Differing reports raise suspicions in jail death

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

MIDLAND - A mild-mannered Stanton family man is how League of United Latin American Citizens state director Rosa Rosales describes Tomas Gonzales, who died four days after collapsing July 5 in the Midland County Detention Center.

Gonzales went in July 2, continuing to serve a first-offense Driving-While-Intoxicated sentence on weekends, which he received in January. His death is attributed to a combination of positional asphyxia and alcohol withdrawal.

The 41-year-old Stanton resident was self-employed as a grave digger for St. Joseph's and Evergreen Cemeteries. He lived in Stanton for more than 20 years, married for 18 and had two children, ages 11 and 16.

"He was a healthy man when he went into jail," Rosales said at a meeting of state and area LULAC officials. "He was serving on weekends and working the rest of the week. He was a good citizen and well-liked and came out of the jail a dead man."

Differing from the information released from the Midland County Sheriff's Office, Rosales said, "We do know he was beaten and the cell was covered with blood. We have heard he was beaten twice... He was beaten so badly he was spitting up blood."

Rosales would not divulge how she obtained the information. She said it was "inside information," but not from an inmate.

Information from the sheriff's office about Gonzales' stated he was moved to a single cell after being involved in a fight with another inmate. Gonzales was then handcuffed because he became uncooperative and a danger to himself. He was moved again to a padded cell until MHRM could be contacted for an evaluation.

After Gonzales' death the Texas Rangers conducted an investigation to determine if excessive force was used or if Gonzales' civil rights were violated.

Capt. Gene Powell of the Texas Rangers account differed from the sheriff's office statement. Powell said Gonzales was suffering from paranoia, claiming inmates wanted to kill him. The jailers attempted to restrain and put Gonzales in a padded cell to prevent self-injury. He was "hog-tied" when he collapsed. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation was administered before he was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

Powell's report will be presented to the district attorney, and handed over to a grand jury. Powell said he does not anticipate any charges being filed.

"We want to make sure all the bases are covered...but we see no criminal wrongdoing - no use of excessive force," Powell said in a media report.

In a news conference Wednesday, Midland County Justice of the Peace Robert H. Pine announced preliminary reports indicated an accidental death and restraints were a factor in Gonzales' collapse. Ector County Medical Examiner Dr. Sparks Veasey's preliminary autopsy indicated alcohol withdrawal contributed to the death. However, hospital reports indicate Gonzales did not have any alcohol in his system.

Gonzales' family and LULAC officials are dissatisfied with the outcome of the investigations and "strongly believe" Gonzales' civil rights were violated.

"On behalf of the Gonzales family we will begin our investigation by contacting federal agencies," Rosales said. "Something is very suspicious here and a lot of questions have not been answered."

LULAC and is requesting an independent autopsy. Rosales added the family would file a lawsuit against the department and possibly the hospital.

"It does not matter what color you are here. This is not a Latino issue. It is an issue of the way people are treated in prison," Rosales said.

Poll: Clinton not seen as strong leader

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Six months into his term, President Clinton is viewed as a strong leader by little more than a third of Americans in an Associated Press poll released today. A majority said he already has broken too many of his promises.

Two in five polled gave Clinton a high rating for trustworthiness. Those who have more confidence in Clinton than in Congress to deal with the country's problems dropped to 39 percent, from 55 percent in a poll taken just after his inauguration.

It would be bad enough for Clinton if the increase in his negative ratings came mostly from a decline in "don't know" responses, since some people take several months to make up their mind about a new president.

But the latest poll indicates that Clinton's negative ratings are up largely because his positive assessments are down.

Political analysts have cited the president's failure to produce a strong economic rebound, the delay of health reform and Clinton's mixed record on Capitol Hill as reasons for his slide in the polls.

Republicans in Congress forced big cuts in the domestic spending plan Clinton tried to sell as an economic stimulus. And members of his own party helped scuttle his proposed broad-based energy tax, which itself

Rabies spreading throughout Texas

Two possible rabid foxes killed in city limits of Big Spring

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Two foxes, killed in the city limits of Big Spring and thought to have rabies, may be linked to a spreading Texas epidemic of rabid coyotes and dogs.

Friday, at noon, Big Spring police were called to Hillside Street to dispatch a fox, thought to be rabid. The animal was staggering and occasionally convulsing, according to Pete Ortega, Big Spring animal control warden. The animal, however, was not reported to be foaming at the mouth.

A week earlier, another rabid fox was shot by local police in the area of Sunset Boulevard.

Officials with the Texas Department of Health are warning that a rabies epidemic in South Texas is worsening. The TDH's Bureau of Veterinary Public Health is circulating reports that rabies poses a serious threat to people, in homes where family pets are not vaccinated against the disease.

According to Ortega, the two foxes in Big Spring need not be sent to Austin for confirmation of rabies, as no one was bitten or scratched by them.

Any suspected cases in the domestic dog population, however, must be sent away, where positive identification of rabies can be made.

In Texas' southern most states, the canine rabies epidemic has been worsening since 1988. In Hidalgo County, 16 rabies cases, including 12 dogs, have been confirmed this year, according to Dr. Keith Clark, director of TDH's Zoonosis Control Division. "That almost triples the county's total cases for all of 1992," he said.

The actual epidemic, however, is not thought to have spread above Webb County and Nueces County in the southern tip of Texas, according to TDH information.

The various strains of rabies are impossible to eradicate in the wild, said Clark. For decades, skunks have been the most common carriers of rabies. Coyotes, however, are now the second most common carriers, outnumbering bats.

Including all strains, there were 471 laboratory-confirmed rabies cases in Texas in 1991, an increase from 447 in 1991.

The infected species included: 182 skunks, 70 coyotes, 69 bats, 56 dogs, 33 foxes, 16 cats, 11 cattle, six horses and 28 other animals of various species.

To protect one's self, family and pets from rabies, dog and cat owners should have their animals vaccinated by four months of age and yearly thereafter.

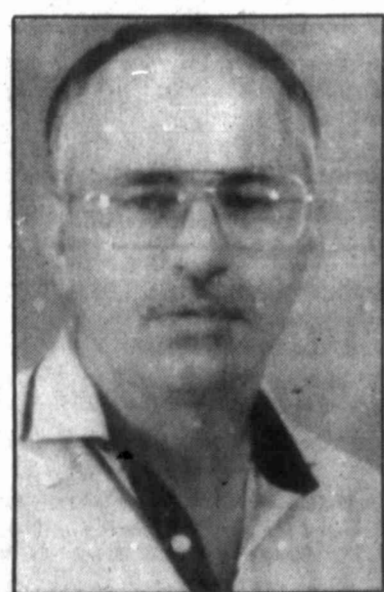

Anyone working with sick livestock or wild animals should consult a doctor about getting a rabies vaccination.

Parents should warn their children to never pet stray, sick or wild animals.

involved in various activities, serving his community, his friends and his family.

As a council member, he was a proponent of such projects as repaving streets, installing new water lines and upgrading city equipment.

The council seat is his first public office and says modestly, "I didn't think I had anything more special than others, but I did not see anyone committed to serving the community."

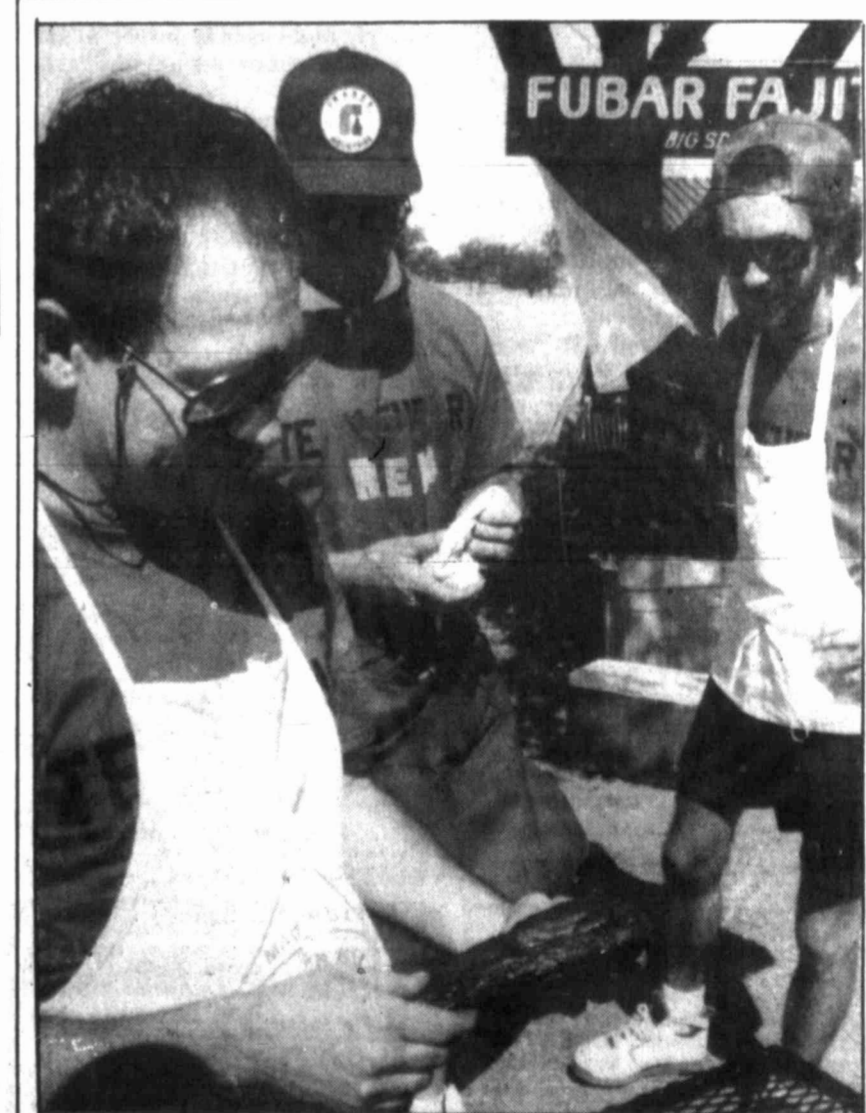

Elmore added during his terms, he has had the opportunity to work with other public servants who dedicate themselves to serving the community. He credits former mayor Eleanor Garrett as having the enthusiasm and dedication to the city that he hopes he has.

But aside from serving his community, Elmore is dedicated to his family. He and his wife, Brenda, have been married for more than 20 years. They have three children - Brent, 19, attending McMurry University in Abilene; Tori, 14, Coahoma High School freshman; and Kimberly, 12, Coahoma Elementary sixth grader.

The organizations, Elmore is involved in revolve around his children. He has served a Coahoma Little League president, United Girls Softball Association president, Coahoma Youth Basketball coach and president and Coahoma Athletic Booster Club president. Man sets home afire after shooting clerk

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A man who held police and firefighters at bay while his home burned around him had shot a convenience store owner to death because he couldn't make change fast enough, police say.

Police said Alfredo Castillo, 30, apparently set fire to his own home across the street from the store Sunday after fatally shooting owner Alberto Saucedo and wounding another man.

The incident started when Castillo bought beer from Saucedo, 39, who had trouble with the cash register and couldn't give Castillo his change immediately.

Castillo left, retrieved a gun from his home, then returned to shoot Saucedo, police said. Saucedo was pronounced dead on the scene. Police said he had wounds to the head and chest.

Castillo then walked outside and fired several shots at a group of people standing near a pay phone, police say.

Insurance company failures costly

The Associated Press

DALLAS - State-regulated insurance companies are costing the nation's taxpayers billions of dollars, a newspaper has reported.

Fraud, insolvency and unregulated foreign competitors have been the major problems troubling the insurance industry, the Dallas Morning News reported in Sunday's editions.

The problems have been especially pronounced in Texas, the paper said.

At least 270 life-and-health insurers were placed under state supervision between 1976 and 1991. An additional 372 property-and-casualty insurers were declared insolvent between 1969 and 1990.

The combined 642 recorded insolvencies amount to more than 10 percent of the 5,579 companies that existed on average each year during the period.

Since early 1990, insurance businesses in at least 18 states have been the targets of federal or state fraud investigations, with Texas leading the nation in insolvencies. Between 1976 and 1991, 108 Texas insurance companies were liquidated or placed under state supervision.

In Texas, the state auditor's office estimates that taxpayers will pay at least $802 million for claims against insurance companies that filed between 1987 and 1991.

Even legitimate businesses can fall prey to unscrupulous "reinsurance" companies that assume a portion of the risk associated with insurance policies - for a price.

In one case, Pennsylvania-based World Life and Health Insurance Co. paid more than $2 million in premiums to a reinsurance company, Euro Reinsurance Co. Ltd., owned by two Dallas businessmen. The payment was to reinsure World Life for a portion of claims made against the policies it had written.

When World Life failed in 1991 with an estimated $31 million in losses, regulators trying to recover from reinsurance companies found that Euro itself was insolvent.

The estimated $15 billion in nationwide losses is a controversial figure. It was devised from closely held industry loss calculations that are often available to state regulators only after a company fails.

In addition, most national insurance associations say it is impossible to calculate anticipated losses accurately.

"Regulators are reluctant to publicize solvency information for fear of consumer panic," said the National Association of State Auditors.

U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has proposed legislation that would establish a National Insurance Protection Corp., which would pool money from insurance companies to pay nationwide claims against failed firms. The law would set national insurance insolvency standards.

It also would provide for federal regulation of reinsurance companies in an attempt to curb their use in insurance fraud.

The Insurance Information Institute, which represents about 200 property-and-casualty insurers, said its member companies are divided on the legislation.

Domestic reinsurers say they want their foreign counterparts to be held to federal regulation. The state auditors' association concurs.

Insurance officials point out that state guaranty funds are supported by the industry. When licensed companies become insolvent in Texas, all other insurers that sell the same types of policies are assessed a percentage of the loss to pay policyholders' claims.

This rundown house in southeast San Antonio was the residence of Benedict Flores, who ran a used merchandise store. Flores died November 1992, leaving his entire estate, which wound up totalling $323,739, to the Roman Catholic Church.

War on to save Town Lake waterfowl

By JANET WILSON

Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN - George Erwin Sr., decked out in a starched white shirt, jeans and boots, totes a bag of chicken feed down to the Town Lake shoreline and stoops low to the ground until he gets eyeball to eyeball.

He doffs his gimme cap and bows his head, refusing to open up that bag of goodies until two young geese, who have adopted Erwin as their parent, plant a kiss on the top of his head.

"Come on," he urges them. "I'm leaving if you don't give me a kiss." Sure enough, the two geese - raised in a backyard hot tub until a few months ago - peck Erwin's white-topped crown, winning pats and smiles from the man some people say is waging a one-man crusade to save the waterfowl on Town Lake.

Although Erwin has always been an outdoor and nature enthusiast, it was the recent plight of 12 cygnets that provoked his ire. Many elderly and disabled residents of Lakeside Apartments on the north shore of Town Lake had fallen in love with the baby swans and were concerned they might lose them all to snapping turtles, herons and other predators on the lake.

Four of the cygnets apparently were eaten by predators, while another four apparently were removed from the lake by an individual.

Erwin was one of the more vocal callers to city officials and just about anyone else who would listen, demanding that something be done to save the cygnets.

"Everyone is all worried about the Robert Mueller Airport, but no one seems to be worried about the waterfowl on Town Lake," says Erwin, who is retired from highway construction and lives at Lakeside Apartments.

George Erwin Sr. visits with some geese Monday on Austin's Town Lake where he feeds swan cygnets that have been penned to protect the young swans from predators.

Erwin and Lela Hall, another Lakeside resident instrumental in bringing the problem to light, found an ally in photographer Gray Hawn, who donated eight black and eight white swans to the city five years ago. A group of friends had presented the swans to Hawn for her 40th birthday.

After much discussion, the solution was to build a pen that stretches from the water onto the bank near the Four Seasons Hotel. Hawn picked up the cost of materials. City employees built the pen. The swan family was captured and moved inside, where it has lived in safety for about

Seal of approval given for new water

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Fort Hood soldiers received a seal of approval Saturday after they came to the rescue of the flood-weary state's only zoo.

Radioactive bats threaten camp

MOSCOW (AP) — Bats that fed from a polluted lake are apparently the source of unusually high levels of radiation at a children's camp in Siberia, scientists say.

Authorities believe the bats picked up the radiation while feeding at nearby Lake Karachai, where a chemical plant dumps its waste.

Major offensive expected soon

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — When their Serb enemies impose a deadline for "total defeat," Sarajevo's outgunned defenders take the threat seriously.

The Bosnian Serbs' self-styled leader, Radovan Karadzic, has set Tuesday as a deadline, saying the Bosnian government faced "total defeat" if it did not drop objections by then to the partition of Bosnia into Serb, Croat and Muslim mini-states.

Genetic search has gay community worried

WASHINGTON (AP) — If science proves that homosexuality is inherited — like red hair or blue eyes — members of the gay community say they're worried that the next step will be to search for a "cure" for what they believe is a natural condition.

Science took another step toward that prof last week in a study that suggests the male homosexual tendency can be inherited through the X chromosome. The finding adds to a growing body of evidence that sexual orientation can be strongly influenced by DNA alone.

Such genetic studies edge closer to answering basic "nature vs. nurture" questions, and raise provocative questions about civil rights, privacy, tolerance for homosexuals and — some say — the potential uses of abortion.

Sessions to Clinton: You tell me to go

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — FBI Director William Sessions, hanging on despite White House threats to fire him if he doesn't quit, is sending President Clinton a message of his own: If you want me to go, tell me yourself.

Sessions, whose tenure became tenuous in January when a Justice Department report accused him of ethical lapses, said Sunday the only way to get him out "is for the president to say, 'I want to replace you.' If he does it, I've gone all the way with the bureau and I know that I've done my job."

Unless that occurs, he said, he won't budge. Sessions has about 4 1/2 years left on a 10-year term that's set by law and only Clinton has the power to fire him.

"It's a matter of principle," Sessions said. "It's a matter of being certain that everybody understands across the world and across the nation that this director is not guilty of unethical or improper conduct and that the bureau must not be anything other than an independent agency."

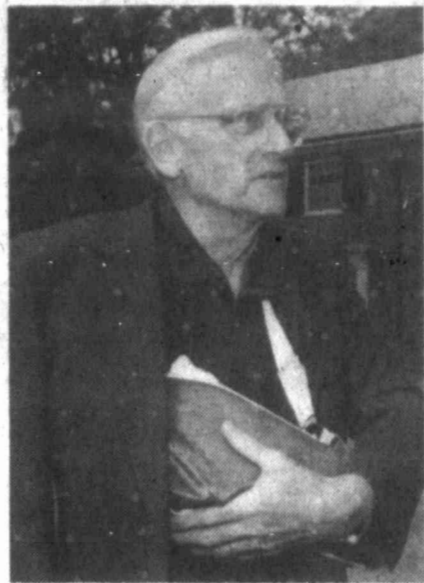

Sessions commented as he left Sibley Hospital, where he had spent the night after breaking his arm when he tripped over a curb as he was leaving a meeting Saturday with top Justice and White House officials.

During that meeting, Sessions was told he must resign or be fired — perhaps as early as today — according to a law enforcement official who asked not to be identified.

However, a White House official said Sunday it was unlikely Sessions would be fired until a successor had been selected.

"I don't think any action will be taken until it's clear what the next action is going to be," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

moment is considered to be U.S. District Judge Louis Freeh of Manhattan, a 43-year-old former FBI agent and federal prosecutor who spent two hours with Clinton on Friday night, according to a senior administration official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Nevertheless, that official said Saturday: "Don't assume it's a done deal" that Freeh will be selected.

The Saturday meeting at the Justice Department was attended by Attorney General Janet Reno, White House Counsel Bernard Nussbaum, Deputy Attorney General Philip Heymann and Associate Attorney General Webster Hubbell.

Until that meeting Saturday, Clinton's desire to replace Sessions has been conveyed mostly through indirect: leaked stories that the presi-

Japan's PM refuses to step down after party losses

The Associated Press

TOKYO — In the latest dramatic twist in Japan's political saga, Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa today foiled expectations he would step down after his party lost a parliamentary majority for the first time since 1955.

Major newspapers had cited party sources as saying the 73-year-old Miyazawa would quit as head of the Liberal Democratic Party on the day after Sunday's nationwide elections, paving the way for the selection of a new prime minister.

"Miyazawa Out," said the headline in the afternoon edition of the leading Asahi paper. It hit the streets shortly before the prime minister told reporters he would abide by the party's will — but refrained from announcing his resignation.

The unexpected display of tenacity on Miyazawa's part pointed to disagreement within the party as to how to proceed.

Things looked so bad for the scandal-ridden Liberal Democrats going into Sunday's elections that avoiding an outright rout wound up looking like a victory, even though they lost the majority they had held for 38 years.

"Our party lost a majority, but retained by far its standing as the number-one party," Miyazawa told reporters. "It showed the will of the people ... for maintaining stable politics."

The Liberal Democrats — who have governed Japan for nearly four decades and claim credit for its post-war economic boom — were battered by big-money scandals that aroused voter anger.

Even so, Japan's deeply conservative electorate handed the party 223 seats in the 511-member lower house, enough to allow it to form a coalition government with other conservative parties. It could even retain the prime minister's post, which goes to the strongest party in parliament.

Opposition parties and independents could form their own coalition, but that appeared unlikely given their ideological differences.

Whatever the nature of the new government, Japan's powerful bureaucrats are expected to keep running day-to-day affairs. But without government leadership to keep bureaucratic infighting in check, Japan could find itself paralyzed in trade negotiations with the United States and other nations.

The election's big winners were the new conservative parties that broke off from the LDP.

145 Chinese returned home

The Associated Press

BEIJING (AP) — A group of 145 Chinese boat people who spent months stranded in the seas just short of their goal — the United States — returned to southern China by plane today, a Chinese official said.

A second plane carrying another 145 people was expected to arrive later today, Wei Kunsheng, an official with the Foreign Affairs Office in southeast China's Fujian province, said in a telephone interview.

The Chinese were among more than 550 aboard three smugglers' ships bound for the United States. They were intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard, and the United States persuaded Mexico to send the Chinese home.

The last ship, the Sing Li 6 with 235 people aboard, was escorted into Mexico's Ensenada Harbor, south of San Diego, early Sunday. The three ships had been off Baja California since July 6.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry said today the government "will handle these illegal emigrants upon their repatriation according to law, and if they are really being deceived by smugglers then they will not be put into prison."

A China-run newspaper in Hong Kong, the Wen Wei Po, quoted a local official as saying the would-be emigrants "would not receive any sort of punishment."

Mississippi flows through St. Louis; expected to crest

The Associated Press

The cresting Mississippi River washed through a sandbagged St. Louis neighborhood while downtown stayed high and dry. Miles upstream, the race was on to get a bridge open today and ease the commute across the river.

Thunderstorms knocked out power Sunday for thousands in suburban Chicago. Some 500 people in Lake of the Hills, Ill. left their homes as a precaution when water spilled over an earthen dam on a tributary of the Fox River.

Much of the waterlogged Midwest was hit with more rain Sunday and scattered thunderstorms were expected overnight before clearing today.

In St. Louis, the Mississippi was expected to crest at 47 feet or more today. At midnight, the river measured 46.9 feet.

The previous record was 43.23 feet, reached in 1973.

But with little rain in the forecast, meteorologist Bill Work of the National Weather Service, said: "Things are looking brighter ... definitely."

In a south St. Louis neighborhood, hundreds cleared out when the sandbags couldn't hold back water from a concrete-lined storm channel named River Des Peres. City spokesman Pete Prives said as much as 10 feet of water filled some areas by Sunday night.

Charles White heeded the warning and left his sandbag-ringed house.

"I guess you just can't mess with the big boy up above," he said.

The Gateway Arch along the Mississippi afforded residents and tourists a safe and dry place to gaze at the rapid river. The city's flood wall is 52-feet-high, 5 feet above the expected crest.

In Hamilton, Ill. crews worked late into the night piling gravel and rock on a flooded access road to a bridge linking the town with Keokuk, Iowa. The bridge could open today, cutting the 200-mile distance along the Mississippi River without an open bridge by about 35 miles.

The 1 1/2 months of flooding in the Midwest has had a heavy toll: at least 29 deaths, at least $10 billion in damage and 16,000 square miles of farmland underwater. The American Red Cross estimated that at least 22,000 homes were damaged.

City election problems need to be rectified

Although the May 1 Big Spring City Council election was upheld, it was found the election was not run according to law. The May 1 election was the first time new voting precincts were used, creating confusion for the voters and those working the polling places.

Any time new precincts are put into effect, there will be confusion. While the city did a good job of informing people about the changes in the voting precincts, many people didn't understand they would not be voting in the same precinct as they always had.

But, that is no excuse for some of the problems occurring with the election.

One election judge, who has served in that capacity for five years, said training for the judges was inadequate.

City Manager Lanny Lambert has said the city will probably reexamine its training of election judges.

The training should be examined and holes in it filled up. The Texas Election Code spells out how elections are to be run and what is necessary to conduct a proper election. Any problems following the code needs to be looked in to and changed.

There will always be questions about elections, but the better run the election, the fewer questions there will be to answer.

Chicano Golf association sets valuable example

Teeing off for education - The Chicano Golf Association tournament Saturday and Sunday raised money for its scholarship fund.

More than 70 teams, comprised of two golfers, gathered at the Municipal Golf Course. Players came from Sweetwater, Snyder, Midland, Odessa, Amarillo and Phoenix, Ariz. Organizers expect raising more than $5,000 for scholarships.

But this isn't the first fundraiser put on by the group. Since the mid-1980s, the members have come to the aid of those in need by providing financial assistance for ranging from roof repair to funeral expenses.

In April, CGA members raised more than $800 for a widowed Big Spring man and his four children. The tournament raised about $700 with members adding more to make it an even $800. The money went to pay for funeral and other expenses.

Each year, the association coordinates a tournament with its proceeds going to the Hispanic Women for Progress scholarship fund. HWP members also set up a fajita booth at tournaments to raise money as well.

The association's benevolence has bred more good will. Local merchants have contributed to the scholarship and emergency funds.

For this weekend's event, more than 24 merchants gave donations or gift certificates for the tournament. Merchants included Citizens Federal Credit Union, Cosden Credit Union, Bob Brock Ford Lincoln Mercury Nissan, Pollard Chevrolet Buick Cadillac, Big Spring Chrysler, Phillips Tire, P.J. Tire, Faye's Flower, Jimmy Marin's Exxon, Kate's "Buffalo County" Fina Mart and Autotrend. Personal donations were given by Charlie Lewis, Dr. Carlos Dimidjian and Dorothy Garrett. A full list of merchants was not available Sunday.

Miller Lite co-sponsors the CGA tournaments and gives money to the fund.

Throughout the last several years, the organization has helped out the United Girls Softball Association, Texas Little League and United Way. Breaking down barriers defined by color and economic conditions and forging a better today and better future is the outcome of the CGA's work.

In times when people can not afford the necessities of modern living, such as life and medical insurance, members make themselves available to offer a gesture of goodwill.

In times when high school seniors and their parents have limited resources to pay escalating tuition cost, members are willing to give their time to allow opportunities.

It is not enough to applaud their efforts, but it is imperative to follow their example.

New generation of hippies

TALLADEGA NATIONAL FOREST, Ala. — Every Volkswagen bus left in America is parked here in the thick of the Alabama woods. Every old hippie who hasn't traded his sitar for a briefcase along the rocky road of life is parked here, too.

"I lost my car and my teeth getting here, but I finally made it," grins a sure-enough toothless woman, Dawnlynn Argue of Pittsburgh. She claims an unfriendly encounter with police farther north landed her in an unfriendly jail.

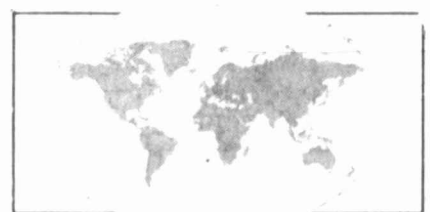

But now she curls in contentment and a pile of tie-dyed linen outside the "Hugging Tent" at the annual encampment of the Rainbow Family of Living Light. Things are looking up for the mother of five, who makes the journey every year to the public land the Family selects for its July meeting. This is the group's first visit to Alabama.

"When you're under the Hugging Tent, you have to hug anyone else who passes through," a man bare as the day he was born at least 50 years ago tells anyone who happens by. The tent is like mistletoe with better range.

There is a lot of hugging here. Under the tent and everywhere else. People greet one another with "Welcome home," and then embrace for long moments. Kindred spirits.

There's also a lot of dust; it flours the fern and other flora of the summer forest. It became a real problem as nearly 8,000 hippies converged on these woods by way of a narrow dirt road.

But an early week summer shower settled the dust and soothed the spirits of an already mellow crowd whose stated purpose was to pray for peace on the Fourth of July.

This date in history

The Associated Press

Today is Monday, July 19, the 200th day of 1993. There are 165 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On July 19, 1848, a pioneer women's rights convention called by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia C. Mott convened in Seneca Falls, N.Y.

On this date: In 1553, 15-year-old Lady Jane Grey was deposed as Queen of England after claiming the crown for nine days. King Henry VIII's daughter Mary was proclaimed Queen.

In 1870, the Franco-Prussian war began.

In 1941, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill launched his "V for Victory" campaign in Europe.

In 1943, 50 years ago, allied air forces raided Rome during World War II.

In 1975, the "Apollo" and "Soyuz" space capsules that were linked in orbit for two days separated.

In 1979, the Nicaraguan capital of Managua fell to Sandinista guerrillas, two days after President Anastasio Somoza had fled the country.

In 1980, the Moscow Summer Olympics began, minus dozens of nations that were boycotting the games because of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

In 1984, U.S. Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro, D-N.Y., won the Democratic nomination for vice president at the party's convention in San Francisco.

In 1985, Christa McAuliffe of New Hampshire was chosen to be the first schoolteacher to ride aboard the space shuttle.

Clean-up crews will stay through August, making sure the forest is left tidy. Already the crowd is half its peak size. But you get the feeling some of the campers may never leave, that it will take more than a clean-up crew to clear the hippies from this haven.

Men with long hair and no shame wade in shallow Shoal Creek. Women with backpacks and no shirts troll for camping spots in a woods still thick with a rainbow of tents. An air siren signals it is time for supper; either that or another rainbow has appeared, which also sounds the horn.

Children romp in a special "Kiddie Camp," where volunteers take care of the young. A teddy bear strung on a clothesline identifies the spot.

A hand-printed sign warns of rattlesnakes, "which are everywhere," and copperheads, "which are near the water and smell like cucumbers." Chiggers also get a mention, and nail polish is the suggested remedy. You have to wonder how many hippies travel with nail polish.

There have been a few arrests for nudity — somebody must have been singled out, or pushing his luck on the highway, because naked people are everywhere. Other arrests were for unleashed dogs and one for striking a federal officer. Everyone agrees that for a crowd this size, however, things have been peaceful.

The smell of the main illegal activity associated with the Family permeates the woods, and the state troopers periodically circling the encampment ignore it. Signs on trees advertise the way to "tea time." A group crouches on the ground in a clearing to chant and pass a weed.

Locals from nearby Heflin and Anniston walk through the camps, as conspicuous as Secret Service agents. For one thing, most of them wear University of Alabama caps or T-shirts. It is a curious tourist attraction.

The biggest surprise of the Rainbow Family gathering is the number of its young people. Real hippies are by definition "old." Nobody says "hippie" anymore without the "old" in front, never mind the redundancy.

And yet, the majority at The Happening in the Alabama woods seems young, 18 to 25. And there are many punk flourishes to the patented hippie look, pierced earrings through nipples, that sort of thing.

Or maybe it's just that the youngsters are willing to stay the longest, braving the dust, mud, heat, humidity, chiggers and continuous drum music. Something about turning 30 makes you prize your own bed and a hot shower.

Maybe the old hippies already have prayed for peace, taken a hit and gone home in their ancient Volkswagens. At any rate, the Rainbow Family has spawned a new generation, alive and well and romping butt naked in the Alabama woods.

Boning up for jobs

Scripts Howard News Service

Economists who contend mightily over most things agree on this: In the emerging borderless economy, where U.S. workers compete for wages against Peruvians and Sri Lankans and everyone else, having a sound, relevant education is crucial.

The proposed National Skills Standards Board would help gird young blue-collar Americans for the global jobs arena.

The standards board is part of Bill Clinton's "Educate America" legislation, but don't hold that against it. The rest of the package would meal the nation with state and local "academic" committees, which would submit their ideas on meeting murky national curricular norms to a Washington political clique. The result would be unending paper-shuffling, benefiting only the educators who would staff the committees.

By contrast, the package's national job skills component, aimed at high-school students intent on vocational careers, is simple and merit-centered.

American dream becomes nightmare

My friend Rigsby, who doesn't drink, called to say he is thinking of starting.

"Why on earth?" I asked.

"To forget," he said.

"To forget what?"

"To forget I'm such a bad person and everybody hates me."

"What makes you think that?"

"I've been listening to talk shows and reading editorial pages," Rigsby explained.

"Why would doing those things make you think you're a bad person and everybody hates you?"

"I'm a conservative white male," said Rigsby. "That means I'm a part of the Ol' Boy Network."

"Rigsby," I said, "you worked hard for what you have."

"That's something else," he said. "I have been a capitalist for years."

"I thought capitalism was what this country was all about?"

"Not anymore," said Rigsby. "If you make any money you are an evil, foul person, and you got rich because Reagan and Bush didn't ask for your fair share of the taxes."

"Rigsby," I said, "I happen to know you came from humble beginnings. You borrowed a lot of money, took a huge risk and started a business. You worked day and night to make that business go and now you're successful. You have fulfilled the American dream."

"Shhhh," said my friend. "This line could be bugged by the Donahue Show."

"And that's not all," I said, ignoring the fact the line could be bugged by the Donahue Show. "You paid taxes out of the wazoo. Not only that, you have created a lot of jobs for a lot of people. You should be proud of that."

"You don't understand," Rigsby went on. "I'm also a member of the privileged country club set with a men's grill where women aren't allowed and business deals are made in there."

"Rigsby," I asked, "do you employ women?"

"Lot of them," he answered.

"Do you discriminate against them in hiring or promoting them?"

"No."

"Do you sexually harass them?"

"Good God, no. I'm even afraid to speak to a woman anymore."

"Then I don't think you've got a problem."

"But there's lots more," said Rigsby.

"Shoot."

"I like Rush Limbaugh."

"So do a lot of other people."

"I have a bumper-sticker on my car that says, 'Don't blame me, I voted for Bush.'"

"I've seen those everywhere."

"Mine's on my Mercedes."

"You deserve a Mercedes."

"I'm a practicing heterosexual."

"Well, you can forget appearing on Donahue."

"I haven't seen a single Spike Lee movie. I fly first class, I own a home, and ... I don't even know if I can say it."

"Say it."

"I'm a smoker."

"You're right," I said to Rigsby. "Give all your money to the spotted owl people, move into a box on the street, quit smoking and maybe nobody will hate you anymore."

"You'll have to buy my first bottle of wine," said Rigsby.

"As long as you promise never to smoke or be productive again," I said.

Clinton

stood in apparent contradiction to his campaign promises of middle-class tax relief.

Clinton also disappointed some liberal supporters by backing away from positions affecting Haitian immigrants, gays in the military and the environment of Western states.

The latest poll was taken July 9-13, right after Clinton's relatively successful performance at the Tokyo summit, and just two weeks after some polls showed a boost in the president's job approval from a missile attack on Iraq.

But 47 percent said Clinton has not shown he is a strong leader, to 37 percent who say he is, with the rest not sure.

Three months ago, 49 percent rated Clinton as a strong leader — with 37 percent saying he was not — in an AP poll marking the president's first 100 days in office.

Each poll is a random national sample of more than 1,000 adults interviewed by telephone by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants. Results have a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

A majority, 58 percent, agreed that Clinton has broken his promises too often, up from 48 percent in the April poll. Just 28 percent said he has kept his promises, down from 34 percent in April.

Flood

In Washington, Budget Director Leon Panetta said the proposed $2.43 billion aid package for flood victims proposed by the Clinton administration last week is only "a first step" and likely will be increased as the extent of damage is learned.

In Algonquin, 50 miles northwest of Chicago, police sealed off the downtown and emergency crews hauled in sandbags because of the rising Fox River.

"I'm the last place open in town and I'm trying to get out of here," Karen Tracy, a bartender at Harbor Inn, said Sunday night. "The river's very high and downtown is probably all under water."

The driving rain threatened an earthen dam just upstream on a tributary of the Fox. Cheryl Kirsch, spokeswoman for McHenry County emergency services, said 25 truckloads of sand were dumped on the dam to strengthen it.

Some 500 people were evacuated from the nearby village of Lake in the Hills in case the dam gave way, Kirsch said. With the dam holding early today, the evacuation order was lifted.

Des Moines, Iowa, residents, entering their ninth day without tap water, may start getting water service on Tuesday. A pump began late Sunday filling up the system's pipes. Service was knocked out to 250,000 when the waterworks were flooded July 11.

two months.

Erwin, with the help of Austin High School students Chris Bird and Andrew Lankford, picked up the feeding duties. Three times a day — sometimes alone in the wee hours of the morning — Erwin made the trek from the apartments to the pens, loaded down with feed he purchased with his own money.

"I'll sell pencils on Congress Avenue to get the money to help (the waterfowl) if I have to," he says.

One man, heartened by Erwin's mission, purchased a golf cart and donated it to the Save Our Water Fowl cause. Erwin uses the yellow-and-black cart, decked out with seat belts, mainly to take elderly and disabled people from the apartments to the swan pens and along the hike-and-bike trail. However, he has been seen scooting across Congress Avenue Bridge to pick up patrons of the Embassy Suites and Hyatt Regency who requested a visit, as well as guests of hotels along the north shore of the lake.

He never refuses a request for a ride from a child, especially one little girl — Kelsey Buaas — who recently had open-heart surgery. Kelsey named one of the cygnets Becky after a favorite doll that accompanied her to the hospital. Erwin has an autograph book he uses to collect names of everyone who visits the swans' pen, including Kevin Costner and his children, politicians and a host of visitors from around the world.

The swans have inspired senior citizens and disabled residents of Lake-side Apartments in a variety of ways. Hazel Kanatzar is painting a picture of the mother swan trailed by her babies. Dorothy E. Combs is writing a poem about the complex.

dent wanted to name a new FBI director because the shadow over Sessions has impaired his ability to lead the bureau, and more recently, reports about possible successors.

The clues have gotten through to Sessions, despite private administration complaints that he seemed impervious to them.

"It's obvious to everybody the president wants his own man in there," Sessions' wife, Alice, said Sunday in a telephone interview. "The signals came through loud and clear."

But she said her husband's insistence on staying unless Clinton asks him to leave stems from his desire to clear his name and not have in to a group of longtime agents who she said want to oust Sessions and feed false information to the Office of Professional Responsibility, which issued the January report.

"They have blackened the reputation of a man who never had a mar on his reputation," she said. "Without that report, there would never have been any talk about the president replacing him."

The OPR report said Sessions used government vehicles for personal trips, avoided taxes on chauffeured travel to and from work, had a taxpayer-funded fence improperly built at his home and used his position to receive a "sweetheart" deal on his home mortgage.

A senior administration official said Clinton thought some of the allegations seemed baseless and therefore wanted "to find a graceful exit" for Sessions.

But, Mrs. Sessions, said: "They lost that chance a long time ago. They could have done that right after he (Clinton) took office, but he was left dangling, with people taking potshots at him from every side."

Congress instituted the 10-year term to prevent anyone from amassing the power of J. Edgar Hoover, who held the job for decades, and to keep it from becoming politicized, changing with each new administration.

Elmore

"I don't think a father could be more proud of his children as I am."

Elmore says he has tried to teach them by example like his father, a Methodist minister, taught him. "There are several things Brenda and I hope they leave our home knowing."

"First of all - to do what is right. To conduct themselves in a manner that will not harm others. Always have friends and treat them with respect. To be involved and to occupy their time with positive endeavors. And most importantly, to know they have been loved and are loved by us."

The other thing Elmore takes pride in is his work. Employed by the Department of Transportation for 21 years, he has seen the local office's operations transform from slide rule mathematics to computer-aided drafting.

"I really enjoy working for the department," he said. "I am sort of a generation bridge. When I came to work, I was the youngest in a group of employees who had been there for years. Today, most of them have retired and a new generation is there."

"I was able to work with the older employees and retain some of their experiences in the office."

Elmore is an engineering specialist, supervising construction in Howard, Mitchell and Nolan counties.

Living in small towns, like Coahoma, all his life, Elmore says he would not want to live anywhere else.

"Small towns give kids and people the opportunity to be involved and participate as leaders," he said. "I like small towns you make good solid friends, who you can depend on in time of need and joy."

YOU CAN by Jax Church

Dear Madison and Spencer, Tell as many people as You Can that soap is not magic. It's chemistry (KEM-es-tree).

Soap works by making water wetter than it already is. Really! Soap can also mix with both oil or grease and water at the same time!

experiment #1

You Can tell how wet water is by looking at a kind of skin it makes. It's called the surface tension. If that skin is not broken, nothing gets wet.

WHAT YOU NEED: Clear drinking glass - liquid dish soap

WHAT TO DO: Fill the glass with water. Look close at the edge. Use a teaspoon to add more water. You can add more than you think. Add it until you see the water come up out of the glass. This shows you the surface tension. Add a drop of dish soap near the edge of the glass. Be sure to be looking at the surface tension when you do it. What happened?

WHAT IS GOING ON: When you add soap to water the water gets thinner than it already is. That is why the water ran down the side of the glass when you added the soap. The wetter water can now wet things that would not break the surface tension of regular water.

experiment #2

WHAT YOU NEED: Jar with lid - water - cooking oil - liquid dish soap

WHAT TO DO: Fill the jar half full of water. Then add 4 tablespoons of cooking oil. Close the lid tight. Shake it hard. The oil and water will NOT MIX, no matter how hard you shake the jar. Now add a teaspoon of dish soap. Close the jar and shake it again. Real hard. What happened?

WHAT IS GOING ON: The smallest bits of soap possible are called molecules (MOL-ee-kules). They are very, very tiny. A soap molecule can hook onto a water molecule. It can also hook onto an oil molecule. When greasy dirt is grabbed by a soap molecule and a water molecule, you can rinse it away with more water. This is called to emulsify. The soap emulsified (ee-MUL-sah-fied) the oil and the water turned gray.

Oil and water will not mix, no matter how hard you try.

Add soap, and things change.

Do not throw your experiment away! The water is still good for plants and trees. Go outside and give the gray water to the plants. They need it!

P.S. from Beakman: If you add 2/3 cup of clear dishwashing liquid and 2 tablespoons of glycerine (from the drug store) to a gallon of water, you get a whole huge lot of bubble-blowing stuff!

Ryan set to return tonight vs. Brewers

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Nolan Ryan spent the first half of his final season nursing a torn up knee, a strained hip and a sliced foot — not to mention a bruised ego.

But while he watched one of his goals slip away, he saw another come to fruition.

This spring, when Ryan announced the 1993 season would be his last, he said he wanted two things from his record 27th major league season: his health and to be in a pennant race.

At least the Texas Rangers didn't fall out of the race in his prolonged absence, although a mediocre AL West has a lot to do with that.

Ryan returns to the mound tonight at sold-out Arlington Stadium against the Milwaukee Brewers, attempting to salvage the "most frustrating and disappointing season of my career."

"I want to give six or seven strong innings, keep the bullpen out of the game until then, throw with good mechanics and just help a team that's in the pennant chase," Ryan said.

Not to mention staying healthy. Ryan has more stints on the disabled list (two) than victories (one) in his farewell season.

His start Monday will be his first since May 7, when he strained a hip muscle in his first start back from arthroscopic knee surgery.

While rehabilitating from the hip injury, Ryan sliced his foot when he stepped on the blade of a water ski

"I want to give six or seven strong innings, keep the bullpen out of the game until then, throw with good mechanics and just help a team that's in the pennant chase."

Nolan Ryan

during an outing with his family. "This is the one thing I wanted to avoid this year," Ryan said. "I had one of my best springs ever, healthwise, and I knew my arm was still strong. I wanted to be able to look back on this season and say, 'I could have gone one more.'"

Now, Ryan, 1-2 with a 4.50 ERA, hopes to get in 12 to 15 starts in the second half, something the Rangers believe is imperative if they are to have a shot at their first division title.

"If we get a healthy Ryan back, we stand as good a chance as anybody of winning this division," third baseman Dean Palmer said. "We need healthy players, and that starts with Nolan."

Ryan remained in Arlington during the Rangers' final road trip before the All-Star break, trying to recapture his mechanics. He worked out daily with former Rangers pitching coach Tom House, now a consultant with the team.

On Wednesday, Ryan threw 95 pitches in a five-inning simulated game at Arlington Stadium against eight reserves, then fielded ground balls, after which he reported no physical problems.

In anticipation of his return, Rangers fans and scalpers snatched up tickets, making Monday night's game a sellout last week.

Ryan is back, with the pennant race he wanted.

Norman finds redemption with British Open victory

By The Associated Press

SANDWICH, England — After so many defeats and disappointments, Greg Norman knew he would eventually redeem himself. He finally did in the British Open.

"I knew I could do it. And I did it. I did it my way," Norman said Sunday after posting the lowest score ever in the British Open — a 13 under-par 267 — to beat defending champion Nick Faldo by two shots.

"This isn't going to be the last one," he said.

Norman may never again play better than he did Sunday on the sandhills of Royal St. George's. It was the best round of a globe-trotting career that has produced 63 victories.

"It was perfect," Norman said.

He hit all the greens. He hit all the fairways. Furthermore, he hit the fairways where he wanted to be, for the most advantageous shot to the flag.

"I was playing a chess game," he said. "I hit every shot on the middle of the clubface. I never hit a wrong shot."

There were only two glitches, both with the putter, one that failed to get up a steep ridge on the 14th, and the miss of one from 18 inches on the 17th.

In the end, neither mattered. The driving and the ball-striking did the job. Faldo, the three-time champion, played well, but with Norman playing flawlessly Faldo had little or no chance.

Faldo shot a strong 67, three under par, but it was only good enough for second, two shots back at 269.

That's 11 under par, good enough to win all but one of the 121 previous British Opens. But Norman's score was the best this tournament has ever seen, one lower than the old record 268 set by Tom Watson in 1977 at Turnberry, in Scotland.

Masters champion Bernhard Langer of Germany, who fell victim to a double bogey-7 after pushing his tee shot out of bounds on the 14th, was alone in third at 270 after a 67.

Peter Senior of Australia, who ran off a string of three consecutive birdies with his chin-high putter, and Corey Pavin were next at 272. Senior shot 67 and Pavin, who shared the third round lead, could do no better than 70.

Paul Lawrie of Scotland holed a 3-iron second shot on the 17th for an eagle-2 on the way to a 65 that put him in a tie at 274 with 23-year-old Ernie Els of South Africa and Nick Price, who came into this tournament riding a string of two consecutive victories. Els shot 68 and Price 69.

Essentially, however, it was a three-man race — Norman, Faldo and Langer — until the Australian pulled away on the back nine.

"To be able to say I beat those two guys, it's one of the proudest days of my life," Norman said.

And beating Faldo, ranked No. 1 in the world, was more than a little special, too. It laid to rest another of the mental demons that plagued him, perhaps the most nagging, annoying, frustrating demon of them all.

This star-crossed man with the craggy face and the macho image has had more than his share of frustrations.

He lost the '84 U.S. Open to Fuzzy Zoeller in a playoff. He lost the '89 British Open to Mark Calcavecchia in a playoff. He lost the '86 PGA to Bob Tway's last-hole birdie from a bunker, and the '87 Masters to Larry Mize's miracle chip-in birdie on the second playoff hole.

"When somebody beats you, all you can do is shake his hand and congratulate him and try to forget about it, put it in the past," Norman said. "You can't control what somebody else does. What makes you mad is when you screw up."

And that's what happened against Faldo on the third round of the 1990 British Open at St. Andrews.

Norman and Faldo, ranked Nos. 1 and 2 in the world, shared the lead and played in the last twosome on the Old Course, a head-to-head meeting of the two best players in the world.

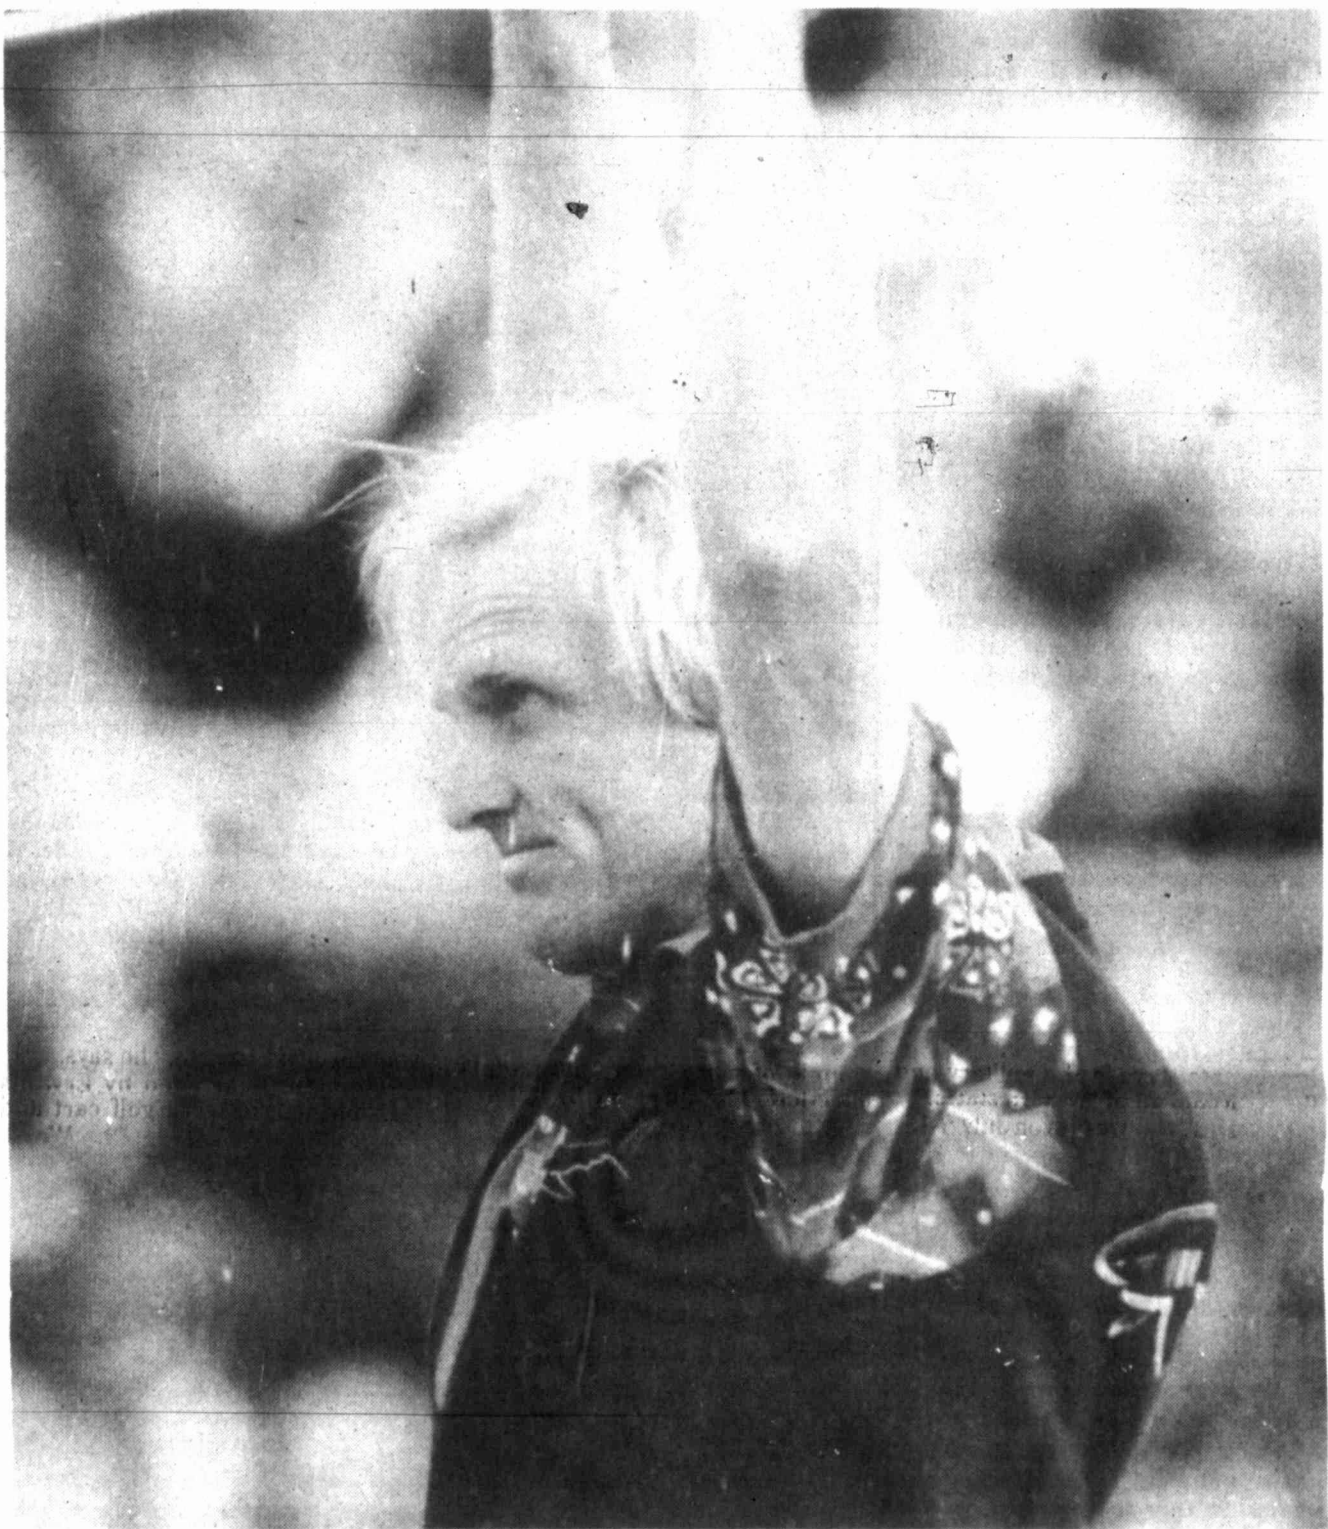

Faldo destroyed him, 67-76.

Norman went into a two-year decline, winning nothing at all. His game was in tatters, and so was his confidence.

"I looked at myself in the mirror one day. Looking at myself, I said, 'what do you want? To give up the game? Fight back and be the best you can.' When you look at yourself in the mirror, you cannot lie," he said.

So he fought back. He re-dedicated himself to golf.

"I worked harder than I did when I was 21, 22, 23," he said. "The disappointments I've had are still there. But I refused to quit during the bad patch I had. I proved I could do it. I worked hard and it paid off."

Australia's Greg Norman reacts to winning the British Open Sunday at the Royal St. George's in Sandwich, England. Norman passed third-round leaders Corey Pavin and Nick Faldo.

Does this season spell the end of the Joanieburger?

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Go to almost any ballpark and you'll see signs like "Home of the Steers," or "Home of the Bulldogs."

Go to the American Little League in Big Spring and you'll see a sign proudly proclaiming the park as "Home of the Joanieburger."

The sign, though definitely an eye-catcher, is a little misleading. While the Joanieburger is undoubtedly a culinary delight, the sign probably would be more appropriate if it said "Home of Joanie."

Joanie Sumpter and her husband, Cecil, have made the American League park their unofficial second home for the better part of a decade. He has spent that time as a combination coach/groundskeeper/announcer/scorekeeper, while his wife has served as player agent, grill cook, Pee Wee coach and sounding board for players and coaches.

All that, and she makes a dandy burger, too.

"We have people come up here that don't even have kids playing, just to get a Joanieburger," said Twila Wegner, wife of AL president Robbie Wegner. "We've tried to get her to cook once a week during the off-season, just to wean us off them, but she won't do it."

Joanie started flipping burgers at the AL park when her oldest son, Billy, was 12. "They needed someone to do it. That's how I got started," she said.

While she had worked as a waitress at a burger shop in Graham when she was young, nothing in her job experience really prepared her for hordes of hungry players, coaches and fans.

"We made 1,500 hamburgers that first (season), so it got a little hairy at first," Joanie said. "It's really just something that came naturally to me."

As the burgers multiplied, so did her fame. One day while serving as announcer, Cecil implored the crowd to try a "Joanieburger," and the name stuck.

But her duties soon extended beyond the concession stand. Through the years, she has acted as player agent for the league (placing players on teams), has coached Pee Wee baseball and has served as an unofficial arbitrator of disputes.

"League officials are supposed to handle all the complaints (but) everybody goes to Joanie first," Robbie Wegner said. "If they have a problem, they go chew at Joanie first. She knows the rules like the back of her hand."

"She's helped make this league what it is," he added. "She keeps everybody in line, keeps everybody straight, and she does it her own way."

Aside from her full-time job at Southwestern Pest Control, Joanie estimates that she spends 36 hours a week down at the ballpark during Little League season. She said the company she keeps at the park has kept her coming back.

"Some of our best friends come from the American League," she said. "This is just a way to show my appreciation for the league, a way to help the kids, a way I feel I can contribute."

But the Joanieburger may have made its last fan. Joanie said this season, which ended with the recently concluded District 3 tournament, is her last.

Although she has tried to quit before, Joanie says she means it this time.

"I was serious (about quitting before), but they never could find anyone to do (her job)," she said. "It's a hard, time-consuming job, and there's been no one else to step in a do it."

"This year, I'm not going to say I'm not going to do it again, because every year I say that, I come back," she added. "So this time I'm just saying I'm not planning on doing it again."

She then admitted there was a "tiny" chance she would return, but added: "Cecil said that if I come back, he's going to pack my suitcase and bring it up here."

"She's been fun to be around," league secretary Donna Gannaway said. "She makes us laugh. She's just a terrific lady... She's going to be hard to replace."

"We wouldn't be able to replace her as far as her player agent skills go," Robbie Wegner said. "She could probably write the book on the player draft. She could probably run the NFL draft."

And the league has not yet resigned itself to letting Joanie and her now-famous burgers ride off into the sunset. Gannaway said her cohorts have one more strategy in mind: "We'll beg and plead."

Earnhardt wins somber Miller 500

By The Associated Press

LONG POND, Pa. — The first time Dale Earnhardt won at Pocono International Raceway, he beat Alan Kulwicki on the last lap and rookie Davey Allison finished fifth.

On Sunday, six years later, the five-time NASCAR champion savored memories of his fallen competitors, circling the track backwards in Kulwicki's trademark style and flying a No. 28 flag for Allison out his window following his victory.

Earnhardt's tribute after his fifth victory of the season — a .72-second win over Rusty Wallace — capped a subdued weekend for the Miller Genuine Draft 500. Five days earlier, Allison died of injuries from a helicopter crash in Alabama.

"I'd been glad to run second to him today to have him back," Earnhardt said.

Kulwicki, the defending series champion, died in a plane crash April 1. Earnhardt had denied Kulwicki his first Winston Cup win by 1 second in July 1987 at Pocono, beating him through turn 2 of the three-corner, 2 1/2-mile track.

"I thought about that when I went through the tunnel turn (2)," Earnhardt said. "I've got some great memories racing here at Pocono, racing against Alan and racing against Davey."

Earnhardt held off Wallace for the final 11-lap sprint to claim his fourth win in the last seven races.

Sunday
Willie Canate hit his first major-league home run in the ninth inning Sunday to give Toronto a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

SWAPS
Fred McGriff, the most consistent home-run hitter in the major leagues the last five years, was traded to Atlanta for minor leaguer outfielders Melvin Nieves and Vince Moore and pitcher Donnie Elliott.

STARTING LINEUPS
Baltimore manager Johnny Oates shuffled his lineup Sunday, moving Cal Ripken to cleanup, Jeffrey Hammonds to the No. 6 spot and inserting Sherman Obando as the designated hitter in the No. 9 spot.

SLUMPS
The Expos and San Diego Padres have gone longer without a 20-game winner than any NL team. The drought began after Ross Grimsley and the Padres' Gaylord Perry became the league's only ones in 1978 to win 20. Only one Expos pitcher this year is in double figures in victories, Dennis Martinez with 10.

SIDELINED
— Toronto center fielder Devon White bruised his left elbow Saturday and was scratched from Sunday's lineup. His status is day-to-day.
— Los Angeles third baseman Tim Lincecum was placed on the 15-day disabled list Sunday because of a broken rib sustained when hit by Ken Hill's pitch on Saturday.

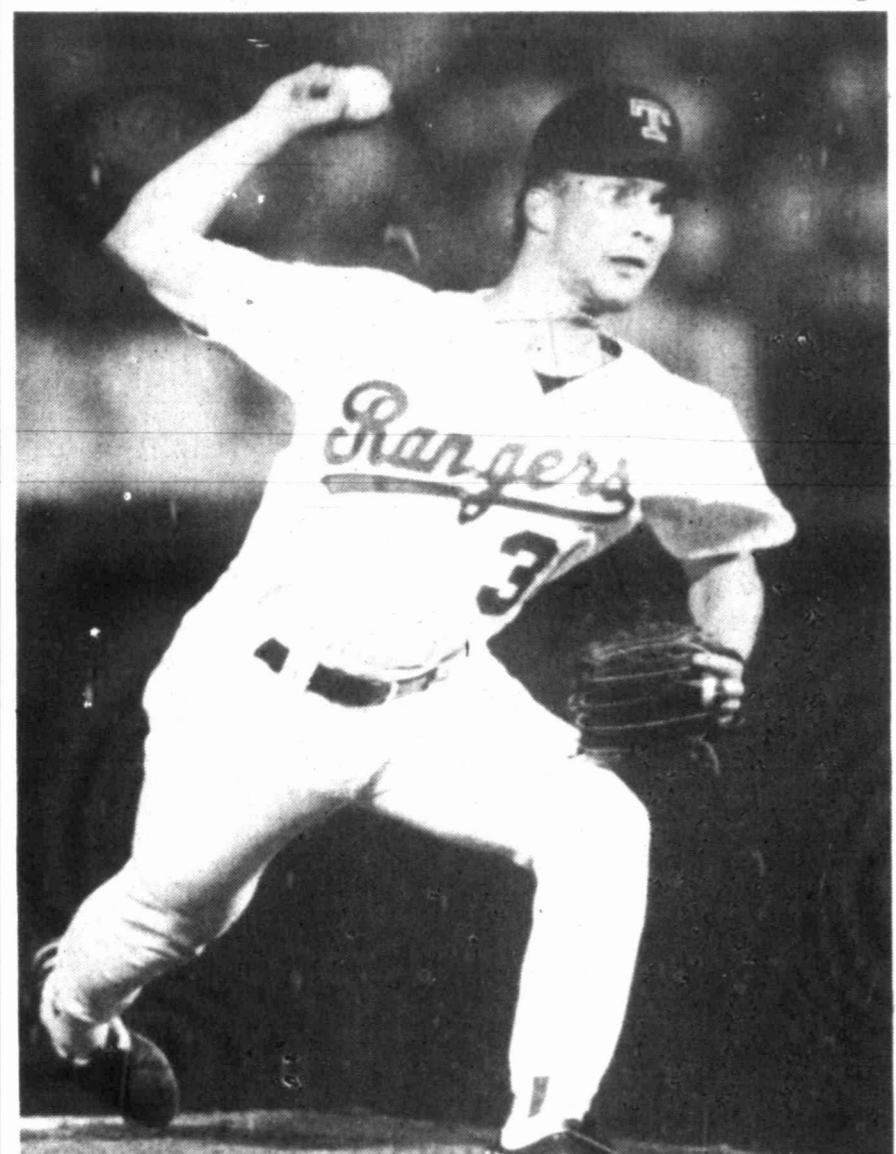

SEATING
The Orioles reached 2,000,000 in home attendance Sunday at their 45th home date, the earliest in club history they have reached that milestone. Last year, Baltimore did it on its 46th home game. Only six other teams in major league history have done it faster, three this year: Colorado (36 dates), Toronto (41) and Atlanta (43).

SPEAKING
"It was the perfect way to end this series. We stunk today just like we stunk for the last four games. It was an awful performance. I was rooting for the rain." — Colorado manager Don Baylor. The Rockies, swept in four games, lost 12-2 at Wrigley Field on Sunday in a game shortened to seven innings by rain.

SEASONS
July 19
1904 — Cleveland shortstop Neal Ball pulled off the first unassisted triple play in modern major league history.
1910 — Cy Young registered his 500th career victory as the Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators 5-4 in 11 innings.
1927 — Ty Cobb of the Philadelphia Athletics doubled off the glove of Detroit's Harry Heilmann for his 4,000th hit.
1933 — Rick Ferrell of the Boston Red Sox hit a home run off brother Wes, pitching for the Cleveland Indians.

Padres trade home run king to Atlanta

By The Associated Press
SAN DIEGO — First baseman Fred McGriff and his sweet home run swing are going, going, gone, victims of a salary purge that has left the San Diego Padres woefully short of star ballplayers. FRED MCGRIFF players, a move likely to infuriate Padres fans even further. Three weeks ago, the Padres traded 1992 NL batting champion Gary Sheffield and his $3.11 million salary to the Florida Marlins for a rookie and two minor leaguers.

San Diego has hacked away more than $12 million in salaries since opening day 1992, and its current payroll of $16.8 million includes 12 players who make the minimum $109,000 salary. Ten of them are rookies, including six pitchers.
"From what they've been telling me, it's basically money," said McGriff, whose $4 million salary topped the Padres. "I never thought it would get to the day where I made too much money and it became a bad situation."

The Padres got switch-hitting outfielder Melvin Nieves and right-hander Donnie Elliott, who will move from Class AAA Richmond to Class AAA Las Vegas, and outfielder Vince Moore, who goes from Class A Durham to Class A Rancho Cucamonga.
The Braves hope McGriff will improve their .246 team batting average — the worst in the NL — and help them score more runs. Atlanta ranks near the bottom in runs scored.
"He can add some excitement to our lineup," manager Bobby Cox said. "He's an impact player. Any club can certainly use a guy like that. We certainly can."

Atlanta, the two-time defending NL champion, trails first-place San Francisco by eight games in the NL West.
"We have a ways to go, but it will be exciting," said McGriff, who leaves the sixth-place Padres. "It will be a challenge and I'm getting closer and closer to Tampa," he said, referring to his hometown.
"The first reason we made it was for our immediate concern — to close the gap on the Giants," Braves general manager John Schuerholz said. "But it's not a lend-lease deal. We intend to keep him at least until his contract runs out. If we hadn't made this trade, we would have had to do something internally to breathe some life into our offense."

McGriff hit 171 homers from 1988-92, an average of 34 a season. He won the NL home run crown with 35 last season, making him the first player in the modern era to win home run titles in both leagues. He won the AL title in 1989 with 36 for the Toronto Blue Jays. He has 209 career homers.
McGriff is hitting .275 with 18 homers and 46 RBIs and is on a season-high 10-game hitting streak.

Detroit whitewashes Rangers

By The Associated Press
John Doherty pitched a three-hitter for his first career complete game and shutout as Detroit won, 2-1, at Texas.
Doherty (9-5), who had a shutout for 8 2-3 innings at Arlington Stadium on April 29, also gave the Tigers their first complete-game shutout of the season. He was 1-3 with a 7.59 ERA in his previous four starts.
Doherty, who allowed singles in the third, fourth and seventh innings, didn't walk a batter and struck out four.
Detroit scored the game's only runs in the fourth inning off Charlie Liebrandt (9-5). Travis Fryman led off with a triple, Rob Deer hit an RBI single and Skeeter Barnes doubled home the second run.

this point," Mattingly said. "But I think the best feeling is to be playing on a team that has a chance to win."
White Sox 3
Brewers 1
First-place Chicago completed a sweep of the four-game series at Milwaukee and won its fifth straight game when Bo Jackson broke a ninth-inning tie with a two-run single.
Pinch-hitter Tim Lincecum singled off Doug Henry (2-3) leading off the ninth. A sacrifice and two intentional walks, sandwiched around a ground-out, loaded the bases, and Jackson singled to right on Henry's first pitch.

Orioles 7
Twins 2
Fernando Valenzuela (5-7) pitched a six-hitter for his third straight victory, and Mike Devereaux drove in two runs and scored one against visiting Minnesota.
Valenzuela ran his streak of scoreless innings to 24 before the Twins got two runs in the second, but Minnesota managed just two hits after that.
Red Sox 7
Mariners 6
Boston rallied from a 6-1 deficit at home, scoring three runs in the seventh inning and three more in the eighth against Seattle.
Andre Dawson hit a three-run double in the seventh to get the Red Sox close and they took the lead in the eighth on Billy Hatcher's two-run single.

Blue Jays 4
Royals 3
Toronto beat visiting Kansas City for only its third victory in 15 games, staying tied with the Yankees atop the AL East thanks to Willie Canate's first major-league home run.
Canate tied the game with a fourth-inning single, his first RBI in the major leagues, before connecting for a homer in the ninth off Hipolito Pichardo (4-6). Pat Hentgen (12-4) pitched a five-hitter for his second complete game this season, striking out three and walking one.
Pichardo allowed 10 hits, struck out two and walked two in his second career complete game.

Yankees 13
A's 6
These days, however, the New York Yankees are tied for first, and they've gotten there behind a hot streak by Don Mattingly, who had four hits and drove in four runs during a 10-run seventh inning that lifted New York past Oakland 13-6 Sunday night.
Mattingly went 11-for-19 with nine RBIs in the four-game series against the A's. He's had 10 hits in his last 11 at-bats with runners in scoring position.
"It feels good to be contributing at

Indians 2
Angels 1
Albie Lopez (1-0), making his second career start, allowed no runs and five hits in 7 1-3 innings as Cleveland won for the ninth time in 10 home games.
Mark Langston (9-4) lost despite pitching a three-hit complete game.

By The Associated Press
Mark Whiten's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 11th inning off Doug Jones (3-7) lifted St. Louis over Houston, 7-6, at Busch Stadium. The Cardinals, chasing first-place Philadelphia in the NL East, took three of four games from the Astros.
Lee Guetterman (2-1) retired six straight batters for the victory.

Jeff Kent added two homers for New York, which won two straight games for only the fourth time this season.
Rookie Greg Brummett fell to 1-3.

Phillies 9
Padres 3
Curt Schilling snapped a personal five-game losing streak, and Philadelphia benefited from three errors to beat San Diego at Jack Murphy Stadium.
Schilling (9-6) allowed six hits in seven innings to win for the first time since June 11. Rookie Doug Brocail dropped to 2-5.

Dodgers 2
Expos 1
Mitch Webster and Carlos Hernandez each hit their second home run of the season on consecutive pitches from Montreal reliever Jeff Shaw (1-6) in the seventh inning at Dodger Stadium.
The victory was the first since Memorial Day for Tom Candiotti (4-5), who has not given up more than three earned runs in any of his last 12 starts.

Braves 2
Pirates 0
Steve Avery and two relievers combined on a 13-hit shutout as Atlanta defeated visiting Pittsburgh. Avery (10-4) have up 12 hits in 7 2-3 innings.
The Braves scored twice in the fourth inning off Zane Smith (0-4) when with two outs, Brian Hunter singled and Greg Olson and Mark Lemke walked. Avery followed with a two-run single.

Cubs 12
Rockies 2
Rick Wilkins hit a three-run homer to highlight an eight-run first inning, and Chicago went on to rout Colorado in a game shortened to seven innings by rain at Wrigley Field. The Cubs swept the four-game series.
Greg Hibbard (8-6) won for the first time since June 6. Jeff Parrett (3-3) was the loser.

Cowboys' running backs audition at scrimmage

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Michael Beasley isn't the second coming of Emmitt Smith, but the Dallas Cowboys figure he'll do nicely until the NFL's rushing champion ends his contract holdout.

The world champions are holding auditions for running back prospects and Beasley provided several exciting moments for the sun-wilted crowd of some 7,500 Sunday fans on Nelson Field.

Beasley, who played wide receiver at West Virginia and was on the Cowboys practice squad last year, gained 47 yards on 14 carries and scored on a 12-yard run.

Free agent Judd Garrett of Princeton also produced a workmanlike day, getting 107 yards on 21 carries.

The Cowboys were also supposed to get a look at fourth-round draft pick Derrick Lassic of national collegiate champion Alabama but Lassic suffered from cramps and was held out of action.

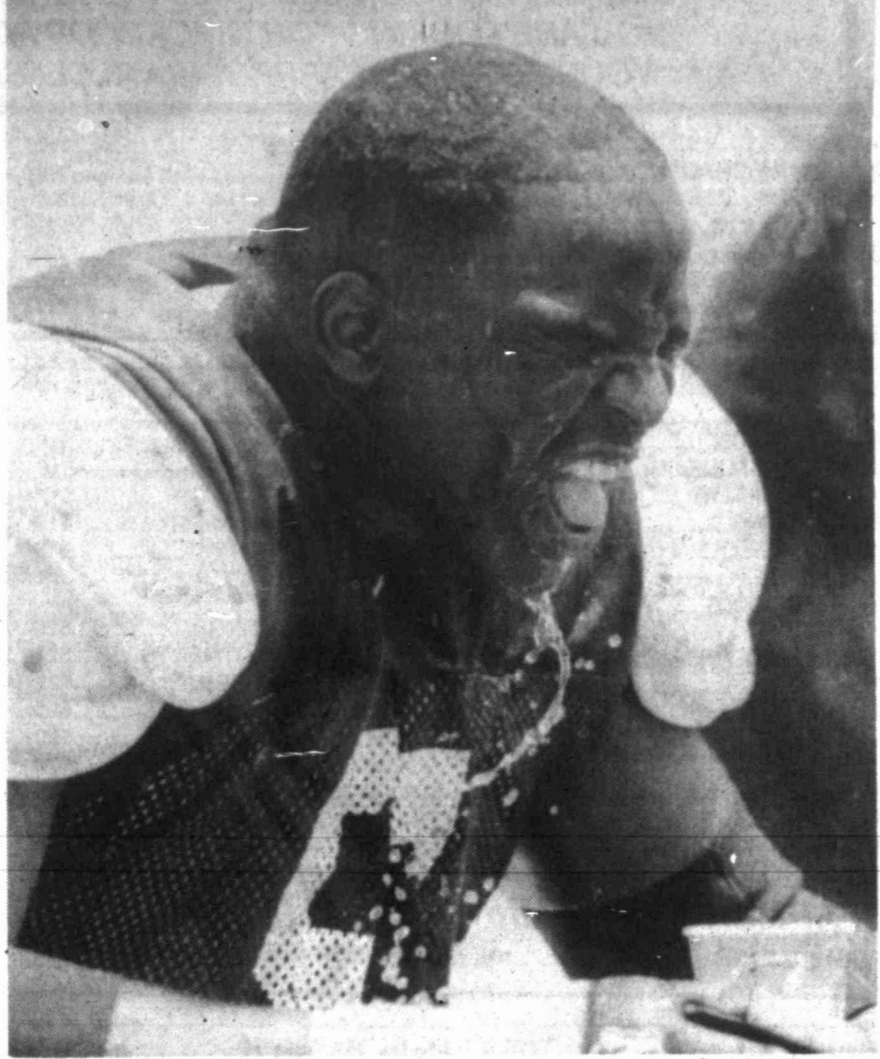

Beasley wants to make yardage and touchdowns while Smith is on his extended vacation in Florida waiting for the Cowboys to do something about his desire to make $4 million per year.

"I wanted the ball even more," Beasley said. "I want as many repetitions as I can get before Emmitt comes back."

The 5-foot-10, 195-pound Beasley made a nice cutback on his touchdown run and had several other efforts where he broke tackles.

"I'm very happy with Beasley," Johnson said. "He has added some toughness to his game. We look for him to be an outstanding running back."

Dallas Cowboy defensive lineman Jimmie Jones (97) tries to keep cool during the Blue-White scrimmage Sunday in Austin.

Beasley will take any praise he can get.

"It's good to hear Jimmy say something good because I've busted my tail the last year on the practice squad," Beasley said. "I just hope Jimmy is saying something like that some Sunday after I've helped the team."

Beasley, who has his locker next to Smith's at Valley Ranch, suffers from no illusions.

"I'm just trying to make the team," he said. "Hopefully, I can help put more fear into the hearts of defenses in the NFL. I just want to be on the 47-man squad."

Softball All-Stars ruling tourney

All-Star softball teams from Big Spring and Coahoma are dominating their opponents at the United Girls Softball Association's Class A and 2A state tournaments in San Angelo.

Big Spring, which is fielding four teams in the Class 2A tournament, has suffered only one loss since the tournament began Friday.

First, the results from Big Spring's Division I (ages 7-9) action from Sunday:

Big Spring 7 Snyder 5

Big Spring's strong pitching tandem of Amber Alvarez and Ashley Lang combined to strike out 10, and Big Spring improved to 3-0 in tournament play.

Meagan led the way offensively, smacking two singles. Ashley Reed and Kaci Stokes hit singles, and catcher Melissa Beatty played excellent defense.

Big Spring Division II (ages 10-12) is 4-0 after two Sunday wins.

Big Spring 13 Andrews 3

Big Spring walloped 18 hits and received strong pitching from Jessica Canales, Nicole Yanez and Amanda Alvarez.

Lindsey Marino tripled and hit two singles. Yanez tripled and singled. Jennifer Hays, Amy Jackson, Jancy Crow and Candice Wade each had two hits.

Juanita Valdez tripled, and four players - Julie Garza, Amy Lang, Canales and Alvarez - singled.

Big Spring 13 San Angelo Blue 6

Canales homered and earned a save, and Alvarez struck out seven in five innings of pitching as Big Spring continued to rule.

Alvarez, Garza, Yanez and Hays each hit two singles. Marino doubled and singled, and Monica Rubio doubled.

Yanez, Valdez, Rubio, Canales and Marino led a strong defensive effort.

Big Spring's Division III (ages 13-16) squad won two close game Sunday to improve to 3-1.

Big Spring 6 Fort Stockton 5

Big Spring trailed 4-3 going into the final inning, but a walk to Mandy Morrow and singles by Melissa Martinez and Jessica Cobos tied the game. Erica Lanspery, who hit a two-run homer earlier in the game, hit a sacrifice fly to give Big Spring the lead, and Cobos added a run when she scored on a passed ball.

Cobos and Martinez had two singles apiece.

Big Spring 14 San Angelo 13

Lanspery came through with another home run plus a two-run double to help Big Spring overcome a 4-0 deficit.

In the final inning with the score 10-10, Kathy Green hit a two-run double, then Honey Belew followed with a two-run single.

Stephanie Kennedy, Spence and Belew each hit two singles. Cobos singled and doubled, and Heather James singled to start the game-winning rally.

Big Spring will play Andrews at 5 p.m. Tuesday for the Division III state championship.

Big Spring Division IV (16-19) is 1-1 after a loss Sunday.

Pampa 7 Big Spring 3

Pitchers Karma Morrow, Jackie Martinez and Angie Jackson combined for 11 strikeouts, but that wasn't enough to beat Pampa.

Joann Rodriguez hit a two-run homer for Big Spring. Big Spring led 2-0 until Pampa scored seven times in the fifth inning.

Coahoma is playing just as well in the Class A tournament. The Division I team lost twice Friday but is now 3-2.

Coahoma 12 Colorado City 11

Lisa Monroe singled three times, and Karen Sterling doubled twice to help Coahoma win Saturday.

Pitchers Sheena Harding and Sterling allowed three hits total. Kynzi Roberts doubled and singled, Ashley Williams doubled and Harding singled.

Coahoma 10 Breckenridge 5

Sterling and Harding combined for a no-hitter as Coahoma earned a Saturday sweep.

Monroe singled twice, and the following players each had one single: Michelle Walker, Erin Stovall, Jackie Molina and Tiffany Starritt. Sterling doubled.

Coahoma 10 Kermit 8

On Sunday, Coahoma got strong pitching from Sterling and Harding, and seven players singled - Monroe, Stovall, Sterling, Harding, Roberts, Lauren Nichols and Sugi Willard.

Coahoma plays twice today, then it plays again Tuesday at 11 a.m.

Coahoma's Division II team is rolling at 5-0.

Coahoma 14 Jal 6

The pitching tandem of Kenni Kay Buchanan and Kelli Buchanan starred on the mound and at the plate in a game that was completed Sunday night after being suspended by rain Friday.

Kenni Kay hit three singles, and Kelli hit two. Amber Bingham singled three times, while Misty Baker singled twice and doubled. Cassie Tindol tripled, doubled and singled.

Kim Elmore doubled and singled, as did Kortney Kemper. Kenna Cathey, Ashley Simmons and Marlana Blair singled.

Coahoma 9 Breckenridge 7

Coahoma poured on the offense Sunday morning.

Tindol doubled twice, Baker tripled and singled, Elmore hit two singles and Kemper tripled and doubled, while Kelli Buchanan singled and doubled, while Kenni Kay Buchanan singled twice.

Amber Bingham singled.

Coahoma 17 Lovington 15

Baker tripled, Bingham singled twice and four others had hits as Coahoma won again Sunday.

Kelli Buchanan singled, as did Stephanie Spark and Cathey. Kenni Kay Buchanan singled.

Coahoma plays twice today.

Coahoma's Division III team is 4-0 after two wins Sunday.

Coahoma 16 Brownfield 4

Dolores Garcia hit two doubles and a single to lead a potent Coahoma offense past Brownfield.

Julie Hernandez singled and doubled, as did Tori Elmore and Belinda Turner. Stephanie Stone doubled, while Brenda Austin and Tara Sterling singled.

Coahoma received strong pitching from Audra Bingham and Elmore.

Coahoma 16 Kermit 3

Elmore and Bingham quieted Kermit's bats, and Coahoma's bats kept booming.

Stone homered and singled, and Garcia blasted three singles. Hernandez and Elmore doubled and singled.

Tina Ruiz doubled twice. Leslie Rodriguez singled twice. Bingham tripled, and Andi Schneider singled.

Coahoma plays Jal tonight at 7:45 p.m., then plays Lovington (N.M.) Tuesday at 7:30 a.m.
