High Court Justice Dies

PIERCE BUTLER

WASHINGTON (UP)—Supreme Court Justice Pierce Butler, one of the two remaining conservative members of the nation's highest court, died early today after a long illness. He was 73.

His death creates the fifth vacancy to occur on the nine-man bench during Franklin D. Roosevelt's second term as president. Appointment of Butler's successor will make a majority of the court Mr. Roosevelt's appointees.

President Roosevelt expressed personal regret at Butler's death in a statement and in a personal letter to Mrs. Butler.

"I had known Justice Butler for a great many years and I always regarded him as a personal friend," Mr. Roosevelt said.

"His undoubted great ability, his complete frankness in the expression of his philosophy and his honest convictions commanded my respect and in common with his many friends I sincerely regret his untimely passing.

Butler died at Garfield hospital at 3:14 a. m. CST. He had been a patient there since Sept. 22 for treatment of a bladder ailment.

His condition turned steadily worse early this morning. Neither his doctor nor any member of his family was present.

His illness began in the spring of 1938 but he continued his work on the bench through June, 1939.

Butler is survived by his widow, four sons and two daughters. Friends of the Butler family said that the justice's funeral would be in St. Paul.

It is likely that the president will seek a Catholic to succeed Butler, who was a member of that faith, and speculation centered immediately on Attorney General Frank Murphy. The far west and southwest will clamor for recognition in this nomination, however.

Associate Justice Harold Stephens of the U. S. court of appeals here also would qualify geographically as Butler's successor. Stephens is a Catholic and from Utah. He barely missed nomination to (Continued on page 16)

BENTON, Ill. (UP)—Dr. George Gore Sr., wealthy surgical specialist, today was convicted of murdering his son's attorney and the penalty was fixed at death in the electric chair.

J. P. HALTS NEGRO FIGHT

Probably getting in a few practice swings for the Thanksgiving season, a negro man late yesterday afternoon attacked a negro woman with an ax and threatened to chop off her head.

Defending her rights, the woman screamed and struggled, finally getting a grip on the ax handle to contest the man for possession.

Justice of the Peace George Faulkner, who lives across the street from the scene of the fracas, was attracted by the woman's screams, so he intervened, also grabbing the ax handle. The negroes contested Faulkner's jurisdiction in the case for a few seconds, then finally relinquished the weapon.

Deputy Sheriff Sid Partain arrived about that time and took the negro man to jail and charged him with drunkenness and fighting.

The woman escaped with her clothing badly damaged and tooth-prints on her finger where her assailant bit her in an effort to gain full possession of the ax.

Faulkner decided to confine his future judicial activities to the courtroom.

Former Chicago Gang Overlord Is Freed Today

CHICAGO (UP)—Edward O'Hare, racing magnate who was assassinated in gangland fashion Nov. 8, was the witness who in 1931 supplied the government with evidence to send Scarface Al Capone to Alcatraz for income tax evasion, an informed and reliable source told the United Press today.

"It is true that O'Hare supplied the evidence and God only knows what is going to come out of this," the informant said. "I think there may be more murders."

Capt. Dan Gilbert of the state attorney's police commented, "There is no doubt in my mind that the Capone mob killed O'Hare." The information came from one of a handful of Chicagoans in possession of the real story behind the government's successful effort to put the gang leader behind bars.

The disclosure came with added piquancy on the day that Capone was released from federal custody in Pennsylvania.

CAPONE RELEASED

WASHINGTON (UP)—The department of justice announced today that Al Capone, the one-time Chicago gangster chieftain, was released to his family this morning at the Lewisburg, Pa. penitentiary.

Capone has completed his sentence, having done so three days ahead of the scheduled date because of a credit of three days in federal custody in 1931.

The department of justice said that Capone had been transferred today from the federal correctional institution at Los Angeles.

The brief announcement did not explain how Capone was brought east from California but subsequently it was stated that the prisoner was brought to Lewisburg by train.

The mystery of Capone's whereabouts and when he was being released was cleared up by the announcement of James Bennett, director of the bureau of prisons.

To Private Hospital

"Bennett announced this morning that Alphonse Capone's sentence having expired today, he was (Continued on page 12)

Hearing to End

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—The statewide telephone rate hearing before the corporation commission will be concluded today or early tomorrow. The hearing entered its fifth week today with Southwestern Bell attorneys attempting to refute evidence of commission rate experts that rate increases are not justified in 21 cities of Oklahoma.

Arrangements Complete for Courtesy Cars

Courtesy cars which will transport Wichita Falls football fans from the railroad station to the football field tomorrow night will gather on Ave. B between Main and Commerce before 6:45, chamber of commerce officials said today.

Drivers of the cars are asked to drive into the block from Main street, wait until they get a cargo of fans, then drive down Commerce to the stadium. It will be necessary for most cars to carry two loads, the officials said.

Courtesy car drivers are requested to remain in the business district until near game time, as many of the fans from Wichita Falls will eat before going to the game, the officials added.

Courtesy cars will be needed to carry all of the fans from the stadium back to the train after the game, and drivers are particularly urged to remain at the field until they get a load of fans.

The special train from Wichita Falls will arrive at 6:45 and more than 1,000 fans are expected to be on board.

Arrangements for parking at the stadium have been completed and courtesy cars will be parked in a (Continued on page 16)

A new type corral, designed by County Agent V. E. Hafner, was demonstrated to more than 100 cattlemen of Childress county this afternoon on the J. W. Johnson ranch, five miles north of Childress.

The corral was built by Hafner and J. B. Johnson from a model designed by Hafner and exhibited at the Lubbock and Dallas fairs this year. The plan has also been adopted by the Texas extension service.

Principal feature of the corral is a lever-operated "squeeze gate" for use in branding, dehorning and cutting cattle.

The cattle may be driven through a chute into the gate by one man, and all lever operations may be handled by one other man. The cows can be stopped in the gate and held for branding or dehorning in the squeeze device, or they may be driven on through the gate and (Continued on page 16)

Sheriff Due to Return Prisoner

Sheriff Dick Moore is expected to return today or tomorrow from Long Beach, Calif. with Alton Kelley, who is charged here with forgery.

Kelley was arrested in Long Beach last week and Sheriff Moore went to California for the prisoner after extradition was granted.

An automobile accident delayed the return trip, according to word received from the sheriff.

Oklahoma Strip Settlement Is Due by Spring

It will be in the spring before landowners in the Cherokee strip of Greer county property will be able to secure title from Texas, according to Bascom Giles, head of the land department, who was in Childress this morning.

"It will be then before our survey will be completed," Giles said. "When the survey is completed, the owners will be given one year to secure title to their land."

A. B. Smith of Wellington has been designated surveyor by a special board to handle the problem, Giles said, and all landowners are urged to use Smith.

Negro Held on Felony Charge

A negro cotton picker, charged with a felony complaint here with forcing a Childress negro woman to accompany him to a farm southwest of Childress for immoral purposes, was arrested here this morning by Deputy Sheriff Sid Partain.

The woman said the negro forced her into the car at the point of a knife, then beat her after they arrived at the farm.

It's A Fact . . .

Not since the autumn of 1936 when Garland Terrell led the Bobcats to a district football championship has Childress been so worked up over a football game and unless the weather is bad, a record crowd is certain to witness the Bobcat-Wichita Falls Coyote game tomorrow night. . . . it will be the last game played at the old stadium unless the result of the game changes plans of school officials as WPA workers are scheduled to start wrecking the old grandstand to make way for the new concrete stands Saturday morning.

UDC Has Dinner And Thanksgiving Program at Park

A Thanksgiving program followed a turkey dinner for the United Daughters of the Confederacy yesterday at their cabin in Fair park. Mrs. B. T. Williams, Mrs. Frank Taylor and Mrs. W. M. Stiner were the hostesses.

Mrs. O. H. Smith was in charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. C. J. Hargrave and Mrs. J. D. Van Sickle. A guest, Artie Abernathy, entertained by playing old-time songs on his guitar.

Others present were Mmes. A. Taylor, R. E. Witcher, Lillie Castleberry, C. L. Carson, O. M. Stewart, W. T. Meador, John O. McMinn, Henry Bellah, U. S. Weddington, and a guest, Mrs. Francis McLeod.

Mrs. Efird Will Head Carey Club During 1940 Term

Mrs. P. A. Efird was elected president of Carey Home Demonstration club when it met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. W. Brown. Mrs. Elmer Trent was named vice-president, Mrs. H. B. Hill secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Carl Parrish council delegate, and Miss Lela Farmer reporter.

Plans were made for an entertainment for the club members' families in the form of a chili supper to be given Saturday evening at Lake Childress.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting to Mmes. Leo Parrish, Fred Musgrove, G. W. Farmer, Clint Robinson, L. H. Myers, Bill Harrington, and the new officers.

Homesick Co-ed

She's away at college just ten blocks from home, but that doesn't keep Leta Underwood, Texas State College for Women sophomore, from getting homesick. She lives in the dormitory, writes her family once a week, and isn't going home until Thanksgiving because she made a bet with her brother that living in Denton wouldn't keep her from "going away to college."

US WOMEN

By Sue Vinson.
Sensible suggestions to mothers who want their daughters to be happy, and to girls who want to be popular, are offered this week by Ruth Millett in her syndicated column. First, to the mothers:

Most young women today are better prepared to earn a pay check than to manage their husbands' salaries so that the income does for two.

In seeing that their daughters are quite capable of looking out for themselves many parents are neglecting to see that they are also capable of looking after a husband and family.

The worst of it is that many of the young, married women who go to dull, routine jobs every morning—jobs that they secretly hate—wouldn't find it necessary to add to the family income if they were the kind of managers their mothers were.

It isn't sensible to see that a girl learns just one thing—how to earn a living—when what she wants most in the world is to marry a man who will earn it for her.

Then to the girl in her late teens, who Miss Millett says is usually comforted with soft soap:

So you have to tell the girl a few hard facts. You have to tell her that if nobody likes her, there is probably no reason why anyone should.

If nobody likes her, the thing for her to do is not to depend on pleasing and flattering others. But to interest other people.
Maybe she is the poorest-dressed

Mind Your Manners

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Is it good manners to call a friend on the telephone and say, "Guess who this is"?
2. How should one acknowledge gifts received at the time of an illness?
3. Should a letter ever be addressed Margaret Smith?
4. How should a letter to a small boy be addressed?
5. Should a boy be taught to raise his hat when he meets a grown-up acquaintance on the street—whether it is a woman or a man?

What would you do if—
While you are sitting talking to guests, you are brought a written message or telegram. Would you—
(a) Open it and read it?
(b) Say, "Will you excuse me" before opening it?
Answers

1. No.
  2. By a note—if possible.
  3. No. Miss Margaret Smith—no matter how young she is.
  4. Master Ralph Jones.

Nazis Lack Subs But Reds Have Largest Fleet

LONDON (UP)—Germany has a great handicap to overcome if she is to repeat her success of 1917 and carry out relentless U-boat warfare on the high seas, according to the 1939 edition of Janes Fighting Ships which appears today.

The naval annual, acknowledged authority on warships of the world, says the reich has far to go to match the fleet of 111 U-boats used to launch the unrestricted submarine campaign against Britain in 1917.

Germany had 71 U-boats built and 28 under construction under her 1939 program when the war broke out on Sept. 3, the annual said, but at least 15 of them were sunk in the first 45 days of the war. Most of the sunken submarines were described as important ones of ocean-going type.

Disregarding losses since Oct. 15, the manual said, Germany appears to have only 84 U-boats, taking into account full completion of the 1939 program.

The soviet union, it was said, has by far the largest submarine fleet, with approximately 150 undersea craft built and at least 20 under construction. The total for the soviet may be even higher, Janes said.

The annual repeated its contention of 1938 that the soviet secretly have built a powerful fleet of submarines and torpedo boats for far eastern waters.

Hopeful Air Hostess Tries To Stretch Point

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Kathleen Hildebrand can stretch but the civil aeronautics authority said today that it couldn't stretch with her.

The CAA was talking about stretching a point; Miss Hildebrand's stretching referred to muscles, for she is trying to stretch her way into a student pilot training class. She is shy a half-inch in height.

When she started stretching she lacked an inch of the required height.

"I've picked up a half inch but it looks like getting that other half inch is going to be the hardest," Miss Hildebrand, 19, red-haired and freckled, said.

"Maybe it will be too hard. I have until tomorrow afternoon to make the grade."

Miss Hildebrand had hoped that the CAA might waive on that half-inch but the local officers said only Washington could handle such an important decision. It has something to do with being able to reach gadgets with the feet and see out of the cockpit.

Miss Hildebrand is very pleasant about the red tape and said that anyway she has had a lot of fine exercise.

Two Killed in Fight at Still

CROCKETT (UP)—Two persons were dead last night and a third was in jail as a result of an argument at a moonshine still.

Wilbert Wolf, 18, was held in county jail by officers who investigated his story that he killed Bryant Christian, 25, in self-defense. Wolf surrendered to Justice of the Peace William Rikard, who filed a murder charge against him.

Wolf told Rikard he and Christian went to a whisky still they operated on the farm of Burket Smith, 25, in the Austonio community early Wednesday. He said Christian killed Smith in an argument over the still, then turned to him and said, "You're next." Wolf said he wrested a pistol from Christian's hands and hit him on the head with it. Christian attempted to rush him off his feet and was shot in the struggle.

BRITAIN AND GERMANY BOTH GIRD FOR WAR TO THE FINISH

Simon Says Four Nazi Ships Lost

LONDON (UP)—Great Britain today reported that the allied position in the European war had been strengthened, that Germany had lost six merchant ships in the last week and that German shipping was almost bottled up.

Sir John Simon, speaking for Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons, reviewed developments of the week and blamed Adolf Hitler for failure of "the bold intervention in the cause of peace" made by Belgium and Holland.

The massing of Nazi armed forces near the low countries "presented a pattern all too familiar" to persons who can read the signs of German plans for invasion, he insisted, but added that tension has not been relieved in that respect.

British shipping continues to move with increasing freedom, Simon said.

BERLIN (UP)—Germany is determined to carry on the war "until British supremacy has been destroyed," authorized German sources declared today.

The declaration coincided with broad hints in the controlled Nazi press that despite approaching winter Germany would intensify hostilities because Britain and France had made "new declarations of war" in rejecting Belgian-Netherlands mediation offers.

"We did not want this war," the authorized German sources said. "It was forced upon us by Britain and France. We will be ready to talk peace conditions when the war has ended victoriously for us."

Newspapers said meanwhile that Germany had "no intention of hibernating throughout the winter."

Joint Program Of Tell-Cee Vee Women Is Given

Sharing the program, the Women's Divisions of Tell and Cee Vee Methodist churches observed a week of prayer Monday with an all-day meeting in the church at Tell.

Mrs. H. R. Bennett was leader of the morning program, presented by Tell women. After a covered dish luncheon, the Cee Vee women gave their part of the program with Mrs. R. B. Merrill in charge.

The program theme was "The Ever-Expanding Church." The morning session started with quiet music by Mrs. J. A. Stinnett, hymns, the leader's call to worship, and a prayer by Mrs. H. R. Bennett.

Mrs. Bennett discussed "The United Church." Mrs. J. E. Tippet presented the meditation on the subject, "Spiritual Values." A poem, closing with a prayer for the church, was read by Mrs. A. J. Johnson. Another topic was "How Beautiful My Brother Is," by Mrs. Greenhaw. A directed prayer by Mrs. Lonnie Garrison was followed by the dismissal by Mrs. G. V. Conn.

The afternoon program was opened with prayer by Mrs. J. B. Morris and music by Mrs. Will P. Jones. Mrs. S. W. Jenkins read a poem and joined Mrs. Raymond Richardson in singing a duet, "Sweet Hour of Prayer." Picture interpretation of "The Angelus" was given by Mrs. Jones.

Home mission work was discussed by Mmes. Elmer Monson, J. B. Morris and W. M. Tyson, and foreign mission work by Mrs. Stinnett of Tell. Poems were read by Mrs. Clee Rothwell and Mrs. Richardson preceding the special mission offering and the benediction by Mrs. Monson.

A celebration is being planned for members of the cooperative when the current is first sent through the lines. Farm homes over an area of 200 miles will turn on their lights for the first time by merely throwing a switch. Electricity for the project will be furnished by the Mangum municipal power plant.

Production of automobiles in Canada during one month of this year totaled 14,300 units.

Couple Borrow Minister for Wedding Service

Neighborly borrowing on the 200 block of Ave. D NE, where are located the homes of two ministers, included the time of Rev. G. H. Farmer to perform a wedding ceremony in the home of Rev. Orion W. Carter Tuesday evening. Miss Rhoda Workman of Eldorado, Okla. and W. F. C. Carter of Wichita Falls went to the First Methodist parsonage to be married, but Rev. Carter had left for Lubbock to attend the Northwest Texas Methodist conference.

So Mrs. Carter sent across the street to Central Christian parsonage and summoned Rev. Farmer, who read the service uniting the couple.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows feels like it will tear your chest walls apart. You need reliable and ready help. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to loosen germ laden phlegm, increase secretion and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back. Reforming The Tax Structure

Gov. Culbert D. Olson of California, troubled by the wide variance in income tax rates among the states and by the small percentage of income taxes collected compared to the total tax levy, recently proposed a rearrangement in the tax picture. He suggested among other things, that uniform rates be established by the federal government so that all income taxes might be collected centrally and proportionate shares returned to the states.

The governor's plan would certainly eliminate fears among states that industries are driven out because of high state income taxes. But to place such a proposal into effect might initiate an economic revolution in this country, the results of which might be too disastrous to imagine. The tax structure of the United States is much too involved today to admit any sudden sweeping reforms, however meritorious they may be.

Seventeen states today levy income taxes, but no sales taxes. Six states have sales taxes without income taxes, and 17 depend on both for their revenues. Eight states have neither income nor sales taxes but rely entirely on other forms of taxation, such as property, gasoline, liquor and tobacco taxes.

Sales taxes vary from 1/4 of 1 per cent to 3 per cent and produce yields anywhere from half a million dollars, in Connecticut, to 86 millions, in California. Income tax rates vary from 1/2 of 1 per cent on both personal and corporate incomes, in Maryland, to a 1 to 10 per cent range on personal and a straight 6 per cent levy on corporate incomes, in Minnesota.

The federal graduated income tax rate is the same in every state of the union. In states which depend, not on sales taxes, but on income taxes for their chief source of revenue, it might be assumed that the proportions of state to federal revenue would remain reasonably constant. But it doesn't.

In Delaware, the state revenue approximates only 1 1/2 per cent of the federal collected. In Kansas the percentage is 33; in Kentucky, 31; in Maryland, 27; in Oregon, 83, in South Carolina, 60; in Tennessee, 20; and in Wisconsin, 75. None of these states has a sales tax to supplement its income taxes. Obviously some of these states must depend more heavily on other forms of taxation.

It was only a generation ago that the income tax was inaugurated, but in the year ending in June, 1939, 27 per cent of the total revenue in the United States was collected through income taxes.

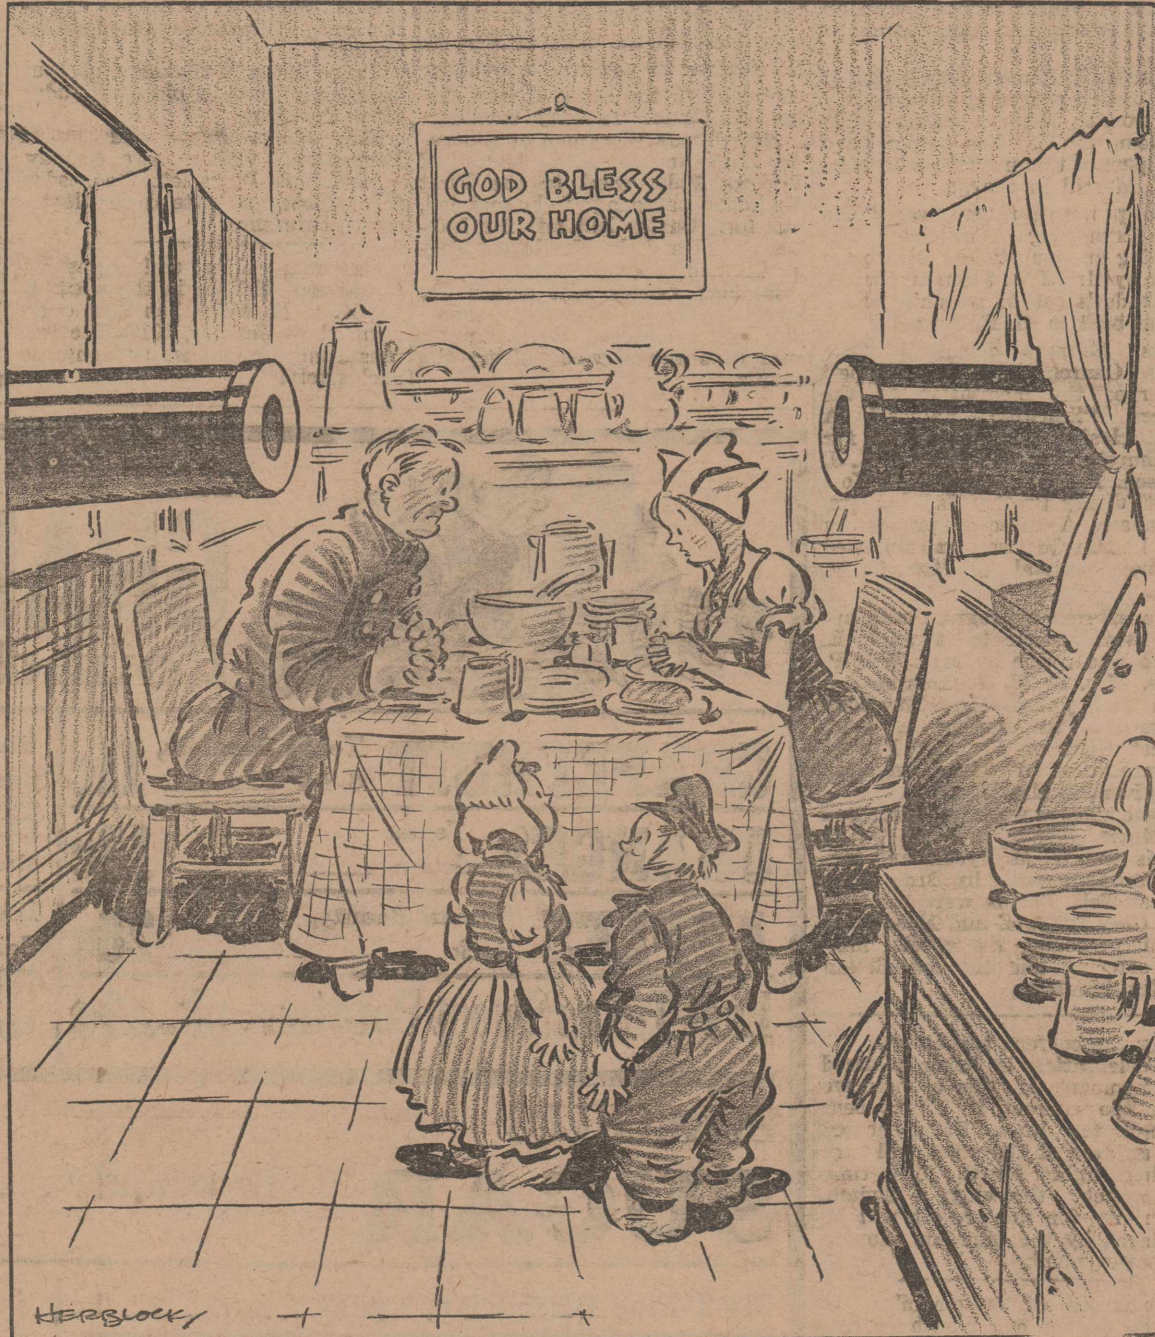

Like civilization itself, the tax structure of a nation cannot suddenly be turned over with a spade. Taxes in certain fields, which may be too high, must be made up somewhere. Some uniform and centralized tax basis might be advisable as a means of eliminating unfair multiple taxation. But the process must be slow and natural. It cannot be adjusted suddenly by edict.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

V. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
 Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
 Most people know something about tonsillitis, but few people associate quinsy with the tonsils. Quinsy is the formation of an abscess in the tissues around the tonsil.

When the abscess forms, there is also swelling of the uvula, which is the little structure that hangs down from the roof of the mouth toward the tongue, and also a swelling of the soft palate. In some instances the abscess becomes more and more distended with inflammatory material and may burst into the tissues.

It is much better to have the abscess opened by a doctor as soon as the nature of the condition is apparent. In that way the pus and infectious material can be taken out of the body rather than pass into an area in which the material may be absorbed. The opening of such an abscess, when the tissues have thinned and softened, is not difficult and is frequently done without an anesthetic. The abscess will pop like a pimple that is ready to burst.

There are other cases in which the abscess forms in the tissue below the tonsil. Here, again, there is danger of the abscess passing its contents into the large blood vessels unless there is prompt treatment.

In general it is not customary to attempt removal of the tonsils while the abscess is present because of the inflammation, and also because there may be more bleeding as a result of the inflammation than there would be if the tonsils were removed during a quiescent period.

It is customary to wait until the tissues have healed, following the opening of the abscess, and then to plan complete removal of the tonsils to prevent appearance of new abscesses. If this is not done, there may be more abscesses, resulting from the conditions that led to the formation of the first abscess.

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
 United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN (UP)—Is W. Lee O'Daniel's popularity fading as he nears the end of his first year in the governor's office?

The question is asked frequently in capitol corridors as eyes begin to focus on next summer's political campaign.

Can the man who, without a poll tax receipt, swept the state to an unprecedented first primary nomination in his initial race, be beaten if he runs for a second term?

Until recently the general reply was "No." Now some begin to express doubts about it; some believe he will be a one-term governor.

Random statements brought out these views:

"He has been slipping in East Texas as opponents of SJR 12 keep hammering on the promises and results of the last campaign."

"People resent personal attacks on a governor whether they agree with his politics or not. Such attacks have helped him."

"Exposure of the cost of legislation has made him votes."

"Business men do not want a session of the legislature, especially when it will break into holiday trade. They approve his reticence to call one."

On party record there is also a division of expressed opinion. One person thought there will be reaction against democratic Texas having a governor "who never voted the democratic ticket." Another said "Texas voted for President Hoover."

Several saw the result of the Ohio and California elections as a definite swing of public sentiment from high old age pensions.

Whether that swing will deprive O'Daniel of votes he got in the 1938 election in a campaign of "$30 a month for all over 65" or bring him new support for his unwillingness to convene legislators to repair the $6 a month pension drop was an uncertain point for most.

Effect of calling a special session of the legislature also was debated. One thought the governor must call a session if he seeks reelection. Another, a senator, said: "If he calls a special session he will beat himself and all the members of the legislature who seek reelection."

Most persons pick the sales tax as the most important state campaign issue in 1940.

Three holidays in one month is too much for Texas state departments, so few of them will pay any attention to Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's double-barreled Thanksgiving day proclamation.

November 11 was observed as a holiday, being so designated by statute. Two Thanksgiving holidays in addition are considered too much by most department heads.

A state employe who refused to go to work either day, probably

BARBS

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace says he is not sorry for saying he wants Mr. Roosevelt for a third term. One could hardly expect the secretary to apologize for saying he would like to keep his job for another four years.

Mrs. Roosevelt says she will not succumb to fashion's lure of bustles and wasp-waists. If this keeps up, campaign issues are likely to revolve around bustles, wimples and snoods.

Only tall men are being accepted for United States army duty in Panama because of the heavy underbrush. It can be mighty embarrassing losing an army somewhere in the grass.

could sustain his right to observe both Thanksgivings. The law specifying state holidays includes all days of thanksgiving designated by the president or the governor.

Other specified holidays are Jan. 1, Jan. 19 (Lee's birthday), Feb. 22, March 2, April 21, June 3 (Jefferson Davis' birthday), July 4, Labor day, Oct. 12, Nov. 11 and Dec. 25.

In addition, state departments are authorized to declare a holiday for employes on all days when state elections are held, so they may go home to vote.

Rolls of confederate pensioners are steadily thinning. In a few years it is expected the present deficit in the fund to pay this class of pensions will be overcome automatically.

State Treasurer Charley Lockhart's summary of state warrants shows that 39 mortuary warrants were issued from it last month. The warrants reveal also that there remain only 59 confederate couples on the roll receiving $50 a month. There were 3,916 single pensioners receiving $25 each and 96 who are residents in confederate homes. They receive $12.50 each. Total expenditure was $193,525.

PERSONALITIES
TODAY'S PROFILE

By The United Press

One of the nation's leading business executives, an ardent sportsman, an attorney who never practiced law, a man who turned down the presidency of the greatest ball club in modern baseball history, shuns the limelight because he doesn't think he deserves it.

He is George E. Ruppert, 64, head of the brewery and other enterprises founded by his father. And although he has now stepped into the shoes of his more widely known brother, the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, he is content to remain "the man the public does not know."

As ruling head of the Ruppert dynasty, this busy executive is in top command of the Ruppert brewery, realty and other interests. He is vice-president of the world champion New York Yankees and is a director of a dozen corporations and trade groups.

Forty years after he yielded to his father's entreaties and gave up the law to learn the brewery business, George Ruppert can be consulted freely by any of the brewery's 1,500 employees.

Ruppert's other major interests are his family—he has a wife, a married daughter and two grandsons—and fishing. In pursuit of the latter, he plays no favorites; there is a fishing camp in Maine for trout and a similar establishment in Florida for game fish.

Fishing, however, doesn't take up all Ruppert's spare time. When a student at Columbia, he was the national intercollegiate one-mile bicycle champion. Later his tastes ran to ice yacht racing, salt water yachting and golf. His membership in eight clubs attests to his interest in these sports.

When his brother died, George Ruppert was offered the presidency of the Yankees. An ardent baseball fan, he wanted the job but pleaded the pressure of other duties. Characteristically, he suggested that the experienced Ed Barrow be given the post. When Barrow was elected president, Ruppert became vice-president.

Ruppert is a tall, slender man with graying hair. He was born on March 18, 1875, in an unpretentious New York home in the shadow of his father's brewery.

BOOK WEEK

Schools, libraries and book stores are celebrating BOOK WEEK. Read more books. Urge your children to read more books. But when they read, be sure that they have Better Light for Better Sight.

TRY THIS SUGGESTION

• An I. E. S. study lamp equipped with at least a 100-watt bulb.

... it's foolish when GOOD LIGHT is so cheap!

You can help to protect the precious eyesight of your children—and all the family—by giving them plenty of good light for study and reading. A good lamp doesn't glare into the eyes, as in the picture above. It diffuses the light throughout the room, dispels black shadows, yet throws a flood of soft light on the book.

Never before has good light cost so little, so it doesn't pay to run the risk of eyestrain. Make sure that you have at least 100 watts in every reading lamp in your home—properly shaded. A 100-watt MAZDA lamp costs only 15¢ and the added cost of electricity is only a fraction of a cent an evening.

Remember:

Sport Parade

By Henry McLemore.

NEW YORK (UP)—I was being strapped into the side saddle for a canter through the park today when the groom, a chap named Bride, shoved an important-looking letter into my hand.

It was from the Turf and Sport Digest of Baltimore, asking me to vote on the selection of "the horse of the year." I could have given my answer right there, but not wishing to offend the horse I was sitting on top of, I cut the thongs that bound me to the saddle, and hurried here to the office to cast my ballot.

In very large letters on the voting slip for the outstanding horse of the year I wrote JOHNSTOWN. That's my choice, first, last and always. You may have your Challedon, your Kayak the Twice, and your Bimelech, I'll take William Woodward's big three-year-old who brought the red hood of the Belair stud rolling home in front in the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes.

He broke down during the season, sure, but what do you think made him crack up? Nothing but this: He was too fast for his own good. There was so much speed, so much drive, so much will to run in him, that his body couldn't stand it. It's no secret that the big fellow cracked seven—yes, seven—track records in his final workout at Aqueduct before being shipped to Chicago for the Arlington Classic. That workout must have finished him, because he wasn't himself at Chicago and he never ran another race after that one. His breathing became bad and his legs began to show the wear and tear of his blistering jaunts.

But what a running fool he was before he broke down! Had you seen him at Louisville, making every pole a winning one in the Derby you'd vote the same as I have. He was at his best that day, and, given a fast track, which, after all, is the kind races are supposed to be run over, he made Challedon look like something unhitched from the children's pony cart.

He could carry his weight and speed over a distance of ground, too. He proved that in the Belmont when he went a mile and a half and came past the judges with his ears erect and his jockey holding him back. Johnstown whipped Challedon twice—in the Derby and in the Dwyer Stakes at a mile and one-eighth. Challedon beat Big John twice, at Arlington and in the Preakness. But the big fellow was ailing at Chicago and the mud was fetlock-deep for the Preakness.

A fact that influences me in picking Johnstown as the horse of the year is that he won the two stakes that are tops with horsemen—the Derby and the Belmont. The Derby requires that a horse be able to run in the spring but only for a mile and a quarter. The Belmont—and horsemen will tell you that its mile and a half journey is the truest test of a thoroughbred we have in this country—requires the heart and strength to go a route.

The fact that he didn't last the entire racing year should not be held against him. It's the quality of the races won, and not the quantity. So Big John gets my vote. Of course, Landon got it in 1936 and you know what happened to him.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BOBCATS WIND UP WORK FOR FRIDAY'S GAME

Light Drill Is Scheduled For Tonight

It's all over now but the shouting—and the game.

The Childress Bobcats have perfected the defense and the offense they will use in tomorrow night's game with the Wichita Falls Coyotes. They will take a light drill tonight, but it will be a routine matter designed to relieve the tension.

Three long and rough scrimmage sessions this week have left them in top physical and mental condition and have served to prepare them for what the Coyotes have to offer.

Except for disappointment due to the failure of Vic Bates, 170-pound fullback, to continue his recovery from a leg injury, the Bobcat workouts this week have been highly encouraging. Bouncing back from a lusterless performance against the Quanah Indians last Friday night, the squad turned in the most impressive practice performances of the season this week.

Bates, however, apparently hasn't regained full power and may not be ready for full-time duty in Friday night's game. The soreness has departed from his leg muscle, but he still has a slight limp which results in loss of speed and starting power.

He is sure to get into the game, probably as a starter, and his defensive work will likely bolster the Bobcat forces, but his ability to slash the line in his early season style is still questionable.

Max Jones, the only Bobcat casualty of the Quanah game, is not expected to be bothered by his slight toe bruise. All other members of the squad are in top condition.

Most of the Bobcat work this week has been centered around a plan to halt the swift and deceptive ground attack of the Coyotes. The Wichitans have the best crop of ball toters in the district and their attack features speed and deception.

The Bobcat starters will probably be Jones at center, Junior Brown and Sammy Privitt at guards, Brack Taylor and Albert Williams at tackles, Jim Howard and Clifford Foster at ends, Leroy Reeves, Buford Landers, Morgan Goodson and either Bates or James Willeford in the backfield. If Bates goes the immit, Willeford will alternate with Goodson and Reeves.

Coyote starters are Leo Stienkoenig at center, Phil Bolin and Armstrong at guards, Smokey Huff and Whitlow at tackles, Parker and Baumgardner at ends, Curtus Holder, R. C. Johnston, Bill Bell and Tom Bill Arthur in the backfield.

Half of the 566 signers of the Declaration of Independence were college bred; 16 had "classical" educations; two were instructed entirely by tutors, and 16 had very little learning.

COYOTES READY Huge Crowd of Fans Will Follow Wichita Falls Team Here for Game

WICHITA FALLS.—Their last hard pre-game workout behind them, the Wichita Falls Coyotes looked forward Wednesday night to their final and longest road trip of the year. They will go into Childress Friday with fond hopes of wresting the district 2AA lead from the Bobcats.

Indications were that the game might draw the largest following of Wichitans in several years. A. K. Presson, assistant principal of the high school, said he has had an unusual number of requests for reserved seat tickets.

Big Crowd to Ride Train Six years ago, a special train from Wichita Falls to Childress for a crucial game such as the one Friday, carried 1,600 passengers. More than 1,000 may make the trip Friday.

Presson said that 150 reserved seat tickets will be sold in Wichita Falls Thursday morning at 8 o'clock at the Strand theater box office. These will cost 75 cents.

Students making the trip were warned by Presson that they should buy student tickets before they leave, since they will be unable to purchase them in Childress. Adults may buy general admission tickets at Renfro drug store No. 1 or on the train.

The workout Wednesday saw a general overhauling of the Coyote ground game and passing attack. Coach Joe Gibson's somewhat unorthodox defense has given the Wichita Falls coaches a tedious problem in revising assignments for the players.

Viewing the Childress team as probably the strongest that has yet opposed the Coyotes, Coach Ted Jefferies said:

"It will be a game that I don't feel I would have to be ashamed to lose."

Injuries continued to be a minor but vexatious problem, with Rudolph Manz, Hubert Lesley, Max Baumgardner, Kenneth Tasker and Bill Bell all hurt.

Manz' twisted ankle leaves the Coyotes more dependent than ever before on Curtis Holder, for the two are the only tailbacks who have seen extensive service. Lesley has been the first line substitute for Bell at blocking back, but J. P. McMahon can also work there if needed. Baumgardner's end position can be handled quite capably by George Powell, but an injury to either Joe Parker or Powell would leave the team in a sad shape at the flanks. Tasker has seen much service at guard, but is not a usual starter.

High-Test Oxydol can offer astonishing results because it is a revolutionary "new-type" soap—containing a remarkable new ingredient. An ingredient that combines white-washing power with SAFETY in a way that scientists have sought for years.

Fortified by this new ingredient, High-Test Oxydol does these amazing things, compared to less efficient soaps tested.

First: It gets white clothes as much as 9 to 11 shades whiter than other bar and package soaps lacking its new ingredient. Actual Tintometer shades, as shown by our laboratory tests.

Second: Cup for cup, it gives up to three times the suds—suds stand up 2 to 3 times longer.

Third: Yet is SAFE for washable colors, fabrics, hands. So safe, that even cotton prints given the equivalent of a full year's washing, showed no perceptible sign of fading—came out looking bright and fresh as new.

In tub washing—new High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in 10 minutes. No scrubbing, no boiling. Even grimy spots come clean with a few quick rubs. Thus ends the time-wasting, back-breaking drudgery of washboard rubbing. And clothes last 2 to 3 times longer, from the standpoint of washday wear and tear.

In washing machines—High-Test Oxydol's efficiency is so remarkable that leading washing machine makers are switching to it—as the soap they recommend for whiter, brighter washes in washers old or new. It soaks out dirt while the washer runs—gives double-action wash.

High-Test Oxydol is economical, too. Each cup of it goes up to 1/4 again as far as less efficient soaps tested.

FOOTBALL
Indians to Be
On Spot in
Electra Game

QUANAH.—The Quanah Indians will be on the spot here Friday night when they entertain the powerful Electra Tigers. The Indians are on the spot because, though they have been on the losing end of the score often, they have given their fans to expect 60 minutes of hard football each game.

Last week the Indians pushed the top contending Childress team all over the lot but failed to win. The Tribe got off to a late start.

Admittedly, the Indians have shown improvement throughout the season. Conclusion of Friday night's game will leave them still two more games, with Vernon and Olney.

Coaches were drilling the squad intensively, attempting to bring about further perfection. Except for minor injuries the Tribe will start the game Friday night as strong as they have been in any conference encounter.

Offensive strength is being built around Wells, Edmondson, Lowrey, and Britton plus the line and ends. The coaches are laboring hardest on pass defense. With the players keyed to the proper point the game here Friday night will be another thriller.

VERNON.—With a new attitude prevailing as well as some badly needed confidence prevalent, the Vernon Lions concentrated on a half hour's blackboard work designed by Coach Pat Gerald Wednesday afternoon, and then tried new plays on the field.

These new drills are to be tried against the untied and unbeaten Breckenridge Buckaroos Friday afternoon, and if they are as successful as they were on the practice field Wednesday, the Lions' invasion should be successful Friday.

THE TACTICS TEXAN

By Gene A. Howe.

Weather: More of the same. But it can't keep this up forever. Look for some sort of disturbance over the weekend. There may not be much moisture, but these balmy days can't go on forever. You can count on this.

The first Christmas card of the season arrived on my desk today.

And everybody sure should get busy with their Christmas shopping.

Here is a letter from Mr. Amon Carter down at Fort Worth and he's writing about TCU's prospects for NEXT year. And he says Bill Thompson is a sensation already.

Mr. Carter says that Bill is so wrought up about what he will do next year that he wakes himself up a dozen times each night by tackling himself in his sleep.

Someone writes that Clyde Tolson, right hand man of J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has the following safety slogan:

"It is much better to kill a little time than to kill a little child."

And the letter adds: "Slogans are good but they don't carry the same message as, 'I fine you $50 and 30 days.' That's the only language the road rats understand."

But people surely are driving much more slowly and much more carefully than they did before the safety campaigns. Ninety-five per cent of the drivers are regular people; only about five per cent of them are smart alecks.

And the truck drivers, on the average, are just as careful and courteous as you could possibly want.

There are people who write and telephone in to complain about the cab drivers driving so fast, but the cab drivers I observe are much more careful than the average individual. And something else is that they know how to drive. They don't linger along but neither do they drive nearly as fast as some persons seem to think.

There are some people I don't understand. I know of a couple, for example, who have a whole house full of children. The mother and father are as esteemed as any married couple. They are church-going; they participate in nearly every public movement that comes along; they are kind and generous and intelligent. The father is one of the most successful men; he is the type who is so knowing and understanding that young people go to him for advice.

But yet their children are known all over town for their hair-brain driving. Whenever they're loose in the family car, others start for the curb. Whenever a car goes by so fast that the occupants cannot be recognized, people say, "There go the Blank children."

The father and mother can't help but know about it but as smart and as fine as they are in everything else, they think it's sort of cute or something. Anyway, they don't do anything about it. It isn't right, folks, it isn't.

Famous mistakes by radio announcers:

"And now," said Harry Von Zell confidently, "may I present the former President of the United States, Hoobert Herver."

"We will now take you to Rome," said Announcer Clyde Kittell, introducing a radio address by the Pope, "to hear His Holiness, Pipe Po-ess—I mean, Pipe Poess." He stopped, horrified and started again. "His Holiness, Pope Pius, speaking to you from Vatican City."

"Anyone who has listened to me has had occasion to use aspirin."

"Try Good Gulf gas saloon," urged Graham McNamee.

A St. Louis announcer, waiting for a silent interval in which to read a one-minute commercial, absent-mindedly chose the moment following the introductory announcement:

"The next voice you hear will be that of Pope Pius."

In the ensuing silence the announcer said quickly:

"Ajax beer is the beer for me."

"Borden's brings you the world's best cheese. Tonight we present some of Hollywood's outstanding stars."

Eugene Field used to tell of a Chicago Scotchman who wouldn't let his little baby have but one meal at a time.

One of the most noted paragraphs:

A woman is a person who reaches for a chair when she answers the telephone.

Interesting facts:

If any celestial mishap should retard the earth's speed in its yearly whirl around the sun, the terrific pull of the sun's gravity could well draw our globe into that fiery body itself or at least bring us so close we'd all be reduced to ashes.

To produce a single pound of perfume oil of roses, eight tons of flowers are required and the oil's value is approximately $175. But a synthetic oil of roses, recently developed, which smells the same to even the most acute noses, commands only $22.50 a pound—which is why some perfumes are cheap. . . . A checkup of the National Press Club's record for 1938 reveals that Anthony Eden, at its Washington luncheon for an informal chat with the news diggers, excelled even F. D. R. in pulling attendance. . . . Bananas are today the king fruit of Central America because a Spanish priest, Father de Berlanza, brought a few banana roots from the Canary Islands to Santo Domingo and planted them there just 24 years after Columbus had discovered America. . . . Atlantic City's municipally-owned radio station WPG, has rung up a deficit of $418,000 to date. . . . Sane observation of Capt. George E. T. Eyston, the doughty Briton who drove his super-super-motor car over the Bonneville (Utah) salt flats at 357 1/2 miles per hour: "I would be the last man to drive a car at high speed on a public highway." . . . A type of influenza that strikes the Hebrides Islands is known as "strangers' cold," due to the fact that its inhabitants never suffer from it until shortly after the arrival of strangers on their isles. . . . Despite Mussolini spent upwards of $25,000,000 for the great display to impress Hitler on his most recent visit to Italy, Il Duce still held out on Adolf in one respect. He didn't allow the great procession in Rome, which Hitler and King Victo Emmanuel headed, to pass under the Arch of Constantine, which is reserved for conquerors. But maybe this was to pay back Der Fuehrer for not taking Benito under the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, which was formerly reserved for the Kaiser exclusively. But of course Adolf rides under it now. . . . The phrase, "He drinks like a fish," is meaningless for the fish's process of gulping water is really comparable to the breathing of a human being and is simply for the purpose of extracting oxygen from the water, via the gills, just as our own lungs extract it from the air we breathe. . . . To battle the inroads of mechanical refrigerators, the ice dealers of America will put $2,250,000 into advertising the coming three years. . . . A study of inhabitants of the lonely and infrequently visited island of Tristan da Cunha, off the English coast, showed that of 4,000 teeth examined, less than 2 per cent showed signs of decay, although the islanders have never used tooth brushes and subsist chiefly on soft foods like fish and potatoes. . . . Recent court testimony threw light on Hollywood's insatiable yen for money. A film tycoon testified that when the late movie executive Irving Thalberg, was making from $12,000 to $15,000 a week, he still felt he was being underpaid compared with another big shot on the same lot. . . . Two of the nation's great newspapers are known to their communities as "the P. D."—the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Cleveland Plain Dealer. . . . A favorite instrument of torture now used by nazi storm troopers is the old-fashioned cat-o-nine-tails. . . . Up to the middle 1870's, California was a great grain growing state and hardly any attention was paid there to the cultivation of fruit and vegetables, in which it excels today. . . . Observation of an editor: "One picture may be worth 10,000 words, as the Chinese proverb says, but not every picture is."

At one time, poultry and bees were included under the heading of "cattle" in England.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER TECHNICALCOLOR Picture by FRANCES BARBOUR

SYNOPSIS: Dorothy (Judy Garland) is a little country girl whose dog, Toto, is in danger of being destroyed by a mean neighbor, Miss Gulch. That night a cyclone hits and Judy is blown to the Land of Oz. On her way to find the Wizard (Frank Morgan) who alone can send her back to Kansas, she meets a Scarecrow (Ray Bolger), who wants a brain, a Tin Woodman (Jack Haley), who wants a heart and a Cowardly Lion (Bert Lahr), who wants Courage. They reach the Wizard's Palace and are told their requests will be granted if they kill the Wicked Witch and bring back her broomstick. NOW READ CHAPTER FOUR—BELOW

"We're on enemy ground from here on."

Just outside the Emerald City they find themselves on the edge of a Haunted Forest. They must travel through it to get to the Witch's Palace. The Cowardly Lion wants to turn back but the Scarecrow and the Tin Woodman pick him up and carry him along. Then, right before their eyes, some spooks begin to do a dance.

"Come on, I can handle two like you."

The spooks vanish but the branches and leaves of the trees start to jump around. Suddenly, one of the trees reaches out and grabs Dorothy. The Scarecrow threatens to beat Mr. Tree up and Dorothy is released. Then they all cry out in alarm. The Wicked Witch has sent her winged monkeys to swoop down upon them.

"You must die delicately so as not to hurt the slipper spell."

The monkeys pounce on Dorothy and Toto and carry them to the Wicked Witch who declares that unless Dorothy gives up the magic ruby shoes Toto will be killed. Dorothy tearfully agrees but the shoes won't come off. The Witch gleefully sets an hourglass. When the sand runs out Dorothy will die and the shoes will come loose.

"We better make sure the Witch isn't in there."

In the meantime, Dorothy's three friends climb a big steep mountain and come to the Witch's Palace. They are attacked by three Winkie guards but they overpower the men, get into their costumes and head for the room where Dorothy is held captive. Then suddenly a voice rings out. Don't miss reading the next exciting episode.

discharged from the U. S. penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. to his relatives," the announcement said.

The justice department did not say where Capone would go now that he has been released but his relatives have indicated that he would receive treatment at some private sanatorium.

So secretive was Capone's transfer across the continent that none but the highest officials in the justice department's bureau of prisons knew of his whereabouts.

Even after the announcement of Capone's release had been made here, administrative officials at Lewisburg disclaimed knowledge of the convict's presence there or his release. The warden was not at the penitentiary, however, it was said.

Capone's brother, Ralph, lives at Villanova, Pa. and it was believed that he met his brother at the prison when the release was made official soon after dawn today.

CHURCHILL AROUSES UDC IRE

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UP)—The United Daughters of the Confederacy were up in arms today against Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty.

The UDC in their 46th annual convention condemned Churchill's audacity "in comparing the policies of Adolf Hitler's Germany with those of southern states" in the war between the states.

Their wrath was incurred when Mrs. Walter Lamar, president general of the UDC, quoted Churchill as saying in a recent speech,

"British may take heart from the American civil war, when all the heroism of the south could not redeem their cause from the stain of slavery, just as all the courage and skill which the Germans always show in war will not free them from the reproach of nazism with its intolerance and brutality."

The UDC's resolution termed Churchill's statement a "gratuitous insult."

The low-wing monoplane, special-built Northrop Gamma, equipped with a Wasp motor, used by Lincoln Ellsworth on his antarctic expedition in 1935, enabled the expedition to obtain nine miles per gallon of gasoline at a cruising speed of 150 miles an hour.

AT THE THEATERS

Capt. E. A. Salisbury, explorer among the cannibals and headhunter of the Western Pacific will lecture at the Monogram theater. To hear him is to be transported for a couple of hours to the other side of the world among races still in the stone age, to visualize the almost unbelievable things of which one reads.

In fast succession, thrill piled upon thrill, are shown wonderful scenes of the islands themselves, some of them reared upon coral reefs, and covered with a mass of vegetation, the odd ceremonies and costumes of these savage tribes, their weird religious dances, and the more intimate details of their everyday lives. The climax of the story of "Gow" depicts the stirring combat between two of the head-hunting tribes for the possession of the Chieftain "Gow's" daughter kidnapped by slavers. This picture of secret practices and a fast-disappearing race can never be duplicated. It should not be missed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance.

TEXT: Matthew 8:14-27.

This lesson on the works of the Messiah presents the Master in various relationships. The lesson topic for young people and adults is "Ministering to Human Needs," and that sums up the life work of Jesus.

We have a picture, first of all, of Jesus as the Great Healer, and we have also suggested rather clearly the limits of that healing ministry and the fact that it was not at all the chief purpose of His ministry. That Jesus should have worked miracles of healing is not strange. The mysteries of spiritual healing have not as yet by any means been solved; but if there is much in that field to confront the too credulous, there is also a great deal to confound the skeptical.

If the reader is interested in these things, he can find great evidence of what is suggested here in two books by John Maillard, "Healing in the Name of Jesus" and "Miracles of Faith," in which he tells of what a modern minister, a man of unselfish purpose and very devout faith, has done in the name of Jesus in this ministry of healing.

But it is important to notice that just when the fame of His healing had brought great multitudes around Him, instead of carrying on that ministry of healing, Jesus gave commandment to His disciples to go to the other side of the lake. The mission of Jesus was not for the healing of men's bodies but for the care of their souls, and Jesus was always anxious to maintain the major purpose of His mission. While He performed remarkable acts of healing, He disparaged these in comparison with the higher work that He had to perform in restoring men's souls and bringing abundance of life to those whose lives were frustrated or shattered.

The secret of the power of Jesus to heal both soul and body is revealed in a portion of this lesson. It was in the completeness of His own sacrifice and unselfishness. He had given up everything for the sake of His ministry. When one of the scribes came and impulsively hailed Him as a teacher, assuring Him that he would follow Him wherever He went, Jesus replied in the famous words, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the heaven have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head."

When another disciple, wishing to follow Him, spoke first of going to bury his father, Jesus replied in words somewhat more difficult to understand, "Follow me; and leave the dead to bury their own dead." Whatever these words may mean, they indicate the complete consecration of the Master and the true disciple to the ministry of love and service.

The lesson closes with the dramatic picture of the disciples at sea, stricken by a great tempest while the Master was asleep, probably wearied by His contact with the multitudes. Here again the greatness of the Master was revealed as the sea calmed at His word. The disciples marveled, saying, "What manner of man is this, that even the winds and sea obey him?" And men marvel still, as they always will, as they read the wonderful story of the Christ.

Ickes Says FDR Capable Of Decision

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes today said President Roosevelt is quite capable of speaking for himself on the third term question.

He made the statement at a press conference when a reporter queried him on a recent statement by Garner for president workers who said it is believed the president will not run for a third term.

Ickes declared it would be hard to ask him to underwrite the assumptions of the campaign managers.

A reporter asked, "To what do you attribute President Roosevelt's reticence?"

Ickes brushed the question aside. "You always knock them across, don't you?" he shot back.

The question, Ickes added, could lie where it fell.

Defend Phillips On Dry Position

OKLAHOMA CITY (UP)—The prohibition bloc of the Phillips administration today arose to defend the governor against charges that he has deserted the dry cause.

Hubert Bolen, state tax commissioner and J. W. Williamson, former secretary of the United Drys, declared that Phillips has not branded himself as a wet sympathizer by his willingness to submit the repeal question at a special election.

Meanwhile U. S. Sen. Josh Lee and State Superintendent A. L. Crable came out against the repeal movement.

Film Workers Threaten Strike

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The motion picture industry was threatened today with a walkout of 35,000 technicians next Tuesday unless the wages of all American federation of labor members in the movies are raised ten per cent.

An ultimatum was handed the studios last night by William Bioff, chairman of the AFL conference of studio unions. Producers were given until 2:30 p. m. Monday to agree to the raise.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Arnold Benthorne names five persons who hate him as he waits for his murderer. His luck has run out. While he recalls his phenomenal business success, the door opens, the killer enters. Benthorne recognizes his visitor, takes a desperate chance.

CHAPTER II

Huddled against the gatepost, Patrolman Flynn had not missed the sliver of light that filtered through the rain as Arnold Benthorne peered out into the storm. For hours he had watched that window, steadily, throughout the night. He knew Arnold Benthorne was in that room—waiting.

"Poor fool," Flynn said to himself. "Him and all his money—and afraid that someone's going to get him. Sitting up there waiting. Cold and wet as they are, I'd rather be in Dan Flynn's shoes to-night than Arnold Benthorne's."

He jumped, involuntarily, at the sudden flash of lightning and the clap of thunder that followed. He hunched his shoulders deeper into his raincoat, resumed his pacing back and forth before the gate.

A TAXICAB slid to a stop at the curb. The door opened and a young man's head emerged. "Officer! Oh, officer!" the young man called.

Flynn turned. "What do you want, at this time of the night? If you're drunk, you're disorderly and I'll—"

"It's not drunk I am, officer. We're looking for a minister. We want to get married."

"What?"

"That's right, officer," the taxi driver put in. "There used to be a minister lived around here someplace. These kids—"

"These idiots!" Officer Flynn retorted. "Here, let's have a look at you." His flashlight sent a beam through the darkness to show the laughing face of a youth peering out the cab door. Raindrops flecked the young man's red hair.

"You've an honest face," Officer Flynn conceded grudgingly. "And that wild look in your eyes explains why you'd be getting yourself married on a night like this. But where's the girl that'd be marrying the likes of you?" His flashlight swept the interior of the cab.

Huddled in the corner was the girl. She was small, dark of hair, dark of complexion. It was her eyes that Officer Flynn remembered best, later in the night. "Smoky, they were, sir," he reported, "just like little live coals with a wisp of smoke coming from them."

"Can't you wait to be married in the morning, like decent folks?" Flynn growled at her, but his tone belied his anger.

"It's his idea, not mine!" the girl answered from her corner.

Flynn turned back to the young man. "It's a surly wife you're picking, if I may say so, lad. But then my own is no angel. Now what are your names?"

"Do you have to know that, officer?" the youth asked. "After all, we've committed no crime, just asking your help in finding a minister."

"Anyone that stops in front of Arnold Benthorne's house tonight has to give his name. Captain's orders. Come on, now tell me who you are."

Illustrations by Ed Gunder.

"If you're going to write down our names, you'd better step into the cab, sir," the youth suggested. "Here, climb in. I'll stand out on the curb. I'll turn on the light for you."

Flynn pulled his notebook out of a raincoat pocket, leaned, wet and dripping, into the cab. In the light the girl was even prettier. She pulled her slicker closer about her, turned her face to the darkness. "Now your name, son."

"John Douglas," came the voice behind him.

"And yours," Flynn nodded toward the girl. Her answer was softly spoken, so softly Flynn hardly heard.

"Ara Johnson."

"And let's see your license," to the cab driver. The driver fumbled in his pocket for a moment, finally withdrew a greasy card. "N-i-c-k S-m-i-t-h," Flynn spelled out slowly. "Well, looks all right. Now you get going, you'll find a minister on 21st and—Say! Where did that young fellow go?"

The cab's motor roared. Swiftly the girl reached across the seat, gave Flynn a shove and slammed the door. Before the patrolman could recover his balance and struggle to draw his revolver the cab had disappeared in the darkness. John Douglas was nowhere in sight.

Flynn's whistle shrilled through the night.

"HEY, you, where do you think you're going?" The policeman, gun in hand, darted from the shadows of the garage, hurried to the figure that had just come up the walk.

"I beg your pardon," a soft voice answered. "I am William Alston. I've come to see my daughter, Mrs. Benthorne. She called for me. I am sure she's expecting me. May I ring?"

"Captain's orders were to admit no one, sir," the policeman's tone was deferential. "Go ahead, ring the bell, and we'll see."

In a moment the door opened, throwing a shaft of light on the tall, old man.

"Come right in, Mr. Alston," came the butler's voice. "Mrs. Benthorne is in her rooms. She asked that you come up immediately. It's all right, officer."

The door closed. As the policeman returned to his post just inside the garage doors, the piercing notes of a police whistle split the night. The policeman ran toward the front of the house.

Suddenly he stopped short, as a shot echoed above the rumbling thunder.

Then he ran on.

JOEY DI TORIO smoothed his coat over the automatic in his armpit holster, pulled his hat deeper over his face.

"Now, Benthorne," he said softly to himself, "comes the payoff."

He walked out the door, into the clamor and din of night club gaiety. An orchestra blared from across the dance floor, and a throaty-voiced contralto mourned an unfaithful lover. Guests spoke to him as he walked between the tables. A waiter came up at his nod.

"Get Pete here," Joey ordered. He turned to a noisy table.

"Lo Marge, 'lo Dave." A wave encompassed the others. "Getting off to a late start. Past midnight, Dave, and you're still on your feet—"

"Been here almost two hours—only six drinks, and still can see—" Dave laughed. "What'yu doing, Joey, cutting your whiskey now?"

"Takes champagne to get you going, Dave." And as Pete touched his elbow, "Pete, champagne for Dave's crowd, on me." They all cheered and whooped after him as he walked away. "I'll be back soon, stick around and we'll have another round before closing."

They'd remember the champagne, and the time, too. Joey wanted them to remember the time. They'd forget about the floor show, if they could see it.

"I'll be back in an hour, Pete," he added in a lower tone. "It's after midnight now." Joey pulled his wrist in front of him, made sure Pete saw his watch. "Take over." He went out into the rain.

In his car a few minutes later, he stopped under a street light, set the hands of his watch back, exactly one hour.

Seeks to Save Life of Boy

MINNEAPOLIS (UP)—A physician and a 19-year-old girl took one chance in thousands today that might save 6-year-old Norman Dolinsky, whom doctors said is doomed to die within a week from a rare blood disease which few survive.

The girl, who lives at St. Paul recovered from the disease three years ago. Physicians agreed to make the test which will determine whether her blood is the proper type for a transfusion in a last attempt to save the boy's life.

Jones Speaks To Highway Beauty Group

Cooperation of highway beautification committees with civic organizations for mutual benefit was discussed by Clyde Jones, chamber of commerce and board of city development secretary here, at a meeting of the District Committee on Highway Beautification at the highway building this morning.

Applying his suggestions locally, the Childress county representatives planned a cleanup campaign for the state highway through this city before the Texas highway commission comes here Dec. 5 to be honored at a banquet.

Means of securing young trees and distributing them for planting along highways next spring were discussed. The group also talked of a nation-wide campaign for eliminating unsightly roadside advertising and examined literature of the subject, particularly a series of articles in "Readers Digest" magazine.

Mrs. W. U. Dannelly of Childress, district chairman, presided. Members were present also from Wheeler, Hall, Motley, Dickens, Cottle, Knox, Beard and Collingsworth counties. In the latter county Mrs. Chester Pires has lately been appointed county chairman to succeed Mrs. W. W. McClaskey, who will continue to serve as co-chairman.

the supreme court this year when Felix Frankfurter was named.

In a eulogy delivered from the bench, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes announced that last rites would be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at St. Matthews cathedral here.

Hughes described his associate as a "doughy warrior" who served his convictions with "fidelity, courage and forthrightness."

Friend of Czar Dies in Oklahoma

WEATHERFORD, Okla. (UP)—Funeral services were arranged today for Jacob Rense, 76, who was said to have represented the late Czar Nicholas of Russia at the court of the Shah of Persia many years ago.

Rense died late yesterday. He came to Oklahoma 28 years ago. He spoke the Russian, English, German and Polish languages. Survivors include his widow and eight children.

his field notes will be the same and titles will be issued quickly," he said.

The special board, which was created by the legislature, has delayed issuing a proclamation until the survey is completed.

"In that way the landowners will have a full year to secure title," Giles said. "Otherwise they would have a year from date of the proclamation."

reserved space.

Virtually all reserved seat tickets have been sold and all indications point to a record crowd. General admission tickets for adults are on sale at all drug stores and fans are urged to buy them downtown rather than wait until they reach the field.

Student tickets will be sold only at the school buildings here.
