Bush raises funds for redecoration

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six years after the government spent more than $300,000 to create an official vice presidential residence, George Bush has raised $124,700 in private, tax-deductible donations to redecorate it.

The private donations are on top of $51,700 proposed in the 1982 budget to pay for repairs and new furnishings at the vice president's home.

Shortly after disclosure of the redecoration fund Tuesday, Bush's wife, Barbara, abruptly announced that no more money would be solicited.

"Mrs. Bush finds $125,000 a sufficient amount to refurbish the rooms," said Bush's press secretary Peter Teeley.

Teeley said the donations came from 18 individuals or couples — all described as friends of the Bushes. As tax-deductible contributions, they could cost the Treasury about $60,000 in lost revenue if the donors are in the top tax brackets.

Earlier this year, private donors, including many in the oil industry, contributed $822,641 to help redecorate the White House. Last week it was disclosed that first lady Nancy Reagan was spending $209,508 of that amount for new chinaware.

B.J. Pevehouse of Midland, Texas, president of Adobe Oil and Gas, an independent oil company, said he donated $10,000 to the vice presidential fund "because Mrs. Bush said (the house) was in bad need of repairs and it would be a patriotic thing to do."

A Republican, Pevehouse said he supports President Reagan's decision earlier this year to decontrol the price of oil, but he denied any hope of currying favor with the administration.

"I don't want nothin' and I don't need nothin'," Pevehouse said.

Another $10,000 contributor, Philip C. Walker of Austin, Texas, said he donated to the fund because "we felt the vice president's home deserved a little more appealing appearance than it has."

Teeley said 12 contributors had donated $10,000 each — the limit set by Bush — to refurbish the vice president's residence, located at the Naval Observatory on the city's embassy-lined Massachusetts Avenue. It is owned and maintained by the Navy.

"The vice president felt a $10,000 donation to the Navy was adequate," Teeley said.

Teeley said the funds will be used to touch up four public rooms in the residence. He said the rooms are used regularly for official entertaining and some "are worn and shabby.... You put 500 people through two or three rooms on a regular basis and they can do a lot of damage."

He said the improvements include painting walls, reupholstering and acquiring new furniture and carpets and repairing cracked walls.

The renovation fund is controlled by Midland, Texas, oil producer Earle Craig Jr. and his wife, Dorothy.

Craig, reached in Washington, said Tuesday: "My wife is in charge. I'm not involved at all." She was not available for comment.

The proposed budget for fiscal 1982 provides $51,700 to repair and refurbish the vice presidential quarters.

Guard to stage disaster drill

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

What would Midlanders do if there was a disaster?

What if there was a tornado, a flood, an air crash or a hazardous material spill?

How do we prepare for these possible situations?

Once a year, the Texas State Guard, a group of about 50-60 voluteers, simulate a situation to conduct a training exercise for such disasters.

On Sunday, from 1 to 5 p.m., the 403rd Military Police Battalion of the TSG will join the Midland Civil Defense and other Emergency Disaster Relief Agencies to practice emergency procedures for a hazardous material spill.

The State Guard Battalion is made up of units in Midland, Big Spring, Odessa, Andres and Monahans, and is a part of the the Fourth Military Police Group headquarted in Midland, commanded by Col. Kenneth R. Dawson of Midland.

Although no hazardous material or funes will be used in any part of the exercise, Major A.G. Adair, commander of the 403rd MP Bn. TSG, said the assumption will be that there might be an explosion and/or dangerous fumes released in the area.

He explained in West Texas, where countless materials are necessary in the finding of and production of petroleum products, there exists the ever-present danger of an accident that could cause serious situations involving dangers of explosions and harmful materials escaping into the atmosphere.

"We (TSG) need to train people to know how to handle situations if they should occur," Adair said.

The role of the TSG, according to Adair, is to protect property, save lives and provide emergency communications.

"Our role in this exercise is to support civil defense, provide crowd and traffic control, seal off and evacuate the area, and provide search and rescue opetations," Adair said.

However, he added that the exercise would not interfere with public movement. The TSG will go through the motions, but no one will be inconvenienced, he said.

The exercise will start at the Midland National Guard Armory on Lamesa Road, moving to Lee High School.

Adair said agencies, including TSG, must function quickly and efficiently if lives and property are to be saved. The TSG must have an on-going program of training to be able to cope with emergencies in the event they should happen, Adair explained, and this exercise will be part of that program.

Trustees to retain role on tax board

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Trustees of the Midland Independent School District decided to keep their dominant role on the Midland County Tax Appraisal Board, "even though we're all working together and it doesn't matter who appointed who."

In their regular meeting on Tuesday, board members unanimously agreed to maintain the controlling percentage of votes guaranteed them by the Texas Property Tax Code.

Dr. James H. Mailey, school superintendent, told the board a new statutory rule says only public schools, municipalities and counties are to be represented on a five-member appraisal board and favors proportioning voting privileges with the tax-levying power of the three governing bodies.

Under this law, Mailey said Midland College and Midland Memorial Hospital will not be able to enjoy their voting rights as they have done during the past two years.

With no voice in the election of members to the Midland County Tax Appraisal Board, the hospital and the college would be stripped of all involvement in the regulation of the county tax appraisal office.

MISD trustees decided to stay in accordance with the law instead of endorsing a Midland County resolution asking for a six-member board to be voted on equally by the six taxing bodies as it has been in the past.

According to the state law, the statutory ruling may be disregarded only if the MISD, the county, the city and Greenwood Independent School District unanimously agree to allow the college and the hospital to keep their voting rights.

With the MISD board members' motion to proceed in accordance with the law and their voting strength to be calculated by the tax appraisal office, MISD trustees will control 60 percent of the vote on the Midland County Tax Appraisal Board.

And, according to Parker Humes, president of the school board, they assume that will be three out of the five appraisal board members.

School trustee Ed Runyan said that since many people serve on several different boards in the interest of Midland anyway, it doesn't matter who is behind the election of any of these people.

"We are all working together and it doesn't matter who appointed who," Runyan said, adding that whoever is elected to the tax appraisal board will serve and represent all of Midland.

In other action, school trustees approved a recommendation by an advisory committee headed by Mailey and MISD Deputy Superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi Jr., naming the gifted and talented program in

Sharing his concern

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Tuesday confers with Polish Foreign Minister Jozef Czyrek, sharing the Reagan administration's concern with Polish problems.

Polish leader fears Soviets will end 'aid'

Compiled from wire reports

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Soviet Union may cut off Poland's economic lifeline if the Solidarity labor federation continues its campaign for political reforms, a leading Polish Communist warns.

Party Politburo member Stefan Olszowski said in a nationwide telecast Tuesday that if "anti-Soviet action or agitation" continues, "our closest ally...may begin to reconsider whether to continue helping us" or to supply Poland only what its limited exports can pay for.

Olszowski said if the Soviets cut off the exports the Poles couldn't pay for, shipments would be reduced 40 percent, from 4.4 billion rubles ($5.85 billion) this year to 2.7 billion rubles.

"The Soviet Union can manage without Polish supplies, but Poland cannot manage without Soviet supplies," he declared.

Poland gets all of its oil and most of its natural gas, cotton and iron from the Soviet Union. Olszowski warned that anyone trying to remove Poland from the communist system should realize "he is pushing the nation into the abyss of chaos, whose end he does not and cannot know."

The urgency of Olszowski's warning was emphasized by the arrival in Warsaw Tuesday of Soviet Deputy Premier Nikolai Baibakov, the Soviet economic planning chief, and a delegation to discuss economic cooperation between the two countries in 1982 and afterward.

Meanwhile, in the United States, Exiled Soviet dissident Andrei Donatevich Siniavsky said Tuesday he knows first-hand what protesters in Poland who differ from the Soviet Communist Party's line are risking.

But Siniavsky, 56, speaking at the University of Texas at Arlington, said he believes the Polish dissidents, led by the independent labor union Solidarity, have greater chances of successful protests than his fellow Russians have.

Siniavsky, former professor of literature in Moscow, spent seven years in a Russian concentration camp and was then banished forever from his native land. He said the Soviets called his work "slander," while he called it "freedom of thought."

"I'm following the events in Poland very closely. I'm very happy about what's going on," he said in an apparent reference to U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig's recent comments concerning U.S. interest in the resolution of Poland's problems.

PAP, the official Polish news agency, said today's talks would determine the volume of trade to be exchanged next year. "That would be tantamount to obtaining further important economic aid from the Soviet Union," it added.

The news agency also reported a Soviet military visitor, Gen. Anatoli Gribkov, the chief of staff of the Warsaw Pact forces. It said he met with the premier and defense minister, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, to discuss "problems of training and battle readiness of army troops."

The report said the atomsphere of the meeting was "friendly" but did not elaborate.

The Soviet Union, in response to resolutions adopted by Solidarity at its first national congress two weeks ago, demanded last week that the Polish Communist Party and government take "determined and radical steps" immediately to halt growing anti-Sovietism that it blamed on the independent labor union.

The Kremlin kept up its criticism of Solidarity with an attack in the government newspaper Izvestia on the union's resolution of support for free labor movements in other Soviet bloc countries.

"The provocateurs, whose activity is manipulated by intelligence services and subversive anti-communist centers of the West, have decided that the time has come for the export of counter-revolution," it declared.

Solidarity's leaders were meeting in Gdansk to draft an official response to the Soviet and Polish government attacks and to decide whether they would retreat when the union's congress resumes Saturday.

They announced one attempt to compromise with the government, a resolution saying the government should have the exclusive right to appoint the managers of state industries and businesses but the workers should have a veto. This was a reduction of previous demands that the workers have full power.

League to study Midland government

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Texas Research League members will come into Midland within the next few months and study ways the city government could become more efficient — at no cost to the city.

During a Midland City Council meeting Tuesday in City Hall Council Chambers, the council adopted a resolution for the league to undertake a study and make recommendations for improving efficiency and cost effectiveness of the city.

Chamber of Commerce President William Ortloff made the request, saying "the chamber recognizes the tremendous demands placed on the city staff with tremendous growth."

The league studied Corpus Christi city government "and made recommendations which could be helpful to Midland," he added.

The out-of-pocket expenses for doing the study will be picked up by the chamber, Ortloff said. That amount should hit between $15,000 and $20,000.

Two to three persons will be on the research team and should be in Midland by the end of the year, according to the chamber president. While the Corpus Christi study took nine months, Ortloff said this one should take three to six months, with the results available within nine months.

"THIS WILL GIVE an independent, outside look as to how the city government is organized and how to do the same functions in a more efficient manner," Ortloff added.

In an uneventful meeting which was not attended by the two councilmen who sit to the left of Mayor G. Thane Akins — Steve Davidson and Tom Sloan — the council approved a zone change on 18.32 acres of land on the northern edge of Saddle Club North.

Little opposition voiced to Energas rate request

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Only one citizen showed up Tuesday in City Hall to complain about the proposed rate hike by Energas.

The City Council held a public hearing on the matter at 4 p.m. in City Hall Council Chambers as part of its regular meeting. Energas has filed a request to raise gas rates by 18.9 percent. But Midland, along with the other 62 cities involved in the hike, has hired a group to study the request and draw up its own rate recommendations.

Ed Smead, who owns Aladdin House Furniture, claimed the gas company doesn't need to raise the rates as his bills already are higher this year than those of last year.

For June, July and August 1980, the combined gas bill was $1,408, Smead said. This year for the same three months the total was $2,015.

"The gas company said we were using more gas this year than last year. But we haven't added to the store. I can't see how they can get a 62 percent increase in my rates.

"It looks like they're getting their own rates without asking for an increase," he concluded.

The council recessed the public hearing until 5 p.m. Dec. 15, when the cities' report will be ready.

A request to expand the city's sewer system was made by Esmond-Haner, Inc., an engineering firm whose client will put in a major housing subdivision northeast of Green Tree Country Club. The developer is offering to pay $500,000 toward installing an 18-inch trunk sewer line from the east side of Lakewood Estates to Loop 250.

"We feel the immediate installation of the sewer trunk line is in the best interest of the city and this development due to the availability of sewer to the intervening lands for development and the approximate 10 percent yearly increase in construction costs," the report to the council from Esmond-Haner read.

This offer is being made, the firm added, with the understanding that the sewer trunk line would be installed by the time development begins in the spring of 1982.

Fred Baker, director of public works, told the council that, "From the proposed development pace, our facilities will be outstripped very soon. The biggest problem is getting right of way." He added that right of way is needed not only for the sewer line but also to install a storm drain.

This morning, Baker explained that Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc. are Umbrella weather expected

With cloudy skies and a chance of rain, Midlanders should be prepared to carry their umbrellas today through Thursday.

However, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport reported the expected showers will bring little changes in temperatures throughout the Permian Basin.

A tropical moisture from the Pacific continuing to push northward into West Texas and a series of upper level disturbances are the ideal conditions for a chance of rain, according the the weather service.

The forecast calls for cloudy skies through tonight becoming mostly cloudy Thursday with a 40 percent chance of rain today and tonight. A 20 percent chance of rain is predicted for Thursday.

The expected high temperatures through Thursday should be in the upper 80s with the low tonight in the 60s. The record temperature of 100 set in 1977 was a far reach fom Tuesday's 89-degree mark, and the overnight low of 65 did not come close to the record low of 47-degrees set in 1975.

Although no rain was reported in the last 24 hours, the rainfall this month is 1.68 inches and the 12.02 inches for the year. Southerly winds continue 10-15 mph today through Thursday, diminishing to 5-10 mph tonight.

Clerk's story had discrepancies

Police have arrested a 32-year-old store clerk who reported he had been held by two black men early this morning.

The clerk called police shortly after 5 a.m. and said the men had come into the store about 20 minutes earlier, pointed a handgun at him and forced him to turn over an undisclosed amount of money from the cash register and a safe.

He said he was then tied up with some electrical wire the men had brought with them. A customer came in after the men fled, the clerk said, and untied him. Discrepancies in the clerk's story resulted in a check of his car, where the money was recovered from the trunk, according to police, who said he would be formally charged with attempted theft later today.

Police Roundup

Three killed in boat accident

GALVESTON — A former Midland woman, her husband and a passenger were killed and another passenger injured in a freak boat accident here Sunday afternoon.

According to Galveston police, four people were aboard a 20-foot sailboat in a channel between Lake Madeline and Offats Bayou Sunday afternoon when the mast of the boat struck a live power line.

"Apparently one of the passengers, Ethan Ducat, was hoisting the main sail as the boat was being prepared to make a 180-degree turn, and was knocked into the water when the mast collided with the live wire," a police spokesman said. Ducat's body was recovered Tuesday.

Richard Miller, 28, and his wife, Brenda, 28, a former Midland resident, died as a result of an explosion caused by the mast hitting the power line which carried 7,200 volts of electricity. Miller died approximately an hour after the accident in a Galveston hospital and Mrs. Miller died Tuesday from injuries suffered in the explosion.

According to a spokesperson for John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, Richard Hillman, 24, the only survivor, was listed in fair condition Tuesday afternoon.

League to study Midland government

The change will allow Saddle Club Lake Addition to be developed.

This will give Midland its second private lake housing development with the first approved at the Sept. 8 meeting for an area northeast of Green Tree Country Club.

The lake addition plans, however, didn't meet the approval of all the residents in the Saddle Club development, which consists of two acres and more in the lots.

Harrell Feldt, attorney for Magnatex, which is the developer, explained that Scharbauer Draw runs through that piece of land. If left as is, about two houses could be put in there.

Under the new plan, the draw will be dug deeper and formed into small lakes, with 37 detached townhouses ringing the area. The houses will sell for $200,000 to $300,000, Feldt said. Pumps will be installed in the lakes to keep the water circulating, rather than as a home for mosquitoes.

Dick Rosebery, of No. 14 Saddle Club Drive, contended the 37 homes is too much density for piece of land.

"WHEN THE LOTS were sold to us, Magnatex told us only two homes would be built in that area; now it's 37. That land lies in the 100-year flood plan. And the lakes are a hazard for kids in the area. This is a callous disregard to the existing homeowners on the basis on which the land was sold to them," he charged.

In countering the charges, the attorney pointed to "the enormous prices that those one and two acres are. The community need has changed. For many years, there was a substantial demand for one and two acre lots. There is a greater demand now for smaller lots and smaller housing."

Feldt also pointed out that when the Saddle Club area was originated, it wasn't in the city limits and was sold on the theory of being country living. That area was pulled into the city limits about a year ago "and it's not going to be country living any more."

Calling the draw a wallow, Feldt continued, "Everyone will be better off with us providing first class housing than leaving it as a hole."

Despite the protesting Roseberys, Akins viewed the project "as a choice of doing something unique or leaving it." The council approved it 3-1, with Councilman Carroll Thomas dissenting.

IN OTHER ZONING matters, the council approved a townhouse concept by Giffert Alstrin for land on the south side of Neely Avenue and west of Midkiff Road. Cost of the houses will be $160,000 to $170,000.

On the other hand, Citizens Savings & Loan Association received the OK to change Phase 2 of Meadowpark development from a cluster concept to townhouses. Cost of the houses are exceeding what had been estimated, according to Ray Moudy, president of the institution. Phase 3 and 4 will be returning to the cluster concept, he added.

Although the council agreed there was a need for a convenience grocery store on a service road south of Interstate 20 and near County Road 1224 South, they couldn't come to grips with the request not conforming to the exact Neighborhood Service Center guidelines.

The request by T.C. Tubb and D. Anderson was prompted by the high number of mobile home dwellers moving into that area. Anderson pointed out that 300 to 400 families already live in the area and Tubb is developing mobile home spaces for another 300 families. In addition, down the road 130 acres are being developed for commercial purposes.

The council's contention is that this strip of land is zoned for industrial park, and they would like to see it developed in that manner. A grocery store would imply spot zoning, they told the two men.

They were instructed to plat the area with the mobile home development and their plans for a street system, and the council will study that before deciding on the convenience store at 2 p.m. Nov. 10.

And various street dedications in the unrecorded Carol Crest Addition, on the south edge of Midland, were accepted by the council. It also included another two blocks on Carol Lane after two landowners requested the extension.

David and Becky Coppinger of Corpus Christi have assumed the duties of houseparents at the problem-plagued Culver Youth Home, which has been closed since Sept. 6. The center is expected to be back in full operation this week. Since its closing, children — ages 10 to 16 — have been jailed while awaiting court disposition of their cases, which range from being runaways to felony theft and burglary charges.

Culver Youth Home to begin operation again

After being closed since early this month, the Culver Youth Home on North Lamesa Road will be back in operation by the end of the week, according to Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Loraine Miles.

Dave and Becky Coppinger of Corpus Christi have been hired as houseparents to replace a couple who quit Sept. 6 because of low pay and "burnout," said Miles.

The Coppingers have more than two years experience and will be responsible for the care of the building and up to 10 children per day — the maximum number allowed the problem-plagued facility, which opened Dec. 23, 1968, and is named after State District Judge Barbara Culver.

The average stay for houseparents was two years, according to Miles, who said lately the tenure has been less than a year. "The last three sets of houseparents stayed six to eight months."

At the heart of the problem is pay. Houseparents receive $950 a month per couple — plus room, board, utilities, a gas allowance and overtime pay. In addition, they receive the same fringe benefits afforded other county employees.

"But it's not enough to allow them to maintain a home elsewhere," said Miles. "So they're almost forced to stay here weekends and holidays," which leads to early job burnout.

The modern, well-maintained detention center serves as home for juvenile runaways and those having problems with the law. The average occupancy rate is four children — ages 10 through 16 — a day. Their typical stay is six days. The longest they can remain there by law is 10 days, unless a judge orders an extension.

"Shelter cases — children who have no home — are taken only in an absolute emergency," said Miles. "And they can stay only 48 hours."

The facility is funded totally by the county. This year's budget is $64,000. While houseparents provide counselling with personal problems, they aren't allowed to advise children on their legal difficulties.

Since the center's closing, youngsters have had to be jailed. Two boys, ages 13 and 14, are currently in the county jail on runaway, burglary and car theft charges.

A sheriff's spokesman this morning said he would attempt to have the youths transferred to the center today.

Meanwhile, Miles said county commissioners will be approached shortly with proposals for permanently solving the home's problems. The proposals include higher pay and possibly hiring two sets of houseparents who would work three and a half days a week per couple.

MISD trustees vote to retain role on tax board

Midland schools the GEM Program, standing for Gifted Education in Midland.

Board members approved and accepted with gratitude, according to Humes, a set of windscreens for the Lee High School tennis courts from the Midland Tennis Club. It has been a custom of the club to contribute to the tennis program in Midland whenever possible. Midland High School received windscreens from the club in 1980.

The board also approved the rental of the Alamo Junior High School auditorium to a church for a religious fund-raising concert.

The release of pledged securities, the financial statement as of Aug. 31, and personnel apointments, resignations and leaves of absence were also passed by the board.

School trustees heard a report from Mailey and Baressi on plans for implementing new supervision and evaluation requirements under Senate Bill 341. According to Mailey, Midland teachers used to be evaluated once every three years but under the senate bill they will be evaluated every year. Baressi stressed that the evaluations were a positive procedure designed for supervision purposes rather than as a means of dismissal.

A report from the MISD athletic department on ticket sales and attendance was also reviewed. Trustees noted that, as of yet, all games played in the Midland stadium have been won by Midland schools. The Midland High School game against Amarillo Tascosa brought in a total of $8,699 in ticket sales, while the Lee High School game with Snyder High School on Sept. 11, when heavy rains flooded many Midland streets, still brought in $7,172.

studying the sewer system and drawing plans for its expansion, size of lines and cost. The council is waiting for that report before proceeding with plans for expanding the system, he added.

Three major remodeling projects met with the council's approval and will be advertised for bids.

The first deals with building additional office space at Cubs Stadium. Lease agreement on that office will be held up until the operating lease agreement is signed.

Low bid of $46,800 for remodeling one room in Midland Center was rejected and the project will go out again for bids. Estimates had been far below that, said the council.

And the tax office on the second floor of City Hall will be remodeled when the people move out to be part of the Tax Appraisal District. Planning Department on the third floor will be moved into that area, along with the Finance Department. And the Planning Department's vacated area will be taken over by traffic and engineering departments.

The panel agreed to use the firm of Witte Energy to file for an energy grant that would allow the city to conduct an energy savings program. Dick Witte explained that the application needs to go in quickly as only six to 10 cities in Texas will receive the money.

McDonald Transit Associates was hired to file grant papers with the Urban Mass Transportation Administration for MidTran. Voting against that move was Carroll Thomas.

The city took no action on changing the makeup of the board for the Midland County Appraisal District after the school board earlier had decided to keep five members on it.

The council also approved on second reading a 10 percent increase in water, sewer and garbage rates. Total minimum bill now will be $16 a month and will begin Oct. 1.

Receiving special recognition from the council was Janet Hestwood. She was given a proclamation spelling out her volunteer work in setting up Midland Gold, a discount program for senior citizens in the Tall City.

Kleindienst found innocent on all counts

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Richard Kleindienst broke down in tears and sobbed, "I'm OK, I'm OK," as a Superior Court jury announced it had found him innocent on all 12 counts in his perjury trial.

Margaret Kleindienst sat with her arm around her husband's soulder as the bailiff read off the verdict on each count Tuesday night. Daughter Carrie, 22, was crying alongside her mother.

Kleindienst's son, Wallace, one of the defense lawyers, rushed to shake his hand.

"I'm glad it's over, and I will elaborate more tomorrow," the elder Kleindienst told reporters.

The jury, which got the case earlier in the day, deliberated for nearly 8½ hours.

Jury foreman Dick Meaker, of suburban Scottsdale, told reporters the determining factor for the jury "was a lack of good evidence from the state."

Kleindienst, 58, the nation's chief law enforcement officer in 1972 and 1973, could have faced a maximum sentence of 100 years in prison if convicted.

A fertile female Mediterranean fruit fly was found Tuesday near Los Angeles, the first medfly find in three weeks. This "mugshot," magnifed 70 times by a scanning electron microscope, was provided by Dr. Judie Walton of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory.

After three-week break, another adult medfly found in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a three-week pause in discoveries of Mediterranean fruit flies in Southern California, a lone female fly has been discovered in the Los Angeles area.

County Agriculture Commissioner Paul Engler said the find Tuesday at Los Angeles International Airport could mean "either it (the medfly) was hitchhiking on an international flight or there is a new infestation in the airport area."

The adult medfly was found in a vehicle carrying fruit impounded by fruit inspectors at the airport, Engler said.

He said the fly, the first discovered in Southern California since Sept. 3, was being sent to Sacramento where state experts would examine it to see if it is fertile or is one of several sterile flies released near the airport as part of the attempt to breed out fertile flies.

Spraying of the pesticide malathion will take place again tonight in the 9-square-mile area around Baldwin Park where 46 medflies have been found since the initial outbreak occurred there five weeks ago, said Engler. Until Tuesday's discovery, no flies had been found in Southern California outside Baldwin Park.

A quarantine continued in a 105-square-mile area around Baldwin Park. No produce is to be taken in or out of that area, including home-grown fruits and vegetables. Agriculture officials have set medfly traps throughout the area to monitor any new infestation.

The medfly, which has plagued the San Francisco Bay Area since June 1980, was found in Los Angeles County Aug. 25, triggering the spraying and other eradication efforts.

The medfly infestation has threatened the $67-million export of California citrus to Japan, where authorities fear an outbreak of the destructive pest.

Foreigners control U.S. food market

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans are buying food daily at supermarkets and other retail outlets owned or controlled by foreign interests, the Agriculture Department says.

"Foreign investors are buying into the American food system, not by purchasing vast farm acreage, but by obtaining control of certain U.S. grocery, hotel and restaurant chains as well as food processing plants," the department said Tuesday.

One expert said high interest rates are attracting foreign investment in the U.S. food industry and the trend is likely to continue for some time.

A recent survey by the department's Economic Research Service showed that A&P, Howard Johnson, Stouffers and the International House of Pancakes are among grocery and restaurant chains now controlled by foreign investors.

Foreign companies own 14 U.S. food store chains outright and hold a partial share in nine others, based on the survey which was made in April 1980. Those companies in 1979 rang up combined sales of about $19 billion, nearly 11 percent of the total U.S. grocery sales, the report said.

Four of the grocery chains having foreign investment were nationally ranked, while the remainder were described as regional and local companies. The four leaders — which accounted for 80 percent of the $19 billion sales by all 19 — were identified as:

—The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. — A&P — had revenues of nearly $6.7 billion that year. A West German firm, the Tengelman Group, owns 45 percent of the chain.

—Grand Union Co., owned wholly by Cavenham Ltd., a British firm. It had sales of $3.9 billion in 1979.

—Albertson's Inc., 9 percent owned by the Theo Albrecht Group-THS, West Germany. Sales totaled $2.8 billion in 1979.

—National Tea Co., 84 percent owned by Lobaw Companies Ltd., Canada. Sales were reported at nearly $1.8 billion.

Naaman Seigel, one of the analysts who worked on the survey, said foreign investment in U.S. agricultural land has received the most publicity but that records show less than 0.5 percent of the farmland is owned by foreigners.

"At least 15 foreign firms own food stores in the United States," Siegel said. "These parent firms are located in five European countries, plus Canada. West Germany is the leading source of foreign investment, with six parent firms."

The others are the United Kingdom, Belgium, the Netherlands and France, he said.

"Many firms turn to the large U.S. food retailing market because of restrictive regulations in their home country," Siegel says in another report on the subject.

Record production of rice forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record rice production is expected this year, spelling "sharply lower prices" for farmers, the Agriculture Department says.

Current estimates put the crop at 178.6 million hundredweight, up from last year's 145.1 million. About 16.5 million hundredweight were left over when the new marketing year began on Aug. 1, down from 25.7 million a year earlier.

"Even with the low carry-in, the projected supply of 195 million hundredweight would be the largest ever for the United States," the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday in a new outlook report.

"This year's crop is being harvested from a record 3.8 million acres, an increase of over 500,000 from a year ago," it said. "The sharp rise is largely a result of high rough-rice prices and falling soybean and cotton prices last spring."

As a result, producers turned more heavily to rice this year.

"Increased production in major rice-importing countries could cause U.S. exports to decline this season," the report said. "In particular, output in South Korea — our leading customer last season — is expected to rebound sharply."

For the 1981-82 year, rice exports could be about 83.5 million hundredweight, down from a record 91.4 million last season. Domestic use could increase slightly to around 56.5 million hundredweight from 54.5 million in 1980-81.

By next Aug. 1, the rice stockpile could be about 51.7 million hundredweight, more than triple what it was this Aug. 1, the report said.

The average farm price of rice over the entire year is expected to average $9 to $11 per hundredweight, compared with $12 the past season.

Storage space adequate for wheat, corn crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite record harvests of wheat and corn indicated for this year, storage space is more than adequate, the Agriculture Department says.

However, an updated survey shows that seven of 15 states previously selected for close scrutiny now are expected to have at least 80 per cent of their storage capacity filled by Nov. 1. In July, a survey showed that only three of the 15 — Colorado, Kentucky and Tennessee — were likely to reach the 80 percent mark.

"Storage is likely to be especially tight in Colorado and only slightly better in Kentucky, Tennessee and the Corn Belt states," says analyst T.Q. Hutchinson in a new Agricultural Outlook report.

"In general, producers in the Corn Belt — particularly Iowa, Missouri, Ohio and Illinois — will find storage relatively tight, while those in the Wheat Belt will have adequate storage. Of course, changes in export demand or actual production could markedly affect this picture."

The selected states and the Nov. 1 projections showing how much storage will be filled include:

Colorado, 94 percent; Kentucky, 91 percent; Tennessee, 86 percent; Iowa, 85 percent; Missouri, 84 percent; Ohio, 83 percent; Illinois, 80 percent; Minnesota, 70 percent; Montana, 70 percent; Washington, 70 percent; Nebraska, 63 percent; Texas, 59 percent; Kansas, 53 percent; North Dakota, 42 percent; and Oklahoma, 35 percent.

Soviet, Chinese grain sales reported by firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says private exporting companies have reported new sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union and China.

An additional 300,000 metric tons has been bought by the Soviets for delivery in 1981-82, the sixth year of a long-term supply agreement with the United States, officials said Tuesday.

The grain included 150,000 tons of corn and 150,000 tons of wheat to be delivered in the year that will begin on Oct. 1.

Officials said the latest orders raised to 6.85 million tons of grain that the Soviet Union has bought under terms of the agreement's sixth year, including 3.3 million wheat and 3.55 million corn.

Big, big D stands for depression

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

"Bad language or abuse, I never, never use,
"Whatever the emergency.
"Though 'Bother it' I may occasionally say,
"I never use the big, big D...."

When Captain Corcoran sings these words in Gilbert and Sullivan's "HMS Pinafore," the big, big D stands for a nasty word. It may be "Drat." Or "Doggone." Or "Deleted expletive." Or some other oath.

But today, more and more economists and analysts are throwing around another big, big D. It stands for Depression.

Some fear it, for valid reasons. Some fear it for silly reasons. Their fears deserve discussion.

First, there are the market analysts who fear that disinflation (falling inflation) will unravel into deflation (falling prices), and the snowball will quickly become an avalanche, and a period of extremely sharp and painful economic contraction will follow, largely because we have reached the point at which inflation can no longer be the vehicle by which the nation handles its huge debt load.

Richard Russell and New York's T.J. Holt have been among the major exponents of this position, and their reasoning is solid — but the scenario doesn't have to take place.

Ashby Bladen, a superb columnist for Forbes, takes a very similar point of view. He sees the debt load causing massive strains in the international monetary apparatus — strains that may push us over the precipice.

Bladen's latest Forbes column begins with this pithy observation: "Anyone who still believes inflation can be brought under control gradually and painlessly, without a financial crisis and a severe break in the securities market, deserves the losses that those markets will continue to inflict upon him."

Richard Day, professor of economics at the University of Southern California, added another twist: Day says he believes that President Reagan must drastically reduce government spending to compensate for the tax rate cut. "The danger is that the cutbacks needed are so massive that they could trigger a depression," said Day.

Day says he believes that "Mr. Reagan is beating the horse and pulling at the reins at the same time." The president can't cut taxes and support the Federal Reserve's tight money policy without cutting government spending deeply,says Day. He suggests that defense spending be cut.

Most economists say that the president can't have his tax rate cut and defense spending boost and continue to support the Fed's tight money policy at the same time.

Yes, spending cuts are urgently necessary. But thoughtful economists suggest that the cuts should be in the non-defense, or so-called "social" spending areas, where the bulk of expenditures are counterproductive and anti-productive.

Some of the "big, big D" talk is merely scare talk. It comes from special interests who want to force the Federal Reserve to cave in and start the monetary printing presses rolling again. Some of these critics are simply uninformed.

They don't realize that if the Fed turns on the printing press, inflation will result.

Others are fully aware of what will happen, but they want to make a fast buck in real estate or the bond market, and "big, big D the consequences." Those people should be ignored.

The Fed should create at least enough money to accommodatethe growth which should result from the supply-side tax rate cut, but no more than that. Its monetary growth-rate targets should continue to be restrictive. But it should at least give the tax rate cut a chance to work.

Beyond that, Mr. Reagan should charge ahead on his present course. He must propose further massive cuts in non-defense spending, and the Congress must go along.

Abolishing the Department of Education, Department of Energy and the food stamp program would be a good start. In my opinion, Mr. Reagan's strategy is to reverse — exactly — the crazed economics path which got us into this mess.

He wants us to back out the same door we were shoved in. The liberals got us into this by spending first, then raising taxes when the deficit rose.

Although he has not admitted it, Mr. Reagan wants to cut taxes first, then cut spending when the deficit rises. If the tax rate cuts provide the pleasant surprises which the supply-side economists promise, then the deficit won't rise so much, and the task will be easier.

The thoughtful, logically consistent "big, big D" Cassandras may be right. It's a risk we take. The possibility of the "big, big D" has been with us for 20 years. The pain we face in the next few years may be worse than we now anticipate. But Mr. Reagan's program is essentially sound. He proposes to cut taxes, cut non-defense spending and hold down money and debt growth.

Long-range, that is precisely the right prescription. Short-range, trying to achieve them all at once may be wrenching. But proceed we must. "Big, big D the torpedoes."

VDTs no more dangerous

TORONTO (AP) — Video-display terminals are no more dangerous than black and white television sets, according to a report in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Dr. Ernest Letourneau, director of the federal health department's radiation protection bureau, wrote that the units, widely known as VDTs, emit no X-rays and present no radiation hazard.

Letourneau said his findings are based on 10 years of studying television sets and VDTs, including studies of radiation in more than 200 different kinds of video-display terminals.

VDT units consist of a television screen attached to a typewriter keyboard, both linked to a computer.

The proliferation of the units in recent years has led to "much unnecessary concern, particularly among women, that VDTs could be detrimental to the health of the operator and, in the case of a pregnant woman, her fetus," said Letourneau.

Judge's ideas seem like heresy

By SCOTT M. BUSHNELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The ideas, some of which sound very radical, come pouring forth from the West Virginia Supreme Court justice.

But while some of the beliefs advanced by Richard Neely seem like heresy, they are usually well thought out positions.

For instance, he writes in his book, "How Courts Govern America":

— All branches of government lie.

— Judges are easily believed because they wear black robes and thus resemble priests.

— Lawyers "who take seriously the recent U.S. Supreme Court historical scholarship as applied to the Constitution also probably believe in the Tooth Fairy and the Easter Bunny."

Neely, who served as chief justice in 1980 in West Virginia's rotating system, says his book is one of the first to analyze the courts' role in the U.S. political system and bring some understanding to constitutional law.

"Courts are the least well understood part of American government," the West Virginia jurist said on a recent visit to New Haven. "And they are the central institutions which make democracy work."

Constitutional law, Neely writes, "concerns the ordering of this country's economy, social structure, and political process according to the mandates of written state or federal constitutions which limit the power of government." By interpreting these constitutions, the courts govern America, he says.

In his book he looks at the interpretation process, the powers of the three branches of government and the potential for reform. The 39-year-old justice is often frank to the point of being blatant.

When discussing the power of the courts, he writes:

"All branches of government lie, and so do judges. A government which promises simultaneously to expand energy production, deliver adequate medical services to everyone, provide a comfortable living to the aged and infirm, control pollution, revamp the national transportation network, provide free and limitless schooling, develop the Third World, allocate 5 percent of gross national product to new housing, protect all of the stupid and lazy from themselves, maintain parity in all weapons systems, and increase net disposable income — all without increasing taxes — is obviously lying, yet this is typical campaign rhetoric."

"Where democracy is working, democracy ought to be permitted to work," he said. "Courts should intervene only where democracy is not working."

The native of Los Angeles is as frank about his career as he is in his evaluation of the political system. He freely acknowledges that he decided to run for the West Virginia court when he realized he couldn't defeat the incumbent U.S. senator.

At 31, he was the youngest judge of a court of last resort in the English-speaking world. A graduate of Dartmouth College in 1964 with a degree in economics, Neely gained his law degree from Yale. He served in Vietnam as an artillery captain and earned the Bronze Star.

Ills of the economy

General Motors Corp. has found a new gimmick designed to help it rid itself of some cars and some homes — both of which haven't been selling too readily since the economy began to go sour and interest rates began to climb.

GM's innovative program features "free" cars with home purchases. It's called "Buy a House — Get a Car." And it works just that way! The company found itself encumbered with about $10 million in residential real estate holdings in the Detroit area acquired from GM employees who were transferred to other areas. It needed to liquidate those holdings, so the car "give-away" program was devised for Detroit.

The company isn't really giving cars "free" with the purchase of the homes, of course. But homebuyers are given the option of keeping the car that comes with the home they choose or deducting the value of the car from the home's purchase price.

"What better incentive can you offer to a homebuyer than a new car?" said Robert D. Burger, vice president in charge of GM's sales and marketing staff.

Well, while we are impressed by GM's creativity in devising this novel approach for dealing with two "problem" commodities in these rough economic times, the answer to Mr. Burger's question would be "A reasonable interest rate."

The cost of borrowing money has forced most individuals out of the marketplace, evidenced by the sagging sales in both automobile and new home industries. That's the story in most parts of the nation, with the notable exceptions being places like Midland where the economy remains healthy.

Granted, General Motors' situation may be an unusual one particularly suited to the double-attraction approach. But it's a sad commentary on the nation's economy when such an approach is necessitated.

The effort has been made at turning the nation's economy around. For the sake of all industries, we hope the remedy is a successful one.

MacArthur's corridor

The naming of a corridor in the Pentagon for General of the Army Douglas A. MacArthur is a long-overdue honor for one of America's greatest soldiers.

Corridors previously had been named for two other generals of the Army, Dwight D. Eisenhower and George C. Marshall. But when General MacArthur's name came up for a similar memorial a few years ago, former secretary of Defense Harold Brown rose to object.

His objection stemmed from the fact that the commander of military forces in Korea was dismissed for insubordination by President Truman in 1951. The objection was sustained until the other day, when Douglas MacArthur got his due.

Dedication of the memorial corridor was a happy occasion, with the general's widow, Jean, present. President Reagan accompanied her, and called the general "an authentic American hero." Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger saluted the great soldier, describing him as a "dauntless patriot and an extraordinary soldier."

General MacArthur was a dedicated and aggressive fighter, which is what got him into trouble with President Truman. Soldier MacArthur thought there was no substitute for victory, and wanted to bomb Chinese sanctuaries north of the Yalu River. His commander-in-chief said no, and the commander-in-chief was the one who won.

Regardless of that episode, no one can fault Douglas MacArthur for his patriotism, courage, and the way he risked his life in two world wars so his country would be a freer and happier place in which to live. His is a story unmatched in our military history.

WASHINGTON'S MERRY-GO-ROUND

Puccio unfit for U.S. attorney's post

WASHINGTON — The proposed appointment of ABSCAM prosecutor Thomas Puccio as U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia is an outrage.

Jack Anderson

In recent columns, I have detailed the sleazy tactics Puccio used to trap members of Congress in the FBI's fake influence-peddling scheme. After directing the legislators' incriminating videotape performances from behind the scenes, Puccio emerged to take on the high-visibility role of grand inquisitor at their trials.

His apparent reward for successfully terrorizing Congress is to be named to the nation's most prestigious prosecutor's post.

One of the most disturbing aspects of Puccio's handling of ABSCAM was his willingness — nay, eagerness — to use a convicted con man named Mel Weinberg to reel congressional targets into the FBI's net. He knowingly allowed Weinberg to enrich himself improperly in the process.

Now my associate Indy Badhwar has seen a confidential Justice Department memorandum that suggests Puccio's buddy-buddy relationship with a known criminal was not a onetime aberration. In fact, he was himself the target of a quiet FBI investigation in 1975 stemming from charges that he leaked secret grand jury documents to a notorious heroin smuggler who was then in federal custody.

The drug dealer, Hovsep C. Caramian, was suspected of having smuggled literally tons of heroin into the United States. While he was in custody and supposedly cooperating with the government, Drug Enforcement Administration agents suspected that he was continuing to traffic in narcotics.

The DEA agents raided Caramian's room and discovered two footlockers crammed with secret government documents. These documents included grand jury transcripts, customs investigative files, informant debriefings, the names of special agents and franked, postage-paid envelopes from the U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of New York.

Puccio was the assistant U.S. attorney for that district. Caramian told the DEA that documents, including secret grand jury transcripts, were slipped to him by Puccio "so that he would be more effective in identifying narcotics traffickers," according to the Justice Department memo.

Caramian also said that Puccio allowed him to make numerous telephone calls from various government "safe houses," charging the calls to the U.S. attorney's office.

The Caramian-Puccio investigation was turned over to the Justice Department, where it was quietly interred. In response to an inquiry from my office, Puccio claimed he had no memory of being under investigation during the 1975-1976 period.

If Congress has not completely lost its instinct for self-preservation, it should conduct a thorough investigation of Puccio before he is allowed to bring his questionable tactics to the nation's capital.

In addition to the Caramian connection, here is some documented misbehavior by Puccio in the ABSCAM operation that Congress should look into:

— Weinberg, the FBI's paid talent scout and drama coach, extorted expensive gifts from some of the sting operation's targets. When two prosecutors reported his misconduct to the Justice Department, top officials met with Puccio and discussed ways to cover up Weinberg's outrageous behavior. The two complaining prosecutors were taken off the case.

— Robert C. Stewart, the Justice Department's crime strike force chief in Newark, N.J., accused Puccio of misleading him about the investigation of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J. In an internal memo, Stewart wrote that Puccio told him the senator had acknowledged having a hidden interest in a titanium mine that was at the core of his ABSCAM trial. "Many months later, when we finally obtained the tapes, the situation proved to be quite different," Stewart wrote. "Williams did not say that he had an interest, hidden or otherwise — only that he was interested."

— When Williams was offered a bribe before the hidden ABSCAM cameras and indignantly refused, he then started to explain why it would be illegal. This explanation — which would have destroyed the prosecution's case if allowed to proceed — was cut short by a phone call to the FBI's phony Arab sheik. The call was from Puccio, who had been monitoring the meeting from another room. The undercover agent was instructed to change the subject. Puccio didn't want the videotape marred by any exculpatory statements from Williams.

HEADLINES & FOOTNOTES: Donald Woods, a white South African newspaper editor who fled his homeland, believes that recent Reagan administration actions have given the United States a black eye in the Third World.

What he's referring to are the recent U.S. veto in the United Nations of a resolution condemning South Africa and the current tour of the Springbok rugby team in this country. The team is virtually all-white — it has one token black player, even though the integrated South African Rugby Union boasts 236,000 black "ruggers."

Woods predicted that the U.N. veto and the Springbok tour will "negate all the brownie points the United States won in the Third World when the Soviets invaded Afghanistan."

— Poland's economic crisis has created a nationwide black market for hard foreign currency as the zloty becomes increasingly worthless. Poles are willing to pay up to eight times the official rate to obtain dollars, pounds or German marks. The contempt in which zlotys are held was graphically illustrated recently when an American journalist was mugged in a small southern Polish city. The muggers took $230 in Western currency — and left 6,000 Polish zlotys behind.

Good news from Russia isn't good

The only good news story I could find in the paper last week was that the Russians are suffering from two-digit inflation also.

Art Buchwald

The state informed the people that it was making dramatic price rises, doubling the price of gasoline, informally rationing food, increasing by 17 to 25 percent the price of tobacco and vodka and raising the cost on many consumer goods, so it would be impossible for the average Soviet citizen to buy them.

You can imagine what the Soviets are saying in the confines of their homes.

"Minka, did you hear what Comrade Glushkov, chairman of the State Pricing Commission, said in his speech on television tonight?"

"I fell asleep after the first three hours. What did he say?"

"They're raising prices on everything because of inflation. It's outrageous. I think I'll write a letter to Comrade Brezhnev and give him a piece of my mind."

"Are you crazy, Misha?"

"I didn't say I'd MAIL the letter. I said I'd just write it."

"But somebody could find it and then you would be in serious trouble."

"Maybe you're right. I think I'll bring it up at our next union meeting."

"We don't have unions, Misha."

"Well, we can't just sit here and let the state double the price of gasoline without saying anything."

"Why not, Misha?"

"Because this is a free country and Lenin said every worker must speak his mind."

"Misha, how many times have I told you Lenin is dead?"

"No matter, his teachings live on. How can the average person in the Soviet Union live if they keep raising the prices on everything?"

"By not saying anything, Misha, that's how."

"I'll tell you why we have inflation. It's because of all the money they're spending on weapons. The military gets anything it wants. No one questions any request the military makes. The Politburo thinks it can solve every defense problem by throwing money at it. I think we should organize a protest meeting in front of the Kremlin and demand a large cut in military spending."

"Why don't you do that, Misha? You've never seen Lubianka prison."

"Make fun of me, woman, but I'll tell you something. The leaders of the Communist Party are a bunch of idiots. They haven't been able to deliver on one thing they've promised us. I say in the next election we throw the rascals out."

"Misha, that's your second bottle of vodka. At the new prices you've just drunk up two weeks' salary."

"That's it. We'll send a message to Moscow. If they can't manage the economy, we'll find somebody who can."

"Misha, have you been listening to the 'Voice of America' without telling me?"

"You know what's wrong with this country? You have a bunch of bureaucrats sitting on their tails, telling everybody what's good for them. Well, they don't know beans about what's good for us. Government spending is what's causing inflation and all these socialist experiments where people are rewarded for doing nothing."

"Misha, is there another woman in your life I should know about?"

"No, why do you ask?"

"Because you sound like you want to leave me and go somewhere to work in a labor camp."

"All right. So what you're really saying is that we should do nothing about double-digit inflation and miserable salaries, and a bunch of stupid planners who could lead us into the greatest depression in Russian history."

"Not necessarily. We could move to Siberia."

A CHANGING WORLD

Redesign of 'don't work' welfare program deserves a try

President Reagan, despite his startling victory in getting a budget-slashing bill through Congress, has and will continue to have budget and deficit problems.

John Pinkerman

Contributing substantially to these problems is the matter of welfare — waste, fraud and growth of a national malaise that creates a disinclination to work.

However, all may not be lost, particularly if Mr. Reagan and his welfare reform people have a serious chat with Leonard M. Greene, economist, mathematician, founder of a computer equipment corporation and president of the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies, a Westchester, N.Y., think tank.

Greene has spoken at length and across the country on his ideas, which simplify down to a theory of what he calls replacing welfare (and eliminating poverty) with something called Graduated Income Supplement. He even has written a book on the subject: "Free Enterprise Without Poverty," published by W.W. Norton and Co.

That his ideas have appeal is demonstrated dramatically by the fact that he enjoys the support of people of diverse political and economic thrusts such as Sen. Barry Goldwater, Arizona conservative, on the one hand and Benjamin L. Hooks, executive director of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People on the other, also liberal Democratic Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York and conservative business leader and corporate planner John Diebold.

Greene is no mere ivory tower theoretician. He went into the slums and the poverty belt for research and to work at all manner of menial jobs. And, he had a shocking experience with his own computer firm.

This experience had to do with his hiring of a black teen-ager and the six months expensive training that went with such a venture. The boy worked out well but after three months he suddenly quit the job with Greene's firm. Relating the story, Greene said, "Quietly and without trying to hide his disappointment, the boy told me a surprising story.

"His family lived in a crumbling building in the Bronx but for three years had had an application in for subsidized housing in a new development. Finally, word came that they were eligible."

However, there was one problem that typifies what is wrong with the results that welfare produces.

"The family," Greene said, "could earn no more than a fixed sum to retain its eligibility. If its members earned more, they would have to stay in their slum dwelling until they could buy their way out. The result was that the parents decided my young employee must quit his job so they could live better.

"I often wonder what happened to this boy, with all of his obvious ambition. He may be running numbers on the streets — or worse. But, I am certain that a good part of the current 38 percent unemployment among young blacks is due to this kind of work disincentive" — caused by welfare rules.

Greene has many other stories of a similar nature. They have to do with food stamp abuses and stupid rules, with aid to needy children and all the other ridiculous aspects of welfare.

He admits that the welfare bureaucracy and the millions it employs will fight his reform plan to the hilt but he justifies it on the basis of its features providing a work incentive, promoting the integrity of the family, offering uniform benefits, its integration with our tax system and the ease with which it might be administered.

"Every adult and, at a different level, every child," he proposes, "is to receive a taxable income supplement. The dollar value of that supplement will be reflected on the income tax return as a reduction of taxes owed. If the amount of taxes owed is less than the supplement, a cash refund will be made.

"A family with no income will receive the full amount of the supplement in cash payments. Because the supplement is taxable income, its net value is progressive in accordance with the graduated tax income.

"The GIS will not call for a determination of the assets or the needs of recipients. Its basic payments will be unrelated to any financial standard (thus reversing the disinclination to work promoted by welfare). However, thanks to taxation, it will operate as an income-related program."

Greene's plan would be financed through the partial or total phasing out of current welfare programs. Most of all, it would restore family dignity and, particularly, elevate once again the incentive and the urge to work by people like the black boy Greene wanted to help but who was caught up in a disgraceful "don't work" welfare system. Last, Greene's plan would take a significant welfare cost load off the backs of American taxpayers.

Greene deserves a full hearing of his ideas in the White House and anywhere else where the Reagan administration is struggling with the albatross that is welfare.

Licensing of reactor protested in Washington, D.C., too

By TOM EASTHAM
Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — "We have come 3,000 miles to let you know how terrified we are. We can't believe the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will issue a license for a nuclear plant only two and a half miles from an earthquake fault. It's an outrage — and we are frightened!"

The emotional words provided a human counterpoint yesterday to the technical droning just one block away as the NRC voted 5 to 0 to license the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant on California's central coast for fuel loading and low-power testing.

The words came from one of two attractive young San Luis Obispo mothers and homeowners — who said this was one Washington action they did not want to to take place without voicing some protest for their far-off community.

"It is too important to San Luis Obispo, to our families and our lives," said one.

Nancy Culver, 37, an ex-teacher and mother of a five-year-old girl who has lived in the 35,000-population coastal community six years, said polls showed a majority of citizens opposed to the controversial $2.2 billion plant in both San Luis Obispo County and Santa Barbara County--which she reminded listeners is "President Reagan's own county."

If permitted, she said, she would love to appear before the nuclear commission to present views from her small city ten miles south of the huge Pacific Gas & Electric Company twin-reactor plant that sits within the site of an earthquake fault first reported several years after construction began.

"I've been going through this for six years--like a giant pregnancy," Culver said. "I feel these people are rubber-stamping a decision that has already been made. If they can license Diablo Canyon they can license anything."

After sitting through years of NRC hearings she found them to be an exercise in futility, she said, with public health and safety far down the commission's list of priorities.

"It's not that they are evil, terrible people — I don't believe that," said Culver. "But they have spent their lives in nuclear. The NRC is a bureaucracy that depends on the life of the industry. We somehow have to separate this case — we have to get them to say there is a time to stop a plant and the time is now!"

Diana Griffin, also a teacher, is the mother of a seven-year-old boy and wife of a city councilman. She has lived in San Luis Obispo seven years.

"There are people in the community who are preparing to leave," she said. "Their houses are up for sale. We haven't made that decision."

Both women criticized the plant's plans for handling a nuclear emergency, and called their county's six-year-old plan shelved after the Three Mile Island accident in Pennsylvania "truly a joke."

"We live in a community with only one exit — we have only one highway out — we cannot evacuate," said Griffin, "But still the NRC is saying let's go!"

The women said that based on the NRC's record, they could only expect to lose the vote that would allow Diablo Canyon to fire up one of its twin reactors. After the five-member commission cast its unanimous decision, Culver commented:

"It was no big surprise, but it still shocks me to hear it. The decision flies in the face of massive amounts of technical evidence against licensing the plant.

Similarly, Griffin said she felt mostly "chagrin" but no particular surprise.

"They've again made feigning promises that they will look into it more before approving full power testing," she said. "But when the plant is radioactive it is radioactive and the danger is there.

"Once it's dirty, it's dirty--and it's going to stay that way for hundreds of thousands of years...."

Both women indicated they intend to continue their long and so-far losing battle.

"We'll go back home to California and regroup," said Griffin, "and get ready to carry on the fight. It isn't over for us."

Diablo Canyon forces dwindling

By STEPHEN FOX
Associated Press Writer

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities sent home 750 National Guardsmen and Highway Patrol officers as the number of demonstrators at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant dwindled to only a few hundred.

The number of arrests stemming from an attempted blockade of the plant rose to 1,493 Tuesday, topping the record 1,414 arrests set four years ago at a demonstration at the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear plant.

But the Abalone Alliance, a coalition of 60 groups that organized the non-violent protest, said it would continue the demonstration at the plant, operated by Pacific Gas & Electric Co. Local residents said they plan a separate march on the plant Sunday.

Following the arrest of 128 demonstrators Tuesday, only a few hundred people remained at the alliance tent campground, compared with more than 2,000 at the start of the protest last week.

San Luis Obispo County Sheriff George Whiting declined to say how many law enforcement people would remain at the site after the withdrawal.

"If things should once again escalate, we are well prepared to come back," said Glenn Craig, California Highway Patrol commissioner.

The demonstrators claim that nuclear power is unsafe, especially at Diablo Canyon which lies halfway between San Francisco and Los Angeles and is near an offshore earthquake fault. The protesters also say PG&E has not developed a suitable plan to evacuate people living around the plant in the event of a radiation release.

Protesters again attempted to block workers from entering the plant's main gate Tuesday. As in past days, demonstrators stood in groups holding hands to block buses of workers, and police moved in to ayrest them.

The alliance also said seaborne assaults on plant property resumed Tuesday after a weekend lull. A half-dozen craft landed 15 people on a beach near PG&E property, outside the restricted "safety zone" set up by the Coast Guard to keep protesters away. They were soon arrested.

About 500 people remained in custody Tuesday, as arraignments continued. Those who pleaded innocent will not be tried for some time, said Bob Foster, a deputy state attorney general helping with the backlog.

Among those arraigned Tuesday was rock star Jackson Browne, who spent four days in jail after his arrest as he joined arms with other demonstrators to blockade the $2.3 billion plant's main gate Friday. Browne stood up with a group of people, pleaded "no contest" and was fined $120. They were given credit of $30 a day for the time already spent in jail.

Water pumped from crippled TMI reactor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — For the first time since the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant was crippled in March 1979, thousands of gallons of highly radioactive water are being pumped out of a building that contains the damaged reactor.

TMI spokesman Doug Bedell said Tuesday that engineers began pumping 15,000 gallons of water from the building's basement at 4:14 p.m. and expected to finish before Thursday.

He said the water was being transferred into a holding tank as the "final step" before it can be processed, possibly later this week, in a newly built underwater facility designed to remove most of the radioactivity.

Bedell said it was the first significant amount of contaminated water to be removed from the structure since it was flooded in the March 28, 1979, accident, the nation's worst at a commercial nuclear plant.

"Getting that water out and processed is a major milestone both to the safety of the public and the safety of our employees," said Philip Fine, a spokesman for GPU Nuclear Group, which runs the plant.

The holding tank, in a fuel-handling building adjacent to the containment building, could be considered the starting gate to the water processing system, Fine said.

Water was transferred by means of a pump floating on the surface of an estimated 600,000 gallons standing 8½ feet deep in the basement.

A hose from the pump went to a hole in the 4-foot-thick wall of the containment building. It was attached to a lead pipe running about 120 feet to the fuel pool where the water processing facility, called a demineralizer system, is located. The device is under a 40-foot-deep shield of water to protect workers.

Can't tell wine by its label

That was a pretty large percentage, considering the wines were identical.

'Clack, clack, clack' too much for judge

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — Gene Kelly and Fred Astaire wouldn't last a minute in Judge Paul Kramer's court.

Antoinette Kennealy, 25, of Cherry Hill went in and out of Kramer's busy courtroom a few times Thursday as she waited for her boyfriend's Superior Court hearing to begin in the Burlington County Courthouse.

When she got up to leave, Kramer told her to sit down. Five minutes later, she tried again, and the judge ordered sheriff's officers to detain her in a holding room for about two hours.

He wanted her to "cool her heels."

Klein bicycles far cry from ordinary 10-speeds

CHEHALIS, Wash. (AP) — It's a far cry from little Johnny's first 10-speed, which rides like a Sherman tank when compared with the bicycles made by Gary Klein.

Klein builds a "super bike." His bicycles start at $3,500. The "show model" sells for $5,100. Frames alone are priced at about $2,300.

His high-performance bikes are handmade. It can take a year to start and finish a frame.

The high prices haven't discouraged sales. Bikes and frames are snapped up by bike racers and other serious bicyclists.

What makes his bikes so special — and expensive?

Klein has invented a bicycle frame that's lightweight and doesn't bend.

He's overcome the bane of "bottom-bracket flex." This occurs when, through uphill or other hard pedaling, a bike's lightweight frame bends.

That may cause the chain to rub or even spring off the derailleur, the gear changer that shifts the chain from one sprocket to another.

It's easy to build an inflexible frame with heavy materials, but they add too much weight. And weight, when you have to pedal it, slows you down.

Klein began working on the solution while a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology nine years ago.

A professor organized a project to build a lightweight bicycle frame strong enough to resist flexing.

Klein used a frame of aluminum tubing with a larger diameter than the heavier steel-alloy tubing used in conventional high-quality bicycles. The larger diameter provided rigidity.

It also cut down on the weight, but there were other problems with aluminum frames.

The tubing must be joined by welding, rather than brazing used with steel tubing. So it had to be heat-treated to avoid damage in the welding process.

About five years ago, the technical problems overcome, Klein began building bicycle frames in a shed at his parents' prune farm in Santa Clara County, Calif.

He moved his bicycle works to Chehalis last year because of his difficulties with California state regulations.

The Klein Bicycle Corp. first made a "Team Super," which Klein said was exclusively a racing model. Last year he introduced a touring and racing model for longer-distance racing.

His flex-free bikes look like regular store-bought models, except for their noticeably fatter frames.

Klein doesn't make a track racing bike at the moment. He says there are too few racing tracks in the country.

MHS students won 14 trophies at Abilene fair

Midland High School Industrial Arts Club members won 14 trophies in the West Texas Fair and Rodeo held in Abilene last week.

The students entered projects constructed last year in industrial arts classes. The competition provided students with a chance to compare their own work with that of other students in the West Central Texas region.

Tim Hunter received the Best in Show award for his solid wood grandfather clock.

Students awarded trophies were Victor Salas, Billy Miles, Ricky Thames, Kevin Brown, Ross Bassinger, Tony Miller, Daniel Castaneda, Craig Lakey, Jesus Regalado, James Beaucham, Doug Okrugh, Nick Pietruska and Frank McBride.

Those receiving ribbons were Billy Miles, Ricky Thames, Tony Miller, Alfonso Ochoa, Steve Mitchell, Quinton Rideout, Brian Davis, Felipe Sanchez, Ricky McCaskle and Chris Yates.

Old-fashioned barter making new-fangled comeback

Oklahoma entrepreneur engineering deals with his 'very creative financing'

By JACK LYNCH
Hearst Feature Service

Plagued by those high interest rate blues? Can't buy a house because you lack the money? Can't sell a house because your buyer doesn't qualify for a loan?

Then let's make deal — for something other than cash.

That's the idea being promoted by Barter Systems Inc. of Oklahoma, claiming 24,000 members and saying it's the largest national company involved in trading goods and services without cash.

Bartering has regained popularity during the last decade as inflation has depreciated the value of money, making goods and services worth more. Meanwhile, computers have made it easy to keep track of trades.

What Barter Systems has done up to now is accept goods and services for "trade units." These trade units, which each have the purchasing power of a dollar, then can be used to obtain other goods and services offered by Barter Systems. The value of the goods and services are based on their retail value.

Barter Systems entered the real estate business in March and, it says, has handled $14 million in transactions, mostly in Oklahoma.

Barter Systems vice president Raymond Gollaher contends bartering offers a way to boost property sales with what the company calls "very creative financing."

This is how it works:

Suppose you have a house worth $150,000. There's assumable financing on it of $100,000, leaving $50,000 in equity. A potential buyer has only $30,000 for a down payment and can't qualify for additional loans — especially at existing interest rates. A lost sale?

Not if the buyer has goods or services with a retail value of $20,000 that can be traded. If the buyer and seller are members of Barter Systems, says Gollaher, those goods or services can be converted into 20,000 trade units, which would be used to complete the purchase.

The seller, in turn, could use those 20,000 trade units to purchase whatever goods or services Barter Systems has to offer, not just what the buyer wanted to trade. The seller can even use the trade units to pay the sales commission if the broker is a member of Barter Systems.

Gollaher, a portly man whose showman style resembles an Oklahoma version of TV's Monty Hall, contends that bartering real estate is a good deal for both the buyer and the seller because "you can balloon the price and discount the property."

Basically, he explained, this means the seller can get a higher asking price through barter because the buyer is paying with trade units that have retail value even though they were acquired, in effect, at a wholesale rate.

Gollaher, a portly man whose showman style resembles an Oklahoma version of TV's Monty Hall, contends that bartering real estate is a good deal for both the buyer and the seller because "you can balloon the price and discount the property." Through barter, the seller gets a higher price because the buyer is paying with trade units, acquired at a "wholesale rate," which have retail value.

The reason for this is that the buyer has received trade units for his goods or services at their retail value. However, the buyer normally would spend less than that amount to produce these goods or services.

Gollaher gave the example of printers, who he said can provide a dollar's worth of additional services at a cost to them of less than 30 cents. As a result, a nominal $20,000 worth of trade units would cost them $6,000 in the real worth of services.

Because bartering has the effect of discounting the cost of the property to the buyer, the seller can ask a higher price, Gollaher said. However, he adds, "don't pay more than market value unless there's a reason."

Barter Systems also benefits from bartered real estate transactions. The company receives a referral fee of 5 per cent of the broker's commission on the sale. It also charges buyers a 10 per cent fee in trade units to make a purchase of any goods or services the company offers, not just real estate.

Assuming a 6 per cent brokerge commission from a property sale, the costs involved in the sale total 16 per cent of the purchase price, of which more than two-thirds goes to Barter Systems.

And a Barter Systems membership costs $400 the first year ($250 for people outside franchise areas).

Although no cash is changing hands, Barter Systems officials say bartering is not a way to avoid taxes.However, Gollaher contends that for tax purposes real estate investors should be able to treat trade units the same way as cash held in escrow in property exchanges covered by Section 1031 of the federal Tax Code.

Under Section 1031, if an investment property is exchanged for other real estate of the same or greater value, taxes on the profits from the first property are deferred until the owner "cashes out" the investment.

A federal court ruling known as the Starker decision states that all the transactions in such an exchange do not have to be completed at the same time. As such, investors can sell a property and leave the net proceeds in an escrow account to purchase another property.

Although the ruling applies to cash, Gollaher thinks the IRS should treat trade units in escrow the same way. He said there have been no court cases involving trade units, but "I'm willing to be the first."

Besides real estate, the company says it trades in goods ranging from airline tickets to window coverings, and services from acupuncture to water ski lessons.

The Newspaper BIBLE

"I'M THE GREATEST"

And they began to argue among themselves as to who would have the highest rank (in the coming Kingdom).

Jesus told them, "In this world the kings and great men order their slaves around, and the slaves have no choice but to like it! But among you, the one who serves you best will be your leader. Out in the world the master sits at the table and is served by his servants. But not here! For I am your servant. Nevertheless, because you have stood true to me in these terrible days, and because my Father has granted me a Kingdom, I, here and now, grant you the right to eat and drink at my table in that Kingdom; and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Luke 22:24-30)

About that time the disciples came to Jesus to ask which of them would be greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven!

Jesus called a small child over to him and set the little fellow down among them, and said, "Unless you turn to God from your sins and become as little children, you will never get into the Kingdom of Heaven. Therefore anyone who humbles himself as this little child, is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. (Matthew 18:1-4)

'Down to earth' housing possible

Rising costs of building conventional housing and increasing rates for home utilities may be why an interest in earth-sheltered housing, dating back to the caveman, has been renewed.

As a result of requests for information on earth-sheltered housing, James Bramlett, director of the Midland College Department of Community Services, has scheduled a special seminar on the subject.

The seminar, "Down to Earth — Our Future May Lie Beneath Us," will be from 6 to 10 p.m. Oct. 13.

Bramlett recruited Michael D. Hitt from Lubbock to head the seminar.

"Information given during the seminar is a result of years of trial and error — experimentation and revising of ideas," Hitt said. "We can explain the concept behind earth-sheltered housing, and answer a multitude of questions."

Hitt received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Texas at Tyler and completed his master of science degree from East Texas State University.

He taught in the College of Engineering at Texas Tech and is a member of the American Underground-Space Association and the West Texas Solar Energy Society. He has spent years actively involved in research and construction of earth-sheltered housing.

Hitt points out that earth-sheltered housing is not similar to living in a cave. Part of the structure remains above ground but is enveloped in an earth pack.

He likened the housing to the Al G. Langford Chaparral Center building on the MC campus. The principle is similar, with earth piled against the sides of the structure covering one or more levels. The earth serves as an insulator against heat or cold and cuts down on sound, offers storm protection and reduces maintenance and insurance costs.

Hitt estimates that nearly 3,000 families are living in earth-sheltered houses across the nation. "The idea is gaining acceptance," he said, "but this is not the type of housing an individual should attempt without very good, solid information."

Hitt said that it would be unwise to dig a hole in the ground, sink a structure in the hole, pile dirt against the sides and assume everything will work out alright. Hitt said he would explain design, insulation, soil structure, water run-off, thickness of earth-pack, soil temperatures and thermal lags at the October seminar.

He has spent years investigating earth-sheltered housing, working with engineers and builders, and consulting with individuals who were in the process of building.

Hitt said that a properly constructed earth-sheltered house using the passive solar concept can result in energy savings of 50-80 percent. He sited a recent project in Plainview that cost $22 a square foot as opposed to $35-40 per square foot for conventional housing in the same area.

Pre-registration may be done in room 156 of the MC Administration Building between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays, including the lunch hour. Fee for the seminar is $20.

Central YMCA registering students for Session II of Fall Swim and Gym

Registration for Session II of the Fall Swim and Gym schedule will be from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 at Midland Central YMCA, 800 N. Big Spring St.

Lessons are Oct. 5 through Oct. 23. Program fees for members will be $8 for eight swim or gym lessons, and $15 for both. Limited members will be charged $20 for eight swim or gym lessons, and $36 for both.

Classes are: water babies, 6 months to 3 years, 9-9:30 a.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday; pre-school swim, 3-5, 9:30-10 a.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday; and pre-school gym, 9-9:30 a.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Classes for children 6 years and older will not be held at the Central Y during the Fall program. However, classes for this age are available at the Alamo YMCA.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dble	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

Do whatever is necessary to keep the danger hand off lead. Declarer applied that principle in spectacular fashion in today's hand and landed a contract that seemed destined to fail.

South's hand was too strong for a one no trump opening bid, so he opened in his four-card minor. When West's overcall came back to him, South reopened with a double. North showed he had more than a courtesy bid by jumping to three diamonds, and South's three no trump closed a well-conducted auction.

West led his fourth-best spade and, had declarer routinely let this run to his jack, he would have been defeated—unless the defense went awry. When the ace of diamonds revealed the break, declarer would have to concede the second diamond trick to East. A heart shift would then net the defenders four heart tricks to go with the diamond—down one.

Fortunately, declarer saw that his game was in jeopardy only if East gained the lead and shifted to a heart. Since that could happen only against a specific lie of the cards, declarer directed his efforts to guard against that distribution. As a first step, declarer decided that it was quite likely that West was leading away from the king of spades, so at trick one he played dummy's queen of spades. That couldn't possibly cost a trick in any event.

When East contributed a low spade, the contract became safe—if you play it the way declarer did. At trick two, he led a low diamond from dummy and inserted the ten. Even if this trick lost to the jack in the West hand, declarer had nine tricks. As it was, West showed out, and declarer came home with an overtrick, looking like a genius—or someone who had peeked at the cards.

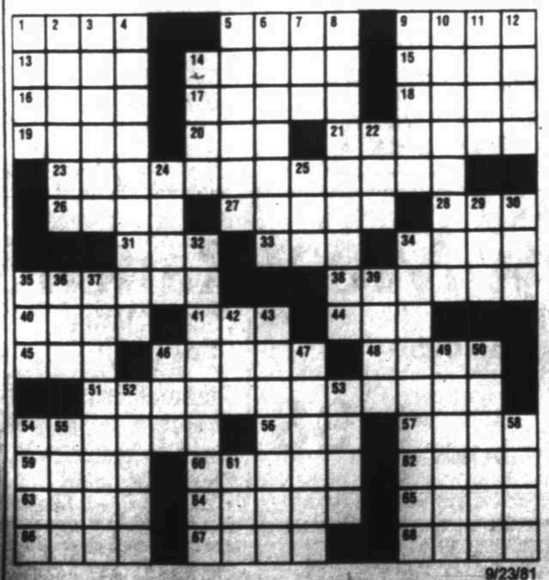

Actually, it was simply excellent technique reaping its just reward.

UTPB hosts series of events supporting higher eduction

"America's Energy is Mindpower" will be the theme of a week-long series of events in conjunction with a national campaign in support of higher education at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Oct. 3-11.

"The Mindpower theme clearly implies the vitality of education in our American society," UTPB President V.R. Cardozier said. "The entire community is affected by higher education. Many people benefit directly from the services offered by a university.'

"The Mindpower theme speaks not only to those directly involved, such as parents, students, alumni, legislators, business leaders and supporters of higher education, but to the entire community — people in virtually every aspect of society," he said.

Pamela Price, assistant professor of art who is coordinating efforts for the College of Arts and Education, said the college will sponsor a student art exhibition, a sculpture exhibition featuring the works of Texas Tech University faculty member Sara Waters, a recorded quartet performance and lecture on historical musical instruments, tours of teaching centers, a photo exhibit, Mexican-American movies and seminars and lectures on various subjects ranging from biculturalism in West Texas to drug abuse.

Dr. Thomas Schaefer, associate professor of management who is coordinating activities for the College of Management, said management classes will be open to visitors throughout the week and films, lectures and exhibits are being planned. Several seminars are scheduled featuring UTPB faculty and guest speakers. Topics to be addressed are "Business and Energy," "Doing Business Abroad" and "New Oil Technology."

Several panel discussions and an award ceremony to honor the outstanding small business person for 1981 will also be held.

Dr. Yonina Cooper, assistant professor of computer science and coordinator of activities for the College of Science and Engineering, said student and professional organizations will be meeting on campus during Mindpower week. Lectures are scheduled on topics ranging from Texas fossils to chemistry evolution. Also on the agenda are nature hikes for youth groups in the area under the direction of UTPB life science faculty.

Other scheduled activities include a library open house, a reception for scholarship donors and recipients and several other receptions and activities for special interest groups.

Twenty-five educational associations have endorsed the nationwide Mindpower campaign, among them the American Council on Education, the National Education Association and the Department of Education.

The Council for Financial Aid to Education, Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Editorial Projects in Education, Newsweek, Exxon Education Foundation and other corporations and organizations have also given support.

Bangladesh army officers executed

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — The government has executed 12 army officers for their part in the assassination of President Ziaur Rahman and the attempted coup May 30, the Bengali Daily reported today.

The mass-circulation newspaper, quoting reliable sources, said the executions took place late Tuesday in jails around the country hours after the Supreme Court dismissed the officers' appeal.

The court said it did not have jurisdiction over a military court's decision.

A military court tried 31 army officers in July behind closed doors. Twelve were sentenced to death, seven acquitted and the others given jail terms ranging from five to 20 years.

After the Supreme Court refused to intervene, leaders of the 10-party opposition alliance appealed to Acting President Abdus Sattar to stay the executions.

After the military trial, relatives of the condemned men fasted for eight days demanding commutation of the death sentences and an open trial, while 13 members of Rahman's ruling Bangladesh Nationalist Party fasted in support of a demand for immediate executions.

Rahman was killed at a government guest house in Chittagong, Bangladesh's second largest city. The army rebellion was put down in 48 hours.

Maj. Gen. Abul Manzur, the commander of the 21st Division at Chittagong and the leader of the attempted coup, was captured in the jungle June 1 while trying to escape to India. The army said angry soldiers killed him when he was brought back to Chittagong.

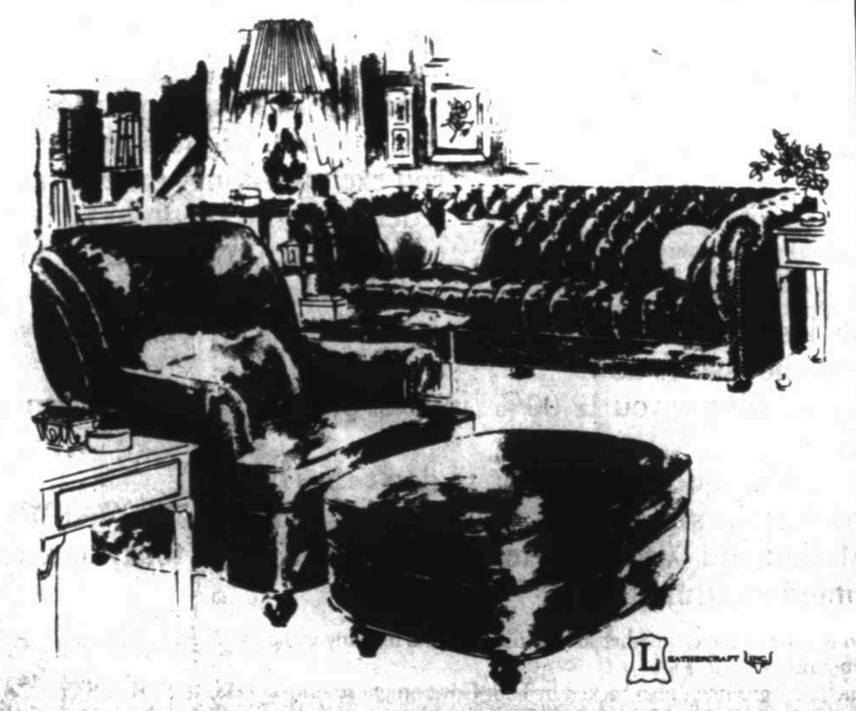

Two other alleged leaders of the plot were killed by police, and two other officers accused of involvement are believed to have escaped to India.

HIGH QUALITY, LOW COST, ON TIME CONSTRUCTION.
AND THAT'S A PROMISE.

We know you've probably heard that one before. And then watched as quality assurances vanished, project costs soared, and completion dates slipped. You know it's a major problem in the construction industry.

And so do we.

We're the Associated Builders and Contractors (ABC), an organization of more than 16,000 open (merit) shop contractors across the country. When we win a construction contract, we win it on merit . . . on the basis of qualifications, capacity to perform, and, of course, price. ABC contractors make it their business to work efficiently and complete their jobs on time. Without overmanning and without any loss of quality control.

PROMISING PRODUCTIVITY

We've grown tremendously in the past 10 years. The reason is simple: we are productive, efficient, and cost conscious. We are not burdened with economic and jurisdictional strikes, restrictive work practices, featherbedding, and material limitations. We will continue to seek ways to improve productivity and to keep your construction costs down. And that's a promise.

ABC MEANS BUSINESS

ABC has developed a "construction buyer's service center" to assist you in locating contractors for your next project. ABC will provide you with "profiles" of contractors in any area of the country with information on volume, bonding ability, manpower availability, performance history, and more. This service is available to you at no charge. Please write or call me and I will be glad to assist you in any way I can. Or contact our director of business development.

Thank you.

Odessa man says he did not kill wife

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

An Odessa man who is trying to regain custody of his motherless sons testified Tuesday in 318th State District Court in Midland that he did not kill, chop up and dismember his 33-year-old wife in Amarillo during the blizzard of last November.

"Did you kill you wife?" John Tull, the Potter County prosecutor, pointedly asked 38-year-old Floyd Baker.

"No, I did not," Baker responded.

"How do you think she died?" asked Tull, counsel for the Texas Department of Human Resources in the legal tussel over the Baker sons, Monty, 8, and David, 6.

"I do not know," Baker said.

Baker, who lost his left hand at age 16 in Odessa while making a bomb to throw into a pool of water and catch stunned fish, testified that theories abound on the cause of death of his attractive, ash-blonde-haired wife, Susie.

INITIALLY, BAKER had been charged with murder in the death of his wife, who apparently had wandered from the couple's mobile home during a blizzard on Dec. 17. He reported her missing the following day. And two weeks later, parts of her dismembered body, including her crushed skull, torso, and some bones gnawed on by animals were found under snow near a television tower and not far from the trailer park where the couple lived near an automotive junk yard.

But Baker was released in mid-December from the sheriff's custody, as cause of death could not be ascertained. Lawmen, however, are continuing their investigation into the case.

The case was transferred from Amarillo to Midland, as an impartial jury, exposed to publicity adverse to Baker, could not be selected in Amarillo. Baker has hired Amarillo attorney Selden Hale to represent him in the trial.

In the case, presided over by 320th District Judge Jerry Shackelford of Amarillo, the Department of Human Resources is trying to prove Baker is an unfit father, while Baker is trying to prove the contrary, and the sons' maternal aunt and uncle, who apparently disdain the boys' father, have intervened to become the boys' foster parents.

THE BOYS, WHO may testify today in the Midland County Courthouse, are in foster homes in Abilene, and, according to social workers there, are gaining confidence in a structure environment and are less pathologically prone, talk less of death and of their father allegedly chopping up their mother, and no longer are inclined to set fires and shoot off fire arms. Monty, the oldest, is the more agressive — the leader — of the two sons. David, the follower, is inclined to be a people-pleaser.

One theory, outside of murder, on the death of Mrs. Baker is that she climbed the Channel 10 television tower, jumped off and her head was severed at the neck by a guywire. Later, animals gnawed on her body. Another theory is that her frozen body was run over by a snow plow or similar equipment and was chopped up.

Baker, a sometimes itinerant man who now works in an Odessa automotive body shop and who dreams of becoming an instant millionaire from his solar-energy patents, testified that his marriage and home-life was pleasant.

"It was all right," the slender Baker, with the slicked-down coal-black hair and dark eyes, said. "Everything was fine. Absolutely."

EVIDENCE SUGGESTED that the Baker household was in a problem-adjustment stage. Baker, an admitted alcoholic, had met Linda Sue "Susie" Martindale while he was in the Big Spring State Hospital for treatment of alcoholism and while he was getting a divorce from his first wife, Diane Hoob Baker. His wife-to-be, as it turned out, was a patient there for treatment of a mental disorder — Lithium deficiency — and had a history of depression. There were married in Mexico in 1971.

Baker, who said he hasn't imbibed an alcoholic drink since 1973, testified that his wife, Susie, had a "chemical deficiency" which had an effect on her similar to taking the hallucinogenic drug LSD.

"You see visions," Baker said. "You see things that are not there."

However, Mrs. Baker had been out of her anti-psychotic medication for sometime prior to her death, Baker testified.

He said he first became aware of his wife's death on Dec. 1, when sheriff's deputies told him that "My wife had been butchered." He was charged with murder and jailed on Dec. 5 and released from custody on Dec. 16 after no cause of death of his wife could be determined. He left Amarillo.

Tull, as if prosecuting a criminal case, quoted comments allegedly made by the Baker boys: "Somebody chopped mommy's head off," and "My daddy chopped my mommy's head off."

AMONG THE SOME 20 witnesses who have thus far testified in the trial's first two days was grammar-school principal Bill Dupree, who testified that Monty suffered from dyslexia — impaired ability to read. Baker had a similar condition, the principal said.

The principal said that he had observed "a frightened look on her (Mrs. Baker's) face" when he had met her.

Baker's demeanor contrasted that of his wife's.

"He was smiling," Dupree said. "His eyes were clear when he talked about his wife."

"He (Baker) was going to have to go on living his life, doing the best he could," the principal said. "He criticized her ability at keeping house."

"He said that she was depressed and was taking medication for it," Dupree said.

Another witness was Cathy McGowen, a housewife-neighbor of the Bakers. She said that the Baker children, particularly Monty, were rowdy and that Monty, like his father, tended to be chauvinistic. "Monty tried to emulate Floyd — macho. David was a follower. He wanted to be accepted.'

"He (Monty) told me that chores were a woman's work," Mrs. McGowen said under examination by Tull.

"He (Monty) asked me if my husband whipped me," Mrs. McGowen.

"What did you say?" asked Tull.

"Definitely not."

The neighbor said she never witnessed signs of affection and love in the Baker family and sensed that Susie Baker was being used as a convenience by her husband.

"Sue was there to fix his meals, clean the house and to do their laundry," she said.

Mrs. McGowen surmised that Mrs. Baker was fearful of men.

"Susie was afraid of Floyd," she said. "She was afraid of all men. I feel like she was there as a convenience."

In his turn in questioning the witness, Baker's attorney asked Mrs. McGowen if she was aware "Susie had a long history of emotional problems."

"No, I didn't," she told Hale.

JEAN MARTINDALE Bland, half-sister of Susie Baker, said the Baker boys "talked of cutting people up and putting fire on them" months after their mother's death.

"'Floyd killed my mommy,'" Mrs. Bland, of Houston, quoted David.

Mrs. Bland, 40, and her husband, Jerry, are seeking custody of the boys.

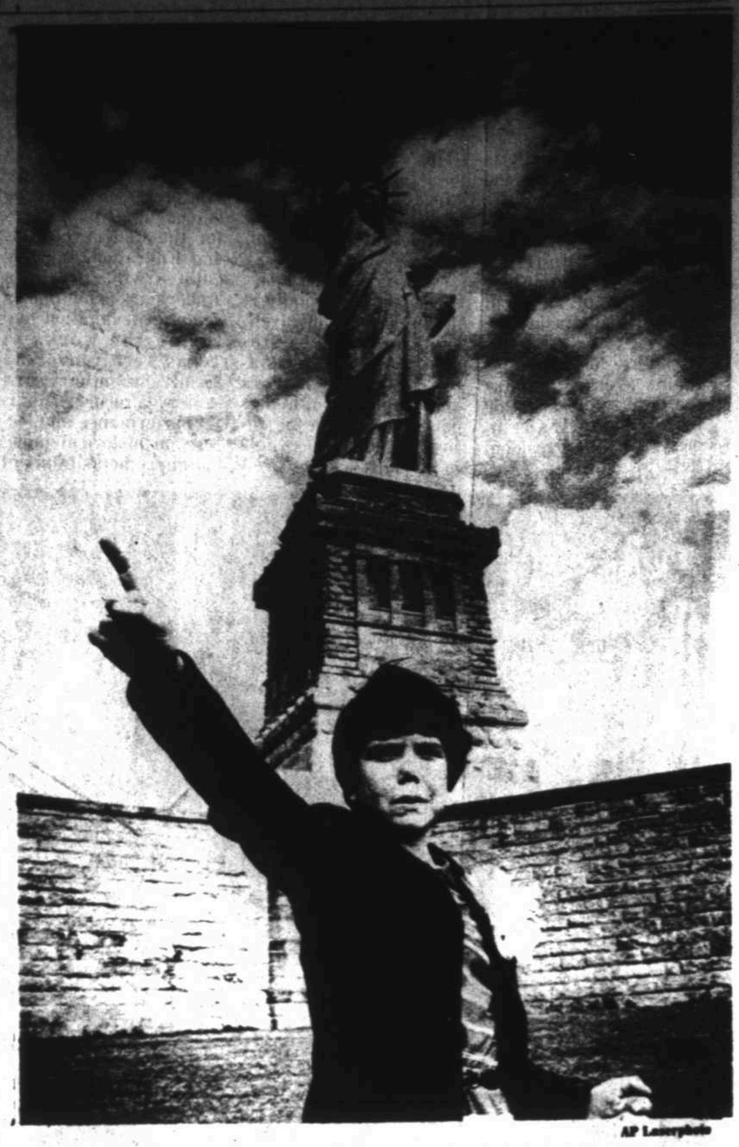

Tull asked the boys' aunt if she would allow their father to visit his sons were she and her husband to gain custody of them.

"We're afraid of him," she said of Baker.

Her husband, 44, hedged in answering a similar question and said he would have to consult a psychologist or psychiatrist before granting the father visitation rights.

Bland said David, the youngest of the Baker sons, had called his father "'an evil man. He killed my mom.'"

Later, Bland said David had described his father as "mean" rather than "evil."

First Abscam suspect gets jail sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — A former immigration official who became the first suspect in the FBI's Abscam inquiry has been sentenced to four years in prison for agreeing to fix an immigration case in return for $15,000.

The sentence was imposed Tuesday on Alexander Alexandro, 30, a resident of Long Island, by U.S. District Court Judge Mark Costantino.

Alexandro and a co-defendant, Alfred Carpentier, 54, a Long Island businessman, were convicted last Oct. 31 of conspiracy to commit bribery and conflict of interest. Alexandro also was convicted of bribery.

Costantino sentenced Alexandro to two concurrent four-year terms on the conspiracy and bribery counts and fined him $7,500. Alexandro received a suspended sentence on the conflict of interest count.

After the proceeding, Alexandro told reporters he was "terribly disappointed. I felt the judge was harsh."

Carpentier, accused of aiding and abetting Alexandro, is to be sentenced Oct. 13.

Alexandro, a former criminal investigator for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, and Carpentier were arrested Feb. 2, 1980. The government claimed that in return for a $15,000 payoff, they agreed to get an Irish national admitted to the United States. The Irish national, who was fictitious, supposedly was the protege of a Arab sheik who was said to be bankrolling the scheme.

The go-between in the deal, according to the prosecutors, were undercover FBI agent Anthony Amoroso, under the name of Tony DeVito, and Mel Weinberg, a government informant who has been labeled the architect of the Abscam influence-buying operation.

In one of the government's videotapes, Amoroso counted out $2,000 in cash in a motel room at Kennedy International Airport while Weinberg was present. Alexandro was seen picking up the money from a coffee table and stuffing it into his pocket.

The government called the money a down-payment on the $15,000 and said in return Alexandro was to use his influence with the immigration service to get the Irish national into this country.

Alexandro admitted taking the $2,000, but claimed he did so to provide evidence in a criminal case he intended to build against the bribers. He admitted under cross examination that he did not inform INS superiors that he had taken the money, nor that he was investigating a criminal case.

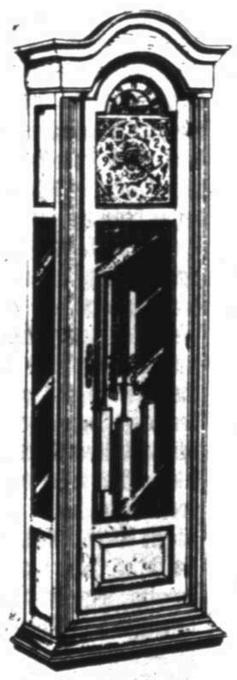

Civic groups exempt from sales tax

AUSTIN — Certain civic and non-profit organizations are now exempt from paying sales tax on items purchased for use by these organizations, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

The Comptroller's office reported recent changes by the Legislature will exempt non-profit Chambers of Commerce and groups to help the elderly from some sales tax requirements.

Non-profit organizations created solely to provide assistance to elderly persons can now hold four fund-raising drives a year and not have to collect sales tax on items made by persons at least 65 years old.

Prolific musical artist Harry Warren dead at 87

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Harry Warren, who turned out some of the best-known songs of this century while remaining virtually unknown to the public, is dead at the age of 87.

Warren died Tuesday of kidney failure after being hospitalized for about two weeks, said Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Larry Baum.

"He had been ill for some time with a variety of problems," Baum said.

The prolific musical artist received Academy Awards for "Lullaby of Broadway," from "Gold Diggers of 1935" (1935); "You'll Never Know," from "Hello Frisco," (1943), and "On the Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe," from "Harvey Girls" (1945).

He composed the scores for such movie musicals as "42nd Street," "Gold Diggers of 1933" and "The Barkleys of Broadway," as well as such songs as "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" and "The More I See You." But he was never as well-known as his contemporaries, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern and Cole Porter.

"All those other guys took ads in the (trade papers) and hired press agents," Warren said in a recent interview. "I always hated that. I felt it was too presumptuous or whatever you want to call it. I didn't want to be like them; I'd rather be like Michaelangelo, who never signed one of his paintings."

A stage version of "42nd Street," which opened in New York in August 1980, is currently one of Broadway's biggest hits, although Warren had no role in David Merrick's production.

Born in Brooklyn on Dec. 24, 1893, as Salvatore Guaragna, his older brother, Charlie, a vaudevillian, inspired Harry to take piano and drum lessons despite his father's desire that his son become a shoemaker.

In 1932, Warner Bros. lured him to Hollywood where he wrote most of the hit musicals of the 1930s and 1940s. He collaborated with lyricists Johnny Mercer, Al Dubin, Ira Gershwin, Dorothy Fields and Mack Gordon.

While at Warners he received Oscar nominations for "Remember Me?" from "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air" and "Jeepers Creepers" from "Going Places," both in 1937.

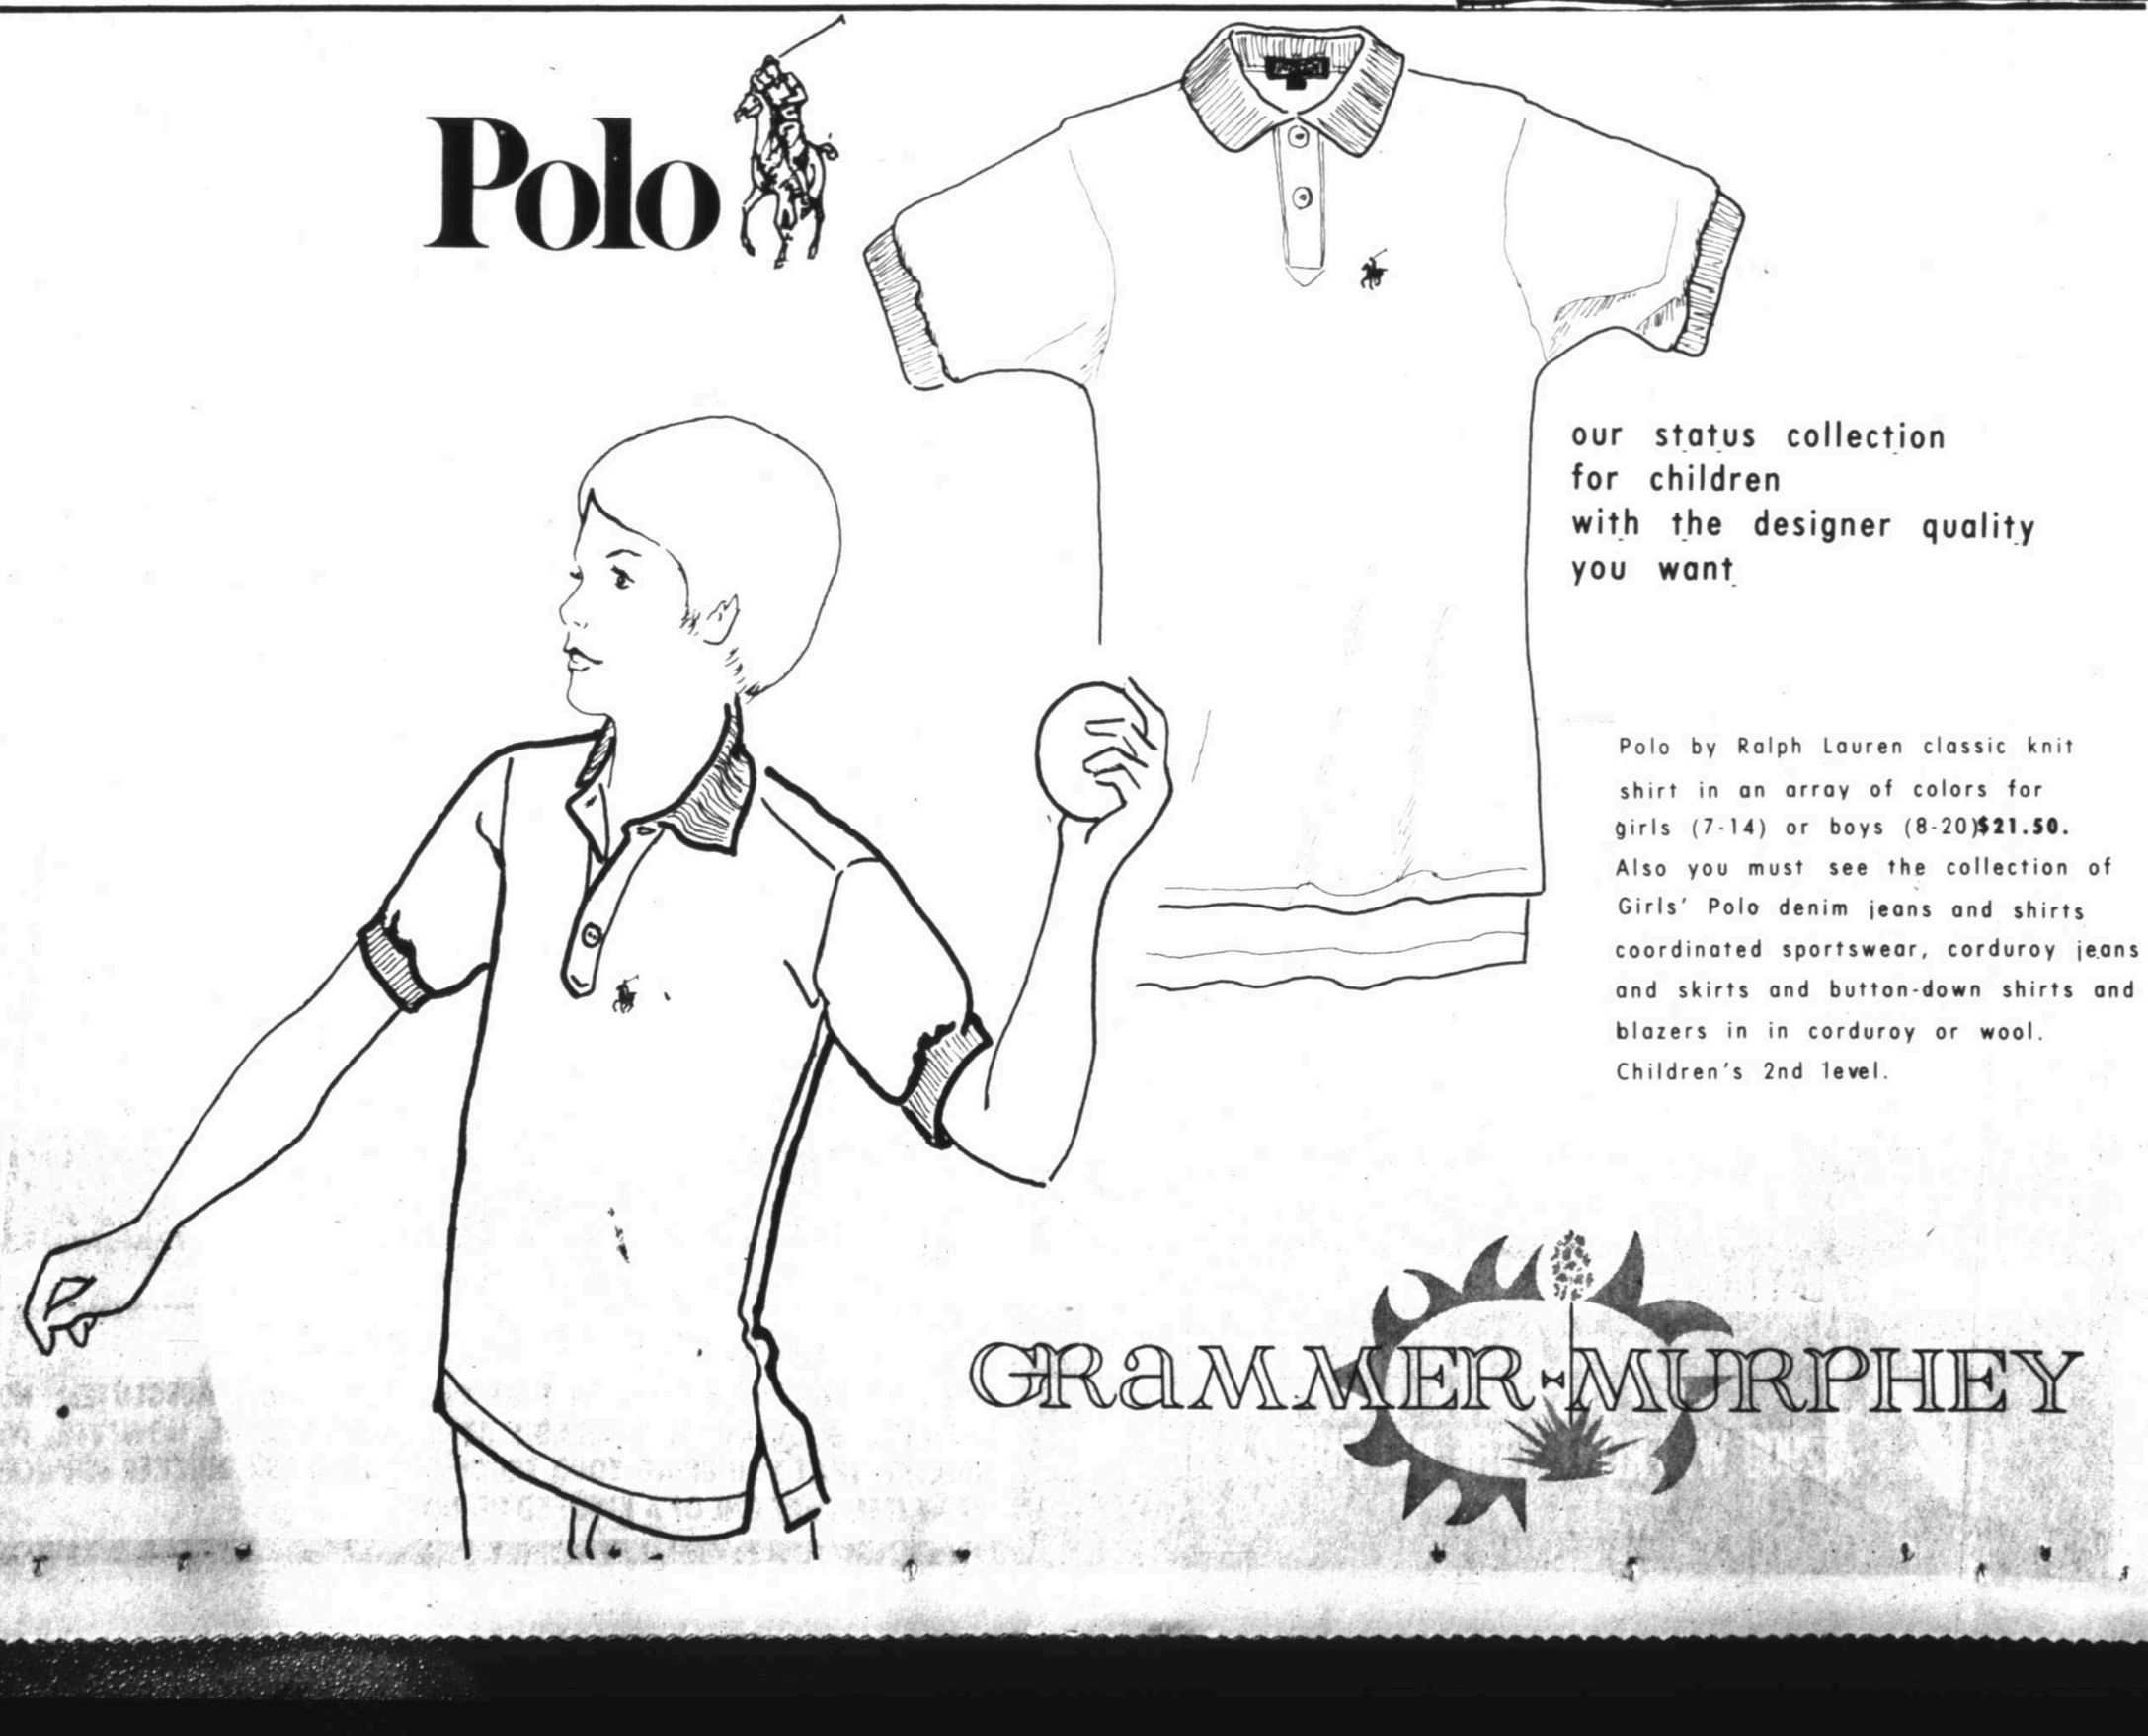

Guidlines to be revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guidelines on making government buildings accessible to the handicapped will be revised instead of eliminated, as the Reagan administration had proposed.

The Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board agreed Tuesday to stop enforcement until Nov. 6. Until then, the board will hear public comments on streamlining the guideline.

The board modified its position on repealing the guidelines when eight senators complained that such action would be an "erosion of the federal commitment to help disabled citizens."

AT WIT'S END

Phone book lingo

By ERMA BOMBECK

Telephone books are like dictionaries — if you know the answer before you look it up, you can eventually reaffirm what you thought you knew but weren't sure.

But if you're searching for something you don't already know, your fingers could walk themselves to death.

The trouble with me is I never learned how to speak Yellow Pages. It's a language of the 20th century, born of frustration, nurtured by obscurity and dedicated to the theory that by the time you find it, you no longer need it.

In the language of Yellow Pages, a rug is a "carpet," curtains are "draperies," milk is "a dairy product" and cars are "industrial automotives."

A plumber is a "plumbing contractor," an electrician is an "electrical contractor" and hi-fi's are listed under Sound Systems and equipment.

Roaches are listed under Pest Control, exterminating and fumigating, a taco is under Mexican Food Products, a tailpipe under Mufflers and Exhaust Systems, and a pencil is under Advertising Specialists.

One of the most frustrating encounters in the Yellow Pages is trying to find a doctor, who is listed under Physicians, who are subdivided into M.D.s and D.O.s, who are also listed under Physicians and Surgeons, group, associate and corporate practice, and who aren't in anyway and whose phone is being answered by a doctor's answering service . . . See Physicians and Surgeons Exchange.

You should begin to worry about yourself when you begin to think like the Yellow Pages. Recently, I wanted to call a flea market and caught myself just in time. Flea market would definitely not be under F, but probably under something like Swap Meets. I turned to the S's and read, "See Flea Market."

I don't know what the answer is with the growth of private enterprise and the need to consolidate them under a general heading. But just for kicks I turned to "Survival Kits" and was hit with, "See First Aid Supplies, Sporting Goods heading."

I know this. No one will ever convince me that when Alexander Graham Bell was sitting in his Boston boardinghouse March 10, 1876, with battery acid burning his leg and shouted his first frantic message into the transmitter, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you!" it was the despair of looking under HELP in the Yellow Pages and finding, "See batteries: Dry cell, wholesale, retail, charging and maintenance," that did it.

NATIONAL ASSN. OF PARLIAMENTARIANS

A panel composed of Jerry Moritz, Joyce Lovett, John Slyker, Auline Brausuel, Mona Deland and Lee Oakes discussed ways ofmaking the study of parliamentary procedure fun at a meeting of the Permian Basin Unit of the National Association of Parliamentarians.

Moritz offered exaggerated exampls of the disorganized and chaotic meetings without parliamentary procedure and the smooth-as-silk metings with proper usage. Slyker told of "charlie Mik-Toast" acquiescing to th club bully until he gains confidenceinthe use of parliamentary procedure to protect his own right to participation. Other panelmembers offered suggestions for making the year's programs outstandingly education, but at the same time, an enjoyable experience.

LIVING TODAY

A working-person's guide to effective meal planning

By SHARON A. HILLIS
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

Does employment of a homemaker (man or woman) mean the family must eat a lot more tv dinners — or buy shelves full of fast-preparation equipment? Most people seem to think so, but it doesn't have to be that way. In fact, several consumer surveys show that there are really few differences in the way women homemakers — employed or at-home — handle meal-management. Consumer surveys on men homemakers have not received their due attention to date.

Whether you're and employed man or woman, these meal planning ideas can help ensure nutritious family meals in the face of today's hurried lifestyles.

PLAN BEFORE YOU SHOP

Before you shop, make a long-range plan for meals. This will mean considering the following important factors:

— built-in nutritional balance
— sticking to a budget you can live with
— thinking about where and when your family eats various meals, and making allowances for special diets, such as low-calorie meals

Then, to make the plan really workable, add some time-saving items and steps to you plan and be sure to think "plan ahead."

BUILD IN BALANCE

In planning meals and snacks for your family, you'll want to ensure that meals are balanced.

Use the basic food groups in planning, and include the number of recommended servings for each family member.

STICK WITH BUDGET

Stay within your budget. This is especially important in these inflationary times. Consider the foods you have available, such as fresh vegetables from the garden or those you canned in the spring. Check newspapers, television and several stores for advertised specials. Make an inventory of foods on hand based on your menu. Plan to shop for a week or two at a time — not every other day, as frequent trips to the store waste time and cause impulse buying.

WHERE AND WHEN OF MEALS

Efficient use of time is special to busy homemakers. Thinking about the "where" and "when" of family meals ahead of time will make a big difference in meal efficiency.

Will all meals be eaten at home or "on the run?" Will you do the meal planning for the entire family, or will some family members eat away from home where you have no control over their selections for that meal? If some family members eat away from home, make sure your plan helps fill in the nutrition gaps when they do eat at home. Also, make sure at-home meals help bring their calorie count back into the necessary range.

SPECIAL DIETS

Special diets must be part of the meal plan, if they are necessary. For example, if weight control is a problem for some family members, then menu plans should allow for this. In these cases, family members should be encouraged to select away-from-home meal items according to their special diets.

ADD A BIT OF 'EASY'

At this point in your plan, give yourself a break. Consider the use of convenience foods in key places of your plan to save time. If they cost more because of convenience features, choose them with care. Some do not cost more, and these save both time and money. Some cake mixes, for example, do not cost more than baking from scratch. Also, consider creating some your own "master mixes," such as pancake or cocoa mix. Definitely consider making double batches of your family's favorite recipes for you can serve one fresh and freeze the rest for your own homemade tv dinners.

PLAN FIXING, SERVING

Plan ahead for meal preparation and serving. For example, plan ahead for breakfast coffee by measuring the ingredients the night before and set the coffee pot up in "ready-to-start" fashion. A timer to make it for you is also a good investment. You might even set the table the night before and cover the whole layout with a cloth.

Learn to organize for a meal service. Prepare as much ahead of time as possible, whether you're serving three persons or 30. This can make a big difference in how easy and pleasant the meal is.

PLAN-AHEAD PROMISES

No one can promise perfect meals, but planning ahead almost has some sure-fire promises. Careful planning, knowing the nutrient needs of family members and the nutritional value of foods you buy, along with careful meal preparation and serving, can help ensure balanced meals and snacks for your family. The better organized you become in this area, the more plesant the whole process will be — and the more free time you'll have the enjoy your family and other activities.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Tidy rack for wet towels

DEAR HELOISE:

In redoing our bathroom this year, we found ourselves short on towel racks. It especially was a problem finding some place to hang wet towels after a shower as I didn't want them draped over the shower curtain, leaving an untidy mess.

Then we got the idea of buying another spring-loaded shower curtain rod and putting it next to the wall in the shower.

Enough room was left to allow a towel to easily slip over. Not only did it solve our towel problem, but it sure comes in handy for hanging hand-laundry. — Betty Lou Porter

+ + +

Great idea, but if the towels are in line with the water spray from the shower head, be sure to caution the family to remove the towels before showering. — Heloise

CHALK IT UP

Dear Heloise: When I put on a white blouse or shirt which has slight traces of makeup on the collar or neck, I take a piece of white chalk and lightly rub over the makeup.

It covers beautifully, and I can still wear what I planned for the day. — Elaine Smith

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: When I read the hint from the lady who took two forks, held them together, and made a lemon squeezer, it reminded me of quite a story I read during my high school days (I'm 82 now). Thought you might enjoy it.

The story goes that when Mr. Ebenezer Sweet married Miss Jane Lemon, the local newspaper ended its account of the wedding with this little verse:

"How happily extremes do meet, in Jane and Ebenezer. For she's no longer sour, but sweet, and he's a lemon squeezer." — Mrs. Flora Graham

+ + +

That's cute! Thanks for remembering it and sharing. — Heloise

HAIR SETTING SOLUTION

Dear Heloise: The best solution I've found for setting my hair is the white of an egg, which my mother used to set my curls when I was a child.

It's still my favorite solution for hair-setting problems. It's non-allergy producing, a natural product, is always available, dependable, economical, and maintains a lasting hair curl, leaving no residue! — Mrs. Erwin Moser

+ + +

My, the chicken will always have a job, if you're around to endorse her product!

The chickens thank you, and so do I! — Hugs, Heloise

DRAWER LINERS

Dear Heloise: I'm forever buying oblong place mats at garage sales and using them to line drawers.

They're colorful and wipe off so easily. — Mrs. Dale Stewart

PUDDING IN A JIFF

Dear Heloise: A quicker way to cook boxed pudding mix is to simply allow the milk to come to a boil BEFORE adding the powered pudding mix.

The pudding will thicken quicker and you don't have to spend agonizing minutes stirring and stirring, waiting for the pudding to thicken. — Margie Colon

PIZZA-CUT BROWNIES

Dear Heloise: I've discovered a way to avoid a gooey mess when cutting freshly baked brownies in the pan. Use a pizza cutter.

They come out slick as a whistle. — L.M.

+ + +

Send your favorite cooking shortcut to Heloise, P.O. Box 32000, San Antonio, Tx. 78216. She can't answer your letter personally but will use the best tips received in her column.

What you should learn in sewing classes

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

There are sewing classes and then there are sewing classes. Some teach you a lot, others teach you zilch.

How do you know which classes are of worth and which aren't? How do you know what you are supposed to be learning?

If you are a beginner, it is much like looking through the Yellow Pages for a doctor — you have no guidelines. The following is far from complete, but, if you are considering a class, and the class is not teaching these things, then think twice about emptying your pockets.

Machine: Even though a sewing class cannot devote too much time to the operation of the machine, you should at least learn the basics of threading, tension, pressure, stitch length and width and cleaning.

Pattern: You should learn how to determine which patterns are of easy construction and which ones are difficult. You should learn about sizing and measuring, and how to "shop" the pattern book.

The pattern envelope is loaded with valuable information for the seamstress. Learn to use this information: what type fabric to buy, what notions to buy, how much lining, trim and interfacing, etc. Use your pattern envelope as you would a manual.

Symbols and instruction: You should spend time on learning how to read your instruction sheet, how to interpret the pattern markings, how to lay out your pattern, how to cut and mark.

Seams: It seems simple enough to start at one end of a seam and stitch to the other, but you would be surprised at what can go wrong in between. A good class will teach you how to start, execute and end a perfect seam — straight, inside curve, outside curve and corners.

There is much more you will learn in a good sewing class, so take notes!

Automatic door openers may pose threat to children

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Automatic devices that close garage doors can be extremely dangerous to young children, and the deaths of two children have been attributed to the devices, a medical journal says.

Dr. Leon Satran, a pediatrician at the University of Minnesota, detailed the fatalities in the current issue of Pediatrics, a medical journal published in Evanston.

In one case, he said a 6-year-old girl was playing with friends in a garage. The children tried to leave as the door was closing after a car drove away, apparently playing a game. The girl was trapped under the door and died of asphyxiation, the report said.

In the second incident, a 3-year-old boy was trapped under the door and pronounced dead at a hospital, Satran wrote.

Although it was not known who activated the controls on the door, the boy's mother often scolded him for playing with the controls, the journal noted.

Satran suggested that the controls should be placed out of the reach of children, where the operator has a view of the vicinity. A car also should be locked if the transmitter is left in the vehicle, and the garage doors should automatically reopen when striking an object, rather than continuing to exert downward pressure, he said.

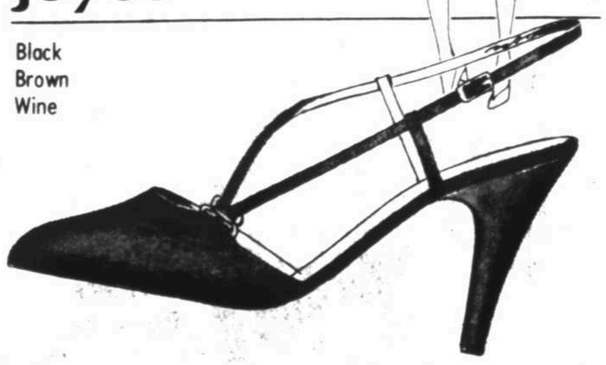

Sleek and sophisticated from heel to toe

The underlying beauty of these simple, classic leather styles is the way their graceful silhouettes complement your entire wardrobe. Paired with tailored fashions for the office or dressier looks for on-the-town, the slender heels and slightly tapered toes are sheer flattery. Joyce designs them in the newest, most interesting fashion shades. Come in and try on a pair.

Fashion begins with joyce.

Julia Lander, now a widow of 80, strolls in front of the twin chapels she built out of logs 20 years ago. She and her husband lived so far back in the woods that when he died and she felt the need to go to church she could not make it. So she built her own church out of logs, and since she had so many logs left over, she built another church identical to it and standing next to it.

Widow builds church

She lives too far out to go to church

By CHARLES HILLINGER
(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times

LAUDER LAKE, Wis. — Julia Lauder wanted to go to church but she lived so far back in the woods there was no way to get there.

So 20 years ago she built her own church out of logs.

She had so many logs left over that she built another church identical to the first and standing next to it.

Soon the word spread about the little old lady in the woods with the two churches. Ever since, people have been coming to the north woods of Wisconsin to see the churches and to meet Julia Lauder.

Lauder, now 80, has been a widow 27 years. She has no children.

"My husband retired from his job in 1951, and we heard about this man who had 40 acres he wanted to sell, so we went to see him," she said.

"To get here we had to row three miles across a lake, then walk four miles through the woods. We bought the 40 acres for $1,000."

Her husband died two years later. The widow remained alone in the remote area, walking seven miles to town to buy her groceries.

"A few years after my husbnd died I got to thinking about how I missed going to church. Since I had no car and it was miles to the nearest church, I decided to build my own," she said.

After both churches were completed, people began walking through the woods to see them. Then the 7-mile dirt road was constructed to the widow's remote 40 acres.

Soon handicapped and elderly men and women were bringing items they made into the woods to sell to the people who came to see the churches.

The widow built a gift shop and now sells the handicraft items — afghans, quilts, pillows, stuffed dolls — made by 32 handicapped or elderly people.

Others brought keepsakes to fill the churches. A priest whose church was torn down to make way for a freeway in Milwaukee brought a statue of the Virgin Mary and St. Anthony.

A rabbi brought pews from his synagogue. Each church seats 20 persons. People of various faiths brought religious artifacts to decorate the churches, both called Our Lady's Chapel of the Woods.

A veteran brought the American flag that flew on his river boat in Vietnam.

Lauder has no car. She never leaves the woods or the lake now named for her except to vote and to "fix up" her husband's grave on Decoration Day.

There are no signs anywhere directing visitors to the churches.

Yet people come by the hundreds all summer, driving the dirt road, and all winter on snowmobiles to see the little old lady who lives in the woods all by herself with the identical two churches she built out of logs side by side.

DEAR ABBY

Wife nurses suspicion of ailing husband

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My middle-aged husband has been in the hospital three times in the last year. Each time he spent between eight and 10 days there, and always in the same section, so he became quite friendly with the nurses.

I have always trusted my husband, but listen to this. One of his night nurses (an R.N.) jokingly told me that she came into my husband's room at 1 a.m. every morning with some 7-Up, which they would mix with vodka. (My husband's brother had brought him a bottle as a gift.) My husband didn't deny these little "nightcap" parties; in fact he bragged about them.

Now that my husband is home, this night nurse has been calling to ask him how he is getting along. It bothered me, so I listened in on the extension and I heard her ask him when he was going to meet her in the city. (We are farmers and own a lot of land.)

I asked my husband to talk to our priest or see a marriage counselor, and he flatly refused to do either. A divorce would crush our children, but it is not my intention to continue to live with a man I cannot trust.

What should I do? — ANONYMOUSLY YOURS

DEAR ANON: Talk to your priest and accept his counsel. Don't rush into anything. Divorce is a heavy penalty for what may be a minor offense. Never cut what you can unravel.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for "Family Feud," who wrote in to complain that her daughter-in-law insisted on being in the family portrait: Put her on the end of the group, and when the photograph is printed, she can be easily lopped off.

Newspapers do this frequently when an unwanted subject insists on squeezing into the picture. — RALPH IN LITTLE FALLS, N.Y.

DEAR RALPH: Thanks. But what does one do when the pushy one "squeezes in" in the middle?

DEAR ABBY: How do I tell my very loved husband that the shirt size he has worn for years no longer fits him? I don't want to come right out and say, "You need a larger size."

A few times when I have bought him shirts (larger size) I've fibbed, saying, "These were on sale, and although they may be a little big, they were so good-looking I couldn't pass them up." Another time I told him that the salesman said that the new shirts ran a bit small and suggested I buy a larger size.

Abby, my husband knows he's overweight and has every intention of dieting, but he never seems to get around to it.

I don't want to hurt this dear man, so what do you say? Should I just keep my mouth shut? — LOVES MY MAN IN CALIF.

DEAR LOVES: You do your man no favors by pretending not to notice that he's overweight while you buy him bigger shirts and fib about the reason. Perhaps a rude awakening — such as being unable to button the top button on his shirt (or trousers) — is what he needs to motivate him to lose weight. If you love him, level with him.

(Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

New publication is aimed at devotees of romantic fiction

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In her floor-length dress with its pale-blue skirt and square-necked, blue-check top, her light brown hair falling to her shoulders in soft waves, Kathryn Falk looks as though she might have stepped from one of the romantic novels she is so fond of.

So fond, in fact, that she has started a national publication devoted to that increasingly popular genre, with more than 75 new titles published each month, according to industry sources. "Romantic Times," a bimonthly of which she is editor and publisher, is aimed at the millions of women who share her enjoyment of romantic fiction.

"It was a dream of mine," she said in an interview. "My goal was to give all this great information I knew was out there and that women wanted, profiles of authors, reviews of books, new titles, excerpts of books.

"If I had it to do over again, I wish I'd have lived a hundred years ago. I love romance in general, and I love long dresses. I wear them so much people think I have terrible legs. But I really don't," she added, proving her point by lifting the hem of her dress.

Ms. Falk defines the romantic novel as a "great love story between one man and one woman," with a lot of action and suspense and costumes. They've been around for a long time but the explosion began in 1970 when Kathleen Woodiwiss published "The Flame and the Flower."

"The books have become more sensual, some have become more graphic," she says. "Readers want the characters to have a beautiful sexual relationship but they want it in pretty words. They don't want them to be promiscuous or do a lot of bed-hopping."

Women who read these books don't use them as an escape, she says. "They are not soap-opera ladies at all. It's a pleasant respite, a slice of life they're not getting, a welcome relief from inflation, crime, children's problems, divorce. They like to read about a time when life was more orderly, civilized and romantic, when you sat down to a dinner that took three hours. Who has time for that now?"

The typical reader, she points out, has had some college; more than 50 percent work; their age generally ranges from 18 to early 40s; average income is $22,000; 60 percent are married; they're avid readers and belong to one or more book clubs.

Some of her subscribers are male, but she believes most men who like romantic fiction enjoy only the more action-oriented historical novel, with their details of battles and politics, and are "closet readers." Some women, too, are insecure about reading these books in public as casually as men read Westerns, Ms. Falk adds.

"Readers are tired of defending themselves, and rightfully so," she says. "This genre is just as satisfying and just as well written as mysteries or science fiction or Westerns.

"I want to get away from the stereotype that they're funny old ladies in tennis shoes reading and writing these books. It's completely false."

Ms. Falk says more than 500 authors have published at least one romantic novel, while some have published many, often under different names for different publishers.

"It seems to be something that happens in the late 30s to housewives whose kids have grown up," she says. "They've always read these books and they think 'I'm going to be 40 and I want to do something I can be proud of' and they think they can write too. Some succeed and some don't."

Ms. Falk, 40, who was a history major at the University of Detroit, says the gestation period for the new publication was about nine months — "just like having a baby" — and it had 3,000 subscribers before the first issue came out.

"It was just word of mouth," she says. "Women out there were dying to have something like this. You walk into every drug store, every airport, everyone is buying and no one knows anything about the authors."

The concept for "Romantic Times" was developed when Ms. Falk was interviewing authors for her book, "Love's Leading Ladies," to be published next year.

Ms. Falk lives and works in a renovated Victorian carriage house in Brooklyn Heights, where she and her fiance, Ken Rubin, enjoy a turn-of-the-century atmosphere with his collection of penny arcade machines and her antiques and rare books.

El Paso man to receive humanitarian award

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Almost every Sunday for the past 14 years, Ray Villarreal has crossed the border into Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, and delivered shoes and artificial limbs to the unshod and crippled.

Villarreal makes his living examining feet, filling prescription's for corrective shoes and fitting people with artificial limbs.

Last Sunday, he saw 38 Juarenses who sought his help free in their efforts to walk properly again.

"Last Sunday was a humdinger," he said Tuesday. "I put a leg on a man. He hadn't had a leg in 22 years. He was crying and everything."

The 54-year-old El Pasoan said he began his service after a chance meeting with a Juarez youngster.

"I used to be a deacon at Western Hills United Methodist Church," he said. "You know, I passed the plate. One day, a kid came in and asked if I could look at his brother in Juarez. The boy couldn't cross the border because he didn't have a passport.

"I said, 'Well, it will make me miss church, but I'll do it.'" Villarreal said. "I saw the kid and told him to see me here next week and I'll have your shoes. When I got there the next week, the kid had brought me some more people."

Villarreal's been missing church a lot since then, but his charity work has not gone unnoticed.

Next Sunday will be only the 19th Sunday that he hasn't made a trip to Juarez in the past 14 years. He will be in New Jersey where he will receive the "Humanitarian of the Year Award" from the Italian-American National Hall of Fame. Villarreal will be only the eighth person to be inducted into the hall, joining the likes of Jerry Lewis, Joe DiMaggio and Jimmy Durante.

"They told me the national press will be waiting for me at the airport," he said. "I'm not that good of a speaker. I just get out and help. That's all."

Villarreal, who was given the "Mankind Award" by the El Paso Sertoma Club in 1977, also gives shoes and clothes to needy children in Juarez and El Paso at Christmas.

"I buy them when people go out of business, at closeouts for two or three bucks apiece," he said. "Then I save them for Christmas. I bought 1,000 pair the other day and put them away."

The clothes come from churches and civic groups all over the Southwest, he said.

"People are real generous," he said. "I have a little jar on my desk. People who come in the store drop in a quarter, fifty cents or a dollar. It adds up.

"I still pay about $10,000 to $12,000, maybe $20,000, of my own money every year," he said. "But I'll tell you something. I've found that money is round. Spend it in the right direction and it will come back to you."

UT enrollment on rise

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas at Austin said Tuesday its preliminary fall enrollment count is 48,156 students, a 4.4 percent increase over the 46,148 students it had last fall.

Court refuses to reverse writ in Furr's case

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court has found no reversible error in lower court decisions awarding damages to a Midland woman who was injured when she slipped on a banana peel in a grocery store.

The Supreme Court Wednesday refused to grant a writ of error sought by Furr's Super Market. The store was sued by May and Jack Garrett after Mrs. Garrett slipped and fell while shopping at the store.

Furr's appealed on grounds the Garretts had failed to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the alleged act of negligence had occurred in Midland County, the county in which the suit was filed. Furr's also contended there was no evidence or insufficient evidence to show that the store had placed the banana peel on the floor, that it knew the peel was on the floor and willfully or negligently failed to remove it or that the peel had been on the floor for such a length of time that it should have been discovered or removed.

The El Paso County of Civil Appeals rejected those contentions stating that "we are of the opinion that the judgment must be sustained on the basis that the employees of appellant, in the exercise of ordinary care, should have known the substance was on the floor."

The Supreme Court also has upheld lower court decisions in two suits against insurance companies.

The court found no reversible error in Ector County trial court and El Paso appeals court rulings that Altha Woodward was entitled to benefits from American National Insurance Co. under a mortgage disability policy.

Woodward got a loan in 1976 to buy real estate and the loan agreement included the purchase of a group mortgage repayment disability policy.

Two months after the policy became effective, Woodward became totally disabled with arthritis and sought benefits under the policy.

An Ector County trial court ruled that Woodward was entitled to the benefits, but American National appealed, contending there was no evidence or insufficient evidence to support a jury finding that Woodward suffered any total disability as a result of sickness.

"The jury elected to accept the testimony of the appellee (Woodward)," the appeals court said. "Under such circumstances, a court of civil appeals cannot substitute its findings of fact for those of a jury, where there is evidence in the record to sustain the trial court's findings."

The court also upheld lower court decisions in a Ward County worker's compensation case in which Michael K. Carnes was denied worker's compensation benefits for injuries suffered in a 1978 truck accident.

Carnes was denied benefits because he was not yet officially employed by the trucking company at the time of the accident.

Odessa representative on education committee

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House Speaker Bill Clayton Tuesday named State Rep. Jay Gibson, D-Odessa, to the newly-established Joint Committee on Higher Education.

The new committee is made up of members of the standing House Committees on Higher Education and Appropriations. Gibson is a member of the Appropriations Committee.

The joint committee has been asked to review the method of developing formulas through which community colleges are funded, the method of reporting scholastic hours, the method of accountability for handling of library books and equipment, the method of determining higher education's need for capital outlay in terms of formulas, the accuracy of past estimates of educational and general funds within the appropriations for higher education and the legislative provisions relating to international students.

Culver named to board

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements today named Barbara G. Culver of Midland to the Criminal Justice Division Advisory Board.

Mrs. Culver is judge of the 318th District Court. She was appointed for a two-year term extending to Sept. 1, 1983.

Clements also has named James Roberts of Andrews to the Texas Board on Aging.

Roberts, 57, was reappointed to the board for a six-year term extending to Aug. 30, 1987.

Roberts is president, editor and publisher of Roberts Publishing Co., which publishes 13 newspapers in West Texas.

Defense says student blackmailed

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — Lawyers for a Texas A&M student on trial for capital murder in the stabbing death of another student contend that the victim blackmailed their client for money and drugs.

Defense attorney Doug Mulder produced former Secret Service handwriting expert James Lewis Tuesday, who testified that a list of drugs was written by Frederick Youngberg IV, 19.

Youngberg was killed in his apartment April 20. His body was found with 24 stab wounds and signs of rectal damage, police said.

Conviction affirmed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals today affirmed the conviction of Pedro Taverez Munoz, convicted in Midland County of possession of marijuana and initially given a two-year probated sentence on "deferred adjudication."

The appeals court, in a short opinion, reported the trial court subsequently revoked Munoz' probation and sentenced him to 10 years in prison.

The court said no brief was filed in the case, "and nothing has been found which would require our review in the interest of justice."

Air Force says Cooke statement not necessary

By ROBERT CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md. (AP) — Air Force prosecutors, barred from using 2nd Lt. Christopher Cooke's own words against him, say they still are confident that they can convince a court-martial to convict him of espionage charges.

They made the assertion Tuesday after an Air Force judge, Lt. Col. David Orser, refused to dismiss espionage charges against Cooke.

Orser, ruled, however, that prosecutors could not use as evidence a statement Cooke made last May or any information gained as a result of the still-secret statement.

Orser agreed with a defense contention that Cooke made the statement only after immunity was authorized by Brig. Gen. Claude Teagarden, the general counsel of the Strategic Air Command. Teagarden has denied authorizing the immunity mffer.

But the judge said the proper legal remedy was suppressing the statement and related evidence, not dismissing the charges. He said that only Gen. Richard Ellis, then the commander of SAC, was authorized to grant immunity.

Cooke, 26, the former deputy commander of a Titan II nuclear missile crew, is charged with providing sensitive data to the Soviets and failing to tell superiors of his contacts with the Soviet Embassy. If convicted on all charges, he could face up to 52 years at hard labor.

Kenneth Fishman, one of Cooke's civilian attorneys, said Orser's refusal to drop the charges will be appealed to the Court of Military Appeals.

Fishman said the defense will argue that because Teagarden was the legal spokesman for Ellis, his offer was tantamount to an offer from Ellis. Fishman added that by failing to correct the impression left by Teagarden, Ellis tacitly agreed to it.

The defense maintains that Cooke made the statement after being told he would not be prosecuted if he told the truth about his contacts with the Soviets and passed a lie detector test. The charges were filed after Cooke made the statement and passed a polygraph examination, the defense says.

Fishman said he was not entirely disappointed by Orser's ruling because the judge upheld several defense contentions that will be critical in arguments before the appellate court.

The situation in which a judge who is a lieutenant colonel rules on the accuracy of a general's testimony prompted another of Cooke's civilian lawyers, F. Lee Bailey, to complain that "command influence" was the "greatest vulnerability of the military justice system."

The Air Force says there is no such problem. Its corps of 32 military judges are insulated from the direct control of other Air Force officers during the time they serve as judges. They are responsible to the chief judge of the Air Force, Col. Allan Smith.

After their stint as judges, they generally return to the ranks of the Air Force's 1,300 lawyers or, in military terms, judge advocates. It is possible, for instance, that Orser could later come under Teagarden's command, meaning that Teagarden would write the fitness reports that help determine the course of his career.

Smith said he sees no conflict of interest there.

Chaos blamed for Italian boy's death

By CLARA HEMPHILL
Associated Press Writer

FRASCATI, Italy (AP) — The "maledetto pozzo," or cursed well, is covered with flowers now. They mark the spot where 6-year-old Alfredo Rampi wailed "Mama! Mama!" for three days while millions watched telecasts of the struggle to save him.

Neighbors say there is a constant stream of visitors to the well Alfredo fell into June 10 while playing in a dusty construction site near his grandmother's house.

Some visitors bring flowers, cross themselves and pray, leaning on a wooden fence that now surrounds the well.

Some curse the rescue services, accusing them of chaos that let the child die.

A statue of Alfredo has been erected in front of the Church of Vermicino, near the accident site on the outskirts of this hilltop town 15 miles south of Rome.

Thousands have written letters of sympathy to the parents, Franca and Nando Rampi.

"Even letters addressed 'Alfredo's mother, near Rome' arrived," Mrs. Rampi said in an interview.

A man from Florida sent $1,000 and others have sent smaller donations totaling another $1,000, she said.

The money will help support the Alfredo Rampi Center, opening Thursday, which will try to organize citizens' groups to improve emergency rescue work in Italy.

Mrs. Rampi, a housewife, said she hopes to channel her grief into change. The two-room office she and her accountant husband are opening in Rome will study the fire and police departments and other emergency rescue services and make suggestions for their improvement.

It also will try to coordinate volunteer rescue workers.

"We have a fire company that has to do everything — fires and boys in wells and railroad accidents and earthquake — and can't do anything well," Mrs. Rampi said.

"It's not anyone's fault. Italians are very altruistic. It's just disorganization."

After Alfredo fell into the narrow, muddy well, someone put the heavy metal cover back on. The parents searched for for their son for hours in vineyards and olive groves and along the dusty unpaved roads before they heard his cries coming from the covered well.

"If we hadn't heard him cry, we never would have known what happened to him," the mother said.

Firemen drilled a shaft parallel to the well to bring the boy out, but the vibration of the drill widened the well slightly and the child slipped deeper down, to 60 yards below the surface.

On the second day, half a dozen volunteer cave explorers slithered down the 12-inch-wide shaft. A few reached the boy, but his muddy hands slipped out of their grasp.

A policeman on the scene gave one volunteer a pair of handcuffs to put on the boy, but they were adult size and slipped off his tiny hands.

"There was no organization," said Mrs. Rampi.

Malpractice suit settled

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — An out-of court settlement has been reached in a malpractice suit filed in state court against a San Angelo surgeon in the death of 58-year-old patient.

The suit against Dr. David Sadler was filed by relatives of Floy W. Luckett, also of San Angelo. Luckett died after a needle biopsy was performed in February, 1980, at St. John's Hospital on a lesion on one of her lungs, according to the suit.

Attorneys for both sides in the case declined to reveal terms of the settlement. The case had been scheduled to be heard this week in state district court but was settled before a jury could be selected.

The suit alleged that Sadler had been negligent in allegedly failing to take a medical history and perform an examination of the patient.

Washington County inquiry indicts no one

BRENHAM, Texas (AP) — Grand jurors found no evidence of wrongdoing during their investigation of Washington County officials — including former Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher — and ended the inquiry without returning any indictments, the district attorney said.

The county grand jury was looking into alleged improprieties in the leasing of county-owned land in another West Texas county.

But District Attorney Charles Sebesta said Tuesday that the investigation was the result of a misunderstanding and that no indictments would be returned.

"There's no evidence to indicate anyone has been paid off in monetary terms," Sebesta said.

MUTSCHER, who contended the investigation was politically motivated, said he was pleased.

"I am proud that the judicial process properly functions in this county," he said.

San Angelo rancher Harvey Schwartz had charged he was told by a Tom Green County official that he would have to bribe Washington County officials to have a chance on securing a grazing lease on 13,000 acres of Washington County-owned land near San Angelo.

Bids for the leases are considered by a county commissioners court headed by Mutscher, a county judge.

But Sebesta said Schwartz was confused about the bid and how lease money could be spent by the county.

When county officials told him that money spent on land improvements have to be listed separately from actual lease payments on the bid forms, Schwartz misunderstood and thought the offical was suggesting a kickback, Sebesta said.

SCHWARTZ, who appeared before the grand jury last month, could not be reached for comment.

Sebasta said Tuesday that the bidding on the land was now complete.

The land is part of a state allotment that was used to fund the county school district before it was abolished five years ago. Most counties have sold their lands, but Washington County continues to lease its, splitting the interest between Brenham and Burton school districts.

Mutscher became a Washington County judge upon completing probation on a felony conviction for conspiracy to accept a bribe while he was House speaker in 1970.

He was convicted in connection with bribes allegedly paid to influence legislation for Houston financier Frank W. Sharp.

Judge hears head shop testimony

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge says he'll decide later this week whether Texas' new drug paraphernalia law is unconstitutionally vague and should be stricken from the criminal code books.

U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. heard conflicting testimony Tuesday on whether the new law will act as a deterrent to drug abuse.

Dallas vice squad Cmdr. Donald H. Millikan told Belew the law would be tough to enforce because the statute prohibits sale of an item with the intent of using it to consume illegal drugs.

"In terms of making a case against a head shop, my personal opinion is that you'd have to have tangible proof of intent," said Millikan.

"Just because it (an item banned under the law) is there is not sufficient proof of intent," Millikan told Belew.

However, state Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, testified that the new statute "absolutely, definitely" will curb drug abuse.

"There are many ways to approach the (drug abuse) problem," he said. "This is one I think is significant."

Their testimony came in a suit filed by 50 tobacco shop operators who say the law is unconstitutionally vague and unenforceable.

The new law was to go into effect Sept. 1 but was delayed by Belew, who issued a temporary restraining order against its enforcement.

Family jogging from Florida to Ohio for football game

FINCASTLE, Ohio (AP) — Over the past three months, members of the Barreto family of Naples, Fla., say they've jogged an average of 15 to 20 miles daily. It has all been in one direction: away from home.

They say they've logged 1,132 miles on their jogging shoes during their 93-day trek. Their goal is to run into the Ashland College stadium at halftime of the homecoming football game Oct. 17 to a cheering crowd, college officials say.

Ed and Sandra Barreto, both 45 and physical education teachers, and daughters Leslie, 21, Lynda, 19, and Leigh, 18, left home June 20, bound for Ashland, Ohio, and have been running ever since, according to college officials. It will be the 20th anniversary of their graduation together.

By Monday afternoon, they were in the southern Ohio hamlet of Fincastle and well ahead of schedule, with just 157 miles to go.

"Our muscles are hard as boards," Barreto said.

To go on the road, Barreto quit his job as jogging coach at the Raquet Club of Naples. The daughters, all college students, are on a break from their studies.

"Aside from a few calluses, everything is as we predicted before the run," Barreto said.

Although they may run 15 to 20 miles per day, Barreto said he is emphasizing patience and persistence rather than speed and distance.

"A day is a day is a day," he said. "We never know how a day is going to turn out. Some of these roads aren't too much fun.

"But I like to tell people we take time to smell the flowers. And we do like to see the cows and horses, the trees and grass and flowers. There's a lot to be seen."

They occasionally double back a mile or so or stop early for convenience, and are followed by a van which carries supplies, including lots of liniment.

They jogged across the Ohio River from Maysville, Ky., to Aberdeen, Ohio, on Friday, then returned to spend the night in a Maysville church.

"This kind of run is just not made many times by women," Barreto said. "We've worn out four pair of shoes, and we will have another new pair waiting for us at Galion, Ohio."

"We are teachers but there is more than one way to teach," he said. "We concentrate on health, exercise and diet. This is our way to emphasize physical fitness. Sometimes we can do a better job on the road than in the classrooms."

He said some 25 to 30 companies are sponsoring the run.

Barreto described his as a closely knit family and, because they are Catholic, they have stopped frequently in parish homes and churches.

Barreto said he and his wife taught seven years in Ohio and 14 in Naples. He's always been a science and physical education teacher. His wife taught art and English most of those years but has now switched to teaching physical education.

Ed Barrete, left, his wife, Sandra, and their three daughters, Leslie, Lynda and Leigh, jog near Fincastle, Ohio, Monday, after jogging over 1,130 miles from their home in Naples, Fla. The family is 157 miles short of their goal which is Ashland College. They hope to jog into the football stadium there at half-time of the homecoming game on Oct. 17.

Oktoberfest marred by memorial to bomb victims

MUNICH, West Germany — Under 77-degree sunshine that anyone might envy, the 147th Oktoberfest foamed upward Monday after a somewhat flat tapping this weekend.

Old Oktoberfest hands considered the opening ceremonies less heady than usual, perhaps partly because the weather was cloudy and damp.

Maybe also because Lord Mayor Erich Kiesel had difficulty switching from gavel to bunghammer and struggled before serving the first massive mug of beer to Bavarian Gov. Franz-Josef Strauss.

But more likely the faint sadness surrounding this year's bow to the blessing of brewing is traceable to Sept. 26, 1980.

On that day, a terrorist's bomb exploded at one of the main entrances to the grounds, killing 12 people, including a young neo-Nazi whom police blamed for the explosion, which also injured more than 200 revelers.

This year, to enter or leave by this gate, one must pass a floral memorial to the bomb's victims. Some visitors hurry nervously by, but others dutifully pause.

George Page, Director of Launch Operations for the Space Shuttle, points to an area on the Shuttle Columbia where a leak of highly toxic fuel occurred, damaging a number of the tiles. The scheduled launch of the shuttle has been delayed for at least two weeks due to the accident.

Fuel spill delays shuttle launch

BY IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The space shuttle Columbia, hampered by problems and delays prior to its first successful launch in April, has had its second journey postponed for as much as a month or more following a fuel spill on the launchpad.

The delay of the scheduled Oct. 9 launch could last from a week to more than a month depending on the extent of damage to tile bonding material and whether propellant leaked into the spacecraft's maneuvering system, launch operations director George Page said.

In the predawn mishap Tuesday, several gallons of nitrogen tetroxide, an oxidizer, spilled on an area at least 18 to 20 feet long and two to six feet wide on the orbiter's nose near the cockpit. At least 67 heat-protective tiles fell off or were removed, and up to 250 may have been affected, Page said.

The silica tiles thmselves did not appear to be damaged, he said, but adhesive attaching them to the space plane's aluminum skin was destroyed or rendered ineffective. Page said he hoped the tiles could be reset while the shuttle remained on Launchpad 39A.

If the spill damaged the inside of the orbiter, extensive repairs could be required. The shuttle would have to be rolled back to the Vehicle Assembly Building, taken apart and towed to its hangar, Page said.

The oxidizer was still emitting toxic fumes Tuesday night while a half-dozen workers clad in protective suits tried to find how far the spill had reached. Scaffolds were to be erected to reach some areas of the spacecraft as soon as the launch site was free of danger.

The accident occurred after the shuttle completed its last major tests successfully and it looked as though everything was on schedule for liftoff.

The five-day mission will be the first time the Columbia has carried a payload, a package of scientific instruments. A 50-foot mechanical arm will also be stowed in its cargo bay and tested in space. The shuttle is designed to be used over and over.

Some 31,000 tiles insulate the shuttle against the heat of atmospheric re-entry. Made of a silica fiber compound, they were individually sized, fitted and bonded onto 75 percent of the orbiter's skin.

Development of the tiles was one of the most troublesome and tedious processes faced by NASA scientists in the shuttle program, delaying the maiden launch more than two years.

Several thousand tiles lost when the shuttle flew here piggyback aboard a Boeing 747 jet from California had to be replaced before the first mission could get off the ground in spring.

It was feared the loss of a few tiles during the April launch would jeopardize the shuttle's return to Earth, but the Columbia glided safely to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. on April 14 after 54 hours in space.

Two junior high campers shot

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — The flag at Lake Elsinore Junior High flew at half-staff as students paid silent tribute to two classmates — one slain in a weekend shooting, the other hospitalized — and raised a $300 reward for the capture of the gunman.

Vanessa Iberri, 12, died Monday night at a Mission Viejo hospital, two days after the apparently random shooting at a campground in nearby Cleveland National Forest. She was struck in the head, as was her friend, Kelly Cartier, also 12. Kelly was reported in good condition Tuesday after undergoing cranial surgery and was being kept under police guard because she is a witness.

A murder warrant was issued by Orange County Municipal Court for the arrest of Thomas Francis Edwards, 37, a gun range employee. Deputies were scouring the woods for him and warned rangers in other Southern California parks and forests to be on the lookout for Edwards, described as a proficient woodsman.

"The mood is very somber," said Francis Gregory, principal of of the junior high school, "We're all saddened and sick, and a lot of us have been doing quite a bit of crying."

Gregory used the school public address system Tuesday to call for a moment of silence for the two girls.

He said Vanessa and Kelly began classes Sept. 8 and were "like most seventh graders, a bit apprehensive about starting at a new school. But they were both doing fine. They were both good little kids. God only knows why it should happen to them."

Deputies said Edwards, a part-time range officer at a gun club in Irvine, was recently divorced, reportedly frequented the campground and was believed to be living out of the back of his pickup.

Officials said the girls were walking in the park near where they had been camping with Miss Iberri's family when a man in a pickup drove to within 10 feet of the girls and called for them to come over. As they walked toward the truck, each was shot in the head, officials said.

"Apparently he shouted something like 'Hey, girls, stop.' Then he fired twice at a range of about 10 feet. It was entirely senseless," said sheriff's Lt. Wyatt Hart. He said officers knew of no motive for the shooting.

Sheriff's officers said a witness to the shooting followed the gunman's truck and got its license number.

Police have warned people through television and radio broadcasts not to go near Edwards if they think they see him. Anyone who sees a man matching his description should instead notify police immediately, investigators said.

Students at the school had made a 2- by 3-foot get-well card for Kelly but said they wouldn't deliver it until she went home.

Sentencing phase to begin in Franklin trial

By GEORGE TIBBITS
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Saying he isn't scared of dying, Joseph Paul Franklin was heading for court today to face a jury that will decide whether he will be sentenced to face a firing squad or receive life in prison for killing two young black joggers.

The all-white jury that convicted the avowed racist on two counts of first-degree murder was scheduled to convene today for the penalty phase of his trial. The hearing had been planned for Monday, but was delayed after defense attorneys asked for more time to prepare for witnesses expected to testify.

In another development, the Utah Supreme Court issued a ruling Tuesday outlining a standard for sentencing in capital cases that may affect Franklin's case. Attorneys in the case could not be reached for comment.

Franklin was found guilty early Saturday of the Aug. 20, 1980 deaths of Ted Fields, 20, and David Martin, 18, both shot by a sniper while jogging with two young white women near Liberty Park in Salt Lake City.

The jury deliberated for about five hours before reaching its verdict. The trial began Aug. 31.

In a telephone interview Tuesday with the Birmingham (Ala.) Post-Herald, Franklin, 31, of Mobile, Ala., said he doesn't fear death, and blames members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints for what he called an unfair trial.

"So what? I'm not worried about it," Franklin said of the death penalty. "I just figure whatever the Lord allows to happen, happens. I have Jesus Christ with me."

He said he could not kill, but hates blacks, interracial couples and Mormons.

"Those Mormons around here ... they shoot you if you're a racist or lock you up," Franklin said. "You can't expect justice from a Mormon state. The only crime I committed was being in Salt Lake City."

Franklin is acting as his own attorney, assisted by Salt Lake City lawyer David Yocom and former Utah Supreme Court Justice D. Frank Wilkins.

During the penalty phase, both sides are permitted to present witnesses to testify on aggravating or mitigating circumstances in the case.

All 12 jurors have to agree on the death penalty for it to be imposed. A death sentence is automatically appealed.

The Utah Supreme Court ruling came in an appeal by Walter Wood, who was convicted and sentenced to death in the 1978 killing of a Lutheran minister. In ordering resentencing for Wood, the high court said the trial judge who sentenced him erred by concluding the death sentence is mandated if there is a "preponderance" of aggravating circumstances over mitigating factors in the case.

The court said a judge or jury that imposes the death penalty "must be persuaded beyond a reasonable doubt that total aggravation outweighs total mitigation." Further, the judge or jury must be persuaded the death penalty is justified and appropriate in the circumstances.

Franklin was convicted in federal court in March of violating the civil rights of Martin and Fields by killing them. He was sentenced to two consecutive life prison terms on those counts.

He also is charged in the deaths of two black men in Indianapolis and in the slayings of a black man and white woman in Oklahoma City.

Oswald judge asked for second injunction

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A state judge has been asked to choose between his own ruling blocking the exhumation of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald and a ruling by a Texas appeals court that reversed his decision.

District Judge James E. Wright has been asked by Oswald's brother to issue a second injunction today that would postpone or prohibit Oswald's exhumation.

But attorneys involved in the case say even if Wright refuses to issue the injunction, other obstacles could delay the proposed unearthing of Oswald's grave.

"We have no timetable," said Dallas attorney Jerry Pittman, who represents Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, in her efforts to exhume the body.

A second attorney representing Mrs. Porter, Michael F. Pezzulli, said his client hasn't made arrangements yet for a possible autopsy of the body.

Pezzulli said Mrs. Porter hopes to obtain the services of "a medical expert — a pathologist" if her efforts to exhume Oswald's remains are successful.

Still another lawyer involved in the case, Thomas Boswell, said Rose Park Memorial Cemetery in Fort Worth won't cooperate in the exhumation without a separate court order compelling it to do so.

Mrs. Porter and her former brother-in-law, Robert Oswald, are locked in a dispute over the proposed disinterment. Robert Oswald has filed requests for a restraining order and an injunction to keep Mrs. Porter from disturbing Oswald's grave, located in east Fort Worth.

The judge had issued an earlier injunction blocking the proposed exhumation but his ruling was reversed last week by Texas' 2nd Court of Appeals.

The seeds of the dispute were planted several years ago, when British author Michael Eddowes theorized that the body in Oswald's grave was that of a Soviet imposter who had assumed Oswald's identity before the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Mrs. Porter last year gave Eddowes her written permission to exhume the remains. She later rescinded her approval, but not before she and Eddowes were named in a suit filed by Robert Oswald, who calls his brother's grave "a sacred site."

Wright ruled in Robert Oswald's favor and issued an injunction blocking Eddowes' exhumation attempt.

Shot driver will not file charges

HOUSTON (AP) — A driver shot after a minor traffic accident at a downtown intersection Tuesday said he will not press charges against the man who shot him, police said.

Police were searching for a bail bondsman in connection with the shooting of Stephen Japhet, 36, an elevator installer. Japhet was listed in fair condition after being hit by two bullets, officials at Methodist Hospital said.

Witnesses said the incident occurred after a black Corvette with Nevada license plates bumped the rear of a pickup driven by Japhet an elevator installer. Japhet was stopped at a traffic light.

Ernest Ferguson, 46, a construction worker, said Japhet put his truck in reverse and rammed the front of the Corvette. Ferguson said Japhet and the driver of the Corvette, who was detained at the scene, got into an argument and shoving match.

Ferguson said the Corvette's passenger, the bail bondsman, got out of the car as Japhet went to his truck and returned with a length of pipe. As Japhet returned, Ferguson said, shots were fired. One witness said she heard four shots.

Japhet was hit in the thigh and abdomen, a hospital official said.

Cola's effect on kids same as coffee effect on adults

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know you've written that coffee is not the only food that contains caffeine. My son likes to have a cola drink with his lunch. Is that the same as drinking a cup of coffee? — Mrs. H.D., Pittsburgh, PA

Dear Mrs. D.: Ms. Joyce Price, a registered dietician at the Duke University Medical Center, says that a 12-ounce cola drink may have the same effect on a young child as four cups of instant coffee have on an adult.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My baby used to suffer from a rash, and my pediatrician told me it's because he is allergic to cow's milk. Are there any other indications that an infant may be allergic to milk? — Mr. T.A., Scranton, PA

Dear Mrs. A.: There are a number of symptoms that may be associated with an allergy to milk. They include skin eruptions such as you describe — a rash, eczema, or hives. But they may also take the form of digestive problems such as colic, diarrhea, and constipation, or respiratory tract difficulties such as post-nasal dip, which may cause choking or wheezing. In addition, failure to gain weight and an irritable disposition may be linked with a milk allergy.

Dear Dr. Solommon: I've been told that my baby is allergic to milk. I know enough to keep away from the obvious products such as butter, cheese, and ice cream, but I know there are less well-known foods tht also contain milk. Would you be able t provide me with a list of these? — Mrs. F.E., Montgomery, Ala

Dear Mrs. E.: Many foods either contain milk or nonfat dry milk. the only way to aovid them is to be sure to read the list of ingredients on the label.

Some hiden sources of milk include baked goods, candy adn chocolate, frankfurters and cold cuts, creamed soups and vegetables, puddings, and salad dressings. I want to stress that this is only a partial listing. I suggest you get into the habit of reading the list of ingredients on the labels of the products you plan to buy.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is there anything new to report on th use of vitamin C to prevent colds? You once wrote that there was research being done on the subject, but I haven't seen anything in the papers about it. — Faye, NYC

Dear Faye: The value of vitamin C in preventing the common cold, as well as to treat cancer and promote healing of wounds, is still a controversial subject. Anyone who wants to take either side of the argument would be able to find plenty of support for either point of view.

One of the more recent studies, by Dr. R.W. Vilter of rhe University of Cinncinati Medical Center, indicates that massive doses of vitamin C are not only ineffective, but may be hazardous as well. He says, however, tht a slight increase in daily doses may be of some value for patients who have recenlty undergone surgery.

Anonymous group is gearing up for new draft board

By LON DANIELS
Hearst Feature Service

A small and anonymous group of Americans is preparing for something they hope they never have to do.

These are the people who may have to decide to send young American males off to fight and, perhaps, die in one of the dozen wars that seem on the verge of happening.

Though America still does not have a draft, and hasn't since President Nixon repealed it in 1973, the government is busily, if quietly, setting up the apparatus under which the draft can be quickly reinstituted in case of war emergency.

The new draft boards — although officials eschew that phrase in favor of the less emotional "claims boards" — are currently in the selection process.

Altogether, there will be about 11,000 new board members across the nation, doing little except making the occasional speech in the no-pay jobs unless the draft is reinstituted.

There are those who think that won't happen, even though President Carter reinstituted registration for the draft in 1980 after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

President Reagan is on record opposing a peacetime draft and his military planners insist the military buildup he advocates will maintain the peace and keep a draft unnecessary.

Others, however, think the new claims boards are just another step in the inevitable return to a draft as world tensions continue to rise.

The new boards will be different than the old draft boards, which were composed mostly of civic "doers" who decided who would be inducted into the military.

Under current procedures, if the draft is reinstituted, those drafted would be selected by a national lottery and, with few exceptions, almost all 18-year-olds would be included in the draft.

The new claims boards would then adjudicate individual claims for deferment or exemption. Reasons for not being drafted would be severely more restricted than under the old draft procedures, Selective Service officials insist.

Though the critics remain suspicious, Selective Service officials say it is necessary now to put the claims apparatus in place because there would not be time in a national emergency.

The new five-member boards will must have at least one black and one woman, a marked departure from the usually all-white boards of the past.

Appointees must be non-military, between 18 and 60 years old and cannot have served as a board member within the last 15 years.

If and when the boards are forced to go into action, they may find that no matter what the law says about nearly every 18-year-old having to register, some young men still won't be presenting themselves to be chosen or deferred.

That's because a lot of potential draftees are not registering. In the initial sign-up when registration was renewed in 1980, Selective Service officials estimated compliance at 95 percent, though anti-draft organizations put the figure far lower.

Since then, the figure has declined to about 70 per cent and officials say a half million young Americans could be in violation of the registration law by the end of the year.

Current procedures require young men to register at a local post office within 30 days of their 19th birthday. Failure to do so could result in a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Despite repeated pledges to the Justice Department and Selective Service to prosecute violators, however, there have been no widespread prosecutions.

Cars neglected with use of self-service stations

By SUE ALFORD
Traffic Safety Planning
Midland College

The rise of self service pumps at gas stations is to many a blessing, a way to save money. But many station owners, who are also concerned citizens, think people are neglecting everyday car maintenance when using self service.

Specifically, in doing a survey for the Shell Answer Book, The Self-Service Book, one station owner checked 100 self service customers' cars. Here's what he found: 55 were at least a quart low on oil, 34 were low on radiator coolant, 27 batteries were low on water, 29 needed power steering fluid, 28 needed brake fluid, and 33 had at least one tire well below the recommended pressure level.

Well, I'm afraid many of us would show poorly, if we, too, were involved in a spot check. The Shell Book reviews how to avoid these things, and so the basics are covered in today's column.

First, we don't need a bunch of special tools to do basic maintenance checks; we need a rag and a tire guage.

With a cold engine or after the car has sat awhile, then, start off with checking the oil. Pull the dipstick out, wipe it off, put it back in all the way and pull it out again. The oil on the end of the stick should be between "ADD" and "FULL." If the reading is at or below the "ADD" mark, add a quart of oil; recheck the reading to see if it is full.

Next, check the coolant level. In newer cars, you don't even have to remove the radiator cap...you just check the overflow tank (which looks like a plastic gallon jug) to see if it is at the proper level. In older cars, you must check via the radiator cap. If the cap is too hot to rest your hand on, it is too hot to open. So, check when it is cool, and then the coolant level should be about an inch below the bottom of the filler neck.

Tire pressure should be checked about once a month, once you know the proper inflation level. This should be done before you start driving or have driven only a few miles. If checked while hot or after having been on the road, they should read over the recommended level: in that case, leave it.

Remember, too, to check the tread wear.

Checking the battery should be next on the list...monthly in cold weather, weekly in hot weather and daily on long trips. The fluid level in a battery is correct if it touches the filler neck and "puckers" a little. Make sure the battery cables are uncorroded. If they are corroded, a paste of baking soda and water will clean it — pour it on, wait a minute, hose off.

Then, there are two highly ignored areas, checking the transmission and brake fluids. As with oil, the checking is done with a dipstick: While the car is running, in "PARK" and level for the transmission fluid; while the car is off for the brake fluid. See owner's manual for levels on power steering and transmission; have the brake fluid level just one quarter inch from the top of the reservoir.

SCHOOL ZONES: It seems motorists need to be reminded that School Zones are again in effect. Please do slow down around schools. We never know when a youngster will dart out; give yourself time to react.

30 amateur detectives gather for Sherlockiana

By MARLENE AIG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The game was afoot for some 30 amateur detectives as they sought the crime and the criminal from clues that included a wedding picture, a painted snake and a train schedule, all under the guidance of the greatest detective of them all — Sherlock Holmes.

"At Home With Holmes," an afternoon of Sherlockiana and sherry, was sponsored by the Route of All Evil, an organization devoted to entertaining and enlightening mystery fans.

"I'm only wearing this outfit at your insistence," said Hofstra University Professor Arthur Liebman of Roslyn Heights, who played a healthy-looking Holmes, attired in deerstalker and Inverness cape, clutching a calabash pipe. "One just doesn't wear a deerstalker in London, you know."

He welcomed the gathering Sunday to a makeshift 221-B Baker Street, which in reality was the Ethical Culture Society near Central Park, by toasting Holmes and wishing the novice detectives luck.

It was not clear what crime had been committed.

France quietly participating in NATO war games

By JOHN HARRIS
Hearst Feature Service

FRANKFURT, West Germny — France, which officially withdrew from the NATO military command in 1966, is quietly participating in the current NATO war games in Europe and has committed at least one Mirage fighter-bomber squadron to a simulated battle staged near here.

French officials refused to confirm or deny the Mirage or any other French involvement in the games, but Allied officials said French involvement in NATO military affairs was "more positive" since the election of socialist President Francois Mitterand than it had been during the administration of former President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, a conservative.

The Allied officials also disclosed that the U.S. maintains a four-man U.S. air force detachment that works with French military air controllers at Orly airport in Paris. They also said that the U.S. Air Force recently "ran penetration missions" to test French air defense — at French request.

"The French are always involved in some way with American and NATO maneuvers in Europe," one official said. "They have always had ships participating in NATO maneuvers in the Mediterranean. Now they're in this war game, too. They just don't like to admit it."

The war game, named "Autumn Forge," is the biggest maneuver of its kind staged in Europe since the end of World War II, and involves a record, emergency airlift of 17,000 U.S. troops to West Germany. About 300,000 American and Allied troops are involved in the entire exercise, being held from Norway to the Mediterranean.

In a recent exercise, the 8th U.S. Infantry Division came under heavy simulated attack by British and West German forces. The 8th infantry was "defended" by aircraft of the 4th Allied Tactical Air Force, which includes U.S. A-10 and F-4 planes "and a squadron of French air force Mirages," a qualified source said.

Allied officers recalled that a former NATO commander, U.S. Air Force General Lauris Norstad, once remarked that "there is no air defense of western Europe without France, and vice versa." They noted too, that NATO's entire air defense was once commanded by a French air force general even after France withdrew from the NATO military command.

The French withdrawal was ordered by the late President Charles de Gaulle, who insisted that only France would henceforth control French forces. Other countries in the 15-member NATO alliance have surrendered a degree of sovereignty by placing their forces under the U.S. led NATO command.

NATO accordingly moved its headquarter from France to Belgium, but observers note that French military officers, in uniform, are in evidence at the Belgium-located headquarters in the same manner as other NATO officers. Despite the military withdrawal, too, France has remained a full member of the NATO political alliance.

Plastic baseball playoffs don't seem to be fooling fans

An AP Sports Analysis
By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Presenting ... drum roll, please, maestro ... the team with the very best record in baseball, the Cincinnati Reds.

Take a bow, Manager John McNamara. Nice job. Enjoy the spotlight, though, because when the mini-playoffs begin Oct. 6, you guys could be sitting at home, finished for the season.

Now how can that be? How can a team finish with the best record in baseball and still not qualify for the playoffs? Only in this abomination of a split season, where good is bad and up is down, could such silliness take place.

Cincinnati made the mistake of being one-half game behind Los Angeles when the strike hit June 12. In the interest of expediency, their 35-21 first-half record was sacrificed by the people in charge when play resumed. And even though the Reds (23-17 in the second half) had the best overall record in the two leagues going into Tuesday's games, they were assured of nothing. Unless they can catch Houston and finish first for the second half, or unless the Dodgers catch Houston and Cincinnati finishes second to LA, the Reds can head for home.

That's ridiculous.

Some baseball people, who aren't afraid of their shadows, speak their minds on the issue. One of them is Whitey Herzog, manager and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals. Herzog is a traditionalist and the Cards voiced opposition to the split-season plan when it was first announced. Nothing has happened, not even his club's first-place standing in the second half, to change his mind.

"I think it's a farce," Herzog said the other day. "What are we playing for? There's no interest in it."

That seems to be the opinion of the Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies, Oakland A's and New York Yankees, who all earned playoff berths because they had the good sense to be leading their respective divisions when baseball went on its summer vacation.

All four teams have strolled through the second half, simply because winning or losing isn't terribly vital to them. They've got their postseason spots locked up. The important games for them begin in a couple of weeks. By then, the Reds and their best record in baseball may be long gone.

Trying to mend the anguish of the strike, baseball came up with the split-season concoction to create races and interest. The effort was understandable. The result has been lamentable.

Herzog is a bottom-line guy. The bottom line in box scores is the attendance. The Cards came into Chicago this week for a vital series. Here were the Cubs, winners of nothing since 1945, bidding for the quarter-pennant, just 3½ games behind first-place St. Louis. For the first game of the series, the teams drew 3,634 fans. For the second one, 4,531 showed up.

"We really packed them in, didn't we?" Herzog noted.

The fans know phony races when they see them. The New York Mets swept three games from the Cards over the weekend, the last one with a dramatic two-out, two-run ninth-inning homer by Mookie Wilson. That pushed them within 2½ games of the top. The next night, 7,429 hearty souls showed up at Shea Stadium.

"Two-and-a-half games out," grumbled Herzog. "They're not 2½ out. They're 13½ out."

Well, this is true, only if you include the Mets' miserable 17-34 first-half record. Details, details, details.

Baseball is selling us terrific pennant races. Look at that — going into Tuesday's action, six games separated the six teams in the American League East. Toronto's annual also-rans were four games out of first place. Four teams were separated by three games in the American League West. Texas, playing under .500, is bidding for the title.

If you really want races, baseball's got 'em. But they're not the ones that show up in the standings every morning. Try combining the standings for the two halves and here's what you get before Tuesday's games:

National League East: St. Louis 52-42, Philadelphia 51-43, Montreal 51-44. The Cards are one game up on the Phillies and 1½ ahead of the Expos.

National League West: Cincinnati 58-38, Los Angeles 58-39, Houston 54-43. The Reds are one-half game up on the Dodgers and 4½ ahead of the Astros.

American League East: New York 55-41, Detroit 56-42, Boston 54-40, Milwaukee 55-43, Baltimore 52-41. The Yankees, Tigers and Red Sox are tied, all within three percentage points of each other, with the Brewers one game back and the Orioles 1½ behind.

American League West: Oakland 56-41, Texas 51-42. The A's are three up on the Rangers.

Splitting the season erased those races and replaced them with phony ones. That fits in nicely with plastic grass and 10-man lineups.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

After seeing Bart Ryan put the ball in the air for 97 yards and one touchdown against the Plainview Bulldogs last Friday at Memorial Stadium, there are surely those wanting to issue Air Force wings to the Midland Lee senior.

After all, Lee has not been your basic Air Force attack squadron for several years now. Ninety-seven yards in the airways is not unusual for your average Abilene Cooper or Abilene High, but for the Lee Rebels, 97 yards is like discovering you have wings for the first time. Even Wilbur and Orville wouldn't believe that the Rebels could get off the ground.

LEE IS a member of the infantry. Artillery is not supposed to be listed in their play book. Quarterback Ryan is supposed to be ranked with the privates at Lee with a simple job. He's supposed to hand off to Calvin Riggs and let "Thunder" take its toll. It's supposed to be Over Hill, Over Dale — not Over the Rainbow.

Who told the kid he could throw? Doesn't Bart "Overhead" Ryan have any love of tradition? He's supposed to keep those caissons rolling along over dusty trails. If Ryan keeps up the habit of lifting his right arm, he will be barred from West Point until the Monday after eternity.

Ryan even had the gall to toss a dynamite stick to Luther Johnson. It exploded for a 53-yard touchdown. That's 53 yards in one play. That kind of stuff will make "Thunder" Riggs very angry. It made him angry Friday. I heard him say, "Bart doesn't appreciate hard work. He wants to score the easy way and he won't give me the ball anymore."

One can understand Riggs' feelings. He gained only 43 yards on 11 carries Friday. Riggs never breaks a sweat until he carries 25 or 30 times. He must have been mad at Ryan because he took his frustrations out on Plainview's offense by playing what may have been his best defensive performance. After all, he had all that built up energy to displace somewhere. Plainview quarterback Steve George probably wishes "Thunder" would take his act back to the offense.

BEFORE WE get too carried away, it must be noted that Ryan threw only nine times, completing five. That's really not airway overkill by any means and won't make Reagan bring back the air controllers, but when it is tossed into Lee's infantry mold, it makes sore eyes open wide.

If opponents learn that Lee can throw the football, they will have to pick on someone other than Riggs to key on. The days of Riggs right and Riggs left may be by the boards.

Ryan may get a promotion from private if Riggs doesn't kill him in practice this week. Bart better not turn the wrong way while practicing a handoff to his fullback, or he might learn first hand what "Thunder" is all about — something other teams have known for a long time.

Tailback Troy Barber, however, doesn't let either Riggs or Ryan stand in his way this year. The speed merchant is dialing long distance by himself with TD runs of 66 and 85 yards. In fact, Riggs swam for 83 yards against Snyder from punt formation in the rain. And now Bart is going to the air.

Would someone please ask coach Spike Dykes what ever happened to that four yards and a cloud of dust attack? This talk is all foreign to our Saturday morning bacon and eggs. We may have to start having a light-aired souffle for breakfast.

Got that Calvin? Something light and fast is now the "in" thing at Lee. Tanks are out — until needed. But tanks are always needed for the final kill.

Faust is humbled by Michigan defeat

CHICAGO (AP) — Although he hadn't lost a football game since 1977, new Notre Dame Coach Gerry Faust said his team's big loss to Michigan Saturday may not have been all bad.

"Losing is tough and it humbles you quickly," Faust said Tuesday in his weekly telephone news conference. "It could be a blessing in disguise. I hope it makes us a better team and a better staff. I don't want to be humble again."

The Irish fell to the Wolverines 25-7 on Saturday, a week after Faust made his collegiate debut with a victory over Louisiana State.

"I hate losing, it's been a long time," said Faust, who had a 174-17-2 record at Cincinnati's Moeller High School, where he last lost a game four seasons ago.

He admitted Michigan outplayed Notre Dame, but he couldn't avoid second-guessing himself.

"I second-guess myself when we get beat, never when we win," Faust said. "Things might have changed had we kicked a field goal and scored first, I don't know. The play was there. We didn't execute. If I had to do it over again, I probably would have done the same thing."

Notre Dame attempted a fake field goal with Dave Condeni, the holder, throwing a pass to Tony Hunter. The throw was high and Hunter was unable to ctach it.

"Michigan got the momentum, Michigan was intense while we were waiting around for something to happen," said Faust. "Football is a game of momentum. You must make your own momentum if you don't get the breaks. Momentum and intensity, those were the two big things that beat us and Michigan played better on offense and defense than we did.

"If you play your best and lose, there's nothing you can do about it. Otherwise, you have to get tougher on the players. We'll be looking at them this week and when they make a wrong move, they'll know about it.

"If I've made a mistake, it's not worrying about the little things," said Faust. "Maybe the loss will get me back on the track and evaluate myself."

Notre Dame and Faust face a similar situation this week. Last Saturday the Irish had to go to Michigan after the Wolverines had been upset by Wisconsin. This week they go to Purdue after the Boilermakers were upset at Minnesota.

Packers add fuel with Jefferson

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The arrival of John Jefferson could give the Green Bay Packers, already armed with the much-heralded James Lofton, the best outside receiving duo in the National Football League.

Should that occur, Coach Bart Starr will have Bob Harlan, Packer corporate assistant, to thank for the acquisition of Jefferson. Starr said Harlan was the man who reached agreement Tuesday with Jefferson's agent Howard Slusher.

The settlement was announced after telephone bargaining had extended past a deadline initially imposed on the Packers for signing Jefferson or having him revert to ownership of the San Diego Chargers.

JEFFERSON HAS been a holdout from the Chargers since training camp, and Starr said it was uncertain how soon Jefferson would be ready to play — although "he could" Sunday against the Minnesota Vikings.

Jefferson was expected here today to sign a series of four one-year contracts.

The trade, announced last Thursday, was conditional on the Packers being able to sign Jefferson. In exchange for Jefferson, the Chargers get receiver Aundra Thompson, a first-round draft choice and two second-round picks from Green Bay.

The Chargers said they have until Feb. 1 to decide whether to take the first-round pick from Green Bay in 1982, 1983 or 1984. They will have second-round picks from Green Bay in the two years in which they do not exercise the first-round choice.

In the years in which the Chargers have Green Bay's second-round picks, they will have the right to switch drafting position with the Packers in the first round.

Charger owner Gene Klein said in San Diego the club had trade discussions involving Jefferson with 16 NFL teams, and that "this was by far the best possible trade."

The cost to the Packers is higher than originally thought. Speculation had it involving a first- and a second-round pick, plus Thompson. But they said they were delighted when agreement with Slusher was reached.

Harlan and Slusher several times extended deadlines which had been imposed on the Packers in the negotiations. They first discussed the matter in a two-hour meeting in Los Angeles Saturday.

"We really went beyond the trade deadline," Harlan said. "Howard and I visited at noon ... He was ready to climb into a dentist's chair. I told him we had one hour left. He was kind enough to cancel his dental appointment and go back to his office so we could talk."

The Packers dropped the last three years of the contract he had with the Chargers while insisting he not get more than Lofton, who had similarly threatened to be a holdout earlier this year unless he got more pay.

"It was very important that we keep his contract in line with those of our other players," Harlan said.

LOFTON GETS an estimated $250,000 to $300,000 a year in salary and bonuses.

Starr said Jefferson told him "he has been running every day, but it's one thing to be running or playing racquetball every day and another to be in football shape."

Springboks rugby team wins on and off field

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The South African Springboks rugby team, having defeated an American all-star team on the playing field and Gov. Hugh Carey in the courts, is keeping secret whether it will leave the country or try to play one more game.

About 1,500 protesters against South Africa's policy of racial separation stood in the rain outside Bleecker Stadium on Tuesday night chanting "stop the game" as the racially mixed Springboks slogged through mud to a 41-0 victory over an Eastern Rugby Union all-star team.

Earlier in the day, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall turned down a last-ditch appeal from state lawyers trying to stop the game. Carey had said he feared the game would spark a riot and said he had reports that up to 15,000 demonstrators would appear.

However, there were no injuries Tuesday night. Albany Police Chief Thomas Burke said one person with a knife was arrested inside the stadium and four others were arrested for disorderly conduct at a nearby fast-food restaurant. None was identified.

There was one tense moment when about 100 protesters broke away from the main demonstration, moved toward a police line and faced off against the helmeted police. Most of the splinter demonstrators moved back when folksinger Pete Seeger began to perform.

"The Albany team lost, but Albany gained something," said Clara Satterfield, head of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "There was no violence."

Earlier in the day, a bomb went off in neighboring Schenectady at a building housing offices of the ERU. No one was hurt. The rugby office suffered only about $50 damage, but damage at an adjacent dairy company was put at $50,000. There have been no arrests.

ERU President Tom Selfridge said Tuesday's contest was a victory for the sport.

"The score on the scoreboard may have been 41-0, but the real score was rugby 3, Carey 0," Selfridge said.

Selfridge refused to say whether the Springboks planned now to leave the country or stay for a possible match Saturday against another ERU team at an undisclosed site.

AP names Stamp, Carter to SWC's honor role

By The Associated Press

To Steve Stamp, throwing five touchdown passes in one game rivaled what happened his freshman year in Oregon.

He was fresh out of Carrollton Turner where he ran the Veer but also passed for 1,500 yards.

Texas Christian Coach F.A. Dry decided he needed some trickery to shakeup the Ducks and ordered Stamp to try a halfback pass.

It went for a touchdown and later in the game Stamp threw another on a fake field goal.

Senior Stamp fired an SWC record five touchdown passes Saturday against Texas-Arlingtom from the quarterback position and earned The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week Award.

Southern Methodist's Russell Carter, who intercepted two passes in the Mustangs' rout of Grambling, was named the SWC Defensive Player of the Week.

Stamp was the starting quarterback as a sophomore before Dry used Kevin Hancy in a more run-oriented offense.

He moved back into a starting role in the fifth game of last season.

"That Oregon game was great but so was Saturday night," he said. "It's a great honor to have the SWC record. I'll always have that to remember."

Stamp is a more confident player now.

"I've gained more confidece in myself, my offensive line and receivers," he said.

"There is nothing like being out there and going through it."

Stamp's 306-yards was the third best single game total in TCU history. He holds the all-time mark in that category with 408 against Baylor last year.

His 17 completions on 22 attempts against UTA was a 77.3 per centage completion mark, best for a game in TCU history.

Stamp now has 25 career touchdown passes, second only to Sammy Baugh's 39.

"I threw 150 balls each day this summer," said Stamp. "The work is paying off.

"My offensive line deserves all the credit in the world for the job they did."

Baylor quarterback Jay Jeffrey, and SMU running backs Eric Dickerson and Craig James were other offensive honorable mentions.

Defensively Texas' All-American tackle Kenneth Sims and Texas Tech's Gabe Rivera performed well.

Few men since Gen. Sherman have done more harm to Atlanta than Don Sutton.

The Houston Astros pitcher won his 35th career game against the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night with a three-hit, 3-0 decision at the Astrodome. It also was his 55th career shutout.

"There's really nothing to my beating the Braves," said Sutton, who has defeated them more than any other National League pitcher. "I've given up more runs to them, too, but I just manage to get enough runs to win. There's no set formula. It's just like me losing 13 straight to the Mets when I first started."

Sutton, who has won six out of seven games in the second half to improve his record to 10-8, said he did not feel he was in top form.

"I didn't have my best stuff, but they just kept hitting them to somebody," Sutton said. "They drilled it but Tony (center fielder Scott) or Jose (left fielder Cruz) would camp under it for a long out."

But Braves Manager Bobby Cox said he saw no dropoff in Sutton's performance.

"Sutton threw real well. I think he had his best stuff in the ninth. He was definitely going for the shutout," Cox said.

All the Atlanta hits off Sutton were singles. Brett Butler opened the game with a hit, Rufino Linares singled in the fifth and Chris Chambliss got the final Braves hit in the seventh.

Scott, who has eight hits in his last 10 at-bats, led Houston's 12-hit attack.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead off Braves starter Gaylord Perry, 7-8, in the first inning when Phil Garner walked, went to third on Scott's double and scored on Cruz's sacrfice fly.

Houston scored two more runs in the third on a double by Terry Puhl, a groundout, Scott's run-scoring single, a single by Cruz and Danny Heep's RBI single.

Although Sutton was 4-7 in the first half and some were questioning the big free agent contract the Astros gave him, the 36-year-old right-hander has proved he belongs in the second half. But he doesn't consider himself a second-half pitcher.

"If you split the years down, part of the time I started strong, part of the time I finished strong and the other part I didn't do anything right," Sutton said.

Sutton's turnaround in the second half parallels the Astros, who lead the NL West by three games over Cincinnati after they fell eight games behind in the first half.

"I always felt the first half of this season was not indicative of this ballclub. So I worked hard and took my business seriously because I knew we would have a chance in the second half and I wanted to be ready."

Cubs 4, Cardinals 3

Home runs by Ty Waller and Leon Durham brought Chicago back from a 3-0 deficit before Jerry Morales broke a 3-3 tie with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning.

St. Louis, which leads Montreal by one-half game in the NL East, scored in the second on a double by Bob Forsch and twice in the fifth on run-scoring singles by Darrell Porter and Dane Iorg.

Waller hit a two-run homer in the fifth and Durham tied it in the eighth with a solo shot.

Expos 6, Phillies 2

Steve Rogers held Philadelphia to five hits while Warren Cromartie and Tim Wallach knocked in two runs apiece for Montreal.

Cromartie singled in a run in the fifth inning and then broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh with an RBI double after Tim Raines stole his 71st base.

Wallach had a pair of run-scoring doubles.

Rogers, 11-7, walked six and struck out six.

Pirates 5, Mets 3

Jason Thompson hit a three-run homer to cap Pittsburgh's four-run third inning that snapped New York's four-game winning streak.

The Mets had taken a 2-1 lead in the second on consecutive homers by Dave Kingman and Lee Mazzilli, but they did no further damage in five innings against Jim Bibby, who made his first start since Aug. 21 because of a sore shoulder.

Bibby, 6-3, got relief help from Victor Cruz and Rod Scurry, who earned his sixth save.

Reds 3, Padres 2

Tom Seaver won his 13th game in 15 decisions and raised his lifetime record against San Diego to 30-7 with help from two relievers.

Gene Richards' triple knocked in the Padres' second run off Seaver with two outs in the seventh inning, and Joe Price came in to prevent further damage. Then San Diego loaded the bases with one out in the ninth before Tom Hume got Randy Bass to hit into a game-ending double play.

George Foster singled home one Cincinnati run and the other two scored on San Diego errors.

Giants 5, Dodgers 2

Larry Herndon victimized Fernando Valenzuela for three RBI, including two with an inside-the-park homer, to lead San Francisco over Los Angeles.

Valenzuela, whose last defeat just before the players' strike June 11 included a two-run, inside-the-park homer by George Hendrick of St. Louis, lost for only the fifth time in 18 decisions.

Herndon also singled in a run for the Giants in the fifth.

Rick Monday homered for the Dodgers.

Tigers dump Birds; Brewers slow Sox

By The Associated Press

Sparky Anderson will be rooting for the Milwaukee Brewers today, but his partisanship will end soon enough.

The Detroit Tigers manager saw his team pound out a 6-3 decision over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night with the help of two John Wockenfuss homers.

That, combined with Milwaukee's 10-8 victory over Boston, gave the Tigers a 1½-game lead over both the Brewers and Red Sox in the American League East Division.

"I'm rooting for Milwaukee, period," Anderson said, "because we play them six games, and if we don't beat them, we've got ourselves to blame."

After splitting the first two games, the Brewers and Red Sox complete their three-game set today. The Brewers move into Tiger Stadium for three games over the weekend, and the Tigers finish up the season in Milwaukee.

"But," Anderson added, "I've found out that no matter how I root, it really doesn't matter."

Wockenfuss, trying to shake a slump that had dropped his batting average to .209, tied the game 3-3 with a two-run homer off Mike Flanagan in the fourth inning, and his solo shot in the sixth, his seventh of the year, was the winning run.

Brewers 10, Red Sox 8

Ted Simmons drove in four runs, and Milwaukee snapped an 8-8 tie in the ninth inning to outlast Boston in a see-saw contest.

Simmons' two-out homer in the seventh gave Milwaukee an 8-7 lead, and after the Red Sox had tied the game in the bottom half of the inning, Robin Young and Simmons drove in runs in the Brewers ninth. Simmons doubled home the Brewers' final run.

Indians 6, Yankees 4

Cleveland right-hander Len Barker struck out 10 and scattered 10 hits over eight innings to beat the Yankees. Barker, 8-7, ran his league-leading strikeout total to 122, striking out more Yankees than any other pitcher this year. Sid Monge pitched the ninth for Cleveland.

Royals 2, Twins 1

Clint Hurdle and Willie Wilson singled home the Royals' only runs, and Larry Gura tossed a four-hitter in his first start since Sept. 9. Gura, a left-hander recovering from an injured little finger on his pitching hand, struck out two and didn't issue a walk.

The only run off Gura was unearned, when shortstop U.L. Washington threw wildly to allow a run to score with two out in the third.

The Royals lead Oakland by one game in the AL West, with the surprising Twins trailing by 3½.

Mariners 3, Rangers 2

Texas fell four games behind Kansas City as Mariners right-hander Ken Clay earned his first victory in more than a year. Clay, who had lost nine straight since Aug. 25, 1980, spaced six hits with six strikeouts before leaving when Texas scored a run in the eighth inning.

Shane Rawley checked the Rangers the rest of the way on one hit.

Seattle scored all its runs in the seventh on a walk, a single by Richie Zisk, Jeff Burroughs' walk, and singles by Joe Simpson and Terry Bulling.

John Butcher, 0-1, was the loser in his first start of the season.

Angels 1, White Sox 0

Angel Moreno, a 26-year-old Venezuelan left-hander, earned his first major league victory with 82-3 innings of four-hit ball. With two out and two men aboard via walks in the ninth, Moreno left for Don Aase, who posted his 11th save.

White Sox starter Ross Baumgarten, 5-9, allowed only three hits, but California used two of them for its run in the second inning. Bobby Grich singled off Baumgarten with one out and stole second. After Brian Downing walked with two out, Grich scored on a single by Bert Campaneris.

A's 3-4, Blue Jays 2-2

Keith Drumright's RBI single in the top of the 13th scored Rickey Henderson with Oakland's winning run in the opener. Henderson walked, grabbed his third stolen base of the game and scored all the way from second on a chopper to short by Drumright.

Bulldogs rally to nip Eagles

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

In the sweatbox (aka Midland High gym), the MHS Bulldogs lifted themselves off the floor to nip Abilene High, 9-15, 15-3, 15-9, in a key District 5-5A volleyball game Tuesday night. The victory keeps MHS in the thick of the first half district race with a 2-1 mark while the Eagles plummet to 0-3.

Purple Pack coach Linda Jolly, suffering from intestinal flu since Saturday, pulled herself from a sickbed to guide the Bulldogs. And the way her charges played in the first set, she must have wanted to crawl back into bed and pull the covers over her head.

THE BULLDOGS, playing defense like they were rooted to the floor and trying to spike the ball flat-footed plus serving pitifully, quickly found themselves down 9-4 in the first set.

With Shelia Christian and Ann Miller combining for several blocks and smashes at the net, the Bulldogs slowly crawled back into the contest.

Abilene let the Bulldogs cut the margin to 12-9 before running off the final three points to sew up the set.

Coming out like a bear with a thorn in its paw, the Bulldogs ripped into the Eagles in the second set. With Judy Gatlin perfoming magic as a setter and Christian, Miller and Penny Griffin responding with screaming smashes at the Eagle defense, Midland raced to an 8-1 advantage.

JUST WHEN it appeared Abilene might be staging a comeback, Gatlin set up Christian perfectly and she smashed the ball through the heart of the Eagles' defense to snuff out the comeback flame.

Missy Larrimore and Holly Randall combined for the final five serves as the Bulldogs evened the match with a 15-3 triumph.

In the third and deciding set, MHS broke on top 4-0 behind the booming serves of Gatlin and some outstanding floor plays and returns at the net.

Orchestrating her spikers like a life-long conductor, Gatlin's setups for Christian, Griffin and Randell had the Eagles defense running in confusion as the Pack stretched its lead to 13-1.

Needing just two points for the victory, MHS suddenly went into a shell on defense. Abilene took advantage of MHS' standing defense to reeled off eight points to trim the margin to 13-9. Randell ended the suspense when she stepped to the line and served two cannon shots that the Eagles were unable to return.

COACH JOLLY hopes the comeback victory might have restored some confidence in the Pack. "We lost confidence after we lost three close sets to Abilene Cooper in the Monahans tournament. We have been afraid to challenge anyone and have not done what we can do. Maybe tonight we learned we can come from behind and win."

Jolly added, "We haven't been playing well and I think that may be my fault. I have been trying to play everyone on the bench but from now on we will go with the best ones. We can't afford not to in district. It may cause hard feelings on the bench, but we must get consistency and we have seven girls that play well together."

The Bulldogs made it a sweep as the junior varsity tripped the Eagles 15-3, 15-4.

College to investigate injuries

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — An investigation of injuries in club football will be conducted at St. John Fisher College, in the wake of an on-field tackle that has left a player paralyzed.

Ralph Montemalo, a sophomore lineman from suburban Irondequoit, remained in intensive care at Strong Memorial Hospital Tuesday. He was hurt while blocking on a kickoff during a Saturday game against New York Maritime. Doctors said he suffered a fracture of the fourth cervical vertebra, leaving him paralyzed from the waist down.

Last season, Frank Bice of Siena suffered a paralyzing injury in a game against St. John Fisher here.

Rebels defeat Cooper girls

ABILENE — The Midland Lee Rebels climbed to 2-1 in the District 5-5A volleyball race here Tuesday night with a come-from-behind, 6-15, 15-11, 15-11, victory over the Abilene Cooper Cougars.

Lee is now 12-8 on the season and 2-1 in loop warfare. The Rebs travel to Big Spring to meet the unbeaten Steers in a key game Thursday.

Rozena McCabe had a good night spiking against the Cougars while Lisa Burnett and Suzanne McGaha were noted for their net play. Debra Quintela's setting was also a plus for coach Janice Baluch's squad.

Lee is now rolling after winning in their last five outings. They won the Denver City tournament over the weekend with four straight wins.

In the junior varsity outing, Lee was again the victor in almost identical fashion after dropping the first set, 15-5, before rallying 15-8, 16-14 to take the win.

Bum released from hospital

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Saints Coach Bum Phillips is expected to be released from a local hospital after an overnight stay for observation and tests due to a fever.

Team physician Dr. Charles Brown said Phillips' felt ill and had fever Tuesday evening, so he sent the coach to Baptist Hospital.

Dan Pastorini considers contract offer by Rams

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Dan Pastorini is mulling over a contract offer from the Los Angeles Rams, a team whose less-than-impressive first three games have left them 1-2 in the National Football League season.

"We'll sit down and make some kind of decision" on the offer, Pastorini's attorney Robert Cohen said Tuesday.

Pastorini took the team physical and had a one-day tryout last week. The Rams reportedly were impressed with his passing ability.

"We have made him an offer," said Rams Vice President and General Manager Don Klosterman.

He dismissed what had been seen as a possible stumbling block to the deal — Pastorini's $1.05-million contract with the Oakland Raiders that keeps him on that team's payroll through the year 2006.

"Whatever we contract for has nothing to do with that (the other contract)," Klosterman said.

He said in the past teams such as the Raiders have had to make up what a player's new teams doesn't pay on an old contract.

But, Pastorini's lawyer says the Raiders may not get to subtract what the Rams pay his client from what they owe him.

"The Raider contract doesn't have any offsetting provisions, which means they (the Raiders) could still owe us the whole contract."

The former Houston Oilers and Oakland Raiders quarterback has been the subject of speculation as a possible replacement for Pat Haden since even before he was asked to try out for the Rams.

But all along, Rams Coach Ray Malavasi said Haden will remain the No. 1 quarterback with back-up quarterback Jeff Rutledge remaining No. 2. That would leave Pastorini for the No. 3 slot.

ABC, ESPN are close to joining cable TV forces

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV and ESPN, the all-day sports cable network, are close to joining forces to form another cable entity, industry sources said Tuesday.

If final details can be worked out, an announcement on a joint venture could come as early as Wednesday, a source close to the negotiations said.

And as an offshoot of these negotiations, the parties are also talking about ABC buying into ESPN in the future.

If an agreement is reached, and the sources say only a few details need to be completed, it would be ABC's second major move into cable this summer. Last month ABC and Westinghouse announced plans to launch a 24-hour news and headline service for cable TV.

Sources said that ABC, ESPN and Getty Oil Co., which owns ESPN, were involved in high-level negotiations here Tuesday.

ABC and ESPN officials had no immediate comment.

ESPN, in operation for two years, is on cable systems reaching a potential audience of 12 million homes. ESPN is sponsor supported, but is still losing money.

The move would give ABC a major edge in negotiating for sports properties with the ability to combine cable and free TV to broadcast entire events. An ABC event, like the U.S. Open golf tournament, is now seen for several hours live only on Saturday and Sunday.

With the additional vehicle, ABC could televise all or part of the first two rounds on cable, early portions of the next two rounds on cable, and then the final stages of the tournament on free TV.

Chet Simmons, president of ESPN, made a bid to gain broadcasting rights to the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, which ABC purchased for $225 million. He has since expressed an interest in televising the Olympic events that ABC has no interest or time to broadcast.

It's been known that CBS, which launches a cable operation in October, has been seeking additional vehicles for its sports coverage. Since the cameras would already be at the site for tennis' U.S. Open, for example, it wouldn't be that much more costly to split all-day coverage between CBS-TV and cable.

City meet to kickoff

The seventh and eighth grade girls pre-season city basketball tournament starts Thursday at the Goddard and Alamo gyms with action running through Saturday morning.

Seventh grade action will be at Goddard while the eighth grade tournament will be held at Alamo.

In the seventh grade, Alamo Blue will meet Goddard White and San Jacinto Green will take on Goddard Black at 4 p.m. Thursday while San Jacinto White and Alamo Red drew the first round bye. Two games will be played Friday at 4 p.m. and consolation and third place honors will be decided at 9 a.m. Saturday. The championship game will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

In the eighth grade tournament, Goddard White and Alamo Blue drew the Thursday bye while San Jacinto Green meets Alamo Red and Goddard Black takes on San Jacinto White. Two games will be held at 4 p.m. Friday. The consolation championship and third place will be at 9 a.m. Saturday with the championship game to follow at 10:30 a.m.

Following the tournament, teams will play a round robin and the city championship tournament will be held to conclude the season.

Cuevas to meet Roger Stafford

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Former WBA welterweight champion Pipino Cuevas will meet Roger Stafford in a 10-round bout Nov. 9, it was announced Tuesday.

Cuevas, 29-6 with 26 knockouts, was ranked as the top contender by both the WBA and WBC before the Sugar Ray Leonard-Thomas Hearns battle. Cuevas lost his title in a second round knockout to Hearns on August 2, 1980. Stafford is 17-2-1 with seven knockouts.

Abilene is real LaJet winner

AN AP Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ABILENE — This just may be the prettiest little town the Tournament Players Association has ever seen.

The inaugural $350,000 LaJet Golf Classic, the newest pot of gold for the touring professionals, was a huge artistic success.

How the finances fared will be determined later after all the cash registers are checked.

The winners in this order were:

— Abilene.

— The West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

— The LaJet Corporation.

— Tom Weiskopf.

— The TPA Tour.

Famed West Texas hospitality overwhelmed the touring pros who were wined, dined and shuttled around town like royalty.

"Word will get around to all the pros who didn't play here," said Weiskopf. "The hospitality was just great. And the golf course is an excellent test."

Although Abilene only has a population of 100,000 some excellent crowds showed up for the weekend play despite a local television station going live for almost four hours both afternoons.

Weiskopf played what he called the second-best tournament of his 17-year career.

His final-round 68 was precision Ben Hogan would have appreciated. Using a 1-iron most of the time to keep the ball in the fairways and out of the 4-inch deep bermuda rough, he played a bogeyless 4-under-par round.

LaJet had the 7,077-yard Fairways Oaks Golf Club in amazing condition considering the course is only two-years-old.

Touring pros, who grumble as often as Army privates, seldom praise both the fairways and the greens of a course.

There was near unanimous opinion that both the fairways and the slick bent grass greens were excellent.

The tough test brought out the best from the tour's better players such as Weiskopf, Fuzzy Zoeller, Dr. Gil Morgan, Tommy Valentine and Hubie Green.

The tournament also gained some quick notoriety with Weiskopf's victory which put him in the $2 million earnings company of Tom Watson, Lee Trevino and Jack Nicklaus.

Weiskopf earned $63,000. Next year the first prize is expected to be near $80,000 with the total purse at $400,000

LaJet, of course, is in the oil business and uses the tournament for a tax writeoff. The proceeds go to charity, the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

Abilene and LaJet went all out and first class, impressing the TPA.

What is now the latest stop on the TPA tour may become one of the most prized.

Cowboy rookies may start against New York Sunday

DALLAS (AP) — Everson Walls and Mike Downs were two of 25 rookie free agent defensive backs the Dallas Cowboys brought to training camp in July and both may be in the starting backfield at the same time Sunday against the New York Giants.

Downs, who is from Rice, won the starting free safety job three weeks ago and Grambling's Walls could be the starter at cornerback thanks to his two interceptions against New England Monday night.

"Walls has just been amazing all summer," said Landry. "He just has the knack of being under the ball when it comes down."

Walls replaced Steve Wilson in the second half of Dallas' 35-21 victory over the Pats.

Asked if Walls was now starting, Landry said "he has certainly taken giant steps in that direction. Eventualy he will move in unless the other guy bets better."

Landry held his weekly press conference Tuesday although he only had two hours sleep after the plane ride back from Boston.

Of primary concern was the condition of running back Tony Dorsett, who suffered a sprained ankle and bruised ribs after he had rushed for 162 yards against the Pats.

"Tony left the plane walking normal at 5 o'clock this morning,," said Landry. "He turned his ankle on a running play...it just kind of folded up under him. He also has rib bruises.

"If his ankle doesn't swell he has a good chance to be ready to go Sunday. Of course, it is a short week and that makes it somewhat questionable."

Dorsett is leading the National Football League in rushing and has averaged 7.1 yards per carry.

The Cowboys also lead the NFL in interceptions with 10 although they have surrendered some 330 yards per game.

"Defense is experience and that takes time," said Landry. "Our guys keep getting better and better. We have a lot of young people in the secondary and we have to big plays against us with turnovers."

Golfer Lee Trevino enjoys a laugh during a practice round after being voted into the World Golf Hall of Fame.

Lee Trevino is halfway to the end of rainbow

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino figures he's halfway to the end of the rainbow.

"There's two things every athlete dreams of when he's starting out," Trevino said. "One is going to heaven when he dies. The other is making the Hall of Fame in his sport. Those two things are the end of the rainbow.

"Well, I've got one of 'em now. We'll just have to wait and see about the other, and I'm in no hurry to find out."

Trevino, along with veteran pro Ralph Guldahl, were inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame Tuesday,.

"It's a great honor, a great thrill to have your name up there along with people like (Ben) Hogan, and, of course, Gary," said Trevino, who was inducted by South African Gary Player, one of the original 13 inductees in 1974.

"It's always nice to be remembered. I'm thrilled to death about it. It's been a great life for me," said Guldahl, 69, who won the U.S. Open in 1937-38 and the Masters in 1939.

"Being recognized as one of the great players is enough, but I think I'll appreciate this more later in life, when I'm sitting at the end of the bar telling war stories," said Trevino.

"I mean, I'm still an active player and I don't think this will make that much difference to me right now."

Trevino scored his first pro victory in the biggest tournament of them all, the U.S. Open in 1968.

"Up until then, I didn't know if I could win a tournament or not," he said. "I was just trying to make expenses."

It was the first of 26 U.S. Tour titles he collected and started him off to more than $2.5 million in career winnings.

A turning point in his career, he said, was his 18-hole playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus in the 1971 U.S. Open.

"That convinced me I could play with the greatest players of this time," he said. "That was a turning point."

He went on to score a unique triple, adding the Canadian and British Open titles in the next four weeks, a feat that hasn't been matched. Trevino also won the British Open in 1972 and the PGA national championship in 1974.

He has won at least once every season since 1968 and only last week scored four victories in the United States' Ryder Cup victory in England. He originally had planned to remain in England to play in the Bob Hope Desert Classic this week, but changed his schedule when he was elected to the Hall of Fame.

Despite a sometimes-ailing back, he'll be one of the favorites in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic that begins Thursday on the famed No.2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Casals finds self in win over Duval

ATLANTA (AP) — Rosie Casals says she found some of her old game in a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Jeanne Duval in first-round play at the $75,000 Toyota Tennis Classic.

"It took three years, but it feels good to play well again," Casals said after her victory Tuesday night. "I was depressed after my knee operation."

Oklahoma may take NCAA to court

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The NCAA said Tuesday that legislation on television rights cannot be voted on in its December special convention, and officials of the University of Oklahoma said that if that's the case, the NCAA could find itself back in court before December.

Judge Luther Eubanks said after a hearing in Oklahoma City last week that he would be prepared to set a trial date on the property rights issue after the December convention in order to give the two sides a chance to reach a compromise.

The NCAA's assistant executive director, Tom Hansen, quoted NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers as saying there would be no vote on the TV issue in December, but that the special convention would be limited to restructuring Division I.

"That is different than what I thought," Eubanks said Tuesday night. "If the December vote will not be decisive, there is no use in waiting. I'll meet with the lawyers Oct. 1 and we'll probably process the case and get it ready for trial a lot quicker."

Eubanks said that he planned to call in an outside judge to hear the case on its merits, but that he had planned to hear any motions and to help get the case ready for trial.

Dr. William Banowsky, president of the University of Oklahoma, said in a mailgram to the NCAA that he was shocked by the NCAA's decision and urged the NCAA to broaden its agenda for the special convention.

"If they're not going to address the issue, then it will be impossible to solve it at the convention," said Stanley Ward, chief counsel for OU. "I'll recommend to the regents that we push ahead as rapidly as possible. We might even be back in court before the convention."

OU and the University of Georgia Athletic Association had sued the NCAA in federal court, seeking a judgment that the individual colleges own the property rights to their televised football games.

The NCAA had negotiated a $263.5 million contract with ABC and CBS for the same four-year period, 1982-85.

Glen Garnsey still believes Fan Hanover can win Jug

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — The odds are against Fan Hanover, but Glen Garnsey still believes he may have the first filly ever to win the Little Brown Jug, the last leg of the Triple Crown for 3-year-old pacers.

The veteran trainer-driver soon will find out. Fan Hanover will join 18 colts Thursday in the fall classic at the rustic Delaware County Fairgrounds, chasing the winner's share of the record purse of $243,779.

No filly has entered the Jug since 1961. Only four ever have won a division. And Fan Hanover is racing against colts and facing at least two heats for the first time in her career.

Still, Garnsey said, "I think she's got a chance or I wouldn't have put her in. She's really consistent. We haven't seen a filly in a long time like this one."

Garnsey, 48, driving his third Jug entry, said he and her owner, Canadian veterinarian Glen Brown, have good reason for not trying Fan Hanover against her colt rivals earlier.

"We thought the Messenger and the Cane (the crown's first two legs) were too early. I could gave gone with her in The Adios, but I didn't want to zap her for the Jug. It would be more prestigious if she could win this," said Garnsey, standing a few paces from Fan Hanover's stall.

Instead, Seahawk Hanover captured the Messenger, Wildwood Jeb the Cane and Landslide The Adios.

MC tennis players to get some variety

The Midland College varsity tennis players get a variety of experience this week with a dual match against Texas Tech Thursday and a mixed doubles tournament over the weekend.

Coach Leon Dulin will be using seven men players and all five of his women players against Texas Tech in Lubbock.

"We went against some of the Tech players recently in a tournament in Roswell, but more of our players will be involved in a dual match situation," Dulin noted. "A lot of players are inexperienced in college tennis and need to get in as much action as possible this fall. I think even a mixed doubles tournament will help them since they will be going against different players. Mixed doubles also is fun for the players, and it's not something they ordinarily are playing."

The mixed tournament is the Midland Mixed Double Junior Benefit. It is slated for Friday through Sunday.

Slated to compete against Texas Tech for the Chaparral men's team are Tony Macken, Luis Zavala, Monte Saul, Norm Weber, Ken Huddleston, Richie Houdek and Tim Stallard. Macken and Zavala are sophomore lettermen while the others are freshmen.

The women's team includes Karen Mannheimer, Donna Dickey, Laurie Runyan, Helia Barriga and Liz Alvarado. Mannheimer is a sophomore letter winner while Dickey, Runyan and Barriga are sophomore squad members. Alvarado is the only freshman on the team.

Dulin has paired the following for the mixed doubles tourney: Barry King and Mannheimer, Macken and Dickey, Zavala and Runyan, and Houdek and Alvarado.

Georgetown falls in AP grid poll

By The Associated Press

Port Arthur Jefferson, Huntsville, Allen, Forney and Motley County were ranked tops in their classes in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll following the third week of competition.

Georgetown, ranked No. 1 in 4A a week ago, was upended by Belton 14-0 last week and dipped to the No. 10 in the latest balloting by Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Defending 4A state champion Huntsville, which raked Strake Jesuit, 31-7, last week received 14 first place votes compared to three for runnerup Ennis and replaced Georgetown. Gregory-Portland moved up to third place, followed by Rockwall and Brownwood to round out the top five.

Waco Connally dropped from its 10th place position in 4A last week despite its 28-20 victory over Waco Robinson. Andrews moved in as the 10th-rated team in 4A.

Plano, which dropped out of the top 10 earlier this season, upset No.2-ranked Sherman 21-12 last week to drop to a tie for 10th this week with once-beaten Temple.

Allen did not play last week and the rest of the 3A-ranked teams escaped upsets.

Steinbrenner is furious with Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner is disturbed by his team's recent play and says it is time for his high-priced players to "put up or shut up."

Steinbrenner told the New York Daily News that this is "a year of decision for the Yankees. this is something I haven't faced before since I bought the club in 1973, but I'm facing it now. I may have to make over the whole team."

The Yankees won the American League East pennant for the first half of the season but, since the players strike was settled, they are only only 21-20 in the second half. That places them fifth in the division, 4½ games behind Detroit. They have lost four straight games and six of the last seven.

Steinbrenner also accused ace reliever Goose Gossage of "stupidity" for suffering two injuries "not even in the line of duty, stupid mistakes that have hurt us drastically. Out of 94 possible games, Gossage has missed 24. That's a fourth of the season."

Steinbrenner blamed the split-season format for some of the Yankee problems.

"I can understand them not having the killer instinct," he said, referring to the fact that New York has qualified for the divisional playoffs by virtue of its first-half title. "That's where the split season might tell. But it shouldn't tell in execution and they should know that you don't turn it on and off like a faucet."

Yomiuri Giants win title

TOKYO (AP) — The Yomiuri Giants captured the Central League pennant for the first time in four years and the Nippon Ham Fighters clinched the pennant in the second half of the Pacific League's split season Wednesday in Japanese baseball.

Both teams were idle Wednesday but won their titles as their second-place rivals, the Hiroshima Toyo Carp and Hankyu Braves, lost as were mathematically eliminated.

Hiroshima's Jim Lyttle, formerly of the New York Yankees, hit his 30th homer of the season, but the Carp lost to the Chinuchi Dragons 6-5. The Seibu Lions edged Hankyu 4-3 in 11 innings. Terry Whitfield, formerly of the San Francisco Giants, paced the Lions with his 22nd homer, a three-run shot.

The Fighters, winning a split-season pennant for the first time, will face the Lotte Orions, first-half champions, in a best-of-5 playoff to decide who will face the Giants in the Japan Series starting Oct. 17. The Giants' pennant — they won both halves of the split sesason — is their 31st in the more than four decades of Japanese pro baseball.

Cougars down to one QB

HOUSTON (AP) — Don't expect University of Houston quarterback Lionel Wilson to suffer any physical punishment in workouts this week. He'll be protected like a gold brick.

Wilson, a sophomore from Houston Jones, not only is Coach Bill Yeoman's starting quarterback, he's the ONLY quarterback with any varsity experience.

Wilson became the latest in a long line of Cougar quarterbacks to inherit the starting job because the No. 1 quarterback suffered an injury.

Audrey McMillian was lost for the season Saturday with a shoulder separation in UH's 12-7 loss to Miami. Wilson finished out the Miami game and will be the starter Saturday against Utah State in the Astrodome.

"The quarterback position will be just fine if they can just play at the position," Yeoman said. "Lionel will be fine. He made some mistakes against Miami but what do you expect from a youngster who has been exposed to only 19 plays this season?"

McMillian's injury marked the fourth Cougar quarterback to suffer a serious injury in the past five seasons, a devastating change of events from the first 12 years of Yeoman's veer offense.

"We went through the first 12 years without getting a cuticle torn," Yeoman said. "Gary Mullins (1969-71) was injured in the spring but he was back by the next season."

Starting in 1977, however, the Cougars shifted from the sturdily built Gary Mullins types to the quick but willowy speedsters, capable of posing a running threat out of the option. They also proved injury-prone.

"That's something we may have to look at when we go recruiting in the future," Yeoman said. "Those guys chasing the quarterbacks are a lot bigger than they used to be."

The loss of McMillian propelled Lionel Wilson, a sophomore from Houston Jones, into the starting role. The backups ("I don't want to even TALK about it," Yeoman said.) are sophomore Gerry Dickens and freshman Quince Harris.

Yeoman is painfully aware that this season would have been the fifth year for Darrell Shepard, currently battling for a starting job with second-ranked Oklahoma.

The Cougars were placed on NCAA probation in 1977 in connection with a car loan arranged for Shepard, who later transferred to Oklahoma and is a fifth year senior this year.

UH quarterback Danny Davis started the injury problem in 1977 when he separated a shoulder against Penn State. UH quarterbacks were injury-free until last season when Terry Elston suffered a broken wrist in the third game against North Texas State.

Sophomore Brent Chinn took over but suffered a bruised thigh two games later against Texas A&M. McMillian finished the game and led the Cougars to victory the following week against Southern Methodist before a national TV audience.

McMillian went down again when he ran 30 yards on the first play against Arkansas and separated his left shoulder. Exit McMillian and return Chinn, who finished out the season and had established himself as the starter last spring — until he broke his neck and ended his career.

NEW YORK (AP) — Phil Esposito, who retired last season as an active player, will serve as the color commentator on the New York Rangers television games this season, Madison Square Garden Network announced Tuesday.

Esposito, 39, will handle the color analysis on all Ranger home games that are cablecast over the Garden's network locally and the USA Network nationally.

Special Olympics athletes are 'brave in the attempt'

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

The spirit of Texas Special Olympics reigned Tuesday night in the faces of scores of young athletes "brave in the attempt," and their intrinsic warmth spilled over to bond coaches, volunteers and community supporters at the annual TSO Banquet in Midland Center.

Sponsored by Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, the affair recognized local Special Olympians and others involved in the athletic program for the retarded.

"Special Olympics has shown that everyone, if given the chance, can compete...and find joy," said featured speaker Dennis Poulos of Austin, three-year executive director of TSO. "Our goal for the future is 'striving for excellence,' and it will take everyone's combined and coordinated efforts."

While acknowledging that TSO exists partly to "provide the mentally retarded with a variety...of Olympic-type events...and help them experience joy and happiness," Poulos noted that its aims transcend even that.

"We're not here just to provide a track meet, a swim meet or a bowling meet," he said, listing a number of reasons for its existence:

—To sponsor year-round sports training.

—To serve as an intermediary between the retarded and the community.

—To provide a wide range of sports activities "so everyone will have a chance."

—To provide sports clinics during state meets to aid the retarded in developing, or increasing, athletic skills.

—To serve as a funding source for TSO events.

In presenting a history of TSO, the executive director explained its relationship with the Texas Association for Retarded Citizens. "Special Olympics was very fortunate in its early years to...be nurtured by the support of ARC," said Poulos, noting that ARC initially served as the parent organization of TSO. In 1978, however, TSO was incorporated as a distinct entity, he added.

"What we hope hasn't changed is the involvement at the local levels by the ARCs," he said. "And in some areas, the ARCs are extremely involved, like in Midland." But the brunt of responsibility, he added, rests on the shoulders of the community.

"Special Olympics is a volunteer-based program," he said. "We depend on the efforts of volunteers' time, and also financially...both the support of individuals and corporations. It brings together different segments of society in the community."

Poulos spoke of the astounding growth of SO since its inception as a single track meet in Chicago involving a few hundred participants in 1968. "In 1982, we project 18,000-20,000 participants," he said, noting that events will include track and field, softball, basketball, frisbee, wheelchair, soccer, gymnastics and bowling. Furthermore, international SO competition is now held every four years.

"The growth of Special Olympics has been no accident," said the executive director. "It's been the result of the Special Olympians who have shown they are athletes. The Special Olympians are the heart and focus of the entire program."

Poulos, however, noted that several critical issues currently are confronting TSO:

—Inflation. "For the past five years, the fee structure has not changed," he said, although the rise in [illegible] difficulties.

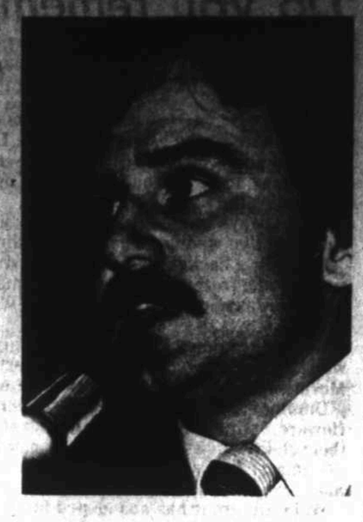

—Over-saturation of athletes at state games, which are the largest in the world. "We're having to enact a quota system," he explained.

—Greater reliance on volunteers due to increased growth.

Poulos expressed hope, however, that TSO has removed some of the burden off the shoulders of parents in running athletic events. But he was adamant in his contention that parents may be the most important force of all.

"Parents have the most direct influence over the children," he said, "and we would be doing a great disservice if we didn't value their involvement."

In a special presentation, Donna Dumas was named volunteer of the year, while Mayor G. Thane Akins proclaimed the date "Special Olympics Day in Midland."

"Our goal for the future is 'striving for excellence,' and it will take everyone's combined and coordinated efforts."

Fist clenched, arm raised in triumphant gesture, Jerry Flack symbolized the spirit of the Special Olympian at the annual Texas Special Olympics banquet Tuesday in Midland Center. "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt," quoted scores of athletes, coaches and volunteers.

Braniff hires Southwest Airlines executives

DALLAS (AP) — The financially-ailing Braniff International Corp. has hired two top executives from major competitor Southwest Airlines to assume the roles of president and chief financial officer.

Howard D. Putnam has joined Braniff as president and chief operating officer, while M. Philip Guthrie will be chief financial officer, said Braniff chairman John J. Casey.

The appointments, announced Tuesday, prompted optimism among airline industry analysts who said Putnam could become a major factor in putting the cash-short Braniff Airways back on its feet.

Putnam, former Southwest president and chief executive officer, also was elected a director of Braniff International and Braniff Airways Inc. Casey said the changes are part of a plan to rebuild the airline.

Putnam said the decision to leave Southwest was a difficult one but "the challenge at Braniff is too great to turn down."

Braniff reported a net loss of $64.7 million for the first six months of 1981. The airline's net loss in 1980 was $131.4 million, after a net loss of $44.3 million in 1979.

"Putnam's a strong marketing man. And in this day of deregulation, marketing expertise is of upmost importance," said Robert Joedicke, an airline analyst for Lehman Brothers.

"He's a simplistic manager. He takes an uncomplicated approach to management. And that is what is successful in today's airline environment. This is a positive sign for Braniff. He has obviously looked over Braniff's books. And a man of (Putnam's) character would not take the position if he didn't think there were hope to turn Braniff around," Joedicke added.

Casey was equally exuberant:

"The task of building a new Braniff requires the strongest possible senior management team," he said. "We have therefore selected Mr. Putnam, who is one of the truly outstanding executives in the airline industry today. He has achieved success at both Southwest and United. We are confident that his capabilities will greatly benefit Braniff."

In July, Braniff agreed to begin plans to restructure its private debt and has operated under the grace of 37 major lenders.

"I have long admired the dedication and strength of Braniff's employees — especially during this tough period," said Putnam. "I look forward to their support and the opportunities that lie ahead."

Guthrie, vice president of finance and chief financial officer of Southwest, will replace Howard P. Swanson as Braniff's chief financial officer, said Casey.

Putnam, 44, joined United Airlines in 1961 and held a series of positions in sales, service, and marketing. He was group vice president of marketing from 1976 to 1978.

He moved to Southwest as president and CEO on Aug. 21, 1978. Southwest is a Dallas-based carrier serving 15 cities in the Southwest.

Putnam graduated from the University of Chicago in 1966 and holds an MBA degree in marketing. He also completed the Harvard advanced management program in 1978.

Prior to joining Southwest, Guthrie, 36, was a senior financial consultant with Price Waterhouse in Houston. On Feb. 20, 1979, he joined Southwest as vice president-finance and CEO. In 1980, Guthrie also assumed the responsibilities of corporate treasurer.

Thirty five Filipinos victims of shooting

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Armed men claiming to be soldiers shot to death 35 villagers, including children, in a dawn raid on a central Philippines village earlier this month, the military said today.

A spokesman said an investigation was under way to determine whether the killers at Sagod, on Samar island, actually were soldiers or were posing as soldiers.

The government is fighting a guerrilla band of the outlawed Philippine Communist Party in the area near the village, Sagod, on Samar island. Officials described the area where the Sept. 15 mass killing took place as rebel-infested.

The military spokesman said the victims of the attack included the village leader, other men, women and children.

"The report we received said the unidentified men were armed with high-powered weapons, including M-79 grenade launchers, and introduced themselves as Philippine army soldiers before killing the local folks," the spokesman said.

Samar, 300 miles southeast of Manila, is the third largest island in the Philippines.

The military previously has accused guerrillas on the underdeveloped island of killing civilians sympathetic to the government. There also have been claims that soldiers on the island killed villagers suspected of aiding the rebels.

Israel plans to offer posts to Arabs

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel, which resumes stalled talks with Egypt today on autonomy for Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza, has announced a plan to offer Arabs senior posts in the Israeli occupation government.

A Defense Ministry statement issued Tuesday night said Israel will soon replace its 14-year-old military government of the two occupied territories with an Israeli-run civilian regime.

The new administration would give "senior posts" to West Bank and Gaza Arabs, it said. Israeli army generals would still handle military matters and anti-guerrilla activity in the territories, it said.

The statement did not detail how the plan would change the lives of the 1.2 million Palestinians living under Israeli occupation on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza strip.

At present Israeli military governors run the towns, while a civilian arm of the military government oversees non-military matters. Elected Arab mayors hold office, but need Israeli approval for most municipal projects.

The general Israeli aim is to suppress the influence of its arch-enemy, the Palestine Liberation Organization, while encouraging Arab moderates to join the autonomy talks, sources close to the government said.

The talks, which resume in Cairo after more than a year's suspension, are already considered a failure by most Arab nations. Under the U.S.-sponsored Camp David peace accords, autonomy should have been concluded May 26, 1980.

The top Israeli negotiator, Yosef Burg, said there is agreement on 80 percent of the issues involved. But Israel has refused Egypt's demand that the Palestinians be given local legislative and judicial powers, and the Israeli press said Israeli negotiators want to avoid discussing specific areas of disagreement in this round.

Egypt's delegation is led by Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali. The United States, which sponsored the Camp David pact, is represented by its ambassadors to Egypt and Israel, Alfred Atherton and Samuel Lewis, respectively.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has requested the PLO be invited to participate in the talks, but Prime Minister Menachem Begin has repeatedly rejected any contacts with the group.

Israel captured the territories in the 1967 Mideast War.

Do you remember Melvin? Now he's a singer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Melvin Dummar, his bid for an estimated $150 million share of the estate of the late Howard Hughes behind him, has launched another chapter in a career-cluttered life.

Dummar and his band, "Revival," opened a country-flavored review Tuesday at the Sahara-Reno.

"I've always wanted to sing, even when I was run out of a few bands," he said. "I've wanted to be an entertainer as long as I can remember."

Dummar's background consists of stints as a milkman, a gas station owner and a frozen fish salesman, climaxed by national attention in 1976 when he was named in the "Mormon Will," purportedly handwritten by Hughes.

Dummar claimed he picked up a haggard, exhausted Hughes one night while driving through the Nevada desert and Hughes befriended him. The Mormon Will was thrown out of court as invalid.

Dummar's saga continued last year with the movie "Melvin and Howard." This year, distant cousins of the reclusive billionaire pressed their claims for shares of Hughes' estate in a Houston courtroom.

Dummar had a bit part in the movie, playing a lunchroom-counterman.

While Dummar has abandoned his pursuit of any of Hughes' millions, he said he still believes the will to be authentic and he reflects some of his thoughts in two of the songs in his show, "Thank You, Howard" and "The All-American Dreamer."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tap dancer Ann Miller is missing a $1.5 million diamond ring that she left in the bathroom of an airplane, her press agent says.

Miss Miller was on a United Airlines flight from New York to Los Angeles when she lost the 30-carat ring, Rachel McAlister said. The agent said the ring was insured, but not for its full price.

Airline officials searched the plane Sunday night and all day Monday but did not find the ring, she said.

Miss Miller was on leave from "Sugar Babies" on Broadway to film a television musical in Hollywood.

The 30-year-old lead singer of The Plasmatics punk-rock group appeared at a court hearing Tuesday in a black T-shirt, pink jeans and sporting her trademark Mohawk haircut. She is charged with beating David Barnes on July 14 on Chicago's lakefront.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet master conductor Dmitri Shostakovich, who died of a heart ailment in 1975, is being toasted by his son and grandson with a series of concerts at the Kennedy Center through Friday, the 75th anniversary of his birth.

Maxim Shostakovich, 43, who defected from the Soviet Union to the United States in April, led the National Symphony Orchestra in his father's Sixth Symphony. Dmitri Shostakovich, 20, a pianist, played the piano concerto that his grandfater wrote to mark Maxim Shostakovich's 19th birthday.

Cellist Mstislav Rostropovich, music director of the National Symphony and an old friend of the Shostakovich family, played a concerto the composer wrote for him.

The same memorial concert will be repeated in October in London, with Maxim Shostakovich conducting the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Royko, syndicated columnist of The Chicago Sun-Times, has received the first H.L. Mencken Writing Award by The Baltimore Sunpapers.

Reg Murphy, publisher of the Sun, Evening Sun and Sunday Sun, made the announcement Tuesday in Washington at a National Press Club luncheon.

Royko was chosen unanimously from 123 entries by a panel of judges that included William Manchester, who wrote a biography of Mencken; Jonathan Yardley, book critic of The Washington Post, and Durwood McAlister, editor of the Atlanta Journal.

"Mike Royko probably describes Chicago to itself better than any other writer in America describes a city to itself," Murphy said.

The Mencken award was established in 1980 in honor of the author, editor and critic's 100th birthday. Mencken wrote for the Sun papers for nearly half a century.

Royko, 49, was a columnist for 18 years with the defunct Chicago Daily News and for the past three years with the Sun-Times.

The prize includes a plaque and $2,500.

Brinkley rejects Amway, goes with ABC's offer

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When David Brinkley resigned from NBC, he said he thought he could get another job. Then the calls came pouring in.

Roone Arledge of ABC called. The Washington Post called. And Amway called.

"I decided against an Amway (household products) distributorship in Missouri," said Brinkley, who announced Tuesday that he had chosen ABC News for the next four years at a salary "not much more than NBC."

Brinkley's first assignment will be host and anchor of the Washington-based Sunday program "This Week," known for the last 21 years as "Issues and Answers."

"This Week," expected to begin Nov. 15, will be moving away from straight interviews. "There's been a dearth of real hard news on Sunday morning," said ABC News President Roone Arledge, who presided over the press conference that ushered Brinkley into ABC.

●

Arledge said Brinkley's political savvy and connections make him ideal for the new show. "He's one of the two or three gigantic figures in the history of broadcast journalism."

And Brinkley said he relishes the opportunity to return to Washington's political wars after feeling exiled on "NBC Magazine" for the past year.

After 38 years at NBC, Brinkley left Friday "because there wasn't anything left I wanted to do. I wanted to work in Washington on politics, public affairs and government, and at NBC that was not possible."

Arledge said Brinkley could make contributions to "World News Tonight," the network's evening news show, which has been searching for a big-name attraction. "He's the original 800-pound gorilla, and he can do what he wants."

Brinkley will be a major contributor to ABC's political, campaign and election coverage. He also will anchor some specials, the first being a retrospective on Franklin Delano Roosevelt in January, the 100th anniversary of the president birth.

"I'm the only man in this room who actually covered Roosevelt," said Brinkley at the news conference. "I covered the White House at the age of 22 for NBC. It was the last year of the war, and they hired anybody who could walk."

When he was looking for a job nearly 40 years later, he was much more in demand.

"If I work 38 years at ABC, I'll be 99," Brinkley said, clipping words in his distinct style. "Then I'll retire to St. Petersburg and collect social security — if they still pay it."

Football boosts ABC's ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC, with a boost from a couple of key early season professional football games, won the networks' prime-time ratings race for the first time since mid-May, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

ABC's special Thursday night game between Philadelphia and Buffalo was the week's sixth highest-rated program, with the regular "NFL Monday Night Football" broadcast, a game between Oakland and Minnesota, 13th.

In all, ABC had six of the week's 10 highest-rated shows, and that contributed to an average score for the seven-day period ending Sept. 20 of 16.9. CBS was No. 2 at 15.5, and the previous week's winner, NBC, third at 14.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.9 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to ABC.

Though ABC held a majority of the Top 10 programs, CBS has the two highest-rated, including "60 Minutes" in first place, and three of the first four.

The rating for "60 Minutes" was 21.6. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 21.6 percent saw at least part of the newsmagazine.

NBC, though third in prime-time, won the evening news sweepstakes for the second week in a row. NBC's "Nightly News" finished ahead of "World News Tonight" on ABC and CBS' "Evening News."

Only four shows in the week's Top 20 were new. In addition to the two football games on ABC, the same network spotted an episode from the new series "Best of the West" in seventh place and a new made-for-TV movie double feature, "Code Red" and "Our Family Business," tied for 10th with a repeat from CBS' "M-A-S-H."

NBC had four of the week's five lowest-rated programs, including "NBC Magazine" 55th, "Games People Play" 57th, "Anson 'n' Lorrie" 58th and "Marie" 59th. CBS' "The Future: What's Next" was No. 56.

Here are the week's 11 highest-rated shows:

"60 Minutes," with a rating of 21.6 representing 17.6 million homes, and "Dukes of Hazzard," 21.5 or 17.5 million, both CBS; "Three's Company," 21.1 or 17.2 million, ABC; "Alice," CBS, and "Diff'rent Strokes," NBC, both 20.7 or 16.8 million; "NFL Football Special: Philadelphia vs. Buffalo," 20.2 or 16.4 million, and "Best of the West," 19.8 or 16.1 million, both ABC; "Love Boat" and "Too Close for Comfort," both 19.7 or 16 million, both ABC, and Movies-"Code Red" and "Our Family Business," ABC, and "M-A-S-H," CBS, both 19.5 or 15.9 million.

The remainder of the Top 20:

"The Jeffersons," CBS; "NFL Monday Night Football: Oakland vs. Minnesota," ABC; "Quincy, M.E.," NBC, and "One Day at a Time," CBS, tie; "Dallas" and "House Calls," both CBS, and Movie-"The Shootist" and "Archie Bunker's Place," both CBS, and "Little House on the Prairie," NBC, three-way tie.

Harper's magazine announces appointment of new editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Harper's, a magazine of current affairs and literature, has appointed Michael E. Kinsley editor, the magazine has announced.

Kinsley, who will assume his new post with the January edition, is currently senior editor of the New Republic magazine.

"We (Harper's) intend to continue serving up a product every month that is chewy, witty and enlightening," said Kinsley, 30.

Prior to joining the New Republic, where he served for four years as managing editor and editor before becoming senior editor, Kinsley was managing editor of the Washington Monthly. A graduate of Harvard College, he studied economics at Oxford and has a degree frm Harvard Law School.

As the 11th editor of the 131-year-old Harper's, Kinsley succeeds Lewis H. Lapham, who is retiring to devote more time to his newspaper column and to finish a book. Lapham has been with Harper's for 10 years.

David Michaels, the magazine's publisher, said Kinsley's "background and experience will bring a new vitality to the magazine."

Seminaries probed

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishops of the United States will assist the Vatican in an investigation of American Catholic seminaries, The New York Times reported today.

The Times said the study, ordered by Pope John Paul II, is intended to "assist in their ongoing process of renewal" and aid in "planning for the future," according to a letter written by Archbishop John R. Roach, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Some seminary heads are already alarmed by the investigation because they believe the study could result in an attempt to root out dissent and stifle academic freedom, the newspaper said.

The examination, believed to be the first ever conducted by the Vatican of the more than 500 seminaries, will be done by American clergy but will be evaluated by the Vatican. Similar scrutiny of seminaries in other countries is taking place.

The study, according to the Times, was prompted by the Pope's desire to attain a universal perspective of the world's seminaries. Pope John Paul has repeatedly emphasized the necessity for doctrinal conformity and decried what he sees as as too much liberalism among some theologians.

In his letter to bishops and educators, Roach said the study would use standards "similar to those used by secular and religious accrediting agencies," the Times said.

CBS, AT&T may test data system

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS Inc. and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. are near agreement on a joint test of a computer data system that could deliver the network's news and other information to video screens in more than 80 percent of the nation's homes, The Washington Post reported today.

The test program by CBS, one of the nation's biggest communications concerns, and AT&T, considered the world's largest corporation, may be announced in the next few weeks, the newspaper said it learned from unidentified sources.

The venture could be a major move in AT&T's attempts to conduct a test of videotext information retrieval systems for the home and office, said the Post. The program eventually could bring advertising and shopping programs, in addition to news and other information, into the home via the Bell System.

Former Dade County, Fla., policeman may soon pin on another police badge

NORTH BAY VILLAGE, Fla. (AP) — The former Dade County policeman who blew the whistle on fellow officers and said they had beaten to death a black businessman may soon pin on a badge again.

Charles Veverka is working as a part-time police dispatcher in this community of islands in Biscayne Bay along the causeway to Miami Beach.

Police Chief Sanford Blair says he hopes to hire Veverka, 30, as a full-time officer when the city budget takes effect next month.

"I'd like to see the day he's back in uniform and back on the road," said Inspector William Nevers of the village force.

Veverka says a lot of people ask him how he can go back into police work "after what I've been through."

Veverka and Miami have been through a lot since Dec. 17, 1979, when black businessman Arthur McDuffie, who was riding a motorcycle, was stopped by five white officers after a high-speed chase.

McDuffie died four days later of severe head wounds inflicted by a beating.

Reports filed by the officers said the injuries resulted from a motorcycle wreck. Veverka admitted he had lied in his report on the incident.

He later testified he reached McDuffie first in the chase, and the man took a swing at him.

More officers arrived as the two men grappled. Veverka testified he was separated from McDuffie and the other officers started beating the man. Veverka said he tried to stop the attack, but was pushed away. All five officers were fired.

Veverka was granted immunity from prosecution in the state trial of the four other officers, charged in McDuffie's death. They were acquitted by an all-white jury.

The May 1980 verdict touched off three days of race rioting in Miami that took 18 lives and did $100 million damage.

Veverka was acquitted of four civil rights violation charges stemming from the beating. The trial was held in federal court in San Antonio after officials in Atlanta, New Orleans and Miami said they feared racial trouble in their cities and asked the case be heard somewhere else.

He's been looking for a police job for months. While he waited, he did landscaping, painting, furniture moving and security guard work.

But none of those jobs made him feel as good as he did on the streets, he said. It's "really satisfying" to know you've saved someone, he explained.

"That's why I've kept trying to get back into police work," he said. "That's what I did for seven years. That's what I really like doing. I could care less what anyone else wants to think about that."

Man stole dope from jail

FLORIDA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Police didn't mind putting 20-year-old Burlin Richard Combs up for the night here, but refreshments weren't supposed to be on the house.

Dade County police said Combs was found sleeping in a car Thursday, and although he wasn't charged with anything, an officer decided he would be better off spending the night at the tiny jail.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Stress, pace of society makes living difficult

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

QUESTION: It seems to me that more and more people that I know or hear about are seeing couselors or therapists for different problems they are having. Are people really having more problmes these days or are the problems more serious now, so that so much professional help is needed?

ANSWER: The stress and pace of life today are presenting more people with situations in their lives with which they have difficulty dealing. The Midland-Odessa area, as we all are aware, is rapidly growing. This rapid growth can cause problems for people. Everyone is aware of the housing shortage, for example.

The point is that individuals and families are often placed under a degree of stress that generates problems for them. In such an environment of rapid growth and rapid change, it may well be that problems are more numerous today than in the recent past.

People are also somewhat more willing to seek professional help for their problems than they used to be. Part of the reason for this is that the high degree of mobility of our population has served to separate any individuals and families from more traditional sources of support, such as families, friends and church. Therefore, when problems threaten to overwhelm, such individuals are much more likely to seek professional help in dealing with their situations.

There is also a somewhat greater acceptance of the fact that professional counseling does not mean that someone is mentally ill or in some way defective. There used to be more of a stigma attached to seeing a therapist for problems because of this lack of understanding. All of these factors are probably operating together to influence your perception that more people seem to be seeking professional help these days.

QUESTION: How can a counselor tell when a person who is coming for help for a routine kind of problems, may have a more serious problem underneath it all?

ANSWER: There is no such thing as a routine problem to the person who is experiencing the problem. Counselors are trained in assessment (diagnosis) and will usually be able to detect any more serious problems which may be temporarily masked by the initial complaints of the client. When such problems are detected, the counselor is obligated to refer such clients for any care which the counselor is not trained to deliver. Very few serious problems go undetected by trained counselors and therapists.

Meritocracy now rules Japan's business world

By HIDESUKE NAGASHIMA
Kyodo - Copley News Service

TOKYO — Unlike the prewar capitalist-run "zaibatsu" (family trust) businesses, most of Japan's big corporations today are run by salaried managers who got their jobs on merit.

Such meritocracy encourages more equitable distribution of earnings between bosses and workers, an important factor in labor-management cooperation, high worker morale and strong productivity growth in Japan.

Company presidents don't make all that much money in Japan.

A survey in 1979, the last year for which such data are available, showed that the presidents of big corporations make an average 11 million yen ($48,000) in take-home pay, only eight times as much as new recruits did. In gross pay, the president averaged 22 million yen ($96,000), 15 times as much.

In prewar Japan, company presidents used to make more than 100 times as much as new recruits, both gross and take-home.

But the prewar zaibatsu capitalists lost their fortunes in a U.S.-ordered trust busting after the war and were replaced by a new breed of executives promoted from the ranks of white-collar workers.

Not surprisingly, labor-management cooperation thrives, contributing to Japan's strong productivity performance.

The mass introduction of industrial robots, which has played a major role in the nation's steadily improving productivity, would never have been possible without union cooperation.

Japan's big-industry workers, guaranteed lifetime employment in return for their loyalty, have no valid reasons to oppose the introduction of new machines that do work once done by men. Workers replaced by machines as a rule are not fired but are retrained for other jobs.

"Human factors are more responsible for Japan's business success than technological factors such as automation," says Toshiro Fukazawa, secretary-general of the Japan Productivity Center, a non-profit organization grouping labor, management and academics.

"Generally, labor-management relations are based not on confrontation but on cooperation."

The nature of unionism in today's Japan is entirely different from that in other industrial nations.

Most unionized workers in Japan are members of separate company unions, including all the office and production workers of a given company. The company unions belong to national labor federations, which have no control over them. There are few across-the-board industrial unions.

The whole setup tends to encourage labor-management cooperation.

It is a corporate way of life for management-track personnel to serve as union leader in mid-career preparatory to joining the management. This gives the business elite a chance to develop leadership skills and all-important connection with the top management.

Small wonder that labor and management are so cooperative.

About two-thirds of Japan's big corporations, in fact, have at least one former union leader among their board directors, according to a survey taken by the Japan Federation of Employers Associations. One-sixth of all the board members were former union leaders themselves.

"Japanese business executives pay more attention to the welfare of employees than their Western counterparts," says Japan Productivity Center's Fukazawa.

"Thus, Japanese executives tend to have a longer-range perspective than Western ones, who seek maximum profits in the short range."

Employers in other industrial nations would lay off or fire workers in times of business difficulties, but that would be the last thing for Japanese executives to do.

Japanese corporations in general would rather guarantee worker employment than protect dividends for the stockholders.

Workers thus do not feel threatened by automation, which has helped improve Japan's industrial productivity in recent years.

Chinese Trade I: Learning China's way of doing business

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ten years ago, commerce between the United States and China, severed in 1950 after the Communist takeover, resumed with a burst of optimism. Today, America is China's second-largest trading partner, playing a crucial role in its march to modernization. But as AP Business Writer Robert Burns reports in this series of articles, restoring relations hasn't been easy.

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Donaghue had flown to Hong Kong and was itching to deliver his sales pitch for Control Data Corp. computers. But the stony Chinese bureaucrats at that meeting in 1972 had something else in mind.

Before they would let Donaghue dip into the three boxes of sales literature he had lugged halfway around the world, the Chinese wanted to talk politics. Linking politics and commerce, while strange to Americans, was common in a country where business and government are one in the same.

"For the first 10 days I was there, all we did was have these strange, philosophical discussions," Donaghue recalls.

Since then the gaps in understanding have narrowed. American executives say they have a better grasp today of the limitations created by China's vastly different political system and cultural traditions.

And the idea of making a quick buck in China has nearly disappeared.

Related stories, Pages 14C and 15C

"This is not...one of those things where the capitalists are running in, ...making a fortune and running out. That's not the name of the game in China," says LeRoy J. Herbert, an executive partner of Ernst & Whinney International, an accounting firm which has been operating in Peking since January.

Trade with China has grown from virtually nothing in 1971, when President Nixon ended a 21-year embargo, to $4.8 billion last year. The United States now ranks behind only Japan among China's trading partners.

But most of that trade has been one-way. American sales to China last year were $3.7 billion — or 2 percent of total U.S. exports — compared with purchases worth $1.1 billion.

Eager to balance its trade, the Chinese are trying to develop their vast energy resources for export, projects expected to provide major deals in the future for American corporations. So far, China's primary export to the United States is textiles.

But despite the flourishing commerce, doing business in China remains a challenge. Foreigners must cope not only with Chinese political sensibilities, but also with their exhausting style of negotiating and with government vacillations that quickly can sour seemingly solid deals.

And politics still lurks in the background, with the possibility of soured relations over U.S. dealings with Taiwan.

The Chinese have turned to the West and Japan for the technology needed to modernize their backward economy. They have spent billions to upgrade their factories, coal mines, oil fields and transportation system.

The United States is the best source for much of that equipment and knowhow, but the Chinese have been unsure they could trust American capitalists.

"Looking back on it now, I realize they were sounding me out, and through me, my company," Donaghue says of that initial meeting in 1972. "At first, they would say 'Why is the United States in Vietnam?' They wanted me to tell them. To them, big corporations and our government were like hand and glove."

Control Data's experience is not unique.

"We have to remember they don't really understand us, and that they are going through a learning process about the Western business community," said Herbert of Ernst & Whinney's, one of two U.S. accounting firms doing business in China.

In the nine years since his meeting in Hong Kong, Donaghue has made eight trips to China and has helped Control Data sell nearly $80 million in computers. Other U.S. corporations, although starting later than Control Data, have had even greater successes.

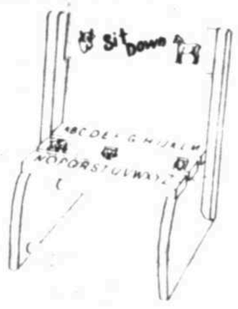

Pullman Kellogg, a Houston-based industrial engineering and construction company, has done more than $250 million in business with China.

Author says LBJ took cash as vice president

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new biography by a Pulitzer Prize-winning author says that Lyndon Johnson "did not hesitate to use the powers of the presidency...with utter ruthlessness" to further his own business interests and earlier had accepted envelopes of cash while he was vice president.

"For years, men came into Lyndon Johnson's office and handed him envelopes stuffed with cash," author Robert A. Caro writes in "The Years of Lyndon Johnson."

Caro won a Pulitzer Prize in 1975 for his biography of Robert Moses, a former New York city and state official who died earlier this year. The first of three volumes in the new biography of Johnson is to be published next year. Excerpts appear as an article in the October issue of The Atlantic Monthly.

Johnson, who died in 1973, was raised to power first in the House of Representatives and then as a U.S.senator from Texas by the emerging oil, gas, sulfur, defense and space industries of the Southwest, Caro says.

"They didn't stop coming even when the office in which he sat was the office of the vice president of the United States," the article says. "Fifty thousand dollars, in hundred-dollar bills in sealed envelopes, was what one oil lobbyist for one oil company testifed that he brought to Johnson's office during his term as vice president."

There was no answer Sunday at a telephone listed in Caro's name. The Washington Post, however, said Caro told the newspaper "the $50,000 incident referred to lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr., who had testified in a case brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission against Gulf Oil in the mid-1970s about a Gulf Oil slush fund. Caro said he thought the transaction occurred in 1963."

In 1975, former Gulf attorney Thomas D. Wright testified in a deposition that Wild told him he delivered $50,000 to Johnson in either 1960 or 1961, shortly after Johnson was elected vice president.

The Post said its files report tht Wild said he gave $50,000 to a Johnson aide while Johnson was still a senator. Johnson was elected vice president in November, 1960.

When Johnson became president in 1963 after John F. Kennedy was assassinated, his aides were quoted as saying estimates putting his wealth at $14 million were too high. "Privately, some now admit that it was far too low," Caro says.

Though Johnson announced he was putting all his business affairs in a blind trust while we was president, he had private phone lines installed in the Oval Office to confer with Texas attorneys who administered the trust, the excerpts say.

"Johnson personally directed his business affairs, down to the most minute details, not infrequently working on those affairs, according to some of his attorneys, for several hours a day," Caro writes.

"In his direction of his business affairs, he did not hesitate to use the power of the presidency itself, and to use it with utter ruthlessness.

China Trade III: Textile exports anger Americans

EDITORS' NOTE — China is quickly climbing the list of important U.S trade partners. But as commercial relations between the countries improve, stumbling blocks have emerged. In the last of a three-part series examining U.S.-China trade, AP Business Writer Robert Burns looks at the chief trouble spot — textiles.

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If there is a weak thread in the fabric of U.S. commercial ties to China, it may be the growing debate over exports of Chinese textiles to the United States.

Those sales have doubled in each of the last three years and have become an important source of foreign exchange to the Chinese, who are running up big bills for imported technology and equipment needed to modernize their economy.

That business worries U.S. textile manufacturers.

Robert Coleman, chairman of Riegel Textile Corp. in Greenville, S.C., and president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, contends that China's rising textile exports "could do irreparable damage" to the U.S. textile industry.

Although China's share of all textile exports to the United States was only about 6 percent last year, that is twice the share it held only two years earlier.

"The thing that concerns us most in this industry is not just the size of the problem now, but the potential for the growth of their exports in the future," Coleman says.

Columbia University's East Asian Institute, in a study not yet published, figures the value of China's textile exports to the United States could reach $550 million this year and $800 million next year. That compares with $12 million in 1973.

Coleman claims that if imports of Chinese textiles and apparel continue at their current pace for the rest of the decade, about 300,000 American textile jobs will be lost. The industry currently employs 2.7 million people.

The dispute goes beyond numbers. It has grown into the greatest source of economic conflict between the two countries at a time when U.S.-China political relations are at a crucial point, according to Western analysts.

"This is a very difficult, and I would say unresolvable, problem," says Roger Sullivan, vice president of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade in Washington.

In contrast to the textiles problem, dozens of other commercial exchanges between the United States and China are only beginning to blossom, with little or no conflict.

In the 10 years since the United States renewed commercial trade with China, American businessmen have spent millions of dollars in pursuit of the Chinese market. Many of them have won lucrative deals. Even for those who have not made money in China, the propect of doing business with a country of an estimated 1 billion people is enough to keep trying.

"That's a heck of a market," says Gordon Williams, a spokesman for Boeing Co. in Seattle.

Overall U.S.-China trade doubled in 1979 and 1980, reaching $4.9 billion last year, and continued to grow rapidly in the first half of this year, according to the Commerce Department. David Laux, director of the department's China affairs office, says he expects that number to reach $10 billion by 1984.

The vast majority of that trade has been one-way. The United States sold $3.7 billion in goods to China last year and bought only $1.1 billion worth, about a third of which was for textiles. Since they are buying far more from the United States than they are selling, the Chinese see no reason to accept limits on what they export to the United States.

That is especially true of textile goods, which is the centerpiece of China's new emphasis on light industry.

The problem has not been ignored in Washington. Last September, under pressure from the domestic textile industry, the Carter administration worked out an agreement with China that restricted shipments of eight types of textile products.

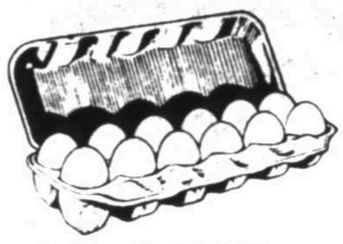

The agreement allows some leeway for the United States to negotiate limits on other types of Chinese textile imports, but Coleman and others in the U.S. industry say the arrangement is inadequate and must be improved when it expires next year.

"The Chinese (textile) trade is getting so large, they are a major disruptive influence on the U.S. market," says Buford Brandis, an adviser to the American Textile Manufacturers Institute based in Washington.

Not all China specialists in the United States agree with the industry position.

V.K. Raganathan, an economist and East Asian specialist at Citibank in New York, says China's textile exports are filling a gap in domestic production.

China Trade II: Developing Chinese energy resources

EDITOR'S NOTE — When Americans resumed trade with China, many U.S. companies hoped to sell consumer goods to a market with 1 billion customers. But the Chinese are more interested in building their industry, and the big opportunities for U.S. corporations are in developing energy to power industry. AP Business Writer Robert Burns looks at the business of developing China's energy resources.

ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — China is endowed with vast energy resources, from coal and crude oil to an inland river system that some say could produce as much electricity as now is used in the United States.

Yet for all its energy riches, China is starving for the technology to use them.

That paradox has not escaped the American business community as China turns increasingly to the United States for the technical knowhow to solve its energy problems.

The decade-old thaw of U.S.-China commercial ties, frozen in 1950 after the Communist takeover, has seen American trade with China double in each of the last two years, to $4.8 billion in 1980. The United States is now China's No. 2 trading partner behind Japan.

At first blush 10 years ago, American executives looked at China's population and dreamed of selling billions of consumer goods. But China is more interested in buying foreign expertise and machines to modernize its economy, particularly technology to increase production of coal, petroleum and electricity.

Western analysts say China's energy development could become one of the biggest sources of commercial trade between the two nations by the end of the decade.

Evidence of China's energy crisis is everywhere, American government and business officials say. Many factories must sit idle for lack of power. Coal mines have been closed to conserve power. Wintertime visitors notice that many publbuildings in Peking are unheated.

Decades of political turmoil and economic stagnation left China with neither the money nor the technical knowhow to find and extract offshore oil, to build hydroelectric and thermal power plants, or to modernize its coal mines.

After the United States and China renewed ties, the Chinese began searching in earnest for foreign technology to solve its energy problems.

In 1978, China's Communist leaders unveiled a bold new modernization plan designed to put China in the forefront of the world's industrial powers. American businesses dived headlong into a stream of promising trade pacts.

But less than a year later the Chinese realized they had gone overboard. They canceled many proposed deals, and several American companies "came back frustrated," says Ron Napier, an economist at Data Resources Inc., a private economic research firm in Lexington, Mass.

Dwight Perkins, an economist and long-time China watcher at Harvard University, says any big boom in the Chinese market will not come at least until 1985. That's because China has sharply reduced its spending goals in order to combat inflation and a larger-than-expected budget deficit, he says.

Despite China's cash squeeze, some American companies have struck relatively modest deals to help develop China's energy resources. Analysts remain optimistic about trade in the longer term.

And former U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock has suggested there may be benefits later for companies willing to invest their efforts in China during the lean years, as friendships developed now pay off.

Clovis Obermesser, president of the Asia operations of Westinghouse International, says he is "still ecstatic" about the potential for trade with China, although he does not believe its economic development will be in high gear until 1985.

Westinghouse signed two contracts last September to help China design and build power generators and to supply them with parts for steam turbine generators. The deals reportedly are valued at $75 million.

Combustion Engineering Inc. signed a similar deal, and both transactions are being financed in part by China's first loan from the U.S. Export-Import Bank, for $56.2 million.

U.S. oil companies, by contrast, have had little success so far in the China market.

In 1979 China granted several American oil companies the rights to conduct seismic surveys in the South China Sea, which Richard Nehring of Rand Corp. says is generally considered one of the most promising unexplored regions of the world.

Part of the deal was that China would analyze the data, then take bids for drilling contracts.

Eleven wildcats planned in Basin, three fields growing

Basin oil men plan 11 wildcat wells in the region, and three tests in new fields. One of the wildcats is a core test in a relatively unexplored area in Brewster County.

DREWS PLUG BACK

Maralo, Inc., Midland, will subtract a well from the Deep Rock (Ellenburger) field, and add it to the Deep Rock (Pennsylvanian) field when they plug back the No. 1-P Southland Royalty from the Ellenburger, producing around 12,252 feet, to the Penn, producing at 9,037 feet. There are now seven wells in the Deep Rock (Ellen) field, and six in the Deep Rock (Penn).

The wellsite is six miles west of Andrews, 1,980 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of section 21, block A-46, PSL survey.

BREWSTER CORE TEST

Amoco Production Co., Odessa, plans a wildcat core test, 16 miles southeast of Marathon.

According to the drilling permit application the test is, "for stratigraphic information only."

The location is 1,539 feet from the north, and 1,966 feet from the east line of section 37, block 22, GH&SA survey.

Apparently, there is no production within miles of this project.

CONCHO WILDCAT

InterNorth, Inc., Midland, will drill the 4,500-foot wildcat, No. 1 Concho County Ranch "56," at a site 9 1/2 miles west of Eden.

The drillsite is 1 1/2 miles northeast of Mabee Drilling's No. 1 A.H. Dennis, abandoned July 9, 1948 at 4,500 feet.

The project spots 1,980 feet from the north, and 467 feet from the west line of section 56, block 8, H&TC survey.

GLASSCOCK PAIR

Mapco Production Co., Tulsa, will drill the 8,000-foot wildcat No. 1-34 Glass, 3 1/2 miles southwest of Garden City.

The stake is driven 1,050 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 34, block 34, T-4-S, T&PRR survey.

The site is 1 1/5 miles southwest of the U.S. Smelting No. 1 Burns, abandoned December 6, 1962 at 10,570 feet.

****

Nortex Gas & Oil Co., Midland, will add a well to the the 1-hole Pronghorn (Wolfcamp) field, and go for wildcat production, with the No. 2 Edwards "9," to be drilled 16 miles northeast of Garden City.

The Pronghorn (Wolfcamp) field, at last report, consisted only of the Nortex No. 1 Edwards "9", completed July 4, 1981.

The drillsite is 1/2-mile east of the J.N. Blair No. 1 Edwards, drilled to 7,621 feet and abandoned May 26, 1969.

The location is 1,900 feet from the south and east lines of section 9, block 34, T-2-S T&PRR survey.

HOWARD PROSPECT

Southland Royalty Co., Midland, will drill the the 10,100-foot wildcat No. 1 McKinnon, 5 miles southwest of Big Spring. On the way down, they will look for Florac (Strawn) field production around 9,500 feet.

The stake is 467 feet from the south and west lines of section 29, block 33, T-1-S, T&PRR survey.

The location is about 2 1/2 miles south of the West Moore Unit. Apparently, there are no wells of comparable depth in the immediate vicinity.

MITCHELL EXTENDER

Tomlinson Oil Co., Midland, will drill a second hole in the Bull Creek (Canyon) field.

The No. 1 Sterling Cattle Co., an 8,300-foot project, will be cut 467 feet from the north, and 2,173 feet from the west line of section 62, block 20, Lavaca Navigation Co. survey.

The Bull Creek field was opend December 15, 1980 with Tomlinson's No. 1 Dunn, producing at 7,387 feet.

RUNNELS RE-ENTRY

Avips Petroleum Inc., Abilene, will re-enter, and deepen to the original contract depth of 4,700 feet, its No. 1 M.L. Woods in Runnels County, 1 1/2 miles southeast of Crews.

The well was originally completed as a second Ellenburger oil producer August 17, to pump 10 barrels of 42 gravity oil, plus nine barrels of water.

Location is 2,400 feet from the south corner of the J.E. Hooten No. 94 survey and 467 feet from the west line of the W.W. Gray, abstract 653 survey.

RUNNELS SEARCHERS

Pro Oil, Dallas, has scheduled two wildcats in Runnels County.

The No. 1 Lazy 4 Enterprises, a 5,300-foot wildcat, is located 1,667 feet from the northeast, and 467 feet from the southeast line of the H.T. Davis No. 314, and is two miles southwest of Maverick.

It is 2,000 feet south-southeast of the 5,224-foot Roy Hardy No. 1 Hoblitzelle, abandoned February 1963.

The No. 1 Dennis R. Rohmfeld, a scheduled 4,400-foot wildcat, four miles north of Rowena, is located 1,615 feet from the northeast (Colorado River), and 155 northwest of the Jacob Anckerhoffer No. 416, abstract 7.

It is approximately 1 1/2 miles east, and slightly north, of the 4,629-foot American Trading No. 1 H.B. Edmonson, plugged and abandoned June 17, 1957.

SCHLEICHER WILDCATS

Indian Wells Oil Co. has scheduled a 6,900-foot wildcat in Schleicher County, 5.3 miles northwest of Eldorado.

Designated the No. 1 Page Ranch, the site is 933 feet from the south, and east line of labor 5, league 2, Concho CSL survey.

The location is 4/5 of a mile south of HNG's No. 1 Page, plugged and abandoned February 1980 at 8,328 feet.

****

Newhall Land & Farming Co., Valencia, will drill the No. 1 Powell, a 7,110-foot wildcat in Schleicher County, 8 1/2 miles south of Eldorado.

The location is 1,980 feet from the south, and east line of section 40, block A, HE&WT survey, abstract 842.

The drillsite is 3/5 of a mile northwest of the Jocelyn-Varn No. 1 Thomson, abandoned Sept. 23, 1958 at 6,594 feet.

TOM GREEN PROJECTS

William B. Wilson & Sons Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Kennemer "2" as a 1,200-foot wildcat in Tom Green County, three miles northeast of Carlsbad.

The site is 350 feet from the north, and east line of section 2, block 16, H&TC survey.

The project will be drilled as a south twin to the 1,250-foot South West No. 1 Kennemer abandoned at 1,250 feet. No other information was available.

Westland Oil Development Corp., Houston, will drill a 6,300-foot Ellenburger wildcat, four miles east of Christoval.

The location is 660 feet from the south and west lines of section 6, block 24, H&TC survey.

Offshore port president satisfied

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — The president of a privately-funded, four-member oil consortium says a proposed $191 million deepwater port licensed by federal officials earlier this week could be in operation by mid-1984.

"I have no qualms about the license, and as a member of the (Texas Offshore Port, Inc.) staff, I will recommend that it be accepted by the owner companies," C.A. Brace, TOP president, said.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis issued the federal license Monday to the oil consortium.

"If everything goes as I think it will, we should be on stream between the first quarter and midpoint of 1984," Brace said. "We have been negotiating with the federal government on this, since we applied for a license on Dec. 30, and in my view, we have come up with a good license."

Lewis said the port would lower the cost of transporting crude oil.

Correction

Monday, we erroneously reported the location of a wildcat well scheduled for drilling in Stonewall County.

Union Exploration, Lamesa, will drill the No. 1 Valhlenkamp about five miles south of Old Glory, in section 32, BBB&C survey, not in section 132, as we reported.

We understand our error has caused lease holders in section 132 considerable worry. We appologize.

If you are aware of factual errors in our reports, or in the future become aware of such errors, please tell us about them, so we can set the record straight.

Cities Service executive warns against oil taxes

DENVER (AP) — New state severance taxes on economically marginal oil wells could cause their premature abandonment, depriving the nation of much needed crude oil, according to a Cities Service Co executive.

C.H. Adam, vice president for Tulsa-based Cities Service's planning and technology, warned that 21 states will consider tax increases on the oil industry and severance taxes on production will be introduced in 28 states.

These taxes would be in addition to present state property or "ad valorem" taxes and the windfall profits tax on crude oil. Additional taxes on motor fuels are under consideration in 38 states and the District of Columbia, he said.

Severance taxes are being discussed in Colorado and other states.

I'm setting myself Free of Foolish rent payments and intelligently investing in my very own home! Of course I can't afford a mansion yet, so that's why I'm going to purchase this 3 bdrm, 2 bth, home that's just right. It has a fireplace, 22'X15' living area, 11'X10' dining room, 8'11' kitchen, plus a 15'12' master suite and best of all no one living above me! It's priced just right at $71,000 and that means I can afford it. I'm so proud I finally derided to quit paying rent. In fact, I'm going to pick up the nearest phone and call Marrus Strother at 563-4480 EVES. 684-6710 and tell him right now!! (MS903)
