Hightower makes plea for federal disaster relief

FORT WORTH (AP) — West Texas ranchers and farmers, many of whom are liquidating their herds because of a sweltering drought unparalleled since the 1950s, are praying for rain and pleading for federal assistance.

While the appeals for percipitation have been directed toward the clouds, the pleas for federal disaster relief have been targeted at U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block.

"If Secretary Block is willing to act now, he can prevent the total devastation of the ranching industry in that area," Texas Secretary of Agriculture Jim Hightower said Wednesday at a Washington news conference.

Hightower, armed with a bag of parched West Texas soil, said Block's inaction has forced many ranchers to liquidate their herds.

"Timely action could have prevented" such liquidations, Hightower said.

"I'm sure it's difficult for him (Block) to consider the need of our ranchers when he's sitting in an air-conditioned office nearly 2,000 miles away, so we've come here to bring the matter to his attention once again," Hightower said.

"We've even brought a bucket of West Texas to them, so they can put their hands in this parched soil and tell us if it's dry enough for them yet."

Gov. Mark White on Monday asked Block to reconsider his July 15 denial of federal drought relief for the counties.

White said earlier that Block could have "by the nod of his head given some large measure of relief to those farmers and ranchers who are impacted so heavily by this drought."

Pecos County rancher Gregg McKenzie of Fort Stockton said ranchers are selling out their cattle herds daily.

"I just liquidated my herd last week," McKenzie said. "We just kept a foundation herd, just a few cows and some registered bulls.

"This is more extreme than the drought of the '50s," McKenzie said. "It's been more devastating to the rangeland. We're at the point now where it's hurting the native vegetation."

He estimated that 50 percent of the ranchers in Pecos County have liquidated their herds.

Nearly 200 miles to the northeast in Colorado City, Bobby Lemons, vice president of City National Bank, said ranchers also are selling their herds, and cotton farmers have "just about given up on making a crop this year."

Counties affected are Brewster, Presidio, Jeff Davis, Culberson, Reeves, Pecos, Terrell, Crockett, Sutton, Schleicher, Reagan, Upton, Crane, Ward, Loving, Winkler, Ector, Midland, Glasscock, Coke, Nolan, Mitchell, Howard, Martin, Andrews, Irion and Dawson.

Officials said 24 of the 27 counties applied for federal drought relief through the governor's office. Counties not seeking federal aid were Irion, Glasscock and Crockett.

McKenzie challenged Block to come to Fort Stockton "and make a living as a rancher. If he can live for a week on $50 worth of food stamps, let him come here and see the devastation we have."

He said that ranchers who depend solely on rain for moisture "are hurting."

McKenzie said the drought of the 1950s lasted seven years, but the most recent dry spell has been building for about three years and its intensity in some locations is so bad that there has been virtually no rain.

New boundaries for MISD, grades K through 8

School bells will soon clang

The clock is ticking away. Soon it will be time for motorists to again start obeying school zone speed limits as children eagerly skip or dreadfully tredge back to class.

Even though most children will want to enjoy the few vacation days remaining without constant reminders school starts in 2⅓ weeks, stores are advertising back-to-school sales and parents are seeking answers to the questions that are always asked before the first day of class.

School for both Midland and Greenwood students begins Aug. 29. The Midland Independent School District is anticipating an enrollment of 18,110 students this fall. With the addition of two new elementary schools, some of the boundaries in north Midland have changed. Bowie, Milam and Emerson elementaries are the only schools affected (see map).

The new boundaries for Emerson are State Highway 349 to the east, Wadley Avenue on the south, Midkiff Road to the west and Loop 250 on the north. Bowie's boundaries are the same as last year except they extend no farther north than Loop 250.

Milam is bounded by State Highway 349 on the west, Scharbauer Drive to the south, and North Tyler and Lamesa Road to the east. In addition, the Milam area includes land recently annexed by the city, mostly to the north of Loop 250 and to the west of Fairgrounds Road.

Parker Elementary in northwest Midland is now complete. It will be included in Cluster 5 with Houston and DeZavala elementaries. Fourth graders in that cluster will be taking classes in Parker.

The Parker school boundary is the area within Wadley Avenue to the south, Loop 250 to the north and west, and Midkiff Road to the east.

Santa Rita Elementary is expected to be completed by the first day of classes. It is included in Cluster 7 with Long and Travis elementaries. Fifth graders in Cluster 7 will be in the new school, which is bounded by Loop 250 on the south, County Road 1230 on the west, State Highway 349 on the east and the county line to the north.

Color-coded maps of the school boundaries and clusters are available at the administration building, 702 N. N St.

Another recent construction project is the Carver Occupational Development Lab, where mentally retarded youth over the age of 15 are trained. The lab is expected to be ready the first day of school.

Blaze wreaks havoc in downtown New York City

New York City firefighters take a break from fighting an underground blaze in a Con Edison equipment room.

NEW YORK (AP) — An underground fire that felt like "the gates of hell" to those who fought it blacked out the nation's garment center during one of its busiest weeks, with multi-million-dollar losses expected before all power is restored on Monday.

Emergency crews worked today to relight the 20-block area in midtown that was darkened when a 13-hour inferno cut power Wednesday.

Six hundred police officers guarded the area, deterring looters with street lights run by 62 mobile generators. No arrests were reported.

Consolidated Edison officials, who said electricity may not be restored to the entire area until Monday, hoped to inspect transformers in a subterranean substation that burned Wednesday. The fire was sparked when a 68-year-old water main broke and shorted wires.

The power failure knocked out stoplights, causing massive traffic snarls, and closed Macy's and Gimbels department stores. It also played havoc with the garment district's "market week," when buyers from across the country come to New York to order winter and spring clothing lines. Industry losses were estimated in the millions.

Three hundred firefighters worked in 15-minute shifts to fight the maelstrom that raged 60 feet below the corner of 38th Street and Seventh Avenue.

"It was like the gates of hell down there," said Lt. Paul Revere of Engine Co. 280 in Queens, his face blackened by soot. "We got chased out once or twice. But we got back and beat up the devil."

The heat from the fire, fueled by 50,000 gallons of oil used in the transformers, was so intense that it shot up an air shaft and started a fire on the roof of a 25-story building.

Fire Commissioner Joseph Spinnato said the flames were finally extinguished around 4:30 p.m. Crews spent the night pumping an estimated 300,000 gallons of foam out of the 150-by-50-foot transformer vault so Con Ed workers could enter to assess the damage.

Con Ed spokesman Dan Walden said that if the transformers were wrecked, which appeared likely, it would cost $25 million to $30 million to replace them.

The total cost of the water main break, fire and power outage could not be determined, but it included police and fire overtime, utility repair costs and losses to blacked-out businesses from 30th to 42nd streets between Sixth and Seventh avenues, one of Manhattan's busiest retail districts.

"It's going to cost a lot of people a lot of money," said Irwin Broudy, a garment industry executive. "You can't get into a building, you can't sell. It's big bucks."

"It's a disaster," said Marvin Kahn of Hampshire Designs, whose two Broadway showrooms were shut down by the blackout.

"It was quite a chore just getting here," said Bonnie Michaels, vice president for Maas Bros., a department store based in Tampa, Fla. "I ventured out in a taxi, but the driver told me, 'No way am I going near there, lady,' so he dumped me on a corner."

The outage also ruined an American Bridge Association tournament at the 17-story New York Penta hotel, which was called the New York Statler until last week, where 1,500 players and their families were among the approximately 2,300 guests who were forced to evacuate. Hotel employees, some working by candlelight, helped visitors find rooms elsewhere or prepare to leave town.

"It was nuts. It's still nuts. I never want to go through it again," said Pete Thackston, an account executive from Huntington, W. Va., who stood in the noisy, crowded lobby.

Some members differ with policy

U.S. Chief of Protocol Selwa Roosevelt administers an oath to President Reagan's new Central America Commission, headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, as Secretary of State George Shultz looks on. The commission is, from left, Henry Cisneros, the mayor of San Antonio; Richard Scammon; Carlos Diaz-Alejandro; Wilson Johnson; Justice Potter Stewart; Bill Clements Jr., the former governor of Texas; Nicholas Brady; Robert Strauss; John Silber; William Walsh and Kissinger. Not pictured is commission member Lane Kirkland.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan headed into a meeting today with his bipartisan advisory commission on Central America, its Democratic members already were calling for changes in administration policy toward the region.

Shortly before the panel was sworn in Wednesday, San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros told reporters the turmoil in the area stems largely from past U.S. policies, such as "toppling governments and rigging elections."

He said he planned to work for a reduction of U.S. military activities in the Central America, a policy which he claimed would reduce tensions and allow "diplomacy and negotiations" to solve problems.

Cisneros' criticism was seconded by Robert Strauss, a former Democratic National Committee chairman, who said, "I have strong differences with the administration in this Central America policy."

Asked if he were worried about the course of U.S. policy in the region, Strauss said, "If I weren't, I wouldn't be on the commission."

The administration, sensing widespread public divisions on Central America policy, decided last month to create a bipartisan commission for the purpose of making long-term recommendations. Officials hope a policy will emerge that will have broad public support.

After the panel was sworn in, the 12 members, led by chairman Henry A. Kissinger, held a 3½ hour meeting in which they discussed strategy for completing their recommendations by a February deadline. They also conferred on the timing of a commission visit to Central America.

Controversy swirled Wednesday over appointment to the commission of Yale University professor Carlos F. Diaz-Alejandro, who is viewed by Cuban exiles and other conservatives as a sympathizer of Cuban President Fidel Castro.

Diaz-Alejandro has sponsored a group which favors normalization of relations with Cuba, according to exile sources. But presidential spokesman Larry Speakes defended the appointment, asserting that it reflects the need for a diversity of viewpoints on the panel.

Kissinger, whose appointment also has drawn fire from conservatives, was uncharacteristically subdued and non-committal when he spoke to panel members after the swearing in ceremony.

He said he was certain that the panel will not be split along partisan lines and pledged to submit the "fullest and fairest" report possible.

"If we can work out a cooperative pattern with (the Central American) countries, it can be an example for the rest of the hemisphere and the rest of the world," he said.

Secretary of State George Shultz, who presided at the ceremony, said he was confident the commission will be able to produce a report that that will enjoy widespread public acceptance.

"I know you will be looking ahead in a positive frame of mind," Shultz told the panel members. "We should be looking at the positive things that we should be doing that will make our neighborhood a healthier one, and will make it a more secure one not only for ourselves but for our neighbors."

In other developments Wednesday:

—The State Department said the Reagan administration "had no prior knowledge" of the coup in Guatemala in which Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores seized power from Gen. Efrain Rios Montt.

—A senior Reagan administration official said Wednesday that a meeting between the government of El Salvador and leftist guerrillas trying to overthrow it would be a "logical step to look for soon."

Road has history of accident deaths

COACHELLA, Calif. (AP) — The half-century-old road dubbed "Blood Alley" for its "history of flaming accidents with multiple deaths" has added 11 more victims to the tally, all of them piled in a car being pursued by Border Patrol agents.

The narrow two-lane highway, which stretches flat and straight across monotonous miles of desert, has racked up 71 deaths in the last three years, including the 11 victims of Wednesday's wreck.

The fatalities, which occurred on a 68-mile segment of California Route 86, add up to "roughly three times higher than normal for such a road," said state Transportation Department spokesman James Larson.

"There has been a history of flaming accidents with multiple deaths along there," Larson said. "It's just, well, bone-jarring."

Those who died Wednesday were packed in a car that led Border Patrol agents on a 30-mile chase at speeds over 100 mph before running a stop sign and being hit broadside by a tractor-trailer truck about 120 miles east of Los Angeles, authorities said.

U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials said they believed the car was involved in smuggling illegal aliens. Neither the Border Patrol agents nor the driver of the hay truck was injured, authorities said.

Critics of the north-south highway between Brawley and Indio long have blamed its narrowness for the high death toll and Larson said plans to widen the road to four lanes could take up to 10 years.

The highway is "horrible...dangerous," said John Haagsma, who owned the $80,000 truck that collided with the car. "Everybody hates that road. They should have fixed it a long time ago."

The carnage has turned some citizens into crusaders seeking improvements on the road at a time when highway funds are tight.

Bill Freeman, 57, a retired air traffic controller from Coachella, said he founded the Highway 86 Improvement Association after a school bus carrying 52 children collided with two trucks in 1977.

A couple in one truck and two brothers in the other died in the flaming wreckage, but the children escaped serious injury.

"Fortunately, it was near one of our few populated areas along the road, and there were people nearby who were able to evacuate them," Freeman said.

In 1980, a bus driver and three students died when another school bus crashed on the highway about 25 miles south of Coachella.

Freeman blamed the accidents on a combination of drunken drivers, truckers who often make up 40 percent of the traffic, and the boredom and impatience of drivers trapped behind trucks, farm vehicles, and vacationers heading for the Salton Sea.

"They get backed up behind a long string, decide they're just going to pass, they pull out and they don't make it...head-on," he said.

Luck, however, has helped hold down the death toll and the 1977 school bus crash is just one example, Freeman said.

On July 16, at the same intersection where Wednesday's collision occurred, three Coachella residents were hurt when their car collided with a bus carrying 43 farm laborers. None of the workers was injured.

"So three weeks ago we had a situation in which 43 people could have died just as easily as those 11," Freeman said.

After 28 people died on the highway in 1980, the state posted signs in English and Spanish warning drivers to turn on their headlights when traveling the route. Freeman said the signs worked — for a time.

"It dropped to only six in 1981," he said. "But then, people got used to seeing headlights coming along and stopped paying as much attention."

In 1982, 20 people died in Highway 86 accidents, while six were killed in the first five months of this year.

Most gamblers not stopped by flood

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Most gamblers kept on playing but some waded out to snap photographs as roiling runoff from mountain rains roared through the Las Vegas Strip, sweeping away dozens of cars and turning some streets into 10-foot-deep rivers.

"I saw three cars floating down the street with no one at the wheel," said Leslie Chamberlain, who was walking home from work at the MGM Grand Hotel when the flood struck Wednesday. "I've never seen anything like it."

The intersection of Flamingo Boulevard and the Strip, where Caesars Palace, the Dunes Hotel and the Flamingo Hotel are located, looked like a lake, and helicopters plucked several people to safety.

"We were lucky we got out alive," said David L. Snipes, a vacationing St. Louis resident. "I had no idea this could happen in Las Vegas."

The floodwaters, which reached widths of 40 feet and depths of 10 feet in some areas before subsiding during the afternoon, carried desert palm fronds, railroad ties and driftwood from the Spring Mountains 10 miles to the west, authorities said. No injuries or deaths were reported, but property damage was estimated at more than $2 million, Clark County officials said.

"It just came all at once, it was just a wall of water," said Ed Hoffman, who lives on the Strip. Hoffman said he watched as a dozen cars were swept about three blocks and dumped in a heap.

"I watched them pull one man out of a car, and a helicopter lifted another guy off the roof of a truck," Hoffman said.

County employee David Grimble scrambled atop his street sweeper as four feet of water engulfed the vehicle. A crowd applauded as rescuers in a sheriff's helicopter lifted him from the roof.

Bee Duquette, manager of the Park Royal Apartments, said a Flight for Life helicopter rescued a couple from the roof of an adjoining apartment when water reached waist-high level.

"It was very bad, like a river," she said. "There were a lot of wrecked cars. It washed them right down the street and onto a field."

Gamblers at one casino, the Imperial Palace, were evacuated while barefoot hotel employees shoveled mud from the casino driveway. The establishment re-opened about an hour later.

At Caesars Palace, workers used sandbags to stop seepage into a convention room.

Students new to the Midland Independent School District and those transferring within the district must pre-register at the school which they plan to attend. Pre-registration for secondary students began Aug. 1 and continues through Aug. 26. Elementary pre-registration will be Monday. Those who cannot pre-register at that time should do so prior to Aug. 29. Hours for pre-registration are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Immunization records are required of all students pre-registering unless they are transferring within the district. State law mandates the following immunizations for all students: oral polio, DPT (diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus) and/or TD, measles and mumps. Pupils under the age of 12 must also receive a rubella vaccination.

A child must be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1 to enter first grade. Parents of kindergarten or first-grade children should bring the student's birth certificate in addition to immunization records.

Greenwood Independent School District anticipates fall enrollment to be 1,200. It has the addition of a new high school building this year. Although the building is not yet complete, all 27 classrooms should be in use the first day of classes. The old high school will now be used by fifth and sixth grades.

Among the private schools, Heritage School for children ages 3 to 5 is located at the Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely Ave. The school will enroll about 44 students this fall. Classes begin Sept. 5 and meet two to three days a week from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

Hillander School, 1600 W. Wadley Ave., will begin classes for students age three through the sixth grade Sept. 6. An enrollment of 380 students is expected.

Offering pre-school through 12th grade classes, Midland Christian School will have about 450 students this year. Classes are scheduled to begin Aug. 29 at the school, located at 2001 Culver St.

Midland Baptist Temple Schools, 3001 N. A St., offers accelerated Christian Education. Scheduled to begin Aug. 29 with an enrollment of 185, the self-paced program covers kindergarten through 12th grade.

The Accelerated School of Midland, 3411 Andrews Highway, expects about 50 kindergarten through ninth grade students. Classes begin Aug. 24.

Permian Basin High School will begin its third year Sept. 6. Enrollment is expected to be at least 50. Located at 3100 N. A St., the school teaches students in grades eight through 12.

St. Ann's School, 2000 W. Texas Ave., has an expected enrollment of 300. Students 4 years old through the sixth grade may enroll. Classes begin Aug. 29.

Trinity School, 3500 W. Wadley Ave., offers classes for 3- to 5-year-olds and first through ninth grades. School will begin Sept. 6 with a student enrollment of 475.

Hightower pleads for federal disaster aid

White said in a letter to Block that the drought-stricken area normally would have received 6.26 inches of rain during the last six months. But Van Horn has had less than an inch, Fort Stockton only 1.26 inches, Pecos 1.48 inches and Presidio only 1.3 inches.

Hightower said cattle herds in the 27-county area have been reduced 50 to 60 percent by ranchers who simply could not afford to feed them.

"Real people are suffering real harm while the secretary of agriculture is waiting on another weather report," he said. "He has the power to help these people right now, and we're calling on him to use it.

"First, he should do what we asked him two months ago — implement the Emergency Feed Grain Program," Hightower said. "This simply gives the ranchers a small price break on the feed they are having to buy to keep their cattle and sheep alive. Three cents a pound is the maximum a rancher can receive under this program, but that can be the difference between survival and bankruptcy."

Hightower said Block should release more than 17 million bushels of government-owned corn being stored in the Texas Panhandle that could be used for livestock feed.

"We need these actions now. The losses from the drought had already reached disaster proportion when Gov. White and I called this to Secretary Block's attention June 21," said Hightower. "Since then, as many as 20 percent of the area ranchers have been forced out of business, and virtually all of them have been forced to liquidate most of their herds."

Victims killed at close range, pathologist says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A pathologist told a state district court jury that autopsies he performed on five victims of an execution-style slaying indicated they died from .22-caliber bullets fired less than a foot from their heads.

The state rested its case against capital murder defendant Linda May Burnett, 35, a Nederland housewife, after the testimony Wednesday of Dr. Stanley LeBer of Beaumont.

The start of the defense case was set to get under way today. Ms. Burnett's trial in connection with the slaying of Martha Phillips of Woodward, Okla., was moved here on a change of venue from Beaumont.

Ms. Burnett and Joe Dugas were convicted and sentenced to die when they were tried previously on charges they murdered Jason Phillips. Dugas was shot to death two months ago during an apparent escape attempt and an appeals court overturned Ms. Burnett's conviction because a tape-recorded conversation she had with a hypnotist was used against her.

LeBer testified that he watched investigators remove the bodies of Mrs. Phillips; her husband, Elmer; their son, Jason, 3; and Elmer's parents, Bishop and Ester Phillips, from a grave in Gilbert Woods, about 10 miles from the Bishop Phillips residence near Winnie on July 9, 1978.

Bishop Noel Phillips Jr. of New Caney testified his father would have "resisted until he couldn't breathe again" if forced to leave his home against his will. Phillips said his father would have left only if an assailant had threatened his wife or grandchild.

Richard and Roy Dugas testified earlier that their brother, Joe Dugas, told them that an unidentified woman helped him kill the Phillips family.

Richard Dugas testified that Joe Dugas blamed Bishop and Ester Phillips for the breakup of his marriage to the Phillips' daughter, Mary.

State District Judge Larry Gist refused Wednesday to grant Carver's motion for an instructed verdict of innocent.

Carver contended that prosecutors failed to prove Dugas and Mrs. Burnett conspired to murder Martha Phillips.

W.E. Whitworth, who was the one-man station agent for 17 years in Winnie, Texas, stands in front of the Santa Fe depot that is at least 85 years old. The depot was closed in June when Santa Fe rerouted all the business to its Beaumont terminal.

Once a hub of activity, now it's a lonely place

WINNIE, Texas (AP) — The old Santa Fe depot stands empty now. The railroad tracks on both sides are still. A few rusty pop and beer cans litter the front entrance to the depot.

Loneliness marks the spot that used to be the hub of activity in Winnie. The Santa Fe Railroad closed the depot in June and rerouted all the business to its Beaumont terminal.

"They pretty well stripped it," says W.E. Whitworth. He was the one-man station agent here for 17 years. He unlocks the side door to show the barren shell to visitors.

"This depot is at least 85 years old," Whitworth says. His eyes wander around the old room with its wooden floor and high ceiling. A few old desks, chairs, and signs on the walls remain.

Whitworth sat in an old desk in front of the bay windows with their ripped shades. From this spot he had a good view of traffic up and down the tracks.

"At one time, they had quite an office force," he says. "The depot used to have considerable cattle shipments. There was a daily passenger train until the early '40s. Course, way back most everything that came to this area was handled by train," he said.

A full wastebasket still sits quietly by the desk. The June 1983 calendar also was left behind; in the June 19 space, the words "closing date, W.E. Whitworth" are penned in.

Whitworth talks freely about his old job. It was work he enjoyed. There was time for talk with the train engineers and freight operators then. Some of Winnie's oldtimers would stop in and talk about the bygone glory days of train travel.

Whitworth points out the window to the spot where a big rooming house stood years ago. He tells about the cattle freight that ranchers shipped out nationwide. "The cattle would sleep in the street until the trains came to get them," Whitworth says.

As he talks, he wipes grainy dust off the countertop where paperwork used to flow, and then steps out the screen door to butt a cigarette.

"Up until four or five years ago, we had 200 rail cars a week here," Whitworth says. They carried fertilizer and lumber. "We used to handle a tremendous volume of crushed limestone from Central Texas," he adds.

Trains still come through now and then, but they no longer stop here. Like Whitworth, they've been relocated to Beaumont.

Whitworth has spent the last few weeks learning how to operate a computer at the Santa Fe terminal in Beaumont. He makes the 30-minute drive daily and starts work in the late afternoon.

"It's really another world — an entire change from what I'm accustomed to," he says. For 22 of his 27 years with Santa Fe, Whitworth has worked in a one-man station. Now he's surrounded by computer terminals, radios and telephones.

Council to study placement of hazardous waste dumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possible placement of hazardous waste dumps on federal land will be studied by a Cabinet council headed by Interior Secretary James Watt, according to the government's top property specialist.

"No specific sites will be under discussion," Joshua Muss, head of the Property Review Board, said Wednesday night. "It's a discussion in a generic sense.

"The federal government owns vast tracts of land. We have to see what the criteria are," he said.

The Cabinet council, one of several that meet periodically to discuss issues that fall in several departmental jurisdictions, will take up the issue today.

AT&T strike goes into fifth day

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike against American Telephone & Telegraph Co. went into its fifth day today as a federal mediator tried to get stalled negotiations moving.

"We don't seem to be any closer to getting back to the bargaining table," John Shaughnessy, president of the Telecommunications International Union who requested intervention by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said late Wednesday.

"I don't know how much it's going to accomplish, but anything's worth trying," he added.

The TIU represents 50,000 of the 675,000 workers who struck AT&T Sunday over wages, job security and working conditions. The other two unions are the Communications Workers of America, which represents 525,000 workers, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, representing 100,000.

"Nothing is moving," was the way CWA spokeswoman Rozanne Weissman characterized the situation late Wednesday. She said that although the CWA did not request mediation, the mediator "is apprised of everything that's going on."

The mediator made preliminary contact with AT&T negotiators, but "it was so preliminary it's too early even to speculate" whether a formal meeting might take place soon between the company and TIU representatives, said Edie Herman, AT&T spokeswoman. The company said earlier it saw no need for mediation at this point.

Brian Flores, district director of the mediation service, said the mediator would attempt to see if there was any basis on which to call a formal meeting. But, referring to the fact that the TIU is the smallest of the three striking unions, Flores said "the chances of a tail-wagging-the-dog situation are not too good."

That left talks at the same informal level they have been since the walkout, with no progress reported toward resolving the labor dispute that has put thousands of telephone workers on picket lines across the country.

Meanwhile, several cases of violence and property damage have been reported around the country. A Des Moines, Iowa, woman said she was unable to get an operator at strikebound Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. to report a fire at a neighbor's home.

Firefighters, estimating loss at "thousands and thousands" of dollars, said a motor home, garage, pickup truck and motorcycle were destroyed in the blaze and the house was heavily damaged.

Northwestern Bell spokesman Ed Mattix said he had no record of the call and was unable to determine what happened.

AT&T supervisors and executives have been filling in for the strikers. The company says there has been no breakdown of service because of the strike, but there are delays in getting operator assistance and repairs.

Warsaw-based Solidarity members ask supporters to stage marches

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Warsaw-based members of the Solidarity underground are asking supporters to stage marches on Aug. 31 to mark the third anniversary of the Gdansk accords which created the independent labor union.

A leaflet signed by fugitive Solidarity leaders from Warsaw and handed to Western correspondents today repeated the movement's earlier nationwide call for a boycott of public transportation from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Aug. 31.

Further, the leaflet called for a "demonstrative march from work places whenever work ends."

Most Polish offices close and most factories change shifts in midafternoon.

Druse militiamen release hostages

Lebanese Cabinet ministers unharmed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist Druse militiamen today released unharmed three Cabinet ministers they had abducted in the Israeli-occupied Chouf mountains to try to force the resignation of the Lebanese government, sources close to the government said.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said the ministers were on their way from the Chouf town of Moukhtara, where they were held after their abduction Wednesday night, to the presidential palace in the Beirut suburb of Baabda.

The three were Adel Hamiyeh, minister of finance and a Druse; Pierre Khoury, minister of public works and a Maronite Christian, and Adnan Mroweh, minister of labor and public health and a Shiite Moslem.

No details were disclosed as to why the abductors had freed the officials.

The sources said President Amin Gemayel called Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan and the other six Cabinet ministers to an emergency session in Baabda before the expected arrival of the freed ministers.

Gemayel also talked by telephone with President Reagan, state a privately owned radio stations said.

According to the broadcasts, Reagan and Gemayel discussed ways of curbing the latest wave of violence in Lebanon that includes repeated bombardments of Beirut's international airport, ongoing clashes between the Lebanese army and Druse militiamen and the abduction of the three ministers.

The Voice of Lebanon, radio station of the militant Maronite Christian Phalange Party, also reported the three ministers had been released.

Earlier reports from Damascus said only Mroweh had been released and sent to Beirut with a list of 10 demands set by Druse leftist leader Walid Jumblatt for the freedom of the other ministers and an end to the Druse bombardment of the airport.

All radio stations reported that army positions around the airport and elsewhere on the outskirts of the capital were pounding Druse positions on the neighboring hills and mountains in retaliation for the renewed bombardment of the airport.

One radio station said the government house was on fire in the Druse town of Shweifat.

THE BETTER HALF

"Jogging, my foot! You were chasing the ice cream truck!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, August 12, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The imaginative Mexican actor Cantinflas, U.S. Senator Dale Bumpers (D-Ark.), photographer John Derek, actor George Hamilton, country star Buck Owens and actress Jane Wyatt share this birthday with you. Also born on this date: Hall of Fame baseball pitcher Christy Mathewson and legendary producer Cecil B. DeMille. You need to assume more direct control over your life. Certain so-called friends may not be acting in your best interests. People you meet socially could help you in business. Count on your hospitality being richly rewarded in December or January. A late summer romance draws widespread attention. A financial situation can be turned around.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You could win a vacation trip soon! Store any important information you receive today for future use. Look for bargains when shopping. You need to spend more time with small fry.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your intuition serves you better than logic right now. Tend to domestic chores early in the day and use any spare time in a productive fashion. Singles give serious thought to marriage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Postpone making an important decision until more facts are known. Go over bank statements and check insurance coverage. Home life will be calmer if you discuss touchy subjects with greater tact.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): More creativity and less spending will result in better work conditions. Balance ambition with a desire for harmony. A get-together with an old school mate could lead to romance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A good day to lay the foundations for a successful future. Use your powers of persuasion to put across your ideas. Travel brings good results. Keep in touch with home base!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Others may be difficult to deal with today. Use your tact and imagination. Do not let a friend pass out of your life. Catch up on your phone calls and correspondence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not commit yourself to a project until you have more information. You may prefer to stay loose and work independently. Questions about mutual resources could make loved one nervous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accepting new responsibilities will put you in line for a promotion or raise. Travel is in the wind. Romance looks great! You get a chance to combine business with pleasure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your social life picks up. Do not let it interfere with work. Concentrate on your obligations before turning your attention to pleasure! Refuse to get drawn into office politics.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A teenager's rebellion could be a plea for help. Put first things first. A quiet talk in different surroundings could reveal a solution. Look around if you need financial backing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You enjoy remarkable rapport with an attractive member of the opposite sex. New romance is possible if you go slow. Seek expert advice on any financial problems. Weekend reservations should be double-checked.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your loved ones are in an upbeat mood. Lively friends introduce you to exciting new friends. Avoid all sensitive subjects on first meetings.

Actor turns into star at last

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard Farnsworth was asked how it felt to be a star after 46 years in movies.

"It sure beats fallin' on the hard ground," he replied.

Starting in 1937 with Gary Cooper's "The Adventures of Marco Polo," Farnsworth fell on the hard ground of many a movie set as a stunt double. When you saw Henry Fonda, Kirk Douglas or Ronald Reagan taking a tumble from their horses, it was likely that Farnsworth got the bruises.

Now he's appearing in his own starring role as the crusty old desperado Bill Miner in "The Grey Fox," a Canadian-made film directed by Phillip Borsos.

The film and Farnsworth's performance have been drawing rave reviews. Vincent Canby of the New York Times declared the actor "has the sort of face the camera adores...(he is) a delight, his face an ever-changing landscape of the soon-to-be-vanished frontier."

In the Canadian equivalent of the Academy Awards, "The Grey Fox" won 13 nominations and eight awards, including Farnsworth as best foreign actor. He leaves soon for Buffalo, N.Y., to start filming "The Natural" with Robert Redford and Robert Duvall.

There's no danger of all this attention going to Farnsworth's head. He has seen too many stars come and go from the Hollywood landscape.

He is a quiet-spoken, modest man who looks all of his 63 years, perhaps because of all the knocks and bounces he has taken in front of the camera.

"I guess you might say that 'The Grey Fox' is a kind of Cinderella story for me," Farnsworth says. "When I was a kid, I read in the western magazines about a skinny old guy with a moustache who came out of San Quentin after 30 years for stage robbing and tried his hand at train robbing.

"Forty-two years later, I end up playing him in a movie. I guess I grew into him."

Farnsworth readily admitted that he wasn't the first choice of director Borsos — "he wanted Harry Dean Stanton, but Harry was tied up with that picture for Coppola, 'One From the Heart.' When I saw the script, it read easier than a lot of the supporting roles I have played. I had no qualms about playing the lead role."

Though he did his own riding, including some work with trains, Farnsworth understandably declined a 200-foot fall from a cliff, because an injury can hold up production for weeks.

"So my son, Richard Jr., did the fall," he says. "Picked up $1,500. Not bad for falling off a cliff."

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

There are some general rules of card play that you are taught early in your bridge career. It is important to learn the exceptions to those rules as well.

North could hardly believe his ears when he heard his partner open the bidding with one spade. He launched into Blackwood and bid the grand slam when he learned he was off only one king. Not very scientific perhaps, but quite adequate.

West led the ten of clubs and the hand was soon over. Declarer was Dick Frey, chairman of the Goren Editorial Board and Life Master No. 8. He knew that this was not the time to follow the old bromide: "First cash an honor from the hand with two or more honors."

Missing four trumps to the J-10, there is only one way to pick up the suit if the trumps break 4-0. That is to hope that the hand in front of the two honors has the trumps, and to take two finesses.

So Frey rose with the ace of clubs and led a trump to his ace. When East showed out, declarer was rewarded for his foresight. He continued with a trump. Had West not split his honors, declarer would have finessed the eight. When West went in with the ten, declarer won the queen, returned to his hand with the king of diamonds, and repeated the spade finesse. The rest was easy.

Our readers will have noted that seven no trump is a slightly superior contract. Had East held all four trumps, the grand slam in spades would have failed. But seven no trump could still have been made had the jack of diamonds come down in three rounds.

Farmers remember

During his 1980 campaign for president, Ronald Reagan was swept into office in no small part because Texas' farmers and ranchers took a gamble that this Republican might understand their particularly difficult problems. Now that his administration has heard tales of hardship imposed by the worst drought in Texas in decades and still refused drought assistance, you likely couldn't find a farmer or rancher who would vote for Reagan for dog-catcher — and for good reason!

The drought West Texas is suffering through is no laughing matter. Some counties in this area haven't received normal rainfall amounts in three seasons or more and the lack of moisture is taking its toll. Here in Midland County, for example, less than three inches of rain have fallen since Jan. 1. That denotes extremely dry conditions, but Midlanders really are fortunate compared to some of our West Texas neighbors. At least Midland received near normal rainfall last year.

The drought assistance sought by Congressman Tom Loeffler, Gov. Mark White and others is urgently needed — not to ensure that cattlemen and farmers will be able to keep their incomes at average levels, but just in order for them to stay in business. Farmers and ranchers more often than not live on next year's "crop" and for the past three or four years in some West Texas counties, next year's crop simply hasn't materialized because of drought conditions.

Now many agribusinessmen are being forced to sell off their cattle because of the necessity of feeding expensive feed. The option of rangeland feeding just doesn't exist in many West Texas counties. But selling off their cattle only adds insult to injury because the money they receive for the cattle they sell can push agribusinessmen into higher income tax brackets, which means they wind up paying more tax — thanks to the drought!

This is a nasty situation that agribusinessmen aren't going to forget overnight. Farmers and cattlemen are in dire straits and the government they rely on only when they must has turned its back on them. How callous!

We urge President Reagan to use his powers of persuasion to convince Agriculture Secretary John Block to reconsider West Texas agriculture's plight. Help is available in several forms — Small Business Administration loans, disaster tax-forgiveness for emergency sales of cattle and the like. If he doesn't act, agribusinessmen will remember.

Bloodshed on Ceylon

Communal violence, of the kind that has stained modern India's brief history of independence with blood, continues to plague independent Sri Lanka.

The Hindu minority of Tamils has bred a separatist movement with a militant terrorist fringe. The Buddhist majority of Sinhalese, who control the government, reacts strongly.

Rioting and arson attacks have claimed more than 200 lives in the latest outburst. The green and beautiful island, formerly called Ceylon, is increasingly overcrowded. As population pressures mount, it must not become a charnel house.

Our government should express its concern and, while fully respecting the sovereignty of the government in Colombo, offer its good services to prevent further bloodshed.

Another View:
Don't dump IMF

Reluctantly, and by the narrow margin of 217-211, the House of Representatives voted, just before beginning its summer recess, to increase the U.S. contribution to the International Monetary Fund's lending authority by $8.4 billion, part of a global effort to raise the IMF's total resources by roughly 50 percent, to about $100 billion. The close House vote — and the amendments that had to be tacked on to obtain even that vote — reflected conservative suspicions of multilateral lending institutions and more general resentment that the IMF increase will have the net effect of bailing out large U.S. banks from a number of unwise loans.

It makes no sense, however, to punish the banks if the gesture imperils worldwide recovery from a long and painful recession. And the House amendments could very well cripple the bill when House and Senate conferees meet in September to reconcile differences between them. These amendments should be scrapped, and any action to chastise over-eager bankers should not be allowed to sabotage a concerted international effort to stimulate economic recovery.

For one thing, bankers don't deserve all the blame. The U.S. government was in the vanguard of those urging them to increase their international lending back in the mid-1970s. At the time, Western financial institutions were inundated with dollars earned by oil-exporting nations — from the enormous increases in petroleum prices — which the domestic market couldn't begin to absorb. So bankers began lending them to those who needed help most — developing countries that were least able to afford higher oil prices. Hardly anyone, and certainly few in Congress, foresaw the length and depth of the international recession that followed and the problem that would result in debt repayment.

Moreover, the congressional desire to avoid such shaky loans in the future fails to anticipate the likely consequences of putting onerous restrictions on banks' handling of new and rescheduled international loans. Forcing them to limit fees on loan rollovers could discourage banks from lending at all, as would an amendment limiting the interest rates they could charge to the same level that top-rated corporate borrowers pay. International banks already are balking at meeting developing nations' continued need for credit, and punitive legislation would, if anything, deter them further.

The timing of such a cutback couldn't be worse, for it would deprive debtor nations of funds needed now for economic growth and for imports to sustain that growth — imports that come in large part from the United States. Without sustained growth, some of those countries wouldn't even be able to pay the interest on their debt, a situation that would strike directly at the balance sheets of American banks, and, ultimately, at the entire U.S. economy.

ART BUCHWALD
Nature's will can't leave man much

The other night I was home reading a book when I received a telephone call that Mother Nature was dying. I dressed hurriedly and rushed over to the hospital. A lot of people had gotten there before me, and they were all sitting in the waiting room crying and wringing their hands. I searched out the doctors who were in another room having a heated argument as to how to save her. Each doctor seemed to have a different remedy:

Art Buchwald

One doctor said, "We have to get her some fresh air. She can't breathe. We'll have to turn off the power plant because of the smoke."

"Are you out of your mind?" another doctor said. "We turn off the power, and she'll freeze to death."

"Perhaps we could keep all cars away from the hospital," a third doctor suggested. "That would relieve her breathing."

"Out of the question," a fourth doctor barked. "How would we get back and forth to work if we prohibited cars near the hospital?"

"Gentlemen," another doctor said, "I don't believe it's the air that is hurting her as much as the water. We have to find some water that's drinkable. Strong measures must be taken immediately against polluting hospital water."

The director said, "Where would we get the money to support the hospital if we closed down the factories because they're polluting the streams?"

"We'd also have to give up detergents," a doctor added, "and we can't have a clean hospital if you give up detergents."

"Isn't anybody going to do anything?" I shouted.

They saw me for the first time, and one of the doctors said angrily, "We're sorry, this is a medical conference for professionals only. Would you kindly leave?"

I walked out and down the hall. Suddenly I saw a closed room, which had the name MOTHER NATURE hand-printed on the door. Underneath it, in large red letters, was another sign: NO VISITORS.

No one was in the hall, so I opened the door. There was Mother Nature propped up on pillows. She looked old and tired and haggard. I couldn't believe anyone could have changed so much in 10 short years. But she seemed glad to see someone and smiled weakly.

"Hi, Ma," I said. "You're looking swell."

"You wouldn't kid a very sick lady, would you?" she said, gasping.

"No, I'm not kidding. You look wonderful. I've just been talking to the doctors, and they say they'll have you on your feet in no time."

"Those quacks don't know anything," she said. "All they do is come in every few hours and take my temperature and give me something to relieve the pain. I think I've had it this time."

"Don't talk that way, Ma. You're going to pull through. You've survived worse things than this before."

"It's never been this bad," she said and then started having a coughing fit. "This time the Grim Reaper's coming to get me."

"But if you go, we'll all have to go, Ma," I cried. "You have to hold on. Please, Ma."

"I kept complaining of pain," she whispered, "but no one would pay attention to me. I said, 'If you keep doing what you're doing, I'm going to die.' But everyone said, 'Ma, you'll never die.' Why didn't they listen to me?"

"We're listening now, Ma. We're listening. We have the best doctors in the world. They're out there now, and they have a plan."

"I guess the real thing that hurts," she said, "is that my will won't be worth anything now. I left every person in the world clear water, pure air, green fields, brilliant sunsets and blue skies. It wasn't much, but it was everything I had."

Just then the door opened and a nurse came in.

She went over to the bed waving a thermometer.

"Come on, Mother. It's time to take your temperature."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
Castro: Cautiously committed

WASHINGTON — Fidel Castro, the unruly ruler of Cuba and the godfather of Marxist revolutions in the Americas, has been undergoing long-distance psychoanalysis by U.S. intelligence experts for almost a quarter of a century. Along with the gray hairs that are overtaking his beard, he has displayed certain changes in behavior. For instance:

Jack Anderson

— Once a boozer and womanizer, Castro has now become something of an ascetic. Vodka and rum no longer seem to give him the same stimulation. He has even cut down on his beloved cigars. And the women who once shared his private life have died. His work has become his true mistress, the psychological analysts have concluded.

— On July 26, 1953, Castro led a group of students in a dangerous, almost suicidal attack on a government barracks. The failed attempt resulted in death for most of the rebels and imprisonment for Castro. To the analysts, the suicidal nature of the attack demonstrated his willingness to take desperate risks. But he has now become more canny and cautious. At the massing of U.S. military power in Central America, for example, he began sending up conciliatory smoke signals.

— In the 1950s, Castro burst into the communist world still an unformed entity, a flamboyant figure among drab, almost anonymous Marxist leaders, an unguided missile apt to veer off in any trajectory. He chafed over the rigidity of communist dogma and bristled when the Kremlin tried to tell him what to do. But today, he is a hard-bitten, calculating communist who is regarded by the Kremlin as a most dependable puppet.

The grim communist experience, however, has not put out the fire in Castro. He remains a looming presence on the international scene by virtue of a dramatic flair and a genius for propaganda. He has a tendency to present himself to the world in a series of triumphal speeches, with rhetoric that raises the hair on the back of the neck.

The psychoanalysts admire his incredible memory for detail. He rumbles and roars for hours at a time, artfully composing his speeches as he goes, without notes or teleprompter. He has the oratorical artillery, the brains and the guile to create a great deal of mischief whenever a fortuitous conjunction of events arise.

Castro's personal life fascinates the analysts. He was born through a union of his middle-class father and the Castro family maid. He went to a Catholic school, then to university and law school, where he reportedly carried a gun and was a campus bully.

He was also something of a rake. He drank heavily, smoked great quantities of cigars and had many transient love affairs. Though he never married, he did father a son by an unidentified mistress.

Castro had at least one lasting, intimate relationship — with Celia Sanchez. She was close to him in the earliest days of the revolution, and over the years became both lover and confidante. He trusted her completely; in fact, she was the one who chose where he would sleep — a different place every night.

Sanchez died in 1980, and there are reports that Castro has never completely recovered from her death. Not only was she a humanizing influence on him, but he now has few people he can trust the way he trusted Sanchez.

The only other woman known to be close to Castro, named Santa Maria, committed suicide the same year — reportedly in despair over the direction the revolution had taken.

Two things have dominated Castro's life — his overwhelming ambition and his hatred of the United States. Ironically, more than two decades of hostility and plotting by U.S. presidents have helped to give Castro an exalted status among Yankee-hating nations that he would not otherwise have. So while he hates us, he depends on Washington's enmity to further his dreams of bigger things.

TURF TUSSLE: A former congressman and a former newspaperman are rattling the teacups in Foggy Bottom, where both want to play a leading role in U.S. policy toward Eastern Europe. The two turf battlers are Ed Derwinski, counselor to the State Department, and Richard Burt, assistant secretary of state for European affairs.

In his 22 years as a Republican congressman from Illinois, Derwinski was deeply involved in Eastern European matters; he hoped to have some influence in that area at the State Department. But Burt, a former New York Times reporter, is guarding his authority and reportedly cuts Derwinski out of the decision-making process whenever he can.

Part of the feud may be the generation gap: Derwinski is 56; Burt, 35. A World War II infantryman, Derwinski was first elected to Congress when Burt was 10 years old. There's also a personality clash: Derwinski is affable and outspoken, used to the freewheeling atmosphere of Capitol Hill; Burt is polished and cool.

GEORGE F. WILL
Candidates showing weaknesses

WASHINGTON — Heeding a trumpet that sometimes calls retreat, Alan Cranston's campaign operatives recently went on a weekend retreat to almost-heaven West Virginia to decide what to do next. They should have come to Chevy Chase, Md., and asked me.

George F. Will

Cranston should announce that, starting now, his running mate will be Rep. Parren Mitchell (D-Md.). (Actually, this idea comes from a Democratic professional who has the instincts of a saboteur, including the instinct for anonymity.)

Let us assume Mitchell would be willing. He is a serious, even professorial (he is a lapsed professor), seven-term legislator. He practices Cranstonesque liberalism. And he is black. If Cranston can attract the lion's share of the severe liberals who, because of their intensity, are disproportionately important in the nominating process, and if he can add a large number of black voters, he may win large enough pluralities in early primaries, and then, who knows?

The country may not be ready on Nov. 6, 1984, for a Cranston-Mitchell ticket. But since when is it required, or even cricket, to think of the general election when scrambling for the nomination?

Would the choice of a running mate a year before the convention be considered an act of desperation? Perhaps. Ronald Reagan's choice of Richard Schweiker before the 1976 convention was an act of desperation. And it did not work. It did not pull Pennsylvania delegates and others to Reagan. But Cranston, like most of his competitors, will be desperate soon enough. Besides, the act would be coated with high principle: The voters in primaries deserve to know as much as possible about what they might end up stuck with.

Daydreaming about potential running mates is a useful exercise for illuminating the strengths and problems of particular presidential candidates. For example, Walter Mondale should choose Lee Iacocca.

Mondale has what can perhaps be called Norwegian charisma. It is, no doubt, stirring to other Americans of Norwegian descent, but there are not enough of them. Iacocca is the Rice Krispies of corporate America, full of snap, crackle and pop. Or, as a Democratic professional says, Mondale is like Chinese food: He needs MSG (monosodium glutamate) to give him punch. Iacocca is MSG.

Mondale has acquired a reputation as a candidate who is too cautious by half. Choosing Iacocca would show a capacity for surprise and risk-taking. Furthermore, as keeper of the flame of Hubert Humphrey's politics, Mondale is in danger of being perceived as the Last Liberal, someone who has sweet intentions but no knack for turning them into policy successes. Well, think of federal domestic programs as a kind of collective Chrysler Corporation, circa 1979....

I hear Democrats say that John Glenn should choose New York's governor, Mario Cuomo. Cuomo, they say, would cure Glenn's Midwestitis, which is a form of ethnicity deficiency. Besides, Italian-Americans are increasingly important, from coast-to-coast. One runs Yale and, even more impressive, one manages the Los Angeles Dodgers. (The Dodgers are doing better than Yale but not as well as Chrysler, which is run by....)

Many Italian-Americans are Republicans. Many blue-collar Catholic Democrats have been voting Republican regularly. That is one reason why New Jersey has gone Republican in the last four presidential elections. Many Democrats who see New Jersey as a symbol of their party's problems say something must be done and that Cuomo as vice president is the something.

On the other hand there are those who say that if Democrats can not count on most of their ethnic base and most of the industrial Northeast, they are in terrible trouble, given their problems in the South and West. Because of those problems, the nominating process is an ordeal to determine who shall have the pleasure of picking as his running mate Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.).

One complaint about Bentsen is (in the words of one Democrat) that he probably had white upholstery in his living room even when the kids were young. That is, he is too polished and well-tailored to cause Democratic pulses to race. But what will get Democrats energized is the idea that Reagan wants nuclear war in order to blow up the Social Security System.

Besides, Glenn does not believe in ideologically "balanced" — that is, mixed — tickets. Such a ticket means that a heart attack can frustrate an electoral mandate. Bentsen is more like Glenn than Cuomo is. If Bentsen's record and manner are somewhat businesslike, well, the Democratic Party's problem has not recently been that it seems too sober when handling the public purse.

And two more things. No Republican has won the presidency without carrying Ohio. And no Democrat has won without carrying Texas.

Bus manufacturer files suit

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Metropolitan Transit Authority renegged on a contract to buy 50 buses, a Colorado bus manufacturer charges in a $3.9 million lawsuit against the authority.

Neoplan USA, of Lamar, Colo., charged in the suit filed in a Houston federal court Tuesday that Metro acquiesced to political pressure when it backed out of a plan to buy the buses.

Metro's contracting officer confirmed on May 5, 1983, that Neoplan had been awarded the bus purchase contract, but the Texas Legislature 19 days later adopted a resolution urging Metro to cancel the agreement and deal with a Texas company, the suit says.

The contract with Neoplan later was canceled, the suit says.

After he heard Neoplan was going to file the suit, MTA General Manager Alan Kiepper said the contract never was awarded to Neoplan.

Explosions send 6 to hospital

HOUSTON (AP) — Explosions at a chemical fire at a Houston warehouse sent four Houston firefighters and two company employees to area hospitals with chemical burns, officials said.

Although all were treated at local hospitals, none were critically injured, officials said.

The fire of unknown origin began during an electrical storm at about 4 p.m. Wednesday in a Ceramco Co. warehouse in northwest Houston and was under control an hour later.

District Fire Chief R.E. Swisher said drums containing chemicals used to make paint thinner were stored in the warehouse. He said 10 explosions occurred within a 20-minute period, spraying chemicals on the firemen.

The metal frame building partially caved in from the heat and explosions.

The injured firefighters, who were not immediately identified, were taken to Hermann Hospital in good condition with chemical burns to their faces, arms and hands.

One employee was treated and released from Sam Houston Memorial Hospital. The second employee was in satisfactory condition.

Elderly woman loses first round

HOUSTON (AP) — Minnie Samuels, an 81-year-old woman who was charged and later cleared of allegedly pointing a gun at a city van driver, has lost the first round of an eviction appeals process.

A hearing board of the Houston Housing Authority on Wednesday upheld an eviction notice against Mrs. Samuels, of Allen Parkway Village, who was accused of threatening an authority employee with a weapon.

The authority employee testified at the hearing that Mrs. Samuels, a 17-year resident of Allen Parkway Village, never pointed a weapon at him, said her attorney, Grant Hardeway.

The hearing board was comprised of two authority representatives, two Allen Parkway Village residents and a disinterested party, Hardeway said.

He said the case would be appealed to the board of directors of the authority.

Construction could be hampered

HOUSTON (AP) — Legal disagreements over the sale of a Houston hospital could delay or kill construction of a state-county psychiatric hospital, an official said.

About $7.5 million from the sale of the Center Pavilion Hospital is earmarked for a 250-bed, state-county mental hospital scheduled to open in Houston in 1985.

But because of legal problems, the Center's most recent auction, which brought a winning bid of more than $11 million from real estate developer Edward Scott, has not been consummated.

Lightning hits tank of acid

PORT NECHES, Texas (AP) — Lightning ripped through a fiberglass tank storing sulfuric acid at one of Texaco Chemical's Mid-County facilities Tuesday, triggering a fire that eventually damaged two similar tanks, officials said.

No one was injured in the incident at the company's Neches Chemical Plant, company spokesman Charles H. Rentz said.

A massive afternoon thunderstorm system stretching from north of Houston to Beaumont spawned the lightning, officials said.

Fire crews from Texaco's own fire department and Port Neches had the fire contained in about 25 minutes, Rentz said.

Inmate helping governor's cause

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Gov. Mark White is getting some help in his campaign to raise teacher salaries from a 31-year-old death row inmate registered as a lobbyist against capital punishment.

"Mark White may not be too thrilled to hear where he's getting a little help," said Billy George Hughes, who was sentenced to die by injection for the slaying of a state trooper.

Hughes said Wednesday he is writing all 181 Texas lawmakers and pushing for pay increases to get qualified teachers who will work with troubled children.

"Kids who get into trouble at school are usually the ones having problems at home or with drugs. Expell them from school and they'll end up on the streets, some of them in prison. Once they're given up on in school, it's all downhill," Hughes said.

Hughes was convicted in the 1976 shooting death of trooper Mark Frederick, 25, of Bellville. Frederick was shot as he walked toward Hughes' car to question him about a stolen credit card.

Hughes, who ran a horseshoeing business in Fairhope, Ala., before his conviction, has denied shooting the trooper. He said shots were fired at him as he reached into the glove compartment to get his vehicle registration.

Hughes, who voices his arguments in letters from the Texas Department of Corrections Ellis Unit, north of Huntsville, said he "went into politics" because he wanted to let lawmakers know that "death row inmates are human beings too."

During the last session of the Legislature, Hughes said, he sent letters to every state senator and representative, arguing for alternatives to the death penalty. About 30 lawmakers responded, he said.

He said he's making the same effort to urge higher salaries for teachers.

Woman attends funeral of man who gave her husband heart

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Vicky Willis left her husband's bedside to attend the funeral of Leslie Smith, a man she had never met.

Thanks to Smith's family, who donated the man's organs, Mrs. Willis' husband is getting a second chance at life.

"I couldn't get it out of my head," Mrs. Willis said.

Smith died Sunday of injuries he suffered three days earlier from a bicycle accident in Stillwater, Minn.

Mrs. Willis' husband, Pat, 36, may live because of the transplant. Doctors transplanted the St. Paul, Minn., man's heart into Willis in a 7½-hour operation Sunday night at University of Minnesota Hospital.

Willis, who lives in the Dallas area, suffers from cardiomyopathy, a heart condition in which the heart enlarges as the muscle tissue degenerates, turning fibrotic. Two younger brothers have died from the same ailment.

He had been hospitalized since late May and flown in June by air ambulance to Minneapolis.

"He did fine. The new heart was a very good one," Dr. R. Morton "Chip" Bolman, chief surgeon of the heart transplant team, told the Dallas Times Herald.

Smith suffered a head injury in the bicycle crash. He had been in excellent physical condition, drank rarely and did not smoke, officials said.

Mrs. Willis said she meant to be an anonymous visitor at Smith's funeral Wednesday but was moved, she said, when the officiating Catholic priest said, "Even though Leslie is gone, he's touched lives. His heart beats gladly in the body of another man."

She decided to introduce herself to the priest, she said.

"I asked an usher if I could see 'the father,' and he brought me Randy Smith, the father of the man who died. So I told him who I was," she said.

"He grabbed me. We just held each other, maybe for two minutes. He was just so genuinely happy. He told me to be sure to let him know how Pat is doing. He really, really wants to know. I think this gives meaning to his son's death."

Bolman, the surgeon, said Willis took a turn for the worse last week.

"We all thought he was going to die. His kidneys were starting to fail. For a couple of days, he was too sick to transplant, even if we'd gotten a heart," Bolman said.

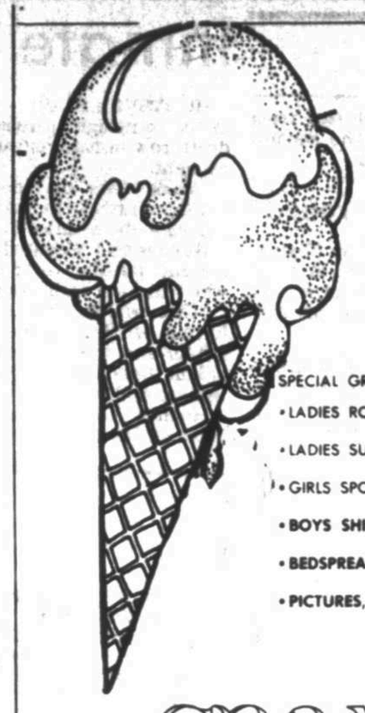

Doctors installed an intra-aortic balloon pump which kept Willis' heart pumping. They told Mrs. Willis her husband had "about a week."

"I felt he was being kept alive beyond his time for a reason," she said.

News that a donor heart was available came Sunday night, and doctors took Willis into the operating room immediately. Willis was in surgery until almost 4 a.m. Monday.

A nurse who watched the operation said the diseased heart that doctors removed was "huge" and no longer resembled a human heart.

Cardiomyopathy appears to be congenital in the Willis family, passed from mothers to sons. As far back as the family can trace, no male in the family has lived past age 40.

IRS agent persuades man to give up

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Internal Revenue Service official who convinced an angry gun-wielding taxpayer to surrender had talked another gunman into giving up four years ago, authorities said.

Two hours after being taken hostage in his office Wednesday, IRS District Director Howard Longley persuaded Louis Edgar Miles to surrender to authorities, U.S. Attorney Bill Price said. Longley had negotiated the end of a 10-hour standoff at a Texas IRS office in 1979, Price said.

Miles, 48, of suburban Midwest City, was ordered held in lieu of $200,000 bail on federal kidnapping and assault charges. "The government stripped me of every dime I ever had. Even my manhood," Price quoted Miles as saying in court.

Custer's last stand goes up in smoke

HARDIN, Mont. (AP) — The site of Col. George Custer's famous last stand went "up in smoke" in a 500-acre arson fire that blackened headstones and forced the evacuation of 600 to 700 people, but officials say says nothing irreplacable was destroyed.

The fire Wednesday at Custer Battlefield National Monument did not damage either the visitors' center or the 200 marble headstones at the park, park Superintendent Jim Court said, and no injuries were reported.

The battlefield, where the bodies of Custer and the last members of his 7th Cavalry were found after their battle with Sioux Indians in 1876, will be back to normal by next spring, a park official said.

Tape ruled admissible for trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Prosecutors say they are "very much encouraged" by an appeals court ruling that a recording, made by Peoples Temple leader Jim Jones as 912 followers died, may be used in a new conspiracy trial of former Jones aide Larry Layton.

U.S. Attorney Joseph Russoniello said Wednesday that he would decide soon whether to retry Layton following the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling that the recording can be admitted. Layton's first trial, on charges he conspired to kill U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan and State Department official Richard Dwyer, ended in a hung jury in 1981.

Citgo sign lit once again

BOSTON (AP) — With a flash of red, white and blue, a neon sign visible for 30 miles and described either as "hypnotically beautiful" or "a little tacky," snapped back to life while about 1,500 fans blinked and cheered.

The 60-square-foot Citgo sign's two miles of neon tubing was darkened in 1979 because of an energy crisis.

"It's the last of its kind," said Arthur J. Krim, founder of the Society for Commercial Archeology.

Carl Lewis lands the gold in the World Games long jump, capturing his second gold medal.

Lewis leaps for gold

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The United States has thrust itself back on top as the world power in sprinting, mainly because of Carl Lewis.

The swift and powerful Lewis, who runs with the speed of a runaway locomotive, anchored the American 400-meter relay team to a world record Wednesday night in the inaugural World Track and Field Championships.

Churning down the final 100 meters to the cheers of 50,000 fans in Olympic Stadium, Lewis swept across the finish line well ahead of his closest pursuers.

As he did, he glanced at the clock.

"When I first looked at it, I thought it said 38.8 (seconds)," said Lewis.

"I did a double-take. Then, I looked again ... and I realized it was 37.8."

Actually, it was 37.86 seconds.

The old record was 38.03 by a United States team in the 1977 World Cup at Dusseldorf, West Germany.

Preceding Lewis on the relay were Emmit King, Willie Gault and Calvin Smith.

Lewis, Smith and King also had finished 1-2-3 in the men's 100-meter final Monday night, and Lewis led a 1-2-3 finish in the long jump Wednesday night.

The multi-talented 22-year-old from Willingboro, N.J., won with a leap of 8.55 meters (28 feet, three-quarters inch), and was followed by Jason Grimes at 8.29 (27-2½) and Mike Conley at 8.12 (26-7¾).

Despite the impressive long jump finish, it was the relay team that commanded the most attention.

The Americans, once the world power in the sprints, had slipped in recent years, failing to win a gold medal in the 100- and 200-meter dashes in the 1972 and 1976 Olympic Games.

And in 1980, the United States boycotted the Summer Games, further diminishing the American sprinters' credibility.

But led by Lewis, who has been ranked No. 1 in the world in the 100 each of the past two years, they are solidly on top again.

It took some devastating performances in the World Championships, however, to make that authoritative.

"We have such confident sprinters in the United States that we can win in any World Championship," said Lewis.

He also said that the depth of the American sprint team was one reason he decided to bypass the 200 in this prestigious meet.

Smith, the world record holder in the 100, is running the 200, along with Larry Myricks and Elliott Quow.

Smith is hoping for the same crowd reaction from the appreciative fans in Olympic Stadium for the 200 that the Americans received in the 400 relay.

"The crowd was really behind us," he said. "They (the fans) kept saying, 'Go, go, USA.' "

The U.S. went — at a sizzling pace.

King got off to a good start, Gault turned in a brilliant second leg and Smith followed with a fast 100 meters, before turning over the baton to Lewis.

At that point, though, the American team still was in second place, behind the Soviet Union. But once Lewis starting rolling, there was no doubt that he would win.

The question was whether the Americans would break the world record.

They did — by .17 of a second.

"I didn't see the clock right at first," said Lewis. "Then, when I did, I couldn't believe it."

It didn't take him long to believe it. And when he did, he leaped into the arms of Grimes, who had cut across the infield from the long jump area to congratulate his teammate.

Then, he raced over to celebrate with the other members of the relay, as the crowd stood and applauded the announcement of the world record.

The four took a victory lap around the track, waving American flags, as the fans continued to drown them with cheers.

Lewis thinks it is very difficult for an American team to set a world relay record.

"Every time a U.S. (relay) team gets into international competition, we are under a lot of pressure and adversity because we don't get a chance to work together often (on stick-passing," he explained.

"There's been a lot of pressure since this team was put together (for this meet), because everybody said we could break the world record," said Gault.

A lot of the pressure was on Gault.

There had been some debate last month whether he should be the fourth member of the team or whether Lewis' collegiate teammate, Mark McNeil, deserved the spot.

"I have proved myself as a sprinter and as a relay runner," said Gault. "I think all the coaches had confidence in me."

"It's difficult to pick a relay team because we have so many good sprinters," said Lewis, who had become the center of the controversy. "The best team was on the track tonight."

Does Mighty Casey ever strikeout?

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Maybe if Midland changed its name to Mudville...

Mighty Casey has done everything but strike out in the clutch this series. Sunday his two-run double in the ninth tied the score and led to a 6-5 Beaumont win...

Tuesday his solo homer in the seventh was the game-winning run until Trey Brooks hit a two-run homer in the last of the ninth for Midland...

And Wednesday night, after two straight nights in which the Cubs rallied to win in the ninth, first baseman Pat Casey had put Beaumont so far ahead that a ninth inning rally was out of the question as the Golden Gators squared the Texas League series with a 9-3 win.

Casey hit two homers and knocked in six runs. For the series he is 6 for 15 with three homers and 10 runs batted in.

FIVE OF his 15 homers this season have come against Midland at Midland, so what's he got against Midland and the Cubs?

"Honest, nothing. It's just that every time I get in a hitting groove we seem to be coming to Midland," says Pat. When the Gators leave town after tonight's game, Casey probably will go kicking and screaming.

Pat, who signed out of Portland University after his junior year in 1981, is still short of his homer pace of a year ago when he started the season at Salem of the A Carolina League and hit 18 before joining Amarillo July 20 and hitting eight more. Since heavy-humidity Beaumont isn't as conducive to over-the-fence wallops as high and dry Amarillo, Pat has to make his hay in Midland.

WEDNESDAY HE hit a two-run homer in the first as the Gators took a 3-0 lead and then he hit a three-run homer after John Krok's two-run double in the five-run fourth that just about settled the issue.

Both homers came off Ron Richardson, 3-8, who is from Bend, Ore. "I had heard of Ron, but never met him before." Now Ron has heard of Pat, and wishes he hadn't.

Casey's other RBI was a banjo single to right in the eighth after singles by Steve Garcia and Kruk.

Frank Ricci was the beneficiary of all the hitting and responded with a four-walk, eight hitter for his sixth win in 11 decisions.

Ricci lost his shutout on an unearned run in the fourth, gave up another tally when Rick Baker singled and Mike Anicich doubled in the fifth and a final tally on Don Hyman's seventh homer, over the scoreboard, in the sixth.

CUB PRINTS—As if the Cubs haven't had enough misfortune already, pitcher Stan Kyles, 7-11, was called up to Iowa...Stan has been Midland's most consistent pitcher since June. Manager Tom Harmon says plans are to use Stan as a starter...Richard Buonantony, a 6-3, 195-pound righthander from Las Vegas, Nev., will replace Kyles and start Sunday's game against San Antonio. Rich was 6-5 at Salinas, California League, and was with Midland in spring training at Mesa...Joe Housey, 0-3, will pitch tonight's final game against Beaumont's Willie Hardwick, 4-5....

'Skins Peters charged with selling cocaine

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Washington Redskins safety Tony Peters could face a maximum 113 years in prison and $188,000 in fines if he is convicted on all nine counts in connection with an alleged sale of cocaine in the Washington area.

Peters, 30, and seven other men were charged with conspiring to distribute cocaine in an 18-count indictment handed down by a federal grand jury here Wednesday.

A Pro Bowl player last season, Peters was taken into custody Aug. 3 at the team's Carlisle, Pa., training camp after police said he acted as the middleman in a $115,000 drug deal.

The indictment formalizes the original criminal complaint and adds eight related counts against Peters, who was charged by the grand jury with conspiracy, three counts of possession of cocaine, three counts of distribution of cocaine, interstate travel for criminal purposes and illegal use of a telephone.

Joe Gibbs, the coach of the defending Super Bowl champions, said he have to await adjudication before making any decisions.

"The first thing is, we have to wait and see what the eventual outcome will be with Tony," Gibbs said, adding that the same applies to reserve running back Clarence Harmon, who awaits a trial date in Texarkana, Texas, on a third-degree felony charge of cocaine possession. Harmon faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

"Really, I don't know everything that has happened," Gibbs said. "Neither guy has been proven guilty or even has been taken to court yet."

Peters has been given a leave of absence by the Redskins to prepare his legal defense and is free on $50,000 bond. Harmon, arrested in March, also was offered a paid leave of absence but elected not to take it.

Redskins' attorney Lawrence Lucchino, who is also representing Peters in the case, said in a statement Wednesday that the "proceedings remain Tony Peters' personal matter. No comments will be made on the development of the matter until it is over."

According to the indictment, Peters talked to two undercover agents of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police twice on the phone before meeting with them on June 28 in a Washington restaurant to discuss the cocaine sale.

The agents paid Peters, who had recently signed a four-year, $185,000-a-year contract with the NFL team, $3,000 for his part in arranging the sale, the indictment says.

The indictment alleges two brothers, Charles and Douglas Bray, tried to sell the cocaine to the agents through Peters. The Brays introduced the agents to Peters, according to the indictment, "as a source for the quantity and quality of cocaine that was being sought."

Early schedule murder for Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas could have a Top 10 college football team and still be 2-2 after four games. The reason is a schedule that includes Auburn and Oklahoma, two teams getting pre-season No. 1 support.

Texas opens against Auburn at Auburn, Ala., on Sept. 17 and plays Oklahoma in Dallas on Oct. 8.

"Our strengths begin with our defense," says Texas Coach Fred Akers. "Our defense won our weightlifting contest for the first time, so you get some idea that they are large, and they are quick."

They will have to be to corral sophomore runners Vincent "Bo" Jackson of Auburn amd Marcus Dupree of Oklahoma.

"Some people really feel that when (Heisman Trophy winner) Herschel Walker (of Georgia) went to the USFL, Bo Jackson became the premier back in the country, and they're awfully high on him," Akers said in an interview.

Texas in recent years has consistently ranked among the national defensive leaders, and Akers says this year's defense has a chance to be one of the Longhorns' better units.

SWC Preview

Nine defensive starters are among 41 returning lettermen, but Akers says the loss of tackle Ralph Darnell for low grades "put a dent" in team depth. Nevertheless, he says the defense will be spearheaded by the front seven and cornerback Mossy Cade, a possible All-American.

Akers recognizes the danger of complacency, saying, "Any time you have a group coming back, I think it's necessary that they're hungry, that they're not sitting back there expecting people to automatically recognize their ability and experience and say, 'There's no use trying this bunch.' "

Offensively, Texas will start out with a "gut attack" featuring three solid fullbacks and two possible All-Americans in guard Doug Dawson and center Mike Ruether.

"If you are rebuilding part of your football team, it's a great place to start to have your offensive line (back). That'll go a long way toward being a buffer while someone develops (in the backfield)," Akers said.

Former Cooper star Terry Orr

At fullback Texas has 227-pound Terry Orr, 234-pound Ervin Davis, who ran for eight touchdowns last year, and spring surprise Ronnie Robinson. "Terry is probably our best all-around football player," said Akers. "He's not one of those burners, and there are some people around that are probably stronger, but he's got really great finesse. He can block, he can run, he's a fine receiver; he can play several positions."

Akers, however, has not settled on a quarterback, tailback or placekicker.

Texas lost "95 percent" of its offense with the departure of record-setting passer Robert Brewer, swift wide receiver Herkie Walls and tailback Darryl Clark, the Longhorns' first 1,000-yard rusher since Earl Campbell in 1977.

Akers acknowledges that most questions about Texas football focus on quarterback, but he says Texas "almost has a tradition" of starting the season without an established signal caller.

Juniors Todd Dodge and Rob Moerschell finished spring training 1-2. Five others, including Mark Gabrisch, Akers' son Danny and 1981 starter Rick McIvor — who according to Akers "has the potential to have an arm that is second to none" — will compete at quarterback.

Ten Commandments of Football Motherhood

Midland football mothers go into action Tuesday, showing the real stuff football teams are made of.

Sure it's the kids who will suffer Midland's unending summer heat and two-a-days under Coach Spike Dykes at Lee and Coach Pat Culpepper at Midland High, but it's the city moms who will feel the brunt for the first week or so.

Culpepper and Dykes will have their troops reporting for duty Monday. That may be the easy part. Ol' Mom will be needed Tuesday morning. Have you ever tried getting a sore kid out of bed in time for an early morning practice session? It ain't easy folks!

Since shorts will be the order of the first week and pads next week, Mom has to go through this routine twice. Mommas across Midland have been jogging all summer to ready themselves for the ordeal. Ah! The stuff champions are made of — and it's not Wheaties.

It's Mom who needs the preseason pep talk — not the kids. So listen up Mom.

Since we've established that Moms are important to any gridiron endeavor, there are a few things the inexperienced should know. It's sort of the Ten Commandments of Football Motherhood.

FIRST: Don't worry about your son's soreness. It's a sign that young muscles are simply crying for help. Don't let your son stay in bed Tuesday morning. Learn the old "Grab the Ankles and Pull" trick. My Mom used to use that one and it worked every time.

SECOND: See that your son has a light breakfast, preferably pancakes, and leave the heavy protein for night. You better do some shopping Sunday because your son is going to want about $200 worth of food over the next — oh — three or four days if he can open his mouth.

THIRD: If possible, drive your son to practice and pick him up. Never worry when a couple of buddies carry him to the car after practice.

FOURTH: Resist the violent urge to shower pity on your son during this time. One thing my Mom used to use was, "Don't come crying on my shoulder about how you hurt. You were the one who wanted to play that silly game." That worked every time and made me want to play even more.

FIFTH: Always dwell on the positive. Always say, "Son, you look really good since you lost a few pounds." Never say, "Oh my, you look like warmed over death."

SIXTH: Take an interest in your son's practice sessions if he is able to talk when he gets home, but never say, "Did Joe Blow get the best of you again?"

SEVENTH: Don't buy a lot of extra medical supplies because both Midland schools have highly seasoned professionals to deal with the minor scrapes and bruises. However, a set of crutches might not be a bad idea.

EIGHTH: Don't worry if your son loses interest in girls for a week or two. When he's able to get out of bed on his own, he'll find a phone.

NINTH: Take care of yourself. After two weeks have your husband treat you to a dinner out. After all, there won't be anything left in the house to eat.

TENTH: There are really only Nine Commandments of Football Motherhood, but in Midland 10 is really needed. Never utter the following words: "Permian," "Mojo," "Panthers," "Odessa," "Ratliff Stadium," or "Black Cats."

And if you're a really good Mom, you won't use those words anytime prior to "The Game."

Mothers of Midland you are now ready for Football 1983.

Bald eagle threatened again

BY RODNEY RIEHLE

The bald eagle first gained public fame as a vanishing species over two decades ago when use of pesticides DDT and dieldrin caused a decline in the bird's population from eggshell thinning.

Now the eagle is being threatened by poisoning of a different sort: consumption of waterfowl crippled or poisoned by lead shotgun pellets.

A recent U.S. Fish and Wildlife study shows that over seven per cent of the bald eagle deaths recovered between 1967 and 1982 were linked to lead poisoning.

The contamination problem is probably even greater than the study suggests because eagles poisoned by lead are apt to die in secluded areas and thus are less likely to be found than eagles, which die on highways or along powerlines.

In an effort to determine the extent of bald eagle lead contamination, the National Wildlife Federation called for a formal consultation by federal authorities in June. The Federal Wildlife Service was asked to determine if the use of lead shot in areas of high waterfowl concentration may "jeopardize the existence of the bald eagle."

The NWF also asked the FWS to take necessary management steps to avoid such jeopardy, if proven.

If a jeopardy situation is found. the FWS may require the establishment of steel shot zones in certain problem areas, but such changes would probably come no sooner than the 1984-85 hunting season.

So far, the FWS has not responded to the MWF's request for a study of the hazard.

THREE WILDLIFE management areas have been established in Texas for the purpose of implementing programs of intensive cooperative management in order to improve animal populations and provide a high quality hunting experience.

The aress are Alabama Creek on the southern boundary of Davy Crockett Forest in Trinity County; Moore Plantation, Sabine National Forest; and Angelina National Forest in San Augustine County.

WMA improvement will include stocking, water impoundments and forage planting. Ninety deer have been released this year on the Texas National Forests under the program. Managed hunts will be conducted on Alabama Creek and Bannister for the 1983-84 season and camping will be allowed in designated hunter camps only...

TEXANS spent an estimated $713 million on outdoor sporting goods in 1981, amounting to $137 per household. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. survey showed that $180 million was spent on boats and boating equipment, which ranked frist among the 19 activities surveyed. Hunting was second with $96 million.

Rounding out the list were: jogging, $69 million; bicycling, $63 million; fishing , $60 million; and swimming, $52 million.

A sport's popularity, equipment costs, and repeat purchases determine how much people spend for recreation goods. Spending for some activities is mostly for clothing and shoes, so fashion is also a factor.

The study was designed to asses the economic impact of outdoor recreation in Texas. It was based on a nationwide survey of 20,000 households and a statewide survey of 126 major sporting goods retailers in Texas.

FISHING HIT the summer doldrums at Lake Spence and Lake Thomas last week, but a few good crappie catches were reported as well as a 21-pound striper by Randy Casey of Denver City. the latter was landed at Spence.

Rodney Lee, Odessa, and Lonny Martin, Tarzan, caught 650 crappie at Spence in a week of fishing and Bob and Joyce Dawson, Odessa, took five stripers, 7 to 9 pounds.

Michael Stegall struggles with a seven-pound range black bass landed by Jim Binns of Midland at Colorado City Lake. Binns used a white buzz bait in four feet of water.

Sick leave makes bosses sick

By BILL SCHULZ

CINCINNATI (AP) — Alfred Williams took a couple of chances to fish in the BASS Masters Classic.

It cost him a suspension from his job but earned him $1,500 for finishing 10th in a field of 42 of the country's top fishermen.

Williams, a postal clerk in Jackson, Miss., fished the qualifying tournament for Bass Anglers Sportsman Society federation members while on sick leave from his job.

He won the tournament and his picture on the front page of the Jackson Clarion-Ledger caught his bosses' attention.

They handed him a five-day suspension.

He agreed to take it but asked that they schedule it the first week in August — the week he wanted to get off to fish the classic on the Ohio River.

Postal executives "said it didn't look right" fishing on sick time, although he has his doctor's permission to fish but not work, Williams said.

As for the tournament itself, Williams said he didn't feel any different than when he fished tournaments in his area.

"I fish against people who are just as good or better all the time in tournaments around home. I fish against Harold (Allen, who was fifth in the classic) or Paul Elias (who won the 1982 classic) all the time. You just don't let it get to you. I don't let anything worry me. I just go out and fish."

"I never thought about the suspension at all. It didn't bother me at all. It's no big deal, really," he said.

"The fishing up there is extremely tough. You don't find as many fish grouped together as you would, say, down South here," he said.

"I enjoyed fishing up there," he said, adding that the classic contenders don't know how to fish the Ohio that well.

The 42 anglers caught only 223 fish in three days of fishing. They set a record for low weight of fish caught in a classic, 269 pounds, 6 ounces.

"The locals do catch fish up there," Williams said.

The difference, he said, was "I couldn't find a group of fish, more than one or two. Usually down here, you get on a few fish, you're going to catch enough fish to do you some good. Up there it was one here, one there. There's not as many bass up there."

San Francisco's Joe Pettini fails to get under the tag of Atlanta's Bruce Benedict in the ninth inning, but Darrell Evans, the next man up, hit a three-run homer to give the Giants a 7-4 victory.

Cards snap skid in 13

By The Associated Press

Ozzie Smith's two-run single through a drawn-in infield in the top of the 13th inning and David Green's five runs batted in Wednesday helped the St. Louis Cardinals snap an eight-game losing streak with a 9-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The Cardinals scored four times in the 13th to give the win to Dave Rucker, 3-1, the fifth of six St. Louis pitchers. John Stuper, normally a starter, replaced Rucker in the 13th to earn his first save.

Andy Van Slyke started the St. Louis 13th with a single off loser Dickie Noles, 4-7, and went to third when Lonnie Smith doubled. Ozzie Smith then singled up the middle to score two runs and Green followed with his fourth homer of the season, in the center field seats.

THE CARDS had tied the score 5-5 with two runs in the top of the ninth on Lonnie Smith's fourth home run, off Cubs reliever Lee Smith, and Green's RBI single.

In another National League day game, Darrell Evans belted a three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning to give the San Francisco Giants a 7-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

In American League day games, Dave Righetti and George Frazier combined on a 10-hitter and New York capitalized on Toronto defensive lapses for a six-run fifth inning as the Yankees routed the Blue Jays 8-3. Righetti is now 13-3.

Ron Roenicke hit his first homer for Seattle, a three-run shot capping a five-run rally, and the Mariners unleashed a 14-hit attack in a 7-5 victory over Oakland, snapping the A's five-game winning streak.

At night, Joe Lefebvre's seventh-inning triple knocked in the tiebreaking run and Steve Carlton struck out 10 and registered his 296th career victory as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2. Carlton, who gave up eight hits in 8 2-3 innings, now has 3,626 strikeouts, 12 more than Nolan Ryan on the all-time list.

Dann Bilardello hit a homer and drove in four runs, powering the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-2 pounding of the Los Angeles Dodgers behind Bruce Berenyi's five-hit pitching.

Bill Gullickson pitched a four-hitter for 7⅔ innings, doubled twice and scored three runs while Tim Raines and Jim Wohlford singled in two runs apiece to lead the Montreal Expos to a 5-3 triumph over the New York Mets.

Lary Sorensen allowed six hits and struck out a career-high nine batters as the Cleveland Indians defeated Baltimore 4-3 and swept a three-game series from the Orioles. It was the fourth straight victory for the Indians, while Baltimore has lost five in a row.

TONY ARMAS slugged a three-run homer and relief star Bob Stanley put down a Texas rally in the ninth inning, leading the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Rangers.

Moose Haas, who has not lost since June 10 and is now 10-2, fired a three-hitter and notched his seventh consecutive victory, pitching the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-0 shutout of Kansas City.

Houston shortstop Dickie Thon slammed a home run off the left field mezzanine facing with two outs in the bottom of the 14th inning to propel the Astros to a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres.

In a late game on the West Coast, Gary Ward, Dave Engle and Gary Gaetti belted home runs as the Minnesota Twins downed the California Angels 4-1 behind Bobby Castillo's complete-game 10-hitter.

The White Sox-Tigers game at Detroit was postponed because of rain.

Astros trade Moreno

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Mumphrey of the New York Yankees didn't let the knowledge of knowing there was a chance he would be traded to the Houston Astros affect his play.

Mumphrey hit a triple and made a diving catch Wednesday in New York's 8-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. After the game he was notified that the Astros had acquired him in a waiver deal that brought Omar Moreno to the Yankees.

"It's a little sad in leaving, but I don't have any gripes," said Mumphrey, who was told by Coach Don Zimmer of the trade possiblity. "I played well. Maybe now I'll come into my own."

THE DEAL was welcomed by Moreno, who has been outspoken by his desire to be traded after a dispute last month with Manager Bob Lillis. The left-handed hitter, who has a clause in his contract which paid him an extra $214 for each at-

Ruidoso

RUIDOSO DOWNS (AP) — Rudy A Twelve and Racy N Lacy, a pair of fillies from the barn of trainer R. Don Farris, scored impressive wins in the opening round of elimination trials for next month's $2.5 million All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

The top three horses from 11 trial races Wednesday advanced to the time trials set for Aug. 31. A total of 33 horses survived the first round of trials and will join horses who advance from the remaining 33 trial races today and Friday in the time trials.

The 10-horse field for the futurity will be determined by the Aug. 31 time trials. The All-American will be run on Labor Day over a distance of 440-yards with the winning horse earning $1 million.

In Wednesday's trials, Rudy A Twelve was in command throughout the eleventh trial heat and hit the wire 1¼ lengths in front of her nearest rival. The filly's clocking of 21.01 for the 440-yard distance was the fastest of the 11 trial winners Wednesday.

Racy N Lacy, despite stumbling badly at the start, recovered under jockey Jerry Nicodemus to post a win in the fifth trial heat by almost a length. Her time of 21.35 was the second-fastest of the day.

Snyder blanks Midland LLers

WACO, Texas — Snyder shutout Midland Eastern, 3-0, here Wednesday night to advance to the semifinals of the Texas State Little League baseball tournament.

The loss throws Eastern into the consolation bracket of the tournament while Snyder is a member of the Final Four, one of which will represent Texas in the national Little League playoffs and a shot at the Little League World Series.

No details of the Snyder-Eastern game were available, but Eastern won the right to meet Snyder with a 2-1 victory over Waco Northwestern Tuesday. Snyder won a 4-1 decision over San Antonio McAllister Park Tuesday.

Texas City West scored three runs in the eighth inning to defeat Brenham, 9-6, Wednesday night in another quarterfinal tournament matchup, despite a grand slam home run by Brenham's Jon Peters.

The game was tied 5-5 after the regulation six innings and each team scored in the seventh.

James Walker and Manuel Silva hit homers for Texas City. Keith Schmidt added a solo homer for Brenham.

In other quarterfinal games Wednesday, Bobby Brown hurled a no-hitter to lead Houston Sagemont Beverly Hills past Victoria, 4-1, and Austin Balcones blasted Orange Wesco, 15-5.

In consolation quarterfinals, Houston North Shore edged North Garland, 4-3, and San Antonio McAllister Park defeated Waco Northwestern, 3-1.

Semifinal games for the teams, comprised of boys 11 and 12 years old, will be tonight, followed by the championship game at 8 p.m. Friday.

USGA ruling causes dimple count

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — While others were counting dimples, Mark Lye was concentrating on winning his first golf tournament as the $350,000 Buick Open got under way at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club.

Lye, who has failed to win since joining the PGA Tour in 1976, fired a 6-under-par 66 over the 7,001-yard layout during Wednesday's pro-am event.

Lye felt he might have a slight psychological edge today, since he was one of the few players in the 154-man field who didn't have to find a new ball to play.

The United States Golf Association, which sets the standards for balls and clubs, banned the Titleist Tour 384 ball earlier this week, sending between 55 and 75 golfers at the Buick Open scrambling for a new ball.

"I play a Titleist ball, but not that particular model," Lye said. "I know, however, that a lot of guys are upset. This is hard to believe after they've been using it for half a year."

The Tour 384, so named because it has 384 dimples, has won 11 tournaments already this year — its first on the market. Included in those victories were the Masters, the U.S. Open and the PGA championship.

Players who have been using the banned ball who are entered in the Buick Open include Bobby Clampett, Ben Crenshaw, Ralph Landrum, Roger Maltbie, Rik Massengale, Jodie Mudd, Tom Purtzer, Tim Simpson, Payne Stewart, Bobby Wadkins and Tom Weiskopf.

The USGA questioned the ball's symmetry, saying the Tour 384 exceeded allowable limits for distance, trajectory and time in the air.

"It goes 10-12 yards farther for me," said Mudd. "I played it for eight months and I really liked it."

The USGA also dropped the Wilson Aviator from its "approved" list, but the Aviator isn't a tour ball.

The ball still is available in pro shops and may be played in friendly games by amateurs. But it is not likely to be approved for play governed by the USGA until at least October.

City Council paves the way for better roads

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Midland City Council paved the way this week for road repairs and new streets.

Also, the council increased speed limits and scheduled a public hearing for paving streets.

According to Fred Baker, director of public works, the traffic on Midkiff Road from Loop 250 to south of Wadley Avenue has increased to more than 2,000 cars daily.

During the city council meeting Tuesday, approval was given to widen that strip of Midkiff Road from five to seven lanes. Baker said the road crews will start restriping the thoroughfare within a month to accommodate the traffic.

In other action this week, approval was given to begin paving Sinclair Street. Because the right-of-way was not given by all property owners on the street, Baker said it will only be paved from Midland Drive to Lendora Way.

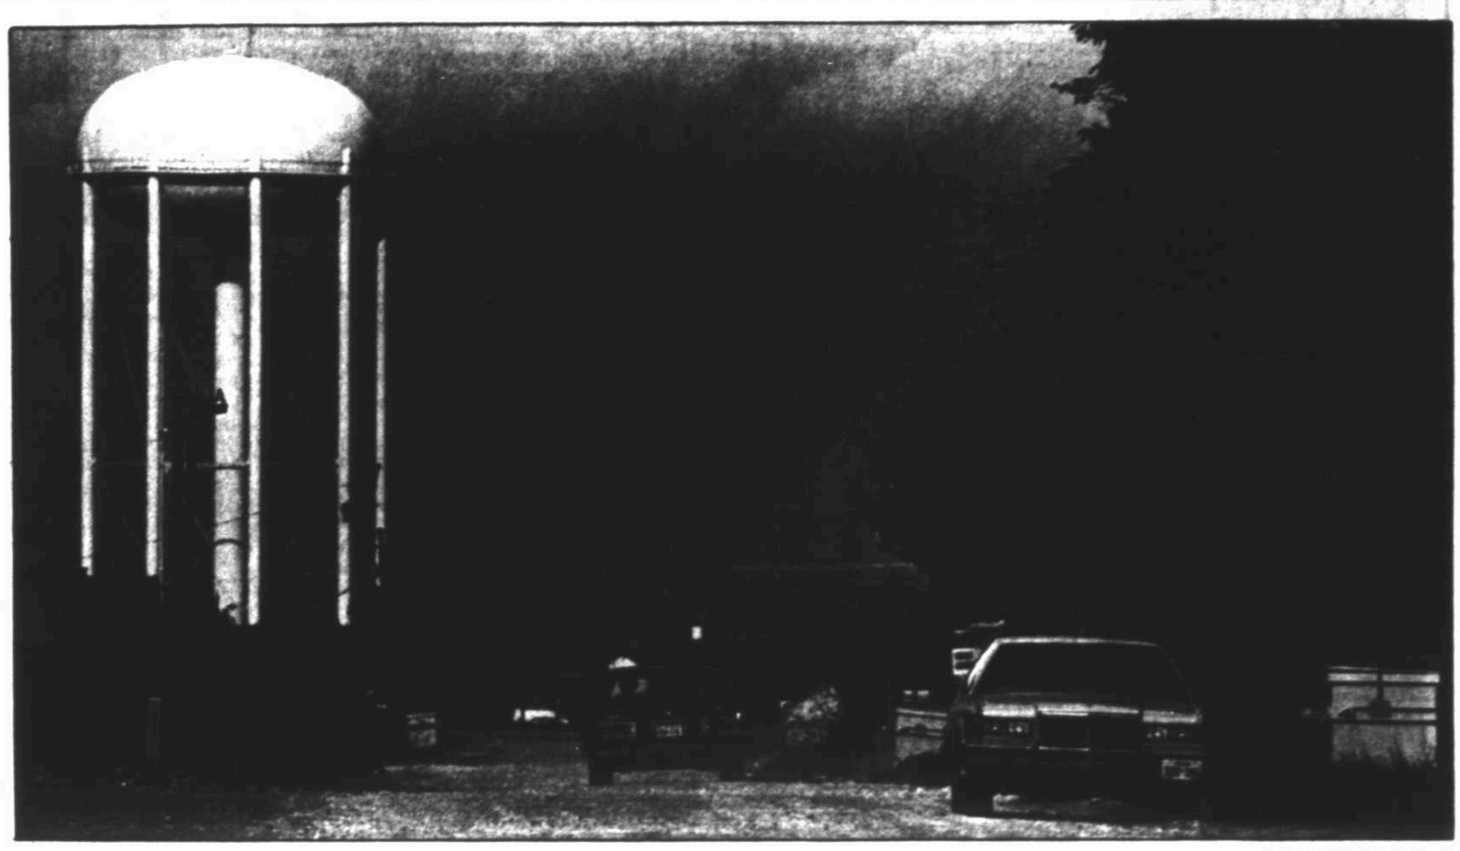

"We only have 40 feet right-of-way," Baker said, explaining that it costs about $8 per foot of the owners' property to get streets paved.

A public hearing is set for Sept. 27 for residents living on Loraine, Collins, Terrell and Shell streets to express their opinions about paving portions of the roads. The right-of-away for this has already been obtained.

Street portions to be paved include Loraine Street, from Collins to Gist; Collins Street, from Loraine to a half a block west; Terrell Street, from Mississippi to Cuthbert; and Shell Street, from Midland Drive to the east about 350 feet.

Council members approved a first reading to increase the speed limits on Wadley Avenue from Big Spring Street to Fairgrounds Road. From Big Spring to Lamesa Road, the speed limit on Wadley Avenue will increase from 30 to 35 mph. On Wadley from Lamesa to Fairgrounds, Midlanders will be able to travel up to 40 mph.

To determine speed limits, a radar unit is placed on city streets, Baker said. Usually a minimum of 200 cars are monitored. Baker said Midland uses the nationally recognized formula which states "85 percent of the people will drive at a safe speed limit."

Former DA's widow sues for $1 million

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The widow of former Midland County District Attorney James A. "Jim" Mashburn is suing an insurance company for more than $1 million in life-insurance benefits which she claims she is due.

The company, The Manhattan Life Insurance Co. of New York, however, contends she is entitled only to $50,000 in benefits on her husband's $500,000 double-indemnity policy and has tendered her that amount.

Mashburn, 46, was killed Oct. 25, 1982, in a head-on collison in which a westbound truck which was passing another vehicle crashed into his eastbound car between Garden City and Sterling City on Texas Highway 158.

Mashburn had taken the policy out on Oct. 12.

In her suit, Mrs. Mashburn says the insurance "contract had been approved" by Manhattan even though it had not been issued to the insured and was valid for the full amount of the policy plus the $500,000 "additional accidental death benefit."

Mrs. Mashburn holds that Manhattan's "conditional receipt" issued Oct. 12 was "in full force and effect."

The insurance company disagrees. It says that "the effective date" of the insurance "shall be the date of the completion of the initial application requirements" governed by the underwriting rules. Manhattan's answer to Mrs. Mashburn's court petition did not say when that date would have been.

Mrs. Mashburn is seeking $950,000 as balance of the benefits, 6 percent interest from date of her husband death, and $114,000 as a statutory penalty for Manhattan withholding the funds. The latter figure represents 12 percent of the balance Mrs. Mashburn says she is entitled to.

Mashburn had been district attorney from 1965 until 1976, when his term expired. He did not seek re-election. He had been in private law practice since he left public life.

The lawsuit initially was filed in Midland's 238th State District Court but was transferred to federal court in Midland upon the request by Manhattan.

Man rises above handicap to help deaf

Archer assumes role of director of Region VII of TDI

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

He was just another kid next door until he was seven.

Then Charles Archer's world collapsed around him.

He sat in class in San Angelo, pencil in hand, preparing to take an oral spelling exam. The lips of the teacher moved, but no sound came forth. Confused, he shifted to watch his classmates proceed to write in notebooks. He looked back at the teacher, asked her to repeat the word.

When he saw her lips move mutely again, he had taken the first step in a lifelong journey through a world of silence.

Robbed of the sensory capacity by measles, Archer nonetheless rose above his handicap, dedicting himself to helping others suffering from deafness.

His new role in that charge is as director of Region VII of Telecommunications for the Deaf, Inc. Based in Silver Spring, Maryland, TDI works closely with telephone companies, legislators and manufacturers on such items as Telecommunications Devices for the Deaf, long distance rates, and telephone services for the deaf.

Archer, who is stepping down this month from his position as president of Midessa Association of the Deaf, will serve four years as director of Region VII, which is composed of Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas.

This 64-year-old man who was without schooling from the time he was 7 until placed in the State School for the Deaf when he was 13 believes a new telecommunications device promoted by TDI may revolutionize long-distance communication for deaf persons.

Known as Deafnet, the device with video display screen will allow direct communication with one or more persons as well as retention of messages for reading at a convenient time, establishment of electronic and mass mailing, and access to data base information on such items as community services.

"Texas Deafnet will provide a valuable service to the people of Texas," said Archer. "We also believe it will remove many of the barriers between the hearing and deaf individuals. It will open up undreamed of opportunities to people to establish real dialogs on important issues facing the world.

"Deafnet will allow individuals who have speech or hearing difficulty to communicate with friends, family, churches, governments, hospitals, schools, businesses."

Archer, who has lived in Midland sice 1956, has been instrumental in having telecommunications devices placed in Midland and Odessa fire departments and hospitals as well as at Midland Air Terminal. Individuals with the devices are listed in an international directory published by TDI, which also sells telecaption adapters and color television decoders at reduced prices.

"Deafnet will allow individuals who have speech or hearing difficulty to communicate with friends, family, churches, governments, hospitals, schools, busineses."

Hospital advertises for patients

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — A pensive ballerina in pink tights ponders the question, "How would you change the way you look?"

The advertisement, running in Texas regional editions of several national women's magazines, goes on to suggest that "Plastic surgery could give you a new beginning."

Garland Community Hospital, a 128-bed facility bought by Humana in 1975, is behind the ad campaign, which publicizes a new plastic surgery information and education program called "Beginnings."

The program is the brainchild of R. Lyle Luman, the hospital's 35-year-old executive director, who says more than 2,600 responses have been received since the ads began running in February.

"We felt there was a void in public awareness for what plastic surgery is," Luman said, adding that a survey backed up that theory.

"We (then) developed an access for the public we feel is informative and educational with a packet of information that is available to any consumer who would ask for it," he said.

The information packet describes common cosmetic surgery procedures and lists the three plastic surgeons on the staff of Garland Community hospital.

"If a person is interested in plastic surgery, they have an opportunity to make an appointment for a consultation," Luman said.

Of the hundreds who have responded to the ads, about four percent have gone to consultations — and one-fourth of those have elected to undergo surgery, Luman said.

Most of the hospital's plastic surgery patients — 71 percent — are from the Dallas area, Luman said. But others come from such locations as Midland, Mount Pleasant, Stephenville, Joshua and Kirbyville.

Among the satisfied patients is a 29-year-old Dallas office manager named Carla.

She underwent a breast operation in June and said she was pleased with the results.

"What could have been a potentially frightening experience was extremely pleasant," she said, adding, "They make you feel pampered — very special."

Carla said she decided to have the operation at the hospital after her mother showed her the magazine ad.

"Their advertisements are extremely tasteful; so are the brochures," she said, adding, "it all fell into place."

Although admitting that the only reason for the operation was "pure vanity — plain and simple," Carla said "there's a big difference" about the way she feels about herself.

Luman says that's one of the big reasons people elect to have plastic surgery — and one of the reasons the advertising campaign has gotten a good response.

"We in the health care business have to be looking forward to what the public wants in terms of health care," Luman said.

The plastic surgery ads are to run in three magazines through November — D, Redbook and Ladies' Home Journal. The full-page ad also appeared in Women's Day.

"With Beginnings, you'll enjoy all the reassurance and peace of mind that goes with having your surgery performed in the comfort and safety of a major hospital — with a cost comparable to surgery in a doctor's office," the ad reads.

But whether any of the 88 other Humana hospitals adopt the program will depend on local needs, Luman said.

"They'll have to go about it the same way we did — by researching what the customers want," he said.

Habits can be insurance or death warrant

Habits are familiar old friends. They'll stand by you like a true-blue buddy and build you up, or they'll latch onto you like a leech and drag you down. You can feel comfortable with a habit or be pestered by it. You may not know a habit's a habit.

Habits are like a mole on your back. You may not know it's there until some soul or thing, such as your physician, spouse or a mirror, invades your privacy and points to the imperfection. A habit can be a beauty mark.

Do you tidily hang your clothes up in a closet or simply toss them over a chair to develop new creases? Are you Miss Tidy, Mr. Slob or Ms. In-between.

Do you put things away like your mother taught you to do or do you just rebel and let them conveniently lie like a dead dog in a street. Things just get in a mess.

Habits can be insurance or a death warrant. A pilot whose habit is to make less than a thorough check before revving up and taking to the sky may wind up in bits and pieces.

In the morning, is it your habit to turn off the alarm and snooze a few more minutes? Do you blast the alarm clock with a stick of dynamite or are you grateful you awakened to live another day?

Do you drive the same old route to work and rehash the same old concerns? That's a habit called a rut. It's a bore.

Has your workday routine become such of a habit that you can't smile, think or function without a cup of coffee, a snort, a pill, a drag or a shot.

Are the 5 o'clock blahs the high-point in your life? Do your work habits needs changing?

Is it your habit to turn on the television set the first thing in the morning or as soon as you arrive home from work? By that act, are you saying that a monotonous old friend is better than occasional silence or sweet music?

Do you light up a Lucky or whatever fag you smoke as compulsively as you scratch an itch when you think no one is watching? Smoking is a habit that is glamorized by the tobacco industry. There's romance, adventure, courage, independence and sensuality to the act of puffing on that cigarette. From another viewpoint, the act is about as sightly as an ash tray full of spent, twisted, and crushed cigarette butts.

How you cross or don't cross your legs at a social may be a habit. Some say it's a language.

When you walk by a tree do you pat it on the trunk to see if it's feeling fine? Do you admire its beauty or just ignore it?

Do you scratch your forehead, rub your ear or pluck your nose out of habit?

Is your habit that of a cat: regular grooming to enhance your appearance and health? Or like a lazy dog, do you wait for someone to throw you into the tub?

Is your habit to say, "Sure, I'd be glad to" when you meant to say "No, not today." People-pleasing ways can be quite disappointing and fatal to relationships and esteem.

Is your habit one of personal growth and edification in all areas of your life? Or do you let yourself run down like an old plantation 'til the crops won't flourish and the big house falls apart?

Lawmakers discuss caucus

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Legislators from so-called Frost Belt states are pondering the possibility of banding together to get more from the federal government.

Lawmakers from northeastern and Midwest states Wednesday discussed forming a caucus to lobby for regional interests before Congress. The discussions occurred during the annual convention of the National Conference of State Legislatures, attended by lawmakers from around the country.

However, no decision on such a group was reached.

Agents find drugs, paraphernalia in home

City narcotics agents raided a home in the 700 block of North Main Street about 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and arrested a 49-year-old man after two pounds of marijuana and assorted drug paraphernalia allegedly were found in the residence.

The suspect remained jailed this morning and formal charges were to be filed sometime today. Officers said they conducted the raid on a search warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine after receiving a tip that drugs were present in the home.

Police round-up

In burglary complaints to city police during the past 24 hours, cash and jewelry valued at $1,340 were reported taken in a break-in at the Jimmie McNatt residence, 8216 Treasmont. Entry was gained by breaking the lock on a sliding glass door.

Stereo equipment worth $750 was stolen in a burglary at 1202 W. Kentucky Ave., Michael Hays told police. The break-in occurred sometime in the past two days. Entry was gained through a living room window.

And Ursula Senko of 702½ W. Kansas said $400 worth of stereo equipment was taken from her home after someone entered it through a front window Tuesday.

In theft complaints, Fayiola Salsido of 407 E. Cowden said her purse containing $120 in cash was stolen from her unattended shopping cart at Furr's Super Market, 2208 N. Big Spring Ave., about 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Tools and roofing material belonging to the Centential Roofing Co. and valued at $770 were reported taken from a job site at 3520 Sinclair on Wednesday.

In another construction site theft, a $1,400 Rheem air conditioner was reported taken from 5117 San Antonio Drive.

And a new, $450 window air conditioner was reported missing from an apartment at 2900-B Rooseveit.

Eight auto burglaries also were reported to police. Taken were guns and stereo equipment worth $4,212.

Special interests flock to where lawmakers are

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The man in the low-slung race car didn't look much like Indianapolis 500 winner Tom Sneva.

With good reason. It was Democratic Illinois state Sen. Kenneth Hall of East St. Louis behind the wheel of Sneva's machine Wednesday.

"It's darn hard getting in that thing and darn hard getting out, too," Hall remarked after squeezing out of the car.

Hall was one of a parade of state lawmakers from around the nation taking a stationary "spin" in Sneva's car. The auto, on display at the annual National Conference of State Legislatures convention, was exhibited by Texaco Inc., Sneva's sponsor.

The oil giant was one of many companies and special-interest groups with representatives at this city's convention center for the five-day gathering of lawmakers.

While workers at the Texaco booth spent most of their time making small talk and helping legislators in and out of the race car's cockpit, they also distributed folders explaining the company's position on a variety of state and federal legislative issues.

A few feet from Texaco's display, an American Nuclear Society exhibit told lawmakers about what that organization considers to be exaggerated claims of danger from atomic power plants and nuclear wastes.

Houston Ballet gets grant from Exxon

HOUSTON — Exxon Co., USA has granted Houston Ballet Foundation $35,000 over a two-year period to enable Houston Ballet to expand its program of ballet for Houston youth.

The existing program is a combination of student concerts and Houston Ballet Guild's "docent" program. The Houston Ballet Guild docent program sends guild volunteers to Houston area schools to give lecture demonstrations complete with photographs and costumes.

The Exxon grant will expand the capabilities of both programs. The new program will be called Ballet for Youth.

A portion of Exxon's award will co-sponsor the student concert programs with the Houston Endowment. Houston Endowment has provided funds for the production of past student concerts. During the 1982-83 season five student concerts were presented by Houston Ballet.

The grant will enable children who have not been able to afford past concerts to attend student concerts through subsidized tickets. Transportation to these concerts will be provided. The grant will also provide tickets for high school students for Houston Ballet's regular repertory programs in Jones Hall. In addition, it will allow for more extensive educational material for both the docent program and the student concert series as well as providing the funds for a staff coordinator position for a 10-month period to administer all aspects of the youth educational activities.

Working mother experiences trials and triumphs

The Los Angeles Times—
Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — This is the current euphemism: "Women Maintaining Families." It is the phrase of the hour, the term the Bureau of Labor Statistics has chosen to apply to the 6,147,000 American homes composed of a woman, at least one child — and no man. As of March 1982, 4,162,000 of those women were working outside the home.

By their very existence, these single working mothers challenge some of postwar America's most cherished Ozzie-and-Harriet myths. Single mothers? Working mothers? Single, working mothers? The phrase barely parses.

Shrugs Patricia Morrow, "I'm a single mother. I work. That's all."

That is all?

LAT Photo

Los Angeles Olympic Committee executive Pat Morrow, former "Peyton Place" actress, plays with her adopted children, James, 4, who is brain-damaged, and Marielle, 16 months. Morrow, who is divorced, says that single, working motherhood is "a struggle and a celebration."

THIRTY-EIGHT-YEAR-OLD Pat Morrow might like to be "just another single mother." Except, as she is the first to admit — there is no such thing as "just another single mother."

Even if there were, it would probably not be Pat Morrow. Not lawyer, former television news director, one-time Mouseketeer, Rita Jacks Harrington of "Peyton Place," long-time juvenile justice activist and current Los Angeles Olympic organizing Comittee licensing chief Pat Morrow.

Flashback to 1945. A baby call goes out to Los Angeles hospitals. Fourteen-day-old Patricia Morrow makes her movie debut. "I don't know, some movie with Walter Pidgeon. I can't remember the name." Morrow is deadpan. "I played the baby."

At this moment, 38 years later, Morrow is playing with the baby; 16-month-old Marielle Margaret Morrow, the daughter she adopted not long after her marriage to writer Lance Brisson crumbled. Just in front of them, James Morrow Brisson, 4, is wheeling a toy grocery cart around the family room. James is shopping for imaginary provisions. "Ice cream!" he squeals, and giggles, tossing his mother a large parcel of air.

A SUNBEAM CHILD with soft blue eyes, James is adopted, too. Three months into his life, his parents saw one eye shimmy in place. Pat Morrow carted her son off to a pediatric ophthalmologist — "one of those people you don't know exist until you have a child." Lights shone on a wall and funny clowns bobbed about while the doctor gauged baby James' responses. Finally, this assessment: "You've got a kid with a brain problem, not an eye problem."

Yet another of "those people," a pediatric neurologist, confirmed the diagnosis. James had been born with a cerebral dysfunction. On such a young child, the damage was difficult to measure. Nothing could be certain, said the doctor, until the baby began to miss developmental stages. Morrow remembers the doctor's exact advice. "He told us to go home and wait. About a year."

Soon it was clear: James' brain was scrambled. The cause was a mystery, the cure nonexistent. His future was cloudy. But James — laughing, gentle James — would never read the books his parents loved so much, never revel in the music they cared so much about. James was 2 years old when he began to walk, and just six months ago, he learned to speak his own name. Visiting a speech therapist once a week, James suddenly blossomed into talk. Sometimes he almost prattles, words that seem formed in foam.

"Hug!" he cries as baby Mari is trundled off to night-night-land. "Hug! Hug!" Only as James reaches out to caress his baby sister, the word sounds more like "hawk."

TWO OR THREE times each night, Pat Morrow is up with James to change him. She blesses the ocean of cheer this child sails in: "In spite of the minor inconveniences," Morrow says, "he is, thank God, predictable. He'll do all the normal child things."

Such as, two rooms away, using a navy blue Crayola to redecorate a wall mirror. Suddenly Morrow is any mother of any 4-year-old. Morrow tells her kid to cool it with the Crayolas.

James' cerebral dysfunction, says his mother, is "just one of those things,' just something that happened. It is a little thing, really, says Morrow: "You're damned right it's little. To him it is."

This fall James will go to a special school. For once Morrow agrees with a bureaucratic adjective. "Really," she says, "he is such a special child." James, says his mother, "is the perfect lesson in nonjudgment, in pure, uncensored love. It makes me grateful for every new word.

"I don't know what that illumination is, but he is just lighted up from within," Morrow adds. "You know, sometimes I read these stories about seriously handicapped children, and I think I should not even say I have a 'special child.' Pat Morrow is a toucher, a woman who reaches out to stroke an arm, or squeeze a hand. Now her conversation is punctuated with tiny taps on her listener's forearm. "But you know," she says, "it sure has changed my life." With James, says his mother, all expectations are suspended. "There's a real freedom," she says, "to be me, and to allow him to be him."

MOTHERHOOD SNEAKED UP on Pat Morrow. Ten years ago, "in my 20s, I didn't think about it at all. I was interested in studying, in working, in living and in learning." Morrow had spent five years — from 18 to 23 — playing bad-girl Rita in the show that was the "Dallas" of its day. "Peyton Place" was watched by 50 million people. As a regular, Morrow earned $100,000 a year.

"Which, at age 19," she says, half a lifetime later, "was pretty astounding."

Beyond the money, there were perks: politicians stepping aside so "Rita" could take the podium; two trips to Vietnam, and so forth. But of the politicians, "I knew Hubert Humphrey didn't know me from a bean." And her talk about Vietnam afterward saw Morrow denounced as a flaky TV-soap opera blonde. Morrow said enough, and turned her back on Hollywood and its glamour.

Pills bad for some

The Los Angeles Times—
Washington Post News Service

Birth control pill brands whose formulas may pose significant risks of heart disease outnumber, by almost 2 to 1, pill types whose composition minimizes those same dangers, according to a new survey.

And to complicate matters for women concerned with cardiovascular disease and the Pill, the survey indicates that some of the most popular brands on the market are available in a wide variety of formulations, some of which fall into the low-risk category and some of which — under the same brand name — were judged high risk.

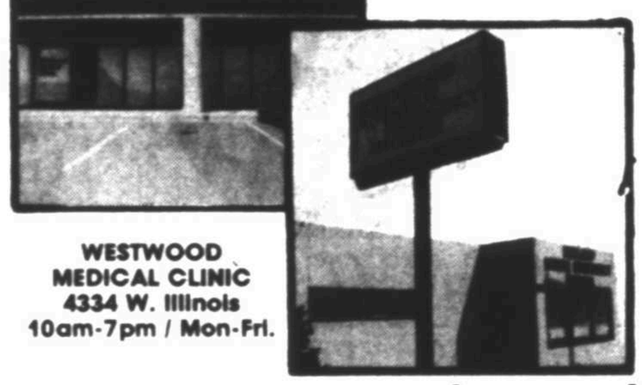

Wide differences in strength and potential cardiovascular risk were noted, for instance, for the popular Ortho-Novum line, manufacturered by Ortho Pharmaceuticals Inc., of Raritan, N.J., and for Norinyl, a product of Syntex Corp. of Palo Alto, Calif. Both brands are widely sold.

In all, of the 25 pill brands and formulas that contain both an estrogen (one of a group of female sex hormones) and a progestin (hormones that affect the uterus), nine fall into the low-risk category while 16 have formulas that place them in the high-risk group, according to a survey by the Medical Letter on Drugs and Therapeutics, a nationally respected physicians' newsletter.

The survey underscores the importance to a woman of knowing not just the brand name of contraceptive she is using, but of being aware of which formulation of that brand is involved. In the case of Ortho-Novum, for instance, formulations designated 150, 135 and 1011 appear on the low-risk list while the formulations called 2-milligram and 180 are in the high-risk category.

Based on the criteria outlined by Rizack, the Medical Letter concluded that Ovcon-50, Norinyl 150, Ortho-Novum 150, Brevicon, Modicon, Ovcon-35, Norinyl 135, Ortho-Novum 135 and Ortho-Novum 1011 have formulas that make them significantly safer in terms of cardiovascular disease risk than 16 competing pills and formulations.

DEAR ABBY

Battering boyfriend wants another chance

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a very beautiful and sensitive woman who has been beaten up by her father, brothers, ex-husband and boyfriends. She is 42, and I am 38. When we started going together (a year ago), she promised that I would be the only man in her life.

Recently she admitted to having had sex with three other men while going with me. I forgave her, then I found out that a fourth man had given her a lobster for Mother's Day. Knowing that a man doesn't give a woman a lobster for nothing, I questioned her and she admitted she had had sex with him, too. I became upset and jealous and unintentionally sprained her wrist and yanked her hair.

She said my actions had hurt her more than all the fractures she had received from all the other men put together, and she never wants to see me again.

Since this was the first time I ever did anything like that, don't you think she should give me another chance so I can prove it will never happen again? -- NEEDS HER

DEAR NEEDS: Not necessarily. A woman who has been battered as much as your ladyfriend reaches a point where she finally says, "enough!"

Any woman who continues going with a man who has physically abused her once can expect a repeat performance unless he gets professional help and learns to control his anger.

AT WIT'S END

Housework a health risk

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I had enough guilt this week without reading that because I have a high school education and a white-collar job, I am increasing my husband's risk of a heart attack.

The survey that was done at the University of North Carolina really puzzles me. If education and a good job are a lethal combination for men, then how come I didn't get a heart attack when my husband had a Ph.D. and a white-collar job to which I contributed nothing but a ring on my finger and another one around his collar?

Besides, it wasn't more than two years ago that another survey came out that said since the return of so many women to the work force, there had been a definite increase in heart attacks among women because in invading a man's world we fell susceptible to their business pressures and anxieties.

So it would seem that the family that matriculates and escalates together . . . hyperventilates together.

The amazing thing about these surveys are the mysteries no one has answered. Why are women both the carriers and the victims of these heart attacks?

Why, if holding down a job outside the home makes you sick, would men want to keep it to themselves and exclude women?

If housework is such a healthy job, then how come we can't lure more men to it?

I asked my husband this the other night and he said, "Nonsense. I know a lot of men who would jump at the chance to stay home, raise children, cook, do the laundry and not have management breathing down their necks."

As we turned on the TV set, I kept that thought. During the next three hours, there were 38 commercials geared toward keeping house and raising children. There were women fighting "disgusting roaches," wax build-up, peeling paint, corroded ovens, oily peanut butter, lazy laundry detergents, stinking kitchen odors, pesky termites, backed-up sinks, tension headaches induced by dogs and kids, cars that wouldn't run, too much caffeine, deodorants that let down, garbage tumbling out of weak bags, grease that clung to the walls, handprints that wouldn't come off, toilets that smelled and clothes stains that would take the sight out of a good eye.

As we clicked off the set, I said to him, "I just realized how selfish I have been staying home having fun and letting you go out to work. 'One of these days' is now! All of this is yours!"

"Sweetheart," he said, "I love you too much to allow you to make that kind of a sacrifice and jeopardize your health."

The answer seems apparent. Maybe if both of us shared in the giddiness of housework and the body-destructing job outside the household, we could reduce the risk from a heart attack to simple heartburn. There's a cure for that!

Dance helps kids learn

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A learning-disabled child at a Hawaiian elementary school frustrated his teachers and terrorized his classmates with his violent outbursts and anti-social behavior.

But a two-week exposure to dance and movement principles during a Brigham Young University Dancers' Company residency gave this youngster one of his first successful school experiences, providing a new way for him to learn.

This is one of the many success stories for the 16-member student dance group during the six years it has concentrated on teaching dance and movement principles in the public schools.

The ensemble, under the direction of Pat Debenham, BYU assistant professor of dance, and Dee Winterton, associate professor of dance, regularly holds two-week sessions throughout the country. In places like Florida, Illinois, Hawaii and Iowa, the group works with handicapped as well as "normal" elementary school children and their teachers.

The residencies, say company members, are much more than just an introduction to dance.

"It's not just teaching 'dance,' the subject area," maintains Debenham. "We're concerned about the individual child's general learning skills." Discovering how to use the body properly can enhance even the most academic discipline, he says.

"Every single child can have a successful experience with us. That isn't always the case with most subject areas," he adds.

The walls and doors of Debenham's campus office are covered with posters, cards and letters from appreciative children and teachers. "I can hop very good now," wrote one small child.

Checkups for health

How often should healthy children and adults have medical checkups?

According to a current Family Circle magazine article, the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American Medical Association recommend: a newborn child should be seen by a physician two to four weeks after birth, four to five times during the first year and every one to two years through age 21.

Healthy young adults should have checkups at five-year intervals until age 40.

After age 40, have a checkup every one to three years.

As a rule, the physicians say, frequency of checkups should increase with age. But regardless of age, some people need more frequent checkups than others because of medical history, occupation or health problems.

AT WORK

Criticism motivates

By DR. ADELE SCHEELE

"She changed overnight. Yesterday she sat in her office, twirling her hair, complaining about things, taking too many personal calls, putting out the minimum of work. I thought I should fire her on the spot. Then I remembered something I had read about employee motivation and decided instead to help her change. Sitting down with her, I began by listing what I wanted an assistant to do and what I did not want her to do — wasting her time and mine.

"Astonished, she said she'd like to think about things overnight. The next morning, she was a completely different person. I didn't know it was possible for a human to change so radically," said a senior editor in a small publishing company.

In another case, an independent computer designer reported that he had put up with enough. His secretary was guilty of everything from laziness to shoddy work. In a rage, he wrote her a letter that she was much brighter than she was pretending to be and he would therefore expect, in the future, for her to display that talent and give him ideas. He proceeded to list the tasks and behaviors that he wanted her to do and those he didn't. He held his breath, half expecting her to quit. But like the editor's assistant, the secretary transformed herself.

These two stories have a lot in common not only with each other but also with many of us. Both bosses had been wrong in not giving constructive criticism or helpful feedback. We all know how hard it is to confront somebody — and especially well. The negative pattern is common enough — silence; enduring some bad behavior, never praising, and then blowing up over a small item, the straw that breaks the camel's back.

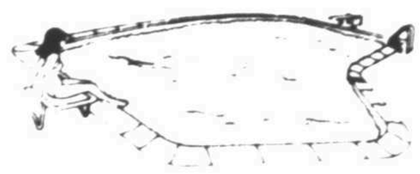

Small offices often are the most negligent in finding ways to motivate or evaluate employees. And while large corporations have used employee appraisals for years, in many cases, these become perfunctory and routine. Yet we all need to improve — bosses as well as assistants. And we all need somebody to help us do it. A sage once wrote, "Our chief want in life is someone who shall make us do what we can."

Employees need a boss who can develop, encourage, and direct. When that happens, their behavior is radically changed like a thirsty plant reviving after being watered.

Kidnapped Irish lawyer found 'shaken but alive and well'

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A Irish lawyer, kidnapped from his luxury home and left tied to a tree for 24 hours, was found early today by police, who said he was "a little shaken but otherwise alive and well."

Police said they are holding a man under Ireland's anti-terrorist laws in connection with the kidnapping of William Somerville, 45.

A police press officer refused to give any details on why the man was being held. The anti-terrorist laws allows a person to be held up to 48-hours without being charged.

Somerville was found by police at 1:15 a.m. tied to a tree on an abandoned army firing range in the Wicklow Mountains south of Dublin after the kidnappers telephoned his family.

The police spokesman said the lawyer told police he was left tied to the tree without food for more than 24 hours after being abducted by a gunman from his home at the County Wicklow village of Enniskerry late Tuesday night.

Coup foiled in Upper Volta

OUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (AP) — The pro-Libyan army captain who toppled Upper Volta's Western-oriented government last week says his forces foiled an attempted counter-coup.

Capt. Thomas Sankara, 35, in a statement released Wednesday by his National Revolutionary Council, said "unidentified armed men" simultaneously attacked his residence and the nearby offices of the state radio during the night. He gave no other information on the attempted counter-coup.

He also said two military officers from the former regime were killed when "counter-revolutionaries" tried to free them from house arrest in the capital.

Sankara and his National Revolutionary Council toppled the government of Jean-Baptiste Ouedraogo in an overnight coup that ended last Friday with five deaths.

Mexico may be at low point

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Banking officials say their statistics indicate that Mexico may have reached the low point in its recession and financial crisis.

A report prepared by the National Bank of Mexico said industrial production for the first four months of 1983 dropped 9.6 percent compared with the same period in 1982, indicating "that we have reached the most severe part of the recession."

Inflation in Mexico is expected to close the year at about 80 percent, but the government says it has registered improvements in its financial standing.

More than one million Mexicans have lost their jobs since 1982 in the recession.

Blind girl won't be flogged

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A blind girl, sentenced to a public flogging and three years at hard labor for giving birth out of wedlock, won a reprieve after an outcry over the severity of the punishment.

The girl, identified only as Safia, failed to identify the father of the stillborn child from a police lineup because of her blindness.

She was sentenced July 25 to 15 lashes, a fine of $100 and a possible six-month extension of her three-year hard labor term if she could not pay.

Nigerian students in U.S. stranded without money to continue education

NEW YORK (AP) — Aker Yongu, 32, a graduate student in education at Indiana University, has been waiting for three months for the scholarship check he was supposed to receive from the government in his native Nigeria.

Without that check, Yongu cannot enroll in classes this fall. If he does not enroll in classes, he is in violation of his foreign student visa and can be deported. That student visa bars him from holding a job and earning the money to pay his tuition and rent. He and his pregnant wife have been living off donations from campus area church groups.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," he says.

Yongu is one of at least 10,000 Nigerian students stranded on American campuses without money for tuition or living expenses or even plane fare home, says Julie Rose, the Nigerian coordinator for the National Association for Foreign Students.

Ms. Rose blames the delays on poor economic conditions and a plodding bureaucracy in Nigeria. She says up to half the estimated 25,000 Nigerian students in the United States may be barred from enrolling in fall semester classes on hundreds of American campuses within the next few weeks.

She said that most schools are not allowing the Nigerian students to register this semester until they have paid their bills from last semester — $22 million for tuition and $65 million for living expenses. Some schools, she said, are also requiring advance payment for the coming semester.

"The financial condition of Nigerian students in the United States is an embarrassment to all of us associated with international education," said the University of Tennessee's Dixon Johnson, president of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisers.

Evangelical sect says new government of Guatemala 'established by God'

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Despite a drive to curb the California-based Church of the Word's influence after the ouster of one of its members as president, the evangelical sect says the new government was "established by God."

Discontent with the increasing influence of the Protestant sect in predominantly Roman Catholic Guatemala had played a part in Monday's coup that ousted President Efrain Rios Montt, a general who publicly touted his "born again" Christianity.

New chief of state Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores on Wednesday removed Hugo Leonel Contreras Valladares, an active member of the sect, from his post as president of the board of the government's mortage bank.

The government also announced it was ending a public relations campaign against corruption that was being run by an advertising agency linked to the Church of the Word.

Two church elders who were Rios Montt's close advisers, Francisco Bianchi Castillo and Alvaro Contreras, resigned from the government Tuesday.

The Guatemala branch of the Church of the Word issued a statement saying the two would "return to their previous activities." It said they had performed "their jobs with all honesty and diligence" during Rios Montt's 502-day government.

U.S. soldiers set up posts for Honduran exercises

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — U.S. soldiers are setting up tents and installing communications equipment at the sites that will serve as headquarters for U.S.-Honduran military exercises.

A U.S. military spokesman said Wednesday that 420 soldiers have arrived in Honduras since the weekend and are working at the headquarters sites in San Pedro Sula and Comayagua.

The U.S. Embassy has described the maneuvers, which will last six months and involve up to 5,000 American and 6,000 Honduran soldiers, as the "most comprehensive" ever held in Central America.

The air base at San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, is serving as the entry point for U.S. air force planes bringing in radar equipment and other supplies for the maneuvers. Jumbo-sized C-5A and C-141 planes have been shuttling between the United States and San Pedro Sula since the weekend.

The base at Comayagua, 40 miles northwest of this capital city, will serve as task force headquarters for the maneuvers.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the two camps plus others at Puerto Castillo on the Caribbean and San Lorenzo on the Pacific coast will be completed and ready for use by late August.

The maneuvers come at a time of mounting tension between Honduras and the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Nicaragua accuses Honduras of helping U.S.-supported Nicaraguan insurgents and allowing them to use Honduran territory. The Sandinistas say war is possible unless the insurgents halt their cross-border attacks.

New mother prepares for shuttle

Anna Fisher

HOUSTON (AP) — Anna Fisher went right back to work after she had her first baby, but in her case "work" means preparing for the eighth flight of the space shuttle.

Mrs. Fisher, an astronaut whose husband Bill Fisher also is an astronaut and a physician, gave birth July 29 to Kristin Anne Fisher, NASA officials said Wednesday.

Johnson Space Center spokesman Steve Nesbitt said the child was born on a Friday and Mrs. Fisher was back at work the following Monday. Neither parent has been named to an active flight crew but both are supporting preparations for upcoming missions.

Mrs. Fisher is the second of the space program's eight women astronauts to have a baby. Last year at about this time, Margaret Rhea Seddon Gibson, also married to an astronaut, gave birth to a son.

Nancy Reagan

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — First Lady Nancy Reagan had some words of encouragement for residents of a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center: "It's a great big wonderful world out there," she said, "and we need you."

During a visit to the Cenikor Foundation on Wednesday, Mrs. Reagan, 60, told residents she is sure they will kick their drug habits. "It's difficult, I know it is, but I know you'll all make it," she said.

The first lady also visited a day-care center and met with children of Cenikor residents and others in the community. The youngsters offered their views of what they would do if they were president. "If I were president of the United States, I would make bubble gum," said one child. Another made a poster saying the role of the president is to "help poor people."

Lee Iacocca

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Lee Iacocca will come out of the boardroom and back to the tube next month in a televised ad promoting Chrysler's return to financial health.

The Chrysler chairman, who did TV ads for the automaker during its fiscal dark days and its turnaround, hasn't been in a company TV commercial since February after he decided to cut back on his appearances.

Joseph L. Hickey, corporate advertising manager, said Wednesday that Iacocca will be in a 60-second ad next month timed for the automaker's introduction of its latest models.

It will be his 20th Chrysler commercial.

M. Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has the go-ahead to launch her annual vacation later this week despite the problems she has been having with her right eye.

Mrs. Thatcher, 57, was told she "can proceed with her holiday plans with every confidence," her office at 10 Downing St. said in a statement Wednesday.

The prime minister underwent surgery last week to repair a torn retina.

The surgeon, Dr. Richard Packard, gave her a clean bill of health, the statement said. And Mrs. Thatcher and husband Denis will set out Friday for a two-week stay in Switzerland.

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-time Emmy winner Dorothy Lyman is stepping out of ABC's daytime serial "All My Children" and into movies and other programs for NBC. Her contract with ABC expires in November.

NBC said Wednesday that Ms. Lyman also will be making guest appearances under the new agreement. Terms were not disclosed.

In June, Ms. Lyman won an Emmy as outstanding actress in a daytime drama for her portrayal of Opal Gardner in "All My Children." She also won an Emmy as outstanding supporting actress in the 1981-82 season.

She also has appeared in four other soaps — "Another World," "Search for Tomorrow," "The Edge of Night" and "A World Apart."

Country Music Hall of Fame will induct 40th member

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Comics Rod Brasfield and Whitey Ford, veteran singer Little Jimmy Dickens, bluegrass pioneers Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs and composer-singer Floyd Tillman are finalists for the Country Music Hall of Fame.

This year's inductee, the 40th, will be announced Oct. 10 during the nationally televised Country Music Association awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House.

Brasfield, who usually wore a baggy brown suit, was a comic famed for his dialogues with comedienne Minnie Pearl. He was a regular on the Grand Ole Opry from 1944 until his death in 1958.

Dickens, 57, who stands only 4-foot-11, has been singing professionally for almost 40 years. He is best known for novelty songs like "May the Bird of Paradise Fly Up Your Nose," "A 'Sleepin' at the Foot of the Bed" and "Take an Old Cold Tater and Wait."

Flatt and Scruggs will be considered as one nominee. Flatt, who died in 1979, and Scruggs, 59, were pioneers in bluegrass music under Bill Monroe, "the father of bluegrass music."

Ford, 82, is a comic known as the Duke of Paducah. A former emcee for Gene Autry's rodeo shows, he is best known for his tag line, "I'm goin' to the wagon, boys, these shoes are killin' me."

Tillman, 68, is known as one of country music's great "hurtin' singers." He wrote songs such as "It Makes No Difference Now" and "Slippin' Around." His recording of "I Love You So Much, It Hurts" was a million seller.

The winner will be chosen by an anonymous panel of 200 people who have been active in the music business for at least 15 years.

To be nominated, a person must have been active in country music for 35 years as a performer or nonperformer.

Comic strip hero goes cold turkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cold turkey: That's how Mark Trail, the comic strip character, has given up smoking his pipe.

Daniel Kahn, 6, made him do it.

Daniel, son of an Atlanta physican, wrote Jack Elrod, Mark's creator, about Mark's tobacco habit.

"He's supposed to appreciate nature, and that's not good for nature," he said.

"You are absolutely right," wrote back Elrod, who also lives in Atlanta. "Mark should not smoke. In the past we've shown Mark with a pipe mainly for identification purposes and composition. Because of your letter, starting in September, I'm not going to let Mark smoke any more."

Daniel's parents called the exchange of correspondence to the attention of a Washington anti-smoking organization.

Man bites rattlesnake

LAKE CITY, Fla. (AP) — When a rattlesnake bit Arlie Waldron on the forearm, he decided to get even. He bit the snake's head off, but not before the rattler nipped him six more times, including once on the tongue.

A canebreak rattlesnake bit the 42-year-old Waldron as he started to teach his son about handling snakes as they stood in Waldron's backyard in the pine woods of north Florida.

Enraged, Waldron said he set out to bite off the reptile's head, but the fatal chomp didn't come before Waldron had been bitten seven times.

He was rushed from his home near Lake City to a local hospital that night, July 16, and two hours later was transferred to Shands Teaching Hospital in Gainesville. He spent four days there before returning home.

His head and neck "swelled up like a balloon" Waldron recalled in a recent interview with the Lake City Reporter.

Teachers' traditional classroom methods may be hindrance

Copley News Service

Conventional classroom methods of most teachers hinder more than help the majority of pupils, says Dr. Benjamin Bloom of Chicago, author, lecturer and Northwestern University professor.

"The child who has difficulty in the first grade, for example, will experience more difficulty in the second grade," he said.

"We have built in our schools a sequential curriculum in which subjects are like building blocks," he said. "You can't do second-year algebra until you learn first-year algebra, but if children don't understand a portion of first-year algebra and the teacher proceeds with the rest of the course, by the time they get to the next steps in algebra they're having real difficulty.

"In time, algebra becomes like Greek — a foreign language. They just don't understand what the teacher is talking about.

"We have to break this lock step. These children are doomed, not only because they fall behind in their schoolwork ... they develop a negative self-image.

"They are learning that they can't learn. The danger is that many will give up."

In the last 40 years, Bloom has been evaluating and challenging the way children are taught, both in the United States and abroad.

He said part of the fault in this country today lies in the way tests are used in classrooms.

"Teachers use tests to grade their pupils — so many A's, B's, C's and D's," he said, "so tests are tools to classify people.

"Instead, they should be used as a diagnostic tool, to help the teachers find out how they can help the children who are in trouble."

Bloom has spent much of his life traveling to other countries as a consultant on teacher evaluation and curriculum. He finds that some of these nations are ahead of America in classroom methods.

"In Japan, for example, where their children score considerably higher than American children in similar tests, they know what a child is supposed to learn in grade one, so that he or she can advance to grade two," he said.

"They make sure that all the children have the prerequisites for arithmetic or reading before they are allowed to go on to the next step.

"In Japan, as in other countries, there is a clearer standard of what children need.

"In the United States, I'm afraid, our teachers too often just take a stab at it. They don't know definitely what the children need."

Bloom said he has remained an optimist despite weaknesses in the U.S. educational system.

In the 1960s he worked to develop a more effective method of classroom instruction.

He came up with a system he refers to as "mastery learning."

"This isn't anything new," he said, smiling. "It existed over 2,000 years ago, at the time of Plato and Aristotle and later with St. Thomas Aquinas.

"They used what was called in their time a trial test. They saw what a student needed and helped correct his or her difficulty before they were given final exams, but I devoted 15 years of my life to develop mastery learning, and my name is associated with it.

"Essentially, it encourages the teachers to take stock of their students, to see what they need.

Calendar planned for Midland district

So you still haven't unpacked from your summer vacation, but Grandma wants to know when to expect the children for spring break. Grandmas and school districts are probably the only people to plan so far ahead.

The 1983-84 calendar for the Midland Independent School District is as follows:

Monday, Aug. 29 — first day of classes. Mom can spend the day getting caught up on soap operas.

Monday, Sept. 5 — Labor Day (they're back already?) holiday. Family takes advantage of a last day at the lake.

Thursday and Friday, Nov. 24 and 25 — Thanksgiving holiday. Kids spend 32 hours in front of the television while Mom spends 16 hours preparing for and 10 hours cleaning up after Thanksgiving dinner. Dad decides it's a waste of time to mow the lawn and takes a two-day nap.

Monday, Dec. 19 through Monday, Jan. 2 — Christmas (these kids are driving me nuts) break. Children search every possible place of concealment in the house looking for gifts. Mom does shopping and hiding while trying to make arrangements to host or attend 34 Christmas parties. Dad tries to diet so he can fit into Santa suit.

Monday, Jan. 16 — Teacher work day, student holiday. Or should that read teacher holiday? All the children fortunate enough to know what snow is get nostalgic and have snowball fights with crushed ice.

Monday, Feb. 20 — Just-for-the-heck-of-it holiday. Kids decide it's too cold to play outside and Mom decides it's too noisy to stay inside. Video parlors report record profits.

Monday through Friday, March 19-23 — Spring (the end is near) break. Kids spent first day counting the number of school days remaining while Mom counts the number of days until next Monday. A few hardy ones brave the elements to get a head start on their summer tans.

Friday and Monday, April 20, 23 — Easter (this one's got to last until school's out) recess. Spend Friday coloring eggs and making up baskets, then ship them off to Grandma's for a visit.

Wednesday, May 30 — Last day of classes. Start all over again.

System designed for disobedient

Behave!! is a new system designed for parents of uncooperative or hard-to-manage children.

GAME RULES:

To play this game you need one die and some buttons to be your players. Follow the instructions when you land on a printed square. The turnarounds count as a jump in and a jump out. Cross the bridge first, then go under it. The bridge counts as one space. If you hit the 'oops' square you'll have to cross the bridge again. Have fun!

After-school program can be fun

Copley News Service

About 200 students a week have to stay after school at Chaparral Elementary School in Poway, Calif., but they don't care.

In fact, they even volunteer to stay.

They attend an after-school school. Classes are run by parents, teachers and volunteers. Since it began three years ago, 10 other Poway district schools have copied the idea.

The after-school school has once-a-week classes as varied as "Tall Ships" (the study of sailing ships), "Snakes Alive" (the study of snakes), model-making, folk dancing, puppetry, dance, computer programming and woodworking.

"So You Want To Be A Rock Star," is one offering. "This is not 'just' a guitar class," promises the class syllabus. "Students learn not only chords, but presentation and ways to create original songs."

Or students can try "You Are Beautiful," a class where they "learn the magic of color and what it can do for you."

The program was first conceived by parent Joanne Ferstan. Concerned about district budget cuts, she approached the Parent-Teacher Association with her idea. The PTA enthusiastically endorsed it. So did the school district.

After working out legalities, the PTA took out its own liability insurance and the district provided the school rent-free. Since the school district is legally prohibited from charging money for instruction, the PTA assumed full responsibility for the program.

It hires volunteer teachers for small fees as "independent contractors." The teachers do not have to have teaching credentials, just "knowledge and enthusiasm," in the words of Pat Kumpan, program coordinator. A parent, Kumpan is the PTA's one full-time paid employee for the program.

Some classes are free. Others have fees ranging from $3 (mask-making) to $26 (computers) for each 10-week session. There are two sessions per school year. Fees cover expenses and compensation for teachers. Some classes, including computers and Snakes Alive, also are offered for adults.

One woman, Sheila Dawson, has no children attending Chapparal, but she enjoys woodworking. Once a week she pulls into the school parking lot in a large white school bus. Inside the bus is an elaborate woodworking shop for kids.

Taking a break from drilling a piece of wood, Jacob Roesner, 5, said he likes woodworking because "we make things." He pointed to the finely sanded pieces of wood on his workbench. "It's an airplane. I'm going to take it home and play with it."

At the next bench in the converted bus was Jeremy Levin, sawing away on parts for a boat. "I am older than him," he asserted. "I'm 5.5. I came here last year, too. You get to build things. It's fun."

Said Dawson, with a smile, "I tell them this is the hardest fun they'll ever have."

LAT Photo

After school can be fun if it means learning something not normally taught in school. These children learn the art of woodworking in a mobile classroom created from an old school bus.

School supplies suggested

It's time for little Ricky to go to his very first day of school. His face is scrubbed, shoes shined, hair slicked back and clothes pressed. Just a minute, Mom. Something's missing.

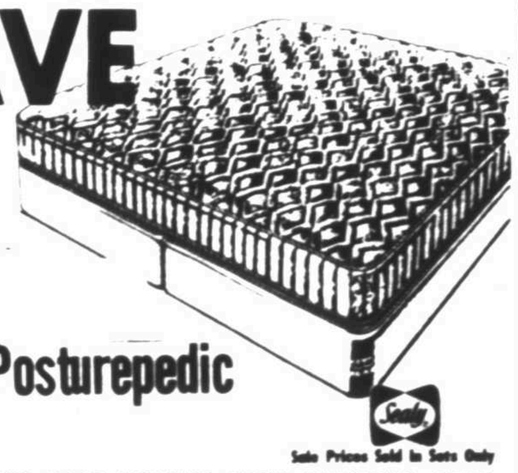

One of the items mentioned on the suggested school supply list is a school box, and in it should be two No. 2 pencils, two primary pencils, a box of eight crayons (flat-sided), white paste in a plastic container, a pair of sharp-pointed five-inch scissors, a rubber eraser, a box of watercolors and a plastic container such as a butter tub. So armed, little Ricky and his classmates can proudly bring home their artistic endeavors.

A box of facial tissues will be requested as needed, for either Ricky or Mom.

Basic supplies needed by those entering other elementary grades include two No. 2 pencils, a box of 16 crayons, white glue in a plastic container, sharp-pointed five-inch scissors, a rubber eraser and facial tissues. The second-grader will require a ruled tablet or its equivalent, and third- through sixth-graders an 8x10½-inch notebook with paper. Fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade students will also need spiral notebooks.

"This was me 66 pounds ago . . ."

Like so many American children, Peggy Powell struggled with the physical and social problems associated with being overweight. At 12 years old and weighing 186 pounds, Peggy recalls having been teased by sisters and classmates and being excluded from games and parties. The picture at the left is all that remains now of those days.

. . Then I found Diet Center!

On Diet Center's Weight Control Program for children, Peggy lost 66 pounds, quickly and safely. Private, daily counseling; sound nutrition; and an education in what her body requires to function at peak efficiency helped her take control of her eating habits and gave her a real feeling of accomplishment and self-worth. Peggy's family was so impressed with her progress that her sister and her grandmother also took their weight problems to Diet Center.

Computer age may catch today's students unaware

Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Claiming to have seen a future filled with computers, Betty Iehl, a lecturer with the Los Angeles County Schools Teacher Education and Computer Center, wonders if today's students will be ready for it.

"They will not, unless local school systems realize that the computer is not designed just for math class and advanced students, but for all students in all classes at all levels of education," she said.

Iehl said computers are misunderstood. "And if this confusion persists, today's children will not be ready for tomorrow's high-tech work force."

She said some students who have knowledge of computers go to school and find there are no computers "or teachers who can teach them what they'll need to know."

Many teachers shy away from computers because they don't realize they are like cars. "You don't have to know how they work to operate them," she said.

"This was supposed to be the nuclear age; instead it has suddenly turned out to be the computer age."

The computer has numerous educational and instructional uses.

In English class, computers would be used as word processors. That's a use that not only prepares students for the business world, but reduces the amount of time it takes to revise essays and papers.

In physics and science class, the machines can be invaluable as simulators of experiments that are too dangerous or too time-consuming to do in class.

Of course, the computer instructor admits, everything in education involves some give and take.

"If children are taught to use computers, how much emphasis will we then put on handwriting techniques? And if a student can finish long division and fraction problems on a computer in seconds, why should we spend weeks and months teaching them?"

However, Iehl warns that school systems shouldn't jump into the computer age blindfolded.

As parents you should ask your school boards — most of which are planning the addition of computer systems — how the machines will be used.

Student and computer — a scenario seen more and more frequently as computers take an ever-growing part in the educational process.

Two-year academic program can be quite rewarding or very frustrating

Copley News Service

The program is called the International Baccalaureate. It is a merciless, two-year academic program that places juniors and seniors in college-level classes in subjects such as trigonometry and philosophy.

According to program counselor Roberta Spike, 31 students signed up when the program first began in 1982. Since then, seven have opted out.

"It takes a real achievement-oriented student," she said. "It can prove quite rewarding, or quite frustrating. At the beginning, we had students who came into my office and literally cried."

Vista (Calif.) High School participants study with teachers who have been trained by IB examiners.

IB WAS ORIGINALLY established as a worldwide academy of excellence for children of diplomats who had to travel a lot, yet wanted a good, consistent education. The IB center, where curriculum is developed, is located in Geneva, Switzerland. Programs are located in selected schools worldwide and provide students with a high school degree respected by the finest universities.

While graduating from IB does not ensure entry into Harvard or Yale, Vista school officials stress that such universities do take special notice of IB graduates.

"I knew it would be challenging, but not that challenging," said IB student Yulonda Reese, 16.

But Reese, who wants to become a pediatrician, is one of the survivors. She said the educational prestige of participating makes studying until bedtime every night worthwhile.

"NOTHING IS TOO DIFFICULT if you really want to do it. I think you have to want to succeed; to enjoy challenges and learning. I've learned a lot more than I think I would have in regular classes."

Yulonda Reese is one of the students who successfully met the challenge of attending a two-year academic program that places high school students in college-level classes in subjects such as trigonometry and philosophy.

Books, toys help child's skills

Copley News Service

The best way to help young children prepare to read is to read to them, according to learning expert Dr. Marilyn Sloan.

Sloan, a school psychologist and director of product development for Toys to Grow On, says children's pre-reading and reading skills can be developed through a wide range of books. Those skills can be further stimulated by toys and games that develop cognitive skills such as hand-eye coordination and visual tracking.

Even infants can learn basic skills from cloth books containing simple shapes and images, says Sloan.

For a child of 2 or 3 years, wordless picture books stimulate interaction between parent and child as each takes turns telling a story based on the book's illustrations. "Books on a child's favorite areas of interest will stimulate his desire to read, too," adds Sloan.

She notes that additional cognitive skills required for reading are developed through play in various ways:

— Arts and crafts activities, such as painting at an easel or coloring a picture, foster hand-eye coordination.

— Symbol and shape recognition required in puzzles help children understand word-symbol connections as they learn to read.

— Visual tracking and patterning abilities are learned by lacing buttons or threading beads. Building sets and floor games with miniature streets and play cars develop eye-hand coordination

School...a time for sports

Copley News Service

Going back to school means more than books and studying. It means extracurricular activities and a chance to try out for school sports teams.

If you have dreams of making the team, chances are good that you practiced on the football field, track or on the basketball courts during the summer.

If basketball is your sport, you'll want to take advantage of the tips offered by superstars Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Julius "Dr. J." Erving, both consultants for Spalding Sports.

Johnson, at age 23, has already won the Most Valuable Player Award twice. Erving, a veteran of 13 pro seasons, has won numerous awards, including the All-Star Most Valuable Player of the Year.

Johnson offers four fundamental tips that are keys to his success. Incorporating them into your technique will certainly improve your game on the court:

— When passing a basketball, prevent it from spinning to make it easier for the receiver.

— Spread out your legs and keep your knees bent for a good body balance and quick movement.

— Jump high and release the ball at the peak of a jump. Use the backboard when possible.

— When defending, put a hand up to your opponent's face to distract his shot. If you are farther out, keep both hands low to reach for the dribble or pass.

How do you handle 'gifted'?

From Wire Reports

As a parent, how do you deal with a gifted child?

David P. Hermanson, supervisor of the San Diego Unified School District's gifted program, offers these tips to parents of gifted children:

BE SURE to remember that the youngster is a child first, and gifted second. Only behavior appropriate for the child's age should be expected.

Involve the child in decision-making to allow him to realize decisions have consequences.

Gifted children focus sharply and "devour" things. Parents often become too concerned with raising a multifaceted child, overlooking their specific interests.

Gifted children set very high standards and often are never pleased with what they do, to the point that they have difficulty producing a final product. They are their own worst critics.

MAKE the home atmosphere safe for failure. Children need a sense of psychological safety to express their ideas in new and spontaneous ways. A parent who ridicules his youngster's ideas usually convinces the child his thoughts couldn't possibly be worth developing.

Help your child understand that failure can be an important experience. Encourage creative and intellectual risks, and share your own feelings on the subject with your child.

Gifted children love to ask questions. Teach them to inquire in a socially acceptable manner and help them understand the need for courtesy to others.

HELP your child feel and value his own uniqueness. Encourage originality. Gifted children are often concerned about "adult" problems such as death, war, God, finances and so forth. Help them feel comfortable, but don't discourage them from thinking about these matters.

Realize there are times when your child needs your specific help, and times when he needs to be alone. Let him experience the joy of discovering his own problem-solving methods.

Many gifted children have great powers of concentration. They are often content to be alone for long periods of time. See that your child has a quiet place and time to work on his own.

GIFTED children need mental peers their own age.

Gifted children need time to daydream, act silly or do nothing — just as other children do. They shouldn't be expected to work at top capacity all the time.

PARENTS of gifted or talented children may be interested in subscribing to the Gifted Children's Newsletter, a privately owned national monthly publication that includes the latest research in the field and a pull-out section for youngsters from elementary to middle-school age. Cost is $24 per year; a sample issue can be purchased for 50 cents. For information, write P.O. Box 115, Sewell, NJ 08080.

Look your best during school days

Back-to-school...a time to improve makeup skills

Copley News Service

Back-to-school time is the perfect opportunity to improve your makeup skills. With all the exciting and busy times ahead — football games, cheerleading practice, parties and special dates — you'll need to develop a quick-and-easy beauty routine so you will always look your best.

Well, there's no secret to looking beautiful. According to Ralph Porto, president of Hazel Bishop Cosmetics, a more polished autumn look that works for both classroom and extra-curricular activities is a simple five-step procedure. "All it takes," says Porto, "is deciding what you want makeup to do for you and then experimenting until it works." Experimenting with makeup does require a bit of budget flexibility but it needn't be expensive! The price tag is reduced if you practice with affordably priced cosmetics.

As you begin experimenting, the experts at Hazel Bishop Cosmetics suggest the following five-step beauty checklist:

SKIN — To get your skin in tip-top shape and to keep it glowing all year long, remember — you are what you eat! Eliminate any foods from your diet that cause your skin to break out — greasy food and chocolate are big culprits. Pamper dry skin by cleansing with a super-fatted soap and spritzing your face several times a day with mineral water, just like you do your plants. Oily skin needs special attention. To control oily areas and the "shinies," cleanse your face three times a day with a specially formulated cleanser and follow with an astringent.

CHEEKS — Now that your skin is in terrific shape, add a touch of blush high on your cheekbones to maintain a healthy glow. To find your cheekbones, make a "V" with your first and middle finger. Touch your fingertips to the top and bottom of your ear. The area enclosed by the V is where your blush should go. Remember that blush is used to enhance your natural coloring, not to create a mask. Powder blushes are easier to work with to get the natural look and are also best for oily and combination skin types.

EYES — Eye contact is an important form of communication, whether you're leading a cheer at the football game or deep in conversation with a special friend. So, learning to make your eyes "talk" for you will aid in the way you express yourself. A sponge-tip applicator is best for blending colors when learning to contour and highlight your eyes. And a powder eyeshadow, rather than a creamy one is easiest to work with. First, fill in a contour color over the lid area. Then fill in the area under your eyebrow with a lighter color to highlight. Finally, apply a no-smear, waterproof mascara for a wide-eyed look. You can also add tiny touches of blue eyeshadow in the corners to make the white of your eyes look brighter.

LIPS — Your lips say a lot about you. To make sure your smile sends the right message, be certain your lips look their best. Because your lips do not have oil-producing glands, you should always make a conscious effort to keep them protected, otherwise they will always be dry and chapped.

HAIR — Short and sassy is in! It makes you look neater, more pulled together, even sophisticated. And a short cut also helps hair stay healthy. Trim your hair for an easy carefree style and to remove dead ends damaged by summer's sizzling sun. A style that falls into place with a quick blow dry is best because it's quick and easy, especially after gym class. Teens with dry hair should remember to pamper their locks: Excess brushing can split ends and overuse of too hot a blow dryer can also damage. Oily hair needs frequent shampooing to keep it shiny and bouncy.

Developing a beauty routine that makes the very best of you is important for every teen. And, once practice makes perfect, who knows, you may be the next prom queen!

Acne quiz gives facts

Copley News Service

About 80 percent of the population suffers from acne at some point in life. But not everyone knows the facts about this widespread disease. Take this true-or-false quiz to see if you can separate the facts from the fallacies about acne.

1. If your parents had acne, you'll probably have it, too.
2. There's no help for people with severe acne.
3. Acne is caused by poor hygiene.
4. Taking multivitamins daily will help your skin.
5. Foods such as chocolate, nuts, pizza and french fries can cause acne or make it worse.
6. Emotional stress can aggravate acne.
7. Acne is strictly a teenage disease.

ANSWERS

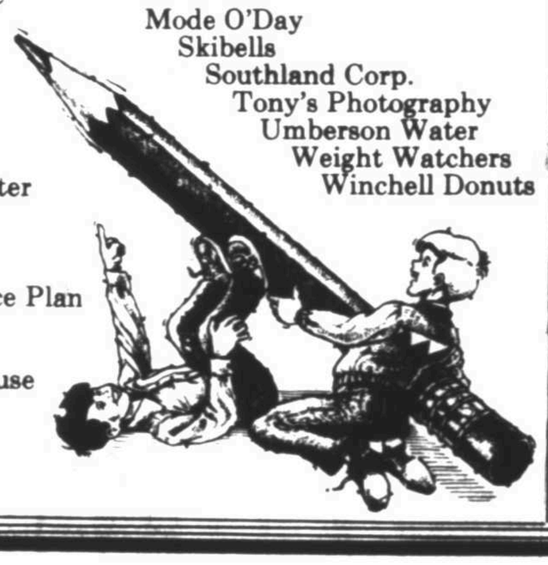

1. True — Acne is hereditary. An adolescent having one or both parents with a history of acne is likely to have skin problems.
2. False — New acne treatments introduced over the last few years are extremely effective in controlling the condition — even when acne is severe. A dermatologist can prescribe the course of treatment most beneficial to each acne sufferer.
3. False — Washing cannot prevent or relieve acne. The root of the acne problem is linked to hormonal changes and lies deep beneath the skin's surface. However, gentle washing can help to remove the excess oil associated with acne and most people find it more pleasant to have a complexion that does not appear oily.
4. False — Vitamins per se do not have any known therapeutic effect on acne. The only exceptions to this are products which are vitamin A derivatives and obtained by prescription through a dermatologist.
5. False — Studies have shown that foods do not worsen acne. However, if an individual feels he or she can link eating a certain food with an acne flare-up, it's probably wise to avoid it.
6. True — Some scientific studies and the personal experiences of acne sufferers indicate stress may worsen the condition.
7. False — Although acne hits teens most often, it is not unusual for people in their 30s or 40s to be plagued by acne.

School boundaries change

With the addition of two new schools, the boundaries for the elementary schools have changed.

Parker Elementary in northwest Midland is now complete. It will be included in Cluster 5 with Houston and DeZavala elementaries. Fourth graders in that cluster will be taking classes in Parker.

The Parker school boundary is the area within Wadley Avenue to the south, Loop 250 to the north and west, and Midkiff Road to the east.

Santa Rita Elementary is expected to be completed by the first day of classes. It is included in Cluster 7 with Long and Travis elementaries. Fifth graders in Cluster 7 will be in the new school, which is bounded by Loop 250 on the south, County Road 1230 on the west, Lamesa Highway or State Highway 349 on the east and the county line to the north.

Other boundaries in other clusters may also have changed to accommodate the new schools. Call the school administration building for more information, 682-8611.

Children may be eligible for free meals or meals at reduced prices

Children from families whose income falls within specified levels may be eligible for free meals or reduced-price meals in Midland schools. The parents of such children should contact the school district and complete an application form as soon as possible.

A family of three earning less than $10,686 a year can receive free meals, and reduced-price meals if it earns less than $15,207. The guidelines for a family of five is $15,054 and $21,423. Children who qualified last year must reapply for 1983-84. The school district has complete information.

Children who receive free or reduced-price meal benefits are treated the same as children who pay for meals. Any parent who feels his child has been discriminated against should contact the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

If you do not agree with the school's decision on your application you can obtain a fair hearing. Contact Patricia Grillos, R.D., 801 S. Moran, Midland, 79701, or call 687-0114.

The information provided on applications is confidential and will only be used for eligibility determinations and verification of data.

The full price of breakfast and lunch is the same as last year. Breakfast is 55 cents. Lunch in the elementary schools costs 95 cents and $1 in the secondary schools. The reduced-price fee is 40 cents for lunch and 30 cents for breakfast.

Training makes job more secure

Copley News Service

How secure is your job?

The feeling of security is vital to productivity and your attitude toward your employers. Knowing that the work you do will remain important in the future will feed that security.

But how can you judge its importance well enough to feel sure the job you perform will remain intact as the economy moves into high technology?

Take a look at five particular aspects of your job, suggests ITT Educational Services Inc., owner and operator of more than 40 vocational schools across the United States. Endangered jobs have some identifying characteristics:

1. They can be performed without using reading and writing skills.
2. They can be performed without using number or mathematical skills or without knowing basic scientific principles.
3. They require you to perform the same tasks repeatedly.
4. They involve information passing without any interpretation or without the use of information processing machines.

Fashions spell fun

Copley News Service

Composition notebooks, shiny red apples, freshly sharpened pencils, pretty new clothes. The crisp fall air buzzes with the excitement of the back-to-school season as children anticipate seeing old friends and making new ones, and wonder who their new teacher will be. But one of the things most youngsters think longest and hardest about is what they'll wear on their first day of school.

Selecting clothing can be a tough assignment. According to Betty Adcock, vice president of design for Nannette, "Your child's first school clothes should meet three criteria: quality, style and fit. Look for brand names, and either take your youngster shopping with you or carry a tape measure and his or her measurements with you."

In addition to reading, writing and arithmetic, keep in mind that little grade schoolers will also be spending time playing. Whether they're jumping rope during recess or finger painting during arts and crafts, your active child will need styles designed for freedom of movement. Adequate fullness in the armholes, legs, crotch and seat, as well as elasticized waistlines and cuffs, are important for a comfortable fit.

Dressing for school days is easy, even for first-time students, in fall's new style, color and fabric choices. For young rock 'n' rollers there are swinging bandstand skirts, bowling or gym shirts, bobby socks and saddle shoes. Nostalgic shades of "Happy Days" pink and poodle gray bring back the look of the '50s, from a pretty pinafore or dress to an overall with a matching Peter Pan blouse.

The schoolgirl with a penchant for classics loves plaids — and this season they're better than ever. She can either look traditional in a tartan plaid dress with box pleats, or dressed-up in a jewel-tone plaid that combines muted shades for a stained-glass effect.

"Knits are the big news in fabric," notes Adcock. "Dressy daytime fashions made in comfortable sweat shirting is a look we call 'Executive Sweats.'" Styles made in fleece and 100 percent acrylic range from vested dresses with graphic designs to French overalls with hand smocking and embroidery.

Texture plays an important role in the fabric story for fall. A printed houndstooth check pattern adds pizzazz to a full-skirted cobble cord dress.

Schoolgirl fashions are pretty and practical this year as dresses in a variety of fabrics and styles make the back-to-school scene.

Designers adapt styles, prices for youngsters

Copley News Service

Step right up to the biggest, brightest show in town. The children's wear story for fall '83 is a three-ring circus of high-flying fashion, fine quality and affordable prices — adding up to some of the best values even in back-to-school wear.

There is more variety on today's parade of children's fashions as designers adapt the hottest styles in the adult market for the younger set. Back-to-school dressing is no longer an either-or affair — starched "little girl" dresses on one hand, or plain serviceable tops and pants on the other. Young misses can choose from among a wide range of sporty knit dresses, jumpers and skirts in a variety of lengths, and pants and tops with special "dress-up" touches. Their male costars under the "big top" have become far more fashion conscious, trading in their faded denims for popular Merona styling and smart "collegiate" looks.

And the good news is that these fashionable new looks needn't carry a designer price tag, according to the fashion experts at Garan, makers of Garanimals. Smart styling can be had at moderate prices. Coordinating separates are a great way to stretch the clothing budget. Three tops and two bottoms will give a child six new looks — particularly helpful to Moms and Dads walking a budgetary tightrope and carefully rethinking how much they can spend on a back-to-school wardrobe this season.

Star attractions this season: for girls, the dropped-waist knit dress, the flounced miniskirt, plus a collection of attractive pants that fall right in step with stunning tops in solids, stripes and prints, made special with squared-in, doleman, balloon or "caterpillar" sleeves. The big cuff is back, too, to provide fashion drama.

For those little human cannonballs of energy on your shopping list the emphasis in on athletic styling — numerals, racing stripes, sports embroideries and designer-look labels on tops and bottoms.

Design plan for shopping

Copley News Service

It's time to think about what you'll be wearing to school this year. After you try on last year's clothes and weed out the ones that don't fit, it's time for shopping.

Shopping for your school wardrobe is easy if you design a plan. The two most important factors to consider when shopping are color and fabric. If you wear colors that look best on you you'll come alive, looking radiant and beaming with self-confidence. And if you combine the right color with comfortable fabrics, you'll be able to spend less time washing and ironing and more time studying and playing.

When selecting fabrics, remember that man-made fibers like polyester and polyester blends are actually more energy-efficient than natural fibers. Not only do they require less energy to be produced, they need less energy to be kept clean and will last 1.5 times longer. How do you know if a fabric is man-made? Read the label for blends like 65 percent polyester and 35 percent cotton.

WHAT colors will work best in your "reading, writing and arithmetic" wardrobe? You can choose the colors you've always worn, but why not experiment to find new colors that will really make you feel good? Borrow a scarf or some other type of fabric swatch in a color you've never worn and hold it next to your face. Or go into a store and try on outfits in colors you always thought looked terrible on you. You may be pleasantly surprised.

Keep in mind that each color communicates a certain message. For example, if you don't want your teacher to call on you, wear a beige blouse or shirt so that you'll recede into the background. But if you do want to speak up in class, wear green to appear vibrant and alive. If you're going to a party hoping to meet someone special, wear red to catch his or her eye. And once the two of you are out on your second or third date, wear an outfit that's the color of your eyes to keep your date's attention on what you're saying rather than what you're wearing.

Cooking valuable skill for children

Copley News Service

Children love to eat, and most love to cook if given the chance and proper instruction. Teaching little people to cook is not an easy job, however, and if you can't stand a little constructive mess in your kitchen you should probably stick to reading and writing.

If you have the time and patience, however, you'll be providing your child with a valuable skill. Every person should be able to prepare wholesome foods, even if they choose not to cook unless there is absolutely no other choice.

Teaching your child to cook also has the added benefit of quality time spent together. Children need attention and enjoy sharing everyday activities with older relatives and friends.

When choosing a recipe for a young cook, remember to select a dish that does not require slicing or chopping with a sharp knife or elaborate stove-top cooking with such things as double boilers, etc.

Funds available

Copley News Service

Since substantial sums of money are hidden behind certain eligibility requirements, students nationwide are turning to computerized sources for locating this information.

The Student Assistance Council's research arm, Scholarship Search, matches students with this available aid and guarantees to identify up to 25 financial resources for "potential" funding.

"Don't shrug your shoulders and disappear into the ranks of underachievers simply because you don't think you can qualify for assistance," advises Mary Ann Maxin, executive director of the council.

Computers are the key to the council's success story. This high technology matches students to funds because of religion, ethnic heritage, residence, activities, achievements, major, career, parents' military service and many more personal 'bits and pieces."

Fund-finder Maxin advises people to discard the myth that scholarships are only available to students with high test scores and standings.

Guinea pigs are among the many domestic animals used to make learning fun. Amimals help young children develop social skills and responsibility.

Animals help children learn

Copley News Service

The term "teacher's pet" has taken on a whole new meaning for today's young students. No longer does it describe a teacher's favorite pupil, but instead refers to an assortment of finned, feathered or furry classroom pets.

Research shows that owning a pet exerts a positive influence on a youngster's development — encouraging sociability and responsibility. For some time smart teachers decided to capitalize on these advantages, and began using pets in their classrooms as a means of making their lessons more appealing.

According to the Pet Information Bureau, animals such as rabbits, gerbils, mice, guinea pigs, fish, turtles, reptiles and birds are the "tools" that teachers use to capture a child's attention. Many educators feel that these animals help them create the ideal teaching situation — by making learning fun — and their lessons are, as a result, absorbed at maximum potential.

English lessons are enhanced as children read, write and talk about their experiences with the animals. Some science instructors incorporate information about the various life functions of the animals into their classes while others adapt a pastime of taking photos of these pets to lessons in photography and the film-development process.

Fear can cause illness

From Wire Reports

It's normal to play hooky occasionally, but some children are so scared of school that they actually become ill.

According to family therapist Dr. Esther Marine, children develop sicknesses to avoid school because of a change in cities anda change in schools among other reasons.

SIX-MONTH WRAPUP
Texas Drilling Activity

SUMMARY: Permits to drill at 800 less than mid-year '82. Rule 37 permits to create special field rules are steady at about 1,300 granted in six months.

Completions are very depressed — the past six months' 10,698 completions far below the 12,410 made in the first part of '82. Total holes drilled, though, are down by a similar amount: Almost 13,000 new holes were drilled this year, compared to 14,400 drilled at this point last year.

SIX MONTH WRAPUP — LOCAL

Oil firms not all depressed

By JIM PRESNELL
Business-Energy Writer

Operations of many Midland oil companies are increasing over 1982, despite widespread beliefs that the oil industry is slouching. Standing straight and tall, local operators said this week they plan to step up activity in the remainder of calendar 1983, not reduce it.

A landman pointed out that increased drilling planned by local operators in the remaining months of 1983 could be due to the need to spend drilling budgets (or risk reduced budgets next year).

Yet it seems the increase is also tied to the fact drilling is about 35 percent cheaper than it was last year in the Permian Basin. Speed records have been set by some of the more efficient crews doing what they must to hang on in the depressed contract drilling trade.

According to Oil & Gas Journal's midyear report, active rigs are down 47 percent from last year. But activity is expected to rise slowly and steadily through year's end.

OGJ said there will be 5,000 more completions than it predicted in January for '83 — about 75,000 nationwide. Wildcats are down less than completions. Oil completions have increased at the expense of gas completions. And OGJ said big independents are drilling a steady number of wells (231 planned in West Texas for '83). Majors will drill 1,000 less wells than in '82, for a national total this year of roughly 9,300 wells.

Smaller independents, OGJ reports, still drill the majority of U.S. wells — 65,686 is the tentative '83 figure, 12,000 fewer than in '82. Despite cashflow and debt-service problems these small indies will complete 87 percent of the producing wells for this year.

Locally, big and small firms alike are trying to round up investment capital, curtail costs, and seek better prospects to drill for 1983.

Miranda Energy Corp., said Troy G. Martin, who heads the company, has participated in seven wells from January 1983 to date. There were six completions and one dry hole.

Martin said he expects Miranda activity to continue at the same pace, or increase slightly, in the second half of this year.

Leede Exploration, according to principal Ed Leede, has been involved in seven completed wells during 1983 and has nine wells drilling. The figures are less than 1982's; and one oil well, two gas wells, and four dry holes are included. Two of the seven wells were more than 25,000 feet deep.

In 1982, Leede Exploration was involved in 47 wells, with 39 gas wells, seven dry holes, and one oil well — a productive rate of 85 percent. Leede said not all of the productive wells were commercial.

TXO (Texas Oil and Gas) participated in between 70 and 75 gross wells during its fiscal 1983, just ended. This is much higher than the 44 wells it drilled in the '82 fiscal year. Although the 1982 success rate is higher, at above 80 percent, the company is back to normal this year with success of roughly 65 to 70 percent of wells drilled.

Investor relations vice president for TXO in Dallas, Chuck Williams, said the comapny is drilling 65 percent more wells in 1983 without having to increase expenditures by more than 25 percent. "The cost to drill one of our wells is down 30 to 35 percent," making up the difference, he said.

Gary Leascher, a Midland landman, works under contract for JEM Petroleum Corp., Inglewood, Colo. Leascher said the company is drilling three or four wells a month this year. "We drilled many more last year, and the year before," he noted.

JEM has been "fairly fortunate," Leascher said, "we've hit 40 to 55 percent of the time. Some are real good wells, making 500 to 600 barrels of oil a day. They make up for some of that bad stuff."

Southland Royalty is basically doing development drilling, said Darrell James, district geologist, particularly since no money was budgeted for wildcatting this year. It has a contingency fund that can be tapped if a particularly good prospect arises. The company has a 95 percent success rate in 1983 operations here — drilling 17 oil wells, 2 gas wells, and one dry hole. It plans more wells this year; two are in completion and one is drilling.

By contrast, '82 wasn't as hot for Southland. It drilled a total of 34 wells and made 10 dry holes, 17 oil and four gas producers. Its success rate was 71 percent that year.

Hal Crabb, with Aminoil Inc., said his company had drilled two wells this year, both 9,200-foot development wells in Andrews County's South Wolfcamp. It may drill one well at Gail and one in Hockley County (a 6,200-foot Clearfork well that will use waterflooding).

Ramey to head Hilliard O&G Inc.

Ramey

Darol K. Ramey has been named president and chief executive officer of Hilliard Oil and Gas Inc. effective Sept. 1.

Ramey, an executive vice president-drilling and production for Hillard, and a vice president of Tidewater Inc., the parent company, succeeds Harold F. Green, who was named vice chairman of the board at Hilliard.

Ramey, 52, has been with Hilliard Oil and Gas' drilling and production group for 12 years. He was elected vice president in 1975 and executive vice president in 1979. He is also a vice president of Tidewater.

Ramey was formerly with Imperial American Management Company, Midland; North American Resources Corp., Houston; Union Oil Company of California, Midland; and Conoco Inc., Houston.

Ramey will move from the Hilliard Drilling and Production office in Midland to company headquarters in the Tidewater executive offices in New Orleans.

Oil drilling not so depressed

Exploratory drilling by Sun Exploration division of Sun Oil is reduced in 1983, as far as the number of wells, but "We're still active, and not that far off from the extraordinary 1982 results," said geologist Mike Vaughan in the Dallas office.

Sun drilled 34 Permian Basin wildcats in '82, and has drilled or is drilling 13 this year, with eight more planned. Two of the eight wells completed in '83 were small discoveries (a 25 percent success rate). Last year, 18 percent of the wildcats resulted in completions, and Vaughan said "I just hope we can keep the percentage up."

Koch Exploration said it is in a holding pattern — having plans to drill some wells this year but unsure that the wells will be drilled at all.

Marathon Oil Co. has the highly productive Yates Field, and does little drilling outside it now. Last year, it had 26 development wells drilled outside of those in the Yates — this year only four such wells will be drilled. Two of the wells have been planned, in the Big Lake field, for shallow completions.

So far this year, the Yates has been drilled 90 times by Marathon, and about 90 more wells can be expected by the end of '83, said drilling supervisor Terry Rivers. Shallow Yates wells are relatively easy completions and can flow several hundred barrels daily.

Not everyone has such a black-gold mine. Mitchell Energy & Development of Woodlands, Tex. (near Houston) has been "Staying pretty busy, and doing more in the Permian Basin than in '82," said a supervisor. It has drilled eight wells in 1983 and plans six or seven for its remainder.

Mobil Producing Texas and New Mexico, said Houston press agent Darlene Taylor, drilled 78 wells in 1982 in the Permian Basin. To date in 1983 it has drilled 95 wells with some 80 wells remaining to be drilled by year-end. Mobil is stepping up activity here, Taylor said, more than twice '82 levels. Success ratios have been better than 90 percent in both years.

Hans Hansen, a prominent advocate for the independent petroleum industry, said Hilliard Oil and Gas, his employer, is "not doing as much this year — that I do know." Since January '83 Hilliard has drilled five wells, with three producers, a 60 percent success rate. Five more wells are to be drilled during '83, including a Glasscock County wildcat.

In 1982, Hilliard drilled 11 wells, with eight producing ones for a 72.7 percent success average.

Union Texas Petroleum, a subsidiary of Allied Corp., has drilled 25 wells to date in '83 and has a 96 percent success rate. "These are known wells," said Knox Davis, division operations manager. "We always come up with three to five wildcats — and a few more development prospects. We'll be ahead of last year, that's for sure." Nine wells are confirmed in the company's plans for the rest of '83.

Last year, at this date, Union Texas had only drilled 17 wells and had a lower 80 percent rate of success.

Adobe Oil and Gas has drilled 75 gross wells in 1983, with 59 producing. Pat Welch, vice president and secretary, said Adobe will be "as busy, if not busier, in the last half of the year." The company recently announced profits that were five percent lower than a year ago.

Adobe is going to start 50 wells immediately.
