Interested in final passage of the state highway bond issue resolution, which lacked only two votes of the necessary 100 to submit it to the people, he said he would be taken to the house in a wheel chair when the proposition is considered Monday if his vote should be needed to put it over.

The campaign to pass the highway bond issue amendment down to the people for their consideration transcends everything else just now, unless it is Governor Moody's attitude toward the Wirtz bill which would empower the state democratic executive committee to mete out punishment to recalcitrants who would not stand hitched to the party's presidential nominee. Speculation on either is enough to keep prognosticators busy for a spell.

Camp Followers, "Noblest Of Mexico's Warriors," Are Trudging Close Behind Calles' 18,000 Troops

(By Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 9.—(By Lindbergh air mail plane)—Behind Former President Calles' army of 18,000 men, rolling northward on comfortable box cars toward what is expected to be the crucial battle of the revolution, a feminine army is pushing forward in any type of conveyance it can find.

Some people might characterize these volunteers as camp followers, but they have a much more important function in Mexico where they serve as the commissary department and at times the blue cross and in several other branches.

Have No Official Status.

They have no official status and they receive no pay from the government yet Mexican generals have frequently referred to them as "The noblest of Mexico's warriors."

Some of them are wives and some sweethearts of the soldiers. It is probable that mothers and sisters of soldiers also make up part of the train.

They cook for the soldier to whom they have attached themselves, mend his clothing, forage food if necessary when he has no money, or nothing can be purchased, mend his clothing and cheer him up when he is downcast.

Their Loss Is Hard.

Their loss is a hard one. When the army moves they follow afoot, or in any vehicle they can find. If a soldier is killed in battle the woman who has been caring for him frequently adopts another and goes on.

In a previous revolution, when a number of Mexican soldiers were interned at El Paso, the army of camp followers crossed the river with their men and were interned at the same time.

Cheers Sound For New License Law

Harrowed Justices And County Clerk See Unbroken Sleep As Result Of New Marriage License Law

Sleepy-eyed justices of the peace and county clerks no longer will be roused from their peaceful slumbers at all hours of the night by some romantically-inclined couple that just can't wait until morning to get married.

The age old custom of elopments—of interrupting the sleep of a county clerk to procure a license in the middle of the night and of waking a justice or a preacher to perform a wedding ceremony, will meet an untimely end in June when the new marriage license law, requiring that licenses be posted three days before they are issued, becomes effective.

In Time For June

This law, passed by the recent legislature, becomes effective ninety days after the adjournment of the body—and, County Clerk Amos Howard points out, in time for June weddings. He and his deputies, together with Justices W. S. Clark and G. R. Scott, all agree that the law is a good one. If it does nothing else, they will tell you, it will insure them uninterrupted sleep.

So-called "gin weddings" of youths more or less "tight," also will come to an end with the new law, and the marriage-struck would-be newly weds will have to wait not only until dawn, but until three dawns—and in many cases, change their minds when they sober up and are in the throes of a hang-over.

To Ruin Bets

Getting married on a dare, on a wager, or the many other things youths have been known to do, only to regret it the next morning, will be impossible.

Sometimes when a fellow "pops the question" and gets a favorable answer he is no respector of hours and wants to get the ceremony over with before the lady of his choice has a chance to change her mind, deputy clerks report. It is thought that the new state law will eliminate the congested divorce docket and eliminate the familiar procedure of "hasty marriage, hasty divorce."

Under the new legislation licenses cannot be issued before three days or after thirty days of the date the intention of marrying is posted.

Newly Weds Differ

A number of persons applying for licenses recently were asked what they thought of the law. Their opinions varied from a preference for a three hour posting to ten days.

One timid, sheepishly-looking fellow, who looked as if he would rather wait three years than three days, was asked his opinion of the law. As he bashfully began to stammer out his opinion, his robust bride-to-be spoke up and in no uncertain terms voiced "their" opinion—that the law was a silly one and should never have been allowed. He swallowed hard and nodded his consent.

TEACHES BANDITRY

Thousand Persons Look On During Chicago Raid

CHICAGO, March 9. (AP)—A professional looking fellow conducted a class in banditry last night in view of 1,000 persons.

Kahn's Jewelry store on West 22nd Street was the place, and the time was when the crowd was leaving a theatre next door

The student bandits were awkward but they escaped with all of Kahn's valuable jewelry and much of his cash.

They parked in front of the store and entered the place where the proprietor was talking with two customers.

"Stick 'em up," said one student without preliminaries.

The professor registered disgust.

"No, no, no," he said, "It is not yet time to say 'stick 'em up.' Look at all those people outside. Do you want to get arrested? How many times must I tell you to take the men into the back room?"

This was done and the robbery consummated. Outside again, the robbers climbed into their car. One of them fired a couple of wild shots as the gears meshed.

"Don't do that," the professional fellow was heard to say. "I never saw the like."

Ten more blocks of paving have been completed here, as part of the $100,000 paving program started last year, the city commission Saturday afternoon passing resolutions accepting the improvements and approving maintenance bonds, and ordering the issuance of certificates in evidence of assessments levied.

The north and south alley in Block 133, and the east and west alley in the same block, being two blocks in all, have also been finished.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED

The issuance of five marriage licenses at the county clerk's office late Friday and Saturday, brought the total for this year to 124 and for the month of March to 18. The last licenses were issued to the following:

Oma C. Fox and Miss Hallie Beckum, Howard Hamm and Miss Dora Belle Roberts, Grady R. Wtkins and Miss Haven Sawyer, Carl W. George and Miss Grayce Pirtle.

'Phone Is Used

Dictation Taken In Suit 225 Miles

AUSTIN, Mar. 9. (AP)—Speaking over a telephone more than 225 miles away, a Dallas corporation attorney dictated motions in two suits involving $40,000 to Harry P. Bickler, Austin court reporter, when informed that only three hours remained in which the instruments might be filed in the state supreme court. The proceedure required 25 minutes.

Had the motions, read between 9 and 10 o'clock at night, not been filed by midnight, the court would have been forced to dismiss the cases for lack of jurisdiction.

The Librarian Meets Them All!

Miss Elizabeth West, Guardian Of Tech's Books, Is Experienced In Stories As Well As In Volumes

The librarian meets them all!

From the unlettered swain who does not know the meaning of a card catalogue to the scholar who can get the gist of a book by glancing at the chapter titles, the librarian meets them all. Poker faces, sad faces, and humorous faces—the librarian meets them all. Psychologists, sociologists, agriculturalists, statesmen, poets, and engineers—the librarian meets them all.

If there is any type that she doesn't meet, she talks to a representative over the phone. Perhaps it was a mistake the other day when someone telephoned the Tech library and asked if "Whipping Cream" was on the shelf. Maybe the individual doing the phoning thought the phone company had him connected with the college dairy plant. But all such incidents which Miss Elizabeth West is able to relate can not be explained so easily.

Can Tell Many Stories

Being a librarian during saloon days Miss West is able to tell enough stories to make a small volume. She is sure that convivial fellows have sometimes called from a saloon asking for information that they might settle an argument.

An illustrative question and one which she has actually answered for such fellows is: "What is the longest whale that was ever caught?"

Other people have called for medical remedies to save the life of a sick pet. And, after looking for a poultry remedy Miss West has returned to the telephone only to hear a sad voice say that the pet chicken had just died!

On one occasion a young man was looking for a suitable book for his girl friend. The librarian suggested several books and finally asked if she had "Freckles." The young man thinking that the librarian referred to his girl's complexion replied that she did not have them. A girl once called for "That Girl Who Had a Wooden Leg" and went away happily when she received Gene Stratton Porter's "The Girl of the Limberlost." Just the other day while the Coffer-Miller players were at the college a fellow stepped up to the reserve desk and asked for Shakespeare's "She Stoops to Conquer." He wanted to "brush up on" the play before he saw it presented. On another occasion someone called for a copy of Elizabethian drama which was written during the Restoration period.

She Gets Her Laughs

Such stories remind us that the librarian gets her laughs. No doubt she does but she often has to laugh inwardly. She has to do so behind a poker face. As Miss West says "The Library is a public servant. We do almost anything that the people want us to do. I remember a stranger having come to me asking for aid in securing employment and I accepted the task as part of my duty as a librarian," she said. "We have to cultivate a poker face and a detective instinct and take the funny things seriously," she added.

Pep Squad Made Into Two Groups

The Westerner pep squad has recently been divided into two squads the "Jellies" and the "Toughs" in order that they might still uphold the Westerner football team.

The leaders of the two squads are Martha Alice Penny and Rob O'Hair "Toughs"; Skeeter Doss and Homer Hall, "Jellies". A campaign is on to see which squad can get the most members. Both the "Jellies" and the "Toughs" promise a very interesting game Tuesday. Each will have to fight a hard battle in order to determine which title will reign—"Jellies" or "Toughs".

The American Legion is going to show their negro ministrel especially for school children in the high school auditorium Monday afternoon at 3:30.

This Generation?

Youngsters Present Their Reasons

"What is this generation coming to?" is the question asked by so many older people. They throw up their hands, roll their eyes, and shake their heads—"My stars, what next?" They think that we young people are too free and fast. But we're not.

We're only human. We want our rights; our freedom. Of course we want the advice of our elders, but we do not want them to preach and preach, and preach, "Do this and don't do that," just because they did or didn't do it when they were young.

Ideas and customs have changed! And I think that when we are of age we will be able to face the world just as strong of mind and healthy of body as any of our ancestors.

Editor Addresses High School Class

Charles A. Guy, managing editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal made a talk to Miss Dorothy Lomax's journalism students Thursday morning.

Mr. Guy made a very interesting and impressive talk. He stated that accuracy, reliability, and enterprise led to speed and punctuality, and that the majority of the people prefer news to editorials. He stressed "getting the story" and writing it up quickly. Mr. Guy also stated that the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal is going to conduct an extensive campaign for the cause of new school buildings.

Mr. Guy was very kind to offer the high school all the space that it may want in this paper. He suggested that we give a prize to the persons who write up the best school section for the paper the remainder of the semester.

The attempt to produce this sound altimeter is conducted by Prof. L. P. Lelsasso, who perfected the echo method of deep sea sounding, known as the sonic principle, which the United States navy adopted.

Professor Delsasso is studying how to regulate motor noises in aircraft and investigating the amount of sound reflected, or echoed, from various types of land surfaces. The sounds whose echoes are sought will be produced by whistles, sirens and possibly other kinds of noise makers. Professor Delsasso is in the physics department of the University of California.

"DEAD WEEK" BEGIN

All social activities for the week are either been postponed or called off entirely because of the examination which will begin tomorrow morning and last through until Saturday.

Several students are planning to spend a few days at home as they will get through with their examinations early.

Plans for the spring term include the moving of the chemistry labratory to the physic building and that room to be used to enlarge the library.

Other plans are to furnish a room on the third floor for a study hall thereby relieving congested conditions in the second hall during the morning hours.

One of the first attractions which the college offers with the beginning of the new term is the coming of Tony Sarg and his Marionettes the night of March 19. An early artist number wil be the lecture by the son of Count Tolstoy.

Miss Ruth Pirtle, who has directed two pageants for the college, is already planning the fourth affair of this sort which will be staged again this year in front of the cloisters of the Administration building. This year it is to include several town people as well as college students and will be presented on a very elaborate scale.

Athens Hornets Win Interscholastic League Cage Title

Training For Major League Clubs Swing Into Exhibition Stage

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

ALL OVER NOW

Basketball in Texas reached a fitting climax and made its final bow of the 1929 season last night as the cream of the schoolboy basketball talent in the state wound up the struggle for the supremacy of the Interscholastic League. Athens and Denton were the last to leave the stage, but Athens withstood the onslaught and stayed on to be crowned king of them all. It was a great battle, according to press reports from Aggieland, where the tournament wa sstaged. The two teams playing in the deciding contest displayed what some declare the best cage aggregations that have ever entered the state meet.

THEN COMES BASEBALL

The closing of the basketball season and the coming of warm weather has injected the baseball fever into the minds of sport followers and participants the country over. While the major league clubs are basking in the warm sunshine of Florida, Texas and "Sunny" California along with the southern teams, college baseball candidates are beginning to toss the old apple around the lot. The outlook for a strong Tech baseball team is unusually bright this year. Coach Higginbotham will have veterans back for practically every position. If the weather permits the Matadors to begin training within the next week, the locals should develop into a fast stepstepping nine.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Plans are under way to organize a city baseball league in Lubbock. A meeting of all baseball enthusiasts will be held at the city hall Wednesday night to decide upon a plan for the season. Since Lubbock will likely not be in the West Texas League when the season opens May 1, a Twilight League here should prove a success. A baseball schedule with the games set for late in the afternoons will afford those in stores offices and shops here much needed exercises as well as the usual entertainment for the non-participants. An ideal plan would call for a period extending over three months.

SOUNDS LIKE GOOD PLAN

A baseball league among high schools of East Texas has recently been organized to give impetus to the fast declining college and high school sport. J. E. Willis of Marshall is president of the league and S. Pollard, of Henderson is secretary and statistician. The season will open March 19 and close May 7. This will give the eight schools entered in the loop three full weeks of competition. The plan adopted by the East Texans is one that all sections might well follow. High school lads can get valuable experience in this sort of competition. Various and sundry ideas are being advanced to develop and conserve the younger baseball talent, and this one appears to be as good as the best.

HORNETS WIN AGAIN

Coach Jimmy Kitts' Athens Hornets won their second state basketball championship in three years last night at College Station when they defeated Denton High school in the final contest, 22 to 11. The East Texas basketeers bowled over all opposition in theu tournament in easy fashion, displaying a brand of basketball that the opposing teams were never able to stop. The Hornets undoubtedly put them in tip-top shape for the final drive for the state title. In their appearance here, the Athens cagers were not forced to extend themselves to defeat the Lubbock quintet. In fact their advantage in heighth allowed them to play almost the entire game over the heads of the local players.

ORGANIZE LEAGUE

East Texas High Schools To Play Baseball

LONGVIEW, Mar. 9. (AP)—East Texas high schools today organized a high school baseball league with J. E. Willis, Marshall, president, and S. Pollard, Henderson, secretary and statistician.

Longview, Marshall, Jefferson, Hallsville, Henderson, Gilmer, Mount Pleasant and Tyler are the participating schools.

The season will open March 19 and close May 7.

Most Of Clubs In South Engage In Practice Combat

Some Clubs Hold to Routine Training While Others Were Enroute To Scenes Of Today's Games

ATLANTA, Mar. 9. (AP)—Major league baseball training today swung into the exhibition series stage with most clubs training in the south either engaged or on the march for games tomorrow.

The Redlegs of Cincinnati and Connie Mack's Athletics clashed at Miami.

The Reds won, 7 t 5, getting nine hits and making only one bobble while the A's got eight hits and made two errors.

The White Sox were playing the Dallas club out in Texas and McGraw's Giants were taking a fling at San Antonio at Laredo.

Some of the camps held to routine, however. Dan Howley sent his Browns through a practice affair between members of the squad at West Palm Beach.

The Phillies went through morning and afternoon workouts at Winterhaven.

Barney Friberg, infielder, worked out for the first time in the early practice.

Exporters To Begin Training On Tuesday

BEAUMONT, March 9. (AP)—Paul Easterling, hard hitting outfielder from Detroit, and Bill Akers, a young shortstop expected to fill Eddie Marshall's shoes, were the new arrivals in Exporter camp today. Easterling did not arrive in time to take a workout.

Pitchers and catchers had two hours of exercise and will go at it again Sunday afternoon. Regular training season starts Tuesday.

Sox Pound Dallas Hurlers For Win

DALLAS, March 9. (AP)—Outside of a brief onslaught in the fifth inning in which they scored five runs and drove young Ed Walsh to the showers, Dallas batters had little luck with the offerings of Chicago White Sox hurlers today and dropped their second straight exhibition game to Manager Blackburne's athletes, 12 to 5.

The Steers paraded a quartet of young flingers to the mound but none of them were effective against Kamm, Jeffries, Walsh and other sluggers of the Sox. Five errors afield didn't serve to steady the Steer pitchers.

Pete Jones, former Baylor University star, who looks more and more like a fine prospect for the Dallas outfield, led the Steers with a brace of singles. Flynn, Polger and Morse clipped doubles. Hensick was the losing Dallas pitcher. He gave up eight hits and six runs, only two of which were earned, in five innings.

Wild Pitch Gives Game To Millers

SHREVEPORT, March 9. (AP)—A wild pitch by Joe Pate, Minneapolis hurler, in the tenth inning with a man on third gave the Shreveport Sports a 6 to 5 victory over the Minneapolis Millers in the first spring exhibition game here today.

Score by innings:

Minneapolis	100 100 021 0—5

Batteries: J. Brillheart, Middleton, Dickerman, Pate and Griffin, Campbell; Brown, Owens, Wilkins and Stack, Starr.

Mackmen Drop Third Game In Row To Reds

MIAMI, Fla., March 9. (AP)— The Cincinnatials today defeated the Philadelphia American, 7 to 5 and ran the Athletics losing streak to three games. The Athletics opened the exhibition season by losing to the St. Louis Nationals and dropped a second game to them yesterday.

Crabtree, in right field for Cincinnati, hit two home runs, one in the fourth and one in the fifth inning. Simmons clouted a homer in the fifth for the Athletics and Hassler a triple in the fourth.

Spudder Slab Aces Report For Training

WICHITA FALLS, March 9. (AP)—Arrival in the Spudder training camp today of pitchers Milt Steengrafe and Chick Galeria leaves only one absentee, Stanley "Rabbitt" Benton, shortstop, and he is expected to report any day.

The first nine-inning game of the spring season is scheduled tomorrow when Wichita Falls will take on the Abilene club of the West Texas League, which has been working out here with its parent team.

UPSET LAD TAKES DERBY

TOUGH ON ALEX

It is interesting to observe the demand being made for the services of those fellows who helped Bill Alexander turn out that crack football tea mat Georgia Tech last fall.

It may be remembered that Alex's team was undefeated in the southland, that it defeated Notre Dame for the first time, and then eked out a victory over California in the annual Tournament of Roses game.

Don Miller was one of Alex's assistants. He coached the backs, and there is no nee dto tell anyone that he did a very swell job of it. Few teams had a better backfield than Georgia Tech had in Mizell, Thomason, Lumpkin and Durant.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

BROADWAY says Der Paulie Berlenbach, is going to vaudeville in Germany . . . at two grands a week . . . for 20 weeks, ... Bengough traveled alone to the Yankees' camp this summer . . . he left the sax at home . . . . Andy Cohen and Shanty Hogan vaudevilling, were booked in New York, as Cohen and Hogan. . . . in Moston as Hogan and Cohen . . . In South Boston as Hogan and company . . . So they say . . . Tommy Warne is a young pole vaulter worth watching . . . er worth watching . . . he is a soph at Northwestern . . . . and already has topped 13 feet 4 inches . . . A guy named Tschatschula pitches in a Texas league . . . thank goodness . . . Two Atlanta boys, Carl Agricola and Louis Effell biked 600 miles to see the Sharkey-Stribling thing . . For two days and two nights. . . . Ore-Stribling thing . . . for two days and two nights . . . YALE WANTS FINCHER

Another fellow whom Alex is quite willing to give ample credit for the part he played in the development of thue Georgia Tech team, this year and other years, is Bill Fincher.

Fincher, so the rumor has it, won't be back at Georgia. Tech next fall. It is said he has been approached by Mal Stevens, the young Yale coach, ith a proposition that would give the Eli institution his services as line coach during the football season.

IF THIS IS TRUE—

Another interesting angle to this rumored offer to Finchuer is that it may mean the breaking up of the graduate system of coaching at New Haven.

If the offer was made and there seems ample reason to believe that Stevens did write Fincher to that efect, it can be taken for granted that Stevens didn't do so of his violition without the consent or approval of the football committee.

Their sanction of such an offer naturally implies that they are quite willing to have the forward wall at Yale directed by a coach, other than one who learned his football at Yale

PENALTY TO HONOR

Fincher's loss, added to Miller's departure, would be a severe blow to Georgia Tech football, but not one which would be so terrible that Bill Alexander couldn't get out from under.

He has said nothing of the rumored offer to Fincher. Atlanta newspapers, however have been crying in alarm about it, and imploring the athletic authorities at Georgia Tech to do all in their power to keep Fincher for the Tornado.

Being a graduate of Tech, Fincher may be a hard man to take away to New Haven. On the other hand, Yale is one of the richest schools in the country and well able to make an attractive offer to any man it really wants.

The moral to all this, if there is any, is that Alex is paying a penalty fo rall the honor heaped upon him and his football team last fall — the penalty of losing two major assistants who helped him make the team the outstanding one of the year.

Strange Methods

Braves Learn To Run From Trainer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 9. (AP)—In addition to having a manager who never played professional baseball, the Boston Braves have other new stunts to spring this year.

Manager Emil Fuchs tells of the latest.

"There is not a sore arm or leg, a strain or even a bruise in the camp," he says, "thanks largely to our new training system. Dr. Earle Painter, a physician rather than a trainer, although he has had experience in training athletes, has introduced some new methods by showing the players how to go about an intelligent, sane system of training. He has even taught them how to run, a surprising course of study for baseball players. The system already has begun to show results."

"Big Train" For Players But Promises Stern Rule

Johnson Back With First Love Much The Wiser

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 9.—(AP)—Walter Johnson, after 20 years of success as a major league pitcher, learned a lot of managing in one year in the minors and has returned to his first love, Washington, wiser than he was a year ago.

"The Big Train" is still "for the players," but he is quite definite in saying that his policy in his first season as a manager on the big time will be very definite.

Chatting with the big fellow who could throw baseballs past the bats of the best hitters in the business one gets the idea that he proposes to be gentle but quite firm.

"If I could have known a year ago when I started out as a manager what I know now, my whole policy would have been different," he said.

"Players who do not take their work seriously are doing themselves and their clubs an injustice and when I found I had some of this type on my club I should have sent them right home.

"I anticipate no trouble of this kind in my major league chance. There is no reason to believe that I shall have to be 'hard boiled' but I can be if necessary.

"A manager said to me recently, 'Well, now that you have been a manager a year, what do you think of baseball players?'

"My reply was, 'I'm still for the players. I don't believe you can condemn baseball players as a whole on account of the wild actions of a few.'

"He came back, 'You'll find you're wrong.' But I don't think I will.

"It looks very good for us. We had a good ball club left over and some of these new fellows have a good chance to come through for us. It's too early for me to commit myself, of course, but I have been impressed by the actions of some of several of our recruits.

"There are several possibilities for arrangement of our infield. We have some versatile chaps who can fit in at second, short or third and the situation should work itself out nicely.

"Goslin's arm will give him no trouble. I wish I could be as sure that we will win the pennant as I am that 'Goose' will be throwing as well as ever, in spite of his collapse last year.

"We will have plenty of speed. Bornes and West are both very fast and Rice can still move around."

Manager Johnson was told that Manager Howley of the Browns had predicted good things for his Senators and had classed them as "dangerous."

"I can return the compliment," he said. "Dan's Browns showed last year that they were a hard club to beat with a chance of becoming tougher.

"It should be an interesting season. Of course I still have something to learn about managing. No one ever knows it all but I know more now than I did a year ago—much more."

FORT WORTH, March 9.—With 21 men reporting to coach Raymond (Bear) Wolf each afternoon, the freshman diamond squad at Texas Christian university promises to develop some valuable material for varsity competition next year. The squad has been working several days and coach Wolf is fast whipping his charges into a team.

At second "Bear' will have E. Heath and Richard Houser who have been holding down the keystone base with much efficiency. There are two candidates for third with, J. S. Clark and Jim Stanton vieing for the job. At shortstop H. Hill has given much promise of becoming one of the best men on the squad. He cant hit well and fields his position in good style.

Steamer Sails In Quest Of Dream Island, Somewhere In Wide Pacific

"For we're booming down on the old trail, our own trail, the out trail, "We're sagging south on the long trail—the trail that is always new."

BOSTON, March 9. (AP) — The steamer Peary of MacMillan Arctic fame is at sea on as strange a quest as a ship ever sailed.

The story of the man who chartered her is that the goal is an island, six to 10 feet below the surface of the Pacific ocean, somewhere off the California coast. This man, Matthew F. Bramley, wealthy Clevelander, is aboard.

Before sailing he said that the idea of finding such an island came to him in a dream. And he told how, during a trip to California last summer, he used a yacht to search for this island, but without finding it.

Then he resorted to a plane which, in a three hour flight, located floating kelp, with seabirds resting upon it, and nearby was the submerged reef or island in shallow water.

Bramley laughed when pressed for details, and said it would be time to talk after he learned whether access to the submerged area were practicable. He hinted that bulkheads would furnish an answer to the problem of baring the sunken land.

The Peary carries a well-equipped, well-manned expedition, such as might go in search of mineral deposits. Among those on board are Robert Cann of Mexico City, a mining engineer, William Pease, engineer; Edward H. Green and Nate Siegal, Cleveland paving contractors; Mrs. Bramley, a nurse, a secretary and a physician.

Bramley is a paving contractor. He is said to have been interested in oil operations in various parts of the world, and to have visited Venezeula several times in search of a source for asphalt.

Houston's Need For Hurlers Proved Acute

HOUSTON, March 9. (AP) — The acute need of the Houston Buffs for more proved pitchers is the outstanding weakness developed in the first week of spring training. With other departments of the team shaping up nicely the sad state of the pitching corps assumes importance.

The Buffs have an outstanding infielder in Joel Hunt, former Texas Aggie football luminary. Joel is a much improved baseball player, fielding nicely and has his eye on the ball. His bid for the utility infield job is strengthened by the fact that he is a rookie.

Cohorts Of Jimmy Kitts Defeat Denton Crew Decisively Deciding Game; 22 To 11

COLLEGE STATION, Mar. 9. (AP)—A quintet of six-footers from Athens high school in East Texas swept through to the 1929 Texas Interscholastic League basketball championship by defeating Denton high school, 22 to 11, in the deciding game at Texas A. & M. College Memorial Gymnasium here tonight.

It marked the second time in three years that Coach Jimmy Kitts' cagers have won supreme honors in the state. In 1927 they likewise downed Denton for the title, although not by as decisive margin as tonight. Athens now shares with Oak Cliff of Dallas the honor of having won the state title twice.

Towering above their opponents, passing fast and shooting accurately, the Hornets took the lead early in the game and steadily forged ahead. At the half they were leading 7 to 4. The Thompkins brothers, Athens forwards, could not be held down by the Denton guards, and J. Thompkins, a cousin, guarded the Denton goal shooters so closely they were held to three goals from the floor.

Spur To Organize Baseball Outfit

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

A number of veteran baseball players on hand to begin training under the supervision of Edwards. Stars of the Spur City League last season who are expected to furnish the punch in the 1929 team are: Hindman, Hyatt, Clay, Tillison, Jordan, McMahan, McAlpine and Samples.

Once Again Civilization Pushes Apaches Back From Their Homes

MIAMI, Ariz., Mar. 9.—Day by day the waters of the lake created by the new Coolidge dam are rising and creeping toward the lands of 600 Apache Indians whose property eventually will be submerged.

Again the red man is moving at the behest of the pale face. Although new lands are to be given him in exchange and some $146,000 paid for the inconvenience and trouble caused, the Indian is singing his song of lament into the ears of the great white father at Washington.

Perhaps, after all, it is a song of bargaining rather than of sorrow for at a recent conference with government officials at San Carlos, Arizona, a spokesman for the assembled braves concluded his speech of protest with the words, "Indian no want new land. He satisfied with land his forefather pick out here. He no want move. White man say he must so now Indian here to get all he can."

H. H. Fiske, Indian inspector, speaking through an interpreter to the people of Chief Talkali, direct descendent of the famous Geronimo, to Chief Big Horn and some 50 representatives of the Apaches outlined the proposals.

"The government is not trying to steal your land or your home," he said. "It has been necessary to ask you to move from the land you now occupy but the government is giving your tribe $96,000, and $50,000 to be divided among the individual Indians.

"There are just 600 of your Apache Indians here who must move to new lands and there are 4,000 Pima Indians who will have the first prosperity they have ever known through the waters which will be stored by the great Coolidge dam. They do not belong to the same tribe as you but they are your people. You should be glad to help them. It means much to the Pimas and you are not losing anything. The government is giving you money and new land."

"We understand," answered the spokesman, "we move, but first we get government to promise good lands with water."

The Apaches have been told they could have their choice of any ground for which irrigation water can be found.

Dan Howley Continues To Moan Despite Bright Outlook

Griffith Rates Modern Day Pitchers Inferior To Slabmen Of Old School

St. Louis Browns, Finishing In Third Place Last Season, Should Be Even Stronger, Says Farrell

Howling Dan, With Nothing Particular to Moan About Howls Just The Same; Fears Accidents

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
NEA Service Sports Editor

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 9.—The loudest moans that were emitted from the Florida training camp section this time last year came from Dan Howley, who was here for his first hitch as the manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Howling Dan Howley is a notorious moaner and he agreed with everyone who told him he was in a tough spot. His spot was admitted by all the experts to be even worse than theone now occupied by the new manager of the other St. Louis club, the 1928 champions, the Cardinals. Bill Southworth is now in the other spot.

Howley was grabbed away from Toronto, where he had done very well in the International League. Detroit wanted him, but Howley accepted the offer of Phil Ball, the owner of the Browns, and he must have winced when Ball suggested to him in Ball's very frank and gruff way that he would be retained by the Browns if he goto the club into the pennant race.

This time last year, Howley didn't know what kind of a ball club he had. Neither did Ball. The owner had tired of a second division club which lost most of its patronage to the Cardinals, who had suddenly developed the habit of getting into the National League race. Ball announced to the newspaper boys that he was going to tear the club apart from top to bottom and that if dough could get him a winner he would drill a few more oil wells and get the players.

Ball did tear the ball club apart and after he had finished the razing no expert in the country could tell what he had.

"It's going to be terrible for me", Howley said at this time last year. "I need everything. I've got two rookies and if they don't work at short and second we're sunk, and, I'm asking you, how many times has a club found a regular shortstop and second baseman from the minors in the same year?"

It so happened that Kress and Brannon delivered in the tough spots at short and second and the team became the sensation of 1928, finishing in third place.

The trade that Ball and Howley slipped over on Detroit when they got Heinie Manush was another big help, because Manush chased Goose Goslin to the finish wire for the league batting championship.

Some swell pitching turned in by Sam Gray, a cast-off from the Athletics, and Alvin Crowder, a young man released from Washington because he was afflicted with a sick stomach, also did the Browns no harm.

With the addition of a number of promising new men, veterans and rookies the Browns will make the race this year with the same team. It is a young team, better physically, perhaps, than the Yankees and with more heart, perhaps, than the Athletic, but Howley isn't making any claims. His good friends among the baseball men, who like to take him for a ride, have been pouring his ears full of the consoling information that his fellows were way over their heads last year and that they'll go for a flop this year.

"What are you moaning about this year?" we asked him.

"I'm in a tough spoot this year," he said. "I haven't anything particular to moan about, but when you look around this town and see what the wind did to the place since we left you have to feel that anything can happen in any business. Supposing my ball club should have a lot of accidents, I tell you, I'm not making any predictions."

Howley can't disguise his real feeling, however, when he talks about what Rip Collins and Claude Jonnard may do for the pitching staff.

Collins is the former Yankee and Detroit marathon eating champion He ate himself out of the big leagues and went to Toronto, where he won 17 games and lost nine games last year in a tough race.

Jonnard has been around in the majors before and he is just out of a comeback with Milwaukee in the American Association. The wise men thought his arm was gone, but he won 19 games and lost 11 last year.

The best rookie in the camp is Richard Ferrell, a brother of the rookie Cleveland pitcher. Ferrell caught for Columbus in the American Association last year and he was rated as the best young catcher seen in the league for 25 years. Detroit and the Giants got into an argument about their property rights to him and Commissinoer Landis stepped in and declared him a free agent. Ferrell then proved himself a smart business man by selling himself to the Browns for $25,000. If he comes through on his minor league promise he might become to the Browns what Mickey Cochrane is to the Athletics.

Predictions made in training camps never are worth the paper on which they are written. We don't know about all those lame arms of the Yankees or about the stories the ball players tell on the courage of the Athletics, but the Browns look good. They certainly don't look any worse than they did at this time last year and you might figure that they would be better on account of experience and confidence.

Tech Relay Teams To Enter Austin And S. M. U. Events

Matador Tracksters In Line For Strenuous Grind To Prepare For Coming Season; Prospects Brighter

Coach Victor Payne's Matador thinly clads will dig a little deeper into cinder this week as the track mentor begins to crack the whip over the track and field candidates at Tech. The lanky cinder stars enter the third week of training with a comparatively short time in which to prepare for their first competition March 29 in Austin at the Texas Relays.

An unruly weather man has prevented the crimson tracksters from gaining much headway in training thus far, but a hard row of strenuous workouts is in store for the squad during the next few weeks.

The intramural track meet uncovered a number of promising thinly clads who may prove valuable additions to the varsity machine. Several of these will join the squad Monday to begin training under Coach Payne.

Coach Payne is still lacking in sprint stars. As yet no candidates have been found to take the place of Doug Smythe, 100-yard flyer of last year's team. At present, James Dallas and Ben Lawrence are the most promising candidates for the century event.

Fisher To Enter Five

In the 220-yard dash, the Matadors will have Captain Vaughn Corley, James Dallas and Leon Fisher. The lanky Fisher promises to run this distance in record time this year. Leon will likely be the work horse of the Tech track team this season. The basketball captain-elect will be entered in no less than five events in the majority of the meets in which the Matadors compete. In addition to his specialty, the 220-yard dash and 220-yard low hurdles, he is down for the Javelin throw, broad jump and mile relay.

Coach Payne will have plenty of strength in the quarter mile. Corley, Wooldridge, Cole, Lawrence, L. Walker and Lee have all showed ability in the man-killer. The mile relay team will also be taken from this number.

The Matador mentor will likely take two relay teams to the Texas and S. M. U. Relays—the 880 and mile. Training within the next few weeks will be concentrated on the candidates for these teams. In both the Austin and Dallas meets, the locals will be pitted against the outstanding baton passers of the country.

Hill, Vinzant and Moore are the best prospects for the 880 run. The first named took this event in the intramural meet over a strong field. In the mile run, Freeland is the only veteran back, but Gee and Aldredge may develop into strong distance men.

Perry Looks Good

Perry, Morrison and Hodges are the two-mile prospects, the first named displayed worlds of stamina in winning this event in the intramural meet, despite a strong wind blowing down the track.

In addition to Fisher, Lee, Cole and Aldredge will enter the broad jump. Wilkins, Tadlock, Lee and Payne are the high jumpers.

Coach Payne has two experienced pole vaulters in Dick Davis and Levi Walker. The former has demonstrated his ability with the cane pole on previous occasions much to the distaste of the opposition. Davis' best mark was made against Canyon when he cleared the bar at 11 feet two inches. He has not regained his best form yet this season, but hopes to beat last year's mark when time for the meets come around.

The addition of Sid Knowles to the squad will make the Matadors much stronger in the weight events. Without any practice whatever, Big Sid took first place in both the shot and javelin in the intramural meet, and with several weeks of training should develop into a sure point winner for the locals. In addition to Knowles, Coach Payne will have "Ox" Reed to enter the three weights, Ameral Payne with the discus, Fisher with the javelin and Taylor with the javelin.

Boguish Eye Favorite In Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 9. (AP) Boguish Eye, standard bearer of Alderman John J. Coughlin of Chicago, is much in the spotlight these days, as the date of the $50,000 Kentucky Derby, to be run at Churchill Downs here May 18, draws nearer.

The Coughlin horse, big as a two-year-old, has grown markedly during the winter and appears in perfect condition.

Old Face In New Uniform

The most important familiar person in a new uniform this season is Rogers Hornsby, shown here in the regalia of the Chicago Cubs. The fellow welcoming Hornsby to Catalina Island is William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Cubs. Hornsby is with the Cubs this season, his fourth different outfit in four years. With Hornsby in their fold, the Cubs are favorites to win the National League pennant this season.

Bell To Have 14 Letter Men Back

COLLEGE STATION, Mar. 9.—(AP)—Coach Matty Bell, new A. & M. College of Texas mentor, will be able to place a veteran in every position on his football team for spring training.

Fourteen lettermen are available from last year. In addition to that group, Bell can pick from eighteen freshmen numeral men and nine varsity squadmen.

In the backfield, Bell will have Tom Mills, Captain, Brooks Conover, R. R. Dorsey, H. U. Bible and G. H. Zarafonetis. For wing posts, O. D. Alsabrook and C. A. Tracy are available; Walter Ewell and "Red" Delery can take tackle jobs; R. L. Van Zandt, C. E. Richter, J. G. Floyd and Field Scovell are guards; Joe Brown may hold down center.

Coach Bell, in his first year with the Aggies, had a wealth of material and prospects are bright.

Myles Lane, the former Dartmouth hockey player who has been playing professional hockey this winter, was offered a contract by the Newark Internationals recently.

CRITZ CAPTAINS REDS

Hughey Critz, star second baseman, will captain the Cincinnati Reds this year.

Saints To Begin Practice Games

AUSTIN, Mar. 9. — (AP) — After watching his baseball candidates for a week, Jim Sheffield, new St. Edward's University baseball coach, has begun to experiment with tentative lineups and will soon begin to hold practice games.

Although the scramble for positions has by no means been ended, a pretty fair notion of the permanent makeup of the squad can be obtained from watching the men at work on the practice field.

A guess, and as yet it is only a guess, would place Watty James at first base, Dan Rivans at second, Curley James at short, Alton Burger at third, Arthur Guerra or Tony Bomba behind the bat, Jansing, Loran and Parma in the outfield, with a staff of four or five men working on the mound.

The pitchers who look good to date are Captain Dyer, Anders, Scott, McDonald, Beach and Daley. Anders was the most successful hurlers on the club last year, and it appears likely that he and Dyer will be the mainstays of the staff, at least in the early part of the season.

Purdue Distance Runner Shatters Mile Run Record

Orval Martin Covers Distance In 4.22 9-10 In Western Conference Indoor Meet

IOWA FIELD HOUSE, IOWA CITY, Iowa, Mar. 9. (AP)—Orval Martin, Purdue crack distance runner, opened the Western Conference indoor track and field championship tonight by smashing the Big Ten record in the one mile run.

Martin galloped to victory in 4:22 9-10, clipping a half second off the previous record established by H. B. Kennedy, of the Ohio State in 1926.

George Simpson, Ohio State speedster, won the sixty yard dash in :06 2-10, beating Eddie Tolan, negro youth wearing the colors of Michigan, to the tape by two yards. Simpson's time equalled the Big Ten record.

Illinois, favorite to repeat as champions, broke into the scoring in the mile event when F. B. Stine finished third. One of the favorites, David Abbott, of Illinois, found the pace too hot and failed to place.

The summaries:

One mile run—won by Martin of Purdue, Letts, Chicago, second; Stine, Illinois, third; Clapham of Indiana, fourth. Time 4:22 9-10. (New Western Conference record. Former record of 4:23 4-10 made by H. W. Kennedy of Ohio State in 1926).

Sixty yard dash—won by Simpson, Ohio State; Tolan, Michigan, second; Root, Chicago, third; Time, Illinois, fourth. The time :06 2-10.

(Ties Conference record made last night by Time; also ties the American indoor record).

Boxer Buys Home For Aged Mother

WORCESTER, Mass., Mar. 9. (AP)—Astolid, determined boy who went forth last summer to win fame as a boxer at the Olympic games in Amsterdam is about to realize the dream of his youth—a home for his mother and the family of brothers and sisters he has fathered since he was 14.

Harry Devine who fell just short of winning the highest honor possible in his class at Amsterdam because of an injury returned to his native Worcester to turn his skill into cash. Overnight he became the boxing sensation and idol of the city. And it is with the money gained through his boxing ability that he has purchased the home for the mother who frowned on his "fighting" when was a youngster.

Devine has obtained an option on a cottage and in the spring will take possession. The home is newly built, has an abundance of land and is ideally located. Harry has three sisters and two brothers. Bobby, a younger brother, has donned amateur gloves and last fall carried the 80-pound title at the Worcester Boys' Club.

Shivering causes contraction of the muscles and like exercise it can increase the appetite.

Weights Assigned In Annual Derby

Vermajo, Winner Of New Orleans Handicap, Gets Top Weight Of 122 Pounds In Derby

NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 9. (AP)—Vermajo, ace of the Three D's stable 5 year olds and recent winner of the $25,000 New Orleans handicap, has been assigned top weight of 122 pounds for the eighth renewal of the Louisiana Derby carrying $15,000 added on March 22 at the Jefferson Park track here.

In the weights, announced today, the Jedell Stable's Laurie, Upset Lad, of the Belle Isle stable, F. M. Bray's stand by, and the three D's Calf Roper were assigned 117 pounds for the race over the mile and a furlong route.

The rest of the field nominated were assigned 114 pounds, except two or three given 112 pound loads, if they start.

While Vermajo, if entered will be favorite, the 3 year old is at Tia-Juana and the time between the two events is so short that some doubted he could be returned here in time. There was a well founder report, however, that C. E. Darnell, trainer for the Three D's, Arlington, Texas, was considering returning the thoroughbred by airplane.

Majority Of All-American Team Picked By President Of Senators Come From Older School Of Game

Ruth And Gehrig Will Bat Their Way Into Any Baseball Circle, Says Grif; Johnson Heads Hurlers

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 9. (AP)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, was such a crafty pitcher in his day he was known as the "Fox." He has been in close association with baseball since 1888, and has seen all the stars from then until now.

"Griff" qualifies as an expert witness on the discussion of the two schools of baseball thought, the one claiming that the old days were the better from a standpoint of baseball excellence; the other standing firm in allegiance to the modern game.

The answer, according to President Griffith, is "yes and not."

"We have no such pitchers as the game boasted years ago," he said, "and a majority of the All-Time team I shall pick will be from the older school but nobody can keep two very modern players from the team. Ruth and Gehrig will bat their way into any baseball circle, no matter how select.

"I don't hesitate a second in naming four pitchers. Walter Johnson was the king of them all with Christy Mathewson next. Then I place Mordecai Brown and Rube Waddell.

"The first catcher is equally easy. Buck Ewing could do everything. He could catch with anybody, outsmart the best of them, a terrific batter, deadly thrower and great base runner. That's all you can do in baseball. He would drop the ball to kid a base runner and then throw him out.

The second catcher is a harder problem. If I did not insist on great batting strength on this mythical team I would take Johnny Kling, for so far as catching goes Johnny was good as they came. He would outtalk the batter and atthe same time pick somebody off a base. But Kling could not hit enough to squeeze in with these busters I am naming from 1888 to date.

"I guess Wally Schang gets the call. Wally never was a great catcher. He had plenty of faults as a receiver, but he would break up the ball game for you and would have been at home with this talented array.

"Three of the infield come to mind at once. Lou Gehrig for first base, Nap Lajoie at second and Hans Wagner for short. Can you imagine trying to get these boys out? Third base is hard. Jimmy Collins was a star beyond doubt, but Jimmy did not have the competition that developed later. If Frankie Frisch had played third base regularly I would give him the place without further consideration, but Frisch is really a second baseman, although he has played third.

"Frank Baker will have to be the boy. He was not a great fielder but he was good enough. The word 'adequate' about describes him in the field, but that description falls short when he goes to bat. How he could hit! Yes, we'll give the place to Baker.

"The outfield? Simple. How can you find three players through all the years better than Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Babe Ruth? I would like to put 'Goose' Goslin in there and I would name him fourth, I think, but he could not displace one of this great trio.

"Come down the list, Gehrig, Lajoie, Wagner, Baker, Cobb, Speaker, Ruth, Ewing! How would a pitcher relish going up against the bats of these giants?

"The present generation doesn't appreciate the stars who have gone before. Players who never saw Mathewson, Brown or Waddell doubt that they were as good as the old fellows say.

Juarez Garrison Totaled Only 200

Ramos, Commander, Ordered To Take Remnant Of His Force Down U. S. To Point Of Crossing

MEXICO CITY, March 9 —A government announcement today said that only 200 men were in the Juarez garrison yesterday when that city was taken by rebels.

The announcement is based upon a purported report of General Matias Ramos who said that despite the inferiority of his force of only 200 men he was able to save them with all of their supplies and even take eighteen prisoners including three officers.

He begged the government "so as not to offend my dignity as a soldier and as a man" to allow him to mount his troops (presumably after the Armistice) and march them across Mexican territory to the nearest point where he could make a junction with other loyal troops.

This, he said, he preferred to taking them over American territory as such would be an humiliation to him. The government however, according to announcement, rejected his request, inasmuch as a march over Mexican territory would take at least twelve days and expose Ramos' command to extermination by the rebels.

The government then after praising Ramos' defense of Juarez ordered him to prepare for transfer with his men by train across United States territory to Piedras Negras, across the river from Eagle Pass, or Laredo.

Gilbert Swan

In New York

By Swan

NEW YORK, March 9.—They sat just two rows ahead of me in a theater that faces upon 42d street, just a few steps beyond the point they are fond of calling "the crossroads of the world."

To all intents and purposes, they were just two more people in an audience watching the grim epic of Capt. Scott's futile fight for the conquest of the pole.

The woman had hair so white that, in the half-lighted auditorium, it seemed to cast a sort of silver glow above the monotony of silhouettes. The man who sat beside her was just another back in a theater filled with backs and faces.

The white-haired woman was Emma De Long. The man was Friedtjof Nansen. And because they were who they were, the catch phrase "crossroads of the world" kept humming through my mind. And because they were who they were it seemed that Time and Space had conspired in a fantasy of coincidence to bring them thus, seat to seat, while a bronchial talking device struggled with its musical sounds.

But let's "cut back" a long time—half a century or so! Capt. George W. De Long was taking his place among the epic figures of the northland. His interest in the Arctic, kindled by his search for the lost ship Polaris, he had secured the backing of James Gordon Bennett, who then was Caliph of this modern Bagdad-on-the-Subway. With 33 men and the stout ship Jeanette, De Long had set out to penetrate new paths toward the pole.

He had, unfortunately, insufficient knowledge of the regions into which his ship was headed and so he was trapped in the ice north of Siberia, and there held wast. There is no more inspiring story of epic struggle than De Long's. He taught his crew and himself a new mode of survival—and made it work for a time. In the end, there was nothing to do but leave his ship to crack up in the ice and try to get away in small boats. Somewhere in Siberia, De Long died with members of his party—the victims of starvation.

But he had blazed a trail!

In Greenland, a young botanist from Christiana was studying the plant life of the northland. His name was Nansen. One day bits of wreckage, and even a pair of cast-off overalls floated down from north of Siberia to be cast upon the Greenland coast.

They were recognized at once as coming from the ill-fated Jeanette. But they set afire dreams of the young student. They gave him new ideas about the drifting of the ice currents. Would a ship, starting from north of Siberia, be carried along by the vast acres of ice—drifting near the pole——or perhaps across the pole? All Arctic lore was against him———yet here was his evidence.

And so Nansen, enslaved by his dream, got his government to get behind his historic voyage in the Fram, thus making possible his dash with dog teams to a point closer to the pole than had ever before been reached by any man.

Now, perhaps you can pick up the fantasy of coincidence!

Here they sat side by side in a comfortable theater—the widow of De Long and the man who had been inspired and challenged by De Long's tragedy—And before them was unfolding the tragedy of another explorer—while just down the block the electric ribbon on the Times building was spelling out the latest news from Byrd, who could fly about in an airplane and radio his messages from the vast white wilderness.

Outside, as the electric ribbon spelled its messages, the traffic jam began with the outpourings from the Broadway theaters; the streets to clog with homegoing New Yorkers. A gentle snow now had begun to blur and dim the lights of the famous highway.

And Friedtjof Nansen, with new dreams of polar conquest to spin, bowed his adieu to a white-haired old lady as she stepped into a limousine, while the shouts of a spieler a few doors down street let the world know that "the big flea circus and freak show is now starting——"

Dr. Evans Veteran Of Tech Faculty

Head Of Department Of Education Is Rounding Out Thirty-Ninth Year As Teacher, Professor, Executive

By MARGARET TURNER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A veteran of almost two score years in the school room, Dr. A. W. Evans, head of the department of education at Texas Tech, has the distinction of having taught longer than anyone else teaching at the present time in the college.

"I think I must have had the germ of education injected into me at an early age and it is still in my system," said the educator. "Both of my parents were teachers and since there was no one to leave me with at home I was started in school where I alternately went from foot of the class to the head."

First Degree In 1890

Dr. Evans graduated with an A. B. degree from Oxford college at Oxford, Alabama in 1890 when he was seventeen years of age, an unusual occurrence at that time. Upon leaving college he entered the business world after moving to Ashland, Alabama. There was a small college in that town and while the study of the Greek language was offered there was no teacher available, so he was offered the position. He accepted and for two hours each day the young man went out to the institution and taught languages. Thus at eighteen years of age he was a college professor.

The year following, in 1892, since the Evans family had moved to Texas and were writing their son to come he left his work and came to Fairfield. "Back in Alabama I had been earning $125 a month and when I arrived at the little Texas town and took a vacancy in the schools there for $30 a month the salary seemed meager, but since I was living at home I managed to save money.

Taught At Del Rio

After a year Dr. Evans went to Del Rio and taught school and later moved to Comanche where he was associated with the city schools for eight years as principal at first and later superintendent. After these years spent at Comanche he and his family moved to Uvalde where Dr. Evans spent 20 years in school work. During that time he and his teachers began the system of the 10-year school plan. This was the first showing of economy in education as one year was saved and the pupils were taught just as much as those in the 11-year schools. This method was later developed into the 6 year elementary work and junior and senior high school. During these years Dr. Evans went to college every other summer and kept in touch with the modern system of teaching.

He attended Baylor University, State University, and Columbia.

In 1923 Dr. Evans accepted a position with the State Department of Education as chief supervisor of high schools at Austin, and immediately began taking work out at the University. Because of the hours during the day that his job necessarily required the educator was forced to take courses at off hours so his schedule called for classes at 12 o'clock, 5 o'clock, early in the morning or night classes. During this time four of his children were also attending the University. In 1924 Dr. Evans received his M. A. degree from the state institution and in the fall of 1925 moved to Lubbock where he accepted a place as head of the department of education where he has been since.

Doctor's Degree Last Summer

Immediately after assuming his duties at Tech college Dr. Evans continued work towards the degree of Doctor of Philosophy although he received little encouragement from the University when he first began his research work. Last summer, however, he received this degree after his thesis had been prepared for a year. This education department was one of the minor departments when Dr. Evans took charge of it but since that time has proved to be one of the most popular ones in the college judging from the more than 800 students who are registered in it at present.

Dr. Evans is a member of the following associations of national scope: American Association for the Advancement of Science, National Educational Association, National Society for the study of Education, National Society for College Teacher's of Education, American Association of University Professors, and is one of the 17 individual members of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and also a member of the State Teacher's Association.

In collaboration with C. P. Patterson, of the University of Texas and J. P. Simmons, of Baylor University, Dr. Evans has written a text-book named "American Citizenship," which is a civics to be taught in the seventh grade or Junior high school. It is to be submitted this year to the State Text Book Board for adoption as a Texas text-book.

In addition to this book Dr. Evans is the editor of several apers and articles which have been published in school periodicals. These articles include "The Texas Plan of Inspection of High Schools," which was delivered before the National Association in Chicago and was later printed in the high school quarterly, "The Equipment of a Small High School," delivered before an educational meet in Cincinnati in 1925, and "The High School Costs," printed in the School Review in 1926.

13-YEAR-OLD CASE

Judged Sane, Slayer Must Stand Trial

WHEELING, W. Va., Mar. 9.—(AP)—A 13-year-old murder case comes to trial in intermediate court here March 11.

It is that of Henry Able, charged with killing his wife in their home here in June, 1916. The defendant pleaded insanity when arraigned on the charge that year.

A jury decided he was insane at the time of the trial, but sane when he slew his mate. As a result of the finding, the court sent Able to the state hospital for the insane at Weston to remain until cured, or his death.

The man was discharged from the institution recently as cured and brought here to face arraignment.

Scout Funds Drive Falls Short; Work Will Be Continued

Only About Half Of Budget Is Raised During Past Week; Goal Of $10,000 Set For Workers

About $5,000 was donated last week in the annual boy scout financial drive staged throughout the city by an army of public spirited citizens, according to an announcement made yesterday by K. N. Clapp, scout commissioner and acting executive of the South Plains area council.

Starting on Tuesday, the campaign extended throughout most of the week, with a clean-up drive on Friday. A goal of $10,000 had been set in the campaign.

Continue Campaign.

Due to the fact that many were not seen by the workers, it is planned to continue the campaign until all of the local citizen, carded as prospective donors, have been seen, Mr. Clapp said yesterday. About 350 persons, who were carded, have not been seen. Many were out of town, and others were out of their places of business when the worker called. It is planned to continue the drive until the list is completely worked.

Purpose of the drive was to pay for the indebtedness of the council and carry on its activities for another year. George Dupree was selected as chairman of the drive. He was aided in directing the solicitation activities by Tom A. White, chairman of the finance committee of the council; Rev. Luther G. H. Williams, president of the council, and Mr. Clapp.

$10,000,000 Yearly Is Volume Of Grain Exchange

Three Thousand Cars Of Grain Have Passed Through Lubbock Office For Inspection Since August Last Year

Steadily Increasing Flow Of Grain Is Checked At Exchange Here; Plains' Output Sent Everywhere

BY AL HILL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If some corporation should come o Lubbock with the announcement hat they were to establish an industry here, or, at any point on the South Plains, that would handle volume of business per year of 10,000,000, this newspaper's largest and blackest type would be utilized n screaming the news.

Yet, there is an industry now in existence, centering in Lubbock, hich is such an annual volume of business. Better than some manufacturing enterprise that could approach such millions, this industry s paying its money back into the pockets of South Plains producers of the raw materials.—grains—such as feterita, milo maize, manko naize, hegari, darso, algeria, cane orghums, corn, wheat, and sudan grass.

Growth Is Steady

Since organization of the Lubbock Grain Exchange, last summer, "The Hub of the Plains," has monthly become a greater center for handling of these products. There have been approximately 3,000 cars handled by the Grain Exchange since last August, In January there were 609, in February 286 and up to Saturday, March 9, there have been 135 cars handled here.

Practically every state in the United States, and numerous foreign countries, have received these shipments that have originated on the South Plains and that have come through the Lubbock Grain Exchange for federal inspection, grading and railroad weights.

By months, carload receipts and shipments from here as recorded at the exchange, since last August, have been as follows.

August receipts 342, shipments 20, September receipts 110, shipments 90, October receipts 110, shipments, 35 November receipts 236 ,shipments 86, December receipts 402, shipments 42, January receipts 426, shipments 83, February receipts 251, shipments 45, March receipts to Saturday, 135, shipments 18.

Worth Vast Amount

Dollars and cents represented are to be seen in the fact that a carload of Sudan seed, will average from $2,000 to $2,500; of wheat, $1,500; of corn, $1,500 to $1,800 shelled and $400 if ears; maize heads, $400; threshed maize $600 to $1,000.

Yet not all the grain shipped from the South Plains is handled by the Exchange. A large percentage of it does not yet travel through that channel.

While the Exchange has 16 members, these firms are not the only ones utilizing the services provided by the organization, Any and all shippers are welcome to use its advantages and these advantages are manifold. They are protected in numerous ways, the inspections which are done under the supervision of Federal Inspector Ross Stuard, guarantees grades ,and the railroad weights save from controversies at the destination point with unscrupulous buyers.

Heats While In Transit

For instance, if a farmer desired to ship a carload of maize, with this maize having a lot of moisture in it, unknown to him, the stuff will heat while in transit, If he learns of this, by the federal inspection, the producer or shipper can stop his car in Lubbock and have it dried out, saving caking and heating in transit, and probably save its total ruin.

It is not necessary for the producers in this territory to sell to the Lubbock dealers in order to get this federal inspection, as this inspection is here to serve all regardless of whether they are members of the exchange or not, shippers can mark on their bill of lading "Federal Inspection in Lubbock." and the car will be stopped and inspected here and weighed by the railroad company, The inspector will furnish him a certificate and the railroad company will also furnish him with weights, if he will request it. And the cost of this service is only $1.00.

Sudan's Popularity Grows

As the South Plains is practically the only section of the United States where sudan is being produced, and, as it is a commodity that is being handled and used all over the nation, it is growing in popularity everywhere, This commodity has been recognized and is being consumed in foreign countries as well, and last summer about 1,000,000 pounds of it was shipped to Italy, Russia, Hungary and other foreign lands in great volume.

Argentine Demand Good

According to S. E. Cone, of the S. E. Cone Grain and Seed company wholesalers and quantity shippers throughout the world, the demand for sudan from the Argentine this year looks fairly good.

"The big reason for the growing demand for sudan," said Mr. Cone, "is that the dairy industry has of late years been encouraged more than ever before, in every state and country of the civilized world. Sudan pasture is one of the best for the dairy cow, as this grass is one of the best milk producers known."

It is Cone's opinion that the future of the grain and seed business in the South Plains is difficult to conceive.

"The bulk of kaffir and hegari, this year," he said, "is being exported to other nations. Chief reason for this is the growing demand for these as poultry feed and for brewery purposes."

No Over Production Fear

Although the production of feed is increasing, and will continue, there is no reason to look for an over-production, because the production of beef cattle is decreasing; more land is being put into cultivation; more dairy cattle, poultry, and swine are being grown. As this process increases, with the increased acreage put to grain crops, the demand will increase for this surplus.

"With more scientific feeding of beef and dairy cattle, of poultry, swine and other livestock," remarked Cone, "and more and better stock on fewer acres, there is no need to look forward to anything other than a demand far in excess of the supply."

The work of Texas Technological college in training the young in scientific feeding knowledge, is to be highly commended, grain men contend.

An apparent need for better handling of the grain and seed business in Lubbock is additional storage facilities, Had it been available more than twice the storage capacity here could have been used in the past season, This additional storage is expected to be built, during the course of the next several months, and it would not be surprising to see a large mill or two added to Lubbock's already pretentious milling industry.

FARM NOTES

Horses workin irregularly often are overfed, the amount of feed must vary, not only from winter to summer but from day to day. When horses are to be idle on Sunday it is better to substitute a bran mash for the Saturday night grain feed, and to reduce the grain feed on Sunday to about one-half the usual amount.

Leguminous crops are the best to turn under for green manure, since they add to the soil nitrogen taken from the air in addition to the organic matter they carry.

Before growth starts in the spring is the best time to do the annual prunning that keeps trees properly shaped and within bounds. the top well opened and a good balance between the growth and fruit-bud formation. It is better to do a little pruning each year than more drastic cutting at less frequent intervals.

In late winter or early spring complaints often are heard about cows giving strong or bitter-flavored milk, Such milk sometimes is given by "strippers," or cows far advanced in the lactation period. It is best to dry off a cow at least six weeks before calving time.

Farrowing pens in the hog house should be provided with a guard rail on each side, to prevent the little pigs being crushed when the sow lies down. The rail should be about 9 inches from the floor and far enough away from the sides of the pen that the pigs can get out if caught under it.

Poultry Fancier To Lecture Here Tomorrow Night

"Intensive Poultry Farming," or "Living on One Acre." will be explained by Charles Weeks in a free lecture given at the 99th district court room at the courthouse Monday evening, March 11, at 7:30 o'clock.

Charles Weeks owns a colony of one acre poultry farms in California and has recently organized a colony of the small intensified poultry farms near Wichita Falls, Texas.

He is considered one of the outstanding authorities of the entire nation. His colony organization work covers not only the raising of poultry, breeding, proper care, selection of breed, and type of poultry, but also the proper marketing of the eggs, and other poultry products after they are produced.

Colony Has Grown

The fact that his colony at Wichita Falls has grown and developed rapidly after it was established some time ago is proof that his plan is practical in Texas.

The fact that the people of Lubbock and the South Plains of Texas are becoming more and more interested in poultry raising all the time is an indication that a large audience will be awaiting the nationally known poultry authority when he comes to Lubbock Monday evening.

Everyone is invited and Weeks is especially anxious that bankers, hatchery operators, hardware men, produce buyers, and other busines men attend as well as farmers.

Youths Test Out Judging Ability On Stock Here; Counties Are Evidencing Much Enthusiasm

Seven youths from Four-H clubs over the county were in the city yesterday for the purpose of judging stock in preparation for contests at the annual Panhandle-Plains dairy show, to be held in Plainview during the first part of April. The boys came from Liberty, Slaton, Canyon and Hardy.

Lubbock county is to have a fairly large entry in the Panhandle dairy show. The Tech herd will be entered and representative specimens from other parts of the county will be placed. A survey to determine the cattle from this county will be conducted during the week just ahead.

"The outlook is very good for an excellent show at Plainview," Mr. Eaton said.

Terry, Dawson, Hockley and Crosby counties have all informed Mr. Eaton that they are sending large entries to the show at Plainview.

Garza and Lamb counties are likewise becoming interested in the exhibition, he reported. Mr. Eaton spoke on the show in Levelland and Post during the past week.

Daily Markets

MID-WESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, March 9. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Trade on hogs around the 11-market loop this week was extremely eratic and price fluxuations hard. Curtailed receipts and a broad shipping demand the first three days of the week resulted in price upturns of around 75c, but from Thursday on packer became very bearish and more than erased the early advance at most market. A few centers still show a slight gain over a week ago but most points are on a week to 25c lower basis. Chicago had a closing top of $11.40. Total offerings were around 510,700, a decrease of 70,000 from last week and 174,300 short of the same period a year ago.

Fat lambs were in broad demand at 40@75c higher figures, while strong prices prevailed on aged stock. Chicago reported a 50c gain on fat ewes. The week's extreme top of lambs of $17.65 was realized in Chicago. The supply totalled around 266,600 a shortage of 10,700 from last week but 21,300 heavier than a year ago.

And fed heifers registered gains of 25@75c, while material upturns were shown on slaughter cows. Trade on weighty steers had little stability, some markets closing strong to 25c or more higher and other centers reporting a slow demand at weak to 25c lower values. Country demand for replacement cattle expanded with prices strong to unevenly higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 9. (AP)—Wheat prices ran up like a steeple-jack today, and corn followed in quick order. Speculators discovered they had sold themselves into a hole, and that to get out before the week-end they had bid against each other at such a lively rate as to force a sharp general rise in values. Droubht advices from Canada and Australia, together with reports of seeding delays in Europe and of freezing temperatures in the United States winter wheat belt were all of some effect toward bringing about what resembled a stampede to the buying side.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 5-8 cents to 2 1-8 cents a bushel net higher. Corn finished 7-8 cent to 1 1-8 cents up. Oats unchanged to 5-8 cent advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Taft Calves Due Here This Week

The carload of pure bred calves which has been ordered by County Agent Dave F. Eaton from the Taft ranch in South Texas, for distribution among Four-H club boys of the county will arrive during the early part of this week.

Those who placed orders for the stock will be notified as soon as the shipment arrives.

The shipment will total about 30 animals.

A gust of wind at 81 miles an hour registered at Croydon recently was the highest win velocity ever noted in or near London.

The smoke from a great forest fire near Duluth, Minn., was timed by observers and in three days was found as far south as Texas where the odor was quite noticeable.

Farm Club Has Own Market

Innovation To Be Tried By City Line Women's Home Demonstration Organization At Slaton Soon

An innovation in marketing of farm products is to be installed within the near future by the City Line home demonstration club at Slaton. The club is to open and operate a downtown market, to serve as a direct exchange between the producer and the consumer.

Fresh vegetables and produce, eggs, and poultry raised by members of the club will be brought to the market and there offered for public sale. Elimination of the "middle man" and consequently greater returns for the producer are claimed as a result of the innovation.

Various home demonstration club women in other parts of the county are to start a campaign of home canning, products of which are to be dispensed through the Slaton market.

The Slaton project is somewhat in the nature of an experiment, which if proven successful may lead to similar markets throughout the county and operated under auspices of home demonstration clubs over the county.

Prairie Dogs Are Being Driven Out

1100 Pounds of Poison Are Used In Connection With County-wide Campaign; It Gets Results

Excellent results are being obtained in the prairie dog extermination campaign started here during the past week. Eleven hundred pounds of poisoned grain has been distributed by County Agent D. F. Eaton and the government man who is here assisting him in the work and there are still some 500 pounds of the poison available at the county agent's office.

The northern half of the county was worked during the last week in connection with the campaign and some work in the southwestern portion has been done.

"We're getting the dogs, all right" the men in charge said yesterday. "The degree to which they are exterminated, however, depends almost entirely on the cooperation we secure from the farmers, and the manner in which they check up on the campaign.

"Egg Marketing" Is Still Club Topic

Three Meetings Scheduled For Home Demonstration Groups Of County During Week; Miss Baird to Talk

In connection with the county-wide campaign for better marketing of eggs and poultry products, three meetings are to be held at home demonstration clubs this week.

The home demonstration club at Carlisle is to meet on Tuesday; the City Line club of Slaton on Wednesday and the New Hope club on Thursday.

Egg marketing in its various phases is to be discussed by Miss Louise Baird, the demonstration worker, at each of the three meetings.

There are three principal means in which the farm wife may help secure a better market for eggs. One is through high quality product, by better feeding of stock; another is by candling and standardization of eggs; and a third and simple manner for raising their value is by display in attractive containers.

Stock Market Is Eratic Saturday On Credit Actions

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Mar. 9. (AP)—Stock prices were churned about in erratic fashion today but, except in a handful of issues the day's net changes were negligible. The market opened with a surprising outburst of strength, turned reactionary in the last hour and then made irregular recovery.

Call money was not a direct factor in today's market because the Friday rate carries over the week-end, but credit conditions continued to receive widespread attention in brokerage and banking house comment. Retention of the 4 1-2 per cent rediscount rate by the San Francisco federal reserve bank generated some bullish enthusiasm on the theory that the New York federal reserve bank would not increase its charge until all other central bank rates had been brought to the 5 per cent level. However, the recent decline in sterling, threatening a further drain on Great Britain's gold, is likely to result in another increase in the Bank of England rate, which undoubtedly would draw foreign funds from New York.

Credit Situation Foggy

Most traders confess they are completely at sea regarding the credit situation and outlook. While many veteran observers point out that stocks yielding 3 to 4 per cent or less cannot be carried indefinitely on margin at the recent call rates of 6 to 12 percent.

Radion issue were again the spectacular features. The old stock opened 4 points higher at 449, ran up to a new high record at 464, broke to 451 on the selling which followed publication of President Harbord's official denial of Radio-Western Union merger rumors, rebounded to 463 1-2 and cloused at 461. The stock touched 368 in Wednesday's break. The new stock, which dropped below 75 earlier in the week, rallied to a new high at 93 1-2 and closed at 92, up 3 points net. Western Union touched a new high record at 220 3-4 broke to 213 and rallied to 215, up 2 1-2 net.

Kennecott Copper was heavily bought in the late trading, touching a new high record at 99 1-2 Miami copper advanced 2 points. On the other hand, Anaconda fell 2 1-2 points, Greene Cananea 1 5-8, Andes 1 and American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco yielding fractionally.

Wide Savings Take Place

Wide swings took place in some of the higher priced specialties. Adams Express and Burroughs Adding machine jumped 39 and 11 3-4 points, respectively, on one sale each. Brooklyn Union Gas soared 7 3-4 points and Crosley Radio, Commercial Investment Trust, Mandel Bros., Allied Chemical, Gillette Safety Razor and People Gas moved up 2 to 5 1-4 points.

Baltimore Ohio, International Combustion, International Harvester, Southern Railway and Vanadium were conspicuously heavy.

Establishment of another new low by the Canadian dollar around 99.28 cents featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Sterling cables held steady around $4.85 1-16 and Spanish pesetas rallied nearly 15 points to 14.83 cents.

Wheat Looks Good; Rain Badly Needed

Wheat is coming up in splendid fashion throughout the county according to the county agent's office and a rain within the next week or so will practically insure a good yield of wheat during the season just ahead.

5000 DOCTORS

BERLIN, March 9 (AP)—The latest official reports show that there are 5,008 licensed medical practitioners in Berlin, or 15 for every 10,000 inhabitants.

Nor is there a lack of drug stores to fill prescriptions; 390 of them are established inside the city or one for every 10,000 inhabitants. The report lists 3,1117 dentists.

5000 Acres Over County Terraced In Present Drive

Farmers Euthusiastic Over Movement For Soil And Water Conservation In South Plains Region

Approximately 5,000 acres in Lubbock county have been terraced to date in connection with the campaign on this work recently launched by the farm agent's office here.

About fifty farms have been visited by Dave F. Eaton, the county agent and his assistant, John W. Patterson. Much interest is manifest in this method of soil and water conservation and it is believed that the effect of the campaign will be in some degree permanent.

Terracing prevents run-off of water and allows moisture deposited during the rain seasons to be stored in the ground and thus conserved until the time when it is badly needed.

It likewise prevents loss of soil through erosion.

MENACE FLIERS

Gophers Became Serious Threat In Arizona

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 9 (AP)—Pocket gophers have proved themselves the latest enemy of aviators.

Scores of the little rodents infested the Douglas municipal airport, on the international boundary between the United States and Mexico, and threw up more than 2,000 mounds of earth on the landing field, making landing difficult.

They were eradicated after a three day campaign supervised by the leader of rodent control of the department of agriculture, in co-operation with the Arizona agricultural extension service.

250 New Farms To Be Seen Over Lubbock County This Year; Move For Colonization Gains Impetus

Ten Per Cent More Land Goes Under Plow For Season Ahead; Cotton, Grain Still Favorites

Ten percent more land will be in cultivation in Lubbock county this year than last, in the estimation of county agent, Dave F. Eaton.

This means that approximately 250 more farms will be found dotting the broad expanses of the South Plains next year.

The new farms will be in all parts of the county but most thickly in the northern and western portions, where pasture land has been put into cultivation this year.

Cotton and grain sorghums are ing planted on most of the new land.

The new farms represent principally a colonization movement which has been steadily increasing in this area during recent years.

Improve Yards!

Demonstration Agent Tells How

BY LOUISE BAIRD
Home Demonstration Agent

One of the aims of the County Home Demonstration council for the year 1929 is to have each club woman in the county make at least one permanent improvement in the yard. Let me emphasize the word permanent, because there is much that can and will be done in improving the yards that are more or less temporary. It is the plan of the council to begin this year, work in yard beautification that will become more valuable and more beautiful every year.

First, each woman should make a plan of how she wants her home to look when planting is complete. Then she should begin to plant as she is able, those trees, shrubs, hedges, etc. that add so much beauty to this plains country.

Other improvements of a permanent nature, are the building of fences, or tearing down a fence which has ceased to be attractive or serviceable. The yard might need filling in with rich soil in order to have better drainage, and to have a lawn.

Sometimes fences need repairing, or repainting; gates off the hinges cry out for attention, and screen doors and door steps usually need some attention.

Some yards which have been planted by those old pioneers who first came to this country, are in a somewhat rundown condition and could be revived by a thorough clean up and painting campaign. Of course cleaning is one of the most temporary things that can be done in this part of the state, but if one adds an incenerator to burn all the trash, or places a box or sack in a convenient location where all the cans and rubbish can be stored then the cleaning is made much easier for the next time, and these things ar epermanent.

It takes money to have attractive homes, but it takes work to have attractive yards, and many times these beautiful yards can make a real home out of an otherwise shabby house.

Price Of Cotton Closes Firm On Southern Market

NEW ORLEANS, March 9. (AP)—An early loss of about 50 cents a bale on selling induced by disappointing Liverpool cables was recovered later in the cotton market today when operators bought rather freely on favorable textile news and reports from England that a proposal for shorter time in the mills would be rejected. May contracts after dropping to 20.56 rallied to 20.75 and closed at 20.70, or 4 points higher. The general market closed firm at a net advance of 4 to 5 points.

Liverpool cables were 9 to 15 points lower than due and were reflected in an opening loss here of 5 to 7 points. Although February textile statistics showed sales of 116.3 per cent of production and shipments 105.5 per cent of production, the market continued under the influence of the disappointing English market. May contracts traded down to 20.56. July 20.60 and October 20.29, or 9 to 11 points below the previous close.

Offerings were absorbed at these levels by trade and speculative buying stimulated by the encouraging Manchester cable and the bullish textile statistics. The demand soon wiped out the early loss and carried May up to 20.75, July 20.79 and October 20.48 or 19 points above the lows and 8 to 10 points above yesterday's close.

There was a renewal of realizing in late trading and final prices were 3 to 5 points under the top.

Receipts 14,772; for year, 8,492,216; last year, 7,277,021. Exports 35,469; for year, 6,272,759; last year, 5,272,274. Stocks 1,905,989; last year 1,984,265. Stock on shipboard, 100,832; last year, 141,971. Spot sales 21,089, last year, 10,605.

Cotton Advances On Weather Talk On Gotham Board

NEW YORK, Mar. 9. (AP)—An early decline influenced by relatively weak Liverpool cables was followed by advances in cotton today on renewal of buying promoted by textile statistics and talk of unfavorable weather in the south. May contracts, after selling off to 21.31, advanced to 21.47, or 8 points net higher, and closed at 21.44. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 1 to 6 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 11 points. Active months showed net losses of 8 to 11 points during the first few minutes under heavy week-end realizing.

The easier showing of Liverpool appeared to be offset by the standard cloth statistics showing that sales of cotton cloths during February exceeded production by 16.3 per cent and that shipments exceeded production by 5.5 percent with stocks of goods on hand showing a decrease of 4.2 per cent for the month while there was an increase of 7.2 per cent in unfilled orders.

Active months sold 5 to 10 points net higher. March advanced from 21.23 to 21.44 an dthe new October contract from 20.43 to 20.63, making new high ground for the movement. Demand tapered off at these figures and the market sagged a few points from the best in the late trading under realizing.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 135,000 bales against 102,000 last year. Private cables reported heavy local, Manchester and Continental realizing in Liverpool.

County's Need Of Poor Farm Cited

Judge Bean Declares Lubbock Has Vital Need For Institution To Take Care Of Charity Cases

Need for a poor farm, to take care of Lubbock county's paupers, is apparent from the number of such cases that are now being cared for by the county, Judge Robert H. Bean stated Saturday.

"The county is paying out an average of $500 per month for care of its paupers, at this time," he said. "as approximately 15 different cases are being handled.

"We need a poor farm. That fact is apparent."

Judge Bean further stated that the county still owns a 15-acre tract of land, bought for the purpose of establishing a poor farm, but that there are no improvements on the tract.

Would Save Money

"I believe the county could well afford to pay for the needed improvements and to pay some one to look after the inmates of a poor farm, and save enough money in five years to pay for these improvements," he said.

The number of paupers have increased so rapidly in Lubbock during the past year or so that the problem has become more acute than before. As the population of this city grows, this class of people becomes greater in number.

One of the cases is that of an elderly man, very ill and said not expected to live long, whose wife is blind. Both are being cared for by the county, and have been for several years. Practically all the cases are of elderly folks, too old and decrepit to work, and no one to take care of them.

County Officials Blame Parents For Delinquency of Youngsters; Should Be Made To See That They Attend School

Parents, rather than children were blamed yesterday by County Judge Robert H. Bean and County Attorney Vaughn Wilson for much of the delinquency among Lubbock youths.

The occasion was the trial of a 16-year-old local youth, one of the five arrested last week by police officers on petty theft charges. The youth was found not guilty of delinquency on the grounds of insufficient evidence, and was released. He is a former inmate of the state reformatory, having been paroled to the county court here.

Should Be In School.

In speaking to the court after testimony had been concluded, County Attorney Wilson declared: "I do not blame the youth for occasionally coming to town, and I do not blame him for associating with his friends even if he knew they had committed thefts — those are the natural things for a youth to do. But I do blame him and his parents because he is not in school.

"Taxpayers give thousands of dollars each year that boys of this kind will be given the opportunity to attend schcol free. Here he is, 16 years old—the most precious time of his entire life, and the time he could be learning and preparing himself for life, and he is out of school. And the testimony shows that the parents have done nothing toward getting him to go to school.

Parents Responsible.

"There should be some way," Wilson continued, "to get at cases like this, when responsible parents allow their children to stay out of school, and roam about the streets." Judge Bean warned the youth that he would have to watch his step or that it would be necessary to send him back to the reform school. Testimony in the case failed to show that the youth was connected with the thefts committed.

BIBLE IN BATH

That's This Fellow's Best Reading Time

LONDON, March 9. (AP)—"Read your Bible in your bath," With these words the Rev. A. Wellesley Orr, vicar of St. Paul's Kinston Hill, opened an address at a conference on "Bible Criticism."

"The proper place to read the Bible is not in your study, but your bath," said Mr. Orr, "The best picture of last year was one of 'A Reading Girl'—a nude maiden reading a book. If it was the Old Testament the picture was a symbol, for the best way to read the Old Testament is in a metaphorically primitive state of nudity, when you have divested yourselves of the clothes of civilized knowledge and modern progress."

Top Sergeant For Marshal Found

NEIDERHERGEIM, France, March 9. (AP)—The hard-boiled top sergeant who gave Marshal Foch his first touch of real army life lives here, proud as Punch because the great soldier remembers him.

"Papa" Xavier Brunner is nearly 82, but keen of mind and anxious to tell what he knows of his famous friend. Foch enlisted as a volunteer at the beginning of the war of 1870.

"If I had known he was going to be marshal," says Brunner, "I would have paid more attention to him. But I had a lot of recruits and I don't remember anything in particular about Marshal Foch."

Demonstration Of Radio Car Will Be Given Here Monday

Scientific Wonder To Be Shown On Streets Here As Radio Directs Automobile In Traffic

A standard stock model automobile that requires no driver, will give six exhibitions on down town streets Monday. This mysterious machine is operated and controlled entirely by a radio and will carry neither driver nor passenger yet it starts, stops for signal lights and steers its way through traffic just as if a driver were at the wheel. It will blow three large automobile horns at intervals to attract the attention of passers by, or anyone that might be in its path.

Mr. R. E. Allen, the inventor and operator of this driverless automobile, will give the demonstrations here personally. Mr. Allen has selected a new Chevrolet Six for local exhibition. This car is a stock model loaned by Kuykendall Chevrolet company of this city. The radio apparatus will be installed on the car at the shop of this concern early Monday morning. Mr. Allen says he has selected the new Chevrolet with which to demonstrate the possibilities of radio because of its ease of operation, powerful motor and effortless steering. These qualities insure more uniform performance and afford the radio an opportunity to function unhampered by road shock, difficult steering and other items which would materially impair its effectiveness.

During the past year Mr. Allen has been successful in operating this driverless machine under radio control from an airplane flying overhead, from a radio broadcasting station, from a second car following and from a portable radio control device carried in the hands of the operator walking some distance behind the car. It is not known at this time which method of control Mr. Allen will use during his exhibitions here but one may rest assured that the performance of this radio controlled car will be interesting, educational, mysterious and thrilling.

The complete schedule of exhibitions to be given Monday will be found in various ads appearing in this issue.

RATS BOTHER MELONS

Valley Grower Complains Of Rodents' Work

RAYMONDVILLE, Mar. 9. (AP)—Joe Hamner, watermelon grower in the Yturria section, north of Raymondville, reports difficulty this year in exterminating rats in his extensive fields. The rodents have gotten wise, he says, and refuse to eat poisoned grain.

Before planting time each year, Hamner wages a war of extermination on rats, which eat watermelon seed when planted. The rats are of the pouched variety and are found in large nnmbers in some sections of sandy lands north of here, so well adapted to watermelon culture.

Poisoned grain has been placed in the holes of the rodents, but this year they have shown little relish for it.

Before the coming of the oil lamp lighthouses were lit by candles or coal fires. The last of the latter was the lighthouse at St. Bees, where a coal light burned until 1822.

Have Old Relics

University Library Prizes Display

AUSTIN, Mar. 9. (AP)—A pen with which the ordinance of secession of Virginia was signed and a candle General Robert E. Lee used the night before his surrender at Appomatox Court House are the latest exhibitions loaned to the University of Texas for display in its library.

The pen is said to have been fashioned from the gun carriage which fired the first shot of the Civil war.

The relics are the property of Dr. Charles S. Venable of San Antonio, who also possesses a general order addressed to Confederate soldiers relative to the death of Gen. Stonewall Jackson, and corrected by General Lee, and a photograph of the last dispatch of Gen. Jackson. The original letter was given by Dr. Venable to the Virginia Historical Society and is on display at its museum.

El Paso's Telephone 'Central' Filled With Potential Movie Stars

Gateway City Girls Have Just Right Voices for the New 'Talkies'; If Face and Form Are Also Pleasing They May Become Stars, But Even If Homely, There Is the Chance of El Paso Girls Being the 'Voice-Double' of Some 'Beautiful But Dumb' Screen Celebrity

By MARGARET SPENCE.

EL PASO'S telephone company is full of potential movie stars.

For in Hollywood, the switch board operators are being tested for that bane of the movie producer's existence, the "talkie." The public, having once heard noise in their movies, will be content with nothing else.

Stars of long-standing are anxiously and hurriedly taking up voice culture. New stars are being made constantly because they know how to talk.

It would be an interesting sight to see a temperamental movie star who has had her own way for years, and drawn an enormous salary acting tn a small stock company to get experience.

No more temperament.

No more upstaging the other fellow, for some of the stars know no more about the spoken drama than does the actor with the smallest part.

Movies Now Talkative.

And so in Hollywood there is a mad scramble for pleasing voices and voices that will carry over the talk-producing instruments. The story is that Edward Laemmle was 'phoning one day and noticed the quality of "central's" voice. He promptly forgot all about his call and tried to sign the operator up with a contract. And then he got the idea of testing all the operators' voices.

Miss Irene Resimont, shown in oval, one of El Paso's telephone girls, who, from appearances and to hear her voice, convinces one that she would make good in the "talkies."

Mary Garden, shown, above, diva in the Chicago Civic Opera company, who says, from their pictures, El Paso's telephone girls would adorn any silent drama, and no doubt their voices would help any "talkie."

Which leads us to our point. El Paso's operators certainly have as good voices as there are any place and pictures testify that if there existed prettier girls anywhere, man's peace of mind would be shattered.

"There is no doubt in my mind," said J. S. Holland, who is in charge of the switch board operators, "that many girls in El Paso could make good on the stage. Our girls are well trained. They are all given a special course in voice technique. Some girls have naturally good voices, but whether an operator has a good voice or not, she can be helped a great deal by the course which we give all our operators. We have an experienced instructor.

"The telephone company was largely responsible for the invention and improvement of the Vitaphone, and it therefore stands to reason that we would know as much as possible about the development of voices. As a matter of fact almost any actress might be benefited by taking our course."

The objectives which the operators constantly keep in mind are: Improved relations with the public through the use of a "Glad to serve" voice; increased accuracy and efficiency of operating through improved enunciation; greater ease of talking by operators who use their voices quietly, in such a way as to increase their carrying power.

An operator cannot create a good impression through her personal appearance, and the only way she can express her personality is through her voice. If she wishes to make the most of herself, she must therefore improve her one means of contact.

Another thing that would help the switch board operator if she cared to join the movies is the fact that she is not apt to suffer from stage fright. Her position demands that she keep calm even in times of stress.

To the irate man or woman who demands his or her number in an angry voice that grows in volume with each moment of delay, a central can only answer:

"One moment, please."

"Thank you."

"I beg your pardon."

"Operator."

"Your number, please?"

"Your letter, please?"

"Number, please?"

A central cannot speak a few well chosen words and rout her enemies. Therefore she gains self control which is the basis of all poise.

Because she can only touch the public through her tone of voice, and that tone must, at all times, show interest

Telephone girls, above, right, at their work in the office of the Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph company in El Paso.

Minute after minute for hour after hou she says in a bright, live noice with an upward lilt, "Number, please?"

It must take an actress with considerable ability as well as a good deal of natural sweetness to ask the same question again and again and receive, in every case, an answer that couldn't possibly be interesting.

As regards temperament, which causes many a movie director to meet punishment for his sins here on earth, the switchboard operator ought to be totally free from it. True, like most women, she talks all day long. But, unlike most women, she says what she's got to say in the same words.

An operator is also taught inflection and emphasis. Thus central can ask a question so that it sounds like a question and state a fact so that it sounds like a fact.

Through emphasis, she learns to stress certain words in a sentence so that the important thoughts are expressed. She is not apt to stress "a," "an," and "the," nor prepositions, but to express the important words of a sentence.

Moreover, she is used to the microphone. She knows that a quiet even voice is kept well up in the mouth. All tones, as they are spoken are focused on the upper front teeth and also allowed to resound up in the head.

This gives the tone resonance and carrying power. She knows that a voice kept in the back of the throat is a voice that cannot be understood. And she knows that the proper kind of a voice is not so apt to tire as a voice that is forced back in the throat through lack of resonance.

Then, when a veteran movie star is accused of murder, if she has had no experience in speaking with amplifiers to magnify her voice and if she doesn't know the carrying powers of proper low-pitched speech, she is apt to transform the "talkies" to the "squawkies" and to scream lustily, "I din't do it! I telt you, I didn't do it!"

An ex-switchboard operator would make no such mistake. "The voice with a smile" would only be transformed to "the voice with a tear," and squawks, cracks and squeaks would be omitted. Her voice would be of a melodious softness calculated to bring sobs and approval from any audience—and she got that way saying "Number please."

GIRLS ARE HEALTHY.

To add to the desirability of any operator's joining the movies, telephone girls are healthy. They are given a thorough course in health with a competent instructor.

About the El Paso office are posters of correct and incorrect posture. An operator cannot sit round-shouldered, with her chest hollowed, for her breath support would be poor, her transmitter horn would probably not be in the proper position and her mental attitude would be affected by her poor position.

A woman's posture is perhaps her greatest charm or her greatest disadvantage, and in this respect telephone girls are again more fortunate than girls of almost any other profession.

"Our health course," said Pearle Birchfield, who is health instructor for El Paso offices, "is very complete. We have exercises and diets for the girl who wishes to improve her health. We have a short course in physiology and a course in first aid. We have diets for girls who wish to get thin and diets for girls who wish to get fat."

KNOW THEIR CALORIES.

With all the stars in Hollywood dieting to achieve an ethereal slenderness, a novice in movie-acting with a knowledge of caloric values and of the way to get thin without actually starving or by an operation, would be a boon to any exasperated director. He'd know where to find her, so to speak. And though he might find her eating gluten bread, he is not apt to find her in a hospital.

Will Hays, as censor and moral arbiter of the movies, should welcome a flock of telephone girls. For, before a girl is hired by the telephone company, her character and home life are carefully examined and only real girls are taken in.

MARY GARDEN PRAISES GIRLS.

And here's something that sounds even more thrilling to an operator who might wistfully contemplate the movies, though he have no particular assurance beyond human nature, that any of them do.

Mary Garden who is here with the Chicago Civic Opera company when asked what she thought about the switchboard as training for the talkies, said: "From their pictures, the girls are pretty enough to adorn any silent drama, and from their training, I have no doubt that their voices would help almost any talkie."

Tech Proves Democratic Institution

Analysis Of Occupations Of Student-Father Shows A Large Number Of Moderate Means; Few Rich

The accusation that colleges are operated for the benefit of the rich is not borne out by an analysis of the occupations of the patrons of Texas Technological college. Registration statistics of the 2,025 students enrolled this year show that 43 per cent of the patrons of the institution are engaged in rural pursuits. Of 877 such occupations there are 714 farmers, 119 ranchers, 25 stock farmers and 9 dairymen.

These figures indicate that a large number of Tech's students are products of rural life and that they come to college with strong healthy bodies and from a wholesome environment, even though such environment is often surrounded by hardships and privations.

35 Are Ginners

In the list are 35 ginners and 16 cotton buyers, an indication that king cotton has extended his reign over the great prairies where once the cattle baron held undisputed sway. Eight grain dealers are listed.

As an indication that the western part of the state is building and that carpenters' wages are good there are 41 students who give this as their parents' occupations. There are 46 contractors who have children in Tech, which is a further indication of the great building activity in progress in a new country. Twenty lumber men in the list would give additional proof of great building activity.

135 Fathers Merchants

There are 135 merchants who are sending their children to the big new school at Lubbock, 12 automobile dealers, 34 bankers, 10 barbers, 16 druggists 8 garage men, 6 hotel proprietors, and many other business classifications where a small number are represented.

Children of only 46 teachers are seeking to make Tech their alma mater, closely parallelled by 48 doctors. Insurance agents are keeping up their average with 25 in the list, and the real estate business is represented by 45 students.

Preachers Sons Numerous

If tradition holds god there are 38 "bad preacher's boys" adding their influence to the composite whole in Texas Technological college. Eleven republican postmasters are sending their children to what is probably the most democratic school in the country.

As an indication that the old order has not entirely changed six blacksmiths are still in the land and making enough with their strong right arms to keep the children in college. They are far outnumbered, however, by automobile dealers and mechanics.

Just One Undertaker

The man who told the story that it was so healthy in a certain western Texas town that they had to kill a tramp to start a cemetery would find some argument on his side from the fact that in all of the state only one undertaker is sending his boy to Texas Tech.

Salesmen are evidently finding the land flowing with milk and honey as 53 of them are able to send their children to college. Only one editor is supporting the school, just one capitalist, one collector, one credit manager, and many other trades and professions are represented by only one student.

Two students refer to their parents as invalids, and ten say their parents are retired. A large group of parents are in the railroad business, and 28 are classified in the oil business.

Two Are Janitors

Two Janitors are able to send their children to college, while only one judge has selected Texas Tech. One mayor, one miller, two miners, one city marshal, one city secretary, and two caretakers are sending their children to the institution. Also one game warden, one United States marshal, and one junk dealer are sending their boys and girls to the same place.

Numerous other classifications might be made which would go to show that the student body of Texas Technological college is made up of boys and girls coming from homes that are touched by every business, professional and industrial activity of Texas.

Calles Army

vanced southward to Canitas in the state of Zacatecas. This is a strategetic position because it affords opportunity to withdraw either to Torreon or Durango. The government announced that General Calles had reached Zacatecas, less than 100 miles south of Canitas, with cavalry, infantry and artillery, numbering about 18,000 men. Forces commanded by Urbalejo were believed to be much smaller.

Torn Rail Lines Hinder

The government pointed out that another very likely contact point is the city of Torreon to which the rebel general Escobar fell back four days ago after being driven from Monterey. Federal forces led by Generals Juan Andreu Almazon and General Eulogio Ortiz have consolidated at Saltillo to the west, but their advance on Escobar is slow because of torn up railroad lines, it was said.

At present the strategy of General Calles seems to be to force General Urbalejo from Canitas, which would clear the railroad line to Torreon and give opportunity to attack that point simultaneously with Ilmazan and Ortiz.

The Vera Cruz campaign has degenerated into a rebel hunt. The federal forces are pursuing General Jesus M. Aguirre in an attempt to prevent his reaching Asylum in Central America. The complete collapse of this threat against the capital enabled General Calles to leave for the north late last night.

Chapultepec castle, residence of President Portes Gil, for the past week had been the seat of the supreme war council which now is likely to be transferred to the field. Activity about the castle had lessened noticeably today while the general life of the capital continued orderly and undisturbed.

MEXICO CITY, March 9. (AP) — A dispatch of El Universal from Queretaro said that a bomb was exploded under an armored car of a passenger train bound from Laredo to Mexico City. One soldier was killed and another wounded.

After soldiers had arrested a man on suspicion of placing the bomb, the train proceeded. The outrage took place near Noria.

MONTEREY, Mexico, March 9. (AP) — General Andreu Alamazan, commander in chief of loyal forces in this section, late today was moving his army eastward toward Saltillo, in which vicinity he expects the decisive battle of the revolution to be fought, as fast as rail facilities will permit.

General Alamazan said that he planned to throw his forces against those of General Gonzalo Escobar, rebel leader who retreated from Monterey to Saltillo, at the earliest possible moment.

The army is moving on top of box cars, inside of which its horses are quartered.

The general accompanied a representative of The Associated Press on an inspection of the loading operation. He appeared very tired and worn, but talked freely and confidently of the campaign. He and his men believe that General Escobar's raid and brief stay at Monterey were made with the object of obtaining funds with which to operate. Reports said that one of the Monterey banks had been looted.

Dartmouth Wins Contest

NEW YORK, March 9. (AP)—The Dartmouth college gglee club for the second successive year tonight won the intercollegiate glee club contest, competing against 13 other university glee clubs at Carnegie hall. New York University was second and Ohio State University was third.

Juarez

ing, were stationed at Fort Hidalgo and other strategic points, apparently preparing for any attempt by the government to retake the city, although none was — at least not momentarily — expected. Federal forces, driven from the city, were interned at Fort Bliss in El Paso.

A revised casualty list today showed that the total number of dead on both sides was 12, with 29 wounded.

Bartender's Death Mourned.

The death of Teddy Barnes, an American, popular bartender at the Mint Cafe in Juarez, was mourned on both sides of the border. Barnes was hit by a stray bullet while in his room.

The interned government forces at Fort Bliss were wondering how long they would have to remain in American custody. Brigadier General George Van Horn Moseley, commandant at Fort Bliss, said he had received no word from Washington after having reported that the Mexicans were interned at their own request. Officials in the federal building here expressed the view that the United States government would permit the return of the federal soldiers into Mexico in the near future.

One Lieutenant Dies.

One of the interned men, a lieutenant, died today of injuries received in the battle. Three others, wounded, were transferred to the Fort hospital.

The funeral of Capt. Jose Paredes, only rebel officer to fall in the fight, was held today in Juarez. The 70th regiment followed his hearse through the streets. Captain Paredes' body lay in state in the city hall in the morning and hundreds viewed the body.

Gen. Marcelino Murrieta, in charge of the rebel forces in Juarez, took over the customs house and established headquarters there. Gen. Miguel Valle, leader of the troops which vanquished the federal army in Juarez yesterday, occupied Fort Hidalgo.

Customs Men Flee.

Customs Collector Luis Aragon and Chief of Immigration, Limon Wire, government officials, were said to be in refuge in El Paso. Juan B. Loris, customs appraiser, is temporarily in charge of immigration General Murrieta said.

Every official will continue to hold office in Juarez unless he is found unfit under the dictum of General Murrieta. Mayor Augustin Galloand, Chief of Police Frias and their assistants still were in office. Uniformed policemen patrolled the streets and ordinary tranquility prevailed.

LINDY BRINGS MAIL

Flier Rests In Club; To Fly Back Today

BROWNSVILLE, March 9. (AP)—Getting away from the throng of air enthusiasts who greeted him on his arrival from Mexico City today with the first offical mail of the Pan American Company's New Mexico City-Brownsville route, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made himself at hme at the officers club at Fort Brown while preparations were completed for his return flight to the Mexican capital omorrow.

Captain Ira Eaker, whose record seeking pursuit plane was christened today, entertained the throngs at Brownsville's new municipal airport with aerial acrobatics before he taxied his ship to the hangar to await further orders from Washington.

Two Are Held For Whipping Youths

DALLAS, Mar. 9. (AP)—Alleged to have kidnapped two 16-year-old Dallas youths last night and taken them to a creek bottom where one of the prisoners assertedly was lashed with a belt, Van Lindsley and Blackie Martin were charged with assault and false imprisonment in complaints sworn against them late today.

Gentry T. Jones and Jack Hoyle said they were sitting in an automobile in front of Hoyle's home last night when the two men approached and, at pistol point, forced them into their automobile and took them to the secluded spot. A pistol was held on Hoyle while his abductors took turns flogging him, the boys declared.

Jones and Hoyle said they were ordered to cease paying attention to a girl. After being brought back to the city, Hoyle said he was forced to hold a telephone conversation with the girl and tell her he had "been whipped."

Legislature

may be said that proponents of the bond issue plan of building highways are about the most persistent group of gladiators that ever have come down the pike. They have overcome the two-thirds majority obstacle—or at least they are about to brush it aside—while the game minority with its back to the wall fails to surrender and will defend to the last.

The maneuvering of both sides has been dexterous. Trading on pending legislation of considerable import has been resorted to all will admit. It has been a game of give and take in many respects.

There are some who believe that the Wirtz bill was used as a lever to pry a number of the opponents of the bond issue over to the other side of the house. It has been reported that some of those interested in chastising the democrats who would not vote for Governor Smith agree to lay aside their personal convictions on the merits of the bond issue and to vote to submit it to the people in exchange for certain affirmative votes on that measure from bond issue advocates.

May Go Over Monday

Whatever has happened, the bond issue proponents are on the threshold of a victory and may go over the top Monday when the resolution proposing submission of the constitutional amendment comes up again.

With 98 of the needed 100 votes registered on the electric board, hope were on additional three affirmative votes paired. Only the votes of those present can be counted in compiling a two-thirds majority and pairs must not be considered. One of paired was Senator W. S. Barron, convalescing from an operation.

In spite of the bright prospects, proponents are hampered by the nearness of adjournment and what the senate may or may not do. Some house members for the bond issue have served notice on the senators that unless the upper house passes the house bill cutting automobile license fees 50 per cent they will retailate by refusing to submit the bond issue. The senate committee amended the bill to reduce the present registration fees only 20 per cent.

Opponents Certain Also

Opponents of the bond issue, including Representative Anderson of San Antonio and Tillotson of Sealy, contend that the needed 100 votes will never materialize.

Dwindling attendance in the house during the last days of the session might operate to the disadvantage of the resolution there, as well.

Senators anxious to have the bond issue submitted, Friday night subordinated their convictions on the pending bill to make it obligatory for the highway commission to obtain permission of the county commissioners court to route a highway away from a town of more than 200 inhabitants, because some house members who voted for the bond issue told them if they voted against the measure that they would retaliate by opposing the constitutional amendment.

Senators against the bill backed up suddenly and it was passed with little opposition.

Pen Bill Due Early

The penitentiary concentration bill will reach a show-down in the house early next week. The senate has concurred in the free conference report. The committee virtually agreed to the Holbrook bill, backed by Governor Modyo, but a minority report was filed by Rep. King and Senators McFarlane and DeBerry. Rep. Young, co-author of the house bill, almost diametrically oposite to the senate measure, will seek to have the house adopt the minority report. He said today that while the vote will be close he believes the house will stand pat on its original vote in passing out his bill. If the house should reject the majority report then penitentiary legislation will be compelled to await a special session.

If the highway bond issue is not submitted it will be dead for two years since a proposed constitutional amendment cannot be submitted at a special session.

Bible Is Honored

To Pursue Enemy

"The enemy could not resist our men in their onslaught," the message read, adding that other enemy detachments "will be actively pursued."

On the Sinaloa front, General Carillo was reported to have 2,500 Federal troops stationed in fortified positions at Mazatlan, awaiting the large Rebel column under General Iturbe nearing the seaport.

Rebels were in control of Culiacan, Capital of Sinaloa, and detachments of their troops marched through that city on their way south for the expected battle at Mazalan. Railroad tracks destroyed by the retreating government forces were rapidly being repaired, General Iturbe advised.

Move On To Mazatlan

The Rebel general announced he had established military headquarters in Culiacan and that Celso Gaxiola, attorney, had been named provisional governor of Sinaloa. General Iturbe said he was well supplied with cash and that the move on Mazatlan was part of the general plan for the drive on Mexico City.

The threatened air attack on Nagales, Sonora, across the border from here, by government planes from Baja California, Loyal, failed to materialize. Destruction of two planes in a fire at the Mexicali airport was thought to have diminished the chances that the Federal Governor Ordriguez, owuld send airmen to bomb the Rebel stronghold in Nogales.

Announcement was made that Ignacio Soto of Agua Prieta would be sent to Washington as an envoy of the Revolutionary government of Sonora.

Revolt leaders today claimed to control the state of Sonora, Chihuahua, Coahuila, Sinaloa, Durango and San Louis Potosi.

Gov. Rodriquez announced that his officers had arrested Colonel Carlos Lopez in Baja California and were holding him on suspicion. Lopez was implicated in an attempt two years ago to smuggle arms across the international border. He recently was released from McNeil penitentiary.

JUAREZ, Chih., Mexico., March 9. (AP)—Inflamed by the fires of revolution, Chihuahua tonight appeared to have been chosen as the rebel base for inauguration of a powerful offensive against the government of Portes Gil, with overthrow of Mexico City the ultimate objective.

EL PASO, March 9.(AP)—Some 250 rebel soldiers and a group of officers entrained for the south from Juarez late today, to meet Mexican federal forces reported advancing on Torreon. General Miguel Valles who led the successful attack against Juarez, was in command.

The soldiers were equipped with rifles, side arms, ammunition and machine guns. Families of the soldiers went with the troops.

NEGRO IS HELD

Officers Believe Black Is Murderer Of Waco Couple

WACO, March 9. — A negro, whom officers believe is the murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Pedigo, Moody farm folk, was arrested today by Sheriff Stegall and brought to Waco tonight for safe keeping. The negro was taken into custody three miles from the Bluecut home where the Pedigos were found dead Friday.

Moody residents recalled a recent quarrel between Pedigo and the negro over a note which Pedigo held. Three 32-20 pistol bullets, the same type as those taken from the bodies of the murdered couple were found in the negro's home.

Mrs. E. W. Duke has returned to Muleshoe after a visit with her sister, Mrs. G. W. Watkins, 1947 Avenue M.

Gets In Mix-Up

Typewriters Taken For Machine Guns

A Palace Pre-View

Chicago — underworld — machine guns.

Only the setting is in another city.

Douglas MacLean, as the young typewriter saelsman, on his way from Chicago, while on the train is held up by The Carnation Kid and made to change clothes with the gunman, while that gentleman makes his get-a-way. On the train he has seen "the" girl.

Arriving at Chatham, the salesman is mistaken for the gunman and sells 25 typewriters to a racketeer who thinks he's buying machine guns.

It's a clever picture, full of laughs of rib-tickling vintage, exciting, speedy, with politics, comedy, gunmen, gun fights, love, all mixed together.

And, what's more, it is a picture play up-to-date, with unusually good story plot and exceptionally fine musical score. Talking is plentiful. A.M.H.

RARE OFFER

We wonder if you would be interested in the best purchase of raw land on the Plains. If you will take the pains to go to Morton, then about two miles this side, on the north side of the highway, and lying broadside with it, you will see what you yourself will say is the best looking quarter section of land you ever saw. Big statement, you say? Yes it is, but every word true.

No soil any richer, no table any more level, no sand, no grubs, two miles from fine school, court house and gin, an ideal location for a home.

We are authorized to sell this land for $25 per acre, and when we say that do not get it confused with blow sand lands at $20 and $15, and that are not worth one-half this land.

Its special value is due to the high quality of its soil, its beauty, its location close to Morton, the ease and certainty of getting a bountiful supply of the finest water. As a matter of fact if this land should sell for its value it would not be one cent less than $35.00 per acre. Let us tell you more about it.

Plans Are Made For A Sectional Scout Field Day

Troops From Over South Plains To Be Invited To Take Part In Competition For Clapp Trophy

Plans to make the annual Lubbock Boy Scout field day a South Plains affair, with troops from all parts of the South Plains area council competing for the Clapp trophy and banner, were announced last week by K. N. Clapp, scout commissioner and acting executive of the council.

The field meet will be held here May 18 and invitations accompanied by all of the rules for the contests have been sent to each troop in the thirteen counties of this council.

Started In 1927

Started here in 1927, the annual field day is expected to develop into one of the outstanding scouting events of the year. In the first meet to be held, Troop No. 4 won the Clapp Trophy, a bronze shield. Much competition has been aroused in other troops in an effort to win the prize. It becomes the permanent possession when a troop wins it three times. The meet was not held last year due to a number of conflicts with other events.

The contests will be held at Tech Field starting at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Lubbock troops have been divided into two divisions: A containing Troops 4, 5, 6, and 9; and B containing 2, 3, 7, and 8. Troop No. 40 of Tahoka is the only out-of-town troop that has entered up until the present time. It is thought, however, that many others will come in before the date of the meet.

Two Awards Given

The trophy will be given to the winner of the first division and the banner to the winner of the second division. Contests for both classes will be the same and will be held at the same time, with each troop being scored in its respective class.

The general rules state that all scouts must compete in at least two events and not more than six. Troops will be judged by the percentage present at registration and on an inspection of the scouts for cleanliness.

Contests will be held and points given in the following events; bugling, knot tying, message carrying, first aid, signalling, string burning, fire making, and a number of races and games, including: shoe jamboree, antelope race, stick relay half mile relay, and bicycle race.

Deadlocked Jury Gets Dismissal

Hopelessly deadlocked the ury in the $30,000 damage suit of Mrs. Clara McCallan and Mrs. Elmira McCallan against the Lubbock sanitarium was dismissed late yesterday afternoon by Judge Homer L. Pharr in the 722nd district court.

After a lengthy deliberation from 2 o'clock Friday afternoon until about 4:30 o'clock yesterday, the jury reported that it could not agree and asked to be dismissed. Jurymen stated that the deadlock stood six to six.

The case, which has demanded an unusually heavy public interest, consumed the entire week's court session. Filed by the wife and mother of the late Ray McCallan, the original petition charged that his death was due to an appendicitis operation in the sanitarium

The plaintiffs were represented by Vickers and Campbell, and the defense counsel included Bledsoe, Crenshaw and Dupree.

Urge Registration Of Births, Deaths

AUSTIN, March 9.—The United States census and children's bureau are cooperating with the state department of health, in a drive to better birth and death registration in Texas. Great strides have been made along this line during the past six months. There has been a large increase in the number of births and deaths registered, but the state is still below the required standard of 90 percent.

Through the courtesy of Mr. S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, a canvass is being made throughout the state of all children under 1 year of age, in connection with the scholastic census. These will be checked against the birth records for each community, and in that way the unregistered births will be located, as well as the names of the doctors and midwives who are not filing their certificates.

Grim Reaper Beats Out Stork In City

The grim reaper outpaced the stork by a more than two to one majority during the past month, official records of Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health official, revealed yesterday.

Seventeen births were recorded in Lubbock during the month of February as compared to 43 deaths. Although the percentage was not so great, deaths outnumbered births in January, 38 to 27.

Dr. Rollo reports that there is little illness in the city at the present time, and predicts that the death total for the month of March will not be so high.

East Is Watching Lubbock, Grollman Says Upon Return

National wholesalers and manufacturers, in cities of the north, middle west and the east, all are intensely interested in Lubbock and the South Plains, according to Claude Grollman who, with Mrs. Grollman, has just returned from several weeks spent in such centers as New York City, Baltimore, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia.

"Because of Lubbock's continual spot in the white part of the good business in the southwest," says Mr. Grollman, "those men, who watch business conditions all over the country, look for Lubbock to make a very large city in the next few years."

Mr. Grollman stated that this opinion is based upon the fact that this section is becoming to be looked upon as the coming section of the United States, made so by the millions of acres of undeveloped lands, oil potentialities and other known resources not yet exploited.

While on their buying trip, Mr. and Mrs. Grollman made purchases with the idea in mind of making Grollman's one of the greatest department stores in the Southwest. Mrs. Grollman spent five weeks making purchases for the ready-to-wear and millinery departments, while Mr. Grollman was gone three weeks and bought goods for the store's other lines.

Grollman's will soon be entirely remodeled, and will open a basement store. This will give an additional 8,000 square feet of floor space, bringing the total to over 17,000 square feet, all of which will be needed for the stocks that are coming, which will make the store's greatest ready-to-wear and millinery and general stock in its history.

When the police department came into being 100 years ago, London was the most criminal place in the world; there being, on an estimate, one criminal for every 22 of the population in 1828.

Tech Begins Plans For Largest Graduation Ceremony

Unprecedented Interest Shown Here On Yard Beautification; Expert At Tech Lends Advice To Local People

Prof. Charles Mahoney, Of Horticulture Department, Lists Plants And Shrubs Which Do Well Here

WITH the first breath of spring last week, an unprecedented interest in gardens and flowers developed in Lubbock and expressed itself in city-wide planting activities.

It appears that in the spring time one's thoughts turns not only to thoughts of love but to thoughts of shrubbery, flowers, trees, and lawns as well. Contrary to old belief that very little ornamental vegetation would grow in this section, Lubbock is changing more each year into a veritable beauty spot with innumerable grass covered lawns, surrounded by well-kept hedges, flowers, shrubbery, and trees of almost every kind.

Complaints Are Begun

Proving that planting activities have begun, the usual complaints of neighbor's chickens scratching up freshly-planted seed have begun at police headquarters. Although no definite program has been advanced, the entire city seems to be taking a movement toward yard beautification. Even the county is in line with the movement and for the past few weeks the courthouse lawn, last year one of the greenest spots on the South Plains, daily has been saturated with water. A large number of Chinese Elms have been planted about the lawn, replacing the old Locust trees.

According to Charles H. Mahoney, head of the horticulture department of Texas Technological college,

Old Time Cowmen Of Lubbock Long To Return To Good Old Days When Man's Word Was Good As His Bond

Veterans Of Early Days On Plains Harken Back With Pleasure To Years Which Are Gone Forever

OLD Demonsthenes was ahead of his day.

He should have come west and grown up with his country in the latter part of the nineteenth century when men were men and honesty was the fad of the hour. Then he wouldn't have had to even polish his lantern globe to find his man.

Ask any old cowpuncher about the days when H. V. Edsall was husbanding a herd of sheep out in what is now Yoakum county, comfortably ensconced in his dugout; when Tilda Wolffarth was ranging from Tahoka Lakes to the Pecos with cattle and when Andy Wilson was trekking from Colorado across the unbroken wastes of New Mexico—ask them about the days before fences and cotton and their principal wish is for the days when men were honest.

Would Go Back.

Other things being equal, cow men probably would be content to go back to the carefree days when they rode the wide areas of West Texas and New Mexico from the few ranch headquarters which sprinkled the expanse.

However, they cannot say, unreservedly, that they wish no change had occurred in the status of the country. This development was a natural thing and the ranches had to go, but some of them remember and remembering voice the sentiment that "If I were young again and if I could find another coun-

Two Societies Of Methodist Church In Large Program

Mary Helm Auxiliary And WMS of First Methodist Church Combine To Form Large Organization

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh of a series of articles on church women's societies in Lubbock. These articles appear on the society page of the Sunday Avalanche-Journal.)

The Women's Missionary society and Mary Helm Auxiliary of the First Methodist church together constitute one of the larger church women's organizations in Lubbock as the two societies have a combined paid membership of about 200 with more than 100 actively engaged in the work.

The Mary Helm society is the younger of the two organizations and is composed of the young matrons in the congregation while the Women's Missionary society draws its membership from the more mature women. Each organization is distinct.

The society years began the first of January, when new officers were installed and plans for another 12 months were completed.

Study Is Paramount.

In keeping with the society policy of spiritual development, members of the Mary Helm Auxiliary have placed mission and Bible study first on their program for 1929, and have listed as cooperating aims, more social service work, a missionary special to be designated and increased attendance.

The senior society has a budget of $1,000 to care for local and foreign missionary work and there is to be a special of $50 for some as yet undesignated special work. Regular mission and Bible study will be conducted throughout the year and other activities will be engaged in.

With Mrs. R. T. Campbell as a general president, the Women's Missionary society is divided into four circles, according to designated districts in the city, and each unit has a sub-organization with a chairman.

Meet On Mondays.

Weekly meetings are conducted on Monday afternoon, each district has its own charity and social service cases, each circle pledges a specific amount to the general budget and each one has mission studies with a leader directing the programs. Once each month a general business session is conducted with Mrs. Campbell in charge.

Social occasions are planned from time to time as the development of fellowship is one aim of the organization and in some activities and socialities the W. M. S. and Mary Helm Auxiliary combine.

Various Enterprises.

Money for the societ budget is raised in various ways as sales are conducted, papers sold, booths maintained at fairs and other enterprises engaged in. Some money is pledged and paid into the society and dues amount annually to about $300.

Excepting what is spent locally, money is sent to the general board of the church in Nashville, Tenn., and there distributed among the causes of the Southern Methodist church. The local women designate how some of the money shall be spent but $275 will be sent undirected this year, in addition to the $50 special that is yet to be decided upon.

Reports of work in this society during 1928 showed many activities including visits to the sick and strangers; distribution of garments, food, money and supplies among the needy and sick; sending of flowers. A carpet and some furniture were bought for the church, lunches were served to members of the Epworth League on Sunday evenings and Tech students were served a banquet. Several boxes were placed for orphans and several social occasions were sponsored by the society.

These Are Officers.

In addition to Mrs. Campbell, officers in the society are as follows: Vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Rylands; recording secretary, Mrs. J. C. Orr; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Rufe Williams; connectional treasurer, Mrs. T. V. McKinney; local treasurer, Mrs. W. N. Stanton; "Missionary Voice" agent, Mrs. C. B. Powell; social service chairman, Mrs. Erle Thompson; local work chairman, Mrs. Pebble Talley; sup-

Inaugural Ball Isn't What It Used To Be; Official Set Holds Aloof; Charity Event

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Mar 9.—A social event that is frequently misunderstood throughout the country is the inaugural charity ball given here on inauguration night.

The difference between this one and the old inaugural ball is that the charity ball is an unofficial event, and is merely an attempt to furnish a gala event for the out-of-town guests. The Washington diplomatic set pays little attention to it, and the president and his wife do not attend, since it is not official and there is no obligation involved. It is promoted for charitable purposes, the tickets are sold by debutantes for $10 to any one who will buy and the proceeds go into the community chest.

There has been no official ball since the Taft administration. President Wilson, who felt no interest in it, was able to dispense with it as a measure of wartime economy.

By that time the ball had outlived its brilliance, and become merely an almost unbearable "crush" where no one could possibly dance or even move. There was never anything exclusive about it, but it did bring out the new president and his wife, the diplomatic set, and the army and navy in all their gold braid and formal uniforms.

Regrets Expressed

Some old timers here speak regretfully of the passing of the old ball, as just another tradition gone. Anyway, the history of the ball is an interesting commentary on the growth of a nation. The first one was held in Philadelphia in 1793, during the second Washington administration. The first one held here was in 1809, when President Madison was inaugurated. At this time it was estimated that 400 persons attended, and it was an intimate affair.

In Jackson's time the ball was given in Carusi's, which is referred to in contemporary accounts as a saloon. It wasn't such a high-hat affair by this time, but President Van Buren's ball, later at the same place, was spoken of in the press of the day as a brilliant social event.

By William Henry Harrison's time, a theater on Louisiana avenue was purchased for the inaugural ball, and there were 2,000 guests. They went back to Carusi's saloon for President Polk's ball, and history records a baffling crush. When President Taylor took office, three balls were given in three different places, and he visited all three. "The most jovial ball on record" is the report of the dance that ushered in the Pierce administration, again at Carusi's.

A temporary building was erected in Judiciary Square for the Buchanan ball, and a deficit is recorded because of lavish expenditures. The same unhappy condition prevailed at President Lincoln's first ball, at the same place. For the second Lincoln inaugural the patent office was used apparently without great success because it was notable for the confusion that prevailed in the hat and cloak room and the scantiness of the supper. General dissatisfaction followed.

In General Grant's time the north wing of the treasury department was the scene, and a terrific jam was the result of the close quarters. His second ball was worse, however. A temporary stand was built at Judiciary Square, and hundreds of canary birds were imported to give a festive and tropical air, and 2,500 gas burners were installed to carry out the illusion. But arctic weather on the fourth of March spoiled the party, and ladies danced in their wraps and the men in their overcoats, and though the fine food had been brought down from New York, the guests turned down the ice chilled salads and demanded hot drinks. The canaries, most of them, died from the cold.

The President Garfield ball was held in the National Museum with 5,000 guests. The one for President Cleveland was held in the pension office, for the first time with Sousa's band behind the palms, and much elegance.

The success of this ball was duplicated in the ball for President Harrison in 1889—a terrible night, but 12,000 people braved the storm in their best bib and tucker.

Came the High Hats

At the inaugural for the McKinley-Hobart administration, evening attire was not general, but by the McKinley-Roosevelt all the women were in low cut gowns. Now the inaugural ball was a real problem because of the number of people who wanted to attend.

By Roosevelt's time there was not a foot of available space on the floor, and the ball had become the unwieldly event that brought on its downfall. It was cutsomary for girls' schools and colleges to send their young women as a part of their valuable social training in the capital city. More and more people poured into Washington just to attend it so as to report to the folks back home.

This year the ranking guests were to be Vice President Curtis, his sister, Mrs. Gann, and his daughters. Many of the senators and representatives, some of the diplomats and many officers of the army and navy purchased boxes.

No, the inaugural ball isn't what it used to be—but as a charity affair it has some justification. As an affair of state it outlived its purpose.

Important society folks in Washington are interested in making the inaugural ball a success, for charity's sake. Brilliant Court Surrounds Queen During Evening As Tech Freshmen Dance At College Hall

Under a blue canopy beneath which floated a myriad of pastel-shaded balloons and before a large audience of freshmen and their guests, Miss Irene Frnka of Garwood was crowned queen of the Texas Technological college freshmen Friday night at the annual dance of that class.

A unique plan was carried out in the presentation. Six boys brought in a large fish after Canon Clements, a small red haired freshman dressed in tattered overall and carrying a fishing pole invited the guests to "See what I caught." Following the paper fish came the queen's court.

Leads Grand March

The fish was opened and Miss Frnka was discovered. She was unusually beautiful in gown of white satin and tulle and wearing a crown of brilliants which enhanced her loveliness.

Lonnie Langston, one of the class sponsors presented the queen while her court bowed.

Jimmy Whiteside, class president, led the grand march with Queen Irene of the House of Frnka and they were followed by the court and its attendants who were as follows: Miss Lena Bert Medlin and Jack Buckler; Miss Mary Frizzell and Leroy Vaughn, Miss Beth Wulfman and Jimmie Broderick, Miss Mary Elva Burns and Bion Reeves, Miss Mary Lois Gamel and Walter Coffman, Miss Rita Hufstedler and J. Local Presidents Of School Groups Discuss New Law

Texas Slow To Fall In Step With March of Education According to Presidents Of Associations

That Texas has been slow to fall in step with the educational march of her sister states of the union, is the general consensus of opinion of the Lubbock P.-T. A. presidents and council executives.

When asked regarding their views on the new state law lowering the scholastic age of primary children in Texas, from seven to six, effective in 1930, all were of one accord.

"In all the states I have lived before coming to Texas, they have included six-year-old children in the scholastic age," declared Mrs. W. T. Milam, president of Dupre P.-T. A., adding "and frankly I think it is a great law. For since authorities tell us that the child brain is completely developed at the age of seven we need to do more to help to store it with early knowledge.

"However, our buildings will not accommodate the children we already have in them, and we cannot hope to adequately care for the influx of six-year-olds next year, unless we get action at once in a new building campaign. A petition is now being circulated among our members, asking that the city vote bonds for a new high school building at once. We feel Texas should keep pace with the progressive states and no longer force her children to drag behind in matters of educational advantages."

Council Is Backing Board.

Mrs. E. B. Wheelock, publicity chairman of the Lubbock P.-T. A. council, explained "I think the age

Texas Exhibit At General Congress Is Representative

Outstanding Speakers Are To Be On Program For Annual Meeting of P. T. A. In Washington

The Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations will have entry in the exhibits of the states at the thirty-third annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Washington, D. C., May 4-11, 1929, that will be unique. No other state can possibly have an exhibit like that of Texas. This year the exhibit will feature state activities, and every state has been asked to prepare an exhibit demonstrating a specific project being carried on by the state branch.

Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, president of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, has selected as the specific project of the Texas congress, what she considers the most outstanding and far-reaching activity of the organization, namely the correspondence course in parent-teacher work instituted a little over a year ago by Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, who is now the national president. After Mrs. Marrs was elected president of the national congress of parents and teachers, Mrs. Stephen Chamness, executive secretary of the Texas congress took charge of the fast growing work in which nearly 1,500 people have enrolled. Some 300 have completed the course and have received certificates or are eligible to receive them.

Mrs. Smith is not ready to announce details of the exhibit, but states that her plans are maturing rapidly. She will leave Texas for the convention immediately after the conference of the seventh district at Llano, April 22, 23 and 24. Delegates from every district in Texas were elected by the board of managers in its January meeting and many have signified their intention of attending the Washington meeting. Mrs. Smith will attend the dinner in honor of the state presidents on Sunday, May 5.

Announce Theme

The general theme on which the whole convention program is formed is "Education for Worthy Home Membership," and the needs of a many sided membership have been kept in mind in formulating the program, according to Mrs. Smith.

Those who wish to study intensively the subjects of parent-teacher technique, parliamentary procedure, publicity, or rural problems will have ample opportunity to join ably conducted classes.

Inspiration will not be lacking in a program which includes among its speakers Bishop James E. Freeman, Mrs. Lillian Gilbreth, Dr. Jesse H. Newlon, Dr. Ernest R. Groves and Mrs. Helen Field Fisher. These speakers, and others not here mentioned, will take as topics different phases of the subject of the convention.

Mrs. Smith states that Texas will have Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter, Dallas, at the Founders' Day banquet which is scheduled for Monday evening, May 6, at which the charter members of the national organization and those who attended the first convention in 1897 will be honor guests, and at which Honorable William Cooper, United States commissioner of education, will speak. Mrs. Porter is charter member of the National.

Texans to Attend

Mrs. Smith says that word has come of plans being being made by Texans to attend the convention. Cars from San Antonio, Fort Worth and other cities will carry their quota of delegates through the country and special through trains have been arranged. The regularly elected delegates are:

PALM BEACH, March 8. — There is nothing Lenten about the Palm Beach social calender. From now on until the middle of March there is a steady crescendo of "annual" events planned. There's the annual costume ball soon at the Everglades club, and the Friar's Frolic and the annual tennis tournament at the Poinciana, Courts, not to mention the recent annual Palm Beach Yacht club regatta and brilliant annual costume ball at the Bath and Tennis club which was, in Dempsyian language, a "K. O."

Nor is there anything demure or churchlike about Palm Beach clothes. I often wonder just how many trunks some smart women bring. They have on different and richly lovely things each time I see them Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte is one of them. So is Mrs. Milton Holden. Today when I met her strolling along, she wore a stunning emerald green faille suit with off-white tuck-in blouse that had modernistic decorations in the green. Her shoes were brown and white sports ones, with triangular tips.

A Bit Of Spain.

Palm Beachers reverted to olden Spanish days the other evening at Mrs. Alexander McKay's costume dance. Such a profusion of gorgeous gowns, including one worn by Mrs. Eugene Pitou of Philadelphia, which had a rich silver bodice and a skirt of eight tiers of luscious gold Spanish lace. Her mantilla was equally stunning.

Mrs. Margaret Hoffman looked much too gorgeous in bright gold and scarlet satin or the Spanish pirate she was at this same dance. But I suppose there might conceivably be pirates de luxe, the successes of the profession!

Palm Beach is not all satins, laces and Spanish dances under the most tantalizing moon anywhere on this continent, however. There are many invigorating golf, tennis and swimming matches going on daily. Dame Fashion has invented or perfected such perfectly lovely woolens that they are quite the thing for sports here. Light, delicate colors and soft, svelt styles prevail in sports wear

Mrs. Norman Toerge, competing in the Florida Women's Golf tournament, was a delight to the eyes, in her alternating peach colored, pale green and primrose yellow cardigan suits of exquisite hand-knitted stuffs.

Rought straw hats, in large proportions, seem the dose for smart heads for daytime wear after sports are over. At the Bath and Tennis club I counted about 10 of these to one felt.

Individuality In Parasols.

I seem to have neglected the all-engrossing subject of parasols this year. Either one wears a large hat or a small one or none and carries a parasol. The secret to success is the kind of parasol one carries. Such individuality! They come in straw, in hand-worked silks, linens and even in decorative chiffons. The Baroness de Villiers du Terrage, of Paris, has a sumptuous collection. One extremely smart one is striped two ways, one with rich brown, cream and tan and the other way with red. The handle is red.

Pajamas can't stay out of print at Palm Beach this year. I personally have noted possibly a thousand kinds of prints they are fashioned from. From fish to cups of coffee in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado seems to sum up the range of subjects chosen for printed silks for pajamas. Mrs. Marvin Rorick, of Toledo, wore a stunning printed pajama suit at the Sea Spray Beach the other day Its figures looked more like bits of coral than anything else, different kinds of coral. The background was brown, and she wore a kerchief of that tone wound around her head.

made to the poor and needy, the stranger and the sick and last year there was considerable work among the Mexicans.

These women assisted in repairs on the local Mexican Methodist church and parsonage in addition to other work.

During a special prayer week there was an offering of $52 which was sent to the society headquarters in Nashville for a special fund and there is to be a special in the society this year.

Sponsor Nurseries.

These younger women sponsor the cradle roll work in the First Methodist church and the Junior Epworth Missionary society. They also maintain a nursery at the church on Sunday mornings during the preaching hour and on Monday afternoons during the hours that the society meets.

Meetings are conducted weekly in the church parlors. The first Monday afternoon is devoted to business, the second and fourth to mission and Bible study, which is conducted by Mrs. Herbert Maxwell, and the third is a social and program meeting with several hostesses on each occasion.

Miss Sawyer Wed To Grady Watkins Here On Saturday

Couple, Married Yesterday In Home of Bride, Is To Leave Today For Texxarkana To Live

Miss Haven Sawyer, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Sawyer, and Grady Watkins, formerly of this city and now of Texarkana, were married at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the home of the bride's parents at 2324 Broadway with Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, reading the ceremony.

The couple is to leave this morning for Texarkana where the groom is headquartering for the Remington-Rand Typewriter company, Until very recently he was in Lubbock.

Few At Wedding

Mrs. Watkins was comely in a model of beige silk and her hat, shoes and other accessories were in harmonizing colors for the wedding. A simple ceremony was read with the bride's parents, her brother, Ray Sawyer, and Mrs. Sawyer, of Tatum, N. M., and Byron Hallmark as witnesses.

The bride has been living here with her parents for many years. She is a graduate of the Lubbock high school and a former student of the Technological college. Mr. Watkins attended the Tech and was a student in Baylor University and the Sam Houston State Teachers college before coming here. His parents reside in Georgetown.

of six not too young for the child to get into public school. The six-year-old has a right to be in school. While taking into consideration the present congestion together with the half-day session in some of the schools, the only thing for us to do as P.-T. A. members is to get behind the board and work for a new high school. The need for another new ward school or additional rooms for the old ones seems imperative."

Publicity Helps

Mrs. G. T. Scales, district publicity chairman, declared, "The district and state P.-T. A. conventions have long agitated the new age for children being admitted to public school, and I think such a law will help do away with so much extra kindergarten work and expense. I highly favor it from a personal viewpoint. This seems a very good time to feature and to give the matter some publicity, now that bonds are to be voted soon and architects plans are being drawn for the proposed new high school."

Mrs. T. A. White, head of George M. Hunt P.-T. A. said, "I think this new law will be a most wonderful thing for Texas, now one of the few states in the union that does not already have this law in effect. I heartily favor the idea of keeping the child's mind occupied in the wholesome pursuit of knowledge. However, to overcome the present problem of the overcrowded class rooms throughout our Lubbock schools, we need most of all a new high school and another new ward school building, so that the prese t ward schools together with the old high school may accommodate the children in the grades. Lubbock has outgrown her present school buildings."

Mrs. Michie Quoted.

Mrs. J. N. Mitchie, president P.-T. A. council, said "I think this new law quite the most progressive step Texas has taken toward the education of her youth. The child is ready for kindergarten at five, and should have work in primary grade at the age of six. The psychologists all strongly favor the pre-school training and the earlier discipline of organized study in the public school. Looking toward the future should we get a new high school building, right away, we probably could cope with the problem of caring for these six-year-olds coming into our schools next year," reasoned the council president.

Mrs. E. W. Camp, president high school P.-T. A., when asked regarding the law, said, "I think it's the thing to do by all means. I don't think that six is a bit too soon to start these youngsters into public school. On the other hand, I feel it's a grevious mistake to make them wait until seven, as they will be retarded when entering school in other states.

"Texas has been slow to fall in step with her sister states. This law will give the child one more year under the compulsory school requirements, is another fine thing about it. Unless we get relief from present congestion in our schools, it means we are to have a terribly crowded condition all the way up. With a new high school, the old building could be used for the junior high. We will also need other grade schools in the very near future, but now we are working for the new high school," concluded Mrs. Camp.

YOUR CHILDREN

My, oh my, but this is a convention ridden world!

How many of us can remember things we were crazy to do as children and would have done, too—possessing all the originality and none of the inhibitions of childhood—had not our parents done the inhibiting for us?

Think back, parents, of the pet disappointments you have carried through the years to maturity, and then look at your own boy or girl and try to recall the thing he or she has been coaxing to do these many months. Are you holding back because of some silly convention? Are you afraid of what people might think?

Perhaps, if it is something within your power to grant, it might be the best thing in the world for you to say, "Yes, go ahead!

One of the most refreshing families of children I ever knew is possessed by a pair of parents who took long ago for their motto the little creed I am preaching. "Live and let live," is the family slogan.

One boy conceived a notion to possess a Jew's-harp. If you know what a Jew's-harp sounds like I think you'll make obeisance to the mother who could listen to its whanging distressed voice day out and in without protest. But something in his soul answered to its complaining. He loved it to distraction. The neighbors laughed—but the family didn't. They took it quite seriously.

A sister, Nettie, was to be sent to dancing school. She begged off. "I can't do that stuff, Mother. Aesthetic dancing suits me like wings would suit a monkey. Let me clog. I cut a piece out of the paper—an advertisement for a new school where they teach clogging and tap-dancing. I'm crazy to learn."

Nettie can tap now with anyone on the big time.

Emery's talents ran to roping. He has mastered all of Will Rogers' stunts and every second out of school finds him with his beloved rope. The family takes it as a matter of course.

'Carnation Kid' And Cohan's 'Home Towners' Feature Palace Week

Popular McLean Is Headlined In Main Film Today

Another 100 Percent Talkie Is Comnig This Wednesday

APPEARANCE of Tony Sarg's Marionettes, those wooden Lilliputians who have delighted and mystified audiences for the past several decades, will enliven the amusement program in Lubbock during the week starting today.

Then, too, there will be the American Legion minstrel on Monday and Tuesday night to import variety and spice to the program.

Also, the Palace has carded two of the best films of the year for the week, on of them being Douglas McLean in "The Carnation Kid," in which talking sequences are generously sprinkled throughout. The other is a screen version of George M. Cohen's famous stage success, "The Home Towners." This picture is an all-talkie and starred in it are Richard Bennett, Doris Kenyon and a host of others.

Betty Compson Stars At Lyric

Betty Compson, popular blonde star, and Marceline Day—equally as oppular, one might say—are featured in a film, "The Big City" which will be shown Monday and Tuesday at the Lyric theater. Feature attractions are billed there for the remainder of the week.

The Rex cards the following program: "Grit Wins," with Ted Wells, for Monday and Tuesday; "Pursued," starring Dot Drew for Wednesday and Thursday; and the mystery man of the wide open spaces, William S. Hart, in "The Mystery Rider" for Friday and Saturday.

Dancing at intervals during the week at the Uptown Dance Palace is another amusement feature for the city of Lubbock.

Legion Presents Minstrel Tomorrow

The Legion minstrel, for which a more detailed announcement appears elsewhere on this page, arrays some of the best talent in Lubbock. This affair has become an annual entertainment feature in the city and this year is said to feature in the city and this year is said to feature novel and a 'different' arrangement.

43 Talk Sequences In "Carnation Kid"

The Carnation Kid, starring Douglas MacLean, is the first motion picture with talking sequences running throughout to have typical movie action. By that it is meant the picture is featured with thrilling action from the very first sequence, keeping at a high pitch until the final fade out, according to the Christie Cororation, producers of the picture. This talking comedy-drama will open at the Palace theatre on Sunday.

Action is the by-word of "The Carnation Kid," the producers point out, for the comedy is based on a melodramatic background in which the plot moves breezily forward through all kinds of thrilling action, with suspense held all the way through. As proof of this it is pointed out that the action of the story takes place in forty-three different settings.

Douglas MacLean is supported in his latest film effort by Frances Lee, Lorraine Eddy, William Davidson, Francis McDonald and other well known film players. Alfred A. Cohn prepared the story. It's a Paramount picture.

Children Told Of Marionettes

Children of all the ward schools in Lubbock heard Mrs. E. W. Provence Friday tell the story of Tony Sarg's Marionettes, special attraction to be staged at the Tech College gymnasium March 19, afternoon and night. Mrs. Provence will visit the junior and senior high schools next Thursday.

Special rates will be accorded all students. For the matinee performance at 4 o'clock the admission for students will be only 25 cents and at night the levy is to be 50 cents. Adults will be 50 cents in the afternoon and at night 75 cents and $1. Tickets will be on sale by March 15.

Mrs. Provence saw this attraction in Waco and is enthusiastic in her praise.

"Home Towners" Termed Perfect

"The Home Towners" is the latest all-star picture of Warner Bros., and the most perfect. If others have been thrilling or glamorous, or the last word in the ludicrously un canny, "The Home Towners" is genial, chuckling, and altogether delightful.

The cast is made up of stars of the stage, all of whom have trained for it. The famous Richard Bennett, now playing "Jarnegan" on the Broadway stage, is featured with beautiful Doris Kenyon; Robert McWade, who played the same role in the New York production of George M. Cohan's famous play, from which "The Home Towners" is adapted, plays the same part in the screen version. Robert Edeson, Gladys Brockwell, John Miljan, Vera Lewis, Stanley Taylor, James T. Mack and Patricia Caron, all names to conjure with, are also prominently cast.

The story has to do with a small town business man who comes with his wife to the Big Town, to free his boyhood pal, now a millionaire, from his infatuation for a young woman, whom the country friend is assured is roping his old crony in.

'Sonny Boy' Who Pilfered Jolson Thunder Is Star

3-Year-Old Davey Lee Headlines Own Cinema

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Mar. 10.—Little Davey Lee, who all but stole Al Jolson's last film, "The Singing Fool," is now a star in his own right. And his first starring film, already completed, is "Sonny Boy."

Davey Lee

Some months ago it was announced that the three-year-old youngster would be starred in "Sonny Boy" after the tremendous reception given him and the song sung by Jolson in "The Singing Fool."

Warner Brothers' executives denied that the film would be produced. Close secrecy surrounded the filming, which was in production when the greatly exaggerated report was circulated that Davey had died. Due to the fact that it is harder to get on a sound stage than to crash the White House, information regarding the picture was successfully guarded from newspaper writers.

A new way to "crash" the movies has been ingeniously devised by Leo Bjorkman, Omaha, Neb., screen aspirant. Recognizing the new qualifications which the talkies demand, this youth recorded his voice on a home-made record and mailed it to Frank Tuttle, who is directing "The Studio Murder Mystery." No message of any kind accompanied the record but when played it revealed the ambitions of its maker, his address and a short dramatic recitation from a Robert W. Service poem. The only hitch in Bjorkman's idea was that he didn't get a job.

Old time movie fans who remember James Kirkwood will be glad to hear that they will see good old Jim's face on the silver screen again in the near future. Jim has been absent from the film studios for some time, during which he wrote an original story which he recently sold to one of the large companies. Now that the "squawkies" are established Jim is almost as much in demand as he was several years ago.

Getting a break in America is largely a matter of luck, according to Bela Luggosi, new Hungarian recruit in the film colony. "In Europe conditions are quite different," declared the actor. "There a man craving a stage or screen career must prove his ability before he can expect any sort of consideration. When he proves that he really has the knack of acting, he may become a member of one of the small repertoire companies which tour the provinces. As his acting ability increases with years of training, he is shifted to larger companies and better parts. But in this country training isn't considered.

Universal will be the first production company to make talkie pictures in other than the English language, by starting to film The Green Millionaire, with a Jewish cast and in entirely Hebrew dialogue.

Lionel Barrymore is about to direct his first full length screen production for M-G-M, Madame X, which is taken from the old stage play. Raymond Hackett, stage actor, and Ruth Chatterton will have the principal roles.

Hollywood expects soon to hear wedding bells ringing merrily for Bebe Daniels and—guess who!—why, Ben Lyons, of course. Bebe and Ben began to like each other a whole lot when they discovered they both were interested in airplanes and flying.

Most Popular Of Stars Scheduled For Palace Soon

Gilbert, Garbo And Others to Appear In Films Here

A PREVIEW of attractions booked for the coming weeks at the Palace, now all dolled up in its new "talkie" equipment, shows that some of the outstanding favorites of the screen are due to appear at this playhouse.

This week, Douglas McLean and Doris Kenyon are those outstanding.

The program for future weeks reveals that Fannie Brice, who brought "My Man" back to popularity almost single-handed, is coming in "Night Club", a story especially adapted for her type.

May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel, a popular pair if there ever was one, are listed to appear in "Caught in the Fog."

After them come "Redskin" featuring Richard Dix; "Lone Wolf's Daughter" with Bert Lytell; "Woman of Affairs" with that red-hot team, Greto Garbo and John Gilbert. Another star, perhaps not so well known to the lay theatergoer is Jeanne Eagles, formerly outstanding on the stage. Miss Eagles is to appear in "The Letter."

Legion Minstrel Has Fine Program

One of the premier entertainment attractions for the week will be the American Legion Minstrel and Musical Review to be given at the High School auditorium, Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The minstrel is being sponsored by the Allen Brothers Post of the American Legion, the proceeds to go into the Legion Building Fund. The entire program is arranged and directed by Dr. G. H. Ater. Robert Stephenson is in charge of the music and will be at the piano. Mrs. Violet Grayum McKnight is assisting in the music and Mr. Hughes and his eight piece orchestra will play for the show.

In the minstrel first part, Bob Peck and Lionel Merrell will carry the leading roles as premier comedians, assisted by Messrs. Frank Jones, Edgar Shelton, H. A. Wellmaker, R. F. Huie, J. A. Raley and last but by no means least is the distinguished TOM CARTER.

Ballad singers will include Messrs. Harry Blocker, J. A. Mizer, Earl Sparks, Chas. Whitacre, Dr. R. L. McAllister, K .N. Renner and others.

Big Male Chorus

The harmony chorus will include some forty voices, consisting of the men in the Legion and the entire Texas Tech Glee club. This will be one of the largest male choruses ever assembled in Lubbock.

"Under Southern Skies" is the title given to the minstrel's second part. This is a Southern plantation scene, in which Dr. A. W. Jackson, of the Tech College and Mr. Atchison, director of the First Methodist church choir take the leading roles, assisted by Miss Francis Stahl and Messrs. Edgar Shelton, L. M. Brooks, Frank Jones and Dr. V. V. Clark. For those who like the more classical music, this should fill their desires. The solos and ballads include some of the finest of the songs of long ago, interspersed with some of the more recent music and melodies. The male quartet, composed of Dr. V. V. Clark, baritone; Mr. L. M. Brooks, bass; Messrs. Edgar Shelton and Frank Jones, tenors, will sing several selections, including an old negro spiritual or two.

Daughter Scores Jack London

NEA Indianapolis Bureau

In an address at a Rotary Club luncheon in Indianapolis the other day, Joan London called her writer-father "a drunken bum," telling of the wild days of his youth in San Francisco. In her 35-minute lecture she told how he rose from a drunken waterfront fighter to an eminent place in American literature, and she spoke frankly of his faults.

Star Of 'Chicago' Has New Role In Broadway Drama

Francine Larrimore No Longer Maudlin Murderess Type

NEW YORK, March 9.—Francine Larrimore, whose last stage role was that of the maudlin and publicity-loving murderess in "Chicago," has been converted by Rachael Crothers and John Golden into a gay divorcee who laughs at life to hide a shattered ideal.

As Kitty Brown in "Let Us Be Gay," as new play written by Miss Crothers and produced by Mr. Golden, we see her in the prolog weeping bitterly as she banishes her husband, whom she has discovered in a chance infidelity.

Three years later she has grown hard and self-sure, so witty and attractive a siren that Mrs. Boucicault

Introduces New Talking Periods

"The Carnation Kid", starring Douglas McLean, which is to be presented at the Palace starting today, introduces a new type of talking film—the kind with multiple talking sequences.

No less than forty-three sequences of dialogue are found in "The Carnation Kid."

The Palace program for the first part of this week also includes special Vitaphone Acts, a news reel, and an organ overture.

Screen Vodvil Acts Scheduled

George M. Cohan stacked them in at New York prices with "The Home Towners" when it was a stage play. Now the screen version of the same production is to appear at the Palace, starting on Wednesday of this week.

Screen Vodvil acts, made possibie by reason of the Vitaphone, a news reel and an organ overture are also booked at the Palace for the latter part of the week.

Lindsey Opening To Come In April

Workmen are busy remodeling the interior of the Lindsey theater building, on Main street and Avenue J, and it is expected that formal opening of the remodelled structure will take place on scheduled time, which is mid-April.

The Lindsey is to have a Vitaphone, original "talking movie" device, and is to incorporate every improvement and convenience to be found in a first class theater anywhere.

The Darktown boys and girls are about to have their inning in films. King Vidor started in with Hallelujah with an all-colored cast, shooting most of the scenes on location near Memphis. Nina May McKenny, feminine lead formerly of Blackbirds, New York musical hit, will give the white gals a run.

Lawrence Stallings, author of The Big Parade, is going to write an original screen story for John Gilbert, which will be suited for dialogue.

Jack Mulhall has been signed by First National-Vitaphone, to do a series of pictures in which he sings as well as talks.

Work Of Literary Fledgings Shows Unusual Promise

Some First Books Being Printed Equal to Any

THE hunt for first novels which betray signs of unusual ability is a seasonal occupation among the critics. Perhaps it's the only real exercise they get.

But just why the public should be asked to spend $2 or more per volume to participate in this literary game, I don't pretend to know. To be sure, there are millions who will spend a similar amount to see a worthless experiment in talking pictures, or a so-so theatrical performance. And they'll come right back for more within a week. What's more, they'll sit through the worthless performance, where as they can toss a book in the corner if they don't like it and go back to their bridge.

First novels, like first loves, are generally the sincere, if clumsy and inexpert, efforts of the young toward expression. And as such, most of them are likely to be fresher and more interesting than the tired manufacturerings of many an established literary hack. On the other hand, I often wonder how some of them get published at all.

There are, however, on this spring's list a number of newcomers almost certain to hold their own with anything produced. Those which I have encountered to date are:

"Rome Haul," (Little Brown) by Walter D. Edmonds. This is a novel in which the Erie canal is, perhaps, the hero. The time is about 1850, when the canal reached the height of its fame and business importance. Edmonds has done a thorough job of research, recapturing types and scenes and lore of the period.

NOTICE—It is not the intention of The Avalanche-Journal to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly and if through error we should, the management will appreciate having our attention called to same, and will gladly correct any erroneous statement made.

The Avalanche-Journal is an Independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those questions which it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics; publishing the news fairly and impartially at all times.

Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God:

Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.—Corinthians, x, 32, 33.

THE SCHOOL SITUATION

THE Avalanche-Journal goes on record as approving the plans of the school board and its citizens' committee in the matter of the erection of a new high school building and additions to several of the ward school structures. Both the board and the personnel of the committee argee that an expansion is essential.

After a careful survey of the municipal school system the committee, composed of interested, intelligent and expert persons, has seen the actual needs of the city and has unhesitatingly made its report to a board already of a similar opinion.

Lubbock's schools, plus, of course the Technological college, form one of the city's greatest appeals to new citizenship. In this day and time no thinking man and woman will consider residing in a community where their children will not have available the best in educational facilities. It is imperative, then, that we take steps to keep Lubbock's school system upon a par or over the par, of those of other cities. We need to make such arrangements to attract new people—and no one will deny that we also need to make them to safeguard the after-lives of our own children, already here.

Lubbock is growing rapidly. From present indications it will continue to grow rapidly. There is no man who can say authoritatively how large Lubbock will grow in the next year, five years or ten years. The only basis of computation which we have is that of the past five, six, eight or ten years. For this reason we must be careful—yet at the same time avoid being niggardly in our school expansion plans.

The Avalanche-Journal believes that if there were a new high school here and available for use tomorrow, and if needed additions were already constructed on the ward schools to which they are deemed essential, our problems along this line would not be solved for long. The last addition to our school system, in the way of additional building, came in 1926. Not quite three years have passed since that time yet already we are in decided need of more space and more equipment. The last three years have seen the most rapid growth in the history of the city and there is every reason to believe that all things being equal, the next three will write a similar story.

Citizens may just as well confront the facts now. The expansion needed in the city school system today is, as The Avalanche-Journal sees it, the first of a long line. We may as well resign ourselves to voting bonds for schools and other public necessities.

That is one of the prices we pay for residence in a hustling, growing city and the price we pay is not to high for the benefit which is eventually derived from it.

HOW WILL PRESIDENT HOOVER HARMONIZE MELLON AND PROHIBITION

To many people who have been looking on and observing some things there is a question mark rising before their eyes just at this time, and it is brought about by things that have happened recently in Washington. President Hoover in his inauguration kissed the Bible, and pointed his finger at the passage of scripture found in the book of Proverbs: "Where there is no vision the people perish, but that keepeth the law, happy is he."

This reads good. It sounds like good logic. It is a motto that might well be followed, but when we look down the pages of history, and know about what has happened in the past five or six years, and connect some of the men along with the events in history, we wonder how President Hoover could make such an appointment as Andrew Mellon, to the office of Secretary of Treasury, under whose care comes the enforcement of prohibition, and at the same time, expect that great headway will be made in the enforcement of prohibition.

Just how Mr. Hoover can harmonize the statement with the act, we do not know, and many others are wondering the same thing. However, President Hoover has been able to work out many problems that others believed would be impossible. But nature is hard to overcome some, and it is one of the laws of nature especially with the American people to use the soft pedal when it is something that concerns individual financial conditions. As Mr. Mellon is an alleged strong stockholder in the breweries of the nation, and the task has been given him, by virtue of his office to enforce regulations relative to the sale of his products, its seems utterly impractical for such to be done. Mr. Mellon may not, and we do not say that he does openly and above board close his eyes to the flagrant violations of the Volstead act, of the Eighteenth Amendment, but this past record of appointing men who are not in sympathy with such a law can very readily be looked upon as a blunder at least, as most men will not go very strongly in for the enforcement of a law that they are not in harmony with themselves.

We are of the opinion that with the present enforcement corps of officers in the federal enforcement body in charge that there will be very little favorable results, no matter who is president. We are quite sure that the prohibition laws of the United States can be much better enforced than they are, if the proper officers are put in charge. But we are going to have to be convinced by Mr. Hoover that his present combination will work out to the satisfaction of the makers and advocates of the present prohibition laws.

WOMEN'S NEW FEDERAL PRISON TO BE FUSSY ABOUT MEMBERS

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 9.—None but thoroughly respectable women will be admitted to the federal government's new prison for convicts of their sex, at Alderson, W. Va.

The membership there will also be strictly limited.

After the prescribed maximum of 500 guests—shall we call them?—has been reached, subsequent applicants will have to go on the Alderson waiting list, as less exclusive prisons.

The justice department has warned federal judges throughout the country to be mighty particular in nominating candidates for the select atmosphere at Alderson—to look them up in the Social Register or something. Not that the department suggests precisely that method of determining their qualifications, but in one way or another it must be made abundantly clear that they are perfect ladies.

Otherwise the departmental superintendent of prisons reserves the right to expel them. Or rather, as the official announcement more tactfully expresses it, they will be "transferred."

No applicant is eligible at Alderson for less than a year's entertainment.

"The Alderson (W. Va.) Industrial Institution for Women" is the official title of the new community the government is founding. "But it IS a prison," as explained at the justice department.

Dr. Mary B. Harris, a widely-known penologist, is in charge of it.

I have met Dr. Harris. A very earnest, kindly woman, reform is the whole purpose of her treatment of her charges. However, she has no disposition to waste her time in a vain attempt to reform incorrigibles.

Alderson is a wall-less prison of comfortable cottages, with a good school, a hospital, various industrial plants and facilities for training in all sorts of garden and farm work. Dr. Harris aims to make her captives competent home keepers, or otherwise self-supporting.

Probably it is as pleasant a place as a prison can be made, but obviously its inmates must be of an amenable type—or it could not hold them long.

According to information available at the justice department, a great many women of this type are doing time for federal law violations—"really nice women" as one of the department's prison officials expressed it to me, who nevertheless have made serious enough slips to land them behind penitentiary bars.

Which surprised me—really nice women in penitentiaries!

"More than formerly?" I asked.

"Oh, my! yes" said the official. "You see," he explained, 'we have so many more laws than we did."

'What do these nice women do," I inquired, "to be sentenced to the penitentiary?"

"Well," replied the official, 'there are the women bootleggers.

"There are also the women violators of the anti-narcotic laws.

"These make up about 90 per cent of all the federal government's women prisoners.

"The occasional woman convicted of counterfeiting, or as a professional smuggler or for white slavery is likelier to be an irreclaimable criminal—not so respectable.

"But many a woman bootlegger is ideal for Alderson."

CRAVING TO EAT FOOD NOT IN DIET INDICATES MINERAL STARVATION

Perversion of Appetite

I crave block magnesia and could eat a 5 - cent block a day. It seems to relieve gas in my stomach and satisfy a longing for chalky substance. I am a woman past 40 and have grown children. "MRS. R."

The craving to eat things that are not a normal part of the diet is known as pica. It may be a habit, but frequently it shows a mineral starvation. This has been proved in animals. For instance, African cattle sometimes develop a pica known as osteophagia; they will eat dry wood, old bones, stones and even gnaw each other's horns. It was noticed that the animals never contracted osteophagia when the pastures were good, and experimentally it was proved that the disease was due to a mineral deficiency and could be cured by feeding the animals in such a way that the deficiency was made up.

The fact that you suffer from gas may show that your diet is wrong, Mrs. R., and if it is, you probably have a mineral deficiency. If you will send for the article on Balanced Diet, it will help you. Have you had a physical check-up?

"I've read in a paper recently—I've forgotten who is the authority—that bobbing the hair will cause it to grow more and more around the neck until it reaches the chin and causes a beard. I am somewhat worried, for my hair always grew low on my neck, and now it is growing even lower, and it has been bobbed only two years and I dread to have it grow longer. What is your idea? "MISS H."

My idea, Miss H., is that of all the nonsense written about bobbed hair, this has the most non. If you have had your neck shaved, the hair growing there has probably been stimulated. Shaving, or even clipping the neck, is not a good practice. The best barbers in New York simply use the scissors.

It is absurd to think that cutting the hair on the neck will stimulate the hair follicles on the face. I've been bobbed many years, and most of my friends are bobbed, but not any of us are growing beards.

We have an article on the Care of the Hair and Scalp which you may have.

"I used to look like an anemia afflicted, water-soaked rat, but now, due to Petersizing, look like a he-man! I have gained from 130 to 195 pounds—65 pounds. Am I not your prize winner for gainers? My flesh is solid and distributed evenly. I eat heavily of potatoes and bread, and consume lots of milk daily. Am 20 years old and live on a farm, so get plenty of outdoor exercise. But this weight won't affect my heart or produce organic trouble, will it? "P."

You did not say what your height is, so I don't know what your normal weight should be, P. For 195 pounds you would have to be around 6 feet 3 or 4 inches tall, so I imagine you overdid your Petersizing a little. You'll have to reverse the process now and reduce a bit.

Cut the milk down to two glasses a day, and then, if necessary, limit your bread and butter and sweets.

Yes, if you are overweight, it may eventually affect your heart, and you might get diabetes, or kidney trouble, or lots of other troubles.

Those who need instructions on how to gain or lose may have our pamphlet on the subject by following column rules.

"To Him Who in the Love of Nature Holds Communion"

SO THINK WE

We think there will be political storms, never before heard of in Texas in 1930 if the political bill passed in the recent session of the Texas legislature becomes a law, allowing the party leaders to say who shall, and who shall not participate in the Democratic elections of the state. It will mean the death of the Democratic party in the Lone Star States if such a law is allowed to go on the statute books.

—o—

We think with the development of the oil fields to the southwest of Lubbock will become the natural center for the big oil companies, and it behooves the business men of Lubbock to see that there are accommodations for them when they come. There will, we are quite sure, be a demand for a large office building, within the next few months. Will Lubbock be ready for them

—o—

We think if you have not contributed your part toward the Boy Scout campaign you should at once do so. It is a very worthy cause. It is much cheaper to provide educational recreation for the boys of the community, than it is to prosecute them after they have indulged in some criminal act, and have gotten into the jails and courts of the county. We believe that the people of this city could not invest their money in anything more beneficial to the community, than to help the boys work.

—o—

We think that Governor Moody's blue pencil took a pretty heavy swipe across the emergency bill, but it missed the summer schools items in toto, and will not effect the operation of the summer school at the Tech. However it will probably hinder the progress of some needed improvements in some of the institutions. The governor does not believe in heaping up a big deficiency on the state, and this is probably a wise thing. The members of the Texas Legislature should devise some way however, of raising the money to meet the demands of these institutions, and we are sure that the governor will give his consent, by signing the same.

—o—

We think it is a very sad condition of affairs when mothers must surrender their sons to the police department to be grilled under investigation for crime, but so long as boys gang in the down-town section of the city, and are allowed to ramble about the city in that way till a late hour of night this will be the condition that will confront some parents and some children. It is a very unwise thing for boys of tender age to be allowed the privilege of running about over the city at night, and there should be a limit placed on their time in the down-town districts.

We think those who are raising such a fight against the Eighteenth Amendment, and are claiming that the churches are to blame for the issue being in politics, merely wish to throw the people of the nation off their guard. If it is political and party fuss the enemies of the measure are to blame for it. The church is in favor of the amendment all right, and it would be an untrue follower of the Lord Jesus Christ that would not be for the liquor traffic is an enemy to the home, and to the manhood and womanhood of the land, and it being part of the mission—fact its mission to save men and women from sin and ruin. They cannot afford to be otherwise.

We think that the people of Lubbock cannot afford to let the Scout campaign end without reaching the goal. $10,000 is needed so the leaders say, and we are confidently that it could be easily raised if the people were really in earnest about the real needs of proper training of the boys of the community. When it has been publicly stated by the police judge that never during his term of office he has had a Boy Scout before him we believe this should be strong recommendation of the work being done by the Scout leaders, and any man or woman should be willing to contribute to a cause that will bring this condition about. Out of the 20,000 people in Lubbock it seems that it should be a very easy matter to raise a fund of $10,000 to help to carry on the work. It means better citizenship, which is the keystone that holds the building of character together among the boys of our town.

EXPERIMENTING

"We are still in the experimental stage of Christianity. We have been trying for only 2,000 years. Many of us, individually and nationally, have made a mess of it, but that is no reason why we should not start again."

There is something to think about in these words of the premier of England, Stanley Baldwin. One is reminded of the statement of another able Englishman, Gilbert Chesterton. Said Chesterton: "Let us not say that 'Christianity has been tried and found wanting.' Let us say that it has been tried and found difficult, and not tried again."

TRYING THINGS

What has been said of Christianity might, in a lesser sense, be said of prohibition. By thousands it never has been tried. Thousands have not attempted to make the experiment. It might prove a good idea.

BROADCASTING

Broadcasting the inaugural ceremonies in Washington put radio to a splendid use. The cold indifference of the American people to public affairs is changing to warm interest. There are two outstanding reasons. First, the improved news service facilities of modern newspapers, with the speed of transmission of both news and photographs, is doing wonders in keeping more and more people informed of the doings in their democracy. Second, the radio is being graduated out of the entertaining novelty class into a great education institution. A third cause of the lessened indifference is the use by the motion picture houses of better and better news reels.

A TIME FOR PRIVACY

Probably Colonel Lindbergh does not appreciate the interest of the world in his romance. It's rather tragical for a man to be too popular.

Leadership is not true leadership without staying powers. The hardest thing for a radical to do is to hold his job when he gets it. The man who leads at the top of his voice, waving a red flag, usually falls off the platform. See Trotsky.

LONDON LETTER

RIVERA BUILDS UP SPAIN'S NAVAL FIGHTING POWER

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

LONDON, March 9—What's in the mind of General Primo de Rivera, rounder and bon viveur, who has been dictator of Spain for the last three or four years?

The naval intelligence departments of Great Britain, Italy and France would give a good deal to know. For Rivera is making a tremendous bid to erect Spain into a formidable naval power.

At whom is he aiming his guns? Rivera's answer would probably be—at nobody. He would probably smile blandly and say Spain is arming itself purely for defensive purposes.

On form, Spain is, of all considerable powers in Europe, the one that is safest from attack. In all European squabbles she seems a natural neutral. But Spain faces on three great bodies of water—the Bay of Biscay, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. And while Spain is preparing to build a modern navy of fast cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and submarines, she is also constructing three of the strongest naval bases in the world.

One of these is at Ferrol in the province of Galicia at the northwest corner of Spain; one is at Cartagena, at the southeast corner, and one at Mahon, in the island of Minorca, one of the group of the Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean to the east of Spain.

Strategic Positions

It happens that a fast fleet of fast vessels using these harbors could dominate some of the most important ship routes in the world A great part of England's sea-borne trade goes through the Bay of Biscay.

A very large part of France's sea-borne commerce uses the Mediterranean, sailing from Marseilles. In war, France would get native troops and supplies fro mher African possessions. The ships would sail from Marseilles to Algiers and other African ports.

Again, the port of Mahon is a dagger pointed right straight at Sardinia, Sicily and Italy.

England has been the traditional friend of Spain since the Napoleonic wars. France and Spain were recently partners against the Riffs in Morocco. Italy, through Mussolini, has been conducting a violent flirtation with Spain, the Duce's idea being for Spain and Italy to link up in case of trouble with France. But the Duce did not succeed, because he helped block Spain's desire to make of Tangier a purely Spanish possion.

Harbors Well Closed

Now the significance of Ferrol, Cartagena and Mahon is that each is a port lying on a deep fjordlike bay. The entrance to each is fairly narrow, but inside there are hill-protected harbors capable of holding great fleets. Ferrol is being turned into a very strongly fortified place.

Cartagena and Mahon also are to have heavy armament. As harbors for the Spanish navy they are to be impregnable.

While this work is being done, Spain is also making every effort to make herself independent of foreign ship building concerns. She has some of the finest iron ore in the world. She is already building some of her own vessels. At Cadiz she is manufacturing torpedoes and she will soon have a plant for the building of submarines.

What this country needs more than anything else right now is a foolproof prosperity. — Louisville Times.

THE BLACK PIGEON

©1929 By NEA Service, Inc. by ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED

"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, promoter of dubious stock companies, is murdered some time between half-past one and four o'clock on Saturday. His body is found sprawled on the floor of his private office Monday morning by his pretty secretary, RUTH LESTER. Ruth is engaged to JACK HAYWARD, whose office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

Ruth runs to Jack's ofice to tell him of the tragedy and, finding him out, searches for his pistol, which he had purchased at the same time he had bought an identical weapon for her to keep in her desk. His gun is gone! Ruth then recalls his incriminating behavior of the past Saturday and his angry threat against Borden.

Jack comes in and accompanies Ruth back to Borden's suite. While he phones for the police, Ruth, fearing Jack shot Borden across the airshaft, hurries into the private office to close the window. She gasps with relief, for it is already closed! Ruth tells DETECTIVE McMANN of Borden's two Saturday morning visitors: RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, and MRS. BORDEN, his wife and mother of his two children, who called for her monthly alimony check. Mrs. Borden comes in during the questioning and McMann mercilessly accuses her of the murder. She says she left Borden alive and saw only one person near his office: MINNIE CASSIDY, the scrub woman.

NIELSON, medical examiner, arrives. When search is started for a weapon, Ruth tells of the pistol in her desk. McMann looks for it but it, too, is gone. While McMann is questioning MICKY MORAN, elevator operator, a black pigeon flies plump against the window pane. McMann looks out the window and his ejacuation of surprise startles his listeners.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Dr. Nielson, with his little black bag of instruments, and Ferber, the fingerprint expert, with his camera, were crowding the detective at the window as McMann pushed up the sash. Ruth, still not knowing what had caused the detective's jubilant excitement, stepped forward slowly, a cold, little hand dragging at Jack Hayward.

"Look, doctor! What would you say that is—and that—and that?" McMann pointed from spot to spot on the white stone ledge of the window which opened upon the airshaft.

Nielson smiled his diffident wintry smile. "I'd say, unofficially, that it is blood, my dear Sherlock, but only a laboratory test—"

McMann barked out a laugh. "And what would you say made those peculiarly shaped blood spots, Ferber? You don't have to be so confoundedly cautious in your opinions. Look!"

"I'd say they are the footprints of a pigeon, made in blood," Ferber answered, awe in his voice. "Now—how the deuce, if the window was closed—?"

McMann drew in his head and dropped to his knees, going over every inch of the strip of bare floor which bordered the rug, from the farthest corner of the room to where the stiff, crumpled body of Harry Borden lay. A sharply triumphant explanation announced discovery.

"Look, Ferber—Nielson! The same identical tracks—two of 'em, between the body and the window! Three-pronged tracks, as clear as the nose on Doc's face! Funny I didn't notice them before, but naturally I was working on the theory that the window was closed when Borden was shot. Let's see the fingerprints you got off this window, Ferber. If I'm half the Sherlock that Nielson is so fond of calling me, those fingerprints will be as good as a picture of the man or woman who put a bullet through Borden's heart. Right, Ferber?"

"You might be if there were any fingerprints," Ferber grinned. "It happens that the window has been wiped clean. I'm afraid Borden's murderer was a little too clever to leave a calling card, McMann."

McMann scowled. "He—or she—may not have left a calling card, but the pigeon did. Nice, obliging, bird, that black pigeon!"

It was then that Ruth Lester renamed "Satan." In horror and fear she christened him Nemesis.

"I'm afraid my stodgy, scientific mind fails to follow your brilliant deductions, McMann," Dr. Nielson gibed mildly. "I'll play Watson to your Sherlock. Just what do these alleged footprints of a pigeon in blood tell you, my dear Holmes?"

McMann flushed with resentment at the doctor's mild raillery, but decided to answer.

"I should think it is obvious, doc, even to a stodgy, scientific mind. This window was open before and after the murder, and possibly while it was being committed. Certainly it was open afterwards, or the pigeon could not have flown into the room and walked about in Borden's blood. Also, Borden's body was alone in the room when the pigeon entered, unless—by George!"

"Please don't go mysterious on me, Sherlock," Dr. Nielson begged. "I assure you I'm all agog. Unless—what?"

"Unless," McMann explained impressively, "the room was occupied by someone the pigeon was not afraid of—to whom it was accustomed!"

On the last portentous word, the detective swung about so that he was facing Ruth Lester, who involuntarily cried out, as if he had accused her then and there of the murder.

Jack Hayward flung a protecting arm about the shoulders of the trembling girl. "McMann, I resent the insinuation you have made against Miss Lester! I—"

"Please, Jack!" Ruth begged, in a panic of fear as to what his next words migh be. She turned to McMan then, her pale face lifted bravely to meet any verbal blows he might give her. "The pigeons are accustomed to no one but me, Mr. [illegible] in this room when Mr. Borden was shot, or afterwards, until I found him this morning."

"In the next office, perhaps, with the door open?" McMann shot at her."

"No!" She was trembling no longer, and almost glad that his suspicions were directed against her, rather than against Jack Hayward. She knew she was innocent. . . .

"Gees!" an awed voice broke the tension.

McMann swerved instantly to the red headed elevator operator, who was regarding Ruth with a curious mixture of awe, admiration and fear.

"All right, Moran! Snap out of it! You've got to do a lot of plain and fancy remembering, my lad, if you don't want to spend a night in all to refresh your memory," McMann snapped at the instantly terrified boy. "First, I want you to give me the name of every person who used your elevator after one ocl'ock Saturday."

Micky Moran rumpled his red hair in despair. "Gees! 'At's gonna be a big order, boss. Nearly every tenant and steno on this side of the building beat it at one o'clock. Car was jammed, boss, for two or three trips."

"Give me as many names as you can," McMann ordered, seating himself at Borden's desk, to make notes. "Wait a minute! . . . You're getting samples of blood from those pigeon footprints outside and inside, aren't you doc? And Ferber, you'd better photograph 'em before the doc scrapes 'em up . . . Now, Moran—"

The boy drew a deep breath and then rattled off a dozen names, which McMann listed, with the number of the office to which each belonged. "Now, Moran, when did Miss Lester leave? With the others at one o'clock?"

The boy shot an apologetic glance at the girl who was waiting, breath drawn in, hands tightly locked over Jack Hayward's right arm. "No, she didn't get off till the rush was over. Musta been about a quarter past one. Mr. Hayward was waitin' for her at the elevator. He usually goes down in Otto's car, on the other side, but when he's got a date with Miss Lester—"

"All right, Moran," McMann interrupted. "Mr. Hayward was waiting for her and they got in the elevator about 1:15—"

"One-twenty," Ruth corrected. "I had looked at my watch several times, as I knew I was keeping Mr Hayward waiting. Mr. Borden had to sign some letters before I could leave, and Mr. Adams stayed until after one."

"All right — 1:20." McMann accepted the correction and made a note of the time. "Anything unusual happen as the couple went down in your elevator, Moran? Did Miss Lester or Mr. Hayward seem upset or worried, or anything out of the ordinary?"

Micky considered. Then his face lighted up. "Gees! Guess I did most of the talkin', boss. I just couldn't get over how different Miss Lester looked, and I kept tellin' her so—"

"Different?" McMann pounced. "Was she crying, or pale?"

"Gees, no! She was lookin' swell! If I hadn't seen her when she went out on an errand in the middle of the morning, and spoke to me so's I'd recognize her, I'd never a-knowed her, honest! Like I told her, she looked like a movie star, only sweller. And I said to Mr. Hayward I had to hand it to him—he could pick a winner that anybody else woulda passed up."

McMann knit his brows in a puzzled frown. "I'm afraid I can't see why anyone would have—'passed up' Miss Lester, Moran. What do you mean?"

The elevator operator chuckled. "If you'd a-seen her Friday or any day before that, boss! Hair all slicked back tight so's her ears showed, and great big yellow spectacles over them swell blue lamps of hers, and old-fashioned clothes that loked like they come from the Salvation Army. Guess she was disguised so's 'Handsome Harry' wouldn't make no passes at her."

"I see!" McMann commented dryly, his narrowed eyes flicking from Ruth to the angry, tight-lipped man to whom she was engaged. "And this amazing transformation had taken place for the first time on Saturday, Moran?"

"It wasn't no transformation. It's her own hair. Any guy with half an eye could see that! She'd just had it slicked back tight till Saturday," Micky corrected indignantly.

McMann had been answered. In the utter stillness of the room the tap-tapping of the detective's pencil upon the edge of the dead man's desk sounded as loud as hammer

Your Income Tax

Taxes on personal property and real estate paid during the taxable year 1928 are deductible. The revenue act of 1928 permits the deduction of taxes assessed against local benefits, such as, for example, taxes imposed by drainage or irrigation districts, to the extent that such taxes are properly allocable to maintenance and interest charges. The deduction of estate and inheritance taxes is confined to the estate. Retroactive provisions pertaining to deductions of estate and inheritance taxes also are found in the new revenue act.

The Federal income tax may not be deducted. However, income taxes imposed upon the income of individuals by States may be deducted by an individual on his Federal income tax return.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductable. Admission taxes are deductible, but the taxpayer must show that account has been kept of the amount paid during the year. Guesswork will not be accepted.

They Enjoy "Working Behind Bars"

Lubbock Bank Clerks, Always Alert, Attached To Tasks In Which Large Sums Are 'Just So Much Paper'

Working behind bars may mean a penitentiary to some persons but to bank tellers it develops into a fascination so profound that once they become engaged in the banking business they are never satisfied with anything else.

Working day after day at the same tasks, handling thousands and tens of thousands of dollars, the tellers develop into a machine-like automaton dealing with so many pieces of paper. Yet in spite of the monotony, drudgery and tremendous strain, the work is not without its appeal and when they quit., they always—or at least, want to—come back.

The Job's No Snap.

Since banking hours are from 9 until 3, many have the perverted idea that a bank job is a snap; that an employe of a banking institution has little to do, but an investigation into the duties will show that nothing could be less true. A bank teller must be constantly on the alert. He must watch for bogus bills, forgeries, short change artists, and trickery of every known description.

Have To Be Careful.

With thousands of names on the deposit lists and with sometimes as much as $50,000 passing through his hands in a single day, a teller is steeped with responsibilities. He must watch and check signatures, dates, amounts, balances and endorsements. They become so accustomed to judging signatures that they can usually judge a forgery by its strained appearance. Signatures are judged by the slant, movement, appearance, and formation of each letter. When there is the slightest irregularity in a signature it is checked up. Sometimes a signature made by a drunk person or one in a hurry is taken for a forgery and not accepted, but such cases are rare.

Recently a man appeared at a local bank with a forged check. Noticing an irregularity in the signature, the teller went to check it with his files. When he returned the man who gave the check had disappeared. Getting an "OK" on a small check from a bank official and then copying the "OK" on a larger one is another thing that cashiers must watch out for. Drawing a bank balance twice from different tellers is another form of trickery that used to work to advantage but which has been curbed recently.

Mistakes Sometimes Made

Local bank tellers report that they are given from $1 to $100 too much each day by unsuspecting depositors. The necessity of correcting the mistakes put them at a disadvantage because they estimate that nine of every ten customers given too much money will not return it.

The chief complaint of many tellers is that they do not have sufficient time to devote and become acquainted with each customer. "An account we enjoy is one that we can always depend on and not have to look up the balance every time we cash a check," they will tell you. "And if you want to make us tellers real happy, just fill out your deposits every time, enumerate the checks in order, stack and wrap the silver, and arrange the currency in order."

Another thing that tellers have to compete with is indignant strangers who cannot understand why the bank will not cash their check. They are well known back home, they will contend, and will assure you that the check is good. Still the bank cannot afford the risk unless the stranger can be identified.

blows. Then suddenly McMann spoke, and his words were directed to Ruth Lester:

"Twice this morning you've used the phrase, 'until the day of his death.' Borden, you said twice had been a considerate employer—'until the day of his death.' But—what about the day of his death, Miss Lester?"

Every vestige of color left Ruth's cheeks and lips, but her blue eyes were steady as she answered: "I meant, of course, until and including the day of his death."

McMann rose slowly from the desk and strolled toward the girl, towering over her as he summed up: "You feared the effect of your beauty on a man like 'Handsome Harry' Borden. You wore a sort of disguise to keep him from wanting you. Saturday, happy in your engagement to Mr. Hayward, you left off your disguise of homeliness and let Borden see what he'd been missing. He made love to you, just as Mr. Hayward had feared he would."

"Mr. Hayward!" Ruth repeated indignantly. "He himself didn't know I was any prettier than I seemed until Friday night after we became engaged. It never occurred to him that Mr. Borden—"

"But he gave you an automatic pistol to protect yourself against a man who was notorious where women were concerned," McMann interrupted sharply. "And Saturday, when Borden saw you as you really are, you were glad you had that means of protecting yourself, wern't you, Miss Lester?"

"Gees!" Again Micky Moran's awed exclamation shattered a moment of intolerable suspense. "You didn't shoot him when you come back, did you, Miss Lester? . . . Gees! A little frail like that, and a big guy like him!" And Micky's wholly admiring eyes popped from Ruth to Borden's body and back.

"When she came back?" McMann repeated triumphantly. "Suppose you tell me all about Miss Lester's return to the office, Moran."

Ruth's blue eyes were so piteous with fear and frantic appeal that the elevator operator flushed and stammered as he began his story. But Ruth's terror was not for herself. . . .

It is Ruth who comes under McMann's suspicion now. Who will be next?

Thousands Yearly Seek Fame By Radio Appearance

National Network Tests 20,000 Each Year; Few Stay

Whole World Of Talent Is Flocking Now For Fame And Fortune Via Broadcasting Medium

By NEA Service

NEW YORK, March 9.—The whole world of talent is flocking to the broadcasting studios in search of fame and fortune.

When one organization alone, the National Broadcasting Company, reports that it holds nearly 20,000 auditions a year for would be radio performers, some conception can be gained of the lure of the microphone.

Singers and musicians come in droves. Actors are turning their footsteps from Broadway toward this new Mecca. Women bring their pet parrots and talking dogs. Mothers arrive with youngsters scarcely graduated from the bottle, who they are sure will be sensations at broadcasting.

Authors come with their brain children fresh off the presses. They, together with explorers, phychologists, college professors and the like, all want to talk over the air on their favorite subjects.

Some are lured by fables of fortunes to be made by the simple expedient of facing a microphone. Others are eager for the fame that comes with making their names known to millions. A few are just altruistically moved to pass on their thoughts to a listening public.

"We cannot use all of the thousands of applicants on our programs," says George Engles, managing director of the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau. "However, we arrange auditions for nearly everyone who applies. One never knows when a person with really rare talent will crop up among hundreds of mediocre ones.

"Some sifting process is indispensible, and that takes place in the audition rooms. It goes almost without saying that one has to sift through vast quantities of chaff to find a few grains of wheat.

"Our applicants come from every state, from nearly every European country, Asia, Australia, the Philippines, South America. Often they make special trips just for an audition. I have known people to travel as far as New Orleans just for this one purpose."

Singers come in greatest abundance, Engles reveals. Nearly 200 of them, mostly sopranos, are heard every week. If out of that number one really good radio voice is found, the audition committee considers itself lucky. However, perhaps five out of the 200 are sufficiently talented to make at least one minor microphone appearance.

As for getting rich singing over the air, Engles does not offer much encouragement.

"Our file of singers who are considered of sufficiently high caliber to be called on for almost any need includes some 500 names. With so many available, no one person can appear with any great frequency, unless he is engaged for a commercial hour. Commercial contracts, of course, pay well."

Auditions at the National Broadcasting Company studios are by no means limited to singing and instrumentalists.

"We also try out many actors, with ambitions to give character sketches over the air," Engles continues. "About 100 of them have auditions each week. For the most part they represent excellent talent. They may be temporarily out of a Broadway engagement or filling in spare time between legitimate appearances. There is considerable demand for their services on commercial hours and they are well paid.

"Only professional actors are used for this sort of work because they are adaptable to any situation and not afraid of the microphone. Also they do not need much coaching or rehearsal.

"There are many child performers—in fact we have a special audition department for them. The Sunday morning children's hour utilizes from 20 to 40 each week. Scores of mothers who have heard the performances of other children over the air bring their own young hopefuls to the studios. The age of these children ranges from 3 to 14.

"Child radio performers have to be of high caliber. Also they must be relied on not to indulge in juvenile temperament or stage-fright at a crucial moment. For the most part however, children are less self-conscious before the microphone than adults.

"One other group that comes for auditions includes speakers and lecturers. They represent nearly every profession and occupation. Writers come moved by a desire to air the contents of their newly published works.

"Then, to, there are many women who have finished the job of raising their families and have a great deal of spare time on their hands. They see no reason why they should not spend part of their time talking on the radio, reciting poems or giving helpful hints about housekeeping. Most of them have to be rejected.

"However, the opportunities for really able speakers are good. Radio utilizes speakers on many subjects—health, cooking, fashion, books, recreation, sports, medicine, law. But since the finest representatives of these subjects are usually available, the opportunities for those of lesser capabilities are small.

"The cream of the musical talent is represented by the artists placed under contract. The National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau, organized about a year ago, has over 200 of these first rank radio artists under its exclusive management, both for radio and concert appearances.

"In the light of the thousands of musicians who come through our doors this little group looks exceedingly small. It tells better than anything else the tale of what happens to those who come to the broadcasting studios looking for an easy road to wealth or a career.

Thousands Try Out For Radio—Few Stick

The chief duty of George Engles, director of the NBC concert bureau in New York, is to give auditions to the thousands wanting to be heard over the air. Here he is shown testing the voice of June Caldwell, while at right are two artists who have successfully run the gauntlet of auditions—Jessica Dragonette, soprano, and Arcadie Birkenholz, violinist of the NBC system.

Common Carrier Wave May Solve Chain Problems

New Method Is Suggested To Solve Interference Arising From Large Number Of U. S. Stations

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

When two different voices sing together, a single tone differing from either original voice reaches the ear.

It is this effect in sound that is being suggested for application to radio as a means to solve the problem existing among the 600 odd stations in the United States. Instead of human voices, there can be two transmitters of differing pitch or frequency combined to generate a third pitch or frequency that would be more generally applicable to network broadcasting than the individual frequencies now employed.

The method has been suggested to the federal radio commission. In fact, proponents of the plan have formed the Continental Broadcashting company of New York and have applied for the two wave lengths necessary to form the third they want to use for national network broadcasting.

Experimental transmitters are being put up in Virginia. If these experiments are successful and the commission's engineers approve, permanent towers and apparatus will be constructed in some central location—St. Joseph, Mo., is mentioned—from which powerful waves, resulting from two frequencies, will penetrate throughout the United States.

How Two Make One!

The production of a new frequency or wavelength from two totally different frequencies has been well understood by radio engineers. Heretofore it has been a source of disturbance in the reception of broadcast programs.

Two stations may have been alloted the same wavelength or frequency. But if one of these happens to be slightly off its frequency, say a half kilocycle or so, a receiver situated in a position to hear both stations would pick up what is termed a heterodyne whistle between the two transmitted frequencies.

Engineers call this a "beat frequency," the result of two different frequencies beating against each other in the receiver. Instead of causing this accidentally it will be produced intentionally so that the local broadcasters may tune in on it and use it as the "carrier" for their broadcasting.

Two transmitters would be erected. From one will go a frequency of 7000 kilocycles, which is outside the broadcasting range. From the other will go one of 7900 kilocycles, also out of the broadcasting range.

High Power Intended

The "beat frequency" of these will be 900 kilocycles, which is equal to 333.1 meters, well within the broadcasting channel. This frequency, spreading over the country and beyond under a power of 50,000 watts, will be caught by those broadcasters having the special radio receiver designed for this purpose.

In broadcasting there is a "carrier wave" upon which is impressed the sound waves resulting from the broadcast programs in the studio. These sound waves "modulate," or change the form of the carrier to form a single broadcast wave. Upon its reception in the home the sound wave can again be detached from its carrier, amplification and reproduced in the form which enables us to hear what is being produced in the broadcasting studio.

Mrs. Gladys Harris of Nelson county, Va., has a 17 year old hen which has raised two broods of chickens every year since she was one year old. Except for failing eyesight, the aged fowl still is going strong.

Gossiping or loafing on the beat is forbidden police of Winchester, Va., by new regulations.

Powerful Radio In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, Mar. 9. (AP)—Said to be the second most powerful transmitter in the British empire, South Africa's new broadcasting station is in operation here.

The night range of this station, it is stated, will cover the whole of the union and Rhodesia, and under favorable condition should span the 5,000 miles betwen Johannesburg and London.

With the opening of this station, listeners at Bloomfontein, Kimberly and in remote towns and farms will be able to hear the Johannesburg programs.

'Mike' Carried To Senate Seats

TOPEKA, Kan. Mar. 9 (AP).—Joe Nickell, announcer for WIBW, now plays errand boy for broadcasting Kansas legislators.

When WIBW arranged to broadcast debates in the state senate, a microphone was attached to a wire long enough to carry it to all corners of the chamber.

"Big Nik's" new job then was to carry the "mike" to each senator as he arose to argue proposed legislation.

Bonus To Stork Costly To KFNF

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, Mar. 9 (AP)—Henry Field did not expect the stork to make such a rendezvous of his feed house and radio station, KFNF, when he offered to give $50 to each child born to his employes during 1928.

Fifteen babies were born, and Field's bank roll was reduced $750. He calls it a "fine investment."

Visitor Sees Big Future For South Plains Territory

And Peek Into Offices Of Lubbock Architects Will Bear Out Statement Made By Ed Overholser

"As solid as the Rock of Gibraltar" is the expression used by Ed Overholser, president of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, who visited here last week, in speaking of the growth and future of this section. Proof of his statement may be seen daily throughout every portion of the South Plains.

Further proof of his statement may be found in pecking into the various architects' offices in Lubbock. They're busy with plans for a vast spring building campaign in Lubbock and the South Plains. Not only the South Plains but the Panhandle and North Plains and the lower portion of West Texas are included in the building programs.

Two Offices Rumored.

Rumors are afloat concerning many projects in the section, especially in the city of Lubbock. Two reports, one of them authentic, is interesting to note, give the early construction of two office buildings above eight stories.

Peters, Bradshaw and Strange, architects of this city, are apparently as busy as any in West Texas with building plans. Their offices appear busy as a beehive, upon each visit to them.

Included in their work for the coming months is the construction of the new twelve-story addition to the Crawford Hotel at Big Spring.

A. J. Crawford, the owner, was in Lubbock this week approving the plans and making arrangements for letting the contract. The new unit addition to the present 7-story hostelry will cost approximately $350,000. It is to be of Spanish type architecture.

On School Plans.

Work on plans for Lubbock's proposed new high school building and ward school buildings will be the task of the architects for the coming few weeks. The plans were ordered by the school board during the past week.

Contract for the new $30,000 high school at Stanton, under the direction of the architects, has been let to H. H. Shell, of this city.

Contract for a new $90,000 high school building at Silverton, the plans of which were drawn here, will be awarded by the firm during the next few days.

Floydada's new $40,000 theatre building contract has been let by the firm.

Plans for numerous other building projects over the territory are being formulated, it is said, paving the way for one of the largest building programs ever experienced by any section of the state.

Convict's Static Eliminator May Be Long Sought Cure

Fifteen-year Prisoner In Nefraska Prison Cell Develops Device Claimed A Success

LINCOLN, Neb., Mar. 9.—World famous radio engineers have tried since the birth of broadcasting to invent a device to eliminate static, the cause of gray hairs in many a fan's head.

But if the patent of Louis Clernt works as he says it does, the credit for the invention of a static eliminator will go to a convict serving 15 years in the state penitentiary here.

Clernt, 52, is an expert mechanic. While serving seven years of his sentence he perfected his invention. With him worked Warden W. T. Fenton and W. V. Mathews, former Omaha banker, who was recently released from the prison after serving six years for bank embezzlement.

Although a patent has been applied for, very little is known of Clernt's machine. The principle of the device, however, is that it catches static and discharges it before it reaches the loud speaker. It can be made to sell for one dollar.

Clernt has already received offers of attractive sums for the rights to his device, but he has turned them down.

He is eligible for parole in June, and if he goes into business manufacturing his invention, he says he will take with him his prison mate, Mathews, and Warden Fenton.

Clernt has a wife and five children in Cleveland.

"I things work out all right," he says, "I'll see that they never touch a hand to work again."

WORK ON SPUR HOTEL

SPUR, March 9—The foundation is laid and the brick work on the new hotel on east Harris street will begin at once. This will make the sixth hotel for Spur, and will be an addition that is much needed.

ON THE AIR

Radio entertainment changes with the taste of fans for different programs. A short while ago the oldtime dance tunes were all the rage. Revived by Henry Ford, this type of music could be heard from almost every station. The craze evidently was a passing fancy, however, for this music comes from very few stations nowadays. A few of them are WLW, Cincinnati, WBZ, Springfield, Mass., WSB, Atlanta, WLS, Chicago, WTAM, Cleveland, and KFNF, Shenandoah, Iowa.

College graduates seem to make up the majority of the announcing staff of WGY, Schenectady. A college course in which he "majored" in English literature, journalism and dramatics, fits James S. Wallington, that station's recent addition, for his job as announcer. Then too, Wallington's rich baritone helps him considerably. He was active in his school's glee club and quartet and sang with the Rochester American Opera Company. Along with announcing, James S. prepares continuity for important programs.

Hollinshead

Redferne Hollinshead, in addition to being an extraordinary name, is attached to a person with an extraordinary tenor voice. Hollinshead, heard as the Majestic's tenor in the Majestic theater program broadcasted over the Columbia Broadcasting System every Sunday night, isn't new to the radio audience. He sang from a number of stations before being signed up to star in the Majestic program.

Recent additions to various studio staffs are: Clifton Howell and Martin Zolle, announcers, at KFI, Los Angeles; Mme. Alyce Des Roches, French teacher, at WLW, Cincinnati; Jane Burbie, story teller at NBC, New York studios; Gordon Onstad, tenor, at ABC Pacific studios, and Madonna M. Todd, NBC Pacific division at San Francis

SPUR PLANT READY

Municipal Power Establishment Complete

SPUR, March 9—Spur's municipal light plant building will soon be completed, machinery is already on the grounds ready for installation, and the city commission has been assured that the plant can begin serving the city with power and light not later than May first. Fifty additional street lights will be added to those already established, and it is through the advantage of having its own power that the water rates are to be reduced giving a minimum of 3000 gallons for $1.50, with a reasonable low rate for any excess. With the completion of three new wells the supply of water will be far in excess of what is needed.

Station On Air But It's Missing

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan. Mar. 9 (AP)—Where is Arkansas City's broadcasting station?

It is a mystery to radio listeners here and in neighboring towns. They repeatedly have insisted they hear a station announcing its location as Arkansas City, but they cannot discover its whereabouts.

One fan wrote that he heard a program of whistling from the station three mornings in succession. Many believe the station owner has no license and seeks to avoid publicity.

LINEN CONTEST

Unique Competition For Dickens Women

SPUR, March 9—The home demonstration club women of Dickens county plan to have a linen contest March 22. At that time they intend to have a full day's program including luncheon for the business people of Spur. Mrs. Bernice Clayton, home improvement specialist from A. and M. college, and Miss Myrtle Murry, district agent, will be the judges of the show. Miss Jennie Osborne, county home demonstration agent of Dickens county has the assurance that the linen contest will be worth the time of every one who can possibly arrange to see the display.

Jews are said to be practically immune to tuberculosis, owing to racial immunity, more care about food, greater sobriety and care in childhood.

25,000 Employes In Buick Factory

FLINT, Mich., March 9. — The Buick Motor company is generally regarded as an institution peculiarly Flint's own, since it employs something in the neighborhood of 25,000 workers in its vast factory here,—a figure which substantiates the frequently-heard statement that Buick is a sizable city itself. However, examination of figures relating to Buick's field personnel indicate that there is a second Buick city of even greater population, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and depending upon Buick for its bread and butter just as directly as the factory personnel does.

This second Buick city is composed of the nationwide Buick sales and service organization, which embraces more than 4,000 dealers. These dealers employ some 10,000 salesmen, and 16,000 service workers, office employes and others, bringing the field personnel to a minimum of 30,000 persons.

TAKE MEETING TO ROTARIAN

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP)—When W. O. Maentz was in a hospital brother Rotarians, to preserve his perfect attendance record, held their weekly meeting in his room.

Many a Roman aqueduct still stands, after 2,000 years, the epitome of strength and beauty. That same charm of line and trustworthiness of construction are reflected in the "arched-window" silhouette of the Chrysler today.

CHRYSLER "75" Royal Sedan, $2695

Beauty — ages old — yet new as the dawn of today

In producing a motor car equally matchless in appearance as it is in performance, Chrysler designers substituted basic Style for fleeting styles by going back to the ancients who established the changeless principles of art—the age-old laws of beauty, of balance and of symmetry.

Such is the kinship between the beautiful and the useful that strength and grace, power and charm, sturdiness and loveliness combined naturally; scientific engineering principles conforming to the time-proved standards of proportion and balance.

Thus the studied canons of ancient art have been translated into modern terms and epitomized in the Chrysler. Its appearance is now only rivaled by its performance, and it is as pleasing to observe as it is satisfying to drive.

New Chrysler "65"—Six body styles, $1040 to $1145. New Chrysler "75"—Nine body styles, $1535 to $2345. New Chrysler Imperial—Five custom body styles, $2675 to $3855. All prices f. o. b. factory.

Plants, Shrubs

he most important thing at the present time in the growing of flowers, shrubbery, or trees is to supply plenty of water. "Don't just spray a little water over the flowers, but soak them under several inches of water," he will tell you.

Must Plant Soon

The next two weeks is the time to plant, Mr. Mahoney states. He said that the best time would have been in January during the uniform weather of the month when there was little wind. Many trees and flowers were killed over the winter due to the lack of moisture, he reports.

"Almost anything in reason will grow out here," Mr. Mahoney says. "The principal trouble is getting something started, but after it is once started it will usually grow heartily. The time to plant annuals is in April, after about the 10th of the month which is the average date of the last killing frost of the year."

Trees should be examined and sprayed before the leaves come out if there is any sign of scales, Mr. Mahoney warns. Under his direction the Tech Horticulture Department is doing much for the further beautification of this section. Witn experiments being conducted each year, the department determines the heartiest trees and shrubs in this climate. It has been found that almost anything given a good start will grow if the proper care is taken of it.

List Is Prepared

Mr. Mahoney has prepared a selected list of ornamentals for farm landscaping on the South Plains, pointing out the heartiest varieties of vegetations. The list is applicable also to town lawns if the ornamentals are selected in accordance with the size of the lot.

The list follows: For screens—Deciduous, Chinese Elm, Bablon Weeping Willow, Tamarix Salt Cedar, and Lilac Chaste-tree. Evergreen: Arizona Cypress, Red Cedar, and Chinese Arborvitae.

For Hedges Deciduous: Salt Cedar or Tamarix, Chaste-tree, Vanhoutte Spirea. Evergreen: Amur Privet, California Privet, Japanese Privit, and Chinese Arborvitae.

Shrubs for base planting. Deciduous: Vanhoutte Spirea, Shrub Althea, Russian Olive, Chinese Lilac. Evergreen: Oregon Hollygrape, Japanese Holly, Low Photinia, Cotoneaster, and Euonymus.

Shade Trees: Chinese Elm, Black Walnut, and Silver Maple.

Cowmen

try like this was then, I would go there to live."

The development of this section has brought conveniences which would be missed now by these cowboys, but in the old days one did not think of wanting them, according to a number of the men interviewed this week.

No Question Then.

If mail was delivered once every three months, annually or scarcely at all, one did not mind. Cowboys did not have voluminous correspondences and then, knowing that no mail could come, they did not worry over its delivery. Where to go was not a burning question in the days when there was no place to go.

"And I am never bothered now about what to do of evenings or where to go," G. C. Wolffarth, who is Tilda to his friends, remarked this week. "It rarely ever occurs to me to go to a picture show or to seek entertainment any place. I am satisfied to stay at home."

Mr. Wolffarth remembers that at one time he lost his horse and was forced to spend three weeks alone at a cattle camp. Time did move slowly then, but if he had had a horse to ride—to ride to no place at all except another point on the open range—he would have felt no loneliness whatever, he believes.

No Fences In '84.

He came to this country in 1884, following his cousins, Will and Van Sanders, into the West. At that time there were no fences on these prairies and the land had not been filed upon. Ranchers established headquarters and watched their herds throughout the year, following them to places where there was grass and water. A few dugouts were the principal signs of habitation over the entire area, except in a few ranch headquarters and settlements at infrequent intervals.

Mr. Wolffarth spent considerable time then near the Tahoka Lakes where his ranch is now located.

Were Paid Annually.

Cow men were annually paid, usually, and they made about one trip to town each year, when they spent most of their money, according to the men interviewed this week. The few days spent in the settlements provided them with enough social life to last for another 12 months.

While with the cattle there was plenty of work to be done and the men were happy to be among their herds and to have the occasional contracts with other ranchers that fell to their lot during the year.

Little Illness Then.

There was little sickness among the pioneers, supplies were bought by the year and with the established ranches there grew flocks of chickens, gardens and other means of providing most of the needs of these people. Freight wagons went to settlements to bring other supplies.

Everyone worked on ranches in the Eighties and Nineties as the towns did not provide any employment, according to J. A. (Andy) Wilson, who came to this country in 1892. Except for the general store, there was little else in the settlements.

Always Found Welcome.

The man who rode from one point in the country to another was always assured of a welcome where ever he stopped. The people of remote ranches were glad to see a visitor who had had some contact with an outside world and the proverbial hospitality of the West was then reigning.

Before leaving a settlement, a man would go by the postoffice and ask for mail going to all places at which he might visit. When he came to his last stop he left the remainder of his mail and this was later distributed as occasions arose.

An incident is related by Frank E. Wheelock concerning the people of Lubbock when there was first a settlement here.

A land commissioner had come into the town and made an eloquent address with a principal theme of the advantages that civilavation would bring to this section.

This talk irked some of the loyal men and at their request Mr. Wheelock answered the commissioner with a talk in which he asked that records of this section be compared with other sections in regard to stealing, indebtedness and other undesirable factors of many places.

No Poverty Then.

Honesty was a virtue of the old West, according to these men, and, although there were few wealthy folk in the section, poverty was an unknown thing.

Mr. Wheelock remembers that he and the late I. L. Hunt ran a store in Lubbock for six years, selling a stock that invoiced for $30,000. Unpaid accounts, when the store was sold, amounted to $12,000 and all of this was collected except $38.

John Lemond, chief of police here now, who was foreman and manager of the old Slaughter Ranch in Cochran county for 20 years, remembers a store that was in existence for numbers of years in which the proprietor lost only $100 in unpaid accounts.

There were no banks in this immediate section and checks were often passed about as change for months and months before they were returned to the bank.

Everyone in the section trusted every one else, these men say.

If one came upon a ranch at night he was assured of a welcome, and if no one was at home, he stayed there, cooked and ate his meals, cleaned up and departed, knowing that he was welcome to the stay. If a ranch was short of flour or bacon or other necessities, these were barrowed from the nearest neighbor — although that might be a matter of 30 or 40 miles in a day when horses were the means of transportation—and the articles were returned when the first rancher had received his supplies from town.

The merchants carried accounts for a year or more, knowing that when cattle were sold or when the cowboy was paid, the articles would be, paid for.

"We didn't have much money, but we had a good time and, if things could be now as they were then, we can wish for the old days once more," is the refrain of these men who have built up the West, growing with it from a boundless prairie flecked with sleek cattle and carefree cow pounchers, to this day which mirrors a land of plenty dotted with thriving cities.

When told that this anti-knock product was sold at the same price as other straight run gasoline, Miss Hall was quiet amazzedthat the price per gallon was so cheap. Drive into any of the stations listed below and let them explain this new process that gives you more miles per gallon and gives absolute assurance of starting these cold mornings.

25,000 Employes In Buick Factory

FLINT, Mich., March 9. — The Buick Motor company is generally regarded as an institution peculiarly Flint's own, since it employs something in the neighborhood of 25,000 workers in its vast factory here,—a figure which substantiates the frequently-heard statement that Buick is a sizable city itself. However, examination of figures relating to Buick's field personnel indicate that there is a second Buick city of even greater population, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and depending upon Buick for its bread and butter just as directly as the factory personnel does.

This second Buick city is composed of the nationwide Buick sales and service organization, which embraces more than 4,000 dealers. These dealers employ some 10,000 salesmen, and 16,000 service workers, office employes and others, bringing the field personnel to a minimum of 30,000 persons.

TAKE MEETING TO ROTARIAN

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP)—When R. O. Maentz was in a hospital brother Rotarians, to preserve his perfect attendance record, held their weekly meeting in his room.

Many a Roman aqueduct still stands, after 2,000 years, the epitome of strength and beauty. That same charm of line and trustworthiness of construction are reflected in the "arched-window" silhouette of the Chrysler today.

CHRYSLER "75" Royal Sedan, $2695

Beauty—ages old—
yet new as the dawn of today

In producing a motor car equally matchless in appearance as it is in performance, Chrysler designers substituted basic Style for fleeting styles by going back to the ancients who established the changeless principles of art—the age-old laws of beauty, of balance and of symmetry.

Such is the kinship between the beautiful and the useful that strength and grace, power and charm, sturdiness and loveliness combined naturally; scientific engineering principles conforming to the time-proved standards of proportion and balance.

Thus the studied canons of ancient art have been translated into modern terms and epitomized in the Chrysler. Its appearance is now only rivaled by its performance, and it is as pleasing to observe as it is satisfying to drive.

New Chrysler "65"—Six body styles, $1040 to $1145. New Chrysler "75"—Nine body styles, $1535 to $2345. New Chrysler Imperial—Five custom body styles, $2675 to $3855. All prices f. o. b. factory.

Essex Makes Hill Starting In High

"Challenger" Performs Hill Climbing Feat at County Club Grounds With Four Passengers Aboard

The New Essex "Challenger" hurled a challenge to all motordom Friday afternoon in a spectacular hill climbing test at the Lubbock County club grounds east of the city. A "Challenger" Sedan from the show rooms of the Hub Motor Company, driven by Hub Jones, the manager of the local Hudson-Essex agency, performed a feat never before accomplished.

Starting in high gear at the base of the steep incline, the powerful stock car roared up the grade, gaining momentum as it neared the top, and topped the hill going at the rate of 22 miles per hour. The machine carried four passengers in its record breaking climb, including the local agent, a factory representative and two members of the Avalanche-Journal staff.

Following the hill climbing test, the party was split, and another "Challenger was taken to a speedway near the edge of the city for a speed and get-away test. Within the space of three hundred yards both cars were skimming smoothly over the windswept highway at the rate of 70 miles per hour.

The tests here were made in connection with the nation-wide Challenger Week. Similar tests were made in all sections of the country in which Hudson-Essex dealers are located.

The public will buy more automobiles this year than ever before, in the opinion of Miss Edna Schuller, manager of the Schuller Motor Sales company, Oldsmobile dealers in Chicago. And she is backing up her belief by ordering 300 Oldsmobiles.

Miss Schuller is a striking example of the present generation. Graduating from college about three years ago, she declined to be relegated to the life of a social butterfly and insisted on entering business. She started as an accountant but this proved too dull for her ambitions and she began selling automobiles. Her success won her promotion to managership of the company early last year.

During 1928 Miss Sculler's company sold 176 Oldsmobiles. When she saw the 1929 Oldsmobile with added refinements at lower prices, she placed an order for 300 cars for 1929 with Herbert A. Trevellyan, manager of the Chicago Oldsmobile branch.

"Even two years ago when I started selling automobiles it was considered unusual for a girl or woman to invade this heretofore wholly masculine field of business," said Miss Schuller. "I will admit that at first I was a trifle dubious but as I gained experience I could see no reason why a woman could not succeed."

"New Authors"

esque "house boaters," those gypsies of the Mississippi.

A youth of 23, Neale comes from Du Bois, Pa. He spent his boyhood in Glenfield, Pa., where the river was but a stone's throw from his doorway. He is a product of Columbia's class in writing. I am told that he wrote seven books, all of which he destroyed before bringing out this one Neale seemed to me to handle his people with that particular flavor and sentitivity which the leaders of the Irish school of writing have used so well.

"Back to Stay," (Viking Press,) by Jonathan Leonard, is a definite and interesting contribution. The author wrote this, his first work, at the age of 50 and, because he could not find a publisher, personally printed 100 copies on his own hand press. It is a finely wrought story of the people who live just back from the sea in the Cape Cod country. His New England is the New England of the post civil war period, and his people carry on those superstitions and intolerances which marked their particular time.

One of the book's crucial situations concerns a father ready to make the human sacrifice of his son, after the fashion of the Old Testament. Here's a work that will attract attention.

Walter Duranty is not new to writing. A foreign correspondent for the New York Times for a number of years, he has written endless columns of newspaper copy. While in Russia he wrote several short stories, centering around experience and people encountered. One of them won the 1928 O. Henry prize award. Now he is out with "The Curious Lottery" (Coward-McCann) a splendid collection of "fact stories" out of Soviet Russia.

And there is "A Great Man" (Longman-Green) by Walter Vogges, a former San Francisco newspaper man. This is a tale of the California gold rush approached from a new angle. Vogdes goes deeper than most writers who have handled this period, dealing with considerable more than the mere melodrama of the time.

Other "first books" we recommend are Agnes Smedley's "Daughter of Earth" (Coward-McCann). The author is a product of the western mining camps who literally fought her way to knowledge—and this is her own particular saga—a book of which I will have more to say soon.

The speeding fire truck has been tamed a bit in Brawley, Calif. The city council has place a 30 mile an hour speed limit on fire apparatus.

"Chicago"

bids her to her Westchester place for the week-end and assigns her to divert the affections of a man whose attentions to Mrs. Boucicault's granddaughter, Dierdre, threatens to interfere with the latter's pending marriage to a nice young man.

Kitty discovers that the man she must divert is her own ex-husband. Against his wishes she keeps their one-time relationship secret. Kitty succeeds in stifling Dierdre's love for her former spouse, and after she has lured to her balcoyn, one by one, all the men at the week-end party, she takes her husband back.

The comedy is as gay as its title, but it has a moral epitomized by Kitty when she forgives her husband: That fidelity is the only conceivable basis for happy marriage. It is not quite completely Miss Larrimore's show. Charlotte Granville, as the sage old Mrs. Boucicault, shares honors with her.

A. A. Milne, who showed that he need not always be whimsical when he turned out "The Perfect Alibi," a mystery play which is one of the most popular of the current New York season, has gone Winnie-the-book on his public again.

The newest example of his handicraft is "Meet the Prince," brought to the New York stage by Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis. It has to do with a young Englishman who parts with a wife he cannot get along with, and vanishes, leaving her to retire on her slender competence to a little village near London.

There she invents a dead soldier husband and settles down as the window of the General James Bolger, C. B. Presently her husband turns up as a royal guest of the neighbors, and she meets him at dinner as Prince Michael of Neo-Slavonia.

Mr. Milne has a great deal of feathery fun with the two myth-makers before he permits their reconciliation.

Some of the critics thought it all a bit too thin to be compelling, but there was much chickling at the scenes wherein Mr Sydney and Miss Ellis tossed back and forth, like forked lightning through the clouds, the subtle whimsies of Mr. Milne's dialog.

PLAN SHORT COURSE

Two Day Event For Dickens Farmers Slated

SPUR, March 9—E. L. Tanner, county agent of Dickens county has arranged with specialists of A. and M. college to give a two-day short course for the citizens of the Spur trade territory. The feature of this course is primarily a study of poultry and feeds, and with the prevailing interest in these two very important farm problems the local county agent can in a great measure awaken a still greater interest in the production of poultry and dairy products.

Municipal Planning Aid To Lubbock

'Cities Do Not Happen—They Are Built' Is Slogan That Is Followed By Progressive Citizens Of Plains Hub

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of articles concerning the work of the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development in Lubbock, compiled and written by Al M. Hill, of the Avalanche-Journal staff.)

"Cities do not happen. They are built."

Like a house, or any other structure, before the building is started, if there be uniformity and stability and your money's worth, you are going to see to it that plans and blue-prints are perfected in accordance with the type of building desired.

Planning, on the part of hundreds of Lubbock citizens, lies back of the city we see today, and will create the metropolis of tomorrow.

"The Hub of the Plains" may sound to some as merely five words in a sentence, but that is exactly what Lubbock folks set out to build.

How Plans Were Made

You have been told of "Cooperation of Community" evolving itself into the present Lubbock Board of City Development. In closing this series of articles, it is fitting that you be told how the plans were made—completion of which have proven wonderful assets to every resident of this city.

Among the first things to be done by the men elected to the Board of City Development, was to plan a "Program of Work." Every citizen of Lubbock was invited to attend group meetings over a period of many weeks and to make specific suggestions, or to answer three specific questions. These questions are repeated here:

"First—What in your opinion are the things that should be undertaken by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce to improve trade conditions and opportunities in your line of business?

"Second—What, as a citizen, do you believe the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce should undertake for the good of the city at large?

"Third—Are you willing to give part of your time and support to develop these suggestions?"

Discussions Held.

Citizens, whether members of the Chamber of Commerce or not, were invited into group meetings in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, and, after the purposes and obects of a Chamber of Commerce were explained, a round table discussion of the various needs of this community and section was had. Then every individual was asked to write his own answers to the above questions. Every members of the organization was given the second and third invitation to attend one of these group meetings, and failing to respond was sent a questionnaire with these questions and asked to mail his answers in.

This "Program of Work" has become a blueprint, a chart, a guide, in planning and executing the work of Lubbock's community building machine. It accurately reflects the wishes of the citizenship and expresses the outstanding needs of the community. But it was not meant for the sole word of the Board of City Development and Chamber of Commerce, as it merely provides some definite objectives. Things arise from day to day to keep the organization busy, within themselves, but such things are seldom aimed in any specific direction toward which a town should be headed.

Work Three Years Old.

In reading the various items, given below on this "Program of Work," although only the most outstanding ones are listed, kindly remember that this program was begun about three years ago. Work to evolve it started several months prior to that:

Project 1: Promote a General Advertising Campaign for Lubbock and the South Plains with the special object of colonizing the section by showing the low cost of cotton production, the adaptability of the soil and climate for diversification and stock raising, and the advantage of the section and all towns as a good place to live.

Project 2: Use every endeavor to promote a comprehensive system of permanent good roads over the entire South Plains.

Project 3: Plan for immediate betterment and improvements and for future city growth, covering the subjects of city planning, zoning, streets, sidewalks, parks and playgrounds, subways, water supply, building code, etc., in an endeavor to make Lubbock the most attractive city in the state in which to live.

Agriculture Is Boosted.

Project 4: Do everything possible to help develop agriculture in all its phases over the entire South Plains.

Project 5: Extend the trade territory of Lubbock and make definite efforts to secure the maximum business from this area by cooperative efforts, trade trips and a cordial welcome to the people who come here to trade.

Project 6: Encourage the building of more and better houses, as well as houses and apartments for rent at moderate prices.

Project 7: Cooperate with and assist our schools and the Tech college.

Project 8: Create conditions favorable to and encourage the location of new and more diversified industries in Lubbock.

Project 9: Work with officials of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair association and make the fair the best in West Texas.

Project 10: In general, do whatever will promote the welfare of Lubbock as a civic, commercial, educational and industrial community.

Many Angles To Work.

It is obvious that these projects each have numerous angles from which to work, if they be brought about. You are aware of such things as the Advertising Campaign, now being carried on, and the results obtained; of the success in putting over the subways, work on the Broadway underpass now going forward, and innumerable other projects either completed in their entirety, or in the process of completion.

In parting, it is well that every citizen of Lubbock remember that if they have any suggestion for the betterment of the city or section, the Chamber of Commerce not only welcomes your suggestions, but they urge you to pass them along. If it is something that the organization can perform, rest assured they will go to work at it. Besides, you will have the satisfaction of helping bring about your own ideas.

One hundred scholarships of the value of 1,00 lire (about $55) have been bestowed on children of Italian school teachers.

during Nation-wide CHALLENGER WEEK

The new Essex "Challenger" made South Plains automobile history during the week just past and Lubbock was included in the official tests made throughout the country with this remarkable product of the Hudson-Essex Company.

A "Challenger" Sedan driven from our show rooms performed a hill climbing feat that has never before been accomplished.. Starting in high gear at the foot of the steep hill on the Lubbock Country Club grounds, the plucky Six made the hill with power to spare. Going at the rate of 22 miles per hour when the hill was topped, the Challenger was still gaining momentum when it reached level ground.

Hudson-Essex challenges any other automobile with a price range within $500 of the "Challenger" to perform this feat. For hill climbing, acceleration, speed, reliability, and economy, the "Challenger" repeats, "Who Can Beat It."

Above we show some of the local records, officially observed by newspaper men, which Essex the Challenger established during Nationwide Challenger Week. Owners here, and owners by thousands all over the country, have duplicated these tests, or, at least, verified the capacity of their own Essex the Challenger to reproduce any or all of these proofs. IN FAST GET-AWAY—no car is excepted. IN SPEED—anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN HILL CLIMBING—against any car you choose. IN APPEARANCE—match it for smartness with costlier cars. IN EASE OF DRIVING—note smoothness of motor—ease of steering—roadability and effectiveness of brakes. IN ENDURANCE—60 miles an hour all day long is well within its range.

One million owners know the special advantages of the Super-Six. They are best qualified to compare the Essex the Challenger. To them we offer first opportunity to test the most powerful, the largest, roomiest, smoothest, easiest riding—most complete Essex ever built. But all motordom must be astounded that even with seventy-six notable improvements, the price is the lowest in Essex history—a price but little above the lowest-priced car on the market.

Automobile Business One Of Best In Plains Section

Motor Cars Distributed Over South Plains From Lubbock Bring Greater Amount Of Revenue With Every Year

Nine Of Lubbock's Sixteen Agencies Are Also Points Of Distribution In Trade Territory, Figures Show

In line with the rapid development of West Texas and the South Plains, the automobile business in Lubbock has come to be one of the greatest sources of revenue for the "Hub of the Plains." Beginning not many years ago with only a few local dealers, Lubbock has assumed a position first rank among the automobile distributing centers of the southwest.

No less than nine of the 16 automobile agencies in Lubbock are distributors for their products over various sections ranging from the Oklahoma line on the north, New Mexico on the west, the T. and P. railroad on the south and to the 100th meridian on the east. Although a large number of these have not developed the territory allotted to them, a survey of the map shows this city to have an unequalled territory for the distribution of the modern vehicles of transportation.

Have Associate Dealers.

Automobile distributors in Lubbock have associate dealers in practically all important centers of the South Plains section in addition to points outside the section thus designated. Local houses, in most instances, handle all the cars that go out to their various agents in the surrounding towns.

Sixteen counties are included in the territory allotted to the Royalty Motor company, distributors for Dodge Motor cars and trucks. In this vast section the Plainview branch is co-distributor with the local concern, holding jurisdiction over the northern section, while the Lubbock branch is the center for the counties in the southern part of the district. From the standpoint of sale, Lamesa, Tahoka, Floydada and Crosbyton are the outstanding points of the section. Bailey county also ranks among the leaders. Included in the territory of the Royalty Motor company is the northern half of Gaines county, located in the midst of the newly developed oil fields near the New Mexico line. This locality, according to Mr. Royalty, promises to be one of the best in the district.

Large Section Covered.

The West Texas Motor company is the distributing center for 14 counties in this section, extending east as far as Spur, west to the New Mexico line and south to Lamesa. Outside of the local house, the Post agency is the outstanding point in the Hupmobile district under the jurisdiction of L. E. Davis, manager of the local concern. Considerable more automobiles are sold here than in the other points in the section, Mr. Davis points out, because prospective buyers prefer to buy where they are given a greater variety from which to pick. Sales are pushed much more in and around Lubbock, Mr. Davis added.

L. H. Plain of the Panhandle Durant company is at the head of an organization, still in its infancy, which seems destined to become an enterprise of giant proportions. A grand total of 60 counties are included in the territory of which the Lubbock house is the center. In addition to the numerous local agencies in the section, two wholesale warehouses are kept up at Lubbock and Amarillo. The northern section of this territory is fully developed from the standpoint of agencies, but the section south of Lubbock is open to agencies, Mr. Plain said.

Dalhart a Leader.

In the northern section where the business has been developed, Dalhart is the leading sales center with the Hill Motor company of Amarillo a close second. The Amarillo house furnishes cars to all points in the northern portion of the Panhandle and the Lubbock branch serves territory which reaches south to a line drawn east from the southern border of New Mexico. East of Lubbock the territory extends through Spur and on the northeats to Childress.

The Gough Motor company, of which C. H. Gough is manager, is the distributor in all West Texas for the Studebaker products, the Pierce Arrow and the Relay trucks. This territory also extends into New Mexico as far as Roswell and on the south goes as far as the T. and P. railroad. The local house holds a territory that extends as far west as El Paso is distributing the Relay trucks.

Marmon Price-Cut Seen.

An announcement during the latter part of this month concerning a lower priced Marmon will make the beginning of a program of expansion by the Ragland Motor company, local agent for the Nash and Marmon. Up to now, Mr. Ragland has not utilized the 25 counties in his district with the Marmon sales agency, because of the price of the product. After the lower priced car comes out, the local distributor of Marmon plans to establish distributing points at the larger towns of this section.

The Joe Hilton company, distribcounties of the Plains section, has sold more automobiles in the Lubbock house than in all the other branches combined, according to Mr. Hilton. This territory extends east through Crosby county, south to Tahoka and west to the New Mexico line. The Plainview branch is next in line after Lubbock and Matador also has a lively business.

De Soto Coming Well.

Another product of Chrysler, the De Soto, distributed throughout 19 counties of West Texas by the Cap Rock Motor company, is one of the newcomers in the automobile world. Although the local concern has not yet established agencies in the outstanding points of the section, those in charge of the organization are planning an expansion program in the near future that will furnish every community with a near-by agency. The territory includes all the counties from Plainview on the north to Lamesa on the south, and from the cap rock on the east to the New Mexico line.

Prospective dealers are being lined up rapidly to assist in the distribution of Oldsmobiles in territory controlled by the Davis Oldsmobile company, according to L. C. Davis, manager of the local house. A branch house has recently been established at Slaton and others are likely to be opened in the near future. Approximately 14 counties are included in the territory.

Bradley Motor company, local agents for the Oakland and Pontiac, is the headquarters for several South Plains counties in their line. Associate dealers are located at Ralls, Slaton and Lamesa. A large part of the territory belonging to this company is yet undeveloped.

France and other parts of western Europe receive less rain than the eastern United States but since the showers are lighter and more frequent, less water is lost by drainage than in this country where more sunny days and harder rains are more common.

The annual earning power of employed boys 14, 15 and 16 years of age, who are attending day continuation schools in the state of New York, approximates $50,000,000.

The Southern railway is the first British system to adopt the steel sleeper.

The little peaches stopped their dance. Then Clowny said, "Now watch me prance. I'm pretty good at stepping, as you'll very shortly see. Why, I can two-step, waltz and hop, and jig a bit before I stop. Just ask the other Tinies. They will all agree with me."

So, all the peaches gathered round while Clowny hopped up to the ground. "Here goes, he shouted loudly, "I will do a highland fling." He jumped and kicked his feet in air. And landed safe and sound, and square in front of all the peaches who thought it was a clever thing."

"Go on, and do some more," cried one. "We think that this is heaps of fun." But Clowny said, "Oh, not today. I've had enough for now." One peach then said, "Say, why don't you go roaming like you always do. If you seek interesting spots, you'll find them, I'll allow."

"You're right," cried Scouty. "Come, let's go. Why, I feel certain that I know that we will not be sorry that we set out for some thrills. We can't see very far from here, but no doubt something nice is near, and we are bound to find it if we hike across the hills."

They bid the peaches all goodbye, and Clowny calmly stopped to sigh. Said he, "We hate to leave you 'cause you've been real nice to us. But, after all, we can't stop here. It's up to us to seek new cheer. As long as we must move on, there's no use to start a fuss."

Not far away the Tinies found a stretch of very rocky ground. "I wish that we could see a cave," said Clowny with a grin. And then he added, "Goodness me, that is the very thing I see. The big black hole's a cave door, and I'm going to walk right in."

(Clowny is lost in the next story.)

French Artist Creates Own Car

BERNARD DE MONVEL CHOOSES HUPMOBILE IN DESIGNING "CARESS ON WHEELS"

Bernard Boutet de Monvel wanted an automobile. He wanted it as comfortable as a pair of bedroom slippers, as intimate as a boudoir, as beautiful as his own beloved Paris. He wanted the peace of a quiet motor and the power of a perfect one. He must have splendor and he must have speed.

This is the manner of man who wanted an automobile and who could not find it. So he made Paris gasp! He created it. Not in fancy, not in a sketch or a suggestion, but actually, exhaustively and in detail.

First Found Chassis

First he set about finding a chassis. An artist may know nothing of machinery; an aviator knows much. He decided upon one from America. He looked at them all. Reputation inclined him to a Hupmobile. He stooped over that long, naked glistening thing of steel. He probed with strong delicate fingers, he gave a sensitive ear to the motor and straightened to say, "C'est ca"

Months intervened. Earnest months for him; anxious months for Kellner, one of the best of the French custom body builders. Imagine a hansome cab turned into a butterfly of the boulevards and you have the de Monvel car. The painter is now in New York to do portraits of Miss Rita Mitchell, daughter of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, and prominent other people. The car came after him and may be seen any day upon the streets of New York. A few travelled Americans, who have seen that flash of yellow beauty as M. de Monvel has been whirled through Central Park in the past few days, may have rubbed their eyes and wondered if they were in the Bois de Boulogne.

Is Caress On Wheels.

A cab it is. A caress on wheels. Deft daintiness masking strength. Doors half of glass, meeting a clear glass panel behind the chauffeur, so that when one tours one may miss none of the beauties of Brittany or Burgundy. A thing of breath-taking beauty, yet so simply harmonious it seems as real and as natural as the crudest coal cart.

Fittings? He is a precisionist, this painter, de Monvel. There is nothing in or on or about his car that has not known his own touch. There are trunks, and ingeniously handy things in them, and they are just as de Monvel as body or lamps, or tire racks or bumpers.

It is not for sale, this de Monvel creation. It is just a thing of rare and happy beauty—this Parisien Hupmobile, a thing to be watched for on the streets of New York. And have no fear but that you will know it is it when you see it.

Chevrolet Hints Output Increase

Upward Revision of About 100,000 Quoto Indicated By R. H. Grant, Vice-President of Company

DETROIT ,March 9—That there will be an upward revision of Chevrolet 1929 production schedule, calling for an output of 1,350,000 units instead of the 1,250,000 quota originally established, was indicated today by R. H. Grant, the company's vice-president in charge of sales, who has just returned here after 6 weeks spent conducting dealer meetings in the northern and western sections of the country.

This alteration in production plans Mr. Grant explained, was considered only after very thorough surveys of business conditions undertaken by him and other Chevrolet officials. In the course of this year's dealer meetings, officials divided into three groups and visited 37 metropolitan centers. Exhaustive studies of sectional conditions were made possible by the cooperation of thousands of dealers, bankers and businessmen.

Increase Is Warranted

"At the time the new 6-cylinder car was announced, we predicted a volume of 1,250,000 units for 1929", Mr .Grant said. "A a result of my visit to 13 widely scattered sections and similar visits to other sections by my associates I feel that we are warranted in raising that figure to 1,350,000. Beyond that mark we can not go with our present facilities but these can be quickly increased if the demand justifies."

G. M. C. Overseas Sales Increase

During the year 1928 General Motors sales to overseas dealers amounted to 282,157 cars, as compared with 193,8390 cars for the year 1927, or an increase of 45.6 per cent. Sales in the fourth quarter of 1928 amounted to 71,867 cars, as compared with 52,493 cars in the corresponding quarter of 1927, or an increase of 36.9 per cent. The fourth quarter was influenced by model changes in the Chevrolet, Pontiac and Olds divisions and the first quarter of 1929 should show a considerable increase over the first quarter of 1928.

High Compression Advantages Given

Chrysler Engineer States Anti-Knock Fuels Make Greater Efficiency in New Type Automobiles

BY CARL BREER
Executive Engineer, Chrysler Corporation

The whole subject of high compression is a significant one to motor car owners. High compression increases the ratio of fuel that can be transformed into useful work. It gives greater power and performance from the same amount of fuel, thereby increasing engine efficiency.

How best to attain this greater efficiency is the engineer's problem. Two limiting factors govern any increase in engine compression. These are the engine's structural strength and knock detonation.

As Chrysler pioneered high compression, it is perhaps needless to say that its engines are designed to operate smoothly and without overloading even at extremely high speeds. Their rigid crankcase and cylinder block construction, and the ample bearing areas provided, are assurance that their structure will not be overloaded by any conceivable compression that might be employed.

HAD LOST HOPES OF EVER SEEING WELL DAY AGAIN

"I Know What Orgatone Will Do From Actual Experience; I Gained Three Pounds First Week," Says Lubbock Visitor

"I had actually given up all hopes of ever seeing a well day again," said Mrs. B. L. Kinsey, of 3809 Harrison St., Amarillo, who was visiting her brother, who is deputy sheriff at Lubbock, and gave this interesting statement while en route to Amarillo, at the South Plains Drug Store, at Plainview, recently.

"I had suffered," she continued, "For about thirteen years, with just a general run down condition, my stomach troubled me, and I was bothered with gall stone and kidney trouble. I was so weak and nervous I couldn't hardly do a thing, and all the doctors told me, I would never be well again, and the fact of the matter is, I never expected to be, for I was just about all in. Every thing I ate caused me indigestion, and I didn't have any appetite at all, and food soured, and formed gas, and hurt me so I got to where I was afraid to eat, and ate less and less every day. I was so weak and didn't have enough strength to even do my own house work and life was just a dread from one day to another and every day seemed a week long.

"My brother at Lubbock, Texas, recommended Orgatone to me, and it was the luckiest day of my life, when I began taking it. It is the most wonderful medicine I have ever taken or ever heard of. I eat anything I want, and am not nervous or restless and go to bed and get a good nights sleep. My kidney trouble doesn't pain me anymore, and gas does not sour on my stomach, as it did, and in fact, every thing I eat digests properly, and it seems to do me some good. I am feeling better than I have in the last thirteen years, I just feel like a different woman, and have gained three pounds this week, and am so strong and well again, I think I can do anything I want to. All my strength and energy has returned and I am just too thankful to Orgatone, I can't find enough words to tell about it. Orgatone has surely saved my life, and I am so well and happy I can't endorse it too highly, and I am certainly glad to tell others about it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowens Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Adv.

Studebaker Sales Reveal Increase

Retail Deliveries Show 114 Per Cent Increase Over Last Year As New Record Is Made

Actual retail deliveries of Studebaker commercial cars during January, 1929, showed an increase of 114 per cent over the same period last year and were the largest of any one month in Studebaker history. These figures are based on retail delivery reports received from all parts of the country.

Every one of the Studebaker commercial car lines contributed to this remarkable increase. Deliveries of delivery cars were 153 per cent higher than January, 1928. Funeral cars and ambulance deliveries increased 210 per cent. Busses and bus chassis deliveries, which were naturally retarded by a transition period between six cylinder to eight cylinder, gained 18 per cent.

Commercial Division Grows

Since its inception, three and one half years ago, the commercial car division of the Studebaker corporation has grown until today it ranks as one of the three largest producers of busses in the United States, and the largest producer of funeral cars and ambulances. Delivery car sales have shown a steady increase since their introduction.

DeSoto Six Gives Amazing Results

One of the most typical of all the Chrysler features incorporated in the Chrysler-built new DeSoto Six is the "RedHead" high compression cylinder head which obtains from so-called "high compression" fuels increases of power, acceleration, smoothness and speed which are truly astonishing. DeSoto-Chrysler engines declare that the "Red Head" solves one of the basic problems of modern automotive engineering, namely the production of a maximum of power from a minimum amount of fuel.

While the "Silver Dome" high compression cylinder head which uses any ordinary type of gasoline as standard equipment on the DeSoto Six, the "Red Head" is available at a slight extra cost.

There is a limit, engineers say, to the degree of compression under which the socalled "standard" fuels of today will operate without causing the disagreeable spark knock or detonation sometimes apparent in automobile engines. This condition has limited the amount of compression in internal combustion engines in the past.

ON AUTO ROW

A taste of spring with its warm sunshine and inviting country lanes had its noticeable effect on automobile sales in Lubbock during last week. Local agents reported a decided pickup in the sale of new models as well as deliveries on used cars. A still greater opening up of sales on auto row is predicted within the next month when the age-old foe of work and routine, "spring fever," begins to work upon the prospective automobile buyers. The lure of the open highways and the desire to get away from the daily office grind is in the air and will soon be in evidence as the new models begin to roll out.

SPECIAL MODELS COMING

Coming on the very threshold of the buying season, the Automobile Show, March 28 and 29, promises to be the greatest event of its kind ever staged in this section. A large number of the local dealers have special models en route for the occasion while others are to show their stock cars. Included in the displays of the fourteen dealers entered in the show will be the most beautiful designs of which human hands and modern machinery are capable of turning out. According to present plans, each dealer will be allowed space for three machines.

SEEKS LOCATION HERE

Travis Bailey of Roswell, N. M., was in Lubbock last week seeking a location for the Packard automobile and White truck agency which he intends to establish here. Lubbock has been without a Packard agency for some time and Mr. Bailey plans to open a house here as soon as possible. He is agent for both products in Roswell where he is now located.

SALES ARE REPORTED

The South Plains Motor company, Willys-Knight and Whippet dealers in Lubbock, reports the sale of four new Whippets and one Willys-Knight within the last few days. J. M. Kelly of this city is the owner of a new Willys-Knight sedan; Marvin Moore of Tahoka has a new Whippet coupe; L. R. Rampay of this city has purchased a Whippet coach; W. L. Rivers, a Whippet coach and C. L. Rhodes, a Whippet sedan.

At the present time, this concern has a full line of new models on the floor.

NEW SHIPMENT EXPECTED

A new shipment of new Hupmobile models is expected by the West Texas Motor company within the next few days, according to L. E. Davis, manager of the local concern. Mr. Davis has been unable to get new cars here for the past month but expects to be able to meet the demand after his first shipment arrives.

H. P. George of the Odorless Dry cleaning plant is the latest buyer of an Essex sedan. The sale was announced by the Hub Motor company, local Hudson-Essex dealers.

Gough Motor company reports the sale of a new Commander Six Studebaker to W. M. Roberts of this city.

Within the last week, the Gough Motor company has unloaded a new shipment of new Commander Eights and another of Erskines and other models.

A CORRECTION

The ramrod of this column wishes to correct a slight mistake that appeared last Sunday in connection with the visit of Ab Jenkins, famous automobile racer, to Lubbock. It was stated that the Studebaker roadster Jenkins was driving was a stock car but specially geared for speed, but since that time it has been learned that the machine was geared as are all Studebaker roadsters.

More Winter Use In Automobiles

Mechanical Improvements And Better Roads Give All Winter Service In Cars, Says Auto Head

Where the automobile used to be jacked up in the garage for the duration of winter, mechanical improvements and better roads combine to make the modern product of as great utility in one season of the year as another, declares B. H. Anibal, vice-president in charge of engineering of the Oakland Motor Car Co.

"Snow and zero weather fail to deter the modern motorist," Mr. Anibal stated, "because the automobile manufacturer today is putting out a car that functions as well in frigid as in tropical countries.

Closed Bodies Notable

"Notable among the developments making for all-year use in the motor car of course are closed bodies and passable roads. But the car mechanically is built to give service regardless of weather conditions.

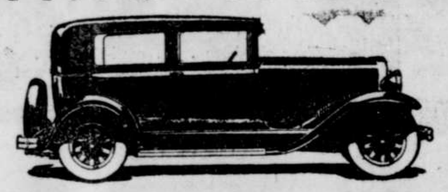

"This development is seen in the number of cars being sold during the winter months. In November the Oakland All-American Six set the highest monthly sales figure since we began building the car 22 years ago. Yet November is at the beginning of the cold weather months."

EGG-YOLK ROSES

One of the nicest hors d'oeuvres is the egg-yolk rose on chopped green olives. Halve hard-boiled eggs lengthwise, half fill the yolk's hole with chopped olives, mix the yolk with mayonnaise, vinegar and onion juice, and make an artistic rose atop the olives.

Make The Chimneys Smoke

They are the basis of business and the foundation on which capital is built. Without them there would be no cities and no progress.

The Texas Utilities Company supplies Lubbock and the cities of West Texas with four necessities of life—heat—light—power—ice. It is always striving to improve its methods of giving service to the public and as the West Plains grow in importance the Texas Utilities Co., grows in proportion.

For heating and cooking purposes electricity is becoming more popular every day because it is clean, it is easily controlled and the most dependable. The danger from fire while using electricity is negligable.

For lighting purposes there is no substitute for electricity—it turns every hour into day and at a minimum cost. There is no fuss or muss with electricity. Its use today is an absolute necessity in every home.

As a source of power it has brought efficiency in American industry up to the highest standard ever attained. It has the distinction of being responsible in a great measure to present day mass production, making possible greater production with less human effort and at less cost.

Julio Martinez Prefers To Cook

Lubbock Mexican Can't Be Bothered With Antics Of His Countrymen; Doesn't Crave Place Of Gil

Rebels may rise, Federals may fall and revolutions may continue for all time, but to Julio they only make good reading

Julio intends to continue his nightly task of supplying the customers with edibles at the Tech Cafe where he holds forth as head night chef, regardless of which side survives the present armed struggle in Mexico.

"Let 'em fight," declares Julio in his short, broken English, "they gonna' fight all time, anyway. They been doing it for 18 years and I guess they will be next 18. I dunno." And that's about all the revolutionary statements, Julio will give out.

Born In Texas

Maybe he doesn't know. Having been born under the very shadow of the Texas capitol building, on East Sixth in Austin and lived in the state all of his life, he probably doesn't know any more about revolutions than any other native Texan except that they occur in the country just below us every three or four years. Julio seems less interested, too than the average Texan, even if his last name is Martinez and his complexion of the deep tan.

Julio thinks maybe if the people were better educated and religious beliefs given more freedom, Mexico will be freed from revolutions but he's not sure. He has always wanted to visit the native country of his race, he says, but states he'd rather not go down just now.

The Boy's Smart.

Would he accept a high position in one of the armies, ride in a private train, wear a stiff uniform demanding the admiration of all the senoritas?

He grins and attempts a statement that he rather keep on his sagging chef's uniform and sling kitchen utensils every night right here in Lubbock than to be president of Mexico, dodge bullets and maybe face the firing squad, ugh!

Tahoka News

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

The Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wells celebrated here Wednesday was by far the most pretentious and gorgeous event of this kind ever observed in Tahoka. Surrounded by the children, grand children, great-grand children, and numerous other relatives, as well as hundreds of their Tahoka friends, the honored couple seemed as bouyant and happy as children themselvs.

A most elaborate and sumptuous feast was enjoyed by the Wells families and their kindred who had gathered in the parental home at the noon hour.

Beginning at one o'clock and continuing at intervals of one hour throughout the afternoon, a program of readings, songs, and instrumental music, piano, violin, saxaphone, orchestra—was rendered in honor of the happy couple; and as a concluding number on the program and as a most appropriate and beautiful climax of the events of the day a real wedding was consummated at 6 o'clock, when Miss Cleone Wells, in a beautiful ring ceremony, became the bride of Mr. Morris O. Bridges of this city.

All the afternoon streams of visitors from this city and elsewhere came to pay their respects to the honorees of the occasion. They expressed their respect and esteem not simply in words but in many a costly and beautiful gift, until the big table in the dining room was loaded down with silverware, glassware, chinaware, and numerous other useful and expensive articles. The registry book at the close of the day bore names of several hundred relatives and friends.

Among the relatives who came from a distance to enjoy this occasion were two who witnessed the wedding ceremony of Mr. and Mrs. Wells just fifty years preceding. These were T. E. Moore and Mrs. J. A. McElreath, both of Roosevelt Oklahoma.

BRIDGES-WELLS

Immediately following the program rendered at the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wells Wednesday evening and as a grand finale of that occasion, a real wedding ceremony was again performed. Mrs. Ben T. Brown, of Belton, sang, "I Love You," accompanied by Mrs. Roberts at the piano. When the impressive song was finished, Mrs. Roberts resumed playing softly Lohengrin's Briday March. This time the guests, very unexpectedly were to witness the marriage of Mr. M. O. Bridges and Miss Cleone Wells at the same altar where little people had performed and where yet sat the grand-parents proceeded Elder W. A. Kercheville, pastor of the Church of Christ of Tahoka to pronounce the solemn ceremony.

The little flower girls, Mary Bland Wells, sister of the bride, and Betty Sue Roberts, a cousin, strewed the pathway as in the previous wedding, with rose petals. From a side door, entered the bride on the arm of her father, W. C. Wells, and accompanied by her maid of honor, Miss Frankie Wells. At the altar the bride was given away by her father to the groom who was in waiting. Mr. Glen Bucy, a friend of Mr. Bridges, of Fort Worth, acted as best man.

The bride was very beautiful in a Byrd blue georgette dress and in her arms she carried a bouquet of blue and white sweet peas. The maid of honor wore an ensemble of white and blue georgette. Her bouquet was pink and white carnations. The groom and best man were dressed in neat business suits.

Mrs. Bridges is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wells. She is one of Tahoka's fairest daughters and a most accomplished musician. Mr. Bridges has been in Tahoka almost a year and has made many friends both in business and social life. He is local manager of the West Texas Gas Company.

Their many friends wish them much happiness and hope that they may celebrate their Golden Anniversary in Tahoka, as have their grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wells.

HIGH SCHOOL LISTENS IN ON INAUGURATION CEREMONIES

The pupils of the Tahoka high school enoyed a novel experience Monday. They attended the inaugural ceremonies. They did not go to Washington in person, to be sure, but they listened to all the proceedings over the radio. A radio set had been installed in the auditorium for the purpose, and every pupil had an opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge as to just what a presidential inaugural is like. Some of the students in speaking of the matter, pronounced it very educational. Of course they could not see the crowds, the notables, the parades, but they could hear the addresses, the bands, the shouting, and could to an extent enter into the excitement of the occasion.

A great concurse of relatives and friends attended the funeral services and followed the remains to the grave.
