Revisions of assistance plan submitted to HUD

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Midland has broken the standoff between itself and the Department of Housing and Urban Development by submitting revisions to its three-year Housing Assistance Plan in an attempt to get $1.09 million earmarked as Community Development funds.

A decision on whether or not those revisions are acceptable to HUD should come early next week, according to William Rotert, program manager with the Dallas HUD office.

Midland had received approval on its 1981-82 application back in July, but with the stipulation that problems with the accompanying HAP be resolved. If not, HUD warned, the grant would be reduced to $0.

The city of Midland began talking with HUD's Washington, D.C., office while the Dallas office continued to wait for word on revisions from Midland. Meanwhile, a Dec. 1 deadline for resolving the differences between the two governments passed with no action taken on either side.

In early December, Midland claimed it had received an extension from the Washington office while the Dallas office contended it had not been notified and that an extension would have to come out of that regional office.

The city apparently relented, and outlined proposed HAP revisions in a letter dated Dec. 18 and mailed to the Dallas HUD office.

The bone of contention between the two governments had centered on what Midland delineated as the area for constructing rental-assisted new housing. Previously, the city had designated all of Census Tracts 1, 7, 8, 9, 14 and 15 and parts of Census Tracts 11, 12 and 13 for allowing 280 new housing units, such as apartments. Specifically, this covers east, south and southwest parts of the city.

HUD argued that area couldn't hold 280 units. Nor were the city's site and neighborhood standards for this area acceptable, HUD said, claiming the minority concentration was too high.

Midland has revised its HAP to include all of Census Tract 13, according to Richard Hennessy, director of planning and community development for the city of Midland.

This addition of Census Tract 13, the letter reads, ensures the "availability of more than adequate vacant land for construction of 280 dwelling units on sites zoned for apartment construction."

Hennessy noted this change "makes available several sites along Holiday Hill Road that are now vacant tracts. This should be enough land available to meet HUD's requirements. Several areas there already are zoned appropriate for apartment development."

This change, along with other minor revisions, "to the best of our knowledge does conform with what they (HUD) asked," Hennessy said.

Rotert said Midland's letter will be reviewed by the department's technicians this week. "We'll give Midland a written response no later than next week," he said.

If the changes are approved, Midland has asked for a different timetable to accomplish the objectives outlined in the CD application, Rotert said. "We're reasonably flexible on the time they can accomplish this project."

Hennessy pointed out that HUD has no objections to the projects outlined in the CD application or to how the money will be spent. Those projects include $500,000 for housing rehabilitation with much of the remaining funds

Say cheese!

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The woman touched the arm of one of the workers and said with a smile, "Thank you so much for the cheese."

What began as a way to get rid of cheese stuffed into government warehouses may end as a humanitarian measure.

In light of all President Reagan's budget cuts, cheese may sound like small potatotes, but to elderly and low income residents, it means a way to stretch the food budget. Reagan announced recently that the government had bought too much cheese from farmers and would be giving it away to low income citizens.

In Midland, the Big Cheese Give-Away Day came on Tuesday when the Human Relations Council passed out boxes of cheese to elderly citizens at Casa de Amigos. According to Corina Hernandez, the local office of Department of Human Resources had notified her office that the cheese could be picked up at the Lubbock office that handles commodities.

She and co-worker Debra Johnson borrowed a van from a local church and made the 230-mile roundtrip on Monday, bringing back 185 pounds of cheese, or what they figured would serve 140 residents.

The American process cheese came packaged in five-pound boxes from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's food help program. Ms. Hernandez said other agencies who serve low-income citizens are being encouraged to take part in the cheese program.

J.R. Chilton, commodity distributor for the West Texas region and who is based in the Lubbock office, said his inventory of cheese is depleted. "We're waiting for some more shipments in next week."

Response to the giveaway has been good, said Chilton, adding that 8,000 pounds of cheese were handed out Tuesday.

Agency personnel may pick up the cheese in Lubbock, but guidelines on handing it out are loose, Chilton said.

Word of the giveaway flashed through the elderly community in east and south Midland early Tuesday and by noon numerous citizens showed up at Casa to receive their boxes.

And most of them already had plans for using it. A toothless grin spread over the face of Espiridon Galindo as he replied that his cheese will be going for "enchiladas."

Picking up his free cheese to liven up enchiladas is Espiridon Galindo. The Human Relations Council handed out boxes of cheese to elderly citizens Tuesday at Casa de Amigos. The free cheese is a result of the government purchasing too much from farmers.

Takeover to begin unless court steps in WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. is planning to begin its proposed $6.3 billion takeover of Marathon Oil Co. at midnight tonight unless it is blocked by Chief Justice Warren Burger.

Mobil Corp., which also wants to acquire Marathon, asked Burger on Tuesday to block the U.S. Steel takeover until the full Supreme Court can hear arguments on an appeal Mobil filed last week.

Mobil is appealing the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' ruling that a Mobil takeover of Marathon would violate federal antitrust laws. The court barred Mobil from competing in the bidding for Marathon stock.

But in a last minute attempt to block a takeover by U.S. Steel, Mobil is arguing that the court erred in failing to consider Mobil's agreement to sell part of Marathon's assets to another oil company if its takeover is successful.

Mobil made an agreement earlier this month to sell Marathon's marketing and refining assets to Amerada Hess Corp. of New York.

U.S. District Judge John Manos in Cleveland has ruled that since Mobil and Marathon compete in parts of the Midwest, a Mobil takeover of the nation's 17th largest oil company would be illegal. Mobil contends the sale of the Marathon assets would solve these problems.

Although U.S. Steel's $125-a-share offer, valued at $6.3 billion, is less than Mobil's, Marathon management favors it. The steel company would keep Marathon intact and keep its headquarters in Findlay, Ohio.

Mobil's appeal to Burger is the latest in a round of legal maneuvers aimed at acquiring Marathon's $2.8 billion holdings in the Yates oilfield in Texas.

Burger last Wednesday denied Mobil's emergency request to block U.S. Steel's takeover of Marathon because Mobil did not appeal first to the lower federal courts.

Mobil returned to Manos, who rejected the appeal Thursday. The the 6th Circuit denied Mobil relief on Monday.

"We are not convinced that Mobil's 'hold separate' proposal, which would cut Marathon's refining and marketing operations from its oilfield production and reserves, would cure the probable antitrust violations. It would leave Marathon's refining and marketing operations at the mercy of basic suppliers (like Mobil) and make it more vulnerable to possible monopoly pressures," the appeals court said.

Basin Inc. files lawsuit against oilmen-investors

By ED TODD

Basin Inc., the Walter R. Davis-founded crude oil marketing business which allegedly was "simply robbed" by its new owners, has lodged a $44 million dollar damage suit against four Midland oilmen-investors who in 1979 had purchased Basin from Davis.

Basin and Davis are seeking the money to "put the company back on its feet" in the wake of an allegedly wild and freewill spending binge by the defendants, Michael B. Wisenbaker, Joe N. Gifford, Bascom L. Mitchell and John Findley.

The suit, which is a spin-off from the multi-million-dollar bankruptcy litigation between The First National Bank of Midland and Midland's GMW Corp., is filed in Midland 142nd State District Court and names defendants as Wisenbaker, Gifford and Mitchell, all of Midland, and Findley, who resides in Midland and Longview.

The latest state-court suit comes less than a month after Davis filed suit against GMW Corp. and Gifford, Mitchell and Wisenbaker and their spouses for recovery of millions of dollars in New Mexico and West Texas oil interests which Davis claims the GMW trio had "stolen, embezzled and wrongfully appropriated."

However, GMW and its partners have asked that that suit be transferred to U.S. Bankruptcy Court in San Antonio.

That suit, too, is linked to the FNB-GMW Dallas bankruptcy proceedings which arose after the bank foreclosed on a GMW $25 million indebtedness note. In turn, GMW has sued FNB for more than $2.5 billion. Part of the collateral to secure the $25 million loan was the New Mexico-West Texas oil ventures, often referred to as the Arapaho Prospects.

THE LATEST SUIT, filed for Basin by Davis' Fort Worth attorney, Cecil E. Munn, and on behalf of Basin's employees, is contending that the GMW-FNB-Basin financial dispute is rooted in the prodigal behavior of the four Midland petroleum magnates — Gifford, Mitchell, Wisenbaker and Findley. The suit's 18-page petition says that Basin's management, The Wisenbaker Group, in the 1979-81 period was reckless and

Schmidt says he supports sanctions against Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, attempting to squelch speculation of serious differences with President Reagan over the Polish crisis, says he supports the U.S. economic sanctions against the Soviet Union.

At the same time, Schmidt predicted Tuesday that the reprisals will pack little economic punch and made clear that his country has no plans for similar steps although he concurs with Reagan that the Soviets bear heavy responsibility for the military crackdown in Poland.

Schmidt and Reagan issued a joint communique at the end of their talks Tuesday blaming the Soviet Union for inspiring the crackdown and denouncing it as a "serious violation" of the Helsinki human rights accords.

"It is obvious that the action would not have taken place without strong Soviet pressure," Schmidt told reporters.

The West German leader complained that the U.S. media had misrepresented his view by reporting that he did not share Reagan's assessment that the Soviets were largely to blame for the imposition of martial law in Poland.

Schmidt was leaving Washington today after a working breakfast with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Bidding farewell to Schmidt outside the White House on Tuesday afternoon, Reagan said: "I emphasized my belief that a tangible alliance response to the Polish crisis must be made now. Should we fail to insist that the Soviet Union stop pressuring Poland directly and indirectly, the gravest consequences for international relations could ensue."

Schmidt said his government would not undermine the U.S. sanctions and the two leaders pledged that their governments would continue discussions on the Polish situation next week in Brussels at a meeting of the NATO foreign ministers.

But the West German leader did not announce any punitive measures his government might take to parallel the U.S. sanctions that Reagan has directed against Moscow.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, reported that Schmidt complained to members of the Foreign Relations Committee that his government and other European allies were "expected to fall in" with the American sanctions even though they were not consulted in advance of their imposition.

Instead of using only trade sanctions with the Soviets, Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said Schmidt suggested at the Tuesday morning meeting that "we ought to consider almost a carrot-stick approach," offering incentives for the Soviet Union and the government of Polish Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski to moderate their policies.

Witness claims slain man was known drug dealer

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 21-year-old state witness in the murder trial of Milton Clyde "Papa" Keith testified Tuesday that the slain Charles Thomas Cole was a narcotics dealer.

"It's no secret that he packaged cocaine," noted prosecuting attorney David Joers, as he questioned his first witness, Mitchell Olguin of Midland.

"Real nicely," said Olguin, who described the 26-year-old Cole as "my best friend." He said Cole generally packaged the narcotic in newsprint but sometimes used plastic bags.

Keith, 23, is the first of three co-defendants to go in trial in Midland's 142nd State District Court in connection with the Sunday, May 31, shooting deaths of Cole and his girlfriend, 18-year-old Tracy Endress, in the couple's bedroom at 507 Spraberry Drive in southwest Midland.

Though he is charged on two counts of murder and robbery, Keith is being tried before a nine-woman, three-man jury in Judge Pat Baskin's court for the murder of Ms. Endress. Awaiting trial in the dual slaying is Ollie Kemp, who, like Keith, is jailed in lieu of posting bond. The third defendant, James Harris, who is also known as James Posey, is at large.

The stance taken by Prosecutor Joers is that Keith drove Kemp's car to the Cole house on the guise of setting up a "narcotics transition" but that the real intent was to rob Cole of cash and cocaine.

Cole and Ms. Endress were shot, allegedly with Cole's own .38-caliber snubbed-nose revolver.

Olguin testified that his friend had a habit of carrying "at least a couple of thousand dollars" in his leather trucker's wallet, which was attached to his belt by a chain.

"Well, Charles (Cole) was kind of a braggart, a little bit," said Olguin.

Olguin, who testified that Cole made his living packaging and selling "dope," mainly cocaine and marijuana, said he had visited Cole three times on the Sunday of his death. His last visit was about 9:25 p.m., when he left to eat barbecue sausage at his house.

Olguin, a part-time carpenter who said he lives with his parents at 3106 W. Michigan Ave., testified that he returned to the Cole frame house with the boarded-up front door about noon on the next day. He said that the screen door at back of the house was closed but that the door was open and that no music was emanating from the house; that was unusual, he said.

Department can cope with weevils

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When it comes to fighting boll weevils, the Agriculture Department says it knows a thing or two about those legendary cotton pests and how best to cope with them.

Harry C. Mussman, administrator of the department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, took issue with a critical report last summer by a National Research Council committee.

Since they invaded the United States in the late 1800s, boll weevils have been a costly enemy of cotton farmers from the High Plains of Texas to the Atlantic Seaboard.

Annual losses have ranged from 7 percent to 9 percent of the U.S. cotton crop in recent years. That's a hefty dip into a harvest that has a farm value of about $5 billion annually. Moreover, farmers spend about $300 million a year on insecticides to control the pests.

In its report last August, the committee said the department's program to eradicate or keep boll weevils in check in test areas of Virginia and North Carolina did not prove successful enough to warrant expansion into a national program across the entire Cotton Belt.

Instead, the committee said efforts should be concentrated on "integrated pest management" programs that combine insecticides, short-season and insect-resistent strains of cotton, and natural insect predators to combat cotton pests.

Mussman said the committee's recommendation was based on "two key areas of disagreement" with his agency's approach.

Those included the use of sterile boll weevils for reducing the number of natural pests and the actual rate of eradication of weevils in the trial area.

In both cases, Mussman said, department scientists confirmed that the procedures were effective.

Further, he said, evidence suggests "rather clearly that singling out only one or two options" for boll weevil control on a large scale under all circumstances "would be impracticable and unwise."

Mussman's remarks were in a speech prepared for delivery to a cotton research conference in Las Vegas, Nev. Copies of his talk were distributed here by the department.

"It seems to us that a great number of factors come into play when considering the feasibility or advisability of initiating a cotton insect control program for a given area," Mussman said.

"Even so, we believe the technology for suppression and-or eradication of the boll weevil is available, and continuing research will improve our knowledge."

AGRICULTURE

In an "optimum pest management" test in Mississippi, techniques were used to keep weevil populations down enough so they would not cause significant economic losses.

The project in North Carolina and Virginia was aimed at the eradication of boll weevils and proved they could be eliminated by using existing technology, including trapping, the use of sterile insects and selective applications of chemical pesticides, Mussman said.

"USDA holds the view that the future of cotton insect management is in the hands of the producers and the industry," Mussman said. "Only they can determine what is best or most applicable under different sets of circumstances."

Egg production up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's hens produced an estimated 5.82 billion eggs last month, up slightly from a year earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

As of Dec. 1, there were about 291 million hens in the egg flock, down 1 percent from a year ago, officials said Monday. Their rate of lay averaged 67.5 eggs per 100 hens, compared to 66.1 on Nov. 1 and 66.2 on Dec. 1, 1980.

Midland pecan growers share honors

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

Midland County pecan growers won their share of the awards at the recent West Texas Regional Pecan Show held at Midland Park Mall. Regional show winners from the county were as follows: Grand Champion In-Shell Pecan, Choctaw variety, C. A. Gray; 1st place, Barton, Dan Holland; 1st place, Graking, Bill Barrett; 2nd place, Kiowa, Davis Pecan Orchard; 1st place, in-shell variety seedling, Pat Semple; 1st and 2nd places, other in-shell variety, M. A. Cappadonna; 1st place, Caddo, Dr. John Foster; 2nd place, Cherokee, David Harris; 2nd place, Cheyenne, Karen Green; 2nd place, Onliwon, Kim Parker, McVey Orchard; 3rd place, Sioux, David Harris; 3rd place, Tejas, Davis Pecan Orchard; 3rd place, other in-shell variety, Davis Pecan Orchard; 1st place, collection of three varieties, David Harris, and 3rd place, collection of three varieties, Semple Farms.

IF YOU HAVEN'T already done so, give your shrubs, trees and lawn a good soaking with water. It has been dry now for several weeks and the mild weather this fall has resulted in soil moisture depletion. Plants will remain more vigorous and take cold weather better when the soil is kept moist during the dormant season.

At this time of the year, wood ashes from stoves and fireplaces are plentiful and the question arises as to the value of wood ashes as an additive to the garden soil. Ashes are quite beneficial on some types of soil, such as the acid, sandy soils in many East Texas areas. But not so in the soils of West Texas.

Ashes contain chemicals which are very alkaline (ph 10 to 12) and are quite high in potassium, calcium and magnesium — elements that are already abundant in West Texas soils. Also, since about 80 to 90 percent of wood ashes are water soluble mineral matter, high rates can cause salt build-up in soils, resulting in plant injury. So, the best advice is not to use wood ashes in your garden soil in this section of the state.

WHEN FEEDING CATTLE, livestock producers need to know that they are actually feeding little "bugs" in the animal's rumen or stomach. It's these little microscopic organisms that turn forgage into something cattle can use. The rumen bugs need 6 to 7 percent protein to function properly. So, if the grass your cattle graze has this much protein or more, no supplemental feed is necessary for adequate microbial activity and good digestion.

However, the rule in West Texas is that at this time of year native forage drops below this level of protein. So a protein supplement will increase digestion, total feed intake and daily performance. Classes of cattle such as growing heifers, fattening cattle or cows nursing calves require protein levels of 10 to 12 percent for good production — levels above those needed by rumen bugs.

One way to determine if cattle are getting an adequate protein diet is to examine their droppings. If droppings are dry and tall, it's a sign of constipation and lack of protein in the diet. Small amounts of supplemental phosphorus and protein stimulate these bugs and the digestive process so that mature cattle can use low quality forages that are available this time of the year.

A pound of 30 to 40 percent protein supplement and a few ounces of a good salt-phophorus mineral can change poor animal performance into acceptable maintenance performance on low quality forage. However, young cattle do not have the digestive capacity to use low quality forage effectively. So they need higher levels of protein and energy supplement (such as a 20 percent grain cube), higher quality forages or both for acceptable growth rates.

Farmers now paying less interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's still double-digit, but the interest rate farmers pay on government crop price support loans has come down a notch.

Agriculture Department officials said Tuesday the interest rate on loans made in January will be reduced for the first time in nine months.

The rate will be 12.25 percent, compared to the 14.5 percent which had been in effect since April 1.

Everett Rank, executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation said the reduced rate also applies to outstanding 1981 crop loans made before Jan. 1.

The corporation is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the department, with the authority to borrow money from the Treasury to operate price support programs. Rank said the lower rate "reflects the interest rate charged CCC" by the Treasury in January.

Rank said the interest rates also apply to loans made by the CCC to help farmers build crop storage facilities.

Farmers use their crops as collateral to obtain the loans. The normal practice is to repay the loans when market prices are above the loan rates so the commodities can then be sold on the cash market.

But if prices are severely depressed — to near the loan rate — farmers can let the government foreclose on their commodities. In that case, the debt is canceled.

Officials said the interest rates will be reviewed each month and adjusted, if need be. However, they said any adjustment — down or up — would apply only to new loans during the month affected.

Lester W. LeCompte, CCC controller, said that a farmer taking a new loan in January, for example, would be "locked in" at an interest rate of 12.25 percent for the entire loan period, which normally is nine months.

Suspension of talks won't hurt farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's suspension of grain talks with the Soviet Union will mean "practically nothing" to American farmers, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said recently.

"The truth is, as far as our agriculture trade with the Soviet Union, there should not be any immediate effect," Block said. "We have nine months to go in the sixth year of our grains agreement."

If the situation between the United States and the Soviet Union improves, he said, "we could go ahead and consumate and agreement" before the present one expires.

Block referred to Reagan's decision to suspend forthcoming negotiations with the Soviet Union on a new long-term grain agreement. The current pact, which sets minimum and maximum amounts of wheat and corn that the Soviets can buy each year, will expire on Sept 30, 1982.

"Anyone carefully reviewing the sanctions announced by the president can see some of the measures are very stern," Block said. "As far as agriculture is concerned, the effects are minimal, practically nothing at all."

Block's comments were in a statement issued by his office. They were taken from a carefully edited interview taped by an Agriculture Department information specialist late Wednesday. Block has declined comments to the news media concerning the suspension of grain talks.

Other department and private experts have said much the same as Block, that Reagan's action does not affect the current agreement to sell grain to the Soviet Union. The pact guarantees 8 million metric tons of corn and wheat annually — more if the United States agrees.

The Soviets were told three months ago they could buy up to 23 million tons of U.S. grain in the sixth year of the agreement which began on Oct. 1. They have bought about 10.9 million so far.

Block was asked what will happen after Sept. 30 if some kind of agreement is not in place.

DEATHS

Gladys Williams

Services for Gladys Williams, 39, of 3101 N. Midland Drive Apt. 102, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, with Bishop Ken Gray of Midland 1st Ward, officiating. Burial will follow at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Williams died Monday in a Midland hospital of an apparent heart attack.

She was born Jan. 16, 1942, in Zanesville, Ohio. She moved to Dallas in 1959 where she began her business career with Texas Instruments in 1966. She married John Williams in 1971. They moved to Midland in August 1981. At the time of her death, she was a lab technician with Texas Instruments in Midland. She was a member of The Church of Latter-day Saints.

Survivors include her husband of Midland; three daughters, Belinda Spencer of Irving, Robin Williams and Donna Williams, both of Midland; her mother, Ruth Angles of Zanesville, Ohio; four sisters, Edna McLean of Dallas, Mary Webb of Morengo, Ohio, Carol Robert of Virginia Beach, Va., Stella Dutro of Zanesville, Ohio; and a brother, Rolley Angles of Zanesville, Ohio.

Pallbearers will be J.C. Reynolds, Ralph Sandell, Denny Chambers and Randall Spencer, both of Irving, M.E. Curtis of Abilene, and E.B. Lesley of Odessa.

Harvey L. Baker

STANTON — Services for Harvey L. Baker, 76, of Andrews were to be at 2 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Jack Baron, pastor of Maranatha Assembly of God Church officiating. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery here, directed by Gilbreath Funeral Home.

He died Tuesday morning in a Stanton hospital after a lengthy illness.

Baker was born Sept. 5, 1905, at Kellogg. He lived in Stanton from 1933 to 1954, and had lived in Andrews for the past 18 years. He was married Oct. 25, 1924, to Myra Faye Jones at Greenville. She died Oct. 27, 1980. He was employed as an auto parts manager until his retirement in 1958.

Survivors include two sons, Laymon Baker of Andrews and Bill Baker of Stanton; his mother, Evia Lee Kloeckner of Sacramento, Calif.; three sisters, Gladys Parker and Judy Whitehead, both of Sacramento, and Mary Strasser of Bryte, Calif.; two brothers, Loyd Baker of Celeste and William Baker of Alaska; eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Helen Ulmer

Services for Helen Rountree Ulmer of 2004 Stanolind Ave. will be at 1 p.m. Thursday in Glass Memorial Chapel of the First United methodist Church with Dr. Charles Lutrick, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery, directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday evening in a Midland hospital.

She was the widow of Marvin C. Ulmer, a longtime president of The First National Bank of Midland.

Survivors include a daughter, Helen Margaret VanAtta of Dallas; and three grandsons.

Former Polish radio, TV head on trial

Special to the Washington Post

In an apparent attempt to mitigate public anger over trials of Solidarity activists, Poland's military government Tuesday put on trial a former high party official who was close to Edward Gierek, the disgraced former Communist Party leader.

Under the glare of television lights, Maciej Szczepanski, former head of the state radio and television committee, and four close aides sat in a dock surrounded by policemen. They are charged with accepting bribes from foreign companies, misappropriation of state funds, mismanagement and falsification of official documents.

Szczepanski and his former aides were led into Room 252 in the central Warsaw courthouse, just down the corridor from where trials of workers accused of staging strikes in violation of martial law were taking place.

While the workers were handcuffed, however, Szczepanski's arms were free as he entered the courtroom, bantering with his police guards.

THE TRIAL, WHICH WAS begun sooner than originally scheduled, is expected to last several months as the four-man court sifts through 128 volumes of evidence and listens to over 200 witnesses.

Szczepanski, whose power in the field of television and radio was unchallenged during the Gierek regime, has become a symbol of free living, corrupt and amoral practices among the party elite during the 1970s, a period when living standards collapsed for most of the population. But although many Poles profess to want to see him punished, the extensive official publicity given to his case has led some to believe he is being used as a scapegoat.

Szczepanski's defense lawyers argued Tuesday that they had not been given adequate time to prepare his case and, because of martial law, had not had sufficient access to their client. The judges, however, refused their requests for a postponement.

The extensive time that is expected to be devoted to Szczepanski's case was in sharp contrast to the "summary procedures" being used to try the workers, whose trials have lasted an average of two or three days. They have brought sentences of at least three years with no right of appeal.

Three workers from the Huta Warszawa steel mill were on trial Tuesday for allegedly organizing a strike there on Dec. 14, the day after martial law was declared.

ON THE SAME floor, four workers were in court on charges of having led a strike at the Ursus tractor factory near Warsaw. Among them was Jan Jozef Lipski, an eminent, 55-year-old literary critic from the prestigious National Academy of Sciences, who was also a member of the dissident Workers' Self-Defense Committee (known as KOR from its Polish initials).

Lipski is suffering from heart trouble, and much of Tuesday's proceedings were aimed at establishing whether he was healthy enough to stand trial. He reportedly went to the tractor factory shortly after martial law was declared and as the strike there already was under way.

Other trials included workers from the huge F.S.O. car factory in Warsaw. The Communist Party daily, Trybuna Ludu, reported on trials of Solidarity strike leaders in a number of other cities, including Szczecin, Jelena Gora, Katowice, Lodz and Liblin. The harshest sentences so far have been in Katowice, where workers got up to seven years.

The workers' trials in Warsaw Tuesday were well attended by supporters of the defendants, some of whom wore Solidarity buttons with black mourning strips or badges depicting Poland's patron saint, the Black Madonna. A Black Madonna pin became a symbol of the workers movement because Solidarity leader Lech Walesa invariably wore one on his left lapel.

Young men avidly scribbled portions of the testimony in notebooks. Older men, obviously workers, leaned forward on wooden benches, listening to every word.

BY CONTRAST, Szczepanski's trial was sparsely attended. Permission slips were required for admission, but this rule was waived later in the day. One or two people ventured in, sat down for a few minutes, and then left.

"I just wanted to look at the son of a bitch," said one elderly man, referring to Szczepanski.

In Warsaw, Washington Post correspondent Michael Dobbs filed the following dispatch, cleared through military censorship:

Jan. 5 — Just 18 months ago, Maciej Szczepanski was one of the most powerful men in Poland. As head of state radio and television, he acted as chief image maker for the former Communist regime — covering up its disastrous economic mistakes with what became known as "the propaganda of success." The ex-chief of the Communist Party, Edward Gierek, described him as "my favorite son."

Tuesday, Szczepanski, along with four of his closest associates, went on trial in a Warsaw court accused of a series of criminal acts ranging from embezzlement to accepting bribes to falsifying documents.

SET AGAINST THE greater drama of martial law, the Szczepanski trial may seem a minor episode. But it is important, not only because it is the first trial of former senior Communist Party officials in a Soviet Bloc country for many years, but also because of the insights it gives to the way Poland was run in the '70s under Gierek.

The indictment against Szczepanski alone runs into 600 pages — a catalogue of alleged abuses committed during 10 years of Gierek's rule. The 53-year-old former television chief had earlier been accused in the Polish press of diverting state money to companies he secretly owned in Britain and Liechenstein and using public funds to import some 900 pornographic films that he lent out to high-ranking friends.

The trial was originally scheduled to open Jan. 14 but, following the imposition of martial law last month, it was speeded up. Poland's military authorities have sought to create an impression of even-handedness by moving against both the independent Solidarity trade union movement and discredited former Communist Party officials at the same time. A large television broadcast van was parked in the courtyard alongside police trucks to beam pictures back to the service Szczepanski used to run like a private fiefdom.

Blinking under the powerful television arc lights, Szczepanski entered court in an open-neck shirt and shabby dark suit — a marked contrast to his smart appearance during his days in power. He exchanged private jokes with his former deputy, Eugeniusz Patyk, who is also accused of accepting bribes from foreign companies and illegal dealings in hard currency.

What Polish newspapers have described as Szczepanski's "monarchical style" of life has become legend since his dismissal at the height of the labor unrest in August 1980 that gave birth to Solidarity. Lurid tales circulated about a private harem and he allegedly had many residences, including one with an outdoor pool.

THE DEFENSE, however, is expected to argue that the luxury villas frequented by Szczepanski were owned not by him but by the Committee for Radio and Television. Questioned by the judge Tuesday, he said he only had one car, an apartment in town and a country house.

Szczepanski, a former member of the Communist Party's policy-making Central Committee, had a minor skirmish with the judge who twice asked him to give his middle name. "I only have one name, Maciej — as far as I remember, I was not given another one," he insisted.

Hans Conried, Danny Thomas' 'Uncle Tonoose,' dead at 64

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Actor Hans Conried, who started a multi-faceted career on radio and moved into a long-running television role as the eccentric Uncle Tonoose on "The Danny Thomas Show," is dead at age 64.

Conried, who also performed in movies and on Broadway, died Tuesday at St. Joseph's Medical Center. He was hospitalized Sunday after suffering a heart attack, hospital spokeswoman Rhoda Weiss said.

A founding member of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, the tall, thin Conried had recently completed a cable television version of "Barefoot in the Park."

CONRIED

"I started out to be a Shakespearean actor, but there was really no market for Shakespearean actors," he said in a 1966 interview. "But there was radio. Wonderful radio. Twenty years of radio. When the bottom fell out, there I was. Jack Paar transformed me into a television personality."

He had been a regular on radio shows such as "The Great Gildersleeve," "My Friend Irma" and "Life With Luigi."

Among his film credits was the starring role in "The 5,000 Fingers of Dr. T." He also appeared in "Oh God, Book II," "The Cat from Outer Space," "My Friend Irma," "Bus Stop" and "Dramatic School," his first film, in 1937.

He also hosted the 1960s television comedy series "Fractured Flickers."

He appeared as a guest star recently on the TV shows "The George Burns Christmas Special," "Love Boat," "Fantasy Island," "Alice" and "Laverne and Shirley."

Pope ordains nine bishops, including two Americans

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II consecrated nine new bishops of the Roman Catholic Church today, including two Americans, in a solemn Mass at St. Peter's Basilica.

More than 10,000 faithful, 17 cardinals and 50 archbishops and bishops attended the celebration which took place on the feast of Epiphany.

As the Sistine Chapel choir sang "veni, creator spiritus" (come, spiritual creator), the pontiff, clad in glistening gold-white robes and a gold-trimmed headdress, laid his hands upon each of the nine as a sign of the apostolic succession.

The two Americans are Monsignor Thomas J. O'Brien, 46, of Indianapolis, Ind., the bishop of Phoenix, Ariz., and the auxiliary bishop of Omaha, Neb., Monsignor Charles Milone, 49, a native of Omaha.

The pope appointed O'Brien last November to succeed Bishop James Rausch, who died in May. The new bishop arrived in Rome Tuesday accompanied by 234 Arizonans, including 35 priests and 10 nuns.

Milone studied in the North American College in Rome and obtained a doctorate from the Pontifical Gregorian University.

He was ordained on Dec. 15, 1957, and served in parishes in Belvue, Nebraska, until he was transferred to Omaha in June 1973.

The pope said in his homily, delivered in Italian, that the consecration had "an added meaning" because it took place on Epiphany, usually associated with the Magi who visited the Christ child.

Noting that the day has come to emphasize the missionary character of the church, John Paul urged the nine bishops to do their "utmost" to spread the Gospel.

O'Brien, speaking with reporters Tuesday, also emphasized the significance of the ordination taking place on the feast of Epiphany.

"It's not just a matter of the pope tapping some men around the world," he said. "There is a message here about the diversity of the church."

Polish situation may change draft stance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The situation in Poland may be complicating President Reagan's decision on ending peacetime draft registration, Pentagon officials indicate.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto refused Tuesday to discuss any recommendations on the issue made to Reagan by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. But Weinberger reportedly suggested to Reagan during a meeting about a week before Christmas that ending the registration program would send the Soviet Union the wrong signal.

At the time of that meeting the administration was preparing to impose economic sanctions against the Soviet Union because of its alleged instigation of the military crackdown in Poland.

When asked Tuesday about what Reagan might do about draft registration, Catto said, "What he is going to decide in the light of current realities, I do not know."

During the 1980 presidential campaign, Reagan opposed continuing the registration program, which was begun by former President Carter about two years ago after the Soviets sent troops into Afghanistan. Weinberger also is believed to be opposed to peacetime registration.

A senior Army general, who asked for anonymity, said meanwhile that the Reagan administration has a problem dealing with the draft registration question "on the basis of current events" in Poland.

And Catto acknowledged that the Joint Chiefs of Staff "favor retention of registration."

The Reagan administration took a number of steps in November and early December that appeared to be laying the groundwork for a presidential announcement of a decision to end registration.

Suit filed in continuing GMW saga

irresponsible.

"This case involves so much money, so much dereliction of corporate management responsibilities, so much abuse of trust, so much convoluted financial manipulation for selfish and improper purposes," alleges the petition.

In 1979, Davis and his associates sold Basin, which transports and markets crude oil, to Gifford, Mitchell, Wisenbaker and Findley. The up-front selling price was about $10 million.

At time of the sale, Basin was "a financially sound organization, providing good jobs for many people in Midland and elsewhere and good services for hundreds of producers in several states."

HOWEVER, two years after the sale, the new owners launched "a wild personal spending binge of unprecedented dimensions" and "almost gutted the company," the petition says.

"Not only did they drain out of it the working capital that permitted its successful operation," the suit contends, "but they even spent for their personal purposes millions of dollars of money belonging to producers and held in suspense pending completion of title requirements."

By May of 1981, Basin had been driven into "a financial ditch," the suit says, and the new owners, who "confessed that they had the company on the brink of financial disaster, again sought out Davis."

"They...said there was not enough money left in it to pay the bills currently owing to the producers and pleaded with Walter Davis to make some kind of deal to take the company back and try to save it and their reputation."

Davis, who was "deeply concerned for the good Basin name" and for Basin's employees, their families and others, "reluctantly agreed" to take control of the ailing company, which, he soon found out, was in a far worse "financial predicament" than he had suspected.

"And the reason was clear," the suit's petition says. "The new owners had simply robbed it."

Recovery of the $44 million will restore Basin to financial soundness, preserve the jobs of its employees and will "protect its business integrity among the thousands of producers whose oil it handles."

DAVIS, WHO FORMED Basin in 1973 as a crude oil transporation and marketing company, engineered the prosperity and growth of the company in the 1970s "despite the obstacle of horribly anti-competitive bureaucratic rules and red tape," which since largely have been suspended by the federal government.

"No producer ever lost money under the Davis management," the petition claims. "No employee's job was ever in jeopardy."

In 1979, while Davis was on a trip to Europe, Findley, who then was Davis's and Basin's vice president, left his job with Basin and joined The Wisenbaker Group, which supposedly made Findley "an offer that I could not refuse."

Shortly afterward, according to the petition's background on Basin, The Wisenbaker Group of Gifford, Mitchell and Wisenbaker bought the company from Davis under an agreement whereby the $9.8 million in Basin stock was purchased for "tax reasons" in the name of a shell corporation, Cheyenne Refining Inc., which was owned by the GMW trio.

THE GMW TRIO essentially used Basin's "own money" to buy the company, the petition claims. The agreed-on cash sell price to Davis was $9,804,000 for the Basin stock in addition to a reserved royalty of five cents per barrel of oil payable by Basin.

"In fact," contends the suit, "not one cent was ever paid by The Wisenbaker Group for their acquisition of Basin. All of the money that they used to buy Basin came straight out of Basin itself — a sort of corporate cannibalism."

The $2.8 million downpayment which the Wisenbaker Group paid Davis was made on July 10, 1979, by Cheyenne but from funds the trio "borrowed temporarily from The First National Bank of Midland." In turn, says the petition, the Cheyenne loan was paid off with "money out of Basin." Balance of the purchase price was covered by a promissory note from Cheyenne to Davis and his associates and was guaranteed by The Wisenbaker Group.

WITHIN A MONTH after the sale was closed, the group dissolved Basin Inc., placed the assets into the Cheyenne "hollow corporation," and then changed Cheyenne's name to Basin Inc., the petition alleges.

In January 1980, The Wisenbaker Group paid a second installment of $2.67 million toward fulfilling its contract with Davis, and paid a third installment of $2.78 million in January 1981.

"Every penny of those payments was taken out of Basin's own funds," according to the petition. "The Wisenbaker Group effectively paid nothing for the company. They bought Basin in its entirety with Basin's own funds."

In December 1980, The Wisenbaker Group formed Basin Refining Inc. and purchased a refinery in Okmulgee, Okla., for $100 million. "It was a solo venture of The Wisenbaker Group," says the petition, which dutifully noted that, "despite the company's use of Basin's good name," neither Basin Inc. nor Davis had any interest in the refining company.

"They turned their refining company into a financial disaster in less than a year and almost wrecked Basin Inc. in the process," contends the petition.

BY MAY OF 1981, The Wisenbaker Group had "so mismanaged Basin Inc....to build their own paper empire and support their mounting extravagant living standards that the company could not pay its bills," the petition says. "They had it in deep financial trouble."

To bail themselves and Basin out of their financial woes, Gifford, Mitchell and Wisenbaker called on Davis and pleaded "with him to try to clean up their mess."

"'If Basin does not pay the producers for the crude oil it has purchased,' they cried,'" the petition says,"'the producers will leave us, Basin will go down the drain and our reputations will be destroyed.'"

The group was desperate, the petition suggests.

"'Walter, please, please help us,' they begged. 'Basin Inc. can only survive by bringing the credit resources, the management talents and the good name of W.R. Davis back into it.'"

Davis "reluctantly" agreed to try to salvage Basin with the "dedicated" help of The First National Bank of Midland, which had been financing The Wisenbaker Group, and the First National Bank in Dallas, where Davis had "an established line of credit."

The petition says that Davis secured bank financing and other loans in an effort to clean up Basin's operations and finances and to re-establish its good reputation.

"Mr. Davis did everything he agreed to do," the petition contends. "So did Seminole. So did the banks. So did John Wisenbaker" in an effort "to help save his son's reputation." The senior Wisenbaker and the Florida-based Seminole Refining Co. each had agreed to make loans of $5 million to Basin. The banks had agreed to provide additional financing, including a $12 million "irrevocable letter of credit" to guarantee that the 4,400 producers would be paid for the crude oil which they had delivered to Basin.

"But The Wisenbaker Group did not (follow through with its commitment). They defaulted at every step. They refused to cooperate. They just continued on their unbridled spending spree."

But Davis's efforts to salvage Basin and the reputations of the GMW trio were put into limbo "less than three weeks after seeking out Mr. Davis's help."

The Wisenbaker Group put the refinery into bankruptcy proceedings in federal court in Dallas. The petition for bankruptcy was filed on June 6, 1981, and listed seven companies owned and managed by The Wisenbaker Group and which were "insolvent and unable to pay their bills. Basin Inc., the management of which had been turned over to W.R. Davis, was not among them."

The Basin petition against the GMW trio and Findley says the bankruptcy court on June 19 tried the case and "dismissed the ridiculous fraud charges" against Basin and Davis and allowed the $12 million to be paid to Basin. "That in turn permitted over 4,400 producers to be paid. And they were paid."

The bankrupty court noted that Basin, while under control of Davis from 1973 to 1979, was "very profitable."

However, the court surmised that under control of the Gifford, Mitchell and Wisenbaker group, Basin was operated "not too successfully and branched out into...an integrated oil company where they got the oil and refined the oil and marketed the oil and were going to become a little Exxon or Mobil, I guess," the federal bankruptcy judge said.

The petition says Davis continued to probe into the purported damage the GMW trio had done to Basin.

"The corporate rape was even worse than it had at first appeared."

After additional bankruptcy hearings beginning in October, The Wisenbaker Group on Dec. 4 filed another suit in court "with a malice that is downright childish," the petition contends.

The new suit, against Midland's First National Bank and its president, Charles Fraser, seeks damages exceeding $2.5 billion "to divvy up among The Wisenbaker Group, their bankrupt GMW Corp., and Mike's father, John (Wisenbaker)," and $5 million for the group's attorneys."

GMW officials had no comment on the suit.

Snelson kicks off campaign Thursday

Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland will kick off his campaign for Texas Land Commissioner Thursday during a public reception from 5 to 7 p.m. in Midland Center.

Billed as a Midland tribute to Pete and Susan Snelson for their 16 years of service in the Senate and as a hometown sendoff toward four years as land commissioner, advance registrations indicate a large turnout, according to sponsors of the event.

The public is invited to the reception.

Robert Smith, pastor of First Prebyterian Church, will serve as master of ceremonies for a short program scheduled for 5:45 p.m.

Snelson, who has represented Midland in both the Texas House of Representatives and Senate over the past 20 years, formally announced Dec. 17 that he would enter the statewide race.

"Proper management of the 22.5 million acres of public lands is of vital concern to every Texan and the role of the land commissioner has an important bearing on the financing of public education through involvement in the Permanent School Fund and the Permanent University Fund," Snelson said.

"During the course of this campaign I will be asking the people of Texas to entrust this responsibility to me based on my record of public service and my experience in the education and business world," he said.

Filing deadline for candidates is Feb. 1 and the Democratic primary election will be May 1.

going to street paving and other improvements in south and east Midland.

While the current fund money remains up in the air, Hennessy and Rotert noted that the process for next year's application will begin soon.

"We had allotted funds in this application to hire a community development administrator who would prepare next year's application," said Hennessy.

"If we can get the OK from HUD on this one (HAP revisions) I assume the city manager would hire a CD person to prepare the application for next year. It would relieve some of the burden on our department," he acknowledged. "We would still be doing the planning work in preparation for applications."

In addition, Rotert pointed out that the new regulations for next year's applications haven't come out of Washington yet.

Slight chance of snowfall Thursday

After a relatively mild winter season, Midlanders may get their first taste of real January weather Thursday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, it will be colder with considerable cloudiness tonight and Thursday. There is a slight chance of rain or rain mixed with snow Thursday.

The mercury will drop into the middle 20s tonight, climbing only into the lower 40s on Thursday.

Today's gusty and southwesterly winds will decrease tonight, shifting to the north at 10-15 mph. Winds will be northeasterly on Thursday.

Chance of precipitation is 20 percent on Thursday.

Tuesday's high of 70 was 8 degrees cooler than the record high of 78, set for that date in 1948. The overnight low of 45 was 13 degrees warmer than the record low of 32, set for that date in 1971.

Poisonous gas may have caused death

ANDREWS — A 28-year-old Sikeston, Mo., man who died in an oilfield accident 14 miles east of here at 7:38 p.m. Monday has been identified as Ronald Wayne Crews.

Crews died of possible inhalation of poisonous gas, according to an Andrews County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

His body was to be taken to Sikeston, Mo., for services. Easterling-Wilson Funeral Home in Odessa handled local arrangements.

Holiday burglar hits home for $3,035

In light criminal activity reported to police during the past 24 hours, Don Whisenant of 1301 S. Atlanta St. said a CB base station, a camera and assorted jewelry worth a total of $3,035 were taken in a holiday burglary of his home. There was no sign of forced entry.

'Bubba' Hall transferred to Big Spring

BIG SPRING — An elderly Mertzon rancher accused in the slayings of two fishermen along Spring Creek March 22 has been transferred from the maximum security wing of Rusk State Hospital to the state hospital at Big Spring, where he will remain indefinitely.

Mortimer "Bubba" Hall, in his eighties and under treatment for alcoholism, is charged with shooting 34-year-old John Bernardon of Midland and David J. Adams, 32, of Rollin' Acres. They had been fishing on the creek at a point where it winds through Hall's property.

A court later declared him incompetent to stand trial and committed him to Rusk, where a review committee recently decided he did not require maximum security and recommended his transfer to Big Spring last month.

Hall could still be prosecuted on the murder charges if he regains his competency, officials said, and a civil suit filed by the men's widows could yet be brought to trial if the court appoints a guardian to protect his interests.

Elderly residents of the Rockefeller Tower Apartments in Cleveland huddle in the lobby of the building as they were evacuated when a fire broke out Tuesday night.

Tower fire kills five

Fire injures 20 others

CLEVELAND (AP) — Nearly 200 people, many elderly or handicapped, were made at least temporarily homeless by a fire that killed five people and injured about 20 others, authorities said.

The blaze Tuesday night started in a third-floor apartment in the six-story, 133-unit Rockefeller Park Towers on the city's east side, officials said.

"It consumed a suite on the third floor and was then dancing down the hallway," said Edward Rawlins, assistant fire chief. "The flames were confined to that floor, but floors three, four, five and six were all loaded with smoke and heat."

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

AMONG THE 20 people injured were four firefighters, three of them treated for smoke inhalation and one suffering a broken leg.

About 180 residents were forced to seek shelter elsewhere.

Most found relatives or friends to stay with, and 10 were lodged at a nearby motel, said William Lentz, Greater Cleveland Red Cross disaster services director.

"Probably a couple of floors could be occupied tonight, but this building will be buttoned up for now. Everybody will be evacuated," Lentz said.

The Cuyahoga County coroner's office identified three of the dead early today as Mae Etta Torrence, 47; Emma Virden, 81, and Marion Merchant, 78. Two others were not immediately identified.

"WHEN I FIRST opened the apartment door, I thought it was coming up the elevator," said Evalyne Matthews, 53, who was visiting fourth-floor resident Robert Teacher, 58. "But when I opened the (stairway) fire door, the smoke hit me and I said, 'Go back in the room.'"

Ms. Matthews said she and Teacher drenched some towels and sheets, hoping to wrap themselves up and fight through the smoke.

"I thought we could get down on the floor and get out, but there was no way," she said. "I went to the windows to holler for help. They didn't see us at first. I've been overcome by smoke before, and I was afraid of that because I have asthma."

The two were among seven or eight who were rescued on fire department ladders, Rawlins said.

Battalion Chief Walter Zimmerer estimated damage at more than $100,000, but he indicated the figure could go higher.

Witness claims slain man was drug dealer

"I knocked and I knocked and I knocked," said Olguin, who said he and two friends, David Click and Jannette Ann Good, then entered the house and walked into the bedroom. Cole was lying on the bed. Ms. Endress was on the floor; her head was resting against a sound-system speaker.

"I told Thomas (Cole) to get up, and he wouldn't get up," testified Olguin, who said he then saw blood about Cole's neck and forthwith ran across the street to the Murphy brothers' house. Someone then telephoned Midland police.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney R. Sandy Torres, who was trying to discredit the 21-year-old state witness, Olguin admitted to several arrests for criminal deeds, including robbery, assault, burglary, driving a stolen vehicle, possession of dangerous drugs and possession of a prohibited weapon.

However, Olguin said that he had "very little" narcotics business dealings with Cole. Torres asked Olguin if Cole was "self employed."

"He didn't have a job," Olguin said.

"Other than selling cocaine?" responded Torres.

"Yes," Olguin admitted.

Co-defense counsel Bob Garcia asked Olguin if he dealt in illicit drugs.

"I'm not dealing anything," he said.

However, Olguin said that Cole, who did deal in underworld drugs, kept firearms about his house and had boarded up the front door "because he believes in safety, I guess. He had a lot of locks on his house."

Olguin, who was the first of several state witnesses in the trial, said that defendant Keith had visited Cole a week or so before the dual slaying.

"He had another black person with him; I don't know who he was," Olguin said. "I believe that he (Keith) did see the (Cole's) wallet."

U.S. District Judge William Overton of Little Rock ruled Tuesday that Arkansas' creation-science law is unconstitutional. This is a 1981 file photo of Overton.

Creation law overturned

Law's defenders vow to intensify efforts

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Creationists vowed to "take the offensive" after a judge overturned a state law requiring schools to teach creationism if they teach evolution, and the Mississippi Senate struck the first blow, passing a similar statute.

"If anything, creation-scientists' efforts will be intensified," Duane Gish, associate director of the Institute for Creation Research in El Cajon, Calif., said after the ruling. A challenge of Louisiana's new creationism law is expected to be heard this spring.

U.S. District Judge William Overton ruled Tuesday in Little Rock that the Arkansas law violated First Amendment guarantees of separation of church and state.

"It was simply and purely an effort to introduce the biblical version of creation into the public school curricula," Overton, the Methodist son of a biology teacher, said in his 40-page ruling.

"I BELIEVE THAT THIS case will deal creation-science a fatal blow," said Robert Cearley Jr., who represented the American Civil Liberties Union in the suit against the law.

Steve Clark, the Arkansas attorney general who defended the law in court, said he has not made up his mind on an appeal.

The law, which would have gone into effect in autumn, said public schools teaching evolution must also teach creation-science.

Evolutionists believe the Earth is billions of years old and life forms began developing gradually several million years ago. Creationists generally hold that the Earth and most life came into existence suddenly about 6,000 years ago.

The ruling, based on a nine-day trial last month, is "a very serious blow to academic and religious freedom," Gish said in a telephone interview.

GISH SAID HE HAD greater confidence in Louisiana's defense of its new creationism law, also being challenged by the ACLU.

Louisiana Sen. Bill Keith, the author of Louisiana's creationism law, said his confidence was unshaken by the ruling.

Arkansas was "outgunned and outmaneuvered," Keith said. "I'm confident that with the proper defense, proper testimony, we'll win in Louisiana."

Last year, Arkansas became the first state to adopt such a bill, based on a premise that public schools can be required to teach creation from a scientific standpoint without religious materials.

Creationists have circulated the bill in most states and have offered it to Congress for national action.

The ACLU filed suit in May for 23 plaintiffs, including 12 clergymen, challenging the Arkansas statute and saying creation-science was religion in disguise.

The ACLU asked that the law be stricken on the religious issue and on grounds it is too vague and infringes on academic freedom. Overton ruled only on the religion issue.

Although Cearley said he hoped the ruling would "put an end to attempts to get creation-science introduced in the schools in the guise of science," the Mississippi Senate passed a similar measure 48-4 after Overton's ruling.

"IF WE'RE GOING TO have a nation that says 'In God We Trust,' let's go all the way or not at all," said Sen. Cecil Mills of Clara.

The bill goes to the House. Mississippi Sen. Emerson Stringer was told of the Arkasas ruling minutes before he guided the bill to victory on the opening day of the 1982 legislative session.

"My philosophy is that the judicial branch of government has its responsibility and I work for my people and I have my responsibility," he said.

Guardian Angels to press for wider probe

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Although the FBI has begun looking into the killing of a Guardian Angel volunteer by a policeman, the anti-crime patrol says its members will still march to Washington to press for a wider investigation.

Frank Melvin, 26, was to be buried today at the cemetery where he worked as a guard.

Justice Department spokesman John Wilson said Tuesday in Washington that the FBI has begun reviewing official records in the case. He declined to say whether the FBI was conducting interviews.

THE FBI began its investigation on its own initiative, Wilson said. In keeping with standard practice involving alleged police misconduct, the FBI will submit its report to the Justice Department's civil rights division.

Melvin, the first member of the Guardian Angels to be killed on patrol, was shot to death the night of Dec. 30. Police Director Hubert Williams said the officer who killed Melvin was perched on the roof of the People's Tavern on Ludlow Street and fired after thinking Melvin was threatening an officer on the street.

The Guardian Angels say Melvin was shot by a different officer at street level as Melvin tried to identify himself as a member of the patrol.

"THIS HAS been a coverup from the day that shot was fired," said Curtis Sliwa, the founder and leader of the organization, which sends young volunteers dressed in red berets and T-shirts into subways and other urban areas to fight crime.

Sliwa said he and 300 Guardian Angels would begin a march to Washington on Thursday to try to pressure more federal agencies to join the investigation.

The New York Daily News and the Star-Ledger of Newark reported Tuesday that an examination of Melvin's body by state Medical Examiner Dr. Robert Goode showed Melvin was killed by a shot fired by a policeman standing on a roof.

That finding contradicts results of an earlier autopsy by Dr. Thomas Santoro, Essex County's chief medical examiner. Santoro said the bullet that killed Melvin was fired by an officer at street level.

Verdict reached on freeway killings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury weighing a truck driver's guilt or innocence in 12 grisly Freeway Killings reached a verdict after six days of deliberation, but the defendant, his lawyers and prosecutors were made to wait one more day.

The verdict in the case of William Bonin, 34, could not be released because Judge William Keene had to attend a funeral Tuesday. The verdict was placed overnight in the custody of a Superior Court clerk and was to be announced today.

A conviction could carry the death penalty if the jury found Bonin guilty of first-degree murder with "special circumstances."

Bonin is charged with 12 counts of murder, 11 counts of robbery, one count of sodomy and one count of mayhem.

The 12 were among 44 homosexual slayings of young men and boys whose bodies, often mutilated, have been found along Southern California freeways since 1972.

The defense said it was encouraged by the length of time the jury spent in deliberations and the prosecution called it an indication of the jurors' diligence.

Flowers help ease the loss.

THE NEW IRA:

The difference between simply retiring, and retiring well.

Ring Out the Old.
IRA's (Individual Retirement Accounts) have been around for a couple of years. Originally, IRA's were designed to provide people with tax deductions now, and additional income beyond Social Security benefits upon retirement. Unfortunately, only a limited group of people qualified.

Ring Up the New.
Under the New IRA, every working American is eligible. Financial consultants call it Congress' greatest gift to working Americans in 50 years. Indeed, the New IRA could mean the difference between simply retiring, and retiring well.

Beginning January 1, 1982, you can invest up to $2,000 ($2,250 per couple with one working spouse; $4,000 with both husband and wife employed) in an IRA and deduct this investment on your income tax return. By the time a 25-year-old reaches retirement at 65, for example, he or she could retire with over a million dollars.

Age	$4,000 Annually*	$2,250 Annually*	$2,000 Annually*
25	$3,436,569	$1,933,070	$1,718,285
30	$1,933,852	$1,087,792	$ 966,926
35	$1,081,170	$ 608,158	$ 540,585
40	$ 597,336	$ 336,001	$ 298,668
45	$ 322,795	$ 181,572	$ 161,397
50	$ 167,013	$ 93,945	$ 83,506
55	$ 78,618	$ 44,223	$ 39,309
60	$ 28,461	$ 16,009	$ 14,230
65	$ 4,480	$ 2,520	$ 2,240

Based on an average rate of 12%. Federal regulations require a substantial penalty for early withdrawal.
*Future value of dollars invested with annual deposits, annual compounding and annual interest rate of 12%. This table is for example purposes only. Actual rates, investment amounts, frequency of deposits and method of compounding interest may vary.

The Midland National Advantage.
To broaden your investment option, Midland National is introducing an 18-Month Certificate of Deposit for the New IRA. You simply open this IRA with a CD (minimum of $500), and you may add to it with deposits of $100 or more without extending maturity. The floating weekly rate is tied to the 6-Month Money Market CD.

Real Security vs. Social Security.
Midland National's 18-Month CD for the New IRA, unlike Social Security, is insured by the FDIC. And it's a sure way to get the tax break you need now, while assuring yourself a comfortable retirement later. For more information, call our IRA specialist, Venita Gaston, Assistant Cashier, 685-5292.

Japan's defense lag

Getting Japan to increase its defense spending to come close to parity with its allies is going to be a long-term project.

Recently the Japanese government approved a 7.7 percent increase in defense spending for fiscal 1982. That will bring Japanese defense spending to $11.6 billion.

Only a few nations spend more than that for defense — the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain, France, West Germany and Saudi Arabia. But Japan, economically, is a superpower, outranked only by the United States and the Soviet Union in the value of its gross national product (GNP). And, in terms of military spending as a percentage of GNP, Japan remains low.

The United States spends 5.5 percent of its GNP on defense, according to the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London. Britain spends 5.1 percent, France 3.9 percent, West Germany 3.2 percent — Japan 0.9 percent.

Another meaningful comparison shows that the United States spends 23.7 percent of its government spending on defense, Britain spends 12.3 percent, France 20.5 percent, West Germany 22.6 percent — Japan 5 percent.

The low level of defense spending in Japan can also be seen clearly in terms of dollars per capita. U.S. defense spending is reported by the institute at $759 a person a year, Britain's at $512, France's at $483, West Germany's at $405 — Japan's at $98.

By every economic measure, the Japanese defense effort is below par.

There are good historical reasons for this. Pacifism was strong in Japan after World War II. And it was reinforced by the new Japanese constitution approved by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of the U.S. occupation forces. The constitution renounces the use of force in foreign affairs and places strict limits on the Japanese military. Only a loose interpretation of the constitution has legalized Japan's present minimal defense program.

Moreover, China and other Asian nations have in the past expressed fears of a revival of Japanese militarism. Whether such fears continue to be widely felt is debatable. China, which has suffered most in the past from Japanese arms, is now urging Japan to increase its defense spending.

But there is also a solid economic reason for Japan's reluctance to rearm. The low level of taxation in Japan is a direct result of the low defense spending and is one reason for Japan's astounding post-war economic success story. Keeping taxes low helps make exported products competitive on the world market. It is an advantage that Japanese businessmen will hang onto for as long as they can.

The recently announced defense budget is a long way from the kind of increase required to bring Japanese defense spending up to the level of the major North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations any time soon.

There is no good reason for this continued disparity. Japan is getting a free ride. A more equal sharing of the defense burden is essential to Japan's role as a full partner in the free world.

Three strikes for peace

Good news as well as bad marked Middle East peace-making efforts in the latter months of 1981. The bad made headlines but the good can make history.

While Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Golan grab and other events have been driving Egypt and Israel further apart, developments in the field of transportation have been opening gates and drawing them closer together.

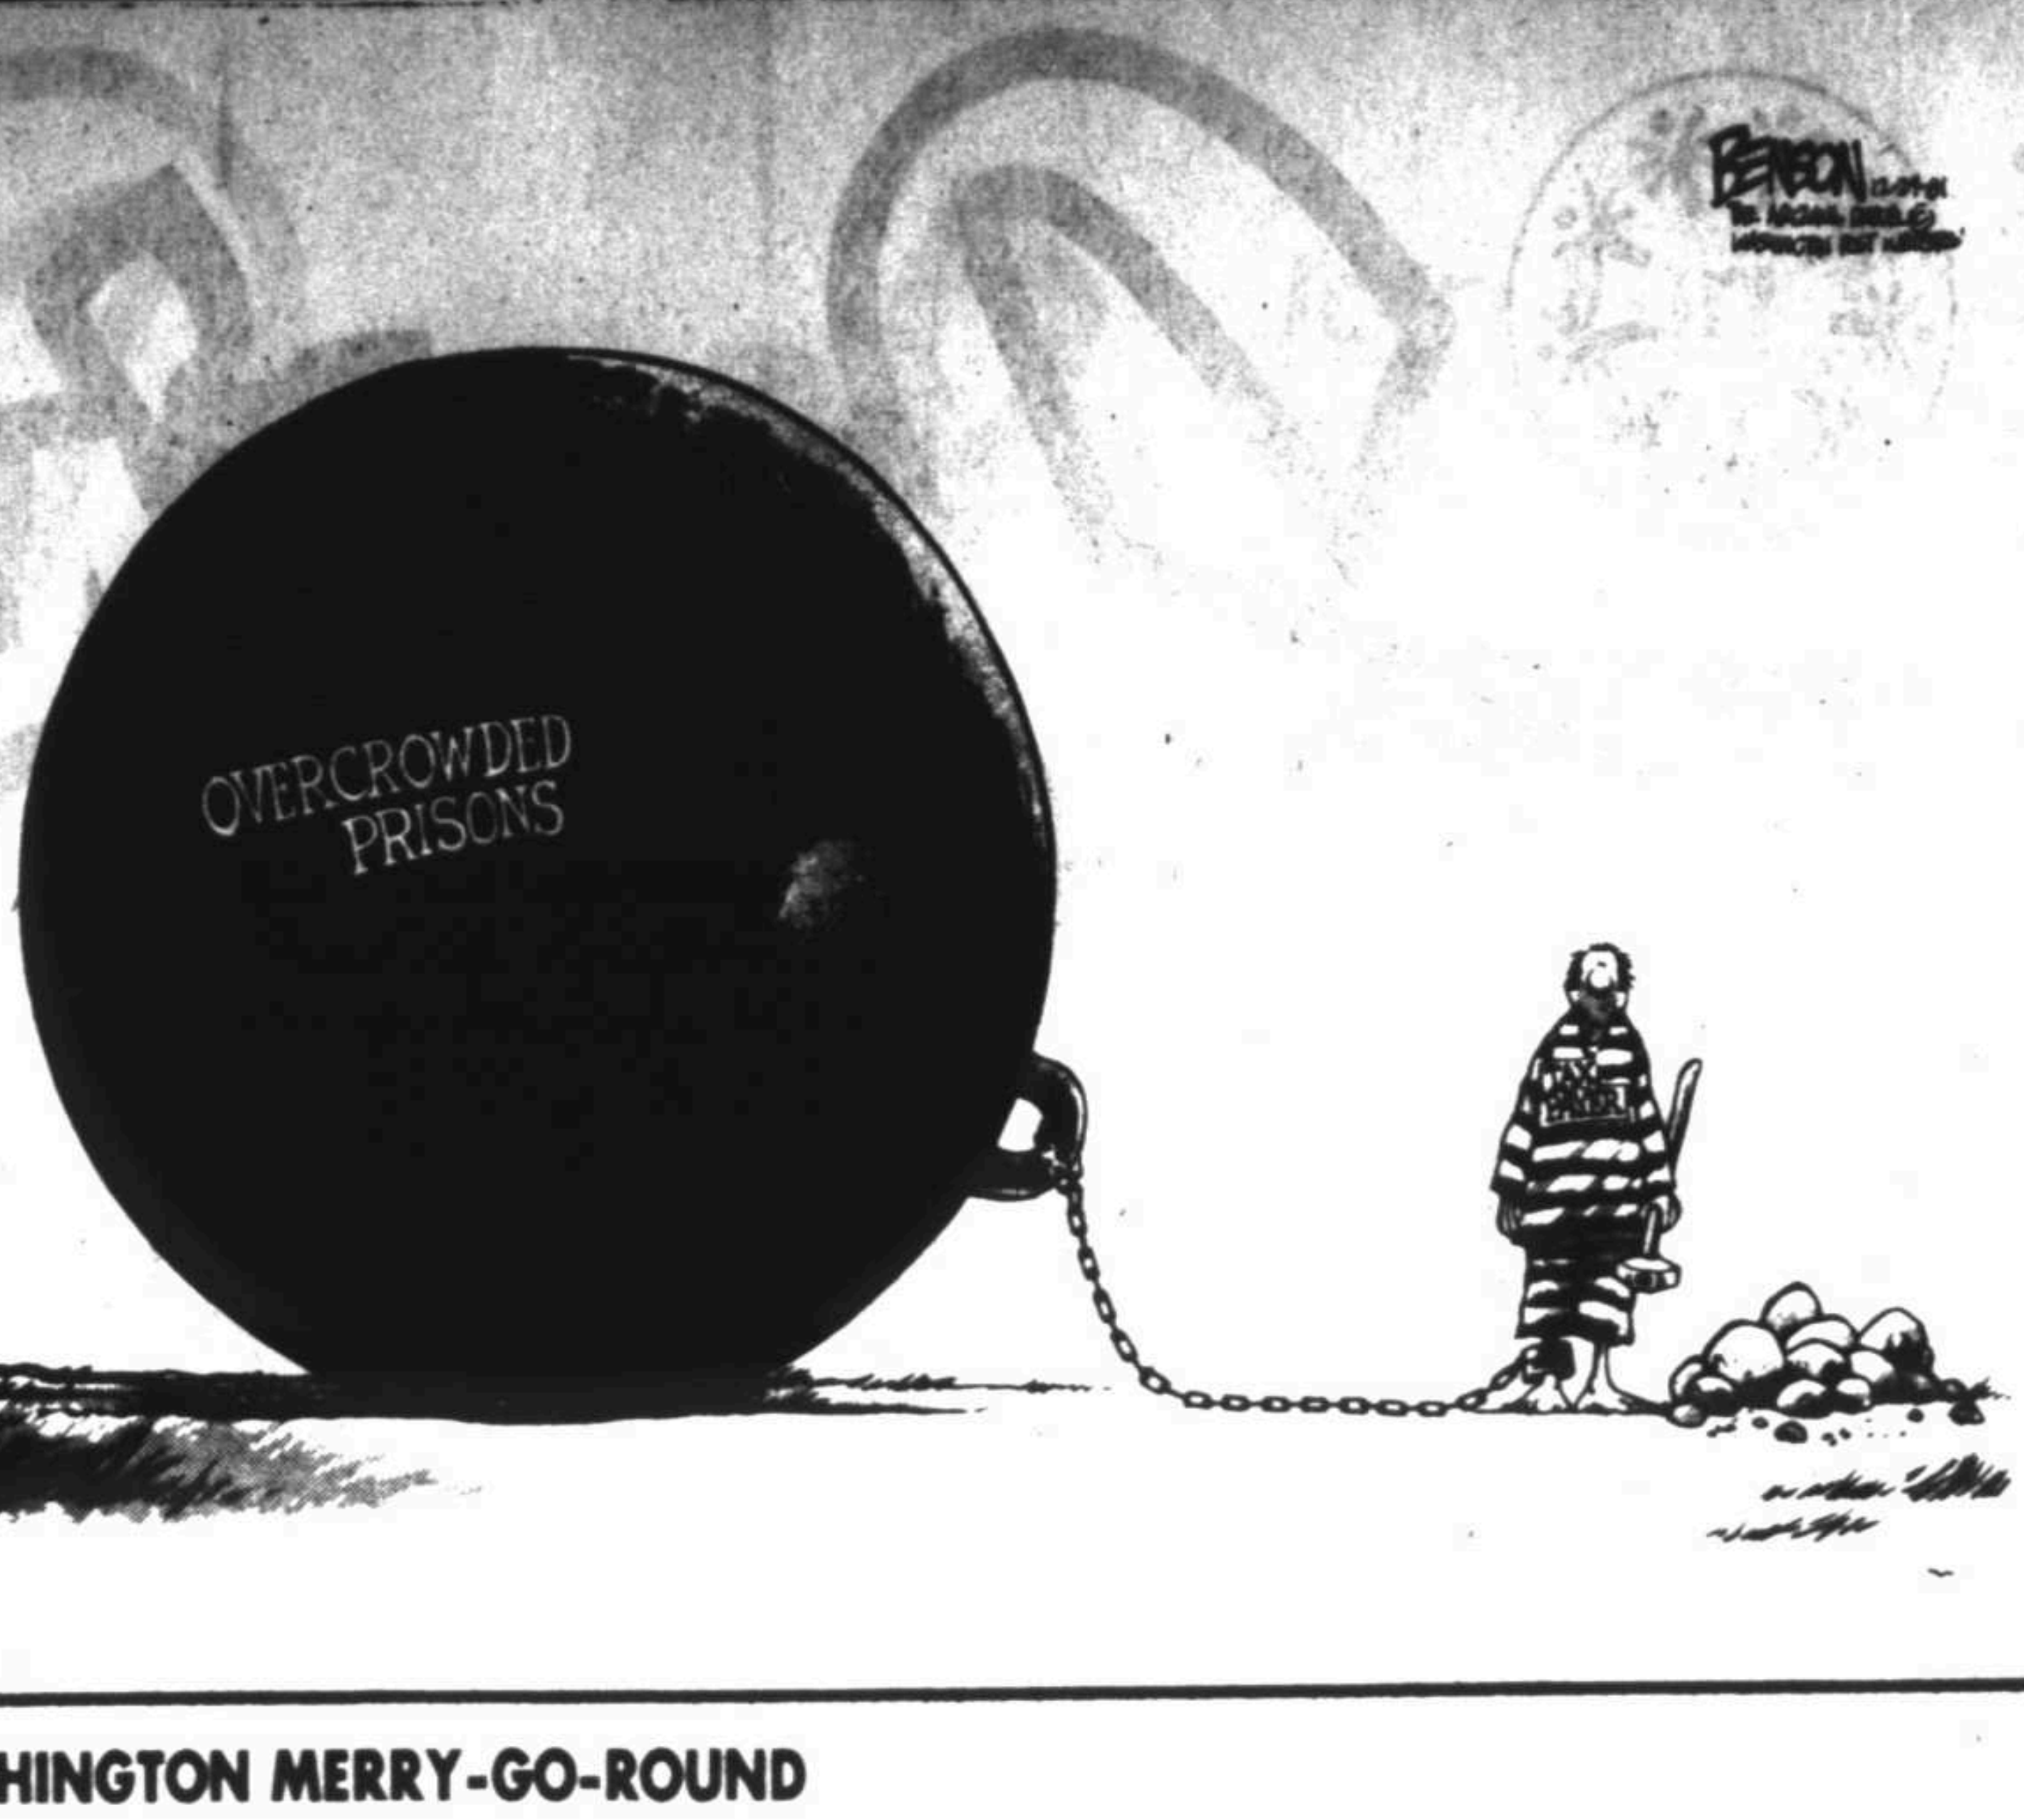
For 30 years Egyptians could not take a vacation in Jerusalem, and would not if they could. The historic riches of Cairo were off-limits to Israelis. This is slowly changing. Here are three bits of good news that can be described as three strikes for freedom.

1 — In September, aviation leaders in both nations decided to increase the number of flights between Cairo and Tel Aviv.

2 — In October, the transportation ministries of both nations agreed to provide direct bus service across the border.

3 — In mid-December, the ministers of tourism signed an agreement to create a ferry line between the Mediterranean towns of Ashbod, 20 miles south of Tel Aviv, and Port Said at the northern end of the Suez Canal.

Neither nation will become a tourist haven for the other overnight. But knocking down these border barriers is a good beginning. Getting to know each other never was a guarantee of getting to like each other, but in the case of one-time enemies Egypt and Israel, those cross-border planes, buses and ferry boats could provide the foundation for a lasting peace.



WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Intelligence agencies distrust one another

WASHINGTON — The FBI and CIA are playing a little game of Snow White: "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who's the purest of them all?"

Jack Anderson

The CIA, it seems, has its doubts about the FBI's elite, 110-man counterintelligence staff. This is a role-reversal of the days when the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover doubted the CIA people's loyalty. Here's one incident:

In late October, the FBI assigned two G-men to the CIA for liaison duty. The FBI agents belonged to the bureau's counterintelligence force, supposedly the creme de la creme.

But in the course of their duties, the FBI men would have access to documents even beyond the top-secret category for which they had been cleared. So the CIA made them submit to the agency's rigorous polygraph tests, something the FBI does not require.

One of the G-men passed the lie-detector test; the other flunked. The CIA refused to give the second man clearance.

The questions in the CIA's polygraph examinations are extremely personal. They include such subjects as sexual preference and practices, past and present, and any other personality traits that might render a CIA employee vulnerable to blackmail, greed or ideological temptation.

All CIA employees know that they may be asked to take a lie-detector test at any time, without warning or stated reason. An innocent-looking red security pass merely turns up on the employee's desk. It's a non-refusable invitation to the security office for interrogation — while hooked up to the sweat-and-pulse beat machine.

But FBI agents aren't accustomed to such treatment. So when the one agent failed the CIA polygraph, his bureau bosses were unimpressed.

The questions the G-man flunked involved his continuing contacts with the KGB. Sources told my associates Dale Van Atta and Indy Badhwar that the agent, as a counterintelligence officer, dealt with undercover KGB people as part of his job. He may have expressed some sympathy for one of his KGB targets. No big deal, according to the FBI.

But to the CIA, the FBI man was a potential double agent. CIA Director William Casey and his deputy, Adm. Bobby Inman, were reportedly alarmed by the polygraph test results. They suggested that all 110 FBI counterintelligence agents be run through the CIA's lie-detector tests. Inman, a fan of polygraphs since his days as head of the National Security Agency, strongly urged the idea.

When FBI Director William Webster broached the idea tentatively, he was confronted with a virtual rebellion. The counterintelligence staff refused to submit to the rival agency's polygraphs, and some threatened to quit en masse if required to do so. Webster told the CIA to forget about the polygraph tests.

What Webster didn't realize, according to my sources, is that there were two reasons his counterintelligence agents didn't want to take the polygraph tests. One was their professional distaste for being pushed around by another bureaucracy.

But the main reason was fear that the CIA lie-detectors might turn up some unpleasant information.

Footnote: A CIA spokesman denied that any such dustup with the FBI has occurred. My sources say that the spy agency has a new policy of denying everything, that it is still worried about the FBI's security. Hoover must be whirling in his grave.

HEADLINES & FOOTNOTES: Perhaps beguiled by the name of the comic-strip dog "Snoopy" — an alleged beagle — the Navy has decided to recruit a whole pack of beagles to snoop for illicit drugs on U.S. warships. Though not nearly as intimidating as the German shepherds used by police departments to sniff out drugs, beagles will have a deterring effect on sailors who try to bring illegal pharmaceuticals on board, the Navy hopes. So the Navy plans to deploy 200 teams of trainers and dogs — most of them beagles — throughout the fleet this year.

— Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi has for years been suspected of wanting to acquire nuclear weapons, and the State Department thinks he may now be trying to build a nuclear capability from the ground up. A recent briefing paper notes that many of the Libyan students enrolled in American universities are taking courses in various aspects of nuclear energy. Some of the students have been sponsored by the Libyan Atomic Energy Commission. However, the briefing paper also noted that "the training which (the Libyans) receive is at a relative low level of sophistication and could be obtained in a number of other countries."

WATCH ON WASTE: The old dictum, "Garbage in, garbage out," is especially applicable to computers. Wonderful as the machines are, they cannot rise above the quality of information fed into them by the programmers. Yet federal auditors recently found that in seven out of 19 agencies surveyed, there weren't even any inspection standards to guarantee that the computers were programmed correctly. Uncle Sam's 18,000 computers cost the taxpayers more than $15 billion a year.

ART BUCHWALD

Government up to armpits in cheese!

Pity the poor chap in the Department of Agriculture who is charged with unloading 530 million pounds of cheddar cheese that seems to be rotting in government warehouses.

Art Buchwald

"Froman, the Big Cheese wants to see you immediately."

"Very funny, Altshuler. I can't wait until it's your turn to get rid of 868 million pounds of dried milk."

"Froman, get your tail in here. Give me a situation report on the cheddar."

"Well, sir, here is the menu for the department's cafeteria. I've ordered them to serve cheese souffle, cheese omelettes, macaroni and cheese, and no one can take a coffee break without eating a dozen cheese and crackers. I should be able to get rid of 200 pounds by next Friday."

"It's not enough. Have you offered the other government cafeterias free cheese?"

"Yes, sir, but they don't seem to have the same incentive to eat it as our employees."

"What about the Armed Forces?"

"We're getting some resistance there. The first month the sailors consumed 3,000 pounds, but they almost had a mutiny on the nuclear carrier 'Nimitz' when they served cheese sandwiches for Christmas."

"How about the Air Force?"

"They won't even use it for bombing practice, and as soon as the Army started serving it, re-enlistments declined by 30 percent."

"How about the school lunch programs?"

"That worked for a couple of weeks, particularly when we declared cheese a second vegetable. But now the kids are insisting on catsup again."

"Have you been in touch with any foreign governments?"

"I almost had a deal with Israel to take 5,000 pounds, but Begin said we had to throw in the West Bank with it."

"The British like cheddar cheese. Why don't we give a ton of it to Prince Charles and Lady Di as a wedding present?"

"Don't you remember, we gave them two tons of butter this summer?"

"What about the French?"

"They're up to their necks in cheese. They tried to smuggle 20 tons of Camembert into Florida last month."

"Dammit, Froman, we've got to get rid of the old cheese so we have room for the new cheese coming into the warehouses this year."

"Sir, we're storing two pounds of processed cheese for every man woman and child in the United States. Perhaps if Nancy Reagan did a TV cooking program with Barbara Walters, showing the different dishes you can make with cheddar, it would inspire the American housewife to use up her family's share."

"I have specific orders from the president not to get the First Lady involved in this country's cheese problems. You're going to have to come up with something better than that."

"Maybe Secretary of the Interior James Watt would let us dump it in the Grand Canyon?"

"Even Watt has more respect for the environment than that. Any other bright ideas, Froman?"

"There's one last hope. Our research people are experimenting with a sterile Mediterranean Cheese Fly that thrives on processed cheese. If we can breed them, we could have our problem licked."

"What's the hangup?"

"The mold sticks to their gums."

BIBLE VERSE

Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, who did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me. Ps. 41:9

A CHANGING WORLD

Formidable enemy keeps U.S. 8th Army on alert in Korea

SEOUL — Scarcely 35 miles north of this booming capital of the Republic of Korea is a sizable and formidable segment of a communist force of nearly 700,000 fighting men which can conservatively be called one of the world's worst enemies of the United States.

John Pinkerman

Facing these reckless and aggressive Reds of North Korea are portions of a 500,000-man ROK defense-minded army and, most important to Americans, most of the 39,720-man and woman U.S. 8th Army.

Kim Il-sung, premier of North Korea and chief Asian surrogate of a rapidly expanding Soviet military presence in the Far East, has vowed to reunite Korea on his own terms, by force if necessary, and this makes the U.S.-ROK team's confrontation with the Reds at the 38th parallel a 24-hour readiness combat task.

All the odds would seem to favor the Reds. They have 40 divisions to 22, including the famed U.S. 2nd Infantry Division. They have 2,600 to 850 tanks. They have 1,000 to 570 armored personnel carriers. They have 6,000 to 2,000 artillery pieces. They have similar numerical advantages at sea and in the air.

Despite these seemingly unfavorable statistics, American and ROK commanders are confident they could repulse any North Korean aggressive drive to the south.

"Our forces here are mostly to deter any North Korean aggression," 8th Army (and U.N.) Commander, Gen. John A. Wickham Jr. says. "A war, however limited, would not only carry the risk of expanding into a wider conflict but also would involve catastrophic loss of life, suffering and damage throughout the peninsula. That is why the emphasis is on deterrence — one that is based on the type of U.S.-ROK military posture that will persuade North Korea and its allies that use of force is not a useful option for achieving their political objectives."

But, Gen. Wickham, what if deterrence fails?

"Forces in place, plus additional augmentation as necessary by the United States, would be able to defeat any North Korean attack, in my opinion."

Combat environment exercises periodically test sea, ground and air augmentation techniques. Recently elements of the 7th Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif., and the 25th Infantry Division, Hawaii, were airlifted to South Korea. They swung into a combat posture quickly and helped set up the defense lines that Wickham believes would wipe out Red invaders confined to narrow canyon advance routes in the rugged mountainous Korean terrain.

While confident, Wickham and other U.S. and ROK combat commanders are aware of the potential of Kim's forces. North Korea, with 100,000 men, has the largest commando force in the world. Its loudspeaker and leaflet propaganda campaign is virulently anti-American and obviously has some, though small, impact on Koreans south of the Demilitarized Zone.

One political development has helped calm some of the fear in the south — the election of Ronald Reagan to the U.S. presidency. There had been a gnawing concern n Seoul, particularly during ex-president Jimmy Carter's frequent calls for removal of all U.S. troops from South Korea, that the United States was anxious to "shed itself" of the Korean problem.

Those fears vanished with the Washington arrival of Mr. Reagan. All Carter plans for U.S. withdrawal have been canceled, weaponry has been brought up to the most modern and highest standards, even rear base troop housing is being constructed at a rapid pace — aiming to end the use of World War II-type Quonset huts and improve 8th Army morale significantly. The South Koreans are practically euphoric concerning the Reagan presidency, especially when contrasted with the fears raised by Carter.

As a last resort, of course, in the defense of South Korea, there always is the matter of nuclear weapons. Both U.S. and ROK officers are mostly noncommittal on this aspect of possible defense. From Wickham all the way down to Billy Fullerton, 8th Army's civilian chief of public information, the response on nukes is precisely the same: "We will neither confirm nor deny that we have nuclear weapons here."

Nuclear weapons notwithstanding, the danger from the north is real, immediate and obvious daily. It does not get the mainland American attention accorded rises in the Middle East, Poland and Latin America — but it keeps the U.S. 8th Army and ROK forces on a continual alert.

Americans everywhere should be grateful for and proud of their GIs in Korea. They are a first-rate fighting force and as Wickham says, "Would be able to defeat any North Korean attack."

POSITIVE THINKING

Self-condemnation deserves respect

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Did you ever get fed up with yourself? Certainly most of us feel that way at times — like the man who said, "I'm 50 years old and still immature. I do so many impulsive things and mess them up. I'm really tired of myself."

"Well," I encouraged, "if you know you're immature and really try to grow up, you're not as immature as you think." Good healthy self-criticism helps us grow.

Take a recent, successful candidate for public office. "How do you like politics?" I asked.

Suprisingly, instead of being happy about his victory, he replied, "I guess I don't like it so much."

"Why, what's the trouble?" I asked.

"Oh," he explained, "it's just that I get to feeling like a phony. You see, I don't really believe in all I say. One of these days if I get too sick of being a phony I'm going to quit."

I felt he had overstated his self-condemnation, so I gently reminded him that there is a factor of compromise not only in politics but in life. "That's just it," he fumed. "I'm sick of compromise. I'd like to say what I really think whether I get elected or not. There's no fun feeling yourself a phony." I urged him to be honest and let the chips fall where they may.

I met still another self-condemning man. This time, a preacher. "I give sermons about the power of God to change people's lives, he said. "I tell how I've seen it work amazingly in many lives. But the irony is that this same Gospel has never changed my life. I am still full of fear and must admit that I have hate and prejudice myself. So, what am I really but a phony — and it's no fun, I'm telling you."

Well, my admiration and respect for those two men, politician and preacher, took a decided rise. You have to respect a man in whom a struggle between good and evil goes on. Such inner ferment reveals in a special way the essential worth and quality of a person. When there is no inner struggle, no self-criticism, that is the time for concern. Then you've got to straighten things out if peace of mind means anything to you.

The late Senator Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire told me of a sheriff who came before his senate committee which was investigating political dishonesty some years ago. There was evidence that the sheriff was turning his back on graft. Senator Tobey asked him, "Sheriff, do you have any children?"

"Yes, Senator, three sons."

"Have you no concern for their respect? What kind of man are you anyway?"

"But Senator," weakly replied the sheriff. "I know it's wrong, but if I want to stay in office I have to go along with the boys. They insist upon their share."

Senator Tobey laced into him. "Nobody," he thundered, "is entitled to a share. You are a sworn law officer and yet you are a self-admitted abettor of crooks. Have you no manhood, no guts? Since you know what you are doing is wrong, as you have admitted, then for the sake of your sons tell these crooks you are putting a stop to their thievery. and let the public know you are cleaning out his political vermin, regardless of the consequences to you personally."

Thus encouraged, the sheriff parted company with his phony self. He really cleaned house. Angry men vowed they would get him. But sometimes the voters, apathetic as they often are, rise to the occasion. And in the next election they returned the sheriff by a bigger vote than before. Even if he had lost the election he would have gained his own soul, which of course is worth more than a political post.

Strict state laws against anti-religious acts don't stem tide of anti-Semitism

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports of anti-Semitism nearly tripled last year despite stricter state laws against anti-religious acts, an annual audit released by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith shows.

The audit said the combined 1,324 cases of anti-Semtism took place in 31 states and Washington, D.C., last year, including 974 reported cases of anti-Semitic vandalism and 350 attacks or threats against Jews. In 1980 the league found 377 cases of vandalism and 112 assaults.

Anti-Semitism "has always been there," but now it's "coming out of the closet, said Nathan Perlmutter, league national director.

"The question has always been, 'Are there more incidents or are more people coming forward?'" said New York City Police Lt. Abraham Kushner, who monitors such incidents for the police department.

The establishment a year ago of New York's Bias Investigation Unit undoubtedly led to increased reports, he said.

But he added that he did not notice a significant increase in anti-Jewish acts in New York last year, despite the survey's finding that the greatest increase in anti-Semitic incidents occurred here.

The Anti-Defamation League reported 326 incidents in New York state, followed by California with 150, New Jersey with 94 and Massachusetts with 59.

The ADL agreed the 1981 increase stemmed partly from "better reporting by Jewish communities and greater attention by police."

Even so, Perlmutter said, "many, many incidents go unreported. Our figures are a fraction of the real total. We may not have precision of numbers, but we have accuracy of trend."

Perlmutter said the rise in incidents seemed to stem from "the rising level of violence against persons and property that characterizes our times. These are overwhelmingly crimes of teen-agers."

Most perpetrators are not ideologues or members of anti-Semitic organizations, but youths whose prejudice flows from family and society, he said.

The incidents "are more than boyhood pranks," he said. "But it would be wrong to assume these are cases of some young Hitler at work."

He said several league regional offices have formed "bias units" that make sure an incident involves anti-Semitism before it is logged. A break-in at a synagogue, for instance, would not be deemed anti-Semitic without swastika-daubing, anti-Jewish graffiti or similar indication of prejudice.

Incidents reported to the league last year included a plot to blow up a synagogue in Nashville, vandalism and desecration of synagogues, anti-Semitic telephone calls and letters, asssaults and anti-Jewish graffiti.

Earlier this year a Yankelovich, Skelly and White poll commissioned by the American Jewish Committee found anti-Semitism had declined over the past two decades as "an older, more anti-Semitic generation has...been replaced by a younger, less anti-Semitic one."

Morton Yarmon of the committee said Tuesday that the Anti-Defamation League's study suggests the general decline in anti-Semitism feeling has been accompanied by greater willingness to act on bigoted impulses, including new state laws against anti-religious acts.

Coast Guard must trim budget

By JANE ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard plans to close up to 20 search and rescue stations around the country and reduce its military personnel by 3,187, a Massachusetts congressman says.

Rep. Gerry E. Studds, the chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee on the Coast Guard and Navigation, said the Coast Guard has not made final plans on how to trim $46 million from its operating expenses during this fiscal year.

But, he said, preliminary plans call for one Coast Guard district office to be closed, reductions in the size of the Coast Guard Academy, the possible closing of one or more Coast Guard air stations and the decommissioning of up to 10 Coast Guard vessels.

Studds, a Democrat, said a number of marine safety detachments will be disbanded, and Coast Guard efforts will be substantially reduced in the areas of aids to navigation, oceanographic research, equipment maintenance and training.

"The specific closings and decommissionings have not yet been finally determined, but decisions in these areas will be made in the near future," said Studds.

The Coast Guard had requested $1.403 billion for fiscal 1982, but wound up with only $1.357 billion in operating expenses for the year.

Studds said the Coast Guard told him that 3,187 people would be cut from the personnel rolls of 40,000 by the end of this fiscal year.

"The majority of this reduction will be achieved through a reduced rate of recruitment; in addition, some Coast Guardsmen with relatively unsatisfactory service records will, in the Coast Guard's phrasing, be 'weeded out,'" Studds said.

All the cuts planned so far will amount to only about $36 million and the Coast Guard will have to find ways to save another $10 million.

Economic woes still abound in Ethiopia

By JAY ROSS
The Washington Post

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia — The Ethiopian revolution, despite many successes in improving the quality of life for its people, has run into severe economic problems.

Whether in the north or south, urban or rural areas, Ethiopians are complaining about the economy.

Wages of civil servants have been frozen since the 1974 revolution despite an inflation rate averaging 15 percent a year. In the countryside, where many peasants and workers readily acknowledge improved income, health and schooling, others say they have only held even because of inflation.

Some of the problems are familiar throughout Africa: drought, distribution difficulties and soaring petroleum bills at the same time that export prices have fallen.

Others, however, are peculiar to Ethiopia: post-revolutionary chaos in the face of vast economic reorganization, increasing costs of wars and civil strife, and a decline in marketed agricultural production, partly as a result of a thorough land reform and government pricing policy.

THE RESULT has been a trade deficit of more than $250 million in 1980 with a higher figure expected for 1981. Reserves will not cover two months' imports and the resulting severe restrictions have caused shortages and hampered economic development.

Shortages of staples in the capital are common, resulting in a black market in some foods. There are also reports of occasional delays in payment of salaries to civil servants.

There have been few manifestations of discontent other than grumblings heard in conversations, particularly here in the capital.

A demonstration — by militiamen outside the military headquarters, seeking higher pay — and a go-slow by truck drivers who carry goods to and from the key port of Assab are the most significant known protests, staged despite the authoritarian rule.

"The problems started in a big way in September," a disgruntled civil servant here said. In the annual Revolution Day speech Sept. 12, Mengistu Haile-Mariam, leader of the military government, annoyed many Ethiopians, according to the official, because he "attacked the Americans and corruption but didn't say anything about the problems really bothering us — the economy, frozen salaries, etc."

ETHIOPIA'S ECONOMIC problems are rooted in centuries of feudalism and underdevelopment, resulting in "large numbers of people living at the margins of existence, frequently vulnerable to drought and starvation," according to Ethiopia's presentation last September to the U.N. conference in Paris on the least developed countries. "There is a low standard of nutrition, inadequate access to clean water, widespread disease, a high infant-mortality rate and a shortage of health services."

Per capita annual income is only $105 and most of that is earned by the 10 percent of the 32 million population living in urban areas. Ethiopia's entire national budget in 1980 was only $840 million. Many large American cities spend more. The current District of Columbia budget, for example, is $1.9 billion.

The land reform has resulted in the peasants being better fed but it has led to shortages in the cities.

Family thinks that second ransom note from son is hoax

By RUBEN G. ALABASTRO
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The parents of missing sportsman Tommy Manotoc say they received a second ransom note today but believe it is another hoax in the baffling case that revealed their son's secret U.S. marriage to the eldest daughter of President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Manotoc, 32, failed to return home a week ago after dining out with Imee Marcos, 26, whom he wed last month in Arlington, Va., despite her family's objections to their romance.

Ricardo "Dini" Manotoc Jr., the missing man's brother, indicated his family still suspects Marcos and his wife Imelda are involved in the disappearance. But he did not repeat earlier direct accusations, saying the family's main concern was his brother's safety.

"We're not necessarily accusing anybody," Dini Manotoc said. "But we are suspicious."

The president has said he still considers Manotoc a married man, despite his Domincan Republic divorce from Aurora Pijuan, a former beauty queen. Divorce is not recognized in the predominantly Catholic Philippines.

The Marcoses deny involvement in Manotoc's disappearance.

Mrs. Marcos, in an interview with The Associated Press, accused political opponents and the Manotocs themselves of plotting the kidnapping as a "frame-up" to embarrass the government.

The second note came through the mail by special delivery after the family said it had received an anonymous telephone call Tuesday that the note was coming.

The latest note asked the Manotocs to respond to the kidnappers' ransom demands by placing a coded ad in the newspaper.

The first note, left on a gate Saturday, had asked for $2.5 million in ransom, release of four jailed dissidents and amnesty for the kidnappers.

Mexicans may face deportation

By JUAN M. VASQUEZ
Los Angeles Times

MEXICO CITY — The Mexican government recalled its ambassador to Washington Tuesday for "consultations" over a recent change in U.S. immigration policy that will affect the status of tens of thousands of Mexicans in the United States.

Diplomatic sources made clear that the summoning home of Ambassador Hugo B. Margain was a way of expressing displeasure over a sudden decision that will see many Mexicans lose their legal status in the United States and make them vulnerable to deportation.

"We are very concerned about this matter," a Mexican diplomat who requested anonymity said.

Margain's recall was the government's first reaction to the news that Mexicans who had applied for legal residency in the United States under the terms of the so-called "Silva letter" are being informed that the document is no longer valid.

The move apparently took the Mexican government by surprise.

The Silva letter is a document that grew out of a 1977 federal lawsuit arguing that immigration quotas for Western Hemisphere residents had been applied in a discriminatory fashion. The plaintiff in the case was named Refugio Silva.

As a result, immigrants already inside the United States — many of them Mexicans — were allowed to apply for a letter which, in effect, became a temporary permit for them to remain pending the eventuality that they might receive an official visa.

Last month, however, the U.S. State Department determined that anyone who might possibly qualify for such a visa had received one already.

The result was that all those with the temporary Silva letters who had not obtained a visa have begun receiving notification informing them of the change in their status.

The Mexican diplomat said the government here believes that at least 20,000 of his countrymen could be affected by the change.

Mexico's top expert on immigration, Dr. Jorge Bustamante, argued in a published commentary that the Mexican government would have to exercise pressure to help its beleaguered citizens.

"The revocation of the Silva letter is a unilateral act of aggression against the economic interest of Mexicans," he wrote, "even though it is called by another name."

Bustamante, an influential government adviser on immigration matters, said the revocation could make Mexican workers in the United States who held Silva letters subject to exploitation by their employers.

"Their situation is potentially more vulnerable than that of a simple undocumented worker," Bustamante argued, "because the immigration authorities know who they are, where they are, and where they work."

Bustamante said 100,000 Mexicans living in the United States are affected by the revocation, but American sources estimated the number at less than 50,000.

Perhaps you have never heard of a beautiful doll named Strawberry Shortcake. Maybe the name means nothing to you, but wake up! Strawberry Shortcake is a billion-dollar baby. Her pink-hued world consists of nightgowns, knee socks, dresses, wristwatches, sleeping bags, scratch-and-sniff books, pillowcases and plenty more. Above left is a Strawberry Shortcake Carrousel, and Strawberry Shortcake is at right.

By JEANNE MAGLATY
(c) 1982, The Hartford Courant

HARTFORD, Conn. — Like millions of other little girls, Andrea Kvasnak can't get enough of Strawberry Shortcake; Santa Claus gave her a Strawberry Shortcake doll, this season's hottest-seller,and a Berry Bake SS. Already, she owns the Strawberry Shortcake Playdoh set, the Berries-to-Market boardgame, and the Slap-the-Strawberry card game.

At her birthday party a few weeks ago, Andrea and her friends ate a Strawberry Shortcake doll-shaped birthday cake from Strawberry Shortcake plates at a table covered with a Strawberry Shortcake tablecloth. Then, they wiped the pink frosting off their mouths with Strawberry Shortcake napkins.

Perhaps you have never heard of Strawberry Shortcake. Maybe the name means nothing to you. If pressed to name a doll, you'd say "Barbie" or "Raggedy Ann."

Well, wake up: Strawberry Shortcake is a billion-dollar baby.

Her pink-hued world consists of nightgowns, knee socks, dresses, wristwatches, sleeping bags, scratch-and-sniff books, rag dolls, bicycles, miniature dolls, waste paper baskets, notebooks, pillowcases, book bags, front license markers, posters, scented wrapping paper, coloring books and — believe it or not — much more. General Mills is testing tie-in foods; it is putting out a puffed corn breakfast cereal and is planning a one-time promotion of Strawberry Land's bluebeery muffin mix for the fall.

Sixty manufacturers hold the licenses to produce the toys, games, clothes and other paraphernalia. Merchandise sales will exceed $300 million this year. Sales for 1982 are expected to hit $500 million. They're calling it "pink gold."

Kenner Toys of Cincinnati has made and shipped 20 million dolls this year, but shortages around the country are a problem, said John Beck, manager of consumer relations.

Strawberry Shortcake differs from other successful toy campaigns ("Star Wars," "Dukes of Hazzard") because it does not come from a movie or television show. But now, in a reversal of the usual trend, a sales promotion campaign calls for four television specials every year through 1985.

Strawberry Shortcake was born into the free-enterprise system as a greeting card design of American Greetings Co. in 1980. She wore a hot pink and red dress with an apron front and a strawberry print bonnet.

Then, Kenner introduced the 5 1-2-inch Strawberry Shortcake doll and four aromatic friends last year. The dolls and some of their accessories are scented with strawberry, lilac, apple and other fragrances. This year, four new characters joined the tea party. (The clan consists of Strawberry, Huckleberry Pie, Blueberry Muffin, Apple Dumplin', Raspberry Tart, Lemon Meringue, Apricot 'n Hopsalot, Orange Blossom, Custard and the dog Pupcake.)

What's the particular appeal of those whimsical cuties?

"I think it's because they are small and bright color and I think the child likes the scent," said Andrea's mother, Meghan Kvasnak of West Hartford, Conn. "And the advertising, quite frankly, puts it over."

Andrea sees not only the Strawberry Shortcake television commercials, but large merchandise displays and window displays in stores, her mother said. In toy departments, less aggressive displays look dull beside the eye-catching hot-pink boxes of the berry patch carry case, snail cart, carousel, butterfly, garden house and other accessories.

Michael Katz, vice-president of marketing at Coleco Industries Inc., the Hartford-based toy and games manufacturer, said the fantasy, magic and fun of the characters appeals to 4- to 8-year-old girls.

Coleco, in a licensing agreement with Kenner, manufactured Strawberry Shortcake doll carriages (the berry buggy, stroller, carriage and coach) in time for Christmas. A splasher pool will be introduced in spring, Katz said.

Coleco designs the products, Katz explained, and gets approval from Kenner, the licensor, on use of the Strawberry Shortcake graphics.

Coleco's most successful year in the doll carriage business was 1981 because of Strawberry Shortacke, and the company has plans to expand both its doll carriage and pool lines, Katz said.

While manufacturers are finding that nothing could be sweeter than to be a Strawberry Shortcake licensee, others are sour on the strawberry explosion.

Merle Froschl, director of the Non-Sexist Child Development Project of the Women's Action Alliance, said that the feminine, pink Strawberry Shortcake seems stereotyped in its packaging, promotion and merchandising.

Froschl's complaint is tht Strawberry Shortcake is a sex-specific plaything. Froschl believes that the best toys are those both girls and boys will play with. Strawberry is definitely aimed at girls.

"Given the fact that sex roles do exist, toys can either reinforce sex roles or break them down," she said. A toy like Strawberry Shortcake reinforces them, she maintains.

Toys should allow a variety of play activities, Froschl said; she said so-called sexist toys are limiting and restrictive.

Meghan Kvasnak agreed that Strawberry Shortcake limits creative possibilities. She said, in fact, that she does not like the doll.

With other dolls, a child can change the clothes or have the doll play varying roles, she pointed out. Strawberry Shortcake's clothes cannot be changed. When she sees Andrea and her friends "playing Strawberry Shortcake," the only thing the doll does is bake strawberry things, said Kvasnak. "They (the dolls) don't reach out and make her do other things."

Strawberry Shortcake was among toys surveyed for the 1980 report of the Americans for Democratic Action Consumer Affairs Committee, which publishes an annual list of best-and-worst toys.

The committee's testing showed that after six weeks of use and three washings, Strawberry Shortcake still had her scent.

But, they wondered, what would happen if a child licked the doll or put it in her mouth. A Kenner spokeswoman told them that the toy is non-toxic unless the child is allergic to strawberry, said Frank Gallo, director of the Greater Washington Americans for Democratic Action. The committee asked Kenner why no warning to that effect was printed on the box, but failed to get a response from the company.

Beck said a strawberry allergy is not a big problem because such a small percentage of children are allergic — and even then, it's very unlikey that their parents would give them a doll with 'strawberry' in its name.

Beck said he thinks the appeal of Strawberry Shortcake extends beyond children. He said he's spoken to mothers whose 3-year-old daughters' rooms are decorated with Strawberry Shortcake draperies, lamp and bedspread. "The appeal is to the little mothers as much as the little girl," he said.

At least 40 mothers have sent snapshots to the Kenner firm, added Beck, insisting that their pixie-faced little daughter is the original inspiration for Strawberry Shortcake.

Initial studies show possibility of once-a-month birth control pill

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Initial tects of a synthetic brain hormone show it could lead to a safer birth control pill for women that would be taken only once a month, doctors said Thursday.

The synthetic hormone doesn't appear to have any harmful side effects, which makes it a "very exciting" form of birth control, said Dr. Katharine Sheehan, one of the researchers.

Birth control pills now in use "go in and out of every cell in the body and affect every organ in the body," but this new drug "acts in a very limited way in one specific part of the body," she explained in a telephone interview.

The drug is an artificially produced version of a natural human hormone called leutinizing-hormone releasing hormone, or LHRH. Like its natural counterpart, it acts only on the pituitary gland, a tiny organ at the base of the brain.

The natural hormone triggers the pituitary to produce the other hormones that control the reproductive system.

The synthetic drug, which is 144 times as powerful as natural LHRH, bombards the pituitary and is thought to somehow overwhelm it and alter the timing of the menstrual cycle, Ms. Sheehan said.

The result, she said, is that a fertilized egg cannot take hold in the uterus and grow.

In the normal process of conception, an egg is released by the ovaries, becomes fertilized, and travels to the uterus, where it becomes attached to the uterine lining and begins to develop into the fetus.

When synthetic LHRH is administered, the pituitary does not produce the proper amounts of hormones to prepare the uterine lining — the endometrium — to accept the egg, Ms. Sheehan said. The fertilized egg is therefore rejected.

She said considerable research must be done before the drug can be made available to the public.

The first studies have shown that contraception is possible when synthetic LHRH is given by injection. The next step will be to develop new ways to administer it.

Ms. Sheehan said it might be difficult to develop an oral form of the drug because it is destroyed in the stomach. But she said it should be possible to develop a tablet that could be inserted in the vagina once a month at the beginning of the menstrual cycle.

Once a more convenient form of administration is developed, the drug must be tested on many women to be certain it is reliable.

Ms. Sheehan, now medical director of Planned Parenthood of San Diego County, was part of a research team at the University of California at San Diego. The head of the team was Dr. Samuel S.C. Yen.

Yen was not available Thursday, but in a prepared statement he said: "Of all the contraceptive studies I am aware of, this is one of the most exciting, because you have a reference point for when to apply it — when contraception begins."

The synthetic hormone, prepared by doctors at the Salk Institute in La Jolla, Calif., has also been tested as a male contraceptive and as a treatment for disorders.

Last week, researchers reported synthetic LHRH could be used to delay the start of puberty, allowing added years of growth for children whose development has been stunted by disease.

Other studies have shown it can cure infertility in women whose bodies produce insufficient amounts of the natural hormone.

Sleeves shouldn't say 'homemade'

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

A long time ago I wrote a series of columns on putting in a sleeve. Well, not much has changed since then. Sleeves still go into the armhole and sleeves still can say "homemade" if not done correctly.

Here's how it goes:

Cutting: Of course, be sure the sleeve is cut as the pattern directs. Next, consider alterations. If you have made any changes in the front or back bodice that affect the armhole, you must adjust the sleeve accordingly. Make all markings clearly.

Ease stitching: Before underarm seam of sleeve has been stitched make the ease stitching around cap. Unless otherwise designated by your pattern, this stitching is made from notch, over cap, to notch. Adjust the stitch length of your machine to a longer stitch, but one only long enough to be pulled. A stitch too long will cause puckering in your sleeve cap.

Loosen upper tension slightly. Stitching from the right side of fabric, make one row of stitching on the one-half-inch line. Make a second row between the first row and the raw edge.

Underarm seam and cuff: Stitch and press underarm, seam. Attach cuff (it is so much eaiser to work with a cuff before the sleeve has been set in). With wrong side of garment toward you, slip sleeve into armhole. Pin at shoulder line, underarm seam and notches. Pin between notches and underarm seam.

Gently pull on bobbin threads of ease stitching to work sleeve cap into armhole. Sleeve should remain slightly larger than area to which it is to be stitched. Adjust ease smoothly and do not work any ease in at top of sleeve (one inch on either side of shoulder line).

Basting: Once easing has been done, pin frequently with pins at right angles to stitching and heads beyond raw edge. Check for any unwanted pleats or wrinkles.

Hand-baste sleeve in place on one-half-inch line. Remove pins and stitching. Machine-stitch sleeve in place starting and stopping at underarm.

Make a second row of stitching from notch, underarm, to notch. Trim seam allowances close to this second row of stitching.

Do not trim remainder of seam allowances unless specifically called for in your pattern.

Do not steam press sleeve cap. Simply finger press seam allowances toward sleeve.

Questions may be addressed to Mrs. Betty Kinser, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Second chance possible for adoptees

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to thank you for printing the ALMA (Adoptee's Liberty Movement Association) address in your column. After getting in touch with the organization, I've been reunited with my natural mother after 31 years!

She and I are both thrilled to have found each other. I never would have known about ALMA had I not read it in your column.

Words are inadequate to express my appreciation to you and ALMA. — ROBERTA IN FLORIDA

Now, pleased stay tuned for a word from Roberta's mother:

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for publishing the details about ALMA in your column. It has made possible a contact with a child I had given up for adoption 31 years ago. I read about ALMA in a news story in 1974 and registered with it under my maiden name. In 1981 my daughter read about ALMA in your column, and she wrote to register her name.

We found each other, and a Thanksgiving reunion was planned! I never dreamed this could happen. Thank you! — ROBERTA'S MOTHER, WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR MOTHER: I am glad that I was able to play a part in this wonderful reunion. Yours is only one of many.

Readers: ALMA's address is: P.O. Box 154, Washington Bridge Station, New York, N.Y. 10033.

Parents and their children can be "matched" only if BOTH parties are agreeable.

This is not an agency that locates the natural parents of adoptees, or searches for children who have been adopted.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for six years. (I'm 27 and he's 29.) We both work and love to travel, and we've decided that we don't want children.

Our problem is his parents. My husband is their only child and they want grandchildren. My parents already have four grandchildren so we don't get as much pressure from them, although they have told us often enough that one day we will be "sorry" if we don't have a family.

I am so tired of having to make excuses for choosing to remain childless. Every time we see my in-laws, they start in on us, telling us how "selfish" we are. Abby, we love our freedom and have decided that we neither want nor need children.

Do you think we're wrong? — CHILDLESS AND HAPPY

DEAR HAPPY: No. Of all the reasons to have a family, pressure from others who think you should is the worst.

DEAR ABBY: I've run into a situation that requires your help. When a friend or neighbor asks to borrow kitchenware she knows I have, and I do not want to lend it to her, what should I tell her without hurting her feelings or telling a falsehood, which I don't want to do? — HOUSTON POST READER

DEAR READER: Tell her the truth: "I don't want to lend my kitchenware out." And don't be surprised if your candid refusal puts a slight crimp in your friendship, because it probably will.

'Revenooer' recounts moonshine memories

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP) — Claude England is a veteran of the moonshine wars, a "revenooer" from the days when folks relished a sip of white lightnin' from the still out back.

For 22 years, England hunted moonshiners for the government as an agent of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in southern West Virginia. He is now sheriff of Raleigh County.

Moonshining was as natural as the changing of the seasons to the descendants of the frontiersmen who settled Appalachia, said England. A still capable of making 250 gallons of whiskey once was found in a chicken coop on the farm of the governor's father, he said.

"It was a God-given right to them. They felt they had as much right to pursue their occupation as we did ours," he said. "They thought it was a vocation, an honorable thing."

People also felt it was a right to avoid paying taxes on their liquor, which is where England and his colleagues came in.

On a raid on a single McDowell County hollow, England and his agents found 15 stills and arrested 14 people in one day.

"A year later we went back and got about the same number of people," he said.

And the people who kept illegal stills cooking out in the woods thought that being chased by government agents was just as natural as making moonshine, he said.

"We used to chase them up and down the hills. It was a lot of fun. I never felt better in my life," England said. "'Course, we didn't catch too many that way."

Chasing moonshiners was an art that had to be taught to many ATF agents, many of whom were from cities in other states and often got lost in the West Virginia woods.

"Those mountain people would make fools of them," England said.

"One time we had two agents from Michigan come busting out of the woods with their guns drawn on what they thought was a still and it turned out the fellow was making molasses."

Despite modern notions of pitched gun battles between moonshiners and federal agents, England said the two sides followed an unwritten code in which wits took the place of weapons. When you were caught, that was it.

"They figured going to jail was part of the job," he said. "A lot of the boys would get off the bus when they got back from the penitentiary and come by and see me before they went home."

England estimated he jailed about 500 moonshiners during his ATF career.

"Then they'd go right back to making liquor again," he said.

The moonshiners spent years learning to make whiskey, picking up the craft from older relatives. A moonshiner had to learn just the right temperature to brew the mash, the best mix of ingredients and how to achieve the distinctive taste of the family's personal recipe.

"To the old brewmasters there was an art to making moonshine whiskey," England said. "It was passed down by their folk, down through the generations."

A moonshiner took pride in the quality and strength of his brew, and there were strong local rivalries over who was the best whiskey maker.

"That stuff would kick you like a mule," said England, who admitted to being something of a connoisseur of moonshine. "But it was good, smooth tasting stuff."

Today, the high cost of sugar and other moonshine ingredients has made it cheaper to buy legal whiskey, England said.

"There's plenty of ATF agents now who never even took a sip of moonshine," said England with a shake of his head. "You know, moonshining's about over now. I've told people, jokingly, I hate to see the end of it all."

Reduce utility bills

By SHARON HILLIS
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

A $2,000 "energy package" built into new and existing homes may reduce utility bills by 25 percent, according to a two-year study.

Houston Lighting and Power Co. compared electrical energy usage of 17 owner-occupied homes with standard materials and procedures to homes built with energy-efficient measures.

Ten builders constructed three houses each, ranging in size from 1,200-1,956 square feet, all using the same standard floor plans, but adding different features. Control homes had the builder's standard energy features.

One experimental home featured additional energy measures specified by the project sponsor, including high-efficiency air-conditioners.

All homes were sold upon completion. From January 1979 to December 1980, total electricity used for heating, air-conditioning and water heating was monitored with submeters.

By monitoring the total electricity used in kilowatt hours and comparing electricity costs, "energy packaged" homes proved to be most efficient.

In control houses (with the standard energy feagures), electricity costs averaged $2,419.39, but those with high-efficiency air-conditioners averaged $1,803.97 and heating pump houses averaged $1,808.54.

In terms of kilowatt hours homes with high-efficiency air-conditioners and heat pumps consumed 27 percent fewer kilowatt hours of electricity than control houses. Control homes (with standard energy features) used an average of 51,022 kilowatt hours; whereas high-efficiency, air-conditioned homes averaged 37,313 and heat-pump homes averaged 36,751 kilowatt hours.

In areas most affected by "energy packaged" equipment, such as heating, cooling and water heating, a 50 percent savings was recorded.

Besides energy-efficient cooling and heating units, "energy packaged" homes include other saving measures.

1. 13 inches of batt insulation (in glass insulating fiber, the equivalent R-value would be R-22); three and one-half inches of batt insulation in walls (an R-11 equivalent in glass insulating fiber).

2. Double-insulated water heaters.

3. Double paned, north-facing windows to reduce cold air entry.

4. Limited window area totaling no more than 10 percent of exterior wall area.

5. Heating and cooling ducts below ceiling level to ensure air-circulation to attic.

6. Attic ventilation system.

7. Caulked soleplate (the framing member attached directly to the slab on which the studs rest) and special sheathing outside the studs.

Most added features listed above are made of standard, off-the-shelf building materials that are readily available to builders.

When accounting for an extra $2,000 used to add the "energy package" to experimental homes, keep in mind that they are built only for testing and studying. For instance, even though added equipment and materials used increased costs by about $1.50 per square foot, a project spokesman believes that if features were used on a volume basis in a tract subdivision, costs could be reduced to $1.10 per square foot.

In addition, more labor time was needed to install the equipment, thus boosting the cost. Likewise, if these experimental homes were built and sold on a high-volume basis rather than a low one as was done, cost per square foot would decrease.

When purchasing a home, compare mortgage qualifications between homes built with long-range energy efficiency in mind to those without.

In some states, lenders require energy-efficieny in homes as a criterion for homebuyers to qualify for mortgages.

Borrowers seeking FHA or VA loans now are able to qualify for higher mortgages if their homes include energy-saving measures.

If lenders recognize the utility savings possible on energy-efficient homes, borrowers purchasing such homes may qualify for higher mortgages than if they were buying a standard home.

While many builders are already incorporating some of the mentioned energy measures into homes under construction, study results will hopefully encourage other home builders to include these features which will assure homeowners long-range energy efficiency.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Hail to a clever cook

HI, THERE!

Oh, you readers are so ingenious! What would I do without you and your helpful ideas.

Remember the recipe for salmonettes, using canned salmon, tuna, or even mackerel? Well, Mrs. Alton Beucler tells me she tried it with leftover chicken, and plans to try shrimp next. Can you believe it?

Well, needless to say, I hurried to my kitchen, spied some leftover baked chicken (less calories, you know) and began to mix up the ingredients. Oh, it was as good as Mrs. Beucler said it would be. Just melts in your mouth.

Then the old wheels began to turn, and with the holidays just past and all that leftover turkey, why not?

You guessed it! The turkey was equally delicious. So, if you missed the salmonette recipe a few months back, I'll give it to you again so you can try substituting that cheaper priced turkey or chicken for the expensive fish. Hope you like it as well as Mrs. Beucler and I do.

Flake enough chicken or turkey to make the equivalent of a 14-ounce can of tuna or salmon.

Add to it one egg, ½ cup flour, and salt and pepper to taste (you don't need to add salt if using fish, since it's already salty).

Add one heaping teaspoon baking powder to ¼ cup liquid (water, broth, oil fish is packed in), and beat until foamy. Add to the poultry or fish.

Use a small spoon to drop the "chickenettes" into hot oil for frying. They cook quickly, so remove them from the oil as soon as they reach a golden brown. Drain on paper toweling, and serve.

You can vary the flavor by adding onion, garlic or chives, but, however you do it, I think you'll find your family licking the platter clean. — Heloise

BATH POWDER

Dear Heloise: After a shower, to keep the fine bath powder from settling on everything in the bathroom while dusting myself, I just step back into the shower, close the curtain (or door) and dust away.

The dust settles in the tub or shower and the bathroom is kept a little cleaner. — E.P.

TODDLERS' TOYS

Dear Heloise: I'd like to pass on a hint for mommies.

It seems most pull toys have plastic strings and they twist up and are hard for little hands to hold on to.

I take an old bangle bracelet and tie it on to the end of the string. Now my daughter just grabs the bracelet and takes off! — Deb Long

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: Rock salt, melting crystals, or any commercial product used to melt ice and snow — even sand — is a hard thing to store and handle.

I've found that by saving and using those plastic milk jugs, the job is made a little easier. After rinsing them out and letting them dry thoroughly, it's easy to fill the jugs with a funnel, adding salt, sand, or whatever.

This little jug is the handiest thing to dispense a little salt or sand right where you want it, and you can leave it sitting by the back door without it being too much of an eyesore (just a little nagging reminder of what you need to do...). — Ron Rouser

Delirium is much-neglected illness

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Hearst Feature Service

Delirium, a life-threatening illness, which probably increases at times of festive consumption of alcohol and other brain-affecting substances, is very much neglected even by doctors and nurses in hospitals.

Diagnosed correctly and treated promptly it can be controlled, as an emergency delirium is comparable to heart-attack.

So, in essence, Dr. Richard A. Devaul, professor of psychiatry at the University of Texas, at Houston, has reported to the American Academy of Family Physicians.

"Delirium is a common medical emergency which is life-threatening," says Devaul. "From five to 10 percent of general medical and surgical patients experience delirium at some time during their hospital stay.

"The estimated percentage of geriatric (elderly) patients who experience delirium is close to 40 percent."

Can anything be done about delirium?

"Recognized early, delirium is completely reversible (curable)," according to Devaul's findings.

"If not identified and treated, it can cause permanent brain damage and lead to death."

All too often a physician gives an antipsychotic or sedative drug to the patient, which "often makes the condition worse."

What is delirium? It results from a reduction of the working of the brain, through insufficiency of the action of oxygen upon the sugar-fuel of the brain cells.

The most valuable single tool for diagnosis is the EEG, electroencephalograph, which detects and measures electrical waves coming out of the head.

What kind of patients are particularly vulnerable to an attack of delirium?

Persons of advanced age, those with a history of brain damage and those with addiction to alcohol or drugs, the Texan psychiatrist says.

Chicken dishes are delicious and economical

Everyone needs a tried and true recipe to rely on when inviting guests for a meal.

It should be a dish that's easy to prepare, produces perfect results every time, appeals to most tastes and is not too costly.

Chicken is a good starting point for a high score on all counts.

Today, more than half of all homemakers work outside the home, limiting the time which can be devoted to party preparations. More and more people live alone, which means they must manage entertaining single-handedly.

An informal buffet is the best way to fit a dinner party into a busy lifestyle. Highlight the menu with one memorable dish and do as much preparation as possible in advance.

CHICKEN PAELLA

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
¼ cup olive oil
1½ tsp. salt, divided
½ tsp. pepper, divided
¼ cup water
1 tsp. oregano leaves
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
3 tomatoes, quartered
1 can (14 oz.) artichoke hearts; drained, quartered
1 package (10 oz.) long grain yellow rice mix
3½ cups chicken broth, warmed
1 jar (3 oz.) pimiento-stuffed olives, sliced

In large frypan, place oil and heat to medium-high temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 10 minutes or until brown on all sides. Sprinkle chicken with 1 tsp. of the salt and ¼ tsp. of the pepper. Reduce heat to medium-low temperature. Add water and oregano; cover and cook, about 20 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease and water has almost evaporated. Remove chicken to a large bowl and keep warm. To pan drippings, add onion, green pepper and garlic; stir fry for about 3 minutes. Remove onion, green pepper and garlic mixture to bowl with chicken; add tomatoes and artichoke hearts. Sprinkle with remaining ½ tsp. salt and ¼ tsp. pepper and toss lightly.

Cover and keep warm. Heat drippings remaining in frypan to medium-low temperature. Add both envelopes from rice package; stir fry about 3 minutes. Adjust temperature to high; add chicken broth. When mixture begins to boil, reduce heat to low, cover and cook, about 20 minutes. (Rice should still be a little moist). In a large, shallow baking dish, mix together cooked rice and chicken mixture. Bake in 350 degree F. oven for about 20 minutes or until hot. Garnish with olive slices. Makes 4 servings.

CHICKEN FLORENTINE

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cooked, boned, skinned and cut in bite-size pieces
5 tblsp. margarine, divided
¼ cup finely chopped green onion, white and green parts included
2 packages (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt, divided
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
2 tblsp. flour
1 cup chicken broth, warmed
½ cup milk, warmed
½ cup grated Swiss cheese
¼ cup sherry
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¼ tsp. pepper
1¼ cups bread crumbs
2 tblsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 tsp. paprika

In small frypan, place 1 tblsp. of the margarine and melt over low heat. Add onion and stir fry about 2 minutes. Adjust temperature to medium and add spinach, lemon juice and ½ tsp. salt. Cook, stirring often, until spinach is hot, about 3 minutes. Remove from frypan and arrange spinach mixture evenly over bottom of large, shallow baking dish. Place mushrooms evenly over spinach mixture. In same small frypan, make chicken sauce by melting 2 tblsp. of the margarine over low heat. Add flour and stir constantly, about 4 minutes. Add broth, stirring constantly to avoid lumps. Slowly add milk and continue stirring until mixture is smooth and thick, about 5 minutes. Add Swiss cheese, sherry, Worcestershire sauce, pepper and ½ tsp. remaining salt; stir constantly until Swiss cheese melts, about 3 minutes. Remove sauce from heat and add cooked chicken pieces. Pour chicken sauce over spinach mixture and mushrooms; set aside.

In a medium saucepan, make topping by melting remaining 2 tblsp. of the margarine over low heat. Remove saucepan from heat and add bread crumbs and Parmesan cheese, stirring until well mixed. Spoon topping over chicken-spinach mixture. Sprinkle with paprika and bake in 350 degree F. oven for about 25 minutes or until brown. Makes 4 servings.

Highlight an informal buffet with "Chicken Paella." It is a colorful and delicious combination of chicken with vegetables, and can be prepared to the point of cooking and then refrigerated until baking time.

The working woman — then, now and in the future

Would you sacrifice the convenience of frozen foods, your food processor or microwave oven if you could buy a steak or two pounds of chops for 20 cents, a dozen eggs for 26 cents or a loaf of bread for a nickel?

Before answering affirmatively, better listen to the rest of the story:

Prices such as these were typical of food costs around the turn of the century — but, then long working hours and low wages were also typical. And, even then, "working women" were common.

As long ago as 1890, almost four million women worked outside the home. By 1900, the number had increased another million and one out of every five American women held paying jobs.

Among other jobs, many women worked in domestic service, the shoe industry and in food processing.

In the garment industry, women often outnumbered men and "sweatshops" were the order of the day. It was not unusual for workers in sweatshops to earn as little as five or six dollars for a 10 to 12 hour, six-day week (and work was often taken home so a few extra dollars could be earned).

After working those long hours for little pay, women often returned home to face more long hours preparing dinner for herself (if she lived alone) or for her family — many of whom probably also worked.

There were no "fast food" restaurants in those days and there were few fast foods. Stews and soups were popular fare.

The working woman of a century ago bears little resemblance to her counterpart today.

Some 41 million American women now hold paying jobs and, if the trend continues, working women could one day soon outnumber those at home.

According to Verna Ludvigson, Director of Consumer Affairs for Litton Microwave Cooking Products in Minneapolis, with family lifestyles changing and more women entering the labor market daily, the need for convenience foods and labor-saving appliances is taking on new importance.

For example, more than three million microwave ovens are now sold annually and, says Ludvigson, by 1985 this number is expected to triple.

In keeping with the current trend toward faster and less complicated meals, here are several recipes created by Litton home economists especially for working homemakers.

REUBEN CASSEROLE

1 can (16 oz.) sauerkraut, drained
1 can (12 oz.) corned beef, broken into small pieces
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese
1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1/4 cup bottled Thousand Island dressing
2 medium tomatoes, sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup pumpernickel bread crumbs

Place sauerkraut in 1-1/2 quart glass casserole. Top with corned beef, then shredded cheese. Combine mayonnaise and Thousand Island dressing, spread over cheese. Top with tomato slices, set aside. Place butter in small glass bowl.

Microwave for about one minute, on ROAST, or until melted. Stir in bread crumbs. Sprinkle buttered crumbs over tomato slices.

Microwave for 12 to 14 minutes, on ROAST, or until heated through (about 150 degrees F.) Let stand five minutes before serving. About six servings.

TIP: Crumble about two slices dry pumpernickel bread to make crumbs.

Approximate preparation time — 40 minutes

GOLDEN CHICKEN

2-1/2 to 3 lb. frying chicken, cut up
1 stalk (1/2 cup) celery, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (10-1/2 oz.) condensed golden mushroom soup

Cut larger pieces of chicken in half for uniform size. Arrange skin side up in two quart (12x7) glass baking dish. Sprinkle with celery and salt. Spoon soup over top of chicken; cover.

Microwave on HIGH for 28 to 30 minutes or until chicken is done. Five to six servings. Approximate preparation time — 30 minutes.

Rent-a-man service offers skilled workers for odd jobs

By LINDA DUFFIELD
Associated Press Writer

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — When the odd jobs begin to mount up on the homefront, housewives in this western Maryland town no longer have to nag their husbands to get them done. They can "rent-a-man" instead.

It's all part of a program begun recently by the John R. Oliver Co., a local construction firm.

"The service we are trying to provide is this," said Taylor Oliver, the firm's general manager. "You have five different things that need to be done. We are trying to send somebody out who can do all those five different things rather than (the customer) calling a plumber service and then calling a carpenter."

Oliver said the idea had first cropped up a few months back when the firm's business was slow. Although business has recently picked up, said Oliver, he decided to go ahead with the rent-a-man plan because he thought it was a good idea.

And, he said, response from area residents to an advertisement which ran in a local newspaper indicated others agreed with him.

Calls were received from people looking for someone to do a variety of jobs ranging from raking leaves to installing a garbage disposal.

Most of the callers were women, said Oliver, noting the newspaper ad was aimed at housewives.

"Do you want to make your husband happy and do yourself a favor too?" the ad asked. "Do you have eight or nine projects around the house that you've been nagging your husband to get done? Why not .. Rent-a-man for a half or whole day to complete these projects?," the ad asked.

When a call comes in, Oliver noted, the firm can send one of its skilled craftsmen to do whatever job or jobs the homeowner needs done at a cost which varies depending on the scope of the chore.

In addition, the company backs the work done by the men it rents out.

Eugene Tafoya is escorted by police as he is led to the Larimer County Jail on Tuesday after being sentenced to a two-year jail term in Collins, Colo.

Tafoya gets maximum sentence

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Eugene Tafoya, sentenced to two years in prison on a conviction of assault and conspiracy in the shooting of a Libyan dissident, says he is tired of the publicity generated from his trial.

"I just want to go home, get a job and be with mama (his wife)," Tafoya said late Tuesday after his release on $10,000 bond, pending appeal.

The former Green Beret was convicted for the October 1980 shooting of Colorado State University student Faisal Zagallai. He was sentenced Tuesday by District Judge J. Robert Miller.

TAFOYA CONTENDED he wasn't a criminal but a patriot on assignment from the CIA when he shot Zagallai, who who one eye from the attack.

He said he believed he was under orders by the CIA to "rough (Zagallai) up," but shot the Libyan twice in the head in self-defense.

"Each person defines patriotism in his or her own way," said Tafoya, 46. "If called tonight to hit the beaches of Tripoli, I'd do it."

The prosecution argued that Tafoya was hired by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy to kill Zagallai, a critic of the strongman's regime.

Both the CIA, which sent representatives to the trial, and the Libyan government have denied involvement in the incident.

Tafoya said he planned to go home to Truth or Consequence, N.M., look for a construction job and stay away from mercenary work.

"I'm too old for this sort of thing," he said.

TAFOYA HAS BEEN free on bail since his conviction Dec. 4. Larimer County Sheriff Jim Black said Tafoya would remain free pending the outcome of his appeals. Black said, Tafoya could spend as little as 10 months in jail once good behavior is taken into account.Tafoya's lawyer blamed his conviction on "the propaganda and hyenas" of the media, which he said had provided biased and sensational coverage of the five-week trial.

"The gaggles of the asses and their minions are out for revege," said the flamboyant defense attorney. "Is the court going to give them that?"

Maureen's campaign in financial straits

By KENNETH REICH
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Maureen Reagan's campaign for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate, in financial straits, has discharged its paid campaign management firm and will make do for the indefinite future with volunteer help, it was disclosed Tuesday.

This word came initially from the management firm and was subsequently confirmed by Miss Reagan, a businesswoman and talk show host, who is President Reagan's eldest daughter.

Raising money to run "is never easy," she said, adding that the discharged firm, veteran strategist Bill Roberts' Dolphin Group of Los Angeles, is "very expensive."

"WE ALWAYS wanted a grass-roots campaign," Miss Reagan added, "and now we have one. We have a lot of volunteers."

Lee Stitzenberger, the Dolphin Group executive who had been running the Reagan campaign, said the group is out for two reasons. First, he said, the campaign "is getting off to a slow start financially," and second, due to a recent illness of Roberts, the firm has had to re-evaluate its priorities and make new personnel assignments The Dolphin Group is also running Republican Attorney General George Deukemjian's campaign for governor.

Even when Reagan announced her candidacy on Nov. 2, there were admissions that she was in relatively poor financial position, in terms of contributions collected and money on hand. Traditionally, the size of one's campaign chest has been an important criterion in estimating a candidate's chances to win, and relative fnancial position is regarded as an important consideration in this year's crowded Republican Senate primary field.

SINCE MISS Reagan announced, there have been recurrent rumors that she might bow out of the race before filing closes in March.

Miss Reagan once again denied the rumors Tuesday. She said she "absolutely" will run for the Senate, and she predicted, "I'm going to win."

However, a campaign press spokesman, George St. Johns, was not so categorical.

Judge delays trial on Army discharge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has delayed until Feb. 8 a hearing on a court test of whether civilian or military courts should decide fraudulent discharge cases.

Defense attorney Stewart Alexander said the case could be a landmark one because a ruling in his client's favor would mean that the federal courts could decide all fraudulent discharge cases instead of military tribunals.

U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon delayed the hearing Tuesday after government attorney Pat Shovlin told him that the Army had agreed to allow Wendy L. Wickham, 21, to remain on leave to give attorneys for both sides more time to prepare briefs in he precedent-setting case. She now lives in San Antonio.

The Army charges that Miss Wickham — a private first class when she was given an honorable discharge at Fort Sam Houston on Oct. 15, 1980 — fraudulently submitted a urine sample from a pregnant woman to show she was pregnant.

Alexander said he had "two doctors' certificates" to show that the woman was indeed pregnant, but that the case should be decided before a jury, rather than by a military court-martial, to afford her more rights to present evidence to a jury.

On Dec. 12, 1980, the Army revoked Mrs. Wickham's honorable discharge. She later returned to the Army for three months under threat of arrest, her attorney said.

She says she had an abortion soon after she was discharged.

"The question may be whether the military is ever able to decide a fradulent discharge," Shannor. said in instructing the attorneys to prepare briefs before the Feb. 8 hearing. He gave the government until Jan. 27 to submit its brief.

House sale gains due to inflation taxable

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Tax Court decision affecting millions of Americans who sell their homes or other property upholds the Internal Revenue Service's long-time practice of counting gains generated solely by inflation as taxable income.

Although the IRS long has taxed inflation-based profits just as other income, the case of Arthur K. and Louise Hellerman of Hendersonville, Tenn., was the first in which the issue was decided by the court.

The Hellermans had bought four buildings in 1964 for $93,312 and sold them in 1976 for $264,000, reporting a capital gain of $170,688 on their tax return. When the IRS challenged another part of their 1976 return, the Hellermans claimed they were entitled to a refund of the capital-gains tax.

The Consumer Price Index, which the government uses to measure inflation, almost doubled between 1964 and 1976, the Hellermans noted. Each dollar they received for their property in 1976 was worth less than each dollar they paid 12 years earlier, they said, meaning that most of the "profit" was not income but just a return of the money invested.

"THE meaning of income is not to be construed as an economist might, but as a layperson might," wrote Judge Sheldon Ekman. "Petitioners (the Hellermans) received many more dollars for the buildings than they had paid for them. The extra dollars they received are well within the common perception of income, even though each 1976 dollar received represents less purchasing power than each 1964 dollar paid."

The Hellermans also argued unsuccessfully that Congress has no authority to measure profits in terms of dollars because dollars have no constant value.

"Dollars have constant legal value under the uniform monetary system created by Congress," Ekman wrote. "When petitioners sold the buildings in 1976 they realized a gain in legal value. The 16th Amendment (which authorized the income tax) does not prevent the Congress from taxing such gain as income...."

IN OTHER recent decisions, the court:

—Overruled IRS and held that Gerrit B. Lemmen of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., a lumber broker, was engaged in a cattle-breeding venture with an expectation of eventually making a profit and not just as a tax shelter. The ruling allows Lemmen an estimated $27,000 tax saving over eight years for a cash outlay of about $51,000.

Midlander helps save lives of Filipinos

Navy Lieutenant Gary L. Stark of Midland has every reason to feel proud these days. Due to his skills in airborne search and rescue (SAR) operations, 18 Philippine Navymen are safe today and can tell their families and friends about their horrifying experience at sea.

During a Typhoon Clara-related disaster last September, 79 sailors lost their lives when the Philippine Navy destroyer Datu Kalantiaw was pushed aground by 100 mph winds off Calayan Island, about 340 miles north of Manila.

The 27-year-old son of Robert and Marietta Stark of Corpus Christi is a helicopter pilot and SAR expert. When the 1976 Naval Academy graduate is not flying his SH-3 Sea King helicopter, he's a division officer for Fleet Composite Squadron Five (VC-5) operating from U.S. Naval Air Station, Cubi Point, Republic of the Philippines.

VC-5 helps the Seventh Fleet maintain its combat readiness by providing the drones which combatant ships use during gunnery exercises in the Western Pacific. Part of Stark's job is the at-sea recovery of those drones after the ships have completed their job. He flies the recovery crew out to the area and retrieves the drones.

VC-5, manned by 193 Navymen, also operates airborne SAR missions whenever the need arises.

On Sept. 22, there was a need for a SAR mission, and the usual call for volunteers was sounded. One of the volunteers was Stark, a 1972 graduate of Robert E. Lee High School in Midland.

The Midlander and his SAR crew thought they would just be transporting people from the ship to a safer place. They didn't realize it was a disaster until they saw bodies floating in the water below them.

Midlander Lt. Gary L. Stark, seen above doing paperwork in his capacity as VC-5 aircraft division officer, piloted the SH-3 Sea King helicopter, in bottom photo, during a search and rescue mission in September as he and his crew airlifted survivors of the Philippine Navy destroyer Datu Kalantiaw which was washed ashore by the 100 mph winds of Typhoon Clara.

Besides airlifting survivors of the Philippine Navy destroyer Datu Kalantiaw, Stark said, they also transported the remains of about 34 Philippine sailors to the USS Mount Hood (AE-29), the Seventh Fleet ammunition ship sent to serve as the U.S. Navy's on-scene commander at the wreck site on Calayan Island, 300 miles north of Subic Bay.

Mount Hood, from which the SAR helicopters operated, also carried extra medical teams from the aircraft carriers USS Coral Sea and the Navy Regional Medical Center at Subic Bay, to assist the disaster site.

Stark said they made several cargo runs from the Mount Hood to the Philippine navy ship and back again.

He further explained that VC-5 SAR team made 29 confined-area landings, four of which were at night, and 23 landings on Mount Hood's flight deck.

"Shipboard landings are not normal operations for VC-5," Stark said. "However, we operated for two days and two nights, flying more than 19 hours, without an incident.

"It was really more of a medical evacuation mission than a SAR operation," he said. "Rescue is when you go out and pull somebody out of the water or off a mountain top."

U.S. participation in the SAR operations came to an end late Sept. 23 when Philippine Navy ships arrived on the scene and took charge.

Revolution in sickle cell anemia care

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — There has been a quiet revolution in the treatment of sickle cell anemia thanks to a 10-year federal effort to ameliorate this often cruelly disabling disease.

No cure or magic bullet has been discovered to abolish the ailment, a common scourge of blacks. But there has been a remarkable improvement in care and lives saved, doctors told the American Association for the Advancement of Science Tuesday.

New scientific knowledge, much of it at the National Institutes of Health, could help lead to some future cures.

Sickle cell anemia is a disease in which the hemoglobin, the red, oxygen-carrying part of the blood, is abnormal. It tends to clump or become rigid, causing severe pain and gradually damaging vital organs.

Blacks are not the only ones subject to the disease. It is found in many Mediterranean populations, including Greeks and Italians, and in Puerto Ricans.

But approximately one black in 10, said the NIH doctors, carries the sickle "trait" in the genes. Sickle trait is not sickle disease, but when two persons with the trait bear a child, there is one chance in four that the child will have the disease, sometimes mildly, sometimes severely.

Ten years ago, said Drs. Clarice Reid and Marilyn Gascon of NIH, many doctors did not know how to recognize or treat sickle disease. Most of the public had never heard of it

Sickle "crises" or onsets of sudden pain caused panic in patients and their families, and some doctors wrongly said that no one with the disease lived past age 20.

There might indeed have been few survivals into late years. But today, reported Gascon, many patients are alive in their 30s and 40s and "great progress" has been made in saving lives during the most crucial years, from birth to age 5.

"What happens," she said, "is that these children get the usual childhood infections, but in their cases infection can be devastating. Mortality can be a horrendous 50 percent. Sometimes death can occur within 12 hours after symptoms begin."

The difference today, she reported, is that more children are diagnosed earlier. Parents and doctors are more alert to the problem. The infected child may quickly be given antibiotics, fluids and other intensive care — and survive.

Then throughout life, she said, medical care is "immeasurably better," and there are many specialized treatment centers, including Howard University here.

Rayburn's birthday celebrated

BONHAM, Texas (AP) — Although Sam Rayburn didn't live to see his 100th birthday, the occasion will be celebrated here today by a bipartisan gathering of Texas business and political leaders.

The group will cut a large birthday cake and listen to a brass band at the 2 p.m. ceremony at the National Guard Armory.

The board of trustees of the Sam Rayburn Foundation is sponsoring the ceremony and will issue a commemorative booklet that details the late U.S. House speaker's life.

Mansfield chides European allies

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Mike Mansfield, U.S. ambassador to Japan, today criticized America's European allies for failing to back President Reagan in his efforts to lead the Western alliance.

In a departure from past remarks, Mansfield also was critical of Japan's protectionist trade policies. Previously, Mansfield has faulted foreign businessmen for failing to compete in the Japanese market.

Mansfield, a former Democratic leader in the U.S. Senate, made his comments in a speech to the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan.

"The president has kept his campaign promises. He has tried to exert leadership throughout the world, and the Europeans were always yapping about an American leadership role," Mansfield said.

"They didn't think President (Jimmy) Carter could do it. Now they have a president who is endeavoring to be the leader and he asked them to follow him, and they just dragged their feet or moved off to one side. He can't lead alone because he just isn't that powerful," said Mansfield.

Mansfield didn't criticize any European nation by name. He didn't mention Poland directly, but his criticism clearly was directed at the refusal of Western Europe to join the Reagan's administration's economic sanctions against Warsaw and Moscow after last month's military crackdown in Poland.

Japan also has not followed the U.S. lead on sanctions, although Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki today accused the Soviet Union of being responsible for imposition of martial law in Poland.

Mansfield called Japan "the one friend we depend on in this part of the world" and the most steadfast U.S. ally in the Iran hostage crisis and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Mansfield said the elimination of trade barriers in Japan, whether real or merely perceived, is crucial at a time when the world may be facing its worst economic crisis since the Great Depression of the 1930s. Japan "cannot afford to look inward," he declared.

Mansfield's comments departed from his oft-stated view that Japan's economic achievements are to be admired and foreign producers faulted for their inability to crack Japan's lucrative markets or compete successfully against its exports.

He chided the Japanese for clinging to an "outdated" image of their country as a vulnerable society that must limit imports almost exclusively to raw materials in order to produce and sell goods.

He also said protectionist measures created to help Japan rebuild its economy after World War II are no longer valid for a nation that ranks among the world's major industrial powers.

"As a mature, strong economy whose economic miracle has largely been possible because of the open international trading system, Japan must now participate fully in that system and work to strengthen it," he said.

"In short, this means reciprocity by letting others, where competitive, gain a market share in Japan by giving them the same kind of free and fair access to the Japanese market that Japan now enjoys in their markets," Mansfield said.

Coup attempt leads to 45 arrests

By JACK FOISIE
Los Angeles Times

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government ordered the arrest of 45 men Tuesday on charges of hijacking an Air India jetliner to South Africa to escape from Seychelles after their attempted coup on the island nation in the Indian Ocean.

The move apparently reversed the position South Africa took when it arrested only five of the ringleaders on kidnapping charges after the November incident, freed them on bail, and released 39 without charge. The 45th man was hospitalized with gunshot wounds.

That handling of the affair brought international criticism, although South African sources said that further charges might be placed later.

Those charged and ordered arrested Tuesday included Col. Michael (Mad Mike) Hoare, a well-known mercenary leader in the Congo in the 1960s. Two Americans were among those charged: Charles Duke, who was wounded in the coup attempt, and Barry F. Gribbon, of Miami. Others included 24 South Africans, 11 Britons, six Rhodesians from Zimbabwe, and men from Ireland and Germany.

Most of the accused appeared in various courts Tuesday and all but one were released on bail ranging from $525 to $21,000. The others were to appear in court later this week.

Cecil Rees, attorney general of Natal province, said a preliminary hearing will be held Jan. 18, and a trial date set. He said penalties range from three to 30 years on the five counts brought under the act covering offenses aboard civil aircraft.

In Seychelles, meanwhile, seven people accused of involvement in the coup attempt were charged with illegally importing arms and ammunition and were remanded to custody pending a Jan. 19 hearing.

The late-November coup attempt evidently was intended to overthrow the leftist government of Seychells President Albert Rene.

Most of the attackers arrived at the airport in Victoria, capital of Seychelles, on a flight from the small black-ruled state of Swaziland on Nov. 25.

Attorneys return to Sadat trial after walking out

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Lawyers representing 24 men on trial in the assassination of President Anwar Sadat have resumed their defense after withdrawing from the case in protest, Cairo newspapers said today.

The papers gave no reason for the attorneys' decision, and none of the lawyers was immediately available for comment because they were in court as the trial continued today.

The Cairo daily al-Ahram said the supreme military court, which reconvened Tuesday, "accepted the request of the lawyers to return and continue their defense."

The team of more than 35 attorneys announced their decision to withdraw at a news conference after the court's last session Dec. 29, saying they were protesting "the court's refusal of all its demands, including its refusal to admit defense witnesses into the court."

They appealed to President Hosni Mubarak to mediate between them and the court, but he turned down their request, refusing to interfere in court procedures.

Atlanta slayings: The courtroom drama begins

ATLANTA (AP) — After six months of preparations, lawyers were heading to court today for opening arguments in the trial of Wayne B. Williams, charged in two of the 28 slayings of young blacks that terrorized Atlanta.

Williams, 23, a black free-lance photographer, is charged in the slayings of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, whose bodies were found in the Chattahoochee River. A special police task force investigated their deaths, along with 26 others over a 22-month period in one of the most extensive police investigations in the country's history.

No arrests have been made in the other 26 killings.

Defense lawyers Mary Welcome and Alvin Binder say Williams is a victim of circumstance and the state's case against him is "very, very weak."

DISTRICT Attorney Lewis Slaton, who heads the prosecution, has submitted to the court a list of more than 500 potential witnesses.

Evidence presented by the prosecution in pretrial hearings centered on alleged similarities between dog hairs and fibers found on the victims and at Williams' home, and a pre-dawn encounter between Williams and a police stakeout team at the Chattahoochee River.

But Slaton has evidence not presented during pretrial hearings that "will come out in the trial," Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said before presiding Judge Clarence Cooper issued a gag order.

That order was extended by Cooper "until further notice" on Tuesday. Originally to last until the jury was sequestered, it bars lawyers, police and witnesses from discussing the trial.

REPORTERS also have been barred from disclosing the names or addresses of jurors, who were taken to a downtown hotel where they will stay during the trial, expected to last six to 10 weeks.

Telephones and televisions were removed from each panelist's hotel room, and Capt. W. E. Mitchell of the Fulton County sheriff's office said the jurors will be allowed to make phone calls or watch TV only in a supervised central room to make sure they don't discuss the trial or see television reports about it.

In addition, they will be allowed to read newspapers only after articles about the trial have been clipped out, Mitchell said.

THE JURORS will spend the day in the court and eat their suppers at the motel, but "if they get tired of that we may take them out to dinner," Mitchell said.

Prosecutors and defense lawyers spent five days interviewing jurors before final selection Monday. Eight of the 12 jurors are black and nine are women. Of the alternates, three are black men and one is a black woman.

Williams, arrested June 21, came to police attention before dawn May 22 when he was stopped by police watching a bridge over the Chattahoochee River. The stakeout had been ordered after the bodies of seven young black males were found in rivers between December 1980 and May 1981.

IN TESTIMONY at pretrial hearings, officers on the stakeout team said they saw Williams' car moving slowly over the bridge moments after an officer beneath the bridge heard a loud splash in the river.

On May 24, Cater's body was found floating in the Chattahoochee downstream from the bridge in the same general area where Payne's body had been found a month earlier.

Parkview seeks change in status

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

While the Midland Memorial Hospital administration anxiously awaits word from the Texas Health Facilities Commission on its certificate of need for a 30-bed chemical dependency unit, Parkview Hospital hand-carried a CON for a similar facility to Austin Monday.

According to Dick Liley, Parkview administrator, American Medical Center, the corporation which owns the Midland hospital, "submitted the CON to convert the existing 60-bed acute care facility to a 60-bed general psychiatric/substance abuse project."

The application was hand-delivered to the THFC in Austin "in order that we may join the other applications for similar projects," Liley added.

Other applications include a CON from the Arlington Corporation, Southwest Health of Midland/Odessa Inc., for a 60-bed psychiatric hospital with 20 beds for chemical abuse. The MMH and Parkview CONs could be joined with the Arlington Corporation's application for recommendations by the Permian Basin Health Systems Agency.

According to Tom Camp, THFC adminstrator, a joinder date is calculated 45 days from the day the first application is filed.

West Plains Hospital, the name of the facility proposed by Southwest Health of Midland/Odessa Inc., filed its CON Nov. 25, 1981, making the joinder date Jan. 11.

Since MMH had a previous pre-application (letter of intent) on file June 1, 1981 and then decided to amend that application, the last day that the hospital could file the CON was Dec. 31. Camp said the THFC received MMH's application at 4 p.m. Dec. 31.

And presently, MMH is waiting to hear if its CON will be joined for review with West Plains, according to John Holt, MMH vice president of quality control. He added the hospital hopes to hear from the THFC by Friday.

On Jan. 11, the PBHSAwill hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission to review the Southwest application.

According to the PBHSA, until the THFC notifies them about a joinder, only the Southwest application will be reviewed.

Originally, Parkview submitted a letter of intent for a psychiatric/substance abuse project Dec. 1, 1981, and the CON was filed Monday.

Camp said if MMH's and Parkview's CONs are complete and do not have any deficiencies they may be joined with West Plains.

Female sheriff resigns

GROVETON, Texas (AP) — The state's only woman sheriff resigned her post Tuesday "because the strain was beginning to tell on me."

Peggy Evans, 56, was appointed sheriff by the Trinity County Commissioners Court Feb. 12 following the death of her husband, Sheriff Lynn Evans.

Mrs. Evans had said she considered running for the position when the unexpired term was up this year.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Stress' roots many and varied

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

Stress is a condition which is both needed for healthy functioning and potentially dangerous in excessive amounts. Stress is a very subjective phenomenon, but can be thought of as any disruptive influence on a person — whether physical, psychological, or social. The subjective element of stress is that certain events may be highly disruptive to some people but not at all to others. What accounts for these differences between people is not completely understood. One factor undoubtedly is that of past experiences at dealing with similar events.

Stress is needed in order to motivate someone to action. As an example, the stress created by normal hunger motivates the person to seek to satisfy that hunger. Without the normal amounts of stress, people would not think, get out of bed, or care about themselves. Stress becomes a problem when it becomes excessive because, at that point when it threatens to overwhelm, physical or psychological problems are likely to occur. When this degree of stress prevents someone from handling his problems alone, professional help is often required.

Stress can be caused by physical problems such as injuries, illnesses, exhaustion and other such factors. Psychological stress usually results from some form of threat to one's security, self-esteem, safety, or way of life. Such threats may be either objectively real or only apparently so. What is important is that the person perceives them to be real. The perception of threat creates fear or anxiety which in excessive amounts immobilize the person and can lead to psychological or physical problems. Uncertainty is often a major threat to some people. Uncertainty is related to changes in one's life; and any change, whether positive or negative, can create uncertainty and stress.

Although stress does vary from one individual to another, certain events are recognized as being generally stressful to the majority of people. These include, in order of degree of stress, the death of a spouse, divorce, separation, incarceration, death of a family member, severe illness or injury, marriage, pregnancy, loss of employment, change in financial status, foreclosure of mortgage, change in residence, vacations and minor violations of the law. Many other similar events could be listed and weights given to their degree of stress.

Countries reject U.S. aid plan

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A U.S.-backed plan for a $20-billion economic aid program for Central American and Caribbean countries has been rejected by at least five of the Central American nations it would benefit, Economy Minister Ruben Mondragon reports.

Mondragon said Tuesday that Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua refused to assume "goals and commitments that might have been injurious to our economies and our peoples." He did not explain.

Mondragon said representatives of the five countries, including economy ministers and bank presidents, will meet Monday in Tegucigalpa to discuss a scaled-down version of the plan.

There was no immediate confirmation from the governments of the other four countries.

Drugs, insurance new DPS jobs

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety gets two new jobs on New Year's Day — keeping track of what medicine you're taking and making sure you have automobile liability insurance.

Car insurance and "triplicate prescriptions" became mandatory Friday, thanks to the 1981 Legislature. There also will be changes in the way property is appraised for taxes.

The auto insurance law requires you to carry at least $20,000 coverage for medical expenses and $5,000 for property damage. Drivers caught without insurance could be fined $75 for the first violation and $200 for subsequent offenses.

DPS Col. Jim Adams said his troopers will check for insurance during traffic stops and accident investigations. Adams said drivers must carry a copy of their insurance policy or a company-issued card.

Issuing cards to all policy holders could be burdensome for insurance agents, according to an agents' organization.

"Obviously, agents are caught in a moral dilemma — on the one hand wishing to fulfill their responsibilities to their clients, on the other resisting the imposition of a task that can literally paralyze an agency for weeks," said a newsletter from the Professional Insurance Agents of Texas.

The newsletter pointed out the new law does not require the issuance of identification cards. The newsletter recommended that agents share the burden with insurance companies. Several major companies are sending cards to their customers.

Ernest Stromberger of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas said most Texas drivers should receive insurance identification cards in the mail by Jan. 1.

Jerry Johns, president of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service, said mandatory insurance does not mean every driver will have the required coverage. Therefore, he said, Texans should not drop insurance coverage protecting them against damage done by uninsured drivers.

Consumers help businesses rescue 1981 Christmas season

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer

It was touch and go to the last minute. But consumers finally mustered some yuletide spirit and headed to downtown stores and shopping malls to rescue the 1981 Christmas shopping season from the brink of disaster.

Ever-optimistic managers of the nation's leading retail stores had been saying all along that there would be a surge of business right before the holiday after lackluster sales during the early weeks of the Christmas season. That trend of shoppers putting off purchases as long as possible to wait for pre-Christmas markdowns began in the late 1970s and has become more established each year.

Business during Christmas week and the first days immediately following the holiday was even better than some of the retailers had been hoping for, especially at the large department stores that cater to upper-income shoppers less affected by the recession.

Federated Department Stores Inc., for instance, posted a 25 percent sales gain for the week ended Dec. 26 compared with the same 1980 period, according to preliminary reports compiled by Monroe Greenstein, a retail analyst with the New York securities firm of Bear, Stearns & Co.

Is the New York Daily News really 'up' this time?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

Mulligan's Stew

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Daily News is up for sale, and with it a good part of my life. Perhaps the best part.

I wish I had a few millionaire friends or knew some big winners in the New York Lottery. Then I could sell my house and books and the aluminum rowboat under the porch and join them in buying it. I should hate to see the paper and much of my boyhood fall into unloving hands. Or, perish the thought, perish altogether.

I never worked for the New York Daily News, but I grew up with it.

Bedtime for me in Long Island City, the tenement and factory enclave just across the river from Manhattan's soaring skyscrapers, was regulated by a ritual stroll up to the corner candy store to ask the recurring evening question:

"Murray, is the News up yet?"

The News, by some idiomatic anomaly peculiar only to New Yorkers, always came "up," as if from the ground, like a fountain or a flower, never "out," as from a warehouse or printing plant.

"Any minute now," Murray would say from behind the gleaming soda fountain that produced the world's greatest egg creams, a craving that I sometimes indulged in if the News really was late. But it seldom was. Down the street would roar the big black truck with the shiny red wheels and large shock headlines printed on the sides. It never came to a complete stop and most times barely slowed down long enough for the large, raw-boned boy on the tailgate to kick off two or three enormous bundles of papers which landed with a thunderous plop on the sidewalk.

THE NEWS WAS up. The bulldog, the first edition. And the faithful knot of fans gathered around the paperstand jostled each other impatiently as Murray cut the twine bindings with a lethal looking bread knife that all day long had been busily employed bisecting pastramis on rye.

"Mulligan, what is that you have under your desk?" Sister Mary Lawrence, the 6th grade nun asked one day.

It was the eve of the heavyweight championship fight between Jimmy Braddock and Max Baer. I guiltily surrendered my copy of the Daily News with its sports section "Tale of the Tape" featuring page-length photos of the two fighters and statistics comparing their weight, height, reach, biceps and neck size, etc.

"Tabloid trash," Sister said. But then the start of a series on "Inside the Vatican" or the "Boyhood of Pius XI" or something of the sort caught her eye. On following days, I brought her the sequels.

That, of course, was and is the strength of the Daily News. Something for everybody. Often something not found elsewhere.

The News did not have a particularly formidable array of combat correspondents covering World War II, when it reached its peak circulation of more than two million daily and nearly four million on Sunday. Yet it sent photographers and reporters and rewrite men in battalion strength to cover the Errol Flynn trial.

CARVED IN BLACK marble above the 42nd Street entrance to the News Building is the legend: "He made so many of them." The slogan evokes Abraham Lincoln's alleged line, "God must have loved the common people. He made so many of them," which also describes the News readership: ordinary people fascinated by extraordinary events.

C.D. Batchelor's Pulitzer prize-winning editorial cartoons often ignored the ponderous political issues of the day to concentrate on everyman's foibles and problems, like taxes and highway safety.

LIFE IN THESE UNITED STATES

Change in the weather?

From Reader's Digest

In our New England town, winter sports are a way of life, and bumper stickers and window placards proclaiming THINK SNOW begin to appear before the last leaf falls. One year, enthusiasts thought up more snow than usual. In the midst of a swirling storm, I crept homeward behind a rumbling snowplow, past harried householders wielding shovels through five-foot drifts.

Then, on one white pile, I noticed a refreshing sight. A bouquet of plastic posies bloomed by a large sign that said: THINK SPRING.

— GAIL BOWDITCH, N.H.

•

A woman who was outsized, to say the least, maneuvered herself out of her car and went into a Vermont service station to pick up a map while the attendant filled her gas tank. There was the usual gathering of men around the station, but not one turned to stare. I'd wager, however, that every man there was thinking about that woman's size by the time she drove off. With characteristic New England charity and restraint, no one said a word for a long time. Then one man said gently, "A woman like that shouldn't drive on recapped tires."

— MICHAEL ZUROY, Vt.

•

Hoping to excite student interest in our reading center, I asked each teacher to write a New Year's resolution on a special form and send it to me. After I posted the resolutions on the bulletin board in the reading center, one young teacher stopped by, looked at them for a few minutes, then left abruptly. Passing two other teachers on their way in, she stormed, "My resolution isn't posted — and mine was one of the first ones in!" I couldn't help but overhear, and the tone of her voice sent me flying to my desk in search of a misplaced resolution. Looking rapidly through stacks of papers, I uncovered hers. It read, "I resolve not to let little things upset me."

— JACKEE DAY, Ohio

•

Between my first and second ski lessons, I was practicing on the beginners' slope at Mammoth Mountain in California. I began to pick up speed, and suddenly I realized I had forgotten how to stop. That same moment, I saw a young couple standing motionless directly in my path. "Look out! Get out of my way!" I yelled. They did not heed my warning and, a moment later, the three of us were up to our ears in snow. As we were untangling poles and recovering skis, I apologized, explaining that I did not know how to stop.

"That's okay, ma'am," said the young man. "We didn't know how to move."

One Sunday afternoon, while a friend and I were cleaning out my garage, a Japanese couple asked if they could take a few pictures of us. We agreed, and continued with the back-breaking work. After half an hour and two rolls of film, curiosity made us ask why we were such interesting subjects. The Japanese gentleman replied quietly, "Our son is thinking of moving to America, so we are taking pictures of Americans relaxing on a weekend."

They were stranded in the middle of a traffic jam in a large midwestern city, and the wife was about to give birth to her first baby. The frustrated father-to-be received the assistance of the occupant of a nearby paint truck. A sign was soon painted on a large tarpaulin. Hoisted aloft for all to see, it read: IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE? A scurrying of helpful motorists soon turned up a doctor, bag in hand, and rushed him to the emergency. Minutes passed, and then came another banner — a hurried scrawling on the reverse side of the original tarpaulin. People shouted and whistled; horns blasted loud and long. The banner read simply: IT'S A BOY!

Scuba diving course to be offered

Midland Central YMCA, 800 N. Big Spring St., is now taking registrations for a scuba diving course, with Richard Stovall as instructor.

Classes will be held Jan. 26 through March 4. Classroom instruction will be on Tuesdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and pool instruction on Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Program fee will be $100 for members and $200 for limited members. Participants must furnish mask, snorkel and fins.

Stovall has been a scuba instructor since 1966 and is certified as a YMCA Gold Star instructor, PADI open-water instructor, CEMAS international two star and owns his own dive shop.

For more information call 682-2551.

YMCA offers 'Starter Fitness' course

In time for the New Year's resolutions, to help stay in shape, look better and feel better, the Midland YMCA is offering a Starter Fitness course.

The Y is accepting registrations for the one-hour course, which will begin Jan. 19 and continue through March 26. The 10-week course will be from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday and is open to both members and non-members.

Fees will be $20 for members and $50 for non-members.

Using the latest techniques, the course includes a physical fitness screening, fitness and health information, lectures and progressive exercise sessions to ensure a no-pain success in physical fitness, according to Rowland Wong, Central Y director.

The Starter Fitness course also includes a ten-week membership at the Y. For more information call 682-2551.

Did dust kill dinosaurs?

By DON BRANNING
Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — A theory that a huge meteorite struck the earth 65 million years ago and made a worldwide pall of dust that doomed dinosaurs and other life looks plausible, says a group of scientists here.

Luis Alvarez, a Nobel Prize-winning physicist at UC Berkeley, and his son, Walter, a geologist, came up with the theory a couple of years ago that a cloud of dust covered the earth for several years, obscuring the sun and killing the food chain on which dinosaurs subsisted.

Now O.B. Toon, an atmospheric scientist at NASA's Ames Research Center, has reported that he and several colleagues have done a computer model study, based on volcano dust clouds, that supports the Alvarez theory, except that they think the meteorite dust cloud probably lasted only six months.

Six months of darkness was enough for some species of plant plankton to die in the ocean and for other species of plants to die on land, said Toon. Temperatures plunged and everything froze on land. The dinosaurs, stumbling around in cold and darkness, looking for unfrozen plants to eat, died out.

"The size of the meteor would have been about 300 billion pounds," he said. "The energy of the collision impact would have been about 10 million times that of the Mount St. Helens eruption. It would have killed everything for 1,000 miles, and it would have made ocean waves a half-mile high.

"For two months, everything would have been as dark as the inside of a closet. Then, for four months, the photosynthesis process would have been so low, plants wouldn't have been able to reproduce. . .The oceans are too massive for the temperature to have gone below freezing, but the phylo-plankton species would have died.

Six wildcats planned for Basin counties

Five wildcats have been staked by operators in districts 8 and 8A. Also, a Lea County, N.M. wildcat has been scheduled.

CULBERSON 'WILDCAT'

Oria Petco Inc., Midland, will drill the No. 3 Catclaw State, a 4,100-foot "wildcat" in the Geraldine (Delaware 4000) field, ten miles northwest of Orla.

The venture is 2,173 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the west line of section 8, block 58, T-2, T&P survey.

GARZA SEARCHERS

The Wil-Mac Oil Corp., Irving, has scheduled a 6,400-foot wildcat, 10 miles southeast of Kalgary.

The No. 1 Susan Wallace is 467 feet from the south, and east line of section 25, block 2, H&GN survey.

It is 1/4 mile north of Argonaut's No. 1 Swenson, originally drilled to 7,931 feet, then abandoned in May 1950. The project was later plugged back to 6,460 feet and plugged again in June 1978.

The area around the drillsite is riddled with dry and abandoned holes in the 5,300 to 7,900-foot range.

••••

L.R. French Jr., Midland, has scheduled the No. 2 Badlands, six miles northeast of Justiceburg.

The scheduled 8,100-foot Ellenburger wildcat is 467 feet from the south, and 3,000 feet from the east line of section 952, block 97, H&TC survey.

It is 1/2-mile east of the No. 1 Badlands, a producer, and 1/2-mile west of production along the trend running from the Dorward field north through the Post field.

HOCKLEY WILDCAT

Ketal Oil Producing Co., Fort Worth, will drill the No. 2 D.H. Montgomery, a 7,500-foot wildcat, three miles northeast of Whitharral.

The project spots 990 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east line of labor 19, league 708, State Capitol Lands survey.

It is northwest of 6,900-foot lower Clearfork production in the Whitharral-Ava Lee fields vicinity. However, it appears there are no wells in the vicinity that compare in depth to the new project.

LEA VENTURE

The No. 1 Waldrep will be drilled by MGF Oil Corp., Midland, three miles southeast of Nadine.

The scheduled 7,800-foot wildcat is 660 feet from the north, and west line of section 6, township 20 south, range 39 east.

It is one location north of a producing well in a small field. The Reporter-Telegram has no detailed information on this area.

LYNN PROJECT

A 7,700-foot wildcat will be drilled by Challenger Minerals Inc., Midland, three miles southeast of New Moore.

It is 660 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 2, block C-41, PSL survey.

The drillsite is in a relatively untested area. It appeares there are no wells of comparable depth in the vicinity.

Natural gas price increase predicted

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of gasoline will rise 6 cents a gallon and homeowners who heat with natural gas will see their annual bills rise by $110 during 1982, according to the latest government predictions.

The Energy Department also says foreign oil imports, which have fallen sharply the last two years, will resume their upward climb in 1982.

Natural gas customers, who have enjoyed a substantial price break over their neighbors with oil furnaces, will see that advantage eroded somewhat in 1982, the DOE said.

The government predicted natural gas prices for residential customers will increase 22 percent in 1982. Natural gas, which cost $4.58 per thousand cubic feet in 1981, will cost $5.57 in 1982, the DOE predicted.

For the average residential customer buying 111,000 cubic feet annually, that will mean a total increase of approximately $110.

Price controls on natural gas are being lifted gradually under a 1978 law, which the Reagan administration has attacked for working too slowly. Energy Secretary James Edwards has said the administration will ask Congress next month to speed up the decontrol process.

Homeowners with fuel oil furnaces also are likely to see their bills rise in 1982, but only slightly. The DOE estimates that fuel oil, which averaged $1.21 per gallon in 1981 will sell for $1.23 in 1982.

Gasoline prices will rise by 6 cents a gallon during the year, the DOE said, from a $1.36 average for all grades in 1981 to $1.42 this year.

However, the department estimates this increase actually will trail the country's overall inflation rate by 3 percent.

DOE predicted U.S. petroleum consumption will decline by about 1 percent this year, continuing a trend that started after the 1979 Iranian revolution.

However, it predicted that despite the drop, the nation's appetite for fo/ heels of19 percent and 11 percent declines in oil imports in 1980 and 1981, respectively.

The projected increase is being blamed, in part, on a move by oil companies to stop drawing from their inventories and place greater reliance on foreign supplies.

Domestic oil production is expected to drop by 2 percent in 1982 to a level of 8.4 million barrels a day, continuing a decline which set in a decade ago.

Ed Rothschild, director of Energy Action, a consumer group, said the sharp increases predicted for natural gas prices show that acceleration of the current decontrol program would be unfair since consumers already are seeing their bills increase by more than 20 percent a year.

Independent gasoline companies feuding over sale

By DAN MORAIN
(c) 1982, Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — A little more than a year ago, Thrifty Oil Co. bought more than 200 gas stations from Gulf Oil Corp. and emerged as the largest independent gasoline marketer in Southern California.

A month after the sale, one of Thrifty's main competitors, World Oil Co., sued, claiming that Thrifty had closed the deal with a "payment of illicit consideration" to Gulf — although World's lawyer acknowledges that as yet the firm has no hard evidence to prove it.

World's antitrust suit, which is slowly winding its way through the federal court here, has managed to accumulate a mass of documents which now fill four volumes. And those documents suggest that the World suit is not the first time that the two privately owned companies have feuded.

In the suit, Los Angeles-based World charged that Gulf officers negotiated in secret with Thrifty, and that World was precluded from bidding on what the chain viewed as highly desirable stations.

World claimed the sale price, estimated at $22 million, was far below market value. World's founder and president, Bernard Roth, said the stations were worth at least $50 million.

At the heart of the suit is an antitrust claim. World has accused Thrifty of a "unilateral attempt" to build a monopoly at the independent gasoline pump, a plan that was aided by the Gulf transaction.

"The deal with Gulf places an enormous amount of power in the hands of one independent," said Maxwell Blecher, World's lawyer and an antitrust specialist.

Thrifty now has more than 300 stations in California, Arizona and Nevada. They operate under the names Go-Lo, Economy and Thrifty. World, believed to be Southern California's second largest independent dealer, has 90 stations plus a refinery in Bakersfield, Blecher said.

While Ted Orden, Roth's counterpart at Thrifty, has no refinery, he does have a guaranteed supply of gasoline, the suit says. As part of the transaction, Gulf agreed to supply part of Thrifty's needs from its 51,500-barrel-per-day refinery in Santa Fe Springs.

Blecher said that although this arrangement may not be important today when there is a large supply of gasoline, a guaranteed supply will become "critical" if another shortage hits.

"The rest of the independents will be scurrying around looking for gasoline while Ted Orden sits there with an assured supply ... He could deal a knockout blow to others in the industry," Blecher said.

Algeria cuts crude price by 50 cents per barrel

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Algeria has cut the price of its best crude oil to $37 a barrel, but the 50-cent reduction is not expected to draw many new buyers in a petroleum market characterized by ample supplies and weak demand.

Algeria told customers earlier this week that the reduction was effective Jan. 1, sources said Tuesday. As is customary, Algeria did not publicly announce the change.

It was known that Algerian authorities had been holding price discussions with customers for several weeks and had been courting potential new buyers.

The price reduction underscored the downward pressure on oil prices as a result of the worldwide oversupply due to conservation and economic stagnation in consuming countries.

By cutting its price to $37 a barrel, Algeria matched Libya's price but remained 50 cents a barrel above Nigeria. One day before Algeria's move was reported, Mexico reduced the price of its lower quality crude by $2 a barrel and Venezuela cut the price of some heavier crudes by as much as 90 cents a barrel.

Despite dropping its price, Algeria is not expected to draw much interest from major oil companies. That is because ample supplies of crude are available elsewhere at prices the oil companies consider more attractive.

"At $37 we wouldn't be interested," said an oil company official whose company does not currently buy from Algeria but had been courted by Algerian officials to begin buying at the new price. "The Nigerians are more realistic."

An official of another American oil company that is presently negotiating with Algeria on renewing its crude-buying contract said his company would reject the 50-cent-a-barrel cut as inadequate. The official declined to be identified because of the sensitive nature of the negotiations.

Latin energy planners face difficult decisions

HOUSTON, TEXAS — Venezuela has made some major natural gas discoveries which are posing difficult policy decisions for the country's energy planners, Petroleum Information International reports.

Venezuela wants to increase domestic use of natural gas but the state oil monoply, Petroleos de Venezuela (PDVSA), has already undertaken major projects in other areas and is now feeling the squeeze of depressed oil markets and pressure from the central government for more funds.

According to the January 4 issue of PI International, offshore gas development by Venezuela would involve an outlay of more than $2 billion and would take eight to ten years to be brought into production. Onshore gas would be cheaper and easier to put into production. But offshore finds have exceeded onshore discoveries in volume so far.

There is a certain degree of urgency in reaching a decision, PI International reports, because more of Venezuela's declining volumes of crude oil would be available for export if domestic use of natural gas could be increased.

Venezuela's exports of oil go mainly to the United States. But as oil production has declined less gas has been available because, until now, gas produced in Venuzuela has been associated with its oil output.

While Venezuela puzzles over how to expand its domestic use of gas, Kuwait is reducing its internal need for the fuel, PI International reports in its January 4 issue.

Less than a decage ago, Kuwait needed to produce at least 1.25 million barrels of crude oil a day to provide the associated gas needed to run its power plants, water desalinization units and refineries. But today, with crude oil output at less than 700,000 barrels a day because of depressed petroleum markets, Kuwait encounters no difficulty in keeping its utilities running.

Oil Minister Ali Khalifa Al-Sabath told PI International that most of Kuwait's plants can now burn other fuels, even crude oil if necessary, when gas production drops.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Renewed fears of higher interest rates swept the stock market into a broad and steep decline Tuesday. Trading was active.

Industrial, electronic and financial stocks suffered some of the worst setbacks, as did energy-related issues following reports of crude-oil price cuts by Mexico, Venezuela and Algeria.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials plunged 17.22 points to 865.30, its lowest level since Nov. 23 when it closed at 851.79 and its worst one-day decline since Sept. 3 when it also dropped 17.22.

The Dow Jones transportation index fell more than 7 points while its utility index lost a fraction.

On the New York Stock Exchange, losers led gainers 3 to 1, with more than 1,100 issues off on the day. The NYSE's composite index skidded 1.48 to 69.72.

Big Board volume totaled 47.51 million shares, compared with 36.76 million in the previous session. Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 55.15 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index tumbled 6.82 to314.59.

The industrial sector was littered with issues losing a point or more, including General Foods 1⅛ to 30⅝, Procter & Gamble 1⅞ to 78½, Union Carbide 1½ to 49⅝, Eastman Kodak 1⅝ to 71⅝ and American Can 2¼ to 33⅝.

Volume leader International Business Machines fell 1¼ to 57.

Among the oils falling sharply were Union Oil of California 1⅝ to 35, Cities Service 3⅛ to 42⅛, Marathon 3 to 79½ and Getty 2⅝ to 61⅝.

Oil-service stocks also were hit, such as Halliburton 2¼ to 50¼, Schlumberger 2¾ to 52 and Sedco 2¼ to 33.

Losers in the interest rate-sensitive financial sector were Citicorp 1 to 24½, E.F. Hutton 1½ to 38 and J.P. Morgan 1⅝ to 52½.

Among the few bright spots was Cannon Mills, up 4¾ to 35. It received an unsolicited offer of $40 a share for all its outstanding common from a company owned by David Murdock of Los Angeles.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 3.11 to 134.17, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was off 2.69 to 120.05.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 192.33, down 3.20.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Federal tax code changes ease taxes

By BILL DOYLE

Q. The new federal tax law allows anyone 55 or older who sells his home to take a "once-in-a-lifetime exclusion" and not pay tax on up to $125,000 of profit from the sale, if the house was his "principal residence" and he owned and lived in it for three of the preceding five years.

This is supposed to be a "tax break" for older people. I don't think it is a big deal, at all, considering the way real estate prices have skyrocketed. Why wasn't inflation taken into consideration?

Doyle

A. It was. The $125,000 exclusion applies to the sale of a home on and after July 21, 1981. Before that date, the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion was $100,000. Even that number is relatively recent. It became effective July 27, 1978.

Prior to that date, only people 65 or older could avoid at least past of the tax bite on the profit from the sale of a principal residence. Beginning in 1977, they did not have to pay tax on any of the profit on a home sold for $35,000 or less. And only part of the profit on a principal residence sold for more than $35,000 was taxable.

These changes in the federal tax code aren't really "tax breaks." Instead, they simply eliminate or ease the taxes people would otherwise have had to pay when they sell the large houses in which they have raised families and buy smaller homes or move into rental quarters.

By increasing these exclusions three times in the last four years the federal tax code has taken the ravages of inflation into consideration. You can argue — as many people do — that the current $125,000 exclusion is still inadequate. But you'll have to take your argument to your U.S. senators and congressmen. They write the tax laws.

•

Q. Is a "jumbo" savings certificate at a savings and loan association (S & L) just as safe as a jumbo at a bank?

A. Assuming the S & L is a member of the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) and the bank is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) the answer is a loud "Yes."

Both FSLIC and FDIC cover each depositor at an insured institution up to $100,000. And federal regulators set the maximum interest insured institutions are allowed to pay on savings certificate in denominations up to $100,000.

Jumbos get their name because they come in denominations above $100,000. There is no interest lid on jumbos. S & Ls and banks can pay any interest rate they see fit on jumbos. So, the interest paid on jumbos is higher then the interest on smaller savings certificates.

If a FSLIC-insured S & L or a FDIC-insured bank at which you have a jumbo goes bankrupt, insurance stops at $100,000. You could lose anything you have in excess of that amount at the institution.

Q. You told a person who is moving to a different state how to transfer money from an account in his present bank. Open an account at a bank in the area to which he is moving. Instruct his present bank to transfer the funds to his new bank by "bank wire."

I, too, am moving. But I have 30-month savings certificates. If I transfer the money before the certificates mature, I'll suffer an early withdrawal interest penalty. And I won't be able to come back to my present bank after I move. What can I do?

A. Just about the same thing the other reader arranged to do. Open an account at a bank near where you are moving. Instruct your present bank to transfer your money to your new bank, when your certificates mature.

Your present bank should be able to provide you with forms to sign, authorizing the transfer of money by wire on the dates your certificates mature. If that bank doesn't have such forms, write out the instructions yourself and hand them to a bank officer.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Social Security program means more than money

NEW YORK (AP) — When the subject is Social Security the discussion almost always is money, that apparently being the chief concern of both contributor and beneficiary.

But don't for a minute believe there aren't apsects of the great retirement program that might be of even greater importance, difficult as that might be to imagine.

A. Haeworth Robertson has that imagination, sharpened and amplified as chief actuary of the Social Security Administration from 1975 to 1978, a period when you might think his chief concern would have been money.

But, says Robertson, "serious as the apparent financial problems may be, they are probably not the most important Social Security-related problems confronting the nation." The larger costs, are "more subtle and intangible," and he argues they could change not only the finances but the nation's entire economic and social environment.

Robertson isn't anti-Social Security, but he believes Americans should understand the subject better than they do, and they should prepare themselves for change, because "change is inevitable."

As matters stand, he asserts, the system "can transform our historic value system and way of life before we realize what is happening." He says it in "The Coming Revolution in Social Security," published by Security Press, and in an article for William Mercer Inc., the employee benefits consulting company of which he is vice president.

He begins his list of concerns with the observation that Social Security is so complex the average peron will never know what benefits to expect, and will never know how much responsibility to assume for himself and his family.

"This will lead to the individual's looking blindly to the government for whatever benefits are being dispensed at the time," he says.

The John Neely Bryan log cabin, displayed in downtown Dallas among the city's office buildings, and thought to be one of the county's first dwellings, may not be as old as originally thought. It may not have even belonged to Bryan. Recent research indicates the cabin was probably built before 1850, but not as early as originally thought.

Tiny log cabin causes commotion in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A tiny log cabin has been preserved among the glass and steel of downtown solely because city fathers believed it once housed John Neely Bryan, one of Dallas County's first settlers.

Now the president of the county historical commission and an architect-researcher say thousands of visitors to the cabin may have been misinformed about its origin.

"It's just incredible how much misinformation and inaccurate information there is on that little cabin," said commission president Lyndalyn Adams.

Dallas architect James Pratt has concluded after a log-by-log study that the structure probably is too new to have belonged to Bryan, Mrs. Adams told county commissioners.

Pratt said the cabin's construction is more sophisticated than that of the structures built when settlers first arrived in the area in 1841 and 1842. The key is the corner notches, which skillfully were cut to interlock, he said.

"We cannot definitely say it's not John Neely Bryan's cabin, but neither can we prove that it is," said Pratt. "...We believe the cabin may have been built before 1850, but it was not one of the first cabins."

The cabin was given to the county in 1935 by the Buckner Orphanage, whose founder had collected several such dwellings.

Mrs. Adams said the commission began investigating the cabin's history in 1975, after the Texas Historical Commission had issued a marker for the building and asked the county group to verify its historical significance.

When doubt began to be cast on the cabin's origins, the markers were removed, she said.

The cabin has been moved and retored several times, and the commission is trying to date some of the original red cedar logs, Mrs. Adams said.

Bryan's descendants occassionally have posed in front of the cabin, and Bryan's great-great-grandson Gary Swenson of Wharton once slept in it.

Swenson said "nobody in the family cares" about the origin of the cabin.

"The fact that it represents the origins of one of the major cities in the world is what's significant," he said.

"It is valuable because it is typical of the cabins built in this area in that period before the Civil War," Mrs. Adams added.

Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — This movie capital hosts a summit of sorts today when film executives meet with black spokesmen who claim that black representation in films has all but disappeared.

Industry representatives will include Motion Picture Association of America President Jack Valenti, 20th Century-Fox production head Sherry Lansing, Columbia Pictures President John Veitch and Universal Pictures Executive Vice President of Production Thom Mount. They will meet with representatives from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to discuss the group's recent charges that blacks are not being represented in any significant way in the motion picture industry.

According to Collette Wood, executive director of the NAACP's Hollywood-Beverly Hills branch, the group will determine whether to proceed with issuing a "white list" — naming organizations deemed unsympathetic to hiring more blacks — pending the results of the meeting.

A "white list," coupled with a "selective buying campaign" (Wood declined to use the word boycott for "legal reasons") would attempt to hit the industry where it hurts — at the box office. Wood claims blacks represent at least 30 percent of the current movie-going audience.

Today's meeting was scheduled shortly after the NAACP's Image Awards, held last month at the Hollywood Palladium. In a speech, Geraldine Green, president of the Hollywood-Beverly Hills branch — sponsor of the Image event — denounced the entertainment industry, with claims that only one film last year contained a leading role for a black actress and that only 12 featured black men in significant roles.

Valenti responded to those allegations in a later interview in which he said, "You can't have black actors unless you have black parts," and encouraged blacks and other minorities to pursue writing.

Black spokesmen reacted to that attitude as missing the point. Said Wood, in an interview:

"He's saying find black writers to write black movies. Well, blacks can be found in every stratum of society. We're asking that more blacks be used in any kind of role."

NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks elaborated: "Say you have a film needing a small role as a judge. Now, 20 years ago, putting a black in that role would have been wrong because there weren't any black judges. But today there are many black judges, black lawyers...blacks have been included in all areas of American life, but Hollywood films still don't reflect that."

Several studio executives, when contacted, claimed there was little or no basis in the NAACP charges. According to Valenti, "Whites are as frustrated as blacks. The supply is far larger than the art craft."

Valenti spoke of the "creative commanders" in the industry (producers and directors) to whom detail "is important. They want to get the right faces."

Valenti said that he would listen to the "entire catalogue" of NAACP complaints and pass the information along to others in the industry.

This is not the first time that the NAACP has complained of underpresentation in the entertainment industry. According to one agent, who declined to be named ("I have black clients and don't want to jeopardize their job possibilities"), after a similar series of meetings in the late '60s, black representation in films increased.

"At that time, the NAACP was closely monitoring the situation," he said. "Then in the '70s they kind of slacked off that watchdog role and all of a sudden blacks started disappearing from the screen.

Now it's difficult for blacks to get work," he continued, "the roles are just not there for them or any other minorities."

Tooth decay is lessened by flouridation

By VICTOR COHN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Tooth decay has been cut by an astounding one-third in American children in the past decade, thanks mainly to fluoridated water supplies and fluoridated toothpaste.

Fifty-nine percent of children aged 5 to 11 have never had a cavity, according to the latest nationwide survey by the National Institute for Dental Research.

Among youngsters 5 to 17, 37 percent were "caries-free" — decay-free — according to this 1979-80 study. In 1971-1973 the number was only 28 percent.

By another measure, the average child aged 5 to 17 had 7.06 decayed, missing or filled teeth in 1971-73 but only 4.77 at the end of the decade.

These cheerful figures were presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science here Tuesday by Dr. Janet Brunelle, chief of biometry in the dental institute, part of the National Institutes of Health.

The news is cheerful because tooth decay is still the leading chronic disease of childhood, and it costs the nation at least $5 billion a year. The savings produced by fluoridation also amount to billions, though no one has calculated the exact figure.

The news about teeth is not all bright, however. Only 17 percent of 12 to 17-year-olds were caries-free in the last survey. Chances are, said Brunelle, that their exposure to sugar in drinks, foods and snacks had just been longer than the younger children's.

Also, many had not been exposed for as long to either fluoridated water or fluoride toothpaste. More and more communities have started fluoridating their water in the last 30 years, but they still cover just over half the population. Fluoride toothpastes are far newer, but already command some 80 percent of the market.

Brunelle also credited two other ways in which fluoride is used to combat decay: dentists' prescriptions of fluoride to be added to children's diets, and school programs to give youngsters fluoride tablets for daily or weekly use. She also said that some families have begun to emphasize less consumption of sugar and sugary products.

50-year-old woman gives birth to twins

RIVES JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — After eight children and five grandchildren, Jolie Westers had plenty of leftover baby clothes, but now the 50-year-old woman is scouting around for more outfits — in sets of two.

Last week Mrs. Westers and her 51-year-old husband, Harry, became the parents of twin boys, James Michael and Justin Manuel. And Mrs. Westers said Tuesday the unexpected addition to the family was a "thrill."

"They have so much family around them," said Mrs. Westers, who lives in a tiny community north of Jackson. "They're going to be real privileged kids."

The infants were born last Tuesday at Foote Hospital East in Jackson, with Justin weighing in at 8 pounds, 3 ounces, and James at 7 pounds, 5¾ ounces.

When Mrs. Westers discovered last June she was pregnant, the first thing she did was sit down and cry for 10 minutes. But once she and her husband accepted the reality, they began to be excited, she said.

"It took my husband a little longer to accept it," she said.

Baby born in beauty salon

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sharon Claxton went to a beauty salon to have her hair done, and left with a new baby girl — her own.

Mother and child were reported in good condition Tuesday night at University Hospital after the 7-pound baby was delivered by paramedics called to the Southeastern School of Cosmetology.

The new yardstick.

Our 1982 Honda Accord Hatchback could be the new yardstick for commonsense luxury and engineering. Inside and out.

A new aerodynamic look combines function with style. To deliver smoother, quieter, more fuel-efficient performance.

Complete with front-wheel drive, new ventilated front disc brakes, 4-wheel independent suspension and 5-speed transmission. Plus a stylish new interior and plenty of thoughtful finishing touches.

Like a maintenance reminder/electronic warning system, tachometer, quartz electric clock and a headlights-on warning chime.

Once again, our Accord Hatchback is the measure for the rest.

Midland High's Jim Gunnels tries to go over Odessa Permian's Terry Anderson during District 5-5A opener at Chaparral Center Tuesday. Gunnels hit for a career high 21 points as the defending champion Bulldogs rolled to a 72-61 victory.

Bulldogs roll over Mojo, 72-61

Robertson sits out game with ankle injury

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

If this basketball league called District 5-5A is supposed to be so close from top to bottom as everyone says it is, then someone better tell the Midland High Bulldogs.

The defending 5-5A champions rolled over Odessa Permian 72-61 at Chaparral Center Tuesday night in the conference opener for both teams, but the fact that the Bulldogs did it with Preston Robertson's 20.5 points per game sitting on the bench with one of James "Doc" Dodson's electrical gismos taped to an injured ankle does tend to say something about the Pack's depth.

With Robertson never stepping on the court with electrodes running through his body, it was almost scary the way Midland High still dominated old Mojo in this one. The Pack rolled to a 15 point lead in the first half and ended with a mortal 11-point margin when they went sour at the free throw line in the second half.

BUT MAKE no mistake about it — MHS was the clear winner. So does that mean that the Bulldogs are going to roll to another perfect 14-0 conference mark once Robertson returns to duty? It is something to think about in view of the current facts.

While Preston played cheerleader in this one, Jim Gunnels and Raymond Parker each bombarded the nets for 21 points and Don Sharnowski added 16. Robertson better get well or the Bulldogs may begin to feel they can live without him.

And the "Wave" came off the bench in usual fashion to keep Permian doing double takes at a pesky press that forced its share of turnovers.

"We're a good basketball team without Preston (Robertson)," was the way MHS coach Jack Stephenson put it. "We could have had the game in better position at the end, but I saw some good things. Doug Hixon played a good game and Rob Franklin got his first varsity start and played very well. In fact, with Robertson out of the lineup, it really helps Jim Gunnels. He is an unselfish player and tends to hang back with the big guy (Robertson) in there. But he is a good offensive player and he showed that tonight."

PARKER DID say, "I felt like I had to pick it up a little bit with Preston out," but Gunnels and Sharnowski neither felt any added pressure.

"Robertson is a very important part of our team, but I didn't feel like I had to do anything different," Gunnels said after his career high 21 points.

"Preston is a great player, but there is no one on this team that has to play for us to be good," Sharnowski noted. "We had the wave last year, but it is so much deeper this year. We just have a lot of guys who can play."

MHS jumped to a 32-19 halftime lead as Gunnels hit for 13 points. "I had one of those nights where everything that went up went in," Gunnels said.

But Permian closed the gap to five in the third period by hitting eight of 13 from the field while MHS cooled to five of 17 shots from the floor. Permian stayed in the game by hitting 15 of 17 shots at the charity stripe while MHS hit 22 of 37.

Permian's giant 6-8 David Woolley led Mojo with 16 points, but fouled out with 5:23 left in the game. "We had some trouble keeping the ball away from Wooley, but we are used to being bigger in the middle with Robertson."

Billy Brown had 12 and Terry Anderson 11 for Permian. Brown had eight in the final period.

Stephenson did say that he could have played Robertson Tuesday. "Preston could have started and I wouldn't have hesitated to put him in if things hadn't gone well early. The way things looked Monday morning, I would have said he would be out for three weeks, but we have the best trainer in captivity with "Doc" Dodson. I had no idea he that he could have been ready, but I wouldn't have been afraid to use him."

MIDLAND HIGH is now 14-4 on the year while Permian falls to 7-11. MHS hosts Big Spring at 8 p.m. Friday at the Chap in their next district game.

In the Junior Varsity contest, Midland High rolled to a 60-41 victory over Permian as Terry McGowan hit for 12 and Fred Franklin 11. Paul Peacock had 11 and Mike Kwiatkowski had 10 for the Panthers.

The MHS sophomores made it a clean sweep for the Dogs with a 61-49 verdict over Permian. Kenneth Johnson had 15, Kyle Kitto 13 and Raymond Quintana 10 for MHS while Permian's Troy Nini led all scorers with 22.

Cowboys dominate All-Pros

NEW YORK (AP) — Running back Tony Dorsett, guard Herbert Scott, defensive tackle Randy White and place-kicker Rafael Septien of the Dallas Cowboys were named Tuesday to The Associated Press All-Pro team.

Joining Dorsett in The AP's National Football League All-Pro backfield are rookie George Rogers of the New Orleans Saints, who edged out Dorsett on the final weekend for the NFL rushing title, and quarterback Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals.

The first-team pass-catchers are tight end Kellen Winslow of the San Diego Chargers and wide receiver James Lofton of the Green Bay Packers and Alfred Jenkins of the Atlanta Falcons.

TWO OTHER Dallas players, offensive tackle Pat Donovan and defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones, were named to the second team. The six Cowboys selected by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters amounted to the largest representation by any one NFL club on The All-Pro team.

In a major departure this year, in order to recognize the increased popularity of the 3-4 defense along with the more traditional 4-3 alignment, The AP selected 12 players to its All-Pro defensive unit, adding a nose tackle (some teams refer to the position as middle guard) to the usual four linemen and three linebackers.

The San Francisco 49ers, whose 13-3 record in 1981 was the best in the league, followed the Cowboys with five All-Pro players — rookie cornerback Ronnie Lott and veteran defensive end Fred Dean on the first team (even though Dean was a pass-rushing specialist and not a starter for the 49ers) and quarterback Joe Montana, free safety Dwight Hicks and guard Randy Cross on the second team.

Four Bengals were selected to the two All-Pro teams — Anderson, offensive tackle Anthony Munoz and punter Pat McInally to the first team and rookie wide receiver Cris Collinsworth to the second team.

Lee bounces OHS to open distirct play

ODESSA — "It's good to get that first district win, especially on the road," said Midland Lee head basketball coach Paul Stueckler Tuesday night after his Rebels defeated Odessa High 44-30 in the District 5-5A opener for both schools.

"I thought both teams were very nervous because it was the first district game," he continued. "I think the field goal percentage was low in the first half. District play is special for everybody."

The low field goal percentage can be seen by looking at the score in the first four minutes of play. Lee scored the only bucket in that time span and led 2-0.

THE REBELS seemed to settle down a little in the second half of the first quarter and took advantage of the Bronchos' nervous condition by running to a 12-2 lead at the end of the frame.

Odessa was able to break into its game in the second quarter but couldn't gain any ground on the Rebels as each team scored 10 points for a 22-12 halftime score. In the third quarter, Lee added another four to its lead, 10-6 and both teams connected for 12 points in the fourth quarter for the 44-30 final score.

Neither team was able to cash in much at the free throw line throughout the night. In fact, Rebel guard Barry Blackwell (on Lee's first free throw attempt) connected for the first chairty point of the game in the fourth quarter. Odessa had four opportunites in the first half, but missed each attempt and went two for five in the second half.

Andre Van Buren, despite being in foul trouble most of the game, and Alvin Dunson led the Rebels in scoring with 10 points each while Blackwell added another eight. For the Bronchos, Jimmy Gilliland scored 11 and Tommy Stahl eight.

"I thought Kenneth Brown did an outstanding job rebounding and in our post defense," said Stueckler, "and Steve Cherryhomes kept coming off the bench to spark us. He gave us some points, defense and was quick on the press.

"Olen Smith, when Andre Van Buren got into foul trouble, did a good job rebounding."

THE REBOUNDING charts showed Brown with 13, Van Buren with 10 and Smith with nine. Guard Randy Pepper did a good job of getting the ball to Lee's shooters and was credited with 10 assists and also collected three steals. Cherryhomes and Blackwell also had sticky fingers with four and three steals respectively.

Van Buren's average fell to 18.6 points per game while Dunson's average fell to 15.3.

With the victory, the Rebels are now 12-6 overall and 1-0 in 5-5A play while OHS fell to 9-10 and 0-1. On Friday, Lee will travel to San Angelo to face the Bobcats at 4:15, 6:15 and 8 p.m.

Who says Pokes aren't physical?

Where the Tampa Bay Buccaneers apparently made their mistake was during the two weeks before the NFC semifinal playoff game with Dallas. The macho Bucs pounded their thrustout chests and boasted of the physical prowess of their defense while at the same time casting, by innuendo, aspertions on the manhood of the Dallas defense.

The Cowboys bit their tongues, but after the game you heard it from every quarter, offense and defense, "Ask Tampa Bay who's physical now?"

D.D. LEWIS, the linebacker who has been around so long his hair should be showing signs of graying, ordinarily might be expected to take such Muhammad Ali hype as a case of whistling past the graveyard.

"It had been building up for two weeks. All we heard was how tough their defense was," the veteran from West Virginia University, said letting it all out after the 38-0 rout Saturday.

"We talked it up and decided we'd have to be just as tough."

Wide receiver Drew Pearson was even carrying a smouldering resentment about the pregame talk. "I'm tired of hearing how Dallas is not physical and that we are living on the America's Team hype. Maybe we're not all that good, but we win. And we hit as well as any team in the league.

"You don't win 13 games being a finesse team in this league."

DEFENSIVE BACK Dennis Thurman figured the Cowboys were physical enough so that the Buccaneeers knew when they were beat. "Tampa Bay got their heads down real quick after that third quarter touchdown."

Lewis, who retires after this year, elaborated that "when you play the Flex, you don't look physical, but we'll get with anybody in the league."

He also noted that the Cowboys' defense have come along gradually this season because of the young secondary. Dallas runs a complicated defense and it isn't something that is mastered overnight.

"WITH OUR young defensive players," Lewis said, "We couldn't do all of the things we'd done in the past. In the early games we went with five defenses to give the young guys a chance to gain confidence. Then the defensive line began to come on and the Flex began to pay off...at just the right time.

"It takes a season to get confidence in the Flex," he went on, pointing out that it's a defense that requires team work.

"The temptation is for one guy to make a play rather than carry out his role in the defense. It might work once, but then the defense comes back and hits you where it hurts."

LEWIS CLAIMS the Cowboys' defense has come of age. "Right now we are playing all the defenses we've ever played, 15 to 20. Our only limit is that we can't blitz from every formation as we could with a veteran unit."

As for San Francisco, Lewis believes it will be a different Cowboy team facing the 49ers this time, in experience and intensity.

"The last time we played the 49ers, the guys were out on the streets having a good time, talking about the great restaurants. This time we'll be all business."

Rangers rope Frank Tanana

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — It took two full days of negotiations, a couple of free meals and a meeting with "The Man," but Frank Tanana finally agreed to become a Texas Ranger for the 1982 baseball season.

"We've agreed in principle, now it just depends on the contract language," said Rangers Vice President Eddie Robinson, who did the negotiating with Tanana.

The free agent left-hander played out his option with the Boston Red Sox, where he had a 4-10 record and a 4.02 earned run average in 1981. In five full seasons with the California Angels, Tanana won 82 games as a hard thrower.

But he developed arm trouble and spent a season developing his control and off-speed pitches.

Chaps back in action at Big Spring tourney

Midland College returns to action after a three-week holiday break in the ABC Classic at Big Spring Thursday and Friday, a tuneup for the resumption of Western Junior College Conference action next week.

Howard faces the Sul Ross JV at 7:30 p.m. and Midland meets Ranger Junior College at 9:30 p.m. Thursday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Friday MC faces Sul Ross in the 7 p.m. opener and Howard and Ranger play at 9 p.m.

For coach Jerry Stone it will be a time to regroup for the Chaparrals after losing three freshmen during the December break. Bradley Richardson decided to quit playing basketball while Reggie Boyd and Tony Williams were academic casualties. With the departure of Earl Ray from the squad in November, MC is down to nine players.

MC RETURNS to action with a 10-5 seasonal mark and a 3-1 WJCC record, not up to last year's 15-0 record and No. 1 national ranking at a similar stage a year ago, but Stone is reasonably satisfied with the team's progress. The Chaps returned only two lettermen from last year's 30-3 team.

"I said all along that it would take until Christmas to start playing as a team and that's just about what happened," Stone said. "We saw our young men keep their poise in Roswell when we played New Mexico Military Institute on the 40th anniversary of Pearl Harbor. We had beaten a tough South Plains team, then we lost in overtime to undefeated Amarillo and managed to win at Hobbs against NMJC."

THE CHAPS will get the kinks out during the ABC Classic then embark upon a rugged grind of 14 conference games in seven weeks. Chances are that Stone and Coach Harold Wilder of Howard will spend more time scouting each other than worrying about ABC opposition. And since Howard played two games in the Chaparral Classic, both coaches will know each other's team like the back of their hands when they meet at Big Spring in a WJCC game Monday night.

MC returns home for Frank Phillips of Borger next Thursday.

Cooper upsets Bobcats in District 5-5A opener

San Angelo Central ran into a surprising Abilene Cooper basketball team Tuesday night in the District 5-5A opening game for both schools.

Cooper, going into the game, had only won two ball games against 14 losses while San Angelo was 10-6. The standings proved not to mean much as Cooper posted a 58-53 upset victory to move into a four-way tie for the 5-5A lead with Midland High, Midland Lee and Abilene High, each at 1-0.

Abilene High gained a place at the top of the standings by defeating Big Spring 64-52 in their opening game Tuesday.

San Angelo built up a 28-24 first half lead and saw it disappear in the third quarter when Cooper outscored the Bobcats 18-14 to set up the fourth quarter showdown. The Cougars won the final period of play, 16-11 to claim the victory.

Youngblut led the Cougars in scoring with 21 points while Coody added 12 and Mantooth another 10. For San Angelo, Lorand White was high man with 16 with Jeff Casner adding 14.

Abilene High led Big Spring from the onset posting a 14-10 first quarter score and running the advantage up to 34-17 at the half. The Eagles added another point to their lead in the third quarter by outscoring the Steers 14-13 and then gave back six points in the final frame, 22-16, in posting the victory.

Brett Enzor paced the Eagles with 19 points while Shannon Daniels added another 11. For the Steers, Bobby Earl Williams scored 12 points and Jerald Wrightsil scored 10.

On Friday night, Big Spring (9-8 overall and 0-1 in 5-5A play) will be in Midland to face the MHS Bulldogs (14-4 and 1-0) at Chaparral Center at 8 p.m., while Midland Lee (12-6, 1-0) will be in San Angelo (10-7, 0-1). Abilene High (14-4, 1-0) travels to Odessa to play the Permian Panthers (7-11, 0-1). Odessa High (9-10, 0-1) will travel to Abilene Cooper (3-14, 1-0).

Rice cage coach tells team they can't win

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice Coach Tommy Suitts, who in one swift move has watched the Owl basketball program gain respectability, has an interesting coaching philosophy — he tells his players they can't win.

"You'd be surprised at some of the things I tell them," Suitts says. "I just try to be honest with them and give them a realistic picture."

SUITTS TOLD the Owls they couldn't beat crosstown rival Houston Monday night and he was right. But the Owls took the 14th-ranked Cougars down to the final buzzer before losing 63-61.

"I'm also the guy who told them they couldn't win in Hawaii," Suitts said with a laugh. "But you see, we can talk all we want to but the only thing that really matters is what the players think."

As a result, the Owls defeated the University of Hawaii, eighth-ranked San Francisco and 15th-ranked North Carolina State en route to the Rainbow Basketball Classic championship last week.

"They knew they were going to beat San Francisco, it was just me and the coaching staff that were scared to death," Suitts said. "Then there was no question in their minds that they would beat N.C. State."

THE OWLS, conference doormats for the past decade, already have surpassed last season's victory total with their 8-5 record. Rice was 7-19 last season, its ninth consecutive losing season.

The Owls have turned high-scoring forward Ricky Pierce loose to shoot at will, imported junior college transfer Renaldo O'Neal for experience, turned Tyrone Washington into a defensive demon, solidified their senior leadership and gained bench strength.

Suitts said boosting the sagging confidence levels of Kenny Austin and Bobby Tudor also has been a key factor in the Owls' quick start.

PIERCE, AMONG the nation's leading scorers this year, hit 37 points against the Cougars, who tried every defensive maneuver to stop him.

"If you turn a lot of players loose like we do Ricky they'd shoot you right out of the game in five minutes," Suitts said. "But Rickey's shot selection is phenomenal. He could have done the same thing last year but we didn't turn him loose."

THE OWLS host Texas Christian Saturday night after eight games on the road and Suitts is still talking to his players "realistically."

"I really don't think we can win (the SWC title)," Suitts said. "I don't think we have the depth to go through the conference schedule. We have to have all the factors going right for us to win. If we do that, we have a chance to get into the tournament and win it."

LaSalle Thompson fuels Texas' 55-50 victory over Red Raiders

By Associated Press

LaSalle Thompson went up ... and down came Texas Tech.

"LaSalle really got tired tonight," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons after watching his high-flying center lead the Longhorns to a 55-50 college basketball victory over Texas Tech Tuesday night. "That was a lot of work out there for him."

The 6-foot-10 Thompson continually soared above the crowd to collect rebound after crucial rebound at the Super Drum in Austin. He pulled down 17 rebounds in all, in addition to scoring 14 points in the battle between two of the Southwest Conference's better teams.

THE RED Raiders had rallied from an 11-point halftime deficit to make a strong challenge and moved ahead by two points midway through the final period. But with 7:26 left in the game, Texas outscored Tech 11-3 with the help of Thompson and a tough defense to clinch the victory.

"Our defense was very good," said Lemons after watching his team force the Red Raiders into several second-half mistakes. "I was pleased with that."

The Red Raiders had won their first SWC game Saturday by upsetting Arkansas, a Top Ten team, but were not patient enough against the Longhorns, according to Coach Gerald Myers.

"When we did get up, we didn't handle the situation very well," he said. "Our shots were not great shots. We should have taken better shots when we had the lead, the pressure was on them."

IN TUESDAY night's only other SWC contest, Texas A&M stopped TCU 60-54 as the Aggie front line of 6-11 Rudy Woods, 6-9 Claude Riley and 6-7 Roy Jones dominated the smaller Horned Frogs.

A&M, 8-4, used the rebounding strength of its huge front line to build up a 12 pooint halftime lead, 34-22.

Tyren Naulls hit six of seven free throws in the final 2½ minutes to preserve the victory after the Aggies went into their slowdown game to quell a Horned Frog rally.

Browder led the Frogs' scoring with 16 points, tying A&M's Reggie Roberts for game-high honors.

The Top Ten

Eighth-ranked San Francisco, the only Top Twenty team in action Tuesday night, defeated San Jose State 78-66 as Quintin Dailey scored 20 points. The Spartans were never in the game, scoring just four points and committing seven turnovers in the first nine minutes to fall behind 16-4.

They trailed by 11, 32-21, at halftime and got within eight four minutes into the second half. But USF ran off eight straight points to take a 56-39 lead and the Spartans never got closer than nine points the rest of the way.

Unranked Teams

Russell Schoene had 24 points as Tennessee-Chattanooga beat Appalachian State 81-63, Brian Burke scored a season-high 16 points to lead Dartmouth over Massachusetts 62-46, Winfred Reid's 23 paced East Tennessee State over Furman 82-74, two baskets and a free throw by Dave Williams in the last two minutes rallied Illinois-Chicago Circle over Florida A&M 64-62, Rich Simkus scored his only field goal with 1:12 left in overtime to give Princeton a 50-49 victory over Fairfield, Orlando Phillips scored 24 points and grabbed 15 rebounds to lead Pepperdine over Fullerton State 95-76, Leonard Agee scored six of his game-high 27 points in overtime to lead Loyola of Los Angeles to a 75-68 triumph over Los Angeles State.

Court ruling may alter college sports

An AP Sports Analysis
By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Remember the names Mark Hall and Miles Lord — one a basketball player, the other a U.S. district court judge. They may be changing the reasons we send our children to college.

Last week, Judge Lord ruled that Hall should be allowed, at least for the time being, to resume his studies and thereby his status as a player on the basketball team at the University of Minnesota.

Hall had been declared academically ineligible to play basketball by the school and the Big Ten Conference because he was not in a degree-bearing program. Lord's ruling granted a temporary restraining order requested by Hall until the merits of his case can be heard.

EXPANDING UPON his decision, rendered in federal court in Minneapolis, the judge said Hall was "... recruited to come to the University of Minnesota to be a basketball player, not a scholar."

He said that if Hall, who would be a senior, were not allowed to play his final year of college basketball, it would jeopardize any career chances he might have as a professional player.

Lord's remarks were offered as an aside to his decision on the request for a restraining order, which he said he granted because the merits of Hall's case appeared substantial.

If the tenor of judge Lord's opinion is reinforced in later court proceedings, the relationship of student-athlete to university could be changed forever. There no longer would be need for the pretense that a degree was the ultimate goal of all college students.

IT IS no wonder, as Judge Lord intimated, that a student like Hall should feel less pressure to excel academically than athletically. Hall's level of learning, after all, affects the school's prestige much less than his level of basketball prowess.

"It well may be true that a good academic program for the athlete is made virtually impossible by the demands of their sport at the college level," Judge Lord said. "If this situation causes harm to the university, it is because they have fostered it, and the institution, rather than the individual, should suffer the consequences."

Even if Lord is later overruled by one of his colleagues, his remarks indicate the growth of a new school of thought. By recruiting and granting a scholarship to a student to play basketball, a university makes a commitment: In return for his athletic skills, a player is entitled to four years of on-the-job training.

Obviously, the vast majority of college athletes have neither the aspirations nor abilities to become professionals. They want the degree, and many get it in four or five years.

"There are a lot of misconceptions about athletes," says Tom Yeager of the NCAA's Enforcement Department. "Marcus Allen, who won the Heisman Trophy, will graduate in four years from Southern Cal, and the Outland Trophy winner (Dave Rimington of Nebraska) is an academic All-American.

"Of course, there are some egg plants running around out there. If you look at all their data going into school, you see why the school winds up doing magic acts with their classes to keep them eligible," Yeager said.

FORDHAM BASKETBALL Coach Tom Penders thinks he may have found the ultimate in homecourt advantages. Penders recently returned from a trip to Albuquerque, N.M., where his team lost 51-49 to host New Mexico in the finals of the Lobo Invitational.

"They have the greatest homecourt advantage in the country," Penders said of the New Mexico team. "The get 18,000 fans in the building, and they all stand and chant until they score the first basket.

"I think we found a strategy that worked in the second half, though," Penders said. "We held the ball for three minutes until they got tired and sat down. The kid blowing the French horn passed out after about two minutes."

NCAA probe hits Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin faces a year of "close scrutiny" after being placed on probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for football recruiting violations and improper use of funds and entertainment, a UW spokesman says.

The UW "will be under close scrutiny" during the one-year probation ordered by the NCAA, said Bob Leu, spokesman for the UW athletic department. "As one faculty member described it to me, 'It's like strike one. It's not bad, but we've got to watch our act.'"

The probation, effective immediately, includes a public reprimand and censure but does not affect the football team's eligibility for postseason competition or television appearances. The penalty calls for an NCAA review of athletic policies and practices at the end of the year.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions said the probation stemmed from at least 10 violations by Wisconsin's football program.

Violations included illegal payment of airline tickets for a recruit and his family, setting up a two-day stay at a fishing lodge for the family, and illegally buying meals for recruits.

Mustangs gain cage revenge; defeat Lamesa

LAMESA — The Andrews Mustangs got an important taste of revenge here Tuesday night with a 63-60 basketball win over the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes in a key District 2-AAAA contest.

Andrews vaulted to a 17-1 mark for the year and a perfect 3-0 conference record. Andrews' only loss this year was to Lamesa in a non-conference game. Lamesa is now 17-3 and 2-2.

Keith Brooks led the Andrews charge with 23 points and Mike Murry added 20. Scott Sears, the former Midland High athlete, hit for 11.

Lamesa's Victor Spencer led all scorers with 24 points and Shane Jackson had 13.

Lamesa led 36-34 at the half after the two teams were tied at 15 at the end of the first period. Andrews had a 15-10 advantage in the third period and that proved to be the difference as Lamesa had a 15-14 advantage in the fourth period.

Rangers ring up two victories over Miles

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Rangers pulled off double victories here Tuesday night over Miles in non-conference basketball action with the boys winning 81-39 and the girls cruising 64-54.

The Greenwood boys are now 13-1 on the year, heading into the Reagan County tournament this weekend while the girls are 13-3 and headed for the Abernathy tournament.

Stewart Burleson led the boys' attack with 31 points while Homer Lopez, Kent Foshee and Mike Pruitt all had 12 points each. Mike West led Miles with 12 and Jerry Dodson added 10.

Nancy Ortiz led the Greenwood girls with 19 points and Cindy Lea hit for 15 and Elizabeth Besic for 10.

Jones says he is Colt's 'scrapgoat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baltimore Colt quarterback Bert Jones says he has become the National Football League team's "scapegoat," and the subject of unjust allegations.

Jones believes the blame for the team's 2-14 record in 1981 should be placed elsewhere. "What's wrong with the Colts is the whole attitude of the whole organization, starting at the top," Jones told the Washington Post.

Miller yells conspiracy

ATLANTA (AP) — The executive director of the Major League Players Association says he is collecting evidence to show that baseball team owners have conspired to stop competitive bidding on free agent players.

Executive Director Marvin Miller, in an interview published Tuesday in the Atlanta Journal, said he plans to present the evidence next month to a congressional subcommittee reconsidering baseball's exemption from antitrust laws.

"If baseball were covered by antitrust laws, this behavior could put them in federal penitentiaries," Miller said in the inteview.

Ray Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, said in New York that "Mr. Miller and the Players Association never have raised that question to this office. They never have complained. I know nothing about the story. I can't comment any further."

Miller alleged as evidence of the owners' conspiracy that only 12 of 41 baseball free agents have signed contracts this winter, compared with 31 of 37 signed at the same time last year.

In addition, he said, no team has offered any free agent more money than his previous team offered if the former team retained negotiating rights.

Miller said it would be hard to prove the conspiracy exists, but he alleged it violated the labor agreement on free agency that prohibits clubs or players from acting "in concert" with one another.

"There are only two possible explanations for what is happening," Miller said. "I'll let you choose. Have 26 clubs independently, by amazing coincidence, made the identical decision at the same time regarding how to negotiate with free agents? Or have they acted in concert?"

Miller claimed the 26 clubs have agreed not to top the offer of a free agent's present employer, provided that team retained negotiating rights to the player in the November re-entry draft.

The clubs have agreed, Miller said, not to offer guaranteed contracts of more than three years to free agents who had their negotiating rights retained by their present employer.

Miller also claimed that clubs have conspired regarding all free agents except those selected by fewer than four clubs.

Soggy field hampers Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys figure they will not get a chance to work out at soggy Candestick Park until the day of the National Conference title game although they are arriving in San Francisco Friday.

"It looks like we will probably practice at California-Berkeley on Saturday," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who will send the team through a workout before the Cowboys' charter departs at 5 p.m. Friday.

"It would be nice if we could practice at Candlestick. But it's so muddy about all you could do right now is jog around and that's certainly not going to help much," he said.

Landry said a swampy field gives the advantage to the 49ers.

"They've been playing there all year and know the bad spots," Landry said.

The Cowboys were whipped 45-14 in October and were surprised by the poor condition of the field.

"We had no idea it was going to be that bad," Landry said. "Of course, the field didn't beat us that day. We showed up for the game half asleep."

Landry said he hopes the condition of the field doesn't bother his team psychologically.

"If the team starts thinking about it (the field) then it can become a disadvantage," he said. "We've just got to concentrate on hitting the field and playing hard and not thinking about it."

Landry Tuesday called the 49ers the "best club in the league."

He added "I think we are better than we were last year."

Tigers toss writer off the bus

An AP Sports Analysis
By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The boys on the bus all agree that baseball writer Vern Plagenhoef got a bum deal when the Detroit Tigers threw him off. The trouble is, they can't agree on how to help him.

Tigers' General Manager Jim Campbell, angered by a story Plagenhoef wrote — detailing the baseball team's confidential appraisal of its own players — has told the reporter he no longer is welcome aboard the team's charter flights and buses, nor in the Tiger Stadium hospitality room, nor in the club's executive offices.

THE CLUB also won't make airline and hotel reservations for him any more. Most major league teams have traveling secretaries who make reservations, then bill the newspapers, as a courtesy.

Plagenhoef, who covers the Tigers for the Grand Rapids Press and other members of the Booth newspaper chain, still will be allowed access to the dugout, locker room and press box, Campbell said.

"He feels he has a right to run and alter a confidential report," Campbell said Tuesday. "Well, I have rights, too. One of them is to tighten security where he is concerned."

Plagenhoef, Detroit Free Press writer Brian Bragg and Detroit News writer Tom Gage are the only newspaper reporters who regularly travel with the Tigers. However, a large contingent of reporters and broadcasters staff each game in Tiger Stadium and many avail themselves of free food and drinks in the club's hospitality room under the stands — as do reporters traveling with the visiting team.

Ed Browalski, sports editor of the Polish Daily News in Hamtramck, is the president of the Detroit chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Browalski, who also earns $40 per game from the American League as official scorer at Tiger Stadium, says he personally feels that the BBWAA should stay out of the flap.

"They haven't taken anything away from him as far as his access," Browalski said. "What they've taken away were some fringes. Basically, it's a matter between Vern and the Tigers."

However, Browalski said he would go ahead and write Campbell on behalf of the BBWAA because it was "the will of the majority."

An informal telephone poll of several members of the Detroit chapter of BBWAA showed that most members felt some form of official protest was in order. But there was wide disagreement on exactly how strong the protest should be.

"I deplore it (the Tigers' action) because I think it really strikes at freedom of the press," said Bragg, who is vice president of the chapter. "I believe Vern when he says he did nothing illegal, that he obtained the report by what's considered fair means in this profession.

"I think Jim Campbell's action is unworthy of what I always considered a high-class organization. I told him that today."

Bragg, who said he likely would not accept any privileges denied Plagenhoef, is pushing for a swift resolution to the conflict.

THE TIGERS generally pick up the tab for the Detroit chapter's annual winter meeting — scheduled for Jan. 29. The issue must be resolved well before then, most writers agreed, or the club's hospitality should be declined.

Gage agreed the BBWAA should write Campbell a letter, but said he had no plans to deny himself any of the club's amenities.

"I think they (the Tigers) have the right to do anything they want to do," Gage said. "These are conveniences, although it's very tough to do the job without them. Those were very tough steps (for Campbell) to take.

"But my first responsibility is to my paper, not to a boycott."

At the national level, Jack Lang, a reporter for the New York Daily News and national secretary-treasurer of the BBWAA, said the organization's only control is over the press box, clubhouse and dugout.

"If you own a home, you can invite anyone you want to your home," Lang said. "The only thing the Tigers are denying Plagenhoef is access to the team bus and the team plane, where news could develop. If his newspaper wants to pursue that, it is up to them."

However, BBWAA President Tom Flaherty, a reporter for the Milwaukee Journal, said the national organization might yet rally to Plagenhoef's support.

"I don't think it's censorship, just because he can't ride the bus," Flaherty said in a telephone conversation. "I imagine national will write a letter, but that'll have to go before the board. Before I write a letter, I want to talk to Vern, too.

"How strongly I protest will depend on what I learn from Vern."

Mike Lloyd, managing editor of the Grand Rapids Press, called Campbell's sanctions an inconvenience — nothing more.

"Campbell is sending a message to all of the witers who cover the Tigers, telling them to write favorable stories or get out," Lloyd said. "The information was given to him (Plagenhoef), and we had both the right and the obligation to publish it. Vern didn't violate any trust. That information was given to him with the full knowledge that it would be published."

Plagenhoef, saying the crackdown amounted to censorship, was eager to have the matter resolved.

"I don't want to inject any inflamatory language in here," Plagenhoef said. "I want to stay out of it. But, I'm aware of the support and I'm just overwhelmed by the storm it apparently has caused.

"I just hope it can be resolved, but I don't have any guilty conscience whatsoever. I didn't do anything wrong or illegal."

Tripuka, Thomas spark Pistons

By The Associated Press

Kelly Tripucka and Isiah Thomas quickly established themselves this season as two of the best rookies in the National Basketball Association. Now the Detroit Pistons' stars appear to be settling into roles — Tripucka as a scorer and Thomas as a playmaker.

Tripucka increased his average to the 20-point mark Tuesday night when he scored a career-high 38 points, while Thomas scored only eight as he also matched a career high by dishing out 13 assists.

The result was a 124-101 victory over the powerful Philadelphia 76ers, their worst loss of the season. The 76ers still have the best record in the NBA, 24-7.

In other NBA games, Atlanta tripped Cleveland 113-103, Indiana edged Phoenix 87-82, New Jersey beat Washington 114-108, New York defeated Milwaukee 112-102, Chicago outlasted Denver 134-128, Portland stopped San Antonio 115-110, San Diego slipped past Kansas City 112-104 and Houston nudged Golden State 112-111.

Erving led the 76ers with 29 points.

Knicks 112, Bucks 102

Sly Williams scored 21 of his season-high 34 points in the second half and Randy Smith scored 25, leading

Hawks 113, Cavaliers 103

Dan Roundfield scored 26 points and John Drew added 25 as Atlanta handed hapless Cleveland its 25th loss in 31 games.

Rockets 112, Warriors 111

Elvin Hayes' turnaround jump shot with 18 seconds left gave Houston its road victory over Golden State.

After the basket by the 13-year-veteran, which came with no time showing on the shot clock, Purvis Short missed a 22-foot attempt that would have won the game for the Warriors.

Bernard King of Golden State led all scorers with 34 points, while the Rockets' Calvin Murphy had 31.

Clippers 112, Kings 104

Michael Brooks scored 15 of his 26 points in the second half to give San Diego only its eighth victory in 30 games this season.

Rookie center Steve Johnson scored 15 of his game-high 28 points in the first quarter to lead Kansas City to a 36-27 advantage after 12 minutes.

Blazers 115, Spurs 110

Mychal Thompson and Billy Ray Bates scored 25 points apiece for Portland to offset 47 points by San Antonio's George Gervin.

Sixteen fourth-quarter points by Bates helped the Trail Blazers maintain a slim lead throughout the final period.

Pacers 87, Suns 82

Mike Bantom scored 25 points and gathered 12 rebounds for Indiana, which won despite a 15-0 spurt by Phoenix in the second half.

Nets 114, Bullets 108

Ray Williams scored a season-high 32 points and Len Elmore and Albert King made strong contributions for New Jersey at the site of some of their collegiate heroics.

Bulls 134, Nuggets 128

Reggie Theus scored 20 points to lead seven Chicago players in double figures against Denver.

Dan Issel had 30 points for Denver to lead all scorers.

Security Protection Systems is total security company

Security Protection Systems, "the total security company," is the major security firm in the West Texas area, with its home office in Lubbock.

According to Jim Coates, branch manager for the Midland/Odessa office of SPS, the reason for this success is the company's total commitment to professionalism, extensive investment in management, ability and experience in every phase of private security and their quality approach to security.

Coates also announces the company's intention of bringing to the Midland/Odessa area a mass marketing program for low cost, sophisticated home alarm systems. This will be started in 1982.

Many firms just offer one, two or three phases of private security, but Security Protection Systems offers a complete variety of services: uniformed guards, patrols, investigations, alarms, polygraph and even handwriting analysis. The investigation field covers criminal and civil, domestic, mergers, acquisitions, undercover and surveillance operations.

The uniformed guard and the patrol office are presently used in most communities and make up the largest segment of Security Protection Systems. SPS is aware of these needs in Midland/Odessa, and Coates feels patrols are of extreme value to the businessman, be his firm large or small.

Patrols are operated by uniformed officers in marked company vehicles within specified zones. Service is primarily set up at night and covers peak hours of criminal activity. Standard service consists of three physical checks nightly. However, service is tailored to the needs of each client.

Security Protection Systems is available to assist in setting up a tailorized program to fill the needs of anyone.

For more information on how SPS can serve you, call 563-3234.

Captain Ronald Sprinkel is shown in front of Security Protection Systems' new offices located near the Midland Air Terminal.

Plants by Evergreen greens up your life

Landscaping is an any-time, year-round activity in our area, but now is the ideal time to do your planting.

Plants by Evergreen has everything you need to make your world lush and green in the spring months if you set your plants in the ground now and give their root systems a good chance to get settled.

One thing you will definitely want to look into right now is the recent shipment of large oak trees. Plants by Evergreen has crews available to plant larger plants, shrubs and trees for you.

The nursery location at the intersection of Big Spring Street and F.M. 868 specializes in outdoor and indoor plants. Truckloads of new plants and trees arrive every week at the nursery and also at the original Plants by Evergreen, 409 Kent Street, where Carol Johnson is on hand to help you choose your plants and explain their care.

All plants purchased at Plants by Evergreen are of high quality and are sold at low wholesale prices. Employees are well versed in the care and maintenance of the plants. Landscaping and atriums are specialties; free estimates are given.

Ms. Barnhardt's phone number at the nursery is 682-5399. The Kent Street shop number is 682-9199. Both locations are open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Plants by Evergreen's nursery location at the intersection of Big Spring Street and F.M. 868 has plants, shrubs and trees at great savings. Ingrid Barnhardt is there to advise you and help you in making your selections and caring for your purchases.

Collin County sheriff must pay back copying fees

McKINNEY, Texas (AP) — Sheriff Joe Steenbergen has been ordered to repay Collin County $7,726 in copying fees he kept during his term as peace justice in Plano.

The sheriff has until Feb. 16 to reimburse the money collected for making certified copies of birth and death records, county Auditor Pasco Parker said Monday.

Parker ruled the sheriff must repay the money after auditing his books from 1977 to 1980.

Parker said his office will audit books of other county peace justices to determine whether they kept such fees.

Steenbergen, who gave up his peace justice post a year ago to become sheriff, could not be reached for comment Monday. He earlier acknowledged taking the fees, but said he thought he was legally entitled to do so.

A grand jury that investigated the case said the fees belonged to the county, but it declined to indict Steenbergen.

Producers looking for scripts

By CHARLES WEBB
Copley News Service

Ten years ago, the average cost of making a major motion picture was $2.5 million. Today, it is nearly $10 million.

Because films cost so much, the big studios make fewer of them. This makes it harder than ever for an "unknown" to sell a screenplay to one of the top movie companies.

However, many independent producers are in the market for scripts. The rapid spread of cable television and increased sales of video recorders has created a programming shortage. The enormous demand for entertainment is rapidly exceeding the amount of new material to fill it. This has created a boom for scriptwriters.

The type of screenplays wanted varies from religious stories to sexy adult adventure tales. Most people don't realize it, but there can be big money in even sales promotion films. The 22-minute sales film "Second Effort" was made by Dartnell Corp. of Chicago in less than four days for $35,000. So far, it has grossed more than $3 million. A nice profit by anybody's standards.

How much you make will depend on what type of material you write and who buys it. Some companies will pay as little as $100 for a basic story idea and have another person write the screenplay. Certain ones pay by the screen minute (generally $100 to $200 per minute). Others pay a flat fee of as much as $75,000 or more.

However, since the vast majority of independent producers work with a small budget, don't expect the mini-fortune major studios pay top writers.

It helps to have an agent. But you don't necessarily need one.

Most producers prefer you write first and ask for their guidelines for submitting a script. That way you not only get to know the specific types of screenplays of interest to a particular firm, but how they would like it presented. Some only want to see one- or two-page outlines, while others want the entire script.

Screenplays should be typed on white bond paper. The margin set at 18 and 90 (on elite typewriters) and 15 and 75 (on pica models). Single space except between dialogues of more than one character. In such places you triple space.

Generally, one page of script equals one minute of screen time. So a typical 90-minute feature would usually be approximately 90 pages.

Before submitting anything, it wouldn't hurt to go to your local public library and check out some books on the subject. A couple of good ones are, "Teleplay: An Introduction to Television Writing" by Cole Trapnell and "TV Scriptwriter's Handbook" by Alfred Brenner.

For a list of independent producers interested in screenplays, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1 to: Charles Webb column, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Be sure to mention you want the "Screenplay Buyers" list. Please allow four to five weeks for delivery.

CONSUMER TIPS

Laws protect consumers from debt collectors

By LINDA TRUITT
Better Business Bureau
of the Permian Basin, Inc.

Christmas is over. Each of us has given and received many wonderful gifts. Unfortunately, we will only understand what our generosity has cost us when the January bills start arriving.

A few Permian Basin residents will discover that they cannot pay for the Christmas gifts they charged as well as their other bills. If the bills are not paid, debt collectors may be used to secure the money.

From past experience, both the Texas Legislature and the U.S. Congress have realized that abuses can be caused by debt collectors. Therefore, the Texas Debt Collection Practices Act and the federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act were passed to provide consumers with certain rights when dealing with debt collectors.

The major difference between the two Acts is that the Texas Act applies to anyone engaged directly or indirectly in debt collection, while the Federal Act only covers those hired to collect the debts of others — namely, debt collection agencies.

According to the Texas Debt Collection Practices Act;

—You cannot be threatened or coerced into paying a debt if you notify the debt collector in writing that the debt is in dispute;

—If you owe the debt, the debt collector can threaten a civil lawsuit, but he cannot collect a debt by threatening to file criminal charges when, in fact, you have not violated any criminal laws;

—A debt collector cannot harass you by using profane or abusive language. He also is prohibited from harassing you by making continuous telephone calls or causng the telephone to ring repeatedly;

—When communicating with you by telephone or letters, the debt collector must at all times disclose that he is attempting to collect the debt;

—A debt collector is prohibited from falsely indentifying himself as an agent of the government or an attorney, misrepresenting your legal rights, and collecting more than is legally due.

In certain instances damages have been awarded to victims of unreasonable debt collection practices in the Texas courts. To have a winning case a consumer must prove that the collector conducted a campaign of unreasonable collection practices and, as a result, the debtor suffered physical or financial injury.

If you are being harassed by a representative of a debt collection agency, the Federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act provides these additional protections.

—If you notify the collector in writing that you want all contact to stop, he must comply. He still has the right to file a lawsuit or repossess the disputed merchandise.

—The debt collector is prohibited from contacting you at inconvenient or unusual times or places. Early morning or late night telephone calls are not allowed unless your schedule is unusual. Also, a collector cannot contact you at work if the employer prohibits such contact.

Neither of these provisions applies to the creditor who is trying to collect his own past due accounts.

While both Acts protect you from abusive debt collection practices, neither changes your obligation to pay the debt. Therefore, you should budget your expenses to keep from accumulating debts you are unable to pay. If an emergency arises and you cannot pay your bills, contact each business and explain the circumstances. Most businesses will make new payment arrangements.

Automakers' worst year since 1961

DETROIT (AP) — Year-end figures for the automobile industry in the United States are expected to show that 1981 was the worst sales year for the automakers since 1961.

Those figures were expected to be released today.

The roundup of bad news from the past 12 months began Tuesday with General Motors Corp. reporting a 1981 ales decline of 7.5 percent, compared to the already depressed levels of 1980.

Chrysler Corp., which for most of 1981 was alone among the major domestic manufacturers in reporting increases, said its sales were up 10.9 percent for the year. Volkswagen of America said its sales dropped 8 percent from the year before.

Ford Motor Co. and American Motors Corp. were expected to add their sales figures today.

GM said it sold 3,796,696 cars in 1981 compared to the 4,116,482 cars it sold in 1980. Because there was one more selling day in 1980, the percentage comparison is based on the rate of sales per day.

Chrysler sales amounted to 729,873 cars for the year, against 660,017 the year before, while VW sales of 162,445 U.S.-built Rabbits were down from 177,084.

When Ford and AMC figures are included, the domestic industry's total sales for the year are expected to be about 6.2 million cars, down 5.4 percent from nearly 6.6 million sold in the depressed market of 1980.

The last time domestic car sales were that low was 1961, when U.S. automakers sold 5.56 million cars.

The 1980 sales slump produced the worst financial year in the U.S. auto industry's history as losses totaled more than $4.2 billion. Although sales were worse in 1981, however, losses are not expected to be as bad because of stringent cost-cutting programs imposed at the companies.

According to a federal government report, automakers' losses in 1981 probably will reach about $1.4 billion. Final financial reports are not expected from the auto companies until late this month.

Rehnquist returns to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist has returned to work after a week-long hospital stay during which he underwent withdrawal from a drug he had been taking for chronic back pain.

Rehnquist, 57, returned to his Supreme Court offices Tuesday. He had been released from George Washington University Hospital on Sunday.

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, January 7, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Cartoonist Charles Addams, model/actress Erin Gray, novelist William Peter Blatty and former Boston Red Sox player Tony Conigliaro were all born on this date. You will have to exhibit a good deal of patience to get ahead this year. Curb your temper —the results will make the wait worthwhile! A discerning friend contributes to your success. Individuals who are self-employed will get what they seek faster than those who work for large businesses. Greater understanding, empathy lead to healthier and happier romance. Be willing to make intelligent concessions in order to preserve an important partnership or alliance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Think about setting up business trips. Postpone legal activity. Foreign contacts mean extra profit now. Keep in touch with key people. Educational matters may need top priority.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Community or civic affairs command your attention. Group activities are favored over one-to-one appointments. Give some thought to increasing your savings. Consult experts for valuable tips.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The emphasis today is on home, security and personal relationships. Use a direct approach to improve your position. A candid discussion with member of opposite sex is very revealing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on work, creative projects, career goals. Overseas contacts are more important to your success than in the recent past. Be willing to try new ideas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Allow plenty of time to get to appointments. Someone you meet is more alluring than you remembered. A personal relationship bears reassessment.

VIRGO (Aug.23-Sept.22): Travel is favored. Profits increase, thanks to new business. Do not be afraid to forge ahead. Any opportunities to reap additional financial rewards should be pursued.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your decision-making ability serves you well today. Influential people are impressed. A job offer or raise seems inevitable. Devote more time to creative projects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Check the facts before accepting another's word. Attention to detail is the key to your success. Pay bills on time to preserve your credit rating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid involvement in secret deals or negotiations. If self-employed, you have an edge over those who must consult others before making decisions.

CAPRICORN (Dec, 22—Jan. 19): A good day for handling detailed work. News from abroad raises your spirits. Loyal friends and co-workers are worth their weight in gold. Follow their unsolicited advice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use this slow-paced day to tackle difficult or complex tasks. Finish old business before embarking on new projects. Younger person will give you the benefit of the doubt.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): People who work behind the scenes will give you excellent advice now. Those involved in a secret romance will find it exciting and glamorous. Watch your spending.

Opening lead: King of ♡.

To make your contract you have to win tricks. But losing some at the right time can help!

After West interposed a bid of two hearts, North had no good way to show his strength. He eventually settled for a cue-bid of the enemy suit—a slight exaggeration, but the least of evils. When South rebid his suit, North decided that his excellent trump holding made up for his square shape, so he went on to game.

West led the top of his heart sequence, and declarer was not thrilled with his chances. He had only nine sure winners, and the hope of finding East with the ace of clubs was slight because of West's overcall. The diamond suit could be developed for an extra trick if the suit broke evenly, but that ran the risk of allowing East to gain the lead for a shift through the king of clubs and disaster.

Declarer found an ingenious way to keep East off lead. He allowed West to hold the king of hearts, and noted with interest that East followed with the two. West continued with a heart honor (no shift would have helped) and declarer ducked again!

The third round of hearts was taken by the ace, as declarer sluffed a diamond from his hand. He drew two rounds of trumps, then cashed the ace and king of diamonds. Next came a diamond ruff, and when both defenders followed, dummy's last diamond was established. Declarer crossed back to the table with a trump and discarded a club on the thirteenth diamond. He was happy to concede a club trick to the defenders.

Declarer lost only two heart tricks and a club. The combination of a holdup and an avoidance play allowed him to bring home his contract.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Walk for starting exercise

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm ashamed to say I'm a cigarette smoker and I've become very inactive even though I'm not yet 35 years old. I know that if I went out and ran five miles, I'd wind up either in the hospital or the cemetery. What kind of exercise would you suggest for someone like myself who wants to get back into shape? — Bill, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Dear Bill: As I discuss in my book "Stop Smoking, Lose Weight," one of the best beginning exercises for sedentary persons is walking. Some people find it helpful to join group programs where they can exercise under the direction of trained staff, gradually increasing the intensity of the exercise. The book, which is published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, contains a number of photographs illustrating various exercises, plus advice on how to begin.

Dear Dr. Solomon: There seems to be a contradiction between the warnings that pregnant women should not use alcohol and reports that alcohol may be good for the health. How do you explain this? — Gus, Queens, N.Y.

Dear Gus: There really is no contradiction in your two statements. The fact that a moderate consumption of alcohol may be beneficial for some people does not mean it is beneficial for all people. Pregnant women, as you suggest, and alcoholics should be extremely wary of any consumption of alcohol, moderate or otherwise. Nor should people who drink assume that their driving will not be impaired.

On the other hand, for example, many elderly persons find that the moderate consumption of alcohol improves their quality of life. There is nothing contradictory about suggesting a course of action for some people, but not for everyone.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Years ago I had my gallbladder removed after I had several attacks. My 28-year-old daughter has also been having trouble with her gallbladder, and she was hoping she could have the new treatment that dissolves the stones instead of having surgery. But her doctor said it's not for her. You have written that all surgery has some risk, so don't you think it's a good idea to avoid an operation if it's possible to do so?— Mrs. V. I., Flint, Mich.

Dear Mrs. I.: The nonsurgical treatment of gallstones with chenodeoxycholic (chenic) acid is a major advance in the treatment of gallbladder disease. As your daughter's physician indicated, however, it's not for everyone.

Dr. Bruce W. Trotman of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine notes, for example, that the gallstones of patients chosen to receive this therapy should be small. Possibly more important from your daughter's standpoint, chenic acid should not be given to women in their child-bearing years since its effects are not completely known.

Surgery is never pleasant and, as you say, it does carry some risk; but a 28-year-old woman should not undergo treatment that might affect children still unborn.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have a 9-year-old nephew whose parents were divorced over a year ago. He now lives with his mother (my sister-in-law). Since the marriage broke up, he has been very quiet and withdrawn. Is this something he will outgrow, or do you think he needs professional assistance? — Mrs. F.I., Madison, N.J.

Dear Mrs. I.: Accepting your evaluation as an accurate description of your nephew's emotional condition — that is, that he is very quiet and withdrawn — I would suggest at least a consultation with a pediatrician. If the problems are found to be beyond the pediatrician's area of competence, a referral to a psychiatrist might then be in order.

It is not possible to predict with accuracy the kind of teen-ager your nephew will be; he will come under a variety of influences over the next few years. However, studies have shown that many depressed children carry their emotional problems into their later years. Problems do not disappear just because they are ignored.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My brother is apparently making a successful recovery from cancer. Yet he is much quieter and less outgoing than he used to be. Is this typical of people who recover from cancer? — Bill, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Bill: There may be a number of reasons for what you perceive as a change in your brother's personality. For example, even if the cancer is in remission, he may not be up to par physically. He may still be feeling the effects of surgery, chemotherapy, or radiation therapy, and not have the energy to carry on as he previously did.

In general, however, patients who survive cancer do not seem to differ from healthy control subjects in regard to their feelings of anxiety, depression, positive well-being, and vitality. These are some of the findings of a study of more than 100 cancer patients and an equal number of controls by Dr. Arthur H. Shamle, professor of psychiatry at the University of Rochester Cancer Center.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Has the recommended diet for diabetics been changed? My brother used to be on a high-fat, low-carbohydrate diet; now he's on a low-fat, high-carbohydrate diet. They both can't be good, can they? — Selma, Greensboro, N.C.

Dear Selma: As you suggest in your letter, the recommendations for the dietary management of diabetic patients have changed in recent years. A low-fat, high-carbohydrate diet is now the rule.

The high-fat diet previously recommended has been found to cause atherosclerosis. On the other hand, a high-carbohydrate diet results in a decrease in blood glucose levels, and a consequent reduction in the amount of insulin the patient needs.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Do people who do not smoke cigarettes get lung cancer? — Mr. D.N.

Dear Mr. D.N.: Yes. The disease is found occasionally amoung nonsmokers. However, 80 percent of all lung cancers are linked to cigarette smoking.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you please explain how eating foods high in sugar can cause diabetes? — Cindy, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Cindy: Sweets, by themselves, are not a cause of diabetes. However, diabetes does occur more often in overweight persons. Therefore, eating an excessive amount of sweets can lead to diabetes by contributing to obesity in geneticly susceptible people.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been told that aluminum is used in some food products, but I don't understand how this can be possible. If aluminum is used in this fashion, can you tell me how? — Mrs. P.G.

Dear Mrs. G.: Various aluminum compounds are used as emulsifying, firming, and leavening agents. Among the food products in which they can be found are baked goods, cheeses, and relishes.

Dear Dr. Solomon: You wrote in one of your books about the value of one kind of cholesterol, and you said that exercise and diet help increase the amount in the body. I've started an exercise program at the local "Y" that begins with walking and leads to jogging, but I simply can't stick to any kind of diet. Would exercise without diet do any good in increasing the amount of the good cholesterol in my body? — Sam, Erie, Pa.

Dear Sam: While a combination of both exercise and diet is preferable for anyone interested in controlling weight and achieving good health, exercise alone is better than nothing.

Dr. G. Harley Hartung, of the Methodist Hospital in Houston, has shown that moderate physical exercise in coronary patients can increase their high-density lipoprotein cholesterol levels (good cholesterol).

The new IRA plans are here and there's one for everyone.

Now you, too, can retire a millionaire.

It's here. The new Individual Retirement Account. The IRA. A personal tax sheltered retirement savings plan for everyone. And it's available at First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. You can literally retire a millionaire, assuming you begin the plan in your late twenties. Not bad. Huh? Accumulations can be very substantial regardless of the age you begin.

Accumulations at retirement based on age of enrollment*

At Age 27 — $1,044,533
At Age 30 — $758,329
At Age 35 — $441,826
At Age 40 — $253,998
At Age 45 — $142,530
At Age 50 — $76,380
At Age 55 — $37,123
At Age 60 — $13,826

How much does it cost?

It's your choice. You decide what you want to contribute annually up to $2,000. At First Savings, we help you tailor your contributions so you can get the results you want at retirement.

How do you start?

Start by coming into First Savings. All IRA's are not the same. And First Savings IRA's have distinct advantages. For complete information, come by, or call us at 683-5681, and ask for a free brochure. And start making plans to retire rich.

Figures above are based on the assumptions that $2,000 is invested in the account every year until age 65 and that the funds invested draw interest at 11% compounded annually until that age. Your interest rate may be higher or lower than 11%. Substantial penalties are required for early withdrawal.*
