EAGLE LAKE, Feb. 22.—Howard Fitzgerald, this city outfielder for the Wichita Falls Spudders of the Texas League, is one of three players ever to bat above .300 in the Texas League for three consecutive seasons and, he is out to make it four in a row this year. The other players who share this distinction are Jim Riley of Dallas and Stump Edgington of Waco.

Fitzgerald, who is 25 years of age, also has the distinction of having had more trials in the big leagues than any other player of his age. Fitzgerald won a regular berth on the University of Texas nine in 1920 when he was only 17 years old. He also was a star on the Loughboro team in 1921 and that summer he had his first trial with a big league team. He was given $300 to sign with the Philadelphia Athletics. After a brief trial he was sent to the Appalachian League. Conditions there did not suit him and so he jumped the club.

Played With Amarillo. In 1922 he bobbed up with Amarillo where the fleet center fielder attracted the attention of a scout of the Chicago Cubs. September 1922 found him on Broadway and in his first time at bat with the Cubs he slammed out a double off the fast ball of the great Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn. He was given a trial by the Cubs, but soon was sent to Wichita Falls. He made the spring trips with the Cubs again in 1924 and 1925. In June 1926 he was purchased by the Boston Red Sox and was ordered to report immediately. After two months with the Red Sox he failed to hit above .279 and was returned to Wichita Falls. Evolution Is Made Issue By Candidate Woman At Last Brings Bone of Contention Into Remarks of Speech At Tulsa.

(By the Associated Press) TULSA, Okla., Feb. 22.—An appeal for a more stringent enforcement of prohibition laws and a statement that scientific theories of evolution and the Biblical story of man cannot be reconciled were the keynotes of a speech here tonight by Mrs. Edith E. Wilmsans of Dallas, Democratic candidate for governor in Texas before the National Problems convention.

"We who favor prohibition should be present at precinct meetings and name representatives and instruct them to vote in the county convention for men and women who are for law enforcement, and they should be instructed to vote as delegates to the state convention for delegates who can be depended upon to vote for an instructed delegation to the national convention. That instruction should be against any anti-prohibition candidate for president or vice-president," she declared.

"I believe most profoundly that the church is a divine institution and that the Bible is a book command and some of those who are the proponents of evolution tell us that we may continue to believe in the Bible and yet accept the theory of evolution. This reasoning is not sound, for the Bible and evolution are highly contradictory," Mrs. Wilmsans said.

THE MENTAL VALUES OF A SAVINGS ACCOUNT "I find it much easier to practice thrift than before because I get so much pleasure out of watching my account grow."

THE OPEN THOUGHT There is a profound meaning in the old saying that the "closed hand cannot receive." In this connection it is well for people to consider whether they may not be so busy holding fast to various prejudices and preconceived ideas that they are rendering themselves totally unable to accept helpful and constructive ideas from their sisters and brothers.

PROSPERITY SHOWN IN BAILEY COUNTY

The true prosperity of Bailey County is shown by the sales of produce for the month. The produce of the county is increasing each week, so report our produce men. The prices on all produce for the month have been steady.

According to a check-up there has been 12,000 to 15,000 pounds of poultry, 1,050 cases of eggs, $2,000 worth of cream, 1,100 pounds of hides and over $500 worth of furs.

As a result of these products, business has been good among the different business houses. Our progressive people are securing better dairy herds of registered type, also better and more highly pedigreed flocks of poultry.

According to recent newspaper reports, Swisher county has more accredited dairy herds than any county in the state.

If other counties of the Plains can accomplish this we see no reason why Bailey county could not do the same.

Re-Roofing Made Easy ARE you going to re-roof? Lay Edgwood Shingles right over the old roof. Saves the labor and expense of removing the old shingles—eliminates the unsightly litter and possible damage to shrubs and plants—and provides protection in the event of sudden storms during construction.

Makes your home a lot cooler, too—the double roof with air space between acts like a parasol. Professor Grondal, of the Washington University has made tests which show that Edgwood shingles have from 10 to 61.11 per cent. greater insulation qualities than any other roofing material. In re-roofing with Edgwood shingles the new shingles are applied in the same manner as you would on solid sheathing, excepting that longer nails are used and you start with a double course at the eaves. Applying Edgwood shingles in this manner is not new, as it has long been the practice in cold climates to apply Red Cedar shingles over tight sheathing and building paper. It is a fallacy to assume that Edgwood shingles will decay if laid over old shingles. Rot-promoting fungi can find no weakness in the preservative oils with which Nature has endowed British Columbia Red Cedar. Edgwood shingles are cut Edge-Grain and positively will not warp, cup, or curl—he tight and flat to the old roof for 40 years or more. You can save yourself a lot of money too. Comparative cost figures show that an Edgwood roof will cost you from 14 to 315 per cent. less than other materials. Re-roofing with Edgwood shingles over the old shingles is an easy and practical solution to re-roofing. You then have a roof that possesses all five essentials of home building—Appearance, Durability, Economy, Safety and Insulation.

Over The Coffee Cups Small Items Of Real Interest

Spring is either here or just around the corner. There's a lot of things that indicate the season of "that lazy feeling" is upon us, and one of them is the frequent arguments that you hear about the relative speeds of the various kinds of automobiles.

Denise Gilmore, who now lives out at Levelland, but who in the past has been everything, journalistically from a cub reporter to a special feature writer for the International News Service and other Hearst products, says that he drove to Lubbock from Levelland in 24 minutes. He says the distance is 34 miles and believes this to be a record for that run. Another fellow says his Chevrolet made 68 miles an hour. Then the backers of the new Ford, rag in wrath to say that a mere 72 is nothing for one of Henry's inventions.

Wednesday was one of the warmest days of February. A maximum temperature of 71 was reached during the afternoon and the day's average was 54 degrees. A variance of 34 degrees was seen between the high and low for the day, however, the thermometer dipping to 27 during the night.

"You have a wonderful spirit here"—that is the compliment which Coach Sam D. Barton of the West Texas State Teachers college Bulldogs passed upon Texas Tech Tuesday night after a group of fans had presented Coach Victor Payne with a handkerchief prior to the basketball game.

Demos Who Split Party Get Rebuke By Senator Reed

Sharp Attack Launched On Those Who Insist On Issues On Which There Is Division In Ranks.

(By Associated Press) TOPEKA, Feb. 22.—Democratic leaders who insist upon platform plank on which the party is divided were bitterly assailed tonight by Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, before a state-wide rally of democrats.

Without mentioning names or the issues to which he referred, the militant Missourian declared that the "man who seeks to divide the party—to force into the platform issues upon which there is great division—is the best assistant the republican can have."

He said "the efforts to coddle and attract all sorts, classes and opinions have alienated the votes of thousands who would willingly give loyal adherence to the great principles for which we stand."

Since opening his western campaign, Senator Reed has said of the platform that he believed the party has "bigger fish to fry than prohibition" and again tonight he declared the issue in his opinion was "purging of the public business; the cleansing of the departments; the expulsion of the sinister lobby and the restoration of honesty and decency at the capitol."

"That is the crying need of the hour," he shouted. "That work can only be done by the democratic party. When that task is accomplished, it will be time to debate and divide upon other questions."

Senator Reed's visit here coincided with the meeting of the Kansas democratic club and most of the party leaders were on hand.

Church Finance Donors' Names Are Sewed in Quilt

A unique plan for the financing of a Baptist church at Thalia was revealed in a request received by a Lubbock resident yesterday. For each donation of a dollar or more, the name of the donor will be embroidered on a quilt by members of the Women's Missionary Society, then buried beneath the church pulpit for 25 years. Then, unsewn, and the names of the donors published in the county papers.

the record of the democratic party, its incompetence and lack of principle as constantly manifested in both houses of Congress and on the stump, and its array of McAdams and Helms and Upshaws.

"We must maintain and strengthen the record of the republican party as the friend and supporter of every just business enterprise, as the protector of labor as well as of capital, and as ready mercies to expose and punish corruption and incompetence in public office whether at Washington or elsewhere."

Despite the overwhelming majorities of 1920 and 1924, Dr Butler said, the best opinion is that the November election will be very hotly contested and the result may be very close.

Discussing the prohibition question, Dr Butler said: "No matter what may be the action or inaction of the platform makers, millions of voters are going to make their choice between the two candidates, according as those candidates have an open and shared policy on this question."

He reiterated that he personally was for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

stood for more than an hour in historic Carlyle House shaking hands with the throng that packed into Alexandria and then reviewed a long parade of military and patriotic units.

A salute of 21 guns greeted Mr. Coolidge when he landed at the Alexandria naval torpedo station from the presidential yacht Mayflower, and a considerable crowd waved to him as he proceeded along the elm-lined streets where Washington once trod, on his way to Carlyle House. There fully 3,000 persons jammed round the entrance to the building and caused a momentary confusion while local officials decided who was to get in first to shake the president's hand.

The celebration today was a fore-runner of the gigantic country-wide observance of Washington's 200th birthday anniversary to be held in 1932 under government auspices.

Rip Van Winkle Breaks Into Film

Eastland County's Famed Horned Frog Seems Bored by All the Excitement Over Him.

(By the Associated Press) EASTLAND, Feb. 22.—Rip Van Winkle, the cornerstone horned frog of Eastland county, broke into the movies today. He performed a photographer of a news reel in the warm sunshine behind the jail.

While the reptile's mouth is still closed, apparently sealed by his 31 year sleep in the stone which was opened before a large crowd Saturday, he appears to be gaining weight. Citizens here say he is absorbing moisture from the air.

The frog is active and when on display in a show window moves about in the glass fish bowl and tries again after slipping down the side.

He has been photographed dozens of times and whenever he is in the show window attracts a curious crowd. Meanwhile another witness has come forward to vouch for the fact that a horned frog was placed in the cornerstone at the time it was laid. She is Mrs. Dreinhof, wife of a former Ranger postmaster, who said she saw it placed there.

He was pinned in the driver's seat of the machine by the steel frame of the side, which was struck in by the violent impact of the waves, but a fortunate circumstance landed the car right side up after it had turned a complete somersault from the beach speedway and also kept the depth.

Water Up to Neck Observers who rushed into the sea and pulled the wrecked machine back to the beach found Lockhart helpless, but conscious, with water up to his neck. It was necessary for mechanics to cut away the side of the car to release him.

"I'm all right," was his only expression after he had been dragged from the water. The racer's wife was in the crowd of several thousand persons who witnessed the accident and was one of the first to reach the water's edge. She fainted when she saw he had been injured and did not see him lapse into semi-consciousness as he was rushed away in an ambulance.

Was Ready For Test Lockhart's car speeded at a terrific rate, was about to enter the crescent mile-official racing distance for the speed trial when it was seen to career sharply to the right, strike an incoming wave and rise into the air, turning a complete flip and landing 40 or 50 feet out in the ocean on its wheels.

Lockhart was the only American left in the running for a chance at the new record of 206.9 miles per hour set here Sunday by Captain Malcolm Campbell of England. Since neither he nor his machine will be in a condition to race again before the A. A. A.'s time limit expires tomorrow, the new mark this will remain for the time at least in England where the previous record of 203.7 miles an hour also was held by Major H. O. D. Seagrave. J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer, who had entered his 36-cylinder Triple Six Special in the speed event, was barred from competing by the American Automobile association today because an auxiliary reverse gear installed in his machine did not meet the official body's standards. This will not prevent him from making an unofficial run against time, which he has announced he probably will essay.

LOCKHART TELLS STORY OF CRASH DAYTONA BEACH Fla., Feb. 22.—Frank Lockhart from his bed in the hospital tonight told the story of his crash on the beach here today to William F. Strum, his representative, in which he blamed poor visibility as the sole reason for the mishap that sent his Special Stutz Black Hawk racer into the surf.

His story as related by Strum, substantially was as follows: "I was traveling down the beach at a terrific rate of speed when I glanced at my tachometer to learn how many revolutions the motor was making. It was turning over 6,500 at the time between 220 and 230 miles per hour just a few seconds before the accident happened.

"I drove through a bright place in the atmosphere where the sun was shining, then all at once I ran into a rain and the visibility was completely gone. I could not see. The next thing I knew I was in the ocean."

Hotel

hotel. He also did not deny the information regarding the 16-story unit.

Stockholders Called A meeting of the stockholders of the hotel building was called for March 1, to consider the project, plans for which are practically complete and on which several contractors are preparing bids. The work will be started soon after the approval of the stockholders and the letting of the contract.

The addition of the four stories will add 116 rooms to the house, making it a 232 room building. As the plans and specifications of the original building, as well as the foundation and basement were drawn up for a ten-story structure, it will be of little difficulty to make the additions. The construction will be of the same type as in the present building and in the same room and floor plan used in the six stories will be duplicated in the climb upward.

Built In 1926 The present building was completed in 1926 and built entirely of local capital, at a cost of approximately $500,000. The work was considered a strict community enterprise as the city was in dire need of a metropolitan hostelry. Since that time, however, it is understood that numbers of the small stockholders have sold their stock until now only a few men own the stock of the original holding company.

Should the stockholders deem it unwise to make the addition to the present building, it was learned that the site of the old Cova hotel, now an annex to the Lubbock, would be used for the erection of a ten-story structure at a cost of between six and eight hundred thousand dollars. The ten stories will be built sometime during this year and the other six will follow as the demands of the city call for them. The separate unit would have a six-story addition to the four-story addition be approved, the erection of the sixteen-story structure will follow in the course of time, making the entire capacity of the hotel at 532 rooms, it is understood. This would place the total valuation at around $1,500,000.

Needed Better Facilities The need for greater hotel facilities in the city has been felt for sometime, in fact the completion of the present hotel did not meet the demands, and further building has been on the verge of announcement. Numerous rumors of the coming of several larger outside hotel companies to the city have been floating here for some time but most of them have been discounted or have originated from purely un-authoritative sources. The project still riding on the South Plains and strengthen further its claim as the Hub of the Plains.

accident are lacking, due to the fact that Mr. Clark was alone in the car at the time of the crash, a truck driver who is said to have been an eye-witness, stated to the wife of the injured man that he thought Mr. Clark lost control after one of his tires blew out.

Did Not Overtake. The car apparently did not turn over after plunging off the embankment. The truck driver who witnessed the accident hurried to Crosbyton for a doctor, and the two carried the injured man to Crosbyton, from where he was rushed to Lubbock in the ambulance of Rix Undertakers of Lubbock, which was in Ralls at the time.

Indications that internal injuries had been sustained were shown by blood hemorrhages. Late last night Mr. Clark had regained consciousness at any time since he was found after the wreck.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Clark, 2408 Fifteenth street, is married and has one child. He has been a resident of Lubbock for approximately 15 years, and is well known in cotton exchange circles in this territory.

CRITICISE S-4 REPORT

Omitted Details Public Wanted, Charge WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Representative McClintic of Oklahoma, a Democrat on the House Naval Committee, said today that the Navy report on the S-4 did not touch upon points "uppermost in the minds of the American public—namely, devices for submarines."

He said that the report did not touch the vital points of confidential information "given me as correct and that is that the Navy or the admiral in charge had no right to have had the S-4 out making runs at this particular time for the reason the submarine already had made its required run."

THE CANARY MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR
Vance believes Skeel innocent of the murder of Margaret Odell and that he lay hidden in a closet while the stranger did his work. Markham ridicules the theory but Vance is unshaken. He shatters Cleaver's alibi of being out of the city the night of the murder and urges Markham to call Mannix in for questioning again. "You know a Miss Frisbee," Vance said to Mannix. "When did you see her last? Take your time about answering. You may want to think it over."

CHAPTER XXXIV
Mannix took his time. It was a full minute before he spoke and then it was to put another question.

"Haven't I got a right to call on a lady—haven't I?"
"Certainly. Therefore, why should a question about so obviously correct and irrefragable an episode make you uneasy?"
"Me uneasy? Mannix, with considerable effort, produced a grin. "I'm just wondering what you got in your mind, asking me about my private affairs?"
"I'll tell you," Miss Odell was murdered at about midnight Monday. No one came or went through the front door of the house, and the side door of the house, and the side door was locked. The only way any one could have entered her apartment was by way of Apartment 2, and nobody who knew Miss Odell ever visited Apartment 2 except yourself."

At these words Mannix leaned over the table, grasping the edge of it with both hands for support. His eyes were wide and his sensual lips hung open.
"But it was not fear that one read in his attitude; it was sheer amazement. He sat for a moment staring at Vance, stunned and incredulous."

"That's what you think is it? No one could've got in or out except by Apartment 2 because the side door was locked? He gave a short vicious laugh. "If that side door didn't happen to be locked Monday night, where'd I stand then—huh? Where'd I stand?"
"I rather think you'd stand with us—with the district attorney." Vance was watching him like a cat.

"Sure I would!" spat Mannix. "And let me tell you something, my friend: that's just where I stand—absolutely!" He swung heavily about and faced Markham. "I'm a good fellow, I understand, but I've kept my mouth shut long enough. That side door wasn't locked Monday night. And I know who sneaked out of it five minutes to twelve."

"Ca marche," murmured Vance, resting himself and calmly lighting a cigar.
Markham was too astonished to speak at once; and Heath sat stock-still, his cigar half-way to his mouth.
At length Markham leaned back and folded his arms.
"I think you'd better tell us the whole story, Mr. Mannix." His voice held a quality which made the request an imperative.

Mannix, too, settled back in his chair.

"Oh, I'm going to tell it—believe me, I'm going to tell it—You had the right idea, I spent the evening with Miss Frisbee. No harm in that, though."

"What time did you go there?"
"After office hours—half past five, quarter to six. Came up in the subway, got off at 72nd, and walked over."

"And you entered the house through the front door?"
"No, I walked down the alleyway and went in the side door—like I generally do. It's nobody's business who I call on, and what the telephone operator in the front hall don't know won't hurt him."

"That's all right so far," observed Heath. "The janitor didn't bolt the side door until after six."
"And did you stay the entire evening, Mr. Mannix," asked Markham.

"Frisbee cooked the dinner and I'd brought along a bottle of wine. Social little party—just the two of us. And I didn't go outside the apartment, understand, until five minutes to twelve. You can get the lady down here and ask me to explain the exact situation about Monday night. I'm not asking you to take my word for it—positively not."

Markham made a gesture dismissing the suggestion.
"What took place at five minutes to twelve?"
Mannix hesitated as if loath to come to the point.

"I'm a good fellow, I understand. And a friend of a friend. But I ask you—is that any reason why I—should get in wrong for something I didn't have absolutely nothing to do with?"
He waited for an answer, but receiving none, continued:

"Sure, I'm right—Anyway here's what happened. As I said, I was calling on the lady. But I had another date for later that night, so a few minutes before midnight I said good-bye and started to go. "Just as I opened the door I saw one sneaking away from the Canary's apartment down the little back hall to the side door. There was a light in the hall, and the door of Apartment 2 faces that side door. I saw the fellow as plain as I see you positively as plain."

"Who was it?"
"Well if you got to know it was Pop Cleaver."

Markham's head jerked slightly. "What did you do then?"
"Nothing, Mr. Markham—nothing at all. I didn't think much about it, y' understand. I knew Pop was chasing after the Canary, and I just supposed he'd been calling on her. But I didn't want Pop to see me—none of his business where I spend my time. So I waited quietly till he went off."

"By the side door?"
"Sure—Then I went out the same way. I was going to leave by the front door, because I knew the side door was always locked at night. But when I saw Pop go out that way, I said to myself I'd do the same. No sense giving your business away to a telephone operator if you haven't got to—no sense at all. So I went out the same way I came in. Picked up a taxi on Broadway, and went—"

"That's enough!" Again Vance's command cut him short.
"Oh, all right—all right," Mannix seemed content to end his statement at this point. "Only, y' understand, I don't want you to think—"

"We don't!"
Markham was puzzled at these interruptions, but made no comment.
"When you read of Miss Odell's death," he said, "why didn't you come to the police with this highly important information?"

"I should get mixed up in it," Mannix took place at five minutes to twelve."
Mannix hesitated as if loath to come to the point.

"I'm a good fellow, I understand. And a friend of a friend. But I ask you—is that any reason why I—should get in wrong for something I didn't have absolutely nothing to do with?"
He waited for an answer, but receiving none, continued:

"Sure, I'm right—Anyway here's what happened. As I said, I was calling on the lady. But I had another date for later that night, so a few minutes before midnight I said good-bye and started to go. "Just as I opened the door I shook his head emphatically.

"And you're certain of the time you saw Cleaver go out—five minutes to twelve?"
"Positively. I looked at my watch, and I said to the lady: 'I'm leaving the same day I came; it won't be tomorrow for five minutes yet.'"

Markham went over the story point by point, attempting by various means to make him admit more than he had already told. But Mannix neither added to his statement nor modified it in any detail and after half an hour's cross-examination he was permitted to go.

"We've found one missing piece of the puzzle, at any rate," commented Vance. "I don't see now just how it fits into the complete pattern, but it's helpful and suggestive. And, I say, how beautifully my intuition about Mannix was verified, don't y' know?"

"Yes, of course—your precious intuition," Markham looked at him sceptically. "Why did you shut him up twice when he was trying to tell me something?"
"I simply can't tell you, old dear. Awfully sorry, and all that."

His manner was whimsical, but Markham knew that at such times Vance was at heart most serious, and he did not press the question. I could not help wondering if Miss La Pose realized just how secure she had been in putting her faith in Vance's integrity.

Heath had been considerably shaken by Mannix's story.
"I don't savvy that side door being unlocked," he complained.
"How the hell did it get bolted again on the inside after Mannix went out? And who unbolted it after six o'clock?"

"In God's good time, my sergeant, all things will be revealed," said Vance.
"Maybe—and maybe not. But if we do find out, you can take it from me that the answer'll be Skeel! He's the bird we gotta get the goods on. Cleaver—is no expert jummy artist; and neither is Mannix."

"Just the same, there was a very capable technician on hand that night, and it wasn't your friend the Dude—though he was probably the Donatello who sculptured open the jewel-case."

"A pair of 'em, was there? That's your theory, is it, Mr. Vance? You said that once before, and I'm not saying you're wrong. But if we can hang any part of it on Skeel, we'll shook his head emphatically.

"And you're certain of the time you saw Cleaver go out—five minutes to twelve?"

shook his head emphatically.
"And you're certain of the time you saw Cleaver go out—five minutes to twelve?"
"Positively. I looked at my watch, and I said to the lady: 'I'm leaving the same day I came; it won't be tomorrow for five minutes yet.'"

Markham went over the story point by point, attempting by various means to make him admit more than he had already told. But Mannix neither added to his statement nor modified it in any detail and after half an hour's cross-examination he was permitted to go.

"We've found one missing piece of the puzzle, at any rate," commented Vance. "I don't see now just how it fits into the complete pattern, but it's helpful and suggestive. And, I say, how beautifully my intuition about Mannix was verified, don't y' know?"

"Yes, of course—your precious intuition," Markham looked at him sceptically. "Why did you shut him up twice when he was trying to tell me something?"
"I simply can't tell you, old dear. Awfully sorry, and all that."

His manner was whimsical, but Markham knew that at such times Vance was at heart most serious, and he did not press the question. I could not help wondering if Miss La Pose realized just how secure she had been in putting her faith in Vance's integrity.

Heath had been considerably shaken by Mannix's story.
"I don't savvy that side door being unlocked," he complained.
"How the hell did it get bolted again on the inside after Mannix went out? And who unbolted it after six o'clock?"

"In God's good time, my sergeant, all things will be revealed," said Vance.
"Maybe—and maybe not. But if we do find out, you can take it from me that the answer'll be Skeel! He's the bird we gotta get the goods on. Cleaver—is no expert jummy artist; and neither is Mannix."

"Just the same, there was a very capable technician on hand that night, and it wasn't your friend the Dude—though he was probably the Donatello who sculptured open the jewel-case."

"A pair of 'em, was there? That's your theory, is it, Mr. Vance? You said that once before, and I'm not saying you're wrong. But if we can hang any part of it on Skeel, we'll

Mrs. Partington was an imaginary old lady in a book. She was distinguished for her misuse of words.

During a tremendous high tide she "tried to keep the Atlantic Ocean out of her house with a mop."

Some times business men use ludicrously inadequate means to achieve their purposes. Wishes and hopes, unaided, are seldom effective.

Floydada C. Of C. Sponsors Contest

Rural School Pupils Over County Have Chance For "My Community" Contest In Essay Writing

FLOYDADA, Feb. 22.—Prof. A. L. in Floyd county will be given an opportunity of entering the "My Community" contest sponsored by the Floydada Chamber of Commerce, as one of the feature events of the Inter-scholastic League meet which will be held this year in Lockney. A silver loving cup will be awarded the winner of the speaking contest and will become the permanent property of the school of which he or she is a pupil.

Very similar to the "My Town" contest staged by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the annual conventions the community speakers deals with the rural community in which they live. Not more than five minutes is allowed for the speaker to enumerate the advantages of his or her community, and another one of the requirements is that the speech must be original with the speaker, assistance being allowed only in the use of English. One of the purposes of the contest is that it serves to better acquaint the people of Floydada and Lockney with the rural communities, many of which very little is known only by those who are directly connected with the schools.

The Sandhill school, nine miles west of Floydada, won the contest last year in which nine pupils, representing as many rural schools in the county, were entered. Thursday evening has been designated for the speaking which just precedes the opening day of the meet. The rural oral speaking contest, in which the winner awarded a $25 library by L. G. Mathews of this city, will also be held on that evening.

SANDINO FLEEING

But West Coast of Nicaragua Fears Attack

BLUE FIELDS, Nicaragua, Feb. 22.—Although rumors that General Sandino's force is headed for this coast have not been verified, Indian scouts sent out to establish contact with the insurrectionists report that the rebel leader has passed through Pena Blanca, department of Jinotega.

This makes it possible, it is pointed out, for him to strike at either of three important points on the east coast, Cabo Gracias, Puerto Cabezas, or Rio Grande. An attack upon the first point is looked upon as more likely and safe for him.

HOOVER TALKS

Says Romance of Engineering Is Imagination

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The romance and adventure of engineering exist chiefly in the imaginations of laymen, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover said tonight at the annual banquet of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Mr. Hoover was presented with the Saunders Gold Medal for his accomplishments as a mining engineer. Earlier in the day he inaugurated a nation-wide inquiry into industrial employment conditions at the first meeting of the new economic survey, and attended the quarterly meeting of the American Child Health association of which he is president.

After They're Hatched?

MANY thousands of poultry raisers have found that they CAN make a pretty close "count"—in advance—of the chicks they will save and turn into profits, when they feed Superior Orange Vitamine Chick Starter and Superior Orange Vitamine Growing Mash. Many report losses as low as 3 to 5 per cent—some report no losses—except from hawks, snakes, etc. Feeding these perfectly balanced chick feeds, which supply necessary vitamins in the form of dehydrated orange pulp and peel, is the surest way to start little chicks to robust health. They will reduce YOUR chick mortality—and every chick saved is money saved! Ask the Superior Feed dealer in your town for Superior Orange Vitamine Chick Feeds—and increase your poultry profits.

Shadowing of Jury Charged At Dallas

Is Only Development For Day In Trial of Mesquite Mayor for Death of Jack Kimbell.

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Feb. 22.—Arguments in the trial of John Lawrence of Mesquite for the murder of Jack Kimbell was begun late Tuesday with indications that the case would go to the jury Wednesday. A charge of contempt placed against J. J. Elam of Elam, Texas, for alleged attempted jury tampering was the only notable development of the trial Tuesday.

It was alleged that Elam made a verbal offer of $50 to T. L. Lawyer, called for jury service, to bring about a disagreement or a suspended sentence. Lawyer was not selected as a juror in the case.

Both state and defense rested at 10:30 a. m., on completion of rebuttal testimony, each side having presented about 30 witnesses during the eight days of the trial. T. K. Irwin, a rebuttal witness for the state, denied on the stand that he had said that Lawrence would have to retain him as counsel or he would be a witness for the state. Stanley Orin had testified that Irwin made this assertion to him.
