Post office hours

The Midland post office will offer extended service today and Sunday but will close early Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve, Postmaster Stan Sartain said Friday. The Graves Station, 3315 W. Wadley Ave., will be open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today. And to ensure that all of the holiday parcels are delivered by Christmas, carriers will be making home deliveries Sunday, Sartain said. On Christmas and New Year's eves, the post offices will close at 1 p.m. However, customers can pick up packages until 5 p.m. on those days at the ClayDesta and Downtown stations. For more information call 560-5102.

Dragging death

JASPER — A metal nameplate on the grave of dragging death victim James Byrd Jr. has been missing for more than a month and police said Friday the theft was probably the work of a souvenir hunter. "It appears someone just went up and removed the nameplate from the grave cover," said interim Jasper Police Chief Stanley Christopher. "No damage was done except for the theft of the name. It's probably a momento (theft) more than anything else."

Drug use levels

WASHINGTON — Teen drug use has stabilized after years on the rise, the government reported Friday, though it's still much higher than in the early 1990s. Drug use rose through most of this decade after the intense prevention efforts of the '80s were relaxed, researchers say. But now schools, parents and TV are again focused on the dangers, and researchers say teens are again getting the message. The annual report has now marked two straight years of steady — and in some cases, dropping — drug and alcohol use, suggesting that the rising trend truly has been stemmed.

Two Midland friends participate in airstrikes against Iraq

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Two Midland childhood friends, one an aviator and the other an officer on the admiral's battle-group staff, are serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise in the Persian Gulf.

The USS Enterprise this week has been launching aircraft strikes into Iraq and directing the firing of Tomahawk land-attack missiles from destroyers and guided missiles attached to the ship.

U.S. Navy Lt. Patrick Mowles, 27, is an F-14 Tomcat pilot on the aircraft carrier — the "Big E" — in the Persian Gulf bordering Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Iran.

U.S. Navy Lt. Keith Beck, 28, is serving on the carrier's battle-group staff and is attached to the staff of the commander-in-chief Atlantic Fleet.

Both men participated in this week's airstrikes in Iraq.

In an e-mail to his girlfriend, Mini DeLashaw of Dallas, Mowles called the first nighttime blitz "an awesome light show." Ms. DeLashaw then told Mowles' parents, Midlanders Jimmy and Fan Delene Mowles, of his combat flight.

Ms. DeLashaw's roommate in Dallas is Beck's sister, Alexis Beck. The two women have been friends since college.

"He got to fly the first strike," Mrs. Mowles said. "He was pretty excited about it. It was intense."

The strike came on Mowles' first cruise, his parents said.

"You just feel like they have been trained well, and our technology is the best," Mrs. Mowles said. "They (the

UIL disqualifies Katy

Rebels to face MacArthur for championship

By Terry Williamson and Oscar LeRoy
Sports writers

IRVING — Maybe the most bizarre Class 5A football state championship ever staged under the University Interscholastic League umbrella will be played at noon today at Texas Stadium.

Katy High School, poised to play in the Class 5A Small School state championship today, was declared ineligible by the UIL Friday after the school reported that one of its players falsified his grades.

San Antonio MacArthur, which lost to Katy in last week's semifinals, will play Midland Lee at noon.

Katy principal Robert Blankenship said the school learned late Thursday that a player falsified grades and forged a signature on a three-week grade report the week after Thanksgiving, violating the state's no-pass, no-play rules which became effective in 1984.

Katy was supposed to be a part of a triple-header game in Texas Stadium Saturday against Midland Lee (14-1). Now MacArthur must step in and play the game.

"Nobody wins in this situation," UIL spokesman Peter Contreras said. "We asked MacArthur if they could play the game and they said they would show up. The only other solution would have been to declare Midland Lee champions."

Lee coach John Parchman was upset with the UIL over the decision to change opponents on the eve of what could be the most important game in Rebel football history.

"It's ludicrous," Parchman said. "They call us at 10 in the morning the day before the state championship and tell us we are playing another opponent.

"That's not right because it penalizes us as much as it does Katy and we didn't do anything wrong. We should have received a forfeit and the state championship."

MacArthur, a team that lost to Katy, 14-6, last Saturday in the Alamodome in San Antonio, is excited about the prospects of getting a second chance at the state title, even if they haven't had any workouts to prepare for the game.

"This is a deal where the kids will be ready to play," said MacArthur coach Van Fuschak. "We're going to try to have a little bit of a workout today (Friday) and try to get ready to play."

Fuschak also said that he found out about the Katy elimination by the UIL at 10 a.m. Friday.

"Bill Farney (UIL director) called me from the UIL and told me what had happened to Katy. I thought he was pulling a prank on me.

"I feel sorry for Katy. It's unfortunate that something like this would happen, but this is a great opportunity for our kids to play in a state championship. We've got a lot to do in a short amount of time.

"We're trying to get arrangements to make this trip. I don't know exactly if we're going to drive or fly. We're just real excited now to get that opportunity.

"We want to put a quality team on the field to play for a championship. Our kids have to realize that this is a state championship and this is a once in a lifetime experience."

Fuschak also felt that the short preparation time would be a problem.

"I can't see it not being a hindrance for us. The good thing is that it's been only a week since we played a game. I would think it will make for an interesting game, so I think it may be a deal where mistakes in the kicking game will play a factor."

Parchman, in the midst of drawing up a new game plan and

House to vote on articles of impeachment today

From Staff and Wire Reports

The House of Representatives will cast their votes on the four articles of impeachment today, ending hours of debate that began Friday morning.

According to a poll conducted by CNN Friday, the House of Representatives has reached the 218 votes it needs to impeach President Clinton.

Meanwhile, a spokeswoman for Gov. George W. Bush, front runner for the Republican presidential nomination in 2000, issued a statement in which Bush said, "The Constitution has placed this very somber issue in the hands of the House of Representatives. I hope they vote their conscience."

If the House votes to impeach the president on one or more of the four articles of impeachment, then the president's case will go before the U.S. Senate.

Texas Sens. Kay Bailey Hutchison and Phil Gramm were unavailable for comment Friday evening.

The four articles of impeachment all stem from Clinton's efforts to conceal his relationship with Monica Lewinsky.

The first article alleges presidential perjury before independent counsel Kenneth Starr's grand jury in August, when Clinton was asked about the relationship. The second article alleges perjury in a sworn deposition Clinton gave in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit.

The third article alleges obstruction of justice by Clinton, in connection with Ms. Lewinsky's grand jury testimony,

Local political experts differ on effects of impeachment debate

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Raging partisan politics in the impeachment debates in Congress will have an effect on the American people, but local teachers of political science differ on the extent of this crack in the collective U.S. psyche.

"It's so partisan ... even people who don't like Clinton believe the Republicans were out to get him and they got him," said Sean Kelleher, a professor of political science at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

"Increased cynicism is a very, very real possibility. ... A lot of people are skeptical of the whole process," he said.

"To listen to the current talks makes one wonder if the debate

Jiang rejects Western-style democracy; third dissident put on trial

BEIJING (AP) — China will spurn Western-style democracy and crush all threats to Communist Party rule as it moves ahead with economic reforms, President Jiang Zemin said Friday as officials announced they would put a third dissident on trial for subversion.

"The system must not be shaken, weakened or discarded at any time," Jiang told 6,000 members of the political elite in a speech to mark 20 years of successful economic reforms. "The Western mode of political systems must never be copied."

Chinese authorities put two leading members of the fledging China Democracy Party on trial for subversion Thursday and told the wife of the group's most prominent member Friday that he would be tried next week.

Setting a court date for Xu Wenli on Monday was the most portentous move the communist authorities have taken in a three-week crackdown on the China Democracy Party. His sentencing to prison — a virtual certainty in political trials — would deprive the party of a potent organizer.

Jiang's remarks and the clampdown on dissent countered the more moderate tone Chinese leaders have tried to set as they courted the United States and other governments. China had won praise for signing United Nations rights treaties and edging its legal system toward international standards.

Since President Clinton visited China in June, dissidents have set up China Democracy Party branches in 14 provinces and cities and tried to register the party with authorities, as required by law. But at least 30 members of the party have been detained or questioned in the latest crackdown.

Xu was given a court-appointed attorney, his wife, He Xintong, said — unlike his opposition party colleagues Wang Youcai and Qin Yongmin, who had to defend themselves in court Thursday after police detained and scared off potential lawyers.

'The Western mode of political systems must never be copied.'
— Chinese President Jiang Zemin

The attorney met Xu for the first time Thursday. Xu, 56, faces from 10 years to life in prison if convicted of trying to subvert state power.

"There's no hope," said He Xintong. "I told the court official today there's no way this will be a fair trial."

Friday's phone call from court officials was the first confirmation she had received of Xu's whereabouts and the charges he faced since his arrest Nov. 30.

The court-appointed lawyer, Mo Shaoping, later told her that Xu was in good health, but was being kept in a cell with five criminal suspects at the Beijing Detention Center.

Xu edited an influential dissident journal in the Democracy Wall movement 20 years ago and spent 12 years in prison, most of them in solitary confinement.

He became openly involved in the China Democracy Party in November, organizing the group's branch in Beijing and nearby Tianjin. Shortly before his arrest, he called on party members and exiled dissidents to convene a nationwide congress.

Xu's trial may closely mirror the trials held Thursday for Wang, a student leader of the 1989 Tiananmen Square democracy demonstrations, and Qin, a Democracy Wall colleague of Xu.

In all three cases, officials are limiting access to the court by friends and family.

The indictment also accuses Xu of accepting money from abroad, calling for independent trade unions and making subversive statements to foreign media, the Information Center of Human Rights and Democratic Movement in China reported.

Jiang's speech Friday did not appear to set out any new policies or a vision for the future but repeatedly vowed to uphold the "Communist Party line."

"From beginning to end, we must be vigilant against infiltration, subversive activities and separatist activities of international and domestic hostile forces," Jiang said.

EXPERTS: Professor feels people are left without focus is tied to the law or to some kind of moral imperative," said Sam Manning, a Lee High School social studies teacher.

"I don't know if it will turn people away from government," Manning said.

"People are seeing that if your party is in control of Congress, you can engage in an organized investigation of the president and keep going until you find something," Kelleher said.

There will be some sociological ramifications for Americans "no matter how this comes out," Kelleher said.

"Not permanently, but maybe for a short while," James Bradford said of a possible increased cynicism in the population. Bradford is a political science instructor at Midland College.

Americans as a whole are struggling with the emotionally charged conflicts on both sides of the debate, and the partisan warfare is leaving them with no leadership on the issues, local political experts theorized.

Some are wondering "why we are even discussing his private life," Manning said. "A lot of people don't want to hear about it any more," he said.

> "People are seeing that if your party is in control of Congress, you can engage in an organized investigation of the president and keep going until you find something."
> — Sean Kelleher, UTPB political science professor

People would accept questioning sexual conduct "if it were pertinent in some kind of criminal thing ... if it had some bearing on the case," Manning said.

But many people do not see that kind of a connection in the debates, yet there is no way for either party to turn back from the brink.

"Both sides have boxed themselves in," he said.

The American people are left without a focus in this controversy, said Robert Perry, a professor of political science at UTPB.

"Clinton says 'leave me alone and let me get to work,' but people never understood what that work is ... and the Republican's Contract With America fizzled," Perry said.

Perry believes, however, that the process itself will eventually show people that the system works, which will help heal the rift.

"I think it shows the system is holding (the president) accountable," he said.

"The American people are very tired of this present situation ... but I think in the long run, this will blow over and they will still have confidence in the political system," Bradford said.

Once this is over, the public will settle into a typical relationship with the government, since no major changes are expected, Perry said.

"I don't believe the Senate will remove him from office," he said.

"Nobody was alive the last time a president was impeached," Kelleher said.

In 1865, Democratic President Andrew Johnson, a former Lincoln vice president from Tennessee, was impeached by a Republican House of Representatives.

"There are some cute parallels," Kelleher said.

Johnson missed conviction in the Senate by one vote. No president has ever been removed from office by the Senate following an impeachment by the House.

The Senate has a preponderance of lawyers, and common law rules of evidence will be utilized in any Senate trial.

The secretly taped conversations that first directed the investigation of the president, would never be allowed into a court of law, Kelleher said.

And this taints all of the subsequent findings, because "all those things become fruit of the poison tree," he said.

While none of the experts believe the president will be removed from office, the impeachment show will go on as the most powerful man in the world is castigated for sexual misconduct and lying to conceal that conduct.

"It's like watching Jerry Springer on a national level," Manning said.

VOTE: Few lawmakers decide to cross party lines his conversations with presidential secretary Betty Currie about her testimony, and other issues. The fourth alleges that Clinton lied to Congress in written answers he provided to 81 Judiciary Committee questions about the evidence.

In the House, the proceedings were partisan from the outset. Democrats, underscoring their desire to put the impeachment proceedings on hold until the air strikes were over, tried but failed to adjourn the House before debate began.

Henry Hyde, the 74-year-old Illinois Republican who presided over the Judiciary Committee's impeachment probe, was first to speak. "The people's trust has been betrayed," he said. "The nation's chief executive has shown himself incapable of enforcing its laws, for he has corrupted the rule of law by his perjury and his obstruction of justice."

But Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who served in Congress during Watergate, rebutted. "Impeachment was designed to rid this nation of traitors and tyrants, not attempts to cover up an extramarital affair," he said.

In the hours that followed, the debate was emotional and partisan. Lawmakers sounded troubled at times as they rose, one by one, to read remarks some had written in longhand.

During their 12 1/2 hours of debate, only a few lawmakers announced they would cross party lines.

Impeachment requires "a direct abuse of power ... a crime comparable to treason or bribery," argued Rep. Peter King, R-N.Y. He added that Clinton's behavior, while indefensible, didn't warrant impeachment. Republican Reps. Connie Morella of Maryland and Amo Houghton of New York also told colleagues they would oppose impeachment.

From the other side, Rep. Paul McHale, D-Pa., declared himself a "deeply disappointed Democrat" and said he would vote for impeachment.

Tempers flared just off the floor at one point. Rep. Patrick Kennedy, D-R.I., confronted Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga. for referring to a quotation from President Kennedy during debate.

"Anybody who's been to a racist organization ... has no right invoking my uncle's name," he shouted.

The historical significance of the day seemed to weigh heaviest on the 40 House members retiring at year's end.

Rep. W.G. Hefner, D-N.C., said the issue presented "the most troubling vote I've cast in 24 years" in Congress.

Rep. Frank Riggs, R-Calif., said he had talked to former President Ford and Bob Dole in the last 48 hours. Both told him they would vote to impeach, he reported.

Rep. Tom Campbell of California, perhaps the most moderate Republican in the House, said the Iraqi conflict only served to underscore his belief that Clinton must be impeached. The president lied under oath about Ms. Lewinsky, said the former law professor, yet now wants legislators to believe that the timing of the air strikes is not political.

Campbell said he accepts those assertions, but only because they also have been made by other high-ranking administration officials. "I can no longer believe him (Clinton). If it's in his interest not to tell the truth, he will not tell the truth," he said.

Over and over again, Republicans insisted that impeachment was unrelated to sex, and was being sought because of perjury and obstruction of justice.

But a Thursday evening confession of marital infidelity by Rep. Bob Livingston, incoming House speaker, injected a volatile new ingredient into the proceedings.

From the White House, first lady Hillary Clinton voiced support for her husband. "In this holiday season ... we in our country ought to practice reconciliation," she said, adding that Americans share her "approval and pride" in the president's work.

Senior administration officials said Mrs. Clinton planned to go to the Capitol on Saturday to rally Democrats before the impeachment vote.

In addition, Democratic sources said Democratic lawmakers intend to march en masse out of the House chamber after Republicans crush their attempt to substitute censure for impeachment. They intend to return in time to vote against the articles of impeachment.

Two Democrats, Reps. Bill Lipinski of Illinois and Louise Slaughter of New York, assuming impeachment would pass, suggested Clinton follow the example Richard Nixon set during Watergate and resign.

IRAQ: Soldiers' parents pray for sons in Gulf

(From 1A)

Iraqi military) would shoot them down if they could. We pray a lot."

The USS Enterprise, which carries a 5,500-member air wing and crew, arrived in the Persian Gulf in late November to relieve the USS Eisenhower's air wing and crew. The USS Enterprise is based at Norfolk, Va.

"I'm very proud of him," attorney Barry Beck said of his son. "I'm more anxious about Patrick because he's flying the missions. It's a high-stress, demanding time. We'll be glad when it's over."

Beck said that he is praying for accuracy of the missions in destroying or disabling Iraqi military sites and for a "minimum civilian casualties."

The elder Beck, who is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, served in the Marine Corps.

"I know that they are well trained," Mary Beck said of her son and Mowles. "The whole ship is. And they are in God's hands. And they all do their duty to the best of their capabilities and beyond."

Mrs. Beck said that the two lieutenants "kind of grew up together" and were acolytes at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church in Midland.

Both are graduates of Midland High School and the U.S. Naval Academy.

Beck, who graduated in 1992, majored in computer science. He is married to Navy Lt. Kathrina Lynn Smith-Beck of Chesapeake, Va.

Mowles, who graduated in 1994, majored in political science and earned his aviator's wings in 1996. He was quarterback of the MHS football team in 1989.

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

U.S. Army Pfc. James Brandt flew into Midland International Airport Friday morning to spend the holidays with his family — his wife, Ruby, and daughter, Christina, 1.

Mowles' father, who is a salesmen, said that his son and other aviators were informed in flight school that "'You are the strike force. If you have any problem with that, now is the time to leave.'

"Nobody left," Mowles said.

Following the USS Enterprise's first airstrike into Iraq, Capt. Marty Chanick, in a recorded message to family and friends of the ship's air wing and crew, said, "Your sailors have done a tremendous job ... absolutely superb job. ... We did quite a bit of flying. I'm extremely proud of what they have done, and you can be proud, too."

On Friday, U.S. Army Pfc. James Brandt, 21, flew into Midland International Airport to spend the Christmas holidays with his family, including his wife, Ruby, and daughter, Christina, 1.

"I just came home for Christmas, but they could call us back," said Brandt, a 1996 MHS graduate stationed at Fort Stewart, Ga.

Brandt, who is assigned to the mechanized infantry, is a "dismount" on the Bradley armored combat vehicle. "I'm a ground troop."

The possibility of his being shipped into action in the Persian Gulf area "really doesn't bother me," Brandt said. "I signed up for the infantry. I knew what I was getting into."

GAME: Lee to face MacArthur today

watching some film on MacArthur, didn't have time to fully discuss what this will mean to his squad, but he plans to keep to the schedule.

"We may leave a little later than we planned to, but we're still going down there today (Friday) and spend the night," Parchman said. "That will give us time to throw this thing together and come up with a game plan. Then we'll go over it with the kids when we get there.

"We're going to show up and play the game, but I don't like the way all this came about."

Belfast peace accord strides forward; weapons destroyed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Protestant and Catholic politicians ended months of stalemate by agreeing Friday on the shape of a future coalition government, just hours before the first surrendered weapons were destroyed in a shower of sparks and burning metal.

The politicians shook hands and smiled wearily at 4 a.m. local time after all-night discussions concluded with an agreement on the future government — the central plank of April's peace accord.

Six hours later, guns that once belonged to the outlawed Loyalist Volunteer Force were cut to pieces, the first weapons handed over under terms of the accord.

"I never thought I'd see the day," said a teary-eyed Michael McGoldrick, father of the Protestant group's first murder victim, watching televised coverage of a gun barrel being cut in two.

"One of those weapons could very well have been used to kill my boy," said McGoldrick, whose son was abducted and shot several times in the head in 1996. "I'm just so, so glad they'll no longer be used to kill anyone else."

The Loyalist Volunteers spent two years targeting Catholics at random in hopes of derailing peace negotiations, but called a cease-fire in May in recognition of widespread public support for the accord.

The man who was the group's liaison with an independent disarmament commission — paroled killer-turned-preacher Kenny McClinton — said the Loyalist Volunteers had handed over a bigger-than-expected chunk of their arsenal in hopes of prodding the Irish Republican Army to match the gesture.

The group turned in nine submachine guns, rifles and pistols, 350 rounds of ammunition, six detonators and two pipe bombs.

David Trimble, the Protestant politician elected to lead Northern Ireland's future government, said the IRA and its allied Sinn Fein party should follow the Loyalist Volunteers' example.

"Something which so many people told us would never happen has, in fact, happened," said Trimble, leader of the Ulster Unionist Party and co-winner of this year's Nobel Peace Prize.

Earlier, Trimble and his senior Ulster Unionist negotiators shook hands with leading figures of the major Catholic-supported party, the Social Democratic and Labor Party, after reaching a detailed deal on the structure of the unformed government.

Two months later than expected, and after a marathon 18-hour negotiating session, they agreed that the government's administration should have 10 departments led equally by Protestant and Catholic politicians.

It would cooperate in six cross-border committees with the neighboring Irish Republic, an agenda that the Catholic side hopes will promote the eventual unification of Ireland.

Reflecting their share of the Northern Ireland vote, three Cabinet posts each would go to the Ulster Unionists and the SDLP, and two each to Sinn Fein and the Democratic Unionists, a Protestant party so opposed to compromise it has boycotted negotiations since 1997.

More bombs shake Baghdad after Saddam tells Iraqis to resist

By Louis Meixler
Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Baghdad was shaken early Saturday by a third straight night of airstrikes, hours after Saddam Hussein, dressed in his field marshal's uniform, went on the air and exhorted his people to continue their resistance.

"By God's will, you will be victorious," a defiant Saddam said in his first national address since U.S. and British attacks began before dawn Thursday.

The Iraqi leader, declaring he would not "compromise or kneel" in the showdown over arms inspections, made his remarks just before the United States and Britain launched a third round of airstrikes from ships based in the Persian Gulf and in Kuwait.

About 1:20 a.m. Saturday (5:20 p.m. EST Friday), anti-aircraft fire streaked skyward over Baghdad, signaling the start of another wave of airstrikes in and around the Iraqi capital. Red tracer shells coursed across the horizon and dull thuds could be heard in the distance.

There were no immediate reports of damage from the latest wave of airstrikes, and motorists in downtown Baghdad appeared to be taking it all in stride, continuing through the brightly lighted streets without pausing or braking as anti-aircraft flak flashed in the sky.

Several hours earlier, there was a moment of jitters Friday night when a loud boom was heard in Baghdad, but it turned out to be a cannon announcing the beginning of the Muslim holy month of Ramadan.

Almost all potential weapons sites that U.N. inspectors had been monitoring before Iraq stopped cooperating with them have been hit in the raids, Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz said Friday. Iraq's refusal to allow inspectors into all the sites led to the present crisis.

In announcing the start of the strikes, President Clinton recognized it would be offensive to the United States' Arab allies if the attacks continued into Ramadan.

But National Security Adviser Sandy Berger said Friday that the strikes would not necessarily end with the beginning of Ramadan.

"That is not an automatic deadline," Berger said.

Earlier Friday, a spectacular pre-dawn air raid rocked the metropolitan Baghdad area with deafening explosions, far stronger and apparently more damaging than the first night's airstrikes.

The capital was quiet Friday night despite reports from Washington that U.S. and British warplanes were targeting television transmitters, oil facilities and other sites in a new round of attacks. The main targets apparently were far from Baghdad, such as in the oil-rich south.

U.S. officials said Friday that an oil refinery in southern Basra suspected of engaging in illegal petroleum sales in defiance of U.N. economic sanctions in place since the Gulf War was struck and partially disabled.

But the American officials, speaking from Washington, expressed surprise that so far there had been little resistance from Iraq's military apparatus other than a "tremendous amount of anti-aircraft shells."

The officials denied financial market rumors that a U.S. ship carrying oil had been struck off Iraq but said their air mission, while so far successful, had also had its share of misses.

Gen. Henry H. Shelton, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said initial bomb-damage assessments indicate only a small number of the 75 targets attacked have been destroyed or severely damaged.

"Not all have gone as planned," Shelton told a news conference.

Iraq says the airstrikes have killed at least 25 people, wounded 75, and damaged government offices, factories, a hospital and even a Baghdad museum, where a missile punched a two-foot hole in a wall.

The missiles are targeting "whatever is dear to the Iraqi people," Aziz told reporters.

In Baghdad's al-Kharkh Hospital on the western side of the Tigris River, Amar Shakir lay unconscious on a bed, the stumps of his left arm and leg swathed in thick bandages.

Doctors said the 25-year-old civilian was crippled in the airstrikes. They did not know where Shakir was at the time of the attack.

"You are representing justice and all the great characteristics against injustice," a somber Saddam told viewers, appearing to read from a prepared statement. "You, great Iraqi people, you have raised high the Iraqi flag and you have proved again that you are heroic."

Saddam wore an olive green field marshal's uniform, ditching the civilian suits he has favored in public since the last crisis with the United Nations in February.

He made no specific threats but instead paid tribute to the Iraqi armed forces and the air defense troops who have been firing anti-aircraft guns at the cruise missiles that have raining down on Baghdad.

"We will not let evil triumph over virtue," he declared.

Shortly after the speech, the Iraqi General Command issued a statement saying that since the attacks began, the air defense forces had shot down 77 cruise missiles.

In Washington, U.S. officials made no mention of the claim and said all pilots had returned safely from their bombing missions. Britain, which has Tornado jet fighters taking part in the airstrikes from Kuwait, said the same thing.

Meanwhile, anti-American protests broke out in a half-dozen Arab capitals, with many saying the attacks were Clinton's way of squirming out of his sex scandal with Monica Lewinsky and an impeachment vote in Congress.

"For Monica's sake, Iraqi children are dying," read one sign at a protest at Cairo's al-Azhar mosque.

Baghdad came under an intense missile attack before dawn Friday, following a barrage of airstrikes late Thursday. Anti-aircraft fire and tracer bullets lit the sky over the city, air-raid sirens blared, and the thud of explosions could be felt for miles.

Cruise missiles: U.S. weapon of choice has some disadvantages

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. cruise missiles, speeding to targets with a faint whine and 1,000 or more pounds of explosives, strike deep within Iraq without endangering pilots. But there are problems: The missiles aren't always accurate, they're expensive, and they're becoming scarce.

Defense officials say it will take months to figure out if the cruise missiles launched against Iraq were effective. What is clear already is that concern about the loss of aircrews has made cruise missiles the weapon of choice in combat against Iraq.

As in the Gulf War, cruise missiles were the first weapons launched against Iraq when the latest round of strikes began in the early morning hours, Baghdad time, Thursday. By Friday, the Air Force and Navy had launched nearly 300 cruise missiles, more than the 289 fired at Iraq in the entire, five-week Gulf War in 1991.

Army Gen. Henry H. Shelton, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, showed some of the first results: reconnaissance photos of the Ibn Al Haytham Missile Research and Development Center north of Baghdad, struck by a Tomahawk cruise missile with a 1,000-pound conventional warhead.

"It was the fabrication building that is shown right here," said Shelton, wielding a pointer. "You can see the dark area outlined and the final assembly building which used to stand right here. You can also see significant damage done to the building over in this area just outside the fabrication."

During the second and third days of the strikes, reporters in Baghdad heard and felt much larger concussions. Those were the 3,000-pound warheads of the air-launched cruise missiles, so-called air-to-ground conventional weapons, or AGM-86C.

The latest models of both these weapons are satellite-guided and also contain computerized terrain-following programs that guide the weapon to the target area. A target-matching imagery system then brings the weapon through the final phase to the actual target.

The key advantage with cruise missiles is that no pilots are put in danger over hostile territory. Ships in the Persian Gulf, or B-52s flying outside of Iraqi airspace, launch the weapons. Small jet engines then carry the 18-foot-long winged tubes from 600 to 1,000 miles to their targets at a pace approaching the speed of sound.

"This is a launch-and-leave weapon," said Air Force Capt. Kelly Lawson, a B-52 navigator, in a telephone interview from his base on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia. Just back from the 12-hour round trip to the skies above the Persian Gulf, Lawson said once the missile is launched, the B-52 turns away and its crew will only learn later, if ever, if the weapon was on target.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Hal M. Hornburg, commander of air forces in the Gulf, said, "If we can use an unmanned weapon system to go against heavily defended targets, our preference would be to do so."

These weapons epitomize the kind of push-button warfare capability available to the U.S. military. But they also have weaknesses:

- The engine, guidance and fuel loads carried by cruise missiles limit the size of the warhead, especially in the case of the Tomahawk, and they do not perform well against reinforced concrete targets.
- Cruise missiles are less accurate than laser-guided bombs and they are susceptible to mechanical failure. Tomahawks, in particular, sometimes fail to make the transition from the rocket launch phase to the jet engine cruise phase.
- Numbers are limited. The Air Force had only 239 AGM-86Cs in its inventory before this week's strikes; the Navy has just over 2,000 Tomahawk missiles.
- At a cost of between $750,000 and $1.2 million, cruise missiles are far more expensive than conventional bombs.
- Because, unlike aircraft, there are no onboard cameras, assessing damage cruise missiles cause involves fly-overs by spy planes and satellites.

Supporters rally behind Livingston after affair admission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cracks in Republican support for Rep. Bob Livingston emerged Friday, though many GOP lawmakers said his admission to extramarital affairs would not diminish their backing for his bid to be the next House speaker.

Even as a politically riven House debated whether to impeach President Clinton for actions in covering up his affair with Monica Lewinsky, two GOP lawmakers raised questions about the 55-year-old Louisiana Republican.

Rep. Mark Sanford, R-S.C., said he would be "struggling" during Christmas over whether to support Livingston, even though the speaker-designate had not broken the law.

"We as a party want to hold ourselves to high standards, period," Sanford said in an interview.

In addition, Rep. Spencer Bachus, R-Ala., said the Republican conference should re-examine Livingston's fitness to be speaker.

"You can't criticize the president's behavior as being unacceptable and then not consider this as material, just ignore this and brush it aside," he said.

Still others, speaking on condition of anonymity, suggested that once the House finishes its emotional work on impeachment, they or others might focus on Livingston and conclude that he was too politically damaged to lead the next House.

Conservatives, especially those from districts with significant numbers of conservative Christian activists, were said to be the likeliest to reconsider their support.

The rumblings of discontent came a day after Livingston used a private session with fellow Republicans to disclose that "I have on occasion strayed from my marriage."

His revelation came the night before the House began its historic impeachment debate and a month after Republicans chose him to be their candidate for speaker in the 106th Congress, which convenes on Jan. 6.

There were occasional echoes of the matter in the House's daylong debate.

"Let he who has no sin in this chamber cast the first vote," said Rep. Robert Menendez, D-N.J.

Outside the chamber, many Republicans — and some Democrats — said Livingston's infidelities were a personal matter unrelated to his qualifications to become speaker. Livingston said in a statement Thursday night that his wife of 33 years, Bonnie, and his four grown children have forgiven him.

"My problem with the president has never been his private life," said Rep. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., a member of the House Judiciary Committee, which brought the impeachment articles accusing Clinton of perjury, obstruction of justice and abuse of power. "Bob is a good man who will do a good job."

"I think they're none of our business," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., a Livingston friend, regarding the infidelities. "Anybody who knows Bob Livingston and Bonnie knows they are two first-rate human beings."

Some other Democrats, however, said the episode showed Republican inconsistency in judging Clinton and Livingston.

"The only word that comes to mind is 'hypocrite,'" said Rep. Maxine Waters of California.

Livingston allies were monitoring the mood of GOP lawmakers amid concerns that enough lawmakers might rethink their support for him to put his promotion in jeopardy. They said he met with several wavering Republicans, including Sanford.

The GOP margin in the House that convenes on Jan. 6 will be just 223-211, plus one independent who usually votes with Democrats. That means that if just six Republicans refuse to support Livingston for speaker, he would lack the 218 votes needed to be elected — assuming that the Democrats and independent vote against him.

Many of his supporters said they detected no movement against him, and cast the matter as closed.

Clergy trying to find hope in difficult times

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. John Brudermann preaches loud enough to wake the dead, or at least the men sleeping in the pews at 7:30 a.m. in the Bowery Mission.

It's days before Christmas. The United States is bombing Iraq. Impeachment is looming. And it is already tough enough trying to evoke the spirit of the holidays for men whose possessions fit in plastic bags behind the pews.

"Impeachment ... war ...," says Brudermann, spitting out the words as he stands at the pulpit. "We're living in good times because we're alive. They're blowing bombs over there, but there's a reason for rejoicing: Jesus Christ."

On the third week of Advent, the last nights of Hanukkah and the eve of Ramadan, religious leaders are struggling with how to convey the spirit of the holidays in the midst of melancholy.

"It's hard to hold the impending impeachment, the attack on Iraq and the coming of the Christ child all in the same thought," says the Rev. Joanna Adams of Trinity Presbyterian Church in Atlanta.

The Rev. Eugene Rivers, pastor of the Azusa Christian Community in Dorchester, Mass., agrees: "How can I think about the Advent season in the midst of this squalor?"

In Arkansas this week about 50 clergymen prayed for support for President Clinton and the wars he is waging against impeachment and Saddam Hussein.

Rivers, on the other hand, will be preaching about the "bipartisan cynicism" that he says has led Republicans to "lynch the president" and prompted Clinton to order air strikes to deflect attention from the impeachment debate.

"I'll be watching 'Wag the Dog' as I write my sermon," he says. "Here is life imitating art."

The lesson, he says, is that people should not put their faith in worldly systems. "You have to focus on what's really important this holiday season, which are the needs of the poor and introducing hope in the face of monumental cynicism," he says.

Lawmakers knew they were making history, and would be judged by it

By Mike Feinsilber
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — They hurled harsh words — "coup d'etat," "the politics of personal destruction" "partisan railroad job." They quoted history, quoted Greek mythology, quoted the Bible, the Gettysburg Address, Martin Luther King Jr., the Founding Fathers.

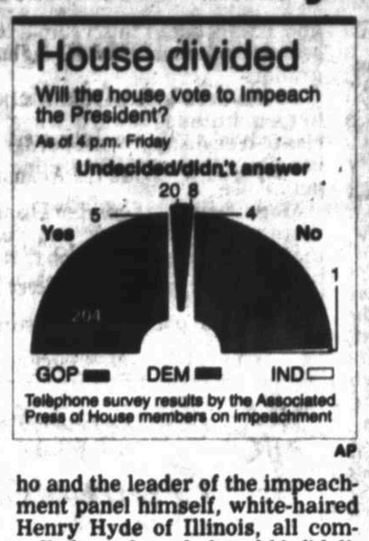
These lawmakers, debating the fate of a president, knew they were making history, and in the process would be judged by it.

Yet for all the magnitude of the House debate on impeaching President Clinton — or maybe because of it — the members of the House generally held their fighting instincts in check. Rep. Thomas Davis, R-Va., said his heart wasn't in taking this step toward the removal of a president. "I didn't want to get out of bed this morning," he said.

A scandal that grew out of a president's sexual affair had unleashed a whirlwind that blew into this building and forced lawmakers to exhume their own sexual pasts.

House Speaker-in-waiting Bob Livingston, R-La. — who kept out of sight Friday — was the latest, forced to confess in his first days of national attention that he had "strayed from my marriage."

The storm had swept through the ranks earlier: Rep. Dan Burton of Indiana, Helen Chenoweth of Idaho and the leader of the impeachment panel himself, white-haired Henry Hyde of Illinois, all compelled to acknowledge old infidelities in the course of investigating Clinton's.



AP

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., shown in this television image, speaks after writing the word "any" atop the crossed-out word "high" in the phrase "High Crimes and Misdemeaners," as he talks about the Republicans' case against President Clinton Friday. Markey said "we are amending the Constitution of the United States," charging that Republicans are crossing out the impeachment standard of "high crimes and misdemeanors" and inserting the word "any" for "any crimes or misdemeanors."

"We are now at the height of a cycle of the politics of negative attacks, character assassination, personal smears of good people," said the Democratic leader, Dick Gephardt of Missouri, deploring that turn. "The politics of smear and slash and burn must end."

Still, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said he sensed a "coup d'etat" in the Republican effort to impeach Clinton. Rep. Jerrold Nadler, D-N.Y., saw it as a "partisan railroad job." To Rep. Rick Boucher, D-Va., it was "a national horror."

And Republicans replied with equal measure: Rep. George Gekas of Pennsylvania said Clinton's "long chain of falsehoods" had "led us to our moment of truth here today."

Rep. Bob Barr of Georgia held aloft a dog-eared copy of the U.S. Criminal Code, accusing Clinton of shredding it. He accused Clinton of mounting "a frontal assault to our Constitution."

Some rancor spilled outside the chamber. In the debate, Barr quoted President Kennedy, and Kennedy's nephew, Rep. Patrick Kennedy, D-R.I., took offense.

Minutes later, as Barr was talking to a cluster of reporters, Kennedy walked up, recalled this week's disclosure that Barr had attended a meeting of a white supremacist group and shouted: "Anybody who has been to a racist meeting like that has no right to quote my uncle."

"You're wrong," shot back Barr. He has said he did not support the group's views when he addressed it last summer on impeachment.

"Their nerves are just a little bit raw," Barr said when the exchange had ended.

Rattled nerves or not, the House ultimately settled into its customary drone. Full at the start, the chamber was almost empty for the lunch hour.

"It's partisan," said Joyce Bockman of Westminster, Colo., after watching from the public gallery. "Nobody's listening. They have their minds made up." A Democrat dead set against ousting Clinton, she came to Washington with her husband to witness the debate.

Outside the Capitol, Mrs. Diane Lee of Salt Lake City said she'd come "to see a little bit of history made." She's furious with Clinton. "He's lied to the American people about more than Monica Lewinsky."

Nearby on the Capitol lawn, positioned so any congressman looking out the window would see, Beverly Roberts, a Washington lawyer, tried to compose pro-Clinton messages with huge letters. She tried to string them on a clothesline with shower curtain hooks, but the wind kept her from spelling out her protest: "H-Y-P-O-C-R-I-S-Y."

Hillary breaks silence; Clinton sticks to tight schedule

By Stewart M. Powell
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — With the House debating the impeachment of a president for the first time since 1868, Hillary Rodham Clinton broke months of silence on her husband's plight Friday with an appeal to "end divisiveness" this holiday season.

The first lady's appeal contrasted to the public silence of President Clinton on a make-or-break day in his presidency. White House officials said the president was too busy working to make public remarks or monitor the House debate on impeachment.

Mrs. Clinton, citing the confluence of the Jewish holiday of Hanukkah, the Muslim holy month of Ramadan and the Christian celebration of Christmas, said the holidays are "a time for reflection and reconciliation among people."

Mrs. Clinton spoke as she draped her arm around Julian Hill, 11, whose 4-year-old brother was killed by a drunken driver.

"We in our country ought to practice reconciliation and we ought to bring our country together and we ought to end divisiveness because we can do so much more together," Mrs. Clinton said, the Capitol dome in the distance.

"I would hope that we as a nation would turn our attention to what we could do together, what we could do positively and how we could build each other up," Mrs. Clinton said in remarks after an event to highlight the holiday efforts of the Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Vice President Al Gore rejected GOP appeals for Clinton to resign. "People can forget about that," Gore declared.

White House Press Secretary Joe Lockhart lambasted a "cynical political strategy" by Republican congressional leaders to force Clinton's resignation.

Clinton will "absolutely not" step aside, Lockhart said.

J. Philip Wogaman, pastor at the Foundry Methodist Church in Washington, said in a broadcast television interview with the Public Broadcasting System's Religion & Ethics Newsweekly that Clinton remains "a man of great resiliency" who is "determined to continue leading the nation in the midst of all this." The Clintons attend Wogaman's church.

With the president's crowded schedule, Lockhart said Clinton was not watching televised coverage of the House debate. Instead, the president reviewed U.S. combat operations in Iraq, held a summit with two European leaders, mapped federal spending for fiscal year 2000 and met with advisers on AIDS.

Impeachment is "clearly an issue that impacts him," Lockhart conceded, adding: "He does not have the luxury of not staying focused on his duties (and) on the things that he's promised the American public he'll do — and that's what he's done."

Clinton notably skipped an opportunity to use a meeting with moderate Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., as a public platform to address GOP moderates in an effort to staunch the threatened impeachment vote on Saturday. Shays entered and left the White House without public comment.

White House aides said that Clinton, who relishes the minutia of policy and politics, was finding comfort in the details of official duties.

"When he goes into a budget meeting, he quizzes his advisers closely," Lockhart said. "He's clearly conversant in all the particular minutia of budget issues that (budget) people need him to be fluent in to move forward."

Clinton's mood appeared to change during the day. The president appeared pensive and determined as he walked past a pair of reporters in a White House corridor as he escorted Shays to the Oval Office area.

A little while later, Clinton was jocular, bantering with photographers escorted into the Oval Office to take pictures of his meeting with European officials.

Lockhart said White House officials are hoping that "with a couple of weeks off for Christmas and New Year's, we can all have a New Year resolution that Congress will come back in the spirit of bipartisanship."

White House officials were pressing the Republican-led Congress to approve a bipartisan resolution of censure to punish Clinton for covering up his sexual affair with former White House intern Monica Lewinsky and lying to two federal court proceedings.

Lockhart said that Clinton would return to work after a holiday break determined to work for a bipartisan compromise to avoid a protracted trial in the Senate.

"It will be up to Congress to decide if they can create a spirit of bipartisanship and a spirit of putting America's interests before their own political interests," Lockhart said.

Drug use levels as teen-agers hear and see more about dangers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Teen drug use has stabilized after years on the rise, the government reported Friday, though it's still much higher than in the early 1990s.

Drug use rose through most of this decade after the intense prevention efforts of the '80s were relaxed, researchers say. But now schools, parents and TV are again focused on the dangers, and researchers say teens are again getting the message.

The annual report has now marked two straight years of steady — and in some cases, dropping — drug and alcohol use, suggesting that the rising trend truly has been stemmed.

"Last year we said there was a 'glimmer of hope,'" said Donna Shalala, secretary of Health and Human Services. "Today, that glimmer of hope is not only still with us, it has actually grown."

The survey of eighth-, 10th- and 12th-graders also found more adolescents disapprove of drug use. And, in a particularly bright spot, younger teen-agers are even less likely to use drugs than last year.

"It's the best news we've had to give the country for some years now," said veteran lead researcher Lloyd Johnston of the University of Michigan.

Teen drug use became a serious problem in the late 1960s, peaking in 1979. It then fell through the 1980s, hitting a low in 1991 and 1992 before beginning to climb again.

Teen drug use became a serious problem in the late 1960s, peaking in 1979. It then fell through the 1980s, hitting a low in 1991 and 1992 before beginning to climb again.

Johnston suggested a cyclical pattern: When use was lower, teens saw fewer peers suffering from the effect of drugs.

"They weren't seeing the consequences," he said.

At the same time, reduced drug use in the late 1980s allowed the news media, parents and schools to relax and cut back on prevention efforts, he said. Federal spending on prevention remained stagnant through the early and mid-1990s.

"All the institutions that might be influencing young people were tiring of the issue," he said.

Now, he and others suggested, teens are again hearing more anti-drug messages and seeing the effects of drug use on others.

"America's team effort is starting to pay off," said Barry McCaffrey, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

He promised the nation would not let down its efforts again. "We learn by seeing others make mistakes," he said.

Still, nine in 10 high school seniors say it's easy to get marijuana, and the number using is still high, said Chuck Thomas of the Marijuana Policy Project, which supports relaxation of drug laws.

Nearly one in four eighth-graders and almost half of high school seniors reported smoking marijuana at least once. "What they're doing is not working," Thomas said.

This year's survey found a decrease in the use of any drug among all grades, with eighth-graders seeing their second drop in a row.

Overall, 41.4 percent of high school seniors reported using drugs in the last year, down from 42.4 percent. Among 10th-graders, it was 35 percent, down from 38.5 percent in 1997. Over two years, use among eighth-graders dropped to 21 percent from 23.6 percent.

Marijuana use accounted for most of the increase in overall drug use in the 1990s, and it also is accounting for much of the drop. Use declined among eighth-, 10th- and 12th-graders this year — the second decline in a row for eighth-graders.

There were also hopeful trends in teen attitudes toward drugs. A rise in teen disapproval of drugs is usually followed by a decline in actual use.

More young teen-agers said there was a "great risk" in trying marijuana once or twice, up to 28.1 percent from 25.3 percent. And 45 percent said there was great risk in occasional pot smoking, also up from last year.

But the news was not all good among eighth-graders. There was an increase in the number who had tried crack or cocaine, though the number was still small. Crack use among older teen-agers was steady.

The Monitoring the Future survey, which has tracked teen-age drug use since 1975, surveyed nearly 50,000 teen-agers anonymously at 422 schools across the country early this year.

Government investigating car seats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has begun an investigation into the safety of nearly 900,000 infant carrier-car seats because of complaints that the seat's handle can unlatch suddenly and dump babies on the ground.

The seats are the Arriva and Turn-About manufactured by Cosco Inc. from 1995 through 1998 and the Infant Rider made by Kolcraft Enterprises from 1996 through 1998, according to records at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

About 460,000 of the Cosco seats and 415,000 of the Kolcraft seats were manufactured during the years under investigation.

The safety agency received 82 complaints from parents that the Infant Rider carry handle unlatched suddenly while they were carrying infants in the Kolcraft seats, an agency document said. Eleven babies were ejected, resulting in injuries.

The Kolcraft seat has two types of handles, a standard handle and a curved handle called a smart handle. Two-thirds of the complaints were about the smart handles.

There were 37 complaints from parents involving the Cosco seats, including eight ejections and nine injuries.

Calls seeking comment from Cosco were referred to John Reynolds, an executive vice president, who was unavailable. Kolcraft was cooperating with the government on the investigation, the company said in a statement. Company executives declined further comment.

Earlier this year, Evenflo Co. recalled 800,000 of its combination infant carrier-car seats because of a faulty handle. When the seat was used as a carrier outside of a car, the locking mechanism on the handle could slip, flip the seat forward and toss the baby on the ground.

The Cosco seat is designed for infants weighing up to 22 pounds while the Kolcraft seat is intended for infants weighing up to 20 pounds.

Last Chance Before Christmas!
Inspired by her friend Shari Horne's deep love for the LORD and humble desire to dedicate her musical gifts back to him in praise and worship, Anita sat down at her workbench. She took a straight rod of silver and the ring of the hammer filled the shop. She hammered and shaped and fired until a beautiful treble clef emerged. But she wasn't finished. She wanted more than just a symbol for music. Look carefully. Can you see the dove representing the Spirit of God giving the gift of beautiful music? Shari won't part with her original piece but you can share the powerful message she inspired. REJOICE! is for anyone who loves music and loves God.

2 slain, 3 hurt in shooting rampage in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A city employee whose job was putting up highway signs burst into a meeting at work Friday and shot two superiors to death before being overpowered and shot in the leg during a struggle with two coworkers.

David Cunningham, a 48-year-old union shop steward, was released from the hospital into police custody Friday night. He had not yet been charged.

About a dozen supervisors were meeting in the conference room in the city Streets Department's Traffic Signal & Sign Shop in north Philadelphia at 9:29 a.m. at the time of the attack, Police Commissioner John Timoney said. Police had no motive.

Cunningham, a semiskilled laborer, fatally shot Gerald Ebbecke, 53, chief traffic engineer, Timoney said. Simultaneously, Cunningham reached into his back pocket and produced another automatic weapon and fired more rounds, killing signal operator Irvin Oliver, 44.

Two other men at the conference table, Herbert Oliver, a crew chief, and storeroom supervisor Lester Johnson, fought Cunningham for the gun, Timoney said. More shots were fired during the struggle, one hitting Cunningham in the leg.

"Mr. Johnson continued to struggle and was able to get Cunningham under control, and — basically in a fierce struggle for his life — rendered Cunningham unconscious," Timoney said.

Herbert Oliver, wounded in the right leg, was hospitalized in good condition. He is not related to Irvin Oliver.

Tito Torres, a sign fabricator, described Cunningham as a good worker who had never caused trouble, but he and other employees said they heard that Cunningham had been under stress because of illness in the family.

Two other men were hurt, though none of their injuries were considered life-threatening.

FDA approves new AIDS drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved a new AIDS drug but warned that it sometimes causes a life-threatening reaction.

Glaxo Wellcome Inc.'s Ziagen, known chemically as abacavir, won FDA approval late Thursday for patients with the AIDS virus to use as part of their multidrug cocktails.

Glaxo says Ziagen is a potent nucleoside analogue, the oldest class of AIDS drugs. It requires swallowing one tablet twice a day without the dietary restrictions of some competitors.

But about 5 percent of HIV patients suffer a hypersensitivity reaction to the drug that can be life-threatening, said FDA antiviral chief Dr. Heidi Jolson.

Symptoms include fever, fatigue, nausea, vomiting and rash, and usually occur within the first six weeks of therapy.

Those symptoms can be confused with side effects from other HIV drugs.

"Physicians and patients would have to be very, very suspicious that the symptoms are likely to be due to Ziagen and err on the side of caution" by immediately stopping the drug, Jolson stressed.

Marker missing from grave of dragging victim

JASPER (AP) — A metal nameplate on the grave of dragging death victim James Byrd Jr. has been missing for more than a month and police said Friday the theft was probably the work of a souvenir hunter.

"It appears someone just went up and removed the nameplate from the grave cover," said interim Jasper Police Chief Stanley Christopher. "No damage was done except for the theft of the name. It's probably a momento (theft) more than anything else."

Christopher said an offense report was filed Friday, but the chances of catching the vandal were slim considering the theft was first noticed by family members more than a month ago.

Byrd's body was found June 7 scattered along a Jasper County road last summer. Police believe Byrd was chained to a pickup truck and dragged to his death last summer by three white men, because he was black. All three men are charged with capital murder in the slaying.

His death sparked national outrage and a re-examination of race relations in this county. Politicians and civil leaders, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson, flocked to this small East Texas town on June 13, when Byrd was buried, ironically, in what has been historically known as the "black" section of the Jasper city cemetery.

James Byrd Sr. told The Associated Press Friday that the 4-by-16-inch metal nameplate marking the grave of his son has been missing for about a month. The family learned it was gone from relatives and the funeral home.

"Well, I don't know what to think about it. It's something I wouldn't expect somebody to do," Byrd told the Beaumont Enterprise. "I have no idea (why)."

The missing marker, attached by two screws, adorned Byrd's casket vault that sits atop his grave in the cemetery. The theft leaves the grave unmarked.

"I couldn't believe it," said Betty Boatner, one of Byrd's sisters, in Friday editions of the Austin American-Statesman.

"Why take it? Why take it? Why take it? It was really a hurting thing. I just couldn't understand why. It just goes to show what people will do."

Bledsoe's status

FOXBORO, Mass. — Drew Bledsoe's season may be over, his fractured right index finger threatening his ability to lead the New England Patriots to the playoffs.
The quarterback, already declared out of Sunday's game against San Francisco, said Friday he's not optimistic about playing the following Sunday in the season finale against the New York Jets.
"We'll see (about the playoffs)," Bledsoe said. "I would hope so, ... but it's really a matter that's going to be left up to our medical staff."
Coach Pete Carroll wasn't hopeful that Bledsoe would be available for the Jets game.
"He may be able to just go gut it out and do it again," Carroll said. "But right now, it's not really going to repair in that amount of time.
"It's not just like a bruise or something. It's a broken bone and it's going to be difficult for him to play next week."
Bledsoe broke the finger when he hit an opponent as he followed through on a pass during the winning drive late in the fourth quarter against the Miami Dolphins. He played the next three games — victories over Buffalo and Pittsburgh before a 32-18 loss to St. Louis in which he had trouble controlling his passes.
Bledsoe's current streak of 58 consecutive starts is the longest of any AFC quarterback. Scott Zolak will start in his place Sunday against San Francisco.

IRVING — What was supposed to be a dream game for the Class 5A Small School state football championship here at Texas Stadium today, turned into a helter-skelter, play-as-you-go mystery.

LEE
Class 5A Division II Championship
Midland Lee vs. San Antonio MacArthur

Katy High School, poised to play in the state championship against Midland Lee, was declared ineligible by the University Interscholastic League at 10 a.m. Friday after the school reported that one of its players falsified his grades.

■ Related Story/1A

San Antonio MacArthur, which lost to Katy in last week's semifinals, 14-6, will play Lee at noon today in Texas Stadium.

The bizarre turn of events will make this championship one of the strangest happenings ever in state football playoff history.

Never before has an opponent been changed on the eve of the state championship contest. However, it isn't without precedent, according to the UIL.

Lee's Richards earns all-state honors

From Staff and Wire Reports

The Associated Press Sports Editors have recognized Midland Lee's "Pancake Man" as one of the best lineman in Class 5A football.

Lee's senior lineman Rex Richards was named to the Class 5A APSE all-state team released Friday.

Richards, who has committed to play at Texas Tech, had 105 pancake blocks, including a school record 16 in one game, and graded out at 87 percent. Richards is a key blocker for the Lee offense which is averaging 356 yards per game and is appearing in today's Division II state final game against San Antonio MacArthur.

Making the second team list for the Rebels was linebacker Drew Anderson and defensive back Eric Neatherlin.

Garnering honorable mention was Midland High's Shemond Davis. Also receiving honorable mention recognition was Lee's defensive lineman Ryan Wright.

Wide receiver Roy Williams of Odessa Permian made the first team list as well.

Joining Williams by earning second team or honorable mention honors were Permian's offensive linemen Chris Kerr and Clint Absher, and running back Koefie Powell.

Richards

Also on the first team list is a trio of superb running backs.

Houston Milby's Derrick Arnold, a 6-foot-2, 210-pound junior rushed for 2,211 yards, and his 30 touchdowns, including nine during one game, helped him earn offensive player of the year honors.

Irving's Tyson Thompson, also a junior, had seven touchdown, all of at least 50 yards. He finished the year with 2,115 yards.

Jersey Village's William Kennard, a senior, not only had the most yards (2,221), but he also did it on the fewest carries. His average of 8.66 yards per carry blew away the averages of Arnold (7.18) and Thompson (6.78).

The ninth annual APSE team was chosen by sportswriters around the state, based strictly on regular-season performance. Nominees were selected during the season and balloting was conducted during the playoffs.

Katy, which ended the year ranked No. 1, had two first teamers in offensive lineman Trey Landers and defensive lineman Lance Redmon. Katy was disqualified on Friday from the 5A Division II title game against Midland Lee after disclosing one of its players had falsified his grades.

Converse Judson, which went into the playoffs at No. 2 and lost to Duncanville in the Division I finals last weekend, placed linebacker Otis Grigsby on the first team. No Duncanville players were chosen.

Killeen Ellison had a pair of first teamers in offensive lineman Greg Barnum and defensive back Carl Ivey.

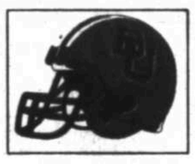
Baylor names Steele as new football coach

By Jim Vertuno
AP Sports Writer

WACO — Kevin Steele couldn't help but call the past six days a difficult period.

After being attacked by one of his players, the Carolina Panthers assistant coach returned to the college ranks Friday as head coach at Baylor.



"Sunday was a disappointing thing," Steele said of his sideline altercation with Panthers linebacker Kevin Greene during Carolina's 28-25 loss to the Washington Redskins.

"And then three hours later I was on an airplane to the highlight of my coaching career."

Steele said the chance to be a head coach, not the altercation with Greene, caused him to pursue the Baylor job. Baylor officials would not say when Steele's interview was scheduled

Lady Rebs rip Central, move to 1-1

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

On the same day the Midland Lee football team discovered it had a change in plans regarding today's state championship game, the Lady Rebels basketball team found itself back on the right course.

Needing to regain confidence and prove something after two blowout losses in a row, Lee showed some tenacity Friday night against San Angelo Central, working through some rough times for a 62-51 District 4-5A victory at the Lee Gym which evened its record in district.

The Lady Rebels (9-4 overall, 1-1 in district) got the tonic they needed with the victory, which put them back on solid ground. They now have a clean slate with which they can plan the rest of their season.

Tampa Bay quarterback Trent Dilfer (12) dances away from Jacksonville tackle Jose White during a game Nov. 15 in Jacksonville, Fla. Dilfer will lead his Bucs into Landover, Md. today to take on the Washington Redskins.

Buccaneers, Redskins switch roles from meeting 2 years ago

By Joseph White
AP Sports Writer

LANDOVER, Md. — Two years ago, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers went 1-7, rallied in the second half of the season and dashed the Washington Redskins' playoffs hopes with a home victory in December.

The same thing could happen Saturday, in reverse.

"They are a lot like we were a couple of years ago, with the bad start and then playing well at the end of the year," Tampa Bay quarterback Trent Dilfer said. "Our challenge is to meet their emotion, on the road, and outexecute them. That's going to be very difficult to do."

Both the Buccaneers (7-7) and Redskins (5-9) have won their last three games. The difference is that Tampa Bay's rejuvenation came in time to make a run at the postseason, while Washington's revival might be just enough to save coach Norv Turner's job.

"We're back in it again, and we're not going anywhere else other than a must-win situation," Tampa Bay defensive tackle Warren Sapp said. "Here comes the four ball. We've got it right in the pocket. Now it's time to sink it."

The Bucs aren't in charge of their own destiny. Even if they win their final two, they'll need a loss by Arizona to make the playoffs for the second consecutive year.

"For whatever reason, we weren't playing sharp football," Tampa Bay coach Tony Dungy said. "We had a lot of turnovers, a lot of penalties that were uncharacteristic of us. I don't think it was pressure from expectations or from guys thinking we'd arrived. We just weren't playing well. Now we've started playing well and hopefully it's not too late."

Except for that last reference to the playoffs, the Redskins could offer the same explanation for their season. Both teams have cut down on penalties and turnovers, while both quarterbacks named Trent — Dilfer and Washington's Green — are playing better leading offenses that emphasize shorter, less-risky passes.

"We've been able to do the same things," Green said. "Neither one's making a lot of mistakes, and we're both forcing mistakes by the other team and taking advantage of them."

The game offers some quirky statistics. The teams have played eight times, with Washington winning the first four and Tampa Bay the last four. The Redskins are trying to become only the second team in NFL history to win six games after starting 0-7. The Buccaneers are trying to win their first December road game in six years — and perhaps end the franchise's 0-16 record in games with a kickoff temperature below 40 degrees.

Detroit Red Wings goalie Chris Osgood (30) stops a shot as Dallas winger Jamie Langenbrunner enters the crease during the first period Friday at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit. The Stars beat the Red Wings, 3-1.

Stars win again in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — It wasn't so long ago that the Dallas Stars couldn't buy a win in Joe Louis Arena. Now they've won twice in five weeks with a smothering defensive style that strongly suggests they could very well end the Detroit Red Wings' run of NHL supremacy.

Ed Belfour made 24 saves as Dallas beat the Red Wings 3-1 Friday night, the Stars' third straight victory over the two-time defending Stanley Cup champions this season.

While extending their own unbeaten streak to six (4-0-2), the Stars ended Detroit's six-game home winning streak that started after Dallas beat the Red Wings 5-1 on Nov. 13. The Stars were just 1-17-2 in their previous 20 visits to Detroit, including playoffs, before that.

Pat Verbeek, Jere Lehtinen and Brett Hull scored the Dallas goals, but the Stars won the game with a defense that frustrated the Red Wings at practically every turn.

"They're a great shooting team, so you want to take away the middle, take away the neutral zone," Stars center Mike Modano said. "We've done that the last three games. You don't see (Steve) Yzerman and (Sergei) Fedorov have the whole neutral zone to carry the puck.

"We've been forcing them to dump it in, and they're not comfortable doing that. They like to have possession of the puck coming in."

The Stars, who have one game remaining against the Red Wings, clinched a season series over Detroit for just the second time in seven seasons. They've outscored Detroit 11-4 in their three meetings thus far.

But Dallas coach Ken Hitchcock remembers well that last year his team was seeded ahead of Detroit in the playoffs before the Red Wings beat the Stars in six games to take the Western Conference finals.

"It doesn't matter until the end of the season," Hitchcock said. "Right now it's more for us than for them. They already know how to get there. These wins are building blocks for us. We need them to gain confidence."

The Red Wings just managed to avoid their second shutout loss in three games when Vyacheslav Kozlov scored with 2:02 remaining.

That ruined Belfour's bid for his 43rd career shutout. He didn't have that many tough saves because his defense blocked a lot of shots in front of him whenever Detroit managed to skate the puck into the Stars' zone.

"We had a game plan, but I guess we just didn't realize what we had to do," Fedorov said. "They always had a player on our player whenever the puck was in the neutral zone."

Rebels fall to South Garland

Staff Report

GARLAND — The Lee boys basketball team had rough third quarter and fell to South Garland 65-52 on Friday.

Lee (6-6) was outscored 20-5 in that pivotal third period and fell behind by as much as 22 points at the beginning of the fourth.

"We didn't play the third quarter and then we got into a little bit of foul trouble at the half and just couldn't press them like we wanted to," said Lee coach Jon House. "We also missed a lot of easy shots. We could've made it a close game but we just couldn't hit our free throws when we needed to."

It also didn't help that the Rebels were playing without their second-leading scorer, Ken Meyers, who blew out his ACL in practice Thursday and is out for the season.

"That was a blow to the kids," said House about Meyers injury. "But we had (Chris) Packer step up with 20 points tonight and Kyle Shatzer had eight, and he's only a sophomore.

"We've just got to get a little consistent. We're kind of lost in certain areas, and then with the loss of Meyers we're kind of in limbo there. We better find ourselves pretty soon, especially with district just around the corner."

Lee next plays Richardson Berkner at 9 a.m. today in order to go to the Class 5A Small School championship football game with Lee and San Antonio MacArthur at Irving's Texas Stadium.

Lady Dawgs defeat Frenship

Staff Report

WOLFFORTH — The Midland High girls basketball took a break from the district schedule Friday and picked up a quality win. The Lady Bulldogs defeated Frenship, a strong Class 4A team, 48-33, in this suburb of Lubbock.

"We beat a good team," MHS coach Jim Raughton said. "This team won the (Frenship) Turkey Classic and they beat Amarillo High.

"It's going to be a Merry Christmas."

Midland High took a 17-7 lead after one quarter, then held off a Frenship comeback. The Lady Tigers closed to within 33-30 at the end of the third quarter, but Midland High held them to only three points in the final quarter.

"They fought hard, they fought hard," Raughton said of his players, repeating for emphasis. "They came out and played well"

Midland High started District 4-5A play Monday with a 59-40 win over Odessa Permian, but the Lady Bulldogs have a long break before their next district game. While the rest of 4-5A played district games Friday night, Midland High hit their first open spot in the district schedule.

With the Christmas break, the Lady Bulldogs won't play another 4-5A game until they open against Midland Lee Jan. 2 — although they'll also play Lee in the Byron Johnston tournament.

"We're playing well enough to where I don't want a break — I'd like to keep playing," Raughton said. "But you can't do that."

Belcher agrees with Anaheim; four free agents reject arbitration offers

By Ronald Blum
AP Sports Writer

Tim Belcher, one of the top free agents left on the market, became the lastest player to spurn the Boston Red Sox, agreeing Friday to a $10.2 million, two-year contract with the Anaheim Angels.

On the last day all major league offices were open before the holiday break, pitchers Roger Pavlik and Bill Swift, and catchers Terry Steinbach and John Marzano rejected salary arbitration offers from their former teams Friday and remained free agents.

The four, who had been offered arbitration Dec. 7, may continue to negotiate with their former teams (Seattle for Swift and Marzano, Minnesota for Steinbach, Texas for Pavlik) through Jan. 8. After that, they would be ineligible to re-sign with their former clubs until May 1.

Belcher, a 37-year-old right-hander, was 14-14 with a 4.27 ERA in 34 starts for the Kansas City Royals last season. He gets $4.6 million in each of the next two seasons, while the Angels have a $5.1 million option with a $1 million buyout.

Boston had sought to sign Belcher, who instead joins Mo Vaughn in Anaheim. The Red Sox, who also lost out on Bernie Williams and took themselves out of the Albert Belle bidding, have made just two major moves since they were eliminated from the playoffs, signing infielder Jose Offerman to a $26 million, four-year deal and right-hander Mark Portugal to a $3 million, one-year contract.

Meanwhile, another of baseball's big offseason dates approached: the Dec. 20 deadline to offer 1999 contracts to players on 40-man rosters. Any player not offered a contract by the deadline becomes a free agent.

Some teams use that deadline to get contract agreements, threatening to let players go free if they don't sign.

Outfielder Danny Bautista, Atlanta's only player eligible for salary arbitration, agreed to a $470,000, one-year contract. With 19 players signed, the Braves' payroll is at $70,845,000, third in the majors behind Baltimore ($75,092,637) and Los Angeles ($71,870,286), according to figures compiled by The Associated Press.

Minnesota right-hander Frankie Rodriguez agreed to a $455,000, one-year contract, Texas left-hander Eric Gunderson agreed Friday to a $450,000, one-year deal, and Tampa Bay left-hander Scott Aldred agreed to a $425,000, one-year contract.

Some teams announced which players wouldn't be given contracts. Houston won't give one to right-hander Ramon Garcia, and Cincinnati won't give one to right-hander Keith Glauber.

Injuries pile up for Jacks in loss

By Ted Battles
MRT Correspondent

ODESSA — A week's layoff didn't bring anyone off the Odessa Jackalopes' lengthy sick bay list, but Mike Ross and Rob Lukacs joined the walking wounded.

That made Friday's effort against the second highest scoring team in the Western Professional Hockey League noteworthy.

The Jacks, who have just three wins to show for their last 11 games, held the Lake Charles Ice Pirates to a 3-1 win, with one of the goals into an empty net in the last seven seconds.

A crowd of 4,138 at the Jack Shack was treated to another tense defensive struggle with Chris Lowe scoring what proved to be the deciding goal with 12:34 gone of the second period on assists from ex-Jackalope Paul Fioroni and Darcy Verot.

"Everybody played a great game. We had plenty of good scoring opportunities and again wound up outshooting the opposition, but just had a hard time finishing," Jacks coach Joe Clark lamented.

Coming after last Saturday's 5-4 loss to Amarillo on a power play goal in the final eight seconds only deepened the gloom over this loss.

Michael Tornquist (4-2-1) was brilliant in goal after giving up a goal with only 3:27 gone in the game as Bobby Wallwork flipped a shot over the goalie's shoulder from 15-feet away. Graeme Townshend, an ex-NHL player, set it up. It was Wallwork's 15th goal of the season.

Odessa tied on Dan Lavergne's ninth goal of the season and first since mid-November with Shayne LeBreton and Terry Flynn assisting with 17:41 gone of the second period.

Before the period was over, Lavergne was forced to leave the game when an Ice Pirate stick raked a cut across his cheek under the right eye with 2:46 left in the period. The game was delayed to scrape the pool of blood off the ice. No penalty was called.

After being stitched up, Lavergne was back on the ice in the third period.

While Tornquist stopped 29 of 31 shots, Lake Charles goalie Bryan Schoen earned No. 1 Star of the game by turning back 34 of 35 Odessa shots to raise his record to 17-8-1.

Lake Charles came into the game looking for some sort of satisfaction after blowing a two-goal lead in the third period at San Angelo Thursday night in a 5-4 loss.

The win raised the record of the Central Division Pirates to 19-10-2 for the season.

The Jacks return to action at 7 tonight against New Mexico, which is on a hot run with a 5-3-2 record in its last 10. After that, Odessa plays the Russian Kristall Elecktrostal Russian team Tuesday and New Mexico Dec. 27 before disappearing from the Shack until late January.

JACK SLAPS: Jasper Morin from Rimforsa, Sweden, had been playing for the German Bundesliga team less than two days before he arrived in Odessa just in time to play Friday... Bo Anderson was given his release to return to Denmark, where he will join the National team... Clark doesn't see any of his scoring threats, Johan Hagman, Christian Wibner or Sami Laine returning before next year... In the only meeting with Lake Charles, Odessa lost a shootout to the Ice Pirates in the season's first game... Ross missed Friday's game with a knee injury, but is expected back soon.

Quarterback Doug Flutie and his Buffalo Bills host the New York Jets today at Rich Stadium in Buffalo. The Jets bring a one-game lead in the AFC East into the Saturday game.

Bills, Jets face off in AFC East showdown

Associated Press

Apparently the only flakes in Buffalo, where it's been known to snow this time of year, will be Flutie Flakes. That cereal will taste a lot better to Bills fans Sunday if their team beats the New York Jets Saturday.

While it might not be white, it could be wet — rain is forecast — when quarterback Doug Flutie tries to lead the Bills (9-5) to a victory that would clinch a playoff spot and also put them into a first-place tie with the Jets in the AFC East.

A win would clinch the first division title since 1969 for the Jets (10-4), who already have made the playoffs. Jets quarterback Vinny Testaverde, like Flutie a backup at the start of the season, is 10-1 as a starter. He passed for 258 yards and three touchdowns when the Jets beat the Bills 34-12 Nov. 8.

In another Saturday game, Tampa Bay plays at Washington.

NFL action Sunday has Tennessee at Green Bay, Philadelphia at Dallas, Atlanta at Detroit, Jacksonville at Minnesota, San Francisco at New England, Baltimore at Chicago, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, New Orleans at Arizona, Kansas City at the New York Giants, St. Louis at Carolina, Oakland at San Diego and Indianapolis at Seattle. Denver plays at Miami Monday night.

Buccaneers at Redskins

A fourth straight win would keep the Bucs (7-7) in the playoff hunt. The Redskins (5-9) also have won three straight and four of their last five. Tampa Bay's Trent Dilfer has thrown 13 of his 18 touchdown passes in the last seven games. Washington's Trent Green has thrown for 14 touchdowns in the last seven games.

Oilers at Packers

The Packers (9-5), who have struggled since going 4-0, can clinch a playoff berth with a victory over the Oilers (8-6), who still have playoff hopes. The Packers' Brett Favre has passed for an NFL-leading 3,806 yards, but he has 21 interceptions to go with 27 touchdown passes. Eddie George of the Oilers is third in the AFC with 1,210 yards rushing.

Eagles at Cowboys

The Cowboys (8-6) can clinch their sixth NFC East title of the 1990s with a sweep of the Eagles (3-11). Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith needs one rushing touchdown to reach 124 and break a tie with Marcus Allen for the most ever. Eagles wide receiver Irvin Fryar needs 20 receptions for a ninth straight 50-reception season.

■ NFL Roundup

Falcons at Lions

The Falcons (12-2) can clinch their first NFC West title since 1980 and also a first-round bye by sending the Lions (5-9) to their third straight loss. Jamal Anderson of the Falcons leads the NFC with 12 rushing touchdowns. The Lions' Barry Sanders needs 145 yards rushing for a fifth straight 1,500-yard season. The Falcons will be without coach Dan Reeves, who underwent heart bypass surgery this week.

Jaguars at Vikings

With quarterback Mark Brunell doubtful because of an ankle injury, rookie Jonathan Quinn is expected to make his first NFL starts for the Jaguars (10-4), who need a win to clinch the AFC Central. The NFC Central champion Vikings, rolling behind the league's second-best offense (393.5 yards per game), already have a first-round bye in the playoffs.

49ers at Patriots

The Patriots (8-6) hope to keep their playoff chances alive by stopping the NFL's top offense (428.1). Garrison Hearst has run for 1,442 yards, second in the NFC, for the 49ers, while Steve Young has passed for a league-leading 32 touchdowns and Jerry Rice has caught 73 passes for an NFC-leading 993 yards. The 49ers (11-3) already are in the playoffs, but can stay in the fight for the NFC West title by winning and having Atlanta lose. The Patriots will be without injured quarterback Drew Bledsoe. Scott Zolak replaces Bledsoe.

Ravens at Bears

Cornerback Duane Starks of the Ravens (5-9) leads all NFL rookies with five interceptions. Bobby Engram of the Bears (3-11) needs 115 yards to become the seventh Chicago player to have 1,000 yards receiving in a season.

Bengals at Steelers

The Bengals (2-10) have won seven of their past 10 December games. Jerome Bettis needs 58 rushing yards for a third straight 1,000-yard season for the Steelers (7-7), who have lost three straight games.

Saints at Cardinals

The Cardinals (7-7) still have hopes for their first playoff berth since 1982. Cardinals wide receiver Frank Sanders is second in the NFC with 71 catches. Wide receiver Sean Dawkins of the Saints (6-8) needs four catches to reach 300 for his career.

Chiefs at Giants

Each team is 6-8 and hoping to end the season at .500. The Giants are coming off the high of being the first team this year to beat Denver. The Chiefs will be trying to win two straight games for the first time since early October.

Rams at Panthers

Steve Bono replaces Tony Banks, out for the season with a knee injury, at quarterback for the Rams (4-10). Steve Beuerlein has completed 63.6 percent of his passes for the Panthers (2-12), best in the league.

Raiders at Chargers

The Chargers (5-9) have the league's top-ranked defense (260.8), and the Raiders (7-7) are ranked second (275.9).

Colts at Seahawks

So far, quarterback Peyton Manning has taken every snap (865 plays) while throwing a rookie record 24 TD passes for the Colts (3-11). Jon Kitna is 3-1 as the starting quarterback for the Seahawks (7-7).

BUCS: 'Skins hope to play spoiler today

(From 1B)

"We would like to get that off our backs at some point," Dungy said, laughing. "I'm hoping it's 75. But since it's not going to be 75, 39 or 40 probably would be fine."

And, of course, the Redskins have a chance to hand back the late-season misery inflicted on their playoff drive two years ago.

"It's a motivation," Washington receiver Leslie Shepherd said. "We try to spoil everybody's chances. They need that one win, just like we needed the wins (earlier this season) against Arizona, and we fell short. We'll try to return the favor."

The matchups favor the Buccaneers. Sapp will be difficult for a Redskins line that has allowed a franchise-record 55 sacks, while Warrick Dunn and Mike Alstott get a shot at a defense ranked 28th against the run.

And with the game on Saturday, the Buccaneers won't have the temptation of scoreboard-watching, which they practiced last week while beating Pittsburgh 16-3 in the rain.

"We know one scenario: We have a chance if we win this week," center Tony Mayberry said.

Reeves leaves hospital after surgery

By Amy Frazier
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA — A tearful Dan Reeves left a hospital Friday, four days after quadruple bypass surgery, and called his recovery a miracle.

The Atlanta Falcons coach said he had tried to ignore symptoms of a recurring heart problem, "but thank goodness I got it checked out."

During Sunday's 27-17 victory over New Orleans, the pain grew worse, he said. Team physician Dr. Charles Harrison, who normally doesn't accompany the team on road trips, happened to be at the game.

"For some reason, and I believe it's a miracle, I mentioned it to Dr. Harrison. You try to be so tough ..." Reeves said, breaking down in tears. "I didn't want to do anything to distract our team."

Calling himself a "walking time bomb," Reeves recounted the series of events that led to his surgery Monday. He stopped periodically to pull himself together and even joked about getting choked up.

"You do break down a little more, you do cry a little more," he said in the hospital lobby.

Atlanta coach Dan Reeves, right, leaves Atlanta's Piedmont Hospital Friday, four days after undergoing quadruple-bypass heart surgery. He is accompanied by Falcons media relations director Charlie Taylor.

"But it doesn't bother me."

Early Monday he checked into Piedmont Hospital, where an examination found nearly total blockage of two arteries and 80 percent blockage in a third. Reeves was immediately taken into surgery.

The 54-year-old Reeves underwent two lesser procedures to clear heart blockage in 1990 and 1991, while with the Denver Broncos.

He will miss the final two regular-season games with the Falcons, who have tied a franchise record with 12 wins, just two years after finishing with a 3-13 record. Atlanta can clinch the NFC West Division title with a victory over Detroit Sunday.

Reeves is expected to recover in time for the playoffs, especially if the Falcons earn a first-round bye, following the season finale at Miami.

"My goal is to try and go out Saturday morning and see our team before they go to Detroit, and just at least say hello to them," Reeves said. "And then my goal is to try to do something as far as the Miami game is concerned. But I'm just going to ... not try to be too tough."

He knows he won't be able to stay quiet long.

"You still have to try to be yourself," he said. "I'll be good until the first bad call. Then I'll go crazy again."

HOOPS: Lady Rebels even 4-5A record

game is that we played as a unit," said Lee coach Elise Kail. "We didn't let any outside factors distract us."

Unlike the Lee football team, the Lady Rebels not only knew in advance about their opponent, but they had already faced Central once this season, beating the Lady Bobcats 52-47 at a tournament in Big Spring. Yet, Lee was a little slow to get started against Central in the second meeting, falling behind 8-3 in the first quarter.

But the Lady Rebels slowly picked up their confidence and took a 15-13 lead at the end of the first quarter on a 3-point shot by Andrea Long. Central tied it early in the second period, but Lee went on a 10-2 run to take a 25-17 lead and never trailed again.

"We changed our pressure a little bit and that gave us more security with what we were doing," said Kail. "We knew we needed to be a little bit more aggressive on defense than the first time we played."

In the second quarter, the Lady Rebels ratcheted it up a level defensively, holding Central (7-7, 0-2) to only nine points and a pair of field goals. Long was a key off the bench, forcing several turnovers and grabbing loose balls.

Even more important was Lee's dominance near the basket. The Lady Rebels out-rebounded the Lady Bobcats 36-18, led by Valerie Morgan's 11 rebounds as Central rarely got any second opportunities against Lee.

"Our inside defense was great tonight," Kail said.

Morgan was a force on the offensive boards, scoring twice on offensive rebounds late in the second quarter to help boost Lee's lead to as much as 12 points. Lee led 32-22 at halftime.

The Lady Rebels almost lost control of the game in the third quarter, scoring only six points. Early in the fourth quarter, the Lady Bobcats cut the lead to 39-38 on a bank shot by Lacey Hohmann. But Lee seized the momentum back by scoring the next 10 points as Central never pulled closer than seven after that.

Christina Brown, who started the game but sat out the third quarter, scored 10 points in the fourth quarter for Lee, finishing with a game high 15. Brown scored eight straight points for the Lady Rebels, twice beating Central's defense down the court on transition for easy baskets.

Brown actually felt that sitting for awhile benefited her when she reentered the game.

"You can see the floor better," said Brown. "You see where everybody is and know where everybody is going to be in each situation."

It was the second straight game Brown led the Lady Rebels in scoring. She came off the bench to score 14 in Lee's 84-51 district opening loss to Odessa High, and had been waiting her turn to crack the lineup.

"I'd been working my hardest in practice so I figured I'd get a chance to start," Brown said. "I think everybody as a team has worked harder. There are a lot of people who can start for us."

KeKe Strambler had 11 points for Lee. Hohmann led Central with 13 points while Jana Johnson added 11 and Erin Hernandez and Lisa Rytter added 10 apiece for the Lady Bobcats.

JV WINS: Lee beat Central in the junior varsity game 45-28. Michelle Kennerly had 20 points and eight rebounds for Lee while Latreika Smith had 10 points and nine rebounds. Tasha Taylor added seven rebounds for Lee.

Chargers' GM gets extension

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Despite a third straight season out of the playoffs, the San Diego Chargers gave general manager Bobby Beathard a two-year contract extension that ties him to the team through 2001.

Beathard has come under constant criticism in recent seasons for the team's poor performances and his draft-day deals. The Chargers are 26-36 since playing in the Super Bowl following the 1994 season.

LEE: Coaches have little time for planning a bi-district victory over Lubbock Coronado after beating the Mustangs on the field of play, allowing Coronado back into the playoffs the following week. That was not a state championship contest, but it was one of several instances the UIL cited to back this decision.

It is a decision that does not sit well with Lee coach John Parchman.

"We were told by the UIL that Katy played an ineligible player and that we would have to play MacArthur instead," Parchman said at 11 a.m. Friday morning, just hours before the team was scheduled to leave for Irving where the team is to spend the night. "This is simply ludicrous."

Parchman feels the decision by the UIL penalizes his team as much as it does Katy.

"We were prepared to play the Katy Tigers, not MacArthur," Parchman said. "I told the UIL that I didn't think this was a fair decision for us. If anything, we should be awarded a forfeit and the state championship.

"Now we have to play a team that we didn't prepare for. You never know what will happen in a game like that."

Still, Lee is gearing up to win a state title. Coaches were frantically setting up tape projectors and forming a new game plan Friday morning.

"We're still going to show up and play the game," Parchman said. "I said once that this was a different bunch of kids we have this year. I've often said that if we told them we were going to play a game at midnight, they would be here at 11:30 and be ready to play without asking who the opponent is.

"Well, now we get the opportunity to almost do that very thing."

Of course, MacArthur may be in even worse shape for the game. Principal Walter Howard reported that band uniforms and football uniforms had already been stored, but said that he is, "excited about the opportunity. It's a good thing for us."

MacArthur coach Van Fuschak also spent a frantic Friday trying to get things together to play for a state championship game.

"We don't have any video on Lee and I don't know if Parchman kept ours," Fuschak said. "We had everything packed up. We almost had everything sent in to get reconditioned on Thursday, but the man who was supposed to pick it up couldn't make it because he had other teams in the playoffs.

"School was going to be let out today (Friday) at 1:30 p.m. If school had been out, we would probably had a bunch of kids cancel flights and ski trips."

Little was known about MacArthur on Friday. The Brahmas, 11-4 on the season, lost to Katy in the state semifinals, 14-6, last week in the Astrodome when Katy pulled out two big offensive plays to win the game in come-from-behind fashion.

Katy, playing most of the game without star running back Bronston Carroll, who had more than 2,000 yards rushing this season, got big plays from quarterback Matt Gore (a 67-yard TD pass to wide receiver Jamal Branch and a 55-yard TD run by Gore).

MacArthur scored first to take a 6-0 lead in the second quarter of the defensive struggle on a six-yard run by Roydrick Runnels. The TD was set up on a 33-yard pass from quarterback Jonathan Schaper to wide receiver Robert Douglas.

MacArthur had only 105 yards rushing and 85 yards passing against the Tigers, less than 200 yards of total offense. Runnels led the rushing attack with only 62 yards while Schaper threw for 85 yards, completing six-of-14 passes.

"We never played for a state championship game here at MacArthur," Fuschak said. "It's an exciting experience for us. This year was the farthest we had ever gone in the playoffs."

Fuschak will bring a sound defensive team to Texas Stadium, a fact that could tell a big story against Lee today.

"We play pretty sound defense," he said. "We don't have a bunch of superstars, just kids who enjoy playing."

Defense makes the Brahmas go and the defensive coordinator is Cade King, who played quarterback for Odessa Permian in the late 1960's.

Katy was supposed to be a part of a triple-header game in Texas Stadium Saturday against Midland Lee (14-1). Now MacArthur must step in and play the game.

The Class 4A-Small School championship game between La Marque (13-0) and Stephenville (14-1) will follow at 4 p.m., and the Class 2A Small School title match between Celina (13-2) and Elysian Fields (12-3) is at 8 p.m.

The Class 3A Small School championship game is set for a 3 p.m. kickoff on the Stephen F. Austin University campus in Nacogdoches.

It was the second time this year that Katy, the defending state champion, has had to forfeit a game this season.

Katy coach Mike Johnston, a former assistant coach at Abilene High in 1980, could not be reached for comment Friday, but he told the Reporter-Telegram earlier this week that he took full blame for the first forfeit suffered by Katy.

"I never let my assistants check the grade reports. That's something I do myself," Johnston said. "This was a case of where I didn't recognize the formal name of the kid, and wouldn't have today if that came up again. We realized our mistake and turned ourselves in. We had to forfeit the game and I expected that. But I did learn through all this that there are a lot of sharks lined up out there when a team with a successful program has a problem. A lot of other charges came out that we were cleared of."

Lee linebacker Bobby Subia, who has vowed he will play Saturday, is nursing a deep thigh bruise. His status is still questionable.

"He's had an ankle problem this year, but it's the thigh we are concerned with," noted Lee trainer Hondo Schneider. "He had a lot of swelling this week. We've gotten the swelling down and he began jogging some Wednesday."

If Subia can't go, Lee defensive coordinator Kelvin Ratliff said, "We will move Paul Anderson to the weak side where Subia plays and move in (junior) Jared Martin in at the strong side. We'll probably use Jared a lot whether Bobby can play or not, to give him rest."

But Lee is mainly healthy. Even fullback Clint McNutt looks fully recovered after giving Lee fans and coaches a major scare last week against Lake Highlands when he went down after hearing his knee pop.

McNutt has 1,113 yards rushing this year. Sophomore tailback Cedric Benson has 1,787 yards rushing while quarterback Jon Rogers has thrown for Lee single season best 1,631 yards and a school record 20 touchdowns. None are seniors and all will be back next season.

The "Baby Back" Rebs have answered every playoff challenge in high style, playing no game closer than 13 points in the five-week run to the state finals. And Lee's offensive line may be coming off its best performance of the year from last week, consistently opening up huge holes against a good Lake Highlands defense.

Tar Heels, Aztecs feel glad to be in any bowl

By Tim Dahlberg
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS — North Carolina and San Diego State share a lot in common for teams which run in different football circles on opposite coasts.

Not the least of which is both are glad there's such a thing as the Las Vegas Bowl.

Two teams that started the season miserably only to salvage respectable years find themselves paired Saturday in an unlikely matchup as the first game of the major college bowl season.

This gambling city might have been about the last place either expected to be after both teams lost their first three games.

"Bowl games are hard to get to, especially if you're at San Diego State," Aztecs coach Ted Tollner said. "We just want to enjoy the moment."

So do the Tar Heels, who began the season ranked 12th in the nation but only qualified for a bowl game on the final play of the regular season.

"We're just happy to be here," said North Carolina wide receiver Na Brown, whose overtime touchdown catch against North Carolina State gave the Tar Heels a 6-5 regular season record.

The Las Vegas Bowl does not have the stature of the Gator Bowl, where North Carolina beat Virginia Tech 42-3 to cap an 11-1 season last year and finished as the nation's sixth-ranked team. Only about 20,000 fans are expected to see the two unranked teams.

But, after a season of turmoil and injuries, North Carolina couldn't be choosy if it wanted to make a seventh straight bowl game.

"We appreciate the opportunity to be wanted," said Carl Torbush, whose first game as the Tar Heels' coach was in the Gator Bowl.

San Diego State (7-4), making its first bowl appearance since 1991, also seemed destined to watch the postseason games from home after losing its first three games, all to ranked teams.

The Aztecs rebounded by winning seven of their last eight, thanks to a good defense and steady improvement by quarterback Brian Russell, who took over in the second game of the season after Spencer Brinton was hurt and has gotten better with each game.

Russell was particularly effective at the end of the season, showing flashes of beginning to master the wide-open passing game that has long been associated with San Diego State.

"It was just our whole offense coming together," Russell said. "I was making bad throws and reads in the beginning. Everything just came together and we progressed at the end."

San Diego State ended the year running for more yards than it got in the air, which came as a surprise at first glance to North Carolina.

"We don't get a chance to see their games but, being on the West Coast, we figured they're a team that can score," Brown said.

North Carolina features a pair of gifted receivers in Brown and freshman Kory Bailey.

San Diego State also will have to find out a way to stop receiver L.C. Stevens, who made 13 catches in his last three games after having only 12 in the first eight.

North Carolina quarterback Oscar Davenport is coming off his best game of the year, a three-touchdown performance against North Carolina State.

"They're a big play team," Tollner said. "Their ability to get the ball downfield with veterans gets your attention."

Austin Westlake also had two honorees: Adam Hall at quarterback and kicker Dan Walker.

Cory Redding of Galena Park North Shore was voted a first-team linebacker and the defensive player of the year.

Other linebackers picked were Brock Stratton of San Antonio Roosevelt and LaMarcus McDonald of Waco.

The rest of the defensive linemen were Warrie Birdwell of Mission, Tyler Davis of Richland and Steven Maruca of Amarillo. Defensive backs included Kobina Amoo of Alief Hastings, Robert Gandy of Edinburg and Marvin Jackson of Galveston Ball.

Other offensive line picks were James Milkavich of Alief Elsik and Josh Rackley of Copperas Cove.

The ends were Artie Ellis of Spring Westfield and Williams of Permian. The punter was Ragan Washington of Jersey Village.

NBA players get back on court for exhibition

By Chris Sheridan
AP Basketball Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Gathered in another gambling town and needy for publicity, locked-out NBA players tried to boost prospects for their exhibition game by billing it as a "gift to the fans."

But this gift, in person or on TV, comes with a price.

"The Game on Showtime," featuring 16 current or former All-Stars, will tip off at 9 p.m. EST Saturday night at the Atlantic City Convention Center. The telecast is available only to cable customers who pay a premium to receive Showtime.

"This weekend is for giving back to the fans," said Shawn Kemp of the Cleveland Cavaliers, "and hopefully people will tune in around the country because people miss professional basketball."

About 8,000 tickets have been sold or given away for the 12,500-seat arena, according to game director Curtis Polk, although a ticket agent was quoted in Friday's edition of The Press of Atlantic City as saying only 574 tickets, priced at $25, $50, $100, $200, $300 and $500, had been sold through his agency as of Thursday morning.

Promoters historically have been wary of scheduling events in this city between Thanksgiving and Christmas — traditionally the slowest time of the year.

Interest also has been kept down because of the non-participation of Michael Jordan.

"We have no expectations that Michael will attend," Polk said.

The 16 players will be divided into two teams. The "Red" team, coached by Charles Barkley, will include Patrick Ewing, Tim Hardaway, Kemp, Dan Majerle, Karl Malone, Reggie Miller, Mitch Richmond and Dominique Wilkins.

The "White" team will include Alonzo Mourning, Vin Baker, Tom Gugliotta, Allan Houston, Chris Webber, Glen Rice, Penny Hardaway and Gary Payton.

"We're going to have a little surprise on the 'White' team coach," Polk said.

For some of the players, this weekend will be the first time they've seen each other since more than 200 of them gathered in Las Vegas in late October for a union meeting.

Some have criticized the players for using two gambling towns for their meetings.

Polk explained that Atlantic City was chosen because it is close to Philadelphia, site of the now-canceled NBA All-Star game, and because it is within 200 miles of several major cities.

Since their caucus in Las Vegas, when an 82-game season remained a possibility, the first 2 1/2 months of the season have been wiped out by the owner-imposed lockout that threatens to cancel the entire season. Players have lost more than $400 million in salaries.

Commissioner David Stern said he spoke with union director Billy Hunter by telephone Thursday but that no new negotiations are scheduled.

"This weekend, we're trying to get off the lockout topic and focus on this game," said Mourning, who refused to answer questions concerning the details of the work stoppage. "At this time of year our body clocks tell us we should be playing basketball. There should be some intensity out there because we're anxious to get going."

Salt Lake committee plans independent investigation of allegations of bribery

By Mike Carter
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — Salt Lake's Olympic organizers pledged Friday to confront a burgeoning bribery scandal with an independent investigation into whether the 2002 Winter Games were bought and sold.

"I'm glad this has now happened," Frank Joklik, president and CEO of the Salt Lake Organizing Committee, said after board members emerged from a 5 1/2-hour emergency meeting called to deal with the scandal.

The committee turned the investigation over to a five-member ethics panel that would, according to a written resolution, be "free from any direction or control" by organizers.

The panel's report, to be made public, will be due no later than Feb. 11.

As the organizers met behind closed doors, the man who brought the Olympics to Utah said the high ideals expected of athletes should not apply to the bidding cities.

Tom Welch, who ran Salt Lake's bid, defended a scholarship program that the SLOC is alleged to have used as a possible front to secure International Olympic Committee votes.

"What I hope happens from this is that there is a better recognition and understanding that goes into the process" of winning an Olympic bid, Welch said.

"You have to know what it is and what it isn't. And it isn't the Olympic competition. It's the business side of it," he said.

And that, said Welch, involves wooing members of the International Olympic Committee, giving them gifts and "letting them know who their friends are."

Welch's comments were lent stark credence by a prominent Salt Lake plastic surgeon, who said Welch pleaded with him to perform free cosmetic surgery on an IOC member in the months before Salt Lake won the bid in 1995.

"Tom told me it was the way in the past and the way in the future that places got these kinds of things," Dr. Rick Anderson told The Associated Press.

Anderson, who would not identify the IOC member because of privacy considerations, said he had already removed a cyst from the man's eyelid for free when Welch begged him to perform the additional surgery to remove bags around the patient's eyes, even offering to pay for the $7,000 procedure out of his own pocket.

Anderson said he did it for free, even though the IOC member "could well have afforded to pay for it."

Welch was not immediately available to comment on Anderson's assertion.

Salt Lake's efforts to cozy up to key IOC members — including providing college scholarships to some of their children — have set off a firestorm over the 2002 bid and the way the IOC selects host cities.

The SLOC executive board launched its ethics investigation even as the IOC undertook its own inquiry into charges that some members and unscrupulous agents may have sold their votes.

High Sky Art

For the fourth Christmas, children at High Sky Children's Ranch have designed their own Christmas cards which are on sale at many local stores. Proceeds will benefit High Sky, an organization that helps abused, neglected or troubled children. The above cards are, "Nativity Scene," left, drawn by 15-year-old Andye, and "Angels We Have Heard on High," by 14-year-old Maricela. Story/2C

Sunday

✔ Behold the Star

Come and join us at Macedonia Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver St., Midland on December 20 at 6 p.m. for a Christmas Musical entitled "Behold The Star." The story is about a shepherd boy who had nothing to give but himself. The public is invited to attend. For more information call Norma Lewis at 684-5147 or Anthony Borens at 683-8119. The church's pastor is Rev. O.J. Archie.

✔ Who is Christmas?

Dellwood Baptist Church invites all to join us Sunday 10 a.m. to celebrate the birth of our Savior Jesus Christ. Dellwood pastor Bill Strickland, the sanctuary choir and pianists Brenda Richter and Kathy Swofford and cast will perform "Who Is Christmas In Christmas." Please come and worship with us as Christ speaks to all our hearts.

✔ Advent

On the fourth Sunday in Advent worship services at First United Methodist Church will continue as usual. At 5 p.m. the youth will meet for caroling and a Christmas party. All other evening activities are canceled so that the congregation can center on preparing for the coming of Christ with their own family.

✔ Fumbly Angels

The Cherub Choir of Greater St. Luke African Methodist Episcopal Church will perform the Christmas Pageant "The Fumbly Angels." The program is scheduled for Sunday, December 20 at 6p.m. Following the program, a birthday party for Jesus, gift giving, and Caroling will take place in the fellowship hall. The Pastor, Rev. J.T. Garnett and members invite the public to attend.

West Texas Muslims: Belief in Christ's teachings a must

What is Ramadan?

One of the buzzwords this week accompanying U.S. strikes against Iraq has been "Ramadan." It has been made abundantly clear through news reports the need for the U.S. to avoid air strikes during Ramadan. To do so would severely damage U.S.-Arab relations the world over.

But what is Ramadan?

According to Ramadan on the 'Net (www.holidays.net/ramadan/), "Ramadan is the ninth month on the Islamic calendar. It is during the month that Muslims observe the Fast of Ramadan. Fasting for the entire month, Muslims fast during the daylight hours and in the evening eat small meals and visit with friends and family. It is a time

Muslims this year are experiencing an interesting juxtaposition of holidays, as their month-long observance of Ramadan coincides with the Christmas season.

Ramadan is the ninth month of the Muslim calendar and is a time of prayer and fasting for those in the Islamic religion. Ramadan begins Monday.

Based on the lunar calendar, Ramadan occurs several days earlier each year, and is currently encompassing the Christmas season.

So while their coworkers and friends have Christmas parties and feasting and Christmas cookies at work, true Muslims will be foregoing all food, water and any form of physical pleasure during the daylight hours.

"It doesn't bother us at all," said the president of the Muslim Association of West Texas.

Hospital chaplain: Guidance through Scriptures can help with holiday hopelessness

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

In his position as chaplain of Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, Alan Williams sees despair and hopelessness every day. As job characteristics go, the two feelings wouldn't make the top of anyone's list of benefits, but Williams, like any other hospital chaplain, is on staff to help patients, family members, friends and others overcome those feelings. The rewards of a hospital chaplain must far outweigh the pitfalls. At no other time of year is that theory tested more than during the holidays, when despair and hopelessness are perhaps in greater existence than at other times of the year.

There are many ways, though, for people touched by tragedy, illness and accidents, to work through such feelings. Consulting Scripture is always Williams' first suggestion.

"The Psalms are such a beautiful picture of a man alone seeking help from God to deal with his despair and hopelessness against incredible odds," Williams said. "Psalm 44 I read today for

Jews debate meaning of Hanukkah in age of commercialism

By Venise Wagner
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — On the scale of importance, Hanukkah is a Jewish holiday that ranks with Purim — far below Passover, Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur. But don't tell David Eiland, co-owner of Just For Fun.

Eiland, who grew up in a mixed-faith family (his grandfather was a rabbi), is bursting with enthusiasm about this eight-day celebration, which started Sunday at sundown.

"The whole thing with Hanukkah is it's a festive holiday," Eiland said with a giant grin. "It has also become a gift-giving holiday."

And there are plenty of goodies to get you in the Hanukkah spirit, let alone put on your wish list: Hanukkah cards, 3-D glasses that turn any Christmas light into a dreidel or Star of David, banners, menorah snow globes, Jewish Holiday Rummy, stickers, stamps, Curious George musical menorahs as well as handcrafted classical versions.

Then there are dreidels of every kind. Dreidels suspended in soap; dreidels that light up and play the "Dreidel" song as they spin; Mickey Mouse dreidels and pinata dreidels.

The Festival of Lights is even going mainstream, as evidenced by the small selection of menorahs available in Macy's Holiday Lane.

Merchants of Hanukkah items have noticed an increase in demand over the last five years. Eiland believes that much of the

Moses is a hot topic — again

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

For the record, Dr. Michael Moshe Nangle said, Moses did, in fact, part the Red Sea, just as the Bible says he did.

In anticipation of perhaps the season's biggest Christmas film release, "The Prince of Egypt," speculating on Moses is the in thing. The prophet was on the cover of "Time" two weeks ago and was the focus of a special on the Discovery Channel late this week.

The "Time" article suggests that the parting of the Red Sea and the subsequent Exodus of the Israelites from Egypt didn't even occur, and that the Israelites merely stood and watched as the Egyptians became wide eyed at the parting of the waters. Another theory in the magazine credits God with parting the Red Sea, ignoring Moses and his brother Aaron, which would throw water on the whole Charlton Heston scene in "The Ten Commandments," not to mention one of the high points of the animated "Prince of Egypt."

LONDON — Few who sing "Joy to the world" this holiday season would suspect they're singing a psalm.

For one thing, you wouldn't look in the Old Testament for such a joyous salute to the birth of Jesus, an event far in the future.

But Isaac Watts, whose great hymns include "O God our help in ages past" and "When I survey the wondrous cross," wanted psalms and hymns to convey a distinctly Christian message to the churchgoers of his time. Thus, Psalm 72, in Watts' version, became "Jesus shall reign, where're the sun."

And he reworked Psalm 98 as "Joy to the world."

In the 250th year since his death, the songs of Isaac Watts remain a staple of the Christian repertoire.

"Simply, he is the best hymn writer that there has ever been," said J.R. Watson, professor of English at the University of Durham.

Christmas in my mother's shoes

My daughter, Caroline, had worn more pairs of shoes than I had in all my life by the time she turned five! This puzzling awakening came when my wife said we needed to buy a pair of shoes for Caroline that matched her birthday dress.

Kituku

Caroline had owned and worn shoes since she was born. Until 1974, just before joining high school, I never owned a pair of shoes. Once, I had worn shoes that Muthoka Kilonza, my friend, lent me on Christmas Day, but I could not be seen in them, especially by my father, "The Dry Season Thunder." He had this nickname because he might burst at any time.

My father, though relatively well-off, thought that if we had "luxurious outfits" like shoes and long trousers before joining high school, they would interfere with our studies. So we did not have shoes and long trousers.

As fate would have it, I became ill with malaria in November, 1974, and I was admitted to Kangundo General Hospital and my mother came to visit me. She was pregnant at the time. In our culture, we did not openly discuss pregnancies and due dates and never between children and their parents! From the way she looked her due day was near. She sat on the bed as we talked about my illness and the forthcoming high school entrance exams.

I was more concerned about the exams than my malaria. This was my sec-

The Good Book: Proverbs (Part 18 of 52)

Overview:

Proverbs is written in the form of a speech given by a father to his teenage child. This "fatherly advice" is filled with wisdom sayings that deal with issues such as honesty, diligence, trustworthiness, docility, control of one's appetites, the cultivation of true and proper speech, and the correct attitudes toward riches and poverty. The difference between the life of the righteous and the life of the wicked is discussed throughout the book. Wisdom leads to success. Folly and wickedness lead to destruction.

Theme Passages:

Proverbs 1:7 "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; fools despise wisdom and instruction."

2:1-5 "My child, if you accept my words and treasure up my commandments within you, making your ear attentive to wisdom and inclining your heart toward understanding; if you indeed cry out for insight, and raise your voice for understanding; if you seek it like silver, and search for it as for hidden treasures, then you will understand the fear of the Lord and find the knowledge of God."

DESPAIR: Chaplain says flowing tears will help get through pain during holidays

my devotions. What a picture of this. But how about Psalm 23, which is his affirmation in the midst of grief of God helping him, grief that is clearly seen in the previous Psalm."

Grief and despair, Williams said, should be viewed as an enemy. Hopelessness should be seen as something that is not a part of the person, but also as the enemy. Despair, he said, is always based on a lie and people should freely seek pastoral help, counseling or support groups when dealing with despair

"It's also the job of the church to look to those who feel hopeless or in despair, that we might embrace them in the name of Christ and let them know they aren't alone."

Darcie Sims, a bereaved parent, nationally certified grief counselor and author of three books, offers five tips to help others who are grieving make it through holidays.

✔Be patient and realistic. High expectations of the holidays make the pain and frustrations more acute.

✔ Listen to your heart and acknowledge your limits. Spend some quiet time before the holidays before the rush of the holidays listening to your heart. Become aware of your needs and express them to your family and friends.

✔ Adapt cherished traditions. An example: if the fact that you won't be buying a gift for your departed loved one saddens you, buy a simple gift you know he or she would've liked and give it to someone who otherwise would not have a gift.

✔ Allow the tears to come, but look for joy amidst the pain.

✔ Focus on the spiritual dimension of the holidays. In this season of light, Sims writes, "remember the light your loved one has brought to your life. Light a special candle -- not in memory of a death, but in celebration of a life and a love shared.

At Monday's meeting of Survivors of Suicide (7:30 p.m., Pastoral Care Office, MHMC), Williams will also speak on surviving grief during the holidays. In his speech, he will make five points, including:

"Reduce expectations you place on yourself," Williams said. "(Also) Don't forget the Internet if you have that access. There are like-minded people who can help you feel less alone as you face things together."

Williams also suggests humor, specifically, "Brother Frank's Gospel Hour," by William P. Kinsella, and thinking of the innocence of children.

"Think of the lullaby hymns and let them bathe you with the hope that children have for the future. One song is 'Away in a Manger.': 'Be near me Lord Jesus, I ask you to stay close by me forever and love me, I pray. Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care and fit us for heaven to live with Thee there.' "

High Sky children design Christmas cards for 4th year

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

When they come to High Sky Children's Ranch, they are more often than not abused or neglected. Others are troubled in some other way.

And when they come, they are asked to draw pictures for the therapists at the facility.

Many pictures show children without hands or eyes. The pictures of people they draw are often very sparsely detailed. The kids may draw houses, but the houses may be without windows.

"Mother and Child" was drawn by Sirena, 14.

To the professionals that counsel these children, images such as these point to a child that is lacking in self-esteem. Four years ago, a program at High Sky was begun that has helped many children heighten an otherwise minimal self-esteem.

Once again, children at the center have created Christmas cards that High Sky, the Midland Fine Arts Center and the Arts Assembly have ensured will make it onto local store shelves.

"Some of the kids draw Santa Claus, some draw elves. One drew a little bear fishing in an ice pond," said Ann Hover, Development Director at High Sky. "I think probably they choose a picture that represents what Christmas means to them."

The messages inside are simple and to the point "Glory to the newborn King," "May the Joy of His Birth Bring You Peace on Earth" or "Rejoice in the Good News of the Season" for instance. It's the cover art that leaves the impression to anyone looking for a unique Christmas greeting.

Fifteen-year-old Andye drew "Nativity Scene," a card that shows Mary, Joseph, a sheep and a donkey in a manger with the Baby Jesus. "Mother and Child," drawn by Sirena, a 14-year-old resident, shows three angels kneeling at the feet of Mary holding the newborn babe. Maricela, a 14-year-old resident at High Sky, drew, "Angels We Have Heard on High," a simple back view of an angel with her arms outstretched at the North Star.

The program has been an effective therapy for the children residents at High Sky. Every year, the children are asked to draw a card that might be considered for the holiday season, and all of the children go into the project knowing that their artwork may very well not be selected to represent High Sky on local store shelves. The kids do it anyway, knowing that it helps them, and even if they aren't selected, there's always next year. The ones that aren't selected for sale are framed and hung on the office walls at High Sky, so all participants are recognized in some fashion.

"This raises their self-esteem big time," said Hover. "They use art a lot to help with their problems."

Local artist Jenny Bynum assists with the art therapy. The artwork is produced through the High Sky Arts Program under the direction of the Midland Fine Arts Center and is partially supported by the Arts Assembly of Midland and the Texas Commission of the Arts. All proceeds from the sale of the cards benefit High Sky programs which serve abused, neglected and troubled children and their families throughout West Texas.

Cards are $9 for a set of $12 and can be found at the following stores: In Midland, at HEB, Wal-Mart, Hastings, Barnes & Noble, Qualified Printers, Albertsons, DOMAIN, The Canopy, Swartz, Lowe's, Expressions, Miss Casey's and Sugarbakers. In Odessa, at Wal-Mart, Walgreens, Alberton's, The Veranda, Mark Knox Flowers and Jonnie's.

ond chance to try achieving the required grades in order to be admitted into government sponsored schools. But Mama kept assuring me that things would be all right.

I suddenly noticed my mother's face changing as she looked around. Her eyes went from the blankets to the floor. Then she stood up without saying a word and went out. I later learned that she went to check the cleanliness of the bathroom and shower rooms and found them below her standards. After she came back, Mama remained silent for a long time. When she eventually spoke, she was removing her shoes, and the words which came from her mouth were the sweetest words I had ever heard.

"Kwata iatu ii mwana wakwa. Nuusyenda sya kukinyanga vaa nasyo" ... Have these shoes my child. You will need them to walk around here. The shoes were safari boots, which is acceptable for both sexes. My mother did not want me to walk barefoot on unsanitary floors. It dawned on me that the change in my mother's countenance was because of this heavy decision she had to make, and more so on how she was to explain the situation to my father.

I wore those shoes until I was discharged. I did not know whether to keep wearing the shoes or give them back to my mother. But since I was not yet in high school, when I could officially wear shoes, I knew the best thing to do was to give them back. When I did, my mother said, "You can keep them. You need them to keep your feet warm."

"But, Mama what will Dad say when he sees me in these shoes?" I inquired.

"I have talked to him about your situation," Mama said with confidence.

A few weeks later, I sat for the exams, but I could not wait for Christmas.

While we did not have Christmas gifts, people wore new clothes on Christmas Day. During this Christmas, I walked in our one-street town with dignity. Life had started to have new meaning and fulfillment. I was worthy and had an identity. I wanted everybody to see my shoes — I stood tall. Most importantly, I did not have to enjoy my Christmas on my father's back.

I learned some life lessons in my predicament. One is, that every life turbulence has a rainbow behind it. Malaria led to my first ownership of a pair of shoes. Each individual has to see the peaks behind the valleys in life.

The most important lesson was that in Christmas, the greatest gift is that which gives meaning to an individual's life. This relates well with the gift God gave mankind: eternal life for those who will accept His grace.

You may not have the means of giving traditional Christmas gifts, but a call to someone may make a difference. Lending a helping hand in the local soup kitchen is a gift, too. Helping people understand the meaning and worth of Christmas is a gift. And a good gift to oneself is being in God's plan of salvation, which is the ultimate reason for Christmas.

RAMADAN: Month celebrates the time Muslims feel Muhammed was given Koran of worship and contemplation. A time to strengthen family and community ties.

"The month of Ramadan is also when it is believed the Holy Koran 'was sent down from heaven, a guidance unto men, a declaration of direction, and a means of Salvation."

The celebration of Ramadan by those Muslims in the United States begins Dec. 20. Then, Dec. 27 is Laylat-al-Qadr, or, "The Night of Power," believed to be the night when the prophet Muhammed first received the revelation of the Holy Koran. According to the Koran, this is when God determines the course of the world for the following year.

According to the Holy Koran, during Ramadan, "One may eat and drink at any time during the night, "until you can plainly distinguish a white thread from a black thread by the daylight: then keep the fast until night."

The Internet site goes on to explain that the good that comes with the fast of the Ramadan can be destroyed by five things: the telling of a lie, slander, denouncing someone behind his back, a false oath, and greed or covetousness -- sins that are considered offensive at all times but most offensive during Ramadan.

How Do You Measure the Growth of A Child?
Unfortunately for children living in some of the poorest countries in the world, it takes more than fading marks on a wall.
Childreach, one of the oldest and largest child sponsorship organizations, measures growth by the number of hospitals, wells for clean water, and self-help programs we build in partnership with the proud families and communities where our sponsored children live.
Childreach is not a quick fix or a handout. It is child sponsorship at its best—a caring, continuing relationship that leads to measurable progress over time.
So when you become a Childreach sponsor and receive pictures and letters that speak of hope, you'll know that you have helped to make a real difference in the lives of a needy child, family, and community overseas.

MUSLIMS: Giving portion of wages to poor a Muslim belief

(From 1C)

"They (non-Muslims) will not know what we're doing and will not know what we are going through — but God does," he said.

A group of local Muslims took some time before their evening prayers to discuss their beliefs, and while they asked that their names not be used, they said they would welcome anyone wishing to learn more about Islam.

The Permian Basin's only masjid, or mosque, is located at 1200 S. Midland Drive and draws worshipers from Monahans to Big Spring.

Muslims pray at regular hours five times each day, so people are in and out of the mosque at all hours.

At 1:30 p.m. each Friday, however, local Muslims gather for a social and worship session.

Self-denial is an integral part of the observance of Ramadan, and foregoing food while surrounded by Christmas goodies just adds to the experience.

Although most Christians do not know it, Muslims know and practice many of the teachings of Jesus Christ, so the Christmas season blends well with their religion.

Islam came about by the teachings of the Prophet Muhammad 600 years later than Christianity and Muhammad did not negate Christ's words with his own, local Muslims said.

"You have to believe in the teachings of Jesus Christ, or you can't be a Muslim," the president said.

The practice of fasting, however, is very much different than the way Christians behave during this season, but the fasting is integral to this most-intimate time between the Muslim and God.

In addition to the daily prayers, during Ramadan the devout Muslim also offers the Taraweeh, or night prayer, which can last two to three times longer than the regular daily prayers.

This need for fasting is outlined in the Muslim holy book, the Koran (also spelled Quran and Q'ran).

"The Koran was revealed by God, through the Archangel Gabriel, to the Prophet Muhammad," he said.

One local Muslim, a physician, pointed out that fasting is actually good for the body, as well as being good for the worshiper's spiritual well being.

In doing without water during the daylight hours, when the first sip of water is taken after the sun goes down — the Muslim is assisted in his appreciation of the works of God, they said.

"You appreciate that moment in time — the creation of water — and you appreciate the benefits that come from God," the physician said.

"How can you appreciate the suffering of the poor unless you have felt hunger yourself?," the president said.

Part of the rules to living a proper life through Islam is the giving of a portion of one's earnings to help the poor, he said.

While they will spend Christmas Day fasting, local Muslims will observe Id-al-Fitr, the feast of fast breaking that follows Ramadan. Id-al-Fitr is a family-oriented time of gift-giving and celebration, according to the Islamic Society of North America.

Local Muslims are eager to discuss their beliefs with others, believing that the world's news reports shed a bad light on all followers of Islam.

While a few Middle Eastern sects teach vengeance on perceived wrongs, true Islam commands the faithful to be non-violent.

"True Islam does not believe in sects," he said.

In the terrorist-provoking sects, it is always one disturbed cleric at the heart of the trouble, they said. The religion as a whole forbids any violence and only allows followers to respond with force when they, their family or community is under direct attack.

Inferring violence on all of the world's two billion Muslims would be as unfair as judging Christians by the actions of David Koresh or Jim Jones.

The followers of Islam pray with their foreheads touching the rug or carpet to demonstrate their humility before God, they said.

"Everything we do is to praise God," he said.

The five pillars of the Muslim faith include the belief that there is one God and Muhammad is his prophet, worship and prayer, fasting, charity to the poor and finally, a pilgrimage to Mecca for those who can afford it.

MOSES: Prophet, Jesus acted as intermediaries between God, humanity

(From 1C)

Much About The Bible (Eagle Brook Morrow), by Kenneth C. Davis, also casts doubt on both the number of Israelites that supposedly escaped Egypt, as well as whether they crossed the Red Sea or some other body of water.

But Nangle, a Jewish Scholar who recently moved to Midland from Hollywood, Fla., has little doubt that the Bible's version supercedes anything written by a weekly newsmagazine or a "Don't Know Much About ..." book.

"It was crossed," Nangle assured. "The Bible said the water stood up like a wall. Some people take the Bible yam suf, which is Hebrew for 'to receive literally.' But they have found evidence in the Red Sea that there was probably a place where they crossed. Some people think they crossed over in ankle-deep water, but how did the entire Egyptian army drown in ankle-deep water?"

Nangle, a Jewish Christian, lectures and teaches, with a specialty in the Tabernacle, depicted in Exodus 25. He received his doctorate in theology from the International Seminary in Hollywood, Fla. He currently travels frequently to El Paso to tape a television program on a local station, and in Midland he was the November featured speaker at the Midland Ministerial Alliance, a group of local ministers.

What is interesting to note, and what both Nangle and Davis agree on, are the similarities between Moses and Jesus. Moses, Davis writes, is for Christians, "the symbolic model for Jesus. Moses is saved after a king orders the Jewish babies killed. Jesus is saved after a king orders babies killed. Moses parts the waters; Jesus calms and walks on the waters. Moses spends 40 days in the wilderness; Jesus spends 40 days in the wilderness. Moses goes to the mountain and gives a sermon; Jesus gives a sermon on the mount. Moses delivers the covenant. Jesus delivers the new covenant."

According to Nangle, one of the main similarities between the two was that, "God told Moses He would raise up a prophet like him and they were to listen to Him. Jesus made the statement, 'I am He,' and he was making a reference to that statement.

"Moses was humble. The humblest of all men. Moses was a giver of law and law must contain grace, and Jesus gives us grace. Grace must be done according to God's law. Moses was an intermediary between God and humanity. Jesus was an intermediary between humanity and God."

Another disputed area is the location of Mt. Sinai. One graphic lists eight possible locations of the mountain where Moses received the Ten Commandments ffom God.

"Many believe Mt. Sinai to be in the Gulf of Aquaba, which is in Saudi Arabia," Nangle said, and Paul refers to Mt. Sinai as being in Saudi Arabia."

JEWS: Some fear Hanukkah susceptible to ever-increasing commercialism commercial popularity stems from the contagious buying frenzy that takes place around this time of year.

The sales, the advertisements, the dazzle and sparkle are attractive and hard to resist, as they tug and entice the senses. People get into it, he said.

As if it's not bad enough that Christmas is marked by the number of shopping days left rather than its spiritual significance, some fear the growing consumer fervor for Hanukkah could make it increasingly susceptible to commercial influences.

"The holiday season is the time when Jews realize they are not part of the mainstream culture," said Rabbi Stephen S. Pearce of Temple Emanu-El in San Francisco. "So they are trying to compensate by competing. Something that was originally a minor holiday has been elevated to the same level of significant holidays like Rosh Hashana, Yom Kippur and Passover."

While there is concern that the trend could prove detrimental to religious integrity, Eiland is unfazed.

"It's getting commercialized, but it's fun and tasteful," he said. "I look at it differently. There are so many mixed marriages. So kids don't lose sight of their heritage, (adults) have to make it fun to learn what the holiday traditions are."

The gifts are often educational and focus on one aspect of the Hanukkah story, he said, so it's an opportunity to pass on the tradition and the culture.

The post-biblical story of the revolt of the Maccabees under Hellenist oppression is filled with messages of freedom, hope, miracles and righteousness overcoming domination.

When the Maccabees returned victorious to their defiled temple in Jerusalem, they found only one vial of oil to rekindle the eternal flame. With so little oil, the flame should have burned for no more than a day. But it burned for eight. Hanukkah is the festival that celebrates the rededication of the temple.

Joel Bashevkin, director of finance and administration at the Jewish Museum in San Francisco, said the Jewish tradition is full of such tales that strengthen Jewish identity, particularly when everyone is assaulted with Christmas advertising.

"Just because it's a minor holiday doesn't mean it's lost on the radar," Bashevkin said. "There are some great lessons that are behind the holiday."

Rabbi Howard Zack, of the orthodox Congregation Beth Jacob in Oakland, Calif., struggles with the December dilemma. On the one hand, he does not approve of people seeking meaning or their identity in consumer goods. At the same time, he understands the difficulty of fighting the tug to the cash register.

"I'm somewhat conflicted," he said. "As a minority culture and a minority that has chosen in large part to assimilate in the culture, when you see Jewish symbols (in store windows) you can't help but be drawn toward that."

Faith Opportunities in the Permian Basin, Sunday-Thursday

Sunday

✔ Community of Joy

Community of Joy, a contemporary outreach service of First United Methodist Church, meets each Sunday at 10:45 a.m. at Cole Theatre 2000 W. Wadley. Tomorrow the message, "He Lived Among Us" taken from John 1:10-14 will be presented by Rev. John Rech. It will center on the wonder of Jesus coming to earth in the flesh. The drama will be "Stolen Jesus" while the Joyful Noise Band will sing as the special 'This Baby' by Steven Curtis Chapman. On December 27th, the message, "Hording or Releasing" will concern having a vision for building God's Kingdom instead of our own. They Joyful Noise Band will sing "Mary, Did You Know" by Mark Lowry while the drama will be the monologue reading, 'Nativity.' Dress for the service is casual and all are welcome to attend.

✔ Candlelight Christmas

In celebration of the third Sunday of Advent, the combined choirs of St. Luke's United Methodist Church will present Benjamin Harlan's "A Candlelight Christmas" at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Fellowship Hall, 3011 W. Kansas Ave. The cantata will focus on "Promise of the Light," "Coming of the Light," "Proclaiming the Light" and "Sharing the Light." The choirs are directed by Bert W. Bostic, minister of program and music, and accompanied by members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony. The cantata will be narrated by Paul Bauernfiend, intern at St. Luke's UMC. A reception will be held in the foyer of the church following the program. Handbell music will be provided by the Joy Ringers, Youth Bells and Chapel Bells. The church's senior pastor, the Rev. Richard W. Edwards, invites the public to attend.

COMPOSER: Watts' hymn writing began from dissatisfaction of translations lished last year by Oxford University Press, includes a large chapter on Watts.

"What he does is to take all the elements of post-Reformation religious expression — metrical psalms, divine lyrics, the first stabs at hymn writing — and forges them into one magnificent art," Watson said. "I think he is an extraordinarily clear writer, wonderfully direct, and pierces to the heart of things, as great poetry should."

Watts wrote more than 600 psalms and hymns. His contemporary, the lexicographer and critic Samuel Johnson, said Watts "was one of the first who taught the Dissenters to write and speak like other men, by showing them that elegance might consist with piety."

Watts died on Nov. 25, 1748, and commemorations of the 250th anniversary centered on his native Southampton. He is recalled in that city every four hours when the clock in the Civic Center chimes the tune of "O God our help in ages past." (Watts' original version was "Our God, our help" — the revision was by John Wesley.)

The Rev. Cliff Bembridge of Avenue St. Andrew's United Reformed Church in Southampton said Watts' hymns continue to appeal because of their simplicity and their depth.

"He had a wonderful ability to put across deep theological concepts in language ordinary people could relate to," Bembridge said.

Born July 17, 1674, Watts was the son of a dissenter who refused to conform to the Church of England and was in prison when Watts was born. However, the boy had a privileged upbringing, being schooled in Latin, Greek and French.

His hymn-writing stemmed from his dissatisfaction with the practice at the time of singing versified translations of the Psalms.

"To see the dull indifference, the negligent and thoughtless air that sits upon the faces of a whole assembly, while the psalm is upon their lips, might tempt even a charitable observer to suspect the fervency of their inward religion," he once declared.

In one of his hymn books, Watts summarized his method and aims:

"I have entirely omitted several whole psalms, and large pieces of many others; and have chosen out of all of them, such parts only as might easily and naturally be accommodated to the various occasions of Christian life, or at least might afford us some beautiful allusions to Christian affairs ...

"Where the Psalmist uses sharp invectives against his personal enemies, I have endeavored to turn the edge of them against our spiritual adversaries, sin, Satan, and temptation. Where the flights of his faith and love are sublime, I have often sunk the expressions within the reach of an ordinary Christian."

And where the psalms referred to "Israel," Watts might well substitute "Britain," as in his version of Psalm 47, which includes the phrase "the British islands are the Lord's, there Abraham's God is known."

"Joy to the world," so prominent in American celebrations of Christmas, is largely unknown in Britain, and is only now beginning to spread through the hymnals.

The song's popularity in the United States owes much to Lowell Mason, the Presbyterian hymn composer. Mason paired Watts' words with an English tune, "Antioch," in a collection titled "Occasional Psalm and Hymn Tunes, Selected and Original," published in 1836.

True Lite Christian Fellowship raises $15,000 for renovation, construction

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

Work has begun at True Lite Christian Fellowship, 1201 Tejas, on renovating the church and building a new sanctuary, improvements made possible after a banquet helped raised $15,000.

Over 300 people of all denominations attended the banquet to help the church.

"We've never had the funds until now to complete it," said Robert Williams, a member of the church's elders, and also its choir director and a Sunday School teacher. "We've thought several times the Lord is leading us to maybe sell the building and move closer to town. We tried that and it didn't work, so we knew the Lord's hand was not in that. Over the last couple of months we realized God wanted us to raise funds to improve the sanctuary we have."

Over 300 people of all denominations attended the banquet to help the church.

"It was phenomenal. A lady brought it to the attention of our pastor, Roy Smith, and asked him if he had planned that the banquet happen this way. She said, 'Do you realize how many denominations are here tonight?' There were Baptists, Pentecostals, Episcopals, Methodists. There were people there that were influential in the community and people that were not. And they were all there for one common reason -- to assist God's people, and that was the joy of the whole thing."

In fact, Williams said, "the Lord gave Roy a vision a while ago as far as a sanctuary. In the vision, we were to only go to God's people for any assistance as far as moneys were concerned. That's where the banquet came in."

Williams said the church's goal for expansion and renovation completion is $50,000. The funds raised at the banquet, though, will help the project get off to a good start, something volunteers at the church have already done.

"What we've done so far is we've knocked down one of the walls, but even with that, at the 11 o'clock service there's still not enough room."

Additional children's classrooms and the paving of the church parking lot are also on the agenda. Expanding the church's Bread of Heaven ministry, which provides meals for the needy, is also hoped for by church officials.

"Our ultimate goal would allow us to build a new sanctuary, extend the present classrooms, allow us to pave and do any other maintenance, such as to chairs and carpet," Williams said.

Church members and volunteers are doing all the work. No one has been contracted. "It's probably just 10-12 guys at our church doing all the work," Williams said. "On most Saturdays, we're down there from 9 in the morning until 3.

"We really want to thank everyone who has given a donation or said a prayer for us. Our church is just a prayer away."

True Lite Christian Fellowship was founded in 1991 when 20 people met weekly in the living room of Smith's home. In the almost eight years, membership has grown to 150.

Sunday School is at 9:30 a.m.; worship service begins at 11 a.m. Wednesday night Bible study starts at 7 p.m.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll have: 5-Dymanic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Dec. 19, 1998:
Build security this year. Making and saving money could become very important. You might decide on a big investment or purchase of a home. You will fulfill one wish or desire. You possess a certain charm and magic, drawing others easily. Your choices reflect your appeal, emotionally and materially. If you are single, a special person enters the picture. You could hear wedding bells! If attached, you give much more of yourself to your relationship, resulting in a much better rapport. CAPRICORN adores you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Passions run high. Someone is means well, but lures you in with a heavy agenda. Despite your strong will, you'll need to be responsive to this person because of the role he plays in your life. Don't lose your temper; just play along. Tonight: A must-show.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Choose the high road. Your compassionate feelings are aroused. Don't trigger; maintain perspective. You might have too much to do. A choice needs to be made between relating or getting it all done. You might figure out a way to do both! Tonight: A Christmas happening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Get into the moment. Don't sweat the details. One-to-one relating takes priority. A child or friend might want to get into a favorite Christmas pastime. Where the action is might not be your required destination: Discuss what you want from each other. Tonight: Make it cozy and warm.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Others seek you out. You cannot resist one particular person, so why try? Socializing and enjoying the holiday season happen naturally. A family member throws many temper tantrums, Obviously, he is not in the same convivial mood as you are, but he needs your attention. Tonight: The party circuit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You might feel frantic with all you need to accomplish, wanting to take time and enjoy each holiday chore. Visit with a friend or two and sip an eggnog. As you relax, everything seems doable. Listen to holiday music. Swap gift ideas. Tonight: Do what you want!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Laughter marks your day. Take off with a loved one or child and make the holidays happen. As you do errands or participate in a fun hobby together, your feelings become even clearer. Bonding continues to be intense. Tonight: Be reasonable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Finish home decorating or any other projects. Bringing family together for a celebration adds to the spirit of the holidays. Energy is high; you'll get a lot done. Be patient with a loved one who might need some extra attention. Tonight: Relax under the twinkly lights.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Get an early start. Do something special for a loved one. Take time and think about this person in what you say and do. Resentment could come out if you need to change plans. Learn to express disappointment before it builds. Tonight: Out and about.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Indulge others, yourself and/or that special person. Be careful not to forget an important get-together in the midst of all that merry-making. Be realistic about spending. You could easily lose your temper if plans fall short of your expectations. Tonight: Relish the moment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ You are personality-plus. A boss or an authority figure could become demanding. They could easily lose his temper because the holidays could be getting to him. Be understanding and sensitive. Your caring comes through; you draw in others. Tonight: Whatever you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Take a back seat and don't lose your cool. Your feelings are very sensitive, and you might misread someone. Check out new acquaintances with care. In several days your perspective could change. Adjust plans to fit your needs. Tonight: Do what feels right for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Join friends, head for the parties and celebrate life. A partner could be annoyed by your social streak. Don't let an argument develop. Keep long-term goals in mind when dealing with others. You don't want to burn any bridges in the impulse of the moment. Tonight: Have fun.

Diana's mom: Conspiracy theories painful

LONDON — Princess Diana's mother lashed out at conspiracy theorists who suspect her daughter's death was no accident.

Frances Shand Kydd said the pain those theories cause is like "having repetitive major emotional surgery without an anesthetic."

"I trawled the depths of my imagination, alongside extensive factual knowledge, and found no shred of evidence to support the stories," she said.

Mrs. Shand Kydd spoke at a London church Thursday at a remembrance service for families of dead children.

Diana died in a car crash in Paris in 1997. The French investigation continues, but alcohol and speeding are considered the main causes.

Mrs. Shand Kydd did not cite any of the theories but condemned "those who got lost in the moral maze, abandoned trust and told and sold their stories, those who had no story and invented utterly painful theories on her death."

LONDON — Giving his first cyber-interview, Paul McCartney chatted with fans, gave away his mashed potato recipe and talked about his late wife, Linda.

Paul McCartney chatted with fans in his first cyber-interview.

The session, held Thursday to promote Mrs. McCartney's posthumous album, "White Prairie," lasted 80 minutes.

The former Beatle told fans he has not decided whether to perform in a string of concerts organized by Chrissie Hynde of the Pretenders as a tribute to his wife, who died of breast cancer in April.

"If I can get it together, I will appear," he said. "But I am not sure I can do it emotionally at all, to tell you the truth."

AUSTIN — Love letters, White House china decorated with her beloved wildflowers and a replica of the 1964 campaign's "Lady Bird Special" caboose platform are on display at a new exhibit on Lady Bird Johnson's life at the LBJ Presidential Library and Museum.

"Frankly, you can't tell the story of Lyndon Johnson without telling the story of his best friend and helpmate — my mother, Lady Bird Johnson," Luci Baines Johnson said Thursday in previewing The First Lady's Gallery.

The permanent exhibit will open Tuesday, the former first lady's 86th birthday.

It highlights the couple's whirlwind 1934 courtship, when Johnson's letters included one beginning, "This morning I'm ambitious, proud, energetic and very madly in love with you."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Johnny PayCheck, hospitalized for a month with a lung infection, remains in critical condition but is improving, his manager said Friday.

"Johnny is responding to treatment and more alert today than in the past several days," Marty Martel said.

PayCheck, in a hospital in Atlanta, was feeling so much better Thursday that he asked for a cup of coffee, Martel said.

PayCheck, 60, a Grand Ole Opry member, suffers from asthma. He is best known for "Take This Job and Shove It," which went to No. 1 in 1977.

Johnny PayCheck remains in critical condition but is improving.

DETROIT — Wild-man rocker Ted Nugent celebrated his 50th birthday with a bash that drew bankers, bikers and an unlikely guest — Republican Gov. John Engler.

Engler and Nugent mixed it up with the rest of Nugent's fans and guests Thursday night at the State Theatre.

Karen Newman, known for singing the national anthem at Detroit hockey games, offered up a Marilyn Monroelike rendition of "Happy Birthday" with a twist: She substituted "Mr. Motor City Madman" for "Mr. President."

Nugent was given a gold badge from former Detroit Police Chief Ike McKinnon, making the guitarist an honorary chief.

"You're all under arrest," Nugent told the crowd.

LOS ANGELES — "60 Minutes" has invoked the wrath of Charlton Heston.

The actor, who was interviewed by Mike Wallace for a segment to air Sunday, accused the news magazine of "SWAT-team journalism" in an essay he wrote for January edition of "Guns & Ammo" magazine.

Although Heston has not seen the piece, he said "60 Minutes" has joined the pattern of "character assassination" he's allegedly had to face since taking over as president of the National Rifle Association.

"They can reshape the truth, remake it, mask it or eliminate it," Heston wrote.

Wallace was astonished.

"Well, Chuck, take a look at what you've not seen till now, and tell us if it's the truth," Wallace says in the opening of the Heston piece after quoting from Heston's essay. A transcript of the introduction was provided Thursday by "60 Minutes."

Wallace calls the segment "a pleasantly sensible piece of journalism."

StreetTalk

By Mike Fornataro

Street Rods and Semantics, Prowlers and Scowlers.

Back when the term "sports car" was coined, there was much discussion as to exactly what a sports car was.

To purists, it meant a two-passenger, open-air car of lithe proportions, and they weren't too keen on the idea that a true sports car should even feature roll-up windows. And of course, a manual shift transmission was absolutely mandatory.

The debate was never truly resolved, but among people who clutter their mind with such things, few today would reasonably argue that the Chevrolet Corvette or Porsche 911 with an automatic transmission is not a "sports car".

A new debate

In 1997, Chrysler stunned the world with its factory hot rod, the Plymouth Prowler, bewildering the motoring press, a group of people who are a bit excitable when a new product doesn't fit neatly into an established category.

And if the Prowler confounded the press, it really polarized the hard-core street rodders, some of whom sneered at its too-few cylinders and dismissed the car as a profiling machine for pretenders, while others lusted for its beauty, and lamented the fact that it would never be permitted to participate in National Street Rod Association events, due to a rule that all NSRA participant vehicles must be of 1948 or earlier vintage.

"Wait a minute," cry the pro-Prowler people. "What about the fiberglass reproduction cars that seem to make up about half the field at NSRA events?" (This is especially true at events in the "Rust Belt" areas of the United States.)

"Well," say the NSRA officials, "those cars are designed to represent models produced before 1949, and they are not factory built."

To many, this sounds like a cop-out, as many reproduction cars look no more like anything built before 1949 than does the Prowler.

As for the second part of the assertion that reproduction cars are not factory-built, many would point out the advertisements for reproduction cars that state: "Cars are available in any state of completion, up to "turn-key," ready-to-cruise versions that require the new owner to turn only the screws that hold the license plates."

Not one to shy away from hard questions (and looking for an excuse to test drive a Prowler) I contacted my friends at the Chrysler Corporation Press Office and arranged to put a Prowler through its paces, compared back-to-back with a "real" street rod, the award-winning 1934 Plymouth coupe that belongs to my brother, John Fornataro.

John's Plymouth is a thoroughly modern street rod, with an automatic transmission, air conditioning, a full compliment of gauges and a mega-watt stereo, just like the Prowler. Five-spoke alloy wheels adorn both cars, and both feature intimate accommodations for two passengers.

On the road, the '34 actually rides smoother than the Prowler, but when the road turns twisty, the new Plymouth entertains, while the old Plymouth complains. If you have spent any time driving street rods, you know that they are often far more pleasant to look at than they are to drive.

As for the Prowlers' two missing cylinders, yes, the exhaust note of John's V-8 powered '34 is the music of muscle, while the flatulent blat of the Prowler makes a less convincing statement of power. But when the pedal drops, the Prowler can back up its aggressive style with a more than respectable quarter-mile pass of 14.81 seconds.

Few people own street rods for daily transportation, and a big part of the allure of these expensive toys is crowd-stopping style and image. If you think that is the street rod trump card in this comparison, get your hands off the chips, Frankie. No car in my experience has ever electrified people the way the Prowler does. Neither a new Ferrari Spider nor a flamed '34 Plymouth create the turmoil caused by a passing Prowler.

Nice street rods start at about $20,000, escalating rapidly based on desirability and quality. Based on that formula, the $40,000 Prowler (which sells in the real world in the mid-$50's) would cost $100,000 if it were a "real" street rod, making it a relative bargain.

It would seem that the Prowler does, indeed, fulfill the role of a street rod, and I believe that this debate, too, will be resolved with time.

So, as I have many street rods can you spot in this photo?

'99 GMC Yukon Denali SUV

Uncompromised power, ruggedness and strength. Unmatched passenger and cargo space in its class. Unsurpassed trailering capabilities. An impressive list of standard creature comforts. These phrases can best describe the newest offering from GMC, the premium truck division of General Motors. New for 1999, the Yukon Denali represents the nameplate's vision for a luxury full-size sport utility vehicle. This GMC model is based on the same chassis as the Suburban, but is nearly 18 inches shorter.

Full sized SUV

The GMC Yukon Denali and its mechanical twin, the Chevrolet Tahoe, share most of their underpinnings with the previous generation full-size Chevrolet C/K pickup trucks. Built at the General Motors Arlington, Texas assembly plant, the Denali is a SUV for those who want it all.

The GMC Denali is the top of the line model for the Yukon SUV line and is distinguished from the other models with a unique front end treatment, body-color wheel flares, front and rear body-color bumpers with black rear step pad and body-color running boards with black step pad.

The plush GMC SUV is equipped with a 5.7L V-8 Vortec engine that spins out 255 horsepower at 4,600 rpm and 330 lb/ft of torque at 2,800 rpm. The powerplant is bolted to the 4L60-E four-speed electronic automatic transmission. A manual transmission is not available.

The nameplate's AutoTrac system, standard on the Denali, manages traction needs automatically, allowing torque transfer from front to rear as needed, without driver intervention. On the road, I found this big truck to be very responsive and car-like, not at all the brute that I expected.

Inside the cabin, displays and controls are laid out well with a full complement of analog gauges within easy reach of the driver. The dashboard contains three power points to plug in various electronic tools and gadgets as well as two of the best dashboard mounted cupholders that I have found anywhere. Nooks and crannies abound to stow plenty of stuff.

Driver visibility is excellent, and roomy seating throughout the truck is very comfortable, regardless of where you may be sitting. The center console between the front seats and the cupholder/armrest in the middle of the rear seat helps in making a trip in this vehicle a very enjoyable experience.

This is a sport utility vehicle designed to be very versatile — ready to respond to the many needs and demand of its owner — including seats that easily fold flat and/or out of the way to make a cavernous cargo area. Properly equipped, the Denali can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 6,500 pounds. Underhood fluids are easy to reach but not clearly marked.

By the Numbers

Standard safety equipment includes dual airbags, daytime running lamps, four-wheel anti-lock brakes, PassLock theft-deterrent system, fog lamps, power door locks and side impact door beams. EPA fuel economy figures are 14 city/18 highway.

Retail price for the GMC Yukon Denali starts at $42,855. Destination charge adds $650. Supplies of this truck have always been scarce and there are no rebates. ■

Buick Regal sedan looks assertive and behaves that way too

BY BOB PLUNKETT

Regal by Buick

Official Car of the Supercharged Family.

JEROME, Ariz. — Scooting over Arizona's pine-covered Weaver Mountains on a winding route leading from Prescott to the cliff-hugging mining town of Jerome, a mid-size Regal LS sedan from Buick carves out a sure-footed course, cutting through hairpin curves in a taut line and bounding exuberantly up long grades at altitude.

Regal performs so well on this trek, in fact, that one driver must remind self that the wheels performing such deft maneuvers happens to be Buick's prime family car.

Spinning off a General Motors platform shared with Pontiac's Grand Prix and the Oldsmobile Intrigue, Buick's sedan emerged last year in a new expression which carried the familiar label of Regal but acted with spry moves unlike any previous Regal — and no other Buick.

For the editions of 1999, Regal features a subdued yet sophisticated exterior fashioned from curving wedge-shaped forms, an interior that's far more generous in space than earlier Regal models, and a system of engineering assets which set up rather precise road manners which mimic the agile nature of imports.

Regal also provides two levels for trim, beginning at the base Regal LS with GM's 3800 Series II 3.8-liter V6 aboard and extending to a sporty GS with mechanical supercharger mounted on the V6 to kick output up to 240 hp.

Five more horsepower points apply to the naturally aspirated engine of Regal LS, which runs now to 200 hp.

Arizona tests of Regal with both engines showed that it's quite enjoyable to drive, comfortable and practical in interior fittings and definitely more tuned to match the tight imported models than previous GM products.

The intent seems to be to make Regal appeal to those forty-something Boomers with kids in tow who seek dependable and affordable family-style sedan transportation but may also want a spark of performance when stepping outside the typical mold of a carpooler. And Regal looks good — subdued yet sharp.

"We wanted an exterior shape that seems sporty but not faddish, certainly not extreme," the designer, Wayne Kady, confided. "Regal incorporates a number of Buick design cues, such as the oval grille, but it still pulls away to make its own statement."

Regal measures 1.5 inches longer in wheelbase than past generational issues and it's more than two inches longer.

Wheels stretch to outer limits of the rectangular plan, as a head-on glance of the prow reveals tires extend to outside edges of the body.

The broad stance sets up a stable performance attitude which, when combined with a suspension that's independent at all four corners and a power-assisted rack and pinion steering system that's lively and quick, indicates Regal can act aggressively too.

The recent Arizona tests in enhanced 1999 editions immediately demonstrated that Regal's character can be as assertive in acceleration as its sheetmetal appears energetic in design.

Overall, it produces firm and controllable handling attributes, and reacts with clear athletic agility when asked to steer around slower road traffic.

In terms of power, Buick should be commended for offering the option of a naturally aspirated engine with respectable power or the kick-out supercharged plant.

The improved 3.8-liter V6 of Regal LS responds quickly when you tap the throttle. Besides an infusion of more power, it has more torque — the engine's muscle used to turn the wheels — at mid-range speeds.

Then add that supercharger to a smaller engine like the GM 3.8-liter V6, and horsepower jumps to 240 points and sets up a swift sedan that's also rather conservative on fuel.

Further, the torque generated from this horsepower climbs dramatically through supercharging, but at lower engine speeds which means there's more strength available quicker through lower gears.

New safety features on both Regal models include a more efficient anti-lock disc brake system and a handy tire inflation monitor for Regal LS. Dual airbags with decreased power for Regal rank as an improved safety system, as do daytime running lamps.

Regal's interior arrangement functions well and there's ample space available, particularly in head room — it's high enough to wear a tall hat without crimping the crown. Regal's seats receive special attention with added folds of plush layers and special contours to fit a body for more comfort. The interior plan pitches twin buckets up front (and, unlike other Buicks, there's no option for a front bench), with space for up to three on the back bench.

Both Regals carry a lot of standard features, beginning with air conditioning and reaching to power operation for windows and door locks, and instruments including tachometer, but plush items like leather seats go to GS.

Prices seem reasonable too, starting around $22,500.

FAST FACTS

1999 BUICK REGAL SEDAN

Description	Mid-size luxury sedan

Price range	$ 22,000 to $ 27,000

The look also appears unmistakably aggressive, with a wide stance and monotone treatment to trim elements plus a subtle blackout of the sedan's B pillar to evoke the image of a sporty coupe. A bird's beak lip on the tail caps this muscular posture. A unibody structure with integral safety cage ringing the passenger compartment has an underbody with extra bracing to develop more rigidity and torsional stiffness when the vehicle moves down the road

NOTICE OF PROPOSED DEMOLITION / RECONSTRUCTION PROJECT

The City of Midland Community Development Office proposes to make Single Family Housing Rehabilitation Loan Program assistance to the owner occupants of the properties located at 809 N. Mineola and 1208 W. New Jersey for the purpose of demolishing the existing structures and constructing replacement dwellings.

Reconstruction is being considered because the existing dwellings have been found unfeasible to rehabilitate. Affordability of the replacement structures is guaranteed by low interest mortgage payments and historically low house values of the surrounding neighborhoods. Optional temporary displacement assistance will be offered to the affected households.
