Leaders talk, pray as problems prey on Poland

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The leaders of Poland's powerful Roman Catholic Church met with Pope John Paul II shortly after arriving from Warsaw today for talks on martial law in Poland and the pope's plans to visit his homeland next summer.

The Polish-born pontiff received Archbishop Jozef Glemp, the Polish primate, together with the archbishop of Krakow, Franciszek Macharski, and the archbishop of Wroclaw, Henryk Gulbinowicz.

When a journalist remarked that the pope prays constantly for Poland, Macharski Krakow replied, "We pray for the pope and for everyone."

Western diplomatic sources in Warsaw said Glemp was expected to stay in Italy until Feb. 14, but this could not be confirmed.

It was the first visit by Glemp to the pontiff since martial law was declared in Poland Dec. 13 in an attempt to check the reform movement led by the independent Solidarity labor union.

The pope and the Polish hierarchy were staunch supporters of the reform movement, but the hierarchy also sought to mediate between the government and Solidarity.

Since the suspension of the union and the internment of its chief leaders following imposition of martial law, the church has become the sole opposition voice inside Poland. But since more than 90 percent of the 36 million Poles are baptized Catholics and more than 75 percent attend church services regularly, the government has made no attempt to silence the bishops.

Vatican sources say the bishops differ on how militant a stance to take toward the military government, although they all supported a pastoral letter calling for restoration of civil rights and freedoms that was read in Polish churches the past two weekends.

The pope counseled patience in the early days of martial law, saying too much Polish blood had been shed in World War II to countenance a new rebellion. But as the seven-week-old crackdown continued, his statements have shown increasing impatience with the military grip on Poland and the internment without trial and persecution of Solidarity members.

At his weekly general audience Wednesday, he again deplored the loss of freedom in his native land and urged Poles to persevere in their faith. John Paul is scheduled to visit Poland in August for the celebration of the 600th anniversary of the Black Madonna of Czestochowa, Poland's holiest shrine. Vatican sources said they doubted he would make the trip if martial law was still in effect.

Most observers believe that the spontaneous outpouring of nationalism engendered by John Paul's first visit to Poland as pope in June 1979 was the forerunner of the nationwide wave of strikes a year later that produced Solidarity and the reform movement.

University Lands sale: All added up, auction good (but not great)

By DAVID C. SODAMANN
Energy and Business Editor

"It was a good sale. It certainly wasn't a record breaker," was the way Laddie Long summed up Wednesday's auction of oil and gas leases on University Lands. He had gone out on a limb last week to predict the sale would raise almost $20-25 million for the Permanent University Fund. The results fell far short of the mark.

Long is manager of oil, gas and mineral interests on University Lands. The 71st auction Wednesday netted $17,842,000 for the Permanent University Fund, falling far shy of the record-setter of 1981. The 70th sale, conducted in March 1981, reaped more than $52 million.

The 69th, in September 1980, brought in more than $44 million. Wednesday's event ranks fourth in total earnings behind the auction in December 1977, which garnered $17,869,500.

"The big difference in this sale and recent previous sales reflects the economy in general," suggested Sterling Fly, chairman of the Board For Lease, which oversees the lease auctions.

"I was hopeful," said Fly, "that there would be more income... but at the same time was not surprised with the results of the sale."

Fly said another sale will be held "when there is sufficient public demand for additional leases."

"We need to study the results of this sale before seriously considering posting the date of another sale."

A total of 225 tracts, comprised of 80,016.369 acres, were auctioned. The average price per acre was $244.79. Twenty-two of the tracts failed to sell.

Highland Resources and oilman Robert Mosbacher, both of Houston, jointly made the highest bid on a single tract. With a bid of $1,125,000, they won the right to explore Tract 106, which is section 15, block 23, ULS, in Pecos County. Mosbacher anted 75 percent of the amount, Highland pitched in 25 percent.

The land falls within the Cunningham Ranch Field, which was discovered in March 1979. It produces from a depth of 17,916 feet.

In the southeast quarter of section 15 is Exxon's No. 1 University 23-15, a directionally-drilled Morrow discovery, drilled to 24,165 feet, and later plugged back to 17,900 feet.

The second highest bid was made by Texaco. The big oil company offered $540,000 for tract 78, the west half of section 29, block 21, ULS, in Winkler County.

The tract is the site of one well, the Mallard University No. 1, which was drilled to 5,200 feet. There was no additional information available on the well in The Reporter-Telegram files.

Tract 78 is located north of production in the Little Joe field, which was opened in the Delaware at 5,034 feet in June, 1965, and in the War-Wink at 5,066 in April, 1968.

The high rollers were Mosbacher/Highland, Texaco, American Trading and Production Corp., Monsanto, Exxon and Getty, all winning tracts with successful bids of $400,000 or more.

All 12 tracts in Hudspeth County went to Border Exploration Co., Midland, for minimum bids of $7,000 each.

Crown Central Petroleum Corp., Midland, bid actively on tracts in Schleicher County and won tracts 218 through 223. Land manager Bill McAndrews said the company was interested in the tracts because they "were in the back yard."

Crown Central Exploration manager Clyde Langdale said the tracts were south of a tight wildcat recently drilled by the company.

"We were expecting to pay more, and so was everyone that we've talked to," said Langdale.

Langdale, and others on the Crown Central staff, had noticed wild variation in the bidding. "It was a real erratic sale when you get down to it," Langdale said.

A veteran of many, many lease auction sales agreed with Langdale's assessment. They pointed out wide variations in prices paid for contiguous and prox-

El Salvador seeks U.N. confirmation

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's army says it is asking the U.N. Human Rights Commission to verify its claim that leftist guerrillas slaughtered more than 150 peasants in an attack on a northeastern village.

"The communist attackers dedicated themselves to killing, to butchery, to exterminating the population, and they killed children, women and men — even animals," an army spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the rebels' weekend raid on Nueva Trinidad, in Morazan Province near the Honduran border, left between 150 and 200 dead — more than half the population.

Reporters who visited the village Tuesday reported finding about a dozen corpses lying in the street.

Leftist sources claim the government recently converted Nueva Trinidad into a base for paramilitary groups that cross into neighboring Honduras, round up Salvadoran refugees in camps there and bring them back across the border.

The sources, who have ties to the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, a coalition of guerrilla groups battling the U.S.-backed junta, claim 25 soldiers and members of such paramilitary groups were killed in the attack.

The leftists made no mention of civilian casualties.

Roommates report robbery

Two men told police they were tied up and robbed of $1,000 in the living room of their northwest Midland house after coming home for lunch and surprising a burglar late Wednesday morning.

James Isbell, 26, and Jack Brown, 22, who room together at 4106 Dyer Circle, said they pulled up in front of the house about 11:30 a.m. and noticed a bedroom blind was partially raised.

When they entered the house, a man was standing in the living room with a 9mm Browning automatic pistol belonging to one of the victims. He threatened to kill them and bragged that all he'd get for it was five years.

Isbell and Brown said the man yanked the phone from the wall, tied them up and proceeded to ransack the house and go through their wallets after saying he had been watching the house for three weeks.

When he left, the men untied themselves and police were called. The suspect was described as white, about 25 years old, 5 feet, 11 inches tall and having very dark brown or black hair.

He limped due to an injury to his right foot, which had an Ace bandage on it. He also had a two-and-a-half inch scar on his face and was wearing a waistlength black leather jacket, blue jeans and a brown knit shirt. An investigation is continuing.

Grand jury exonerates deputy in shooting death

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

A Midland County grand jury has exonerated Sheriff's Deputy Tommy Jones in the Jan. 22 shooting death of 39-year-old Robert Wayne Beauchamp of 4518 Brookdale Drive.

In a statement to State District Judge Pat Baskin, the grand jury said: "This is to advise that (we) completed an investigation of the matters surrounding the death of Robert Wayne Beauchamp...and found no criminal offense arising out of the circumstances of such death."

The grand jury met Wednesday. At a press conference this morning, Sheriff Dallas Smith said, "I don't know what he (Jones) could have done differently, knowing what he knew at the time."

At about 5 p.m. on Jan. 22, Jones, 29, was attempting to serve a Tarrant County child abuse warrant on Beauchamp and allowed him to enter a hall closet to obtain a sweater, according to Smith. Beauchamp emerged instead with a 16-gauge shotgun and pointed it at Jones.

Jones managed to push the barrel aside, draw his .357-caliber magnum service revolver and shoot Beauchamp once through the heart. Beauchamp's wife was present during the shooting.

She, along with sheriff's investigators, police department investigators and the doctor who performed an autopsy on Beauchamp's body, supported Jones' account of the incident to the grand jury, according to District Attorney Vern Martin, who presented evidence in the case.

Evidence included a blood alcohol reading taken during the autopsy. Martin said the reading was "very high," but declined to say how high. A police source, however, said the reading was .3. Point one is considered legally intoxicated.

The sheriff said it is routine to have an outside agency — in this case, the police department — assist in such investigations to allay suspicions of a coverup.

Smith also said it was not department policy to have at least two officers serve felony warrants and he has no plans to incorporate such a policy.

"Obviously, it would be great to have five officers, but the taxpayers would have to pay for it and there's a limit to what we can do," said Smith. "It's up to

JFK taped White House conversations

BOSTON (AP) — President John F. Kennedy secretly recorded conversations and telephone calls with world leaders, congressmen and his aides while he was in the White House, the director of the Kennedy library said today.

"I have no reason to think they knew they were being taped," Dan Fenn Jr., the library director, said of the people recorded in 100 to 140 hours of taped meetings and conversations. The tapes are being examined in Boston at the library in preparation for their release to the public, possibly this summer.

Fenn said 250 telephone conversations and 325 meetings in the Oval Office or Cabinet Room in the White House were recorded from mid-1962 to Nov. 7, 1963, 15 days before Kennedy was assassinated.

Among those recorded in telephone calls were Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, evangelist Billy Graham and Adlai Stevenson, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations under Kennedy. The list also includes members of Congress, according to an index of the tapes that Fenn had.

The Washington Post said today that an index of the recordings it had obtained also shows Kennedy taped conversations with members of his family, including his wife, Jacqueline.

Among those recorded in telephone calls were Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, evangelist Billy Graham and Adlai Stevenson, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations under Kennedy. The list also includes members of Congress, according to an index of the tapes that Fenn had.

The subjects of the conversations included Vietnam, the Cuban missile crisis, the integration of the University of Mississippi and civil rights in general.

"I haven't the vaguest idea why Kennedy used the tapes or saved them," Fenn said. "I hope we'll be able to open some of them early this summer."

"When they're available, they'll be available to anyone, junior high school students, Arthur Schlesinger or anyone."

Any potentially classified material will be referred to the originating agency, which will decide whether to keep it classified or allow the museum to release it, Fenn said.

"There was no attempt to hide the existence of this material," Fenn said early today in an interview.

DEATHS

Herbert Collings

Services for Herbert S. "Herb" Collings, 78, 3108 Princeton Ave., will be at 11 a.m. Saturday in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church with Dr. Daniel Vestal officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Wednesday at his home after a lengthy illness.

Collings was born July 11, 1903, in Somerville County. He grew up in Chalk Mountain and in Glen Rose. In the early 1920s he moved to Sweetwater where he worked with a wholesale grocery. He later moved to Plainview for a short while. He then moved to Abilene. He married Ava M. Butler in Abilene on July 3, 1928. He was transferred to Midland with Walker-Smith Wholesale Grocers. He established his own grocery business, Collings Grocery on Big Spring Street, in 1950. He sold his business and retired in 1968.

Collings was a member of the First Baptist Church, the Midland Masonic Lodge No. 623, a member of Keystone Chapter No. 172, Keystone Council No. 112 and Commandry No. 84. He was a past member of the Board of Directors of Midland Chamber of Commerce and honorary member of Midland Rotary Club.

Legislation would give taxpayers immediate breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers would begin noticing this year's tax cut in their paychecks immediately — instead of having to wait until summer — under legislation introduced by the top-ranking members of the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Democratic Rep. Henry P. Reuss of Wisconsin, the chairman, and Republican Sen. Roger Jepsen of Iowa, the vice chairman, seldom agree on economic matters. But they told a news conference Wednesday that expediting a change in withholding rates would combat the current recession.

Unless the law is revised, the average 10 percent cut in individual taxes that went into effect on Jan. 1 will not be evident until withholding rates are reduced July 1.

"Now that we are in a recession, with unemployment escalating rapidly, it is essential that some action be taken," Reuss said. "Increasing withholding allowances now will give the economy a stimulus now, when it needs it."

Other members of Congress have offered similar legislation. But Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, said Wednesday he is opposed to it. Such tinkering with last year's tax cut might encourage opponents of the reduction to press for their own changes.

Border Patrol sets up in grid pattern

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — On a couple of occasions this month, illegal aliens crossing into El Paso from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, have found the banks of the Rio Grande crawling with Border Patrol agents.

"We set it up in a grid pattern," said acting chief agent Jack Richardson. "We may let that alien get away from the man on the river, then he's pursued by a second one and then the third one catches him. That boy's got his tongue hanging out from running. By that time, he wants to get in the car and go back to Mexico."

Richardson is the architect of the three-layer crackdown plan, which he compares to the alignment of a defensive squad in a football game.

"Set up like this, we can effectively control the border for eight hours," he said.

The predawn river raids and associated raids at businesses led to 12,300 arrests of illegal aliens in January, Richardson said, adding that the number was a 25 percent increase over the amount arrested in December.

The system began after Richardson took over as acting chief Jan. 4. Richardson is the chief agent in Del Rio, but is working in El Paso until a new chief agent is selected.

Richardson said that when he arrived in El Paso, too much time was being devoted to paperwork and not enough time was spent catching illegal aliens. But he's changed all that.

For the river raids, every agent with arrest capability — even those who normally work in the office — were sent to the riverbanks to round up the aliens as they crossed into the United States.

"That's based on two philosophies," said Richardson, 52, who participates in the raids himself. "When I go to the river, everybody goes to the river. Secondly, we're simply allowing people to do their stated mission by law."

"My first duty is to keep them from coming in," he added. "By golly, we'll do that job."

Most of the aliens arrested are simply returned to Mexico and the attempt to cross is put on their record. More serious cases — repeat offenders or people who are aiding aliens to cross — are prosecuted, he said.

Richardson said the secret has been to streamline the processing of the aliens so that the officers get back to the river to catch more.

"I know when you catch them, you've got to clean them," Richardson said in a tongue-in-cheek reference to fishing. "But while you're cleaning them, you ain't catching them."

Asked if it does any good to catch the aliens only to return them to Mexico, Richardson said, "I don't know. But I know what the result is if you don't grab them."

"My goal is to get an acceptable level of control," he said. "I'm worried about those that penetrate Border Patrol operations and go into the interior of the United States. It costs the United States money to return them to the country whence they came. Piles of money. It's cheaper to turn them back at the river."

Richardson said the raids are the first step of a "one-two punch" he has planned for the border around El Paso. He won't say what the second punch is, but he says with a twinkle in his eye that it's coming soon.

"People are always talking bad about the government employee," he said. "But if he understands what he's supposed to do and he's given free rein to do it, he'll give you 1,000 percent. And that's what these kids have been giving."

"I respectfully propose that if the American Indian had had a good Border Patrol, he wouldn't have the problems that he has today," he said.

Texas Policy Institute holds press conference

The Texas Policy Institute will conduct a press conference at 7 p.m. today in the Midland Country Club in conjunction with a national conference and publication of a research project.

Theme of the conference is "The Defense of America: From Assured Destruction to Assured Survival," and the title of the research project is "The Bitter Fruit of Salt: The Record of Soviet Duplicity." The publication contains previously classified information.

Participating will be Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, USA (retired) former director of U.S. Defense Intelligence and adviser to the Reagan campaign; and Brig. Gen. Albion Knight, USA (retired), an expert with 30 years experience in the research, development, operation and strategic policy of nuclear weapons at the Pentagon and Stanford Research Institute.

Midland is one of three locations for press conferences in Texas. The others will be at Dallas and Houston.

Form of plague killed Ector county man not contagious

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The form of bubonic plague that killed a 23-year-old Ector County man Jan. 10 is not contagious person-to-person, says acting county health director Robert Rowntree.

The man, whose name was not released, is believed to have contracted the disease from a flea bite while rabbit hunting in northern Ector County in December, Dr. Rowntree said.

"This is the first confirmed case in Texas since 1963," Rowntree said.

Dr. Tom Betts of the state health department in Austin said more than a dozen cases of the disease were reported in New Mexico in 1980 but "it's been a considerable amount of time" since a previous bubonic plague case was confirmed as having originated in Texas.

The state health department health department laboratory in Austin confirmed Tuesday that the Ector County man died of bubonic plague, Rowntree said.

The man is believed to have become ill Jan. 6. He died shortly after arriving at the emergency room of Medical Center Hospital in Odessa, officials said.

Pneumonic plague, a form of the disease known as the "black death," killed millions outside the United States years ago, but Rowntree said the present bubonic plague is isolated.

Dr. C.R. Allen, regional health department director in Lubbock, said the disease "has a very high fatality ratio."

Rowntree said the bacteria live in the stomach of fleas and are transmitted through bites.

Doyle is director of public works

Russell R. Doyle has been named director of public works-traffic and engineering for the city of Midland.

Doyle, a former Brownsville engineering director, will head the public works division in charge of installation and maintenance of traffic control systems and signs, collection and analysis of traffic data as well as the engineering and design section of the department.

A Cincinnati, Ohio, native, Doyle has held various positions as a public works professional, including director of public works, Hanover, Ill.; American Public Works Association, staff engineer, Chicago, Ill.; redevelopment engineer, Muskegon, Mich.; and civil engineer, California Highway Department.

Doyle, a civil engineering graduate from University of Cincinnati, was a student of public works management at University of Pittsburgh.

Doyle will serve as an assistant to Public Works Director Fred Baker.

Suit filed against Prudential Insurance Co.

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawsuit alleging Prudential Insurance Co. was partly responsible for implicating two Austin attorneys who were indicted but cleared in the Texas Bribe investigation has been filed in state district court.

In the suit filed Wednesday in Travis County, Donald W. Ray and Randall Buck Wood contend Prudential — "for business purposes" — willingly participated in the FBI investigation by providing cover for federal agents and informants.

The lawyers, represented by Houston attorney W. James Kronzer, seek an unspecified amount of damages from Prudential.

Wood, Ray and Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton all were acquitted on charges of racketeering, wire fraud, conspiracy and extortion.

In their petition, Ray and Wood contend Prudential, "with full knowledge of the purposes, cloaked one Joseph Hauser, a confessed criminal, and members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other agencies, with authority to represent (Prudential's) actual interest in the investigation."

Prudential "was aware at all times or certainly should have been aware" that giving authority to "such persons" would result in harm to innocent persons, the suit alleges.

Prudential officials will not comment on the action until they see the suit, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Water commission grants Big Lake application

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Commission has granted an application by the City of Big Lake to amend its permit to discharge treated wastewater in Reagan County.

The amendment would authorize Big Lake to change from a no-discharge irrigation system of disposal to a discharge system. The city plans to discharge 800,000 gallons of treated domestic discharge effluent daily from a treatment plant located at the intersection of Alabama Avenue and Santa Rita in the east side of Big Lake.

The city currently is authorized to dispose of 254,000 gallons of effluent daily by irrigation. Some of the water would be used to irrigate a nearby golf course.

Extended forecast

Saturday through Monday: West Texas: Partly cloudy with a snow warming trend Saturday through Monday. Low Saturday near 8 north to mid 20s extreme south warming to near 20 north to low 30s south Monday. Highs Saturday 20 north to 40s extreme south warming to 40s north to low 60s Big Bend Monday.

North Texas: Decreasing cloudiness and continued cold Saturday with afternoon highs in the upper 20s to upper 30s and morning lows in the 10s. Generally fair Sunday and Monday with a warming trend. Afternoon highs ranging from the mid 30s to the lower 40s Sunday and from the mid 40s to the mid 50s Monday. Morning lows ranging from the upper teens to upper 20s Sunday and from the mid 20s to lower 30s Monday.

Snow is still forecast for Midland

Although snow has been in the forecast for the last few days, Midlanders may get a taste of it yet as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for a 20 percent chance of light snow tonight and Friday.

It will be cloudy and colder through Friday with the low tonight expected to be in the upper teens and the high on Friday reaching near 30.

Today's easterly winds at 10-15 mph will continue tonight, becoming northeasterly 15-20 mph on Friday.

Wednesday's high of 43 was 37 degrees cooler than the record high of 80, set for that date in 1978. The overnight low of 24 was 15 degrees warmer than the record low of 9 degrees, set in 1956.

Among area towns this morning, Andrews was reporting a freezing mist this morning, while Lamesa had freezing drizzle.

Police seek man who held up gas station

Police are looking for a man armed with a knife who held up a Wall Avenue gas station and got away with an undisclosed amount of money shortly after 1 a.m. today.

A woman clerk at the Kent Oil Co., 3310 W. Wall Ave., said she was sweeping the floor when a man came in, displayed a pocketknife and handed her a note that read: "The money or your life." He then took the money from the cash register and a desk in the back room, put it in a paper sack and fled on foot.

He was wearing a blue and gray jacket and a multi-colored bandana. He had brown hair put up in a pony tail, was in his 20s and stood about 5 feet, 10 or 11 inches tall.

A police officer on routine patrol who pulled up to a vehicle that had stalled momentarily in front of the Mid-Tex Battery and Electric Co. at 1410 W. Wall about 1:05 a.m. today arrested the driver after the man told him he had no driver's license and freely admitted stealing the 1974 Ford LTD from Mid-Tex only minutes earlier.

expected to take place sometime today.

A suspect in Monday night's robbery of a woman cab driver has been arrested and was being held in the city jail this morning.

Rex Elmer Reynolds, 20, who said he lives at 2400 Whitmore, was arrested in a westside lounge about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday on a warrant signed by Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry.

Police said his arrest resulted from the description of a man who allegedly held up a woman cab driver in the 2400 block of West College Avenue about 11:30 p.m. Monday. No weapon was displayed and an undisclosed amount of money was taken. Bond is expected to be set later today.

Strake unveils redistricting board plan

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

George Strake, who is seeking the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, unveiled a plan Wednesday for revising the state redistricting board that he believes would eliminate the partisanship and gerrymandering apparent in 1981's redrawing of legislative boundaries.

Strake announced the plan for the first time in his campaign during a press conference in Midland Center and he outlined it later during a luncheon as guest speaker for the Lions Club.

During that latter talk, Strake called for more involvement in government by the public.

The redistricting board plan, which will be his major campaign issue for the next nine months when he faces Democratic incumbent Bill Hobby in the November general election, calls for the lieutenant governor and speaker of the house each to appoint a Republican and Democrat to the board.

Then he suggested the chief justice of the state supreme court, "who should be above politics," nominate three to five non-partisan, intelligent persons to the board.

"THIS WOULD TAKE it out of the realm of politics. It's a way to try and defuse what has been a hot and, in my opinion, a poor job at redistricting," said Strake.

Last week, the U.S. Justice Department threw out the plan and is redrawing the legislative districts in Texas.

In speaking to the Lions, Strake said that unless the board is changed in 10 years "we'll have the same scenario."

Explaining why he chose the lieutenant governor's race as his target, Strake said, "The power of the lieutenant governor's office is the best kept secret in the state of Texas."

"He is president of the Senate, appoints committees and committee chairmen, assigns legislation to committees and can stop legislation if he wants. He oversees budgets of all the state agencies," the former secretary of state noted.

In criticizing the job performed by the incumbent, Strake said, "The present lieutenant governor hasn't demonstrated his leadership. He's been there 10 years. I'm ready to give the people a fresh face and fresh ideas."

Continuing, Strake trounced on Hobby's opposition to the water trust fund that failed in the 1981 constitutional amendments election.

"That water bill could have been redone so it could have been explained to the people. But Hobby let it go through the House and let the governor sign it, then he campaigned against it. Water is a mammoth problem in this state. It needs to be addressed with forceful leadership."

WHILE PRESIDENT REAGAN'S New Federalism program revealed last week has been drawing criticism from even some former supporters, Strake advocated the plan, saying that "Texas is in a better position to check for waste. We need more fiscal responsibility" than what has come out of the federal government.

"I'll take my chances on Texas running these programs more efficiently. I feel we'll do a better job than they've done in Washington, D.C."

Reflecting on his service as secretary of state, Strake said he cut the budget by $2.9 million and the number of employees went from 189 down to 174.

"I proved to myself that government could be made more effective and smaller. We can transmit that kind of mentality to all of the state agencies. That way, we can make the New Federalism work," he said.

In his travels around the state in his position as secretary of state and now as a candidate, Strake says he's noticed the "tendency of people to get down in the dumps."

Looking at the reasons, he cited high interest rates, spiraling inflation, increasing racial problems and rising unemployment.

"Can we survive as a country?" he asked rhetorically before giving his answer.

"DON'T WASTE TIME debating the doomsdayer. Open up your history books and look back 200 years to that winter in Valley Forge."

Auction of University Lands doesn't live up to 1981 record mate tracts.

For example, the north half of section 18, block 21, ULS in Winkler County, tract 71, sold to Exxon for $100,000. The south half of the same section went to Exxon for a minimum bid of $10,000.

"We have enjoyed coming out here to Midland to have these sales," Fly said. "The hospitality and friendliness of the people we have been in contact with has been a very uplifting experience."

Fly said he expects future boards for lease will vote to conduct the auction in Midland.

The 66th auction in 1977 was the first in Midland, and the first outside Austin. The law allows the Board for Lease to choose a location.

The first public auction of University Land mineral leases was in 1936. The first sale was in 1929. Between 1929 and 1936 several sales were conducted with sealed bids.

Income earned by the oil and gas lease auctions, and by the lease the surface of University Lands for ranching and such, goes into the Permanent University Fund, where it pays the bills at The University of Texas and Texas A&M. Two-thirds of the money is earmarked for UT; the remainder goes to A&M.

When the lease monies, and the investment income they earn, are added up, The University of Texas system winds up being the first or second richest in the world, depending on whose opinion you go by.

The history of the University Lands is traced back to 1839. Texas was at that time an independent republic. Fifty leagues of land were set aside to support two colleges. That land was eventually sold to settlers, and later replaced with one million acres of frontier land in West Texas. The holdings have been added to, and today there are 2.1 million acres within the University Lands surveys.

Complete results of Wednesday's auction will be published in The Reporter-Telegram's energy section within the next few days.

Rosebery files for MISD board candidate

Charleen B. Rosebery, 14 Saddle Club Drive, has filed as a candidate for Place 6 on the Midland Independent School District board of trustees, currently held by Edward E. Runyan.

The election will be April 3.

"The students are the life blood of any community," Mrs. Rosebery said. "Whether you are a senior citizen, a parent with or without children in the schools or a student, the school district affects you."

An English major in college, Mrs. Rosebery has been involved in education since she began her career in 1959.

"I feel my various background in different school districts across the country, and my educational experience at different levels is particularly important in bringing fresh ideas and approaches to the school district," Mrs. Rosebery said this morning.

In 1959, Mrs. Rosebery taught sophomore English, including honors classes, and was a yearbook sponsor for four years.

As a resident of Washington, D.C., for 8 1/2 years, Mrs. Rosebery taught seventh, ninth, sophomore and junior English, including both honors and vocational classes. She also taught semester classes in black literature, creative writing and journalism. During that time, she was a cheerleader sponsor for four years and a newspaper sponsor for two years.

While living in Phoenix, Ariz., she served as a substitute in the Phoenix, Scottsdale and Paradise Valley school districts.

A Midland resident for six years, Mrs. Rosebery has served the school district as a Bowie PTA board member for four years, as a Head Start volunteer and as a classroom volunteer.

"The trend that the system has taken under the recent school board in regulations to update the curriculum and place emphasis on basic education has been a very good stride forward," Mrs. Rosebery said.

Although the gifted and talented program has been successful this year, she said she would like to see further expansion, not only for the intellectually gifted, but also for those students possessing musical, artistic and athletic talents.

Presently, Mrs. Rosebery is serving the community as a member of the Head Start Policy Council and the Board of Directors of the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women, as a vice president of the Human Resources Advisory Committee of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, as a lector at St. Ann's Catholic Church, and as a chairman of the Parent and Family Life Education program for the Bowie Elementary PTA. She is past president of the League of Women Voters of Midland and the Elcor Wives Club.

She is also a member of the Ballet Guild, Act IX, and the Women's Golf Association at Midland Country Club. She works periodically as a public relations consultant.

Mrs. Rosebery attended Marquette University for two years and received her bachelor's degree and her master's degree from Memphis State University.

She is married to Elcor Corp. executive Richard J. Rosebery. They have two children, Dare, an eighth grade student at Goddard Junior High School, and Jay, a fifth grade student at Bowie Elementary.

Hospital workers' strike tests 'comparable worth' concept

By STEVE WILSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — There is an eerie silence in the hallways at San Jose, Good Samaritan, O'Connor and Alexian Brothers hospitals. More than half the beds are empty, furniture is stacked for cleaning and the bustle of nurses, doctors, patients and visitors has vanished.

Some 1,300 registered nurses, members of the California Nurses Association, are on strike for higher wages. But more than that, they want pay comparable to equally trained professionals in male-dominated professions.

They say, for example, that hospital pharmacists, mostly men, receive $31,800 a year, while full-time registered nurses, mostly women, earned $22,700 to $24,300, depending on experience.

"This is an issue that goes far beyond four employers in San Jose," said Robert Brueckner, San Jose Hospital administrator. "What is the comparable worth of different jobs? Potentially, it's a very significant question that needs to be answered by society."

The "comparable worth" concept was first tested in this city, the nation's 17th largest, last summer, when city workers, demanding sexual equality in wages, walked out.

They returned to work after the city offered $1.5 million toward reducing wage disparities, as well as a 15.5 percent general pay increase worth $3.5 million.

At that time, Mayor Janet Cray Hayes hailed it as "a first giant step toward fairness in the workplace for women."

A nurses' victory would be a big step toward recognition of their increasing professionalism and could alter their relationship with doctors and other hospital employees.

"There are about 15,000 CNA nurses under contract in hospitals around California," said CNA vice-president Dr. Lorraine Hultquist. "Certainly what happens here in San Jose is being carefully watched throughout the state and probably around the country."

The strike by the nurses is a bid for more money — about 37 percent more over 18 months. The hospitals are offering the nurses about 21 percent more over a three-year period.

There's another issue, not spelled out in the strike demands, which bothers some nurses.

"Hospitals are here to give patient care and it's the nurses who give 95 percent of that care," said Florence Gallup, a registered nurse for 23 years. "Neither the doctors nor the hospital administrators fully appreciate the importance of nurses and that has to change."

Mrs. Gallup said that with the increased specialization of doctors and the growth of medical knowledge, nurses have had to assume more responsibility. California nurses are required to take 30 credits of continuing education every two years to keep up with medical advances.

"As an assistant head nurse, I'm in charge of a 10-bed unit that includes critical patients," Mrs. Gallup said. "When I take patients, I am responsible for them for perhaps eight hours."

While many of her responsibilities involve medical knowledge, "I do many things I shouldn't have to do," she said, "like mopping floors, changing beds, emptying laundry, moving equipment, running lab tests, going to the pharmacy, even cleaning toilets because there aren't always enough housekeepers or the system isn't working."

Mrs. Gallup and other CNA members contend that nurses have traditionally been underpaid because they were considered part-time or secondary wage earners. Many nurses now are full-time professionals with four or five years of higher education and nearly half provide the primary or sole support for their families.

In recent years, more lucrative careers have opened for women who once might have become nurses. That has helped to create the current national nursing shortage and overload existing nurses.

In linking their wage demands for the first time to the controversial concept of "comparable worth," the nurses have moved beyond the usual scope of labor negotiations.

TAX TIPS

Deductions for home use OK if place of business

This is the fourth in a series of tax tip articles sponsored as a public service by the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Q. I am employed as an accountant by a retail store. In my spare time I sell a product which I store and sell at my home. I use my den for meeting customers and also for personal use. May I take a business deduction for the use of the selling activity? If so, how do I determine the amount of the deduction?

A. A taxpayer is not entitled to deduct any expenses attributable to the use of his home for business purposes unless that portion of the home (or separate structure) is used exclusively and on a regular basis as (1) the taxpayer's principal place of business, or (2) a place of business that is used by patients, clients, or customers in meeting or dealing with the taxpayer in the normal course of business.

It appears that this is not your principal place of business, since you also work as an accountant at a retail store. A taxpayer may have only one place of business. This is determined by the total income from each location; the amount of business time at each location and the facilities available to the taxpayer at each location.

If this does qualify as your principal place of business, you should see if you meet the other requirements. You do use your den to meet customers; however, you do not use it exclusively for meeting customers.

An important exception to this exclusive rule is provided for a retail seller whose dwelling unit is the sole fixed location of his trade or business. In such case, the ordinary and necessary expenses allocable to space within the dwelling unit that is used as a storage unit for inventory are deductible provided that such space is used on a regular basis and is separately identifiable space suitable for storage.

Therefore, if you are in the retail sales business and maintain an inventory, you may qualify for a home office deduction. In this situation the expenses would be based upon the expenses attributable to storing the inventory. For example, if the product required cooling and you stored it in a part of your air-conditioned house, you could take a deduction for your cooling bill.

The deduction would be based upon the amount of space provided for inventory in relation to the total space of your home which is air-conditioned. However, if the inventory was stored in an area which was not air-conditioned, you would not be entitled to a deduction for the cooling bill.

For more information on this and other income tax questions, attend the "You and Your Income Tax" class sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants. The class, scheduled for Feb. 11 from 6:30 to 10 p.m. is presented as a public service.

Classes will be held at Midland College in the Allison Fine Arts Building. A $2 per person fee will be charged. To register, mail your $2, your name and address to Taxpayer Education, P.O. Box 151, Midland, Texas 79702 before Feb. 8. Pre-registration is encouraged, but walk-ins will be accepted.

Photos show Saturn has more moons

PASEDENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists poring over pictures of Saturn transmitted by the Voyager 2 spacecraft say the ringed planet has at least four and possibly six more moons than previously known.

The new satellites bring Saturn's total to 21 or 23 and help support the theory that the planet's rings were formed through collisions of comets or asteroids with its part-rock, part-ice moons, researchers at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory said.

Planetary scientists Stephen P. Synnott and Richard Terrile discovered the moons while examining computer-enhanced photographs from Voyager 2's Saturn fly-by last September.

Each moon is no larger than 6 to 12 miles in diameter and appear in the photos as mere pinpoints or streaks of light.

The discovery "helps us piece together the history of the rings," Terrile said, "and lends support to the collisional theory" explaining the rings' genesis, which he developed with Gene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Society.

"We're seeing a greater range of fragment sizes (throughout the rings)," said Terrile, "which is what you would expect to see if these were once larger objects that have been broken up."

The four moons orbit Saturn at distances of 116,000, 183,000, 217,000 and 235,000 miles out, scattered among larger satellites.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration is cracking down on federal workers who claim excessive benefits for injuries on the job and Congress is moving toward changing the program because of so many fraudulent claims.

As an example of abuses of the program, a House Education and Labor subcommittee was told Wednesday of a machinist who injured his back in 1954 and was getting $864 per month in compensation. An investigator discovered the "disabled" worker had held a construction job since 1973 and had lied about it to the Labor Department.

Thomas F. McBride, inspector general for the department, said a study of 1,810 claims in the Southeast resulted in 119 criminal investigations and then was expanded into a national investigation.

The inquiry found some people getting duplicate payments because they were on various rolls simultaneously and doctors who were getting checks for services that either weren't necessary or were never provided.

Under the program, a federal worker injured on the job receives full pay for 45 days after his injury. Then, after a three-day waiting period, he can get up to 75 percent of his pay, tax-free, sometimes for life. For some workers, the tax-free provision results in higher net pay than when they were working.

"It concerns me that a program of this magnitude is so vulnerable to claimant fraud," said McBride.

He said the increased enforcement in the Southeast cut off benefits that are saving $585,000 a year.

"We have dramatically increased efforts to investigate claim fraud. Indictments and convictions are increasing rapidly," McBride said.

He and witnesses from the Postal Service, Transportation Department and Veterans Administration endorsed efforts to strengthen the law. The program paid $856 million to 281,000 people in fiscal 1981.

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., has introduced a bill to eliminate the 45-day full pay provision and instead allow agencies to give compensation before then "if medical conditions warrant it."

The bill also would change benefits to make it impossible for injury compensation to exceed after-tax pay when the worker was on the job. The Reagan administration has made a slightly different proposal and Congress is expected to make some changes in the program this year.

In hearings last year, union leaders complained about how the Labor Department runs the program. They opposed changing the program until after it is administered more efficiently.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Injections, behavior modification stop smoking

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am pleased to report that I have not had a cigarette since you gave me your anti-smoking shot in Baltimore three months ago. The only discomfort I had was the stinging in my arm which lasted for only a few minutes after you gave me the shot. My question is, do the shots in the arm work just as well as the shots you used to give in the nose and ears. — Mr. M.S., Denver, Colo.

Dear Mr. M.S.: I am pleased my anti-smoking injection helped you to stop smoking. I have been using anti-smoking injections for over three years and have only been injecting in the arm for the past year, but the results are just as good if not better by injecting the new solution into the arm as they were by injecting the old formula into the nose and ears. It is true that the majority of my patients have stopped smoking after injections. I think that the good results are a combination of the new anti-smoking injections, coupled with behavioral modification, and slowly clearing the body of nicotine. If you would like to read further about this treatment, you can find more information in my new book, "Stop Smoking-Lose Weight" by Putnam and Sons.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I need to lose weight, but I also have sugar diabetes. I know that you have recommended various weight-reduction programs, but my problem is the diabetes. Is there any weight reduction program that takes into account the foods I have to eat to control the diabetes. — Mrs. D.P., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Mrs. P.: The American Diabetic Association Diet can be modified to allow you to lose weight while you are eating the proper foods to help control your diabetes. The only National Weight Reduction program that I know that makes revisions for patients with medical conditions (such as diabetes mellitus, hypertension, high cholesterol, and high triglycerides) is the Nutri/System Program. I was recently introduced to this program as a consultant and found that the Nutri/System of computerized diet therapy now makes it possible to select a weight-loss program that is nutritionally sound and is designed to take into account specific medical conditions and the dietary restrictions associated with them.

This program was developed by their medical director, Dr. Norman Horvitz who is a recognized expert in the field of obesity. Dr. Horvitz worked out computerized programs that are now available in the following categories: Complex Carbohydrate (Diabetes), Restricted Sodium (Hypertension), Low-cholesterol (Hypercholesterolemia), Low-fat/Controlled Carbohydrate (Hypertriglyceridemia), Fiber (Diverticulosis), Complex Carbohydrate/frequent meals, (Reactive Hypoglycemia), Standard and Vegetarian Diets. You should check with your physician who can look into this program to see if this would be suitable for you.

Does that make megavitamins answer to 'empty nest' syndrome?

Special from Reader's Digest

Just before Easter, I remarked to my husband that, with the children grown and away from home, this was the first year we hadn't dyed eggs and had an Easter-egg hunt. "That's all right, honey," he said. "We can just hide each other's vitamin pills."

A parcel service delivered my son's hair dryer, which had been sent away for repairs. As I signed the receipt, I told the driver how anxious my son was to get the dryer back. I had hardly finished the sentence when the driver began a mini-lecture on how times had changed, using as examples the current styles in men's clothing and hair, requiring the use of a hair dryer.

"Times certainly have changed," I agreed, as the driver put the receipt in her shirt and climbed aboard her truck.

Smalltown politics sometimes heats to the boiling point, but personal relationships often keep the participants from becoming bitter.

During a recent meeting of the board of education, a number of issues riled the members, and arguments flared all around between board members and administrators as the meeting dragged on for four hours.

When the discord reached a climax, the board treasurer rose and shouted over the noise, "Everyone be quiet, please! I have an important announcement!" Looking at his watch, then back at his stern-faced audience, he explained, "It is now one minute after midnight, and it is my birthday."

The board members broke into a chorus of "Happy Birthday." After a few laughs, they got back down to business and calmly wrapped things up in the next hour.

Trying to keep a new investment company above water had consumed much of my time for many months. One pressing problem was that of selecting a new employee. Among the applications that crossed my desk was the following, neatly typed letter:

"My background embraces 18 years of sound experience in the fields of financial management, budget control and cost overrun. I have proven ability in the areas of manpower utilization, maintenance of accuracy and morale, elimination of duplication of effort and cost-reduction programs. I have mediated on labor-management decisions and have been in charge of vacation scheduling, building maintenance and the training of future executives.

"For further information, I will gladly consider a personal interview, over lunch or dinner."

The letter was signed by my wife of 18 years and mother of our three children.

— CLOYD H. KLINGENSMITH, Calif.

Several years ago, I got a well-deserved speeding ticket which directed me to appear before a judge in Park City, Utah. But in that sleepy mining town tucked back in the hills, the trick was to find the judge. The one inhabitant in view reckoned I'd likely find him at home and pointed to a frame house halfway up the canyon.

My knock was answered by a somewhat flushed, motherly-looking woman, wiping her hands on her apron. The judge, it seemed, was canning peaches. When I stated my business, she asked, "How do you plead?"

"Guilty," I said meekly. "Oh, dear, too bad," murmured Her Honor sympathetically as she rummaged through a bureau for a receipt.

Official business over, the judge, who'd spotted my English accent, put on the tea kettle, and we settled down for a chat about people and places in England. As I reluctantly drove off into the sunset — two jars of golden peaches on the seat beside me — I turned for a last glimpse of the good judge as she stood waving me on my way. Truly the most pleasant day in court I ever hope to spend!

— JACQUELINE MEYER, Utah

Our friend Tom, a deputy sheriff, was assigned the duty of breaking in a new recruit. One day, they were cruising along in the squad car with the nervous, determined-to-do-everything-right novice at the wheel. When the dispatcher ordered them to a certain location, Tom leaned over and flicked on the flashers and siren, to spare his anxious pupil a few details. Much to Tom's surprise, instead of speeding up, the recruit pulled onto the shoulder of the road. "What are you doing?" Tom asked.

"Didn't you hear that siren?" responded the rookie. "You always pull over for a siren."

"Bud," said Tom gently, "that siren is US."

Negotiators say Ford asking too much

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Negotiators for the United Auto Workers say Ford Motor Co. is asking for too much in seeking to freeze pay increases for its 106,200 workers until June 1983.

UAW Vice President Don Ephlin said Wednesday the proposal being discussed is "much too severe."

"As drafted, the next actual increase in base pay would be in June '83" when a 15-month freeze on cost-of-living allowances would end, said Peter Pestillo, Ford's chief negotiator in the emergency contract talks.

Pay for Ford's blue-collar workers averages $9.64 an hour plus a $2.03 cost-of-living allowance, according to Ford spokesman Ed Snyder. Benefits bring the total cost to about $20 an hour, the domestic carmakers estimate.

Japanese autoworkers, however, make about $8 to $10 less than that, which prompted Ford and General Motors Corp. to seek emergency contract talks in order to become more competitive.

Talks at GM and Ford began Jan. 11, but the Ford talks halted a day later when GM and the union announced agreement on the concept of passing labor cost savings on to new-car buyers. GM talks collapsed one week ago and talks at Ford resumed Monday.

Ford's proposal, made public Wednesday, would freeze COLA at its current level for 15 months, translating into a base-pay freeze.

Ford also wants to eliminate all eight paid personal holidays per year and to cut one week of vacation time for its autoworkers.

New employees would have to work five years for the company before receiving 100 percent of pay and benefits. Currently, employees get full pay and benefits after 12 weeks.

In return, Ford is offering a profit-sharing program, a guaranteed income of at least 50 percent of base pay to workers with at least 15 years' seniority and a one-year moratorium on plant closings. Ford also is offering improved supplemental unemployment benefits and preferential hiring of workers who were laid off from other Ford facilities.

Ephlin said the proposal had "innovative and creative" features that appealed to the union, but he added that some changes were necessary.

"I have no intention of signing that proposal or trying to sell it to anyone," Ephlin said. "Unless we are satisfied (that the proposal) satisfies the needs of our members, we won't be discussing wage freezes of any kind."

He added the UAW is "not ready yet" to make a counterproposal.

Ford officials refused to say how much the proposal could save. At Chrysler Corp., UAW members agreed to contract concessions over a two-year period that saved the company $622 million and gave it a $2 to $3 hourly labor-cost advantage over Ford and GM.

"It's designed to begin to meet our competitive problems," Pestillo said of the Ford proposal. "This does not get us all the way back to total competitiveness, but it's a major start."

January car sales plunge; Imports get record share

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. automakers suffered their worst January in 21 years last month as sales plunged 18.5 percent and imports captured a January-record share of the market, the companies said.

Domestic automakers said Wednesday they sold 368,138 cars in January compared with 469,832 cars sold in the first month of 1981. The percentage comparison is based on the rate of sales per day.

In a separate announcement, American Motors Corp. expanded its rebate program in response to similar sales incentives by General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

The industrywide selling rate of 14,726 cars per day was the lowest January sales rate since 1961, when domestic automakers sold about 14,700 cars per day.

"The (auto industry) depression is 35 months old," Arvid Jouppli, a Detroit-based analyst for Colin Hochstin Co., said.

"The industry is truly running on empty now."

Jouppli blamed the poor January showing on high prices, lack of consumer confidence, bad weather across the country and confusion over the potential impact on car prices of labor contract negotiations at GM.

GM said it sold 222,544 cars in January, down 21.1 percent from sales of 293,219 cars in January 1981.

At Ford, sales were down 5.7 percent for the month, to 88,806 cars from 97,969 cars in the 1981 month, while Chrysler Corp. sales were down 15 percent, to 45,290 cars against 55,452 cars in the same month last year.

AMC said it sold 6,173 cars in January, compared with 10,719 in the 1981 month, a decline of 40 percent. Volkswagen of America sales dropped 55.5 percent to 5,325 cars from last January's 12,473 cars.

Import sales amounted to about 164,000 cars, down 2.9 percent from about 176,000 in January 1981.

Imports' share of the total U.S. market increased to 30.9 percent, up from 27.3 percent in the same month last year and a record for January. Imports were the highest ever in December when they represented 31.7 percent of U.S. car sales.

AMC's old rebate program gave $300 to $600 off on selected 1981 and 1982 AMC car and Jeep models. The new $400 to $1,000 retroactive to Monday, AMC said Wednesday.

GM last week announced a 60-day rebate program on more than 20 car and truck models ranging from $500 on subcompacts to $2,000 on the luxury Cadillac Seville. On Tuesday, Ford said it would extend its incentive program on 1982 Ford Escort and Mercury Lynx subcompacts, which began Jan. 13, to early April.

Probes on way back in?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress might have to resort to the wide-ranging labor racketeering investigations of yesteryear unless the Justice and Labor departments start doing a better job of combating union corruption, two influential senators say.

Sen. Sam Nunn, ranking minority member of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, and Sen. Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Labor and Human Resources Committee, said Tuesday that efforts to fight crime are being hampered by jurisdictional questions between the two agencies.

They indicated the permanent investigations subcommittee might have to seize the initiative — as that panel did two decades ago under the leadership of Sen. John J. McClellan, D-Ark.

Nunn, D-Ga., and Hatch, R-Utah, were upset by discussions the two agencies have held on the possibility of transferring some 85 Labor Department investigators to the FBI's Organized Crime Task Force.

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., cosponsor of legislation to strengthen anti-labor racketeering laws, said:

"It distresses me greatly to think that once again, we may have a Department of Labor which seeks to avoid the immense responsibility of ensuring the integrity of the benefit plans which protect the working people of the United States. It reminds me a lot of the county sheriffs and the state police fighting over the body in a homicide case."

Hatch said, "There's a real question of whether either agency is doing its job in this area."

Political group reconsiders role

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The failure of Texas Republicans to challenge House Majority Leader Jim Wright has left a controversial political action group so disillusioned that it's reconsidering the role it will play this year in Texas politics.

"Right now, our operations in Texas are neutral," Steve De Angelo, press secretary of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, said Wednesday.

Although denied of a run at its chief target, NCPAC officials say they may help finance campaigns later in the year against "the very liberal" Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, of Beaumont and Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, of Dallas.

The organization "may or may not take sides" in some of the races in which conservative Democrats — Texas members of the "Boll Weevils" — have drawn GOP opposition, he said.

NCPAC felt it had a formidable rival for Wright, a Democrat from Fort Worth, in the city's former mayor, Woodie Woods, who had announced for the race. But Woods stunned GOP leaders on Thanksgiving Day by announcing he would not run, after all.

"There were others who were interested in running, other qualified, credible candidates, but I suppose when Woods pulled out, everybody must have thought he knew something they didn't," De Angelo said.

"It's a real disappointment, because we thought Jim Wright was vulnerable, in spite of the fact that he was a very powerful political figure in Washington," said De Angelo.

Even after Woods pulled out, NCPAC applied for television time in the Dallas-Fort Worth area to air its commercials against Wright. They were turned down by all three.

"We were denied access to the market, totally shut out. We finally ran something on an independent station, but to be effective against an entrenched liberal incumbent, like Jim Wright, you have to get your message across. But Jim Wright was effective in getting us shut out," De Angelo said.

NCPAC director Terry Dolan suggested in December that Wright persuaded the stations not to accept NCPAC's advertising — a charge dismissed by Wright as "utterly untrue and without any basis in fact." He denied any conversations with station officials about the commercials.

The organization drew criticism for its attacks in 1978 television commercials against candidates it opposed.

The commercials were abrasive and often misleading, but usually effective in persuading voters to support NCPAC's candidates. Other stations across the country also have turned down NCPAC applications for air time this time around.

The thousands upon thousands of dollars that NCPAC was committed to spend in advertising to defeat Wright would have benefited any opponent, De Angelo contended.

"I'm sure it discouraged others who might have jumped in to challenge Wright," said De Angelo.

Pentagon budget changes sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Reagan is holding his request for actual defense spending for next year to about $1 billion more than he predicted last September, he is seeking an extra $13.6 billion in new budget authority for the Pentagon, administration sources say.

The distinction is that most of the extra $13.6 billion in "budget authority" would not actually be spent in fiscal 1983. The Pentagon could, however, let contracts for that amount which would have to be paid for in later years.

The additions would bring the proposed totals for fiscal 1983 to a record $215.9 billion for defense spending and $257.7 billion in budget authority.

"The administration tried to calibrate the budget's effect on the economy so we focused on spending," said a senior administration official who asked to remain anonymous.

The Siberian Seven

The Jan. 10 issue of Parade carried a poignant account of two Soviet Christian families, known as the Siberian Seven, being trapped for almost four years as unwanted guests in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. In desperation, two of the seven have gone on a hunger strike, which has prompted a personal letter of concern from President Reagan.

They are Peter and Augustina Vashchenko; their daughters Lida, 30; Lyuba, 29; and Lila, 24; and Maria Chmykhalov and her son Timothy, 19, all from distant Siberia. Weakened by her hunger strike, Lida has been removed to a Moscow hospital and is not likely to be permitted to return to the embassy.

These Soviet refugees have been cooped up in a small basement room since June 27, 1978, the day they rushed past Soviet guards at the embassy, where they sought U.S. help in emigrating to America for freedom of worship. During the melee at the entrance, young John Vashchenko was wrestled to the ground by guards, detained, and subsequently beaten almost to death.

Before their dramatic bid for freedom, members of the Vashchenko and Chmykhalov families were fired from their jobs, beaten, and interned in labor camps and psychiatric hospitals. Confident that similar fate or worse awaited the refugees if they should be delivered over to Soviet authorities, the State Department reluctantly arranged for them to stay but has done little about obtaining safe passage to the United States, now their only hope.

One is reminded of Anne Frank's touching "Diary" which told how Jews hid in terror from the Nazis during World War II.

The Carter administration was apparently too preoccupied with human rights violations elsewhere in the world to do much of anything about these victims' suffering in its own embassy in Moscow. Now that the Reagan administration has caught its breath, one would expect some pressure at the highest levels to resolve this tragic situation. The president, in fact, has assured the seven of "unflagging" work on their behalf.

Meanwhile, Jane Drake, a suburban housewife in Montgomery, Ala., has sustained the Siberian Seven's hopes with a remarkable letter-writing campaign on their behalf and tireless efforts to arouse support in Congress and from public opinion. Almost single-handedly, Mrs. Drake has succeeded in making the Siberian Seven's fate a public issue in an inspiring example of how one American can count for something in the great issues of our time.

Japan's good first step

Japan's recent move, lowering 67 trade barriers to imports, certainly is a step in the right direction.

Mainly, the Japanese government is simplifying customs procedures and removing non-tariff barriers. Both United States and European trade negotiators hail the changes, but they also would like to see some substantial tariff reductions before they are satisfied. Any tariff cuts, however small, will be welcome.

The latest action shows good intentions but is not expected to make any great change in Japan's massive trade surpluses — estimated at $14 billion with the European Economic Community last year and $20 billion with the United States.

It was announced that one barrier to be modified is Japan's extensive testing procedures that have restricted automobile imports. Japan exported 6 million vehicles last year while importing only 38,000.

The lowering of trade barriers is a demonstration of good intentions on the part of Japan. But in the long run, what counts is actual sales. A more balanced trade between Japan and other nations will be the proof.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

The government is giving 30 million pounds of processed American cheese to the poor. I understand David Stockman was holding out for land.

The irony is that this free handout is given by the same people whose campaign slogan was, "There's no free cheese."

...

I for one refuse to pay taxes to support a bunch of cheddar cheaters and cheese queens.

...

The people must know they are being bamboozled. Giving them processed American cheese is like giving them canned wine.

...

In a dramatic show of national pride, the cheese should be shot into space. As it approaches the sun, the world would witness the latest spectacle of Yankee ingenuity — the orbital fondue.

...

The designer craze will continue to touch our lives in 1982. America's hospitals will feature a new line of medical transplants — Calvin Klein Designer Splines — and, when you really want to make an impression, Bill Blass Designer Johns.

GEORGE F. WILL

Ward's longevity more a triumph of spirit than physiology

WASHINGTON — A doctor says that Ike Ward, who died recently in Florida, died "just of old age." Just? Is old age no longer reason enough for dying in this age of high-technology medicine locked in combat with exotic ailments? Still, it is heartening to know that Ward's promotion to Glory was not due to the back injury he sustained while unloading stumps from a railroad car nine years ago, when he was 110.

Aging, like a lot of other common things (life, love, memory, the existence of the universe, the infield fly rule), remains a mystery. But many gerontologists believe that, absent disease or imprudent living, an individual ages according to his or her genetically controlled "clock." A scientist says that, ideally, we should live fairly healthily and then go "poof" rather than go into slow decline or a nursing home.

Ward, whose genetic clock was one of Nature's better efforts, went "poof" the day after he entered a nursing home where some folks probably were young enough to be his grandchildren. Perhaps he died prematurely. He said he was related to Charles Smith, who was born during the administration of President Tyler, and who was America's oldest citizen when he died in 1979 at age 137.

A smarty-pants once said that no one who has lived to be 110 or more has been remarkable for anything else. But anyone who maneuvers through 110 or more years, including years potooled by such terrors as nuclear weapons and processed cheese, has done something remarkable — foolish, perhaps, but unquestionably remarkable.

Such longevity is a triumph not just of physiology but of the spirit. Ward was black and he set a North American record for understatement when, recalling his youth, he said: "Things were different back then for the Negro race." He was born on Christmas, 1862, in Richmond, Virginia, and in slavery. Persons with unsound views of the Civil War may say that he was born under the presidency of Jefferson Davis. Actually, he was a bouncing baby constituent of Abraham Lincoln. The federal writ did not really run in Richmond at the time, but Virginia never succeeded in seceding.

Ward lived during the administrations of 24 presidents and — an even more fabulous feat of stoicism — outlived 16 wives. He did not learn to sign his name until he was 85, by which time he probably had figured out how to get along without that particular

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

D.C. airport tragedy linked to poor planning

WASHINGTON — The investigation of the recent Air Florida crash has focused mainly on determining what caused the airliner to plow into a commuter-clogged bridge and careen into the ice-covered Potomac River. The tragedy happened within seconds after the plane took off from Washington's National Airport.

But while the investigators seek to assess the blame, I have been investigating the airport itself. It is cramped into a tiny area, surrounded on three sides by the river. It is flanked by high-rise buildings.

The runways are too short, and just a few hundred yards beyond the runways loom four bridges.

Yet National Airport is one of the most congested airports in the country. Why? The story can be summed up in one word: Congress. National Airport is controlled by congressmen; it's their private fiefdom. It's wonderfully convenient; a congressman can get from his office to National Airport in less than 15 minutes.

That's why it handles as many as a thousand flights a day. And that's why the safer Dulles International Airport, a 45-minute drive away, is still not used to capacity.

Was National Airport adequately prepared to cope with the Air Florida disaster, which cost 78 lives? My reporters Tony Capaccio and David Field put the question to pilots and former air controllers. The Airline Pilots Association made its findings available. The conclusion is chilling but inescapable: The airport was not prepared to conduct an efficient rescue operation on the river.

This is hard to believe. Because National caters to probably the greatest concentration of VIPs of any airport in the world, its safety and rescue plans presumably would be first-rate. And because virtually every plane that uses the airport takes off and lands over the Potomac, it would seem logical that water rescue would be part of any contingency planning.

Unfortunately, this is not the case. The airport's emergency operations manual dated July 1977 all but ignores the possibility of a plane crashing or ditching in the Potomac. This manual, sources say, has not been changed substantially since it was published.

In a petition submitted to the Federal Aviation Administration in December 1980, the pilots association noted this blind spot in the emergency manual. For example, it didn't even list the telephone numbers or radio frequencies for the harbor police, the petition disclosed. In the Air Florida crash, authorities were first notified by a passing motorist with a CB radio.

The ALPA petition continued: "Further, all the planning maps (accompanying the manual) illustrate land areas adjacent to the airport, water areas are carefully excluded. This failing of the airport's emergency plan is reflected in its water rescue capability."

The maps in the manual listed three rescue areas in order of importance. The Fourteenth Street bridge, which the Air Florida plane hit, was not included in any category, though it is only a few hundred yards from the airport.

Here's the manual's only mention of water rescue procedures: "In the event water rescue is required, the D.C. fireboat and Coast Guard are available. The Coast Guard will be notified directly through the direct phone in the (control) tower."

But the fireboat is a mile-and-a-half from the crash site, the Coast Guard even farther away. One veteran air controller alleged: "I'm not sure the Coast Guard are on the list up there (in the tower). I think I saw a card in the phone flip file once, when I was on midnight duty and had nothing else to do."

Two other former National controllers, with a combined total of 15 years in the airport's tower, agreed that all of National's emergency planning was based on the assumption that any crash would take place on a runway or adjacent land area.

Footnote: An airport spokesman said a new map has been issued, but would not say whether water areas were now included. An FAA spokesman said the agency is still studying the pilots' 1980 petition. The truly frightening thing, of course, is that National Airport's emergency plans meet FAA regulations.

OUTSMARTING TEACHER: Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., has sent out 6,400

letters to high-school guidance counselors around the country, telling them how to get around the Reagan administration's move to cut off Social Security benefits for college-bound students whose parents are deceased, disabled or retired pensioners. Reagan's budget-cutters hoped to cut off the Class of '82 by denying Social Security payments to eligible children not enrolled in college as of next May.

But Peyser, acting on the inspiration of high-school principal John O'Mahoney of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., is urging school counselors to adopt O'Mahoney's scheme: Get the Social Security office off their backs before graduation, and let them complete their requirements for a high school diploma by showing up part-time. That way, the 1982 seniors will be able to collect their government stipend — $250 a month average — until they finish college.

WATCH ON WASTE: The federal government is engaged in educating consumers about food and nutrition — at a cost of billions of dollars a year. The regulations and studies involved are mind-boggling. For example, food transportation alone is the subject of 1,300 regulations by 14 federal agencies, and they take up 9,752 sections of the Code of Federal Regulations. And there were 11 different studies on polyunsaturated fats: Five of the studies recommended reduced intake of these fats, five didn't and the eleventh study didn't even make a recommendation.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Feb. 4, the 35th day of 1982. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 4, 1783, hostilities ended in the Revolutionary War between the United States and Britain.

On this date: In 1938, in Nazi Germany Adolf Hitler assumed the office of war minister and named Joachim von Ribbentrop foreign minister.

In 1964, China charged that the Soviet Union seeks world domination through a policy of collaboration with the United States.

In 1977, U.S. intelligence officials said the United States and the Soviet Union were attempting to develop high-energy beams that could destroy nuclear missiles in flight.

And in 1979, Iran's Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar said he would arrest Ayatollah Khomeini if the Moslem Provisional Government tried to take over the country.

Ten years ago, British troops sealed all approaches to Newry in Northern Ireland and searched visitors for weapons prior to a civil rights march planned by Roman Catholics.

Five years ago, two elevated trains crashed in Chicago, killing eleven people and injuring more than 150 others.

One year ago, talks broke down between Poland's government and leaders of a strike in the southern province of Bielsko-Biala.

Today's birthdays: Feminist leader Betty Friedan is 61. Actress Ida Lupino is 64.

Thought For Today: History is, indeed, little more than the register of the crimes, follies and misfortunes of mankind. — Edward Gibbon, English historian (1737-1794).

ART BUCHWALD
Don't let 'em squeeze your shoulder!

When I saw Dembow shoveling his snow off his walk I stopped by and said, "Getting some exercise?"

"Sort of," he said. "But then again it gives me something to do. I don't know if you've heard it or not but I am now an unemployment statistic."

"I'm sorry to hear that," I said.

"Why are you edging away from me?" he wanted to know.

"Was I edging away from you?" I said in surprise.

"Don't worry about it. You're not the first person who's done it. The thing I discovered about being unemployed is that it is not considered so much an economic tragedy, but more a social disease. People are afraid you've got something that they could catch."

"I never thought about it. How do they behave?"

"Well, as you know, the first thing anyone in this country asks you is 'What do you do?' If you say you're unemployed, you can see the person becoming nervous and fidgety. He either tries to get away or starts telling you stories about other people he knew who were unemployed, like we all had the same bad problem."

"What do you say now when people ask you what you do?"

"I tell them I do dishes, watch television, make beds, and now I can tell them I shovel snow."

"Don't you tell them you're looking for another job?"

"Rarely. Most people freeze up when you tell them that because they're afraid you will ask them for one. I guess the toughest thing about being out of a job is talking about it with friends. All they keep doing is squeezing you on the shoulder and saying 'Everything's going to be okay.'"

"They haven't done me any good, but they sure have made my shoulder sore."

"You're lucky you can still shovel snow."

"There is a lot more to this unemployment bit than people know. First of all people tend to think you did something wrong, or you wouldn't have been laid off. It's like being raped. The victim is the one who is under suspicion. You can see it in their eyes. 'Old Dembow, just couldn't cut the mustard.' Then there's a telegraph system in this country and the word gets around faster than you can get a letter across town. You start hearing, from every place you had a charge account. Even if you don't owe them any money, they know you're not going to spend any with them any more, so they figure they have nothing to lose by being nasty."

"How is your wife taking all this?"

"She's been great and so have the kids. But her relatives seem to be enjoying my bad luck. Ever since I married Evie they said she made a mistake, and now they feel their predictions have come true."

"But being out of work doesn't make a person a bad husband or a bad wife."

"It does to the spouse's relatives. Most of Evie's live in deathly fear the phone's going to ring and she's going to ask them to take us in."

"I must say, you're handling yourself very well for a person who is having a difficult time."

"I didn't intend to. When I got word I was canned I wanted to kill somebody, but I didn't know who to kill, so I'm just biding my time."

"Are you still planning on killing somebody?"

"Yup, the next economic expert who says, 'Things have to get worse before they get better.'"

"Well," I said, "it's good talking to you. I have to get back to the old grind." Then I realized my faux pas. "I'm terribly sorry I said that, Dembow."

"Forget it," he said. "At least you didn't squeeze my shoulder."

'Badly needed' china seen at last

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan's new china set survived its White House debut intact. Nary a $48 cup was broken.

And despite its $200,000 price tag — paid with a donation from the non-profit Knapp Foundation — there didn't seem to be a critic in the house.

Even the butlers loved it, according to chief usher Rex Scouten. The 4,372-piece set, which the first lady had said was so "badly, badly needed," was unveiled Wednesday night at a state dinner honoring President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt.

It was the first thing he mentioned in his after-dinner toast. "Before I start, let me first congratulate Mrs. Reagan for the new china, which is very elegant," Mubarak said.

The 120-dinner guests applauded and the first lady laughed. Mubarak wasn't the only one with compliments.

The butlers "are mighty proud of it," Scouten said. "They are thrilled to death. It's beautiful."

Vice President George Bush called it fine china and said it was outrageous to criticize the first lady since she acquired it at no cost to the taxpayers.

"I think she should get some credit," he said. Lyn Nofziger, who recently quit his White House post of political director, said it was "about time we had some new china here and I don't know what all the fuss is about."

The 220-piece setting service was ordered seven months ago and arrived by truck Tuesday in time to be hand-washed for Wednesday night's dinner.

day night's dinner.

The ivory china with a red and gold border was the showcase for a dinner of filet of mountain trout farcie with fleurons, supreme of chicken with red peppers and white rice, green beans amandine, port salad cheese, watercress and mushroom salad, chocolate mousse and petits fours.

Each place setting consists of 19 pieces, but only seven were used Wednesday: service plate, salad plate, dinner plate, fish plate, dessert plate, demitasse cup and saucer.

The other pieces are: soup plate, finger bowl plate, butter plate, tea cup and saucer, bouillon cup, cream soup cup and stand, berry bowl, cereal bowl, ramekin, and cocktail cup. In addition, 60 extra demitasse cups and tea cups were ordered, along with 72 large platters.

Obviously sensitive to past criticism of the china purchase, Mrs. Reagan's press office put out a chart showing the cost in 1981 dollars of dishes purchased in the administrations of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Lyndon Baines Johnson.

According to Mrs. Tate, the only other White House china that was not paid by taxpayers was the Johnson service, contributed by an anonymous donor.

Mrs. Tate made the following cost comparisons with other White House china:

FDR — $9,301.20 actual cost; $74,108 in 1981 dollars.

Truman — $28,271.40 actual cost; $96,100 in 1981 dollars.

Johnson — $80,028.24 actual cost; $195,000 in 1981 dollars.

Reagan — $209,508 actual and 1981 cost.

"I thought it would be interesting historically," Mrs. Tate said of the comparison.

Some won't get assumed social security

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security Administration says it is looking for a way to get corrected information to an unknown number of 17-year-old high school students mistakenly told they are entitled to Social Security benefits for college.

Agency officials discussed the error Wednesday after Rep. Peter A. Peyser, D-N.Y., revealed the foul-up at a congressional hearing.

"There was just a screw-up and we're going to try to fix it," Nelson Sabatini, executive assistant to the commissioner, told reporters.

Associate Commissioner Sandy Crank told two House education subcommittees the agency had made "extraordinary" efforts to publicize the impending cutoff of college benefits approved by Congress last August.

But Crank and other officials said they discovered a few weeks ago that the Birmingham and Kansas City processing centers — which together cover 20 states and 36 percent of the population — sent outdated pamphlets to some 17-year-olds from August until December or January.

"Unfortunately, through an error, the old stock of pamphlets was not destroyed at the time the new stock was received... (and) some of the old stock of pamphlets was used in notices to children after August 1981."

Peyser asked him, "In fairness, don't you think there's an obligation on the administration to make that correction?"

Under the phaseout, no new awards will be made to college students unless they are attending college full-time before May 1, 1982. Those who beat the deadline or already get the aid will have their benefits reduced gradually until they are eliminated by April 1985.

The impending cutoff has prompted thousands of high school seniors to seek early admission to colleges so they will be enrolled before the May 1 deadline.

Several lawmakers said they expect Congress to delay the cutoff date by a few months so this year's senior class can get in under the wire. Reps. Gerald B.H. Solomon, R-N.Y., and Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo., have introduced bills for such a delay.

Crank claimed it would have cost $1 million to put a simple notice of the change in the checks of all 36 million Social Security beneficiaries, or $7 million to mail separate leaflets to them.

Kimberly Gersten, an eighth grade student at Permian Basin High School, has been nominated by the PBHS administration to participate in "Shake Hands with Your Future," a program for gifted and talented youth sponsored by the Texas Tech University College of Education and Division of Continuing Education this summer. The two-week program offers a variety of courses, field trips, special lectures, mentor sessions, counseling-communication sessions and recreational activities.

Virginia honors 'heroic' rescuer

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia General Assembly has commended Lennie Skutnik for heroism in rescuing a woman from the Potomac River after the Air Florida jetliner crash Jan. 13.

Skutnik, 29, of Lorton, Va., was given a standing ovation Wednesday before the House of Delegates and state Senate as a resolution was unanimously adopted lauding his "unselfish act of bravery."

The Congressional Budget Office employee was driving in the vicinity of the crash, which claimed 78 lives, when he saw a survivor, Priscilla Tirado, struggling in the icy water.

With two broken legs and suffering from exhaustion and the extreme cold, she was unable to grasp a life ring dropped from a helicopter.

Skutnik halted his car and, in a scene witnessed by millions when it was broadcast on television, removed his coat and shoes and plunged into the water. He swam to Ms. Tirado and assisted her to the shore.

NEW YORK (AP) — Being a successful choreographer at age 76 hasn't solved all of Agnes de Mille's problems. In fact, it has complicated her relationship with the Internal Revenue Service.

"For the last two months, I've been doing my income taxes," she said Wednesday after winning an award from Hobart and William Smith colleges. "Our income tax system is absolutely dreadful. I earn the money twice."

Miss de Mille, choreographer of "Brigadoon" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," and niece of Cecil B. de Mille, won the Elizabeth Blackwell Award given annually to an outstanding woman.

She complained her returns were unusually complicated because she received money from so many sources.

"My ballets are being done all over the world," she said, adding that her returns are complicated by her royalties from her book "Reprieve."

The book describes her struggle after a stroke that left her with the use of only one hand and one leg.

Von Bulow's stepson testifies

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Prince Alexander G. von Auersperg was reluctant to tell his mother he suspected Claus von Bulow was trying to kill her, because "that's not a very nice thing to accuse body of... unless you're sure."

Von Auersperg took the stand Wednesday for a second day in von Bulow's trial on charges of twice trying to kill his heiress wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, with insulin injections.

Von Auersperg, von Bulow's stepson, testified Wednesday that he and private investigator Edwin Lambert discovered a black bag containing drugs and a hypodermic needle. The bag was found in von Bulow's closet at the couple's Newport mansion.

The state contends von Bulow used the needle to inject his wife with insulin and barbiturates in attempts on her life during Christmas visits to their Newport mansion in 1979 and 1980.

The state contends von Bulow tried to kill his wife out of love for another woman and greed for the estimated $15 million he stood to inherit upon his wife's death.

The defense contends Mrs. von Bulow fell into a coma because she abused drugs and ignored medical advice to avoid sweets and alcohol because she suffered from hypoglycemia, or low blood sugar. Mrs. von Bulow is not expected to recover from her coma.

Prosecutor Stephen Famiglietti said he would call Lambert and Mrs. von Bulow's maid, Maria Schraillhammer, to the stand today.

Miss Schraillhammer discovered the black bag among von Bulow's possessions and kept track of it a year after Mrs. von Bulow fell into a first coma, recovered and then fell into her current coma.

"If you were sure (about your suspicions) you'd have gone to your mother and tried to tell her about it. Isn't that so?" defense lawyer Herald Fahringer asked von Auersperg.

"That's correct," von Auersperg said. Auersperg is the son of his mother's first marriage to a titled but impoverished Austrian characterized by the defense as "a playboy." Von Auersperg said he was 6 when von Bulow became his stepfather.

The 22-year-old Brown University student acknowledged that von Bulow gave him advice and guidance as he grew up, but repeatedly corrected Fahringer when he referred to von Bulow as "your father."

"My stepfather," von Auersperg said sharply.

Pressed by the defense lawyer, von

Auersperg revealed that he, his sister Annie-Laurie Kneissl and his maternal grandmother, Martha Aitken, had paid former Manhattan prosecutor Richard Kuh between $70,000 and $100,000 to investigate their suspicions about von Bulow before going to police.

Indiana man heads cattlemen's group

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The National Cattlemen's Association closed its fifth national convention by electing Sam Washburn, a Fowler, Ind., farmer, as president for the coming year.

John D. Weber, Alturas, Calif., was named first vice president, and W.J. "Dub" Waldrip, Lubbock, was chosen president-elect at the final business session Wednesday.

Waldrip will work with Washburn during the coming year. Under a by-laws change approved last year, the NCA president-elect will succeed to the presidency automatically after a one-year term.

The NCA is a national trade association based in Denver, Colo., and represents 245,000 cattlemen, including members of 71 affiliated state cattle and national breed organizations.

June Bradley, Colorado Springs, Colo., was named president of the American National CowBelles at its 31st convention, held in conjunction with the NCA meeting.

Washburn owns and operates a grain and cattle farm and previously was chairman of the NCA Foreign Trade Committee. He succeeds J.W. Swan, of Rogerson, Idaho, as president.

Weber has a cow-calf and yearling operation in Northeastern California and Northwestern Nevada and has been serving as chairman of the NCA Public Lands Committee.

Waldrip, executive vice president and general manager of Spade Ranches in West Texas and New Mexico, has served as chairman of the NCA Beef Cattle Research Committee.

Mrs. Bradley and her husband, Charles, own and manage in partnership with their sons a cow-calf and yearling operation on two ranches in El Paso and Teller Counties in Colorado.

Prosecutor plans to prove hatred as motive

ATLANTA (AP) — After producing witnesses to place Wayne B. Williams with two slain young blacks on the days they disappeared, a prosecutor says he'll show Williams' hatred for "certain elements" of his race was a motive for the slayings.

Defense lawyer Alvin Binder objected Wednesday when prosecutors in the murder trial asked witness Denise Marlin if she ever heard Williams make derogatory remarks about blacks.

After Judge Clarence Cooper excused the jury, Ms. Marlin testified that Williams used a derogatory term to refer to "his own race."

"He used to call his own race niggers," Ms. Marlin testified after the jury left the courtroom.

Assistant District Attorney Jack Mallard told Cooper during a hearing out of the jury's presence that the state has several witnesses who will testify about racially derogatory remarks by Williams.

"We expect to show by several other witnesses that this was his bent of mind toward his own race, toward certain elements of his own race," Mallard said. "This goes to motive, to his bent of mind."

Cooper adjourned the hearing to his chambers without giving Binder a chance to argue in open court against admitting the testimony about motive. The judge later promised he would rule on the issue today.

Williams is charged with the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks whose deaths during a 22-month period have been under investigation by a special police task force. There have been no arrests in the 26 other slayings.

Robert I. Henry, a surprise witness discovered by prosecutors Monday, testified Wednesday he saw Williams and Cater holding hands on an Atlanta street the night of May 21. That was just hours before Williams was stopped near a Chattahoochee River bridge where prosecutors contend Cater's body was dumped. The body was pulled from the river May 24.

And A.B. Dean, an elderly Douglas County resident, testified Wednesday he saw Williams and Payne standing next to a taxi in west Atlanta on April 22, the day Payne disappeared.

Dean was the first witness in the 6-week-old trial to place Williams with Payne, whose body also was found in the Chattahoochee River. Earlier, Margaret Carter testified she saw Williams and Cater together in a park a week before he disappeared.

The testimony by Henry and Dean came as prosecutors began wrapping up their case of circumstantial evidence against the 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and aspiring talent scout.

Prosecutors have presented evidence in 10 other killings of young blacks in an effort to show a pattern of slayings that includes the deaths of Cater and Payne. Williams does not face charges in those 10 killings.

Prior to Ms. Marlin's testimony, the only hint of motive provided by the state has been the testimony of two black teen-agers who claimed Williams offered them money to perform homosexual acts.

One of the two, 16-year-old Andrew Hayes, testified Wednesday that Williams offered him $20 in 1978 to perform oral sex on Williams. The youth was not asked how he responded.

Henry, who said he had worked out of the same temporary labor pool as Cater for several years, said two other people with Cater and Williams on May 21 "were dressed as women, but they appeared to be men because they didn't have any curves."

The middle-aged black man said he did not tell authorities about what he had seen before this week because "I didn't want to get involved." He said a detective tracked him down after an acquaintance gave him his name to the detective.

Office romances inevitable

By ANNE BEATON
Hearst Feature Service

Furtive glances. Sweet nothings over the water cooler. Mixing business with pleasure. Ah yes, the office romance. The stuff of fantasies.

Icy stares. U-turns in the hallway. Mixing business with pain. Uh-oh, another office romance. The stuff of nightmares.

No matter how it turns out, love on the job is inevitable.

Cosmopolitan Magazine editor Helen Gurley Brown, for one, is all for them. "Where else are you going to meet men?" asks Brown, who for years has promoted office romance in her magazine.

"Is a girl supposed to go to singles bars after work when she has been with perfectly good men all day? No, I say take your opportunities where you may."

But Dr. Arthur Witkin, chief psychologist at Personnel Sciences Center in New York, a business consulting firm, sees it quite differently. "The day you get involved in an office romance is the day you start looking for a new job, because when it ends, one or both of you will have to leave."

Said a 30-year-old Cape Cod, Mass., woman, a low-level manager with a publishing firm who ended up marrying a mid-level manager a year ago: "Working together really helped our love grow. And we share the same interests. I was married before to a zoologist and, well, zoology and novels didn't mix."

But a 27-year-old secretary, who was fired recently for having an affair with her boss, moaned: "Never, never will I do it again. I got a new job and became interested in someone there. But I waited until he moved to another company before I started dating him."

The secretary went on to explain the circumstances behind her dismissal. A co-worker complained after discovering that the secretary was putting in for more time than she actually was working. Her boss and lover was willingly signing the secretary's time cards since she was spending the missing time with him.

So what is the truth about office romances? Are they exciting liaisons that can end in marital bliss, or are they hopelessly doomed affairs that exact a painful price?

The experts say it largely depends on the type of office romance — and there are several.

Robert E. Quinn, a sociologist at the State University of New York at Albany who has studied office amours for several years, describes a few of the different relationships that can develop.

The boss-subordinate relationship: By far the most dangerous office affair, it usually involves a man in a high-level position and a young woman in a low-level job. The man, who often is married, often seeks sex and ego gratification; the woman is viewed as wanting status, a promotion or a raise. This type of relationship is the most disruptive because of the inevitable jealousy and resentment it arouses in co-workers.

The egalitarian romance: In this relationship, both partners are on the same level; both are salesmen or clerks, for instance. If the relationship should sour, trouble can develop. The erstwhile lovers may refuse to have anything to do with one another, even though cooperation is essential to carry out their jobs properly.

The fling: Here, the partners are briefly infatuated with each other. When the infatuation fizzles, some discomfort may result, but usually all returns to normal in due time.

True love: Each partner is seen by co-workers as genuinely caring for the other. They often end up getting married.

While some companies frown on employing married couples, the experts say they should reconsider. Since stability usually is important to married couples, they tend to stay in their jobs, and often are more highly motivated.

But most companies and businesses have an unofficial policy on office affairs: simply, they would prefer it didn't happen.

DEAR ABBY Reader partial to complete poem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently I had the sad task of correctly identifying a beautiful passage for inclusion in the eulogy for a young neighbor who died suddenly. I was, therefore, pleased but left unsatisfied to see a pale facsimile of it submitted by a Michigan reader and run in your column.

Your applied title of "Perspective" was good, but not as apt as the real one, "A Parable of Immortality." Further, the author's name is not Henry Scott Holland, but Henry Van Dyke, a famous American preacher, poet and philosopher — and the full text, while still brief, deserves to be printed. I enclose a copy for your use. — WILLIAM D. SANTORO, M.D.

"I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength and I stand and watch until at last she hangs like a speck of white cloud just where the sea and sky come down to mingle with each other. Then someone at my side says, 'There she goes!'"

"Gone where? Gone from my sight ... that is all. She is just as large in mast and hull and spar as she was when she left my side and just as able to bear her load of living freight to the place of destination. Her diminished size is in me, not in her. And just at the moment when someone at my side says, 'There she goes!' there are other eyes watching her coming and other voices ready to take up the glad shout, 'There she comes!'"

DEAR ABBY: Should a mother tell her daughter she is loud, and if so, how?

My daughter is truly a lovely person, and I am so proud of her for many reasons, but when she is in a group of people she tends to get loud and strident; she talks constantly and laughs raucously. These are not easy things to say to one's daughter. However, she's 35 years old, and I'm sure these are qualities that cause men to shy away from her. She is a beautiful girl, kind, happy and intelligent.

Can you suggest a way to handle this? — STYMIED MOM

DEAR MOM: Be as gentle and diplomatic as possible. First let your daughter know that you think she is "truly lovely, beautiful, kind and intelligent." Then suggest that at times her enthusiasm causes her to come on a little too strong, so if she could try to tone down a few decibels, she would be even more attractive.

DEAR ABBY: When signing cards, letters, invitations, etc., whose name appears first, my husband's or mine? We have been arguing about this for some time. Also, where can I buy a breast pump? — RUTHIE IN ERIE

DEAR RUTHIE: If YOU write the card, letter, invitation, etc., your name appears first. If your husband does the writing, his name appears first.

You can purchase a breast pump at your local drugstore. (Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

New way with Frozen Lime Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Topping, recipe follows

It was in the 1920s that automatic (electric) refrigerators, complete with freezing trays, began to be part of the well-equipped American kitchen. And naturally cookbooks of that era encouraged cooks to try frozen desserts — including frozen pies.

Until recently we followed the usual directions for frozen pies: crumb crusts filled with various sorts of mixtures suitable for freezing.

Now we've made a reversal. In the following recipe we layer the filling in the pie plate first. Then when the filling is partly frozen — but its top is still not entirely firm — we spread the surface with a crustlike crumb topping that has been prepared ahead. If you try this method, as given in the following recipe, we hope you enjoy the reversal as much as did our tasters.

FROZEN LIME "PIE"

2 large eggs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 pint half-and-half
1 teaspoon grated lime rind
1-3rd cup fresh lime juice

Pour into an 8 by 2-inch cake pan; place in freezer until mixture is frozen around the edges. Turn into a bowl and beat until just smooth. Pour into a 9-inch pie plate and place in freezer. Make Topping. When the lime mixture is partly frozen, but the top is not entirely firm, press the Topping evenly over the surface. Place in freezer until Topping is frozen, then wrap appropriately and store in freezer.

Topping: In an 8-inch skillet, melt ¼ cup (¼ of a 4-ounce stick) butter; off heat stir in ¼ cup finely crushed graham cracker crumbs and ¼ cup (fairly coarsely broken) walnuts. Distribute as evenly as possible in a 13 by 9 by 1-inch pan (crumb mixture will not cover bottom); bake in a preheated 375-degree oven, stirring once or twice, until lightly browned — about 8 minutes. Cool completely.

the recent International Cooking School held at the Girl Scout Center recently.

Midland Girl Scouts conducted a week-long International Cooking School recently for Brownies, Junior and Cadette Scouts in preparation for Thinking Day, an International Girl Scout Celebration scheduled for Feb. 20.

Each afternoon during the week, Brownie and Junior troops prepared shashlik (shish kebab), a special way of serving grilled meat that originated in the Near and Middle East.

Junior and Cadette Scouts spent a Saturday preparing dishes from other countries.

FRUIT SALAD

Bananas
Oranges
Pineapple
Papaya
Sugar
Condensed Milk
Pinch of instant coffee

Cut bananas, papaya and pineapple into cubes. Peel and slice oranges. Sprinkle with sugar. Mix together with instant coffee. Serve with condensed milk.

SHASHLIK

This is really just a special way of serving grilled meat — it is found all over the Near and Middle East, too, where it is called shish kebab.

1½ pounds lamb, mutton or beef
¼ cup olive or salad oil
¼ cup vinegar
2 bay leaves
1 onion
3 or 4 tomatoes
Mushrooms, optional
Bacon, optional

The secret of a good shashlik is the way in which the meat is prepared overnight. Cut meat into 2-inch cubes, with no fat, and let them marinate, or soak, overnight in a dish of the vinegar and oil with 2 bay leaves and an onion cut up coarsely. If possible, turn the pieces once, at least, before you leave them for the night. Next day, take meat out and let it drain. The toughest meat is tender and good after this treatment.

Thread the chunks of meat onto the skewers and between each piece of meat put a quarter of a tomato, a mushroom or a bit of bacon, till the skewer is full. Brush the whole thing with salad oil, using a pastry brush or small clean paintbrush. Place your skewers on the grill (or 2 or 3 inches under the broiler-high flame,) turning them 2 or 3 times. They should be done in about 10 minutes. Shashlik is usually served on the skewer around a big mound of plain rice. When you are ready to eat, push the meat and tomatoes off the skewer onto your plate with a fork.

POTATO CANDY

...And at Easter, in addition to the traditional dyed eggs, there was something wrong if there were not also some of the chocolate-covered eggs filled with mashed potato and sugar in combination...

1 baked potato
Confectioners sugar
Vanilla
Melted chocolate

As soon as the potato is baked, warm a mixing bowl and scoop the potato from its skin. Mash and add confectioners sugar, stirring and adding until mixture can be kneaded with the hands. Knead well, keeping warm, add vanilla and form into small balls. Dip quickly in melted chocolate kept warm over hot water and drop on waxed paper. Or shape like Easter eggs and dip. Potato balls can be flattened and topped with english walnut halves, the mixture can be used to stuff dates, which are rolled in sugar, or it can be rolled out like dough, spread with peanut butter, rolled up and sliced, then dipped in coconut.

Stew dishes popular in many lands

By TOM HOGE
AP Wire and Food Writer

What is the most popular dish the world over? According to a United Nations survey, it is stew.

When I was covering the U.N. councils about a decade ago, officials took time out to check on national dishes. Of some 70 nations they polled, 40 listed stew in one form or another as their favorite.

Probably no form of cooking is more satisfying than the tossing of one's favorite ingredients into a pot and watching the mixture simmer while a tantalizing aroma wafts through the kitchen.

Stews can be prepared in a number of ways devised by generations of cooks, but there are two main methods. Browned stews provide a richness that emanates from various juices after the ingredients have been browned. Another way is to add stock to uncooked ingredients and let the dish simmer, gradually releasing various flavors.

Many stews, especially those with meat, are better if they are allowed to stand overnight in the refrigerator, giving the components a chance to blend more closely.

One reason for the popularity of stew is doubtless the fact that it is relatively easy to prepare. You just put the ingredients together and let them simmer for a couple of hours, stirring the mixture occasionally.

At one time, in American country homes, stew was an end-of-the-week catchall for leftovers, and some samples I tried tasted like it. But in recent years, with the increasing popularity of foreign dishes, stew has taken on a gourmet status both in restaurants and for entertaining at home.

Wine or beer are often added to give the sauce a lift, and relatively good cuts of meat are used. Keep in mind, however, that choice pieces of beef filet are wasted in stew, since they tend to fall apart during prolonged cooking and they have less flavor than the sturdier cuts.

Stews often tell the story of a nation's eating habits. Potatoes are a must in Irish stew, Scotch stew is known for its barley, Italian ragout features a pasta accompaniment, and Hungarian goulash would not be considered complete without the flat egg noodles.

A favorite is beef stew with a stock made from bouillon, red wine and soy sauce. Here's the recipe.

2 pounds beef round, cubed
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and pepper
2 ounces soy sauce
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 cans (10½ ounces each) beef bouillon
16 ounces dry red wine
12 small white onions, peeled
6 medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
2 dozen small, fresh mushrooms

Dredge meat with flour and brown in olive oil in pot. Add about 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Add soy sauce, Worcestershire, bouillon and wine. Bring to boil, cover and simmer about 90 minutes till meat is tender. Add water, if liquid boils down too much. Add remaining ingredients, except mushrooms, and simmer 45 minutes more. Add mushrooms and simmer 8 to 10 more minutes. Serves 6. Good with a dry white wine.

Refreshing Peach Pudding has Scandinavian origins

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

EVENING REFRESHER

Peach Pudding

PEACH PUDDING

It stems from a delicious Scandinavian recipe.

1 cup fork-stirred all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking soda

¼ teaspoon salt

1 large egg

2-3rds cup granulated sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla

16-ounce can sugarless sliced peaches, undrained

1-3rd cup firmly packed light brown sugar

½ teaspoon ground ginger

Walnuts

On wax paper stir together the flour, baking soda and salt. In a 2-quart casserole thoroughly beat together the egg, granulated sugar and vanilla; stir in the peaches. Add the flour mixture and stir until moistened. Stir together the brown sugar, ginger and nuts; sprinkle over top. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean and pudding is well browned — 40 to 45 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 6 servings.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Lighten potted plants with foam

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a handy-dandy tip for houseplant freaks, and I'm one! Last year when I repotted my biggest plants and put them into pots and tubs — a size no woman should lift — I placed a lot of the little white plastic foam packing squiggles in the bottom of the pots to lighten the load and act as drainage for the plants. Besides, they were FREE!

It worked like a charm, and I've lifted my plants indoors and out, upstairs and down, with no backache.

This year I discovered a tremendous bonus. Because of the excellent drainage provided, they grew like jungle plants and many of them had to be repotted. You should see the roots! They tunneled through that network of squiggles and made themselves so at home, growing and filling out the pot space while they were seeking moisture down below the soil line.

I thought I was going to part with my biggies but this terrific idea saved them. — Cheerily, Bertha

It's a good feeling to know you've discovered something that will make your work easier and even better than it was before. How about that — double duty! — Heloise

HANDY HANGER

Dear Heloise: Nail empty thread spools onto the walls of the garage or work shop to use for hanging work clothes or raincoats.

CAKE LINERS

Dear Heloise: The wax lining that comes in dry cereal boxes is heavier than regular waxed paper in the roll.

It's great to use for baking, to line the pan for making fruit cakes and quick breads. — Faye Ann Nelson

RAISINS, ARISE

Dear Heloise: To keep raisins from sinking to the bottom when baking, do this: After sifting the dry ingredients, add the raisins and stir them around.

Being flour-coated, the raisins won't sink during baking. — E. Howard

SHELF LINING

Dear Heloise: I used the wallpaper left over from papering the bathroom in our old house to line the shelves and cabinets in our bathroom at our new house.

Since I'm using the same colors, it works perfectly. A plus: The wallpaper is vinyl-coated, and that makes for easy cleanup!

What a way to use up old wallpaper I've hated to throw away! — Bonnie Sue Williams

Garage sales are a good place to pick up rolls of used wallpaper for pennies. Don't stop with the bath closet either; those linen cabinets, bureau drawers and closet shelves could put that paper to good use too. — Heloise

CHEAP STUFFING

Dear Heloise: If you make stuffed animals or dolls for children, the best and cheapest stuffing is nylon hose or underwear.

I wash and dry ready-to-discard items, then stuff them in an old stocking that I've hung on a hook in my closet.

You'll be surprised how fast they accumulate. — T. Prosser

That's the truth! They add up faster than lids from margarine tubs! — Heloise

Honey Wheat-Germ Bread makes a great sandwich

By JONATHAN YARDLEY

The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

I am a creature of rigid habit, which drives my wife bananas but leaves me ample time to think Great Thoughts. Every day I eat lunch at home — which is usually six days a week — I serve myself the same meal. It takes approximately 3 minutes to prepare and 5 to eat, it is obscenely nutritious and I love it as much now as I did when first I ate it many years ago.

Remove Honey Wheat-Germ Bread from refrigerator. Cut two generous slices. Spread mayonnaise on one side of each. Cover one with sharp cheddar cheese, preferably of the white Vermont variety. Add two or three leaves of Boston lettuce, sprinkle with freshly ground pepper, cover with the other slice of bread. Serve, if on a diet, with fake-sweetened iced tea; if not, with beer or ale. Eat, drink and get back to work.

But if you are going to treat yourself to this certifiable treat, you are going to have to make yourself some Honey Wheat-Germ Bread — because without it, this would be just another better-than-average cheese sandwich. I have been making this bread for nearly a decade, ever since I found the recipe in Bernard Clayton Jr.'s magisterial "The Complete Book of Breads," and I swear by it.

From start to finish is 3 1/2 hours at most, of which only about half an hour is actual kitchen time. While the dough is rising, rising again and baking, I find there's plenty of time to read a book, write a book review or a column — or procrastinate.

Clayton's recipe yields two loaves, but I always double it. The bread freezes very well; it seems sensible to get twice the bread for the same amount of work. But before giving you the recipe, a couple of comments.

First, like virtually every other American cookbook author, Clayton calls for far too much salt and sugar in his recipes. He evidently operates on the assumption that a package of yeast needs approximately a teaspoon of salt with which to interact, but that's far more than is necessary; a third or a fourth of that works just fine, with happy results for the blood pressure. In this recipe I haven't reduced the amount of honey, because I like the taste of it; but you can, if you want to, and you'll still get great bread.

Second, I have found that when I make large amounts of bread, I get more uniform loaves if I weigh the dough on a kitchen scale after dividing it. Then I can move small clumps of dough from one lump to another until each lump weighs the same. In this recipe the lumps should weigh about a 1 1/2 pounds apiece.

HONEY WHEAT-GERM BREAD

(4 loaves)

3 to 4 cups unbleached flour, approximately 1 cup nonfat dry milk
6 tablespoons wheat germ
1 teaspoon salt
4 packages dry yeast
4 cups hot tap water
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup honey
6 cups whole-wheat flour

In a large bowl put 2 cups unbleached flour and stir in milk, wheat germ, salt, yeast and water. Add vegetable oil, honey and 4 cups whole-wheat flour. Beat with electric mixer or beater at medium-high speed for 3 minutes. Add remaining 2 cups whole-wheat flour and stir with heavy spoon. Add remaining unbleached flour, 1/2 cup at a time, until dough forms a mass; you may not need as much as 2 additional cups.

Knead the dough on a counter top that has been sprinkled with unbleached flour. If dough gets sticky (and it will) add small amounts of unbleached flour. After 5 or 10 minutes, the dough should be smooth and elastic. (Clayton recommends punching the dough and slamming it against the counter to hasten the kneading process. I endorse this suggestion wholeheartedly, as it provides an excellent way to vent one's anger against authors, publishers, editors and other malefactors.)

Put the dough in a large buttered bowl and flip it to coat all the dough with butter. Cover with a dish towel and place in a warm spot — at this time of year an unlit oven is very good. After about an hour the dough should have doubled in size. One good test is to stick your finger into it; if the dent doesn't spring back, you're ready. Divide the dough into 4 equal pieces, shape them into loaves and put them in buttered 8 1/2-by-4 1/2-inch loaf pans. Cover with the dish towel and allow to rise until the top of the dough is level with the top of the pans, about 50 minutes.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees, or 325 if using glass pans.

Bake the loaves for 50 to 60 minutes. To test doneness remove a loaf from its pan and rap its bottom; if you get a nice hollow sound, the loaf is cooked. Dry on wire racks. Freeze in plastic bags.

Diet chef shares his best gourmet 'tricks'

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Myles Omel is a diet chef who realizes that low-calorie food won't do any good if it stays on the plate. The dieter will just turn to fattening comfort food to make up for the dinner-time disaster.

"What's most important is that the food tastes good," said Omel, himself a former heavyweight (that was 52 pounds ago) and the author of "The Diet Chef's Gourmet Cookbook," (Frederick Fell Publishers, Inc., N.Y. $14.95). His goal, Omel said, is "to make low-calorie food taste like it isn't."

"That's the main thing — to make it taste good, so you won't know that it's diet food. Nothing will ruin a diet more than repetition."

The chef had these tips to offer diet cooks:

— Shallots "emulsify beautifully so I use shallots a lot as a thickener."

— Thicken sauces the low-calorie way by reducing the liquids over high heat. Another good technique is to blend the vegetables used to make the sauce. They act as the thickening.

— Cornstarch and water contain 30 calories to thicken sauce to serve four to six instead of 260 for a flour and butter roux. That's a significant savings, Omel said. "It's not the lowest but the calories are almost insignificant."

— Rice is a good pick for dieters because it has only 90 calories per half cup.

— Use diet margarine for sandwiches and toast. "It's half the calories because it's whipped with water."

Omel, unlike other diet cooks, advises that you cook chicken with the skin still attached, then remove it after cooking. "I've tried chicken without the skin and it just dries out," he said. "I've never found a recipe that's satisfying for chicken without skin."

The yogurt in his chicken tandoori will caramelize in the last 10 minutes of cooking, sealing in the flavors.

"For the ones that aren't on a diet, let them enjoy it without knowing you saved hundreds of calories," he said. Turmeric may be substituted for the costly saffron, which adds a pretty golden color.

CHICKEN TANDOORI

6 half chicken breasts

1 cup yogurt

Pinch of saffron steeped in 1 tablespoon boiling water

Juice of one-half lemon

2 tps. curry powder

1 tsp. paprika

1 tsp. garlic salt

Remove any excess fat from the chicken breasts. Combine theyogurt, saffron, lemon juice, curry powder, paprika and garlic salt, blending them to a smooth consistency. Dip the chicken pieces into the mixture. For extra flavor, let them soak in the mixture for several hours, refrigerated.

Drain and place the chicken pieces on a rack, skin side up, and bake them at 425 degrees. If desired, a whole, cut-up chicken may be used. In that case, bake the breast portions for 25 minutes, the dark meat pieces for 45 minutes.

DIET RICE

1 tsp. diet margarine

¼ cup chopped onion

1 clove garlic, minced

1 cup rice

2 cups (generous) chicken stock

Melt the margarine in a nonstick skillet and cook the onion and garlic until they are golden. Stir in the rice, then the hot stock. Simmer the mixture, covered, over heat until it is tender and has absorbed the stock. Makes four to six servings.

"You can't get the same temperatures in a home broiler as you can in restaurants," Omel said. Also, "Fresher, non-aged beef is 'wet' and tastes steamed" when cooked in a home broiler because it doesn't sear fast enough. For that reason it's important to preheat the broiler and the pan and to sear the meat as quickly as possible.

This London broil is marinated in burgundy, marjoram and soy.

"When the meat is done to your liking, it's important to let it rest about 5 minutes," Omel said. "If we didn't let the beef rest it would be blood red inside and gray on the outside. What would (most cooks) do? The inexperienced cook would throw it back on the fire" and it would overcook.

London broil is expensive, but it serves a lot of people because it is so thinly sliced.

"People make the biggest mistake in diets with meat," Omel said. "They say 'I'm going to eat a steak.' It's marbled with fat, up to 35 percent. Tenderloin is about 8 percent fat, flank 6."

AT WIT'S END

A new generation

By ERMA BOMBECK

Today's kids have three things that distinguish them from the children of a generation ago: They have names of other people stamped all over their clothes; are never more than two inches away from a pocket computer, and carry their own door key.

By the time a child in the United States reaches the age of five, he will have owned 3,056 door keys and broken into his own home on the average of three times a week.

Having an incentive to walk through the front door of a house like a person is no incentive at all for keeping track of the key.

The problem has reached epidemic proportions. Every afternoon in businesses and industries all over the country, the phone rings for every working mother on the premises. The dialog is universal.

"Mom, I forgot my door key."

"Where did you leave it?" (She doesn't really want to know. She's stalling for time.)

"Where's your sister?" ("She's waiting for the phone to call you when I hang up.")

"Where are you calling from?" ("The neighbors who think you're neglecting your children.")

"Why don't you go home with Harold?" (He's calling his mother on a pay phone outside school.)

"Can't you use your credit card to jam the lock?" ("I can't get a credit card until I get out of the third grade and get a job.")

There is a bright spot in all this. Latch-key children have become the most agile, self-reliant, enterprising, problem-solving generation to ever train a hamster to thread his body through the bathroom drain and unlock the patio doors.

They can crack a dead bolt, maneuver around a $3,000 no-fall alarm system, silence a vicious dog, come in through heating ducts, fan vents and stationary windows. A youngster the other day thought he had a real breakthrough in getting into his own home when he came down a 12 x 18-inch chimney. The fire department rescued him when he got wedged in just inches from the bottom where he dangled for 20 minutes.

There is no doubt in my mind that he will lose his key, come down the chimney again and succeed.

There's a future for these keyless children and their ingenuity. I don't even want to think what it is.

Special brunch for special valentines

Show your special someone how much you care with the luxury of a Valentine's Day champagne brunch. Let this be the time to share a sentimental greeting, a personal gift, or and often unspoken affection. If you want to be certain the meal is as memorable as the occasion, try serving Sweetheart's Brunch.

This delightful dish features freshly baked pastry shells brimming with a savory filling of eggs and asparagus spears, perfectly seasoned with instant spring vegetable soup mix. Each completed pastry shell is topped with a surprisingly sophisticated sauce made from instant cream of mushroom soup mix laced with just the right touch of champagne.

No need to rise at dawn to prepare this elegant, but easy entree. The pastry shells come pre-prepared, the filling takes only minutes to make, and all the seasonings needed are provided by the convenient instant soup mixes.

Offer fresh fruit and, of course, the champagne. Don't be surprised by a wholehearted toast from an appreciative guest of honor. This is one Valentine's Day brunch you'll want to repeat many times throughout the year.

SWEETHEARTS' BRUNCH

4 frozen puff pastry shells
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
4 eggs
1/4 cup milk
1 envelope (one serving size) spring vegetable soup
1 can (8 oz.) cut asparagus spears, drained
1/4 cup champagne

Low-sodium cheese bread

By CECILY BROWN-STONE
Associated Press Food Editor

About a year ago Mrs. Mary Greene, the chief recipe tester in my kitchen, suggested we work out a really good recipe for a low-sodium yeast bread. Fortunately we were able to do just that and to pass along the recipe in this column.

LOW-SODIUM CHEESE BREAD

2 envelopes dry yeast
2 teaspoons sugar
1 cup warm (105 to 115 degrees) water
4 ounces unsalted Gouda-type or similar cheese (1 cup loosely packed)
5 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup ice-cold water

In a pint measure dissolve the yeast and sugar in the warm water. In a food processor bowl (5-cup capacity) with the medium shredding disc, shred the cheese; remove the disc and insert the dough-kneading blade. Add 4 cups of the flour; process for 20 seconds. With the machine running, through the feed tube, pour the yeast mixture, then the ice-cold water, in a steady stream so that the flour mixture absorbs the liquids in 25 to 30 seconds. Uncover and add the remaining cup of flour; process for 45 to 60 seconds to knead dough. Remove dough to a greased bowl; turn to grease top; cover bowl with saran; let rise in a draft-free 80-degree place until doubled — 1 hour.

Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth and cut in half; shape each half into a loaf. Place in greased loaf pans (each 8 1/2 by 4 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches); loosely cover pans with saran; let rise as before until doubled — 1 hour. Brush with milk. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until browned and cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 30 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack; if bottoms of loaves are not brown, return to pans bottom side up and continue baking in the 400-degree oven until browned — 5 minutes. Cool completely, top sides up, on a wire rack.

Makes 2 loaves.

President Reagan and Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak meet in the White House Oval Office Wednesday after arrival ceremonies in the East Room. Mubarak and his wife were honored with a State Dinner Wednesday night.

Mubarak calls for inclusion of Palestinians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak is holding firm to Egypt's insistence that Palestinians eventually must have the right to establish their own "national entity."

In a toast at a White House banquet Wednesday night, Mubarak urged President Reagan to start an "American dialogue with the Palestinians" in the search for a lasting peace in the Middle East. "No party should be excluded from this process," he said in an obvious reference to the Palestine Liberation Organization. So far, the United States has refused to consider negotiating with the militant PLO.

MUBARAK's forceful call for talks with the Palestinians seemed to suggest that no early compromise on the thorny question of Palestinian autonomy is likely. Reagan, who was scheduled to meet with Mubarak for a second round of talks today, said in his toast that, "Our meetings have reassured me that further progress is within our grasp."

tinians autonomy and other issues were discussed Wednesday at the start of Mubarak's first official visit to Washington as president.

Although a second meeting was not on the original schedule, plans were switched.

MUBARAK did not call specifically for a separate state for the Palestinians and declined to elaborate on exactly what he meant by a Palestinian "national entity."

Mubarak also disclosed following a meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. at the State Department that 66 Russian technicians he invited to Egypt last week should be gone within year.

"Why are you making a big fuss of that?" he asked reporters who asked why he had invited the technicians. He said they are needed to work on Soviet-supplied equipment and projects. "They will be staying one month, maximum, 12 months. That's all."

Sadat, who was assassinated Oct. 6, ordered 700 Soviet technicians to leave Egypt in September.

Mubarak made clear he wants the same close ties to the United States that existed under Sadat.

THOSE WARM ties have helped generate large amounts of U.S. economic and military aid to Egypt — a total of $1.9 billion in fiscal 1982. The Reagan administration is expected to ask Congress to approve an additional $400 million for military aid in fiscal 1983.

Mubarak is seeking more aid and more flexi-problem."

The official, who refused to be identified, also said the leaders agreed the Camp David process should be accelerated, and Reagan said separately he still hopes other nations besides Israel and Egypt can be drawn into the process.

The question of autonomy for the 1.3 million Palestinians on the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip is the last major item of unfinished

"The exercise of the right to self-determination cannot be denied to the Palestinian people. The Palestinians need your help and need your understanding."

bility in how the aid can be used. "I'm still fighting for it," he said when asked by reporters if he had been successful.

A senior administration official said Reagan and Mubarak agreed that the 1979 Camp David accords were "the appropriate and only vehicle for addressing the Palestinian business from the accords. Mubarak said at a White House ceremony that "the key to peace and stability in the area is to solve the Palestinian problem."

"THE EXERCISE of the right to self-determination cannot be denied to the Palestinian people," he said. Addressing Reagan, he said the Palestinians "need your help and need your understanding."

Negotiations between Israel and Egypt to work out an autonomy agreement have been deadlocked for many months because Israel doesn't want any arrangement that would lead to a separate Palestinian state on its borders, while Egypt doesn't want to preclude that outcome.

The Reagan administration has been pushing both Israel and Egypt to make the necessary compromises to work out some autonomy arrangement by April 25, the date Israel is scheduled to withdraw its troops from the occupied Egyptian Sinai.

But neither side has been willing to yield on the key points that would make possible even an agreement in principle.

Reagan said in his welcoming remarks for Mubarak that all sides should "maintain our flexibility" in the search for a lasting Mideast peace.

But Mubarak, who spoke next, stated his position forcefully.

Brig. Gen. James Dozier gets a welcome home hug from his sister Mrs. William Stimson as he is greeted at Andrews A.F.B., Md., Wednesday after flying in from Italy.

Dozier says he's glad to be home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming "it's doggone good to be home," Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier is commemorating one week of freedom from Red Brigade terrorists with a prayer breakfast as President Reagan's guest and then an Oval Office meeting.

Before beginning a leave of absence, Dozier also will brief Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and hold a press conference at the Pentagon.

That will be his last official duty for a while.

"He'd like to be sort of left to his own devices to rest and catch up and relax a bit," said Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto.

DOZIER, WHO WAS HELD captive for 42 days, was welcomed home Wednesday at Andrews Air Force Base by Vice President George Bush.

"I don't think there are any ribbons for valor in the face of kidnapping, but if there were one, someone would be pinning it on him today," said Bush.

Dozier told his well-wishers that he wanted to thank everyone for their prayers and "those of us who were the object of your prayers could feel what was coming across."

In a tribute to Italian law enforcement agencies, he said their "careful planning and impeccable execution and professionalism made it possible for me to be standing here today."

"It's doggone good to be home," he said.

The general said he experienced "excruciating boredom" during his captivity and was forced to wear earphones and listen to hard rock music.

"If there were a ribbon for being made to listen to rock music 12 hours a day — what a horrible torture — he'd have won that too," said Bush.

Dozier ran 2.5 miles a day before he was captured and Bush noted that means he "missed out on 105 miles of running" during his captivity.

The vice president, a runner himself, added: "That leaves him with a lot of catching up to do. I think we should let him get started with no further ado."

Bush included in his remarks a brief mention of the murder of Lt. Col. Charles Ray, shot on a Paris streets two weeks ago in a terrorist attack.

"HE WAS NOT AS LUCKY as Gen. Dozier and all we could do then was watch his coffin come off the plane," Bush said. "But today is a triumph — a triumph of courage and answered prayers."

Member of Canada Olympic team rescued

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A 27-year-old member of Canada's 1980 Olympic team was recovering in a hospital here after being rescued from a tiny rubber life raft off Puerto Rico. His companion, however, died during their ordeal at sea.

Dr. Pickens Gantt, doctor aboard the cruise ship the Starward, which made the rescue Wednesday, said survivor Phil Hepburn, an Olympic canoeist of Toronto was "quite dehydrated." He said Hepburn did not know that his friend, Alvin Brien, 25, of Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, had died.

Brien and Hepburn left San Juan on Jan. 14 in a 36-foot sailing yawl en route to Miami via the Bahamas.

Capt. Jan Fjeld Hansen, the second in command aboard the Starward, said the yawl apparently caught fire and the men abandoned ship in a raft.

He said that when the Starward approached the life raft, Heyburn called out: "Hurry up, hurry up, my friend is dying."

Vivian Wharton, one of the passengers aboard the ship, said Brien's head was in the water.

The captain of the Starward and three crew members jumped into the ocean about 20 miles north of Puerto Rico to make the rescue. "We couldn't lower the boat," he said. "The sea was too rough."

He said Hepburn "told us they were eating sea-gulls and fish. They also had problems with the raft."

In Halifax, friends and associates of Brien, a member of the national canoe team, remembered him as a strong athlete who was soft-spoken and determined.

"He was a real gentleman, that's the way he was," said Frank Garner, his team coach. "He had Alvin."

IBM closes Iranian subsidiary

NEW YORK (AP) — International Business Machines Corp. has shut down its Iranian subsidiary following a dispute with the government over ownership, a company spokesman says.

Irna, the official Iranian news agency, said Wednesday the Iranian government had seized $48 million in "movable and immovable" assets belonging to IBM. It said IBM would be paid $3 million for the property.

An IBM spokesman denied the company's Iranian property had been seized and said the computer giant voluntarily decided to close its subsidiary last month under an agreement concluded in October with the Iranian government. He declined comment on the value of the transaction.

"It sounds like we were nationalized, that the government came in and confiscated our assets, and that was not the case," said spokesman Peter Kuhn at IBM headquarters in Armonk, N.Y.

"The Iranian government has a policy of owning, themselves, data-processing enterprises in its country, and the IBM practice is that we own operations ourselves in the countries where we do business," Kuhn said. "So obviously there was a conflict."

Baylor knocks Texas A&M out of first place

Texas Tech's Steve Smith (30) chooses to pass the ball rather than shoot past University of Houston's Akeem Abdul Olajuwon (34) during the first half of their Southwest Conference basketball Wednesday night at Hofheinz Pavilion. The Cougars posted an 83-80 victory over the Red Raiders.

By The Associated Press
It was the night the lights went out in Heart O' Texas Coliseum for the Texas Aggies.

They had to endure a two-hour wait while emergency crews fixed a power outage caused by a Baylor band member then saw talented Terry Teagle knock them out of first place in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

Baylor won Wednesday night's bizarre meeting 58-55, sending the Aggies tumbling into a second-place tie with Texas Christian and Texas, both 6-3. Arkansas is on top with a 6-2 mark.

"Is it Thursday or still Wednesday?" asked a dazed Baylor Coach Jim Haller after Teagle's 24 points and a crucial technical foul call doomed the Aggies. "I just asked the team at halftime if anybody was afraid to play in the dark," Haller said.

Both teams almost had to. The vapor lamps refused to cooperate after power was restored and A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said he wasn't playing "by candlelight."

He was ordered to do so by referee Lynn Shortnacy or the game would be forfeited.

As it turned out the vapor lamps bloomed to full power a minute deep in the second half, and the lights were as good as they get in Heart O' Texas, which is no shooter's palace.

"There was nothing I could do about the delay," said Haller. "It was a freak thing."

Metcalf said "Teagle was just great ... we couldn't cover him ... we had to play when the referee told us."

Baylor upped its record to 4-5 and 11-8 for the year. A&M is 13-6 for the season.

Teagle hit four crucial free throws in the final two minutes, two of them courtesy of Aggie assistant Coach Barry Davis, who was given a technical by Shortnacy for protesting too loudly on the bench.

Texas Christian 58, Rice 57
Darrell Browder's 18-foot jumper with four seconds remaining lifted Texas Christian to a 58-57 victory over Rice in Southwest Conference basketball action Wednesday night.

Rice led 57-56 when Owl forward Ricky Pierce was fouled with 13 seconds left. Pierce, who had converted on six straight free throws earlier, missed on the first of a one-and-one and Texas Christian rebounded and called time.

Browder took the inbound pass and drove the length of the court, pulling up just inside the free-throw circle for his game-winning shot.

Pierce scored 26 points, including 20 in the first half, to lead Rice, which fell to 3-6 in the conference and 12-10 overall. Texas Christian improved its record to 6-3 and 11-8.

Jeff Baker and Joe Stephen paced the Horned Frogs with 14 points each. Browder added 13 points and Doug Arnold had 12.

"We'd told Browder to drive the ball up court and work it to Doug Arnold's side. If Arnold's man came off him, Browder was going to kick it off to Doug," TCU coach Jim Killingsworth said of his last 10-second strategy.

"It was just a typical game for us," deadpanned Killingsworth, whose team has won four straight SWC games. "It seems like we're always gonna have it close at the end."

The victory kept Texas Christian within striking distance of SWC leader Arkansas, which is 6-2 in league play.

Texas 69, Southern Methodist 56
Sophomore guard Denard Holmes moved into injured forward Mike Wacker's spot and scored 22 points Wednesday night as No. 12 Texas defeated Southern Methodist 69-56.

The victory raised Texas' season record to 15-3, 6-3 in SWC play, and halted a three-game losing streak that began when Whacker, a 6-foot-9 sophomore and the team's second-leading scorer and rebounder, went out for the season with a knee injury.

SMU, the last-place team in the SWC, dropped to 1-8 in the conference and 6-13 for the season.

The Mustangs grabbed an early 8-2 lead but Texas jumped ahead 37-31 at halftime, going 20 minutes without a single turnover and outscoring the Ponies 9-1 from the free throw line.

Texas boosted its lead in the second half, even though SMU held Texas' leading scorer, 6-foot-10 junior LaSalle Thompson, to just six points.

Houston 83, Texas Tech 80
Houston's Rob Williams put on a second-half shooting clinic and finished with 29 points as the Cougars put off a late Texas Tech rally Wednesday night en route to an 83-80 victory.

Williams, who had only eight points at halftime, had shot the Cougars into a comfortable 15-point lead at 78-63 late in the game when Tech's Clarence Swannegan hit nine points over a 58-second span to cut Houston's lead to 78-72.

The Raiders, who dropped to a 4-5 SWC record, got within five points with 44 seconds to play on a basket by Vince Taylor and trimmed the margin to 81-78 with 14 seconds to go on a basket by Charles Johnson.

But Williams, who hit 15 of 17 free throws — including four straight technical shots against Tech coach Gerald Myers — hit his final two free throws with 11 seconds to play to ice the game.

Rebels need help from MHS or AHS

With the Midland Lee-San Angelo shootout over in the District 5-5A basketball race, the Rebels of Lee are now in the lowly position of watching how the rest of the teams fare after losing 67-60 to San Angelo Monday.

The Rebels now own a meager 1-2 second half reading while San Angelo, who tied Lee for the first half crown with a 6-1 mark, is 3-0 and heading for its second consecutive playoff berth.

So Lee now must pull for Abilene High or Midland High to win an outright title in the second half in order to force a district playoff. One of those teams, however, will all but drop from the hunt tonight as MHS travels to Abilene High. One has to come out a loser and both teams enter the game with perfect 3-0 records, the same as San Angelo.

It may be too much to ask of the Bobcats to lose twice in this half, so Lee must pull for AHS or MHS to win the second half title.

San Angelo's only district loss this year was at the hands of Midland High, but the Bobcats face MHS in San Angelo during this half of play.

San Angelo faces lowly Odessa High, winless in second half action, tonight and appears to be headed for a 4-0 second half mark, marking time until it faces MHS and AHS later in the first half.

Lee, meanwhile, will go against hapless Abilene Cooper today at 6:15 p.m. at the Lee gym. Cooper has won only one district game this year and Lee appears safe tonight, but the two losses may be too many at this stage of the season unless San Angelo falls flat.

Midland High is on a new roll. They were 0-3 and out of the race at this time in the first half, but now own a 3-0 second half mark after wins over Lee, Permian and Big Spring. All three of those teams defeated MHS in the first half.

Lee's game with Cooper will not be at the usual 8 p.m. time today. Since Cooper doesn't have a junior varsity team, the varsities will play at the earlier 6:15 p.m. time.

Since San Angelo earned a share of the first half title, Midland High can not afford to lose even one second half game. If Bulldogs do lose a game, they will have to make sure San Angelo loses at least two like the Rebels have done. San Angelo needs only an outright second half title or a tie with anyone other than Lee to gain a playoff berth.

The Midland College Chaps moved into a tie for first place with Amarillo College's Badgers in the Western Junior College Conference basketball race, which only complicates life for MC Coach Jerry Stone.

With the Badgers unbeaten and seemingly uncatchable before a second MC-AC meeting, the Chaparrals really weren't that concerned about the nation's fifth ranked junior college team. It was more important to stay close so they could pull into a tie with the Badgers when the teams met again.

BUT NOW, next Monday's game at Amarillo could be for undisputed possession of first place.

Stone's problem will be keeping his Chaps' attention focused on New Mexico Military Institute, to be dealt with at 8 p.m. tonight in the Chaparral Center.

MC had its hands full in the first meeting at Roswell Dec. 7, surviving a Remember Pearl Harbor demonstration, 70-67.

With a 2-7 WJCC record, the Cadets must finish with a rush to gain one of five playoff berths in the Regional Tournament at Big Spring next month.

DESPITE the record, NMMI has been playing everybody close, three-point losses to MC, NMJC, a two-pointer to NMJC; a six-pointer to Howard; seven to South Plains, not to mention a win over Odessa College.

MC won by 10 over NMJC Monday as Puntus Wilson scored 40 points, giving him 85 against the Thunderbirds this year, but the visitors from the Land of Enchantment, who trailed all the way, made some rebellious gestures down the stretch, pulling to within a two points a couple of times in the closing minutes before MC finally opened some daylight.

The win gave MC a 19-5 record and a 19-1 WJCC record. The Chaps haven't lost this year in reeling off 11 straight wins.

"AMARILLO'S loss was important, since it gave us a chance to take the conference lead on the merits of our play," Stone said. "But we can't afford to relax against the Institute. They gave us fits the first time we played and feel they can beat us. We've been playing one game at a time and that's what we have to continue to do."

A complicating factor in tonight's game is the physical well-being of the Chaps, who have suffered through the ravages of the flu over the past week or two. Five-six Spud Webb was so sick against NMJC that he was pulled for a rest several times and scored "only" 15 points.

Defensively, J.C. Baty, averaging 18.4 points per game, and Mark Walker, 12.8, will be the players MC will have to stop. Offensively, Leroy Parris leads the WJCC in blocks while Walker with 9.5 rebounds per game is fifth in the league and Baty (8.0) and Parris (7.8) are tough on the boards.

Wilson is the third leading scorer in the WJCC with 23.2 a game. Webb ranks fifth with a 20.1 average while 6-6 Chester Smith is hitting at a 14.0 clip and Lance McCain at an 11.7 average.

Smith tops the league in rebounds, 12.4 a game and Wilson is fourth with 9.6. Jerome Crowe and McCain also are among the leaders, averaging more than five each.

Bulldogs' Wally Kleine commits for Notre Dame

Midland High School tight end Wally Kleine made a quickie flight into Midland by Notre Dame Coach Jerry Faust while when the 6-8, 245-pound senior verbally agreed to attend college and play football for the Fighting Irish next season.

Kleine, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kleine, is the second Blue Chip prospect Notre Dame has plucked from the Permian Basin in the last two years. Van Percy, a football and track star at Andrews High last year, is a freshman at Notre Dame.

Under seige by college recruiters since November, Wally, an all-5-5A choice and a high school All-America, had narrowed his choices to five colleges—Notre Dame, Texas, SMU, Nebraska and Penn State and made his choice after visits with the Longhorns and Mustangs during the last week. Earlier UCLA and Stanford were among those in the bidding.

"I liked Coach Faust and the atmosphere at Notre Dame," Kleine said in explaining his decision.

Wally has been to South Bend for football games and is no stranger to the campus. His cousin, Joe Kleine, was recruited out of Missouri to play basketball at Notre Dame, but dropped out and is now attending the University of Arkansas. Basketball coach Digger Phelps, whose Irish have been struggling, has said letting Joe Kleine get away is one of three mistakes he made that he is living to regret this season.

Faust, who created a high school football dynasty at Cincinnati's Moeller High before becoming head coach at Notre Dame last season, was almost as delighted with the signing of Wally as he was with Mrs. Kleine's chocolate chip cookies, which he gulped down like they were jelly beans.

"We recruited Wally as a tight end. He had good size, good speed and, perhaps best of all, he is only 17. He is a year behind most high school seniors in his physical maturity."

"Wally has a great future," Faust said envisioning another Dave Casper or Ken McAfee or maybe even a Leon Hart. "He is a quality person from a quality family. We like to check out a prospect's family. It usually tells us whether he can fit into the program at Notre Dame. There's more to recruiting than just rounding up athletic types."

The fact that Kleine is only 17 brought up the question of a possible red shirt season, but assistant coach Brian Boulic, who recruits Texas for the Irish, said that Notre Dame has a policy against red shirting athletes.

Grant Mulvey sets team mark for most goals at 5

By The Associated Press
When Paul Mulvey was placed on waivers by the Los Angeles Kings after refusing to join a fight on the ice, it put some fire in his brother's eyes.

Grant Mulvey, who had only 18 goals before Wednesday night's game with St. Louis, set a Black Hawk record with five goals and tied another team mark with seven points as Chicago beat the Blues 9-5.

The victory broke a 10-game winless streak for the Black Hawks during which they were 0-4-1.

"I'm really upset about what happened to my brother," said Grant. "The fact that the coach (Don Perry) was fined $5,000 and suspended for 15 days is nothing to what is happening to Paul."

Bruins 5, Sabres 2

Steve Kasper scored a short-handed goal and assisted on two other scores as Boston took full advantage of its shots to whip Buffalo, the Sabres' fourth straight loss after a 10-game unbeaten string.

North Stars 9, Penguins 6
Anders Hakansson scored twice in Minnesota's six-goal second period, when the North Stars rallied from a 3-0 deficit against Pittsburgh.

Canadiens 6, Oilers 3

Mark Napier scored two goals in the first three minutes of the third period and Steve Shutt also scored twice to lead Montreal to its seventh straight victory.

The Canadiens surged to a 3-0 lead in the first 13 minutes, only to have Edmonton cut the lead to 3-2 by the end of the second period on goals by Glenn Anderson and Wayne Gretzky, his 68th in 56 games.

Canucks 3, Leafs 1

Auburn upsets No. 9 Kentucky in OT

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The way the Kentucky Wildcats were playing, the Auburn Tigers didn't need any breaks.

But they got one — and it eventually resulted in an 83-81 overtime victory for Auburn over the nation's ninth-ranked college basketball team Wednesday night.

"There's no way to take a basket away from us," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall after a field goal by Derrick Hord in overtime was disallowed because the clock had failed to start when Kentucky threw the ball into play. Officials ruled that all play between the inbound pass and the time when the horn blew was negated.

Hall was, of course, dissatisfied with the explanation. "The clock wasn't running, but there was no justification for taking away the bucket," said Hall. "I've seen games go for two minutes without the clock running and they didn't go back and take away points."

Meanwhile, Auburn stole everything from the listless Wildcats but their sneakers. Auburn "ran a heck of a trap and we just turned the ball over too much," said Hall. "This really damages our Southeastern Conference title chances."

Kentucky had 19 turnovers in the game, 12 after halftime, and Auburn also came up with nine steals.

"Just say we played good," said Auburn Coach Sonny Smith. "The most important thing for us was the change to the half-court trap. We made the steals. Another key was our free-throw shooting." Auburn made 31 of 38 shots from the foul line.

Charles Barkley, Odell Mosteller and Byron Henson scored four points each in regulation. The Tigers used a trapping zone forcing Kentucky into errors that enabled Auburn to get back into contention.

Barkley had 22 points, Mosteller 20 and Darrell Lockhart 16 for Auburn, while Jim Master, who scored two uncontested layups for Kentucky at the end, led all scorers with 29 points while Hord had 25. Before Wednesday night's victory, Auburn had lost 13 straight games to Kentucky.

MARYLAND SHOCKED No. 13 Wake Forest 61-56 and Mississippi whipped No. 16 Tennessee 55-53 in overtime in other upsets Wednesday night. Elsewhere, No. 1 Missouri stopped Colorado 80-54, No. 3 Virginia beat No. 2 North Carolina 74-58, No. 4 DePaul edged St. Joseph's (Pa.) 46-44 in overtime, No. 8 Alabama took a 66-63 decision over Mississippi State, No. 12 Texas beat Southern Methodist 69-55, and No. 19 Kansas State trimmed Nebraska 75-64. Memphis State, tied for No. 19, was forced to postpone its game with St. Louis University because of snow.

Top Ten

Steve Stipanovich, Jon Sundvold and Ricky Frazier combined for 37 points, leading Missouri over Colorado. Stipanovich scored 14 points, Sundvold added 12 and Frazier had 11 as Missouri gained its 19th straight victory this season and its 29th consecutive at home. Both streaks are Missouri records.

Othell Wilson and Ralph Sampson led Virginia to a 17-point lead early in the second half and the Cavaliers held off two North Carolina rallies to beat the Tar Heels.

Wilson scored 20 points and Sampson added 18 as the Cavaliers took over the Atlantic Coast Conference lead and avenged their only defeat in 22 games overall. It was only the second loss in 18 starts for North Carolina, which had beaten Virginia 65-60 less than a month ago at Chapel Hill.

"We knew ourselves we could beat them and we just wanted to prove it to everyone else," said Wilson. "We had them beaten down there (at North Carolina) and came unglued. We knew if we did things right, we could beat them."

Terry Cummings scored a game-high 17 points, including a tip-in at the end of the overtime period, to help DePaul beat St. Joseph's. With the score tied at 44 and only seconds remaining in the overtime, Kenny Patterson put up a 20-footer. The ball kicked off the rim to teammate Jerry McMillan, whose 15-footer from the left side missed the iron, but Cummings came up with the air ball and banked in the layup at the buzzer.

Alabama, playing without flustered senior forward Eddie Phillips, survived a scare from Mississippi State and used a four-corner offense to beat the Bulldogs. The Crimson Tide got balanced scoring from its starters, led by Phillip Lockett with 17.

Second Ten

Sophomore guard Denard Holmes moved into injured forward Mike Wacker's spot and scored 22 points as Texas defeated SMU. Texas' recordoned halted a three-game losing streak that began when Wacker, a 6-foot-9 sophomore and the team's second-leading scorer and rebounder, went out for the season with a knee injury.

Freshman Adrian Branch scored seven of Maryland's final nine points in the last 45 seconds as the Terps upset Wake Forest. Branch made one of two foul shots with 45 seconds remaining to give the Terps a 53-50 lead and then rammed home a dunk shot on a pass from Herman Veal with 31 seconds left to make it 55-50. He added two more free throws in a one-and-one situation before Danny Young hit a field goal for the Demon Deacons. Fouled again, Branch made two free throws with 13 seconds left and finished with 20 points.

Mississippi's Carlos Clark hit two baskets in overtime, including one at the final buzzer, to lead the Rebels to an upset victory over Tennessee. Vol Coach Don DeVoe said his players got themselves into a jam by lagging behind the Rebels early in overtime.

"You can't win a game against a good defensive team when you spot them a basket at the first of the overtime like we did tonight," DeVoe said.

NBA Roundup

Huston's passing helping Cavs win

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

You really have to hand it to Geoff Huston... he knows how to hand it to his teammates.

Huston has averaged 17.3 points and a remarkable 18.5 assists for the Cleveland Cavaliers in their last four games — three of them victories. On Wednesday night, he had 20 assists and 19 points in a 108-104 triumph over the Indiana Pacers.

The modest two-game winning streak was the Cavs' first since Nov. 7-9 and improved their record to 10-34, still the worst in the National Basketball Association.

Huston, who had 27 assists in a victory over Golden State last week, said, "We're basically starting to get more confidence in ourselves. We're executing better and guys are pulling for each other."

Scott Wedman also was singled out for praise by Daly although the Cleveland forward scored only eight points in 35 minutes, his longest stint since he returned from a broken foot Jan. 19.

The Pacers trailed 101-87 with 5:30 remaining, but a 12-2 spurt cut the deficit to 103-99 at the 2:45 mark. Cleveland's Bobby Wilkerson then hit a jump shot and center James Edwards, who led all scorers with 24 points, followed with two foul shots to give the Cavaliers a 107-99 advantage with 1:30 to go.

Knicks 98, Lakers 94

Maurice Lucas pulled down 21 rebounds and scored 13 points, and New York beat Los Angeles by holding the Lakers to one field goal in the final six minutes.

Los Angeles led 91-83 with 6:21 left, but got only a three-point goal by Norm Nixon the rest of the way. Mike Newlin led the Knicks with 21 points, while Jamaal Wilkes paced all scorers with 26.

Sonics 97, Kings 87

Gus Williams scored 28 points and Jack Sikma added 21 points and 15 rebounds to lead Seattle past Kansas City.

The Sonics, who never trailed, built a 17-point lead in the first quarter, outscoring the Kings 18-2 in a 54-minute span.

Ernie Grunfeld and Steve Johnson

Warriors 99, Suns 88

Golden State won its third straight game and handed Phoenix its third consecutive loss when Bernard King slammed in a follow shot with one second remaining.

The Suns led 88-85, but the Warriors tied the score on Joe Hassett's three-point goal with 32 seconds left.

King led Golden State with 20 points, and Alvan Adams had a game-high 23 for Phoenix.

Bucks 113, Bulls 98

Milwaukee got 25 points from Brian Winters and won its third straight game without key players Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman.

Winters scored 12 points in the second quarter to lead the Bucks to a 53-41 halftime lead and Chicago, which lost its fourth game in succession, never got closer than eight after that.

Clippers 113, Mavericks 106

San Diego, burned at the center position Tuesday when Moses Malone scored 53 points, successfully turned to Joe Bryant against Dallas.

Bryant, making his first pro start, scored 32 points for the Clippers, including 20 in the second half.

Jay Vincent led the Mavericks with 25 points.

Nets 112, Hawks 103

Ray Williams, who has 65 points in two nights, scored 34 and Albert King added 22 to lead New Jersey over Atlanta.

The Nets outscored the Hawks 17-8 down the stretch although all-star forward Buck Williams fouled out midway through the fourth period.

76ers 122, Bullets 96

Julius Erving scored 32 points to lead Philadelphia, which never trailed against Washington.

Andrew Toney had 22 points for the 76ers, who led by as many as 28 in the fourth period. Jeff Ruland and Kevin Grevey had 23 apiece for the Bullets.

Jazz 122, Blazers 118

Adrian Dantley scored 34 points and Darrell Griffith 24 to lead Utah over Portland.

With the score 120-118, rookie Dan Schayes grabbed a rebound of a missed Trail Blazers' shot and iced the victory with two free throws with six seconds remaining.

AP Laserphoto

New York Knick Michael Richardson (20) falls away from the basket after just missing the hoop against the defense of Los Angeles Laker Jim Brewer (8) and Bob McAdoo (11) during first half action Wednesday night at the Forum in Los Angeles. Going up for the rebound with Richardson is teammate Maurice Lucas (23).

For everyone who didn't have much chance to go hunting during the fall and winter months and for everyone who simply can't get enough hunting, a local hunting preserve offers the perfect opportunity for some great late season gunning.

Not only do hunting preserve seasons typically open before regular upland and waterfowl seasons, they generally stay open through the winter months with many hunting preserves offering excellent shooting through March or even longer. Moreover, a long season is only one of the special attractions that a quality hunting preserve offers.

How often have you had the opportunity to hunt upland game, such as pheasant, quail, chukar and ducks in the same day? Many preserves offer the hunter a mixed bag of birds — all in one day's shooting.

We know these type hunting preserves are limited in Texas, but there are a few that offer the out-of-season hunter some fantastic shooting. One place to note is the Duck Creek Hunting Club near the small Plains town of Dickens, Texas. We haven't been there as of yet, but we've heard from many people, mostly from the Midland and Odessa area that the hunting is outstanding at the preserve and that, although it's a private and relatively expensive place to hunt, it's worth the time, effort and greenbacks.

We will be visiting this hunting sanctuary this spring to really get the low-down on what's going on, what they have to offer in the way of game bird hunting, how the facilities are and what else can be expected from an annual membership. I do know for a fact that this private hunting venture does offer the sportsmen opportunities at bagging pheasant, two species, chukar quail, bobwhite and blue quail (in season only) and a few more prized upland game bird species. We also know that the place has trained pointers for those hunters who prefer to use a good bird dog.

Another place we know about that caters to outdoor sportsmen in the private fashion is Whitewing Resorts out of McAllen. About two months ago we ran a story briefly describing the facilities and the program offered by this private hunting organization. We also told you about one of our long-time friends who was the manager of the operation.

Former Amistad fishing guide and lodge operator Larry Scruggs is the man now managing Whitewing Resorts. Prices for private memberships or individual hunting and/or fishing packages are not available at this time, but one phone call to Whitewing Resorts in McAllen can secure all the information and prices you might need to know.

At this resort, we know they offer whitewing dove hunting in season which is in Mexico, fabulous waterfowl (ducks and geese) shooting, in season and offer some fantastic saltwater bay fishing all year long. Give Scruggs a call and see what he's got to offer. This may be the end to a perfect solution of obtaining a semi-private hunting and fishing paradise.

Remember these features about a good hunting preserve. And remember, a good hunting preserve has quality and variety and follows these minimum standards of the North American Gamebird Association:

—The area should look like good hunting country with a blend of natural and cultivated cover.

—Pheasants, quail and chukars should be full-plumaged, more than 16 weeks old and of the same color and confirmation as birds in the wild.

—Mallards should be similar in weight and plumage to free-ranging mallards and capable of strong flight between release sites and rest ponds.

—Well-trained dogs should be available for the guests and to reduce losses of crippled game.

A good hunting preserve is an ideal place to take a young hunter, with plenty of action and professional guides to give the novice the right start in hunting safety and wing shooting.

Some preserves charge for the number of birds bagged and others for birds released in your fields that day. Still others offer a sporting chance to bag some birds when accompanied by a guide. It's always a good idea to check on rates and open dates before you go.

Candace Burnside Keller, formerly of Midland, stands by her painting of the Peace Pilgrim during the opening reception of an exhibit of her paintings. Her exhibit plus the national touring exhibit from the Texas Fine Arts Council show are on display in the McCormick Gallery at the Allison Fine Arts building at Midland College through Feb. 22. Both shows are open to the public at no charge.

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

She was visiting her husband, a part-time photographer for The Canyon News, when an 80-year-old woman came into the newspaper for an interview. She couldn't help but notice the woman's large and luminous eyes. They held her enraptured.

The artist in Candace Burnside Keller wanted to paint the woman's expression. At her request, her husband took the woman's picture. Then, she was gone.

The painting which Mrs. Keller, a former Midlander, painted of the Peace Pilgrim is among those hanging in the McCormick Gallery at the Allison Fine Arts Building at Midland College. Wherever it hangs, the woman's pale blue, luminous eyes capture and hold the viewer.

"She was a awfully unusual person," Mrs. Keller said during her show's opening reception. "There is a light in some people's eyes that you don't see too often; she had that light."

She had a special glow. When she looked at you, she wasn't actually looking at you, she was looking past you. Some crazy people have that look and people who can get intensely involved in something.

"SHE CALLS herself the Peace Pilgrim. She is about 80 years old and has given up all her possessions. She walks all over the U.S. and says she will walk until there's peace in the world. She told me that and then she walked on."

"I was really impressed with her; I could never do anything like that," Mrs. Keller said.

"She has such beautiful eyes. She's never seen the painting; I think it would be interesting if she did someday. I'm not sure the painting really does her justice as far as her demeanor, but it comes close," she said.

A 1972 graduate of Midland High School, Mrs. Keller is currently assistant professor of art at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview. Her MC exhibit includes approximately 25 works in acrylics, watercolors, conte pen and pen and ink.

The smile is on the inside

Many are disturbing, dealing with political statements or life statements that cause those who look long enough to ponder their meaning.

"I DON'T CARE if people like or don't like my works as long as they react to them. If someone can walk by one of my paintings without noticing it," then Mrs. Keller said she feels she has not succeeded as an artist. "Even if just to go a little closer — any kind of reaction — that to me is good. Even if they don't like it; at least they looked at it long enough to dislike it," Ms. Burnside said.

Her interest in art began when she was a senior in high school. "I guess the first art class I ever took seriously, ever enjoyed, was taught by Inez Parker, during one of the last years she taught (at MC). I was 16 or 17 at the time," Mrs. Keller said.

"You really can't teach art; you can teach technique and ways of thinking. I don't believe in inborn talent; people learn how to do everything they do. Some people have more initiative to want to paint, play music, whatever. The only way you learn how to paint or sculpt is to do it and keep doing it. Once you have the techniques out of the way, then you can enjoy how to use them."

FOR MRS. KELLER art is "one person's idea of what is worth looking at, or what is worth experiencing. If you can take something that is old, usual, mundane or ordinary and make other people experience it in a new way, that ability is a big part of art."

"First the ability to perceive it differently, then the ability to get others to perceive it differently, that's the major battle. How you do it, well, that's up to you."

Mrs. Keller said, "To teach art you have to be able to make art. There's a lot of people who produce art work, but it's not really considered art until that mental change takes place," that ability to portray "the unusual or new in what is ordinary to everyone else."

Mrs. Keller, who has a bachelor of fine arts, a master of education and a master of arts degree from Sul Ross University at Alpine and is currently working on her doctorate in art at Texas Tech University at Lubbock, did not go to college to major in art.

When "I went to college, I was interested in pre-med. I didn't take an art course until I was a sophomore. And then it was just for an elective."

"I got involved in the theater and did a lot of drawings for programs. In my biology and anatomy classes I got back into drawing," she said.

"It wasn't what I'd intended to do," said Mrs. Keller, with a slight, rueful smile. Very slight. She doesn't smile often and when she does it's ever so fleeting. If one isn't looking closely, it might be missed.

In passing up a medical career Mrs. Keller decided "I liked the way things looked on the outside better than the inside. It was too disconnected; separating people from pain. I don't think I would have been able to do that too well. It wasn't what I wanted to be involved in all my life; it affected me too much."

This statement was followed by a pause, then the comment, "Then I ended up marrying a guy who's going to be a surgeon. It's funny how life works out."

Hoggard to conduct concert at Midland Adult Choir Festival

The voices of approximately 300 adult singers will fill the sanctuary of First Baptist Church at 8 p.m. Friday as the first Midland Adult Choir Festival Concert begins.

The event, sponsored by the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Choral, the American Guild of Organists and the church choir of Midland and Odessa, is being conducted by Dr. Lara Hoggard.

Hoggard, conductor of the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Choral during its formative years from 1962-1967, returned to West Texas to be one of five judges during the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Choral's 20th annual National Young Artists Competition, a competition he helped found. This competition concluded Saturday at Midland College.

This festival was designed around and in honor of the competition, with Hoggard as its guest conductor. The festival's conclusion will be the 8 p.m. concert, which is open to the public free of charge.

Hoggard, William Rand Kenan Professor Emeritus at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is currently professor of music at Columbus College of the University System of Georgia, where he conducts the college orchestra and choir.

Hoggard has, in the past 40 years, conducted more than 800 festivals, workshops and clinics.

During the summer of 1972, the UNC-CH Carolina Choir, directed by Hoggard, was the guest resident choir for the International Music Festival in Graz, Austria. In 1973 and 1974, Hoggard gord was the artistic director for the Youth and Music in Vienna Festival.

He is the recipient of numerous professional and civic awards. At UNC he received the Tanner Award for inspirational teaching and was elected to UNC's highest honorary order, the Golden Fleece. He was named one of "Our Ten Best Professors" by students at UNC in 1978, while in 1980 he was named to the Order of the Long-Leaf Pine by Gov. James B. Hunt, the highest honor the governor's office can bestow.

The chairman of the Midland festival is Tom Roberts, director of music at First Presbyterian Church.

Trio to serve as music contest judges

Three members of the Midland Music Teachers Association will be in Lubbock this weekend to serve as judges in the Lubbock Music Teachers Association's annual Sonata-Sonatina Concert.

The three Midland judges are Dorothy Matthews, Wallace Wimberly

Scholarship chairman for MMTA, and Harriet Motter, president of MMTA, both private music teachers; and Dr. Betty Morris, music faculty member at Midland College. They will join two additional judges from the West Texas State University faculty in Canyon.

Anderson wins first place in music contest

ODESSA — Nancy Anderson of Midland was the senior first place winner of the voice division of the Pauline Slater Piano and Voice Competition held Saturday in Odessa.

Miss Anderson, a Lee High School senior, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald K. Anderson. A student of Mrs. Don Shinn's studio in Odessa, she performed Gluck's "O Del Mia Dolce Ardor."

Several members of the Midland Music Teachers Association entered students in the competition, sponsored annually by the

Anderson

Odessa Music Teachers Association.

Winning first place medals in the competition from Midland were Michael Leung and Christina Leung, students of Dorothy Matthews; and John Sikes Johnson, student of Harriett Motter.

Second place winners were Karen Leung, student of Mrs. Matthews; Susan Gill, student of Shelley Crawford; Pam Emerson, student of LouNelle George; Melissa Kibler, student of Phyllis Howell; and Janna Fussell, student of Joy Finley.

Third place medals were earned by Julie Dillman and Andrea Hamilton, students of Mrs. Motter; Alice Thompson, student of Mrs. George; and Harland Abbott, student of Mrs. Crawford.

Southwest Museum sponsors exhibit of racing cars

The Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., is sponsoring an exhibition opening Friday on the aerodynamic designing used in the Chaparral series racing cars designed by Midlander Jim Hall. Hall has been involved with racing cars for over two decades, from driving to designing his own racing cars, the Chaparrals.

Free public tours will be conducted at 3 p.m. Sundays beginning Feb. 14. Special group tours are available by contacting the museum at 683-

Hall will be giving a talk on his Chaparral cars Feb. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the museum galleries.

'Funny Girl' opens Friday

Midland Community Theatre's season opener, "Funny Girl," begins Friday at 8:30 p.m. in Theatre I, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Based on the early life of one of vaudeville's immortal comedienne, Fanny Brice, "Funny Girl" is a Cinderella story with a twist. Love does not conquer all; and it contains, as in real life, pain and pleasure, joy and sorrow.

The production is directed by MCT's assistant director, Ted Strickland.

Close to 300 costumes will be seen during the performance on 14 different sets.

This production is funded, in part, by a grant from The First National Bank of Midland. For more information call the theater's box office at 682-4111.

Opera performances open to public this week

Performances slated in the Allison Fine Arts auditorium by the Texas Opera Theatre workshop being conducted at Midland College this week have been opened to the public.

Friday at 7 p.m. the Texas Opera Theatre group will present "Starbird," a one-act fantasy opera that TOT premiered at Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. The public may attend "Starbird" for $2, payable at the door.

Sunday at 3 p.m. the public is invited to attend "Is It Broadway or is it Opera," also for $2.

TOT will return to Midland March 30 for a single performance of Verdi's "Rigoletto," sung in English. The opera, complete with cast, chorus and orchestra, will be staged at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. Tickets, priced at $8, will go on sale March 22.

Cynthia Weil and Barry Mann are celebrating 20 years of living and working together. They have been producing supersmash hits for other artists ever since they met 20 years ago.

Mann and Weil celebrate 20th anniversary

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — For any couple, two decades of marriage is an achievement these days, but Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil have been celebrating something more than a 20th wedding anniversary this year.

They're also marking two decades as songwriting partners, a collaboration that has been producing super-smash hits for almost as long, and for artists as varied as the Righteous Brothers ("You've Lost That Loving Feeling"), Eydie Gorme ("Blame It on the Bossa Nova"), The Animals ("We Gotta Get Out of This Place"), George Benson ("On Broadway") and Dolly Parton ("Here You Come Again").

BETWEEN them — and they sometimes work individually with others — composer Mann and

Ms. Weil, a lyricist, have written songs that have sold in excess of 140 million records.

And they keep their hit list quite current. Recent entries include the Mann-Dan Hill tune "Sometimes When We Touch"; the Pointer Sisters' "She's So Shy," written by Miss Weil and Tom Snow. The couple just saw their discovery, singer James Ingram, earn a Grammy nomination for best male pop vocal performance for "Just Once," which they contributed to Quincy Jones' "The Dude" LP.

Mann and Ms. Weil both grew up in New York, he in Brooklyn and she in Manhattan. She tried her hand at singing, but gradually drifted into writing lyrics; he worked in the Catskills as a busboy and sometime talent show performer, making contacts that later proved helpful when he dropped youthful architectural ambitions for a musical career.

THE COUPLE met through their work, but didn't start writing together until after they'd clicked romantically.

"I was writing with (singer) Teddy Randazzo and Barry came up to play a song," Ms. Weil, a slim woman whose face is framed by shaggy blonde hair, recalls during a fire-side interview at the duo's roomy home a stone's throw from the Beverly Hills Hotel.

"And I saw him and said, 'Who is that, where can I find him?' And one of the secretaries up there told me his name and said he was signed to a publisher named Don Kirshner."

Kirshner, who has since gone on to mass media fame as a late-night television rock concert host, had at the time just recently co-founded Aldon Music, a publishing company which had one of the most impressive songwriting stables of the early '60s with such top writers as Carole King and Gerry Goffin, Neil Sedaka and Howard Greenfield producing dozens of rhythm-and-blues-influenced pop hits.

So Ms. Weil had a double motivation for paying Aldon a visit, and both quests proved successful. Kirshner put her together with Miss King and Goffin, and as for her Mann-hunting, "I hung around until he noticed me."

"I NOTICED her when I played the song," protests Mann, a dark, bearded 42-year-old who still has a Brooklyn twang, "but I thought she was Teddy Randazzo's girlfriend, so I didn't really pay that much attention." That misimpression quickly was corrected, and soon the two were sharing an apartment, quite a Bohemian arrangement back in 1961. Within a year they were married and writing together.

"It was great," Mann recalls of the Aldon years. "We were all very competitive, and that ripped our guts out, but at the same time it really produced us. And we also kind of helped each other out. I'd play a song for Carole (King) and say, 'What do you think of this,' and she'd ask my opinion. ..."

There have been many hit records, a daughter, and a move to California since then, and Mann and Miss Weil have survived such musical upheavals as the Beatles' invasion, the various post-Beatle rock movements and disco.

'Hunchback' bends over forwards to please audience

NEW YORK (AP) — Passion, injustice, good and evil — ingredients soap operas create through every contrivance imaginable — are the essential elements of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," a television adaptation on CBS' "Hallmark Hall of Fame" tonight.

This classic book, set in 15th century Paris and written by Victor Hugo, has been produced for the movie theaters three times. Lon Chaney, Charles Laughton and Anthony Quinn each played Quasimodo, whose grossly deformed body

Anthony Hopkins, Emmy-award winner for his portrayal of Hitler in "The Bunker," is the latest Quasimodo. Abandoned as a baby at the gates of Notre Dame Cathedral, Quasimodo was taken in as a self-serving public gesture of charity by Dom Claude Frolo, the movie's villain. Quasimodo grows up to become the church's bell-ringer.

Hopkins needed five hours of make-up work before each day's shooting to achieve the necessary disfigurement. But if you can get past the ugliness — and this tale is certainly not for everyone — then the beauty of the beast shines through in his sensitivity and kindness.

Quasimodo falls in love with the gypsy Esmeralda (Lesley-Anne Down), and three scenes express beautifully his painful plight, illustrating that his deformities have wounded him but have not arrested his emotions.

—After Quasimodo is flogged in public, Esmeralda pities him and, alone among the hostile crowd, answers his pleas for water. He's then seen gallily ringing the bells and rolicking: "She gave me water. She gave me water."

—After saving Esmeralda from being raped by Dom Claude, Quasimodo tries to cheer her up with a lesson on the bells of Notre Dame.

"These are my ladies. I'm good to them and they're good to you."

—His love for her, of course, cannot be fully returned, and this recognition comes across sadly when he commiserates with a statue: "Why was I not made of stone, like you?"

Ice climbers enjoy challenge, outdoors

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP) — Ice climbers look like frigid spiders, delicately extending their limbs in coordinated movement while methodically scaling a sheer wall of frozen water.

"It's an engineering problem of how to get from point A to point B as efficiently as you can," said Charlie Granigan, a history teacher from Pittsburgh who guides white water raft tours in the summer.

"It's like climbing a ladder, only you use your hand tools and crampons for rungs," he added.

Crampons are special metal spikes that are strapped to climbing shoes and dug into the slippery ice wall to give climbers footholds.

Other gear necessary for a successful climb includes an ice axe or ice hammer for each hand, a harness for the legs and shoulders, plus a safety rope.

But why would anyone abandon a snug shelter on a Saturday morning to brave the elements and gingerly pick the way up a 70-foot sheet of ice clinging to a cliff?

"It's better than sitting at home and watching 'Bugs Bunny,'" laughed Granigan, kicking forming on his beard as he prepared for a climb.

His climbing mates agreed, noting that this winter sport is a special challenge.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, February 5, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Home-run king Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves celebrates this birthday with you. Also sharing this birthday: New York Times publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger and actor Red Buttons. You are likely to change your mind about several key people this year. Although certain old friendships may be slipping away, you find many new and more stimulating companions. Your intuition brings you greater business success. Follow your instincts when faced with two equally attractive alternatives. You are the best judge of what you really need now. Highly perceptive, you will choose your spouse wisely. Be careful not to act too possessive.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have a lot of catching up to do at home. Make good use of the weekend. Do not postpone things at the office either. You must adopt a positive attitude to win.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A friend may put you on the spot today. A mix-up in social arrangements makes you unhappy. A phone call will set everything straight.

ending the work week on a positive note.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Social functions offer you an opportunity to come into contact with a more interesting mix of people. Bankers and lawyers will be more helpful than in the past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put your ideas on paper. Approval seems more likely than in the recent past. Someone who previously appeared indifferent now expresses admiration.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Come to terms with a close relative or friend. A major domestic adjustment is indicated. Money could be involved. Make intelligent concessions. A dream could prove prophetic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Problems surface but so do easy solutions. Trust your intuition. Your self-discipline serves you well in time of emergency. Your leadership role is expanded.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Past experiences provide guidelines but each new event must be judged by itself. Marriage is in your thoughts, but your prospective partner may not be ready to make commitment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Career, school or community affairs give you the confidence to move ahead more swiftly. Answer loved one's questions as honestly as you can. You unload an emotional burden.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A friend thrives on gossip. Do not wet his/her appetite with information that should be kept confidential. Romance may be more serious on one side than on the other.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mechanical malfunctions need to be fixed immediately. Gifts could affect your ability to buy a house or get an education. A bargain turns out to be just what loved one wanted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get-together makes something happen for you. Travel is linked to an unexpected event. Success accompanies the resumption of an old friendship or business relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Friends may encourage you to be extravagant. Resist temptation! You do not have to spend a lot of money to be sophisticated. You will sleep better if you stick to your budget.

tage in holding up, so he won the king and got off play with a club. Declarer won the jack in dummy, returned to his hand with a trump, drawing East's last trump, and now led a low diamond.

If West rose with the ace of diamonds, declarer would later be able to get a heart discard on the king of diamonds and thus hold his heart losers to one. So West correctly played low and dummy's king of diamonds won. But declarer had prepared a neat ruse. He cashed the ace and nine of clubs, stuffing a diamond from dummy, and now gave West his diamond trick.

West did not appreciate having the lead. If he led another diamond, declarer would ruff on the table and discard a heart from his hand. But playing hearts was no better, because declarer held the king. Two aces and the king of clubs were all the tricks that the defenders could manage.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? District 8, 8A get seven wildcat tests

Seven wildcats have been staked in the district 8 and 8A counties of Cochran, Glasscock, Howard, Lubbock, Pecos and Terry.

COCHRAN VENTURES

Phillips Petroleum Co., Odessa, will drill the No. 1 P. Price, an 8,200-foot wildcat, six miles northwest of Morton. The location is 660 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of labor 5, league 120, Knox County School Land survey.

The No. 1 Brea will be drilled by Flag-Redfern Oil Co., Midland, 3 1/2 miles northeast of Morton.

The scheduled 4,750-foot wildcat is 660 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of section 5, block V, Public School Land survey.

GLASSCOCK WILDCAT

BTA Producers, Midland, will drill an 8,400-foot wildcat 6 1/2 miles northwest of Garden City.

Designated the No. 7.7613 JVP Cox-B, the site is 2,080 feet from the south, and 467 feet from the west line of section 27, block 35, T-3-S, T&P survey.

It is 1,000 feet east of the Lovelady's No. 1 Powell, an 8,396-foot producer.

HOWARD SEARCHER

Diamond Shamrock Corp., Amarillo, will drill the No. 1 Hull "22", an 8,850-foot wildcat, five miles north-northwest of Coahoma.

The prospector, located in the Nearburg (Canyon lime) field, is 467 feet from the north, and 1,823 feet from the east line of section 22, block 31, T-1-N, T&P survey.

LUBBOCK WILDCAT

Burk Royalty Co., Wichita Falls, will drill the No. 1 D.E. Adrian, a 9,350-foot wildcat, 10 miles northeast of Idalou.

The site is 2,173 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 48, block C-2, EL&RR survey.

PECOS VENTURE

Hillin Production Co., American Petrofina, and Hamill, Odessa, have scheduled the No. 1 M.A. Smith "State", a 10,000-foot wildcat, seven miles southwest of Iraan.

The site is 467 feet from the south, and 990 feet from the west line of section 18, block 194, GC&SF survey.

It is approximately two miles south of production in the Yates field.

TERRY PROSPECTOR

It is 1,980 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of section 70, block T, D&WRR survey.

The drillsite is in the Brownfield, South (Fusselman) field, with a scheduled completion depth for that field.

SBA report calls for government action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Small Business Administration report called today for the government to prevent the fledgling solar energy cell industry from becoming so concentrated that innovation is stifled.

"Government involvement ... is necessary to enable small businesses and semiconductor companies to compete" in the new industry, said the report done for the SBA by the Center for Renewable Resources, a nonprofit organization concentrating on solar research. The report said the photovoltaic industry — photovoltaic cells convert sunlight to electricity — is not competitive now because four companies control 86 percent of the market.

It says there are allegations that predatory pricing, the illegal practice of selling below cost, are keeping out small companies that are often the source of innovation in new industries.

The report also said that three of the four highest photovoltaic companies are owned in part by oil interests and that advertisements by oil companies — portraying solar energy as a 21st century technology — are dampening interest in solar development.

Among other things, the report calls for the Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department to investigate alleged predatory pricing; greater financial support from Congress to help small businesses enter the field; monitoring of the solar industry to watch for mergers and acquisitions that could be anti-competitive; and congressional hearings into competition in the industry.

The four largest photovoltaic companies are: Solarex, more than 25 percent of which is owned by Amoco; ARCO Solar, a wholly owned subsidiary of ARCO; Solar Power Corporation, owned by Exxon; and Solec International, 80 percent of which is owned by Pilkington Brothers, a British glass manufacturer.

Judge approves deepwater onshore crude oil terminal

GALVESTON (AP) — A federal judge has approved construction of an onshore oil "superport" here over the objections of a national environmentalist group.

U.S. District Judge Hugh Gibson said in his opinion filed Wednesday that although the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' study of the environmental impact of the project was "less than perfect," it still meets the standards of the National Environmental Protection Act.

But Gibson noted he "might take issue with the Corps' conclusion that the benefits from the project clearly outweigh its detriments."

Backers of the planned crude oil terminal hope to begin work on the $300 million project by early summer. The work will include dredging a 50-foot channel starting 30 miles or more from the end of the rocky jetty that protects the approach to the Galveston Ship Channel.

Sierra Club attorneys and expert witnesses argued at an October hearing that the potential environmental calamity that could result from a major oil spill in the bay outweighed the potential economic benefits of the terminal.

They also contended that the amount of dredging involved would badly disturb marine life. The Sierra Club argued that an environmentally preferable alternative would be an offshore deepwater port such as one planned off the coast at Freeport.

Marathon names vice president

HOUSTON (SWN) — Marathon Morco Company, Dickinson, Texas, has named Daniel C. Eckermann to the post of Vice President Operations.

Prior to joining this leading producer of white mineral oils and petroleum sulfonates, Eckermann served as Vice President, General Manager and Chief Operating Officer of Jasson Industries, Bellville, Texas. During his professional career, which includes eight years of experience with a major petrochemical company, he has acquired extensive knowledge of the chemicals/process industry.

He is a 1971 graduate of Texas A & M University and holds a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering.

Marathon Morco Company refines and markets high-quality white mineral oils under the brand name of Sontex which are widely used in pharmaceuticals and a number of other consumer products. The company is also a supplier of petroleum sulfonates used in motor oil additives and oil recovery.

Marathon Morco Company is a subsidiary of Marathon Manufacturing Company, the leading manufacturer of mobile offshore jackup drilling rigs.

Hiram Walker may take legal action against Davis Oil

TORONTO (AP) — Hiram Walker Resources Ltd. of Toronto says it has discovered exploration properties it bought from Davis Oil Co. of Denver, Colo., last year may contain 25 percent less oil and 50 percent less natural gas than it thought it was getting.

William Wilder, president of Hiram Walker, said Wednesday the company may take legal action against Davis Oil.

"We'll know in about a month whether we'll have a case for misrepresentation of information," he said after the company's annual shareholders' meeting.

Because of the lower reserve estimates and the recent drop in oil prices, Wilder said the company plans to write down the value of the acquisition by about $175 million on this year's financial statements. Hiram Walker common shares plunged $3.37 (Canadian) to $16 on the Toronto Stock Exchange after his announcement.

Hiram Walker agreed in January 1981 to pay Davis $630 million for lands in Wyoming, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas. At the time of the deal, Wilder said, the Canadian company thought the properties contained 11 million barrels in proved and probable reserves of crude oil and 173 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Later, he continued, Hiram Walker concluded the reserves totaled 10.4 million barrels of oil and 150 billion cubic feet of gas, but an independent appraisal determined proved oil reserves of 8.2 million barrels and proved gas reserves of 83 billion cubic feet as of Dec. 31.

Tentative agreement reached

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A tentative contract agreement has been reached between members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union and officials of Gulf Oil, a company spokesman said.

Jim Gatten, a spokesman for the Gulf plant, said Wednesday the agreement was reached after meetings between company officials and union representatives from local 4-23.

A ratification vote was set for Saturday, he said.

About 4,000 OCAW members at this city's Texaco refinery remained on strike. Union members have been walking picket lines since Jan. 8, when their contract expired.
