

News accounts say Tylenol maker is being blackmailed

CHICAGO (AP) — A man sent a letter to the manufacturer of Extra-Strength Tylenol threatening more poisonings like those that killed seven people if a $1 million ransom wasn't paid, two Chicago newspapers reported today.

The FBI is taking the alleged extortion attempt seriously, and has asked a bank to turn over the records of one of its customers — a Chicago businessman and formerly successful stock broker who suffered recent financial "reverses," according to the Chicago Sun-Times and Chicago Tribune.

In other developments in the case Thursday, Chicago police said there was no apparent connection between the cyanide death of a student in Philadelphia and seven Chicago-area deaths from cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol last week.

The Sun-Times and the Tribune said today the FBI was investigating the extortion attempt against the maker of Extra-Strength Tylenol, formerly the nation's best-selling pain reliever, but it was not disclosed whether the letter was sent before last week's deaths.

The deaths in Chicago, which have been labeled by investigators as homicides, and a non-fatal poisoning in California have forced Tylenol capsules off store shelves across the nation.

The extortion letter was reportedly received — after apparently being misrouted — by Johnson & Johnson's subsidiary, McNeil Consumer Products Co., which makes Tylenol, in Fort Washington, Pa., on either Tuesday or Wednesday.

The letter, which had the word Tylenol written on the envelope, threatened a "repeat" of the Tylenol poisonings unless $1 million was sent to a postal box at Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, the newspapers said.

The Sun-Times quoted unidentified sources as saying the letter had been traced to the unidentified businessman. It reported the postal box is rented by the businessman, and the letter had been traced to the office of a now-defunct business he operated.

The Tribune said the bank released a statement that said it was directed Wednesday to turn over to the U.S. Justice Department "financial records of a former customer in connection with the Tylenol case."

The letter reportedly was being "taken seriously" by the FBI. An FBI duty officer in Chicago said he could neither confirm nor deny the published reports early today.

A Johnson & Johnson spokesman, Lawrence Foster, said today he was unaware of an alleged extortion plot but added the company had agreed to cooperate with the FBI should such a situation arise.

"The procedure was that if we got anything, it would go directly to the FBI," Foster said.

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fanner said early today that he had "no comment" on any alleged extortion plot.

On Thursday, police said there was no apparent connection between the April 3 cyanide death of William Pascual, 26, of Philadelphia, and the seven Chicago-area deaths.

"We haven't ruled out the Philadelphia case completely," said Chicago Police Superintendent Richard Brzeznek. "We just don't see the death there lining up the same as the deaths here. We have no factual information that extends the case outside Illinois borders."

Unemployment is highest in U.S. in 42 years

By MERRILL HARTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment nationwide hit 10.1 percent in September, the first time the double-digit plateau has been breached since America was emerging from the Great Depression in 1940, the government reported today.

After months of steadily rising joblessness, which eclipsed the previous post-World War II recession highs, the unemployment rate jumped 0.3 percentage point last month.

Behind that fractional rise, however, was the loss of 450,000 more jobs, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Some 11.3 million Americans were out of work in September, the bureau said. And an additional 1.6 million people, a record, fell into the government's "discouraged worker" category — those who have given up trying to find jobs.

The agency also reported that the number of Americans forced to accept part-time employment, for lack of better jobs opportunities, soared to 6.6 million, another record.

The latest jolt in the job picture, while anticipated by President Reagan, private economists and top business leaders, produced fresh howls of protest from organized labor and civil rights groups demanding a reversal of administration economic policies.

Today's grim unemployment report was certain to fuel new anti-Reagan rhetoric from Democrats campaigning in the fall congressional elections, now less than a month away.

The 10.1 percent jobless rate was the highest since the nation registered an annual unemployment average of 14.9 percent in 1940.

With one in every 10 eligible people out of work in September, however, the jobless picture wasn't nearly as grim as in the depths of the Great Depression in 1933, when one in four was jobless. Then, the annual unemployment rate was 24.9 percent.

Within the various population categories last month, nonetheless, several unemployment records were set.

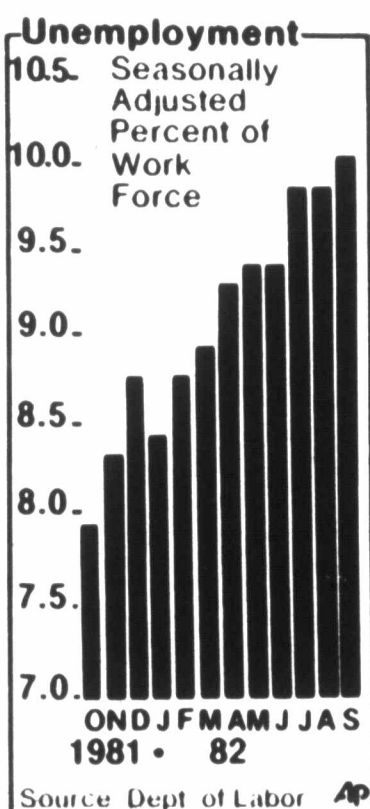

—Blue-collar workers suffered a 15.6 percent unemployment rate, a full percentage point gain from the previous month.

—Adult males, the traditional family bread-winners, saw their jobless rate leap from 8.9 percent to 9.6 percent.

—Black unemployment climbed from 18.8 percent to 20.2 percent.

—Full-time workers saw their unemployment rate jump from 9.6 percent to 10.1 percent.

—Joblessness among whites reached 9.0 percent, a record, up from 8.6 percent. Unemployment among teenagers fell slightly from 24 percent to 23.7 percent, due apparently to the reopening of schools. The jobless rate for adult women edged up from 8.2

Kristina is better!

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

Kristina Ennis, the 4-year-old Pampa child battling leukemia at Houston's M.D. Anderson Hospital, is now showing considerable improvement following a bone marrow transplant, according to her grandma, Barbara Fleming.

"She's doing fine. Her fever is back to normal, and the diarrhea stopped," Fleming said.

But the best news — "They said the transplant is definitely taking. The doctors said the transplanted marrow is producing healthy cells," she said.

After doctor's destroyed Kristina's own cancerous bone marrow through chemotherapy, the child received transplanted tissue from her 5-year-old sister, Amber Dawn.

To decrease the risk of infection, Kristina remains in complete isolation at the hospital until the new tissue can produce enough healthy cells.

Fleming said she wanted the people in Pampa to know her granddaughter is better, since so many people have been concerned about the child.

"So many people have donated (to a fund for the child), they feel like they are involved," she said.

Fleming said he appreciates everyone's help.

"I can't go to the grocery store, without someone stopping me to ask about her," she said.

Well, Eddie, they're mad too...at your ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio advertisements featuring Fort Worth oilman Eddie Chiles' verbal crusade against liberals, government spending and federal regulations have received an overwhelmingly negative response since hitting the air waves here, spokesmen at two radio stations say.

One station has added a disclaimer since the ads began a month ago and the other is considering doing the same.

"I was extremely upset and dismayed to find that a radio station with a high moral caliber would stoop so low to air such political trash as this," one listener wrote WPKX, a country-western station in Alexandria, Va.

Bob Cole, WPKX program director, said the station added a disclaimer at the end of the commercials to disassociate the station from Chiles' views.

Cole said there are two rules radio stations in the Washington area follow.

"One is you don't take sides in terms of the military," he said. "And the second is you don't talk about politics."

It alienates too many people."

WASH-FM, a station owned by Metromedia Inc., also is considering adding a disclaimer because of complaints.

"There are apparently a lot of people who don't like them," said William Kunkel, station manager. "I think it's probably not only the political viewpoint of this particular person but the area of the country (Washington)."

In one ad, Chiles said he is "mad" about the "liberal news media" for attacking retired U.S. Army Gen. William Westmoreland, who has filed a $120 million libel suit against CBS.

In other ads, Chiles attacks liberal Democrats for opposing President Reagan's budget programs. He also claims the news media is guilty of covering national issues with a liberal bias.

Cole, who formerly worked in radio in Austin, said he had no problems with Chiles' ads in Texas. But the negative response in the Washington area has shown up in the station's weekly survey of radio listeners, he said.

Missing radiation source is not dangerous Search continues for radioactive pellet

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

The search for a missing radioactive source used in connection with oil field equipment continues at Welex today, but that source poses no health threat and actually emits less radiation than a radium-dial wristwatch, according to an Austin health department spokesman.

According to a source, the device was discovered missing from the Welex shop at 1133 Price Road on Wednesday by Manager George Butler.

Numerous calls to Welex officials locally, in Midland, Oklahoma City and finally to the president's office in Houston all were initially unsuccessful in producing a company spokesman to confirm or deny the source's information about the missing radioactive equipment.

A Houston Welex official, John Pickering, finally confirmed the information about the missing device, but he referred all other questions away from the company and directed inquiries to the Bureau of Radiation Control in Austin.

The bulk of what the source reported as the basis of the story in Thursday's edition of The Pampa News was accurate. However, the source's information was incorrect in some area's, but company officials Thursday and today declined to issue correct, or any, information about the matter.

It was reported Thursday that the missing device was a DSN gamma radiation source.

But Richard Ratliff, director of the division of compliance and inspection at the Bureau of Radiation Control in Austin, said today the missing source is actually used to calibrate other radioactive oil field equipment, and is not used to log oil wells as first reported.

Furthermore, Ratliff said the missing source is the size of a quarter and emits such a low level of radiation that no protective lead or metal shield around the device is required.

Another informed source confirmed the device is extremely low-level radioactive material, but the source said the actual device missing at Welex does have a metal shield around the source. The informed source said the calibration tool is a short, metal cylinder about four inches long, with the small quarter-sized core inside.

Ratliff said the device contains radium 226. He said the source contains about 25 microcuries, or 25 millionths of a curie, of radioactive material. The radiation expert said the radioactive material in the missing device could be multiplied about 100,000 times before it could cause immediate biological damage.

It was reported Thursday that Welex stores the missing source along with explosives. But the informed source said today the radioactive sources and explosives are stored separately at the Welex facility.

The radioactive sources are stored in a concrete and steel vault in the floor of the Welex shop, according to the informed source.

However, the device poses such low-level danger, the missing calibration unit was stored under lock in company trucks, according to the source.

Ratliff also said today that due to the low-level nature of the source, Welex has 30 days to report the missing device to the state agency.

He said if the unit had actually been a larger gamma-ray source, Welex would have been required to report the missing unit "immediately."

The Austin spokesman said even though the unit is low-level, it must be licensed and regulated by the state agency. Ratliff said the reporting has been required by Texas law ever since the state took over the regulatory responsibility from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 1963.

Million-dollar suit filed against police in Midland

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Two of six present and former police officers named in a $1 million federal civil rights suit say an 18-year-old jail inmate's charges that he was beaten and kicked are unfounded.

Officer Terry Garner and booking officer Vince Castello were with Walter Sowell when he was booked last October on a public intoxication charge.

Sowell contends he was beaten by officers during the booking and later thrust head-first through a glass window.

The suit also contends city police have had an "de facto policy" to mistreat jail prisoners for a number of years.

A police videotape shows Garner appeared to hit Sowell after his hand was pushed away from the prisoner. The booking officer, Castello, then abruptly turned off the tape.

Garner said he grabbed Sowell to escort him to a cell when he feared the prisoner's behavior would provoke a disturbance. The officer also maintains he did not hit Sowell in the side, but instead reached out to grab him around the waist and restrain him.

Castello said he shut off the videotape because the booking procedure had ended.

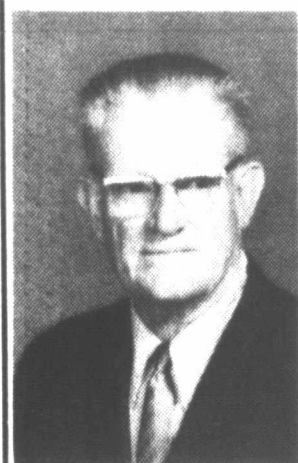

The tape, which was viewed by jurors in Sowell's second trial on public intoxication charges in May, also shows Sowell being shoved against a wall.

Holocaust victim at Auschwitz becomes a Catholic saint Sunday

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

Auschwitz prisoner No. 16670 formally enters the Company of Saints on Sunday in canonization ceremonies presided over by a fellow Pole who survived the Nazi occupation, Pope John Paul II.

Rome's road to the heavenly company is not a fast track, even for a modern martyr whose charisma arches a rainbow of hope from the hell of the Holocaust to the atomic apocalypse of Nagasaki. The route traditionally is pot-holed and hummocked all the way with ponderous procedures under canon law and exhaustive investigations.

And it's pretty much uphill these days against progressive theologians of the post-Vatican II era who think the church already has too many saints and should get back to the basics of the Bible.

Nearly four decades have passed since Maximilian Kolbe, a Franciscan priest, lifted his left arm, branded indelibly with the number 16670, for the injection of carbolic acid from the "death doctor" in Block 13, the extermination cell at Auschwitz known as "The Bunker." He had volunteered to take the place of another prisoner, the father of two young boys, when Lager-fuehrer Col. Fritzsch, the camp Kommandant, picked out 10 hostages for starvation following a prison break.

Notice to crooks: pay up or stay

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

It's pay up, or go to the slammer for Gray County Criminals who receive fines following misdemeanor convictions.

And it's go to class, or go to jail for Gray County residents convicted of drunk driving.

The new hard-line policy was set last month by Gray County Attorney Robert McPherson.

Since the prosecutor's policy change, everyone convicted of a misdemeanor offense in Gray County Court has been required to pay fines and court costs in full on the same day the sentence is handed down by Judge Carl Kennedy, according to McPherson.

Those who can't come up with the cash receive free accommodations in Rufe Jordan's Gray County Jail.

Leaky fuel tank blamed for blaze

PERRYTON — Fire believed started by a leaking butane fuel system on a vehicle destroyed the automotive repair shop at 113 N. Main operated by Jack Holden Thursday evening.

Firemen, summoned about 6:30 p.m., said the building, owned by Al Griner, was engulfed in flames when they arrived.

The building was gutted by the blaze which destroyed two pickups owned by customers of Holden, the personal car of Holden and a forklift.

Fire officials were still investigating the fire this morning and no estimate had been made of the damages.

Correction

Our heartfelt apologies to Amanda Kay Petrey, age five days, whom we accidentally listed in the Daily Record as being a boy.

Amanda was born Monday at Coronado Community Hospital, the daughter of Paul and Karen Petrey of Pampa. She weighed six pounds, 6 1/2 ounces, and both mother and daughter are doing fine.

Sorry for the mistake, Amanda. May you have a long and happy life.

— Anthony Randles

The frail, tubercular priest, who had shrunk to less than 100 pounds hauling boulders to build the crematorium that consumed his remains on Aug. 15, 1941, died without knowing that the monastery he founded on a hillside sloping away from Nagasaki would be the only building to survive the atom bomb dropped on that city four years later.

Holy pictures of the new saint show a wizened, owl-like man in broad prison stripes with a tin cup hanging from his belt against a background of an electrified fence that forms a sort of halo.

The devil's advocate charged by canon law with the unpopular duty of rebuilding a dead man's life to test his mere mortality against claims of sanctity could hardly have found a cause more relevant to our unsaintly times. "The Patron of Our Difficult Century," Pope John Paul II called Kolbe on a visit to his death cell at Auschwitz.

The more than 75 witnesses in the canonization procedure testified to a life marked by brilliance, early success, debilitating illness, and ending in shocking cruelty and degradation: he watched the parched, starving inmates of Cell Block 13 drink their own urine. Even 14 days in the starvation bunker did not kill Kolbe; he had to take the injection to clear his cell for another inmate.

He was born Raymond Kolbe in Russian-occupied Poland on Jan. 8, 1894.

Also, McPherson says anyone placed on probation must pay a minimum of $100 to the probation department the day the person receives probation.

In another area of his new policy, McPherson says everyone who receives probation for driving while intoxicated must complete DWI education classes within six months.

The cost of the required classes for drunk drivers is $20, and that fee must also be paid in advance, according to the county attorney.

With the free-spending spirit of Christmas approaching, McPherson is warning local merchants to be cautious about accepting checks.

"Hot checks turned into the office are running at a very high level. With the holiday season upon us, I strongly recommend that merchants watch acceptance of checks and know the check writers," McPherson said.

At his office, the county attorney has a pamphlet available which outlines the proper procedure for accepting a check.

One near death after Perryton motorcycle/car accident

PERRYTON — Collision of a motorcycle and a car in the 100 block of Ninth Street Thursday evening injured two local men, one seriously.

William Hartley, 39, who recently moved to Perryton from New York state, was transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo for treatment of massive skull fractures and internal injuries. He was listed in extremely critical condition by hospital officials this morning.

Perryton police said Hartley, a passenger on a motorcycle operated by Bert Duane Greenman, 24, was thrown 115 feet following impact of the motorcycle with a car leaving the parking lot of Ideal Food Store.

Greenman, who sustained several broken bones, was also transferred to the Amarillo hospital following emergency treatment at Ochiltree General Hospital. He was reported in fair condition this morning.

Police said the motorcycle operated by Greenman was traveling on Ninth Street when it collided with a car driven by Louise Winter, 62, of Perryton, as the car pulled onto the street from the store's driveway at 5:15 p.m. Winter was not injured, officers said.

Appraisal board postpones action on some agenda items

Most items on the agenda for Tuesday evening's meeting of the Gray County Tax Appraisal District board were tabled for consideration at future meetings.

Health insurance for district employees and computer services for district records were both items for consideration Tuesday, but no bids for the work were approved.

Chief Appraiser Charles Buzzard said no sealed bids were received for providing the eight central appraisal office employees with health insurance.

The board will again consider the insurance at a meeting November 11.

Seven bidders want to the extensive and lucrative computer services, contract with the appraisal district. No bids were accepted on the computer work Tuesday, as Buzzard said he needs time to breakdown each bid for comparison purposes.

The chief appraiser said the board will hold a special meeting next Thursday to consider accepting the computer bids.

In other action, the board approved routine office expenses, and Buzzard told the board the appraisal office in the Hughes Building still lacks carpeting.

Witness will place Harrelson at murder scene, prosecutor says

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Shortly before U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was shot in the back, a San Antonio attorney ran "smack dab into" alleged assassin Charles V. Harrelson across the driveway from where the fatal shot was fired, a prosecutor says.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn revealed Thursday in his opening statement in the trial of Harrelson and two women that lawyer Chrys Lambros would place Harrelson at the scene of the May 29, 1979 killing.

Ms. Lambros, who lived in the same luxury townhome complex as Wood, left her apartment about a hour before Wood was slain and met Harrelson in a carport area, Jahn told the newly impaneled jury.

Jahn said the government also intended to call several witnesses who saw a man fitting Harrelson's description at the DiJon Plaza townhomes the morning Wood was assassinated and a gold-colored automobile speeding from the scene.

Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr. of Brownsville, countered in his opening statement that his client — who previously served a 15-year state sentence for another hired killing — did not shoot Wood and that during the trial he intended to name the real killer.

Sharpe did not reveal disclose the name.

U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions scheduled testimony to begin Monday and recessed the trial after the opening arguments.

Wood's widow, Kathryn, was expected to be among the first prosecution witnesses.

Jahn contended a gold car registered to Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, Harrelson's wife and co-defendant, had been parked at the San Antonio International Airport on three separate occasions during May 1979, while Harrelson allegedly "stalked" the judge he is accused of killing for a $250,000 fee.

But Sharpe said he would prove Harrelson and his wife were 300 miles away in Dallas watching television when the program was interrupted by a news bulletin saying Wood had been assassinated.

The defense attorney said he would develop during the trial, expected to last four to eight weeks, an alternate scenario on how Wood was shot to death.

The money allegedly paid Harrelson by El Paso narcotics kingpin Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra in June 1979 was not a "payoff" for Wood's killing, as the government alleges, but instead part of a "scam" Harrelson was using to bilk Chagra on a dope deal, Sharpe told the nine women and three men jurors.

"The story is a simple one," Jahn earlier told the jury. "It is a story of fear. It is a story of greed and a story of murder. Jimmy Chagra was fearful of Judge Wood because of his sentencing procedures."

Chagra, 39, was scheduled for a narcotics trial before Wood, known as "Maximum John," when Wood was shot. Prosecutors say Chagra feared Wood would give him a life sentence.

Also on trial here are Mrs. Harrelson, 41, and Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28.

Mrs. Harrelson was sentenced to three years in federal prison last year after being convicted of using the fictitious name "Fay King" — or "faking," as prosecutors said.

Purchaser of town is arrested

HOUSTON (AP) — Constable Walter Rankin says no one was happier than he was to learn a real estate developer had purchased the birthplace of "Singing Cowboy" Gene Autry.

The good news helped Rankin track down and arrest John F. Grice Jr., 37, for allegedly passing bad checks.

"The man craves publicity so it helped me," Rankin said. "I had been looking for him, but he had been moving around. On Sunday morning, I picked up the newspaper and there he was."

Last weekend Grice offered the highest bid — $200,000 — for the antique shops, storefronts, mineral water bottling plant and firehouse in Tioga, Texas, a town of 511 rising from rolling pastureland about 50 miles northeast of Dallas.

Grice had said he dreamed of developing the 250,000-square-foot property into a tourist town.

Grice's misfortune will have no effect on the sale of Tioga, said Corkey Grundei, a real estate agent and constable there.

Grundei said the property was purchased by Grice and "undisclosed partner who wrote the check. The sale is still on," Grundei said.

Rankin recalled the newspaper photograph looked familiar, so he went back and checked his arrest warrants.

Two warrants were issued in Harris County for theft by check and bond forfeiture, Rankin said. The other warrant said Grice wrote a worthless check "for more than $100" to a Houston liquor store, said Peace Justice Ken Pacetti.

Texas A&M scientists find new way to get fuel from water

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M scientists have found a way to use water and sunlight to make a hydrogen fuel that may someday be cheaper than gasoline.

Dr. John Bockris, head of the Texas A&M Hydrogen Research Center, said his team has scored a major "breakthrough" in energy research by producing hydrogen at an efficiency rate of 13 percent from a solar-powered electrolysis system that uses cheap silicon cells.

Hydrogen has been produced in other labs using sunlight, but never so efficiently using such inexpensive materials, Bockris said.

"This is the first time a practical efficiency has been achieved on a cheap substance," he said. "That's our claim."

A scientist at Bell Laboratories has produced hydrogen at an efficiency of 14 percent, but Bockris said that technique used photocells made of indium phosphide, a substance many times more expensive than the silicon used by the A&M scientists.

Bockris said the A&M electrolysis system has the potential of producing hydrogen fuel for as little as one dollar for the energy equivalent of a gallon of gasoline.

The A&M technique uses electrolysis cathodes and anodes made of silicon photo cells immersed in a solution of mild acid and water. The photo cells produce electricity when touched by sunlight.

Electric current from the cathode passes through the water to the anode. The technique splits water molecules into their components, two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen. The hydrogen is collected from cathode and the oxygen is vented from the anode.

Bockris said the cathode and anode have special properties that were developed by research associates Dr. Marek Szklaarczyk and Dr. A. Q. Contractor to overcome problems encountered by other researchers using silicon photocells in electrolysis.

Silicon cells immersed in water usually develop a silicate oxide film that blocks the flow of the electrical current. The A&M cathode and anode, said Contractor, have been "doped", or coated, with elements that allow the electrical current to continue flowing. He said a coating of platinum, a rare metal, seems to produce the most efficient flow of current.

The A&M apparatus has been run for up to four hours and the efficiency rate never dipped below 13 percent, said Contractor.

"We were able to maintain a stable system," he said. "Other groups have gotten efficiencies of this rate for short periods, but then it drops to zero."

Bockris said that with a major push the nation could develop within 10 years solar-power hydrogen refineries that could produce enough of the hydrogen fuel to meet 20 percent of the nation's energy needs.

Hydrogen, he said, could be used to fuel cars, trucks and planes. But it would take a huge investment in the infrastructure — such things as pipelines, engine conversions and storage facilities — to make the element a significant fuel source, he said.

Third person is sought in alien smuggling

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Authorities worked to piece together the roles of two men who surrendered to Border Patrol officers after an alien smuggling operation went haywire and resulted in the deaths of four Salvadorans youths.

The third person named in a federal arrest warrant continued to elude authorities, said Border Patrol assistant chief E.J. Vickery.

Robert James Manners, 51, and Edward Gene Hunter, 38, appeared here Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Susan Williams on federal charges of transporting illegal aliens and conspiracy to transport illegal aliens within the United States.

Manners and Hunter were being held at the Hidalgo County Jail in Edinburg on $500,000 bond each, said Olga Saucedo, magistrate clerk. Both men are from the Pharr-Edinburg area.

Jim Kerr, Border Patrol assistant chief in McAllen, said authorities remain uncertain what roles Manners and Hunter may have played in the smuggling operation.

"We still don't have all the answers," he said.

The two surrendered Thursday after their attorney called Border Patrol officials to ask if warrants had been issued for his clients, Kerr said.

Federal authorities were surprised the men surrendered, he said, but acknowledged they were under "a hell of a lot of pressure."

"Once they realized what had happened, probably there was a lot of panic at the time when they opened the trailer," he said. "Instead of having people in there that they would turn a profit on, they found a lot of problems."

Dr. Ruben Santos, Hidalgo County medical examiner, said the four Salvadorans died of suffocation compounded by heat stroke after being left in the truck's stifling, sealed confines.

Funeral services were to be this afternoon for the three men and one woman found dead Monday night inside the tractor-trailer rig abandoned by smugglers about 15 miles north of the Mexican border. The truck's air conditioning system failed, leaving the Salvadorans locked inside to suffer and die.

Of the 12 surviving Salvadorans found in the rig, four remained hospitalized and eight were in the custody of the Border Patrol.

Experts to examine bomb found outside firm

HOUSTON (AP) — FBI agents and experts from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms today planned to examine a bomb found outside an oilfield supply company building after a telephone warning.

The device was safely defused after a caller warned Thursday that a bomb planted outside Pecos U.S.A. would explode in an hour, said police Sgt. Bobby Morgan.

Authorities said there is no apparent connection between Thursday's incident and a bomb threat — part of a $15 million extortion plot — that shut down Gulf Oil Chemical Co.'s Cedar Bayou refinery 30 miles east of Houston.

Five bombs were found inside the Gulf plant last week. Four were deactivated and one exploded harmlessly.

Kevin O'Keefe, assistant sales manager at Pecos U.S.A., said he "backed off real quick" and called police after finding the device and seeing that its timer was set on zero.

"It was a timing device with a mason jar with a couple of wires leading into it," he said.

O'Keefe said he found the device in a cardboard box in hedges in front of the building.

"We received a phone call at 9:15 a.m., a bomb threat saying there was a bomb in front of the building and it was set to go off in an hour," O'Keefe said. "I evacuated the building and I went out in front and there was a box in the hedges with what appeared to be a bomb."

Eight people were evacuated from the Pecos U.S.A. building. A tire store and an auto tune-up business also were evacuated, he said.

O'Keefe said the caller telephoned 10 minutes after the first call and delivered the same warning to another employee.

He declined comment on whether he had any idea who the caller was. Morgan said police had no suspects.

Hats bet on football game

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh are betting their hats and a fish fry on the Texas Longhorn-Oklahoma Sooners football game Saturday.

The governors agreed Thursday that the loser will provide the fish for a cookout at Lake Texoma, which is on the Oklahoma-Texas border.

Nigh and Clements also agreed on a personal bet. The loser will buy a "good western hat" for the winner, according to Clements' office.

Both governors will be at the Saturday game at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. The Governor's Trophy, presented to the chief executive of the winning state, will be awarded after the game.

Texas has not lost to Oklahoma during Clements' administration.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Managing EditorCost to keep warm is rising

The weather prophets are warning that the approaching winter will be colder than usual. Some mention the absence of sun spots; others the mimosas on the trees. They seem to delight in warning of disaster.

Impossible as it is, in my opinion, to foresee weather more than a few days, the winter is bound to be cold enough, and whatever one burns for fuel the cost of heating his home will rise. What can he do about it?

A foresighted neighbor who heats with gas has installed a stove in his living-room and has a big pile of wood stacked by the garage. But few have stoves, and fewer have access to a woodlot. Resort to anthracite coal may be more feasible to some.

Natural gas is such an excellent fuel that many gas wells have been drilled and pipelines laid to serve much of the nation. There is ample gas deep in the ground, and some folks are highly indignant that the price is rising now when the supply is so great. But, I repeat — the supply is deep in the ground, or in great storage tanks in Texas not in the consumer's meter. The cost of pumping and piping it to consumers is substantial and rising. Gas rates will be up this winter, perhaps as much as 40 percent.

Gas is a public utility, as are electricity, water, etc. This means that competition is deemed not to be a practical control over prices to consumers, and so each state exercises control by haaming a special commission to regulate the rates. If your gas rates rise, blame your commission.

The cold facet is that the commission cannot hold the rates down at will, for the companies' cost of operation are rising and these costs must be met or the firm will fail, ceasing operation entirely, and everyone will have cold feet.

Far more practical than to berate the public utility firm or the control commission is to check ones consumption of gas, electricity, or other necessity in question, and find ways to economize. Insulate that hot water tank and pipes. Install storm windows and doors. Also, weather stripping.

Turn thermostates down and dig those woolies out of the cedar chest. Use low-wattage electric bulbs in rooms where no one reads or operates his computer. Turn off furnace heat to bedrooms and turn on electric space heater when necessary.

Many ways will suggest themselves to the ingenious. Many more can be learned free by consulting your plumber. For a modest fee, he might be persuaded to come and do the job himself.

Heating with electricity is considered to be more expensive than heating with gas, but that may not be true this winter. The two are competitors; indeed, the risk of losing their market to electricity will restrain the gas rate raisers.

Electric energy is carried distances on high-voltage wires. Power companies are not at the mercy of pipeline operators as are the gas companies.

Banking faces change

Depositing money in a bank and paying bills by writing checks — "pay to the order of" — has long been a familiar and a helpful practice. The checkbook in which one keeps a record of sums deposited, on the one hand, and checked out, on the other, is found in many a pocket. Often it is the owner's only account book.

The American Bankers Association estimates that 35 billion checks will be written and will do their job for payer and payee in 1982. By the end of the decade, the total will raise to 40 billion a year, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta.

Each check is received by the payee, who usually deposits it in his bank, which credits it to his account or pays for it with paper currency and coins. Then it returns the check to the bank on which it is written. This bank deducts the check from the writer's account and adds it to the account of the bank which has presented it. Thus, the payment is consummated.

Imagine this done for each of 35 billion slips of paper and it is evident that prodigious paperwork is performed by the banking system.

As the checks written on a bank arrive there and are paid, they are collected in bundles, a bundle for each check writer - depositor and this bundle of cancelled checks is returned to him by mail, usually once a month. Each returned check, stamped to show it has been paid, constitutes a receipt, or proof of payment, which the payer holds. He needs no other receipt.

Bankers are now saying that return of all the cancelled checks is unnecessary. To retain them at the bank would save a huge lot of postage. In fact, if the banks could get authorization by check writers, officers think 15 percent of all banking transactions are now made by ATM, and that by 1990 50 percent may be.

A more recent development is home banking, which will soon be offered by Huntington National Bank, Columbus, and others. To use this, the depositor will need to have a computer in his home or place of business. This will be linked with a computer network in the bank. Using identification numbers and secret, personal passwords, the depositor will be able to transfer money, electronically, from account to account, pay bills, and monitor account and loan balances — all without going to the bank. It should be a boon to the age and to others who are confined or busy.

These innovations show that bankers are not content to go through the old motions, efficient as these may be. When a new and promising method comes along, they are willing to give it a whirl.

However, electronic banking has not yet displaced the pen- and-ink kind. The new ways have their problems. They seem complex to some. Especially in money matters, people tend to be cautious and to cling to the old, familiar ways.

What's in the name?

A recent letter to the editor of the Washington Post makes an interesting comment on the projected radio campaign against Cuba.

The subject is Jose Marti and the writer, David Wald of Santa Clara, Calif., makes the point that the Cuban poet-patriot was not an admirer of the United States, where he lived in exile for 15 years while carrying on his campaign against Spanish rule of his country. On the contrary, he saw the United States as an imperialist threat to Latin America.

Considering the terms in which he depicted his hosts in some of his writings — "crude, uneven and decadent" and given to violence, discord and immorality — Wald concludes that Marti is a dubious and immoral choice of a manesake for a station to beam the American message to Cuba.

As things have been developing, the matter of a name is likely to be the least of the problems connected with Radio Marti. Cuba threatens to counterattack with transmitters 10 times as powerful as any in the United States and with the capability of interfering with hundreds of American FM stations in 32 states.

The threat has only served to escalate the airwaves battle. Even the New York Times, which otherwise suggests editorially that the plug ought to be pulled on the project, finds at least an argument for the station in American refusal to yield to Cuban bluster on the issue.

Numerous positive arguments have been advanced. Heard most often is that freedom needs a voice on this front in the worldwide confrontation with communism similar to that long provided by Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty in the European theater.

Possibly, but there are some significant differences in circumstance.

Both Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty originated as covert CIA operations. They pretended to be something — free agents with no obligations other than to the cause of truth — they were not, which in the rough-stuff context of the Cold War at the time may have been justified.

That time was very different in many other ways. Telecommunications were less advanced — domestic programming did not spill so easily and so pervasively across borders. There was little people-to-people communication across East-West borders. The Soviets had sealed themselves off from the world and sought, somewhat less effectively, to do the same to their European satellites.

Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty continue to operate today, on a greatly scaled-down basis, primarily because they already exist. It is questionable that if they did not, their establishment would be undertaken. It would make more sense to step up the pressure through the existing facilities of the Voice of America than to set up specialized but essentially redundant new entities.

A practical view

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
As the nation agonizes through a prolonged economic slump, community leaders are pondering what can be done to provide jobs and create profits.

One of the most severely affected industrial communities in the nation is Rockford, Ill., a city long known for industrial activity and skilled workmanship.

The Register Star newspaper in Rockford recently asked a number of industrial leaders in the city to comment on the situation and what can be done. Dan A. Olsen, president of Rockford acromatic Products Co. in Rockford and an authentic entrepreneur was one of the leader who responded. Mr. Olsen is a friend of mine, and this space today is devoted to his comments, they are relevant to communities across the nation.

Here are a few of Mr. Olsen's observations:

"We can talk about pie in the sky, getting an electronics industry and the like, but that isn't too productive given the limitations of the environment we're in, with high labor (wage) rates and people untrained in these new skills.

"There is a general lack of infrastructure in town to assist those type of industries. This infrastructure is awfully important. People don't go to Chip Valley because the weather is nice. There is a nest of residual knowledge there.

"If one out of 100 of those (unemployed) people, or say two out of 100, would decide to go it in their business, hopefully half of those guys would survive downstream. You could improve the infrastructure in town.

"It doesn't take many people to make a town. If 2 percent of the people out of work were desirous of going out and meeting the needs of the economy it could bode well for the area.

"I could name 20 places where people could start off in this town and make money," Olson added. "I would do it myself except I don't have the time.

"Some of the places I would go would be like competitive forging, sophisticated heat treating, a newspaper-magazine tobacconist across from the courthouse, phosphating, general machining, industrial painting. If I sat for an hour I am sure I would come up with at least 25 decisions that would lead to a life of entrepreneurship.

"This goes even for non-skilled people, because entrepreneurs must be more dedicated than skilled many times.

"I think the community might make it quicker in the long term if instead of looking over the fence at communities like San Jose, Calif. and Lynn, Mass. we would look at ourselves and find out where we can apply our abilities to the future needs of the country."

New disease linked to hamburger

ATLANTA (AP) — McDonald's Corp. halted trading on the New York Stock Exchange after the national Centers for Disease Control reported a link between ground beef and a new disease, but the hamburger giant said the action doesn't mean its sandwiches aren't safe.

"You bet it's safe to eat at McDonald's," McDonald's Vice Chairman Edward H. Schmitt said in Chicago. "We've served 2 billion hamburgers since these isolated incidents were first reported."

Company officials said they expected trading of the fast-food giant's stock to resume today.

The Atlanta-based national Centers for Disease Control traced several cases of the illness, which has been named hemorrhagic colitis, to McDonald's restaurants in Oregon and Michigan.

But a CDC epidemiologist said Thursday that sporadic cases discovered since then have been linked to other hamburger chains and private homes.

Symptoms of the disease include severe stomach pain, bloody diarrhea but a lack of fever.

The non-fatal illness seems to be transmitted through hamburger meat, according to epidemiologist Mitchell Cohen, who presented his data on the disease at a medical conference in Miami on Wednesday.

Cohen said only one in 1,000 people who ate hamburgers at McDonald's during the outbreaks in the two states became ill.

There were 26 reported cases of the illness in February and March in Medford, Ore., with 17 people hospitalized for short periods, Cohen said.

There were 21 confirmed cases and 26 reported cases in another outbreak in Traverse City, Mich., in May and June, Cohen said.

Cohen declined to name other fast food chains linked to the disease because the actual organism causing the disease was not found in their meat.

McDonald's might have reported more cases simply because so many people eat there, he said.

There have been 21 sporadic cases documented since July.

McDonald's shares reached a record high Thursday before the stock exchange halted trading in McDonald's Corp. stock at 2:42 p.m.

Swedish intensify hunt for trapped submarine

BERGA NAVAL BASE, Sweden (AP) — Search craft dumped more depth charges into Hors Bay early today, escalating their frustrating hunt for a suspected Soviet-bloc submarine believed trapped just outside Sweden's top secret Musko Naval Base, the navy said.

Spokesman Capt. Sven Carlsson confirmed that the submerged submarine had tried to escape blockaded Hors Bay Thursday afternoon and that a second alien sub was spotted lurking outside the bay. But he denied press reports that the cornered sub's breakout attempt succeeded.

"We have had several interesting indications during the night that show the sub is still in the bay," Carlsson told reporters. He said searchers dropped more depth charges overnight but would not elaborate.

Carlsson said all Swedish search units were back in the principal target area today concentrating on the hunt for the submerged sub, which has defied their efforts to force it to surface for a week.

He emphatically denied a report in the Swedish tabloid Expressen, which quoted "well-informed sources" as saying the trapped sub outwitted search boats and slipped through Hors Bay's northern outlet into Mysing Bay.

The Swedes, who have become increasingly sensitive about alien submarines prowling their coast, say they want to interrogate the vessel's officers before allowing it to leave.

In its report today, Dagens Nyheter, Sweden's largest national newspaper, said a second foreign sub was spotted by sonar creeping toward Hors bay, prompting the navy to dump more depth charges to stop the new intruder from aiding the cornered vessel.

Prior to Carlsson's news conference, the military had slapped a news blackout on the week-old drama in Hors Bay, saying it did not want to provide any "useful information to the 'foreign' power that sent the submerged intruders. It was not clear why the blackout was lifted.

Defense staff officials still have not identified the presumed owners of the sub. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has denied sending subs to the area, about 20 miles south of Stockholm. Most observers believe the submarine, or submarines, are from the Soviet bloc.

"We cannot tell whether there might be one or two subs," Vice Adm. Bror Steffenson, the new Swedish chief of staff, told a news conference Thursday.

He said "there is a possibility" the first submarine had eluded the searchers and the blockade. "We just don't know yet, it may have left the immediate search area," he said.

Forty warships and 10 helicopters have plopped depth charges into the bay and probed the frigid waters with listening devices since last Friday.

Recuperating president visits family

HOUSTON (AP) — Zail Singh, president of India, remains in "stable and satisfactory condition" following a triple bypass operation, says a hospital spokeswoman.

Singh, who is recuperating in the intensive care unit at Texas Heart Institute, visited briefly with family members Thursday, said spokeswoman Hazel Haby. He underwent a three-hour operation Wednesday to correct a heart ailment.

The 66-year-old president is expected to stay in the hospital 10 to 14 days, she said.

Doctors decided to operate on Singh after tests showed he suffered hardening of the arteries and several accompanying blockages.

Ms. Haby said. Singh was elected and installed as president last July after serving as minister of home affairs in Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's cabinet. He was hospitalized in India earlier this year with a heart ailment.

He was elected by a wide margin to succeed Neelam

Sanjiva Reddy, whose five-year term in India's largely ceremonial office of president ended July 26.

A veteran of 36 years in public office, Singh is known for his fierce loyalty to Mrs. Gandhi, whose ruling Congress Party nominated him in June.

He is the nation's seventh president, and also was the first member of the Sikh minority ever chosen to run for that office. At the same time, he is a staunch opponent of Sikh dissent movements.

Mystery convention celebrates Hammett and other writers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The talk is of arsenic in teacups, muffled gunshots in dark alleys or even a murder on the Orient Express as connoisseurs of violent deaths and surprising solutions — at least on paper — gather at an annual convention of mystery fans.

Autograph hounds can get their well-thumbed books signed by the authors. Collectors of detective fiction can learn about tax shelters while debating the crime-solving merits of drawing-room deduction vs. back-alley sleuthing by dedicated gumshoes.

Fans at the 13th annual world convention can compare the elegant prose of Sherlock Holmes mysteries with the hard-boiled slang of detectives in pulp magazines. Admirers of the Boston-based private eye Spenser can hear a talk by his creator, Robert B. Parker. And moviegoers can see a marathon of rare mystery films, including two versions of "The Maltese Falcon" made before the Humphrey Bogart classic.

The Bouchercon convention, named for the late mystery writer and critic Anthony Boucher, has met annually since 1970. The 1982 gathering runs today through Sunday at the Cathedral Hill Hotel.

This convention pays special tribute to San Francisco's premiere detective writer, the late Dashiell Hammett, who created Sam Spade. The father of the hard-boiled detective, Hammett set most of his stories and some of his novels, including "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Glass Key," in the fog-shrouded streets of San Francisco.

Mayor Dianne Feinstein has proclaimed October as Dashiell Hammett month to mark renewed interest in the writer that includes three new biographies, a Francis Ford Coppola film, a public television documentary and popular walking tours pointing out scenes from the novels.

The renewed attention to mysteries by Hammett and others "has to do with the chaotic state of the world," speculates Don Herron, who leads the tours. "(Fictional detectives) go through the chaos and emerge in control of things."

Nostalgia and escapism play a part, too. "With so much crime in the world, people turn to mysteries for entertaining solutions," Herron said.

The image of a "single guy against the world" makes mysteries perennially attractive, says writer Bob Randisi, whose newly formed Private Eye Writers of America will present its first awards Saturday.

Local mystery writer Collin Wilcox takes a jaded view of the popularity of run-of-the-mill mysteries. "I think frankly that this has become a less literate society... and the genre offers refuge to people," he said.

"It's not unlike situation comedies," Wilcox added. "When people read a mystery, they want the same book over and over again. It's like Chevrolets — a new model, but not too new."

NOW convention opens in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The politics of the nation and of the women's movement are prime topics for the nearly 2,000 delegates gathered for the annual convention of the National Organization for Women that opens here today.

A major theme at the three-day meeting, which comes three months after the defeat of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, will be how women can affect the congressional elections on Nov. 2 and in the future.

But the NOW elections — to pick a new president and other top officers — are of more immediate interest to the delegates than a congressional district race.

The future of the 220,000-member group is a key issue in the five-way balloting Saturday night that features two longtime NOW officials and feminist firebrand Sonia Johnson.

Electoral politics has been NOW's focus since the loss of the ERA on June 30. The constitutional amendment, passed by Congress in 1972, died because only 35 of the needed 38 states ratified it by the deadline.

Under outgoing NOW president Eleanor Smeal, the organization set up more than 80 political action committees to raise money and give it to candidates who support women's rights.

Even though the fund-raising goal is $3 million, Ms. Smeal does not expect major breakthroughs on the national level.

But NOW does not simply support women candidates over men, Ms. Smeal said. Its endorsements are based on the candidate's stands.

In New York, for example, NOW endorsed incumbent Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan over Republican Florence Sullivan, in part because of her opposition to abortion.

At the state level, NOW is attempting to defeat the male legislators who helped beat the ERA, particularly in the crucial states of Florida and Illinois. In Florida for example, 14 of the state Senate candidates and 39 of the state House candidates have been endorsed by NOW.

In the NOW elections at the convention, Judy Goldsmith, one of two NOW vice presidents, is said to have Ms. Smeal's endorsement for the top post, although Ms. Smeal will not confirm it. Ms. Goldsmith, a longtime NOW activist from Wisconsin, worked closely with Ms. Smeal in the past 18 months.

Jane Wells-Schooley, the second NOW vice president, is also seeking the top spot. Her work as an organization leader has concentrated on fighting anti-abortion legislation, fighting for gay rights and other NOW activities now directly related to the ERA.

Ms. Johnson, 46, the only one of the candidates who is well-known nationally, came to public attention for her fight with the Mormon Church, which opposes the ERA. She was eventually excommunicated from the church for her activism.

All three candidates favor continuing the political activism of NOW, although just how much emphasis varies somewhat.

Newsletters can help find family members

BY GENA WALLS

An excellent source of information for people looking for ancestors is the newsletters published by people with the same interest.

Are you searching for the Dodd family? Mrs. Avlyn Dodd Conley has maintained a Dodd clearinghouse for over ten years. The wealth of material is shared with anyone researching the name Dodd. She also publishes the "Dodd Newsletter" which consists of research notes and queries on the name from anywhere.

Published quarterly, eight pages per issue and queries pertaining to Dodd are printed free to subscribers. Send your Dodd problem to Mrs. Avlyn Conley, 7543 Balto - Annap Blvd., Blen Burnie, MD 21061. Be sure to include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Mrs. Betty Guyton Gann, 1601 W. Somerville, 505, Pampa, Texas 79065 is researching her family and would like to correspond with people interested in the Guyton surname. She believes she has relatives living in Gray County and her grandparents, James Rubin Nathaniel Guyton and Alberta Beatrice Carter were married in Walnut Springs, Texas, in 1907. Her great grandparents, Dr. Warren and Melissa Ann White Guyton moved to Texas from Alabama and are buried near Shamrock, Texas.

Your questions might be someone's answer. Queries are welcome, subject to editing and should include your name and address.

New book combines suspense/characters

Review by Judy Rigger
THE SHADOW LINE, by Laura Furman (The Viking Press, 1982, 270 pgs.) In Laura Furman's first novel, she has utilized the past and its legacy as a theme. THE GLASS HOUSE, Furman's first book, a collection of five stories and a novella, was widely praised for its understatement, the subtlety and sensitivity with which she created her characters. In THE GLASS HOUSE Furman wrote of things left behind, inheritances from the past, which alter the lives of those who receive them or seek them out. But Furman has not chosen to repeat herself in THE SHADOW LINE; instead, her theme this time resides in a new home, the mystery novel.

The mystery is intricate, and many people, some dead, others very much alive, turn up as participants in the past. The heroine, Liz, finds her career, her values, even her life, in danger before the denouement, and she learns an important lesson about the influence of the past upon the present, the difference between illusion and reality, the need for commitment to the present.

A sense of place, of the color and feel of a locality is important to Furman as to her contemporary Shelby Hearon, and she captures well the feel and smell of Houston and Galveston with clear and precise language. Her characters, with the exception of a couple of lesser ones who come off a little too "evil" for credibility, are real, multi-dimensional, stumbling people whose dialogue rings true.

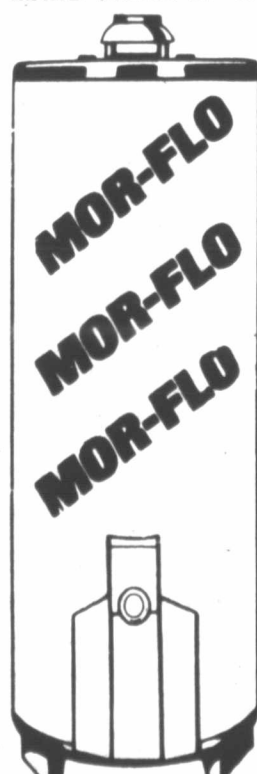

THE SHADOW LINE seems itself to inhabit a shadow line between character study and suspense story. At first this left me uncertain of my response, incapable of concentrating exclusively on either of the two. Then I began to enjoy both. Perhaps Furman should be proud to have created a story that is, almost, two creations in one.

Laura Furman was born and educated in New York but has lived in Houston for several years. Here fiction has appeared frequently in "The New Yorker."

A painter and potter

Karon Bonnell stands beside a collection of her watercolor landscapes. She is one of a number of local artists who will be exhibiting their work at the Top 'O Texas Arts and Crafts Show sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association Oct. 16 and 17. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

She knows her art

By Cinda Robinson
Lifestyles Editor

Most artists paint what they know, and know what they paint. This is the case of Karon Bonnell of Pampa.

Her subject matter is confined to wildlife and landscapes. "I am most familiar with these. I find watercolor, though sometimes difficult to handle, the most suitable for this," Bonnell said.

Her work is not confined strictly to painting, however.

"When the paper becomes too flat I feel the need to turn to something three dimensional," she explained. This is where pottery comes in.

"My stoneware pieces are mostly functional ware, whereas my Raker pieces are more decorative art pieces," she said.

Raker is an oriental firing process once associated with Yen Tea ceremonies.

Bonnell is an active member of the Pampa Fine Arts Association and has been an exhibitor in the Arts and Crafts Festival for several years showing both watercolors and pottery.

Her work will be on display again this year at the 18th Annual Top 'O Texas Arts and Crafts Festival sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 9 & 10 in the M. K. Brown Auditorium.

The show, which brings both exhibitors and buyers from surrounding states, will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 9, and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10.

Bonnell is also an active member of the Pampa Art Club where she shares her knowledge with fellow members. At the next meeting she will show interested members how to work in clay.

A graduate of WTSU with a degree in art education, Bonnell also studied art at Oklahoma State University. She taught art classes at the Amarillo Art Center for two seasons and at St. Vincent de Paul School in Pampa.

She now devotes her time to her daughter and working with her watercolors and pottery.

Her husband, Jim Bonnell, is a recognized photographer.

Dear Abby

Reader socks it to Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In the summer of 1979 I met and fell in love with a boy I'll call "Joe." He was 23 and very handsome and charming. I had just turned 17. I was a virgin and had always planned to wait until I was married to have sexual relations, but Joe put a lot of pressure on me so I finally gave in because I didn't want to lose him.

I didn't use any birth control and got pregnant. Joe and I broke up and he left the state before I knew I was pregnant. I didn't know where he went or how to contact him. I never thought to ask him his last name. It just never came up.

Anyway, I had my baby alone and put "father unknown" on the baby's birth certificate. Well, last week Joe showed up. He was surprised to hear about the baby and wants to help any way he can and be a father to "little Joey." He is willing to help with my expenses like day care so I can go back to school, work part-time and get off welfare.

He also wants his name on the baby's birth certificate, but he's afraid that he will have to pay back welfare for the money I was paid for the last two years. Is that true? It amounts to about $15,000. Thank you.

NEEDS HELP IN TEXAS

DEAR NEEDS HELP: The rules and regulations of welfare departments vary in each state. Your caseworker can answer your questions. I think the welfare department would be delighted to learn that the baby's father returned and is willing to assume the responsibility of supporting his child.

DEAR ABBY: "Sock Fight in Winona" asked if there was a right sock and a left sock, and you said, "No. And if I'm wrong, I'm sure some sock designer will sock it to me."

Well, I'm no sock designer, but you are wrong! When one puts on a pair of socks, after putting on one sock, the other one is always "left," right?

EVAN W. PATTERSON, SEATTLE

DEAR EVAN: Right, until you put on the one that's left, after which neither is left, which follows as the night the day, they are both right, right?

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter you apologized for your "thoughtlessness and insensitivity" to "Brown and Burning," because of your response to "Cooled Off in Coos Bay." ("Cooled Off" was having trouble responding to her husband's sexual advances, so you suggested that she fantasize that he was Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds and Paul Newman rolled into one.)

"Brown and Burning" wrote to say that the three glamour models you listed wouldn't do for her because she happened to be an Afro-American woman, and why didn't you include at least one black male?

Abby, you also failed to include a Latin-American, Chinese, Japanese, American Indian, Eskimo and several other ethnic minorities.

Since I am of Chinese, Japanese, Polynesian and American Indian origin, I would also appreciate your mentioning at least one representative of my national origins. Admittedly, by having to do this, you might somewhat dilute the point you are making, but at least you wouldn't be guilty of discrimination.

MULTICOLORED AND BURNING

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Hair spray

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sprayed hair doesn't have to look that way, says Patrik Moreton, a hair stylist.

"I like to use an aerosol spray on hair, then run my fingers through the hair. This loosens the hair so that you have the body and the durability but not the set look," the stylist said.

"Like anything in excess, too much spray is bad," he added.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

This coming year you are likely to make a major shift in goals. The new ones you set for yourself will be more within your reach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to maintain in middle course today. There is a possibility you could be overly assertive in some instances and much too passive in others. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday, and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Double-check all your facts and figures today regarding things which you are doing for yourself, as well as that which you are managing for others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friends will back off today if you try to sell them on ideas you do not fully understand or believe in yourself. Sincerity is a "must."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Protect your self-interests today, but also strive to be fair and sharing with those who are working at your side. Acknowledge allies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days where you might put more effort into things which have no real value than you will on those which can offer true advantages.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't do things today which oppose your better judgment. When your common sense sends signals to back off, you'd be wise to heed it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Normally you're rather definite, and others have no trouble in understanding your position on issues. However, today your indecisiveness may confuse them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Should you have a misunderstanding with a coworker today, don't rehash it once it's resolved. If you fail to let sleeping dogs lie, you'll create unnecessary problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not take anything for granted financially or commercially today. Assumptions could lead to mistakes, causing you to lose in the long run.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take extra pains to be explicit and accurate when communicating important information today. If others don't understand the facts, they can't do your bidding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not discuss things which were told to you in strict confidence today. You could lose an ally if he or she learns of it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Matters which affect your finances or security should be attended to as early as possible today. While your mind is fresh there are fewer chances for mistakes.

Breaks Up Pass

Levi leads LaJet Classic

ABILENE, Texas (AP)—Some ideal conditions — warm, sunny weather and the rare absence of west Texas wind that stripped the Fairway Oaks Golf and Racquet Club course of its natural defenses — helped Wayne Levi, Craig Stadler and Jay Haas lead the massive assault on par in the first round of the $350,000 LaJet Classic.

In all, 71 men in the field of 156 broke par 72 Thursday. But Ray Floyd, the PGA champion vainly struggling to overtake Stadler on the money-winning list, was not among them.

Neither was Tom Kite, who's attempting to nail down a second consecutive Vardon Trophy in what may be his last start of the season.

Nor was Tom Watson, holder of the U.S. and British Open titles and leading in the race for a fifth Player of the Year title.

The weather didn't help them. Floyd, who has missed the cut in his last two starts, matched par 72. Watson, holding a narrow lead over Stadler in the standings that will determine Player of the Year, was one stroke higher. And the weary Kite had an opening 74 for the second consecutive week. All must improve today if they are to qualify for the final two rounds of play Saturday and Sunday.

While they were struggling, however, Levi birdied six of his last seven holes for an 8-under-par 64 that set the first round pace and, he said, could have been better.

Levi, who has quietly collected more than $200,000 in earnings this season and acquired the fourth victory of his career early in the year, missed putts of eight feet or less on his first five holes.

"I had a real good chance to shoot in the 50s if I'd made some putts early," he said. "But if I did, who's to say I would have made the late ones."

Mike Morley, who said he has "been in a reasonable slump," scored two eagles on his way to a 65 that left him alone in second.

Stadler, the Masters champion and leading money-winner, made a late rush with birdies on four of his last five holes for a 66 that put him only two shots back and in position to challenge for a fifth title of the season. He was tied with John Fought and Vance Heafner.

Haas, who has won his last two starts, again played without a bogey and recorded a 67. He now has gone 111 holes, over three tournaments, with only one bogey.

Patriots shut down Canyon White, 28-0

John Thomas scored two touchdowns and threw for another as the Pampa Patriots walloped Canyon White, 28-0, Thursday in eighth-grade football action at the middle school field.

Thomas scored on runs of 50 and eight yards and tossed a 25-yard TD pass to Mark Williams, all in the first half.

Cliff Medley threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to Shannon Doss in the fourth quarter to round out the scoring.

Pampa's defense, led by noseguard Charles Addington, never gave the Canyon offense a chance to get started. Tim Harvey, Michael Yates and Mark Williams were other defensive standouts for Pampa.

Pampa eighth grade, now 2-0-1, plays Canyon Purple there next Thursday.

Canyon White defeated Pampa, 32-6, in a seventh-grade game Tuesday.

Troy Owens scored on a 65-yard run for Pampa's only score. "We just didn't play good defense," Pampa coach Pete Erwin said. "That's what it all boiled down to."

Pampa seventh-graders play at Canyon Purple next Tuesday. In ninth-grade play Thursday, Pampa and Borger battled to a 0-0 deadlock at Harvester Stadium.

Borger drew first blood in the third quarter, but Pampa bounced back in the same quarter to score on a Brent Cryer's 20-yard pass to Richard Fishburn.

Noseguard Todd Wilcox played outstanding defense for Pampa, according to coach Justin Marchel.

The Threshers, 1-1-2, travel to Dumas next Thursday for a 4:30 p.m. kickoff.

Injury-riddled Harvesters meet explosive Estacado Saturday

Without a moment's notice, Lubbock Estacado can turn a close game into a rout. The Matadors do it with the big play, and that's what has Pampa High coach John Kendall concerned about Saturday's District 1-4A clash.

"To win we've got to keep Estacado from making the big play," Kendall said. "They've won their games with the kickoff return or a long pass. With their speed they've got the type of offense that can score at anytime."

Pampa enters the game still looking for its first win after four outings. The Harvesters battled Levelland to an 8-8 tie last Friday night while Lubbock Estacado (3-1) downed Borger, 20-6, in district openers for both teams.

A 43-yard touchdown pass, a 70-yard punt return and a Borger fumble resulted in or germinated Estacado's three scores.

"They're very definitely a big play club due to their speed factor," Kendall added. "They've got one of the best high school teams in the state as far as speed goes."

In the latest Harris Ratings, Estacado is ranked 17th in the state with 159 points. Among the eight district schools, the Matadors are ranked second in total offense (1,154 yards) and third in total defense (871 yards).

"The most important thing for us right now is to keep improving each we," Estacado coach Louis Kelley said. "Pampa has had some hard luck, but I feel like they're going to get it all together before it's all over with. I just hope it's not against us."

"I saw the Pampa-Clovis film and I thought Pampa did a good job against Clovis, which has a fine team," Kelley said. "I think Pampa is capable of having a very explosive team. They've got some good people at skill positions."

Estacado's win over Borger avenged last season's 7-0 loss to the Bulldogs, who went on to win the district crown. It was the Matadors only district loss in the last four years.

"We're more explosive then we were last year," Kelley said. "Our defense was better last year at this time, but we've got more depth and better passing this year."

Estacado's power-I offense is led by fleet tailback Percy Harris, a 180-pound senior who has rushed for 375 yards in just 45 tries, which amounts to a whopping 8.3 yards per carry.

Quarterback Wayne Dotson, fullback Billy Hurst and wingback Wayne White are the other backfield speedsters.

Up front, the Matadors have some big men in two-way tackle Moses Stubblefield (245), center Donald Young (215), offensive tackle Jerry Quigley (205) and offensive guard Glenn Willis (215).

Estacado lost its opener to Plainview, 14-0, then came back to beat Big Spring, 12-0, Midland High, 23-6, and Borger. Kendall not only must find a way to deal with Estacado, but he also has the recurring problem of filling a roster.

Five full or parttime starters—offensive guard Bryan Bowen, defensive tackle Bill Carter, tailback Harold Ellison, fullback Dennis Kuempel and center Steve Seely—are sidelined with either injuries or the flu bug. Kuempel (170-pound sophomore), who leads the Harvesters in rushing with 173 yards on 45 carries, is on the shelf with a knee injury. Kuempel scored Pampa's touchdown and conversion against Levelland. Gregg Mitchell is expected to replace Kuempel.

"Our lineup is uncertain. We're dealing with injuries and the flu bug has bitten us again," Kendall said. "We're going to have to start different people in different areas, but I feel like the kids I put in there can do the job."

Pampa is ranked 105th with 135 points in the Harris Ratings. Pampa is ranked seventh in total offense (730 yards) and fifth in total defense (989 yards) among District 1-4A teams.

Saturday afternoon's game kicks off at 2 p.m. at Lubbock's Lowrie Field. Advance tickets ($4 adults, $1 students) for the game are still on sale at the Athletic Business Office.

The game will also be aired on KPDN (1340) in Pampa, starting at 1:45 p.m. with Pat Albert doing the play by play.

Pampa gymnast wins at Amarillo

Jodie Denman of the Pampa Dust Devils was the all-around gymnast at the District 8 Class Three-Four qualifying meet last weekend in Amarillo.

Miss Denman won the vault, beam and floor exercises and placed second on the bars. She won all-around honors in the 12-14 age group.

Miss Denman also won the all-around trophies for Class Four and for the combined

Rosson grabs one-stroke lead

FLoydada's Ronnie Rosson claimed a one-stroke edge after yesterday's second round of the West Texas Chapter of the PGA Championship Golf Tournament at the Pampa Country Club course.

Rosson, who shared the first-round lead with Big Spring's Gary Hammer, had a one-over-par 72 yesterday for a two-day total of 141 entering today's final round.

Midland's George Clark had the big day yesterday, however.

Clark moved from ninth after the first round to sole possession of second with a 142 total. Clark had a two-under-par 69 yesterday. Hammer, on the other hand, had his problems as the course played completely different than it did Wednesday.

Hammer had a 77 yesterday after Wednesday's 69 for a 146 total which left him tied for sixth place with Mickey Piersall of Pampa.

The golfers faced a rough 30-mph wind from the north Wednesday, but it switched to 30 mph out of the south for yesterday's round.

Sweetwater's Steve Fry is in third place with a 143 total. The race is far from over with only 18 holes remaining to play. The top 11 golfers are within seven strokes off Rosson's lead entering this morning's 10 a.m. start.

Sophs lose grid game

Amarillo High defeated Pampa, 17-8, Thursday night in a high school sophomore game.

Pampa's only score came on a 24-yard pass from Jeff Steward to David Hinkle in the fourth quarter. Steward passed to Drew Wilson for the conversion.

Jackson rises to the occasion

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The 18th postseason home run for Reggie Jackson tied the all-time record. They flashed it on the electric scoreboard at Anaheim Stadium. It was a graphic on the 100 million TV screens. It got headline attention in all the newspapers.

That's all very nice. But that's not the real Reggie Jackson. This is not just a bull-shouldered power slugger reaching for Ruthian statistics heights. What the homer dramatized was that Reggie seems to spur teams into qualifying for postseason series and, once there, he has a phenomenal flair for the spectacular.

Sometimes it may appear that he is just waiting through the regular season, batting in the 270s and averaging 30 home runs, until the campaign gets down to the nitty-gritty. Then Reggie, like a sizzling fuse, suddenly puts fire to powder and explodes.

That's why they call him "Mr. October."

Baseball purists put little stock in Jackson's proliferating postseason records made over a period of 12 years — 10 league championships and six World Series (counting one in which he laid out with an injury) with three different clubs — but no one dares denigrate his impact on the game.

"Every time he goes to bat he sets a new postseason record," says Seymour Siwoff of Elias Sports Bureau. "But it's a nebulous record. Playoffs didn't come along until 1969, so the Babe Ruth and Mickey Mantle records were restricted to the World Series. Mantle leads with 18. Reggie has 10."

There are many who can show superior statistics — shortstop Robin Yount of the rival Milwaukee Brewers, for instance, apparently a cinch for MVP honors — but none who can claim a greater recognition by the public.

When TV game participants are asked to name a major league ballplayer, the first answer almost always is "Reggie Jackson." They banter his name around the pubs. School kids adopting big league identities in backyard games fight over who will be Reggie.

The name "Reggie" carries the same magical ring that Ruth, DiMaggio and Mantle enjoyed in other eras.

This is a rare individual, indeed, once cold-shouldered by a majority of his Yankee teammates, challenged by his manager (Billy Martin) and leaned upon by a boss (George Steinbrenner) who fined him twice for reporting late and once told him, "Shut up and play ball."

Now, an Angel, Jackson finds himself thrust into the midst of a team of all-stars, every man at every position the best that Gene Autry's money could buy.

Still, Reggie stood apart — a magnetic personality, respected and admired by his star-spangled peers as a man of rare intangible assets that overshadowed his numbers (39 home runs, 101 RBI), a "big moment" producer with a flair for climactic heroics, a born winner.

Mr. October, your month is here.

Forsch 3-hits Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Not even the no-hitter he pitched in 1978 could top the exultation Bob Forsch was to feel following a three-hit masterpiece.

"I think this was a lot more important than a no-hitter," the 32-year-old right-hander said after hurling the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-0 victory Thursday night over the Atlanta Braves. "This was a start toward something we need to do."

Indeed, on the strength of Forsch's performance and an attack that featured 13 hits, St. Louis got off on the right foot in the best-of-five National League Championship Series.

While their pitcher was facing only 30 batters, the Cards were making the most of 11 singles and daring baserunning. "This was kind of typical for us," said Manager Whitey Herzog.

"Embarrassing? No, I wouldn't call it embarrassing," said Atlanta Manager Joe Torre in response to a reporter's post-game query.

"I know the guys wanted it. We just didn't play well. It's just that the Cardinals, with their speed, can do a lot of things once they're ahead."

Torre said the Braves may call tonight on 43-year-old knuckleballer Phil Niekro in an attempt to get even.

SMU, Baylor clash in key SWC matchup

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Baylor and Southern Methodist, the teams that captured the last two Southwest Conference championships, tangle Saturday night in Waco in what has always been a window-rattling affair.

"It's been a tough, tough series we've had with them," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "It has a great tradition going back to the days of the church school rivalry. Used to be, we'd play for the church school championship. Lately, it's been for the Southwest Conference championship."

Undeclared and sixth-ranked SMU was a seven-point favorite over Baylor mainly because the Mustangs have their first-string quarterback available and the Bears don't.

Lance McIlhenny of the Mustangs, who missed last week's North Texas State game with a badly sprained arch, will start.

Baylor isn't as fortunate — although Teaff's backup quarterback David Mangrum is an excellent one. Mike Brannan suffered a pulled hamstring in last week's 21-all tie against Houston and will not play.

In other games across the SWC this week, Texas was a field-goal choice over Oklahoma in their annual Red River rivalry at Dallas; Arkansas was a 16-point selection over Texas Tech at home; Texas Christian was a 10-point favorite over Rice at Fort Worth; and Houston was a six-point choice over Texas A&M in the Astrodome.

Teaff wasn't too concerned that Brannan will miss the SMU game.

"Mangrum has been with us three years now and he knows the system as well as anybody," Teaff said. "His ability to pass the ball is his best asset and he runs the option well, too."

"They have a high caliber team and they're good enough to beat us," said SMU tailback Eric Dickerson. "We won't take them lightly."

Craig James, who alternates at tailback with Dickerson, agreed, saying "Baylor is very tough to beat at home. I know they'll be ready for us."

The difference between a U-Shop "sport" coat and a run of the mill jacket.

It's cut in a silhouette that fits a young man's physique in sizes from regular to extra long. It's cut from woolen and corduroys that reflect the rich rugged look you want from your winter wardrobe ... in oatmeal tweeds, tickweaves, herringbones, glenplaid, windowpanes and wide-wale cords. It's cut with a styling that's easy, informal, all-American ... with special touches like leather elbow patches and storm tabs on the lapels. These are the differences between a "sport" coat and a run-of-the-mill jacket. These are the differences the Hub U-Shop makes. See our new fall selection now.

DR. VICTOR SEARS

Revival at Fellowship Baptist

Dr. Victor Sears will be guest speaker at a week-long revival, October 10th through the 15th, at the Fellowship Baptist Church.

Often called "America's Old-Time Evangelist," Sears, of Springfield, Mo., has been conducting revivals and Bible conferences for more than 43 years.

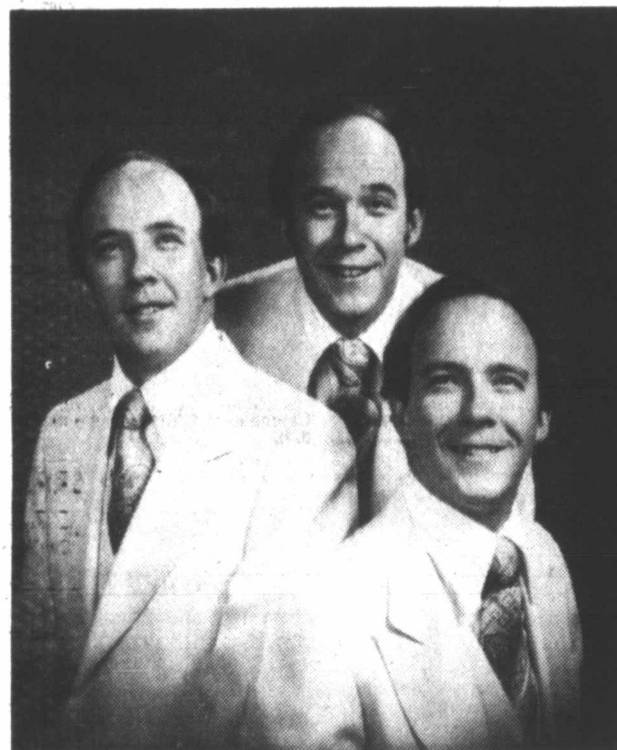

He is a Baptist and Independent, and his meetings have carried him to every major continent in the world and to all the 50 states.

Sears founded and pastored the Twin City Baptist Church of Mishawaka, Ind. for 16 years, and has served as pastor at the Castleberry Baptist Church in Ft. Worth and the First Baptist Church in Englewood, Colo.

He has also served as editor of the world-wide publication, "The Western Voice," and he is a former president of the Baptist Bible Fellowship International.

Sears speaks annually at many of the major Bible conferences in the U.S., and he has written several Christian books.

The evangelist preaches against moral sins of the day, and his ministry places emphasis on the local church.

THE WARE TRIPLETS

Ware Triplets in local concert

The Ware Triplets gospel singers will present a "mini-concert" at the Central Baptist Church, Starkweather and Browning Streets, Sunday, Oct. 10 during the 11 a.m. morning worship service.

Darrel, Gerald and Harold Ware are all ministers of music in Oklahoma churches, and have performed world-wide.

Their special appearances include concerts at Six Flags Over Texas, with Jimmy Dean and with Grandpa Jones of "Hee-Haw."

The public is invited to the service.

First Christian Church sets Minister Appreciation Week

Minister Appreciation Week begins Sunday at the First Christian Church in Pampa.

Scheduled for honors Sunday are the current minister, the Rev. Dr. Bill R. Boswell, the associate minister, the Rev. Paul M. Ragle, and the area minister, Herb Miller.

Boswell is beginning his fifth year of service in Pampa. Boswell began his ministry at Brady, after he received a master of divinity degree from Texas Christian University in 1962.

While serving in Brady, he received his doctorate of divinity degree. Boswell married the former Martha R. Dawson of Falling Creek, N.C.

The couple has two children, Heather, and Robin.

The Rev. Ragle is beginning his second year of ministry in Pampa. Ragle came to First Christian Church from the First Christian Church in Dublin.

He received his master of divinity degree from TCU in 1981.

Ragle married the former Connie Gibbons. Other persons honored at the Sunday service will be ministerial students from the congregation: Stacey Boddy, Eddie Keller and Kory Gamblin.

Additional people scheduled for honors include those church members who have chosen the ministry as a career, including Grant Crow, Hallie Gantz, George W. Depee, Rush Barnett, Harold Smith, Vauncille Moore, Joyce Gordon, Moleta Kennedy, Earnest Miller, Dorothy Meers, Charlotte Allston, Roy King, Eannine Convers, Gale Sims and Leonard Brummett.

A special moment during the ceremony will honor ministers who have served the First Christian Church during the past 75 years.

Sunday School expansion program

The First Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider, is in the second week of a program to enlarge Sunday School classes. The month-long event kicked off last Sunday with "Family Day."

This Sunday's effort is called "Bring a Neighbor Day." Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. and Worship Service begins at 11.

Superintendent Don Hoggatt invites anyone who needs transportation to call 665-2287 or 665-2916.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

A friend in Need...

The Bible tells the story of the Good Samaritan, who gave aid to a traveler that had been beaten and robbed and left to die.

The churches have made it possible for us to have hospitals and care for those in need of medical help. It is also the church's desire to be a friend in time of spiritual need. "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

SPEAKING OF SOAPS

by Mary Ann Cooper

Jeff Chamberlain plays Gordon on "Capitol."

For the millions of daytime television viewers of CBS television's popular new series "Capitol," the character "Lawrence Barrington" needs no introduction. After a succession of vocations that have brought him around the world, actor Jeff Chamberlain finds the tangled web of television drama the most adventurous journey he has taken.

The eldest of seven children born to a successful Los Angeles builder, Chamberlain spent his early youth apprenticing in his father's business. By high school, endowed with formidable strength from his work in construction, Chamberlain joined the football team and over the years collected numerous honors. By his senior year his interest in theatre was emerging, and while he maintained his involvement in football, he began performing in the school musicals. His team dubbed him "twinkle toes," owing to his success on the playing field and on the stage.

After completing courses at BYU, Chamberlain left for Japan to work as a missionary in a field service program. He remained in the Orient for two years and developed an uncanny fluency in Japanese. Though fulfilled with the hope of renewing his involvement in acting.

At the time of his arrival, the producers of "Rich Man, Poor Man" were casting the mini-series and needed short haired extras for the period setting of World War I. Chamberlain, still shorn from his missionary duty, got the job and immediately saw it as an ideal opportunity to observe the day to day work of a professional actor.

Spending the summer as an extra on numerous television and movie projects gave Chamberlain exposure to such notables as Henry Fonda, Charlton Heston and Hal Holbrook. "Having worked so closely with these great talents made me realize that they were very real and tangible people. Just being around them inspired me to make that ultimate commitment to professional acting."

Chamberlain's current role on Capitol exemplifies the right combination of a scheming personality and charming good looks. The character, Gordon Hull, is a computer expert who has tapped into top secret information on the elite inner circles of Washington. Assuming the identity of "Lawrence Barrington," he uses this information to get what he wants - to marry into a wealthy family.

And now a look at what's happening on daytime soaps...

by this experience Chamberlain returned home

Recap: 10/4 - 10/8
Preview: 10/11 - 10/15

ALL MY CHILDREN — Jenny forces Liza to drop the charges against Jessie. Silver gets Kent to agree to let her audition for a soap opera when she catches him romancing his secretary. Silver goes after Jenny's modeling job. Ellen offers to sell Myrtle the dress shop but Myrtle hesitates fearing this will finish Ellen's relationship with Mark for good.

THIS WEEK: Jessie decides to be honest with Greg. Silver plays dirty.

RYAN'S HOPE — When Dom is arrested, the mob is sure Joe set him up and hold a meeting to discuss what they should do about it. Jill is hired to get Dom out of jail and tells Siobhan she should go to the police about the frame-up. Kirkland brings Kim home to live with him. Amanda has a fit when Kim breaks a crystal goblet and only Kirkland can calm her down.

THIS WEEK: Delia is indebted to Ox. Maeve is furious with Johnny.

THIS WEEK: Ernie and Bilan get to know each other better. Gunner tries to protect Barbara.

ANOTHER WORLD — Mac is angry with Rachel for upsetting Elena. Blaine and Sandy are having fun in Wyoming but Sandy thinks she is not ready to visit Claxton. Alma and Cecile become alarmed when Larry discusses clues he found at the shack. Blaine tries to locate her diary. Josie is afraid she will be beaten-up. Quinn gives up Bob to Henrietta.

THIS WEEK: Albert keeps an eye on the studio. Jamie plans a reunion.

EDGE OF NIGHT — Raven agrees to help Ian get to Sky. Foley is looking for the secret documents. Raven plays Sky against Ian. Cliff tells Gunther to leave Miti alone. George Foley and his lady friend are killed in a car accident.

THIS WEEK: Sky is duped by Raven. Mrs. Bowie causes a stir in Monticello.

GUIDING LIGHT — Mark and Amanda are in Madrid and make a pact to be just friends. Louis Oil goes broke. Tony quits Wired for Sound. Josh drops Floyd as a client.

THIS WEEK: Floyd plans his future. Tony sets his priorities.

THE DOCTORS — Billy was left one dollar by Mona while Steve's brother was left a fortune. Steve's smoking nearly caused a major fire. Natalie bought pills from Billy to support her habit.

TEXAS — Fire destroys the Marshall ranch and the Dekker house. The tragedy reunites Justin and Ashley. Reena and Justin decide to remain just friends. Paige refuses George's offer to take care of her. Justin believes Ashley is carrying his child.

THIS WEEK: Paige feels terribly confused. Tj nurses a broken heart.

Receptionist shot to death

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A 23-year-old man gunned down his estranged wife in the parking lot of the hospital where she worked and then fled to his home, where he traded a dozen shots with officers before he was critically wounded, police say.

John Alex Hallmark, 23, was in critical condition at Methodist Hospital in Houston with a shotgun wound in the head.

"I killed my wife and the cops will have to kill me," Montgomery County sheriff's spokesman Ed deForest said Hallmark told a friend.

Dawn Hallmark, 23, was killed instantly just before noon Thursday as she stood outside Hallmark's truck in the parking lot of Doctor's Hospital.

Mrs. Hallmark worked as a receptionist in the hospital. Hallmark was hit by a shotgun blast fired by Department of Public Safety trooper Ike Fluellen during his exchange of shots with law officers, deForest said.

Alleged bomb-placer's bond $1 million

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — A former Durango police officer the FBI says confessed to planting explosives in a Texas refinery is also a suspect in a $70,000 gold heist in Colorado earlier this year, a private security firm executive has said.

Timothy K. Justice, the fifth person arrested in a $15 million extortion plot against Gulf Oil Chemicals Co., appeared Thursday before U.S. Magistrate David West. He was being held on $1 million bond in the La Plata County Jail today.

Justice was arrested Wednesday in Durango, the fifth person taken into custody in the $15 million extortion plot against a Gulf petrochemical plant in Baytown, Texas. His court appearance Thursday coincided with the release of FBI documents reporting that an arsenal of weapons was found spread among the homes of three of the arrested men.

Dale Wunderlich, who operates a security firm in Aurora, confirmed Thursday that Justice worked as a security guard at a Standard Metals mill near Durango from December 1980 until last July, one month after $70,000 in gold was stolen from the operation.

Also charged with violating the federal extortion statute were John Marvin McBride, his common-law wife Jill Renee Bird, Michael Allen Worth and Theodore D. McKinney, all of Durango.

McBride and Worth also are suspects in the gold theft, the Colorado Bureau of Investigation said. Both were hired by the mill two years ago to screen security guards, according to the Colorado Bureau of Investigation.

Charges against Ms. Bird were dropped this week in exchange for McBride's cooperation.

Wunderlich's firm is handling security for the Standard Metals mine and mill at Silverton, 50 miles north of Durango. Authorities said the gold mill received a bomb threat by telephone. The mill was evacuated and an explosive device was later found.

During the mill's evacuation, the office safe had been opened, the gold taken, and the safe glued shut.

Wunderlich said the gold heist and the extortion attempt had several parallels.

"One of the reasons we're looking at it so vigorously is that there are a lot of similarities," he said Thursday. "A bomb was planted, a telephone call made saying there was an anti-disturbance and warning not to touch it or it would blow up, a fence cut — a lot of similarities," Wunderlich said.

The Gulf plant at Baytown, Texas, was closed after the bomb threats were received last week. Five explosive devices with battery-powered detonating gear were found in the plant and McBride led FBI agents to five more cached in the Durango area early this week.

The FBI said Justice told agents he went to the Gulf plant on Sept. 26, cut the security fence, entered the facility and planted five bombs.

Four of the five were safely removed last week and another was detonated harmlessly. Another six devices, including those McBride tipped authorities to, were found in and around Durango.

In documents released Thursday by the FBI, authorities said they seized explosives, 9-volt batteries, maps, correspondence, plans and photograph believed connected to the extortion plot in the Ezra R. mine near Silverton. The mine is owned by McKinney.

McBride, according to the documents, has admitted to building more than 15 explosive devices, including the five found in Texas.
