PAMPA — The Pampa City Commission will meet in regular session Tuesday at 6 p.m. in commission chambers after a work session at 4 p.m. Items on the action agenda include consideration of the following: lease of Bourland/Leverich building, a bid on property, authorizing issuing certificates of obligation and joining a coalition of cities to support the 4A and 4B sales tax. In the work session, discussion will be held on possible purchases for long-term financing and the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

AMARILLO — Marian Stroup of Pampa has been named chairman of the 1997 Golden Nails Awards Committee.

Sponsored by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Arts Committee, the Golden Nails Awards will be presented April 12 in the Amarillo Civic Center in conjunction with an Amarillo Symphony concert. The Golden Nail Awards honors arts supporters whose financial, in-kind and volunteer contributions make a significant impact on the fine arts in Amarillo and the Texas Panhandle.

LEFORS — The Lefors City Council will meet in regular session today at 8 p.m. in the civic center.

Items on the agenda include discussion of a Panhandle Regional Planning Commission grant, trash service proposals and the possible reimbursement of Mayor Bob Jones for purchasing a dump truck.

PAMPA — Local Lions Club members are selling poinsettias now through Nov. 21, according to member Rusty Tapp.

The flower sale is one of the club's annual fundraisers.

A $12 donation will buy a plant, with the money benefiting Lions Club activities, Tapp said. Poinsettias will be delivered in the first week of December.

To purchase a poinsettia, call Tapp at 665-2323 or contact any other Lions Club member.

PAMPA — The Southside Senior Citizens Center will be having its annual banquet at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15, at the center.

Tickets are $5 a person and may be purchased at the center.

By The Associated Press

No ticket correctly matched all six numbers drawn for Saturday night's $10 million Lotto Texas jackpot.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 8, 12, 21, 25, 34 and 39.

Wednesday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $15 million.

Ickes leaving White House as Clinton turns to center

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that he has tapped a new chief of staff to help steer his second administration toward "the vital center," President Clinton is losing a top aide who had wanted the job.

Deputy chief of staff Harold Ickes has decided to quit following the announcement Friday that North Carolina businessman Erskine Bowles would replace chief of staff Leon Panetta, who is returning to California.

Before accepting the top staff post, Bowles secured wide latitude in shaping the senior staff — a signal that Ickes was on his way out because their management styles clashed, White House officials said Sunday. The two had worked together under Panetta until Bowles went back to his investment banking firm.

Although Ickes is leaving the White House, it is possible he would remain with the administration as replacement for departing Labor Secretary Robert Reich, said the officials, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Meanwhile Sunday, the newly re-elected president continued planning his revamped Cabinet in informal discussions with Panetta and Bowles. A similar session also involved Clinton confidant Vernon Jordan.

In restructuring his Cabinet, the president has suggested he is looking for people who can set his second administration squarely in "the vital center," a phrase coined by historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. in the 1940s to describe the place in a democracy between the polar ideologies of the far right and far left.

The first step to the vital center, Clinton said in an interview on ABC's This Week With David Brinkley, is to draw Republicans into his sphere of aides and advisers.

"I would very much like to have a bipartisan Cabinet," he said. "When I was trying to put my other Cabinet together, I invited a very prominent Republican to join it, and for personal reasons he could not. I was disappointed."

While making overtures to non-Democrats, the president also is losing aides who have kept him on track with liberal Democrats. Among them are Ickes, senior adviser George Stephanopoulos and Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros, who is being prodded to go but has not publicly stated his intentions. Stephanopoulos, by all accounts, is leaving on his own accord.

In any event, the White House doesn't worry about depleting its liberal wing. "No matter who leaves, there's a deep bench," an administration official said.

On Clinton's short list of Republicans to recruit is retired Gen. Colin Powell, a moderate and possible presidential hopeful in 2000 who has said he would consider an offer to join the Clinton team should one come.

Police investigate criminal mischief cases

Pampa police today are investigating 15 episodes of criminal mischief totaling more than $5,000 damage which were reported over the weekend.

At least one rash of reports came in Sunday night when callers to Pampa Communications said their car windows were being shot out by BB or pellet guns around the intersection of Browning and Ballard.

Vehicles and store front windows were primary victims of the vandalism and the destruction was concentrated on North Banks and East Browning, police reports show.

Saturday reports include:

- Passenger window on a 1988 Pontiac in the 1700 block of West Buckler; $670 damage.
- Broken windows at Charlie's Carpets, 1304 N.

Banks; $300 damage.

- Granny Had One, 1337 N. Banks, plate glass window; $400 damage.
- Back glass broken out of a 1984 Ford pickup in the 600 block of Lefors; $250 damage.

Sunday reports include:

- Broken back window in a 1988 Plymouth in the 3000 block of Rosewood; $250 damage.
- Rear window broken out of a 1995 Pontiac van in the 2100 block of North Sumner; $500 damage.
- Driver's side glass broken in a 1983 Cadillac in the Albertson's parking lot, 1233 N. Hobart; $150 damage.

- Back passenger window broken in a 1982 Lincoln in the 300 block of East Browning.
- Back left passenger window was broken in a 1982 Ford LTD in the 300 block of east

Browning. Damage is $300.

- Rear window broken in a 1990 Cutlass in the 400 block of East Browning; $450 damage.
- Back left passenger window broken in a 1978 Ford at Hill and Browning; $300 damage.
- Store front glass at 1304 North Banks; $500 damage.

Monday reports include:

- Nine foot by five foot window at Daylight Donuts, 1404 N. Banks; $750 damage.
- Early morning reports in the 1100 block of Williston and 1400 block of North Banks, according to Sgt. Terry Young.

Young said how the vandalism was accomplished continues to be investigated but the episodes were possibly caused by the same person or group of people.

No injuries were reported caused by the incidents, he said.

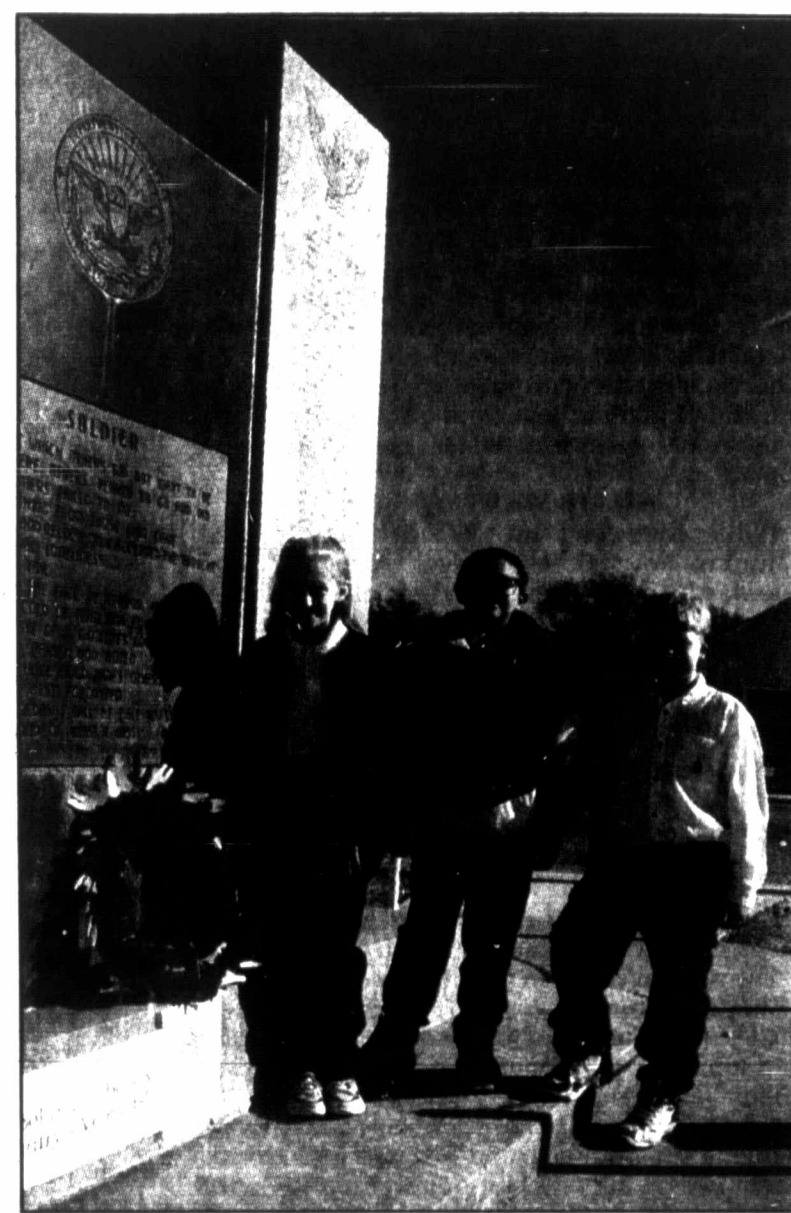

Veterans Day flags

Sean O'Neal, a Pampa High School 4-H member, sets a flag early this morning at Memory Gardens Cemetery in recognition of Veterans Day. The flags, which were draped across the late veterans' caskets, are donated to the Veterans of Foreign Wars by family members and are flown every Veterans Day and Memorial Day. The practice, said Veterans Service Officer John Triplehorn, would have died out if 4-H members had not volunteered to assist.

Memorial wreath

St. Vincent School students Natalie McVay, fifth grade, and Ben Ponce and Kevin Brown, both fourth-graders, lay a wreath at the Veterans Memorial in Memorial Park during a ceremony this morning. St. Vincent students and members of the Pampa Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #1657 held the ceremony in honor of Veterans Day today. Students made the memorial wreath for the occasion.

Cadets indicted for murder

FORT WORTH (AP) — Former military cadets David Graham and Diane Zamora were indicted today on capital murder charges, accused of killing a girl as vengeance for having a one-time fling with Graham.

Prosecutors said they will not seek the death penalty against Graham, 19, and his fiancee, Zamora, 18, at the request of the family of the victim, 16-year-old Adrienne Jones of Mansfield.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Parrish said Jones' family preferred the perpetrators spend a long prison sentence considering their crime. A life sentence would be an alternative to execution.

Parrish has said prosecutors filed capital murder charges because they believe Jones was kidnapped before she was killed.

Jones' body was found Dec. 4 in a field in Grand Prairie.

"I think the trial evidence will show that this was not a spur-of-the-moment situation. They talked it over with each other, they planned it out, they discussed how to do it and they put a well-executed plan into motion and carried it out," Parrish said. "They are bright — very bright. They know how to plan, think and kill."

Parrish said state District Judge Joe Drago has indicated the trial will be next summer. He also said he would prefer trying Ms. Zamora first, although he would not discuss his reasons.

Commissioners canvass votes in Nov. 5 election

Gray County commissioners today canvassed votes from the Nov. 5 general election and pronounced their goal.

County Clerk Wanda Carter presented vote totals and told the court two changes had been made from preliminary figures, though neither affected the outcome of any office election.

The correct figure for Republican Party straight ticket votes is 2209, she said, and Paul Sublett, write-in candidate for constable Precinct 1 and 3, garnered 579 votes instead of 505.

Clerk's office employees are now conducting a hand count of three precincts to verify the accuracy of the vote-counting machine, Carter said.

Manually counted precinct votes are required by the Texas Election Code in counties which use electronic vote tabulating equipment, she explained.

Two precincts have been completed.

One precinct came out "right on the button," she said.

The second precinct was off by three votes, Carter said.

"It was simply in reading the ballots," she said.

The Texas Ranger investigation into an alleged voter irregularity in Precinct 12 continues, Carter told the court.

Evidence was sent to the FBI lab in Austin by Texas Ranger Gary Henderson, who is investigating the incident which occurred about 3 or 3:30 p.m. Nov. 5, she said.

Carter said at the time the problem was caused by a voter and observed by election judges at the polling place which is located in Lamar School gym.

Artists reception

Betty Hallerberg, left, visits with local sculptor Gerald Sanders and his daughter, Starla Tracey, at a reception and gallery show Sunday afternoon honoring Pampa Fine Arts Association's past Artists of the Year. The reception was held at the White Deer Land Museum, which will have an Artist of the Year show through Nov. 17. Museum hours are 1-4 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday, with the public invited to drop by and view the local artists' work on display.

Pampa firefighters attempt to extricate Jeremy Hill from his 1989 Dodge after it collided with a 1995 Chevrolet pickup just inside the city limits of Pampa on US 60 about 7:50 p.m. Sunday. Hill is in the intensive care unit of Columbia Medical Center.

Teen, Canadian woman injured in accident

A Pampa teen is in critical condition today in the intensive care unit of Columbia Medical Center following a Sunday evening accident. A Canadian woman is in serious condition today in Northwest Texas Hospital ICU after the same accident.
 Jeremy C. Hill, 16, was taken to CMC by Rural/Metro ambulance after the accident, which occurred near the eastern edge of Pampa in the 2400 block of East Frederic.
 Heather Dawn Etheridge, 20, was taken to NWTX by Medivac helicopter Sunday after she was ejected from a 1995 Chevrolet pickup driven by Kyle Lynn Derrick, 19, also of Canadian. Hill was listed in serious condition today at the hospital.
 Derrick, who was also ejected, was taken to Columbia Medical Center of Pampa, where he was treated and released.
 Derrick was west bound on Frederic when he was in collision with an eastbound 1989 Dodge pickup driven by Hill, according to the police accident report.
 The overturned Chevrolet pickup had to be lifted off Etheridge, according to Pampa Fire Department Battalion Chief Paul Jenkins, and the "jaws of life" were required to extricate Hill from the Dodge pickup.
 Neither Derrick or Etheridge were wearing seat belts, according to the report. However, an airbag is listed for the driver's side of the pickup.
 Hill is listed on the report as wearing a seatbelt and shoulder strap.
 The accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m. Sunday just inside city limits.
 The report lists no citations issued in the accident.

Young girl assaulted at church-sponsored concert

DALLAS (AP) — An 8-year-old girl was sexually assaulted while attending a church-sponsored concert at a junior high school Saturday in south Arlington, police said.
 Several hundred people were at the concert at Workman Junior High School about 7 p.m. when the girl was lured away by a man in his late 20s or early 30s, witnesses told police.
 The sexual assault occurred on a balcony, witnesses said. The concert stopped when performers saw the girl screaming for help, according to witnesses.
 "This is our Sabbath day, and for someone to come in and violate our worship and one of our children is a terrible thing," said one witness, who did not want her name used. "We pray for him that he will give his life to God."
 "We were very angry, and it is very hard to forgive him."
 The girl was taken to a local hospital, Arlington Police Department spokesman Dee Anderson said. The suspect ran from the scene and was not caught, Anderson said.
 Witnesses said he was not believed to have been attending the event.
 "I was shocked," said junior high assistant principal Andy Chambers. "We never have had this happen."
 The annual event is sponsored by a group of area Seventh-day Adventist churches. It is part of the North Central Texas Youth Federation, which has annual events to bring youth and their families together for an evening of worship.

Accidents

Pampa Police Department reported the following accidents in the 72-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.
FRIDAY, Nov. 8
 11:45 a.m. - A 1987 Mercury Cougar driven by Richard James Ivey, 15, 1022 Duncan, was in collision with a wooden fence owned by Willie Mae McLeroy, 1117 N. Russell, in the 1100 block of Russell. Ivey was cited for failure to stop and leave information at the scene of the accident and for having no licensed driver over 18 in the front seat.
SATURDAY, Nov. 9
 7:30 p.m. - A 1985 Dodge pickup with an unknown driver and owned by Leslie Matlock, 408 N. Sumner, was in collision with a parked 1989 Ford Crown Victoria owned by Petra Martinez, 412 N. Cuyler, in the 200 block of South Magnolia.
SUNDAY, Nov. 10
 7:49 p.m. - A 1995 Chevrolet pickup driven by Kyle Lynn Derrick, 19, Canadian, was in collision with a 1989 Dodge pickup driven by Jeremy Hill, 16, 2722 Cherokee, Pampa, in the 2400 block of East Frederic. Derrick and Hill were both taken to Columbia Medical Center. Derrick was treated and released; Hill remains in critical condition. Derrick's passenger, Heather Dawn Etheridge, was taken by Medivac helicopter to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where she remains in serious condition.

Windbreaks serve as silent partners to protect land investments

A tree standing alone adds a certain aesthetic quality to rural living. But the systematic planting of trees and shrubs in a windbreak becomes a management tool that affects every aspect of the farm or ranch.

Whether around a homestead, near cattle or bordering cropland, multiple row windbreaks act as a silent partner to Gray County landowners, naturally protecting their investments.

Shelley Abendschan, of the Texas Forest Service, says utilizing windbreaks as a conservation tool is not a new concept, since millions of shelterbelts were planted across the rural Great Plains in the 1930s and 1940s. The purpose then, and now, is to reduce the winds and hold down the soil. Sixty years later many are still reducing erosion.

Windbreaks, in addition to reducing soil erosion, increase land value, crop yields and helps reduce livestock weight loss and mortality. However, producing a high performance windbreak requires more than just planting a line of trees, according to Abendschan.

She advises listing target needs for specific areas. Prior to planting a greenbelt, it is essential to establish the protection need; the specie adaptability to the planting region; and the dimensions of the break, be it of a homestead, livestock, field or wildlife windbreak, or a living snow fence.

It is a general rule that each tree row is planted 20 feet apart, with 10 to 20 foot spacings between each tree within a row, according to the Texas Forest Service spokesman in Lubbock. Proper spacing prevents crowding, which reduces stress and therefore decreases insect and disease susceptibility while extending the life of the windbreak.

The TFS also recommends multiple rows in windbreak design. The purpose of the windbreak will dictate the number of rows required.

Multiple-row windbreaks have distinct advantages over a single line of trees. First specie composition can be diversified to ensure that the integrity of the planting is not diminished if one row of trees becomes infested with an insect or disease. Generally, insects and diseases are confined to a species.

For example, if a pine row became infested with pine tip moth, junipers and deciduous trees and shrubs would not be affected and protection would continue. Also, should a pine die from the infestation, a gap would not remain because of the backup provided by the additional row.

The second advantage is the early protection faster growing species provide. Deciduous trees are faster growing than evergreens. A row of green ash will provide initial protection while the slower growing pines or junipers, the backbone of windbreaks, become established.

Multiple-row windbreaks also exhibit a diversity in tree species and the unique, aesthetic characteristics of their flowers, leaves, fruit and color.

The height and density of the species included in a windbreak is an important consideration as well, according to information from TFS. The protected distance beyond the windbreak is directly proportional to the height of the tallest trees and barrier density.

A single row of trees may suffice for a period, but a multiple-row windbreak established with the recommended dimensions can serve a lifetime.

Seedlings to produce such a conservation tree planting are produced by the TFS West Texas Nursery and available for ordering this fall through the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District. To place an order, call (806) 665-1751. For additional information, call the TFS office in Lubbock at (806) 746-5801.

Oklahoma City bombing case bristling with sealed, partially sealed documents

DENVER (AP) — If the case against Oklahoma City bombing suspects Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols were a book, three-fourths of the pages would be blacked out.

An Associated Press review of 1,000 documents filed in the case between Feb. 20 and Sept. 5 found that 75 percent of the records have been at least partially sealed.

Consider this excerpt from a prosecution brief: "Evidence relating to _____ is typical of the government's proof; it implicates both defendants and will be offered against both either jointly or separately."

The sealed records have rekindled a debate over the public's right to know versus a defendant's right to a fair trial. The news media recently lost a court bid to open some documents to the public, and many of the sealed documents will be discussed during an evidentiary hearing beginning Wednesday.

A civil liberties expert says trial judges like U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch must struggle to balance public interest and defendants' rights.

"There is a sensitivity in general that is going to sway Judge Matsch to do everything he can to ensure a fair trial right," said Allen Chen, a University of Denver law professor and former American Civil Liberties Union attorney.

Matsch has kept from the public most of the material he relied upon to suppress evidence in the case and order separate trials for McVeigh and Nichols.

The two men face murder, conspiracy and weapons charges in the April 19, 1995, bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, the worst act of terrorism on U.S. soil. The explosion killed 168 people and injured more than 500 others.

Trial dates have not been set, but McVeigh's trial is scheduled first, and should begin early next year.

Throughout the pretrial proceedings, Matsch has given considerable weight to the defendants' concerns about receiving a fair trial.

He moved the trial to Denver after ruling an impartial jury could not be seated in Oklahoma. He later ordered separate trials to protect the defendants' constitutional rights.

For similar reasons, Matsch sealed defense-related expenses, saying it would give prosecutors an unfair advantage if they knew where defense attorneys traveled or which experts were hired.

Matsch also upheld an Aug. 23, 1995, order by U.S. District Judge Wayne Alley to seal evidentiary documents, called discovery, to curb pretrial publicity. Alley was removed from the case last year after concerns that bomb damage to his courtroom could raise doubts about his impartiality.

The media continue court challenges to the sealed records. In September, The Dallas Morning News asked the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to order Matsch to release statements Nichols made to the FBI during a nine-hour interview in Herington, Kan., two days after the bombing.

Some attorneys, including McVeigh attorney Stephen Jones, believe Matsch has sealed an unusually large number of documents. Jones said about 70 percent of the documents, if opened, would give the government "a blueprint of our defense activities" and should remain sealed.

Fight brews over Baptist presidency

FORT WORTH (AP) — Conservative and moderate Southern Baptists are scheduled to renew what has become an annual autumn battle for the presidency of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

The vote on the presidency will come today at the Fort Worth-Tarrant County Convention Center. Also to be voted on today is a $43.5 million budget.

The Rev. Charles Wade, the incumbent and a leader of convention moderates, has drawn a challenge from a conservative Houston-area minister, the Rev. Rick Scarborough.

Scarborough, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pearland, is backed by the conservative Southern Baptists of Texas and a direct-mail campaign to the convention's representatives, more than 5,000 in number.

Wade, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Arlington, will be seeking his second one-year term as president of the 2.5 million-member state convention.

Only two presidents have not served a second term, and in both cases poor health was cited as the reason. Wade has the support of Texas Baptists Committed, a group of convention moderates.

"If I'm defeated in Fort Worth, I can tell you I'm going to be more than disappointed," Wade told a recent meeting at a Dallas church. "It'll be a disappointment for me; it'll be a disaster for Texas."

Pampa United Way agency profile

This article is one in a series of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 1996 "Paint A Brighter Tomorrow" fund-raising campaign.

Qualified staff members, comprised of a variety of certified pastors, master counselors and therapists, offer comprehensive counsel on a one-on-one, couples or group basis, depending on specific needs. Assistance is also given in serious cases concerning issues of physical and sexual abuse. Special care is taken to provide a safe and caring environment for all cases, especially those involving children.

In addition to supplying direction and guidance, the counseling center focuses on helping individuals develop both a healthy emotional outlook on life and a heightened sense of individual wholeness and well-being. Knowing there is a place to go for help can be a strong assurance for people in crisis. Regardless of the extent of the difficulties, the Center offers help for anyone.

Last year, the Pastoral Counseling Center provided 388 hours of client services to more than 100 families.

Also, the Center was able to staff the Pampa office with a full-time director so that services could be offered on a full-time basis in Pampa and surrounding communities.

The agency improves the quality of life in Pampa by providing much needed counseling services to families who are struggling to meet life's challenges. A sliding scale fee makes these services available to those who previously may not have had access to affordable counseling services. The funding assistance provided by the Pampa United Way ensures that some families receive the needed help that otherwise they may not feel they can afford.

The Pastoral Counseling Center is one of 17 agencies supported by Pampa United Way.

Officer defends fatal shooting of mentally ill man

FORT WORTH (AP) — A white former police officer indicted on a murder charge in the killing of a black homeless man said he believes the shooting was justified and that his department has bowed to political pressure.

"In the beginning, everybody up to and including the chief was very supportive," said Blake Hubbard, who was fired last week from the Grand Prairie police force.

"I knew that I would be put on leave for a while, but I had been given some instructions by my supervisors that when I came back I would be assigned to criminal investigations to keep me off the street and out of media attention."

The shooting occurred on Oct. 7. Police received a report that Joe Lee Calloway Jr., 52, was walking down a street holding a knife and yelling at motorists.

Hubbard arrived on the scene and found fellow officer Barry Fletcher trying to talk Calloway into dropping the knife. When Calloway refused, Hubbard shot him.

Shortly after the shooting, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People protested the officer's actions, saying he used excessive force. Residents of the predominantly black neighborhood where the shooting occurred also held marches and protests.

Hubbard, 27, was fired Nov. 7 when an internal investigation found the shooting unjustifiable.

A day later, he became the first person in 23 years to face prosecution in Dallas County on charges of killing someone while on duty as a police officer.

"I'm pretty upset and scared, but I think I'll win," Hubbard said.

The former officer has said he fired to protect Officer Fletcher when Calloway raised the knife.

"I advised him to drop the knife, as did Officer Fletcher. But he never said anything. I could just hear him grunting," he said.

"He (Calloway) would put the knife down toward his side, and then when he got struck by Officer Fletcher, he turned his head toward the side toward Officer Fletcher."

Hubbard said that after firing the shots he was "initially shocked. I thought 'Oh, my God, I shot him.' Then a couple of officers put their arms around me. I had a hard time driving myself back to the station."

Ex-defense minister indicted on bribery charges

SEOUL South Korea (AP) — Former Defense Minister Lee Yang-ho was indicted today on charges of taking $182,000 in bribes from a defense contractor. Lee was dismissed as defense minister last month and arrested about a week later.

Prosecutors said Lee, a former air force general, was found to have received the bribe in 1995 from Daewoo Heavy Industries Co., which was seeking a combat helicopter project under study by the military.

The scandal embarrassed the government of President Kim Young-sam, which has been fighting corruption alleged to be widespread in the military, business and government.

Also indicted today were two Daewoo executives and two officials of an arms dealing company alleged to have served as a go-between for Daewoo and the former defense minister.

Union strike cancels flights; causes delays

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — A two-hour warning strike by Lufthansa employees at Frankfurt, Munich and Hamburg today forced 35 flights to be canceled and caused delays of up to 2 1/2 hours.

Flight and ground personnel belonging to the German Workers Federation went on strike from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. to demand a better wage offer and a longer contract in negotiations with the airline.

Lufthansa said it used additional flights and larger airplanes in an effort to keep travel delays to a minimum. About 9,500 passengers were affected by the walkouts, it said.

Negotiations between union officials and Lufthansa were scheduled to resume Nov. 19.

Investigators seek clues in mass killing, suspect mob

MOSCOW (AP) — With its lucrative fund-raising schemes, a foundation for Afghan war veterans had become so successful financially that it attracted the attention of Russia's mobsters.

Police appeared today to be turning their attention to possible gangland connections to Sunday's huge bomb blast that killed 13 people during a memorial service for the slain leader of the Afghan Veterans Foundation.

The bomb exploded as more than 100 people gathered at a cemetery to pay respects to Mikhail Likhodey, who was murdered Nov. 10, 1994. At the time, infighting in the organization was seen as a possible motive for the slaying.

But several officials said Sunday's blast appeared aimed at the entire leadership of the organization and may have been an attempt by mobsters to take control of the multimillion-dollar organization.

The Afghan Veterans Foundation was established in 1991 to provide medical and social services to the nearly 14,000 servicemen wounded during the Soviet Union's 1979-89 war in Afghanistan.

Medicare: The focus of half-truths, lies

Medicare has been the focus of deception in races for Congress and the presidency. Democrats, with the help of organized labor, twisted the truth. President Clinton would like voters to think the parties are miles apart on the issue.

That really isn't the case. Both the president and the Republican Congress could slow the growth in Medicare spending over the next five years. They could do so for good reason. The Medicare trust fund, which pays for inpatient hospital care for seniors, is slated to run out of money by 2001.

At first, Republicans proposed reductions in projected spending of $270 billion. They've since revised their plan and now call for slowing spending by $168 billion. The president? He would aim for $116 billion in savings. Neither would actually cut Medicare spending.

Notably, in 1993, Clinton, with his health-care reform plan in view, proposed that Medicare should "go up at two times the rate of inflation." That translates to roughly 6% a year, or exactly the rate Republicans put forward when they unveiled their original plan to slow Medicare spending.

Of course, you wouldn't know that listening to the overblown rhetoric of the president. He all but asserts that Republicans want to kill Medicare.

Nonsense. The truth is, the president and the Republican Congress have very similar approaches to slowing Medicare spending. Their options are limited.

They can increase payroll taxes to rescue the program, or they can reduce costs. Both have selected the latter.

Republicans would largely accomplish the job by expanding the managed-care options open to seniors. Just as many of us in the private sector choose among health maintenance organizations (HMOs), preferred provider organizations (PPOS) and other health plans, so would those eligible for Medicare. The Clinton administration would follow the same path.

The president likes to belt Republicans for proposing higher premiums for wealthier Medicare recipients. The premiums help to cover costs for physician services. The fact is: He offered a similar approach in his health-care reform plan - before he started to demagogue the Medicare issue.

Clinton has had fun twisting the comment of Speaker Newt Gingrich that Republicans supposedly want Medicare to "wither on the vine." What Gingrich said is the Medicare bureaucracy should fade away. Is that such a horrible suggestion?

Guess what? The president proposed as much in his health-care plan. Regrettably, all the deception has done little to educate Americans about the need for changes in the program. It has all but poisoned the possibility for responsible compromise. And for what? Partisan advantage in an election year. That truth should become all too obvious.

Berry's World

"I'VE GOT IT! Let's form a political party and go after some of that 'SOFT MONEY.'"

Dole's right about media bias

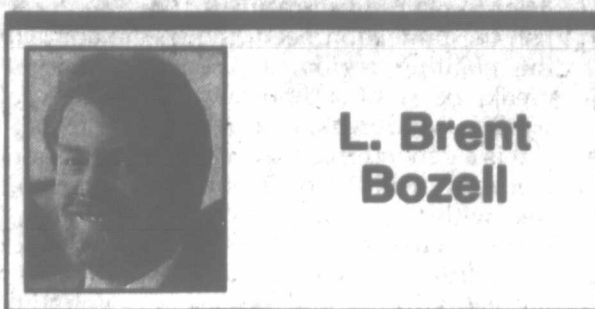

As the clock ran out on the 1996 campaign, Bob Dole reprised his summer attack on the news media's liberal bias. Why would Dole take on a topic so unlikely to close the gap with Bill Clinton, evoking images of a desperate George Bush in '92?

Maybe it's because he was dead right, and it simply needed to be said. As usual, it's the media responses that always amuse. With few exceptions - ABC's Sam Donaldson and Brit Hume, for example - the company response is once again, "Who? Us?"

NBC Washington Bureau Chief Tim Russert told The Washington Post: "I find it ironic that Dole is criticizing the media for not covering all the stories we broke. Whether it's the Indonesian gardener or the Buddhist monks, he should be crediting the Los Angeles Times, Washington Post, New York Times and Wall Street Journal. I think his anger is misplaced."

"We" broke? I find it ironic Russert never credits his own network. Then again ... he can't. While the newspapers have taken on these newest Clinton scandals, the networks once again ignored them, or, when forced to cover it, they try to paper over the Democrats' outrages with the "both sides do it" spin. Even when DNC fundraiser John Huang hid in the Washington, D.C., area to avoid federal marshals, the networks didn't find that worth covering for days at a time.

The laziest response to Dole's charges comes from hopelessly liberal New York Times columnist Frank Rich, who picked up a bat and took three weak swings at the idea that the media aren't the 89% pro-Clinton cheerleaders they most certainly are. Strike one: "At the same time the media fixated on Herby Branscum Jr. and Robert Hill, Little Rock bankers accused of making illegal contributions to Clinton's 1990 gubernatorial campaign, the networks all but ignored the record criminal fine being levied against Simon Fireman vice chairman of Mr. Dole's '96 finance committee."

Wrong. Fireman (not the "vice chairman," but one of a list of them), almost immediately pled guilty to charges in July, making a one-day story more possible. The Branscum-Hill trial ran from June 17 to Aug. 1 and followed a trial in which independent counsel Ken Starr won a big victory. Rich is correct to say the networks didn't cover the original Fireman story (although two of the networks grasped it in the wake of DNC troubles). But were the networks "fixated" on the Branscum-Hill trial? The networks aired only ten full stories on the trial. If an average of 2.5 news stories per network in six weeks is a "fixation," than Rich is consulting one bizarre dictionary.

Strike two: Rich pointed out the media ignored The New Yorker's investigation of Elizabeth Dole's blind trust and the allegation that Dole directed millions of tax dollars to a supportive Brooklyn rabbi's yeshiva. If this kind of story is important, isn't it far more controversial that the Clintons failed to create a blind trust for months after entering the White House? Meanwhile, their investments in a Value Partners account included health stocks at the same time they were pushing for socialized medicine. Rich conveniently overlooked that scandal, perhaps because a check on network coverage - zilch - would blow his argument to pieces.

As for the yeshiva, one could list hundreds of examples of Clinton pulling strings for political buddies that haven't been covered by the media. Example? Try that little thing called Whitewater, which Rich's newspaper broke in March 1992, and everyone (including The New York Times) completely ignored for the rest of the 1992 campaign. Next?

Strike three: Rich claimed the Center for Public Integrity (a liberal organization, naturally, undefined in his piece) "found many media takers" for its report that Clinton awarded fat cats with stays in the Lincoln Bedroom, while its scoop on a Dole real-estate tax shelter went ignored. Wrong again. The Los Angeles Times, The Washington Post and Time all published small Lincoln Bedroom stories buried within their pages. And what about the networks? Not a single one among those "many media takers."

If Rich thinks the Center's attacks on conservatives are uncovered, he ought to consider their February attack on Pat Buchanan supporter Larry Pratt's appearance at a forum shared by white supremacists - which led off all the network newscasts and made all the newspaper front pages.

Instead of a serious media response, we get nonsensical claptrap from the likes of Frank Rich, who knows next to nothing about the subject. The media love to rain down pious judgments on the candidates from their perch on Mount Olympus, but when their own performance is questioned, they sound like the very candidates they cover - "engaging in harsh personal attacks or changing the subject rather than discussing the issues."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Nov. 11, the 316th day of 1996. There are 50 days left in the year. This is Veterans Day in the United States, Remembrance Day in Canada.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 11, 1918, fighting in World War I came to an end with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany.

On this date:
In 1620, 41 Pilgrims aboard the Mayflower anchored off Massachusetts, signed a compact calling for a body politic.

In 1831, former slave Nat Turner, who had led a violent insurrection, was executed in Jerusalem, Va.

In 1889, Washington became the 42nd state.

In 1921, President Warren G. Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1939, Kate Smith first sang Irving Berlin's "God Bless America" on network radio.

In 1965, Rhodesia proclaimed its independence from Britain.

In 1966, Gemini 12 blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., with astronauts James A. Lovell and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin Jr.

In 1972, the Army turned over its base at Long Binh to the South Vietnamese army, symbolizing the end of direct U.S. military involvement in the Vietnam War.

In 1981, stuntman Dan Goodwin scaled the outside of the 100-story

John Hancock Center in Chicago in nearly six hours.

In 1983, President Ronald Reagan became the first U.S. chief executive to address the Diet, Japan's national legislature.

Ten years ago: France formally thanked Syria for its role in securing the release of hostages Marcel Coudari and Camille Sontag in Lebanon.

Five years ago: The United States stationed its first diplomat in Cambodia in 16 years to help the war-shocked nation arrange democratic elections.

One year ago: With a partial government shutdown looming, President Clinton and Republican congressional leaders clashed over Medicare and bickered over who to include in compromise budget talks.

Today's Birthdays: Former State Department official Alger Hiss is 92. Former Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., is 81. Author Kurt Vonnegut Jr. is 74. Comedian Jonathan Winters is 71. Singer LaVern Baker is 67. Actress Bibi Andersson is 61. Country singer Narvel Felts is 58. Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., is 56. Singer Jesse Colin Young is 52. Character doesn't seem to matter

This presidential campaign, polls and Nielsen ratings reveal, has set new records for dullness. Bob Dole has proved, to the chagrin of Republicans and conservatives, to be an excellent man but a very poor campaigner. Post-mortem analyses will no doubt include his feckless flitting from one issue to another - tax cuts one week, character the next, affirmative action the next. All were worthy matters that deserved better treatment.

Bill Clinton could have been the eponymous lead in the movie Say Anything because that is his unwritten, lifelong motto. Perhaps those who look back on the election of 1996 will note the ironic humor of Clinton promising to make the race one "about issues, not insults." Very high-minded and about as self-serving as a Clinton promise to avoid the subject of war records would be.

But because the campaign was dull does not mean it was insignificant. If enough freshman Republicans had been toppled along with Bob Dole, it would have set back the goal of entitlement reform, and perhaps even government reform, by many years.

For the past decade, pundits, scholars, editorial pages and other long beards have been clamoring for responsibility in Washington, D.C. The federal deficit had become a symbol of government untrustworthiness. The Republican Congress heeded the call. It began its tenure by passing a balanced budget constitutional amendment. The president leaned heavily on six Democratic senators to change their votes and defeat it. The Congress decided to pass a balanced budget anyway, making inescapable cuts in the growth of Medicare to achieve it.

Mona Charen

The president and the AFL-CIO then cynically demagogued the issue with a $35 million propaganda campaign against Republicans. (It wasn't answered because, despite their supposed ties to big business, Republicans simply didn't have that kind of cash on hand.) If the demagogues had succeeded, entitlements would have become, once again, the third rail of American politics. It cannot be said too often that the Republican Congress did what it did out of patriotism. Members of the Republican majority genuinely wanted to do what was best for the country, not for their own short term political interests. All the talk of tactics and strategy should not obscure that reality - especially in an era when the electorate supposes all politicians to be corrupt, cynical, self-interested clods.

This election may also be recalled as the one that signified America's resignation toward scandal, rank dishonesty and abuse of power. How else are we to interpret a ratification of this administration? Surely Bill Clinton's conduct in office should have, at the very least, brought down his approval ratings.

I may have thought Bob Dole a lackluster candidate, but when he asked, "Where's the outrage?" he was singing my song. It seems that every single month of the past four years has brought a new allegation of wrongdoing by this administration either before taking office or since. President and Mrs. Clinton stand accused of financial chicanery in the Whitewater matter. He is reported, by the Los Angeles Times and the American Spectator, to be a shameless womanizer who even used state employees to assist in his sexual escapades.

Once in the White House, the Clintons unethically interfered in ongoing investigations of the Whitewater matter; violated federal law concerning openness of government deliberations; withheld, lied about and then grudgingly turned over subpoenaed documents; used the FBI to hound and prosecute an innocent federal employee who was simply in their way; unconscionably troled through 900 private FBI files of Republicans; entertained drug dealers in the White House; dangled pardons before those who could implicate them in criminal wrongdoing; and perhaps sold influence to the highest bidder.

Bill Clinton will no doubt now conclude that the voters have ruled Whitewater and the other scandals to be insignificant. And because he is, as Ben Stein so brilliantly noted in The Wall Street Journal, utterly without shame, he will brazen it out. All of it. Even if Ken Starr indicts his wife. He will pardon her.

Will he be impeached? That remains to be seen. But either way, Clinton's victory will mean turmoil and ugliness to come. And a nation that has just ratified the notion that character doesn't matter will have no right to complain.

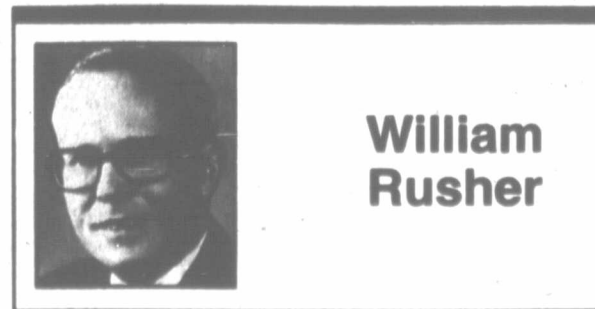

Bob Dole should have been president

There is the sense that during this past election conservatives, represented by the Republican Party, won in the area of issues hands down.

You don't hear a peep from the Democrats about how government ought to take over new segments of our national life to make them better. (On the contrary, "The era of Big Government is over.") Gone are the days when Democrats used "industrial policy" and similar euphemisms to mask proposals for small dollops of socialism. (Bill Clinton could paraphrase Richard Nixon: "We're all free-marketers now.") Democratic efforts to twist the national concern over family values into a case for federal handouts, on the theory that "We're all one big family," have been abandoned. (Bill Clinton signed the Republicans' welfare reform bill.) Seldom has one party so sedulously aped the other.

But the Democrats' wholesale adoption of Republican issues and policies had the side effect of making Bob Dole's job infinitely harder. Deprived of a serious difference between the parties over the issues, many voters decided to cast their votes for president on the general feel of the economy, or even on the basis of pure personality.

It's hard for Dole to make much headway on the economy when the general opinion is that it's in fairly good shape at the moment. Moreover, no major war looms on the horizon. And even Elizabeth Dole would surely admit in private that, for all his many strengths and merits, her husband was no match for Bill Clinton when it came to glibness and charm. Dole's built-in scowl and nasal Kansas monotone are deadly on television, whereas Clinton has the relaxed smile and genial demeanor of your local TV weather man. ("That was a lovely sunset today, wasn't it? It may rain a little tomorrow morning, but boy, the weekend's going to be just great!")

But I would like to offer one consideration that, I think, should have tipped the scales heavily in favor of Bob Dole.

Most thoughtful Americans are seriously concerned about the moral health of our society. We simply must find some way of instilling moral discipline - the concept of right and wrong - in our youngsters at an early age. Unfortunately government, which played such a large role in undermining the moral authority of the structures that used to transmit our culture (atheizing the schools and destroying the family - especially the black family), can do pitifully little to restore it.

But we can at least expect our political leaders to speak up for the cause of moral discipline, and to do so convincingly. The president, above all, ought to be someone we can look to for leadership on this subject - by precept and by example.

That is where the case for Bob Dole is simply overwhelming. Dole is not perfect, nor does Clinton represent evil incarnate. But it is the simple truth that in the past four years the Clinton administration has dragged the presidency down to historically low levels of moral, political, and financial corruption.

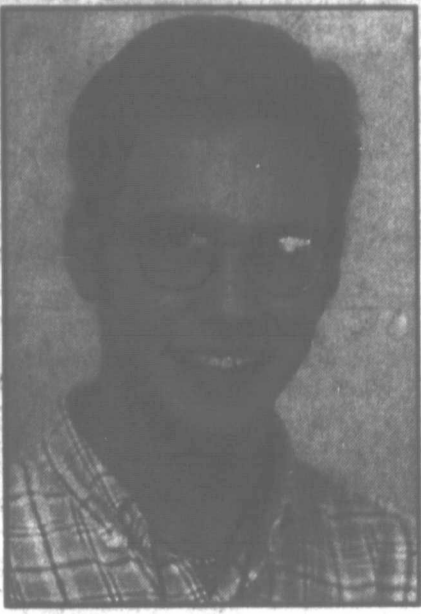

There is neither space nor need to rehearse the long, sad story here; every American knows its basics by heart. Now that Clinton has been re-elected, the liberal media - freed of the necessity to protect him lest the Republicans win - will assuage their sense of guilt by piling on him as mercilessly as they piled on Bob Dole. America will be dragged across an endless battlefield of resignations, congressional investigations, indictments, prosecutions and worse. We cannot even rule out impeachment.

That is not what this sick and cynical country needs. If Bob Dole had won the presidency, he would have honored America by his service to it as he has done all his life, and left us a cleaner and healthier nation.

NORFOLK, Va. — Navy Seaman John D. Dawson, 1990 Pampa High School graduate, recently reported for duty aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Dubouque, forward deployed to Sasebo, Japan.

Dawson's new assignment is an example of how Navy and Marine Corps men and women are assigned to ships, squadrons and shore commands around the world. Whether serving in the Persian Gulf near Iraq or in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia, people like Dawson are making a difference as they work to improve their knowledge and skill as part of the most highly technical naval force in history.

Dawson joined the Navy in January 1996.

personal and professional conduct. West joins 55,000 men and women entering the Navy this year from all over the country.

Even as the naval service gets smaller over the next few years, highly motivated young people like West are still finding an opportunity to improve their knowledge and education as they become part of the most highly technical naval force in history.

PAMPA — Amy Faltinek, Pampa, had had original poetry published in The Rippling Waters, a poetry anthology compiled by The National Library of Poetry. The poem is entitled, "Friends Along the Way."

She has been writing poetry for 18 months and her favorite subject is writing about her relationship with her best friend.

GREAT LAKES, Ill. — Navy Fireman Recruit John L. West, 1996 Pampa High School graduate and son of Leslie D. and Carolyn West of Pampa, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes.

During the eight week program, West completed a variety of training which included classroom study, practical hands-on instruction and an emphasis on physical fitness. In particular, West learned naval customs, first aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival and skills required for working around ships and aircraft.

West and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values — honor, courage and commitment — and what the words mean in guiding SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Marine Pvt. Wesley A. Sloat, a 1996 graduate of Canadian High School, Canadian, Texas, completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Sloat completed 11 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits physically and mentally. In addition to physical conditioning program, Sloat completed classroom and field assignments including first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship and combat training.

SAN ANTONIO — District Judge Lee Waters attended judicial training Oct. 28 - 30 in San Antonio sponsored by Texas Center for the Judiciary, Inc. and funded partly by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Waters attended a two day course, Financial Statements in the Courtroom, where judges were taught to evaluate cases ranging from securities and complex commercial matters to family law and landlord-tenant disputes.

Investigation at Army base widens, charges filed

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Army plans to examine the nation's military bases for evidence of sexual harassment after instructors at a training center were charged with raping and harassing female recruits. One instructor is charged with threatening trainees with death to keep them quiet.

"I'm going to knock your teeth out and get away with it," one drill sergeant told a trainee, according to Army documents released Saturday.

The Army has filed criminal charges against three men and administrative charges against another two at the Army Ordnance Center in Aberdeen. The men — four drill instructors and a captain — were suspended along with 15 other instructors in a widening investigation.

The five men facing charges, which range from rape to sending improper love letters to the trainees, were accused of harassing at least a dozen women in their first weeks of training. The average age of the women was 21.

The Army is looking into whether similar incidents occurred at any of its other installations. More than 1,500 people have called an Army hot line since it was set up Thursday — and more than 100 complained of sexual harassment and other improper behavior at bases across the nation. "If there are similar situations elsewhere, there might be similar violations," Secretary of the Army Togo West said Sunday on CNN's "Late Edition."

Gen. Dennis Reimer, the Army chief of staff, told The Washington Post in an interview published today that he pushed for going public with the inquiry because he was concerned word of it might leak and the Army would be accused of a cover-up.

"I believe we don't have a bigger problem," Reimer said. "But I was surprised by Aberdeen."

Staff Sgt. Delmar Simpson is charged with raping three female recruits and threatening to kill them if they told superiors he was having sex with them, according to the documents.

Simpson is accused of grabbing a woman's hair and jerking her head back after threatening to knock her teeth out, the documents said.

Another defendant, Capt. Derrick Robertson, is accused of trying to discharge a female soldier after sexually assaulting her, the documents said. He is charged with telling the woman to lie about their sexual relationship, forcing her to engage in sodomy, and engaging in an improper sexual relationship with the soldier.

Sgt. Nathaniel Beach is accused of defying orders to stay away from trainees while his conduct was being investigated, the documents said.

The reports did not identify the two instructors facing administrative charges, said Ed Starnes, a post spokesman.

The 15 instructors suspended Saturday were placed on administrative duty with pay at the facility, 30 miles northeast of Baltimore.

Army investigators plan to interview as many as 1,000 women who were trained at the post since the beginning of 1995, a process that could take months, said Maj. Susan Gibson, deputy staff judge advocate at the post.

Since the charges were announced Thursday, the Army has set up a hot line for anyone who wants to report incidents of sexual abuse at the post. A total of 1,528 calls were received between the time the hot line was announced Thursday and Saturday afternoon, Gibson said.

At least 50 women, including many trainees, called to report a variety of improper behavior at Aberdeen that ranged from crude remarks to severe sexual abuse. At least 60 other callers complained of problems at other military installations nationwide, Army officials said.

Hearing focuses on future of abandoned homeless children

DALLAS (AP) — The future of two abandoned children cared for by homeless men in a warehouse district may be in the hands of state regulators.

A hearing scheduled this morning will determine whether Child Protective Services has the authority to remove the four- and five-year-old girls from their mother's custody and examine permanency options for them, said Christopher Riddick, a CPS program director.

The girls' mother, Novenda Fite, remains in Lew Sterrett Justice Center. She was arrested on felony charges of child endangerment and abandonment after leaving her children in a stinking, abandoned warehouse with two homeless men.

The men turned the girls over to state officials after not hearing from Fite. The two men said they had been caring for the children for about a month.

Another homeless man, Zackery Randle, 34, was charged with the aggravated sexual assault of the two girls.

Phil, one of the homeless men who cared for the girls during their mother's disappearance, said the sexual assault was what prompted him to turn the girls over to authorities.

Shortly after placement in a foster home by CPS, the girls slipped away in the early morning hours of Nov. 2. A motorist on her way to work spotted the young children at a bus stop and notified police.

Riddick said the girls missed their mother and were attempting to find her after seeing her on TV.

"For this age, it's very uncommon for them (runaways) to have gotten so far," he said. "It happens more with our older kids. These children are very street-savvy. They've had to be to survive."

After the incident, the girls were placed in a foster care facility that provides 24-hour supervision.

CPS officials said they hope to terminate Fite's custodial rights permanently.

Each of the charges against Fite carries up to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

A jail spokesman said the charges have not been taken before the grand jury.

Hunter spys severed head through window

DETROIT, Ore. (AP) — A spooked hunter dialed 911 when he saw a severed human head staring through the window of an abandoned mining shed, a bullet piercing its forehead.

The hunter didn't want to go any closer to the shed, for fear he'd disturb the scene of a murder.

Marion County Sheriff's deputy Larry Taylor drove for miles up a rutted road Saturday, then trekked a half-mile in the snow to retrieve the head, deputy Tim Steele said.

He made it to the darkened shed and shone his flashlight on the head — of a mannequin.

And the bullet hole? "There was a price sticker on the forehead," Steele said.

Woman lands on feet, survives six story fall

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — It's a good thing Marilyn Lopez Whitehorse landed on her own two feet. If she hadn't, police say, she would have died.

Whitehorse was trying to climb between two sixth-floor hotel balconies when she fell onto a concrete sidewalk early Saturday.

She broke her pelvis and most of the bones in her legs in the fall, but probably would have died if she hadn't landed on her feet, police Sgt. Cornel Heitzman said.

"A witness ... said he heard her screaming and saw a man trying to pull her back, but he wasn't strong enough," Heitzman said. "She fell and hit the sidewalk, legs first."

Whitehorse was in satisfactory condition Sunday after surgery for multiple fractures.

Study: Soybean protein may relieve hot flashes

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Doctors may have finally found a cure for hot flashes: a healthy dose of tofu.

Researchers at the American Heart Association's annual scientific meeting Sunday discussed the growing evidence that soybean protein — commonly found in tofu — may indeed relieve the miseries of menopause.

Dr. Gregory L. Burke of Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C., outlined a study in which women suffering hot flashes reported significantly less intense symptoms after taking soy protein.

The 43 women between the ages of 45 and 55 suffered at least one bout of hot flashes or night sweating daily. For six weeks, they worked 20 grams of powdered soy protein into their diets, mixing it with their orange juice or sprinkling it on their cereal. For another six weeks, they did the same with powdered carbohydrate. No one knew until the end of the experiment which they were eating.

The women who took the soy protein had the episodes just as frequently, but they were less severe.

Gas prices up two-thirds of a cent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Higher crude oil costs caused gasoline prices to rise two-thirds of a cent per gallon at the pump, an analyst said.

The average price for all gasoline grades, including taxes, was $1.29 a gallon on Friday, up two-thirds of a cent over two weeks, according to the Lundberg Survey of 10,000 gas stations nationwide.

Industry analyst Tribby Lundberg said Sunday dealers were passing on the higher prices for crude oil to customers.

Prices varied around the nation, however, with some East Coast areas reporting increases as cold weather boosted demand for heating oil. The West Coast, where prices soared in the spring, saw some price drops.

Hackers On Computer Joyride Are Going To Crash And Burn

DEAR ABBY: I recently heard from an old pen pal. I answered her letter and intended to write to her regularly. She had mentioned that she was a police dispatcher. I thought that was an interesting job.

In her second letter she wrote: "I ran you through our computer. California is one of the few states that will pull you up by name only, and I found you! You are 5 foot 5 and you weigh 130 pounds." She concluded: "I hope you are not mad that I ran you. Most people enjoy when I do it, and love having a copy for themselves. Here's yours."

Enclosed was a computer print-out with my license number, name, address, birthdate and physical description.

I have nothing to hide, but I am offended and actually a bit shocked. On the bottom of the document was: "Departmental Actions: None; Convictions: None; Failure to Appear: None; Accidents: None."

Obviously, as an employee in a police station, this woman has access to police computers. Now I'm wondering if she "ran me" for anything else.

I am not going to answer her letter. I think she's a very nosy person with a lot of gall. That information should be only for the police when they have a reason to run it.

Please comment.

too, am shocked that unauthorized personnel could access confidential personal information — but I suppose I shouldn't be. The problem has reached great enough proportions that it has come to the attention of our legislators in Washington, D.C. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Here's a follow-up for the reader who told the appalling story of the in-laws who ran her name through the FBI computer, violating her privacy.

Privacy is the precious right of every American, and when our own government workers abuse their access to records, it's doubly wrong. The good news is that just before Congress adjourned, we passed a law making it a crime to misuse computer access to obtain private information in government files.

The new law is the National Information Infrastructure Protection Act. Both hackers who break into government computers from the outside and government employees who abuse their computer privileges from the inside to obtain personal information about Americans will now be subject to criminal penalties.

For details about these new privacy protections, your readers can visit my home page at:

PATRICK J. LEAHY, U.S. SENATOR, VERMONT
DEAR SENATOR LEAHY: Thank you for your generosity in offering your computer home-page address to my readers so they can obtain more information on the new privacy law. It's a piece of legislation whose time has come.

DEAR READERS: Today is Veterans Day — the day we honor the men and women who have served our country in the armed forces. Originally called Armistice Day, it marked the end of World War I on Nov. 11, 1918. It was declared a legal holiday in 1938; in 1954, the name was changed to Veterans Day to honor all of America's veterans.

Our Canadian neighbors also celebrate Nov. 11, calling it Remembrance Day.

PAMPA — Tickets for the Pampa-Frenship Class 4A bi-district game won't go on sale until Tuesday morning at the PHS athletic office.

The game will be played at 2 p.m. Saturday at West Texas A & M University's Kimbrough Stadium in Canyon.

Pampa shared the District 1-4A championship with Dumas this season. Frenship finished District 2-4A tied with Levelland, and Lubbock Estacado for first place.

CORRECTION

PAMPA — Pampa's Ray Tollerson caught a 20-yard touchdown pass in the Harvesters' 28-20 victory over Randall last Friday night. It was incorrectly published in Sunday's game story that Devin Lemons had caught the TD pass.

Tollerson, a 160-pound senior, also returned a blocked field goal attempt for a touchdown against Randall. For the season, Tollerson has scored four touchdowns.

PREP BASKETBALL

PAMPA — Starting time for the Pampa Lady Harvesters' basketball opener with West Texas High has been changed to 8 p.m. Saturday in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The change was made so fans could travel to Canyon to see the Pampa-Frenship football playoff contest Saturday afternoon and have time to make it back for the basketball game.

PRO BASKETBALL

HOUSTON (AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon made a trip to a hospital after experiencing a sore back Sunday but X-rays showed no fractures.

The Houston Rockets center had the tests after the left side of his back began hurting the day after he scored 38 points to lead his team to a victory over Utah.

Olajuwon was listed as probable for Tuesday's game against the Los Angeles Lakers.

The soreness was traced to an incident between Olajuwon and Utah's John Stockton late in the first half Saturday. Olajuwon was called for a flagrant foul when he hit Stockton with his forearm, apparently a reaction after Stockton laid an elbow into the left side of Olajuwon's back.

Olajuwon said nothing about the injury following the game.

"He's probably got bruised ribs on his left side," team physician Dr. Jim Muntz said Sunday. "There's no fracture. We got him on some strong anti-inflammatory medication and some local treatment. I'd say he'll probably be able to play Tuesday. He really wants to."

AUTO RACING

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Terry Labonte's long cultivated cool finally melted away.

The Iceman, whose career had stalled before joining Hendrick Motorsports in 1994, wrapped up his second Winston Cup championship Sunday with a workmanlike fifth-place finish in the NAPA 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Adding to the pleasure and emotion of the moment, Labonte's younger brother, Bobby, won the race.

Moments after the checkered flag waved, the elder Labonte, his voice choked with emotion, said, "I never thought it would take me 12 years to win another championship, but I finally did it and it's a great feeling."

Later, Labonte seemed a little embarrassed by what, for him, was a flood of emotion.

"That's the first time I've ever gotten emotional. I couldn't believe it," he said. "I was a little surprised at myself. But it was a pretty big day. It was something I've really worked for for a long time. It really meant a lot to me personally to win the championship today."

Pampa girls bring home cross country title trophy

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

PAMPA — Last season it was the Pampa boys basketball team which won a state championship. This year, Pampa High School can crown another state champion in another sport — girls cross country.

With a throng of about 50 fans awaiting their arrival, the Lady Harvesters returned home Sunday night from Round Rock where they won the school's first cross country state title. Their bus received a police escort down Hobart Street.

"I'm very proud of these young ladies," said Pampa head coach Mark Elms as he stepped off the bus in front of the PHS athletic building. "They had to start the race over three times because of somebody falling down. That's a hard thing to have to do, but these girls went out and got the job done."

Superintendent Dawson Orr was on hand to greet the Lady Harvesters.

"We're all real proud of you. I know all of you have worked long and hard to achieve this goal. They just finished painting the water tower and I believe they've got room to put something else on it," he said. Orr was referring to the five state championship basketball teams written on the water tower in south Pampa.

It was Pampa's first trip to the state cross country meet as a team. And they won the first-place trophy with teamwork as five Lady Harvesters finished in the top 40.

Jenny Fatheree, who finished 10th individually in the state meet a year ago, paced Pampa with a time of 12:11 and a fifth-place finish on the two-mile course. Anna Resendiz finished in 18th place with a 12:23, then came Amanda White, 34th (12:48), Samantha Hurst, 35th (12:49), Beth Lee, 39th (12:53), Jennifer Booth, 64th (13:22) and Jennifer Jones, 102nd (14:43). Robin Williams and Marci Hansen made the trip as alternates for Pampa.

Elms was assisted by Mike Lopez. The Lady Harvesters were ranked fourth in Class 4A going into the meet, which was held at Old Settlers Park in Round Rock. Pampa collected 76 points in the state followed by second-ranked Canyon with 94, but the Lady Harvesters didn't know they had won until the meet had been over for about half an hour.

"We were cooling down and the 5A division was running when we found out. I think I screamed louder than anybody," Fatheree said.

The Lady Harvesters should contend for the state title again next year. Jennifer Jones is the only senior on the team.

Florida keeps No. 1 ranking while Tennessee, Michigan fall

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Football Writer

The big shakeup in The Associated Press college football poll didn't go all the way to the top.

While the top five teams remained unchanged for the sixth consecutive week, the same can't be said for the rest of the Top 25.

Florida held its No. 1 ranking after a narrow escape against Vanderbilt, but Tennessee and Michigan tumbled from the Top 10 as seven ranked teams were beaten in last week's games.

Also, undefeated Army (9-0) made the Top 25 for the first time in 11 years.

The Gators (9-0), who struggled to a 28-21 win over the Commodores, received 46 first-place votes and 1,650 points in Sunday's balloting by the 67 sports writers and broadcasters who vote in the poll.

The Buckeyes (9-0), 48-0 winners over Illinois, were second again, this time with 17 first-place votes and 1,597 points. Last week, Florida led Ohio State by 54 first-place votes (59-5) and 103 points (1,667-1,564). This week, the lead is 29 first-place votes and 53 points.

Florida State (8-0) remained third with two first-place votes, Rose Bowl-bound Arizona State (10-0) was fourth with two first-place votes and Nebraska (8-1) was fifth.

There were changes nearly everywhere else. Tennessee, stunned 21-17 by Memphis, dropped from the Top 10 for the first time since the fifth week of the 1995 season. The Vols (6-2), ranked sixth the past four weeks, dipped to No. 12.

The Wolverines (7-3) were upset by Purdue 9-3 and fell even further, dropping from No. 9 to No. 16 for their lowest ranking of the season.

Colorado (8-1) and North Carolina (8-1) were tied at No. 6, followed by No. 8 Alabama, Kansas State (8-1) and Brigham Young (10-1).

Penn State (8-2) moved up three places to No. 11, followed by Tennessee, Northwestern, Notre Dame, Washington, Michigan, LSU, Miami, Syracuse, Auburn, Virginia Tech, Army, Wyoming, Virginia and Southern Mississippi.

Brigham Young beat Rice 49-0 and moved into the Top 10 for the first time since the 13th week of the 1990 season. The Orangemen (6-2) improved five places to No. 19 after a 31-7 win over Tulane.

Army (9-0), with a 23-7 win over Air Force, has an 11-game winning streak — longest among major schools.

Iowa, 23rd last week, fell out of the Top 25 after losing to Northwestern 40-13.

Wyoming (9-1) was beaten 28-24 by San Diego State on Thursday night and fell from No. 16 to No. 23. LSU, a 26-0 loser to Alabama, slipped from No. 11 to No. 17, and Virginia, a 24-16 loser to Clemson, dropped nine spots to No. 24.

Cowboys slip by 49ers in overtime

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Barry Switzer stood on the sideline, hands on hips. He looked down at the field as his kicker, Chris Boniol, lined up a 29-yard field goal attempt with 8:43 left in overtime.

When Boniol gave the Cowboys a 20-17 victory over the San Francisco 49ers, a look more of relief than of joy swept the face of the Dallas coach. Switzer took two steps to his right, then grabbed quarterback Troy Aikman for a hug.

For both Switzer and Aikman, it was a day of redemption. For the Cowboys, Sunday's victory put them right back in the thick of the playoff race.

A week after losing to the Eagles when Aikman's two late interceptions turned into 10 decisive points, the Cowboys (6-4) took advantage of losses by Philadelphia and Washington to close within a game in the NFC East.

"Every game for us is do or die, because if we lose everybody writes us off and if we win everybody says the Cowboys have a chance," said Dallas guard Nate Newton. "What drives us, man, is the fear of not making the playoffs."

An Aikman interception nearly ruined the Cowboys again on Sunday, but the Dallas defense saved him against the 49ers (7-3).

Trailing 17-10, the Cowboys had driven to the San Francisco 10 when Aikman was picked off by Marquez Pope with 6:36 remaining. But Dallas linebacker Fred Strickland intercepted Elvis Grbac on the next play.

Six plays later, Aikman found Eric Bjornson alone in the end zone for a game-tying 6-yard scoring pass with 2:45 left.

Both teams failed to score on a final possession in regulation time. Dallas won the coin toss in overtime and went 66 yards in 12 plays for Boniol's winner.

"I think this is a great game for Troy to show he can make a mistake and redeem himself," Newton said.

Aikman said the win got the Cowboys "back on track" and thrust them into the middle of the playoff chase.

"I think it's wide open," said Aikman, who was 24-of-39 for 230 yards and scored the first Dallas touchdown on a 3-yard run in the second quarter. "I think it's one of those years — there doesn't seem to be a clear dominant team in the NFL right now."

Grbac, who went 10-of-17 for 88 yards and two interceptions, had come in just before halftime when Steve Young was knocked out with a concussion for the second time in three weeks.

"I threw a stupid pass. I didn't focus myself mentally or physically," he said of Strickland's interception. "There's no doubt we gave it away, and it's a sad thing."

Young did not return to the field in the second half. The 49ers said he had a slight concussion and was not hospitalized, as he was two weeks ago when a concussion knocked him out early in a game at Houston.

Young was sacked twice by the Cowboys and hit hard several other times. One was a helmet-to-helmet collision with linebacker Jim Schwartz.

San Francisco coach George Seifert said Young, who also is bothered by a strained groin that has reduced him to hobbling at times, is questionable for next week's home game against Baltimore.

"Steve has us worried. I hope things turn out OK," said teammate Jerry Rice.

Young led San Francisco to a 28-yard field goal by Jeff Wilkins on the opening series. Later in the first quarter, he threw a 29-yard touchdown pass to rookie Iheanyi Uwaezuoke.

After Aikman scored on a quarterback draw to bring Dallas within 10-7, Boniol tied the game with a 26-yard field goal on the first play of the fourth quarter. An interception by Darren Woodson set up the field goal.

The 49ers took a 17-10 lead on Terry Kirby's 27-yard scoring run with 11:38 left, setting the stage for the Dallas comeback.

"We had them against the ropes. We couldn't deliver the knockout blow," said 49ers linebacker Gary Plummer. "They kept fighting back."

The Cowboys, who had struggled the past few weeks, were reminded of better times in recent years.

"I remember being in college watching the NFC Championship games, and it was just like that," said Bjornson, who had eight receptions. "I think just to get a win under these circumstances is so important for this team. It didn't matter how we did it."

For Switzer, it was his first win in four attempts against San Francisco.

"It's tremendous," he said. "It's a great win, great win."

White Deer wins finale

CLARENDON — White Deer's Craig Urbanczyk rushed for 262 yards and scored five touchdowns as the Bucks closed out the 1996 season with a 41-13 win over Clarendon Friday night.

White Deer finished with a 6-4 record for the season and 2-3 in District 2-2A.

Clarendon finishes at 2-8 overall and 1-4 in district.

Urbanczyk scored on runs of 19, 4, 66 and 10 yards. He also caught a 14-yard scoring pass from Torey Craig.

Johnny Berry scored White Deer's final touchdown on a 1-yard plunge. Craig kicked four extra points and passed to Clinton Grange for a two-point conversion.

Clarendon's Roy Williams was the night's top rusher with 307 yards on 42 carries. He scored two touchdowns.

The Bucks had a 20-point third quarter after leading 21-7 at halftime.

White Deer had 472 yards in total offense while Clarendon had 320. White Deer had the edge in first downs, 21-20. White Deer's defense forced five Clarendon turnovers.

Fight barely over and rematch talk has started

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mike Tyson was still sitting in his corner, battered and bleeding from the beating he had taken from Evander Holyfield, when the talk turned to a rematch.

The talk, of course, came from promoter Don King, who knows a good sell when he sees one. And, after Holyfield's upset win over the seemingly invincible Tyson, a rematch figures to be a great sell.

"Fortunately, I do have the promotional rights to Evander. It's the American way," King said. "We're going to see if we can put together the greatest rematch in the history of boxing."

Any rematch would have to work hard to top Saturday's night fight, which ended 37 seconds into the 11th round when referee Mitch Halpern put an arm around the neck of the defenseless Tyson and waved the fight to a close.

Holyfield, who had been as much as a 22-1 underdog in early betting, cut Tyson and knocked him down in the sixth round, then almost had him out in the 10th before the fight was finally stopped in a flurry of punches in the 11th.

"If I stand to gain I will fight anybody," Holyfield said. "But I guess the most important thing is, why don't I give Mike Tyson a rematch?"

That would be fine with Tyson, who struggled to regain his pride after seemingly losing much of his mystique in an upset almost as big as the one he suffered against James "Buster" Douglas six years ago.

"People lose. Everyone loses," Tyson said. "You lose a fight, you lose your life, you lose family members. It's the ones who come back who show character."

Besides, Tyson added with a touch of sarcasm, "I get so much money to fight, how can I not continue to fight?"

Tyson earned $30 million for his fight, bringing his total in five fights since being released from prison only 19 months ago.

Eastern New Mexico holds off West Texas A&M, 31-21

CANYON — Eastern New Mexico University jumped to a 24-0 lead in the first half and held off West Texas A&M University 31-21 in Lone Star Conference football action Saturday afternoon at Kimbrough memorial Stadium. ENMU, now 3-7 overall and 2-4 in the LSC, won the traveling Wagon Wheel Trophy which is awarded to the victor of the annual game. The Buffs drop to 1-8 overall and 0-6 in the league.

The Greyhounds opened up a 14-0 lead on touchdown runs of four and 61-yards by Derrick Johnson and T.J. Jones, respectively. The ENMU special teams got into the action with a 27-yard field by Brian Cocking with 2:27 left in the first half. The Greyhounds followed twelve seconds later with a fumble recovery in the endzone by Mason Dool after Buff Cliff Douglas dropped and kicked the ball into the endzone on a twelve yard kickoff return.

WTAMU narrowed the margin to 24-21 on Norman White's one yard plunge to complete a ten play, 60-yard drive with 3:04 left in the third quarter. The score moved White into a tie for second place all-time on the school's rushing yards list with Mercury Morris at 3,388 yards. White earlier in the game set the all-time Buff record for most rushing attempts in a career.

However, the Greyhounds scored an insurance touchdown on Andy Cavalier's 40-yard toss to tight end Pilar Carrasco with 28 seconds left in the third period.

ENMU rushed for 288 yards and completed seven of 16 passes for 103 yards to take the total offense advantage 391-298. Johnson rumbled for 83-yards on the ground, while T.J. Jones netted 87-yards rushing to go with 126 yards on three kickoff returns.

WTAMU was led by Coleman's 45-yards rushing and 207 yards passing with two touchdowns. He completed 16 of 35 passes without an interception. Both Stevie Moore and Thompson caught four passes for the game.

WTAMU ends the season at Abilene Christian on Nov. 16, while the Greyhounds wind down the season at home against Central Oklahoma.

South Africa's white population exposed to truth

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — While the world learned in detail of the bloody repression of apartheid, South African whites purposely were kept oblivious. Only now are many discovering the truth.

Testimony before the new government's Truth and Reconciliation Commission — tales of how police used to bomb, torture and kill enemies of the white government, all with tacit approval of top leaders, including the president — has stunned South African whites like Braam Pelser.

"I was aware that many things were not kosher, but I am shocked to hear the extent of it and how organized it was," said Pelser, now a mining executive.

Under apartheid, the flow of information was tightly controlled and racial intermingling was forbidden. News footage of police shooting children and films like "Cry Freedom" on the death in custody of activist Steve Biko were seen by foreigners, but not by whites within South Africa.

The exposure of the atrocities committed by top police officials and politicians has many whites now admitting they failed to perceive the depth of the problem.

Some call for collective responsibility, insisting that all whites benefited from apartheid and therefore must share the blame for allowing the abuses to be committed under its name.

"Not even our wildest nightmares could have matched the horrifying reality of what was going on around us as we went about our 'normal' lives," John Battersby, editor of the Sunday Independent newspaper, wrote in an editorial-page article.

To understand such revulsion requires a grasp of the control apartheid leaders held over society.

From birth, whites descended from Dutch settlers — known as Afrikaners — were indoctrinated in schools, churches and homes in a belief of their superiority over blacks. Rigid religious upbringing instilled an unwavering devotion to authority that included compulsory military service.

In the 1980s, when the atrocities being revealed before the Truth Commission occurred, the white government dominated the news media and banned any exposure of opposition figures or their anti-apartheid views.

Jacques Pauw, an Afrikaner journalist who broke the law to expose hit squad activities in 1989, said the apartheid propaganda machine, particularly state-run television, had a "tremendous impact" on white perceptions.

"I don't think one must underestimate it. The state of emergency in the latter 1980s was clearly devised to hold information from the public," he said.

But Pauw also insists most whites silently supported what was going on, despite being misinformed.

Tom Lodge, a political scientist at Johannesburg's University of the Witwatersrand, says the shock expressed by whites is honest.

"It was very difficult at the time to have any conception or accurate idea of who was responsible," Lodge said. "Even people who asked questions found it very difficult to get answers. For those who preferred not to, it was relatively easy to remain in the dark."

The Truth Commission's chairman, retired Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, who won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize for his anti-apartheid efforts, calls whites "entirely human" for being shocked.

But, Tutu said, whites must now say: "We erred. Now how do we ensure that we have a kind of society where things of this kind won't happen?"

Some of the confessions to Tutu's panel revealed deep depravity. A former security police commander told of luring 10 young blacks to a remote area on the premise they would join a guerrilla movement, then drugging them and packing them in a van that was blown up.

The threat of prosecution forced the commander and four subordinates to seek amnesty from the Truth Commission, which requires a full confession and proof that crimes were committed for political reason. More senior officers and even retired government ministers are likely to appear soon.

Shuttle headed for riverboat casino in Louisiana hijacked

DALLAS (AP) — Hijacking a casino-bound shuttle bus may not have been an inaugural holdup for one of the highway robbery suspects.

When four men undertook a robbery scheme turned sour, 24-year-old suspect David Carl Akins was awaiting trial in the armed robbery of an Azle convenience store two years ago.

Store owner Joe Harris said he was not surprised to see Akins as a suspect when about 60 people aboard a Shuttleking bus bound for Louisiana riverboat casinos were robbed at gunpoint by three fellow passengers Thursday.

Police were tipped off to the heist by a passenger's secret call for help on her cell phone.

Harris said the nervousness displayed by the hijackers in the shuttle bus robbery was also apparent when his employees handed over the store's cash register in the November 1994 heist.

"They ran out of there and he couldn't figure out which button to push to get the cash register open," the store owner said.

Driver Mike Gibbs, 42, was shot in the face during the hijacking when he pulled the bus over for police. Gibbs was in fair condition at East Texas Medical Center in Tyler.

Gibbs said he was nervous about the run from the moment one of the suspects boarded the bus.

But Gibbs knew he had a job to do, his fiancée, Joyce Bridwell said.

From his hospital room, Gibbs told The Dallas Morning News he was only doing his job when he ignored orders from a gunman and stopped the crowded bus for police.

"I'm not a hero," he said. "You want to stop the bus in the safest area to protect your customers. That's all I did."

Gibbs said he tried to distract the gunman, so he could stop the bus.
