Bush: Legislators' raise 'overdue'

Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush defended a widely criticized pay raise for Congress on Friday as unquestionably "overdue." Making his debut in a fast-paced but easygoing news conference, Bush also said "prudence is the order of the day" in dealing with the Soviet Union.

Rounding out the first week of his presidency, Bush put himself at arms length with a controversial plan from the Treasury Department to rescue the beleaguered savings and loan industry by imposing a fee on savings accounts. He called it "an option, not a proposal."

As for his promise not to raise taxes, Bush said, "I'd like it to be a four-year pledge." Asked if Ronald Reagan was cashing in on the presidency by signing a reported $5 million book deal and getting paid more than $40,000 for speeches, Bush said, "There is plenty of tradition that goes with presidents writing memoirs and being paid for it."

His voice was hoarse from a cold but Bush seemed confident, relaxed and in high spirits as he fielded questions in the White House briefing room for 43 minutes — a contrast to the 30-minute time limit fixed for Reagan's infrequent news conferences.

Whereas Reagan held most of his news conferences in prime-time hours of television, Bush surprised the press with a hurriedly announced session that began at 11:02 a.m. EST. It was broadcast live nationally. White House aides said Bush decided on the spur of the moment Friday morning to see reporters.

Reflecting on a week marred by policy and personnel flaps, Bush said, "I'm just getting a preview of coming attractions, and it's been lovely. And it's going to change, I know, but no, I think it's been a wonderfully harmonious week and these are just little ripples on the surface of an otherwise calm pond."

Several times Bush was asked about the 50 percent pay raise to take effect Feb. 8 that would bring salaries for members of Congress to $135,000 a year. Polls show that an overwhelming majority of Americans oppose the increase.

Taking the opposite side, Bush said, "A raise is overdue, there's no question about that." While saying there were some unspecified aspects of the pay formula that disturb him, Bush said, "I still feel that I should not go about undoing the Reagan decision" to endorse the pay increase.

Bill would help energy producers

Archer

HOUSTON (AP) — A bill that would provide energy producing companies tax incentives amounting to about $3 billion a year was introduced Friday by Texas Congressman Bill Archer.

"I believe that is a small price to pay for increasing our energy security," the Houston Republican said at a news conference to announce his "Domestic Energy Security Act of 1989."

"We have to convince the people in the Northeast and Midwest that they have to have adequate energy supplies to heat their homes, run their factories as well as operate their cars and trucks. Other than food, there is nothing so vital in our day-to-day lives than available energy that permits us to maintain our standard of living."

Archer said energy production has slipped to where the nation now relies on foreign producers for nearly 50 percent of its supply.

The bill, which he said for the first time has the backing of a unified energy industry, would allow energy producers a 20 percent tax credit for exploration and development, a 20 percent tax credit for marginal well production and tax expensing of geological and geophysical expenses.

Junior League contributes $100,000 to local agencies

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

In observance of its 40th anniversary, the Junior League of Midland Friday made good on an old promise to divide $100,000 among 13 local agencies.

During a Friday morning news conference at Junior League headquarters, President Sherry Kozial said the monetary gift should assist 13 local agencies in starting new programs that their annual budgets wouldn't otherwise allow.

"It is our intent that this gift will touch many more lives than any single idea or gift," she said of the league's decision.

Among those slated to receive a part of the $100,000 contribution are the city of Midland, Museum of the Southwest, United Way of Midland, Ballet Midland, YMCA Leaders, Midland Opera Theater, Opportunity Park, Midland Arts Assembly Kids Art, Volunteer Center, Victim Assistance Fund and Rape Crisis.

According to project coordinator Kathy Shannon, the league raised the cash through a number of fundraising efforts over a five-year period and "began to move" on the project last fall.

The local chapter, formerly called the Midland Service League, was founded by 28 women in 1949 and became affiliated with the Association of Junior Leagues 15 years later.

An international organization of women committed to promoting volunteerism and to improving the community through effective action and leadership of trained volunteers, the Association of Junior Leagues is exclusively a charitable and educational institution.

Although charitable contributions are given almost daily, Mrs. Kozial said this is the league's first sizeable gift since 1983, when it joined with the First Baptist Church to build Hearthstone, an emergency shelter.

Mayor Pro Tem Robert Rendall praised the league's efforts. "In addition to all of the wonderful volunteerism that they do on a daily basis, this really is a special thing for our city," he said.

Ray Unterbrink, executive director of the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, agreed with the councilman's assertions.

"I'm very happy," he said. "It's not altogether unexpected because we've worked with the Junior League for about six months on this project."

Unterbrink said the $4,000 his agency is due to receive will go to finish construction of Opportunity Park.

Proceeds of sale of Valencias' store will go to law agencies

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Midland law enforcement officials and a San Antonio prosecutor celebrated Friday's ruling that awarded ownership of a convenience store — long suspected as a front for narcotics dealing — to the government.

"I'm happy to hear that," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Joe Florio of San Antonio when told of the ruling. "You made my day."

Florio, a specialist in forfeiture law, represented the government in a January 13 hearing before U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton. At the hearing, Florio presented evidence that the La Morenita store, 609 N. Dallas Ave., had been used by Emma Valencia and her son, Oscar, both of Midland to deal heroin and cocaine.

Friday's ruling means the store, which also has housed a snack bar and washateria, will be seized by the U.S. Marshals' Service and sold.

The proceeds from the sale will then be divided between the Midland County Sheriff's office and Midland Police Department, Florio said from his San Antonio office.

In his nine-page ruling, Bunton said evidence convinced him the store should be taken from Oscar Valencia, the owner of the property.

"The property was used by the Valencias as a storage place and distribution location for heroin and cocaine," the ruling said, noting that Mrs. Valencia operated the store — and narcotics operation — in his absence.

"At no time did Oscar Valencia transfer operation of the store from his mother or take any affirmative action to prevent the use of the property to facilitate drug trafficking," Bunton said in the ruling.

Woman says alleged threatening remarks 'misconstrued'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The Midland woman who allegedly threatened the life of President Bush said her comments were "totally misconstrued."

"I never said I would 'hire a hit man,'" 22-year-old Pamela Lyn Parsons said Friday in a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Robert Sykes in Midland.

What she did say, she confessed, was: "I shot the president."

Ms. Parsons, a Midland College student, was released on a personal recognizance bond while the case against her is pending.

She allegedly made the threat early Wednesday morning in a moment of defiance after she was arrested for driving while intoxicated. Her 48-year-old companion was charged with public intoxication.

Arresting officers had complained that Ms. Parsons threatened: "I'm going to hire a hit man to kill the president."

Ms. Parsons, who apologized to the court for not being cooperative at the outset, said she "did not mean what I said" to the officers and that she had no intentions to "hurt the president."

Her comments to Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Matt Andrews and Midland County Sheriff's Deputy Gerald Hall were made after she said she had asked for the reading of her rights under the Miranda warning, she said. The officers had asked her to be "quiet," to "shut up," but she responded:

"I can say whatever I want...(such as), 'I shot the president,' and you can't use that against me," the petite woman said she told the officers.

"I did not mean I was going out to shoot the president," she explained. Ms. Parsons said he had used the past tense of shoot — shot.

"It was a bad example of what you could and could not say (prior to the reading of the Miranda warning)," she said. "I do apologize. I did not intend to hurt the president at all."

The woman had been held in federal custody since Wednesday, when she initially appeared before Sykes, who had set a hearing for Monday on her bail-setting and for a preliminary examination.

However, the federal prosecutor, Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Beery, and defense attorney Tom Morgan agreed to move he bond hearing to Friday. Morgan waived the preliminary examination.

Beery, who on Wednesday had argued that the woman be held without bail until further investigation, said on the day of her arrest the government "knew nothing" about the woman's background and that she was an "unknown quantity to us."

Further, Beery noted that Parsons initially had been "less than cooperative" with U.S. Secret Service Special Agent Charlie Blankenship.

The motion to detain her without bond was made "until we could fully and accurately investigate her background and the particular circumstances of the case," Beery said.

In the last two days, he said, the government has received information concerning Ms. Parsons' "personal circumstances, her lack of significant prior criminal record, and her family background."

Her father is a Baptist minister in Lubbock, and her mother is a school teacher.

Rangers to probe MISD supervisors

From Staff Reports

The Texas Rangers will investigate allegations of theft and other illegalities made against at least three Midland Independent School District supervisors on Thursday, an official has confirmed.

"We had originally been advised by our attorney to ask the district attorney to investigate the matter," MISD spokesman Ted Miller said Friday afternoon.

"However, the district attorney felt that the Texas Rangers would be a more appropriate investigating unit," Miller said without elaboration.

The Rangers should begin their investigation next week, Miller said.

The allegations surfaced Thursday during a fired employee's grievance hearing with MISD officials.

During the hearing, ex-MISD warehouseman David Marin told officials supervisors instructed employees to remove supplies and materials from the northwest Midland warehouse to their private homes and at least one church.

Furthermore, allegations of gambling on company time, harrassment and misuse of time cards were announced in the hearing, a Texas State Teachers Association representative explained.

TSTA representative Kay Walling said the alleged illegalities surfaced while she was researching Marin's grievance against the district.

Marin is requesting back pay and reinstatement of his job.

West Texas Wendy's stores closed

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

The downturn in the economy claimed 13 victims Friday night with the closing of 13 Wendy's Old Fashion Hamburger stores throughout the Permian Basin, including two in Midland.

"We are sorry to have to close the stores, but they have not been as profitable as we would have liked over the past two years," said Robert Squire, area supervisor for the stores in Midland and Odessa.

"It's just an unfortunate condition of the times," he said. "We appreciate all the business and support we have received from our friends in Midland and throughout the Permian Basin," added Squires."

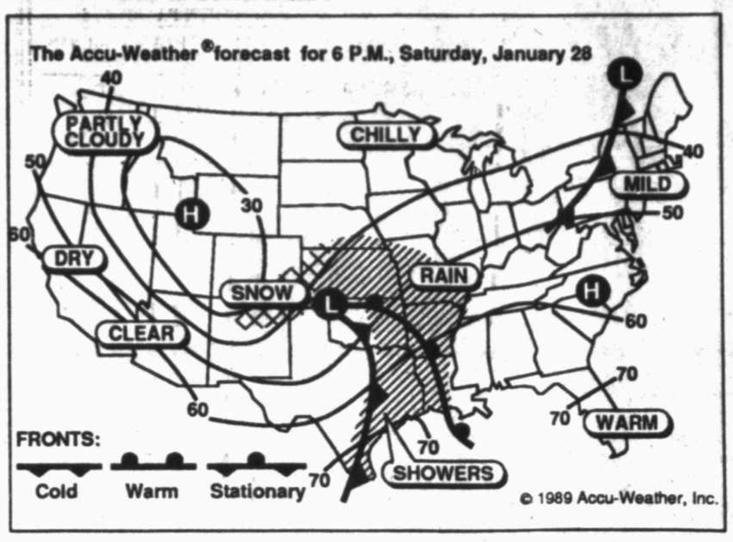

Squires said West Wind Operations of San Angelo, the franchise operator, had been trying to sell the stores for the past two years but had been unsuccessful.

"As of now the closings are permanent, but we will continue to try to sell the stores and hopefully will be able to sell them at some point in the future," said Squires.

West Wind operates Wendy's stores in Lubbock, San Angelo, Abilene, Big Spring, Midland and Odessa. The company is owned by San Angelo businessman Ray Hawkins, who recently purchased 89 7-Eleven stores in Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and Lubbock from Dallas-based Southland Corp.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Showers could continue

From Staff and Wire Reports

Friday's dripping skies will give way to cloudy skies today with a lingering chance of rain, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland International Airport.

Today will be mostly cloudy with morning fog and a 20 percent chance of showers. Winds will be from the southwest 10 to 20 mph. Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low in lower 30s.

Sunday will be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 50s.

Friday's high of 44 was almost 40 degrees cooler than the record high of 80, which was set in 1970. The record low of 10 degrees, which was set in 1948, was 25 degrees cooler than Friday's low of 35.

STATE

An upper level storm pushed into Texas from Mexico Friday, bringing considerable moisture into the state, while a cold front continued to hold temperatures down except in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

The system caused scattered showers and a few thunderstorms over most sections of Texas along with patches of fog in South Texas and the western Permian Basin. The rest of the state saw mostly cloudy skies.

The forecast calls for rain with scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms. Decreasing cloudiness is expected in the west, but the rest of Texas will be mostly cloudy.

NATION

A low pressure system over southwest New Mexico spread snow, rain and drizzle and thunderstorms across New Mexico on Friday, and Alaska's cold snap continued with record lows and wind chills down to 100 degrees below zero.

Snow showers swung from the Great Lakes into northern New England, but fair weather and seasonally mild temperatures prevailed from the northern and central Plains to the mid-Atlantic states.

In New Mexico, up to 6 inches of new snow was measured Friday at Los Alamos, with additional accumulations up to 4 inches expected. Showers and a few thunderstorms spread across west-central and southern Texas.

Very cold air continued to dominate much of central and northern Alaska. For the eighth day, Fairbanks stayed colder than 40 degrees below zero.

Three placed set all-time record low temperatures overnight. Mcgrath reported minus 74 degrees, breaking the old mark by 10 degrees. Tanana fell to 76 degrees below zero and Galena reported a low of 68 degrees below zero.

In the national forecast for Saturday, rain and thunderstorms will be likely across the central and southern Plains into the middle Mississippi Valley. Showers will be scattered from central and southeast Texas into the lower Mississippi Valley, and across central and northern Illinois.

Snow will be widespread from northwest Kansas and southwest Nebraska into the eastern half of Colorado and northeast New Mexico. Rain will change to snow across southwest Kansas and the western Oklahoma Panhandle.

Dominican workers killed in crash

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A truck carrying Haitian sugar cane workers plunged from a cliff and overturned Friday, killing at least 50 people and injuring 40 others, authorities said.

Bodies were strewn around the overturned truck, but other people remained trapped for hours inside the wreckage. Red Cross rescue workers, soldiers and police found more than 20 bodies about 10 hours after the dawn accident.

Officials said it was the worst traffic accident ever in the Dominican Republic.

They said the truck was traveling to Santo Domingo with about 100 Haitians who had been recruited for the annual sugar harvest when it crashed in the province of Dajabon, about 22 miles north of the capital. The Dominican Republic shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with impoverished Haiti.

Police said the dead were 41 men, six children and three women. All victims were Haitian except for a Dominican policeman.

About 40 injured passengers were being treated at Santo Domingo hospitals. Doctors said at least 13 Haitians were in serious condition.

Police said they were searching for the truck driver, who apparently survived the accident. Survivors told police the driver had been drinking and flung himself from the vehicle as it rolled down the hill.

STORE

The judge's action was based on a federal law that allows the forfeiture of land which is used "to commit, or to facilitate the commission of" any crime which is punishable by more than a year in prison.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, whose officers spearheaded a 1987 investigation which resulted in the jailing of Mrs. Valencia and her subsequent conviction for heroin possession, was elated.

"What we would like to do is let everyone dealing in narcotics know that we are going after everything they've got," Painter said.

"This is the first time this (forfeiture) has been attempted in Midland County, and we were successful. If we get the opportunity, we are going to do it again."

The sheriff said that the two Valencias will suffer from the action.

"It is going to hamper their narcotics operation as far as having a delivery or sale point," he noted. "Maybe losing everything they own will scare them."

Valencia's attorney, Tom Hirsch of Odessa, could not be reached for comment on the ruling.

Bunton said he was not influenced by Valencia's defense of ignorance.

"Oscar Valencia professed innocence when he testified to his ignorance that his mother was selling drugs from his property," the ruling said.

"Under the circumstances of the prior pattern of arrests and the frequent visits to the store, Oscar's self-serving testimony does not establish the defense of lack of knowledge or consent."

Friday's action culminates several years of investigations into possible narcotics dealing by the Valencias. Bunton's ruling noted a September 1984 arrest of Mrs. Valencia for heroin possession, a December 1984 arrest of her son on the same charge, and a series of undercover narcotics buys from Mrs. Valencia at La Morenita in July and August 1987.

The store has been closed since April 12, 1988, when deputy U.S. Marshals locked the business and posted no trespassing signs.

Three weeks earlier, Mrs. Valencia was convicted of heroin possession in state district court. She was sentenced to 10 years in state prison. The conviction is on appeal.

Despite his favorable ruling, Bunton apparently took exception to some of the methods used by sheriff's investigators during the 1987 operation.

"The issue of probable cause was a close question and the techniques detailed by the investigating officer were cause for some concern," Bunton said.

But one officer said he doubted the judge was being critical.

"I don't look at it as a criticism," sheriff's Lt. Tim Rogers said. "We disposed of evidence because we didn't anticipate filing a charge in state court. Had we anticipated having the U.S. government involved, we would have done things a little different. But by state standards we did everything right."

District Attorney Al Schorre, who successfully prosecuted Mrs. Valencia, said he was "very pleased" with Bunton's ruling.

According to Florio, after the store is sold the Drug Enforcement Administration will divide and award the proceeds to area agencies.

The property is valued at $62,630, according to Midland County tax records.

But Painter said when auctioned the property would bring only about $20,000.

REMARKS

Beery said that both he and Blankenship "conducted in-depth interviews in the presence of Ms. Parsons' attorney and that the woman has been "very cooperative in this matter."

A threat to kill the president carries up to a five-year prison sentence and a $250,000 fine.

"Based on the information we now have in our possession," Beery said, "we are of the impression that she does not now pose a clear and present danger to the president."

However, the prosecutor said, "Let this matter serve as a warning to those who might be foolish enough to make threatening remarks concerning the safety of the president, vice president, members of Congress or the federal judiciary."

"Those kind of remarks will be construed by our office and the Secret Service in the very worst possible light," Beery said.

He alluded to national "historic events," including the assassinations of President John Kennedy in 1963, his brother, presidential-candidate Robert Kennedy, in 1968, and the attempted assassinations of presidents Gerald Ford in 1975 and Ronald Reagan in 1981.

The U.S. Attorney's Office "will prosecute a person who makes a serious and willful" threaten on the life of the president, Beery said.

Morgan, who as a former prosecutor said he "appreciates" Beery's remarks, said that he is "fully convinced" that "there was never any intent to harm the president of the United States."

However, Morgan noted that people in an "unpleasant environment" and "unpleasant situation" often "say things (out of frustration) that we do not mean" and soon "regret those remarks,' which often are followed by "continuing remorse."

Ms. Parsons was in such of a situation, he suggested.

In setting Ms. Parsons free, the magistrate warned her of the conditions and limitations of her release.

Since her alleged threat "may have been alcohol-related," Sykes ordered that Ms. Parsons, "for your protection," to "refrain from using alcohol" and "illegal drugs."

On Wednesday, the woman said she takes medication to treat a stomach ulcer.

"Ms. Parsons, you exercised poor judgment," the magistrate admonished her. "And that's something all of us do at one time or another."

While he restricted Ms. Parsons to Midland County, Sykes did give her permission to travel to Lubbock to her see her parents, who were in the courtroom during their daughter's hearing Friday afternoon.

Sykes cautioned Ms. Parsons to avoid "all persons and places with bad reputations...that can get you in trouble."

BILL

Archer estimated the $3 billion cost to the federal treasury would be offset by a boost in domestic oil production by 1 million to 2 million barrels a day.

"When you consider we're spending $25 billion to $30 billion a year on agriculture assistance in this country and you consider the importance of energy to everyone's jobs and ability to move from place to place and to our national defense, we do not believe this figure is out of line," he said of the federal revenue losses.

Archer, whose Houston district includes President Bush's home voting precinct, said he has not yet sought the backing of the president for the legislation.

"But this tracks the kinds of things George Bush campaigned on and I expect to have support for at least major parts of it from the administration," he said.

LEAGUE

"We've got a budget of about $428,000 and the Junior League's contribution will be added to our fund-raising efforts," Unterbrink said, referring to the costs associated with building the park — one of three in the nation designed specifically for persons with physical handicaps.

"Interestingly, we just decided to build an extra ramp leading up to our gazebo; and the cost of that ramp is almost identical to the contribution made by the Junior League," he added.

The MARC director anticipates that the construction, which already is underway, will be complete by April 1. Dedication ceremonies are tentatively set for May 7.

MISD to participate in competition

From Staff Reports

Local students will be representing Midland for the Region I Academic Decathlon to be hosted by the Midland Independent School District at Midland High School today.

The local students from Midland High School are: Kimberly Brune, Jennifer Covington, Brenda Lena Han, Elizabeth Byars, Russell Page, Sara-Melba White, Eric Hemphill and Michelle Vasiliotis.

Lee High School students are Erin Kelley, James Murphy, Prachi Shah, Gary Griffin, Michael Saum, David Sites, Ana Bustilloz and Bryan ooley.

Midland students will compete with students from school districts throughout West Texas, including Lubbock, Pampa, Odessa, Sweetwater, Frenship, Dalhart, Andrews and Hereford.

The Academic Decathlon is a written and oral competition covering a wide range of topics, science, social studies, mathematics, economics, grammar amd literature and the fine arts. Starting Friday, the contestants presented speeches and answered questions during formal interviews by trained contest judges. Today will be filled with a series of examinations, concluding with the "Super Quiz."

Winners will be announced in an awards banquet to be held at the Holiday Inn Country Villa at 7 p.m. today.

DEATHS

Marge Tope

Tope

Funeral services for Mrs. George M. (Marge) Tope of Midland were held 11 a.m. Friday at St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Tope died Wednesday at a local hospital after a sudden illness.

She was born July 26, 1930, in Aladdin, Wyo., and graduated from Belle Fourche High School in South Dakota. In 1951 she graduated from the University of Wyoming at Laramie with a degree in home economics. She married George Tope in 1951 in Laramie. The couple resided in Oklahoma City, Okla., Anniston, Ala., and Houston before moving to Midland in 1970.

Mrs. Tope was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church, the Midland Country Club Ladies Golf and Women's Associations, Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Association; St. Ann's Bridge Club and Meals on Wheels.

Survivors include her husband, George M. Tope of Midland; two daughters, Mrs. Rick (Lindy) Fox of Rockwall and Janice Tope of Dallas; a brother, Dan Hejde of Bellville, Ill.; and a sister, Eleanor Cammack of Colorado Springs, Colo.

The family requests that memorials be directed to Hospice of Midland.

Minnie Perry

Services for Minnie B. Perry will be held at 4 p.m. today at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with Pastor Richard Spencer of the Cornerstone Christian Fellowship Church officiating.

Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Perry died Friday morning at her Midland residence.

She was born July 6, 1907, in Alabama and was reared in Rice. On Dec. 26, 1925, he married L.E. Perry in Rice. They lived in the central Texas area until they moved to Midland 2½ years ago from Waco. They had lived in Waco since February 1954.

Mrs. Perry was a Baptist.

Survivors include her husband, L.E. Perry of Midland; a daughter, Geraldine Freeland of Midland; a brother, Lester Atchley of Springtown; a sister, Jessie Hartley of Rice; two granddaughters, Jaydine Zachry and Sue Lee, both of Midland; and five great-grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be directed to a favorite charity.

Mary Jean Darnell

Funeral services for Mary Jean Darnell of Midland are pending at the Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Darnell died Friday afternoon at a Midland nursing home.

OC to host young artists' competition

From Staff Reports

The 27th National Young Artist Competition unfolds this weekend at Odessa College. Sixty young musicians from all over the country have applied to compete in the annual contest.

The finals for the seven best students will be 7:30 p.m. today in the Jack Rogers Recital Hall. The public is invited to attend.

All of these students are under age 26, except vocalists, whose voices mature later.

Students are from Juilliard, Boston, American, Eastman and Peabody conservatories, as well as colleges and high schools in Texas and 10 other states. Eight of them are in junior or senior high school.

While all are students in the United States, this year's contestants include more than a dozen born abroad.

The seven categories are high school piano, winds and strings, college piano, winds, strings and voice.

Previous winners of NYAC have established professional performing careers, such as Jeffrey Campbell, 1976 NYAC winner, who returned to the Permian Basin in 1987 to perform with the Midland/Odessa Symphony. Campbell is one of the judges for this year's competition.

Other judges include Evan Whallon, newly elected president of the Conductors' Guild and former conductor of the San Francisco Opera; George Goslee, principal bassoonist with the Cleveland Orchestra for 41 years; and David Burge, chairman of the piano faculty at Eastman Conservatory in Rochester, N.Y.

Prizes for the National Young Artist Competition include money and four invitations to return to play the March 14 and 16 concerts with the Midland/Odessa Symphony & Chorale, under the direction of Dr. Tom Hohstadt.

The competition is sponsored by the symphony and organized this year by the Odessa Symphony Guild. Chairman of the competition is Karen Crutchfield; co-chairman is Sue Scarborough.

WENDY'S

Squires did not known if there was a connection between this purchase of the 7-Eleven stores and the closing of the Wendy's stores.

Hawkins has an extensive background in the convenience store business in the Permian Basin. He originally founded and sold 48 Colonial stores to National Convenience Stores the parent of Stop & Go markets, which were later bought by Southland Corp. in April of 1987.

In November 1988 he made the purchase of 89 stores from Southland Corp. He is also a principal in Cousin's convenience stores.

Wendy's operates two locations in Midland at 2501 N. Big Spring and 903 Andrews Highway. Both locations were closed at approximately 7 p.m. Friday night.

Managers at the Midland stores were unavailable for comment.

BUSH

Ideally, he said, the Senate and House would vote on the issue, although that appears highly unlikely.

On foreign policy, Bush said he was not trying to send any kind of signal by visiting China next month, ahead of any meeting with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev. He said the stop in Beijing "just seemed like an appropriate visit" since he would be in Asia for the funeral in Tokyo of Emperor Hirohito.

Bush said the administration was reassessing all aspects of U.S.-Soviet relations and "let's take our time now...I don't think the Soviets see that as foot-dragging. I'm confident they don't." Bush said he made that point clear this week in a telephone call with the Soviet leader.

Asked if he felt there still was a "Cold War" between Moscow and Washington — as White House national security adviser Brent Scowcroft said recently — Bush said he wanted to avoid those words because of their implication.

"If someone says 'Cold War' to me, that doesn't properly give credit to the advances that have taken place in this relationship," the president said. "So I wouldn't use that term. But if it's used in the context of, are we still unsure of — in our predictions on Soviet intentions — I'd have to say, yes, we should be cautious."

2 women found slain; Toddlers also found wandering near by

DECATUR (AP) — Texas Rangers and two North Texas sheriff's departments combed the countryside Friday looking for clues into the deaths of two women, while two children possibly connected to the victims remained nameless in foster care.

The bodies of the unidentified women, believed to have been Asian or Hispanic and in their 20s or 30s, were found battered and slashed Thursday morning under blankets beside a cattle guard about two miles east of Decatur, Wise County Sheriff Leroy Burch said.

Meanwhile, across the county line to the east, a little boy was found at about 9 a.m. in Denton, said Denton County Sheriff's Department Capt. Alan Lewis.

About six hours later, a little girl was found wandering by road workers on the east side of Denton, Lewis said.

The children, both believed to be about 1 year old, were fine although they were cold and hungry.

"We do not have any evidence to link the children to the victims," said Lewis. "But this is too coincidental for us not to explore the possibility of a connection."

What may or may not be a connection is what Lewis called a physical resemblance between the toddlers and the women.

Texas Ranger Phil Ryan said there was some general physical resemblance between the children and the dead women. One of the children appears Hispanic and the other Asian, he said.

Ryan said if an identification was not made soon that blood tests would be run in an attempt to verify a connection.

A baby blanket was found on the body of one of the dead women and authorities said both women had either been pregnant or had had children.

But other than that, "Our efforts have been fruitless," Lewis said. "We're still searching in vain."

Meanwhile in Wise County, Chief Deputy Steve Brock said officials had no suspects in the deaths and no identities for the women.

The bodies were found by a gas company worker on his way to check a rural gas line Thursday morning.

The women apparently were killed by blows to the head and face with a sharp instrument, Burch said.

Burch said one of the women was bound at the ankles and had been partially scalped. That victim also had a hole in her head about the size of a quarter, indicating she had been hit with a wide, sharp instrument, the sheriff said. She also had a hand wound.

"It looked like she was trying to defend herself," he said.

Authorities speculated that the two women were killed elsewhere and dumped at the location near Decatur, about 30 miles northwest of Fort Worth and 25 miles west of Denton.

Officer charged with embezzlement

EL PASO (AP) — A 21-year police department veteran and his wife were arrested Friday and charged with embezzling from a police relief fund, authorities said.

Ramon and Delores Ortega were charged with theft by embezzlement of more than $750, a felony, and were released on their own recognizance, police Capt. Henry Fluck said.

Ortega, 44, was relieved of duty without pay, Chief John Scagno said.

Fluck said the arrests came during a six-week investigation of the El Paso Police Relief Fund that began after a check drawn on the fund bounced. Ortega had been the fund's treasurer since 1984.

Police have said more than $10,000 was missing from the fund. Fluck said the department's investigation could lead to upgrading the charges against the Ortegas to embezzlement of more than $20,000.

Fluck and Scagno would not say whether other officers are being investigated, but Scagno said Ortega had "total control" of the fund.

Abortion protesters' trials could cost at least $50,000

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio police say they will continue to arrest abortion protesters who break trespassing laws, despite indications that the trials for those already arrested could cost taxpayers as much as $50,000.

"We're sworn to arrest people who violate the law," police spokesman Sgt. Paul Buske said.

About 100 misdemeanor criminal trespassing cases are on the dockets in the county courts-at-law and prosecutors say those trials could last through May.

At that rate, the tab to taxpayers for paying the salary of a judge, two prosecutors, court personnel and paying police to testify in court could cost taxpayers about $50,000, officials say.

"They (protesters) have a constitutional right to a trial and we must proceed with them," District Attorney Fred Rodriguez said Thursday. "If we didn't proceed with the law, then that would be giving preferential treatment."

Assistant District Attorney Catherine Babbitt, who has been assigned to handle the trespassing cases, said only two protesters have pleaded guilty.

All the rest are awaiting trials, which can last from two to five days, said Babbitt.

Rodriguez and Babbitt said many jurors who have been seated in recent trespassing trials have complained about what they see as a waste of taxpayers' money.

Barnes: Federal officials caused economic woes

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The embarrassment of Texas' financial woes may be close to ending, but the hard work, including improving the state's education system, is just about to start, said former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who lost millions of dollars in real estate deals that went bust.

Barnes, who along with his partner, former Texas Gov. John Connally, are struggling to recoup financial losses stemming from their soured real estate investments, blamed much of the state's financial institution crisis on federal officials, who he said encouraged banks and thrifts to seek new business.

He also blasted officials in the Reagan administration, which he said came into office in 1980 determined to stick to a cheap energy policy.

Barnes hinted it was no coincidence that Texas' financial institutions and oil and gas industries bled in order to fuel bull markets on Wall Street.

More than 200 banks and thrifts have closed in Texas since 1987 after the decline of the oil, gas and real estate industries.

Many of the large Texas bank holding companies have been merged after infusion of out-of-state capital.

"We cannot continue to be recognized throughout this land as a Southern, conservative, broke state," Barnes told about 150 members of the Texas Press Association.

"I don't mind hearing about Texas being broken economically, but it's a sad day when I travel to other places and they talk about Texas' spirit being broken...being broken economically.

"Maybe the embarrassment is over, but the hard work has just begun," Barnes said.

"Regardless of who got us here, regardless of what happened to the S&L's...the only way Texas is going to get better is for evevy one of us to roll up our sleeves and go to work," he said.

Barnes, also a former Texas House speaker, said that Texas' thrifts' problems began after the industry was deregulated in the early 1980s, forcing many thrifts to pay above-market interest on deposits.

"The regulators were encouraging, the regulations were encouraging and there also were some dishonest, some greedy people involved in the S&L business and that's been an embarrassment to Texas and to other states," he said.

He said the high-tech industry, including the newly awarded superconducting super collider project awarded to Waxahachie, would help Texas diversify from the oil and gas industries. In 1983 those industries accounted for 26 percent of the state's revenues, but they now account for about 9 percent.

He also said the Legislature would have to look at ways of improving the state's education system through equal funding proposals and creative programs to curb the high dropout rate.

Delegates to the TPA mid-winter convention also have heard from consultants who have talked about personnel management and improving cash flow in tough economic times. The three-day meeting concludes today.

Avian cholera halted

HOUSTON (AP) — Heavy rains and a seasonal scattering of geese on their winter nesting grounds have halted an outbreak of avian cholera that killed nearly 7,500 geese, a federal wildlife official said.

Even before recent rains began, geese that had been sharing limited wetlands and spreading the fatal disease had begun breaking up into smaller bands, said Steve Labuda, a biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The scattering of the geese helped break the chain of infection, which is passed by bacteria in water shared by the birds.

"The rain helped too and put a lot of fresh, clean water out there that was not contaminated with the cholera bacteria," said Labuda, who manages the Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge in Colorado County.

"We don't really expect a substantial recurrence of the cholera any more this winter," he said. "The closer we get to the last expected freezing day of the season, the better off we are."

Labuda said an average of five dead birds are still being found each day in the area around the refuge where the outbreak has concentrated.

The disease was first noted in the area Dec. 12, and by Tuesday the count had reached 7,458 birds, Labuda said.

Wildlife officials said the birds were at extra risk of disease this season because of stress caused by drought conditions. To combat spread of the cholera, state and federal agencies pumped fresh water into nesting areas and burned the corpses of infected birds.

'Frozen' snake warms up to family, dryer

Hearst News Service

BETHLEHEM, N.Y. — Snake's alive!

Norton, an 8-foot, 30-pound pet boa constrictor, is safe at home, and apparently well, thanks to a hair dryer.

The pet of Jeff Lindsay, Norton escaped from his cellar cage in December. Lindsay family members searched for the limbless reptile on and off for about two weeks without success.

Then, some neighborhood youngsters discovered the Norton — stiff, cold and apparently gone to snake heaven — by the side of a neighbor's house. The kids poked him, kicked at him and he didn't move, Kathleen Lindsay, Jeff's mother, said.

Thinking he was dead, they picked him up with a rake handle and dropped him head first into a trash can which was found to contain ice water.

"If he wasn't dead before, they thought he was after they pulled him back out of the ice water and dropped him on the ground," Lindsay said.

Then came the snake miracle of sorts. Jeff's sister, also named Kathleen, suspected there still might be some life in the seemingly frozen Norton, carried him back to the Lindsay's basement. She turned the hair dryer on the chilled creature.

When the gentle heat was applied, Norton responded by sticking out his forked tongue and moving a little, Lindsay said. Gradually, he began to wiggle his body. she said.

The younger Kathleen, who works at the Delmar Animal Hospital, then wrapped the snake in an afghan and put a heating pad in his cage. The next day he was taken to the veterinarian for a shot to prevent pneumonia.

Within a few days, Norton showed his owners signs of making a full recovery. He ate a rat or two and shed his skin and now seems to be fine.

"I can't believe he is alive. I kind of wish he wasn't because I am not fond of snakes," Lindsay said, laughing.

When asked how a snake like Norton could make such a spectacular recovery, Dr. Paul Hartman, a Schenectady veterinarian who specializes in exotic species, said: "Reptiles are cold-blooded and their metabolism does drop in the cold...Their heart beat also slows down. It is like suspended animation.

"It really is unusual, however, for a snake to be thawed out with a hair dryer," he added.

She also said the snake, which Jeff got from a friend two years ago, lives down in the cellar because "I want to know where he is."

How did he get out?

Lindsay said someone apparently didn't secure the cage after handling the snake.

"He can climb anywhere. He is in what used to be a fruit cellar and he must have climbed up the stairs and gone out through a hole near the stairway.

"I am not fond of snakes," she added "but I do have to say that, unlike teenagers, he doesn't ask for money, and you only have to feed him once a month." She also noted that Norton doesn't need a litter box like a cat, and "you don't have to walk him."

This was not the first time Norton wandered. In June, he caused a stir in the neighborhood as well as transportation problems for the Lindsay family. The snake was taken out of his cage June 21 for exercise and to hopefully shed his skin.

Norton was allowed to crawl around the grass and sidewalk while neighborhood kids watched. The wily boa then slithered under a Lindsay car, crawled into the motor, wound his way around piples and tubes in the engine and decided not to leave.

Norton stayed wrapped around the engine all night and Kathleen had to borrow her mother's car to get to work.

The next afternoon when James Lindsay decided the best way to solve the problem was to start the car's engine. Norton responded by snaking his way to safety.

USDA not curbing cattle inspections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contrary to a storm of rumors, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says it has no plans to curtail operations at border inspection stations in Texas when the peak cattle importing season opens in May.

James W. Glosser, administrator of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said Friday he has been bombarded recently with letters from Texans worried about cutbacks at inspection stations in Eagle Pass and Presidio.

"I don't know where it's coming from," Glosser said of the rumor. "It's all news to me."

Glosser said veterinary services staff would be dispatched to U.S.-Mexico border stations as needed to cope with the number of cattle crossing into the United States from Mexico during the peak importing season, which is usually from May through November.

"We will make sure there is sufficient personnel to conduct the inspections," said Glosser, a veterinarian who has worked along the border from Boca Chica east of Brownsville to Tijuana, Mexico.

Rep. Ron Coleman said he heard about the possible cutbacks at Presidio from constituents concerned about possible closure of the station, where cattle are inspected for pests and transmittable diseases that could infect the domestic supply.

"Those (stations) are money makers for the government," said Coleman, an El Paso Democrat who joined two other Texas congressman, Reps. Lamar Smith and Albert Bustamante of San Antonio, in calling on USDA not to curtail the stations' operations earlier this week.

The Eagle Pass City Council, the Maverick County commissioners and the county Chamber of Commerce also passed resolutions urging that the station there remain open, a Bustamante staffer said.

"Closing down of (those services) would be a loss of money by the Customs Service," Coleman said. "Although it would be a savings to USDA, Customs would be the big loser. Overall, for the United States it would be an unwise move. A lot of West Texas ranchers import livestock from Mexico and ports of entry."

Bullock says holiday sales boost budget

AUSTIN (AP) — Strong retail sales during the Christmas season and the last quarter of 1988 will produce a multimillion-dollar windfall for the state government budget this year, state Comptroller Bob Bullock reported Friday.

He said the state's improving economy, plus good Christmas season sales, could give Texas a budget surplus in 1989 of more than $300 million from state sales tax revenues.

In a statement, Bullock said he told lawmakers that he expects to certify $150 million over the $156 million surplus he had forecast in his official, November 1988 revenue estimate.

Bullock said sales tax collections reported this month showed about $670 million collected in December. That was an increase of more than 8 percent over the $620 million collected the same time in 1987.

Judges need more prison cells to effectively do job, jurist says

By JIM CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Judges need more prison cells to do their jobs effectively, a Southeast Texas district judge told a House subcommittee on prison appropriations Friday.

"Adequate prison capacity is the hammer that drives the machine," Criminal District Judge Larry Gist of Beaumont told the panel that is investigating alternatives to prison construction.

Lawmakers are considering whether to issue $343 million in bonds to build new prisons to hold 11,000 new inmates. More than 7,000 already are waiting in county jails because a federal court order limits admissions to the Texas Department of Corrections.

Rep. Ric Williamson, D-Weatherford, chairman of the subcommittee, has suggested the state would be better off building fewer cells and instead putting money into other programs such as boot camps and intensive supervision of probationers.

But without the threat of prison, Gist said, potentially useful alternative programs such as probation and restitution centers become a joke to criminals.

Gist told of a probationer at a Beaumont restitution center who, when he read that the state prisons had reached their capacity and stopped taking new inmates, bought a case of beer and drank it in the lobby, thinking there was nothing his probation officer could do.

"Well, we made room for him," Gist said, to laughter, "but all he did was demonstrate the attitude" that criminals can beat the system.

More criminals are opting to go to prison rather than go through probation, he said, because they know they will serve only a fraction of their sentences before the prison system is forced to let them out to make room for new convicts. They end up back on the street and don't have to report to a probation officer.

"The bad guys know the system, and until we have room in prison...the deterrent effect is somewhat retarded," he said.

Gist also protested suggestions that courts were sending too many people to prison. "I don't believe that the front end is acting irresponsibly," he said. "We cause the problem because criminals break the law."

He was responding to Attorney General Jim Mattox's call for a revamp of the criminal justice system. "There is no control over the criminal justice system in Texas," Mattox said.

Until the Legislature figures out how to control the front end (courts) and the back end (the Board of Pardons and Paroles), he said, "You guys are really just treading water."

hus´ke

husky — (noun) Perhaps the most common definition of "husky" is a sled dog. The name for this powerful dog, able to endure cold weather, comes to us from the early European explorers in the far north who had difficulty understanding native languages. When the explorers encountered the people in the north, they thoughy they called themselves "Huskemaws." Eventually the abbreviated term, "husky," was applied to their dogs and as the term drifted southward and was used by persons who had never seen a "husky," the name became synonymous with strength in general. This is perhaps why some school athletic teams go by the "husky" nickname.

Soviet official calls closing U.S. embassy 'psychological warfare'

WORLD

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The few remaining staff members locked the U.S. Embassy's gray steel doors Friday and plan to evacuate before the Red Army leaves the ragtag Afghan army to a showdown with Moslem guerrillas.

One Western diplomat said the decision to close the embassy was a surprise and indicated lack of confidence in both the Soviet-sponsored government and the insurgents, to whom the United States provides arms.

A Soviet official called it "psychological warfare" intended to undermine the government and get other nations to do the same.

Britain and Japan announced Friday they also would shut their Kabul missions. France said its embassy would be closed "provisionally." In Rome, Foreign Ministry sources confirmed the Italian Embassy will close soon.

State-owned Kabul Radio broadcast a Foreign Ministry statement deploring the decisions and insisting the government can defend expatriates:

"The government of Afghanistan is capable of defending peace in the entire country, including Kabul," it said. "The life of not a single foreign national was lost in the last nine years of fighting."

In Washington, President Bush said there was "uncertainty about what follows" the Soviet departure and the embassy was being closed to protect American lives.

When asked when the embassy would be formally closed, Jon D. Glassman, U.S. charge d'affaires, said: "That's not information we are giving out."

The State Department said Thursday the remaining Americans would leave in a few days. Dependents and all but 11 diplomats and security guards already have been evacuated.

A battle for Kabul, which is surrounded by insurgents, is expected after the last Soviet forces withdraw Feb. 15 under a U.N.-mediated agreement. The embassy is in the heart of the capital next to the state radio and across from secret police headquarters, both prime targets for the guerrillas.

A dispatch from Kabul by official Soviet news agency Tass said five rockets fired by "extremists from among the intransigent opposition" hit residential areas of Kabul on Friday, killing a child and damaging several buildings.

Moslem guerrillas have rejected Soviet and government proposals for a political settlement. They began fighting after a communist coup 11 years ago and Soviet soldiers entered Afghanistan in December 1979.

An estimated 115,000 Soviet troopers were here when the withdrawal began May 15 and the last 50,000 are to be gone by Feb. 15.

They leave behind a conscript Afghan army plagued by desertion. Diplomats say the army has been driven to dragging teen-agers from their homes and pressing them into service; the military calls them volunteers.

U.N. officials said Friday in New York that Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar would not accept an invitation to visit Afghanistan before the Soviets are gone. President Najib had asked him to Kabul to explore ways of preventing more bloodshed after the departure.

Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri Yazov flew to Kabul on Friday and met Najib. Kabul Radio said they discussed bilateral cooperation.

The Pakistani government said Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze will visit Pakistan on Feb. 4 for last-ditch talks to prevent further bloodshed in Afghanistan.

In Moscow, Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh met with Ambassador Abdul Sattar of Pakistan, the other principal guerrilla supporter. Refugee camps just inside Pakistan, Afghanistan's eastern neighbor, serve as rebel bases and supply points.

A statement from the Geneva office of Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, U.N. coordinator of relief and rehabilitation, said he was considering an emergency appeal for help because of severe food shortages in Afghanistan.

Insurgents control the Panjshir Valley north of Kabul, through which the Salang Highway runs 250 miles north to the Soviet border. They have increased attacks along the route for southbound food and fuel convoys, and few reach Kabul.

Reports indicate most Soviet units are leaving Kabul well ahead of the deadline to protect the Salang, the Red Army's land route home and the capital's lifeline.

Diplomats in Islamabad, Pakistan, said Thursday they had reports that Soviet artillery demolished villages south of the Salang tunnel and shelled both ends of the tunnel, which cuts through the Hindu Kush mountains 60 miles north of Kabul.

In Friday's dispatch, Tass said Afghan soldiers killed "tens" of insurgents in an operation against Ahmed Shah Masoud, the guerrilla commander who controls the Panjshir.

27 hospitalized Soviet children infected with AIDS virus

MOSCOW (AP) — Nurses using tainted syringes infected 27 children at a hospital with the AIDS virus, the largest single outbreak of the deadly disease in the Soviet Union, a newspaper reported Friday.

In an expose headlined "Diagnosis: Syringe," the labor daily Trud said "criminal negligence" was suspected at the children's hospital in Elista.

Authorities discovered the outbreak in November when a child and a woman blood donor from the hospital were found to have AIDS.

The Soviet Union only recently has admitted to an AIDS problem and started diagnosis, treatment and prevention programs.

Authorities discovered that a son of the woman blood donor had died after treatment in the same hospital as the AIDS-infected child, and began testing other children and mothers there, Trud said. Of 300 people screened, 27 children — most under 2 — and four mothers were found to have AIDS.

The women apparently contracted the virus from their children, through breastfeeding, Trud said. It said the mothers' nipples must have cracked and the infants passed the virus on to them. Such a method of transmission has not been identified previously, according to the newspaper.

Anne Sims, a spokeswoman at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, said AIDS specialists there consider it highly unlikely that infants could give AIDS to their mothers through breastfeeding. The CDC knows of only one case of an infant giving AIDS to its mother, Sims said, but that transmission occurred through blood.

More tests are planned on 1,000 children at the hospital, as well as on patients at other facilities where the children also had been treated, Trud said.

Vadim V. Pokrovsky, head of the AIDS laboratory of the Central Scientific Research Institute of Epidemiology in Moscow, said the number of AIDS cases traced to the Elista hospital could double or triple as tests continue.

"If measures aren't taken to control infection by instruments, the disease could spread," Pokrovsky said.

The infected patients were carrying the disease but had not shown symptoms and none had died, he said.

"An unprecedented situation has been created in the republic in which during two months more than 30 carriers of the virus have been revealed," Pokrovsky said.

The Council of Ministers warned in 1987 that infecting someone with AIDS would be punished as a crime and said anyone in the country could be forced to take an AIDS test. Under a new regulation that takes effect next month, foreigners who want to stay more than three months will have to prove they are AIDS-free.

The newspaper said hospital staff had violated all sanitary rules. Log books that were supposed to contain records of payments for syringes were either missing or blank. Some 14 percent of instruments used last year were not sterilized as required, Trud reported.

Disposable syringes are in short supply in the Soviet Union. Glass syringes are used most frequently after sterilization in boiling water. Trud said the two agencies responsible for producing syringes had made only excuses for the shortage and admitted they were turning to foreign companies for supplies.

Trud lashed out at the Soviet Union for not taking more active measures against AIDS.

"We are still not prepared for a serious battle against it," Trud said.

Instead of combatting the virus, Soviet doctors engage in an "ideological battle" to blame the spread of AIDS on the West, it said. It quoted one official as writing that "the roots of distribution are the American and Western ways of life, irrepressible and prospering homosexuality."

Participants in missile crisis meet

MOSCOW (AP) — Americans and Soviets who led their countries through the Cuban missile crisis met Friday to draw lessons from the 1962 incident in superpower brinkmanship, which President Bush called "just the sort of episode we must avoid in the nuclear age."

The conference in southwest Moscow is the first on the topic to bring together representatives of the United States, Soviet Union and Cuba — including former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara and former Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Each side has its own version of events of what happened in October 1962, when the Soviets deployed nuclear missiles in Cuba, and the United States imposed a quarantine on the island and demanded and obtained the rockets' removal.

At Friday's session, the Cubans complained that the Soviets did not consult them sufficiently during the crisis, a participant said. The session was closed to reporters, and the participant spoke on condition of anonymity.

The participant said they also complained that the United States should have used diplomatic channels to express its demand that the Soviet missiles be withdrawn and to clarify American intentions.

The Soviets and Americans clashed on whether war was imminent.

"The American side cited conversations among themselves about whether they'd live to see days in the following week to back their contention that the threat of war was real," said the source. "On the Soviet side, Gromyko said the Soviets never at any time acted under the belief that war was a real possibility."

Georgy A. Arbatov, head of the U.S.A.-Canada Institute, a Kremlin think tank, told the conference Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev erred in shipping nuclear missiles to Cuba because he hadn't anticipated the U.S. reaction and humiliated his country, the participant said.

Other Soviet officials at the session, however, praised Khrushchev as a "great statesman" who succeeded in getting the Americans to pledge not to invade Cuba.

The discussions, organized by Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government, are closed to reporters, but organizers said one session this afternoon might be open.

Seated around an oval table topped with blue felt, McNamara and other U.S. participants — including McGeorge Bundy, Theodore Sorenson and Pierre Salinger — are exchanging thoughts with Soviets including Gromyko, Arbatov and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the former Soviet ambassador to Washington.

At a conference sponsored by the Kennedy school in 1987, Americans and Soviets met to review the crisis, but the meeting in Moscow is the first to include Cuban representatives, led by Jorge Risquet, a member of his Communist Party's ruling Politburo.

Bush, in a message read during at the ceremony by Jack Matlock, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow, called the session the "latest example of the new openness" under President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The president said international security would be helped by closer study of the Cuban missile crisis.

"This can only improve our mutual understanding of just the sort of episode we must avoid in the nuclear age," Bush said.

In his own message of greetings, Gorbachev called on participants to "think over and draw lessons from this event that brought the world to the brink of the nuclear precipice."

He said a conflict was prevented because of the "responsible approach and good sense" shown by the leaders of the time, President Kennedy, Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Pipeline blown up

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Leftist rebels blew up part of Colombia's biggest oil pipeline and forced it to close, the state oil company Ecopetrol said Friday.

It was the first time the pipeline, in northwestern Colombia, was attacked this year. Rebels have blown up parts of the pipeline 67 times since it was built three years ago.

The pipeline, which was attacked Wednesday, will be shut through today, the company said.

The pipeline takes oil 500 miles from the Canon Limon field along the Venezuela border to the Caribbean port of Covenas. It pumps about 220,000 barrels a day.

Steps To Planting Beautiful Houseplants

Each houseplant has individual needs as to water, light, temperature and humidity.
1. First select healthy plants.
2. Choose containers that fit the plants and enhance their location.
Containers with drainage holes are best and don't forget a drip saucer.
3. A porous top-quality potting mix is the most important ingredient for healthy growth.
4. Check your houseplants regularly for over/underwatering, brown or dying leaves and signs of pests.
5. Fertilize regularly with a water soluble plant food.

Graf wins 5th Slam event

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Steffi Graf, overcoming her toughest test of the tournament, beat fifth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-4 at the Australian Open Saturday to capture her fifth straight Grand Slam title.

Sukova jumped to a 4-3 lead in the opening set before Graf took control with her fierce forehand and won the next seven games. Sukova mounted another challenge in the second set, saving two match points to close within 4-5, but Graf held serve on a forehand pass to win the match.

The 71-minute contest, played in 100-degree heat at the National Tennis Center, was Graf's longest of the tournament. The 19-year-old West German also lost more games than in any of her previous matches during the two-week event.

Graf is only the fourth woman to win five consecutive Grand Slam titles. Martina Navratilova, Margaret Court and Maureen Connolly each won six Grand Slam events in a row.

Graf, playing in her eighth consecutive Grand Slam final, did not drop a set in the tournament for the second straight year. The world's top-ranked player has lost only two sets in Grand Slam competition since beginning her five-title string at last year's Australian Open.

Graf earned $135,000 for winning the championship. Sukova, who was also runner-up at the 1984 Australian Open, received $67,500.

It was Graf's sixth Grand Slam title overall. She also won the 1987 French Open.

On Friday, Ivan Lendl and Miloslav Mecir conquered a sizzling sun and underdog opponents to set up an all-Czech men's final.

Lendl outdueled 11th-seeded Thomas Muster of Austria 6-2, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5 in a baseline battle, while Mecir dismantled unseeded Swede Jan Gunnarsson 7-5, 6-2, 6-2 with quickness and cunning groundstrokes.

The victories set up a rematch of the 1986 U.S. Open final, which Lendl won in straight sets. Lendl has won three U.S. Opens and three French Opens, but still is seeking his first Australian Open title.

"Winning this tournament is important to me," said Lendl, who will regain the No. 1 ranking if he wins Sunday's match. "If someone wants to beat me, he's going to have to take it. I'm not going to give it away."

Lendl has a 4-1 record against Mecir, a gold medalist at the Seoul Olympics.

"Ivan is very tough," Mecir said. "He makes you fight for every point. If you give up, he'll roll over you."

Lendl and Muster engaged in long, strength-sapping rallies despite temperatures in the high 90s.

O'Meara's 68 sets pace in Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Mark O'Meara coaxed a 68—134 out of Spyglass Hill Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Dave Stockton after the second round of the $1 million Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Stockton, 47, a two-time PGA champion but a non-winner for 13 years, again used his putting wizardry in a round of 70—135 at Cypress Point.

Tom Kite moved into third at 70—137 at Spyglass Hill, generally considered to be the most difficult of the three courses used for the first three rounds of this unique event.

Jack Nicklaus went him one better with a 69—138 at Spyglass. He now plays his next two rounds at Pebble Beach, where he won twice when this tournament was known as the Bing Crosby Pro-Am, and also collected a U.S. Open and U.S. Amateur title.

Daniel in front

BOCA RATON, Fla. — Beth Daniel shot 4-under-par 68—137 Friday to open a two-stroke advantage over Chris Johnson midway through the LPGA Oldsmobile Classic.

Johnson, coming off a disappointing season in which she won only $46,219, shot a 69—139. Five others trailed Daniel by three strokes, including defending champion Nancy Lopez and first-round leader Dot Germain.

Winderlich leads

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas — Steve Wunderlich of St. Louis vaulted from ninth place into the fifth-round lead Friday in the PBA $150,000 Quaker State Open.

Wunderlich, whose only PBA title came in 1985, amassed 7,791 pins for 34 games, inluding 30 bonus pins for each match-game win.

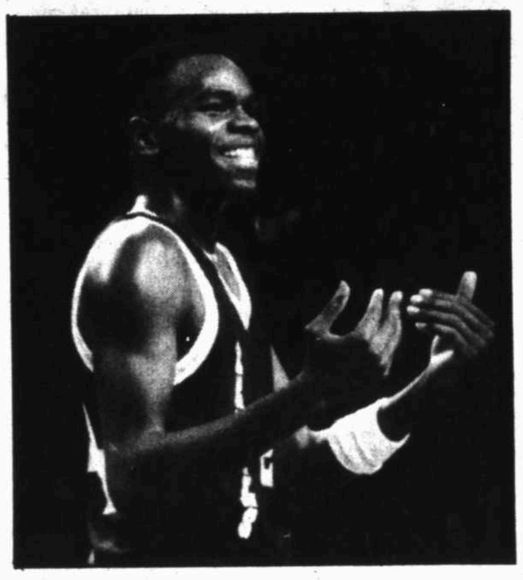

Don Genalo of Perrysburg, Ohio, the third- and fourth-round leader here, slipped to second place with a pinfall of 7,673. Genalo is trying for his seventh career title and first since 1986.

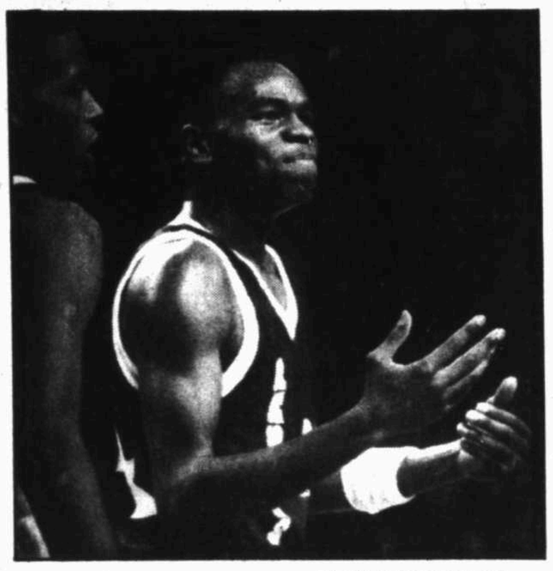

Trades taboo

EDMONTON, Alberta — Peter Pocklington says he never will sell another hockey player. "Absolutely not, no chance," the owner of the Edmonton Oilers said Thursday in reacting to published reports an NHL trade was in the works that would send goalie Grant Fuhr to the Los Angeles Kings for $5 million.

"I never say never about anything, but Wayne Gretzky was once in a lifetime."

Pocklington said he doubts Edmonton fans will ever forgive him for selling Gretzky.

Midland Lee's Jared Edwards, with a touch of I- dare-you, encourages the already screaming Midland Bulldog fans to make some noise as MHS staged a second-half scoring spurt.

Reb girls knock off Bulldogs

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

Midland High coach Jane Young couldn't explain it. Midland Lee's Shirley Stephenson only offered something about how the earth's gravitational pull might have accounted for how strange Friday night's Lady Rebels-Lady Bulldogs game was.

Lee won, 55-32, and en route, the MHS Lady 'Dogs suffered some of their worst luck of the season.

Example No. 1: At the end of the first quarter, Lee held a slim 7-4 lead. Midland High didn't get on the scoreboard until just over 90 seconds remained in the quarter. When the Lady Rebels were held to just seven first-quarter points because of poor shooting, Midland High needed to capitalize on the Rebs' errant ways. But they didn't.

Example No. 2: In the third quarter, Midland High was 0-for-15 from the field. The ball simply fell the wrong way. Many of the Bulldog shooting attempts found iron, but the ball always seemed to fall out instead of in. Example 2A: Tina O'Neal, the usually reliable newcomer up from the junior varsity, was 0-for-7 from the field. From three-point range, normally her strong area, she was 0-for-4. In addition, MHS's Robin Landreth finished 0-for-11.

Example No. 3: At the end of the third quarter, the Lady Bulldogs had compiled only 16 points and at one point in the third, MHS had more total turnovers than total points.

TOUGH LUCK for a group of girls that has had it's share this season.

Perhaps the strangest factor of this game was how sour Midland High's shooting and overall performance went following Tuesday's close loss to Abilene High. Last week against the Lady Eagles, MHS hit 60 percent of its field goals. Friday night against Lee, that figure fell to 24 percent.

The Lady Bulldogs literally looked like a different team against the Rebels than the one which earned a moral victory against Abilene High.

"Nothing," Young said, "went right for us. We just went at a snail's pace. I know it's a cop out, but we haven't played well at Chap Center all year. I don't know, maybe it's something psychological.

"Lee played well. But I think we held Monica (Ramirez) pretty well."

LEE did play well for most of the game.

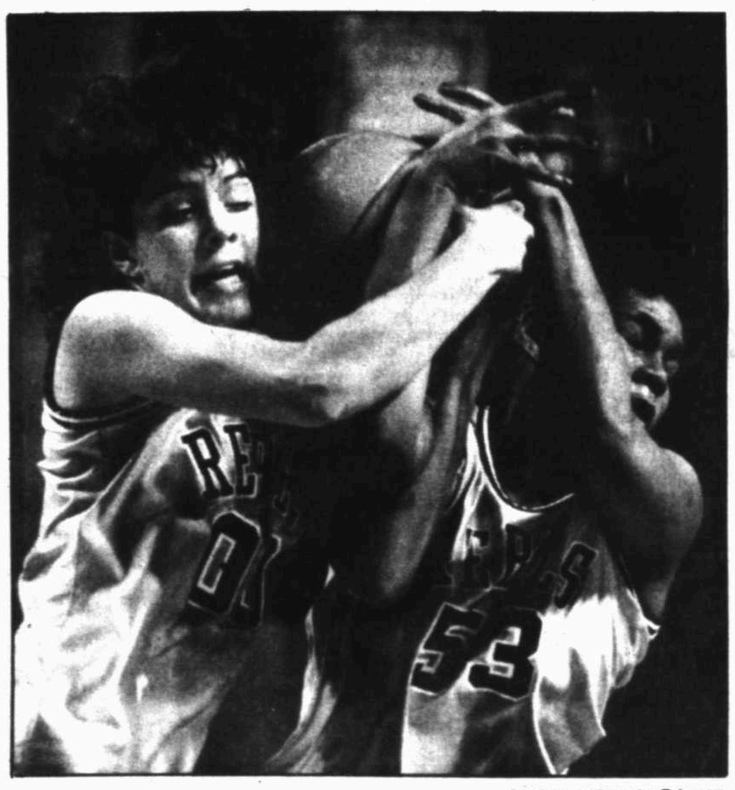

At first quarter's end, Ramirez was held scoreless, something that, in itself, is rare. Ramirez finished with 16 but had only six by the end of the first half.

As well as the Lady Rebels came on in the second and fourth quarters, they weren't immune to problems either. Lee was 3-for-12 from the field in the first quarter, and just 5-for-18 in the third.

"The kids were shooting real well," Stephenson said of the Lady Rebs. "I was really concerned going into the game. I didn't know if we'd be down after last Tuesday's loss."

Midland Lee hit 40 percent of its field goals. Fouls were at a minimum, both teams combining for just 15 trips to the stripe (MHS 7-for-10, Lee 1-for-5).

Bulldogs nip Rebs, 65-61

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

If there was ever a team that looked like it was dead in the water and headed no where, it was the Midland High Bulldogs at Chaparral Center Friday night.

Cross town rival Midland Lee held a 36-22, 14-point, lead with 34 seconds left in the first half and was hitting at a clip of a skeet shooter from the field.

But the Bulldogs pulled off a stirring comeback in the second half to win 65-61 with a shooting turnaround that bounced MHS back into the District 4-5A basketball playoff hunt.

It didn't look possible with the team these Bulldogs had on the floor in the first half. Lee was playing inspired basketball, hitting 15 of 24 shots from the field and beating MHS in nearly all phases of the game. On the other hand, MHS was hitting a meager 11 of 37, despite 15 points from Greg Lewis in the ill-fated first half. If it hadn't been for Lewis' first half effort, the Bulldogs could never have won this one. He ended the night with 26 points.

"Lee stuck that zone of ours in our ear in the first half," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "And they were just hitting everything they threw up. I told our kids, if we were going to win this one, it would have to be with defense and rebounding. We junked that zone.

"I think we were in our mermaid defense in the first half. You know the one — half man and half woman, I mean, half zone."

LEE GOT 12 points from Torval Crisp in the first half, hitting five-of-five shots. But he ended the game with only four second half points. Jared Edwards was the most consistent Rebel, hitting 18 points for the night, 10 in the second half.

"We had a tremendous first half, but I knew we couldn't keep that pace up," said Lee coach Paul Stueckler. "But I was hoping we wouldn't go as cold as we did in the third period.

"The third quarter was the difference in the game and Midland High had a lot to do with that. They stepped up the heat with their press and got some big turnovers. The fourth quarter was just a matter of two teams playing well and Midland High came out on top."

Lee hit only two of 11 shots in the third period while MHS found the range with 9-of-13. MHS outscored Lee 20-7 in the period, erasing Lee's big 14-point cushion with Bart Saddler, who socred 15 points on the night, hitting for eight and Lewis for seven more.

IN THE fourth period, the two teams fought through three ties and seven lead changes before Tracey Bascus hit a basket with 50 seconds left to give the Bulldogs a 64-61 lead.

Lee's Edwards, who had 11 points, missed a three-point shot with 33 seconds left and Bascus hit a free throw for the final margin with 30 seconds left.

"We were down by a lot in the first half, but we got pumped up. We just came in cold. When we play good defense, it helps us get sparked up and that's what happened in the second half," said Saddler.

Lewis was hitting for points in the first half, but was getting little help from his teammates.

"It can get a little frustrating when you're hitting, but the team is losing," noted Lewis. "But these guys usually come through and they did again tonight."

MHS is now 4-3 in league play and only ½-game behind San Angelo in the battle for second place and a playoff berth. Lee is 2-5, which isn't out of the race, but certainly the Rebels have reached the stage where they must win all five of their remaining league outings for a chance.

"This was a disturbing day for both Paul and I," said Stephenson. "We had an official cancel out on us because of a death in the family and I called from El Paso to Austin to try and find a replacement.

"We couldn't find anyone and decided to take Don Mason, who is an assistant principal at Lee. I never had any qualms about that, but I was afraid that our fans might take exception, especially if we lose the game. But I want it known that Don did a tremendous job and I would say that even if we had lost. He was under a lot of pressure, too."

LEE will host Odessa High at Chaparral Center Tuesday while MHS travels to Odessa Permian.

In junior varsity action, MHS nipped Lee 55-53 with Keith Gilbreath 17, Michael Wright 16 and Albert Ray 10 leading the way. Brian Rippee had 22 for Lee. In sophomore action, MHS took a 59-44 win with Earl McDonald leading all scorers with 18 points.

Gilliam's cocaine likely baking soda

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The white powder seized when former New Orleans Saints quarterback Joe Gilliam was arrested after a chase last week was not cocaine, police say. The powder probably was baking soda, police said laboratory tests indicated.

Gilliam, 38, was arrested Jan. 20 and booked for possession of cocaine and resisting arrest.

Reggie's Chaps have work cut out for them

Battles

Reggie Franklin is a Henry Armstrong in basketball clothing.

Whereas, the Hall of Fame boxer of yore was Perpetual Motion, the Human Windmill, the guy who never let up, Reggie is the Perennial Optimist, the guy who figures that as long as there is one tick left on the clock, there's a chance.

Some, well, maybe most, worry because things aren't better. Franklin finds a silver lining in the fact that things could be worse.

His Midland College basketball team is in fourth place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference race.

Sure, someone could sneak up and knocked MC out of fourth place and a spot in the Region V tournament at the season's end. But Franklin doesn't put anything beyond his Chaps.

"Hey, if we get some breaks, we can still beat out South Plains College and Odessa College and win it all."

MAYBE it shouldn't happen, but in Reggie's world, it could happen.

The rattle in the bushes is realism rearing its ugly head Monday night. For something like that to happen, it all starts with the Hawks in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Monday.

Stark reality also reveals that Howard not only owns a victory over the Chaps, but achieved it on MC's home floor.

"Beat a contender on its home floor," reasons Howard Coach Steve Green, "and it's like two victories."

So the Chaps have their work cut out for them because by Green's reasoning, MC has suffered six conference losses at home, since SPC and OC also inflicted defeats on the Chaps.

It's a boulder strewn uphill struggle for MC, but the Chaps can get two of those victories back Monday by upsetting the Hawks in Big Spring.

EQUALLY important, it would enable Midland to pull into a third place tie with the Hawks.

On the brighter side, there is no burgeoning threat from below on fourth place. New Mexico Junior College, the most obvious candidate, simply hasn't materialized. The crushing blow, perhaps, was last week's overtime loss to NMMI at Hobbs.

Yet Thursday's win over Western Texas College also indicated there is no reason to rejoice over the absence of a fast-closing pursuer.

The Chaps for a while in the first 10 minutes of the second half looked like a team that could lose...to the WJCAC's last place team.

The Chaps dissipated an 18-point first half lead and trailed 57-56 in the second half.

What disturbed Franklin was that WTC was pressing. "And that's what we want, an opponent to do, press us so we can score the easy basket."

The Chaps capitalized on their opportunities in the final 10 minutes to win going away, by 20 points.

"I told them after the game, We want a good, solid 40 minutes of play," Franklin related, "And not have those lulls," that let a team make up an 18-point deficiency. That's the kind of effort it will take if OC and SPC are to remain in sight.

Falcons' Settle eager for 'first' Pro Bowl

By KEN PETERS

HONOLULU (AP) — John Settle, who will be making his first appearance in the Pro Bowl Sunday, is looking forward to seeing how he stacks up against the NFL's best.

"It's a great opportunity," the second-year running back for the Atlanta Falcons said. "You get a chance to test your skills against the best linebackers, cornerbacks and defensive backs in the league.

"As I flew in here, I was thinking about all the players who are here and wondering whether I should even be here."

Rookie Tim Brown, the wide receiver-return specialist for the Los Angeles Raiders, is similarly awed by his first brush with the NFL all-star game.

"I have to pinch myself to see if I'm dreaming," Brown said. "It's going to be hard for me to top this year."

Settle, a member of the NFC team, and Brown, a member of the AFC team, are among 37 first-timers in the Pro Bowl.

At the other end of the spectrum on the 42-man AFC and NFC rosters, New York Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor is making his eighth Pro Bowl appearance.

Other Pro Bowl veterans include offensive tackle Anthony Munoz of Cincinnati and free safety Ronnie Lott of San Francisco, both making their seventh trip to the game, and Chicago linebacker Mike Singletary and Kansas City free safety Deron Cherry, in their sixth Pro Bowl.

The game, which has become established in Hawaii, and the week leading up to it appear to be as much fun for the players as it is work.

Practices during the week are limited to a couple of hours in the morning, allowing the players and their families time for the beach or golf in the afternoon.

"It's a great thing," said Buffalo's Marv Levy, coach of the AFC team. "The players all seem to enjoy it and I know their families do."

"It's a good week," San Francisco nose tackle Michael Carter said. "It's nice to get to spend some time with the people you play against every Sunday, but don't have a chance to talk with.

"Like this guy," Carter said, jabbing at offensive tackle Jackie Slater of the Los Angeles Rams.

"The Rams are already gearing up for us next year."

Kickoff time for the Pro Bowl, being played for the 10th consecutive year in Aloha Stadium, is 7 p.m.

Bice hits 140 as Ponies wins

From Staff Reports

Gym Bice scored 40 points to lead the Andrews Mustangs past the Sweetwater Mustangs, 83-65, in District 4-4A hoop action Friday.

Andrews, currently No. 7 in 4A ball, moved it's record to 23-3 and 7-1.

David Pipes had 17 and Damon Clay added 12 for Andrews, the only other 'Stangs in double figures.

Andrews held only a 41-36 lead at halftime, but pulled away in the third quarter, outscoring Sweetwater 23-13.

Andrews travels to Fort Stockton Tuesday.

Ranger boys win, but girls tumble

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

COAHOMA — It's a little early in the season for anticlimatic basketball games, but that's all the Greenwood boys and girls have left — for the next couple of weeks anyway.

The Rangers and Rangerettes have already clinched bi-district playoff spots in District 7-3A by virtue of winning the first-half crowns in their respective divisions.

In games that meant nothing toward Greenwood's playoff chances, the east Midland County cagers split a pair of games with Coahoma here Friday. The Greenwood girls lost 49-42 for their first district loss, while the Ranger boys remained undefeated in league play with a 65-45 romp.

Boys

The Rangers had little trouble with a ragtag band of Bulldogs after a shaky first quarter.

Coahoma fought hard in the first quarter, trailing only 15-11, but putrid guard play soon took its toll on the hosts. While Coahoma guards Ronnie Ruiz and David Molina were shooting two-for-13 from three-point range on the game, Greenwood's Randy Donnell paced a 12-0 Ranger run in the second quarter that broke the game open.

Donnell scored six points and scrambled for every loose ball in sight, while the Rangers held Coahoma scoreless for more than four straight minutes.

"Once we started playing our game, thing started working out for us," Greenwood coach Robert Chaney said.

The Rangers led by 14 points at halftime, and Coahoma could get no closer than nine points after the break. Kane Harris led Greenwood with 17 points, including three-of-five from three-point range.

Terry Morgan added 14 for the Rangers, 14-10 overall, while Donnell had 13 and Tom Marvin 11. Also, reserve Randy Howard made nine-of-11 free throws in the fourth quarter to help the Rangers maintain their margin.

Coahoma, which shot less than 30 percent from the field, had no players in double figures.

The Rangers host Colorado City Tuesday.

Girls

Coahoma kept Greenwood star Denisa McMullan under wraps while building a 17-4 first-quarter lead and a 21-8 halftime bulge. McMullan, who blitzed Odessa High for 37 points earlier in the week, scored only two points in the first half before finishing with 13.

The Bulldogettes scored 13 unanswered points in the first quarter, including six by post Kelly Williams, to break open the game. Greenwood outscored the hostesses 38-32 for the last three quarters, but it wasn't enough.

"Coahoma did a great job of getting after us," Greenwood coach Terry Crocker said. "They got the ball where they wanted it, while we took one pass and shot it."

While Coahoma shot 56 percent from the floor, Greenwood couldn't approach the 50 percent barrier. Free throws weren't a factor for either team, since Coahoma didn't once go to the line and Greenwood was only three-of-six. The Rangerettes didn't break into a one-and-one situation until only three seconds were left in the game.

Shelly Mackey scored 10 of her 13 points in the fourth quarter for Greenwood on several medium-range set shots.

The Greenwood girls host Colorado City Tuesday.

Cavaliers hang on to beat Pistons, 80-79

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Mark Price scored 22 points as the Cleveland Cavaliers hung on for a 80-79 victory over the Detroit Pistons Friday in a game that saw Brad Daugherty and Bill Laimbeer ejected for fighting.

NBA

Isiah Thomas scored 22 points, 16 in the second half, and Vinnie Johnson had seven of his 22 as Detroit dominated more than seven minutes of the fourth quarter to erase a 17-point Cleveland lead.

A 14-0 run tied it 73-73 with 3:56 left when Thomas grabbed an offensive rebound and scored. His five straight points at the end of the third quarter started Detroit's comeback.

Price hit a pair of free throws with 51 seconds left to put the Cavaliers ahead 80-77. Thomas scored Detroit's last five points and missed a desperation shot at the buzzer as Cleveland, with the NBA's best record, won its second straight from last year's Eastern Conference champions.

Daugherty and Laimbeer were thrown out with 9:42 left in the third quarter after they exchanged blows under the Cleveland basket.

Mavericks 126, Spurs 82

DALLAS — Mark Aguirre scored nine of his 35 points during a 14-4 spurt to open the third quarter to lead Dallas.

The Mavericks used that run to stretch an 11-point halftime lead to 66-45 with 8:29 left in the third period, and they went on to their most one-sided victory of the season. It equalled the second-biggest win in franchise history.

Dallas carried a 90-69 edge into the fourth quarter behind Aguirre's 18 third-period points, giving the Mavericks their second straight victory after dropping nine of their previous 11.

San Antonio, who got 16 points each from Calvin Natt and Frank Brickowski, lost its ninth game in the last 10 starts.

76ers 113, Warriors 112

PHILADELPHIA — Hersey Hawkins' 3-point field goal with five seconds left lifted Philadelphia over Golden State.

Golden State's Mitch Richmond, who scored 24 points, hit a 14-footer with 14 seconds left to give the Warriors a 112-110 lead. But Hawkins, who had 21 points, followed with his game-winning 3-point shot.

Celtics 128, Kings 116

BOSTON — Robert Parish scored 26 points, Reggie Lewis added 24 and the Boston Celtics had 74 points in the second half to come from behind.

Scratchpad

CARTER GIVES UP— Excitement over a No. 1 draft pick and a buyer's market have convinced Mavericks owner Donald Carter that the Cowboys won't be sold to him or anyone else this year. "There's some disappointment, but I can understand their thinking. Say I've got a building for sale. I want it sold badly, but if you come and offer a fair price for it, I've got to turn you down. I've got to wait till the market improves."

SHOOTINGS, NOW RAPE— University of Oklahoma officials are investigating a complaint of sexual assualt, reportedly involving football players at an athletic dorm Saturday. KTVY reported sources told them a woman who is not a university student reportedly told campus police she was raped on the third floor of Bud Wilkinson House, where most of the football players live.

PREP INJURIES— Injuries that keep high school football players off the field at least three weeks have increased and experts say the long recuperation may be tied to conservative care. Prep football injuries declined between 1986 and 1988, but "major" injuries that sidelined players for 21 days or more increased 21 percent, according to a study.

"Trainers at schools may be keeping kids out longer to give them more time to heal," said John Powell, a research associate in orthopedic surgery at the University of Iowa, who conducted the study.

Jets' Carson new coach of Browns

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bud Carson remembers all too well how Bernie Kosar tore apart his defense in the closing minutes of a 1986 playoff game.

"I think the game where he beat us in two overtimes was the greatest exhibition by a quarterback I've ever seen," Carson said Friday after he was named head coach of the Cleveland Browns, replacing Marty Schottenheimer.

Carson has been the New York Jets' defensive coordinator since 1985, and he was on the sidelines of that 1986 game, when Kosar and the Browns overcame a 20-10 deficit with 4:14 to play in regulation and won 23-20 in double overtime. Kosar completed 33 of 64 passes for 489 yards.

"A couple of the precision throws he made were unbelievable," Carson said. "He's a winner."

Carson, however, admits that his own contributions to the Browns' offense will be limited, because owner Art Modell has insisted that he accept former quarterback coach Marc Trestman as his offensive coordinator.

Schottenheimer's refusal to hire an offensive coordinator or shake up his coaching staff after a 10-6 season led to his decision to leave the team Dec. 27. He was hired as head coach in Kansas City on Tuesday.

Modell also said Carson will have little or no input into the Browns' draft.

Carson, 57, said he had no objections to the strings attached to the job, his first head coaching position in the NFL.

"I think this is a very choice job," he said. "There aren't many people lucky enough to step into a situation like this.

"I'm not going in with all my hands tied behind me. Art has hired an offensive coordinator I can live with. My role will be to set the philosophy. And I'm going to stay very close to the defense. I'm not going to throw away all the things I've learned."

Carson is best known as the designer of the Pittsburgh "Steel Curtain" defense in the 1970s. Carson was with the Steelers for two Super Bowl victories, and he was defensive coordinator of the Los Angeles Rams' team that lost to the Steelers in the 1979 Super Bowl.

He has also been a defensive coordinator in Baltimore and Kansas City.

The Browns did not disclose terms of his contract, though it reportedly ranges from $300,000 to $400,000 over the three years, not including performance bonuses.

Carson said he would hire a defensive coordinator. The Browns plan to interview former Pittsburgh defensive coordinator Tony Dungy for that job next week.

Carson was one of five defensive coordinators who received serious consideration for Cleveland head coaching job. Also interviewed were Fritz Shurmur of the Los Angeles Rams, Vince Tobin of the Chicago Bears and Floyd Peters of the Minnesota Vikings, while San Francisco defensive coordinator George Seifert was on his way to Cleveland for an interview before being called back and hired as the 49ers' head coach on Thursday.

Ags find no Hush money

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — Texas A&M officials said Friday an investigation into allegations former football coach Jackie Sherrill made illegal payments confirmed Sherrill gave a former player money, but evidence did not support "hush money" allegations made by the player.

The internal investigation is finished and the results have been turned over to the NCAA, Texas A&M President William H. Mobley said.

Mobley expressed optimism about the final outcome of the investigation, which did not uncover any evidence that "hush money" was paid to former player George Smith.

Shortly after he made the allegations last year, Smith recanted them.

"Although the matter is now strictly in the hands of NCAA officials, on the basis of our findings and the actions we have taken to date, we do not anticipate that the NCAA will feel a need to reopen its investigation, nor do we expect further sanctions," Mobley said.

The university's investigation confirmed that Sherrill — who resigned late last year in the wake of the allegations — provided money to Smith after the player had completed his athletic eligibility and departed from the university, officials said.

Robert Smith said the investigation confirmed that five overnight letters were sent to George Smith, starting in November of 1986 and ending in September of 1988.

NC State orders cage probe

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A four-member panel has been appointed by the president of the University of North Carolina system to conduct an independent inquiry into allegations of wrongdoing in the North Carolina State basketball program, it was announced Friday.

UNC System president C.D. Spangler Jr., in a prepared statement issued late Friday afternoon, said because statements regarding the charges of improprieties have been repeated across the country, the integrity of N.C. State "is being called into question."

"No end is now in sight," Spangler said, adding that he had had further talks with Robert "Roddy" Jones, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors as well as N.C. State Chancellor Bruce Poulton.

"We are all agreed that the circumstances call for immediate action," Spangler said.

NAMED to the panel were Phil Carlton, a former associate justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court; Dr. D.W. Colvard, former chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte; William Klopman, former chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Burlington Industries; and Samuel Poole, vice chairman of the UNC Board of Governors and chairman of the board's special committee on intercollegiate athletics.

Poole will chair the commission.

"Chairman Jones and I regret the necessity for taking this course of action," Spangler said. "We are convinced, however, that it is the right thing to do for North Carolina State University."

The investigation stems from the publication of allegations appearing on the dust jacket of the forthcoming book, "Personal Fouls." The book focuses on the 1986-87 N.C. State basketball team.

According to the charges on the cover, Coach Jim Valvano funneled money from the Wolfpack Club to his players, results of positive drug tests were kept secret and one player "deliberately lost" an NCAA tournament game because a victory would have subjected him to a drug test which might have hampered a future NBA career.

THE ALLEGATIONS were published three weeks ago by The News and Observer of Raleigh. Poulton called for an NCAA investigation and announced two weeks ago that he would conduct an internal probe.

"For all this publicity, no charge has thus far been sustained," Spangler said in his statement.

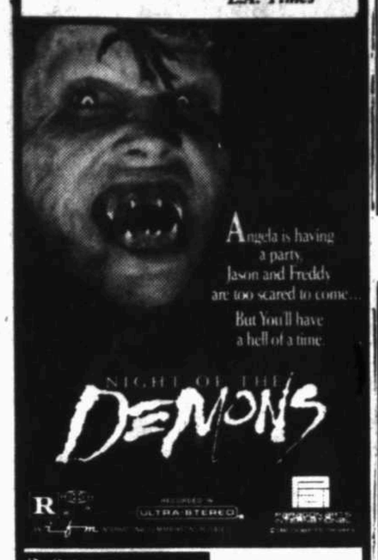

He said there has been confirmation of one instance in which a member of the basketball team was found to have used an illegal drug, "but that incident was handled strictly in accordance with the established institutional policy."

A former N.C. State dean also charged that a grade was changed for a basketball player and that Poulton was aware of the change and did nothing about it.

"An investigation ... has found to date nothing more than an instance in which a temporary grade of "incomplete" was properly changed to a permanent grade through the normal academic procedures," Spangler said.

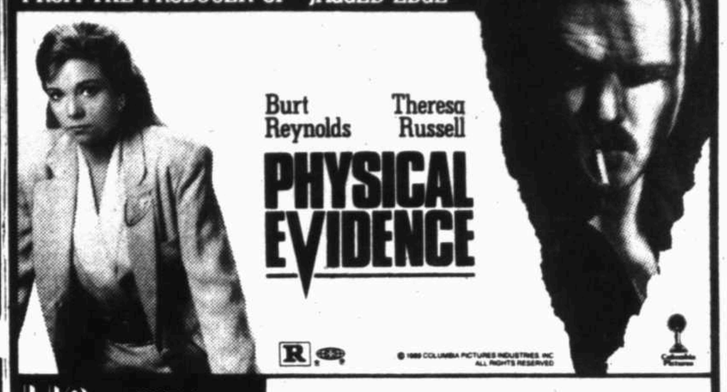

Spangler said he and Jones wanted to make clear their support for Poulton, and that the chancellor has welcomed the appointment of the commission in order to protect the integrity of N.C. State.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Travel and better communications will lead to great success. Your social life sparkles! A reluctance to make commitments can complicate both business and romantic partnerships. The financial outlook is brighter than you realize. Put your brilliant ideas where others can see them and you will gain new power and wealth. Procrastination is all that stands between you and a solid, lasting alliance. Make up your mind to take the plunge!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: President William McKinley, revolutionary Thomas Paine, TV host Oprah Winfrey, actor Tom Selleck, playwright Paddy Chayefsky, comedian W.C. Fields, actor John Forsythe, actress Ann Jillian, feminist Germaine Greer, actor Victor Mature.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Today is a time for energy and cheer. You will give the lion's share of your attention to your family. Help a friend or relative who is confined to a nursing home or hospital.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Morning may bring several challenges. Tackle any difficulties with patience and fortitude. Write those letters you owe. Think twice before you act today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Let sentiment be the order of the day. You can make your loved ones very happy with a special greeting or gift. Give each child some quality time. A romance will culminate in marriage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An aimless mood may seize you today. You cannot decide which direction to try next. Return to an earlier interest or hobby. Diplomacy helps bridge a generation gap.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A good day to change your residence or start a new relationship. Rout out any self-doubts. Important decisions and changes lie just ahead. Make a point of looking your best tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You come to a wise decision about your personal life. Do not let an older person's attitude weigh too heavily. You will be praised by those who really count. Enjoy a happy romance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go over your bills, writing down the date when you can pay each one in full. Exciting new trends are making themselves felt. Your social life brings a dividend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may feel frustrated by your inability to help someone who has emotional problems. Too much amateur interference or advice could make things worse. Avoid asking too many probing personal questions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be optimistic and work ahead. Your energy impresses someone who can help. Competition could show up keenly in the afternoon. A sense of humor serves you well in ticklish situations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A financial suggestion could be highly dubious. Be on guard! Do not commit yourself to any program that might cost you. A platonic relationship intensifies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A happy day lies ahead even if a young person should cause some annoyance. Do not make a mountain out of a molehill. Be cautious with your cash if you go out tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone new may arouse your envy. Be careful not to jump to false conclusions. Be wise and kind, giving others the benefit of the doubt.

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Italian porn star denied visa to perform in San Francisco

ROME (AP) — Ilona Staller, Italy's porn star parliamentarian known as Cicciolina, bared her breasts in front of the U.S. Consulate on Friday after failing to obtain a visa to perform in San Francisco.

As photographers snapped away on Via Veneto, the 37-year-old Ms. Staller opened her coat and blouse and held up a sign saying, in Italian, "Why is the United States afraid of Cicciolina's breasts?"

"This isn't the end. I am not giving up," said Ms. Staller, who has been invited to perform in the O'Farrell Theater in San Francisco. The Hungarian-born Ms. Staller has been trying for weeks to obtain a U.S. visa.

Embassy spokesman Mark Dillen said her application was under review. He declined to give any reason for the delay, but it is believed to stem from her failure to list her arrests on the application.

She has been arrested on obscenity charges several times, and on Wednesday was convicted of public obscenity.

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Dirty dancing got rhythm and blues singer Bobby Brown in trouble with the police but didn't stop the show.

Brown, arrested during a performance Wednesday for violating Columbus' anti-lewdness ordinance, paid a $652 fine and returned to finish his show.

"He brought a woman up from the audience and was dancing around her, then got right up to her" and moved in a simulation of sexual intercourse, said police Maj. John Wood.

When Brown left the stage, Sgt. Bobby Horne, head of security at the Municipal Auditorium, arrested him.

The city ordinance prohibits performers at an event attended by people under age 18 to show nudity or sexual pictures or models or to use "four-letter sexual words."

Brown was booked at the jail and was back on stage about an hour later, Wood said.

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — John Donaldson and Elena Akhmilovskaya, the American and Soviet chess players who eloped in November, met across a huge playing board at a shopping center exhibition match, and played to a draw.

For their marriage, that might have been best, Donaldson admitted after the match Thursday night. "It's too dangerous," he said. "I felt it in my heart. Maybe married couples shouldn't play against one another."

They played their first game against one another Thursday on an 8-foot chessboard. During the game, the couple smiled repeatedly at one another.

"That was because we both thought we were winning," Donaldson said.

Donaldson, ranked 40th in the world, and Ms. Akhmilovskaya, ranked fourth among women chess players, eloped to Germany from a tournament in Greece.

SEATTLE (AP) — Former world chess champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union refused to talk about the possibility of taking away the world title from countryman Garry Kasparov.

Instead, the 37-year-old Karpov wanted to focus Thursday only on 25-year-old Johann Hjartason of Iceland, his opponent in a World Chess Federation quarterfinal match that starts tonight.

"This is a very interesting problem and a very interesting question. But I think this is the wrong time to discuss it. I have to play this match and I only want to talk about this match," Karpov said when asked about his chances of dethroning Kasparov.

Kasparov won the world championship from Karpov in 1985 and retained his title against Karpov in 1987 when their 24-game match ended in a 12-12 tie.

DOTHAN, Ala. (AP) — Randy Owen, Teddy Gentry, Jeff Cook and Mark Herndon showed up in court, but the members of the country music group Alabama did not wait around to hear the verdict in their favor in a breach-of-contract case.

A jury ruled Thursday the group did not break a video contract, but it found Alabama's booking firm, Dale Morris and Associates, liable for $3,000 to Dare Productions.

Dare Productions of Dothan filed the $12 million suit in 1982, charging the group and its Nashville booking firm with breaching a contract allowing the production company to tape a 1981 concert and market the video.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson, the androgynous whirling dervish of pop music, is packing away his traveling clothes and parking the tour bus.

The reclusive creator of the moonwalk has said through surrogates that his 16-month international "Bad" tour, which wound up Friday night with a sold-out show at he Sports Arena, will be his last.

The 30-year-old Jackson, celebrated as widely for his eccentricities as for his stunningly original songs, vocals and choreography, intends to keep recording and is considering film roles.

"I'm not saying he's not going to perform live again, but I don't think we'll ever go out on tour like this," said Jackson's manager, Frank Dileo.

Jackson, who hasn't granted an interview since 1984, is said to be interested in movies because of the transience of live performance.

"He wants a medium that is more permanent," said concert spokeswoman Maureen O'Connor. "You do a show and after you do it, it's over."

Friday night's concert comes exactly five years after the singer's hair caught fire while he made a Pepsi commercial at the nearby Shrine Auditorium. The accident, caused by an errant smoke bomb, caused scalp burns.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 41-year-old former legal secretary who calls herself Billie Jean and claims she is married to Michael Jackson has been convicted of trespassing at the pop superstar's mansion.

Lavon A. Muhammad, who also says Jackson fathered her 6-year-old twins, was found guilty Wednesday of eight misdemeanors, including trespassing and violating a court order to stay more than 100 yards from Jackson's Encino property.

The woman, who calls herself Billie Jean Jackson, allegedly has harassed Jackson for five years, leading to a 1986 restraining order.

Van Nuys Municipal Judge Stephen E. O'Neil told Ms. Muhammad she faces up to 2½ years in jail at sentencing Monday if she continues to refuse psychiatric treatment.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Paul Newman has decided not to play Earl K. Long in "Blaze," a movie about the stripper to whom the late Louisiana governor took a fancy.

"It was never an official agreement. It was always dependent on what he thought of the movie," Newman spokesman Warren Cowan said Friday. "He had doubts about doing the movie for many months. For whatever reasons, he's withdrawing."

Director-writer Ron Shelton, who has not cast the part of stripper Blaze Starr, now also has to find a new leading man.

Casa de Amigos meets senior medical needs

By JANICE FORD
Advertising Feature Writer

The third Thursday morning of each month means the world to a closely-knit group of Midland senior citizens. The Casa de Amigos health care program, Senior Screening, is literally a lifeline to professional health services for 30 to 35 of the center's participants.

"We feel like we are reaching the needs of seniors who live in the northeast and south areas," said Gloria Frison, program assistant director for Casa de Amigos senior services. "Senior Screening is open to all seniors who participate at Casa." Transportation is provided daily for all senior programs.

The health care program consists of "a real simple assessment," explained Cecila Moreno Sokolowski, RN, director of Health Services for Casa de Amigos.

"It's simple but really good," she said. "They have someone they can ask questions of and they don't have to pay." Those utilizing the service are examined by Ms. Sokolowski, who is often assisted by volunteers.

The monthly health check includes ear, nose and throat inspection, blood pressure, diabetes, heart and respiratory examinations. Much attention is devoted to general complaints, such as skin problems and pains.

"We have referral sources available for every ailment," Ms. Sokolowski said. If secondary care is required, Isabel Gonzales, program director, arranges for medical treatment, transportation, translation if needed and prescriptions.

Besides health examinations, Senior Screening provides educational opportunities for its participants. Recent programs include glaucoma testing and informational sessions on death and grieving.

Senior Screening is free, and funding is provided from a variety of sources, said Ms. Sokolowski, including United Way, grants and private donations.

Casa de Amigos seniors are enthusiastic about the program which caters exclusively to their needs. "I come every month," said Zelma Bass. "It keeps us from having to go to the doctor so often."

"They take good care of me and tell me things that are wrong with me that I don't know about," added Hattie Turner. "If I have to go to the doctor, Isabel (Gonzales) gets me there, takes me inside and signs me in. When I'm done, Casa comes to get me. I don't have to worry about a thing."

Casa de Amigos actively recruits seniors for its programs. For more information, please contact Gloria Frison at 682-9701, or to see what is offered each weekday morning for seniors, drop by 1101 East Garden Lane.

Senior Screening, a program for senior citizens at Casa de Amigos, meets each third Thursday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Cecilia Moreno Sokolowski, RN, examined Marcos Rodriquez during January's screening.

No-load mutual funds: A source of confusion

Van M. Pearcy

For more than 50 years mutual funds have offered investors an opportunity to participate in the growth of our economy through professionally-managed portfolios of common stocks and bonds.

As with any business transaction, there's always a charge for professional service. Even with so-called no-load funds, before determining the market price, managers deduct a percentage of the fund's assets for expenses.

This management fee is generally one-half of one percent, but sometimes it is as high as one percent or more a year. The sales charge on a load fund is a one-time fee paid to brokers for marketing the fund's shares and servicing the account in the future. The Securities Exchange Commission (SEC) allows the maximum load of 8.5 percent of the offering price.

In 1980, the SEC rule 12b-1 permitted a special deduction from the fund's assets for commission, advertising and marketing. This in addition to, and sometimes larger than the management fee, and isn't considered a load as far as the 8.5 percent limit is concerned.

Changing Times, in a February 1984 article, cited an example of a former load fund that replaced the 8.5 percent front-end load with a contingent deferred charge, raised the management fee and started a 12b-1 plan. The fund is still sold today as a "no-load".

Changing Times explains it this way: "The SEC does not regulate the size of 12b-1 fees and lets 12b-1 funds call themselves no-loads even though investors really pay sales commission."

A contingent deferred sales charge is another method by which a "no-load" fund can collect commission. These fees are deducted if you redeem your shares before a specified period of time.

For example, a fund might levy a contingent deferred charge of 5 percent in the first year, 4 percent in the second year, 3 percent in the third year and lesser percentages until the seventh year, when there would be no charge on redemption.

Other no-load funds may charge a redemption fee in lieu of the traditional front load. A straight redemption fee differs from the contingent deferred sales charge in that it's charged against the total net asset value of your shares when redeemed. That includes not only your original investment but also any profits you may have earned during that time.

Some former "no-load" funds have added a "low load" (sometimes less than the allowed 8.5 percent) to their more popular funds. They continue to maintain a "no-load" status on their other funds, although they may have hidden charges as well.

It's important, for your own sake, to make sure that an investment "is what it appears to be."

Senior of the week

Vernon R. "Vern" Dillistone is an active participant in the programs offered by the Senior Citizens Center. Retired from the hotel management industry, Dillistone cites dancing among his major hobbies.

In fact, he is involved with dance groups all over the Permian Basin. After the death of his wife, Dillistone said he began to visit the Senior Citizens Center "to shoot some pool and to be with other people."

One Thursday morning, he explained, "I walked in to where they were dancing and asked Maurine DeVazier to dance--once. I've been keeping up with her ever since."

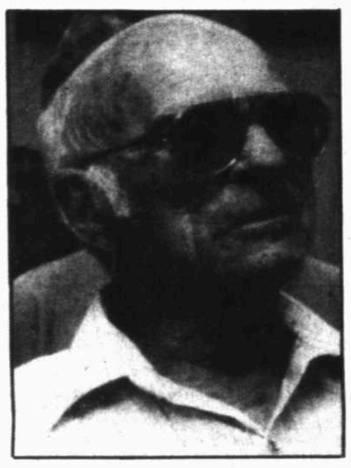

"Dancing keeps us going, it keeps us active," added Dillistone. He and Mrs. DeVazier attend dances three to four times a week. The couple has been featured in exhibition dancing at many places, including the Ector County Fair, Trinity Towers, Manor Park and St. Luke's Methodist Church.

Dillistone was born December 2, 1918, in Birmingham, Alabama. He and his wife moved to Midland in 1974, after 29 years in Houston. Before his retirement, Dillistone opened Midland's Lexington Apartments and Motor Inn, and he also served as the company's regional personnel trainer.

His family includes one daughter who lives in Midland, two grandchildren and one great-granddaughter. An active member of the Mormon Church, Dillistone served as Cub Master of its Boy Scout Troop 231 for three years.

Besides dancing, Dillistone's other hobbies include metal detecting and doll furniture construction. He has even made a model of 1,800 clothespins of the Mormon Chapel, located on Tarleton Street.

Dillistone was nominated for Senior Citizen of the Week by Marge Savage, director of the Senior Citizens Center.

MIDLAND COLLEGE

If you'd like to take a credit course or two this spring, you have just two days remaining for late registration. To enroll, just come to the Student Services Office in the Administration Building Monday or Tuesday between 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

Interest in the upcoming "College Classics" sessions for those 55 or older is high. Registrations still are being accepted for classes which will be offered in all three sessions this spring. The cost is just $25, which entitles you to take as many courses as you can fit in. These classes will meet on the campus during the afternoons.

The first College Classics session starts Feb. 13 and ends March 10. Session II is March 13-April 7, and Session III is April 10-May 5. You can register in the Continuing Education Office, Administration Building, from 8 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday. For more details, call 685-4518.

Still on display at McCormick Gallery, Allison Fine Arts Building, are the sculptures by Greg Elliott of Dallas and Princess Cook of San Antonio. They use ceramics, wood, iron, even stucco to create their large images. The show is here through Feb. 10. Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, 1-5 p.m. Sunday, 8 a.m.-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

NORTHWESTERN BAPTIST CHURCH

A man got on one of those old drug store scales that not only showed weight but gave a card with your fortune on it. The man's wife read the card over his shoulder. it read: "You are a charming personality, a leader of men, a citizen of high character and intellect, attractive to members of the opposite sex." Looking at the scale, the wife said, "Goodness, it has your weight wrong, to." Learn to see yourself as you really are.

Series highlights world hunger

NEW YORK — A television series designed to show how people can help shape policies to end world hunger is being supported by the United Methodist Church and 20 other religious groups.

The series, "Breakthrough on Hunger," currently is in production and tentatively is scheduled to air on PBS in the winter of 1990.

In conjunction with the series, the Interreligious Coalition for "Breakthrough on Hunger," formerly called "Making Aid Work," is preparing study materials for churches and synagogues.

Both United Methodist Communications and the United Methodist Committee on Relief have been involved in the coalition.

The project was conceived by Richard Harley of the Harvard Institute for International Development, also president of World Development Productions, which is producing the television series.

The interreligious coalition was formed in 1987, according to Robert E.A. Lee, program executive. "The religious communities are preparing materials to use the series as a curriculum and to generate discussion," he said in a news release.

The current format involves four one-hour programs focusing on changes that are being made to reduce hunger in the world.

For example, a program called "Bankers on Bikes," conceived in 1978 in Pakistan, will be featured. "They call them mobile credit officers," Lee explained. "What they do is help local farmers get assistance by actually bringing the bankers (to arrange loans) for them. It's an economic plan that's aimed at self-help."

Examples of changes that have not been successful will be included.

The programs also will show the impact that U.S. aid and trade policies have on economic growth both in developing countries and at home.

A fifth program in the series, tentatively titled "Their Hunger, Our Choices," will be tailored individually for the U.S., Canada, Japan, England and parts of Europe and will focus specifically on what citizens in those countries can do to combat hunger worldwide.

"It isn't just the idea that we (Americans) have all the answers and they have all the problems," Mr. Lee pointed out. "They (poorer countries) have their own answers and need help in discovering them."

Rev. Tim LaHaye to speak at Kelview

The Rev. Tim LaHaye will be speaking at Kelview Heights Baptist Church for three consecutive Sunday evenings at 5:45 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. beginning Feb. 5.

LaHaye is an author, minister, TV and radio commentator and family life speaker. He and his wife, Beverly, have been married over 40 years; they have four children and seven grandchildren. He earned his doctorate of ministries degree at Western Baptist Seminary, Portland, Ore.

"For 25 years, LaHaye pastored one of the nation's outstanding churches in San Diego, Calif., where he founded two accredited Christian high schools, a Christian school system and Christian Heritage College," says a release from Kelview Heights Baptist Church.

He has counseled over 6,000 people, many of these dealing with family and marriage problems.

Presently, there are over seven million copies of his 23 books in print which deal with such topics as family life, temperament, sexual adjustment, prophecy and secular humanism.

"His writings are best noted for their easy-to-understand and true-to-scripture application of Biblical principles for solving the problems of life," the release says

In 1985, he and his wife, Beverly, who is president of the largest women's organization in America — Concerned Women for America — moved to the nation's capital.

There he produces the daily TV and radio version of "The Capital Report," a Christian conservative commentary on news events that impact on the family, traditional moral values and religious liberty. This report is carried by satellite to over 100 Christian television and 200 radio stations throughout the country.

He freelances articles for many periodicals and publishes a monthly Capital Report. In his spare time he is always writing his "next book."

The Rev. Frank Johnson, pastor of Kelview Heights Baptist Church, located off N. Big Spring at Scharbauer Drive, invites the public to hear "this outstanding Christian" Feb. 5, 12 and 19 at 5:45 and 6:30 p.m.

San Diego minister lays 'house church' foundation

New York Times News Service

Do churches — like cars — come in different models for different people at different times?

The Rev. M. Laurel Gray, a San Diego Lutheran minister, thinks so. He wants to open a "house church" for those who, for one reason or another, are not now attending or feel alienated from what he calls the "institutional church."

Gray, a veteran of a variety of ministries to the needy, says the centuries-old, institutional-model church may no longer be the best way to deal with the drastic membership and attendance declines many churches are experiencing.

"It's just that it's locked into a certain form or structure that's not reaching a lot of people," Gray said.

Gray's "house churches" would be small groups of 10 or 20 people that would meet in private homes. Participants would determine their beliefs and practices more or less democratically, while somehow remaining faithful to the Bible.

They would also have to remain faithful to the teachings and practices of the 5.3 million-member Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, of which Gray is a member and which is sponsoring the local "house church" experiment.

As Gray sees it, clergy in a "house church" would serve primarily as guides or facilitators who help the laity develop skills and talents, rather than as the "top-down type of leader" who runs everything.

He contends such a format is the one followed by the first Christians and that it just might be the answer to the declining memberships that continue to vex liberal, mainline Protestant churches.

"I organized a house church in Los Angeles about 15 years ago, and it was the most meaningful experience I'd ever had," he said.

Gray calls house churches "the church in miniature, stripped of its usual reliance on church buildings, structure, formalized worship and pastor-led programming."

Gray said the "house church" idea has achieved its greatest success in the so-called "base communities" formed by Catholics, sometimes outside church auspices, in Latin America and other parts of the Third World.

The Vatican, however, has been wary of such communities, cautioning against venturing outside accepted Catholic belief and practice. Gray says the Vatican has criticized base communities "because they have been successful."

He concedes such churches run the risk of tailoring the Christian faith to suit the whims of those who reject this or that article of traditional belief, but that they need not necessarily succumb to such a temptation.

"Their theology has been worked out from the bottom, instead of from the top, and while it may challenge the current theology, it remains basically scriptural," Gray said.

"I don't think it's off-the-wall theology, but it is a threat to institutions because it is challenging institutions to do what they think ought to be done," Gray said. "It may be a threat to the church, but I think it's a good threat."

He concedes, though, that problems might arise in a lay-run house church for Christians who believe ordained ministers are required for communion and other sacraments.

"They'll just have to resolve that question in their own minds," said Gray, who added that his Los Angeles house church resolved the problem by having open communion.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

St. Ann's celebrates Catholic Schools Week

St. Ann's School, 2000 W. Texas, announces its activities for Catholic Schools Week, Jan. 29 through Feb. 4. This year's celebration is known as "Communities with Memories."

The students of St. Ann's School will prepare and participate in a special liturgy at the 10:30 a.m. Mass on Sunday. St. Ann's School Choir will lead the music. Students will wear their uniform to indicate which children are participating in making the newest community memories.

On Monday, the day will begin with a prayer service at 8:45 a.m. Students and parents will participate in a skating party at KC's Nutty Roller from 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the school office or the rink for $1.

Tuesday is Parents Day. Parents are invited to visit the school or have lunch with their student from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Grandparents are invited to visit during the school day or have lunch with their student from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. Students will give their relatives a tour of the school.

Teachers will be honored at a luncheon sponsored by the Parent Teacher Organization on Thursday.

Alumni of any Catholic school, parents, students and the general public are invited to attend Friday Mass at 2:15 p.m. at St. Ann's Church, 204 North 'M.' A reception will follow in the school gymnasium.

Uniforms were changed this year to a plaid jumper or skirt with white or yellow blouse for girls. Boys wear navy pants with a yellow polo shirt. The traditional blue and white uniforms will phase out in the next two years.

St. Ann's School serves students in preschool thorugh sixth grade. Registration for the 1989-90 school year will be in March.

For additional information about Catholic Schools Week activities or the school, call the St. Ann's School office at 684-4563.

Church celebrates 35 years

The congregation of Memorial Christian Church, Andrews Highway and Cuthbert, will commemorate the church's 35 year anniversary with a dinner at 7 p.m. Sunday.

In January 1954, 18 families began meeting as the first congregation of Memorial Christian Church.

Meetings were held in West Elementary School while facilities were being erected at Andrews Highway and Cuthbert, then on the edge of the city.

"The present sanctuary with its beautiful stained glass cross window was erected in 1961," says a release from the church.

The first worship service was held Jan. 3, 1954. The Rev. Paul Wassenich of Austin was guest preacher.

Prior to that date, 34 people had joined Memorial. Those of that group who are still members today are Mickey German, Fredna McHamm, Martha Sides, Jerry Sides, Charlene Younger, John Younger and Charles Younger.

Those of the membership who joined prior to July 1, 1954, when the first pastor, the Rev. Harold Glenn Brown, arrived are Mildred Riddle Farris, Jodie Gideon, Ed Gideon, Gerald Howard, Bennie Sue Thomas, Eva Bailey, Dan Bailey, Marsha Bailey White, and Diane Baley McElligott.

Present ministers are the Rev. Clark Ford and the Rev. Gary Goves who have served since February 1981 and October 1984, respectively.

Personality workshop set

The Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas, Inc., is offering a one-day workshop from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today using the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator to help participants understand, accept and appreciate the uniqueness and strengths of their personalities.

In the workshop, the eight preferences — Extraversion, Introversion, Sensation, Intuition, Thinking, Feeling, Judgment and Perception — will be defined and experienced by the participants. Information on developing opposite preferences also will be shared. In addition, practical ways to use personality type in communicating, managing stress and decision-making will be explored.

The workshop is being conducted by the Rev. Norman Godfrey, a pastoral pychotherapist with 15 years counseling experience. Godfrey has completed the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator Professional Qualifying Program and uses it regularly for individuals, couples and families in therapy.

For more information call the Center, 563-4144.

50th anniversary planned

The Seventh-Day Adventist Church, 3114 Travis Street, will celebrate 50 years of fellowship and ministry Saturday, Feb. 4.

Five years prior to 1939, a group held worship services in homes and rented buildings. In answer to their prayers, the four Hoeckendorf brothers and their families moved to Midland.

The brothers were carpenters and with the help of members and friends, they built the first Seventh-Day Adventist Church in Midland at the corner of South Loraine Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.

The public is invited to join in the church sanctuary for gospel singing, special music, church history, fellowship and a stirring message "Where We've Been, Where We Are and Where We're Going" by Eddie Card, pastor.

Song service begins at 9:20 a.m., sabbath school and Bible study at 9:30 and the sermon starts at 11.

Marriage series begins

Alamo Heights Baptist Church is beginning a series of studies via video on the foundational issues of marriage for couples of all ages.

The study, entitled "After You Say 'I Do' " by H. Norman Wright, will be directed by Rick King, a new member of Alamo Heights. Study time will be from 6 to 7 p.m. each Sunday in the church's fellowship hall.

Carl Middleton will be teaching Bible studies on basic Bible doctrines for older adults at the same time. Middleton is a former pastor.

The church also has a strong program for children and young people — a place for every member of the family.

The Rev. John S. Rasco, pastor, invites the public to participate in these studies each Sunday evening.

AIDS, poverty on agenda

DALLAS — AIDS, the economy, children's needs and poverty were among the topics examined under the general theme "Issues of the Nineties" during the 1989 Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission Workshop, Feb. 20-21 at First Baptist Church, Austin.

The program focused on spiritual, ministry-oriented and legislative solutions to the problems of the next 10 years. As part of the look at the 71st Texas Legislature, workshop participants will join state legislators for a breakfast meeting.

Workshop leaders included: Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby; Robert Theobald, futurist and economist from Wickenburg, Ariz.; Glenn Hinson, professor of church history at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.; and Ray Perryman, professor of economics at Baylor University, Waco.

Missionary program set

A special missionary program will be held at the Living Way Church, 415 Alta, on Missionary Sunday to be observed Jan. 29 at 10:30 a.m.

A march for missions will involve some 20 children representing 20 of the 63 countries which the church is sponsoring.

"Afterward, members and guests will choose the country they want to hear from, a sponsor will be chosen and pledges will be gathered from those who want to be involved in the winning souls," says a release from the church.

Interested parties whether members of the church or not are invited to participate.

Group changes study time

The Business Women's Bible Study at ClayDesta now will meet each Thursday at 11:30 a.m. and noon.

This is a change from the former time of Wednesday noon.

The group is involved in a new study Thursday, led by Paula Ramsey. Betty Isaacs, Linda Chaffin and Sharon Spencer will be available for ministry.

All women are invited to attend.

Working women are welcome and invited to come and go as their lunch hour requires.

The meeting will be in Room LL100, downstairs in the Twin Towers West at ClayDesta.

The Business Women's Bible Study also meets downtown at 312 W. Illinois Ave. each Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. and noon.

Music minister honored

Ty Morris

Ty Morris Jr., Minister of Music at Crestview Baptist Church, will be honored for 15 years of service with a reception after the evening service Sunday.

Morris and his family are credited with making a tremendous impact on the church.

According to a news release from the church, his "first love and greatest service" is the music ministry of Crestview Baptist Church which is "second to none."

Morris is also active as director of the Singing Men of West Texas, an officer and member of the Centurymen, and a popular entertainer at banquets and community events.

All those who know Morris are invited to attend Sunday's reception.

Aglow to have speaker

ODESSA — Karen Houghton of Imperial will be the speaker at Wednesday's meeting of Odessa Women's Aglow Fellowship, scheduled for 10 a.m. at Holiday Inn Parkway, Parkway and US Hwy. 80.

Mrs. Houghton and her husband, Cliff, have been pastors of Imperial Assembly of God for the past three years. Prior to Imperial, they were pastors in Sudan, where Mrs. Houghton still conducts a women's Bible study.

"All are invited to hear testimony of God's faithfulness and healing power from Colossians 2:10," says a release from WAF. "Time will be set aside for praying and sharing as the Holy Spirit directs."

For more information, call Dalene, 694-2896, Pat, 699-7574, or Melba, 1-362-4764.

Mens fellowship planned

A mens fellowship meeting is scheduled at Living Way Church, 415 Alta, at 7 p.m. today.

Businessman Max Fincher from Garland will be the featured guest speaker, after which will follow an organizational meeting for the officers being installed.

Chili and beans will be served at no charge to those who attend.

Divorce seminar slated

The Samaritan Counseling Center is offering a five-week group to aid those who are in the process of or who have recently gone through a divorce.

Emphasis will be placed on finding healing as the participants move into the future.

The workshop will begin at 7 p.m. Monday and will continue through Feb. 27.

Facilatator for the group will be the Rev. Norman Godfrey. Fee is $40.

For registration information call the center, 563-4144.

Leviticus to be studied

"Many people find the book of Leviticus to be a repetition of endless rules, regulations and rituals," said Joanna Herr, Sabbath School superintendent.

Leader of Saturday Bible School education at the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Ms. Herr sees Leviticus as a "basic resource on corporate worship."

"Leviticus is really God's handbook on worship," according to Ms. Herr.

Those wanting to understand this book of the Bible and how it can enrich individual worship in any congregation are invited to participate in the weekly Bible study in the church sanctuary, 3114 Travis St., Saturdays at 10 a.m. through the month of March.

Gospel singing begins at 9:30 a.m. Saturdays for those interested in attending.

Six-week seminar begins

Jeri Sikes, a practitioner in training for the Church of Religious Science, is conducting a six-week personal growth workshop which begins at 3 p.m. Sunday.

"The workshop objective is to learn to meet personal problems that need attention and solve them," says a release from the church.

"Participants will do practical projects using positive methods to achieve self-determined goals. Prayer treatment methods will be taught so each one learns the scientific method of overcoming negative thought or habit patterns, and they can begin to live positively and purposely."

Those wishing to attend are asked to call Ms. Sikes, 687-5653, or Merrilyn Walker, 684-8448.

Tuition for the workshop is $15, and attendance will be limited to 15 people.

Teacher workshop set

A teacher training seminar is being held at the Greater Ideal Baptist Church, 411 S. Tyler St., from 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. today.

The theme is "Training for Service." The seminar will be conducted by the Rev. J.C. Thompson of Wichita Falls, the Rev. L.H. Crosby of Hempstead, the Rev. Norris Harris I and Sister Nay Drean Mays, both of Midland.

Registration fee is $3. All Sunday School teachers and training union classes are invited to attend.

Pancake supper scheduled

The Chancel Choir of the First United Methodist Church of Midland is sponsoring its 28th Annual "Shrove Tuesday" Pancake Supper from 5 to 8 p.m. Feb. 7 in the Recreation Hall of First United Methodist Church, Main and Illinois.

Included in the supper are all the pancakes and sausage people can eat for $2.50 and preschoolers eat free of charge.

Proceeds benefit the church's Chancel Choir.

Missionaries to speak

Rick and Marinda Trull, missionaries to East Africa, will speak at the North Midland Drive Church of Christ Sunday.

Trull will speak at the 10:30 a.m. assembly and will bring an audio-visual presentation on missions in Kenya at the 6:30 p.m. assembly.

A pot-luck lunch will be served at noon.

For more information call, 682-6334.

Alliance to meet Thursday

The Midland Ministerial Alliance will hold its monthly meeting at noon Thursday at First Baptist Church, corner of Louisiana Avenue and Garfield Street.

The program will be led by the Rev. Jerry Kelly of the Samaritan Counseling Center. All ministers are welcome.

Iran could influence release of hostages, Bush believes

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush asserted Friday that Iran could influence the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon and such a step could help revive U.S.-Iranian ties.

"I don't want to...think that the status quo has to go on forever," Bush said of the defunct relationship between the two countries.

Speaking at a White House news conference, Bush said, "... There was a period of time when we had excellent relations with Iran."

At one pont, Bush said he wanted to make "a broad appeal, transcending Iran, to anybody that can be helpful to get the hostages out."

Bush was queried about comments from Iran's president Ali Khamenei, who criticized him for saying in his inaugural address that Bush would appreciate help in gaining the release of the nine Americans held hostage in Lebanon.

"It was America which expressed interest in resuming ties with Iran; Iran does not need America," Tehran radio quoted Khamenei as saying.

Bush said he was unaware of the remarks.

But stopping short of listing specific conditions for a renewal of the diplomatic relations that were severed in early 1980, Bush said Iran could make progress with the United States through "the renunciation of terror in any form, and facilitating to the degree they can the release of the hostages."

Bush, when queried, said Iran was not holding the hostages, adding that "different groups" were involved in their fate.

But to the question of whether Iran exercised control over them, Bush said the United States has "varying degrees of intelligence on that, various assessments as to how much control they have over Hezbollah or these families or whoever it is."

Hezbollah is a pro-Iranian Moslem fundamentalist group that operates in Lebanon, where the hostages are believed to be held.

"I would just reiterate my view that the way to improve relations is to let them go, give these people their freedom — they didn't do anything wrong," Bush said.

Asked if Iran could affect the hostages' release, he responded, "I think they can have influence."

Ties between the United States and Iran were severed soon after the 1979 Islamic revolution, when militant Iranian students took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and held 52 Americans hostage for 444 days.

Fifteen foreigners, including the nine Americans, are believed held hostage in west Beirut by pro-Iranian factions.

The hostage held longest is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Bush says he's not yet considering holding direct talks with Arafat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said Friday he would keep U.S. talks going with the Palestine Liberation Organization but was skeptical about direct overtures to chairman Yasser Arafat.

In contrast to the warm reception the barnstorming Palestinian leader is receiving on a support-seeking tour of Western Europe, the president was reserved.

"I haven't given any thought at all to a meeting of the chairman, Mr. Arafat, with an American official," Bush said at a news conference.

U.S. talks with the PLO were opened last month by then-President Reagan. The U.S. ambassador to Tunisia, Robert Pelletreau, was designated as the only official channel to the organization, some of whose factions the State Department has charged with terrorism.

Bush said he would "wait to see how we go forward" before considering a high-level meeting.

He acknowledged U.S. policy in the Middle East had changed with the overture to the PLO. He said as long as the organization stayed committed to Arafat's renunication of terrorism and acceptance of Israel's right to exist "we will have, when appropriate, meetings with the PLO."

But asked if he would direct Secretary of State James A. Baker III to meet with Arafat or another high-level official, Bush took a cautious stance.

"I would wait to see how we go forward," Bush said. "The point of talking to them is to try to facilitate peace in the Middle East...If there are some logical steps that require high-level signoffs by various participants over there then, and then only, would it be proper to elevate the meetings to that level."

Bush added: "We are just starting...You crawl before you walk."

The president did not say what specific steps he required the PLO to take before he would consider such a high-level meeting.

Companies encouraged to change offensive name, logo of toothpaste

NEW YORK (AP) — "Darkie" toothpaste is being renamed and redesigned to remove its logo of a grinning black minstrel after several groups complained to Colgate-Palmolive Co. that the product was offensive, the company said Friday.

The toothpaste is manufactured and sold in Asia by the Hong Kong-based Hawley & Hazel Group. Colgate-Palmolive, which sells household and hygiene products worldwide, became a joint partner with Hawley & Hazel in 1985.

Since then, a group of congressmen and the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility, a coalition of church investors, have been putting pressure on the companies to change what they said is racially offensive packaging.

The popular product, which has remained unchanged for 62 years, will be renamed Darlie in all of its markets — Hong Kong, Malaysia, Singapore, Taiwan and Thailand — within a year, Colgate-Palmolive said.

The company said the logo will be changed to a "to a non-racially offensive silhouette" — a racially ambiguous man in a top hat.

"The management of Hawley & Hazel and Colgate-Palmolive have agreed that the old name and package presentation represents offensive racial stereotyping that should be changed," Colgate-Palmolive said in a statement.

"We think it's acceptable," said Dara Demmings, a spokesman for the Interfaith Coalition, which seeks to influence social and financial issues within corporations through stock ownership.

In addition to pressure from the coalition, three Interfaith members who each owned at least $1,000 worth of Colgate stock registered objections at a shareholders meeting in May.

The shareholders included the Illinois-based School Sisters of St. Francis; Southern Province of the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate in San Antonio, Texas, and a nun who owns shares for the Sisters of Loretta, based in Kentucky.

Similar pressure from outside groups led Quaker Oats Co. to modify its Aunt Jemima figure in the 1960s to make her look less like a plantation cook and forced the Sambo's restaurant chain to rename itself No Place Like Sam's in the 1970s.

Ms. Demmings said she believed Colgate-Palmolive officials were hampered by objections from Hawley & Hazel, who told a group of congressmen as late as last month that it had no plans to change the product's name.

"It's unfortunate that it took so long," said New York Rep. Edolpus Towns, a member of the Congressional Government Operations Committee who voiced objections to the product during a visit to Taiwan in December.

Towns also praised Colgate-Palmolive for making "a diligent effort since day one of their relationship (with Hawley) to correct this insensitive name and logotype."

Searchers hunt for girl Bundy said he killed

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Searchers used metal detectors Friday to scour snow-covered sagebrush for the remains of a 15-year-old girl whose grave Ted Bundy pinpointed 45 minutes before he died in the electric chair.

The search for Sue Curtis, who vanished in 1975 from the Brigham Young University campus in Provo, was focused on three dirt roads about 10 miles southeast of the city of Price, said Sheriff's Chief Deputy Jerry Cowan.

Searchers used metal detectors because the victim wore braces and in case she was wearing jewelry.

The detectors picked up faint signals, said Joe Ward, a member of the search team, but the frozen ground covered with 10 inches of snow was too hard to dig.

"The search will continue until the remains are found, but until the snow melts it is doubtful we will have any success," said Sheriff Barry Bryner.

Ward also said he had remembered hunting in the area years ago — possibly around the time of Curtis' disappearance — and finding a bloody pair of women's underwear. He said he didn't think much of it at the time, but recalled it Friday and led searchers to a spot about a quarter-mile from a dirt road.

Veterans request declassifying MIAs' files

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veterans advocacy group said Friday it had asked President Bush to declassify files on Americans missing in action in the Vietnam War.

A Pentagon spokesman said no purpose would be served by such a move.

Ted Sampley of Kinston, N.C., chairman of the National Steering Committee for American War Veterans, said the request to Bush was in part a response to a report from the State and Defense departments just before the Reagan administration left office that U.S. agencies "have yet to find conclusive evidence of the existence of live prisoners."

Meanwhile, in another development, Bob Dumas of Canterbury, Conn., speaking for the Korean War Veterans Association, said a delegation from that group would meet North Korean officials in New York seeking an invitation to visit North Korea for discussions on returning the remains of U.S. soldiers killed there.

The Pentagon still lists 2,383 Americans as missing or unaccounted for in Southeast Asia or nearby waters. Dumas said remains of "probably several hundred" Americans were in North Korea as a result of the 1950-1953 Korean War.

On Monday, the Vietnamese government turned over remains believed to be those of 23 Americans killed there.

Sampley, in his group's letter to Bush, said, "Use your powers as president to help us liberate the truth...Mr. President, you cannot just wish that the issues of the Vietnam War will go away."

He said he was responding to the president's inaugural address and Bush's references to a "new breeze blowing."

Sampley's group has long maintained that Americans are in captivity in Southeast Asia. Last fall, it sponsored an incursion into Laos by two Americans, Jim Kopp and Donna Long, to spread word of a $2.4 million reward being offered by 21 members of Congress for anyone who freed an American.

BUNDY

In the days before his execution Tuesday for the murder of a 12-year-old Florida girl, Bundy confessed to at least 23 murders in Utah, Idaho, Washington and Colorado.

The FBI said Friday that law-enforcement agents are being invited to a meeting in Quantico, Va., in an effort to clear up murders Bundy is believe to have committed.

"It's easier to answer if everybody is in one place so we can discuss the peculiarities in each case," said Terry Green, an FBI major case specialist.

Using a page torn from an atlas, Bundy directed investigators to look for Curtis' grave between Price and Green River. "About 200 yards in on the dirt road...and to the left, maybe 50 yards, there's the remains of a young woman who disappeared from Brigham Young University in June of 1975," he said.

In his tape-recorded, eleventh-hour confession, Bundy also said he dumped another body into the Colorado River, identifying the victim as Denise Oliverson, 24, who was last seen riding her bicycle in April 1975 near her home in Grand Junction, Colo.

Sgt. Greg Kuhn of the Grand Junction Police Department said that officials will listen to the tape and talk to the investigator who interviewed Bundy. Police probably will decide Monday whether to search for the body, he said.

In Idaho, authorities said they do not have enough information to search for bodies in two killings Bundy said he committed.

Russ Reneau, the Idaho investigator who interviewed Bundy over the weekend in Florida, said Bundy confessed to killing Lynette Culver, 12, and throwing her body into a river but could not provide an exact location.

Reneau said Bundy also confessed that in 1974 he picked up a young woman at a freeway exit near Boise, killed her and threw the body into a river. The victim's identity is unknown.

Meanwhile, authorities in Wayne County, Utah, planned to scout a site 10 miles east of Capital Reef National Park, where Bundy claimed to have buried the body of Nancy Wilcox, 17, of Holladay, who disappeared Oct. 2, 1974.

A rancher told authorities that in 1974, he saw a man in a suit standing along the road near the area Bundy detailed, and when he drove by the man turned his back.

The sheriff, the rancher and a few deputies were to check the site and decide whether to mount a full-scale search, said Chief Deputy Leeon Brinkerhoff.

Bundy also said he buried the body of Debi Kent, who vanished in 1974 from a Bountiful, Utah, high school parking lot, between Fairview and Mayfield. Bountiful Police Chief Larry Higgins said his officers would visit the area today.

During an interview with a Utah detective last weekend, Bundy mentioned eight killings in Utah, but authorities have been able to link him to only five in the mid-1970s, when he was a University of Utah law student.

The Curtis girl had left a Mormon youth conference at the church-owned school to walk to her dormitory room June 28, 1975, and never was seen again.

"There were absolutely no leads as to where she was at," University Police Chief Robert Kelshaw said Friday.

In the hour before his death, Bundy apparently requested a tape recorder and a map from the Florida State Prison warden as he waited in the "ready cell" 30 feet from the electric chair and described the Curtis slaying.

"That's a typical pattern of Bundy — unpredictable," said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward. "Something struck a note in him, I guess."

Cowan said the girl's parents live in Wellington, four miles from the search area, and were "just as upset as when it first happened."

Educators analyzing school security

Airtight protection difficult, official says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Educators are taking a new look at school security in light of the latest student shootings, but most say even the tightest precautions won't shield pupils from would-be killers in all cases.

"You can set up the procedures; you can have detection systems; you can reinforce the rules for entering a school building. But still it's very difficult to offer the kind of airtight protection that students need," said Gary Marx, a spokesman for the American Association of School Administrators.

Some officials are calling for greater restrictions on sales of weapons, particularly automatic rifles, after last week's killings in a Stockton, Calif., elementary school yard. A gunman, Patrick Purdy, murdered five children and wounded 30 people using an AK-47 assault rifle before killing himself, police say.

"It's not fair to say there's nothing you can do," said Bill Honig, superintendent of the California school system. "But it's pretty hard to do something about this kind of guy. He was going to get into the school somehow. Even with an armed guard, he would have just shot past him."

He added: "The crime is that these weapons are around. How many more innocent children are going to have to die before you decide to do something about the availability of weapons of war?"

Nevertheless, Honig said school personnel have been told to "beef up vigilance" and he said he expects Gov. George Deukmeijian to sign a bill this year requiring every school to have a safety plan. He vetoed it last year on cost grounds.

Police officers, security guards and even metal detectors are common sights at some high schools and middle schools besieged by drug and gang related violence. But concern is now extending to elementary schools, which are increasingly common targets of violence.

In the past year, for example, a 19-year-old man killed two 8-year-olds and wounded seven pupils and two teachers at Oakland Elementary School in Greenwood, S.C. Laurie Dann shot and killed an 8-year-old and wounded five other children at Hubbard Woods Elementary School in Winnetka, Ill., before wounding an adult and killing herself.

On Thursday in Washington, a gunman opened fire into a crowd of high school students, wounding four, in an incident police said apparently grew out of an earlier argument.

Many educators worry about the expense, the effectiveness and the psychological impact of turning schools into fortresses.

"The only way you could guarantee the safety of elementary schools from the criminally insane would be to build them like penitentiaries," said Thomas A. Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association. And that would be "unacceptable in terms of school environment, in terms of cost, in terms of everything," he said.

But Stuart Greenbaum, a spokesman for the National School Safety Center in Malibu, Calif., said most parents want to see precautions taken rather than hear officials say "sorry, we don't want to make it an armed camp." And he has some suggestions.

Greenbaum, whose center was begun by the Reagan administration and is financed by the Justice Department, said all schools should have security officers or staff members responsible for security, equipped with walkie-talkies or some way of communicating what they see.

Asked if that would have helped in Stockton, he replied, "They might have been able to report seeing somebody on or about the campus with a gun, maybe prevented the situation from being as dramatic as it was. Or in fact it may have even deterred the individual from even coming on the campus."

Greenbaum said the Stockton gunman entered through a gate at the back of the school grounds. "You have to limit access points," he said. "This is not to say make the school a fortress. But if you are obligated to have a variety of access points, they ought to be monitored."

The recent outbreaks of school violence are prompting some education groups to reconsider their historic reluctance to take stands on gun control and other issues not directly related to education.

"Concern is intensifying. Many schools and national organizations at this point will be considering whether they should have positions on some of these issues" such as gun control, said Marx of the administrators group.

The school board association could approve a gun-control resolution at its delegate meeting in April, Shannon said. "School board members didn't think gun control was terribly relevant," he said. "But now they're rethinking their positions."

The National Education Association, the country's largest teacher union, has long supported gun control.

Saddle Club

Chris-
Just wanted to drop you a line to let you know I'm all settled into my new spot at Saddle Club Apartments. And it's just fantastic! This place has everything I need and even more! I never imagined that apartment living could be like this, or I would have moved here months ago. Spacious and affordable. Private, but the people are really friendly. And the amenities are out of this world!
Give me a call soon. Or drop by sometime-I'm sure you'll enjoy it. Life at Saddle Club Apartments is simply...GREAT!
