'DIDN'T SAY IT--' NEFF. 'YOU DID TOO--' SCRIBE

Former Governor and Scribe Disagree as to What He Did Say

OVER FERGUSON

His Reported Rebuke Of Jim and Ma Starts Argument

AUSTIN, June 23. — The Austin American tonight made public two telegrams, one from former Governor Pat M. Neff and the other from M. L. Sharpley, its Chicago correspondent.

The Neff telegram follows:

"Neither in Chicago or elsewhere at any time have I directly or indirectly, in public or in private, to any person made unfavorable or critical remarks about any things said or done by the Ferguson administration. Any purported interview about Texas politics is wholly without any foundation whatever."

The telegram from Sharpley, the correspondent who quoted Mr. Neff as saying the Ferguson administration would meet an untimely end, follows:

Could Be Expected.

"Mr. Neff could be expected to deny his indiscretion in unbosoming himself to a total stranger. I approached him in the lobby of the Hotel Sherman here Sunday about five p. m. I had just called his room, 1253 on the house phone, when I caught sight of him standing near the desk with his daughter, Hallie Maude.

"They were both peering around as though looking for somebody when I approached, lifted my hat, addressed him as "Governor Neff" and introduced myself as a Daily Journal reporter.

"He thought I said 'Tribune' at first and I did not correct him as I was getting the story for the Austin American with the idea that maybe he would talk away from home. I met Miss Neff, but she excused herself shortly to go to her room, explaining she was to meet a Texas girl that evening then leave for a three months European tour.

"I had told Neff I was from Houston, Texas, but had been away from my home two years and knew little of what had happened there.

"Just then, A. R. Talbot of Lincoln, Neb., national president of the Modern Woodmen of America, came up, spoke to Neff and asked him whether he was giving the Journal a story. I had met Talbot, former law partner of W. J. Bryan, and while he clapped me on the shoulder, I informed Neff that he had mistaken the paper, telling him I was with the Journal.

Democratic Anyway.

"Well,-it's a democratic sheet," Talbot said, walking away.

"Neff and I found chairs.

"'Do you represent any Texas papers, Mr. Sharpley?' was the first thing he asked.

"'No sir, I do not. I have worked for a number of them, but am fully accunied here now,' I replied.

"Neff seemed relieved at this and led him to assail the Fergusons as I represented in my dispatch to you.

"I told him that I attended Texas university several years ago when students burned Jim in effigy and he seemed much pleased.

"Neff seemed exhuberant in spirits, which I attributed to rumors of late business success.

"Neff, at the end of his diatribe on Texas politics, attempted to exact a promise from me not to quote him on politics in the press, which I had no intention of respecting. I went to him as a newspaper man and so introduced myself. I was not making social calls but gathering news and information.

"He made some comment on Texas crops on which I quoted him honestly in the Journal."

Kresge, Winner In Business, A Failure In Home

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP) His first unsuccessful matrimonial venture is reputed to have cost S. S. Kresge, owner of five and ten-cent stores, $38,000,000, and now he is threatened with an expenditure of $7,000,000 as the result of his second marriage.

His second wife, Doris Mercer Kresge, has filed suit in supreme court here for $7,000,000, alleging it to be the unpaid balance of 20,000 shares of Kresge stock which he promised her in lieu of dower rights when they were married, April 24, 1924.

All she has received, papers in the suit allege, is 2,500 shares, a one-pound box of candy and a plush puppy dog from one of his stores.

The first Mrs. Kresge divorced him in Detroit last year in 10 minutes. She is said to have obtained a settlement of $10,000,000 and $5,000,000 additional for each of their five children.

The second Mrs. Kresge is the daughter of George A. Mercer of Pittsburgh. She ran away and joined a Broadway chorus before her father induced her to return home. She married Percival D. Harden, publisher of a weekly paper, and later divorced him in Syracuse.

She says she has not seen Kresge since he jumped out of bed a few months ago, packed up his clothes and left.

Mr. Kresge has been a supporter of the Anti-Saloon league and an ardent advocate of thrift, spending, it is said, not more 30 cents a day for luncheon.

NOCONA'S OIL FIELD HELPED WITH WILDCAT

Humphries Has Deepest Well in No. 1, Hinton, Coats Survey

HIGH GRAVITY OIL

Broadens Proven Area About a Mile and a Quarter

The Humphreys Oil corporation the new $10,000,000 concern of Colonel A. E. Humpreys, Texas wildcatter, has scored for north Montague county what will probably outrank any single event there since the completion of the irst heavy oil well in the county more than a year ago. The one completion establishes first a new depth record for production in Montague county, extends production a mile and a quarter to the west and north, and definitely takes north Nocona out of the heavy oil class with an oil well that is producing a light green oil, rich in gasoline content, that tests by Sinclair engineers, 41.4 degree gravity Beaume.

Is Humphreys Well.

The well is the Humphreys' No. 1 Hinton, Alexander Coates survey, about a mile and a quarter west and north of the Humphreys group on the Willis Jones farm, a mile south and a mile and a half east of the river. It is approximately five miles west of the Texhoma's Howard lease, the eastern edge of the field.

The well shows 65 feet of sand. topped at 1,840 feet and drilled to 1,905 feet. Until yesterday afternoon it had filled up to about 900 or 1,000 feet and stayed there but Tuesday it made several flows, one of which lasted about twenty minutes and filled the slushpit. The flowing came in the ordinary course of cleaning out and swabbing and did not follow a

THE WEATHER

"I was a lucky boy today. I found a snake that wasn't mashed much and saw a fire and forgot to wash my neck with soap."

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch
Growing Old.

WE do not feel so different
From ten or twenty years ago:
A little wrinkled, little bent,
We feel the same, or nearly so.
The flight of time we wouldn't know,
How many years the years have rolled,
But for one thing: My goodness, though
The way the kids are getting old!

The girl was in her cradle just
The other day, it seems somehow;
And yet time flies, we know it must,
For look at her, just see her now!
The wife can sew, and I can plow,
We work all day, we're up at dawn,
That we are old we won't allow—
But how the kids are getting on!

Yes, thats' the way you notice it,
I'm just as spry, you must agree,
But, though I haven't changed a bit,
The boy is bigger now than me,
I never think how old I be,
I do my work, I earn my wage,
I'm just the same, as you can see—
But, heavens, how the children age!

Wheat in County To Grade No. 3 On Average, Jones Says

Wheat in Wichita county this year will average about 56 pounds to the bushel, or will grade No. 3, County Agricultural Agent Guy R. Jones predicted Tuesday after a survey of the wheat crop of the county. It is running this year, Mr. Jones found, from 52 to 61 pounds a bushel against a run of from 60 to 63 pounds last summer.

The crop this year has suffered considerably from adverse weather conditions and has not made the stand hoped for it. Some fields have reported a yield of around 18 bushels to an acre. A price of $1 40 is being paid at the elevators for No. 1, with loker grades in proportion.

Considerable wheat is being received at all four towns of the county now, reports to Mr. Jones indicates. Threshing is under way in full swing in all parts of the county.

Barnard Jailed, But He Talks Himself Out By Oration On "Service"

With the arrest late yesterday of Jack C. Barnard by the city police department, the mystery surrounding the appearance of hour glasses upon the steps of prominent city officials and several hundred residences in the city has been cleared up.

Mr. Barnard was arrested following an investigation made by city detective assisted by operatives of the sheriffs' department. According to Mr. Barnards statement the hour glasses were delivered to the officials and to every thirty-second home in the city in commemoration of the 32nd anniversary sale which is now being staged by the P. B. M. company.

The cryptic note which accompanied each hour glass merely referred to "Father Time"—the one who will judge unerringly over man's progress and mark according to his worth.

"Thirty-two years ago our founder, J. C. Barnard entered the mercantile business and founded the principles which have been religiously adhered to in the conduct of the business. Those principles have stood the rigid

OLSON PEEVED AT HANDLING OF GERM CASE

"Shepherd Has Nothing To Fear From the State's Attorney

WILL CLOSE TODAY

Defendant on Stand Only Short Time For Examination

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)—Three minutes of denial of all state charges and an hour and a half of cross examination in which the accusation was not touched upon filled William Darling Shepherd's day of days when he testified today in his trial for murder.

As he stepped from the witness stand after a cross examination which left a crowded court room gasping both for its brevity and trend the defense announced "that's all, that's our case" and the prosecution echoed "state rests."

Five minutes more and the first state argument to the jury was under way.

Demand for Death.

It was a demand for the death penalty for Shepherd for the "coldly calculated, brutal and atrocious murder" of his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock.

Harry Olson, chief justice of the municipal court, who, proclaiming himself "counsel for the dead," was chiefly instrumental in the investigation of Billy's death, expressed disapproval today of the manner of the prosecution of Shepherd. Once he said Shepherd "has but little to fear from the state's attorney's office."

So into one brief session of court was crowded more drama than in all the previous sessions of the five

Phonograph an Aid To Mental Defects

MINNEEAPOLIS, June 23.—(AP)—An electric phonograph recently designed by Bell Telephone company engineers and now being demonstrated in conjunction with the convention for the hard of hearing here will bring many backward students to the head of the class, experts attending the meeting declare.

This "phonograph audiometer" as it is called, resembles the portable phonograph, but has head phones. A class room of pupils may be tested at once, the children being asked to listen to the numbers and to copy them. The voice from the machine grows gradually fainter until at last it is inaudible. Those children who stop writing too soon have impaired hearing, it was pointed out, and the teacher is enabled to give them special consideration.

Sledge Guilty; Sent To Prison For 35 Years

Jury Reports in Oklahoma Assault Case At 9 O'clock Tuesday; Appeal Notice Filed

WAURIKA, Okla., June 23.—Harry Sledge, 19-year old son of a wealthy Stephens county family, was found guilty today and sentenced to 35 years in the state penitentiary for an assault on Ethel Sreywaus, young French-American girl whose charges against Sledge led to one of the most sensational trials in the history of southern Oklahoma courts.

The verdict was brought in when court opened at 8 o'clock this morning. It had evidently been reached earlier in the day, for at 10:15 Monday night, three hours after the case had closed, the jurors retired without having reached a decision. Judgment against Sledge will be pronounced by Judge M. W. Pugh on June 29. Meanwhile he will be at liberty on bond of $25,000. Notice of appeal to the higher courts has already been served by attorneys for the defense.

Packed to Doors.

A court room packed again to the doors was on hand when the jury filed into its box this morning. All eyes were focused on young Sledge who sat with his counsel while District Clerk L. G. Morgan unfolded the paper handed him by the foreman and read the jury's findings.

Sledge, as he has been throughout the case, did not move an eye or show even a passing flicker of emotion as the announcement was made. Occasionally, while state's attorneys were scathingly denouncing him in their arguments, he would flinch, but otherwise his demeanor has been one of utmost composure.

To Try Others

Ted Elliott and Bill Brown of Duncan, companions of Sledge, and also under indictment in connection with the same offense, are to go to trial here Monday, June 29, the day on which Sledge will be sentenced. They have been granted a severance and no indication has as yet been given as to which will be tried first.

Sledge nor his attorneys had any comment to make when court adjourned today.

STATE LINES ERASED UNDER NEW DRY RULE

Complete Reorganization Of Prohi Units to Be Made

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—Reorganization of the prohibition enforcement system involving obliteration of state lines, decentralization of authority and the creation of new supervisory districts concurring with the federal judicial districts was announced today by the treasury department.

The sweeping changes are to become operative August 1. They are designed to build up a distinct federal enforcement system without sacrificing cooperation between federal and local enforcement agencies.

A prohibition administrator will be named for each of 22 new prohibition districts. These appointees, the treasury announcement said, will be chosen "for personal fitness and executive and business ability." Each will have two assistants and in addition a chemist and a counsel.

Indications are that an important shake up will take place among the enforcement personnel, but Assistant Secretary Andrews, who laid out the plan, declined today to discuss that phase of the reorganization.

weeks and one day the case has dragged through Judge Thomas J. Lynch's court.

Detail by detail Shepherd was led through a denial of each of the 22 counts in his indictment for the youth's murder.

"Did you murder Billy McClintock" asked William Scott Stewart, Shepherd's chief counsel.

"I did not," responded Shepherd.

In turn he denied he ever had given the youth poison, death-dealing germs, or had slain him "in manner and form unknown to the grand jury."

Replies Calmly.

Replying in a calm firm tone, Shepherd completed his denial of all the state alleges by stating that prior to the investigation of Billy McClintock's death he never had seen Charles C. Faiman, his chief accuser, nor John P. Marchand, a Faiman assistant, nor had ever written a letter to Faiman's National University of Science concerning a course in bacteriology.

Dr. Amante Rongetti, who said Shepherd discussed germs with him, likewise was unknown, Shepherd testified, adding, upon a brief redirect examination that he never had owned a private laboratory.

From his cradle days year by year on through his life Shepherd was forced to account for his time when Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, undertook cross examination.

Never a Success.

Shepherd never was a successful business man, virtually throughout his life until he and his wife went to live with Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of the youth he is charged with slaying, working with or under close relatives, he testified.

Today, at the age of 49, he owns two parcels of real estate and a few shares of stock to show for his life's work, he admitted, under interrogation by Mr. Crowe.

After a visit to Mrs. McClintock's here in 1909, he and Mrs. Shepherd became fixtures in the widow's household, Shepherd admitted, and since 1912 never had paid for the livelihood obtained from Mrs. McClintock and, after her death, from the boy Billy.

"She simply made the proposition to me to keep me, not because she wanted me to stay so much, but she wanted my wife with her, and this work was simply to keep me from taking another position," explained Shepherd.

"My time was taken up with whatever she wanted me to do, whatever it might be," he said in describing his duties.

At the end of his cross examination Prosecutor Crowe gained from the witness an admission that he knew Billy McClintock had ordered the McClintock-Shepherd home sold, and that he had written to a young woman that he was "broke" and the future looked doubtful.

With that the state concluded its questioning.

Shepherd Astonished.

Shepherd, thick and wide with iron gray curley hair worn pompodour, and his face milk-white with its prison pallor, raised his eyebrows in astonishment as the prosecutor said "that's all."

The opening address to the jury was begun by George E. Gorman, first assistant state's attorney. No time limit was set upon the speeches but it was indicated Mr. Gorman would require about three hours. He had been talking two hours when court adjourned today.

After he concludes tomorrow morning Stewart will open for the defense and will be followed by W. W. O'Brian for the defense.

Prosecutor Crowe will close for the state.

NOCONA'S OIL

shot as reported. Estimates last night on the well varied from 100 to 200 barrels. It is showing a lot of gas and spraying oil almost continually.

Is Deepest Well.

The depth, 1,840-1,905 is the deepest that production has been tapped in Montague county, up until now wildcatting at various times in the county having uncovered first 900-foot pay, then deeper strata. This is best exemplified in Texhoma's Howard lease where four oil wells are being pumped, all located within a space of 300 feet and each producing from a different sand. The lowest is at 800 feet and the deepest at 1,600 feet. The deep well here had previously held a record for the deepest production in Montague county.

Oil from wells north of Nocona until now has in the most part measured anywhere from 21 to 24 degree Baume gravity, with some few exceptions, one well making as high as 32 degree gravity oil. The gasoline content of the crude was low, but if differed from the usual North Texas oil in that it had a high lubricating content which would materially affect its value if a market could ever be found and an outlet procured. The new oil in the Hinton farm well tests 41.4 degrees gravity, and is a gasoline crude, something entirely new for north Montague county.

Has Triple Feature.

The triple feature of the new well, that is, its big extension to the producing area of the county, the depth at which the pay has been found, and the high grade of oil produced, in a well that looks good enough to attract much more drilling, destine it to rank high among North Texas discoveries and insure for north Nocona a play that has been predicted by oil men since the first well was completed there.

The exceptionally thick bodies of sand which make at once cheap drilling and a long life well that are found in wells in this area, and the large quantity of cheap gas fuel that is found there make the area especially attractive any way for development work and with each discovery proving its own area eventual development is assured.

Elsewhere in Montague county Newblock Oil company is re-cementing at 860 feet on a good sand in their No. 1. Maddox; the Humphreys gasser is still blowing wild with a corps of men trying to shut it in; Pure's No. 1, Rowland is understood to be showing for a well.

ness men, written by chamber of commerce officials here asking the public to lend their co-operation to the movement:

Business Men of Wichita Falls:

Mr. Homer D. Wade, assistant manager West Texas chamber of commerce, is in the city in behalf of that organization.

At the recent meeting of the board of directors of the West Texas chamber of commerce the quotas of the various larger cities was determined and the quota of Wichita Falls was placed at 400 memberships at $10 each. At this time Wichita Falls has approximaetly 200 memberships. Several years ago it had approximately 500 memberships.

The business men of Wichita Falls have come to a full realization of the real worth while work th atis being done by this great organization. They realize that it is worthy of their financial support and their best thought in carrying forward he aimp of this organization, to-wit: real development of its wonderful resources and the like.

Wichita Falls needs the West Texas chamber of commerce as few other cities in its class do. It needs it to extend and advance its jobbing interests and kindred lines.

In addition to the foregoing, it has been determined that Wichita Falls should be a real contender at the Amarillo meeting next year as a candidate for the convention to be held in 1927. This convention is the largest by far of any convention held in the Southwest. We want it. To secure this convention we must necessarily support to the fullest this organization.

We, the undersigned business men of Wichita Falls, most heartily recommend to you subscribing liberally to memberships in this organization and when Mr. Wade shall come to you with his message, which he is capable of making much more effective than are we, we request you to meet him with that hospitality that Wichita Falls has become famous for, and not only meet him in this manner, but give him that support to which his organization is entitled.

Very truly yours, test of time—they have weathered stormy seas of merchandising and have proven themselves as fit and worthy principles upon which a great business was builded,' said Mr. Barnard, shortly after his arrest.

"In order to celebrate properly on this thirty-second birthday, we have gathered together a collection of merchandise that would be a credit to the largest Fifth avenue department store. The hour glasses which have played their part in this celebration should cause every recipient to stop and think —"How will time judge me or my business."

Mr. Barnard announced that the largest birthday cake ever shown in the South will be thrown to the public gaze at 1 o'clock today. This will be displayed in the window of the P. B. M. store and will prove a decided innovation to cake makers.

Free parking service for customers of the store has been arranged with the Service Parking space, next door to the Wichita theatre. Everything has been done to make this thirty-second anniversary sale to be long remembered by those who attend it. Complete announcements of the offerings in the sale are made elsewhere in this issue.

Following his statement to the police, Mr. Barnard was released and returned to the store with the hearty congratulations of Commissioner Queisser, Chief Hodgins and Mayor Shepherd.

Rio Grande Valley Irrigation Studied By Motor Caravan

SAN ANTONIO, June 23.—A motor caravan of twenty automobiles bearing 50 Rio Grande valley citizens under the leadership of C. H. Pease, secretary of the lower Rio Grande Valley Water Users association, passed through San Antonio Tuesday en route to Mariscal canyon, situated in the extreme southern tip of the great bend of the Rio Grande.

The object of the excursion is to investigate at first hand the possibilities of constructing a storage dam across the canyon, which is adjacent to the Mariscal mountain range, in order to stabilize the flow of water in the Rio Grande, thus making practical the irrigation of four times as much and in the lower valley as is now possible.

Federal engineers have explored the river and their findings are that storage is possible at Mariscal canyon and at a paint in Devil's river near Del Rio, water thus impounded to supplement the river's normal flow.

Pease, who has been working in behalf of a system of gravity irrigation for the valley for a number of years, has just returned from Washington, where he spent several months in interesting congress in the project. The United States government has appointed a commission to represent this country and has suggested to Mexico that that government name a similar commission for the purpose of entering into a treaty governing division of the Rio Grande waters for irrigation purposes.

Big Words a Mask For the Ignorant

CONWAY, Ark., June 23.—Use by scientists of such phrases as "positive and negative poles," "nebular theory," and "centrifugal force" was characterized by Professor W A. Shelton as "an effort to conceal their ignorance of the power of Almighty God.

Dr. Shelton, Professor of Old Testament Literature and Semetic Language in Emory university, addressed a pastors' school of the Methodist church, south, here. He described evolution as a theory which claims man as a result of the union of two lillies in the China sea. Ages ago the lillies, male and femals, were brought together by an ocean current and under the influence of time, the elements involved into a sponge. Continuing the process the sponge became a jelly fish and thereafter grew a tail and later legs.

UNIFORMS NOT NECESSARY TO COPS--OPINION

Attorney General Says New Law is Not Constitutional

AUSTIN, June 23.—(AP)—The provision of the new law providing that only highway officers appointed by the commissioners courts and wearing distinctive uniforms can make arrests for violations of the highway laws is unconstitutional because this provision is not listed in the caption of the law, the attorney general's department held today.

Answer Four Questions.

The opinion, written by Assistant Attorney General L. C. Sutton, is addressed to Jewel N. Bauldwin, county attorney, Johnson county. Four specific questions are asked relating to the new law, and answered as follows:

Employment of highway officers is not mandatory on the commissioners courts, but may be employed as the courts see fit and dispense with their services after they have been employed.

Other officers than highway officers are not deprived of authority to make arrests, notwithstanding the provisions of the act purporting to deprive them of this authority.

No fees can be charged by any county highway officer for any service performed by him, but the rule does not apply to other officers making highway violation arrests.

May Still Arrest.

Other peace officers may make arrests for violation of laws relating to highways to the same extent as if this inhibitory provision had not been inserted in the law and this is true whether the commissioners court furnishes any traffic officers or not.

"This defect in the caption and this new provision prohibiting arrests by other officers was not in the bill as originally prepared," the opinion asserted.

"It appears, however, that the caption and the body of the bill were rewritten and a substitute bill introduced and it is in this substitute bill hat the discrepancy occurs."

Plans For Handling Cotton Are Outlined

DALLAS, June 23.—Plans for handling the 1925 Texas cotton crop were outlined here today and the annual cotton meeting of the car service division of the American railway association. J. Lee West, of the Dallas cotton exchange and chairman of the cotton committee of the Southwest Shippers Advisory board presided. About 150 were in attendance.

Consolidation of bill of lading lots at origin points was declared advisable in efficient handling. It was also urged by speakers that shippers try to place bill of lading lots together on the shipping platform and that when it is nesessary to split such lots at origin points the balance should be forwarded as soon as possible.

It was suggested that shippers use the same routings on lots of 100 bales or less when moving to the same destination.

"Rolling," cotton bales, particularly if they retard operation of compresses were condemned by a number of speakers.

The effect of reduced export rate from Oklahoma points to New England was expected to be explained today.

PET MONKEY BITES TWO.

Dallas People Watching Fire Are Victims of Enraged Animal.

DALLAS, June 23.—Mrs. J. W. Fogus and J. R. Kilgore, 13, of Dallas, were attacked and bitten by a pet monkey which became excited after a fire which destroyed its owner's barn and loosed itself from its chain. The two injured persons were spectators at the fire. After biting Mrs. Fogus three times near the ankle, the monkey attacked the Kilgore boy, biting him on the neck and hand.

Firemen who ran to the rescue of the two chased the animal into a nearby tree and it disappeared. It was found a few minutes later in a yard and shot. Though it was believed the animal was not suffering from rabies the head will be examined.

"Wolf" and Her Band Of Thieves Dealing Misery In New Jersey

VINELAND, N. J., June 23—(AP)—Police of all towns and communities in Southern New Jersey today were on their guard hoping for some sight of the "wolf" and her band of thieves or any additional clues that will lead to their arrest. In the meantime offices and stores are carefully guarded during closed hours for fear of additional raids.

Twelve offices and business establishments were ransacked here early yesterday and a score of places in the neighboring town of Millville Saturday night. Police found numerous finger prints and foot prints in the places robbed, but other than these have nothing by which they can trace the band, the leader of which left notes reading:

"Thanks. Will call again." and signed "The Wolf."

Imprints of a woman's heel found on the scenes of several of the robberies led the authorities to believe that a woman is a leader of the gang.

Not content with irritating authorities by their notes, the woman member of the band usually telephoned police headquarters that a certain office or store had just been robbed. In some instances while officers were investigating one robbery another mysterious telephone call would inform them that another place was robbed.

The raids here netted the robbers about $400 in cash, police reports showed.

Perkins Suitor Faces Criminal Assault Charge

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Dorothy Perkins, 17-year-old slayer of Thomas Templeton, her young unwelcome suitor, is to serve from five to fifteen years in prison, but Michael Connors, elderly married man, whose attentions she preferred, is facing the prospect of punishment, too.

Asistant District Attorney MacDonald said that an indictment charging criminal assault would be sought against Connors, 40 years old, who is now serving a sentence for wife beating.

Mr. MacDonald questioned the girl for two hours last night. The beginning of her term at Auburn prison is being held in abeyance pending the shaming of the case against Connors.

"When you hear how Mickey (Connors) took advantage of an innocent kid and how he treated me afterwards, I think you'll want to see him punished," Dorothy told MacDonald. "I never knew until now that he could be punished for what he did."

One-Man Crew Sails Serenely in Mid-Sea

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23—(AP)—The yawl Half Moon which left Mayne Island, near Victoria, B. C., on March 31, with Commander Eustace B. Maude, royal navy, retired, acting as skipper and crew, was sighted last Friday morning by the Matson liner Mahukona sailing before a stiff wind and with the lone mariner contentedly smoking his pipe at the tiller. The Mahukona arrived here yesterday from the Hawaiian Islands. England is Commander Maude's destination.

Commander Maude reported to the steamer that he was "shipshape", well supplied and contented and refused assistance.

Tayloe's office Tuesday to fill the vacancy as provided by law. Mrs. Archer and Don J. Marr, chief clerk in the district clerk's office, were the only persons considered. Marr withdrew his name and Mrs. Archer was chosen.

Cowboy Pays With Life in Effort To Ride Outlaw Horse

BRADY, Texas, June 23.—An outlawed horse, counted one of the most vicious on a local ranch, got his man today when he killed Hugh Barber, a cowboy and skilled rider.

Barber, employed on a ranch in the southern section of the McCulough county, essayed to ride the man-killer after the horse had the reputation of unseating every cowboy who had mounted him and of trying to kill his riders.

Barber sat his horse until the squealing, twisting animal bucked high into the air, sunk his head between the knees and dived over in a complete somersault.

The outlaw came down on its back on top of Barber whose skull was crushed. He never gained consciousness and died a short time after the fall. The horse was unhurt.

CAR LICENSE CONTRACT NOT VALID--CLAIM

Burkett Says Approval Of Highway Department Not Secured

AUSTIN, June 23.—(AP)—Contracts let for 1,085,000 motor vehicle license plates for 1926 by the board of control late Monday for $120,382.50 will not be recognized by the state highway commission, Senator Joe Burkett of Eastland, highway commissioner, announced today. The board of control and the contracting companies were notified that approval of the contracts by the highway commission had not been given.

The Kittle Manufacturing company of Los Angeles, and the S. G. Adam company of St. Louis were awarded the contracts Monday following the opening of the bids Monday. The highway commission did not have an opportunity to consider the bids, it was said, and bids for the license plates will be asked again.

Want Settlement Of Brussells Debt

BRUSSELS, June 23.—(AP)—Early settlement of the war debts is being hammered home as a vital issue at the congress of International Chamber of Commerce, now in session here.

Until these debts are out of the way the delegates were told yesterday by Sir Alan Anderson, deputy governor of the Bank of England the recovery of maritime trade would be impossible.

Pamphlets have been distributed among the Americans urging that some of the money received by the United States in payment of the inter-allied debts be used for the creation of an "international city" here.

Dallas Bootblack Is Given Threshing By District Attorney

DALLAS, June 23.—Shelby Cox, Dallas' towering district attorney personally administered a threshing to a large negro bootblack here today when it was reported to him the negro had made remarks about women who were passing.

"There is no law to take care of such cases and I am perfectly willing to pay a fine for the privilege of meting out some sort of punishment to him," he declared.

Witnesses said Cox floored the negro in a few quick blows. Another bootblack was in his place today.

Reformed Churches Want Single Unit

CARDIFF, Wales, June 23.—(AP)—The adoption of a single creed which would embody the fundamental basis and unite all denominations for the reform church into a single strong unit was urged at the opening session today of the 12 quadrennial council of reform churches by the president, Rev. John McNaugher of Pittsburgh.

He spoke freely on the points, saying the church needed this bold, definite step to bring it solidarity as a world power. He urged the council to recommend adoption of "a common statement of faith for the reformed churches more distinct than the old creeds, less extreme than the reformed creeds, but one which would absorb the best of the West minister confession and other similar creeds.

MAN AND GIRL DISAPPEAR.

Note Left Behind States They Were to Kill Themselves.

SANDUSKY, Mich., June 23.—Charles Kirkpatrick, 35, superintendent of Sunday schools at McGregory and married, and Ruby Bopra, 17-year-old daughter of a farmer, have disappeared, leaving a note declaring they intended to kill themselves because they were not free to marry.

The supposition is that they have drowned themselves in Lake Huron as the notes were found in Kirkpatrick's abandoned automobile at Forrester on the lake shore in a boat house from which one boat was found to be missing.

TEXAS-OKLA. COTTON TRADE TO INCREASE

Lower Freight Rates To Have Beneficial Effect

DALLAS, June 23.—The cotton movement from Texas and Oklahoma this year will probably equal or even surpass that of last season was the opinion expressed by a number of speakers before the annual cotton meeting of the car service division of the American Railway association here today. Nearly 150 representatives of the cotton industry, transportation and traffic officials attended. The meeting was presided over by J. Lee West of the Dallas Cotton exchange.

Opinons Divided.

Opinion seemed pretty well divided as to the effect of recent freight rate reductions ordered by the interstate commerce commission on cotton from Oklahoma to New England by way of Texas gulf ports. While the reduction will be about four cents a hundred pounds, it was said, charges in this direction may be about equalized with rail rates from Oklahoma to New England, because of marine insurance and other charges, it was declared.

Some Increase Seen.

Some increase in cotton movement through gulf ports over Texas railroads was anticipated, however, as a result of the reductions.

Efforts toward heavier loadings of freight cars will be made this year, it was announced.

Manager Dalzelle of the Houston cotton exchange assured the conference that gulf ports have ample facilities for handling any reasonable increase in cotton movement this year.

BUSINESS HEALTHY IF NOT ACTIVE

If not presently very active, business remains at least decidedly healthy, as is shown by collections on the federal income tax and statistics on our foreign trade. Tax money has poured into the treasury in such copious amounts that it is now estimated that the end of the fiscal year on June 30, will see collections reach the total of $1,775,000,000. With this sum in sight, it is confidently predicted that receipts will exceed the estimate made prior to the beginning of the fiscal year by more than $100,000,000. This is good news for the taxpayers, who are looking for a substantial reduction of their obligations when congress convenes in December. And it is no less encouraging to business.

The magnificent contributions of business to government support is shown in other operations of the income tax besides ordinary collections. Refunds on tax payments, which indicate large amounts paid in, reached by June 1 the handsome sum of $132,000,000. Though this represents a loss to the treasury, it indicates with what generosity business is able to meet its tax obligations. An increase in payments on back taxes which are expected to offset this loss to a considerable extent, serves to further deepen the impression of the ability of business to supply the government with necessary funds.

Our foreign trade for May shows a favorable balance of $42,000,000. The outflow of gold does not seriously subtract from this figure. We lost something less than $2,000,000 on this account. Exports and imports of the precious metal more nearly balanced than they have for any recent month. This year's excess of gold exports over imports amounts to but $112,274,691, as compared with an excess of imports over exports for 1924 of $381,905,595. We have so far lost but about one-third of the gold we gained last year, and with indications of approaching balance there is no need to fear that our exports will prove a drain upon our bank vaults.

The May figures for our foreign trade exceed by substantial increases those for the same month last year. Exports were $370,000,000 as compared to only $335,098,701, imports were $328,000,000 compared to $302,987,701, or a difference in the whole volume of trade of nearly $60,000,000. Though May of this year registers such gains over May, 1924, al the months since last November showed larger imports than May. But this is not a discouraging indication. The last month of spring is admittedly dull in comparison with winter and early spring months. That last May was so much better than May, 1924, and yet worse than the preceding months back to November, 1924, is proof that business this year has every chance to equal, if not exceed, its record of last year.

In denying the report that he would accept an offer of $50,000 a year from the New York World to write on political and humanitarian subjects, Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York said: "I can't plan on what I'll do a year ahead. I'm lucky to be able to plan from week to week." This indefinite answer, which was later followed by the governor's flat denial that he was contemplating retirement from politics, is much more applicable to the presidential campaign in 1928 than to the acceptance of a position with a metropolitan newspaper.

If Governor Smith cannot plan a year ahead, he cannot plan three years ahead. Yet it is certain that he would not refuse a second opportunity to be the democratic nominee. He came close to the coveted goal in the national convention of 1924. He desires the honor of party standard bearer now just as much as he did then. His self-elimination for the sake of party unity puts him in a better position for the honor than he was before. However, he has added to his prestige by scoring fresh successes in New York state politics.

Undoubtedly Smith is disposed to watch his chances, and to profit by any favorable turn of events. Just at present he is the most conspicuous democrat in the country. But he is under the disadvantage that he has another year to serve as governor of New York—another year to maintain his prestige in active conflict with determined foes. And after that, the public may forget him unless he wins another political office or holds some other prominent position. He would have a very slender chance for the presidential nomination in 1928 if he were in private life, and he can hardly continue to serve as governor of New York after the expiration of his present term, which is his fourth.

CHILDREN OF LUCK.

There are children of luck under Texas skies. Tom Noan of Crockett county paid $16.00 about a year ago for a lease on 160 acres in the Reagan field. He sold the lease the other day to the Marland Oil company for $45,000.00 in cash and $45,000.00 in oil. Was it luck or was it business acumen.

Gordon Ingalls floated an oil company at El Dorado, Ark. His brother, Robert, was his partner. Federal agents of the department of justice said the Ingalls stock was worthless, and the brothers were indicted, convicted and sent to Leavenworth penitentiary. Gordon had to serve a two-year term and Robert a year and a day. Robert was released a year ago and returned to Arkansas to work the lease. Gordon was released last week and returned to Texas.

Just before he had finished his term, oil was struck on the project at El Dorado. Recently a section of the land was sold by the Ingalls brothers for $250,000, and the newspaper correspondents say that pay liquid continues to ooze from the Ingall soil at El Dorado.

Was the Ingalls stock fraudulent. Were the brothers crooks. They said they had their leases and the land. They were convicted and served their terms. Now they have wells on their lands. Now they are said to be on the way to become millionaires.

Will millions of money wipe out the prison record Were they justly or unjustly convicted by a jury of their peers. Are they creatures of luck or creatures of circumstance. Tom Nolan got his without an effort. He put up $16.00 and raked in $90,000.00. It was a gamble, it was a piker bet. but the gambler and [illegible]

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

"WHERE MEN ARE MEN."

The theory expounded in a certain type of novel, and carried along in the movies than manhood is a matter of geography is rather irritating to those who happen to live in the great centers of population.

There is no doubt that the open spaces produce fine types of manhood.

But a man is no more likely to be a man because he lives and works sixty miles from the nearest railroad than if he happens to be in the exact center of a metropolis, or to earn his living on the bridge of a transatlantic steamer.

The men who happen to be men are men everywhere.

They go into the game with the easy give and take born of self-confidence.

They help others when they can; they pity suffering and lift up the fallen.

You will find them on the plains, and you will find them in Glasgow or New York or London or Singapore. It is what they have got in them that makes them men—not what particular locality they happen to live in.

Mr. A. Neil Lyons of London has written a book about the slums of that city in which you will find as much manhood and unselfishness as you will in any movie tale of the great open spaces.

In Barrie's story "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" there is just as much fine character portrayed as in any story of the western United States.

Let us say nothing to disparage the cowboy who is a fine type of man, or to belittle the miner of the Bret Harte type.

They stand out because they live in an environment unfamiliar to most people and are particularly interesting for that reason.

But on the crowded East Side of New York you will find people whose characters are just as rugged, who are just as much proof against temptation to do wrong, and just as willing to lift up a fallen brother from the gutter and set him on the right road.

All men were men when it was necessary for those of many nations to combine and fight a common enemy in a great war. We sometimes forget that, now that the war is done, but it was clearly in our minds at the time.

And men are men in business, in the factory, in the store, at sea, everywhere still, capable of heroism when it is called for, calmly facing danger for others, and constantly making sacrifices of their own comfort and convenience for the sake of those they love.

And the same thing is true of all countries and in all lands, for widely as we differ in outward appearance we are pretty much the same underneath.

Rascals and cheats abound in every clime, but always the novelist or the playwright can find in real life the heroes he needs to battle with them and finally confound them.

People in sparsely settled communities may be more breezy, less cautious with strangers and more picturesque in costume, but down deep inside them they are of much the same fiber.

The good are no better and the bad are no worse than the human beings who have their habitation in the slums that shelter swarming thousands of their kind, or in the thickly settled rural districts of the more populous countries of the world.

Manhood is a matter of character, not of locality.

THE RIFFIANS ACCOMPLISHING THEIR PURPOSE.

In an official communication issued at Fez, French headquarters in Morocco, Abd-el-Krim, chief of the Riffian tribesmen, is practically conceded to be accomplishing his purpose. Rebel attacks are said to be increasing and rebel propaganda to be growing more intense. Multiplication of local attacks is enabling the Riffians to organize the territory which they have occupied, and their propaganda is having its intended effect of causing other tribesmen to join the revolt.

Abd-el-Krim is thus gaining new adherents while his hold on his own tribesmen is not appreciably lessening, although the French assert that the latter are growing weary of strife. As an organizer of armed revolt and as a political leader Abd-el-Krim is certainly gaining in influence. He is no less in the ascendent as an active campaigner. His plan of a series of small attacks, sudden and unforseen, is meeting with almost perfect success. The French are not able to anticipate just where they will be struck. When the blow falls it is not met with sufficient resistance; the defenders can hardly help giving ground and when they seek to repair their losses their opponents melt away as swiftly as they came.

The Riffians are showing themselves masters of defense as well as of attack, for where the French venture too far in trying to find the enemy they encounter stubborn resistance with the risks decidedly unequal. Both in defense and attack the French are apt to be the losers. They cannot well prepare themselves against assault, and where they attempt an aggressive movement of their own they soon discover that any progress won is purchased by disproportionate losses. So far theirs has been a waiting game, patching up defense where they have been impaired and making but slight gains to stiffen their resistance.

WHERE BANKING PAYS.

George F. Baker, dean of Wall Street bankers, is 93. He is the principle stockholder of the First National bank of New York. According to the Wall Street Financial Journal, George F. Baker founded the bank 50 years ago. It was not rich enough for years to join the New York Clearing House association.

At the first of the year 1925, it was estimated that the 1924 earnings of the bank amounted to more than $16,000,000.00 net, which represented a rate of 160 per cent on the capital stock, which amounts to $10,000,000.00 par value. Total resources of the bank are $378,000,000.00, and its surplus and undivided profits $68,000,000.00.

It has paid 100 per cent dividends on stock in the last 12 months and on the last dividend payment the stock advanced $140.00 per share in price with none for sale.

George F. Baker is said to be one of the wealthy men of America. He isn't a billionaire but his holdings are said to have a value of a half billion dollars. He is only 93 and there is no telling what he will be worth if the Lord permits him to reach a ripe old age.

WEALTH OF AMERICA.

Taxable personal incomes in America in 1923 amounted to $28,336,000,000.00, or almost $5,000,000.00 more than the 1922 total. On July 1, 1923, returns were filed by 6.94 per cent of the citizens of the United States, while in 1922 the proportion was 6.2 per cent. Incomes in the class of $1,000,000 and over in 1923 numbered 74, the highest point since 1917, and the third highest in the history of American income tax collections, the number in 1916 having been 206.

Sixty-seven persons reported incomes of $1,000,000.00 or more in 1922. The 74 who had incomes in excess of $1,000,000.00 in 1923 paid a total of $35,788,000.00 in taxes. The incomes class from $2,000 to $5,000 continued in 1923 to be more than half, numerically, of all the government tax providers, and all three classes within these limits showed increases as compared with 1923.

It is not true, according to these figures, that the very rich evade income tax payment while the [illegible]

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

Cancer

The planetary aspects of today are more favorable for the emotions than for business or professional enterprise. In fact, in so far as ordinary commercial pursuits are concerned, the influences are adverse, as the feeling engendered will prompt a yielding impulse that is not compatible with ultimate success, and might eventually lead to loss and disappointment. It is not advisable, under such conditions, to listen too carefully to any new propositions, or to loan money. In the other sphere of life—the intimate and tempermental—all the signs indicate thta there will be experienced a strong urge to heal indifferences, and forgive wrongs, and incidents that caused annoyance or anger will be forgotten and overlooked. This atmosphere will promote the prosecution of love suits, and advantage should be taken, if so desired, of this most propitious opportunity for "plighting love."

A girl born today will be healthy and strong, and, by her vivacity and charm, radiates happiness and love. She promises to enjoy a fair degree of Pulchritude, and will, in any walk of life, show gentleness of disposition, firmness of character, and a careful outlook of life that neither loss or disappointment will weaken. She is destined to be a good doughter, affectionate wife, and a wonderful mother. A boy born today will, however, not be so productive of either pride or contentment. He will suffer much from illness during youth, which will react on his disposition, and render him impatient and querulous. He will be studious and painstaking. but will generally prefer the seclusion of his own society to the companionship of others.

If today is your birthday, you possess a strong and dominating personality, although, by no means an attractive one. You are very determined and in order to secure your ends, more ruthless than considerate. You are self-opinionated, and by your stubborness and inability to yield gracefully, have an unfortunate knack of standing in the way of your own success, as well as of putting yourself in a wrong light. If you are misjudged, and, at least, think you are, the fault is yours and not that of those of whose criticism you complain.

In order to attain that success, for which you both long and strive, it is necessary to cultivate caution, both in speech and action. It is not always polite to assert your own particular views in order to assure yourself of an individual, but a transitory, triumph. Silence is golden. Speech is often costly.

Irrigation

LACK OF KNOWLEDGE A CAUSE OF FAILURE.

It used to be that the only study that was made of an irrigation project preparatory to building it was to ascertain by surveys how much land could be irrigated and how much it would cost to irrigate it.

Such questions as transportation, soil conditions, marketability of the crops which could be raised, and other factors of vital importance to the farmer were entirely omitted or overlooked.

It was assumed that if water was made available for tillable land on which a farmer could grow crops that he would pay out from the sale of the stuff produced. The solution of all other than that of immediate finance and engineering were left for the man on the land to solve. That he did not solve them is proved by the hundreds of irrigation failures all over the west.

The fact that some soils were alkaline and others under laid with hard pan was of but little consideration. Even if the soil was deep and fertile and crops grew luxuriantly little thought was given to the problem of marketing.

Yet over production with lack of transportation facilities and available markets was the cause of many failures. No matter how good the crop if it cannot be sold or converted into money at all. Land which did not produce anything cost but little to handle, but growing a crop always means expense and labor and if not sold means a serious loss to the grower.

Lack of knowledge was the basic cause of many failures in the early irrigation projects.

Canton Consul Clears City to Prevent Possible Trouble.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The American consul at Canton has ordered Americans to leave that city because of anti-foreign agitation, according to a cablegram received today by the board of missions of the Presbyterian church from the secretary in China, O. N. McMillen.

HOW IT STARTED

Calling Them "Dragoons."

The word "dragoon" is now familiar in military parlance in this country as the name of a soldier, usually a cavalryman, heavily equipped. And our dictionary sanctions its use as a common noun. Yet it comes to us directly from an English regiment, the Dragoons. The origin of the term in its first application to English troops, holds a colorful tale.

"Dragoon" is a corruption of "dragon"—the dragon on the standard of the regiment. It was applied originally because of the short gun which these soldiers carried in earlier times, the spouting forth of whose fire was compared by the populace to fire belching dragons!

While it is true that dragoons have appeared on the standards of armies since ancient times, the naming of the regiment which has popularized the word "Dragoon" was inspired by the fire of its principal weapon, which, by the way, can be seen in museums to-

Blows Up Powder House to Prevent Capture By Riffs

PARIS, June 23.—(AP)—A dispatch to the Intransigeant from Fez, French Morocco, says that Second Lieutenant Lapeyre with six Senegalese soldiers, the only survivors of his original garrison of 22 men, blew up his blockhouse on the Franco-Moroccan frontier on June 14 rather than be taken alive or surrender to the beseiging Riffians of Abd-el-Krim's forces.

He had held the post for eight days against the tribesmen. His two cannon had finally been silenced by the enemy. He had repeatedly asked for help, but no rescue party had arrived and the enemy was closing in. The lieutenant flashed a final report by heliograph and then touched off the powder magazine of his blockhouse.

Pennsylvania Has Bad Forest Fire

WARREN, Pa., June 23.—(AP)—A forest fire described by officers of the federal forestry office as the most destructive that has visited this section this summer, has swept over a mile and a half of woodland in Elk county today and was spreading to adjacent tracts of green timberland.

The fire was centered in the operations of the Pennsylvania Lumber company and has destroyed four of the company's lumber camps and about 1,000,000 feet of cut logs.

WANT RAIDING IMMUNITY.

Chinese in Paris Raise Technical Point Regarding Disturbance.

PARIS, June 23.—The raid of Chinese on the legation here Sunday when Minister Tcheng-Loh was forced to sign documents expressing approval of the anti-foreign movement at Home, has raised a point of law as regards extra territoriality. The implicated Chinese say that if they committed any crime in entering the legation it was committed in extra territorial precincts and that the French law therefore does not apply to it.

The Chinese legation, however, does not occupy the entire building and the French authorities are determined not to heed this technical point despite the minister's wish to let the matter drop. It is also said they will expel from the country all Chinese found to be undesirable.

The prefect of police estimates the number of Chinese in France at 2,000, half of them in Paris. Of those in the capital 600 are workers and 400 students.

"A-r. Shut Y'face, Y'look Undressed!"

More Truth Than Poetry

GONE, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

There was once a daring driver who believed that some fine day
With a speeding locomotive he'd dispute the right of way;
He would just step on the throttle, then he'd airily look back,
And observe the shattered fragments of the engine by the track.
Then he'd smile with satisfaction as along the road he tore—
There once was such a driver; but there isn't any more.

There was once a gay young fellow whose delight it was to gloat
At the other folks' annoyance while he stood and rocked the boat.
"Aren't you sorry," he would cackle, "that you never learned to swim,"
Then he'd lean upon the gunwale till it met the water's brim,
Never did he seem to worry lest the craft should be upset.
There once was such a fellow—they are dragging for him yet.

There was once a genial party who set out upon a shelf
Beer and wine and gin and whiskey—all of which he made himself.
And when thirst descended on him he would lift the brimming cup—
A proceeding he continued till he drank the stock all up.
"Liquor's liquor," he would chuckle as he served some to a guest—
There once was such a party, but they've laid him to his rest.

There was once a portly person who was wont to stow away
Oysters, soup and fish and beefsteak for his luncheon every day,
He would do the same at dinner and at twelve o'clock at night
He would drop in at a dance hall for a little added bite;
But at forty-five or fifty he had eaten all he could—
And the handsome floral tributes didn't do him any good!

Through A Woman's Eyes

Beating Ourselves.

Paavo Nurmi, the great Finn, who breaks athletic records as a steam roller shatters a toy balloon, runs his races with a watch in his hand. He does not worry about what the other runners are doing; he is timing himself. He knows what he can do and he wants to beat his own record, to do better than he did the time before. He does usually, and, of course wins the race.

I knew a girl once, starting her career as a typist, used to keep a clock before her. No, it wasn't to see that she got out on time. It was to time herself. She found she could type a certain number of letters in an hour. She each hour furnished a competition with the one before. She was beating her own record. Today that girl is no longer a typist, but one of the best known woman executives in the country.

If we keep on beating our own records we are bound to soar high. If we just do each day a little better than the day before, the sky is the limit in the achievements which may be ours.

It seems, on first thought, to be impossible that a cent a day doubled should, in one month, become over a million dollars. Yet it is true. And cumulative effort, persisted in, sometimes produces results no less astounding.

If, like Paavo Nurmi, who in every contest races first against his own record, we try constantly to beat ourselves, we are sure before long to come out winners.

Artist-Crook Back To Answer Charges

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 23.—(AP)—John Wesley Dekay, financier, gun runner and playwright, was back here today to answer a federal indictment for bank looting after eluding justice for 12 years. He was brought from London yesterday by department of justice agents. In 1913 indictments were returned against him and four others or misapplying $200,000 of the defunct Atlantic National bank here. Two of the four have since served penitentiary sentences.

After fleeing Dekay was first heard from as a defendant in a suit in London in 1914 through which a firm of jewelers tried to recover $15,000 for gems bought on credit. His secretary, a Miss Elliott, testified that most of his money had been spent entertaining Mme. Barnhardt, who was then playing in Dekay's "Judas."

Clay County Crop Conditions Poor

HENRIETTA, June 23.—Owing to the protracted drouth in the spring, Clay county's small grain crop is very light. However, since harvest, some farmers say it is much better than at first thought. The indications are that what was lost in the grain crop will be made up in the cotton crop. Good reports are coming in from all parts of the county. On the large farm of August Bevering, who has extensive farming interests in the north part of the county around Charlie, the report comes that there have been cotton blossoms for about 15 days and many bolls are now forming. Mr. Bevering is a citizen of Henrietta and plants a large acreage in cotton every year.

SUB ROSA

"Not My Fault at All."

"Truy I'm in the most uncomfortable position when I go to see Kate," Sally confided to her best chum. "She's so crazy about John, she thinks everyone else in the world wants to vamp him, and she's suspicious of me from the moment I enter the house to the time I leave. And I can't help it if John likes me. He thinks it's fun to kid me about the boys, and he likes to dance with me, because we always danced well together, long before he knew Kate. It's natural that he should pay me some attention, and if he likes me better than Kate thinks he should, that's not my fault at all."

Of course the girl chum agreed that Kate was an unreasonable person, and that Sally was misunderstood and deeply wronged by Kate's suspicions.

But I for one don't agree with the girl chum.

You see, Sally likes to flirt a bit, and she also—like every normal girl—glories in making a hit with men—almost any nice man.

So when she goes out to see Kate, knowing full well that John is not unmoved by the sight of a pretty face, she dons her smartest frocks and puts on her merriest air—not of course with any intention of deliberately attracting Kate's husband—just with the age—old instinct of winning admiration from a member of the opposite sex.

This sounds like a harmless enough impulse, but looked at from Kate's point of view the whole matter is not so trivial.

You see, Kate is not as young as she was when she first won John's heart.

Neither is she so slim or so graceful, or so full of pep and sparkle.

Still, she doesn't mind these losses so long as John remains the same, faithful steady husband—as long as John continues to think her quite as nice as she was when they were first married.

And then along comes Sally, with her youth and beauty and sparkle and gayety and Kate watches John brighten up, wear his best clothes, indulge in new neckties and learn the latest dance steps.

With a pang of envy she watches Sally romping about like a happy child, and she contrasts her own rather middle aged rotundity with Sally's slim youth.

It isn't quite fair for Sally for she has all the trumps. Kate has none. Some day Sally will be a wife—and a middle aged one too—and then perhaps she'll realize that Kate's envy and apparent jealousy were something more than petty suspicion.

Then too she will realize that John's liking for her was a little bit her own fault.

Remember this the next time you exclaim aggrivedly to some friend that you can't think why Mrs. So and So appears to dislike you so when you're dancing with her husband.

Don't ever commit the error of saying: "It isn't my fault at all," because usually it is.

Davies Plot Excites Interest In Kansas; He Makes Confession

KANSAS CITY, June 23.—(AP)—Interest in the alleged plot of Charles B. Davies, prominent Concordia, Kan., man to kill his wife, shifted to Kansas City today where seven alleged gangsters named by Davies as involved in the plot, were arraigned on charges of assault with intent to kill on warrants from Concordia. All entered pleas of not guilty and six of them were sent to jail in default of $10,000 bond each.

Makes Confession.

Davies confessed yesterday to County Attorney Leon W. Lundblade of Cloud county, Kansas, that he had hired Walter J. Moseley, alleged Kansas City gangster, to kill Mrs. Davies, paying $2,000 with the promise of $3,000 more after the deed was done. The murder attempt failed and Mrs. Davies recovered after being badly beaten in her bedroom.

The seven arraigned here today were: Mosley, Jack Hayden, Mrs. Mable Kessler, alias Stewart; S. M. Jones, Fred A. (Pat) Bird, James Ray Bryan, a former deputy sheriff, and Lloyd Canfield. All signed extradition waivers except Bird and Jones.

Statements Obtained.

Statements were obtained today by Prosecutor Forrest Hanna from the seven under arrest all denying any direct connection with the attempted slaying.

Two of the other men named by Davies in his confession—Walter J. Emery and Grey E. McNear, are serving prison sentences for other crimes.

A dispatch from Concordia, said Mrs. Davies indicated she will stand by her husband. The story said Mrs. Davies was in an almost frantic state of nervousness and refused to make any statement except to declare that the authorities responsible for the expose "should be ashamed of themselves."

Cellar Inhabitants Rise Up and Rout Tannermen, 9 To 5

Lone Texan Remains In Collegiate Net Tourney

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

HOUSTON GAINED A GAME ON FORT WORTH, BUT IT DOESN'T MEAN ANYTHING.

Lowly cellarites took advantage of Tanner's mangled flinging corps and the Spudders were counted out in the fourth straight at Boomont Tuesday.

And maybe that doesn't mean anything either. Not if the magnates follow annual custom and split the race, about the Fourth.

Buddy had hoped to use Bob Osborn against the Shippers yesterday, but was forced to let Winn and Sutherland do the chunking.

Maybe Bob Today. N

Probably be Bob this afternoon. Two more afternoons in the Exporting territory and then to Houston for a pair.

Opposition to Split?

We see by the papers that Santone, Houston, Waco, and of course, Fort Worth probably will vote against halving the season.

That would go hard with everybody but Cowtown. Bob Ankerman, Buff secretary, avers a split would hurt patronage at the Houston park. Seems pretty far fetched. Splitting the season has never cut league attendance yet, and the split is about all that's kept the Texas league going the past few years.

WHY WACO?

If it be true that Waco will vote against the move it's not because Waco figures its attendance will be helped either way. The Cubs stand as much chance of coming out of the second division as does Okmulgee of winning the National league pennant. Waco fans, at least, the dyed-in-the-wool fans, fully realize this. Split or no split, the race will be all the same for the Brazos river village.

Wacoans probably have listened to the yearly wail of near-sighted sports writers to effect splitting the season's "bush league business," and similar such chirps. And since a split, on the face of it, would benefit Waco in no way, some of the boys are hearkening to the chants of those scribes who belittle such a move. And it is possible may bring enough pressure to bear on Waco baseball powers to cause a vote against a division.

San Antonio may be against the split, as it has been rumored, but we can't see exactly the wherefore and why. Houston couldn't gain enough games on Fort Worth between now and the time for a split to make it advantageous in the games won and lost column for the Buffs should there be no split.

When one team jumps out front year after year and leads the pack with apparently no trouble whatsoever, there are two things to do. One is build teams that can cope with the leader. The other is split the season. So far the first has not been accomplished.

A split would be fair to the fans as well as the team owners. It would add at least temporary zest to the race. There wouldn't be that forlorn feeling about this time every year in seven other Texas league cities: "Well, the Cats are at it again. Our nine doesn't stand a chance of overtaking 'em."

Ought to Divide Majors!

"Bush league stuff!" And after all the Texas league is a "bush" league For that matter, as none other than the great Mr. J. Will Gray, illustrious Spudder secretary, puts it: "It certainly would pep up the major league races themselves if the season was split yearly." Why not?

Leo Grabs Applause.

Leo Baldwin, Wichita Falls athlete extraordinary who entered Texas university the past fall as a freshman, is still receiving bouquets. Our friend Floyd Gregory, sports editor of the Austin Statesman, observed at length yesterday on the 1925 grid prospects of Baldwin, King of Austin, and Max Saxon, another promising youngster. Many Longhorn grid followers, says Gregory, are expecting this trio to beat out several of the letter men for regular backfield berths on the Orange and White eleven this fall.

Gregory's comment: Leo Baldwin, Mack Saxon and Rufus King, the three most promising members of the 1924 freshman football team, passed their spring term courses at varsity and will be eligible for berths on the '25 orange and white team. "Doc" Stewart, down from Kerrville for the week end, brought the good news. Practically all the other promising freshmen made the scholastic grade. It is probable, however, that two or three letter men of last year will not be eligible to play this coming fall because of failure to pass spring courses.

Baldwin, Saxon and King are certain to see enough service in '25 to earn their letters in football. Many fans believe that the three, along with Stuart Wright, the Longhorn captain, will make up the regular varsity backfield. However, Fred Thompson and "Rosy" Stallter will have much to say about what players shall compose the regular backfield.

Expect Much of Leo.

Probably more is expected of Leo Baldwin than of King or Saxon, but it is entirely possible that King, former Austin high captain, will prove the greatest football player of the three. Certain it is that King, before completing his career at varsity, will rank with the greatest fullbacks the Southwest conference has produced. The big Austin boy has everything it takes to make a grid star: courage, speed, strength, weight and football instinct. His line plunging this next fall will gain many a yard for "Doc" Stewart's team.

Daily Half Sonnet.

Old Jonathan Jasper McSwat
Tried to hit 'em where the fielders were not;
But the pitcher was strong,
So he hit wild and wrong,
And what the fans said curled his hair into two braids.

"Why," inquires James, "don't you get rhythm in your last line?" Well McSwat didn't have no rhythm.

Once knew an efficiency engineer who always waited for someone else to call his floor going up in the elevator for the conservation of energy.

After reading elsewhere in an expert dissertation that "the baseball must be hit laterally with the bat," our star reporter suggests that it also should be hit with vigor.

Americans Victors In Six Matches At Wimbledon Tourney

Ray Casey of California and John Hennessey of Indianapolis again had easy victories, this time respectively over E. T. Hollins, England, and N. Dicks, England. The Casey-Hollins score was 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 and that in the Hennessey-Dicks match 8-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The four other American survivors of the first round in the men's singles went through the second round with comparative easiness, except Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh, who was forced to his limit to defeat C. G. Eames, England, 2-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the former California girl who now lives in England, accounted for Miss J. E. Brown of England, 6-3, 6-4, in the first round of women's singles.

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)—Chicago made it two straight from Cincinnati today by winning 6 to 5. Mays made his first appearance of the season on the mound for Cincinnati when he replaced Donohue in the seventh inning. Manion Captures Medal Honors In Trans-Mississippi

OMAHA, Neb., June 23.—(AP)—his title as trans-Mississippi golf James Manion of St. Louis defending champion, finished the qualifying round today at the Omaha field club by winning the gold medal. His total score for the 36 holes was 72—78—150, a duplicate of the tally turned in by Walter Murray, also of St. Louis, but the champion won in a play off during a driving rain that drenched all the late finishers.

The rain which had threatened during both days of the qualifying rounds descended in torrents during the last hour of play today and not only soaked the players but drowned the hopes of several who had chances to qualify.

In addition to gaining first and second place, St. Louis carried away third honors through Lawson Watts, who scored the best round today with a par 73, giving him a total of 152. Fourt place at 153 was shared by S. Scott of Wichita, Kan., and Jack Hughes and Fred Vette of Omaha. There was a triple tie for next place among Clarence Wolfe of St. Louis, Lee Herron of Sioux City and Blaine Young of Omaha, who had 154 each.

The scoring was within one stroke of the prediction that it would take 160 or better to qualify and that figures probably would have been the limit except for the heavy rain which made the use of a putter impossible.

The greens were flooded and even some of the cups were under the water so that the players had to use machies on the green.

So, it turned out that five golfers tied at 161 for the last three places and had to play off in the rain.

Busts Two Homers And Single Tuesday

Coyal Francis, the lad pictured above, is not only a sweet keystone sack guardian with the American Refiners in the Twilight league, but yesterday donned his slugging raiment and added heavily in the massacre of Dub Davis' Ludlam and Riggs nine, a game the Americans won, 24 to 0. Francis busted two home runs and a single out of three trips to the plate, technically speaking. Three for three is mighty good, but to pole a pair of non-stoppers and a one-baser, a total of nine bases, is something that won't happen but once in a coon's age in any mans' league.

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

When and how, in playing a stymie should a putter be used. Under what circumstances should other clubs be used for the stymie shot? Describe the correct methods for playing the stymie.

Answered
By BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

The correct club to use for stymie playing is a mashie-niblick or niblick not too heavy. This is for close-up stymies. An ordinary mashie should be used when both balls are over six feet from the hole and within 15 inches of each other.

When a mashie-niblick or niblick is being used the club should be held firmly in the fingers of both hands. Do not take too long a swing. Short, sharp strokes get the best results.

A putter should never be used for stymie play except when the slope of the green allows for "borrow."

CANNEFAX SUSPENDED.

New Yorker Loses to Hoppe and Then Slashes Table Cloth.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Robert E. Cannefax of New York, three-cushion billiard champion, today was suspended by the national three-cushion billiard league for one year as a result of his conduct in a recent game with Willie Hoppe of Chicago.

Cannefax, after losing to the balk line billiard title holder, slashed the cloth on the billiard table with a pocket knife, causing Hoppe to refuse to continue the match. The suspension means that Cannefax will not be eligible to play in the league next season.

Kirk, Barnes and Smith Qualify for British Open Play

TROON, Scotland, June 23.—Numbered among the 81 players who have qualified for the British open championship are MacDonald Smith, Jim Barnes and Joe Kirkwood, American professionals, whose aggregate scores in the two qualifying rounds were well up with the leaders.

Kirkwood had 153, Smith 154 and Barnes 155.

All the well known foreigners are also among those who earned the right to try for the cup when the battleground shifts on Thursday from Troon to Prestwick, three miles down the Ayreshire coast.

Moses O'Neill, lanky Irishman from the Robinhood club of Dublin, had the lowest score, 146—71 for the first round yesterday and 75 today. Only one stroke behind him was the professional of the St. Cloud club, near Paris, Aubrey Boomer, a native of the channel islands, birthplace of several celebrated golfers of the older generation, among them Harry Vardon and Edward Ray.

In a tie with Boomer for second place were Ernest May and Arthur Compston, both British pros.

SAN ANTONIO 9; DALLAS 8

SAN ANTONIO, June 23.—Five pitchers were hammered to all corners of enlarged Bear field in a free for all slugging match in which the Bruins came out on the long end of a 9 to 8 score, in the opening game with the Dallas Steers Tuesday. Drives that formerly went for home runs with the close-in fences proved easy outs, although Miller and Warwick got the range on the left field fence and each put one over. It was Warwick's homer that started a rally in the sixth when the Bears scored six runs to overtake a five-run lead. The Steers used four pitchers in this round to stop the bombardment. Jack Tesar blew up suddenly and Russell Pence followed with Lefty Shuman going the same route, when Lou North took the hill and stopped the Bears. The Steers got their lead off Buck Winters in the opening round and increased it on Bob Couchman when Frank Watt went in and stopped them in the fourth. Bear field is now the largest park in the Texas league. The score:

Americans Run Over Clothiers

REFINERS GRAB EASY CONTEST TO 24-0 TUNE

Francis Slams Two Home Runs—Christians And Horton One

American Refiners had to take their spite out at someone for the championship ball game they dropped Monday at Spudder park to Texhoma, and it fell to Ludlam and Riggs to be the team to get smothered under a 24 to 0 score Tuesday afternoon on the Twilight diamond. Bill Andree, Coyote star, was the heaver that kept the Davis clan well in check while his mates hammered everything that looked like it was coming over the plate, and some that didn't.

Coyal Francis collected a pair of home runs in three trips to the plate as well as a single. Christian hammered out four hits in four times at bat, including a home run and a double. Horton also hit a home run.

Horton made a spectacular catch of Fat Mathis' foul in the first. Tank took the ball on a dive and turned a complete flip before coming up with the horsehide. Powell, Ludlam and Riggs second sacker, made a neat play on Medford's line drive through the box. Powell took the ball over second base with a back handed catch to retire the side in the third.

Coyal Francis' first home run with Andree on the paths netted the first two scores of the Americans in opening round.

Clothiers Threaten.

Ludlam and Riggs threatened to score in the second. Singles by Powell and Shaw put runners on first and third, and one away. Smith hit to Andree who trapped Powell between third and home. A. Davis fanned for the final out of the inning.

A big attack was launched in the second by the Americans. Cannon grounded out short to irst for the first out. Ckeen walked and Horton was hit by a pitched ball. Curley Christian poled his first hit when he doubled to left scoring Skeen and sending Horton to third. Windham walked and Andree doubled to center and sent three men over the rubber. Medford singled to left scoring Andree. Francis stopped one with his ribs, and Gordon walked. Cannon doubled down the third ase line scoring Medford and Francis. Skeen fanned and Horton grounded out.

Ten In Third.

Ten counters were shoved over in the third. Christian's second hit, followed by singles by Windham and Ahdree filled the hassocks. Medford fanned. Francis smashed a hot single to center that scored Christian and Windham, and sent Andree to third. Gordon singled to center scoring Andree, and sending Francis to third. Cannon singled to center scoring Francis and sending Gordon to third. Skeen singled to right scoring Gordon, and sending Cannon to third. Horton dropped a Texas Leaguer in center scoring Cannon and sending Skeen to third. Christian scored Skeen and Horton with a home run over the centerfielder's head. An error in centerfield, and a stolen base netted the final run of the Refiners club, when Andree stole home.

Christian engineered a double play that nipped a rally in the fourth for Ludlam and Riggs when he took Powell's grounder in time for the play.

Francis' second home run, two singles and Horton's homer, a single, an error and a double netted the five that climaxed the Americans' performance in the fourth.

The Wildcat Is Coming Back

MONTE.

Wildcat Monte is coming back! The hard-fighting little Amarillo junior lightweight who took 'em all into camp last year and created quite a furore in Wichita Falls fistic circles for a period and then slumped, has been stepping speedier than ever over the span of the past two months.

He returns to the Wichita Falls ring Thursday in a special six-round event with Joe Bernard of Seattle. Monte's bout goes on at the Legion arena just before the main go between Speedy Sparks and Vicente Aguilar. There is to be another six-rounder between Blas Rodrigues and Young Pancho of Dallas.

Since April Monte has knocked out Rusty Cahill in eight rounds, taken Dick Bowers to a pair of lacings, grabbed a decision over Nick Gundy, beat Frankie McFarland and knocked out Dusty Dale at Okmulgee just this past week-end.

Heretofore, Monte apparently didn't take the game any too seriously, but since his recent marriage has buckled down to business and right now has a wonderful outlook as a fighter. He rates as the best at his weight in the southwest, many fans believe.

Arnold asked a new trial after his first conviction and his motion was granted. At his hearing before Judge J. B. Keith here yesterday he entered a plea of guilty and was given the indeterminate sentence.

At the first trial in Palo Pinto county the state introduced evidence to the effect that Arnold and another youth held up and robbed the male escort of a girl, tied him to a tree and assaulted the girl. A week later there was another similar case reported.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 23.—(AP)—The cotton market was comparatively quiet today and prices fluctuated within a narrow range. The early trend of prices was reactionary, mainly on map indications of possible rain in the western belt and owing to continued liquidation of the July position in advance of the first notice day which more or less influenced the later positions. In the late trading the market rallied quite sharply and at one time prices were 14 to 15 points above yesterday's closing and although there was a slight recession at the end, the close showed net gains of 5 to 10 points on new crop months but with July 20 points net lower.

At the start the market was a shade easier on lower Liverpool cables than due and first trades showed no change to 5 points decline. While the July position broke 20 points during the morning to 23.20, new crop months were steadier. October trading at 22.77 and December at 22.88, the market ruled very quiet around mid-session with prices fluctuating within the earlier range but in the early afternoon advices having shown that it was still dry and hot in Texas shorts started to cover freely and prices were forced up to new highs for the day with October at 23.04 and December at 23.15.

The first notice day for July delivery will be June 25 and it is expected that traders will be large both here and in the northern market. The certified stock here has shrunk to 38,171 bales.

A private authority condition report today made the average 75.1 per cent of normal against its own average of 77.5 issued May 22. The acreage was estimated at 45,150,000 and the indicated crop 14,000,000 bales.

Exports today totaled 10,190 bales.

PORT SUDAN, Egypt, June 23. (AP)—A telegram from Jeddah, to Red sea port for Mecca, the Mohammedan Holy City, says the Wahabi tribesmen who have been beseiging Jeddah evacuated their position Saturday without warning or fighting and are not supposed to be retiring to Hecca.

In January Ibn Saoud, leader of the Wahabi tribesmen, attacked King Ali of the Hedjez and captured Mecca. King Ali fled to Jeddah where the Wahabis laid siege to his forces.

Is Mistaken for Burglar. Shot and Killed as He Fumbled With Door.

COVINGTON, Ky., June 23.—George Beckman, 20, bricklayer, who was afflicted with somnambulism, was shot and killed last night by Ralph Lohre, electrician, under the belief that the sleep walker was a burglar. The coroner believes that when fumbling with the lock on the door of Lohre's home Beckman dreaced that he was at his own house. Lohre fired a shot through the panel of the door, under the impression that a burglar was trying to enter his house.

CROSSES FOR WARNINGS

Mute Appeals to be Placed as Signals to Motorists.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 23.—(AP)—The mute appeal of clusters of white crosses is to be used by the state of Ohio on its highway system in designating point where traffic fatalities have occurred so as to impress upon motorists the necessity of driving carefully. An a proclamation issued tonight by Governor A. V. Donohey the highway department is instructed to begin erecting the crosses July 1, "on the state system at each place where fatalities have occurred—one for each person killed."

Turning rust into metal by an electro-chemical process, the idea of a New York professor, is helping to restore valuable ancient bronzes.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Stock prices drifted lower today although isolated strong spots developed on pool activity. Wall street, in searching about for reasons for the decline, attributed the selling to growing uneasiness over the Chinese situation, stiffening money rates, and reports of diminished steel operations. In other quarters its was regarded as a natural correction of a weakened technical position.

Operators on the long side, while disappointed at the absence of public participation on large scale, found encouragement in President Coolidge's advocacy of lower tax rates in the strength of United States government bonds which was construed as an indication that the new high money rates were only temporary and in higher commodity prices, crude rubber recording a new top price for the year.

Railroad shares generally were sluggish. The Union Pacific report showed a reduction of over $800,000 in gross, although net revenue for May was more than $500,000 above that of the corresponding month last year. Frisco and Nickel Plate showed gains in both gross and net incomes.

Standard industrials yielded to selling pressure, although the net declines as a rule, were small. United States Steel common and Baldwin closed fractionally lower at 114⅞ and 109⅝, respectively. American Can was hammered down more than 3 points to 181⅛.

Further accumulation of General Motors sent that stock up 1 point to a new high record at 81, but it cancelled its gain in the late trading.

United Cigar stores was bid up over 2 points to a new top at 86⅛.

Call money opened at 4 per cent, the highest renewal rate in nearly a month, and heald steady at that figure all day. Time money rates stiffened slightly, 60 to 90-day loans being quoted at 3⅞ to 3¾ per cent instead of on a flat 3¾ per cent basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Who's Who

OLIVER WINDELL HOLMES

The likelihood that President Coolidge will be called on once more to fill a vacancy in the United States Supreme Court and to do so before the next session of congress is being quietly discussed in political and other quarters in Washington.

Retirement of Associate Justice Oliver Windell Holmes of Massachusetts, is talked of as a probability. According to current rumors, he will quit the bench at the beginning of the fall term, about October 1.

Justice Holmes, it is conceded, has richly earned the right to retire. He is 84 years old, was graduated from Harvard in 1861, had a brilliant Civil War record, being three times wounded, and has served on the supreme bench since 1902, when he was appointed by President Roosevelt. In spite of his advanced age Justice Holmes is keen of mind and has long been known as one of the court's hardest workers. Latterly he has seemed not as robust as usual but at the same time he has kept up his end of the judicial duties in a manner to cause younger men to marvel.

In view of the age of Justice Holmes it has been repeatedly rumored in recent years that he would retire. However the work of the bench is becoming increasingly burdensome.

Thus far there is only vague speculation as to who would succeed him. Undoubtedly Democratic leaders would urge on the president the appointment of a democrat, on the ground that the party is entiled to another member on the court. This would bring up such names as those of Senator Underwood and former Senator Shields, of Tennessee. It would be discretionary with the president, however, whether he would name a republican or a democrat.

William Allen, a Civil war soldier, lost his memory at battle of Gettysburg. For years his mind was a blank from that time on though keen on events up to the battle. After 40 years he fell from a horse, in 1903, and his memory was completely restored, according to records recently reviewed.

Amundsen Party To Sail Soon For Olso; Ellsworth Returning

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, Monday, June 22.—(AP) — Roald Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth and the other members of the expedition which recently made an ineffectual attempt to reach the north poe by pairplane from Spitzbergen will sail tomorrow from King's Bay on board the steamer A. W. Selmar for Oslo, Norway. They will take with them the seaplane which brought them back from the Arctic circle to Spitzbergen. The first batch of congratulatory messages, including those from American geographical societies were delivered to Amundsen today.

Ellsworth to Return.

Ellsworth, who only yesterday received the news of the death of his father, James W. Ellsworth, at Florence, Italy, on June 3, after he is said to have given up hope for the safety of his son plans to leave for the United States shortly after his arrival at the Norwegian port.

Amundsen today told the Associated Press that he looked upon the recent expedition as experimental, his dream for years having been to make a flight over the pole, landing in Alaska. For this project he had now gathered much valuable knowledge. He was unable to say when he would undertake the next flight as his plans are yet unformulated. He said he believed land exists near the north pole on the American side which he purposes to discover.

Plane Extricated.

While Amundsen, Ellsworth and other members of the north pole expedition remained resting at Kings Bay, Lieutenant Lutzow Holm of the Norwegian relief expedition and Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, one of Amundsen's pilots went by the steamer Heimdal to North Cape to recover the plane N-25 which was extricated from the ice near the pole and brought the expedition back to Spitzbergen. The plane was found in Brennvin Bay, 150 miles away and was flown back to King's Bay.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"Solution of Food Supply Lies in Organization of Large Farm Groups."

The food supply of the world is falling behind so rapidly in proportion to the growth of population that civilization is already in the first stages of a period when sweeping changes in world agricultural condition must take place, according to England's foremost authority on agricultural economics, Sir Daniel Hall who is now in the U. S. The possibility of the world's population growing so large that there will not be enough land to grow food on is not worrying Sir Daniel. He believes economic conditions will tend toward population control through smaller families. What he is concerned about is the lack of man power to raise the crops.

The organization of huge business units to conduct farming and replace the one-man farms, and the resulting change in the social life of the rural communities which this will entail, is the solution which Sir Daniel forecasts for the world-wide bread-and-butter problem. This reorganization of society will begin within our generation, according to Sir Daniel.

"When the small, independent farmers generally fail to make a go of it," he said, "the capital will see its opportunity and will step in with its advantage of large organization and economical operation. Since 1900 there has been—excepting in the war years—a steady upward trend of food prices. This is likely to increase to a point where capital will not be able to keep its hands off, and then will come the new era of agriculture.

"The general farm depression in this country, combined with the appearance of great farming units such as the beet sugar industry and the western wheat field developments, are evidences of the new trend."

Sir Daniel on Tour.

Sir Daniel recently conducted an inspection tour of the Ames, Cornell, Wisconsin, University of Illinois and New Brunswick, Canada, agricultural schools. He found that the number of agricultural students has fallen off, due to farming depression, but he thinks the rise in wheat prices may remedy this. In these schools Sir Daniel is to place English agricultural students, who will examine American farm education extension methods.

Sir Daniel suggested that the lonely, isolated farms of America may disappear in large extent and give way to towns in the country, where the farm laborers will live and enjoy urban advantages while working for great agricultural corporations who will control the surrounding farm lands. Not all the independent farms will disappear, he thinks, for there will always exist a minority who prefer working for themselves and they will be able to hold out against the tendency to standardization of farm labor.

"The conditions which will bring about this situation already exist," Sir Daniel said. "The lure of high city wages is calling farmer boys. Good transportation is taking them more often to the cities where they fall under the spell. In 1922 in your country there was a total movement away from and to the farms of 3,000,000 people, 2,000,000 of them electing to abandon farming. The bonds which hold people to the soil are loosening, both here and abroad."

Restores Famous Necklace

Too frequent publication of her photograph in Vienna newspapers, Anny Evera, Austrian actress, owes recovery of her famous string of pearls. Monte Scraps Kid Como To Draw Verdict

Wichita Falls Fighter Has All His Old-Time Speed

VERNON, Texas, June 23.—Wildcat Monte of Wichita Falls and Kid Como of Lawton, Okla., fought to a fierce ten-round draw in the local arena tonight. Monte had all his old time speed in the fighting, sending right hooks to the body almost incessantly in the clinches.

Monte carried the fight to Como throughout most of the ten-rounds, and took the eary part of the figut by a large margin. However, Como opened up in the after part of the fight and easily took honors in the eighth and ninth stanzas. Both fighters came back strong in the tenth and gave a good boxing exhibition with honors evenly divided.

Slugging Ralph Parker of Vernon won a decision over Connie Manis of this city in ne of the four-round preliminaries. Parker's slugging is making him a favorite among local fans.

DAWES SPEAKS IN DEFENSE OF SENATE CHANGE

Vice President Appears At Manchester N. H. Chamber

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 23.—(AP)—Excepts of Vice-President Dawes' address, before the Manchester chamber of commerce tonight follows:

"The purpose of a reform in the present senate rules is not to deprive the minority of an opportunity to be fully heard upon every public question or to deprive them of any of their constitutional rights.

"The purpose is to take away from the minority the right to hold up the majority, which continually results in legislative trades and barters not in the interest of the public good,

Secret Barters.

"These barters are made in large part secretly. There is no merit in the claim that the right of unlimited debate and absence of proper cloture bring complete publicity into the business of the senate. On the contrary, it results in the necessity for the majority in secret, time and time again, to buy off the minority or individuals by concessions in legislative transactions, many of which could not endure publicity without reflecting upon the motives of those excavating them.

"Threats to hold up the business of the senate unless concessions are made in legislation in which individual senators have a political interest, have been openly and successfully made on the floor of the senate itself. No one has fore forcibly testified to this evil out of his personal experience than has Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, who says:

"'I had served with your permission for 20 years in the house of representatives. I had been the leader of that body; I was responsible for the legislative conduct of a great party; and I have gone to the conference table with senate amendments on my bill, and convinced a conference—the representatives of the senate in conference—that their amendments were wrong and then they would calmly tell me they would nit yield because a senator So and So would talk the bill to death ir I did not accept his amendment, and with great governmental issues at stake, I have been compelled to accept minor amendments to great bills, that I will not say were graft but they were put there for the purpose of magnifying the importance of one man with his own constituency, at the point of jeopardizing good legislation in America.'

"In the attempt to change the senate rules, we combat one of the deepest instincts of selfish human nature —a desire to retain personal power and prerogatives. Human nature, when there is involved the release of individual power for the common good, is weak.

Power of Filibuster.

"The power of filibustering and of debate without limit of time, made possible under the present defective rules of the senate, has produced such continuous and such serious obstructions to legislation that since May 12, 1910, in 66 instances the majority and minority leaders of the two parties have been compelled to arrange for unanimous consent agreements to enable the consideration of important legislation. This means that they must go like suppliants to every individual member of the senate to get his consent that the majority shall act on important legislation, and consider the conditions in regard to other legislation which the indivdual senator may desre to impose as the price of his agreement.

"It was the great public resentment which was aroused by filibustering in the 63rd congress, during 1914, in an effort of the minority to prevent legislation by the majority which, in my judgment, led to the only serious consideration of reform in these rules which the senate has given in recent years. In that 63rd congress, the River and Harbor bill had been debated for 32 days; the Panama Canal bill for 30 days; the Federal Trades Commission bill for 30 days; the Clayton amendments to the Sherman act for 21 days and the conference report on the Clayton act for 9 days.

"The whole theory of our government is based upon the principle of the power of majorities to act, limited by the checks and balances of the constitution which protect the rieghts of the states and the inalienable rights of men under the old bill of rights, the establishment of which has ever marked the progress of civiligation.

"Those who uphold the cause of reform in the senate rules recognize that the senate and the senate alone has the constitutional right to reform them. So far from making a plea contrary to the spirit of the constitution, their protest is against the usurpation at times by a majority or even one senator of power under senate rules to thwart the rights of the majority to transact business in the manner provided by the constitution.

"The people of this nation believe in their rules under which at times one senator exercises a power greater than the veto power granted by the constitution to the president of the United States; under which at times one senator can render the senate impotent, and under which secret legislative barter is encouraged, which not only modifies the due course of legislative processes, but legislation itself.

"Such a power brings the senate into disrepute, demoralize its orderly procedure, and intereferes with its power to properly act under its constitutional authority. It protects no essential right. It is wrong. It is un-American and, in my judgment, the American people demand that senators abolish it."

15 Buildings Are Destroyed By Fire At Boisser City, La.

BOSSIER CITY, La., June 23.—Fifteen buildings including three residences were destroyed by fire which swept Main street tonight. Owing to the lack of water supply, the fire was fought by bucket brigades hastily formed and working under the direction of the chief of the Shreveport fire department. The loss is conservatively estimated at $100,000.

The fire started in a feed store and destroyed among other buildings the post office, a motion picture theatre and several mercantile establishments. One man was over come by smoke but incurred no serious injury.

It is estimated that 10,000 of the population of Shreveport lined Red river on the Shreveport side, Bossier City being just across the way. Another 10,000 crossed the bridge, causing one of the most serious traffic jams with which the local police have had to contend.

An international mah-jongg tournament will be held at Carlsbad.

Marvin Defeats Cyclone Burns In Ten-Rounder

Carrol Knocks Out Binyon In Sixth—Denton And Bernard Even

Tommy Marvin, Florida heavyweight, won the referee's decision over Cyclone Burns of Hot Springs Tuesday night in the ten-round main event of the weekly fight card staged by the Bruce Cobb post, American legion, at Lake Wichita. Marvin had the better of the going the greater portion of the way. It was a bloody battle.

Jimmy Carroll, Fort Worth, knocked out Speedy Binyon, the oil fields fighter, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-rounder. A hard right to the solar plexus turned the trick.

Jack Denton, Tahoka lightweight, and Joe Bernard of Seattle fought a terrific six-round draw. This bout was by far the best on the program. The little fellows mixed it at a fast clip all the way. Denton won the first three rounds by a goodly margin, but Bernard came back strong in the late rounds and came near putting Jack away. If there should have been a decision, Bernard would have earned it by his big finish.

Willie Gaines and Sundown Slim, negro welterweights, fought four rounds to a draw verdict. Sundown had the edge.

Harry Oden and Leo Voss, a pair of youngsters, were given a draw in a four-round curtain raiser.

Ensign McFarlane, U. S. N., Visits Here

Ensign R. L. McFarlane, U. S. N., was in Wichita Falls for a short time Tuesday on his return from Burkburnett, where he visited with a brother in that city. While here he called on Judge A. H. Carrigan, a classmate of his father in Arkansas, and on Mr. and Mrs. Milton Johnson, parents of Midshipman C. F. Johnson, now in the naval academy at Annapolis from which McFarlane graduated two weeks ago.

He received his commission along with his diploma on completion of the four-year course at the naval academy and is now on furlough which he is passing with his parents at Graham. He will report to the Norfolk navy yard July 1 for duty there and following the return from California of the U. S. S. New York, now on the midshipmen's summer practice cruise, will sail for an extended cruise to South American ports.

Midshipman Johnson is now aboard the New York en route to San Francisco, Seattle and other Pacific coast points.

Fire Causes Damage Of $7,500 Tuesday

Fire believed to have started in the J. L. Huffines grocery store, Tuesday morning shortly after 2 o'clock, spread to the Christi and Son Furniture store adjacent, and caused a total damage of approximately $7,500, inspite of efforts of firemen to stop the flames.

The blaze had gained good headway by the time firemen arrived and it was impossible to save even a part of the furnishings. Three lines of hose were laid on the structures to prevent the spread of the flames. Loss to the furniture store is estimated at $3,000 and $4,500 to the grocery store, most of which was covered by insurance.

DRIVER FUNERAL THURSDAY

Eastern Stars Will Have Charge Of Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Mrs. A. W. Driver, age 71, who died yesterday at 1 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Marion Wilton, will be held Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the Hines mortuary, with the order of the Eastern Star in charge. Interment will be made in the Masonic plot in the Rosemont burial park.

Mrs. Driver was, prior to her death, a prominent member of the Eastern Star, being a past grand of the Provo, Utah, chapter. She is survived by two daughters and two sons, only one of whom lives in this city.

Among the most promising dancers in the Russian ballet season in London this season was Serge Lifar, aged 18, who had a dramatic escape from the bolshevists at Kieff.

"A SCHOOL FOR WIVES"

Strand Offers New Melodrama For Remainder of the Week

Scene from "School for Wives"

A STRAND OFFERING.

In Vitagraph's "School for Wives" Alyce Mills appears as a hotel scrubwoman. It is a role most directors would have awarded to almost anybody, to cut corners on expense, but Victor Hugo Halperin stood out for Alyce Mills and got her. The part, while short, is appealing. Miss Mills had important roles in "The Rag Man," with Jackie Coogan; "The Maker of Gestures," with Richard Dix; "Daughters of the Night," three Westerns with Franklyn Farnum, one of the "Music Master" series with Stephen Collins, and three installments of Benny Leonard's "Flying Fists."

Artists in Demand.

Richard Keith, an artist in the photoplay, is a much sought-after young man. In the course of a few years two girls propose marriage to him and he accepts both—conditionally.

Richard is in love first with Betty Lynch, but because she is rich while he is poor, and her fortune, moreover, is "tainted," he lets her "pop the question." He "yesses" her only on the condition that she will renounce her father's gold, and she agrees.

After the divorce—there is a divorce, unfortunately — Richard is "vamped" by a member of the aristocracy, but this time he is less ready to take a chance, so he imposes a condition which can't be met. This is well for him, for he meets up with Betty again, their differences are reconciled, and there is a remarriage between the same couple.

Tearle Play Role.

The cast has no lack of actors from the spoken drama. Orlando Daly, Gerald Oliver Smith, and Brian Dunlevy were all at the tife of production playing on Broadway. Mr. Daly was appearing in "The Fake," with Conway Tearle's brother, and as Conway Tearle plays the lead in this he thought himself very well acquainted with the Tearle family.

Brian Dunlevy was playing in "What Price Glory?" the play that has enjoyed a remarkable Broadway run, and Gerald Oliver Smith received very favorable comments from the critics on his work in "Lady Be Good," the musical comedy hit.

"Lilies of the Streets" Will Begin At Mission Theatre Sunday

Police records show that no less than 60,000 girls are reported "missing" in the United States in a single year. In New York City alone 4,000 disappeared in 1923. Probably the real number exceeds that, as not all cases are reported. The youngest only ten years old; the oldest twenty-three. The average is seventeen. A great majority of missing girls are still in their teens. Less than ten per cent of them came from criminal environments—the majority being from the better class of homes.

A Man in Case.

The reasons why girls take the terrible chances which they must face, once they have thrown aside the protection of home and the safeguards of social conventions, are so numerous as to defy classification.

All too frequently there is a man in the case, usually one unknown to the girl's parents, and an unfit associate of any girl, according to Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, New York's first policewoman and head of the women police of that city.

In eight years she has handled thousands upon thousands of missing girl cases. From these actual experiences sensational revelations are promised in the realistic and thrilling policefoman's photodrama, "Lilies of the Streets," which comes to the Mission next Sunday.

A strong cast headed by the poplar Virginia Lee Corbin and Johnnie Walker includes Mrs. Hamilton herself, appearing in the picture in her official capacity. The story reveals what happens when a beautiful young girl, daughter in a wealthy family, throws all restraint aside in her search for thrills. She meets and is fascinated by a suave man about town, who loses no time in compromising her, so that she falls a ready victim to a blackmail plot. All the action takes place in New York and the filming of the picture under Director Joseph Leveing was done from actual scenes and locations—from underworld haunts to society mansions, from smart roadside cabarets to low dance halls.

Stage lights in Liverpool's new theatre number 1,000.

Versatile Scientist of the Human Mind to Perform At Palace Today

"I can take each gray hair in your head and tell you what caused it." Such is the startling statement made by Professor Howard R. Whiteside, heralded as the world's greatest scientist of the human mind, who will appear at the Palace theatre as an added attraction both today and tomorrow, making two appearances, one at 8:30 and the other at 9:30 o'clock.

The study of the gray hairs and their causes is known as pubophysoloby, of which Dr. Whiteside claims to be the originator. He will explain in detail how he has studied the hairs and give the reason why the hairs of your head have turned gray.

Handw-iting Reading.

Another art, mastered by the versatile scientist is that of the handwriting reading. He claims, and his audiences have agreed with him, that he can take a specimen of handwriting and analize the mind of the person who wrote it. He can read the love of a man and woman through their handwriting, he can read the story through the different letters.

Professor Whiteside can, according to his followers take the kinds of food you eat and from it analize the trend of your mind. He claims that the mind is affected by the food and that people who like tomatoes have certain peculiarities, while those who eat onions have other peculiarities.

He states that his work is not magic, that there is no slight of hand work connected with it, and that he will do nothing startling other than show true and everyday things about the human mind. He has mastered his lectures so that they are more than entertaining. He promises several practical demonstrations of his work, which he claims will leave but little doubt as to the power of his reasoning.

Spirit Photography.

Another art which the professor claims to be an expert in is that of spirit photography. Under certain conditions he contends that he can photograph in a dark room the features of some unknown person. Sometimes the picture will be recognized by a member of the audience as a relative or a friend. He will demonstrate this work.

In addition to the lectures the Palace management announces a continuance of the musical comedy programs and the film offerings.

IF SICK TODAY!
TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarante that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making your feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.

LAND'S END--By William Almon Wolff

"Whose car is that?" asked Elizabeth.

"Mine. I bought it. For nine hundred and seventy-five dollars."

"What's the matter with it?" Elizabeth knew a good deal about cars.

"Not a thing. I had the engine overhauled—new rings—had the bearings taken up—valves ground. She runs like a new car. Come on."

As one hypnotized, Elizabeth came on. She slipped into the seat beside Pete; the car was a roadster, with a rumble seat behind. Pete stepped on the starter; went into speed, let in the clutch, and backed neatly into an ice peddler's cart. Elizabeth shrieked faintly; Pete, however, was totally unconcerned. He stopped; shifted, and moved forward.

"Last car I drove had a different gear shift," he explained. "Going anywhere in particular?"

"Just home," she said. "Why don't you come and have some tea, Pete? I rather miss you when you're not around."

So he drove her home, and went in, and she made tea, because it was the maid's day out. And in due ,time Elizabeth exploded.

"What's it all about?" she cried. "Pete are you deliberately trying to drive me mad?"

"Why, of course not, Elizabeth," he said mildly. "What's what all about?"

"You—the car—everything! How did you get menoy enough to buy it? Go on. Tell me—"

"Oh!" he said. "That's right—I haven't seen you since it happened, have I? Why, you know, my uncle George—Did I ever tell you about my uncle George"

"You did not! I didn't even know you had one!"

"Well, I didn't know it myself, all the time. Anyhow, he kicked off about a year ago, and didn't leave a will, and I was one of the heirs, and they sent the money on one day, and I wanted to go down on Long Island and paint sand dunes, so I bought the car."

"So that's where you've been!" She sighed—perhaps in relief. "Was it a lot of money, Pete? You didn't blow it all in on the car, did you?"

"O, Lord, no!" He made a wide, [illegible]ansive gesture. "It's quite a lot." [illegible] became himself, for the first [illegible]e since they had met—being now [illegible]y relaxed. "Oh, Elizabeth I don't [illegible]e a cent any more. I—" He [illegible]pped, appalled. "Oh, Lord! I [illegible]rote out all those checks—and I [illegible]aven't got them yet."

Here was the Pete Elizabeth knew and understood. She laughed.

"Never mind, Pete!" she said "They'll be glad enough to get the checks when you do remember. How did the painting go"

"The painting?" he frowned. "Oh, I haven't had time to start yet. Been too busy."

"Busy?"

He explained about the lay-out for Campbell, and the insistence of the other art editors and advertising agencies, and Elizabeth's reason tottered once more upon its throne.

She had been trying for three years aided by his practically continuous insolvency, to make him work one-half as hard as in the last two weeks, with all obvious reasons for working eliminated, he had done of his own free will!

Now that he didn't need any money he had, Elizabeth gathered from her knowledge of his affairs, which was full, made about as much since his inheritance had come as he had ever made before in three months.

Fortunately Denniston came in just then. She would probably have laid violent hands on Pete within two minutes.

For once, Denniston's presence didn't affect Pete at all. He nodded to him. "Hello, Denny," he said. "How's everything?"

Elizabeth nodded, too. She and Denniston never indulged in any display of sentiment before a third person; their kisses, if any. were reserved for moments of privacy.

"I'm very well, thanks," said Denniston.

"How are you, Ashe "

CHAPTER VI.
The Start.

Pete took the question seriously, and gave it some thought.

"Why, I'm all right, I guess," he said. "I drank too much Brevoort coffee the other night, and it kept me awake, though. At least—do you suppose Brevoort coffee would keep any one awake. I always supposed it was the caffein did that, and you only get that in real coffee, don't you? Maybe it's like cigarettes, though; they say it's the paper that hurt's you, not the tobacco. Maybe it's the china at the Brevoort—"

"Idiot!" said Elizabeth and grinned

Denniston just looked puzzled. Elizabeth said something very quickly, so that Denniston couldn't ask how the china could have anything to do with it.

"Well, anyway, I'm all right," said Pete persistently. "Thanks very much for asking, Denny."

"That's quite all ri—" Denniston began, and then caught himself, and bit his lip, and turned pink, and bridled.

"Pete's just trying to be funny—don't notice him," said Elizabeth. He's got an excuse, too—he's come into a fortune and bought a car."

"Ah!" said Denniston. "Congratulations, Ashe!"

You know how some people can congratulate a girl when she announces her engagement—so that she wants, first, to slay them, and, next, to engage detectives and set them to work upon her poung man's past?

"Thanks," said Pete morosely. Then he brightened. "I say, Bet, about that painting—I'm rfee now for a while. I was thinking of running down on Long Island tomorrow and making some notes. Why don't you come along? The trip would do you good."

"Tomorrow—Saturday—I don't see why I couldn't," said Elizabeth.

Denniston cleared his throat, and she looked at him. So did Pete—and was inspired.

"You come on, too," he said cordially. "Lots of room. Do you good too. Do us all good."

"Done!" said Elizabeth. "You can get away, can't you, Denny?" Denniston's only other name was Alexander, and she absolutely refused to call him that, while Alec and Sandy were both out of the question.

"I—why—er—I—" Denniston was neatly trapped, and knew it. Elizabeth was going, whether he did or not; so much was plain. "Why—yes—I can. I think," he said.

"That's fine! Let's get away early—I'd like to go clear to Montauk! I'll drive part of the way, Pete, so you won't get too tired. Let's meet right here at—oh, get here about half-past seven, Pete, and I'll give you breakfast and some decent coffee, for once in your life. Denny—don't you be a minute later than eight getting here."

The breakfast was all that Elizabeth had promised. She got it herself, because her maid never arrived before eight, and seldom before half-past, and Pete sat down to home-made muffins and real coffee and sausages. It was a little late in the year for those, but Elizabeth explained that they had to have them, because there were griddle cakes, too, with real maple syrup. They weren't anywhere near through when Denniston arrived, on the stroke of eight; and his expression when he found that the maid had not yet come repaid Pete for much suffering in the past. Elizabeth's lips tightened for a moment when she saw it; had Pete caused them to do that he would, about one second later hoe been in serious trouble. But she never was angry with Denniston—vocally, at least.

They were ready finally and went out. Pete opened up the rumble seat. Denniston surveyed it with what was plainly a sinking heart. Denniston had long legs; nearly as long as Pete's. Pete was going to drive; obviously, Elizabeth, being a girl, must have the other half of the front seat, which was, emphatically, not roomy enough for three.

"You climb over the wheel, somehow—there's a sort of step," said Pete. "You can make room, I guess; I stowed some stuff for lunch, in case we got caught—sandwiches and fruit and stuff in thermos bottles. And my painting kit's there—don't tear the canvas—"

Denniston thought dark and sombre things, and somehow got in. Pete was in golf clothes and knickerbockers; Elizabeth wore feminine equivalents of such things; Denniston, clinging to the derby hat he always wore, and the sort of suit that went with his office, looked rather out of place. That is why, perhaps, Elizabeth turned as she settled into place, and patted his hand. Pete saw that, and was distinctly less pleased about the rumble seat than he had been.

In the nex half our, tough while he was discovering that traffic along Fifth tvenue and traffic in Brooklyn, beyond the Manhattan bridge, have about the same relation to one another as a straight piece of string and the same piece of string after an industrious baby has stopped playing with it, Pete's mind was upon other things. He evolved an idea during his voyage of exploration: the faster you went, the sooner you got out where life was again a simple thing. In fact, as he went along, Pete grew more and more convinced that his new car ran better at high speed—which was, in fact, true.

Elizabeth was distinctly impressed. It hadn't ever occurred to her that Pete would be the sort of drier he showed himself to be when they reached the Merrick road. Denniston tried, once or twice, to engage her in conersation, but she abolished him.

Not What Price Merchandise

But What Price Glory

As retailing becomes more and more a highly specialized profession the work of stores is passing from that of exchanging merchandise for money. The newer way, the better way, the P. B. M. way, is that which helps patrons to a better selection—which will enable them to get not only a better choice of but a better use of the things they buy.

White, McCarty

White Brothers will go deeper in their No. 1, McCarty, in the southwest corner of their McCarty lease, east Beaver creek district, Wichita county, after getting about a two-barrel well in 19 feet of broken sand topped at 1,179 feet. There are several other producing strata here which may pay out.

Oil Gossip

I. R. Sheldon, Texhoma Oil and Refining company's chief geologist, left yesterday afternoon for Wheeler county, where he intends to superintend drilling in of Texhoma's first Wheeler county oil well in the next day or so.

Fred Sehman, Petroleum Producers, returned yesterday from a trip through Colorado, Iowa and Missouri. He left his family at Hanitau for the rest of the summer.

R B. Woolf, with Jimmie Jones, was back the first of the week from a vacation spent wih his family in Dallas.

Newt W. Haer returned yesterday from ashort stay in Dallas.

W. D. Rowland and E. C. Lemley of the Superior Oil Producing company are leaving today for a trip to Tulsa. Mr. Lemley will continue eastward for a short stay while Mr. Rowland will be back in Wichita Falls in about a week.

They're telling a story on W. D. Wells and his Waggoner pasture hole out north of the Gulf well that savors of a trip back to childhood or something. Wells was shut down for fuel oil this last week so the story goes, and had thirty barrels trucked out and run into the storage tank. The strage tank was tight as a drum but someone had left the gate valve in the boiler open and when the crew got to the least the next morning ready to start up they found the entire lot of fuel on the ground. The rig is running again, now, though.

John Naylor, oil editor of the Fort Worth Star Telegram was a Wichita Falls visitor yesterday and spent the day looking over the district.

Complete Big Well In Deep 2,600 Pay

SHREVEPPORT, La., June 23.—The third and best well of the new 2,600-foot pay at Smackover, the Federal Petroleum company's No. 7, Flennicken on the north line of the southwest of southeast of 10-16-15, flowing 8,000 barrels a day from five feet of pay, totals depth 2,640 feet. The well, it appears defines the deep sand pay on the east. It is four miles east of the second well in the deep pay and three miles southeast. The 8,000 barrels a day is cut by 25 per cent salt water, just as wells in this district were cut in the second pay.

Missing 1914 Arctic Explorers Are Found

NEW YORK, June 23.—Another mystery of the polar region was solved today when H. A. Snow, big game hunter and explorer, just returned from a two years' photographic exploration of the Arctic regions announced the discovery of the remains of missing members of Viljamur Stefansson's north pole expedition of 1914 on Herald Island.

Snow's discovery clears up the 11 year-old mystery of the fate of the five members of the crew, one of the two parties in which the expedition was divided, who quit the ice-locked ship and started out on the long trail back to civilization.

The first party, led by Stefansson, completed the long journty after hardships. The other party, led by the ship's director, never was heard from and relief expeditions found no trace of it.

Snow declared he came upon the remains while taking pictures on Herlad Island, which is about 65 miles from the spot where Steffanson's ship was lost. A half completed camp attested their ineffectual attempts to build a shelter. He believes the entire party perished from exposure and starvation a short time after they reached the island.

San Antonio Bathers Told to Wear Clothes

SAN ANTONIO, une 23.—Teaching modesty to patrons of San Antonio's municipal swimming pools, one of the police department's principa summer sports, began Monday night when Police Captain Joe Moglia read the clothing requirement to a party of ex-swimmers, returning to their home in Denver Heights from the San Pedro pool via Houston street.

A mother and daughter were members of the party which was taken charge of by a patrolman who found them driving through the heart of the city with only a scant few square inches of brightly colored wool cloth to supplement their birthday suits.

At police headquarters Captain Moglia reminded them sternly that there is a city ordinance which requires swimmers to wear some kind of a robe when they are more than 100 feet from the pool.

GAY DAYS OF OHIOAN CLOSE IN HOSPITAL

Dan Caswell, With a Weakness for Girls, Expires Tuesday

NEW YORK, June 23.—Death has ended the career of "Dashing Dan" Caswell of Cleveland, heir to wealth and a figure in the night life of Broadway, whose marriages to two Follies girls attracted considerable attention.

In a year Daniel Orvis Caswell would have inherited $500,000 left for him in trust by his father, Daniel O. Caswell, a Cleveland realtor. He died last night in St. Luke's hospital after a month's illness from typhoid and pneumonia. He was 25 years old. His mother was with him when he died and is taking the body to Cleveland.

Marries Follies Girl.

When a student at Yale in 1920 Caswell married Jessie Reed, a member of the Ziegfeld Follies, after a two-day courtship. The marriage took place at Pawtucket, R. I., after a round of gay parties. Caswell toured with the Follies for a while, his bride continued in the company, but she filed suit for divorce a year after their marriage, charging cruelty, non-support and drunkenness. Caswell defeated this suit, but in 1923 he obtained a decree himself in Cleveland.

Marries Again.

A few months later he married Junestelton, his first wife's chum, who had been named in the first divorce suit involving him. Several months ago the second Mrs. Caswell said here had been an agreement for a divorce.

A year ago Caswell was admitted to a sanitarium here because of a breakdown in health. During his illness at the hospital his mother was constantly at the bedside.

Horse Family May Hold Key to Ape Trial, He Thinks

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Dobbin's family tree may hold the key to the secret of evolution and thus become an important factor in the Scopes trial, according to Dr. Albert E. Jenks, professor of anthropology at the University of Minnesota, who arrived on the Arduna today after prolonged research in European pre-historic ruins.

No other animal, he said, has so complete a genealogy bearing out the evolutionary hypothesis, since it has been accurately traced by scientists individually from its origin as a five toed creature as big as a dog, through the various stages of its development.

Shoot Yourself If You Like, Is Rule Of Court to Hubby

LANSING, Mich., June 23.—(AP)—A husband can not be enjoined from killing himself in the presence of his wife if he so desires, Judge Leland W. Carr ruled in refusing Agnes Ireland an injunction restraining Ridgley J. Ireland from carrying out an alleged threat.

Mrs. Ireland said her husband, whom she is seeking to divorce, persists in driving his motor car past her home and tooting the horn and that he also had threatened to enter the house and kill himself before her.

Judge Carr issued an injunction to halt horn tooting, but said that there is nothing in the statutes whereby a man can be enjoined from taking his own life.

Liquor Ban Limits Address Over Radio

EDINBOURGH, Scotland, June 23.—(AP)—The ban on the liquor question as a radio subject which prevented Lady Astor from broadcasting Sunday night has operated against Miss Anna Adams Gordon of Evanston, Ill., head of the American delegation of the world convention here of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Miss Gordon was to have given a talk over the air yesterday on the operation of prohibition in the United States, but the postmaster refused the necessary permit on the ground that the subject was too controversial.

There is no regulation against speaking on such a subject in a hall, however, and the delegates listened to James Cavender, police chief of Des Moines, Iowa, describe prohibition as "the greatest benefit to suffering weak humanity since Christ came to earth."

The British delegates were especially interested in the police chief's talk and he was not only held over his allotted time, but was invited to continue on the same theme today.

Dr. Levaditi has named his preparation "acetyloxyaminophenlyarsinate" with a bismuth basis.

B. V. D.'s on a Cop All That Save Bike Burglar from Jail

SAN ANTONIO, June 23.—B. V. D's, and the modesty of Frank Schonstein, city detective, saved the hide of a prowler who Monday night made an ill timed visit to the officer's home.

"I would have caught him sure," Schonstein said when he reported for duty Tuesday morning, "if modesty hadn't forbidden that I go racing through the streets in my B. V. D's.

"I stopped to put on my trousers and the prowler got away."

Detective Schonstein was off duty for the night and was just preparing for his bath when he noticed a man ride slowly by the front of the house on a bicycle, eyeing the place.

The bicyclist saw the house was open and could not see the officer, and dismounted at the corner.

As Detective Schonstein slipped to the rear door to take a look out he met the prowler walking up the back steps.

Can't Use Public School as Church

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—The use of a portion of the public school for religious instruction in churches of Mount Vernon, a Westchester country suburb of New York City, has been forbidden by injunction.

Supreme Court Justice Seeger yesterday granted a writ at White Plains permanently restraining the Mount Vernon school board from permitting children in the fifth and sixth grades to take 45 minutes of each school week to devote to religious training.

The proceedings were instituted by Lawrence B. Stein of Mount Vernon a member of the Free Thinkers Society of New York. Clarence Darrow, Chicago, lawyer, who is to assist the defense in the Scopes evolution trial, had offered to assist the society if it lost in the first court proceedings saying that he regarded the matter as important as the evolution case.

CAN'T PAY AND NOT WORK HE TELLS GERMANY

Longer Hours, and More Production Her Only Hope Now

BRUSSELS, June 23.—(AP)—Germany can pay her reparations obligations only throug a lowered standard of living, longer working hours and greater production per hour, Sir Josiah Stamp, British economist and co-author of the Dawes plan, told the International Chamber of Commerce at today's meeting here.

Sir Josiah expressed grave doubts of the continued successful working of the Dawes plan. He declared the time has come for serious study to be given the situation. The chief difficulties, he said, were the labor problem involved in the production of goods for reparations and the ruinous competition as a result of the import of goods into receiving countries without exports to offset them.
