More ships join shuttle search

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two ships and a third robot submarine joined the search for Challenger's cabin today as investigators studied film and data that could tell whether a mysterious spurt of fire from a rocket triggered the destruction of the shuttle and its crew.

The investigation board held its first full formal meeting today, and NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said Jesse Moore, shuttle director and head of the board, would meet with reporters later in the week.

Until then, Harris said, the public could expect little information from the board.

"You should not expect any substantive information on cause and effect until the board has completed its review," Harris said.

He did say that if Challenger's cabin or remains of the crew members were found, that information would be released after identification has been made.

As the probe into Tuesday's disaster proceeded, NASA officials were confident they could pinpoint the cause and resume shuttle flights perhaps as early as June.

East-West prisoner exchange in works

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Two newspapers today reported agreement between East and West on a major prisoner exchange that includes Soviet Jewish dissident Anatoly Shcharansky.

In Bonn today, a Western government source said U.S., Soviet and West German officials have agreed to a major swap which will involve both spies and East bloc dissidents and is due to take place in Berlin on Feb. 11.

The source, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition he not be further identified, is in a position to know details of such an exchange.

He said it is to take place on the Glienicke Bridge between West Berlin and Potsdam, Communist East Germany.Germany. The bridge has been the site of previous major East-West spy swaps.

The source was broadly confirming a report in the Hamburg-published Bild newspaper. But he said he could not comment on Bild's report that the exchange would include Shcharansky.

In Washington, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said today, "We will have no comment, period. Top to bottom, no comment."

No official confirmation came from West Germany either. But in Jerusalem, an Israeli official, who insisted on anonymity, said today the Soviet Union is expected to release Shcharansky by early next week as part of a prisoner swap.

Details of the reputed deal were printed in the mass-circulation Bild and The New York Times. Quoting "ranking Soviet sources," Bild said U.S., Soviet and West German officials agreed to swap an unspecified number of captured East bloc spies for Shcharansky and 12 former Western agents.

Bild is known to have good Soviet sources. In November it said Soviet dissident Yelena Bonner, wife of Andrei Sakharov, would be allowed to seek medical treatment in the West. She now is recuperating from open heart surgery performed in Boston.

The New York Times in today's editions quoted unidentified Reagan administration officials as saying U.S. and Soviet officials agreed to an exchange that would include Shcharansky and seven to nine others.

Bonn government spokesman Friedhelm Ost told a news conference today, "I can neither confirm nor deny the reports" of a coming spy exchange.

The Israeli official confirmed reports that the swap involved 12 prisoners held in unidentified Western countries. He said they were to be swapped for Shcharansky and possibly one other prisoner — not identified — held by the Soviets.

Both newspapers said the deal included Shcharansky, 37, a leader of the human rights movement in the Soviet Union during the 1970s. He was convicted in 1978 on charges of passing intelligence to foreign nations, including the United States, and was sentenced to 13 years imprisonment.

Shcharansky said his only offense was seeking to emigrate to Israel.

College goes past 1,000 enrollment

With the cutoff for registration due Tuesday, Western Texas College officials reported Monday they have exceeded the hoped for 1,000 student level.

As of Monday morning, the count was 1,013 students, which exceeds the enrollment number recorded during the fall at WTC. That count was 1,006 students.

Traditionally, spring semesters at the local college produce higher student numbers than the fall.

The enrollment for this spring, however, will be less than the number registering last year at this time and will be far short of the all-time WTC record of 1,414 recording during the spring of 1982.

Last spring semester, the college registered 1,336 students.

The latest figures equal 525 part-time and 488 fulltime students. The signup will continue Tuesday through 9 p.m.

The latest figures reflect an increase of 129 from the count Jan. 24, the first Friday following the startup of classes Jan. 22.

At that time, 880 students were registered, 400 part-time and 480 fulltime.

The enrollment figures for the 1986 spring term will be finalized Thursday, WTC officials note.

February meeting tonight...

4 expense items on tap by council

Three expense items discussed previously and one new proposal involving a radio, communications system for the local ambulance service will be considered Monday as the Snyder city council conducts its regular February meeting.

The session will get underway at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

The previously discussed items include purchasing "ahead" quanities of water meters; a repainting project for a roadside sign honoring high school student's achievements; and plans to add a new drive-through window for water customers at city hall.

The communication system has been proposed by a group of local EMTs who also serve with the volunteer fire department.

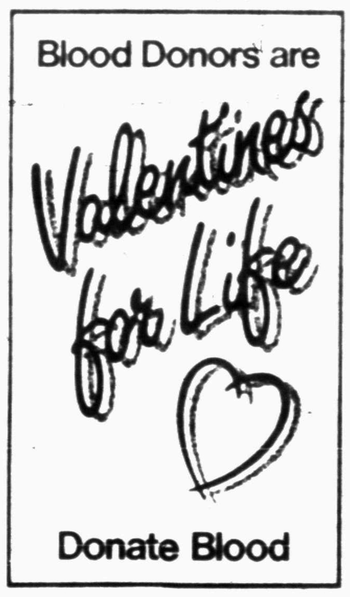

The system as proposed would update the radio communication abilities of the ambulance service at an equipment expense of some $21,300.

The ambulance now transmits its radio calls over the "local government" channel, which is used also by the city's water, sanitation, maintenance and animal control personnel.

Problems cited with the current system include its limited range plus the interference caused by the number of other departments using it.

The proposal as outlined would give the ambulance its own base station, linking its mobile units to both the Snyder police station, which serves as the central dispatching station here, and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room.

The first blood drive for 1986 is scheduled Tuesday and local workers are hoping for an above average response to makeup for recent high usage and a slow turnout recorded in December.

A severe cold front moved into Snyder last Dec. 10 when the last drive of 1985 was scheduled. The result was some 71 pints of blood. Local efforts normally net in excess of 100 pints donated.

In addition, local officials note there has been a recent high use rate for blood. This past December, 124 units were used at Cogdell Memorial, as much as the amount normally required over a three-month period.

In keeping with the month of February, drive officials note that blood donors are "Valentines for Life."

The incentives which have become a tradition with local drives will again be offered Tuesday.

First time donors will also receive a gift courtesy of United Blood Services of Lubbock — a free mirror with case.

The local UBS advisory board hosts local drives in conjunction with the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

Tuesday's effort will be from 1 until 8 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center.

Blood donors can expect to receive coupons good for a free Whataburger and a free individual pizza and soft drink from Shakey's Pizza plus a free box of soap courtesy of the Tub.

Local stolen vehicle found after accident

A Dunn woman's car — reported stolen here last Jan. 25 — was said wrecked Sunday in Dallas after authorities there gave chase to a suspect in the case.

The Snyder police department was informed around 5 p.m. Sunday that Dallas police had recovered the 1984 Chevrolet owned by Margaret Kruger of Dunn and reported stolen from the employee parking lot of Cogdell Memorial Hospital Jan. 25.

According to reports sent to Snyder from Dallas, Sherman was arrested and the car recovered following a short chase which ended in an accident.

According to the Dallas report, the car's radio had also been removed and the steering column damaged by attempts to "hot-wire" the vehicle.

Vacation policies altered

Scurry County commissioners made changes in the wording of the county's current vacation policy Monday to include extending the vacation time for a few longtime staffers to four weeks.

The four week vacation was granted to staffers employed for 25 years or more. It was noted only "two or three" individuals would now qualify. They were granted a three-week vacation under the old policy.

Local arrest reveals report of stolen auto

Police recovered a car reported stolen in Dallas with the arrest of a 30-year-old Snyder man Sunday night.

The arrest occurred after officers responded to a series of disturbance calls in far north Snyder. Reports indicated a man was brandishing a gun and driving a white Oldsmobile Cutlass recklessly in the area.

Police stopped a vehicle fitting the description and arrested Ricky Dee Fanning of 1212 Ave. N. He was arrested at the intersection of Huffman Ave. and Ave. O at 9:36 p.m.

Fanning was initially charged with driving while intoxicated, possession of drug paraphernalia and on a warrant for revocation of probation.

The 1977 Oldsmobile he was driving was then discovered reported stolen in Dallas. He was subsequently charged with the felony offense of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Monday morning, Fanning remained in Scurry County Jail in lieu of bonds set at $1,500 on the felony charge and $750 on each of the misdemeanor counts.

Ask Us

Q. — How much blood donated here is actually used locally?

A. — The latest figures reflect 1985. Of 689 units donated in local drives, 471 units of "blood or blood products" were administered through Cogdell Memorial Hospital alone.

In Brief

Brown out

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court ruled today that state Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, is ineligible to run for Texas attorney general. The ruling came only hours before the primary election filing deadline.

Baby home

AUSTIN (AP) — Authorities say a woman accused of kidnapping a 4-day-old baby from a mother at Brackenridge Hospital had faked a pregnancy so well for nine months that even her husband thought the infant was hers.

A woman, dressed in white clothes to resemble a nurse, took the baby girl from the arms of her 19-year-old mother, Wanda Glover, as she was feeding her on Friday morning, police Sgt. Earnest Session said.

CIA disputes Contra charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A newly declassified CIA report disputes charges of Nicaraguan rebel atrocities, contending the Contras could not have slit the throats of captives because they "are normally not equipped with either bayonets or combat knives."

That claim, which was contained in a 12-page report obtained last week by The Associated Press, was challenged by two former rebel leaders. In interviews, they said combat knives and bayonets were common among the troops and were used to execute prisoners.

"Almost everybody carried a knife," said Edgar Chamorro, who was a director of the CIA-organized Nicaraguan Democratic Force, FDN, until he was fired a year ago for publicly criticizing the movement. "FDN people used (the knives) to cut the throats of the enemy and prisoners."

Salvador Icaza, a former FDN officer now living in the United States, said "having a knife in the jungle is a matter of survival" and a majority of FDN troops carried one. Icaza also said slitting throats was a "favorite method of killing prisoners.

According to the CIA document, the agency's investigation was based on seven hours of interviews with FDN field officers. Although the document is not dated, administration officials said it was prepared last spring in response to a detailed report on 28 alleged incidents of Contra abuses.

One State Department official, who insisted on anonymity, said the CIA report is considered "the best thing" done by the U.S. government on alleged Contra atrocities and cited it as support for the administration's view that the atrocity charges are planted by Nicaragua's leftist government.

But Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., a House Foreign Affairs Committee member who has pressed for an investigation of the human rights charges, called the report "incredibly sloppy at best and intentionally deceptive at worst."

Noting that the investigation was based on interviews with Contra troops, Gejdenson added, "That is like bringing an accused murderer to trial and deliberately ignoring the evidence, forgetting to cross-examine the defendant and then losing the witness list."

While acknowledging some Contra abuses, the CIA document challenges many charges contained in a report by New York lawyer Reed Brody, who compiled 145 affidavits from Nicaraguans and Americans who said they witnessed or were victims of Contra human rights abuses in 28 separate incidents.

"Throughout the (Brody) report, defended localities are portrayed as innocent villages and FDN attacks are depicted as attacks on innocent civilians," the CIA document said in arguing that many of the so-called "civilians" were actually combatants.

"The frequent claims of kidnapping that run throughout the report constitute the best example of misuse of words," it asserted. "There is nobody in the FDN who is there against his-her will — it is an entirely voluntary organization."

But Chamorro, former FDN commander Jose Efren Martinez Mondragon and other ex-rebels have said the FDN does practice forced recruitment and kill or abuse captives. Even a White House report last November said, "instances of forced recruitment and summary execution of military prionsers ... may well have occurred."

FCC ponders new plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cross between a walkie-talkie and a telephone that would allow people to hold private wireless conversations across short distances has been proposed by the Federal Communications Commission.

The new consumer radio service, which FCC engineers hope could be on the market in about two years, would be as cheap as a Citizen's Band radio — $50-$80 — but not be "a national party line."

The engineers see people using "consumer radios" to talk across shopping malls and football stadiums or while traveling in two separate cars along the highway.

"Meet me at Bloomingdales," might be the message, an FCC aide said last week in describing the proposed service.

"Persons attending large outdoor events together could keep in touch when they are out of sight of each other," the commission suggested. Users would need no license.

Elderly Patients Get Good Mileage From Jogging Suits

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted in Ontario" complained that her niece had sent a 78-year-old uncle who was terminally ill in a nursing home a jogging suit for Christmas.

"Disgusted" said: "This same idiot niece sent me a 10-quart kettle. I'm a widow, living alone in a small condo, and I can't imagine where she got the idea I could use anything like that."

Abby, please tell "Disgusted" that a jogging suit is a very appropriate gift for an elderly person in a nursing home. And she can use the 10-quart kettle to soak her head!

DISGUSTED WITH DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Did I get letters! Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I work as a nurse's aid in a nursing home, and I'd rather see the male residents in jogging suits than pajamas. Most of the time their flies are wide open.

SEEN AN EYEFUL IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR ABBY: I have an 88-year-old mother who is frail, but she lives in her own home. This lady has always been very proper and had never worn slacks in her life, but last year her granddaughter sent her a powder-blue jogging suit, and it changed her way of living! Abby, she laughed when she saw it, but after trying it on she didn't want to take it off.

I went right out and bought her five more jogging suits in pretty bright colors, and they are now her uniforms. Not only that, but some of her "girlfriends" who have visited her have picked up on the idea, and now they all wear jogging suits.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a nurse in a nursing home for many years, and I think the jogging (or warm-up) suit is the best invention since the wheel.

No matter how inactive a resident is, we "get them up" every morning even if it is only to get them out of bed and place them in a wheelchair. They always feel (and look) more "dressed" in a jogging suit than a bathrobe.

A handicapped, stroke or paralyzed patient is not always completely covered, and need not worry about being exposed while in the wheelchair or being transferred from chair to bed.

ALL FOR JOGGING SUITS

DEAR ABBY: May I say a few words about jogging suits for patients in a nursing home? My mother is in a nursing home in the Midwest, and once she wore a jogging suit, she would wear nothing else. They are a godsend to nursing home attendants who must dress and undress the residents.

Many elderly people have poor circulation and are continually cold; warm-up suits offer warmth. Many complain of dry, delicate skin, which is irritated by most fabrics—warm-up suits are soft and cuddly. Many older people spill food and drink—warm-up suits are easy to launder and require no ironing.

There are other advantages: no small buttons for arthritic hands to fumble with; no trouser zippers to fight when a trip to the bathroom is urgent; no tugging, pulling or binding when lying down. One can not only lounge in them comfortably, but sleep in them, and they are acceptable attire for receiving guests where many are embarrassed by pajamas.

One might also want to investigate athletic footwear for older people. They are comfortable, provide support and cushioning, and are much easier on swollen joints than leather shoes. Their notched rubber soles are an important safety factor, and they're washable.

KANSAS READER

• • •

DEAR ABBY: How ridiculous to assume that jogging suits are used only for jogging. My husband has worn cowboy boots for years, and he's never been on a horse.

Sound waves dissolve stones

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has two big kidneystones. The doctor says he should have wave therapy. Does it work?

DEAR READER — The treatment of kidneystones is undergoing a revolution. In addition to the traditional manner of removing stones surgically, urologists are now using sound waves to fracture and pulverize these troublesome deposits. The technique is called ultrasonic lithotripsy and is so effective and so safe that surgery for kidneystones may soon become antiquated.

Lithotripsy is administered in two ways. The first method involves passing a probe up the ureter (the tube leading from the kidney to the bladder) or into the kidney itself through a flank incision. Then the stone is bombarded by sound waves until it dissolves. For the procedure to work, the probe must touch the stone.

The second method is called the "blitz bath." After the patient is placed in a tank of water, the stone is pulverized by extracorporeal (outside the body) sound waves. This technique is still considered to be experimental, it is not reimbursable by Medicare and there are only a few available units in the country.

If your husband's doctor has suggested lithotripsy, I say "go for it." This new treatment may save him — and millions of other Americans — from more painful and dangerous surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Every time I walk into a health-food store or pick up a tabloid newspaper, I am bombarded by health claims about vitamins and minerals. These substances are touted to cure all kinds of disease, fight old age, prevent colds and neutralize cancer cells. Do you know of any factual source that will give me rational information on this subject?

DEAR READER — There is indeed an enormous amount of misinformation being circulated about the value of vitamins and minerals — everything from vitamin-megadose cancer cures to the faddish orthomolecular treatment of mental disease.

Although there are many well-written books on the subject, I have found one in particular that is especially useful: "Vitamins and Minerals: Help or Harm?" by Charles W. Marshall, Ph.D. Marshall gives a reasoned approach to a pertinent topic. His review is accurate and up-to-date. The book was reprinted in paperback in 1985 and won several awards. It is available at $10.95 from the publisher (George F. Shickley & Co., 210 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19106). I understand that Consumers Union has recently released an identical volume for $11.95.

"Vitamins and Minerals: Help or Harm?" would be a wise investment for any person who is interested in nutrition. It is worthwhile and gives the "straight scoop" about an extremely important subject. Read it.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Art Guild Study Club sees slides of the Philippines

Art Guild Study Club held their January dinner meeting at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Hosting the event were Clara Mae Noah, Delia McPherson and M.J. Merritt. Merritt gave the invocation.

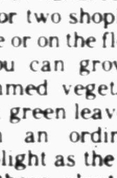

A dinner was served to 21 members and one guest present. The tables were decorated with the fruit of the Philippines.

Jan McCatheran was featured speaker and presented a slide and artifact presentation of her recent trip to the Philippines. She described the people as being one of "openness and warmth."

She began by discussing the political situation by stating, "The media gives a false view of the Philippine situation. Marcos is not a U.S. enemy. The communist who support the opposition are."

The slides presented included land, crops, transportation, stores and markets. Also schools, hunger projects such as FAITH (food always in the home) and SALT (slanting agriculture land technology). There were also slides on the people, Muslins, tribal and Philippino. McCatheran concluded by talking of experience teaching drama workshops.

SEEDLINGS BY SHOPLIGHT

Gardeners who try starting vegetable seedlings in a sunny window usually complain about the pale green or purplish leaves on spindly stems of plants that lean toward the window. When these weak plants are transplanted to the garden, they are shocked and often killed by the cold, wind and intense sunlight. These gardeners would have been wiser to buy their plants from a good garden center or greenhouse grower. But, what if the varieties you want are not sold by the plant grower in your town? There's an easy answer. Grow your own seedlings indoors, but with a shoplight almost anywhere inside your home. It is possible to start several hundred seedlings under one or two shoplights set up on a table or on the floor.

You can grow healthy, short stemmed vegetable plants with dark green leaves using the light from an ordinary fluorescent shoplight as the only light source for those plants. The shoplight I'm talking about is the kind with two 40-watt cool white fluorescent tubes housed in a white fixture suspended with chains from an overhead support. These fixtures are usually four feet long. The fixture can be suspended over a table by chains from hooks in the ceiling, or from a pole supported by bricks at each end of the fixture. A saw horse or step ladder will support the fixture for the few weeks required to start seedlings in containers on the floor. Be sure to lay down a sheet of plastic to protect the table or floor from water that drains from the plant containers.

These inexpensive light units, usually costing from $12 to $15 will give plenty of light to the small plants if the fluorescent tube is kept very close to the leaves. The fluorescent tube must not be more than one to two inches above the leaf surface. Raise the light fixture often enough to maintain the leaf-to-tube distance in a range of one to two inches. To start with, hang the light fixture so that the tube surface is only an inch above the surface of the germinating medium or soil mix. The moderate heat given off by the fluorescent tube will warm the soil mix and the seed, thereby hastening germination. A thin film of plastic laid over the surface of the seed flat will prevent drying of the mix by the heat from the tube. Inspect your seedling trays every day and remove the plastic film when you see the plant shoot breaking through the surface.

Try to place the seedling container in an area where the temperature will not fall below about 60 degrees during the day. Turn the lights on when you arise in the morning and turn them off before going to sleep at night, to give a light period of at least 16 to 18 hours. Do not leave the lights on all the time.

If you already have a fluorescent light fixture and wish to use it for starting plants, replace the old bulbs with new ones to assure maximum light for your plants.

Most vegetable plants can be kept under the light until they are large enough to be transplanted to the garden. The same fixture can be used to start several successions of seedlings. The first crops to start would be those that can be acclimated to the subfreezing outdoor temperatures of early spring. Some are onion, lettuce, cabbage and broccoli. The second crop under the same lights can be tomato, pepper and okra seedlings which will be transplanted into your garden after the danger of frost. Finally, you can start seedlings of vine crops like cucumber, melon and squash in peat pots which can be planted directly to the garden in only two to three weeks from the day you sowed the seed.

Soviet Union art

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forty works from the Soviet Union's famed collection of impressionist and post-impressionist paintings from the Hermitage Museum in Leningrad and the Pushkin Museum in Moscow will be on view at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art July 2-Aug. 26.

The exhibition will be composed of paintings by seven major artists, including Paul Cezanne, Claude Monet, PierreAuguste Renoir, Paul Gauguin, Vincent van Gogh, Henri Matisse, and Pablo Picasso.

Many of the paintings featured in the exhibition were acquired by two Russian collectors, Ivan Morozov and Sergei Shchukin, during the early 20th century. Following the October Revolution, their two collections were nationalized.

SCS Notes

BY SAM BUCHANAN
District Conservationist

How to use fire to improve rangeland during the dormant season is the subject covered by a new fact sheet, "Prescribed Burning," recently released by the USDA Soil Conservation Service. The leaflet summarizes how producers are using the practice in some parts of the Southwest to suppress undesirable plants.

Prescribed burning is a relatively new technique being used to improve rangeland. Lightning and the Indians burned the prairies and forests of the Southwest for centuries. The big difference is that the Indians did not fence a herd of livestock on the areas that were burned.

Prescribed burning should be done when the humidity is from 20 to 60 percent, when wind speeds are between 6 and 15 miles per hour, and when the temperature is from 45 degrees to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Burns should be directed away from highways, populated areas, homes or other places where smoke would be a hazard.

A fire plan should always be worked up before the practice is carried out. The plan should consider the amount of available fuel, desired weather conditions, preferred wind velocities, direction to burn, and the location of improvements that could post hazards.

Fuel needed to carry the burn is dormant grass or other vegetation that will burn during the winter.

Soil Conservation Service personnel assisting the Upper Colorado Soil and Water district can help livestock producers plan prescribed burns.

Single copies of "Prescribed Burning" are available free from the SCS Office located at 3423 Avenue T.

Predicting the outcome of a precarious contract is a little like guessing the weather. Declarer might make a lot of tricks on a good day. Today all it really takes is for the opponents' trumps to split 2-2 and for East to hold the heart ace. On a bad day, East would hold three spades and West would have the heart ace. The unfortunate result: four tricks to the defense. Declarer can't do anything about improving the weather, but can he do anything about improving the chances of his four-spade contract?

Since safely taking 10 tricks is the objective, South does not mind giving up the play for overtricks. Avoidance is the key, and what declarer must avoid is letting East gain the lead. After winning dummy's ace of clubs, declarer plays a low spade from dummy. When East plays low, South inserts the nine. That, of course, loses to the 10 in West's hand, but declarer is now free to draw trumps with the A-K and run the diamond suit for his contract. Late in the day he can even lead up to the heart king to try for an overtrick.

A bidding note: The redouble by North was based on two quick tricks plus moderate spade support. With less high-card strength, North might simply have raised to two spades immediately after the opposing takeout double. Even so, once North supports spades, South has enough to risk a game contract, particularly if South knows how to keep East from getting the lead.

Satellite tickets

NEW YORK (AP) — With global tourism rapidly becoming computerized, an intriguing possibility is the future programming of satellite ticketing machines, reports Travel Agent magazine.

The publication says such travel agency ticketing devices could announce tariffs and departure times, giving information on travel tours, cruises and hotel room availabilities.

Another possibility would be a television display terminal which could at the touch of a finger call up films of destinations, resort hotels and passenger services.

Because of the concentration on computerized improvements in the travel trade, the magazine notes, Europeans may be the first to offer this innovation to the tourist.

Dusters seeking 20th victory in twin-bill with Big Spring

BIG SPRING – Western Texas' women go looking for their 20th win of the season tonight as they play rival Howard College at 6 o'clock in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum here.

The Dusters are 19-6 on the season and have won seven straight games. Three of their six season losses have been to nationally ranked teams in the NJCAA top 10.

Coach Kelly Chadwick is concerned about Howard College, despite the Hawk Queens' 9-14 overall record. The Queens opened the conference season with four straight losses, but have since won three in a row, and are in fourth place in the WJCAC standings.

WTC's Dusters are in second place with a 5-1 mark.

The two teams tipped off the 1985-86 conference season with Western taking a 72-50 victory.

Howard's women are led by Lorri French, a 5-8 sophomore who averages 14.6 points, 5.2 rebounds and 4.7 assists a game. Terri Powell scores 12.8 points while Carolyn Willandt averages 9.1. Sophia Ish, 6-0, leads the Queens on the boards with 8 rebounds a game.

Western is led by Brenda Welch and Pam Cox, who average 21.3 and 17.8 points respectively. Welch, a 5-10 freshman, leads on the boards with an 8.8 figure.

Point-guard Angela Jeans averages 10 points, 5.4 rebounds and 7.6 assists a game.

In the only other women's conference game scheduled Monday, Odessa (6-0) will play Frank Phillips (2-4).

The second game in tonight's double header features Western's men against the Howard Hawks. The men will play at 8.

Coach Phil Spradling's team comes into the coliseum with a 14-8 record, 5-4 in the WJCAC. Howard is 8-13 and 2-6.

Western's record puts the team in fifth place - though just one game out of third - as the conference begins its stretch drive toward the regional tournament. Only the top four teams from the WJCAC can get into the tourney.

The Westerners lost to Howard at home earlier in the season, 80-72.

Howard College is being led by 6-7 sophomore Walt Reynolds, who averages 11 points and 7.5 rebounds a game. Milt McCall averages 10.6 points and 4.9 boards.

Both teams have suffered somewhat since losing key players to grades after the first semester. Howard lost Bruce Kimble, a 20-point a game scorer, while Western lost top rebounder Wally Manns.

WTC is led by James Dawn, who averages 18.9 points and 8.4 rebounds. He also contributes 5.4 assists a game and is the conference's second-leading field goal percentage shooter, at .636.

Freshman Alvin Lee puts up 18.6 points and doles out 4.3 assists while 6-9 sophomore Cliff Langford offers 12.5 points and 8.6 rebounds. Also keying the WTC attack is Alvin Hicks, who averages 13.9 points and 5.4 assists.

In other games tonight, NMJC (5-3) is at Midland (9-0), Odessa (5-3) will be at Borger to play Frank Phillips (1-7) and South Plains (7-2) will be at Roswell to play NMMI (1-7).

Richardson gets ejected; A&M keeps rolling forward

by The Associated Press

The second-half of the Southwest Conference basketball season is under way with Texas A&M still the top dog, but Texas Christian, Texas, and Southern Methodist refuse to go away.

The 8-1 Aggies, who survived a 62-58 scare at Baylor on Saturday night, have defeated all three of their current challengers. A&M's only SWC loss was to Houston.

However, the Aggies still must meet TCU and Texas on the road and SMU at home.

TCU and Texas are in second place with 7-2 marks.

Texas drilled Houston 79-63, and the Horned Frogs routed Rice 69-48 on Saturday.

SMU, which outgunned Arkansas 90-80 on Saturday, is alone in fourth place at 6-3 followed by Texas Tech at 4-4, Houston at 4-5, Arkansas at 2-7, and Baylor and Rice, each at 1-8.

It was the first time SMU had swept a season series from Arkansas in 15 years.

Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson was ejected from the game after receiving three technical fouls.

"In 22 years of coaching, I have never been ejected from a game," said Richardson. "It's depressing."

Richardson, who threw his coat and exchanged unpleasantries with three SWC officials, was slapped with three bench technicals. SMU's Scott Johnson hit five of six free throws that cost Arkansas.

"I had to apologize to our players because it had never happened before," said Richardson. "Things have been disturbing me, but I haven't said anything because it never sounds good to say you were beaten by officials. But I just couldn't take it any more."

TCU will travel to Arkansas on Wednesday night and Texas will be in Fayetteville on Saturday.

In other games Wednesday night, Baylor is at SMU, Texas Tech is at Houston and Rice is at Texas. A&M is idle.

The Aggies came close to being upset before 6,200 fans in Heart O' Texas Coliseum, but guard Don Marbury saved the night with 32 points. He hit two free throws with 38 seconds left and made a dunk with 19 seconds on the clock.

"Baylor will be in the SWC tournament," Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf said. "They are a lot better with their people back."

Zoeller leads AT&T Pro-Am

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Fuzzy Zoeller took a five-shot advantage to the first tee at Pebble Beach for today's delayed conclusion of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am golf tournament.

Zoeller's 2-under-par 70 at Cypress Point on Sunday gave him a 205 total, 11 under par, after one round over each of the three Monterey Peninsula courses used for this unique event.

Pro Bowl sees Giants' Sims lead NFC all-stars to victory

HONOLULU (AP) - Phil Simms' season with the New York Giants ended badly when he and his team were overpowered by the Chicago Bears in the National Football League playoffs.

But, thanks in a roundabout way to Bears' quarterback Jim McMahon, Simms was able to close the books on the campaign with a victory and a most valuable player award. In the process, he also took McMahon off the hook as the potential goat of the Pro Bowl.

Simms got extensive playing time for the National Football Conference All-Stars Sunday after McMahon, who lost a fumble and threw an interception in a brief span in the second quarter, aggravated a knee injury and didn't play in the second half.

Simms, who figured to play the first and third quarters in his role as the NFC starter, instead played all but the second period. He responded with three touchdown passes in the second half, the last with 2:47 remaining, to rally the NFC to a 28-24 victory over the American Conference.

Simms, named the Pro Bowl MVP in his first appearance as an all-star, connected with Tampa Bay's Jimmie Giles for a 15-yard touchdown in the waning minutes to give the NFC the victory.

Earlier in the second half, the Giant quarterback threw scoring strikes of 15 yards to Washington's Art Monk and two yards to Doug Cosbie of Dallas.

Simms finished with 15 completions in 27 attempts for 212 yards, with no interceptions.

The lost fumble and interception by McMahon, the brash star of Chicago's 46-10 rout of New England in the Super Bowl a week ago, set up a field goal and a touchdown by the AFC, which rattled off 17 points during a four-minute span of the second quarter to pull away from a 7-7 tie.

Another Chicago star, Walter Payton, played sparingly because of flu and finished with just three carries for 14 yards.

An offensive bright spot for the AFC was running back Marcus Allen of the Los Angeles Raiders. The NFL's MVP in 1985, Allen scored on a 2-yard run and threw a 51-yard touchdown pass to San Diego's Wes Chandler.

Survey shows 'Pokes would submit to tests

DALLAS (AP) - An informal survey of the Dallas Cowboys shows 19 of 30 team members questioned would submit to voluntary random drug testing, and almost all said there isn't a drug problem on the team, The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

The newspaper said 19 Cowboys answered yes when asked if they would submit to random drug testing if Cowboys President Tex Schramm said he wanted to conduct the tests.

Eight said they would not agree to the testing and three offered no comment.

As to whether there is a drug problem on the team, 27 Cowboys said no, one said he didn't know, two declined comment and none said yes.

The News said the 30 players that reporters were able to reach were given anonymity to prevent any backlash from management and the National Football League Players Association.

Mauled 6-year-old dies of injuries

DALLAS (AP) — Six-year-old Stephen Fiengo, who was mauled by a pack of wild dogs near his home in Longview 11 days ago, has died in a Dallas hospital.

Stephen died at 8:55 a.m. Sunday at Parkland Memorial Hospital, probably as a result of infection from the wounds, said hospital administrator Mary Layman.

"To our knowledge this has really been an unusual case in the intensity of the bites," said Ms. Layman. Earlier, doctors had said the child had 100 separate wounds.

The Dallas County medical examiner's office ruled his death "accidental due to multiple severe dog bites." No autopsy was necessary, said field agent Tony Badger.

By last Friday, Stephen had undergone seven surgical procedures and received as many as 187 pints of blood and plasma, Ms. Layman said.

The dogs that attacked him were not rabid, the hospital spokeswoman said, but "any time a person is bitten there is a possibility of getting infection."

Gregg County authorities said they had destroyed the eight animals they believe attacked the boy.

Sheriff's deputy Philip Goode said the county does not have a problem with wild dogs and that the Fiengo case was the first such attack he can recall.

The child had been playing alone in a field on the outskirts of town near his home when he was attacked by the dogs. His mother, Brenda Sue Fiengo, was visiting a friend at a house nearby and said when she went to check on him, she found him "just lying there with his eyes open" and bloody clothing strewn around.

The boy was rushed to the Longview hospital and was flown by helicopter to Dallas.

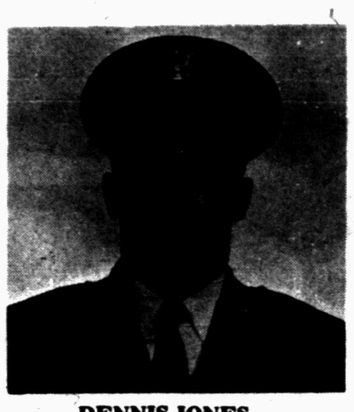

"Nobody has seen wounds like that since the war," said Dr. Michael Foreman, a surgeon at Parkland.

Doctors said the boy had beaten the odds by living as long as he did.

Meanwhile, Ms. Layman said the hospital was still encouraging donations of blood to defray costs. The hospital reduces the cost of the boy's medical expenses by $15 for every pint of blood donated in his name, she said.

Through last Friday, 600 units of blood had been donated in Stephen's name, reducing his immense medical costs by $9,000. By last week, the bill was already up to $110,000.

The boy's father, Stephen Fiengo Sr., a Longview bail bondsman, did not have medical insurance, Ms. Layman said.

Shuttle: triumphs, tragedies

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — From here, with the empty launch towers of pad 39 in the distance, here among the echoes of 55 launches past, it is hard to believe anyone would seriously consider not trying again.

It was here that the 10th mission of Challenger ended 73 seconds after liftoff in a puff of white and orange, taking with it the lives of five men and two women who accepted an epic challenge.

It was here that fuel enough to zoom a 100-ton spaceship out of gravity exploded in an awful instant, shattering one of four ships in the world capable of leaving Earth, returning and leaving again.

But it was also here that men left for the moon nine times. It was here that the earliest of astronauts, Shepard, Grissom and Glenn, ventured into the unknown. It was here that America established itself as the preeminent power in space, and don't you forget it.

From the earliest days of childhood, Americans learn a way of life.

"You have to crawl before you can walk," is the cliche. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. You get nothing for nothing. Nothing ventured, nothing gained. You have to play to win.

A phrase in a song captures that spirit: "Pick yourself up, dust yourself off, start all over again." There is no gain without pain.

Sen. John Glenn, who let himself be rocketed into the unknown in a capsule with all the room of a motorcycle side car, also expressed that spirit when he visited Kennedy Space Center after the tragedy: "While we have triumphs, many of them, once in a while there's a tragedy. It's that triumph and tragedy comparison that we have here today."

Triumph was beating the odds in a hazardous business for 25 years. Triumph was space capsule after space capsule floating out of the sky. Triumph was Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin saluting the American flag on the moon. Triumph was a handshake in space with the Soviets. Triumph was a human cut off from all earthly ties, silhouetted against the black of space as he flew at 17,400 miles an hour over the dazzling blue of Earth.

Despite the sameness and ease, space flight never was the same and it never was easy. It was daring on a grand scale, no less venturesome than a Ferdinand Magellan sailing around an uncharted world a half-millenium ago.

Space shuttle Challenger was designed for 100 missions; it completed nine. That was tragedy. Christa McAuliffe was 37 and died also without achieving a wonderful goal, as teacher to all of America's children from space. That was tragedy. The loss of Francis Scobee, Michael Smith, Judy Resnik, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka and Gregory Jarvis. That was tragedy.

Tax changes noted

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the first in a series of five articles written to help taxpayers prepare their 1985 income tax returns. This installment covers changes from last year.

JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As you start work on your 1985 tax returns, don't waste a lot of time worrying about the proposed changes that the president and Congress have been talking about for a year. They will have no effect on the return that you must file by April 15.

In fact, there have been very few changes in the law that will affect how you fill out your return. Most individuals will see no difference between the 1985 tax forms and those filed a year ago.

The brackets, personal exemption and standard deduction have been adjusted to account for inflation, and you won't have to suffer any new complexities to get those tax cuts. Instead of a $1,000-per person exemption, you get $1,040. And the "zero-bracket amounts," formerly called the standard deductions, were raised by about 4 percent.

Those who do not itemize deductions will find they are able to deduct a larger share of charitable contributions than they did last year. The deduction is for half the total you gave in 1985.

Itemizers and non-itemizers alike will have to file a separate Form 8283 if their total non-cash contributions exceed $500. The recipient of a cash donation of $3,000 or more must be listed on the return. If you gave more than $3,000 to one charity or made any non-cash contribution, you won't be able to use the ultra-simple Form 1040EZ.

Many people will find it easier than before to qualify for the lower tax rates available to unmarried heads of household. The term generally covers a person — most often a divorced woman with children — who paid over half the cost of maintaining the principal home of at least one qualifying relative for more than half the year.

The maximum earned-income credit, which benefits lower-income families with children, has been increased to $550, and some benefits may now be available to those whose earnings exceed $10,000.

There are some relatively minor revisions in the tax forms, most of them designed to make it a little easier for the Internal Revenue Service to catch cheats. Among them:

—Social Security recipients whose incomes last year were large enough ($32,000 for a couple, $25,000 for a single person) to require them to pay tax on part of their Social Security pensions must list their tax-exempt interest on Page 1 of Form 1040. That interest is considered in calculating how much of the pension is taxable.

—If you paid alimony, you'll have to list the name and Social Security number of your ex-spouse.

—Parents must list any dependent children who did not live with them in 1985.

Schedule 1, which is used by millions who file the "short" Form 1040A, has been juggled but there are no substantive changes. And there's one minor step toward simplification: You no longer have to make a separate entry on your return to show that a portion of your Individual Retirement Account contribution for 1985 was made in 1986.

Two changes in the law will affect taxpayers who buy a car for business use and investors in real estate. Most real estate placed in service after May 8, 1985, must be depreciated over 19 years (rather than 18). The maximum amount of investment credit allowed for a car placed in service after April 2, 1985, generally is $675; the maximum first-year writeoff is $3,200.

And the tax consequences of divorce have been reduced. Under the new law, a husband, for example, may turn over his share of a home to his wife as part of a divorce settlement without having to pay capital gains tax.

NEXT: The marriage penalty deduction.

County alters vacation policy

Wording was changed also to state that county employees may take vacation time accumulated only after they have worked a full six months.

During discussion, commissioners turned down a request by Pct. 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. that the court cut vacation time accrued from one day each month to one-half day per month.

Also Monday, commissioners agreed Monday to purchase some 870 ft. of a road right-of-way east of Snyder for a token $10 — a purchase that now places the road's maintenance under the county's responsibility.

The court purchased the right-of-way on property owned by Melvin Davenport at the request of six families living in a new subdivision off County Road 473.

Monies for the purchase will come from the Pct. 4 budget. Pct. 4 will also be responsible for the road's maintenance.

Cecil Hall of Hermleigh approached the court with a request to close Wemkin Street in Hermleigh. The street lies between blocks 59 and 60. Hall noted that only a cotton field exists at that location.

County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth pointed out that although the road has not been built, Hall must collect seven signatures on a petition before action can be taken because the road has already been designated.

In another item, commissioners took no action on a request by Gray to advertise county employment was available before hiring relatives of individuals already working for the county.

Police patrol quiet capital

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Security forces patrolling the capital fired into the streets at random, while 2,000 protesters calling for the downfall of President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier massed in a city in northern Haiti.

Duvalier's government, facing the most widespread anti-government rioting in its 14-year history, barred foreign reporters on Sunday from leaving Port-au-Prince, the capital, without permission. A curfew was also imposed in Cap Haitien, a city that has been a flashpoint of unrest.

Shoplifting, theft worked

Police worked two misdemeanor theft complaints over the weekend.

Employees of TG&Y filed the first complaint at 12:40 p.m. Saturday, noting they had detained a juvenile shoplifting suspect.

The boy was taken into police custody at the store and later released to the custody of his mother.

Chad Minson of 2216 42nd St. filed the second complaint at 3:57 p.m. Sunday.

He told police that his BMX type bicycle had been taken from outside the residence sometime earlier in the weekend.

No value was estimated for the missing bike.

In other weekend action, city officers jailed nine subjects on misdemeanor charges.

Three were charged with driving while intoxicated while three others were charged with public intoxication.

One of the DWI suspects and one of the PI suspects was also charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana in a quantity less than 2 ounces while a second PI suspect was charged with an additional count of disorderly conduct.

Two suspects were also arrested for being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol while one local man was jailed for driving with a suspended license.

DPS reports minor wreck

Snyder-based highway patrolmen were called to investigate Saturday a minor traffic mishap outside the city limits on 37th St.

Involved in the 9:40 p.m. mishap was a 1985 Ford driven by Amy Lynnette Wilson of Rt. 1; Snyder which struck a highway reflector on a culvert east of the Ave. M intersection.

Sunday includes one grass blaze

Snyder firemen were dispatched to a grass fire some 12 miles southeast of the city Sunday afternoon.

The blaze — reported at 12:19 p.m. west of Hermleigh on a county road — was extinguished with no property damage noted.

Roll addition

The name of a Snyder 7th grader was inadvertently left off of the junior high school honor role published Sunday in the SDN.

The list should have also included Amy Armstrong, whose grades were all 95 and above for the first semester at SJHS.

Life after crash

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Life goes on for the 27 survivors of Delta Flight 191 six months after the plane crashed, but not quite in the same way as before the tragedy.

And the cause of the crash, which occurred at 6:05 p.m. Aug. 2 at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, is still largely unfinished business.

Killed were 137 people, including the driver of a car that was struck by the faltering aircraft. The L-1011 was en route from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The National Transportation Safety Board's report on the accident will not be complete until April at the earliest, officials say.

The probe into the crash has focused mostly on wind shear, a violent change in wind direction, which occurred within a rapidly developing thunderstorm in the area.

Questions have arisen about why the pilot flew into the thunderstorm and whether, using proper maneuvers, the crew should have been able to fly out of it.

States will suffer cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP)--State and local governments would lose $9.7 billion in federal aid for transportation, health, education and other programs if $50 billion in spending cuts are triggered next fall, according to a private study of the effects of the new Gramm-Rudmam budget-balancing law.

California and New York would be the biggest losers if Congress cannot find another way to reduce the deficit and across-the-board spending cuts go into effect Oct. 1, according to the report by Fiscal Planning Services, a Washington consulting firm.

While the report bases its figures on $50 billion in spending cuts, the white House last week lowered its estimate of 1987 fiscal year reductions needed under Gramm-Rudman to $30 billion.

The study said California would lose $928.1 million in direct federal aid for such programs as Head Start, special education, job training, child support enforcement, highways, mass transit and economic development in the 1987 fiscal year. New York would lose $857.9 million.

Texas would lose $545.3 million in direct aid while Pennsylvania's share would be cut by $503.4 million. The next biggest losses would be $495.8 million in Illinois amd $409.4 million in Ohio.

"The Gramm-Rudman process is a prescription for long-term economic deterioration, a less educated work force, lower standards of living and fewer opportunities for the less fortunate," said the study, commissioned by the Service Employees International Union, the Villers Foundations and the National Council of Senior Citizens, a politically liberal, private research and advocacy group for the elderly.

The report based its estimates of program costs in the 1987 fiscal year on projections made by the Congressional Budget Office. These projections are the base figures from which cuts would have to be made under Gramm-Rudman.

The budget-balancing law mandates lower deficits each year until a balanced federal budget is achieved in 1991.

If Congress and President Reagan cannot agree on specific program cuts for the 1987 budget, across-the-board reductions will be triggered Oct. 1 to meet the deficit target of $144 billion.

City agenda list reported

The water meter purchase is a bid item quoted in amounts of both 500 and 1,000 meters. City staffers have recommended the council consider some type of bulk purchase to produce a cheaper per meter cost.

Regarding the highway sign, at the December meeting the council was approached by a local committee which requested the Snyder Tiger sign beside U.S. Hwy. 84 be repainted.

The sign now honors the SHS baseball team, which won the State AAAA championship tournament in 1983.

The committee, headed by Betsy Griffin, asked that the sign be changed to honor "student groups that have received statewide recognition" in other areas as well as athletics.

The council agreed to study the proposal and a second recommendation from the committee is planned Monday night.

The new drive through window for water customers was discussed by the council during budget planning sessions last summer.

It has been proposed to add a new faclity on the north side of the building using the same entrance as now used. Customers would then exit west of city hall onto Ave. T.

Another feature would be a vacuum tube system for payments assessible to the driver on the left side of the vehicle.

In other city business, the council is scheduled to:

—Consider seeking bids to lease the city-owned alfalfa field located adjacent to the old landfill.

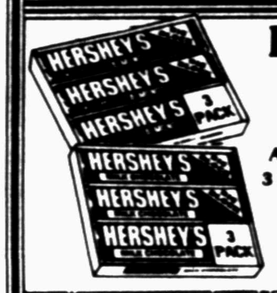

—Consider a request from Jimmy M. Ritchey for a special use permit to build a greenhouse and operate a plant nursery at 2113 Ave. I.

—Consider a request from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce for motel tax funds to cover expense items related to the appearance of the Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra here in December.

—Consider on first reading an ordinance to rezone the 1500 Block of 23rd St. from M-1 (manufacturing) to R-3 (general residential). The change has been requested by four property owners.

—Consider on second reading an ordiance to rezone a 1 acre tract of land at 3205 23rd St. from M-2 (heavy manufacturing) to R-3 (general residential). The change has been requested by Robert A. Sims.

Central Texas transplant noted

AUSTIN (AP) — The first human heart transplant in Central Texas was performed successfully on a 34-year-old man at Seton Medical Center.

Hospital authorities declined to identify the man, his hometown or the adult donor of the heart. They said the families asked to remain anonymous.

"He had no other alternatives," said Dr. John "Chip" Oswalt. Without the transplant "he would have been dead in a short period of time — three months, we're sure."
