is picking up $670 million of the cost as long-term regional investment.

In Oslo, hundreds marched to a downtown Olympic monument with a huge version of the Lillehammer Olympic symbol Friday. The monument's twin is in Lillehammer.

"Virtually all the permanent buildings are finished, but we still have to put up temporary structures in the weeks or months before the Games," Martin Burkhalter, LOOC vice president for sports, said.

"From a purely sports point of view, we could almost have held the Games this year."

Friends mourn passing of Arthur Ashe

Associated Press

NEW YORK — They came to a great, unfinished cathedral to mourn a great, unfinished life.

The friends and relatives of Arthur Ashe filled the vast nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Friday, and the mood was somber as winter. The mayor said it wasn't a wake, but it felt like one.

"I can not understand," sniffed Seth Abraham, the head of Time Warner Sports and Ashe's friend. "He deserved more time here — for Jeannie, for Camera, for us all."

Ashe's wife, Jeannie, and his 6-year-old daughter, Camera, were among the thousands who filled the cathedral, which was started in 1892 but not yet completed. Sleet pelted against the stained glass windows, and a draft chilled the congregation. Shivering, Mayor David Dinkins asked the eulogist to keep it short.

But people wanted to talk about the departed 49-year-old, who died last Saturday from AIDS complications, and the service stretched more than three hours.

One of Ashe's best friends, Douglas Stein, professed to see no sense to Ashe's death, but said, "Somewhere, sometime, somehow, some greater good will come of his passing. ... The thousands in this cathedral are merely a microcosm of the millions he touched."

Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey lamented Ashe's contraction of HIV, a virus which he received in a blood transfusion — "delivered more randomly than if it were delivered by a single bullet in a game of Russian roulette. ... There is no profundity here, just pain."

For some, it was the second trip uptown this year to mourn a fallen black hero and role model. Last month Clarence Smith, president of Essence Communications, was one of many New Yorkers who rode up Broadway to The Riverside Church for a memorial service for Reginald Lewis, the black multimillionaire who died of brain cancer at age 50.

On Friday, Smith sat in the transept of St. John and pondered the loss this year of Ashe ... and Lewis ... and Dizzy Gillespie ... and Thurgood Marshall.

Regrouped Houston faces Texas Tech

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

■ SWC Preview

It took a couple of non-conference victories to give the Houston Cougars that winning feeling again.

But the killer instinct is still missing.

Once the Southwest Conference favorite and the only team ranked in the top 25 this season, the Cougars lost four league games, dropping to a 4-4 record before road victories at Reno and Cal State Fullerton this week.

"The minute our kids saw their kids (Fullerton) weren't playing, they let down," coach Pat Foster said. "Conditions were bad for both clubs."

Houston (13-6, 4-4) returns to SWC play Saturday against Texas Tech (11-8, 3-5) at noon. In other games, Rice (12-6, 6-2) is at Texas Christian (5-14, 2-6), Texas A&M (7-12, 2-5) is at Baylor (13-6, 5-3) and Texas (7-10, 2-6) plays at Georgia.

Beating Fullerton 77-63 wasn't a strong indication that the Cougars are back. Houston struggled to the victory over a team decimated when coach Brad Holland suspended four players.

The Cougars still face an uphill battle just to make it into the NCAA tournament.

"I think we need to win all seven of our remaining games, especially the Louisville game, to reach 20 wins and make the tournament," Foster said.

Southern Methodist, picked to finish in the middle of the race, beat Texas Tech on Tuesday and then took the week off to enjoy it's SWC lead with an 8-1 SWC record and 15-5 overall.

That gives the Ponies good odds at finishing on top. Since 1980, the mid-term leader has either won or shared the regular season title on all but three occasions. SMU's next game is Tuesday against Texas Christian.

Baylor's 67-55 victory over TCU on Wednesday kept the Bears' hopes alive for a title, but it didn't look good in the first half when the Bears hit only 29 percent from the field.

"I thought we played smart basketball in the second half," Baylor coach Darrel Johnson said. "Our guards did an excellent job of getting the ball inside to (Alex) Holcombe, and that made a big difference."

Rice hasn't played since its overtime loss to SMU on Feb. 6.

SMU also has a favorable schedule with only two more road games at Texas A&M and Rice. They will host TCU, Baylor and Texas to complete their SWC schedule.

Coach John Shumate is using this week to give his team some rest.

"Everything you do has an upside and a downside," Shumate said. "I really think a couple of days off will do us good. We'll get away and get a breather. And we'll have time to get ready for our next game."

Longhorns win again

■ SWC Baseball

AUSTIN (AP) — Pinch-hitter Derrick Duke doubled home two runs in the bottom of the eighth inning Friday as third-ranked Texas rallied past No. 8 Cal State-Fullerton 13-11.

Duke, called on to replace starting designated hitter Shea Morenz against the Titans' left-hander Kimson Hollibaugh, drove a 2-1 pitch into left-center field that scored Brooks Kiescnick and Stephen Larkin and gave Texas (6-1) a 12-11 lead.

The Longhorns' Tony Vasut followed with a fielder's choice grounder that scored Braxton Hickman.

Freshman J.D. Smart (1-0) got the victory by retiring the final six Titan batters.

Hollibaugh (0-2) took the loss for Cal State-Fullerton, which fell for the second time in four outings despite a six-RBI performance by center fielder Dante Powell.

Knicks take air out of Bulls' sails

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Patrick Ewing scored 36 points and the New York Knicks took advantage of Michael Jordan's suspension to beat Chicago 104-98 Friday night for their seventh straight victory.

The loss ended the Bulls' five-game winning streak and was their fifth defeat in five games since 1986 with Jordan out of the lineup.

Jordan was suspended by the NBA earlier in the day for throwing a punch at Reggie Miller of Indiana in an altercation at Indianapolis Wednesday night.

Jordan was fined $10,000 and lost another $48,480 because of the suspension. Miller, who was ejected from the game, was fined $6,000.

Scottie Pippen, like Jordan an All-Star starter, led the Bulls with 35 points, but it wasn't enough as a 15-8 run led by Ewing early in the fourth quarter gave the Knicks an 89-83 lead. The closest the Bulls came after that was three points.

New York led 27-26 after one quarter, but Pippen put the Bulls ahead 33-31, and they never trailed again in the first half although Ewing tied it 42-42 after the Bulls twice had 6-point leads.

Armstrong scored five points in a 9-2 run that gave Chicago a 51-44 lead, but John Starks, who scored 21 points, responded with a 3-pointer that made it 51-47 at halftime.

Hornets 116, Heat 107

MIAMI — Larry Johnson scored 30 points and Muggsy Bogues hit six of his 20 on free throws in the final 26 seconds, helping the Charlotte Hornets beat the Miami Heat.

The Hornets, who held the Heat to 6-of-26 shooting in the fourth quarter, led 108-104 when Alonzo Mourning, who scored 22 points, blocked a hook by Grant Long, leading to two free throws by Bogues for a 110-104 lead with 26 seconds left.

After a 3-point basket by Miami's Steve Smith, Bogues hit two more foul shots for a 112-107 Charlotte advantage with 20 seconds remaining. Bogues converted another two free throws with 11 seconds left after Brian Shaw missed a 3-pointer for Miami.

Kendall Gill, who scored 20 points, scored at the buzzer for the final margin.

The Hornets have won six of seven games and four in a row on the road. to improve their record to 25-21, the first first time the fifth-year franchise has ever stood four games over .500.

Glen Rice scored 21 points and Long 20 for Miami, which played its third straight game without starting center Rony Seikaly, who has the flu.

Timberwolves 102, Pacers 100

INDIANAPOLIS — Christian Laettner scored 22 points and Chuck Person had 18 against his former teammates as the Minnesota Timberwolves sent the Indiana Pacers to their fifth straight loss.

It was just the sixth victory in 22 road games for the Timberwolves and their first win ever at Market Square Arena. It also was the first meeting between the two teams since an offseason trade sent Person and Micheal Williams to the Timberwolves for Sam Mitchell and Pooh Richardson.

Person was welcomed back with a standing ovation by the crowd of 13,975, then proceeded to carry the NBA's lowest scoring team to a 55-50 halftime lead.

Person had 14 points by intermission, including seven straight in a 90-second span. He sparked an 8-0 run after the Pacers rallied to take a 46-45 lead with 3:22 left in the half.

The Timberwolves widened their lead to 11 points on two occasions in the fourth quarter, the second time at 92-81 on Laettner's two free throws with 5:39 to play.

Reggie Miller, who led Indiana with 21 points, closed the margin to 95-94 with a 3-pointer with 1:49 left.

Pistons 106, Nets 97

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Isiah Thomas scored 10 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter and the Detroit Pistons snapped a five-game losing streak with a victory over the New Jersey Nets.

It was the second meeting in three days between the teams. The Nets crushed the Pistons 109-86 on Wednesday night at the Meadowlands.

The game also marked the return of Nets coach Chuck Daly, making his first appearance at The Palace since leaving the Pistons last May.

Melvin Newbern, playing the last game of his 10-day contract, started for Detroit in place of All-Star guard Joe Dumars and scored 20 points. Dumars was sent home with the flu before the game.

Newbern played earlier this season in the now-defunct Global Basketball League after spending the past two seasons in the Continental Basketball Association. Newbern, whose previous high was 14 points Wednesday night in the 23-point defeat, topped that Friday night with 16 points in the first half.

Terry Mills had 22 points and 10 rebounds and Thomas added 14 assists for the Pistons.

Kenny Anderson had 24 points and 10 assists for the Nets, winners of three straight and four of five. Drazen Petrovic added 20 points for the Nets.

Celtics 109, Mavericks 100

DALLAS — Reggie Lewis scored 22 points, including seven in a span of 1:11 late in the game, leading the Boston Celtics to a victory over the Dallas Mavericks.

A three-point play by Lewis with 2:41 remaining gave the Celtics a 97-91 advantage, then he stole the ball and added a free throw.

Another three-point play by Lewis with 1:30 left bumped Boston's advantage to 103-93, assuring its 14th victory in 18 games.

Alaa Abdelnaby scored 24 points and Kevin Gamble 17 for the Celtics, who won their fourth straight and improved their record against the Mavericks to 21-4.

Terry Davis, who left the game in the fourth quarter with back spasms, led Dallas with 21 points. Sean Rooks added 14 points and 13 rebounds for the Mavericks, who have the worst record in the NBA, 4-42.

Cavaliers 120, Buck 98

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Lenny Wilkens won his 846th game as an NBA coach, moving past Bill Fitch into fourth place on the all-time list as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Milwaukee Bucks.

Wilkens now trails only Red Auerbach (938), Jack Ramsay (864) and Dick Motta (856) and would move into second place this season if the Cavaliers go at least 19-13 the rest of the way.

The loss was Milwaukee's fifth straight. Cleveland has won six of its last seven.

The Cavs took control with a 9-0 run in the third quarter that expanded a 3-point lead to 69-57 with 7:03 to play in the period. Mark Price started the flurry with an 18-foot transition basket, and Brad Daugherty finished it off with a three-point play.

The Cavaliers stole the ball three times during the run and five times during the quarter. They built the margin to as many as 25 points in the final period.

JORDAN: Fine is 2nd of year against star

(From 1B)

followed it with a forearm in Jordan's back.

Jordan pursued Miller down the court, grabbing him by the head and throwing a punch to Miller's chin.

Both benches emptied, and the league said each player who came off the bench will automatically be fined $500.

Miller was ejected from the game, but Jordan was not given a foul and was not ejected.

Hill broke a clipboard in protest and was tossed out.

After the game, both Hill and Miller said Jordan was getting special treatment from the league.

"The bottom line is this is a talent league," Hill said. "You've got to have talent, and when you have it you're going to get the benefit of the doubt."

Jordan denied the accusations Wednesday.

"There wasn't a double standard when he knocked me out of bounds," Jordan said. "I thought we both got in a shot at each other, but he took it to an extreme."

Pacers spokesman Dale Ratermann read a statement from president Donnie Walsh Friday which said, "We felt Michael Jordan was going to get suspended because the tapes show he clearly threw a punch and the rules are clear in that situation. Our concern was in Reggie not getting a suspension because he and the team had already been penalized."

Jackson said Jordan should have been ejected if the officials had seen the blow, and the situation would have ended.

Friday's fine was the second levied against Jordan this season. He also was fined $5,000 for criticizing officials after a 123-114 loss to Atlanta Dec. 8.

PARISH: Ordeal called 'unfortunate incident'

(From 1B)

said, "I don't have any plans right now. I'm going to wait and talk to my attorneys. Then I'll give you a statement."

"Until then, I don't have anything to say right now," he said. "I've been advised not to talk about it until it's appropriate."

The NBA's anti-drug policy does not include marijuana and players are not tested for it, said Brian McIntyre, vice president, public relations.

"If criminal charges are filed, we will look into it," he said of Parish's case.

The possession charge is a misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum of six months in jail and a $500 fine. There is a provision for first-time offenders to receive probation, said Schwartz, who knew of no other drug offenses by Parish.

Bob Woolf, Parish's attorney, called the case "an unfortunate incident which has been magnified way out of proportion and will never happen again."

"Robert has cooperated fully and, hopefully, the matter will be concluded promptly," Woolf said Friday.

Meanwhile, two members of the Massachusetts Cannabis Reform Coalition stood outside the courthouse Friday with signs reading "No More Jails — Drug War Fails" and "Stop Persecuting Americans for Pursuing Pleasure."

"We think that it's a monumental waste of police time and taxpayer money," William Downing, the group's president, said. "We want to let him know that there are people who don't think that people who smoke marijuana are monsters."

A drug sniffing dog in San Francisco Wednesday night detected marijuana in a Federal Express package addressed to Parish. The information was relayed to police in Massachusetts.

A police dog again detected marijuana when the package arrived at a Federal Express facility in Natick, Mass.

Officers who obtained a search warrant opened the package and found two ounces of marijuana inside, Schwartz said. After another warrant was obtained for Parish's home, authorities found three more ounces of marijuana.

Schwartz said that quantity may sometimes indicate intent to distribute the drugs. But investigators found none of the records, cash or equipment — such as scales or packaging materials — that typically point to drug dealing.

"We looked very carefully at what we found, and we are very satisfied that the marijuana was intended for the personal use of Robert Parish and Heather Graves," he said.

Parish, at 39, is the NBA's oldest player. He's been a member of the Celtics since 1980 following a trade with Golden State.

Kite leads at Hope Classic

Associated Press

LA QUINTA, Calif. — Tom Kite had his running shoes on.

"It's a track meet out there. You just run as fast as you can," Kite said Friday after an 8-under-par 64 gave him a share of the lead in the Bob Hope Classic.

Kite, the U.S. Open champion, finished three rounds of this five-day, 90-hole event in 198, a distant 18 under par, but couldn't shake Steve Elkington.

Elkington, the Australian Open titleholder, answered Kite's eight birdies and an eagle at Indian Wells with a 66 at Bermuda Dunes. With two rounds remaining, Elkington is tied with Kite and the tournament scoring record of 29 under par is within reach.

"These golf courses are not difficult by today's standards," Kite said. "They don't have the fear factor.

"They're in great conditions. The greens are great. The weather is great. There are more good players. The courses have no defense."

The leaderboard offers an illustration. Ten others are within three shots of the lead.

Masters champ Fred Couples had a 68 at Indian Wells and leads a group at 200, 16 under par, that includes Payne Stewart, Wayne Levi, Billy Glasson, Bob Lohr, Kelly Gibson and Scott Gump.

Glasson and Gibson had 66s and Gump 67 at the Arnold Palmer course at PGA West; Lohr and Levi each shot 66 at Tamarisk; Stewart shot 64 and Couples 68 at Indian Wells.

Lanny Wadkins shot 66 at Indian Wells and was tied at 201 with Dave Rummells and Grant Waite.

Sunday skiers should use extra precautions

Associated Press

■ More Sports/8B

DENVER — Statistics drawn from a study of the 126 Colorado skier deaths over the past 11 years show most of the deaths occurred on Sundays and in the afternoon.

The ski seasons studied were from 1980-81 through 1991-92.

According to the Colorado Health Department study, most ski fatalities occurred on Sunday (23 percent) and most of the deaths (45 percent) occurred between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

The months of February and March accounted for 53 percent of the fatal accidents.

Most of the deaths (81 percent) were instantaneous or within a few minutes of injury.

Downhill skiers accounted for 87 percent of the deaths, with most deaths caused by hitting an object or from avalanches.

Men accounted for 83 percent of the skiing deaths, half from out of state. Skiers between age 20 and 29 made up 44 percent of the deaths, while those between the ages of 30 and 39 accounted for 25 percent of the deaths.

The study also revealed that all the out-of-bounds skiers killed were men and twice as many of the out-of-bounds skiers were from out of state.

NASCAR: Length of Sunday's race biggest rookie obstacle

(From 1B)

ston Cup champion Terry Labonte, began racing go-karts when he was 5. He won the Grand National championship in 1991 and fell only three points short of repeating last season.

Wallace, 29, is the younger brother of another former Winston Cup champion, Rusty Wallace. He was the 1989 Grand National rookie of the year, was runner-up to Labonte in the 1991 championship and has six Winston Cup starts, including a 13th-place finish in the May 1991 at Charlotte.

Gordon is racing for Hendrick Motorsports, which also fields cars for former Winston Cup rookies of the year Ricky Rudd and Ken Schrader, Wallace for Sabco Racing, joining Kyle Petty, and Labonte is running for the new Winston Cup team of Bill Davis, who, ironically was Gordon's car-owner in Grand National racing.

All three made the field for their first Daytona 500.

Gordon will start third, behind pole-winner Kyle Petty and Dale Jarrett and alongside Dale Earnhardt, who won the other qualifying race and said "that Gordon boy" was a good racer.

Wallace finished 12th in his qualifying race and earned the 24th position in the 41-car lineup, just ahead of Labonte, who was 13th in his qualifier.

Labonte, who was involved in a crash Wednesday during practice that wrecked his primary car, said Friday, "This morning I woke up and I was able to breathe a little easier."

"We knew going into the qualifier that we had to finish in the top 15 to get in the race because we had no car-owner points from last year to fall back on for a provisonal, and we were 42nd with our qualifying speed," Labonte said. "Then add to that the fact that we rolled out a car that morning that had never turned a lap."

Wallace said, "We're in the show. That's what we wanted. When the car is right, we can run with the leaders. We'll get it right."

Gordon is simply trying to remain focused and not let his expectations climb too high.

Asked if he was ready to win the Daytona 500, he said, "I wasn't ready to win (the qualifier), but we did. You never know."

Labonte said the biggest obstacle for the three rookies to overcome was the length of Sunday's race.

"It's a 500-mile race and none of the three of us has finished a 500-mile race yet," Labonte said. "Patience is a big factor. You have to be patient and take it one step at a time."

Asked if he was impressed by Gordon's performance Thursday, Labonte said, "He won, didn't he?"

Wallace, asked the question, smiled and replied: "Yes, but we're just getting started."

Preparations for Sunday's race were somber Friday following a crash in the Florida 200 NASCAR Dash Series race in which 51-year-old journeyman driver Joe Booher of Montmorenci, Ind., was killed. He was the 22nd fatality in a motor vehicle accident on the speedway's 2½-mile oval since it was opened in 1959 and the first since Julius Johnson was killed in an ARCA race in February 1990.

Stock vet killed in Florida 200

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — A three-car crash killed 51-year-old driver Joe Booher in the Florida 200 NASCAR Dash series stock car race Friday.

He was the 22nd person killed in a motor vehicle accident on the track at Daytona International Speedway.

Booher, of Montmorenci, Ind., was pronounced dead at Halifax Medical Center. The cause of death was listed as massive internal and head injuries.

Also injured was Rodney White of Gaffney, S.C. White was reported by track officials to be in serious but stable condition at the hospital's intensive surgical care unit. His vital signs were good, but he had facial cuts and two compressed fractures of vertabrae, with no paralysis.

The driver of the third car involved in the accident, Carl Horton, escaped injury and contined in the race.

The accident occurred near the back of the line of cars entering the first turn on the second lap of the 80-lap race.

The right rear of Booher's car and the left front of Horton's car collided, sending Booher's car head-on into the outside wall. The car came back down across the track and was coming to a stop when White's car hit it in the right front.

"I was on the outside and another car came into my left front fender," Horton said. "It turned me sideways. I had no place to go. It was just (hard) racing, I guess."

The Dash series cars are four-cylinder models and the slowest of the four series racing this week in events related to the Daytona 500, NASCAR's premier event.

They use carburetor restrictor plates that limit the cars to about 225 horsepower. That compares with about 550 horsepower for eight-cylinder, restrictor-plate Winston Cup cars in the Daytona 500.

Booher drove in his first race in 1958 and competed on several stock-car circuits.

In 36 superspeedway races on the ARCA circuit since 1970, his best finish was 10th at Daytona in 1980. Also that year, he finished 17th in the Daytona 500, his best Winston Cup finish.

Booher, the 1971 USAC stock car series rookie of the year, was a farmer and a trucker.

He was married and had three children.

Will Hobgood, of Winnsboro, S.C., driving a Pontiac, won the race by 1½ car lengths over Maxie Bush of Conestee, S.C., in a Ford in the 80-lap event. Hobgood averaged 128.182 mph.

Phoenix WR arrested on drug charges

Associated Press

PHOENIX — Police arrested Phoenix Cardinals wide receiver Ernie Jones after discovering crack cocaine and marijuana in his car, a police spokesman said Friday.

Jones, was arrested Thursday night after police stopped his luxury automobile following a license-plate check that indicated the car's registration had been suspended, said Sgt. Kevin Robinson, a police spokesman.

Officers had begun following Jones' car after observing him briefly enter a home under surveillance as a suspected drug-dealing location, Robinson said.

When Jones was pulled over, "he appeared to be very nervous and reached under the seat of the car," Robinson said.

A search of the car turned up small amounts of marijuana and crack cocaine, Robinson said.

LEGEND OF THE DOGWOOD

WHEN JESUS WAS CRUCIFIED HE FORGAVE ALL THOSE WHO TOOK PART IN THIS HORRIBLE EXECUTION (LUKE 23:34). AT SOMETIME IN THE EARLY YEARS OF CHRISTIANITY A LEGEND STARTED THAT, SO COMPLETE WAS HIS FORGIVENESS, EVEN THE WOODEN CROSS WAS INCLUDED! IT WAS SUPPOSED THAT THE TREE FROM WHICH THE WOOD CAME WAS THE DOGWOOD AND BECAUSE OF THIS FORGIVENESS THE TREE NEVER AGAIN GREW LARGE ENOUGH TO SUPPLY WOOD FOR SUCH A TERRIBLE PURPOSE—AND, AS COMMEMORATION, ITS FLOWERS WOULD FORM A CROSS WITH A NAILPRINT AT EACH PETAL'S EDGE, WITH THE CENTER RESEMBLING A CROWN OF THORNS STAINED WITH BLOOD.

TODAY'S BEAUTIFUL DOGWOOD TREES GROW TO A HEIGHT OF EIGHT TO FIFTEEN FEET—NOWHERE NEAR THE SIXTY OR SEVENTY FEET THAT THEIR ANCESTORS ARE SAID TO HAVE ATTAINED, AND ALSO....

...THE PETALS OF ITS LOVELY FLOWER DOES HAVE WHAT APPEARS TO BE A NAILPRINT ON THE EDGE OF EACH PETAL, WHILE THE FLOWER'S CENTER IS A BLOOD-RED COLOR—NEXT TIME THEY'RE IN BLOOM, TAKE A LOOK FOR YOURSELF!

Seminary honors former Midlander

AUSTIN — Former Midlander Judy Record Fletcher was honored by the Austin Seminary Association at its annual banquet and meeting for distinguished service to the church.

Mrs. Fletcher graduated from Lamar University in 1966 and from Austin Seminary in 1969, in a time when few women graduated from seminary, and even fewer congregations sought a woman minister.

She married David Fletcher and they lived here where he was an associate pastor. Mrs. Fletcher was ordained in 1976 and was an educator for the Presbytery of Arkansas Union.

The Fletchers are parents of Brett and co-pastors of Westminister Presbyterian Church, Houston.

Others honored at the same time were Prentice H. Barnett, recently retired as associate executive of the Synod of the Sun; Walter A. Bennett, retired in 1980 after serving congregations throughout this Synod for 37 years; and Carroll L. Pickett, chaplain to the Texas Department of Corrections, Huntsville.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Flexibility will help you handle any kind of crisis. An older person plays a major role in a career or business triumph in late spring. Travel is favored for both work or play this summer. A chance encounter could lead to a permanent romantic alliance. October and December will be your most productive months as far as work is concerned. Find fresh outlets for your managerial talents.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pilot Chuck Yeager, artist Grant Wood, actress Carol Lynley, the Monkees' Peter Tork.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Visitors could intrude on your domestic peace and quiet today. See to overdue household repairs without further delay. Tonight you will want to get out and socialize.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Secret information indicates a project is ready to move forward. A hospital or nursing home patient values hearing from you. Be attentive. Research or a do-it-yourself project is time well spent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic and family affairs are in the spotlight. Eliminate wasteful, expensive pursuits from your schedule. Recreational activities and creative endeavors provide constructive outlets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Creative projects are favored this weekend. Follow an urge to improve your wardrobe or appearance, but do not overspend. Your dealings with the public are in the spotlight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You and a close associate may agree to disagree now. New financial security is part of the picture. A long-sought goal can be achieved. Romance returns for an encore this weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Domestic ties can be either upsetting or exciting, depending on your reaction to someone's unpredictable behavior. Good news is announced in a telephone call.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Those of you who have been overworking need to rest up. Spend the weekend alone or in the company of a select few. Engaging in sports or exercise will help relieve tension.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): In a month filled with great psychic energy, you could find a new sense of direction from a dream. Listen to your intuition. Keep a down-to-earth attitude where finances are concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A day when faulty communication could disable a relationship. Adhere firmly to the facts. Developing better rapport with a younger person will help you make wiser personal decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Today's emphasis on household or family matters could be somewhat depressing unless you keep your poise. Intelligent compromises prove helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You feel more sure of yourself now. A friend's attitude and actions prove inspiring. New projects enjoy highly favorable influences. Keep your thoughts positive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You feel like giving your all to an unusual romantic relationship. Be aware that this attraction will arouse the public's curiosity. Let logic dictate your purchases when shopping for luxuries.

TODAY'S CHILDREN want to live by their own set of rules. Conventional laws and regulations, they feel, need not apply to them. Wise parents will point out that these youngsters' school years will be a lot easier if they learn to conform a bit! Inventive and thorough, these Aquarians have a knack for solving seemingly "impossible" problems. They quickly pick up clues that others have overlooked.

Zanuck, Brown to receive lifetime achievement award

LOS ANGELES Richard D. Zanuck and David Brown, the producing team behind "Jaws" and "The Sting," are receiving a lifetime achievement award from the Producers Guild of America.

Don Hewitt, executive producer of "60 Minutes," will receive the lifetime acheivement award for television at the March 3 ceremony, the guild said Thursday.

Hewitt, winner of seven Emmy awards, has spent 25 years producing the CBS news show.

Zanuck and Brown, whose other films include "Jaws II," "The Sugarland Express" and "The Verdict," were recently presented with an honorary Academy Award.

Zanuck and his wife, Lili Fini Zanuck, were named Producers of the Year by the guild for 1989's "Driving Miss Daisy."

LOS ANGELES — Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel, whose hits "The Sounds of Silence" and "Bridge Over Troubled Water" enraptured a generation, will reunite next month for a concert to benefit homeless kids.

The March 1 acoustical performance at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion will benefit Children's Health Fund, which provides free health care to thousands of homeless and needy children, said event spokeswoman Debby Klein.

Tickets at prices ranging from $100 to $500 go on sale Monday.

The concert also will feature a performance by Neil Young and an appearance by comic-actor Steve Martin.

The Simon & Garfunkel reunion will be the duo's third in 13 years. They sang together in Central Park in 1980 and again in 1983, performing at Shea Stadium in New York and Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles.

They broke up over personal and professional differences shortly after receiving a Grammy Award in 1970 for "Bridge Over Troubled Water."

* * *

LOWELL, Mass. — Former presidential hopeful Paul Tsongas is finishing up treatment for his latest bout with cancer, and starting to talk politics again.

Tsongas

"It's nice to be back in action," said Tsongas, who was interviewed about the deficit this week by National Public Radio's "All Things Considered."

He said President Clinton has been tougher on economics than he expected, but that Clinton stumbled by pressuring Judge Kimba Wood to withdraw from consideration as attorney general after reports that she had hired an illegal alien.

Tsongas was diagnosed with large-cell lymphoma last fall. He is scheduled to complete his treatment Feb. 24.

A previous bout with cancer forced him to resign from the U.S. Senate. He returned to politics as a Democratic presidential candidate for 1992, but halted his campaign because of money problems.

Tsongas turns 52 on Sunday.

* * *

NORWALK, Conn. — Andy Rooney made good on a $5,000 challenge he issued to the local United Way if the organization would let him examine its books.

Rooney

The commentator on CBS's "60 Minutes" said he is concerned about an alleged attempt by former national President William Aramony to obtain a $4.4 million pension, and an unreleased audit that is expected to be critical of the national operation.

In January, Rooney said he would donate $5,000 if the local United Way granted access to records for the past three years to an accountant, a reporter and himself.

He made good on the pledge Tuesday.

"It bothers me," Rooney said, "but I can't hold that against these local guys who seem to be honest and hardworking."

* * *

METAIRIE, La. — Louise Mandrell will be grand marshal of this year's Krewe of Argus parade for Mardi Gras.

The country music singer will ride the first float in the suburban New Orleans parade on Feb. 23 and possibly sing, parade organizers said.

Mandrell is known for her songs "Some of My Best Friends Are Old Songs," and "Save Me."

LOS ANGELES — Actor-director Bill Bixby says that with help from a powerful new drug, he's committed to destroying the prostate cancer inside him.

He compares the cancer to "The Incredible Hulk," the character he portrayed in the old TV series — "this creature in me that I did everything to suppress and keep from coming out, to defeat it.

"And now in my real life I have this creature inside of me that I'm obligated to overcome," Bixby said in an interview.

Bixby, 59, is one of the few cancer patients being treated with the powerful drug Suramin, which he says has substantially eliminated pain and allowed him to return to work.

Peacekeepers may leave Croatia, Boutros-Ghali says

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. chief hinted Friday that the world body's 14,000 peacekeepers may be withdrawn from Croatia, despite the increased bloodshed almost certain to explode from such a move.

U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali told the Security Council that the peacekeepers had been powerless to stop a Croatian offensive that renewed war in the former republic after nearly a year of peace. He said that unless the fighting stops, peacekeepers may have to withdraw.

His warning, in a letter to the council, seemed intended to pressure the warring parties to reach a political agreement within the next six weeks, while the peacekeepers are still in place.

He seemed to be trying specifically to pressure Serbs in Croatia to accept the creation of an autonomous Serb region under Croatian control. The Serbs want to be part of Serbia, which is not adjacent to all the areas of Croatia they control.

But Boutros-Ghali conceded that a withdrawal of the U.N. force "would almost certainly result in the resumption of large-scale hostilities" in Croatia.

That in turn could scrap the complicated efforts to bring peace in neighboring Bosnia between warring Serbs, Croats, and Muslims. "If we fail in Croatia, there will be no hope for Bosnia," said Croatian Ambassador Mario Nobilo.

Talks aimed at ending the fighting in Croatia were to open at the United Nations next week. A diplomat said mediators would try to achieve an overall political settlement protecting the rights of the Serbs.

Failing that, the U.N. peacekeepers could be pulled out of Croatia, said the diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The new U.S. mediator for Yugoslavia, Reginald Bartholomew, arrived in Moscow for talks with Russian leaders, some of whom have been leaning toward support for the Serbs in recent months.

Hard-liners in the Supreme Soviet legislature have demanded that President Boris Yeltsin reverse Russia's position and support Orthodox Serb brethren in Serbia. They also want the Security Council to place sanctions on Croatia because of its offensive against the Serb enclave of Krajina.

Russia is expected to send its own special negotiator to the peace talks next week, said Britain's U.N. ambassador, David Hannay. It was expected to be deputy Foreign Minister Vitaly Churkin, Russia's point man on Yugoslavia recently.

In Bosnia, Sarajevo's city council said it would stop delivering U.N. food from its warehouses. A newspaper said the council was forcing the city to go on "hunger strike" to pressure the United Nations to deliver more food to starving eastern Bosnian towns.

U.N. peacekeepers have been unable or unwilling to break Serb roadblocks preventing supplies from reaching towns in the east.

Lord Owen, who with Cyrus Vance has led peace negotiations for Bosnia, said, "No one should try to call attention in one part by creating problems in another part."

U.S. State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said the United States deplored the council's decision, but said he understood that a U.N. aid airlift would continue because stocks needed replenishing.

Along with the talks next week with Croatian Serbs and Croats, Vance and Owen will resume negotiations among Bosnia's warring Muslims, Serbs and Croats.

"There isn't in any of this much time. There is a war going in on Bosnia-Herzegovina, and there's unfortunately been exacerbation, new fighting in Croatia," Owen told reporters after meeting with the Security Council.

"So we will actually be having two parallel negotiations going. It's going to be a tough load on us," he said.

Boutros-Ghali told the Security Council on Friday that unless the Croatian offensive stops and the Serbs and Croats in that country begin meaningful pace talks to settle their dispute, the nearly 14,000-member U.N. Protection Force in Croatia will be powerless and should be withdrawn. At least 18 peacekeepers have been killed.

Boucher said "We are sympathetic to his concerns." But he said withdrawing the peacekeepers could lead to more violence.

OPEC attempts to cut oil output, raise prices

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Kuwait, which seeks to recover its output following the Iraqi invasion, looked like the wild card Friday in OPEC's efforts to cut oil production and push crude prices higher.

One after another, ministers arriving for a strategy session of the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries expressed a readiness to mop up some of the oil glut on the market.

But Kuwait's minister, Ali al-Baghli, just shrugged his shoulders.

"There are so many alternatives and options to be discussed," he said as he arrived for the talks scheduled to start Saturday.

Kuwait will be key to the cartel's efforts to bump prices up more than $3 a barrel to the cartel's target of $21 a 42-gallon barrel. Yet the emirate has a different agenda, as it works to boost output to levels before the 1990 invasion.

Ministers were expected to settle on a cut of at least a million barrels a day in OPEC's current total output of slightly more than 25 million barrels a day.

Saudi Arabia, the cartel's most influential member, put the proposal on the bargaining table, but all OPEC nations, including Kuwait, would have to pledge to reduce their output to make the agreement stick.

Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqazadeh suggested he might go along with an even deeper cut. And Libya's Abdalla Salem el-Badri said a million-barrel-a-day reduction was a first step to improving prices.

"The future of OPEC (is) at stake," he said.

Nigeria's oil minister, Philip Asiadou, promised his nation would take part in any cuts. Nigeria's state-owned Daily Times reported the government had alerted oil companies to be ready to clip output by 6 percent. The nation pumps nearly 2 million barrels a day.

OPEC has broken so many past promises to curtail production that oil markets have become skeptical of its agreements.

Baghdad gives inspectors cold shoulder

N.Y. Times News Service

BAGHDAD, Iraq — U.N. weapons inspectors got a frosty reception when they arrived on Friday to evaluate Iraq's remaining ballistic missile installations.

"I was a little bit surprised," said Patrice Palanque, a Frenchman who heads the 13-member team of ballistic missile experts. "This is the first time that nobody was there to wait for us."

Palanque, whose group and support staff flew from Bahrain, said the reception was not a "big deal." But he said the Iraqi authorities were more hospitable on the team's eight previous visits.

"For the first time we had to spend some time waiting for our bus and waiting for a long time for having our visas," he added.

Baghdad's handling of the weapons experts is seen as a crucial test of whether it is genuinely trying to improve relations with the West and the United Nations.

The government's approach on Friday contrasted with its handling of other weapons inspections groups who arrived during the last few weeks. The teams are usually met by a high-level Iraqi escort and their visa applications are processed quickly.

The inspections resumed after a standoff over U.N. flights over Iraq was broken when several air attacks by U.S.-led forces punctuated the allies' insistence that Iraq follow U.N. dictates.

Iraq is eager to end crippling sanctions, overcome its renegade image and restore oil exports to rebuild its shattered economy.

Though Baghdad has repeatedly said it has fully complied with U.N. Security Council resolutions, it has so far refused to hand over a complete list of foreign suppliers for its nuclear weapons program and has yet to agree to long-term monitoring.

Under the terms of the Persian Gulf War cease-fire, Iraq must permit inspection and destruction of its nuclear, chemical, ballistic and biological weapons and programs. It must also allow long-term monitoring of programs to prevent it from developing weapons of mass destruction.

The ballistic missile group is part of the special commission assigned to find and destroy Iraq's weapons of mass destruction. The inspectors will spend the next eight days investigating whether Iraq still has or can develop long-range missiles.

Asked if Iraq was still hiding ballistic missiles, Palanque said, "I have no information to answer this question and I don't want to comment about that right now."

He said 151 ballistic missiles, including about 53 Scuds, were destroyed on previous visits. Iraq unleashed Scud missiles armed with conventional warheads on Israel and Saudi Arabia during the gulf war. It reportedly still has 100 to 200 Scuds.

Parliament passes budget

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Parliament passed a tight state budget Friday, averting a government crisis and clearing the way for an International Monetary Fund agreement and for debt forgiveness by the West worth $12 billion.

The vote was seen as a test of Poland's determination to carry on with tough economic reforms that have helped it become the first post-Communist country in eastern Europe to register growth.

The World in brief

■ Peacekeepers get free sex magazines

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — In the Dutch army, gay rights means gay soldiers are also entitled to free sex magazines.

After sending 1,100 copies of Playboy to its troops on peacekeeping duty in the Balkans, the army has agreed to send 150 issues of a similar publication for gays, Lt. Col. Paul Hartman said Friday.

Both the Dutch version of Playboy and MaGAYzine are being provided free-of-charge by the publishers, said Hartman, the army's chief spokesman.

"We'll send them to the different posts. If someone there wants to read it, they can read it. It's their own choice," Hartman said.

Hartman wouldn't comment on whether he thought the gay magazines would affect discipline or morale.

Homosexuals and lesbians are permitted to serve in the Dutch military without restrictions, and have their own union to fight for their rights.

■ Soldiers raid wedding, wound father

JERUSALEM (AP) — Undercover Israeli soldiers raided a Palestinian wedding party in an occupied West Bank village, wounding the father of the bride and arresting her brother, Arab reports said Friday.

The Israeli army said troops carried out a raid in Barta on Thursday afternoon, but would not say whether the target was a wedding reception nor whether the soldiers were in civilian dress.

Arab reports said the soldiers shot and wounded the bride's father, Yousef Kabaha, in the leg while arresting her brother Marouf, 28. Two other men were also arrested at the party.

The army confirmed that Marouf Kabaha was arrested and said he has been wanted for a year on suspicion of weapons possession and attacking alleged Arab collaborators. Kabaha was a leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization's mainstream Fatah faction in Barta, it said.

■ Council OKs exiles return from Israel

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council ended its clash with Israel over the exile of more than 400 Palestinians by accepting Friday Israel's offer to repatriate 101 men as a first step toward bringing them all home.

The compromise enables Palestinian negotiators to return to Middle East peace talks in a few weeks without losing face over the issue. Arab nations had said they would not return to the bargaining table until all the men were repatriated.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher leaves next Wednesday on a visit to Arab countries and Israel to try to reopen peace negotiations.

The understanding was reached in a private meeting between Snoussi and Israeli Ambassador Gad Yaacobi after Snoussi consulted all council members. There was no resolution or statement, though the deal was announced publicly.

■ Tokyo duck survives arrowing experience

TOKYO — Japan's biggest duck hunt ended Friday.

After wobbling along a concrete Tokyo canyon for two weeks with hundreds of photographers and city workers giving chase, Yagamo the duck was netted and rushed to the vet for removal of an arrow that had pierced her back.

She was reported to be nesting comfortably.

Yagamo's capture made the front page of the evening edition of the Asahi newspaper, which has a total circulation of 12.7 million. The color photo was larger than the shot of Foreign Minister Michio Watanabe meeting President Clinton.

"Heartwarming news," said ministry spokesman Masamichi Hanabusa.

He wasn't talking about Watanabe's visit to Washington.

Yagamo's suffering had become a regular fixture of news shows in Japan. Even Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa had expressed sympathy.

The two-week rescue effort by 300 employees of the city cost $33,500.

Scientists study squirrels for stroke treatments

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Scientists seeking new treatments for strokes have set out to solve one of Mother Nature's puzzles: Why don't squirrels wreck their brains when they hibernate?

When the scientists put squirrels into artificial hibernation, they found what they called "astonishing" changes in the way the animal's bodies work.

All their internal workings virtually shut down. The flow of blood to their brains is so light that in a human, or any other non-hibernating animal, it would immediately result in a stroke.

"What's really fascinating is that the animal is able to transform itself this way without dying," said Dr. Kai Frerichs, who conducted the experiments at the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke in Bethesda, Md.

Frerichs described his findings Friday at a stroke conference sponsored by the American Heart Association.

The goal of the studies is simple: If scientists learn how hibernating animals protect their brains from the disastrous effects of too little blood, then maybe doctors can harness the same strategy to treat people who have suffered strokes.

The studies were conducted on 13-lined ground squirrels — so named because of the 13 lines on their backs.

The animals were hooked to sensors that measure temperature, metabolism, heart beats and brain waves. Then, they were placed in a dark, 41-degree chamber.

Among the changes:

—Body temperatures quickly fell from their normal 98 — just like people — to 42.

—Heart rates plunged from their normal 300 or 400 beats per minute to five or 10.

—Blood flow to the brain fell to 10 percent of normal. Some parts of their brains appeared to get no blood.

—Metabolisms — the rate at which they burned energy — appeared to be close to zero.

—They seemed to manufacture no new proteins.

—Their blood streams were wiped almost clear of all white blood cells.

Yet when the animals awoke from hiberation, which can last for weeks, they were normal.

The mystery, of course, is how they do it. Why don't their brain cells break down and die when deprived of oxygen and nutrients?

Something keeps the cells in balance. Frerichs said one theory is that the cells' membranes become impervious to the normal flow of elements back and forth.

Typically, when cells lack blood, potassium leaks out of them and calcium flows in. These and other changes, which ultimately destroy the cells, may somehow be blocked during hibernation.

Economy continues slow improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices remained under control in January, business sales jumped sharply a month earlier, and mortgage rates dropped to a 20-year low this week, said reports Friday suggesting the economy continues to improve slowly.

"The expansion is solidly in place," contended economist Cynthia Latta of DRI-McGraw-Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting service. "It's just going to remain quite moderate,"

"We're moving in the right direction," agreed Ron Schriebman, vice president of the National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors. "We just need to pedal faster and create some more jobs."

The Labor Department said its Producer Price Index edged up 0.2 percent in January following a 0.1 percent advance a month earlier and 0.1 percent declines in October and November.

But the report showed that much of the increase was in energy products and automobiles. Food prices were down. At an annual rate, wholesale inflation was running at 2 percent, just slightly more than the 1.6 percent in 1992.

At the same time, the Commerce Department said business sales shot up 1.9 percent in December, outpacing the 0.4 percent buildup in inventories, including a 1.7 percent jump in retail stockpiles.

Analysts were unable to explain the surge in the retail backlog, which occurred at the same stores were boasting an 0.8 percent increase in sales during the strongest holiday shopping season in four years.

Still, the overall inventories-to-sales ratio fell to 1.46, the lowest level in at least 10 years. That means that it would take 1.46 months to exhaust backlogs at the December sales pace.

Slim inventories often mean increased production and more jobs as businesses try to meet increased demand as the economy picks up.

In good news for home buyers, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages averaged 7.75 percent this week. That was the lowest since rates averaged 7.73 percent during the week ended June 15, 1973.

Analysts have attributed recently falling rates to rising housing activity. The latest reports show new home sales rising 6.3 percent in December at the same time sales of previously owned homes were up 5 percent.

In the wholesale price report, the Labor Department said food prices dropped 0.9 percent in January after jumping 1.3 percent a month earlier. Vegetable prices, which shot up 48.4 percent in December, fell back 19.2 percent last month.

Energy prices, on the other hand, rose 0.9 percent including a 2.9 percent boost in gasoline prices.

Gore assures lawmakers space station budget will not be cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Al Gore assured two lawmakers Friday that no money will be cut from NASA's space station, denying speculation that President Clinton was set to deal the project a fatal blow.

Sen. Howell Heflin of Alabama and Rep. Jack Brooks of Texas, both Democrats from states with heavy space station employment, said Gore told them Clinton would ask Congress for $2.25 billion for the project in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Marla Romash, spokeswoman for Gore, confirmed the vice president had given assurances that station development would continue.

"The goal is to take steps to preserve the benefits of the space station in terms of space science and technology but also to recognize that steps need to be made to keep costs under control and to clean up the management problems we've seen," Romash said.

A White House source, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed the $2.25 billion budget figure.

In a related development Friday afternoon, John Aaron, the head of the space station project at the Johnson Space Center in Houston quit two hours after his ouster was demanded by Sen. Bob Krueger, D-Tex. Krueger blamed Aaron for a $500 million cost overrun at the Texas center.

The fate of the space station, which is the biggest engineering and scientific project currently under way in government, had been the subject of intense speculation in the capital and at NASA facilities around the country for a week.

It was learned last week that Budget Director Leon Panetta, at a retreat of Cabinet officers and the president at Camp David, had urged the cancellation of the station and of the $8.2 billion superconducting super collider. But asked whether the projects would be eliminated, Clinton said "that's not true."

On Thursday, reports circulated on Capitol Hill that Clinton would cut the space station request by 40 percent to $1.35 billion. But Brooks said flatly, in a news release, that "Space Station Freedom will be in the President's FY 1994 budget at the level of $2.25 billion."

Heflin said he had been told by Gore that "there will be basically the same amounts as the present year, about $2.1 billion and could go up to $2.25 billion."

He said the administration was "very much interested in keeping the space station intact."

Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., chairman of the House science and space committee, said Clinton made no specific commitment to two dozen members of Congress who met with him in the afternoon, although the station was discussed.

"We are in the middle of a trial balloon," he added. "There is a little hot air involved. We are also in the middle of a bitter struggle with contending forces of various kinds putting cutting the deficit above the nation's investment in research and development."

Clinton was asked at a photo opportunity about cutting money for the space station and the superconducting super collider and he replied: "Tune in Wednesday." Clinton addresses a joint meeting of Congress on that day.

Meanwhile, a congressional opponent of the project said Clinton should kill the $30 billion project outright.

"Downsizing will serve neither station supporters or deficit hawks," said Rep. Dick Zimmer, a New Jersey Republican. "We will end up spending an enormous amount of money on a scientifically indefensible contraption with hardly any useful capabilities."

"We can live with $1.9 billion or $2 billion," said Brown before the White House meeting. But, he said, bringing the financing down to $1.3 billion would not be enough.

Lawyers probe 'dateline' debacle

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC News President Michael Gartner told his staff Friday the network has hired two outside lawyers to investigate the "Dateline NBC" report that provoked a defamation lawsuit from General Motors Corp.

"We must move on," Gartner said. "We cannot let ourselves be defined by 57 seconds," he said, a reference to the Nov. 17 "Dateline NBC" sequence in which a GM pickup truck was rigged with incendiary devices that burst into flames in a broadside crash.

NBC spokeswoman Tory Beilinson confirmed that the meeting had taken place.

GM sued NBC on Monday. The network settled the lawsuit Tuesday with a detailed, on-air "Dateline NBC" retraction and apology to GM. No disciplinary action against the responsible "Dateline NBC" staffers has been announced.

Gartner packed all NBC News staffers into a large conference room at the network's mid-Manhattan headquarters for Friday's meeting. NBC's foreign and domestic bureaus were linked by telephone.

The hourlong session included a question and answer period.

Ms. Beilinson said NBC has retained Robert S. Warren, a senior partner of the Los Angeles firm of Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher, and former Columbia Law School professor Lewis B. Kaden, a partner in the New York firm of Davis, Polk and Wardwell.

Warren "has represented newspaper and television news for 25 years," and Kaden "has long been involved in legal issues involving complex organizations," according to a statement from NBC.

House chair's leak complaint dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Friday dismissed House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski's complaint that prosecutors leaked details about a grand jury's investigation of him to the media.

"The court is satisfied that the government has shown that it was not the source of the leaks," said Chief U.S. District Court Judge John Garrett Penn.

Based on denials in sworn affidavits from U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens, former Attorney General William P. Barr, FBI Director William Sessions and 71 other prosecutors, federal officials or law enforcement officers, Penn said he is convinced "that the government did not divulge the information," related to the grand jury's probe of irregularities at the House Post Office.

Rostenkowski has acknowledged that stamp purchases by his office and their alleged conversion into cash are being probed. But he has denied any wrongdoing and accused Stephens, a Republican, of politicizing the investigation.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., last week asked Penn to hold an open-court hearing on why Stephens should not be held in contempt for violating grand jury secrecy rules. The congressman cited 13 newspaper and magazine articles and two television broadcasts about various aspects of the investigation.

He also said that Stephens' appearance on the "MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour" and statement there that an Internal Revenue Service agent was expected to join the investigation suggested that "IRS personnel no doubt had access to the grand jury information."

Penn concluded earlier that, on the surface of them, six articles in The Washington Post, The Washington Times, the Chicago Tribune, Time and Newsweek and a CNN videotape news report "appeared to reveal information that was presented to the grand jury."

Mali dictator sentenced to death

BAMAKO, Mali (AP) — Ousted military dictator Moussa Traore and three top aides were convicted Friday of killing unarmed pro-democracy protesters and sentenced to death.

The verdict ended a 12-week trial. Twenty-eight other former Cabinet ministers and army officers were acquitted on similar charges, but only eight were freed. The rest are to be also tried on corruption charges.

Gen. Traore is the first African president to be condemned to death since a democracy movement began sweeping the continent three years ago with strikes and violent protests.

Traore denied ordering the killings. Tried with him were his defense minister, Gen. Mamadou Coulibaly; interior minister, Sekou Ly, and chief of army staff, Col. Ousmane Coulibaly. The two men named Coulibaly are not related.

Soldiers killed up to 250 people, mostly students, early in 1991 in trying to halt riots that erupted after they fired into a crowd of peaceful demonstrators.
