Spacewalk succeeds

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Working with great speed, two spacewalkers floated into Discovery's open cargo bay today and attached to the shuttle's robot arm crude "flyswatter" tools designed to save an $80 million communications satellite.

"Job well done," Mission Control commended them.

The unrehearsed work by astronauts David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman was the first step in a hastily arranged but well-thought-out plan to try to rescue the Syncom satellite.

Early Wednesday, Discovery's crew will close the 40-mile gap with the satellite, move in and try to snag a four-inch lever on the side of the huge rotating payload with holes cut in the plastic flap-like ends of the tools, which look like large flyswatters.

The lever is an on-off switch for electrical power, and was supposed to have tripped outward automatically when the astronauts deployed Syncom on Saturday. Without power, the satellite is useless.

Working in cumbersome $2.1 million spacesuits, Griggs and Hoffman had trouble at first as their tools, straps and other gear kept floating away at the end of tethers.

Jr. high 'no play' affects 42 percent

Some 56 junior high school choir students were not able to compete Tuesday with their fellows at UIL district competition in Abilene.

The combination 7th and 8th graders — part of the some 180-member choir — are the latest local group affected by the controversial no-pass, no-play rule mandated across Texas.

At the end of the past six-weeks period, the junior high reported 228 students who failed one grade or more. This equals 42 percent of the 548-count student body.

These youngsters ended the fifth six weeks reporting period with at least one grade below 70. This makes them ineligible to

Church building suit filed

Representatives of the Lubbock Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church have filed suit in 132nd District Court seeking unspecified damage from a Big Spring building contractor in connection with alleged problems with the recently completed Our Lady of Guadalupe Church here.

The filing — against the Lee George Construction Company — marks the second time church officials have sued contractors on the project since work on the new building began in 1980.

Also named as co-defendant in the recent suit is the San Antonio architectural firm of Robert A. Pizzini Inc.

Pizzini has served as architect on the project since 1980.

In the original petition filed last week, church leaders cite water leakage problems in the now completed building.

The plaintiff's allege the contractor has failed to fix the problem of water running down the inside walls of the building due to leaking windows.

Lee George Construction Inc. — then known as Tilley and George — was contracted to finish the building in early 1984 after a lawsuit filed by the church against the original contractor — Seay Construction of Abilene — was settled out of court.

Seay had begun construction on the church in late 1980 but halted

Cof C sets April meet

A full slate of committee reports will be offered chamber directors Tuesday during their regular April meeting — scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Chamber President Roy Baze is also expected to update directors regarding two proposals he offered during the February meeting of the board. These include "visits" between members of the board and the chamber membership, a plan designed to improve communication between the two.

In addition, Baze will report regarding plans for the chamber's annual meeting, which traditionally has been combined with the chamber banquet.

Baze has proposed having these two as separate events, again to allow the membership a greater voice in the year-round activities of the chamber.

Baze is also scheduled to report on such chamber-endorsed projects as the cleanup now underway of Deep Creek; establishing a western truck route around Snyder by securing state highway funds to extend FM 1611; and recommendations regarding bylaw and policy changes solicited from the board.

Other reports scheduled Tuesday include from the:

—Economic Division: Jerry Vestal, division head, is to report on business development plans.

—Civic Division: Mike Banta, division head, is to report on the leadership class now underway and an update on cultural affairs committee activities.

—Special Projects Division:

Weather reporting is city staff chore

April marks the 25th year that the City of Snyder has been recording official rainfall amounts and temperatures for the National Weather Service (NWS) in Lubbock.

Prior to April, 1960, David P. Strayhorn kept track of the daily recordings, reporting them to the weather service. Strayhorn kept the daily tallies from 1955-1960.

NWS records do not indicate which individuals were responsible for taking the daily readings prior to 1955, but Snyder has been a weather reporting station since 1891.

Personnel at the city's water treatment plant are responsible for taking daily readings of minimum and maximum temperatures plus any rainfall which fell during the previous 24-hour period.

Readings are taken by different individuals, depending on who is the morning plant operator, according to Darrell Callahan, water and waste water superintendent. Readings are taken at 7 a.m. daily and reported to the NWS as well as the Snyder Daily News.

During the winter the plant opens at 7 a.m. when the morning operator comes on duty, but during the summer — when water usage is at its peak — the plant is operated on a 24-hour basis.

The equipment responsible for the daily readings are the property of the NWS which also installed them at the plant location in Snyder. Local employees of the plant are responsible for the maintenance.

Two thermometers — enclosed inside a ventilated wooden box for protection against inclement weather — are used for the daily minimum and maximum

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Mealtime is when a lot of folks sit down to continue eating."

Every year about this time, Uncle Sam calls his markers due. There were a lot of long faces at the post office yesterday as folks rushed to get the tax return in the mail.

You can't avoid taxes, so you might as well joke about 'em. A friend gave us the following letter:

"In reply to request for payment, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it almost impossible to comply.

"Due to federal laws, provincial law, country law, township laws, brother-in-laws, and outlaws, my financial condition is shattered. I am compelled to pay income tax, business tax, amusement tax, gas tax, inheritance tax, light tax, fuel tax, excise tax, car tax, garbage tax, sewer tax, transportation tax and hidden tax.

"I am required to contribute to every society and organization which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life...

"I am required to get a business license, car license, operator's license, trailer license, truck license, hunting license, fishing license, not to mention a marriage license and dog license.

"For my own safety, I am required to carry life insurance, health insurance, liability insurance, fire insurance, property insurance, flood insurance, old-age insurance, accident insurance and unemployment insurance.

"My business is so governed that it is no easy matter to find out who owns it. I am inspected, suspected, expected, disrespected, rejected, dejected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fixed, commanded and compelled until I provide an exhaustible supply of money for every known need....

"Simply because I refuse to donate to something or the other, I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am almost ruined.

"I can tell you honestly that, except for a miracle that happened, I could not enclose this check for the IRS payment you demand. The wolf that came to my door last week had pups in my backroom. I sold the pups, and here is the money."

Q. — Who do I contact to have a city truck parked at my house to haul off trash?

A. — A signup for the service must be completed at the city water department office. The truck will be parked overnight at any location the resident specifies. Individuals must request it in person at city hall, however, and there is generally a waiting period of a few days.

According to U.S. officials, Secretary of State George P. Shultz has warned Iran the United States is prepared to take unspecified retaliatory action against Iran should any harm come to the hostages.

The warning was issued about two months ago.

Billion dollar plan would cutback on erosion of soil

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 10-year "conservation reserve" program for taking 20 million acres from crop production would sharply reduce soil erosion in the United States, according to two studies by Agriculture Department experts.

Both reports, recently sent to Congress, said the program, even at a cost of more than $1 billion a year, would be an economical way to save precious topsoil and reduce surplus crop production.

Pressure is building on Capitol Hill and among conservation groups for a new long-term soil bank that would shift at least 20 million acres of highly erodible cropland into trees and grass to protect it from wind and water damage.

The administration has been cool to the idea, citing its impact on budget spending and the deficit.

Democratic Gov. John Evans of Idaho, representing the National Governors' Association, told the Senate Agriculture Committee on Monday that a new conservation reserve should "set aside land for at least 10 years" and that it could help reduce federal spending on crop price support operations.

Some other groups, including the National Audubon Society and the Wildlife Management Institute, urged the committee to consider removing up to 30 million acres from crop production and putting it in a long-term conservation reserve for 20 years or longer.

One of the Agriculture Department reports — by Roy M. Gray of the department's Soil Conservation Service — said a 10-year conservation reserve program aimed at idling 20 million acres would cost about $9.6 billion over the entire decade, an average of slightly less than $1 billion a year.

"Over half the acres participating in the program would come from land presently planted to wheat," the report said. "The next highest participation would be soybeans, followed by corn and cotton."

The agency says there are about 421 million acres in the United States used for crops and hay. Water erosion causes a loss of about 1.8 billion tons of topsoil each year, with wind erosion adding another 1.2 billion tons.

According to a 1982 survey, about 923 million tons are lost on 41.2 million acres, which are eroding at the rate of more than 10 tons per year.

About one-half of the loss to water erosion occurs on only 10 percent of the land, with the Corn Belt having the greatest concentration of losses. The soil lost to wind is mostly in the southern and northern Plains and the mountain states.

Sesquicentennial...

Recipes are needed for special cookbook

More recipes are needed for the Scurry County sesquicentennial cookbook, and with the April 30 deadline rapidly approaching members of the cookbook committee are requesting prompt assistance from the community.

The cookbook is to be published in 1986 as part of the statewide sesquicentennial celebration. Recipes of all kinds are sought, new ideas as well as old family favorites.

Recipes are to be mailed to Jean Everett at Route 3, Box 18, Snyder, Tex. 79549. The name and address of the sender should be written on the sheet with the recipe, and to help make the book unique it is requested that a brief personal note accpmpany each recipe. The note may tell how long the recipe has been in use, how it was acquired or other information.

A contest to choose a name for the cookbook is now underway and will close April 30. Contest entries are to be sent to Mrs. Everett, each entry on a 3 x 5 card and each entry accompanied by a recipe for the cookbook. A $25 cash prize and a free cookbook will be awarded the winner of the contest.

IRS auditor gets excuses on returns

HOUSTON (AP) — Now that income tax filing day has passed, Internal Revenue Service auditors are is bracing for the litany of excuses from taxpayers trying to justify deductions when their returns are audited.

IRS auditor Tanayia Huschka says she has seen grown people cry, heard creative excuses for misplaced financial records and listened to just about every cuss word invented.

"If it rains an inch in this town, 90 percent of the records were on the floor and ruined," said Ms. Huschka, 39, who has audited thousands of people during her seven years with the IRS in Houston.

The IRS audits about 1 percent of the individual returns filed each year, so the chances are good that a wage earner will be audited sometime, Ms. Huschka says.

Suspect returns are sent to IRS offices and taxpayers get letters notifying them they must bring their financial records for a certain tax year to the IRS, she says.

The summons usually starts a short reign of terror for many taxpayers, and by the time they're seated in front of Ms. Huschka they are nervous and jumpy.

Most people aren't out to cheat the government, but they know too little about the legality of some deductions made, she says.

"A lot of people have read just enough to be dangerous to themselves," Ms. Huschka says. "They're not angry with us. They're angry with the government or mostly they're angry with themselves because they know there's going to be an adjustment."

A common violation made on tax returns is claiming street clothing as uniforms, she says.

A maitre d' tried unsuccessfully to claim the cost of his tuxedo as a business expense, swearing to Ms. Huschka that it had become so stained with spaghetti sauce that he couldn't wear it anywhere outside of work. And Ms. Huschka also rejected the claims of an actress who thought her designer dresses were a legitimate business uniform.

Then there was the exotic dancer who tried to show that her G-strings and tassels were legitimate business expenses.

An audit, which usually lasts two hours, doesn't always mean the taxpayer has to pay a penalty, Ms. Huschka says. Often the tax paid is too much and a happy taxpayer walks out of the office with a refund.

Drug trafficking strides are made

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Although the "war on drugs" is far from over, U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III says significant strides are being made in combating international drug trafficking.

And much of the improvement can be attributed to an "all-time high" in cooperation among foreign governments, including Mexico, Meese said Monday.

"I think it is clear on both sides of the border the seriousness with which both countries treat the drug trafficking problem," he said.

Meese added that the United States is "gratified" with Mexico's handling of "the most serious event we've had this year" — the slaying of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar in Guadalajara.

At least 40 people have been ordered to stand trial in Mexico in the death of Camarena and a Mexican pilot who worked with him, according to authorities in that country.

"We've experienced a high level of cooperation with Mexico" in the case, Meese said.

But the U.S. government is continuing to review it to determine "what, if anything, is appropriate to do," the attorney general said at a news conference at the El Paso Intelligence Center.

Supervised by the Justice Department's DEA, EPIC was established in 1974 as a sophisticated, computerized federal center to gather intelligence on drug operations worldwide.

Meese toured EPIC Monday afternoon and was scheduled to meet today with the directors of the 13 regional task forces that make up the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force Program.

The task forces as of March 18 "have a very impressive record" with 1,152 indictments against more than 4,000 people, Meese said.

"We're hitting the major drug traffickers and the major organized crime rings," he said.

His meeting today with the various directors of the task forces was to review the past two year's activities and to discuss future strategies, he said.

Dear Abby

Guest's Early Entrance Throws Harried Hostess Off Her Beat

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I invited some friends over for cocktails at 6:30 p.m. That afternoon one of my guests called to confirm the time. We talked a while, and just before she hung up, she said, "I'll come by early. Goodbye." I was so surprised, I didn't say anything, but it was too late anyway.

She arrived at 5:45. I was still dressing, so I let her in and I returned to finish dressing. Then I had several last-minute things to do for the cocktail party, so I wasn't able to visit with her, or even listen to her while she followed me around babbling about one thing or another. She really upset me because I couldn't concentrate on the things I had to do, and I'm afraid I wasn't a very gracious hostess.

Is it acceptable in today's society for guests to inform the hostess that they will be coming by early? And how could I have avoided this unsettling experience?

OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: The problem here is not what is "acceptable" in today's society; it's the difference between how you perceive your relationship with this woman, and how she perceives it.

She was presumptuous to assume that she would be welcome to come early. And you lacked the backbone to call her back and tell her it would not be convenient for her to come early—which is what you should have done.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you three years ago saying my husband had asked for a divorce (another woman). I was 42 at the time and thought my life was over. Suicide even crossed my mind, but I couldn't do that to my children.

You advised me to get into therapy, even though I said I couldn't afford counseling. You said, "You can't afford not to have it; call your local mental health facility—you'll be charged only what you can afford to pay."

Well, I went for counseling, and it really turned my life around. Now I realize that my husband did me a big favor when he left me because I met and married a loving, caring man whom my "ex" couldn't compare to.

Sometimes when it seems like the end of the world, it's really only the beginning.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: Thanks, I needed that. I recommend "counseling" so frequently, many readers think it's a cop-out on my part. It's not. Sometimes it's a lifesaver.

DEAR ABBY: My 42-year-old husband's "get up and go" has been gone for a long time. He comes home from an office job, eats his dinner, then falls asleep in his recliner. He wakes up two hours later and goes to bed.

Should I get rid of the recliner or my husband?

NO ONE TO TALK TO

DEAR NO ONE: First, ask yourself if your company or conversation could be putting your husband to sleep, and your question may answer itself. If it's not you, your listless mate could be sick or depressed. Insist that he see his physician before you get rid of him or the recliner.

PUBLIC NOTICE

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. ("AT&T Communications"), in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUC") hereby gives notice of its intent to implement a new schedule of rates for its services. The new rates will be effective May 14, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the PUC. All customers and classes of customers would be affected by the proposed rates.

AT&T Communications has filed a reprice of its tariffs designed to more closely recover access and other costs for WATS and 800 Service and all private line services including Channel Services, Foreign Exchange (FX), DATAPHONE® Digital Service, and OCC Facilities.

Also proposed is the institution of a charge for Directory Assistance to begin to recover access costs incurred for such service and increases in rates for operator assisted AT&T Long Distance calls. The initial minute charge for all AT&T Long Distance calls and additional minute rates for AT&T Long Distance calls 51 miles or less are proposed for increases to reflect the access charges approved by the PUC for such calls.

The proposed new rates for all services would result in an increase in adjusted test period revenues of $139 million or 12.7 percent.

A complete copy of the proposed tariffs are on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Here's the answer

Q. — I have decided to build a workshop. I would like your opinion on the best place for it to be. Right now, I am torn between the attic, which is unfinished, or the basement, which also is unfinished. Whichever one I do not use will be kept for storage of various kinds.

A. — Nobody can give you a definite opinion without having some idea of what kind of activities will be performed there. Generally, however, a basement with a concrete floor is the better choice. It usually has some overflow of heat from the furnace and, in a hot weather area, is cooler in the summer. If the noise from power tools can be heard upstairs, it is fairly easy to keep the noise downstairs. It will support heavy tables and tools. There is usually plenty of storage space. The one thing that might cause trouble is dampness. Be sure you have a good system of gutters and downspouts so that water does not settle alongside the foundation and eventually find its way into the basement. If there is a danger of condensation or if you have had it at some time in the past, take all the necessary steps to control it, one of them being the covering of cold water pipes which attract moisture. If you expect to work with large sheets of plywood, gypsum board or hardboard, be sure there is a way the sheets can be maneuvered into the basement — and, not so incidentally, out of it. You wouldn't be the first person who built something in a basement workshop and then found he couldn't get it out without taking it apart.

Q. — I bought a second-hand table saw and am just getting used to it. How far above the table should the blade be?

A. — It isn't how far above the table the blade should be; it's how far above the stock it should be while cutting. The answer is — the top of the blade should be one-fourth of an inch above the stock. Please try to get an instruction booklet by the manufacturer of the table saw or, at the very least, a book about table saws in general. It should be done at once, not after some trouble occurs.

Q. — We have an occasional drainage problem in our plumbing system. One of these days I will get around to finding out exactly where it is. I feel confident I will be able to handle the problem, but first I want to be sure of its location. I understand there is a simple way to determine whether the stoppage is in the main drain or in a specific place. Can you tell me?

A. — If you turn on the water at each fixture, carefully inspect each one to see which is draining and which is not. If there is a stoppage at only a single fixture, then the trouble is there and not in the main drain. If there is a stoppage at two or more fixtures, the stoppage is in the main drain.

to play East for all four spades, but that seemed the only explanation for the immediate double of the five-spade contract. That would also be consistent with the fact that West almost took the double out to six clubs. Declarer came off dummy with a low spade. When East followed with the four, South won with the seven in his hand. The deal was not yet over. A diamond was led to dummy's king and East's ace. East returned a spade. Declarer cashed the A-K of hearts and a high diamond before picking up the remaining trumps. The hand now counted out. East had shown up with four spades, five hearts, and two clubs. Since he could not hold more than two diamonds, South finessed against West's diamond 10 to land his contract.

In trouble with a double

By James Jacoby

In an ideal world, every bid would be made in the same tempo without any inflection. But bridge players are not robots, and sometimes bid too quickly or too slowly. This can be a costly error.

The weak two-bid by South on only five cards was unorthodox, but it is a tactic used when the vulnerability is favorable and the suit is strong. West was quick to bid five clubs, North bid five spades, and East thought it must have been Christmas in April. The double by East came quickly on the heels of five spades. West tranced for a while and finally passed.

Two rounds of clubs were played, the second trumped in dummy. It was certainly against normal percentages

Look to break losing skid...

Tigers host Loboes tonight

Snyder's Tigers, suffering from a two-game losing skid, hope to get back into the win column tonight when they host Monahans under the lights at Moffett Field.

Game time is 7:30.

Snyder will bring a 2-2 District 2-4A record into the contest. The Tigers are two games out of first place, an honor shared by Pecos and Andrews, who match up tonight in Andrews.

The Tigers, ranked as high as eighth this season but omitted from this week's poll, are 13-5 for the season.

DISTRICT-SEASON STANDINGS

Team	District		Season
Pecos	4-0	1.000	12-2	857
Andrews	4-0	1.000	10-6	625
Snyder	2-2	500	13-5	722
FtStockton	1-3	250	3-4	428
Lamesa	1-3	250	5-11	312
Monahans	0-4	000	3-10	230

FRIDAY'S RESULTS: Pecos 10, Snyder 2; Andrews, 4, Lamesa 3; Monahans 9, Fort Stockton 8 (unofficial score)

TUESDAY'S GAMES (April 16): Monahans at Snyder; Pecos at Andrews; Fort Stockton at Lamesa.

Monahans is 0-4 in district play and 3-10 for the season.

In the other 2-4A game this evening, Fort Stockton is at Lamesa. Both are 1-3 in district play.

Snyder is likely to see another lefthander tonight. Monahans is expected to pitch ace Trey Ford.

"Boy, that would be the fourth lefthander in a row. Where are they getting all of these guys? Of course, if we had 'em, we'd use 'em too," said Coach Albert Lewis.

Snyder will counter with Charles Bollinger, 6-1 for the season.

"Our backs are against the wall. Charlie is our number one pitcher and there's no sense saving him. We've got to have this one," said Lewis.

Tentative for the game is catcher Ricky Hunter, who injured an ankle in last Friday's game with Pecos. He is scheduled to start and bat second in the lineup, but Michael Carter will serve as courtesy runner for him.

"Ricky is still a little hobbled but the swelling has gone down and he's moving around pretty good," said the coach. "But if he can't go or he's in pain we'll take him out."

Todd Odom would be Hunter's replacement.

The Tiger lineup then, in batting order, is Bobby Velasquez at centerfield; Ricky Hunter, catcher; Charles Bollinger, pitcher; Justin Webb, right field; Jay Mayo, second base; Jimmy Velasquez, designated hitter; and in the seventh spot, Steve Parker at first base. Either third baseman Chris Fryar or shortstop Jimmy Cain will bat eighth with Jimmy Velasquez hitting for the other. Willie Greathouse will hit ninth and play left field.

Duster threesome signs with NTSU

They may start calling North Texas State University the Western Texas annex after three Dusters signed with that school Monday.

Clara Campbell, Lyndy French and Patti Hayes all signed with North Texas State.

The trio led Western Texas to the finals of the Region V Tournament this past season under former Duster coach Joe Cushing. WTC finished with a school-record 31-6 season.

"Coach Nelson (NTSU coach Judy Nelson) is a fine coach. She'll take good care of these kids," said Cushing. "I don't have any doubts they'll go and play well for her."

The girls join another former Western Texas player, Larry Banks, who started for NTSU's men this past season. He will be a senior next year.

Campbell, who picked North Texas, over Texas A&M, averaged 17.4 points and 10.3 rebounds for Western Texas last season. The 6-2 Dallas native also had 62 blocked shots.

French, 5-11 from Big Spring, averaged 9.5 points and 3.6 rebounds. She also led WTC in assists with 97.

Hayes, 6-0 from Florida, averaged 11.5 points and 6.2 boards.

Campbell was all-conference and all-region this season. She was also an all-Region Tournament selection. French was second-team all-conference and honorable mention all-region. Hayes made honorable mention all-conference.

Two other WTC sophomores, Renvy Evans and Judy Wiseman, are still considering several options before signing. Point guard Rhonda Hoelting, a two-year starter for WTC, reportedly has no plans to further her basketball career.

Tulane Senate nixes program

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The Tulane University Senate has voted to abolish men's basketball and to study whether the select private university should continue in big-time football and baseball.

The action came in the wake of charges that some some members of the basketball team had been involved in point-shaving, drugs and illegal payoffs.

The senate vote on Monday ratified two recommendations by university President Eamon Kelly. The school's Board of Directors meets on Thursday to make the final decision on both matters.

The vote came hours after two basketball players, a convicted bookmaker and an alleged go-between entered pleas of innocent to charges of conspiracy and sports bribery in connection with two home games allegedly rigged in February.

Players David Dominique and John "Hot Rod" Williams, along with Roland Ruiz, 48, and Craig Bergeron, 23, pleaded innocent before District Judge Alvin Oser.

Kelly said said he supports varsity athletics as a valuable part of a university education, but the price can be too great.

Hagler clips Hearns

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - The physical pain of Marvelous Marvin Hagler's punches lingered, but Thomas Hearns felt the pain of losing even worse.

"It hurts," a dejected Hearns said after a third-round knockout Monday night shattered his dream of a third world title.

It took Hearns about 45 minutes to compose himself enough after the bout before speaking, and the anguish was still there - on his face and in the tone of his muted voice.

"I had to show I deserved some respect," he said of his decision to slug it out with the onrushing Hagler. "He came running in and I had to protect myself."

It turned out to be a fatal mistake as Hagler shook off several hard right hands, then came back with some thundering shots to the head and body to wear Hearns down and finally stop him eight minutes and one second into the scheduled 12-round fight.

The loss, only the second of his career, came in the same Caesars Palace parking lot where he was knocked out in September 1982 by Sugar Ray Leonard. Hearns came back from that bout to win the 154-pound title he still holds and vowed he'd be back again.

"I'm not putting my head down," he said. "I feel I'm a winner and I shall return. I did it once before and I'll do it again."

Whether that's against Hagler remains to be seen, but Hearns said he'd like another chance.

"It doesn't stop here. If it happened once, let's do it again," he said. "We gave the people what they deserved, what they paid for."

But a rematch would be hard-pressed to live up to the nonstop action that began when Hagler rushed out and threw a wild right and ended with referee Richard Steele waving Hearns out after he struggled to his feet at the count of nine.

"I haven't seen that much action in three rounds ever," said the veteran referee.

Doctors alerted to patients

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — Suspected drug abusers who walk into hospitals and health clinics demanding special drug treatments are being labeled "professional patients" and going on file at Dallas-Fort Worth area hospitals and emergency rooms, the Garland Daily News reported.

The Professional Patient Alert program is informing doctors and other health care providers when people try to obtain specific drugs, said Jeff Pannell, executive vice president of the Dallas-Fort Worth Hospital Council, program sponsor.

Many people enter emergency rooms "wanting a narcotic fix," Pannell said, and the information provided through the program helps physicians and nurses identify these people.

So-called "professional patients" are pinpointed about every two weeks, said Dr. William Jernberg, emergency room medical director at Garland Memorial Hospital. In addition, an alert bulletin on other patients comes in about six times a week, he said.

The information detailed in the alerts includes name, aliases, addresses, social security number, age, occupation, physical description, details of patient visit and patient complaints, the newspaper said.

The information, compiled by the DFW Hospital Council from information provided by emergency room personnel, is distributed to 78 member hospitals and emergency clinics.

At Garland Memorial, people come in complaining of back pain, tooth pain, headaches and any other type of pain they think will get them a pain-relieving drug, said Jernberg.

But the medical examination sometimes does not reveal the presence of any real pain, he said.

"Patterns develop," he said. Usually the patients ask for a specific drug "by name," and may become "agitated, put out or belligerent" if informed they will not be given the drug, he said.

"We will even make phone calls to surrounding hospitals," informing health personnel that the patient may come there next, Jernberg said.

Though experienced medical personnel may be alert enough to recognize abusers on sight, there is the possibility of innocent patients being included in the alerts, officials said.

In addition, some patients might feel the program is a breach of physician-patient confidence if they knew the information was being passed around, officials said.

"It's something we've worried about and wrestled with. If a doctor didn't have good basis (for distributing the information), he could be held liable for damages," said Rocky Wilcox, an attorney with the Texas Medical Association.

The Medical Practice Act of Texas protects patient information from being distributed, but there are a few exceptions to the privilege of confidentiality under the law.

One of the few exceptions is the right to provide the information to medical or law enforcement personnel if the physician determines there is a probability of imminent physical injury to himself, to the patient, or to others, or if there is a probability of immediate mental or emotional injury to the patient, the Garland newspaper said.

Deputies acquitted of assault charges

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Two of three Jefferson County sheriff's deputies cleared by a jury on assault charges have criticized an FBI investigation that resulted in an indictment that alleged they beat two jail inmates.

A federal jury Monday found all three deputies innocent of the charges.

"It's going to be very hard to get back on the streets," said David Matlock, a 16-year veteran law enforcement officer. "I'm thinking of not going back because of this. ... Because this (the FBI) investigation was one-sided, and if it was one-sided this time, would they do it again? You could say I'm gun shy," Matlock said.

Though fellow deputy John Allen Gowling said he never doubted that he would be acquitted, he too, criticized the FBI's work.

"I felt like there never was any evidence that we were guilty," said Gowling. "The worst part was the waiting for the 12 to return the verdict, though. This has been going on for over a year."

Gowling called the FBI year-long investigation "very one-side, very poor."

Crackdown has widened to shippers

AUSTIN (AP) — Shippers who overload their trucks will be targets of an expanded crackdown that could bring the state $1 million in judgments this year, Attorney General Jim Mattox says.

Mattox on Monday said the crackdown against overweight trucks that began in November has already wrought changes.

"The troopers out on the highway tell us that the attitude towards hauling on an overweight truck has dramatically changed," Mattox said, adding that the Department of Public Safety reports "substantially reduced" violations.

Lucas tells friend story is not true

AUSTIN (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas now says he was lying when he told a Dallas newspaper reporter that he had only killed three people, a close friend of the convicted killer says.

Lucas, who law officers say is responsible for at least 210 homicides, joined his friend Clemmie Schroeder in prayer Sunday in Waco.

The Austin American-Statesman today reported that Lucas told her his statement to a Dallas newspaper reporter that he had only killed three people was false.

The Dallas Times Herald, in a copyrighted story on Sunday, raised questions about whether Lucas had committed many of the up to 600 homicides he earlier confessed to.

Ms. Schroeder, who has become one of Lucas' closest friends, and law enforcement officers from California to Florida said Monday they continue to believe Lucas is responsible for dozens of slayings.

However, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he had doubts about the handling of the Lucas case.

During a 70-minute visit Sunday afternoon, they prayed twice, Ms. Schroeder said. She said Lucas told her that he had made the claim about killing only three people 14 months ago, before his religious convictions deepened and while he was still denying involvement in other slayings.

Wife of queen's cousin confirms father was in SS

LONDON (AP) — Princess Michael of Kent, a Bohemian-born aristocrat who is married to Queen Elizabeth II's cousin, has confirmed her father was a major in the notorious SS corps that ran Nazi Germany's concentration camps.

Buckingham Palace said in a terse statement Monday night that the report about her father was a total surprise to the 40-year-old princess when it was first revealed by the Daily Mirror on Monday.

But the London tabloid said today it was unbelievable that the princess had never known the truth about her father until now. She was born in Carlsbad, Bohemia, now part of Czechoslovakia, in the closing months of World War II. Her parents moved to Austria, and later divorced. She was raised in Australia.

The British Broadcasting Corp., reported: "It is believed the princess was able to confirm the report first given in this morning's Daily Mirror only after checking the details with other members of her family."

The palace statement issued by Michael Shea, the queen's press secretary, said: "Princess Michael confirmed tonight that it is true that her father was a member of the SS. It came as a total surprise to her when she heard the news from James Whitaker (a Daily Mirror reporter). And it came as a total shock. There will be no further comment or statement from the princess."

The princess, a 6-foot blonde born Marie-Christine Von Reibnitz, bears the name of her husband, Prince Michael of Kent, because she is a princess only by marriage to him. At the time of her wedding, in 1978, British press reports stated that her father, Silesian nobleman Baron Gunter von Reibnitz, had been thrown into a concentration camp in 1944 for anti-Nazi sympathies.

But a London paper, the Daily Express, wrote today: "If Baron von Reibnitz was in a concentration camp, it now seems likely he was a jailer rather than a prisoner."

The paper said von Reibnitz died two years ago in Germany.

The Daily Mirror reproduced documents that it said showed von Reibnitz joined the SS in 1933 at the age of 39.

Mattox questions Lucas confessions

AUSTIN (AP) — In part because confessions were all local authorities had, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox says his office declined to help prosecute at least two murder cases in which Henry Lee Lucas confessed.

At various times, Lucas has claimed responsibility for between 100 and 600 slayings. Nationwide, police have closed the books on 210 slayings based on those confessions.

Mattox said Monday that his office has looked at 13 Lucas cases so far, two of which were requests for help from local prosecutors.

"In the cases where we've been asked to assist, we will not be lending prosecution assistance ... except to further investigate to determine whether or not someone else possibly has committed the offense," Mattox said.

"That's not to say he (Lucas) did not commit the crimes. But certainly, there's no evidence there with the exception of his own confessions," Mattox said.

Mattox refused to specify which cases his office reviewed.

When asked, the attorney general's office helps local prosecutors in capital murder cases. The office also reviews death penalty cases on behalf of the state.

Asked whether he believes Lucas is guilty of all the killings to which he has confessed, Mattox replied flatly: "No."

A grand jury in Waco is now investigating two slayings where Lucas' confessions have been cast into doubt, Mattox added.

In an interview with the Dallas Times Herald, Lucas, 48, now claims that all but three of his confessions were bogus. Lucas says he staged the hoax "to show law enforcement doesn't do its job."

Mattox noted that news reports indicate that in some cases, the one-eyed drifter was thousands of miles from the scenes of crimes or would have had to travel constantly to commit all the killings.

"I think some of what has been reported in the media concerning the conflicts as to schedules and locations and times would tend to make it appear to be impossible that Lucas could have committed some of the offenses," Mattox said.

Mattox said his office is continuing to investigate Lucas cases and has "intensified our review of a few." The office has assigned a full-time investigator to the job, said spokeswoman Elna Christopher.

JACK BRYANT'S SEPTIC TANK cleaning service can save you money by offering this larger truck for fewer loads. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-3930. (SDN Staff Photo)

Jack Bryant and crew will clean tanks on regular basis

If your house's sewage disposal needs are served by a septic tank, then there are a few facts you need to know about.

When septic tanks ae not cleaned periodically they get full of solids which then flow out of the lateral (drain) lines, clogging the perforated joints. Solids may even clog sewer lines from the house, causing the sewage to back up in the house.

At this point, the solution is either to clean out drain lines (which is not always successful) and clean the tank; or to lay new lines and clean out the tank.

When you have septic tank trouble, the least worry is the inconvenience it causes; and valuable carpet could be ruined when the lines are backed up.

Why not save all this expense and worry by maintaining your septic tank properly? For a septic tank to work properly so as to give no troulbe, it needs to be maintained like anything else. If you have your tanks pumped every six months, then your chances of having it back up into the house are less likely.

It is very expensive to have a septic tank worked over, so if you want us to put you on a maintenance program, we can clean the tank every six months for $30.00 each time. This is over a 20 percent savings.

Chemicals by themselves usually don't work properly if the tank is already full of solids. If your tank runs over the lid, you can be sure it needs cleaning. Likely the perforated joints are already clogged up.

The good part of all this is that Jack Bryant and his septic Tank Cleaning Service can save you money. He is able to do this by using a larger tank truck and the cost is determined by the number of loads hauled.

Jack Bryant can keep your septic tank operating properly. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-3930.

Pro-life, pro-choice pack committee

AUSTIN (AP) — The unregulated abortion industry in Texas has produced abortion clinics with a "butcher-shop image," says an El Paso woman who worked in one clinic until she decided abortion is wrong.

"It degenerated into a facility that was profit-oriented, with little concern for the health of the woman, much less an unborn child," Judy Weerstra told the House State Affairs Committee on Monday.

The committee is reviewing Rockdale Rep. L.B. Kubiak's bill that would ban abortions in the final three months of pregnancy and increase state restrictions on all abortions.

"Pro-choice" and "pro-life" forces packed a hearing room and spilled over into an adjacent corridor where the testimony was piped out to speakers. Committee Chairman Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, said more than 150 people signed up to testify and that the bill would go to subcommittee for further study.

Houston physician Steven Hotze said that lawmakers who refuse to ban abortions in the final three months of pregnancy are similar to Nazi leaders who refused to stop the killing of Jews.

House backs mandatory program

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has backed a Dallas lawmaker's plan to force all probationers to do at least 40 hours of community service work without pay.

The 66-63 tentative vote on Monday came despite objections from Rep. Harold Dutton, a black lawmaker from Houston.

"We used to do that a long time ago," Dutton said. "We forced people to work and they didn't get paid. We had a term for it — slavery."

About 32,000 Texans are put on felony probation each year, but bill sponsor Al Granoff, D-Dallas, said probation is not a severe enough penalty in many cases.

"Probation, for many people, is a joke," Granoff said. "When you commit a felony there should be some form of punishment involved; checking in once a month (with a probation officer) is not enough."

Under current law, judges can order probationers to do community service work. But Granoff's bill would require judges to sentence felony probationers to minimum of 40 hours of work over the course of probation and a maximum of 1,000 hours.

A probationer could not be forced to do more than eight hours work per week.

Senate committee reviews billings

AUSTIN (AP) — A senator whose bill would prohibit local measured telephone service says any Southwestern Bell talk about making the service voluntary only disguises the company's true goal of making it mandatory.

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, read from a letter Monday that he said was written in 1979 from Z.E. Barnes, Southwestern Bell president, to William Ellinghaus, president of American Telephone & Telegraph.

"We believe that to attempt to convert the remaining 92 percent of business customers to non-optional measured service in a single pricing action will jeopardize the concept through potential legislative action to ban either the non-optional strategy or measured service in its entirety," the letter said.

The letter goes on to talk about an optional strategy "to condition the market" and says Southwestern Bell is looking "toward the eventual withdrawal of business flat rates."

One misdemeanor arrest clears year-old warrant

Police report they cleared a misdemeanor theft complaint and a 1-year-old criminal mischief incident with the arrest of a 20-year-old man at Western Texas College Monday evening.

A warrant for misdemeanor theft was issued Monday in response to a complaint filed by Rue Galyean of Abilene — the contractor for video cassette player and tape rentals at the Piggly Wiggly Supermarket.

When officers went to the WTC apartments to arrest the suspect — accused of keeping a rental tape player and several tapes past the required time—they also discovered a warrant for his arrest for misdemeanor criminal mischief.

That charge stemmed from a March 1984 incident at the college in which a Toyota pickup owned by dorm director David Harr was pushed into the golf course lake.

The suspect was taken to the Scurry County Jail then later released after posting bonds of $500 to each charge.

In other action Monday, city officers jailed seven suspects on a variety of misdemeanor charges.

Two suspects were arrested for public intoxication with one of them additionally charged with possession of marijuana in a quantity less than two ounces and possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia.

Two men, one age 32 and the other 28, were arrested for a variety of traffic offenses. One was jailed for driving with a suspended license and for three unpaid tickets in Lubbock County.

His companion — riding in the car when they were stopped around 5:20 p.m. — was charged with seperate counts of allowing a suspended driver to drive and allowing a uninsured driver to drive. He was also found to have warrants against him for three unpaid traffic tickets in San Angelo.

A 40-year-old Snyder man was charged with driving while intoxicated, resisting arrest and driving with no insurance after he fled the scene of a domestic disturbance at an East Snyder residence shortly before 11 p.m.

Two other men were arrested on single misdemeanor counts Monday — one for soliciting without a permit and one for disorderly conduct.

Minor injuries follow wreck

A driver sustained minor injuries but declined medical treatment following a two-vehicle traffic accident in Snyder Monday.

Reported injured in the 8:06 p.m. collision at the intersection of Ave. E and the East Highway was Irma Jenene Smith of 903 24th St.

She was driving a 1985 Buick which was involved in a collision with a 1971 Chrysler driven by Andres Perez of 1909 Coleman Ave.

participate in extracurricular activities for the following six-week period, a time frame which now also measures the end of school.

The choir is the main junior high group now affected since they are the largest one with UIL-related competition still scheduled. Their competiton was in Abilene Tuesday.

Approximately 42 band students are also affected, but the district competition for band was completed April 1.

The only athletic event still scheduled for junior high-age youngsters is tennis.

Those failing by grade divisions includes 125 seventh graders and 103 eighth graders.

On a percentage basis, this equals 44 percent of the seventh grade and 39 percent of those attending eighth grade.

The grades for Snyder High School students were expected to be back from SHS's computer service by Tuesday. At that time, the list of high school students ineligible for the remainder of school will be released.

O'Neill: Soviets accept no blame for soldier's death

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. says Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev insists that the Soviets bear no blame for the killing of U.S. Army Maj. Arthur Nicholson because, Gorbachev contends, he was "at the wrong place."

But the Massachusetts Democrat told an airport news conference late Monday upon his return from a visit to the Soviet Union that Gorbachev acknowledged the slaying was "regrettable."

O'Neill said the subject of the Soviet shooting of Nicholson last month in East Germany came up during a four-hour session last week between Gorbachev and four visiting U.S. congressmen.

He cited it as an example of Gorbachev's toughness, which he said was mixed with "a sense of charm."

Gorbachev was "articulate, energetic and tough," O'Neill told a news conference at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

O'Neill and House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., said they hoped to meet with President Reagan later this week to brief him on their week-long visit. They also said the full 14-member bipartisan delegation which made the trip would be submitting a report.

On the Soviet slaying of Nicholson, O'Neill said: "We have very firm views. They have very firm views — diametrically opposite. My feeling is there's been a cover-up" on the part of the Soviet Union.

"Gorbachev was very distinct in accusing our man of being at the wrong place — and taking no blame whatsover, although saying it was regrettable," O'Neill said.

Nicholson, a specialist in Soviet intelligence, was shot by a Soviet sentry on March 24 while taking photographs of a Soviet facility in East Germany.

The State Department confirmed Monday that Gen. Glenn Otis, commander of U.S. forces in West Germany, and the Soviet commander in East Germany met last Friday to discuss the killing and ways to prevent similar incidents in the future.

The United States maintains Nicholson was engaged in no wrongdoing at the time he was shot, while the Soviets have insisted that the officer had entered a restricted area.

Michel, who also attended the meeting with the new Soviet chief, told the airport news conference: "The point was made that we cannot ignore Afghanistan, the shooting down of Korean Air Lines 007 or the shooting of Maj. Nicholson. These are very serious items on our agenda and we wanted the Soviets to know that."

White House opponents open Nicaraguan campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and foes of his $14 million request for aid to the Nicaraguan rebels are intensifying their war of words designed to pull a relatively small number of undecided senators and House members to their respective sides.

Reagan charged Monday that "a vote against this proposal is literally a vote against peace" while opponents argued that congressional approval of the $14 million would lead to wider war in Central America.

"There is an analogy with the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution," said Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., referring to legislation that opened the way for direct U.S. military involvement in Vietnam in the 1960s.

"It would be only the first step," said Kostmayer, who opposes more aid to the rebels. "The Contras will need additional aid."

temperature readings, Callahan said.

These are located south and southeast of the plant as is the rain gauge which records precipitation.

The NWS also supplies the water treatment plant with a special monitoring kit which allows the daily readings to be relayed to Lubbock via the telephone system.

Callahan describes the device — called a Telxon — as "looking like a Texas Instruments calculator.

"We dial a pre-determined number and as soon as we get a tone we push a button and transmit the data to Lubbock," he explained.

The daily readings are also recorded on cards supplied by the NWS in Lubbock and which are mailed to them every week, Callahan said.

In addition, they also keep a log at the plant of all daily readings.

The monitor kit operates on battery power and the battery — also supplied by the NWS — is replaced every year.

Charlton Heston names three he'd perform with

LONDON (AP) — Charlton Heston says he'd love to work with producer David Lean, actor Robert DeNiro and actress Meryl Streep.

Heston, 60, who won an Oscar for "Ben Hur," also said he hopes to do one more "Macbeth" and another "Antony and Cleopatra" — but won't talk about his next film project.

"As for my best film, I haven't made it yet — but I'm not through," he told several hundred movie buffs at a National Film Theater lecture audience Sunday.

Heston is now in his London stage debut as Captain Queeg in "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," which he also directs.

Walking helps in weight loss

DEAR DR. LAMB — I jog on a jogging ramp. I started at 100 steps a day, increased this by 20 steps a day and am now at 320. Is this all right, or would you suggest a different exercise or a slower increase?

I am 63, 5 feet 3 and weigh 180. I'm not very consistent about cutting calories, but I half-try. I don't usually jog on Sunday or when I am exceptionally tired.

DEAR READER — That sounds fine, but I would caution you that you don't need to jog fast on your device. Check your heart rate and keep it below 120, although it does not have to be that high. Try to develop endurance without getting exhausted. To lose body fat, it is better to jog 1,000 steps slowly than 500 fast.

You should also develop a walking program. You might find this less boring, and if you can do this with a friend, it will help to reinforce your exercise habit.

If you really want to eliminate excess fat, you must become consistent about your diet. One must do a lot of exercise to cancel out a small increase in food intake. At the start of an exercise program, this is particularly important, since one is not in shape to exercise as vigorously as is required to eliminate a large number of calories. For example, one must walk four miles to use an extra 250 calories.

I am sending you The Health Letter 15-12, Exercise Wise, which has some useful tips. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newpaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor says that I have Parkinson's disease. What causes it? Can any medication help? He said it was incurable, but how can I live with it, and can it be slowed?

DEAR READER — Parkinson's disease is incurable, but it can be, and is, treated. This treatment helps to control the symptoms for long periods of time. In addition, I do not believe that it will remain incurable. As the understanding of brain chemistry progresses and ways of correcting brain chemistry are devised, Parkinson's disease may one day be controlled indefinitely. The recent technique of infusing chemicals directly into the brain, as well as other developments, may change things.

The disease is caused by degeneration of the vital areas of the brain that produce a chemical called dopamine. There are probably many reasons for this degeneration. L-dopa is often prescribed because it can get through the circulation into the brain, where it is used to produce dopamine.

In the early stages of the disease, the symptoms may be very mild and hardly noticed. As time progresses, the muscles become stiffer. The face may become expressionless and the hands may develop the tremor that characterizes the disease.

Talk to your doctor further. Often, in the early mild stages, only mild medications are used, and the stronger medicines are saved for later use. However, a lot can be done to help you when and if you need it.

Senate tentatively oks primary bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has tentatively approved a presidential primary bill described by one Democrat as a threat to conservative Democrats but by others as a measure that could attract voters.

The Senate's six Republicans opposed the proposal in a series of votes Monday, and Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, protested it with a six-hour filibuster.

The measure, tentatively approved on voice vote, would allow Texans to vote in a "Super Tuesday" presidential primary in March 1988. A final vote is needed to send the bill to the House.

Sen. Chet Edwards' bill would set up a presidential primary for Democrats and Republicans on the second Tuesday of March in presidential election years.

The May primary date for state and local candidates would remain the same, but a person voting in the presidential primary would have to vote in the same party's primary in May.

For years, Texas Republicans have been holding presidential primaries at the same time they vote in the May primary. Texas Democrats in the past have chosen their delegates for national conventions, where the presidential nominee is selected, through a complex caucus system.

Under Edwards' bill, at least 75 percent of the delegates, excluding elected and party officials, would be named according to the popular vote in the presidential primary. Party conventions would chose the remaining 25 percent.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, objected that conservatives might vote for Vice President George Bush in March 1988, "and not vote for you and me in May."

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite, responded that more conservative Democrats might stick with the Democratic presidential primary in an effort to prevent a liberal candidate from being nominated.

Edwards said, "It concerns me that people of Iowa, Kansas — very tiny states — along with northeastern states continue to dominate presidential politics.

"Texas is the third most populous state in this country, it is a major industrial and agricultural and technological state and as such it has every right — Republican and Democrat alike — has the right to have our voice heard significantly in the process of selecting the most important political position in this country."

"We have a very clear choice today," he said. "We can make Texas a major player in presidential politcs by going to an early presidential primary or we can continue to develop late in the process and stay in the minor leagues."

Leedom described the March date as a "phony issue, because New Hampshire and Iowa would still be ahead of us."

Sen. Don Henderson, R-Houston, said Texas would be a "pivotal state no matter when we held the election." An advantage of a later primary, he said, is that "once they (candidates) get to Texas, the serious folks are running, and we can choose from the serious folks."

Republicans objected to the estimated $10 million cost for the primary, and Edwards responded that amount represented "one-ten thousandth of the state budget but would give us an opportunity to cast a vote and a vote that will count in the single most important election in the nation."

An amendment to allow cross-over voting in March and May failed 20-9, and an amendment to authorize cross-over filing was rejected 17-10.

"The argument that you have to be first to get attention is not valid," Leedom said. "You have to be right, you have to be strong."

Sisters: Lucas wasn't in Utah

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas was in Maryland at the time he supposedly raped and murdered a Brigham Young University coed and killed another woman nearly seven years ago, sisters of the professed serial killer say.

However, Provo police say Lucas, who once confessed to killing more than 600 people, continues to be their prime suspect because he knows details that only the killer could have known about the crimes.

Authorities said Lucas has confessed to the June 29, 1978, rape and strangulation of BYU coed Marla Rae Scharp and the murder of an unidentified woman whose decomposed body was found in 1979 beside Interstate 15 near Cove Fort in Millard County.

Lucas now says he killed only three people in his life and earlier claims that he killed hundreds were contrived "to show law enforcement doesn't do its job," the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday in a copyright story.

He also told the newspaper he keeps confessing to murders because authorities told him once he stops talking he will go to death row to await execution.

Lucas' two sisters, Almeda Kiser and Opal Jennings, said Monday their brother was staying with them in June and July of 1978 and never left the state.

They said Provo police never contacted them about the Utah murders, but police said Monday they plan to reopen the Scharp case and talk with the women.

Times Herald reporter Hugh Aynesworth reported Lucas apparently lied about many of the homicides, and Lucas said in many cases police have fed him information to clear unsolved murders.

Aynesworth — who spent hundreds of hours investigating the murders — said the one-eyed drifter has perpetrated a "hoax of incredible proportions" on law enforcement.

Police are using Lucas as their scapegoat and have gone to the extent of clearing murders based on his word alone, Ayneswoth said.

"We were dubious about the whole thing to start with," said Provo Police Chief Swen Nielson. However, he said, after officers questioned the 43-year-old Lucas, they concluded he "had to be involved, given the amount of details he knew."

Nielson said Lucas was not coached by authorities before confessing to the Utah killings and he was given no information beforehand that would have enabled him to tell a more convincing story.

"My people were very careful not to do that," Nielson said.

Detective Sgt. Robert Dekker, who interviewed Lucas in his Texas jail cell, said Lucas recalled clothing the unidentified woman was wearing. Although Lucas missed one detail, he did remember the type of shoes she was wearing and the position in which the body was found, Dekker said.

Town stunned after shooting in Anson leaves three dead

ANSON, Texas (AP) — Abel Flores Sr. had finished talking over his daughter's marital problems with a priest only an hour before he and his daughter were gunned down at a row of small storage buildings, the priest says.

"He said, 'We've got trouble,' " Father Frank Nelan said Monday. "I said, 'What are we going to do about it?' "

Authorities say Flores' son-in-law, Roy Herrera, had already decided.

Herrera, 21, went to the building near St. Michael's Catholic Church about 3:30 p.m., shot Flores in the head with a .38-caliber pistol, then shot his wife Sonia, 19, from whom he was separated Saturday, authorities say.

He then turned the gun on himself, sheriff's department officials told the Abilene Reporter-News.

Herrera and his wife died at the scene, and Flores was pronounced dead on arrival at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene, about 20 miles from this West Texas city of 2,700.

Anson High School, where the couple had attended school, was as quiet as the empty St. Michael's Church Monday.

"The whole school is stunned," said Donella Spurgin, who taught English to Sonia during her sophomore and junior years.

Sheriff's Deputy Eric Coleman said the Herreras had spoken to Nelan about their problems and that they were storing some of their belongings at Anson Mini Storage.

Herrera and his wife agreed to meet at the storage unit, where he was going to give her some of their belongings, Coleman said.

Bandidos trial to begin today in Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Four people arrested in a nationwide crackdown on alleged drug trafficking by the Bandidos motorcycle gang are scheduled to go on trial today.

The defendants, James Lyndon Cheatham, 31; Steven Robert "Boo Boo" Barbour, 39; Patrick "Rawhide" Ledoux, 44; and Karen Brown, 31, are charged with conspiracy and possession of methamphetamine and cocaine with intent to distribute.

A nine-man, three-woman jury was seated Monday afternoon and was told by U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr. that testimony is expected to last three to four days.

If convicted, the four face up to 15 years in prison and a $125,000 fine on each charge.

The three male defendants, who had shaggy hair when they were arrested in February, arrived in court Monday with close-cropped hair and coats and ties.

Barbour and Ledoux, both ex-convicts, also face weapons charges. Barbour is charged with having a Walther .380-caliber pistol, while Ledoux is charged with having a Ruger .22-caliber rifle.
