Appraisal District adopts '82 budget

The Aransas County Appraisal District has adopted a $196,241.08 budget for 1982 — $1,000 more than was originally proposed.

The budget with increase — to pay for microfilming tax records — was approved in regular session following a public hearing on the budget at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Appraisal District office.

Only three members of the board were present during Wednesday's hearing and session. Board member Harold Shirey was absent due to illness. Those at the meeting were Chairman Dan Shelton, Jerry Ledbetter and Jimmy Hunt.

In other action during the meeting, the district board of directors voted to retain the services of the Harris Bookkeeping Service in Sinton to perform the district's bookkeeping and auditing.

Cost of the service will be $2,000 which was included in the budget the district adopted Wednesday evening. Chief Appraiser Jack Groseclose told board members he checked with four services before recommending Harris.

Harris Bookkeeping Service specializes in doing accounting for taxing districts, Groseclose added.

In other action, the board voted to increase the insurance coverage on the appraisal district office and its contents. Ledbetter moved that the district increase its regular coverage immediately to insure the office for the full estimated value of $20,000 to $25,000. An increase in flood insurance was deferred until the district's present policy expires next April.

In adopting the 1982 budget — which will go into effect on Jan. 1 — appraisal district directors pulled some $10,800 in proposed mileage reimbursement from the "Salaries and Benefits" portion of the budget and re-allocated it as travel insurance under "Supplies and Expenses."

This followed a question, during the budget hearing, by Mitch Ammons who asked why the chief appraiser and the district's two other appraisers were budgeted for a flat $300 per month instead of on a per-mile basis for the year.

Board directors voted to re-allocate the same amount of money — $10,800 — but to abolish the flat monthly rate and set up a system for per-mile reimbursement. The exact amount of reimbursement will be decided at a later meeting of the board.

A total of $93,993.08 is allocated for salaries and benefits in the 1982 budget, to provide salaries and health care for three appraisers and four clerks. Groseclose told directors the budget was set up for an extra clerk not presently employed by the district

During the hearing, Groseclose told directors they could expect to receive a "considerable surplus" from the 1981 budget. When the fiscal year ends, Groseclose said, the district can anticipate some $60,000 to $70,000 left over.

Also in Wednesday's meeting, the directors voted to relinquish their lease on a lot on Allen Street so that the property can be leased to Dr. J.M. Shellenbarger. Dr. Shellenbarger wants to use the area for parking because it is adjacent to a proposed office building.

Directors also voted to advertise for bids on the sale of a copying machine which was replaced a month ago.

Brown speaks to ACTA membership

By Becky Werhan

State Senator Buster Brown was in Rockport Thursday night, Nov.19 to speak to the Aransas County Taxpayer's Association.

Arriving in Corpus Christi at 5 p.m., he was picked up by Tax Association officer Brit Dick. After a supper with Dick, his wife DeeDee and ACTA president Mitch Ammons and his wife, Brown addressed the membership of the Association at their regular meeting in the District Courtroom of the County Courthouse.

Brown spoke on the much-amended Peveto bill and in particular the amendments he had worked on, primarily the rollback clause of the bill and initiative and referendum.

The tax association membership is familiar with the rollback portion of the bill, having made plans for a rollback petition against the school tax increase only to find that the clause authorizing such a petition does not go into effect until Jan. 1.

Brown also spoke on Proposition six, the recently passed "homestead exemption" amendment to the Texas constitution, and answered questions from the ACTA membership regarding it.

The visit to Rockport to speak to a relatively small organization like ACTA is "in keeping with Brown's style," according to his administrative assistant Jill Cropper, who termed the senator "a very unusual man."

Said Cropper prior to Brown's visit, "He tries to speak to any group that asks him to. He feels he has on obligation to those people. He really wants to discuss the tax issue with them."

Adams named to stone crab panel

Danny Adams, owner of D&T Seafood in Fulton, has been named to the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council's advisory panel on stone crabs. Adams appointment to the stone crab panel was made during the council's October meeting.

The goal of the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council, according to Adams, is "to work to establish a maximum sustainable yield from the Gulf fisheries . . . without depleting the available crop."

Adams is currently serving on the council's shrimp advisory panel as well.

The stone crab panel contains members from all the Gulf states, though Florida is at present the leader in the stone crab industry.

The stone crab harvest in Texas is now only a by-product of the blue crab industry. Even at present, the yield in Aransas County alone, according to Adams, was 1,000-1,500 pounds this year.

Adams feels that there is a potential in this area for a stone crab fishery. "It's still relatively untouched. I feel a coming fishery in the Texas waters though."

Said Adams, "We need to harvest as much as we can, but only to a point where we can continue to harvest year after year after year and not totally wipe out the crop."

"We don't want to take 10,000 pounds of something one year and only get 2,000 the next when we can live with taking 5,000 both years."

"I will probably be taking as much advise as I'm giving," said Adams of his new position. "The people in Florida have had some problems, and by talking to them, perhaps we can bypass those same problems when the industry comes to Texas."

Adams has been involved with the council's work for "three or four years." The council panels usually meet two to three times per year.

In addition to his new advisory panel position, Adams has recently been named to a special state wide task force for the Texas Natural Resources Committee. He describes the task force as "a group of people who will collect information and channel it on to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and to the state legislature . . . a group of educated, well-spoken people who will try to voice the desires of both the commercial and sporting interests, in regards to state fisheries."

Baker Marine roads shut down by Army Corps

INGLESIDE — In an action taken on Tuesday, Nov. 17, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers shut down two roads recently constructed on the Baker Marine property. The reason given was that the roads had been constructed by the facility without the required Corps of Engineer permits.

"The roads were shut down because they (Baker) had not gotten a permit to build. They crossed uplands and wetlands alike. We have the authority only over the wetlands and the portions of water the roads crossed," said John Wong, Chief of the compliance section of the Corps.

Wong explained that the roads in question ran perpendicular to the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, were about a half mile apart and stretched between Farm Road 2725 and the waterway, from the Garret company to Chicago Iron and Bridge Works.

Both roads had been only recently completed said Wong, who explained the building of the "unauthorized and un-permitted roads" constituted a violation of Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act and Section 4 of the Clean Harbors Act.

Baker Marine spokesman Ken Williams, contacted Thursday, Nov. 19 offered an official "no comment" and said only that an announcement was being prepared for release next week.

According to Wong, the Corps will proceed with an investigation into the environmental impact of the roads before issuing or denying a permit.

Mileage questioned in hearing

Saying he wanted the money shown in "an auditable form," county resident Mitch Ammons Wednesday challenged the Appraisal District's proposal to pay its three appraisers a lump sum travel allowance for in-district driving.

The matter came up during the public hearing on the District's proposed 1982 budget, held at 4:30 p.m. in the Appraisal District office in Rockport.

Ammons questioned a proposal by the District to pay the chief appraiser and two other appraisers a monthly fee of $300 — a total of $3,600 per year each — for travel within the tax district.

The discussion began when Ammons asked Chief Appraiser Jack Groseclose if the $3,600 was "automatically drawn" without requiring vouchers. When Groseclose answered in the affirmative, Ammons replied, "I don't agree with that."

When Groseclose responded that the bookkeeping involved if mileage records were required "would be tremendous," Ammons said, "I disagree with that." He later added that the monthly pay system "doesn't leave an audit trail."

Groseclose pointed out that having a car is a requirement to be employed by the District as an appraiser and said "most" of the appraisal districts — including Nueces and San Patricio counties — have purchased vehicles for their employees to drive. "We're trying to avoid that," he said.

Ammons agreed that should be avoided but said, "I want that $3,600 shown in an auditable form as a fringe benefit to an employee. (As presently shown) it can be misused."

District Board Chairman Dan Shelton said he was afraid that per-mile reimbursement to the three appraisers might actually run higher than the $300 per month/$3,600 per year figure budgeted, to which Ammons replied, "I'm not uncomfortable with the fact that it might run over." He urged the board however to set a mileage rate and reimburse in-district travel according to that rate rather than by flat fee.

"I don't see any problem with (the appraisers) reporting how many miles they've driven and let them write down

Council to appoint park board members

Rockport's city council is expected to appoint two new members to the city's park board at its meeting Monday night, Nov. 23.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. in Rockport City Hall.

The appointments will bring the park board back to its full strength of seven members.

Hypnotherapy: no 'miracle cure' but it gets results

By Pat Blair

"You are lying on the beach...you can feel the warm sand under your body...the warm sun..."

The voice is low, calm, soothing. In the background, music is playing, not the conventional Muzak but relaxing, pleasant. Occasionally the sound of an air conditioner might intrude but the voice and the music dominate the otherwise quiet scene.

Hypnosis doesn't have to be performed in such subdued surroundings, says Jean. But — "it's preferable." Her office, behind her residence on FM 1781 just outside of Rockport, is small, dimly lighted and she prefers to turn the lights off when the session gets under way.

Hypnosis therapy — hypnotherapy — is very popular now, says Jean who started her own practice in this area last February. And it does work. People on hypnotherapy have given up smoking, lost weight, learned to overcome stress...

But it isn't a "magic wand," says Jean. "A hypnotist can't 'make' you do anything. You can only overcome your bad habits if you want to.

"Hypnotherapy," she continues, "is a tool. Tools only work if we pick them up and use them. You'll find that you still have to use willpower and self-control in overcoming bad habits — but it'll be easier and faster and results are more likely to be permanent with good hypnotherapy."

Jeam discovered hypnotherapy for herself about seven years ago, when she was living in Houston. "I was a miserable person. I had a tough case of chronic bronchitis and needed to give up smoking, and I was a very negative, unhappy person. My life wasn't working at all.

"First, I got into nutrition," she said, "and that helped the bronchitis, but I was still smoking, still unhappy."

It was at that point she saw a hypnotise on a television talk show, "talking about what you can do with hypnosis. I was at the bottom of the barrel — I'd tried everything else."

Jean sought out the hypnotist, a man named Charley Porter. Porter, head of the Church of the Ontological Society in Houston, has successfully worked with hypnotherapy for more than 30 years. With Porter, Jean began hypnotherapy sessions.

"I was delighted and fascinated," she says, "and I had this insatiable need to learn about hypnotherapy and use it to help others as I was being helped."

Her therapist became her teacher — "I'm the only person he's ever trained; that's not what he does — and I think the only reason he taught me was because I kept after him."

Jean began studying hypnosis in 1974. "It took seven years before he (Porter; would say to me, 'You're ready' and I wouldn't begin practicing hypnotherapy until he did."

Since February, her clients have "come and gone" but she is usually working with 10 or 12 on an individual basis at any given tim, in addition to the group hypnotherapy sessions she started recently.

For the one-on-one session — which is how she prefers to work with a client — she charges $30 for a session that generally lasts 50 minutes to and hour in Rockport; in her Corpus Christi office, because of higher overhead, the price per session is

We've come a long way baby

By Ted Norman

Several days ago, 70 year-old Milton Sparks wandered up to my desk with an old yellow rat-eaten piece of paper and said, "Would you be interested in seeing this?"

My first thought was to exterminate the thing before it got any closer to me but when Sparks layed it on the desk, without waiting for my reply, I could see it was a copy of the Friday, May 26, 1922, Rockport Pilot.

The lead story, under a 14 point head, was 'Large crowd hears commencement exercises.'

A sub head, set in regular body type, revealed that Judge Jno. B. Eddins presented diplomas to eight girls and three boys.

The story goes on to tell of the ceremonies held at the Magnolia Street Baptist Church with a capacity audience gathering for the event.

Another article, on the opposite side of the page, tells of a reception for the graduates held at the Methodist Church and put on by the Joy Bringers.

Page one of the paper offered 19 articles for the reader to absorb. Apparently people had more reading time then than they do now and they must have had much better eye sight. All the heads above the stories were set in the bold face body type.

The 1922 Pilot was a four page tabloid type and this issue was Volume number six, copy number 46, and under the flag was the statement, "Every issue of the Pilot contains a boost for the development of Rockport and Aransas County."

Also on the front page was a boxed item in the center of the page giving the program for a concert at the Bayview Theatre to be held on Friday evening, June 2, at 8:15 with the proceeds for a bath house. Admission was 25 cents.

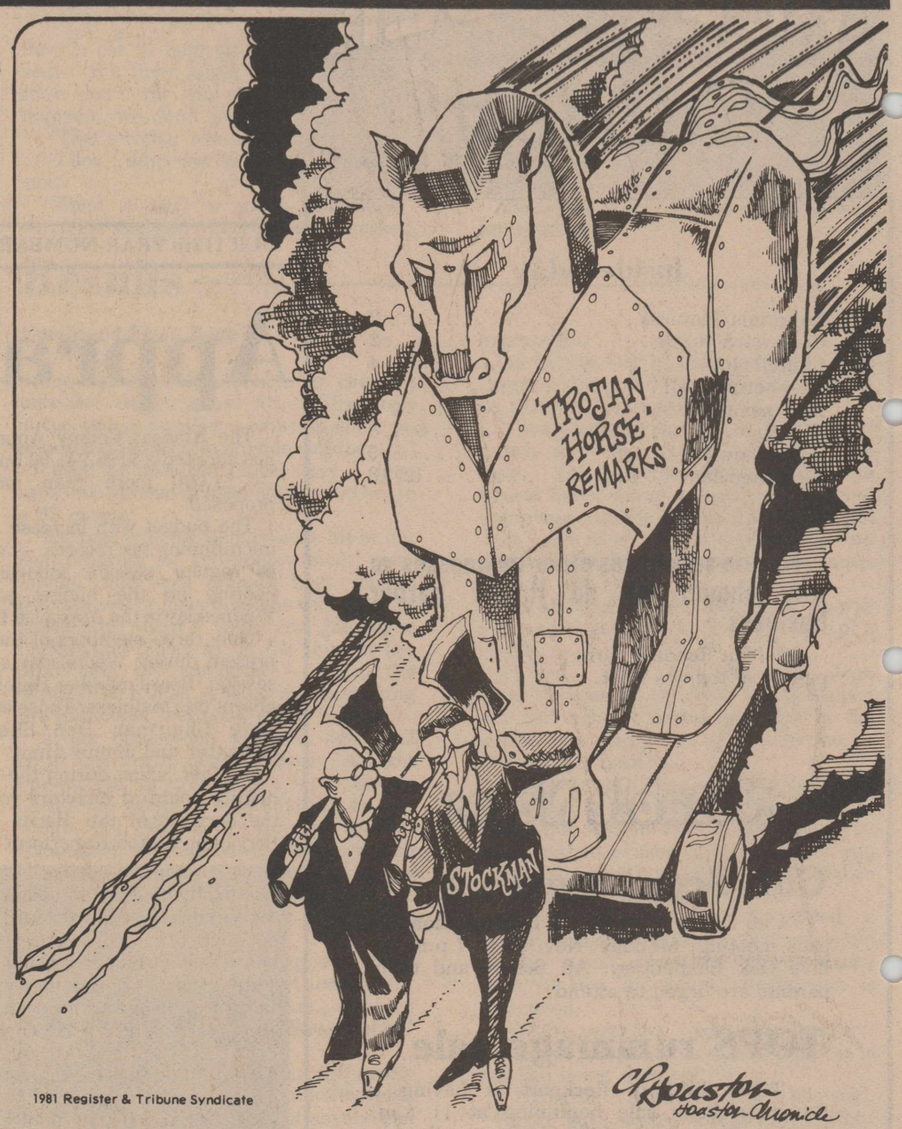

Page three held an interesting piece of political news about candidates for the upcoming election. The head of the story was, 'Political announcements' and below the head it listed the names of the candidates and the fee they must pay for entering the contest and a notice that said "(Fee: cash in advance)". Perhaps some politicians had the same reputations then as they have now.

The 1922 political contest found Jno. C. Herring and W.D. Bell running for County and District clerk while Fred Diederich and W.L. Deane tried for tax assessor.

Harry Hertzberg ran for congress from the 14th district and Jim Sparks, father of the man who brought in the paper was running for Commissioner precinct number two.

As I said earlier the type was small, the stories crowded together and in general the paper was hard to read by todays standards.

Like the cigarette ad says, we've come a long way, baby.

A bit of fantasy . . .

LET US BEGIN THIS piece with a bit and bits of fantasy, however wild, or perhaps not so wild. You will establish your own estimate. We live in a world at peace, that is to say there is no ongoing major conflict. The unending cloak and dagger games have gone on for four decades with nations living in fear of each other, constantly arming and rearming, always for defense?

The while the masses of people in the world sometimes protest, however feebly. How much better the billions of dollars, pounds, francs, and whatever might be used to create a better world. Fortunately, the leaders of the great nations prevail, well knowing that someday an enemy may be first to develop the Ultimate Weapon. The Ultimate Weapon?

Remember, we are indulging in fantasy.

The White House Hot Line rings.

A heavily accented voice speaks in English. "Mr. President, my country has acquired the Ultimate Weapon. Before I hang up this telephone it is possible for me to totally destroy the entire United States and all of its people. Your defenses will melt like wax before the onslaught.

"Naturally I realize that you doubt me, except that your country has for years been working toward the same end. Unfortunately for you, we are first. Even so, I realize that you need proof, and for that reason there will be a demonstration at St. Helen Island in the South Atlantic where at the moment a battleship from our navy is evacuating all of the people.

Twenty-four hours from now, giving you time to set up whatever defenses you like, I shall totally destroy that island. It will disappear into the sea and all life above and below the sea within a radius of five hundred miles will vanish forever.

This will be a small demonstration of the Ultimate Weapon which we have. I hope this will convince you of its power and that you will have the wisdom to surrender to my orders. If not, in another twelve hours I shall feel obliged to destroy the city of Chicago.

But I trust that you will have the wisdom to not allow that to happen. Now I realize that you must be thinking that you must launch all the weaponry your country possesses against us at once. I hope that will.

When you see it melt in the skies you will realize that any strike you may attempt against us is futile and so succumb to my demands. I must say that I sincerely hope so because it would save St. Helena, a quaint little island, which despite past circumstances has a place in my heart. You must understand, Mr. President, that I fancy myself to the reincarnation of the great Emporer Napoleon Bonaparte. Strange, isn't it, that now I lead the prople whose forebearers led to my downfall so many years ago?

Mr. President, I do appreciate you not attempting to interupt me. I shall not call you again. I leave it to you to call me.I trust that you will not be so foolish as to force me to destroy your entire nation. I should not like that because I wish to rule it. If you force me to destroy it entirely I must confess that there will be nothing left there for anyone -- forever. Good afternoon, Mr. President."

IN 1945 THE UNITED States built what might have been called the Ultimate Weapon, a toy compared to what we or the enemy may soon acquire. Then President Truman decided to use the weapon and present his ultimatum later, a decision that is still debated. For one, I hold with Truman.

Circumstances were different. There was an ongoing war. Each passing day meant the loss of thousands fo American lives. Now I am left to wonder -- did Truman go far enough? Might it not have been possible for him to extend an ultimatum to the entire world? Is it conceivable that he might have demanded that the entire world is to be disarmed. The United States intends to live in peace, allow every nation to live and govern as it will, but there will be no experimenting or developing of more atomic bombs and to prevent that the United States will police the world.

IN RECENT YEARS WE have sent men and ships into the cosmos. It is only a beginning. Of the billions of planets we have landed men on only one. Someday we shall discover one where there is life and intelligence -- if, if we do not first destroy those things on our own small planet. Here, to carry our earlier fantasy to another extreme, is it not possible that there was once life even on the moon, life destroyed by an Ultimate Weapon from another planet to create the barren and unlivable waste that is the moon our astronauts landed upon?

We can only wonder. Those of us who have lost our youth are left to envy the children we have borne. Theirs' is an age of a new world or new worlds. How, when they will be found, what wealth of knowledge and experience they will bring no one knows.

Today's youth will become the Phonecians, the Vikings, the Columbuses who will embark on the new voyages of discovery. Their sails are set for the cosmos.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN — The State Constitution directs the legislature to address the task of redistricting during the first regular session following the decennial census, and it requires new districts for the United States Congress as well as the Texas Senate and the Texas House of Representatives.

The 67th Legislature passed bills drawing the lines for the House and Senate, but it took a called special session to get a plan for Congressional districts. All three plans have had rough-sailing, however. The House plan was ruled unconstitutional by state courts, the Governor vetoed the Senate plan, and the Congressional plan is presently under attack in the federal courts.

Therefore, the Legislature Redistricting Board is now charged with the responsibility of producing "acceptable" House and Senate districts. The LRB comes into existence only when the legislature does not offer an "acceptable" plan. It is composed of the Lt. Governor, myself as Speaker, the Attorney General, the Comptroller, and the Land Commissioner.

Three factors make up an "acceptable" plan:

1. The "one man-one vote" principle of the United States Constitution requires that districts must be "as nearly of equal population as practical." The plan must not "minimize or cancel out the voting strength of racial or political elements of the population."

2. Since 1975, Texas has been subject to the federal Voting Rights Act. This Act requires that the plan must not "lead to a retrogression in the position of racial minorities" with respect to their voting rights.

3. State courts have recently held that unnecessary splitting of counties is unconstitutional. With many rapidly growing cities in Texas, the requirement makes keeping communities of interest most difficult.

State interests recognized by federal courts include subdivisions, compactness and contiguity in districts, minimized contests between incumbents, recognition of clearly identifiable community or regional interests and preservation of historic boundaries.

A quick look at the numbers in our various counties is very interesting. Harris County has enough population for 26 members, Dallas enough for 16, and Tarrant enought for 9. So 51 members or more than one-third of the 150 total House membership will come from just three counties.

Bexar County and El Paso have population for ten and five respectively, while Travis County has four, and Hidalgo and Cameron Counties deep in the valley have three each.

The obvious conclusion is that more than one-half of the membership will be from eight counties — and that Texas is moving still more from rural to urban growth patterns.

The Legislature Redistricting Board has until Oct. 28 to finalize its work — and then there is a possibility the plan will be tested again in the federal courts and the United States Justice Department.

We are taking our task very seriously. It is my sincere desire to create a plan that will produce the leadership we need from all the diverse districts of our state to maintain our outstanding quality of life-style while continuing the kind of business climate that changed our population from 11,196,730 in 1970 to 14,228,383 in 1980.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower

U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS

142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

All of us have heard stories about the homelsss child who, because of a handicap, is having a hard time finding adoptive parents. We have seen instances where brothers and sisters who have lost their parents are unable to find a new home together. We know of the young person who, because of age, is difficult to place in an adoptive home. These, and others, are the "special needs" children, numbering about 100,000 in the United States.

It's a heart-rendering situation, but recent action by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) may make it a little less difficult for these "special needs" children to find new parents and families to love and care for them.

In the Federal Register this month, HHS has released its revised Model State Adoption Act, containing many excellent recommendations for State legislature, governors and adoption agencies. The model act is not a "federal regulation," nor a law. It merely puts the Federal government "on record" with specific recommendations to the States.

The publication of the Model State Adoption Act is the result of over a year's work on the original draft model which was published in February 1980. In my opinion, that draft model went far beyond the original desire of the Congress to help place "special needs" children in adoptive homes.

In fact, I found it to create the potential for a number of new problems. That's why I introduced a "Sense of the Senate" resolution against the draft model and testified before the Child and Human Development Subcommitee.

Among my concerns was one provision which would have allowed any so-called biological father, including rapists, incestuous family members, and others, veto power over a proposed adoption. I also objected to provisions which would set less stringent standards for individuals arranging adoptions than for licensed agencies; allow parents to retract adoption releases within 2 weeks; open records to adult adoptees, and make it easier for biological parents to intrude into adult adoptees' lives.

I am very pleased the Reagan Administration has now developed a Model State Adoption Act which will truly assist States by providing a useful legal framework for the establishment of State laws eliminating barriers to adoption for "special needs" children who would otherwise be cared for by the governemnt through foster care.

The new Model Act addresses itself strictly to the "special needs" children. It retains the confidentiality of adoption records. drops unduly long relinquishment procedures, does not extend the rights of putative fathers, and non-agency adoption is not endorsed.

Now, state governments may act to add parts or all of the recommendations to their existing adoption laws. When that is accomplished, more doors will be opened to the homeless children in our country in order that they can receive the type of care which they both need and deseve.

Veterans Administration News

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q — I understand that there had been a change in the Veterans Administration burial allowance benefit. Please provide and explanation of the current allowance.

A — A burial allowance was previously available to all wartime veterans. the new regulations provide an allowance of $300 payable toward the burial of only those veterans in receipt of Veterans Administration pension or disability compensation at the time of death or for those who die in VA facilities.

Q — Is it possible for me to pay my Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan before it becomes due?

A — Yes. A VA guaranteed loan may be partially or fully paid at any time without penalty.

Q — Are my Veterans Administration benefits subject to taxation?

A — No. Under federal law, all benefits administered by the VA are exempt from taxation.

The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Philosopher on his grassburr farm claims he has discovered a political paradise.

Dear Editor:

Take a guess. Where do you think the world's smartest politicians live?

I got to thinking about this while watching the TV news the other evening. The network televised a politician making a statement, then ran a flashback of a statement he made a year ago saying just the opposite. TV does this all the time.

It'll show an official with an owl-like look announcing flatly that the economy will take an up-turn in the second quarter of the year. When the second quarter passes and no up-turn has shown up, he'll adjust his glasses and say he meant that was a goal, not a promise.

I don't know of a single public figure, from a state official to a Congressman to a cabinet member to any President in the last 25 years, who hasn't stood before a television camera and said one thing today that's just the opposite of what he said earlier.

Confronted with this, politicians try to claim they were mis-quoted but it's hard to make it stick when there it is in living color on TV tapes.

This brings me to the smartest politicians on earth. They live in the Fiji Islands.

No Fiji politician has ever been embarrassed by having some TV camera showing him saying today what he wished he hadn't said the year before. Those Fiji leaders have out-smarted U.S. politicians all hollow.

They don't allow any television there. Not one station in the entire country.

They tell the 700,000 inhabitants they aren't culturally ready for it yet.

Unless a Fijian has a photographic memory, he thinks no politician ever jumps from one side of the fence to the other. It's a politician's paradise.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor,

Your paper's article concerning the Nov. 3, navigation district meeting overlooked a very important item.

The need for $400,000 to dredge the harbor was discussed and a very important item to me and all taxpayers who are paying the abominable school tax that was just thrust upon us.

According to my research the district had expenses of $250,000 plus with a disgusting income of $166,000 and the taxpayers making up the rest with a 12 percent tax generating $106,000 or over 40 percent of the expenses.

I got into a discussion with one navigation district member regarding the above and told him the taxpayers are subsidizing every business that holds a lease. He said we were not. Taxpayers, with the above facts what do you think?

Now the reason I bring up the above. To get the $400,000 (which will cost $1.2 million by pay-off) do you smell a bond issue coming and an additional increase in our subsidy?

Even at the present mismanagement all taxpayers will be stuck for over 40 percent of the bond and conceivably a lot more.

Keep in mind, and it's a matter well known, that the district is letting leases at one price that subleases are paying two and three times the amount.

Why doesn't the district get more and lessen our tax support? Is it not their duty?

No one subsidizes other businesses so why should we do it for harbor business?

Don't give me the pleasure boat bit, go down and count them. You won't have to get to your toes to count them.

Space is leased to over 99 percent business. If I had the money and a good lawyer it would be interesting to test the taxpayer subsidy in court.

Please do us citizens a favor and keep a close information eye on the development of this $400,000 (whoops, should say $1.2 million) and how they intend to obtain this $400,000.

One suggestion of mine is, take away the board members' salaries and side benefits until the dredging is paid for.

Why not? They're picking my pocket. Are we going to be suckered again?

Editor,

I would like to thank Ray Longino and the Baptist Church for the lovely dinner and concern shown the football players and families.

Danny Adams of D and T Seafood and Cinema 35 also deserve a special thanks for helping the A.C. Recreation Association and Little League in the past SeaFair.

Because of support from groups and individuals such as these, children are able to participate in worthwhile recreational activities.

Pet talks

Dog is overweight

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the college of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University.

Dear Dr. Lutz,

I have two dogs. A 15-year-old dachshund that weighs 25 lbs., and a six-month-old poodle that weighs five lbs. My poodle eats twice as much as my dachshund. Is this normal?

Signed,
A Dog Lover

Dear Dog Lover,

Your 25 lb. dachshund is overweight, and at his age not very active. He probably seeps most of the time and is not burning up many calories. Your poodle is probably running and jumping and very active. This requires more food; therefore, he needs more calories.

Signed,
Dr. Hap Lutz

Brantley offers hints

"Don't Throw Away That Dead Armadillo" cautions Jim Brantley. Brantley, a one year resident of Rockport has recently authored a book of that title, which is on sale now.

The book, published by Brantley's partner Carl Hoit, is available in area shops and contains Brantely's original cartoons and humorous suggestions as to what to do with something Texans have plenty of — dead armadillos.

Brantley was inspired by the recent best seller, "101 Uses for a Dead Cat" and plans several books on the subject of deceased armadillos, as evidenced by the "Book 1" on the cover of his current collection.

"It's typical Texas humor," says the cartoonist-author. "I collected enough material for two books in about eight months. It took a lot of friends, a lot of sitting down and a lot of beer."

The result of all of that was a lot of sales, even prior to the publication of the volume. Eight cases of 25 books apiece were preordered by local merchants.

A spot on Channel 3's PM Magazine Show is now in the works, as is a possible champagne-book signing party.

Brantley is a friend of Poncie Evans, "Heloise" of the syndicated "Hints from Heloise" column and through her, had a contact with Dell Publishing Company, which offered him a contract. "They wanted an exclusive right to the book," says Brantley, "and I couldn't do that. I couldn't lose control of my baby like that. I have to be personally involved in it."

CONSUMER ALERT

Credit buyers must insure new automobiles

AUSTIN — Under Texas law, anyone who buys a car or truck on credit may be required by the seller to insure their vehicle against loss and damages. The same law authorizes the seller to include the cost of the insurance as a separate charge in the retail installment contract. Given this law, some questions about insurance come to mind. What kinds of loss or damage insurance can the seller require? is the seller obligated to explain the exact nature of any charges for insurance in the installment contract? What can the seller do if the buyer fails to obtain insurance?

A seller can either require a buyer to insure a motor vehicle and include the cost of insurance as a separate charge, or require insurance and include the cost of the retail installment contract but not as a separate charge. Either way the insurance coverage required by the seller should reasonably relate to existing hazards or risk of loss or damage. It should not provide for unusual or exceptional risks or coverages which are not ordinarily included in policies issued to the general public. For example, if mechanical breakdown insurance is not ordinarily included in policies issued to the general public, it may not be required or financed in an automobile installment sales contract. If the insurance is purchased through the seller, the law requires that the seller state to the buyer in writing the kind, coverage, term and amount of premium for the insurance required under the installment contract. However, even if the insurance was not obtained or purchased through the seller, at least in one Texas case, the court decided that the seller must still state in writing that insurance is required and that a description of the kind, type and coverage of insurance be provided.

Types of insurance that may be required under the statute are credit life insurance and credit health and accident. The seller may also require the buyer to insure personal property purchased on credit against loss, damage or destruction, but this coverage must also be the type of policy ordinarily offered to the general public.

The statement in a retail installment contract requiring a buyer to provide insurance must be "clear and conspicuous," readily noticeable to the buyer, and must inform the buyer that he or she can furnish insurance from policies already owned by the buyer, or from any insurance company licensed to do business in Texas.

If, after being required to, the buyer fails to obtain insurance or coverage required by the contract, the seller may obtain the contract, the seller may obtain equivalent or more limited insurance by the contract, the seller may obtain equivalent or more limited insurance coverage than originally required. This may be added on the purchase price of the motor vehicle. However, a seller does not have the right to repossess a motor vehicle for a buyer's failure to provide insurance. If failure to provide insurance is the natural result of some other breaking of the contract terms, such as non-payment, repossession may be available to the seller.

People buying cars on credit need to be informed of any additional costs or obligations related to that kind of purchase in order to make a decision. Knowledge of the kinds of insurance that can be required under a retail installment agreement and of the premium to be charged is very important. This is especially true in view of inflation and the present level of interest rates.

Sheriff's report

A 1979 Corvette, reported stolen from a Rockport residence four days earlier, was recovered Sunday, Nov. 15, in an oil tank overflow pit one mile west of FM 1781.

The vehicle was sighted by a pilot for Petroleum Helicopters Inc. who contacted the sheriff's office. A wrecker unit was called to the scene to pull the vehicle out of the pit.

Stolen car recovered

Owner of the vehicle is reported to be Linwood Bland, ICW Services Inc. Bland called Rockport police Nov. 11 to report theft of the vehicle from his residence.

Change taken

An estimated $150 to $200 in nickles, dimes and quarters was reported taken when the Snakepit was burglarized late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Entry was apparently gained to the building, located at 104 N. Kossuth, after someone knocked out a wooden panel on the back door. The coins were taken from a juke box and pool table inside.

Bicycle theft

A 10-speed bicycle valued at $150 was taken from the residence of Emilio Rinche Jr., 1222 N. Ann, sometime Tuesday or Wednesday.

The bike was reportedly next to the garage door on the east side of the residence when it was taken.

Criminal mischief

A sliding glass door was broken out at the residence of Reba Rast, 1800 Bay Shore Dr., sometime between Sunday, Nov. 15, and 2 p.m. Tuesday.

Deputies believe the damage was done with a large asphalt rock found at the scene.

A dollar value had not been set on the damage as of press time.

Anti-freeze is a tasty but deadly poison to pets

AUSTIN — One laboratory-confirmed death of a dog due to anti-freeze poisoning has already been reported by the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory in Amarillo.

Although cooler temperatures hit the Texas Panhandle early, other parts of the state are just beginning to experience the chilly winter weather. Consequently, motorists who are draining and adding anti-freeze to their car radiators should be reminded that anti-freeze is a tasty but deadly poison to animals, and can result in their deaths.

"Anti-freeze has a sweet taste and is a tempting treat for animals. Consequently, veterinarians in Texas treat numbers of dogs and cats for anti-freeze poisoning each year," said Dr. Ben Johnston, president of the Texas Veterinary Medical Association (TVMA).

"It's probably more common than anyone realizes. An owner may find his pet in a coma or dead and not know what has happened," said Johnston.

A small amount constitutes a toxic dose for an animal - two or three c.c.s per pound of weight for a dog, and even less for a cat, said the TVMA president.

Anti-freeze poisoning accounts for about 15 percent of reported animal poisonings, but many are never reported because owners don't realize what their pet has gotten into.

Johnston recommends that old anti-freeze be flushed down the sewer drain since it is biodegradable. Any that has spilled onto the driveway or street should be washed for 10 minutes toward the street drain. No puddles should be left for pets to get into. And no residue should be left behind because the dried crystals contain the poison. The drain pan should also be washed thoroughly.

The substance in anti-freeze which animals find tasty is ethylene glycol, a sweetish colorless liquid that also is an ingredient in other compounds found around the house. The toxin also is found in brake fluid, windshield de-icers and wallpaper remover.

Don't forget that ethylene glycol is also a coolant and Texas motorists use it year round. So caution should always be used when disposing of anti-freeze or coolant.

An animal that has ingested any amount of anti-freeze will appear drunk. He may be apprehensive, depressed, listless, uncoordinated or wobbly. If your family pet exhibits these symptoms he could be suffering from anti-freeze poisoning and should be taken immediately to your veterinarian. Treatment for anti-freeze poisoning can't wait.

Prevention is always the best medicine though, and the Texas Veterinary Medical Association president urges pet owners and all Texans to use caution when disposing of anti-freeze or coolant.

VA to accelerate collection of delinquent debts in area

The Veterans Administration has announce that in the southern half of Texas there are approximately 4,500 cases of delinquent debts by veterans under immediate review in which legal action will be taken unless the debts are paid.

VA Administrator Robert P. Nimmo, in announcing the agency's accelerated program of debt collection, said, "Our plans are to substancially reduce the number of outstanding debts owed to the government by veterans, and I am instructing our various state district counsels to pursue an aggressive program of debt collection." Logan A. Slaughter, the VA's district counsel for the southern half of Texas, said that new cases of uncollected debts are being referred to his office on han average of 300 cases each month.

Mr. Slaughter aid that the VA is "more serious than ever" in seeking to recover debts owed by veterans. He added that his collection activities "are part of a nationwide effort to recover all debts owed by veterans and ono-veterans alike."

Debts as a result of VA programs are detected by the VA's Central Accounts Receivable Section in St. Paul, Minn. That office sends notification to the indebted veterans. If the veteran fails to resolve the indebtedness, his case is then sent to the appropriate VA district counsel for legal action.

Due to increased autority to proceed directly with a law suit and expanded technical capability, legal action for even small amounts has become cost-effective.

"A veteran owing debts to the Veterans Administration must realize the seriousness of the matter," Mr. Slaughter said. "The filing of a law suit, if deemed necessary, is a part of the collection effort. It is important for veterans receiving letters from this office to answer and arrange repayment. Otherwise, legal action is almost a certainty." He said that most cases will be settles through repayment plans and default proceedings.

Truan invites public participation at hearing

AUSTIN — Senator Carlos F. Truan, vice-chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Agriculture, invites all interested persons to participate in the subcommittee's public hearing that will be held in Corpus Christi, Texas on Friday, Nov. 19. The hearing will begin at 9:00 a.m. in the Texas Agriculture Extension Service District Office located three miles west of the Corpus Christi Airport on Highway 44.

The topics to be considered will include grain elevator explosions; grain elevator bonding; transportation of agriculture commodities; and agriculture research and education at Texas A&I University. The agenda is not limited to these topics and any testimony concerning other areas of agriculture is invited.

Testimony on grain elevator explosions will focus on measures to prevent disasters such as the April 7 explosion which shattered the Corpus Christi Public Elevator. The Subcommittee will also investigate whether the present system of bonding offers adequate insurance for producers who store grain in Texas elevators. Testimony will be taken on transportation of agriculture commodities to see what changes could be made to reduce the cost of transporting these products. Finally, representatives of Texas A&I University will discuss agriculture research and education.

"Public participation is important because such hearings provide legislators the opportunity to hear first-hand the concerns and expectations of the people that are directly involved and affected by agricultural issues," Senator Truan explained.

"The information gathered will ultimately be used to aid in formulating possible future legislation to benefit the people of Texas," Truan added.

Wood stove nice but can be dangerous

A wood-burning stove is an excellent way to save on fuel bills, but mistakes by the inexperienced stove owner can result in problems, including serious injury or death.

"If you are thinking about buying a wood-burning stove, it's essential to know how to install it properly," says Harold Ray, director of the Product Safety Division of the Texas Department of Health.

"Check with the local building inspector or fire marshall, even if it's not required. They can probably give you cost and time-saving advice in addition to safety information," he recommended.

Generally, the minimum distance between the stove and an unprotected wall should be 18 inches. The stove should be on a non-combustible hearth mat.

Ordinarily, the stove pipe should not pass through a combustible wall or ceiling, but if it does, you should allow an 18-inch clearance around the pipe. Or, you can use a section of factory-built chimney.

If you are connecting the stove pipe to an existing fireplace chimney, it's advisable to seal off the chimney below the pipe's point of entry to prevent toxic gases from entering the room.

"A glowing red stove pipe is dangerous," Ray warned. "Close the stove's damper to cool the fire quickly. If that doesn't work fast enough, put a few shovelsful of cool ashes on top of the burning wood."

Wood requires oxygen to burn. Keep a window slightly open to provide for proper combustion and to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning.

To small children, wood-burning stoves do not look hot. Mark an "off limits" area surrounding the stove for children, he advises.

Creosote buildup in the flue or chimney increases the risk of a chimney fire. Flues should, therefore, be inspected and cleaned routinely. Keep a fire extinguisher in the room in case of a chimney fire, and don't throw water on the stove. That could crack the stove and cause a second fire.

Never start a fire with gasoline, kerosene or other flammable liquids. Burn only dry, well-seasoned hard-wood. Green wood produces large amounts of creosote and is especially dangerous in an "air tight" stove.

According to the National Fire Data Center, heating systems burning wood or coal are associated with about 49,000 home fires each year, involving about 250 fatalities, 290 serious injuries and more than $110 million in direct property losses.

The number of Texans killed last year in home fires totaled 283, according to the Texas Department of Health's Bureau of Vital Statistics.

(For more information, contact Harold Ray, director of the Product Safety Division, Texas Department of Health, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756.)

More than half of crops from irrigated land

AUSTIN, Texas — More than 50 percent of the total dollar value of harvested crops in Texas in 1979 was from irrigated cropland, which represented about a third of the total cropland in the State, according to a report released today by the Texas Department of Water Resources.

"Inventories of Irrigation in Texas, 1958, 1964, 1969, 1974, and 1979" shows tht the leading irrigated crops in 1979 were cotton with 2,260,300 acres, grain sorghum with 1,263,400 acres, wheat with 1,229,500 acres, and corn with 984,200 acres.

Copies of the report, number 263, may be obtained without charge from the TDWR Publications Distribution Unit, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711.

The report is based on inventories made cooperatively by the Texas Department of Water Resources, the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board.

Most of the basic data previously published in 1958, 1964, 1969, and 1974 inventories are included in the new 1979 inventory report.

Due to relatively high rainfall during the 1979 growing season in many parts of Texas, less acreage was irrigated and less water was applied in 1979 than in the prior inventory in 1974.

Because of the above normal rainfall in 1979 and the below normal rainfall in 1980, a 1980 irrigation survey was conducted for selected Texas areas and is included in the report. The three selected areas include the High Plains, Pecos and Reeves Counties, and the Winter Garden Counties.

Using data from the 1979 and 1980 surveys, it was estimated in the report that 1980 irrigated acreage was slightly larger than 1979, however, irrigation water use in the High Plains was about 24 percent greater in 1980 than in 1979. The 1980 survey data indicated that irrigation development in the three areas surveyed peaked during the 1970s.

Ground water constituted 75 percent of the total water used for irrigation in 1979 and surface water supplied 25 percent. Ground-water use for irrigation declined to an estimated 6.92 million acre-feet in 1979 from 10.28 million acre-feet in 1974.

Water Conservation measures used by Texas irrigators include the use of sprinkler irrigation and the newer trickle system which has water flowing directly to the root zone of each plant.

Worship in Church This Week

Old Idea- New Setting

When the Pilgrims held their first Thanksgiving celebration it wasn't a new idea. The idea was as old as man's awareness of his dependence on God.

But it was a new setting. A group of people far from home, barely settled on a strange shore, surrounded by dangers real and imagined, facing their first New England winter. A remarkable time and place to say "Thank You, God."

Whenever earnest men and women pause to express gratitude to God it's an old idea. But the setting is always new. For wherever we are, whatever the circumstances surrounding our lives, our faith reaches out to the Almighty — realizing anew his Power, his Love; saying "Thank You, God."

Worship with your neighbors this week.

The Shepherd's Staff

By The Rev. Walter D. Clark Jr.
St. Peter's Episcopal Church

The "giving season" is almost upon once again. Thanksgiving is but a few days away with Christmas following hard on its heels. And so as we come to that time of the year when the exchanges of gifts becomes almost mandatory, we will do well to pause to consider again the meaning of giving.

A gift is only a gift when it is given with no strings attached. A gift is only a gift when it is given in the expectation of nothing in return. A gift is only a gift when the receiver is free to do whatever he or she will with the gift. By contrast, gifts that are given with strings attached or in the expectation of something in return are not gifts bur bribes.

How often, then, do we seek to bribe others in the name of giving them a gift? More often than we care to admit. If, for instance, your feelings are hurt when you give a present that is not appreciated, then you may know that what you are giving is not in reality a gift after all but rather a bribe calculated to produce a particular hoped for response from the recipient.

Love is often doled out in this fashion. We let others know by word and need that we will love them if they do such-insuch in return for us. "I will love you if you take the garbage out." "I will love you if you get straight A's."

The idea here is to manipulate others into doing what we want by rationing the amount of love we will let them have at a particular moment. And the fact is that all of us from time to time operate on this basis whether we like to admit it or not.

So why not become honest, courageous enough to call a bribe a bribe instead of trying to turn it into a gift?

God teaches us the meaning of giving in the gift of his Son, Jesus of Nazareth. He gave Jesus to us with no strings attached. In other words, he gave and still gives us the freedom to decide for ourselves whether to accept or reject Jesus as the Christ.

Whichever way we decide, one thing remains certain: God does not bribe us in the name of gift giving. And once we come to an understanding of this truth in our hearts, we can then begin to give as giving is meant to be: freely and with nothing expected in return.

Six local youths win blue ribbons in 4-H food contest

Six Aransas County 4-Hers took part in the San Patricio and Aransas County 4-H County Food Show on Saturday, Nov. 14 in Taft.

The 4-Hers competing from Aransas County all received first place blue ribbons and three received first place ribbons for winning in their overall food groups.

Annalies Corbin made a strawberry bread with cream cheese spread which won a blue ribbon and the first place overall ribbon in the breads and cereals group. Annalies will represent Aransas and San Patricio counties in the district food show.

Robert Konvicka made a Texas Sheath Cake and won a first place blue ribbon and the first place in his overall food group of nutritious snacks and desserts. He will also be representing the Aransas and San Patricio County 4-H club in the district contest.

Willie Wendland made a spinach salad, winning a first place ribbon and the first place overall ribbon in the fruits and vegetables group. Because Willis is a pre-4-Her, he cannot compete in the district food show.

Bill Corbin's peach double deckers won a first place blue ribbon, as did Richard Wendland's Mexican chef salad and Terresa Konvicka's pineapple upside down cake.

The contestants were graded on possible scores of 70-100. A total score fo 90-100 earned a blue ribbon, with scores of 80-89 receiving red ribbon and 70-79 receiving white ribbons.

Scoring was based on 1) knowledge of the food and nutrients — 50 points; 2) the way the food was exhibited — 25 points and 3) the contestant's day's menu — 25 points.

Prior to the show, contestants had to turn in their recipe, their day's menu and project forms. During the judging, they were asked questions based on the above scoring. This was followed by a taste test.

The date, time and place of the district show in which Annalies, Corbin and Robert Konvicka will compete has not yet been announced.

Troop 516 having a busy month

Troop 516 of the Rockport Girl Scouts is busily gathering children's clothing of all sizes for a clothes drive. The drive will aid the Foster Children's Association of Aransas and San Patricio County.

Clothing is at present being collected, sized and packed. Helping the scout troop out with the project is Brownie Troop 411.

The troop is also getting ready to assist the Lion's Club of Rockport in their annual Christmas Toy Drive, which will take place in December and in addition, the scouts are planning a party with the Aransas County Concerned Citizens to meet foster grandparents.

This troop has 22 girls registered and 17 adult members. Scouts in the troop include students from Live Oak, Rockport and Fulton Elementary.

Allegro Garden Club makes Christmas plans

The November meeting of the Allegro Garden Club was held on Monday, Nov. 9 at the Allegro House.

Donna Kay from the Crazy Daisy gave a demonstration featuring Christmas ornaments, candy and various dried greenery, creating a small table arrangement suitable for a child's room. She also gave the club a lesson in bow making.

Immediately following the presentation from the florist, Wanda Sorem, president, called the regular meeting to order.

Christmas ideas, home decorations and luminarios were discussed. Mary Smith, chairman of the Christmas activities, announced that the evening of Dec. 21 has been chosen for the home lighting and decorations contest.

Contestants must be registered in order to be in the contest, but everyone is encouraged to have Christmas lights and decorations on by 6 p.m. Dec. 21.

Elsie Monk, horticulture chairman, showed members the plants being used in a club experiment involving three different types of growth methods.

There being no other business, the meeting was adjourned.

Hostesses for the meeting were Jean Rowe and Elsie Monk.

Club holds card party

The members of the Woman's Club of Aransas County and winter visitors met for a card party on Monday, Nov. 16. The meeting was held at the club house.

The social hour began at 12:30. The table was laid with a gold net cloth over a decorated swiss flounce. Silk flowers decorated the tables. These pieces were furnished by Crazy Daisy florists.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Herbert Haseloff, Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. H.E. Hubbard, Mrs. George Stewart and Mrs. R.D. Scrivner. Presiding at tea and coffee services were Mrs. Andrew Stensgaard and Mrs. Peg Childs.

First place in bridge was won by Mrs. William McMillan of Denver, Colorado and second place went to Mrs. Al Barker of Sioux City, Iowa.

Winner in canasta was Mrs. Art Dittberner of Rosalee, Nebraska. Second place was Mrs. Mary Kissel of Rockport.

The finale was won by Mrs. Earnest Russ of Wheatland, Wyoming.

All winter tourists are invited to attend both Monday and Friday parties.

Band sells cheese to raise funds

The Rockport - Fulton Band will be conducting a fund raising campaign, which began on Friday, Nov. 20. The band members will be taking orders for cheese products.

The money received from this campaign will be used for all band members, grades six through 12. In order for the band to reach its goal, they need the help of everyone in the community.

Members will be calling on local residents and will be offering an opportunity to order one or more of the cheese products.

According to band director Roland Zapata, the cheese products are "fairly priced and of excellent quality. This is a product every home uses and can also be an excellent gift item."

Hayes will instruct china painters

The Rockport Porcelain China Painters met at the home of Mrs. Chatt Conwill on Tuesday, Nov. 17.

The group will be studying this year under the direction of Mrs. Corinne Hayes of Anthony, Kansas. Mrs. Hayes has been a member of the International Porcelain Art Teachers Association since 1962.

She has studied under many outstanding artists including Anna Learned of Bethany College, Mary Cox of Kansas, Eva Meeks of Arizona, Madge Scheussler of Wichita and Jacque Gillmang of Oklahoma. She is also a member of a porcelain organization in Anthony known as the China Belles.

Anyone wishing information concerning the classes may contact Mrs. Conwill at 729-7443.

TOPS 1124 meets

TOPS club 1124 of Rockport held its regular meeting at Larson's Landing Sunday, Nov. 15 and welcomed five new members.

Carl Baker, Gloris Baker, Carissa Rick, Ruth Fears and Jennifer Dana all became members of the club at the meeting.

Members Kathy Milford and Gloris Baker attended a meeting in Corpus Christi the previous Saturday, and heard Marjorie Williams, TOPS Texas co-ordinator, speak. The two enjoyed themselves and brought back many new ideas and interesting information.

The club had a three way tie for Mr. and Ms. Inspiration. Carl Baker, Kathy Milford and Dianne Matte were the members in the tie.

Carl Baker was king of the Week. Runner up for TOPS of the week was Gloris Baker.

Carroll, Ingleside sweep the Rockport-Fulton teams

For a little more than a half, Rockport-Fulton played eye-to-eye with Corpus Christi Carroll before the Tigers took advantage of Rockport mistakes to go on to win the season opener by a 68-45 score.

No one Pirate ever took charge of things as the game progressed, although Dennis Hull was always in the middle of things, especially under the backboards.

In the first quarter Rockport-Fulton played well enough to stay even with the potent Tigers, an annual power in the Class 5-A district in Corpus. The Pirates failed to convert some Tiger miscues into points, or the Pirates would have been ahead by a considerable margin.

Carroll opened a five point lead by the half, but that only happened when the Pirates' floor game fell apart and bad passes and poor judgment began to plague Rockport-Fulton. Even with the 13 turnovers the Pirates committed in the first half, they trailed by only five points at halftime, 30-25.

The third quarter was the "killer" as the Tigers outeverythinged the Pirates, including out-shooting the Pirates by a 19-6 edge.

When the fourth period rolled around, the Pirates were well out of the game trailing at that point 49-31.

The fact that no one took charge was evident in the scoring for the Pirates: Hull (8); James Walls (8); Dwayne Walls (6); Jon Shaw (6); Micheal Simmons (5); Ted Redden (4); Zachary Green (4); Rory Morgan (2); and Orlando Pina (2).

Playing before the Varsity was the JV, and Carroll had control of that game as well. Jumping out to a big lead by halftime, the Tigers used their superior height and better shooting to hand the Pirates their first loss of the year, 50-31.

Jeffrey Dickerson was the top scorer with only five points. However, eight other Pirates were credited with scoring points.

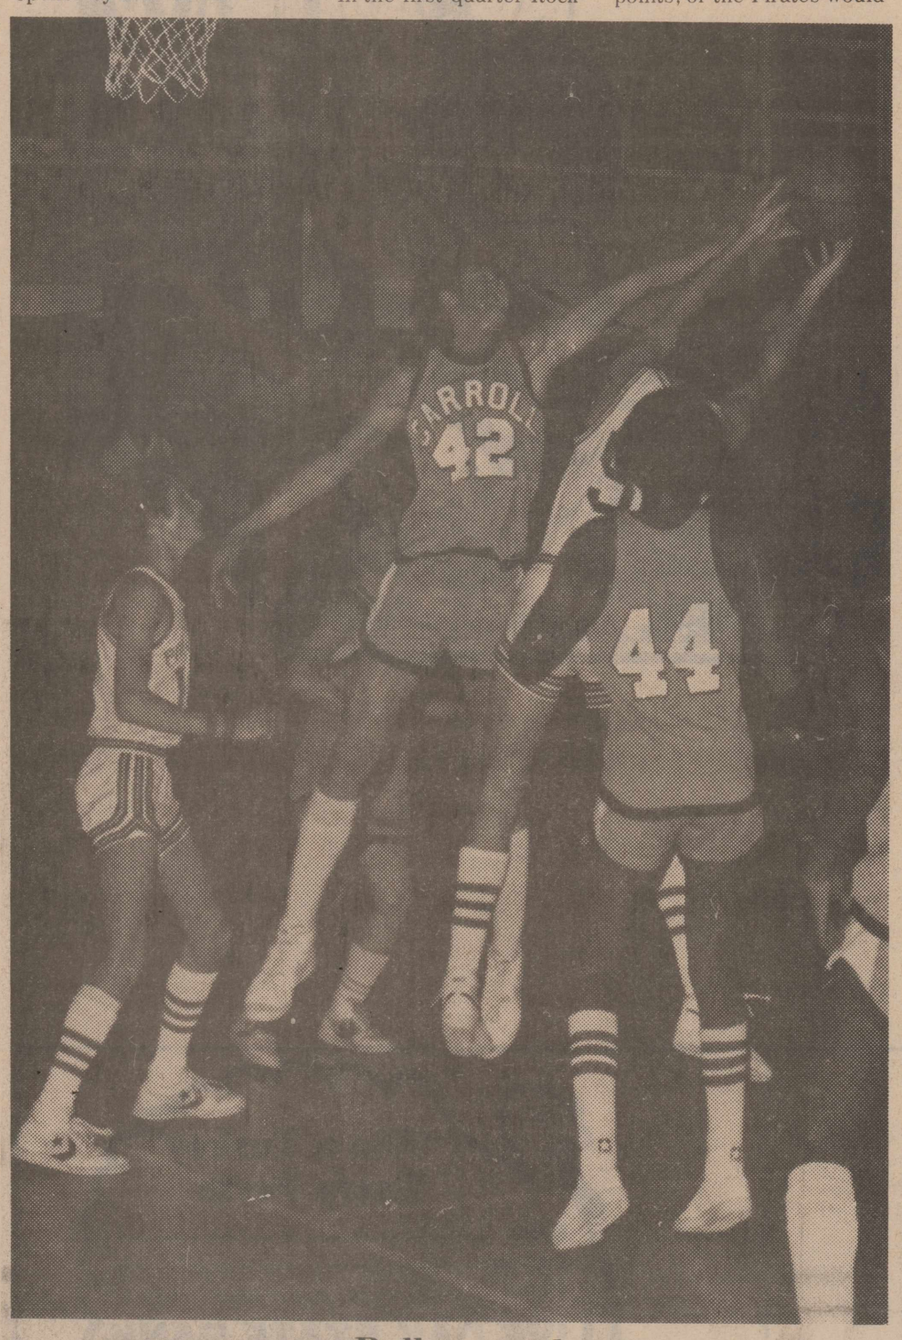

As the boys were playing Carroll, the Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirates were going to Ingleside to play. Ingleside put some of the biggest players in South Texas on the court, and the outcome indicated just that.

Ingleside won 85-23 over the young Lady Pirates, a team with only one senior. Lee Anna Cassel was the top scorer for Rockport with 10 points.

Ingleside struck early to build up a lead of 21-6, and from there they burned the nets for 64 additional points in the final three quarters.

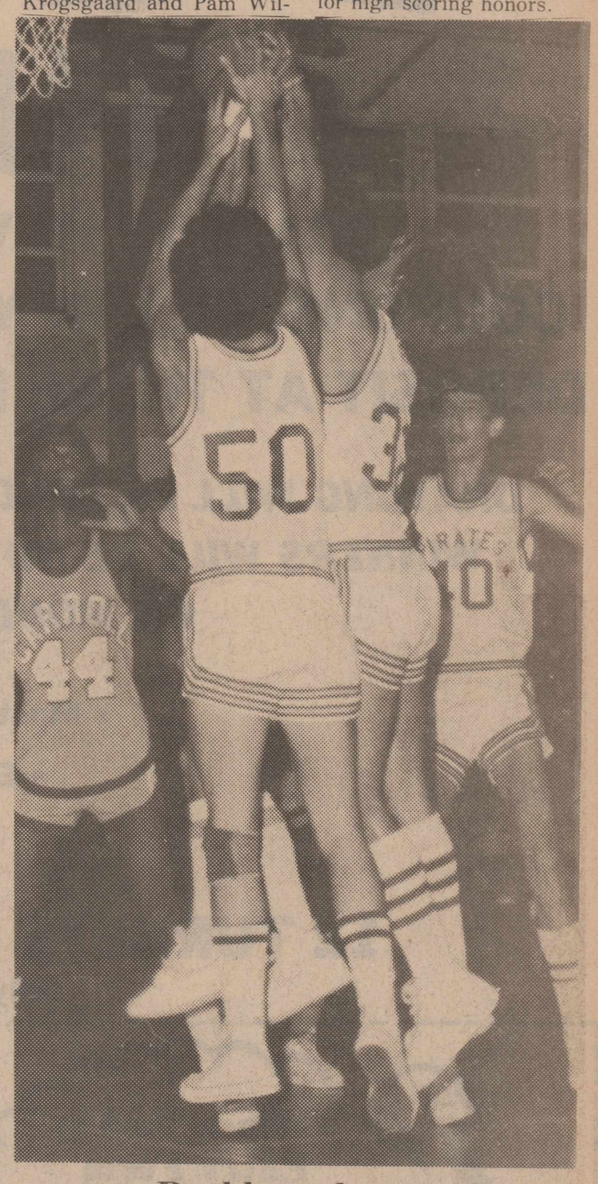

Rockport's Lady Pirates JV ran into similar circumstances as Ingleside won that game 46-19. Missy Krogsgaard and Pam Willett each scored six points to pace the JV.

In Freshmen action, Rockport was in the game until the very end, dropping a 37-27 contest. Johnie Jordan had 10 points and Kelly Foitik added 8 points for high scoring honors.

Strikers, Hurricanes battle

By Terry Cody

When the Barracudas and the Kicks get together soccer fans know they're in for some real action and Saturday's Championship Game was no exception. The Peewee Division teams battled their way through regulation play and a 10-minute sudden death overtime period without a goal to set the stage for a soccer "shoot-out" to decide the league Championship.

The Kicks scored two goals in the shootout and their goalkeeper Benjamin Clark blocked two penalty kicks by the Barracudas to earn the Championship trophies.

During the first half the Barracudas seemed to have the advantage but each time they threatened to score the Kicks defense met the challenge and stopped the strong attack. During the first half the Barracudas had at least five excellent scoring opportunities but could not get the ball into the Kicks goal.

During the second half both teams continued to battle up and down the field with the Kicks probably having the better scoring opportunities.

Just eight minutes into the half Billy Barker of the Barracudas took a direct kick following a tripping penalty but missed just wide to the right. Ten minutes later Bridget Brundrett of the Kicks cleared the ball from in front of her own goal and passed the ball to Brandi Brundrett who made a beautiful long run downfield. Brandi weaved her way through the Barracuda defense and took a hard shot at the goal. Jonathan Sifuentes made an excellent block to save the goal and send the game into sudden-death overtime.

In the overtime period the action was even more intense. The Barracudas attacked first when Jerry Schibi worked the ball toward the goal then missed wide to the right. Teammate Robert Solis then missed a shot from the left wing and the action continued.

Seven minutes into the period Billy Barker executed a beautiful corner kick for the Barracudas to get the ball to Jerry Schibi whose hard shot bounced off the goal's crossbar. A minute later Brandi Brundrett made a fine corner kick but Jason Eckert blocked the shot and passed to Elias Anderson who cleared the ball away from the Barracudas goal. The Kicks had another corner kick before time ran out but the Barracudas stopped that threat also.

The Kicks won the shootout on goals by Brandi Brundrett and Shannon Ray Johnson who placed fine shots into the left corner of the goal. Kicks goalkeeper Benjamin Clark made two excellent plays to block shots by Billy Barker and Jason Eckert of the Barracudas to assure the victory.

The Consolation Game in the Peewee Division was another fierce contest between two evenly matched teams. The first half ended in a 0-0 tie, and both teams searched for that extra advantage during the halftime break.

Twenty minutes into the second half Brandon West of the Chiefs scored on a long shot from the right side after a long breakaway run. Four minutes later with only one minute remaining West took a penalty kick when P.J. Levy fouled Vic Ovendon in the penalty area.

West's conversion put the Chiefs out in front 2-0 and assured their third place position in the final standings.

Barracudas, Kicks thrill fans

By Terry Cody

The Strikers and the Hurricanes battled down to the last minute of the game before the Strikers scored the game-winning goal and took home the championship trophies with a 2-1 victory in the Intermediate Division of Rockport's Youth Soocer League.

It looked like soccer fans might be in for a high-scoring game when the Hurricanes scored their first goal just eight minutes into the first half.

Robert Schoen started things off with a beautiful high corner kick — from the right side that put the ball in play directly in front of the Striker goal.

For the next few seconds Striker goalkeeper Troy Lee Brown held his breath as the ball bounced from one flying foot to another. Finally Gene Garcia of the Hurricanes got control of the ball and passed to Miles Adkison who was waiting on the left wing.

Adkison made a fine shot through the Striker defense to put his team ahead 1-0. Both defenses toughened up and although there was plenty of action the first half ended without another goal.

Both teams got pep talks at halftime and the action started off fast and furious in the second half. Just seven minutes into the half Russell Crawford of the Strikers fired a shot from the right side past goalkeeper Curtis Lee to tie the score 1-1.

Once again the defensive units for both teams knuckled down and broke up every scoring attempt by the hard-working forwards.

With about five minutes to go both teams pulled out all the stops and fans were treated to some of the most exciting soocer of the year. Robert Schoen of the Hurricanes made a long pass to left winger Miles Adkison.

Adkison took a quick shot and when Striker goalkeeper Brad Bechtol fell down trying to stop the ball it looked like a sure goal — but luck was on the Strikers side this time and the ball scooted just outside the right goalpost. Less than a minute later the Hurricanes fired another hard shot from the left side but Bechtol made a beautiful save to keep the Strikers alive.

The Strikers got their chance when the Hurricanes were called for a hand ball but couldn't get the direct kick into the goal. Half a minute later Dean Wix blasted a hard shot from the right side but Hurricane goalkeeper Curtis Lee blocked the shot and sent the ball sailing toward the other end of the field.

After a couple of short Hurricane passes, Russell Crawford and Ricardo Romero of the Strikers stole the ball and worked it down the right side. Goalkeeper Lee made another excellent save and once again punted the ball downfield.

This time the Hurricanes worked the ball into scoring range but Jeffery Gatica fired a hard shot that went wide of the goal. Bechtol booted the ball downfield and seconds later the Hurricanes were called for a handball inside the penalty area setting up a dangerous penalty kick.

With just seconds left in regulation play Dean Wix blasted a strong shot toward the goal. Curtis Lee made a terrific play on the ball but just missed blocking the shot and the Strikers had the goal they needed to win the Championship by a 2-1 margin.

The consolation game for third place in the Intermediate Division between the Cosmos and the Tornadoes was another hard-fought game that set the stage for the rest of the day's soccer action. At the final whistle the Tornadoes had pulled off their third 1-0 victory over the Cosmos this season.

Both teams played well the first half with some fine open-field passing on both ends of the field. Josh McWhorter, Kevin Biggs and Eric Flores led the offensive attack of the Tornadoes but were unable to get the ball past the stubborn Cosmos defense anchored by Chris Atchley, Clint Carter and goalkeeper Darrell Nunez.

The Cosmos worked the ball toward the Tornadoes goal time after time with sharp passes by Jimmy Olivares, Erick DeWolfe and Brian Cody but each scoring threat was stopped by the hustling Tornadoes or an errant shot on goal. The first half ended in a 0-0 tie.

At the 12 minute mark of the second half the Tornadoes worked the ball deep into Cosmos territory. From the right corner Josh McWhorter passed the ball along the goal line to teammate Kevin Biggs who got control of the ball and first a shot at the Cosmos goal.

Cosmos goalkeeper Darrell Nunez had good position on the ball but the ball took a bad hop and bounced over his head scoring the game's only goal.

From that point on the Cosmos seemed somewhat listless but continued to give the Tornadoes all the competition they could handle. At the final whistle the Tornadoes coach breathed a sigh of relief and headed off with his team to celebrate their hard-fought 1-0 victory.

Area fishing report

Norther brings good fishing

Key Allegro — A few reds and some trout are being caught in the flats and the flounder should be running in this area but no reports yet of any catches. No one has been doing anything off shore. The bait situation is slim, 729-2761.

Kleine's Rattlesnake Point — No report, 729-2892.

Copano Causeway — Fishing is still good at night and as always just before a cold front it was excellent Thursday and Thursday evening. Everyone is getting their limit of trout. A few reds and a few flounder are being taken. Most everyone is using lures but dead bait is available, 729-8633.

St. Charles Bay — Fishing is real good here, plenty of reds and trouts being caught. Coke Lee landed nine speckled trout, all going over three pounds. Terry Carter and his son brought in 20 reds weighing between five and eight pounds each. No flounder, the tide is up and the water murky. Duck hunting is slow but will pick up with the arrival of the cold front. Dead bait only, 729-2053.

Sea Gun — Not many people going out but those that do make an effort are catching lots of nice reds and trout. Most everyone in this area is busy duck hunting. Live and dead bait available, 729-2341.

Palm Harbor — Dr. Carter and Howard Brown left here with one quart of live bait and returned with 40 trout and two reds. The reds weighed in at eight pounds each. A few flounder are being taken at night. Bait is uncertain but they hope to have live bait for the weekend if the norther doesn't keep the boat in at the dock, 729-8540.

Fulton Beach Marina — No report, 729-8609.

Fulton Harbor Bait — No report, 729-8532.

Beach Road Bait House — Not many fishermen out but those who have tried it have landed a few good size trout. Fishing has been generally slow but there is live bait available, 729-8614.

Sandollar — No report, 729-8562.

Tagged bass program

AUSTIN — Fishermen on Calaveras Lake near San Antonio should be on the lookout for largemouth bass carrying tags worth $5 to $100.

The program is designed to evaluate the effectiveness of the "slot" length limit established for the lake. Only bass measuring 14 inches or less, or 18 inches or more, may be retained by fishermen. The experimental limit is designed to protect an overharvested size class of bass and create balanced populations.

Officials said although most of the tags are worth $5, several larger rewards have been paid. So far, 132 returned tags have resulted in $775 paid to anglers.

The Lewis Grizzard column

Time to give Ford a pardon

By Lewis Grizzard

I turned on the television the other evening and there was another comic doing an impression of former President Gerald Ford.

If you've seen one Gerald Ford impression, you've seen them all. Anybody halfway awkward can do an impression of Gerald Ford, like Chevy Chase, who became a big star simply because he could trip over his big feet.

So Mr. Ford tripped a few times and fell down a few steps. George Washington had wooden teeth and Andrew Jackson kept live chickens in the White House.

At least Gerald Ford doesn't have wooden teeth, and, to my knowledge, he never allowed one live chicken into the White House.

It's funny. Nobody does impressions of former presidents Richard Nixon and Jimmy Carter anymore, but we're still picking on Gerald Ford, who was president barely long enough to have the sheets changed on the presidential bed.

What was it about Mr. Ford's short tenure in Washington that makes us want to poke fun at him? Besides the fact that he was clumsy?

Some people think he wasn't so very smart, perhaps because his brain had been softened while he played football at Michigan.

Think how many times Ronald Reagan has probably been thrown off his horse and fallen on his head.

Why doesn't anybody make jokes about Mr. Reagan's soft head? At least Ford never made a movie with a monkey.

Then there was all that business about Ford's golf game. He was always being invited to play golf in big golf tournaments, and somebody was always getting beaned by his tee shots.

So Ford wasn't the greatest golfer in the world. Is that any reason to continue making him a laughingstock? If you held a golf tournament for all the men who have served as president, Gerald Ford certainly wouldn't be the worst golfer of the group.

Martin Van Buren would be the worst. Don't ask me how I know that, I just do.

Not only are people making jokes about former President Ford and going on television to do tired impressions of him, many are objecting to the fact that he is getting rich as an ex-president and is drawing a big pension, and that we are building him a library in Grand Rapids, Mich.

I was reading a letter to the editor in a large newspaper just the other day. It said:

"Why should the taxpayers continue to support Gerald Ford? The American people never elected Gerald Ford to anything. He was appointed vice president, and then became president because the man who appointed him was run out of office. The only thing he has distinguished himself as is he is the only politician in the country who could have figured out how to lose to Jimmy Carter."

That is mean. That is vicious. How could anybody have it in that bad for Gerald Ford?

I don't think he ever meant to harm anybody while he was president.

He didn't throw the book at Richard Nixon, and he didn't make fun of the fact that Jimmy Carter is short and has a voice like a little boy when the two ran against each other in 1976.

He was sort of a big, friendly puppy of a president who occasionally got his feet and his words tangled up, but Abraham Lincoln had the gait and look of a slow mule, so they said, and he is considered one of our greatest presidents.

Gerald Rudolph Ford, the 38th presidents of the United States. It is high time, my fello Americans, that we gave him his pardon.

Rockport sales tax refunds show increase

According to reports from the State Comptroller, Rockport realized an increase in sales tax of almost 34 percent for the last reporting period.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock sent out checks totaling $96.4 million to 948 Texas cities as their share of the one percent city sales tax for Nov.

The payments push totals for Texas cities through Nov. of this year to $614.7 million, a 16.6 percent increase over payments for the same 11-month period in 1980.

Rockport received $64,531.76 for this pay period compared to only $45,903.78 for the same period last year.

The city has received $297,322.92 sales tax refunds for 1981. Rockport received only $222,245.15 for 1980.

Fulton has received $4,274.20 for this pay period and $30,410.59 for 1981 compared to only $14,428.98 for the same period in 1980.

Fulton showed a 110.76 percent increase over the same period in 1980.

Aransas Pass showed only a 14.88 percent increase in sales tax refunds for the latest pay period and received $62,291.79 for the latest report period.

Aransas Pass has received a total of $333,339.97 to date for 1981 compared to only $290,161.03 for the same period in 1980.

Payments to Texas metropolitan cities for Nov. 1981 include Houston with tax refunds of $20 million, Dallas with refunds of $10 million and El Paso with refunds of $2.2 million.

The optional one-percent city sales tax is collected along with the state four-percent sales tax by merchants and businesses and is rebated each month by the Comptroller to the cities where it is levied.

Cacti bloom at Christmas

By Ted Brice
Garden Editor

Generally speaking the culture of the "less spiney" epiphytic cacti . . . Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter cacti, rhipsalis, chiapora, cryptocereus, nopalxochia bloom during the spring. Rhipsalis blooms off-and-on through the year.

Thanksgiving and Christmas cacti will bloom during the holiday season if raised where the amount of light they receive corresponds to the actual daylight hours during each season of the year. That is, they will bloom on schedule and of their own accord if raised outdoors or in a greenhouse.

But if they are raised indoors where they receive additional artificial light at night (i.e., in your living room) you must take appropriate measures to insure that they will bloom. It is particularly important for Thanksgiving and Christmas cacti to experience a rest period at the appropriate time in order to come into flower during the holiday season. Starting around Labor Day situate your Thanksgiving/Christmas cacti in an evenly cool place where they will receive a minimum of 12 hours of darkness out of every 24 hours.

Reduce the amount of water given during this time, but don't allow the plants to dry out completely and withhold the fertilizer. After the plants finish blooming, increase the amount of light to sixteen hours. Continue to water lightly until their spring growth commences, at which time their fertilization schedule can also be resumed. The spiney-er epiphytic cacti deamia, harrisia, heliocereus, hylocereus and selenicereus bloom during the late spring and on up into early summer. Add one-half volume washed builder's sand to either commercially packaged mix or basic epiphyllum mix. They prefer stronger light than epiphyllums. Their own cultural requirements are basically the same as for the flowering jungle cacti epiphyllums.

There are several plant organizations such as Hoya Society of America, Cactus and succulent Society of America and the Epiphyllum Society of America that can be of tremendous help for those interested in learning more about the Thanksgiving and the Christmas Cacti as well as other cacti. So long until next week from your garden editor, Ted Brice.

Treated lumber for outdoors projects saves you money

If you've replaced a rotten board on your patio deck or fence lately, the cost of that single piece of lumber may have shocked you.

Lumber, like most items, has increased in price. And according to the Texas Forest Service, lumber prices will continue to rise. The demand for wood is growing faster than the supply.

One way to fight rising costs is to use treated wood for outdoor projects. This not only reduces wood replacement and saves you money, but also extends America's wood supply.

As part of the national and state observance of Forest Products Week, Oct. 18-24, the Texas Forest Service encourages the use of treated wood and offers a brief description of wood preservatives.

Treated lumber is necessary for building an outdoor wooden dock, deck, fence, or furniture — if it's expected to last a number of years. It is an absolute must if the wood is in contact with the ground.

The only alternative to treated wood is redwood or western red cedar. However, only the heartwood of these woods are resistant to termit and fungus. And they're not cheap. Redwood and cedar heartwood costs about 60 percent more than treated southern yellow pine.

There are three major classes of treatments — creosote, pentachlorophenol and water-born preservatives. Each has characteristics useful in specific jobs.

The major disadvantage of creosote for home projects is that it's messy. Creosote may bleed out of the wood. It can discolor clothes and burn skin on contact, plus its smell is offensive to some. If you don't like the black color, use another us another preservative. It cannot be painted.

Pentachlorophenol (often called "penta") treated wood can be used for the same jobs as creosote but is cleaner. Light brown petroleum solvents such as naptha, spirits and kerosene are often used with penta to carry the preservative into the wood. These solvents leave the wood paintable or stainable. If left unfinished, the wood will eventually turn a silver-grey color, similar to driftwood.

This "clean treatment" is used for stadium seats, exterior siding, patio decks, trellises, fencing, outdoor furniture and playground equipment.

Penta-treated wood should not be used for interior applications or where it might come in contact with food stuffs or fragile vegetation, such as planter boxes.

Water-born preservatives are basically chemicals that are dissolved in water, or water-based chemical solutions. Chromated copper arsenate (CCA) is the primary water-born preservative used in treating southern yellow pine today.

The prime advantages of water-born preservatives is their cleanliness, paintability and freedom of odor. You can saw, plane, chisel, drill and nail it as you would ordinary pine. Uses of CCA-treated material is limitless: fences, playground equipment, patios, sunscreens, stairs and railings, sundecks, shelters and gazebos.

For exterior or ground-contact applications, wood pressure-treated with creosote, penta and CCA preservatives have demonstrated superior service under extreme conditions. If a slight odor is objectionable or paintability is required, a "clean penta" or CCA treatment should be selected.

There are two precautions in any home building project using pressure-treated wood. Be sure to treat any new saw cuts with a good preservative, such a penta. Use hot-dipped galvanized or aluminum nails, bolts or screws to prevent corrosion and discoloration.

Most lumber yards stock treated lumber. Dealers can special order treated lumber and deliver it within three to five days. For larger projects, there are numerous treating plants in Texas where quantity orders can be filled.

For a pleasing home project that will last for years, use treated wood. It not only saves money in the long run, but helps extend America's wood supply.

For more flavorful turkey meal leave skin intact

Retain moisture and flavor of pheasants and wild turkeys by plucking the feathers and leaving the skin intact rather than skinning. To pluck, remove the wings at the joint nearest the body. Cut off the feet at the first joint above the feet. Most hunters prefer to pick the birds dry rather than wet.

After "rough picking," the down feathers can be removed by "skidding" or rubbing across the bird firmly with the thumb. Use a knife blade and the thumb as a stop to pull pinfeathers. The bird can be singed over a flame to remove down. Remove the head and most of the neck.

Smaller birds can be either skinned or plucked. More flavor and moisture are retained if the skin remains intact. Remove wings and feet with shears before skinning or plucking.

Aging at a temperature just above freezing for 24 to 48 hours generally removes some of the gamy flavor which might detract from eating pleasure.

Business is welcome and comfortable in Texas, Bob Bullock says

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday said Texas' prospering economy and healthy business climate played a vital role in the state's solid financial record during the last budget year.

"Business is welcome and comfortable in Texas and that's a situation that contributes to an economy that continues to outpace other states as well as strengthen the tax base and tax collections," Bullock said.

Bullock's assessment was drawn from the State of Texas 1981 Annual Financial report covering the state's fiscal year which ended on Aug. 31, 1981.

"Texas finances remained sound," Bullock said in the report's transmittal letter to Governor Bill Clements.

Bullock noted that the Texas economy fared well in 1980, which is generally considered a recession year nationally, and that growth in population, personal income and jobs has a direct positive effect on state revenues and taxes.

The ability of Texas to absorb a high population growth while maintaining relatively high levels of employment and per capita income has been the key to the strong posture of the Texas economy, the report said.

The annual report showed that the state gained more than 300,000 jobs in the past year, and that this economic growth was instrumental in the increase of per capita income for Texans.

Texas income grew at an average annual rate of 4.6 percent between 1977 and 1980, compared to U.S. income over the same period of 3.2 percent.

The report showed that total revenue and beginning cash balances of $16.05 billion financed net expenditures of $13.19 billion.

Bullock said the state ended up with a possible "cash surplus" of about $230 million — a General Revenue fund ending cash balance of $676.3 million, minus about $440 million in existing spending authority and obligations not recorded or paid.

Bullock said the ending cash balance in the General Revenue Fund was less than one percent off the figure that he predicted in a Revenue Estimate to the Legislature last January.

Improved date collection and economic analysis continue to improve the state's ability to monitor its financial transactions, he said.

"The state's financial health is tied directly to the strength of the state's economy and is part and parcel to the government's financial well-being," Bullock said.

Energy production, because of higher prices, pushed oil and gas production taxes to record levels — $2.19 billion in 1981 — but still well behind state sales tax which produced $2.9 billion.

Oil, gas and sales tax collections were responsible for 81 percent of the 62 percent increase in tax collections, Bullock said.

Motor fuels, franchise, business, alcohol, motor vehicle, insurance, and miscellaneous taxes totaled about $2.1 billion.

State expenditures during the year increased about 11 percent over 1980. Educational outlays claimed about half of the increase, followed by increases in welfare and highway spending.

Support for state and local education totaled $5.1 billion. Welfare expenditures reached $1.8 billion and outlays for highway maintenance and construction totaled $1.6 billion.

Texas received $2.88 billion in federal funds during 1981 and this money accounted for 21.4 percent of the state's total net revenue.

The Window Shop now open for business

Rudy Nava

Anyone who has ever had a screen tear or a window pane break can appreciate the importance of a quality repair job.

And that's where Rudy Nava comes in. Nava has recently opened The Window Shop, located next to his home at 1105 Warbler in West Terrace.

He specializes in replacing damaged aluminum screen and re-glassing broken windows for residential buildings.

"Nobody in town did it," saya Nava. "A lot of people have asked me wher to go to get screens repaired, so I built a shop to do it."

The results have been great, according to Nava, who has handled jobs from all over, including Kingsville and Beeville. "I haven't had a dissatisfied customer yet," he says.

The dealer he buys screening from recently remarked on how low Nava's prices are, and he feels that they are indeed competitive. "I'm less expensive than other people doing this and I use very high quality material," says Nava.

Nava worked in the lumber business for 28 years. He was employed by Picton Lumber, Wagley Lumber and Live Oak Paint and Hardware Center prior to opening The Window Shop.

In addition to repairing, reglassing and custom screen work, Nava will soon be getting into the saw polishing business. He also currently makes flippers for Gulf boat shrimp nets.

He is available every day of the week at the shop and can be reached at 729-7125.

By Mrs. Richard Alden Knight

Next time I'll have my own map

WEST YELLOWSTONE, MONT. — West from West, along the Madison River and past Habgen Lake and a small stretch of river, the road comes into the center of the devastation created by the earthquake in the Madison River Canyon in 1959.

Some miles before reaching Quake Lake with its stubs of drowned trees and the barren side of the mountains, however, there are several roadside signs which point out on the mountainsides in view the still existing lines from which came that destruction.

Where these signs are, the hillsides are still covered with grasses and trees; as you go farther up the road and come into what used to be the canyon area, the contrast with the desolation is chilling.

On a bare, gravel and boulder-strewn shoulder along the highway the government has build a Quake Visitor Center where, during the summer months, tours, slide shows and photo displays can be studied. In the center of the center lobby is a large seismograph which, when I stopped by, was not in operation. It had been doing strange things and had been disconnected.

(For those so inclined, there is a small folder available reprinted with permission from the National Academy of Sciences on how one can build a small but effective seismograph at home with easily available materials. Somehow that idea doesn't appeal to me!)

Obviously, since Quake Lake is a part of the Madison River, there is fishing here and I understand that in the early part of the season spawners can be taken that are truly impressive trout. There is a boat ramp near the point where Beaver Creek runs into the lake and the fishing is supposed to be good where the river slows as it flows into Quake.

While all this may be true, and even if there were a Moby Dick of trout in this piece of water, I am not in the least interested in, nor attracted to, spending any more time here than is necessary to drive by, even on a lovely sunny day (which it certainly wasn't when I was there!). It is just too grim, too haunting in the most unpleasant sense, to draw me from the multitude of place within range where the eye and the mind can be pleased rather than repelled.

Trim-a-tree

Alma Hobson, left, and Phyllis Morrison work on Christmas decorations to sell in the Trim-a-tree booth at the Christmas Bazaar this weekend in the Paws and Taws Building. Sponsored by the Aransas County Medical Society Inc. Women's Committee, the annual Bazaar helps fund the county's ambulance service. The Bazaar is from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. Sunday. Everything from hand-painted skirts to baked goods will be available — not to mention lunch of beef stew and sandwiches in Granny's Kitchen...

Many do not understand land-use planning

Most cities in Texas and other parts of the country conduct land-use planning. Although these cities usually attempt to involve citizens in the process, many do not understand what land-use planning means.

Cities generally prepare a land-use map which depicts in a simplified manner the pattern of land use, such as residential and commercial. There also may be a future land-use plan which describes how the city should develop to achieve the objectives of its residents.

This plan shows areas for residential, commercial and industrial expansion, as well as areas intended for open space and low-density housing development. The plan serves as an aid for deciding on rezoning applications and expansion of city services. All maps and plans are public documents which you may examine by request.

Institutional investors in real estate

The entry of institutional investors into the real estate market is just one of many changes being brought about by current economic conditions.

Cash-rich institutions, especially pension funds, are buying real estate instead of just loaning money to real estate developers. And, as long as such institutions assume that inflation will keep driving values higher, they are willing to bid the highest prices.

Sellers, afraid of costly delays while trying to deal with buyers who need financing, are more than happy to deal with firms which can offer ready cash. The current favorite of these institutional invesors is the office building. Changes in leases, such as shortening the terms and allowing owners to pass on increases in expenses, have made the office building a good inflation hedge.

Tips on remodeling contracts

Due to the rising costs of buying a new home, you may decide to keep your present home and do a bit of remodeling. If your renovations require professional help, here are some tips.

Before signing a contract, check the firm's record with the Better Business Bureau. Ask for references, and make sure you have the address of both the firm and the salesperson. Compare bids on a job using the same specifications.

Ask if a firm represents different brands and if liability compensation is provided. The costs of labor and material should be specified, along with the brand, quality, weight, color and size of materials.

Make certain you understand the contract fully and that all oral promises are included. These precautions should help ensure satisfaction with your remodeling venture.

Closing costs can cost a lot

When considering the cost of buying a house, do not overlook settlement or closing costs.

These are all the fees involved in the legal settlement of the house purchase in addition to the actual purchase price. Closing costs include lawyer's fees, title insurance, mortgage application fee, real estate taxes and other costs. These expenses can add as much as 10 percent to the cost of buying a home. A $30,000 house may have closing costs ranging from $600 to $3,000.

Federal law requires your lender to provide you with a "good faith estimate" of your closing costs which you normally will receive soon after you submit a loan application. You pay closing costs at the closing meeting where your ownership becomes final.

Construction industry faces impossible goal

The nation's construction industry is caught in a classic Catch 22 situation. There is no way it can comply with the federal regulations and still achieve goals imposed by the federal government to increase proportions of women and minority workers in the industry. The skilled craft workers simply are not there.

For purposes of illustration, the effort to recruit women for the construction industry is perhaps most dramatic. Since the late 1970s the industry has been under a federal order to increase the proportion of women to 6.9 percent of the total work force. Women in 1980 accounted for only 1.57 percent of the total force of 4.5 million.

According to a leading industry group, Associated Builders and Constractors, Inc., it would require a massive effort — the recruitment, training and hiring of more than 310,000 women — to meet the 6.9 percent goal. And it takes approximately 3½ years to train a skilled journeyman. Industry spokesmen say it cannot be done under existing rules.

Here is the catch. Federal rules and agencies work at cross-purposes and thus to limit the number of apprentices who can be trained and hired. Involved are:

— The Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP), which sets the affirmative action requirements for federal contractors, including those in the construction industry.

— The Davis-Bacon Act, which restricts the number of helpers or low-skilled workers a contruction contractor may employ at below journeymen's wages on government projects — sometimes no more than one such worker for every 24 skilled journeyman on the job. The Act thus restricts apprentices, since they are paid below journeymen scale and the law restricts the number of workers who may be paid lower wages.

— The Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training (BAT), which has traditional policies that tend to discourage recruitment of apprentices, particularly in the case of non-union workers.

Unions have a special interest in controlling the number of apprentices.

Many non-union contractors, for example, favor a system of speeding up training through the entire craft's training, the apprentice would learn to install kitchen sinks. Thus, he could go from one house to the next installing kitchen sinks. Another similarly trained worker would install bathroom fixtures. But unions oppose this idea, and so does BAT.

Thus, from a practical point of view, the goal is not attainable. Although the BAT rules require that a certain proportion of each new apprenticeship class be women, the formula falls woefully short of producing sufficient numbers of meeting the national goal.

"In fact, the construction industry could not meet OFCCP goals for women through existing apprenticeships even if all new apprenticeships slots were reserved exclusively for women," ABC says.

The problem is not new, although practically ignored on Capitol Hill until recently when Sen. Orrin G. Hatch (R-Utah) and his Labor and Human Resources Committee started inquiry into the performance of OFCCP.

Among those giving the agency low marks was the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, whose labor relations chairman, Robert T. Thompson, charged the agency set "unrealistic" recuitment and hiring goals.

In recent testimony, Thompson, criticized what he termed the agency's "subjectivity" in determining "availability" — a key term in contract compliance. Affirmative action plans require contractors to employ a certain percentage of women and minority workers, based on their "availability" in a community.

their mileage every day," he said.

"They (the appraisers) are required to have a car to hold the job," Groseclose said. "But there might be a month when they don't go into the field. If that happens, we don't pay anything?"

"That's right," Ammons agreed.

"I don't think that is right," Groseclose said.

"Then it isn't a travel allowance," Ammons said and when Groseclose asked, "what would you call it?" he answered, "Fringe benefits."

Board member Jerre Ledbetter suggested altering the budget so that the $10,800 — the total of $3,600 per year paid to three appraisers — be moved from the "Salaries and Benefits" portion of the budget to the "Supplies and Expenses" side. The board would then decide on a per-mile reimbursement figure at a later meeting.

The other board members agreed with the proposal.

She also makes available to her clients a tape that they can use for self-hypnosis along with a detailed instruction sheet on how to use the tape to provide self-therapy. "I used to give the tapes away," Jean says, but the cost of making them led her to a $5 charge.

The tape lets the client provide his or her own program for self-improvement, reinforcing what has already been gained through one or more sessions with Jean. It starts with Jean's voice and the same background music as on the tape in her office and the emphasis — as in the sessions with Jean — is always on making the individual feel good about himself.

In her one-on-one sessions, Jean will cover just about anything from "straight out-and-out programming" — to help a client who wants to stop smoking or lose weight, for example — through subconscious programming (always done with the client's permission — obtained before the client is hypnotized). She has also done age and past-life regressions for clients who request it.

On Mondays, Jean does hypnosis at the Shapemakers, with hypnotherapy for weight loss from noon til 1 p.m., smoking from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and "Stress relief" from 3 p.m. until 4 p.m.

After seven years of training and nearly a year of working as a hypnotherapist, Jean can vouch that just about anyone can be hypnotized — if they really want to. "If you're working with a skilled hypnotist, if you want to be hypnotized and if your have the mental capacity to listen to and follow istruction," she says, "you can be hypnotized."

As for the fear of letting someone else "control your mind" — a hypnotist cannot do that, she emphasizes.

"You (the individual being hypnotized) always have the ultimate control," she says. "You cooperate with a skilled and ethical hypnotherapist for the purpose of improving your life — because you want to. And," she adds, "if you wanted to get up and walk out in the middle of a hypnosis session, you could!"

She also emphasized that there is no way a client can get "stuck" in the middle of a session.

"I had a client with this fear," Jean says. "She asked me, what would happen if I had a heart attack and died in the middle of a session — how would she be able to 'get back'?

"The answer," she laughs, "is that if something happened and I was unable to finish the session and awaken you, you would either awaken immediately or you would fall into a normal sleep and awaken spontaneously in a few minutes."

For the same reason, she added, a person using the self-hynosis tape would not get "stuck" if for some reason the tape were to shut off before the session is completed.

"We're survivors," she said, "and our minds are going to protect us. Hypnosis is not like being drugged."

"Hypnosis is not a new field," she said. "People have been working with it since the 1800's. But it isn't well understood."

Jean Glowka, like a growing number of hypnotherapists, is trying to understand it — at least well enough to use it to help her clients help themselves.

Hermann Hospital begins Kidney Institute construction

HOUSTON — Hermann Hospital Executive Director William F. Smith announces that construction has begun on the Texas Kidney Institute, which tentatively will begin accepting patients by late 1982.

Currently, there is no comprehensive, integrated facility in Houston to provide care for kidney disease patients of all ages. Hermann's new kidney institute will respond to the specialized needs of kidney-related disease patients throughout Texas and surrounding areas, according to Smith.

The Texas Kidney Institute will be located on the ninth floor of Jones Pavilion in Hermann Hospital at the Texas Medical Center. Although funding is expected to come from private donations and patient revenue, the Texas Kidney Institute has received an advanced gift of $1.3 million from the Houston Endowment, Inc., major donors of the Jones Pavilion.

"Our goal is to become a regional renal care center. Hermann's kidney facility will offer a unique system of kidney patient care by combining separate resources in a single endeavor," said Smith.

Specialists in medicine, pediatrics, and surgery will work together in the Texas Kidney Institute to provide optimal diagnosis and management in the care of children and adults afflicted with kidney disease, explained Dr. Thomas Andreoli, medical director of the Texas Kidney Institute.

The 20 beds in the medicine division of the Texas Kidney Institute will provide specialized care to adult patients afflicted with a variety of diseases that affect the kidney, as well as hypertension problems, hormonal imbalances, and systemic diseases such as diabetes.

Patient care rooms in the medicine unit will feature life support and monitoring equipment, and the capability of on-site dialysis for the acutely ill patient.

The acute dialysis unit will contain 12 stations for the dialysis of adults and children. The unit will accommodate approximately 5700 dialytic procedures yearly.

The pediatric unit will provide 10 beds for children suffering from various stages of kidney disease and those requiring dialysis or transplant. The pediatric division also will feature a play area, rooming-in facilities, a classroom, and a consultation room.

The surgery/transplantation division will include 19 beds and a four bed intensive care area for kidney transplant candidates. Emergency crisis intervention equipment, dialysis therapy, mechanical ventilatory support and life support equipment will be available in the intensive care area.

With the expanded facilities of the Texas Kidney Institute, increased availability of cadaveric organs for transplant, and heightened demand for transplant operations, the team at Hermann may soon be performing 200 transplants each year.

The Texas Kidney Institute also will feature a pharmacy, laboratory, special diet kitchen, and treatment rooms.

Dr. Barry Kahan, MD., Ph.D, will direct the surgery/transplantation division while Dr. Eileen Brewer, MD, will direct the institute's pediatric division.

Kingsville to sponsor fire protection school

The 7th Annual Kingsville Regional Fire Protection School sponsored by the Kingsville Fire Department will be held at Kingsville on Dec. 4 and 5.

All members of volunteer, paid and part-paid departments from cities, counties and industries in the coastal bend region are invited to attend.

Registration begins at 6:00 p.m. on Friday night at 119 N. 10th Street, Kingsville.

Training will be provided in extinguishing car fires, approach and extinguishment of a tank transport, and approach and extinguishment of jet fuel. Classes will be held at the fire station and the Naval Air Station.
