Crash opens 'Pandora's box'

By ROBERT RAWITCH
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — What will it cost, the collision of two jet airliners on an airport runway in the Canary Islands? How do you put a price on a human life?

These are not easy questions to answer. Insurance officials in New York and London estimate that the insurance and liability bill could amount to at least $200 million, possibly much more.

The two Boeing 747s were insured for $25 million to $50 million each, and claims filed by relatives of the victims could range from $100 million to more than twice that figure.

Death claims are expected to be paid promptly, along with claims for the two planes, but lawsuits to fix responsibility for the disaster could take years to settle.

Even though the worst disaster in aviation history occurred far from the United States, two American-made planes were involved and, by all odds, hundreds of wrongful death suits will be filed in the United States — by Americans and foreigners alike.

Pan American airlines, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines and their insurance carriers will likely do everything possible to avoid such suits by attempting to reach out-of-court settlements with the families of those killed.

Attorneys for both sides will haggle privately over what a deceased's future earning power would have been, projected rates of inflation, the cost of supporting surviving family members and a "bonus" for the loss of the deceased's "protection, comfort and society."

The going rate in California to compensate for the loss of a young mother with children is anywhere from $200,000 up. Jury verdicts for fathers depend in great measure on their age and income level, along with the number of survivors they leave.

The heirs of single individuals who leave no dependents have generally received about $100,000 in California state courts.

There are indications that the legal morass expected to be caused by this latest disaster could be responsible for a rewriting and re-interpretation of critical elements of aviation law.

Attorneys for Pan American could not be reached for comment, but certainly at issue will be what is known as the Warsaw Convention, an international agreement adopted in 1929, primarily by European nations, which set a limitation on the liability of an air carrier at $20,000 for the death of a passenger in international flight.

The United States was not a party to the convention, but in 1933 President Roosevelt filed a declaration of adherence to the pact that effectively bound this country to the limitations.

Since that time, there have been numerous amendments to the Warsaw Convention, raising the liability limit to $75,000 in the case of Americans killed in international flight. But the basic Warsaw agreement has been brought under attack by plaintiffs in air crash cases

Snelson takes hospital bill to Senate

By JUDY JOHNSTON

AUSTIN — Midland County's legislators today were expected to introduce a bill which will enable eligible county voters to vote on the creation of a hospital district within the county.

By noon today, Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson's office confirmed the bill had been introduced in the Texas Senate. No confirmation of introduction in the House was available at that hour from the office of Rep. Tom Craddick.

The bill which both were to present outlined the creation, administration, maintenance, operation and financing of a hospital district.

The bill is the final draft approved last week by the five men named in the bill as temporary directors of the district.

It was written under the guidance of the law firm of McCall, Parkhurst and Horton, which was retained by Midland Memorial Foundation board of trustees to make certain the foundation would be able to enter into a contract with the proposed district concerning ownership and management of the hospital facilities.

According to the bill, the boundaries of the district will be those of the boundaries of Midland County. The district will be the only political subdivision which may levy taxes or issue bonds to provide hospital service or medical care within the district and shall "provide all necessary hospital and medical care for the needy inhabitants of the district," according to the bill.

On approval of the electors, the district will have transferred to it all land, buildings, improvements, equipment and other property owned now by Midland Memorial Hospital.

The district shall pay a purchase price to the hospital foundation for the property which would permit the retirement of any outstanding indebtedness of the foundation.

The district shall provide for the establishment of a hospital system by the purchase, construction, acquisition, repair and renovation of buildings and equipment, and equipping the same, and its administration for hospital and medical care purposes.

The district will be created by an election which may be called by a majority of the temporary directors or by the temporary directors after presentation of a resolution by the

Officials await word on lawsuit

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland school officials today still had not been officially notified of a suit filed against the school board Thursday by the U.S. Justice Department.

The suit seeks to block Saturday's election of two school trustees. Charles Tighe, attorney for the school district, said this morning he had not received official notification and could not officially respond "unless and until we get served."

The suit was filed in San Antonio and mailed to the U.S. clerk's office in Midland but had not arrived this morning. The clerk's office said U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle, who has jurisdiction in the case, has not seen the suit yet.

The Reporter-Telegram obtained a copy of the suit from the Justice Department.

The suit names all seven members of the Midland school board as defendants.

Although the suit requests "a speedy and expeditious hearing," there has been no indication that U.S. District Judge D. W. Suttle will issue a ruling in the case before Saturday's election.

David Hunter, Justice Department attorney, last week would not comment on whether or not the results of the election would be set aside if the Justice Department wins its suit.

The key to the legal dispute is whether the school district is covered by the Voting Rights Act.

In the suit, the Justice Department said a change from at-large with plurality to place system with majority voting, which the school board adopted in 1973, is covered by the Voting Rights Act. That act, which now includes Texas, requires "jurisdictions subject to its provisions" to get clearance from the U.S. attorney general for any change

Congress delaying energy action

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress curious about President Carter's forthcoming energy policy and concerned over key parts of his energy reorganization bill are delaying action on the measure.

White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger claims the "broad outlines" of the policy are known. It will include a call for more conservation, increased reliance on coal and less emphasis on nuclear energy, easing of price controls on oil and natural gas and better automobile fuel economy.

A stiff tax on gas-guzzling cars and a possible rebate for buyers of energy-efficient vehicles are being considered, Schlesinger says.

But many members of Congress want more specifics.

Congressional leaders have signalled their unwillingness to create the new energy department until they know exactly what kind of sacrifices the President will ask of Americans in his April 20 energy message.

Some sections of the energy department bill are encountering mounting opposition in Congress. Two influential House committee chairmen were expected to voice their reservations today in testimony before a House Government Operations subcommittee.

House Interior Committee Chairman Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said in a prepared statement Carter's proposal fails to deal effectively with anticompetitive practices among huge oil companies.

Udall proposed establishment of a post of assistant energy secretary for competition. He also called for requiring the largest energy companies to divest themselves of some of their holdings before being allowed to bid for leases on federal lands.

Russia fails to respond

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union failed to respond to American nuclear arms control proposals today as talks resumed between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Vance went into the morning round prepared to discuss proposals he outlined Monday for a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT).

Soviet representatives asked to go over other matters instead, U.S. spokesman Hodding Carter said after the talks recessed at midday.

Carter would not say which subjects were discussed, but they were likely to have included arms sales and troop cuts in Central Europe.

Carter described the talks only as "businesslike."

Vance had indicated he expected a response to his SALT proposals, although Carter said there had been no set agenda for today's talks.

The talks are scheduled to end Wednesday afternoon, and Vance wants to leave Moscow Thursday morning with at least a framework for more detailed negotiations on limiting and reducing nuclear arms.

Vance at a meeting Monday afternoon gave Gromyko the Carter administration's proposal for a comprehensive new arms accord requiring both governments to reduce their nuclear weapon stocks sharply.

However, he added that if the Russians will not go that far, the U.S. government is ready to negotiate a less ambitious agreement based on the accord Ford and Brezhnev reached at their meeting in Vladivostok. It called for a treaty limiting each nation to 2,400 long-range bombers and missiles, with not more than 1,320 of the missiles to be equipped with multiple warheads.

Gromyko reportedly expressed his support for a pact based on the Vladivostok agreement and repeated the Soviet demand that the American Cruise missile be included in the weapons subject to restriction. This renewed the dispute over inclusion of the Cruise and the Soviet Backfire bomber which has deadlocked the strategic arms limitation talks.

House expected to pass Carter 'reorganization' bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is expected to pass President Carter's priority bill to give him authority to reorganize government agencies.

Opposition to the measure was minimized by a compromise accepted by a major critic of Carter's original proposal, Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Tex., of the Government Operations Committee.

A final vote on the proposal was expected today.

Brooks long insisted that reorganization plans submitted by the President should not go into effect unless Congress affirmatively voted to approve them. Earlier reorganization statutes, now lapsed, allowed presidents to submit limited reorganization proposals that went into effect automatically unless either chamber voted to disapprove them. Carter originally sought similar authority.

The measure approved by Brooks committee also provides for plans to go into effect in 60 days unless nullified by either chamber. But several conditions are attached.

A parliamentary procedure is specified that virtually guarantees a vote so Congress could not permit a reorganization to take effect without its action.

Under the old law, a president's plans could not create or abolish cabinet-level departments. Carter's proposal to establish an energy department is being handled in a separate bill, now in House committee.

In addition, the new measure would not permit reorganization plans to propose abolition or transfer of an entire independent regulatory agency.

President Carter also could not have more than three regulatory plans pending in Congress at a time.

He would be allowed to modify a plan during the first 30 days it was pending and to withdraw a plan within 60 days.

Brooks and others have expressed doubts about the constitutionality of the congressional veto procedure. But in a House speech Monday he called for passage of the bill.

Marfa-Presidio trek exciting experience

PRESIDIO — The countryside along the 60-mile Marfa-to-Presidio route is mountainous, just about barren, but yet quietly exciting to behold to a newcomer to these parts.

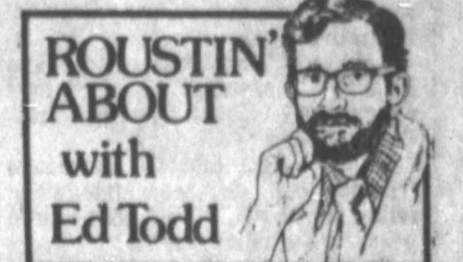

"Those mountains are beautiful, aren't they?" asked Stella McKeel, who knew the answer. Of course. She was gazing, from her bus seat, into the country that she knows so well.

The busload of tourists was nearing Shafter, which, before it changed into a ghost town, was the site of active silver, gold and lead mines.

Meanwhile, the roaring bus, driven by a quiet but ever-watchful guy named Jose, zipped on past a near roadside rock formation tabbed "the Elephant."

More appropriately, it could have been christened "the Buffalo" — that old heavy "headed" mass of darkened stone.

"This is still what you call 'primitive beauty,'" Mrs. McKeel said of the mountainous view. "It's beautiful." She hails from Presidio, where she's a consultant for a travel agency. And though she's no newcomer hereabouts, she's a genuine appreciator of arid ranching land of hills, uplifts and mountains, scant spring water and abundant cacti.

The bus load of 29 bona fide tourists and a few others was nearing the ghost town.

And the exuberant George Jordan, who has traveled this route times before, made sure his fellow countrymen were aware of just where they were.

"Folks," he yelled above the humming roar of the bus' diesel

No important temperature changes in Midland are expected through Wednesday, when the high will be in the mid-60s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Crash survivors to be evacuated

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — U.S. and Spanish officials began preparations today to fly survivors of history's worst aviation disaster back to the United States for treatment.

The U.S. Army Burn Center in San Antonio, Tex., said it was preparing to receive about 60 of the 70 survivors from the collision Sunday on the Santa Cruz airport runway of two Boeing 747 jumbo jets in which 575 persons were killed.

Sixty-seven of the survivors and 321 of the dead were Americans, according to information from the airlines.

Meanwhile, Spanish, Dutch and American officials continued their investigations to determine the cause of the collision, which occurred as the Pan American and KLM jetliners were preparing to take off in fog from this Atlantic island.

Spanish authorities ruled out sabotage and claimed there had been no errors in control tower communications with the two planes.

Officials said they would inspect the 10,000-foot runway, which has been closed by wreckage and bad weather since the collision of the two planes, to determine if there was enough space clear for a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport to land.

A C-130 from a base in Spain was waiting at Las Palmas, on the neighboring island of Grand Canary, for clearance. The homeward-bound Americans were to be transferred at Las Palmas to an Air Force C-141 to be flown to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey.

A spokesman for the burn center said 10 of the survivors to be flown to Texas for treatment were in serious or critical condition and 20 others were in better cases.

U.S. officials said the airlift would also include some survivors who did not require hospitalization, but no names were announced.

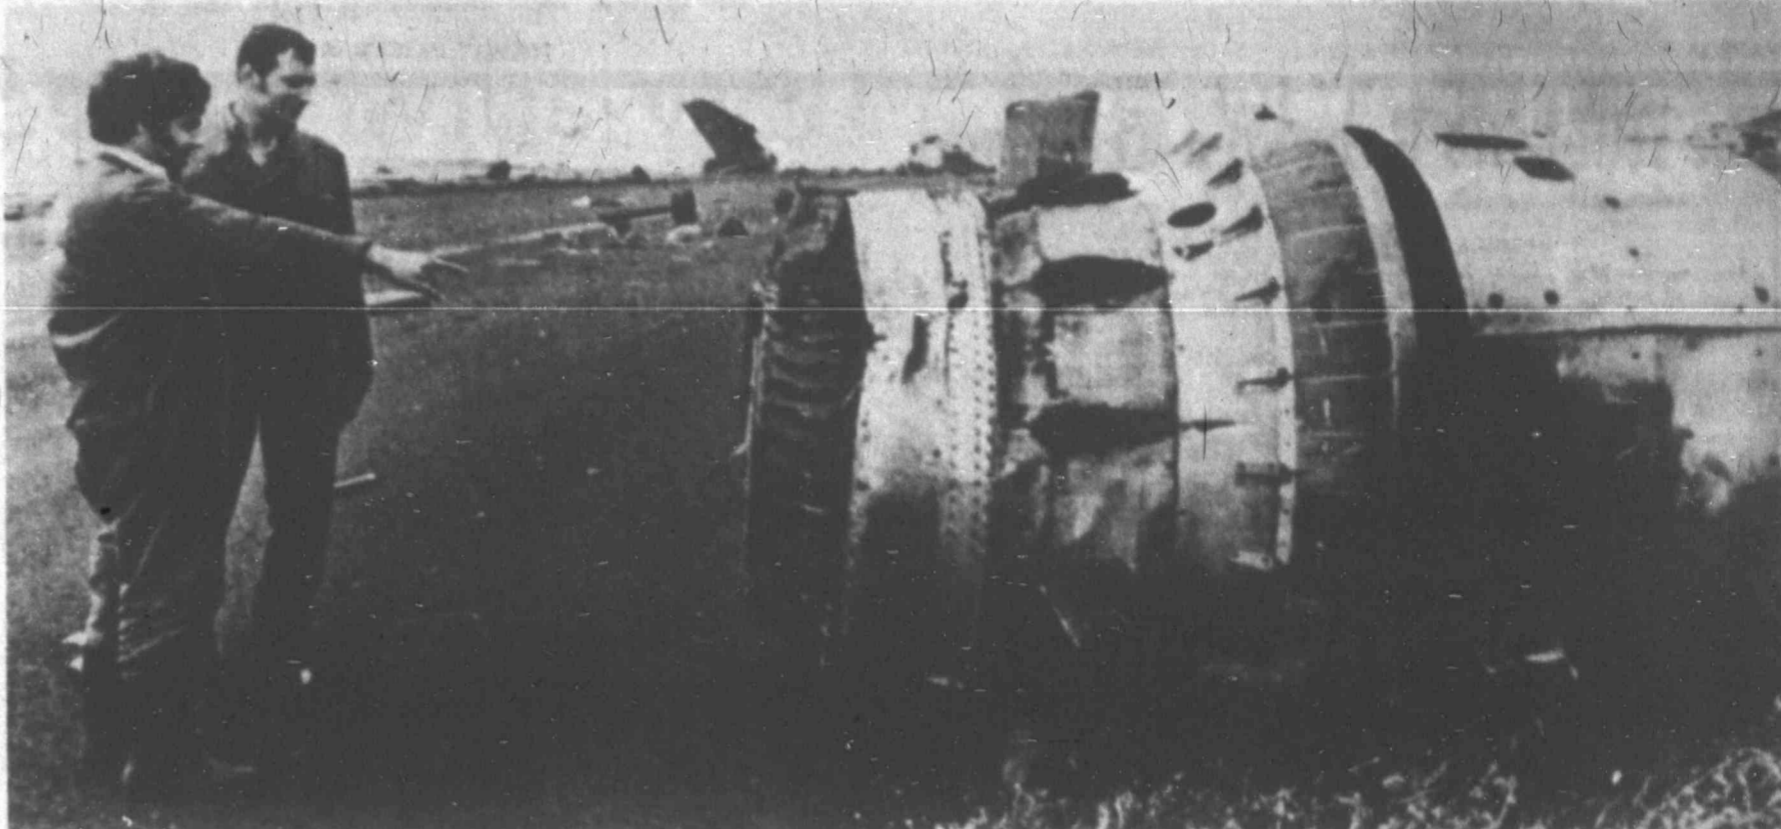

The KLM jetliner was hurtling down the runway at about 150 miles an hour for takeoff when it rammed into the Pan American plane as it was turning off the runway onto a taxiway, Spanish officials said.

They said both pilots were told to taxi down the main runway, with the KLM craft in the lead. The Dutch pilot was told to turn around and prepare for takeoff but to hold his position until given clearance, while the Pan Am jet was to turn off at a taxiway and wait for the KLM plane to clear, they said.

Gov. Antonio Oyarzabal said the planes collided nearly head-on, and the "key point" was whether the KLM pilot had permission to take off.

The Dutch pilot, Z. A. Veldhuisen van Zanten, was killed along with the other 248 persons reported aboard his plane. But KLM president Sergio Orlandini said the pilot was one of the airline's most experienced fliers and he doubted he would have begun his takeoff without clearance.

The Pan American pilot, Capt. Victor Grubbs of Centerport, N.Y., was among the 70 injured survivors from his plane, but no explanation from him of what happened was made public.

Aircraft technicians, part of a group of American, Dutch and Spanish investigators, examine wreckage of the Pan Am 747.

Mail outlook by 1985 grim, group says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Your mail won't be delivered on Saturday, more of your tax money will go toward subsidizing the Postal Service and you will have to pay 22 cents for every first-class letter you mail.

This is the grim picture of the mail service in 1985 as drawn by a federal commission studying the future of the financially troubled Postal Service, sources said Monday.

The commission's recommendations to Congress are due by April 18, but participants said the panel has voted to recommend:

—Ending Saturday mail delivery to save $400 million per year.

—Increasing taxpayer subsidies by removing a ceiling imposed at the time the Postal Service was reorganized from the old Post Office Department in 1971.

The chances of Congress approving the recommendations appear slim.

But without these measures, the first-class rate would have to be increased to 28 cents by 1985 to cover the sharply rising cost of delivering the mail, sources said the commission determined.

Under the commission recommendations, the first-class rate would be held to "only" 22 cents per letter by 1985, the sources said.

First-class rates jumped from 10 to 13 cents on Dec. 31, 1975.

Carter okays $2 billion in military assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who calls past U.S. arms sales policy to unrestricted, cynical and dangerous, has approved $2 billion worth of military construction contracts and arms sales, primarily for NATO allies, administration sources say.

But the sources said Monday that Carter still is reviewing an additional $3 billion worth of military sales proposals.

Carter will notify Congress about his military sales decisions soon, one source said. The decisions are expected to be made public after the notification. Administration spokesmen at the White House and in the State Department refused comment.

"The approval is primarily for construction projects already underway and for arms primarily for NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) countries," one source said. Administration spokesmen Jerrold L. Schecter at the National Security Council and Frederick Z. Brown at the State Department refused comment on the reported approval and on a Washington Post report that the approval is for:

- $500 million worth of construction contracts for Saudi Arabia.
  - Jet fighters for Greece.
  - Unspecified items for Jordan, Pakistan and Saudi Arabia.
- "Our policy is under review," Brown said. "The President is making case by case decisions. As to specific amounts and any details, I have nothing to say."
- Carter said during the campaign that U.S. arms sales, which totaled $8.3 billion last year, are too large and that the United States has become "the arms merchant of the world."

Brown takes oath, gives farmers vow

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Reagan Brown became Texas' agricultural commissioner Monday with the promise that he would "never let you down on purpose."

Brown was sworn in by Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court in a brief ceremony, with Gov. Dolph Briscoe by his side.

Immediately after the brief ceremony Brown led a delegation of 50 Texas farmers into Briscoe's private office "to talk about Texas agriculture."

The farmers are in Austin to attend the Governor's Agricultural Leaders Conference.

"I predict Reagan Brown will make one of the greatest agricultural commissioners in the history of the Lone Star State," Briscoe said at the ceremony. "He is the most effective speaker to be found in Texas... We have always made it practice not to appear on the same program because he is better."

For a better Midland

City of Midland voters Saturday will have the opportunity of approving the proposed issuance of general obligation bonds to finance proposed park improvements and expansion and to establish a new zoo, all of which would make the city of Midland a better and more enjoyable city in which to reside and work.

The park proposals are listed on the ballot under four separate propositions, each of which will stand on its own.

Proposition No. 1 would provide $1.2 million for a municipal recreation center, which would include an area for senior citizens.

Proposition No. 2 is for $900,000 to be used for enlarging the Hogan Park municipal golf course, adding nine additional holes, and erecting a new clubhouse.

Proposition No. 3 is for $1.9 million for improving existing parks and establishing new ones when and where needed.

The No. 4 proposition would provide $3.25 million to establish and develop a new municipal zoo.

These are all items which make for a better community, there is no doubt about that. They represent continued progress in a fast-growing, progressive city.

The bonds, according to Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr., can be issued without damage to the city's excellent financial position.

In other words, the city can afford the bond issue as proposed.

The city has delayed the improvement and expansion of park facilities for a number of years, in favor of items of higher priority.

It now is time to take care of the Tall City's public park needs.

The proposals stem from recommendations of the city's Parks and Recreation Commission and Department and the Zoological Society after careful and lengthy studies of the overall situation.

The specific needs and plans for each of the four propositions have been cited by spokesmen of the units involved.

The Reporter-Telegram, which has never opposed a bond issue for a better Midland, recommends the approval of each of the propositions. This newspaper believes that Midland is entering a prolonged period of steady growth and development, with an expanding economy. This continuing development magnifies the need for improved and expanded park facilities.

It has been pointed out that prospective industries always inquire about public parks and municipal golf courses when considering this or any other city as a possible location for a new plant or office. And a number of excellent prospects are looking seriously at this and other West Texas cities at this time.

But the outcome of the balloting in Saturday's election hinges on voter-attitude and turnout.

It is up to the individual voter to consider the benefit and values involved and then to determine in his or her own mind whether the city can afford any or all of the four propositions.

The important thing then is to vote!

Aid flow reversed

How's that again? Foreign aid for the United States?

That's correct. The people of West Berlin raised $500,000 in a fund drive to help the American Red Cross comfort families hardest hit by this year's colder than usual winter.

The "Help America" campaign was conceived by Peter Lorenz, president of the West Berlin parliament. He reminded Berliners of the U.S. airlift of 1948, when American cargo planes flew food, fuel and clothing to a Berlin isolated by a Soviet Union-instigated blockade.

Contributors to the "Help America" fund agreed, "It's our way of saying 'thank you.'"

All Americans are grateful for the momentary reversal in the flow of aid which carried the message "Berlin remembers."

That's for sure!

"What all do you think will be included in President Carter's energy plan to be released April 20?" a prominent Midland businessman asked an oil company executive at a recent meeting.

"I don't know what all it will include," came the reply, "but I can tell you for sure that you are not going to like it!"

Vice President Walter Mondale stays in the 'loop'

WASHINGTON — To hear Walter Mondale's operatives tell it, he might be on his way to becoming the first Vice President to play a partner's role with the President in making policy and hold a measure of power in his job, one historically cursed as a miserable terminal indeed.

True, the Vice President's people have their fingers crossed, because every President since the republic began has promised some new and important role for the man holding second office, only to allow him to slip away into obscurity or frustration.

It could be that Mondale's success to date, in helping make decisions and running the place, can be explained by virtue of the fact President Carter came here as a stranger. Frankly, he had great need for Mondale just to get his Administration started.

Now the Vice President is easy to get along with, but his affability covers over a basically cautious view of the game of politics. Mondale always seems robust and outgoing, but he does not have a constant yen for the sting of political battle. He realizes that once Mr. Carter and his closest confidants from Georgia get what they think is a real hold on Washington ways, the Vice President's stake might fall outside what Mondale calls the "loop."

By "loop" the Vice President means that very special circle sharing President Carter's innermost thoughts and projected plans for action. Few Vice Presidents ever found themselves in such a "loop."

Nick Thimmesch

Mondale was there at the outset because Mr. Carter leaned on him to select and recruit his Cabinet and sub-Cabinet. Score one big one for the Vice President. He made another point when his staff did most of the work on the election reform proposals which the President pretty much accepted. Mondale also softened Mr. Carter's first thoughts about asking for criminal penalties for those found leaking government information.

There is good reason to believe, also, that the Vice President urged the President to call for a hike in milk-price supports. Mondale has never shrunk from the interests or favors of dairy farmers.

President Carter's first dust-ups with Congress were mitigated some by Mondale's efforts to smooth and reconcile. Mondale came to the rescue of Frank Moore, the President's assistant for congressional relations, who had not found his way around proud congressmen.

Beyond that, Mondale has cut loose with whatever partisan rhetoric has

Fishbait tells all in his book

WASHINGTON — Shortly before Richard Nixon was forced to resign from the presidency, he came upon the familiar sight of William "Fishbait" Miller faithfully guarding the door of the House of Representatives. "Fishbait, how's your voice today?" the agitated Nixon asked the doorkeeper. "Is your throat sore? Is it hurting any?"

Suddenly, the beleaguered president unaccountably lunged at Fishbait. "He grabbed me by the throat and was choking me," Fishbait recalls. "I gasped for breath.... So I wrenched myself away.... The poor guy really got rid of a little hostility at my expense."

This is just one of the revealing tales of life, love and liaisons on Capitol Hill as chronicled by the frog-throated former House doorkeeper. We have obtained a bootleg copy of the raw galleys of his autobiography, "Fishbait," ghostwritten with Frances Spatz Leighton. The pages are filled with spicy recollections of the colorful Fishbait's 42 years in the Capitol. For example:

— In 1948, when Nixon was a Congressman, he took a junket by boat to Panama, although he knew the famous "pumpkin papers" that eventually destroyed Alger Hiss were about to turn up. The cagey future president thus reaped front page publicity when the Coast Guard arranged a dramatic sea-air lift to get him back to Washington for the hearings.

— The late Sen. Huey "Kingfish" Long, D-La., who was once lambasted as a "damned, thieving s.o.b." by a courtly colleague, had a unique way of getting even with his Senate adversaries. In the Senate restroom, "he pretended to miss his mark in the urinal and hit another senator with whom he'd been having words...."

— Several Congressmen may want to wreak similar revenge on Fishbait when they finish reading his book. After Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., was divorced from his wife, Anita, says Fishbait, she still loyally trooped to the Family Section of the House Gallery to hear him speak. Ullman spotted her there one day and heartlessly ordered Fishbait to kick her out. Ullman declined to comment to us on the incident.

— Nixon and Herbert Hoover were the only presidents whose dogs wouldn't come running when they were called. But ex-President Jerry Ford sometimes had his dog run into the office so he could change the subject and graciously break up a long interview.

— Rep. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., was horrified when his 156-pound dog, "C-5," bit a political ally, Rep. James Symington, D-Mo. Several years later, Symington visited Jacobs with some gift-wrapped cheese to placate the dog. C-5 promptly bit him again.

— Fishbait has some kind words for former presidents. He was grateful to Lyndon Johnson for personally inviting Fishbait's black assistant, Carl Sommers, to the signing of the Civil Rights act. He warmly recalls Ford as a frugal Congressman who used all his pencils down to tiny stubs.

— Even Nixon, who sometimes maligned him, once had a miniature door built as a birthday present to Fishbait.

Fishbait appears to have been a

'That's show biz,' as the agent said

WASHINGTON — There was a time when being President of the United States was the highest office that any American could aspire to. But in recent years the Presidency is only a steppingstone to fame and fortune in show biz. A recent article in the New York Times revealed that the William Morris Agency has made deals for President Ford, Mrs. Ford, Jack Ford, Susan Ford and Steve Ford. The former President and his wife have contracts for two books with Harper and Row and Reader's Digest worth a million dollars. Ford will also work for NBC for the next five years doing documentaries, for which he will get a million dollars.

Mrs. Ford has a contract with NBC for the next two years to do documentaries and also appear on the Today show. She will be paid $500,000 for her services. Jack Ford has been signed as an assistant to the publisher of Rolling Stone; Steve Ford will act in a television series in Hollywood, and Susan Ford has just sold her photographs to Good Housekeeping.

Even President Nixon, who was driven out of office in disgrace, stands to make two or three million dollars from his book and TV appearances.

With this kind of money being thrown around no one has any idea what President Carter's worth will be. But several big-name agents are already working on Mr. Carter's future as soon as he leaves office. I spoke to one of them.

He was very excited. "We'll get more money for the Carters than for any family that has ever lived in the White House. "We're talking megabucks when we're talking about the Carters."

"But isn't it kind of early to start packaging the Carter family?" I asked. "He's only been President for a couple of months."

"We have to move fast. Carter's hot right now. In four years the bidding could go way down. I can get more money for Amy's memoirs now than for Ford's and Nixon's combined."

"I hope she's keeping a diary," I said.

"Guess what I've cooked up for Miss Lillian?"

"I have no idea."

"I've been talking to CBS about her being co-anchorwoman with Walter Cronkite on the evening news."

"Does Walter know about this?"

"It's not HIS decision," the agent said. "ABC sports wants Rosalynn Carter to do Monday Night Football with Howard Cosell."

"I didn't know Rosalynn knew anything about football."

"It doesn't matter. Rosalynn is interested in mental health and what better place to talk about it than with Howard during a pro football game."

"Billy Carter's tied up with another agent now so I guess you can't use him," I said.

"It doesn't matter. By the time the President is out of office Billy will be overexposed."

"What have you lined up for President Carter?"

"I have a firm $3 million offer for his book. NBC is offering $2 million for a documentary on how he brought peace to the Middle East and another $2 million to host the Saturday Night show, as well as to fill in for Johnny Carson when Carson goes to Las Vegas."

"You know Carter's sister," he said.

"You mean Ruth Stapleton, the faith healer?" I replied.

"No, dummy, Gloria Carter Spaan, the one who rides a motorcycle."

"Of course."

"I got an offer from the Dallas State Fair. They want her to fly over 15 Greyhound buses on her bike in tandem with Evel Knievel."

"What about the President's sons, Chip, Jack and Jeff?"

"Playboy wants all three of them."

"Gosh, I didn't know there was that much money in being President of the United States."

"Are you kidding? Any agent who can't get a minimum of $10 million for a former President and his family shouldn't be in show business."

Tax reformers in Congress are attempting to raise the standard deduction for married persons on purely humanitarian grounds. It should take some of the pain out of marriage.

Married people have always had a smaller standard deduction than singles. Most people who make the tax laws are married and misery loves company.

The government is coming out with a new tax guide, called "Living In Sin For Fun And Profit."

Woman's conservation produces water tap

The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Carol Holsworth took the drought seriously and cut her family's water use to less than 20 gallons a day per person — and now she has the San Francisco Water Department nipping at her tap.

City water officials apparently refuse to believe that her self-imposed conservation measures are saving that much water. "They had somebody out here yesterday asking people what kind of neighbors we were, how long we had lived here," Mrs. Holsworth told The Los Angeles Times. "You would think they would be proud that we cut down so much. But they don't believe us."

The whole thing seems all the more incredible because the city announced last week that it was adopting a mandatory rationing plan aimed at reducing water use by 25 per cent. The plan goes into effect Friday.

A spokesman for the Water Department denied that anybody was harassing the Holsworths but conceded that "when we find somebody using less than the minimal amount of water it bores us to find out why. Maybe we can all profit by it."

The spokesman said that the Water Department men who visited the neighborhood were simply meter readers who, finding no one at the Holsworth home, told neighbors of their mission so as to avoid arousing suspicion. This is standard procedure, the spokesman said.

Mrs. Holsworth said here water bill, which normally would arrive in the mail on the 3rd of the month, has not yet arrived, apparently because a disbelieving computer at the department keeps spitting out her card.

"A consumer relations man at the department said we've cut down so much — and I guess they must compare to what you had been using — that the computer won't compute it," she said.

When she convinced her family two months ago that they should quit using so much water, Mrs. Holsworth thought she was doing her civic duty and also showing foresight. She had seen, as a result of camping trips to the mountains, that there was only a light snowpack and decided that water rationing for San Francisco, which is dependent on Sierra reservoirs for its water supply, seemed inevitable.

That being the case, she told her husband, Earl, a butcher, their family "had better start now so by the time rationing comes around it won't be so hard for us."

When the city announced its rationing plan, the Holsworths — Carol, Earl and daughters Patty and Susan — already had slashed their daily usage by more than 350 gallons.

"We collect all the excess water out of the washing machine, rinse water and everything, and use it for washing cars, watering the garden, flushing the toilets," Mrs. Holsworth said.

Carter wins water project cut

By JAMES L. ROWE Jr.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter won a narrow victory Monday as the House Budget Committee voted to cut from the 1978 budget $280 million for water resources projects the administration wants to kill.

Over the objections of Majority Leader Rep. Jim Wright (D-Tex.) and chairman Robert N. Giaimo (D-Conn.), nine Democrats and four Republicans joined to vote for the $280 million funding cut proposed by Rep. Butler Derrick (D-S.C.).

In the budget he proposed last month, President Carter deleted $289 million in funds for 19 ongoing water projects that had been in the budget President Ford sent to Congress in January. An irate Senate voted on March 10 to reject the administration plan and oppose any cutoffs, the biggest legislative setback the new administration has received.

Since then the President has restored 3 of the projects and added 14 new ones to his so-called "hit list." The 30 projects on the list could cost the federal government as much as $530 million in the federal spending year beginning Oct. 1, but the administration has not said it will necessarily seek to stop all 30.

House Budget Committee chairman Robert N. Giaimo had sought to boost spending for water projects $360 million over Carter's level of $4.64 billion. By a 13 to 11 vote the committee trimmed Giaimo's proposal boost by roughly the amount requested by Carter on Feb. 22.

While Carter won a victory Monday on the water projects, the budget committee, again over Majority Leader Wright's objections, voted to trim $2.3 billion from the $111.95 billion the President wants to spend on defense in fiscal 1978.

The committee, again on a 13-to-11 party-line vote with republicans voting no, adopted the spending level proposed last week by chairman Giaimo, $109.65 billion.

Giaimo resisted Republican attempts to spend the full amount recommended by Carter and also defeated a compromise proposed by Wright which would have cut Carter's defense budget by $1.1 billion rather than $2.3 billion.

The committee also narrowly defeated a proposal by Rep. Jim Mattox (D-Tex.) to cancel funding for the controversial B-1 bomber as of May 1, 1977 — a move which would have reduced the defense budget by $800 million next year.

While decisions by the budget committee on particular programs are not binding — and the overall spending targets set in the spring are targets not binding ceilings for Congressional appropriations — the surprise vote to back the President on the water projects should strengthen his hand in dealing with Congress on the matter.

The Congress must approve a tentative budget for fiscal 1978 by May 15 and must approve a binding budget by Sept. 15. Any appropriation which would push overall spending above the level adopted by Sept. 15 is out of order in both the House and the Senate.

Wright opposed the Derrick amendment, noting that Congress had approved all the projects, which are in various stages of completion, and that the President's advisers cannot change the criteria on which the projects were approved.

"If we knock out the money, we'll be making an assumption the President isn't even making," that the projects will be canceled, Wright said. As part of his pledge to balance the federal budget by fiscal 1981, Carter said he has subjected 337 water projects to new environmental, economic and safety criteria and approved all but 30 of those projects under the new standards.

Mattox learns the hard way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freshman congressman Jim Mattox of Texas is finding that it's easier to talk about cutting the federal budget on the campaign trail than it is to do something about it in Washington.

Mattox campaigned on a pledge to do what he could to eliminate federal deficits. He lobbied hard to get assigned to the House Budget Committee and became the only freshman to win a seat on it.

But in the treadmill world of federal deficit finance, Mattox has discovered, you have to run as hard as you can just to stand still.

The budget committee was formed in 1974 in an effort by Congress to get some control over spending. It formulates budget ceilings for the various federal functions.

The committees which actually appropriate the money have to stay under those ceilings. But the ceilings can be, and often are, raised as the budget process moves along and the pressure to spend becomes irresistible.

Mattox has jumped into his budget committee work with enthusiasm. Two weeks ago, he stayed in Washington for a weekend, attending briefings given by the committee staff. He and committee chairman Robert Giaimo of Connecticut were the only ones who did.

Monday was typical of the work Mattox has been doing. He offered an amendment to cut the defense ceiling by $1.874 billion, the amount authorized for the B1 bomber program.

"It's a welfare program for the corporations that build the plane. It's obsolete before it's even built, and we don't need it for national security," he said.

Mattox expected the committee to be evenly divided on the issue. He almost was right. Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif., consistently had opposed the B1. But on Monday, he turned around. With the strategic arms limitation talks going on, he said, Congress ought not to cut the plane unless the Soviets also agreed to cut something.

Leggett's switch was enough to tip the committee; he joined all the Republican members and a few Democrats, such as Rep. Jim Wright of Texas. The vote against Mattox's amendment was 13-11.

Mattox was not disconcerted. He said he believed a message had been sent to the White House, indicating substantial congressional opposition to the plane.

He learned that in Congress one representative's boondoggle is another's pet project. Earlier in the budget process, Mattox had helped to raise the ceiling by $500 million to accommodate, among other things, a restoration of funds for the A7E fighter plane program.

The administration had said it didn't want funds for the A7E, but that plane, unlike the B1, is built in the Dallas area. Mattox was able to find reasons to support it.

"It's entirely another issue. And besides, it's chicken feed compared to the B1," he said.

He has learned that "chicken feed" is a relative concept. "This is the only place in the world where five-tenths (on a budget sheet) means $500 million and an asterisk means less than $500 million. It's scary sometimes."

ON APRIL 2nd LET'S KEEP OUR COMMUNITY UNIFIED

☆ A ward system looks good in theory and is even practical in large cities like Dallas or Houston. But a city the size of Midland, ward politics tends to be very divisive and non-productive.

☆ Amarillo changed to a ward system and found it so divisive that it brought the city's progress and development to a complete halt. The city held another election and changed back to their previous at-large system.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Postage has gotten too expensive to search repeatedly for voters through the mail, says Secretary of State Mark White.

White told the Senate State Affairs Committee on Monday that not only has first-class postage risen from 10 to 13 cents an ounce, but the cost for updating an address has gone up from 5 cents to 25 cents.

He said a bill sponsored by Sen. W.E. Snelson, D-Midland, would eliminate all but the initial voter registration mailing in years in which no general elections are held, beginning with 1977.

DEAR ABBY

Party incident teaches child

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to MOTHER whose daughter was one of the few not invited to a classmate's party, missed a point I think is important. Granted, the party invitations should not have been passed out at school unless the whole class was invited, but the incident should have been used as an object lesson. This world is full of rude and thoughtless people, and life is often a series of snubs, disappointments and frustrations, which children should learn to handle early. Eleven-year-olds who have not learned how to deal with rejection have been overprotected, and overprotected children develop into adults who can't cope with everyday life. Parents should not shelter their children from common occurrences. And they shouldn't be too sympathetic. And above all, they should never try to soothe injured feelings with a gift or reward. It's too bad when a child is "left out," but when this happens—as it surely will—he shouldn't be allowed to wallow in self-pity or indulge in "get-even" tactics.—DEAR GRAMMY: You make a good point. Overprotected children do develop into adults who can't cope with life's everyday problems. But to deny or repress our true feelings instead of accepting them and dealing with them is unhealthy. Feeling "hurt" when rejected is normal at any age, and nothing to be ashamed of. Unfortunately, our society and culture has made a taboo of crying in public. DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from TIRED whose husband didn't want to be bugged about household maintenance. My husband also hardly knows how to change a light bulb, so I tinker with the plumbing, hang shelves, fix broken locks, etc.

There is a difference, however. My husband was willing to learn the basic safety procedures of shutting off power, gas and water; in case of emergency. Children should learn these things, too. Everyone who lives in a house should be able to act knowledgeably in an emergency.—BETTY

DEAR BETTY: A sensible idea. Safety precautions should be a family responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: How do you address mail to couples who are living together but aren't husband and wife? I just can't address a letter to "Mr. Jack Jones and Miss Valerie Johnson."

It is certainly a problem that needs to be put straight. How about it, Abby? Please give us old-fashioned folks some help.—D. D. IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR D.D.: Address mail to "Mr. Jack Jones and Valerie," or "Valerie Johnson and Jack."

AT WIT'S END

Right age gets harder to admit

By ERMA BOMBECK

When women speak of police brutality, they are referring to one thing — their obligation under oath to give their right age on their driver's license. If they don't, under the false swearing law, they are guilty of a misdemeanor.

The Arizona House Judiciary Committee, in reviewing these laws recently, saw the error of the system and is wisely considering change. As one committee member said, "If we're going to hold everybody accountable for everything they do or say, I think a lot of people are going to be upset."

And that is the greatest understatement since Mary Worth was caught in a hotel lobby posing as a philodendron saying, "I don't mean to meddle."

Happily, I've never been one of those silly, sensitive creatures obsessed with age. If you ask me, I'll tell you right off, "I'm fffffffffffff . . ." give me a minute, it'll come.

I had a grandmother who lied so much about her age she couldn't remember how old she was. She lied on each of her children's birth certificates — with each birth getting younger, which eventually made the "baby" of the family the oldest, despite the fact her mother gave birth at the age of 12.

As I have always said, being ffffffooooo . . . forrrrr . . . is nothing to be ashamed of. I mean being ffffffooooo is better than being thirty and looking sixty.

I know some women who not only lie about their age on their driver's license, they lie about their weight, height, and their hair color. Small wonder some police officers, after looking over the license, can only assume they are driving a stolen car.

Goodness gracious, this has to be the biggest flap over nothing I have ever heard in my life. What does it matter that the old biddy who cashes a check for you in the supermarket looks at your identification and announces your age over the loud speaker? Or that the turkey who made your car repairs knows you weren't blonde on your license three years ago. As I told my husband, "It's not so bad being ffffffoooooor . . ."

"What are you trying to say?" he asked.

"Ffffffffoooooorty!" I said, holding onto the table to steady myself.

"You're fifty!" he said.

"So arrest me!"

The most important item to consider when trying to sell your condominium is "how well it shows."

In other words, what kind of first impression does it make? No matter how rational and factual a buyer tries to be, something has to say to him: "I really would be happy and comfortable living here."

If the real estate broker has to keep reminding the prospect that your place has a lot of potential, chances are it won't be a quick sale.

In most cases, the first inspection by a potential buyer is a relatively quick one...no more than a walk-through.

That's why it is important to set the mood. Even the most sophisticated buyer who knows exactly what you are trying to do, still will take note of your extra efforts.

The first rule is basic. Make sure your condominium is spotlessly clean from the window sills to the shower door and from the garage to the kitchen.

Windows should be clean and draperies open to give a feeling of spaciousness while accenting the view. Keep a window or two open to eliminate any odors, or that feeling of stale air.

If you are going to cook the day the house is being shown, try to prepare things that don't have strong odors like bacon, onions, or seafood. The smell of a cake baking in the oven or fresh coffee brewing in the kitchen can enhance the feeling of warmth.

Warm off each room to its best advantage. Pull out a good table cloth and set the dining room table as if you were expecting guests. In the bathrooms, display guest towels and use that decorative soap you received last year for Christmas.

If you have a stereo, have it on so that there is soft music in the background. In the bedrooms, you also might leave a radio playing softly.

A few minutes before the potential buyer arrives, turn on the strategic lights that provide the most flattering illumination for each room.

If you are getting ready to move, the easiest thing to do is throw everything in the closet to get it out of the way. This can be a mistake. Neatly arranged closets which show how the storage space can be used effectively always impress the buyer.

Play up the selling points. If there is a fireplace (and the outside temperature isn't in the 80s) have it burning. If there is a patio or balcony, don't ignore it. Decorate it with plants and buy an inexpensive cover for the rusty barbecue.

Should the condominium be shown when you are at home, make yourself available for questions, but don't hover around the buyer. After he has made his own inspection, you might point out a few items he may have missed, such as a security system, recreational facilities or extra storage areas.

Take a long, hard look at your pictures and accessories before showing your place.

Keep clutter to a minimum even if it means storing the statue of the Hawaiian girl doing the hula that you picked up on last year's vacation, or that compromising picture taken during college days.

Today's resales within the same condominium project vary thousands of dollars in price, often because the more expensive ones have those little extras which make them seem more valuable to a new owner. It's all a matter of how it looks.

Clean condominium sets resale mood

Poston settles into job after bout of tempests

By DONNIE RADCLIFFE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — When British Prime Minister James Callaghan turned up at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. this month, his musical preferences and Welsh background had preceded him.

The Carter White House aide whose job it is to see to such things — and a great deal more — is social secretary Gretchen Poston, 45, "born Democrat" from Kansas City, Mo., who is finding the task so absorbing that she virtually forgot her own birthday last month.

Her strategy is to try to fit the entertainment at state dinners to the tastes of the guests of honor — and often-expressed but not always successful aim of past Presidents and First Ladies, and part of the Carters' style that began with their first such dinner for Mexican President Lopez Portillo.

"We knew Mrs. Portillo played the piano so that was relatively simple if you could find someone like Rudolf Serkin who was free," says Poston. Serkin was, and not only agreed to perform but brought along his piano at his own expense.

Now, less than three weeks and a teapotful of tempests later — Amy Carter's reading habits, Margaret Trudeau's fashion statements and Ohio Gov. James Rhodes' grandchildren, to name three — Poston has settled comfortably into a position one of her predecessors has called "a total commitment, not just a job."

If Poston is inscrutable and uncommunicative about what she thinks of such matters, it is her nature, say friends who portray her as a woman of absolute calm and impenetrable discretion.

"She is the most unflappable person I've ever met," says longtime friend

'I'm a detail person who feels you have to see it all written out to know whether it's going to work.'

Gretchen Poston
White House social secretary and fellow-Missourian Barbara Eagleton, wife of the Missouri senator, categorically.

Poston seems to have found her niche. "I feel she was cut out for the job," says Mary Hoyt, Rosalynn Carter's press secretary.

"She's a catalyst whose real forte is creativity and imagination," says former business associate Barbara Boggs, who with Post and Ellen Proxmire founded the wedding consulting firm that eventually became Washington Whirl-Around.

After a half-dozen years in wedding and convention planning, Poston's modus operandi is "working a lot of paper, first. I'm a detail person who feels you have to see it all written out to know whether it's going to work."

She had different plans when she stopped off in Washington in 1960 en route to Japan and a Department of the Army teaching job. A graduate of St. Mary's College in Leavenworth, Kan., she taught school in Kansas City, Mo., public schools for a few years, before taking off to see the world. She got as far as France for a year and Germany for another before heading in the other direction, via a training course at Catholic University here.

When that ended, she had three weeks to kill and applied for a secretarial job in Raymond Poston's law firm. "I'd never been a secretary before and I wanted to try. The day after I met Raymond, I canceled my port-call."

That was September. By December, Gretchen Housholder and Raymond Poston were married. It wasn't long before she had resumed a long-standing interest she once had pursued in Missouri — politics.

"I switched focus — from local to national — but I had always passed out ballots and worked in precincts."

She joined the Women's National Democratic Club, (and is still a member of its board) and before long was up to her neck politically in fundraisers. Never interested in seeking public office herself, and married to a man who almost indifferent to politics, Gretchen Poston was a natural for a town like Washington.

The great-granddaughter of a Pennsylvania state senator who had followed Horace Greeley's advice and went west to Missouri (he eventually started a newspaper that became the Kansas City Star), Poston was loyal to her avocation of politics, but no more so than to her friends.

"She loves to celebrate St. Patrick's Day with little gifts for all of us," says Barbara Eagleton. "And she has lots of Jewish and Irish friends. So last year she gave us all green bagels. She never left a note but you always know it's from Gretchen."

Poston says her friendships may be the outgrowth of a life among women. Fatherless at age 2 and the youngest of three sisters, she went off to boarding school. "It makes you very true to yourself — you learn to give and take easily."

Her friends, indeed, seem legion. There is a long-standing tennis game with Joan Mondale, Nancy Stevenson, wife of Illinois Sen. Adlai Stevenson, and Marge Eflin, whose husband is the Washington Newsweek bureau chief. The game has suffered neglect since Poston went to the White House. She vows, though, not for long.

A "morning person" who cooks breakfast for her children, Katharine, 4, Ramsey, 10, Carol, 13, and Jeffrey 15, she subscribes to the Carter White House work ethic by instinct, not direction.

Poston's account of how she got where she is today is terse and to the point. Mary Hoyt called her on New Year's Eve to ask if she would like to meet to talk about being social secretary at the White House. Though caught completely by surprise, Poston remembers that "I said 'yes, I would' and hung up."

She met Rosalynn Carter for the first time a few days later and now sees herself almost as "an extension of Mrs. Carter. If you can't have that feeling about somebody, you can't do it."

She has feelings of "affection, protection and respect" for Mrs. Carter, a woman she describes as "a very gracious, classic lady" whose tendency, like her husband's, to less structured procedures in no way connotes an absence of social graces.

"I think the world informal is not right," says Poston. "What I call 'informality' is when Mrs. Carter or the President might turn around to talk to somebody."

The Carters strive to make their guests comfortable, she says, but there is also a practical purpose behind some arrangements now beginning to emerge. President Carter likes to be at the same dinner table with Mrs. Carter, Poston says, but he also wants to be with the visiting president or prime minister. Under previous administrations, the President and First Lady presided over neighboring tables. The Carters, however, have been sitting together with each visiting state couple, a "marvelous opportunity to continue the conversation of the visit," says Poston.

Another departure from recent White House practices is the absence of dancing. "The Carters do not object, but it seemed to be an extension to the evening that really doesn't fit."

And if some guests at the three previous White House dinners have seemed reluctant to go home, well, that to Poston is a very good sign.

"Have you ever been to a party that ended on a high note? Well, it's great if you feel that you could have stayed an extra hour."

That, says Poston, is a sure-fire sign to her that a good time was had by all.

Baby given two names

ORONO, Maine (AP)—Cricket Louise Sheppard-Sawyer has become the first one born in Maine to bear a hyphenated name legally.

Her parents, Judith Sheppard, a school teacher, and William Sawyer, a university student, are married but each prefers to use his and her own name. They wanted their baby to bear both their names but learned that was not allowed in the state. So they filed a suit against the state registrar for the Department of Human Services and the Human Services Commissioner.

Recently, Judge Elmer Violette in Penobscot Superior Court ruled in favor of the family, and in effect said that parents may use either of their surnames or any combination of their surnames in naming a child.

GREEN PEPPER CHICKEN

You may like our way of using chicken in a dish that traditionally calls for beef.

- 6 chicken thighs
- 2 large green peppers
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon medium sherry
- 1 slice fresh ginger root, minced (if available).

2 tablespoons oil
Bone each thigh by cutting along thinnest side to bone; scrape flesh away from around bone to loosen it; discard bones or save for the broth pot. With a small sharp knife remove skin by separating it from the flesh. Cut each boned and skinned thigh crosswise into 1/4-inch-wide strips. Remove seeds and membranes from peppers; rinse; cut into 1/2-inch-wide strips. Stir together the remaining ingredients except the oil; add chicken to this marinade and let stand for 1 or more hours. In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil; add chicken and its marinade and the green pepper; over moderately high heat stir-fry until chicken is cooked through and peppers are tender-crisp — 3 to 5 minutes. Makes 3 servings.

the queen. Since East started with only two spades he is unlikely to have only two diamonds. Moreover, East surely has both the king and jack of diamonds. (East would not bid one notrump with two doubletons or with only 14 points.)

How could South develop the diamonds?

South must lead his low diamond and finesse with dummy's eight. East wins with the jack and returns the jack of hearts to dummy's king.

TRAPS KING

Declarer now leads dummy's queen of diamonds. This traps East's king and picks up West's ten of diamonds at the same time. Whether or not East covers with the king, South can clear the diamonds and return to dummy with the nine of spades to discard a heart on a good diamond.

It's true that West can defeat the contract by switching to hearts at the second trick, but who would think of it?

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S932; HK93; DQ8532; CK4. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades with most partners. This is usually safe, since few good players will open with one spade with a weak four-card suit. If your partner bids such suits and is also a shaky player, you should respond 1NT rather than two spades.

President may change discharges?

WASHINGTON (AP) — On orders of the President, the Pentagon will consider upgrading undesirable and general discharges for 432,530 Vietnam-era servicemen, among them is Jack Carter, eldest son of the commander-in-chief.

The Defense Department announced Monday that Carter had approved its plans to review in "the spirit of forgiveness and compassion" discharges given for desertion, drug abuse and other causes between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973.

The announcement marked the second step in Carter's effort to heal the divisiveness of the Vietnam war. But unlike his blanket pardon on Jan. 21 for thousands of Vietnam-era draft evaders, the discharge review will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Eligible ex-servicemen and women will have six months to seek a review of their papers. The Pentagon said it would announce guidelines for them within a week.

Official figures show that 173,006 undesirable discharges and 259,524 general discharges were issued during the Vietnam era.

Among those with undesirable discharges are 69,170 deserters who did not take part in former President Gerald R. Ford's clemency program.

The new program does not affect some 1,903 dishonorable and 28,759 bad conduct discharges issued to servicemen after courts-martial.

Jack Carter, 29, reportedly received a general discharge — one step below honorable — after he and 53 classmates were caught smoking marijuana at the Navy Nuclear Power School in Idaho Falls, Idaho, in late 1970. Carter had served more than 2 1/2 years.

He now practices law in Calhoun, Ga.

The Pentagon announcement said servicemen discharged "for reasons involving violence, criminal intent or the use of force" would not be eligible under the review program.

Servicemen who "successfully completed an assignment in Southeast Asia or in the western Pacific in support of operations in Southeast Asia" will automatically be eligible for review.

Also eligible, the Pentagon said, are those who received an honorable discharge following a previous service hitch, had a good record for two years before their undesirable discharge or took part in Ford's clemency program.

The armed services still list 4,560 deserters from the Vietnam era. They will have to turn themselves in to military authorities and seek a discharge, authorities said.

"Those who deserted from a combat zone are not eligible," the Pentagon added.

Senior military officials on 12 Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force Discharge Review Boards will sift the review applications. The Pentagon said these boards have "a long record of accomplishments" in correcting injustices.

More boards will be created if they are needed for prompt review of the cases, officials said.

Finchie steals Academy Awards

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A scathing satire on the television industry, a cinderella tale of a second-rate boxer's reach for the top and a Watergate detective story took most of the Oscars at the 49th Academy Awards, but Peter Finch stole the show.

"Finchie," as the film community affectionately knew the late actor, was posthumously honored with the best actor Oscar for his portrayal of a mad broadcaster in "Network." In the most poignant moment of Monday night's nationally-telecast awards show, Liv Ullmann opened the Best Actor envelope and read, "Peter Finch, for 'Network.'"

The crowd at the packed Music Center roared its approval, as Finch, who died of a heart attack Jan. 14, became the first actor ever to win the award posthumously.

Faye Dunaway won the best actress award for her blistering performance as the hard-driving "Network" executive who sacrificed all for success.

The Oscar for the best picture went to "Rocky," which was made for a "cheap" $1 million and featured a then-unknown leading man — Sylvester Stallone. The story of a down-and-out fighter's shot at the heavyweight title also won a director's Oscar for John G. Avildsen and another for best film editing.

Some critics said the affair lacked some of the excitement of past Oscar nights, but that was in part by design. "Exorcist" director William Friedkin, who produced this year's show, cut down on some of the onstage chit-chat and offstage glitter in an effort to produce a more dignified show that dragged in parts.

"It looks like we could have used some of that meaningless interchange," one Academy official mumbled in reference to Friedkin's move from two presenters to one.

Unlike last year, when "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" swept all the major categories, this year's homage by the film industry to itself lacked a big winner. "Network" and "All the President's Men," each with four statuettes, won the most. Stallone's "Rocky" took three Oscars.

"It was a classic case of timing, man and material," Stallone said in a backstage assessment of the film that at one time nobody wanted if he was to be part of the deal. Stallone, who wrote "Rocky," concealed whatever disappointment he may have felt at losing in the Best Actor category.

Asked if it was true that he wrote the enormously popular film in three days, the 30-year-old actor replied, "I wrote it in two days, but I didn't want to seem like a prodigy." Snappy work for a man who'd never seen a fight until he was 29.

Jason Robards, the actor who brought perfection to Eugene O'Neill material on stage, won an Oscar for his portrayal in "All the President's Men" of Ben Bradlee, the Washington Post's executive editor. It was Robards' first Oscar nomination.

Beatrice Straight, who lost husband William Holden to Faye Dunaway in "Network," was named best supporting actress. Miss Straight, who spent years on Broadway and did a stint in the quickly folded television show "Beacon Hill," won the Academy's honor on the basis of only two brief scenes in the film.

"I was stunned," the American-born, English-educated actress said backstage, "very stunned. I must have looked like an idiot up there."

"Network" also won an Oscar for Paddy Chayevsky, who wrote the original screenplay.

Despite this year's attempt at cutting what Friedkin had termed the "tackiness" of previous Oscar shows, there were some touching moments.

There were tears aplenty when, in accepting the best actor award for Finch, Paddy Chayevsky stepped to the microphone and said, "There's only one person who should accept this — Mrs. Peter Finch."

Petroleum projects set in WT sectors

Petroleum test sites have been staked in Howard and Mitchell counties, and a field was extended in North Martin.

The Petroleum Corp. of Delaware, operating from Dallas, filed application to drill a 9,700-foot wildcat in Howard, 2 1/2 miles southeast of Big Spring. It is No. 1-26 Leora Flanagan.

Drill site, 1/2 mile southeast of the Morgan Ranch multipay field, is 467 feet from south and 2,173 feet from west lines of section 26, block 32, T-1-S, T&P survey.

MITCHELL STEPOUT

Bedford Oil & Gas, Inc., Hurst, plans No. 2 Cole as a 3/4-mile southwest stepout to production in a north-west extension area of the Westbrook, East (Clear Fork) field of Mitchell County.

Location is 990 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 2, Jarrett House Preemption survey, 1/4 mile west of Cuthbert.

MARTIN EXTENDER

Miller Exploration Co., Midland, has completed No. 1 Meador as a fourth well and 1/2-mile north extension to the Breedlove, East (Spraberry) field of Martin County, 18 miles north of Tarzan.

The 24-hour pumping potential was for 41 barrels of oil and 71 barrels of water per day, producing through perforations at 8,203-8,619 feet. The pay section had been acidized with 6,500 gallons and fractured with 60,000 gallons and 96,000 pounds of sand. Gravity and gas-oil ratio of the potential test were not reported.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 15, block 261, Borden CSL survey.

NRM finals discovery

NRM Petroleum Corp., Midland, has completed a Mississippi discovery in Floyd County, No. 1 Lucie D. Stephens, about eight miles southwest of Dougherty.

It had a 24-hour potential of 245 barrels of 43-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,102-1. Production was through perforations at 9,641-9,875 feet. No treatment was reported.

Drilled to 10,621 feet, 4 1/2-inch casing was set on bottom, and it was plugged back to 9,820 feet.

NRM staked the test originally as a stratigraphic test with fee name of R. S. Stovall Trust.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 5, WCRS survey.

Operator proposed field designation of NRM (Mississippian).

Terrell test set by Seco

Seco Production Co., Midland, will drill a 3/4-mile southeast stepout to detrital gas production in the Allison field of Terrell County. It is No. 2 Annie C. Garner.

It spots 467 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 10, block B-2, CCSD&RGNG survey. It is slated for a 9,500-foot bottom.

Extender potentials

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. has announced completion of its No. 2-29 Fasken, as a 3/4-mile east extension to Pennsylvania production in the Fasken field of Ector County.

It finished on the pump for 28 barrels of oil, gravity unreported, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,071-1. Completion was effected through perforations at 10,320-10,330 feet.

Drilled to 10,510 feet for tests of the Atoka, it was a failure in that zone.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 1,650 feet from west lines of section 29, block 42, T-1-N, G&MMB&A survey, 1 1/2 miles north of Odessa.

President considers tax on oil burners

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is considering a ban on all new industrial boilers — and a tax on old ones — if they burn natural gas and oil to make heat and electricity.

Carter energy aides said the ban and tax are under serious consideration to turn electric companies and factories away from the two most scarce domestic fuels and toward coal and uranium, the two most abundant. Details of how the ban would be enforced and how much tax would be levied were unavailable.

The White House would not confirm or deny that a ban or a tax on boiler fuels is under consideration.

"We are still in the formative stages of a new energy policy," a White House spokesman said Monday night. "There are a lot of things under consideration."

To soften the tax and law if they come, the administration would grant exceptions in the case of oil-burning boilers to electric companies and factories that agree to build storage tanks to maintain at least a 90-day supply of oil at the plant sites.

The exception is designed to encourage private industry to take on at least part of the financial burden of creating a strategic oil reserve in the United States to counter any interruption in the flow of oil imports.

Congress has authorized a federal oil reserve program in which the government would buy up the equivalent of a six-month supply of oil and store it in pumped-out salt domes and abandoned underground mines to have it ready for use in a national emergency like another oil embargo.

No exceptions would be allowed where boilers burn natural gas to make heat and electricity. The administration view on natural gas is that it is too scarce to waste on factory heat and power.

The ban and tax are being considered because so much oil and natural gas are being used by factories to generate heat and by electric companies to make electricity.

In 1975, electric companies burned 507 million barrels of oil to generate power. That was about 25 per cent of all the oil consumed in the United States that year. In the same year, an estimated 3.2 trillion cubic feet of gas was burned to make electricity. That was one-seventh of the natural gas burned in the United States.

About 500 million barrels of oil were also burned in 1975 to make heat for factories. In some cases it supplied heat to the factory and its workers. The rest was heat used in the manufacture of products like chemicals and glass.

About 5 trillion cubic feet of gas was burned in 1975 for factory heat, almost 25 per cent of the gas used in the U.S. that year.

Upton test hits crude

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. was taking another drillstem test at its No. 1 Amacker-Half, Upton County searcher, after recovering free oil on one test.

Tool was open 4 1/2 hours on the test taken from 8,900-8,975 feet. Gas surfaced in 10 minutes on a 3/4-inch choke, no gauge reported. Gas-cut mud surfaced in 40 minutes and it flowed 68 barrels of oil and 19 barrels of water in four hours. The sample chamber contained 1.8 cubic feet of gas and 1,500 cubic centimeters of oil.

One-hour initial and eight-hour final shut-in pressures were 2,771 and 2,406 pounds, respectively.

Operator was taking a test from 9,140-9,180 feet.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 81, block Y, GC&SF survey, 13 miles northwest of Rankin.

Manager appointed

EL PASO — Texaco Inc. has announced the appointment of Howard E. Musslewhite as plant manager of the company's El Paso refinery.

Musslewhite succeeds Frank Wilking who retired after more than 38 years with the company.

Musslewhite joined Texaco's Refining Department-U.S. in Port Neches, Tex. He was graduated from The University of Texas in 1951 with a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering.

In 1963, he was appointed assistant superintendent of the Port Neches Plant. He came assistant plant manager at Casper, Wyo., in 1970 and manager there in 1972.

A SIX-BLADED SHIP propeller is indeed a rarity, but it doesn't seem to faze this worker at Tenneco Inc.'s Newport News Shipbuilding subsidiary in Virginia. The tanker's propeller is so huge that, from where he stands, he can't see all six of the blades, anyway.

Committees moving on energy matters

TULSA, Okla. — Congress almost has completed streamlining its energy committee structure, and the petroleum industry is anxiously awaiting the results, reports this week's issue of The Oil & Gas Journal.

The reorganization and the fact that a Democrat President and Congress will be working together for the first time in eight years improves the chances for speedy passage of much new energy legislation — perhaps more from the 95th Congress than any other in U.S. history.

Powerful energy fiefdoms in the Senate already have been decided, the O&GJ reports. The House won't formalize its committee structure until learning the contents of President Carter's April 20 energy message.

Meanwhile, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the new Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, and chairman of five related subcommittees are moving ahead with their own energy programs, the weekly business magazine reports.

Measures they have introduced, some which industry successfully opposed during the past session, would:

—Revise the 1953 Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, which governs bidding and leasing procedures for offshore federal tracts.

—Mandate strict reclamation and environmental standards for strip-mining.

—Set timetables for industry to convert oil and gas-burning facilities to coal under the terms of a proposed 1977 Coal Utilization Act.

Coming up later will be consideration of deregulation of natural gas and oil prices, the journal says.

Other energy issues to come under the jurisdiction of Sen. Jackson's committee will include distribution and pricing for North Slope oil, decisions on the Alaskan natural-gas pipeline route, and gasoline price controls.

Several key issues still are outside Sen. Jackson's domain. They are creation of the proposed Department of Energy, the Clean Air Act, horizontal and vertical divestiture, energy taxes, antiboycott legislation, and corporate bribery bills.

API reveals drilling costs soar since '74

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A report released by the American Petroleum Institute shows that costs of drilling for petroleum are increasing substantially.

In 1975 the total costs of drilling and equipping oil and gas wells, and drilling dry holes, amounted to approximately $6.6 billion, an increase of 50.5 per cent over 1974.

The figures are contained in the annual Joint Association Survey, published by the API, Independent Petroleum Association of America and the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

In 1975, 36,960 wells were drilled, an increase of 17.4 per cent over the year before. Total footage drilled increased 17.7 per cent.

These data are contained in the recently released Section I of the survey which deals only with drilling costs. Section II, due this week, deals with overall costs including exploration, development and production.

Among the findings in Section I of the JAS:

—The average depth of oil wells completed in 1975 was 4,059 feet, an increase of 2.5 per cent; the average of gas wells was 5,667 feet, an increase of 2.2 per cent over the year before.

—The average cost per foot of oil wells completed in 1975 was $34.15, an increase of 22.8 per cent over 1974. Gas wells cost $46.23 per foot, compared with $34.11 the year before.

—The average depth of dry holes drilled in 1975 was 5,234 feet, a decrease of 1.2 per cent, but the average cost per foot was $33.86 for an increase of 26.5 per cent over 1974.

—Offshore wells completed in 1975 cost a total of more than $1.2 billion, an increase of 72.6 per cent over 1974. The total number of offshore wells increased 23.9 per cent and the average depth of offshore wells increased 6.7 per cent. The average cost per foot of offshore wells in 1975 was $120.02 per foot, an increase of 30.7 per cent.

Residents to query candidates

Six candidates, including the three incumbents in Saturday's school board election here, will discuss issues and handle queries from voters in a community-wide meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Greenwood School Cafeteria.

The six candidates are seeking three places on the board of trustees.

Vying for re-election to Place 1 is Bob Evans, who farms in the Greenwood area. Challenging his candidacy is Leroy Ledford, a lieutenant in the Midland Fire Department.

Two would-be trustees are out to unseat Chris King in his bid for re-election to Place 2. Also in that race are Lejuane Womack, a rural route mail carrier, and Owen Mobley, assistant

Marcum top spender

Place 2 Midland City Council candidate Gordon G. Marcum II has raised and spent the most money of all candidates for city council, according to the most recent financial disclosure statement filed with the Midland city secretary's office.

The deadline for the second financial disclosure statement, which must be filed by candidates who are opposed and who have collected contributions or made expenditures, was Monday. Statements also are required from political committees showing funds raised or spent.

Marcum's campaign treasurer, Paul Davis Jr., filed a statement showing $545 raised and $374.90 spent as of March 23.

Alex Clark Jr., 1800 W. Cuthbert Ave., contributed $100. No other individual contributor was listed, because the law does not require disclosure if the contribution was less than $50.

Marcum spent his money on political advertisements with The Reporter-Telegram and radio station KCRS.

Dennis A. Wallace, Marcum's opponent, did not file a disclosure statement, and incumbent Place 3 Councilman Carroll Thomas also declined to file a statement. Thomas is unopposed.

Although not required to file because she is running unopposed, Doris Howbert, Place 1 council candidate, filed a statement showing that $425 has been raised and $134.44 spent. All contributions were reported to be less than $50. The money was spent on advertisements in The Reporter-Telegram.

In addition to the council candidates, three political committees filed statements of contributions and expenditure.

The Citizens Committee for Representative Government, an organization supporting passage of the charter amendment requiring some single-member district council elections, said it has raised $303.50 and has spent $37.50.

The Committee for Continued Unity, an organization opposed to single-member district elections, disclosed it received $100 from Calvin L. Glass, 2400 Stanolind Ave. It spent $38.64 for an advertisement in The Reporter-Telegram.

The Committee to Improve Our Neighborhood Parks, an organization supporting passage of all except the zoo bond issue, reported it raised and spent $2.60.

Telethon nets area $70,000

ODESSA — Approximately $70,000 was raised during a 19½ hour Easter Seal Telethon last weekend.

That figure was twice the amount that state Easter Seal officials had anticipated would be raised locally, M. R. "Dick" McManigle, Ector County Easter Seal chairman, said.

Nationally the telethon raised more than $3 million.

Proceeds from the local telethon, after expenses, will go to the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center to fund patient services for handicapped children and adults.

Marquette captures national cage crown

ATLANTA (AP) — For a team that was going nowhere earlier this season, the Marquette Warriors certainly ended up in the right place.

An enigmatic, inconsistent team, Marquette reversed its field dramatically at the right time and followed its own yellow brick road to the top of the college basketball world.

Al McGuire could not explain it—he could only enjoy it after Monday night's 67-59 victory over North Carolina gave him the national championship in his last game as a college coach.

"I honestly don't know what happened to our team," said McGuire after winning his first NCAA chamampionship. "Maybe they stopped listening to the coach."

McGUIRE, WHO is retiring from basketball to go into private business, never thought he would be in the NCAA playoffs this year, much less be wearing the winner's crown.

But his team played mistake-proof basketball against North Carolina, giving him the long-sought title.

"I think they fell apart in the second half," McGuire said of North Carolina. "We hung in there."

If any of McGuire's 404 victories in his career could be called a "coaching" victory, this one might be it. Even McGuire admitted to playing a determining role in the outcome, something he usually does not do.

When North Carolina made a spectacular rally in the second half, the Marquette coach called timeouts at crucial moments, trying to stop the Tar Heels' momentum.

"Once the avalanche came and we were tied, I tried to stop the avalanche by delays and I called some timeouts," said McGuire. "Usually we try to do it with contact lens timeouts or something like that. You have to stop the momentum no matter what."

There was another intelligent, if more subtle play, used by the brainy Marquette coach. When the Tar Heels went into their patented four-corner offense after coming back from a 12-point deficit and tying the score, McGuire found something else with which to strangle them.

"I kept my big men around the basket so they wouldn't be able to score anything easy inside," said McGuire.

The four-corner offense had been a boon to North Carolina all season, but it turned into a bust this time. Carrying the momentum of the game, the Tar Heels apparently lost what they had at this point. After their gallant rally tied the score 45-45, they slowed down the tempo and eventually lost the handle of the game.

The four-corner offense had suddenly become a double-edged sword.

"THE FOUR-CORNERS in this instance hurt them," said Hank Raymonds, McGuire's assistant who is replacing him as coach next year. "They lost the momentum and just quit playing."

North Carolina, which got several easy shots off the four corners in Saturday's semifinal victory over Nevada-Las Vegas, could not do the same thing against Marquette. After holding the ball for almost three minutes, the Tar Heels finally got off a shot inside by Bruce Buckley. But it was blocked by Marquette center Jerome Whitehead, and the ball went the other way.

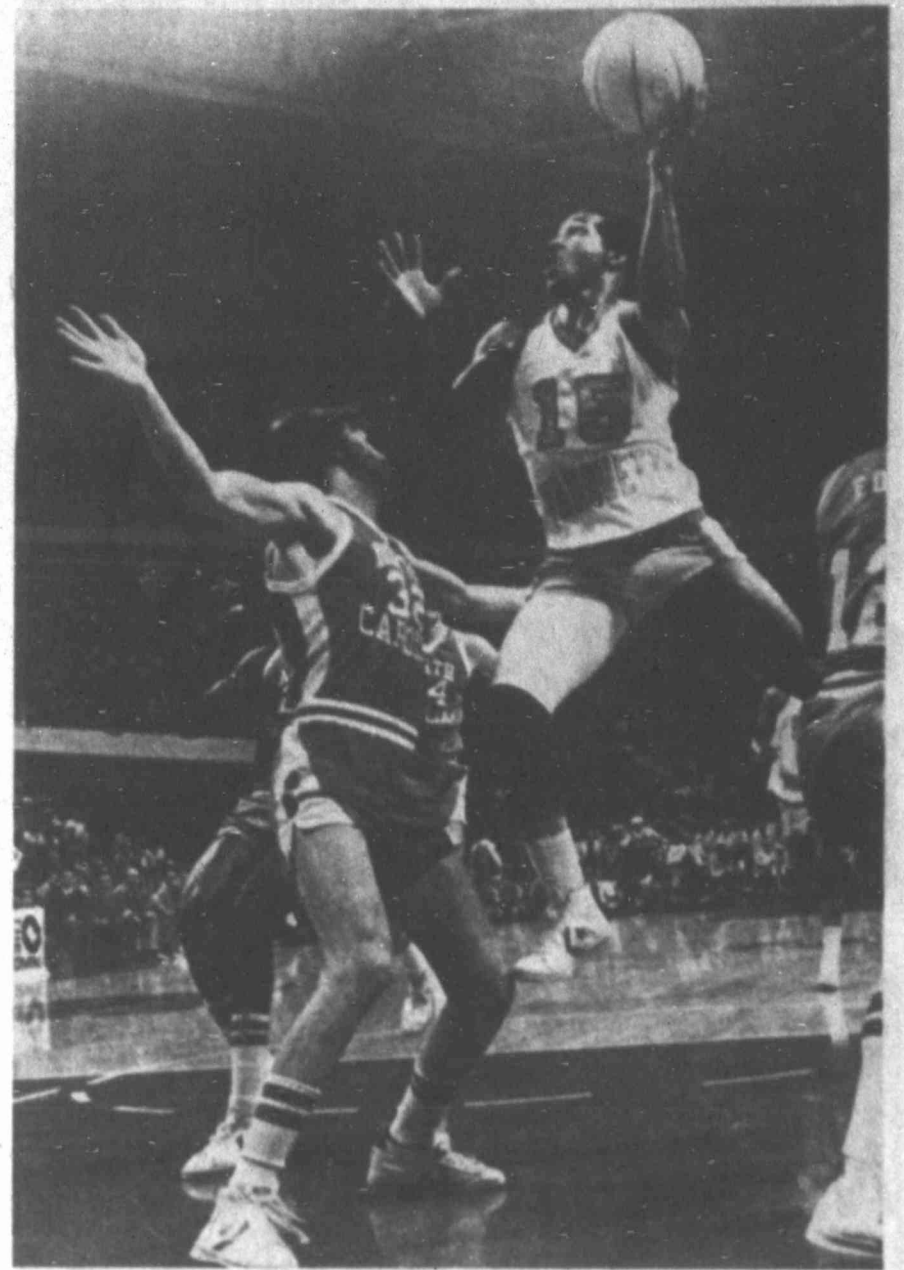

That set the trend for the rest of the game.

The Tar Heels tied the score again 47-47, but that was the last time they were even with the Warriors. Two fouls shots by Butch Lee and a field goal by Jim Boylan provided Marquette with a four-point lead and McGuire's boys eventually built it to 10 at one stage late in the game.

Lee finished with 19 points and Boylan and Bo Ellis had 14 each while Whitehead contributed 11 rebounds. Walter Davis led North Carolina with 20 points and Mike O'Koren had 14.

Marquette's victory had added impact because of the team's erratic season. The Warriors lost seven games this season—and no other.

Cubs may break mark in tickets

The Midland Cubs already have reached their second highest plateau of season box-seat ticket sales and General Manager Bill Rigney, Jr., has his sights set on breaking last year's record.

With the Texas League season opener against the San Antonio Dodgers looming April 12, the Cubs have reached 640 preseason tickets. Rigney's goal is 800.

Rigney also reports the Cubs' money total for fence signs and scorecard advertising has already reached an all-time high.

RIGNEY SAID one of the objectives of the Cubs this year will be to improve "our already excellent working relationship with the Midland Junior Baseball Association."

In conjunction with Paul Thorpe Spas, the Midland Cubs will give away 350 official Little League bats prior to the April 15 game against San Antonio at Cubs Stadium. The bats are 28 to 30 inches in length, "just right for nine to 12-year-olds."

The bats will go on a first-come, first served basis until the supply is gone. The only requirement is the purchase of a ticket by the boy or girl to the game.

THE CUBS will conduct a baseball clinic at Cubs Stadium April 23. The 10:30 a.m. to noon session will be for nine to 12-year-olds while the 12:30 to 2 p.m. session is for 13-year-olds and up. Manager Jim Saul will conduct a coaches clinic at each session. Pepsi-Cola will sponsor the clinic and each youngster will receive a free ticket to the game against Amarillo that night.

During the Cubs' regular season, any manager desiring to bring his team to a Cubs game may do so by calling the Cubs office, 683-4251.

"We will admit team members, preferably in uniform, free," Rigney said. Adult chaperones will be charged the general admission price of $1.50. "We ask that a minimum of one adult for each five boys accompany the team and that the entire group comes to the stadium together."

Bo Ellis blows cool following title game

ATLANTA (AP) — Bo Ellis, the expressionless, unemotional captain and team leader of the Marquette Warriors, finally blew his cool.

But the big forward had the best of excuses—his team had just won its first NCAA basketball title, and Ellis, along with guard Butch Lee, had triggered the 67-59 victory over North Carolina Monday night.

Ellis, a starter since his freshman season, cut down the net from one of the baskets in the Omni as the Marquette followers chanted "We're No. 1, We're No. 1." Then he placed it around his neck to wear as his own personal trophy.

Ellis then proceeded to pound teammates on the back, grabbed center Jerome Whitehead, who outweighs him by 20 pounds, and placed him in a bear hug while chanting, "We did it, we did it."

"I never dreamed of anything like this in my life," said Ellis, who played on the 1974 Warriors' team that lost to North Carolina State in the NCAA final.

"I don't believe it. It's the ultimate feeling in my life. Marquette deserved this. We've had so many great teams in the past and came so close," said Ellis, who scored 14 points, grabbed nine rebounds and was named to the all-tournament team along with Whitehead and Lee.

Lee, who scored 19 points, was named the tournament's outstanding player.

The triumph also was a last hurrah for Marquette Coach Al McGuire, who is retiring after 20 years of coaching.

"It's such a great feeling. Everybody in the world is watching and everything is beautiful right now," said Ellis. "As a freshman, I was younger and didn't really know what the NCAA championships really meant. Now I know."

Lee, a junior, said he was pleased that McGuire went out a winner but that they did not just win it for him. "We tried to win for everybody," he said. "We're No. 1, we're the champions, and that's all that counts."

Freshman Mike O'Koren of North Carolina, who scored 14 points, jammed in eight points at the start of the second half, triggering an 18-4 spurt that gave the Tar Heels a 45-43 lead after they had trailed 39-27 at half-time.

"I thought we had it won at that time," he said. "I knew we were going to come back, but I didn't expect it to be that quick. I knew once we got the lead we would go into the four corners and get them to chase us. But Marquette played the four corners smart. They laid back and didn't foul us."

All-American Phil Ford of North Carolina, hampered by an injured right elbow, said he did not want "anybody to quote me as saying that my elbow affected my play out there or cost us the game. But I feel that I have been useless to the team for the last two games."

Ford scored 12 points in Carolina's 84-83 victory over Nevada-Las Vegas in the semifinals and only six against Marquette.

"Marquette has a great team," said Walter Davis, who led the Tar Heels with 20 points. "We knew that it would be a 40-minute game tonight. The breaks just didn't go our way though."

Lee named NCAA MVP

ATLANTA (AP) — Butch Lee of national champion Marquette was named the outstanding player in the NCAA basketball championships Monday night.

Five others joined Lee on the all-tournament team chosen by sports writers and broadcasters covering the championships.

They were Bo Ellis and Jerome Whitehead of Marquette, Mike O'Koren and Walter Davis of North Carolina and Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell of North Carolina-Charlotte.

Davis and Whitehead tied for the fifth spot on the team.

O'Koren was the leading vote-getter with 133, while Lee had 123. But Lee received 80 votes in the separate MVP balloting, beating Ellis, who had 38.

MHS here today; Rebs in Abilene

Midland High entertains the hard-hitting Abilene Eagles at 4 p.m. today at the Memorial Stadium diamond while the Robert E. Lee Rebels hit the road to face co-leader Abilene Cooper's Cougars in the Key City in District 5-4A baseball games.

The Bulldogs blew a 6-0 lead against Big Spring Monday and finally lost to the Steers, 10-8, in a makeup game. The Steers share first place with Cooper with 2-0 marks.

Lee, meanwhile, was the only team along with San Angelo, that didn't play a makeup game Monday, but the Rebels and Bobcats will make up their game in Midland at 4 p.m. Thursday at the Lee diamond.

Midland will face the Abilene Eagles, who stand 11-1 on the year and most likely will see ace

Weldon Bragg who is 3-1 on the season.

The Bulldogs will go with Kevin Widner on the mound in trying to improve on a 3-11 season record and 0-2 loop reading.

Abilene is blessed with great team speed, having stolen 59 bases in 12 games this year. Herman Reece leads the way for the Warbirds on the base paths.

Lee, meanwhile, must win today in order to get back into the 5-4A race after losing to OHS last Tuesday in its league opener.

Permian entertains Big Spring and OHS is at San Angelo in other games today and victories by Lee and Permian would throw the race into a wild scramble.

Mike Richard or Craig Van Horn, a pair of talented junior pitchers, will face the Cougars today while Cooper will most likely send Steve Taylor to the mound. Taylor is 3-1 on the year.

Van Horn, Todd Clements, Richard and Craig Young pace the Rebel hit parade. Van Horn is hitting at a .432 clip while Clements is stinging the ball with a .535 average. Richard owns a .413 average and Young is hitting .412.

Brad Wright is also hitting well with a .385 mean.

Lee has a 10-6 season record and like most young teams, has been up and down all year long, but has great potential.

Shortstop Barry Russell leads the Cooper attack along with Randy Jones and Max Whiteley.

Abilene broke open a 3-3 deadlock with Permian Monday by scoring five the fifth to beat PHS runs in by the score of 11-3.

Reece hit a pinch-hit home run off Permian's Kimmy Watters in that big win.

Action continues Saturday with Lee traveling to Big Spring while Midland takes on San Angelo at home. In other games, Permian takes on Cooper in Odessa and OHS plays the Eagles in Abilene.

This year's race so far has featured some robust hitting and very little pitching.

Aggies topple Bears by 9-8

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — A three-run home run by outfielder Robert Verde in the bottom of the seventh inning helped Texas A&M win a 9-8 come-from-behind victory over Baylor in a South-west Conference baseball game Monday.

The Aggies were down 6-2 going into the seventh, but scored five runs on Verde's homer and a bases-loaded double by first baseman Kyle Hawthorne.

In the eighth, A&M added a couple of insurance runs, including a solo homer by catcher Buster Turner. The Aggies now have 37 homers this season to tie a school record for the most home runs in a season.

David Pleczynski, who is now 5-1, picked up the victory for A&M. The losing pitcher was Don Brazell, now 0-1.

The two teams were scheduled to play a doubleheader Monday, but because of field conditions that delayed the start of the game, the doubleheader was postponed until today.

A&M is now 11-2 in SWC play and 28-9 for the season. Baylor fell to 3-4 in conference play and is 18-7 for the season.

Midland High's David Johnston

Big Spring nips Midland, 10-8

By PAUL DOMOWITZ
R-T Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — As the man said: "Close but no cigar." The Midland High baseball team squandered away a six run lead and wasted a tremendous offensive performance by David Johnston, as the Bulldogs dropped their eleventh game of the season Monday afternoon, losing to Big Spring, 10-8 here at Steer Park.

It was also Midland's second straight District 5-4A setback, while Big Spring is still unbeaten in two starts.

Johnston, the Pack's left-handed hitting centerfielder, smashed two winded-sided opposite field home runs and drove in four runs, but it was all for naught, as the Steers countered with four homers of their own, including a pair by relief pitcher Charlie Vernon, and the clincher, a 350-foot seventh inning drive by Johnny Jones that broke an 8-8 deadlock, and gave Big Spring the win.

After jumping out to a 6-0 lead, Midland saw their hopes for an upset grow dim in the fourth and fifth innings, as Big Spring began battering starting Bulldog hurler Kevin Pearce and reliever Doug Atinipp, who took over for Pearce in the fourth. By the time the Pack's third pitcher, Larry Murphy finally retired Big Spring in the fifth, the Dog's six-run advantage was now a two-run deficit, as the Steers took the lead 8-6.

Scoring nothing in the sixth, but holding Big Spring in check as well, Midland came to the plate in the top of the seventh still two runs down. Pitcher Charlie Vernon, who had come in for Steer starter Mike Harris in the second inning, had held Midland scoreless since the third, when they got their last two unearned runs.

What had hurt them more than his throwing however, was his hitting. Since replacing Harris, Vernon ripped Bulldog pitching for four hits, including his two home runs, and drove in three runs. It was his two-run blast in the fifth, that finally put the Steers in the lead, 7-6.

But Midland refused to quit in the seventh. Johnston led off the inning with his second home run to narrow the gap to one, 8-7. Then, Rickey Goode managed a Texas League single into shallow right field, and Big pounded out an 11-3 season record of 8-4 and kept it in first place with Big Spring, a 10-8 winner over Midland High Monday.

Cooper took care of five Bronco pitchers during the rout in which the Cougs rapped out 14 hits. David Laurence led the attack with three hits including a double and two runs-batted-in.

The win gives Cooper a record of 11-1 on the year and a 1-1 loop mark while Pefman is now 7-5 and The Panthers only managed six hits off the slants of Byron Roberts with Bobby Riggs belting a triple for the losers.

Marquette nabs title over Heels

NCAA champion in history can claim that dubious distinction. At one point of the season, when Marquette dropped three straight games and skidded to a 16-6 record, McGuire all but gave up hopes of going to the NCAA playoffs in his last year.

"When we lost our third game at home and were going to a five-game road series, I'd given up," he said. But while McGuire was giving up hope, his players were not. Led by Ellis and Lee, the Warriors began playing more consistent ball toward the end of the season.

"Outside of my lucky suit, I don't know what caused it, except maybe the subs coming through," said McGuire. "Subs win tournaments for you. The subs must always play over their capabilities."

THE WARRIORS won four straight games before a season-ending, one-point loss to Michigan. Their 20-7 record was not McGuire's brightest, but it got him into the NCAA playoffs for one last fling.

Now at the top of their game, the Warriors humiliated a good Cincinnati team 66-51 in the opening of the Midwest Regional playoffs. Prophetically, substitutes helped McGuire win the next two games—67-66 over Kansas State and 82-68 over Wake Forest.

That last victory secured the Midwest title and got the Warriors into the final four. Still, it was hard convincing everybody that they belonged there.

"Everyone who plays us wonders how we beat them," said McGuire. "People look at Marquette and they always think they're better. But we do what we must to win. We take away the other team's rhythm."

That was what happened in Saturday's semifinals against North Carolina-Charlotte. The Warriors dictated the tempo throughout and escaped with a typically breath-taking 51-49 victory on a last-second shot by Whitehead.

"We never blow out a team," McGuire said, "that's just our style."

While Marquette was frustrating North Carolina-Charlotte, North Carolina was doing the same to Nevada-Las Vegas. The Tar Heels edged the Runnin' Rebels 84-83 in the semifinals, setting up Monday night's intriguing title game.

It proved to be the perfect going-away present for a coach who had just about everything else.

Randle punches his way out of job with Texas

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Disgruntled second baseman Lenny Randle punched his way out of a job Monday, decking his Texas Rangers manager, Frank Lucchesi, with what one witness called "a vicious attack" that left Lucchesi in a hospital with a concussion and a fractured cheekbone.

Randle had been grousing about losing the second base job to rookie Bump Willis. He said he walked over Lucchesi on the field before an exhibition game to talk about it and Lucchesi referred to him as a "punk."

Randle decked Lucchesi with one punch, a witness said, then continued to rain blows on the helpless 49-year-old manager. Shortstop Bert Campaneris broke up the beating, and outfielder Ken Henderson had to be restrained by teammates from going after Randle.

"I had one hand in my pocket and the other one by my side," Lucchesi said from a hospital bed. "I was looking down at the ground. I never saw or knew what hit me."

Later, a subdued Randle told sportswriters, "I never thought it would come to this. I'm just not that kind of person."

Ranger owner Brad Corbett suspended Randle when he learned of the incident. The 28-year-old Randle's suspension will be the subject of a hearing among Ranger executives.

Nevada-Las Vegas wins consolation tilt, 106-94

ATLANTA (AP) — "It was nice to win, ending the season on a winning note, but I still don't like the consolation game idea," Coach Jerry Tarkanian said after Nevada-Las Vegas beat North Carolina-Charlotte 106-94 for third place in the NCAA basketball championship.

Charlotte Coach Lee Rose does not much like a game for two losers, either, because "you come down here to win the championship and when you lose, it's tough to come back."

In spite of their feelings, the Monday night game was hard fought and fast-paced. The 200 points by both clubs broke the consolation game record for most points, set last year when UCLA beat Rutgers 106-92 at Philadelphia. The 83 field goals by both teams also broke the UCLA-Rutgers record of 82.

The Omni was half-filled and the cheerleaders appeared listless at the start of the game. But the crowd got interested in a hurry as the free-wheeling offenses got untracked.

Charlotte took a 55-50 halftime lead, but tired late in the second half and could not keep up with the quickest shooting and highest scoring college team in the nation.

"The sad thing about the whole thing is a kid like Eddie Owens crying," said Tarkanian of his 6-foot-7 senior who sparked the Rebels with 34 points.

"I always play to win, that's the way I was brought up. I just try to let it rub off on the rest of the team. I have a lot of pride and respect for the game," said Owens, who explained the tears were because "we could have been playing for the title. But that's all behind me now. I'm just going to look to the future."

Center Cedrick Maxwell and freshman guard Chad Kinch led Charlotte with 30 points apiece. Maxwell also had 16 rebounds and was named to the all-tournament team.

"Winning the game is what counts," said Maxwell. "I'm down right now after the loss, but I'm trying to take the loss like a man should and I'll just hope to go on to bigger and better things."

Tarkanian, usually fidgety and nervous before a game, said he was not Monday—until the contest began. "But once the game starts, every coach gets wrapped up in it."

Sixty-eight teams ready for '77 Slow Pitch play

A record 68 teams will open the Midland Slow Pitch softball season April 4 and a new league has been formed to bring the total to six.

Jack S. Dixon is president of the Midland Softball Association for 1977 with Ken Overstreet as vice-president and Bob Garrett, secretary-treasurer.

Among the season's highlights will be the July 4 Tournament with teams expected from Amarillo, Abilene, San Angelo, Lubbock and Clovis, N.M. Midland also will host the state and regional tournaments.

Among improvements at Hogan Park's softball diamond complex this year will be new dugouts at two fields, protected playing areas and new paint jobs on the facilities.

Parker off to great start in exhibition season

By The Associated Press

Dave Parker has an ambition. "I'd like to win the triple crown before my career is over," said the slugging outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "I mentioned it once or twice in the clubhouse, and some of the guys made jokes about it. But I don't think it's a joke."

THE IDEA of leading the National League in batting average, home runs and runs batted in, all in the same year, is beyond the realm of imagination for most baseball players. But not the 6-foot-5 Parker, who combines power, speed and a good batting eye.

"One of these years, I'm going to hit a lot of home runs," said Parker. "That's the year I can win the triple crown. I know I'm capable of hitting .350 and driving in a lot of runs."

Parker hit .313 with 13 homers and 90 RBI last year and looked to be in midseason form in an exhibition game Monday. He belted a home run, a double and two singles, driving in four runs, leading the Pirates past the Chicago White Sox 6-4 in 12 innings.

PARKER'S FIFTH home run of the spring came in the ninth inning and tied the score 3-3. The Pirates scored in the top of the 11th on Bill Robinson's sacrifice fly, but the White Sox tied it in the bottom of the inning on Bob Coluccio's RBI double.

Parker then drilled a two-run double in the 12th to win it.

It was a big day for hitting all around the exhibition circuit.

Milwaukee collected 22 hits off four Cleveland pitchers in posting a 16-9 victory, reaching Indians starter Jim Bibby for 12 hits and 11 earned runs in less than two innings. The Brewers belted five homers, two of them by Sixto Lezcano including a grand slam.

Home runs played big factors in other games.

Bobby Valentine's three-run blast highlighted a six-run eighth inning that lifted San Diego past California 11-10; Darrell Evans and Willie McCovey hit two-run homers in San Francisco's 9-5 victory over Seattle; Roger Freed's three-run shot in the seventh inning helped St. Louis beat Cincinnati 7-5; Ed Goodson's two-run homer keyed a seven-run rally in the eighth inning that carried Los Angeles past the New York Mets 9-8;

Jim Rice's three-run homer powered Boston to a 4-2 victory over Toronto; Jim Sundberg's ninth-inning homer gave Texas a 6-5 decision over Minnesota, and Art Gardner's 10th-inning blast lifted Houston over Montreal 9-8.

IN OTHER GAMES, Jerry Tabb's two-run single with two out in the 11th gave Oakland an 8-7 decision over the Chicago Cubs, rookie Tim Corcoran's RBI single in the 10th helped Detroit nip the New York Yankees 6-5, and combined on an eight-hitter as Kansas City blanked Atlanta 2-0.

McGuire tries hard to hide tears of joy

ATLANTA (AP)—The moment was too much even for the tough old street fighter. Al McGuire buried his face in his hands and tried to hide the tears of joy after his last hurrah.

"I sat there and thought of all the lockerrooms, the dirty jocks, the pals, and the other things that a New York street fighter knows when growing up," said the retiring Marquette coach.

McGuire climaxed his 20-year coaching career Monday night by directing the Warriors to their first NCAA basketball championship with a 67-59 victory over North Carolina.

McGuire, leaving coaching to enter the business world, got a fitting sendoff from the Warriors.

"We wanted to give him something special to remember," said center Jerome Whitehead, a catalyst in the Warriors' late-season rush that ended with the national title.

McGuire, a non-stop showman who ranks among the game's most entertaining figures, watched the Warriors weather a mid-season slump, then stage a whirlwind finish, winning 10 straight games, in becoming the first independent team in 11 years to win the NCAA title.

"It doesn't seem real," said McGuire. "You know you think about something like this, but ..."

To the end, the 47-year-old McGuire was a sight to behold, a rumbling volcano always on the verge of exploding.

Even a pregame motorcycle ride, his favorite pastime, did not help.

Three minutes into the game, he stormed off his sideline chair and kicked the scoring bench. He spent the rest of the game limping. But it did not keep him from directing traffic in his flamboyant style.

He roamed like a nervous cat. He shouted directions to his players, jawed at the referees and covered his eyes in pained agony when the Tar Heels erased a 12-point halftime deficit and tie the score.

"I tried to stop the avalanche the best way I could. I called two timeouts to try and stop their momentum," he said.

Marquette got a foothold in the final minutes, then used 14 free throws—23 of 25 for the game—to ice the victory.

"Right now I feel washed out," McGuire sighed afterward.

Guard Butch Lee, whose 19 points paced the Warriors, capsulized what the victory meant to McGuire.

"He had all those teams with great records but they didn't go very far. To give him something like this in his last season is a dream. When I saw him crying with five seconds left, I elbowed Bo Ellis. I didn't want him to miss it. It was great," said Lee.

"I'm not ashamed to cry, it's just that I don't like to in front of people," said McGuire, who spent 13 years at Marquette. "I don't usually get into the silklike situations."

He closed his 404-victory career on an ironic note. Twenty years ago his first college coaching job was at Belmont Abbey, N.C. College. He ended with victories over three North Carolina teams—Wake Forest, North Carolina-Charlotte and North Carolina—in winning the title.
