HENDRICKS SAYS ORGATONE KEPT HIM ON JOB

Popular Meadow Tex. Farmer Suffered 22 Years With Kidney Trouble And Rheumatism

"Honestly, I have improved so much in the past few weeks that my friends hardly know me on first sight, and when they ask me what brought about the change I just tell them Orgatone," said A. E. Hendricks, of Meadow, Texas, while in Bowen, Texas, a few days ago.

Mr. Hendricks is a well known farmer living on rural Route 1, and has lived in this section for many years and is a well known and popular citizen.

"Orgatone has done so much for me," Mr. Hendricks continued, "I feel like I ought to tell everybody about it. I had been suffering from kidney trouble and rheumatism for twenty-two years and got in such a bad shape I felt like it would only be a question of time before I would have to give up my work around the farm. I heard so much about this Orgatone treatment that I started taking it. Well, it has simply put me on my feet in first class shape and I can do as much work as a young man, and I never miss a day from it."

"My stomach was in such a bad fix I couldn't digest anything and what I ate always hurt me, and seemed to give me no strength. The rheumatic pains in my legs and hands kept me in constant misery. I suffered a great deal with my kidneys which caused sharp pains in the small of my back and made it hard for me to get a good night's rest. I took all kinds of treatment and medicine, but nothing did me any good. I was miserable and felt like I would just have to give up work because there was many a time I wasn't able to hardly get about, let alone try to work."

"I was induced by the high endorsements for Orgatone, to give it a trial, and it has done more for me than all other treatments and medicines I have taken. My relief from the two bottles I have already taken is wonderful. I feel like a new man and have gained in weight and strength. I felt better after using my first bottle, and my second bottle gave me a fine appetite and fixed me up, so I could sleep like a log. My stomach felt easy and I was able to go about my work while I was taking this bottle. I can now eat anything I want and all my troubles and miserable feelings are gone. Orgatone has been of untold benefit to me and I am glad to endorse it because I know its value. I will find relief from their medicine what Orgatone has done."

They'll have to stay up late and get up early to get ahead of these women politicians trained in a day when they had little feminine support, and so got onto all the tricks of the trade in the male politician's kit.

The Woman's Day
By Alene Sumner

And still they chatter about Marlon Talley, and why she did it! Which reminds us of Marlon's mother who mildly commented that she didn't know just why Marlon was doing it, but whatever she wanted to do was okay with her.

At first thought one might make a crack at the supposition of the maternal spirit exhibited here. Still, when a swarthy child has raised a parent to fame and fortune, it is rather meet and seemingly that she who happens to be an adult, has something to say about how and where the family which she is supporting shall live. This is a typically American belief. Many a foreign parent lives in its children, dictates their lives, and gets away with it.

ANN'S SNUB

Ann Pavlova, famous dancer, has been sending back to Moscow about $500 a year to help members of the Moscow grand opera ballet who are rather destitute. This year the money was sent back Ann was called "daring of capitalists" and commanded to "take back her gold."

That might be principle and commendable respect. Again, it might merely be sour grapes because one of them had prospered and they had not.

Most of us prefer the dramatic gesture which makes a person whom we envy feel small rather than receiving from them any of the things we need.

ONE PLUME HIGHER

Queen Mary who is about to officiate at the spring royal presentations, has sent out word that dresses must be a little longer than last year; trains not extended more than 18 inches; a fan or bouquet, must be carried; plumes must be worn in the hair, the middle one higher than the other two, and that arms must not be too bare.

These rules certainly simplify things for the ladies favored to attend. But we would favor less uniformity from the viewpoint of the innocent spectator.

YE GODS!

Lady Gough wrote a book on etiquette in 1863 in which she paraphrased—"The perfect hostess will see to it that the works of male and female authors be properly separated on her bookshelves. Their proximity unless they happened to be married should not be tolerated."

SEE FOOLED 'EM

Speaking of marriage or career, and marriage and career, as nobody was Mrs. Bina West, head of the world's largest insurance society, and a power in Republican politics, recently married. She is nearly 62. She explained she had "never had time to get around to it before."

Incidentally, her political enemies chortled at the fact, and thought her marriage to a man outside her state disqualified her as state committee member. She fooled them. She announced she was keeping her Port Huron, Mich., home as a summer home.

They'll have to stay up late and get up early to get ahead of these women politicians trained in a day when they had little feminine support, and so got onto all the tricks of the trade in the male politician's kit.

How to Achieve Beauty

The right type of sleeve will wonderfully improve the wrong type of arm, and, quite as surely, the opposite is true. The wrong sort of sleeve will make an attractive arm look shapeless or badly shaped and ugly.

These dogmatic observations may seem trite to you, if you have always known the type of sleeve you can or cannot wear. Or they may seem unnecessary, if you are one who believes that fashion dictates certain sleeves, and whether or not they are becoming you must wear them.

But many women have not taken the trouble to study their arms and general figure outlines in relation to sleeve styles and clothes. And most women know that any fashion which is definitely unbecoming to their own particular type is a foolish fashion for them to try. So for these I shall try to describe how sleeves may be chosen to flatter their wearers, or more especially, their wearers' arms.

The long sleeve or no sleeve at all—is on rule that most women may safely follow. Any short, half or three-quarter length sleeve is a difficult sleeve to wear, although fashion is favoring some of the for summer. The short puff sleeve can be worn by the young girl matron whose arm is slender and rounded, but it is distinctly a young girl's style, and the older woman should never attempt it. Likewise, the bertha collar, so fashionable now, which drapes softly the upper arm and shoulder, leaving the lower arm bare, is for the young type, although the more mature women whose arms are slender and whose figure and contour are youthful may wear it

Beauty Tillotson Writes More Measures On Highway Finances

Representative Will Present New Bills Asking For State Gasoline Tax For Roads

(By Associated Press)

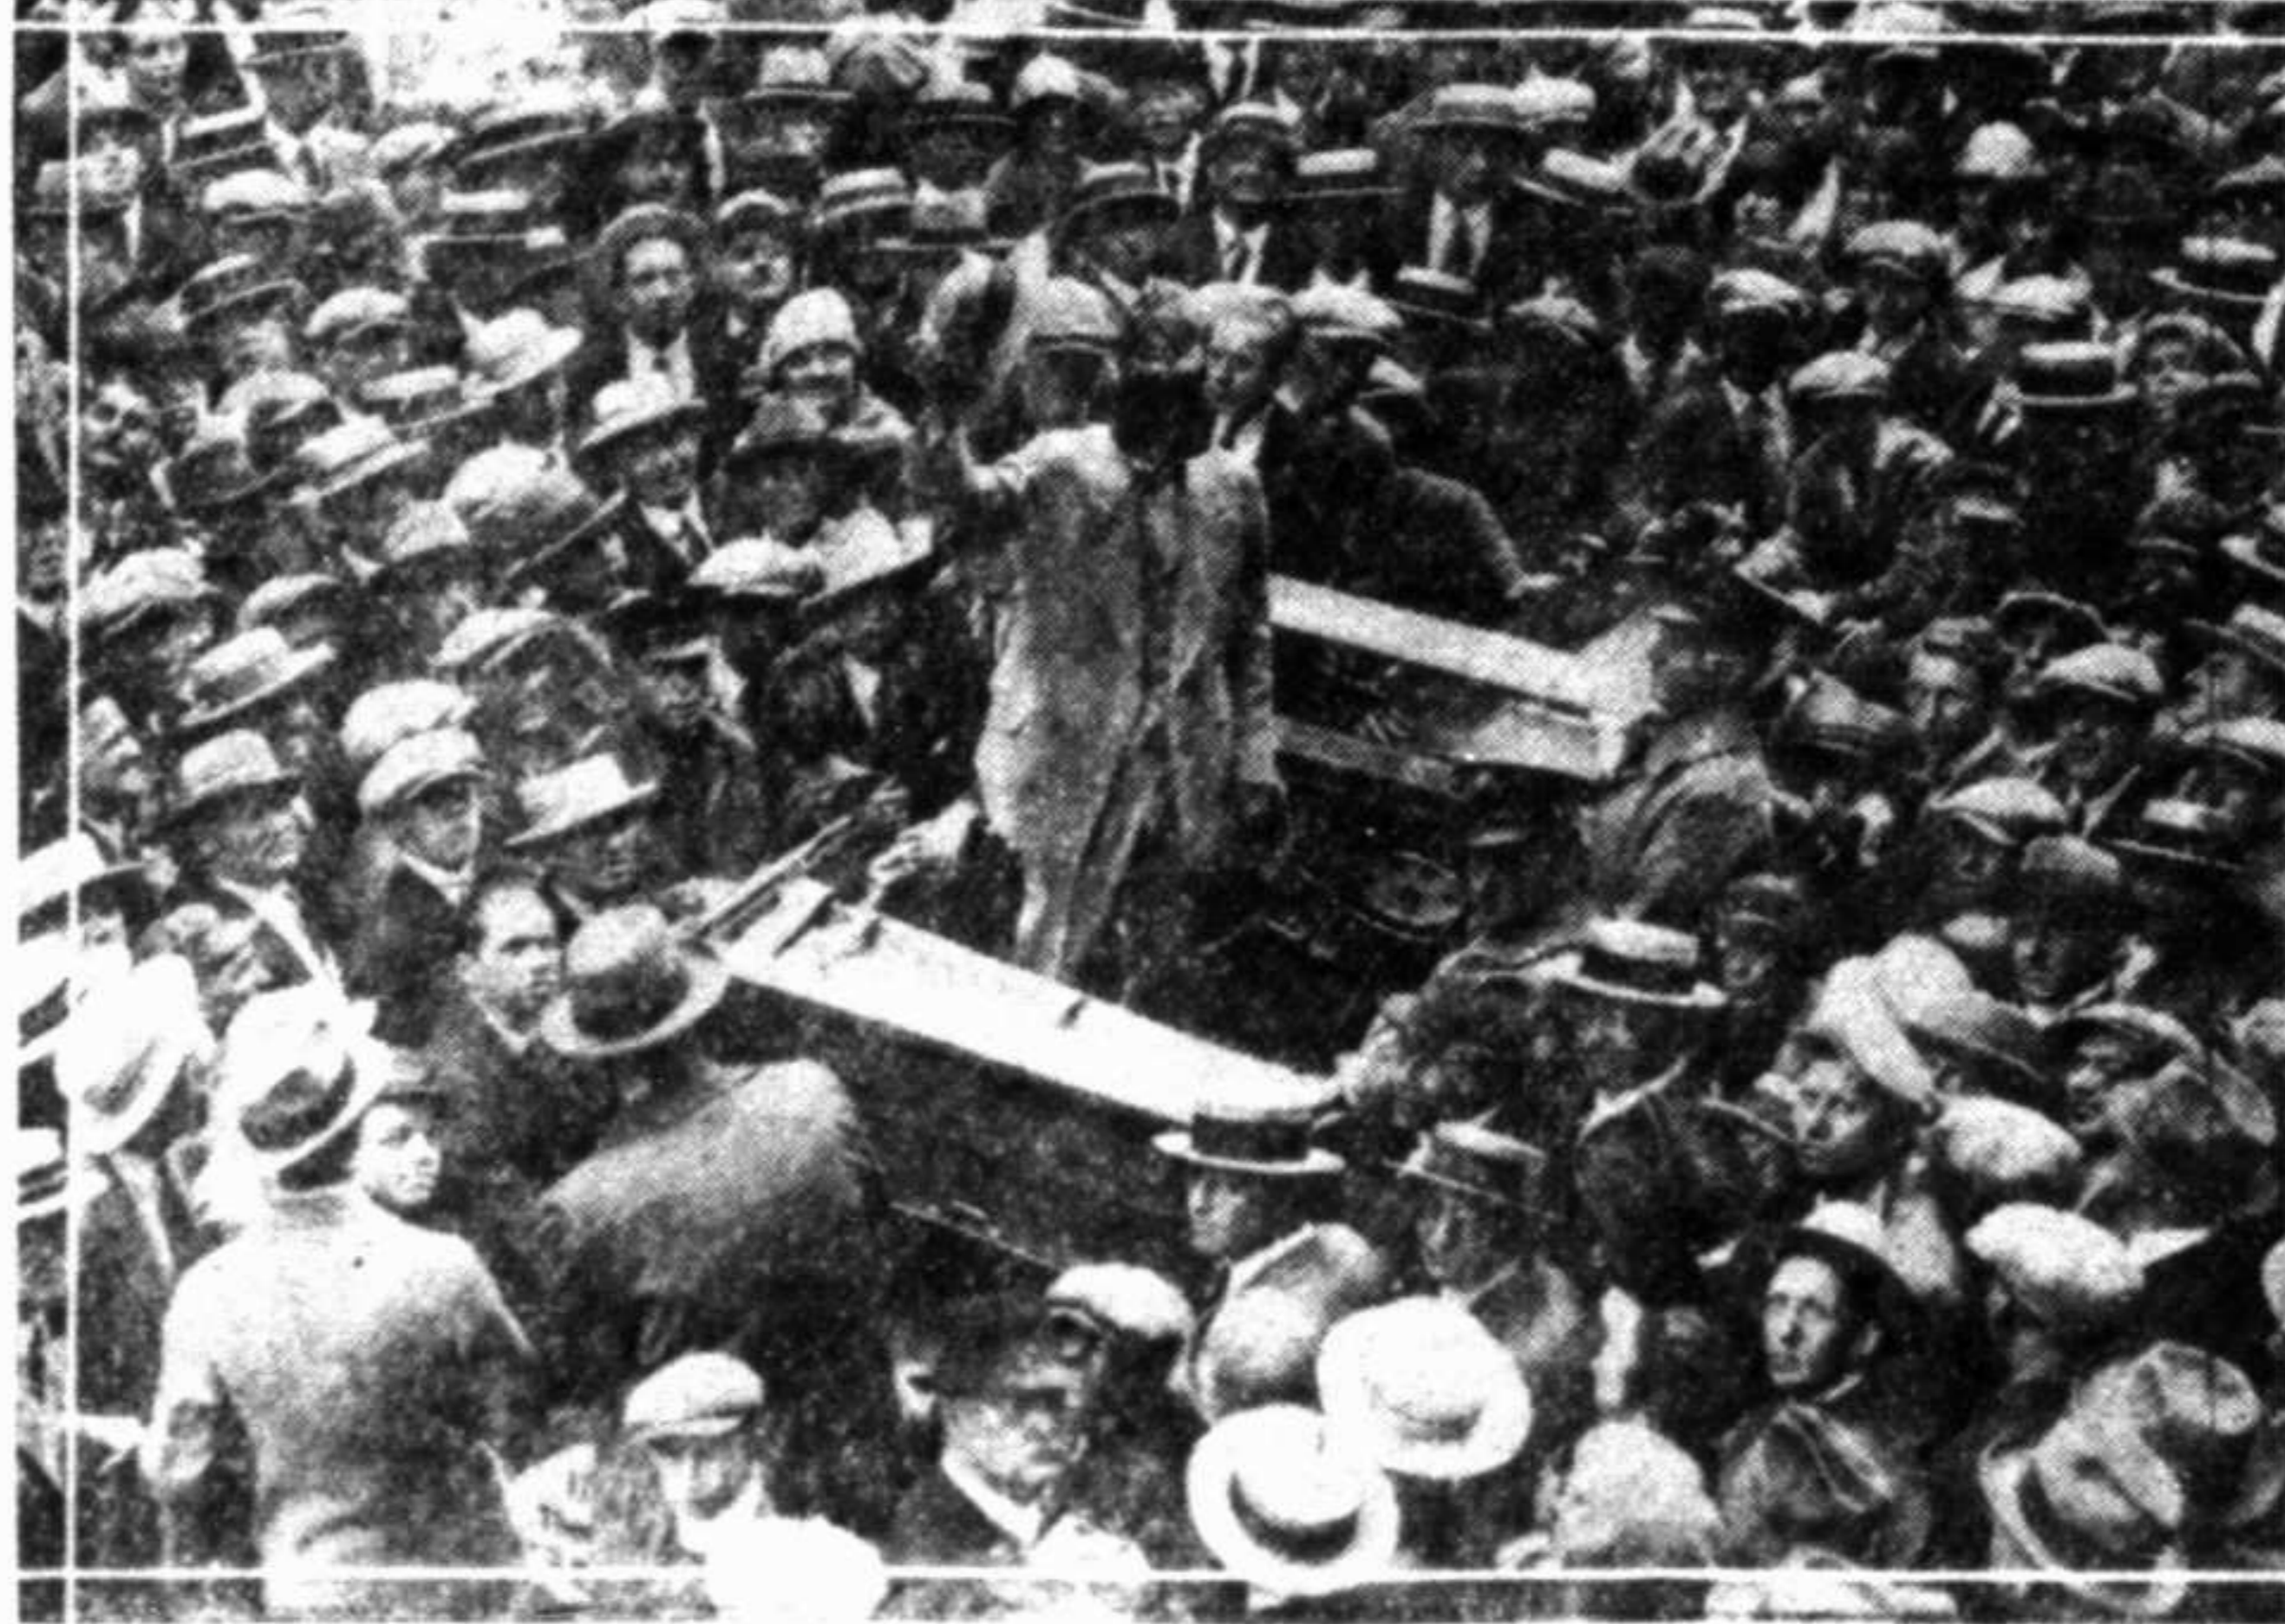

AUSTIN, Apr. 30.—A plan for financing highway construction and maintenance from a gasoline tax and registration of motor vehicles which he said would yield the state revenue of approximately $35,000,000 in 1930, was divulged today by Leonard Tillotson, Sealy, who had been prepared to present his carrying his ideas into execution.

Tillotson's financial program calls for a four-cent gasoline tax in excess of the present, and the form, all of which revenue should be diverted to the state highway department. Gasoline for its fullness, even machinery and vehicles which into a narrow road would be exempt.

The daintiness of passenger cars would be completed 50 per cent. Revenue from the balloon effect is source would be allotted to counties, none of which would be allowed to receive more than $250,000 to have your sleep.

The excess over this maximum would be deposited to the credit of the state.

Bailey Eulogized In Texas Senate

Legislators Pay Tribute To Former Political Leader Of State; House Takes Part Also

AUSTIN, April 30.—Friends both within and without the legislature Monday eulogized the late Joseph W. Bailey, praising his statesman's rights and orator of the school.

For more than an hour the senate chamber echoed with praises of the distinguished statesman. The house recessed so its members might take part in the ceremony. Quite a few visitors listened to the tributes.

The country is due to swing back to the principles of constitutional government and states rights championed by Senator Bailey," Senator George Miller of Weatherford, said.

"The fact that he represented a minority in Texas during the last decade should not detract from his glory Texas politics was controlled by creeds, aims and prejudices during that time and Bailey thought in terms of the nation rather than in those of the state."

BRIGHTER PROSPECTS
In less than a year after the United States sprinters failed so dimly in upholding the honor of this country in the Olympics at Amsterdam, comes the news that at the present time there are to be found on American soil no less than four of the fastest and greatest dash men in the world. Percy Williams, the Canadian flash, beat the world's best at Amsterdam, yet at no time in his career has he been found on Vancouver able to equal the time made by America's "Big Four" this spring.

Last Saturday in various meets held over the country, the world's record of 8 3-5 seconds in the 100 yard dash was equaled five times. This achievement stands out even more remarkable when it is considered that the century was reeled off ten times in 9 3-5 seconds from 1906 to 1927. Five of these records are attributed to Charlie Paddock, Claude Bracey, the Texas cyclone, was the only member of the quartet of "fastest humans" who failed to come through in record time. He was held back by an extremely rough field at Des Moines, Frank Woolf, Charley Borah and George Shupen are the other fliers classed as the greatest.

Simmons did the 100 in 9.5 at Philadelphia Saturday while Borah and Woolf each were doing it twice at Fresno. Paddock holds the American record for the 100 at 8.5 but it is not accepted internationally because of the ban put on tenth-second watches by the I. A. A. F.

LOOKS FIT FOR A SCRAP
Jesse Carter, who will be the main attraction on the wrestling card to be staged at the Merrill Park Thursday night, is all that his handlers claim. He has been in the arena for a long time and is confident of another victory. Carter is a one-over. A sturdy, thick-chested giant of 195 pounds, the Lubbock grappler has all the earmarks of a man crusher. A record of seventeen main-event bouts with heavyweight wrestlers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico stands behind Jesse with no defeat to blemish this string of victories.

Working under the direction of W. W. Robertson, experienced physical education director formerly of the Dallas and New Orleans athletic clubs, Carter has pulled his weight down to excellent fighting trim and is confident of another victory. Carter is a one-over. A sturdy, thick-chested giant of 195 pounds, the Lubbock grappler has all the earmarks of a man crusher. A record of seventeen main-event bouts with heavyweight wrestlers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico stands behind Jesse with no defeat to blemish this string of victories.

Asked concerning his state of attack, Carter pointed to the handsome boy and said he was as fit as a fiddle. A powerful nose of late years has won worlds of praise in the latter.

MORE NEWS
The St. Louis Cardinals have years played before. League home crowds there, their sister club of the American League, the Browns. More color and punch has been prevalent in the Redbirds' games than in the more orthodox performance of the Browns or until last season. Latest rumors have it that the baseball fans of St. Louis have declared a boycott against the Browns because of Redbirds' and said taken on a pitcher who showed up to advantage in the spring city series.

The St. Louis Browns officials to the story goes, sold the exclusive right to one radio station to broadcast their games, leaving two more stations out in the cold. These stations naturally turned hostile and started "riding" the Browns and praising the Cards much to the pleasure of Sam Breadon. Breadon, the Cardinal boss, declared all broadcasting rights open on National League games in St. Louis and as a result retained the good will of the radio stations.

Winning high jump, shotput and javelin throw and tying in pole vault, Barney Berlinger, Penn's mighty man of classic sports, won the decathlon in annual Penn relays at Philadelphia, setting record for this annual event by running up a point score of 7298.978. SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
New York, April 30.—J. Walter Hagen reacts to his own and the American Ryder cup team's defeat in the British open championship adversely, he will be hard to stop in the British open championship next week. He may be hard to check, anyway, for the "Hag" has won this classic of golf three times in the last few years but he likes to have an added competitive stimulant.

Hagen, it may be recalled, took a terrific trouncing from his big British rival, Archie Compston, about this time a year ago; beaten, so he exact, by the top-sided score of 18 and 17 in a 72 hole match. Thereupon the veteran, American humped came back to distance Compston and every one else in the British open.

Last Saturday, Hagen took just as bad a trouncing when he lost to the fast-moving George D'Duncan by 10 feet in a 36 hole match. To make matters worse, it was the worst defeat suffered by any member of the American professional team and particularly annoying to Hagen as the captain of the invading forces. But if anyone figures this to discourage Hagen, he may just as well wait until the returns are in at Muirfield next week.

West Texas Loop Set For Opening
Last Of State's Professional Circuits Gets Under Way Today; San Angelo Again Favored

(By Associated Press)
The last of the state's professional baseball circuits will drop the barrier on the 1929 race when the West Texas League, fast six-club Class D loop, opens with games in three cities today.

Midland opens at Big Spring; Abilene at Coleman, and San Angelo at Ballinger. Street parades are planned in each of the cities and business houses are expected to make a hard fight for the pennant. All of the teams have strengthened and it looks like one of the closest races in the league's history.

The fact that the Braves won these games from the Dodgers wouldn't have anything to do with it, would it?

NOTICE-It is not the intention of the Avalanche to cast reflection upon the character of anyone knowingly and a through error.

The Avalanche is an independent Democratic newspaper, supporting in its editorial columns the principles which it believes to be right and opposing those which it believes to be wrong.

SCRIPTURE-For he cometh in with vanity and departeth in darkness, and his name shall be covered with darkness.

With this issue of the Avalanche the writer writes "30" which in printer's terms means that it is finished.

For nearly 24 years, our name has appeared at the head of this publication as its editor.

For instance, Chief Actuary Joseph S. McCoy, of the treasury, recently spoke to me of the continued rise in the tide of national prosperity as surprising considering that more workers are idle than a year ago.

The truth is, the very thing which has made America so prosperous appears to be creating unemployment.

That is, the country's prodigious prosperity, unprecedented in history, is due to its tremendous rate of production, which, in turn, is due to its almost incomprehensibly rapid development of labor saving machinery.

A point has been reached where the nation's requirements can be supplied by a fraction of the total number of its workmen-on a 48-hour-a-week basis at all events.

What the exact fraction is uncertain unemployment but we have been gauged; but one thing is certain-it is a dwindling fraction.

The standard argument is that increased production breeds increased consumption; also that new occupations automatically create themselves as the old ones disappear.

However, the best authorities are skeptical this time. "It was true in the past, I know," says Congressman William F. Kopp of Iowa, chairman of the house of representatives labor committee.

As we turn the editorial job of the Avalanche over to Mr. Charles A. Guy we feel that we are leaving the paper in good and capable hands and that the work of building sentiment and moulding public opinion and that the campaign for constructive editorial work will continue at Lubbock.

To those who have helped us through all of these years and have given us their moral support and have helped us over many financial chasms, we want to express our sincere appreciation and to those who have many times misunderstood us and have opposed us because of it, we hold no ill feeling.

We are honest in the statement that Lubbock is the best and the biggest city of the South Plains and believe it always will be.

PEACE AND ECONOMICS One of the most powerful arguments now being brought forward in support of peace is that war is an uneconomic procedure.

The objection to the economic argument for peace is that it is, in the first place, ineffective, and in the second, unhumane.

It is there that the crux of the matter lies. The criterion of profit and loss, applied over an extended period, is not an ignoble standard of judgment to those who believe in the fundamental of a basic complete and unqualified harmony.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

SURVEY SHOWS THAT UNEMPLOYMENT IN THE UNITED STATES IS INCREASING

The first of a series of three articles, reviewing the economic situation in the United States.

BY CHARLES F. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 30. — How much unemployment there is in the United States nobody knows.

Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, recently finished an investigation of the question, as chairman of the education and labor committee of the upper house of congress.

"We have absolutely no figures," says the senator, "as to the number of persons unemployed at any definite time.

"Here is a government without machinery for knowing whether it is afflicted with disease to which might be added the cancer that destroys government."

There is considerable unemployment, anyway. It is increasing, too. Occasionally there is a little temporary improvement, but the general tendency is down hill.

As the officials of Washington is uneasy, if not more than subconsciously, aware of it.

For instance, Chief Actuary Joseph S. McCoy, of the treasury, recently spoke to me of the continued rise in the tide of national prosperity as surprising considering that more workers are idle than a year ago.

The truth is, the very thing which has made America so prosperous appears to be creating unemployment.

That is, the country's prodigious prosperity, unprecedented in history, is due to its tremendous rate of production, which, in turn, is due to its almost incomprehensibly rapid development of labor saving machinery.

A point has been reached where the nation's requirements can be supplied by a fraction of the total number of its workmen-on a 48-hour-a-week basis at all events.

What the exact fraction is uncertain unemployment but we have been gauged; but one thing is certain-it is a dwindling fraction.

The standard argument is that increased production breeds increased consumption; also that new occupations automatically create themselves as the old ones disappear.

However, the best authorities are skeptical this time. "It was true in the past, I know," says Congressman William F. Kopp of Iowa, chairman of the house of representatives labor committee.

As we turn the editorial job of the Avalanche over to Mr. Charles A. Guy we feel that we are leaving the paper in good and capable hands and that the work of building sentiment and moulding public opinion and that the campaign for constructive editorial work will continue at Lubbock.

To those who have helped us through all of these years and have given us their moral support and have helped us over many financial chasms, we want to express our sincere appreciation and to those who have many times misunderstood us and have opposed us because of it, we hold no ill feeling.

We are honest in the statement that Lubbock is the best and the biggest city of the South Plains and believe it always will be.

PEACE AND ECONOMICS One of the most powerful arguments now being brought forward in support of peace is that war is an uneconomic procedure.

The objection to the economic argument for peace is that it is, in the first place, ineffective, and in the second, unhumane.

Stunting It!

SO THINK WE

We think the city commission is wise in keeping ahead of the new Lubbock in the matter of adequate water supply.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr. is an over-optimistic as far as the present conduct of most business is concerned, but he has vision and is looking ahead when he says that the action which brought about a change of management in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana "emphasizes the conviction that the highest ethical standards are as vital in business as they are in other spheres of life."

The fact remains despite the leadership of men like Rockefeller that the emphasis in business is still too much on beating last year's figures.

Timber companies in the north-west find it economical to convert thousands of acres into pasture. It is rough country and a man's foot cannot so grass seed over more than five to eight acres a day.

University of Southern California has begun to teach aviation by means of the radio. About 250 have signed up for the course and the instruction will be given five evenings a week. Education actually pursued in this modern day is going to be harder and harder to remain ignorant, and yet some people seem to have a genius for not learning.

We wonder, and perhaps smile when we read that a Wisconsin woman, who was left a lot of money, spent thousands of dollars filling her house with wholesale lots of clothes, furniture, bric-a-brac, clocks and mirrors. It was filled from garret to cellar so that there was barely room to walk around. She had 50 house dresses, 30 pairs of shoes, and hundreds of pictures for which there was no room on the walls. Her estate was turned into a gift shop. But perhaps there was as much sense in her buying habits as in those of many of the rest of us. We all buy things we do not need just to gratify the sense of possession or to feed our vanity. We like to be known to our things, whether we use them or not. It would be a vastly less amusing world if folks were rational.

The certainty of being dealt with "That is the reason-and it is a good reason-why the murder rate in England is steadily decreasing. What a splendid thing it would be if as much could be said for the United States! But our courts and judges do not move like the courts and judges of Great Britain.

The 30 principal harbors of Europe are planning to receive a half million visitors from America this summer. Our fellow townsmen and townswomen will wander all over the interesting places of the old world, in search of ideas and entertainment-motely entertainment. It's a great thing for the world-this tremendous exodus of thousands each year to other parts of the earth. If tourists will behave themselves they can be a constant force for international peace. Acquaintance and friends abroad mean peace insurance.

RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL

RUTH DEWY GROVES THIS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson Hotel, has her fox fur snatched from her in a crowd, but STEPHEN ARMITAGE catches the thief and returns the scarf. He asks to take her home.

Not wishing to seem ungrateful she invites him to dinner. He praises her mother's home cooking and gains favor with young CONNIE, who hopes that her sister will mix enough pep with her old-fashioned manner to hold his interest.

The evening is spoiled when she is playing for his attention. PAMELA HUDSON, phone girl at Mildred's employer, phones her to return to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela recognizes him as the salesman who had sold her a car. She snubs Mildred and tries to lure Stephen away from her by pretending she wishes to buy another car from him. Then Pamela meets HUCK CONNOR who tells her he is a broker from Chicago.

Mildred thinks that Stephen is forgetting her since the wealthy girl is playing for his attention. Then he invites her to attend the theater and she accepts, not knowing that Pamela and Huck Connor are to be there.

Stephen did not know they were coming either until the arrival, and he is responsible for his attention. Then he invites her to attend the theater and she accepts, not knowing that Pamela and Huck Connor are to be there.

Your brother might like to go to we can locate him," he added contentedly.

"I'll ask if he's come in," Pamela responded and hurried over to the desk. Harold would have been pleased to learn, if he did, that she'd been out with Huck, but she knew he'd been disappointed about tickets for the revue. She counted on that to drag him along and prevent him from making trouble for her.

She learned that Harold was in his room. "I'll get him," she said to Huck. "Be down in a minute."

She found Harold drinking orange juice and bicarbonate of soda. He looked all in.

"What's the matter with you, she snapped. "Lose again? It doesn't take that long to get there long clean you, does it? I should think you'd take up ping pong or knifing aghans instead of playing pool."

"What a comforting presence you are," her brother jeered. "What did you bust in here for, anyway?"

"I brought her gifts," Pamela smiled. "Come along, little brother. For the first time in my life I want a change."

"Your new boy friend getting rough?" Harold sneered. "Now don't try to look innocent. I got a hunch you were out with Connor."

"Why pick on him? Why not Stephen Armitage?" Pamela mocked. "Well, maybe. I've left a call for Armitage."

"So you're spying on me, are you? I'll pay you off, don't forget. But just now we've got a date with Huck."

"Oh, how we?"

"Yes, we have. He's got tickets. Tickets boy, that you couldn't buy for low no money."

"The new revue! Go on down and hold him to it while I phone up a crowd."

"I don't suppose you would ask Angela?" Harold said, wavering between the bait and his better judgment.

"I would not! Did you see anything of Margola's bunch? They were coming around to pick me up for the Webley's dance."

"I just got in," Harold told her. "They may be downstairs."

Pamela found her friends in the grill. Later someone asked her the coal. "I'm not having told her they were waiting. There were a dozen in the party, but Pamela got Margola aside, and they planned to separate two more and then make the others the slip. That would make the full quota of six. Pamela never bore down lightly on account of never being played the Meadowbrook since her graduation.

The sickness of her smooth blond hair, Huck knew it wasn't bleached-the naughty curve where her chain merged into her throat, appealed to him. He liked fitness. And fitness in women had been a thing since the dawn of time.

The wealth of jewels Pamela wore meant nothing to him. He wanted Pamela because he was madly infatuated with her. He had tried to stem the tide of madness when first he realized that it was sweeping over him. His better judgment told him it was dangerous to fall in love with a girl like Pamela. But he might as well have tried to stop the North River from flowing out to sea.

A sudden slowing of the car when a pedestrian darted unexpectedly in front of it threw them closer together. Pamela drew quickly away. She was uneasy. The quite force of his personality was beginning to disturb her. She remembered that Harold had warned her he'd been unable to learn anything at all concerning the man.

It was his father's hotel, another to be out with him alone. Pamela was not too sheltered to know that wolves still prowled in sheep's clothing.

"Well, I'm no Little Red Riding Hood," she told herself scornfully. "I'm not so sure to arrive home. She started to say good night as soon as they entered the lobby, but Huck pleaded for a dance in the hall."

"I'm tired," Pamela said shortly, but there was nothing in her appearance to bear her out in her explanation. She was radiant, perhaps still flushed a trifle with anger. It was simply unthinkable that a little nobody stenographer should have the power to disturb her!

Huck had guessed at her feelings toward him and was quick to suggest that if she could get up a party, he would take them all to the midnight revue that had opened the previous week and was already a sensation.

He smiled inwardly over her immediate interest in the invitation. He knew then that Pamela was just a bit afraid she might be indifferent. "But it's simply impossible to get tickets," she said hopelessly.

"I'll get them," Huck promised; "but not more than six, please."

"Another thing in Huck's favor Harold's eyes was the fact that Harold hadn't once made a remark that could be construed as a lead to victimize Harold called Mildred's warning."

"Great time," he said to Huck when they left the place, and in his voice was admiration for a man of power.
