BANDITS RAID BANK NEAR CORSICANA

POWELL BANK IS LOOTED OF $250 BY 2 ARMED MEN

$3,000 OVERLOOKED AS PAIR APPARENTLY WERE FRIGHTENED

(By Associated Press.)
CORSICANA, July 2.—Two armed bandits entered the Powell State bank at Powell, seven miles east of Corsicana, and while one of the men covered H. H. Hanks, cashier, with a pistol, the other scooped up about $250 in money and made their escape. The robbery occurred shortly after noon and no one was in the bank but Hanks. The robbers overlooked about $3,000. They are believed to have become frightened and made their exit before they completed the job.

Escaped Convicts Held After Robbery

HOUSTON, July 2. (AP)—Robert Pounds, Carl Bolton and S. C. Lewis, escaped convicts from Harlem prison farm, whom police charged with three hold ups here last Tuesday, were captured late Thursday at Shreveport after a robbery there.
They had in their custody an automobile identified as the one stolen here Tuesday from F. H. Chandler, who was held up just outside the city, according to police here.
All three have been charged with robbery by firearms at Shreveport, and it is believed they will be tried before being returned to complete their sentences in Texas, or being returned to answer charges here. They were arrested under the names of Jimmie Walker, James Calahan, and Lonnie Wells, after the robbery in Shreveport of an Italian store where $100 was stolen.

Disbandment Of Ball Club Certain Management Fears

There are a few people in Lubbock who seem to doubt that the amateur ball club assembled under direction of Skipper Sled Allen will disband as per their ultimatum issued the first part of the week, unless financial support is provided, but these few doubting Thomases will wake up some morning to find the club completely disorganized, and the personnel scattered to the four winds.

This was the warning issued here Friday by the Skipper himself, who said that it is unreasonable of Lubbock citizens to presume that they can have the brand of ball necessary to cope with other points in this section at a lower cost than it is being offered to them.

Asks Only Seven Salaries.
He explained again, as has been done time and again, that all that is asked of Lubbock is salaries for seven players at approximately $1,100 on a three months basis, and that if the citizens of the city do not feel that they can pay this amount for organized amateur ball, the next thing to professional performance, the club had better disband and the players seek greener fields elsewhere.

Lubbock, he said, has a reputation to maintain—that of doing what is started, and doing it in the proper spirit. But to date this has been far from accomplished. View from the angle of the city's good name, it appears that it would be nothing short of a disaster for the club to disband and not return to Denver to defend its honors won last year, but such is a natural consequence if the club is allowed to go on the rocks now.

When Mother Totes a Gun!

Two views of "Mother" Mary Talbot, Whittier's deputy constable.

By NEA Service.
WHITTIER, Cal., July 2.—Guntoting and mothering! Such widely separated vocations make up the dual life of Mrs. Mary Talbot, deputy constable of Whittier.

Mary, of the strong hand and dead-end muckraking when law-breakers are abroad, becomes "Mother" Mary whenever there is a stray kid needing advice or comfort.

"I've not shot anyone yet," she says. "But a gun looks business-like. Criminals fear a woman more than a man, because you can never tell what a woman is going to do, especially when she has a gun in her hand."

"I'm much happier when I lay my gun aside and take up my other role of advisor and comforter to Whittier's erring youth. Sometimes a bit of mothering makes a young criminal into a respectable, God-fearing citizen."

"I'm here to supply either the discipline or the sympathy needed."

(By the Associated Press.)

The United States also made it plain that it would not place the carrying out of any program of limitation of armaments in the hands of an international body. Brigadier General Dennis A. Nolan, told the military committee that the United States felt that execution of any international agreement for the limitation of armaments must depend upon international good faith and respect for treaties.

Law Enforcement Under Ferguson Rapped By Judge

STEPHENVILLE, Texas, July 2.—District Judge J. B. Keith introduced Attorney General Dan Moody for an address here Thursday with the charge that the Ferguson administration has been flippant toward law enforcement.

Judge Keith adjourned court so that a jury then hearing a case might hear the candidate. "The State is handicapped by an administration which does not give a flip whether laws are enforced," Judge Keith declared. District Attorney Sam Russell, who presided, previously characterized James E. Ferguson as "a governor serving through a petticoat."

Moody's program Friday included an afternoon address at Marlin and one in the evening at Temple.

Davidson At Abilene
ABILENE, July 2. (AP)—On his way from San Angelo to Abilene yesterday, Lyness Davidson made four speeches and concluded the day with a fifth address before a crowd which filled a large section of Federal lawn park and stood for two hours to hear the candidate.

In his speech here, Davidson referred to Dan Moody's recent marriage to Miss Paxton of Abilene by saying that "I feel as if I stand upon promised ground for Abilene." Davidson would show poor spirit if they did not feel very kindly toward the young man who showed such good judgment in selection of his bride.

Referring to the announcement of Oscar Holcombe, Mayor of Houston and the entire city administration, in Davidson's favor he said: "The oil-owned press of Houston has been broadcasting the statement that I will not carry my home town, which I carried two years ago by 2,000 plurality. The mayor and city administration would not take this stand against the powerful newspaper interests there if the people were not backing me."

"I see 'telegrams' are pouring in to say that the political situation everywhere has turned topsy-turvy in the past few weeks and where I was trailing the other two candidates, I am now kicking dust in their faces and looking back at them." He said he has had to abandon indoor meetings because of inability to find halls large enough to contain the crowds.

YOUNG SOLDIERS ARRIVE AT CAMP

GALVESTON, July 2. (P)—Fort Crockett, key to the fortifications defending the Galveston bay ports, sea-board terminal of the American Southwest yesterday was a scene of war-like activity after months of dormant existence under a care taking detachment.

Several hundred young Texans were registering for the citizens military training camp which opens today for a period of 20 days under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Wilbur A. McDaniel. A battalion of the Twenty-Third Infantry, comprising more than 300 regular troops from Fort Sam Houston will take part in training the young recruits.

Arrangements were being made for the arrival of a motor truck convoy from Kelly Field bringing equipment for the third attack group which has been assigned to Fort Crockett. The convoy, bearing 320 enlisted men and officers is scheduled to reach here this afternoon.

ELECTION CHANGE IN TEXAS IS GREAT

PORT WORTH, July 2. (P)—Changes in the election and primary laws of Texas made during the revision of 1925, are much more vital than many citizens suppose and most of the controversies over technicalities are due to reference to old editions of the law or reliance on memory, says a statement issued from republican state headquarters here yesterday.

Despatches from San Antonio stating that Fred E. Kretsch, candidate for Congress, against Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach, would be barred from the ticket because he had failed to file an expense account with the county clerk of his own county, is one example the statement says.

The revised law provides that candidates for state and district nominations and their managers shall file these returns with the Secretary of State. Only candidates for county and district nominations and assistant managers for state and district offices functioning in one county, being required to file with the county clerk.

Canada Parliament May Be Dissolved

OTTAWA, Ont., July 2. (P)—Dissolution of the Canada Parliament, with new elections, is an apparent certainty in consequence of the vote against the Meighen government in the House of Commons today.

In the latter event, former premier Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, would be called upon again to form a government.

REDS' HOPE FOR PENNANT GIVEN TERRIBLE JOLT

LOSE SECOND STRAIGHT BUT PIRATES WHIP FIGHTING CARDS

(By the Associated Press.) John Hendricks, who has expressed the belief that his Cincinnati club will win the National League pennant, perhaps is wavering a bit. The Reds have lost twice in two days and now lead the league by a margin of three and one-half games over the Cardinals.

Possibly Hendricks did not figure on Hack Wilson, who accomplished Cincinnati's downfall yesterday with a home run for Chicago in the eleventh. The score was 2 to 1, and the pitching victim Pete Donohue.

Pirates End Losing Streak And there came a threat from another quarter when the Pirates of Pittsburgh brought to an end a losing streak that had endured for eight games. Five runs in the seventh put the Pirates ahead and they downed the Cardinals, 7 to 3.

The Giants edged back into the 500 class by beating Brooklyn, 5 to 3, with another defeat for Jess Petty. A seventh inning rally gave the Boston Braves a 2 to 1 verdict over Philadelphia.

Washington and New York divided a double-header in the American League, Mark Koenig winning the first game for the Yankees, 3 to 2, with a triple off Walter Johnson in the ninth and Combs on base. Lou Gehrig of New York hit a homer in this contest.

Much hard hitting featured the second encounter. Goslin tallying a homer and Buck Harris a brace of run counting doubles.

Red Sox Beat Athletics The Athletics fell before the Red Sox, 10 to 5, nine pitchers working.

Two runs in the ninth brought the St. Louis Browns from behind to defeat the White Sox, 4 to 2, Melillo's triple accounting for the winning. Falk of Chicago and Sisler of St. Louis had home runs.

Manush registered a home run, two triples and a double for Detroit but his team was beaten by a late Cleveland rally, 11 to 6.

The Indians gathered nine runs in the last two innings. Summa's homer accounted for three scores in the ninth.

Matty Matsuda Wins In Bout At Dallas

DALLAS, July 2. (AP)—Matty Matsuda, El Paso, claimant of the world's welterweight wrestling championship, won two out of three falls from Tommy Lewis, Columbus, Ohio, here Thursday night.

Matsuda took the first fall with a Japanese arm lock. Lewis won the second with a headlock and Matsuda the third with the flying mare while he held a double arm lock. Lewis was knocked out. Times were 15, 21 and 31 minutes.

Lewis and Opponent Wrestle To Draw

BOSTON, July 2. (AP)—Ed (Starbuck) Lewis of Kansas City and Joe Malcewicz, of Utica, N. Y., wrestled to a draw early today in what had been billed as a bout for the world's heavyweight championship. The draw was declared at 2 o'clock after the men had contended for three hours and were near exhaustion. Previously each had won a fall.

Malcewicz has claimed the championship since Joe Starcher's default last winter.

Why Boys Leave Home

"Rusty," 12-year old boy living in Springfield, Mo., admired Babe Ruth, but had never seen him. So he ran away from home and walked all the way to St. Louis, where the New York Yankees were playing. The police arrested him as a runaway, but took him to the game, where the Babe autographed a ball for him and then hit a homer. Rusty was taken back home satisfied.

Another good way to get rich quick is to have Pennsylvania politicians bidding for your vote.

Wild William Melhorn broke his brace and threw the fragments at a caddy in the British open golf tournament. . . . Good gosh, what will the king and the queen say?

The main difference between Jim Jefferies and Tom Sharkey (who are putting on an act on Broadway) and the modern fighters is that the moderns do not wait until they have retired to put on acts.

Paul Berlenbach will be defending his title twice within 60 days. . . . This is a grave infraction of the rules of the business and will unquestionably provoke a severe reprimand from the boxing union.

Those Russians who are playing football on horseback no doubt got the idea from the well-known Four Horsemen of Notre Dame.

Rhem of Cards Another young pitching phenom is blossoming in the National League. He is Charles Flint Rhem, who graduated to the St. Louis Cardinals via Clemson College and the Fort Smith club of the Western Association.

With less than a full season of professional experience before he entered the major league field, Rhem promises to develop into a genuine pitching star.

Rhem's pitching easily has overshadowed all major league rivals this season. His work not only has advanced "Rog" Hornsby's team to the first division class but it is barely possible that this 22-year-old youngster may be the means of giving the Cardinals a look-in for the National League pennant.

Built Like Joss

RHEM is built along the lines of the late Addie Joss. He is tall and slim but instead of featuring a sidearm and underhand shoot as Addie did, Rhem whips across an overhand curve and fire ball that set down many fence-busters.

The curve is the chief stock in trade. It is almost a reproduction of the shot that made Vic Willis famous years ago.

Last season, when Rhem started by winning eight out of 13 games, National League managers predicted that a pitching arm could not stand the strain of constant curve-ball shooting. And when Rhem failed to win a game after July 5, losing eight in succession, they were convinced that the precious arm had wilted.

Bob and Bill

However, what Rhem needed was an experienced catcher and coach. He found both when Bob O'Farrell, veteran receiver, was obtained by the Cardinals last summer and when Bill Killefer joined the club as coach.

O'Farrell and Killefer drilled with Rhem constantly during the training trip with the result that it looks as if the Cardinals have the most promising National League pitcher since Pete Donohue made his debut with the Reds.

Rhem was discovered by Scout Charles Barrett while pitching for Clemson College in 1923. He was sent to the Fort Smith club in the Western Association in 1924 and was the leading strikeout pitcher that season.

Bentley as Pitcher

JACK BENTLEY has gone back to his original trade of pitching. With the Phillies dropping from a first division club to the dark spots of the cellar in the National League owing to weak pitching, Art Fletcher has pulled Bentley off first base to add a competent pitcher to the Phillies' staff.

When Bentley was obtained by the Phillies in a trade with the Giants last winter, Fletcher was more than pleased with the exchange.

"I have what I need," said Fletcher. "a fence-buster for first base. Jack will first base for me and break up many games."

Before the season opened Fletcher regarded his pitching staff, composed of Dean, Mitchell, Carlson, Knight, Willoughby, Ulrich and Mann, as plenty strong enough.

No Hal Chase

BENTLEY, husky and awkward, was anything but a Hal Chase around first base in fielding. Regarded as a fence-buster through his baseball career, he was expected to make up for his defensive deficiencies with his over-the-fence wallop.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS

Bases are filled, one is out, runner on first collides with fielder about to field batted ball. Runners on second and third score on the play. What is proper ruling?

The fielder always has the right-of-way, the baserunner must avoid him to escape being penalized.

When runner collides with fielder about to make a play on a batted ball, the runner should immediately be called out.

Since runners cannot advance on an interference of this nature, the runners who scored on the play are sent back to their original bases, second and third.

The batsman who hit the ball is granted first base. So the situation remains the same, the bases are still filled, except two are now out instead of one.

home runs but as a regular for the Phillies he failed to slap a single circuit wallop in 45 games.

And then Fletcher's forecast of his pitching staff was out of gear. The pitching was too weak to carry the hitting, thus Fletcher believes Bentley can render more assistance as a pitcher than a first baseman to the hopeless Phils.

SECRETS OF STARS INSIDE BASEBALL

as told by BILLY EVANS

By HARRY HEILMANN

Champion Batsman, American League

Natural ability is an asset that every great batsman must have.

By natural ability I mean a keen eye, a rhythmic swing and the ability to co-ordinate. If there is power back of the swing all the better.

However, there are many great batters in baseball who are not hard hitters. Power is not absolutely necessary, but it helps considerably.

Every batter, if ambitious, can cash in to a greater degree on his natural ability, if willing to make the extra effort.

Using the head, as we say in baseball, will help every player improve his batting to a marked degree. It is possible to benefit greatly by studying the style of opposing pitchers and the system employed by the various catchers.

A great many catchers have a more or less set system in the handling of their pitchers. A close study of such catchers will give the batsman a pretty good idea of the style ball that is to be pitched. Such knowledge always helps.

One can learn much by watching closely the work of other star batters. I have learned much from Cobb. Of late years I have made several changes in my style at the plate which I feel have worked to my great advantage.

Confidence in one's ability is most necessary. Try to feel that you always have the edge on the pitcher.

Perfect a strong, free swing without any hitches that ends in a follow through, as they say in golf. Such a style gets the weight of the body back of the swing and makes for distance.

Stand Close With Irons

The ball must be hit firmly and crisply with the mashie, with all the iron in fact, and that cannot be done easily if we stand too far away. A close stance gets more over the ball, and from that position we are able to control the club-head. It is power as much as accuracy that is essential in the approach on that very point. When, however, the stance is far from the ball, the swing is seldom true, and, worst of all, the balance of the body is apt to be upset.

There is little body movement in the mashie shot, but that will creep in if the stance is far from the ball.

Watching the players in a tournament a short time ago, I saw many who had this fault, and as there was a good deal of wind blowing, many approaches never found the greens at all. That is, of course, fatal in a stroke competition; in fact, in a match.

Standing too far away, the club does not come up straight enough in a mashie approach. It inclines to be swung round the right leg.

France's two great difficulties are raising children and money to pay its debt.—Milwaukee Journal.

There never was a smoke so pleasing as Camel

IN LIFE'S supreme moments no cigarette can compare with Camel. No other cigarette ever was made so good, for Camel excellence is the result of skill. Skill in finding the world's choicest tobaccos—in blending, as only the world's largest organization of experts can.

From the beginning Camel took its stand on the quality platform, and nothing could ever induce its makers to change Camel tobaccos. No expense is spared, no care is too great to make Camel the world's most satisfying smoke, regardless of price.

In popularity with smokers, no cigarette made can touch Camels.

Camel quality has been rewarded with the greatest demand, the largest sales any cigarette ever enjoyed. Since smoking began, there was never such a growing preference as for Camels. Camel rewards its friends with enjoyment that never ends, for Camels never tire the taste, simply never leave a cigarettey after-taste.

If you have never tried Camels, if you do not know how good, how satisfying a cigarette can be, we invite you to try them now for the utmost in smoking pleasure. Have the best that's made—we invite you—

Have a Camel!

GET IN THE BUGGY

Yesterday members of the Board of Directors met in executive session, elected officers and laid plans for the greatest fair in the history of the South Plains.

The men who make up the fair's directorate are capable, earnest workers for the betterment of this community, county and section, and they're going to do it in their power to make the 1926 Panhandle and South Plains fair the greatest event of its kind ever staged in the territory.

But even though the leaders of the fair will labor long and hard, giving generously of their time and talents to that which is everybody's business, the fair will not and cannot be the success that it can and should be if every man jack of us does not get behind and lift his share of the load.
The Panhandle and South Plains fair is no longer a "pumpkin show." It is a real exposition and to improve it yearly in the future as it has been improved in the past, will take a great deal of cooperation. It means real work-work that cannot possibly be accomplished by a few individuals—
if the Panhandle and South Plains fair is to keep its place along side of Amerillo's Tri-State exposition and Abilene's
All-Week Texas fair.

Lubbock citizens who really have the good of Lubbock and the South Plains at heart, will get behind the fair in no uncertain manner—they will express their willingness to help to the officials of the fair—and, to put it like we West Texas folks can best understand it—will "Get In The Buggy."
EDIT

ANOTHER YOUNG MAN

The other day a young man, an exceedingly young man we'll say, was placed in the office of City Engineer in Lubbock.

But in spite of his years, which numbered but twenty-five, Marvin Rochelle Smith—just plain "Red" Smith, if you like it better—has had experience and possesses the talent, to carry on efficiently the important work of the office to which he has been appointed by men old enough to be his father.

The Journal regrets that the city's engineering requirements have fallen off to the extent that the services of Harry Roberts, one of the Southwest's leaders in his profession, are no longer necessary. For Mr. Roberts, the city officials unanimously say has done admirable work in the carrying out of the water, sewer and paving extensions here.

But since it has been decided that the work will not be urgent enough to keep a man of Mr. Roberts' standing in the engineering world in the position
The Journal is glad that the work of carrying on has been tendered to and accepted by a young man with his future before him, and predicts success, in a wide measure, to the efforts of "Red" Smith.

HOW COME?

Texas has six democratic and two republican candidates for governor.
Counting the two republican candidates out, because of their politics,
and eliminating those of the democratic entries because they have never had a chance to be elected, leaves three, any of whom, most anyone, however prejudiced, will admit have an opportunity to become Texas
chief executive.

Now just why are the other three running?

Have you ever stopped to think of that?

Is it to increase their personal prestige—give them advertising which they need in their vocations or is it because some one of the stronger candidates want them in there to split
the ballots on the first primary?

Frankly, The Journal has no idea why the other three are running. It may be that they honestly believe they have a chance to be the next governor of Texas.

But if they do believe that we'll have an opinion that their belief is unjustified to their own use and they are not smart enough to be governor of a great state like Texas.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAVING UP and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, July 2.—See-saving up and down Broadway I saw a sign in front of a new tea and coffee entertainment which read: "All you can drink for a dime."

I discovered that one can really drink
as much Java or Ceylon as capacity permits, for the small price of one dime, 10 cents. And, as another indication that Broadway may be setting the pace in reducing the cost of living, inside the cafe is another sign reading: "Do not tip the waiter." The sign is really almost too great.

Saw "Peaches" Browning and her millionaire husband attending a Charleston contest at the Polo Grounds and they do say that "Daddy" Browning can step more than a couple of the tough steps himself. Also saw Sam Ryan, the 52-year-old Charleston dancer, who has made enough money during the craze to pay his way back to his old home in Ireland.

Saw Percy Hammond, the drama critic, wearing golf knickerbockers at a night performance and not batting an eye. Saw John Philip Sousa making ready for his annual tour and reem-ing most hale and hearty for his years.
And Bob Burns, actor, having his nose rebuilt for a "handsome hero" part.
The medal still goes to Ruth Gordon who had her boy-legs straightened so that they would present a better appearance on the stage.

Saw a lot of Broadway actors doing "billy-boo" stuff at Coney Island shows last Sunday. Seems that summering on the road is sometimes precious. And while the role of spieler at a side-show may have its shortcomings from the stand point of prestige, it assures a weekly pay check.

I know one actor who he's such a job in order to make his out-of-town friends think he can afford to summer at the seashore.

OUR CIVIC WORKERS

The other day the president of one of Lubbock's civic clubs spoke at a meeting of another of the city's organizations of the same kind, stressing the good which these groups are doing throughout the world.

It's too bad that more people were unable to hear the address of Garland Woodward, Kiwanis club president, before the Rotary club—too bad that persons who do not realize the worth of service clubs to the nation, were not given the opportunity given to the Rotarians who understood that the words spoken by their contemporary, civic worker were bedrock truths.

There are many people right here in Lubbock who look upon the city's service clubs as useless organizations—and they take that viewpoint because they do not understand.

Lubbock could better do without natural gas, with but one utilities plant and without another railroad than it could its civic clubs. The good which these organizations have brought to our city is so vast that it cannot be summed up.

The satisfaction of being right is that after fifty years or so everybody will come round to your opinion—

There Once Was an Elephant Who always had plenty to Eat

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARL S. P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, July 2.—President
Coolidge is like a trainer in a careful of lions.

The lions mind the trainer so long as they're afraid of him.

But they don't like him. That is,
they don't like him in any other sense
than that they'd like to eat him up.

Perhaps they could, too, but they're not sure of it. They're suspicious that he's got a gun or something up his sleeve. If they jump at him, they've an idea maybe he'll grab it out and bowl 'em over dead.

But once let just one of those lions give that trainer a good scratch or take a bite out of his leg, and then let the rest of 'em see that he hasn't got a gun or anything, and it's Mr.
Trainer, good night.

President Coolidge's lions are getting out of hand. How much so, it's as yet a little too soon to say. Between now and next November we shall find out.

In other words, his own national party leaders, with mighty few exceptions, never did like Calvin Coolidge.

But they were afraid of him.
Or, rather, they were afraid of what they believed to be his popularity with a big majority of the voters.

Now, beyond question, his popularity has waned. Has it waned to a point where they can safely chew him up? As previously remarked, it will take a few more weeks or months
to show.

It isn't his opposition party that President Coolidge needs to worry about.
It's his own. He's a goner unless he can remain popular enough with it to make his lions let him alone.

"Sic 'em, lions!" the Illinois Republican voters have hollered already.
"Sic 'em, sic 'em!" the Oregon Republicans have yelled.

From Pennsylvania, "Sic 'em, sic em, sic, sic, sic!"

Loud cries of "Sic 'em!" make the welkin ring, in the direction of Iowa.
President Coolidge can't stand much more of this "sic-ing" and survive.

A year ago President Coolidge had his lions jumping through hoops.
Six months ago he had a few sulky
lions in his cage.

Today you can hear 'em growl.
What next?

Journal Jobs

The young are forgiven much of their foolishness because of their inexperience, and they are quite willing to accept this lenient view of their conduct. But still most boys and girls are strongly imbued with the idea that the experience of their parents is nothing but a mixture of prejudice and old-fogeyism.

A man magnifies his own virtues
by praising others. By praising himself he belittles himself.
Prejudice keeps its eyes tight shut
for fear of discerning the truth.

A "good fellow" is usually a man who has plenty of leisure in which to accumulate a lot of bad habits.

One of the easy ways to make a fool of a man is to tell him that nobody is smart enough to do it.

The modern youth can even think he ought to be admired for wearing trousers that look like phosphate bags.

Helpful Health Hints By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING Director General U. S. Public Health Survey

VITAMINES ARE VITAL
You must not trust your instincts.
In summer especially, as to the amount of food you need or the kind of food
you should eat.
Vitamines are food elements which are vital to life. Sometimes these vitamines are destroyed by cooking. For this reason some raw food should form a part of the daily diet. In all seasons, fruits, lettuce and celery are important, fruit in particular, since it helps to prevent constipation. Fruits also give the body valuable mineral salts and help preserve the teeth.
If possible, three green vegetables should be eaten every day. Besides furnishing food elements which are essential to the body, vegetables add bulk, which is important.

Remember that you do not need fancy foods to remain healthy. Plain food is just as good for you and is healthier. Potatoes, meat and milk are much better than cake, pie or candy.
Avoid malnutrition by using a balanced ration. Do not overeat, chew your food well, drink plenty of milk and eat plenty of green vegetables, do not eat too much meat or too many sweets. If you will take these steps you will have taken a most important step in avoiding preventable diseases.

QUEER QUIRKS NATURE

CAT RETAINS POWERS OF WILD
ANCESTORS

By ARTHUR N. PACK
President, The American Nature
Association.

Of all the animals domesticated by

Of all the animals domesticated by man the cat has shown herself best able to retain the peculiar powers and abilities of her wild ancestors.
As far back as history is recorded we find the unmistakable features of the cat.

Tabby portrayed in the sculptures which record man's progress. So ancient are the earliest of these records that not even the approximate period of man's conquest of the cat, or her conquest of him, can be conjectured.

It appears reasonable that some races of the cat which still persist in the wilder parts of Europe and Asia were drawn upon to furnish the animal that in the ancient days of Egypt civilization was an object of veneration, and which to this day has a hold on the affection of mankind riv-alling that enjoyed by the dog.

But the cat, though for unnum-bered centuries she has accepted man's bounty, has given practically nothing in return for the food and shelter which she demands.

Every cat, if accorded a reasonable amount of freedom, lives a double life. By day a docile, languid pet, seemingly living only to eat and sleep,
she changes at nightfall to a creature as alert and self-sufficient as any on the earth.

Let us remember, however, that we are responsible for the condition in which Tabby finds herself. Having adopted her, it is our duty to provide for her wants.

Deprived of the care to which she has been accustomed, she is obliged to revert to a half-wild condition, and seek her living at the expense of the lesser creatures of the wild.

It is the homeless, starving cat which is mainly responsible for the destruction which has been brought upon the species the enemy of bird lovers.

on quietly and steadily, and practically every mechanic in the city is busy.
This constant improvement is slowly transforming Gainesville into a city beautiful. Old structures are being replaced with modern bungalows and more pretentious residences. Others are being remodeled to the same end.
And in the business section, old buildings are being given modern fronts and interiors. This work has been going on for some months, and will no doubt be greatly increased under the impetus of the new shallow oil field that seems assured in the southwest portion of the county. If you have stuck to Gainesville, you are lucky.—Gainesville Register.

With Our Contemporaries

OUR NEW ADDITIONS

Amarillo is building without any objective, any vision, or any thought of beauty.

Building here escapes regulations that are imposed in most cities. New additions are laid out and the lots sold before the city engineer's office knows of their existence. Consequently, there is no thought given to connected streets, or the uniformity of lots or blocks.

At its present rate, and under present supervision, Amarillo within a few years will be a jumble of hap-hazard additions and a city without beauty.
But then it will be too late for changes.

Correction must come now when the new districts are being platted.
Sub-dividers should be penalized for failure to comply with the city ordinance. It shouldn't be tolerated. The engineer must be given additional help to supervise the districting of new tracts, if those responsible for the new divisions persist in flagrantly ignoring every policy of city developing, as has been done in some cases in recent weeks.

It is time to call a halt in present methods and build a city along some definite, well laid-out, sensible and harmonious plan.—Amarillo Globe.

POSTOFFICES

The Herald might add to its "Know Plainview" column: "Plainview has the poorest postoffice facilities of any town its size of which we have knowledge." That wouldn't look good in that particular column, but it is the truth. It is remarkable how well the postoffice force here serves the city except as they are with hardly elbow room. Facilities of a town of 1,500 population are provided in Plainview while the receipts of the office are sufficient to put it in the list of offices of the first class.—Plainview Herald.

WHEN THERE'S A WILL

That's what the T.-C. man thought this morning after having a short conversation with two legless travelers.
The two hopped from Fort Worth, and are on an outing to Colorado and Kansas.

A man without legs would hardly be expected to travel very much but these young men solved their problem by fixing up a sledge with a lot of levers and wires that can be manipulated by their hands. A complete camping outfit leaves them independent where-ever they go, and they expect to have great times this summer fishing in the mountains.

It's all in the spirit! No matter how handicapped a man is, so long as he does not give up, there's hope for him.
Judge Corlies of Dallas, an armless man, showed us how he could button his collar, and cripples should take courage from him and many other brave souls.—Quinn Tribune-Chief.

If you have been sticking pretty close around home recently you would be agreeably surprised if you took a drive about the city and noted the amount of substantial building and improvement under way in Gainesville at this time. You would find very few streets on which some new building or some remodeling job is not under way. This work is going

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are—

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."
PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose marriage is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John, in love with his wife but a romantic individual, was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

When Fay took JUDITH, the baby to Houston to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly with Pat Forbes.

When Fay returns, gossip has retailed some of John's doings and greatly magnified them. Sharp quarrels between him and Fay follow. She is always fearful that he will get into trouble, but he thinks she just misunderstands him.

One of these quarrels drives him "out on a tear," and when Fay learns that he has again been out with other women she threatens to leave him if it is repeated. He begins to think that Fay dislikes him.

He becomes aware that he is being talked about. NAT GRAHAM, his partner, blames the loss of a client on the "damaged reputation" John was giving the firm, and John is filled with resentment. Fay breaks with a neighbor because of a piece of malicious gossip, and John is so loyal that begins to look as if they had again reached an understanding. However, she falls out with another one over Judith, and this time John is unsympathetic and it reopens the old wound.

Pat and Marian Forbes give a party, and there John again sees Nell Orme. Later in the evening he finds her alone on the porch and finds himself wanting to take her in his arms.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

He found himself taking her hand in his, and she turned quickly and looked at him. Beneath her steady, inquiring gaze he let her hand fall, and at once she dropped her eyes and turned away again.

Better not he reasoned. She might take offense, might misunderstand, and he would feel like a fool. He said "Don't you think we'd better join the others? They might be wondering, you know," and he was sure, as he stood aside to let her pass through the door, that her hand pressed against his purposely.

He followed her through the house and emerged on the front porch feeling like a boy who had been caught with his fingers in the jam jar. But no one noticed them, particularly; Fay, he saw, was still talking animatedly with Paul Davidson, who seemed to be at his best tonight. Nell, passing close to him as she helped Marian serve refreshments, said, "Don't forget the race," and Pat took her up. "Have you picked John as the victim again?" he said loudly.

Howard Orme was smoking a cigaret in silence and Pat asked Noel if he was going in swimming. "Not sober," Noel retorted, and Pat said, "Well, I'll try to get you drunk then."

An hour later Pat and Nell Orme were distributing bathing suits, some of which were sad looking affairs, being ancient in design and moth-eaten. "I'll get arrested for indecent exposure if I wear this thing," complained Paul Davidson, holding up a dilapidated suit of faded red. "Aw, no one's looking," growled Forbes. "Besides, the moon has gone behind a cloud."

Marian Forbes had pressed her own suit on Fay, and she and John went down to the beach together, followed by the rest of the party, half of whom insisted on not going in the water.

Fay, shivering about in the shallow water and John patiently tried to make her strike out and swim. But it was too cold, she said, and after one dive she contented herself with lying on the sand near the bonfire and helping Marian Forbes toast marshmallows.

Nell came wading out to the springboard and he followed her as she climbed up to the little platform. "Come here," she called to him as she stood bouncing gently on the board. "I'm ready," he answered, and saw her muscles tighten as she gathered them together for the dive, saw her arms shoot out and her feet leave the board and her body cut the water with scarcely a ripple.

He followed, and they swam across the lake and back in silence. He felt that he dared not speak to her, for fear of saying something she might reprove him for. Eleanor Mason and Paul Davidson came splashing in noisily, and he found excuse to complain of the cold and joined the others at the bonfire.

On the way home Fay brought up the topic of the Ormes and their mysterious attitude toward each other. He said he couldn't fathom Howard, couldn't understand his coldness.

"I'm inclined to sympathize with Howard," Fay said. "This annoyed him. 'Why do you say that?' he challenged irritably. 'You don't know what's behind it all.'"

"Just the same, I think Nell Orme is to blame," Fay said.

"Well, why?"

"I don't like some of her actions," she answered vaguely.

"Oh, come now, Fay." He was exasperated. This, he felt sure, was nothing more than a woman's jealousy for another of greater charm. "What don't you like about her actions?" he asked her. "I thought you were fond of Nell Orme."

She was silent, and when he insisted she answered, "Well, doesn't it strike you that she is rather proud of herself in a bathing suit?"

He looked at her in astonishment. "Why, it hadn't occurred to me. Of course, she looks rather well in one."

"I thought you would notice it."

"Now Fay, was that necessary? I actually believe you're jealous of Nell Orme."

"Have I any need to be as far as you're concerned?"

"Oh, bother! Don't let's talk about it if we're going to start bickering at each other. I never will understand women if I live to be a hundred years old."

"You seem, though to have a deep sympathy for some of them."

Paul Davidson came swinging jauntily into John's office the next morning, a new pearl-gray felt hat perched at a rakish angle on his head, a light-colored cane dangling from the crook of his arm.

"Come on out to lunch, John."

John looked rather dubiously at the pile of papers on his desk. "Come, come," insisted Paul.

"Well, if you don't keep me too long."

Davidson had nothing important to tell him only that Rita Johns had signed a contract with a Broadway show and he had found a new and far more interesting "affair."

"Well, don't come to me again to get you untangled," John smiled.

"No fear," said Paul. "By the way, I thought I'd tell you that Eleanor Mason seemed to have the hammer out for you last night."

"She did, eh? Well, so have a lot of other people."

"I'd heard a few remarks to the effect that you're hitting the high spots, but I laughed at them, knowing you for the old Puritan that you really are. Buy why all the vitriol from Eleanor?"

"Well, don't let it get past you—it's a rather catty remark."

Paul held up his hand. "My sacred word."

"Nothing much. She lured me into a rather intriguing flirtation, but just when I was getting interested she got coquettish."

Paul nodded. "I know—they all do it."

"I got rather disgusted."

"Don't blame you. I can understand why she's peeved."

John looked up wordlessly at his entrance and then turned back. John went back to his office and spent most of the afternoon with Briggs, discussing layouts. Nat Graham to his detention.

Briggs said, "What's the matter with the senior partner?" and John shrugged. "Don't know, Briggs; think I've peevish him."

"Well if you ever split, I'm with you."

John? The thought never occurred to John as something likely to happen. And yet things couldn't go on forever this way.

"Neighbors' Wives"

"Thanks," he said shortly. "I won't forget."

He met Clara Lane on the street the next day as he was wandering off to lunch. She had eaten, she said in answer to his invitation, but she would have a cup of tea with him. "I wanted to tell you that the divorce was moving along smoothly," she told him.

"Good," he commented, and they discussed Clara's plans for the future. It seemed that she was resuming her piano lessons with a view to teaching later on.

He told Fay that evening that he had kissed Clara. "Thought I'd let you know before someone else told you first," he added.

She looked at him reproachfully and made no answer. This wall that was rising between them was almost breaking her heart. She wanted to say to him, "John, you're breaking my heart, talking like that," but pride prevented her.

And John was sorry the minute he had made his sarcastic announcement. He wanted to tell her that he loved her, that henceforth he would try to be more considerate of her. But he couldn't help thinking that Fay was beginning to dislike him. "If she'd only indicate that she was willing to start all over again," he thought, and went to his favorite chair before the fireplace, to smoke his pipe in moody silence, not knowing that Fay, glancing up occasionally from her knitting, was regarding him with tearful eyes.

And then the thing happened that scared their lives.

If there had not been this coldness between him and Fay, this feeling on his part that he was becoming more incidental to her existence with each passing day, he probably would have steeled clear of it. But—

He was surprised several days later to receive a telephone call at his desk from Vera Boyd.

"I wanted to know if you could drop in for tea tomorrow afternoon," she said.

"Yes—in her house?" He murmured, as politely as he could, his old hostility for Vera mounting.

But she was insistent. "It's important," she told him. "I wouldn't ask you otherwise."

"Well, what is it? Tell me."

"No." She laughed mysteriously. "When you come you'll be glad I invited you. And John—"

"Yes?"

"Don't say anything to Fay."

Well, now, why shouldn't he say anything to Fay? Why all the mystery? But she refused to say anything more and hung up after getting his promise to be out.

John was rather uncomfortable that evening at home. It seemed unfair to Fay, this business of running off to tea at Vera's, especially in the face of an unexpected pleasantness in Fay. He told himself that he wouldn't let himself in for anything foolish. He'd be dogged if he would!

Four o'clock the next afternoon found him turning up the street in which was the Boyd's little brown shingle home.

Vera heard the car drive up and met him at the door.

"You were right on time," she said. "Now come in, and try not to be surprised."

"What the dickens—" he began, but she slipped her finger over his mouth.

The tea wagon, he saw, bore three cups and saucers. Who, he began to wonder, was the third? Was it Noel?

And then he heard someone descend—

O'CONNOR TALKS BEFORE PROBERS IN PENNSY CASEWET ORGANIZATION GETS THE ONCE OVER FROM U. S. SENATORS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 2.—After taking another glimpse into the affairs of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the Senate campaign funds committee today again turned its attention to the Senatorial primary in Pennsylvania, and heard Frank X. O'Connor, a South Philadelphia magistrate, deny that he had accused William S. Vare of trying to purchase his support for the Senatorship.

Under cross examination by Chairman Reed, and in the face of testimony to the contrary by three Philadelphia newspapermen, O'Connor insisted that he never said Vare offered him $75,000 and then $150,000 for his aid in Vare's Senatorial campaign against Senator Pepper and Governor Litch.

His Second Appearance.

It was O'Connor's second appearance before the committee and on the first occasion he made a similar denial, but afterward the three Philadelphia reporters all testified that he had made such a statement to them. When he took the stand today Senator Reed read him his previous testimony and asked him whether he wanted to modify it.

"I want to still say I didn't make that statement to newspapermen on election night," said the magistrate. "Did you make it at any time?"

"I did not."

Wood On Stand.

During the committee's brief excursion into the affairs of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the witness stand was occupied by Charles S. Wood, of Pennsylvania, campaign manager of the wet organization.

He disclosed that $1,200 had been set aside by the association to work toward the holding of prohibition referendums in Montana and Nevada, but said none of the $1,499 of $1,299 raised recently by a volunteer committee in Pennsylvania was spent in the Keystone State.

The witness corroborated yesterday's testimony by William H. Stayton, head of the association, that $3,500 was sent to Pennsylvania by the national organization to pay for mass meetings in the interest of Vare, who ran on a modification platform.

Before the committee had ended its morning session the disclosures in the Pennsylvania primary investigation again became a subject of debate on the stairs. He glanced questioning-ly at Vera, who shook her head mysteriously and held up a warning finger.

A familiar voice said, "You there, Vera!" and his pulse suddenly was racing madly. That voice, low and throbbing—it belonged to Neil Orme.

And it was Neil. She suddenly hove into view, and at sight of him a startled exclamation came from her lips.

the floor of the Senate.

Declaring there was nothing in political history to equal the bribery, graft and perjury that had characterized the Republican primary campaign, Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, argued for action on his resolution to limit the amount of money which could be used in Senatorial elections.

On the eve of the Sesqui-Centennial at Philadelphia, he said, "a handful of Pennsylvania Republican politicians, rich in money, poor in morals, and utterly destitute of love for the institutions of their country, made Philadelphia and Pittsburgh the political Sodom of the modern world."

Reed Blames System.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, declared the large expenditures were due to the primary system, and not to corruption. "It would have cost more than a million dollars," he said, "for each candidate in the primary to send one letter to each voter."

WURZBACH SEEKS NAME ON BALLOT

SAN ANTONIO, July 2. (AP)—While Congressman Harry M. Wurzbach is seeking a mandamus to compel the Bexar county republican committee to print his name on ballots to be used in the July primary, his opponent, Fred E. Knecht, is facing a fight to have his name printed on the ballots in each of the eleven counties in the Fourteenth Congressional district.

Application for a mandamus to direct the printing of Wurzbach's name on Bexar county ballots has been filed in Forty-Fifth District court. Judge S. G. Taylor set the hearing for Saturday morning.

A. R. Holchueber, chairman of the republican committee, has said they will not print Wurzbach's name on the ballots in this county because he has refused to pay an assessment of $7,499.50, levied against him as his share of the primary expenses.

Apparently there has been no effort to keep Wurzbach's name off ballots in other counties in the district.

The possibility of having Knecht's name barred from the ballots in all counties in the district loomed when it was learned that he had failed to file his preliminary account of campaign receipts and expenditures in his home county of Guadalupe.

Tuesday was the final day for filing this assessment.

AMERICA REJECTS CONFERENCE PLAN

GENEVA, July 2. (AP)—The American naval delegation onto the preparatory disarmament commission has officially announced that it cannot accept the report of the naval sub-committee, and will present a minority report to the plenary military committee, which has just completed its deliberations.

Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones made the announcement after the naval spokesman for the Americans in the committee had adopted the report, formed the correspondent for the Associated Press that the minority report would contend that the tonnage of warships by classes should be considered one of the standards for comparing the strength of navies. This attitude was rejected recently by the sub-committee which voted for comparison by total tonnage. The system of comparison by classes of ships was one of the fundamental points of the Washington agreement.

EDITH WILMANS 'GETS 'EM TOLD'

CUMBY, Texas, July 2. (AP)—Texas voters ought to demand that candidates for Governor be explicit about what they would do for the state instead of "flaunting a maddening mantle of 'isms' in the faces of the people," Mrs. Edith E. Wilmans declared in a campaign speech here today.

Setting the example, the former woman legislator, outlined her plans to help the educational system, reform the prison system and restrict pardoning of convicts.

"I fully realize I am handicapped by lack of funds and having no group organization," she said. "But in my own campaign I aim to keep from all factional disputes. I believe any candidate declaring that the main issues are anti-Communism and anti-Fergusonism, being flouted by Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Moody, is belittling the intelligence of the average citizen of Texas."

Mrs. Mallory Out of Big Tennis Tourney

WIMBLEDON, July 2. (AP)—Mrs. Molly Mallory, former American woman champion, today was eliminated by Senorita Lili De Alvarez of Spain, in the semi-finals of the women's singles in the Wimbledon Jubilee tournament. The score was 6-2, 6-2.

CONDITIONS ARE GOOD IN CANYON

Crops Were Never Better Say Experts of Situation Now in Randall County

CANYON, Texas, July 2.—Crop conditions in Randall county have never been more favorable than at the present moment. Wheat harvest is in full swing, with the yield for the entire county averaging more than thirty bushels to the acre. Much of the acreage will make from thirty to fifty bushels to the acre; the largest test to the present date was shown on land east of Happy, seventeen miles from Canyon, where the wheat threshed out fifty-two and one-half bushels per acre.

All wheat in Randall county is of unusual quality, testing from sixty-one to sixty-four pounds to the bushel. Farmers are using combines to a greater extent than ever before, because the entire harvesting operation can be more quickly completed with a minimum expense for labor. Many of the new machines are making it possible to market as high as six and seven hundred bushels of wheat per day. This wheat is not sacked, but loaded directly into trucks and taken to the shipping point.

Rainfall Abundant.

The rainfall for June has been 3.20 inches, the rain falling at intervals of about one week; there has been no hail and no wind so grain is standing well and other crops are growing with a maximum rapidity.

The dries in New York are looking about for a man to run for governor—and they're having almost as hard a time as Diogenes had when he was looking for an honest man.—Wilmington Evening.

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, July 2. (P)—Pre-holiday re-adjustment resulted in considerable irregularity at the opening of the stock market today but the main trend of prices continued upward. Erie Railroad issues were strengthened further by the prospects of better terms under the amended Nickel Plate merger plan and a moderate demand was in evidence for Southern Railway, "Katy", and other carrier stocks. General Motors and Air Reduction were heavy. Prospects of continued firm money rates until the return of the low of funds sets in after the Fourth of July restrained operations. Chemical and gas issues maintained a strong tone, with Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas and Allied Chemical extending their gains of expectations of special developments favoring these companies. U. S. Steel was fractionally higher around 14 1/2. Foreign exchanges were heavy, with both French and Belgian francs hovering around record low levels at 2.65 cents. Demand sterling eased off to $4.86 1/2.

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, July 2. (P)—The cotton market was quiet in today's early trading and business in evidence was attributed almost entirely to further evening up of accounts in preparation for the government crop report. Opinions as to the showing of the official crop figures may have been confused to some extent by publication of another private report showing the condition 72.5, considerably below the figure previously issued. This probably led to some covering and after advance of one point to a decline of six points, active months sold 2 to 4 points net higher. The bulk to 17.92 for July and 16.32 for December, net renewed liquidation, however, and the market showed no particular trend during the first hour. Prices sagged off in the forenoon under renewed liquidation which appeared to be promoted by reports of continued good weather in the South. July sold off to 17.78 and December to 16.28, net declines of about 6 to 13 points but trading was very quiet and at mid-day the market was holding around 16.28 for December or about net unchanged to 7 points net lower. The government report making the condition of the crop 75.4 and the indicated yield 15,635,000 bales, was followed by weakness during mid-afternoon. Selling seemed to be more or less general on the break, which carried all new crop positions into new low ground for the season. July broke to 17.54 and December to 16.00, or 21 to 27 points net lower, and the market was within a point or two of the lowest at 2 o'clock.

Production last year was 16,085,905 bales and the June 25 condition was 75.3 percent of a normal, while the average annual production during the last ten years was 11,794,931 bales and the average June 25 condition for the ten years was 73.5 percent. If the percent of cotton area abandoned during this season should be equal to the average of the last ten, the area, which would remain to be harvested this year, would be 47,153,000 acres. Upon that acreage the crop indicated from the June 25 conditions would approximately a yield of 158.5 pounds of lint cotton per acre.

NEW ORLEANS TRADING

NEW ORLEANS, July 2. (P)—The cotton market opened steady although Liverpool was lower than due. First trades here were unchanged to six points down and prices eased off after the start owing to the absence of rain in the belt. There was little activity in the market, traders being disposed to hold off until the government report, to be issued today.

The market ruled quiet all morning with little disposition to trade. Price improved owing to belated show covering, October trading up to 16.10 and December to 16.92, or 8 to 12 points above the lower and 1 to 4 points above the previous close. The market showed some disposition to ease off just before the government report was issued and October at the time the market suspended five minutes before the issuance of the report, was trading at 16.94, and December at 16.94, or 5 points below the previous close. The condition average of 75.4, and the indicated yield of 15,635,000 bales were about as expected but the acreage 48,398,000 acres was much larger than looked for. December ultimately broke to 15.66 or 23 points down. Later the market rallied 12 to 14 points from the lows. The market here will be closed Saturday and Monday.

NEWLY IMPROVED DAIRY PLANT IS OPENED

The formal opening was held Thursday afternoon of the new building and equipment of the Sanitary Dairy, property of Ed. Vaughn, four miles north east of Lubbock.

Mr. Vaughn has been in the dairy business in Lubbock for eight years, and has been steadily increasing his equipment and business during that time, and has recently finished improvements which makes his one of the most up-to-date, efficient and sanitary dairy plants of the state.

A new concrete barn, fire-proof and fly-proof; a cement floored lot adjoining it and a thoroughly modern milk room, have been put in at a cost of five thousand dollars. Every building is double screened, to prevent the entrance of flies; and a high pressure boiler is used in the milkroom to sterilize with live steam the bottles used for delivery.

Mr. Vaughn's herd consists of 112 cows, none of which have had any disease during the eight years, he has owned the dairy. Three double-unit Empire vacuum milkers are used, milking 6 cows at the time. The milk is then run thru a clarifier, which cleanses the milk thoroughly; and it is then bottled by an automatic bottling machine, and delivered to customers within two hours after milking.

More than two hundred visitors inspected the dairy barns and equipment Thursday; and delicious refreshments were served them, including cake, ice cream, and milk.

RICHES GAINED IN THREE MARKETING OIL PASSED ON TO WORKERS

(By the Associated Press)

LULING, Texas, July 2.—Approximately $2,000,000 distributed as bonuses by a big hearted oil promoter who had made his "pile" and wanted to share his happiness and prosperity with former employees. Thursday brought a business boom to this little city.

The money was a gift to co-workers in the search for and exploitation of the liquid gold from Edgar R. Davis, president of the North and South Oil Company, which recently disposed of all its holdings to the depth of 3,000 feet to the Magnolia Petroleum Company for a consideration of approximately $12,000,000.

As a result of the sudden influx of dollars into the little city of 1,500 persons, the two Luling banks Thursday were handling the largest sums since their founding, and dealers in the highest priced luxuries, such as automobiles, were beset with calls for their merchandise.

Nor were the beneficiaries of Davis' goodwill confined to the philanthropist's immediate friends for the "roughnecks" who "piled rods" on the trembling floors of derricks, as well as the highest officials, were smiled upon by fortune and shared in the new wealth. The only qualification was one should have been an employee of the old "North and South."

Five officials of the company are said to have received more than $200,000 each and other employees received sums ranging from a few hundred to a few thousand dollars.

The money was distributed according to a plan whereby every person received an amount commensurate with the time he was with the company.

Thursday's gift was the culmination of a series of beneficent acts by Davis since the sale of his property, others being the establishment of a fund of $1,000,000 for agricultural research and experiment, the endowment of a home for children, and the purchase and donation of two large parks to the town of Luling.
