Curfew Ordered In Kabul

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet-backed government of Afghanistan ordered a curfew in Kabul today and said any violators of martial law would be immediately turned over to military-revolutionary courts, Tass reported.

The official Soviet news agency said all residents of the Afghan capital were ordered to surrender weapons to the police within 24 hours unless they had special authorization.

The dispatch from Kabul said the measures were ordered by the Interior Ministry to curb "robbing and arson" by "foreign agents, mercenaries and stooges."

Flu Becomes Epidemic

ATLANTA (AP)—Deaths from influenza and pneumonia have reached epidemic proportions in the United States for the fourth consecutive week, causing excessive deaths for the first time among Americans in the 45-to-64 age group, the national Center for Disease Control said today.

The CDC said so far this winter the flu epidemic has been caused primarily by Influenza B, known as B-Singapore.

Deaths attributed to flu and pneumonia reached 700 for the week that ended Feb. 16, 200 more than the anticipated epidemic threshold, the agency said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

OPEC Oks Price Hike Plan

LONDON (AP)—The six-member long-term strategy committee of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries today approved a plan for quarterly oil price hikes pegged to currency-market fluctuations, inflation and economic growth in the West.

Hikes Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP)—Citibank today raised its prime lending rate to a record 16 1/4 percent, bringing the rate to a full percentage point over the level prevailing a week ago.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

The Big Spring Herald takes the Environmental Protection Agency to task for those gasoline mileage estimates the agency approves on new car stickers. The figures, EPA says, are not intended to tell us how many miles per gallon a car will get, but merely provide a basis for comparing one car with another. The Herald says it will concede that point, but these figures are a factor in preparing government estimates on U.S. fuel consumption when they may inflate a car's estimated performance by as much as 30 percent.

"The most irritating thing, however, is the simple fact that the federal government is putting out erroneous data and apparently couldn't care less about it," says the Herald.

"It is well within the realm of possibility for automobile testers to calculate accurate, realistic fuel mileage figures. Auto enthusiast publications do it all the time."

"Why, then, is it beyond the powers of the EPA, with the vast resources available to it, to do the same thing? It comes down to this: If the job is worth doing, it's worth doing right. It's a novel notion, admittedly—but perhaps, just perhaps, the EPA could learn to live with it."

Speedy Neiman of the Hereford Brand notes that the food stamp program has changed considerably since it was introduced by the late President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

"It was estimated that it would call for some $800 million in government expenditures. It would be worth it, claimed officials, because it would simplify welfare payments, insure that those actually hungry would be fed, and the program would serve to cut down on the troublesome stocks of surplus foods around the country."

"However, the food stamp program grew and grew to many times its early projections. The USDA reports that food stamp shoppers bought more than $6.4 billion worth of food with stamps in 1979 and that the value of food stamps amounted to 5.9 percent of the total sale of food through retail stores."

"Just shows what a modest government giveaway program will do if properly encouraged and promoted. And the beautiful part of it is that it doesn't cost anything—except to us hard-working taxpayers who foot the bill."

Leaving For Iran Saturday...

Special Panel's Delay Ends

By The Associated Press

The U.N. Investigative Commission on Iran has been given the go-ahead to leave Geneva for Tehran on Saturday, an Iranian official in Switzerland and the Algerian co-chairman of the panel said today.

The five-member panel, set up to hear Iranian grievances over the hostage crisis in Tehran, had been held up in Geneva since Wednesday because of unspecified problems. Earlier, Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's ability to persuade the militants to give up the U.S. hostages in Tehran was thrown into doubt after the captors got support from Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and renewed their demand for the return of the shah.

But the Carter administration believes the Iranian government is committed to the release of the Americans, who began their 11th day in captivity today.

Diplomatic sources at the United Nations said the stand taken by the militants Thursday made it clear Bani-Sadr needed more time to marshal support from the various power groups in Iran, and that this had delayed sending the U.N. commission to Tehran.

The commission co-chairman, U.N. Ambassador Mohamed Bedjaoui of Algeria, met with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in New York today and said of the plans to leave for Tehran on Saturday: "No problem. All is all right."

Bedjaoui had said earlier in the week there was a "gentlemen's agreement," but no deadline, to free the hostages in exchange for the commission's investigating Iranian charges against the shah and the support the monarch got from the U.S. government during his 37 years in power.

But the militants holding the approximately 60 hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 issued yet another statement Thursday demanding the return of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in exchange for the captives, saying: "If the shah is not extradited, any expectation of America about the reconsideration of the situation of the hostages is a foolish expectation."

A spokesman for the militants told a reporter in Tehran his group had been encouraged by Khomeini's statement Wednesday urging Iranians to "forcefully demand" return of the shah from his refuge in Panama and not give up "until final victory."

Bani Sadr, who is known to support an end to the crisis, has said Iran's determination to get the shah back to stand trial on charges of mass murder and plundering the nation's wealth is unrelated to the hostage issue.

Brenda Hedges Heads Scurry United Way

Brenda Hedges, assistant vice president and branch manager of First Federal Savings and Loan, was elected president of the Scurry County United Way at a meeting of the organization's board of directors Thursday afternoon.

She succeeds Mike Reed as the United Way president.

Mrs. Hedges served as general campaign co-chairman the past year.

Other officers elected at Thursday's board session are Dr. Edward Barkowsky, first vice president; Rodger Sullenger, second vice president; Jerry Vestal, treasurer, and Frances Brown secretary.

The election was held following a report by the nominating committee, and all officers nominated were elected. Earl "Hassie" Sneed served as chairman of the nominating committee.

Following a recommendation by an audit committee, the directors approved a plan to have a public accountant audit the United Way accounts each year. L.E. "Doc"

Griffin, chairman of the committee, made the report and recommendation.

Surge In Fuel Prices Pushes Index Up 1.4%

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new surge in gasoline and heating oil costs helped push consumer prices 1.4 percent higher in January, the largest monthly increase in more than 6 1/2 years, the government reported today.

A top government economist said no end to the inflationary spiral is in sight. If the January rate continued to the rest of the year, consumer prices would rise more than 18 percent in 1980.

The rise in the Consumer Price Index was the biggest since a 1.8 percent jump in August 1973, when then-President Richard M. Nixon lifted price controls and beef prices shot up dramatically.

The culprit last month was not food, which rose a modest 0.1 percent from December, the Labor Department reported.

"Rising fuel prices were responsible for more than a quarter of the change," said department analyst Patrick Jackman. "Basically, it's the recent increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries starting to work their way through the system."

A number of OPEC nations—including Saudi Arabia, the United States' largest crude oil supplier—raised prices last month. In recent days, several of them have announced cutbacks in production, which could increase prices further.

Major price increases also were reported for housing, which rose 1.4 percent from December because of higher fuel-oil costs and higher mortgage rates. Medical care costs also rose substantially, up 1.3 percent because of new year price adjustments at hospitals and in doctors' fees.

Ask Us

Q—Why can't Snyder Public School utilize the college swimming pool for elementary or junior high physical education?

A—College officials say that, although the indoor pool is in use for WTC classes during the day and by dues-paying booster club members in evening hours, there is some time available, mostly in late afternoon.

Two high school PE classes used the pool last year under a contract with the college, but none this year. Public school officials say the PE periods in elementary schools are so short that pupils could not be transported to the college during school hours, and academic demands preclude lengthening the PE periods. Also, if each elementary school was granted one period and the junior high one period it would require seven periods and the pool would not be available for that much time. Also, it would require more use of buses and more gasoline.

A generation ago, Americans were fond of envisioning a future transformed by wondrous technological breakthroughs. Aside from imparting a certain thrill of anticipation, this view of the future was a natural product of the widespread belief not only in the inevitability of progress, but in an accelerating and uninterrupted march toward a certain, better world.

Alas, the world and the future appear to be less rational to this troubled generation. The characteristic optimism of most Americans is now blurred by doubts. Their hopeful expectations dulled by apprehensions. And, for the first time since World War II, Americans confront the dawn of a new decade unconvinced that it will bring an improvement in their own lives.

The tangible difficulties we face are apparent enough. The availability of energy in sufficient quantities to sustain our standard of living is far from assured. A stubborn, and worsening, monetary inflation poses a continuing threat to our economic security and, most importantly, to our self-confidence.

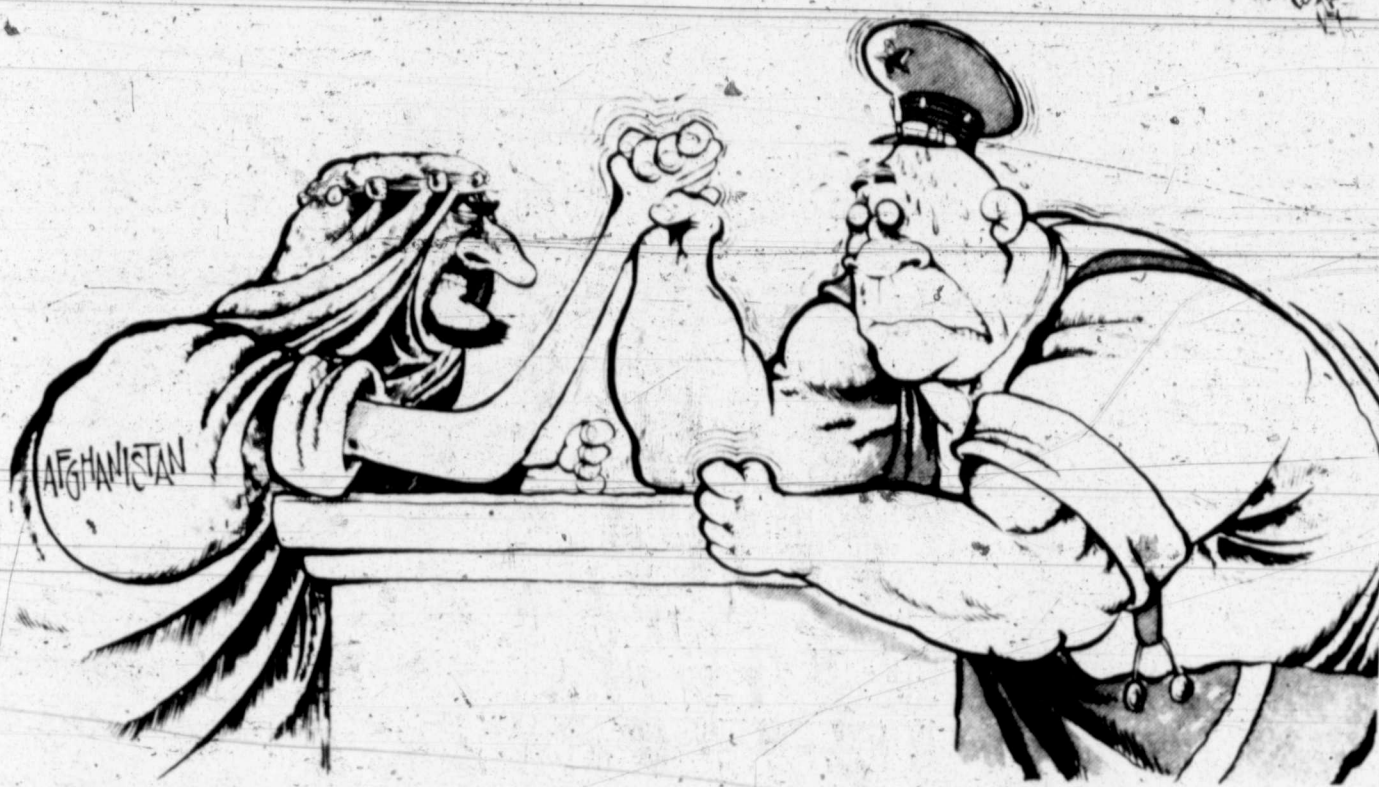

Our supremacy as an industrial and commercial power is under the severest challenge from friends, neutrals and adversaries alike. No American can take comfort when the largest domestic steel manufacturer seeks advice from Japan on ways to modernize aging plants in Pittsburgh.

Our economic problems at home are mirrored by even larger worries abroad. As Henry Kissinger observed recently, nearly every continent is sliding toward crisis. A stable world order underwritten by universally accepted standards of international conduct — the original goal of the United Nations charter — is everywhere breaking down as greed, ambition and a lust for power reassert their historical demands.

It appears most likely, therefore, that 1980 and the decade it inaugurates will see Americans sorely tested individually and collectively.

While no good purpose is served by denying the severity of the challenges we face, neither must we underestimate our latent ability to endure and in the end, to prevail. We have more reasons to be hopeful than apprehensive. We enjoy the cumulative legacy of two centuries of responsible self-government, success in the teeth of every kind of adversity, and, when necessary, the demonstrable will to defend legitimate national interests despite the gravest perils. America's prospects are not lightly to be dismissed.

"Men to match its mountains," is the way one 19th Century observer described this country and its people. Our resolve today should be that we again merit such tribute in the difficult times ahead.

In the beginning was a bridge club.

Two tables of women would gather on the first Thursday of every month to play bridge. Around ten o'clock, Phyllis, the hostess, would set out a few nuts, make a pot of coffee, and plan to meet next month at Marge's house.

Marge loved bridge, but she wasn't into "nuts". They lodged behind her fake tooth and were high in cholesterol. When it was her turn to hostess, she made a small uniced spice cake which she served from the pan with coffee. They made plans to meet at Phoebe's house.

The spice cake had kept Phoebe awake all night. Besides, as long as you were going to bake something it might as well look festive. While eating the strawberry shortcake, piled high with fresh strawberries and a glob of whipped cream on it, they made plans to meet next month at Bobbie's house.

Bobbie had a dessert recipe she was dying to dazzle a party with. It would make Phoebe's strawberry shortcake look like a stalk of celery. It was a six-layered torte with homemade butter-scotch between the layers and slivered almonds on top, and for those watching their weight, she added a light crabmeat salad with a few crackers.

—Or the time he drove into a pack of motorcycle toughs and declared that we were AWOL green berets and would kill anybody who got in our way. (I almost did kill him for that one.)

Andy finally met his match though. He was arguing with one of these hardcore women libbers about something or other and when she demanded he treat her the same way he would a man he punched her in the nose. Broke it. She filed charges and he was convicted of assault.

That caused him to lose his financial aid and he had to drop out of college (or sell his car). But Andy had a knack for turning adversity into advantage. With his criminal record he qualified for rehabilitation and with four months of free training that would have cost me or you $1500 (come to think of it it did cost me and you $1500) Andy became a welder.

I understand he is really knocking down some big bucks now in the Dallas area. He still owes me $50 and with it so quiet in this town I'm a good mind to look him up some weekend. But with inflation and all I'm not sure I could afford Andy any more.

serts. Her forte was Cornish game hens, stuffed with wild rice. You obviously couldn't go to bed on it, so she served it at 7:00 and then they played bridge for two hours and a half. They were to meet next month at Peggy's house. Peggy hadn't realized Juanita was going to serve an entire dinner, so she had eaten before she went. That couldn't happen again so she covered both ends of the evening by serving beef stroganoff before bridge and apple pie with cheese slices after they quit playing.

It went on this way for nearly a year. By the time Phyllis was hostess again, she had to get a sub. She just had too much to do to play bridge. There was the silver to polish, the caterer to check on, the fresh flowers to pick up and the table to put leaves in and set. Following the appet-

my turn

by john dunnham

Did someone from out of the past ever pop into your mind for no particular reason? It happened to me the other day while I was standing in the wind storm and pumping some bargain $1.05 gas into my car.

Everybody has known someone like Andy (not his real name) at one time or another. He was 5' 4" tiptoeing and maybe weighed 120 pounds soaking wet. He lived the most dangerous life of any person I have ever known; except that is, for the person who happened to be with him at any particular moment.

I met him when I was a college freshman. It was the first big campus get together and I was decked out in my best mod clothes looking so cool I was certain most mistook me for an upper-classman. A complete stranger, he walked up and tapped me for $10. Nevermind the sob story he laid on me, in 10 minutes he had talked the money out of me.

It turned out that we lived in the same dorm, however, and a few nights later, after he had been a big winner in a card game, I hit him up for the debt. I've always hated to ask for money even when it rightfully owed me but Andy made it easy. Not only did he refund my $10, he threw in an extra $5 just because I had been such a heck of a guy and helped him out in the first place.

His good spirits were contagious and when he suggested we hop in his new Chevy and go to this swinging club he knew about in nearby Amarillo it seemed like a good idea. We were both under age but he somehow talked us through the door and we set about some serious partying. His charm worked even better on women and in five minutes he had no less than three girls sitting at our table.

Since I had come into some extra money, naturally I paid for all refreshments.

I noticed him getting a little meaner with every drink but I didn't realize how serious the situation was until the band took its first break and the extra large and hairy drummer approached the table and mumbled something about the girl Andy had taken a fancy to as being his wife. I felt very faint.

Undaunted, Andy jumped up and threatened to smash the guys' fingers with a mug if he didn't leave the premises immediately. The big ape bought it and was on his way out when the management intervened and suggested that perhaps it was we who should leave.

It was getting late anyway and I realized my 8 o'clock class was only hours away. But we weren't home yet. Andy's driving style didn't exactly inspire confidence when he was in the best of moods and that night he would have made Evel Knievel a nervous wreck. It all came to an abrupt halt when he reentered a Pontiac sitting at a red light.

I breathed easier when the man stepped out of the car with an understanding smile on his face. Andy would have none of that. He jumped out and began cursing the man for blocking the intersection and then attacked him with wildly flailing arms.

The man had no choice but to defend himself. Andy was a bloody heap when the man retreated to his car and sped away. Andy wiped the blood from his nose, spat the dirt out of his mouth and calmly asked:

"He didn't get our license number did he? Good. Maybe you better drive home I don't feel so good. Take the back roads."

I didn't see Andy much after that but every occasion was memorable.

—Like the time we went to a concert in Lubbock. I fell asleep on the way back and when I awoke we were half way to Mexico. And with nothing but $7 between us and MY credit cards.

—Or the time he drove into a pack of motorcycle toughs and declared that we were AWOL green berets and would kill anybody who got in our way. (I almost did kill him for that one.)

Andy finally met his match though. He was arguing with one of these hardcore women libbers about something or other and when she demanded he treat her the same way he would a man he punched her in the nose. Broke it. She filed charges and he was convicted of assault.

That caused him to lose his financial aid and he had to drop out of college (or sell his car). But Andy had a knack for turning adversity into advantage. With his criminal record he qualified for rehabilitation and with four months of free training that would have cost me or you $1500 (come to think of it it did cost me and you $1500) Andy became a welder.

I understand he is really knocking down some big bucks now in the Dallas area. He still owes me $50 and with it so quiet in this town I'm a good mind to look him up some weekend. But with inflation and all I'm not sure I could afford Andy any more.

President Carter's call for just-in-case registration of American youth, we are informed by those who know what's REALLY going on in Washington, is primarily intended as a signal to our adversaries over there of the nation's resolve to meet any challenge.

It is a signal, however, that has been intercepted by a multitude of interested parties over here who are reading much, much more into it.

Talk about special interest politics! This issue has something for just about everyone.

To start with the most obvious, linkage with the stalled Equal Rights Amendment was inevitable, to the detriment of a constructive consideration of both issues on their respective merits.

Seizing the golden opportunity to say, "I told you so," Phyllis Schlafly and company have been indulging in understandable but quite possibly premature celebration.

That reaction is not only predictable, but almost beside the point, however, compared to the splintering within the ranks of the sexual equality movement. Some spokespersons, although a minority it would appear at this early stage of the great debate, accept the principle of military service for both men and women as natural and even as useful ammunition in the never-say-die campaign for ERA ratification. Others do not, although in differing degrees and for differing reasons.

The National Organization for Women, for example, is adamantly opposed to registration of either sex. Selective service, according to NOW President Eleanor Smeal, is not only inherently sexist but lowers the quality of the military forces.

Gloria Steinem, on the other hand, is opposed in principle. But if draft — or register — we must, then both men and women should be counted in.

That lines her up roughly with the American Civil Liberties Union, which predictably is ready to go to court over the issue.

But not with the power centers in Congress. House Speaker "Tip" O'Neill flatly labels any idea of compulsory service for women as "anathema."

The sexual aspect of registration — conscription may have inspired most of the initial rhetoric and attracted the headlines, but it is not the only point in dispute. There is also the matter of essential fairness when the manpower — or personpower — poll is far larger than the numbers of recruits the armed forces actually need in periods of limited emergency.

It raises a question for which the nation, despite the experience in modern times of two world and several limited wars, has yet to devise a satisfactory answer: Who is to be selected to serve and possibly die for their country and who is to be excused?

Making the best of an inherently unfair situation, expert opinion on the subject favors a limited period of eligibility — or liability, as some may prefer to regard it. Registrants would be subject to induction during one year following completion of secondary schooling. After that, they would be off the list and, if not in uniform, would be free to plan college, careers and marriage without the constant threat of interruption.

Which, it so happens, is essentially President Carter's proposal and which is likely to be politically — speaking of special interests — the most acceptable.

So it goes. The various and frequently conflicting views at least ensure extensive and vigorous debate on the issue, although not necessarily on what is its most important aspect — what is in the best interests of the country as a whole.

could recession be worse?

NEW YORK (AP)—With prices, interest rates, unemployment and taxes rising, and real incomes, savings rates, housing starts and confidence falling, could recession be worse?

In fact, will anyone even recognize that we missed a recession — if we do? Or spot it if it comes?

The questions are provoked by a peculiar situation that has recently developed. It is this: Good news is often bad news, and official economic expansion quite often means personal recession.

While people rejoice in having averted the onset of official recession, their economic lives have deteriorated steadily. Economists and laymen ask what greater damage could a recession do.

The answer lies in the future, but the damage resulting from the so-called economic expansion cannot be denied.

Incomes are rising but buying power is shrinking. Statistics say families are well off, but families feel deprived.

The odd situation is not difficult to understand, but it may be more difficult to explain. The plausible explanation is this:

People are making lots of money but inflation and higher taxes, partly for Social Security, are taking it away. They have material comforts, but they have to borrow and cut into savings to get them.

Rather than going into a shell of depression, families are maintaining economic activity, perhaps because they feel that is the way out of the trap. Money is circulating. Economic activity is fairly strong. And official economic measures reflect this activity.

Many economists warn that families are losing the ability to maintain buying activity. They have tried mightily; they have strained their resources, and still they cannot make much headway.

As they run out of financial and psychic energy, the consumer economy could take a tumble, and there is little evidence that other areas of the economy can step in to fill the gap.

The result, say pessimists, is that things could get even worse, with unemployment rising more sharply while prices remain high — kept there by forces such as oil that do not quickly react to supply and demand — and interest rates rising before falling gradually.

Questions beg to be answered:

Is it logical therefore to talk about the recent expansion as if it were the opposite of recession? Because the statistics say the economy is expanding — and therefore not in recession — should we applaud?

For individuals, the best measure of whether times are good or bad is not the official pronouncement that we do or do not have a recession, but the immediate condition of the pocketbook and the savings account.

And their condition, and that of the credit account as well, are generally in pretty poor shape. Worse, perhaps, than in any official recession.

Monahans Driver May Have Been Unconscious When He Struck Girls

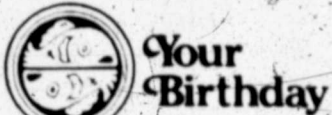

MONAHANS (AP)—Investigators are considering the possibility that the 16-year-old driver of the pickup truck may have blacked out just before the vehicle swerved into a crowd of young girls, killing two and injuring 11 others.

"It was possible he had some kind of seizure and blacked out at the wheel," said Monahans police Sgt. Jim Vaughan, who spoke to the driver shortly after the noon recess accident. "He told us he had a history of some sort of seizures."

The driver, identified as Monahans high school student Israel Talavera, was hospitalized. The victims were identified as Patricia Odell and Shawna Richardson, both 13-year-old students at Monahans Junior High School.

The truck went into a group of girls standing on the curbside and just scattered girls everywhere, Vaughan said. Witnesses told him the truck was travelling between 50 and 55 m.p.h.

Witnesses said several students saw the careening truck and were able to run to safety while others shoved their friends out of the vehicle's path.

"There was kids laying everywhere and people were crying and screaming," said Lowell Richey, a high school student who stopped to help after the accident. "Pat was bleeding real bad and the other girl was thrown onto the top of a bus nearby."

The injured girls were transported to a Monahans hospital in ambulances, fire department vehicles and the police chief's private car, Vaughan said.

Vaughan said late Thursday the driver had not been arrested and investigators were discussing the possibility of charges with the Ward County District Attorney's office.

Highway Projects Okayed Thursday

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Highway and Public Transportation Commission approved several big city projects Thursday, including $27.3 million for public transportation improvement programs in Houston and Dallas.

The commission also authorized the Texas Turnpike Authority to determine the feasibility of a revenue bond issue for constructing a toll turnpike in North Houston. The authority will pay for the study.

The turnpike would extend from the Houston business district, near the Elysian Street Viaduct, to near Shenandoah, a distance of some 28.6 miles.

The state will spend $1,906,440 as part of a $14.7

Reader's sweet problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a hypoglycemic person and my doctor tells me to eat more sugar and more carbohydrates. I'm now 215 pounds and getting bigger by the day. I'd like your diet on this.

DEAR READER—The type of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) that you have may make some difference but most of the time doctors recommend that individuals who have problems with low blood sugar should avoid sweets, particularly sugar and starches. These individuals should get their carbohydrates from bulky and raw vegetables and raw fruits.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar Hypoglycemia. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. The Health Letter I'm sending you gives the details of the symptoms of low blood sugar and the principles used in dietary management.

Many patients who have hypoglycemia tend to become markedly overweight. The constant overproduction of insulin stimulates them to eat to raise their blood sugar to normal levels. This is true even if the low blood sugar is caused by a tumor of the insulin-producing part of the pancreas.

As you may have gathered from the above remark, there are many different causes for hypoglycemia. The treatment varies obviously if a person has an insulin-producing tumor, the proper treatment is to remove it. On the other hand, if a person has so-called reactive hypoglycemia, secondary to diet or problems related to absorption of food, then the proper approach is usually to change the diet.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'd like some information on not being able to perspire. I'm 23 and have had this problem since puberty. It affects my arms, hands, knees and feet. I cannot go out into the sun or humidity for any length of time. I saw a doctor and he told me to stay away from salt and to use strong sun screens and to take pills to open my pores. What, if anything, is this doing to my system? Is this a rare problem and can I ever get completely cured? Will I ever be able to spend the day at the beach?

DEAR READER—Absence of perspiration is a rare condition. Sometimes it can affect the whole body or it can affect localized regions. Perspiration is an important mechanism of cooling the body. In fact, at the onset of a heat stroke a person may stop sweating, which is a signal that he's not eliminating body heat.

You should see a neurologist. Sweating does depend on the presence of functional sweat glands in the skin. It also depends on nerve stimulation of these glands to secrete sweat. Various defects in nerve fibers and nerve systems can cause an absence of perspiration. There are also some skin diseases which can cause it.

Avoid exposure to the heat until after you've talked about this with the neurologist. You may have a very poor tolerance to heat because your ability to eliminate body heat has been compromised.

New Yorkers Resorting To Old Fashioned Ways To Fight Street Crime

NEW YORK (AP)—Amid a plague of ugly crime, including what the mayor calls "an epidemic of gun violence," New Yorkers are fighting back with old fashioned posse justice.

Rush hour commuters in Grand Central Station cheered on Thursday as bystanders banded together to grab a wallet-snatcher. Subway riders tackled a mugger and held him until police arrived.

Earlier this week, a knife-wielding assailant fled into the arms of police to escape an angry crowd.

Crime—both above and below ground—has been on the front page and on the evening news here in recent days.

A man brandishing a meat cleaver slashed four riders on New York subways in two attacks, and managed to escape by jumping off the train only moments before it left the station. He's still at large.

A still-undiscovered man was decapitated when he was pushed under the wheels of an on-rushing train, and an 11-year-old boy who was shoved into the path of a subway remains in grave condition.

Two police officers have been killed and six others wounded since the year began.

Mayor Edward Koch calls it "an epidemic of gun possession and gun violence." On Thursday, he asked the Legislature to set minimum one-year prison sentences for those who carry unlicensed guns.

But citizens are also reacting—three times Thursday and just days after angry commuters and a subway conductor disarmed and captured a man who had threatened them with a knife.

"Chalk this one up for the public," said Transit Authority Police Officer David Orshowitz after the incident on Tuesday.

"I'm sure if we hadn't arrived, we could have found one suspect hanging from a subway beam. The suspect was escaping to us to keep away from them," he said.

In cases Thursday:

About 100 persons plodding through Grand Central Station on their way to work stopped to cheer as 20 bystanders chased and grabbed a man who tried to steal a woman's wallet as she waited to get coffee at a terminal bakery. "It was a whole team effort," said bakery manager Joseph Zaro, who helped hold the robber until police led the suspect away.

A band of eight to 10 subway riders chased and tackled an 18-year-old man after they saw him snatch two gold chains worth $2,600 from a woman's neck, police said.

The angry straphangers also held the suspect until authorities arrived.

A 60-year-old salesman brandishing what looked like a gun chased and helped capture two teenagers who tried to grab his wallet as he dozed on a subway train. Police said his "gun" turned out to be a device to spray the chemical Mace.

Earlier this week, a recently discharged Marine and former Golden Gloves boxer came to the aid of a woman who was being threatened on a subway train.

And 20 subway riders fought back against a knife-wielding mugger before Officer Orshowitz and other police arrived at the Times Square station.

Three American balloonists dropped the Double Eagle Two in a French field in 1978 to complete the first transatlantic balloon crossing.

Robertson also said child care for preschool children will be provided.

DR. SAM NADER
He began his preaching career in Shreveport at the age of 15 with a local preacher's license.

Dr. Nader's ministry has taken him on extensive travels all over the globe. He was the second Methodist minister to preach in a Methodist church behind the Iron Curtain. In 1966 he interviewed India's Indira Gandhi.

He has also written for religious publications and appeared on Channel 11 television and KFYO radio.

He is on the board of trustees of numerous institutions including McMurry College in Abilene and Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Plans Boycott Against TV

ABILENE (AP)—A Church of Christ minister has launched a nationwide campaign to boycott sponsors of television programs that exploit sex, saying network executives will stop "juggle television" only under economic pressure.

John M. Hurt, minister of the Joelton, Tenn., Church of Christ near Nashville, told of his campaign during an annual lecture series Wednesday at Abilene Christian University.

He said he hoped to get 500,000 signatures on petitions telling three network program sponsors to "clean up TV" of suffer sales losses.

The sponsors and programs were not identified, but Hurt said they would be announced before March 16. He said three particularly offensive programs are "Soap," "Charley's Angels" and "The Newlywed Game."

He also was critical of a forthcoming show on ABC, "Adam and Yves," which he characterized as a show about a homosexual relationship between two middle-aged men.

Hurt said adultery and homosexuality are becoming commonplace on TV, and network executives are using sex to attract viewers.

"They're thoroughly aware of what they're doing," he said. "They call it 'juggle television.' They're testing to see how much we'll stand," Hurt said.

He said network officials "could care less," but added they will listen to the sponsors if people quit buying the products.

Agape pastor, A.J. Newsum says, "Come hear this dynamic man of God who found Christ at the point of suicide as the only way out of his two and a half year involvement in the occult."

Says Brezhnev...

Troops To Stay Until 'Interference' Stops

MOSCOW (AP)—President Leonid I. Brezhnev denied that the Kremlin has carried out any military intervention in Afghanistan and said today Soviet troops there would be withdrawn as soon as "outside interference" in that nation ends.

Referring to President Carter, who has pushed for a Moscow Olympics boycott in retaliation for Soviet moves in Afghanistan, Brezhnev said:

"Mr. Carter and his people know that there was no and is no Russian intervention in Afghanistan."

The Soviet leader said, "The United States loudly demands the withdrawal of Soviet troops but in fact is doing everything to put off this possibility; it is continuing and building up its interference in the affairs of Afghanistan."

In a political campaign speech before a capacity audience of 6,000 at the Kremlin's huge Palace of Congresses, Brezhnev repeated Moscow's position that Soviet troops were invited into Afghanistan by the Marxist Kabul government under terms of a Soviet-Afghan treaty.

Brezhnev spoke as massive street demonstrations in Kabul against the Soviet military presence in Afghanistan left at least three persons dead in the capital, according to foreign reports from there.

The 73-year-old Soviet leader appeared puffyfaced and tired, but he delivered his toughly worded 40-minute speech in a strong voice.

He accused the United States of increasing tension in the Middle East and Asia and said the Carter administration's reaction to "events in Afghanistan" was forcing Soviet troops to remain in the Moslem country.

Brezhnev contended that since the Soviet troops had been requested, "why then is Washington going into hysterics on a global scale? What are the aims of Washington in spreading lies about a Soviet war against Afghanistan?"

"Washington is only looking for a pretext for broadening its presence in Asia," he said.

Protests Spread In Afghanistan

By The Associated Press

Protests against the Soviet military presence spread throughout Afghanistan today, with massive street demonstrations in Kabul had spread to several provincial cities.

The strike and demonstrations in Kabul were the first outbreaks of disobedience in the capital since the Soviets poured tens of thousands of troops into Afghanistan in late December.

The Afghan Moslem rebels were reported today to be threatening major attacks on the capital. The Kabul correspondent of the Japanese newspaper Asahi Simbun said the rebels have been distributing handbills warning of a March 10 attack on the capital to be followed by a "Tet-style offensive on March 21." New Year's Day for Afghanistan's Moslems.

The massive North Vietnamese Tet lunar new year's offensive of March 1968 was considered the turning point against American and South Vietnamese forces in the Vietnam war.

So far, the anti-communist Afghan rebels have confined their 22-month-old war against a string of pro-Soviet governments to the countryside, where their forces can mount sniper attacks and then slip away to mountain hideouts.

Phyllis George Comes Up 2nd In Baby Race

DENTON (AP)—Phyllis George, Miss America 1971, may have beaten fellow Denton resident, Shirley Cothran, to the Atlantic City crown by four years, but in the race to the maternity ward, it was Shirley over Phyllis by four months.

Thursday, Miss Cothran — now Mrs. Richard Barrett, gave birth to an 8-pound, 3-ounce boy in a Denton hospital. Miss George — now Mrs. John Brown, and the first lady of Kentucky — isn't due until June.

The boy, named David Kyle, was born at 10:55 a.m. CST at Flow Memorial Hospital here.

Lawsuit Arises From Epitaph

BALTIMORE (AP)—When Gloria Kovatch visited her father's grave four months after his death, she was stunned by the tombstone. It read: "Stanley J. Gladsky, 1895-1977, abused, robbed and starved by his beloved daughter."

The headstone had been ordered "in jest," her brother Bernard C. Gladsky said.

But Mrs. Kovatch brought a $500,000 suit against her brother, accusing him of erecting the stone to slander her and hold her up to public scorn.

On Thursday, after a three-day trial, a Superior Court jury awarded her $2,000 in damages.

"It was done mostly in jest," Gladsky testified. "In retrospect, I think they were not the proper words to be used."

The stone and inscription stemmed from a dispute between Gladsky and his sister over the care she gave their father while he stayed in her home in the years before his death. He was 82 when he died.

For Sixth Straight Season...

Westerners Conference Champs!

Coach Nolan Richardson's Westerners got some help, did a little work of their own, and the joint effort paid off with a Western Junior College Athletic Conference championship here last night.

The Westerners defeated an upset-minded Frank Phillips team 81-74, then learned that Odessa College had upended Midland's Chaparrals, 61-59. The combination means Western Texas College claims the WJCAC title for the sixth straight season, the third time under Richardson.

WTC now holds a 28-game winning streak, which breaks the previous best (over two seasons) of 27, and is 16-0 in conference play. With two games left, the Westerners can do no worse than 16-2. Midland and Odessa are already 13-3 and 12-4 respectively.

"One of our goals has been accomplished this year," said a happy Coach Richardson. "This will make us more relaxed for the next two ballgames. We can enjoy playing ball instead of worrying so much about winning. But winning is the moment when we've got on our side right now, and we don't want to lose it."

Some bitter news came out of last night's game. Sophomore guard Phil Spradling injured a leg during the first half, and his status as far as playing is unknown for now. In a collision with a Frank Phillips player, Spradling apparently caught a knee into the lower part of his leg. He was able to watch the second half of the game, but had to have help leaving the coliseum afterwards.

Frank Phillips proved to be a tough match for the Westerners. Led by Grant Dalton's 31 points, the Plainsmen kept within striking distance all night. WTC went in front by as much as 10 points in the second half, but Frank Phillips continually cut it down to six and five points, then narrowed it to three with 1:14 left.

But Western Texas executed a perfect fast break that caught the Plainsmen napping, and countered with a second bucket moments later that pushed the advantage back up to seven. Though FPC got within five another time, it was never able to make another threat.

Greg Stewart led the way for the Westerners, with 19 points, and got plenty of help from nine other WTCites who put tallies on the board. Paul Pressey added 16, Bill Patterson had 11 and David Brown garnered 10.

"Greg is beginning to get after it. You can tell from the workouts. At this time of the year, like last season, he began really coming through for us. He got some key rebounds and put in points when we really needed them last night. That's good, because we're going to need Greg to take charge and do a good job inside for us from here on in," said Richardson.

Of the game, he added, "I think we played when we had to, when we really needed it, we played well. Sometimes that's all that counts. We knew that Frank Phillips had upset Midland (earlier in the week), but we beat them by 40 earlier in the year, and it's awful hard to get up for someone you just run over like that, even if they upset one of the top teams."

"I had been trying to tell people that they (Frank Phillips) were tough, but it's hard to realize that when you blow them out one time. After last night we'll be ready for them next time if they make the

Sun Sears Piston Club

By The Associated Press
The secret in basketball is to hit the open man and Thursday night that turned out to be Paul Westphal.

"It just happened that I was the guy open in the first half," the veteran guard said after scoring a career-high 49 points -- 30 in the first two periods -- and leading the Phoenix Suns to a 125-116 National Basketball Association victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Westphal poured in 14 points in the first quarter and 16 more in the second, although the Suns weren't able to pull away until the final quarter. The game was tied 11 times in the third period and three more in the fourth until Phoenix hit three consecutive field goals, two by Walter Davis, to take a 111-105 lead and extend Detroit's losing streak to 11 games.

Davis added 28 points and Alvin Adams had 20 for Phoenix. Detroit was led by John Long's 23.

Elsewhere, the San Diego Clippers defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 104-99 and the Washington Bullets nipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 118-115.

which will be detailed in a later article.

Thirteen of Coach Joe Cushing's charges got on the scoreboard yesterday, led by Bonnie Bludworth's 19 points. Liz Hooper had 12 points, Linda Holubec added 11 and Jeni Anderson notched nine, among others.

The record which fell was most victories in a single season, 23. Last year's Duster team had tied that figure, set originally in 1975-76. Yesterday's win gives the team a 24-9 mark, with two regular season games left, followed by the women's Region V Tournament. The Dusters are 8-3 in conference play.

"We had 13 girls that scored," emphasized Cushing. "A lot of people played very well. It was a super team effort. Our execution was real good and our defense was real good."

"We were able to run the ball well for the first time in several ball games. Of course part of that was because Frank Phillips let us, but I think we can see a difference. We have our second wind and we're off and running again."

The Dusters really had no problems at all defeating the Prairie Dolls, who fall to 4-19 on the season and 2-9 in conference play. They left out to a 46-22 halftime lead, dominated the boards throughout, and played solid defense.

WTC's Dusters will take a break from WJCAC action Monday as they travel to Stephenville for a game with Tarleton State University at 6 p.m. The team concludes the regular season here Feb. 28 against South Plains College.

The Dusters have already been assured of a berth in the March 5-8 Region V Tournament which will be held in Big Spring this year.

WTC Set To Defend T. W. Holder Title

Coach Bob O'Day's Westerners defend their T. W. Holder Tournament championship here Saturday and Sunday as the second edition of the popular tourney is held at Western Texas College Golf Course.

Twelve junior and senior colleges are entered in the annual, two-day tournament, which tees off at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. each day.

The Western Texas roster includes five sophomores and 10 freshmen. Sophomores are Scott Barrett of Pampa, Mike Cotter of Albany, Phil Kuss of Sweetwater, Ken Lawrence of Albany and Mike Mahan of Midland. The freshmen are Johnny Curbo, Winters; Chris Johnson, Seminole; Bill Leonard, El Paso; Randy Moore, Del Rio; Lance McMillan, Snyder; Frank Monfrey, San Antonio; Charlie Stodghill, Kermit; Victor Villarreal, Abilene; Jeff Wagner, Norman, Okla.; and Richard White, Pecos.

WTC will enter two teams in the tournament. Other colleges competing include Eastern New Mexico University, New Mexico Junior College, West Texas State University, New Mexico Military Institute and Cisco College, which tee off at 9 Saturday morning.

At 1:30, Texas Tech University, Odessa College, McMurry College, Hardin-Simmons University, Midland College and Abilene Christian University will begin.

Teams which finish Saturday's round seventh through 13th will tee off at 9 a.m. Sunday. Those scoring one through sixth will get started about 1:30.

Senior colleges and junior colleges will compete in one division. Three team trophies and three medal trophies will be presented at the conclusion of the meet.

Western Texas College Golf Course will be closed to other golfers Saturday and Sunday, but spectators are welcome to watch the tournament.

Track Opens Season In Stockton Relays

FORT STOCKTON—Snyder boys track team was to open the season here today as Fort Stockton Relays action got underway at 2:30.

The two-day meet was to continue Saturday morning. Today's events, including the discus, long jump and high jump, were to open the meet, followed at 3 by the running prelims.

Saturday, field events resume at 9 a.m. Finals in the running events are slated for 1 p.m.

Snyder was expected to complete well in the pole vault, 400 meters, 800 meters and discus, among other events, but will not have its top high jumper, long jumper or hurdler at the meet here.

Snyder High School is still involved in basketball playoffs, as the District 3-AAA champion, and four cagers will join the track team when their present interest is concluded. But Tiger track Coach Winfred Shipp wasn't worried about that at all.

"Right now they are involved in basketball and I hope they go all the way to state. I'd love to see them bring home the state championship. We can certainly do without them for a while. We'll miss them out here, but they'll have plenty time to participate in track later in the season."

Those still involved in basketball playoffs are state high jumper Brad Richardson, state long jumper Thomas Selmon, and hurdlers Keith McClain and Keith Wallace.

The basketball team will play Weatherford, 8 p.m. Tuesday in Abilene's Moody Coliseum for bi-district.

Other teams competing in the AAA class of the Fort Stockton Relays will be Monahans, Pecos, Fort Stockton, Lake View and Sweetwater. Class A and AA will compete in another division, as will class AAAA.

Heiden Becomes Hero Of The Winter Games

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—It's four gold medals down and one to go for speed skating superstar Eric Heiden, who continues to rewrite the Olympic record book with bold, broad strokes that have turned these Winter Games into a salute to his individual brilliance.

They have become the Heiden Olympics, unquestionably dominated by the long, lean 21-year-old from Madison, Wis., the first man in history to win four golds in a single Winter Games.

By himself, Eric has matched the best gold medal production any entire American team has managed in the Winter Olympics since the United States won six events in the 1932 Games—the last time Lake Placid served a host. Only once since then—in 1952 at Oslo—has American won as many as four winter golds and now Heiden has done that all alone.

And he still has one more race to go.

Heiden's latest gold came in Thursday's 1,500 meter race when he was timed in a record 1 minute, 55.44 seconds. That followed victories at 500, 1,000 and 5,000 meters. All that remains is the 10,000 meter race on Saturday and you know who the favorite is in that one.

Two Norwegians, Kai Arne Stenshemmet and Terje Andersen, finished 2-3 behind Heiden in the 1,500, timed in 1:56.81 and 1:56.92 respectively. That silver and bronze combined with a third place bronze medal in women's 4 x 5 kilometer cross country relay race gave Norway nine medals for the Games and third place in the overall standings.

East Germany took the gold in the cross country race and added a silver from Jan Hoffman in the men's figure skating and moved in front of the Soviet Union in the medal race 19-18. The Russians, second in the cross country, still lead in golds 8-7.

Heiden's gold was the seventh speed skating medal won by the United States and Charlie Tickner's figure skating bronze gave United States

'Border' Offers Games Site

LAREDO (AP)—Officials at the Border Olympics, a four-decade-old South Texas track meet, have offered their outdoor facilities as a site for any alternative 1980 Summer Olympics.

Border Olympics president Alan Jackson Thursday wrote a letter to President Carter, suggesting the border town site.

"We of the Border Olympics Inc. are at this time offering our facilities should the United States sponsor a 'Free World Olympics' this summer. Our facility includes an all-weather track fully measured in meters and would accommodate the running events," the letter said.

Carter announced this week that the United States would not participate in the 1980 Moscow Olympics because the Soviet Union had not pulled troops out of Afghanistan. The Border Olympics will be held in the new facilities Feb. 29 through March 1.

Can Clinch Crown Saturday...

Tigers Rout Lamesa

Snyder High School can wrestle down its fourth district championship of the season if the Tiger-tennis team can get past Brownfield here Saturday.

The local athletes have already won titles in volleyball and girls and boys basketball.

Yesterday, Snyder boy's netters defeated Lamesa 9-0 in loop play here. The win gave the boys their third in the district race, having defeated Sweetwater and Lake View earlier with 9-0 marks also.

The girls are also going into the Saturday bout with Brownfield holding three wins and no losses in district team tennis.

The district team championship should not be confused with the 3-AAA tournament, held in April, which sends its victors to the regional meet. Last year, Snyder did not win the district team title, but sent more individuals to the regional tournament than any other conference member.

Against Lamesa here yesterday, Neil Paige defeated Bret Dyer 6-1, 6-0; Jimmy Fowler won over Roy Stephens 6-1, 6-1; Jeff Wesson bested Cary Chiles 6-1, 6-2; Richard Derrick defeated Lewis Gonzales 6-0, 6-1; Davey Brown won over Johnny Molina 6-3, 6-0; and Trey McWilliams defeated Kent Leatherwood 6-4, 6-2.

In doubles, Jon Smith and Wesson defeated Stephens and Chiles 6-2, 6-0; Mark Cypert and Derrick won over Dyer and Gonzales 6-3, 6-2; and Paige and Fowler defeated Molina

Roos Emerge As Tiger Foe

ABILENE—Snyder's Tigers and the Kangaroos of Weatherford will meet at Moody Coliseum on the ACU campus, 8 p.m. Tuesday in a bi-district basketball clash, it was decided here today.

Officials from both schools met here this morning to iron out the details. Ticket prices have been set at $2.50 adults and $1.50 students. Snyder will be the home team.

Weatherford, the District 4-3A champion, defeated Mineral Wells last night 64-53 to earn the playoff berth.

Ira Outlasts Roby, Grabs Loop Crown

Ira High School won its first ever boys district basketball title here last night, stopping the Roby Lions 52-42 in the finals of the 10-B Tournament.

The victory pits the 'Dogs against 9-B champion Sands, Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Lamesa Middle School Gym.

Robert Mitchell and Keith Bryant ripped the nets for 19 and 15 points respectively to steer the Ira bunch. Tate Kesner had 8 points and R.D. Phillips added 6.

Roby, led by Mark Pope's

19 points, jumped out to a 16-11 lead in the first quarter, but good defense by Ira—especially on the boards—held the Lions to only two second-quarter points, and the Bulldogs took a 23-18 edge into the dressing room.

It appeared Ira might make short work of the second half as Coach Wayne Fox's troops extended their lead to 31-20. But Roby began to work its way back into the game, finally cutting it to 33-32 and 35-34 before the Bulldogs reeled off six straight points.

The Bulldogs led by as much as eight points in the final quarter, tough Roby did cut it to five with under two minutes left. Ira then took advantage of several technicals called against the Lions, and extended the final lead to 10.

Despite winning its first district championship (boys), Ira was hit with sadness during the playoff game. Cecil Huddleston, a long-time Bulldogs supporter, was stricken with a heart attack as the contest went into halftime. Huddleston, a relative of two of the Ira players, was later pronounced dead at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Friends and tournament officials worked desperately to save the elderly man's life while waiting on an ambulance, but to no avail. Ambulance personnel, which arrived on the scene, were also unable to revive the man.

Martin Excited About New Job

CHICAGO (AP)—Billy Martin, dismayed at the prospect of sitting on the sidelines "even for a couple of months," has accepted the managerial reins of the Oakland A's.

"I don't want to watch my baseball over a television set or from the stands," said Martin, fired as New York Yankees manager by club owner George Steinbrenner last October after Billy was involved in a fight with a marshall/salesman.

"I want to be on the field," Martin added. "I love baseball. I wouldn't enjoy the summer without baseball."

"I could have waited, maybe a couple of months, and other jobs would have opened. But Charlie Finley has given me a great opportunity. It's a young club, and I enjoy working with kids."

Martin, 51, has had success both as a player and a manager, but the main question now is whether he will get along with A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Finley put together five division and three World Series championship teams at Oakland before the free-agent draft stripped him of his stars. What if the volatile Finley decides to dictate to the quick-tempered Martin as he has with former managers?

"As owner and general manager of the club, Charlie has a voice in everything," said Martin. "On the field, it's my ballgame, my cup of tea."

AIR CRASH—Roby's Denny Cox (left) makes sure R.D. Phillips doesn't score off this Ira fast break during action of last night's 10-B Tournament finals game, but he did get whistled for an obvious foul. Ira won the game, and its first boys' basketball district championship ever. The 'Dogs will play Sands in Lamesa Tuesday for bi-district. See related article at right. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

LIONS CELEBRATE 55 YEARS IN SNYDER

Fifty-five years ago this month, the Snyder Lions Club was organized. The Lions Club is an International club with organizations in over 150 countries.

The main objective of the organization is to aid the blind. The Snyder branch is instrumental each year in fitting glasses and in eye treatment for local young people.

The local branch also participates in supporting a camp at Kerrville for the handicapped. Several young people from Snyder are sponsored each year and sent to the camp.

Currently, the Lions Club is sponsoring the Eye Bank.

A "Big Thank You" to the Snyder Lions Club and all that they contribute to our community.
