Times do change. A piece in the mail reminds tha it has been just 43 years since Charles Lindber coaxed his little airplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," across the North Atlantic. Now, there are plane which cross the Atlantic in less time than it woul have required Lindberg's plane to fly from St. Loui to the East Coast.

In those days, radio still was a novelty anc television had not been heard of. Automobiles were coming into their own, although there were relatively few paved highways and no such thing as freeways.

Yet, if you wanted to travel to a town located on a railroad — any Railroad — you could buy a ticke and ride a passenger train to it.

The first national convention of art of the American West opens tomorrow at Oklahoma City. It wil continue for three days at the National Cowboy Hal of Fame and Western Heritage Center in conjunction with the center's annual Cowboy Artists of America exhibit.

Some names very familiar to Snyder residents are associated with the Cowboy Artists of America. Tom Ryan of Lubbock is president of the organization, while James Boren of Oklahoma City and formerly of Waxahachie is the secretary. Fred Harman of Albuquerque, N. M., and Melvin Warren of Clifton are members.

Boren, Warren and Harman have art exhibited in the Diamond Museum here and Harman had a specizl show here last year, as did Warren. Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona will serve as judge of the Cowboy Artists of America Exhibit of Western Art. His home in Scottsdale, Ariz., is filled with paintings, sculptures and photos of the west and he is a director of the Heard Museum in Phoenix.

Speaking of mail, a campaign down at Orlando, Fla., has added considerably to postage stamp sales the past week.

They are urging a larger appropriation for cancer research. The campaign, sparked by Orlando Jaycees, has got into the Congressional Record, and we have received as many as six letters per day and not less than three for several days in a row, all of them copies of letters mailed to President Nixon by Orlando citizens participating in the campaign. According to their campaign material, the national budget for 1970 called for expenditures of $410 per American on national defense, $19.50 per American on space research, $19 per American on foreign aid, but only 89 cents per American on cancer research.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, June 11, the 162nd day of 1970. There are 203 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, during World War II, it was disclosed that the United States and the Soviet Union had made a lendlease agreement to aid the Soviet war effort.

On this date:

In 1859, the Comstock lode was discovered in Six Mile Canyon in Nevada. The mineral veins eventually yielded gold and silver worth $340 million.

In 1927, President Calvin Coolidge presented the first Distinguished Flying Cross to Charles A. Lindberg after his solo, transatlantic flight from New York to Paris.

In 1936, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas for the presidency.

In 1937, a military tribunal in the Soviet Union sentenced eight conspiring with Germany. The generals were shot the next day.

In 1940, Princess Juliana of the Netherlands arrived in Canada during World War II.

In 1963, Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace, faced by the federalized National Guard, stepped aside and permitted the enrollment of two Negroes at the University of Alabama.

Ten years ago: White House news secretary James C. Hagerty was rescued by helicopter when his limousine was attacked by stone-throwing, anti-American demonstrators at the Tokyo airport.

Five years ago: Britain's Queen Elizabeth named the Beatles to the monarchy's honor list, making them members of the Order of the British Empire.

One year ago: Soviet and Chinese Communist troops were involved in a border clash.

Set Fire To Houses

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops attacked a South Vietnamese village south of Da Nang early today, killed 70 civilians and wounded 31 others in two hours of slaughter, U.S. officials reported.

Survivors said the Viet Cong invaded Ba Ren Hamlet behind a mortar barrage that set fire to many houses, then ran through the streets "shooting anyone they saw" and hurling grenades into homes and civilian bunkers.

The toll was expected to rise as rescue workers dug through the ruins of nearly 200 huts destroyed or badly damged.

A U.S. officer who flew over the hamlet 17 miles southeast of Da Nang said it was about 90 per cent destroyed or damaged.

In addition to the civilian casualties, one U.S. marine was reported killed and 11 wounded. They were part of a combined action platoon of Marines and local Vietnamese militia stationed at a highway bridge just north of Ba Ren, and a small Viet Cong force attacked them as the main units hit the town.

The platoon reportedly killed 16 Viet Cong and captured one around the bridge, but reports in Da Nang said the enemy mortar barrage pinned down a squad of Marines and militiamen who were in the hamlet, and they did not engage the attackers.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command in Saigon reported a sharp drop in the total of American battlefield deaths last week, with 119 killed compared to 165 the previous week. But U.S. wounded rose from 757 to 1,823.

The command said 26 of the deaths and 235 of the wounded occurred in Cambodia. It said U.S. combat deaths in the Vietnam war total 42,544 since Jan. 1, 1961.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 390 of its soldiers wounded last week and a total of 1,896 enemy slain by allied forces.

The U.S. Command also reported a total of 273 Americans killed in Cambodia since May 1, with 1,196 wounded. It said six Americans were killed and four wounded in two actions Wednesday along the Cambodian side of the border.

A Cambodian military spokesman said North Vietnamese forces were again attacking the airport at Siem Reap and may have occupied the famed ruins at nearby Angkor Wat, Cambodia's chief tourist attraction.

"We don't have any precise information on whether the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are in the temples," Maj. Am Rong told newsmen in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. "But that side is open. We have no Cambodian forces in that area."

The spokesman said possibly 8,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops are now believed to be around Siem Reap, a provincial capital in northwest Cambodia 80 miles from the Thai border.

The enemy forces occupied the Siem Reap airfield last weekend, but the Cambodians retained it Sunday. Maj. Ronv said the North Vietnamese made a new attack on the field Wednesday afternoon, withdrew and then launched another assault this morning.

"Fighting is still continuing," he said. "We have no reports on latest casualties."

In Laos, Premier Souvanna Phouma rejected South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's proposal that his neutralist government join South Vietnam, Cambodia and Thailand in a military alliance to fight communism in Southeast Asia.

Informed sources said Prince Souvanna instead would ask the Soviet Union, Britain and other major powers to put pressure on North Vietnam to respect Laotian neutrality. The sources said Souvanna would visit the foreign governments when he goes to Europe about July 25 for his annual medical visit.

Sources in Vientiane claimed that 120 North Vietnamese were killed in capturing Saravane, in the southeast Laotian panhandle earlier this week.

Road Requests Given Approval

Two requests made by a local delegation have received favorable action by the Texas Highway Commission.

The Texas Highway Department has advised that the commission has sanctioned both projects sought here, although one of them likely will have to await funds in a future appropriation.

The commission reacted favorably to the proposal for a road to connect State Highway 208 (Colorado City Highway) and State Highway 350 (Big Spring Highway) via the campus of Western Texas College. All that is needed now to put the project on the Highway Department's agenda is an official resolution from the Scurry County Commissioners Court to the effect that the county will cooperate with the State Highway Department in building the road by furnishing necessary right-of-way and to give it No. 1 priority for each of the next two years in the Farm to Market Road Program.

This road, which would serve the new junior college, will be needed as soon as the college goes into operation, officials said.

The other project requested by the local group at the hearing June 4 in Austin was a grade separation at the intersection of U. S. Highway 84 and Huffman Avenue in Snyder. The commission expressed its favor for this project, but noted that it probably will have to await the next construction program for funds.

The grade separation project would cost an estimated $748,900, while the road by the junior college campus has an estimated cost of $343,600.

Banks To Reopen In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's banks were scheduled to reopen today after being closed two days by the new military junta. But foreign exchange transactions will not be permitted until next week.

The banks were open during the political upheaval Monday that unseated President Juan Carlos Ongania, and more than $2 million was shipped out of the country. The three-man junta which replaced Ongania closed the banks Tuesday and Wednesday to check the flight of capital and prevent a run on the peso.

Postal Workers In Canada Strike

TORONTO (AP) — About 5,000 postal workers in at least 87 Ontario centers walked off their jobs at 6 a.m. today in support of contract negotiations.

Estimates On Wheat Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department forecast a 1970 Texas winter wheat crop of 62,664,006 Wednesday.

Officials said the winter wheat prospects declined in May when rain was considered below normal in the Texas High Plains and in western Oklahoma.

Indicated production of oranges in Texas is 4,200,000 boxes and indicated production of grapefruit totals 8,200,000 boxes.

On a national level, the 1970 winter wheat crop is forecast at 1,076,445,000 bushels. That is a drop of 2 per cent from May and 6 per cent less than last year's production.

The forecast is based on field conditions as of June 1.

Bangs Bank Is Robbed

BANGS, Tex. (AP) — Four men robbed the First National Bank of Bangs in West Central Texas today and made off with a sum estimated by President B. M. Levisay at $18,000 to $22,000.

Three white men, wearing dark suits, gloves and sun glasses, strolled into the bank at midmorning. A fourth man waited in a car outside.

Two of the robbers held customers and bank employes at pistol point, while the third scooped up the money from the tellers' cages.

They then drove off in a white car.

Road blocks were thrown up in the Central Texas area in a bid to halt the men.

Bangs is a small town 10 miles west of Brownwood.

Improvement Is Seen By Hussein

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

King Hussein said today that the situation in his divided, bloodied nation "is improving rapidly" after three days of fighting between Palestinian guerrillas and Jordanian army troops. Amman Radio said "normal life had returned completely," but guerrilla sources in Beirut said scattered shooting continued in the Jordanian capital.

"We shall do our utmost to bridge the gap and bury dissension," the king said in another broadcast appealing for peace. "The members of the armed forces and the guerrillas are our sons."

In a broadcast at noon his Interior Ministry urged all Jordanians to return to work, indicating that there was still considerable disruption.

Most communication links with the Jordanian capital were still out, but reports reaching Beirut said about 500 persons were killed or wounded in the fighting in Zerka Monday and in Amman Tuesday and Wednesday. Travelers arriving in Beirut said shooting was still going on Wednesday night.

Guerrilla sources in the Lebanese capital claimed that the Palestinian commandos control most sections of Amman and that Zerka, 10 miles to the northeast, is completely under their control. But they said Jordanian armored columns surround both cities.

In the course of the civil strife Wednesday, guerrillas killed a U.S. military attache in front of his wife and two children and held 14 Americans and 18 other foreigners hostage in the Amman Intercontinental Hotel. Two of the Americans, both newsmen, escaped.

Twenty-two foreigners were reported taken hostage Wednesday night at the Philadelphia Hotel in Amman. The new hostages included two West Germans—a journalist and a businessman. The nationalities of the 20 others were not immediately known.

The Palestinian guerrillas holding the hostages threatened today to blow up the Intercontinental and Philadelphia hotels unless the Jordanian army stops shelling refugee camps in and around Amman.

Big Thicket Hearing Set

BEAUMONT (AP)—A Nevada senator will hear from more than 50 witnesses here Friday during a subcommittee hearing on a bill to turn part of the Big Thicket of Texas into a national park.

Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., chairman of the Interior Subcommittee on Parks and Recreation, will conduct a hearing on the bill.

The main point at issue in the hearings is the size of the proposed park.

Timber interests want a string of unconnected parks totalling 35,000 acres.

Conservationists want a 100,999-acre series of enclaves connected by strips one or two miles wide along streams in the area.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough wrote the bill to create the park. It's similar to measures he proposed in 1966, 1967 and 1968, but this is the first such bill to reach the point of public hearings.

Senate Fight Brewing On Air Pollution Bill

By ROBERT A. HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stepped-up $775 million attack on air pollution has passed the House with great ease, but a fight could be brewing in the Senate over setting nationwide air quality standards.

The three-year extension and expansion of 1967 clean air legislation sailed through the House Wednesday, 324-1, directing that national air quality standards be set. The wide-ranging bill also deals with cars, plants, fuels and planes.

But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of a Senate air and water pollution subcommittee, said: "We're trying to work out something that would avoid the built-in traps of national standards."

The House bill directs the secretary of health, education and welfare to set national standards 30 days after enactment.

Pollutants to be regulated include sulfur oxides, particulate matter (like dust), carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and photo chemical oxidants. States could set stricter standards.

Muskie fears national standards could minimize control of air pollutants. He noted metropolitan areas require tougher standards than rural areas.

Under present law, air quality standards for adjoining areas are to be adopted by states on the basis of criteria set by HEW.

The House bill also puts each state in an air quality region. The existing statute directs HEW to establish air quality control regions. Muskie has favored this approach in the past.

House members, however, contend only a few such regions have been established so far under the three-year-old law.

The House bill would set authorized spending for federal air pollution programs at $200 million a year beginning July 1. The level now is about $93 million to $96 million.

The funds would be increased to $250 million in the second year and $325 million in the last 12-month period. All amounts would be subject to actual appropriations at a later time.

During House debate, the biggest attack was directed toward writing even tougher language relating to automobile emissions. But all efforts to bolster auto standards failed.

The House measure, in addition to the air quality provisions, also authorizes:

—National emission standards for stationary sources of pollution like power plants.

—Production-line testing of emission control devices on new cars. Only prototypes are presently tested.

—HEW, after hearings, to stop an additive from being used in fuels if it was found to endanger public health.

—HEW to set emission standards for aircraft to be administered by the Federal Aviation Administration.

—Government facilities to adhere to specified standards unless specific exemptions are provided for such things as national security or public health reasons.

Hunt Body Of Escapee

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Prison officials sought the body of a man today who presumably drowned in the Trinity River after an escape from the Ellis Prison unit.

Another prisoner drowned in the escape Wednesday, and a third surrendered.

Still missing was Billy Frank Evins, 25, serving 10 years for theft from Sherman.

The body of James W. Lemy, 36, who was sentenced to 10 years in Big Spring, was recovered Wednesday night. Officers said Brian Davis, 29, of Uvalde surrendered in the middle of the river.

Asst. Warden Bobby Taylor said the three fled from a cotton chopping work squad and plunged into the river, adjacent to the prison unit.

Davis was serving a 30 year term for robbery by firearms from Uvalde and Kimble Junction counties prison officials said.

The Ellis unit is 15 miles northeast of Huntsville.

Don't tolerate beau's insults

By Abigail Van Buren

(c) 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I need an impartial opinion. I have a friend who is in his sixties. He claims he cares for me. He is perfectly charming when we are in the company of women who are older, or less attractive than I. But if there is a younger or prettier woman around, he is sure to say something like, "I think I'll dump her [pointing to me], and take YOU out instead." In the past I've just smiled and ignored it, even tho I was deeply hurt inside.

The last time he did this, I lost my temper. He started making over a cocktail waitress and offered to "see her home safely." [She declined.] On the way home, I let him know exactly how I felt about his behavior, and I really lost my temper. He said I was having a "menopause fit."

I haven't heard from him in a week. Should I call and apologize for losing my temper? BUFFALOED

DEAR BUFFALOED: That depends upon how you "lost your temper." If you let loose with a right to his jaw, then apologize. But if you simply said what you meant and meant what you said, no apology is necessary. If you lose him, you lose him. Who needs a man who humiliates you in public, and makes cruel references to your "time of life" in private?

DEAR ABBY: While in a parking lot, I was shocked when a young man rolled down his car window and yelled obscenities at an elderly woman driver, even tho she was obviously a very poor driver.

Now, it happens that my husband is considering recommending this same young man to a very important and responsible position with his firm. In view of this young man's rude and immature behavior, I hate to see my husband back him.

Should I mention this to my husband? What is your opinion of such a person? This has really upset me.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: My opinion of this person is the same as yours. He's rude and immature. Yes, mention it to your husband. One glimpse of a man's behavior when he doesn't know he's being observed is worth a 10-page "aptitude" test. If your husband's firm wants a patient, courteous, controled, mature man—your young friend doesn't qualify.

DEAR ABBY: It seems only logical to me that when a woman becomes a widow at an age when she can no longer live alone, she should go to live with one of her children. [Preferably a daughter.]

Not MY mother-in-law. Oh, no! She prefers to remain "independent." Ha, that's a laugh. Without any income whatsoever. She went through every dime of her insurance money in three years. Now she's sitting pretty in a fancy senior citizens' residence. And who do you think is paying for it? Her children, of course. She has five, who share the expense equally.

The other four can manage nicely, but it puts a real strain on us. In fact, I had to go back to work so his mother could be "independent."

My mother-in-law is only 19 years older than I am, and I wouldn't mind retiring in a fancy senior citizens' residence myself. Do you care to comment?

WEARY IN DETROIT

DEAR WEARY: I think you've said it all.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK OF FISH" IN WISCONSIN: I can give you the advice, but what you need is the courage to tell your husband that your idea of a "vacation" is NOT getting up every morning at 4 a. m., sitting in a boat with your lip zipped for endless hours, and cleaning fish!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Letter writing can be a breeze. For Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Recording Banned In Breckenridge

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (AP) — A Western song that mentions this North Texas town has been banned from the local radio station and the Chamber of Commerce complains that the record is "an affront to Stephens County, Breckenridge and every rural community in Texas."

The song, "Color Me Western," by Eddie Burns, recently was placed on sale in Nashville, on the Plantation label.

"Color Me Western" says in part:

"From a worked-out farm in Breckenridge to the Dallas Cats.

When we left Stephens County, we hoped for more than that. A poor man with no learnin' finds living might low, but when you're strong enough, you can carry any load."

Bill Craig, president of the First National Bank of Breckenridge and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, said today he hadn't any further comment. But a letter to the record company asking immediate withdrawal of "Color Me Country," did not get the action sought.

"Because of our 'country' training," wrote the Chamber of Commerce, "we won't picket your building, throw a brick through your windows or smash your records; however, we strongly protest the inference that we are under privileged."

"Many of our listeners are Eddie Burns' fans, particularly from the Abilene area," Lloyd Mayberry of radio station KSTB said. "We will continue to play Burns' other records, but not 'Color Me Country.'"

Burns himself wrote to the Abilene Reporter-News: "There are no hidden messages, nothing derogatory, and nothing in the song that would picture the area as a poverty-stricken place. I am sorry that the people were offended and I'm apologizing, hoping they will accept."

A spokesman for the record company said the firm felt the song was "in no way derogatory" and it would be unfair to the public, the artist and the firm to remove it from the market."

Assault Charge Is Filed Here

Willie Walker, 3405 Avenue M, was charged in Justice of the Peace Court yesterday with assault with intent to murder.

He allegedly struck his wife, Lupe, on the head with a hammer. Bond has not been set.

Authorities believed the woman would recover, although the wound was considered serious.

Gambling Grandma Out

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes' purchase of famed Harolds Club casino in Reno means that a wealthy "Gambling Grandma" must give up her casino games, going since 1941, a Hughes attorney says.

Mrs. Jesse Beck has been given until June 30 to move her two thriving keno (lottery) games and card tables from the seven-story casino so Hughes can install his own.

"We have no intention to harm anyone," Thomas Bell, who is guiding Hughes' first move into northern Nevada gambling, told the Nevada Gaming Control Board, which Wednesday gave preliminary approval to the sale of Harolds Club.

"It is the policy of Hughes to run all the games," and that was one of the conditions of the $11.3 million purchase from the Smith Family Corp.," he said.

The white-haired woman, who gained national attention as Nevada's "Gambling Grandma" by writing to GI's in Vietnam, said through her attorney that a "distinct difference of opinion" exists over the future of the games.

Southpaw Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers played Connie Mack League baseball when he was a youngster.

Liquor Violation Charges Filed

Several cases were filed in county court yesterday, and everyone charged pleaded innocent.

Charged on illegal sale of intoxicating liquor were Anderson Davis, Jr. Mozelle King, James Price and Elsie Zamora. Mozelle King was charged with illegal possession.

They were apprehended by Sheriff's Authorities.

Phil Goyette, veteran center for the St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League, won the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy for his clean play last season.

Lady Journalist Says Lib Seekers 'Kooks'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Martha Rountree, a dynamic, successful woman journalist, sums up the women's liberation movement in these words:

"I think they're a bunch of kooks."

If women want new privileges or rights, she told newsmen Wednesday, "all they have to do is [illegible] and take a lot of people out of Washington that shouldn't be there."

The creator of television's "Meet the Press" brushed aside the movement as a "ridiculous sort of thing."

In an address later to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, she charged that the nation has a "do nothing" Congress and advised her audience to "clean house in Washington before it is too late."

Many of the nation's problems can be solved when women unite and insist on better government, she said.

"There's really nothing wrong with this country," she declared, "that Congress couldn't cure."

An estimated 2,000 delegates from the United States and abroad are attending the federation's 79th annual convention. The organization is the largest of its type in the world.

Junior delegates, the federation's younger members, heard a challenge Wednesday to launch a crusade to teach young people that America needs builders, not destroyers.

"It is high time for you and me to get off the defensive and take the offensive," former Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr said. "Let's start talking about what is right with America."

He urged them to "join me this very moment in a crusade —a crusade to restore the American spirit...that will shake the American people out of the inferiority complex they have developed."

America needs "the inspiration of the young and the wisdom of the old working side by side," he said, adding that "if America falters now, our successor's flag will be a Communist flag."

The delegates unanimously adopted 10 resolutions Wednesday including support of research in space, research into possible dangers of chemical pesticides, and a call for Congress to "give serious consideration" to prohibiting the mailing of unsolicited credit cards.

New officers were to be elected in today's session.

Featured speaker was H. Ross Perot, Dallas computer magnate who has attempted to aid prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

Luncheon Honors Bride-Elect

A luncheon honoring Miss Suzan Spires, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Spires and bride-elect of Jerry Lee Cline, was held Tuesday at Lubbock.

The dinner was served in the Hob Nob Room of Hemphill-Wells. Hostesses were Mrs. D. M. Cogdell Jr. and Mrs. Jack E. Westbrook.

Guests included Mrs. John Keller, grandmother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Buck Adams and Miss Kiki Adams, aunt and cousin of the honoree, of Kansas.

War Critic Frozen Out

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An iceberg-cold reception greeted an actor who spoke out against the war in Vietnam Wednesday to members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Gary Merrill, who said he recently returned from a USO-Defense Department visit to Vietnam, claimed U.S. soldier morale is high—"because they want to stay alive so they can get out."

Speaking at a dinner for junior clubwomen, the federation's younger members, Merrill launched into his subject after delivering a poem.

When he made a humorous remarks about U.S. involvement overseas, he asked if there were any questions. Mrs. Dale W. Steffes of Houston stood up and declared, "Your kind of talk is what's exciting our youth."

Mrs. Steffes said her brother was killed in Vietnam and he was proud to serve as a soldier for his country. She was applauded.

Merrill, 54, former husband of actress Bette Davis, was invited to the dinner program as a "surprise guest" to read poetry.

Congress Seen As 'Same Old Club'

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress "hasn't changed a particle" since she was elected to it in 1917, says Jeanette Rankin, the first woman to serve there. "It's still the same old club."

Nor has the condition of women changed much since then, said Miss Rankin, a leader in the female suffrage fight at the turn of the century. "The women's liberation movement is talking about the same issues now that we talked about then."

A petite, patrician-looking woman from Montana who served as a Republican in the House from 1917-1919 and again from 1941-1943, Miss Rankin celebrates her 90th birthday today with a dinner in her honor sponsored by several senators and congressmen.

Slowed only a little by a broken hip suffered six weeks ago, Miss Rankin devotes much of her time to antiwar efforts and pushing for direct preferential presidential elections.

One of 56 congressmen to vote against American entry into World War I and the only member of Congress to vote against declaring war on Japan, Miss Rankin calls the American foray into Cambodia "wrong, stupid and cruel."

"There are better methods for settling disputes than killing young men," she said, "but we —the public—have only ourselves to blame that they aren't being used."

Last fall, she walked in moratorium marches in Georgia and California. Two years ago, she led a rally of women in a march on Capitol Hill to protest the Vietnam war. The rally was dubbed the Jeanette Rankin brigade.

Miss Rankin, who divides her time between homes in Montana and Georgia, also writes numerous letters and makes countless telephone calls to members of Congress urging an end to the war. She wishes every American would do the same.

"But don't just state your position," she cautions. "Always ask a question. And be prepared to write a half dozen times before you get an answer."

Miss Rankin would like to see a female congressman from every district. "Maybe we wouldn't do any better than the men but we certainly couldn't do any worse," she said.

Women are too dependent on men, she said, to realize their full potential.

"If they're independent, talkative and say what they think they can't get a job or husband. Look at me," she said jokingly, "unmarried and unemployed most of my life."

In 1933 playwright George Bernard Shaw returned home to Britain saying, "There are three things which I shall never forget about America—the Rocky Mountains, the Statue of Liberty and Amos 'n' Andy."

"Dutch Uncle" Demonstrates Application of Eyelashes

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

What are the ladies going to do down on the farm at York, Pa., when the Barnhart clan—700 strong—meets for its annual reunion?

They'll learn how to apply false eyelashes—that's what.

And their "Dutch uncle," makeup man Ron Buchart, president of the family clan, will be their teacher.

"I'll put eyelashes on everyone except the over-100 year-olds," he says.

Buchart is one of the best-known quick-as-a-wink eyelash appliers.

In fact, Buchart, whose ancestors settled York in 1610 and who owns a 186-acre farm there today, often is referred to as the Flying Dutchman—a tribute to his makeup ability.

At a recent beauty-fashion show, he amazed the ladies who watched him apply hundreds of eyelashes in less than 1-16th of a second per eye. But this isn't something he only does on occasion. As national director of makeup styles for Charles of the Ritz, he is on the road six months a year, visiting one or another of their 1,500 makeup bars or salons. At each stop, Buchart instructs demonstrators and eager customers, some of whom drive more than 100 miles to get his advice.

In addition to giving instructions in eye makeup, Buchart will tell lady members of the Pennsylvania Dutch clan when they gather for the shindig not to use washcloths on their faces because the washcloths may remove the protective 'acid mantle' of their skins. And he'll remind those with aging lines—over the lips, at the chin and hands—that slathering makeup over the lines won't hide them.

There's an art to applying makeup to older skin that might be in three different colors. Skin areas must be treated before the main foundation is applied. (Cirles under the eyes may be lightened or darkened.)

Many women do not wear eyelashes because they haven't the patience to apply them, Buchart says. He tries to show how simple it is.

When you apply eyelashes he advises, "stand straight up close to a mirror so your arms are not akimbo. Then pick up one of the eyelashes and curl it around your finger to help contour it. Squeeze a speck of adhesive on a bit of paper and dip the tube point into it, applying it to the lashes." You don't touch the lash with your finger, he points out. When you place the eyelashes on the lid, you should leave a little distance at the corner of the lid, about the width of your small finger which should be held up and measured at the eyelid. Apply the minimum of pressure to the eyelashes with the little finger, and presto your lashes should be all set.

Buchart cautions women who wear contact lenses to be aware that powdered eye shadow can find its way behind the lenses. He prefers the liquid kind.

When he is giving makeup advise, he doesn't spare anyone's feelings.

"They get the talk-to-them-like-a-Dutch-uncle routine," he says. "After all, if they're putting a good deal of money into cosmetics—some people spend $100 or more on facial products after a beauty session—they should realize that the criticism may save them money."

He is often asked how to vary eyeshadow. He likes pink or a rose tone shadow near the nose. An aqua shadow may be blended across the eyelid in the evening.

Eyeliner that is extended at the corners of the eye should be applied before putting on the eyelashes. Pastel tones, grays, blues and green liner make the eye look bigger than when black liner is worn, he explains.

If one insists on putting eyeliner on the bottom lid— it, too, makes the eye look smaller—a dot should be placed between each eyelash covering only one-half either inside-out or outside-in the eye. If you want it to be further away, take it from the inside-out.

After attending Cornell University, where he had considered going into the hotel business, Buchart took the acting route via Pasadena Playhouse. He was with several moving picture companies and in summer stock, but gravitated to the beauty business when his wife and child were killed in an automobile accident.

"It seems like a highly unlikely business for me. My brothers are in space, law and medicine, and the Dutch still bury their money in lard buckets—but I like it."

FLYING DUTCHMAN, . .Ron Buchart, known for his ability to apply eyelashes in a jiffy, demonstrates the proper technique of makeup application at a fashion show in New York.

Nursing Home Probe Is Pushed By Congressman

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman charges the government is "buckling under to pressures of nursing home lobbyists" by failing to insist on adequate care for the elderly.

Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., a sharp critic of nursing homes who went inside them to make personal inspections as a weekend aide earlier this year, peppered his House speech Wednesday with examples of patient neglect.

Pryor blasted a Department of Health, Education and Welfare decision to drop its federal standards for intermediate care facilities. He said aged patients "power politics and an apathetic bureaucracy."

However, Welfare Administration John D. Twiname said the change this week is meant only to give states more flexibility in setting their own standards and will not result in any reduction in the quality of care.

The 35-year-old congressman, who is pushing legislation for a House probe of nursing homes, cited letters from patients' relatives that included these cases:

1. In Elizabethton, Tenn., a woman whose husband was moved from a hospital to a nursing home found him tied with blankets to a wet bed and dying.

Pryor said no help came for 15 minutes when the wife rang the bedside buzzer. When she asked the nurse to call a doctor, no one came. The wife had the husband taken by ambulance to a hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

2. In Laurens, N.Y., a daughter found her aged mother unconscious. The nurse told her, "You know your mother is very ill and doesn't have long to live. We can't call the doctor over every little thing."

When the daughter called a doctor herself, he found the patient suffering from an extreme case of insulin shock, Pryor said, as a result of a failure to adjust the dosages of medicine properly.

3. In Swanton, Ohio, another woman who found her mother becoming fuzzy-minded and not eating discovered that she and other patients were "being kept under the influence of sedatives and drugs so the help would not be bothered."

4. In Hot Springs, Ark., a dietitian in a nursing home said the trays were washed by a patient with tuberculosis, and a container with excrement from soiled diapers was left uncovered, swarming with flies, just outside the kitchen.

5. In Dallas, Tex., a nurse told Pryor food was skimpy and drug prices were doubled at one modern home, but the facility always passed medicare checkups because it was told in advance when government inspectors were coming.

Lawers For Dowdy Ask Dismissal

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lawyers for Rep. John Dowdy asked a federal court Wednesday to dismiss bribery and perjury charges against the Texas Democrat on the grounds that a Justice Department probe of a congressman's activities are "protected."

Leon H. A. Pierson, Dowdy's counsel, argued that only Congress can question the activities of its members.

Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen indicated he would write an opinion on the Constitutional question following final arguments Thursday.

Dowdy, from Athens, is charged in an eight-count indictment with conspiracy, perjury and carrying $25,000 via interstate facilities.

He allegedly perjured himself to a special grand jury in Baltimore investigating corruption in government.

The charges stem from an alleged attempt to quash a Justice Department probe of a now defunct Washington home repair firm.

Former U.S. Atty. Stephen H. Sachs, who now is working as a special assistant on the case, said the government would reject any arguments brought by Dowdy against the charges derived from the "speech and debate clause" of the Constitution.

Sachs claims the clause is "a narrowly-drawn statute" that does not include such charges as bribery.

The state of Kentucky has eased regulations on child labor, in one instance allowing children under 14 to work in programs [illegible] by [illegible] schools.

Pepitone Leads Astros Over NY Metros, 5-2

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press SportsWriter

Joe Pepitone a leadoff hitter? Never. Even the colorful ex-Yankee couldn't believe it. But Houston Manager Harry Walker did, and the New York Mets were certainly convinced.

"When I saw my name there, I thought he (Walker) had the lineup upside down," Pepitone said Wednesday night after clouting a fifth inning grand slam home run to lead the Astros to a 5-2 triumph over the Mets.

"I asked myself, 'What am I doing in this position?'," Pepitone said. "But after tonight, I want to stay there." Pepitone also led off Tuesday night, the first time he had ever batted there in his major league career.

In other National League games, Cincinnati rolled to its fifth straight victory, a 7-0 blanking of Montreal, Atlanta downed Philadelphia 5-1, San Diego slugged Chicago 11-7, Los Angeles stopped St. Louis 4-2 and San Francisco topped Pittsburgh 4-2.

In American League play, the New York Yankees nipped Minnesota 2-1, Baltimore edged California 2-1, Oakland nudged Cleveland 6-4, Washington ripped Kansas City 8-1, Detroit whipped Milwaukee 7-5 and Boston nipped Chicago 7-6 in 14 innings.

Pepitone, the 29-year-old first baseman-outfielder who came to the Astros over the winter from the New York Yankees in exchange for Curt Blefary, capped a five-run fourth inning explosion off Mets' fireballer, Nolan Ryan, 4-5, snapping Houston's four-game losing streak.

The home run was Pepitone's 12th of the season and gave him 26 runs batted in to go with his .261 batting average. With the Yankees, the long-haired southpaw swinger slugged 166 home runs and drove in 541 runs over eight seasons with a .252 average.

The Reds, winning for the 10th time in 11 starts and threatening to make a runaway of the West Division race, leading runnerup Atlanta by 10 games, got a pair of three-run homers from Tony Perez and Bernie Carbo and three-hit pitching from Jim McGlothlin.

Perez, who slugged his 21st homer of the season, tops in the majors, to go along with 63 RBI, says he "has set no goals. I will continue to take all my home runs as they come."

McGlothin, however, now 8-3, said: "I've got to win all these games to keep up with my roommate (Jim Merritt, 11-3). The way this team has been playing there is a good possibility that we can end up with four 20-game winners."

George Stone swept to his sixth victory, tossing a three-hitter and Bob Tillman keyed a four-run Braves' second inning flurry with a two-run single. The triumph snapped Atlanta's four-game losing streak. Stone, a left-hander who has lost only once, struck out five Expos and walked three.

Chris Cannizzaro drove in three runs and Ollie Brown and Ivan Murrell slashed homers overcoming a four home run barrage by the Cubs.

Clarence Gaston, Nate Colbert and Brown each had two rbi's for the Padres while Billy Williams, Jim Hickman, John Callison and Paul Popovich ripped homers for the Cubs.

Joe Moeller hurled his first major league complete game in six years as the Dodgers snapped a four-game skid. The right-hander, 2-1, last completed a game in 1964. He struck out seven and scattered seven hits to the Cardinals.

Los Angeles got only five hits but four Cardinal hurlers issued six walks, two hit batsman and a wild pitch with starter Mike Torrez, 4-6, picking up the loss.

Eighth inning homers by Willie Mays and Ken Henderson helped the Giants overcome the Pirates. Willie McCovey's 19th homer of the season had given the Giants two earlier runs. Mays' No. 14 this year gave him a career total of 614, exactly 100 behind the major league record of 714 held by the late Babe Ruth.

Skipper Pleased With His Yacht

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Skipper Robert W. McCullough is pleased with the way his yacht Valiant is behaving during the America's Cup preliminary trials, but he isn't so happy about the rules.

McCullough of Riverside, Conn., sailed Valiant to another victory over Intrepid Wednesday on Long Island Sound, but lost a protest ruling that he had deliberately brought on in Tuesday's second race.

After Intrepid had won the first two races Monday of this five-day series, Valiant finished in front in Tuesday's two tests against Intrepid, but Intrepid skipper Bill Ficker lodged a protest in the second race.

The New York Yacht Club's race committee upheld the protest Wednesday, giving the victory to Intrepid.

Ficker had protested under a right-of-way rule which says a starboard tack boat has the right of way over a port tack one, a protest prompted by manuevering six minutes before the start of the race.

McCullough, however, saw the rule in a different light.

"There is a kind of a blank spot in the rules where nobody knows the answer," he said. "We felt this was something we wanted to get a ruling on and the preliminary trials would be a good time to do it."

The question he wanted answered was: how much maneuvering is a starboard tack boat allowed to do to block a port tack boat? He deliverately brought on the protest to get an answer, but he was not satisfied that the committee's ruling answered the question.

These trials continue today when Heritage, a yacht from Florida under Charles E. Morgan, joins the action to determine America's Cup defender against either a French or Australian challenger in September. Friday will conclude this set of trials, and two more trial series will be held in July and August.

Heritare, which arrived from Florida Tuesday, was expected to join the chase Wednesday, but Morgan decided he needed more time to tune up his 12 meter yacht. The race committee planned to match Heritage against Intrepid in today's first race.

Club Not For Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerome D. Hoffman, the president of a London investment company, arrived in New York late Wednesday night, ready to purchase the New York Yankees from the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Although informed that CBS has said the team is not for sale, Hoffman remained undaunted. "We'll see what happens," he said. "We don't want to embarrass anyone.

"We can go $20 million, $22 million, $25 million. It all depends on the books. If they want to sell we want to buy."

Hoffman, a former St. Louisan who is president of International Investors Group Services Ltd., said he had talked by telephone with former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who is board chairman of the investment group, and will see him today.

He also said he received a call from Michael Bruek, president of the Yankees, while he was in London, but he didn't elaborate on the call.

Burke said late Wednesday "the club is not for sale."

"We are not negotiating," he said. "I don't know Mr. Hoffman.

College World Baseball Series Set For Friday

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

OMAHA (AP) — The Texas Longhorns and Southern California Trojans, old hands in baseball tournament competition, take on a pair of strong upstarts to open the College World Series Friday night.

The double-elimination tourney, drawing eight NCAA district winners throughout the nation, will stretch about a week, including scheduled play for the first time on Sunday. There will be a new champion since Arizona State failed to win a return trip.

After Friday's doubleheader, there will be three afternoon-night games Saturday and the same slated for Sunday. By this time, a winners-losers bracket should be firmed up and two teams eliminated by absorbing their second losses.

Texas 36-6 opposes the Delaware Blue Hens (22-4) at 5:30 p.m. CDT Friday in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium, followed at 8:30 p.m. by Southern California (47-12) facing the Ohio University Bobcats (31-4).

The two losers will meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. That night, the Florida State Seminoles (45-7; play the Arizona Wildcats (44-16) and the Dartmouth Indians (23-8) engage the Iowa State Cyclones (18-9).

Sunday's timetable calls for games between Saturday's loser as well as games between Friday and Saturday's winners.

Here is a brief rundown of the teams:

Texas—Making 14th trip and winner in 1949-1950 to be only team taking consecutive championships. Team batting .298 headed by Tom Harmon and David Chalk, .354 each, and slugger John Langerhans, nine homers. Team pitching 1.59 ERA with Burt Hooton 10-1, James Street football quarterback, 8-1 and Jeff Mike Powell 5-0.

Delaware—World Series debut. Hitting .307, pitching 2.37. Bruce Fad batting .446 and Dave Yates .390. Hurlers include Ted Zink 7-0 and Doug Hopper 7-2.

USC—Winning streak of 13 in 11 trips, champion five times, last in 1968. Batting .281 and pitching 2.36. Dave Kingman .417 at plate and switch-hitter Dan Stoligrosz .335 with 50 RBI's and a tourney high of 14 homers. Brent Strom, 13-1, and Jim Barr, 12-1, both pitching on 1968 title squad.

Ohio U.—Making first appearance with meet's best-won-lost percentage of .886 and 12-game victory string. Also tops field in team batting .331. Pitching 2.61. Mike Hannan tourney's No. 1 batter with .447 while Terry Raszka is .362 with 45 RBI's. All regulars hitting .292 or better.

Florida State—Batting .286. Pitching .0.56, tourney's best ERA. Second baseman Dick Nichols, at 5-6 smallest player, hitting .362. Six with 31 or more RBI's headed by Ron Cash 41. On mound Gene Ammann 13-0 with lowest ERA of 0.60; lefty Pat Osburn 11-2 and 1.03; 132 and 136 strikeouts, respectively.

Arizona, a come-from-behind team that scored five times in the ninth to beat Denver for District 7 title. World Series finalist in 1956, 1959 and 1963. Batting .319. Pitching 4.17, tourney's highest.

Some Brokerage Firms Pull Forces Together

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One solution to the rickety financial underpinnings of many securities firms may be to "pump two or three revenue producing units through the same operational pipeline."

In other words, to merge the businesses of two or more firms, eliminating in the process as much fixed overhead and duplication as possible. It means layoffs, of course, and the closing of some fancy branch offices.

Such thinking was involved in the recently announced plans of the nation's third largest brokerage firm, Francis I. duPont, and the big investment banking firm of Glore, Forgan, Staats, Inc.

Archie Albright, who as president of GFS initiated talks with duPont, believes more such consolidations will be announced soon, as Wall Street reacts belatedly to a sharp drop in business.

The duPont firm, a partnership, reported an operating loss of $7.7 million last year, a figure the company says was reduced by tax recoveries. It declined comment on its present financial status.

The process already is well under way. Nearly 40 member firms of the N.Y. Stock Exchange either closed down or merged last year. The rate has accelerated this year, with 20 firms merged or closed through April.

The basic problem, as Albright sees it, is that many firms used the wild trading volume of 1968 as a base from which to project their future. They assumed there would be 15 million and 20 million share days. They planned for nothing less.

The result: overhiring, numerous branch offices, elaborate office equipment, posh furniture. The same bullish view permitted management and administrative lapses to go undetected. Poor accounting practices were common.

When trading volume slackened, the old practice of layoffs no longer was sufficient. The payroll could be cut, but it was more difficult to cut down on the fixed overhead. How do you fire the computer?

Albright claims to know of what he speaks. He became president of GFS last year and within weeks had cut personnel by roughly 10 per cent. This put the firm in the black for the final three months of the year, but in Albright's view the situation remained precarious. Another 10 per cent were dropped in February.

Still unsatisfied, Albright looked for a match with another company. After at least one failure, the present plan was arranged, the intent being to complement GFS's investment capabilities with duPont's retail facilities.

A few days after the merger, another firm was added to the complex by the joining of Hirsch & Co. with duPont. This means that as of July 1 the business of three firms will be supported by one streamlined administrative base.

Junior Editors Quiz on HERMIT CRABS

QUESTION: Why should some crabs become hermits?

* * *

ANSWER: If you are exploring the ocean beach some time, you will probably find many small crabs in the tidal pools and shallow waters. On the beach, many will run rapidly away with their odd sideways gait, waving their claws in defiance. But watch for some which, to your surprise, will be found peeping out from the slit of such a seashell as a periwinkle or moon shell. These are the funny little hermit crabs. One rarely finds them outside the shell. If you did, it would look like the one at upper left, with a soft twisted body which is obviously adapted to living inside a seashell. Hermit crabs have adopted this queer way of living because it gives them protection from enemies; note, in our picture, how they can curl up quite safely inside. The situation at the lower right is remarkable. Sea anemonies are very primitive animals which attach themselves to solid objects and strain out tiny sea food with their tentacles. But a special sea anemone, adamsia, specializes in fixing itself to a hermit crab's shell. Since the crab carries its shell around with it, the anemone can keep eating and see the world as well.

Petitions Delivered To Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Petitions endorsing the Indochina war policies of President Nixon, bearing more than 7,000 signatures, were delivered to the White House Tuesday by seven students from Texas.

They came from Dallas as representatives of the Student Majority for a Responsible Expression and plan to stay in Washington until Friday.

Most of their time will be devoted to lobbying against the Cooper-Church amendment which would forbid further use of U.S. troops in Cambodia after June 30.

A presidential aide, John Davies, met with the students in the East Garden at the White House and received the petitions for Nixon.

"We were a little let down but we know the President has a busy schedule," said Dave Horton. "But he will hear from Mr. Davies that Texans support him, and even though we didn't see him personally he'll get the word."

The students started out Tuesday to talk to three senators they believed were uncommitted —Charles Percy of Illinois, Mike Gravel of Alaska and William B. Saxbe of Ohio.

John Bires said the three turned out to be co-sponsors of the Cooper-Church amendment or in favor of its general purpose.

Blues Are Common Malady

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — What is the most common malady of our times?

A doctor might say it was headache or head colds. A dentist would vote for tooth decay. A barber might nominate dandruff or, rather, the conditions that cause it.

But probably the most prevalent ailment that has preyed upon man in all ages and climes affects chiefly not his body but his mind. It is that disease of the human spirit known colloquially as "the blues."

You can get it from a hundred different specific causes. It can come from being broke, out of work, out of love or from just plain feeling "out of sorts" with everybody and everything. Often it merely consists of a nameless, aimless feeling of melancholy and futility—perhaps springing from an unconscious realization of how much the individual and his small dreams lie at the mercy of a vast universe indifferent to either his welfare or his fate.

But periodically it affects everyone from the child in its cradle to the old man in his wheel chair. The symptoms in most cases are these: movement dwindles, self-pity and petulence increase, and a pensive, brooding look comes upon the face as the soul stares inwardly at its own darkness.

"How do you whip the blues?" That is a question I have asked perhaps 1,000 people I have interviewed over the last quarter century. It never fails to interest them, because all have felt life-defeated at some time in their careers, no matter how hopeful or bouyant their natures.

Just what can you do to snap out of it when you're feeling low and everything is going wrong? Here are a few suggestions given me by those interviewees, some famous, some merely infamous:

Stand on your head, literally, to get a different view of things.

Take a cold shower.

Walk or drive a different way home.

Memorize a poem.

Reread your old love letters.

Clean out a closet.

Count your blessings.

Write down all the worries that are bothering you and then light a match and burn the paper, thus symbolically destroying them.

Avoid the people who bug you.

Go window shopping.

Cook a new dish you've never tried before.

Buy something brightly colored you've never dared wear before.

Hike into the hills and shout your woes aloud until the echoes make you realize how insignificant they are.

Go into a park and listen to the children laugh.

Go to a zoo and feed peanuts to the elphant.

Make a game out of seeing how many hours a day you can let pass without complaining about anything or criticizing anyone.

Pour out your troubles to an old friend who is really fond of you.

Ponder the wisdom of the old saying, "This, too, will pass." Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is one of many who found comfort in this four-word remedy.

Pray. Pray not just lying in a lonely bed at night, but in your heart at your desk, or in a dimly lit church during your lunch period.

Summed up, all these cures for the blues have one basic thought: Don't just sit there feeling sorry for yourself. Get up and do something—right now. Almost any change or action you take, within the limits of common sense, will probably make you feel better.

Medical Minister Wears Two Hats

By DAVE WHITNEY
Associated Press Writer

INDEPENDENCE, Iowa (AP) — Dr. Chester McClure has chosen to wear two hats in life, that of a physician-psychiatrist and that of an ordained minister.

It gives him a dual viewpoint in dealing with such problems as addiction — by young and old.

McClure, 49, serves as medical director of the State Mental Health Institute here and preaches every other Sunday to a congregation of about 20 people in the town of Littleton — population 60. He is an ordained Presbyterian minister.

"Actually I started out to be a minister," he says. "But after working with people in the ministry I got so interested in people and their problems I decided I wanted to go into psychiatry.

The only way to get there was through medicine."

A native of Indiana, McClure was discharged as a pilot after World War II and returned to Indiana University where he got his BA degree.

Next, he went to the Louisville, Ky., Presbyterian Seminary to study the psychological aspects of religion.

McClure served a pastorate in Madisonville, Ky., for four years but went to Louisville in 1955. He preached at a small church in neighboring Bardstown, and entered school once again.

By attending both day and night classes, he took 57 hours of pre-med in a year and two summers and was on his way to getting his degree in psychiatry.

New Year's Day, 1966, found him on duty at the State Mental Health Institute here, where he has served since. He was named medical director last year.

In his dual role of pastor and doctor, McClure has spent much time with both adults and young people, and is quick to say drugs and alcoholism are not something "to pin on kids.

"The way I see this drug problem, it's certainly not confined to the young people—which is the mistake we're making today.

"This dependence upon synthetics in order to make life bearable permeates all levels of our society.

"I think it's a terrible mistake to just pin it on the kids. Your biggest abusers are your adults, who are using alcohol, amphetamines, cigarettes and what have you," he says.

"Alcohol is a drug. There are many people who can't go to sleep at night without aspirin, who can't start the day without caffein in the coffee.

Then you go into the milder drugs. Finding popularity with the young people is marijuana, which may not be any more damaging than alcohol.

"I don't consider alcohol a be[illegible]drug by any means. There are an awful lot of women alcholics today that nobody — nobody — knows about. We're beginning to get them here, and the number of women alcoholics is increasing," McClure says.

McClure does not believe in spending time with either drug addicts or alcoholics who don't want to be cui78

"If I can determine that this kid doesn't want to quit taking drugs, I'm not going to waste my time on him," he says. But I tell him 'If you want to quit the drugs, I'll give you all the help I can.'

"The same thing is true for the alcoholic. I hit him with 'Do you want to quit drinking?'

"If he sputters around and says, 'Well,fliketotu9aT+— N?IN NOUEDNG NGOURTIME,' McClure says.

He says adults are getting away with a lot of things, while it is the youngsters who usually get caught.

Houston Has Big Garbage Problem

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston has garbage, garbage everywhere, and one less dump to put it in, city councilmen learned Wednesday.

Gregory Salazar, a member of the Mexican-American Youth organization, said trash has piled up four and five feet deept in some places in his northside neighborhood.

He told the councilmen that if the garbage was not removed by Friday, then "appropriate action" would be taken. Houston Mayor Louie Welch warned Salazar that any action should be kept lawful.

Councilman Frank Mann amplified Salazar's complaint, noting that the Northside wasn't the only area with the problem.

"It's all over town," he said. "The people are just putting out more trash than the city can pick up."

Former owners of one of three dump sites told city officials they were exercising an option to re-purchase property they sold to the city earlier.

More than 100 years ago Queen Victoria had "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" printed in her bathroom, but today there are nearly two million British homes without a bath. Even government grants in aid for bathrooms haven't lured too many customers. Home improvement firms said only about one in 400 sales has been done under government grant.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals will be received at the City of Snyder, Texas, will be received at the District Office until 2:00 p.m., Thursday, June 18, 1970 and then publicly opened and read, for furnishing all plant, labor, material, and equipment and performing all work required for the construction of the Water Transmission Main and Sanitary Sewer Facilities located in Snyder, Texas.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or an approved bidder's bond, for the sum of five percent of the amount of the maximum total bid as a guarantee that if awarded the contract, the bidder will promptly enter into a contract and execute a bond on the forms provided, as outlined in the contract documents. Certified or cashier's checks must be made payable to the Scurry County Junior College District.

A performance bond in an amount of not less than one hundred (100) percent of the contract price, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the contract and upon payment of all persons supplying labor or furnishing materials, will be required.

Plans, specifications, and bidding documents may be obtained from the office of Carter & Burgess, Inc., Engineers Planners, 1100 Macon Street, Fort Worth, Texas or from the District Office, 3610 Avenue S, Snyder, Texas.

Bidders should carefully examine the plans, specifications and other documents, visit the site of the work, and fully inform themselves as to all conditions and matters which can in any way affect the work or the costs thereof. Should a bidder find discrepancies in, or omissions from the plans, specifications or other documents, or should he be in doubt as to their meaning, he should at once notify the Engineer and obtain clarification prior to submitting any bid.

The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids and waive any or all irregularities. No bid may be withdrawn until the expiration of forty-five (45) days from the date bids are opened.

'Corrective Policies' Pinching Oil Industry

DALLAS (AP) — Market analysts warned of a declining return on investment and of supply and demand problems in the oil industry before the American Petroleum Institute's Division of Finance and Accounting midyear meeting Thursday.

Karl W. Schlubach, partner in Hamershlag, Bord and Co., a New York investment executive said that while capital needs of the industry remain high, declining earnings may be choking off outside money sources.

A declining rate of return starts a cycle of contraction that is difficult to reverse," he warned. "Hence it behooves a management to be extremely alert to any unfavorable trend in its return and to take prompt counter-measures."

Schlubach said Chase Manhattan Bank preliminary estimates show a sharp drop in earnings for the 28 leading petroleum companies in 1969.

"That we have now reached the stage where the rate overturn may prove inadequate to attract large funds required for expansion seems a valid assumption," he said.

A petroleum industry investment expert, Kenneth E. Hill, partner of Eastman Dillon, Union Securities Ltd., said it is becoming more and more difficult to maintain oil and natural gas operations in this country at present prices. And, he added, little profit can be expected until Alaskan oil comes to market two or three years hence.

"By 1980," he said, "Alaska should be producing at a rate of nearly three million barrels a day, possibly 10 to 15 per cent from new discoveries in southern Alaska."

After 1980, Hill predicted the principal consuming countries, including the United States, would rely more and more on the Middle East for supplies.

Harry E. Bower, vice president of Anchor Corp., Elizabeth, N.J., said the petroleum industry needed a new image.

It needed, he said, to "convince the American public that there is nothing inherently evil in profits."

"Without profits there would be no investment and without investment there would be no product for the consumer to purchase," Bower said. "The fact is that the petroleum industry has served the consumer well and high quality petroleum products are available at relatively low prices. I believe the industry has a story to tell—it need not be afraid to tell it like it is."

Dr. Charls E. Walker, Under Secretary of the treasury, told the oilmen at their first session Wednesday that the country had to face "a painful, unhappy adjustment" to get the economy right.

He said that, although there might be lags and "periods when everything for some time will seem to go wrong", the government's corrective policies were working.

"Only history will say if we are in a recession or not," he said. "As of today the evidence does not indicate that we are in an old-fashioned recession.

Walker said adjustment was taking longer than expected because "we underestimated how deep engrained inflation and inflationary tendencies were."

He opposed wage-price controls, such as had been adopted in England. It would, he said, put the economy in a straightjacket and require a gigantic bureaucracy to administer it. He thought more could be done by moral persuasion.

Walker said President Nixon was determined to "wind down the war" in Southeast Asia. He was confident that could be done without a recession, as it was done after World War II and the Korean War.

Three Governors Are On Program

HOUSTON (AP) — Three governors will be among the participants Thursday at a meeting of the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB), an organization to aid development of higher education in 15 Southern states.

West Virginia Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., South Carolina Gov. Robert W. Scott and Texas Gov. Preston Smith will attend the two-day meeting which will include presentations by a number of university presidents.

The SREB was organized in 1948 by the Southern Governors' Conference to help evaluate and upgrade higher education in the South and Southwest.

Super Roads Delayed

By DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been told it is questionable whether 13 segments of interstate highways, with an estimated construction cost of $3.9 billion, will be built.

"In some cities the responsible officials have declared the highway is not wanted and will not be constructed," Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe has told a House roads subcommittee.

"In certain instances," he added, "the governors have made similar declarations."

The issue involved on each segment differs—but the result is the same: A continuing delay. And, Volpe said, although each route has some major local significance, none is completely essential to an integrated national system.

Volpe and Federal Highway Administrator Francis Turner discussed the problems with subcommittee members Wednesday. Turner conceded it was the department's job to decide which segments make up the system but he said he would like some guidance from the congressional panel.

The projected 42,500-mile system of interstate highways—begun by the Eisenhower administration in 1956—had a completion goal of 1971, but delays or cancellations experienced on 133 miles of road in major cities has pushed the finishing date to 1977.

Objections have centered on complaints that the superhighways through big cities would cut up parks, destroy historical buildings and monuments, clog cities with more cars with further noise and air pollution, disrupt neighborhoods and render homeless poor—and often black—families in their path.

Volpe urged the roads subcommittee go along with a Nixon plan for using federal highway trust funds for financing highway-related programs such as highway beautification and safety research.

Meanwhile, Volpe said, his department is preparing a national transportation policy that will enable him, by 1972, to present a comprehensive program.

Railroad Caused Move From Light To Fluvanna

EDITOR'S NOTE — Up to 1,000 visitors or more are expected at Fluvanna's homecoming, which begins tomorrow and continues through Saturday. This is the second of two articles on the history of the town in Northwest Scurry County, written by Margaret Daugherty, a Fluvanna resident. The first article, published in last Sunday's issue of The Snyder Daily News, dealt with the Light community, forerunner of Fluvanna. This one takes up Fluvanna itself and brings up to the present.

• • • •

By MARGARET DAUGHERTY

Many names familiar to the old Light community were equally well-known in early-day Fluvanna. The laying of the Roscoe, Snyder, and Pacific tracks to a point a mile or more west of Light caused the removal of many businesses and homes to what was in February, 1908, dedicated as Fluvanna by J. M. Cunningham, a land agent and one of several persons instrumental in developing the town. On land bought from or donated by D. C. McGregor (evidently), the town was laid off into 230 blocks at the juncture of sections 483, 484, 515, and 516 in northwest Scurry County. Eighteen blocks centered around the intersection of Main and Tenth Streets (where the stop light is today) were divided into twenty-four business lots each, while ten or eleven other lots adjoining these central ones were composed of both business and residential lots. Five blocks were undivided; they were set aside for public use, for churches and the like.

The RS&P depot was located on Block 165, evidently a few yards northeast of the Bobby White home. On Sept. 8, 1908, the first train rolled into Fluvanna and the town held a three-day picnic in celebration. Mrs. J. W. Squyres and John Stavely, Sr., were among winners of a drawing in which several premium lots were given. Other lots were sold at prices ranging from $150 to $1500 each.

It was in 1908 that a gin was located at Fluvanna on Block 145 or 146, a short distance west of the present gin site. (Some say it was the old Sterling Lane gin from Light; others say the Lane gin had closed down and another was opened at Light, which was moved to Fluvanna. Still others recall no gin being moved from Light but say the Fluvanna gin was originally established there by a Malone Gin Company.

The school also moved west, and an extra room (some say a separate building) 14x8 feet was built for a third teacher. Jess Grimes was teacher and Cordelia Widener and Lena Josey were assistants.

Development was rapid during the early years. Stock pens were built and many cattle from the area west of town were shipped from Fluvanna. The first church building in Fluvanna proper was erected by the Methodists in 1908, on the southwest corner of Block 75, site of the present building which in 1957 replaced the original. However, the Missionary Baptist Church, which had met at Light school since 1898, erected a building about the same time (or perhaps a bit earlier) northeast of the townsite, east of Block 66 near the old Bob Jennings house now owned by W. W. Thorne. A year or so later, several members of the Missionary group formed a Southern Baptist Church and built a meeting house on the southwest corner of Block 90, where Mrs. Anna Landrum's home now stands. In 1918 or '19 the Southern Baptist building burned, and the Missionary Baptist building was moved to that site (Block 90). The two groups held services together for several years, until 1924, and in 1926 the Missionary Baptists constructed a building (still in use) on lots 1 through 6, Block 136 and adopted the name Fluvanna Baptist Church.

The Southern Baptists continued to meet in the older building until June 1955. The building was sold in 1963 to the Young Farmers who tore it down and used the lumber to build the barbershop (south side of Block 105).

In 1909 a rock school building was built in the center of the north side of Block 152 where the school gym is now. The new structure had two rooms on the ground floor and two upstairs. The old box-and-strip building which had been moved from Light was sold to the Presbyterians, who built from it (with additions) the Presbyterian Church on the southwest corner of Block 130. The church held services there until the summer of 1948; thereafter a preacher from Snyder held services once a month, for a time at the Presbyterian building and later at the Methodist building. In 1960 the old structure was sold to Henry Clay Landrum and Roy Reeder, who used the lumber to build improvements on their farms.

Fluvanna's waterworks were begun in 1909 with one well in operation, located near the old Light schoolyard. Besides the well and water lines, the installation also consisted of a huge wooden (cypress?) tank on a tower located in the northwest portion of Block 123 near the present water tower and the homes of Mrs. Viola Carmichael and the Sid Millers. E. L. Sewalt bought the business from the original owner, later selling it to E. L. Ball. With the addition of other wells over the years, the system served Fluvanna until 1968.

Teachers in 1909-10 were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hankins, Effie Fickas, and Pearl Cleft. Appropriations for the school year amounted to $890. In 1910-12 Mr. and Mrs. Hankins, Effie Vietz, Miss Cleft, and Yancy Dunning were teachers.

In 1911, the Church of Christ built a round building on the north side of Block 133, making five churches in Fluvanna. The town then had five grocery stores and three dry goods stores. One was W. A. Dane's two-story building located on lots 15 and 16, Block 105, where the Sims building is now. Dane later moved across the street south, just east of the present Smith General Store (Block 118, lots 11-12). Another was Uncle Douglas McGregor's, on the present Post Office location.

There were two drugstores, one originally owned by Dr. Lane and his pharmacist brother Ed in which Dr. Lane has his office. The drugstore was bought from the Lanes by John Bley, whom with his son Clarence, operated the store, later trading it to J. F. Dowdy for Dowdy's Hardware store (in the early 1920s). Bill Clawson's drugstore was on the south side of Tenth Street, Block 118, lot 9(?) and his brother-in-law, Dr. Browning, had an office there.

Some time before 1911 John Stavely, Sr., had a gin in Fluvanna, replacing the Malone (?) gin. Also, there were a telephone office, news office, two blacksmith shops (one, owned by Sid Williams, was located on Eleventh Street on the northwest corner of Block 134); two wagon yards, two lumber yards, and two hardware stores. One belonged to J. J. Belew; he had moved it from Light to the south side of Block 106 where Mrs. Gatewood's house is now. There were two barber shops, two meat markets, and two land offices.

In addition, Sam Morelan had a livery stable (Block 119, lots 13-14) and there was a hotel, built by a Mr. Miller about 1909 and owned and operated at various times by E. L. Sewalt, the Collier, Baird, and Ely families, and Tom Jones. It was torn down in the mid '20s. The town bank did business in a wooden building, with Spencer Smith the banker. Smith built the old Dr. Jones house on Twelfth Street, Block 149, where the Panch McDonalds live now. Dave Jones was also associated with the bank. The five churches shared a brush arbor on Block 120, where during summers each group held open-air meetings.

Dr. Scarborough lived on the northeast corner of Block 121 and had a sort of hospital with four or five beds. Dr. Lane's house still stands where originally located: northwest corner Block 149, Travis Beaver's home today.

Early in May, 1912, a storm swept through the town, demolishing many buildings and damaging others. Only two structures escaped undamaged: the Church of Christ meeting house and a small house just south of the church (Block 133). Many of the buildings were repaired or replaced. J. J. Belew's hardware was destroyed; he rebuilt about 1913 or '14 on the northeast corner of Block 117.

During the 1912-14 school years teachers included Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Howell, Lora Blount, Effie Vietz, Myrtle Crunk, and Fairy Clanton. In 1914-15 teachers were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bills, Bella Phillpot and Annie Hull.

The first church wedding in Fluvanna was a highlight of the 1914-15 period. Rhoda Leach, daughter of the Baptist preacher, was married to Bill Clawson. Her father gave her away, and her brother officiated.

Another important event of that period was the burning of the Stavely gin.

Fluvanna's first school bonds were voted in the 1915-16 term, and the first brick building was erected; it consisted of six classrooms and an auditorium. From 1917 to 1920 new teachers were T. S. Christopher, Edith Reeder, Charlie Byrd, Merle Moore, Robert E. Lee, and Mrs. Mildred Mathis.

Scarcely a person in Fluvanna escaped the 1918 flu epidemic. Dr. Lane left Fluvanna early in '18, and Dr. Jones arrived later the same year.

In 1919 the Faver school, located south of town on the C. B. Bley place, consolidated with Fluvanna School. Mr. and Mrs. George Boswell were new teachers in 1921-22. During the late Teens a co-op gin was established a short distance south of the present gin, nearer the railroad. It burned in the early Twenties. By 1922, the M. A. Fuller Gin Co. had built a gin (Block 147).

Teachers in 1923-24 were Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Maples, Mrs. Delia Forrester, and Lella Isaacs; from '24 to '26 they were Otis Hilliard, Mrs. Forrester, Miss Isaacs, and Delia Carroll; from '26 to '28, Homer Massey, Sam Wilbanks, Cora Sealy, Eva Massey, Ruth Hardy, and Miss Carroll.

E. O. Wedgeworth began as teacher during '28-'29, and other teachers included E. H. McCarter, Miss Sealy, Miss Hardy, and Hazel Spikes. More consolidation came in 1929-30, when Hackberry (on the Frank Beaver place five or more miles southwest of town), Snellings (west of town near the R. B. Wills home) and Moore (also called Browning and located west of Welsh Scrivener on the southeast corner of the Key place) schools were combined with Fluvanna.

A new brick building, with offices, library, nine classrooms, and an auditorium was completed in May, 1930. With eleven teachers working, the school used both the old and the new buildings during the '30-'31 term, teaching about four hundred students. Wedgeworth remained as superintendent until the spring of '42. H. L. Miller served months during 1942-43 before going to the army. He was succeeded by George Moore.

During the late Thirties and early Forties, improved roads and better transportation to larger towns caused the decline of Fluvanna's businesses and population, and in 1943, the town lost its railroad when the R.S.&P. decided to confine is track operations to the route between Snyder and Roscoe. Smaller now, the town was by no means inactive. The Fuller Gin was sold to Planters Gin Co., which continued operations into the Sixties. School continued, affected, of course, but uninterrupted by population and business decline and the war. John R. Covey, C. A. Landrum, J. M. Glass, and Charlie Chorn served as superintendents through 1955.

In 1947-48 the first brick schoolhouse was condemned (having been used as a gymnasium for several years previous) and torn down, a new gym being constructed on the same site. A building housing the agriculture department and shop was added to the school plant in 1953 or '54.

L. M. Dawson assumed duties as superintendent in July of 1955. Eight two-and-three bedroom teacherages were added, the first in '55, the most recent in '65. In 1957, a new building for home economics and cafeteria was opened, and in '59 or '60, a building for first and second grades was built.

The period from '55 to '68, was marked by the school's participation in a state small schools pilot program, with several teachers attending an annual summer workshop held at the University of Texas in Austin; and the holding of three Homecoming celebrations, the first in 1956. In 1965, the school taught grades one through twelve and had 120 students. There were thirteen teachers. Mrs. Joyce Barr, Geral Mac Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bronniman, James Smith, Mrs. C. A. Daugherty, Mrs. Mary Williams, Herman Kiesling, Mrs. Henrietta Johnson, Mrs. Nellie Womack, Mrs. Matt Allen, Lester Munday, and W. B. Jennings. Mrs. Frankie Lou Thorne and Mrs. Rosa McDonald operated the cafeteria, and Hoyt Pylant served as custodian. Mrs. Sam Bruner was secretary.

In 1963 the Young Farmers organization was formed. One of its first projects was the building of the barber shop. The group began a campaign to clean up the townsite, and in 1965-66 led the community in participation in a statewide community improvement program. Fluvanna Stock Show is an annual effort of the members, and a current project is buying a fire truck for the community. James E. Beaver, a member of the local group since its beginning, is 1970 president of the state Young Farmers organization.

U & F Water Corporation was formed in 1967, and a new water system was built. The corporation, headed by L. M. Dawson, R. V. Daugherty, W. S. Bruner, O. P. Tate, Jr., and Lloyd Webb (the latter two of the Union area) bought out the earlier company and initiated service in the area in September, 1968.

New teachers serving in the Fluvanna school 1965-1968 include Mrs. W. A. Jones, Mrs. W. O. Mathis, Mrs. Ernest Sears, W. R. Dunlap, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ridenour, Darlene Butterfield, and Bruce Land. W. S. Talley became superintendent in 1968. Other [illegible] included Mrs. Talley, Bill Anders, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hermesmeyer and Mrs. Brenda Otto.

Since October 1969 members of various committees have been busy planning for Homecoming on June 12-13, and performing the many tasks associated with such an undertaking. The community is eagerly awaiting the arrival of old friends, neighbors, and relatives for the festivities.

Prisoner Hangs Self In Jail

DALLAS (AP) — Edward Belt, 45, a prisoner in the Dallas County jail, was found hanged today in his cell, sheriff's deputies said.

Belt was being held on murder charges in connection with the hammer slaying of his wife.

Officers said the man was hanging from a noose fashioned from strips of cloth torn from a mattress cover.
