WTC commemorates Silver Anniversary

Ground breaking held in November of 1970

The 1995-96 school year is being observed as Western Texas College's Silver Anniversary, commemorating the ground-breaking date for construction of the college.

The 25th anniversary falls between two other important start-up dates for the institution.

On Nov. 22, 1969, the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System granted approval for a local election to create the college district.

The election established a tax base which partially funds the college's operation. Held Nov. 22, 1969, it was carried by the overwhelming margin of approximately 10 to 1 in favor of creating the college district.

Classes began in the fall of 1971, although the campus buildings were not yet complete. For that first fall term, 649 students were registered.

The two years prior to this saw the employment of administrators and staff and the beginning of construction of the physical plant, then valued at $4 million.

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held in November of 1970. The completion of the first phase of construction was heralded on April 18, 1972, with a Dedication Day on campus.

Other important events associated with those early days include the naming of the first WTC board of trustees in 1970.

Elected to serve were M.L. Broman, then head of SACROC operations here and the man named as the first board president; Dr. Robert H. Hargrove, a local dentist; L.A. (George) Patterson, then city manager; William A. (Bill) Jones, a county rancher and stockman; Edwin Parks, also a rancher/stockman; and local businessmen R.C. Patton and William H. (Bill) Wilson Jr.

From that original board, Patton and Wilson remain as trustees.

Fall registration to begin Monday

Registration for the fall term at Western Texas College is Monday and Tuesday with classes slated to begin Wednesday.

For freshmen, the dormitories open this Sunday at 2 p.m. and sophomore residents are expected beginning at 10 a.m. Monday.

The first dormitory meal of the year, a Continental breakfast, will be served in the cafeteria beginning at 8 a.m. Monday.

Regarding registration, sophomores will register Monday afternoon and freshmen Tuesday morning in the Student Center. A special evening class registration is due Monday from 6:30 until 8 p.m. also.

For both sophomores and freshmen, a registration schedule is slated based upon the first letter of the student's last name.

Sophomores will register from 1 until 4 p.m. Monday. The registration schedule is:

—1-2 p.m, surnames A-F.
—2-3 p.m, surnames G-O.
—3-4 p.m, surnames P-Z .

Freshmen will register from 8:30 until 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. The registration schedule is:

—8:30-9:30 a.m., surnames A-F.
—9:30-10:30 a.m., surnames G-O.
—10:30-11:30 a.m., surnames P-Z.

The registration for all persons will continue Tuesday afternoon from 1 until 4 p.m.

Those enrolling in classes should note two important dates. The last day to enroll or to change a class schedule is Tuesday, Aug. 29 and the last day to drop a class is Nov. 10, a Friday.

The semester consists of 16 weeks of classroom lectures. Finals will be Dec. 4-6 and the fall term for faculty and staff officially ends Dec. 8.

Accident kills U.S. officials

Group was headed for peace talks in Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Two top U.S. officials headed for peace talks in Sarajevo were killed Saturday when their vehicle tumbled down a ravine and hit two land mines.

Robert Frasure, a deputy assistant secretary of state, and Nelson Drew, a National Security Council aide, were killed in the accident, a senior U.N. official in Sarajevo said.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said four other Americans and three French peacekeepers were injured. One of the Americans was in critical condition, he said.

The identities of the injured were not immediately available. But Joseph Kruzel, a deputy assistant secretary of defense, was reportedly traveling in the same vehicle as Frasure.

The French armored vehicle tumbled off a muddy dirt track leading to Mount Igman road, the treacherous route into the Bosnian capital. It hit two land mines as it fell, caught fire and exploded.

"There's no evidence of hostile action," said White House spokeswoman Mary Ellen Glynn. "It looks like it was an accident."

Frasure, the top U.S. envoy to a group of five nations trying to mediate an end to the war in the former Yugoslavia, was accompanying U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke to peace talks with the Bosnian president.

Bosnian government officials initially said Holbrooke and Lt. Gen. Wesley Clark, of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, continued on to Sarajevo. But they later said the visit was canceled.

The U.S. Embassy said Holbrooke was unhurt, but declined further comment.

The delegation has discussed the plan in Serbia and Croatia, and Croatian President Franjo Tudjman praised the plan on Friday as a possible means to achieve a lasting peace.

The officials intended to present it to Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic Saturday.

Details of the U.S. plan have not been officially disclosed, but media reports have said it would lift economic sanctions against Serb-led Yugoslavia and provide international aid to rebuild Bosnia. If any side refuses to participate, the plan would allow arms sales to its enemies.

Izetbegovic set the agenda for the discussions by unveiling his own plan on the eve of Holbrooke's arrival. The plan included points believed at the core of the U.S. initiative: mutual recognition between Croatia, Serbia and Bosnia and a division of Bosnia between the Muslim-led government and the Serb rebels.

However, at least three elements of the Bosnian initiative are new and likely to be difficult for international mediators to negotiate.

Izetbegovic said he would not accept any U.N. administration of Sarajevo.

Commissioners court to hear requests, reports

Three new items of new business await the Scurry County Commississioners Court when it meets Monday at 10 a.m.

A petition will be presented to the court by Hermleigh resident Jean Sharp, to close an alley in that community.

The court will also consider an appointment to the Big Country Libray System board and County Clerk Frances Billingsley will request that the court consolidate voting boxes for the constitutional amendment election in November.

Reports from various county boards will also be presented. They include reports from the welfare and library boards and the July report from the county extension office.

Budget amendments will also be considered, as well as line-item transfers.

The court will consider one budget item, the publishing of the official list of the salaries of elected county officials for the coming fiscal year.

Awards, entertainment to highlight CoC banquet

Awards, chuck wagon cooking, cowboy poetry and dancing are to highlight Saturday evening's annual Snyder Chamber of Commerce Banquet, titled "Texas Fun Under the Stars."

Chamber board president Daryl Thomas said Saturday morning that more than 400 people are planning to attend the event, which will be held at the Jack and Bettie Greene Ranch north of Snyder. Reservations were due last Monday.

Food will be prepared by the Chuck Wagon Gang. Desperado will provide music for the dinner and dance. Dan Willis, cowboy poet and storyteller from Cranfills Gap, is the featured entertainer.

Among the awards to be presented are the McLaughlin Award. for contribution to the oil industry; the Vestal Award, for contribution to the development of Snyder through cultural, economic or governmental activities; the Sizemore Award, for the outstanding Goldcoater; and the Winston Award, for achievement in agriculture.

Others are the Educational Excellence Award, for lifetime achievement in the field of teaching; and the Business of the Year award.

A new award to be presented this year is the Chamber's Choice for Outstanding Service. This award is to be presented to an individual who consistently provides outstanding service to the community.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Modern kids don't ask where babies come from. They want to know where the batteries went."

There's due to be some strangers in town early in the week, and don't be surprised if you see them armed with TV cameras.

Snyder is one of four Texas towns to be visited by a production crew from the German Public Broadcasting Station. Chamber manager Donna Fowler has been been helping to arrange the visit for several weeks.

Their plan is to produce a documentary on oil production, and the impact of declining U.S. production on petroleum-dependent towns.

Tim Dickey of Dallas has been hired to assist the German broadcast team when it arrives in Texas. The crew will touch down at DFW Sunday and is due to arrive in Snyder late Monday with reservations at the Purple Sage.

The production crew is due to spend some three days in Snyder. The team is also scheduled to visit Midland-Odessa, Borger and Kilgore.

While in Snyder, the crew will spend considerable time with Cloyce Talbott, chairman of Patterson Energy. The Snyder-based firm was recently featured in the oil section of the Midland Reporter-Telegram as being the second-largest horizontal driller in the U.S. In terms of footage, Patterson is the sixth largest U.S. drilling company. Patterson, a publicly-traded firm, operates 27 drilling rigs, mostly in West Texas and in the Austin Chalk. State-wide, the company has more than 400 employees.

The TV crew will shoot footage around the county, as well as interview some displaced oilfield workers.

It's not surprising that Scurry County was selected for a visit, since the Kelly-Snyder field has produced 1.4 billion barrels since 1948. The SACROC unit, which peaked at daily production of 240,000 barrels in 1974, has declined to below 9,000 per day.

Tabloid: Lisa wants to divorce Michael

LONDON (AP) — Angered that Michael Jackson took two boys on a recent trip to Paris, Lisa Marie Presley wants a divorce after just 15 months of marriage, a newspaper reported Friday.

The Mirror tabloid quoted an unidentified Presley aide as saying, "Lisa Marie thought she loved the guy, but now she thinks she can never get close to him."

"She was really angry when he went abroad with the small boys," the aide was quoted as telling Britain's second-largest newspaper.

Asked about the report, Jackson publicist Lee Solters in Los Angeles said Friday, "I know nothing about it."

Answering fans' questions on the Internet Thursday night, Jackson denied the report that his wife has contacted lawyers to get a "quickie divorce" next month in the Dominican Republic, where the couple wed in May 1994.

"Never believe the tabloid garbage," he said. "Don't waste your time or money."

In Friday's story, the Mirror said Jackson took two brothers, ages 11 and 14, to Disneyland Paris and then Switzerland. Jackson "is an old friend," the paper quoted their father as saying.

The newspaper published a photograph of Jackson, his face covered with a surgical-type mask, apparently walking through an airport with two boys wearing track suits and baseball caps, their heads bowed.

In 1993, a 13-year-old boy claimed Jackson molested him during a five-month relationship. The pop star denied the allegations and wasn't charged. The boy and Jackson settled a lawsuit last year for a reported $15 million.

Meanwhile, Saturday's Today newspaper said Santa Barbara, Calif., District Attorney Tom Sneddon had twice contacted Presley's mother, Priscilla, for information about Jackson's relationships with young boys.

Both Santa Barbara and Los Angeles County investigators looked into the molestation allegations in 1993.

Library planned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A library could be going up in the spot where Rodney King got beat down.

City officials are proposing to bring books to the site of King's infamous videotaped beating by police four years ago.

No plans have been developed for the library. A series of meetings in the Lake View Terrace community are planned on the issue.

Hearing will determine fate of ostrich investor scheme

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal agency has scheduled a hearing to consider an injunction against an allegedly fraudulent ostrich breeding investment scheme that has operated in Texas, Oklahoma and three other states.

The Securities and Exchange Commission says a hearing is scheduled for Thursday to consider a permanent injunction against a group it alleges has bilked more than 700 investors nationwide out of $6.5 million.

An SEC complaint alleges that since at least 1992, the group used high-pressure sales tactics to push investors to buy into the ostrich ventures.

The commission said the group also operates from Arizona, Texas, Florida, Nevada and Massachusetts.

The defendants are accused of violating anti-fraud, registration and broker-dealer provisions of federal securities laws.

Named in the SEC action are: International Breeders Inc.; First Western Ostrich Corp.; Ostrich Breeders of America, NSA Inc.; Capital Management and Development Corp.; Jeffrey Davis; Bob Stewart; Steven Floyd Stewart; Clifford Duane Stahl and Rik Foxx.

The defendants promised investors they could make returns of 500 percent or more on the partnerships, telling them the investment was fully insured and virtually risk-free. But the investors have received no returns.

Co-anchor set

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Rudolph Giuliani's wife will fill in as a co-anchor on one of the city's midday newscasts, but she won't be dishing any dirt on His Honor.

To avoid a conflict of interest, Donna Hanover won't be reading stories about her husband when she fills in for a week on WNYW.

It will be Hanover's first stint behind an anchor desk since her husband's election two years ago. She was a reporter at the Fox station from 1992 to 1993 and returned in February as a morning show feature reporter.

Man arrested after gluing eyes closed

DETROIT (AP) — A father is charged with sealing his sleeping 5-year-old daughter's eyes shut with superglue following a fight with the girl's mother over money.

Gene Jamison, 33, was charged with child abuse, felonious assault, and assault and battery, said Officer Helga Dahm.

Police said Jamison glued Ausia Jamison's eyes shut Thursday and cut off her ponytail after fighting with his wife because she wouldn't give him money.

Ausia was discharged from a hospital Friday night after emergency surgery and was expected to regain her vision in several days. The superglue had completely sealed her left eye and partially closed her right eye, said Dr. John Roarty, a pediatric ophthalmologist.

There was no permanent damage to the girl's eyelids, and the abrasions to both corneas were expected to heal without problems.

Ausia's surgery was complicated by a genetic disorder called de Lange Syndrome, that has left her moderately to severely mentally retarded. The disorder prevented Ausia from explaining to doctors how well she could see, Roarty said.

An examination of the girl found no other signs of abuse, said hospital spokeswoman Julie Nemeth.

Bishop faces church trial

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Episcopal bishops have voted to bring a retired colleague before a formal church trial because he ordained an openly gay man.

Presiding Bishop Edmond Browing said Friday that at least 75 bishops have voted to move forward with charges that retired Bishop Walter Righter of Iowa violated church law by ordaining a homosexual deacon in 1990. Righter was assistant bishop of Newark, N.J., at the time.

A minimum of one-quarter of the church's 297 bishops had to vote by this week to proceed with the trial or the charges would have been dismissed. Church officials did not release the vote totals.

In January, 10 bishops filed charges accusing Righter of violating his ordination vows by ordaining a man openly having a gay relationship. The bishops said Righter was "teaching a doctrine contrary to that held by this church."

Righter has denied the charges, saying church doctrine in this case does not limit a bishop's right to ordain a "canonically qualified candidate."

The case will go before a Court for the Trial of a Bishop, consisting of nine other bishops.

Computer hacker caught with millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Russian computer hackers broke into a Citibank electronic money transfer system and stole more than $10 million before they were caught, according to court documents unsealed Friday.

The bank said six people have been arrested in the scheme, in which money was allegedly shifted from Citibank to accounts in Finland, Russia, Germany, the Netherlands, the United States, Israel and Switzerland.

Citibank, the nation's No. 1 bank, said $400,000 still had not been recovered but the bank has reimbursed clients who lost money. Spokeswoman Amy Dates said other transfers were either blocked or reversed.

The Citibank system allows customers to transfer their money to accounts at other banks. Dates said the bank's control systems provided the tip to the fraudulent transactions. She would not be more specific.

In an affidavit unsealed in New York, FBI agent Steven Garfinkel said the hackers made about 40 transfers totaling more than $10 million between June 1994 and October.

At least one of the hackers, who was arrested about a year ago while in San Francisco opening accounts to receive the stolen money, is helping investigators, the affidavit said.

A Russian computer expert, Vladimir Levin, was arrested in London while passing through Britain and was fighting extradition to the United States.

U.S. authorities say that Levin, in his job as head systems operator at a Russian software company, AO Saturn, figured out how to get around Citibank's security system and transfer money out of others' accounts.

Citibank is owned by New York-based Citicorp.

Two local churches take part in missions convention events

Two local churches are planning a joint missions convention, Sunday through Wednesday.

First Assembly of God and Lighthouse Assembly of God are teaming with missionaries to "Present Jesus to the Nations," a week of exposure to the mission fields around the world.

Sunday preaching services are set for 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. at First Assembly and 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. at Lighthouse. Weeknight services at each church will begin at 7 p.m.

The public is cordially invited. A schedule of events is as follows:

SUNDAY

—FIRST ASSEMBLY: Rev. Jane Christiansen, 10:45 a.m. and Rev. John Bocchieri, 6 p.m.

—LIGHTHOUSE: Bocchieri will speak at 10:30 a.m. and Rev. Marvin Gilbert will be the 6 p.m. speaker.

MONDAY

—FIRST ASSEMBLY: Rev. Paul Hutsell.

—LIGHTHOUSE: Rev. Brent Teague.

TUESDAY

—FIRST ASSEMBLY: Rev. Jim Lemons.

—LIGHTHOUSE: Rev. Steve Woodward.

WEDNESDAY

—FIRST ASSEMBLY: Rev. Marvin Gilbert.

—LIGHTHOUSE: Rev. Jim Lemons.

Hustell is a missionary to Paraguay.

John and Sondra Bocchieri are nationally appointed foreign missionaries working with ICI University. He has worked with pastors in Quatemala recently. They have two children, Christopher and Liana.

Gilbert is a missionary in Nairobi, Kenya. He and his wife, Rosie, have two children, Stephen and Lea.

Brent and Shelly Teague are missionaries to Niger, West Africa. They have two daughters, Ashley and Amber. Niger is one of the newest works of the Assemblies of Gid in Africa.

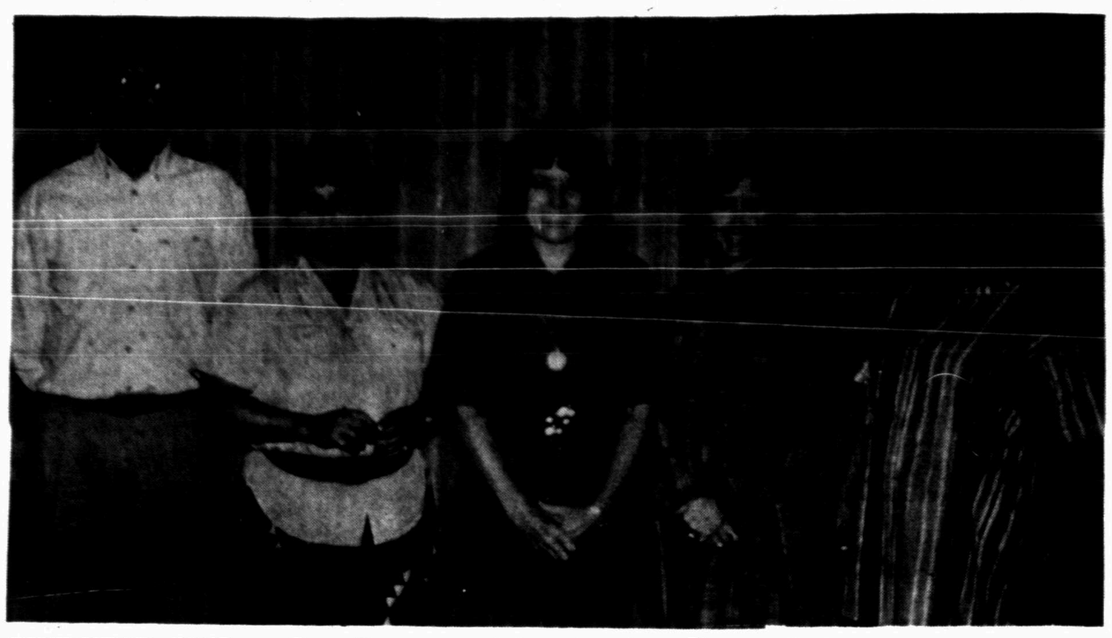

Steve and Sheri Woodward are missionaries to Southern Mexico. They have three children, Bryan, Brittany and Kaylee.

Christiansen is a missionary in Central America.

Jim and Cynthia Lemons are missionaries to Cameroon, Africa.

A Missions Banquet is slated for Thursday at the First Assembly of God Church in Lamesa. The event begins at 7:30 p.m. and Rev. Robert Slaton will be the guest speaker.

Area First Assembly of God Churches having missionaries as guest speakers this week include Big Spring, Brownfield, Colorado City, Seagraves and Seminole.

Popular drug may cause brain damage

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ecstasy, a drug popular with teenagers who writhe through all-night dance parties known as "raves," may cause irreversible brain damage and depression.

Users of the drug claim it heightens their sex drive while giving them a sense of tranquility.

But according to a Johns Hopkins University study, published in this month's Journal of Neuroscience, the drug causes lasting damage to the parts of the brain that produce the chemical serotonin, which controls mood, appetite and sexual functions.

"Results suggest that people who have used (Ecstasy) in the past have some kind of (brain) damage," said George Ricaurte, an assistant professor of neurology at Johns Hopkins.

Brain cells produce serotonin in their axons, which reach out from the cells like trees with branches.

"Ecstasy, or MDMA, trims off the axons, but leaves the nerve cells intact," Ricaurte said. "We wanted to see if they could be grown back."

Some laboratory rats experienced regeneration of the axon branches, but Ricaurte said there was very little in monkeys. Any regrowth he found was abnormal. In people, lack of normal axons and the resulting loss of serotonin could lead to depression, he said.

One neurologist said the study was further evidence that using Ecstasy is risky.

"It makes you feel good, but you're going to probably get hurt," said Robert Daroff, chief of staff at University Hospitals in Cleveland and editor-in-chief of Neurology, a journal published by the American Academy of Neurology.

Daroff said the Johns Hopkins study was not as important as a University of Chicago study last year that found Ecstasy damaged brain cells.

Ecstasy was created in the early 1980s by underground drug designers who increased the potency of an amphetamine and changed its chemical composition to make it technically legal. The drug was made illegal in 1985.

Most institutions that track national drug use don't track Ecstasy as a separate drug, including it with other stimulants in their surveys.

But a 1993 University of Michigan study found the drug was most prevalent among people in their 20s.

New habits may cure insomnia

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had insomnia for about two years. For the last 10 months, I've been taking an Ambien tablet each night, as prescribed by my doctor. That I'm hooked on Ambien is quite evident; when I try to skip a dose I can't fall asleep. My concern is side effects and whether there is a safe alternative to Ambien. I'm a 75-year-old active retiree. Please help.

DEAR READER: Ambien, a new type of sleeping pill, is not supposed to be addictive, according to the manufacturer. In fact, one of the drug's selling points is that it can be stopped at any time without adverse effects. Thus, your inability to fall asleep is more probably a result of your insomnia than withdrawal from the medication. Ask your doctor about this.

There are many alternatives to Ambien or any other sleeping pill.

First, try some behavioral modification. Don't nap during the day. Avoid drinking beverages — especially those containing alcohol or caffeine — in the evening. Don't retire until you're tired. Avoid watching television in the bedroom; if you must watch TV, stick to evening shows that are not stimulating. (Come to think of it, that includes most of them!)

Use the bedroom for sleeping only and make sure the room is appropriately quiet, darkened, and at the right temperature when you're ready for bed. Make sure that you get plenty of exercise during the day so that your body will be good and tired at night.

If your insomnia is caused by what I call "problem-solving" (replaying mental tapes of worries and concerns), try to solve these difficulties during the day (with appropriate counseling, as needed) or merely let them go (especially if they're problems over which you have no control).

Second, if you're taking prescription medication, check with your doctor. Many, many drugs (chiefly antidepressants) can cause insomnia. If you're on medicine, a change may be in order. As a corollary, if you're in pain (from arthritis, for instance), make sure you take either over-the-counter or prescription analgesics before bed. Chronic pain is a common cause of insomnia, particularly in the elderly.

Third, if you want to give up Ambien, do so. Try substituting 100 milligrams of Benadryl at night. That's four capsules of a non-prescription antihistamine that causes sleepiness. The drug is entirely safe and causes no complications, including habituation.

Finally, if your sleeplessness remains a problem despite these suggestions, ask your doctor to refer you to a sleep laboratory, where your actual nocturnal habits can be meticulously recorded and analyzed for the purpose of giving you individualized advice and therapy. Such labs are available in large teaching hospitals.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter has interstitial cystitis. She's been treated with medication that hasn't helped. While I realize the condition is not life-threatening, it is certainly terribly uncomfortable and embarrassing. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: This bladder inflammation of unknown cause usually affects middle-aged women, causing painful urination, urgency and blood in the urine. Because it is not an infection (as are most types of cystitis), antibiotics are not helpful in treatment. The diagnosis is made by biopsy of the bladder lining.

Therapy most often consists of repeated stretching of the bladder and cautery of the ulcerated lesions that characterize the affliction. Your daughter should be under the care of a urologist, who can perform this treatment.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am concerned about my 70-year-old mother who, for many years, has been taking Xanax as a sleep aid. She refuses to discuss alternate treatment. What are the long-term side effects of this medicine?

DEAR READER: Xanax, a prescription drug used to combat excessive anxiety, is commonly used for the short-term treatment of insomnia.

By and large, it is a safe medication. However, the manufacturer warns that it can cause a drug dependence and symptoms of withdrawal, including seizures. Side effects, which may occur in a small percentage of users, include drowsiness, dizziness, low blood pressure, amnesia, jaundice, and others.

If your mother requires a sleep aid and you are concerned about Xanax, she might be better off taking a lower dose. For example, the drug is available in a quarter milligram size that can be broken in half. Obviously, with a reduced dose, she'll be less likely to suffer any consequences.

Or she might be helped by using over-the-counter sleeping pills, such as Sominex. Ask her doctor about this — and whether your mother should taper her dose of Xanax before stopping the drug.

Financial Focus

John Smith plans to begin investing after he saves up a bunch of cash and when conditions are "just right."

Jane Doe, on the other hand, invests $50 every month in a mutual fund that meets her objectives for safety and growth.

Who has a better chance of building up a large nest egg?

Investing does not require expert timing or big sums of cash. Too often, individuals put off beginning an investment program, thinking they need to accumulate a large initial deposit and invest it at just the right time. On the contrary, systematically investing small sums of money on a regular basis through all financial conditions often provides better results than a large, one-time investment.

To illustrate the long-term benefits of systematic investing, let's assume an individual invested $2,000 in the Standard & Poor's 500 Index on his birthday every year from 1964 to 1994. These 30 systematic annual deposits, totaling $60,000, grew to $470,461 - nearly eight times the amount invested.

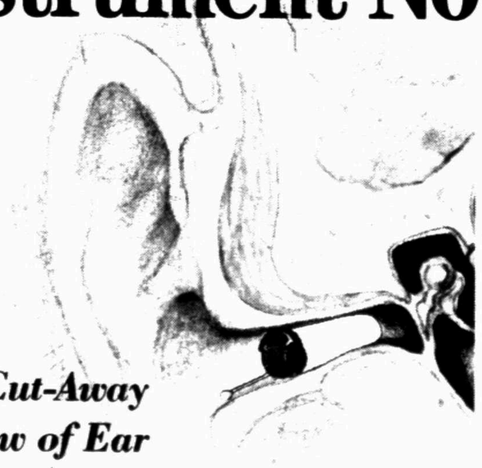

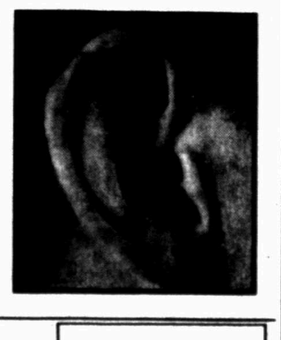

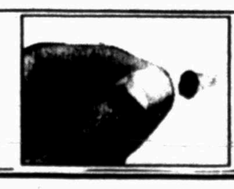

Although past results do not guarantee future performance, illustrations like this focus not only on the value of systematic investing, but also on the benefits of a long-term approach. During the 30-year period in our example, many events occurred to discourage investing: civil rights issues, Vietnam, trade deficits, oil crises, Watergate, a falling dollar, skyrocketing inflation and interest rates, and a stock market crash. There were roughly 8,000 investing days in that period, yet the market made most of its gains in only 90 days. Knowing which 90 days to be in the market, though, would have been virtually impossible. Long-term investors who stayed in the market through all conditions would have been rewarded.

Yet another example reinforces the value of long-term investing. A study by Ibbotson Associates, a firm well-respected for its statistical data on the securities market, showed that during the 69-year period from year-end 1925 through 1994, larger company stocks averaged annual returns of 10.2 percent, and smaller companies averaged 12.2 percent. While short-term returns were probably a lot lower during certain periods of those years, overall, stocks provided attractive returns for investors who stuck with them for the long term.

Trying to save up for one big investment, and attempting to predict the perfect time to invest for the short term, can be extremely difficult. On the other hand, starting now with smaller ammounts is not only easier, it can be much more rewarding.

Astro-Graph By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, Aug. 20, 1995

Substantial benefits might develop for you in the year ahead through social organizations. In your instance, it may pay to be a joiner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions in general appear rather hopeful for you today, especially in a situation where you work in close conjunction with a friend for a mutual purpose. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can achieve several meaningful objectives today if you strive for them in a methodical manner. Try not to rush into anything.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A departure from your usual patterns could be warranted today when socializing with friends. More fun things are likely to happen in exciting, new settings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A collective endeavor has promising potential today, provided both parties lock in on the same objective. On your own, your chances are only nominal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you may be sold on your own ideas and concepts today, keep an open mind if an intelligent associate expresses some unique thoughts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This will be one of those days when Lady Luck puts you in the right spot at the right time. You may benefit greatly from the success of another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are now in a favorable cycle for romantic adventures. If you've been hoping something pleasant would happen in this area, this might be your day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not be impatient or negative today regarding the outcome of an important development. You could be much better off than you think, so focus on victory.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Intrinsically, you'll know how to have fun and enjoy yourself today. Your demeanor will have a positive effect on companions as well. The secret is to let go.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your financial trend looks consistently good, so watch for unusual opportunities that could be meaningful to you materially.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you will be what actors refer to as a quick study. Instinctively, you'll understand your companions' conceptions and be able to present them well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Let your heart rule your head today if you try to help someone who did a big favor for you recently. You will feel great if you can balance the account.

Your Birthday

Monday, Aug. 21, 1995

In the year ahead, you might experience a consistent rise in popularity. Events will unfold in a manner making people, not things, the critical factors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your associates will appreciate you more today if you don't try to upstage them. Stay in the background and let others take the curtain calls. Major changes are ahead for Leo in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If there is someone you recently met who you would like to know better, don't wait for the object of your interest to give you the go sign. Make the overtures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will have substantial influence over your peers today, and you'll conduct yourself in a commendable manner that will further enhance your popularity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Mentally, you'll be quite receptive today and you will store the knowledge you acquire for future use. Spend your day listening and learning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Commercial conditions appear favorable for you today. When conducting business, hold out for your best deal without bruising anyone else's ego or wallet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Listen to the input and suggestions of others today, but don't disregard your own judgment if you have to make a critical decision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Being industrious and productive will prove far more fun today than wasting time, although you may not think so when you first assess the tasks facing you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will have a charisma and charm about you today that will endear you to romantic prospects. If you've hoped to attract someone special, today's the day.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will have an instinct for accurately gauging the needs and desires of others today. This could be a valuable tool when dealing with the public. Use it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your restlessness won't be easily appeased today unless you have a busy agenda that keeps you moving. Get out and cover productive ground.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Focus your efforts today on things that could enhance your material security and stability. The time you dedicate to firming up your foundations won't be wasted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It would be best not to delegate critical assignments to others today. Even your most effective surrogates may not be able to live up to their reputations.

Plainview man's dog receives expensive medical treatment

PLAINVIEW (AP) — A Plainview man has spent more than $10,000 to treat his sick Great Dane.

"He's part of the family," said Robert Hill, who is 30 years old and divorced.

"In fact, he is my family. He's my child. I've been an animal lover all my life and he's probably the smartest dog and the best companion I've ever had."

Three weeks ago, Hill came home from his job as sales manager for a new-car dealership in Lubbock. He said he knew something was wrong when Zeus didn't get up to greet him.

Zeus is a 2-year-old pedigreed Great Dane that Hill bought from a Clovis, N.M., breeder when the dog was about 2 months old.

An examination by a veterinarian disclosed a massive kidney infection.

The animal refused to eat and was losing weight rapidly, dropping from 170 pounds to 130.

The tentative diagnosis was leptospirosis, a bacterial infection that's also found in cattle, swine, horses and humans.

With Zeus deteriorating rapidly, the only hope was a kidney transplant or dialysis — which takes over for the kidneys, affording them an opportunity to heal and begin functioning again.

"But Zeus didn't qualify for a transplant because he was infectious," said Hill. "It's normally done on dogs with hereditary problems."

Hill did some checking and learned the only place that does machine dialysis on dogs is a veterinary school at Davis, Calif.

He had Zues flown to California, where the dog began receiving four hours of dialysis every other day.

"He's doing great," Hill said Friday. "He's finally eating. If all goes well, I hope to get him back in a week. I know it's kinda crazy, but it's something I felt I had to do."

FDA approves nasal spray for osteoporosis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved an easier way for some women with crippling osteoporosis to take their medicine.

Osteoporosis afflicts 25 million Americans, most of them postmenopausal women. It causes the bones to become brittle and break easily, resulting in 1.5 million fractures and 50,000 deaths a year.

The best treatment is the hormone estrogen, but many women refuse to take it because of side effects, including a possible risk of certain cancers. For those women, the only alternative has been injections of another hormone, calcitonin derived from salmon.

The FDA on Friday approved a version of that calcitonin in an easier-to-use nasal spray, called Miacalcin.

The spray was cleared to treat osteoporosis in estrogen-averse women who are more than five years past menopause. It must be taken with adequate amounts of calcium and vitamin D to work properly, manufacturer Sandoz Pharmaceutical Corp. said.

Miacalcin "should be a welcome option" for such patients, Sandra Raymond, executive director of the National Osteoporosis Foundation, said in a statement.

Clinical trials show daily use of the nasal spray increased the bone mass of patients' spines. But the trials did not show increased bone in the hip, a major spot for osteoporosis fractures, the FDA cautioned. The FDA also required Sandoz to do long-term studies proving whether the increased spinal mass actually resulted in fewer fractures.

Sandoz said as many as 10 million women could be eligible for Miacalcin, citing studies that show up to 50 percent of all postmenopausal women shun estrogen. But there are no data to prove how many of these women continue to refuse estrogen after they are diagnosed with osteoporosis.

A more ground-breaking drug, Merck & Co.'s Fosamax, is poised to become the nation's first nonhormonal treatment for osteoporosis, preventing bone loss by binding to the cells that attack bone. FDA approval is expected by the end of the year.

School gains top recognition

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Medical research at the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio saw the greatest gain in scientific influence over the past decade of any university in the country, according to a new study.

The health science center is ranked No. 9 among U.S. universities in terms of the overall impact of its clinical medical research, according to the September issue of Science Watch, a publication of the Philadelphia-based Institute for Scientific Information.

"It underscores the success of our strategy of putting our emphasis on excellence," said Dr. John P. Howe III, president of the health science center. "And through these difficult times of the '80s, we've emphasized the importance of our very talented faculty."

The rankings were based on the average number of times a university's research papers were cited by other scientists in their own papers.

San Antonio researchers published a relatively modest number of papers between 1990 and 1994, 1,947 papers in all, ranking the health science center 36th in the nation in total papers published.

Nevertheless, those papers were cited by other researchers an average of 6.4 times each.

By comparison, the University of California at Los Angeles ranked third in the nation in the number of papers published but 22nd in impact with 5.46 citations per paper.

San Antonio led the nation with the greatest improvement in impact, comparing papers published between 1981 and 1985 with papers published between 1990 and 1994, according to the group.

More things your electric company didn't tell you:

Heat pumps aren't so hot.

When it gets around freezing, heat pumps switch on their inefficient, expensive electric heating coils. That's why your electric bill heats you up when your heat pump won't.

On the other hand, today's super-efficient propane furnaces and space heaters heat your home quickly and comfortably. It's simple. These furnaces provide air that's about 40 degrees warmer than heat pumps deliver. And if you're still heating with non-heat pump electricity, you could save up to 60%, with propane. That's economy. So instead of bundling up indoors, save a bundle. Propane brings the comforts and energy savings of natural gas to homes beyond natural gas lines.

OFF TO THE RACES—Snyder Tiger coaches got their first look in a game type situation Saturday morning at Travis Field during the annual Watermelon Bowl. Banged-up Reds outlast Houston, 8-3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jerome Walton left the game after crashing the centerfield wall trying to take a home run from Mike Simms. Reggie Sanders had a sore jaw from trying to make a diving catch on Derrick May's double.

What's with these guys?

"A pitcher on this team knows he has a great defense and he can get away with pitches and isn't afraid to challenge hitters," said David Wells (2-1) after the Cincinnati Reds beat the Houston Astros 8-3 Friday night.

"I mean, these guys go get 'em and aren't afraid to hurl themselves against a wall trying to make a catch. It makes the game a lot easier knowing those guys are going to make those plays."

Their play contradicted Houston manager Terry Collins' assessment that the Astros wanted this three-game series more than Cincinnati.

"This is a big series for us — a bigger series for us than them," Collins said. "We have to make a statement that we can play with them, and we haven't done it yet."

The Reds are 8-0 against Houston, which accounts for their eight-game margin over the second-place Astros in the NL Central. Manager Davey Johnson said his team seems to delight in beating Houston.

"We've gotten up for every series, every game we've played against them," Johnson said. "We weren't playing very well and they were playing well when we went there in June and swept them four straight. That was the biggest series of the year for me. They put a lot of pressure on themselves by saying it was a big, big series and we took all four."

Both teams had been drifting lately. Cincinnati has won just five of its past 11 games, but the Astros have won only three of 11.

"They stack up well with us," said Reds slugger Ron Gant. "But I think we've got an edge speedwise and a little more power."

Gant drove in two runs with a homer, his 25th, and singled in a run.

Simms accounted for two Houston runs with a sixth-inning homer, his fourth, off Wells who pitched six innings for his second win since being acquired from Detroit on July 31.

Johnson goes 3-for-5 as Sox upend Rangers

CHICAGO (AP) — Lance Johnson was a bit perturbed about going hitless earlier in the week, so he made some modifications.

They worked.

Johnson went 3-for-5 Friday, driving in a run and scoring a run as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers, 3-1.

But Thursday's performance in a 2-1, 10-inning White Sox loss lingered.

"I went 0-for-4. It was good to come out and give a little payback. I had to go in and get two or three hits today," Johnson said Friday.

"I didn't swing the bat good yesterday. I felt good today. Some days you feel good hitting and some days you don't. ... Sometimes it's mechanical. I made some adjustments. I've got to keep those adjustments."

Asked what he altered, Johnson replied: "I'm not going to tell you."

Whatever it was, he got the White Sox rolling.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the second when Ray Durham led off with a double, moved to third on Ron Karkovice's sacrifice and scored on Johnson's single.

The White Sox loaded the bases with no outs in the third on back-to-back singles by Tim Raines and Frank Thomas and a walk to Robin Ventura. Mike Devereaux's sacrifice fly scored Raines for a 2-0 lead.

Chicago made it 3-0 in the fourth when Johnson singled, stole second, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Raines' third single of the game.

Raines went 3-for-4, raising his average to .301, scoring a run and driving in a run. Raines is 25-for-59 (.424) in August with five doubles, a triple and three home runs.

"Over the last month I've been swinging the bat the way I'm capable of swinging it," Raines said. "I'm usually an August hitter."

Wilson Alvarez (5-7) pitched 5 2-3 innings, allowing one run on six hits and two walks with four strikeouts. Jose DeLeon pitched 2 1-3 innings of hitless relief and Roberto Hernandez got his 21st save.

Lowrance plays in Texas Amateur

Snyder's Brooke Lowrance competed last week in the 1995 Women's Texas State Amateur golf tournament held at The Woodlands Country Club in Houston.

The 1995 graduate of Snyder High School played in the qualifying round last Monday. The stroke play was used for flighting the tournament.

Lowrance, who played in the championship flight, competed in three matches in the single-elimination tournament. On Tuesday, she defeated Becky Miesen of Houston; 3 to 2, and Wednesday Lowrance edged Julie Robichaux of Houston, 4 to 3. She was defeated in the quarter-finals by University of Florida golfer Valorie Ragan, 4 to 3.

This fall, Lowrance will be attending Texas Tech on a golf scholarship.

PROTECTING THE BALL—The annual Watermelon Bowl featuring the 1995 Snyder Tigers was held Saturday morning at Travis Field. The annual inter-squad scrimmage was the first game type situation for Head Coach David Baugh and the rest of his staff. Shown above is a defensive lineman who is trying to take away the football from a running back. The Tigers will scrimmage Fort Stockton Thursday, in Stanton before traveling to Slaton on Aug. 31 to scrimmage the Tigers. (SDN Staff Photo by Brent Taylor)

Cowboys' owner says he has upper hand in race to grab Deion Sanders

FORT WORTH (AP) — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has said he has the upper hand in a race with the San Francisco 49ers for the services of Deion Sanders.

"I'd be shocked if Deion Sanders doesn't join us," Jones told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram for its Saturday editions.

Meanwhile, 49ers chief executive Carmen Policy is taking a more low-key public position on the competition.

"If Jerry puts his mind to something, he gets it," Policy said. "If Jerry makes up his mind to find a way to put together a pre-eminent financial package for Deion, and if he finds a way to work with players to make the room ... we may not be able to match it."

Cowboys officials said Friday that they have presented the free-agent cornerback with a complex, multiyear contract proposal. No terms were disclosed.

However, Jones said Sanders would be offered the opportunity to play at wide receiver on offense, as well as his usual defensive duties at cornerback.

"Not just as a token, but as a true two-way player," he said.

San Francisco also is offering a long-term pact worth in the $2 million-a-year range, the Star-Telegram said. But Policy told the newspaper that he is aware of the Cowboys' apparent willingness to hurdle financial obstacles the 49ers cannot.

"We're not going to drive our bus off a cliff just to go faster than the guy in the other lane," he added.

The newspaper quoted unidentified officials with the Cowboys and 49ers as saying that Sanders, the 1994 NFL defensive most valuable player for his play with the Super Bowl-champion 49ers, is likely to sign with the Cowboys upon the completion of the present baseball season, possibly earlier.

Sanders is playing center field for the San Francisco Giants, where he was traded around midseason from the Cincinnati Reds.

"Does Dallas offer more opportunities to a man like Deion than, say, Green Bay?" Jones asked rhetorically. "Miami is attractive, but it's not the Dallas Cowboys. Add everything up, we can get things done here that can't be done in San Francisco. That's not hard to see."

Jones added, "We think we've got the best team in football right now. And Deion Sanders will make us even better."

But Policy said the 49ers can successfully defend its NFC title against a Dallas challenge this season, with or without Sanders. Furthermore, "We've got a salary structure in place, with Steve Young and Jerry Rice atop of it, that must be respected," he said.

Meanwhile, Troy Aikman has told the Cowboys that he would be willing to restructure his contract to make room under the $37.1 million salary cap for a Sanders deal.

Also, the Star-Telegram quoted an unidentified Cowboy source as saying that Michael Irvin will probably be asked to give back part of his new $4.5 million signing bonus in exchange for an extension beyond 1999.

At Castle Rock...

Wiebe leads International

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Plagued all season by putting problems, Mark Wiebe says maybe he was just standing too close to the hole.

After sinking 45-foot putts from just off the green on two par-5 holes for a pair of eagles Friday, Wiebe said, "Maybe that's my range."

Wiebe, on the verge of losing his PGA Tour card, also had four birdies to charge into the second-round lead in the International.

Wiebe, who lives in the nearby Cherry Hills area of suburban Denver, admitted a special affection for Castle Pines Golf Club.

"If there's such a thing as home-course advantage, then I have one here," Wiebe said. "I've spent some time here, and the people have been really gracious about letting me play. I practiced here for four days last week."

Wiebe had the day's best round — 15 points based on the modified Stableford scoring system used in this tournament — for a 36-hole total of 23 points and a 4-point lead over Lee Janzen and rookie David Duval.

Tied at 17 points were first-round leader Ernie Els, Greg Norman and Davis Love III. Brett Ogle had 16, and Tom Watson was in a group at 15. Defending champion Steve Lowery missed the cut at minus-3.

Because exactly 72 players advanced to today's third round, 11 players competed for the final seven spots in a playoff. Darkness forced a suspension of the playoff, forcing Steve Pate and Marco Gortana to duel at 7 a.m. for the remaining berth.

Wiebe caught Els at the 12th hole and moved in front with his second eagle — worth 5 points — at No. 14.

He added birdies at the 15th and 17th holes, worth 2 points each under a scoring system that gives 0 for par, minus-1 for bogey and minus-3 for double bogey or worse.

Ironically, it was the putter that produced Wiebe's two eagles at the eighth and 14th holes.

"I've been fighting the putting devil," he said. "I've got to tell you, 5 points is definitely a springboard in this format."

Wiebe, who owns two career Tour victories, slumped to 233rd on the money list last year and stands just 194th this year, having won only $42,847 in 16 events. He had reconstructive shoulder surgery in 1994 and his medical exemption runs out this year.

"I have to make about $100,000 in the next four weeks," he said.

Els, who compiled 17 points on Thursday, birdied his first two holes Friday to get to plus-21, but his threatened runaway ran aground. He stumbled at the par-3 fourth hole and took double bogey, costing him 3 points, and suffered another double bogey at No. 9.

"I had a good start, but then I came back down to earth," Els said. "I'm happy to still be at 17 points, even though I had 0 today. I've got to play a couple of good rounds now."

Norman, who started the day with 14 points, added 3 points in what he called a "very average round" to become the early leader in the clubhouse at plus-17. He was later overtaken by Wiebe, Janzen and Duval.

Janzen and Duval each scored 9 points on Friday.

BLOWOUT UNDERWAY—Snyder golfer Rick Hall tees off on the first hold Saturday morning in the seventh annual Snyder Country Club Men's Golf Association Blowout Partnership tournament. The championship, presidents, and first flights teed off with 58 golfers Saturday morning. Another 70 golfers teed off Saturday afternoon in the second, third, and fourth flights. Rachel Shipp receives basketball scholarship

Rachel Shipp, a 1995 graduate of Snyder High School, has been awarded a basketball scholarship to Pensacole Junior College in Florida. She originally received a scholarship to Lake City Junior College in Florida, but the basketball program has since been dropped.

Shipp will be playing for Coach Vicki Carson who is starting her 15th season as the leader of the 'Lady Pirate basketball program. In her 14 previous seasons, Carson has complied a 287-128 record, averaging 20 wins per season. In addition to her coaching duties, Carson serves as assistant athletic director.

The Lady Pirates have dominated the Panhandle Conference, taking nine of the last 14 titles, including a perfect 8-0 conference mark last season. Last year, PJC was ranked No. 2 in Florida and No. 8 in the nation before losing to national No. 1 Florida CC-Jacksonville in the state semifinals.

College

On Dec. 20, 1969, the board named Dr. Robert L. Clinton as the college's first president. He assumed his duties on April 1, 1970. Other administrators named that year were Dr. Ben Brock, dean of the college; and Rex A. Hopkins, business manager.

The employment of faculty and staff began with the first employee hired by the district, Mavis Brumbelow, currently secretary to the president. She was employed in early December of 1969.

WTC has had three college presidents. Clinton was replaced by Dr. Don Newbury in 1981 and current president Dr. Harry Krenek assumed the post in 1986.

Of the original faculty and staff employed by the college during its first year of classes in 1971-72, 13 remain at WTC today, including Mrs. Brumbelow. Others are:

—Larry Anderson, director of media services.

—Mickey Baird, director of student activities.

—Dr. Ed Barkowsky, English instructor and chairperson, Communications and Letters Division.

—Gerald Corkran, director of the Reading Center.

—Bill Halbert, business instructor and chairperson, Business and College Preparatory Division.

—Janet Halbert, English instructor.

—Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services.

—Dr. Mary Hood, psychology instructor and director of counseling services and testing.

—Beverly Johnson, accounts payable clerk in the business office.

—Dr. Jim Palmer, history/economics instructor and chairperson, Social Science Division.

—Ray Robbins, criminal justice instructor.

—Sam Walker, welding instructor.

Burglary nets probated term

A 40-year-old Snyder man received two probated sentences, to be served concurrently, as a result of two no-contest pleas in 132nd District Court Friday.

Juan Antonio Platero of 1910 Coleman, No. 1, pleaded no contest two separate indictments of burglary of a building, a business owned by Ray Wolfkill at the former Pal-O-Mar Motel on Coliseum Drive. Platero was charged with burglaries on Feb. 3 and Feb. 4.

Senior District Judge Gene Dulaney ordered Platero to serve two years in a state jail facility, probated for five years. He was ordered to pay a $500 fine and serve six months in the Scurry County Jail.

Alleged assault probed

An investigation is continuing into an alleged assault that occurred about 7 o'clock Friday evening in the 1300 block of 20th Street.

Ronald Morris, 50, was transported to Cogdell by EMS where he was treated for multiple trauma injuries. He was later transferred to University Medical Center in Lubbock by Snyder EMS where his condition was listed as serious Saturday morning.

No arrests have been made in the case.

In other activity, local law enforcement officers booked one person into the Scurry County Jail Friday another early Saturday morning.

Deputies arrested a 17-year-old female at 3:25 p.m. Friday on a misdemeanor warrant for motion to revoke probation.

At 12:56 a.m. Saturday, officers arrested a 31-year-old male on a Nolan County warrant for failure to appear on an earlier charge of illegally carrying a weapon.

Other activity Friday include an offense report for criminal mischief in reference to a pickup owned by Troy Randolph being damaged at 1712 College Ave.

An offense report for theft was submitted at 2:27 p.m. Friday in reference to a lawn mower being stolen from 217 34th St.

A report of a 16-year-old female runaway was made at 3:25 p.m. but was cancelled when the girl was located in Sweetwater at 5:35 p.m.

BERTHA TERRY

Bertha Terry

1900-1995

Funeral service is set for 4 p.m. Monday in Colonial Hill Baptist Church for Bertha Mae Terry, 94, who died Thursday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Officiating will be the Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor. Burial will follow in Hillside Memorial Gardens under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

Born in the Union Hill Community in Cass County, Tex. Mrs. Terry had been a resident of Scurry County since 1925.

She taught school while her fiance was stationed aboard the SS Tuscania during World War I. She married Samuel Looney Terry on Feb. 12, 1920, in Cass County. Mr. and Mrs. Terry farmed in Cass County until January, 1925, when they moved to Scurry County. They settled on a farm eight miles north of Snyder.

They moved to Snyder after retiring in 1949. Mr. Terry died on June 10, 1972.

Mrs. Terry, a homemaker, was active in civic organizations including Alpha Study Club and a charter member of the Snyder Garden Club where she became a Life Master Flower Show Judge in 1976. She served on the Scurry County Fair board of directors until 1981, and was an adult Bible teacher at Colonial Hill Baptist Church for many years.

She was also preceded in death by a son, Edwin "Sam" Terry.

Survivors include a daughter and son-in-law, Evelyn and Lyle Alexander of Lago Vista, Tex.; nine grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to a favorite charity.

Teens' Shaved Heads May Be More Than Fashion Statement

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-ager who thinks your response to "Concerned Parents," whose 14- and 11-year-old sons want to shave their heads because it's the "in thing," that it's also the "gang thing" was right on the money!

Shaved heads can and do send the wrong signals. It's true that many gangs have adopted this look, and they really do resent nonmembers who copy them. I've known kids who've been attacked for "copying," or they're mistaken for members of rival gangs. This applies to people of all races.

I know people close to the Oklahoma bombing tragedy, and I've had nightmares about Timothy McVeigh's buzzed image. This is a look that seems to stand for violence and war. (What's the first thing they do to enlistees at boot camp? Shave their heads!)

Parents, play it safe and say no. Don't invite trouble. Even if you don't live near gangs, you might have reason to visit an area at some time where they are present. They're not confined just to the inner cities anymore.

Shaved heads, buzz or brush cuts have a different meaning today than they did a generation ago. I know a lot of guys who think they look cool. To me they look like skinned rats. They look downright ugly. I'm also not fond of the "skater" cut that makes the guy look like he has a bowl on his head, nor do I like the baseball caps, half-shaved heads, little ponytails or goatees. I'm sure most kids do it to rebel, but I think they look geeky. I hope these trends pass, or I may never date.

I know looks shouldn't matter that much — it's what's on the inside that counts — but I can't help it. Those styles may look cool to some people, but they turn me off. Maybe it's because I've had negative experiences with those guys. It's not only a "look," it's also an attitude.

My parents say I have a lot of time to worry about dating, anyway. I'll wait as long as it takes.

NOT ABOUT TO COMPROMISE

DEAR NOT: To stand alone and not join the crowd takes courage and conviction. I predict that one of these days, a young man whose values mirror your own will show up.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl. About two months ago, I fell asleep while driving home, and my car was totaled. A few pieces were lying here and there in the ditch I ended up in. I was told that I must have rolled over two or three times. When the car came to a stop, I was hanging upside down by my seat belt. If it hadn't been for that buckled seat belt, I would have been seriously injured, or maybe killed.

Abby, I don't remember a thing that happened from when I started to go off one shoulder of the road until the car came to a complete halt upside down in the ditch. My parents say it is probably "selective amnesia."

What do you think? Is it possible that some time in the future, I might remember going through the wreck?

AMY IN BURFORDVILLE, MO.

DEAR AMY: It's doubtful; the mind has a wonderful way of protecting us from painful memories. Consider yourself one lucky young lady, both because you survived and because you don't have to remember such a horrific experience.

DEAR READERS: About six months ago, I received a letter from World War II veteran E.G. Jackson of Houston, stating that in 1945, he had been a soldier in the Battle of the Bulge. He said that he had taken refuge in a bombed-out building where he found a New Testament with bloody thumbprints beside the inscription, "From the young people of Cyclone Union Church."

Mr. Jackson had been searching for 50 years to locate the soldier who had left the Bible there, but his search was futile. Finally, he prevailed upon me to ask my readers for their help.

Hallelujah! Today, I received news from Roger Newton, a staff writer for the Bradford (Pa.) Era, stating that Mr. Jackson had narrowed the candidates down to two men from Cyclone, Pa. And since it was not possible to determine which of them had lost the Bible, he decided to return it to the church from which it came.

Mr. Jackson, and his wife, Nola, traveled 1,700 miles, from Houston to Cyclone, Pa., to present the Bible to the local church at a special service.

Thanks to you, my readers, the Bible is finally back "home."

An interesting footnote: In his search, Mr. Jackson discovered 78 locations named "Cyclone." However, most of them were mountain peaks or reservoirs; only eight were villages, with populations ranging from seven people to 256 people.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This letter is very difficult to write, but on the chance that it may help someone, please print it.

My husband died recently of metastatic melanoma. I learned much from that experience that I'd like to share with your readers.

First, if you are having a test done to determine if you have cancer, always get a second opinion — even if the results come back in your favor. My husband had a suspicious mole removed in 1991. The tests came back negative for melanoma, so we celebrated and forgot about it. Three years later, at the age of 48, he was dead.

Frequently I hear women talk about a suspicious lump on their mammograms. If the doctor says it's OK, great — but have another doctor take a look at it. Early detection is the key.

Second, understand that skin cancer can be deadly. If you notice any change in a mole (or a new mole), have it checked and removed immediately. And by immediately, I mean the next day, not next week or next month. Unless it is surgically removed very early, it is almost untreatable. No current chemo drugs have a good success rate, and it is resistant to radiation. It spreads fast and it spreads everywhere.

Finally, please take the threat of melanoma seriously. It is one of the fastest-growing cancers in our society because of the sun-loving baby boomers and the reduction of the ozone layer. And it doesn't strike just the old — it strikes people of all ages.

Thanks, Abby, for helping to spread the word. You may use my name.

LAURA HEALEY DE VOS, CINCINNATI

DEAR LAURA: Please accept my sympathy on the loss of your husband. And thank you for writing a letter filled with life-saving information.

DEAR READERS: How is this for a day-brightener:

From Ron Alexander's "Metropolitan Diary" in The New York Times: "In a bookstore in Forest Hills, Queens, a young woman asked her middle-aged friend, 'If women are from Venus, and men are from Mars, how come the men I date are from hunger?'"

Lawmakers, actors re-enact first vote

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Seventy-five years ago, Margaret Wyatt marched with suffragists to the Capitol to watch from the gallery as lawmakers voted to ratify the 19th Amendment giving women the right to vote.

On Friday, Mrs. Wyatt was on the floor of the House as Tennessee lawmakers and actors re-enacted that historic debate and vote.

"My mother came and got me by the arm and said, 'You're gonna walk with me. This is a very historic thing and I don't want you to ever forget it,'" said Mrs. Wyatt, now 92. "I've never forgotten."

In a sign of the times, few lawmakers taking part in the reenactment would wear the red roses that symbolized the anti-suffrage movement.

Visitors in the galleries helped recreate the rowdy debate on Aug. 18, 1920, when Tennessee became the 36th and final state to ratify the amendment after a vote by the House. The Senate had approved it earlier.

They cheered, jeered, booed and hissed. One side yelled "votes for women," the other responded "no votes for women."

The House was a sea of yellow roses — the symbol of the suffrage movement. Many women wore the suffragists' uniform of long white dresses — representing purity — with purple (valor) and yellow (equality) accents. After the vote, many threw their roses onto the House floor.

House Speaker Jimmy Naifeh had been asked to portray the speaker at the time, but he declined the role of Seth Walker, who spoke adamantly against women's right to vote. Instead, the part was handled by Mac Pirkle, director of the Tennessee Repertory Theatre.

Actors speaking against suffrage said it would throw the state into moral and political decay.

"It means the enfranchisements of all harlots, lewd women, and the vast numbers of foreign elements that infest the large cities of this county," said Tim Fudge, who portrayed Rep. F.S. Hall.

The so-called War of the Roses was decided by Harry T. Burn who, with a letter from his mother in his pocket, switched his vote.

A 24-year-old lawmaker from Niota, Burn walked into the House that day wearing a red rose.

After twice voting against it in procedural ballots that ended in ties, Burn followed the advice in his mother's letter, which said: "Hurrah and vote for suffrage!"

The role of Burn went to a fellow McMinn County Republican: Rep. Bob McKee of Athens, who quoted a speech Burn made a few days after the vote.

Lien on land hampers plans

NACOGDOCHES (AP) — Several weeks ago, Ellis County got good news: the State of Texas agreed to deed back to the county 300 acres that was donated for use by the now-defunct Super Collider.

County commissioners had discussed using the farm as a community college campus, a youth exposition center or a work farm for inmates.

However, a whistle-blower's attempt to force the state to pay him a $13.7 million judgment has snarled those plans. George Green, who won a suit against the state over his firing, has laid claim to property in seven counties, including the 300 acres in Ellis County, in an effort to force the state to pay him his money.

Green, 47, won his $13.6 million court judgment after he was fired in 1989 from his architect's job in the Texas Department of Human Services. He was fired when he tried to tell the Texas Legislature about what he felt were improper gifts and leasing arrangements in the agency.

Big Spring man sues for half of jackpot

BIG SPRING (AP) — A waitress who won $12.9 million in a Lotto Texas drawing in May is being sued by a man who said half the jackpot should be his.

R.C. Mills is suing Carol Rains for $6,435,210 — half of her winnings — plus $3 million for mental anguish, plus $3 million in punitive damages, plus $4,717,605 in attorney's fees.

Ms. Rains' winnings were her share of an estimated $55 million jackpot. The lawsuit says she showed "callous, conscious disregard and/or indifference" to him.

He filed the suit Thursday in 118th District Court.

Mills said he purchased two Quik Pick tickets on May 29, keeping one and giving Rains what turned out to be the winning ticket.

Part of his morning routine since retiring, Mills said, has been drinking coffee at Herman's Restaurant, where Ms. Rains waited on him. He said the two had been playing the lottery together for some time, splitting their winnings equally.

In the petition, Mills said he and Ms. Rains won $20 or less on several occasions and that they won $500 in a scratch-off game, $450 in a Pick 3 game and $102 for four correct numbers in a Lotta game.

Each time, he said, the two split their winnings.

Mills said that when he heard that Ms. Rains had won, he contacted her about accompanying her to Austin to claim "their winnings."

"You don't have anything to worry about," Rains said, according to Mills.

Mills said that after Ms. Rains had claimed her first check of $643,521 she transferred $50,000 to Mills' bank account. But then he got nothing more.

Businessman tries to get gold

HOUSTON (AP) — Businessman Larry Barbernell has laid claim to what he says is his share of $25 million in gold bullion in a submarine resting at the bottom of sea.

When Barbernell picked up his Sunday newspaper and saw a story about a gold-laden submarine resting at the bottom of the sea, he read with more than a passing interest.

"That's my ship!" he exclaimed to his wife.

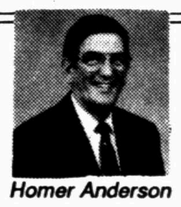

Barbernell says he invested $30,000 in a salvage project that ultimately located the submarine, a World War II Japanese cargo vessel known as I-52.

The exact whereabouts of the I-52 was a mystery until April, when a Hemphill company called AU Holdings found the submarine about 2½ miles below the surface of the Atlantic Ocean.

PRAYER

Homer Anderson

The abundant life reaches out to God in worship "in spirit and in truth (John 4:24). Christians go to the New Testament to discover just how God desires to be worshiped today. The day of offering animal sacrifices and burning incense in the temple in Jerusalem is gone. Jesus has fulfilled the law given through Moses and "nailed it to the cross" (Col. 2:14).

Prayer is one of five avenues of public worship described in the New Testament. In public and private the disciple of Christ will find prayer as important to his spiritual life as air is to his physical life. "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God" (Phil. 4:6 ASV). First century churches of Christ assemble on the first day of each week to worship with fellow Christians according to the pattern revealed in the New Testament (1 Cor. 14:15; 16:2).

Stress forces first female cadet to quit

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — More than two years of death threats, vandalism and court battles stretched Shannon Faulkner to the limit, leaving her with no more strength to continue as The Citadel's first female cadet.

She had reported to the all-male state military college one week ago Saturday, but spent most of the time in the infirmary. In a voice near tears Friday, she said she had enough.

"Saturday has been the hardest day of my life," Ms. Faulkner, 20, said in a driving rain outside the school. She did not know what she would do next.

"The past 2½ years came crashing down on me in an instant. I know my life is going to be miserable for a while," she said.

During her battle to join the corps, Ms. Faulkner's family home in Powdersville was vandalized, she received death threats and she was the brunt of jokes and bumper stickers.

The latest sticker, which showed up on the streets days after she came to The Citadel, showed a cadet on a pink background with the words: "It's A Girl — 186 pounds, 6 ounces."

The college had tried to keep Ms. Faulkner out based on her weight, which was not disclosed. A school spokesman had said Ms. Faulkner was 20 pounds over weight requirements and that the school doctor had recommended she be rejected.

Ms. Faulkner was taken to the infirmary with heat exhaustion Monday, the first day of rigorous drills and marching during what freshmen call "hell week." She never returned to duty.

"I don't think there's any dishonor in leaving," Ms. Faulkner said. "I think there's disjustice in my staying and killing myself just for the political point."

Heat illnesses are not uncommon at the college. One cadet was taken on a stretcher from a physical fitness test Wednesday for treatment of heat stress, officials said. Two others were taken to the hospital Thursday for treatment.

School spokesman Terry Leedom said he knew of no cadet who had missed the crucial first week and then went on to graduate. Twenty-three other cadets also dropped out of the freshman class this week.

Alex Pettett, Ms. Faulkner's company commander, said it was time for The Citadel to put the controversy behind. "Let the alumni forget, let the lawyers forget and let everyone get on with their lives," he said.

Ms. Faulkner has been under continual stress since early 1993, when she sued the college over its all-male admissions policy. The college accepted her application after she had references to her sex deleted from her high school transcript.

She had been taking day classes at The Citadel but had not been allowed to participate in military training until this week. A federal judge ruled last year the college's all-male admissions policy was unconstitutional. Two U.S. Supreme Court justices cleared the way for her admission last Friday.

As a way to keep women out of The Citadel, South Carolina wants to create a separate women's leadership program at Converse College in Spartanburg. The program begins this fall, but the plans have not been approved by the courts.

While the two Supreme Court justices allowed Ms. Faulkner to enter the school this year, the larger question of whether separate but equal educational facilities for women are constitutional has not been resolved by the courts.

A lawyer for Ms. Faulkner, Val Vojdik, said the fight to break The Citadel's all-male tradition will continue. Since Ms. Faulkner began her fight, The Citadel has received more than 200 letters from women interested in joining the corps, he said.

Cadets cheer in rain

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Citadel cadets cheered, honked car horns and did push-ups in the rain to celebrate Shannon Faulkner's decision to withdraw as the first female cadet in the 152-year-history of the school.

"This is a great day to be an American!" shouted one cadet from a third-floor window of the white-walled barracks where Ms. Faulkner had stayed only two nights.

Ms. Faulkner announced Friday she was leaving the military college because of the stress of the 2½-year court fight to get in.

"I'm happy. I don't think she deserves to be here at all," said Amy Hall, a Charleston resident who, with several dozen others, gathered to watch the activity as reporters aired live reports from a parking lot across from the infirmary.

Ms. Faulkner had been sent to the infirmary Monday afternoon, suffering from the 100-degree heat. She emerged Friday afternoon to announce she was leaving the college.

Minutes after she came out, a thunderstorm rumbled into the area. She was sheltered under an umbrella as, fighting back tears, she briefly answered questions from reporters.

"It's a cleansing day for The Citadel," said Sallie Baldwin, former president of Women in Support of The Citadel. Her group raised money to help pay the college's legal expenses by selling bumper stickers reading "Save the Males."

In the barracks where the school spent $25,000 to create a private room and bathroom for Ms. Faulkner, cadets did push-ups on the red and gray checkerboard courtyard in the driving rain.

"It's just guys celebrating," said Ken Dieffenbach, second in command of the approximately 2,000 members of the corps. "It's unfortunate for her, but it keeps this place the way we always wanted it."

As he spoke, a group of freshmen cadets left the barracks in formation.

"God bless the all-male 4th class," they shouted.

Cadet Mike Murphy, who was standing guard at the entrance to the barracks, said Ms. Faulkner's leaving came "as just a total shock to us."

Local family restores Sinclair Service Station

The Sinclair Service Station on Coliseum Drive looks so real that some people cannot resist the impulse to stop, peek inside, and, if Tony Haley is around, share their memories about the "good old days" when the station was a thriving business.

The museum-like, recently restored Sinclair station, could be considered quite a coup for Snyder, as Sinclair sold its Texas interest to ARCO several years ago.

Haley, along with his wife, Josie, and daughter, Jamie, are returning the building to its original look when it opened in 1935. Besides being an afficionado of service station memorabilia, Haley wanted to restore the station this year because it is its 60th anniversary.

The Haleys, who started the work in May, also pushed to get the bulk of it finished in time for the July Fourth Celebration in Towle Park. However, he still considers the Sinclair station a "work in progress" as there is "always something else I want to do," he said.

One future project calls for replacing the neon lighting trim which he has been told once caught on fire.

As the head of housekeeping at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Haley has had to work on the project after hours and on weekends; therefore, his wife and daughter actually started to wash and paint the interior of the small building before he began working on the exterior.

"Neither was sure they wanted to get involved," Haley said, "But once they started they became as hooked as I am."

Haley worked on the station as often as he could, sometimes only for an hour in the evening and on weekends. The added work was "tiring at times," but the project also gave him "extra energy" as he worked and planned.

He worked mainly on the outside, painting the building and displaying and anchoring original signs that beckoned customers decades ago. Signs advertising "clean rest rooms," "windshield service," and other features were once considered essential as service stations then sold gasoline at the same price. According to a 1950s era photograph hanging on a wall, gas sold for 29 cents per gallon.

The steep-pointed, dark green roof, while visually striking, presented a nightmare-like challenge when it came to painting it. Haley borrowed a portable paint gun. Adding to the already difficult task was the 40-mile-an-hour wind that blew that day, he said.

Donated equipment, memorabilia and labor helped make Haley's restoration project a success. When he needed a lubester with a crank, a man found one in his field and gave it to him. Others donated cans of oil and other Sinclair products, as well other name brand items.

Most of the signs are original Sinclair products as are the gasoline pumps. He obtained quite a few signs from a man in Oklahoma whose granddad had once operated a Sinclair station.

One of the signs bears two large letters, "HC," which Haley said, "The older generation can appreciate as it stood for high compression gasoline."

Gas pumps were donated by a Sinclair dealer in New Mexico.

Haley's restored station also stocks an upper lube kit, cans of brake fluid and tire repair kits, once popular in the 1950s.

Though quite small when it opened, Haley said the station was more than adequate to sell gas and soda pop and repair flats. It had two restrooms. The station also has a basement with "a surprising amount of storage space," he added. He said the men's restroom sign on the door is the original one installed when the station opened.

Though Haley and his family spearheaded the project, he said they would never have been able to have completed the bulk of the work within their self-imposed two-month deadline without the help and cooperation of numerous people, plus the donation of many Sinclair products and pieces of equipment.

Community interest was sparked as soon as Haley painted the trim around the windows. People began asking questions right away, he said.

As word spread, Haley said more and more people began to contact him to share their memories of either buying gas or working for the station. Some also offered to donate station memorabilia.

But not everyone appreciates Haley's enthusiasm. While many offer encouraging words, others want to know why he would want to take on the project. It was just something that Haley had to do, rather than chance the station being torn down someday.

One man asked Haley why his station did not have gas pumps with tall glass windows. He said

RESTORES SINCLAIR STATION — Tony Haley and his daughter, Jamie, are shown next to two gasoline pumps at the Sinclair Service Station they helped restore on Coliseum Drive. Haley's wife, Josie, also assisted. Beginning in May, the bulk of the work was finished in time for the local July Fourth Celebration. For the restoration, Haley preserved the 1935-1955 era. When this statior first opened in 1935, the street in front was single laned. Sinclai sold its Texas stations to ARCO several years ago. (SDN Staf Photos)

All creatures have ways to communicate. Even though they don't have a vocabulary of words like us, they use sounds, smells and body language to pass information.

In bridge, there are several forms of communication. When you make a bid, it helps if partner understands what you mean. In today's deal, though, the communication problem arose in the play. Taken from a tournament in Australia, it was reported by Dick Cummings.

North should have bid two spades, not three diamonds, to show a strong hand, usually with diamond support. Then, maybe they get to three no-trump.

West led the spade four. Thinking he had communication with his partner in hearts, East won with the ace and returned the spade queen.

Now South played well. After winning with the spade king, he unblocked his club honors, cashed the diamond jack, played a diamond to dummy's queen and called for the club jack. When East played a low club, South discarded his singleton heart. West won with the queen but was endplayed. A club return would concede a ruff-and-discard. But when he led a heart, South put up dummy's queen and ruffed away East's ace. Now a trump to dummy gave access to the heart king, on which South discarded his spade loser.

Nicely done, but East missed a chance. At trick one, he should play the spade 10, taking the very slight risk that West's lead is a singleton. In this way, the defenders stay in touch in both major suits, and South cannot cut their communication.

In double-ring ceremony...

Couple pledge vows

MINERAL WELLS — Double-ring rites united Kelli Darlene Bell and Charles (Chuck) Barbee on May 20 at 6 p.m. Barry Holmes officiated the ceremony in the Indian Creek Baptist Church.

Parents of the bridegroom are Bob and Carolyn Barbee of Ira and the bride's parents are Eddie and Shirley Bell of Mineral Wells.

Escorted by her father, the bride was attired in a white satin, floor-length gown that was accented with sequins and pearls on the bodice. It featured ruffled, pouf sleeves and a double-layer bow in the back.

Her headpiece was a crown of white pearls, holding a shoulder-length veil. The bride chose her gown for something new, her baby ring tied to her bouquet was something old, a pearl ring belonging to her mother was something borrowed and her garter was something blue. A 1970 penny was placed in her shoe by her father for luck.

She carried a bouquet of fuchsia and white flowers that were accented with greenery, ribbons, baby's breath and pearls.

The bride was attended by matron of honor Lisa O'Neal, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Misti Schaefer of Graham, Margaret Trammell of Mineral Wells and Lisa Day of Weatherford. They wore tea-length satin dresses and carried small bouquets of fuchsia and white flowers.

The groom's attendants included the best man, Wayne Houghton of Stephenville, and groomsmen were Cody Cauley of San Angelo, Chance Wade of Stephenville and Roger Burrus of Snyder. The groom and his attendants wore black western-style tuxedos.

Ring bearer was Brandon Lunsford, nephew of the groom, and Skye Hall served as flowergirl.

Seating guests were Russell Bell, brother of the bride, and Stacy Jennings.

The altar was decorated with giant Boston ferns and fuchsia bows, and English ivy adorned the pews. Votives, English ivy and azaleas graced the windows. Lighting the candles was Troy O'Neal, brother-in-law of the bride.

Music was provided by pianist Donna Perkins and vocalist Renee Nolan, who sang "Wind Beneath My Wings," "Always," and "When You Say Nothing at All." Pianist Josh Bradford accompanied himself at the piano as he sang "I Swear."

A reception followed the ceremony at the Mineral Wells Woman's Club. The bride's table, draped with a white lace cloth held a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with a gazebo scene, topped with a bride and groom and fresh flowers.

The groom's table, with a country/western theme, was draped with a denim cloth and red bandana overlays. The table held replicas of a windmill, sheep and a covered wagon. The chocolate double-horseshoe cake was designed by Reta Graham. Coffee was served from blue granite appointments from a reproduction of a campfire. Mints in shapes of boots and hats completed the western motif.

MR. AND MRS. CHUCK BARBEE
(Contributed Photo)

Serving at the bride's table were Robbie Bell, sister-in-law of the bride, Kathy Jo Brown, Elizabeth Rousseau and Kacy Talbert. Serving at the groom's table was Kaila Bethel, sister of the groom. Jennifer Shore and Nina Houghton passed out birdseed-filled silk rosettes to guests.

Following their honeymoon in Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Barbee now reside in Stephenville.

The bride, a graduate of Mineral Wells High School, attended Weatherford Junior College. She is employed by First National Bank of Granbury. The groom is a graduate of Ira High School and attended Western Texas Junior College and Tarleton State University. He is employed by Norton Company.

The couple were honored with several pre-nuptial parties including a miscellaneous shower on April 2 in Mineral Wells; a shower held on April 22 in Ira; another shower held in Granbury on April 28; a lingerie shower on May 7; and a bridesmaid brunch on May 20.

The catered rehearsal dinner was held at the fellowship hall of the church on May 19, hosted by the groom's parents.

Snack mix for any gathering

The following recipe is a must to include in any casual celebration or watching upcoming football games on television.

8 cups crispy corn rice cereal
21/2 cups bite-size Cheddar cheese crackers
21/2 cups pretzel sticks or rings
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1-ounce package dry ranch salad dressing mix

In a 2-gallon storage bag, combine cereal, crackers and pretzels. Pour oil over cereal mixture. Close bag; gently toss mixture until well coated.

Add salad dressing mix; close bag. Gently toss mixture until well coated. Store in airtight container. Makes about 13 cups.

Scurry County Library News and Views

The Scurry County Library would like to thank all of the volunteers who participated in our summer program. These volunteers gave 445 hours of their time during the summer to help at the library. They worked at the front desk, checking books in and out and assisting patrons. Some also assisted in organizing and shelving books. Others prepared paperbacks for circulation. Volunteers also assisted with the summer program events. We want to thank these volunteers for their hard work, and let the community know about the help they provided.

Our summer volunteers were: Michael Arbuckle, Elvia Barrera, Allison Bowden, Jessica Dea, Amber Haarmeyer, Leslie Hancock, Jared Higgins, Valerie Lara, Kristin Murray, Glenda Parra, Stephanie Perkins, Angie Shoemake, Leslye Starnes, Chrystal Sumrald, April Whittenburg, Ashley Baremore, Veronica Block, Sarah Bryant, Amanda Fisk, Austin Haire, Amber Harbin, Elizabeth Holloway, Leslie Mitchell, Amanda Nobles, Valerie Pena, Stephanie Reyes, Adrienne Williams, Dana Stribling and Kevin Taylor.

The library is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

Soap as an insecticide

An old concept newly refined, has provided a scientific breakthrough in pest control and has earned the approval of the Environmental Protection Agency — insecticide soap — which controls (kills) most types of insects by using one of the oldest organic methods which contain no chemicals, but, properties of fatty acids, as old as life itself, to provide an alternative to harsh chemicals now used to control insects, plant diseases and weeds.

Fatty acids from which soaps are made, are natural substances that occur in the cells of all plants and animals. They are part of man's daily diet, yet in certain newly discovered combinations from among their hundreds of varieties, they are deadly to a long list of insects that have been "bugging" mankind for ages.

This has resulted in a spraying plan in which growers interfered with nature's own controls, which in turn upset the natural balance even more. The world has become aware in recent years that indiscriminate use of harsh chemicals soon would exact a price for the temporary increase it provided in the food supply.

Man would have to learn to work with nature, not against it, if his species is to survive on this planet. Hence, the search was begun some years back.

Some fatty acids are essential to the life process and occur in each living cell. Some are tied in with vitamin production and others are important components of cell membrane.

Some serve as the first line of defense against bacteria, fungi, and as protection against competing organisms. Some are toxic to certain pest, insects and mites. Others affect simple plants such as mosses, algae, lichens and liver worts that can cause problems around structures and in greenhouses.

Dr. George Peritch, a Canadian scientist and now research director for Safety Agro-Chem, has well dated scientifically that it is possible to formulate soaps specifically for insect control, resulting in a new product called Insecticidal Soap.

The product is selective according to its ability to penetrate the insects outer body covering. The nature of the cuticle and epidermia determines whether a particular chemical can penetrate to the soft tissue of the insect.

Once the soap has penetrated, the effect on the cell seems to be determined by fatty acid composition of the insecticide. Deleterious effects results from a disruption of the organism's metabolism.

Higher animals, reptiles and birds are little affected by soap.

The Insecticidal Soap controls aphids, mealybugs, whitefly, spider mites, psyllids, scales earwigs, grasshoppers, crickets, stinkbugs, box elder bugs, squash bugs and sawflies, including rose, pear and cherry slugs, and many others.

The product spares such beneficial insects as honey bees, ladybugs, parasitic wasps that control aphids, scales and leaf miners, and the Formosa wasps that are used in greenhouses to control whitefly.

Moreover, it cleans leaves and other surfaces of sticky honeydew, sooty mold and general grime, leaving the foliage with a natural healthy glow. And because it is after all merely a soap, it can be used on all edibles right up to the day of harvest with no ill effects.

Also, because it is merely a soap, it has a fresh odor that makes it acceptable for spraying plants in crowded places such as shopping malls where odors of the old petrochemical sprays make them unwelcome.

As a harmless soap, there is no reason for the gardener to feel any constraint about using it to head off the insect infestation before it can get out of hand.

The Insecticidal Soap may be applied with most types of spray equipment, or can be used as a dip or wipe. It is biodegradable and does not corrode metals, thus elimating cleanup problems. This soap has been the insect control that all gardeners have waited for for many years.

Let me leave you with this thought, "God does not deduct from man's alloted time those hours spent gardening, good gardening until next time," from Dr. Ted Brice, The Garden Editor.

The Yorkshire terrier was originally bred to hunt vermin in the coal mines and cotton mills of northern England. It was orignally a much larger and heavier dog than the cuddly companion we know today.

Recipes for wedding showers

Your best friend is getting married soon. To celebrate this very important milestone, you are throwing a wedding shower in her honor. Of course, you want this party to be a success. Her closest friends and family have been invited, decorations and flowers have been meticulously chosen — but you don't have a lot of extra time to cook an elaborate meal.

Why not make it easy on yourself and create a salad bar? By offering a selection of fresh, healthy foods and letting your guests customize their own dish, you'll please everyone, even those watching their weight. Best of all, there is no "day-of" cooking, so you'll be able to participate in the festivities without being a slave to the kitchen.

To make your salad bar visually appealing, set out of variety of foods, mixing colors and textures.

Give your guests several toppings to choose from, like whole shrimp, golden raisins, sunflower seeds or crumbled blue cheese. And, don't forget dressings. An herbed vinaigrette, a creamy Caesar, or simply oil and vinegar are sure to be crowd pleasers.

Remember, planning a wedding shower doesn't have to be a stressful time. Let it be an expression of your creativity and style.

Following are some dressing recipes that can liven up any salad and have shower guests asking for more.

HERBED VINAIGRETTE

Makes about 1 cup

1 clove garlic, peeled
⅓ cup white or regular balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
⅓ cup extra-virgin olive oil
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil leaves or 1 teaspoon dried

Mince garlic. Whisk in remaining ingredients until thickened.

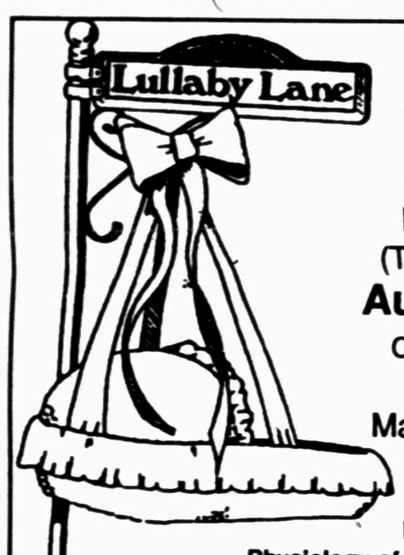

CREAMY CAESAR SALAD DRESSING

makes about 1 cup

2 cloves garlic, peeled
¼ cup sour cream
3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons anchovy paste
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
½ cup olive oil
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Mince garlic. Whisk in remaining ingredients until thickened.

Scientific American, which vies with Harper's for the title of America's oldest magazine, celebrates its 150th anniversary this year. During that time, the magazine has published a diagram of Edison's light bulb (1879), photographs of the Wright brothers' plane (1900), an article about computers in business (1954) and the writings of Nobel Prize winners.

he did not install that type because they were never used in Snyder. The electric pump was used during the 1920s, he added.

The community's response, more than anything else, helps to make the whole project worthwhile — so much so, Haley said, that he sometimes sits on the bench in front of the station just to attract visitors. One evening, some seven cars were parked nearby, and time seemed to travel backwards as people shared their memories.

Many people have told Haley that they can remember buying gas at the station. Buck Buchanan, who now operates the College Fina station, told Haley that he once worked there many years ago.

The idea of restoring the service station occurred to him one day when he saw a restored Phillips 66 station in McLean. It's not unusual for Haley to travel out of town as he likes to search for memorabilia to add to his growing collection.

Haley, who has also researched Sinclair history, said the HC symbol was introduced in the 1920s. Dino the Dinosaur came out in 1959, and for many years all Sinclair ads featured Dino and Dino Soap was given away to families with children.

Once a collector of bottles, he said he switched to service station items when bottles became too hard too find anymore. But he still has his original collection.

Snyder's Sinclair station was the perfect restoration project for Haley, but one that started out with many unanswered questions.

While searching for the owner, Haley learned some of the station's history, but it's still somewhat sketchy.

He began his search with Jack and Jack Realtors, local realtors who listed the property for sale for several years.

When the station opened in July of 1935, Robert Curnutte owned the land and leased the property to Sinclair Refining Co. which built the station. The lease was renewed every year.

Sinclair stations were more common in Texas then, but now they are found mainly in Missouri, Oklahoma and Colorado, and a few are in Iowa.

He is unsure of the station's history from 1935 to 1945. He does not know who operated the station when it first opened, but he has been told that the station was closed and the windows were actually boarded up during World War II because of gas rationing.

The late Bushy Hedges was the last operator, for some 25 to 30 years until he became ill and the station closed permanently in 1976.

At some point, the station became a part of the Davenport Estate, Haley learned. He purchased the station in May from a Robert S. Davenport of San Angelo who had acquired it from his father.

Since Davenport liked Haley's restoration plans, he sold him the station in May. In fact, Haley's wife and daughter had actually begun working on the inside before all of the paperwork had been finalized.

A collector by nature, Haley has quite an array of service station memorabilia, from signs to oil cans and other items, and not just Sinclair products either.

In fact, he could have created any kind of station, but chose, instead, to keep the Sinclair theme because that is what it was when it first opened in Snyder.

Haley's memorabilia includes 125 different brands of motor oil. He said 1973 was the last year oil was packaged in metal cans. Cardboard was used for a while and then plastic containers were introduced.

Haley is grateful for all the help, donations and stories which so many people have have shared with him and his family, and he encourages people to come by for a visit. That's what makes it all worth doing.

Howard Koch, 'Casablanca' screenwriter, dead at age 93

WOODSTOCK, N.Y. (AP) — Howard Koch, who won an Oscar for the "Casablanca" screenplay and wrote the "War of the Worlds" radio script that convinced thousands of listeners Martians had landed, is dead at 93.

Koch died Thursday at a hospital after a bout with pneumonia, family members said.

The New York City native earned a law degree from Columbia University before becoming a playwright in the late 1920s. He later wrote radio scripts, including the one for Orson Welles' 1938 "War of the Worlds" radio production of the H.G. Wells novel.

He began writing for the movies in the early 1940s. In 1942, he shared the Academy Award for best screenplay with Julius and Philip Epstein for "Casablanca," one of the most beloved American films ever.

Koch's other screen credits include "Sergeant York" (1941); "The Sea Hawk" (1942); "Mission to Moscow" (1943); "The Best Years of Our Lives" (1946); "Letter From an Unknown Woman" (1948); and "The War Lover" (1962).

In 1951, Koch was blacklisted in Hollywood in the wake of the House Un-American Activities Committee's investigation into alleged Communist influence in the film industry. He moved to Europe and wrote under the pseudonym Peter Howard, and didn't resume writing under his own name until the early 1960s.

In December, Koch's "Casablanca" Oscar was auctioned for $184,000 at Christie's in New York City. Koch said the coveted figure was holding up some books on a shelf, and he decided to sell it to help pay for a granddaughter's graduate school studies.

"Why shouldn't it be useful?" Koch told The Associated Press in an interview in October. "To me it's just a statue."

In 1988, an anonymous bidder paid $143,000 at auction for Koch's original "War of the Worlds" radio script.

In a 1992 interview with the Daily Freeman of Kingston, Koch recalled how he and the Epsteins improvised the "Casablanca" script as the movie was being made. Even the ending was up in the air, he said.

The film starred Humphrey Bogart as an American expatriate bar owner and Ingrid Bergman as his lost love during World War II.

"I remember Ingrid Bergman coming up to me saying, 'How can I play the love scene if I don't know which man I'll end up with,'" Koch said. "I didn't know either, so I couldn't help her."

In the final scene, Bergman's character gets on a plane with her husband, leaving Humphrey Bogart's character to walk away into a foggy night.

A traditional "boy gets girl" ending would have made it "just another movie," Koch said in the 1992 interview.

Some exemptions for TASP

Individuals over the age of 55 who wish to take a single class or classes this fall at Western Texas College will now be exempt from taking the state-mandated TASP test.

The change is a result of legislation passed last spring with the 74th Texas Legislature.

To be exempt, however, the individuals must sign a statement indicating they do not intend to seek a degree or certificate from the college they are enrolling in.

As part of the legislation, documentation indicating proof of age must be shown also.

Since 1989, the TASP test has been required of all students entering college who had not taken a college class prior to that time. Its purpose is to determine if these students require remedial assistance in such classes as English, math and reading.

If TASP scores are below specified levels in these three areas, students can be required to take remedial or developmental classes in the subject area failed before being allowed to enroll in college-credit courses in this subject.

In addition, a college student must take the TASP test before he or she completes 9 college-credit hours and must pass all three areas of the TASP test before being allowed to earn more than 60 college-credit hours.

Under the new law, students over the age of 55 who do not intend to earn a degree or certificate are now exempt from these rules.

Swimming-related classes scheduled at WTC this fall

Swimming-related classes are scheduled this fall at Western Texas College taught by Mike Harrison, WTC physical education instructor.

Harrison will instruct an aqua aerobics class, two beginning and advanced swimming classes and springboard diving.

An aqua aerobics conditioning class will meet Monday and Wednesday from 1:15 until 2:30 p.m. It is listed as PHED 2101—0408.

Harrison notes these water activities can make a major contribution to the flexibility, strength and circulatory endurance of individuals. Because of the water's boyancy, fewer injuries occur to the legs, hips and knees.

Two swimming classes—offered for both beginners and more advanced swimmers—are scheduled, both in the afternoons from 2:15-3:30 p.m.

PHED 2101-0411 meets Monday and Wednesday and PHED 2101-0420 meets Thursday-Thursday.

Strokes taught will be the crawl, the back crawl, elementary back stroke, the side stroke and the breast stroke. Water games will be played also.

Springboard diving will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 3:30-4:45 p.m. It is listed as PHED 2101-0422.

Students will learn the proper approach step to various dives, to include the front dive, back dive, inward dive, reverse dive and twisting dive.

For more information, Harrison may be reached at 573-8511, ext. 279.

Roller blading slated

The sport of roller blading will surface as a P.E. course this fall at Western Texas College. taught by Mike Harrison.

The class, listed as PHED 2101, will meet TTH from 1-2:15 p.m.

Harrison said the class would utilize rural county roads and some city streets for their exercise. "On rainy or cold days, we'll probably do light weights," he said.

For more information, contact the Health, Physical Education Department at 573-8511, ext. 284.

Telecommunications classes

Two telecommunications classes are offered this fall at Western Texas College, one for those interested in gaining "hands on" experience in both video shooting and editing and a second for those hoping to gain a broad overview of the field of telecommunications.

Video production, listed as COMM 1336, will meet MWF from 10-10:50 a.m. as well as a three-hour lab each Wednesday afternoon. It will be instructed by Donny Brown, head of the mass communications department.

Introduction to Telecommunications, listed as COMM 1335, will meet TTH from 1-2:15 p.m. Its instructor will be Jan McCathern, head of the speech department.

Both are part of five new classes introduced this fall as part of the college's new telecommunications program.

"Both classes are for majors or for persons just interested in learning more about television and video production," said Brown.

For more information, he may be contacted at 573-8511, ext. 273.

Special Notice

Evening registration will be conducted only one time on Monday, Aug. 21, from 6:30-8 p.m. After Aug. 21, all evening students must register during day hours from 9-11 a.m. and 2-4 p.m.

The last day to register, change schedules or add courses will be Tuesday, Aug. 29, 1995.

Refunds

For students withdrawing from classes, the following refund schedule will apply:

Prior to:

Aug. 23	100 percent
Aug. 23-29	80 percent
Aug. 30-Sept. 6	70 percent
Sept. 7-13	60 percent
Sept. 14-20	50 percent

There can be no refunds for students withdrawing from all classes after Sept. 20. Fees will be reassessed through Aug. 29, 1995, for students changing their schedule but not withdrawing from all classes.

Placement Testing

Placement testing is required for all students enrolling. Bring ACT or SAT scores. If unavailable, a Western Texas College placement test will be given during periods of scheduled registration. Those desiring to take the Western Texas College placement test BEFORE registration may do so on Thursday, Aug. 17, at 1:30 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. and Monday, Aug. 21, at 8:30 a.m. The test will be given at the Western Texas College Counseling Office. A $10 fee will be charged for this test.

Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP)

Students who HAVE NOT earned 3 semester college credit hours BEFORE the 1989 fall semester are required to take the Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP) test. Such students must take the test before completing their first 9 hours of college coursework. All students will be required to provide documentation of TASP results. This documentation will be TASP test score reports, transcripts or both.

Letters to the Editor

No room at the (Willow Park) Inn

To the Editor:

My 35th high school reunion was held the weekend of July 28-30. After receiving notification that the reunion was to be held on that date, I contacted the Willow Park Inn on June 30, 1995, and reserved a room. At that time I informed the reservation clerk at the inn that I would be attending my class reunion and inquired if they had plenty of rooms. It was disclosed that very few reservations had been made for that weekend.

The night of July 27, I received a call from a person at the Willow Park Inn and was advised that I would not have a room for July 28 because a baseball tournament was in process and the team(s) staying at the inn were needing the rooms an additional night. Having remembered the conversation in June about vacancies, I questioned the date which the baseball team had made their reservations and was told they were made prior to mine.

While this very well may be true, the reservations were obviously only through the night of the 27th and the management of Willow Park made a decision not to honor my confirmed reservation of 30 days.

For many years my job required nights from home and I have been in situations on several occasions when the job lasted longer than expected and I had to find other accommodations because my room had been reserved by others. While inconvenient to me, I understood the management's commitment and desire to remain creditable.

Regardless of whether Willow Park's decision was motivated by profit or not, I am disappointed that the management of the Willow Park Inn refused to honor a reservation made by me and other classmates. Fortunately we did not observe this attitude with any of the other merchants during our stay.

As a footnote, the reunion was once again a success. My classmates and I found excellent accommodations at the Purple Sage and not only will I make them my first choice in future stays in Snyder, it will be the motel I recommend to others.

Have to have more money

Dear Editor:

I see where SISD Superintendent Mr. Lomax wanted to set the tax rate at $1.50 per $100 valuation. He didn't want to leave one slice of ham in the ice box; after all, money is what educates our kids.

We have to have more money.

The poor old city of Snyder has been in an oil boom for 30 or 40 years. Yet all they can send you is a post card for a bill. They can't send you a return envelope.

Yet we have to have more money.

Scurry County Appraisal District had to raise their wages so they could be here next year to raise the tax rate.

Yet we have to have more money.

Cogdell Hospital had to have $500,000. They have BATS in their attic.

We have to have more money.

WTC College would like the taxpayer to help out on the golf course; that is where the kids get their education.

We have to have more money.

1994 commissioners court: we have to raise the tax rate or cut back on services. 1995 commissioners court: we have to raise the tax rate or cut back on services. 1996 — same, 1997 — same, 1998 — same.

I don't believe our elected or appointed officials could cut warm butter with a sharp knife, much less cut our taxes.

One of the many sheep.

Jack Dunn
Snyder

Thanks, Ray

Dear Editor:

I want to take this time to thank Ray Hollister for returning the air jack part to Parks Auto.

Some people would not have even bothered.

Mr. Hollister was an honest enough man to pick up my part. Not even knowing what he had, he saved us $150 to which we would had to buy another one.

Since we had lost that part to our air jack we could not even use our jack.

Thank you, Mr. Hollister.

Sincerely,
Garland & Tonya Parks

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

A good friend of mine who holds a high-profile law enforcement position in a federal agency recently lost her top-secret security clearance. Why? Because her 25-year-old son had too many outstanding traffic tickets.

This friend has received letters of commendation from top government officials for her work. Her supervisor was as heartsick as she was. It never occurred to either of them — and certainly never to her son — that his behavior could cost his mother a job. (She's still in law enforcement, but not in the position she loved so well and performed so admirably.)

Her son, predictably, felt terrible about it. He had never realized that his irresponsibility, on a matter he obviously considered to be minor, would have such far-reaching consequences. He loves his mother and never meant to hurt her. But he did.

This situation reminds me of a personal essay which appeared in Newsweek some months ago. A fortysomething woman wrote to say that, in the freewheeling sixties, when she was smoking pot and sleeping around and having a high old time, she never once realized that this behavior would wind up haunting her for the rest of her life. When she was arrested for possession of marijuana while in college, she spent a night in jail and got a slap on the wrist from a judge. It seemed like a necessary nuisance at the time; just all part of the fun.

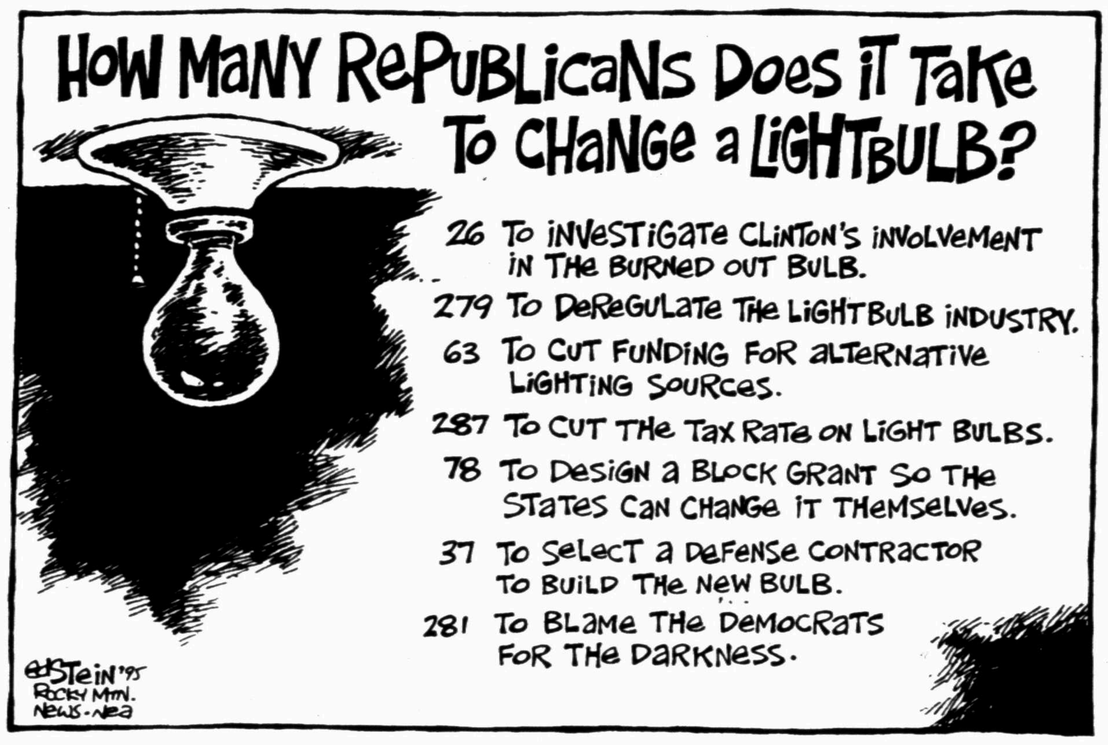

But that conviction, she went on to write, has followed her everywhere she's gone as an adult. It has kept her from getting hired for jobs she's really wanted, gotten her application for graduate school rejected, tripped her up every step of the way. Discouraged and frustrated, she lied about the conviction once on a job application. It got her fired.

The "free love" she reveled in as a youth caused a venereal disease which, though they were able to treat it and eventually clear it up, left her sterile and unable to have the children she always assumed she would have. The fertility problems that resulted from the venereal disease beget emotional problems she was unable to handle. Eventually, it wrecked her marriage.

Consequences. They are the hardest thing that we as parents have to teach our young people. Their behavior now, as teens and young adults, is going to affect them in one way or another for the rest of their lives. My friend's twentysomething son clearly knew he had outstanding traffic violations, but he didn't care about them; they seemed a minor nuisance. He never considered the far-reaching consequences of his behavior, and even though he's all grown up now and living and working on his own — his behavior still wound up costing his mother a job she prized and at which excelled.

Is it fair? Of course not. But it's life. The woman who wrote the essay for Newsweek should not still be paying a price for irresponsible things she did all the way back in college; it's not fair. But she is, and that's life.

And if our kids want to look forward to a good life with all the wonderful opportunities it can offer, then they'd better be thinking long and hard about the things they do and the choices they make right now. Otherwise, they're going to learn too late, the hard way, just how unfair life can be.

News flash: Sen. Byrd has good idea

By Joseph Spear

Robert C. Byrd, one of the most portentous and self-infatuated gasbags in the Senate, has come up with an idea that could be of great benefit to the entire nation. This is highly unusual as he customarily concerns himself with the seizure of vast quantities of taxpayer monies, which he then reinvests in projects that benefit his West Virginia constituents.

Byrd thinks journalists who cover the Senate should be required to file financial disclosure statements, detailing their sources of income. He is particularly interested in the "honoraria" they receive for speaking before groups whose activites they might cover. He recently introduced a "sense of the Senate" resolution to this effect. It passed 60 to 39, with nary a word being uttered in defense of the Fourth Estate.

I generally agree with this sentiment, and I'll detail the reasons in a moment. But first, there are some things that need to be said in the interest of truth and fair play. It is a fact that the House in 1989 and the Senate in 1991 curtailed the practice of accepting fees for speeches--which, when you think about it, was sort of like paying sharks to swim in the first place. But both Houses hiked their pay 35 percent before they did it, and arranged for an annual cost-of-living adjustment.

And of course, Bobby Byrd didn't mention a little conflict of interest he has, to wit, he hates the media. Last year, an ABC "Prime Time Live" crew confronted him outside his Virginia home, and he took his revenge on the Senate floor, denouncing his tormentors as "vultures," "buzzards," and "predators."

And of course, there's the little matter of the First Amendment, which had been interpreted to mean the press is not accountable to the U.S. Senate and that if the U.S. Senate doesn't like what the press does, the U.S. can just stick it in their ear. Indeed, if the media had any moxie at all, they would quit covering the posturing and prancing in the baronial body for a month or two and see how the pols like that.

But all this is beside the main point, which is that Byrd had come up with a good idea. The holier-than-thou motormouths in the media ought to tell us who is tickling their palms and let us decide whether it diminishes their credibility.

Hundreds of Washington journalists, print and broadcast, speak for money. One of the hottest gabbers on the lecture circuit for the past few years has been ABC's Cokie Roberts. Why this dispenser of cliches and nuggets of extremely mediocre conventional wisdom is regarded as a sage worthy of $35,000 fees, I'll never be able to understand. According to Chicago Tribune Washington bureau chief James Warren, who maintains a "Cokie Watch" in his weekly column, the ABC correspondent and her husband, U.S. News & World Report senior writer Steve Roberts, once pulled down $45,000 to host "forums" for Chicago bankers.

Cokie is only the most egregious example. Among her ABC colleagues, Sam Donaldson gets as much as $30,000 for a speech, and David Brinkley pulls down $18,000. A year ago, the network was getting so much grief about its well-paid correspondents getting big bucks for talking that it banned paid speeches to trade associations and for-profit corporations. But there is no rule forbidding them from taking large sums from organizations which are then reimbursed by lobbyists and businesspersons.

Your correspondent once shared his insights for cash--I think the most I ever got for a speech was $500--but gave it up in favor of writing and teaching. I now speak only to worthy organizations, limit the number, charge only what I think my words are worth, and in the interest of cooperating with Sen. Byrd, hereby disclose my earnings for my last six speeches:

Lunch; lunch and Parker pen with the words "Guest Speaker" on it; dinner, golf balls and a neat little pewter golf caddy to hold business cards; nothing; dinner; a cup of coffee.

UNITED STATES SENATOR

May 2, 1995

Mr. Bill McClellan
C/O Snyder Daily News
P.O. Box 949
Snyder, Texas 79550-0949

Dear Bill:

I read your April 16 column about my chili having won the Congressional Chili Cook-off last March, and I must say I was crushed by yours and Uncle Elber's comments regarding the incorporation of beans in my recipe.

I am an eighth-generation Texan and, as such, I feel my decision to include beans in the chili is beyond reproach. Yes, I say it proudly: I like beans in my chili. My husband Ray likes beans in his chili. My mother in La Marque, who taught me to cook, likes beans in her chili. I am sure my great-grandfather six times removed, who signed the Declaration of Independence, passed down to me his love for beans in chili. I came by my preference honestly.

As you know, opinions regarding the addition of beans to chili differ drastically the length and breadth of Texas. There is no consensus on the matter. In fact, few questions inspire the same degree of dogmatic pronouncement as do beans. Honorable Texans disagree over this issue of critical importance, and I know that nothing I could say or do would change any minds, especially Uncle Elber's. I had hoped a journalist of your caliber would have taken a more balanced approach to this explosive subject.

As a token of goodwill, I would be honored to include Uncle Elber's version of Texas chili in a cookbook of chili recipes that I am compiling. I look forward to receiving his beanless recipe.

Sincerely,

Kay Bailey Hutchison

NOT PAID FOR AT GOVERNMENT EXPENSE

Honorable Kay Bailey Hutchison
United States Senator
283 Russell Senate Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Kay,

In reference to your letter of May 2, 1995, Uncle Elber and I humbly apologize if our comments concerning chili crushed you. However, we suspect that the pain you felt was from eating too many beans, and not from our criticism of your recipe.

Uncle Elber and I disagree that there is no consensus when it comes to beans. According to statistics we made up, 400 million folks don't eat beans in their chili. There are actually only 557 very vocal people who do.

As we suspected, your affliction is inherited, as you so proudly (albeit misguidedly) proclaim. Fortunately, there is help for you and your family. No longer does the proud Hutchison name have to pass on beany chili from generation to generation. We urge you to contact your nearest BEAN (Bean Eaters A Nonymous) chapter and make an appointment with a counselor. It's for your own good.

However, we also understand that you are very busy. Elber says to go ahead and balance the budget first.

As for the comment about my journalistic caliber, I feel I owe it to my readers, just as you owe it to your constituents, to be as honest and forthright as possible. I believe I would be off the mark, or pot, so to speak, if I caved in to beanism.

This is not to say that I don't respect your opinion; only that you are wrong.

At any rate, you will be pleased to know that finally, after months of pleadin', threatenin' and bribin', I have talked Uncle Elber into forking over his his top secret chili recipe which I will forward to you as soon as I can decipher it.

Sincerely,
Bill McClellan

P.S. If Elber calls raving something about an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, just humor him. I'll straighten it all out later.

Clinton's smoking rules

The El Paso Times

Two myths about President Clinton's proposed smoking regulations are circulating among political pundits and talk-show hosts:

— The president has taken an offensive role in the war against smokers. No, he hasn't. On the contrary, Clinton's posture is defensive. He's defending teen-agers against an illegal act that could kill them.

— The president's crackdown on smoking inconveniences smokers, tobacco-growing states and even "convenience" store clerks. No, it does not. Not one legal smoker will find his or her carcinogenic habit more difficult to pursue.

Last week, the president asked the Food and Drug Administration to target the one area where smoking has its most devastating impact: among young people.

The strongest proposal is to ban cigarette vending machines, the easiest points-of-access for underage smokers. ...

Compelling reasons have driven President Clinton to his assault on tobacco for its deadly effects on young people. His proposals, although impressively presidential, no doubt will be dragged through political gutters.

But the president has taken bold steps in an important area. Parents — smokers and nonsmokers — should be his first supporters.

C-City woman joins recruiting office

A new staffer has been named for the WTC recruiting office and its related campus visitors center, Ellen H. Baker of Colorado City.

She joins Deidra Graves, director of college relations. As now envisioned, Mrs. Baker will be primarily responsible for coordinating on-campus visits as well as the more clerical aspects of the visitor's center, located in the south wing of the Learning Resource Center.

Miss Graves will assume the majority of high school campus visitations, which totaled more than 100 last school year as part of an aggressive new recruiting campaign implemented by the college.

Mrs. Baker most recently worked as a church administrator for the Bel Air Presbyterian Church in Los Angeles. Her husband, Ken, was recently named pastor of the Fifst Presbyterian Church in Colorado City.

Mrs. Baker earned her bachelor of arts degree from Hanover College in Hanover, Ind. and has held both teaching and administrative positions since that time.

Her experience includes teaching posts in both Roswell, N.M. and in California. She was an assistant registrar at Kennedy-Western University in Agoura Hills, Calif. from 1988-91.

As a church administrator in Los Angeles, she was in charge of maintaining church records and serving as the church board secretary.

Handbell Choir slated this fall

The Western Texas College Music Department is again organizing both the WTC Community Chorale and the WTC Handbell Choir for the fall term.

In a change this year, the choir will be under the direction of Bill Lyon, who has joined WTC as a part-time music instructor. Lyon was the longtime choir director for Snyder High School before his retirement.

The handbell choir will again be led by Jerald Garner, director of music for Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

The community chorale is organized as part of a one-hour credit music class, MUSI 1141 or 2141. It meets Tuesday evenings from 7 until 9 p.m.

The choir will be rehearsing for its traditional Christmas concert in late November.

The bell choir is for one-hour of academic credit also and is listed as MUSI 1121 or 2121. It meets Thursdays from 7-9 p.m.

Students will learn how to play hand bells in an ensemble setting. Garner notes no previous music experience is necessary to enroll.

"Family Focus"

By James C. Dobson, Ph.D.

Q. What place should fear occupy in a child's attitude toward his mother or father?

A. There is a narrow difference between acceptable, healthy "awe" and destructive fear. A child should have a general apprehension about the consequences of defying his parent. By contrast, he should not lie awake at night worrying about parental harshness or hostility. Perhaps a crude example will illustrate the difference between these aspects of fear.

A busy highway can be a dangerous place to take a walk. In fact, it would be suicidal to stroll down the fast lane of a freeway at 6 p.m. on any Friday. I would not be so foolish as to get my exercise in that manner, because I have a healthy fear of fast-moving automobiles. But as long as I don't behave ridiculously, I have no cause for alarm.

I want my child to view me with the same healthy regard. As long as he does not choose to challenge me, openly and willfully, he lives in total safety. He need not duck and flinch when I suddenly scratch my eyebrow. He should have no fear that I will ridicule him or treat him unkindly. He can enjoy complete security and safety--until he chooses to defy me. Then he'll have to face the consequences.

Q. Is retention in the same grade advisable for any child, other than the late bloomer? How about the slow learner?

A. There are some students who profit from a second year in the same grade level. The best guideline regarding failure to promote is this: retain the child for whom something will be different next year. A child who is sick for seven months in one academic year might profit from another run-through when he is healthy. And again, the late bloomer should be held back in kindergarten (or the first grade at the latest) to place him with youngsters of comparable development.

For the slow learner, however, nothing will be changed. If he was failing the fourth grade in June, he will continue to fail the fourth grade in September. It is not often realized that the curricular content of each grade level is very similar to the year before and the year after. The same concepts are taught year after year, the students in each grade are taken a little farther, but much of the time is spent in review.

The arithmetical methods of addition and subtraction, for example, are taught in the primary years, but considerable work is done on these tasks in the sixth grade, too. Nouns and verbs are taught repeatedly for several years.

Thus, the most unjustifiable reason for retention is to give the slow learner another year of exposure to easier concepts. He will not do better the second time around! Nor is there much magic in summer school. Some parents hope that a six-week program in July and August will accomplish what was impossible in the 10 months between September and June. They are often disappointed.

Q. There are times when it is obvious that my son is trying to provoke my anger, just for the fun of it. Why would he want to upset me when he knows I love him?

A. It may be the result of a power play between him and you. Indeed, there are times when I think children understand this struggle for control even better than their parents, who are bogged down with adult responsibilities and worries. That is why so many kids are able to win the contest of wills; they devote their primary effort to the game, while we grown-ups play only when we must.

One father overheard his 5-year-old daughter, Laura, say to her little sister who was doing something wrong, "Mmmm, I'm going to tell Mommy on you. No! I'll tell Daddy. He's worse!" Laura had evaluated the disciplinary measures of her two parents and concluded that one was more effective than the other.

WTC offers biology, anatomy and physiology

Western Texas College is offering Biology 2401, Human Anatomy and Physiology, this fall on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:30 p.m. This course covers the basic structure and function of the human from the cellular level through the nervous system and the sense organs.

The course satisfies the human biology prerequisites for most nursing and medical schools and will transfer to the majority of four year colleges and universities.

Registration will be on the Snyder campus from 6:30 until 8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 21, and during regular registration on Aug. 21-22. For more information, call 573-8511.

Step-aerobic classes slated

A step-aerobics class for both beginners as well as experienced exercisers will be offered as an evening class this fall at Western Texas College. It will meet from 6-7:15 p.m. each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The class, which will be instructed by Rhonda Ward, is listed as PHED 2101 (Aerobic Activities).

Individuals may choose to take it for one-hour academic credit or as a continuing education class. Regular registration begins Monday and, if taken as a continuing ed class, individuals may sign-up for the course at the first class meeting Wednesday.

It will consist of a warm-up period, 35 to 40 minutes of step-aerobics for the cardio-vascular system, a cool down period and floor work for strength tone and flexibility.

"It's formulated to get you fit, tone and to have some fun in the process," said Mrs. Ward.

Body-conditioning

A special noon hour body conditioning class is available this fall at Western Texas College.

The body conditioning class, listed as PHED 2101—0417, will meet from 11:30 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday. Instructor Lee Burke calls it "low level conditioning at its best." The class includes stretching and working with weights plus aerobics, which involves self-paced walking.

For more information, contact Burke at 573-8511, ext. 284.

Full-time secretary added to WTC staff

A new full-time secretary has been named to work with WTC college faculty primarily located in the 2-B building which includes members of the Business, Math, Speech and Science Departments.

Named to the post is Rhonda Gayle McCollum of Snyder, a graduate of Loraine High School.

RHONDA McCOLLUM

Her work experience includes secretarial duties in several law offices and insurance companies in the region. From 1992-94, she was the bookkeeper/secretary for the Colorado City firm of Thompson, Rees, Sheridan and Ratliff.

She has experience in general accounting/bookkeeping and with the line of IBM-based computer systems.

New registrar starts first year with WTC

As the fall term begins, Western Texas College has a new registrar in place, a position filled by longtime office staffer Ann Galyean.

Mrs. Galyean was appointed to the post last spring, but this fall will mark her first long term semester as head of the office.

She has worked in the office the past 15 years and for the majority of that time has served as the office manager.

ANN GALYEAN

As registrar, she is primarily in charge of all student records and providing class rolls for instructors. She supervises a staff of two full-time workers and one part-time.

The Denver City native attended Texas Tech University for two years and has earned her Associate in Arts degree through WTC.

She is a longtime member of First Baptist Church, where she has taught the sixth grade Sunday School class the past eight years. Professionally, she is a member of the Texas Association of College Registrars and Administrative Officers.

Her husband, Ed, is a member of the building maintenance crew at WTC also.

Beginning photography set

A beginning photography class is listed on the fall 1995 schedule at Western Texas College and persons interested in learning how to operate a 35 mm camera as well as developing and printing their own photos are encouraged to enroll.

The class will include all the basics of black and white photography, to include composition, controling light with shutter speeds and f-stops, the mechanics of operating the camera, camera accessories and "alternate techniques" of photography.

For interested students who do not have their own 35 mm cameras, instructor Donny Brown notes the department has "loaner" cameras available.

The class is listed both as COMM 1316 and ARTS 2356. For students planning to graduate from WTC, enrolling in the class as ARTS 2356 will fulfill the three-hour art requirement for graduation.

The class will meet on a Monday and Wednesday schedule from 1 until 2:15 p.m.

Macintosh class set at WTC

A special one-hour class meeting from 4-5 p.m. Mondays is planned this fall for persons working with Macintosh computers in the Snyder public school system.

The class will include basic word processing instruction as well as more advanced desktop publishing skills using the software PageMaker 4.02. Instructor for the class is Donny Brown.

Advanced students may learn such programs as Typestyler and Adobe Illustrator as well as such skills as using a scanner device to scan line art and graphics for use with the other software programs.

The class is listed as COMM 1130. For more information, contact Brown at 573-8511, ext. 273.

Indoor picnic set Thursday

An indoor picnic is planned in the Senior Center on Thursday.

There will be washer and horseshoe pitching on the sidewalk west of the building before the meal is served at noon. The kitchen staff will prepare hamburgers and dessert will be provided by senior citizens. It is suggested that the desserts be accompanied by recipes for trading.

Tickets are still available for a quilt to be given away on Thursday and can be obtained at the Senior Center.

Skip Bo and bridge will be the feature of Game Day in the center on Monday. Bridge will begin at 9:30 a.m. and Skip Bo at 10 a.m.

Free glaucoma screening for senior citizens is scheduled in the center on Tuesday. The screening will begin at 10 a.m. by an organization called Prevent Blindness Texas from Lubbock. Further information about the screening can be obtained by contacting Pamela Fenton, activities director for the center.

Benny Benitez will be playing for country/western dancing in the center on Tuesday, beginning at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday, the Texas Department of Health will present a program on dental health starting at 11 a.m.

Bridge games will begin in the center at 9:30 a.m. Friday. Blood pressures will be checked from 9:30-11 a.m. Friday.

The Senior Center will have a booth at the Scurry County Fair and is in need of craft items to be sold there. Items can be taken to the center at 2603 Ave M Monday through Friday.

Class in beginning drawing scheduled

A beginning drawing class during the day and an evening class for those interested in drawing the human figure are among the art class listings offered this fall on the campus of Western Texas College.

Both will be taught by instructor Ben Sum.

The beginning drawing class will be offered TTH from 9:30-10:45 a.m. Sum notes it is designed for non-art majors. "No experience is necessary, there will be a minimum of supplies needed and it should be a fun class," he said.

The figure drawing class will meet Thursdays from 6:30-9:20 p.m. It is listed as ARTS 2323 and is open to anyone "interested in drawing the human figure and portraits," Sum said.

For more information, he may be contacted at 573-8511, ext. 235.

Winnings increase scholarship funding

Last year's combined efforts of the mens and womens rodeo teams at Western Texas College—highlighted by both groups finishing in the Top 5 at nationals—has generated $14,000 in scholarship monies for the local campus and a lot of student interest as well.

The money was courtesy of Copenhagen Skoal and its scholarship awards program. The company awared $10,000 to the men's team for its second place finish in June at the National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont.

The WTC womens team earned an additional $1,000 for finishing fifth at nationals. In addition, the college teams were awarded another $1,500 each for respective second place finishes in regional competition last spring.

These wins have had an added bonus in student recruitment, notes Rodeo Coach Todd Danley, who said he has had a flurry of recruiting applicants for the campus rodeo teams.

"We've got kids applying from all over," he said, indicating he currently has 50 students "committed" to rodeo activities for the coming fall. This compares to just under 30 last year.

He credited the success in recruiting to the success of both teams at nationals, noting it was a "first" for WTC for both the men and the women to finish among the Top 5.

Regarding the scholarship monies, Danley said Skoal specifies that it must be spent for rodeo-related scholarships at the local campus.

At the national event, WTC had several individual standouts, led by Davey Shields of Canada, who finished second in the bareback riding.

Also placing among the Top 10 were Pete Ellis of Fort Worth, who tied for second/third in saddle bronc riding; and Blake Thomas of Brownwood, placing fifth in calf roping.

For the women, Chasity Rickman of Hereford finished seventh in the nation in goat tying. Also, Emily Schaffer of Nebraska placed 10th in goat tying.

Other competitors for WTC at nationals were Cleve Schmidt of South Dakota, bareback riding; Guy Smith of Canada, calf roping; Todd Loesch of Fort Worth, calf roping and steer wrestling; and Mandy Harsh of Arizona, qualifying in breakaway and goat tying.

Pep band may be organized

Persons interested in playing in the Western Texas College Pep Band are encouraged to sign-up for MUSI 1121 this fall term. The class, which equals one-hour of academic credit, will meet Monday nights from 7-9 p.m.

The Pep Band made its debut performance Jan. 19, playing for home games of the WTC Lady Westerners.

Jerald Garner, music director at Colonial Hill Baptist Church, serves as director.

To be a member of the band, a person does not need to own an instrument. Garner noteds there are a few instruments that can be loaned out to players.

For more information, contact Garner at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Announcer to leave

NEW YORK (AP) — The announcer who put the "Daaaaaavid" into Letterman is leaving the comedian's late-night talk show.

After more than 15 years of booming Letterman introductions, tonight's taping will the last for Bill Wendell.

Financial help for childcare available for single parents

A federal grant totaling $45,000 and primarily aimed at providing child care assistance for single parents hoping to gain job-related training is now available through Western Texas College.

The monies are offered through the Carl Perkins grant program, which tries to make vocational programs accessible to all persons. Students returning to college for such training are assisted mainly through child care assistance.

The local program is coordinated through Special Needs Counselor Carolyn Osborn and the Special Needs Office located in the LRC.

Mrs. Osborn gained the extra $45,000 by applying through a grant process last spring.

The funds are specifically earmarked for single parents, displaced homemakers (widows, divorcees, and homemakers forced to enter the marketplace) and single pregnant women.

To qualify, the student must be enrolled in a vocational program and be classified as "disadvantaged" by federal standards.

CAROLYN OSBORN

Those qualifying can have 75 percent of their child care expenses provided through the grant program. Individuals are allowed to use the daycare facility of their choice.

"If you have a $250 monthly bill for child care, this assistance can often make the difference between going to school or not," noted Mrs. Osborn.

The funds can be used for other purposes as well to include a gasoline allowance, tutoring, career and personal counseling, books and supplies.

The $45,000 is in addition to some $88,000 received here through the Carl Perkins program. These funds go towards the operation of the local office and other assistance for vocational students.

Students assisted through Carl Perkins include those enrolled in such WTC vocational programs as office system careers, management, vocational nursing, criminal justice, correctional officer training, diesel mechanics, welding and golf and landscaping technology.

For more information about funding through Carl Perkins, contact Mrs. Osborn's office at 573-8511, ext. 397.

Space available in classes at WTC

Beginning accounting

A beginning accounting class—for individuals hoping to learn basic accounting as well as those planning to complete the one-year Accounting Technician Certificate program offered through Western Texas College's Office Systems Technology Department—will be offered both day and night this fall term.

The class, Business 235 (Business Accounting I), is offered MWF from noon until 12:50 p.m. and on Wednesday nights from 6:30-9:20 p.m.

The class "fits" with all two-year degree plans offered in either information processing and general business here.

In addition, it is one of the required courses for certification in the accounting technician program, which can be completed in one-year and requires 37 semester hours.

Instructor Joann Snider notes that business majors may elect to take this class as preparation for the more advanced Principles of Accounting class required in their major.

For more information, contact Mrs. Snider at 573-8511, ext. 217 or 241.

Keyboarding

Keyboarding classes for both beginners and more advanced typists are offered this fall at Western Texas College.

The typing I class (OFAD 1311) is offered both during the day and at night. The day schedule is MWF from 9-9:50 a.m. and the night class is Tuesday from 6:30-9:20 p.m.

The typing II class, OFAD 1312, is offered MWF from 11 a.m. until noon and at night on Tuesday from 6:30-9:20 p.m.

A lab with both classes meets at the student's convenience.

As a guideline, instructor Joann Snider recommends those who can type 35 words per minute or faster should take the typing II class.

For more information, contact Mrs. Snider in the Office Systems Technology Department. The number is 573-8511, exts. 217 and 241.

Willie Nelson composes fewer songs each year

NEW YORK (AP) — As the years go by for Willie Nelson, the songs get harder to write.

Nelson, 62, still composes one or two songs a year, but he told Parade magazine, "It gets tougher as you get older, because you know more and expect more of yourself."

Post office to test new local bulk mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service plans to test a new local bulk mail service for small businesses starting next month.

The three-city test will provide low-cost advertising mail service to businesses sending as few as 200 items in a neighborhood, post office spokesman Frank Brennan said.

Currently larger volumes are needed to get the low third-class rates and small companies often cannot afford the cost of mass mailing, he explained.

In the so-called Neighborhood Mail system, companies will be allowed to bring mail ads to a local post office for delivery at every stop on a letter carrier's route. The cost is expected to average 11.7 cents per item, he explained.

The Postal Service saves the cost of sorting the mail and doesn't have to transport it except to take it to homes.

Brennan said the one-year test will start Sept. 11 in Rochester, N.Y., New Orleans, La., and Sacramento, Calif.

As part of the test, Brennan said, the Postal Service would provide small neighborhood businesses with a brochure giving hints on preparing advertising mail and could provide census-type data about various neighborhoods for a fee ranging from $30 to $50.

Simplified addresses would be used on the Neighborhood Mail, omitting the names of people and simply using addresses, which can be obtained from the Postal Service.

Newspapers and large mailing companies have indicated a concern about the program, which they fear could eat into their business.

Creative writing class set

A creative writing class is again offered this fall at Western Texas College—offering interested individuals the opportunity to stretch their writing skills in both prose and poetry.

The course, Eng. 230, meets Wednesdays from 6:30-9:20 p.m. and is taught by Bill McGlothing, assistant professor of English and a published poet.

This marks the fourth year the class has been offered. Student work is published each spring in the "Aquifer," the literary magazine now in its sixth year.

The class is a three-hour elective and will transfer as academic credit to four-year universities. Works covered include poetry, short fiction, non-fiction and drama.

A workshop atmosphere allows students to discuss their original work as well as that of others. "The class is for anyone who writes or who wants to," McGlothing said, "but students need not be experienced writers.

He added the class "encourages experimentation, from making words public for the first time to polishing a well-worked effort." Written critiques are provided for all work submitted.

Last year, a poem written by class member Nancy Harris won $1,000 in the Illiad Literary Poetry Contest. The contest is announced annually through Writer's Digest magazine. The poem was the grand prize winner out of 8,000 entries.

Physics rejoins WTC curriculum

For the first time in several semesters, physics will be taught at Western Texas College this fall term.

The class is specifically aimed at those students who seek a higher level of science instruction here. The class, listed as PHYS 1401, will meet a TTH schedule from 9:30-10:45 a.m. and includes a Thursday lab from 1-5 p.m.

It will be taught by Dr. Rollin Swanson, who will serve as a part-time instructor for the college this fall.

For more information, contact Britt Canada, chairman of the Science Division, at 573-8511, est. 237.

Advanced word processing

Advanced word processing classes utilizing both the Windows application and the newest version of Lotus 1-2-3 will be taught at Western Texas College this fall.

Both classes—WP 235 (Word Processing Application I) and WP 239 (Word Processing Application II)—should be taken at the same time on MWF.

WP 235 meets from 10-10:50 a.m. and WP 239 from 11-11:50 a.m. Labs for both classes are tailored to individual students.

For students with their own software, and with the instructor's permission, lab work can be done at home on personal computers.

To work at home, however, students must have Word Perfect 6.1 with Windows and Lotus 1-2-3 with Lotus in its 5.0 version.

"Even though its an advanced classes in word processing, the Lotus instruction will probably be brand new to most students," said instructor Joann Snider.

Students must have had WP 137 and WP 139 (or related experience) to enroll in the 235/239 sequence of classes.

Word processing class planned

Word processing skills using the computer will be taught at various skill levels and times this fall on the Western Texas College campus.

For the beginner, WP 137 is offered. All different areas of computers are introduced and the class is guaranteed to be "not intimidating" for the beginner.

It is offered during the day on Tuesday and Thursday from 11:30 until 12:45 p.m.

A night class is offered Thursday from 6:30 until 9:20 p.m. A lab is included and its time can be tailored to the individual.

Another Word Processing class, WP 235, is called Word Processing Application I.

In this class, students will build upon what they have learned in WP 137 or WP 139, learning more about the program Word Perfect. It meets on an MWF schedule from 10-10:50 a.m.

A third class, Word Processing 239, is called Word Processing Application II, meeting MWF from 11-11:50 a.m. In it, students will learn machine transcription as well as more word processing.

Department officials recommend that Word Processing 235 and 239 be taken the same semester since they compliment each other.

For more information about any of these classes, contact either JoAnn Snider or Tammy Wesson in the Office Systems Technology Department. The number is 573-8511, exts. 217 and 241.

Bowling for PE

For the first time in many years, individuals may take bowling for P.E. credit through Western Texas College.

The class is listed as PHED 2101-0413 and will meet on a Tuesday-Thursday schedule from 9:30-10:45 a.m. at Snyder Lanes. Coach Brenda Welch-Nichols will teach the class.

For more information, contact the Health, Physical Education Department at 573-8511, ext. 284.

Crime Stoppers

A cash reward is being offered by Scurry County Crime Stoppers, Inc. for information resulting in an indictment of the person or persons responsible for the illegal entry into at least 17 known vehicles.

The crime spree occurred on Friday night, Aug. 4, 1995 and continued through the early morning hours of Saturday, Aug. 5, 1995. The thefts from the vehicles were reported to the Snyder Police Department on Aug. 5, 1995.

Thus far, all of the vehicles involved were not locked. Vehicles in the neighborhood that were locked do not appear to have been tampered with. Two areas of town were targeted, the 3300 through 3600 block of Irving and the 2700 through 2900 block of Avenue U.

The following is a brief list of items missing from the unlocked vehicles:

Spare tire, sunglasses, cash, purses, tools, stereo equipment, clothing, briefcase, medication, air compressor, cameras, flash lights, first aid kits, CDs, tote bags, VCRs, TVs, speakers, flatware, various household items, one black volt meter and books.

Scurry County Crime Stoppers, Inc. will pay up to $1,000 for information leading to the indictment of persons responsible for felony crimes. The caller shall remain anonymous.

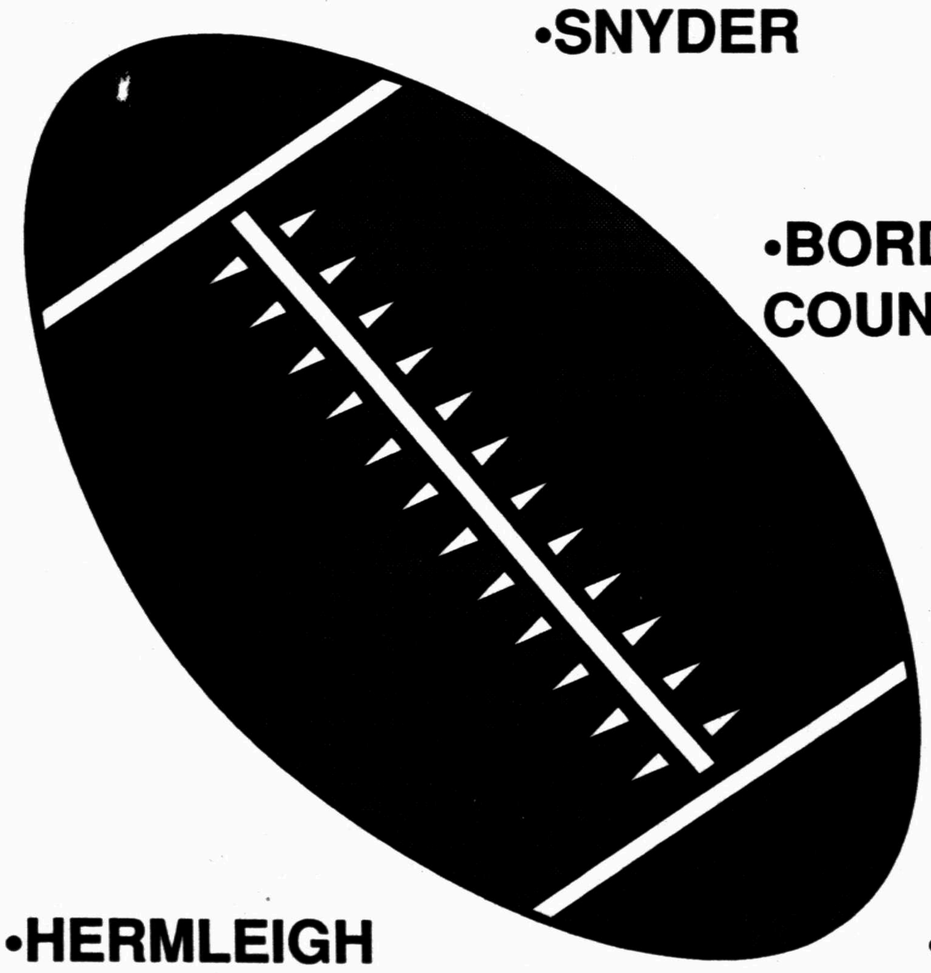

If you have any information relating to this or any crime, please call Crime Stoppers at 573-6700.
