Crisis center seeking help

The Big Spring Rape Crisis/Victim Services center, which serves Howard, Martin, Borden and Glasscock counties, is taking applications for volunteer counselors, according to Executive Director Cecelia McKenzie.

Deadline for applications is Oct. 1 and interviews will be conducted Oct. 5-9.

McKenzie said a 40-hour training session for volunteers will begin Oct. 13 and will be conducted at night and on Saturday.

It is necessary to complete the full 40 hours of training.

Rape Crisis volunteers will be trained to assist sexual assault victims through all aspects of emotional, medical and legal processes.

Women and men 18 and older are encouraged to apply. Previous counselor experience is not required.

McKenzie said she hopes to get about 15 volunteers into the training program.

"We're really low on volunteers — we've lost a lot through attrition," she said.

Applications and additional information may be obtained by calling 263-3312 or 267-3626.

Drown remains in critical condition

By KERRY HAGLUND

A Big Spring man remains in critical condition after a Friday night accident in which his motorcycle collided with an automobile on FM 700.

And two other area residents were transported to local hospitals after a separate accident on FM 700 in which a driver was arrested on charges of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Terence Lee Drown, 31, 2911 West Highway 80 Apt. 61, was transported to Lubbock Methodist Hospital at 2:45 a.m. Saturday, according to a Scenic Mountain Medical Center spokesman.

Drown was listed in critical condition in the surgical intensive care unit at Lubbock Methodist Hospital Saturday evening, according to a hospital spokeswoman, who said he was suffering from head injuries.

The accident occurred at 11:01 p.m. Friday in the 1100 block of West FM 700 and the 1700 block of West 11th Place, according to police reports.

Gavina Chavez Nunez, 44, 608 N.E. Ninth St., collided with Drown's motorcycle when she attempted a left-hand turn onto 11th Place, according to the accident report.

Nunez reportedly misjudged Drown's speed and turned in front of him as he was traveling north on FM 700. Drown struck Nunez's car from the front to the rear quarter panel. He was thrown from his bike and landed about 50 feet from the point of impact, according to the accident report.

Chon Chavez, 49, 501 N.E. Ninth St., a passenger in Nunez's car, was taken to Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital where he was admitted.

Chavez didn't sustain any apparent injuries, but is suffering from amnesia, possibly because of a blow to the head, a hospital spokeswoman said Saturday.

Charges were filed against Nunez for failure to yield the right of way. She was not arrested in the accident.

Drown had been drinking, according

Implications of oil industry are Dallas topic

Dallas Times Herald Bureau

DALLAS — When OPEC producers went on a sales binge a year ago designed to put high-cost oil producers out of business, West Texas crude oil sold for $14 a barrel and Kuwaiti tankers transported crude under their own flag.

Twelve months later, OPEC has decided it can live with $18 oil, U.S. crude is selling at almost $20 a barrel and American forces are roaming the Persian Gulf trying to keep the oil flowing through the Strait of Hormuz.

The implications of these events for oil producers will be discussed this week at two major energy conferences in Dallas that are expected to draw more than 10,000 oil industry representatives.

OPEC officials, international oil traders and Wall Street energy analysts will be among the participants projecting next year's oil prices and discussing new sources of funding for future drilling projects.

"Last year the key question was the effect of lower oil prices," said Dennis O'Brien, chief economist for Caltex Petroleum, who will speak at OPEC and Future World Oil Supply, a symposium sponsored by SMU's Institute for the Study of Earth and Man on Oct. 1-2 at the Sheraton Dallas.

"This year with OPEC meeting at the end of the year, the question is 'How well can they manage the price? How well can they manage supply? How well can they manage the direction of the industry?' "

Some OPEC officials will be on hand to field such questions. Returning to the SMU conference this year is Alirio Parra, director of the Venezuelan national oil company, a veteran OPEC official who is considered a candidate for the post of secretary general.

Another perspective on OPEC strategy will come from Nordine Ait-Laossine, a Geneva-based oil consultant and former executive vice president of the Algerian national oil company. The widely quoted international oil consultant will address a conference sponsored by the Society of Petroleum Engineers

Great War survivors plan final meeting

HARLINGEN (AP) — Seventy years after they were shipped off to France, the last two survivors of a World War I U.S. Army detachment plan to uncork a bottle of champagne next week at what probably will be their final reunion.

McHenry Tichenor Sr., 89, of Harlingen, says he hopes he and 94-year-old Roy Baker of Oklahoma City find a lot to laugh about.

"Two sitting there moaning is not good," Tichenor says. "There's no time on earth for people to mean. You've got to make something out of nothing."

The two were among the 150 men in Company F of the 111th Ammunition Train, 36th Division, when they went off to the Great War.

Because some died in the war, the group already had diminished in size when it returned after the armistice in 1918. Tichenor says about 65 were left when the group held its first reunion about 25 years ago.

By 1981, when Tichenor's brother — Clay, a captain in the group — came up with the idea that they would buy a bottle of Moet champagne for the last surviving man to drink.

Clay Tichenor died two years ago and left the bottle to McHenry, who decided it would be a lonely exercise for just one man. So he decided to get together with Baker and drink in company.

He says he doesn't know what the two will talk about when they meet Thursday in Oklahoma City.

"You don't want to sit there and discuss the past. When you get there, it'll take care of itself," says Tichenor, who usually wears a bow tie when he drives himself to work every day as the owner of nine radio stations in six cities.

The tradition of setting aside a bottle for the last man dates back to the Civil War, says Tichenor, who remembers "last man" clubs as a boy in Kentucky. But the bottles there held bourbon instead of champagne.

"They were in every town,"

Guardian programs limited in Texas

Editor's note: This is the seventh in a series on the guardianship system in the United States, and Texas in particular. It was produced after a national investigation by a team of Associated Press reporters.

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — No one knew the bag lady who shuffled from garbage can to garbage can in downtown San Antonio actually was a retired school teacher who owned real estate across town, until her volunteer guardian began investigating.

"We got her medical care, good nutrition, sold some of her houses, fixed up one and got a live-in provider. And now she's a good lady," says Pat Bohne, executive director of the Guardianship Advisory Board Inc. of San Antonio.

The bag lady turned "good lady" is one of the lucky elderly Texans who live in a county where volunteers are trained to take on the complex requirements of being an incompetent's guardian — from securing bond and passing court scrutiny to preparing annual accountings of a ward's estate — when no family members or friends are willing or available.

Only three Texas counties — Tarrant, Travis and Bexar — have volunteer guardianship programs. The state's two largest cities, Houston and Dallas, have no organized means of appointing a guardian when an elderly incompetent has no one looking after his interests.

"Larger and larger numbers of people don't have anyone to serve in that capacity," said Rosemary Redmond, an attorney who is trying to organize a volunteer program in Dallas County.

Despite the growing need, the state does not have a public guardianship program and no state agency monitors guardianships, even though Texans older than 85 are the fastest growing age group in the nation, said John Willis, ombudsman for the Texas Depart-

JANE ROBERTS WOOD

West Texas stirs author

Herald staff report

Train to Estelline, by Jane Roberts Wood, is "the story of a young woman who leaves her sheltered family life in Bonham and travels by railroad, stagecoach and wagon to the bleak landscape near the Red River," according to a review in the Farmer's Branch Times.

The heroine, named Lucy, "is a 17-year-old girl who goes from her home in East Texas to Hall County in West Texas to teach in a one-room schoolhouse," Wood said. "Some of her students there are older than she is, and they inform her that she's the fourth teacher they've had. They ran off the other three."

The novel is the first for Wood, who lives in North Dallas after being raised in West Texas. It recently made the Dallas best seller list.

Copies will be for sale at a reception for Wood and other women's conference speakers Oct. 2 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Bent Tree Apartments clubhouse, according to coordinator Sherrie Bordofske. Wood will be on hand to autograph the books, Bordofske said.

Inspiration for the novel, Wood said, came from her mother's experiences as a West Texas schoolteacher.

"A few of the incidents in the book are true, but it is not a biography," she said. "Mother was always too busy to tell me much, but I do have the letters she and my father wrote to each other during their courtship."

Mostly Wood relied on her extensive research and her own imagination, according to the Farmer's Branch Times. For instance, a 15-foot well, used in the novel as a makeshift prison, is based on historical fact.

Pressure leads to Wright trust talk

DALLAS (AP) — Under pressure from growing questions about his personal finances, House Speaker Jim Wright is reportedly considering placing his holdings in a blind trust.

Marshall Lynam, Wright's administrative assistant, told the Dallas Morning News Friday that the Fort Worth Democrat had considered setting up a blind trust for some time, but that the idea was now under "active" consideration.

"A blind trust might get rid of some of these distractions," Lynam said of news reports about Wright's finances. "He is wholly immersed in his work in Congress and he doesn't need these distractions that rear up from time to time."

Wright has been the focus of recent stories about his business partnership with Fort Worth developer George Mallick in the investment firm Mallightco. Wright and his wife, Betty, formed the company with Mallick and his wife in 1979.

The advantage of placing his holdings in a blind trust, one Wright adviser said, is that it would remove the appearance of any conflict of interest and relieve the speaker of having to deal with his financial affairs while representing the public.

The Wrights and the Mallicks each invested about $60,000 in Mallightco, which had assets of more than $220,000 by the end of 1985. On his latest financial disclosure statement, Wright reported receiving more than $30,000 in dividends and loans in 1986.

Mallick until recently was involved in efforts to redevelop the Fort Worth Stockyards, for which Wright has written $30 million into federal appropriations bills in the last two years.

Mallick and others planned to borrow nearly $12 million of that to help finance the redevelopment plan, but Mallick dropped out of the project when he couldn't find investors to put up an additional $100 million in private funds.

Wright has not disclosed details of Mallightco's holdings, though House rules require disclosure of investments in privately held companies. But his office announced Friday that he would file an amended financial disclosure form to include more information about Mallightco.

According to Wright aides, the amended form will indicate that the company's investments include the following: precious and semi-precious stones, $50,000 to $100,000; stocks and bonds and real estate near Orlando, Fla., $15,000 to $50,000; and fixed assets, $5,000 to $15,000.

ding to the report, which listed that and failure to yield as contributing factors in the accident.

Two other Big Spring residents were taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center after a 9:30 p.m. Friday accident that occurred in front of Freddie's Bar, 1602 E. Marcy Drive.

Pete Russell Banks, 73, 1707 Purdue, and Myrtle Banks, 68, were treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, according to a hospital spokesman.

Banks' car collided with a car driven by Bradley Kyle Hildebrand, 28, P.O. Box 2773, when Hildebrand was leaving the parking lot of Freddie's, according to the accident report.

Banks said Hildebrand pulled out in front of him without his headlights on, according to the report. Banks was traveling east in the 1600 block of FM 700 when the accident occurred.

Hildebrand was given a breath test and charged with driving while intoxicated, according to police reports.

He was taken to the Big Spring police department and transferred to the county jail where he was released on a $1,000 bond.

Ruth Cochran, 25, was listed as a passenger in Hildebrand's vehicle.

Driving while under the influence of alcohol, defective headlamps and failure to yield the right of way were listed as contributing factors in the accident.

Oil industry

from Sept. 28-30 at the Dallas Convention Center.

While the environment is improved from this time last year, the oil industry continues to face uncertainty with experts differing on how events will unfold.

Some are expected to make the case that the evidence of overproduction by undisciplined cartel members will soon cause crude prices to slide from present levels around $19.50 back to $15 or less.

Marion Stewart, a Connecticut-based international oil analyst, notes that the excess oil supply became so great this summer that it "simply overwhelmed the effects of the widening tanker war."

He estimates that OPEC production during the past five months has exceeded world demand for crude oil by nearly 300 million barrels, "and when those supplies reach the market in October, prices will decline."

Merrill Lynch energy analyst Michael Rothman said that if high levels of production persist because of price cutting by OPEC member countries and if the Saudis do not allow their production levels to fall off by a significant amount, a decline to the $15-$16 level for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, "cannot be dismissed."

Hossein Tahmassebi, a former manager of Iran's national gas operation who now serves as chief economist for Ashland Oil Co., says the hostilities between the United States and Iran over tanker traffic in the Persian Gulf will create a volatile climate for oil prices in the coming months.

"My feeling is that the crude price will go down rather than go up," said Tahmassebi, an Iranian with a Harvard Ph.D. and a scheduled speaker at the SMU symposium.

While some economists are bearish on oil prices in the short term, others argue that OPEC members, led by Saudi Arabia, will maintain the official $18 basket price for crude oil, a move that has pushed U.S. oil prices close to $20 levels.

"OPEC is going to keep that price between $18 and $20 until 1990," says John Walsh, senior economist for Pennzoil in Houston. He says the official $18 OPEC price agreed on earlier this year is not an accident.

"Iraq shouldn't be overlooked," Walsh said. "It has to be brought into the quota system."

Commissioners to appoint tax appraisal board member

Herald staff report

Howard County commissioners will select a person to serve on the Howard County consolidated tax appraisal board Monday during the regular meeting of Commissioners Court.

Commissioners are scheduled to meet at 9 a.m. in the Commissioners Court, on the second floor of the Howard County Courthouse.

Commissioners also are scheduled to hear a request to build a county road into the industrial park, to appoint a property appraiser for U.S. Highway 87 right-of-way land purchases, and to approve a lease agreement for the Lakeview YMCA building.

They also will discuss a juvenile detention contract, hear presentations on two separate cafeteria insurance plans and approve a resolution to establish the central counting station for the Nov. 3 election.

The county and other taxing entities appoint a member to the appraisal board every two years, County Judge Milton Kirby said.

D.D. Johnston currently is the county's representative.

On the county road item, LeRoy Tillery said the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce would like the county to authorize construction of a county road into the industrial park.

Arnold Marshall, chairman of the Chamber's transportation committee, will propose construction of a road that will extend south of the Interstate 20 viaduct into the industrial park, Tillery said.

The road would facilitate truck traffic in and out of the industrial park, he said, adding that the road was proposed to ease transportation of pipe to and from Freecom Inc.

On the U.S. Highway 87 item, Kirby said commissioners have a list of seven parcels of land that the county will purchase for the highway expansion.

The state is paying for construction costs of the 2½-mile expansion, and the county has agreed to provide the right of way — the land that must be purchased to expand the highway to four lanes.

The area to be purchased by the county is 2½ miles long and 25 feet wide, Kirby said. Improvements will extend south from Hearn Street to the Glasscock County line.

Commissioners Monday are expected to appoint an appraisal director to appraise the land.

Commissioners also are expected to continue a lease agreement with the Big Spring Independent School District for the lease of the Lakeview YMCA. The building, located at the county park on Northwest Fourth Street, is leased for $1 per year, Kirby said.

The building is used for community programs and recently was used during the Diez y seis de septiembre celebration.

Although the county has its own juvenile detention center, housed in the Courthouse Annex, commissioners will consider entering into a contract with an Abilene center, Kirby said.

The contract, which would not involve any payments unless someone is sent to the center, would provide an alternative if the county's center becomes full, he said.

It costs $50 a day to house juveniles at the Abilene center, Kirby said.

Tichenor says. "We appreciated them."

Company F consisted mainly of men from Oklahoma and North Texas, says Tichenor, who was recruited by his brother and met up with the group at Camp Bowie in Fort Worth.

"You see, the overriding thought with all of us kids was not whether we would get in. It was getting in and getting it over," he says. "The press built it up to the point where even our mothers were eager for us to go over there. It appeared that Germany was going to take over the world."

While stationed northeast of Paris, he says he saw death, "wholesale, Lord, yes, and I'll ask you: What came of it?"

He says he felt much older after spending less than a year in the war that was supposed to end all wars.

"It was futile," Tichenor says. "We had no business in it. What we've done in our wars is we've destroyed our natural resources."

Tichenor, who claims he used his engineering studies to devise a way to dodge machine-gun bullets, returned from the war at the rank of second-class private, lower than when he arrived in France as a first-class private.

It was his punishment for going on furlough without leave, but he says the unauthorized time off as a tourist is his best memory of the war.

He and Baker, a retired Oklahoma City banker, will drink to the men who did not make it to the last reunion of Company F.

"What we'll do is in honor of the 184 other lads who offered their life to this country," Tichenor says. "It's to honor them. God knows there's nothing to honor Tichenor and Baker about."

Entrance exams

Money, work needed to boost scores

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas parents looking for a quick way to increase college entrance exam scores must spend time as well as money to boost their children's chances, the state education commissioner says.

Billions of dollars for school reform have yet to do the job, according to recent test results, but Commissioner W.N. Kirby said it is too soon to expect significantly higher test scores.

"Not only in high school, but in pre-kindergarten through 12th grade, the thing we can do the fastest is the thing we can do cheapest: Get parents to accept responsibility for the education of their children," Kirby said.

"The most dramatic way we can turn around scores right now is for every parent to say every day to their child how important a good education is," he added.

College entrance scores released Tuesday showed Texas results virtually unchanged from the previous year. On the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the mean score on the verbal section was 416 for students who took the test in the spring, down three points from the 1986 results. The mean on the math section was 459, up a point from 1986.

The highest possible score on each section of the SAT is 800. This year's national mean on the math section was 476, and the mean on the verbal part was 430.

On the American College Testing exam, graded on a scale of one to 32, the Texas average increased to 17.3 this year from 17.1 last year. The national ACT mean was 18.7.

Jan Gams of New York, assistant director of public affairs for the College Board that sponsors the SAT, said no state has ever shown a quick, dramatic increase in its scores. It is impossible to link the added money Texas is spending with the kind of results Texans should expect, she said.

"That requires an evaluation of what they are spending the money on," Ms. Gams said. "And what really improves education?"

Kirby noted what could be a telling link between test scores and course load. Texas high school students who had taken 20 or more credits in academic subjects scored slightly above the national average. But only 18 percent of Texas students take 20 academic credits or more.

The state requires 21 credits, but that includes physical education and electives. The State Board of Education is looking at increasing the required course load, Kirby said.

The commissioner was pleased that the scores remained constant although about 12,000 additional students took the test this year.

He cautioned against using the SAT and ACT scores as a measure of the success of the education reforms, highlighted by the 1984 legislative bill that included a new high school exit test, literacy tests for teachers and no pass, no play for extracurricular activities.

Kirby noted that many of the more important changes — such as smaller classes — were made in elementary grades, and that eventually will have an effect on test scores, he said. Scores on basic skills tests given in several grades are increasing.

"When those kids get up there to take these tests, you are going to see some significant improvement," Kirby said of the college entrance exams.

Some are hoping the improvement shows up sooner.

"Within four or five years we ought to really see some changes," said Sandy Kibby, legislative chairman for the Texas Parent-Teachers Association. "I'll really be concerned if we don't."

Papal visit costs exceed donations

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A revenue shortfall will force Roman Catholic officials to take more than $250,000 from a contingency fund to help pay the bill for Pope John Paul II's visit to Texas.

Bills totaling more than $300,000 had been received by Friday with estimated $250,000 on the way, said the Rev. Larry Stuebben, chairman of the Texas Papal Visit Committee. The contingency expenditures are for transporting people to and from the papal Mass site.

"It looks to me like there's no question we're going to have to subsidize the transportation bill more than we had wanted to," Stuebben, coordinator of the papal visit, said Friday.

About $250,000 in revenue is expected from sales of $3 round-trip tokens, he said.

"We're going to have to reach into our contingency fund," Stuebben said. "That's part of the $2.5 million budget."

Derese granted parole after 10 years

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman convicted of planning the brutal slayings of her parents in 1976 has been paroled after serving 10 years of two concurrent life sentences.

Paula Cantrell Derese was released on Aug. 12, said her lawyer, Ken McLean. She is believed to be living in the Dallas area, the Houston Chronicle reported on Saturday.

Baytown football hero Vernon McManus was convicted and sentenced to die for the slayings, but he was released earlier this year after his conviction was overturned.

McLean said Ms. Derese, 37, had asked for a furlough to visit relatives but was denied because she hadn't served enough time on her sentence.

"Then, the following Monday they came to her and told her to get her stuff, she was going home," he said. The board had denied Ms. Derese parole four previous times.

Her parents, Paul and Mary Cantrell, were found dead in their Baytown home. They had been strangled and their throats were slashed.

McManus was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to death. But after serving 10 years on death row, the conviction was overturned in January because a potential juror was improperly dismissed.

Threats slow nuclear plant loading

BAY CITY (AP) — Iranian terrorist threats prompted tighter security at the South Texas Nuclear Project, pushing fuel loading back seven weeks and costing an additional $30 million, officials said.

An official with Houston Lighting & Power Co., the project's managing partner, said the threat occurred while the plant was being assessed for its security system.

"Iran threatened American energy resources. It was an undefined threat," said Jerome Goldberg, HL&P's vice president in charge of the plant. "But because it was made, the security of all nuclear power plants has been dramatically increased."

Veterans Wall will move you

A moving experience.

That is what West Texans have to look forward to during the next several days.

The visit to Big Spring of the Moving Wall, a replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington D.C., salutes more than simply the 58,022 who died in Southeast Asia. It salutes also the thousands more who returned — to a country many felt was indifferent to what had occurred thousands of miles away.

Twenty-three Howard County residents gave their lives during the U.S. involvement in Vietnam, and they will be specially honored during ceremonies planned for the week-long event.

Our salute to them is appropriate.

To say that this is a once-in-a-lifetime experience is no exaggeration. It is unlikely that the half-scale replica will ever again be hosted in Big Spring. This is an exclusive for West Texas and the final visit to this state during 1987.

Pastor Keith Gibbons is deserving of a pat on the back for his leadership in guiding the Moving Wall's committee to its success in preparation for the visit. He and the entire committee have covered considerable ground — much on a first time basis — since its first meeting Nov. 19.

Well done.

Now, with the planning virtually complete, all that remains is for the community to play host to the event.

Numerous volunteers have responded to the even more numerous opportunities for their services. They are tasks that seem likely to pay off handsomely to the volunteers willing to give of their time.

Whether you are a Vietnam veteran, a relative of one who served, a volunteer, or simply an observer to this chapter of our country's history, you are sure to long remember this salute to those who have fallen.

'I keep feeling guilt, wondering why God saved me'

By BOB GETZ
Guest columnist

All night long they keep coming to the Wall. All night long, every night.

Men alone. Women alone. Couples. Buddies. Kids. Middle-aged guys in old Army fatigue jackets. Guys blotto-stinko-staggering drunk.

It is pushing midnight now.

Crickets chirp. Traffic on nearby Hillside is light. A full moon hovers high over "The Moving Wall" to the south.

A Vietnam vet in a dark blue shirt is back for his third and final visit to see the Wall before it's taken down Friday night. He sits down on one of the chairs spread facing the Wall in the dark behind the overhead lights.

Tom Hartman, a 38-year-old vet who is the night supervisor at the Wall, tells the man in the blue shirt, "There's always visitors here, at all hours. A lot of vets come here first with their families, then come back alone at night.

"It's like days, guys hold themselves together. Nights, you'll see 'em up against trees, bawling, or really liquored up."

Over beyond the Wall, a sobbing man is led away by a friend. At the Wall, Dean Britting, a Wichita businessman, stares at one panel.

"You know how many friends you have in a lifetime you really hit it off with? Who are really special?" Britting said.

He's looking at a name on the top row of a panel: David P. Peterson.

"Pete was quite a guy," Britting said. "Really intelligent. Great sense of humor. Graduated fourth in a class of 288 from OCS (Officers Candidate School). He flew Mohawks in Vietnam.

"He had 20 days to go. A round hit his instrument panel. He was wounded, but survived the crash. But when they were lifting him up into a Huey (helicopter) by pulley, he fell and was killed. He was 22."

Over by a tree, a thin, clean-cut looking man who had been sitting on the ground staggers to his feet, loses his balance, stumbles several steps backward and crashes hard to the ground. Hartman hurries over, helps the man get his bearings, and the guy weaves wordlessly off into the darkness.

It's around 1 a.m. A relatively young man arrives alone and sits down close to the vet in the blue shirt. Steve Hayes is 37, looks no more than 27. He is hurting. He can't shake the loss of a buddy.

"Sammy Rodriguez of San Antone," he says. "He was really a good friend. The last time I talked to old Sammy, he was about to ship out. I talked to him on the phone, and I started cryin'. I had a feeling.

"It was more than two years later, I was in San Antone, and I called his house. His sister answered, and I freaked her out. I asked for Sammy. She said what I was doing was terribly cruel, an awful thing. He had been dead for two years. I didn't know. I didn't know."

Hayes pauses, looks at the Wall.

"I keep feeling this guilt," he says. "I always wonder why God saved me."

For years, Ron Rogers has run the Vet Center in Wichita, helping vets, listening, counseling. Rogers, who was with the 13th Artillery Headquarters in Phu Loi, thought he had his head together.

"The Wall really touches a lot of emotions in you," Rogers would say. "After Tuesday's ceremonies, I was having problems handling it.

"When they called on the Vietnam veterans to go up and salute the wreaths Tuesday night, I couldn't go up there. I couldn't go up close.

"So one of the things the Wall did for me was reveal there may still be some things I need to address myself."

It is well after 2 a.m. now. But people keep coming.

Dave Chandler takes a chair next to Hartman and the vet in the blue shirt. Chandler, probably around 40, is a really pleasant man. No bitterness in his voice. But he has been getting counseling. He was a helicopter door gunner with the Marines in 1966-67. He left the Marines after 10 years with an ulcer and a serious drinking problem.

Sitting in the dark in the middle of the night, telling his story, Chandler's eyes sweep the length of the Wall, across the 58,000 names, and then he says what every vet who has visited the Wall probably thought.

"I can sit here," he says, looking at his hands, "and feel like I'm in their company. It's like everybody's here."

Prison issue questions are posed

To the editor:

I am not sure if all of my information is correct, but I have heard that the private prison system that some people are so anxiously trying to get here would eventually work into a 5,000-inmate maximum security prison unit.

But is that what we really want? This is something we really need to weight out, pray about, and find out if we really do want it.

It seems that some people have jumped from one extreme to another. After the SSC deal, which would have lured professional researchers and scientists, became doubtful, they turn around and go after a prison that would bring in professional criminals.

Kind of ironic, isn't it? What happened to the middle ground? Could we be reaching for this prison out of frustration or desperation? I hope not. Both frustration and desperation can make us do and accept foolish things.

I would hate for this beautiful community to become known as "Big Spring, the Cross Bars of West Texas."

I was talking to a friend the other day about this and he asked me the first thing to come to my mind when he said, "Huntsville." The first thing that came to my mind was a place I didn't like going through when I was a child because it was where the prisoners were. Is this what we want?

Money is a big issue in all of this. And for good reason. Our economy needs it. But at the same time we have to watch out for it because its power can cause us to grab for it first, then ask questions later.

Prison guards in higher security prisons are subjected to a tremendous amount of stress and tension. They are among the highest stress workers of any profession. The same subjectivity to stress and tension can be true for a community with a high security prison within its environment. Do we want to deal with that?

Maybe the proposed prison system is one of the best things that could happen to our community. Maybe it is one of the worst. I feel what we must do now is be open to all of the information and consequences — both major and subtle, both positive and negative — and find out if this prison is what we really want.

Beyond that we should pray very strongly to God that if this prison system will be for our highest and truest good and prosperity, then bring it to us. If not, then keep it away.

Crime doesn't pay — for computer time

By ROBERT WERNSMAN

The life of a criminal is getting tougher all the time.

Technology is beginning to catch up with them — and in one case, helping the police do the same.

Just my type

Who ever considered computer training might be required if you hope to succeed in a life of crime?

A crime was foiled earlier this year with the aid of a computer that accurately predicted when and where a burglary would occur.

A computer system storing data in a west Dallas suburb has been producing information concerning criminal suspects — descriptions, methods of operation and locations, times and dates of offenses.

It compiles information on a likely suspect, detailing a certain area of town and a time and date for the crime.

The computer tipped officers recently that a burglary suspect would strike again between the hours of midnight and 4 a.m. on Tuesday. It also outlined a target area.

The computer observed that the man usually cruised a target area for an hour before striking. Officers were watching the area when the burglary suspect was spotted about 3 a.m.

Police alerted backup officers and the canines, and began searching area businesses, the Associated Press reported.

A police dog found a suspect hiding inside a business at 4:40 a.m., having caused about $400 damage to two doors and had about $100 worth of stolen property when he was apprehended.

The 36-year-old man was arrested after a brief struggle. He was taken to a hospital and treated for a dog bite, then placed in city jail.

A computer picking probable crime sites. Who — including a criminal — would have expected that?

Incidentally, I enjoyed my first participation in a county fair to the hilt last week.

That might seem strange to anyone who has been attending for the past 20 years — or got their fill 20 years ago — but the entire atmosphere was fun for me this year.

Since I raise the issue, you must guess that judging of my cookies in the women's division was a success. Successful enough that I'm glad the competition isn't as limiting as its name would indicate.

They may call it women's division, but Zula Rhodes was more than happy to accept my entry of chocolate chip cookies. Then, after the judges gave it a blue ribbon, she was even happier to discuss my recipe.

I admit feeling pretty good — hey, do you remember your first blue ribbon? — but, we need to keep things in perspective.

And that is: This batch is gone. Can you do it again?

Always another challenge.

But, I'll not burden you any longer with the subject. No boasting, no bragging — not even any more to be written about chocolate chip cookies.

At least, not until the next time.

Officials' education thunder disturbing

By JESSE TREVINO

Texans last week heard the unmistakable thunder of the season's first cool wave colliding with summer's leftover heat.

But more disturbing thunder came from two of the state's top elected officials on the matter of public school financing.

Having met with state education officials to discuss the impact of Judge Harley Clark's decision that the way the state finances its public schools is unconstitutional, Gov. Bill Clements and House Speaker Gib Lewis engaged in rhetoric which can only serve to polarize the public on an issue critical to the state's future.

Clark ruled in April that the present system discriminates against students in poor districts and must be changed. Many of the students the system penalizes are Hispanic, black and rural; the system must be equalized, he said, because it violates the Texas Constitution. Along with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Clements and Lewis agreed to establish a blue ribbon panel to study what effect the decision, if upheld, would have on Texas schools.

No one can quarrel with that.

The decision could have a drastic impact on Texas schools and the state's budget. But what must be examined, too, is how Clements and Lewis sought to frame the debate over the Clark decison.

Perhaps these two politicians must make these kinds of utterances — later to be disregarded — for the consumption of their constituents. But thousands of Texans read and heard these comments, and it is what those thousands are thinking that is important.

Jesse Trevino

What they heard was this: Clements warned the decision, if upheld, would destroy the public education system "that we have historically had in Texas." The decision, Clements said, would turn the public schools "inside out, upside down."

Lewis wanted to alert Texas that the impact would be "very devastating to local school districts."

Yes, gentlemen, that is exactly right.

Responsible Texans who foresaw the demographic impact Mexican-Americans were going to have on Texas' economy have been trying for decades to change a system which historically penalized Mexican-Americans in this state. The system, which discriminates against students who are born into largely rural or poor school disticts, must go.

Clements and Lewis apparently favor retaining a method of financing schools which permits some financially crippled school districts to be so broke as to not have enough money to sweep their floors, much less attract competent teachers.

Clements' description of Clark's decision is unfair and precisely the kind of intemperate language which must be avoided if a rational solution is to be found to a problem whose origins are 150 years old.

Why is it unfair? It is unfair because the Clark issue is so complex. Local taxpayers already have enough trouble understanding why their taxes are so high to understand that Texas is undergoing dramatic changes.

The ill-advised thunder we heard from Clements and Lewis is well-founded: This issue is laden heavy with controversy. But can we do it without reopening old wounds and pitting class against class?

Jesse Trevino writes on Hispanic and political issues.

N.Y. sniper kills three

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A sniper firing on passers-by from his apartment building killed three people and seriously wounded two others Saturday before throwing down his rifle and surrendering to police, authorities said.

The suspect, Robert L. Beebe, 55, tossed a .30-caliber rifle from the roof of the building and surrendered to police about 1:30 a.m. Police later found a rifle, cross-bow and a chest containing ammunition in his apartment.

The shooting spree began as a domestic quarrel between Beebe and his wife, said Albany Detective Lt. Robert C. Grebert. He said he believed the first shots may have been fired at Beebe's wife, who was not identified by police but was not among the dead or wounded.

Freedom day saluted

McDONALD, Pa. — Forty-five miles north of the Mason-Dixon Line that separated North from South, whites and blacks gathered with Fourth of July fanfare Saturday to remember the Civil War document that freed the slaves 125 years ago this week.

"It's not a black holiday," organizer Carl Joseph Powell said as the daylong Emancipation Proclamation Day festivities got under way. "It's a holiday for everyone, a holiday for free people."

The day's events include a parade, a roast beef picnic, concerts by high school bands and a street dance in front of the Elks lodge in this southwestern Pennsylvania community of about 2,800.

"You're just free at heart. You have to keep faith in something. You have to remember your roots," said Lenora Kemp, 36, a lifelong resident.

President Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, which was signed on Sept. 22, 1862 and went into effect on Jan. 1, 1863, declared that "all slaves in areas still in rebellion" were "thenceforward and forever free."

Sen: MIA remains held

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The premier of Cambodia says his country holds the remains of missing U.S. servicemen killed during the Vietnam war and is willing to release them, a newspaper reports.

"We have the remains and we have the name tags," Premier Hun Sen told the Los Angeles Times in an interview published in today's editions. "We are prepared to release them on the basis of humanitarianism."

Hun Sen said he didn't have an exact count of the remains, but said there were "quite a number" and more were being sought.

Killings

Youth mystifies community

ELKLAND, Mo. (AP) — Townspeople and authorities remained mystified Saturday after a quiet, hard-working 14-year-old boy apparently killed six members of his family before he died in a struggle with his wounded uncle.

Kirk Buckner died Friday morning with the .22-caliber pistol in his hand. The gun was used to kill six of his family members.

Buckner apparently killed his mother and father, three younger brothers and an aunt Friday in two separate attacks, Webster County Sheriff Eugene Fraker said.

Fraker said he was continuing his investigation and could not declare with certainty the youth was the killer.

Residue was removed from the hands of the youth and his father, to be sent to a crime laboratory Monday for testing for evidence of gunpowder. Authorities did not have a chance to get residue samples from the uncle's hands before he was flown to a hospital in Springfield, Fraker said.

Financial pressure may have driven Buckner, a high-school freshman who worked long hours helping out on the family's financially-troubled dairy farm, Fraker said.

No notes or other evidence has been found to firmly establish a motive in the mass slaying in the small Ozark mountain community, Fraker said.

Bill Shoemaker, a friend who saved Buckner from drowning two years ago, said the boy was depressed recently.

"He never said anything to me about why he was down," Shoemaker said. "I wish he would have."

Buckner was found dead of gunshot and stab wounds with what authorities described as a Saturday Night Special in his hands after apparently fighting with his uncle, Jim Schnick. The body of Schnick's wife, Julie, who was in her 30s, was found shot to death in her bed.

The first shootings occurred before dawn at the Buckners' ramshackle farm near Elkland, a town of 200 residents located about 20 miles northeast of Springfield.

His mother, Jan Buckner, in her 30s, was found dead near a milk barn. The other Buckner children — 2-year-old Michael, 6-year-old Timmy and 8-year-old Dennis — were found shot to death inside the house.

Steve Buckner, the boys' father also in his 30s, was shot in his pickup truck and dumped alongside a road between the farms.

Bush talks to Wojciech

WARSAW, Poland — Vice President George Bush met Saturday with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski as he began a four-day visit to Poland with a declaration that he would seek to promote freedom in a way that does not "disrupt or divide" the communist country.

"We seek only to play a constructive role in bringing about the national reconciliation that everyone in Poland desires and to promote the cause of freedom," said Bush, the highest-ranking American official to visit this nation in a decade.

"I want to make clear that our intention is not to disrupt or divide, nor is it to interfere," he said.

Khomeini tumor alleged

PARIS — Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, 87, is suffering from a brain tumor and will undergo surgery in Austria in November, the French weekly news magazine L'Express reported.

The magazine, which appeared on French newsstands Friday, said authorities in Tehran, Iran, had contacted 80-year-old Austrian physician Karl Fellinger to help find a doctor to perform the surgery.

It quoted what it called informed Iranian sources, but did not identify them.

Surgery has been scheduled for early November at an unidentified clinic in Vienna, L'Express reported. Fellinger is connected with Vienna's Rudolfinerhaus Hospital, which has a section for patients requiring high security.

L'Express also said a villa in a diplomatic neighborhood of Vienna was being renovated to accommodate Khomeini.

Black homeland calms

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The acting prime minister of Transkei was quoted as saying that calm returned Saturday to that nominally independent black homeland after the military forced eight Cabinet ministers to resign.

"Not a single person has been arrested or detained" since Thursday's shakeup, the independent South African Press Association quoted Dumnisani Gladstone Gwadiso as saying.

Gwadiso, a 35-year-old tribal chief, was named acting prime minister by Transkei President Tutor Ndamase on Friday.

Gwadiso stepped in for Prime Minister George Matanzima, who was in a South African hospital on Thursday when most of his Cabinet was forced to quit. Matanzima and other government officials recently were accused of corruption.

Guardianship

Volunteers work to patch system's cracks

SEATTLE (AP) — Eleven years ago, Emory suffered a stroke that pushed him through a hole in a system with no safety net for people like him — elderly people with disabilities, no family and little money who need independence as much as they need help.

The Foundation for the Handicapped stepped in to catch him.

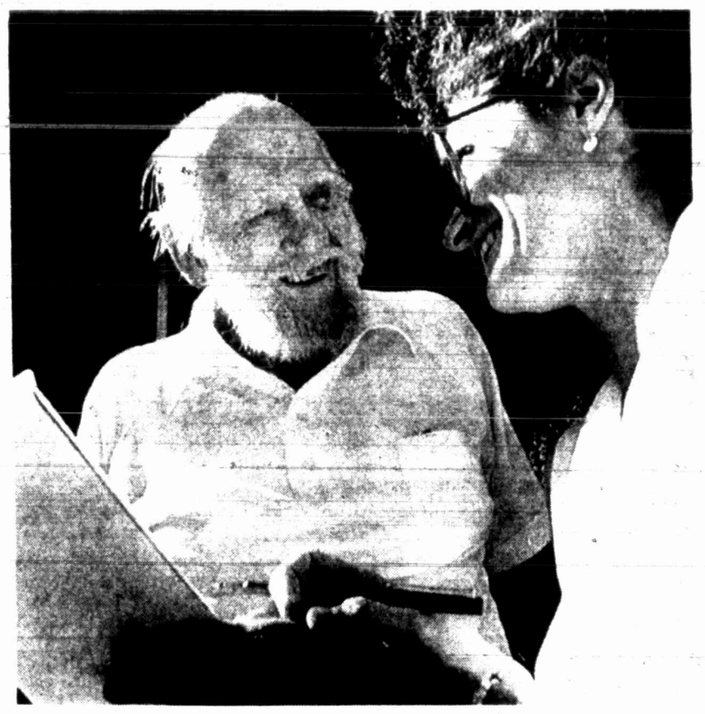

The 22-year-old, private, nonprofit foundation is one of the nation's oldest and largest corporate guardianship programs. It fulfills the function of a public guardian in a less bureaucratic and more personal way, helping elderly and disabled people manage their money and lives.

"There just wasn't any other agency available to provide guardianship services to elderly persons," said Executive Director George Marcoe, who estimated that 400 of the agency's 650 guardianships involve the elderly.

Funded by the United Way and private donations, the foundation manages more than $8 million in estates and trusts, and investments are monitored by a committee of trust officers. A volunteer network provides outreach and advocacy services, although the agency needs volunteers for 100 more clients.

"I think they do a good job in financial aspects of the guardianships," said attorney Karen Thompson, who acts as a court investigator in guardianship cases. "I think they would acknowledge that they don't do as well on the personal service end of it, of really having the time and staff to be an advocate for the personal needs. There's an incredible demand for the service."

In many cases, the foundation's elderly clients have few assets. Abandoned by their families, they live alone or semi-independently on small pensions or their entitlement money, such as Social Security or disability benefits. At some point, either through physical or mental disability, they have become unable to care for themselves, and they are referred to the foundation by hospitals, social service agencies or friends.

Emory, who suffered a stroke 11 years ago, communicates with nurse Victoria Bozzacco during a visit earlier this month in Seattle. Bozzacco, who is a volunteer guardianship advocate for the Foundation for the Handicapped, writes down yes-or-no questions, and Emory shakes or nods his head.

If there is an estate, the foundation will take a fee for its work, as allowed by law. It often is a paltry sum for the time and work involved.

"They work on nothing," said Kathleen Moore, an attorney who has worked as a guardian. "They do what they can, but it certainly isn't enough. I don't fault them because (financially) they're just not able to do more."

In one case, for example, the foundation took 5 percent a month to liquidate a woman's uninhabitable home and pay her nursing home and medical expenses — a total annual fee of less than $150.

Forty percent of the agency's clients are under personal guardianships, but another 40 percent are involved in more limited arrangements that manage their estate alone or simply make sure their bills are paid.

"We usually enter into the relationship based at the level of need," Marcoe said. "We try not to take any more of the person's individual rights than we have to."

Monitoring and advocacy are central to the foundation's philosophy. A casework structure was replaced two years ago by volunteers, called guardianship advocates, who work one-on-one with clients to ensure they receive proper care.

Victoria Bozzacco, 32, a nurse, became one of the agency's 35 advocates a year ago by answering an ad in a weekly newspaper. Emory was one of her two clients.

Communication has been an "incredible trick," Bozzacco said. She writes down yes-or-no questions, and Emory shakes or nods his head. Despite the barriers, they have become comfortable together, she said. They celebrated his 81st birthday in May with cake and presents. She satisfies his sweet tooth with cookies and replenishes his medical supplies.

Lately, Bozzacco has done more serious work on his behalf. The hotel where Emory lived asked him to leave, and she spent two months wandering a bureaucratic maze to find him another home.

"If I could tell you how many social workers I've talked to, how many false starts," she said. "It has taken lots of time, lots of phone calls."

She knows nothing of his past, nor he of hers. He never leaves his hotel. He has no family or friends, and the volunteer is virtually his only visitor.

Yet despite his isolation and frustrating disability, he remains a person of great charm and warmth, courtly and gracious.

"It's been a learning experience to watch an elderly person whose life gets gradually smaller and whose health is not what it used to be and who lives with a lot of frustration," Bozzacco said.

"But it seems as if his essential self is very much intact in spite of everything," she said. "And that's been really a heartening thing for me to see, as I reflect what might happen in my own life."

Guardians

ment on Aging.

The Texas Department of Human Resources will intervene in cases of elderly abuse until a guardian is appointed, but otherwise avoids guardianship cases because of possible conflicts of interest, said Kathy Cates, program specialist at the DHS in Austin.

The result is a patchwork of programs, in some of the state's 254 counties: a Tarrant County judge who "commandeered" young attorneys as guardians until a volunteer program was established in Fort Worth, a judge in Dallas County who keeps a list of people willing to serve as a favor to her and the court, and countless judges who have no options at all. They can either appoint an attorney to serve — with the costs coming out of their budgets if the ward has no estate — or do nothing.

And senior citizens, because of age, infirmity and isolation, are prone to the kind of exploitation that a caring guardian can help prevent, attorneys and judges say.

"It's a tremendous unmet need throughout Texas, not only in metropolitan areas but in rural Texas as well," Willis said.

"Non-professional community groups are taking the leadership in developing guardianship programs," he said. "The state of Texas is not in a position of funding a public guardianship program. For the next 10 years, we're looking at ways of doing it informally, or with private means."

The volunteer guardianship program in San Antonio, which was founded in March 1981 and now serves about 300 elderly people at a time, is the largest and oldest of the three in Texas.

Volunteer Guardians of Tarrant County, a program begun in Fort Worth in the fall of 1985, has a caseload of about two dozen wards, with another dozen on a waiting list.

Family Eldercare of Austin began its volunteer guardianship program in March and was serving nine people by late summer, with an anticipated caseload of at least 25, said program director Clairece Feagin. Of the nine people being served, five had guardians and four had representative payees, someone authorized to sign their Social Security checks.

As word spreads about the program, the number of inquiries increases, Feagin said.

"The more professionals learn of the service, the more calls we're getting from physicians, attorneys, bankers, social workers. There are an awful lot of people out there who can't quite manage the money aspect," she said.

"No one seems to know the number of people who need guardianship, but I do know the difference a volunteer guardian can make in a frail, elderly person's life," says Colleen Colton, program coordinator for the Tarrant County volunteers. "The appointment of a volunteer guardian makes an enormous difference in the availablity of medical care, the quality of living conditions and the preservation of assets."

One of the volunteer programs' goals is to appoint a guardian who can supervise medical care, meals, finances and other matters to enable an elderly person to stay at home rather than enter a nursing home.

Although the majority of the wards in the programs in Fort Worth and San Antonio have little money, some have larger estates and are vulnerable to exploitation by unscrupulous family members or outsiders, the coordinators say.

A volunteer guardian appointed to the case of a Tarrant County woman who was living like a pauper discovered the ward had as much as $50,000 stowed in a variety of bank accounts, Colton said.

Another volunteer looking for a ward's drivers license found 18 uncashed Social Security checks hidden in the woman's house.

Tarrant County Probate Judge Pat Ferchill calls the Fort Worth program a godsend.

"We, as a nation, face a problem in finding guardians for certain mental incompetents, namely elderly, whose relatives live in distant states, are themselves incompetent — or families sometimes turn their backs on that person. ... Before the volunteer guardians, I had no alternative but to commandeer a young attorney," Ferchill said.

The Tarrant County program has a waiting list, and the demand for guardians in Bexar County has continued to grow since the program's beginnings, Bohne said.

Yet locating volunteers is time-consuming.

Modern laws date far back

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Mary King, 21 years old, owner of 250 acres of land, was accused of being a lunatic.

Her story, spelled out on yellow, ancient parchment, has been repeated countless times. The papers say Mary King "hath been so far deprived of her reason and understanding that she is thereby rendered altogether unfit and unacceptable by reason of her lunacy to govern herself or her estate."

Today, she is history. Her "Commission of Lunacy" papers are buried in dusty boxes in the state archives here. But the process by which she was accused and the court that declared her a lunatic live today.

The accuser was her brother, Henry King, who went to Delaware's Chancery Court to argue that his sister was incompetent. He asked to manage her estate.

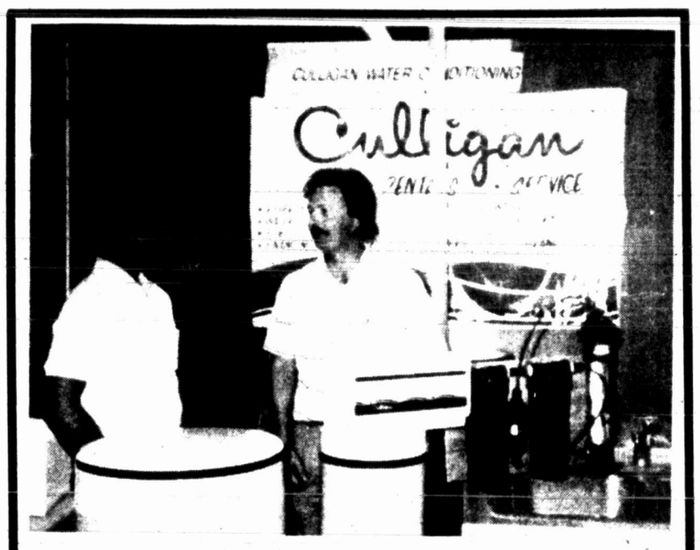

The date was June 16, 1802. The U.S. Constitution was 15 years old. Thomas Jefferson was president. And in Delaware, the first state to ratify the Constitution, one of the country's earliest cases of guardianship was unfolding.

The language and some procedures are different, but the case has much in common with modern guardianship proceedings.

In Mary King's case, Sheriff Kendal Batson chose "12 good and lawful men" who met at Henry King's house in North West Fork for an "inquisition." Two neighbors testified that Mary King had been acting crazy for about three years.

The jury agreed, and Henry King was put in charge of his sister's estate. Forever after, the court referred to the woman as "Mary King the Lunatic."

Today, terms such as "idiot" and "lunatic" have been replaced by "incompetent" and "infirm" in guardianship laws; a judge, not a jury, decides such cases, and doctors' affidavits replace the testimony of neighbors.

Joe Biden's candidacy unravels swiftly

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was supposed to have been Joseph Biden's finest hour: a chance to showcase the 1988 presidential candidate as a forceful senator in charge of the confirmation hearings on the Supreme Court nomination of Robert H. Bork.

But instead, as the Bork hearings unfolded, the Biden candidacy unraveled.

In a mad frenzy over 10 days, the "mistakes" that ended the Delaware Democrat's campaign tumbled out — stealing lines from other politicians, plagiarizing a law school exam, hyping his achievements.

It was a departure stunning in its swiftness and intensity. In the end, you could almost hear the roar of the freight train that flattened the Biden campaign.

He withdrew as a candidate on Wednesday, bade an emotional farewell to his supporters and campaign aides in Iowa and New Hampshire on Thursday, and was back at the helm of the Bork hearings on Friday. He was defrocked as a 1988 presidential candidate, but still a senator hinting that his White House aspirations were not dead, merely on hold for a few years.

The Democratic Party was numbed by the loss of a second candidate to questions of integrity and character in a matter of months. The first, Gary Hart, had been the front-runner and his sex-associated fall was perhaps more spectacular. Biden had yet to break out of the second tier of Democrats, although the three-term, 44-year-old senator had a gift for speaking and a knack for fund-raising.

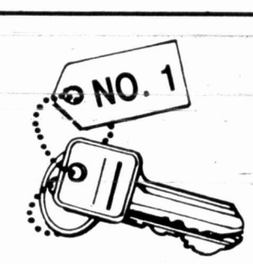

The end began with the delivery of a videotape, that latest of political gimmicks, to several newspapers and television networks by a source that has yet to be identified. The tape juxtaposed a moving personal anecdote by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock with a similar story told by Biden at campaign appearances.

Kinnock's words: "Why am I the first Kinnock in a thousand generations to be able to get to university? Why is Glenys (his wife) the first woman in her family in a thousand generations to be able to get to university? Was it because our predecessors were thick?"

Biden's words: "I was thinking as I was coming over here, why is it that Joe Biden is the first in his family ever to go to a university? Why is it that my wife who is sitting out there in the audience is the first in her family to ever go to college? Is it because our fathers and mothers were not bright?"

There was more, but the implication was clear: Biden was "borrowing" a story that was deeply personal to Kinnock and not necessarily true of the Biden family.

Bork's process shows competing views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate hearings on Robert H. Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court, about to enter their third week, are providing competing views of a justice's responsibilities in testimony that could have a major bearing on the confirmation battle.

Bork, explaining his ambition to sit on the high court, said he longed to partake of the "intellectual feast" awaiting him there.

Civil rights leaders wasted little time in denigrating the phrase, suggesting it smacked more of legal gamesmanship than defense of individual rights and social justice.

Mayor Andrew Young of Atlanta, a veteran of the civil rights movement, testified last week that for Bork the law is "a game being played with other people's lives."

To blacks, Young said, "The Supreme Court has been literally the voice of God for us for so long."

Bork's defenders say such attacks are no more than politically motivated, overblown rhetoric that distort Bork's record. Bork and his allies say the nominee has no hidden right-wing agenda, only a desire to base Supreme Court rulings on firm constitutional footing.

Sitting at the witness table last week facing the Senate Judiciary Committee were Young and two other prominent blacks who questioned Bork's commitment to the civil rights gains of the last 35 years that the Supreme Court has helped establish and consolidate.

Young and former Rep. Barbara Jordan of Texas may have been more impassioned. But the most influential with the committee members probably was William T. Coleman, a former cabinet officer in President Ford's Republican administration.

Republican supporters of Bork treated Coleman deferentially, tacitly acknowledging that it would be fruitless to try to depict him as a liberal firebrand doing the bidding of Democratic partisans.

"Having come this far toward a free and open society, we should not stop or turn back the constitutional development that slowly and steadily is removing the vestiges of slavery, of 350 years of legally enforced racial discrimination and of centuries of irrational discrimination against women," Coleman testified.

Coleman said he was not attacking Bork personally but based his opposition on the nominee's long-held criticisms of Supreme Court rulings that expanded individual and civil rights.

A counterweight to Coleman's testimony was provided by Lloyd Cutler, former counsel to President Carter.

Like Coleman, Cutler is an widely respected establishment figure in the nation's capital whose viewpoints command the attention of Republicans and Democrats alike.

Pennsylvania GOP seeks Bork support

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvania Republican leaders tried to move Sen. Arlen Specter off the fence Saturday, saying he should support the party and President Reagan by voting to confirm Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork.

Specter has refused to take a position on Bork until Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on the nomination are finished.

The Republican State Committee's leaders sponsored a resolution urging the Senate Judiciary Committee to confirm Bork. The move was clearly aimed at Specter, a second-term Republican who serves on the Judiciary Committee.

A group of about 80 students, representing Pennsylvania College Republicans and the Young Republicans, was more vociferous. The students waved signs and chanted, "We want Bork," and "We need Bork" as the senator arrived to participate in the state committee's annual fall meeting.

"I don't see any reasons why he shouldn't vote with the party and for the president," said John Fluharty, regional chairman of the College Republicans and state chairman of Young Americans For Freedom. "There's no reason to play games with this nomination."

Specter told the protesters they could keep a Republican in the White House if they applied the same enthusiasm to the 1988 presidential race.

In defense of the prima donnas

By Eddie Curran

Last Sunday, my colleague Tim Appel threw his one cent worth to the side of the owners in the current NFL strike. He said the NFL players were a "pack of overpaid prima donnas," and added that they "make me sick."

Tim's opinion — and it's not my own — seems to go with the flow of popular opinion. The vast majority of football fans believe that NFL players are overpaid, and that they're just a bunch of overgrown money-grubbers.

I hear comments like, "These guys make $230,000 a year! Nobody deserves that kind of money! I won't make $230,000 in 20 years!"

It's the opinion here that some people do deserve that kind of money, and more in some instances. Personally, at the pace I'm at I'll see my first grey hair before I see my 230,000th dollar. But that doesn't mean I begrudge someone else big bucks.

The main reason I don't deserve $230,000 is that I don't generate $230,000. The point that Tim — and others — seem to ignore is that professional football players do generate that kind of money.

Everytime you and I turn on that television on Sunday and watch those Cowboys or those Bears, we're paying their salaries. Advertisers the size of Ford and General Motors are paying megabucks to get to us, and the way they get to us is through the football players.

The price of watching the football players is the tedium of watching the commercials. In other words, there's lots of money being generated when we watch that tube.

The NFL pay scale is a question of deciding who deserves that money, and who gets that money. Sure, there are lots of football players making more than a decent living, but there are 27 owners who would put them to shame. (The Packers are publicly owned.)

Won't someone spare the owners a dime?

We constantly see the headlines about the tremendous salaries of the Bozworths and the Elways. When's the last time we heard or read how much an NFL owner made in a season?

The reason we won't ever hear that is because it would be bad publicity for the owners. As it stands, we are led to almost feel sorry for the owners when they're "forced" to "give-in" to "prima donnas" like Elway and Bosworth.

I bet if you or I were an owner's accountant, we wouldn't feel sorry for him. We might try to borrow money and buy an NFL franchise, but we wouldn't pity the poor shipping magnate.

One NBC commentator said last Sunday that the NFL owners are "28 Republicans operating in a socialist environment."

His point was well made, because there is no competition among NFL owners. In America — or more specifically, in a capitalist marketplace — the companies that survive and prosper are the companies that do a good job. They are the companies that "win."

In professional football, a team that goes 0-16 can make as much or almost as much money as a team that goes 16-0. That's because NFL franchises get their income from two sources, and neither of those sources rely on a winning football team.

The TV contract is divided evenly, and accounts for more than 70 percent of a team's revenue. Though the Bears might be on national television 10 times, and the Bills not at all, their cuts of the TV pie will be the same.

Most of the rest of the money comes from gate receipts. Every team plays just eight home games a year, and most of the ticket seats are sold in packages before the season starts. Even when a team is bad it's easy to bring fans to the stadium, because the fans have only eight chances to see the team. They'll go even if the team stinks.

Winning is expensive, so lets don't do it

The point is this: The NFL owner is going to get his money regardless of how his team does on the field. Though he may be a loser, like the Houston Oilers' owner obviously is, he'll still get his share of the cash.

Which brings us to free agency. Because the Oilers' owner won't gain financially by having a winning team, he won't pay his top draft choices enough to get them to come. He also won't pay for a Walter Payton to come to Houston.

The reason there isn't free agency in pro football is because there's no incentive to win. That lack of competition is un-American, and it's consequences are unconstitutional.

If Thomas Jefferson were around today, he'd say it's unconstitutional that NFL players aren't given a choice where they can use their talent.

The big word in free agency is free, as in freedom. Free agency gives players the freedom to sell themselves, like you and I can sell ourselves. Granted, the highest bidder for our services probably won't offer us $230,000, but that's not the point.

Take your pick, revolution or more strikes

The point is, we live in America, the land of opportunity. The sky's supposed to be the limit in this country.

Yes, free agency and the abolishment of the draft (which is also unconstitutional) would be a revolution. That revolution wouldn't be painless — for the owners, players or fans.

But something's got to be done. The NFL is not so special that it shouldn't have to operate like the rest of the businesses in this country.

And until the NFL starts operating within a capitalist framework, like the rest of America, I'm going to have to write strike columns for the rest of my life.

Big Spring Steers' quarterback Shawn Shellman (7) soars for yardage during first half action of the Big Spring-Sweetwater game Friday night in Sweetwater. Trying to stop Shellman is Sweetwater's Rob Davis (21) and Kenneth Norman (20).

Sweetwater sour for Steers

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

SWEETWATER — The sad thing about Friday's Big Spring-Sweetwater game is that we'll never know which is the better team, unless the two meet in the state playoffs.

On the evidence of the score alone — it was 39-18, Mustangs — the conclusion seems obvious.

But before pronouncing the Mustangs a far better team than the Steers, remember this: The Steers gave this one away.

That's the truth.

At the same time, don't fault the Mustangs. They were good. They took advantage of most everything they were offered, and they were offered quite a lot.

Perhaps more so than the Mustangs, it was Murphy's Law that beat the Steers. It states, for the unfamiliar; "Anything that can go wrong will go wrong."

It all went wrong. The Steers lost five of ten fumbles, and had a pass intercepted. After four of those turnovers, Sweetwater scored. The Mustangs needed just 12 first downs to score their 39 points.

When the Mustangs didn't score, the turnovers at least gave them great field position. Meanwhile, the Steers were getting abominable field position. In one stretch of the second half, the Steers started on their two, their eight and then their five-yard lines.

The miseries began early. The Steers received the kickoff, and three plays later quarterback Shawn Shellman was hit and lost the ball at the 26.

The Mustangs went one yard in three plays, but went for it on fourth and nine. Quarterback Larry Healer completed a 15-yarder for first down at the ten. It would be the Mustangs only completion in three attempts for the night.

On fourth and goal from the three, Healer scampered in on a keeper, with 7:45 left in the opening quarter. The extra point was blocked.

Danny Williams fumbled the ensuing kickoff, and Sweetwater started from the Steers' 15. Williams atoned for his miscue moments later, intercepting Healer's final pass attempt of the night at the two and racing down the sidelines. It appeared Williams would score, but Healer knocked him out of bounds at midfield.

The Steers bobbled the snap on the first play, however, and the Mustangs recovered. Moments later an unsportsmanlike conduct call on the Steers gave the Mustangs first down on the Steer 32.

Healer scored on a 14-yard keeper a few plays later, and ran in the two-point conversion. The Mustangs led 14-0 with 3:45 left in the first quarter. At that point, the Steers had run just three offensive plays.

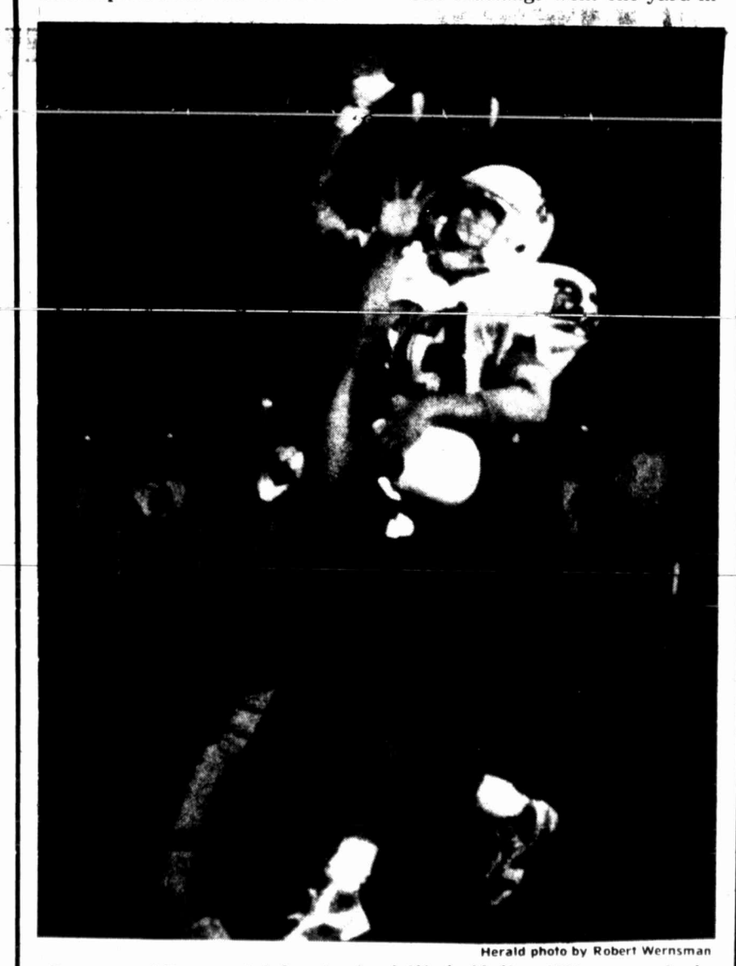

Sweetwater kicker Louis Rose, who consistently boomed his kickoffs to the goal line, did so again, and the Steers opened on their own eight.

The Steers were forced to punt four plays later. Punter Johnny Landers kicked 39 yards, and Charles White made the hit of the night on the Mustangs' returner. As the referee walked off a 15-yard penalty against the Mustangs, the Sweetwater returner was helped off the field.

Sweetwater started on the 18, by far their worst field position of the night.

After a Mustangs' punt the Steers started on the Sweetwater 49, their second best starting position of the night. Shellman threw a

Greenwood Rangers' defensive back Wade Melton (23) goes up to defend against Forsan wide receiver Charles Newton during Friday night action in Forsan. Forsan won the game 20-13.

Buffs don't get K-O; but get 20-13 victory

FORSAN — Having your opponent on the ropes does not always spell victory.

The Forsan Buffaloes had Greenwood exactly in that position early in the second half of their football game Friday, but were unable to deliver the knockout punch.

Although the Buffs improved their record to 3-1 with a 20-13 victory, it was not without some anxious moments during the third and fourth periods.

The Rangers, unable to score or stop the bruising running attack led by Stacy Munoz during the first half, saw their fortunes change and threatened to overcome the early Forsan superiority.

And superiority it was in the first half.

Coach Jan East, between watching segments of tapes from Friday's game, said Saturday morning "We looked real good both ways the first half ... they brought a different look in at halftime.

"We lost our intensity — if we'd have kept it we'd have been able to nail it down," he said.

Nailing it down came hard for the host Buffaloes.

Forsan wasted no time in scoring on its first opportunity.

Greenwood punted after three runs produced six yards and the Buffs used seven plays and two timely Rangers' penalties to march 72 yards.

An 18-yard Brant Nichols to Brandy Bryan pass helped, as did a 15-yard penalty tacked on to the play. John Roman pierced the

Wylie wins Battle of Bulldogs

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

For the Coahoma Bulldogs, the game lasted 10 minutes too long.

For the first 38 minutes of the Coahoma-Abilene Wylie battle of the Bulldogs, the Big Red variety held the upper hand. However, high school contests last 48 minutes, and Wylie used the last 10 minutes to their advantage to spoil Coahoma's homecoming, 27-9.

Wylie quarterback Bo Sanford led a furious comeback in the final ten minutes, scoring two touchdowns on one-yard sneaks and throwing for another to bust the game open.

In Coahoma head coach Steve Parks' opinion, the turning point of the contest came early in the final stanza. The Big Red had scored on a 39-yard field goal by Anthony Hernandez to take a 9-6 lead.

On the ensuing kickoff, Wylie receiver Scott Bible took the ball on the fly and returned it to the 45-yard line. Two plays later, Sanford bobbled the snap, and Coahoma defenders jubilantly announced they had recovered.

The referees, however, ruled that Wylie had recovered the fumble, and the Purple Pack retained possession.

From there, Wylie moved crisply down the field, capping the seven-play drive with Sanford's first touchdown sneak. The point after made the score 13-9, and Wylie never looked back.

The Abilene team put the game effectively out of reach 40 seconds later. On second down and 15, Coahoma quarterback Curtis Hudson's pass was intercepted by Wylie safety David Blackburn, who returned it 23 yards to the Coahoma two.

On the next play, Mike Chapman — who led all rushers with 90 yards on 20 carries — scored to make the score 20-9. Sanford scored an insurance touchdown with 1:34 left in the game to provide the final margin.

The final 10 minutes were in stark contrast to the previous 38 — highlighted by dominating defensive plays on both sides.

Neither team could get untracked early, swapping punts on each of their first two possessions. Ironically, it was Coahoma punter James White who indirectly started the Big Red toward its first score.

His second punt was a thing of beauty, sailing over the head of the Wylie return man and stopping short of the goal line, where it was whistled dead on the two-yard line.

After the Coahoma defense held, a short Wylie punt put the Big Red in business 43 yards away from the end zone.

Coahoma running back Matt Rowell was the star of the seven-play drive, first snaring a Hudson pass on fourth down to sustain the drive, then scampering 19 yards to the Wylie nine.

From there, he ran the ball just short of the goal, and scored from one yard out on the next play. Hernandez's conversion attempt was wide, but Coahoma had drawn first blood in the contest and led, 6-0.

Disaster almost struck for the Big Red soon after.

After the ensuing kickoff, Wylie was forced to punt. Jay Jones' offering travelled more vertically than horizontally, and went out of bounds 12 yards downfield.

Coahoma had been too zealous in rushing Jones, however, and the roughing the punter pentalty gave the Abilene offense new life near midfield.

Wylie mounted an impressive drive to bring the ball inside the Coahoma 10-yard line — but that would be as close as the Bulldog defense would allow them on this series.

Chapman fumbled the handoff on the next play and recoved, losing six yards in the process. Coahoma defenseman Brad Madry then sacked Sanford for an 11-yard sack. Another 11-yard sack capped the outstanding stand by the Big Red, and the score remained 6-0 at the half.

Reflecting on his team's second-half comeback, Wylie head coach Hugh Sandifer credited the turnaround to his team's attitude during the second half.

Coahoma senior Nancy Hardison is escorted by by father Carroll and Anthony Hernandez after being named homecoming queen during halftime of the Coahoma-Abilene Wylie football game Friday night.

"We kind of sat back in the first half and waited for something to happen, but I was impressed with our effort in the second half," he said.

He also had nice word for the Coahoma effort, crediting the Bulldogs with shutting down Wylie's vaunted passing attack.

A subdued Parks said the breaks in the game made the difference.

"We had some letdowns later in the game, and some mental lapses," he said. "We're just going to have to work a little harder now to get ready for the next game."

Coahoma, whose record is now 2-2, travels to Colorado City next Friday to meet the Wolves, who lost 14-7 to Ballinger. Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m.

STANTON — The Plains Cowboys ruined homecoming night for the Stanton Buffalos.

Robert Lee gets past G-City

GARDEN CITY — In their second District 6-A game of the season, it was a case of the Garden City Bearkats winning the battle and losing the war.

Although they dominated on the field and in the statistics, the Bearkats came up on the short end of a 14-3 score against the Robert Lee Steers Friday night. The loss brings Garden City's mark to 1-1 in league play and 2-2 overall. Robert Lee stays perfect at 2-0 and 4-0.

In Friday night's contest, it was evident that Garden City was the stronger team. They controlled both halves, but it was a pair of second quarter turnovers that sealed the Bearkats' fate.

Garden City running back Mike Keynon struggles for more yardage against a Robert Lee defender during first quarter action Friday night in Garden City. Kenyon gained 111 yards in 21 carries.

A blocked punt led to a nine-yard Robert Lee scoring drive and a fumbled exchange between the quarterback and center led to a Robert Lee 33-yard scoring drive.

A fiesty Garden City defense — led by defensive tackles Edward Lopez and Bobby Medrano, end Eleazer Madrid, linebacker Weldon Hillger and safety Codie Scott — limited Robert Lee to 110 total yards.

Lopez and Madrid were in on two quarterback sacks each.

Meanwhile, led by halfback Mike Kenyon, Garden City totaled 188 yards total offense. Kenyon, a 180-pound senior, rushed for a season-high 111 yards in 21 carries.

"The turnovers killed us," said a dejected Garden City coach Sam Scott after the game. "It's the same thing we've been doing all year. We got some turnovers too, but we had a little furthur to go and we didn't score. We're not disciplined enough on offense yet," said Scott.

Garden City took a 3-0 first quarter lead on a 34-yard field goal by Scott, coach Scott's son. Then it was time for the fatal second quarter.

Deep in its own territory, Garden City went back to punt. Bearkat punter Kenyon tried to field a low snap. By the time he had gotten control of the ball and tried to punt, Robert Lee's Curt Gardner had roared through to get a piece of the ball.

The punt travelled two yards and Robert Lee took over at the Garden City nine-yard line. Three plays and one penalty later, running back Stevie Ebenstein scored from the one. Ebenstein kicked the point after, and Robert Lee led 7-3 with eight minutes left in the first half.

Garden City's other miscue came when quarterback Scott fumbled the exchange from center and Robert Lee's Michael Lee recovered at the Garden City 33.

Nine plays later Robert Lee quarterback Robert Runnion rolled right and hit running back Jon Rogers for a nine-yard scoring play. Ebenstein's PAT with 26 seconds left in the half ended the scoring for the night.

Garden City's only score was set up when Robert Lee punter Wes Hood shanked a 15-yard punt, putting Garden City on the Robert Lee 27-yard line. Later in the game Ebstein redeemed himself by booting a couple of 57-yarders, one on a quick kick that took his team deep out of Garden City territory.

Seven plays after the shanked punt, Scott booted a 34-yard field goal. The attempt hit the left upright and fell through the crossbar, giving Garden City a 3-0 lead with eight minutes left in the first quarter.

In the second half Garden City was inside the Robert Lee 35-yard line two times and came away empty-handed. Once, Gardner, who played a strong game at defensive end, sacked Scott for a 10-yard loss. The other time Scott's attempted pass to Leo Garcia was picked off by Jon Herring at the Robert Lee seven.

"These things happen," said Scott. "You can beat a team's lungs out, but if you don't come out ahead on the scoreboard, it doesn't matter. I've got to give Robert Lee credit, when they had their chances they took it in."

The only serious injury of the game came when receiver Jodie Scott, Codie's twin brother, rebroke his hand early in the game. Coach Scott said his son first broke the hand during the third week of practice.

Ballinger escapes upset-minded Wolves

BALLINGER — The Colorado City Wolves put up a game struggle, but came out short while falling to the highly-ranked Ballinger Bearcats 14-7 Friday night.

It was simply a case of too much Terry Strambler as the Bearcats scored both of their touchdowns in the second quarter.

Strambler carried 36 times for 239 yards and two TD's. He scored on runs of 17 and one yard. The one-yard plunge came with 17 seconds remaining in the first half and Colorado City leading 7-6.

Then Colorado City's only fumble set up Strambler's game winning dive.

Ballinger rushed for almost 200 yards in the second half, controlling the game and taking the win.

Rees led Colorado City in rushing with 69 yards in 15 carries.

Strike talks going nowhere fast

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A second week of NFL games is in jeopardy because of stalled negotiations in a players strike that union vice president Mick Luckhurst says is an attempt by management to break the union.

At the same time, there were reports that Fox Broadcasting Co. had approached the NFL Players Association about putting together a series of televised games between striking union members.

NFL Management Council spokesman John Jones said today he didn't believe negotiations could be resumed before Thursday. NFLMC executive director Jack Donlan has staff meetings and conference calls with owners scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jones said, "so our agenda is pretty well set."

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle called off this weekend's games last Thursday after it became clear any settlement would come too late to save them.

"There's no prospect at this time of negotiations resuming," Jones said from the NFLMC office in New York. "At the earliest, it's possible they could be resumed by the end of next week."

Negotiations in the five-day-old strike broke off Friday in Philadelphia after management and the union agreed that they agree on virtually nothing. No new talks were scheduled.

Luckhurst, the Atlanta Falcons placekicker and player representative, said today that on Thursday he proposed a new plan for free agency, which has been charactized as the key issue in negotiations. He proposed that free agency be given to players with 12 years' experience, while previously the union had asked for free agency for players in the league four years.

"That would only cover about 30 players," Luckhurst said of his plan, "and I figure less than a third of them would leave a city where they've been for 12 years. ... Even then, they said, 'No, no, no, no, no.'

"It's not got anything to do with free agency. It's busting the union," Luckhurst said.

While union solidarity appeared to erode in Denver and Dallas, NFL owners continued plans to play games on Oct. 4 with non-striking free agents, rookies and the few veterans who would cross picket lines.

Today, however, provided the first indication that the union also was considering makeup games.

UT swimmer killed in accident

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas student has been charged with involuntary manslaughter in the traffic death of a Longhorn swim team member who was a passenger in the student's car.

Lorenzo Patterson of San Antonio, a 19-year-old freshman, died Friday of injuries sustained in the 1:15 a.m. Friday accident near the UT campus.

Jay Scott Ewing, 19, was released to his attorney on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond Friday afternoon.

Austin Police spokeswoman Kellye Norris said Ewing's car hit a curb and a guadrail and flipped onto its side. Patterson, one of two passengers in the back seat of the convertible, was thrown from the car, she said.

Steers

perfect bomb that was dropped, and the Steers' opportunity halted when White was stopped on fourth and one.

Later Big Spring took over on downs at their own 18, but Ken Norman intercepted on the 34. Norman, who started at tailback as well, scored on a three yard out with a Herschal Walker-like dive with 3:55 left in the half.

Sweetwater led 21-0 following the point-after. At that point, the Steers had five yards rushing and one first down.

Starting from their 21, the Steers finally held on to the ball, and as a result, mounted an impressive drive.

Shellman looked sharp on the drive. Using the play-action, Shellman had two nine-yard runs, and completed passes of 17 yards to Dwayne Woodall and eight yards to White. The second completion gave the Steers a first and goal on the two.

On three plays the Steers lost a yard, and faced fourth and goal from the three with less than 10 seconds remaining in the half. Shellman went wide right, and hurdled himself over the goal line. He did a headfirst flip over a Sweetwater tackler and scored.

The snap on the point after was low, and the kick missed. At the half, it was Sweetwater 21, Big Spring 6.

Sweetwater punted on their first possession, and the Steer returner fumbled. The Mustangs recovered, but the Steers' defense held.

Later in the quarter, the Steers finally got a break of their own. The Mustangs' punt returner fumbled, and the Steers started on the Sweetwater 35, their best field position of the night.

White busted loose for 21 yards to the 14, and Shellman hit Woodall at the one. With 4:56 left in the third, White busted over from the one. The two-point conversion failed, but the Steers trailed just 21-12 and appeared to be making a game of it.

It was more mistakes, however, that would soon take them back out of it. Sweetwater punted on its next possession, and the ball rolled to the two. One play later the Steers fumbled and lost the snap.

Norman hurtled over the top on the first play for the score. The PAT was good, and Sweetwater led 28-12 with 2:06 left in the quarter.

The Steers opened on their eight, and were forced to punt. Sweetwater opened on the Big Spring 48. After a one-yard gain, fullback Ernie Munoz burst through the middle for a 47-yard touchdown. The point after was good. Sweetwater led 35-12 with 11:20 left in the game.

Sweetwater's final four points came on safeties, one on a recovered Steers' fumble in their own end zone; and the other on an intentional grounding call from the end zone.

The Steers' final touchdown came with no time on the clock. Shellman hit receiver Buddy Everett for a 14-yard scoring pass. Shellman was a long time getting up after the play.

The senior quarterback took a beating after many of his passes, and if there was an eight-second clock in football like there is in boxing, Shellman would have been counted out three times. Still, he played both ways, and sat out just one play on offense.

In a somber Steers' locker room, Eudy praised the Mustangs.

"You've got to give Sweetwater credit for taking advantage of our miscues. When you have that many mistakes in your kicking game, and fumbles and an interception in your offense — you can't give a good ballclub that kind of help.

"We took ourselves out of the football game," Eudy said.

"We were playing good when we got out of a hole, but we lived in our half of the field. We got out occasionally, but not with any consistency.

"I thought the kids played hard, even when bad things kept happening to us," he said.

The Steers, 2-2 and 1-1 in district, are off next week. They play Lamesa Oct. 9 in Big Spring. Sweetwater improved to 2-1 and 1-0.

Eudy thinks the week off will help.

"We've been on the road and played four tough games. The rest will do us good. We are capable of being a good football team, but we have an awful lot of corrections to make," he said.

'Canes destroy Porkers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Sophomore Steve Walsh guided Miami to five touchdowns in 12 minutes against the proud Arkansas defense as the fifth-ranked Hurricanes posted a 51-7 victory over the 10th-ranked Razorbacks Saturday.

Walsh completed 10 of 14 for 135 yards as the Hurricanes rolled up 353 yards en route to a 38-0 halftime lead. He wound up with 20 of 28 for 215. Arkansas' defense against scoring has ranked in the top 10 nationally each of the past three years and allowed only 25 points in the Razorbacks' 2-0 start.

Arkansas couldn't handle the mobile Miami defense and managed only 38 yards in the first half. Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield had said earlier that Miami's defense was on a par with Oklahoma's, which dominated Arkansas 42-8 in the Jan. 1 Orange Bowl.

It was the Razorbacks' worst loss in Little Rock since they started playing there 80 years ago and their worst loss in the state since a 63-7 loss to Tulsa in 1919.

SWC

It was a happy homecoming for Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson, an All-Southwest Conference noseguard at Arkansas in the early 1960s and an assistant coach for the Razorbacks in the early 1970s. He and Hatfield were Razorback teammates.

Miami was so dominant that when Greg Cox kicked a 44-yard field goal early in the third quarter, the Hurricanes had had the ball more than 23 minutes and the Razorbacks, who pride themselves on ball control, less than 13 minutes.

Baylor 36, Texas Tech 22

WACO (AP) — Quarterback Brad Goebel threw a touchdown pass, Terry Syler kicked three field goals, and safety Robert Blackmon made two vital interceptions on Saturday to give the Baylor Bears a 36-22 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Tech.

Baylor, defeating Tech for the eighth time in their last nine meetings, stretched its overall record to 3-1 while Tech dropped to 2-2. Baylor is 1-0 in conference play and the Red Raiders are 0-1.

The Bears led 26-14 in the third quarter after a 49-yard scoring pass from Goebel to wide receiver Matt Clark.Blackmon's interception of a Billy Joe Tolliver pass set up Syler's 23-yard field goal but Texas Tech rallied on a 37-yard Tolliver to Wayne Walker touchdown pass.

Blackmon's second interception in the fourth period put the game on ice for the Red Raiders as Clark, who is used at quarterback on short yardage situations, sneaked across from a yard away.

Baylor rolled to a 17-0 first period lead on touchdown runs of four-ards by Jay Mapps and two-yards by Charles Perry and 34-yard field goal by Syler.

However, Syler missed field goal tries of 23 and 39 yards while backup quarterback Tolliver was getting the Red Raiders back into the game.

Tolliver, who suffered a fractured foot in preseason practice, made his 1987 debut with Tech trailing 17-0.

Texas A&M 27, S. Mississippi 14

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Darren Lewis ran 77 yards for a third-quarter touchdown Saturday and 16th-ranked Texas A&M's defense stiffened in the second half as the Aggies captured a 27-14 football victory over stubborn Southern Mississippi.

Lewis' touchdown capped a 10-point third quarter as A&M broke a 7-7 tie against Southern Miss, a two-touchdown underdog.

Texas A&M pulled ahead 24-7 with 8:08 to play when freshman third-string quarterback Bucky Richardson raced 82 yards for a touchdown on a third-and-13 play.

In the decisive third quarter, the Aggies' defense surrendered only four yards. In addition, they picked off two second-half passes.

Texas A&M, 2-1 with two consecutive victories after an opening loss to Louisiana State, took a 7-0 first quarter lead when fullback Matt Gurley raced 69 yards with a screen pass from Lance Pavlas.

Southern Mississippi, 1-2, tied the game late in the second quarter on a 52-yard Brett Farve to Darryl Tillman pass.

But in the second half, the Aggies defense, which was ranked fourth in the nation coming in, allowed Southern only one first down until the Golden Eagles' late fourth-quarter scoring drive.

Rice 38, Southwest Texas State 28

HOUSTON (AP) — Mark Comalander hit wide receiver Keith Lewis with a 40-yard touchdown pass to start a 21-point fourth-quarter uprising that lifted Rice to a 38-28 non-conference victory Saturday over Southwest Texas State.

Junior defensive back William McClay had three interceptions, including one in the end zone, and a fumble recovery for Rice, 2-2.

Lorenzo Cyphers capped an 85-yard drive with a 5-yard scoring run with 3:42 left to put the game out of reach. Halie Washington added a 1-yard TD run for Rice with 54 seconds left after the Owls recovered an attempted on-sides kick.

Southwest Texas, 0-4, got three touchdown passes from quarterback Ron Rittiman — two of them in the final quarter — but Rice piled up 364 yards rushing, 141 of them from Todd Jones.

Southwest Texas scored first at 4:35 into the game, as fullback Richard Gordy ran through the left side from 16 yards out. The score was set up when Shawn Woods partially blocked a Rice punt.

Huskers survive ASU

By The Associated Press

Two of college football's four Saturday showdowns ended in ties and a third standoff was in the works until Steve Taylor scored with 3½ minutes left to give No. 2 Nebraska a 35-28 victory over No. 12 Arizona State.

Taylor, who lost two fumbles that set up Arizona State touchdowns, scored from three yards out with 3:37 left to give Nebraska its third victory. Arizona State fell to 2-1.

"After they tied the game, we knew we had to come back and show what we could do. It was for pride," Taylor said. "We had to go ahead and take care of business and we knew we could do it."

"It was a war. There was a real battle going on out there," ASU Coach John Cooper said. "I'm disappointed in the loss but not in the way we played."

In another big matchup, redshirt freshman Reggie Cobb scored on a 7-yard run with 1:20 remaining and Phil Reich kicked the extra point as 11th-ranked Tennessee, 3-0-1, battled No. 3 Auburn, 2-0-1, to a 20-20 tie in a Southeastern Conference game.

Another SEC power, No. 4 Louisiana State, 3-0-1, needed David Browndyke's 40-yard field goal with 6:25 to play to overcome its own errors and tie No. 7 Ohio State 13-13. The Buckeyes are 2-0-1.

The fourth game left the fans at Little Rock, Ark., fit to be tied, after No. 5 Miami, Fla., embarrassed No. 10 Arkansas 51-7.

No. 1 Oklahoma 65, Tulsa 0

Backup quarterback Charles Thompson scored three times and threw for a fourth touchdown as Oklahoma, 3-0, had an easy time in its first game at Tulsa since 1942.

Thompson, a redshirt freshman, scored on runs of 7, 68 and 10 yards and threw 21 yards to split end Artie Guess to cap a four-touchdown third quarter.

Starting quarterback Jamelle Holieway scored twice and hit tight end Keith Jackson on a 47-yard scoring pass before leaving the game one possession into the third quarter.

Tulsa, 0-4, was able to move the ball across midfield only once, to Oklahoma's 30, but then fumbled.

"We were in position to make the plays, but we were totally outathleted," Tulsa Coach George Henshaw said.

No. 2 Nebraska 35, No. 12 Arizona St. 28

Taylor drove Nebraska 82 yards in four plays in 1:18 for the game-winning score. I-back Keith Jones' 62-yard run to the ASU 8 set up the score. A Taylor fumble at the Nebraska 15 paved the way for Darryl Harris' 4-yard run that pulled ASU into a 21-21 tie in the third quarter. Another fumble, this time at the Nebraska 15, was converted in a 1-yard Harris run that tied it 28-28 with 4:55 left in the game.

Taylor, who completed six of 16 passes for 69 yards and had 122 yards on 19 rushes, ran one yard for Nebraska's opening score and hit Rod Smith with a 12-yard pass that gave the Cornhuskers a 28-21 lead.

No. 3 Auburn 20, No. 11 Tennessee 20

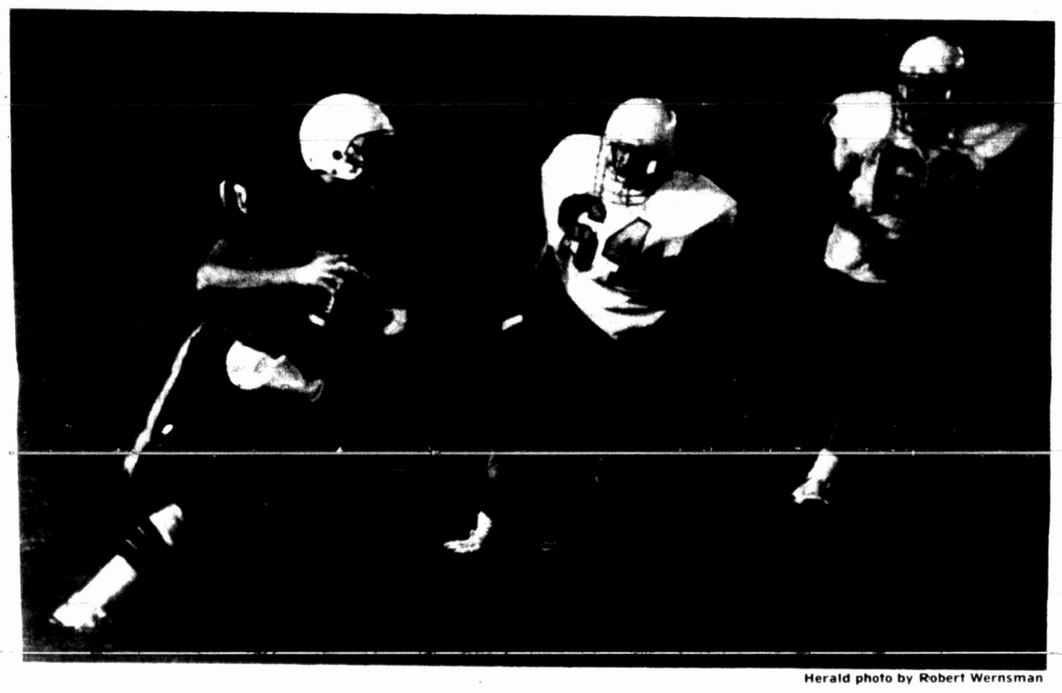

Tennessee closed within 20-13 on Reich's 24-yard field goal with 7:46 to play, then pinned Auburn back on its 3 on the kickoff. After forcing a punt, Tennessee went 56 yards for the tying score. With 6:12 remaining, Tennessee decided to go for Reich's tying extra point rather than a two-point conversion.

But it was Auburn that got the final chance to score, moving from its 20 to the Tennessee 33 before running out of time.

"There are three things you can do," Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors said of his extra-point options. "Kick for the tie, go for two and make it or go for two and not make it. The percentage of making it is about 42 percent. This early in the season, a team coming from behind six in the first half and 10 in Ranger line for 13 yards to put the ball on the 11.

From there Roman sliced through the Greenwood defense, looking back over his left shoulder as he crossed the line for six points with 7:30 remaining in the first quarter — less than three minutes after taking possession.

A failed PAT kick left it at 6-0 for Forsan.

The Rangers, plagued early by penalties, had their drive stalled by a clipping call and a swarming Buff defense. A third and 16 pass play was nearly transformed into a 35-yard TD by Charles Newton as the Forsan defender almost intercepted with a clear field ahead of him.

Instead, Greenwood punted and the Buffs took over on a 15-yard drive that led to the 15 before failing on downs.

Greenwood proved helpful, however, when Shay Howard recovered a bobbled snap at the 35 with 10:11 left in the half.

Despite a clipping penalty on the hosts, Forsan covered the 35 yards in six plays for a second score.

A Nichols-Bryan pass covered 13 yards, Roman picked up nine and Nichols carried for 10 yards on an option to place the ball at the 20.

From there it was all Munoz.

The senior running back, whose weight is conservatively set at 210 in the program, used every pound wisely as he bruised his way over those 20 yards in a crowd-pleasing run. Five Rangers had their hands on him, but no one stopped him.

A pass from Nichols to Newton produced a two-point conversion for a 14-0 Forsan edge with 7:39 in the half.

The Buffs threatened to score again, taking possession after a Ranger punt on the 21 and moved to the six with 20 seconds remaining before a pass fell incomplete in the end zone.

The Ranger defense looked different as the second half began.

Forsan punted after three plays produced four yards and Greenwood took over at their 42. Unable to make a first down, the Rangers helped again, as they fumbled and Michael Self recovered to give the Buffs excellent field position at the 21.

A face mask penalty on Greenwood helped the drive, as did a two-yard run by Roman, two yards by Nichols and then the final five yards as Roman bowled over from the right side.

With a 20-0 advantage with 6:54 left in the third period, a blocked extra point attempt did not appear significant.

Wrong.

Greenwood caught fire, covering 67 yards in 13 plays in five and a half minutes. A successful kick made it 20-7 with 1:36 in the third period.

The complexion of the game changed quickly when a fumbled Forsan snap two plays later was recovered by Greenwood. The Rangers struck quickly, using eight plays to cover 35 yards, the final four on a scramble by the quarterback. A failed kick made it 20-13 with 9:42 left in the game.

A two-yard gain, an eight-yard loss and an incomplete pass spelled punting time for the Buffs and Greenwood acted most appreciative.

Taking over on their own 45, a Rangers' pitch to Randy Donnell produced a 55-yard scoring romp — a scoring romp that a clipping penalty nullified.

Greenwood never recovered from that blow.

A fumbled pitch was recovered by quarterback Wade Melton and an attempted pass was bobbled, forcing a Rangers' punt.

Brandy Bryan missed a fair catch on the punt — the kind of thing that makes coaches gray? "I guarantee you," said East — although Ruben Holguin recovered at the 22.

The Buffs ate three and a half minutes off the clock before a pass fell incomplete on fourth and three from the Ranger 28 and Greenwood had one final chance.

The Rangers failed to convert on fourth and six and the Buffaloes ran three plays to allow the clock to tick off the final 50 seconds.

Individually, Munoz finished with 92 yards on 17 carries, all but two of those yards coming in the first half. Roman covered 82 yards on 10 carries for two TDs.

Nichols completed four of 10 passes for 80 yards, although three of his incompletions likely should have been caught, East said.

Cards edge closer to NL eastern title

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Dayley finished the game for St. Louis Saturday and just maybe the New York Mets' hopes of catching the Cardinals.

Dan Driessen hit a two-run homer in the first inning and Ken Dayley struck out Leon Durham with runners on second and third to end the game as the Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs, 5-3, to take a 3½-game lead over New York in the NL East. The Mets lost 8-2 to Pittsburgh.

The victory reduced the Cardinals' magic number for clinching the division to five games. St. Louis has eight games left, including the final three with the Mets at Busch Stadium.

"Sure, it was a wind blown homer that got us off and running, but in the end, it was a gutsy performance by a kid (Dayley) who had to battle his way back from serious surgery," Manager Whitey Herzog said.

The Cubs loaded the bases on two walks and an infield single with one out in the ninth against reliever Todd Worrell. Worrell gave up an RBI grounder to Andre Dawson and then Ken Dayley came on to strike out Leon Durham for his fourth save.

"Dayley's been a blessing, and if we had not gotten him back from nerve transplant surgery, we would not be where we are now," Herzog said.

Driessen hit a 3-2 pitch from Rick Sutcliffe, 18-9, over the left-field wall for his first homer to score Ozzie Smith, who had singled and moved to third on a steal and an error.

Pirates 8, Mets 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Drabek pitched six-hit ball for eight-plus innings and drove in two runs with singles as Pittsburgh beat New York.

The Mets entered the game trailing first-place St. Louis by 2½ games in the National League East. New York has seven games remaining, including three with St. Louis.

Barry Bonds hit a two-run homer, his 24th of the season, to cap a four-run second inning against Dwight Gooden, 15-7, and Bobby Bonilla went 3-for-5 with two runs batted.

Gooden, who lasted only three innings, entered the game with a 7-0 career record against Pittsburgh. He allowed five runs on seven hits while striking out four.

Astros 5, Reds 3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Terry Puhl hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run fourth inning that carried Houston over Cincinnati in a fight-marred game.

Cincinnati's loss reduced San Francisco's magic number for clinching the National League West to two games. The Giants were scheduled to play a night game in Atlanta.

Danny Darwin, 9-10, allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings to help the Astros snapped a streak of four consecutive losses and seven straight on the road. Larry Andersen finished the game for his fifth save.

The game was delayed several minutes in the fourth inning, when Darwin threw an inside pitch to Dave Parker and the 6-foot-5 outfielder charged the mound. Parker threw a punch at Darwin as the benches emptied, and Parker was ejected from the game.

Dodgers 3, Padres 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Diego's Benito Santiago hit safely in his 28th consecutive game to set an all-time major-league record for rookies, but Glenn Hoffman hit a tie-breaking two-run single in the sixth inning to lift Los Angeles over the Padres.

Santiago scored the game's first run on Garry Templeton's double off the right-field fence, moments after hitting an 0-2 pitch from right-hander Bob Welch to left-center field leading off the fifth inning.

Santiago's hit extended the National League's longest batting streak of the season and broke the mark previously held by James Williams of the 1899 Pittsburgh Pirates. On Friday, the 22-year-old catcher broke the modern record set by Guy Curtright of the 1943 Chicago White Sox.

Expos 7, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hubie Brooks hit his fourth career grand slam to break a seventh-inning tie and lift Montreal over Philadelphia, keeping the Expos four games behind NL East-leading St. Louis.

Brooks' homer off starter Shane Rawley, 17-11, helped Pascual Perez improve his record to 6-0. The third-place Expos are 8-0 in games started by Perez this season since he was called up from Indianapolis on Aug. 19.

Perez allowed two hits and struck out five in six innings. Andy McGaffigan pitched the last three innings for his 11th save.

Toronto Blue Jay's Lou Thornton (left), Willie Upshaw, and Nelson Liriano celebrate after Blue Jays' Juan Beniquez hit a three-run double in the ninth inning to defeat the Detroit Tigers 10-9.

Blue Jays rally to down Tigers

TORONTO (AP) — Juan Beniquez hit a pinch, bases-loaded triple in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Toronto a 10-9 victory over Detroit. It was the second straight day that Toronto scored three runs in its final at-bat to defeat Detroit as the Blue Jays increased their lead to 3½ games in the American League East.

It was the Blue Jays' third straight victory over the Tigers in their crucial weekend series and extended Toronto's winning streak to seven games.

Juan Nunez, 5-1, got the victory. Mike Henneman, 9-3, took the loss.

Jesse Barfield had three doubles and a triple in the game as he went 4-for-5. Matt Nokes hit two homers, one a grand slam, and Darrell Evans also homered for Detroit, while Alan Trammell went 4-for-4, raising his hitting streak to 15 games. Leach homered for Toronto.

Brewers 3, Red Sox 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mike Felder hit a go-ahead homer and rookie Dave Stapleton, 2-0, pitched 6 2-3 innings of two-hit relief as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 3-2. Felder's second homer of the season came off Al Nipper, 10-12, and capped a three-run Milwaukee third inning.

Todd Benzinger's two-run homer gave the Red Sox a 2-0 lead in the second off Brewers starter Len Barker.

White Sox 3, Athletics 2

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Greg Walker's two-out single capped a two-run ninth inning rally that lifted the Chicago White Sox over Oakland 3-2. It was Chicago's 11th win in 14 games and handed the Athletics their fourth straight loss.

Bob James, 4-5, pitched the final 2 2-3 innings for the win. Eric Plunk, 4-6, took the loss.

Stan Javier drove in both Oakland runs, including one on a bases-loaded squeeze bunt in the seventh inning.

Lightning, hail, rain and high winds caused officials to halt the game for 10 minutes in the third quarter.

Fort Stockton is 4-0 overall and 2-0 in league play. Andrews falls to 1-3 overall and 1-1 in district play.

Pecos 14

Snyder's Vyron Clay returned the opening kickoff 88-yards and the score stayed at 7-0 until the fourth quarter.

Pecos scored its first TD with 11:12 left in the game when Danny Gonzales scored from one-yard out. The try for two failed and Snyder held a slim 7-6 lead.

Stovall gets hole-in-one

Al Stovall, age 68, has been playing golf for less than two months, but the Big Spring golfer is a quick study.

Stovall hit a hole-in-one on the 151-yard first hole at the Comanche Trail Golf Course last week. The shot was witnessed by Ben Daugherty.

City golf play slated

The Comanche Trail Golf Course will be the site of the Big Spring City Championship, to be played Oct. 10-11.

There is a $25 entry fee; and a seniors division for golfers 50 and over. Both divisions will be flighted.

For more information, call Al Patterson at 264-7271.

Edwards leads with 65

ABILENE (AP) — David Edwards overcame high winds and a broken zipper to fashion a 7-under-par 65 Saturday and take the third-round lead in the $400,000 Southwest Golf Classic.

"What a game!" he declared. "Last week I couldn't hit the side of a wall."

With seven birdies and no bogeys, the former Oklahoma State sharpshooter said his worse moments came at the third hole — not because of a bad shot but a broken zipper on his pants.

Edwards, 31, seeking his first tour victory since the 1984 Los Angeles Open, was a shot ahead of Hale Irwin, who matched his 65, and Bob Eastwood, the first-round leader who fashioned a relatively unspectacular 69.

Dan Halldorson, who started the day at 12 under and nursing a 2-shot lead, fired an even-par 72 and dropped two strokes off the pace. Mark O'Meara, with a 67, was alone at 205, three behind the leader.

the fourth quarter has played too hard to take a chance on losing the game."

No. 4 LSU 13, No. 7 Ohio State 13

Browndyke kicked a 40-yard field goal with 6:25 to play to allow error-prone LSU to salvage a tie.

LSU lost a fumble and had three passes intercepted in the second half. Ohio State turned the first two interceptions into a 38-yard field goal by Matt Frantz late in the third period and an 8-yard touchdown pass from Tom Tupa to Jay Koch early in the final quarter for a 13-10 lead.

Ohio State had the last chance to snap the tie, but LSU defensive end Karl Dunbar tipped a 47-yard field goal attempt by Frantz as time ran out.

"When I hit it, it felt so good coming off my foot that I thought it was good," Frantz said. "When I looked up, I saw a couple of LSU players and Scott (holder Scott Powell) told me it was blocked."

Texas 61, Oregon St. 16

AUSTIN (AP) — New Texas Coach David McWilliams says he hopes the Longhorns' first football victory of 1987 is just the first of many while he's in Austin.

"The pressure's off," McWilliams said after the Longhorns' 61-16 romp over Oregon State Saturday night. "You always look for that first win."

Tailback Eric Metcalf ran 20 times for 145 yards and scored twice Saturday night, and McWilliams said some of his "moves out there were unbelievable."

Houston 38, Sam Houston St. 34

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Cougars had plenty to overcome before handing Coach Jack Pardee his first collegiate victory Saturday night, a 38-34 decision over Sam Houston State.

Sam Houston quarterback Reggie Lewis completed a career-high 29 of 46 passes for 413 yards and three touchdowns, two to tight end Ricky Eggleston.

No. 6 Florida St. 31, Michigan St. 3

Flanker Ronald Lewis dashed 56 yards on a reverse for one touchdown and made a diving catch of a pass for another to help lift Florida State to 4-0. Michigan State is 1-2.

Lewis' third-quarter run broke the Seminoles away from a 7-3 lead. His second, on an 8-yard pass from quarterback Danny McManus, put the game out of reach. Seminoles fullback Dayne Williams plunged one yard for a score in the second quarter, and tailback Sammy Smith raced 25 yards with a screen pass from McManus late in the game for another touchdown.

No. 8 Notre Dame 44, Purdue 20

Fullback Anthony Johnson rushed for three touchdowns as No. 8 Notre Dame rallied from a 17-10 deficit to beat the Boilermakers, 0-2-1.

Johnson, a 216-pound sophomore, ran with 51 yards with a pass to set up Notre Dame's first score, which came on his 6-yard run, and then scored from the one with 36 seconds left before halftime to pull the Irish into a 17-17 tie.

A 50-yard field goal by Jonathan Briggs, the longest of a school-record 27 kicked by the senior and the longest by a Boilermaker in 36 years, gave Purdue a 20-17 advantage with 9:41 remaining in the third quarter. But Johnson ran eight yards for his third score with 4:45 left in the third period and the Irish, 3-0, held the lead the rest of the way.

No. 9 Clemson 33, Georgia Tech 12

Joe Henderson returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown and Donnell Woolford scored on a 78-yard punt return to rescue Clemson's faltering offense. It was the first time in school history the Tigers have returned a punt and kickoff for a touchdown in the same game.

The Tigers, the defending ACC champs, are now 4-0 overall and 1-0 in the conference. Georgia Tech is 1-2 and 0-2.

Georgia Tech pulled within 19-6 on a halfback pass from Richard Hills to flanker Greg Lester early in the final quarter, but Henderson returned the ensuing kickoff for a touchdown and a 26-6 lead with 9:53 left.

No. 13 UCLA 34, Arizona 24

Troy Aikman, who passed for three touchdowns, scored the game-winner on a quarterback sneak with 6:30 remaining as UCLA, 3-1, completed a comeback from a 17-7 halftime deficit.

In losing the Pac-10 Conference opener for both teams, Arizona dropped to 1-2 overall.

No. 14 Michigan 49, Long Beach St. 0

Tailback Jamie Morris rushed 20 times for 171 yards and one touchdown as Michigan, 2-1, made quick work of outmanned Long Beach State, 2-2. Morris scored on a 12-yard run to give the Wolverines a 21-0 halftime lead.

Michigan's first touchdown came on a 4-yard keeper by junior quarterback Demetrius Brown with 36 seconds left in the first quarter, and sophomore fullback Jarrod Bunch made it 14-0 with a 10-yard run.

No. 15 Penn St. 27, Boston Col. 17

Blair Thomas rushed for 164 yards and scored twice for Penn State, 3-1. The Nittany Lions scored on their first three possessions for a 17-0 lead.

THE WILD BLUE YONDER

Five airplanes are flying at once in close vicinity and the only air traffic control is done from grounded eyes.

But these aren't commercial jets.

They are radio-controlled model airplanes flown by the Big Spring Model Aircraft Association. The club's members have been flying airplanes since the early '70s. Moss Lake provides the airways for the club headed by Stephen Gay, this year's president. Walter Bumbulis is vice-president, with Andy Arcand as secretary/treasurer.

"The purpose of the club is to promote the building and flying radio-controlled model aircraft in a safe environment," Gay said.

George Gatliff and Willis Taylor are two founding members of the club, both of whom began the hobby in the '50s.

"I've been flying since 1957. That was when you had to build your own radios," Taylor said.

Taylor has watched model airplanes change since he first opened the skies with his planes without passengers.

"You used to hope an airplane would make one good flight on an afternoon. Now they last all summer," Taylor said.

Other than performing stunts such as loops, flips and spins, the planes are capable of dogfighting.

This colorful game involves tying ribbons on the plane's tail and attempting to fly through the enemies' ribbon — which is not as easy as it sounds since depth perception from ground level is reduced.

Gatliff's dogfighting days are behind him.

"I used to dogfight. You have to make up your mind that you are going to lose some airplanes," Gatliff said.

The first planes had little engine control. Today computerized and radio-controlled flights reduce the number of landing crashes.

But, despite the number of planes that fly in the same area on a Sunday afternoon, mid-air collisions are rare.

"I don't ever remember two planes hitting each other," Taylor said.

Gatliff, who began flying the planes in 1952, now uses his personal 300-foot home runway for his hobby.

"I just loved airplanes," Gatliff said.

His love is exemplified by a 1978 effort when Gatliff piloted a plane as part of a cross-country relay flight sponsored by the Academy of Model Aeronautics. A branch of the Federal Aviation Agency, the Academy is located in Washington, D.C.

Riding in a seat fastened to the back of a pickup, Gatliff piloted the plane from Abilene to Midland, as Big Spring's leg of the cross-country journey. He maintained a 300-foot distance between the road and plane to ensure safety.

His plane was not without cargo: contained within was a letter for the mayor of El Paso.

"The letter was from the mayor of Big Spring to the mayor of El Paso. It was meant to challenge the mayor to pledge money to the March of Dimes," Gatliff said.

Fuel demands of the plane called for landing every 15 miles along the trip — no easy task across West Texas terrain. One rough landing on the flight prompted replacement of a wing.

Each August the club conducts a non-competitive Fly-In with flyers from Odessa, Abilene and San Angelo bringing their planes to Moss Lake to perform such stunts as aerial acrobatics. Weather did not cooperate at this year's Fly-In.

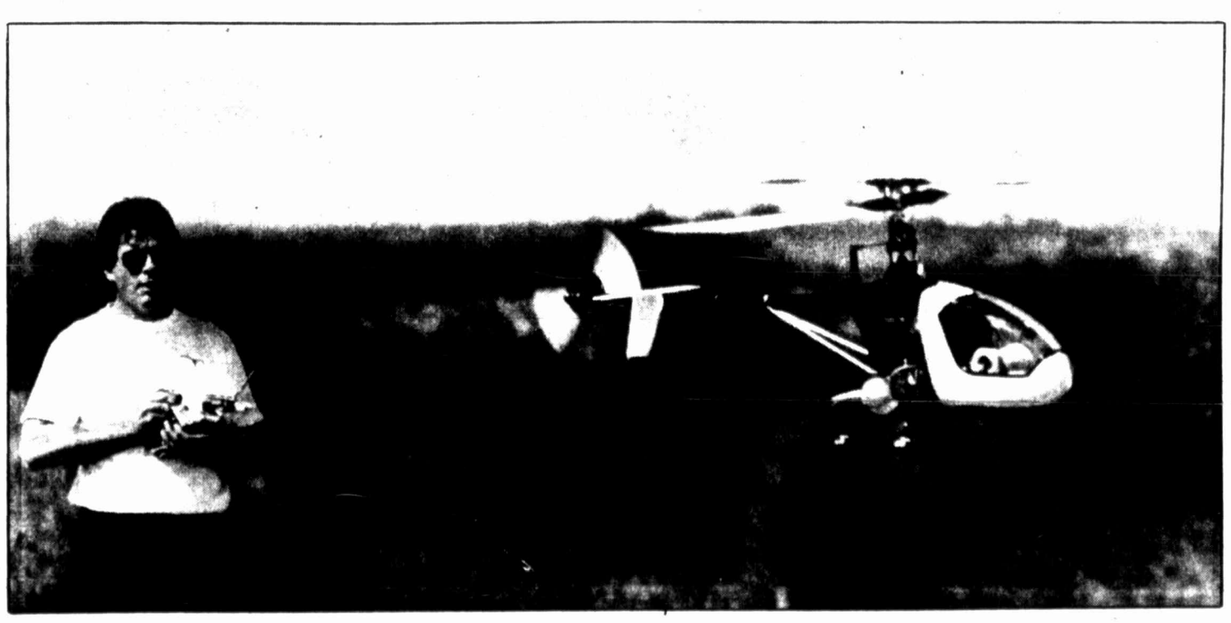

"It was a bad, windy day this year," Taylor said.

The planes operate with gasoline-powered engines, similar to those used in chain-saws. With computerized control improvements, the planes are actually cheaper to purchase than they were in 1960, Taylor said.

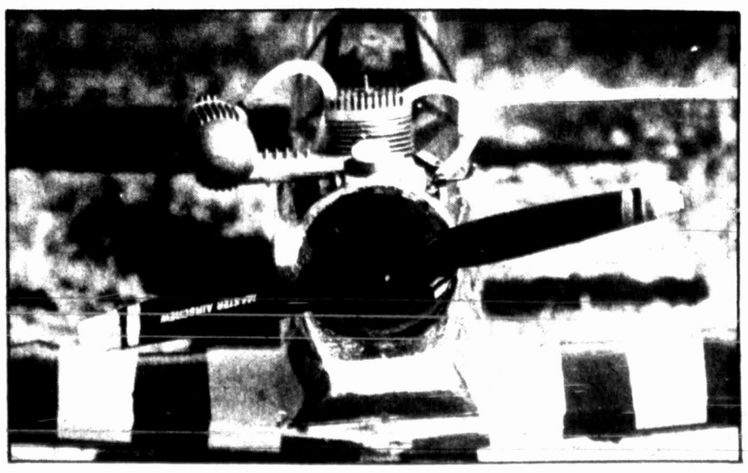

So, the next time the sky is filled with sounds like someone going after clouds with a chain-saw, look for the Big Spring Model Airplace Association in flight.

Stephen Gay looks over a model of an SR-71 which, when completed, can reach speeds up to 180 miles per hour.

Pat Gray watches as he hovers his helicopter at eye level.

Home sweet home

West Texas couple restores old hotel

MULLIN, Texas (AP) — From a rocking chair on the second-floor balcony of an old hotel, Warren Duren looks out over a peaceful little lake.

A horse grazes on the far bank. A breeze and the shade make the afternoon heat bearable. Deer and turkey abound in the hills surrounding the lake, but are not to be seen this time of day.

The old hotel is everything a country home should be — quiet and comfortable, quaint and relaxing. Duren's only regret is that he and his wife, Oleta, cannot spend more time here.

This was once the Star Hotel, built sometime between 1900 and 1907. The balcony, where Duren now sits, once faced the noisy Santa Fe Railroad tracks in downtown Mullin, some 3½ miles from where the hotel now stands.

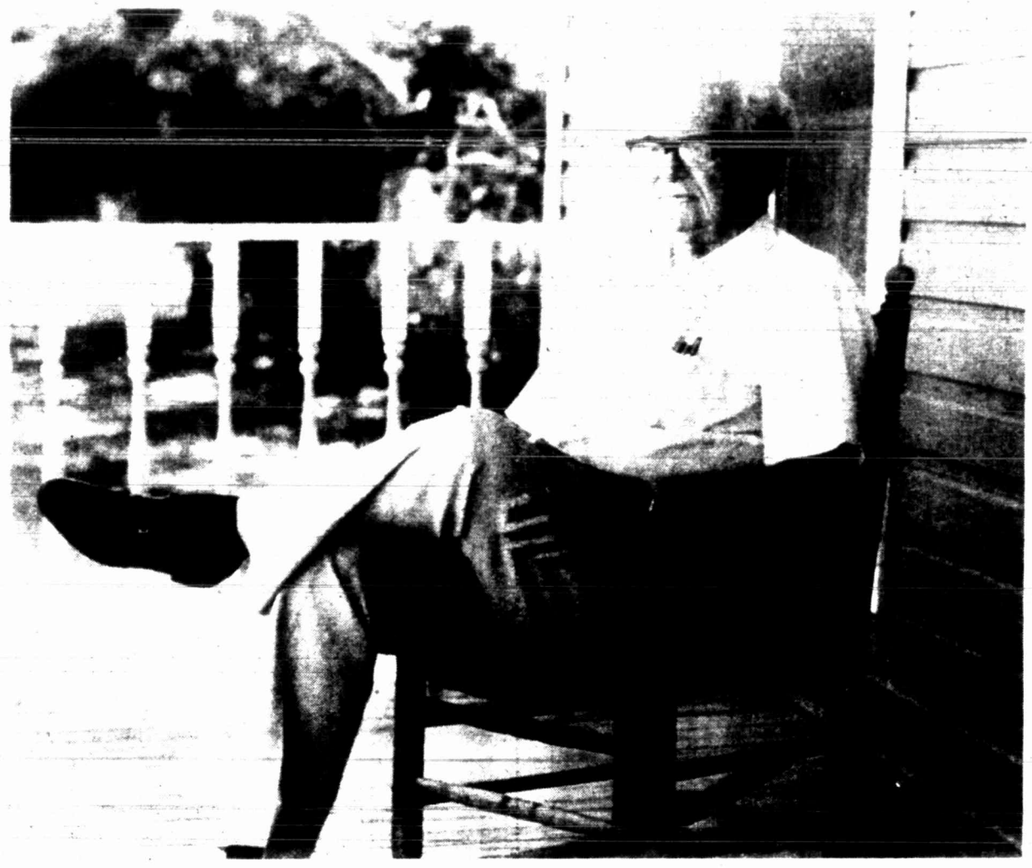

Neither the hotel nor the lake was here when Duren bought this land nine years ago. Duren built the lake and wanted to build a cottage beside it. Driving past the old hotel one day, Duren mentioned to his wife how good it would look next to the lake. The idea stuck, and when the price was right, he bought the hotel.

After the big move in January 1985, work began on the interior. A previous owner had restored the outside of the hotel and given it its wine color trimmed in white. Two carpenters worked four months and the Durens worked six months to transform the hotel into a home.

Much of the hotel's personality has been restored. Old flooring and ceilings, a six-foot bathtub, and numbered doors remain. Plenty of antiques furnish the rooms or find new uses such as the old wagon wheel from which kitchen utensils hang.

The rooms are small by today's hotel standards.

"We want king size now, we don't even want queen-size," Duren says. "They probably got about two bits a night for this room."

Warren Duren relaxes at his favorite spot, the balcony of the old Star Hotel built in the early 1900s. The refurbished hotel is home to Duren and his wife, Oleta.

"This is kinda my favorite spot," Duren says of the balcony. "The water goes back for half a mile."

His granddaughters' favorite place is the playroom in what used to be the attic, he adds. Or, maybe the tree house he built for them.

"We've spent two nights here during the last couple of months," says Duren. The couple live in nearby Goldthwaite.

"We'd like to spend every night here if we could, but there always seems to be a meeting in town or something to go to."

The hotel gets plenty of use from friends and the Durens' sons, Tom and Phil, and their families. While we were visiting, three youngsters came by to ask if they could swim in the lake. They brought along a hammer to fix some loose boards in the pier. Duren gave them permission.

Growing up near Mullin, Duren didn't get a chance to stay at the Star Hotel, but remembers eating here when it was the McNeill Boarding House.

"Mrs. McNeill was a great cook," he says. "I think you'd pay about two bits and sit around a big table, family style and eat all you wanted back in the Depression days."

Duren ran a grocery store and locker plant for several years in Mullin. A friend encouraged him to go into the banking business in 1947 and by 1953, he was president of the Mills County State Bank. He retired in 1980 and is now chairman of the board of the bank's holding company.

The Durens, married 50 years, say the time and money they have put into the hotel was worth it.

"We've enjoyed every minute out here," he says.

Cold showers douse old flame

Dear Abby

What do you think of this? And how would you handle this the next time we have a family get-together, which is only once a year?

STEAMED IN GEORGIA

DEAR STEAMED: You are probably correct in assuming that the photos were lifted by the light-fingered, heavy-handed in-law. There is nothing to "handle." The deed is done. In the future, either stand guard while the album is being "enjoyed" or lock it up.

DEAR ABBY: We have been seeing references to "the late" Franklin Delano Roosevelt since we were kids in the '50s. The most recent one was in June of this year.

Could you please ask your experts and let us know just how many years must go by before one is just plain dead rather than "late"?

LINDA AND DAVID S. IN BAKERSFIELD

DEAR LINDA AND DAVID: According to my expert, Letitia Baldrige (author of "The Complete Guide to Executive Manners"): "When referring to someone who was famous and is now dead, one need not say 'the late'. (Franklin Delano Roosevelt would qualify.) But in referring to a person who was not well-known, 'the late Mrs. John Jones' would indicate that she is no longer living."

DEAR ABBY: I just read the column stating that females were offended to see "Cows" on the ladies' room door, but after it was changed to "Heifers," not one lady complained.

The Big Spur in Springdale, Utah, solved that problem with signs that say "Does" and "Bulls."

LYNN BORNHOLDT

DEAR ABBY: "Proud Texan's" letter reminded me of an embarrassing incident I experienced when I was in college a long time ago. My date took me to a brand new country-western nightclub where the rest rooms were labeled "Fillies" and "Stallions."

Being a city girl, I knew nothing about horses, so I gambled, figuring I had a 50 percent chance of being right. Well, as luck would have it, I walked in on several "stallions." I don't know who was more embarrassed — the stallions, me, or my date who saw me going into the wrong bathroom!

Since then, I've seen some cutesy names for country-western rest rooms. For example: "Studs" and "Belles" and "Dudes" and "Dames," but I still prefer just plain "Men" and "Women."

CITY GIRL IN ALABAMA

(Do you have to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Groups, volunteers make the fair

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

How is the Howard County Fair orchestrated to provide the fun it is?

Our just completed Howard County Fair is a result of a tremendous amount of cooperation and hard work by a large number of volunteers and organizations. First of all, the organization, itself, is composed of 20 directors, all community volunteers, elected on an alternating basis from the board each two years.

These directors meet each month during the year and are charged with responsibilities of the various departments and areas of the fair itself. These directors appoint and recruit various other volunteers to assist them.

Examples include the Women's division, Entertainment, Security, Agriculture, Arts and Crafts, etc.

Ask the agent

The land itself is owned by the Howard County Rodeo Association, who cooperates by lending use of its Rodeo Bowl and grounds for fair use.

The Dora Roberts Building is owned by the Howard County Fair Association itself. The other buildings are owned and maintained by the County of Howard, who also lends its support in paving projects, grounds maintenance and other areas of assistance.

Without the join cooperation and coordination of all these individual agencies and organizations, this annual event could not be possible. The Fair Association is totally self-sufficient and operates itself on its own financially.

Fair improvements are made from projects made at the fair each year. It also has some financial assistance from its annual "Friends of the Fair" program. All directors are always anxious for suggestion for improvements to the fair from fair-goers.

The annual Bar-B-Que held for agricultural producers is held on a day during their fair most convenient in its schedule of events in support of agriculture in our community by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber also sponsors and hosts the farm tour in co-ordination of its Leadership Big Spring program in strengthening rural-urban relations.

This year's date was set to enable the workers of the fair to utilize the same facilities and equipment used the previous night at the annual 4-H omelet event, saving time and labor in preparing for the two events.

The County Extension Office is responsible for arranging tour stops and is open for suggestions. Availability and timeliness of tour stops also are taken into consideration.

Koppel criticizes network policy

NEW YORK (AP) — "Nightline" host Ted Koppel is in "difficult negotiations" over his expiring ABC contract, says Parade magazine.

Parade, in its edition to be distributed Sunday, said Koppel is seeking to be relieved of some news assignments and of being a vacation stand-in for nightly news anchor Peter Jennings.

Koppel also criticized network budget cuts, saying they could be "suicidal" for television news programs.

The networks mistakenly are trying to compete with low-budget syndicated television news, rather than focusing on producing higher-quality shows, he said.

"They don't seem to realize that their network news will only flourish by being visibly stronger, deeper and of better quality," Koppel said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Webb Pierce, recovering from open-heart surgery, was in fair condition in a hospital today, a spokesman said.

Pierce, 61, best known for his song "In the Jailhouse Now," underwent surgery Friday at St. Thomas Hospital, and was moved Wednesday from a special care unit to a regular room.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Some southern Indiana residents expect something strange when the Dalai Lama dedicates a shrine, but most have reacted with warmth and curiosity, say followers of the Tibetan Buddhist leader.

The 14th Dalai Lama, 52-year-old Tenzin Gyatso, arrived Thursday for a three-day visit, part of a 17-day tour of the United States, Switzerland and West Germany.

"At first some of the people around here were sort of leery," said Suzy Fulkerson as she arranged flowers for a Thursday night dinner in the Tibetan priest's honor.

"They didn't know or understand what was going to happen" at the Buddhist funerary shrine the Dalai Lama was to dedicate this afternoon, she said. "They were afraid it might be something weird or strange."

The Dalai Lama, the supreme leader of Tibetan Buddhists and head of a Tibetan government in exile, has lived in Dharmsala, India, since fleeing his country in 1960.

The United States regards him as an important religious figure but does not recognize his claim to Tibetan governmental leadership. Tibet is now considered a province of China.

The Indiana visit came at the invitation of his older brother, Thubten J. Norbu, a retired Indiana University professor of Uralic and Altaic studies.

It is the Dalai Lama's fourth visit to the United States since leaving Tibet.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may feel the need to get away from your usual routines and do something which will bring a change of scenery. If you do this without upsetting others, it can be quite beneficial later.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Distant people and places make your situation seem dull, but the grass is not really much greener. Don't do anything hasty or foolish.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Rather than arguing with your mate over what amount of your budget to set aside for entertainment, come to a compromise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Avoid becoming involved in an argument between a family friend and an outsider, and get busy on your personal duties.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Keep smiling and be optimistic, no matter what occurs. Show your superiors that you are dependable and competent.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't allow yourself to be pressured into an expensive, recurring amusement which would severly tax your budget. Be productive.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Before becoming involved in any new business, handle important home matters first. Today is good for shopping, visiting, etc.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you keep any promises you've made to others, whether in business or of a personal nature. Rely on your common sense today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you involve yourself in a friend's problems which you know very little about, you'll miss out on some important personal matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Outside affairs could get you into trouble today, so stay at home and get some rest. You'll find a way out of a difficult situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get some troubling matters out of the way so you'll have time and energy for socializing, and possibly a short trip with a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stay away from a friend who you know will start arguments over business. Enjoy a rare family get-together and dinner tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your associates may not agree with your ambitions, so try to make a new plan which will please everyone. Make some important phone calls.

If Your Child Is Born Today

He or she will have a very strong character and will not be easily swayed once opinions have been formed. Teach your child while young not to form any prejudices which could be extremely limiting in later life. A good education will help your progeny to deal easily with changes during his or her lifetime. Sports are a must.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may be apt to force your views and criticize the views of others and the conditions around you. Overcome this tendency and try to be understanding and thoughtful in your attitude. Don't make changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may feel bogged down and believe that a new course of action is not worthwhile, but persevere and your strength will be rewarded.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have assumed an obligation which is now beginning to bother you, but don't go back on your word — you'll get good results.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A little smile will go a long way today. Be conscientious in fulfilling your obligations. Be wary of signing any contracts before studying them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Decide how you can best make your daily activities more productive and, at the same time, more enjoyable. Be tactful.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You may feel reluctant about running an errand for a close friend, but if you carry through with it, you'll reap some very rich rewards.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some annoying little tasks at home must be handled now. They may be irritating at the time, but you'll feel satisfied this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take care of the shopping which is necessary today. Drive with great care and avoid an accident which would be costly and painful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Avoid an acquaintance who likes to argue and will undoubtedly give you a headache. Attend to improving your health today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may feel you've bitten off more than you can chew, but some encouragement from your mate will make this job seem easier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) An old friend who has been somewhat standoffish will come to your aid today. Don't allow delays to cause you to lose your temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure to follow the directions given you by a superior. Avoid a friend who is depressed until this person cheers up a bit.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Explore the possibilities of a new interest, but stay out of the limelight today. Don't lose your temper while settling a troubling credit affair.

If Your Child Is Born Today

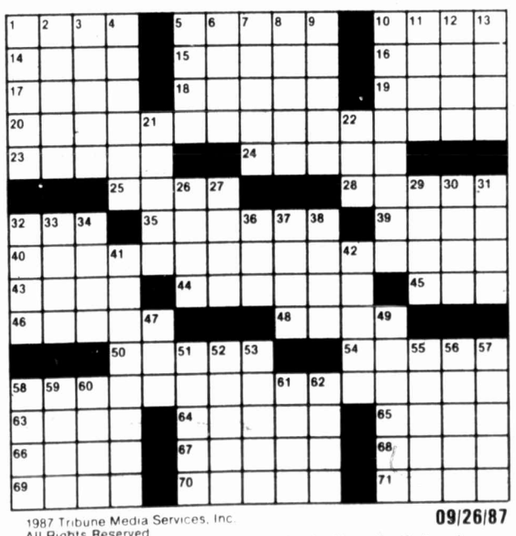

He or she will have to develop a stable and strong mind early in life. Teach your progeny that a cheerful attitude and an easy smile will always put people at ease — especially in business situations. Foreign languages should be added to the school curriculum, as work in other lands could lead to great success in business areas.

Women's clubs still provide social life

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Sterling County has less than 1,000 inhabitants and only one city. It was called the windmill capital because every house used to have its own windmill.

The two biggest things in Sterling City during the last four years have been the arrival of cable television and construction of a sewer system.

About eight months ago the blinking signal light in Sterling City became a full-fledged traffic light with red, yellow and green colors. But Sterling City folks aren't used to that yet, and usually pass right on through, regardless of which color is displayed.

Funeral notices still are posted on some of the old family-owned businesses in Sterling City. But when the one ambulance in town is backed up to the hardware store — which also is the funeral home — residents get on the phone to learn who is involved. Within 15 minutes everybody in town knows all about it.

Sterling City has half a dozen churches and plenty of clubs. Two of those clubs have unusual names: WIMODAUSIS and NORATADATA.

WIMODAUSIS was founded in 1912 and is the acronym for wives, mothers, daughters and sisters. In 1934 some daughters of ladies in WIMODAUSIS founded another club called NORATADATA.

"We couldn't get a date, so that's when we organized and started a club to learn how to play bridge," says charter member Cecile McDonald. "We finally learned how to rate a date and we all got married."

Both clubs still are active in Sterling City. WIMODAUSIS celebrates its 75th anniversary this year and NORATADATA had its 50th anniversary three years ago.

"So we're all getting up there," says McDonald.

Her mother, Mrs. Bill Reed, was one of the founders of the WIMODAUSIS club.

"Miss Ethel Foster of Sterling City was a great club woman and she started it," explains McDonald. "She was president of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs at the time."

The WIMODAUSIS Club adopted a Latin phrase as its motto: "Quod alius fecit, faciemus," which translates into "What others have done, we can do."

About NORATADATA's motto, McDonald says, "We were just trying to find a man. I guess that was our motto — find a man."

While WIMODAUSIS has no charter members left, two other

Tumbleweed Smith

charter members of the NORATADATA club besides McDonald are still active.

"There were 13 of us and we were just high school girls with nothing to do and our mothers wanted to teach us how to play bridge so we called ourselves NORATADATA 'cause while others were out dating, we were trying to learn how to play bridge," she said.

During World War I and II the WIMODAUSIS club bought Liberty Bonds, did Red Cross work, made garments and surgical dressing for servicemen and erected a flagpole and provided a flag.

The club helped establish a library, planted trees on the courthouse lawn and owns the land where the Sterling City golf course is located.

Some years ago, one of the ladies wrote some verse:

"Not much to do but plenty to hear
In Sterling City back then.
So we organized this club of ours
'Cause we were short on men.
NORATADATA we called the group
And thirteen members began
This club still known by the name that's stuck
Though all of us have found a man."

McDonald's daughter Jeannie Hughes is a member of yet another Sterling City ladies club, called DAMAS. "It's the Spanish word for ladies, and is just another variation of women here getting togther and playing bridge," she said.

"But our group really is just for fun. We go to plays and have a good time. You'd think that in a small town like this there wouldn't be so many clubs. But when there's a community event, we all have our separate duties," Hughes said.

Some people say DAMAS really stands for daughters and mothers and sisters.

Tips help travellers

From FRIENDLY EXCHANGE MAGAZINE

Thanks to deregulation of airlines and increased competition in the travel industry, that grand vacation can be less expensive than it's been for many years.

Saving hundreds of dollars is simple with a little time and effort, says Friendly Exchange magazine.

Most airlines offer discounts from their standard coach rates. If the best discount is unavailable at the time of reservation, ask to be put on a waiting list in case of a cancellation. Reduced fares currently offered go by names such as "coach-economy discount," "supersaver," "excursion" or "advance purchase." Some plans offer lower rates for travel on designated days. Ask several questions to reach the lowest available rate.

The lowest air fares may apply to only a few seats on the plane so make reservations as early as possible. Some airlines require 15 to 30 days advance payment for discounted fares. Cancellation penalties can run 25 percent-or more. On the other hand, if a fare goes down after payment, a refund may be available.

Some airlines make up for a lower price by charging for luggage handling and beverages. Others serve sandwiches instead of a full lunch or dinner or, in some cases, no longer provide meals of any kind.

Most travel agencies prefer to handle airline reservations and all other travel details, too. If making only airline reservations, some agencies may add a $5- to $20-per-person surcharge. But there are ways to find an agent willing to do the comparison shopping or who has access to lower rates.

Ask friends, neighbors and business associates if they have used a good travel agent. Look over the office and check for the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) seal. Does the agency answer calls promptly, return calls quickly, welcome new clients?

If price is a primary concern, say so; the agency may not want to handle small accounts.

Ask if the agency offers specials — disposal of unclaimed last-minute seats that are part of travel packages. Inquire about charters or bulk fares — the agency may have access to blocks of seats purchased at the lowest possible rates.

Ask if the agency has ticketing arrangements with low-fare airlines and whether the ticket prices offered include the low-rate lines.

Make sure the agency has checked all routes to the destination — including some that aren't as direct. Find out if the agency will recheck reservations for any price changes just before departure.

A few tips to consider about credit

You're all set to go shopping. You've got your credit cards ready to "charge." But before you hit the mall, take the time to figure out just how much you can afford to spend on credit.

Two simple rules can be followed when figuring out how much you can afford to charge. First, your credit bills — including car payments, credit card bills and other installment credit, but excluding your mortgage payment — should be kept to under 15-20 percent of your take-home pay each month. Second, be sure you are able to pay off everything in 18-24 months.

Interest rates on credit cards depend upon the rates set by the issuing financial institutions. Credit cards, such as Visa or MasterCard, aren't all the same. Interest rates and terms and conditions of computing interest rates can differ.

Depending upon how you use your credit cards, lower interest rates can be beneficial. If you pay your credit card bills in full each month, you don't have to worry about paying a finance charge so the interest rate wouldn't matter. You're using your credit cards for convenience, not credit.

But a true credit user may benefit by shopping around for a credit card with low interest rates. Because true credit users regularly use credit, and always carry over an outstanding balance, they pay a finance charge each month.

If your current credit card charges 19 percent interest and another credit card company charges 14 percent interest, that's a 5 percent difference. Now, if you usually have a monthly balance of $800, multiply that figure by 5 percent and you come up with $40. That's the amount you'll save each year by switching to the credit card with a lower interest rate. If you have several credit cards at high interest rates, the savings could be substantial.

How Much Should You Spend On Credit?

There's one catch to this, however. Each company also may charge a different annual fee. Subtract the annual fee from the amount you calculated to see the real savings. If, for example, the card with 14 percent interest has a $17 dollar annual fee, you are actually saving $23 ($40 -$17 = $23) by changing cards. Lower interest rates may mean a high annual fee, which could cost you more in the long run, depending on the balance you carry over each month.

Consumer Debt

Consumer debt stands at an all-time high. Since the average consumer has two bank cards and seven other credit cards, and an average balance of about $800, it's no wonder. Last year, consumers charged $70 billion worth of purchases, $10 billion between Thanksgiving and Christmas alone. That's nothing compared to this year's craze. As of July 1987, consumers owe $600 billion or $2400 per capita on credit purchases, excluding home mortgages.

Wilkins attends sales meeting

Dan Wilkins, the Edward D. Jones investment company representative in Big Spring, participated in the firm's national sales meeting Sept. 19-20.

Wilkins joined more than 1,200 other representatives gathered in 15 U.S. locations for the meeting, via satellite. The system's two-way audio capabilities also allowed a question and answer session.

The company has been testing the feasibility of a satellite link between it St. Louis, Mo., headquarters and the more than 1,200 branch offices for the past four years. This year's meeting is the third live video teleconference involving every company representative.

"Because the Jones offices are so widespread, satellite technology is an ideal communication tool for us, and the success of this teleconference has put us one step closer to our dream of having a satellite hookup with every branch office," siad Managing Principal John Bachman.

District expenses below estimates

Colorado River Municipal Water District income was even with budget projections for the first eight months of 1987, but expenses were 22 percent below estimates, said Secretary/Treasurer Joe Pickle.

The main reason for the lower expenses was a smaller energy cost. Savings came from most economical sources, including pumping less water and $103,629 in fuel rebates, he said.

Electricity amounted to $2,079,307 through August, $932,216, or 30.95 percent, below estimates.

The district received $8,560,665 in revenues through August, 0.44 percent below estimates.

Operating expenses of $3,714,618 were $1,048,615, or 22.02 percent, below estimates. The savings resulted in $1,000,359, or 26.23 percent, more funds going toward debt service and indentured funds.

Most of the revenues, $7,147,162, came from the sale of water to cities. The district sold 10,771,903,810 gallons, of which 91.33 percent was in potable lake and well water, and the balance in diverted low-flow water sold to oil companies for secondary recovery.

Cotton needs sunny weather

Cotton looks good but needs sunny weather in District 6 Far West Texas, including Howard County, according to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Livestock continues to do well, pecans are filling out and tomatoes are being harvested.

In District 7 West Central Texas, cotton is developing well, but the sorghum harvest has been delayed by wet fields. Ranges have greened, cattle and prices are excellent. Pecans are sizing well.

Sales tax increases Oct. 1

Many new services will become taxable Oct. 1, when the state's sales tax rate increases from 5½ to 6 percent, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

The expanded sales tax base was a major element of a $5.7 billion tax bill the Legislature approved this summer.

The tax was extended to several broad categories of services, such as real property services, including landscaping, janitorial, garbage collection and pest control; security services, including private investigators and armored car services; information furnished by credit bureaus; and debt services, such as adjustments and repossessions.

It also will include information services such as financial research, specialized information and insurance services including damage appraisals, investigations and claims adjustments, but excluding insurance premiums.

The expanded tax base is expected to add more than 64,000 Texas businesses to the state's tax roles, joining the more than 420,000 merchants and businesses already taxed.

SWCID intern program

Susanne McCaa, left, communicates in sign language to Liz Taylor, manager of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office. McCaa, an accounting major, works two afternoons a week at the chamber as part of the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf student intern program.

Betty Clere, program director, said seven other SWCID students are participating in the program: Terry Starling, accounting, and Noe Saenz, data entry, both at Western Container; Lisa Salazar, data entry, and Lisa Russ, office technology, both at Scenic Mountain Medical Center; Darrell McMurrough, data entry, and Luis Diaz, accounting, both at the Big Spring Herald; and Julio Diaz, accounting, at Cain Electric.

An instructor evaluates the students in the workplace, and group discussions are conducted.

Clere said the program helps give the students experience in holding a job and in dealing with the hearing public. She expects to expand the program in the future, adding more students and additional study subjects.

Indicators grim

Peters on excellence

By TOM PETERS

The Labor Day holiday means "back to work." And back to work is indeed the order of business.

Some forecasters are still humming an optimistic tune. To be sure, inflation is under control, gross unemployment statistics continue to inch downward and interest rates are mellow by recent standards. Yet most indicators of long-term health are grim.

- Debt: As recently as 1982, we were the world's biggest net creditor, $141 billion in the black; today, the U.S. has become the largest debtor, $264 billion in hock to other countries as of last year's end.

The federal budget deficit is stuck around $175 billion a year with total U.S. debt outstanding exceeding $2 trillion. Only Japan's continued willingness to finance our debt (for instance, they purchased two-thirds of the most recent Treasury bond offering) keeps the dollar afloat as one of the world's three major currencies, along with the yen and deutsche mark.

- Savings: The nearly rock-bottom savings rate is flirting with new lows. At the start of the so-called supply-side revolution in 1981, Americans saved 7.5 percent of disposable personal income. By early 1987, we were saving just 2.8 percent, contrasted with 17 percent in Japan and 12 percent in West Germany. Only those staggering debts to others we continue to heap are keeping investment moving ahead.

- Speculation: $80 trillion in currency is exchanged to support just $4 billion in goods and services trade. Furthermore, new speculative financial instruments literally appear daily. Speculation also explains most of the continuing stock market run-up, which certainly is not due to any latent strength of the individual firms' securities.

- Productivity: Productivity in the U.S. grew by 3 percent a year between 1950 and 1965 and 2 percent a year between 1965 and 1973. Since 1973, productivity increases have crept along at 1 percent a year.

Japan's productivity growth has been seven times higher than ours since 1973, and even Great Britain's has been three times higher. U.S. service sector productivity growth since the start of the 1980s has run at the zero mark, despite massive capital spending (the service sector buys 85 percent of all high technology capital goods today).

- Income: Families used to count on doubling their real (adjusted for inflation) income in the course of a generation. No more. Real median household income is 8 percent less now than in 1973.

Real gross weekly earnings are less than in 1962. A 30-year-old American male earned $25,545 in 1973 (denominated in 1986 dollars); by 1986, his pay was down 28 percent, to $18,236. And home ownership by young families is off by over 20 percent just since 1980.

(And these figures do not include the de facto lowered standard of living from the precipitous decline of the dollar since 1985.) Our per capita income now trails that of Japan, West Germany, Switzerland, Sweden and Denmark among others.

- Trade: The trade deficit just won't shrink significantly, despite the dollar's battering. Our $150 billion-a-year negative trade balance has inspired the 1987 omnibus trade legislation, which will only make things worse. Protectionist measures already on the books cost the consumer an estimated $65 billion a year — yet another blow to the standard of living.

- Corporate woes: Beyond the gross statistics are the endless stories of the battering of our most venerated firms. As of late May, General Motors had lost one-fifth of its market share in just one year, despite lavish buyers' incentives and the strong yen that forced Japanese price increases.

The Bank of America was almost sold in 1987 and still is suffering catastrophic losses, only partially cushioned by selling off real estate and the few remaining profitable business units.

Procter & Gamble recently wrote off hundreds of millions of dollars and is madly restructuring. General Electric, which now prefers to be called GE, is recklessly buying and selling in search of some elusive nirvana; since 1981, it has bought 325 or so businesses — who can keep track? — for $12 billion and sold off 225 or so for $8 billion.

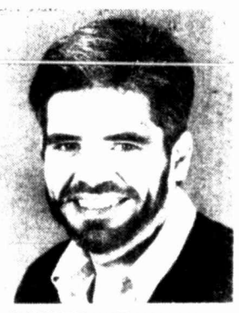

IBM is hurting badly and scrambling, too. Citicorp wrote off about $4 billion dollars this spring, and the stock market rewarded it with an instant 15 percent stock-price jump. This type of odd stock market response, a big price leap following a huge loss or write-off, is now commonplace in all industries and stands as stark testimony of the market's prior low valuation of management's actions.

Wernsman is named editor, White adds responsibilities

Herald staff report

Two Big Spring Herald staff changes have been announced by Publisher John Brown.

Robert Wernsman has been named editor and Richard White has assumed the title of director of marketing — advertising and circulation. Brown said the changes take effect immediately.

ROBERT WERNSMAN

Wernsman has been city editor of the Herald since September 1986, when he came to Big Spring from a Chickasha, Okla. daily newspaper.

He assumes the newsroom operations responsibilities formerly directed by Managing Editor Darrell Berkheimer.

White has been an employee of the Herald since January 1985, when he was named advertising director.

His duties were expanded upon the recent retirement of Chuck Benz, who has been circulation director since December 1977. Benz and his wife Carol are planning to return to Georgia, where they lived before moving to Big Spring to help with the care of his late mother.

RICHARD WHITE

White will be assisted in the circulation area by Sylvia Collins, who has been a Herald staff member for four years — one year in circulation, and in the business office for the past three years. Other members of the circulation staff are Steve Strain and Marcellino Chavez.

White came to the Herald after several years in the newspaper advertising business, having held advertising sales positions with the Houston Post, Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman, Dallas Times Herald and Abilene Reporter-News.

Wernsman was in higher education adminstration for four years in Oklahoma until 1986, when he returned to the newspaper business. Previously, he was editor of weekly papers in Iowa for eight years — five of those years as publisher and editor of three weekly newspapers and a shopper in Marshall County.

Seasonal advice from local experts

GEARED FOR GIFTS — Debra Lusk, owner of Green Acres Nursery, holds a new "country bunny" doll from her new shipment of gifts. The nursery also is well-stocked with pansies and mums for fall planting.

Now is good time to plant pansies, mums, spring bulbs

Even though cold weather is just around the corner, there's still plenty of work to do in the garden, says Debra Lusk of Green Acres Nursery.

Clean up spent blooms and plants to prepare your beds for fall color. Green Acres has received its shipment of that most popular of cold weather flowers — the pansy. These bedding plants come in many colors — and they will provide your yard with color all winter until the end of May. Just plant them in a sunny location, mixing a bit of blood meal into the soil, and keep them watered.

This is the time to plant cushion and garden mums. They'll bloom profusely until freezing weather; the roots remain hardy over the winter and will reward gardeners with blooms all over again next spring.

Put bulbs into the ground now for early spring blooming — Green Acres has a big supply of tulips, daffodils, narcissus, hyacinths and crocus.

Sow a bed or two with bluebonnets or other wildflowers now for a pleasant surprise next spring.

Fall is the best time to plant new trees and shrubs to fill in those vacant places in your landscape.

Once your fall planting chores are taken care of, you can relax and start planning for the holidays. Debra reminds her customers that Green Acres is a "place for all seasons," a year 'round shop for gardening and gift shopping. Her country gift shop is now brimming with gifts — new country bunnies, grapevine wreaths, baskets in many sizes and colors, silk flowers, brass items, wood novelties and "new antiques."

Floral gifts are delivered without charge.

Green Acres is located at 700 East 17th.

READY TO ROLL — Robert Williams, service man for Hester & Robertson, is ready to answer a call in the company's radio-dispatched truck. Weekend and after-hours service is available for emergencies.

Prepare for cold weather: check heating system early

All the weather predictors (even the famous "wooly worms") look for a cold winter.

That puts emphasis on conserving utility costs, and a good place to start is with regular service on your central heating unit, say the experts at Hester & Robertson Mechanical Contractors. Now is the time to have your unit serviced to be certain it is in prime working order for this year's cold spells.

The company has two radio-dispatched vehicles ready to give fast and efficient service at all times. Calls are usually worked the same day they are taken. With the onslaught of cold weather, this becomes more important.

Needed parts on service calls are usually on the truck, saving valuable times.

If major repairs are needed — or if a new heating unit is called for — Hester & Robertson will provide a free estimate of costs.

The service vehicle is available after hours and on weekends for emergencies, according to Carol Hollingsworth.

Hester & Robertson sells and installs heating or heating/cooling equipment by Lennox, Trane, Carrier and Payne.

New models of gas furnaces offer more comfort and economy for your home than ever, Carol says. For example the Lennox G12 series — a furnace with fewer components to maintain, built-in safety controls and the simplest filter cleaning maintenance. You can choose the standard economy G12 with a standing pilot, or the G12E with the energy saving POWERLITE electronic ignition. In the latter model, the pilot does not burn all the time; it comes on when the thermostat signals that more heat is needed.

Phone Hester & Robertson at 263-8342 today, for more information about a new heating system for your home. There is no obligation.

Service comes first at Larry's

Larry's Gulf Station at 1301 South Gregg is one of those rarities these days ... a full-service station where they still check your oil and clean your windshield.

It's a service that many car owners want, says Larry Smith, owner, and he provides it to help them take better care of their cars.

But for owners who prefer the speed and convenience of pumping gas themselves, Larry is planning to add a self service aisle soon.

This station specializes in those essential jobs that keep your car on the road — oil change, brake jobs, air conditioning repairs, wash/polish and flats. The owner does most of the mechanical repairs himself.

Larry will pick up and deliver your car for a wash job or oil change/lubrication. This is a great service for busy executives.

Larry purchased the station from the previous owner who had been in business at this same location 37 years.

"I still have many of these longtime customers," says Larry. "I've continued the kind of service they were used to ... plus I've made a few changes."

Larry's Gulf honors Gulf/Chevron, Chevron, VISA, American Express, MasterCard and Discover credit cards.

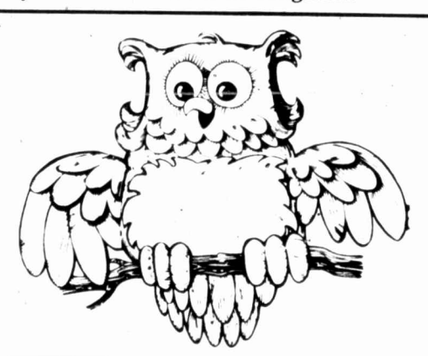

The station sells Interstate Batteries, Multimile and Goodyear tires.

Larry's Gulf holds the current service contract for City of Big Spring vehicles.

Wise buy.
