PANIC REIGNS OVER FARMERS IN LOUISIANA

ACADIANS FLEEING AS AFTERMATH TO RED CROSS WARNING

(By Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS, May 20.—Panic began supplanting the desperate confidence with which residents of the Acadian country heretofore have viewed possibilities of a flood. Frantic appeals for aid were received at all concentration centers and relief workers were sent out to save the persons who a few days ago refused to leave their homes when pleaded with by rescue workers.

The cause for the sudden change was disclosed when refugees arriving at the camp at Lafayette said they had not been afraid when flood warnings had been broadcast but when relatives and friends from farther away than Bayou Teche had spread the alarm their confidence dwindled.

Many May Be Cut Off

Residents of Arnaudville said that water had just reached that town yesterday when they left. They added that it was coming up so rapidly that many probably would be cut off before they could get out and would have to be taken away by boat. The sudden rise in the Teche found the town unprepared. All women and children were ordered out immediately, while the men stayed to save what they could.

Texas Leads Help

A train load of boats and 35 men reached Lafayette last night and a train was sent to Washington, La. from Monroe, another train load of craft was on the way from Beaumont, Texas. An additional fleet was being concentrated at Morgan City and Houma. Several coast guard patrol boats and private craft were being gathered, as well as 29 flat boats, one yacht and eight surf launches. It was expected that the fleet would be used to operate up the Atchafalaya basin for an Opelousas and Livipola, and stand by in case of emergency at other points.

Food Is Needed

About 150 persons, reported to be in need of food and other supplies, but refusing to move, are living on a levee at Melville, La. Red Cross officials planned to send supplies to them.

Conditions at Melville were reported to be growing steadily worse.

The water was said to have risen six to twelve inches last night and the depth in the town is now 15 to 20 feet.

Two deaths were reported last night, one at Port Barre, where a negro boy died from infantile paralysis.

Red Cross officials at the Opelousas camp reported that they had found five cases of the disease in the camp and had established a strict quarantine around the five infirm and 25 persons with whom they had come in contact.

DARING BIRDMAN TAKES OFF ALONE IN GIANT MONOPLANE ON TRANS-ATLANTIC VOYAGE

'FLYING FOOL' SMILES AS HE CLIMBS IN HIS PLANE 'THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS'; IS SIGHTED SOARING OVER NOVA SCOTIA

(By Associated Press) Captain Charles Lindbergh is on his flight to Paris. "Lone Slim" hopped off from Roosevelt field, Long Island, at 7:52 o'clock this morning, eastern daylight time, and one hour and forty minutes later a monoplane of the description of "The Spirit of St. Louis" was sighted low over Halifax, Mass., about thirty miles southeast of Boston.

Dauntless Flier On Atlantic Hop

The plane was headed northeast on the course selected by the "Flying Fool" in his attempt to gain the Orteig prize of $25,000. One observer reported that the plane's motor was skipping. Thirty-five minutes before a big monoplane had been sighted passing over East Greenwich, Rhode Island, flying at the rate of one hundred miles an hour.

Air Is Muggy

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 20.—Charles A. Lindbergh, captain to the Missouri national guard, but "Slim" to his buddies, set out today on an unmarked air trail for Paris. The Missourian, who plays a lone hand, had no one to show him the way as he hurried his Ryan monoplane the "Spirit of St. Louis," into the muggy air above Roosevelt field a few minutes before 8 o'clock this morning.

"The flying fool" as his friends affectionately call him, is on his way, but he just is. Five times in the 3,000 feet of the long runway over which he sped in making his take off, he was close to disaster, twice by inches. At the very last, as he was climbing before straightening out for the start of his course heading north, his plane, weighed by a load of 5,140 pounds, barely cleared a string of telegraph wires. A few seconds before it had almost struck a road scraper as he was attempting to get off the ground.

YANKEES CALL ON MOORE FOR WIN ON TRIBE

FORMER CHISOX WATCH THOMAS HURL SHUT OUT VICTORY

(By Associated Press)
The invading eastern wing of the American league and the defending westerners had the satisfaction today that comes of a job well done. Forced into undisputed possession of the major league spot light for the day when rain blotted out the national pastime in the east, the American leaguers bore manfully to the task of furnishing the nation's fandom with baseball entertainment through four interesting struggles.

Most interesting was the relief work of Wiley Moore, Yankee Oklahoma farmer, who seems destined to pitch all late innings for the New York Yankees unless the hurling staff of the league leaders takes a brace. Wiley was hauled from the bull pen again yesterday, this time to go to the mound in the second inning to relieve Shocker after Cleveland had tied the score at 2-2.

Wiley held the enemy in subjection until the ninth and when his mates seemed to be doing nothing about winning the game for him, he laid down a sacrifice to score Dugan from third and clinch the verdict, 4 to 3. Lou Gehrig's ninth home run of the season, tying Babe Ruth's total, accounted for two Yankee scores in the first frame.

Hollis Thurston, Washington right hander, plastered Detroit with the Tigers first shut out of the season 3 to 0.

Tepper Rigney, once a Detroit shortstop, single handed gave Hollis all the help he needed by driving in two runs and scoring the third himself.

Thomas is Stinky
Chicago's young pitching ace, Tommy Thomas, turned in the second shutout of the day and his sixth win of the season by blanking Philadelphia, 3 to 0. The White Sox managerial alumni were in force, with Eddie Collins and Kid Gleason, strutting from the Athletic fold and Clarence Rowland from an umpire's berth as the incumbent, Ray Schalk, did his "master mind" stuff. Ty Cobb, former Detroit pilot ran his string of consecutive hit games of 13.

The St. Louis Browns victory over Boston came dramatically in the tenth inning when Ken Williams blasted one of Stim Harris' curves out of the lot for a home run, breaking a deadlock to win 5 to 5. The victory, St. Louis' fifth in the last six games, jumped them to third place with Philadelphia. The Sox created their share of the excitement by falling on Wingo for four runs in the ninth to tie the score after two were out.

Tilden Wins Over Lacoste To Start His Tennis Drive

GUESS I am more or less of a radical in advocating changes in golf. I see too many players worrying about their "follow through." They imagine if that fine looking gesture is there when the camera click they are O. K.

There is no such thing really as a conscious follow through in golf. If your swing is smooth, if your timing is right, if you have the right snap and dash in your wrists as you meet the ball you CAN'T HELP but have a perfect follow through as in this picture.

Get that right shoulder booming its strength into the drive. Get those hips in it and then develop your rhythm and you'll see.

Major Pettus Homphall, division engineer of the State Highway department was congratulating himself today on his narrow escape from possible injury when his Buick coupe turned turtle on the highway near Ringtown in Garza county late Wednesday, although his car was somewhat damaged.

In explaining the cause of the wreck today he said his service brakes worked perfectly, but fearing that this brake would not be sufficient to stop the machine in time to avert a crash with a car ahead of him, he resorted to his emergency which he used a little too freely with the result that his car, bucked into the ditch. The machine was injured and repairs will not be completed before Tuesday, he said.

SECURE WIDER RIGHT OF WAY

Santa Fe And Utilities To Donate Footage In Lynn And Dawson Counties

An 80-foot right-of-way, as required in Federal specifications under federal aid allotments, has been secured through co-operation of the Santa Fe railroad and the Texas Utilities company on state highway No. 9 between O'Donnell and Lamesa, where formerly a 60 foot right-of-way was all available. It was announced at division headquarters of the highway department here Friday following a conference between Mayor Pettus Hemphill, division engineer and representatives of the two companies.

A. J. Izas, of Dallas, general counsel for the light and power company in Texas and T. L. Gear, district manager of Sweetwater, represented the Utilities company, while the Santa Fe was represented by P. A. Blair, division engineer.

Split Is Agreed On
The railroad company agreed to donate 25 feet for a distance of four miles, and the light company is to donate the balance over the 53 feet formerly available. The route of the highway but of O'Donnell south also is to be changed to eliminate the right angle turn inside the city limits, and the dangerous crossing north of the city limits also is to be eliminated. The right-of-way is being brought into shape in preparation for the caravan of tractors at will be needed, it was said. Legion officials here are very enthusiastic over the convention, and anticipate the best meeting of the kind ever held in the state. Information received here today is that Posts throughout this part of the state will send large delegations. It is expected that at least 500 ex-service men from out of Lubbock county will be in attendance.

Mayor Parrish's proclamation setting the two days aside as Legion days follows:
Proclamation of the Mayor of Lubbock:

Whereas, the city of Lubbock has been officially designated the concentration point for all ex-service men composing the 14th Division of the American Legion and

Whereas, our city will be honored by hundreds of ex-service men and their families in convention here on May 21 and 22, and

Whereas, the citizenship of Lubbock is proud of its own and visiting Legionnaires and indebted to all of them for the unselfish part played by them during the World War, realizing to some extent the hardships and deprivations which they endured during this period, and is in deep sympathy with the high ideals fostered by this organization.

Be it known therefore, that I, Pink L. Parrish, Mayor of the city of Lubbock do hereby proclaim May 21 and 22 American Legion days in Lubbock, dedicate to the Legionnaires and their families the hospitality of our city, and extend to them cordial greetings.
PINK L. PARRISH, Mayor.

SAINT AND SINNER

COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA BY ANNE AUSTIN

WHEN Adolph Bohn left the witness stand, after very successfully lambasting Banning's attempt to ridicule him and to make light of his testimony as regards his proposal of marriage to Cherry, he turned toward the counsel table where Cherry sat by her sister. Banning grasped the district attorney could interfere, the rich young man who had just declared his love for Cherry and his unsuccessful effort to marry her, stopped before the shining-eyed, smiling little defendant and thrust out a hand. Cherry grasped his hand, clung to it a moment while her eyes misted over with tears, and while Banning shouted his horrified protest...

"He's just here off and on," old Kelly told them. "Don't see how he makes a living, working so seldom. But I reckon begging, pays better than hard work," he concluded bitterly. "Does he always take a taxi?" Bob asked. "Sure he does. He can't walk hardly at all." "Same taxi every time?" Bob pressed his point with apparent casualness. "Reckon so. Looks like the same driver. Yes, it is the same, now I come to think of it," Kelly told him. "Reckon he's made some arrangement with him so's he'll haul him at a reduced rate, and this driver seems to know how to fit him in without hurting him much." "Well, that disposes of my plan to check up on the taxi driver," Bob said to Faith when they were returning to the courthouse. "He's evidently either a close friend of the old beggar or in cahoots with him, and if I questioned him he'd give the whole show away to Schultz." "Bob, what is this we are!" Faith exclaimed. "Hasn't it occurred to you that the cab that Sanders, the McIntock's chauffeur, saw in the alley the night of the murder belonged to the same taxi driver that hauls old Phil around? Why, Bob, the case is practically complete against him!" "Jave, you're right!" Bob cried, his blue eyes shining like diamonds. "Sanders testified that it was a brown and yellow taxi, and it's a brown and yellow that this bird uses to cart Phil around in. Listen! What's that extra boy is calling? Here, boy!" he leaned out of the car to shout to a running newsboy. As he took the paper he read aloud, "CHERRY TAKES STAND TODAY." TOMORROW: As hundreds mill in an excited mob about the courthouse, Cherry takes the stand in her own defense.

Interesting Hunt

THE Smithsonian Institution is now engaged in trying to trace the origin of the American Indian. It has a hunch that this country was first settled by immigrants who came by the Bering Straits...

It is an interesting problem. The unknown history of the red man on the continent would make an absorbing tale if it could be brought out. There are mysteries enough in it, we suspect, to keep the institution's investigators busy for a long time here, hoping they can unravel a few of them.

Watching History

IT will pay you to keep your eyes on England these days. It is becoming daily more apparent that history is being made over there.

Two opposing schools of political and economic thought are clashing. Sooner or later one of them will win out. The effects on the British empire will be profound. It is worth watching.

A Wise Decision

TAMMANY HALL, it is announced, will make an effort to establish headquarters in other cities. It is becoming daily more apparent that history is being made over there.

Two opposing schools of political and economic thought are clashing. Sooner or later one of them will win out. The effects on the British empire will be profound. It is worth watching.

A Good Sign

Maquette University has just conferred the degree of doctor of laws on Baron Leo von Maltzan, new German ambassador to the United States.

This is the kind of news dispatch line is glad to read. Ten years ago an American university would have dreamed of doing it. It proves that the war is over and that its horrors have pretty well died out.

Caution Pays

"Fidelity breaks cost two lives at grade crossing," reads a newspaper headline. There's something every motorist might well stop and think about.

THE PLAINSMAN

If you would hold your breaths do not take seriously the latest book of Sinclair Lewis, entitled 'Elmer Gantry'...

For that reason these writers—professional knockers—who are doing their best to aid in tearing down those principles, which have been built through the ages, for filthy money are never to be believed and liable to be respected.

An extra session of Congress is being called as a result of the Mississippi floods. It never rains but it pours.

New York politicians are worrying because so many people stay in Chicago because so many come from Chicago.

Old Masters

You came to me bearing bright flowers. Red like the wine of your heart. You twisted them into a garland. To set me aside from the mart. Red roses to crown me your lover, and I walked unveiled and apart.

Proud token of my gift to you. The petals waned paler, and shriveled. And dropped, and the thorns started through. Hither thence to proclaim me your lover. A diadem woven with rue. —Amy Lowell, "Crowned."

A Thought

What a Chance to Kill Two Birds With One Stone

WASHINGTON LETTER

RED CROSS MACHINERY EVER READY TO SWING INTO QUICK ACTION

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles telling how the American Red Cross functions in time of public disaster.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, May 20—A few months ago the Red Cross was holding out that 1924 was the biggest year for disasters in its history. Not that there were necessarily more disasters, but that they were bigger and more furious.

Come now the Mississippi floods, the greatest of all national disasters, to make certain that 1927 will outdo 1924. There have been other disasters this year, but they are comparatively insignificant.

And the two months productive of the worst catastrophes, if one takes last year as a criterion, will not come until September and October.

The huge sum of $10,000,000 which the Red Cross set out to raise in itself a gauge of the size of the present disaster in the Mississippi valley.

How does the Red Cross prepare for and handle these disasters? Red Cross chapters over the country are constantly on the watch for disasters large and small. Each is expected to maintain an organized committee on disaster relief with subcommittees on food, shelter, clothing, medical aid, finance and transportation.

Always Acts Promptly When disaster strikes, the chairman of the chapter calls his disaster relief committee into action, offers the authorities the Red Cross relief resources and telegraphs or telephones the manager of his Red Cross division to inform him of the nature of the trouble, the estimated number of dead, injured, homeless, destitute homes, families affected and the kind of help most needed.

If the disaster assumes large proportions the division manager calls on national headquarters in Washington. The duties of the chairman of the disaster relief committee are to put the subcommittees to work, centrally located headquarters, and stick a Red Cross flag on top of the subcommittees working at top efficiency, tour the devastated area quickly to determine the scope of relief work, report to and plan with the committee, plan with the chairman of the finance subcommittee for raising a relief fund and keep the newspapers informed of what is being done.

Family is Unit Relief workers are instructed that "whether the disaster expresses itself primarily in loss of life, or loss of property, whether the victims are a few score or many thousands, the evil consequences register themselves in family life and family welfare, and the family must, therefore, be the unit of treatment in the administration of relief."

Permanent Relief After all these have functioned the chapter's duty is to start work on permanent rehabilitation. ON ZONING REGULATIONS

It is too often the case that the advisability of carefully planned zoning laws is seen only after the ill effects of the regulations have been in effect long enough to make it impracticable to effect changes which would cost thousands of dollars.

Restriction on certain classes of buildings to certain portions of a city is not the aim of zoning regulations, rather the aim is to keep certain classes of buildings from going in where they do not belong. It will make other property less desirable, or in fact will damage property where construction has already been made.

It is a wise thing for a city to plan for the future. Towns which develop into cities in a haphazard manner find that mistakes have been made which a little forethought and planning would have prevented.

In Fort Worth, for example, widening of a street to make it a thoroughfare through Polytechnic addition, will require the wrecking of many store fronts, and the shortening of buildings by the widening of the street.

These days would have been the proper time to plan for the Polytechnic of today and tomorrow. Polytechnic is now part and parcel of Fort Worth. Fifteen years ago one who predicted that Polytechnic would now be a part of Fort Worth might have received a hearty laugh.

Too often we see mistakes of men of the back bits and vision. In a rapidly developing country like the Southwest errors of under judgment and development are more prevalent than those of over judgment. —Plainview Herald.

Choose Your Weapons

Bellboys in a New York hotel are trained by an ex-marine. What are the boys going to do for now—bayonets?—Maybe they're just taking a little grenade drill prior to a convention of Scottish clans. Or, again the idea may be trench warfare from the bath tub when the sailors are in town.

Every single one movies, except a burlesque and a small vaudeville house. And I think they've got movies now. All the legit over on the side streets.

And, back again on the other side of the door. The little room is now jammed. They are sitting three abreast on window sills and overflow on the phone switchboard. They crowd and against the elbows of the stenographer, who long since has lost patience.

A girl comes in. A darn pretty sight, with too much makeup and overdressed. It is easy to see she has kicked a trim toe in many a show. She talks with a French accent.

"It's an hour's wait," the office girl tells her. "Very well. Zen I'll wait."

The office girl makes another effort to discourage her. She knows there is no hope. "It may be more than an hour." Another shrug. "I don't care, I shall wait."

IN NEW YORK SEE SAWING and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, May 20—Broadway snapshots—the tattered straws hat that lies in a corner of every back stage. There are at least three stage managers I know who sleep on the minutes they start work, some water or summering. Why?

Not one of them would dare attempt a straw bop on the streets until the official day. But these always wearing them lack stage, the tiny cluttered waiting room of a producer's office. Just moving room enough for six or seven people. But the word has gone out that a new musical show will be put on next spring. And maybe there'll be a shot again. A stage act comes in. Of course they wear curls and those flowing hats that went out of date with the old Gilbert and Sullivan every movement.

Can you beat it? But nobody could. The heavy coat in the siddy hood and huge lodge emblem. You really don't believe they exist off stage until you see them. Broadway has a hundred of them and all in some branch of the agency racket.

And on the other side of the door, the keen-eyed producer, a bit weary of watching this endless parade. He's seen it go by for years. But, still a year ago, he was in some other office. Now he has his own show. "It starts at 2 in the morning," he tells me, "and never seems to end. God, I feel sorry for those poor devils. It's been a long show winter. And they really need work. Just think, they're trying to get into a show that at best, won't open until next August. What the devil will they do this summer?"

The whole theater racket hasn't been so good, except for musical shows. Take my show! It cost $50,000 berries cold. Well, it's gone all winter, but it's running slow now.

Now just look at Broadway, that damn old cowpath down there that got to be the main racket. And look at it! You can walk from 40th street clear up to 53rd and what is there?—Movies, movies, movies! I counted 'em a couple of weeks ago and there wasn't a single theater in that whole distance that had a legitimate show on it.

Every single one movies, except a burlesque and a small vaudeville house. And I think they've got movies now. All the legit over on the side streets.

And, back again on the other side of the door. The little room is now jammed. They are sitting three abreast on window sills and overflow on the phone switchboard. They crowd and against the elbows of the stenographer, who long since has lost patience.

A girl comes in. A darn pretty sight, with too much makeup and overdressed. It is easy to see she has kicked a trim toe in many a show. She talks with a French accent.

The office girl makes another effort to discourage her. She knows there is no hope. "It may be more than an hour." Another shrug. "I don't care, I shall wait."

One by one they go in and one by one they come out the side door. Those inside never know when they have the others left.

And again, on the other side of the door...

All-Wool Plays Seize the Broadway
Limelight As Courts Hit Shoddy

By JAMES POWERS

NEA Service Writer
NEW YORK, May 20.—This is a sad season, theatrically, for sex and a gala one for authors with great moral lessons steaming in their bosoms. It begins to appear that vulgarity is ushered by the name of its grimy-greek-out into the "Wiley" and plays with a purpose are coming to bat in a wave of righteous reaction.

"Sex," "Spread Eagle," and "The Ladder" are the three topics of playwrights' talk this week. Banned each there is a compelling story. The first ends its authors, back-crew, cast and all in the grip of the same legal disapproval that recently was visited upon "The Virginian." It took a jury in General Sessions court of New York a very short while to convict Mae West, Harry O'Neill, Anne Reader, Constance Morganster and others of the show of giving an obscene production, tending to corrupt the morals of youth.

The same night that a solemn-faced jurist filed into the courtroom with its honorable verdict of guilty in the "Sex" case—a verdict that caused Harry O'Neill, the big Thespiast at the case, to break down weep—led Harris was bringing out "Spread Eagle."

It is a fine, entrancing drama written by George S. Brooks and Walter B. Lister, two newspaper men. It exposes big business as a moral setting fire to Mexico for a profit. It is done as a wire act, absorbing play on the list of things that must be seen.

There is fresh mockery for the wheels within political wheels, and wondrous laughter at armies tricked into battle by business propaganda. Though sensational, the authors are knowing in their ridicule, their revelations, and Broadway likes it.

Next, consider the somewhat amazing story of "The Ladder," now in its sixth month. "The Ladder" has run that long solely by grace of the well-filled purse of its "angel," Edgar B. Davis, Texas oil millionaire. The cost to Davis has been somewhere around $10,000 a week, or a total of $325,000 to date. If this estimate is accurate, "The Ladder" has set a new record for Broadway drama as a money loser. But it goes on—not only that, it goes on with freshened fervor just now on the part of its backers.

In connection with new efforts to make Broadway take notice of "The Ladder," it is announced another who sees the show and is dissatisfied can have his money back. The play has a theme, the doctrine of reincarnation. It has a purpose—preaching that doctrine. "I will continue backing "The Ladder" indefinitely," Davis told me. "I am a rich man, and I am happy, but there are poor people and rich people who are not happy. If I can show them another life, another world, and a brighter future, I shall feel well repaid."

Big advertisements spread across the dramatic pages of the new York newspapers now say that play "deals with the things that make life worth while, based upon the sensible, sane faith that there is something more in life than its superficial shell—that there is justice, hope, happiness, and the heart's desires for all sometime, somewhere, in spite of man's antecedents or environments, regardless of race or creed."

Such is the story of "The Ladder." I asked Irene Purcell, who has one of the feminine roles, if the religious lesson that Davis seeks to inculcate had been impressed on the cast. "I'm an actress, not a missionary," she responded. "What do I know about reincarnation? We play the roles in which we are cast. This is no sin. We respect Mr. Davis's ideas, and we are working our hardest. If he chooses to spend his money this way rather than on a gold-plated motor car and a kennel of poodle-dogs, that is his business."

Broadway may continue to reject "The Ladder" as entertainment, but Davis at least is making Broadway clear by visions of her other lives." Then the scene switches to the picturesque New York Bowery of 1840. Her dream over, she awakens with the solution of her problem made vene in Mexico to save his mining properties. Failing to persuade the president to act, the financier sets up a Mexican revolution and succeeds in fomenting national hysteria. There are devastating scenes having to do with the gilly and fully action being trapped into war by a vast intrigue. Our average political exposure seems puny in comparison.

BURY VICTIMS OF DYNAMITER

Michigan People Taking Up Collection To Aid Town Seared By Tragedy

(By Associated Press.)
BATH, Mich., May 20.—Funeral preparations were completed yesterday for the 44 persons killed in the blasting of the village school house by Andrew Kehoe, demented farmer, Wednesday, while steps were being taken by the state to provide financial relief for the stricken community.

It was planned to bury some of the victims, 27 of whom were children, today, and others Saturday. Plans for a group funeral were abandoned when ministers and welfare workers agreed the mental anguish would be too great.

"It will be hard enough for fathers and mothers to give up their own, without enduring the trial of seeing all the victims, who a few days ago were joyful school mates, go to their grave together," one minister said.

To Bury Friend's Wife
Among those who will be buried Saturday is Kehoe's invalid wife, who the man apparently slew by poisoning in her skull. The body had been tossed into an outhouse where it was burned when flames destroyed the place prior to the school house explosion.

Kehoe had taken the invalid woman from a Lansing hospital a few days before, presumably to move her to another institution. In a relief drive, instituted by Gov. ernor Fred W. Green, got under way today. Funds to be used for construction of a new school house were being received from over the state by the Red Cross. If insufficient money is obtained by popular subscription, Governor Green said, the state treasury will be drawn upon.

Probe At Standstill

The police investigation into the tragedy was virtually at a standstill today, pending the official inquest, called for next Monday. The theory that Kehoe may have had assistance in mining the school was abandoned when it was learned the man had had access at night to the building for several weeks.

Frank Smith, school janitor, told police a back door had been sprung for three or four weeks, and that two other doors had been tampered with so that they would not shut. Officers believed that Kehoe slipped into the building night after night, packed the dynamite in metal pipes which were connected with an electrical timing device. Installed his batteries and then awaited an opportune time to wreck his terrible vengeance on the community whose taxes were so high he couldn't pay off the mortgage on his farm.

Police professed to see nothing unusual in the large amount of explosive in Kehoe's possession. The explosive can be obtained cheaply by farmers for stump blasting, they said, from surplus war stock.

Fred Marsh of Evansville, Ind., caused his car to turn summersault by applying the brakes too quickly, but escaped injury.

South African newspapers must publish the names of writers of all political articles.

Miss Patricia Labele, known throughout Canada as the "Human Handini," escapes from handcuffs and straight jackets while suspended in mid-air, head down.

Japanese will use moving pictures for the teaching of etiquette.

Andrew Ferrin of Sunderland, Eng., complained that a girl bit his lip when he kissed her, but a warrant for her arrest was refused.

L. C. SCORES RAIL MERGERS

Proposed Consolidation Is Not For Public Good Is Ruling Of Board

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 19.—The interstate commerce commission has discouraged another for reaching railroad consolidation in holding that the project of L. F. Loree and associates for control of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas by the Kansas City Southern and of the St. Louis Southwestern system by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas to be not in the public interest.

Three members of the commission supported the program of Mr. Loree, who is president of the Delaware and Hudson, but the majority found against it on every point.

Criticizing the financial phase of the plan by which a small railroad like the Kansas City Southern acquires control over large systems, the commission majority declared that if any consolidation of the three southwestern lines is attempted "it would mean that the largest carrier, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas instead of the smallest, should be made the center of the system."

The commission held that the merger likely would reduce railroad competition and that minority stockholders of the St. Louis Southwestern, who protested the consolidation, might find their interests endangered by the inclusion of their company.

Archduke Tells 'Why U. S. Heiresses Seek Mates Among Foreign Nobility

"AMERICAN MEN HAVE ONE TRACK MINDS"

By NEA Service

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 20.—Do American girls marry penniless noblemen for titles, and do moneyless noblemen marry rich American girls because of papa's ciphers in the bank book?

"Dear me, such an erroneous ideal. Here comes a man less than a titled nobleman himself, some less than an archduke, to set us right on this matter of international marriages."

"American girls marry Europe's noblemen for their versatility and accomplishments," said His Imperial and Royal Highness Leopold, archduke of Austria, stepson of Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary, second cousin of the Archduke Ferdinand, whose assassination started the World War, and son of the Archduke Salvator, exiled to Spain.

No Hope for Monarchy
The archduke said that he might be called "their presumptive" to the Austrian throne, rather than "their apparent." He explained to an NEA representative here that the Monarchists are pinning their hopes upon his second cousin, Charles.

"But I do not think there will be any return of royalty in Austria for sometime, if ever."

The archduke had struck New Orleans en route to Hollywood, where, he insists, he will not enter the movies, but will not be averse to kissing some movie queens, if opportunity knocks but once.

"No," the archduke continued, "it goes like this. The American girl with a titled husband has married him not because she wants a 'Countess' or 'Princess' or 'Baroness' on her visiting card instead of a plain 'Mrs.' but because she and the man she married have tastes in common."

These American Men
The American girl who is educated abroad or who travels abroad is either interested in culture and art from the very fact that she is in Europe, or all or she acquires that taste there.

"Practically all titled men of Europe, and, in fact, any man are familiar with art and enjoy it. How many American men are and do? American men have conventional minds. They think of their business first and last."

"Not every American girl would be happy married to an European nobleman. She would almost have to be a girl educated abroad. She would need the Continental way of man's viewpoint and sophisticated tastes."

"But the point is that, except in the rarest cases, this is the only kind of girl who would meet a nobleman."

The Heiresses
The only girls that our nobleman meet are generally heiresses, for the reason that only rich fathers can afford to have their daughters educated abroad or give them travel abroad.

The archduke is thoroughly "sold" on international marriages. "I have seen many such, and most of them, if not all, are happy marriages. European husbands make wives happier than American husbands, who think that romance stops with marriage. To the European husband it has only begun."

Favors the Dowry
The archduke favors the dowry custom, too. "It only means that the couple will not be dependent on their families until money is inherited. It makes married life much less awkward."

The archduke neglected to explain exactly why the dowry should come from the bride's parents rather than the groom's. Continuing the superiority of GALVESTON, May 20.—With the list of entries steadily mounting, final preparations were being made today for the opening of the second International Pageant of Pulchritude here tomorrow. Arrangements have been made to handle a quarter of a million visitors.

Beautiful girls from four European countries, Cuba, Mexico and Canada will compete for the title of world's beauty queen against the fairest damsel of America. New York, Brooklyn and Chicago girls are now here and entries from Texas and other points are coming in almost hourly now.

The pageant will begin with the sports clothes parade on the Seawall boulevard tomorrow at 5 p. m. On Sunday at 3 p. m. the super-spectacle of the pageant will be held when the girls appear on the boulevard in fancy bathing costumes.
