Blast kills crusader

PALERMO, Sicily — An explosion blamed on the Mafia killed Italy's leading anti-Mafia crusader, his wife and at least three others as they drove on a crowded highway outside Palermo Saturday, police said. The assassination of Giovanni Falcone was the most sensational Mafia hit in 10 years and shocked the political establishment in Italy, which is without a permanent head of state or premier for the first time since World War II./7A

Four times double

MANKATO, Minn. — Elvira Guillen gave birth to her fourth set of twins and is about ready to throw in the diapers, the teething rings, the bibs, and the bottles. "That's enough already. No more," the mother of nine said Friday, one day after delivering 6-pound Ivanna and her 7-pound sister, Yvette, at Immanuel-St. Joseph's Hospital in Mankato. Mrs. Guillen, 29, and her husband, Jesus, say they conceived all their children without fertility drugs. The Guillen's doctor said the odds of four consecutive sets of twins without fertility drugs is 1 in 64 million.

Storm threats cloud holiday

■ NWS: 50 percent chance of showers today, 30 percent chance of thunderstorms on Memorial Day.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

The storm that came to town Friday may not leave until Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Although some blue sky could be spotted between the clouds late Saturday afternoon, Midlanders shouldn't get their hopes up.

"It's going to be a little warmer (late today), but as soon as it gets a little warmer we increase the threat of thunderstorms," a NWS spokesman said.

By Saturday afternoon, the storm, which remained stationary, had drenched the city with 2.25 inches of rain. The normal rainfall for the entire month of May is just 2.78 inches.

As a result, the Permian Basin remained under a flash-flood watch Saturday evening because of the potential for even more rain — as much as 2 more inches.

The heavy rains caused some Midland streets to flood, although law-enforcement officials reported no

TAAS scores test schools

Midland students 'barely on target'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is Part I of a three-part series that will focus on the TAAS exam and options being considered in Midland public schools to help students prepare for the TAAS test score well.

"If you would hit the mark, you must aim a little above it."
— Elegaic verse

By Myra Lee Salcedo

If the latest state standardized test were a dart "TAAS" (toss), then Texas public schools have missed the mark.

TAKING AIM AT TAAS TESTING
Missing the mark

More than half of students statewide failed the TAAS (Texas Academic Assessment of Academic Skills) test, and about 40 Midland students will not get their diplomas at graduation because of failing the exit-level test.

While Midland students managed to match or top state averages, the percentages passing all three tests still are barely on target, according to Midland Independent School District administrators.

For example, at the seventh-grade level, only 35 percent of students statewide passed all three sections of the TAAS exam — reading, writing and math. In Midland, 36 percent of students passed all three sections. Although MISD students topped the

Concerned parents should call counselors

By Myra Lee Salcedo

"My teen-ager, a freshman in advanced geometry failed one section of the TAAS test. Should I be concerned? Will the school take care of this? How could he fail simple math problems? What should I do about this?" said a concerned father recently.

To start with, Midland parents should look at the TAAS (Texas Assessment of Academic Skills) confidential reports the school district sent in the mail with students' report cards.

The first page of the two-page report lists scores for each section of the test and a simple "yes" or "no" in a box stating: "Met minimum expectations on (writing, reading or math) competencies." If the box states "no," then the student failed that portion of the test.

To understand what objectives the student didn't answer correctly, look at the second page of the report where it lists "Improvement needed."

For example, on a page where a freshman student failed

AUSTIN — Starting Friday, there'll be a whole lotto lucky going on.

Or at least that's what many Texans will be hoping when the first Texas Lottery tickets go on sale at 6 a.m.

Seconds later, players will know if they're winners when they scratch off the latex cover to reveal whether they've won a $2 or $10,000 prize, or qualified for a drawing to win $1 million.

Lottery officials are expecting to sell between 17 million and 25 million of the $1 tickets on the first day — or more than enough for every man, woman and child in Texas.

By the end of the first week, Lottery Director Nora Linares predicts, Texas will have sold more than 95 million tick-

Strong Perot showing in poll draws varying interpretations

Dallas billionaire tops area call-in survey

Staff report

Nearly two-thirds of callers to the Cityline COMMUNITY PULSE last week would back Ross Perot in a three-way race for president, if the election were held today.

Cityline Community Pulse

More than 850 callers responded during the six days of the survey with 563 — 65.5 percent of the total — choosing Perot. Among callers leaving comments was Max Black, who said, "I like Ross Perot because he shoots at you square, he doesn't hold anything back and he answers every question straightforward."

Caller Gary Harrington summed up the feelings of many pro-Perot respondents, saying "I think it's way past time for some monumental changes in Washington."

With a strong showing late in the week, President Bush came in second in the unscientific phone-in survey, with 23.8 percent — representing 204 of the 859 total callers.

Results of a Cityline COMMUNITY PULSE presidential poll — which showed Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot well ahead of President Bush and Democrat Bill Clinton — reflect a general dissatisfaction with both political parties, local officials said.

But was the heavy support for Perot just a protest vote or was it an indication of what could happen this November?

Hal Rachal, who spearheaded the Perot petition drive in Midland, interprets the large support for Perot as indicative of what will come this fall.

"Since this is the sentiment where George Bush lived several years, think what the sentiment will be nationwide on November 3," he said.

"Ross Perot will be our next president. He has the opportunity of being the best since Abraham Lincoln. Maybe Perot can finish what Lincoln started and eliminate racism," Rachal said, referring to the U.S., four former Soviet republics sign missile treaty

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press writer

LISBON, Portugal — The United States and four former Soviet republics Saturday signed an agreement to implement the START missile-reduction treaty, a step Secretary of State James A. Baker III hailed as reducing the risk of nuclear war.

Baker and the four foreign ministers met in a six-minute ceremony at a hotel banquet room which ended with the secretary of state quipping: "Is that it?"

The protocol binds the four republics to the terms of nuclear arms cuts accepted by the Soviet Union before its disintegration last December.

It is "one of the most important international documents that have been worked on in recent times," said Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev.

The agreement sets the stage for hearings on Senate ratification and negotiations with Russia to trim strategic nuclear arsenals below the decreases already mandated by the accord.

Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Belarus have agreed to remove all of all their long-range nuclear weapons within the seven years the treaty requires for cuts of about 38 percent, overall, in Soviet long-range nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines and about 30 percent of U.S. arsenals.

And all three already have transported all their short-range nuclear weapons to Russia for dismantling there.

"We have laid the foundations for further stabilizing reductions in strategic offensive arms and expanded the nuclear non-proliferation regime," Baker said in a statement.

The agreement "significantly lowers the risk of nuclear war," the secretary of state added.

Secretary of State James Baker offers a glass of water to France's Minister for European Affairs, Elisabeth Guigou, before ceremonies for the missile treaty signing got under way.

Kozyrev said Russia expects the other former Soviet republics to "rapidly fulfill" their pledge to get rid of all their nuclear weapons.

He raised the possibility that the Russian parliament would delay ratification until the three other republics fulfill their promises to sign the 1968 Non-Proliferation Treaty.

The treaty prohibits the acquisition or export of nuclear technology.

Kozyrev said Russia expects the signing "will take place no later than the coming into force of the treaty."

U.S. officials said that simply was Russia's "view" and that there was no such requirement in the six-page protocol.

The officials, who briefed reporters under rules that barred identifying them, said the Russian statement did not pose a problem to reducing missile arsenals.

Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Belarus will, over seven years, eliminate more than 3,000 strategic warheads and Russia about 2,000 at a minimum.

"We intend to press that very hard," one of the U.S. officials said about the double commitment by Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Belarus to scrap their long-range warheads and sign the non-proliferation treaty.

The ceremony, briefly delayed while foreign ministers met elsewhere in town to discuss aid to the former Soviet Union, culminates nearly six months of tedious negotiations.

Ukraine now ranks as the third-most-powerful nuclear nation in the world, and Kazakhstan is right behind, in fourth place.

Together, they have more nuclear weapons on their soil than Britain, France and China, combined.

Along with Belarus, which has a small arsenal of 72 strategic nuclear warheads, the three newly independent states have promised to become nuclear-free by the end of the century.

Baker will meet on Sunday with Kozyrev to begin planning for a new round of missile cuts.

Baker aides said they did not know when the administration would begin its drive for Senate ratification.

"The window for ratification of START is not going to be open all that much longer," he said.

Haitians plan to flee despite U. S. policy

BELLOC, Haiti (AP) — Four Haitians who tried twice to flee their homeland by sea made plans Saturday for another try, despite a U.S. Coast Guard decision to refuse assistance to all but sinking refugee boats.

The four young men, among 259 Haitian boat people repatriated Thursday, led visitors past fields of 12-foot-high sugar cane to the shoreline — and another waiting vessel.

Three other 28-foot vessels were being built within a mile on the coast, an indication of Haitians' determination to leave.

"When I'm here right now, the army can come and kill me," Leslie Glantet said in this rural hamlet 25 miles south of Port-au-Prince. "But when we are on the boat, they can't get me."

Glantet, 31, along with friends Ronald Lericher, Saintilien Hilair and Stephen Fendon, have tried twice to escape. They sailed away Nov. 5, reaching Cuba. Cuban authorities didn't let them continue onto the United States, and they said they spent five months in a refugee camp before being allowed to fly back home on a U.N. refugee flight in April.

On May 2, just before midnight, they tried again, but were picked up by a Coast Guard cutter and lived nearly three weeks at the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, before U.S. authorities shipped them out.

AP Laserphoto

A 28-foot sailboat sits on the Haitian shoreline, awaiting provisions for a journey to the United States.

"When we left Guantanamo, they even took the blankets away from us," Lericher said outside his house. He looked up at his mother, Desilia Etienne, who said she hoped one of her 10 children could get to Miami and make money to help make ends meet.

She said the international embargo has killed her business of selling goat meat "because people don't have the money to buy."

The embargo was put into place by the Organization of American States after the ouster of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide by the army. Aristide was Haiti's first freely elected president, and was respected by the neighborhood for trying to end the reign of rural sheriffs, or section chiefs, who have repressed ordinary citizens since the Duvalier dictatorship.

The four young men spoke of police beatings of high school students, the arrests following Thursday's general strike and the dumping of fatally shot bodies in the capital nearly every day.

"If we have security in the country and we have work, then we have no intention to go anywhere," Lericher said. "If we don't have security and they send us back — we're always going to go the same way."

He said the group had wanted to leave again last night, but by the time they had gotten to another vessel, it had left without them. He said they have to pay only for food and water, but would make the journey even without it.

The group then took the 30-minute walk on a dirt path made muddy in the rainy season.

At the end was the latest vessel on the beach, a blue wooden 28-footer that Fendon estimated could hold 200-300 people. Glantet, who wore a tank top that said "Florida" on it, couldn't wait to leave. He said his brother had migrated to Miami in 1983, using money earned there to build the family a new house in Belloc.

He said he didn't know when this vessel, which had no people or provisions aboard, would depart.

Near the ship, 10-year-old Jonas Toussaint tried to float a toy wooden sailboat on the smooth Bay of Belance.

Brazil cleans city for Earth Summit meeting

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Visitors to the Earth Summit next month will see a city few Brazilians know, a place critics are calling a Potemkin village that conceals the city's defects.

In recent weeks, the downtown theater district has been uncommonly free of ragged "street kids," or homeless children, who gather on the steps of the City Council and spend nights huddled on subway vents.

Fountains along the scenic drive hugging Guanabara Bay have been fenced off, keeping away the droves of beggars who usually use them to wash clothes and bathe.

On famous Copacabana beach, a new iron fence around Lido Square has cooled one of Rio's hottest spots. Prostitutes and transvestites who traditionally used the Lido as an all-night pickup point have moved elsewhere.

Street vendors have been ordered out of their traditional selling points; a popular street bazaar on one plaza has been closed.

The cleanup comes as Rio prepares to receive 30,000 visitors for the June 3-14 U.N. Conference on Environment and Development, or Earth Summit.

About 100 heads of state and government are expected to attend, along with more than 4,000 U.N. delegates and officials and 12,000 non-government environmentalists.

Many residents feel the government is trying to sweep the dirt under the rug.

"The government sure won't take heads of state by the slums," said Rio state legislator Paulo Melo.

One person dies in religious riot

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — One person was killed and 42 arrested in a confrontation between police and Muslim fundamentalist protesters opposing the government appointment of an imam to a local mosque, officials said Saturday.

The confrontation occurred before weekly prayers Friday in Chebli, in the Blida region just south of the capital. A crowd of fundamentalists angered over the installation of a state-appointed imam in the town's mosque confronted police officers, according to police.

Further details on the confrontation were not immediately available.

Algeria's military-backed rulers decided in February to replace volunteer imams, or Muslim priests, with imams approved by the Ministry of Religious Affairs.

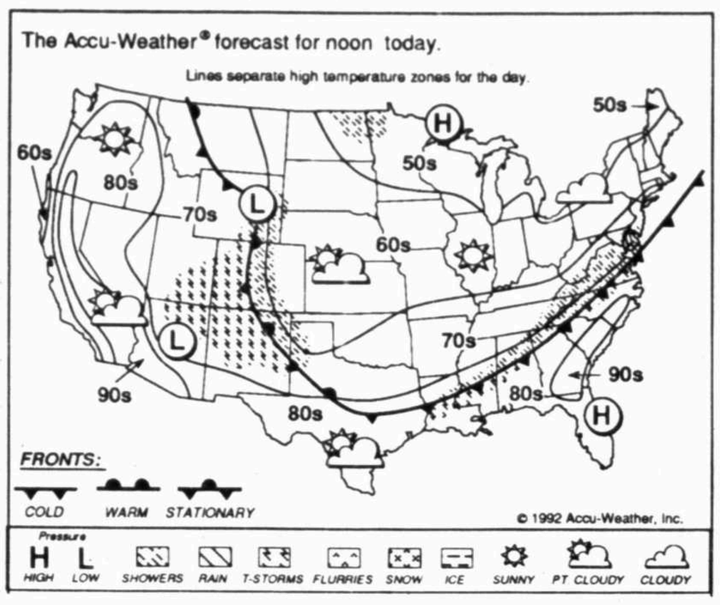
WEATHER SUMMARY



STORMS: Rains might stay

(From 1A)

major weather-related accidents.

The recent downpours already have brought the total rainfall for the year to 8.5 inches, compared to the 4.4 inches considered normal for the first five months of the year. Average yearly rainfall for Midland is 13.7 inches.

Despite the rain, temperatures have remained close to normal, although Saturday's high was just 65 degrees compared to Friday's high of 86. The low for Saturday was 54, one degree less than the average low for this time of the year.

Meanwhile, storms have been common throughout West Texas and eastern New Mexico during the past 48 hours.

In Hobbs, N.M., the 10 inches of rain that fell Friday and Saturday flooded houses and streets and sent more than 200 people fleeing to shelters or motels, according to The Associated Press.

Two flood victims were treated for hypothermia at Lea Regional Hospital in Hobbs, where patients were moved from rooms to hallways when a funnel cloud was spotted.

Although tornadoes were spotted in West Texas Friday and Saturday, no damage was reported, NWS officials said.

As for today's forecast in Midland, the NWS is calling for mostly cloudy skies with a 50 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms — some possibly severe — in the afternoon. The high will be in the mid-70s with southeast winds at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight will be mostly cloudy with a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low in the mid-50s.

Mostly cloudy skies will continue through Memorial Day with a 30 percent chance of more thunderstorms. The high is expected to be in the upper 70s on Monday.

The extended forecast, Tuesday to Thursday, calls for partly cloudy skies with a chance of showers and thunderstorms each day. Highs are predicted to be in the low to mid-80s and the lows are expected to be in the upper 50s.

After an overnight low of 54, Saturday's high was 65 compared with the record high for that date of 106 in 1989. The record low for today's date was 48 set in 1940.

STATE

A cold front drifted slowly southward into North Texas on Saturday, causing widespread showers.

Temperatures remained in the 70s under overcast skies in West Texas, but climbed into the 80s where sunshine prevailed in South Texas. In the Panhandle, highs reached only into the 50s.

Winds were northerly behind the invading front but southeasterly at 5 to 10 miles an hour to the south of it.

The forecast for North Texas was for scattered to numerous showers and thunderstorms today with highs from the 70s in the northwest to the middle 80s in the south. Tonight and Memorial Day were to be mostly cloudy with a good chance of rain. Lows were to be in the upper 50s to middle 60s tonight with highs Memorial Day in the lower 70s to lower 80s.

South Texas was expected to have partly cloudy afternoons through Monday with scattered afternoon and evening showers or thunderstorms. Highs were expected in the 80s and the 90s with lows in the 60s and 70s.

Forecasters said West Texas would be mostly cloudy with scattered showers and thunderstorms today. Highs were to range from the lower 60s in the Panhandle to near 90 in Big Bend lowlands. Lows were to be in the upper 40s in the Panhandle to the mid-60s Edwards Plateau. Saturday and caused flooding in parts of Texas.

Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and eastern Florida also had rain and thunderstorms. Many roads were washed out by flooding in Lubbock, Texas.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending early Saturday afternoon included 1.1 inches in Lubbock.

The Northeast enjoyed a second straight day of summer-like weather with temperatures in the 80s and 90s. The high of 87 in Portland, Maine, broke the 1964 record for the date by 3 degrees.

Temperatures around the nation at mid-afternoon ranged from 43 degrees in Roseau, Minn., and Marquette, Mich., to 95 degrees in North Philadelphia, Pa.

Low temperature records for the date included 28 degrees in Bismarck, N.D., breaking the 110-year-old mark of 30 degrees, and 47 degrees in Macon, Ga., breaking the 1967 record of 51.

Man-on-street poll: Undecided tops candidates

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

In an informal man-on-the-street poll conducted Friday afternoon, 12 out of 30 people were undecided about whom they would vote for if the presidential election were held today.

Carlyle

Eight respondents said they would vote for H. Ross Perot, seven said President Bush and only two indicated they would support Democrat Bill Clinton. One person said he did not care who won, and did not plan to vote.

The "undecided" group was split between those who had not kept up with the presidential race and those who didn't have enough information — especially concerning Perot's stance on issues.

"Who knows? Undecided I suppose," said 35-year-old Chris Rutter, who is employed in the oil business. That response came in part because Perot hasn't made a statement of where he stands on the issues, Rutter added.

Seator

For those who backed Perot, most said they were doing so because they want change they don't believe the current crop of politicians can offer.

"I want a change. I think he (Perot) offers something we have not had in the past. I would like to see some more decisiveness and I guess I'm a little tired of professional politicians," said Joan Ramey, a real estate agent.

That sentiment — a desire for change — was quite common in the survey.

"I guess it's that 'change in the air' thing — looking for something different," said Betty Lou Adams, 67, secretary/bookkeeper.

For some, there isn't an alternative.

"I'd vote for Ross (Perot) in a New York minute. I ain't got any other choice," said a man who declined to be identified.

One woman said she simply likes what Perot has offered.

Mansour

"I just like the program he's presented," said Wanda Franklin, 59, a switchboard operator.

Most who supported Bush praised his performance in office.

"I think he's a good president. I like how he's handled politics so far," said Marianne Mansour, 21, an office worker.

For some there was no other choice.

"Because he's the only viable candidate and the most experienced," said James Carlyle, 56, an engineer. And Carlyle said he agreed with Bush's political and philosophical views.

For one young woman, Bush's credibility got her vote.

"I just believe more what he says," said Alva Ontiveros, 18, a student and office aide.

In Midland, a longtime Republican hotbed, Scott Seator, 23, an administrative assistant, said he would vote for Bush because of "pretty much (family) tradition." Seator said, however, he still would consider all the candidates before the actual election in November.

Mark Haynes, 30, a grocery stocker, supported Bush because: "I don't know anything about the other candidates."

Of the two who said they would vote for Clinton, one, a woman who declined to be identified, simply said she would vote Democrat.

Ramey

The other based her choice on what she's heard.

"I just like what he's been saying," said Betty O'Neil, 58, a teacher's assistant.

Although a few of the undecided answers gave some indication of apathy toward the election, only one person was outright in his don't-care attitude.

"I won't vote. Never have, never will," he said.

PEROT: It's early in the game, some officials say racial tension that has spread following the Rodney King verdict and subsequent violence.

Chris McCormack, Midland County Democratic Party chairman, cautioned about reading too much into the polls, especially at this early stage in the political game.

"I think there will be a lot of things that will happen between now and November" such as candidates' reactions to events and more focus on issues, he said.

As for Perot, "at first glance he seems to be a very attractive candidate, but we haven't been able to get past that first glance," McCormack said.

"There's going to be a period where we really get to know him and decide whether we want to commit our country to his management," he said.

What the current support for Perot does indicate is "an incumbent president people are extremely dissatisfied with," McCormick said.

It also indicates "some overall dissatifaction with politics-as-usual," he said.

But it's "not so much support for Ross Perot (as it is) a vote against the 3½ years of a Republican administration," McCormick said. "Ross Perot is no different than a none-of-the-above vote."

McCormack said he believes the poll also indicates a lot of hesitation to support Clinton. That, he said, is because the hard-fought primary campaign has brought out a lot of negatives about the candidate instead of how he stands on the issues.

Ernest Angelo Jr., Republican National Committeeman for Texas, agreed that six months before the election is too early to be placing bets. Angelo said he believes President Bush eventually will present himself to the public and develop as the best candidate.

Nevertheless, Angelo said of the preliminary poll:"Those kind of numbers have to make supporters of the president concerned."

But, he added, it goes further than a commentary about the current administration.

"Certainly Bill Clinton is going nowhere for the Democrats, either," he said.

And Perot's popularity may be because "people think he has a better chance of correcting the problems affecting the country at this time," Angelo said.

The non-partisan candidate's success in the polls is a combination of protest votes and confidence in him, Angelo said.

But "it is too early to say what the impact of Perot will be," Angelo added.

Historically, the odds are against a third-party candidate being elected, but this year is different and Perot has a lot of money to spend, he said.

Rick Strange, vice-chairman for the Midland County Republican Party, said he believes that when Perot's positions become known, "Perot supporters will change their vote for either Bush or Clinton."

The reason Perot scored so high in the call-in poll, Strange said, is because of the nature of the poll and the people who participated.

"They (participants) would be more likely to call in and express their unhappiness with the candidates ... than (supporters) of either of the announced candidates," Strange said.

So Perot will fare "better on this type of poll than a random sample," he said.

Strange's explanation coincides with the call-in poll results compared to the latest nationwide random poll conducted by USA Today-CNN-Gallup. Of 804 people polled, 35 percent supported Perot, 35 percent backed Bush and 25 percent favored Clinton.

one. Bill Clinton does not have the character even to be governor of Arkansas, much less president," caller Tom Eustace said.

Many Bush backers cited his experience, knowledge and patriotism as factors in their choice.

After standing in second place early in the week, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton faded to a third-place finish, with 80 call-in votes — 9.3 percent of the total.

"I think Gov. Bill Clinton would make a wonderful choice for president. We are ready for a change and we need a change," said Eloy L. Karim, adding that Clinton's "wife is wonderful."

But as with the overall response, the majority of comments left by callers favored the Dallas billionaire.

"Our country is struggling morally and economically. We need someone in the White House who is not a politician — constantly running a popularity contest. We need someone who is a businessman at heart," Suzanne Carter said.

Others were more pessimistic in their outlook, but their choice was the same: "I don't really believe anyone can change our country that much, but at least Ross Perot is a new face and maybe he has a chance," Pat Hoffmeister said.

A dozen callers in the poll chose "none of the above."

Others, like Howard Reed, are not fully convinced by any candidate, but selected Perot as the best choice. "Yes, I would vote for Ross Perot. I'm not pleased by his liberalism, but I think his pragmatism will soon overcome that," Reed said.

Brad Reynolds echoed that sentiment: "I feel that we need to shake up our present political system. And I think that Ross Perot, as a businessman, would be able to turn the country back around."

LOTTERY: Friday's the magic date for players

ets, breaking a world record for lottery sales.

The lottery was sold to the voters last fall as a popular alternative to taxes: "The rarest of all creatures — a popular way to generate revenue," said Gov. Ann Richards, who pushed for approval of the lottery as one of her top goals.

Though it will help the state budget picture, the lottery won't protect Texans from future tax increases. Predictions are that the lottery will raise $461 million for the state treasury for the rest of this budget year — that equals only 2 percent of the state budget.

But for now, lottery promoters are focusing on the fun of the lottery. And the winners.

Here are some common questions and answers about the lottery:

Q: Where do I buy tickets?

A: More than 14,000 retailers in Texas are selling tickets, from convenience stores and grocery chains to liquor stores and banks.

Q: How do I know I won?

A: Rub off all six of the stars and the latex covering underneath. If three of the dollar amounts under the stars match, you win that amount. For example, if you find three $50 symbols, you win $50. If your ticket has three "Entry" symbols (an "E"), you are eligible for one of the 12 weekly drawings for Lone Star Millions. You must mail the "Entry" ticket to the lottery headquarters to qualify for the drawings.

Q: How much can I win?

A: The prize amounts probably will change with each scratch-off game. The prizes in this instant game are $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $1,000 and $10,000. Twelve $1 million prizes will be awarded in the grand prize drawing, but no $1 million amounts will show up on the tickets.

Q: What are my chances?

A: Overall, about one in eight tickets — or 37,458,040 of the 300 million sold — will be winners in this game. Your chances are greatest of winning the smallest prizes. The odds of winning $2 are 1 in 10; $5, 1 in 50; $10, 1 in 375; $20, 1 in 500; $50, 1 in 2,399; $100, 1 in 10,000; $1,000, 1 in 120,000; and $10,000, 1 in 600,000. Lottery officials say the odds of winning $1 million in the weekly drawings are more difficult to calculate because they don't know how many people will mail in "Entry" tickets. However, assuming everyone who receives an "Entry" ticket mails it in, the odds of being one of the 12 millionaires are 1 in 41.6 million. Of the 500 million tickets sold in the first two games, 1 million will be "Entry" tickets.

Q: Will every store sell winning tickets?

A: Yes. This game is organized so that in every batch of 500 $1 tickets there will be at least $183 in prizes of $20 or less.

CARSON: About 55 million people tune in for finale world — I found something that I always wanted to do and I have enjoyed every single minute of it," Carson said Friday. "I bid you a very heartfelt goodnight."

Doc Severinsen then led the band in a rendition of "I'll Be Seeing You," bringing to an end Carson's 4,531st and final edition of "The Tonight Show" before a studio audience of 465 staff members and invited family and friends in NBC's Studio 1.

The historic telecast concluded the most successful run of any performer in U.S. television history and had been anticipated by fans ever since Carson, 66, announced last May his imminent retirement.

"The Soviet Union's end did not get this kind of publicity," Carson said jokingly.

Carson's stint as host began three weeks before President John F. Kennedy revealed the Cuban missile crisis to the world. It ended four days after Vice President Dan Quayle excoriated the fictional television character Murphy Brown for having a child out of wedlock.

"I have not really made any plans, but the events of the past week have helped me make a decision," Carson said in his final monologue, topical to the end. "I am going to join the cast of 'Murphy Brown' and become a surrogate father to that kid. That's the least I can do.

"During the run of the show, there have been seven U.S. presidents and, thankfully for comedy, there have been eight vice presidents," he said. "Now, I know I've made some jokes at the expense of Dan Quayle, but I really want to thank him tonight for making my final week so fruitful."

Carson's exit marks the end of an era. When he made his debut on "The Tonight Show," viewing choices were few. He dominated late-night television even as competition increased, not only in the number of television outlets but in the growing number of late-night talk shows.

The population of the Earth has increased during his 30-year run by 2.4 billion people, he noted. "A more amazing statistic is that half of that 2.4 billion will soon have their own late-night TV show."

Curiously, no mention was made of Carson's "Tonight Show" successor, Jay Leno, who will take over the NBC franchise Monday in an adjacent studio with a new set, a new theme song and a new band amid reports there has been increasing tension between the two show's staffs as the changeover neared.

Carson did take an indirect dig Friday at incoming bandleader, jazz saxophonist Branford Marsalis, who has been quoted recently as saying the band on Leno's show will be more hip than Carson's swing band under trumpet player Severinsen.

"To say this band is not hip is to not know the meaning of the word," Carson said. "Young and hip are not synonymous."

Carson's final hour opened with photos and audio from his first show as host of "Tonight" on Oct. 1, 1962, then a montage of Carson's entrances over the years that culminated with him stepping out from behind his multicolored curtain one last time to announcer and sidekick Ed McMahon's "Heeeeere's Johnny."

TAKING AIM AT TAAS TESTING

TEST: Teachers, administrators are in a tailspin

state average, 64 percent of local seventh graders failed the test.

Even worse, when broken down into ethnic groups, only 15 percent of blacks in the seventh grade passed the test, 2 percent less than the state average of blacks taking the test; and 20 percent of Hispanic seventh graders passed the exam, matching the state average.

"More than half of our minority students are not passing," said MISD superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. at a recent school-board meeting.

After 12 years of standardized testing, the TAAS test has teachers and administrators in a tailspin. And this year, Midland has three times the number of seniors than in years past missing graduation ceremonies because of failing the exam.

Most of the students not getting their diplomas because of failing the test had two opportunities as juniors and two as seniors to take the test. (The seniors who failed the April TAAS administration, but have enough credits to graduate, will have an opportunity to take the test again July 15 and 16).

In Odessa, 52 seniors will miss graduation, and statewide 8,138 seniors will have to take another stab at the TAAS to get their diplomas, said Joey Lozano, Texas Education Agency spokesperson.

Lozano said 4,441 seniors statewide failed the exit-level TEAMS (Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills), which is being phased out in favor of the TAAS. About 12 Midland seniors failed the exit-level TEAMS last year, according to Joe Cummins, MISD executive director of planning, evaluation and testing.

The State Board of Education predicted from the onset that the test, which emphasizes higher-order thinking skills, would catch students off guard. Previous state standardized exams tested minimum skills, while the TAAS requires more problem solving and stronger reading skills.

Even the math portion of the test features word problems challenging students to interpret what they read, rather than just working with numbers.

Aside from being challenged with a more difficult test, Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno has set state standards at 90 percent.

"Meno is asking for 90 percent of the students to demonstrate a 70 percent mastery, or to meet minimum expectations of getting 70 percent of the objectives right," Cummins said.

"It's a very ambitious goal. We would have to have control of the curriculum or the amount of time a student spends in class on a particular subject. We also have a 15 percent turnover rate and student ability to contend with," Cummins said.

Administrators also are frustrated that several aspects of the test have changed in the two years it has been given.

The first year TAAS was administered, the passing standard required answering 60 percent of the objectives correctly. This year, the passing standard was raised to 70 percent. In both years the test was given to students in odd-numbered grades — third, fifth, seventh, ninth and 11th. In 1992-'93, scores include encouraging after-school study time, parental involvement and bolstering self-esteem of students who are experiencing failure.

While educators and administrators say there is no clear answer to improving test scores, everyone agrees that scores need to be raised.

'The idea is to make it difficult for us to teach the test. It's like being at a carnival shooting gallery and blindfolded. Then you are told: 'Take your best shot. Oh, sorry you missed. It was too low and to the left. Don't worry, you are going to get another shot, but you are still going to be blindfolded and we are going to move the target.' ' the test will be given to students in fourth, eighth, 10th, 11th and 12th grades.

— Bill Denton, MISD assistant superintendent

"I'm very critical of changing the test every year and changing the kids who take it," said Bill Denton, MISD assistant superintendent.

"The idea is to make it difficult for us to teach the test," Denton said. "It's like being at a carnival shooting gallery and blindfolded. Then you are told: 'Take your best shot. Oh, sorry you missed. It was too low and to the left. Don't worry, you are going to get another shot, but you are still going to be blindfolded and we are going to move the target.' "

"This is a tougher test," Cummins said. "And students are waiting until the last minute and not preparing themselves for it."

Cummins said students other than seniors who failed the test this year will be offered opportunities next year to sign up for tutorials or remediation before or after school, during school time in certain classes, and at lunch.

"The test is a substantial challenge and everyone appears to be making a commitment to pass it," he said. "For students at the exit level, their high-school diplomas are at stake."

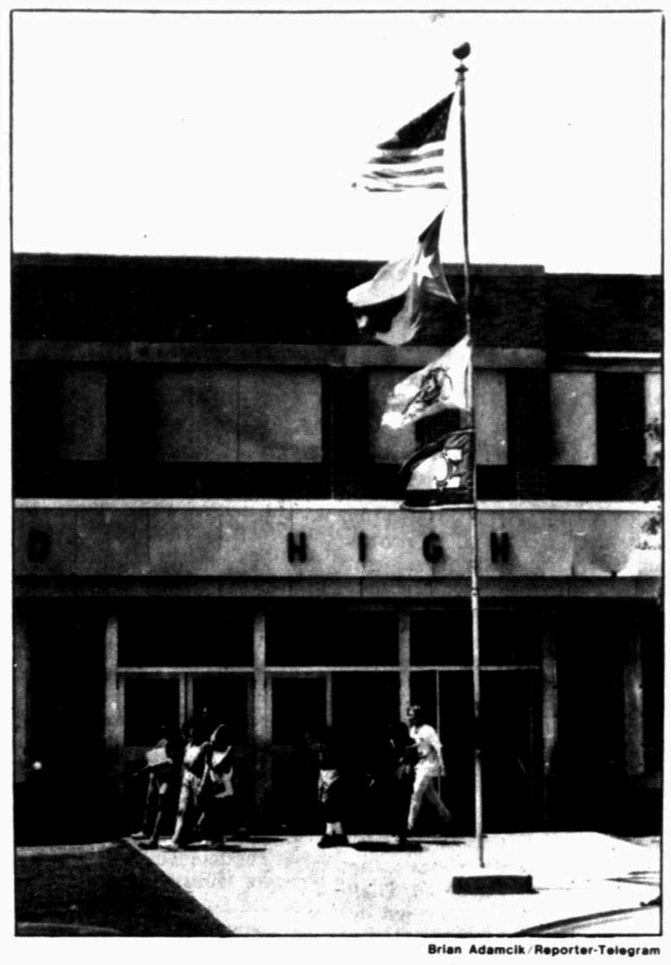
As the 1991-'92 school year draws to an close, teachers and administrators are scrambling to come up with plans to tackle the TAAS next year.

One of those plans is to extend the school day by about 30 minutes, or five minutes per classtime at the high-school level.

Teachers and students alike decried the logistics of implementing that plan and sent administrators back to the drawing board.

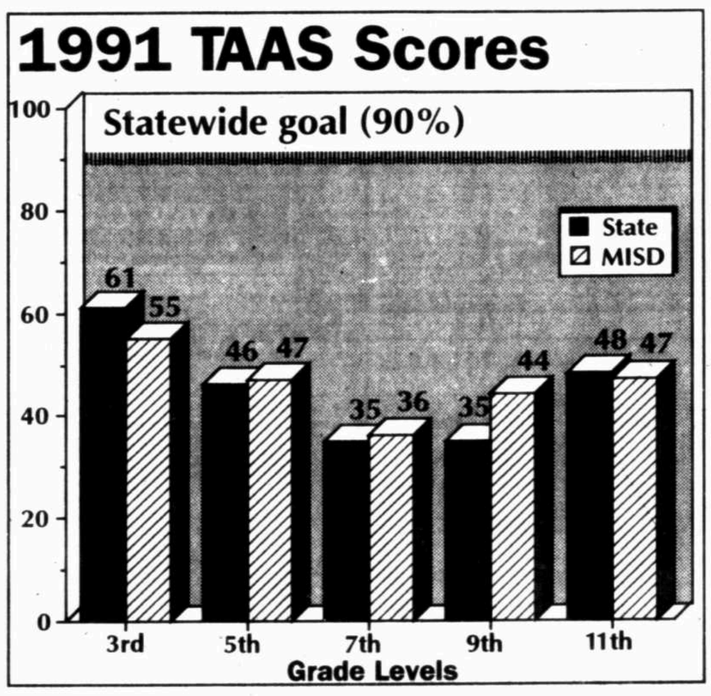
Other options that have been put on the table to improve test

"Only one of three students passed this test at the seventh-grade level. If what we've been doing has evidenced these scores, then we can't keep doing business as usual," Cummins said.



Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Independent School District students in the odd-numbered grades — third, fifth, seventh, ninth and 11th — took the TAAS test. Local students ranked slightly above the state average.



Local administrators note that a higher percentage of students in MISD were tested than in the state. Generally, when a larger percentage of a given student population is tested, the average score is slightly lower, according to the Scholastic Aptitude Testing service.

Today 24	Administrators are taking another look at TAAS scores, especially in light of 40 Midland seniors missing graduation because they failed the statewide test. Parents also are asking what they can do to help improve test scores.
Monday 25	Will more time in the classroom get students on track to tackle TAAS? Administrators say "yes;" teachers and students say "no." Pupils in MISD's only extended-day program showed gains before scores of them dropped out for after-school spring sports.
Tuesday 26	Parents, teachers and administrators are examining options to improve students' test performance. Parental involvement, encouraging studying outside the classroom and implementing a homework hotline for teachers and parents all have support.

the math portion, the improvement needed section listed "use of addition to solve problems, use of division to solve problems, problem solving using estimation, and solution strategies.

"How can a student who has always gotten A's in math, algebra and geometry fail simple-division problems?" a parent said.

The answer is: Call a school counselor. Counselors at the local freshman schools say addition and division problems for the ninth-grade level involve fractions and word problems.

The TAAS report also identifies which objectives were met or not met for reading and writing.

School counselors can give parents specifics about results listed in the TAAS report.

Midland public schools will offer remediation for students next year, plus students will have the added advantage of taking the TAAS test in the spring, rather than October, when many skills have been forgotten over the summer.

"For students who need individualized programs, we can help," said Martha Stuart of Sylvan Learning Center. "The body of research shows that students backslide over the summer and forget as much as 80 percent of newly learned skills."

"We can help prepare students and give them the skills they need to be successful — especially in reading, writing and the critical thinking," Ms. Stuart said. She said instruction fees at the center depend on the amount of counseling and remediation students need.

Aside from individualized instruction, Creative Schoolhouse, an educational supplies store, has workbooks and resource guides for students in kindergarten through the senior year in high school.

"We have hundreds and hundreds of workbooks," said Jo Miller, owner and manager of Creative Schoolhouse. "But parents need to know what they are doing. There needs to interaction between an adult and a child with the workbooks. You can't just drill a kid to death or give them the workbook and expect them to figure it out."

Ms. Miller also suggests letting a student who is having problems with grade-level objectives to "back up a bit."

"If a third grader is having trouble, then back up a little bit to be sure they have the skills and concepts they need," she said. "Sometimes it's worth it to move back to second-grade materials. Let them feel successful and then move on," she said.

Ms. Miller said listening skills and learning to follow directions are important for students experiencing trouble with the TAAS.

Bill Duncker, math coordinator for Midland Independent School District, said students should learn their weaknesses and pay attention in class when those skills are remediated next year.

Remediation and tutoring of TAAS test skills also will be offered before and after school, lunchtime and in some classes, said Joe Cummins, MISD executive director of testing, planning and evaluation.

Fighting resumes in Bosnia-Herzegovina

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Fighting resumed across Bosnia-Herzegovina Saturday as the European Community said it would impose sanctions on Serbia to force it out of the republic's civil war.

In Lisbon, Portugal, EC spokesman Fernando Balsinha said specific sanctions had not been determined. Earlier, an EC source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said options included trade and energy embargoes. Further discussion was scheduled for Tuesday in Belgium.

The EC countries and United States have already called back their ambassadors from Belgrade, the Serbian and federal capital. U.S. Secretary of State James A. Baker III on Friday announced the closing of Yugoslav consulates in New York and San Francisco and a suspension of "contacts" with the Yugoslav military.

Saturday, the community pledged $76.2 million in aid for refugees throughout the former Yugoslav federation.

The war in Bosnia is an "affront to our collective conscience," Baker said in Lisbon, where he was attending discussions on Soviet aid.

EC mediators also held separate peace talks in Lisbon with representatives of Bosnia's three warring factions. No breakthroughs were reported. Portugal holds the rotating EC presidency.

In Geneva, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said it is withdrawing its remaining staff from Bosnia. Twelve U.N. relief trucks were hijacked late Thursday by militiamen.

More than 2,200 people have been killed in Bosnia and 7,600 wounded since the republic's Slavic Muslims and Croats voted for independence on Feb. 29. Serbs, who account for one-third of the population of 4.3 million, oppose independence.

About 650,000 people have fled their homes in Bosnia since the fighting started.

Thai prime minister submits resignation

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Army-backed Prime Minister Suchinda Kraprayoon, reviled by Thais after troops killed pro-democracy demonstrators, announced his resignation Sunday.

The televised announcement came after a day of rumors that Suchinda had fled the country under heavy pressure from both government and military factions.

Suchinda's resignation had been demanded by a growing number of Thais, including many government officials, since army troops killed dozens of pro-democracy demonstrators last week.

The anti-Suchinda protests, the largest demonstrations in Thailand since the 1970s, were led by the country's emerging middle class, which is fed up with military dominance of politics.

Saturday, King Bhumibol Adulyadej issued a blanket clemency to everyone involved in the demonstrations, including Suchinda, to induce him to step down quickly.

The decree, a text of which was obtained by The Associated Press, said "every action related to the demonstrations from May 17 to May 21, covering either supporters or people in command (of troops), will not be punished."

There have been widespread demands that Suchinda and top army officers be prosecuted for the killings of at least 40 people during the military's crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators last week.

Hundreds of government officials condemned the killings and Foreign Minister Pongpol Adireksan said Suchinda must resign to take responsibility.

Friday, the five governing parties that had chosen Suchinda as prime minister abandoned him by introducing in Parliament constitutional reforms that would ensure his ouster within weeks.

Former Soviet Union battles turn regional

YEREVAN, Armenia (AP) — Sporadic gunshots rang out Saturday along the newest front in the Armenian-Azerbaijani conflict, and Turkey said it would send troops to the border area only as part of an international force.

In Moldova, meanwhile, President Mircea Snegur complained to the United Nations that Russia was engaged in "aggression against Moldova" and accused Moscow of supporting Slavic separatists in Moldova's breakaway Trans-Dniester region.

The conflicts are two of the bloodiest in the former Soviet Union and slowly have been turning into regional issues as neighboring countries and international groups try to settle them.

The independent Azerbaijani news agency Turan said Armenian and Azerbaijani fighters traded gunfire Saturday across the border of Nakhichevan, an Azerbaijani region of 300,000 people within Armenia.

Nakhichevan flanks Armenia to the north, and to the south shares a 90-mile border with Iran and a seven-mile frontier with Turkey. Fighting there spilled over from the 4-year-old battle over Nagorno-Karabakh, another Azerbaijani region — this one populated mostly by Armenians.

Gunfire overnight rained down from a ridge in Nakhichevan on Armenian positions near the village of Saidlyar, and Armenian forces returned fire, Turan said. The agency reported casualties and destruction, but gave no specifics.

Armenian forces also shelled Azerbaijani positions around Nagorno-Karabakh, now controlled by Armenia, Turan said. An unknown number of people were injured, it said.

N. Korea denies clash at border

TOKYO (NYT) — North Korea on Saturday denied reports of a border clash on Friday that was said to have left three North Korean infiltrators dead and accused Seoul of fabricating the incident to try to derail peace talks.

In a report carried by North Korea's official news service, the Korean Central News Agency, the government in Pyongyang said that some South Koreans had fired on a northern police post, but that there had been no injuries.

"The South Korean puppets committed a grave provocation, seriously getting on our nerves on May 22 by spreading a false report after fabricating an incident," the news service said, using the bellicose language the north typically employs in such matters.

South Korean and U.N. officials in Seoul said on Friday that the three North Korean soldiers were killed after they were found south of the line running through the Demilitarized Zone that separates the two countries.

Bomb blast kills anti-Mafia crusader

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — An explosion blamed on the Mafia killed Italy's leading anti-Mafia crusader, his wife and at least three others as they drove on a crowded highway outside Palermo Saturday, police said.

The assassination of Giovanni Falcone was the most sensational Mafia hit in in 10 years and shocked the political establishment in Italy, which is without a permanent head of state or premier for the first time since World War II.

Falcone

The blast injured at least nine people, police said. It pulverized 400-yards of two-lane highway, twisting guard rails and covering the carcasses of cars with rubble.

"Institutions in crisis themselves become the biggest encouragement for criminal attacks ... We must react before lack of trust drags down everything," former Premier Bettino Craxi said after hearing of Falcone's murder, the news agency ANSA reported.

Major political parties have been unable to put together a new government and the Parliament has failed to elect a president, Italy's head of state, who designates the premier.

Before his transfer to the Justice Ministry in Rome last year, Falcone had led a corps of fellow Palermo magistrates handling the nation's most delicate Mafia probes.

AP Laserphoto

The car carrying Judge Giovanni Falcone is seen on a highway near Palermo.

At the ministry, Falcone handled policy regarding prison inmates, including Mafia figures who agreed to cooperate with prosecutors. He was hailed nationwide for his courage and was considered the leading expert on the Mafia.

"The man who symbolized for the world Italy's fight against the Mafia is dead," the RAI television network announced.

Falcone's wife, Francesca, who was a judge in Palermo, died after surgery about four hours after the attack, said an official at Civico Hospital who spoke on condition of anonymity.

A Palermo police spokeswoman, Nicoletta Cuccia, said three of Falcone's police escorts were killed.

The news agency ANSA earlier had reported two other deaths but later backed away from the report. The RAI television network said 20 people were injured, but the figure could not immediately be confirmed. Two of the injured were Austrian tourists, ANSA said.

An unidentified telephone caller claimed responsibility for the blast in the name of a right-wing terrorist group, the Falange Armata, but police discounted the claim and blamed the Mafia.

Falcone had just flown in from Rome to Palermo and was heading towards the city, where he kept a home.

ANSA quoted Palermo prosecutor Pietro Giammanco as saying four cars — Falcone's and three escort vehicles — were blown up by tons of explosives planted under an overpass, about 15 miles outside Palermo.

Falcone's wife was sitting next to her husband, who was driving his armor-protected car.

Falcone headed the investigation that led to the 1986 trial of 474 Mafia suspects. Hundreds were convicted of various crimes that ranged from ordering assassinations to drug-related charges.

"The thing that struck me was what an extraordinary memory this man had," said RAI television news director Alberto La Volpe. "He could connect every tentacle of the Mafia, every member of a clan to one another."

The mass trial, and the commitment of magistrates like Falcone, provided hope that the nation could defeat organized crime, which is deeply rooted in the south and is spreading to northern cities.

Local political and law enforcement officials are frequently killed by organized crime in southern Italy. The last big Mafia-blamed assassination was the gunning down of Gen. Carlo Alberto Dalla Chiesa and his wife on a Palermo street in 1982. Dalla Chiesa was the state's special Mafia fighter.

Falcone's fame and the mass trial grew out of Falcone's investigation of the Dalla Chiesa murder.

Falcone had a close call in 1989. Police discovered a bomb apparently meant for him on a sunbathing platform near Falcone's seaside villa outside Palermo.

Clashes kill eleven

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey (AP) — Eleven people were killed in several clashes in southeastern Turkey, a military official said Saturday.

Kurdish guerrillas operating in the region are from the illegal Kurdish Labor Party, which has been fighting for a separatist state in the southeast since 1984.

Security forces killed five insurgents Saturday near the town of Silvan in Diyarbakir province when they opened fire on troops on patrol, said the official, who would not be identified.

In two separate clashes, Kurdish rebels killed two uncommissioned officers and two village guards.

Police said Kurdish guerrillas killed two children and wounded two civilians on Friday in Siirt province.

Polls show Perot holds lead in California

N.Y. Times News Service

SAN DIEGO — Ross Perot is threatening to steal the California primary, too.

In a week of unrelieved good news for the Texas billionaire on the national scene, he also hogged the spotlight in the country's largest state, which holds its election in 10 days, on June 2.

The Los Angeles Times poll confirmed what the California Poll had said the week before: The maverick independent is leading President Bush and Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, the likely Democratic presidential nominee.

The debate here is not about Perot's performance at the polls, since he is not on either major party's ballot, and it is doubtful that write-in votes for him will be counted.

Nor is the debate about how big a victory Bush will gain over his conservative challenger, Patrick J. Buchanan, or whether Clinton will beat his sole remaining Democratic rival, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California.

The debate is about Perot in the weeks to come: Will he last? Whom does he hurt? What does it mean?

"What has happened," said Mervin Field, the director of the California Poll, "is that the boom for Perot has pre-empted public attention and enervated the other campaigns.

Except for him, the public doesn't see the ballot box as a means of doing anything about whatever it is that ails us. There's just so much political space in people's heads, and for the moment at least, Perot fills it."

Stuart Spencer, the Orange County sage who has advised Republican clients for three decades, including Ronald Reagan, said Perot's success so far was one more sign that "we're going through a political revolution in this country, brought on by abysmal neglect of important issues."

"At a time of national alienation, he's the candidate of change," Spencer said. "He has great credibility because of his business success. People may turn on him and say he's wrong on the issues or weak on the issues, but that's only 50-50. They may say instead, let's roll the dice with him, what the hell; at least he's got no umbilical to the establishment.

"And if that happens, obviously, he could win the whole thing."

Perot is not a candidate in the California primary. But after last week's results in the Oregon and Washington State primaries, where he apparently polled sizable write-in votes on both the Republican and Democratic sides of the ballot, many expect something similar to happen in this state.

It will not be easy for voters to record pro-Perot sentiments here. Write-ins are difficult on the kinds of punch cards California uses. Any write-ins for Perot will not even be counted, according to March Fong Eu, California's secretary of state, because his backers have not filed a formal declaration of candidacy as required by law.

That could well mean that the surveys of voters leaving the polls conducted on election night by Voter Research and Surveys, a consortium of four big television networks, will draw more attention than the tabulation of actual votes.

Perot schedules rally via satellite

DALLAS (AP) — Billionaire Ross Perot will connect ballot petition drives in six states with satellite TV on Friday, a partial demonstration of his "electronic town hall" concept.

Perot will be at a rally with supporters in Orlando, Fla. It will be telecast to similar gatherings in Columbus, Ohio; Montgomery, Ala.; Topeka, Kan.; Cheyenne, Wyo. and Boise, Idaho.

The Orlando rally will be able to hear speakers from the other cities but there will not be a video connection.

The rallies mark the completion of petition gathering to place Perot on the six states' ballots as an independent presidential candidate.

Perot has touted interactive, satellite TV hookups as a way to gauge public sentiment on issues.

FBI agents help Los Angeles police identify rioting gangs

N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES— When agents for the FBI saw videotapes of the beating of a truck driver at the start of the rioting here, they said they recognized street gang members they had already been tracking.

Two weeks later they were among the law officers who seized four men in an early morning raid that Charlie J. Parsons, special agent in charge of the bureau's Los Angeles office, said could be an example for FBI cooperation with the police.

"Most of the work was done by one of our gang squads working with the LAPD," Parsons said in an interview Friday.

In the single largest reallocation of resources in the bureau's history, Attorney General William P. Barr announced in January that 300 agents would be moved from foreign counterintelligence work to investigate urban street gangs.

As part of what Barr called a "peace dividend" after the cold war, 22 of the agents were assigned to Los Angeles, which has one of the bureau's largest offices, with nearly 600 agents.

There is still skepticism among local law-enforcement agencies about the extent to which the bureau can apply its traditional methods to the primitive and loose-knit world of gangs.

"They are disorganized crime rather than organized crime," said Michael Genelin, who heads gang investigations for the Los Angeles county district attorney.

Other gang experts also questioned the bureau's ability to replicate its success with organized crime, employ its sophisticated techniques in this new arena and apply federal racketeering laws and other statutes to the Crips and the Bloods.

"You can't go to any of our gangs and say, 'Take me to your leader,' because there isn't any leader in any of the gangs," said Sgt. Wes McBride of the sheriff's department, who is president of the California Gang Investigators Association and who has conducted seminars for agents in the bureau's fledgling anti-gang operation. In Los Angeles, unlike some other cities, he added, drug wars play a very small part in gang violence and do not offer a useful avenue for combatting gang activities.

He said a record 771 people died in gang violence last year in Los Angeles County, where it is estimated that 100,000 people or more belong to gangs. Of the 207 deaths investigated by the sheriff's department, only five were directly linked to drugs.

The loose-knit nature of the gangs has led many experts, including Parsons, to be skeptical about a truce that has made headlines here with a series of large and relatively peaceful gatherings of members of rival gangs.

"I'm not optimistic that any truce can hold. They haven't heretofore shown an ability to organize," Parsons said. "They're not monolithic organizations like La Cosa Nostra. There's no boss of bosses. There's no Carlo Gambini or John Gotti speaking for gangs."

All Rates Reflect A .10% Bonus For Team Account Customers

You have a lot of options when it comes to Team Bank's three Choice CDs, but you don't have a lot of time. In fact, after May 31, they'll be gone.

With a Team Account, our 18 month CD pays 7.35% the first 90 days, then for the remaining term, goes to the rate that was in effect the day your account was opened. Our 36 month CD starts out with a bonus rate of 8.10% for 90 days then goes to the purchase day rate for its remainder.

And then there's our Jump CD. With the Jump, your interest rate starts at the current market value. But, you have the option at any time during its 24 month term to make a one-time "jump" to a higher rate if the market rate happens to rise.

Hurry! Offers End May 31st!

When you decide to boost your rate, all you have to do is tell us.

Also, if you're looking for an IRA, no problem. All three of our CD packages are also available as tax-deferred IRA CDs.

So if you're interested in the selection offered by our Choice CDs, drop by. But hurry, the countdown has begun.

Teen killers find easy access to guns

By Joseph B. Treaster
N.Y. Times News Service

Andre, who was 15 years old at the time, remembers the bang of the .32-caliber revolver and the little red spot that blossomed on the cheek of the boy he shot.

He remembers dodging traffic in Brooklyn to get away from the boy's friends and, finally, crouching on the floor of an abandoned apartment and listening to the scream of police sirens.

"I didn't intend to kill him," Andre said in a visiting room at the Harlem Valley Secure Center, a prison for teen-agers in the rolling hills north of New York City. "I just wanted to scare him. I didn't know it would go off so easily."

Tall and fleshy with a loping, insouciant walk, Andre is one of a growing number of American teen-agers who have murdered with guns.

A decade ago, when an exchange of punches was a probable outcome of two boys' facing each other down, 10 to 15 percent of the teen-agers who got into serious trouble in New York were carrying guns.

Now, state officials estimate, it is 60 to 65 percent, and researchers at the federal Centers for Disease Control say that shootings by teen-agers are contributing significantly to the nation's rising homicide rate.

With the calm detachment of spectators, Andre and two other young killers talked recently about their experiences with guns and crime, how they got the weapons, what led them to shoot and how they felt afterward.

Their stories yield a rare, intimate glimpse into a kind of thought and behavior that lie at the core of the violence eating away at the nation's cities.

The boys, who are serving life sentences with parole possible after as little as five years, their parents and the Division for Youth, which runs Harlem Valley and three other maximum-security prisons for teen-age boys, insisted that they not be fully identified.

For all three boys, who now live behind razor-wire-topped fences at the center in Wingdale, N.Y., a gun was easier to get in their rough New York neighborhoods than a new pair of sneakers.

Yet the boys never bothered to learn much about guns or how to handle them. Psychologists say that just having a gun provides a sense of security and power and that many teen-agers never visualize using it.

Neither Andre nor the other boys seemed to have thought about the consequences of pulling the trigger and they seemed surprised at the results. But they also did not seem to care much, one way or the other. Their initial reaction after the shootings was not sorrow or remorse, but survival: How do I get out of this?

Liz Giordano, the director of Harlem Valley, sees a lot of boys like these. They are not good at sorting out life's everyday problems. "They are easily threatened," she said, "and when they feel threatened they pull the trigger."

Accused girl is a loner, students say

By John T. McQuiston
New York Times News Service

BELLMORE, N.Y. — Amy Fisher, the 17-year-old accused of shooting the wife of a 38-year-old man she had had an affair with, was described by fellow high school students Saturday as a loner with few friends.

A few students gathered Saturday morning in the parking lot of John F. Kennedy High School before heading for nearby Jones Beach.

"We first heard about it when we got out of school yesterday," said Brian Sobol, a junior. "No one seems to know to much about her. She was sort of a loner." Miss Fisher is scheduled to graduate in four weeks.

Late Friday night, Miss Fisher was arraigned on charges of attempted murder. An assistant district attorney said the young woman had confessed to the shooting.

The tall, slim teen-ager with long auburn hair is said to have left school Tuesday morning, gone to the home of Mary Josephine Buttafuoco, 37, in Massapequa, and shot her once in the head as she answered the door. Miss Fisher then fled in a dark car, neighbors told police.

Mrs. Buttafuoco remained in critical condition in a coma in the Nassau County Medical Center until late Wednesday, when she regained consciousness and provided police with a description of her attacker.

With the help of her husband, Joseph, detectives were able to piece together enough details to make an arrest.

Police said Buttafuoco began an affair with Miss Fisher a year and a half ago at his auto body repair shop in Baldwin and had recently tried to break it off.

Miss Fisher was arraigned in First District Court in Hempstead late Friday on charges of attempted murder in the second degree and criminal use of a firearm, which police said had not yet been recovered.

Rap group faces charges in brawl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Members of the rap group N.W.A. were arrested after a brawl in a hotel lobby that injured five people before it was quelled by police on horseback, police said Saturday.

About 50 people were involved in Friday night's fight in the lobby of the downtown Sheraton Hotel, and 80 to 100 officers were called in to break it up, said Sgt. Marlon Defillo.

After police brought the situation under control, "the rappers N.W.A. then attacked the police officers, during which time another altercation erupted," Defillo said. "The horses were brought into the hotel to defuse the situation."

Robert Williams, 22, Tray Curry, 24, and Andre Young, 27, who also is known as Dr. Dre, were each arraigned Saturday on three counts of battery on a police officer and single counts of inciting a riot, criminal damage to property and resisting arrest.

Johnny King, 24, was arraigned on charges of inciting a riot, criminal damage to property and resisting arrest.

Another person, Robin Allen, 26, was arraigned on a single count on each of the charges.

The Orleans Parish District Attorney's office will decide whether to pursue the cases. Police refused Saturday to say what penalty the rappers face if convicted.

The rappers, all from Califorina, were in New Orleans for a radio convention. They were released Saturday on bond ranging from $3,500 to $6,500.

The band's rap focuses primarily on violent, street gang life.

Permian ousted

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — Odessa Permian was ousted from the state baseball playoffs here Saturday when El Paso Coronado scored a 6-5 victory in the third game of a three-game area playoff series.

The victory gave Coronado a doubleheader sweep Saturday at two different sites. Coronado won Saturday's opener 8-1 at Dudley Field in El Paso — the same site where Permian took a 1-0 lead in the series with a 4-3 win Friday. But rain storms chased the deciding game to Coronado's field with the score tied 3-3, and when a hail storm greeted the participants there, the finale was moved to the New Mexico site.

With the score knotted at 5-5 and Coronado batting in the bottom half of the sixth inning, Permian pitcher Donnie Bivins was called for balk with runners on the corners, allowing the winning run to score.

Endurance now the question

■ Ford and Buick engines dominated the Chevrolets in Indianapolis qualifying, but today must prove they can outlast the Chevys in the 500 mile race.

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — What's all this talk about new engines and fresh faces when today's Indianapolis 500 could be the fastest ever?

Ford and Buick engines dominate up front instead of the traditional Chevys. And you have to look back several rows to find the first Team Penske driver.

But the bottom line remains: How fast can you go and how long can you do it?

The past month has been spent blazing eye-popping speeds into the record book, with Roberto Guerrero's four-lap average of 232.482 mph leading a 33-car field whose average of 223.479 broke the year-old mark by nearly 5 mph.

You've also got a record 10 former champions, including for the first time a trio of four-time winners — Rick Mears, A.J. Foyt and Al Unser — and 26 veterans representing 260 years of Indy experience.

Foyt, the oldest driver in the field at 57, will be making his record 35th consecutive start, with last year's retirement plans still on hold.

Also in this high test field are seven rookies, including Lyn St. James, the second woman to make the race.

But the race could well come down to the simple question: Which motors can finish 500 miles — the high-powered Buicks and Fords that dominated the first two rows or the less-powerful Chevrolet A and B models.

While speeds soared this month, a series of crashes brought the first Indy-car driver death in 10 years, sent three-time Formula One champion Nelson Piquet to the hospital with devastating foot and ankle injuries and left defending champion Mears bruised and battered from what was the most spectacular and terrifying crash of the lot.

Four-time winner and defending Indy champion Rick Mears poses with the Borg-Warner Trophy.

But top lap speeds in the race are expected to drop to around 224 or 225 — not much faster than the current record of 222.574 shared by former winners Arie Luyendyk and Emerson Fittipaldi.

And, despite the death of rookie Jovy Marcelo of the Philippines in a crash on May 15, the spectre of death does not haunt these drivers. The last driver to die from injuries received during an Indy 500 was Swede Savage in 1973, the current drivers insist they do not lose sleep over the possibility

Hall/VDS seeks 'its' day

Staff report

INDIANAPOLIS — John Andretti, who will drive the Midland-based Pennzoil Special in today's Indianapolis 500, see the race as a 220 mph endurance contest.

Even though it's possible the winner will cover 500 miles in less than three hours, this is still and endurance contest, the way Andretti looks at it.

"I think there's 10 or 15 guys who could win this race," Andretti said on the eve of the world's most important motor sports event. "If it's their day, it's their day, and it just happens.

"Last year Michael (Andretti) was just about to lap Rick (Mears) when the yellow came out, and that changed the whole complexion of the race. All you can do is lay out your best plan and hope everything functions right. The guy who comes closest to that plan is the guy who wins the race."

Bulls sink Cavaliers

Associated Press

RICHFIELD, Ohio — To hear Michael Jordan tell it, you'd think the Chicago Bulls' defensive plan Saturday happened entirely by accident.

Jordan attached himself to Cleveland point guard Mark Price — not his usual assignment — and completely disrupted the Cavaliers' offense while also scoring 36 points as the Bulls beat the Cavaliers 105-96 for a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Conference finals.

Game 4 will be Monday at the Richfield Coliseum, where the Cavaliers are 5-2 in the playoffs this year.

For three quarters, the game was a mirror image of Cleveland's 107-81 win at Chicago on Thursday night, in which Jordan scored 20 points while battling a sore throat and a swarming Cleveland defense.

This time, it was Chicago taking control from the start, rushing to leads of 19-2 and 26-4 by setting play after play for Jordan on offense while using him de-

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Tim Holt drove in two runs on a bases-loaded single to rally Texas A&M to four eighth-inning runs to eliminate top-seeded Florida 6-5 in the NCAA East Regional at Gainesville Saturday.

Holt, who drove in another run on a fifth-inning double, singled up the middle off Florida reliever John Pricher to score Scott Smith and Stephen Claybrook with the winning runs.

Chris Clemons (7-1) pitched five and one-third innings of two-hit relief to pick up the win for the Aggies.

Minihan overcomes injury to win second state championship

■ Midland Christian's David Minihan doesn't let a broken foot deny him a second straight TAPPS tennis title.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

Last December in a basketball practice, Midland Christian senior David Minihan felt something pop. The diagnosis was a dream busting broken foot.

Gone were 20-plus points a game for the Mustangs, who went on to lose in the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools regional tournament.

But also in jeopardy,was Minihan's hopes of defending his TAPPS state singles championship in tennis.

"I thought I had ruined my senior year," Minihan said. "Tennis is my real love. I won the (TAPPS) state championship last year and didn't know if I could come back with the broken foot."

The road back was painful enough.

"In February, I stood in one spot and played step and hit for five weeks and it was tough because I hadn't walked right in three months," Minihan said. "Step and hit. That's all I did. I didn't know if I would ever be able to move like I wanted again."

By March Minihan was able to return to basketball, but it wasn't a real success story.

"I got to play about three minutes in the regional game. We didn't win and I didn't contribute much, but I still had hopes of playing tennis."

Minihan missed Midland Christian's first tennis tournament, but then played in a tournament in Lubbock.

Courier men's favorite in French Open

Associated Press

PARIS — The French Open has something unusual this year — an overwhelming favorite for the men's title.

Can anybody stop Jim Courier?

The 21-year-old Florida native is returning to Paris, where he won his first Grand Slam title a year ago, as the undisputed No. 1 player in the world.

He won the Australian Open earlier this year and swept to an impressive victory last week in the Italian Open, the season's major clay-court warmup for Paris, stretching his winning streak to 16 matches.

So dominant is Courier at the moment that he has taken to describing his form in terms of perfection.

"The way I'm hitting the ball and moving and how I feel physically, it's perfect," Courier said after overpowering Spain's Carlos Costa, the year's clay-court sensation, in the final of the Italian Open last Sunday. "I am very pleased and very confident."

The women's field is headed by two-time defending champion Monica Seles, with Gabriela Sabatini, Steffi Graf and Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario as the main challengers. No surprises there.

But there hasn't been such a strong favorite among the men since Mats Wilander won at Roland Garros in 1988. In

Brown goes the distance as Rangers down Royals

Associated Press

American

ARLINGTON — Kevin Brown gave Texas' struggling bullpen a night off with a complete game and Ivan Rodriguez capped a four-run first inning with a two-run homer as the Rangers beat the Kansas City Royals 4-2 Saturday.

The Rangers have won six of their last seven games.

Brown (7-3) pitched his third complete game of the season with an eight-hitter. He struck out six and walked one while getting 14 groundouts. Brown had a 1-4 record with a 5.02 ERA lifetime against Kansas City entering the game.

Texas relievers had been knocked around for 10 runs in their last three innings as their ERA soared to 5.04, second-highest in the American League to Seattle's 5.81. The Rangers' bullpen had given up 24 runs in 21 2-3 innings over their previous eight games.

Royals starter Mike Magnante (1-4), who entered the game with a 7.48 ERA, lasted only two-thirds of an inning before he was lifted for Mike Boddicker.

Magnante faced nine batters and all but one reached base as he allowed four runs, five hits and three walks.

Singles by Dickie Thon and Juan Gonzalez sandwiched around a walk to Rafael Palmeiro loaded the bases and Ruben Sierra followed with a two-run single.

Red Sox 5, Athletics 1

BOSTON — Wade Boggs drove in a pair of runs with his third homer in two games and a single and John Dopson won for the first time since Oct. 1, 1989.

In his second start since being sidelined with a right elbow injury June 5, 1990, Dopson (1-1) allowed seven hits, struck out three and didn't walk a batter in eight innings.

Dopson was replaced by Danny Darwin at the start of the ninth as the Red Sox won for the fourth time in five games.

Boggs, who had his first two homers of the season and a double in the Red Sox' 5-3 loss to Oakland Friday night, grounded an RBI single to right off A's starter Mike Moore (5-3) in the second inning. Then he led off the fifth with a home run about a dozen rows into the bleachers beyond the Boston bullpen in right-center, a drive of 442 feet.

Twins 6, Tigers 5

DETROIT — Shane Mack had three hits and scored three runs as Minnesota beat Detroit in a game delayed by rain three times for a total of 1 hour, 28 minutes.

Counting the delay, the game took 4:59 to complete. The last two innings were played during a steady rain on a swamped field.

Indians 5, Mariners 4

SEATTLE — Seven Cleveland pitchers combined on a four-hitter as the Indians broke a six-game losing streak.

The Mariners lost for the fourth time in five games, while the Indians won for only the second time in 13 games.

The Indians, who had lost four one-run games in a row, scored the go-ahead run in the eighth. Albert Belle singled for his third hit and Mark Whiten doubled him to third off Erik Hanson (1-7).

Brewers 5, Yankees 4

NEW YORK — Robin Yount hit a solo home run with two outs in the 10th inning, and Milwaukee beat New York in the Yankees' fourth straight extra-inning game.

The major league record for consecutive extra-inning games is five, set by Detroit in 1908. The Yankees beat California in 10 and 12 innings before losing to Milwaukee 10-9 Friday night in 14 innings, a game that featured seven home runs.

Angels 6, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE — The California Angels finally had something go right on their dreadful roadtrip, using a strong pitching performance by Mark Langston to beat Baltimore.

The victory was a tiny positive note in a trip that had been marred by a near-tragic bus crash and six losses in seven games. It was the Angels' second game — and first win — since the team bus veered off the New Jersey Turnpike on Thursday, injuring manager Buck Rodgers and 11 others.

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 2

CHICAGO — Craig Grebeck scored one run and drove in another and reliever Scott Radinsky worked out of a seventh-inning jam, leading the Chicago White Sox past Toronto.

The Blue Jays committed five errors, including three by third baseman Kelly Gruber, but all of the White Sox runs were earned.

Cards deal blow to Astros

Associated Press

National

ST. LOUIS — Ray Lankford tripled with the bases loaded and rookie Donovan Osborne won his fifth game as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Houston Astros 10-4 Saturday night.

Lankford's hit capped a four-run sixth inning off Pete Harnisch (2-5) as the Cardinals recorded their 14th come-from-behind win of the year.

Todd Zeile and Milt Thompson singled and Tom Pagnozzi was intentionally walked to bring up Lankford. Ozzie Smith drove in Lankford with a single.

Zeile broke a 1 for 20 slump with two hits and Smith had three hits, leaving him four shy of the 2,000 mark.

Osborne (5-2) allowed four runs on six hits in six innings. Cris Carpenter pitched the final three innings for his first save and had a two-run single in the seventh with the bases loaded.

Expos 7, Braves 6

MONTREAL — Larry Walker and Tim Wallach hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning, leading Montreal over the Braves.

Walker hit his eighth home run of the season off Mike Stanton (0-2). Four pitches later, Wallach followed with his second. Wallach was returned to third base by new Montreal manager Felipe Alou after playing first base for the first seven weeks of the season.

Jeff Fassero (2-2) pitched the eighth and John Wetteland finished for his seventh save, allowing Greg Olson's first home run. It was the Expos second straight victory under Alou, who replaced Tom Runnells on Friday.

Mets 6, Giants 3

SAN FRANCISCO — Bobby Bonilla went 4-for-5 with a three-run homer and Dwight Gooden scattered five hits in eight innings as New York beat the San Francisco.

Dick Schofield drove in two runs and Eddie Murray collected his 1,500th career RBI as New York snapped the Giants' four-game winning streak.

Reds 10, Phillies 0

PHILADELPHIA — Greg Swindell pitched a six-hitter for his first shutout since 1989 and hit a two-run double as Cincinnati stopped the Phillies' three-game winning streak.

Swindell (4-2) struck out five and walked none for his first shutout since June 7, 1989, while pitching for Cleveland.

Hal Morris had three hits and Bip Roberts drove in two runs for the Reds.

Cubs 7, Padres 2

SAN DIEGO — Ryne Sandberg broke an 0-for-17 slump with three hits and three RBIs, including a home run, as Chicago snapped a three-game losing streak.

Bruce Hurst (3-4), coming off back-to-back shutouts against the New York Mets, gave up seven runs on nine hits in seven innings. Hurst, who pitched a one-hitter against the Mets in his last start, is 0-3 lifetime in five starts against Chicago.

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4

LOS ANGELES — Rookie Eric Karros hit a pinch three-run homer to cap a four-run rally in the ninth inning which beat Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh relievers Roger Mason and Stan Belinda (2-1) failed to protect a 4-1 lead for starter Vicente Palacios, who gave up six hits in seven innings.

MINIHAN: Mustangs cap successful season regain another state berth in April. Minihan captured the state title with a straight set, 6-2, 6-2, win over David Moore of Dallas Lexington Christian in the finals.

Ironically, Minihan's toughest test came in the first round of the state championship tournament in Waco when he was carried to three sets by Andress Lopez of Houston's John Cooper School, 6-0, 2-6, 6-1.

"The first match was the toughest by far," Minihan said. "There was a lot of pressure on me coming off the broken foot and going in as the top seed of the tournament.

"Although I didn't know it at the time, Lopez is an exchange student from Spain and he was ranked No. 2 in Spain. I only found that out after I beat him. I might not have won the match if I had known that beforehand."

All of that "step and hit" and repeat championship paid big dividends. Minihan will play tennis for Incarnate Word College in San Antonio next fall while on athletic scholarship.

"David is a great all-around athlete," says Eddie Lee, Midland Christian superintendent who also serves as the school's tennis coach. "He averaged over 20 points per game as a junior in basketball, won two state championships in tennis and was also the medalist on our golf team, which placed seventh in the state."

"I play golf just for relaxation," Minihan said. "I like golf, but I have traveled all over the state playing tennis. My dad and I used to go play golf on the tennis trips just to relax."

Minihan thinks he could have contributed to Midland Lee's tennis program, but decided to stay at Midland Christian.

"I live in the Lee district, so that's probably where I would have gone to high school. I have beaten some of the players on the high school teams, but I really wouldn't change. I love Midland Christian. It's like a public school, but smaller.

"There is one thing I didn't get to do, and that's play against Midland High's George St. Clair," Minihan said. "I got beat in one tournament just before I would have gotten to play him. George is the top player in town. I don't think I could have beaten him, but I would like to have played against him.

"But I can always say I was a state champion. I think that's great no matter what level you are playing on. That's something I can always claim."

It has been a big school year for Midland Christian. The Mustangs won the TAPPS six-man state championship in football and the state crown in girls basketball in addition to Minihan's singles title. Angela Hagins and Jill Fuller won a doubles tennis title and MC won the tennis team championship a year ago.

"We've had great success the last two years in athletics," said Lee, "but it is going to be much tougher next year. We move from Class A to Class 2A. TAPPS is the largest private school organization in the state by far, so no state championship should be taken for granted."

But Minihan had the last word, "Even in 2A, I think the girls will win state again. They're really good."

Minihan always did have a way of creating pressure situations.

INDY: Motors the main factor

that if I didn't believe in the safety of these cars and the fact that Jovy's death was a freak incident," Mears said. "We know that we can always get bit in a race car, but you have to trust the car and your own ability."

Mears will race with a protective sheath covering a broken bone on his left foot, a sprained right wrist and a sore upper body, all from his terrifying crash on May 6. He won last year with a broken bone in his right foot.

Despite the glamour that annually brings 400,000 spectators to Indy, the motors are the factor turning the 76th running into the most wide open race since the inaugural in 1911.

Guerrero, who once lay in a coma for 17 days after crashing at Indy, stole the qualifying thunder with four straight laps over 232. But he did it in a Lola powered by a Buick V6 engine, a power plant that has a horsepower advantage at Indianapolis under the rules. Buick also has a less-than-favorable finishing record and never has won a 500-mile Indy-car race.

Four of the top six spots in the lineup — two on each of the first two rows — are held by veteran drivers in cars propelled by new and unproven Ford Cosworth XB engines. So far, the teams of father and son Mario and Michael Andretti and Eddie Cheever and Arie Luyendyk haven't had a single engine problem. But the new Ford engine has never run a 500-mile race.

Team Penske, which owns a record eight Indy 500 victories, including four by Mears, has had its new Penske chassis and equally new Chevrolet Indy V8-B engines overshadowed by the Buick and Ford entries, as well as some of the cars with the proven Chevy Indy V8-A engines. That leaves big questions marks next to the names of Mears and teammate Fittipaldi, the 1989 winner.

The A-version of the Chevy engines come into this race having won 39 in a row.

HALL/VDS: Reliability the goal was actually laid out in late 1991 when co-owners Jim Hall and Franz Weis considered all the alternatives and decided to go with the Chevrolet V8-A engine and the most conventional of the Lola chassis.

Their objective was to achieve reliability. The logic was that the Buick and Ford engines had yet to prove their competitiveness and reliability over 500 miles.

Of the remaining Chevrolet-A engine powered cars in the race, several of them were built on unproven chassis, such as the Truesport (Scott Pruett) and the Galmer (Al Unser Jr. and Danny Sullivan).

"There are so many things that can happen during the race. If the Fords and Buicks are going to run the high 220s the whole race, we're not going to be able to catch them. We are going to go out and make the best handling car that we can get. The Buicks and the Fords in outright speed are quicker, but 500 miles is the question," Andretti said.

Four Ford-powered cars and two Buicks will start in the first two rows when the green flag falls about 11 a.m. In addition to the other Fords and Buicks that start in front of him, Andretti will try to catch two Cheverolet-A drivers (Sullivan and Unser Jr.) and two Chevrolet-B engine cars (Rick Mears and Emerson Fittipaldi). Andretti will be starting from the middle of the fifth row.

Midland crewmen working in the pits for Andretti, managed by Jim Hall and team manager Larry Curry, will be chief mechanic Dave Brzozowski at the outside rear tire, Tim Broyles, outside front tire; Bill Martin, inside rear tire; Alex Hering, inside front tire; fueler Gary Buckner and Ted Bitting, vent and air jack man.

Behind the wall are Ken Doughty, the electronics technician, Malcolm Hall, who works on transmissions and holds the "deadman" valve during fueling operations; Steve Phillips, who holds the starter motor in readiness; Neil Roberts, who monitors the pitside computer which produces data for team engineer Bernie Marcus to analyze as the race progresses.

Tall City lands five on 4-5A first-team baseball unit

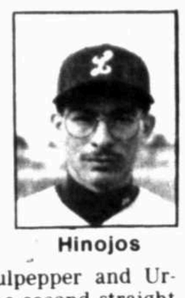
Staff report

Midland players took five of the 14 first team positions on the District 4-5A All-District baseball team announced today.

Chase

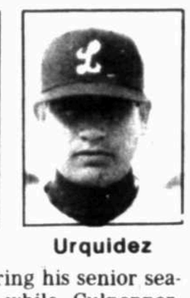
First baseman Jimmy Stanton and utility outfielder Dewayne Culpepper of Midland High join Midland Lee's Allen Chase (shortstop), Smily Hinojos (outfield) and Julian Urquidez (designated hitter) on the first team.

Culpepper



Hinojos

Stanton



Urquidez

For Chase, Culpepper and Urquidez, it was the second straight appearance on the first team, as all three were All-District selections a year ago. Also last year, Stanton was named honorable mention and Hinojos was a second-team pick.

Stanton hit .550 with 12 RBI in district play during his senior season this year, while Culpepper, also a senior, hit .370 from his leadoff spot in the order.

Chase's defensive skills were highlighted by his .488 average and 11 RBI in his last high school season, while Urquidez, a junior, hit .484 with 11 RBI and two district home runs.

Hinojos was the district's leading hitter with a minimum of 20 at-bats, using his .630 average to score 10 runs in his 12 district games.

Local players named to the second team were Lee first baseman Sean McIntosh, a junior who hit .421 with 13 RBI and three district homers; senior Rebel outfielder Jake Krautsch (.391); junior MHS catcher Mike Melzer (.325); and Bulldog senior pitcher Brian Rounding (3-3 with a 4.65 ERA while hitting .280).

Senior MHS infielder Richie Greth and Lee's Jimmy Patton, a senior pitcher/DH, received honorable mention.

Penguins sweep Bruins

Associated Press

BOSTON — The defending champion Pittsburgh Penguins returned to the Stanley Cup finals by completing a four-game sweep of the Boston Bruins with a 5-1 victory behind Mario Lemieux's two goals Saturday night.

That gave the Penguins the Wales Conference title and a spot in the best-of-7 finals against Chicago starting Tuesday night in Pittsburgh.

Chicago also swept Edmonton, making it only the second time in best-of-7 semifinals that both finalists advanced with sweeps. Boston and the New York Rangers did it in 1972 when the Bruins won their last Stanley Cup.

For the second straight game, Pittsburgh took control early and charged into a 4-0 lead. The Penguins survived Boston's occasional threats until Steve Leach spoiled Tom Barrasso's shutout bid at 5:53 of the third period.

NHL Playoffs

While the Penguin goals resulted from precise playmaking and excellent individual moves, Boston wasted several good chances by shooting wide or into Barrasso's glove or chest.

For the fourth straight game, Pittsburgh's big guns did the most damage. Jaromir Jagr won the opener with an overtime goal, Lemieux had two goals and an assist in Game 2, and Kevin Stevens had four goals in Thursday night's 5-1 rout.

On Saturday night, Jagr began the onslaught 4:51 into the game. Lemieux got a shorthanded goal at 13:09 of the first period. After defenseman Paul Stanton made the score 3-0 at 5:27 of the second, Lemieux connected again at 13:58 of the period for his 11th goal, matching Stevens' playoff-leading total.

That was more than enough for Pittsburgh to win its seventh straight playoff series. It also won its eighth consecutive playoff game over the Bruins, outscoring them 38-14, since Boston won the first two games of last year's Wales final. The Bruins were swept after sweeping Montreal in the Adams Division finals.

Jagr, who has at least one point in his last eight games, got his ninth goal of the playoffs with a five-foot backhander to the left of goalie Andy Moog. It was set up by Ron Francis' pass from the slot to Jagr on left wing.

The second goal was all Lemieux.

Boston had a 4-on-3 advantage, and Joe Juneau had the puck in the right corner of the Penguins' zone. He tried to pass to Ray Bourque at the left point, but the 6-foot-4 Lemieux stretched his long right arm and intercepted the puck in the right circle.

COURIER: Agassi most suited to red clay

the past three years, the French Open began with wide-open fields and ended with surprise winners — Michael Chang in 1989, Andres Gomez in 1990 and Courier himself in 1991.

None came into the French with the kind of season that Courier has enjoyed in 1992.

"I'm playing much better," he said. "I feel I'm more of a professional as each day goes by. I know what I need to do to play well. It's been pretty much of a dream year."

There's every reason to believe the dream will continue in Paris, although Courier won't take anything for granted.

"Two weeks is a long time," he said. "A lot of weird things can happen. That's the beauty of it."

Other contenders in Paris figure to include Stefan Edberg, Wimbledon champion Michael Stich, Pete Sampras, Andre Agassi, Chang, Costa and clay-court specialists such as Emilio Sanchez, Sergi Bruguera and Thomas Muster. Boris Becker is skipping the French Open because of a thigh injury.

Of all the challengers, Agassi — Courier's former roommate at the Nick Bollettieri academy in Florida — has the game most suited to the red clay in Paris. But he has folded in two straight French Open finals.

BULLS: Jordan takes defense of Cavs' Price into own hands

fensively to hound Price. Jordan scored 17 points in the period; Price scored 11 but had no assists in the quarter.

"I found myself in switches now and then, and I did what I could to cover Price," Jordan said.

But what about those times Jordan picked Price up before any screens had been set?

"I just tried to keep a bigger body on him, keep him off the 3-point line," Jordan said. "The refs wouldn't call as many cheap fouls on me. The other guys (John Paxson and B.J. Armstrong) have been getting called for touchy, touchy fouls."

"That was of his own volition," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said. "We were mismatched on our presses after free throws a couple of times, and he liked it and wanted to stay with it."

The Cavaliers still trailed by 18 early in the fourth quarter until Brad Daugherty's rebound basket and two jumpers by rookie Terrell Brandon woke up the sellout crowd of 20,273.

Cleveland eventually closed to 98-91 on Daugherty's fastbreak layup with 1:53 left before Jordan made two free throws and passed to Scott Williams for a dunk that restored the double-digit margin.

Jordan also had nine assists and six rebounds. Scottie Pippen had 23 points and nine rebounds, and Horace Grant had 15 points and 11 rebounds.

Craig Ehlo led Cleveland with 20 points. Larry Nance and Daugherty each scored 18.

Price is usually guarded by Paxson. But with the taller, quicker Jordan shadowing his every step, Price had trouble seeing the court well enough to run Cleveland's offense. He finished with three assists.

"Yeah, that surprised me a lot," Daugherty said. "Mark couldn't hardly throw the ball to me. When the two of us got on one side of the court and tried to do our thing, Michael just cornered Mark off and wouldn't let him get the ball to me. He was forcing Mark to go the other way."

Chicago led 37-18 after one quarter and 57-37 at halftime, and Jordan boosted the lead to 79-57 — matching the biggest of the game — by hitting a 20-footer with 2:45 left in the third quarter.

"I thought in the fourth quarter we made a run at them, but they hit a couple of big shots and we couldn't catch up," John Williams said. "We turned the ball over a few times, and they're a championship team. They know what to do with it. Hopefully we can come out with a win Monday. We don't want to go into Chicago down 3-1."

Jordan has scored 30 or more points in 12 of his 13 career playoff games against Cleveland. The only exception was Thursday night, when he made only seven of 22 shots while bothered by a cold.

"The virus is over and done with. I was ready for this game," he said.

None of the first three games of the series has been close at the end, a trend both teams expect to end.

"It's been momentum and defense so far that have given the teams energy at the start of each game," Jackson said. "I think things are going to even out."

Porter proves he is human in loss to Jazz

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Terry Porter finally showed that he isn't perfect. And neither is Portland anymore in the Western Conference final against Utah.

Porter, who burned the Jazz with 41 points in Game 2, scored only 13 points Friday night as Utah won 97-89 and cut the Trail Blazers' lead to 2-1 in the best-of-7 series.

With John Stockton hounding him on defense, Porter managed to hit just 3 of 13 hurried shots, including both of his 3-pointers. He was 4 of 5 from long range in the previous game.

"I thought our defense stayed tough throughout," said Stockton, who finished with 14 points. "But I don't think I did anything special. I just tried to stay with him. The way he was shooting before, I was beginning to wonder if he was human."

After Friday night, the answer was a resounding "yes." From the beginning, Stockton showed the puzzled Porter what to expect the remainder of the series. He challenged every step, forcing Porter to either pass off or throw up bricks.

"We all had to make a decision as to whether we wanted to go on vacation or win," Stockton said. "No one wants to get swept."

Porter had predicted his 77 percent shooting in Games 1 and 2 would "logically" fade.

"That's something they really tried to zero in on," Porter said. "John Stockton stayed a lot closer to me. He did a great job. I didn't get as many good looks at the basket."

Despite the victory, Utah knows it must win Game 4 at home today or face possible elimination in Portland on Tuesday. The Jazz are an NBA-best 44-4 at home this season, including the playoffs.

"It's do or die basically," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "That's when guys need to step up and be as good as they can be."

Karl Malone, who led the Jazz with 39 points Friday, agreed the team can't afford a letdown on Sunday.

"This whole series, Jeff (Malone) and I would joke with each other and say, 'I wonder what the other guys (eliminated teams) are doing. I'll bet they're driving their cars or whatever.

"Jeff looked at me and said, 'Hey, I'll be playing tennis and you'll be fishing and driving your truck if we don't get together.'"

It remains Portland's goal to send the Malones on vacation. But Blazers coach Rick Adelman says, in order to do that, his team must contain Karl Malone.

"No one works harder getting the spot inside. We've got to do a better job forcing him out."

Perot is not a political novice

Ross Perot, the sure-fire bet for an independent run for the presidency this year, is being billed by some as a political "insider" during the Nixon Administration.

Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, the only apparent Democrat in the race, has been rapidly promoted to "insider" status.

And President George Bush, who has been in the political sweepstakes since shortly after arriving in Texas in the late 1940's, can properly be labeled the "ultimate insider." Of course, Bush is at home in the Oval Office now. The other two are merely trying to take his place there.

The point is whichever lever a voter pulls in November, he isn't likely to cast his vote for someone who isn't part of the political establishment in this nation even though this is the year millions of voters might want to do exactly that.

According to results of a Texas Poll released in April, many Texas voters — whether Democrats or Republicans — will vote for Perot because they "feel like the system in Washington is in gridlock, and they see Ross as a man who has been able to be effective in the public arena and the private arena."

There's no question that Perot has been effective, but there are particular issues on which he has not opened up to let Texans and others know where he stands. He needs to because otherwise voters might not get the result they're hoping for if Perot were to be elected.

Perot's camp includes Dallas attorney Tom Luce, who sought the Republican nomination for governor last time around. Among Luce's political supporters was Peter O'Donnell, a wealthy Dallas investor who is said to represent David Rockefeller's interests in the state.

Rockefeller's interests, of course, are decidedly liberal and far different from those of many Texas voters.

That makes Perot as much a political "insider" as Bush or Clinton ever will be and gives those who thought they saw in the Dallas billionaire a quality choice away from the Washington political mainstream a reason to ponder the presidential candidates once again.

In politics, as in other matters, you need to have as much information about the candidates as possible to know what you'll get for your vote.

Works plan seems best

The turmoil in America's cities has clearly sparked new questions about what, if anything, can be done to improve the lives of America's poor. No quick solutions are evident, but answers do exist . . . Priority should be given to early intervention strategies, education reform, community policing, job training and job creation.

The new Community WPA plan, which is being pushed by Sen. (David) Boren and co-sponsors such as Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, would help provide jobs for able-bodied welfare recipients who, with the exception of mothers with small children, are now correctly being required to seek employment. . . . Putting people back to work is clearly much better than handouts. If structured properly, it should also reduce welfare costs and add to the rebuilding of America's infrastructure. That's a tack worth exploring.

Insurance loophole needs plug

An apparent oversight in the state law requiring all motorists to carry liability insurance threatens to open a floodgate of litigation, fraud and higher insurance rates unless the Legislature plugs the loophole.

For years . . . insurance companies, under State Board of Insurance guidelines, have issued policies with a family-member exclusion: One member of a family could not sue another for damages and collect from an automobile insurance company. That exclusion is in question in a case now making its way through the state courts.

Imagine Texas without such an exclusion. . . . The resulting fraud and lawsuits could cause already high insurance rates to spiral even higher. The Legislature bears the responsibility of making it crystal clear that family-member exclusion does apply in Texas, as it does in about half the states.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, May 24, the 145th day of 1992. There are 221 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 24, 1844, Samuel F.B. Morse transmitted the message, "What hath God wrought!" from Washington to Baltimore as he formally opened America's first telegraph line.

On this date:

In 1819, Queen Victoria was born in London.

In 1830, the first passenger railroad service in the United States began service between Baltimore and Elliott's Mills, Md.

In 1881, some 200 people died when the Canadian ferry "Princess Victoria" sank near London, Ont.

In 1883, the Brooklyn Bridge, linking Brooklyn and Manhattan, was opened to traffic.

In 1941, the German battleship "Bismarck" sank the British dreadnought "Hood" in the North Atlantic.

In 1958, United Press International was formed through a merger of the United Press and the International News Service.

In 1962, astronaut Scott Carpenter became the second American to orbit the Earth as he flew aboard "Aurora Seven."

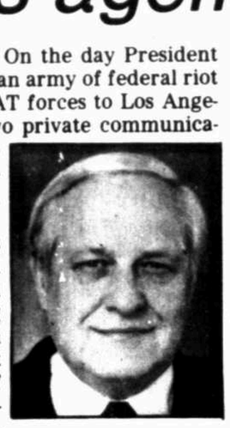
Kemp's agenda suddenly attracts Bush

WASHINGTON – On the day President Bush deployed an army of federal riot police and SWAT forces to Los Angeles, he also received two private communications from Jack Kemp concerning the short- and long-term crisis in urban America.



Anderson

The May Day memos detail a GOP war on poverty, a gospel Kemp's been preaching with more fanfare than followers since his first days as Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Until recently, Kemp has been Washington's wandering prophet. Now even the White House has found religion.

In his memo to the president, Kemp implored Bush to "propose a longer-term solution" and "address head-on the devastating sense of hopelessness and despair in America's inner cities and propose a specific and audacious agenda to bring inner-city residents back into the economic mainstream." In a thinly veiled barb, he wrote, "Americans know that the status quo is not working, and they will look to the president for leadership in articulating a fundamentally new approach to urban problems."

In the meantime, short-term trauma care was needed. "The crisis on the streets of Los Angeles and other cities requires an emergency response by the White House to help cool flaring tempers and heal the physical and emotional wounds," Kemp wrote.

In his memo, Kemp sounded like a man shaking every piggy-bank in the bureaucracy, anything to free up loose change from the federal budget. He listed the 335 Federal Housing Administration single-family foreclosed properties in Los Angeles that could be made available to the homeless.

The Government National Mortgage Association has some 3,000 mobile homes in its inventory, but would first have to be shipped from around the country. Emergency Shelter Grants could be used to rent hotel rooms.

The Community Development Block Grant funds loomed as a bigger piece of change. Kemp told Bush that Los Angeles has $62.5 million of its fiscal year 1992 allocation and Los Angeles County has about $30 million that would be released on July 1. Kemp said HUD was thinking about ways to release those funds sooner so they could be used for demolition and infrastructure repairs — "including restocking looted medicine and other essential items."

In the aftermath of Los Angeles, Kemp loyalists have been treated the spectacle of a president riding the coattails of his Cabinet secretary.

Last fall, however, Kemp's political rags-to-riches story reached low-ebb aboard Air Force One on a trip back to Washington from the West Coast.

According to one close adviser, Kemp pigeon-holed the president for a conversation about the languishing domestic agenda. Bush heard vintage Kemp — a running narrative of America's economic ills and a recitation of conversations he's had with experts and activists, with whom he seems to be on a first-name basis.

Any hopes Kemp harbored that the mid-air session made a difference were soon dashed. At a White House meeting last November, Kemp's frustration flared over his failure to move Bush and other Cabinet members to seize the initiative in domestic affairs.

"I guess I'm the only failure in your Cabinet, Mr. President,"

Kemp said.

Relations grew more frigid days after Bush's State of the Union speech. Kemp roiled the waters when he branded one of the president's economic recommendations a "gimmick," for which he quickly apologized.

Opposition fears effects of balanced budget

WASHINGTON — What's new? Not much. At least not in American political argument. Follow the thread of most current controversies back into American history and you reach arguments from the 1790s. Today's argument about a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget rekindles an argument that engaged Madison and Jefferson against Hamilton, as William Niskanen knows.

An economics professor at Berkeley and UCLA before joining President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, Niskanen now is chairman of the Cato Institute and an advocate of "a new fiscal constitution." A balanced budget amendment would, he says, restore what was lost when America abandoned two linked understandings, one of the Constitution and one of fiscal morality.

During the nation's first 140 years, he says, government growth was restrained and budget discipline was maintained by a constitutional interpretation and an "informal rule." The interpretation was of Article I, Section 8's enumeration of Congress' powers. It said Congress could spend only to exercise powers specifically enumerated in Section 8.

Niskanen, in the Jeffersonian tradition, construes that section as empowering Congress to spend pursuant to "only 18 rather narrowly defined powers," few of which — establishing post offices and post roads, raising an army and navy — involve the potential for substantial expenditures. (President Jefferson, doubting the constitutionality of most public spending, reluctantly signed the national road bill but urged Congress to initiate a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing such activities.) Strict construction of Section 8's enumerated powers accorded with the "informal rule" that government should borrow only during recessions and wars.

Niskanen's fidelity to the Madisonian notion of enumerated powers (one of Madison's last acts as president was to veto a roads and canals bill on the ground that "such a power is not expressly given by the Constitution") may seem of merely antiquarian interest. History has long since settled the constitutional question in the Hamiltonians' favor, with a permissive construction of the first of Section 8's clauses. That clause, which says Congress has the power to act for "the general welfare," has become a loophole large enough for Leviathan to stride through.

In 1936 the Supreme Court, stepping out of the way of the New Deal, formally interred the doctrine of enumerated powers. The court opened the way to the modern state by asserting that "the power of Congress to authorize appropriations of public money for public purposes is not limited by the direct grants of legislative power found in the Constitution."

Still, Niskanen notes that as late as the Eisenhower administration there was rhetorical deference to the doctrine of enumerated powers. Thus when creating the Interstate Highway System, Congress called the legislation the National Defense Highway Transportation Act, a title linking the project to the enumerated power to "provide for the common defense." Similarly, the federal government's first major education program, providing loans for college students, was called the National Defense Education Act.

Nowadays government, unlimited by constitutional enumeration of its proper purposes, permeates life, and there is no longer even a nod toward the old idea of limited congressional powers to spend. The dissolution of political and constitutional restraints on Congress has been a boon to legislative careerists. They have a permanent vocational incentive to borrow to finance current expenditures, thereby pleasing current voters by passing burdens on to future voters.

George Will's column is distributed by Washington Post Writers Group.

RUSSELL BAKER

Congress ends budget woes with amendment

Stand back, everybody! Back! Congress is about to amend the Constitution. When they get through, everybody — that's you, son; that's you, mother — absolutely everybody can quit worrying.

Baker

That's right, folks: Quit worrying is what you'll do. And when you quit worrying, what are you going to be? That's right, sister; that's right, brother: You're going to be happy.

Happy again! And all it takes is this one little amendment to that sacred American document we all love. I'm talking our great Constitution.

It takes a lot of really great greatness to make America great. Greatness like Madonna and McDonald's. Billions sold and still counting. Great things like baseball, and golden parachutes, and the Lincoln Memorial, and the late, great Thomas Jefferson with his famous pursuit of happiness.

Yes, my friends, the pursuit of happiness, that's what America is all about, and that's what the Constitution was written for, and that's why Congress is about to amend it, and that's why the president — yes, Mr. Himself himself — is telling the Congress to get on with the amending pronto.

These fine folks want to end all the worrying, all the fretting and all the stewing about this debt — this deficit as they call it. You know all about it. Sure you do. Hundreds of billions in debts. Maybe hundreds of trillions. Who knows what those weird numbers mean in real money? Nobody.

But what everybody does know, friend — what every last man, woman, child, mother, father, grandmommy, granddaddy and tiny little nose-picker knows — is the awful worrying that comes from having that awful debt hanging over us like some awful sword of damson trees.

Hear me now, everybody; hear me now! Once they get this tiny but wonderful new amendment into our otherwise perfect Constitution, you'll be saying goodbye to Old Man Worry. "So long, Old Mr. Worry," you're going to say. "Hello happiness."

All right, you've heard happiness promised before. You've heard other people stand right here in this very place and say you could get happiness for a $2 bottle of some miraculous liquid, lotion, unguent or cream they just happened to be selling. And when you got it home, it didn't work. It didn't bring the happiness you'd been promised. When you got fed up and put a horse-tail hair in it and let it sit overnight, the hair hadn't even turned into a snake when you got up next morning.

So you're wondering, How is this wonderful little constitutional amendment different from that snake oil that didn't bring us one single moment of happiness? And I'm here to tell you. Are you ready for this, mother? Give her your arm, daddy. And you older folks — I mean, you beautiful superannuated citizens — maybe you'd better sit down for this.

Ready, everybody? Here it is: This amendment's going to say the government has to balance the budget. That's right: balance the budget! The government will have to! The Constitution will say so!

Imagine it, folks: no more trillion-dollar deficits to worry about. The late great Jefferson's dream of happiness pursued will at last become happiness captured. And with nothing but a simple little constitutional amendment.

And how does it work? By a miracle of simplicity. When you want something from the government, the government has to raise taxes enough to pay for it. Right away you say, "You mean they're going to raise my taxes?"

Shame on you for even thinking it. Your government knows you don't elect them to raise your taxes. They'll raise somebody else's taxes.

Now I can hear folks who live on Social Security and Pentagon contracts saying, "But there aren't enough other people in the whole world to pay the kind of taxes it takes to keep us eating."

Not to worry, friends. Not to worry. The only thing that'll be balanced under the amendment is the budget. When taxes are too skimpy to keep everybody happy, maintaining happiness will be redefined as an "off-budget" item. That way the money keeps rolling out, the taxes keep staying down, and the happiness keeps rolling in.

Now also today, friends, I have this miraculous new oil. You simply open the bottle, insert a single whisker from a cat's chin and overnight . . .

STUDENTS' VIEWS on: Keeping Midland beautiful

During April, students wrote letters to the mayor concerning one or all components of the Keep Midland Beautiful program — litter reduction,, recycling/waste reduction, education about protecting our environment or beautification.

More recycling

Dear Mayor Thomas,

Even though Midland is a beautiful place it will soon get trashy like the rest of the world. If you ask me, we should have a bigger recycling center; plus whenever the trash man comes to pick the trash up he could take it to a recycling center. Even though he wouldn't get paid for taking it, the center could donate the money to a fund for research to find out how to stop pollution.

Ah yes, pollution, it is getting bad everywhere so we could get those filters that we have in our air-conditioners and put them on top of smoke stacks. Did you know that air pollution can make Midland a nasty place? It can give you awful lung cancer even though we don't deserve it.

Beautification is another problem. I mean have you seen all the wild flowers this year? If we don't stop littering we might never see the wildflowers again because the lots will be filled with trash. We could also make more videos to educate more kids and people. Law enforcement isn't a big deal around Midland but we could have a part of the police squad defending litter.

Let's just hope that we can keep Midland just plain beautiful.

Midland has litter

Dear Mayor,

I think Midland has a problem with litter. I don't remember the last time I went to the park or drove down Loop 250 without seeing an aluminum can. It has become a real problem.

One way to help is to expand our litter control program. More organizations would volunteer to pick up litter in areas filled with unwanted pollution. Soon, Midland would start to look more attractive.

Another way to help is to set up a recycling center. Midland does not have one. A recycling center that recycles paper, plastic, aluminum and metal would be a step in the right direction.

Beautification is a wonderful way to clean up. Planting trees, bulbs, and flowers makes places beautiful. Clean parks, schools and even whole communities encourages people to keep areas clean.

I hope you'll agree, Midland has a problem with litter. This problem could easily be solved with more community action. By just picking up a piece of paper you've made your area that much cleaner. With a little action and working together, Midland would be a better place to live.

How we can do it

Dear Mayor,

I have been asked to write a letter to you on how we can keep Midland beautiful. I am going to propose two ideas of how we can keep Midland beautiful.

The first idea I'm going to write about is beautification. I think that if people worked really hard we could make Midland a beautiful city. We should plant trees on roadsides and vacant lots. We should pick trash up that is lying on the ground. We should also enforce laws on littering. We should plant grass and flowers where they are needed. We should try to make Midland look beautiful.

The second idea I'm going to write about is recycling. We should all recycle so that we can save our environment and our resources.

If we just throw trash away it goes to a dump where it can pollute the air and ozone layer, and can possibly pollute the ground and our water supply. A dump is also not a good place to be; it doesn't smell good or look good. I would not want a dump in my backyard.

If we recycle, fewer dumps have to be dug, we save our resources, and we help the environment. Recycling is also less expensive than making something out of new resources. For example, recycling paper is less expensive than cutting down a tree and making new paper. We should all recycle not only to save money but to save our environment and our resources, too.

2 programs to help

Dear Mayor,

There are two programs Midland can establish to help protect our environment. They're recycling and composting. These have been successful in other Texas cities.

About 80 percent of all garbage is recyclable. By recycling 40 percent of our garbage, the landfill capacity could be extended by almost eight years. Is it possible in Midland? The city of Plano collects newspapers, glass, tin cans, plastics, and yard waste. A private collector picks up cardboard, office paper, and glass from businesses. This private collector built a recyclables processing plant to serve the entire program. Midland and Odessa both have recycling centers, but don't have a factory to produce new products from recycled goods. If we all work together, someday we could have a big recycling plant in Permian Basin.

Every year Texans use 5 million pounds of fertilizer. Compost is the best "FREE" fertilizer for your yard and the environment. It's nothing but a pile of leaves, grass, and vegetable scraps, with a little bit of fertilizer, dirt, and water thrown on to help it along. Right now almost 20 percent of Texas' landfill space is being filled with grass, leaves and trimmings. Composting could extend the life of our landfills by years. Compost acts as a fertilizer without burning your grass, saves $56 million a year in landfill costs, and it's free. The City of Victoria piles 8,000 tons of tree trimmings in large fields and lets the community chop limbs for firewood. The rest is given away for mulching.

Midland, let's start recycling. The environment depends on YOU!

Praise for KOCV-TV

Our local PBS affiliate, KOCV Channel 13, is to be commended for airing the recent special "What Kids Want to Know About Sex and Growing Up." I appreciate the fact that KOCV management is aware of the need for this kind of education for kids, families and the community. Communication about sexuality is never easy, but this program handled the subject matter in a sensitive, factual and most tasteful manner.

We need more of this type of education in our families, schools, churches and the media. Planned Parenthood of West Texas, Inc. is grateful to KOCV for bringing this program to the community and also to the Midland Reporter-Telegram for its coverage prior to the program.

SPEAKING OUT

Drugs show no favorites for rich, poor

By Blake Johnson

On the morning of June 19, 1986, the greatest basketball player ever to put on a uniform for the University of Maryland died of a massive heart attack. Who was the player? Len Bias, a 22-year-old who towered 6-feet, 10-inches and weighed 220 pounds, was in top physical condition. He had almost attained the dream pursued by thousands of athletes. Only two days before his death, Bias was picked in the first round of the NBA draft by the prestigious Boston Celtics. What caused Len's untimely death which robbed him of fame and fortune? Drugs! Bias died of a massive heart attack induced by a cocaine overdose.

This proves that drugs do not discriminate whose lives they destroy. It is not just the street bum who dies from drugs. It is not just athletes and movie stars who allow drugs to destroy them as well as their careers. Drugs will certainly give everyone an equal opportunity at self destruction. Average teenagers, mothers, fathers, and young children are corrupted every day by the mind-altering chemicals in illegal drugs. Many, such as Joe User, a common teenage drug addict, try to deny the problem thinking, "Drugs won't hurt me. I can stop any time I want." The truth of the matter is drugs cannot hear, drugs cannot think, and drugs cannot reason. All they can do, for Joe or anyone else, is destroy the mind, the family, and the trust of others.

Drugs change people, alter personalities, and chip away at minds. Controlled substances are like an aggressive army. They invade the mind and shut down the identity personality and values like an army destroys existing government and laws. The drug then reprograms the brain, scrambling the ability to think and react logically until a psychological addiction occurs. Then the drug controls the user like the army controls a besieged country. At this point Joe User loses his moral values and obligations and thus ignites the domino effect. At this point, Joe cannot hold a steady job whether it is school or work because the drug has changed his personality causing him to argue with and maybe even threaten his superiors. After losing or quitting, Joe thinks he has no reason to try to control his habit. His new drug tolerance causes the time he is high to diminish and the length and severity of the depressions between highs to increase. Joe is desperately in need of more and more of the substance to maintain a state of euphoria, but he now has no money with which to buy it.

At this point, Joe has lost all hope as well as desire to live. He only wants one thing, more drugs; and he is willing to do anything to get them — betray, cheat, even steal. Joe's addiction has altered his mind to a point that he lets nothing deter him from obtaining support for his habit. At first his robberies are small, from family and friends; however, eventually he becomes bolder. Still not thinking of the consequences, he advances to robbing stores and restaurants until finally he is caught. His case comes to trial, and 12 voices unanimously resound, "Guilty!" At this point, Joe User faces a life of prison and leaves his wife and family with their own grief to work through.

When an army invades and controls a country, it is not only the leaders of the invaded nation who are mal-treated. The people are robbed of their freedoms; and they, too, suffer. Much in the same way, a drug addiction does not only affect the user, it destroys the family including innocent, young children who probably suffer the most. The mind alteration induced by a controlled substance often causes parents to be irrational when dealing with their children. In periods of depression, they become violent, blame the children for problems, and resort to beatings or other physical abuse. These parents are never aware of the pain caused — physical as well as emotional. The parents have no loyalties other than to the addiction. The problems in the family intensify the drug induced depression to the point that the users become suicidal, trying desperately to free themselves from the shackles placed on them with their first high. Studies show the suicide rate among users is much higher than in the drug free community. What kind of role model do drug using parents make? What is the child to think if all he/she ever sees is violence in the home as a result of drugs? Facts today reveal that the child is likely to follow the same road as the parents, ending up with a life of misery and betrayal.

"Drugs won't hurt me. I can stop any time I want." Just another lie from the invading army of chemical abuse. For all of you Len Biases, Joe Users, and parents, the drug must not have heard you. You are lying to yourself as well as to those around you. You think it's your friends who are changing; however, it isn't your friends, it's you. It's too late for Len Bias, maybe for Joe User and these parents as well, but it isn't too late for the rest of us. Don't let chemicals flip the switch controlling your life and determining your death. You think drugs won't hurt you? Len Bias thought so, too.

Alcohol wreaks havoc in American society

By Meredith Blaydes

A child is brutally beaten, an addict commits suicide, and an outgoing high schooler is killed instantly by a speeding drunk driver. These common, fatal occurrences stem from one unquestionable source . . . alcohol. Its misuse is the cause for one of America's largest social concerns. Some effects of alcoholism are deep depression, painful guilt, scarring injuries, and saddening death, which affect not only the abuser, but also spread to the family and society like a contagious disease. At the most unfortunate moments, this depressant becomes a part of thousands of everyday lives, a part they do not want to let go. It may begin at a party or, contrarily, on a lonely Saturday night. With one drink, then another, the links in the chain multiply until the vulnerable abusers are bound to the one thing that is destroying them. By abusing family members or straggling behind the wheel of a car, in a stage of drunkenness, abusers endanger themselves, their homes, and the originally uninvolved public.

A number of alcoholics do not realize that they are victimizing themselves. One they bcome hooked, physically and psychologically, it is enormously harder to unleash themselves from the agonizing addiction and requires essential determination. Finally, the slow, frustrating process draws to a close as the withdrawal effects subside and the emotional dependencies persist no longer. Yet the tragic events resulting from the personality disorders of intoxication cannot be forgotten. With all of this in mind, it is difficult to understand why so many would put themselves in this painful situation. Who would take the risk of jeopardizing his or her own safety, health, and happiness as well as that of the lives of loved and innocent ones? The answer lies in the realization that easily influenced and unsure people turn to alcohol because they think it will help them cope with their problems and give their lives meaning. Those, predominately in the teens, who reach conflict and indecision take refuge in alcohol, unknowingly plunging into its deceptive waters.

In addition, the effects of alcohol on the abusers afflict the lives of family members, who see their role-models and confidants acting strangely and frequently violently towards them. Fire, medical emergencies, suicide, and abuse often result from alcoholism in the family. A child growing up in a dangerously unstable, depressing and scary environment such as this, influenced by those under the influence, undoubtedly behaves and thinks differently, sometimes becoming a future addict and oppressor. In fact, approximately one-third of the children of alcoholics become alcoholics themselves. The city of destruction, abuse, and neglect is passed on from generation to generation, causing the connotative meaning of the word home to bring unpleasantly reluctant memories to mind. Consequently, alcohol violates the family basis of love and unity through the establishment of conflict between once bright and caring individuals. Creating fear, distrust, and an impossibility for adequate communication, alcohol can and will tear the home apart.

However, the persistent pattern of alcohol does not stop with the eradication of the healthy spirit or happy household. It continues on, inflicting agonizing sorrow upon people who seemingly have no connection whatsoever to the addiction. Automobile accidents caused by drunk drivers claim the lives of tens of thousands yearly. Hundreds more face injuries that cannot be healed such as paralysis and brain damage. Yet, those involved directly in the car accidents are not the only sufferers. Their families and close friends have to adjust to the devastating losses of loved ones, as well. Why should innocent bystanders have to pay for the irresponsibility of others? This is the question asked by the millions wrongfully separated from their once vibrant companions, who had held hopeful dreams to succeed just like everybody else. Hence, society faces depravation through drunk driving, another damaging result of alcohol's illegally reckless abuse.

Of America's citizens, 10 percent will develop a serious, alcohol-related problem in their lifetimes. As the omnipresent cycle of life links each animal in the food chain to the other's welfare, the cycle of alcoholism is tightly woven into the fabric of our nation's character. In other words, though a single addiction may seem irrelevant, it steadily spreads to the family and society, creating a gigantic web of destruction. Yet, though the effects of alcohol may seem inevitable, something can be done to help those torn between physical addiction and the struggle for sobriety, those robbed of normal, happy lifestyles through abusive mistreatment, and the vast number severed from their once loving and close family members by drunk driving. Together, by limiting the abuse of America's most commonly used drug and enforcing its responsible ingestion, we can all contribute to the well-being of our country through undivided cooperation, love, and strength.

Tax check-off might solve cities' woes

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor in Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

NEW YORK — President Bush continues to urge the American people to play a personal role in helping to rescue the impoverished inhabitants of the slum areas of our cities from poverty, drugs, violence and virtual anarchy.

Hearst

Addressing the graduating class of the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., last Sunday, the president warned that government alone cannot solve the problems of our society. "Today's crisis," he added, "will have to be addressed by millions of Americans at the personal, individual level for government programs to be effective."

This led our Washington-based national editor, Joe Kingsbury Smith, to come up with a suggestion that encouraged me to tell him to check it out with appropriate sources and let me know the reaction. His report to me follows:

Since 1973, the Internal Revenue Service, acting under a 1971 federal law, has allowed American taxpayers to contribute $1 each every year to help finance presidential candidates, the aim being to assist those who cannot compete with candidates backed by wealthy contributors.

In response to President Bush's appeal . . . to become personally involved in . . . rehabilitating slums and reducing crime . . . taxpayers might be willing to have $1 . . . checked off.

The $1 contribution is voluntary. The taxpayer checks off $1 from his or her federal income tax, which the IRS notes when it receives the return mailed on or before April 15 each year. If a married couple files jointly, the spouse can also contribute $1. So on a joint return, $2 can be checked off the total tax due. The earmarked funds are kept in the Treasury until the beginning of the primaries in the presidential year. The funds are administered under strict supervision by the Federal Elections Commission.

Figures on the amount contributed so far this year will not be available until after the primary campaigns end. According to IRS sources, approximately $632 million has been checked off over the years since the program started. The greatest participation came in 1978 and in 1981, when about 29 percent of the returns had checkmarks on the campaign-finance boxes. However, taxpayer requests for $1 check-offs have been running low in recent years. During the past three or four years, only about 20 percent of all federal tax returns have had the check-off. This year, funding will be adequate through the fall campaign, but it is feared the campaign fund will probably be $75 million to $100 million short for the 1996 elections. The decline in the check-offs could be due to public cynicism about politics generally and to a lack of public confidence in the ability of the $1 or $2 donations to compete effectively with wealthy campaign contributors.

However, in response to President Bush's appeal to individual Americans to become personally involved in helping to fund specific programs for rehabilitating slums and reducing crime throughout urban areas, taxpayers might be more willing to have $1, or much more depending on the wealth of the individual, checked off their tax returns to make their cities safer and healthier. There should be no limit on the amount the wealthy could check off on their tax returns to help replace the slums with decent and secure living conditions coupled with disciplined education of children.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

Lietzke pulls into tie with Gallagher

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Bruce Lietzke, aided by a visit from the unnamed and indescribable "it," shot a near-flawless 64 Saturday and gained a share of the third-round lead in the Colonial Tournament.

"I don't know what 'it' is. I can't describe it. It doesn't have a name. But I had it today," Lietzke said after he tied Jim Gallagher at 9-under-par 201 going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $234,000 first prize.

Gallagher, who said he very nearly withdrew from the tournament to be with ailing wife, Cissye, made nine birdies in a 63, one shot off the Colonial Country Club record.

"I was talking to Cissye on the phone a half-hour before my tee time Thursday and I was ready to go home," Gallagher said. "She was running a high fever, has tonsilitis and an eye infection and has a 4-month-old baby to take care of.

"If she'd said come home, I'd have gone. But she said stay and play, and if you stay, play good."

Corey Pavin, who held the second-round lead, sandwiched 16 pars between a first-hole birdie and a last-hole bogey. The round of par 70 dropped him back into a tie for third with Davis Love III at 202, a single stroke back.

Love, a 3-time winner and collector of more than $1 million already this season, came back from a ball out of bounds and a double bogey on the seventh hole to shoot a 68.

Mark Brooks, a hometown boy and a member of Colonial, was tied at 203 — only two shots back — with Mark Calcavecchia. Each shot a 68.

The group at 204 included Craig Stadler, Keith Clearwater, Dillard Pruitt, Larry Mize and Blaine McCallister.

Stadler's 71 included a double-bogey from an unplayable lie on the 15th hole. McCallister matched par 70. Clearwater and Pruitt each shot 69 and Mize moved up with a 65.

Lietzke, 40, a playoff loser last week in the Byron Nelson Classic and a former winner of the Colonial, missed only one fairway and one green, did not come close to making a bogey and did not have a "5" on his card.

The mysterious "it" helped, he said.

"I don't know what it's called. It might be 'on a roll' or 'in the groove' or 'perfect timing'," Lietzke said.

"I don't know what it is. But it's what Fred Couples and Davis Love have had earlier this year. And I had it today.

"With me, it's not having any confusing swing thoughts. It's seeing the putts and knowing they're going in. It's not second-guessing myself.

"It's playing without fear," said Lietzke, who started the day five shots back and climbed over 16 players.

He opened up birdie-birdie, got another pair with a couple of 6-9 footers on the 11th and 12th, scored from 10 feet on thr 14th and got a share of the top spot with an 8-iron shot to three feet on the 17th.

Gallagher seemed to be almost as excited about his first in-person view of Ben Hogan as he was over his 30 on the back nine.

"I saw Mr. Hogan in a golf cart out there," he said. "A real neat little thrill."

Gallagher birdied three of his first four holes, then bogeyed the next two after missing the greens.

But after that, his putting took over.

"I made more than my share," he said. "I got on a roll and I felt like if I was on the green I was going to make them."

He had two streaks of three in a row. An 8-iron to tap-in distance on the ninth started one string and he holed from 20, 25 and 12 feet on the 15th through 17th.

Walker's 69 earns lead

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Colleen Walker shot a 69 Saturday to take a three-shot lead over JoAnne Carner after the third round of the LPGA Corning Classic.

Walker has a three-day total of 204, 12-under-par. Carner, who won the Corning Classic in 1984, shot a 67 for a 207 total.

Mitzi Edge and Nancy Ramsbottom are four shots back. Neither has won an LPGA tournament since they joined the tour in 1984.

At 53, Carner is trying to become the oldest person to win a non-seniors tour event, beating the record set by Sam Snead when he won the Greater Greensboro Open at 52 in 1965. Carner became the oldest winner of an LPGA tournament in 1985.

The Hall of Famer was a sentimental favorite with the crowds, who cheered vigorously for her six birdies.

"I hope Colleen heard 'em," Carner said. Her only bogey of the day came on 13, where she hit a bad 3-wood off the tee and then 2-putted from 12 feet.

Walker had two birdies and two bogies on the front nine, then added three more birdies on the back nine.

Walker said she isn't worried about playing in the same group as Carner on Sunday.

"I know what she does; I know what she can do," Walker said. "I'm going to try to play the way I have played this whole week."

Edge had eight birdies and two bogeys for a 66, the day's best round.

Lopez wins $45,000 in LPGA Skins Game

FRISCO, Texas (AP) — Nancy Lopez, hitting longer than she thought she could, won two skins and $45,000 Saturday on the front nine of the $450,000 LPGA Skins Game.

Meg Mallon, playing in her first Skins Game, captured one skin worth $15,000. The final four holes at the Stonebriar Country Club were halved, leaving Sunday's 10th hole worth $115,000.

Jan Stephenson, who won $200,000 in the first LPGA Skins Game in 1990, and Pat Bradley were shut out.

Lopez sank a wide-breaking, 30-foot downhill putt to birdie the 525-yard, par-5 third hole and win $15,000.

On the 395-yard, par-4 fifth, Lopez won $30,000 when she lagged a 20-footer to within two feet for a par and watched first Stephenson, then Bradley miss five-foot par putts.

"Merry Christmas," Mallon said to Lopez after that hole.

"My adrenalin was pumping," said Lopez, who won $50,000 on the first day of the 1990 Skins Game and was shut out on the back nine. "On three, I hit a wedge 120 yards, and I don't hit a wedge 120 yards.

"On five, I hit a six-iron and meant for it to land on the front of the green and roll up. It went 180 and almost went off the back of the green. Then I had one of those putts that you don't expect to make but you try."

Lopez drove about 310 yards on the par-four fourth hole and hit a wedge to within two feet of the pin. Mallon hit a five-iron within 15 feet of the pin on the 159-yard, par-three second hole.

NCAA: Aggies defeat Georgia Tech 7-5

(From 1B)

Florida starter John Burke, who struck out nine to raise his career total to 305, was taken out in place of Pricher with runners on first and second with one out in the eighth.

But Pricher, who also blew a lead and lost Friday's game to California, couldn't get a batter out for the Gators (44-20), allowing base hits to all four Aggies he faced before yielding to Nick McClellan.

The Aggies then advanced in a late Saturday game by defeating Georgia Tech 7-5. Tech had beaten A&M 3-2 in 10 innings Friday.

Texas 17, Texas-Arlington 1

AUSTIN — Fifth-ranked and top-seeded Texas used seven runs batted in from Brooks Kieschnick and 18 hits to beat Texas-Arlington and eliminate the Mavericks from the NCAA Central Regional Tournament.

The Longhorns (44-14) next will play the winner of Long Beach St. and Creighton.

UTA, the Southland Conference champions, ends its season 38-15 after five straight losses.

The margin of victory matches Texas' biggest playoff win ever. The Longhorns defeated Southern Mississippi 18-2 in last year's regional.

It's also their biggest win over UTA in 42 games.

Saturday's game was never in doubt with Texas crossing home plate four times in the first inning and then piling up 12 more runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

Kieschnick, the Southwest Conference's most valuable player, went 5-for-7 on the day including three doubles. The seven RBI is one short of his career-high. The sophomore All-American now has 60 RBI this season.

Calvin Murray and Clay King had three hits in the game and nine different Longhorns had at least one hit. Murray has been on base 9-of-10 times and King is 6-for-9 in the regional.

Charles Llewellyn led the Mavericks with seven hits.

Scott Harrison (11-2) recorded the win while allowing six hits, three walks and striking out five in six innings.

Texas pitchers have allowed only one run in two games.

Bruce Pool (7-4) was the loser and did not last an inning after walking four of the first five batters he faced. The Mavericks employed seven pitchers.

In the Longhorns seven-run sixth, Kieschnick clubbed a three-run double as they sent 11 men to the plate.

Rangers fall in 1st round

Staff report

Greenwood's first voyage into the state Class 3A baseball playoffs ended in an 11-1 loss to Alpine Friday in a bi-district game played in Monahans.

Greenwood ends its season with a 4-24 record while Alpine advances to meet Abilene Wylie in the next round.

Big Spring and Frenship are having a tough time meeting. They have been rained out twice and have now set their Class 4A bi-district match for 7 p.m. Monday in Abilene at Hardin-Simmons University.

Lamesa won advancement in Class 4A Friday with a 3-2 win over Sweetwater.

Center 'consumers' achieve in life

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Jerry Glen Flack is an achiever.

At age 30, he holds down a job, pays taxes, pays his bills, socializes, and has long since graduated from the Midland public school system.

By society's standards, he is "mentally retarded."

He doesn't like the term, the stigma, the classification.

"It hurts my feelings to be called 'mentally retarded,'" Flack said last week.

Flack is a "consumer" — not patient, not client — who is aligned with the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation (MHMR) and who formerly was associated with the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC).

"I'm smart," Flack said.

He graduated from the Midland Independent School District's special education program in 1983.

Today, Flack is virtually independent, on his own and pretty well makes his own way in life.

So does Russell.

Russell, 46, suffers from depression. He is recovering. He is a mental health client of MHMR. His identity is being protected for this story.

"I just got to a desperate state emotionally and mentally," Russell said of his seeking help from MHMR. Occasionally, he considered suicide as a way out of depression.

MHMR was his "last resort."

Rather than linked to finances, a job, marriage, divorce "or anything like that," Russell's depression was tied to "loneliness" and to "not being able to deal with everyday things."

"It was difficult for me to go to the store," Russell said adding he felt an "ignorance of people."

"I was socially awkward and backward. I was a loner type, but I really wanted to be around people."

Russell said he felt isolated,

MHMR centers strive to service humanity

■ The Texas MHMR state board will hold its monthly meeting Friday at the Midland Hilton.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The concept, the message and the practice of the Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation (MHMR) Community Centers is to provide the hope and the experience of a better life for people who are beset by mental illness, mental disabilities, and drug addictions.

The concept is service to humanity.

The message is one of a "new beginning" in life.

The practice is to reach out to help people — young and old — who were once viewed as "hopeless," "incurable," "insane" or "incorrigible."

Without the state's 35 community centers, including the Midland-headquartered Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR, "probably every major city in the state of Texas would have a huge institution chock-full of mentally ill and mentally retarded people," said Clyde McLean, executive director of the tri-county program.

The nine-member Texas MHMR board, which oversees 35 community centers, eight state hospitals for the mentally ill, 13 state schools for the mentally retarded, and five state centers, will hold its monthly meeting this Friday at the Midland Hilton.

It will be the first time the state board has convened in Midland.

Serving on the board are Edward B. Weyman, retired banker, Midland; Ann K. Utley, civic leader, Dallas; Dr. William A. Lawson, minister, Houston; Charles M. Cooper, medical-center executive, Dallas; Dr. Anne R. Race, psychiatrist, Dallas; Pattilou P. Dawkins, civic leader, Amarillo; Dr. Fermin Sarabia, psychiatrist, San Antonio; Virginia Eernisse, civic leader, Alvin; and J.L. Huffines, businessman, Lewisville. Mrs. Howard E. Butts, from Corpus Christi and of the H.E. Butt Foundation and the Christian Renewal Center is board member emeritus.

The board members, who are appointed by the Texas governor, will witness the dedication of the Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR's new headquarters at 1 p.m. Thursday at 401 E. Illinois Ave. in Midland.

Texas Commissioner of Mental Health is Dennis Jones of Austin.

Times have changed.

No longer are the so-called "crazy" people routinely relegated to insane asylums to be sheltered from the light of hope.

Woman lives 'clean, sober' after break from 'low life'

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Anger, resentment, depression, addiction to alcohol and other drugs, and prison were ruining Corina's life.

For 18 of her 30 years, Corina had been on drugs — from spray paint to cocaine. She stole to support her drug habits and twice wound up in prison. Her "low-life" behavior brought her misery.

Today, however, she is "clean and sober" and feels "free from the bondage" of drugs and thievery.

Her initiation into drugging was inhaling spray paint at age 12.

Later, she fell prey to "pot" — marijuana.

She was not a happy teenager.

Corina felt neglected, abused, unloved.

Her father had left home when she was 2 years old.

"He has never given me anything," Corina lamented. "I feel nothing for the man."

Her mother and sisters routinely visited saloons and left her home alone.

"I resented that," she said, "because I grew up by myself. They were in bars drinking. I

Students commence to prepare speeches

■ Top ranking students from MISD are in the process of preparing commencement speeches.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Midland Independent School District's four top ranking seniors are speechless about graduating.

Or rather, they aren't sure what they are going to say when they get in front of their peers during commencement ceremonies.

Krista Stanton, valedictorian for Midland High School, and Lisa Cochran, Lee High School valedictorian, both say they want their graduations speeches to be different and memorable.

LHS salutatorian Monisha Poudyal and MHS salutatorian Dani Brune agree.

"I want to talk about the big shift we have all gone through," Dani said. "We start out in kindergarten with our teachers telling us what to think and then we learn to think for ourselves. Just getting through school has shaped our lives for 18 years, but the next 18 years will be just as important."

Bound for Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, Dani said she plans to major in print journalism or creative writing.

"I used to make up stories and books for people for Christmas presents," she said. "I have entered UIL (University Interscholastic League) writing competitions and I write in my spare time."

Lisa, LHS valedictorian, said her destiny was also shaped when she was very young. "Ever since I was 5 years old I knew I wanted to go to Abilene Christian University," she said. "Don't ask me why."

She said she studied at the university last summer and her impressions with the campus haven't changed. "I have mixed feelings about leaving Midland. I have lived here all of my life, but I am real excited about going to ACU," she said.

She plans to major in child psychology. "I specifically want to work with disadvantaged children," she said.

Krista, the only National Merit Scholar Finalist in Midland or Odessa to receive a college-sponsored merit scholarship, said she plans to speak to her peers about "things people will remember."

GARY OTT

Top 10 ways not to impress 'that cute little babe'

A total stranger, a young lad of 18, rushed toward me on the street the other day and breathlessly exclaimed, "Gary, you're really great with the babes. Tell me some of your secrets."

Ott

I sorta smiled, draped a sympathetic arm over his shoulder and said, "Well, son, if I told you they wouldn't be secrets any longer, now would they?"

He let out an embarrassed, goofy-sounding laugh. Then he dug his toe into the sidewalk and hemmed and hawed until I finally said, "Tell you what I will do, though. Let's slip into this restaurant here and I'll give you some tips on what not to do when attempting to impress a woman."

His gratitude gushed forth as he gave a semi-bow and thanked me profusely.

"No problem," I said, patting him on the head and giving him a fatherly wink.

We were seated at a table in the far corner of the dimly lit room. A nattily attired waiter took our order. I said I would have a cup of coffee, black, and a salad with a light dressing. The lad announced he was entirely too nervous to eat, seeing as how the doors to a new and exciting lifestyle were about to be opened to him.

The anticipation on his face resembled that of a small boy on Christmas morning. He pulled his chair very close to mine, grabbed the lapels of my sports coat and with an almost demanding voice squealed, "Now, please, don't toy with my emotions any longer. Share your vast wisdom with me. You know so much."

"Quite true," I said, left eyebrow arched ever so slightly. Then I paused and thought about the situation, "How best can I help this boy? He desperately wants my assistance. Be his pal. Do something nice. Show him the way."

So I did.

"First of all," I said, "Don't call them babes. Or chicks or broads or dames. That kind of brash talk, while popular during Frank Sinatra's heyday, is no longer acceptable behavior. Today's modern woman wants to be considered your equal. To be a successful stud you must treat her as such. So cool the 'babe' talk." NOTE: It is, however, perfectly OK to use those words when talking with just the guys, as in "Let's go to the ballpark tonight and check out the babes." The key is knowing when to revert back to your "sensitive male" role.

The young man was hanging on my every word, not unlike a hero-worshipping child who has been granted an unexpected audience with his favorite sports celebrity. At one point he even took a notebook and pen from his pocket and began feverishly taking notes. He was a good boy who obviously wanted to learn from the master.

So I obliged.

"The important thing to remember," I said, while nibbling at my salad, "is that most women today have been around the block a time or two. They know a scam when they see one. So you must come across as being sincere and caring. You can't impress them by merely splashing on more cologne and snapping your fingers and pointing. They'll see through your act every time. That's why my list of 'don'ts' is so important. By avoiding these dreadful blunders you will dramatically enhance your chances of fulfilling your most erotic fantasies."

He was almost drooling as I began rattling off my Top 10 ways not to impress women. In reverse order, they are:

(10) Singing along with the car radio, especially if it is featuring a song with a plethora of high notes that only a member of the Vienna Boys Choir could reach.

(9) Inviting a woman to your apartment and strategically placing snooty magazines like "New Yorker" and "The Atlantic" on the furniture in hopes she will see them and, as a result, perceive you to be an intellectual.

(8) Prefacing an argument on economics by saying, "I don't know what the big deal is, the man's the one who must support a family, so of course he should make the biggest salary."

(7) Proudly displaying a condom in your shirt pocket.

(6) Insisting that the "Three Stooges" had a far greater impact on cinematic history than Ingmar Bergman.

(5) Doing your favorite Curly Joe imitation while waiting in line at an exclusive restaurant.

(4) Crushing an empty beer can on your forehead.

(3) Bragging about knowing all the words to the "Brady Bunch" theme song and waiting until the two of you are in a romantic setting to prove it.

(2) Finding humor in the ability to belch on demand.

(1) Snuggling up to your slightly overweight date and whispering, "You know, for a fat girl you don't sweat much."

College offers continuing education short courses

Staff report

The Midland College Department of Continuing Education will offer 23 short courses beginning the week of June 1.

The courses are as follows:

"Aerobics, 50+" will be taught by Becky Speight on Mondays and Wednesdays from 9-10 a.m., June 1 through July 8. It is a low-impact aerobic exercise program for the person over 50. This will be supplemented with basic endurance and flexibility exercises to promote the student's total well-being. Course fee is $24.

Bob Peetz will be teaching "Basic Reserve Course" on Mondays through Thursdays from 6-10 p.m., June 1 through July 30. This course follows mandated requirements for licensure as a reserve officer in Texas (TCLEOSE Course 1002). Course fee is $200.

"Conversational Russian I" will be taught by Igor Khazan on Mondays from 7-9 p.m., June 1 through August 17. Instruction and practice will be given in pronunciation, vocabulary, and sentence building for speaking and reading. Also included will be topics for everyday conversation, customs, and culture. Required text, Russian in 10 Minutes a Day, is available at the Midland College Bookstore. Course fee is $56.

"Arrest, Search and Seizure" will be taught on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., June 1 through June 3. This core course (TCLEOSE Course 2108) follows the mandated training for intermediate certification. Included in the course will be discussions of probable cause, elements of warrants, drafting search warrants, and warrantless arrests and searches. Course fee is $50.

Tae Kwon Do (Youth)" will be taught on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6-7 p.m., June 1 through July 8 and "Tae Kwon Do (Adult)" will be taught on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7-8 p.m., June 1 through July 8. Both will be taught by Samuel Saldana. The Korean Art of Self-Defense builds self-discipline, self-confidence, improves balance, concentration, strength and flexibility. Special clothing is not required. Class limited to 30 students. Course fee is $29.

Becky Speight will be teaching "Tummy Trimmers" on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7-7:45 p.m., June 1 through July 8. Students can join the special class designed to "beat the tummy bulge" and work off those "saddle bags" and flabby thighs. The exercise level varies throughout the workout — some easy and some fairly challenging routines. Students should wear tennis shoes and bring a towel. Course fee is $30.

Rebecca Bell will be teaching "Better Writing-Better Business" on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6-8 p.m., June 2 through July 7. Good writing skills are taught. Benefits derived from the class include improved writing style, reduced writing time, improved organization, confident editing and concise letter and reports. Course fee is $49.

"Introduction to Business" will be taught by Omar Belazi on Mondays through Thursdays from 10:20 a.m.-12:20 p.m., June 2 through July 7. Students will learn business operations, will develop a business vocabulary, and will direct their thinking to the field of business vocabulary and the type of business best suited to their interests and talents. The course will introduce students to the specialized fields within the business organization such as management, marketing, and finance. Students will also explore the role of business in modern society. The required text is available at the Midland College Bookstore. Course fee is $81.

Rebecca Bell will be teaching "Business Communications" on Mondays through Thursdays from 10:20 a.m.-12:20 p.m., June 2 through July 7. The student will learn writing mechanics and the composition of various types of business communications. The student will develop skills and techniques in critiquing the appearance and content of numerous business communications. Course fee is $81.

"Calculating Machines" will be taught by Dale Westfall on Mondays through Thursdays from 8-10 p.m., June 2 through July 7. Students will learn techniques in the operation of electronic calculating machines and gain skill in dealing with computations, calculations, speed drills, percentages, discounts, net values, chain discounts and business forms. Required text is available at the Midland College Bookstore. Course fee is $81.

"Computer and You" will be taught in four different sections as follows: Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8-10 a.m., June 2 through July 7; Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10:20 a.m.-12:20 p.m., June 2 through July 7; Mondays and Wednesdays from 8-10 a.m., June 3 through July 6; or on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10:20 a.m.-12:20 p.m., June 3 through July 6. With a computer and keyboard at his fingertips, the student will be introduced to the world of PC's and the disk operating system, MS-DOS. He will examine the basic microcomputer configuration, learn to load DOS, format disks, copy and manage files, along with a brief insight into today's most popular application software packages. Enrollment will be limited to 14 students. The required text is Introduction to the Personal Computer. The text is available at the Midland College Bookstore. Course fee is $50.

Alfred Johnson will be teaching "Grandparents Computers" in two different sections as follows: Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1-3 p.m., June 2 through July 7 or on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1-3 p.m., June 3 through July 6. If the student would like to enter the "age of computers" but are intimidated by younger "computer whizzes," then this class is for them. The course fee is $50.

"Health Unit Coordinator" will be taught by Sidney Best on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7-9:30 p.m., June 2 through July 21. This course provides students with entry-level skills to perform as a Health Unit Coordinator (also called unit secretary, ward clerk, or unit clerk). The Health Unit Coordinator performs the clerical, reception, communication and coordination tasks for the nursing unit. Topics include medical terminology, medical ethics and laws, health unit management, medication orders, nursing procedures, and patient's chart. Prerequisite is a high school diploma or GED must be completed. The required text is Health Unit Coordinating. Students must purchase both text and workbook. Both are available at the Midland College Bookstore. Course fee is $81.

T. Blase will be teaching "Principles of Insurance I" on Mondays through Thursdays from 5:30-6:10 p.m., June 2 through July 7. GRADUATES: Students hope speeches make 'impact'

(From 1C)

"I want to leave an impression. I want to get the message across that it doesn't matter who we are, we all have our fears, our struggles and our triumphs," she said.

After winning numerous math and science awards, Krista will put her talents to work majoring in chemical engineering and economics at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

"I spent a weekend up there. The campus is really academically charged. I am looking forward to going. I am ready to graduate," she said.

She also plans to continue with creative writing, another field where she has garnered awards, including the Francis Sidwell Creative Writing Award.

LHS salutatorian Monisha, said she is looking forward to "bigger and better things," and majoring in chemical engineering at Yale University.

The commended National Merit Scholar was one of 12 students in Texas named to the FINA/Dallas Morning News All-State Scholar-Athlete Team.

She is LHS tennis captain and has participated in everything from Latin competitions to starring in her high school's production of "The Teahouse of the August Moon."

A native of Katmandu, Nepal, Monisha has lived in Midland for 12 years. She said her family stresses the importance of a good education and achieving academically. "I study a lot and keep real busy, I'm real excited to be graduating," she said.

Monisha, and all three of the other commencement speakers, said they would prepare their speeches this weekend.

Odessa man arrested in shooting

Staff report

ODESSA — A 30-year-old Odessa barber was arrested Friday evening in connection with the fatal shooting of another man that occurred early that morning, Ector County Sheriff's Office officials said.

Bruce Douglas Conley has been charged with murder and bond was set at $100,000 by Justice of the Peace Julian Pressly, officials said.

Conley was arrested in connection with the death of George Dominguez, 21, who was shot in the head while in his car in West Odessa following an argument over a traffic accident.

Banquet honors 51 exceptional students, 3 teachers

Staff report

"Athletes get their banquets and accolades each year, and deservingly so, but academically superior students often seem left out, so we gave Midland's top math and science students their own banquet," said Mark Pace of the Midland Math & Science Booster Club.

Held recently at the Plaza Club, the evening banquet honored 51 exceptional students and three teachers. Exxon Company, USA, joined the Midland Math & Science Booster Club in sponsoring the event.

The keynote address was presented by Bill Dingus, senior petroleum geologist at Exxon.

Student honorees were Amitabh Agrawal, Anurag Agrawal, Chris Allmon, Joe Barron, Stephanie Baugh, Omar Belazi, Nickolas Biggs, Eric Blake, Soraya Bocardo, Shanna Brigman, Marc Bruner, Dee Anne Bullard, Sara Caldwell, Sondra Demko, Valerie Fanning, Marcia Finch, Thomas Fleming, Abby Geltemeyer, Kelli Hales, Elizabeth Harris, Elizabeth Hartman, Ross Hunter, Dee Ann Ivie, Blake Johnson, Brandon Johnson, Melissa Kimbrou, Michael Kopp, Ashely Kumar, Carla Lathan, Scott Lovejoy, Michelle Mora, Daniel Oberle, Sean O'Hara, Monisha Poudyal, Michael Quint Reese, James Reyes, Anna Rowland, Deborah Rowland, Michael Rubin, Erick Salinas, Rachel Sanchez, Paul Staley, Andrew Stanco, Jeffrey Shawn Standifer, Krista Stanton, Jodie Strain, Jane Varela, William Venegoni, Darren Wade, Brian Williams and Kim Wong.

Presented by Gerry Weeden, engineering manager at Exxon, Amy Boyd, science teacher at Goddard Junior High School, and Jim Estes, math teacher at Midland High School, were awarded $500 Exxon Excellence in teaching grants. The grants will be used to purchase needed supplies for their schools' science departments.

The booster club also presented Ann Murphey a special commendation for her continued efforts to generate enthusiasm and funds for science instruction at San Jacinto Junior High School.

A word of thanks was also extended to MISD's coordinator of science instruction Jan Artley, coordinator of Math instruction Bill Duncker, and UIL academic coaches Kay Arrell, Andrew Franks, Kathy Fritz, Tish Hullum, Barbara Jennings, Shirley Moreland, Ann Murphey, Betty Nelson and Orin Wade.

CHECKING OUT THE LIBRARIES

Groundbreaking ceremony to highlight annual meeting

By Sandra Wegner

A groundbreaking ceremony and the honoring of a longtime Friend of the Library will highlight the Friends' annual meeting next Sunday afternoon.

Everyone is invited to share in the happy event at 2 p.m. May 31 at the downtown library, 301 W. Missouri.

Rosalind Redfern, who was recently honored by the Texas Library Association, will be given the ceremonial task of breaking ground for the library expansion and renovation project. Mrs. Redfern has been president of the Friends three times and continues to be an active supporter of the library.

Larry Connolly, the library expansion architect, will be on hand to describe the new addition and planned changes for the current building.

This is the perfect time to show your support and interest in your public library by attending the program and groundbreaking. You are also invited to join the Friends of the Library. Membership is less than $5. You will receive their newsletter. You can also join the fun and work on the annual used book sale in October. Most of the business of the Friends is handled by the organization's board. They meet monthly to plan activities and decide how best to assist the library.

Besides being the holder of over $1,000,000 in publicly donated funds for the library expansion, the Friends oversee special accounts to hold gift money for library books and materials.

Currently serving on the Friends' board are: Forrest Underwood, president; Dale McCarter, vice president; Shirley Gist, treasurer; Elizabeth Faller, secretary; Bob Angevine; Joe Foster; Mary Mann (who is the book sale chairperson); John McCarty, Max Perry; Jeff Poyer; Paul Raymond; Colleen Scury and Mark Parker.

Rotten smelly sneakers and reading good books have more in common than you might think. Both can earn a child an award during the summer reading program at the libraries.

Beginning Monday, June 1, elementary and pre-school children may enroll and get a reading log in the "Globe Trekkers" Reading Club or the "Age of Discovery" Read-To-Me Club. Programs for both age groups begin June 9 and continue through July 29, ending with the Rotten Sneakers Contest.

Only 10 books or magazines read will earn a child an impressive Texas State Library reading certificate. All "Globe Trekkers" that earn a certificate are eligible for the Rotten Sneakers contest. There are prizes in several categories, topped by a grand prize.

Reading logs and reading materials can be obtained from the Centennial Branch Library at Midland Park Mall as well as the downtown library. All programming will be at the downtown library.

Program schedules are available at the libraries. For additional information call 683-2708 and ask for the Children's Department.

Sandra DeFore Wegner is Midland County Librarian.

LETTER FROM COLLEGE

Registration for MC first summer session is around corner

By H.A. Tuck

Only two more days remain for prospective students to obtain registration time permits for the Summer I Session. Persons who are planning to enroll for one or two Summer I classes should report to the Student Services Office in the Student Center Tuesday or Wednesday between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Tuck

The time permits are used to assign specific periods for students to report for registration on June 1.

Summer I classes are held Monday through Thursday, which either allows a longer weekend or more time for studying. Summer I classes start June 2 and run through July 7.

Another Summer Session starts on July 9 and last until Aug. 13.

This is the last week for students currently taking a course during the Spring Interim Session. They have been going hard for the past two weeks and probably welcome an extra day to prepare for the final two days of classes and a day for the final exam.

And talk about dedicated ... there are about a dozen students commuting from San Angelo to Midland four days each week to take interim sessions and that's a tough schedule.

The Chaparral men's tennis team is opening its national tournament quest today in Corpus Christi at the HEB Tennis Center.

With the women taking their third national title and then grabbing seven of nine individual titles, it's now up to the men to do what none of the tennis teams at MC have yet accomplished. That's to double as both men's and women's national team champions in one season.

When play ends Saturday, the end will have come for the Chaparral tennis programs. But the teams which have represented MC during the past 18 years have been remarkable for their accomplishments.

They helped what was a brand-new college in 1974-75 become nationally known in a short period of time.

Coach Joe Williams created a dynasty by finding the best players, molding them into team players, and training them to become as good as their potential would allow.

After all, that's what teaching is all about and Williams has been a great teacher. Midland College is fortunate that Williams decided to remain here as a faculty member.

The college offices and classrooms are going to be closed Monday for Memorial Day; a breather for both students and instructors involved in the Interim Session. Another holiday benefits the Summer I folks, when July 2, is observed as part of the Independence Day weekend.

The Summer Session II doesn't have a holiday, but the session finishes a day earlier as a result.

We received a call last week from the National Basketball Association office in New York City. Those folks were seeking statistics for Smokey McCovery when he played for the Chaps in 1987-89.

Smokey played the following year for the Oklahoma University Sooners, sat out a year, then finished up by leading the Oklahoma City University team to an undefeated season and the NAIA title. McCovery and another former Chaparral, Sydney Rice, are rooming together and playing in a pro league in New York. Rice transferred to the University of New Orleans, where he has done well.

Some renovations have been going on in the Public Relations and Media Department areas of the Learning Resource Center, so we are living amidst dust, unfound notes, and stuff in the hallways. But the end results will be well worth the displacement ... or at least, that's what we keep telling ourselves.

Graduates from three area high schools will almost meet themselves coming and going next weekend at the campus. Chaparral Center is the site for all three public high school graduations in Midland County. The Class of '92 from Greenwood begins the procession with an 8 p.m. ceremony on Friday.

That's followed by Midland High at 1 p.m. Saturday, and Lee High at 4 p.m. Saturday.

There are some summer events at Midland College for youngsters who wish to learn the fine points of basketball or cheerleading. MC head coach Steve Green is leading this summer's Chaparral Basketball Camps.

There's a session June 8-12 and another July 6-10.

Call 685-4575 for more information.

Chaparral Cheerleaders are conducting a camp for youngsters July 27-30 from 9 a.m. - noon each day. Call 685-4544 or 685-4502 for more information.

Because of the holiday, there aren't any classes starting this week through the Continuing Education Office. But there are a bunch of them starting the week of June 1. If you're interested, come to the Administration Building Tuesday through Thursday this week and get registered. If you wish more information, call 685-4518.

H.A. Tuck is public relations director for Midland College.

EDUCATION IN BRIEF

The Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass., announced that local science teacher Ann Murphey will participate in a nationwide teacher network working to improve the quality of earth-science instruction.

Ms. Murphey, a teacher at San Jacinto Junior High School, has been named a member of the Earth Science Teachers Exploring Exemplary Materials (ESTEEM) program, a Harvard University program.

The program, funded by the National Science Foundation, will establish a network of master teachers to conduct teacher workshops to introduce science activities for students in sixth through twelfth grade.

Ms. Murphey will attend programs in the summer at the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics.

Midland school teacher Linda Kleine was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the 30,000-member Texas Classroom Teachers Association. Ms. Kleine, a first grade teacher at Bonham Elementary School, will represent TCTA members in Midland County and 14 other area counties.

The Lee High School Academic Team will compete in the Texaco Star National Academic Championships June 6-12 at Rice University in Houston. The LHS team includes Trey Morris, Ashley Kumar, Amit Agrawal and Chesney Roe.

Trinity School will have its second annual commencement ceremony 10 a.m. June 3 at the school.

Odessa College will host a chemical-free graduation party for friends, families and 1992 Permian High School graduates. The party will be in the OC Sports Center from 11 p.m. Thursday to 4 a.m. Friday June 4.

Registration for OC's two summer sessions begins 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Union building. For more information on registration call (915) 335-6433.

United Way Shining Stars

NAME: Roger Guess
OCCUPATION: Human Resources Manager, Texas Instruments
VOLUNTEER POSITION: 1989 Board of Directors, 1991 Campaign Coordinator for Texas Instruments, currently Chairman of Funds Distribution Panel #3

Years of services to United Way programs and member agencies throughout Texas has given Roger a unique perspective on the value of the United Way to its community. Roger has seen the differences between communities that have a United Way program and those that do not.

Currently, as chairman of one of the United Way's Funds Distributions Panels, Roger directs frequent reviews of 4 member agencies, sitting down with each agency, updating that agencies programs and services, their proposed expansion for the next year, and their funding needs for the next year. This data produces a range of funding needs which is then turned over to the United Way's fall campaign as they set their fundraising goals. Once the fall campaign is completed and the panels know what funds they'll have to distribute, they again review the member agencies' financial records to produce a final allocation of funds for the following year.

Roger enjoys his work with the United Way of Midland because of the people who make the program work, and the impact of the program upon the community. "The staff and the board of the United Way of Midland takes their job very seriously," he says. "I'm very impressed at the way the United Way and its member agencies meet needs and carefully spend every dollar. This is a really wonderful place to live and the United Way of Midland is a big part of making it such a wonderful place."

"The United Way Of Midland serves 36,000 Midlanders through the following agencies and programs: American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America, Boys' and Girls' Club of Midland, Camp Fire, Casa de Amigos, Citywide Community services, Community and Senior Services of Midland, Family Services, Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program, Freewill Foster Home, Midland/Lee Youth Centers, Midland Rape Crises Center, Midland Need To Read, Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children, Permian Basin Girl Scouts, Salvation Army Corps and Day Care Center, YMCA's

Together we bring out the best in Midland... the United Way

Club hosts Tall City bridge tournament

Staff report

The 1992 annual Tall City Sectional Duplicate Bridge Tournament will get under way Friday at the Ramada Inn. It is a three-day event.

The tournament will be hosted by the Permian Bridge Club and is sanctioned by the American Contract Bridge League (ACBL). Any Midland bridge player is eligible to play and no prior duplicate experience is necessary. Participants do not have to be members of the ABL and games will be available for novice players.

Play will begin at 1:30 p.m. Friday with the Unmixed Pairs, an event in which each male player must have a male partner and a woman must have a female partner.

The Open Pairs begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The event is open to all players and the makeup of the partnership is optional.

The two-day session Stratified Pairs is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday. The flights in that event will include Flight C, players with 0-50 ACBL master points; Flight B, players with 50-300 master points; and Flight A, for those with 300 or more master points. All flights will play in the same game. However, players in each flight will compete against each other.

The final game will be the Swiss Team two-session event, which begins at 11 a.m. next Sunday. The second session starting time will be announced following first-session play. In that event, teams of four, five and six players will compete.

Prizes will be awarded to first place winners in all events.

Hors d'oeuvres will be served following the Saturday night games, sweet rolls before the Sunday Swiss Team Play and dinner between sessions Sunday.

Mary Stone of Dallas, an ACBL director, will be in charge of play.

Debbie Kemp is tournament chairman. HOPE: MHMR programs help shoot down stereotypes

(From 1C)

No longer are all "the retarded" totally ostracized from society and held as "different" from the so-called normal population. Any differences are in degrees of limitations.

No longer are "drunks" and "dope addicts" automatically cast into roles of the immorally destitute, the hopeless, the sick and the weak.

But stereotypes die hard.

The MHMR programs are designed to shoot down the old images of the mentally ill, the mentally retarded and the drug-addicts by showing them paths to fulfilling and rewarding lives.

For the mentally ill, it is often learning to cope with life through therapy, counseling, self-examination, self-worth, medication and encouragement.

For "the retarded," it is often the confidence-instilling programs of patiently learning living and working skills and accepting oneself as a whole person on life's scales of talents and limitations.

For the alcoholics and those addicted to other drugs, it is often a God-centered, 12-step program of recovery.

MHMR community centers were authorized by the Texas Legislature in 1965.

The idea was to put people, once often viewed as cloaked in various states of hopelessness, into the mainstream of life and not into "institutions."

"Services for the mentally ill and mentally retarded in the state of Texas had reached the point that they (legislators) realized that putting people into institutions forever, with no way out, or putting them in there and returning them to a community with no support centers was going nowhere," McLean said.

There was a desperate need for a new approach for dealing with mental and emotional disabilities.

"They were just warehousing these people in these institutions," McLean said. "As fast as they could build one (institution), they could fill it up. There was no relief valve."

Today, the Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR serve 4,000 people in Midland, Ector and Pecos counties with a staff of 326 and a budget of $10.78 million.

The concept of community centers, which are partially locally-supported, was to provide local treatment and therapy for people who were returning home from "institutions" and for others to seek direct treatment without having to go the institutionalized route.

The basic goal, McLean said, was "survival."

"That turned out to be correct and very successful," he said.

Today, the Permian Basin Community Centers for MHMR serve 4,000 people in Midland, Ector and Pecos counties with a staff of 326 and a budget of $10.78 million.

The per-client cost averages less than $2,700 per year and includes in-patient and out-patient services from "birth to death." Principal towns in the tri-county area of about 225,000 people are Midland, Odessa and Fort Stockton.

Instead of an overwhelming number of institutionalized people placing burdens on the taxpayers, today, through the MHMR community centers, many of these people are functioning in the community, holding down jobs and paying taxes, McLean said. "And the only ones that you recognize are the most chronic. Many of them, a few years ago, would be in an institution. Now, they may be working right beside you — the mentally ill and mentally retarded."

CLEAN: Woman says she is living free from bondage of drugs was neglected and (then) molested" by a man whom her mother had brought home.

From smoking marijuana, Corina went to drinking whiskey.

By 18, she was on heroin.

"I was just chemically dependent."

She got "hooked" on methadone as a substitute for the numbing effects of heroin.

From heroin, she latched onto the high-dollar stimulant — cocaine.

To support her drug habits, she was shoplifting in Midland, Odessa, Abilene and Lubbock.

"I had to buy it (drugs)," she said. "I had to steal from stores to buy it."

By age 24, she was serving prison time for theft — shoplifting.

Once out of the penitentiary, she returned to her old drugging and stealing habits.

"I got away with it more than I got caught."

Once again, she was arrested for stealing and returned to the penitentiary.

The fast "low life" was wearing her down.

Today, Corina is "clean and sober."

Earlier this year, she sought relief from "all of the pain I was going through" through help from Turning Point, an Odessa detoxication — sobering-up — facility operated by the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation (MHMR).

"I was just tired of that kind of life. I was tired of going to prison. I was tired of living the 'low life'."

The very day, Feb. 11, which she entered the primary detoxication facility, her alcoholic husband "went to jail," Corina said. "We talked it over. We wanted a different life."

Less than two months later, Corina, still "clean and sober," entered Johnson Center, a Midland-based MHMR residential intermediate care treatment facility for alcoholism and other drug addictions.

"I'm doing it for myself," Corina said of her new life. "I'm learning how to live. I'm learning who Corina is today. I'm getting in touch with my feelings. I've got a good relationship with God."

In working a 12-step program based on the principles of Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) and in living under the "strict" guidelines at Johnson Center and in undergoing counseling there, Corina said that she is experiencing a "freedom from the bondage of drugs and (from) the bondage of stealing and living a low life."

"I'm not living in yesterday or tomorrow. I'm living in today," she said. Her husband is attending AA meetings. "I'm OK, thank God. He's watching over me."

Corina has committed to the 90-day program at Johnson Center, which has dormitory facilities for men and women undergoing treatment.

"This program has taught me how to love myself, how to love others and how to forgive and make amends."

Meanwhile, her mother, an alcoholic, is still drinking, Corina said. Her sisters are still using drugs.

Corina's 10-year-old daughter "is proud of me" and her sober ways, Corina said. Her 13-year-old son is "having emotional and mental problems." The children are living apart with their grandmothers.

Corina said that she "didn't like" Johnson Center at first.

Through the grapevine, she had heard that Tim Baker, Johnson Center's administrator-counselor, was "mean and strict."

"I'm glad he is (strict)," Corina said. "All you have got to do is to follow directions and do everything they tell you to do."

Corina said that Baker "just cares for me and is doing what's best for me." She is "learning a lot" from Baker and his co-counselor, Pat Hooks, and is sharing experiences with other people in treatment at Johnson Center.

Baker, she said, "is a blessing in my life. He is like the Dad I never had."

Corina said that she is "learning how to stay sober," how to "deal with herself and others," how "not be self-centered," and how to be "in conscience contact with God — my Higher Power."

Corina said that she wants to be "a good wife and mother and a caring person, which I am today."

Baker said that Johnson Center has established "rules and boundaries" for its men and women who "did not have any before."

"We are lovingly unyielding" in enforcing those rules and boundaries, Baker said. "If you really don't care about anybody, it is easier just to allow people to do what they want to do. I think we are more lovingly unyielding."

ACHIEVE: Clients learn to live normal lives

(From 1C)

withdrawn and emotionally numbed.

"I didn't want to be a hermit."

Russell, who has been a client of MHMR since 1987, today is better able to cope with living through medication, anti-depressants and counseling.

"It's the difference between night and day," Russell said. "I still have problems like everybody else. But I can deal with them more like an adult."

In living his life through the help of his family, friends, MARC and MHMR, Flack, a bachelor, lives alone in his own apartment. His job is in the house-to-house delivery of pizza coupons.

"He can earn a pretty good paycheck (at $4.25 an hour) when he puts his mind to it," said Lisa Frost, MHMR case coordinator-counselor. She assists Flack in writing checks to pay his bills for food, clothing, rent, gifts and such.

"I do (have money in the bank)," Flack said. "Plenty of greens."

Flack said he adheres to a strict schedule.

"I'm always 'just right,' always 'greased' (as in having a well-working mind)," Flack said.

"I get up at 6 o'clock every morning," he said. "I have to. That's one of the rules. I get dressed, brush my teeth, comb my hair. I take my medication. I have to do that."

That done, Flack is ready for his day's work.

"I hit the road. I'm out the door. I'm gone by 7:15." By then, he is ready for his ride to MHMR's Community Living Evaluation Work (CLEW) Center for vocational training, to MHMR offices and then off to work in delivering food coupons.

Flack, like other MHMR consumers, is "very special and important," Ms. Frost said.

"The man does not have a self-esteem problem," Ms. Frost said. "He knows who and what he is."

"Jerry (Flack) has a pretty full life," she said. "He has got a home and a full social life." He also participates in the Special Olympics sports.

At home, he cleans house, takes care of personal hygiene, does his laundry, cooks, reads, watches television, and greets friends.

"I like to read," Flack said.

Cindy Malone, who is a community living instructor for MHMR, said Flack is real cooperative. "Jerry is friendly. Jerry never meets a stranger. Every place he goes, he knows somebody."

Ms. Frost said that so-called "normal" people often are "surprised that they (mentally-retarded people) live out in the community. They are just like you and me. They work in the community. They have the same legal rights, inalienable rights, constitutional rights. They have social relationships just like the rest of us. They bowl and travel. They have parties."

Richards urges grads to love one another

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards on Saturday told graduates at the University of Texas-Austin that the measure of a person is not material wealth, but a knowledge of who they are and how much they help others.

Speaking briefly about the frustrations she felt in the wake of the Los Angeles riots, Richards said at the commencement ceremony, "We have forgotten to be our brothers and sisters keepers.

"And we have forgotten that the No. 1 goal is to love one another."

She urged the graduates to break free from greed and cheating that characterized the "Me Decade" and to examine themselves and assist others.

"People are more important than things," she said.

"Respect yourself. You can't relate out there unless you have a core in here. When you figure out who you are and what is important to you, the other pieces of the puzzle pretty much fall into place."

Richards was warmly received by the approximately 12,000 people at the ceremony in front of the UT Tower. Of those, about 2,300 were students, less than half the number of degrees that the school issued.

"I had a really hard time with this speech tonight," she told the cheering crowd. "I decided to talk to you tonight and tell you the truth."

She quipped that the reason she was not wearing a mortarboard was because of "hairspray and gravity and things like that."

"The message is: You don't have to do what everybody else does," she said.

Richards gave the graduates four rules to live by:

- Never turn down a new experience, "unless you know it's illegal or life threatening."
- "Don't waste your time trying to figure out all the angles."
- "Don't live for tomorrow, it'll never get here. Save for the house, and the car and the kids' education, but for God's sake live in the present."
- Make room for those that love you. "No one ever died wishing they had spent more time at the office," she said.

In Defense of a Little Virginity

a message from Focus on the Family

The federal government has spent almost $3 billion of our taxes since 1970 to promote contraceptives and "safe sex" among our teenagers. Isn't it time we asked, What have we gotten for our money? These are the facts:

- The federal Centers for Disease Control estimate that there are now 1 million cases of HIV infection nationwide.[1]
- 1 in 100 students coming to the University of Texas health center now carries the deadly virus.[2]
- The rate of heterosexual HIV transmission has increased 44% since September 1989.[3]
- Sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) infect 3 million teenagers annually.[4]
- 63% of all STD cases occur among persons less than 25 years of age.[5]
- 1 million new cases of pelvic inflammatory disease occur annually.[6]
- 1.3 million new cases of gonorrhea occur annually[7]; strains of gonorrhea have developed that are resistant to penicillin.
- Syphilis is at a 40-year high, with 134,000 new infections per year.[8]
- 500,000 new cases of herpes occur annually[9]; it is estimated that 16.4% of the U.S. population ages 15-74 is infected, totaling more than 25 million Americans — among certain groups, the infection rate is as high as 60%.[10]
- 4 million cases of chlamydia occur annually[11]; 10-30% of 15- to19-year-olds are infected.[12]
- There are now 24 million cases of human papilloma virus (HPV), with a higher prevalence among teens.[13]

To date, over 20 different and dangerous sexually transmitted diseases are rampant among the young. Add to that the problems associated with promiscuous behavior: infertility, abortions and infected newborns. The cost of this epidemic is staggering, both in human suffering and in expense to society; yet epidemiologists tell us we've only seen the beginning.

Incredibly, the "safe-sex" gurus and condom promoters who got us into this mess are still determining our policy regarding adolescent sexuality. Their ideas have failed, and it is time to rethink their bankrupt policies.

How long has it been since you've heard anyone tell teenagers why it is to their advantage to remain virgins until married? The facts are being withheld from them, with tragic consequences. Unless we come to terms with the sickness that stalks a generation of Americans, teen promiscuity will continue, and millions of kids . . . thinking they are protected . . . will suffer for the rest of their lives. Many will die of AIDS.

There is only one safe way to remain healthy in the midst of a sexual revolution. It is to abstain from intercourse until marriage, and then wed and be faithful to an uninfected partner. It is a concept that was widely endorsed in society until the 1960s. Since then, a "better idea" has come along . . . one that now threatens the entire human family.

Inevitable questions are raised whenever abstinence is proposed. It's time we gave some clear answers:

Why, apart from moral considerations, do you think teenagers should be taught to abstain from sex until marriage?

No other approach to the epidemic of sexually transmitted diseases will work. The so-called "safe-sex" solution is a disaster in the making. Condoms can fail at least 15.7 percent of the time annually in preventing pregnancy.[14] They fail 36.3 percent of the time annually in preventing pregnancy among young, unmarried minority women.[15] In a study of homosexual men, the British Medical Journal reported the failure rate due to slippage and breakage to be 26 percent.[16] Given these findings, it is obvious why we have a word for people who rely on condoms as a means of birth control. We call them . . . "parents."

Remembering that a woman can conceive only one or two days per month, we can only guess how high the failure rate for condoms must be in preventing disease, which can be transmitted 365 days per year! If the devices are not used properly, or if they slip just once, viruses and bacteria are exchanged and the disease process begins. One mistake after 500 "protected" episodes is all it takes to contract a sexually transmitted disease. The damage is done in a single moment when rational thought is overridden by passion.

Those who would depend on so insecure a method must use it properly on every occasion, and even then a high failure rate is brought about by factors beyond their control. The young victim who is told by his elders that this little latex device is "safe" may not know he is risking lifelong pain and even death for so brief a window of pleasure. What a burden to place on an immature mind and body!

Then we must recognize that there are other differences between pregnancy prevention and disease prevention. HIV is 1/25th the width of sperm,[17] and can pass easily through even the smallest gaps in condoms. Researchers studying surgical gloves made out of latex, the same material in condoms, found "channels of 5 microns that penetrated the entire thickness of the glove."[18] HIV measures .1 microns.[19] Given these findings, what rational, informed person would trust his or her very life to such flimsy armor?

This surely explains why not one of 800 sexologists at a conference a few years ago raised a hand when asked if they would trust a thin rubber sheath to protect them during intercourse with a known HIV-infected person.[20] Who could blame them? They're not crazy, after all. And yet they're perfectly willing to tell our kids that "safe sex" is within reach and that they can sleep around with impunity.

There is only one way to protect ourselves from the deadly diseases that lie in wait. It is abstinence before marriage, then marriage and mutual fidelity for life to an uninfected partner. Anything less is potentially suicidal.

That position is simply NOT realistic today. It's an unworkable solution: Kids will NOT implement it.

Some will. Some won't. It's still the only answer. But let's talk about an "unworkable solution" of the first order. Since 1970, the federal government has spent nearly $3 billion to promote contraception and "safe sex." This year alone, 450 million of your tax dollars will go down that drain![21] (Compared with less than $8 million for abstinence programs, which Sen. Teddy Kennedy and company have sought repeatedly to eliminate altogether.) Isn't it time we ask what we've gotten for our money? After 22 years and nearly $3 billion, some 58 percent of teenage girls under 18 still did not use contraception during their first intercourse.[22] Furthermore, teenagers tend to keep having unprotected intercourse for a full year, on average, before starting any kind of contraception.[23] That is the success ratio of the experts who call abstinence "unrealistic" and "unworkable."

Even if we spent another $50 billion to promote condom usage, most teenagers would still not use them consistently and properly. The nature of human beings and the passion of the act simply do not lend themselves to a disciplined response in young romantics.

But if you knew a teenager was going to have intercourse, wouldn't you teach him or her about proper condom usage?

No, because that approach has an unintended consequence. The process of recommending condom usage to teenagers inevitably conveys five dangerous ideas: (1) that "safe sex" is achievable; (2) that everybody is doing it; (3) that responsible adults expect them to do it; (4) that it's a good thing; and (5) that their peers know they know these things, breeding promiscuity. Those are very destructive messages to give our kids.

Furthermore, Planned Parenthood's own data show that the number one reason teenagers engage in intercourse is peer pressure![24] Therefore, anything we do to imply that "everybody is doing it" results in more . . . not fewer . . . people who give the game a try. Condom distribution programs do not reduce the number of kids exposed to disease . . . they radically increase it!

Want proof of that fact? Since the federal government began its major contraception program in 1970, unwed pregnancies have increased 87 percent among 15- to 19-year-olds.[25] Likewise, abortions among teens rose 67 percent;[26] unwed births went up 61 percent.[27] And venereal disease has infected a generation of young people. Nice job, sex counselors. Good thinking, senators and congressmen. Nice nap, America.

Having made a blunder that now threatens the human family, one would think the designers would be backtracking and apologizing for their miscalculations. Instead, they continue to lobby Congress and corporate America for more money. Given the misinformation extant on this subject, they'll probably get it.

But if you were a parent and knew that your son or daughter was having sex, wouldn't you rather he or she used a condom?

How much risk is acceptable when you're talking about your teenager's life? One study of married couples in which one partner was infected with HIV found that 17% of the partners using condoms for protection still caught the virus within a year and a half.[28] Telling our teens to "reduce their risk" to one in six (17%) is not much better than advocating Russian roulette. Both are fatal, eventually. The difference is that with a gun, death is quicker. Suppose your son or daughter were joining an 18-month skydiving club of six members. If you knew that one of their parachutes would definitely fail, would you recommend that they simply buckle the chutes tighter? Certainly not. You would say, "Please don't jump. Your life is at stake!" How could a loving parent do less?

Kids won't listen to the abstinence message. You're just wasting your breath to try to sell them a notion like that.

It is a popular myth that teenagers are incapable of understanding that it is in their best interest to save themselves until marriage. Almost 65 percent of all high school females under 18 are virgins.[29]

A few years ago in Lexington, Ky., a youth event was held that featured no sports contest, no rock groups—just an ex-convict named Harold Morris talking about abstinence, among other subjects. The coliseum seated 18,000 people, but 26,000 teenagers showed up! Eventually, more than 2,000 stood outside the packed auditorium and listened over a hastily prepared public address system. Who says kids won't listen to this time-honored message?

Even teens who have been sexually active can choose to stop. This is often called "secondary virginity," a good concept that conveys the idea that kids can start over. One young girl recently wrote Ann Landers to say she wished she had kept her virginity, signing the letter, "Sorry I didn't and wish I could take it back." As responsible adults we need to tell her that even though she can't go back, she can go forward. She can regain her self-respect and protect her health, because it's never too late to start saying "no" to premarital sex.

Even though the safe-sex advocates predominate in educational circles, are there no positive examples of abstinence-based programs for kids?

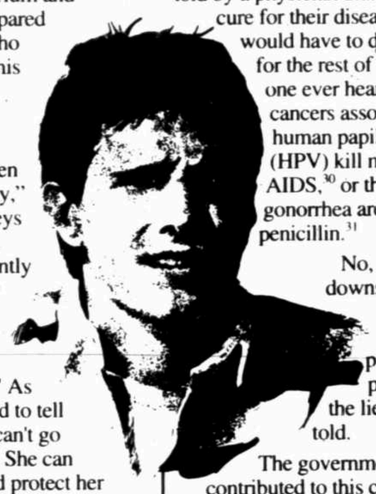
Thankfully, some excellent programs have been developed. Spokane-based Teen-Aid and Chicago's Southwest Parents Committee are good examples. So are Next Generation in Maryland, Choices in California and Respect Inc. in Illinois. Other curricula such as Facing Reality; Sex Respect; Me, My World, My Future; Reasonable Reasons to Wait; Sex, Love & Choices; F.A.C.T.S. etc., are all abstinence-themed programs to help kids make good sexual decisions.

A good curriculum for inner-city youth is Elayne Bennett's Best Friends Program. This successful "mentoring" project helps adolescents in Washington, D.C. graduate from high school and remain abstinent. In five years, not one female has become pregnant while in the Best Friends Program!

Establishing and nurturing abstinence ideas with kids, however, can be like spitting into the wind. Not because they won't listen, because most will. But pro-abstinence messages are drowned out in a sea of toxic teen-sex-is-inevitable-use-a-condom propaganda from "safe-sex" professionals.

You place major responsibility on those who have told adolescents that sexual expression is their right as long as they do it "properly." Who else has contributed to the epidemic?

The entertainment industry must certainly share the blame, including television producers. It is interesting in this context that all four networks and the cable television entities are wringing their hands about this terrible epidemic of AIDS. They profess to be very concerned about those who are infected with sexually transmitted diseases, and perhaps they are sincere. However, TV executives and movie moguls have contributed mightily to the existence of this plague. For decades, they have depicted teens and young adults climbing in and out of each other's beds like so many sexual robots. Only the nerds were shown to be chaste, and they were too stupid or ugly to find partners.



Of course, the beautiful young actors in those steamy dramas never faced any consequences for their sexual indulgence. No one ever came down with herpes, or syphilis, or chlamydia, or pelvic inflammatory disease, or infertility, or AIDS, or genital warts, or cervical cancer. No patients were ever told by a physician that there was no cure for their disease or that they would have to deal with the pain for the rest of their lives. No one ever heard that genital cancers associated with the human papilloma virus (HPV) kill more women than AIDS,[30] or that strains of gonorrhea are now resistant to penicillin.[31]

No, there was no downside. It all looked like so much fun. But what a price we are paying now for the lies we have been told.

The government has also contributed to this crisis and continues to exacerbate the problem. For example, a current brochure from the federal Centers for Disease Control and the City of New York is entitled, "Teens Have the Right," and is apparently intended to free adolescents from adult authority. Inside are the six declarations that make up a "Teenager's Bill of Rights," as follows:

- I have the right to think for myself.
- I have the right to decide whether to have sex and who[m] to have it with.
- I have the right to use protection when I have sex.
- I have the right to buy and use condoms.
- I have the right to express myself.
- I have the right to ask for help if I need it.

Under this final item (the right to ask for help) is a list of organizations and phone numbers that readers are encouraged to call. The philosophy that governs several of the organizations reflects the homosexual agenda, which includes recruitment of the young and vigorous promotion of a teen's right to sexual expression.

Your tax dollars at work!

Surely there are other Americans who recognize the danger now threatening a generation of our best and brightest. It is time to speak up for an old-fashioned value called virginity. Now, more than ever, virtue is a necessity.

If you agree with Focus on the Family that it is time for a new approach to adolescent sexuality, tear out this ad and save it. Take it to your next school board meeting. Send it to your congressman or senator. Distribute copies to the PTA. And by all means, share it with your teenagers. Begin to promote abstinence before marriage as the only healthy way to survive this worldwide epidemic.

Please use the coupon below to obtain a valuable booklet on abstinence. There is no charge for it. However, your support is requested for an upcoming TV program for teenagers on this important topic. Your comments are also solicited.

IF YOU want to meet a white male...that is drug free, good looking, smart, 5'11", brown hair, hazel eyes with high morals that loves kids! Then caucasian 25 - 38 year old ladies, spend the money and give up the number because it's what's in your heart that matters.

I need a special lady, one who can be my best friend, buddy and monogamous lover. A lady to travel an extended holiday by RV with boat to Baja. Visit and explore La Paz, Los Cabos, Mazatlan, Puerto Vallarta, Los Mochis, see Coddon Canyon by rail. Deep sea fishing, walk the beaches in the moon light, candle light dining with a good wine, hiking in the mountains fresh cool air. I am an athletic 5'11", 190# slender professional 53. You are an intelligent slender adventurer who would like to get away from telephone, TV and kids. Lets enjoy the finer things in life, we have earned it.
MP-336

INTERESTED IN intimacy? 30-ish disabled male seeks loving female. Likes politics, literature and romance. I hope you do too. Phone and photo please.
MP-331.

I am a 32 year-old, dark hair, brown eyes, heavy set male Caucasian. I enjoy bicycling, bowling, swimming, most types of music, evenings at the community theatre and at home. I have never been married not do I use alcohol or tobacco products. I do enough stupid things without using illegal substances. I practice the old fashion morals and codes of conduct. I am willing to make lifetime commitments to only one person in both of these relationships. I could be the romantic male that you are looking for and a better person for a companion than you may ever find. I plan to return to college to earn a degree as an emergency medical technician or paramedic. I would like to hear from you. MP-324

Caucasian male, 43, Christian. Not extremely handsome or rich, but you only care that I have a good heart, am sincere, honest, not materialistic, college degreed, and much potential for lasting relationship. I like plants, outdoors, golf, work, helping people, home life, don't drink. Please be younger than me and under 130 lbs. Let's be friends. Correspondence fee refunded. MP-321

Tall, slim, attractive, red hair, blue eyed, Caucasian homebody male, 29, seeks slim, attractive, clean cut, career woman for serious relationship. No children. All replies welcomed and answered. MP-330

Divorced Caucasian male, age 51, 5'10", 150 lbs., seeks lady for companionship and marriage. I enjoy dancing, fishing, sports, C/W, play guitar, fiddle and other instruments. Prefer Caucasian, Oriental, or Hispanic lady. Please send full length photo and I will do the same. MP-317

MALE PERSONAL ADS
The following ads have been placed by males looking to meet females

How can I compete with all these Paragons who don't drink, smoke, like everything, are gentle, sensitive, caring, loving, romantic, young, educated, athletic, handsome, slim, religious, great dancers, home loving and affluent? Fact is, I've never even met anyone like that, married or single. It begs the question. I'm a fairly nice guy, early 60's, some of the above, and prefer intelligent, attractive women, slim, 42-52. Everything else is negotiable, like life itself. MP-322

SINGLE African American male, 28, 6' 175 lbs, seeks an African American female, 21 - 35, who is career oriented and down to earth. Height and weight proportioned. Children welcomed. Send photo and phone number. You won't be disappointed.
MP-335

EDUCATED, FINANCIALLY O.K., Caucasian male, 5'10", 175 lbs, brown eyes, brown hair (some), 64, employed, articulate. I like reading, walking, talking, travel, beaches, dining out, T.V., entertaining, and most things in moderation. I smoke, drink sparingly. Would like to meet a trim, attractive, tolerant, educated, easy going lady 40 to early 50's who, like me, has found a little aloneness goes a long way. Let's discuss it over a cup of coffee.
MP-202.

36 year-old Caucasian male, employed, gentle, teddy bear. Looking for lady, 25-40, of happy disposition. Employed, who needs lots of TLC from dependable man. She must be honest and able to communicate. Please leave a number where you can be reached.
MP-325

I am 40 years-old, 6'1", 195 lbs, Caucasian, educated, professionally employed, non-smoker, and social drinker. I enjoy golf, tennis, travel, dining out, sporting events, movies, and time with my two kids. I also enjoy quiet evenings at home, especially with someone special. Would like to meet a lady to share companionship, affection, and possible a future.

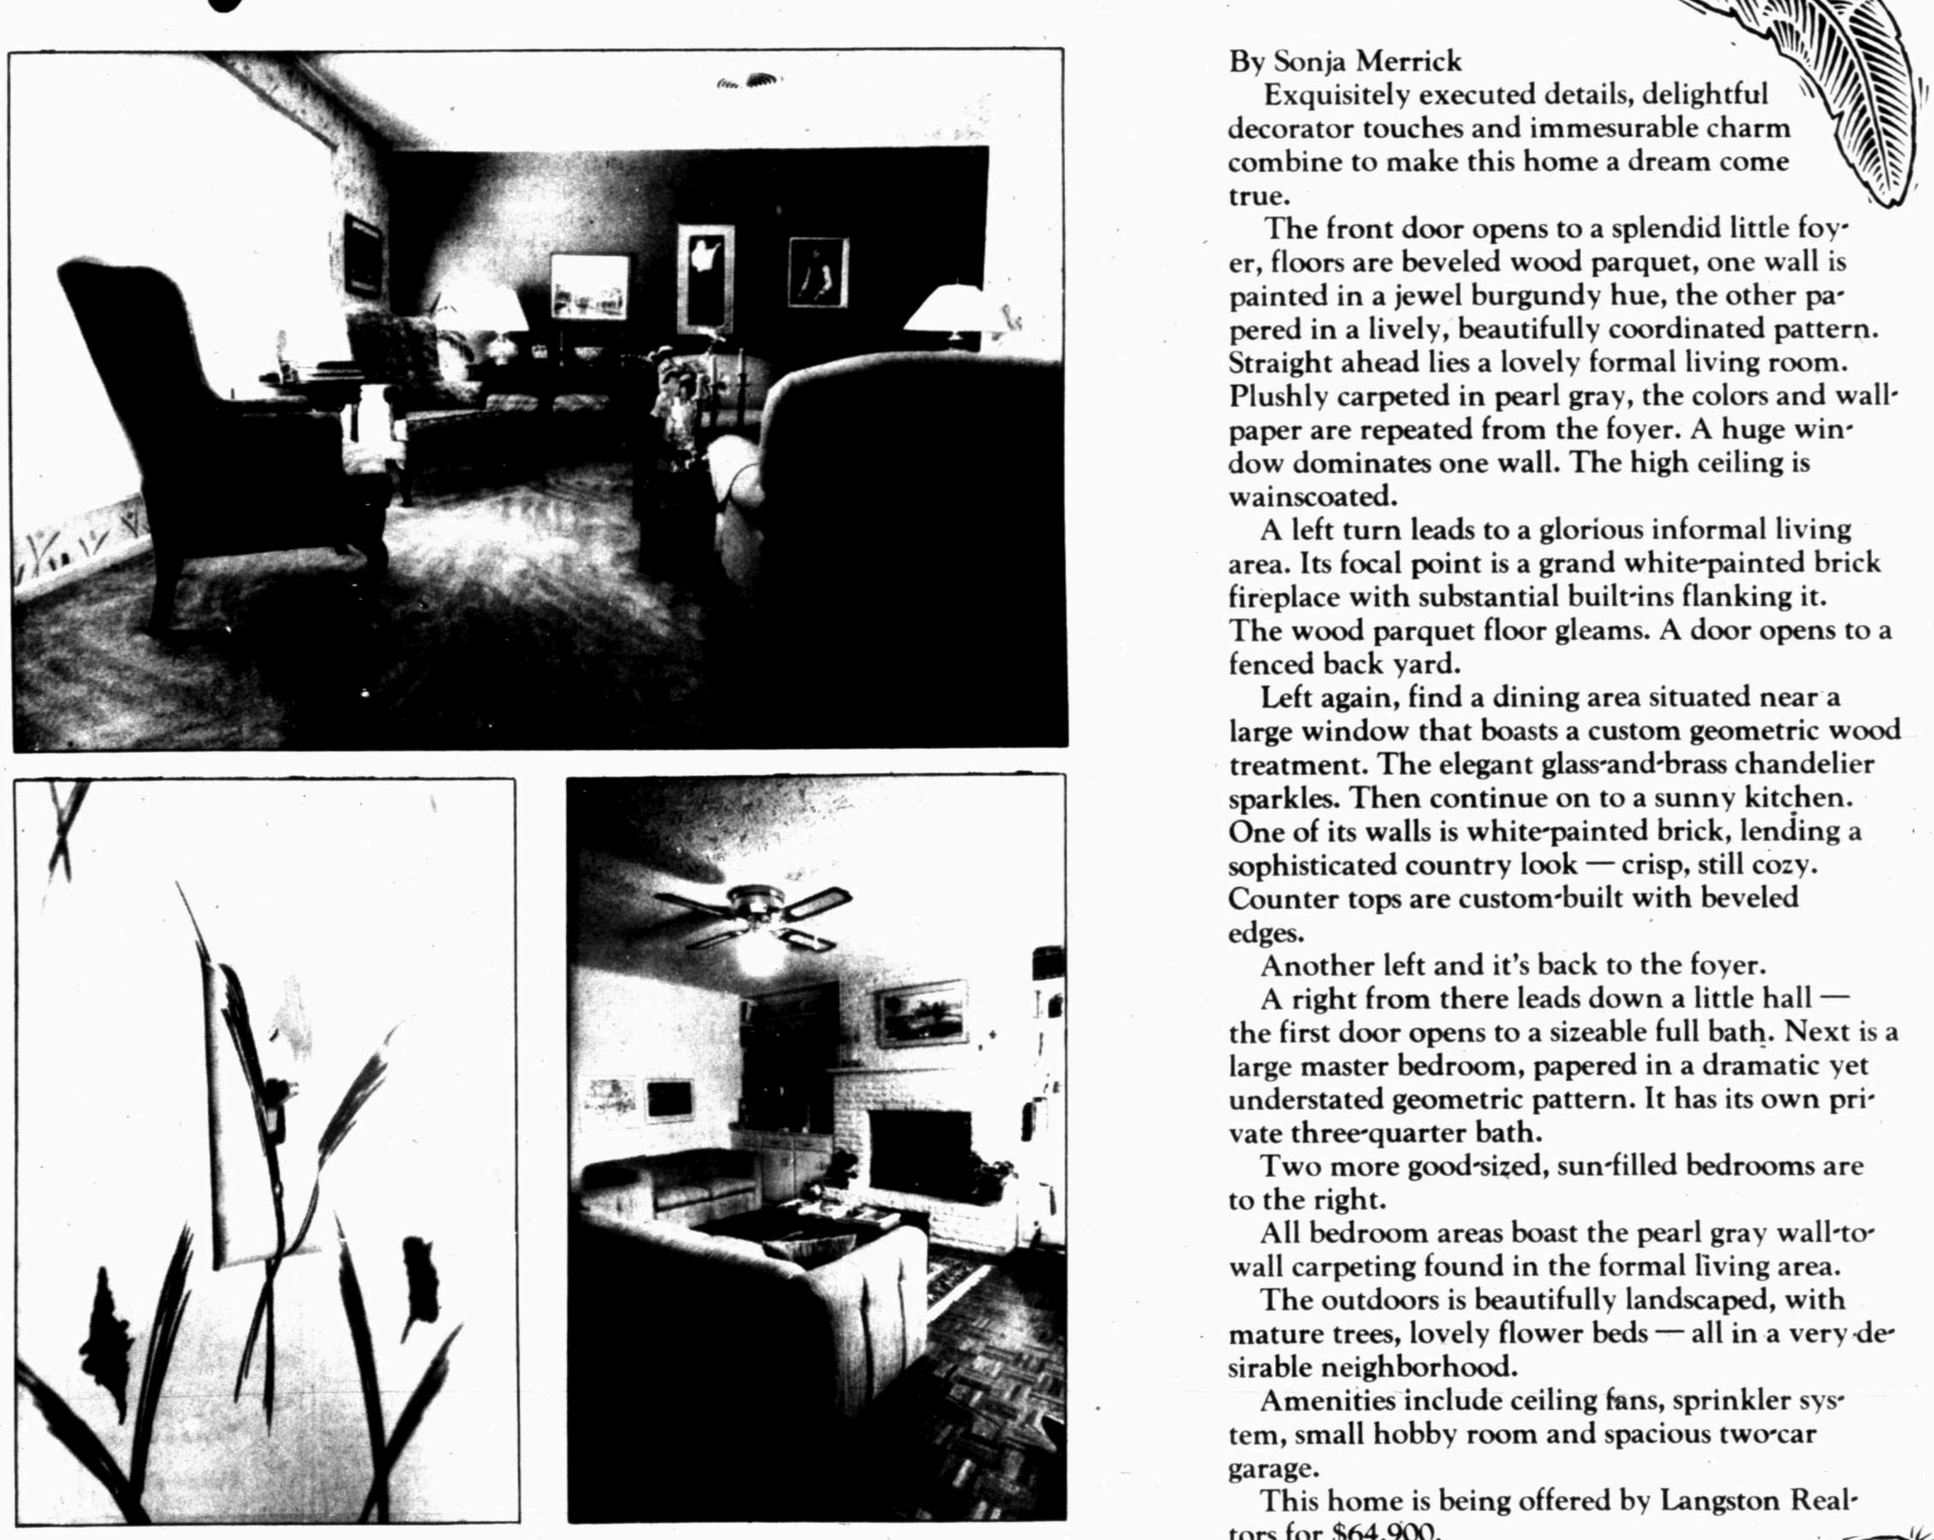
Finely Feathered Nest



By Sonja Merrick

Exquisitely executed details, delightful decorator touches and immesurable charm combine to make this home a dream come true.

The front door opens to a splendid little foyer, floors are beveled wood parquet, one wall is painted in a jewel burgundy hue, the other papered in a lively, beautifully coordinated pattern. Straight ahead lies a lovely formal living room. Plushly carpeted in pearl gray, the colors and wallpaper are repeated from the foyer. A huge window dominates one wall. The high ceiling is wainscoated.

Left again, find a dining area situated near a large window that boasts a custom geometric wood treatment. The elegant glass-and-brass chandelier sparkles. Then continue on to a sunny kitchen. One of its walls is white-painted brick, lending a sophisticated country look — crisp, still cozy. Counter tops are custom-built with beveled edges.

A right from there leads down a little hall — the first door opens to a sizeable full bath. Next is a large master bedroom, papered in a dramatic yet understated geometric pattern. It has its own private three-quarter bath.

Two more good-sized, sun-filled bedrooms are to the right.

All bedroom areas boast the pearl gray wall-to-wall carpeting found in the formal living area.

The outdoors is beautifully landscaped, with mature trees, lovely flower beds — all in a very desirable neighborhood.

Amenities include ceiling fans, sprinkler system, small hobby room and spacious two-car garage.

This home is being offered by Langston Realtors for $64,900.

This home will be open from 2 to 4 p.m. today. Call 694-6037 or 682-9495 for information.

Accurate records can become excellent allies for homeowners

By Pat Paxton

According to Jerrold J. Stern, a research fellow with the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University, "Homeowners benefit greatly from carefully documenting the cost of their home. The home's cost (or "basis" in tax terminology) is used to compute gain when it is sold. This gain may be taxable as a capital gain if the homeowner subsequently rents rather than buys a new home.

"When a home is sold, Form 2119 is used to compute a gain or loss on sale. The basis of the home and selling expenses are subtracted from the sale price to compute gain or loss. Form 2119 is required to be filed along with Form 1040 even if there is no tax due on the sale.

"Purchase price is the starting point for computing a home's basis regardless of whether a mortgage is involved. Added to the basis are attorney's fees, abstract fees, charges for installing utility services, surveys and title insurance. Also included in the basis are amounts that are the seller's obligation but that are paid by the buyer, such as real estate taxes pertaining to the seller's holding period, charges for improvements or repairs, or broker's commissions.

"Some costs paid at closing are not deducted or added to the basis. These include homeowner's insurance, mortgage insurance, points paid on VA or FHA mortgages, charges for use of utilities (as distinct from installation) and rent or other fees paid for occupying the home before closing.

"Improvements made to the home to increase its basis include finishing a basement, adding a room, installing a fence, putting in new electrical wiring or plumbing, replacing a roof or paving a driveway. . . .

"In contrast, the cost of repairs is neither deducted nor added to the basis. Repairs keep the home in regular operating condition. They do not add material value or prolong the home's useful life. Examples of repairs include repainting, fixing drain gutters, floors and leaks.

"However, repairs made as part of an extensive remodeling or restoration are added to the basis. This exception to the general rule provides a tax planning opportunity. Taxpayers would be wise to plan on making ordinary repairs during the remodeling project so the repair costs can be included in the home's basis. Thus, any future gain on the sale of the home would be reduced because of the increased basis."

Keeping good records to document the basis of a home is in the owner's best interest. For specific tax advice, consultation with an accountant or tax attorney is recommended.

RE/MAX of Midland congratulates Smith

Marilyn Jo Smith has recently been honored as one of the RE/MAX TOP 20 PRODUCERS for the State of Texas in 1991. Ms. Smith has been a consistent top producer at RE/MAX of Midland since joining RE/MAX in 1990.

In 1991, the average RE/MAX Sales Associate was just over 44 years of age, with 10 years of real estate experience. RE/MAX of Texas President Joe A. Compian noted that the affiliation of outstanding professional like Marilyn Jo Smith is one important reason why RE/MAX is "above the crowd" in the real estate industry.

Compian reported that RE/MAX has a number one market share in Houston, Wichita Falls, Dallas, Temple, Tyler, Denton and Beaumont based upon sales reported to the Multiple Listing Service.

Smith

Re/Max of Texas added 13 independently owned and operated offices in 1991, bringing the total to 88 offices statewide. RE/MAX of Midland is located at 4400 North Big Springs, Suite 101.

Kathy McCain returns from meetings, courses recently held in Orlando

Kathy McCain, Executive Vice President of the Midland Association of REALTORS, Inc., recently returned from the 49th Annual Executive Officers Institute, conducted by the National Association of Realtors. The Institute, entitled "The Magic of Learning," was held May 8 through 13 in Orlando, Fla. More than 800 Member Board and State association Executive Officers from across the United States and Canada attended the Institute.

While in Orlando, Ms. McCain participated in three days of intensive educational sessions organized into specialized courses of study in Professional Standards, Association Management, Marketing, Human Resources and Fundamentals of Real Estate Board Administration. Additional in-depth courses covered professional and personal management.

"Association management requires a dedication to excellence, a commitment to teamwork and an understanding of members' needs. Renewing that dedication and commitment is what the Annual Executive Officers Institute is all about," Ms. McCain said.

Sales secrets in a buyer's market

There's always the friend-of-a-friend's-cousin's-buddy who knows for sure that the local housing market is collapsing. It's just as certain that another distantly attached "expert" will tell you that things are swinging back in your area.

The fact is, even in a buyer's market, there are areas where sellers can command strong prices. A realistic picture is necessary as you consider placing your home on the market. Don't let gossip set your price.

Look at the median sale price in your area compared to the same period last year. Ask about the number of sales in your neighborhood and how long houses sit on the market. Examine the difference between the listing price and the selling price. These are real indicators of the market in your neighborhood.

Remember that home sales run in seasonal cycles. The quarterly and month-ago numbers you may see in the newspaper really aren't true comparisons.

The numbers you need are put together by your local Realtor board and are available through a Realtor.

It's often hard for homeowners to separate the actual value and the sentimental value of their home, particularly new "Empty Nesters."

Your Realtors should help you concentrate on the numbers and help you set realistic expectations. Consult your Realtor before making any major commitment to a remodeling and spruce-up effort.

Some low-cost actions can pay off in sales, while other big-ticket revisions will bring virtually nothing back to you at closing.

Most Realtors agree that the key to selling your home is a realistic asking price. Some consider 105 percent of the appraisal price a good standard for listing price.

Plan in advance what else you may be able to bring to the negotiation table. To bring in a wavering buyer you may want to consider providing part of the financing rather than lowering the price.

One low-cost alternative is to partially subsidize the interest rate on the buyer's mortgage for the first few years.

Realistic expectations and flexibility can put your home in a seller's market. Call your Realtor for guidance.

Installing wall paneling requires good planning

AP Special Features

After a decision is made to install wall paneling, the next conclusion to be reached involves the kind of finish, style and effect desired from among the dozens of choices available — real wood, veneer, stains or whatever.

Have the panels delivered to your home a week or so before you plan to install them. Store the paneling in the room where they're to be used.

When stacking the panels, separate them by placing thin sticks between them so that room air can circulate. This allows the paneling to adjust to the room's humidity and reduces shrinkage and expansion after installation.

■ Remove old moldings. Turn off the electric power, then take out receptacles or switches.

■ If the wall is uneven or is made of masonry or has wall studs spaced other than on 16-inch or 24-inch centers, install 1-by-2 furring strips horizontally at 16-inch intervals. Then nail 13-inch vertical furring strips between the horizontal strips, spacing them every 48 inches so that they will be under the edges of the panels.

Caution: Using furring strips under paneling on all of a room's walls can be a fire hazard. Air spaces between the wall surface and furring strips encourage airflow; this helps the flames of a concealed fire to spread quickly.

■ If you are attaching the paneling directly to the wall surface, mark the stud positions every 4 feet, and starting 4 feet from one corner, drive a nail partway through the wall into the stud. Tie a chalk line to the nail, pull the line taut and snap it against the wall. Repeat every 4 feet.

■ Install the first panel at a corner. Cut it to fit between the floor and ceiling with ½-inch clearance. Set it in place and check that it's plumb by holding a level at the edge away from the corner. Make sure the outer edge is along the chalk line or centered on the vertical furring. If the wall that the panel abuts is not even, place a compass point against the wall and draw a line with the compass' pencil along the length of the panel. Then trim the panel to fit the wall.

■ For a door or window, mark its position, then trim the panel to fit around it. Use the cutouts to fill the area above or below other doors and windows.

■ For an elecrical outlet or switch, carefully mark the position on the panel. Drill ½-inch holes on the inside of the corners and cut out the rectangle with a keyhole saw.

■ If you are mounting the panels directly to the wall, apply panel adhesive to the wall at 16-inch intervals, horizontally and vertically. Or apply beads of adhesive to all furring strips.

■ Set the panel in place. Drive paneling nails partway into the panel top and press the panel against the wall.

■ Pull the panel bottom about 10 inches away from the wall. Prop it open to separate the two surfaces until the adhesive becomes tacky.

■ After 10 minutes, push the panel into position. Using a hammer on a cloth-covered block, tap the panel to spread the adhesive evenly. Sink the nails at the top.

■ Install the remaining panels in the same manner. To allow for expansion caused by moisture, leave a space the thickness of a nickel between panels. To hide the gap at the seam, color the edges of adjoining panels with a felt-tip pen that matches the color of the panel grooves.

■ Install the molding. Use paneling nails or sink and fill the holes with matching colored wax. Reinstall electrical outlets and switches.

KENT OIL, INC.

KENT KWIK CONVENIENCE STORES

WHY KENT OIL COMPANY?

Kent Oil (operating Kent Kwik convenience stores) is a West Texas-based company, thirty five years old and still growing. We offer many benefits to our employees. These benefits include:

- Company-assisted medical, dental and life insurance
- Paid vacations
- Sick pay program
- Tuition reimbursement program
- Special incentive programs for all employees
- Profit-sharing and retirement plan
- Intensive new hire training
- Structured continual management training
- Flexible scheduling
- Full and part time hours available
- Work close to home
- Affiliation with Odessa 66 credit union

We attempt whenever possible to promote from within. All of our current store managers, middle and upper management started with the company at the entry level. It is possible to move up quickly based on your experience and level of education.

Working in a convenience store is both exciting and challenging. You have to be outgoing and enjoy serving the public, while at the same time be a self-starter, as you receive very little on the job supervision.

If you are considering a career in the retail industry, give Kent Oil your consideration. Apply at your nearest Kent Kwik.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF NEW UNITED STATES MAGISTRATE JUDGE

The judicial Conference of the United States has authorized the appointment of a full- time United States Magistrate Judge for the Western District of Texas for the combined divisions of Pecos and Midland/ Odessa. The duties of the position are demanding and wide- ranging and will include: (1) conduct of most preliminary proceedings in criminal cases; (2) trial and disposition of misdemeanor cases; (3) conduct of various pretrial matters and evidentiary proceedings on delegation from the Judges of the District Court; and (4) trial and disposition of civil cases upon consent of the litigants.

The basic jurisdiction of the United States Magistrate Judge is specified in 28 U.S.C. 636.

To be qualified for appointment an applicant must:

(1) Be a member in good standing of the bar of the highest court of a State, the district of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands of the United States, and have engaged in the active practice of law for a period of at least 5 years (with some substitutes authorized);
(2) Be competent to perform all the duties of the office; be of good moral character; be emotionally stable and mature; be committed to equal justice under law; be in good health; be patient and courteous; and be capable of deliberation and decisivness;
(3) Be less than seventy years old; and
(4) Not be related to a judge of the district court.

A Merit Selection Panel composed of attorneys and other members of the community will review all applicants and recommend to the Judges of the District Court in confidence the five persons whom it considers best qualified. The court will make the appointment, following an FBI full- field investigation and IRS tax check of the appointee. An affirmative effort will be made to give due consideration to all qualified candidates, including women and members of minority groups. The salary of the position is $119,400 per annum.

Application forms and further information on the magistrate position may be obtained from the chairman of the selection panel, Mitzi Turner, 2000 State National Plaza, El Paso, Texas 79901, (915) 533-4424. Applications must be submitted only by potential nominees personally and must be received by Ms. Turner no later than June 29, 1992.

Real to Reel

Fade in. The occasion is the last soccer game of the year. A wide shot of the field with little ones scurrying all around.

Zoom in. Focus is on an individual tot doing his best to kick the ball through the goal. He scores. Pan to the crowd of parents cheering .

Cut to the crowd of parents awaiting the year-end dance recital. Pan to the stage as it fills with tots in tutus who begin to point their toes and perform plies in time with the music. A wide shot of the little ones on stage is mostly obscured by the backs of fathers with camcorders on their shoulders. but nevertheless, the shot is just as important.

Zoom in to focus on a pair of dancers who appear to think they are Pavlova. After the final curtsy, the camera fades to black.

Fade in. The stage is filled with students in caps and gowns awaiting the final handshakes and diplomas which means they are graduates and have entered a new phase of life. Pan the rows of tasseled teens. stopping on the young adult, who it seems just yesterday was learning to tie shoelaces. Zoom in for a close-up. Slowly follow the walk across the stage, then zoom back for an final overview. Fade out.

Whether it be a special occasion or a trip to the park, it seems the scene is the same. Videographers are taking real life and turning it into "reel" life.

Parents are groping for the best location to get the perfect shot of their child's image on tape. Parents have designated themselves as director, producer and cameraman "on location" for "The Life and Times of Our Child," armed and ready with a camcorder.

Although parents filming their children is not the only scenario for camcorder usage, industry polls do show that the main reason Americans purchase camcorders is the birth of a child, and that throughout that child's life, these people—usually fathers—keep the camera lenses trained on the children.

While not as common as VCR players, camcorders are estimated to be owned by 15 percent of American

Festivities honor newlywed couple

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

After a wedding trip to St. John and St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, Todd Hullender and his bride, the former Kelly Dodson, will make their home in Fullerton, Calif. They were united in marriage Saturday evening in the First United Methodist Church.

McKnight-Harrison

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents, Gayle and Doc Dodson, at Midland Country Club following the ceremony.

Pre-nuptial festivities began in January with an engagement tea hosted by Kelly's mother; her grandmother, Pete (Mrs. D.K.) McMullan, and her sister, Jamie, at the Plaza Club.

In February, a party to meet the groom's mother, Melissa Hullender, was held at the home of Diana (Mrs. Ed) Weyman. Co-hostesses were Sue (Mrs. Sam) Conner, Lynda Kay (Mrs. Carty) Beal, Dee (Mrs. Paul) Morris, Della (Mrs. Joe) Neal and Nickie (Mrs. Les) Opperman.

March events included a recipe party at the home of Mignon Pearson with Marguerite Crain as co-hostess, and a bridal tea and shower held in Arlington for friends of the groom's family. There also was a Christmas ornament shower at the home of Joann (Mrs. John. Sr.) Foster. Co-hostesses were Iris (Mrs. John, Jr.) Foster, Carole (Mrs. Johnny) Warren and Judy (Mrs. Donald) Floyd.

In April, the home of Barnie (Mrs. Charles) Snure was the scene of a pancake breakfast and paper shower. Co-hostesses were Katie (Mrs. Charles) Linehan, Trish (Mrs. Joe) Golding and daughter, Kate, and Terry (Mrs. Guy) Hall and daughter, Natalie. Also, a kitchen shower was held at the home of Ellen (Mrs. Larry) Bell. Co-hostesses were Dayna (Mrs. Dale) Beikirch, Rosemary (Mrs. Donald) Cox, Nell (Mrs. Bobby) Ellis, Janet Foster, Eleanor (Mrs. Michael) Morse and Gail (Mrs. Pete) Rowland.

And Todd was honored with a "Honey-Do" shower at the home of Dr. Charlie Younger. Also hosting were Mary and Barry Beck, Susie and Gary Burnett, Polly and Ferrell Davis, Susie and Don Evans, Donna and Ted Fergeson, Penny and Jerry Hudgeons, Bettye and Don Jones, Sue and Dan Secker and Sandra and George Staley.

May began with a lingerie shower hosted by the faculty at Bush Elementary School, where Kelly is a second grade teacher.

The wedding week started out with a "Sip and See" party last Sunday afternoon at the Dodson home. Hostesses were Lynne (Mrs. Charles) Ray and Diane Claiborne.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents, Melissa and Dr. David Hullender, Friday evening at the Plaza Club.

Wedding day festivities included the bridesmaids luncheon hosted by Nell (Mrs. Don) Furgeson and daughter, Amy; Linda (Mrs. Rodney) Satterwhite and daughter, Leslie (Mrs. Grayson) Hankins of Odessa, and Darla (Mrs. Mickey) Pepper and daughter Angela, at Midland Country Club.

Also, a manicure party given by Kelly's namesake, Jeffrey Kelly (Mrs. Martin) McAllister of Fort Worth and Gayle and Doc's godchild, Jennifer Gayle (Mrs. Eric) Johnson, and her daughter, Erica, at Christine Valmy's and a golf tournament at Green Tree Country Club hosted by Nickie and Les Opperman for the groomsmen.

A brunch is being held today for the out-of-town guests at the home of Janice and Dr. Bobby Henry. Also hosting are Sara and Dr. Norman Fry, Toni and Bob Midkiff, Jodie and Jerry Green, Penny and Jerry Hudgeons and Glenda Pearce.

A BARBECUE was recently held in Midland to honor 96-year-old Emma White of Princeton, Texas. The party marked the opportunity for her family's five generations to be together.

The generational affair included Mrs. White; her son, Clyde C. White, a Midland building contractor since the early 1950s; his daughter, Juanita Wilson; Juanita's daughter, Brandye Tucker and Brandye's son, Cameron Tucker.

The event was held at Windsor Place Apartments on the Saturday preceding Mother's Day.

Mrs. White was born in 1895 in Oklahoma and married Wiley Daniel White in 1912. She "retired" at the age of 83 in Princeton, where she resided until this past February. She is now in Midland recuperating from hip surgery.

She has eight children, 27 grandchildren, 62 great-grandchildren and 11 great-great-grandchildren.

CINDY AND HEASLEY ROOK were in Dallas last weekend for the graduation of their son, Brent, and his wife, Danielle Peale Rook, from Southern Methodist University. They were accompanied by their younger son, Doug, and joined by Brent's grandmother, Marjorie (Mrs. Thad B.) Calhoun of Longview.

President George Bush was the speaker for SMU's 77th annual commencement held in Moody Coliseum.

A 1988 graduate of Lee High School, Brent received a bachelor of business administration degree in marketing and accounting. Danielle has a bachelor of arts degree in pyschology.

Various parties in the past couple of weeks led up to the graduation ceremony. They included a backyard cookout with Delta Gamma sorority sisters of Danielle, a poolside party with Brent's Kappa Alpha fraternity brothers, and a dinner party at Reunion Tower on the night of graduation hosted by George and Mal Bowdouris of Solon, Ohio, who are the parents of Scott Bowdouris, Brent's former roommate and fellow graduate.

THE MIDLAND COUNTRY CLUB Ladies Association brought the current club year to a close with a May luncheon and delightful program of love songs by Camille Hall Carstens of Scottsdale, Ariz.

Included in Camille's repertoire were such old familiar favorites as "What Is This Thing Called Love?," "Some Enchanted Evening," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and "This Can't Be Love." She interspersed her vocalizing with a narrative of little-known facts about the songs.

Accompanying her was Joan Martin, a well-known pianist in the Phoenix area.

Camille has appeared before the Ladies Association in the past. Her program a few years ago of "Broadway Showstoppers" was a big hit with the crowd. Camille entertains throughout the Southwest, and among her appearances has been with the Roswell Symphony.

The luncheon featured Chicken Lasagna, with Profiteroles for dessert. Hostesses for the social hour in the foyer preceding lunch were Lena (Mrs. John) Ochsner, Flo (Mrs. Sam) White and Virginia (Mrs. Bob) Jones.

Among those enjoying the program were Phyllis (Mrs. John) Grimland, Olive (Mrs. Allen) Cowden, Dorothy (Mrs. William B.) Neely, Fredda Black and Dottie (Mrs. Norman) Barker.

GOOD FRIENDS gathered with Amye Fletcher, a graduating senior at Lee High School, for a Polaroid picture taking hunt and make-your-own banana split party last weekend.

Colors for Lee High and Texas Christian University, where Amye is headed this fall, were featured in the decorations. A poster of pictures of Amye from birth to graduation was assembled and displayed by hostess Dottie (Mrs. Norris) Turk, a longtime neighbor and friend of the honoree.

The honoree's sister, Dianne Fletcher, also co-hosted with Barbara (Mrs. Gus) Farris at the latter's home.

Amye's mother, Beth (Mrs. Lane) Fletcher, was a special guest.

VIDEO: Taping tots is latest trend households, and that number is growing every year, according to the Electronic Industries Association.

The trend of videotaping almost every occasion is so popular that a television program is even based on the funniest — and often embarrassing — moments caught on tape, "America's Funniest Home Videos."

In fact, at some functions it has become quite competitive as to which parents will arrive at the function early enough to stake out the prime location for filming.

To avoid hard feelings, and sometimes even fights, some functions have banned individual videotaping during the actual event, allowing parents to film only during dress rehearsals or practices.

Others have avoided the problem by hiring a professional to video the event, and then sell copies to the parents. Even pool-parent videotaping is catching on, where by one parent videotapes the event for everyone and copies are made.

FOR THOSE WHO ARE not yet a part of the growing 15 percent of Americans who own a camcorder, there are some considerations to be made before purchasing a one.

"First of all, you must decide what type of format you want," said Van Folger, owner of Folger's Superstore. "There are three types of formats."

The first format type is the VHS full-size video camera. The advantage of this format is that it uses full-size VHS tapes so the tape you film will fit directly into your VCR player. The disadvantage is that the video camera is larger and heavier than the other two formats available.

The second format type is the VHS-C, the "C" meaning compact. The advantage of this type of camcorder is that it uses a tape which is a third the size of a regular VHS tape, therefore it is smaller and lighter weight than its full-size counterpart. The disadvantage is that it uses a smaller tape, therefore the playing time is shorter and you must use an adapter to replay it on a VCR.

The third format is the 8 millimeter video camera. According to Folger, this is the fastest-growing format. It uses a small tape, so the camera is smaller and lighter-weight than the full-size. However, the 8 millimeter tape has the same playing time as a full-size tape, which is two hours. For those who do not yet own a VCR player, there is another advantage to this format: the camera itself is the playback machine. The camera is simply hooked up to a television to play back the videotape.

Folger also said people should consider what they are going to be using the camera for.

"Generally speaking, the VHS full-size is the best format for those who do planned shooting, such videotaping Little League games and such. Those who are going to set the camera up on a tripod will probably like this format," Folger said. "But the VHS-C and the 8 millimeter formats are by far better for those people who want to capture whatever pops up."

AS FOR VIDEO CAMERA options, "If you want to have it, it's available," Folger said. "We could talk for hours about all the options available with camcorders. But the basic things to consider are the format and what you plan to use it for."

All video camera formats come with built in microphones, but Folger said the best sound quality is in the 8 millimeter version. Some units even come with stereo sound.

Zoom lenses are popular with new video camera users; however, Folger warns against getting too caught in a fancy zoom lens.

"If you stop to think about how you use a camera on holidays, it is usually around the house getting everyone together on the sofa for a picture and trying to squeeze everyone as close as possible to get them all in," Folger said. "You don't need a zoom lens for that. A wide angle lens is really more important than a zoom for most usage."

WHILE OWNING A VIDEO camera could be a lot of fun, they can be a little too expensive for some people's pocketbooks. But because of the video cameras' popularity, several Midland businesses offer the units for rental.

"There's always a birthday or something, and this time of year we rent them a lot for graduation," said Nancy Allison, manager of Premiere Video. "Holiday times are real tough; a lot of people want to rent them then. But during a regular month, when there isn't something special going on, they probably go out around nine times."

Although there are not written operation instructions with the rental cameras, Ms. Allison said those who are not familiar with how to work a video camera are given instructions at the store and allowed to do some trial taping to get the feel of how it is done. "The ones we have (for rental) are not that difficult," she said.

For those who would like to shoot professional-looking videos, but don't quite have the hang of it, some of the local videographers offer editing services.

Karen Alexander, who owns Bo's Video with her husband Bo, said "People can do their own videos then bring them in and they can be edited. But it's best to talk with the videographer first for some suggestions about how to shoot it. But we can cut out all the bad stuff."

But then some amateur videographers are of the opinion that there isn't any bad stuff when the video is of that little league player and that tot in a tutu. Whether perfect or not, they want it remember it exactly as it happened; "real to reel."

Pro offers advice on making videos

N.Y. Times News Service

Do your home videos look a little too homemade?

Then you may be ready for some professional help. Don Devendorf of Savannah, Ga., has worked as a director and associate director on network television, including National Football League games, and on national commercials for clients such as Ford Motor Co. He has appeared as an actor in several movies, including the made-for-TV version of "East of Eden."

He also has a home camcorder and, in a conversation with Bill Husted of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, offered some tips to make your videos look better:

QUESTION: Can an amateur learn from a professional?

ANSWER: Yes, but both of them can learn a lot by doing and by watching. The more you shoot, the more you learn. And you can also learn by watching commercials and movies — there's nothing wrong with stealing a good idea.

QUESTION: What's a typical amateur mistake?

ANSWER: Distracting the viewer when the whole idea should be to tell the story. You don't want to do things that call attention to the shooter (the person with the camera). For instance, let's talk about continuity. If you're shooting a birthday party and the child has a cup in his right hand, it shouldn't be in his left hand when the camera cuts to a closeup.

That's why, when you watch a football game, you won't see one shot of the home team running from left to right and, in the next one, see them running from right to left. There's nothing more confusing. The few times that it is done, you'll usually see a label on it that says, "reverse angle." So when you change shots, try to remember where everything was and what everyone was doing.

QUESTION: But life doesn't always cooperate, does it? Sometimes, by the time you move the camera, the kid at that birthday party is going to have the cup in the wrong hand, or have most of the birthday cake on his shirt. How do you cover for this and still not confuse the viewer?

ANSWER: Use a shot we call a cut-away. Going back to the birthday party example, you might cut away to the birthday cake, or to the parents talking, before you show the child again. It's all a matter of logic. If you can show the viewers that time has passed, it will no longer bother them if the character has the cup in a different hand or is in a different position.

QUESTION: It's fairly routine now for camcorders to have a zoom lens. But when I watch homemade videos, it seems to me as if the zoom gets overused.

ANSWER: Absolutely; it becomes a toy. When I'm on a commercial shoot, I use one all the time — but not to zoom in and out so often. The zoom is a great tool that will help you frame the shot — to frame what the viewer will see in the picture. And, with your zoom, you can do that without moving the camera. It's like having a whole bag full of lenses, everything from wide-angle to telephoto. I do most of my zooming when the camera isn't running.

But there are times when a zoom shot can add a dramatic effect. Just use it wisely and not too often. Also, just as when people pan the camera, zoom shots tend to be too fast.

QUESTION: What do you mean, "pan the camera?"

ANSWER: A pan is a panorama. That's when the camera moves in a horizontal line. And, too often, people move it too fast. There are two things to remember: Move the camera about half as fast as seems natural to you and — whenever you can — use a tripod. If the camera is jerking up and down while you pan, it's really hard on the viewers.

QUESTION: I don't see many amateurs using a tripod.

ANSWER: No, but they should when they can. I think everyone should invest in one. It'll do a lot to give your videos a professional look.

QUESTION: What else can an amateur do to improve the quality?

ANSWER: Audio is usually terrible. People use the microphones that are built into the camera, so everything sounds like it has an echo. You can place a microphone closer to the people who are speaking by using a separate microphone with a long cord that plugs into the camera.

QUESTION: Music can help, too, I'd guess.

ANSWER: Yes, but the selection is very important. You have to remember what you're showing and who will be watching. Make sure the music is appropriate.

QUESTION: One of the big disadvantages that most amateurs have is the lack of editing equipment. Is there a way around this, without investing in the equipment?

ANSWER: They can edit in the camera. In many cases, when they're in a hurry, even TV stations do it with news stories. You just back up the video to the point you want and edit in the new shot.

Shrubs, hedges often neglected

Associated Press

Although shrubs and hedges are known for giving the most beauty and effect for the least investment, they often are neglected the most.

True, these plants don't need much care. But starting them out right in the spring means a growing season of pleasure.

Give shrubs and hedges a bath of one cup chewing tobacco juice and one cup of antiseptic mouthwash mixed in a gallon of Fels Naptha soap water.

Dissolve just enough flaked Fels Naptha soap to turn warm water milky white.

Put a three-finger pinch of chewing tobacco in a pint of hot water; let it steep overnight.

Follow with an application of fruit tree spray and a feeding of any dry garden food. Add one pound of sugar for every 50 pounds of garden food to keep plants fit as a fiddle and full all season. Trim non-flowering varieties early and flowering varieties shortly after they bloom.

Evergreen trees and shrubs need even less care. Give them a bath by pouring one cup of baby shampoo in the jar of a 20-gallon hose-end sprayer and spraying the plants. Follow up with a fruit tree spray.

Early in the season, feed evergreens with regular dry lawn food and mix in a quarter pound of epsom salts per foot of height. Mulch roots with shredded bark.

Ewbank, president Wanda Ramsey, first vice president; Rosemary Cox, second vice president; Mildred Burkett, recording secretary; Jackie Cary, corresponding secretary; and Angie Grafa, treasurer.

Olga Banks, outgoing president, was given a framed copy of the Collect for Club Women, done in calligraphy by Martha Kallus. Ms. Ewbank discussed next year's theme. Ms. Ramsey outlined programs scheduled and Dorothy Foster listed projects: Midland College scholarship, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children, books for Friends of the Library, Hospice and M.D. Anderson Hospital.

Jackie Hendricks discussed the 21 awards from Western District and nine awards from Texas Federation of Women's Clubs that the club has won. The club received a plaque from Proctor and Gamble and Keep America Beautiful Inc. for Solid Waste Management Program and Outstanding Community Service.

Billie Halstead and Cathryn Lair were hostesses.

PRECEPTOR EPSILON DELTA CHAPTER, BSP

Preceptor Epsilon Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Pauline Heidel with Nancy White presiding. Budget, committees and state service project were discussed. Diana Henderson presented a program on "Making Paper Jewelry." Also attending were Jan Acker, Barbara Adams, Suzy Arnold, Judy Jehring and Donna Fulgham.

Preceptor Day Luncheon for installation of officers and secret sister revealing was at the Plaza Club.

Some employees are worried that defined pensions may be endangered

By Jim Barlow
Hearst News Service

With the federal government loading more rules on defined benefit pension plans, there have been all sorts of predictions about their death.

The soothsayers tell us the defined benefit plan will be replaced by a defined contribution plan.

Here's how they differ.

In a defined benefit plan, an employer promises to give you a pension of so many dollars a month when you retire, based usually upon an average of your final years of salary multiplied by your years of service. The company assumes the risk of managing the plan.

With a defined contribution plan, the employer promises only to give you a certain amount of money each year — usually a percentage of your salary. You assume the investment risk.

You choose where to invest from a wide range of mutual funds or trust funds chosen by the company, which would also pay the administration costs. But as long as the company takes reasonable care in choosing enough plans to give you a range of risks and rewards, it is no longer responsible for the outcome.

But despite all the talk, William M. Mercer Inc., a benefits consulting firm, found that fears about the death of defined benefit plans are greatly exaggerated.

Expressing anger good for health

Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Wives in marriages where both spouses suppress their anger are four times more likely to die of cardiovascular disease, according to University of Michigan researchers.

That conclusion was reached in a study of 192 married couples whose ages ranged from 30 to 69. The study reported links between how spouses cope with anger and cardiovascular disease mortality rates.

"Wives' mortality rates from cardiovascular disease ranged from no deaths when both spouses expressed anger — let it out — to 11 percent when both spouses suppressed anger," noted Mara Julius, principal investigator in the study and assistant research scientist in epidemiology at the university's School of Public Health.

"When only the wife suppressed her anger, the effect on mortality was more modest. In those instances, the mortality rate for wives was 7 percent compared to zero deaths when neither spouse suppressed anger."

They lived 'heavily' ever after

By Sylvia Rubin
N.Y. Times News Service

They share the same page in the phone book: Wedding Services and Weight Loss Services, Pac Bell's little joke about married couples.

You've seen it happen to friends. Perhaps you are not immune yourself.

You know the couple in that wedding photograph, on the beach in Mexico? That was before they ate their way through the honeymoon, and the first year of candlelight dinners — always with dessert. With marriage comes calories, say weight management specialists, one of whom says 75 percent of newlyweds gain 10 pounds in the first year.

A romantic dinner at home with Steve and Jacquie Zoellin of San Francisco used to go something like this: A nice bottle of wine, Chateaubriand with bechamel sauce, a salad with pears, walnuts, ricotta cheese and poppy-seed dressing, asparagus with crab and hollandaise sauce, and fettuccine Alfredo.

They were not celebrating anything in particular, except the weekend.

"That was just a regular meal," says Steve, 41, an account manager. "Oh, I also made creme brulee that night." Not surprisingly, Steve has put on 90 pounds during the past nine years.

EIGHTEEN YEARS after their wedding, the Zoellins are trying to lose the weight that crept up on them after too many nights of takeout Chinese and pizza or a husband's flair for French cooking.

'When you're single, you're out there exercising, trying to look your best, and after you settle down, those aerobics classes might seem less important.'

— Dr. Joan Saxton
weight management internist/director
California Pacific Medical Center

"The longer we were married, the more we felt like we were in a comfort zone," says Jacquie, who has gained about 60 pounds since she walked down the aisle.

Giving affection in the form of food is one reason couples might put on weight, says Dr. Joan Saxton, an internist and director of the weight management program at California Pacific Medical Center. Feeling settled and secure in a marriage — being out of circulation — is another.

"When you're single, you're out there exercising, trying to look your best, and after you settle down, those aerobics classes might seem less important," she says.

Add pregnancy to the mix, and you've got at least one stout spouse around the house, possibly two, if he tends to nibble along while she indulges her cravings. For one wife, it was a certain kind of sweet.

"I loved those animal cookies from Mother's, you know the ones with the pink and white icing?" says a 32-year-old San Francisco homemaker who gained 10 pounds the first two months of marriage and another 10 after her pregnancy. Her husband, a 50-year-old stockbroker, has added about 30 pounds since they were married two years ago, she says.

Then she got pregnant, and he put on 20 more pounds.

WHILE WEIGHT-LOSS counselors see married couples frequently, the majority of the clientele are women, many of whom come in to lose their post-pregnancy weight. Nan Brenzel, a behaviorist at Physis, a preventive medical health and fitness center in San Francisco, has seen certain patterns emerge:

"You might see the woman within a year or two of the marriage, the man tends to wait a little longer. With couples, I usually see them at around three years after the marriage, or around nine years; and then again when the woman goes through menopause."

Slight weight gain is a normal part of aging and a more sedentary lifestyle, which often goes along with marriage.

"Your metabolism doesn't change the day after the wedding, but your lifestyle does," says Bill Hartman, a psychologist with the weight management program at California Pacific Medical Center.

Couples with kids may be cooking at home but exercising less, as family demands cut into leisure time. And as couples tend to marry older, it is likely either one or both have been promoted to positions that require less physical activity.

Those first 10 pounds are easy to ignore, says Dr. Jerry Sutkamp, national medical director of the Physicians Weight Loss Centers in Akron, Ohio, who estimates 75 percent of his married clients put on eight to 10 pounds the first year of marriage.

"Usually nobody says anything about it during that first year," says Sutkamp, author of a new book, "How to Help Your Man Lose Weight: A Guide for the Concerned Woman" (Simon & Schuster; $15.95).

MEN ARE particularly susceptible, he says, "because they are far less pressured about their having to watch their weight in this society." And if the couple won't change their habits, Sutkamp says, they can expect to put on another 10 pounds each year for five years. "But the first year is the most dangerous."

That 75 percent figure seems far-fetched to Dr. Robert Baron, director of the weight management and risk reduction program at the University of California at San Francisco.

"There might be rumors to that effect, but no literature exists as far as I know," Baron says.

The Zoellins embarked on a supervised diet and exercise program about a month ago, and the weight is coming off. He's lost about 20 pounds; she's dropped 15.

Their typical dinner menu is a pasta dish and salad. "No dessert," Steve says. "And a bottle and a half of wine. We still like good wine. It's all a trade-off."

LIFESTYLE POLICIES

Policies for publication of announcements in the Lifestyle section of the Reporter-Telegram are:

Information for Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Monday. For publication in a weekday paper, we must receive the information by noon two days before the information is to be published. For example, an item for Wednesday's paper must be received by noon Monday.

Engagement announcements must appear at least two weeks before the wedding date. Wedding announcements must appear within one month of the event. Anniversary announcements — 25th or higher — must be published within one month of the anniversary date.

Announcements of pageant winners will only be published for teenage pageants and older. Photographs will be published only for winners, not runners-up. These announcements are published Thursdays. Deadline is 5 p.m. Monday.

All articles must be submitted in writing. Forms for weddings, engagements and anniversaries, only published Sundays, are available in the Lifestyle office. All materials must include the signature and telephone number of the person submitting them.

We cannot mail forms to persons in Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication. To have a photo returned by mail, include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Unclaimed photos are discarded after a month.

Photographs may be submitted with wedding and engagement announcements, and anniversary announcements of 50 years or more, but are not required. A portrait of the bride-elect or of the future bride and bridegroom together may be submitted with engagement announcements. Portraits of the bride only or of the wedding couple may be submitted with wedding announcements. A different photo must be submitted for the engagement and wedding announcements.

Photos should be vertical, black and white, glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but quality reproduction cannot be assured. Snapshots generally are not acceptable and Polaroid shots are not accepted. The MRT reserves the right to deny publication of any photo due to quality or content.

There is no charge for publication of photographs and stories.

What you don't know may hurt you

Many think they can change spouse's irritating habits once vows are said

By Enid Nemy
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — At this very moment, there are thousands of engaged and soon-to-be-engaged couples who think their future mates are just about perfect — just about. Sure, there are a few small things that grate a little, that could be changed; but nothing that can't be dealt with.

Sometimes these matters are brought up before marriage but more often, they're not. The reason is that there is a fairly general belief that once the vows have been taken, there will be plenty of time to work on the odd habit that irritates.

She knows that it won't take long to convince him that there's no need to arrive at an airport an hour before the required time, or that that pathetic college jacket should be put to rest.

He knows that he'll soon make her realize that a newspaper should be passed on in its original condition and that eating quickly isn't a mortal sin. And both of them are almost always wrong.

Dee Topol, for instance, still vividly recalls that when she was engaged to her husband, Robert, some 40 years ago, "He not only told me how to drive but criticized every move I made while driving." One day, enraged, she stopped the car, got out and threw her engagement ring at him.

THE TIFF WAS short-lived and she wasn't unduly concerned about her future behind the wheel because, she said, "I thought once we were married, he'd get off my back and would realize how responsible a driver I was." It didn't happen. When they were together, he usually drove and when she did the driving, there would be the familiar rumblings.

The denouement came last year when Topol, an executive vice president of Shearson Lehman Brothers, broke his arm and his wife took over driving.

"The same things he said 40 years ago, he said again," said Ms. Topol, the president of the Primerica Foundation. "I stopped the car and got out but this time, being older and wiser, I didn't throw the diamond at him."

Will he ever change? "Probably not," she said. But, on the other hand, she's not going to either.

"He thought he could make a wonderfully neat person out of a messy slob," she said. "He couldn't."

William (Bill) Shiland knew before their marriage almost three years ago that his future wife's relationship with her check book left everything to be desired. She often couldn't find it and when she did, she would somehow forget to enter the payee, the amount, or both. But he, a lawyer with GE Capital Corp, knew he could make her see the light.

"He made gallant attempts," said his wife, Patricia, who creates miniature life style portraits in shadow boxes. Gallant and unsuccessful.

Has Ms. Shiland succeeded in her efforts to change one of his habits that, in her words, "drives me batty." Not at all. He still goes around turning off unnecessary lights.

Adrian Bryant-Brown was well aware that his fiancee, Joan Marcus, a photographer, could never remember where she had put her keys. Still, he waited until after their marriage last year to tackle the matter.

"I said nicely on a number of occasions, 'Couldn't you find one bag, one pocket, one place, to put them?' " he said. The answer was obviously yes, she could — but she didn't. And, Ms. Marcus said, her husband, a theater publicist, hasn't done much about his mountain of clippings and old newspapers. He used to leave them in piles — now he puts them in shopping bags and leaves the bags in piles.

IT'S BEEN ALMOST A year since they married but Ellery Gordon, a partner in Berkeley Shirts and World Island, hasn't succeeded in weaning his wife from what he calls "social track meets" — going to three or four things in one evening.

"I don't mind going to an art opening, one or two cocktail parties and a dinner in one evening," said Marjorie Reed Gordon, who has just finished filming a video on entertaining to be sold in supermarkets.

"I thought when we were married, I'd get him to go to at least three of the four but he won't. He says, 'You go and tell me where to meet you for dinner' or 'You go and come back here and I'll cook some wonderful pasta.' "

Simon Jones has at least one thing in common with Robert Topol. He hasn't convinced his wife that life should be tidier and that things should be put away. And try as she might, she hasn't managed to expand his limited interest in clothes.

But after eight years of marriage, Jones, co-starring with Joan Collins in "Private Lives," and Mrs. Jones, who as Nancy Lewis is the United States manager for Monty Python, have given up trying on one thing. They each have their own tube of toothpaste — his squeezed from the middle, hers from the end.

Barrie wrote classic tale, 'Peter Pan'

KIRRIEMUIR, Scotland (AP) — Novelist and playwright Sir James M. Barrie, born here in 1860, wrote "Peter Pan," the classic story of a boy who would not grow up. Educated at Edinburgh University, Barrie became a journalist and went to London in 1885. In 1902, he wrote a book called "The Little White Bird," in which he introduced Peter Pan, who became the hero of his highly successful 1904 play. Large audiences later saw movie, television, musical and cartoon versions. Barrie's other plays include "The Little Minister," "The Admirable Crichton," "Quality Street" and "Dear Brutus." Barrie was knighted in 1913 and died in 1937.

NEW YORK — Even in the schoolyard, the adult world of the White House is a favorite target of ridicule, with the vice president the butt of many jokes.

"Like Dan Quayle said, 'The mind is a terrible thing not to have,' " said 11-year-old Clarissa Wolf of Public School 9 on West 84th Street in Manhattan. She paused for effect. "He should know!"

Although knock-knock jokes, chicken-crossing-the-road jokes and elephant jokes are perennial favorites, more and more children seem to be getting their punch lines from the news, bringing a new sophistication and sometimes a cynical edge to their humor.

"Kids today are so sophisticated, much more than I was as a kid," said Jim Davis, creator of Garfield, the comic-strip cat. "They don't need jokes explained to them. What makes me laugh makes kids laugh."

Child psychologists say the things children find funny reveal a great deal about their level of development and what is on their minds.

"If they make jokes about authority, it tells us something about what they're thinking," said Dr. Rebecca Edder, a developmental psychologist who is an assistant professor of psychology at the University of California at Davis. "To the extent they're making jokes about Dan Quayle and not Gorbachev says something about their attitude and how they view those two figures. Gorbachev may be seen to be more serious or sympathetic."

SO IF, as the experts suggests, jokes are a window to children's thoughts, what's on their minds? Politics, school, eating, parents, dating, friends and sex. But parents will be pleased to know that sex takes a back seat to current events.

Informal child-on-the-playground interviews at three New York City elementary schools uncovered these insights: Wayne and Garth, the wacky characters in "Wayne's World," are seen as "really funny," "kind of funny" or "not funny at all."

A joke is just a joke, so one should not be offended if one is the butt of a joke. Garfield the cat is funny because he's cool, lazy, fat and eats a lot. And knock-knock jokes are for "kids," or so say the 11-and-older set, who prefer riddles and story jokes.

"What do you call a bunch of bunnies in a line moving backward?" Bruna Babic, 11, asked a visitor to PS 144, the Jeromus Remsen school, in Forest Hills, N.Y.

"I don't know," the visitor said.

"A receding hare line." Bruna had to struggle to maintain her composure amidst the giggles.

Now that their children's humor has become more worldly, many adults are proudly passing the jokes on to co-workers and neighbors. At social gatherings, parents have been known to egg on children: "Honey, tell everybody that wonderful joke you know about ..."

Alex Korman, 9, who attends the Dalton School on East 89th Street in Manhattan, responds on cue. "There's a new movie out I want to see," he said. "It's called: 'Boys in the Hood: The David Duke Story.' "

NOT TO BE outdone, his friend Jake Steinberg, also 9, told this one: "During the New York primary, this little girl asks her father who he's going to vote for, Mickey or Goofy. Her dad says Mickey. When he comes out of the voting booth, the girl asks, 'So did you vote for Mickey?' Her dad said, 'No, I voted for Goofy, but his name was spelled C-L-I-N-T-O-N.'"

One winning entry in a children's joke contest sponsored by Ballantine Books also used a political figure as a target. As Lauren Castroll, 11, of Bridgewater, N.J., told it: "Pablo Picasso dies and goes to Heaven, and God says: 'To get into Heaven, you must prove to me you are who you say you are.' So Picasso draws a picture, and God lets him in. Next Martin Luther King Jr. dies, and God says, 'Prove that you are Dr. King.'

So he makes a long speech about civil rights, and God lets him in. Then Dan Quayle dies, and God says: 'Prove you're Dan Quayle.' Quayle asks why, and God says: 'Because Pablo Picasso and Martin Luther King had to.' And Dan Quayle says, 'Who are they?' And God lets him in."

While funny children have always been a staple of the entertainment industry, the impish pranks of a top star like Shirley Temple often made adults smile affectionately.

More recently, 11-year-old Macaulay Culkin achieved fame by using his smarts to cause pain to inept adults in "Home Alone," and the cartoon fourth grader Bart Simpson has earned rebukes from politicians with his underachiever cool.

IN NOVEMBER, Macaulay even crossed into late-night television as a guest host on "Saturday Night Live." (How many children stayed up late that night?

The show's ratings that night were about the same as usual, NBC said.) With these examples, it seems only natural that almost every child fancies himself or herself a real comedian.

Dina Dominguez, 8, of PS 144, said she really doesn't know any jokes; she does routines. Without missing a beat, she said: "I just broke up with my boyfriend.

I got tired of him sitting around the house all day playing Nintendo on my television set. I finally told him: 'Hey, it's either me or the Mario Brothers.' He'd sit there all day. playing Nintendo and complaining about being hungry. I asked him, 'What do you want me to do, fix you lasagna in my Easy Bake Oven?' "

Sydell Kane, principal at PS 144, said she is constantly surprised at the caliber of jokes children tell today and how well they're able to tell them.

"For many of these kids, English is a second language," Mrs. Kane said, adding that the children at her school represent 31 native languages. "To be able to master the nuances of humor and to be conversant with the humor shows a command of the language that is very good. It's a part of their Americanization."

BUT SOME grown-ups lament the steady maturation of children's humor as a kind of end of innocence.

"They're exposed to so much so much sooner in life, which in a way is sad because they have to grow up quicker and become cooler and more sophisticated quicker," said Mike Thaler, an author known as America's Riddle King. Thaler, who visits schools around the country, said he teaches the art of riddles to "bring out the child in children."

"Riddles are silly," Thaler said, "and once the kids get into the riddle-making process, it brings out their playfulness. And the giggles come out."

Kay Baker

Meeting is scheduled

Former Midlander Kay Baker will be guest speaker at the "Summertime Entertaining" brunch of Midland Christian Women's Club planned for 10 a.m.-noon June 2 at the Plaza Club. While in Midland, Mrs. Baker was an active member of Palette Club and displayed her art at Antiques Etc.

Marian Farr of Midland County Extension Service will demonstrate how to prepare summer parties. "Cool Sounds" will be presented by April Paris.

Cost of the brunch will be $6.50. Free nursery will be provided at Northwestern Baptist Church. Midland Christian Women's Club is non-denominational and has no membership or dues. All interested women are invited to attend. For brunch and nursery reservations call 699-7472 or 682-5851.

Firebush ideal for local gardens

By Deborah A. Benge

If you don't like plants that can take the Permian Basin heat and keep on blooming, if you don't like hummingbirds and if you don't like color — don't plant this plant. What is it? Firebush.

Benge

Firebush (Hamelia patens) is a summer annual that likes it hot. In fact it doesn't even act like it feels good until it's hot. With our Permian Basin summers capable of climbing the temperature ladder, we need plants that can take the punishment of hot sun, dry air, reflected heat and any kind of soil condition (except constantly wet soils) and keep on keeping on. The plant for these conditions is firebush.

Firebush is an upright growing annual with medium size, broad green leaves. At the branch terminals, the foliage of firebush is highlighted by clusters of scarlet red, very tubular blossoms with deeper red throats. These striking blossoms are natural attractants to hummingbirds and butterflies. With firebush, you don't have to deadhead fading blossoms to keep them blooming, they naturally drop cleanly from the plant which promotes more blooming.

Firebush will start blooming soon after you plant it and it won't stop until late fall. Firebush will really "show off" when planted in full sun. Once it is established, the hotter and sunnier it is, the more it likes it. Although it prefers full sun, firebush will tolerate some partial shade.

Firebush has no serious insect or disease problems when grown outside in full sun, and it is a great plant for the organic gardener. You will want to make sure it gets about six hours of sunlight, good soil drainage and supplemental nitrogen fertilizer throughout the growing season. Your fertilizer can be organic or inorganic, the plant doesn't care, it just needs nitrogen to keep it vigorous and active.

Firebush combines well with other plants. It grows to an average height of 12 inches and looks great with white petunias.

So for the hottest, most merciless site in your yard, be sure to try this ou'standing summer annual — firebush.

'Molecular wires' transport energy

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A University of Michigan chemist says he has found a way to transport packets of pure energy along so-called "molecular wires."

Professor Raoul Kopelman, who describes the wires as 10 times thinner than the thinnest metal wire and 1,000 times thinner than current optical fibers, says they have many potential applications.

Kopelman says these include ultraminiaturization and optical computer memories. "Our experiments show it's possible to move pure energy particles called excitons — tiny particles with no charge or mass — along the entire length of a single polymer molecule less than one nanometer wide," he notes. A nanomater is 1 billionth of a meter.

DEAR ABBY

Abortion argument takes on life of its own

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: It all started Christmas Day, 1981, over a family discussion about the abortion issue. A dozen of us were present, including "Amy," her psychologist husband and their two young children. (Amy was three months pregnant at the time.)

Van Buren

On Monday morning, Dec. 27, we found all the Christmas gifts we had given Amy and her family in two plastic bags left on our doorstep with a note stating, "Don't contact us, we will contact you."

Imagine the shock! I cried for days. Later, I learned that Amy's husband had understood me to say that I wanted Amy to abort her three-month pregnancy! Abby, I am of a conservative nature, and would never even THINK of aborting a grandchild unless the pregnancy threatened our daughter's life.

Eleven years later, after many letters, I am still trying to convince them of the truth. Amy now has six children. We hardly know the last three because she refuses to contact us, except through letters. They live only 130 miles away. We send their children birthday cards and gifts that are "put away" — still gift-wrapped — and not given to the children.

Communication with them in the past 11 years has been minimal. We finally wrote to tell them that we had to get on with our lives as we are approaching our 70s, and if they want further contact with us, they owe us an apology. It appears this was a mistake, as there has been no response.

Our relationship with Amy until 1981 seemed normal and happy. Perhaps you can give us some advice as to how to proceed. We are baffled, as Amy has always been a very religious person. — FRUSTRATED BEYOND BELIEF

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You say that Amy has always been a "very religious" person. What kind of religion permits a daughter to damn — and disown — her parents without proof of wrongdoing?

Your daughter's behavior is not normal. Something — or someone, imagined or real — appears to be controlling her. Unless you have a clergyperson, physician or very close mutual friend who will intervene on your behalf, you may have to write off Amy and her family.

DEAR ABBY: How would you like to have dinner at a relative's house, and later see the hostess drying dishes with her husband's undershorts?

Well, that happened to me, and when she saw the look of horror on my face, she said, "Oh dear, I must have grabbed these shorts out of the dryer by mistake!" I was speechless. Then she said, "What difference does it make if you dry dishes with a dish towel or undershorts? You throw them all in the washer together anyway."

Abby, would you eat in a restaurant if you knew that the cook threw the napkins and kitchen towels in with undershorts and socks? — DISHRAG DAISY IN WILLOW CREEK, MONT.

DEAR DAISY: No. Even though the washer-dryer process sterilizes the garments, the thought of eating off dishes that had been dried with a man's undershorts is apt to depress a person's appetite.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because of your reference to "a highfalutin' rootin' tootin' sonuvagun from Arizona, named Ragtime Cowboy Joe" — a song that was popular in the '50s.

It reminded me of a story I heard a long time ago about some trouble that occurred in Israel.

It seems that in the city of Haifa, a man went on a rampage and shot and wounded the mayor whose name was Newton. He then proceeded to ransack all the shops in the downtown area. Little was known about this man except that his name was Joseph, and he was a part-time farmer whose mother had joined a religious order in Spain. Because of the aforementioned facts, an all-point bulletin was issued for a Haifa-lootin' Newton shootin' son of a nun from Barcelona, part-time plowboy Joe. — JOHN H. SKELTON, HOUSTON

AT WIT'S END

Life's a beach for those who worry about bathing suits

(NOTE TO EDITORS: Erma Bombeck is taking a week of vacation. The following column originally appeared July 6, 1989.)

By Erma Bombeck

Every year, women allow bathing suit manufacturers to do a number on them. Designers march out the same six perfect bodies wearing a string connected to two Dixie cups and a bottom the size of a bus token, and declare, "This is what you'll be wearing on the beaches this summer."

Bombeck

Two hours after those bodies in those suits are splashed on the pages of Sports Illustrated, women all over the country start boiling dietary plastic pouches.

I used to do that. Not anymore. Face it, America, you've cooked turkeys bigger than those bodies, and you are never going to look like that. Look at me when I write. I know you don't want to hear this, but it's true: These women starve for a living. Can you understand that? On their resumes, under experience, they list "Diet."

They don't eat a dozen olives while they're getting dinner. They don't stand over a disposal gnawing at the meat their kids left on the pork chop bones. They don't scrape the bottom of the skillet with a fork for the crispy stuff that fell off the chicken.

Oh sure, they've known success, but they've never known the ecstasy of dumping an envelope of onion soup mix into a pint of sour cream and devouring it with a bag of chips and a dietary drink.

Not only that, all six of them are young. Real young. Some of the colognes on my dressing table are older. They have never had a pregnancy where they gained 48 pounds. They've never balanced a stroller on one hip and a 40-pound baby on the other. They don't have stretch marks so deep the sand collects in them. They go through life squeezing buttocks and going into the pelvic tilt at traffic lights. Is that the kind of life you want?

I've been to a lot of beaches and swimming pools in my life, and I have yet to see a bathing suit from the pages of Sports Illustrated. What I am seeing are tushes that have tumbled, chests that have fallen, knees that have bloused and Pillsbury Doughboy stomachs.

The average woman emerges from the dressing room wearing a cover-up or a beach towel wrapped around her middle. Her bathing suit will have a little flounce to cover the tops of her legs. It will drape over her stomach so you're not quite sure what's under it, and will have more built-ins than an RV. The backs of her knees will look like road maps outlined in varicose veins.

Don't bother looking for the six bathing suit models. They won't be there. Oh, there will be couple of teen-agers who look pretty good in a lime green bikini that glows in the dark, but for the most part, there will be self-conscious women scouring the beaches in a desperate attempt to find someone who looks worse in a bathing suit than they do.

I fully expect mail from good bodies who will assure me that in spite of kids and time, they have not gone to pot. Probably six letters. No more.

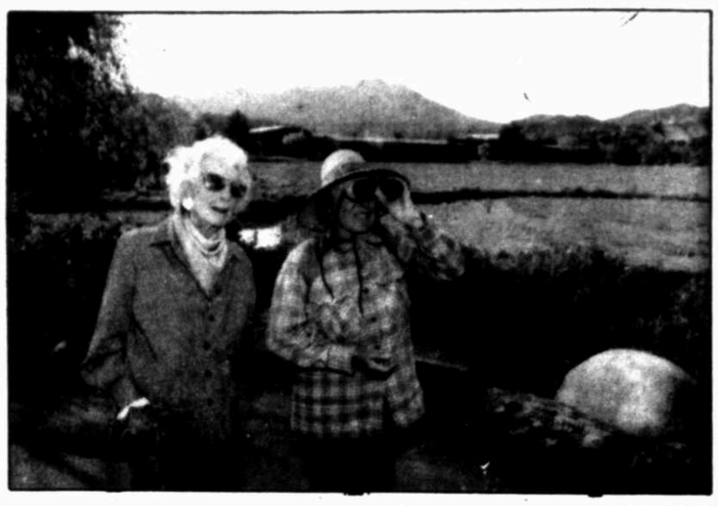
Retirement can be remarkable

EDITOR'S NOTE — Retirement homes are often sad, unwelcome reminders of the way old age chips away at us all. But in a sunny, progressive complex tucked into a gorgeous slice of Northern California lives a group of people whose final years of life have nothing to do with decline or surrender. They've stared mortality down and chosen instead to go on dreaming, learning, exploring just as they've done all their remarkable lives.

By Leslie Dreyfous



AP Laserphoto

Antiwar activist and author Kay Boyle, 90, and environmentalist Elizabeth Terwilliger, 82, right, take a nature walk in early April at The Redwoods. The 10-acre nonprofit retirement community in Mill Valley, Calif., has attracted an unusual number of artist, activists and adventurers whose creative lives have continued into their 80s and beyond.

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Like the silhouette Mount Tamalpais cuts against this wooded town's horizon, Kay Boyle is at once elegant and uncompromising and exquisitely sharp.

"I tell you, I'm really quite simple-minded," she insists again. And you see the regal woman photographer Man Ray captured 62 years ago in black-and-white. The angular features, Roman nose, wavy crest of hair.

You see a flash of the expatriate writer in Paris, the poet, the lover and lonelyheart. And you see all the years since, the unfolding of mother and teacher, antiwar activist and author of 40 books.

Kay Boyle at 90 is much as she was at 25 and 35, a disonant mix of priggish unorthodoxy, enormous compassion, utter impatience. She is willful and alive in old age. And she's in good company at The Redwoods.

The 10-acre retirement community within this city just north of the Golden Gate Bridge has drawn an unsual number of accomplished artists, activists and adventurers whose creative lives have continued into their 80s and beyond. They are a collage of the 20th century, people like Boyle, whose latest collection of poems was published last year; Leon D. Adams, whose newest edition of "Wines of America" came out in 1990; environmentalist Elizabeth Terwilliger, who continues to inspire thousands of kids each year with her nature walks; writer and photographer Wright Morris; Gwynne Hill, whose first book was published not long after her 80th birthday; children's books author Lillian Pohlmann; dancer Aron Tomaroff; farmworker organizer Fred Ross; and John Rose, a world traveler and philosopher of life.

GUSTO IS in abundant supply at the nonprofit Redwoods, a friendly compound of buildings with graduated care — from independent one-bedroom apartments to round-the-clock facilities for the infirm.

"We don't look for people who are docile," said Vera Madison, director of admissions. "We want people who are independent and proud of being in control of their lives. The point is to be truly alive."

The result is a spirited mix of remarkable minds unwilling to slow down for something as mundane as old age. Even if they are not quite so limber physically, time has made them no less feisty or discriminating.

Though it would make a nice image, they are not all great friends passing their golden years together in the communal library. They are more like seatmates at the start of a long airplane flight: wary of getting trapped in a tedious conversation that could last the rest of their lives.

They don't unconditionally respect each other's work or laugh at one another's jokes. They've kept pretty much the same distinct personalities and predilections they've always had.

"These are people who remember the past but are engaged in today," said Madison, who prescreens all 330 residents. "They are survivors who know what they like and don't like — and know what they want to do."

NOT EVERYONE at The Redwoods is fully engaged in living. There are expressionless faces, hollow eyes, people who are marking time. The thing is, age in the end seems not to matter much in the equation. Some people grow old in their youth. Others never quite find the time.

"Honestly, you'd think I'm a half-wit the way you talk to me," Miss Boyle snaps at her good friend, the naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger. "I am 90 years old. You needn't address me like a child."

By turns imperious and coquettish, Miss Boyle is at the moment impatient to firm up next week's theater plans and get back to her desk. "Honestly," she says again, huffing off with a wave of her brightly painted cane.

What Miss Boyle says is true. Mrs. Terwilliger does have a way of addressing adults in the same breathless tones she has used to captivate tens of thousands of school children over 30 years.

"Mrs. T." is a Marin County institution, her trademark straw hat and apple cheeks as much a fixture as the daily ebb and flow of the tides. She's already been out today tramping marshland with 40 kids.

But there's still light left, sunshine slanting through the skylights and floor-to-ceiling windows at The Redwoods. Come out here, she implores, more hyperactive 8-year-old than widow of 82.

"Stop! Stand still!" she whispers, squinting up at a flock of birds crossing overhead. "Now put on a black coat with red shoulder pads. Now say 'ook-lee, ook-lee' Now you're Mr. Red-Wing."

IT'S MAGICAL, this evangelistic patter she's used to bewitch kids going back generations. ("Dip two fingers in black paint and draw two lines around your neck ... "). Could anyone be so perpetually turned on?

Then her pencil-darkened eyebrows shoot up at the sight of a vulture headed out toward the San Francisco Bay. "Quick! Raise your arms in a V. Now you're a turkey vulture!" And you realize she truly can't help herself.

Over the years, Mrs. T. has gained countless converts, many of whom have helped her establish a nature conservancy, keep developers in check and forge miles of bike and walking paths.

"You've just got to use your senses all the time," Mrs. Terwilliger says, her hazel eyes ablaze. "Mother Nature has given us all these things to look at. I don't want to miss anything — NOT A THING.

"Joy is in discovery," she says. "This is what's fun."

"Fun is following your fundamental hunger — and for me that's always been a hunger for excitement, adventure," says Leon D. Adams, an old San Francisco newspaperman, wine connoisseur and fishing expert.

Part rogue, part imp, he's got an irreverant sense of humor both about himself and the history he's observed over 87 years.

Adams signed on at The Redwoods a few years back with retirement in mind. But "The Wines of America" needed updating, so his work continued. "Worn out?" he laughs. "Not as long as I'm excited."

THINGS HAVE slowed a bit since the fourth edition of his wine guide came out, so Adams has time now to tackle H.G. Wells' "The Outline of History" or simply to sit back and gaze out his window at Mount Tamalpais.

A stroke has slowed Adams physically, but he won't be still. Like a fidgety kid he is in constant motion: lighting then drawing on his pipe, tapping his wing-tipped toes, laughing a laugh that must have rung through the newsroom 70 years ago when he was a cub reporter making 15 cents an inch.

Adams isn't much for this aging thing. He'd rather be exploring Tibet or tasting Bordeaux or fishing for striped bass. Occasionally he looks up at his dinner companions and can't help thinking: "My God, they're old."

But all in all, The Redwoods suits him. His bachelor's quarters are filled with books, a trusty manual typewriter and a wall full of wonderful photos in which Adams looks every inch the matinee idol. He's got four grown children to keep tabs on, and no shopping, cooking or laundry to bother with.

"I've got a cynical reporter's sense of smell," he says. "There are some places for old people where you can smell money and not much respect. But this place, well, I could smell right off that it was doggone nice."

The Redwoods is not Utopia, and Marianne Gontarz would be the first to admit it. There are faces so vacant some days that she can nearly make out the dying soul behind them, far out of a social caseworker's reach.

From time to time, Gontarz wonders what makes the difference among the residents she counsels, why some are so alive while others seem to be marking time. What makes a remarkable life?

It's not so much fame or fortune. "Really, it seems like the most remarkable people are the ones who have accepted challenges all along the way," says Gontarz, 44. "They've asked questions all their lives."

"THE THING to do — especially as you grow older — well, you must fight to keep learning," says John Rose, an engineer by profession and hobo at heart. Rose's education has extended over 100 countries through the years. Tall and unstooped with piercing eyes framed in thick silver hair and beard, he is Heathcliff at 80 — dashing and fiery and a little bit magical.

A woman might be tempted to follow him anywhere, as his wife did for decades through the South Pacific, Asia, Europe, the Middle East. "Until, I guess, she got fed up," says Rose, who is now on his own.

He's studied psychology and religion, philosophy and politics. He's got an opinion on everything and a mind open to everything. Today, he's learning the art of book-binding. Tomorrow, he might study Burmese cooking.

Nursery class opens door of education for children

By Carol Lawson
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The classroom is filled with blocks, toys, a sand table and books with titles like "Pig Pig Grows Up." The students like to paint and sing songs and go to the playground, but the uncontested highlight of the day is snack. If the cookies fail to meet the taste test, they are certain to be rejected with an emphatic "Yuck!"

Not what most people would consider higher education.

But Nancy Heffner and Louise Gottfried would argue otherwise.

Mrs. Heffner and Mrs. Gottfried are nursery school teachers. Their students are 3 years old.

At a time when preschool education is receiving growing attention from government and business leaders, and when increased financing has been proposed for the Head Start preschool program, Mrs. Heffner and Mrs. Gottfried's classroom is an example of how this introduction to school can go far beyond fun and games.

"It is more than just a play experience: it is an introduction to life," Mrs. Heffner said. "It is an introduction to life's pleasures and disappointments, and how to deal with both."

Child-development experts view preschool as boot camp for social skills. They argue that children cannot do well in grade school if they have not mastered basics, like following rules.

"In preschool, children learn how to take turns, to raise hands, to interact," said Dr. Edward F. Zigler, Sterling professor of psychology at Yale University. "These concepts are very complicated for 3-year-olds. They can't learn them at home because there are not enough children."

HISTORICALLY, no one has ranked lower in the education hierarchy than nursery school teachers. Their job is poor in pay and no better in terms of respect.

They are a ready target for jokes. "People say to me, 'Do you come home with sand on your clothes?' " Mrs. Heffner said.

Mrs. Gottfried added, "They ask, 'Do you get glue all over yourself?' "

But for their 18 students, these teachers play a role that can never be matched by anyone else in the entire course of their schooling: they are the children's first teachers.

With the close of this school year, Mrs. Heffner and Mrs. Gottfried will complete their ninth year as a teaching team at the Temple Emanu-El Nursery School and Kindergarten in Manhattan.

Close friends in and out of the classroom and mothers of teenagers, they have the task of guiding 3-year-olds in their first steps into the larger world outside their homes.

"The rules can be very different at home," said Mrs. Heffner who, like Mrs. Gottfried, is 47. "At home you don't have to share."

There are no textbooks at this entry level of education, no rigid curriculum. Teaching is an interplay between the values and judgment of the teachers and the curiosity and enthusiasm of the children.

There is pressure from parents. "Many are pushing for academics," Mrs. Heffner said. "We get a lot of questions about reading. Some children have workbooks at home for learning letters and numbers. The pressure on children is tremendous. I want to say to the parents, 'Relax: I never walked into a party and heard someone say, what did you get in English?' "

IN MRS. HEFFNER and Mrs. Gottfried's classroom, where a third adult, Marcie Cline, an aide, is also present, the big subjects are getting along with other people and making friends.

"The children are learning social skills they will need all their lives: how to share, cooperate, deal with different personalities," Mrs. Heffner said. "When you are 12 years old, you don't get a class in sharing."

At the same time, the outside world is always present.

"Beauty and the Beast" and "101 Dalmations" are popular topics for discussion. The week before the birthday of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the teachers told the children about the influence of Dr. King and another important figure in the civil rights movement, Rosa Parks. On the day of the New York primary last month, the children visited voting booths downstairs in the synagogue.

"They went to the back of the machines to see where the vote goes," Mrs. Gottfried said.

Parents know little of this. For them, nursery school is like a magical mystery tour. There are occasional clues of life in the classroom, like a drawing or a decorated shoe box, but never a full picture.

When a curious parent inquires, "What did you do in school today," the 3-year-old may reply, "Nothing."

THE TEACHERS understand parents' bewilderment. "I used to teach second grade," Mrs. Heffner said. "The children had chapters to read and test scores. There was proof of what was happening."

Mrs. Gottfried said: "Here we ask parents to trust us, to believe in us. It is hard for them."

In many ways the teachers are opposites, a concept that they teach in class. Mrs. Heffner is large and easygoing. Mrs. Gottfried is small and less lenient.

Their duties are interchangeable, except that Mrs. Heffner plays the piano and Mrs. Gottfried, who describes herself as "in charge of bugs and blood," takes care of pest control and scraped knees.

The month of May is bittersweet. "The beginning and the end of the school year are very hard," Mrs. Heffner said. "I feel sad. We have seen these children grow into very different people since September."

She drew a deep breath. "We talk a lot about separation, but we ourselves don't separate very well."

Some children came to school last fall in diapers. A few cried every morning, clinging to parents' legs, too terrified to take the long walk of independence into the classroom. But within weeks, the diapers and tears were gone.

"By Thanksgiving, we were rolling," Mrs. Gottfried said. "Peer pressure took care of the diapers."

THE CHILDREN were beginning to catch on to the idea of civilized behavior. They knew not to dive into the cookies at snacktime until everyone was served, to help themselves to tissues if they had a drippy nose, and to heed the sign in the bathroom showing two hands above the words "Wash Me."

And they had learned to hang up their jackets when they arrived and to put them on by themselves when it was time to go home.

"It's a sheer necessity," Mrs. Gottfried said. "If Nancy and I had to put on 18 coats, we would never get out the door. When you expect this of children, they rise to the occasion."

Still, lapses occur. Just the other day, the bathroom sink overflowed. Two boys had been conducting an experiment: they wanted to determine the maximum number of paper towels that could be stuffed into the drain. When water began pouring onto the floor, they retreated to the library corner.

Mrs. Heffner glared at them. "It started by itself," one of the culprits volunteered.

The teachers' affection for the children is evident. They hug them and pick them up, and there is always a child in their laps at story time.

Even so, they are not unhappy when noon arrives and the children go home. Mrs. Heffner explained: "People say to me, 'How do you do this every day? You must be so exhausted, so drained by the time you go home.' "

Her face brightened. "Not at all. These are not my own children."

Farm-to-market proves to be road to riches

By Beverly Bundy
N.Y. Times News Service

FREDERICKSBURG — The Varneys decided seven years ago that life on green acres was the place to be. So, leaving the hectic pace and humidity of Houston behind, the thirtysomething couple loaded up and moved to this tiny town in the Hill Country.

Their plan was a simple one. Sylvia was to operate a bed and breakfast, and Bill went to work for a local nursery. A simple, quiet life in the rolling verdant hills of Central Texas. But success was lurking in the German-accented streets of this town of 7,000.

After a six-month stint with the nursery, Bill decided to strike out on his own. Just a little business of growing herbs and mixing up a few specialty food items for mail order, nothing big, nothing splashy. A dried salsa mix here, a dried dip mixture there. A few jellies, a few jams.

Seven years later, Fredericksburg Herb Farm employs 16 people. Its products are carried in the Nature Co. catalog, and discussions are under way with Williams-Sonoma for inclusion in its Chambers catalog.

Two of those 16 employees work solely as engravers, etching the company's name on vinegar, bath and scent containers. Far past the dip-mix stage, the herb farm took first place in the Savory Condiment category at the 1991 International Fancy Food and Confection Show in New York for its wine vinegar and herb combinations.

Running a successful business in the country is not far afield from the rat race of the big city. Phones, FAXes and Federal Express bring orders and demands to the quiet streets of Fredericksburg as quickly as to Houston.

And despite his plans for a laid-back life, Bill Varney is up to his neck in the sweet smell of success.

To order a copy of the Fredericksburg Herb Farm mail-order catalog, call (800) 284-0526 or write to Drawer 927, Fredericksburg, Texas 78524-0927.

Volunteering may be option

NEW YORK (AP) — With summer vacation just around the corner, teens who are too old to go to camp — but too young for a paid job — might consider volunteer work.

"150 Ways Teens Can Make a Difference" by Marian Salzman and Teresa Reisgies (Peterson's Guides, $7.95 soft-cover) is designed both as a source of ideas and as a guide to volunteer employment.

Among the book's suggestions: work at a local recycling center, park, zoo or animal shelter; volunteer at a children's hospital or a rehabilitation center; coach a basketball team or teach a swimming class.

The book includes profiles of teens who have successfully matched volunteer activities with their personalities and interests. There is also a state-by- state listing of not-for-profit organizations that encourage teen volunteerism.

Companies listen to young conservationists

By Jeff Barnard

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Kids' concerns about the environment are beginning to show up in their parents' shopping baskets, and the marketplace smells the blossoming of a new trend.

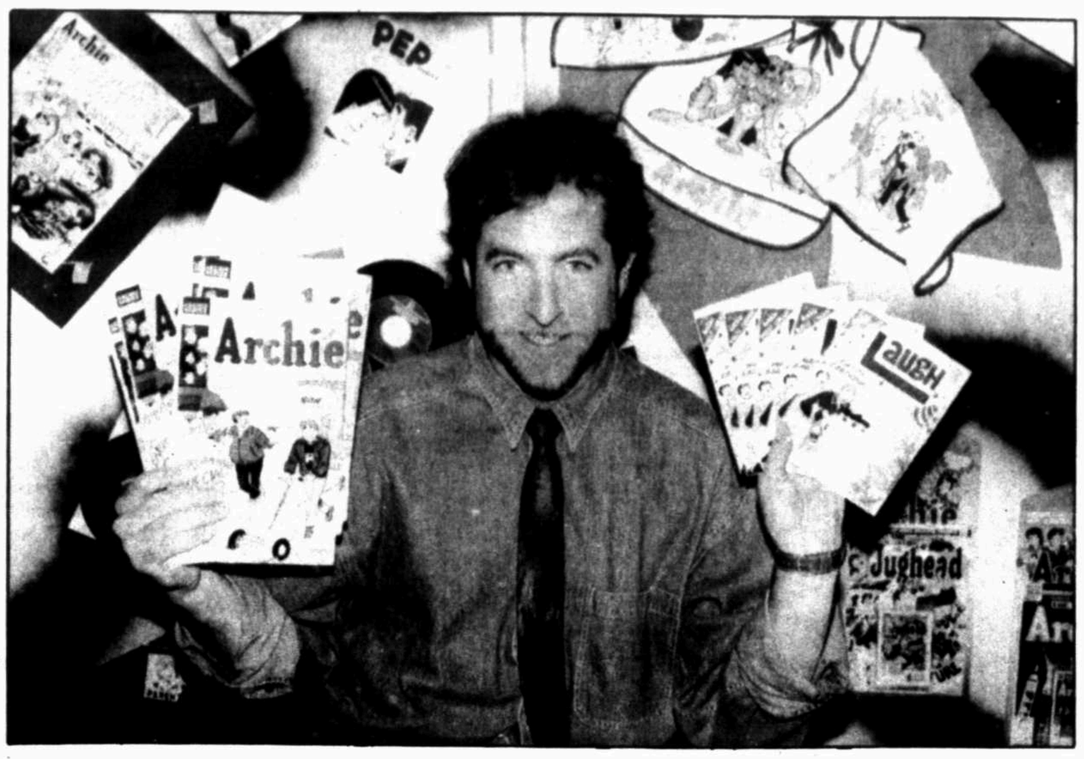
To cultivate favor with young conservationists, businesses are using recycled products, forming alliances with environmental groups, and trying to understand kids like never before.

After kids wrote in telling the company to save trees, Archie Comics in Mamaroneck, N.Y., began printing its strips on paper made completely from recycled magazines, said David Silberkleit, vice president of marketing.

"That's who we listen to here," he said.

Archie also ran a special environmental issue, featuring Archie and Jughead's misadventures with composting. It's too early to see a payback on the bottom line, but Silberkleit said the return in good will has been big.

"I know I'm contributing to recycling," said Cosimo Sherman, 13, an Archie reader from Los Angeles. "When I bought it, I wouldn't be wasting any paper at all. No trees would be cut down for that comic."



AP Laserphoto

David Silberkleit, vice president of marketing for Archie Comics, holds up new issues whose inside pages are printed on recycled paper. The publisher decided to use recycled paper in response to young conservationists who wrote telling them to save trees. "That's who we listen to here," said Silberkleit.

AMY INGALLS, 13, another Archie reader from Brooklyn, Conn., frequently tells her mom and dad which cereal or hair spray to buy.

"If it says it can be recycled, I tell my father he should buy it so he can recycle it," she said. "As far as like hair spray cans and stuff, I try to buy the non-aerosol kind and the pump so it will be better for the ozone layer."

"Clearly, children are having an impact, and a growing impact, on their parents' purchasing because of environmental information," said Anthony Casale, president of Environmental Research Associates in Princeton, N.J. "This is something that is definitely not going to go away."

Environmental Research's sister company, INFOCUS Environmental, is interviewing 1,000 kids and their parents and 300 teachers to figure out what it takes to appeal to their green side.

In a recent survey by Environmental Research, parents said they didn't buy Dove Bars because their children said the ice cream used too much packaging. But the parents did buy Arm & Hammer detergent because their kids told them it was nontoxic.

"We decided this is something we needed to know more about," Casale said.

Some toy makers tried a green hook after the 20th anniversary of Earth Day in 1990 created an explosion of environmental consciousness, particularly among children. A few succeeded, such as Hasbro's GI Joe Eco-warriors, but many found it takes more than an environmental theme to sell a toy.

Playmates Toys Inc. of La Mirada, Calif., dropped its Toxic Crusaders action figures when sales didn't measure up.

"I thought it would strike a responsive chord, but I guess the chord was not as responsive as we thought it would be," said President Richard Sallis.

MATTEL IS taking an indirect approach. Last year, it created a new position of vice president of environmental affairs.

"Kids are telling us they want certain things," said Maki Papavasiliou, whose new responsibilities include reviewing Mattel's packaging, products and manufacturing plants at home and abroad to be sure they meet environmental standards. Mattel also had drafted an environmental mission statement.

"We are convinced that good business and being sensitive to environmental issues are perfectly compatible," he said.

The toy maker also plans to sponsor programs to teach children to be good environmental consumers.

"These are groups that will indirectly spread the environmental message for Mattel," he said. "Research out there shows some healthy skepticism on the part of the consumer public to environmental claims made by manufacturers.

"Going out there and waving a green flag in many ways is not the best way of delivering a message about our concern about the environment. So we want to do it in cooperation with a respected, recognized organization that has environmental interests."

'Clearly, children are having an impact, and a growing impact, on their parents' purchasing because of environmental information. This is something that is definitely not going to go away.'

— Anthony Casale
president, Environmental Research Associates

THE HARTMAN Group in Newport Beach, Calif., tells its clients to support school programs, youth environmental groups and environmental projects, and to buy ads on environmental shows on TV, because that's where kids learn about the environment.

"We find companies are very nervous about moving forward," said Harvey Hartman, whose company sells advice on green marketing. "What I am saying to these companies is, 'If you are not there with this kind of criteria, somebody else is going to be. At the end of the day, you are going to have to have an environmentally sound product just to play in the game.'"

Carl Frankel, editor and publisher of Green MarketAlert, a newsletter out of Bethlehem, Conn., said price, performance and convenience are still the big three factors when it comes to buying a product. But environmental safety is at the top of the second tier of issues.

"The place to sell the environment is to kids," Frankel said. "Kids are really the drivers in significant ways. They are the educators."

Environment influences purchases

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — People want to be more environmentally sensitive when they go to the store, especially if their kids are along to nag them, marketing surveys show.

In a telephone survey of 1,006 adults last October, 70 percent told the Hartman Environmental Report that their environmental concern had increased in the past two years. And 67 percent said their environmental activities had increased.

The number of people who said they would switch brands to get a recyclable container went from 54 percent in 1988 to 80 percent in 1990. But only 50 percent said they actually bought more environmental products.

In another telephone survey, this one of 1,000 adults last December, Environmental Research Associates of Princeton, N.J., found a third of all parents made a purchasing decision based on something their children had said about the environment.

"We know in our polls that people sometimes lie to us," said Anthony M. Casale, president of Environmental Research. "So we said, 'What product?' or 'What manufacturer?' and they were able to tell us."

The Hartman report, by The Hartman Group of Newport Beach, Calif., said the typical "green" buyer is a well-educated woman with children.

The report said 520 green products were introduced in 1990, accounting for 9 percent of all new products, compared with 262 products, or 4.5 percent, in 1989.

Central Texas' wild animal park may be world's largest

AUSTIN (AP) — Ray Kallus could be a modern-day Noah.

Two-by-two, the executive director of the Texas Safari animal theme park has been collecting rare and exotic animals.

The only flood he's hoping for, however, is one of visitors to the park in Clifton, 35 miles west of Waco.

"If you pull up your RV you're part of a real life wild kingdom," Kallus said.

The Texas Safari is a 3,000-acre drive-through zoo, featuring more than 4,000 animals, most of which roam the property along with tourists.

Early this year, Safari owner A.C. Parsons gave Kallus $1 million to increase the park's stock with endangered animals or those already considered extinct in other countries.

But one of each wasn't enough. Kallus and Parsons decided to get a male and a female.

"We're going to try to breed these animals back into prominence," Kallus said.

On Tuesday, the park received a male bongo, once considered among the rarest zoo animals and still thought to be among the most beautiful. A full-grown bongo can weigh more than 1,000 pounds.

By adding the bongo, the Safari has completed its collection of spiral-horned antelope, joining the nyala, greater kudu, sitatunga, giant eland and nilgai.

"We're probably closing in on everything we wanted," Kallus said. "Now we can concentrate our efforts on what we wanted to do — getting them in here, taking care of and raising them."

Kallus said he hopes a female bongo, which already has been purchased, can join the park by the end of the summer.

"We probably have one of best facilities in the world for taking care of these animals. The animals are allowed to roam free," he said.

The park has no shortage on space or animals. In fact, the 11-year-old Safari already calls itself the world's largest wild animal park.

Although it is difficult to verify such a claim, several nationally prominent zoo officials have been impressed by the Safari's collection.

"They do have a good-sized collection. It sounds like they have a real nice park," said San Diego Zoo spokeswoman Georgeanne Irvine.

The famous San Diego Zoo has about the same number of animals as the Safari, but they are kept on 100 acres. Their drive-through counterpart, the San Diego Wild Life Animal Park, has 2,200 acres.

Robert Wagner, executive director of the 160-member American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums, said he knew of no park larger than the Texas Safari. "Boy, that's quite a large herd," he said.

The park's size is shared with its visitors, too. Patrons are invited to park their recreational vehicles and spend an evening in the wild at the Safari's RV park, which Kallus said also is the world's largest.

Kallus attributes most of his collecting success to his South Texas source, but won't give his name. He said the man, who wishes to remain anonymous, is a wealthy South Texas animal lover who is not a celebrity, "but you'd recognize his name."

With one bongo on the facility and another on order, Kallus' top goals are virtually completed. However, he still has one personal wish.

"It's just a commercial thing," he said, "but I'd like a white tiger."

Or two.

Edmonton is vacation paradise for shoppers

By Jennifer Merin

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Yo, parents: If you have trouble talking recalcitrant teen-agers into a family vacation, this is one destination they might glom on to.

True, it's several hundred miles north of western Montana, smack in the middle of nowhere, but it's almost wall-to-wall mall. Edmonton, with 854,000 people in the metropolitan area, claims 20 major shopping malls and more square feet of retail space than any other city in Canada.

Best, biggest and most famous is the West Edmonton Mall, a conspicuous consumer showcase which if measured in city blocks would sprawl over 24 of them. No wonder "The Guinness Book of Records" calls it the world's largest shopping complex. It's so big there are guided tours, and if you want you can rent wheels to get around.

In addition to more than 800 shops and 110 eateries, it has 19 cinemas; five amusement areas, including the world's largest indoor roller coaster; an indoor ice rink, where the NHL's Edmonton Oilers practice; miniature golf course, modeled after the famed Pebble Beach, Calif., layout; wave pool and bungee jump.

This mall, one of Alberta's major tourist attractions, was developed in three phases by four Ghermezian brothers. The first phase, fairly standard in size and concept, was completed in 1981. Phase two added shops and a king-sized carousel and other amusement rides. Phase three brought more shops and the water park, which in addition to the wave pool, includes a submarine ride through an "ocean" full of sharks, porpoises and other aquatic life. Imaginative, to say the least, since Edmonton is in the middle of Canada's prairie.

FANTASY IS a major component of the West Edmonton Mall. Consider the Fantasyland Hotel — yes, you can shop 'til you drop asleep at the mall. Theme rooms feature beds built into railroad cars, the cabs of tractor-trailer rigs and Victorian coaches. Lighting can suggest Hollywood sets or Arabian nights.

But the key question for shoppers is: Just how good are the goods at West Edmonton Mall? The answer: First-rate.

The range of shops promises a broad selection of quality Canadian and international merchandise, including clothing and personal and home accessories for a wide range of budgets and lifestyles. And U.S. citizens will find their dollars still have buying power in Canada, especially in Alberta which has no sales tax. Furthermore, the mall offers its own Mall World Plus credit card with free membership for the first year, an automatic credit line of $1,000 and discounts in many mall shops and restaurants.

WEST EDMONTON Mall has a dozen department stores. Best are Eaton's and The Bay, both Canadian chains, and Marks & Spencer of England.

Mall maps, free at information kiosks, will help prevent you from getting lost or disoriented. Guided tours give a good overview for visitors who have too little time to learn mall logistics or for those who plan to spend several days really scouring the place.

To get around quickly, hire a rickshaw or rent a scooter.

For campers, pitching tents just got easier

By Barbara Lloyd
N.Y. Times News Service

Pitching a tent can be frustrating for seasoned and neophyte campers alike. Figuring out what goes where on the first camping trip of the year can tax all but the most mechanically minded.

North Face, an outdoor equipment manufacturer in Berkeley, Calif., has addressed this problem with its No Hitch Pitch system. Bob Howe, the company's equipment designer, developed the system, which was introduced last year and revamped to accommodate new tent designs. It works on the notion that the poles stay attached to the tent, even after the tent has been folded and put away.

The pre-attached aluminum poles are threaded through a row of rings on the outside of the tent. The rings replace internal cloth sleeves, which are found in more conventional tent designs.

To set up the tent, spread out the floor section on the ground. Then snap each pole together, extending it to its full length. (The poles are one piece but collapsible.) The pole is already threaded through the rings and attached to one corner, so all you need to do is insert the other end of the pole into the opposite corner. As you raise the tent, each pole is flexible enough to bend into an arclike shape over the ceiling.

"It's our goal to make tents easier to use, and easier to remember how to use," Howe said. "By leaving the poles attached, the idea was to make something a person could use during one or two trips in a summer, then come back a year later and not have to remember how it goes."

North Face adapted the system this year to its Oval-25, a four-season tent that can be used in snow or rain, on hot days or cold. The Oval-25 is supported by five poles, using a partial No Hitch Pitch system — only two of the poles are unattached.

For information on tents with the No Hitch Pitch system, call the company's consumer services at (510) 527-9700.

Fiesta Texas is new theme park

Associated Press

Fiesta Texas, a 200-acre musical theme park, is the newest attraction in San Antonio.

There is music all day in seven theaters throughout the park, which celebrates the state's major cultures — Western, Hispanic and German — and rock'n'roll.

Crackaxle Canyon is a 1920s boom town, with horses, Model Ts, cowboys and oilfield roustabouts. Los Festivales draws heavily on the Mexican-Spanish heritage of the region and features Tejano and Conjunto performers in its Teatro Fiesta. Spassburg ("spass" means "fun" in German) has the Sangerfest Halle, a huge theater-restaurant in the beer hall tradition. And it's always circa 1950 in Rockville, with sock hops, pep rallies and other artifacts of high school life of that era. You might cruise in one of Motorama's electric cars, booming with rock'n'roll soundtracks.

Planning in advance will reduce panic of power failure

Associated Press

A power blackout can come at any time. That's why it's wise to have a good battery-operated radio and at least one flashlight — with a supply of fresh batteries for both — available for emergency use.

Here's what else you can do:

■ Power failure in one or two rooms is often caused by an overloaded circuit. Turn off a few lights and appliances on that circuit and replace the fuse or reset the circuit breaker in your home's central power panel. If the fuse blows or the circuit breaker trips again, there is a short circuit.

■ Examine all electrical cords for loose connections, frayed sections or defective plugs. If you find nothing, turn off or disconnect all appliances and lights and replace the fuse or reset the circuit breaker once more.

■ If the fuse blows or the circuit breaker trips again there is a short circuit in the house wiring. Call an electrician.

■ If the house wiring is okay, an appliance is causing the problem. Plug in one appliance at a time until you find the one causing the problem. Repair or replace it.

■ If neighboring houses are also blacked out, the problem probably lies with your electric power company. In case of a full power failure, turn off the appliances in the house to avoid overloading the circuits when power is restored. Leave one light or radio on to alert you when service resumes. Wait about 10 minutes before turning on other appliances.

■ Open the refrigerator and freezer as little as possible during the blackout. Food should stay frozen for up to 48 hours in a closed, fully-loaded freezer.

If a blackout occurs in freezing weather:

■ Close off all but the most essential and best-insulated rooms.

■ Build a slow-burning fire in a fireplace or stove.

■ Open all the faucets and let the water run slowly to keep the pipes from freezing.

■ If the power is likely to be off for a lengthy period in freezing weather, bottle a supply of drinking water. Then fill a bathtub with water for flushing and other household uses. To prevent bursting plumbing pipes, drain the main water system in the house. Generally, if you want the system drained (before going on a long winter trip, for instance), you should have a plumber do it. However, in an emergency, you can do the job yourself. Here's how:

■ Turn off the main water supply valve.

■ Stop the water supply to the water heater by closing the valve on the pipe leading into the heater.

■ If you have a gas heater, turn off the gas cock. If your water heater is electric, switch off its circuit breaker or remove the fuse that controls the heater's circuit.

■ If your heating system uses a boiler, shut off the inlet valve near the boiler on a pipe leading into it. Then flush all the toilets in the house and open all the faucets.

■ If your house is heated by a hot water system, open the valves on all the radiators (if they have individual valves). Then open the air vents on one or more baseboard or other type radiators on the highest floor in the house. Hold a cup under each vent to catch any water that may spurt out.

■ Let the water in the boiler cool. (Check the temperature gauge.) Then attach a hose to the drain valve at the base of the boiler and lead it outdoors or to a drain lower than the boiler. Open the valve and let the water flow out.

■ Attach a hose to the draincock of the water heater and direct the water into a drain or outdoors away from the house. CAUTION: The water will be hot.

■ Open the draincock on the main water supply line to allow the rest of the water to drain out. If your water comes from a well, switch off the pump and drain the above-ground pump lines and storage tank.

■ Bail and sponge out toilet bowls. Pour half non-toxic antifreeze-half water into every toilet bowl, sink, basin, tub, shower and washing machine.

Shades let sunshine in, keep it out

N.Y. Times News Service

After years of use, window shades and Venetian blinds may refuse to stay up or refuse to come down. Here are some common problems and tips on how to solve them:

WINDOW SHADES

■ Weak rewind — Roll the shade part way down and remove it from its brackets. Rewind the shade on its roller by hand and return it to the brackets. If the tension is still too slack, repeat the process. If you can't correct the problem with this method, the spring may be broken. Replace the roller.

■ Binding — If a shade binds, it's probably because the roller fits too tightly between the brackets. Move the brackets further apart. Or, if the brackets are mounted inside the window casing, remove the round end pin and its cap from the roller. Trim the end of the roller with a fine-tooth handsaw.

■ Falling — If a shade repeatedly falls out of its brackets, the brackets are too far apart. If they are mounted outside the window casing, move one of them in a little closer. If they are mounted inside the window casing, remove one of the brackets and put a thin piece of wood under it to decrease the spacing.

■ Wobbling — A bent roller pin will make the shade wobble when operated. Straighten the pin with pliers. If the pin is dusty or dirty, clean it with sandpaper.

■ Failure to catch — If a shade will not stay in place when you pull it down, the pawl — a small lever located near the flat end pin — is not catching. Look for dirt, rust or an accumulation of threads that may be preventing the pawl from catching. Clean the area and lubricate it with graphite so the pawl can pivot freely.

VENETIAN BLINDS

After years of use, the ladder tapes and cords on Venetian blinds become frayed and may eventually break. Repair kits containing new tape, cord and knobs are widely available, but be sure the kit is right for your blinds; some blinds have narrow slats and use string instead of tape.

Here's how to install new tapes and cords on a typical blind:

(NOTE: Because models vary, always use the old tapes and cords as guides when installing the new ones.)

■ Open the blind and let it hang to its full length. Then remove the ends of the bottom bar and slide the bottom off. This will expose the metal clips that hold the ends of the lift cord. Some blinds have a one-piece bottom bar with slots for the cord ends and clips that cover the tape ends.

■ Cut off the knots to free the lift cord from the clips.

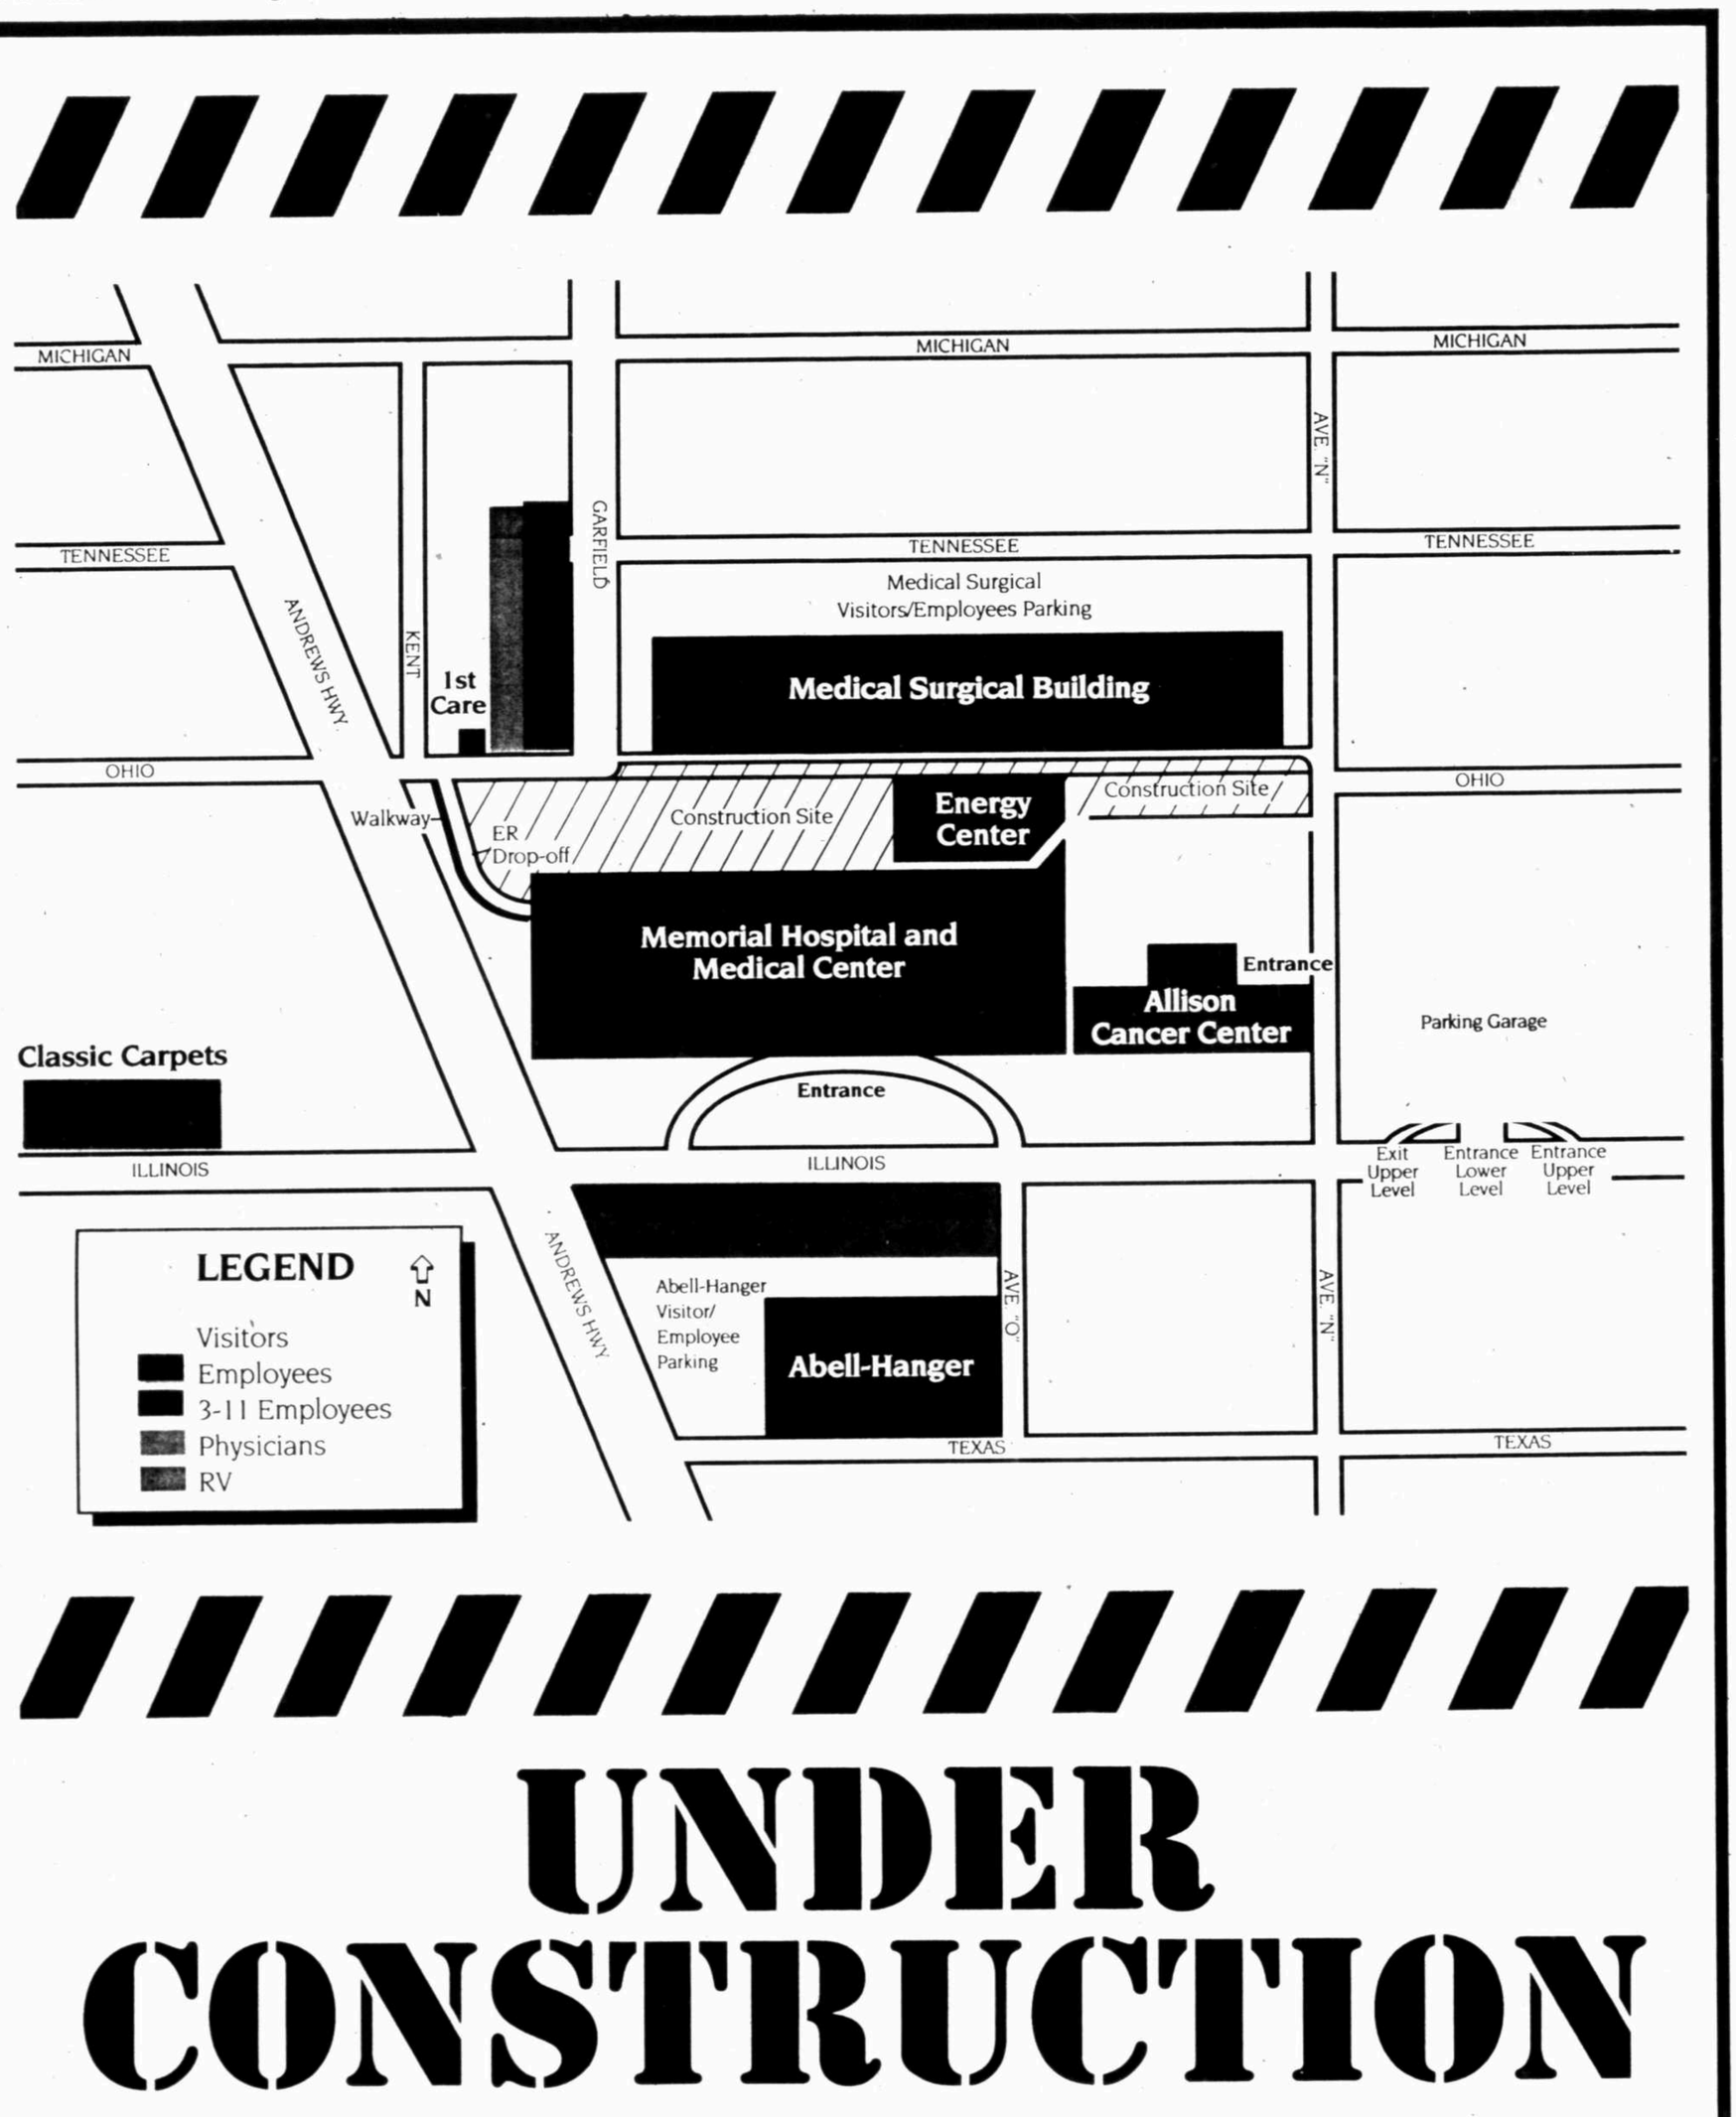
■ Pull the lift cord so its ends come up to — but don't pass through — the headbox. Then temporarily knot the ends to keep the old cord from falling out. — Slide out the slats.

■ Remove the tapes from the tilt tube (the rod inside the headbox) and attach new ones. The tape may slide onto a hook or be moored with a clip. Fold the ends of the new tape around the hook or clip and staple them in the same manner as the old tapes.

■ If the blind has a tilt cord, untie or cut the bottom knots, remove the knobs and pull out the cord from above. Cut a new cord to the same length, thread it along the path of the old one, then attach the knobs.

■ Install the new lift cord, using the old cord as a guide.

■ Reinsert the slats. Run the lift cord through the slat holes and between the tape rungs. Trim the cord and tape the ends if necessary. Put the cord ends through the clips and knot them. Tuck in the tapes and slide the bottom bar back on.



UNDER CONSTRUCTION

This week, at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, we're starting an exciting, two-year expansion project that will expand our emergency and diagnostic services to better meet your health care needs.

It will also improve the availability of visitor parking. We have dedicated the entire parking garage, located at the corner of Illinois and Avenue "N" as visitor parking, in addition to the parking lot directly north of the Allison Cancer Center (see map above). No longer will there be any visitor parking north of the Hospital.

The only other change is the Illinois entrance to the Hospital— the one with the circular, tree-lined drive—will become the main entrance for all patients and guests. If you take the old exit on the north side of the hospital, you will find yourself right in the middle of our construction project.

We're excited about growing to serve our community and we appreciate your patience as we work through this process.

Give us jobs

A.D. Stuart the Cisco roughneck who has been criss-crossing the state gathering signatures for a petition to send to Congress on behalf of the working people of the oilpatch says he now has 2,000 signatures from Houston to Oklahoma, and expected to add another 2,000 this week. Those interested in signing the petition which asks Congress to help restore some of the 300,000 jobs lost by disincentives in the oil industry can receive a copy by calling Stuart at (817) 442-3453 in Cisco.

Cancer case

A $21.5 million claim against Texaco has been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court. The award was to a Wichita Kansas woman whose husband died of leukemia after being exposed to benzene. The wife claimed Texaco and other benzene producers failed to warn him of the cancer risk to benzene exposure. She said he was exposed to high levels of benzene while teaching a course on how to test for water and sediment in ship engine oils.

Rig tally mixed

An Exeter rig making hole for Enron in Eddy County. Rig counts for the U.S. and the Permian Basin were mixed for the week ended May 15.

In the Permian Basin, according to Baker Hughes Inc., the count inched up one to 82.

Baker reported that the U.S. rig count was sharply higher for the week, rising 17 to 652, the third consecutive increase the count has posted.

A year ago, the Basin rig count was 98 while the national tally was 818.

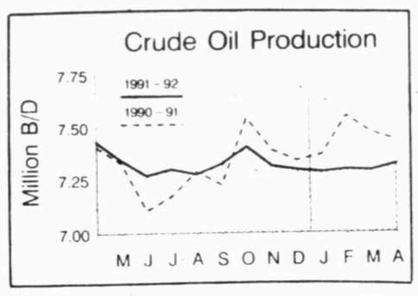
Drilling lag impacts production, imports

■ API statistics indicate flagging completions contribute to U.S. production-import gap.

Staff report

The gap between imported oil and production continued to widen in April as total U.S. imports jumped 7.9 percent and production dropped 1.3 percent, according to the American Petroleum Institute's Monthly Statistical Report.

The drop in production amounted to 113,000 barrels daily of crude oil, and was smaller than previous declines because the drop off of Alaskan production, which had been running 90,000 barrels daily, flattened off in April, says the Report.



The lower 48 states, however, fell 2 percent from last April and continued to indicate a decline rate of 150-200,000 barrels daily.

The API publication, which is a widely accepted standard for monthly oil statistics, noted that the fall off in production

Independent is top U.S. driller

■ Union Pacific Resources has been operating over 30 rigs per month.

N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH, Texas — In the past two months, the most prolific driller of new oil and gas wells in the United States hasn't been Exxon, Mobil, Chevron or another of the giant oil companies.

Surprisingly, the No. 1 driller has been Union Pacific Resources Co. of Fort Worth, an independent oil and gas producer that is dwarfed in size by the big firms known as the "majors."

Union Pacific Resources averaged operating 36 drilling rigs in April, putting it far ahead of the second most active driller, Mobil.

The Fort Worth company likewise was the nation's No. 1 driller in March, when it operated an average of 32 rigs.

The drilling activity is compiled monthly by Smith International, a Houston oilfield services firm.

Analysts say Union Pacific Resources, which employs 1,000 at its headquarters in downtown Fort Worth, tops the list primarily for two reasons.

First, the company has been drilling like crazy in the Austin Chalk of central and south Texas, said John Parry, associate director of research for John S. Herold, an oil consulting firm in Greenwich, Conn.

Second, the major oil companies have reduced drilling dramatically in the United States as they shift their exploration overseas, where the chance of large discoveries is much greater.

The fact that Union Pacific Resources tops the drilling chart "certainly tells me that the majors are looking elsewhere" for oil, said Joseph Riva, an oil specialist for the Congressional Research Service in Washington.

U.S. drilling activity reached a 52-year-low in April as a result of moderate oil and gas prices and growing exploration opportunities overseas.

But Union Pacific Resources recently has increased its exploration and development activity and is operating 52 drilling rigs at a variety of locations, said Bill Pollard, the company's manager of U.S. exploration.

Twenty-eight of the 52 rigs are in the Austin Chalk of central Texas, where Union Pacific Resources has enjoyed exceptional success in drilling horizontal wells.

Public CNG station planned

■ Midland joins a growing network of public CNG refueling stations as Kent Oil Co. plans facility.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Midland is set to get its first compressed natural gas (CNG) refueling station sometime this year.

Kent Oil Co. announced this week that it will install a public refueling station at one of its Midland locations before the end of the year. The move adds another link to the CNG network, as Midland joins Odessa, Lubbock, Amarillo and Abilene as West Texas cities with public refueling facilities.

The facility will be installed by CNG Services Inc. of Midland, which installed facilities at Amarillo, Lubbock and Odessa.

"Alternate fuels are inevitable," said Bill Kent, president of Kent Oil Co., "and we didn't want to be a Johnny-come-lately."

Kent said his company had been involved in a five year plan that looked at a number of alternative fuel options and that CNG had seemed to them the most likely alternative fuel candidate.

He noted that the company would start with one location initially to get its feet wet, but would expand to other locations as the need for CNG fuel expanded locally. Kent Oil Co. now operates 23 stores located in Midland, Odessa, Monahans, Kermit and Big Lake.

Kent said the facility's location would be announced after a survey to determine the heaviest concentration of interested fleets. "While there may be some individuals to convert vehicles to CNG, we see fleets as our potential customers."

He explained that even if fleets installed their own refueling station, there would still be a need for public refueling stations as a matter of convenience for vehicles that did not want to go back to the company yard for refueling.

Local operator touts offshore

■ Weary of stripper production and ready for a risk-reward challenge, a small Midland operator tries offshore.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Offshore in the Gulf of Mexico has been primarily the domain of majors and large independents, but one Midland operator says it may be time for more independents to "test the waters."

"It makes a lot of sense — at least to us," says Steve Goulon, president of SMC Oil & Gas Corp. The company has drilled its first offshore well in the inland waters of South Louisiana and may have found the reward he sought.

Large coalbed strike tested

Staff report

Anadarko Petroleum Corp. has announced a significant coalbed methane discovery in Rio Blanco County, Colorado.

The Houston-based company reported the discovery in two wells in its Pinyon Ridge prospect. The Pinyon Ridge A-1 tested for a final average rate of 959 Mcfd and 13 barrels of condensate through a one inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 522 psi. The discovery encountered 33 feet of net coal in perforations between 5,501 and 5,772 feet in the Williams Fork coals.

The Pinyon Ridge B-1 was completed in perforations at 6,157 to 6,468 feet, and is currently shut-in awaiting evaluation. Anadarko owns 58 percent of the prospect and Texaco owns 42 percent in an area of mutual interest covering 33,100 acres in Rio Blanco and Moffat counties. Four offset wells are set to be drilled in 1992.

U.S. must diversify world energy sources

Pitts

Conoco has just released its in-house publication, World Energy Outlook Through 2000, and it has some interesting thoughts about managing our energy needs for the remainder of this decade.

The 12-page report concludes that economic growth will cause the demand for energy to increase throughout the rest of the decade, but notes that continued low-cost fossil fuel will be available. Oil prices are predicted to average $24 per barrel for the second half of the decade, but could go as high as $30 in the event of a supply disruption.

The report further concludes that growth in energy demand for the remainder of the decade will increase at the rate of about 1.5 percent per year, with oil and gas making up about two-thirds of the demand. It further notes that most of the oil to meet the increased energy demand will come from the Mideast.

In this country, Conoco proposes we manage our growing energy demand through strong energy conservation measures, fuel diversification to clean-burning alternative energy such as propane and natural gas and opening of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to exploration. But its most interesting proposal deals with international exploration and development.

Conoco explains in the 12-page publication that it is incumbent upon the U.S. to avoid excessive dependence upon Mideast oil and that the nation should adopt policies and incentives to encourage the diversification of crude oil supplies.

The first reaction of some politicians and independents may be to ridicule the notion of giving major oil companies or any oil company tax incentives to look for oil in Russia or Argentina. Independents will no doubt point out that there is pitiful little tax incentive to look for oil in this country, without giving it to look for oil in someone else's country.

But the reasoning behind such a proposal is not without merit. Before being dismissed as a mere ploy by major oil companies to grab a juicy tax break, all implications should be considered carefully.

As Conoco points out, U.S. energy demand is growing, dependence upon foreign oil is inevitable, and excessive dependence upon Mideast oil is not wise. "Middle East politics have been the major source of oil price shocks since World War II, and will continue to have the greatest potential to destabilize oil markets," the report explains.

But price shocks, like the run-up to $30 during the Gulf conflict, do not tell the whole story or the real need for diversifying oil supplies from the Gulf. Given the military implications of defending Mideast supplies, Saudi Arabian oil is the most expensive oil in the world. Desert Storm blasted the myth of "cheap foreign oil" out of the water.

Conoco notes that the demise of communism has opened new doors to foreign investment, while other nationalistic nations have also opened their door to foreign investment. The company points out that it would be in the best interest of the nation for U.S. oil companies to explore and develop oil re-

Gemini Engine of Corpus Christi has entered the CNG market, offering a new compressor for CNG vehicle refueling, as well as a complete package of components for refueling stations.

Gemini Engine offers CNG compressor

Staff report

The compressed natural gas industry will move forward with compressors and one Texas compressor company that is becoming a leader in the industry is Gemini Engine Co. of Corpus Christi.

"By providing a complete package of components for refueling stations, the company has provided equipment for 11 of the 35 refueling stations in Texas, including the Energas refueling system installed by CNG Services last year in Odessa," says Lee Levisay, area sales manager for Gas Compressors Inc., a sister company that handles after sales service.

"Since we're already building compressors, and we have the service network in place, we developed a compressor that can go up to about 4,000 pounds per square inch," said Levisay.

The compressors can be custom designed for the client with applications up to 170 horse power for the Gemini compressor or from 125 horsepower and up on the Ariel compressor. They can be made for slow-fill or fast-fill.

A unit of Lantana Co., Gemini has been building compressors since 1963, and in addition to developing compressors, the company develops complete refueling stations.

OFFSHORE: Lures Midland independent

(From 1F)

Goulon listed his reasons for looking offshore as: higher reward, increasing onshore costs, more availability of capital for offshore projects.

"With oil prices depressed in the third and fourth quarters of 1991 and the first quarter of 1992, we saw the cost of operating stripper wells getting higher and higher, and it was getting more difficult to operate stripper production at a profit," said Coulon.

While the risks of offshore wells is high, so is the reward, notes the Midland operator, who adds that this makes it more attractive to capital. "When I surveyed the industry, I saw that the smart money was going overseas to Alaska and offshore, in search of fields with significant reserves."

In terms of geology, technology and expense it is a massive undertaking, but with the reserves at hand, it is a risk both the company and its investors are willing to take.

The structure SMC is drilling is a complex four-way dip disclosure with East/West trending, 45 degrees down to the North fault, which forms a closure. SMC is playing the upthrown side of the fault block and is looking for gas, oil and condensate reserves in the multi-pay zones of the Miocene sands from 10,250 to 12,000 feet. The oil sands produce oil and gas and the gas sands produce gas and condensate.

Drilling is tricky. The initial well will be a directional well is being drilled to 12,000 ft. and will be a double kick well, forming an "S" shaped hole.

Offsetting the complex geology and tricky drilling are potential reserves of 1,250,000 barrels of oil and 27-30 billion cubic feet of gas per well. He expects the structure will support three to five wells.

At press time the well was being cleaned-up for testing, but initial, informal tests indicate the well might produce 250 barrels per day of condensate and 3-4 million cubic feet per day of gas. A four-point test will be run when the well has been cleaned up.

"This well represents our pioneering or wildcat spirit — our desire to go beyond our traditional operating limits and take a chance," says Coulon.

"After eight years of being an operator, We just felt that now was our time to try the offshore game, where one can still take big risks for big rewards. We feel it has potential for us and for other independents."

LAG: Exploring hard hit

was the result of inactivity in the upstream sector. It noted that total well completions for the year are off 23 percent, with oil completions accounting for 30 percent of the decline and gas completions 20 percent.

Especially hard hit were exploratory completions, which dropped below 1,000 to 840. This is a level about half what it was five years ago. For the past four quarters exploratory (wildcat) completions have averaged only 4,275, a quarter of what they were four years a go and the lowest annual rate in more than 40 years.

Also off was the servicing of producing wells, which was off 22 percent from a year ago and at its lowest level in five years.

On the other side of the coin, imports jumped over a half million barrels daily to nearly 8 million barrels daily. The Report notes that this number is more in line with its estimates of the underlying trend in U.S. import requirements, which it calculates at approximately 7.7 to 7.8 million barrels daily.

API explained that the import increase was mainly crude oil, which exceeded 6 million barrels daily for the first time since last August.

Product imports were also stronger, up 2.8 percent from the previous month.

PITTS: Diversify

serves in these countries to diversify away from the Mideast.

To do this, Conoco says government policy should provide incentive by giving U.S. oil companies more flexibility in crediting foreign taxes against their U.S. tax liability.

Establishing tax policy is a tricky proposition. Knowing what a tax incentive will return in benefit is hard to measure and subject to much liberal-conservative number crunching and interpretation. However, one thing is known: Eliminating a tax incentive can be devastating to an industry as we learned in the Tax Reform Act of 1986, which gave us the Alternative Minimum Tax.

To the contrary, there are few documented cases where a tax incentive has been harmful to an industry or the nation. If there is even an outside chance that such an incentive can speed up the diversification of oil supplies away from an area whose first name is "volatile" it can bring no harm to this nation.

CNG: Midland public station

(From 1F)

Kent said the company had intended to study the alternative fuel issue a bit longer and give the market more time to move one particular fuel to the front, but that competition with CNG had forced him to move his time table up.

"The retail fuel business will be in for some interesting times, as retailers jockey for position and try to find a niche in the emerging industry," said Kent.

Lezlie Forster, president of CNG Services Inc., noted that the CNG market appeared to be taking off in the Permian Basin as more and more fleets study the feasibility of converting to CNG.

Chevron puts $10 billion in venture

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In one of the largest joint ventures between a Western company and a former Soviet republic, Chevron Corp. signed an agreement with Kazakhstan on Monday that envisions producing 700,000 barrels of oil a day and revenues of more than $5 billion a year.

The agreement, signed in Washington by President Nursultan Nazarbayev of Kazakhstan, calls on Chevron to invest $10 billion over 40 years to develop the Tengiz oil field, one of the largest in the world.

"It's huge, it's enormous," said Heather Rowland, senior vice president for Petroleum Industry Research Associates Inc. in New York. "It's about as large as Prudhoe Bay" off Alaska, the largest oil field in the United States.

In another move to increase oil production and exports, Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin signed a resolution Monday raising the prices of oil and natural gas more than fivefold.

The higher prices are expected to send new shock waves through the fragile Russian economy, where factories, farms and transportation have long relied on inexpensive fuel.

Political leaders and officials of economic development agencies say a rise in energy prices is integral to Russia's economic reforms.

Officials from Russia and Kazakhstan, the two largest republics, are looking to Western money and technology to help increase their oil production and exports. Production in the former Soviet Union slipped from 11.7 million barrels a day in 1990 to 10.3 million last year.

The agreement with Kazakhstan could pave the way for more Western investment by showing that a major corporation can, despite the region's instability, reach a major deal.

Chevron executives voiced confidence that Kazakhstan would guarantee the deal even though this new country is just now enacting a constitution.

The agreement ends a tense two years of on-again, off-again negotiations that were often delayed by the collapse of the Soviet Union, U.S. fears of investing in the former communist world and Kazakh fears that Western companies were trying to take advantage of them.

Kazakhstan even had officials from Oman's Ministry of Petroleum and Minerals negotiate on its behalf to make sure it was treated fairly.

Kazakhstan and Chevron will each own 50 percent of the project. But after Chevron pays royalties and taxes on its half of the oil, Kazakhstan will receive about 80 percent of the income.

Kazakhstan's negotiators appear to have driven a tougher deal, with a larger share of the profits.

Although the joint venture plans to begin operating early next year, full production is not expected for at least a decade.

The Tengiz field has an estimated 25 billion barrels of oil, more than Alaska's Prudhoe Bay. But Chevron officials said that because of difficult geological conditions, only 6 billion to 9 billion barrels could be recovered, compared with 9.5 billion at Prudhoe Bay.

Russia lifts controls on natural gas

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia moved closer to world energy markets Monday by allowing domestic oil and gas prices to rise six-fold, although consumers were expected to feel only a 50 percent increase.

The decree by President Boris N. Yeltsin did not directly affect prices of Russia's oil or natural gas exports. It was aimed at cutting state subsidies and bringing prices into line with world demand.

Russian consumers likely will feel a 50 percent rise in energy costs because new taxes will discourage filling stations and producers from raising prices to the 500 percent ceiling now allowed by law, officials said.

Yeltsin had postponed the long-awaited price increase from April to keep gasoline prices down for farmers during the spring planting season.

Russia's minister of economics said the action was an "intermediate step" toward full price deregulation and was planned with advice from the International Monetary Fund, which Russia recently joined.

DRILL: Union Pacific Resources top driller

(From 1F)

It has continued its heavy drilling program in the Austin Chalk because "we're still seeing good economic returns, particularly on our oil prospects," Pollard said.

The company has 480,000 acres under lease in the Chalk, and "we're drilling up about 10,000 acres a month," he said.

In contrast, "many of our competitors are no longer active in the Chalk, or are operating at a much-reduced level," he said.

The company has 293 producing horizontal wells in the Chalk.

In April, its Chalk wells produced $23 million in revenues and 52,300 barrels of daily production from oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids such as ethane, propane and butane. The $23 million in revenues, extrapolated over 12 months, would total $276 million annually.

The Chalk production accounted for 30 percent of the company's exploration and production revenues in April.

Thanks in part to the Chalk, Union Pacific Resources — the energy subsidiary of Union Pacific Corp. of Bethlehem, Pa. — has been among the nation's most profitable independent oil companies.

It reported earnings of $59 million on revenues of $272 million in the first quarter, on the heels of earnings of $207 million on revenues of $1.09 billion for 1991.

Union Pacific Resources also is drilling, primarily for natural gas, in the Green River Basin of Wyoming and the Carthage Field in East Texas.

While gas prices remain low, at around $1.40 per 1,000 cubic feet, the company has benefited from a federal tax credit of 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet allowed for gas produced from the tight-sands reservoirs in both Wyoming and East Texas.

The company also is drilling for oil in Wyoming and Colorado, including high-risk "wildcat" exploratory wells and low-risk development wells in established fields.

Outside the United States, Union Pacific Resources has exploration efforts in six countries — Canada, Egypt, Argentina, Indonesia, Paraguay and Ecuador, said Ted Tobias, a senior adviser in the company's foreign exploration department.

In addition, the company is in final negotiations for two other projects, one in Eastern Europe and one in Latin America, said Tobias, who declined to be more specific.

In Egypt, the company has a 25-percent interest in an offshore exploration project headed by British Gas in the Warda Field in the Gulf of Suez.

Four of the five wells drilled there have yielded oil, Tobias said.

Unocal plans to cut up to 1,200 jobs

N.Y. Times News Service

Unocal Corp., adding details to announcements made in the last few weeks, said it would cut 800 to 1,200 jobs and sell $750 million in assets over the next two years.

The company also said it would take a $35 million restructuring charge in the third quarter. Unocal had previously said it would cut 400 "upstream" jobs, in exploration and drilling.

About 800 workers will be eligible for an early-retirement plan, the company said. Details of the plan follow similar announcements from Chevron, Exxon, Mobil and Phillips, all driven by low prices for oil and natural gas.

In Unocal's case, natural gas is an especially large factor. James J. Murchie, an analyst at Sanford C. Bernstein, said, "Unocal has gone through a sea change, as all the oil companies have, in its outlook on natural gas prices."

MEETINGS

Ashland chairman to speak to PBPA members

Hall

John R. Hall, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Ashland Oil Inc. will speak at the general membership luncheon of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association Wednesday. The luncheon will be at the Petroleum Club beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Hall is expected to discuss the state of the industry, the departure of major producers from domestic oil and gas development and the issues of environmental impact on the nation's industrial base.

Hall joined Ashland in 1957 as a chemical engineer after graduating from Vanderbilt University. He was named a vice president in 1966, director in 1968, senior vice president in 1970. He was named president of Ashland Chemical in 1971 and executive vice president of the corporation in 1974. After several promotions, he was elected vice chairman of the board and chief operating officer in 1979, and to his current position in 1981.

Reservations can be made at the PBPA office, 684-6345.

Coalbed methane topic for gas producers

Halliburton names executive

HOUSTON (AP) — The president and chief executive of Houston-based Brown & Root is stepping down to take a new position at Halliburton Co., the 73-year-old Dallas energy company that owns Brown & Root.

Ber Pieper, Brown & Root chief since 1990, said Wednesday he has been named vice chairman of Halliburton.

Pieper, along with Halliburton president Dale Jones, will report to Halliburton's chairman as part of a new office of the chairman created Wednesday.

Pieper, 59, will oversee Halliburton's corporate office and will be responsible for the company's quality improvement and strategic planning programs.

Halliburton integrates Vann Systems

Staff report

Halliburton Co. has announced the integration of Vann Systems within Halliburton Reservoir Services to provide more comprehensive well testing and reservoir analysis services to the petroleum industry worldwide.

Vann Systems, which previously reported to Halliburton Logging Services, is a pioneer in modern tubing conveyed perforating (TCP) technologies and is known throughout the industry for making underbalanced TCP an accepted procedure worldwide.

The alignment of Vann Systems' services with those of HRS will enable the new integrated company to serve as a single-point contact for all of its customers' testing requirements, including drillstem testing, TCP, surface testing, data acquisition, reservoir evaluation and reservoir description.

Walker E. Bliss, president of Halliburton Reservoir Services, said, "With the addition of Vann Systems' technology and personnel, HRS is positioned as the world's leading supplier of complete testing services."

ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTS

Ector County yields 70 barrel find

Staff report

A unidentified discovery has been completed in Ector County, surrounded by production in the Slator field, four miles northwest of Goldsmith.

AMOCO PRODUCTION CO. finaled the No. 20 C. Seharbauer "P" to pump 70 barrels of crude, 40 Mcfd and 127 barrels of water. The well produced from perforations 7,695 to 7,760 ft., which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFeHCL acid.

Permitted as an 8,300 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 8,306 ft. with 7 inch casing set at 6,300 ft.

The well topped the Devonian at 8,206 ft. on ground elevation of 3,172 ft. Pay was topped at 7,695 ft.

Location is 758 ft. from south and 589 ft. from west lines of Section 11, Block A, PSL survey.

Ector strike

Amoco has completed an unidentified discovery in Ector County, four miles northwest of Goldsmith.

Eddy recompletion nets Delaware find

The recompletion of a Morrow discovery in Eddy County has yielded a Delaware discovery.

POGO PRODUCING CO. recompleted the No. 1 Mobil Federal to flow 370 barrels of crude, 422 Mcfd and nine barrels of water on a 14/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 940 psi. The well flowed from perforations 7,820 to 7,856 ft.

Originally drilled to 14,890 ft., the well was plugged back to 8,000 ft. A 5 1/2 inch liner was hung from 12,001 to 14,854 ft.

On elevation of 3,372 ft., the well topped the Delaware Lime at 4,082 ft., Delaware Sand at 4,102, Cherry Canyon at 5,154, Brushy Canyon at 6,350, Bone Spring at 7,930, Third Bone Spring at 10,810, Wolfcamp at 11,247, Strawn at 13,035, Atoka at 13,196, Morrow at 14,214, and Barnett at 14,808 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and east lines of Section 29, T23s, R31e.

Bone Spring strike pumps 21 barrels oil

BIRD CREEK RESOURCES INC. has completed a new field Bone Spring discovery in Eddy County, two miles northeast of 6,361 ft. Bone Spring production in the San Lorenzo field, five miles south of Malaga.

The No. 1 Salt Draw Federal "11" formerly an undesignated Salt Draw Atoka producer, was recompleted to pump 21 barrels of 42.8 gravity crude, 20 Mcfd and 76 barrels of water from perforations 6,465 to 6,475 ft. The interval was acidized with 750 gallons of 15 percent acid and fractured with 46,000 gallons of gel and 118,000 lbs. sand.

Originally drilled to 13,550 ft., the well was plugged back to 6,563 ft. A 4 1/2 inch liner was hung from 12,448 to 13,550 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,952.4 ft., include the Salt at 1,870 ft., Base Salt at 2,597, Strawn at 11,852, Atoka at 12,208, Rustler at 1,097, Lamar at 2,597, Bone Spring at 6,303, Wolfcamp at 9,124, Morrow at 12,553, and Morrow Clastics at 12,866 ft.

Location is 1,880 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Section 11, T25s, R28e.

Undesignated well completed in Lea

A well originally planned as a Tonto Deep project has been completed as a Bone Spring producer in an undesignated field in Lea County.

HARVEY E. YATES CO. finaled the No. 2 EKay "28" State to flow 12 barrels of crude on a 14/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 550 psi. The well flowed from perforations 9,1980 to 9,205 ft.

Total depth was 11,502 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,502 ft. The well was plugged back to 9,293 ft. Pay was topped at 9,190 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from south and east lines of Section 28, T18s, R34e.

Reentry finaled as Eddy field extender

An abandoned well has been reentered and completed to extend Delaware production a quarter-mile northeast in the East Herradura Bend field of Eddy County.

RAY WESTALL tested the No. 1 Santa Fe Federal to flow 145 barrels of 40 gravity crude, 45 Mcfd and 478 barrels of water. The well flowed from perforations 6,139 to 6,211 ft., which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons of 10 percent acid and fractured with 20,000 gallons of gel and 47,320 lbs. 10/20 sand. Gas-oil ratio is 310:1.

The well was cleaned out to 6,350 ft. and plugged back to 6,323 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 6,349 ft.

Formation tops, on kelly bushing elevation of 3,107 ft., include the Bell Canyon at 2,780 ft., Cherry Canyon at 3,742, Brushy Canyon at 4,788 and Bone Spring at 6,300 ft. Pay was topped at 6,139 ft.

Location is 2,080 ft. from north and east lines of Section 35, T22s, R28e.

The well was originally drilled by Mountain States Petroleum Corp. and abandoned at 3,836 ft.

Ninth well added to Cottle County field

A ninth producer has been added to the Cee Vee field of Cottle County, 10 miles northwest of Paducah.

PERKINS-PROTHRO potentialed the No. 18 Carroll to pump 20 barrels of 42 gravity crude, 5 Mcfd and 70 barrels of water. The well produced from perforations 4,586 to 4,587 ft., which had been acidized with 150 gallons of 15 percent HCL. Gas-oil ratio is 250:1.

Drilled to 4,690 ft., the well was plugged back to 4,590 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 4,678 ft.

The well topped the Clearfork at 705 ft. and Canyon Reef at 4,584 ft. on ground elevation of 1,773 ft.

Location is 230 ft. from south and 2,561 ft. from east lines of Section 5, F.P. Knott survey, Abst. 861.

Kent extension pumps 18 barrels

CHOLLA PETROLEUM has added a ninth Noodle Creek producer to the Wallace Ranch Northeast field of Kent County, extending the field a mile northwest.

On potential test, the No. 1 Kenady pumped 18 barrels of 34 gravity crude and 36 barrels of water from perforations 3,848 to 3,854 ft. The interval was acidized with 500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Permitted as a 4,300 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 3,871 ft. and plugged back to 3,868 ft. with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 3,869 ft.

Amoco completes horizontal producer

AMOCO PRODUCTION CO. has completed a horizontal San Andres producer in the Cedar Lake field of Gaines County.

Amoco reentered the No. 473 Cedar Lake Unit and completed it to pump two barrels of 31.8 gravity crude, 1 Mcfd and 112 barrels of water. The well produced from open hole interval 4,777 to 5,017 ft., which had been acidized with 3,780 gallons of 20 percent NeFeHCL acid.

True vertical depth is 4,879 ft., with sidetrack total depth at 5,017 ft. There was 240 ft. of casing laid horizontally in the formation.

The well topped the Rustler at 1,992 ft. and Yates at 2,809 ft. on ground elevation of 3,102 ft.

Location is 1,323 ft. from south and 2,637 ft. from west lines of Section 10, Block H, D&W survey, Abst. 1110, 12 miles southeast of Loop.

Schleicher County field gains third producer

The Gustav field of Schleicher County has gained its third Canyon producer, extending the field southwest.

DISCOVERY OPERATING INC. tested the No. 2 University "FO" for a calculated absolute open flow of 3 Mmcfd from perforations 6,983 to 7,283 ft.

Permitted as an 8,000 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 7,361 ft., where 4 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 7,332 ft.

Location is 710 ft. from south and 2,007 ft. from east lines of Section 7, Block 53, ULS survey, 22 miles northwest of Eldorado.

Woman's claim against Texaco upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court this week left intact a $21.5 million award won from Texaco Inc. by a Wichita, Kan., woman whose husband died of leukemia after being exposed to benzene.

The justices, without comment, rejected arguments aimed at overturning more than half of that award — the $12.5 million in punitive damages won by Diana L. Mason.

A federal jury awarded Mrs. Mason $9 million in compensatory damages and $25 million in punitive damages. But the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last November ruled that the punitive-damages amount was excessive, and ordered it halved to $12.5 million

Otis Mason died of acute myelocytic leukemia, a cancer affecting bone marrow, in 1979. As a member of the Coast Guard, he was exposed to high dosages of benzene while teaching a course from 1974 to 1977 on how to test for water and sediment in ships' engine oils.

Benzene, a petroleum product identified as a carcinogen, was used as a component of the test.

A year before he died, Mason sued Texaco and other producers and marketers of benzene, accusing them of failing to warn him adequately about the cancer risks from benzene exposure.

When Mason died, his widow was substituted as plaintiff in her role as the administrator of his estate.

A first trial ended in a $9 million compensatory award — and no punitive-damage award — against Texaco and other benzene manufacturers. But the verdict was overturned after Texaco appealed.

After a second trial that lasted four months, only Texaco was found liable and ordered to pay Mrs. Mason.

In the appeal acted on Monday,lawyers for Texaco argued that the 10th Circuit court had not given the punitive-damages award the type of review called for by the Supreme Court last year.

The appeal said the appeals court misapplied the high court's decision in an Alabama case that laid down certain guidelines for appellate review of punitive-damage awards.

But the justices in that ruling refused to place limits on punitive-damage awards.

The case acted on Monday is Texaco vs. Mason, 91-1430.

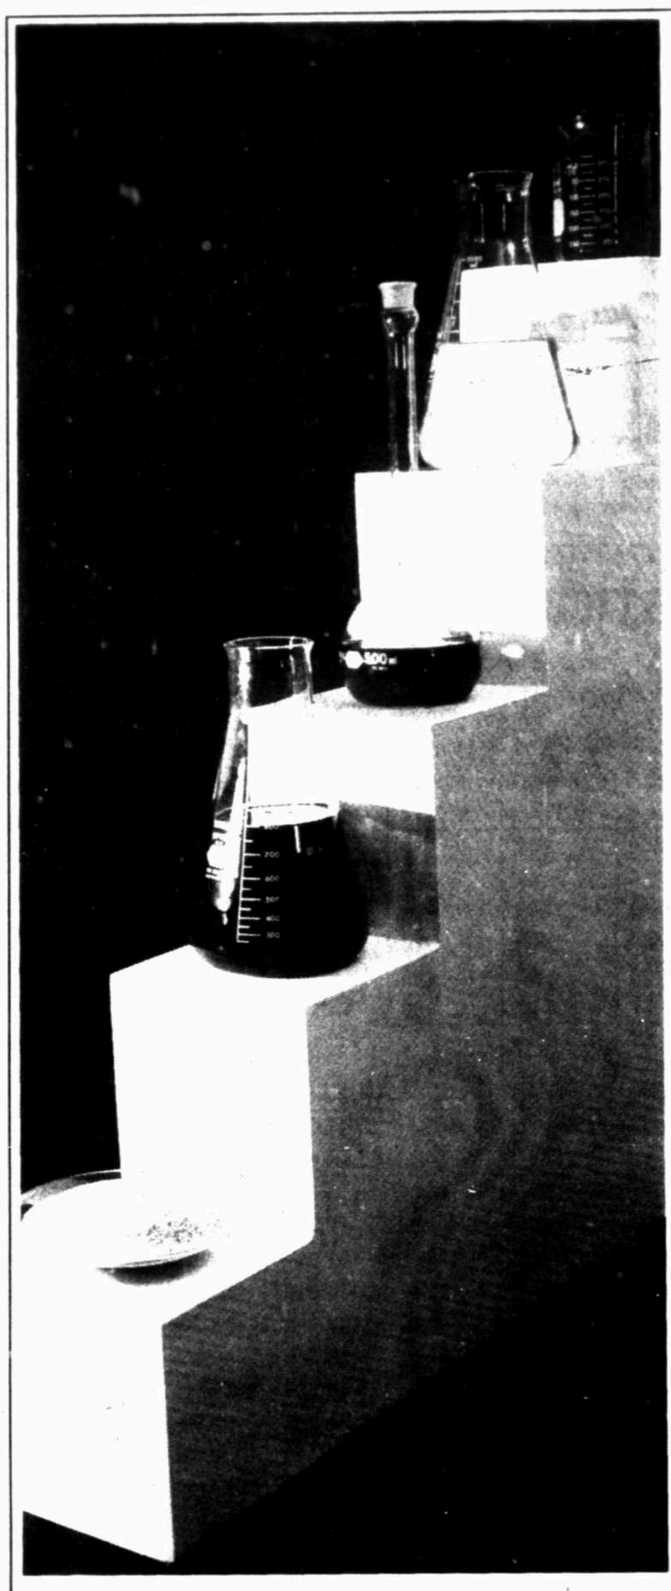
Mesa unit signs deals to convert vehicles

DALLAS (AP) — A subsidiary of Mesa Inc., the natural gas company led by T. Boone Pickens, has signed contracts to convert vehicles in Oklahoma and Mexico to run on natural gas and propane.

The contracts are worth $750,000, Mesa said.

Mesa Environmental will sell 2,000 conversion packages to a car and truck dealer in Mexico City. And it will sell equipment and technical assistance to United Parcel Service in Oklahoma City.

The deals are some of the first for the new subsidiary, which Pickens established to profit from wider use of natural gas.



The next step in ramp blending.

We offer total blending control with the most complete microprocessor-based ramp blending system in the industry.

Smith Energy Services developed the APAC/ALAC (Automated Proppant/Liquid Additive Control) Blender in conjunction with Stewart & Stevenson Services, Inc., to not only deliver the most precise proppant addition, but also complete liquid additive control and monitoring.

Precisely. As scheduled. Even during rapid proppant stage or rate changes. So our fluid is fully crosslinked and buffered and the correct amount of breaker is added.

Which ensures that you will receive the cleanest fluid and highest conductivity fracture. And optimum well performance.

Otherwise, we wouldn't be the choice of some of the country's finest oil and gas operators.

So if you're concerned about how your well performs and the next step for unearthing your profits, take the first step.

Smith Energy Services. We work best under pressure.

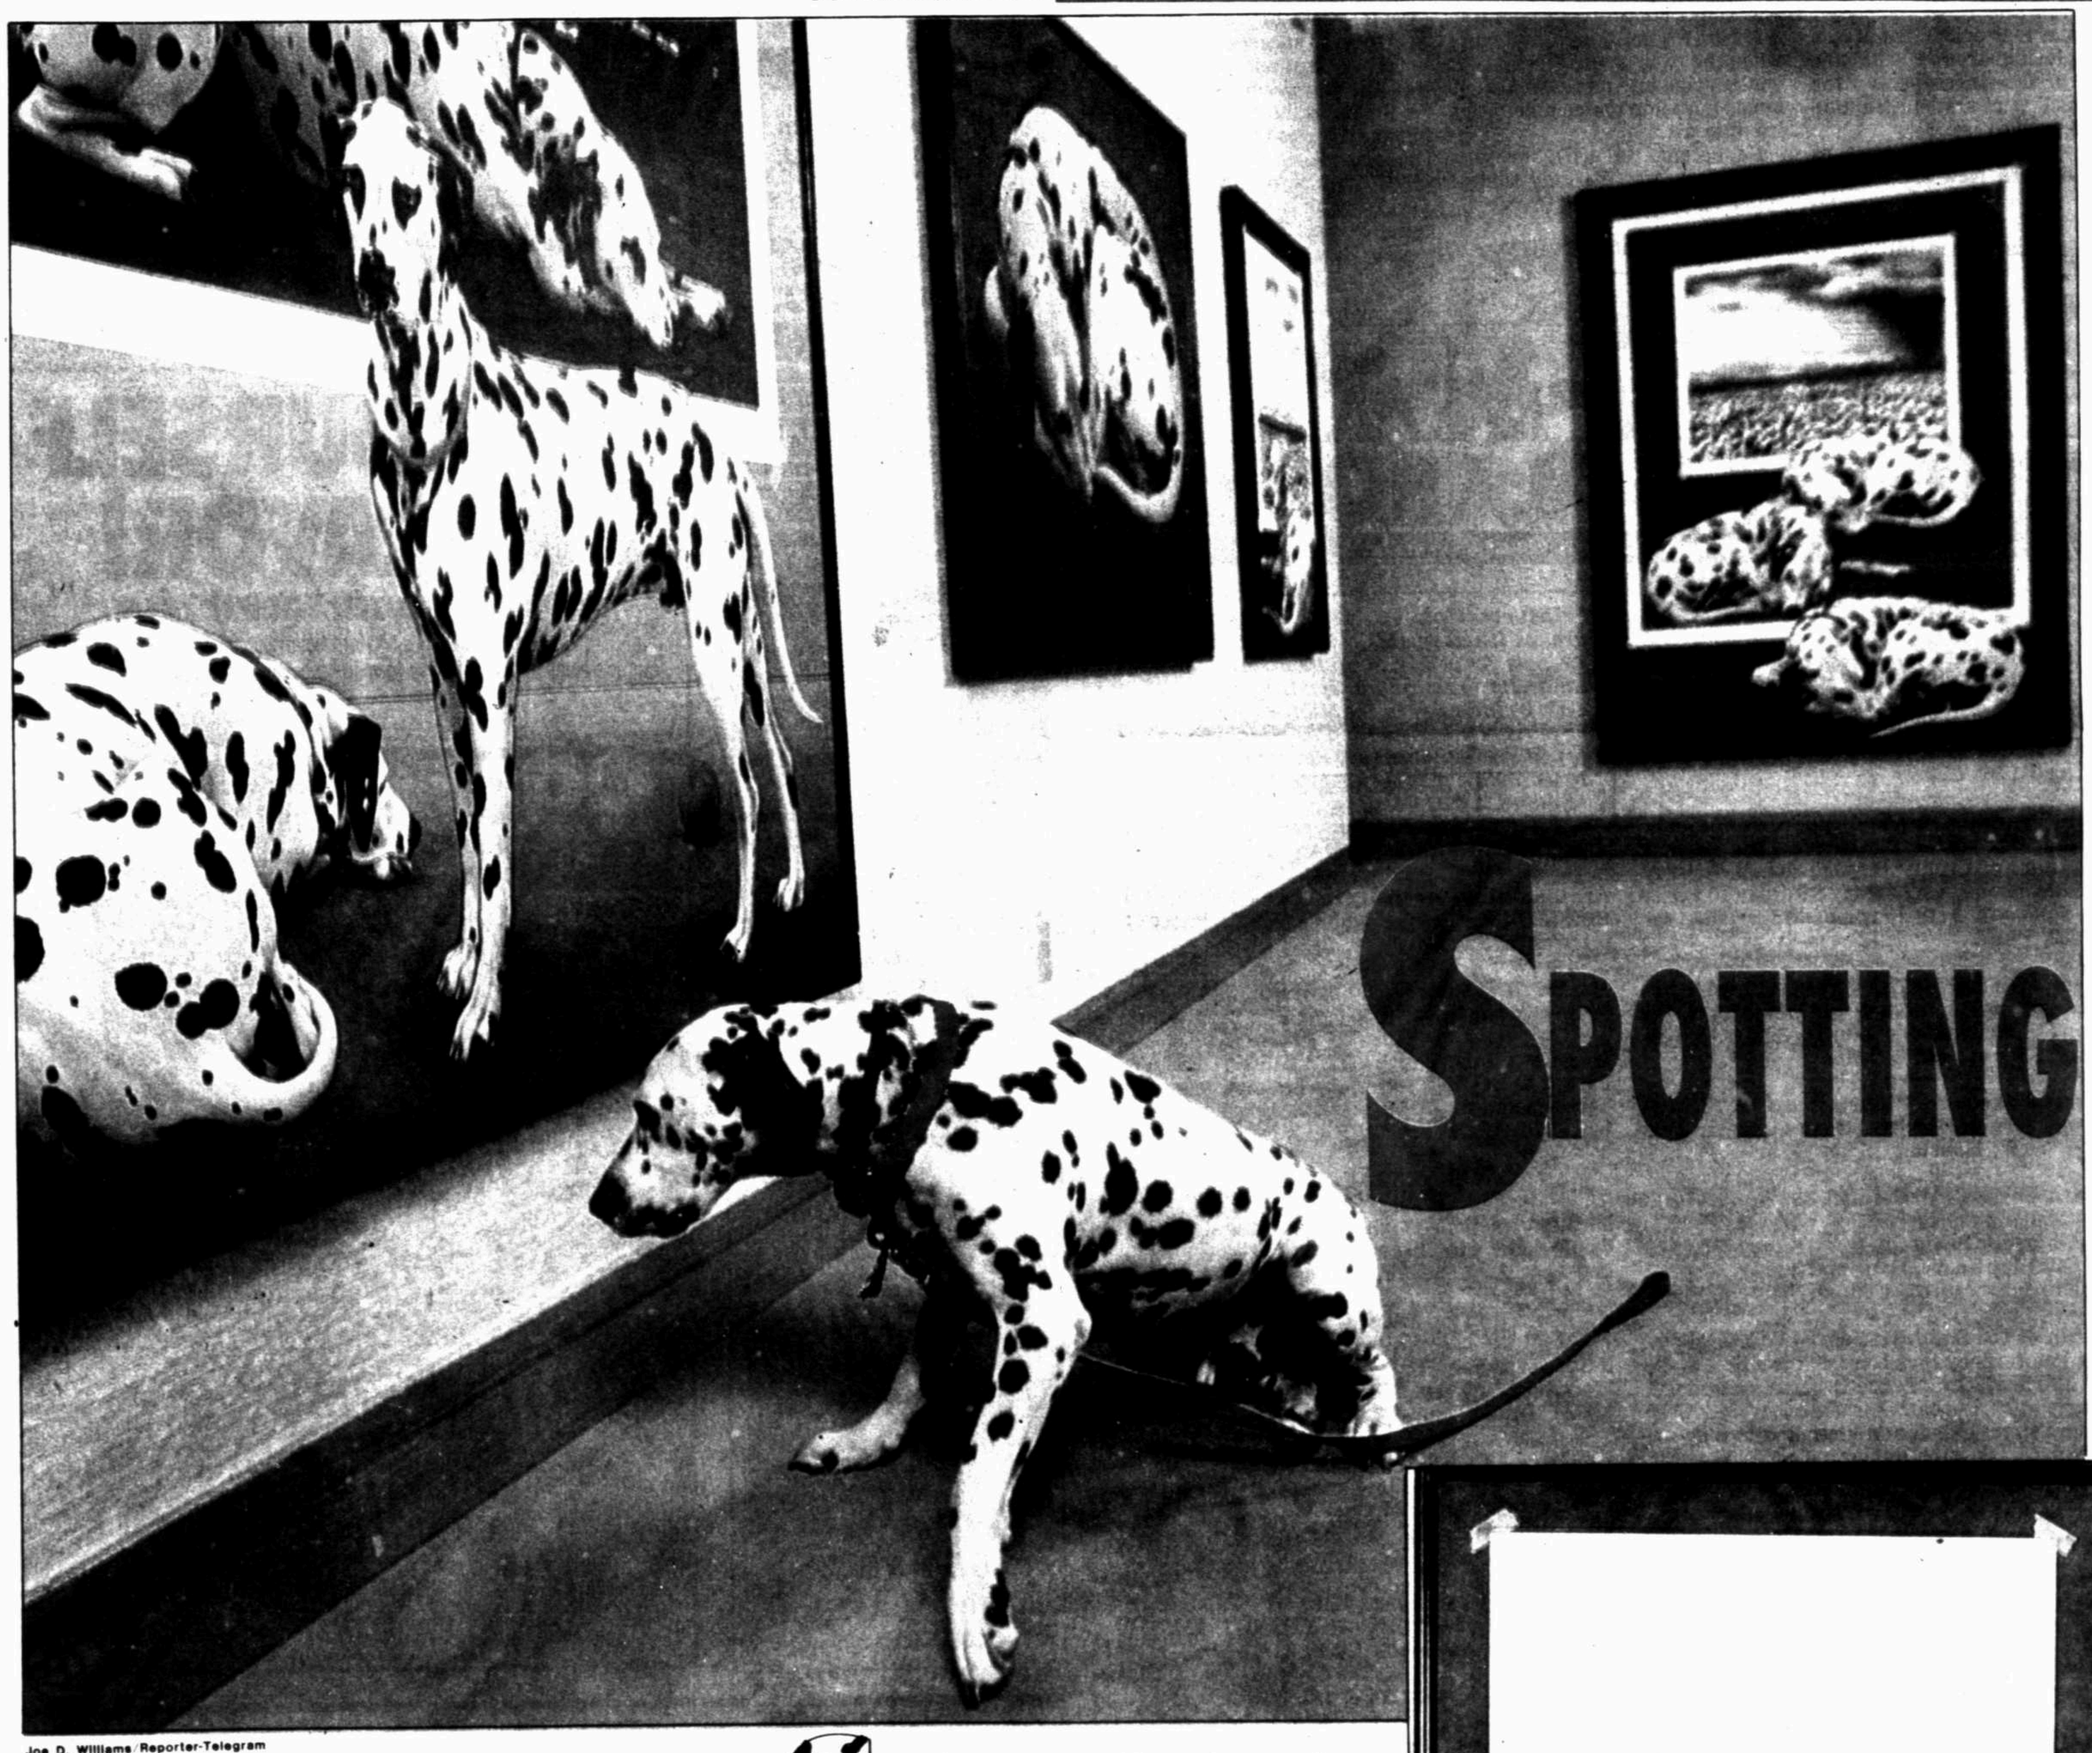
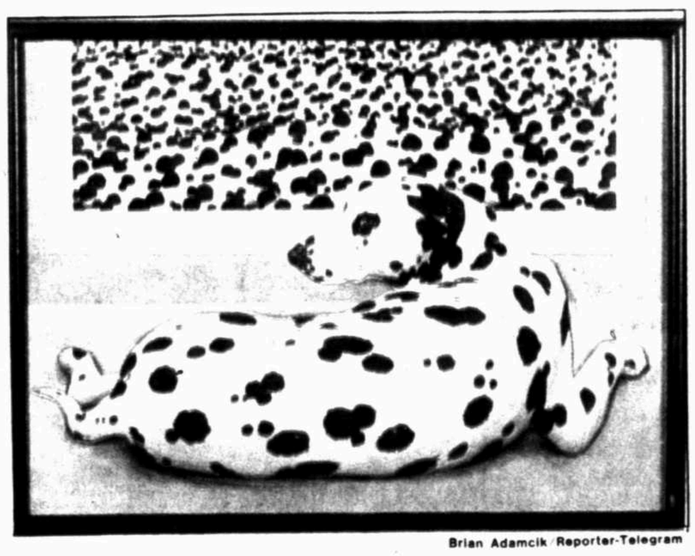
Great Art worth SPOTTING

By Georgia Todd Temple



Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Sparky, a dalmatian owned by Midlander Mike Tandy, gazes at works by Santa Fe artist Dick Mason, which feature Mason's own dalmatian Spot.



Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Santa Fe artist Dick Mason loves to draw.

"I'm a painter with a very heavy emphasis on drawing," Mason said. "I love to draw. I really love to draw. And I've had a lot of training in drawing.

"I like to be able to present the drawing of a thing on canvas as you would a painting. There's a lot of drawing in these paintings. There's a lot of pattern."

Mason's main model is his dalmatian, Spot.

"I juxtapose him against patterned backgrounds to make an interesting visual statement."

Spot and spots dominate the walls of the Museum of the Southwest until May 31 in the exhibition "Spotlights: Paintings by Dick Mason." Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

"It's really complex," said Mason, who was a featured artist in the April issue of Southwest Art Magazine. "It's not exactly abstract, yet there's some very abstract ideas in it."

His works featuring his dog, Spot, evolved out of the combination of his educational background and time spent in northern New Mexico.

SPOT: Dalmatian influences Mason's work

(From 1G)

A Kansas native, Mason received his art education through a University of Kansas seminar in Italy and studies at Wichita State University and at the University of Iowa, where he received his bachelor of fine arts degree in printing.

"They have a very heavy figurative tradition there at Iowa, and I came out of that tradition," said Mason, who first moved to New Mexico when he graduated from college.

"I moved to Santa Fe and didn't realize I was in an artistic hub, but the artistic energy here was so strong and everybody was doing so many different things, I frankly didn't know where I fit in at all.

"I didn't do anything for two years. I just had to kind of absorb the creative energy here. When I did finally start to work creatively again, I started painting the landscape as opposed to the figures which I had been doing in college."

Mason felt a certain timidity in tackling painting landscapes.

"The landscape, of course, had a real heavy tradition here in the Southwest. And I was afraid of even approaching it because it had been handled so eloquently by so many other artists before, that I just didn't know what else you could say about it that hadn't already been said."

It was at that point, that Mason began playing around with the pattern of the landscape and the hills, which were dotted with juniper and pinon.

People recognized his work as being northern New Mexico.

"That was a very exciting time for me in that I had hit on an idea," Mason said. "I continued to paint in that way for many many years and still do. But, years later I decided that I was wanting to return to my roots, to get into my drawing."

It was at that time that Mason turned to his dog, Spot. He decided "the perfect departure from the landscape is to go to this dog and start working with him.

"At that point, there were some personal traumas in my life," Mason recalled. "I realized you ought to just get on with it. And if you want to do it, just do it. Stop putting it off. So I started working with the dog and drawing."

Currently, Mason finds himself branching out again, this time into still lifes.

"It's funny because these dog paintings were merging on still lifes for some time. It was a very shallow foreground and usually a drawing or print of some kind behind the dog, so that they were almost still lifes way back a couple of years ago.

"There's some autobiographical information in these still lifes and in some of the dog paintings, too. So there's a little bit of my history in these paintings."

Mason also is introducing prehistoric Indian pottery and other objects that have personal value to him.

"Again I'm still looking at black and white objects in front of black and white patterned ground."

Mason, who began drawing when he was a child, said, "If you're going into it to earn a livelihood, I wouldn't recommend going into art."

He became an artist, he said, "Because it was the only thing I could do.

"I tried going into art history. I tried working in a gallery situation because I was just sure I could not support myself from my work.

"But one thing lead to another, and it ended up my art work, which I had been doing since I was a very small child, being the only thing left on my plate to do.

"And I started doing it, and lo and behold, I started supporting myself on it."

For Mason, reaching the plateau of being a successful artist never quite happens.

"I don't know if you ever get there. I think it's a search.

"I feel like I'm always still searching, but I'm not there. I don't know where there is.

"I think that you just keep working and working and working, and you, hopefully, get better and better and better."

When he looks back over his earlier work, he said, "I see the progress.

"And that gives me a successful feeling. Certainly, one hopes to be financially successful so that one can have a studio large enough to do the things one wants to do."

He finds the viewer important in the process of an artist feeling successful.

"I think respect from the viewer. When they see the work, and if they respect it, I think that's success. They may not like it, but if they respect it, I think that's very important."

If Mason was told his days were numbered and he had to do only what was important to him, he would "be trying to create more work."

He already guards his time.

"Of course, you get distracted with the business side of art, which can be very time consuming — planning for shows and trying to make it all work, and trying to have a social life. It can get very demanding.

"But, I think if you're disciplined, you just learn that between this hour and this hour is the time you work. You have to be a real Spartan with your schedule in order to get it all done."

Mason's heart's desire is, he said, "To live to be 90. That gives you a real edge. If you have nice long life and good health. Certainly, that would be wonderful. If I could be guaranteed that, so I would have longer to work."

'It's funny because these dog paintings were merging on still lifes for some time. It was a very shallow foreground and usually a drawing or print of some kind behind the dog, so that they were almost still lifes way back a couple of years ago.'

'Lethal Weapon 3' tops box office with $33.2 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The action thriller "Lethal Weapon 3" blasted to the top of the box office heap with a $33.2 million take as a spring slump ended at the nation's theaters.

The Mel Gibson-Danny Glover sequel accounted for nearly 80 percent of all movie tickets sold during the weekend, kicking off the summer movie season with an early bang.

The Warner Bros. movie posted the second-biggest non-holiday opening ever, behind the $42.7 million debut of "Batman," another Warner Bros. movie, in June 1989.

"Strong word-of-mouth and an extremely high recognition factor helped get this film off to a fast start, but positive reaction from audiences will keep it going strong for the weeks to come," said D. Barry Reardon, president of Warner's domestic theatrical distribution.

"Basic Instinct" was a distant second with $3 million, followed by "Beethoven" with $2.3 million and "White Men Can't Jump" with $1.9 million, according to Exhibitor Relations Co., Inc.

"The Player" was fifth with $1.5 million. At the Cannes Film Festival in France on Monday, Robert Altman won the best direction award for "The Player" and the film's star, Tim Robbins, won the top actor prize.

In the box office sweepstakes, "Wayne's World" was sixth with $1.3 million. "My Cousin Vinny" was seventh with $1.1 million and "The Babe" was eighth with $1.1 million, with just $60,000 separating the two.

"Ferngully ... The Last Rainforest," was ninth ($908,000) and "City of Joy" was 10th ($809,000).

Here are the estimated top movie ticket sales Friday through Sunday, according to Exhibitor Relations, with distributor, weekend gross, number of theater screens, average per screen, total gross and number of weeks in release.

1. "Lethal Weapon 3," Warner Bros., $33.2 million, 2,510 screens, $13,244 per screen, $33.2 million, one week.

2. "Basic Instinct," TriStar, $3 million, 1,851 screens, $1,645 per screen, $93.7 million, nine weeks.

3. "Beethoven," Universal, $2.3 million, 1,825 screens, $1,265 per screen, $41.1 million, seven weeks.

4. "White Men Can't Jump," 20th Century Fox, $1.9 million, 1,683 screens, $1,150 per screen, $64.9 million, eight weeks.

5. "The Player," New Line, $1.5 million, 439 screens, $3,507 per screen, $9.8 million, six weeks.

6. "Wayne's World," Paramount, $1.3 million, 1,133 screens, $1,149 per screen, $112.4 million, 14 weeks.

7. "My Cousin Vinny," 20th Century Fox, $1.05 million, 880 screens, $1,250 per screen, $45.6 million, 10 weeks.

8. "The Babe," Universal, $1.04 million, 1,068 screens, $980 per screen, $14.7 million, five weeks.

9. "Ferngully ... The Last Rainforest," 20th Century Fox, $908,000, 1,327 screens, $684 per screen, $17.8 million, six weeks.

10. "City of Joy," TriStar, $809,000, 919 screens, $880 per screen, $11.8 million five weeks.

'Strong word-of-mouth and an extremely high recognition factor helped get this film off to a fast start, but positive reaction from audiences will keep it going strong for the weeks to come.'

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

■ Cowboy festivities set

LUBBOCK — Cowboys and authorities on the American West will honor the working cowboy during the fourth annual National Cowboy Symposium and Celebration Thursday through May 31.

All events are open to the public and will be held on the Texas Tech University campus and at the Panhandle South Plains Fairgrounds.

The weekend celebration will offer poetry, storytelling, art, music and commercial exhibits related to the authentic cowboy.

Writers and other authorities on frontier history and culture also will present lectures and participate in panel discussions on topics ranging from a historical look at black cowboys to current portrayals of cowboys in television and movies.

"We've tried to cover every aspect of Western culture," said Alvin G. Davis, general manager of Texas Tech's Ranching Heritage Association and chairman of the event.

The Cowboy Symposium opens Thursday at Texas Tech's University Center with an evening preview of exhibits. Two days of panel sessions and lectures begin Friday with evening performances featuring known cowboy poets and musicians.

The final day of the symposium, May 31, will begin at the South Plains Fairgrounds with an authentic chuck wagon breakfast followed by a cowboy devotional and an arena event with celebrity contestants and speciality acts.

For a schedule of events, contact the ranching Heritage Association, Texas Tech University, Box 43201, Lubbock, Texas 79409-3201, or call 1-806-742-2498.

■ Roundup '92 slated

Roundup '92 opens at 6:30 p.m. May 30 at the Petro-Jet Hanger, Midland International Airport.

Talent performing for this year's event include Waylon Jennings and Asleep at the Wheel. The annual event includes dancing and a prime rib dinner, catered by the Perini Brothers of Abilene, beverages from Coors, and a posted-bid auction.

Roundup '92 is a fund-raiser for the American Cancer Society. For ticket information call the American Cancer Society, 683-6374.

■ Autograph party set

OZONA — The Crockett County Museum is sponsoring a book autograph party from 4 to 6 p.m. Tuesday at the Crockett Room in Ozona.

Jim Zintgraff and Solveig Turpin will present their book, "Pecos River Rock Art." The book is filled with color photographs and information about the Indian pictographs found along the Pecos River.

■ Texas cast to perform

CANYON — President Bush has asked the cast of "Texas" to perform at a dinner at the Dallas Grand Kempinski Hotel on May 30.

From a cast of 80, director Neil Hess will take 39 performers on the Dallas trip. The performance by singers, dancers and musicians will be enhanced by the costumes and flags that are a part of the "Texas" musical drama.

State Sen. Teel Bivins is providing assistance with arrangements and planning for the trip. American Airlines is donating part of the cast's airfare. Remaining funds for the excursion are being raised by members and friends of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, the non-profit organization that produces "Texas."

The 27th consecutive season opens June 10, with performance at 8:30 p.m. daily except Sundays through Aug. 22.

For reservations or additional information call 1-806-655-2181, or write "Texas," P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

■ Video Tuesday slated

The Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., is featuring travel films during the next Video Tuesday presentations.

The next presentation will be "Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum" Tuesday.

Video Tuesday is a part of the museum's public and educational programming.

The videos are shown at noon, 2 and 4 p.m. Tuesdays. Visitors may bring a lunch when they come to the noon show. The museum provides coffee and tea.

Museum members may check out videos from the museum's collection. Special showings may be arranged by contacting Lynn Layman at the museum.

For more information call the museum, 683-2882.

■ Planetarium show set

This week marks the last showing of "Larry, Cat in Space" at the Marian Blakemore Planetarium's regular Tuesday 7:30 p.m. sky show.

"West Texas Skies" will return June 2.

The Sunday sky show, "Skywatchers of Ancient Mexico," will continue to be shown at 2 and 3:30 p.m. through May 31.

Admission to the planetarium is free to members of the Museum of the Southwest and for non-members, $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The Marian Blakemore Planetarium, a part of the Museum of the Southwest complex, is at the corner of K Street and Indiana Avenue. For more information call 683-2882.

■ Stringer shows work

The works of Midland artist John Stringer are on display this month in the gallery at the Midland Woman's Club.

The exhibit may be viewed from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Midland's Woman's Club, Hogan Park.

NBC announces eight new series

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — NBC announced Monday that eight new series, five of them comedies, will be added to the network's fall schedule as it struggles to regain its No. 1 status.

The new lineup encompasses 5½-hours of programming that include two one-hour dramas and a 60-minute reality series.

NBC entertainment president Warren Littlefield said the schedule was designed to "maintain our prominence as the premiere quality drama network, reinvigorate our comedy lineup and provide an overall balanced and diverse programming slate."

For the first time in six years, NBC lost its top standing among the Big Three networks. It finished second for the 1991-92 season, behind CBS.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, MAY 24, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Intellectual curiosity could lead you to undertake a lucrative new project. Be careful not to burn any bridges if you change jobs in late summer. An investment in travel begins to pay off in September. Make any inquiries you feel necessary to protect your financial interests. Newcomers may not be everything they appear to be next December. Romance should be a two-way street. Hold out for the kind of consideration and generosity you show others.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singers Patti LaBelle and Bob Dylan, actresses Priscilla Presley and Lilli Palmer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Use any spare time constructively. Household projects increase your property's value while improving its appearance. A remarkable meeting of minds is possible today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cast off reclusive tendencies and socialize today. It is your turn to be the life of the party. Dress in your most becoming outfit if romance is on your mind tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Whether you journey mentally or physically today, your time will be well spent. You and that special someone discuss the future together. Strive for emotional calm as outside pressures build.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tend to your chores early so that you can delight in the social whirl later today. You may want to head off to a distant locale where stimulating new relationships await.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A good day to make bold moves and share your innermost thoughts. A private meeting with close allies will lead to new progress. Dress to impress if going out this evening. Seek introductions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Independent thought gives you a decided edge — do your own thinking. Charming people is your specialty. Take time out for some vigorous exercise. A team sport like volleyball may hold new appeal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Certain events could ruffle your feathers today. Let any stormy weather at home or in a relationship blow over. A special outing is long overdue. Plan a treat the whole family will enjoy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A sunny attitude helps create new rapport on the home front. Refuse to let a wet blanket dampen your spirits or plans. It is possible to have a fun evening without breaking the bank.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your eye for beauty dictates your plans for today. You can easily get your home looking terrific or be the host with the most this evening. Your playful attitude delights a newcomer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You feel full of vitality today. Make your home your power base. You are especially attuned to new enterprises. Write down your dreams — they prove prophetic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may feel restless this morning. Curb your impatience and be affectionate with your loved ones. Taking an openminded approach to new ideas triggers some good luck.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are a delight today, charming and personable. Focus on enhancing a key alliance. A private tete-a-tete could prove especially useful and enlightening.

It was with great sadness that we learned of the death of one of the greatest women bridge players of any era, Rixi Markus of London. Her death follows by less than two months that of Fritzi Gordon, the partner with whom she achieved her greatest successes. Together they won two World Women's Pairs, the World Mixed Teams and World Women's Olympiad Teams, and numerous European Women's Championships. Markus became the first woman to achieve the rank of World Grandmaster, followed soon after by Gordon.

At the table, Markus was an aggressive bidder and enterprising player with excellent table presence. There are many great hands featuring her skill, yet this simple one was among her favorites.

North-South were using a system in which a one-diamond opening bid promised a hand of 16 points or better, hence South's choice of one spade for the initial action. Sitting East with the vulnerability in her favor, Markus elected to defend rather than bid, a decision not easy to contemplate, but which was soon vindicated.

West led the king of hearts and continued with the ace. East discarded a diamond and declarer, reluctant to ruff, did the same. West shifted to the three of clubs, East rose with the ace and returned a low club. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace of diamonds and continued with the king. East ruffed, cashed the two high spades and then forced declarer's last trump with a club. That was South's last trick—400 and an absolute top to East-West.

Rixi worked long and hard to promote bridge. The game will miss her sorely.
