

Rockets Battle Panhandle Team There Friday

Out to meet an enemy in an annual game which is becoming a Class A tradition, the Wellington Skyrockets will play the Panhandle Panthers on the Panther field Friday night, September 20.

This will be the fifth time in the last three years that the Rockets and Panthers have met. So far as games won are concerned, the teams are even. Three years ago, the Panthers took the Regional championship, but the Rockets returned to take the title the following year. In a non-conference game year before last, the Rockets won, only to lose another non-conference game to the Panthers last year.

Little is known here of the strength of the Panthers. Neither team made an impressive showing so far as scoring was concerned in their openers Friday night. Meeting the Claude Mustangs, a Class B team, the Panthers barely eked out a 7 to 6 victory, and this score came in the final quarter of the game. The Rockets went down before the powerful Chillicothe Eagles 41 to 6.

The Panther team is reported in good condition, and ready for the hard fight which fans of both sides are expecting from the game.

Likewise, the Rockets are going into this contest in better condition than last week, since all injuries of the players have practically healed. Coach John Williams said Tuesday night. Praising the work of his inexperienced team, Williams also predicted that the effect of last week's game will be easily apparent in the playing Friday.

The Rockets will go into the game with an average line weight of 168 pounds, while the average for the backfield is 146 pounds. Although no figures on the weight of the Panthers was available, Coach Williams estimated they would outweigh the Rockets slightly.

Probable starters in the game may will include:

Board Of Three To Administer Draft Act Here

President Roosevelt signed the draft act Monday, and set October 16 as registration day for 16,500,000 young American men now subject to compulsory military training. The act includes those men between the ages of 21 and 35 years.

By this, the United States government for the first time in its history provided for peace-time compulsory military training.

The president asserted that by the act the United States was marshaling its strength to avert "the terrible fate of nations whose weakness invited attack."

Approximately 400,000 men will be in the army by January 1, it is estimated.

A local three-man draft board will be in charge of the registration and the subsequent selection of draftees. This board will be announced within the near future, or as soon as appointments can be approved by the governor and president.

City Equalization Board Completes Work This Week

The city equalization board this week completed the work of equalizing taxes on city property, and hearing those whose taxes had been raised.

Work was begun immediately on the tax rate for the coming year. This rate will be set by the city council at its next meeting, Joe Thompson, city secretary, said Wednesday morning.

Completion Of Stadium Expected By December 1

Powell Field's new football stadium and field house will be completed by about December 1 if the present rate of construction is continued, Jack Ball, project supervisor, estimated early this week.

The work, an NYA project sponsored by the Wellington Independent School District, has been under way since early summer. When completed the building will be one of the largest native rock structures in this immediate area.

The stadium seats will run the entire length of the east side of the building, 156 feet, and will accommodate approximately 500 persons. Behind the seats, with entrances on the west side of the structure will be the dressing rooms with lockers, the coach's

The best show in Collingsworth in years—the County Fair—closed in Wellington Friday evening, after thousands of people from every community of the county, and from all adjoining counties, had visited the exhibits and added attractions during the two days of the event.

A majority of the winning exhibits were taken from the Fair to the Tri-State Fair to compete in that event.

Both officials of the Fair and hundreds of visitors expressed their satisfaction with the entire event, adding that its results were far beyond their own expectations.

Agricultural and educational booths came from every part of the county, and two agricultural booths were shown from Donley County. These were from the Bray and McKnight communities, which transfer their school students into this county. In addition to these, several groups under the sponsorship of the federal government, and local institutions exhibited displays.

Attracting much attention throughout the Fair was the antique exhibit, including not only family heirlooms of local persons, but Indian artifacts 2,000 years old.

Opening the Fair Thursday morning was the parade of all horses and cattle shown, rodeo mounts, and commercial exhibits.

Rodeo events, both Thursday afternoon and Friday morning, were among the added attractions. Winners in Thursday's event included:

Calf Roping: first, Farris Hess, 20.4 seconds; second, Frank Campbell, 22 seconds; third, Jack Lowe, 23.6 seconds.

Goat Roping: first, Jack Lowe, 11.4 seconds; second, Jim Kromer, 18.1 seconds; third, Cameron Beam, 18.9 seconds.

Roman Tournament: first, Cliff Campbell, with 8 rings; second, Frank Campbell, with 7 rings; and third, Cal Sugg, with 6 rings.

Friday's rodeo included only two events, calf roping and goat roping. (Continued on Page Twelve) office, store rooms, and public rest rooms.

At present, 70 young men between the ages of 17 and 25 years are employed on the project, with each boy working 80 hours each month.

"Most of these boys are having their first experience in rock work and carpentry, and as a whole, they are making splendid progress," Mr. Ball said.

"Already several boys have left this job and entered private employment and are making a success of their job," he added.

Wellington fans will have their first opportunity to see this new stadium under construction when the Rockets open their home schedule with Wheeler Friday night, September 27.

Wellington Takes FFA Honors At Tri State Fair

"Stop the Hop—Save the Crop." This is the slogan of the Wellington Future Farmers of America chapter's outstanding educational exhibit on battling grasshoppers which enabled them to take the purple banner and first place honors in the vocational agriculture section at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo this week.

Lakeview was second and Bovina third in the competition.

Judges of the winning booths praised the high quality of the displays. Speaking of the exhibits as a whole, they said, "This year's booths are the finest ever shown at the Tri-State Fair."

The Wellington and Lakeview exhibits, by winning the Amarillo show, have the right to compete at the State Fair at Dallas next month. Ronald Davis, vocational agriculture teacher at Wellington, was in charge of the Wellington booth, while E. A. Peck, who formerly was at Samnorwood, and is now vocational instructor at Lakeview, was in charge of the Lakeview booth.

The Wellington booth urges the destruction of grasshoppers by poisoning, and thereby the conservation of some of the farmer's finest crops. The display shows that in the last four years grasshoppers have cost the United States $315,753,000, of which $17,126,000 was borne by Oklahoma and $8,099,000 by Texas.

The Samnorwood Chapter exhibit, although it was not among the winners, received high praise from the judges. This exhibit illustrates a typical cold storage (Continued on Page Twelve)

Discuss Poultry Show Plans September 29

Initial plans for Collingsworth County's second annual Poultry Show will be laid Saturday, Sept. 28, when poultry raisers, hatcherymen, and feed dealers of the county meet to perfect the show's organization.

V. H. Lindsey, superintendent of the show, will be in charge of the meeting, which is scheduled for the district court room at 3 o'clock. "We are confident that the show this year will be better even than it was last time. There's already interest being shown, and besides this, it is apparent that people of the county are becoming more 'chicken conscious' than they have been in many years," Mr. Lindsey

Season Football Tickets Go On Sale Friday

Season tickets for the Skyrockets home games this year will go on sale Friday, Sept. 20, at the office of John Harper, secretary of the school board. Mr. Harper's office is located in the First National Bank building.

These tickets will be good for the Skyrocket games with Wheeler, Sept. 27; Lakeview, Oct. 11; McLean, Oct. 18; Memphis, Nov. 1; and Shamrock, Nov. 8.

"Only about 450 season tickets will be sold this year, so we urge all fans who are eager to buy these tickets to make arrangements for them early," Mr. Harper said.

Selections For Tenant Purchase Program Made

Selection of the five men in Collingsworth County who will purchase their farms under the Tenant Purchase program of the federal government was made Friday, September 13, R. W. Dent, Farm Security Administration supervisor, announced.

These include Dick Sweat, Joe Orr, A. C. Patterson, Dennis Lacy, and Harry Jones. At the same time, four alternates were selected, Ernest Nipper, James L. Harris, Ford Carter, and Leonard Karnes. None of the alternates will be selected for a farm purchase unless one of the five selected fails to qualify, Mr. Dent explained.

This is the first year that the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Purchase program has been extended to Collingsworth County, and it provided for the purchase of only five farms at this time. The program will likely be extended next year and additional tenants will be selected to purchase their own farms. More than 300 applications were made by men in this county wishing to purchase farms under the act.

The program will be administered through the Farm Security (Continued on Page Twelve)

Farm Payment Applications To Be Signed Soon

Collingsworth County's receipts from government cotton parity payments this week topped the $100,000 mark, with other shipments of checks expected before the week ends.

A total of 1896 checks, slightly more than half of the total number to be received, have now come in, while the total amount now stands at $108,292.41.

Included in this were the 285 checks totaling $20,000 received Wednesday morning, September 18.

The first of these checks, which arrived around August 20, were approximately a month earlier than the first checks last year.

A continuous flow of government money on farm payments is expected for this county during the next three or four months, since the early signing of applications for conservation payments is expected to bring a part of these payments to county farmers by the middle of December.

Signing of applications for farm conservation payments will begin within the very near future, possibly in ten days, it was announced Tuesday from the AAA office in Wellington.

"Work will begin on the applications Monday. This will include typing up each application and checking it when the applications are ready to sign, each co-operator in the farm program will be notified," C. V. Griffin, administrative officer, said.

Mr. Griffin expressed the belief that the checks for these conservation payments will be received here before the first of the year.

"Last year the first checks came in on November 17, and we believe they'll be as early this time," he said.

Those farmers who have earned their soil building payments will have their applications sent in to the state office first, while those whose soil building work has not been completed will be sent in as soon as word is received from College Station for them to come in, it was explained.

Father Of Judge Bishop Dies

Judge and Mrs. C. C. Bishop of Wellington left Saturday to attend the funeral services of Judge Bishop's father, Rev. M. C. Bishop, which were held in San Angelo Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. They were accompanied by their son, Burton Love, and Mrs. Love of Stinnett.

Rev. Bishop, who retired two years ago as pastor of the First Baptist Church at Big Lake, was assistant teacher of the men's Bible Class of Cliff Temple Church in Dallas at the time of his death.

The veteran minister was former pastor of numerous West Texas churches, including College Heights Church at Abilene, First Church, Tahoka, and the churches at Rising Star, Snyder, Caldwell, (Continued on Page Twelve)

...BUT WHY COURT-MARTIAL THE WHOLE REGIMENT?

There are bound to be one or two bad soldiers in every regiment. But why court-martial the whole regiment?

The same applies to beer retailing. Out of hundreds of thousands of wholesome, law-abiding beer retailers, there is bound to be a small minority who disobey the law or permit anti-social conditions.

To protect your right to drink good beer, the Brewing Industry wants even this small minority of undesirable retailers eliminated entirely. Beer is a refreshing, appetizing beverage—the beverage of moderation. We want every beer retail establishment to be as wholesome as beer itself.

To that end, we have instituted a "clean-up or close-up" program—now in operation in some states and being extended to others. We'd like to tell you about it in an interesting free booklet.

ALL WILL AGREE That The Fair Was A Success

However, the Fair is only an annual occasion.

Banking service, in order to be a success, must be continuous—from day to day—the year around.

And unless a bank's interest rates on loans and its charges for other services are reasonable and fair, it is not a success in the true sense of the word.

This bank tries to operate on the above basis.

Give us a chance to prove it.

City School Enrollment Now Totals 1,089

Enrollment in the Wellington school system to date totals 1,089 students, John L. Beard, superintendent, revealed after a tabulation of the classes late Tuesday.

Of this number, 440 boys and girls are enrolled in the senior high school, while the remainder of the group was in Junior High, east ward and west ward schools.

The total figure will be raised by a small number upon the opening of colored school, which is administered under the city system.

This enrollment is a little under the figures for 1939-40, Mr. Beard said.

"We are looking forward to one of the most successful terms in the history of the school," Mr. Beard said. "The opening days have been most satisfactory, both to the students and teachers."

A recent addition to the school enrollment came recently with the transfer of the students of the Pleasant Point School to the Wellington system. Ray Wells, teacher at that school, is now placed in the local high school system.

Mrs. F. M. Neely, Quail Woman, Is Buried Thursday

Mrs. F. M. Neely, 81-year-old resident of the Quail community, died at her home there Thursday morning, September 12, at 4:00 o'clock. Funeral services were conducted at 5 o'clock the same day from the Primitive Baptist Church in Wellington with Eld. E. J. Norman, pastor, in charge, assisted by Eld. F. M. Griffith.

Mrs. Neely had lived in the Quail section for the last seventeen years, and during the years she had made many friends throughout the western part of the county who loved and respected her for the many fine qualities which made up her character.

A native of Georgia, Mrs. Neely was born June 17, 1859, and at the time of her death she was 81 years, 2 months, and 25 days of age. She was before her marriage Mary Elizabeth McDow, the daughter of Robert McDow, a native of Georgia, and Sallie Seigars McDow, who had moved to that state from North Carolina. Mrs. Neely had made her home in Texas for many years.

She was a devout member of the Primitive Baptist Church.

Surviving Mrs. Neely are her husband, F. M. Neely of Quail; two sons and two daughters, Jasper Neely of Quail, Newt Neely of Honey Grove, Mrs. Mattie Goldsberry of Sulphur, Okla., and Mrs. Nannie Hill of Wynnewood, Oklahoma; a sister, Mrs. Mattie Parrish of Windom; 52 grandchildren, 31 great grandchildren, and three great-great grandchildren.

Hymns for the funeral service included "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be," "O, Dear Mother How We Miss You," and "Mother Tell Me of the Angels." Flower bearers were granddaughters, and grandsons were pall bearers.

Interment was in the Wellington cemetery with the Kelso Funeral Home in charge.

Mad Stone Is Exhibited By A. H. Reneau

A mad stone which has been in his family for more than a hundred years was exhibited in Wellington last week by A. H. Reneau of the Rolla community.

The stone, Mr. Reneau stated, has been used several times on persons and animals suffering from snake bites. Twice it was believed lost, but was later found by the family.

A relative of Mr. Reneau took the stone from a deer which he killed in Missouri.

Featherless Chick Is Owned By W. M. Scott Of Loco

W. M. Scott of Loco, whose hobby is hunting out odd animals in

The chicken, of broiling size, is not a feather on its body, and has never had any. "There was little down on it at first, but soon shed that."

The chicken has become a family pet, and so far, their chicken trouble was keeping it warm during the few cool days last week.

SUPERIOR Ginning Service Is Our First Aim

That is the reason you will find the Farmers Co-Op Gin each year spending a part of its funds to keep all of its machinery in first class condition. This year at the beginning of the 1940 ginning season, we are happy to tell our members and customers that this gin is in a condition rivaled by that only when the machinery was installed brand new. New saws and ribs have been installed where needed and the entire plant has been gone over and reconditioned.

Our purpose is to give you the best in ginning service at all times. That is our first aim. Our second is, as you naturally know, to return the profits of this gin to the farmers who gin here, which we do at the end of each season.

We are ready to give you the first class service—the gin machinery is all ready to go. The next step is up to you—determining how much your rebate will be at the end of the season. We can assure you that we are in the best shape ever to pay a pleasing dividend. Your co-operation—your loyalty will determine the amount. Remember the more you gin the bigger the dividend.

OPEN HOUSE SOON

Watch this paper for the announcement of our open house. At that time you will be invited and every person in the county will be invited to come by and see this gin in operation. Many people have never seen a gin plant going. They are invited. To our members, we say, we ask you to come by and check up on the splendid condition of the gin yourself. If you feel you can't tell for yourself, we invite you to bring someone with you who does know gin machinery. It is your gin and you owe it to yourself to be familiar with its operation and its condition.

Rockets Drop First Game Of Season To Chillicothe

If Friday the 13th is a jinx, dogged the Wellington Skyrockets Friday night, when they dropped their opening game to the long Chillicothe Eagles on the long field by a score of 41 to 6. Despite the score by which they were swamped, the Rockets and their fans came up optimistic over a promise which the Wellington boys showed, and with the general opinion—all they need now is me experience. Not once during the entire game did a Rocket man fumble the ball, and not once was the team penalized.

The Rockets' lone score came in the final minutes of the game. Taking the ball on their own 35 yard line after an Eagle touchdown, Rockets Merle Wallace and Fred Cox, Jr., assisted by Junior Young and L. E. Gribble, pushed the ball down the field to the one yard line, from where Cox plunged over for the score. The Rockets failed to kick the extra point.

The Eagles' first score came shortly after the opening kickoff. A 12-yard run by Morrison, which followed up with a 30-yard gain, and a 25-yard run by Hopkins carried the ball deep into Wellington territory. A 4-yard plunge by Hopkins took the ball over. To his he added the extra point. Later in the game Hopkins sustained a broken collar-bone which will take him out of the Chillicothe line-up for the next four or five games.

A pass from Goforth was intercepted by Karr, who ran 28 yards for a touchdown. The Eagles scored again in the first quarter when Hopkins intercepted a pass, and a few plays later a pass from Morrison to Dillion for 25 yards was good for the score.

Their fourth touchdown came after a 40-yard run by Hopkins, and shorter drives by Henry and Hopkins. Henry took the ball over left end for eight yards and a touchdown. A pass from Morrison to Dillion in the third and again in the fourth netted scores for the Chillicothe team, before the Rocket machine got into action.

The statistical record of the game included six first downs for the Rockets and 14 for the Eagles; the Eagles gained 262 yards rushing; the Rockets 97 yards.

FIRST QUARTER

The Rockets received the opening kickoff and advanced to the 37-yard line before punting to the Eagle 20-yard line. Morrison, taking the ball for a 12-yard return, opened the series of plays which resulted in the Eagles' first touchdown. On the second play after the Rockets received the ball, Goforth's pass was intercepted by Morrison, who ran for a touchdown. Morrison also kicked the extra point.

Receiving the ball, Cox made a spectacular 60-yard run up the field to the Chillicothe 20-yard line.

Rocket luck again was blocked here, as a pass from Melton, who had just gone in for Cox, was intercepted by Hopkins. Morrison's nine-yard plunge was followed by a 9-yard gain by Hopkins, and again Morrison took the ball over center for 30 yards. After another 6-yard gain by Morrison, he passed the ball 25 yards to Dillion for the Eagles' third touchdown. Hopkins kicked the extra point as the first quarter ended.

SECOND QUARTER

Receiving the kickoff at the opening of the second quarter, Merle Wallace alternated with Cox on a 22-yard advance, to which Gribble added 3 yards. With no further gain, the Rockets were forced to punt. Here the Eagles opened the 70-yard drive which carried them for their fourth touchdown and extra point.

Goodner received the ball for Wellington on the 35-yard line and returned it six yards. Short plunges advanced the ball to about the Eagles' 43-yard line as the half ended.

THIRD QUARTER

In a series of plunges early in the third quarter, Henry and Morrison carried the ball from their own 33-yard line to near the center of Rocket Territory, only to receive a 15-yard penalty for clipping. Two passes fell incomplete. After the Wellington boys had failed to make material progress, the Eagles again took the ball and in a series of short drives, carried the ball to the Wellington three-yard line. A pass from Henry to Dillion at this point was good for another touchdown, bringing the score to 35 to 0.

FOURTH QUARTER

Short plunges by Eagles Morrison, Henry, and substitute Tidmore again carried the ball deep into Rocket land, and again a pass, this time from Morrison to Dillion, gave the Eagles their score.

The Rockets, taking charge of the ball here began their intense drive down the field which resulted in their single score. Center drives by Cox, Merle Wallace and Young, along with drives over tackle by Wallace and Gribble, brought the ball to the Eagle 1-yard line. Cox, taking the ball, plunged over for the touchdown. Wellington's attempt to kick the extra point failed.

The county fair has come and gone, but the tremendous success of the fair has started tongues to wagging. The exhibits were much better than anyone expected in this dry year. The hog show, was excellent. Thanks to the George Sitters ranch, the beef exhibit was of a high standard, and the horse and mule division surprised everybody. Furthermore the fair was properly financed and paid all premiums, all expenses and had a little money left over for next year. Congratulations are due every person who had a part in this fair, which was arranged in less than three weeks time.

I said it had started tongues to wagging. People like a county fair. They want the fair grounds rebuilt. The success and the beauty of the NYA project at the football field has caused them to think of a stone fair building with a rock fence around it—something that could not be carried off or burned. The old fair grounds belong jointly to the city and the county. There is an idea there, and you may hear more of it later.

Turn out for the first home football game September 27 when we play Wheeler and see the new improvements at the football field. You will be proud of our town and our school.

And another thing folks, if you are friends of mine, please please let's show the folks from Wheeler more hospitality than we ever displayed before for anyone. Wellington can do a right royal job of entertaining people, making them feel at home and that they are our friends, but when Wheeler comes over, please for my sake won't you stretch this just a little bit more.

The people over at Wheeler were certainly gracious and very kind to me this summer. I will appreciate it as a personal favor if you give each and every one of them this same kind of treatment every time they come to Wellington.

Report on advertising: The half page ad run by Ed Kirby last week resulted in the largest turnout both night and morning in years, excepting such occasions as Easter, Mother's Day and the bacchalaureate.

Maurice Dickson collared me down at the gin and pointed over to my mother's burned field and said: "I thought you said this was the best place to live in the world." "Sure," I said, "but I was talking about the people and not the weather. The weather is terrible, but you can't beat our sort of people."

Bert Starkey says that he is sure Collingsworth County is going Republican this fall on account of Frank Eikenburg is going to vote for Wendell Wilkie. Let Bert explain this, for I didn't say it, I am merely reporting.

Frank Royal was going to desert the party of his fathers until he heard the Wilkie Amarillo speech over the radio. Since then he has been going around saying that he will probably have to vote for Norman Thomas. Is that conservative still running?

Golly, cottonseed is bringing $26 a ton in Wellington. That is pretty high if you know anything about the market. However, it will bring business to Wellington. Some of you merchants ought either to underwrite the gin fight or else do a bunch of advertising that will help bring a little business to town in your own right. Some of you guys just coast on the work of others. If this doesn't hit you, don't squawk.

A paper salesman came by this morning—one who has known me 15 years and said: "Say, your daughter is about old enough to start to school this year, isn't she?" I told him that she was in the third grade. All of which reminds me. I took a look at one of Clark Anderson's lovely daughters the other day—I never have known which was which—and the thought struck me: Why she is a grown young lady.

Time goes by faster than we think, and there are a lot of young men who yesterday I

Want Ad Saves Cost Of New License Plates

A want ad costing 25 cents last week saved one Wellington Leader subscriber the cost of a new set of license tags—no small item for the car owner.

D. B. Harris of the Salt Fork community lost the license tag and tail light of his car between Lillie and Wellington, and upon discovering it, ran an ad in The Leader.

The day after the Leaders went out, R. Carson, also of Salt Fork, came by.

"If you see that fellow who lost his license, tell him I found them," he said.

used to think of as about the same age as David Baumgardner and Walter Lee O'Neil who are getting ready to sign up on October 16. Every man from the age of 21 to 35 must register, but the ones I am thinking about are the single fellows sound in body and in mind. They will be called first. My guess is that about 35 will go from this county on the first call for military training.

Have you noticed how many from this county have already joined the army, the navy and the air force? If you will check back through your old papers you will find that it rivals the enlistment from some states. Quite a story might be written about why the young men from the South and the Southwest are more ready to fight than the young men of any other sections, but because of the need of national unity, I will leave that to another day.

The government checks are coming in—over $100,000 has arrived. Let's end this column on this happy thought.

Well Braced And Anchored Corner Post Necessary

Well braced and anchored corner posts are to a fence what a good foundation is to a building. If the end posts of a line of fence are not well braced so that the wire can be stretched tight much of the efficiency of the fence is lost.

Where wires run to a deadman buried at least eight feet back of a corner post will not be in the way, this method of anchoring a corner post is recommended by M. R. Bentley, agricultural engineer of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service.

The most important thing is to anchor a post so that it will not rise. A cross bar 16 to 24 inches long, nailed to the bottom of the post on the side opposite to the brace, will keep the post from rising vertically. Another cross bar near the surface will give greater bearing surface on the post.

Tests have shown that it is better to anchor a corner post down with a cross bar than to depend on the weight of an extremely heavy post or a rough post with rock packed around it.

Bentley said the most common error found in bracing posts is that the braces are not long enough. These should be nine feet or longer, and of four by four inch treated lumber or that equivalent in strength and durability in other material.

The most effective braces slope from near the top of the corner post down to near the ground on the brace post.

And The Alabama Accent Didn't Mean A Thing

OKLAHOMA CITY.—"But I wasn't born in Oklahoma," persisted a negro trying to register as an alien.

Yes, the official replied, one could tell by the Alabama accent.

"But I'm an African."

The official (one must be patient) laboriously explained that African descent didn't mean one wasn't a citizen.

At the door, the negro paused. "I was born," he said desperately, "in Monrovia, Liberia, Africa."

"Oh-h-h-h," a small voice said. "Name, please."

During the season of 1922, Eddie Collins of the Philadelphia Americans stole six bases in each of two games.

Farm Income Up $296,000,000 In First Half Of '40

COLLEGE STATION.—Farm income from marketings during the first six months of 1940 was up 296 million dollars over figures for the same period of last year.

The increase came from improvement in domestic demand, which more than balanced dwindling exports, T. R. Timm, economist of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service, states in an analysis of the USDA Bureau of Agricultural Economics report.

Some further improvement in domestic demand is indicated. No boom, no runaway prices are in sight—simply a sound advance stimulated by increased industrial production for national defense. Supplies of food and feed are more than ample.

The outlook for exports of farm products is very unsatisfactory as European markets which furnished an outlet for about one-third of U. S. exports of farm products are now closed. Cotton is hit worse than any other commodity.

Cotton growers, faced by a gloomy export picture, find some consolation in increased cotton mill activity in this country. Domestic mill consumption for the current marketing year now seems likely to reach 7,750,000 bales; an increase of almost a million over the 1938-39 total of 6,858,000.

The U. S. wheat supply for the current year is about the same as for last season—a billion bushels. An increase of around 25 million bushels in the carryover is offset by a similar decrease in this year's crop. World wheat supplies appear to be from 100 to 200 million bushels less than a year ago, but holdings are still about double the normal export trade.

Scientists Put In Good Word For Bull Nettles

COLLEGE STATION.—Somebody has finally got around to saying a good word for the bull nettle.

The 'somebody' is two University of California scientists, who found that the plant contained a protein-digesting enzyme resembling pepsin in its action.

It is even more like the digestive compound found in the subtropical fruit papaya, known as papain. Papain has long been used as a medicine for indigestion, and it is possible that the new enzyme, which has been named solanin, may be useful in the same way.

It is also thought that solanin may find economic application in tanning and other industries, especially since it is more resistant to heat than other digestive enzymes.

Maybe Texas farmers will be planting bull nettles some day.

An Extra $100 From Egg Co-op

COLLEGE STATION.—Twenty Floyd County farm families will realize an average of $100 a year extra income through the organization of an egg marketing association.

The association, according to the Floyd County agricultural and home demonstration agents, D. F. Bredthauer and Edith Lois Wilson, is the outgrowth of work by the local land use planning committee.

A subcommittee authorized to develop local markets reported, among other things, that farm eggs were being penalized because of their low grade.

The 20 families agreed to form a demonstration association. A committee visited the farm of each member, inspected the flock and equipment and made recommendations for increasing the production and marketing of fertile eggs.

A sales committee contacted a local buyer and agreed to deliver 1,000 dozen fertile, high quality eggs each week at a price 4 cents a dozen above the local market.

After a 30-day period of improvement, the members began delivery of the eggs. Extra income to date has averaged $40 per week.

Six years and five months after it had been mailed at an office four miles distant, a letter was delivered recently to W. M. Dudecke in New York City.

Richard Crossman of St. Louis was fined for striking a physician who had diagnosed his ailments as due to over-indulgence in liquor.

COLOR IN FOOD

Did you know that color in food is just as important as color in dress? People choose different colors of clothing to emphasize the color in their cheeks, and brighten the glow of their hair. Colors in fruits and vegetables serve the same purpose. There is actual truth in the saying, "Red beets make rosy cheeks." The vitamins in fresh red beets do add color to the skin. The yellow coloring in carrots and the green in lettuce and spinach supply the body with elements necessary for good health and attractiveness.

In making foods attractive to the eye, nature has made them equally as attractive and essential to health. Each paint used by nature to color fruits and vegetables is composed of different mineral and vitamin compounds which our bodies need.

Color in foods may be used as a guide in balancing meals. A meal that is all green is neither attractive nor well balanced. One would soon tire if he were seated at a table supplied with only white, or almost colorless foods. Yet some green and some white foods served with a bit of red, yellow, brown, and orange ones make a delightful meal.

Nature has given us a generous array of color combinations in fruits and vegetables. The coloring ranges from the light tints of mild foods to the vivid and rare color of the strong, highly flavored ones. There are colors to suit the appetites which prefer soft, bland foods, as well as those which relish strong, distinct flavorings. As many colors as possible should be included in the diet daily to guarantee the presence of every mineral element the body needs for health and growth.

Foods with bright coloring are more healthful than the pale ones. Bright green leaves of lettuce contain more vitamins than the white leaves of headed lettuce.

The color schemes of our menus, like the bouquets for our tables, are easiest to plan at this season of the year. The task is much more difficult during the winter months after the products of gardens and nearby truck patches are no longer available. Make meal planning during the winter months easier by canning as great a variety of foods as possible now.

The green color in menus may be varied by using green beans, peas, and greens alternately. Squash, carrots and parsnips add a bit of yellow, or orange to the diet. Beets, tomatoes, berries and radishes supply the reds so universally liked. Potatoes, corn, pears, celery and similar foods contribute a bit of restful white to the scheme. By searching, there are foods to be found to give a touch of blue, purple, pink, brown and tan to the menu.

Try to serve some fruits and vegetables of every color daily, and you can be sure that your family received a balanced diet. Adopt the policy of at least four different colors in every meal as a safe minimum requirement.

Two Classes Name Officers

Selection of the class officers for the senior and junior classes of Quail high school have been announced. Burlin Wilson was elected president of the senior class. This is the second consecutive year that he has been chosen to head his class.

Other officers elected were Whit Pate, vice president; Annett Atkinson, secretary and treasurer; and Ruth Aaron, reporter. Class mothers are Mrs. George Graham, Mrs. Clyde Gilbreth, and Mrs. Walter Starr.

Johnnie Crawford was chosen to head the junior class. Marlin Weaver was elected vice president, Vaudell Smith, secretary and treasurer, and Pauline Cherry, reporter. Miss Audrey Boggs and Mrs. G. S. Dowell will serve as sponsors and Mrs. Walter Starr, Mrs. George Thomas, and Mrs. T. H. Walters as class mothers.

University Shows Stock Trends For Last 20 Years

AUSTIN.—The Texas range is witnessing a hard-pressed cattle industry, a leveled-off production of hogs, large gains in milk cows, and a phenomenal increase in sheep.

This picture of the State's live stock industry comes from a 20-year survey just published by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Since 1920 more than a million head of cattle have vanished—at least the 1940 herd of 6,677,000 head is that much smaller than the one of 1920, though there have been wide fluctuations from one year to the next during the last two decades.

Low point of the twenty years was in 1928, when there were only 5,950,000 head of cattle in the State. The peak was reached in 1934 with 8,410,000 head.

It is possible, declares Dr. F. A. Euechel, the Bureau's livestock expert, that the decline in cattle since 1937 is simply a "dip that may curve upward again the next few years."

Cattle marketings for the last fifteen years have ranged between 1,819,775 head in 1932 and 2,917,109 in 1939. Average annual marketings for the 15-year period were estimated at 2,298,509.

Dairy cattle, however, have been on a steady upgrade with only two years of retardation—both slight in effect—1925 and 1935. The number of milk cows have increased from 930,000 head in 1920 to 1,443,000 head in 1940.

The swine industry for the last two decades has experienced a succession of surges and recessions, with the number declining from 2,580,000 head in 1920 to 2,293,000 in 1940. The droves increased almost a hundred thousand head in 1921, but the following year started a slump that carried them to only 1,460,000 head in 1926. Improvement in 1927 and 1928 was followed by another decline for several years. By 1933 the number had risen to 2,260,000 head, dropping almost immediately to a new low of 1,399,000 head in 1935. Since then gains have been fairly regular. Average annual market disappearance of hogs has been 1,401,527 head.

Sheep-raising, however, is apparently the "white hope" of the live stock industry in Texas—with flocks tripling in the last two decades. From 3,360,000 head in 1920, these animals have increased to 10,069,000 head in 1940. The only halt in this upswing was in 1935 and 1936 when the number dropped nearly a million head from 1934 and totaled only a little over 7,000,000 head.

Sheep marketings, too, have shown a relatively steady increase from 680,439 head in 1925 to 8,023,794 head in 1938 and 2,634,095 in 1939. Low points were in 1930 and 1935, both followed by large gains the next year. Average marketings for the 15-year period were 1,529,206 head.

Cotton Bagging Program Goes On

The cotton bagging program of the Surplus Marketing Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be continued for at least another year, F. E. Lichte, cotton gin specialist of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service, has been advised.

The program is designed to encourage use of American-grown cotton for cotton wrapping or bagging. A normal crop of cotton in the United States would require the use of about 135,000 bales if all were wrapped in cotton.

A maximum of a million wrappings will be used for the current year's crop and the six manufacturers who have received contracts will get payments of 25 cents per wrapping to offset losses from small volume.

The cotton bagging was first tried in 1938, when less than 17,500 bales were so covered.

Former Page Back In Legislature

FORT WORTH.—A familiar voice is coming back to the staid hall of the Texas house of representatives. The voice belongs to 21-year-old Jack Love, a university of Texas debater who was elected state representative.

Love was a senate page for eight years, and the spectators frequently chuckled when the chubby boy, with a most confident manner, boomed his adult voice into the house microphone. The Fort Worth youngster served as the senate's messenger to the house, reporting to that body on action taken in the senate.

Even now, Love's voice and manner are much more mature than his years. He has aimed for eight years at a political career, after a beginning as a 13-year-old speaker for Gov. Ross Sterling. In his first political race, Love defeated a veteran legislator, B. T. (Nub) Johnson.

The newcomer is well-known in Austin, and announced that he had definite ideas about his new job. Two days after the returns were in, he went to Austin to inquire why most of the state's employees here came from cities other than Fort Worth.

Love—whose slogan was "With Love"—was so confident of success that he had eight bills prepared for introduction at the next legislature, even before his choice was assured.

M. F. Hicks of Billings, Okla. shingled a barn 50 by 40 feet with automobile license plates. He purchased all the unsold plates in the county.

An advertisement in a Pasadena, Calif., newspaper began "Lost: A lead pencil, by Marjorie Weats, blonde, five foot five, blue eyes, good dancer."

2-Year School Plan Explained by Supt. Beard

(Editor's Note: This discussion of the 12 year school system, now inaugurated in many schools of Texas, was given before a local club recently by J. Beard, superintendent of the city schools. In it, Mr. Beard describes the desirable features which are causing educators to look on the plan with favor.)

One of the most important developments in our modern school program is the introduction of another year of time for the completion of the same amount of work as far as the number of grades concerned. We should refer to a year of school progress of a child as the level he is or has in working on. In the introduction of the twelfth year, we think it will increase the total cost of the operation of a school system at least one-eleventh the total cost of operation. However, this cannot be true because an average school has at least ten per cent annual failure of pupils, and even a larger per cent of retardation. One of the reasons for extending the time in the public schools is to insure failures and make it possible for the student to grow educationally at a normal rate. There is too much emphasis placed on the new matter of promotion. How many parents are interested in the grade a child gets or whether he or she be promoted than in the actual progress the child is making? It is evident that our system of grading is not conducive to educational advancement. In the introduction of the additional year to the public school program, the State Department of Education recommends that we do not regard a child as a first grader, second grader, or a third grader but instead that we regard the child as a primary school pupil. The next level is the elementary school which includes the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth grades, or years should say instead of grades. When we come to the level of the high school which should include the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth years of his school work.

We repeat one statement already made, it is not important which a child is in; but adding to that statement, it is very important that the child be working at the best progress, and be happiest. The first level, or primary school time, should be spent on introducing the child to the school. The most difficult and difficult educational process in the life of any child is learning to read. Six old children should not be introduced into reading, and they should be given sufficient time to develop a real enthusiastic readiness. The first year of school life of a child should be spent in adjustments and adding the child to the school. The teacher should use many kinds of materials and equipment for work and play, for the child to color, place, move, remove, etc., all of which should contribute to the adjustment of nerves, and the eyes need the proper adjustment. Therefore, if the child really learns to read and conduct himself properly for years of school life, and not been poorly taught, he is introduced in on a very successful life. It is all right for the child to count and use some arithmetic, to read geographic and history stories, but it is not educationally sound to teach a primary formal arithmetic, geography and history. All other subjects except reading can come in an elementary school. Another from the beginning, almost, any good books for the child and a good library should be available for the primary, the elementary, the junior school and high school. When children really taught to read when they are in the primary school, they have access to good and easy reading material, they usually have no trouble with study in the years.

Looking to the youth already out of school, should we say we need another year on our school program? Too, what about the high school graduate? The total cost of education in the United States has increased at over seven times the cost of public education by J. Edgar Hoover. Of all the crime

Off To Sea

Looking more like a prehistoric monster than a modern ship, the S. S. Mormacsun glides down the ways in night launching at Oakland, Calif. The ship will be between the U. S. and South America.

committed in the United States, 18 per cent is being committed by people between 16 and 21 years of age. A large number of young people at this age are unemployed because they are not prepared for not enough jobs to supply employment. Many of these young people are on highways and in our cities where discontent grows instead of being alleviated. This is the buoyant, resplendent age, where success brings happiness and makes the future appear as a dream. The youth problem is the most serious one facing America and must be solved to some extent if our democracy is to live. Another year added to our school program will keep all the youth in the public school another year if they are not retarded before reaching graduation. To admit the entire truth, we need at least fourteen years for our public schools in Wellington. We need to expand our libraries and institute more reading for leisure and entertainment, more appreciation of good literature. We need more music for every person, and all of us need more appreciation for good music. We need to give more vocational training of more kinds, and it would be a financial saving to include some kind of a trade or vocation for every young person. We need more health and physical education, and we need to develop a sportsmanship that will carry over into adulthood and include games and recreation. We need more and better religious training for all of our young people. We need to develop character to include civic-mindedness. We need more playgrounds and more trained and experienced playground supervisors. This can be accomplished without the cost being prohibitive, and it is very likely that in the near future we may desire to keep more of our money at home and give our children two years of college here. Surely parents will agree that 16 or even 17 is too young for girls and boys to leave home. This is true whether it is to go away for college or to find employment. Industry, even local business, cannot use 16 or 17 year old youngsters to mutual profit.

There is another small matter which appears to be of importance to educators. They are asking the question, why hurry through the public schools? Is it not better to spend more time and read more books, take part in more activities, develop a better scholarship, and learn more by doing instead of by being told so much? This is a fundamental principle and comes from one of the laws of learning.

This is a continuous subject for discussion and only a short summary will be added. There are several reasons for adding another year to our public school, but be sure to remember, not another grade. We now have the 6-year-old children in school, and we do not have kindergartens for them. We have instead of eleven grades, actually fourteen or more because every primary teacher has her room divided into sections or classes. Entirely too many parents, and schools too, rush their children through school without giving them time to develop into all round personalities. It cannot add so very much to the cost of the operation of the school because a large per cent of students remain in the school twelve or more years because of failures and retardations. People cannot all attend college, and there is not enough employment available for all the young people. And probably more important, home is the best place for young people until they reach a more mature age.

Home Building Under FHA Plan Described Here

Stressing that there is rich opportunity in a town the size of Wellington for the expansion of the Federal Housing Administration program whereby persons in the lower income brackets may own their homes, F. W. Gregory of the F.H.A. offices in Fort Worth, spoke before a large group of Wellington business and professional people at the Wellington Hotel Monday evening, September 16. Included in this group were a number of prospective home builders.

In connection with his explanation of the program, Mr. Gregory showed colored slides of homes built by the F.H.A. in west Texas.

Earlier in the day he drove over the town studying the likely location for new homes here.

Throughout the talk, Mr. Gregory pointed out that towns the size of Wellington are eligible for these loans, and that in addition the home builder who builds under the government supervision of the F.H.A. knows that he will get what he pays for.

Inspection of the building as it is constructed is an important factor of the program, he said, describing the different points at which the house is inspected by qualified government inspectors to make certain that the building is coming up to government standards.

"The F.H.A. program has inspired confidence of people, especially those in the lower salary brackets," he said.

Protecting the amateur from his own errors is another part of the F.H.A. building program, since attention is given to such details as the location of doors and windows, heating systems, and similar matters.

A closing cost, added to the F.H.A. bill on the house includes the settling of all points relative to clearing the title on the place.

"You Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Make You Free"

I am the voice of the community, the bringer of tidings, the companion of your fireside hours. I am your friend away from home. I am the prophet of tomorrow, your link with the world beyond your doorstep. I am today's link with history. But most of all, I am the Conscience of America. And I must be heard.

I fired the spirit of another America when I told of lands beyond the frontier. I set ten thousand covered wagons on their sunset Odyssey. I tore the veil from men's eyes and bade them see that their country could not exist half slave and half free.

I have never become "an instrument of government policy." I have never—as in Russia—been used to blackout the truth. No hidden power has used me, as in Germany, to stifle the kindlier instincts of a whole people, rouse barbaric passions and set feet tramping the long red road. No secret voices made me keep silent, as in France, while a trusting nation died.

I am not infallible. I have your weaknesses for I am of you and by you, but I also have your steadfast strength. Sometimes I have slumbered, complacent, and then wrongs were done. But I have always awakened. I am the Conscience of America—your conscience—and I will be heard.

I bid you have faith in America. I tell you Democracy is not on trial. It is not outmoded, worn out, finished. It is still the newest thing on earth; too new even to be fully understood. All else is a throw-back to medievalism, cynicism, despondency and despair.

I bid you read the Declaration of Independence. I tell you to read the Constitution of The United States and Lincoln's words at Gettysburg.

I tell you the Republic is NOT on trial. It is rather we who are on trial. It is our faith, our courage that is being put to the test and will be put to the test in the years to come. Perhaps, caught in the mesh of social and economic change, we shall give ear to the honeyed voices of the demagogues. Perhaps, softened by ease, corrupted by paternalism, we shall forget truth, tolerance, kindness, initiative. Maybe we shall forget that while the burden of responsibility always rests heavy on the shoulders of them willing to bear it, that very willingness makes those shoulders stronger. Perhaps we shall decide that Democracy is not for us, that we are not ready for it.

I don't think so. For I am America's Conscience and I have faith in America's destiny. I know that as long as I am free to speak, America will listen. I must not be silenced, for when you silence me you silence your own heart. I must not be enslaved, for when you enslave me you are alone, cut off from reality, abandoned by truth, at the bottom of the black pit of horror and fantasy. Gag me and your children will never know the America you have known. Keep me free and you will be free.

I look insignificant enough in your mail boxes, yet I am your link of understanding with a changing world. I am a passing, ephemeral thing, born and dying every day. Yet I am one of the foundations of the Republic. I am the Conscience of America. I am beholden to no one. I tell you the truth. And you trust me.

I am the free press of America. I am your newspaper.

SCRAMBLE FOR PLANTS

Billions of dollars are to be spent by the government and private industry building new manufacturing plants and enlarging old ones during the next year or two, and a lively scramble for the location of these plants by various states and communities has begun.

Orders for war equipment so far have had to be given to existing plants, and up to September 1, four states—New Jersey, Virginia, Massachusetts and New York—have received much more than one-half of the total. Orders have been placed in these states as follows: New Jersey, 198 million dollars; Virginia, 187 million; Massachusetts, 183 million, and New York, 90 million.

That the bulk of early orders should go to these states was inevitable, as they already have the manufacturing facilities established, especially for shipbuilding, and most of the contracts let up to the present have been for Naval ships.

New plants to be built for manufacturing Army equipment are likely to be distributed over a much wider area. The President has directed that new plants over which the government is to have control should be located west of the Alleghenies and east of the Rockies, when practicable; also that they should be not less than 250 miles inland from the coasts or 200 miles from the northern and southern borders.

It is to be hoped that the defense program may not be retarded too greatly by delay in making decisions regarding definite locations for the new plants.

AN ELECTRICAL DANGER

Electricity can be employed for almost innumerable useful purposes, but when appliances are rigged up by those not familiar with the workings of this mysterious force they may be extremely dangerous. A warning in this connection was given to farmers recently by Truman E. Heintont of the agricultural engineering department of Purdue University.

He referred to the use of homemade electric fence devices built without competent supervision. Electrical fencing, he said, can be built for about 50 cents a rod, or one-half of the cost of ordinary farm fencing.

But, unfortunately, he declared, some farmers have undertaken construction of such equipment without full realization of the dangers involved, with a consequent electrocution of livestock and even human beings.

A survey of 72 electric fence installations in Indiana, Hinton said, disclosed 47 commercial and 25 home-made units. No fatalities were reported by farmers using commercial units, but eight with home-made affairs, he said, reported fatalities to livestock and the death of one three-year-old boy.

The idea of the electric fence is, of course, to have it carry a weak current which come in contact with it, but not strong enough to do them any real harm.

THE RISE OF TOBACCO

Some figures recently compiled, mostly from United States government sources, show the amazing increase in importance of the tobacco industry to our national economy during the last 20 years, due to the increased consumption of cigarettes.

In 1910 cigarette smokers were comparatively few, and in that year less than eight billion cigarettes were consumed in this country. In 1939 the number consumed was 168 billion, an increase of 2,037 per cent.

During the same period yearly Federal tax revenues from cigarettes increased from less than eight million dollars to more than 504 million dollars. These figures do not include taxes levied by the various state governments.

The flue cured tobacco crop of the nation was less than 207 million pounds in 1910, while last year it reached more than 1,159 million pounds. There was also an increase of 40 per cent in the burley crop, which is now about 395 million pounds annually.

Prices received by tobacco growers for their product have also increased about 88 per cent. The average price per pound for all types was 9.35 cents in 1910, and 17.55 cents in 1939. This increase in price has not been steady, however, but has fluctuated from year to year, depending on the size of the crop and other conditions.

A QUESTION MARK

In New York a lawsuit is pending over a civil service examination, in which several candidates who were flunked are now suing the examiners. A very nice point of grammar or something is involved in the case.

One of the questions asked by the examiners was whether the following sentence requires a question mark: "May I help you with your problem of reorganization of the personnel?"

The candidates said the sentence should end with a question mark, inasmuch as it undoubtedly asked a question. The examiners ruled that no question mark was required, contending that the sentence is a simple statement of intention, phrased as a question as a matter of courtesy.

Failure on this one question caused the candidates to miss the required percentage in their examination, hence the lawsuit, which has not yet been decided.

Commenting on the matter, the Christian Science Monitor refers to similar sentences in Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" of the 14th century, in which the question mark is not used. But it adds that in Chaucer's day the question mark had not yet been invented.

New York May Become New Style Capital Of World

New York.—Dame Fashion is a war refugee, and New York is wooing her to this side of the Atlantic.

Thrown aside when Adolf Hitler's legions marched into Paris early in the summer, the needles of the Rue de la Paix are rusty and covered with dust. Paris, the style center, is no more.

At present, New York is the logical choice to become the world's fashion capital. For New York has long been an auxiliary designing center, taking second place only to gay Paris. London would like to have the mantle dropped by Paris, but she is handicapped by the war.

A few of the foremost French designers have already located in America, and more have indicated they plan to move. But the chief bid for fashion supremacy is that made by native designers.

This fall's fashion shows in New York rivalled in brilliance and variety those of pre-war Paris. Styles, for the most part, were not radically changed, but an increased emphasis on American motifs was noted—Pilgrim and Indian designs and patriotic themes.

Results of the shows were encouraging. New York was filled with buyers, just as Paris was formerly filled. The same secrecy, maintained to prevent style pirating, was to be noted in Seventh Avenue style salons.

Manufacturers are doing their part. Instead of crediting a dress or a hat to "my designer," they now ascribe it to "Miss So-and-So," in an effort to build up a following for their creative employees.

It isn't merely a matter of pride that makes U. S. manufacturers hope New York succeeds Paris as the fashion capital.

For fashion is big business; it was estimated to be France's second largest industry before the war. The field of design alone employs thousands, and the effect on the textile industry is nothing short of tremendous.

A radical change in the hemlines of the nation's skirts means all the difference in the world to textile manufacturers. As skirts go up, profits go down, and vice versa.

And hemlines do go up and down. That's why American industry hopes the never-still pendulum can be controlled in this country rather than from the other side of the Atlantic.

Efforts to locate the fashion capital in New York already have the important co-operation of labor. David Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, has assured manufacturers his union is willing to make concessions to that end.

Only possible hitch is the unpredictable whim of American women. If they accept domestic fashions, New York is assured of becoming the Paris of tomorrow.

The Great American Home

Experience Must Be Studied

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 22.

Text: Proverbs 4:10-27.

We learn by past experiences, but it isn't a simple process. The voice of wisdom is the voice of experience, but of experience carefully considered and studied. It is not enough to take the voice of experience alone or in any limited way, because one may not see all the results of action.

Too often we are inclined to proceed in some course of action without carefully thinking out what the probable results will be. Too often we neglect to consider how the results will affect the lives of others.

We are inclined to dismiss as an old proverb without much validity in modern life the saying that honesty is the best policy. Many an individual dismisses a slight dishonesty as having no bearing on his own life.

But he forgets his action may affect the lives of persons who are dear to him.

It has been noticed that where men become wealthy and prosperous dishonestly, although no bad effects come to them, the consequences upon their sons and members of their families are often very disastrous.

What does a grafting or dishonest father gain if he builds up worldly goods and attains a sort of success, to find that his sons are imitating his success and possibly his energy, but also his crookedness, and are going down to ruin in a worldly as well as a spiritual way, because of the false heritage that he has given them?

Observe what is happening in the world. Think about it carefully and from all angles. Take a long range view, and see if the voice of wisdom is not right when it links human welfare with uprightness and with right choice.

"The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." That is a rich and beautiful figure, and in contrast is the way of the wicked that is full of darkness and stumbling.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence," says the voice of wisdom, "for out of this are the issues of life." We think immediately of that other saying, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." It is in our will, the inner choice backed by good judgment, that our destiny rests.

To set before oneself the goal of good living, the way of honor and decency, is to be worldly wise as well as spiritually sound. Even where men have to make great sacrifices to maintain their integrity, the upright way is justified, for what comfort or gain is there for any man in realizing that what he has won has been won at the cost of himself?

It was with an experience of surprise that everyone here saw the Fair. "I didn't know you could make such a good showing—it honestly makes me feel a lot better," was the expression commonly heard during the two days it was in session. And folks from every community in the county came here for the Fair, I SAW

Harry Patterson interested the grain exhibitors.

Church Members Fall Opening Highly Successful

"One of the outstanding religious events of our church this year!" This was how members of the Methodist Church termed the Fall opening services held throughout Sunday, September 15.

These services were opened by band concert on the church lawn given by the Skyrocket Band, under the direction of John Hooper, bandmaster. An organ concert of sacred music by Mrs. L. E. Gribble, followed. Members of the church assembled for Sunday School in old time style, with all classes meeting together for the opening exercises.

Discussing "The People's Attitude of the Uselessness of the Church," Rev. J. Edmund Kirby preached at the morning service. Moving arguments which people use to prove the church is useless, Rev. Kirby attributed their own attitude toward the church as the cause for this feeling. Later he showed the time, efforts, and money spent by the pioneers of this county to make the Methodist church what it is at present, then said:

"If this church is useless, then the efforts of these pioneers on your county were useless." A second concert of sacred music was played on the organ by Mrs. Gribble preceding the evening service. Highlight of the night was roll call of the church membership. Approximately 400 persons were present for the morning service and 300 for the evening hour.

"We are highly pleased with the results of these two services, and trust that the members of the church will follow on for the next few months and show a definite increase in the attendance at church and Sunday School. Attendance will automatically increase interest," Rev. Kirby commented following the day's service.

Stockmen Invited To Show Colts In Childress Show

CHILDRESS.—Invitation is extended by V. E. Hafner, Childress County Agent, to farmers and stockmen of Collingsworth County to exhibit their colts at the colt show to be held here Saturday, Sept. 28. More than $100 in prizes are to be awarded at the show.

Special importance is placed upon the show this year because of the recent visit of two army officers here to inspect farms on which will be placed two pure bred stallions for the free use of horse raisers of this area in raising half breed horses. The army takes an option on the colts, and pays a much higher price for horses than the prevailing market price.

Importance of the colt show is shown by the fact the army officers said while here the army had difficulty in buying sufficient horses because most of the horses they inspect show they have not received proper care as colts.

No animal older than 30 months will be eligible to compete for the prize money to be awarded at the show. Those wishing to exhibit colts may secure further details by writing Hafner.

"In a bigger sense, we all look upon Uncle Sam as kind—we want to support and maintain him. We need to think more of our Americanism," Judge Cocke said in conclusion.

Reading The Book Is Most Important

STILLWATER, Okla.—A well-chosen library in the home is essential for cultural development of the family. Although selection depends mostly upon individual taste, guides to good literature are helpful.

According to W. Roy Holleman, of the Oklahoma A. and M. College library, a home library collection should have all kinds, sizes, colors and qualities of books. "Most important, however," says the librarian, "is that the books be read. It is only through this that they become of real value to the owner."

The income of the family will determine to a large extent the number of volumes possessed. If the income is small, it is even more important that selections be made carefully.

Local librarians are usually willing to aid prospective book-buyers in making suitable choices, or literary reviews in magazines and newspapers are helpful, says Holleman.

First in a list of books suggested for a home library, is the world's largest selling book of all time—the Bible. Next in importance is a good dictionary.

A good reference book or set of books is valuable, especially when there are children of junior high or high-school age in the family.

On the bookshelf there should be one book on philosophy. Holleman suggests "The Story of Philosophy" by Will Durant as good reading.

"The Epic of America," he says, is an interestingly written history. Many Americans whose only reading in American history has been of the textbook type might also enjoy the vivid picture presented in the "Rivers of America" series. Biographies and travel and adventure stories have a definite place in family reading. The number and type depends on personal taste.

Among the nature books needed are one each on birds, flowers and trees.

Poetry collections had best begin with a standard anthology. After this has been acquired likes and dislikes of specific poets by various members of the family may be considered for further expansion.

An outstanding book in any home will be one on cookery. Besides a standard recipe book, there should also be one on cooking principles and practices.

Authors, now ranking among the classics, who should be considered when one is selecting novels are: Jane Austen, Charles Dickens, Victor Hugo, Sir Walter Scott, Thomas Hardy, Emily Bronte, Robert Louis Stevenson, Mark Twain, Leo Tolstoy, Joseph Conrad and Alexander Dumas.

The type of drama chosen is much a matter of individual choice. "Best Plays of the Year," published annually, contains a collection of plays selected by Burns Mantle. These plays are usually among the best of the modern works.

Science Develops Fast Method For Making Coal, Oil

DETROIT.—In less than two hours time, grass, leaves, seaweed, wood, molasses and cornstalks are changed into coal or oil by a new process announced here recently from the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh.

In two hours these Pittsburgh scientists are doing what takes nature millions of years. Their work is the most dramatic in the long history of artificial production of coal, oil and gasoline. Their grass oils make good grade gasoline.

The report was made to the American Chemical society by Dr. Ernst Berl, research professor at the institute.

The raw materials are heated under pressure, with limestone and other similar chemicals. The heat and the pressure abolish time almost literally.

Moreover the scientists, waiting to open the baking retorts, can have either coal or oil, as they choose. They can also have, instead of these, asphalt and good coke of the kind used by the nation's great steel companies.

The cost, Dr. Berl said, is less than that of the world-famous processes now used widely in Europe to convert coal into oil and gasoline. But the costs are not low enough to undersell America's present rich natural supplies of oil and coal.

The biggest item of expense in sight is the cost of transporting these raw materials from the farms to the coal and oil making machines. Anything that grows in the vegetable kingdom is good raw material for these new robots.

Dr. Berl foresees the farmer of the future selling the coal and oil-making crops to a central plant just about as he now sells sugar beets to beet plants.

The Pittsburgh work seems to settle a dispute about the origin of coal, oil and asphalt. They come from the carbohydrate portions, that is, the sugars and starches of plants, rather than from the woody part known as lignin.

Selection of farms by these five men and their families will be made in the immediate future, Mr. Dent said. A visit to each of the group was made Tuesday by the Tenant Purchase committee, composed of C. E. Littleton, W. S. White, and B. W. Boorman; Mr. Dent, and Miss Edna Pettit, home supervisor for the F.S.A., on Tuesday to confer with them concerning their selection.

Javelinas On Increase In Tex.

AUSTIN.—Javelinas, also called Collard Pecary, the only native North American wild hog, are increasing in Texas, reports of game managers to the executive secretary of the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, indicate.

The increase is largely due to the protection given this game animal by a state law which went into effect last year. It is now unlawful to shoot Pecaries except during the opening season of Nov. 15 to Dec. 31. It is permissible to kill two during a season.

Javelinas are more common in Southwest Texas counties. They formerly ranged in far more areas than they do now, but the killing of them for meat, for their hides and for their bristles threatened the extinction of these animals.

Judging from requests for information concerning javelina hunting received by the Game Department, a large number of hunters from other states will invade Texas seeking javelinas during the open season. Their heads are regarded by many sportsmen as a finer trophy than deer heads.

Mattresses From Surplus Cotton In 350,000 Homes

COLLEGE STATION.—More than 1,158,870 farm families in the nation, 191,990 of them in Texas, have been selected by county agricultural conservation committee-men as eligible to receive surplus cotton and ticking to make a mattress for home use. Nearly 306,000 low-income families in the country and 64,832 in Texas already have completed their mattresses, according to Mildred Horton, vice director and state home demonstration agent of the A. and M. College Extension Service.

Under the cotton mattress demonstration program begun in March this year, the Surplus Marketing Administration allotted 100,000 bales of surplus cotton to low income families on a basis of 50 pounds plus ticking to each family. County extension agents have directed the program with the help of local volunteer helpers, and the mattresses are made at community work centers. Texas has 2,200 such centers.

Nearly 500 counties in 17 states are now at work under the mattress program with 500 other counties getting their organization under way. Texas has 236 counties participating in the program, with 140 making mattresses currently, Miss Horton reports.

Demonstration work centers have been set up in more than 12,000 communities, and more than 58,000 farm men and women and older boys and girls have accepted responsibilities in getting the program under way in their communities. Volunteer leaders in Texas aggregate 25,047 with 17,053 of them women and 7,994 of them men.

Reports from the various states submitted to the Department of Agriculture indicate that as a result of these demonstrations there are many people who are encouraged to go home and make or renovate other mattresses.

Sugg, Miss Jewel Sugg, and Mrs. Cal Sugg were in Amarillo Tuesday attending the Tri-State Fair and to hear Wendell Wilkie, Republican nominee for president, speak. Texas Farmers Get Too Much Cotton To The Bale

COLLEGE STATION.—The farmers who try to get too much cotton into their bales may be least partly responsible for damage that shows up later when bales go through the compress. E. Lichte, cotton gin specialist of the Texas A. and M. Extension service, points out.

"When cotton is under extra pressure, as is the case at the compress, fibers in the oversized bales are likely to be torn and cut such a manner that their value to the spinner is reduced," Lichte said.

Tests conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show a larger percentage of air-cut damage in oversized bales than in normal bales.

Though the farmer does not suffer directly, except in the cases where he is the owner of the bale at the time it is compressed, he does suffer through lower prices brokers and must pay for other purchases offset these losses.

The way to reduce this damage is to deliver only enough seed cotton to the gin to produce a bale of ginned lint weighing 500 pounds or thereabouts.

"If the tendency towards overweight does not stop, it is probable that we will see the put on a penalty for bales of 550 pounds just as lightweight bales are now penalized," Lichte said. The trade is beginning to reserve the right to reject bales in excess of 600 pounds. The present penalties are $1.00 for bales under 450 pounds; $2.00 for the under 400 pounds; and those under 350 pounds not acceptable.

Former Pastor Wins Places In Wolf Hunters Meet

Friends of Rev. C. D. Dameron, former pastor of the Wellington Methodist Circuit, learned this week that two of Rev. Dameron's wolf dogs placed in the annual meeting of the Texas-New Mexico Wolf Hunters Association at Ilesa recently.

One dog placed third on bench show and another won four place in the field race.

On the Sunday evening preceding the opening of the hunt, Rev. Dameron preached to an assembly of 700 persons attending the Wolf Hunters' Association.

Because of her ability to supply immediate information on practically any subject, Miss Harry B. Meyer of New York City called the "best informed woman."
