MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. P.

Editor Earl P. Williams of the Munday Times has a viewpoint. He insists that a brother editor should be sent to the legislature from the district. This is the Williams' viewpoint: "We learned the first of this week that Mr. E. L. Covey, of Gorgee, would be a candidate at the coming primary election, for representative from this district. This district is composed of four counties, one having been recently added, viz: Knox Foard, Hardeman and King. For about the past twelve years the representatives have all been elected from Foard and Hardeman counties, and it seems to us that it is about time for Knox county to put a man in this position, therefore we are glad to hear that Mr. Covey will be in the race. Most of the people of Munday are acquainted with Mr. Covey. He came to Gorgee in the fall of 1914 as superintendent of the Gorgee Public school and held that position for five years, and has been editor of the Gorgee Advocate, with the exception of one year, since April of 1917. We believe that Mr. Covey is well qualified in many ways to fill the office of representative, and do not hesitate to recommend him to the voters of the county. He has had about ten years experience as a teacher, and four years as editor of one of the best small town weekly newspapers in this section of the country, and in addition to this he has been a close student of law. While he is not licensed to practise, he has studied for several years, having spent two years in the offices of practising attorneys, paying especial attention to Civil Law. Mr. Covey's experience as teacher and editor have kept him well posted as to the needs of the people, and this one qualification should make him popular with the voters. We understand that Judge Marshall of Quannah, who has held the office for the past two terms, and recently resigned has offered his support to Mr. Covey in the coming election." Put it up to the people. They are the masters. Texas needs progressive young men, level headed young men, broad visioned young men under the big dome at Austin. Ten or fifteen upstanding and forward moving West Texas editors would make the twenty-eighth session of the Texas legislature a very interesting body. Men are needed who will speak for the people and not for the political bosses.

Bunger is happy. Bunger is an oil town. Bunger has rich prospects. Bunger is on the map. This is the story reproduced from the Graham Leader: "Several months ago the postoffice at Bunger was discontinued but with the finding of oil in that community the business has grown so rapidly that the government has reestablished the office. The people of Bunger and Oil City are delighted to have the office reestablished as it was very inconvenient to come in over the rough roads for their mail every day. Mrs. Daisy L. Grantham has been appointed as postmistress for the new office."

Hon. John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi is a senator, a Democrat and "the scholar of the American congress." Thomas E. Watson of Georgia is a senator, a Democrat and the recognized pest of the American congress. Williams and Watson clashed last week in the senate when Watson attacked Woodrow Wilson and Henry Ford. This is the story of the battle of the tongues: "A clash between Senators Williams and Watson developed when the latter attacked Mr. Ford and declared that 'left-over Wilsonites" in the senate were seeking to retire Mr. Newberry because he had opposed the League of Nations. Mr. Williams said he regarded Mr. Ford as 'so far superior in altruism, in world sense and in world vision to the senator from Georgia (Mr. Watson) and myself that I can hardly find words to express it.' He was interrupted by Mr. Watson who declared he had not asked a 'clean bill of health' from Mr. Williams, and added: 'I stated that the War Department records show that in various items paid to Henry Ford he was paid for materials never delivered, one item being for tractors and the amount was $5,000,000; that he kept his son out of war when the sons of Senator Newberry were in the war.' Mr. Watson also charged that Mr. Ford had assessed his employes, 'blackmailed' them, he said, for $50,000 for 'expense account.' Mr. Williams denied that Mr. Ford had ever done such a thing, and added: 'I did not approve of Mr. Ford's course during the war when the senator from Georgia was running with him, when they both were trying to make peace for a common enemy—' 'When the senator states that, he states what is not true!' shouted Senator Watson. Mr. Williams inquired which part of his statement was not true, and when informed, continued: 'I will take back that part of it in which I said he was running with Henry Ford, but I do not take back the part of it in which I said he was running against his country—' Mr. Williams attempted to continue, but Mr. Watson was shouting: 'It's false!' Other senators were seeking recognition from the chair, and Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, who had held the floor when the exchanges began, was vainly trying to make himself heard above the many voices and the pounding of gavel by Vice-President Coolidge. Mr. Watson and Mr. Williams, with two desks between them, stood glaring at each other when order was restored. Mr. Williams, without another word, picked up his hat and walked out of the chamber." Watson should be Henry Ford's best friend. Henry Ford did equip a peace ship and that ship carried a load of peace missionaries to Europe.

"SUGAR STOCKS ARE SOUND" SAYS BABSON

Famous American Statistician Favors These Stocks as a Long Swing Speculation on Part of Buyers.

World Production Is Not Adequate to Meet Potential Demand; High Volume of Exports Record.

By ROGER W. BABSON

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Nov. 25.—Much interest is manifest in sugar today, particularly on the weak side. The worst is over, however, and the commodity is rapidly becoming readjusted. A year and a half ago, raw sugar was selling for 22 1-2c a pound—the most exorbitant price in modern history. Hysterical buying of both commodity and security resulted. Suddenly it became evident that no shortage existed; that the invisible supply was in reality of enormous proportions. There could be but one result of such speculation. Demoralization immediately followed. Prices in February, 1921, declined to below 4c per pound. The readjustment was wholly in keeping with the fundamentals and the inevitable law of action and reaction. It usually follows that the higher a commodity goes, the more severe is the reaction.

What is the world status at present with raw sugar selling around 5c? One point stands out prominently. The world production is not adequate to meet the potential demand. Remember, that before the war, Europe produced nearly 50 per cent of the world's sugar, practically 9,000,000 tons of the 18,000,000 tons. During the past few years, European output has been less than 3,500,000 tons annually, or 61 per cent under the normal figure. Europe is not recovering nothwithstanding the curtailed per capita consumption, in proportion to her needs. We are still exporting tremendous quantities, more than the record volume of a year ago, and 100 per cent more than in 1913. Until a more self-sustaining basis is reached, a high volume of exports will be maintained.

Cuba took upon her shoulders the burden of counteracting dwindling European production. The pinnacle of the great expansion occurred in 1920—the unpsychological moment. It takes a year to produce sugar, but the depression swept upon us in a few short months. The huge profits made by Cuban growers were practically wiped out and the timely function of the Sugar Commission probably prevented a more drastic collapse of the market and more serious financial difficulties. All eyes are focussed on the unprecedented stocks in Cuba—now close to 1,100,000 tons, against an average during the past three years of only 283,000 tons. Do not ignore the fact, however, that stocks of sugar in this country are abnormally low. Imports to date average 440,000 tons under the volume of a year ago. Usually at this time of the year the bulk of the sugar crop is in this country and not in Cuba. The low domestic invisible supply will inevitably cause marked inroads in the Cuban stocks during the next month or two. Moreover, the financial setback to the sugar producer is not without effect. The present price of sugar is close to if not below the cost of replacement. It is not surprising, therefore, that the trend of production is downward.

The 1921-22 Cuban crop promises only 3,000,00 tons—a decline of 23 per cent from last year. The world output aggregates barely 15,500,000 tons, as compared with 18,500,000 tons before the war—a decline of 16 per cent. An even greater curtailment is entirely probable. Keeping in mind underlying conditions, and present stocks the prospective new crop should not prove burdensome or a drug on the market. Stocks of the leading sugar companies meanwhile have dropped from a high of 99 in April 1920, to 27 1-2 the present quotation.

I do not predict an immediate recovery but certainly believe that this is not a time to partically give away the commodity—or the stocks of reliable sugar companies. You will in all probability pay more for both next year.

General business is improving slowly but surely. The Babsonchart Index shows our present position but 17 per cent below normal which augurs well for Christmas business.

WILSON—TODAY

By ROBERT L. RIPLEY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The above sketch of former President Wilson was made on the occasion of his first public appearance in many months—the second, in fact, since the night in the west when he was stricken. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson rode in an open carriage behind the unknown soldier on Armistice Day.

"A casualty of the great war," as Tumulty said of him.

A wounded soldier, indeed.

Woodrow Wilson bears his wounds heavily. Illness has marked his face and frame with heartless hand. He leans weakly on a cane and accepts the assistance of his colored servant as he walks to and from his carriage. His hair is white and gone from the top, as though age had crept hurriedly upon him.

However weak his flesh may be, his spirit is as strong as before, and the power of his personality was shown in a striking manner during the funeral procession when the crowds applauded him—despite the solemnity of the occasion—as he moved slowly down the avenue behind the unknown soldier.

HARDING HOPES TO MAKE MEET ANNUAL AFFAIR

Foreign Delegates Have Indicated Their Approval of Plan for Perpetuating Conference.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—In the midst of developments that helped clear the air for all the big subjects before the arms conference, President Harding let it be known today that he had taken the first step toward a continuation of individual discussions which may lead to an "association of nations."

Conferences among the nations once a year to consider whatever may menace good understanding have been suggested by the president informally to some of the foreign delegates and their replies are said to have encouraged a hope that a permanent plan of consultation will receive world approval.

Lacking all the properties of a formal proposal, Mr. Harding's plan is declared to have been offered as a personal suggestion, without any hint as to the details of its accomplishment. Whether a more formal approach to the subject will be taken before the end of the Washington conference remains to be developed.

With the conference itself, definite progress was made in both the Far Eastern and naval negotiations, and it became apparent that although the question of land armament had been laid aside for the present, without an attempted to agree on limitation of armies. Some of the delegates hope later to translate the sentiment of the conference into a joint declaration of general policy.

The naval discussions centered for the moment about Japan's recapitulation of her present naval strength in connection with her hope for modification of the "five-five-three" ratio of the American plan. Experts of the British, French and Italian delegations, withheld their decision but the American advisers made known their conviction, reached after examination of the Japanese data, that no change in the ratio was warranted.

Resuming the far eastern negotiations, the delegations of the nine nations approved "in principle" China's plea for amelioration of the extra territorial rights now enjoyed by the powers. A plan of the modification with a view to final abolition is expected to be worked out by an international commission of jurists.

SMALL FIRES BROADSIDE AT INDICTMENTS

By Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 25.—Governor Small's line of attack against indictments charging him with embezzlement of public funds and to conspiracy to defraud the state, was laid before State Attorney C. F. Mortimer, of Sangamon county tonight.

The specifications, delivered to Mr. Mortimer by counsel for the governor, point out the nature of arguments to be made at Waukegan, December 5, in support of motions to quash the indictments.

The attack on the indictments by the defense charges: First, that the indictments on their face, charge the governor with no crime or offense against the state.

Second, that they do not allege that the governor ever received any money belonging to the state.

Third, that the grand jury in returning the indictments, filed an explanation and reviews of evidence which the defense claims "was absolutely in violation of the constitutional statutes, intended only to create an unfair and unwarranted prejudice against the governor and renders the indictment illegal and void."

The documents delivered to State Attorney Mortimer by messenger tonight were sent by C. C. LeForgee, of Decatur, Weiner W. Schroeder of Kankakee and A. F. Beaubien of Waukegan, counsel for the govern r. The delivery was made in accordance with an agreement at Waukegan, November 11.

SYMPATHY FOR KING DEFENSE IS STATE WIDE

Large Delegations to Attend Meet in Interest of Retaining Gatesville School Head.

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Nov. 25.—Gatesville will send a special train and delegations will come from Houston, Fort Worth, Temple, Corsicana, as well as all nearby communities, for attendance at the state wide rally here Saturday night of friends of the state juvenile training school in an effort to retain C. T. King, as superintendent of the institution, Mrs. E. L. Humphreys, announced tonight.

The movement for a mass meeting as one step in a campaign to memoralize the board of control at Austin was launched early this week when a committee of Waco citizens spent the day investigating the training school. Conferences of local friends of the school have been held daily since, and assurances of sympathetic interest have been received from many Texas points, according to the local leaders.

Among the speakers for the mass meeting tomorrow will be Judge J. L. Petry, Fort Worth, and Frank P. West, Cleburne, both former members of the board of trustees; Rev. P. A. Heckman, Waco, Catholic chaplin of the school, and Clay McClellan, Gatesville, who represented Mr. King during the recent investigation.

BURK OFFICER MURDER CASE IS POSTPONED

The case of L. S. Brannon, deputy constable at Burkburnett charged with the murder of Elmer Smith near that city last spring, was continued for the term by Judge Ed Napier of the 78th district court when called for trial Friday morning. The continuance was made at the request of state attorneys who said that they had been unable to locate certain witnesses.

Brannon was indicted several months ago and his case has been set down for trial on one previous occasion. A special venire of 100 men who had been summoned for jury service were dismissed Friday after the case had been continued.

IRISH PEACE NEGOTIATIONS REACH CRISIS

Sinn Fein Ireland Refuses to Own Allegiance to King, a Prerequisite of Settlement.

Peace Efforts Have Apparently Failed Unless Sinn Fein Government Modifies Attitude.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—What is feared to be the last scene in the effort to bring peace to Ireland was enacted today when Prime Ministers Lloyd George and Sir James Craig met in the former's official residence in Downing street, where the imperial premier told the head of the northern government that Sinn Fein Ireland had not consented to owe allegiance to the king, a prerequisite to Ulster's agreement to enter an all-Ireland parliament.

The Sinn Fein delegates are consulting with members of the Dail cabinet in Dublin on the crisis thus brought about while Sir James returned to Belfast where he will report to his parliament next Tuesday and possibly disclose the cause of virtual breakdown of the Irish negotiations. The official correspondence that has passed between the various delegations also may be published at the same time in London.

Week-end efforts, meanwhile, will be made by peace makers in an attempt to persuade the Sinn Fein to modify its attitude on the question of allegiance to the king. The Dail Eireann have not taken the oath of allegiance to the Irish republic and thus far they have refused to substitute for its recognition, within Ireland, of King George. The furthest concessions from the Sinn Fein has been their willingness to recognize the king as the formal president of the community of free nations which Ireland might choose voluntarily to join, but even that was not definitely promised.

Lord Chancellor Birkhead and Attorney General Hewat, law officers of the crown, have ransacked the constitutions of all the British dominions, for any precedent for the kind of relationship with the British crown that Sinn Fein will consider, but nothing can be found, and the Evening News, the first London newspaper to indicate the real cause of the crisis, suggests that the relations of Bavaria, with Prussia in the German empire might furnish such a precedent.

But Mr. Lloyd George, it is understood, would not admit of any arrangement which would leave Ireland's allegiance to the crown in any doubt, and the government would support Ulster in refusing any association which would weaken its British citizenship.

The only prospect for your peace now is said to rest on Sinn Fein's conceding allegiance to the crown, and the influence of the advocates of moderation has been invoked in a final effort to change its position. The question is being put as to whether the point involved is worth renewed warfare for a breakdown of the negotiations on that issue, it is believed, would be followed either before or after the general election by the handing over of Ireland to military rule and the displacement of the civilian officials in Dublin Castle, to whose influence is attributed the previous failure of military measures.

Order Arrest Of Mail Guard Who Shot Hobo

By Associated Press.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Nov. 25—Acting under orders of Governor Blaine, District Attorney Carl F. Young swore to a warrant today for the arrest of Marcus M. Hensen, 22, a marine mail guard, who is alleged to have shot Otto Lambrecht, while he was attempting to steal a ride on a Northwestern train last Sunday morning.

A subpoena was also issued for R. V. Murphy, another marine guard, who was with Hensen at the time of the shooting. Murphy will probably be brought here as a witness to the shooting.

MONEY FOR BONDS TO BE PAID WITHIN NEXT TWO WEEKS

Will Add Several Million Dollars to Local Bank Deposits; Directors Say Waggoner Apparently "Backing Out" on Trade.

Payment for the Big Wichita Irrigation project bonds, putting approximately $4,500,000 on deposit in Wichita Falls banks, will be made within the next two weeks, according to word received Friday by T. B. Noble, vice president of the district board, from the bond buyers in St. Louis. The bonds are now on deposit with the American Trust Co. of St. Louis, and will be turned over to the purchasers as paid for—in lots of $1,000,000 at a time. The money will be expended over a period of two years for construction of the project.

This with word that the irrigation board is making preparations for condemnation proceedings against the land of W. T. Waggoner which will be inundated by the lands constituted the day's developments in the irrigation project.

Such conditions were imposed in the contract forwarded by Mr. Waggoner's attorneys as to constitute, in the opinoin of the directors, a "welching out" of the agreement for the sale of the lands made several weeks ago by Frank Kell.

Condemnation of the land will not entail a serious delay, according to those in touch with the project, although it will constitute some delay, as had the contract submitted in pursuance to the agreement been of an acceptable nature work could have started right away—next week in the opinion of Mr. Noble.

While the delay will ensue, it is the belief of members of the board that it may result in the saving of some money to the district, as it is believed that the price put on the land through condemnation proceedings will be lower than would be necessary to pay for the land without such proceedings.

TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES IN FATTY'S FAVOR

Miss Rappe Exonerated Arbuckle, Reiterates Physician Who Attended Her After Party.

Deceased Actress Suffered From Chronic Illness, Testimony of Nurse in Her Employ.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—Dr. M. E. Rumwell, a San Francisco physician, took the stand at the afternoon session of the Arbuckle manslaughter trial to identify a statement to him by Miss Virginia Rappe, alleging that she exonerated Arbuckle of responsibility for her fatal injuries.

Dr. Rumwell testified to having attended Miss Rappe after the party in Arbuckle's room in the Hotel St. Francis.

Miss Rappe told him she had been drinking and "she did not recollect anything that happened," Dr. Rumwell testified. The prosecution moved that the answer be stricken out but the court allowed it to remain.

Dr. Rumwell said he saw no bruises or other marks on Miss Rappe's body. He was asked to produce the statement of his conversation with his patient.

"The patient gives the history of having been intoxicated and she does not remember what happened," Dr. Rumwell read from the statement after its admission was allowed by the court over the protest of the prosecution.

Dr. Rumwell was not cross examined. Miss Irene Morgan, trained nurse of South Pasadena, was the next witness.

Miss Morgan said she met Miss Rappe in March, 1920, in Hollywood, California, and was employed by her as a housekeeper and trained nurse. She said she saw Miss Rappe tearing at her clothes "many times" and treated her at least five times for bladder trouble.

Miss Rappe's bladder showed a diseased condition, Miss Morgan testified. Her patient used to "double up and cry," presumably as a result of the trouble, the witness said.

After drinking intoxicating liquor Miss Rappe would tear her clothes off, she said.

She testified that Frank McConnell, San Francisco police detective, went to her room in Los Angeles a month ago and told her: "Don't they know they have no right to call you on either side in the Arbuckle case. Your character will be ruined."

Under cross examination the witness testified to having attended Mrs. Frances Edwards of South Pasadena during an operation. The prosecution said in regard to the Edwards matter that it wished to establish a motive for Miss Morgan's statements regarding Miss Rappe. This line of evidence was stopped by the court.

CROWN PRINCE IS APPOINTED REGENT JAPAN

New Skipper at Helm of Japanese Ship of State Necessitated by Affliction of Emperor.

By Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 25.—Crown Prince Hirohito has been designated regent of Japan. An imperial rescript making the announcement was issued by Emperor Yoshihito yesterday afternoon. It said: "We are unable to attend in person to the affairs of state on account of protracted ill ess, and accordingly appoint Crown Prince Hirohito regent with the approval of the council of Princes, the imperial family and the privy councellors.

It bears the imperial signature and that of the crown prince and is signed also by Baron Maino, minister of the imperial household; Premier Yaahashi and the cabinet ministers.

Simultaneously a bulletin was issued stating that the emperor's mental condition was such as to preclude his futher attention to state duties, traceable to an affliction of his infancy. It added that there was no serious development in his physical condition.

According to Dr. Ikebe, chief physician to the emperor, his condition has changed little since last October. Restraint of speech and nervous debility are declared by the physician to be his chief ailments.

The emperor continues the eccentricities which have marked his condition but Dr. Ikebe reports they are not so frequent as formerly. He requires assistance only in mounting stairs. His appetite does not show signs of serious decline.

The association declared in favor of a constitutional convention at which a code of school laws may be drafted in revision of the present public school system.

Wichita Falls' Big Three Day Festival Begins Tomorrow

Tomorow Wichita Falls' big three-day festival of music, fun and entertainment begin. Tomorrow the Sells-Floto circus will "hit town," and tomorrow afternoon a big, free open-air band concert in Bellevue park will introduce the 72-hour good time being arranged by circus officials, the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants' association. A program of popular and classical music has been arranged that should prove unusually pleasing, and the Sells-Floto band—well, the circus is proud of its band, that's all.

On Monday the circus will give its two final performances of the season, a matinee and a night show. A street parade stretching twenty-four blocks will introduce the afternoon performance, and it is expected hundreds of visitors from neighboring towns and cities will rub elbows with local citizens while the two-mile procession is passing.

There's something new under the white tops this season. At least the Sells-Floto officials assert they have something new—clowns who are funny. The "joeys," as circus folk call the clowns, have written orders to go out in the three rings, on the two stages and in the hippodrome track and be funny. Every one of the fifty-five Sells-Floto clowns has orders telling him if he can't be funny not to go out before the public and mislead 'em with starched pantaloons and peaked cap. The orders read:

"Every clown with this show is hired to get laughs. Any clown not getting one or more laughs in each clown display will be fined $100 for the first offense, $200 for the second offense, and for the third offense he'll have his clown suit taken away from him for one performance."

There are 1,200 people with the "second largest show on earth" this season, and the management can't watch 'em all; hence the orders. The only clown with the show exempted from the ruling is "Poodles" Hanneford, the great riding clown obtained from the New York Hippodrome. Hanneford's orders forbid him to continue being funny after the third encore. He must then cease riding and become serious again, the reason for the order being that on several occasions early in the season "Poodles" continued his nonesense so far that he stopped the other acts, and delayed the performance.

On Tuesday, November 29, the men and women of the Sells-Floto circus will receive their final pay checks of the season—and then there will be a grand rush for the Wichita Falls hotels, restaurants and stores. Circus folk are very human, and at the end of a season spent in circus cars, riding over all kinds of road beds, eating hurried meals and wearing old clothes, they certainly love to break away at the end of the season and live like regular home folks.

A mammoth free street fair will be one of the big features of the entertainment Tuesday. Arrangements have been made by committees from the Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants association to have a number of the star performers of the circus "pull" novel and startling stunts on the downtown streets in addition to entertainment features in which local citizens will participate. All the stores in the city will keep open house for the circus men and women and the out-of-town visitors, and everyone will be out to have a good time, to laugh and play and to make a grand and glorious wind-up to the circus season of 1921.

OCEAN CHARTS REQUIRE CHANGING AS RESULT OF "CARNEGIE'S" CRUISE

The "Carnegie" and her commander, Capt. J. P. Ault.

The latest ocean charts require corrections as the result of the magnetic data secured by scientists who accompanied the Carnegie Institution's non-magnetic brigantine "Carnegie" on its two-year cruise around the globe, which has just ended at Washington, D. C. The "Carnegie" is a floating observatory and laboratory, constructed of wood, bronze, copper, gun-metal and other materials that will not affect the compass.

State Press Comment

WHICH SHALL BE WHICH?

(George Robinson in Waco Times Herald.)

H. N. F. late last night received this tip from a friend at Dallas: "It is announced here in legal and political circles that Joseph Weldon Bailey and former Chief Justice Nelson Phillips have formed a law partnership and this called for the resignation of Phillips as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas." The editor of the Waco Times-Herald evolved this editorial reflection in his newspaper Thursday, November 17, the day that Nelson Phillips handed in his resignation: "Nelson Phillips is a truly great man. He is a profound statesman. He properly belongs in the Senate at Washington." And the plot thickens. —Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald in Wichita Falls Record-News.

If either Senator Bailey or Judge Phillips has further political aspirations, the same is unknown to your favorite newspaper. What should concern those who call themselves Democrats is the direction the party is to take in the next three or four years. For practically a century, the Democratic party clung tenaciously to the principles set forth by Thomas Jefferson. Andrew Jackson and Samuel Tilden and Grover Cleveland were of the Jeffersonian type, with some slight modifications perhaps. With the arrival of Mr. Bryan, the Democratic party began to cut new paths through the wilderness, and under Mr. Wilson's guidance it became far more progressive than the Bull Moose party, the party that nominated Mr. Roosevelt in 1912 and so made it possible for Mr. Wilson to reach the Presidency. When the Bull Moose party went out of existence, the main body of its membership returned to the Republican fold, but its principles were largely caught up by the Democrats, and, like all new converts, Democratic progressives did outrun the Republican progressives. This is not set down in any spirit of unkindness; it is simply historic fact. Maybe the time has arrived for an advance all along the line; with that, this discussion has nothing to do; a faithful chronicle is all that is here sought to be set down. Under Mr. Wilson, the Democratic party became not only the champion of Nationalism, but of Internationalism, a fact which no one, we take it, will undertake to dispute, for there it is in the record. Mind you, we are not here complaining; we are simply stating an obvious fact. Possibly this new attitude—for it is new for the party in question—is the exemplification of the highest wisdom, but some among us do not think so, and the only question is whether or not they are so hopelessly in the minority as not to be able to make an impression on their brother Democrats. As the matter stands, the progressive spirit rules in the counsels of the Democratic party. In 1892, the party declared for home rule and individual liberty, but we do not hear anything like that in this our day, save when some one like Joe Bailey is heard on the stump. In a democracy like ours, where government is by party, there naturally arises two parties, the one radical and the other conservative, and the one reacts against the other, to the good of our institutions. In the old days, as all must admit, the Democratic party was the party of conservatism; every Democrat instead that the General Government was one of limited powers, and in his every utterance he warned the people against the doctrine and practice of centralization. That very fact made of the Democratic party an ultra conservative body, and the opposition naturally became the radical force in American politics. This distinction has been largely obliterated, but it is bound to return and become more distinct, and the great question is, which shall be which? Recent votes in the American Congress indicate a breaking up of both parties; new alignments seem to be inevitable, for men will not always cling to a mere name. What is the Democratic party going to be from this time on? Is it to be a home rule party or a national capital party? Is it to oppose or favor socialism? Let us not deceive ourselves, fellow-citizens; the Democratic party is right now where it must choose between the two courses here indicated. The candidacies of men amount to nothing in such a consideration; men come and go, but principles remain forever. Between Cullen Thomas and Oscar Colquit, for example, is a gulf as wide as that which separates between Dives and Lazzarus. If Morris Sheppard is a Democrat, then Joe Bailey isn't a Democrat, and vice versa. Men are not fair to themselves when they un—this of opposing principles in the same political organization. The Democratic party should represent either the Colquit point of view or the Thomas point of view; either the Bailey point of view or the Sheppard point of view, and in such a way as will deceive no man. Mind you, this is not an attempt to prejudice any one for or against a particular side; it is merely an attempt to set forth in its true colors an existing situation, remembering always that every man is obligated to do everything in his power to transmit unimpaired the free institutions which have so abundantly blessed his own life.

BOY MILLIONAIRE LEAVES SHOW GIRL

Jessie Reid Caswell.

Dan Caswell, boy millionaire of Cleveland, O., whose elopement a year ago with Jessie Reed, beautiful Follies show girl, caused a sensation, breakfasted with his wife at a Boston hotel after having attended a Hallowe'en party with her the night before. This on the eve of his institution of divorce proceedings against her.

This was before America entered the war. Watson fought the Wilson administration in peace time; he denounced the military laws of the country in war time. He was a suspect; his newspapers were seditious. Henry Ford fought for peace until the formal declaration of war had been made. He never made a cent on his government contracts. He did all in his power as a true American patriot to assist his government at home and abroad in the waging and the winning of the war. Ford is a public benefactor; Watson—well Watson is just Watson.

TALENT FOR LEGION SHOW IS SELECTED

Preliminary selection of the cast for the American Legion minstrel show, including the allotment of those whose aptitudes run along lines of comedy, song, and such, took up the most of the time at the meeting Friday night at the Legion hall. George Hodgins, who will direct the show, was on hand with his pencil and notebook and made out the tentative list of the legion members and auxiliary members who are to take part in the show.

Next Friday night has been set as the date for the first rehearsal with music, Mr. Hodgins said and he urges all legionnaires and women auxiliary members who have had experience in theatricals, minstrels or who can sing, to be on hand at this tryout.

The prospects for a live and peppy show are getting brighter, Mr. Hodgins says, and he believes that after the first rehearsal with music the plans will go along rapidly.

COW, HEN AND DAIRY CAMPAIGN IS BEGUN IN SCURRY COUNTY

By Associated Press.

SNYDER, Texas, Nov. 25.—Having already ginned appoximately 18,000 bales of cotton in Scurry county, of which approximately half is represented in this city's total, the local Chamber of Commerce, in co-operation with the Dairy-Poultry-Beef campaign of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has put its plans into effect to have every farm in the county plentifully supplied with laying hens and dairy cows. A good market is at hand.

The county is in splendid financial condition, and local bankers predict that the county will be free of debt by January 1st or so soon thereafter as the complete marketing of the present crop has occurred.

BRADSTREET'S TRADE CONDITION REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Bradstreets tomorrow will say:

Trade, industrial and financial reports present an irregular appearance. Wholesale trade has quieted further; jobbing trade, except in holiday specialties, has tended to taper off, and concentration of attention is on retail trade, which is better but falls as yet to reveal the desired activity in final distribution. Seasonal conditions possibly large explain the quieter trend in wholesale and jobbing trade, although cautious buying by retailers is an additional reason. Retail buying lacks the snap often visible at this season, reason for this being irregular weather, low prices for farm produce, and in some large centers, reduced purchasing power due to unemployment.

Senator Carrol Smalley Page of Vermont will retire March 3, 1923. He will be 81 years old and will have rounded out his fifty-fourth year in public office. He was asked how he managed it. This was his reply: "How do I keep up? First, good ancestry—a sound natural constitution. Then, abstinence from tobacco and liquor. I am a tetotaler, you know, but not a fanatic." There is a vast difference between a tetotaler and a fanatic. A tetotaler regulates himself; a fanatic attempts to regulate his fellow men.

Wage reductions have been announced by the Armour packing plants the country over to become effective next Monday. Other Texas railroads intend to follow the lead of the Southern Pacific line in seeking a ten per cent reduction in wages. It is said the expressed intention of all the railway lines to reduce freight rates on agricultural products by ten per cent is taken as a forerunner to wage reductions. This country is going back to normal and all the signs of the times have a tinge of normalcy.

Secretary Charles Evans Hughes is on the job. Speaking for the United States he will ask the signatures of the powers attending the arms limitation and Far East Conference to a definite understanding regarding Far Eastern and Pacific questions. This may be in the form of a treaty or simply an agreement but in any event it is to be put in a binding form. Now what is the difference between a League of Nations and an association of nations. Isn't an association of nations an entangling alliance? If not, what is the proper name for it?

Premier Briand came to America to rally the support of the world to France. He has achieved his purpose but France must play fair. She is the victor and can afford to be generous. A nation or individual that is big in victory easily wins the support of the world.

GERMANY AS A BUYER

Germany is buying more dollars worth of goods from America than before the war. Germany bought 1,123,000 bales of American cotton in the first nine months of 1921. Germany bought 35,413,000 bushels of American wheat in the first nine months of the year Germany is coming back because Germans work and save. Germany is coming back because the people of Germany are not taxed for the maintenance of an army and navy. Germany is coming back because the Germans are gluttons for work and it is in their blood. This does not mean that Germany is coming back as a military power. It does mean that Germany is coming back as a commercial power and some day will take rank with leading nations as economic masters of the world.

A Washington correspondent writes that Governor E. Mont Reily of Porto Rico is ready with a defense. Sure, his defense will be that he is a Republican and that a republican in governmental executive capacity can do no wrong. Reily is a Celtic-American, an original Harding man, a former Texan and he would make Porto Ricans over in a night. Those who would refuse to be made over he would convert to his ideas and ideals by the free use of a big stick. Reily has a defense, the administration will accept his defense and Reily will return to Porto Rico boss of the job.

Frank H. Simonds says that China must be handled with care. Why should Americans concern themselves? Eighty-eight per cent of the trade of China is controled by European powers and Japan with England the chief beneficiary and France the second. Chinese buy 12 per cent of their imports from Americans. America gets the feathers, Europe the turkey. Reciprocity is the thing. If the Chinese expect the support of America why shouldn't the Chinese give a fair share of their trade to Americans?

Five cents street car fare will be restored to Chicago within a few days, following a decision of the United States supreme court allowing the Illinois commerce commission to set the fare. Rides now cost eight cents. If the Illinois commerce commission could set the fare then why shouldn't the Illinois commerce commission fix the wage scale and the number of hours that constitute a work day for the employes of street railways?

And now the agricultural livestock finance corporation is functioning. Initial loans total $500,000. They are to cattle men. And the Federal Reserve Bank at Dallas will advance the money. All the cattlemen who need money and have ranches and cattle as collateral will be given loans. Really the livestock industry is looking up.

HEDONISM

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Few people, I find, have any definite idea as to what is meant by the term hedonism. Yet many among those same people, to their great misfortune, are consistent practitioners of hedonism without knowing it.

All, in fact, are hedonists who live as though they believe that the great purpose of life is to get as much pleasure as possible out of it. Which means, one is strongly tempted to add, that hedonism is the prevailing philosophy of today.

Certainly there are acute observers of modern society who do not hesitate to affirm that this is the case. Thus we find Jay William Hudson, in his "The Things We Live By," declaring:

"One way of finding the temper of a people is to observe the social sets that are looked up to for guidance and emulation. Now, it is clear that American social sets exist not primarily for intellectual or even aesthetic culture, but for the achievement of pleasure. For society in America this has become a strenuous social business, and has almost assumed the character of a social art.

"And the people at large tend, within their limits of opportunity, to adopt this same search for pleasure as a secondary religious creed. They take it so seriously that it is hard—nay, almost impossible—for Americans to cultivate the virtue of thrift.

"It is this hedonistic ideal that causes them to live beyond their means. With multitudes of people the right to achieve pleasure is even the fundamental moral duty, and its achievement the supreme test of the successful life."

But, as Mr. Hudson is quick to point out:

"The saddest and most jaded being on this earth is the professional pleasure-seeker. The life of pleasure, as in the case of Faust, comes upon its own tragic self-defeat.

"Thus it is that, historically, hedonistic theories have always developed out of themselves into more adequate views of life. And hedonistic civilizations have either been destroyed or have grown into civilizations of a larger creed.

"Life is a struggle for a moral goal where every achievement gives pleasure, and yet whose every step means something, too, of the positive plan of sacrifice."

If you who read these passages must confess yourself a hedonist, take warning from them. Mere pleasure-seeking will never gain for you real pleasure. Boredom is its sure reward.

Whereas, paradoxically, to forget pleasure in the effort at rendering service through accomplishment means the winning of a pleasure so real that it may bring with it ecstasy.

And effort at accomplishment—effort to do things really worth while—must become the creed of the average man, not merely of the exceptional one, if national as well as individual welfare is to be assured, and national progress put beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Always the survivors among nations as among individuals are the fit. Devotion to hedonism—devotion to ideals of pleasure-seeking—means national unfitness. Let no citizen who calls himself a patriot forget that.

CHATTERER GROWS TOO CURIOUS

Everybody knows how curious Peter Rabbit is. He is forever poking his wabbly little nose in where it has no business to be and as a result Peter is forever getting into trouble. Whenever Chatterer the Red Squirrel has heard a new story about Peter and his scrapes his curiosity has got him into, Chatterer has said that Peter got no more than he deserved. As for himself, he might be curious about a thing he saw the first time, but he had too much sense to meddle with it until he knew all about it. So Chatterer had come to be thought very smart, quite too smart to be caught in a trap—at least to be caught in an ordinary trap.

Now, a great many people manage to make their neighbors think they are a great deal smarter than they really are, and Chatterer is one of this kind. If some of his neighbors could have peeped into Farmer Brown's corn-crib the morning after Farmer Brown's boy found the tell-tale cornecb so carelessly dropped by Chatterer, they would have been surprised. Yes, sir, they would have been surprised. They would have seen Chatterer the Red Squirrel, the boaster, he of the sharp wits, showing quite as much curiosity as ever possessed Peter Rabbit.

Chatterer had come over to the corn-crib as usual to get his daily supply of corn. As usual, he had raced about over the great pile of yellow corn. Quite suddenly his sharp eyes spied something that they hadn't seen before. It was down on the floor of the corn-crib quite near the door. Chatterer was sure that it hadn't been there the day before. It was a very queer looking thing, very queer, indeed. And then he spied another queer looking thing near it, only this was very much smaller. What could they be? He looked at them suspiciously. They looked harmless enough. He ran a few steps toward them and scolded, just as he scolds anything new he finds out of doors. Still they didn't move. He ran around on a little ledge where he could look right down on the queer things. He was sure now that they were not alive. The biggest one he could see all through. Inside was something to eat. The littlest thing was round and flat with funny bits of wire on top. It looked as if it was made of wood, and in the sides were little round holes too small for him to put his head through.

"Leave them alone," said a small voice inside of Chatterer.

"But I want to see what they are and find out all about them," said Chatterer.

"No good ever comes of meddling with things you don't know about," said the small voice.

"But they are such queer looking things, and they're not alive. They can't hurt me," said Chatterer.

Nevertheless he ran back to the pile of corn and tried to eat. Somehow he had lost his appetite. He couldn't take his eyes off those two queer things down on the floor.

"Better keep away," warned the small voice inside."

"It won't do any harm to have a closer look at them," said Chatterer.

So he once more scrambled down from the pile of corn, and little by little drew nearer to the two queer things. The nearer he got the more harmless they looked. Finally he reached out and smelled of the smallest. Then he turned up his nose. "Smells of mice," muttered Chatterer, "just common barn mice." Then he reached out a paw and touched it. "Pooh!" said he, "it's nothing to be afraid of." Just then he touched one of the little wires and there was a sudden snap. It frightened Chatterer so that he scurried away. But he couldn't stay away. That snap was such a funny thing, and it hadn't done any harm. You see, he hadn't put his paw in at one of the little holes or it might have done some harm. Pretty soon he was back again meddling with those little wires on top. Every once in a while there would be a snap and he would scamper away. It was very scary and great fun. By and by the thing wouldn't snap any more and then Chatterer grew tired of his queer plaything and began to wonder about the other queer thing. No harm had come from the first one and so he was sure no harm could come from the other.

THE HAPPY MAN

My neighbor's such a cheerful skate I said to him one day, "How do you keep your smile on straight—what makes you blithe and gay? Although I am an optimist, and make of glee a fad, I have my grouchy hours, I wist, while you are always glad." My neighbor heaved a gaudy smile that split his map in twain, and then sat down upon a stile, his gladness to explain. "I do not owe a rusty cent to any man on earth, and so I'm full of merriment, my soul is soaked in mirth. I don't believe that any man can know estatlie thrills, if he must walk the floor and plan to pay up ancient bills. No creditors invade my den, to threaten, bluff or whine. And I can drive my new green boat, and none can say: 'By jing, he ought to pay me for the goat he bought from me last spring.' I cry, each morning when I rise, 'I owe no man a dime,' and then I sing and swat the flies, and have a gorgeous time. Each evening when to bed I go, 'I'm out of debt,' and guardian angels whisper low, 'You are the one best bet'." My neighbor is a happy wight; no matter where he wends there are no creditors in sight, and all men are his friends.—Copright by George Matthew Adams.

The Once Over

Beating the Battleships Into Benzine 'Buses.

An automobile that will run on salt water instead of gasoline is near at hand. It is all a matter of breeding. Henry Ford has announced a willingness to cross his Ford cars with the ships of the United States fleet. The product, he figures, should cause a sensation in the motor world.

Autoists will greet the new car with intense satisfaction. In the past they have had to admit that, after all, a flivver was only a flivver, but henceforth theirs will be the thrill of feeling that the 'bus has the blood of a gallant and illustrious naval power in its veins.

"I will beat the dreadnoughts into limousines, and the battle cruisers into coupes," says Mr. Ford. "I will beat the destroyers into runabouts and the scout cruisers into one-man tops. I will beat the naval uniforms into seat-upholstery, and the swords into radiator caps."

In other words, he will junk the United States navy, and convert the junk into flivvers. Which, the unkind critics might say, will not reduce the world's supply of junk any.

Much jealousy, however, is bound to ensue among buyers of the new machines, in our opinion.

"Nice car you have there Bill," George will say as he pulls up his machine alongside of Bill's 'bus.

"You said something," Bill will respond. "It used to be the flagship of Admiral Rodman's fleet in the North Sea."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, sir. It's made entirely from the battleship New York. It gives me quite a thrill to realize that before it became my family 'bus it spent years in the United States navy, and saw service in the North Sea."

"Well, my flivver has had a better career than yours," George will argue.

"How come?"

"I'll let you in on something: this chariot of mine was made from one of the ships that fought in the battle of Manila Bay."

"It looks it," Bill may jealously retort. "One of the Spanish ships, I reckon."

And can you fancy the line of talk the salesman will give you?

"My dear man, you can't afford to let the opportunity to buy this car pass. That's a genuine Pacific squadron body . . . wheels from the battleship Louisiana. . . . fenders made from that grand old ship the Connecticut . . . radiator from the Delaware. . . . springs from the destroyers K-6 and K-8. . . . upholstery from the officers' cabin of the Michigan! Why, just stop to realize that you are not buying merely a flivver; you are buying half the United States navy!

"I call your attention to the compass under the dash, the wireless outfit attached to the windshield, the 200 feet of anchor chain that goes with each and every car and to the electrically controlled rudder.

"And don't forget that to each and every purchaser of one of these cars we give a brand-new sailor uniform and hat!"

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

A group of Girl Scouts sat around a fire one evening. They did not look in the least like Girl Scouts, because they were not in uniform, but in that process of preparation for bed that almost leads to confidences. There was a fire that had burned low. A chafing dish that had contained fudge, but was well scraped and guiltless of fudge at the moment. There were kimonos, and hair brushes, and as they brushed and braided, or dreamed by the fire, the Scouts talked.

"Let's have a quiz," said Anne, the most enthusiastic of the quartet. Anne had decided to be a medical missionary and go to China at least when she grew up, if not to Thibet.

"You start it," said Madge, dreamily.

"What would you do," began Anne, dramatically, "if some one rushed into the room this very minute—burned?"

"Burned where? And how?" retorted Madge.

Anne Very Much in Earnest.

"On the arm. With fire." Anne was tremendously in earnest.

"It doesn't sound reasonable. If a person rushed in here at midnight, burned on the arm with fire—what nonsense! Much more likely that the person would be all ablaze, and running to get away from the fire."

"Then what would you do?" insisted Anne.

"Wrap the person in a rug and send you for the baking soda and that roll of old muslin mother keeps in the linen cupboard for just such emergencies," said Madge, very calmly.

"But supposing," interrupted Mildred, "supposing the person was not burned by fire at all, but by some poison and acid, for instance?"

"Then, you know as well as I do, that the thing to do for acid burns is to neutralize them first, with an alkali, and then to cover up the burn from the air. It's the exposure to the air that makes the pain so intense.

"I never can remember which is alkali and which is acid," said Lilian, plaintively.

Just a Sister's Privilege.

"Sometimes I wonder if you know east from west," said Anne, who was Lilian's sister and therefore felt free to insult her.

"An acid is anything like carbolic, or lemon juice, or vinegar," Anne proceeded, "and an alkali is baking soda, or sodium bicarbonate, which is the same thing, or diluted ammonia water, or lime water, or even strong soap suds."

The other girls regarded Anne respectfully. There were times when it did seem that she should be a medical missionary when she grew up.

"Mother says," said Margie, gently "that if you spill something over your hand, and it burns and you don't know what the neutralizing agent is, you can hold it under running water, and that will dilute it, and wash it off enough to stop the violent pain."

Her Mother Very Careful.

"Not that there is much danger of spilling poison over one's hand in our house," smiled Mildred, "mother keeps everything like that under lock and key."

"The chief thing about burns is to remove the cause, if there is a cause to remove, and then to apply a soothing dressing that excludes the air. Compresses of baking soda and water are the best and the most obtainable," said Margy, dreamily. "I remember the time I burned my arm so badly, it was such a large, painful area. And the doctor, instead of wrapping it well in one huge dressing covered it with small compresses which he took off and renewed one at a time so there was scarcely any exposure of the burned surface. And it was a relief."

And the girls, remembering Margy's painful burn, decided that they would remember about using many small compresses, instead of one big one, should they ever have to dress an extensive burn.

MILAWAN AND LACKSANA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

The king of Siam is going to marry Lacksana or may have married her by the time this is published.

This is of interest to the people of Siam because of the unusual nature of the proclamation announcing it.

The king was previously engaged to his cousin, half-sister of Lacksana, but the engagement was broken off because of the state of his fiancee's health was unsatisfactory.

The king, who first met the beautiful Princess Devi on a shopping expedition, became engaged to her, but after a few months declared that his noble desires could not satisfactorily be met owing to the incompatibility of temperament between himself and the princess and because her nervous system left much to be desired.

His royal preference now has lighted upon the Princess Lacksana, and everybody seems satisfied and it appears to be all in the family.

The announcement has interest to the denizens of the western world because of the fact that the king when he was Crown Prince announced that he would abolish the royal harem. His grandfather had about 8,000 wives.

Speaking in behalf of occidental civilization, more or less devoted to monogamy, we welcome the king to our midst.

The difference between having 8,000 wives and one is not a matter of mere quantity. It is a matter of quality.

That is to say monogamy differs from polygamy and promiscuity because it is farther along in the process of evolution. It is one of the marks of a man's advance from being a mere animal with a body to becoming a creature with a soul.

Monogamy is an effort to idealize the strongest instinct of the human race.

Of course monogamy has its rebels within and its foes without. It is the favorite butt of the jesting cynics whose pride is unfaith.

But just the same, as the world grows older and as the slow process of evolution strengthens the moral fibre of the race and increases its dominance over material desires, monogamy grows firmer in its position.

It attracts to itself the poetry, the beauty and the religion of the world.

The Daily Story

SHE COULDN'T RECEIVE

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

Rose Lent came to her house on a late summer day when a wild, wind-driven rain was slashing right and left. She had walked a mile from the station with her suitcase in her hand. Her trunk would follow later. Trunk and suitcase comprised the sum total of her belongings up to the point where the house began.

The house was an inheritance from her Uncle Nathan. After his wife died the old man had closed his home and gone away, and so it had stood, abandoned, for some years after his own death. Rose had never thought much about her new possessions until she broke down from overwork in the city and the doctor prescribed country air and quiet for her. Then she remembered the house. She had seen it twice, once when she had spent a vacation week with the old people and once when she had gone to Aunt Lucy's funeral. But these memories did not help her to any sense of familiarity now when she unlocked the door with the key Uncle Nathan's lawyer had sent her and stepped within.

It was like hundreds of small, plain old houses with a front porch and bay window such as are found in the back streets of country towns. The furniture remained undisturbed—the rag carpet and braided rugs and rush-bottomed chairs. The two stoves were rusty from disuse and a leak had discolored a ceiling paper in the sitting room. And everywhere was the musty breath that comes from lack of air and sunshine.

Rose began to open windows. The sweet, fresh smell of rain came in and gusts of wet air. Then she found old papers and sticks and built a fire in the kitchen stove. The smoke of it nearly strangled her. There was a sound of knocking at the porch and she opened the door.

A tall, rudely moulded woman with gray hair stood there staring at her in amazement. "What's going on here? Is the house burning up?" she demanded.

Rose drew back coldly. "Oh, no, I have merely started a fire in the kitchen stove, and if you will excuse me I will attend to it." She closed the door gently but firmly. Her cheeks were blazing. "Effrontery!" she muttered, and went back to her fire making. She did not know that the woman had come out of a real desire to aid.

Rose, having lived in the city all her life, had no idea of the meaning of the word neighbor. She had lived a lonely, secluded life. Her home had been a room, and when she locked the door she locked out every influence which she herself did not create. At thirty-two she was entering upon a life of which she knew nothing.

For the next two days she was very busy getting her affairs and her house in order. She had saved systematically and investigated her savings in such a way as brought her something of an income. Ways and means of a living she did not intend to let worry her. What she must do was to get well as quickly as possible, so that she could begin to earn again. As soon as the cure was accomplished she intended to go back to the city and resume her work as cashier in a department store.

She did not find the old house very friendly, though she tried her best to get on good terms with it. It had grown fresher and sweeter with persistent airings, but still she could not sleep nights or eat the foods she prepared. There was too much silence. At night she laid awake listening to the usual sounds of a hoot owl in the big elm or a cricket in the grass. She was lonelier than she had ever been in her life. Yet she tried to read the old books, to rearrange the rooms, and to take long walks to nowhere.

Returning home one morning she found an offering on her porch—a little pile of green corn. She cooked the gift, wondering who the giver was, and it tasted better than anything else she had eaten thus far. After dinner, when she was trying neatly to dispose of the cobs and husks, she looked up and saw the same woman who had come to her door that first day leaning over the fence and regarding her curiously.

"How did you like your corn?" asked this woman.

"Very much, thank you. Did you place it on my porch?"

"I sent one of my grandchildren over with it. We've got a good-sized patch of it and it's all coming on at once. My man made a mistake and planted it all at one time. You're welcome to all the corn you can use. Mebby you'd like some to can."

"Can corn!" Rose looked bewildered. "I don't know how. But I will take enough to eat if you will let me pay for it."

"I said I'd give it to you," said the woman. "I'm not in the habit of taking pay from my neighbors for things like that."

Rose flushed. "But really, I can't take it unless you allow me to pay for it. It is worth 2 cents an ear, I believe, in the city," she protested. "I had six ears this morning. That's 12 cents." She snatched the little coin purse from her pocket and counting out the change, a dime and two pennies, offered them to the woman.

This time it was the woman who flushed all over her plain, sensible face. She looked at Rose and at the money; then she turned and without a word went into her house. But she held her head in a way that expressed her feelings better than any words could have done.

Rose stood looking after the woman in amazement. It was the first time her money had ever been refused for anything. She was used to buying and paying. She was even used to giving, but when it came to receiving, of that she was altogether ignorant. It is true she had received the house she was living in, but it had been a compensation for money loaned to Uncle Nathan by her father. So that it could not be truly said to be a gift. The corn, however, was a gift pure and simple and the recipiency of it aroused in her a sense of obligation. Besides she had blundered some way and made her next-door neighbor angry. This was a most uncomfortable thought.

She was sitting on her porch in the twilight, thinking of many things, when a man came toward her across the tangled grass. Though Rose had never seen him she knew before, he told her that he was the lawyer who had written her about Uncle Nathan's affairs.

"He does look as if he could be trusted," she said to herself. So she let him sit down beside her, and they talked of the house and the taxes and repairs and the like until they had become in a way acquainted. And then Rose asked him the question that had been troubling her ever since the woman next door turned her back on her:

"What would you do when a person gives you something and won't let you pay for it and grows angry if you mention that you want to?"

He looked at her with his cool, far-seeing gray eyes that so beautifully matched his fine, firm mouth and squarely cut chin. There were speculation, amusement, and sympathy in his look, and Rose felt them all.

"Who has been doing the giving and what sort of gift was it?" he asked.

Rose told him and he laughed. "That woman is Mrs. Burt," he said, "and she's got the biggest heart you could hope for in a friend or neighbor. She would give you shoes off her feet, or her last cent. She'd lend you anything she had in her house or her purse and ask not a thank you in return. I've known her ever since I was a kid, and my mother knew her years before that. And she's always been the same. She gives for the sake of giving. I guess you've never known many people like that, eh?"

"Not one," answered Rose. "I can see now how I offended her. But I must make it right with her in some way. How can I?"

"By taking the next thing she offers you and saying nothing but thank you."

"But she'll never, never offer me anything again," Rose almost wailed.

"Oh, yes, she will. You'll see. She could no more stop giving than she could stop breathing."

Rose remembered all this when Mrs. Burt came to the fence next day with a dish of ripe tomatoes. "Wish you'd take 'em. I've got more than I can use," she said.

So Justus Hathaway was right. Rose's eyes filled with tears. "I'll be very glad of them," she replied graciously. "If I knew how I'd make them up into a sauce for cold meat."

"Shirley sauce," Mrs. Burt's tone was eager. "I've got a splendid recipe and I'll come over and help you."

"Do!" cried Rose warmly. "And maybe you'd like my recipe for fruit cake. I've never used it, but it was my grandmother's and she was called a famous cook. I'm afraid I've got a great deal to learn," she went unsteadily. "You see, I've never lived out of the city before or knew what it was to have neighbors, so naturally I don't know anything about being a neighbor myself. But I want to learn, I do really, and——"

Mrs. Burt patted her shoulder kindly. "There, there! Of course you'll learn. You can't help learning with every single one of us to teach you," she said.

CHAPTER IX.

There was nothing of the air of a martyr about Ruth Browning because of her unselfish devotion to her family. Indeed she was always careful to be gay and cheerful, no matter how weary, for fear they might be hurt that she had to work so hard for them. Only Sam grumbled as he saw her efforts when, weary, she was not quite natural.

Often, too, Mrs. Browning would have what Sam called one of her "fits of self pity." These were harder for Ruth to bear than all her hard work and self-denial.

"I have come to a point where I don't expect anything," Mary Browning would whine, her eyes misty with unshed tears. Long ago she had stopped crying. She found it made her eyes look weak, in a sense spoiled her beauty of which she still was inordinately proud. "It's what I must look for, I suppose, after slaving for such a family all these years. A man loses his job and sits in the corner and smokes." A glance of disdain at Henry accompanied the words. "But there is no stopping for me. There may have been a time—when I hoped that I was at last going to have things like other women," here she interjected a sob, "but that time's past. There's nothing to look forward to, but go on like this until it kills me. Sometimes I hope it won't be long before it does."

"Now, mother," Sam would break in," you look mighty healthy and handsome. We must all keep cheerful to help Ruth. It is all we can do," his own bitterness escaping in his voice.

"I'm sure Ruth has more in her life than I do. She sees people, goes to the city every day, has something besides cooking and scrubbing to do."

"If it wasn't for Ruth there would be nothing to cook, no place to scrub!" He blurted out one day after his mother had, as he told Ruth, fretted him so he couldn't help it.

"That's right! Make me feel as if I had no right here! If I had not been a slave to you children I might have been in some good position too. I can't see that Ruth does more than her duty."

"I don't, mother dear, one bit more. And it's a pleasure too. I love to be able to help a little. Sam doesn't feel good today; don't mind his grumbling." And with a kiss poor, tired Ruth would pour oil upon the troubled waters.

"Help a little," Sam grumbled under his breath. "She's a brick, that's what she is. I don't see how she stands mother talking so."

Ruth had religiously put away her ten dollars a week for a month. There was just forty dollars in the bureau drawer. She had put the money in an envelope, then laid it under the paper upon which her underclothes were placed in the neat manner so natural to Ruth, so unlike the condition of Betty's bureau, where often it took the combined efforts of Mrs. Browning and Ruth to find what careless Betty wanted, so untidy was the little beauty.

"Almost half enough to pay that interest," Ruth said to herself as she placed the fourth ten dollar bill with the others. I shall have just enough when the time comes." She counted on the calendar. "Yes, it is just five more weeks to the twenty-first," and with a smile of intense satisfaction upon her face, she joined the family at dinner.

"What you got up your sleeve, Ruth?" Betty asked. "You look as if you had found a gold mine, or an oil well. Got another raise? I hope to goodness you have. If I don't have a new hat pretty soon I shan't go to school. I don't believe I shall go much longer anyway. I'm tired of going without everything the other girls have." Then without waiting for Ruth to reply, much to her delight, she commenced to tell of a hat and coat of the latest style one of the girls had, a girl she chummed with.

"Don't say you won't go to school, Betty. If you stop now you won't be fitted for anything. No one will pay you good wages. After you graduate from high school you can do much better."

"I don't see that you are a millionairess yet."

"No—but I couldn't earn what I do if I had had no more education than you have now. Try and be sensible about it, Betty. I know it is hard to go without pretty clothes and other things. But dad will find something soon, and then we'll have a lot of things. By and by I shall earn more, too. Then I can do more for you and Sue, give you more."

"Don't bother about me!" Susan, her mouth full, rejoined. "Dress up Betty. She don't think any one else needs clothes." Then "She'll never work, don't any of you think she will. Because I am the youngest you think I don't know much, but Bet is too much of a lady—so she thinks—to work. She's going to marry that millionaire she told mother about."

"Shut up, Sue!" Betty snapped in sisterly fashion.

"Susan! leave the table! You shall not talk so to your sister." Betty was Mrs. Browning's favorite of all her children. If she were spoiled it was her mother's fault, so Ruth told Sam when he complained that Betty was lazy and said that she should do more to help, stand better in school studies.

(To Be Continued.)

Constable To Dispense With Deputies

Constable Frank Morgan is going to run his office without the assistance of deputies for the remainder of the year. The constable has completed a check on his books for the current year and has found that he has already passed the $2,500 limit in fees allowed by law.

The officer believes that he will be able to handle alone all civil papers connected with his office for the remainder of the year. It is the first time in several years that the office has been without the assistance of deputies. Deputy Constables Fannin, Belcher and Lay are affected in the decrease in the constable's force.

NEGRO IS ON TRIAL FOR THEFT

The case of Tom (Slim) Walton, negro, charged with theft which opened for trial in the 78th district court before Judge Ed Napier Friday afternoon will go to the jury this morning. The taking of evidence in the case was completed Friday afternoon and the charge read to the jury. Arguments will be heard this morning.

Walton is alleged to have taken merchandise valued at several hundred dollars from the P. B. M. store on the night of July 19th. He was arested several days later by police officers who testified to the recovery of a large part of the loot from his home.

The state also presented testimony Friday showing that Walton hired a car from another negro and took the goods from the rear of the store.

Fashions for Americans

Red Serge and Black Satin Are Combined in This Tailored Frock.

The street frock shown in the sketch combines dark red serge and black satin, with trimming of black jet fringe and very narrow black silk braid. The girdle is a brilliant jet affair formed of square sections of black jet linked together and fastened with an ornamental buckle. The frock fastens invisibly on the shoulder. The rather full satin sleeves are held at the wrist with a cuff of the serge and further ornamented with the jet fringe.

The dress is a youthful one, cut on straight lines and featuring a practically normal waist line placing. The frock is slashed to show panels of black satin, and very narrow black silk braid trims the various edges and the bottom of the garment.

Openwork is featured in many of the season's good-looking tailored frocks, no matter what the fabric. Fine chiffon velvet is treated in this manner when the velvet forms the major portion of the frock, with underslip in silk in contrasting color.

Fine firm wool fabrics also lend themselves to the openwork or cut-work effect.

One smart dress of navy broadcloth, with openwork panels down each front, was worn over a white crepe de chine slip. The flared sleeves of a little more than elbow length were made transparent with the cut work, and a full undersleeve of the white fabric was finished with narrow navy cuff.

The vogue for fabric and color combinations makes the alteration of a last season tailored frock especially easy. One woman who had a slip-over navy tricotine, that was very narrow as to skirt, simply slashed this dress from top to bottom, equipped it with a black satin skirt and a little vestee of Paisley flowered worsted, and turned it into a very good looking dress of the redingote type.

FOUR HURT WHEN CAR HITS AUTO

F. O. Fritz, Daughter and Two Sons Injured When Sedan Is Wrecked.

Trapped in their Dodge Sedan which was hurled diagonally across the street landing alongside the curb on the Northwest corner, when struck by a street car in the center of the Denver and Ninth streets crossing Friday morning at 8 o'clock, F. O. Fritz, 65, his daughter, Miss Lena who was driving and son, Russell, were rendered unconscious for a short time and sustained severe cuts and bruises, according to the roprt of members of the family. Reed Fritz, fourth member of the automobile party, escaped with but slight bruises and scratches from flying glass, according to the report.

The victims were rescued from the car, which was declared almost totally wrecked, by employes of the traction company, who rushed to the place from the car barns and chopped a hole in the top of the machine through which to take them out.

All were reported late Friday to be resting well. Mr. Fritz was reported the most seriously injured. Several fractured ribs, severe bruises to his back and arms, body bruises and cuts sustained from the shattered glass. Miss Lena Fritz, who was at first feared to be seriously injured and was bleeding profusely from glass wounds about her face and head when rescued, was reported late Friday to be resting well, though receiving some painful body bruises.

Russell's injuries were reported to consist of severe cuts and scratches about his hips and other scratches on his arms, while Reed miraculously escaped uninjured.

The automobile was reported traveling north on Denver and the street car west on Ninth when the crash occurred. C. W. Stearmon, motorman of the street car, was quoted by employes of the traction company with saying that he did not see the sedan until his car was within a few feet of it. Another automobile was reported traveling east on Ninth in front of which the Fritz party had just passed when the crash occurred. The street car was reported slightly damaged on the front end from the smashup.

The injured people were removed first to their home. Later Mr. Fritz was removed to the offices of Dr. Glover where an X-ray examination was made which was reported to have revealed several fractured ribs.

FOUR DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Through a Neighbor's Advice This Woman Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kenosha, Wis.—"I suffered with a female trouble and at last was in bed for six weeks with what the doctors called inflammation of the bowels. Four of them said I could not live. A neighbor told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the start. When the doctor came I told him what I had taken and he said 'Throw my medicine away and keep on with the Pinkham medicine.' I did and it cured me. If more women would take your medicine they would not suffer so. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to lots of people and they have been satisfied."—Mrs. MARY RHAPSTOCK, 270½ Wisconsin St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

ARMY AND NAVY ELEVEN CLASH TODAY IN "RUBBER" GAME ON POLO GROUNDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—"We want the rubber game!"

That is the cry of the Navy and Army supporters as the midshipmen and West Pointers prepare for their annual battle at the Polo grounds tomorrow.

For when the teams take the field each one will have seven victories to its credit in the list of games played by the two institutions which produce America's army and navy officers. The Navy evened up the series last year by blanking the West Pointers 7 to 0. One game in the list of twenty-three games ended in a tie. That was back in 1905.

Comparative scores on the Yale-Army, Princeton-Navy and Yale-Princeton games form the only possible basis on which the relative strength of the Army and Navy teams can be estimated. Yale beat the Army 14 to 7. The Navy beat Princeton 13 to 0 and Yale Beat Princeton 13 to 7.

Here is the Army's record to date:
Beat Villa Nova 49 to 0.
Lost to Notre Dame, 28 to 0.
Trounced Susquehanna, 53 to 0.
Lost to Yale, 14 to 7.
Beat Wabash, 21 to 0.
Beat Middlebury, 19 to 0.
Beat Springfield, 23 to 6.
Then lost to New Hampshire the same afternoon, 10 to 7.

The Navy to date has lost to Penn, 13 to 0.
Beaten Bucknell, 6 to 0.
Beaten Bethany, 21 to 0.
Beaten Princeton, 13 to 0.
Licked Western Reserve, 53 to 0.
Trounced North Carolina State, 40 to 0.

The Navy's 13 to 0 victory over Princeton several weeks ago and the crushing defeat handed the Army by the powerful Notre Dame aggregation more recently give the Navy considerable more prestige in the season's results. Yale added to the Army's discomfiture by nosing out a 14 to 7 victory.

The clash of the two fighting institutions will be the twenty-fourth in their history. The annual clashes began back in 1890 when the two teams met at West Point. After playing four seasons the football relations were discontinued however until 1898. There was no further interruption until the tragic death of Cadet Byrne of the West Point team following the Harvard game caused the military academy to disband its teams before the close of the 1909 season. The third break came when the world war broke, no Army-Navy games being held in 1917 or 1918.

And the series now stands eleven to eleven, with the one tie game accounting for the other contest. Since the annual contest was resumed the Navy has held sway, beating the West Pointers in 1919, 6 to 0, and last year 7 to 0.

The series has been marked by brief reigns by both teams. For instance, the Navy won the first four games played and then the cadets trounced them the next four falls. Only twice have the games proved lopsided affairs. The Navy's victory of 24 to 0 in the first game was its most decided triumph. In 1903 the Army made up for that licking by trouncing the Sailors 40 to 5.

Here is the record of the two teams in their dual to date:
1890—Navy 24, Army 0.
1891—Army 32, Navy 16.
1892—Navy 12, Army 4.
1893—Navy 6, Army 4.
1894-98—No games.
1899—Army 17, Navy 5.
1900—Navy 11, Army 7.
1901—Army 11, Navy 5.
1902—Army 22, Navy 8.
1903—Army 40, Navy 5.
1904—Army 11, Navy 0.
1905—Army 6, Navy 6.
1906—Navy 10, Army 0.
1907—Navy 6, Army 0.
1908—Army 6, Navy 4.
1909—No game.
1910—Navy 3, Army 0.
1911—Navy 3, Army 0.
1912—Navy 6, Army 0.
1913—Army 22, Navy 9.
1914—Army 20, Navy 0.
1915—Army 14, Navy 0.
1916—Army 15, Navy 7.
1917-18—No games.
1919—Navy 6, Army 0.
1920—Navy 7, Army 0.

PARTNER OF EDDIE ADAMS KILLED IN ATTEMPTED ESCAPE

TIGER NOT TO PLAY MIDDIES NEXT SEASON?

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 25.—There is a persistent rumor about the Princeton campus to the effect that the Tiger football eleven will not play the Navy next fall. No official announcement has been made concerning the matter, and none is expected until the full schedule is announced, but the under-graduates have been discussing the question for some time.

Princeton will journey to Chicago some time in October to meet the Maroon in a return match, according to an agreement entered into a year ago, and will, of course, also make the trip to Cambridge to meet Harvard.

With the Chicago, Harvard and Yale battles certain, a game with the navy would have to be played about the third Saturday of the season, probably the week before the trip out west. Experience has taught the Tigers that both the Navy and Chicago elevens are capable of rising to great heights, and that neither can be taken as a matter of course.

Since the only possible arrangement of the schedule will bring Princeton first against the navy, against Chicago in Chicago the next week, and then against Harvard and Yale in rapid succession, the assignment seems too difficult for any team. The undergraduates feel that the Athletic Committee will reason along practically the same lines.

The home-and-home arrangement with the middies, which brought the navy to Princeton in 1920 and the Orange and Black to Annapolis this fall, has been popular here, and under ordinary circumstances the sentiment would be for a continuance of the policy. The two games that have been played have resulted in a victory apiece, Princeton winning, 14 to 0, a year ago, and the navy triumphing, 13 to 0 in October.

Lightner, Penn State	right halfback	Elliott, Wisconsin
Locke, Iowa	fullback	Hewitt, Pittsburg

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The selection of an All-American football team this year presents a complex situation that never has occurred before. In years gone by the west was wrongly classed as producing an inferior grade of football, generally, to that of the east. As a result only one or two scintilating stars of the west whose work attracted prominence in the stories of the games, were given places on these All-American elevens.

This year the west unquestionably produced a better grade of football generally than did the east. The western elevens displayed more attacking power, as resourceful an attack, as good defensive play and much more consistent playing on the part of teams and individuals.

Westerners Predominate

To my mind western players deserve a majority of places, therefore, on this mythical team to represent the American colleges.

I believe "Whoops" Snively of Princeton and Brick Miller of the University of California are the greatest ends in the game today. Munns of Cornell approaches the nearest to their class. He might well replace either of them with little damage to the team. Myers of O. S. U., I would rank fourth.

Hanson of Cornell and Gulick of Syracuse at the tackles form a pair that not only are powers on defense but played an important part in the defensive work of their elevens. Hanson lead the east in kicking goals, his total reaching around forty. Gulick's plunges and his work in interference on the attack were outstanding features of Syracuse's games.

The west has the call on the guard position with Dunne of Michigan and Pixley, O. S. U. giant, crouched there. These two with Wallace of Iowa State at center and the two easterners at the tackles would give the team an impenetrable line and one that would raise havoc with the opposition's defense.

Greene of the Army and Larson of the Navy, both captains of their teams, make a strong bid for the center position, but I believe the plucky player from Iowa State has the edge. Baer of Penn State would be well fitted to sub for Pixley or Dunne.

Wealth of Backs.

From the wealth of wonderful backfield men produced this year one could well choose four or five sets of backs that would hold their own against any opposition.

"Bo" McMillan, the man who led the astounding little Center college team, is without a doubt the greatest field general of the present day. Critics who saw him lead of defensive and offensive play against Harvard which resulted in Harvard's first downfall in five seasons, agreed that he showed super-human skill in handling the team. Second only to McMillan stands out Audrey Devine of Iowa—the west's greatest quarter. Killinger of Penn State ranks third.

For halfback possibilities we have, besides Aldrich of Yale and Lightner of Penn State:
Garrity and Gilroy of Princeton.
Kaw of Cornell.
Alvah Elliott of Wisconsin.
Johnny Kyle of Indiana.
Stuart of O. S. U.
Mohart of Notre Dame.

Owen Deserves Praise.

Aldrich's versatility, including his booting ability, as well as his generalship, gives him the call at one-half. Lightner of Penn State, I believe, ranks ahead of even the great Mohardt, Garrity or Gilroy, both stars of their teams.

Locke of Iowa stands out above all the eastern fullbacks. Had Owen of Harvard played the major portion of the season at full, I believe he would have made a bid for the position. Owen ranks as one of the best all-around players of the season.

UPSETS MANY IN HIGH SCHOOL GRIDIRON PLAY

By ROY B. HENDERSON.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 25—The importance of having a logical elimination of all teams in high schoc. football is emphasized by the results of recent games in the state championship race as conducted by the University of Texas Interscholastic league. Throughout the entire series surprises and upsets have been the order of the day. Honey Grove holding the strong Oak Cliff team of Dallas to a 0-0 score is the sensation of the week. Although this will delay the final contest somewhat, it shatters again the old belief that small towns are not capable of turning out athletic teams strong enough to compare favorably with the cities. The tie will be played off Tuesday at Dallas.

Oak Cliff's applicationfor membership in the league was made November 3, but acceptance was held up pending investigation of eligibility questions. After thorough investigation the state executive committee accepted Oak Cliff prior to the Honey Grove game. As soon as the winner of this contest is decided they will be scheduled against Temple in an intersectional game.

Austin, the only undefeated team in Section 10, by her victory over Granger, qualifies to meet Corpus Christi, the team that humbled Hopdo for the championship of Section 12. This game will be played Saturday at Corpus Christi.

Eagle Lake demonstrated superiority over all teams of Section 11 by barely winning from the plucky Yorktown team at Yoakum last week. Eagle Lake travels to College Station to lock horns with the strong Bryan team this week-end. Bryan's latest victim was Nacogdoches whose defeat eliminated the last contender from Section 6.

The only other teams remaining in the race are Electra and Abilene, both bi-sectional champions. Electra defeated Childress last week and on the same day Abilene won over Big Springs. More than usual interest is being manifested in this Abilene-Electra contest because the same teams battled last year for the honor of meeting Cleburne for the North Texas championship. As the game was played at Abilene a year ago, the teams will meet at Electra this year and promises to be one of the hardest fought of the entire series.

BILL PLANT PLANTS HIS DOGS SWIFTLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—William Plant, holder of a number of national and metropolitan walking titles, set a new record in the annual City Hall to Coney Island walk yesterday. He covered the 10¼ miles in 1:24:42. The old mark, 1:25:50 was set in 1917 by W. L. Rolker.

Love and Flat Tires.

His wife, according to Frank H. Peck, manager of a New York City drug concern, took great delight in mistreating his motor car, puncturing the tires when the opportunity offered, letting it rest on flat tires and removed any part of it she was able. In addition to this she cooked only two breakfasts in five years and at the end of that time she sold Peck's auto, according to affidavits filed in the supreme court of New York.

Mrs. Peck has countered with the statement that she gave him the car and sold it when he would give her no money. She asked for alimony of $250 a month and counsel fees of $750, but was allowed $100 a month and $350 counsel fees.

Wichitans Send Wires in Protest 'Acceptance of King's Resignation; Condemn Methods Used in Ouster

Several telegrams in support of the "Committee of Forty" at Waco which is attempting to prevent the acceptance of the resignation of Superintendent King as head of the Boys Training School at Gatesville were sent Friday by local residents. The action followed the announcement from Waco Friday morning that a meeting would be held in the city today to protest the supposed action of Governor Neff in forcing the resignation of Superintendent King after he had been vindicated of responsibility by a state board which had investigated the recent death of a boy at the institution.

Judge John Kay, Judge Guy Rogers, Judge J. P. Jones, Mrs. C. E. Ousley, secretary of the Welfare Council, Chief of Police Morgan, R. L. Yates, county juvenile officer are among those that expressed their desire that King be retained at the institution by refusal of the state board of control to accept his resignation.

The telegram sent by the above was as follows: "We feel that King having submitted his cause to the board for trial and having been acquitted that the board should follow its own action and decline his resignation. He should not be tried in the public press nor by ex-parte speeches before women's clubs. The board cannot afford to repudiate its own solemn findings made on competent testimony."

County officials and those who were personally acquainted with Superintendent King have from the first contended that the investigation conducted by the state board would result in a vindiction for him. They have praised his work as head of the state training school and since his resignation, have expressed the doubt as to whether another man as competent could be found to take his place.

So far as known Friday night, no local residents will attend the meeting to be held at Waco today.

Not All Cases Are Spectacular, For It Is in the Routine Cases That Welfare Work Counts Most

The every day routine cases which arise calling for help from the Welfare Council, Travelers Aid and similar public aid organizations, may not be as dramatic or as heart rendering as some of the unusual cases. It may not sound as tearful to tell how an old man was given a railroad ticket to some small town, or was given a good feed at the Y. W. C. A., as it would be to tell how some inhuman father beat his poor sick wife or stole the pennies from his newsboy son's toy bank to buy a pint of hair tonic, the unwanted little babies or the unmarried mother.

But it is these routine cases, in which help is dispensed when it is needed and in an obliging, sincere and tender way, without the indifference that one usually associates the professional welfare worker, that prove the worth of the organizations which are to be provided with operating funds during the United Charities drive for funds.

Every day someone is helped on their way, some who are out of work and need a dollar or so to buy a railroad ticket to some place where they can secure work, some who are hungry, a few who are sick and unable to provide for themselves, and in fact every person, who applies for help or (if they are too proud to ask for charity) who are found by the welfare workers, and investigation proves them to be worthy.

One of the routine cases which not only illustrates the helpfulness of the organizations in small things, but shows how smoothly the Y. W. C. A., Welfare Council and Travelers Aid work together, was that of an old man sent to the Y. W. C. A. by a local hotel, this man being penniless and on his way to a small town on the Wichita Falls and Southern.

At the Y. W. C. A., he was given something to eat by David Butler in charge of the hall, Mrs. Ousley, secretary of the Welfare Council when told of the case sent him to Mrs. Davidson, Travelers Aid, at the union station.

The old fellow, who was a pitiful example of one of the wrecks along the path of life, had been hurt in an accident in the cotton fields near Memphis, Texas, some time back, and was partially paralyzed, dirty, unkemp and utterly helpless it seemed. Mrs. Davidson investigated the case, found the old fellow worthy, bought him a ticket and saw to it that he was put safely on the trail to his friends.

Such a case is only one of many. In times, such as the present, when unemployment is prevalant, money is tight, these pitiful examples become routine work.

But being every day and routine they are none the less acts such as the Master spoke of when He said: "As you do to one of the least of these, my brethren, ye do it also unto me." welfare workers here point out.

Ossified Snake Now Exhibited In Bank Lobby

The ossified snake or reptile, the existence of which was reported in the Record News about a month ago at the time it was exhibited in the office of Curlee, Johnson & Crane, by the owner, W. E. Shoopman, has been put in the lobby of the City National Bank of Commerce, probably to guard the stored up wealth of the institution.

Tom Key, appointed grand high guardian of the interesting specimen of complete ossification, declares that he felt the snake and it is the real, not the imaginary kind, and that all of his friends can call him if they don't care to take his word for it.

This snake, or reptile, is evidently of an age gone by, when snakes were short, fat and stocky of build, as its length is about 3 feet and its thickness and head would do credit to a boa-constrictor such as one sees in circuses and other places.

When the young man who found the snake on the banks of the Wichita river near Benjamin, first brought the snake to town he happened to show it to W. S. Curlee. Mr. Curlee told him that it was a valuable specimen from an archeologists standpoint and advised him to get in touch with some authority on the subject of petrified objects. It is said that the snake may be sent to Austin for examination by some learned doctors.

ADVANTAGES COLORADO-TO-GULF HIGHWAY AS TOWN BUILDER ARE TOLD C. OF C. BUSINESS COUNCIL

The popularity of the Colorado-to-Gulf highway with tourists, in spite of lack of exploitation, and the importance of this and other highways as a trade asset to the cities and towns through which it passes, were outlined to the members of the Chamber of Commerce Business Council Friday evening by Bernard McMahan, field director. Mr. McMahan's talk was received by the members with deep attention and was followed by unqualified endorsement of the plans for further popularizing the highway—plans which officials believe will result in the doubling of the amount of travel.

Mr. McMahan was assured that the Wichita Falls business men will do their part in this direction, and a committee composed of L. M. Forcier, C. C. Randle and C. G. Manuel was named to co-operate with Mr. McMahan here.

Other matters getting attention during the evening were reports from committees on the proposed establishment of a Morris plan bank here, and for the securing of sidewalk facilities in the vicinity of the Sam Houston school.

Approves Morris Plan

Burton Stayton, vice chairman of the council, who presided in the absence of Chairman Mytinger, declared that investigation of the Morris plan, which involves the making of small loans strictly "on character" to wage workers and small salaried workers in emergencies, at low interest rates and on a plan of small payments, would be a tremendous advantage to this or any other community.

"For one thing," he said, "it would permit the liquidation of a large number of small accounts. The workman who through unemployment or sickness gets behind in his accounts can secure a lone at such a bank, pay his bills and continue to hold his head up," Mr. Stayton said.

The committee has written the head office of these banks for further details, and expects to report further progress immediately.

T. B. Smock of the committee charged with the sidewalk problem near the Sam Houston school reported that the matter had been taken up with the city commission and that they would order the sidewalks in in the near future.

To Order Sidewalks.

They will delay for a time, he said, to see if the calling of attention to these needs will not result in the installation of the walks without the formality of the order by the council, which will take several weeks to put into effect.

The Colorado-to-Gulf highway, organized in 1913, and which passes through Wichita Falls in turning northwest from Central Texas to Colorado, is one of the cardinal routes for travel between the south and southwest to Colorado and Rocky Mountain points, Mr. McMahan told the council. When asked recently to list the most important highway crossing Texas, the state highway commission placed this highway first on its list he said. In spite of the fact that the organization in the past has been poorly supported, he told of the volume of travel which it had enjoyed—showing that by actual count more than 400 cars passed through Dalhart during the last touring season.

What Travel Means.

"National authorities figure $10 per day per car as the average in computing this travel. It can be readily seen the actual money that this travel meant to the merchants of this town and others in a radius of 75 miles of it," Mr. McMahan said.

Due to lack of proper information on the condition of the roads, a great deal of tourist travel from the southern states and even Texas is being diverted over routes that are more actively exploited, he said.

Many are going to Colorado by going north on a line with St. Louis and across, and in Texas, in going north from Dallas, instead of following the best and natural route, which is that of the Colorado-to-Gulf.

There are very few stretches of unimproved road in the whole highway from Denver through Fort Worth and Galveston and Corpus Christi, he told the council members, and many of these backward stretches are to be improved. The stretch of paved highway in Wichita county, and that being built in other parts of the state will be a drawing card for the route, as well as drawing favorable attention to the county, he declared.

Attention and courtesy to the people who use the highway was urged by the speaker as supplemental to the advertising in popularizing the route, the first money being characterized as the least return from the highway, and the return of travelers year after year to places where they have been nicely treated, and the lengthening of stays in places which were particularly attractive to several days time.

Prospectors

Another advantage that was stressed was in the attraction of settlers, the fact that many people looking for a new location use this method to prospect being dwelt on.

Plans for exploiting the route were touched on with detail—one of them being the working of all the Southern states as far away as Florida by an official party representing the highway, with a presentation of the advantages of the route through automobile clubs and chambers of commerce throughout the South. Enthusiastic support to the rejuvenated highway association is being given in every place approached, he declared. Fort Worth, Waco and other places are considering the advisability of being represented in this tour by a car and a publicity man advertising their localities, he said.

Proper Marking is to Be Another Feature

Popularization of all year round travel over the route was given as another aim of the association. People coming from the Rockies to the South for the winter are to be canvassed in this connection, he said, as well as the summer tourists bound the other way. Rocky Mountain people are themselves unacquainted with the fact that the route can be used all the year round, and that Raton Pass is passable all the year round, and go to the winter resorts by train in large numbers.

Bad Roads "Cussed"

Stretches of bad road on the route came in for caustic comment on the part of members of the business council. Mention of the unproved roads being built in Hill county brought forth the opinion that it came by reason of the adverse comment from hundreds of tourists, and from practically every automo. e publica' on in all parts of the country.

The condition of roads through Clay county was commented on at this point by J. G. Culbertson, who said that this stretch of road was now worse than it had been when he first came to Texas and was growing steadily worse. He spoke approvingly of the roads through Montague, Wise and Tarrant counties on th way to Fort Worth.

The fact that plans were now being made through the creation of special districts in improving the roads through the principle towns in Clay county following rejection of road bonds by the county as a whole was brought out by T. B. Noble, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who attended the meeting.

How It Looks to Strangers

Walter M. Priddy, Friday, saw two men intently eyeing one of the principal office buildings with such intentness that he stopped and looked too.

"When I see anyone looking like you two are, I want to get in on it 'oo," he remarked to one of the men.

"We are looking at that building," was the reply. "It is really all vacant, isn't it?"

He was informed that none of the buildings had vacant offices, and that office room was at a premium.

"Well, I just thought most of them were vacant, because it is only every so many windows which have sign lettering on them."

"I observed the other office buildings and found them all the same way," said Mr. Priddy.

"Nothing but the shades show in them, and without sign lettering the stranger naturally concludes that many, if not most of them, are vacant."

But the boys from West Point had come down the Hudson determined to bombard into oblivion the hopes of their cousins in the service and confident that the defeats they had received from Yale and Notre Dame would only serve as bracers.

ARMY AND NAVY ELEVEN CLASH TODAY IN "RUBBER" GAME ON POLO GROUNDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—"We want the rubber game!"

That is the cry of the Navy and Army supporters as the midshipmen and West Pointers prepare for their annual battle at the Polo grounds tomorrow.

For when the teams take the field each one will have eleven victories to its credit in the list of games played by the two institutions which produce America's army and navy officers. The Navy evened up the series last year by blanking the West Pointers 7 to 0. One game in the list of twenty-three games ended in a tie. That was back in 1905.

Comparative scores on the Yale-Army, Princeton-Navy and Yale-Princeton games form the only possible basis on which the relative strength of the Army and Navy teams can be estimated. Yale beat the Army 14 to 7. The Navy beat Princeton 13 to 0 and Yale Beat Princeton 13 to 7.

Here is the Army's record to date:
Beat Villa Nova 49 to 0.
Lost to Notre Dame, 28 to 0.
Trounced Susquehanna, 55 to 0.
Lost to Yale, 14 to 7.
Beat Wabash, 21 to 0.
Beat Middlebury, 19 to 0.
Beat Springfield, 23 to 6.
Then lost to New Hampshire the same afternoon, 10 to 7.

The Navy to date has lost to Penn, 13 to 0.
Beaten Bucknell, 6 to 0.
Beaten Bethany, 21 to 0.
Beaten Princeton, 13 to 0.
Licked Western Reserve, 53 to 0.
Trounced North Carolina State, 40 to 0.

The Navy's 13 to 0 victory over Princeton several weeks ago and the crushing defeat handed the Army by the powerful Notre Dame aggregation more recently give the Navy considerable more prestige in the season's results. Yale added to the Army's discomfiture by nosing out a 14 to 7 victory.

The clash of the two fighting institutions will be the twenty-fourth in their history. The annual clashes began back in 1890 when the two teams met at West Point. After playing four seasons the football relations were discontinued however until 1898. There was no further interruption until the tragic death of Cadet Byrne of the West Point team following the Harvard game caused the military academy to disband its teams before the close of the 1909 season. The third break came when the world war broke, no Army-Navy games being held in 1917 or 1918.

And the series now stands eleven to eleven, with the one tie game accounting for the other contest. Since the annual contest was resumed the Navy has held away, beating the West Pointers in 1919, 6 to 0, and last year 7 to 0.

The series has been marked by brief reigns by both teams. For instance, the Navy won the first four games played and then the cadets trounced them the next four falls. Only twice have the games proved lopsided affairs. The Navy's victory of 24 to 0 in the first game was its most decided triumph. In 1903 the Army made up for that licking by trouncing the Sailors 40 to 5.

Here is the record of the two teams in their dual to date:
1890—Navy 24, Army 0.
1891—Army 32, Navy 16.
1892—Navy 12, Army 4.
1893—Navy 6, Army 4.
1894-98—No games.
1899—Army 17, Navy 5.
1900—Navy 11, Army 7.
1901—Army 11, Navy 5.
1902—Army 22, Navy 5.
1903—Army 40, Navy 5.
1904—Army 11, Navy 0.
1905—Army 6, Navy 6.
1906—Navy 10, Army 0.
1907—Navy 6, Army 0.
1908—Army 6, Navy 4.
1909—No game.
1910—Navy 3, Army 0.
1911—Navy 3, Army 0.
1912—Navy 6, Army 0.
1913—Army 22, Navy 9.
1914—Army 20, Navy 0.
1915—Army 14, Navy 0.
1916—Army 15, Navy 7.
1917-18—No games.
1919—Navy 6, Army 0.
1920—Navy 7, Army 0.

TIGER NOT TO PLAY MIDDIES NEXT SEASON?

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 25.—There is a persistent rumor about the Princeton campus to the effect that the Tiger football eleven will not play the Navy next fall. No official announcement has been made concerning the matter, and none is expected until the full schedule is announced, but the under-graduates have been discussing the question for some time.

Princeton will journey to Chicago some time in October to meet the Maroon in a return match, according to an agreement entered into a year ago, and will, of course, also make the trip to Cambridge to meet Harvard.

With the Chicago, Harvard and Yale battles certain, a game with the navy would have to be played about the third Saturday of the season, probably the week before the trip out west. Experience has taught the Tigers that both the Navy and Chicago elevens are capable of rising to great heights, and that neither can be taken as a matter of course.

Since the only possible arrangement of the schedule will bring Princeton first against the navy, against Chicago in Chicago the next week, and then against Harvard and Yale in rapid succession, the assignment seems too difficult for any team. The undergraduates feel that the Athletic Committee will reason along practically the same lines.

The home-and-home arrangement with the middies, which brought the navy to Princeton in 1920 and the Orange and Black to Annapolis this fall, has been popular here, and under ordinary circumstances the sentiment would be for a continuance of the policy. The two games that have been played have resulted in a victory apiece, Princeton winning, 14 to 0, a year ago, and the navy triumphing, 13 to 0 in October.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The selection of an All-American football team this year presents a complex situation that never has occurred before. In years gone by the west was wrongly classed as producing an inferior grade of football, generally, to that of the east. As a result only one or two scintilating stars of the west whose work attracted prominence in the stories of the games, were given places on these All-American elevens.

This year the west unquestionably produced a better grade of football generally than did the east. The western elevens displayed more attacking power, as resourceful an attack, as good defensive play and much more consistent playing on the part of teams and individuals.

Westerners Predominate

To my mind western players deserve a majority of places, therefore, on this mythical team to represent the American colleges.

I believe "Whoops" Snively of Princeton and Brick Miller of the University of California are the greatest ends in the game today. Munns of Cornell approaches the nearest to their class. He might well replace either of them with little damage to the team. Myers of O. S. U., I would rank fourth.

Hanson of Cornell and Gulick of Syracuse at the tackles form a pair that not only are powers on defense but played an important part in the defensive work of their elevens. Hanson lead the east in kicking goals, his total reaching around forty. Gulick's plunges and his work in interference on the attack were outstanding features of Syracuse's games.

The west has the call on the guard position with Dunne of Michigan and Pixley, O. S. U. giant, crouched there. These two with Wallace of Iowa State at center and the two easterners at the tackles would give the team an impenetrable line and one that would raise havoc with the opposition's defense.

Greene of the Army and Larson of the Navy, both captains of their teams, make a strong bid for the center position, but I believe the plucky player from Iowa State has the edge. Baer of Penn State would be well fitted to sub for Pixley or Dunne.

Wealth of Backs.

From the wealth of wonderful backfield men produced this year one could well choose four or five sets of backs that would hold their own against any opposition.

"Bo" McMillan, the man who led the astounding little Center college team, is without a doubt the greatest field general of the present day. Critics who saw him lead of defensive and offensive play against Harvard which resulted in Harvard's first downfall in five seasons, agreed that he showed super-human skill in handling the team. Second only to McMillan stands out Audrey Devine of Iowa—the west's greatest quarter. Killinger of Penn State ranks third.

For halfback possibilities we have, besides Aldrich of Yale and Lightner of Penn State:
Garrity and Gilroy of Princeton.
Kaw of Cornell.
Alvah Elliott of Wisconsin.
Johnny Kyle of Indiana.
Stuart of O. S. U.
Mohart of Notre Dame.

Owen Deserves Praise.

Aldrich's versatility, including his booting ability, as well as his generalship, gives him the call at one-half. Lightner of Penn State, I believe, ranks ahead of even the great Mohardt, Garrity or Gilroy, both stars of their teams.

Locke of Iowa stands out above all the eastern fullbacks. Had Owen of Harvard played the major portion of the season at full, I believe he would have made a bid for the position. Owen ranks as one of the best all-around players of the season.

UPSETS MANY IN HIGH SCHOOL GRIDIRON PLAY

By ROY B. HENDERSON.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 25—The importance of having a logical elimination of all teams in high school football is emphasized by the results of recent games in the state championship race as conducted by the University of Texas Interscholastic league. Throughout the entire series surprises and upsets have been the order of the day. Honey Grove holding the strong Oak Cliff team of Dallas to a 0-0 score is the sensation of the week. Although this will delay the final contest somewhat, it shatters again the old belief that small towns are not capable of turning out athletic teams strong enough to compare favorably with the cities. The tie will be played off Tuesday at Dallas.

Oak Cliff's applicationfor membership in the league was made November 3, but acceptance was held up pending investigation of eligibility questions. After thorough investigation the state executive committee accepted Oak Cliff prior to the Honey Grove game. As soon as the winner of this contest is decided they will be scheduled against Temple in an intersectional game.

Austin, the only undefeated team in Section 10, by her victory over Granger, qualifies to meet Corpus Christi, the team that humbled Hondo for the championship of Section 12. This game will be played Saturday at Corpus Christi.

Eagle Lake demonstrated superiority over all teams of Section 11 by barely winning from the plucky Yorktown team at Yoakum last week. Eagle Lake travels to College Station to lock horns with the strong Bryan team this week-end. Bryan's latest victim was Nacogdoches whose defeat eliminated the last contender from Section 6.

The only other teams remaining in the race are Electra and Abilene, both bi-sectional champions. Electra defeated Childress last week and on the same day Abilene won over Big Springs. More than usual interest is being manifested in this Abilene-Electra contest because the same teams battled last year for the honor of meeting Cleburne for the North Texas championship. As the game was played at Abilene a year ago, the teams will meet at Electra this year and promises to be one of the hardest fought of the entire series.

BILL PLANT PLANTS HIS DOGS SWIFTLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—William Plant, holder of a number of national and metropolitan walking titles, set a new record in the annual City Hall to Coney Island walk yesterday. He covered the 10¼ miles in 1:24:42. The old mark, 1:25:50 was set in 1917 by W. L. Rolker.

Love and Flat Tires.

His wife, according to Frank H. Peck, manager of a New York City drug concern, took great delight in mistreating his motor car, puncturing the tires when the opportunity offered, letting it rest on flat tires and removed any part of it she was able. In addition to this she cooked only two breakfasts in five years and at the end of that time she sold Peck's auto, according to affidavits filed in the supreme court of New York.

Mrs. Peck has countered with the statement that she gave him the car and sold it when he would give her no money. She asked for alimony of $250 a month and counsel fees of $750, but was allowed $100 a month and $350 counsel fees.

Wichitans Send Wires in Protest 'Acceptance of King's Resignation; Condemn Methods Used in Ouster

Several telegrams in support of the "Committee of Forty" at Waco which is attempting to prevent the acceptance of the resignation of Superintendent King as head of the Boys Training School at Gatesville were sent Friday by local residents. The action followed the announcement from Waco Friday morning that a meeting would be held in the city today to protest the supposed action of Governor Neff in forcing the resignation of Superintendent King after he had been vindicated of responsibility by a state board which had investigated the recent death of a boy at the institution.

Judge John Kay, Judge Guy Rogers, Judge J. P. Jones, Mrs. C. E. Ousley, secretary of the Welfare Council, Chief of Police Morgan, R. L. Yates, county juvenile officer are among those that expressed their desire that King be retained at the institution by refusal of the state board of control to accept his resignation.

The telegram sent by the above was as follows: "We feel that King having submitted his cause to the board for trial and having been acquitted that the board should follow its own action and decline his resignation. He should not be tried in the public press nor by ex-parte speeches before women's clubs. The board cannot afford to repudiate its own solemn findings made on competent testimony."

County officials and those who were personally acquainted with Superintendent King have from the first contended that the investigation conducted by the state board would result in a vindiction for him. They have praised his work as head of the state training school and since his resignation, have expressed the doubt as to whether another man as competent could be found to take his place.

So far as known Friday night, no local residents will attend the meeting to be held at Waco today.

Not All Cases Are Spectacular, For It Is in the Routine Cases That Welfare Work Counts Most

The every day routine cases which arise calling for help from the Welfare Council, Travelers Aid and similar public aid organizations, may not be as dramatic or as heart rendering as some of the unusual cases. It may not sound as tearful to tell how an old man was given a railroad ticket to some small town, or was given a good feed at the Y. W. C. A., as it would be to tell how some inhuman father beat his poor sick wife or stole the pennies from his newsboy son's toy bank to buy a pint of hair tonic, the unwanted little babies or the unmarried mother.

But it is these routine cases, in which help is dispensed when it is needed and in an obliging, sincere and tender way, without the indifference that one usually associates the professional welfare worker, that prove the worth of the organizations which are to be provided with operating funds during the United Charities drive for funds.

Every day someone is helped on their way, some who are out of work and need a dollar or so to buy a railroad ticket to some place where they can secure work, some who are hungry, a few who are sick and unable to provide for themselves, and in fact every person, who applies for help or (if they are too proud to ask for charity) who are found by the welfare workers, and investigation proves them to be worthy.

One of the routine cases which not only illustrates the helpfulness of the organizations in small things, but shows how smoothly the Y. W. C. A., Welfare Council and Travelers Aid work together, was that of an old man sent to the Y. W. C. A. by a local hotel, this man being penniless and on his way to a small town on the Wichita Falls and Southern.

At the Y. W. C. A., he was given something to eat by David Butler in charge of the hall. Mrs. Ousley, secretary of the Welfare Council when told of the case sent him to Mrs. Davidson, Travelers Aid, at the union station.

The old fellow, who was a pitiful example of one of the wrecks along the path of life, had been hurt in an accident in the cotton fields near Memphis, Texas, some time back, and was partially paralyzed, dirty, unkemp and utterly helpless it seemed. Mrs. Davidson investigated the case, found the old fellow worthy, bought him a ticket and saw to it that he was put safely on the trail to his friends.

Such a case is only one of many. In times, such as the present, when unemployment is prevalant, money is tight, these pitiful examples become routine work.

But being every day and routine they are none the less acts such as the Master spoke of when He said: "As you do to one of the least of these, my brethren, ye do it also unto me," welfare workers here point out.

Ossified Snake Now Exhibited In Bank Lobby

The ossified snake or reptile, the existence of which was reported in the Record News about a month ago at the time it was exhibited in the office of Curlee, Johnson & Crane, by the owner, W. E. Shoopman, has been put in the lobby of the City National Bank of Commerce, probably to guard the stored up wealth of the institution.

Tom Key, appointed grand high guardian of the interesting specimen of complete ossification, declares that he felt the snake and it is the real, not the imaginary kind, and that all of his friends can call him if they don't care to take his word for it.

This snake, or reptile, is evidently of an age gone by, when snakes were short, fat and stocky of build, as its length is about 3 feet and its thickness and head would do credit to a boa-constrictor such as one sees in circuses and other places.

When the young man who found the snake on the banks of the Wichita river near Benjamin, first brought the snake to town he happened to show it to W. S. Curlee. Mr. Curlee told him that it was a valuable specimen from an archeologists standpoint and advised him to get in touch with some authority on the subject of petrified objects. It is said that the snake may be sent to Austin for examination by some learned doctors.

ADVANTAGES COLORADO-TO-GULF HIGHWAY AS TOWN BUILDER ARE TOLD C. OF C. BUSINESS COUNCIL

The popularity of the Colorado-to-Gulf highway with tourists, in spite of lack of exploitation, and the importance of this and other highways as a trade asset to the cities and towns through which it passes, were outlined to the members of the Chamber of Commerce Business Council Friday evening by Bernard McMahan, field director. Mr. McMahan's talk was received by the members with deep attention and was followed by unqualified endorsement of the plans for further popularizing the highway—plans which officials believe will result in the doubling of the amount of travel.

Mr. McMahan was assured that the Wichita Falls business men will do their part in this direction, and a committee composed of L. M. Forcier, C. C. Randle and C. G. Manuel was named to co-operate with Mr. McMahan here.

Other matters getting attention during the evening were reports from committees on the proposed establishment of a Morris plan bank here, and for the securing of sidewalk facilities in the vicinity of the Sam Houston school.

Approves Morris Plan

Burton Stayton, vice chairman of the council, who presided in the absence of Chairman Mytinger, declared that investigation of the Morris plan, which involves the making of small loans strictly "on character" to wage workers and small salaried workers in emergencies, at low interest rates and on a plan of small payments, would be a tremendous advantage to this or any other community.

"For one thing," he said, "it would permit the liquidation of a large number of small accounts. The workman who through unemployment or sickness gets behind in his accounts can secure a lone at such a bank, pay his bills and continue to hold his head up," Mr. Stayton said.

The committee has written the head office of these banks for further details, and expects to report further progress immediately.

T. B. Smock of the committee charged with the sidewalk problem near the Sam Houston school reported that the matter had been taken up with the city commission and that they would order the sidewalks in in the near future.

To Order Sidewalks.

They will delay for a time, he said, to see if the calling of attention to these needs will not result in the installation of the walks without the formality of the order by the council, which will take several weeks to put into effect.

The Colorado-to-Gulf highway, organized in 1913, and which passes through Wichita Falls in turning northwest from Central Texas to Colorado, is one of the cardinal routes for travel between the south and southwest to Colorado and Rocky Mountain points, Mr. McMahan told the council. When asked recently to list the most important highway crossing Texas, the state highway commission placed this highway first on its list he said. In spite of the fact that the organization in the past has been poorly supported, he told of the volume of travel which it had enjoyed—showing that by actual count more than 400 cars passed through Dalhart during the last touring season.

What Travel Means.

"National authorities figure $10 per day per car as the average in computing this travel. It can be readily seen the actual money that this travel meant to the merchants of this town and others in a radius of 75 miles of it," Mr. McMahan said.

Due to lack of proper information on the condition of the roads, a great deal of tourist travel from the southern states and even Texas is being diverted over routes that are more actively exploited, he said.

Many are going to Colorado by going north on a line with St. Louis and across, and in Texas, in going north from Dallas, instead of following the best and natural route, which is that of the Colorado-to-Gulf.

There are very few stretches of unimproved road in the whole highway from Denver through Fort Worth and Galveston and Corpus Christi, he told the council members, and many of these backward stretches are to be improved. The stretch of paved highway in Wichita county, and that being built in other parts of the state will be a drawing card for the route, as well as drawing favorable attention to the county, he declared.

Attention and courtesy to the people who use the highway was urged by the speaker as supplemental to the advertising in popularizing the route, the first money being characterized as the least return from the highway, and the return of travelers year after year to places where they have been nicely treated, and the lengthening of stays in places which were particularly attractive to several days time.

Prospectors

Another advantage that was stressed was in the attraction of settlers, the fact that many people looking for a new location use this method to prospect being dwelt on.

Plans for exploiting the route were touched on with detail—one of them being the working of all the Southern states as far away as Florida by an official party representing the highway, with a presentation of the advantages of the route through automobile clubs and chambers of commerce throughout the South. Enthusiastic support to the rejuvenated highway association is being given in every place approached, he declared. Fort Worth, Waco and other places are considering the advisability of being represented in this tour by a car and a publicity man advertising their localities, he said.

Proper Marking is to Be Another Feature

Popularization of all year round travel over the route was given as another aim of the association. People coming from the Rockies to the South for the winter are to be canvassed in this connection, he said, as well as the summer tourists bound the other way. Rocky Mountain people are themselves unacquainted with the fact that the route can be used all the year round, and that Raton Pass is passable all the year round, and go to the winter resorts by train in large numbers.

Bad Roads "Cussed"

Stretches of bad road on the route came in for caustic comment on the part of members of the business council. Mention of the unproved roads being built in Hill county brought forth the opinion that it came by reason of the adverse comment from hundreds of tourists, and from practically every automo. e publica on in all parts of the country.

The condition of roads through Clay county was commended on at this point by J. G. Culbertson, who said that this stretch of road was now worse than it had been when he first came to Texas and was growing steadily worse. He spoke approvingly of the roads through Montague, Wise and Tarrant counties on th way to Fort Worth.

The fact that plans were now being made through the creation of special districts in improving the roads through the principle towns in Clay county following rejection of road bonds by the county as a whole was brought out by T. B. Noble, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who attended the meeting.

How It Looks to Strangers

Walter M. Priddy, Friday, saw two men intently eyeing one of the principal office buildings with such intentness that he stopped and looked too.

"When I see anyone looking like you two are, I want to get in on it too," he remarked to one of the men.

"We are looking at that building," was the reply. "It is really all vacant, isn't it?"

He was informed that none of the buildings had vacant offices, and that office room was at a premium.

"Well, I just thought most of them were vacant, because it is only every so many windows which have sign lettering on them."

"I observed the other office buildings and found them all the same way," said Mr. Priddy.

"Nothing but the shades show in them, and without sign lettering the stranger naturally concludes that many, if not most of them, are vacant."

To put into work you are paid to do only half-hearted effort: to perform it carelessly or with indifference.

MIDDY ELEVEN FAVORED OVER WEST POINTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The army and the navy tonight were awaiting the sound of the bugle that tomorrow should set them plunging into each other for service gridiron honors for 1921. But the boys from West Point had come down the Hudson determined to bombard into oblivion the hopes of their cousins in the service and confident that the defeats they had received from Yale and Notre Dame would only serve as bracers.

MARKET REPORTS

Local Market

Potatoes dropped from $2.50 a hundred pounds to $2.25 in the local wholesale market Friday, making this figure the quotation this morning. No other changes were reported in the other fresh vegetable lines.

Fresh fruits have not changed, neither is there expected that any fluctuations will occur to affect the markets this morning. In fact outside of the drop in spuds there were no development worthy of notice.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The raw sugar market was quiet and as no sales were reported prices were unchanged at 3.87 1-2 to 4.11 for centrifugal. The raw sugar futures market was steady early and prices showed advances of one to five points on covering, but near the close eased off under liquidation, except December which closed at the top. Final bids were five points higher to one net lower, but the volume of business was light as operators were inclined to hold off owing to the unsettled conditions of spot market. December closed at 2.34; March 2.22; May 2.31, and July 2.42.

The market for refined was unchanged at 5.20 to 5.30 for fine granulated, but the demand was only moderate, although deliveries on old orders were more liberal.

Refined futures were without transaction closing unchanged. December closed at 5.45; March 5.25; May 5.30.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—December notices representing between 220,000 and 240,000 bags, according to latest estimates were issues in the market for coffee futures here this morning. They caused some scattered liquidation but the offerings were readily absorbed by the big December holders and after opening at an advance of 9 to 17 points active months sold 27 to 30 points above last Wednesday's closing quotations. December touched 8.57 and March 8.20. Early cables reported easier. Rio exchange rates but advances later and the later cost in freight offers were said to be a shade firmer. Futures closed within a point or two of the best showing net advances of 25 to 32 points. Sales including numerous exchanges were estimated at 137,000 bags. December 8.55; January 8.43; March 8.19; May 7.92; July 7.80; September 7.80.

Spot coffee firm. Rio 7's 8 7-8; Santos 4 1-4's 11 3-4 and 12 1-2.

Livestock

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25.—Calf prices were up 25c today and the cattle market was steady. Demand for all classes was broad and the general market displayed activity. Receipts amounted to 1,500 head of cattle and 2,000 calves. Several cars of cows sold at 4.15 and good calves cleared at 6.00 and 5.85.

A supply of 1,200 head in the hog yards cleared readily at an advance of 10 to 15 cents. A few choice light hogs brought 7.30 and several cars went at 7.25. Bulk sales ranged from 7.10 to 7.25. Pigs were strong to 10c higher, the best selling at 7.35.

Slow trading was in evidence in the sheep division, the market being weak with 1,250 head on offer. Quotations:

Grain

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Wheat took an upward swing in value today largely by way of response to Thanksgiving day strength of foreign markets. The close was unsettled 1 1-2 to 1 7-8c net higher, with December 1.12 to 1.12 1-8 and May 1.15 to 1.15 1-8. Corn lost 1-8@1-4 to 5-8c and oats gained 1-8 to 3-8c. In provisions the outcome varied from 5c decline to 15c advance.

General buying accompanied the upturn in the wheat market, but after midday much profit taking by holders was inevitable, causing a material setback. Enlarged rural offerings of corn more than counterbalanced in the corn market at the last, the effect of wheat strength and of export demand for corn in all positions. Oats seemed to be governed mainly by the action of wheat.

Provisions advanced with hogs, but later reacted because of packers selling.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Stocks were listless at the opening of today's session, becoming steady at mid-day and developing general strength before the close. The movement seemed to have its basis mainly on easier money rates, call loans declining from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent on liberal offerings. Bonds again displayed consistent strength on large and diversified dealings in which five of the liberty series established new high records for the year.

As a result of steady accumulation rails moved to higher ground.

In the afternoon a sudden drive against the shorts in Mexican petroleum was accompanied by advances in domestic issues ithe Standard Oil group again coming forward. Sales amounted to 735,000 shares.

The statement of the British foreign minister dealing with the military policy of the French government probably contributed to unsettlement in foreign exchanges, the Paris rate falling nearly fifteen points.

Liberty issues and high grade ails participated in the broad inquiry from investment sources. Total sales, par value, $20,850,000.

Cotton

By Associated Press.

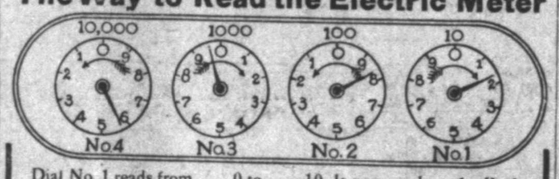

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The cotton market was nervous and unsettled today with prices breaking about $3 a bale under liquidation and scattering pressure. After selling off to 17.86, early January rallied to 18.32, but broke to 17.78 in late trading or 69 points net lower. That delivery closed at 17.90, with the general market closing steady at a net decline of 51 to 63 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 18 to 40 points owing to easier Liverpool cables and liquidations by pre-holiday buyers. A somewhat less optimistic feeling as to an early outcome of the Washington conference and active Liverpool selling here had an unsettling influence and the market soon showed losses of 55 to 65 points with December relatively weak, although notices were estimated at only 22.00.

There was trade buying on the decline, which became a little more active around and below the 18-cent level for January and the market steadied during midday on reports that trade interests had stopped notices representing 6,400 bales in the New Orleans market. There was also buying on confirmation of early reports that Lancashire spinners had voted against the short time proposal and prices rallied about 40 to 56 points from lowest, selling up from 17.82 to 18.40 for December and from 17.80 to 18.21 for March. This bulge met renewed liquidation, however, and the market made new low ground for the day on January and later deliveries in late trading with March selling off to 17.50.

Last prices were a few points up from the lowest on covering. The December notices here were allowed to circulate during greater part of the day and were considered a factor on the decline. The bulk of the selling was attributed to liquidation of scattering long accounts, and local brokers considered the easier technical position of the market after recent advances largely responsible for the decline.

EX-STUDENTS OF C. I. A. HOLD ANNUAL MEET

College Official in Address, Holds Homemaking Essential to Girls' Ideal Education.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 25.—Ex-students of the College of Industrial Arts had their annual mid-year banquet at the Cafe de Paris this evening at 6 o'clock. Susan F. Cobb is president of the ex-Student Association; Leta Mae McCravey of Thornton, first vice-president; Ethel Thomas, of Potosi, second vice-president; Addie Grafton of Waxahachie, recording secretary; Sadie Oliver of Belton, corresponding secretary; Bess Browder McCullar of Denton, treasurer; Nellie Phelps of Dallas, custodian of Memorial Loan Fund; Ruth DeVall of Mount Vernon, editor and chief of the ex-Student Review; Aileen Yeary Stanifer of Dallas, assistant editor of the ex-Student Review; Ruth Adkisson Hare of Denton, business manager of the ex-Student Review. There was a large attendance and the banquet was a most enjoyable one. A most interesting program had been arranged and a feature was an address delivered by Miss Jessie H. Humphries, vocational counselor of the College of Industrial Arts. Among other things, she said:

"The college believes homemaking to be the most important of all vocations for women, and that it will forever remain so. The college trains its students for homemaking and every student, no matter what vocational training she may take at the College of Industrial Arts, always has the opportunity to study the fundamentals of homemaking. The college also gives standard courses in the liberal arts and sciences, and grants the baccalaureate degree, and it has always been the belief of the college that a combination of literary and industrial and vocational training results in the best all around education.

"However, whatever may constitute a woman's general education, every woman should be trained for a remunerative vocation. There is no more important decision in all the world than the decision as to what one's life work shall be. It is a decision that often determines whether happiness shall float into one's life on a high tide, or whether one's life shall be forever "bound in shallows and in miseries."

"It is customary when starting out on a great journey, to make great preparations, to get a chart and compass, or a modern substitute therefor—and to secure all the knowledge obtainable from those who have already been over the trails. Surely the journey of life is no less important. If one is going to make a great investment, he will spare no pains to get all the possible data bearing on the different ways the investment can be placed. Surely the investment of a life is no less important."

WHAT NAVAL HOLIDAY WOULD MEAT TO U. S., BRITAIN, JAPAN

The comparative strength in capital ships of the three powers, England, Japan and the United States, as it is today and as it will be if the naval holiday as proposed by Secretary Hughes goes into effect, is shown by this diagram. Both Great Britain and Japan have agreed to the holiday "in principle" and indications point to a speedy settlement of minor points.

DR. JOHN A. EMBRY DIES AT DECATUR

Dr. John A. Embry, aged 73, for over 50 years a resident of Decatur, and for 30 years a practicing physician there, died Thanksgiving night at his home there following a siege of pneumonia, according to word brought back here by Dr. W. P. Lowery, city health officer. Mr. Lowery was present at the death of the pioneer physician, he being called there during the last few days of his illness.

Dr. Embry was well known in this city as well as throughout this section and the sorrow caused by the passing of this character is expressed by everyone who knew him. He is survived by two brothers.

PROSECUTORS PLAY THEIR TRUMP CARD IN LANDRU'S TRIAL

By Associated Press.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 25.—When the jurors who were sitting in the case of Henri Landru, "the bluebeard of Gambais" left the court room at the adjournment of the session today they impressed on their minds, testimony given by Dr. Sauvez, prominent dentist, who was called by the prosecution as one of its trump cards.

"The twenty-nine teeth I have here are indisputably human teeth," said Dr. Sauvez, referring to teeth found among the refuse in Landru's villa at Gambais, where the prisoner is alleged to have killed some of the eleven persons for whose deaths he is on trial.

The loose teeth, some of which were virtually intact, although some of them showed traces of contact with fire, were handed from juror to juror for examination with the dental expert repeating time and again that there was no doubt they once had belonged to human beings. The testimony made a great impression on the jury. To offset the effect of it the defense brought up fifteen witnesses to show that Landru's villa at Gambais had remained unprotected for two weeks between the first and second searches of it by the police. That testimony, however, seemed to pass virtually unnoticed. The prosecution then closed its case. The case is expected to reach the jury early next week.

THOUSANDS BESIEGE FAMOUS AUSTRIAN PHYSICIAN IN U. S.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Misery so poignant and so widespread greeted Dr. Adolph Lorenz, famous Austrian Orthopedic surgeon, on the steps and in the halls of the hospital for joint diseases today that he said he had almost decided to devote the remainder of his days to alleviating the sufferings of American cripples.

Dr. Lorenz said at the end of his first "gratitude" clinic that never in all his career, had he been affected as he was by the sight of hundreds of maimed, distorted humans, clamoring for his aid, and never, he added, had he seen a land so sorely in need of relief from spinal and other troubles superinduced by infantile paralysis.

611 U. S. SOLDIERS ARE ON WAY HOME FROM RHINE AREA

By Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Nov. 25—Reduction in the American expeditionary force along the Rhine began today when eleven officers and 600 enlisted men left here on a special train for Antwerp to sail tomorrow for home on the transport Cantigny. They are due to reach Hoboken about December 7.

Isn't It the Truth?

Perkins and Brown were walking up Main street together.

"There goes an old buddy of mine," Perkins remarked as a man passed.

"Who is he?" asked Brown.

"Bill Bristow—poor old Bill!"

"Why 'poor old bill'?"

"Well, it's this way." Perkins explained. "When the war broke out I enlisted and Bill got married."

Small Pox Is Yet Unchecked In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25.—Small pox claimed two additional deaths here durng the last 24 hours and thirteen new cases were reported, according to unoffocial tabulations tonight. Both of those who died were infants.

The total number of cases reported since September 1, according to the authorities, now is 259.

Dr. E. H. Bullock, city health director, declared tonight that the virulence of the epidemic has not abated in spite of the fact that the number of new cases reported this week average four a day as against eight a day last week. The death rate, he declared, continues to be about 33 1-3 per cent.

Free vaccination clinics, still are being provided by the city in an effort to stamp out the disease.

Hughes Newell Blames Another For His Plight

By Associated Press.

NOGALES, Ariz., Nov. 25.—Hughes Newell, who was arrested here today after he had been deported from Mexico and who is being held awaiting the arrival of officers from Oakland, Cal., tonight issued a statement in which he blamed another man for his difficulties. Newell is alleged to have forged the names of former Attorney General Palmer and Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington to important documents.

Newell, in the statement said he was discharged from the 143rd United States field artillery after having served a short time in France. Then, he said he became president and general manager of the Newellen Potash & Chemical company, capitalized at $1,500,000 and with headquarters in Oakland.

That corporation, he said entered into contract with the United States government to furnish 600,000 gallons of a certain oil for use by air plane. The contract was cancelled he said, when the armistice was signed.

Then, he said, one of the directors of the company disappeared with funds belonging to the corporation and $50,000 which Newell said he had received from the sale of land in Mexico.

Newell said he recently was taken from New York to Oakland to answer a charge of having passed a fictitious check. In Oakland he said he jumped his bail and went to Mexico to endeavor to get some money on land he owned there. When he was arrested in Mazatlan, he said he was preparing to go to South America where he claimed to own a million acres of land. Officers here said that in addition to being wanted in Oakland, Newell is wanted in Canada and Mexico for alleged illegal transactions.

Also in jail here is another man whose name has been withheld, who said he came to take Newell back to Oakland. Officers here declared they believed he was attempting to aid Newell to escape.

A Little Slang Is Relished by Wisest of Men

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Slang, if more trenchant than the more sedate words and phrases, is permissable, but should not be overworked, Harry G. Paul, president of the national council of teachers of English, declared today at the opening of the council's eleventh annual session.

"If two boys are fighting don't tell them to desist," he advised. "Cut it out," is more effective. If the movie is bad "how inferior" may describe it, but "good night" covers a richer feeling.

Claudia E. Crompton of Detroit, chairman of the committee on American speech, also endorsed the moderate use of slang. Both Mr. Paul and Miss Crompton told of efforts being made to improve the speech of shop girls in New York, Detroit and Los Angeles.

FATHER OF "COUSIN" TO PRES. HARDING COMMITS SUICIDE

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Ephraim Harding, father of Everett Harding, who is serving a federal penitentiary sentence for representing himself as a cousin and confidential secretary of President Harding, today shot himself fatally. He died early tonight.

It is believed that Mr. Harding's suicide was prompted by brooding over the acts of his son, who was alleged to have prompted many "wildcat" projects and to have obtained money from prominent Chicagoans on promise of procuring political positions for them through his alleged relationship to the president. Mr. Harding was 54 years old.

NEW ORLEANS DOCK STRIKE TIES UP PORT

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—Approximately 12,000 men affiliated with the twenty-four unions employed along the water front went on strike today in sympathy with the screwmen who quit Monday because of wage cuts. The end of the day found many non-union crews working on ships that were ready for loading and unloading.

Although both steamship operators and union officials asserted tonight that there would be no arbitration, the belief gained ground, as a result of informal interviews, that negotiations looking toward arbitration would begin tomorrow or Sunday.

The strikers have picketed practically the entire river front.

Every ship and wharf is protected by armed guards of private agencies while the entire front is heavily patrolled by both city and dock board police.

2200 WOMEN COPS READY FOR ACTION IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Twenty-two hundred women members of the New York police reserves were polishing up their unused shields and brushing the lint off the new uniforms tonight in anticipation of their first tour of duty.

Rodman Wanamaker, special deputy police commissioner in charge of the reserves, issued a call for the 2200 late today, directing them to report next Monday for duty as traffic officers. The order said they would have charge of all street intersections adjacent to public school buildings in the city's five boroughs.

Commissioner Wanamaker said the women would be employed actively until the end of the milk strike, which has necessitated detailing 2200 men to guard milk wagons and plants of the distributing companies.

JURY IS NOT YET CHOSEN IN TRIAL OF ARTHUR BURCH

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—Another day without a jury was the record tonight of the trial of Arthur C. Burch, accused of murdering J. Belton Kennedy. Adjournment until Monday found the court with 11 women and one man in the jury box and both sides well supplied with peremptory challenges whereby some of these may be supplanted. All had been passed temporarily, however.

TOM GIBBONS HANGS KAYO ON DOWD'S JAW

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul knocked out Dan Dowd of Boston in the sixth round of a scheduled fifteen round match here tonight. Dowd was knocked down six times before he went out before a terrific right cross to the jaw.

'STEW BAD, MIKE.

By Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Tommy Robson, of Malden tonight won the decision over Mike Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight, in ten rounds.

FOCH IS HONORED.

LIONS HEAR DISCUSSION ON BANKING

"The Federal Reserve System" was the subject of an interesting talk by L. H. Buchanan, vice president of the First National bank, before the Lions club Friday noon at the Kemp hotel. In discussing the banking rules followed by this system, he gave a short history of the organization, starting with the passing of the federal reserve act in December, 1913.

Instances where this system has proven its worth were cited by the speaker. The foundation of this system, he said, was one of the most important steps which have been taken in financial circles in recent years.

Bert Wilson, district attorney, a charter member of the club, gave a plea for more thoughtful consideration of jury duty by business men. He also told of some of the duties of the office of district attorney. Other matters discussed in his talk included a brief comparison of some of the phases of the laws of the United States with those of Great Britain.

PICK SITES FOR SCOUT CAMPING

Scout Executive H. E. Taylor and Scoutmaster Jess McLarry Friday selected a tentative site for the week-end camps which are contemplated during the winter, this place being about 4 miles west of Wichita Falls on the Wichita river. Before deciding on this location definitely it will be necessary for some nearby water supply to be found as the dry weather has about absorbed all of the drinking water in this section, Mr. Taylor said.

The plans for the week-end hikes call for a trip out to the camp on Friday afternoons, remaining all night and returning Saturday afternoon. All of the members of the local scout organization will be eligible for these trips, Mr. Taylor says.

DR. KNICKERBOCKER TO DISCUSS K. K. K. IN SERMON SUNDAY

"Last Sunday night," said Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker to a Record News reporter, "I was all cocked and primed for my sermon on 'The Majesty and the Mockery of the Law' illustrated by the very interesting question, 'Why the Ku Klux Klan?' but an unexpected emergency compelled me to postpone the sermon. It will positively be given on Sunday night unless I am sick in bed, and as I haven't been sick in bed in over thirty years, that's pretty positive. I have had an opportunity to gather more material by interviewing the district attorney, the sheriff and both friends and enemies of the Ku Klux Klan and will be in better shape to give a 'live number' than I was last Sunday night. Last Sunday night the church was crowded to the doors and we expect to turn them away this coming Sunday night, especially, because we have some great musical features in this service also.

"At the morning hour I am going to preach the fourth in my series on 'Religion in Business' on the subject, 'Religion and Personal Efficiency.' The relation between religion and a man's salary is not well understood. If it was, the churches would be crowded to the doors. For instance, a religious man holds his job by a proportion of ten to one over an irreligious man. That is just a sample of statistical facts that are startling in their revelation. Any man who wants to be bigger and better in his job and in his bank account, as well as in his immortal values, is especially urged to come and hear this sermon.

"Please note that the night service now begins at 7:15 sharp."

ELECTION, TALK AND PRESENTATION STUDIO PLAYERS TO BE FEATURES

The annual election of officers, an address by Hubert M. Harrison, the general manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and the privilege of the first public presentation of the "Studio Players" recently organized among young dramatic talent of the city, will make the meeting today of the City Federation of much interest, and a large attendance is expected.

The federation board will meet at two o'clock and will have an hour of business preceding the general meeting and program, which opens at 3 o'clock, at the Kemp library.

Mrs. E. L. Fulton, who organized and is the director of the Studio Players will explain the Little Theater movement, which has been playing an important part in club development throughout the country, and will illustrate her talk with the assistance of three members of the players, Misses Elvia Allman and Elizabeth Carrigan and Mrs. Porter Oakes. The one act play given will be selected from the words of Constance D'Arcy Mackay.

Mr. Harrison's subject has been announced as "The Women's Part in Molding Ideals of the City."

Every club woman in the city is urged to be present. The presidents and delegates of the various affiliated clubs are particularly expected to be in attendance.

Negro Suffers From Boast To Wife

"Honey I'se so-o-oooo lonesome now since you-e-e gone a-w-a-a-y" sang Robert Clark, to the dusky partner of his woes and troubles Friday evening at the City Police station.

The pair were brought before Chief McDonald following the complaint of the negress that "ol Robuht Cla'k done got ha'f boiled an' beat me up an' evuhthing."

"You see Chief, suh," Robert explained, "that niggah jus' oughtta know she ain't got as much gab as me any way. An' she came in braggin' 'bout havin' another man. Well, you see, suh, I couldn't stan' that and so I got back putty good 'houten me havin' plenty othuh sweeties and heah she come with a ice pick an' jus' look at my ribs" and at this point the negro revealed several jagged cuts on the trunk of his body.

The negress made vague accusations of her better half having made away with $5 of her money to which he pleaded not guilty.

After thrashing the affair out in its various phases, which seemed to reveal the wrangle to have been a mutual domestic disagreement, the pair were released under light bonds, with an admonition from the chief that they accomplish a reconciliation and resume semi-peaceful relations once more.

To indicate his willingness to let bygones be bygones the negro entertained the officers with several songs in one of which he put forth the plea of his approaching lonliness "if his sweety went a-w-a-a-y."

SPECIAL MATINEE OF "MADAME X" AT WICHITA THEATER

There will be a special bargain matinee today at the Wichita theater when the Gene Lewis-Olga Worth company will offer the great mother love drama "Madam X." This play has been pleasing large audiences all week. The play will be presented tonight for the last time.

"The Misleading Lady."

There is a large advance sale for "The Misleading Lady" which will be the attraction at the Wichita theater all next week.

Mr. Lewis says this play is one of the very best he has ever produced. It is a comedy in three acts and just one long laugh after another. The play has a record of seven months at the Fulton theater in New York, also a long run in Boston and Chicago. During the engagement of the Gene Lewis-Olga Worth company in Dallas last summer, the play did more business than any play during the season and it is safe to say the same thing will happen here next week, so we advise you to get your seats as soon as possible.
