COOLIDGE'S DISTRICT SENDS DEMO TO CONGRESS

Huge German Liner Burns And Sinks After Unloading Passengers In New York

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Talker finds several letters in his mail today which will furnish material for the morning talk. One is from Mrs. W. A. Grant, 2125 Avenue F who writes:

"Dear Talker:

"What is love? What is civilization?

"When I read in this morning's paper (Monday's) of a man who hacked his sweetheart to pieces because of his love for her and then in an adjoining column read the mute evidence of a great love of a dog for his master when their bodies were found together, frozen, I am made to wonder, if in the realm of 'dogdom' there is not a higher standard set than in man's sphere.

"What dog would not trail his tail in the dust for shame at the sight of a drunken sot of a master and refuse to drink the 'refuse' which his master swigs with a relish.

"I think it is time that civilized man 'go to the dogs' to learn the beginning of a higher standard of living."

Talker is glad that Mrs. Grant has brought into contrast the love and devotion of the dog, which remained with his frozen master until frozen itself, with the act of the young man who slew the woman he called his sweetheart.

She asks "What is love?" Talker will not undertake to answer this but he can say that the word is terribly misused, and often by newspapers, when they refer to "love nest," "love crime" and similar sickening expressions. These terms refer to something altogether different and if there is no word that fittingly defines it, we are making mighty poor use of the word love in connection with it. And newspapers cannot escape their share of responsibility for the perversion and degradation of the term.

When we think of love we ought to think of something unselfish and self-sacrificing, and such love does abound. In the Holy Writ it is called charity, for the very reason that even in the days of the translators there was so much perversion of the word love that the learned men of that day chose another term.

The dog was probably the first animal that man domesticated. When our distant primitive ancestors slew some animal for its food the wild dogs or wolves from which they sprang probably stood off until man had eaten his fill or carried off such of his kill as was fit to eat, and then came in to devour what man had left. In this way the dogs followed man in his wanderings and finally came to share his cave and to aid him in the hunt.

There are some things that dogs have learned better than man himself. One of these is devotion. When all others desert a man to whom a dog is attached, the dog remains faithful—faithful even unto death. There are innumerable instances where dogs have not only been faithful to death, but where they have stood watch over the body of man until they themselves have succumbed, as evidently happened in the case reported from Oklahoma a few days ago.

We heard a friend of ours say one time that the more he knew men the better he liked dogs. This was an impressive way of contrasting the inconstancy and unfaithfulness of men with the devotion of a dog.

The dog has brought with him from the past the stronger gastric juices that perhaps once was a secretion of both dogs and men. But even the gastric juices of the dog balk at the refuse which some men drink. This stuff is probably more unassimilable for a man than a dog only the dog has better taste and more sense than to try to consume it.

Whatever the standards of dogdom, the dog lives up to them.

THREE BLASTS FOLLOW FIRE IN GIANT SHIP

Steamer Munchen Total Loss After Flames Gut Frame

TWO OF CREW DEAD

Emigrants Barely Walk to Safety Before Series of Explosions

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (UP)—Fire, raging spectacularly in defiance of tons of water and chemicals, scuttled the North German Lloyd liner Munchen today, within a few hours after the 13,483-ton vessel had completed a stormy Atlantic crossing and had reached its North river pier.

At dusk this evening, homegoers aboard commuting ferries stared in awe at the endless black billows of smoke still erupting from the stricken steamer, which then was virtually on its side with the stern clamped in mud.

Body Recovered

Although the blaze was punctuated by at least three sharp explosions of such intensity that one man was hurled 50 feet into the air, it appeared only two lives were lost. A fireboat pilot was shot into the river. His body was recovered three hours later. A German electrician, at his post on the flaming liner, tugged at switches until he was burned to death.

Seven persons, including a stewardess, were injured but it was believed that all would recover. Damage to the Munchen, which almost certainly was a complete loss except for such massed metal as may find a place in the junkyards of ships, was estimated at between $3,800,000 and $3,000,000. The cargo, which included shellac and potash that had been brought across an ocean only to furnish fuel for a marine disaster, was valued at some $500,000.

Passengers Unload

The Munchen docked at 9:30 a. m., a day and a half late. The 102 first-class passengers, the 43 cabin passengers and 38 of the 118 steerage passengers had disembarked

Irene Castle In State Of Collapse After 90 'Orphaned' Dogs Burn

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. (UP)—"Too deeply grieved" to see anyone, Irene Castle McLaughlin, famed dancer and lover of animals, took to her room tonight after fire had destroyed some 90 howling mongrels in her "Orphans of the Storm" kennels.

Irene Castle

Mrs. McLaughlin, wife of Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, wealthy sportsman and owner of the Chicago Blackhawk Hockey team, collapsed after the fire was subdued at the kennels she established for homeless pups several years ago. Grime-covered and weeping, she was taken to her home in Lake Forest, exclusive suburb, where she was reported to be in a state of near hysteria.

One hundred twenty-five dogs, all of indefinite parentage, were housed in the luxurious kennels. Fire broke out in the buildings early in the morning. The caretaker freed as many of the dogs as he could and attempted to call the fire department, but found the telephone wires cut. A neighbor summoned Mrs. McLaughlin, who drove to Deerfield for fire equipment and then tried desperately herself to help free the dogs. Not more than 30 were saved.

Police said they suspected arson. Mrs. McLaughlin recently left a meeting of the humane society, of which she was an officer, in tears after an altercation with other members over financial support of humane animal campaigns. Previously she had aroused the ire of horsemen when she protested vigorously at what she called "cruel contrivances" used in horse shows to make the tails of the animals stand upright.

Prohibition Will Yet Be Enforced, Says Edison on 83rd Birthday

Electrical Wizard Attends Ceremonies in His Honor at Fort Myers, Fla., and Gives Out Interview

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11. (AP)—Emphatic opinions on prohibition, disarmament negotiations, science and invention were scribbled with a stubby pencil here today by Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard, celebrating his 83rd birthday anniversary and answering questions from newspapermen.

Mr. Edison believes that absolute prohibition eventually will be enforced in the United States and that manufacture of light wines and beer in the home, through modification of the Volstead act, would not aid temperance. The inventor said that the age of fully automatic machinery would find the laborer with a home and many new things, providing alcohol does not intervene.

Comments on Parley

Belief that the London disarmament conference will "arrive at a sane compact to limit future troubles," was expressed by Mr. Edison. He cautioned, however, "that developments in electrical and poisonous destructive elements have not made a future world war impossible or improbable."

The aged inventor, somewhat failing in health, but still active and alert, answered more than 20 questions.

Asked regarding his health, and how old he actually felt, Mr. Edison's eyes twinkled as he replied that he "generally felt 60 years, but lately some microbes have done some experimenting with my internal machinery, so I feel about 85."

In Fair Health

Mr. Edison, who is recovering from a recent attack of pneumonia, appeared to be in only fair health. Although he went through the ceremonies with high spirit, he retired to his home after the unveiling of a plaque in his honor. Rumors were circulated that he had fainted after his interview with newspapermen, but members of the household said he had been fatigued by writing his answer to the questionnaire and posing for photographers and had merely come into his living room to rest.

The ceremonies of unveiling the memorial plaque in City Park were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Edison and Henry Ford, and Harvey Firestone and their wives, together with a large crowd of citizens and visitors.

Fox Recapitalization Plan Meets Opposition

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (AP)—A recapitalization plan for the Fox Film corporation, involving issuance of $65,000,000 of new securities, proposed at the federal court receivership hearing today by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for William Fox, was opposed by Lawrence Berenson, attorney for petitioning stockholders on the grounds that it would be too costly to stockholders.

WETS TO GET HEARING TODAY

Bills to Repeal or Modify Dry Laws to Be Aired

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. (AP)—Legislative doors to the whole prohibition question will be thrown wide open tomorrow when the house judiciary committee opens hearings on measures to repeal or modify the prohibition laws.

With the aid of prominent advocates of their cause, the wets have prepared a plan of procedure which they hope will result in modification and ultimate repeal of the 18th amendment. Once they have had their say the drys will be heard.

While this phase of the prohibition controversy was being awaited early, sentiment increased in both the senate and house against the Christopherson bills, intended to carry out the recommendation of the law enforcement commission to relieve court congestion by allowing federal commissioners to try minor dry cases.

Further consideration of the bills was postponed indefinitely today by a house judiciary subcommittee. The Stobbs bill, introduced after the appearance of Chairman Wickersham and Roscoe Pound of the commission before the group, to set out in the Jones law slight and casual offenses, has attracted the attention of most of the members as a possible solution.

The crux of the problem presented by the commission's bills is that which places in the statutes the now implied authority for district attorneys to try dry offenders for a misdemeanor as well as under the Jones law.

While this opposition continued to develop, the senate appropriations committee approved the $15,000,000 fund for prohibition enforcement for 1931, carried in the treasury-postoffice annual supply bill.

NOMINATION OF HUGHES AGAIN RECEIVES BLOW

Unexpected Opposition in Senate Delays Vote On Confirmation

VICTORY IS EXPECTED

Friends Confident Nominee Will Succeed Taft as Chief Justice

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Severe condemnation of the views of Charles Evans Hughes rang forth in the senate today as unexpected opposition to his nomination as chief justice of the United States developed and forced over until tomorrow a vote on his confirmation.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, assailed the attitude of the nominee on public questions. They stirred up a debate which brought two Democrats—Wagner and Copeland, of New York—and the veteran Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, to their feet in praise of Hughes.

Overnight Opposition

The opposition, centered principally in the group of western Republican independents, appeared overnight after the speech yesterday of Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska. Leaders were confident tonight regardless that Hughes' nomination would be confirmed tomorrow by a decisive majority.

The nomination was left as the order of business for the senate tomorrow. Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, predicted a vote before nightfall and was likewise confident of the "decisive majority." The opposition made it clear they had no intention of blocking a vote, but asked only for full debate.

Citing the legal record of Mr. Hughes as a member of the supreme court and as counsel before the court, Senator Borah said he was of the opinion that the nominee "feels that practically no restraint ought to be placed upon the

City May Bring New York Road Shows To Auditorium At $3,000 Guarantee Each

A program whereby the city of Wichita Falls, through the Auditorium Managers' Association of America, would book New York road shows for the Memorial auditorium was revealed Tuesday by W. B. Ward, manager of the Wichita Falls auditorium.

The booking of five shows for next fall at a guarantee by the city of $3,000 for each show, or a total of $15,000, is contemplated under the arrangement worked out with other cities which compose the association, Mr. Ward said. The auditorium manager said he hoped to sell serial tickets to the set of five shows at reduced prices, and thereby raise the required guarantee prior to the actual presentation of the companies. Under this plan a set of $3 tickets for the five shows would be purchased for $10, and the sale of 1,500 of such tickets would provide the necessary $15,000 guarantee required of the city. Other seats would be offered at proportionate prices.

Booking of road shows under the auspices of the city is made possible by the recent formation of the Auditorium Managers Association of America, Mr. Ward said, and the companies secured by the association would follow a regular circuit through the member cities. Mr. Ward is a member of the association as manager of the Memorial auditorium of Wichita Falls.

Present plans call for the purchase of the five shows from Joseph de Milt, owner of the "Connecticut Yankee" which was presented here Tuesday night. Mr. De Milt said Tuesday night the shows planned for the auditorium probably would consist of three musical comedies and two dramatic productions. Other cities on the tentative municipal circuit include Louisville, Nashville, Memphis, New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Joplin.

A sharp exchange of shots followed.

Several business structures in the path of the bullets from the Mexican side, were scarred, windows were shattered and three American bystanders narrowly escaped death.

First Traffic Signals in Residence Area Placed in Operation on Brook

The first automatic traffic signals in the residential section of Wichita Falls were installed and in operation Tuesday afternoon when city workmen completed those on Brook avenue at Ninth and Eleventh streets. The signal at the Ninth street crossing was put into operation at 3:30 o'clock and those at Eleventh street at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The third Brook avenue signal will be placed at Tenth street and will be the only one of its kind in the city. The signal will rest on a high pedestal erected in the exact center of the intersection. Construction of the pedestal and column will be such that it can withstand severe shock in the event of automobile collisions, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager. A reflecting red light will give warning of the pedestal during the night hours when the signal is not in operation. The other signals on Brook are suspended in the same manner as those in the business district.

At the Eleventh street crossing, two signals are in operation, the jog in the street having made one light invisible from opposite traffic. The light directing outbound traffic operates from three directions and that situated at the west side of the crossing operates from four directions. None of the Brook avenue signals will have bells for the amber light, Mr. Fairtrace said.

PAIR CLEARED OF BURGLARY

Jury Takes Ten Minutes to Reach Verdict

Jim Kimes and Dorothy Erwin were acquitted of burglary charges 10 minutes after the case went to the jury in the 89th district court Tuesday afternoon. The vote was 11 to 1 on the first ballot and unanimous on the second, court attendants were told. The verdict was ready at 6:10, 10 minutes after the arguments closed, but an interval was allowed for dinner before the decision was accepted by the court.

The two defendants, who are now Mr. and Mrs. Kimes, were charged with burglarizing a house owned by Mrs. S. P. Lyons last September after furniture taken from the place was discovered in their possession. Both took the stand to assert that the articles were purchased in good faith from a dealer who came to their door. They were represented in the case by James E. Allred, local attorney.

nounced they would furnish net and barbed wire for the fencing.

Success of the Walton league project will do much to insure good fishing in Lake Wichita, it was pointed out by Ben G. Oneal, president of the chapter. Under the league's program, bass fry are kept in rearing ponds until they reach fingerling size or larger, thereby assuring that a large percentage will survive when freed in lake waters. An appeal to Wichita Falls sportsmen and to all those interested in Lake Wichita fishing to subscribe to the fund for the rearing pond was made at the meeting.

In addition to naming a finance committee, the league instructed Mr. Greever's committee to continue with its plans for construction on the pond, for fencing, drainage piping and other details. Members of this committee include John K. King, A. H. Fowler, J. W. Pond and R. H. Gregg, in addition to Mr. Greever.

Building-Loan Groups Lead Nation In Aiding Home Owners, Says Speaker

Estes Tells Realtors of Stimulus Given Construction; Associations Develop Habit of Thrift

"Building and loan associations in the United States have done more to create interest in home ownership than any other agency in existence today," said A. C. Estes, secretary of the North Texas Building and Loan association in an address before members of the real estate board at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

In support of that statement, Mr. Estes pointed to the fact that of the $8,606,000,000 worth of assets owned by building and loan associations in this country at present, 91.5 per cent of it is represented by mortgage loans on homes.

"Sound economic prosperity is directly dependent upon flourishing conditions in the building industry," continued Mr. Estes. "Building and loan associations finance 60 per cent of all homes erected in the United States, and construction of this type represents 40 per cent of all building done in this country. The demand for homes is not fixed, but can be stimulated. The more funds held by associations of this kind, the more will building and rehabilitation of homes be encouraged. For this reason, building and loan organizations represent a highly valuable factor in stabilizing business conditions in general."

A decrease of a quarter-million dollars in loans made in 1929 as compared with 1928 was attributed by the speaker to withdrawal of funds to cover speculations in the stock market. The effect of such withdrawals upon building and loan associations, he said, was nothing more than the limitation of money available for loans on home construction.

Mr. Estes spoke of the effect of thrift upon general business conditions in any community, and declared that building and loan associations have been the greatest agency in the present era for the cultivation of the thrift habit. His address opened with a brief history of such organizations, pointing out that the first association of this kind was organized in 1837.

The program was one of a series being devoted by the real estate board to the study of business enterprises located in Wichita Falls.

HOME-TOWN TALK

By B. D. D.

(ContinuedFrom Page One)

Talker wishes as much could be said for his own species.

And here's a letter from Mrs. F. F. Brown, to which Talker would not add or take from one word unless it is that part which gives him greater credit than due. The letter follows:

"Mr. Talker:

"Allow me to thank you for your hope-building and faith-spiring talk in this morning's issue of The Record News, which may serve to remind many of us how the planting and growth of a tree symbolizing as it does, the aspirations of mankind is also comparable to the founding and growth of a city.

"We are all proudly committed to the proposition that Wichita Falls is 'the city that faith built.' The apostle James reminds us that faith without work is dead, a truth which stands as an indictment of our faith or a challenge to our resourcefulness. The conditions that try our faith are the conditions that add to our strength.

"Growth as a city or an individual is not accomplished by yielding to adversity, but by resisting and overcoming. This is no presentation of 'optimism' in the accepted use of that word, though optimism combined with alertness and perseverance is no less necessary in the business of building a city than in any other line of human endeavor.

"The most alarming problem confronting Wichita Falls today is the growing tendency toward discouragement. In order to reveal the subtle nature of this enemy to progress let us consider the nature of its source as disclosed in the following fable, which is presented with the written consent of its author:

"'It was once announced that the devil was going out of business and would offer all of his tools for sale to whoever would pay his price. On the night of the sale they were all attractively displayed, and a bad looking lot they were. Malice, envy, hatred, jealousy, sensuality, deceit and all the other implements of evil were spread out, each marked with its price. Apart from the rest lay a harmless looking wedge-shaped tool, much worn and priced higher than any of the others.

"'Some one asked the devil what it was. "That's discouragement," was the reply. "Well, why do you have it priced so high?" "Because," replied the devil, "it is more useful to me than any of the others. I can pry open and get inside of a man's consciousness with that and were grouped on the pier in the customary happy nervousness that accompanied a journey's end.

Then the crew lifted the covers off hatch No. 6 (which was aft), and wisps of smoke curled forth.

The first alarm was merely a precautionary measure, as there was no indication that the blaze was already of startling proportions. Engine companies responded, as did the fireboat Willett.

Efforts to control the blaze had only begun when the first explosion tore the stern. At that time the remaining steerage passengers—German immigrants, whose introduction to America took a startling turn—were herded off and the crew raced for safety. The tug boat Newton of the Lackawanna company, steamed up and turned its fire fighting apparatus on the Munchen.

Three More Explosions

Then came another explosion—or perhaps it was two wrapped and detonated into one. And finally a third that made the others seem puny.

Lieutenant Duryea was standing on a platform near the topmast, directing the play of deck hose, when he was catapulted off his feet and tossed 50 feet into the water.

Pilot Harvey and Fireman Bolfinger, Gilliam and Farley also were hurled overboard. Captain Bigney was struck by a massive flying splinter.

Meanwhile, Electrician Sanke stuck to his switchboard. Apparently hopeful that he could help by cutting off power, he could not be dragged from what, after all, was an imaginary duty.

"Sanke was standing there pulling switches," Fourth Officer Herman Pieck of the Munchen said. "The smoke and flames were curling around him. There was an explosion. Sanke was engulfed in a burst of flames and I saw his body pitch forward into the blaze. He must have died in an instant."

vast corporate interests of the United States; that he will go to the bench as chief justice carrying with him the conviction that these efforts at restraint are unwise and that, after all, we must leave, in a large measure, the course of these vast interests to their own discretion and to their own judgment."

Glass Opens Fire

Senator Glass denounced, first, the action of Hughes in resigning from the supreme court to run for the presidency in 1916. He then took up the Shreveport railway decision of the court when Hughes was on the bench, contending this decision had destroyed all rights of states to a voice in regulation of intrastate commerce.

Senator Blease, Democrat, South Carolina, who has been urging the reappointment of William Howard Taft as the chief justice, informed the senate that he understood Taft was improving his health. He also expressed the fear of this becoming a "family government."

Senator Fess, Republican, Ohio, replied that he had just talked with Robert A. Taft, son of the former chief justice, and he was authorized to say that Mr. Taft "could not, under any circumstances, resume his work on the bench."

Senator Fess added that Robert Taft had authorized him to say that he could not accept the office of solicitor general if it were tendered him. Charles Evans Hughes Jr. will resign this office when his father becomes chief justice. Senator Blease had expressed the opinion that Robert Taft would be named as Hughes' successor as solicitor general.

Wagner for Defense

Speaking the first word in behalf of Mr. Hughes, Senator Wagner, himself a former judge in New York, said "as to the question of his fitness to hold his great office, it seems to me that his high character, the esteem in which the public holds him and his past record of public service, completely answer the question.

"It is not merely from a neighborly spirit that I am prompted to say a few words," continued Wagner. "I have regard for his distinguished services as governor of the state of New York. I had the honor to serve during his administration as a member of the state legislature. I recall with very great satisfaction that, although of opposite faith, I supported him in several of his very important proposals for the betterment of our state government which were finally enacted into law.

"I have regard for the splendid statesmanship which he exhibited as secretary of state. I have regard for the substantial contribution he made to the deliberations of the United States supreme court when he was formerly a member of that body. His return to that office canont fail to be gratifying to all of us who are aware of his extraordinary capacity, equipment and training to carry forward the traditions of this very great office."

Upset Not Serious If Bowels Get This Help

When you're out-of-sorts, headachy, dizzy, bilious, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy—don't worry. It's probably constipation.

Take a candy Cascaret tonight and see how quickly your trouble clears up. No more headache; no gas on stomach or bowels. Appetite improves; digestion is encouraged. Take another tomorrow night and the next night. Get every bit of the souring waste out of your system. Then see how bowel action is regular and complete.

DOG SWINDLE RING BROKEN

Sportsmen Fleeced by Mail, Officials Charge

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Feb. 11. (INS)—A dog mail fraud ring, extending its operations from coast to coast during the past two years was believed by authorities to be broken up today with the arrest of five men following an intensive investigation at the request of sportsmen said to have been fleeced.

The men held were Paul Davis, Charleston, Mo., Robert Finley, Hendersonville, N. C., E. R. Moody, Hendersonville, formerly of Heber Springs, Ark., and Mack Lyons and J. R. Pierce, both of Ben Branch, Ark.

The investigation into the alleged ring was instituted by Postoffice Inspector F. M. McConnell of Fayetteville, Ark., who traced Moody to this city.

The defendants are charged with having widely advertised purebred hunting dogs for sale and then sending untrained and practically worthless dogs to consumers.

According to authorities, sportsmen in more than a half dozen southern states, California, Minnesota and Illinois have been defrauded of more than $100,000 through the operation of the alleged ring.

Hardeman Paving Program to Start

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Feb. 11.—Prospects are very bright for the hard surfacing of highway No. 51 south from Quanah to be completed during the present year. The grade on this highway both north and south from Quanah has been completed some time, and is now being traveled and surfacing south will be begun within the next 60 days.

Soundings for a new bridge over Red river connecting highway No. 51 with Oklahoma state highway No. 7 will be made soon, looking to the building of a free bridge jointly by the states of Oklahoma and Texas, and the federal government. The present bridge is a toll bridge, and the new routing of highway No. 51 does not connect with this bridge. The purchase of this toll bridge was contemplated, but no agreement could be reached as to the purchase price, and negotiations were abandoned and a new routing made.

When highway No. 51 is completed Hardeman county will have paved roads north, south, east and west across the county, as highway No. 8 has been paved and in use for several months.

English Women Are Smoking Less

LONDON, Feb. 11. (INS)—Following a lead set by Princess Mary, only daughter of King George, Isabel MacDonald, daughter of the prime minister, and other prominent English women, many British women are smoking less in public than in recent years.

The example to women not to "light up" at public functions was set by Princess Mary at a luncheon at Ipswich, when the chairman announced "ladies and gentlemen, you may smoke."

Princess Mary let the cigaret box pass her by. Other women guests took cigarets but refrained from smoking. Only a dozen women of the 300 present put a cigaret between their lips.

Miss MacDonald, at a luncheon at Birkenhead after she had launched a ship, shook her head when cigarets were brought around. Again, as at Ipswich, most of the women followed the lead of their guest of honor.

Lady Astor, the American born woman member of parliament, is opposed to women smoking too much, and is known to disapprove of it in public. At a recent dinner in London at which she presided, she was reported to have issued an order that the women might not smoke after the toastmaster had given the usual "permission," adding that it was a "disgusting habit."

Toughest of Old Hang-On Coughs Go

Why send a boy to do man's work? Sweet, sugary cough syrups may help a simple cough, but when you are traveling along towards the cemetery with a stubborn tight old cough that lingers on and on with the most persistent devilishness, then you need a real cough medicine—and the realest destroyer of tough old coughs is Bronchuline Emulsion.

The cough may be so tantalizing that you can't sleep nights and your days may be filled with racking torture, yet that's just the kind of a cough that Bronchuline likes to tackle and conquer.

Many times a few doses will stop the hacking and loosen things up and you can depend upon half a bottle to make a two months' cough quit cold and disappear.

Ask Allison Drug store or any wide-awake druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion. There's no dope in it—or chloroform, and a couple of teaspoonfuls will usually end any ordinary cough.—Adv.

Bill Proposes Plan To Deepen Great Lakes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. (INS)—Deepening of the Great Lakes by construction of compensating works in the St. Clair river and contraction works in the Niagara is proposed in a bill introduced in the house today by Representative Chalmers, Republican, of Ohio.

The proposed works, he said, would raise the level of Lake Erie seven-tenths of a foot and Lakes Huron and Michigan a foot each.

Half of the cost of $3,400,000, Chalmers said, would be borne by the Chicago sanitary district under the agreement by which they are withdrawing water from Lake Michigan for sanitary purposes.

Government Buys Brewery at Auction

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. (INS)—The federal government sold a brewery today to the highest and only bidder for it—the federal government itself.

The only persons who appeared at the auction of the brewery of Terry Druggan and Franklin Lake, former bootleggers, were Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue, two deputies and newspaper men.

Mounting a barrel one of the deputy marshals called out:

"You gentlemen that are interested in bidding for this brewery please step forward."

He received only a chorus of "haw haws."

Unabashed the deputy continued: "The estimated value of this property is $550,000. What am I bid, gentlemen." More haw haws.

"Do I hear any bids once? Do I hear any bids twice? Do I hear any bids three times?" Crash went his gavel. "Sold to the United States government."

The deputy climbed off the barrel—empty—and the sale was over.

The brewery was to have been sold—if any bidders could be found—to settle income tax returns the former bootleggers are charged with failing to make.

Dallas Speaker Features Forum Luncheon Tuesday

A talk on "Our Civic Duty," by H. K. Taylor, professor of education and psychology, and director of the extension department of S. M. U., featured the annual luncheon given Tuesday by the civics and health and home departments of the Woman's Forum at the Forum clubhouse.

The work of the department committees was shown in the unusual decorations of the tables in the auditorium where trees were placed at intervals along the tables, place cards were marked with different fruits native to the state and in the center of the speakers table, a model farm, set in the midst of green fields, with farmhouse, granary, garages, fruit trees, a mirrored lake and even the people of the homestead in miniature showed the outstanding work done by Mrs. J. H. Massie and Mrs. C. H. Clark with Mesdames Charles Watson, R. H. Peterson, J. Truman Stevens, Arch Dawson, Orville Bullington, A. B. Duncan, R. J. Irvine and Charles Pogenpohl acting as associates.

The Southwest Dairy Products company complimented the departments giving the luncheon as they did the writers department recently with half pint bottles of buttermilk for all guests present. The small bottles furnished an added touch to the tables and asparagus fern down the length of the tables was another pretty touch.

After the invocation, given by Mrs. M. Gaffney, Mrs. Bert Bean made a short talk, then calling for the reports of the nominating committees, turned the chair over to Mrs. Guy Raley. No report was ready in the civics department, but the health and home department submitted Mrs. Guy Raley, president; Mrs. Harry ten Brink, first vice president; Mrs. J. E. Wolfe, second vice president, and Mrs. W. W. Cook, secretary and treasurer, as a slate which was accepted by the department.

Two beautiful numbers were given by Miss Harriet Bradley with Mrs. Bradley at the piano and following these George Fairtrace was introduced and in turn introduced Mr. Taylor, the speaker of the day.

Mr. Taylor, after defining a community hobo as one who is always ready to receive from the community, but never puts anything in it, gave a short and very interesting talk on the outstanding work necessary to build a good community. "What right," he asked, "have I to live in a community built at the cost of the blood and sacrifice of my forefathers without giving something to it?"

The first thing necessary to building a community, he said, is to be socially minded. He told of places in the city of Dallas where in the last extreme cold, 24 people slept on a bare floor in one room with sometimes only one thin blanket to cover them, while there were riches in Dallas to take care of them.

"We are our brother's keeper," he said.

The second thing necessary is cultural activity. He complimented Wichita Falls on the opportunity here to make the city one of the most beautiful in the Southwest and said that beauty has a moral as well as a material value. The plan of the garden department of the forum to plant trees and shrubs, he praised, stating there were sermons in trees and in shrubs. Some people are born in the 'objective' mind, said Mr. Taylor, and knock everything, but one of the things that helps cities, (and he exemplified this statement by speaking of the many art institutes in small cities of England), are art institutes.

"The thing that caused the downfall of the Roman empire," stated Mr. Taylor, "was the lowering of the sex relation standard." He stressed the danger to the youth of this country who were not properly guarded and taught in their homes the right way to regard sex and said that biological teaching, not properly guarded, has been often the wrong influence for children.

Civic beauty is a necessity, stated Mr. Taylor, but there is one thing that is absolutely a civic duty and that is to vote. To put in office competent, well informed and efficient officials who will stand behind the schools and will give the city support and cooperation is a possibility when every one who can, casts his vote and he urged on the club women, the necessity of registering and always voting for the right man.

Mr. Taylor's address brought to the close one of the most interesting of department programs.

Covers were laid for Mesdames T. B. Smock, J. A. Richolt, R. G. Schuerer, J. O. Smith, T. A. Hunter, A. E. Myles, W. A. Freear, Walter Daugherty, E. B. Gorsline, Lillian H. Kerr, J. J. PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The minister and deacons of a colored Baptist church in Wichita Falls have reduced religion to a matter of finance. If a member comes to church every day, yet fails to pay his dues, his name is removed from the list of members. But if he pays his dues regularly he is a member in good standing no matter if he never comes to church.

◇ ◇ ◇

We expect so much of our ministers that possibly this is a start toward demanding more of us.

◇ ◇ ◇

Protestant ministers are men, but it has not been so long ago when if a minister attended a ball game, he had committed a crime. If he did anything, in fact, besides read the Bible, teach the gospel, visit the sick, and marry and bury those passing away and passing into another sort of life, he was criticised.

◇ ◇ ◇

We saw a saintly old sister stand awestruck once when a man who egarded ministers as men, began a genuine snowball fight with a priest.

◇ ◇ ◇

There's one good feature to it for the ministers and that is they are still honored at table and get the white meat of the chicken when they visit at a country home.

◇ ◇ ◇

But we wonder some time if they are not lonesome, when souls who do not prove congenial bar them from a companionship, deeming them set aside as saints.

◇ ◇ ◇

Saintly they sometimes are, but when a man marries and has children of his own and suffers as other men suffer and rejoices as other men do, he deserves a place as a man and certainly deserves a living salary.

◇ ◇ ◇

We heard a minister not so long ago say he had three collections he was proud of, his children, his paintings and his Chinese tapestries. And that minister is one of the most popular we know because when he meets his friends outside the church he does not carry with him the pulpit tone.

◇ ◇ ◇

We heard today a good joke on a lawyer—told us by the speaker at the Woman's Forum—so it must be true. He said he had a friend who forgot to get his marriage license and the wedding went through, but, discovering he had no license, they waited until the next day, got a license and were married again.

◇ ◇ ◇

If a lawyer can forget a legal necessity, let the minister forget sometimes that he is a minister.

◇ ◇ ◇

And, putting ministers and lawyers aside, have you seen the golden rooster that's to be the weather vane on the top of the new C. R. Seals home on Harrison street?

'Heart Hardening' Course Needed By Business Girls

"The Business Education of All Office Girls Should Include Course in Hardening Their Hearts Against the Men for Whom They Are Going to Work," Cries Victim of Stenographer-Employer Romance.

There is no denying that the entrance of women into business has added a new and dangerous complication to the relationship of the sexes, and is largely responsible for the increase in divorce and the breaking up of homes.

It has made a situation that is dangerous to men, because it exposes many men who were formerly immune to temptation.

In the old days when there were no vamps in offices, a married man's contact with women was mainly across the counter, or at evening parties to which he was dragged by his wife, neither of which occasions offered much background for philandering. Most of the women he knew were his wife's friends, and, as a matter of fact, he seldom got well enough acquainted with a woman to be interested in her. So the average man, unless he was a born Lothario, never discovered that there was any other woman than his own Maria.

But far different is it now when the other woman has planted herself right down under his eyes when he cannot but see how young and fair she is; when he spends most of his waking hours in her society, and when they have between them the bond of a mutual interest in business about which they can talk endlessly together. Propinquity gets in its deadly work in the office as elsewhere, and many a man who would never have gone out to hunt up a lady love falls in love with the one that fate has thrown at his elbow.

The situation is full of danger for the wife, because she is brought in constant daily contrast with a woman who is not only generally younger and prettier than she is, but whose business it is to flatter and cajole her boss, while it is often the wife's business to jack up her husband and tell him of his faults. It is no help to a woman who has been up half the night with a sick baby, who has to make one dollar do the work of five and never has any money to spend on her own beautification and who has had a breakfast table row with her husband about the bills, to have him go downtown to a beautifully dressed and groomed secretary who is gay and full of pep, and who will yes-yes him about everything he does and says.

And the situation is full of danger to the girl, because only too often she idealizes the man she works for and falls in love with him. Because he is the big man on her horizon, she looks up to him and he becomes her hero. Because he is forbidden fruit, she hankers for him all the more, and because her romance must be stolen, it is all the sweeter on her lips. Many a girl who knows she is playing with fire in having an affair with her married employer is still helpless to save herself, or to do anything but go on and burn herself up on the altar of her love for him.

Very often these love affairs between married men and the girls who work for them are pure tragedy. Very often a man who has married too young, and who has outgrown his wife, finds his real mate in the intelligent, broad-minded secretary.

Very often a man who is married to a cold, selfish, self-centered, peevish, whining, neurotic woman finds the sympathy and understanding and affection for which he is starving in some generous, warm-hearted, understanding woman with whom he is thrown in daily contact in his office. Very often a woman finds in the man for whom she works those qualities of nobleness and fineness and chivalry which alone she could love and which she has found in no other man.

Sometimes, of course, such affairs are hideously sordid. Sometimes a man is mean enough to trade upon a girl's necessity of holding her job, and perhaps supporting those who are dependent upon her, by making it contingent upon her submitting to his amorous advances. Sometimes a man just for the sake of gratifying his own vanity of being a lady-killer wins a girl's heart and fills it so full of love for himself there is never any room in it for any other man, and then leaves her for other conquests. Sometimes the girl is a little gold-digger who deliberately sets out to break up a man's home and get him for the sake of the luxuries he can give her.

But however it is, in 99 times out of 100 the love affair between the married man and the girl ends disastrously for the girl. How could it be otherwise when her only hope of happiness is built upon shattering another woman's happiness and in taking away from her her husband and half-orphaning little children? Otherwise there is nothing for her but hopeless waiting for the crumbs of affection and attention that her married lover can give her, and the blackness of a jealousy the most devastating that can ever tear at a woman's heart, when she sees another woman bearing the name and occupying the position that she feels should be hers, spending the money that she helps to earn.

Recently the victim of one of these tragic love affairs said to me: "I know what the world thinks of a stenographer-employer romance, but what the world doesn't understand is the inevitable breaking of the girl's heart at the end of nearly all of them. I knew he was married, but I loved him. He told me I was everything in the world to him and there were two years of a wonderful stolen happiness. Then I did something that was indiscreet that embarrassed him and he told me that it was all over, and I was left with nothing but memories that torture.

"The business education of all office girls should include a course in hardening their hearts against the men for whom they are going to work."

So say we all. But who can teach wisdom in love? For man is fire and woman is tow, and there will always be conflagration when they come in contact with each other.

Right Idea!

This four-year-old athlete is the son of Mrs. Sam Jones, 1702 W. Laurel St., San Antonio. She says: "Jimmie's wonderful condition shows my idea is right.

"Whenever he's the least cross or upset, or has a cold, I give him a little California Fig Syrup. It always brightens him up; regulates his stomach and bowels; gives him a hearty appetite. I have used it with all my children and it has never failed to help them promptly."

All children love the rich, fruity flavor of California Fig Syrup. A pure vegetable product. It doesn't gripe or sicken. It always acts gently but thoroughly to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, constipated children. Doctors say it tones and strengthens weak bowels. Try it with your child. See how bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness disappear!

The name California marks the genuine, famous for 50 years. So look for it when buying.—Adv.

Favorite Books of Wichita Women

When a woman announces her best loved—or at least her most read books as a worn copy of Ben Jonson's "Timber" and Badger Clark's "Sun and Saddle Leather," one can put the woman down as one who is a philosopher and one to whom home is the heart of the world.

These two books are the well-worn ones Mrs. Guy Rogers claims as daily food.

Ben Jonson preceded many years our Benjamin Franklin, but his little book "Timber" is full of philosophy quite as trenchant as any of Poor Richard's maxims. "Truth" says Ben Jonson, "lies open to us all." The little dogs eared book is marked in many places, and notes on the margin show that it has been studied by Mrs. Rogers for years.

She says, however, that the book she reads daily—the one that holds body and soul together, is Badger Clark's "Sun and Saddle Leather." Badger Clark may have been "a rider of the plains," for all his verses, Mrs. Rogers says, have the spirit of the wide expanse, the far horizon and the clear, windswept air. One poem, "The Married Man" she particularly quotes. Lines from it stand out in her memory. It is the story of a cowboy whose partner married and whom he pitied as he sat at his cabin door studying the sunsets. But little by little, the beauty of married life came to the speaker. "Women and woman are different things," means more than words. "And even the wild geese find a nest," comes home to him when he realizes what it means to a man to give up wild life for "the slow little song that a tired woman sings."

Water Districts Urge Payment of Taxes

Irrigation tax collections in Wichita County Water Improvement districts Nos. 1 and 2 for 1929 were smaller than those for any year since 1926, based on the amounts collected by Feb. 1, according to an annual report issued Tuesday by G. A. Remington, general manager of the districts.

The 1929 total of $169,065 represented a decrease of 14 per cent from the 1928 total of $233,133. The totals for 1927 and 1926 were $271,569 and $241,756, respectively, approximately $100,000 more in each case than the totals for last year.

Mr. Remington pointed out that the deadline for tax payments had been extended through the month of February and that no penalty for delinquency would be assessed until March 1 and after. Expenses of operating the irrigation districts during the past year were pointed out in stressing the need of tax payments during the present month.

C.-C. Group Approves Cancellation of Train

Approval of the application recently filed with the state railroad commission by the Wichita Falls and Southern railway for permission to discontinue passenger trains between this city and Breckenridge was voted by the traffic committee of the chamber of commerce at a meeting held Tuesday morning in the office of Dudley E. Foy, assistant manager.

According to members of the committee, the facts related by the railroad company in connection with with the filing of the petition correctly reflect the prevailing conditions, and justify the discontinuance of passenger train operation over that line.

Efforts will be made to work out arrangements for the transportation of mail and express, it was said, in case permission to take off the passenger trains is granted.

Mrs. Priddy Hostess At Lovely Morning Musical

An atmosphere of a real and beautiful home enveloped the members and guests of the Music Study club in the recital given Tuesday at the home of Mrs. W. M. Priddy on Harrison street. Soft, rich colorings of pictures and rugs, a few potted plants and the lovely table in the dining room where Mesdames Kenneth Bebb and O. E. Maer poured for the hostess, were the simple and fitting background for a program enjoyed from the first to the last number.

The program given was as follows:

Russian Folk Song ..... Klem-Schutt
Country Dance ..... Nevin
Mesdames Frank Van Wormer and Walter Robbins
The Little Shepherd's Song ... Winter Watts
Little Birdies ..... Buzzi-Peccia
Mrs. Wayne Holmes, accompanied by Mrs. W. L. Olmstead
The Swan ..... Palmgren
Crap Shooters ..... Eastwood Lane
Mrs. Philip Oviatt
Florian's Song ..... Godard
Lehn Deine Wang ..... Godard
Mrs. Fred Barron, accompanied by Mrs. W. L. Underwood
In Blossom Time ..... Needham
Gossiping ..... Dodge
Mrs. Kenneth Bebb, accompanied by Mrs. W. L. Olmstead
Negro spiritual, "Mourner, Ain't You Tired a'mournin'" ..... White
Torch Dance from Henry VIII ..... German

Oriental Romance ..... Rimsky-Korsakow
Soft Footed Snow ..... Sigurd-Lie
Crying of Water ..... Campbell Tipton
Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, accompanied by Mrs. W. L. Underwood
Three German Dances ..... Beethoven
Miss Florence Sammons

The three piano numbers were followed with closest attention, the duet numbers demanding, though not receiving an encore. Mrs. Oviatt's two numbers showed her versatility and mastery of the piano in the strong comparison between the beautiful melody of "The Swan" and "Crapshooters," which speaks for itself, and the three Beethoven numbers by Miss Florence Sammons furnished an offering worthy of that master's music.

Mrs. Wayne Holmes, whose lyric soprano voice was at its best, sang "Little Birdies," in a voice that thrilled the audience and Mrs. Fred Barron, singing two exquisite numbers, one in French and one in German, proved her dramatic soprano voice as beautiful as ever. Both Mrs. Kenneth Bebb's numbers were sweet in sympathetic cadences, but "Gossiping" was particularly applauded. Mrs. Mahaffey showed the quality of a magnificent contralto in the three numbers she gave, rising to the height in "Crying of Water." Mrs. W. L. Underwood and Mrs. W. L. Olmstead were perfect accompanists and Mrs. O. E. Nichols in violin numbers demonstrated her ability to the music lovers present.

Mrs. Kenneth Bebb and Mrs. O. E. Maer poured tea and coffee at the silver urns gracing a table spread in a lovely cloth of Italian cutwork and filet and a delicious plate was served to Mesdames J. E. Hall, M. M. Garrett, M. C. Garrett, Duff Jones, William Bratton, H. Johnson, Gordon West, John Maclean, Charles Borland, Jasper Ferguson, J. F. Bailey, Don Bowie, E. C. Jordan, J. H. Allison, Luke McCrory, John Kay, J. E. H. Railey, Edwin Bebb, J. W. Akin Jr., Kenneth Bebb, Fred Barron, O. E. Nichols, Phillip Oviatt, A. H. Mahaffey, Wayne G. Holmes, Clara Baber, Q. B. UNDERWEIGHT DUE TO TASTELESS DIET

Often True in the Case of Children

"Get correct weight on children," says the doctor. For the underweight child is more subject to disease than the one up to standard.

However, the old saying about horses being "led to water" can be paraphrased to describe underweight children—you can lead them to food but you can't always make them eat.

In such cases, the mother or the cook must take extra pains to make the foods in the child's diet inviting and palatable. Sugar is a great aid in this respect. A dash of sugar on essential vegetables as carrots, peas, cabbage and spinach improves their flavor to a marked degree. A leading child specialist in Pennsylvania invariably suggests that tomatoes be sweetened to taste.

This recommendation should be followed even in the case of adults who are underweight. In addition to using sugar on vegetables, a sprinkling on fresh and stewed fruits, also cereal, makes them more tasty and is dietetically correct. It must also be remembered that nourishing desserts such as custards, puddings and ice creams are invaluable. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

MASKAT HOLDS MONTHLY MEET

High School, Junior College Students Entertain

Future activities of Maskat temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., were outlined Tuesday night at the regular monthly meeting in the temple auditorium atop the City National bank building when more than 200 nobles, the largest crowd in attendance at a meeting for many years, assembled for a business session and entertainment program furnished by students of the high school and Junior college under the direction of C. C. Frazee, director of physical education for the schools.

The first event on the social program of the temple is a bridge and whist party to be held in the auditorium at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, it was announced.

Nobles and their ladies will enjoy a gingham and overall dance and party in the temple auditorium Friday night.

A George Washington birthday dance will be given Thursday night, Feb. 20, in the auditorium.

T. N. Davey, chairman of the Toronto committee, announced plans for the Maskat temple representation at the Imperial council meeting in Toronto, Canada, June 10, 11 and 12. Routings for the Wichita Falls party are almost complete, he said.

With Potentate Ed Peterson presiding, the following appointive divan officers were installed Tuesday night: J. M. Spoonts, first ceremonial master; W. J. Morgaridge, second ceremonial master; C. S. Richardson, marshal; Kendel Paulk, director; J. W. Akin captain of the guard, and C. C. Randle, inner guard.

The entertainment program, furnished by students under the direction of C. C. Frazee, included numbers by a girls' trio composed of Evelyn Franklin, Alta Rose Franklin and Stella Evans, with Mrs. Hermione Vaughn as accompanist. Bob Murell, Orville Medford, John Flynn and Bob West gave male quartet numbers. "Tuck and Snap," Thomas Cox and Glen Wharton, gave a humorous skit composed of "six minutes of this and that." Gordon Crumpler and "The Masked Marvel" entertained with a wrestling match which brought laughs and gasps. The program concluded with Cecil and Clarence Sturdevant, brothers, in three rounds of boxing.

'Connecticut Yankee' Adds Another To List of Good Auditorium Plays

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

Just what can be done in the way of providing hilarious entertainment from one good idea was provan Tuesday night at the Memorial auditorium to the manifest satisfaction of 1,500 persons assembled for the lone performance of "The Connecticut Yankee," Fields-Rodgers-Hart version, by the New York company now on a tour of the United States.

Mark Twain was gifted with a humorous slant on human nature when he wrote the original book, and remembering that customs and values are real or ridiculous only by comparison, he found much genuine amusement in planting a modern, ingenious American among the credulous folk traditioned to have peopled sixth-century under King Arthur.

But book for this "Yankee" comprises in itself an unabridged dictionary of the latest wisecracks and slang, brought strictly up to the minute.

The performanee of Richard Lane vividly explained why the play is entitled as "The Connecticut Yankee." The vivacity of supporting players and choruses easily save it from being a one-man show, but around his verve and downright jocularity all of their fun-making revolved with always-increasing speed.

First from the standpoint of beauty, voice and dancing, Mary Adams as "Sandy" ran second to Mr. Lane's "Yankee" in carrying on the narrative. Possessing the only really good voice in the company, dancing with lithe verve and loveliness, and acting with delightful piquancy, Mary imparted to the performance a delightful flavor which more than any other element will make "The Yankee" remembered as one of the most successful musical comedies ever presented in Wichita Falls.

The musical score of this production is stimulating and interesting. It departs from the usual musical comedy scheme both in tempo and melody. The snap of exaggerated syncopation is accomplished without sacrificing phrase and rhythm to the "jazz" idea.

Brought to Wichita Falls by H. C. Cheshire, "The Connecticut Yankee" added one more to the already long list of entertainments which he has booked for showing here, each of which has been of the highest standard available.

Fumigation of No Value in Curbing Contagious Diseases, Medics Are Told

Fumigation is of little or no value in controlling contagious diseases and the most effective instruments in preventing the spread of smallpox and chicken pox are soap and water, Dr. J. A. Little told members of the Wichita County Medical society Tuesday night. Dr. Little was one of several speakers before the regular monthly meeting of the society held at the Wichita club.

Other points brought out by Dr. Little were that smallpox and chicken pox are contagious from the time the fever starts; that many cities have entirely discontinued routine fumigation; that smallpox cannot be carried from home to home in clothing and that the most common carriers of scarlet fever are persons whose ears and sinuses still evidence discharges.

He told of the great progress made in recent years in combatting communicable diseases, citing the contrast in mortality rates in the Spanish-American and world wars and declaring vaccination has almost eradicated smallpox where practiced generally.

New Vaccination Method

Dr. Little said the modern puncture or pressure method of vaccination leaves little or no scar on the arm whereas the old "scratch" method caused marked reactions and scarring.

He condemned the use of commercial shields for vaccinations. These devices, he said, cause beneficial wet sores but the celluloid from which they are made carries the possibility of tetanus infection.

The society endorsed the assertion that diphtheria cases should not be let out of quarantine until the throat shows no organism, regardless of time limit. This, Dr Little explained, is contrary to the practice now prevalent in most cities.

Dr. J. G. Young of the Buerger-Young clinic, Dallas, lectured on "Control of Appetite in Children." He urged the feeding of brewers yeast and liver, both supplying vitamin B, to stimulate the appetite for the body building and energy producing foods.

Proper feeding of children will diminish the need of medicine and surgery, Dr. Young said.

Dr. J. M. Whitworth reported a case of cerebro-spinal syphilis treated with tertian malaria, and explained the results already obtained through the employment of this comparatively new method.

The society voted to call a meeting for Feb. 25 at which time a special committee will report on the latest accepted methods of preventing communicable diseases such as small pox scarlet fever, diptheria. An outstanding specialist will be the principal speaker.

STOMACH TROUBLE?

"DIASTATIC DEFICIENCY" (failure to digest starches), causes more than one-half the cases of stomach trouble. Because of this deficiency, potatoes, breads, macaroni, rice, breakfast cereals and other starchy foods remain in a semi-solid condition and refuse to move on as they should. This stoppage causes INDIGESTION, GAS, FERMENTATION, SOURNESS, SICK HEADACHE and other common troubles.

"TOO MUCH ACID" is the cause of almost all the remaining half of our stomach troubles. It also is the result of fermentation and excess digestive acids.

ACIDINE, the new discovery, is a perfect anti-acid combined with "Japtase," the most effective known starch digestant, one pound of which will digest more than 800 pounds of starchy foods. TULLY SOCKS JOHN GILBERT

Shaggy Hobo-Author Wants Another Meeting

By DUANE HENNESSY

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 11 (UP)—Jim Tully, the shaggy-haired hobo author, whose fist is every bit as mighty as his pen, believes he can lick John Gilbert any day in the year, at any place and for any money, marbles or chalk, or satisfaction.

Tully defines what he gave Gilbert in a Hollywood cafe the other morning as a "sock in the button."

The rather select group of early morning patrons described it as right to the chin and the result was "Mr. Gilbert in a horizontal position on the floor."

Ham and eggs took on a chill when Gilbert entered the restaurant and observed Tully sitting at another table. The romantic screen actor removed his overcoat and with a growl tore across the room in the direction of the author's party.

Tully stood up and welcomed Gilbert with the aforementioned right to the jaw and Gilbert sat down on the floor. He got up and spectators intervened.

Gilbert departed with his wife, known on the screen as Ina Claire, and Sid Grauman, the theater man, whose hair is just about twice as bushy as Tully's, only grey instead of red.

Tully had his ham and eggs taken back to the kitchen, warmed up and then went on eating with his companions, Miss May Cruze, sister of Director James Cruze, and Nicholas Kelly.

Tully insisted that he was not the aggressor and that he much regretted having been forced to entertain the patrons with a "haymaker."

THE RAMROD IN HIS BACKBONE

Daily Editorial

MR. HUGHES will resume his supreme court career infinitely more qualified than when he stepped from the bench to the stump.

The intervening years have expanded his horizons, enlarged his utility and given him an elbow-rubbing contact with most of the questions which will later appeal to him for decision.

He returns to his associates to refresh their deliberations with rejuvenated viewpoints—and considerably thawed of the austerity which contributed in part to his 1916 disappointment.

He had lingered too long upon the mountain tops for sudden adjustment to political familarities. His memory of vernacular phrases and the language of popular opinion had withered in the chill precincts of a law library. His campaign speeches wore too much judicial silk to stir an electorale whose enthusiasms march best to the brass-band note in oratory, and which expects vocabulary to make an ocassional picturesque stoop for conquest. But this congenital reserve was merely a negligible agent in Mr. Hughes' defeat. He was robbed of the presidency by muddle and mismanagement. Chairman Wilcox had already begun to light celebrating roman candles before the battle had fairly opened.

The solid East, according to that wishbone prophet's wall map, was overwhelmingly won in July. The Hughes cause in Illinois was so "cinched" by early August that Chicago headquarters was actually instructed to abate "needless" expenditures on ice water and postage stamps.

The farcial situation grew so acute that the Hughes alliance, mainly composed of the candidate's personal friends, was compelled to confiscate control of the campaign.

◇ ◇ ◇

THEY cut the floor out of the Wilcox office and left him sitting on air. The old war-horses of the Roosevelt and Taft regimes were snapped into harness. Stimson, Wickersham, Cameron Forbes, Medill McCormick, Charles A. Coffin, Dwight Morrow, Frank Vanderlip, Coleman Dupont and Frank Hitchcock joined the "rump" committee.

Within a month, George W. Perkins and his progressives deserted to the new camp. Hughes sentiment was soon sweeping every front.

Then Hiram Johnson proceeded to throw a monkey wrench into the works by deciding to play "California solitaire." And Murray Crane, whom Mr. Hughes purposely neglected to invite to his party, slipped into the picture at the last moment to capture the advertising appropriation for high tariff.

High tariff was the dominant issue of a 1916 campaign. Read it, oh, ye faithful, and weep.

High tariff, at a time when not an industry in war-shackled Europe could produce enough goods for local consumption, much less create a surplus for export.

"The envious blow," that Hiram dealt wasn't the fatal stab that alibi has cracked it up to be. The high priests of tariff were the real assassins of Charles Evans Hughes presidential hopes.

It was the Crane-Oliver clique who sent him off for the final sally to fire a blank cartridge against Woodrow Wilson's high-power "he-kept-us-out-of-war" shells. Republican bungles tripped Mr. Hughes on the very doorstep of the White House and pushed his opponent into a second term.

A bad sport would have sulked in his tent for the rest of his days, after having the news lift the cup of victory to his lips, only to dash it away the following morning.

It takes a supreme quality of courage to grin and bear such a cruel prank and spank from fate.

Mr. Hughes may accept his appointment to the chief justiceship not only as due recognition of intellectual merit, but even more as a token of admiration tendered the best loser of his generation.

That apoplexic stiffness of his was simply due to the ramrod in his backbone.

A Tennessee thief stole a feather bed. Maybe the police should try to catch him napping.

Zero stands for nothing in mathematics, but on a thermometer it means a lot.

When You Buy a Home

THERE are dozens of ways of classifying the people of the United States. You can divide them up as wets and drys, modernists and fundamentalists, pacifists and militarists, conservatives and liberals, and so on; but one of the most obvious, all-inclusive divisions is one that is seldom made.

It is the division that you get when you classify people according to their views on the desirability of owning their own homes.

In the one camp, where dwell the homeowners, you will hear much talk about the economy of making payments on a mortgage instead of paying rent to a landlord. You will hear, also, of the joys of home ownership; the joys of yard and garden, the pleasure of having a house all to yourself, the happiness that comes from ownership of your own roof.

The other camp will be quick to scoff at all of these points. Its adherents will tell you that the quickest way to make yourself poor is to saddle yourself with mortgages, interest payments, taxes and the like. They will point out that the apartment house dweller has his fires built, his walks shoveled and his ashes removed by a janitor whom someone else pays; and they will add that tending a lawn or making a garden is more like hard work than fun.

You know all about the arguments on both sides. Probably you've shifted back and forth between camps, off and on, for years. And we wouldn't take sides for the world. But here's a new angle on the thing, contained in a letter which a young homeowner recently wrote to the editor of the Lakewood (Ohio) Post. Part of it is worth reprinting here, as follows:

"When a fellow like me actually begins to get an actual kick out of going to a very ordinary job, the fact deserves mention. And when the same fellow begins to work seriously to get a raise out of the boss, instead of a rise out of a blond stenographer, that fact also belongs in the book. I did get a raise. Six months later I got another, and I didn't ask for it, either."

The change that the writer of this letter describes came, he says, because he was buying a home—and was, therefore, obliged to keep his nose to the grindstone, economize to the limit and tend strictly to business. He had to give up his "kitchen gin" parties and his poker games, and he and his wife had to substitute hamburger with onions for tenderloin with mushrooms; but, in the end, they found out they were having lots more fun.

All of which, of course, is only another way of saying that life doesn't taste just right unless we have a definite objective in it. The purchase of a home, for many thousands of people, provides that objective. It's hard work, and it often pinches pretty hard; but sooner or later they discover that they're getting a kick out of it.

That's an argument that the opposing camp has a hard time meeting.

The Light That Fails

FRANK DISCUSSION in the meeting of West Texas Chamber of Commerce District No. 8 delegates here Monday revealed a new and more vital interest in the organization, and at the same time pointed the inefficiency of depending upon convention delegates to acquaint local groups with the scope and purposes of large movements.

Birth of a new spirit of aggressive participation in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce development program was predicted, on the grounds that under the district-director plan adopted by the present administration, a sufficient number of local leaders will become so imbued with the organization's real worth as to obtain the active support of every community. Delegates frankly admitted that in some communities, in past years, the citizenship lost interest in the organization principally because they knew nothing more of its work than could be learned from delegates to occasional big conventions.

The statements made not only imply commendation for, and reflect the wisdom of, the plan being followed by Mr. Hamilton's administration, but play the uncharitable light of truth upon convention delegates generally as light-bearers. If there is any discourse less illuminating, less comprehensive and less interesting than the average "report" of a convention delegate, it has yet to come to light.

Convention appointments, as a rule, are passed around on what is roughly a seniority plan. The convention affords a holiday, which is the chiefest reason for accepting the appointment. Delegates usually go expecting a good time, and customarily accomplish that purpose. All of which is very pleasant, according to varying tastes in recreation.

But if organizations at home are to draw their knowledge and inspiration from their delegates, those with capacity for bringing back such elements should carefully be charged with convention duty. Such a plan might eliminate part of the apparent predominance of banquets, dances and sight-seeing trips of which conventions consist.

Some Memories for Mr. Hughes

IF CHARLES EVANS HUGHES cares to do a bit of soliloquizing as he returns to the supreme judicial bench, he will find plenty of material in the things that have happened during his 14-year retirement from that high court.

When he resigned his justiceship, in 1916, Europe was at war and this nation was at peace—and we expected to remain so. Herbert Hoover was feeding Belgians, Al Smith was a New York politician and Calvin Coolidge was climbing the ladder in Massachusetts. Prohibition looked like an impractical dream, ownership of an automobile meant that a man was fairly well to do and the British navy was as large as any two others combined.

It was, in short, an utterly different world when Hughes last sat in the supreme court—a world that seems as far removed, now, as the era of the civil war. But it was only 14 years ago.

If Mr. Hughes' return to the bench sets his memory working, he will have plenty to think about.

Quotations Worth Noting

"Even the woodpecker owes his success to the fact that he uses his head."—Coleman Cox.

Protest

Since other lads awake and wash and dress,
I know it is the proper thing to do;
To wear a mask and answer "No" and "Yes,"
Or hold your tongue till you are spoken to.
I doubt if anyone can read my heart,
But if they could it's little that I'd care;
Since you decided it was best to part,
I've found the world a bit too much to bear.

Each night I see the lovers down my street;
I hear their laughter, tremulous and gay;
I feel the torture of an old defeat
And wonder at the price I have to pay.

I know of far more pleasant things to do
Than hear a clock strike all the long night through!
—No One Else But.

Gag

What is said to be the most recent Hollywood gag comes from Herbert Cruikshank and concerns another cinema magnate "with a dialect," whose company had just completed an extravagant epic christened "East Is West." Many of the scenes were shot in China, although much of the picture was snapped in New York.

After witnessing the film's preview, the magnate was glum. "What's the matter, don't you like it?" he was asked.

"I ken't say dot I do," he replied.

"But how did you like the Occidental scenes?"

"Dey were as rotten as the ones done on poipuss."

Ouch!

Captain Irving O'Hay, soldier of fortune and after-dinner talker, was among the speakers at the baseball writers' dinner, held in the Hotel Commodore the other sundown. The captain delivered a lengthy talk, and then Bugs Baer, the king of belittlers, got up.

"Like my good friend, Captain O'Hay," flipped Baer, "I'll say nothing—but I'll say it loud!"

Coincidence, or Burn Up?

The new Broadway columnist in the current Collitchumor tells an amusing yarn about Norma Terris, ex-wife of Max Hoffman Jr., son of the famous dancer, Gertrude Hoffman. When they were divorced Norma went to California to appear in the films. When friends from New York introduced her as Norma Hoffman, Norma was furious. "I'm tired of that name," she is reported to have bellowed, "I hope I never hear it again."

Imagine the explosion when she discovered that the name of the heroine she was hired to portray in her first picture was "Norma Hoffman."

A Form of Criticism

It was in one of the fancier night places and a continental type, which exaggerated sideburns and a serious look, was being fawned over by neglected matrons. "See that clunk?" chirped a Broadway spender as he pointed to the gigolo. "Well, I just named my cat after him because my cat is yellow, dirty, and women are always feeding him."

Newspaper Man Stuff

The most terrifying slaughter ever witnessed in Park Row was promoted recently when one of the older journals dumped an army of veterans and otherwise cut down its payroll. No newspaper in America has been more outstanding in its denunciation editorially of the cruelty and hard-heartedness of corporations which "didn't give the old man a chance"; that would hire no one over 45; that summarily discharged aged employes who had given the best years of their lives to their jobs and their firms.

The newspaper in question has been upholding editorially President Hoover's efforts to keep business going on as usual, despite the stock market crash last fall, and has been telling its readers that the country is sound, that there should be no letting down, and proclaiming that big business should keep the wheels of industry going round. And ironically enough, it has also declared editorially that the laying off of old men and old women was throwing the burden on the state and the taxpayers; that big business was morally bound to take care of the faithful, time-tried worker, who was able and competent in his job, but who was handicapped because of age and gray hairs when it came to going out into the market for jobs by the very things that had come to him during his years of loyal service.

And the efficiency man engaged to fire men who served the paper for more than 40 years is getting $50,000 per year for his cruel job. Which reminds one of the unfortunate fellows of that definition of an efficiency expert: "An efficiency expert is like a Welsh rabbit; he isn't Welsh and he isn't a rabbit; he's just a piece of cheese!"

Merciless Truths

Take them from Izzy Elinson, who probably took them himself, a redeeming feature of the increased phone rate is that it will do away with the clown who for 15 minutes wants you to guess who this is. . . . A glass building will soon be erected in New York. Kids will travel miles just to play ball on that block.

Of All Arguments!

Among the major disappointments of the week was that suffered by a young sports writer. Weary of recording roughneck events, the scribe appealed to the boss to be given a job interviewing cinema people. The chief promised him the first opening in the picture department. The following day, however, the sports scrivener was pained to learn that a young lady had just joined the rag's moom pitcher staff. He spilled his grievance to the chief.

"If you hadn't promised me that job," he said, "I wouldn't have wasted so much time equipping myself for it."

"But," protested the boss, "what preparation is necessary for that job?"

"Well," mumbled the wretched fellow, "I had to practice eating with a fork!"

Hebeheh

It is supposed to have happened in a certain dialectician's dwelling in the Bronx. A foursome of garment manufacturers were playing auction pinochle and Moe Ginsburg, who had dropped all his coin, prepared to go home. He located his overcoat in the bedroom but for the life of him couldn't find his hat. The host's youngster, Sammy, went into spasms of laughter watching Ginsberg search for his missing chapeau. The irritated Ginsberg evened matters by thrashing the annoying child. "For wot are you hitting such a baby?" cried the irate father.

"I'm looking furr mine hat," replied the aggravated one, "and hiss leffing on me!"

"Is dot a rizzon?" yelped the old man. "let him left. He never seen befur anyone lose his het!"

"LOVEJOY" : By : Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER XXXIV

A minute later Tom backed his car out of the driveway and drove away at top speed.

And a minute after that Lovejoy was at the telephone, calling Steve Oglebay's number.

"Hello, Steve," she said when he answered her ring. "I want to ask you something and I want you to give me a perfectly honest answer—Steve, did you truly truly mean what you said to me the other night?"

"Every word of it," he said promptly. "You know that without asking. . . . What's happened?"

Lovejoy cleared her throat. "Everything here has gone to smash," she told him, "and I wanted to be sure I could bank on you—I'll call you tomorrow. Good night, Steve."

She hung up the receiver, and then she called a taxicab.

Ten minutes later she was on her way to Aunt Em.

She found her alone in the big homelike flat, with a glass pitcher of lemonade on a table beside her and a great stack of old newspapers on the floor at her feet. . . . Aunt Em seemed never to find time to read the papers the day they were printed. She was always saving them up to look over on the evenings when Uncle James went out to his lodge meeting.

She was all excitement now over something that she had just read in a paper two weeks old.

"Dear me!" she said to Lovejoy, looking at her from over the rims of her glasses. "They say that Lindbergh and that girl he's going to marry are at her father's home—"

"Why, he's married her! He married her a week ago!" Lovejoy interrupted her with a laugh. "Aunt Em, why don't you look over the papers when they come?—You never know what's going on in the world until it's all over!"

"Don't you laugh at me!" snapped Aunt Em with a spurt of sudden anger. "If I want to read the news when it's a year old it's none of your business—There ain't been anything worth reading about anyway since the Queen of Rumania's trip to America!—Now, then, what's on your mind?"

Lovejoy sat down on the stack of old papers as if it were a floor cushion. She clasped her hands with their pink, glittering nails on Aunt Em's gray poplin knees.

"Aunt Em, I'm going to leave Tom," she said abruptly.

Aunt Em's glasses dropped into her lap and her mouth popped open with astonishment.

"God bless my soul!" she exclaimed. "Whatever foolishness is this you're telling me?"

Lovejoy shook her head. "It's not foolishness. It's the truth," she said. "We've been fussing and fighting with each other for months—and we've both come to the end of it. Things were bad enough before Norrie came to live with us—and now they're impossible."

"Norrie?" repeated Aunt Em. An I-told-you-so gleam came into her sharp eyes. "I just knew you'd be getting jealous of Norrie! I told James a week ago Sunday that I was sorry I'd ever suggested your getting Norrie into your house!—And then he noticed that she never lets Tom get out of her sight. Poor thing, I'm sorry for her!"

Lovejoy went on with her story. She told Aunt Em about her meeting with Steve Oglebay and about the letters she had kept for Aline. She left out nothing, from beginning to end.

Aunt Em's eyes were bright with interest when she finished. Here was something that had the Queen of Rumania's visit backed off the map!—Here was a news story right in the middle of her own family!—A divorce story!

But all at once the bright interest died out of her eyes, and her lips came together with a snap.

After a moment or two she opened them with a question: "But the baby—what are you going to do about the baby?"

Ah, now they were getting down to brass tacks, thought Lovejoy. . . . Now they were getting down to the problem that she had brought to Aunt Em to solve for her!

"I thought perhaps you'd take the baby," she was beginning when Aunt Em stopped her.

"No, indeed, I shan't take the baby!" she snipped off the words with her thin lips. "I took you when you were a little girl, but I was young and strong then. I'm far too old to take care of a child now, and your uncle and I haven't much money. . . Besides, a child ought to be with its own mother!"

She stood up, groaning a little with the pain and stiffness in her old bones.

"No wonder you were so quick and airy about a divorce!" she said. "Thinking that all you had to do was dump the baby on me and rush off to tell the judge about it!—You'd just better think twice about leaving Tom, young woman! That blessed baby needs a home and it isn't its fault that its mother and father have been acting the fool!"

Lovejoy got up from her stack of newspapers.

"I never thought you'd throw me down, Aunt Em," she said, "like this."

She went home that night feeling that she had only one real friend in the world—Stephen Oglebay.

The next morning she made up her mind to go to see Steve.

Steve would tell her just what to do. He would tell her what to do about the baby—and where to get a good lawyer.

I suppose it's immoral to go to the man I expect to marry with all this, she thought, looking out at the summer rain that ran in streams down the window panes. But where else can I go?"

Aunt Em certainly had failed her.

Aline had surely turned traitor—Running out of the house in order to save her own skin—

The door of the room opened at that moment, and Aline came walking in!

"Helo, there!" she sang out in her bright, cheerful way, shutting the door behind her.

She flopped down on the edge of Lovejoy's bed in her wet oilskin raincoat, smiling rediantly.

"I came over to hear what happened last night after I cleared out," she said. "Did you have to tell Tom about me and my boy friends? Did you tell him that those were my letters?"

Lovejoy gave her a long, long look . . . Didn't Aline realize what a dreadful thing she had done when she walked out of the house? When she refused to tell Tom that those letters were her letters and not Lovejoy's.

"Yes, I told Tom that they were your letters—but he didn't believe me," she said with measured calm. "He doesn't believe me now. But it doesn't make any difference—He's angry with me, anyway, because he's found out that I've been playing around with Steve Oglebay. He says he's through with me—and I'm taking him at his word. I'm going to see a divorce lawyer today. There's no use in two people living the cat-and-dog life that we've been living lately."

Aline nodded her golden head.

"I think you're sensible," she answered smoothly. "When two people don't get along, the only thing for them to do is to separate. I know I'd leave Al in a minute if I stopped caring for him."

Lovejoy gasped . . . Why, how could Aline sit there and pretend that she cared for her husband? If she cared the least little bit about him she wouldn't be having all these disgraceful love affairs all the time, would she?

And yet I was running around with Steve all winter while Tom and I were living together, she remembered, and her conscience gave her a brand-new prick. I'm just as bad as she is—

Aline was lighting a cigaret, scratching the match along one side of Lovejoy's shining new bedside table.

"Where are the letters now?" she asked. "I'd like to get them."

Lovejoy stared at her blankly. "Why, let's see, Tom must have them," she answered vaguely. "I seem to remember his picking them up and putting them into his pocket last night."

Aline jumped up from the bed. "Well, I'll go down to his office and get them from him!" she cried. "Do you suppose he has them with him?"

Lovejoy said she didn't know where they were. She added that she didn't care where they were.

When Aline was gone she went downstairs and made herself a cup of coffee.

She went down the back stairs so that she would not have to say good morning to Norrie, who was sitting in the living room with the baby.

Then she went softly upstairs again and took her bath. She took a long, leisurely one, using plenty of verveine bath salts and an enormous bar of French bath soap that she had paid a dollar for.

Her red hair was lying on her temples and forehead in damp little rings and her cheeks were flushed when she went back into her room to dress.

She opened the door . . . And there, on the edge of the bed where Aline had been sitting an hour before, sat Tom!

AD CLUB HEARS OF BOOM DAYS

Walter Daugherty Chief Speaker at Luncheon

Reminiscences of experiences which befell members of the first Advertising club in Wichita Falls, during the city's rapid expansion under the stimulus of the oil boom, comprised the entertainment for the weekly meeting of the Ad club at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

Details of attacks made upon members of the club by promotors of fake advertising schemes were recited by Walter Daugherty, who was president of the first organization.

The importance of absolute truth in advertising was discussed by Nathan Lynch and R. E. Shepherd.

Mrs. R. E. Davis was elected secretary of the club Tuesday, to succeed Malcolm Putty, resigned. A letter of thanks to Mr. Putty for his services during the past year also was voted by those present.

P. B. Roberts, who had charge of the program, presented members with comic valentines.

One-Man Army In Brilliant Defeat

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11. (AP)—Residents of the suburb of Candelaria were awakened in the early hours of the morning by the staccato sound of rifle firing in the main street where a soldier was staging a one-man offensive.

The soldier knelt, fired a clip of cartridges, reloaded, advanced several yards and repeated the performance. What he was firing at was a mystery, for ahead there was nothing but a deserted street.

The advance was halted by the appearance to the man's rear, two blocks away, of an officer and five troopers, who promptly dived behind light posts and other cover when the soldier wheeled and charged in their direction.

The advance was short-lived, however, for a volley from the "enemy" put an end to the soldier's existence.

The soldier, under the influence of a drug, had disappeared from the garrison, and the patrol had been sent in search of him.

Widow Asks $25,000 For Husband's Death

Damages totaling $25,000 are sought by Mrs. E. F. Long in a suit filed Tuesday afternoon against R. R. Robertson in the district court here.

The suit was filed with Mrs. A. B. Eichelberger, district clerk, in connection with an oil field accident which is alleged to have resulted in the death of E. F. Long on April 25, 1929.

The plaintiff claims that Mr. Long received fatal injuries when he slipped and fell from a greased platform while trying, with his associate workers, to lift a 1,000 pound beam while he was working on a well belonging to the defendant.

Duel to Death Ends Careers of Mexicans

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11. (AP)—Jose Angel Trujillo, mayor of Tolotalan, Jalisco and Juvencio Munoz, former rebel chief, shot each other to death in a duel in the main plaza of the town, says a dispatch to La Presna.

The dispatch said the plaza was crowded with promenaders, who were thrown into a panic when the two men met accidentally and immediately opened fire at each other.

Personal enmity dating from a year ago when Trujillo headed agrarian forces against Munoz's rebels led to the shooting.

Mrs. Scott Feels It Her Duty to Tell of Results

Waco Woman Wants Others to Know of Good Work Orgatone Is Doing

"Others helped me by telling what Orgatone did for them and now I want to help someone else by telling what it has done for me," said Mrs. J. R. Scott of 900 South Seventeenth street, Waco, Texas, while talking with the Orgatone man the other day.

"I had severe pains in my arms and legs, and suffered terribly from severe headaches," she continued. "I've been just about past going for the last two years. I was bilious, and have been constipated practically all my life.

"I took strong purgatives most all the time, had to, or I would just get down in bed. I was always tired and sluggish and didn't feel like doing my own housework. I didn't have any energy and didn't seem to take an interest in anything.

"Orgatone was advertised to me very highly, and so I began taking it. I haven't finished my first bottle, and am feeling simply great. I'm not constipated any more, and can do all my work, without getting that tired and worn out feeling. The pains have left my head, arms and legs and I feel like a different person, since taking Orgatone. It certainly was a surprise to me, the way this Orgatone will help a person, and I hope others will profit from my experiences as I did from some one else, and I'm glad to recommend it."

Today

At the Theaters

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

MAJESTIC: "Seven Days' Leave," with Gary Cooper and Beryl Mercer. Laurel and Hardy in "Unaccustomed as We Are," comedy. Screen song feature. Sportlight.

STRAND: Gloria Swanson in "The Trespasser." For those who would weep. Krasy Kat cartoon. Paramount sound news.

STATE: "Song of Kentucky," with Lois Meran. Kentucky derby in the background. Talking comedy. Sound news.

GEM: Jack Mulhall in "Twin Beds"—and that's comedy. "The Pokers," comedy.

Today's step in screen progress: "Song of Kentucky," at the State, uses a horse race in which the heroine's entry does not win in a breath-taking spurt at the wire. Such plot-building ingenuity must be commended.

◇ ◇ ◇

Adequate photographic reproduction of the Kentucky derby serves as a background for the "Song of Kentucky" story, which, with Lois Moran wagering maidenhood on a win, furnishes acceptable entertainment for idle moments. Through unusual production technique, a modern jazz symphony has been woven into the picture—an interesting specimen of America's possible contribution to musical forms.

◇ ◇ ◇

Romance after the supposed style of America's great metropolis, New York, will be glorified in musical comedy at the Strand beginning Friday, in contrast with the sophisticated, spicy Parisian piece d'amour recently parleyvood by Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette McDonald. Marilyn Miller, whose name has caught the fancy of the hinterland to an amazing degree, will be seen in "Sally." It might as well use one plot as another, for whatever story might be chosen, it would be merely the occasion for bringing Marilyn's alluring smile, piquant beauty, luscious voice, and floating, wind-blown dances to the stage. Each scene will be fraught with interest because "Sally" is a love-story, and imagining the world in love with the blond Marilyn is so ridiculously easy.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Sally" will be shown in technicolor, with pastel shades reducing the picture almost to a study in pinks, with sufficient sage-green for relief.

VALLEY SHOWS FINE ORANGES

Carrizo Springs Resident Distributes Fruit

From the "winter garden" district of Texas, a four-county area between San Antonio and the Mexican border, Felix A. Norman Tuesday afternoon distributed in Wichita Falls baskets of fine oranges off La Cometa farms, just outside Carrizo Springs, Texas. The citrus fruits of the section, of which the oranges presented here were delicious samples, have won first premiums in state and county farms during the past five years, Mr. Norman said. Prizes are awarded for color, texture, and sugar content.

The fruit grower brought news that the people of Carrizo Springs and the farms are rejoicing in having come through the worst cold spell in 31 years without injury to the orchards. The trees came through the bad weather with the loss of only a few leaves in spite of the fact that no extraordinary precautions were taken, Mr. Norman said.

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 11. (AP)—Three persons lost their lives in a fire which swept a 47-year-old dormitory of the city farm today. Two others were injured critically. The institution housed 84 inmates.

The fire started in a laundry of the dormitory and spread rapidly. Inmates were led to safety by employes and firemen.

Overcoming Acidosis

When a patient is told he is suffering from acidosis he usually makes the mistake of thinking that his blood is literally acid, but this is a mistake, for death occurs the minute the fluids of the body become largely acid. If one is to go on living, the blood stream must remain slightly alkaline. When we speak of an acidosis, we simply mean that the alkalinity of the blood has been decreased. For some reason the equilibrium between the acid and alkalinity of the blood has temporarily been upset so that there is not the usual alkaline reaction in its full strength, but it has by no means been totally destroyed.

Acidosis is not a disease but if the alkalinity of the blood is reduced, many diseases find it easier to gain a foothold. Among these are the infectious fevers, rheumatism, diabetes mellitus, nephritis arthritic, and the venereal diseases.

A simple measure for acidosis is to give a dose of sodium bicarbonate. The amount required to give an alkaline reaction of the urine in an ordinary person is from five to ten grams. However when a person is suffering from acidosis he may have to be given several times this amount of sodium bicarbonate before there is any manifestation of alkalinity in the urine. As a usual thing, the body is well able to regulate the quantity of the blood stream so that the reaction is as stable as the body's temperature, but if through wrong living this control is not maintained, then the acid-alkaline balance is disturbed and a condition of acidosis exists. The body fortunately has several methods of eliminating an excess of acidosis, and it never stands peaceably by and allows the acids to gain control. One of the ways that the body defends itself from too much acid is what is known as the buffer action of the blood salts. Although an excessive amount of acid may be formed from eating acid forming foods, the phosphates and carbohydrates in the blood act as a check for any drastic change in the blood's reaction. In a healthy body they are able to keep the alkalinity up to par.

The body may also get rid of an over-supply of acid in two ways, either through the kidneys or through the lungs. The delicate brain center which tests the blood and controls the breathing is able to pick up the knowledge of an excess of the hydrogen iron in the blood long before a chemist is aware that any change has occurred. The slightest deviation causes an immediate stimulation of the lungs so that they put forth an extra effort to take more air in and the carbon dioxid tension of the air in the alveolar sacs is decreased. This in turn brings about a reduction of the carbonic acid of the blood. If the acids are not in a form that can be oxygenated by the lungs, then it becomes the function of the kidneys and skin to come to the rescue and pick up the acid salts and eliminate them. This is the reason that in nephritis or in any disorder involving the excreting power of the kidneys we find that these acids are not eliminated from the body in a normal way. The acidity of the urine practically always increases when a condition of acidosis exists. Another method that the body has of combatting acidosis is the increase in alkaline substances which act as neutralizers of the acids. Normally the ammonia of the body is changed into urea, but in cases of acidosis this change is not consummated; instead the excess of acid fixes the ammonia and prevents its change into urea and the ammonia is used to neutralize the acid. The increase of ammonia in the urine is a good indication that there is an increase of acid in the body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Child Doesn't Talk

Question—Mother writes: "I have a little girl 27 months old. She walked at 11 months, but hasn't started to talk yet. Would she be called a normal child? Is it unusual for a child of that age not to talk?"

Answer—It certainly is unusual for a child of 27 months to be unable to talk. You should have her case thoroughly studied by some physician who understands children's disorders.

Plastic Surgery

Question—R. E. A. writes: "In one of your answers you say that operations in plastic surgery to reduce the size of the nose are dangerous. This is a surprise to me, as I was contemplating such an operation and had been given to understand that there was very little danger involved. What are the dangerous features of an operation on the nose as well as one to make the ears lie close to the head? Would you recommend the latter?"

Answer—There is always the danger of infections developing from any kind of surgery, so for this reason alone it is always wise to avoid any unnecessary surgery. The ears can be trained to lie close to the head by certain bandages which can be worn at night. These will be supplied you through beauty parlors or by a plastic surgeon.

Insomnia

Question—H. B. asks: "What do you think of the advisability of taking a little something to eat before going to bed to draw the blood away from the head and help overcome a tendency to insomnia?"

Answer—One way to temporarily overcome insomnia is to take a glass of milk or some other food just before retiring. This attracts the blood to the stomach and therefore away from the head and other extremities.

Overcoat Thief In 'Wrong' Court

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. (US)—The thief who purloined Judge Herbert G. Immenhausen's overcoat from a loop restaurant a week ago made it pretty though for any of the gentry who happen to be brought before the jurist.

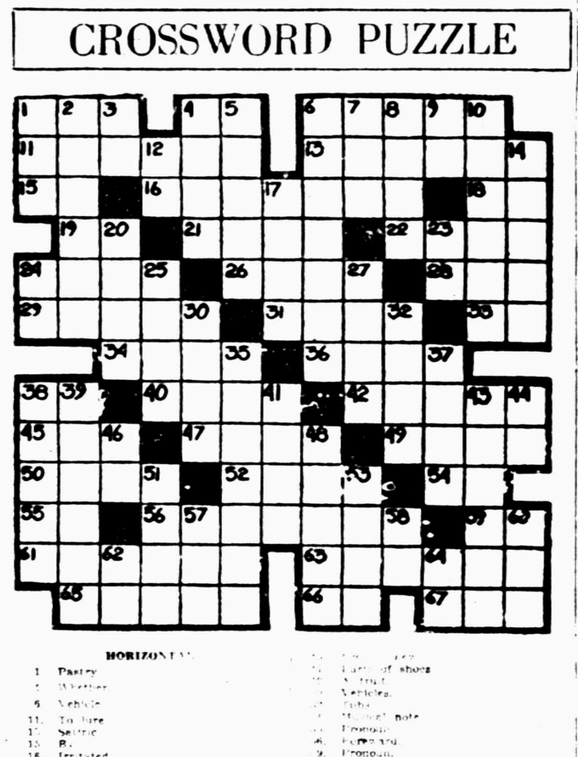

Today James Fitzgerald stood in court while a policeman recited how he had been captured in the act of stealing an overcoat at Halsted and Randolph streets.

Judge Immenhausen glared at the man.

"Oh, oh, so you're an overcoat thief," gloated the judge, rubbing his hands. "I'm delighted to meet you. It's $100 and costs to you, Mr. Fitzgerald, and may this be a lesson to overcoat thieves."

The Coming of Rugby

The thrills brought out by such first-class lateral passing as Pennsylvania and Harvard put on last fall may be one of the big factors in developing a rugby game of football for the United States.

There undoubtedly is plenty of room for a game as fast, as scientific and as interesting as rugby, and the addition of such a sport may help to relieve some of the too heavy pressure that football has reached. Lateral passing is a strong rugby feature and three of the best plays any one can recall from the campaign of 1929 came from this type of play. Pennsylvania sprung the first one, from Gentle to Masters, to score against California. Harvard used it later in a lateral pass to Mays, to help beat Yale. Pennsylvania called on the same play to upset a strong Cornell defense. It is a better football play to watch than the forward pass, since it offers a better combination of passing and running where the timing of the pass has to be almost perfect.

Pennsylvania's and Harvard's opponents next fall will find that it is no easy play to stop.

Anyway, rugby is now making a gallant effort to break into the American field. In addition to several college teams, T. St. John Wood, an old British rugby player, is organizing an amateur team for New York. If this team gets going there will be good teams from other cities, and the prospect of coming rivalry worth looking at.

There is no intention of having rugby supplant the American game. But it can at least supplement the American game and provide an additional sport that will have most of the action of football and little at the start of its tremendous nerve and mental pressure. The speed of American baseball and its briefer playing time have overshadowed cricket. But rugby is fully as fast as American football, and a game that will attract hundreds or thousands to whom the high pressure of American football is too great an obstacle.

Chance for the Old Grads

The addition of a rugby schedule would be a great chance for the old grads. If their college or university was taking a general walloping in the American game they might then be able to "call attention to So-and-So, one of the best rugby forwards you ever saw."

The old grad could wait and see whether the American football team was the stronger, and thereby have a much better shot at passionate literature.

The squawks might be twice as numerous, but they might also be twice as comical as most of them are now.

"You are all wrong," writes L. W. D., "about transferring most of the weight, or nearly all the weight, from the left side to the right leg at the top of the back swing in golf. I believe at the top of the back swing the weight is about evenly distributed. I was watching Johnny Farrell play last summer and noticed on several shots how much weight he had on the left foot at the top of the swing."

Johnny Farrell dropped in to say "Hello!" only a few days ago. "I have been hitting the ball much better," he said, " in the last few months. I dropped into a tendency toward leaving too much weight on my left foot to prevent a sway some time back, but I've got that out of my system. It kept me hooking too many shots into trouble at the left."

"Don't you think the bulk of the weight should be on your right foot and right leg at the top of the swing?" I asked Farrell.

This might help dispose of the argument that Johnny Farrell keeps half his weight on his left foot as he comes to the top of his back swing. As he happens to be one of the soundest of all the golfers, he would hardly be violating one of the fundamentals of balance in any such fashion.

The proper distribution of weight is an important factor in almost every game—golf, tennis, boxing, baseball, etc.—yet not one in 20 has ever given it careful study or knows what it is all about. It is practically the same system that governs walking, where the weight is transferred from one foot to another, yet to thousands in sport it is either a deep mystery or a complex problem almost beyond the limit of the human brain.

In about two weeks Senor Campolo may be surprised to learn that he was too big for Johnny Risko. He may even be upset about it. Not that the senor is any squash, but Risko has surprised more than one party up to date.

Campolo may be too big for Risko, just as Willard was too big for Dempsey. Much too big.

Big Spring Cage Tourney To Open Next Friday

Special to The Record News.

BIG SPRING, Texas, Feb. 11.—The Big Spring Steers, one time favorites to cop the western divisional basket ball championship in district No. 8, will enter the tournament here next Friday and Saturday with their stock suffering from a bearish pre-tournament schedule which has produced three consecutive defeats.

Lamesa's 33 to 22 victory gained here Monday night failed to improve the domestics' prospects in the tournament. Roby has been declared official representative for Fisher county, Snyder will uphold colors of Scurry county and Coach Jim Cantrill's Wolves of Colorado will battle for the honor of Mitchell county, Odessa of Ector county, Roscoe of Nolan county and Claremont of Kent county will probably round out the tournament entry list along with the host club from Big Spring.

Committees from the local commercial organization started a campaign Tuesday morning to secure rooms in desirable homes in which athletes will be billited while taking part in the tournament. The first game is scheduled Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Walter Adams of Abilene Christian college has been designated official referee for all tournament games.

BUSTER MARTIN CLAWS CANVAS

Huge Muscle Man Whips Fourth American Foe

ARENA, ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11. (AP)—Landing his first effective blow in the second round, Primo Carnera, huge muscle man from Venice, knocked out Buster Martin, Tulsa policeman, after 56 seconds of the stanza had passed. Martin weathered the first round in good shape by hanging onto the flesh mountain he was pitted against for a schedule 10-round fight here tonight.

It was Carnera's fourth fistic encounter in an American ring and he made nearly as short work of the Oklahoma officer as he did of his three other opponents.

Martin, who scaled 209 pounds to 270 for Carnera, crossed a right to the Big Boy's jaw in the first which the Italian passed unnoticed. Carnera came out of his corner slowly and led with a left to the jaw, only to have Martin grab him with both arms and hang on. The Gondola pusher wrestled his way out and followed the policeman around the ring, shooting a left jab that rocked Buster's head.

Carnera was short with three rights to the jaw just before the round closed.

The mauler made short work in the second, landing a right to the head that sent Martin down for the count.

Scrahan Leads Point Gainers

Good Crowd Turns Out to See Battle

Special to The Record News.

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Feb. 11.—In one of the fastest games ever witnessed on a local basket ball court, the Archer City High school quintet emerged victorious tonight in their battle with the Megargel five by the bare margin of 28 to 27.

The game at no time appeared a cinch for either team, both fighting to a lead only to lose it in the face of the determined attack of the opposing players. High point man of the game was J. C. Scrahan of the Archer City quintet, who rang up a total of 14 points through the basket.

A good crowd witnessed the fray and gave indication of the growing enthusiam for basket ball in this section. The fighting spirit displayed by both the Archer City and Megargel players and the excellent cooperation on the part of each team bids fair for still further interest in the game and a growing rivalry between the two schools in this field of athletics.

WHAT RUNYON SECRETLY THINKS

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11.—I secretly think—

The sucker rate has been underestimated by 50 per cent—it's two per minute.

The greatest grandstander I ever saw is Tom Mix, the movie actor.

The toughest dodge in the world is following the bangtails for a livelihood.

The dear old boxing game hasn't long to live now that boxing commissions are lending their cooperation to hippodrome bouts that are an insult to the intelligence.

Sharkey Puffed Up

The terrible Sharkey man may be so puffed up with overconfidence that he will not be able to fight a lick against Fainting Phil.

There would be 100,000 more visitors in Florida every season if the hotel men would stabilize their rates within reason.

About one-third of the visitors who drift into the land of the flamingo for the ocean bathing in the winter, use the artificial pools.

The biggest fighter the modern game has known, Jess Willard, couldn't lick Tom McMahon, and other men smaller than himself when he was at his best, and Campolo wouldn't have gone one heat with Ol' Jess.

Speed will always beat those big eggs, though some of them sometimes seem very fast in proportion to their size.

A remarkable phenomena of the Florida climate is the immense lassitude of Phil Scott's manager, James J. Johnston, immediately following a blast of great vehemence on arriving in Miami.

The dodging of photographers has become a curious permanent obsession with Mr. James J. Tunney, formerly Gene.

Gets Finicky

Every old fighter always develops some peculiar idiosyncrasy after he retires from the ring.

A racing greyhound is the world's dumbest creature, and the most uncertain betting proposition.

Although the newspapers make big headlines of those disarmament propositions, not one in 50 citizens know what they are all about, or gives a whoop.

For a town of its size, Miami has two of the finest daily newspapers in the world, The Herald and The News.

The Madison Square Garden corporation will make more profit on the Sharkey-Scott fight, with both men on a percentage basis, than it has made on any battle in some time.

Max Didn't Profit

No man ever made as little of his opportunity in life as Herr Max Schmeling, the black uhlan of the Rhine.

There are more busted guys in Miami at this moment than in any other city in the world, but they don't belong here.

A phony wrestling bout is apt to be more interesting than the real thing if the participants are good showmen, but a fake boxing bout rarely possesses the merit of even a little showmanship.

The Sharkey-Scott thing will run into six figures, but I'll have to wait a while to tell you just how far.

It's a great life down here, if your money holds out.

NUNN PRESENTS WAYLAND GYM

Panhandle Baptist Conference Opens

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Feb. 11.—In a dedication address Tuesday night Dr. J. E. Nunn of Amarillo presented Wayland college with a $20,000 gymnasium, a gift from his son, J. Lindsey Nunn, and brought the first day of the Panhandle Pastors and Laymens conference to a close.

Approximately 100 delegates representing towns as far north as Perryton, as far south as Snyder and west to Clovis, N. M., were here to attend the three-day meeting.

Tuesday morning Henry Morgan, educational director of the Plainview Baptist churches, opened the conference with a song service and C. R. Joyner, of Wellington made the chapel address. W. R. Knight, from Seminary Hill, spoke in the place of Dr. E. Leslie Carlson who was unable to be present on account of illness. Deacon George J. Burnet of Memphis, Tenn., appeared on the morning program.

Dr. E. L. Morgan, late of China, spoke in the afternoon on China's revolution and J. Pat Horton, pastor of the First Baptist church at Plainview, spoke regarding the Wayland endowment. A conference on church finances closed the afternoon program.

J. D. Riddle, of Amarillo, led the song service that opened the evening program and Dr. Knight made the address of the evening conference. Preceding a basket ball game between Wayland college and Panhandle A. & M., Dr. Nunn made his dedication address.

Point-to-Point Racing Gains in Popularity

LONDON, Feb. 11. (UP)—Point-to-point racing, closely allied to the sport of hunting, is thoroughly organized in England, and is carried on chiefly in the early months of the year.

It is claimed that racing between the flags was carried on long before horses were run over distances on regulation tracks.

Practically every hunt meet in the country and also in Ireland has its point-to-point race meet, and being a purely democratic sport it appeals to all sporting county folk, the spectators including lords and landed gentry, farm hands, and inhabitants from the surrounding villages.

Each horse must be certified by the master of a recognized pack of foxhands, staghounds, or harriers, as having been regularly hunted during the current season, as these meets are intended for genuine working hunters and not for horses prepared for racing. During the 1929 season there were over 900 races with about 12,000 entries with at least 10,000 horses taking part.

ARCHER PLANS CAGE TOURNEY

Competition to Start Friday At Holliday

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Feb. 11.—The Archer county basket ball tournament will be staged at Holliday next Friday and Saturday, according to County Athletic Director A. D. Bradfute.

Competition will begin promptly at 10 a. m. and will probably last throughout the day. It is likely that the final games will be played Saturday night.

Archer county has been the scene of many lively basket ball tournaments and this year promises to be no exception. Last year there were three outstanding contenders for the championship in Archer City, Megargel and Holliday. Holliday proved to be the surprise of the meet by beating out the strong Megargel five, thereby having the honor of representing the county at the district meet held at Wichita Falls. They proved themselves worthy representatives in that they made their way to the finals where they were defeated by the Olney Cubs.

Other teams such as Geraldine, Mankins and Dundee made a credible showing last year and are due to do the same this year. Little is known as to the strength of the Megargel five, but they may prove to be the dark horse of the meet. Archer City has developed 100 per cent since the beginning of the season and the team that beats them out will stand a good chance of winning the championship. Holliday has a young and inexperienced team for the most part, but it is expected that they will exert every effort to retain last year's honors.

Air Corps Beats Poloists of Cisco

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 11. (AP)—In three polo matches in the low goal event Tuesday afternoon the Air corps defeated Cisco, 8 to 4, on Harbord field; Abilene defeated Fort Worth 11 to 9 on Pershing field and the artillery defeated San Antonion 16 to 9 on Brackenridge Park field.

The closest match was that between Abilene and Fort Worth in which Abilene scored two goals in the eighth chukker to claim the victory as Fort Worth also scored twice in the same round.

The Artillery-San Antonio game marked the first appearance of Cecil Smith on the field since his recent illness. He officiated as umpire. Smith is the highest handicapped player in the tournament, carrying seven goals, and he may be able to play in the 12 and 16-goal events which will follow the present six goal series.

Burk Prep Cagers Win Two Battles

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Feb. 11.—In two hard fought contests here Monday night Coach Jesse Johnson's High school prep cagers were high markers. The first game was a hair raiser between the Allendale and Burk junior teams. The score was 17 to 23, with Perry Burke and Everett Hammer doing excellent floor work and accounting for the majority of points. The second game was played between Fairview and Burk High schools. The score remained very close up to the end of the game when the locals broke loose and ran the score up to 30 to 20. Ragsdale and Morley were outstanding performers for the locals, while Curtis Wright stood out for the Fairview makeup.

Small Fines for Small Noises New Plan Offered for Quieting Gotham

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (UP)—New York—nursery of noises, citadel of crashes and admitted world champion in nerve-wracking sounds of every description—seemed bound for a dulcet destiny tonight.

After weeks of earnest cogitation, the noise abatement commission has hit upon a scheme to muffle Manhattan by making its individual noise producers unhappy through a series of small fines. The plan is aimed directly to remove the Manhattan apartment dweller from the mercy of his neighbors by putting teeth into his protests against unnecessary racket.

Noisy Party $2

For instance, a noisy party after midnight—should the city adopt the plan—will cost the host exactly $2. A too-loud-speaker in the next apartment would be assessed at $1, while a howling dog would cost 50 cents.

The noises that annoy New Yorkers, the crusaders are well aware, are simply little noises such as these. Many noise experts consider them more fraying to nerves than even the rattle of riveting machines and the roar of elevated trains, which are the noises that generally attract the attention of visitors and are looked upon by good New Yorkers with more or less civic pride.

The commission's plan would place the little noises under a control similar to that exercised over parking and other minor traffic violations. A round dozen of the nasty little noises have been listed. All the policeman will have to do will be to write out a ticket.

Simple Court Plan

To prevent cluttering up the courts with trials concerning how loudly an ash can clattered, the commission's committee on practical remedies suggests the "ticket" plan. Upon receiving a ticket, the accused would repair alone and immediately to the nearest police station, where, upon a plea of guilty, the desk sergeant would be empowered to collect a fine not in excess of $2. If the accused pleads not guilty, the sergeant is liable to write out a summons requiring appearance in a magistrate's court for trial—which would be a great nuisance for the accused.

Any New Yorker who has ever attempted to obtain a night's rest when the fates were against him can figure out for himself how the commission arrived at choosing its "dozen noises."

Noise Prices

A suggested scale of prices for the original dozen annoying noises includes the following:

Automobiles—Horns tooted unnecessarily, $1; cut-outs unmuffled, $2; noisy brakes, $1.

Trucks and horse-drawn trucks—Noisy loads, $2.

Busses—Same as automobiles plus noisy tires, $2.

Ash and garbage collecting—Clattering cans, $2.

Milk and ice delivery—Clattering, $2.

Radio loud-speakers in homes operated to annoyance, $1.

Noisy parties—After midnight, $2.

Doormen's whistles, $1.

Noisy pets, 50 cents.

School Land Lease Fails to Get Buyer

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 11. (UP)—Although the state school land commission was offered $7 an acre two months ago for an oil and gas lease on school land adjoining Nichols Hills, Oklahoma City, all operators today declined to bid on 160 acres of this land when it was re-offered.

The department again will offer part of this land for lease at a letting March 11.

The letting today was one of the most unsuccessful in recent months. The department offered leases on 38 tracts in Garfield, Logan, Noble, Oklahoma and Payne counties and leases were awarded on only four of these tracts.

Ledbetter, city secretary, have been attending to the collection of city taxes also.

RECEIPTS OF PRODUCE DROP

South Texas Area Hard Hit By Weather

Excessively cold January weather which all but completely stopped deliveries of all kinds of produce from this community has effected a material curtailment of the supply from the South Texas producing areas, according to information given by local wholesale dealers Tuesday.

Sections of South Texas, including the Rio Grande valley, which are usually immune to dangerously low temperatures, were subjected to two severe freezes during the past six weeks, it was said. Various vegetable crops which ordinarily supply the demand in this section during the winter season have been entirely lacking or far short of the usual amount. Citrous fruits also were affected, it was said, with the result that there probably will be little or no more deliveries of grapefruit from that section for some time. Reports from the valley indicate that many young orchards were seriously damaged by the cold.

California has supplied a considerable part of the produce marketed here recently, despite the fact that a six-day period is required for shipment from that district. Florida remains under quarantine, and only a negligible quantity of fruit is available from that state.

Truck growers near Wichita Falls have delivered small amounts of turnips recently, produce which had been left in the hill, and survived the low temperatures, but supplied little more than that to the market. Production of eggs and sale of poultry which was practically at the zero mark during January, was reported Tuesday to be increasing noticeably.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 11. (AP)—(USDA)—More liberal receipts of cattle tended today to slow up fed steer trade. Packers purchased better grades on a steady basis but obtained some concessions on medium short feds.

Choice 975 pound yearlings at Omaha scored $15.40 while medium weight steers and mixed yearlings in Chicago made $15.

Demand continued fairly broad on most classes of replacement stock. Total offerings were around 33,800.

The sheep supply approximated 70,400. The general trend in prices was lower. A few choice light weight lambs at Chicago and St. Louis reached $12 while at Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Joseph best fed arrivals made $11.

Hogs were unevenly steady to 25c higher with the river markets generally showing the most gains. The day's extreme top of $11.35, a new high mark for the season, was realized at St. Louis. Aggregate receipts estimated at 118,500 were 9,000 short of a week ago and 7,000 more than a year ago.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 11. (AP) (USDA)—Hogs—Receipts 9000; 240 pounds down 10c to 20c higher; weightier kinds slow; top $10.85 on choice 180 to 225 pounds.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (AP)—Early reactions were followed by renewed firmness in the cotton market here today with prices making new high ground for the movement on covering and trade buying. Contracts for May delivery sold up from 15.65 to 16.08 and closed at 16.02 compared with 15.88 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net advances of 14 to 17 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points and soon eased off under realizing or liquidation promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and a feeling that recent advances had eased the technical position. There was probably a disposition to even up commitments for over tomorrow's local holiday, and the market worked gradually lower with March selling off to 15.41, July to 15.87 and October to 16.07 or about 20 to 23 points net lower during the middle of the day. Offerings tapered off on this decline which was checked by renewed covering, however, and prices turned upward during the afternoon on buying which seemed to come partly through the local house which is credited with carrying contracts for the cooperative associations in the market here. There was comparatively little cotton for sale when the buying developed and the market shot up quite rapidly to 15.81 for March, 16.27 for July and 16.46 for October in the late trading. Closing prices were a few points off from the best.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11. (AP)—Following an early decline the cotton market rallied approximately $2 a bale today under a demand stimulated by covering in New York for over the holiday tomorrow and a belief that an organization would be formed to stabilize cotton prices similar to the one in wheat. May contracts rallied from 15.43 to 15.84 and closed steady at a net advance of 8 to 18 points.

The market opened easy in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables. Initial transactions showed losses of 3 points and although there was execution of some overnight buying orders the demand was supplied at a small rally and the market started downward again under selling promoted by the poor cables and the bearish character of the textile statistics issued after the close yesterday. March dropped to 15.20 and active positions generally to levels 16 to 20 points under the previous close.

Later in the morning the market rallied and the advance continued into the afternoon on covering and more or less trade buying and before the demand was supplied values made new highs for the day with March at 15.62, May 15.84 and July 16.09, or 41 to 42 points above the lows.

There was some realizing in late trading and final prices showed recessions of 6 to 9 points from the top, March closing at 15.56 and July 16.00, or 12 to 18 points net higher.

Several Factors Responsible For Steady Rally in Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (US)—Easing in money, favorable advices from steel centers and report of "First National buying" influenced steady rally in the stock market today. Steel finished 2 points higher as a result of short covering that followed issuance of the improved advices as to trade conditions while Can gained 4, Westinghouse 6½, Goodyear 8⅝, Western Union 4¾, Paramount 1, Warner 1¾, Foreign Power 1⅝, Consolidated Gas 2¼, Public Service 2½, American Tobacco B 2½, and United Gas Improvement 1¼. Coppers and Oils irregular while Canadian Pacific dropped 4 points in a generally soft Railroad group. Call rate was held at 4 per cent, but loans were reported outside of regular channels at 3½ per cent. Total trading held around the 3,000,000-share level.

Recent accumulation of Asphalt was reflected in its outstanding strength in the Oil group. With earnings being maintained by operations of roofing and other departments and prospects for further gains as a result of state and federal building campaigns expectation is voiced that dividend increase may result. Other Oil shares were held back by further advices from California stressing the situation brought about there by the unwillingness of one operator to join in stabilization movement. It was indicated that measures would be taken to "discipline" this operator. Until such measures are successful, however, California will continue to hold back the entire industry. It is estimated that a third of the large gasoline stocks on hand in the country results from California production.

Shorts were burned in Fox Film as report was spread that financing plan might be announced soon. The Paramount dividend increase was announced as forecast here. Insiders look for further increase in earnings. American Can and Westinghouse buying was influenced by advices from one firm. Can splitup was talked of again and there was further evidence of important shifting from General Electric to Westinghouse. The General American Tank pool displayed more aggressiveness. Those most active are associated with the interests at work in Westinghouse. Radio's annual report, it now is stated, will not be issued until the end of the month.

Mid-week reviews of steel conditions telling of some increase in demand, largely from railroads, was responsible for covering in steel. Just how long the carriers will continue the big buyers is problematical, but there is belief that important interests will continue to influence such demand during the normal winter dull period. Forecast was made that copper price reduction would be witnessed early in April. United Drug's forthcoming report, it was learned, would show earnings for 1929 of close to $7 a share.

Offerings of call funds on the outside at as low as 3½ per cent came as somewhat of a surprise due to the unexpected advance in the rate of Monday. In so far as actual money conditions today are concerned there is every reason to expect the call rate to hold below 4 per cent for an indefinite period. However the money powers are likely to tighten the reins whenever there is threat of stock speculation getting out of hand again. Flotation of the German bonds is two months or more away and in the meantime the work of building up a good investment market will be the main thought in the minds of the most powerful financiers. Another increase in brokers loans is forecast for the current week but should have little influence.

Sterling and other exchanges held fairly firm in quiet trading. Cotton was helped by indications the government was starting its pegging operations and resulting better feeling influenced covering in wheat as well as other grains.

DRYGOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (AP)—Cotton goods were quiet, influenced again by lower cotton, and pressure to sell in the gray goods division. Wash fabrics continue steady but in small lots, the dress strike being a factor in holding back cutting. Raw silk was inactive. Silk merchandising sales this week are better. Sales are running ahead of a year ago.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Feb. 11. (AP)—Wheat was slightly higher on the cash grain market here today. There was no export business being done on bids offered.

Bids and offers, basis carloads delivered freight paid to Texas common points:

Wheat—No. 1 hard ordinary milling $1.36@1.36½; No. 1 hard, 13 per cent protein $1.37@1.37½; 14 per cent $1.31 1.32½.

Oats—No. 2 red oats 61@62c; No. 3 white oats delivered Texas group one points 56¼@56½c.

Barley—No. 2 nominal.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per hundred pounds $1.61@1.63; No. 2 kaffir $1.43 @1.45.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 11. (AP)—Increased confidence in higher prices showed itself among wheat traders today, largely as a result of expected doings of the newly organized wheat stabilization corporation.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1⅛c to 1⅝c a bushel higher. Corn closed ⅛c off to ⅛c up, oats ⅛c to ⅛c advanced, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 7c.

Right from the outset, wheat prices took an upward course, indications being that the new emergency ally of the federal farm board soon would be on a substantial working basis. Liverpool wheat values were higher than expected. Adding impetus to the rise of the market were scattering unfavorable crop advices from domestic winter wheat territory.

Tightening up of wheat prices today received impetus from attention given to the fact that since Nov. 1 domestic supplies of wheat in sight have decreased 35,000,000 bushels against 10,000,000 bushels shrinkage during the same period a year ago.

Corn and oats prices averaged a little higher, responsive to strength shown by the wheat market. Country offerings of corn remained small.

Provisions developed firmness, influenced by an upward trend of hog values.

Closing bids and offers: Wheat—March $1.17⅛@1.21; May $1.21⅛@1.21⅛; $1.2[illegible]@1.28⅛; July $1.22⅛@1.22⅛; $1.26⅛@1.26⅛; September $1.24⅛, $1.28⅛@1.28⅛. Corn—March 88⅛c (bids); May 91⅛@91⅛c, 93⅛@93⅛c; July 93⅛@93⅛c, 94⅛c; September 93⅛c, 95⅛c.

Germany Rough On Moonshiners

BERLIN, Feb. 11. (UP)—Life is hard for bootleggers and moonshiners—in Germany.

Three merchants found guilty of running an illicit brewery in Frankfort Am Maine have been sentenced to three, six and eight months in jail respectively and fined a total of $750,000, a sum which these merchants will have to pay or remain in jail until they do.

The prosecutor pointed out that the secret distillery had defrauded the government of about $100,000 in liquor taxes. The outlaw brewery had been running over a period of three years when discovered by the police.

DANIEL ENTERS SENATE RACE

Wichitan to Seek Post in Upper House

Roy J. Daniel, teacher in the Wichita Falls public schools, and former member of the state house of representatives for two terms, Tuesday formally announced his candidacy for the state senate from the 23rd senatorial district.

A pledge of service to the district and to the state was the only platform announced by Mr. Daniel.

His formal announcement was stated as follows:

"To the people of the 23rd state senatorial district:

"Having been in the race for state senator from the 23rd state senatorial district since last August, I now make formal announcement for the office on the Democratic ticket.

"I served the people of Wichita county for two terms in the Texas house of representatives, and my platform consisted of the one plank of service to all the people.

"I now ask the support and votes of the people of the 23rd state senatorial district (comprising the counties of Hardeman, Foard, Knox, Wilbarger, Baylor, Wichita, Archer, Young and Clay) upon the platform of service to our district and state of Texas.

"At the present time I am a member of the legislative committee of the state bar association, a member of the state highway committee of the State Junior Chamber of Commerce, and president of the Wichita Falls City Teachers' association, and am a veteran of the world war.

"I hope to meet personally as many people as possible in the district during the campaign before July 26, 1930, and discuss with them personally governmental issues and Democratic principles."

CHOIR TO GIVE FIRST CONCERT

Scottish Rite Singers Make Debut Feb. 18

Preparations are being completed this week by the Scottish Rite choir for its first public concert in this city, which is to be presented at the Woman's Forum next Tuesday night, Feb. 18, at 8 o'clock.

Organized about one year ago with more than 30 mixed voices, the Scottish Rite choir here appeared in Vernon, Burkburnett and in Wichita Falls in connection with other programs, but will make its first full concert appearance, with the public as guests, next Tuesday.

Besides three groups of choral numbers, the program will include solos by Mrs. Nelle Lowery, soprano, who became a resident of this city about two months ago, and marimba selections by Paul Sisk, a member of the bass section of the choir. Mrs. Lowery was formerly soloist with the Scottish Rite choir of Dallas, held the solo position with one of the largest Dallas churches, and has had two years' experience in light operatic and concert work in the East.

Selections to be given by the choir have been chosen primarily to provide music to please a variety of musical tastes. Numbers from the compositions of Arthur Sullivan, famous author of light opera, tuneful lyrics of Franz Schubert, and numerous well-known concert choruses will be included in the program. The choir is directed by Dr. L. D. Parnell, with Miss Elisabeth Cole as accompanist.

All Fathers And Sons Invited To Scout Party Here

A father and son party for all boys and their dads in Wichita Falls will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the basement of the First Methodist church as part of the week's celebration of the 20th anniversary of the organization of the Boy Scout movement, it was announced Tuesday by Frank B. Creighton, scout executive.

No charge will be made for the party, Mr. Creighton said, and all boys are urged to attend and bring their dads regardless of whether they were scouts or not. Representatives of all scout troops in the city will attend. Games, contests, stunts and entertainment will feature the evening.

The next event of the scout anniversary program will be a party given by the Wichita Falls scout executive board in honor of all scoutmasters and their ladies. The party will be held at the First Christian church.

Climaxing the anniversary celebration, scouts of three counties will join Friday night in a quarterly jamboree to be held at the Memorial auditorium, when hundreds of scouts, their parents and friends will join in a huge program of contests, games, stunts and entertainment, Mr. Creighton said.

Jewish Leaders to Meet In Washington March 8

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (US)—A national conference of Jewish leaders will be called in Washington on March 8 to organize the allied Jewish campaign, Felix M. Warburg announced today.

The campaign will seek to raise $6,000,000 during 1930. The joint distribution committee, to aid destitute Jews in Eastern Europe and Russia, will receive $3,500,000. The balance will be turned over to the Jewish agency for Palestine.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

A Challenge!

Wichita Falls has thousands of theatergoers who have become blase; who claim to be hard-boiled, cold-blooded, stony-hearted. To those we make this challenge: We defy you to hear a performance of "Seven Days Leave" without being swept out of yourself on a wave of emotion such as you never believed possible. Your heart will swell; you'll realize you are not so hard-boiled, and you'll be glad to discover you are still human.
