Expulsion of 61 Russians recommended

By JOHN P. WALLACH
Foreign Affairs Editor, The Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — Pentagon officials, with the support of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, have recommended that President Reagan order the immediate expulsion of 61 Russians believed to be spies, a number equal to the number of American civilians on board the downed Korean airliner.

White House sources said that the proposal, which might help mollify conservatives who have been critical of Reagan for underreacting, currently is before the National Security Council and will be considered if the Russians continue to stonewall and refuse an apology.

One source said "it is on Judge Clark's desk right now." Another official said that the original proposal, put forth by an unidentified assistant secretary of defense, called on Reagan to oust 269 Russians attached to the embassy here – a number equal to the total number of passengers who died on Korean Airlines Flight 007.

William Clark is the President's national security adviser and NSC director. The presence of almost four times as many Soviet officials in the United States as there are American officials in Russia has long been a popular complaint from conservatives.

There are 280 Soviets assigned to their diplomatic mission in Washington, ranging from Ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin to chauffeurs and chefs, who often double as intelligence gatherers. The FBI estimates that about 130 of them are known KGB agents or members of the Soviet military intelligence service, the GRU. In addition, 1,000 Russian officials are here, ranging from consular officers to representatives of the state trading agency.

The United States has less than 100 accredited diplomats in the American embassy in Moscow.

The FBI believes about one-third of the Soviets are engaged in intelligence gathering of one kind or another. Thus, Reagan could expel a large number of them without necessarily putting the U.S. at a disadvantage in the Soviet Union, although Moscow would almost certainly retaliate by ejecting some American officials.

"There is more Soviet monitoring of telephone calls in places like Memphis, the center of the grain trade, and San Francisco, because of the Silicon Valley," headquarters of the computer and microchip research industry, "than in Washington, D.C.," an FBI souce explained.

He said that Soviet espionage activities in the United States have more than doubled since Yuri Andropov, the former KGB chief, became Soviet leader. They fall into three general categories: industrial espionage, trade espionage and the stealing of military secrets. When Vice President George Bush, a former CIA director, met Andropov, the former KGB chief, in Moscow at Leonid Brezhnev's funeral, Bush cracked wryly: "Maybe we can figure out how to bring peace. We both have had access to an awful lot of information."

But as the expulsion by the Soviets this week of an American diplomat and his wife on alleged spying charges and the disclosure Tuesday that the State Department ejected two Soviet spies last month proves, espionage is no laughing matter.

The official NATO boycott of flights to and from Moscow took effect today in much of Western Europe to protest the Soviets' downing of the South Korean airliner, and the Kremlin responded with blistering anti-American articles in the state-run press.

The newspaper of the Communist Party Central Committee repeated charges that the Korean jumbo jetliner was on a U.S. spy mission and compared the U.S. "provocation" to an attack by Adolf Hitler's soldiers on Poland in 1939.

The paper, Sovietskaya Rossiya, failed to mention that Soviet forces invaded Poland from the east 16 days after the Nazis attacked. It called the airliner incident a "dirty and cynical intelligence operation."

Off the coast of northern Japan, where the airliner is believed to have crashed, two U.S. Navy vessels searched today for the plane's "black box" — the flight recordings which investigators hope will shed more light on the Sept. 1 attack.

In many Western European countries, including most of the NATO nations that fly to Moscow, government-imposed two-week bans took effect suspending landing rights for the Soviet airline Aeroflot for two weeks and suspending national flights to Moscow. Austria, a neutral nation, did not join the boycott; nor did France, which belongs only to the non-military organizations of NATO.

Several non-NATO nations, such as Ireland, Switzerland and Japan, joined the boycott.

In addition, many pilots' associations have declared a 60-day boycott of flights to Moscow to protest the Soviet attack that killed all 269 people aboard Korean Air Lines Flight 007.

Aeroflot, meanwhile, stopped accepting tickets written by U.S. airlines, complicating travel arrangements for people unable to fly on their pre-arranged schedules.

In London, British aviation officials theorized that the jumbo jet mistakenly strayed over Soviet airspace because a switch was in the wrong position.

Britain's Civil Aviation Authority said the Seoul-bound plane probably was off course from the time it left its refueling stop in Anchorage, Alaska because of a crew navigation error, the British Broadcasting Corp. said Wednesday night.

Reporter Paul Barry of the BBC-TV news program "Newsnight" said the CAA worked through about 20 theories before it decided a switch affecting the plane's auto-pilot was in the wrong position.

Despite his indictment, it's 'business as usual' for Mattox

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox invited news reporters to a press conference today, two days after he was indicted by a Travis County grand jury, accused of threatening a law firm.

Mattox said Wednesday was "business as usual" for him, and he brushed aside a suggestion by state Republican Party Chairman George Strake that he should remove himself from office pending his trial.

"That's what you would think of a fellow who's speaking for oil companies," Mattox said Wednesday. "I'm not worried about it."

Mattox was charged Tuesday with threatening to block government bond packages handled by the Fulbright & Jaworski law firm of Houston.

The felony indictment, the first against a Texas attorney general while in office, says Mattox made the threat in hopes of getting a lawyer for the prestigious firm to stop trying to get a deposition from Mattox's sister in a $1.67 billion lawsuit with Mobil Oil Corp.

Meanwhile, the Dallas Times Herald reported today that Mattox might announce that he has hired Austin lawyer Roy Q. Minton, a veteran of some of Texas' most publicized cases.

Minton refused to confirm or deny the report, saying "there might be an announcement in the next 18 hours."

Mattox and Mobil are on opposing sides in the suit, and Mattox has accused Mobil of "leaking" adverse news tips to the press in an effort to discredit him.

In New York, Mobil issued a statement denying it had anything whatsoever to do with the criminal action against Mattox.

"For anyone to try to cast Mobil in the role of attempting to intimidate Mr. Mattox because of the state's participation in the civil case is simply wrong," Mobil spokesman John Flint said.

A pre-trial hearing in the criminal case against Mattox was set for Sept. 22 before District Judge Mace Thurman.

Sales tax rebate check larger than expected, smaller than last year

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Midland's sales tax rebate check came in for September about $75,000 higher than what had been expected, but also $240,000 less than the same payment a year ago.

Midland's check was made out for $406,115.08, as compared to the $646,457 that came in last year. And the city's payments for the calendar year to date total $5,278,730, a 26.2 percent decrease from last year.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has mailed the rebate checks to 974 cities that levy the local one-cent sales tax. The September payments reflected sales made in July and reported to the office in August.

Odessa also reported a drop in its rebate check from the same month a year ago. This year, that city received $452,531.89, compared to $683,878.88 in 1982. For the calendar year to date, Odessa has received a total of $5,378,108, a 32.65 percent drop from last year's $7,986,647.

Midland Finance Director Troy Gifford had expected the September payment to be about $325,000, which would have finished the fiscal year at $7.2 million. Instead, the additional money puts the final tally at $7.35 million, he said.

"It's better than my pessimistic estimate," he said.

Midland city officials last fall had projected an income of $11.1 million this fiscal year in sales tax rebates. But the figures began falling as the recession hit the petroleum-based West Texas economy last winter. As a result, city directors began to cut back in their departments to avoid ending the fiscal year with a large deficit.

The next fiscal year begins Oct. 1, and the City Council has forecast $6.65 million in sales tax payments.

The August rebate check also reflected a larger figure than had been expected as the city received $977,000. Gifford hesitated to predict the increase in the past two months might indicate the declining economy might have reached bottom.

"I'd like to see one or two more months before I'd say we've reached the bottom," he said. "The next two to three months would indicate a trend."

The news release accompanying the sales tax rebate figures included a comment by Bullock: "Last September we were reporting the biggest allocation based on a single month's tax collection in the history of our state. This month, the sales tax receipts are running about 1 percent behind last year, which shows how fast things can change."

Israeli soldier killed in Beirut area fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese air force jets today buzzed hilltop positions of Druse militiamen for the first time in the 12-day civil war, and the Israeli army suffered its first fatality since its troops redeployed in southern Lebanon.

State and privately owned radio stations in Beirut said the six air force jets flew low over the city and insurgent positions on the overlooking hills but did not bomb or strafe the Syrian-backed Druse fighters. Druse gunners had shelled Lebanese army positions in the Chouf Mountains and near the U.S. Marine base on Beirut's southern edge overnight.

In Tel Aviv, the Israeli military command said one soldier was killed and seven wounded in a bazooka attack in southern Lebanon. The fatality was the first among Israeli troops since the army pulled out of the central mountains 11 days ago and deployed behind lines closer to Israel in hopes of reducing casualties.

The command said the soldiers' position was hit just after midnight by several bazooka shells fired at toward a village seven miles east of Tyre. The identity of the attackers was not immediately known.

The announcement of the attack came shortly before Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin sent his letter of resignation to President Chaim Herzog, ending his six years in power. Begin announced his intent to step down last month.

His resignation came after reports that he was depressed by the death of his wife Aliza last November and the protracted involvement of the Israeli military in Lebanon. Feuding within his Cabinet and disagreement over Israel's growing economic problems also were said to weigh heavily on Begin.

In Beirut, there were no reports of any new injuries among the 1,200 Marines. Four Marines have been killed and more than two dozen others injured by artillery shells landing in their sector at the Beirut International Airport.

■ Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin submits his resignation

"You can say it was the first day without shells in 15 days for the Marines," said Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan, of Shenandoah, Ga.

At daybreak, a formation of five gray warplanes with the Lebanese green, red and white emblem painted on their tails roared in to stage four low passes over Beirut and combat areas in the surrounding hills. Midway through the 30-minute runs, a sixth camouflaged-painted jet joined the other aircraft.

Army spokesman Capt. Youssef Atrissi said the British-made Hawker Hunters took off from the military zone of the airport opposite the Marine headquarters.

"We now feel it is safe to fly them," Atrissi said. "The airport was being shelled before."

The airport and the military zone have been closed since the war erupted between the Druse Moslems and right-wing Christian Phalange party militiamen after the Israeli army withdrew from the central mountains to south Lebanon on Sept. 4.

An army communique said the U.S. trained 8th Brigade came under heavy overnight shelling at the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb, which overlooks the Marine zone and controls routes from central Lebanon to the southern neighborhoods of Beirut.

"Army artillery fired back and silenced the sources of fire at Souk el-Gharb," which is nine miles southeast of the capital, according to the communique.

The communique said army artillery batteries exchanged heavy fire during the night with insurgent hilltop batteries that shelled army positions on the Khalde coastal highway intersection about one mile southeast of the Marine compound.

On Wednesday, the 8th Brigade held fast to Souk el-Gharb, defeating a three-prong Druse attack. The town is within range of President Amin Gemayel's suburban palace and the nearby residence of U.S. Ambassador Robert S. Dillon.

Since capture of Souk el-Gharb would give the Druse another position from which to attack the Marines, there was speculation it could become the first test of President Reagan's policy of allowing U.S. naval and air support of the Lebanese army if an attack on it posed a threat to the Marines.

Meanwhile, state radio said U.S., Saudi Arabian and Kuwaiti mediators in Beirut and Damascus today still were trying to arrange a cease-fire.

Costa Rica cites Nicaraguan patrol boats; Crude oil port destroyed

By The Associated Press

Costa Rica charges that armed Nicaraguan vessels disguised as fishing boats are patrolling off its shores, and the Nicaraguan government revealed that rebel forces blew up the country's only dock for unloading crude oil.

A top Nicaraguan official announced Wednesday that rebels blew up the dock at Puerto Sandino, 30 miles northwest of Managua, last Thursday. Rebel planes attacked Managua airport the same day.

In other developments in the region, a right-wing Salvadoran death squad claimed responsibility for four bomb attacks in San Salvador and Guatemala said it would not send troops for training at U.S. facilities in Honduras.

Daniel Ortega, head of Nicaragua's ruling leftist Sandinista junta, said damage to the oil dock was being repaired. He did not say why it took the government so long to confirm the damage.

A rebel radio broadcast reported last Thursday that the forces of the Democratic Revolutionary Front damaged the dock. But Nicaraguan telephone operators at the time said circuits were down at Puerto Sandino and a military source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, denied the report.

world

The Nicaraguan government blamed the dock bombing and air raids on the United States, which it said finances and trains the rebels.

Congressional testimony has shown that the CIA provided close to $19 million to the Nicaraguan Democratic Force operating out of Honduras. But the United States has said it does not provide any support for the rebel Democratic Revolutionary Alliance based in Costa Rica.

The director general of the Costa Rican Civil Guard said Wednesday that armed Nicaraguan boats are posing as fishing vessels just off Costa Rica's Caribbean coast.

Oscar Vidal said the Nicaraguan boats were spotted by police in the coastal town of Agua Buena, about eight miles south of the Nicaraguan border.

Vidal said the boats apparently were conducting patrols to prevent arms or food reaching insurgents fighting the Sandinista government. He said the Ministry of Public Security was investigating.

In El Salvador, the rightist Secret Anti-Communist Army took responsibility for four bomb attacks in San Salvador Sept. 6. The bombs caused minor damage at the house of a university professor, the home of a Jesuit priest, a clinic and the house of labor leader Jorge Camacho.

Adviser count revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — While rejecting the Pentagon's proposed doubling of U.S. military advisers in El Salvador, President Reagan will permit the number to rise slightly under a new way of counting who is an adviser, administration officials say.

Under the approach, six military personnel assigned to the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador who manage the military aid program will no longer be counted toward a 55-man ceiling set by the administration 2½ years ago.

The change will open six more slots that now can be filled by U.S. advisers engaged in training Salvadoran soldiers in the field.

"In effect, while the self-imposed limit would remain, all those counted under that ceiling would in fact be in a position to serve as trainers," State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman said.

But administration officials said there are no immediate plans to send additional advisers to the war-torn country although the number of embassy-based military personnel is expected to increase from six to 11.

One Defense Department official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the embassy military personnel should never have been counted toward the ceiling since they are involved with "analyzing requirements for training, not training itself."

The official said the Pentagon had hoped to increase the number of U.S. advisers in El Salvador to 110 speed the training of the Salvadoran army engaged in a war with leftist guerrillas. He called the change in the way the advisers are counted "a fall-back position."

Pentagon officials have complained that the self-imposed ceiling hampers the training of the Salvadorans. But the State Department has argued that raising it sharply would risk heightening opposition to Reagan's Central America policies in Congress and in the public.

The administration has gotten around some of the constraints caused by the ceiling by training some Salvadoran army units in the United States and at a new base in Honduras.

Bells ring for Aquino, oppressed

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Archbishop Cardinal Jaime Sin today asked that the Manila's church bells be rung every day at noon and that people chant a prayer for slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino and others "oppressed" for their beliefs.

"We live in troubled times, times of uncertainty where people are asking a lot of questions but so far getting no satisfactory answers," the cardinal said in a pastoral letter to be read Sunday in about 200 churches and chapels in Manila.

The text was released today during a continued military "red alert" to prevent what the government described as possible disturbances by communist radicals around the Sept. 21 anniversary of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' imposition of martial law in 1972.

Menachem Begin submits his resignation

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, reported to be unwell and in seclusion, today sent his resignation to President Chaim Herzog through an envoy, ending growing uncertainty about who was running the country.

Begin remained secluded in his Jerusalem residence while Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor presented the letter of resignation to Herzog, ending Begin's six years in power.

"The prime minister asked me to convey to the president of the state his letter of resignation. The prime minister wanted to do so himself but since he was still obliged to stay in his home he asked me to carry out this mission for him," said Meridor as he handed the letter to Herzog in a ceremony in Herzog's study.

Begin, who announced his intention to step down 17 days ago, stayed at home nursing what his spokesman Uri Porat called a "skin sensitivity."

The dailies Yedioth Ahronoth and Maariv had reported today that Begin was suffering from a skin ailment which obliged him to stop shaving.

Begin, who has always been meticulous about his appearance, apparently departed from the tradition of personally tendering his resignation, rather than appear unshaven in public.

But a respected newspaper, Haaretz, said in its editions today that Begin, secluded in his official residence for eight days, doesn't shave, barely eats and has stopped caring about his health.

Begin's resignation came after reports that he was depressed by the death of his wife Aliza in November and the protracted involvement of Israeli forces in Lebanon. Persistent feuding in the Cabinet and disagreement over Israel's growing economic problems were also said to weigh heavily on Begin.

After informing the Cabinet last month that he was stepping down, Begin delayed handing in his resignation to give his Herut Party time to chose a new leader and open talks on forming a new coalition government.

Seminar marks Mideast pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years after the historic Camp David accords were signed, the Israeli and Egyptian ambassadors to the United States show they can still exchange tough words in a spirit of friendship.

"If I had to choose between peace without problems and no peace, I still prefer peace with some problems," Israeli Ambassador Meir Rosenne told a graduate seminar Wednesday night at American University, marking the anniversary of the Camp David accords.

The historic treaty was signed by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on Sept. 17, 1978, following marathon negotiations spearheaded at Camp David, Md., by President Carter.

Bottlers strike

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Workers at the White Horse scotch bottling plant today continued a strike that began because management was counting the number of times employees went to the toilet.

A spokesman for the General Municipal and Boilermakers Union said union officials would meet with management and workers Friday to try to resolve the walkout, which closed the 650-worker factory.

Most of the 362 union workers struck the bottling plant Tuesday when managers began monitoring visits to the toilet by the men and women, a union spokesman said.

Leaders meet

PEKING (AP) — The Soviet Union's deputy foreign minister met with Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian today to discuss ways of improving Sino-Soviet relations, the official Xinhua News Agency reported.

Mikhail S. Kapitsa, the first high-ranking Soviet official invited to China in 20 years, arrived a week ago for talks that foreign analysts say open a new channel for efforts to ease tensions between the long-feuding Communist powers.

The brief Xinhua report, quoting a Foreign Ministry official, said Wu and Kapitsa "discussed issues of common interest and the question of eliminating obstacles in the way of normalized relations between the two countries."

Whites released

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The government has now released three of six white air force officers detained after being acquitted of helping blow up 13 combat planes, but is giving no indication whether the remaining officers will be freed.

Wing Comdr. Peter Briscoe, 36, was taken from prison Wednesday night, stripped of his Zimbabwe citizenship and put on a plane to London. He was "superb, excellent, but so sad to be leaving Zimbabwe," said his wife, Pattie.

Briscoe was one of six officers acquitted July 31 of charges of helping South African saboteurs blow up 13 air force planes in 1982. The court ruled that confessions signed by the six were extracted by torture and were not admissable evidence.

Aid requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Antonio Ramalho Eanes of Portugal is seeking help from President Reagan with the financial problems of his country, the poorest in Western Europe.

The meeting today marks the first visit by a Portugese head of state since Portugal's 1974 revolution against right-wing authoritarian rule.

Soviets accused

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, voicing concern about an apparent arms buildup in Cuba, is accusing the Soviet Union of exporting offensive weapons to that island in violation of the 1962 US-Soviet agreement that ended the Cuban missile crisis.

West Texas: Partly cloudy with scattered to isolated thunderstorms through Friday. Highs 85 north to 98 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend. Lows 52 to 55 north and 60s elsewhere. Highs Friday 85 to 92, except 98 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend.

Mattox meets with reporters

Bob Jones, Mattox's personal lawyer, said he had not yet decided whether to press for a quick trial.

"They (the district attorney's office) have been doing the investigation, and we have not had the opportunity to get access to materials that have been presented," Jones said. "Generally it takes time to acquire those materials."

Strake, who served as secretary of state under former Gov. Bill Clements and ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor last year, said in a news conference that Mattox should remove himself from office "until he is either cleared or convicted of these charges. To do otherwise would undermine public confidence."

Texas Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle, who was in Washington Wednesday, issued a brief written statement saying both he and Strake should "shut up.

"This is a legal question, not a political one," Slagle said. "The best interests of the cause of justice are much better served if Geroge Strake and Bob Slagel shut up and let the legal system operate."

At least two other matters involving Mattox remained under investigation, but Assistant District Attorney David Garza said it was "improbable" that the same grand jury that indicted Mattox would take up the other matters.

Senate prepares denunciation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is preparing to add its collective voice to the House in denouncing the Soviets' destruction of a South Korean airliner, but some conservative senators are holding out for additional sanctions.

The Senate planned today to take up a resolution, essentially identical to one passed 416-0 by the House on Wednesday, condemning the Soviet Union for a "cold-blooded, brutal, barbarous attack on a commercial airliner."

It demands an explanation to the world from Moscow for the Sept. 1 incident and reparations for the families of the 269 victims, among other steps.

But Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., joined by about 10 allies, said he planned to bring up an amendment urging President Reagan to go beyond the limited steps he has taken thus far in retaliation for the attack, which occurred after the Korean Air Lines jumbo jet wandered into Soviet airspace.

Helms' proposal called on Reagan to recall the U.S. ambassador to Moscow temporarily, to sharply reduce the number of Soviet diplomats in the United States and to undertake "a comprehensive reappraisal of the complete spectrum of U.S.-Soviet relations, including arms control, human rights, East-West trade and regional issues."

The Senate had planned to take up the resolution at the same time as the House, but it became sidetracked on other matters Wednesday, including a five-hour tribute to the late Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

The Senate also took time to approve, 83-8, a bill authorizing $187.5 billion in defense spending in fiscal 1984. The House was expected to pass the legislation today.

The war of words over the Korean jetliner continued elsewhere in Washington, with National Security Adviser William P. Clark calling the incident a "sickening display of Soviet barbarism." He predicted the Soviets would "fabricate so-called newly discovered evidence" to try to prove the plane was on a spy mission.

"The absolute and incontrovertible fact is that KAL 007 was not on an intelligence-gathering mission of any kind," Clark said.

In the House, more than 50 members across the political spectrum trooped to microphones for two hours to uniformly denounce the Soviets.

Some conservatives said the outrage should spur members to support Reagan's defense and foreign policies. "Let's not go back to our usual amnesia (about Soviet activities) after this furor has died down," said Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois.

But liberals said Congress should not lose sight of the need to keep channels of communication open with the Soviets, including the pursuit of arms-control agreements.

In fact, Reps. George Crockett and John Conyers, both D-Mich., voted "present," or uncommitted, in the roll call on the resolution on grounds the strident rhetoric in it could cause more harm than good.

Opening the debate, during which no amendments were permitted, Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the expression of outrage "is the least this Congress can do."

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said in an ironic tone that Zablocki was entirely right. "This is all windup and no pitch," he said. "It really doesn't do anything."

Hyde and many others called for tougher sanctions, ranging from a ban on imports of Soviet-made goods to a ban on Soviet participation in next summer's Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

"If we don't do more than talk and blow out hot air, then they are going to do it again," said Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga.

Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., an anti-communist sometimes called the most conservative member of the House, was one of 61 Americans who perished when the airliner was downed by a missile from a Soviet fighter.

Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said some may have considered his colleague paranoid about the threat posed by the Soviets. But, he said, "it was not paranoia that killed Larry McDonald."

A few speakers noted that their constituents were among the victims. Crockett counted three women from his Detroit district, Rep. William Ratchford, D-Conn., spoke of two and Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, D-N.Y., said her personal physician for 23 years was a passenger.

Others centered their comments on denunciation of the Soviet leaders in terms seldom matched for their harshness.

"You can dress them up and put them on television but the fact is we are dealing with murderers, thugs and outlaws," said Rep. Sam B. Hall Jr., D-Texas.

And Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., called the shooting down of the unarmed plane "a good example of the astonishingly low value that the Soviets place on human life."

Reagan advised to expect Soviets to lie about evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's national security adviser says he expects the Soviets to "fabricate so-called newly discovered evidence" in an attempt to prove their contention that the Korean Air Lines jumbo jet they shot down was spying for the United States.

"The absolute and incontrovertible fact is that KAL 007 was not on an intelligence-gathering mission of any kind," National Security Adviser William P. Clark told the Air Force Association on Wednesday.

The director of Reagan's National Security Council staff also predicted the Kremlin would use the strain in U.S.-Soviet relations over the plane incident to call for a summit meeting to reach a "greater understanding."

The Reagan administration has said repeatedly that it would only be interested in meeting with the Soviets if there was some likelihood that the meeting would result in tangible progress in relations between the two superpowers.

An administration official, speaking on condition he not be named, said after Clark's speech that the security adviser's remarks were based on an assessment by U.S. intelligence analysts.

"We're not just guessing," the official said, but he refused to elaborate.

While denying the Korean plane was on a spy mission, Clark charged, "The Soviets and their surrogates do use passenger aircraft for espionage purposes and have overflown the United States on spying missions. Neither our nor any government which holds life precious would consider mass murder as a response."

Clark's spokesman, Robert Sims, refused to give specific examples or to say how the United States knows that some airliners have flown spy missions. But there have been published reports in the wake of the downing of the Korean jetliner that Soviet and Cuban passenger jets have flown over restricted airspace, including the nuclear submarine yards in Groton, Conn., where the new Trident-class sub was under construction.

"We are also seeing disinformation about Soviet paranoia, as if their fears of nonexistent external threats are either rational and legitimate on the one hand or irrational on the other and therefore somehow beyond their responsibility," said Clark, who served on California's Supreme Court before coming to Washington.

"I heard those arguments many times during my years on the bench. We should not allow the 'self-defense' or the 'insanity' plea to exonerate them," Clark said.

Festival to open with street dance

Diez y Seis de Septiembre festivities, sponsored by the Midland Eastside Lions Club, will begin this evening with street dances, music and speeches, include a parade Saturday morning and end that evening with a dance and coronation of the new queen.

Today and Friday, festivities will begin at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Rancho Grande Hall, at the corner of Scharbauer Drive and Lamesa Road. The street will be blocked off and a stage for musical entertainment, singing and speeches has been built.

There is no admission charge to the street activities. Booths will be offering different types of Mexican food and on Saturday there will be watermelon eating and asado cooking contests.

At 10 a.m. Saturday, the Diez y Seis de Septiembre Parade will assemble at the corner of Carrizo and Illinois Avenue, east of Midland High School. The parade will proceed east on Illinois, turn north on Terrell to Lamesa and continue north to Rancho Grande Hall.

"We feel this is one of the better parades we've had," said Roger Robles, Eastside Lions Club parade chairman. "We've got about 30 to 35 entries. We've got a number of floats, a number of antique cars and a number of low-rider cars."

The floats and cars will be competing for prizes, Robles said. Also in the parade will be horses.

Queen Jackie Villa will be crowned at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the Rancho Grande by last year's queen, Missy Garcia. Ms. Villa's court includes Duchess Cham Romero and Princess Emma Hernandez.

A dance will take place after the coronation with Los Diamantes, of Ojinaga, Mexico, providing the music.

A carnival on the parking lot of Furr's Supermarket, at Scharbauer Drive and Main Street, also is being held in conjunction with the Mexican holiday, according to Robles.

Diez y Seis de Septiembre is celebrated as Mexico's Independence Day.

Late on the night of Sept. 15, 1810, Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla began the Mexican War of Independence against Spain with his Grito de Dolores (Cry of Dolores) speech.

Hidalgo was executed in 1811 and his struggle was continued by Jose Maria Morelos y Pavon, another priest. In 1821, Mexico was declared free from Spanish rule.

Correction

Details in a photo caption in Wednesday's Reporter-Telegram concerning an accident at Midkiff Road and Interstate-20 were incorrect. According to the police report, two trucks and an automobile were involved in the collision which occurred when the auto, driven by Barabara W. Leugoud, pulled into the intersection.

Implications in the original report that the driver of one of the trucks, owned by Scooter's Plumbing, Inc., was cause of the accident, were incorrect.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Have we made an error? Call us at 682-5311, Ext. 130, and a correction will be published.

France, Austria still flying to Moscow

LONDON (AP) — With the exceptions of France and Austria, most Western European countries have cut air links with Moscow to protest the shooting down of a South Korean jumbo jet two weeks ago.

Pilots' associations led the way, declaring a 60-day ban on flying to Moscow, and most governments set a two-week boycott on landing rights for the Soviet airline Aeroflot.

Here is a country-by-country breakdown of European official positions on the boycott:

FRANCE: Transportation Minister Charles Fiterman, one of four Communists in the 43-member Cabinet, said a boycott would not provide "effective measures for the sought-after objective." On Tuesday, union pilots for state-owned Air France began a 60-day boycott of flights to the Soviet Union, but Air France continues service with non-union pilots.

WEST GERMANY: The Bonn government joined other NATO countries in a boycott starting today and ending Sept. 28, suspending flights of government-owned Lufthansa to the Soviet Union, and Aeroflot landing rights in West Germany.

BRITAIN: Britain upholds the two-week NATO ban, and British Airways stopped flying to Moscow last week. Baggage handlers at Heathrow airport stopped servicing Aeroflot planes Tuesday, forcing the Soviet airline to stop flying to London before the official boycott began.

SWITZERLAND: Though neutral, Switzerland decided Wednesday to observe the same two-week cut as NATO. It also banned Soviet flights over Swiss territory.

HOLLAND: The government is observing the NATO boycott.

DENMARK: Also a NATO country, Denmark agreed to the two-week boycott.

FINLAND: Neutral — and neighbor of the Soviet Union — Finland did not participate in sanctions and Finnish air controllers said Wednesday they would continue handling Aeroflot planes. But Finnish pilots took one protest step by refusing to fly to Moscow. They continue to man flights to Leningrad. Finland has rail links with Moscow and Leningrad and may be a detour for air passengers whose flights out of the Soviet Union have been canceled.

ITALY: NATO-member Italy has blocked air traffic with the Soviet Union for 15 days beginning today. The pilots union on Monday started a 60-day ban on Alitalia flights to the Soviet Union.

INDIA: Twice-weekly Air India flights to Moscow are continuing.

JAPAN: The country is observing a two-week ban on Aeroflot and Japan Air Lines flights between Tokyo and Moscow.

SWEDEN: The pilots of this neutral country started a 60-day ban on Monday. The Swedish Transport Union and air controllers are boycotting Aeroflot for one week.

SPAIN: Iberia Airlines suspended its one weekly flight to Moscow for two weeks starting today. Iberia already was losing money on the Moscow route and had annouced it would stop the service on Nov. 1.

McAllen feels home value figures misleading

By CAM ROSSIE
Associated Press Writer

McALLEN, Texas — Home buyers will be surprised if they rely on a new Census Bureau report that says the nation's lowest median-valued homes are found in the McAllen area, local real estate agents say.

"They make it sound like we're all living in little cardboard houses here," said agent Laura Mesquita of McAllen.

The report, based on the 1980 Census of Housing, says the median value of owner-occupied homes in the McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area of South Texas is $23,900.

That means half the area's houses were valued at more than that price and half at less.

The national median for an owner-occupied home in any metropolitan area was $47,200, according to the Census Bureau, which listed the $138,000 price of a home in Stamford, Conn. as being the highest median value in the country.

"There aren't many $23,000 homes or even, really, $30,000 to $40,000 homes on the (McAllen area) market," Mrs. Mesquita said.

Fred Ruthven, McAllen Board of Realtors president, said the median value of homes in the three-city area is about $69,000.

"I really was very disappointed in it (the report) because most people don't answer very truthfully the questions regarding the value of their homes on the census forms," he said.

"They really don't feel the government should be involved in their personal net worth and some people don't understand the question. Some pass it over," Ruthven said.

A $23,900 home, according to Mrs. Mesquita, "is probably frame, two bedroom, one bath and not in a good location.

"It's something you could probably live in if you had to," she said.

A home that sold for $24,000 in Edinburg recently fit that description.

The tiny, white frame home has two small bedrooms, one bathroom and a carport. It has no foundation, but sits on beam supports.

Mrs. Mesquita obtained a computer printout of all homes sold in the area over the last three months by real estate agents who belong to the area's board of realtors.

The cheapest home in McAllen sold for $25,000 during that period, while the most expensive went for $420,000.

In Edinburg, the least expensive home was purchased for $14,950.

Funny-looking twins hit with schools

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The twins who just moved here from California are making a big hit at the local elementary schools, even though they're a little funny-looking and have no last names. Or is it no first names?

They're 3-foot robots, each called Topo, and they look something like R2D2 of "Star Wars" fame. The Lincoln school system brought them in to help teach youngsters the basics of computer science, and the pupils love it.

"It is not a panacea for education," said McPhee principal Ralph Thorpe, "but it is a tool that can reach children."

The children program Topo to perform a sort of boxy robot dance with instructions to walk forward and back, side to side, or make a square ("Walk two steps forward, turn 90 degrees; repeat three times").

The youngest pupils take to Topo with the greatest enthusiasm, Thorpe says. Kindergarteners ask immediately if the robots, made in Sunnyvale, Calif., can talk.

But the biggest thrill, said Thorpe, came when the school bought a printing machine that types out the youngsters' computer programs "because they had something in hand to take to their parents" — the way kids used to bring home crayon drawings of fall leaves.

Is 'Flathead monster' just fish tale?

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — The fisherman who finally hauls in the 30-foot "Flathead monster" will snag at least the thanks of local wildlife officials — and possibly a hefty load of caviar.

Legend holds that Flathead Lake in northwestern Montana is home to a monster bearing strong resemblance to a sturgeon, the spiny-plated bottom feeder whose female yields delicate eggs favored by gourmets.

The latest reported sighting came from Missoula resident Dan Knight. He said he and five companions were fishing Aug. 30 on the lake's Yellow Bay when a huge fish — about 25 to 30 feet long — broke the surface and crossed ahead of the bow of his boat.

"The chance of a sturgeon being in the lake is surely a possibility, but 25 feet I don't know about," said Laney Hanzel, a biologist who has spent years studying the fish in Flathead Lake with sonar and nets but has never found anything like the monster.

But, said Hanzel, "You have to believe they saw something go out there."

In thousands of hours on the lake, divers from the state Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks have yet to spot the monster. The biggest sturgeon ever landed in Montana was 7¾ feet long and was reportedly landed in Flathead Lake in 1955, but skeptics have questioned whether that fish was actually taken in Flathead.

Wildlife department spokesman Mike Aderhold said he's learned never to rule out the unusual.

"I had a guy once who claimed he had a six-legged deer. It turned out he did have a six-legged deer. There were two legs coming out of the stomach area. They both were over 14 inches long," he said.

Skinny little actor prefers radio, live theater to television

NEW YORK (AP) — Three decades ago, he was that skinny little guy with horn-rimmed glasses, bow tie and coveralls who endeared himself to millions of TV fans as Francis, the badgering stagehand on Milton Berle's "The Texaco Star Theater."

Today, Arnold Stang is 55, still diminutive and still fond of bow ties. But the eyeglasses are more up-to-date and the high-pitched, nasal voice that made him famous is really softer and lower.

"I know, you're looking for relics," says Stang, somewhat mystified that he's being interviewed. "It must be some sort of an archaeological dig, right?"

Not quite.

"What am I doing these days?" he says, creating hardly a dimple in the ample leather chair in the lounge of the Players Club — a private men's club devoted to the thespian craft. "I do what I always did."

He's alive and well and living in Connecticut with his wife, JoAnne, and their two children, and going quietly about the business he started in 46 years ago. He may be a funny guy, but above all else, he's an actor.

He recently did regional theater productions in Massachusetts of "Harvey" and "The Diary of Anne Frank."

"Creative productions today are in places like Louisville or Massachusetts or North Carolina," he says. "Broadway does safe things. It brings back 'Mame' or 'The King and I' or imports from London that make money."

Stang also does voiceovers for television commercials, and has recorded the voice for the cartoon character Top Cat, the sassy, hipster of the feline set. "I prefer doing voiceovers because first of all, you don't get makeup on your collar and you don't get overexposed," Stang says.

Though his reputation was made in television, he is not overly fond of the work.

"I prefer radio to televison," he says. "Radio depends on your intelligence. TV dinners really describe what television is."

Still, he once enjoyed live television, appearing on such critically acclaimed dramatic series as "Playhouse 90," "Alcoa Presents," "Hallmark Television Playhouse" and "The U.S. Steel Hour."

In film, he gave a first-rate performance as Sparrow, the street hustler in "Man With the Golden Arm."

As a child growing up in Chelsea, Mass., Stang wanted to become a dramatic actor. When he was 9, he sent a penny post card to "Horn and Hardart's Children's Hour," asking to be on the popular radio show. The response invited him to stop by for an audition the next time he was in New York.

"The weekend later, I took money I had saved up to buy my mother and father an anniversary present and got on the bus and went to New York," he says. "I got lost a few times, but finally made it to the station. I recited Edgar Allan Poe's 'The Raven' with gestures because I was going to be a serious actor. They cracked up and hired me."

Two-headed snake lives in its own house at Miami Serpentarium.

Two-headed snake charms visitors at serpentarium

MIAMI (AP) — A two-headed water snake has become the reigning reptile at the Miami Serpentarium, munching six goldfish at a time with both heads, although it sometimes seems confused as to whether its pair is better than one.

The West Virginia reptile, appropriately named Hatfield and McCoy, has been furnished with a house and private swimming pool in its new Florida home.

The serpentarium bought the striped "siamese snake" for $50 from a teen-ager who discovered the 6-inch-long wriggler three years ago while sunbathing beside Campbell's Creek, near Charleston, W.Va.

Now, say reptile keepers, Hatfield and McCoy catches food with both mouths and "he's doing just great."

"He's been eating goldfish for three years...," said Bill Haast, director of the serpentarium, a tourist attraction and venom production center. "He's almost 3 feet long now."

Hatfield and McCoy, named after West Virginia's infamous feuding clans, lives in "a very fancy little home with its own swimming pool and plants," said Nancy Harrell of the serpentarium, who carried the snake from the Mountain State to Miami in a cold-cream jar.

Hatfield and McCoy is a voracious eater, munching six goldfish at a time with both heads in action, said Ms. Harrell. "It's like two individuals, and it just depends on who wants to go for the fish."

Haast said the snake seems confused as to whether two heads are truly better than one.

"The left one, I would say, is dominant. If he lies relaxed, the left head lies more in line with the vertebrae. But both tongues come out. And if you cover one head, the other one can see.

"They have a problem sometimes, though, if he's crawling, because they might want to go different ways. You can see a kind of vibration being set up, as if there's a tug of war going on."

But both heads are somewhat bashful, Ms. Harrell said.

"When he was very young, he was very shy. Still is," she said. "He doesn't like to eat in front of people."

Ms. Harrell credits Hatfield and McCoy's finder, Dan Abston of Tad, W.Va., with the reptile's robust health.

"It's a miracle that he lived. It's only because of the care and the concern that the family showed for it that it survived," she said.

Soldier remembers time as 'guest' of Soviet military

Hearst Feature Service

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. — Charles Palmer-McCarty was alarmed but not shocked to hear that the Soviet Union had shot down the Korean Boeing 747 jetliner that strayed into its air space.

Now the owner of a computer software company in Walnut Creek, he remembers July 1, 1968, when a funny thing happened on the way to Vietnam. He and 213 other soldiers, flying over the Sea of Japan, apparently ventured into Soviet airspace and were intercepted by a squadron of Russian MiG-15s. Forty-five minutes later, they were forced to land on a remote airstrip at Interup, one of the Soviet-occupied islands in the Pacific Kurile chain. Those are the same islands the Soviets claim the Korean Air Lines passenger plane was spying on.

For Palmer-McCarty, then a 21-year-old medic, and the rest of his passengers, the incident 15 years ago was the start of a sometimes frightening, sometimes amusing international episode that lasted more than 50 hours.

Their trip began at McChord Air Force Base near Tacoma, Wash., where they had boarded a chartered Seaboard World Airlines DC-8. After a brief stopover at Anchorage, the crew pointed its navigational instruments toward Yokota, Japan, the last stop before heading to Vietnam.

It was the middle of the afternoon, Palmer-McCarty remembers, when somebody looked out the left window and noticed a vintage Korean War plane with a red star on the tail. It was a Soviet MiG-15 fighter.

"We were so close you could see the pilot's facial expressions," Palmer-McCarty said. He said the pilot gestured with his arms, apparently trying to convince the DC-8 crew to alter its flight path. It didn't work, at least not until the MiG pilot fired his nose cannon "straight ahead." Then the DC-8 banked sharply to the right. Quickly, three other Russian fighters flanked the American transport and escorted it toward the Soviet base.

Afraid to land the jetliner on the temporary airstrip built by the Russians, the American pilot passed over his destination. That prompted the Soviet jets to fire more warning shots. "Then the pilot landed real fast," Palmer-McCarty said.

The plane taxied toward the tower, a two-story log cabin, and stopped. The Russians ordered the Americans to shut down their engines and close their cabin windows. There they sat for two hours, until a Russian general and dozens of soldiers arrived.

The general boarded the plane. "He was making small chat, trying to be friendly," Palmer-McCarty recalled. "Then he collected everyone's ID card."

Meanwhile, Palmer-McCarty, an amateur photographer, discreetly began snapping pictures. He photographed the general, the air tower, the Soviet troops and the MiG-15s.

Pallbearers carry the coffin containing the body of Marine Lance Cpl. Randy Clark from Northwood School in Minong on Wednesday. Clark, 19, was one of two U.S. Marines killed in Beirut, Lebanon, Sept. 6 when rocket and mortar fire hit their positions.

Marine killed in Lebanon buried in his small Wisconsin hometown

MINONG, Wis. (AP) — As a minister asked "what are we there for?" one of two Marines killed this month in Lebanon was laid to rest after a funeral attended by 1,100 people at his high school gymnasium.

The Rev. Kim Sundet, a Lutheran pastor, said at the funeral Wednesday that many residents of Minong, a town of 560 people, "are confused, and we are hurt" by the death of 19-year-old Lance Cpl. Randy M. Clark.

Clark, of Minong, and Cpl. Pedro J. Valle, 25, of San Juan, Puerto Rico, part of the U.S. peacekeeping force, died Sept. 6 in what authorities said was rocket and mortar fire aimed at the Beirut airport by Shiite Moslem militia.

Clark's funeral was held in the gymnasium of Northwood High School, where he played football.

"We don't even know if his death has served a purpose," Sundet said. "So we ask questions. We ask questions of our national policy. We question our president. We join the Clark family in asking 'why, what are we there for?'"

James L. Clark, the Marine's father, said he wants President Reagan to explain why U.S. forces have been inserted into the troubled country's civil strife.

"Whom are we defending, the enemy or the good people?" he said. "I would like the president to answer me that question. I don't think these boys are necessary over there."

Reagan, Democratic leaders tug for Hispanic support

WASHINGTON (AP) — A political tug-of-war for support of Hispanic voters in 1984 is intensifying, with President Reagan praising their "traditional values" and Democratic leaders ready to attack Republican policies as the cause of economic hardship felt by many Hispanics.

Reagan held center stage Wednesday night with a speech to Hispanic Republicans in which he said, "America needs the values of our Hispanic citizens. We need those values to be expressed at the polls and through our political system."

The president also cited lower interest and inflation rates and his cuts in taxes and domestic spending and told his partisan audience that "federal tax money cannot buy happiness. It cannot buy our citizens real jobs and real opportunity."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., was certain to offer a far different view in a speech today to the annual dinner of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus.

Also ready to dispute the president's claim that his policies have benefitted Hispanics were six Democratic officeholders of Hispanic descent — Gov. Toney Anaya of New Mexico and Reps. Robert Garcia of New York, Bill Richardson of New Mexico, and Matthew Martinez, Edward Roybal and Esteban Torres, all of California.

They were to appear at a news conference with Democratic Party chairman Charles T. Manatt and party vice chairwoman Polly Baca Barragan.

The Hispanic Caucus consists of 10 Democratic congressman and one Republican — Rep. Manuel Lujan of New Mexico, who sat a few seats from Reagan at the head table of the GOP dinner.

At one point, when the president cited his efforts to cut federal spending, he said "and if the Congress acts responsibly, we can bring it further under control. I only wish the majority of that illustrious body were as responsible as Manny Lujan."

A Hispanic Caucus aide said Lujan would attend the dinner at which O'Neill was scheduled to speak.

Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale also accepted an invitation to the caucus dinner as did Mrs. John Glenn. Sen. Gary Hart planned to appear at a pre-dinner reception.

Radicals won't appeal

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — Although they face 25 years to life in prison, the three radicals convicted of the $1.6 million Brink's armored car robbery-murders say they will not appeal, but will keep striving to "overthrow the U.S. empire."

Jurors deliberated only 2½ hours Wednesday before convicting Judith Clark, 33, David Gilbert, 38, and Kuwasi Balagoon, 36, in the 1981 robbery and shootout in which a Brink's guard and two police officers died.

The defendants did not bother to come to the courtroom to hear themselves each convicted of three counts of murder and four counts of robbery. Afterward, one of the defendants got married.

Through a supporters the three issued a statement saying their acts were part of a struggle for black liberation and that their goal remained the "overthrow of the U.S. empire."

"We are at war and have no respect for the laws, the verdict or sentence and continue to maintain our position as freedom fighters," the statement said. "We are not dampened at all by the verdict."

The trio had denounced the 2-month trial as a charade, but Rockland County District Attorney Kenneth Gribetz called the defendants' rhetoric "pure hogwash."

"We're frankly upset there is no death sentence" in New York, said Gribetz. He said he'll ask Orange County Judge David Ritter to impose three consecutive 25-year-to-life terms on each defendant for each homicide, so that they "are never released onto the streets again." Sentencing was set for Oct. 14.

Tape of death heard by jurors

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Jurors in the murder trial of Elsworth Leroy Groff Jr. listened to a tape recording of a phone call Groff's 11-year-old daughter reportedly made to a police dispatcher as her mother was being shot to death.

Groff, 35, is on trial for the murder of his wife, Pamela Groff, 30, who was shot three times April 16 at the couple's Quarryville farmhouse.

On Wednesday, jurors heard a tape made by an automatic device that records phone calls to the county's police communications center.

During the six-minute recording, jurors heard several gunshots and a voice identified as that of Groff's daughter, Melissa, saying, "My mommy's been shot."

The jurors heard Melissa call the police emergency number and say, "Can you please come to Stuart Run Road?"

Two shots in rapid succession were then heard, followed by screaming and a woman pleading, "No, no."

Melissa then told the dispatcher, "My mommy's been shot."

The dispatcher replied, "What? Hey, hey ... "

"Mommy," the girl is heard screaming before the phone receiver is dropped.

"Daddy, stop," Melissa then cried, followed by a male voice, which said, "Go upstairs."

The dispatcher said, "Hello?" and a male voice in the background said, "I'm sorry, Pam. You done me wrong."

The jurors then heard the sound of another gunshot, followed by children screaming.

A voice identified as that of Janice Thompson, 25, of Wayne, Delaware County, was then heard. Ms. Thompson boarded at the Groff house on weekends. The dispatcher said, "What's the problem here?"

Ms. Thompson replied, "Somebody's been shot here." After giving the address, she said the woman who had been shot was Pamela Groff.

Send help — fast!

President Ronald Reagan
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Reagan,

Out here in West Texas we're having a heck of a time with the worst drought since the one back during the 1950s. It's so bad, in fact, that most of the area's ranchers have had to sell off the majority of their livestock herds (for depressed prices) just to keep the animals alive. The ones they're trying to keep alive for breeder stock are in bad shape, too.

Now it's true that the only thing that'll really help is some rainfall. During the past three years, ranches in some counties around here have received less than half the rainfall they normally receive in a year's time. Some have received less than an inch of rain this year.

Well, you're probably wondering why we're writing to you — you really can't make it rain. That's true, but the fact of the matter is what help is available to farmers and ranchers should be given to them. Gov. Mark White, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and other officials have tried to interest Agriculture Secretary John Block in this area's plight in order to get some help. But, so far at least, Mr. Block hasn't seemed too interested. He wouldn't even come to tour this area with the governor and other officials earlier this week. We sure would like for him to be concerned because we could use the help.

We're not the only ones this ol' drought is going to hurt, though. Every segment of the American population will eventually feel its impact.

You could really help if you'd mention to Mr. Block that we're in desperate straits and need any relief he can send us. Commissioner Hightower says three things would help the ranchers: an emergency feed grain program, a disaster payment program and a corn-feeding program. That surely would help. Furthermore, he says we've got 17.5 million bushels of corn stored in Plainview that's costing taxpayers $5 million a year to store and could be used to feed cattle or sheep instead. That corn was embargoed by Jimmy Carter in his term so the Russians couldn't get it, but it sure could help the ranchers now.

We called a man at Plainview where the corn is stored and he said that the farmers in that area really would prefer getting the corn out of their storage bins, provided it was shipped to the Permian Basin or some other West Texas area so its release wouldn't hurt their local economy. We'd certainly go along with that; we need the feed for the breeding stock we're trying to nursemaid over this drought.

Please do what you can to convince Mr. Block we really need this help, Mr. President. We're about out of options here and all we're getting from the clouds is teasing.

Sincerely,
The Reporter-Telegram

Computerized crime

Computers have long been feared for their potential to delve too deeply into the lives of the citizenry. Several developments this summer point to the equally unnerving but very different possibility that the computers themselves are vulnerable to snooping by the curious, the greedy and the destructive. That realization points to the need for new federal legislation and, more important, a shift in the computer industry's attitude, about security.

What began with a popular summer celluloid fantasy, "WarGames," in which a teenager armed only with his home computer nearly triggers World War III, grew decidedly more realistic with the revelation that the "414," a group of Milwaukee adolescents, had used a smaller computer to break into the far larger computers of several mammoth institutions, including the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center and the Los Alamos nuclear weapons laboratory.

More disturbing was the disclosure that this episode, though widely publicized, wasn't especially rare. Entry into computer systems, far from being an arcane feat, has become child's play. The computer networks which link business, institutional, and even military computers are designed with easy telephone access in mind. And once hooked up to the computer, a determined outsider can often penetrate its inner reaches with surprising ease, for most security systems are primitive.

There's relatively little reason to fret about the "system hackers" like "414," this generation's phone freaks, who break into computer systems for thrills — although, as the inadvertent alteration of some Sloan-Kettering records suggests, they, too, can do considerable harm. Far more dangerous are those seeking riches or revenge.

The computer has become a modern-day vault, from which as much as $5 million a year is stolen. Disgruntled employees with ready access to a firm's computer may also sabotage entire record systems out of spite. In one instance, former employees of Collins Food International planted a "bomb" in the computer program, designed to wipe out inventory and payroll data for 400 fast-food franchises.

The law is just beginning to catch up with this new form of crime. Twenty-one states have adopted legislation making it a crime to tamper with or steal from computer systems, and Congress is considering similar legislation.

These new laws will help — but not enough, since many firms, fearful of worrying their stockholders and making their systems appear even more inviting targets, are unwilling to report computer break-ins. Moreover, such crimes are hard to solve even if reported, because the intruders can usually cover their tracks.

What's called for most is a second generation of computer-consciousness. In the early years of what's now termed high technology, the chief concern was to get people over their skittishness about computers by making access as easy as "open sesame," but for those most likely to use computers, that fear has been substantially allayed. It's therefore time to accept the need to equip computer systems with the most sophisticated security packages that are now coming onto the market. Making break-ins harder will, unfortunately, make computers more "user-skeptical" and less convenient, but that's what it will take to cut off this electronic version of robbery at the pass.

Big banks depositing havoc

WASHINGTON — Congress has voted a massive $8.4 billion transfusion into the International Monetary Fund for the incredible purpose of saving the big banks from their own reckless greed.

Jack Anderson

The banks have been laying out high-interest loans to Soviet-bloc and Third World nations that have neither the will nor the wherewithal to repay them. When things go wrong, the bankers simply come to Congress, silk hats in hand, begging for help to overcome the predictable results of their greed.

The bailout money is funneled through the International Monetary Fund, which has assured Congress the $8.4 billion will be enough to save the impoverished countries and the banks that back them from financial collapse.

But in its internal papers, the Fund acknowledges that more money will be needed. States one document, stamped "Confidential": "It would appear necessary for the Fund to increase its recourse to borrowing. Further borrowing would appear necessary for the two-year period after the quota increases...."

The big banks, meanwhile, have become governments unto themselves, with financial tentacles and political allegiances that extend beyond any national boundaries. So great is the financial power of these multinational, multibillion-dollar banks that their decisions can have drastic effects on the world economy.

One banking giant — Citicorp — at least is evenhanded in its contempt for national governments. It has engaged in questionable transactions, which have cost some Western governments millions of dollars. Yet no government has laid a restraining hand on the bank.

Citicorp officials deny any widespread violations of national banking laws, and claim they took active measures to prevent abuses. But evidence gathered by my associate Donald Goldberg from Securities and Exchange Commission reports, congressional files and Citicorp's own records, paints a different picture. Here's the story:

In 1976, a Citicorp employee named David Edwards discovered that the bank was maneuvering around European currency regulations by "parking" huge amounts of money with the Citicorp branch in Nassau. The profits from this were enormous, if of dubious legality.

Citicorp denied Edwards' allegations and fired him. He took his evidence to the SEC, but despite a staff recommendation for enforcement action, the commission declined to take on Citicorp.

During the various investigations, Citicorp withheld significant evidence, including 1977 legal opinions by its own lawyers in Europe.

The bank's attorney in Switzerland, for example, wrote: "The shifting of profits by transactions which are not normal arm's-length transactions may constitute a violation of Swiss tax legislation, particularly if it results in a reduction of taxable profit in Switzerland."

The bank's attorney in Italy warned: "The parking of foreign exchange positions outside of Italy violates (certain Italian laws) because it is intended to create, as indeed it does create, foreign exchange assets and availabilities outside the Italian Republic."

The lawyer's warning stated the penalties that were possible: prison sentences of up to five years for responsible bank officials.

In Switzerland, Citicorp's auditing firm sent a letter to the Swiss banking commission at the same time bank officials were denying Edwards' charges.

"The foreign exchange position of the bank was incorrectly shown, the profits not correctly stated, and it cannot be stated that the accounting records have been properly maintained," the letter read.

As Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., noted in an internal memo to members of a House subcommittee, "Citicorp was thus in possession of legal opinions...(indicating) that the parking transaction would constitute violations of various European countries' currency and tax laws."

How extensive the questionable transactions were is anyone's guess. The SEC staff found some $46 million in profits traceable to such deals. The Swiss auditor identified $15 billion in questionable transactions; the profit from these could have been hundreds of millions of dollars.

NUMBERS GAME: Ronald Reagan promised he would reduce the number of federal employees when he reached the White House. But like other presidents who have tilted at the civil service windmill, Reagan has failed. The number of permanent civilian employees has increased by 20,000 under the Reagan administration — from 2,410,000 to 2,430,000.

This hasn't kept the Office of Personnel Management from claiming success, though. OPM figures show a reduction of more than 113,000 federal workers by the administration.

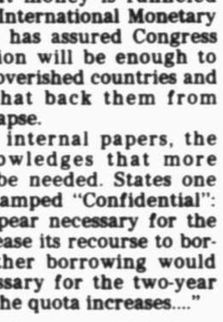

How is this possible? An OPM spokesman explained to my reporter Bill Bartman that the figures don't include the Defense Department, which is "undergoing a buildup," or the U.S. Postal Service, which is a "quasi-governmental" agency. Both the Pentagon and the post office have been hiring substantially more workers in the past two years.

War Powers Act best unused

WASHINGTON — President Nixon was wrong to veto the War Powers Act, which Congress passed over his veto in 1973. A veto was too good for it. He should have mailed it back to Capitol Hill unsigned, with postage due, and with a note saying that although it always is entertaining to read Congress' opinions about constitutional construction, the Constitution clearly vests in the president the power to control the armed forces.

George F. Will

This act, the most praised and foolish legislation of the 1970s, is in the news because Marines are in Lebanon. The act states that when forces are introduced into hostilities or "where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated by the circumstances," the president must within 48 hours report to Congress the "circumstances necessitating" the deployment, the "constitutional and legislative authority" for it, and the "estimated scope and duration" of it. Within 60 days, the deployment must end if (section 5b) Congress does not approve it or (section 5c) Congress mandates an end by concurrent resolution.

But section 5c was splendidly erased in June when the Supreme Court declared such legislative vetoes unconstitutional. And surely if it is unconstitutional for Congress to control executive action by concurrent resolution, it is doubly unconstitutional for Congress to do so by inaction (5b).

The requirement that the president report "circumstances necessitating" a deployment, and estimate the "scope and duration" of a deployment could require disclosure of calculations best left secret.

The requirement that the president stipulate the "constitutional and legislative authority" for acting is odd. Why? Because elsewhere, the act decrees — contrary to common sense and common experience during two centuries — that introduction of forces into hostilities or dangerous situations is legitimate only under a declaration of war, or after an attack, or with specific legislative authority.

The notion that, absent a declaration of war or an attack, specific legislative authority is required is just a bald and singularly implausible assertion.

Should an occasion arise for contesting the constitutionality of what remains of the act, surely the Court will note this: Congress' novel interpretation of the president's powers as commander-in-chief is rendered implausible by hundreds of episodes, from the Republic's earliest days to today. Either Congress was wrong in its 1973 venture into constitutional construction, or most presidents — including all the liberal pinups, from Teddy Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson through FDR and JFK — have behaved unconstitutionally.

Since 1973, two presidents have reported to Congress about five uses of U.S. forces: the evacuations from Da Nang, Phnon Penh and Saigon, the Mayaguez affair, and the Iran rescue fiasco. But all five reports were after the fact. Ford merely "took note of" the act, and Carter said only that his report was "consistent with" the act. This indicates that the act's requirement of prior consultation with Congress will generally be ineffectual.

The act was ostensibly designed to prevent "another Vietnam." Actually it was a limp attempt at a retroactive alibi. By passing the act, Congress fertilized the myth that Vietnam was a "presidential war" for which Congress had no responsibility. Actually, every soldier sent to, and every bullet fired in, Vietnam was paid for by Congress, which rejected measures that would have ended U.S. involvement.

Given the inevitable ambiguities and uncertainties and the necessary secrecies of international affairs, the language of the act — consultation "in every possible instance"; where "imminent" involvement in "hostilities" is "clearly" indicated — the act institutionalizes disingenuousness. It is doing so today.

The administration says the Marines are "equipped" for combat and are authorized to "take care of themselves with vigor" but are not in combat or a situation where imminent involvement in hostilities is clearly indicated. Why? Because they are involved in self-defense. Congress is queasy about pressing the president to trigger this blunderbuss act. Hence Congress is tolerating an increasingly odd fiction — the pretense that the terms of the lamentable act do not fit the situation in Lebanon.

The nation needs a president who will lead by explaining that the act is a dangerous and unconstitutional fiasco. President Reagan's passivity regarding the act (and the Korean airline massacre, and Soviet SALT violations, and the suffocation of Poland, and the Western credit subsidizing the East bloc, and the Helsinki agreements charade, and...) has won the praise of commentators who did not support him in 1980 and will not in 1984. It may have made a second term easier to win. It certainly has made a second term seem, to some who did support him in 1980, less urgent.

Send $33 or Nancy packs china!

The Republicans are using President Reagan's reluctance to announce he will run again to their advantage. A friend, Bill Downey from Santa Barbara, just got a letter from Senator Richard Lugar, chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee.

Art Buchwald

It said in part "....I just returned from the White House after meeting with the president .... He told me how very worried he was about the outcome of the 33 Senate races that will be gearing up soon.

"He wondered aloud whether that Congressional support would be there if he ran for a second term .... It was then I realized that the president might decide not to run if he thought we were going to lose the only sure support he can count on — our Republican Senate Majority."

Lugar wrote he desperately needed Bill's help to make the president decide to run. "Send President Reagan the special ballot I've enclosed personally urging him to run — before the press, Tip O'Neill and the rest of his enemies convince him not to.... Back your confidence with your contribution of $33. Why $33? Because that's $1 for each Senate seat up for election next year."

The senator from Indiana said he was only sending the ballot to truly dedicated Americans like Bill. "Patriots who'll back up their commitment with their hard-earned dollars.

"Imagine our president's sigh of relief when I personally deliver your ballot to him at the White House. Your personal message and contribution will definitely give him the strength and determination that he'll need to decide to run again."

Lugar ends the letter by saying, "It's in your hands now William L. Downey. I urgently need to hear from you. Tomorrow may be too late."

Well, I wish I could report my friend Bill responded to Senator Lugar's passionate appeal affirmatively. But he feels if the president needs Downey's blessing, plus $33, before he makes up his mind to run for re-election, maybe Reagan shouldn't go for it.

Bill felt very bad about it. But as he wrote me when he enclosed the Lugar letter, "Thirty-three dollars is exactly the amount of the tax cut the president gave me last year, and I don't see why I have to give it back to him."

Meanwhile back at the White House, Senator Lugar walked into the president's office with a grim look on his face.

"Any word from Downey in Santa Barbara?" the president asked.

Lugar shook his head. "It's been two weeks and not a peep."

"Well," said the president, "that does it. I'm not going to run in 1984."

"Please reconsider, sir. The letter could have gone astray, or maybe it went to the wrong Downey. Why don't you call him?"

The president shook his head. "It's no use, Dick. I've been talking to Tip O'Neill, the press and the rest of my enemies, and they've convinced me not to run for a second term. If true patriots like Downey won't send in a lousy $33 so I can have a Republican Senate, I might as well go back to the ranch."

"I'll go out and talk to Downey myself. Maybe I wasn't clear in my letter how important his check was in making your decision."

The president looked out the window at the Rose Garden. "It's a waste of time. When Downey makes up his mind, nobody can change it. You've done all you can, Dick. I'm not going to announce for another term if the people don't want me."

"Please Mr. President, you have to think of the country first. There are millions of people out there who are praying you will run again. We could still win the Senate without Downey's $33."

"How?"

"I'll write a letter to another dedicated American."

"Do what you want, Dick. But I'm going to tell Nancy to start packing the china."

Very few of us have ever been to China, but that doesn't mean you can't still enjoy Chinese food. Many West Texans enjoy Chinese dishes as much as or more than Mexican food. Sometimes, though, it is really hard to get into the mood for Chinese, because everywhere you go is the same. Every time you step into a restaurant in West Texas, you still feel the West Texas atmosphere. If you are in a West Texas atmosphere, how can you dine Chinese? Well, now you can enjoy delicious, authentic Chinese food in a warm, cozy, Oriental atmosphere at Imperial Gardens.

Imperial Gardens is now open for your dining pleasure, and extends a warm invitation for you to step into the world of Oriental dining tonight! They offer the perfect blend of China and West Texas, which is something everyone will enjoy. At Imperial Gardens, the decor is contemporary Oriental, the food delicious, the atmosphere very relaxed, warm, and cozy, and you will get excellent service from authentic Oriental waiters.

Imperial Gardens serves only Chinese food, and has probable the largest variety of Chinese dishes available in this area. True West Texans will enjoy the hot and spicy Szechuan or Hunan food, but others can order the not-so-spicy Cantonese style. Authentic Oriental waiters will help guide you through the menu with hints and suggestions. The menu does include descriptions of many of the dishes, and also specifies which are hot and spicy.

The menu at Imperial Gardens includes everything from egg rolls to sweet and sour dishes, soups, beef dishes, pork dishes, and poultry. Also, vegetarian entrees, seafood, noodles, rice, egg fu yung, chow mein, and special conbinations of other items. In addition, gourmet dinners for two or more are available, as well as family dinners for two or more. Imperial Gardens serves quality beer and wines, and offers special Polynesian drinks.

West Texas has long deserved an authentic Chinese restaurant, and now Imperial Gardens has arrived. Lee and Yem Eaton, owners of Imperial Gardens, have brought West Texas the perfect atmosphere, combined with some of the best Chinese food you can find anywhere, even in China! If you are one of the many Chinese food lovers, do yourself a favor and go to Imperial Gardens tonight. If you have never tried Chinese food, or have not liked the Chinese food you have tasted, Imperial Gardens will make a believer out of you! Imperial Gardens is open 11 am to 10 pm, Monday through Thursday, 11 am to 10 pm, Friday and Saturday 11 am to 11 pm, and 12 noon to 9 pm Sunday. ## Inmate fears execution will not be stayed

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A Texas death row inmate already twice spared from the executioner's needle says he fears his scheduled October date with death is "going to happen this time."

James D. Autry

James David Autry, 28, was convicted of capital murder in October 1980 for fatally shooting a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

Prosecutors claimed he shot Shirley Drouet, 43, between the eyes rather than pay $2.70 for a six-pack of beer. He had been ordered to die on Dec. 17 and Feb. 21, but both executions were blocked.

In June, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld Autry's conviction and death sentence. Autry's attorney, Charles Carver, has said he would ask the U.S. Supreme Court to stay the execution and review the case.

Autrey said he hopes the Supreme Court will stay his scheduled Oct. 5 execution.

"I hope they do," said Autry, the only one of 178 Texas inmates under the death sentence with a scheduled execution date. "But it looks like it's going to happen this time."

Charlie Brooks, a Fort Worth man convicted of 1976 slaying of an auto mechanic, was the first U.S. convict put to death by injection. He died Dec. 7.

Autrey said he was told by law officers who last month transported him to Beaumont for the setting of his execution date that his appeal was being rushed through the courts because a brother allegedly had threatened State District Judge Leonard Giblin.

"They said that my brother told them that if they killed me, he would kill the judge. But I don't believe my brother would do that," Autry said.

Giblin admitted he had indirectly received a threat in December, but said it had no bearing on Autry's case.

Prosecutors claimed that Mrs. Drouet was shot to death April 20, 1980, while Autry and a companion, John Alton Sandifer, robbed the Sak-and-Pak convenience store.

The pair then fled the store with the six-pack of beer, but became concerned they would be recognized by two customers and returned to the store, prosecutors said.

Joseph Broussard, who discovered Mrs. Drouet's body, also was killed. Anthanasios Svarhasa, a Greek sailor, was shot and suffered permanent brain damage.

Man's remains identified 10 years after death

HOUSTON (AP) — After an 11-year search for her missing son, a Houston area woman has discovered he was one of 27 young male victims of a homosexual torture-murder ring in the area in the early 1970s.

Jo Anne Kepner, 47, identified the remains of her 19-year-old son, Richard Alan Kepner, more than 10 years after his skeleton was unearthed from a remote beach east of Houston.

"I had no idea where my son was for nearly 11 years," Mrs. Kepner said Wednesday.

Mrs. Kepner connected her son's disappearance and the murders after viewing a Houston television news report's update on the killings. She did not connect her son with the murders earlier because she thought the victims were younger than he, she said.

Kepner's skeletal remains were identified positively Tuesday by means of a comparison of dental records.

The autopsy report lists the cause of Kepner's death as strangulation, the same as for all the other youths' deaths between September 1970 and August 1973.

Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, who has been a medical examiner in Harris County for 26 years, said the Kepner case is the longest he can remember.

Nurse accused of murdering child could get new date

KERRVILLE (AP) — Vocational nurse Genene Jones, accused of injecting seven children with a powerful muscle relaxant, could get a new trial date and a new attorney today during a pretrial hearing here.

Ms. Jones, 32, has been scheduled to be tried beginning Oct. 17 on a charge of murder by injection.

One of her court-appointed attorneys, William Chenault of San Antonio, has said he will ask State District Judge Murray Jordan for more time to prepare for trial.

Her second court-appointed attorney, Joe Grady Tuck of Kerrville, has expressed a desire to be dismissed from the case now that the trial has been moved to Georgetown on a change of venue.

Ms. Jones, released from jail after posting $225,000 bond, is charged with the Sept. 17, 1982, death of 15-month-old Chelsea Ann McClellan. She also is accused of causing serious injuries to six other children by injecting them with the paralyzing drug succinylcholine.

All seven children were treated at the Kerrville clinic where Ms. Jones was employed.

A Bexar County grand jury is investigating a string of suspicious infant deaths at the pediatric intensive care unit of San Antonio's Medical Center Hospital from 1978 to early 1982.

Ms. Jones was employed at the hospital during the period under investigation, but has denied any wrongdoing.

She also has appeared to testify before the Bexar County panel.

Producers of ABC's network news magazine "20-20" traveled to Kerrville this week to set up interviews with principals in the case, but Chenault said he is opposed to his client appearing on the show.

Baby dies

HOUSTON (AP) — A 3½-month-old premature baby who weighed only 2 pounds, 5 ounces has died a hospital spokeswoman said.

Melissa Michelle Maurer died Tuesday night from medical complications at Hermann Hospital, said spokeswoman Joan Carroza. Melissa weighed 18 ounces at birth.

Religious policy established

RICHARDSON (AP) — School officials in this north Dallas suburb have barred mention of student religious groups from official school publications and announcements in what is described as an attempt to ensure a separation of church and state.

Arzell Ball, superintendent of the Richardson Independent School District, said Wednesday that the new policy prohibits announcements of meetings over public address systems.

The policy also bars publication of other information dealing with religious groups in school newspapers, yearbooks, student activity handbooks and student council leaflets, according to Ball.

Students may still advertise meetings by posting notices on student activity bulletin boards, Ball said.

The policy was established, Ball said, after a woman who identified only as a "Jewish mother" complained that she and several neighbors were upset because the student council at Pearce High School had distributed a flyer on the first day of school advertising the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

"To advertise the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, in my opinion, is illegal," Ball said. "It also makes non-Christian students feel uncomfortable, unwanted, in that they are being discriminated against."

Tom Landry, head coach of the National Football League's Dallas Cowboys and chairman of the board of directors of the FCA's Dallas chapter, said he was disappointed by the decision.

"It's a shame that this has happened," Landry said. "The FCA is a very positive force in the community, but if somebody complained, like the Jewish mother did, then the superintendent has to do what he thinks is right, and if that's it, then we'll abide by what he wants.

"I'm not saying I'm agreeing with the policy," Landry said. "All I'm saying is that we be responsible and do what he wants us to do."

Ball said that many people tend to become emotional about the church-state issue, but that the incident illustrates the controversy between "the two sacred laws" in the Constitution that concern freedom of expression and the separation of church and state.

Pass-happy Bulldogs seek upset over No. 5 Estacado

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The Midland High Bulldogs will come flying into today's Thursday Night Special against the highly touted Lubbock Estacado Matadors at Memorial Stadium with visions of long bombing raids. And they had best produce some productive scoring plays.

Estacado is the second straight Class 4A teams the Bulldogs have faced. They lost the first battle, 25-20, to the Andrews Mustangs. Estacado is ranked No. 5 in the state and came into Memorial last year to whip the Bulldogs by a 27-0 count.

This one could be a 45-40 affair, and if you can figure out who will have the ball last, you might be able to predict a winner.

PLAYING A 5A school is not a new experience for the Matadors. They have already beaten Plainview and Big Spring, and that rugged schedule is by the design of Matador head coach Louis Kelley.

"We get pretty well beat up playing the 5A schools, but it really helps us in our district. We've scheduled three 5A schools and you always just hope you can come out of that with a 2-1 record. We also scrimmaged Lubbock Monterey and Roswell, both 5A schools. It would be nice to have a 3-0 mark this year," Kelley said.

"But I think this is going to be a tough one. I was kind of hoping that they would beat Andrews so they wouldn't be so keyed up for us. I think that's what happened last year. I've never seen a high school team that has so many fine receivers and they use them all. I guarantee you, if I had those kids, I'd be throwing the football too."

ESTACADO HAS its state ranking to play for while the Bulldogs need to establish some momentum heading into next week's kickoff of District 4-5A play against Odessa Permian, the No. 3 ranked Class 5A school.

"This is the third team in a row that we have played that was in the playoffs a year ago," noted MHS boss Pat Culpepper. "And I think Estacado is a better team than they were a year ago and last year they were better than we wanted to see.

"Estacado is tremdously quick on defense and that will pose some problems for our offense, but defensively is where we are going to have to have a tremendous amount of improvement over last week. If the kitchen is on fire, you need to bring on the water."

Kelley doesn't think the state ranking has much to do with this game. "I don't think our kids even know they are ranked. We never talk about it."

Never in the history of Midland High have the Bulldogs owned such a potent passing attack. Quarterback James Welborn has thrown for 508 yards in two games, five going for six points. Receivers Allan Foret and Todd Shiplet have been the main targets. Foret may have already captured the receiving title for 1983 with 284 yards on 14 catches in two games. He has scored three times. Shiplet has 10 catches for 148 yards, one of which was a touchdown.

However, MHS had trouble running the ball last week against Andrews and has only 177 yards rushing in two games.

ON THE other hand, Lubbock Estacado owns a powerful ground attack headed by tailback Terry Upshaw. The Matadors will be missing wingback Ricky Collins for the second week in a row because of injury.

"Ricky is our most experienced back and has great speed. He broke a punt return all the way against Plainview, but we will hold him out another week," said Kelley.

Midland High should get some defensive help this week as defensive lineman Jimmy Essman, honorable mention All-District last year, returns from an ankle injury. He was missed against Andrews last week.

Center John David Munn is the stalwart of the MHS offensive line, which has given Welborn time to throw this year. Guards Jeff Daily and Gil Ward and tackles Arthur Valencia and Steve Lindsey have proved their worth.

Defensively, Estacado is headed by middle linebacker Dwight Petties, who is one of the best around.

Few, however, expect this game to be a defensive struggle. Both seem to own scoring punch.

1938 — Lloyd Waner and his brother, Paul, of the Pittsburgh Pirates hit consecutive home runs for the only time in a major-league game. Both came against Cliff Melton of the New York Giants. Lloyd's homer was the last of his career.

1963 — The three Alou brothers — Felipe, Matty and Jesus — played alongside each other in the outfield at the same time in the San Francisco Giants' 13-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

1969 — Steve Carlton of the St. Louis Cardinals set a major-league record for a nine-inning game by striking out 19 batters, but Ron Swoboda hit a pair of two-run homers off him to lead the World Series-bound New York Mets to a 4-3 victory.

Today's birthdays: Kansas City Royals pitcher Gaylord Perry is 45. Milwaukee Brewers coach Dave Garcia is 63.

Brewers fading in pennant crunch

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The Milwaukee Brewers soared to the top of the American League last year on the strength of their hefty hitters. Now, they are plummeting in the AL East because of a severe power shortage.

The Brewers, who came within one game of winning the 1982 World Series, hit 216 home runs last season while leading the league in runs and total bases. But their vaunted attack has sputtered in the second half of the season — only 44 homers in 71 games — and, in the last week, they've scored a total of nine runs in seven games, the last six of which they've lost.

Milwaukee fell 4-1 to the New York Yankees Wednesday night and stands 10½ games behind first-place Baltimore in the East. The Brewers' pitching has been solid recently and their hurlers surrendered only seven runs in three games with New York, yet lost all three.

"Good pitching and no hitting," lamented Manager Harvey Kuenn. "It's one repeat performance after the other. One wasted pitching effort after the other. We've not hit so many nights in a row, it's tiresome. Maybe we're trying too hard.

"We're running out of alternatives. I've tried extra batting practice, I've tried no BP, I've tried shaking up the lineup, I've tried everything. I'm open to suggestions."

Elsewhere in the AL, it Baltimore defeated Boston 5-0, Detroit edged Cleveland 5-0, Kansas City topped California 1-0 in 14 innings, Minnesota trimmed Chicago 1-0, Texas downed Oakland 4-2 and Toronto beat Seattle 4-3.

Ron Guidry threw a five-hitter and Ken Griffey homered to pace the Yankees. Guidry is tied with Detroit's Jack Morris for the AL lead in complete games with 18 and has won six straight.

"I haven't been overpowering," said Guidry, who credited his teammates for his fine record. "They give me a chance to win and I give them a chance to win. Most of the games I've pitched, we haven't been out of it at any time."

Orioles 5, Red Sox 0

As if the Orioles didn't have enough going for them with an eight-game winning streak — Baltimore has won 19 of its last 22 and has a 5½-game lead over Detroit in the East — they apparently have one of their former aces back on track.

Dennis Martinez hadn't started since Aug. 6 or pitched in nearly a month. But he combined with Sammy Stewart for a six-hitter and Gary Roenicke smacked a two-run homer to lead Baltimore.

Martinez entered the game with a 5.31 ERA. In his previous 14 starts, he was 2-9 with a 6.59 ERA.

"I felt we needed to get him out of the rotation quick," said Altobelli. "It seems like a long time away."

Liberty rallies to take opening win in Cup

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Liberty and skipper Dennis Conner outsailed Australia II and its winged keel Wednesday, winning the first race in the 25th defense of the America's Cup as the challenger suddenly lost speed on the final turn.

It was the race anticipated all summer, and despite the final margin of 1 minute, 10 seconds, for much of the overcast afternoon it was one of the most intense battles in Cup history.

There were six lead changes, and the predicted patterns didn't hold. The American defenders outsailed Australia II on the pivotal fourth leg, upwind where the challenger's keel was supposed to be an advantage. But the Aussies caught Liberty on the fifth leg, downwind, where the defender's speed was supposed to be the difference.

The race was decided heading for the sixth and final leg of the 24.3-mile course.

The two boats were engaged in a fierce gybing duel, with Liberty ahead at the fifth mark, when Australia II veered off and stopped almost dead in the water as her crew struggled to drop the spinnaker for the race to the finish.

By the time the Aussies recovered, Conner was 35 seconds ahead, too much for Australian skipper John Bertrand to make up over the last 4.05 miles.

The time for the winner was 3 hours, 25 minutes, 45 seconds. That put Liberty up 1-0 in the best-of-seven series, which Conner has predicted he will win in four straight.

But with the next race scheduled today, there still is no definitive answer to the question that has preoccupied the yachting world all summer: Will the winged keel, which the host New York Yacht Club tried vainly to have outlawed, be enough of an advantage for the Australians to break the 132-year U.S. monopoly on the America's Cup?

On the first day at least, the answer was no. The keel let the Australians turn faster, but it didn't make them sail faster. And the weather — 18-knot winds and choppy seas — worked against the keel, which operates best in 7- to 10-knot winds.

Conner's victory marked the 10th straight Cup in which the Americans have won the first race and ran their record to 79-10 in 25 defenses of yachting's most prized trophy.

Superior sailing, not design, won Wednesday.

The winged keel enabled Australia II to point higher on its tacks, but the shorter turns weren't enough. Liberty was faster. The challenger had the edge sailing into the wind, but the defender had the edge downwind.

Australia II, called the most serious threat yet to take away the Cup, was across the starting line three seconds in front. It stretched that to an eight-second lead after the first of six legs, despite falling back at one point with a mainsail problem. At the second mark, it was a 10-second lead for the Australians.

The ruby-hulled Liberty made that up and then some on the third leg, where the winds were blowing across the port bow. Conner, who had been forced too wide on the first turn, caught some of Australia II's air on the second rounding and took the lead.

Nearing the third mark, the Aussies lost more time after being forced to sail more downwind, and Liberty took a 16-second lead.

The fourth leg was into the wind again, supposedly to Australia II's liking, but it didn't help the challenger. By tacking carefully and taking full advantage of wind shifts, Conner upped the lead to 28 seconds going around the fourth mark and heading downwind.

4-5A powers start tripleheader schedule

If this week's high school football schedule doesn't excite you, you'll have to double your pleasure at the gum counter.

For the first time since Midland has had two high schools in town, Tall City fans can see both teams play at Memorial Stadium on consecutive nights. Grab up the kids, the wife and a couple of neighbors and make a weekend of it.

Midland Lee fans can see Midland High tonight against No. 5 ranked Lubbock Estacado and Midland High fans will have a chance to see No. 8 ranked Lee against El Paso Eastwood. It's a rare opportunity to compare your favorite team.

AND IF two nights of high school football just isn't enough, you might think about catching No. 3 ranked Odessa Permian on Saturday night over in Odessa's Ratliff Stadium against O.D. Wyatt, a team that has scored 58 points this year in two games.

Just think about it. James Welborn to Allan Foret on Thursday, Isaac Garnett and Walter Jones on Friday and Britt Hager on Saturday. What more could you ask for?

All of these games are big contests since District 4-5A play begins next week. Pat Culpepper and Spike Dykes have only this last shot to prepare their respective teams for the big Odessa-Midland weekend next week. If memory serves, that was the "Midland Massacre" of 1982, a weekend that helped keep both Midland schools out of the playoffs.

The District 4-5A race is going to be a heated affair this year. Just look at the state rankings. Permian is ranked third, San Angelo fourth and Lee eighth. Odessa High is unbeaten and Midland High has shown an offensive passing attack that can test the best of them. Big Spring has also been impressive.

BUT IT will be interesting to see how Midland turns out for the two games this week at Memorial Stadium. If there is a good gate, there is always the possibility that some other teams might consider playing a Thursday-Friday date in Midland. After all, the visitors take home half the gate.

It's also a first for MHS and Lee coaches, who can see both teams in the same week. MHS' Culpepper, however, seems to have the biggest advantage in this regard since he can also see Permian, his next opponent, on Saturday.

Dykes will have to miss the Odessa High-Hobbs game Friday night in Odessa since his Rebels have their own worries to consider, but that probably won't keep him from worrying about next week after what the Bronchos did to his Rebs a year ago and what Charles Hunter did last week (287 yards rushing.)

The Bulldogs will also have a long week to prepare for Permian, who will have a short week to prepare for the Bulldogs. OHS and Lee will be on the same footing in that regard.

The Thursday-Friday-Saturday format is a big edge for the Permian Basin sports fan, but it may spoil the routine for the teams involved. That will also be looked at by the coaches this week.

ESTACADO HAS made a living on Thursday night victories. The 4A Matadors defeated Class 5A Big Spring last Thursday and play many Thursday-Saturday games during the year.

Estacado coach Louis Kelley says it doesn't make much difference if you get saddled with a short or long week because of a Thursday game. "It's all in the mind. We haven't had any problems playing on a Saturday and even coming back on a Thursday. Sometimes that's our best game," Kelley said.

"I know one thing, the Lee people ought to come out and see that kid (Welborn) throw the football. I saw him against Andrews and couldn't believe it."

Eastwood is 0-2 on the year and lost to Monahans, 16-12. Lee defeated Monahans last week by a 31-0 count. Eastwood's other loss has come to El Paso power Coronado, who gave Permian a tough contest.

So, let the show begin. I just wish it would never end.

Philly sweeps Expos; hold first in NL East dogfight

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Len Matuszek was recently recalled by the Philadelphia Phillies from the minor leagues. He doesn't want to go back, and made some points for himself against the Montreal Expos.

"It's got to make you feel good when they run you out there in September in the heat of a pennant race," said Matuszek, a key figure in Wednesday night's 9-5 and 5-0 doubleheader sweep of Montreal.

Matuszek had two hits in the first game and a three-run homer in the second as the Phillies moved into first place by one game over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who beat the Chicago Cubs 6-3. The Expos fell into third place, 1½ games behind the Phillies.

Matuszek, called up from Portland of the Pacific Coast League, says he has been shuttled between the majors and minors more times than he cares to count. "I saw a lot of players going up a lot quicker than me," said Matuszek, who says he had become discouraged over the last five years.

But this year he made up his mind to maintain a "right mental attitude" and show what he could do."I felt if the Phillies didn't want me, some other teams would," noted the first baseman.

In other NL action, Houston beat Los Angeles 4-2, Cincinnati stopped Atlanta 6-4, St. Louis edged New York 2-1 and San Diego whipped San Francisco 7-4.

Mike Schmidt hit a two-run homer in each game, giving him an NL-leading 36 for the season. His first round-tripper came in the fourth inning of the opener after a two-run blast by Joe Morgan, easing Steve Carlton to his 298th career victory.

Carlton notched No. 298 on his sixth attempt and boosted his season record to 13-15. The all-time major-league strikeout leader with 3,683, Carlton fanned eight and walked four in eight innings before getting last-inning relief help from Al Holland.

In the second game, Schmidt hit a two-run shot in the first inning and Matuszek slammed a three-run homer in the third for his first in the major leagues. Both came off loser Ray Burris, 4-7.

Pirates 6, Cubs 3

In Pittsburgh, Jim Morrison had three hits, including a two-run double, as the Pirates beat Chicago.

John Candelaria, 14-8, blanked the Cubs on six hits through six innings before leaving with stomach cramps. Cecilio Guante and Kent Tekulve finished up for the Pirates.

Candelaria, who has completed only two of his 31 starts this season, now has a 15-4 lifetime record against the Cubs, including an 11-1 mark at Three Rivers Stadium and a 3-0 record this season.

"He pitched very well, considering he hasn't been feeling well," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner of Candelaria. "He's had something like ulcers, and he's been taking some stuff for it."

Astros 4, Dodgers 2

In Houston, Phil Garner slammed a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lift the Astros over Los Angeles.

Loser Bob Welch, 14-12, walked Jose Cruz to open the seventh. After Ray Knight struck out, Garner lofted Welch's 2-1 pitch over the left-field wall for his 14th home run of the year.

Despite the loss, the Dodgers held their four-game lead in the NL West over Atlanta. Houston pulled within 7½ games of the Dodgers.

"I was glad to see Phil get the key blow. He's a little overdue," said Houston Manager Bob Lillis. "It was a must game for us."

Reds 6, Braves 4

In Cincinnati, Nick Esasky hit a grand slam off reliever Steve Bedrosian to highlight a five-run seventh-inning rally that carried the Reds over the Braves.

Dale Murphy slugged a pair of two-run homers for all the Braves' offense.

"I was looking for something hard to hit," Esasky said of his first major-league grand slam. "I thought whatever he'd throw he would throw hard. he pitch before was outside. I pulled off of it and missed it.

Cardinals 2, Mets 1

In New York, Darrell Porter had three hits, including his 14th homer of the season in the sixth inning, as St. Louis beat the Mets.

Neil Allen, 11-12, pitched 5 1-3 innings for the victory, while Bruce Sutter, the fourth Cardinal pitcher, was credited with his 19th save.

Tom Seaver, 8-14, was the loser and worked seven innings before being lifted for a pinch hitter.

Padres 7, Giants 4

In San Diego, Tony Gwynn extended his hitting streak to 22 games with three singles and drove in two runs to lead the Padres over San Francisco.

Third week action a family feud as district nears

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

Six area teams keep it in the West Texas family this Friday by playing each other, featuring the season's first Championship, a homecoming (of sorts) and something old, something new.

The Championship is in McCamey, where Rankin's Red Devils and the Badgers battle for Upton County bragging rights. So far each team has strayed from the pre-season predictions - McCamey has been better than expected, Rankin has been worse.

McCamey's opening win at Iraan immediately gained the Badgers some respect. After a 36-0 workout against the Midland Junior Varsity, McCamey looks ready for district early. Rankin, on the other hand, has been held scoreless this year and has suffered back-to-back crushers, 46-0 to Eldorado and 29-0 against Sterling City last week.

The Badgers are an obvious choice to be 3-0 by Saturday.

For Crane's Golden Cranes, Friday will be home sweet home day. After surviving Reagan County 12-7 on opening night, the Cranes put together a sturdy effort at Marfa, taking the Shorthorns by the short hairs, 28-6. Crane gets a taste of home cooking this week by hosting Stanton. The Buffs dropped a close ball game to Coahoma by a 13-11 count, and will need a strong showing to get back on the winning track. The game itself should look a little like a track meet, in fact. Stanton's wishbone attack heavily emphasizes the run. Crane's newest power source, the Vasquez Voltage duo, has been running wild. Brothers Jim and Joe have produced yards and points with amazing regularity. Fullback Junior Sena chipped in nearly 100 yards last week after being used sparingly against Reagan County.

If Sena produces, Crane could be virtually unstoppable. Stanton will have to score more than two touchdowns to escape the Crane onslaught with a win.

"I had never seen them (the Vasquez brothers) play before," said Crane coach Rickey White. "They're very good football players."

Stanton has been fairly successful against Crane in recent years, but lost last year at home. This Crane team is even better. "Before the year is over," says White, "We're going to be outstanding. We're a surprise team and we have a long way to go, but I'm looking for great things."

Andrews was supposed to be a good team entering 1983. It appears they could be a great one. Talk of great things for the Mustangs is at a premium now in light of Andrews' 25-20 deflating of Midland High.

In Lamesa, there is also some big talking going on. The Tors won for only the second time in three years last week. The result was no fluke. Lamesa rolled over Brownfield, 34-0, to usher in new hope in the initial year of the Clyde Noonkester coaching staff.

Even though Lamesa will host this Friday's affair, Andrews presents a real challenge for the Tors. Quarterback Bill Morrison scampered for over 100 yards against MHS, and has already scored five TD's in two games. Stopping him will be essential to the Lamesa cause.

Lamesa has not had a lot of experience winning ball games, and youthful mistakes will tell the story against Andrews.

Other area games this Friday:

Greenwood at Iraan: The Rangers like to take on all comers, as evidenced by coach Joe Longley's "Second Half" philosophy. Longley has another tough test this week when he leads the rangers into Iraan, but there is no way to call this game. Iraan was a pre-season top ten pick that has been mysterious in losing twice. Greenwood continues to play top notch competition in preparation for district. Longley wants his charges to get grooming against the big boys, but the Rangers will face a mad, disappointed squad Friday. Toss a coin.

Reagan County at Ozona: Ozona lost to Wall last week. Wall is Reagan County's target in district 8-AA, but the Owls know Ozona is good. And they play Ozona first. Reagan County is a step ahead of last year's 0-4-1 start already, but the Owls want more.

Midland Christian at Southland: MCC is searching for win number one this week against the Eagles. So far, MCC has been unable to get the offense untracked in dropping the first two games.

This Week's Area Game: Stanton (1-1) at Crane (2-0).

Tommy John goes 13 scoreless in Royals win

Twins 1, White Sox 0

Minnesota rookie Tim Teufel, who was called up from Toledo on Sept. 1, singled to knock in the only run with none out and the bases loaded in the ninth. The hit snapped a string of 17 scoreless innings by White Sox hurler Britt Burns.

"We were all guessing out there," said Teufel. "They were trying to figure me out and I was trying to figure them out."

Tigers 5, Indians 0

The Tigers have won six straight but can't gain ground on the Orioles. Glenn Abbott, acquired on waivers from Seattle on Aug. 23, befuddled the Indians with an assortment of offspeed pitches, throwing a four-hitter. Alan Trammell scored three times for Detroit.

"From the first time that I walked in here, I felt like I had a job to do," Abbott said. "This is the kind of situation a pitcher dreams about, espocially coming from a team like Seattle. Every game's a pressure game here."

Royals 1, Angels 0

Pinch-hitter Don Slaught singled in Hal McRae, who had tripled with one out in the 14th. Tommy John, 40, blanked the Royals over the opening 13 innings in the longest outing of his 21-year career.

"After the 13th (Manager John) McNamara asked me if I'd had enough, and I had," said John, who earlier this season lost a 2-1, 12-inning decision to Oakland. "I didn't have much left at the end, but my fastball was still moving. In fact, I don't think I threw a breaking ball from the ninth inning on."

Rangers 4, A's 2

Charlie Hough saw his consecutive-scoreless inning streak end at 36. But Larry Parrish provided all the runs Hough needed with a three-run double and a solo homer.

"Oh, I'm certainly not going to shut out team's forever, that's for sure," said Hough. "But I enjoyed it. It was fun."

Blue Jays 4, Mariners 3

Lloyd Moseby pinch-hit a double in a two-run seventh inning as Toronto won its fourth in a row. Reliever Doyle Alexander allowed four hits over the final six innings to pick up his fourth straight victory.

In the ninth, Seattle's John Moses was thrown out at the plate by right fielder Jesse Barfield on Tony Bernazard's double for the final out.

Cowboys-Eagles may need swap

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and Philadelphia Eagles will switch originally scheduled sites of their Oct. 16 and Nov. 6 National Football League games if the Philadelphia Phillies qualify for baseball's World Series, the Cowboys announced Wednesday.

Tootsie meets the villain

Tootsie graces United Way lunch

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

While the Wednesday noon United Way 1983 campaign kickoff included lunch, speeches and entertainment, the climatic event of the program was a special guest appearance — Dorothy Michaels, the character from the movie "Tootsie."

Not actually Dustin Hoffman, but a local Midlander, who costumed himself as a man posing as a woman, or er...whatever... and entertained the crowd Wednesday.

The "soap opera queen" accepted the title "Miss United Way" from Reporter-Telegram publisher George Irish, who was master of ceremonies of the program.

Tootsie gave gracious thanks and began to explain the importance of United Way when "Snidely Cheapskate, (Daryl Ward) part-time villian and full-time penny pincher, said he'd "do everything in my power to keep the pilot companies from reporting what they've raise."

But United Way Vice-Chairman J.T. O'Neill saved the day. Dashing on stage, the "champion of good" rescued Tootsie from the villian by announcing the United Way pilot campaign results.

On a more serious note, United Way Executive Director Bob Cornelius told the crowd of about 600 at the Midland Center Wednesday that the 1983 campaign "will probably be the toughest, most rugged."

Cornelius, who left the ministry 11 years ago to search for a "better way," said there is a way to help those in need — the United Way.

With 20 companies and organizations participating in pilot campaigns, funds pledged totaled $200,115, according to Dan Mendell III, manager of the Mid-Continent Division of Exxon USA and 1983 United Way Campaign Chairman. He added that with other contributions the agency has reached 15 percent, or $250,512 of its goal.

"If the example set by these employee groups is followed throughout the campaign, we will surely raise the 17 percent new money required to meet the needs in Midland in 1984," Mendell said. "Getting this job done is going to take the best efforts of a lot of dedicated people."

Mendell added 27,000 Midlanders were depending on the United Way — "whether we are a big company like Exxon, or a 'mom and pop' store on the corner, it is going to take all of us to achieve our goal this year."

The goal is up 6 percent from last year's, according to Mendell. With 23 agencies, a new agency — Palmer Drug Abuse Program — and four more waiting, Mendell said United Way must raise $1,712,000.

PBRPC approves airport expansion pre-application

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Two grant pre-applications to repair and expand Midland Regional Airport and Lamesa Municipal Airport were given favorable comment Wednesday at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

Other items given the stamp of approval for the Permian Basin included: an application for the formation of a Regional Development Corporation, an annual plan for Area on Aging, an annual plan for the Job Training Partnership Act and a grant application for the Midland Rape Crisis Center.

PBRPC members nodded approval on the grant pre-application from the City of Midland to the Federal Aviation Administration for proposed improvements at Midland Regional Airport.

The $7,074,845 FAA grant with $786,094 in matching funds from the City of Midland will be used for improvements and expansion of the access and service roads to the terminal building, construction of a storm drainage system and construction of access roads to general aviation and airport industrial areas, according to Jerry Tschauner, PBRPC director of planning.

Also, the pre-application includes expanding the auto parking for the terminal building and repair work for certain existing access roads. While federal funds are not available for this part of the construction, Tschauner said the City of Midland is prepared to make-up the difference, bringing the total project cost to about $15 million.

In Dawson County, the City of Lamesa has submitted a pre-application to the Federal Aviation Administration for improvements. The $999,000 project, which includes a matching grant from Lamesa, will be used to extend the main runway, re-surfacing and moving and adding navigation lights, Tschauner said.

In other review and comment, the PBRPC board of directors approved the formation stages of a Certified Development Company Program. An extension of the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, the program would help communities with the expansion of small businesses through providing long-term loans.

According to PBRPC Executive Director Ernie Crawford, the non-profit program would "provide capital funds into the community for projects. SBA (Small Business Administration) will put up 40 percent of a loan, while a bank would loan the remaining."

Harley Reeves, former director of the Permain Basin Health Systems Agency Area 12, said "this program will create jobs. The (PBRPC) board and one to five other individuals, probably bankers, would form the corporation."

Howard County, included in the 17-county region, also is applying to form this type of corporation, said PBRPC member Judge Jack Y. Smith of Big Spring.

Smith said he was concerned about the ramifications of an individual city, Big Spring, and the region, the Permian Basin, applying for the same type of program.

"The Permian Basin needs one," he said. "What will happen to Big Spring. We just don't want to jeopardize Howard County. I'm wearing two hats here, but I tend to go with the region program because Howard County would be included."

Philip J. O'Jibway, SBA district director in Lubbock, advised the PBRPC to give favorable comment to the formation of the program.

"It appears to be a reasonable project," he said. "I'd act on it today. It will take some time."

In other business, the PBRPC approved the Permain Basin Area Agency on Aging plan which was submitted to the Governor's Committee on Aging. The plan, from Oct. 1 through Sept. 30, 1984, outlines services for the 17 county region. The AAA is requesting $776,680 in Title III, Older Americans Act funds, and is contributing $836,143 in a matching grant.

Also, the board considered a resolution approving the Annual Job Training Partnership Act Plan for the Permian Basin. The JTPA is a 21-member private industry council, which will allocate funds for on-the-job training for employees and employers.

The Midland Rape Crisis Center was given favaorable comment for a grant application to the Texas Department of Health for continuation funding. The center, funded 40 percent by United Way, is in its last year of a five-year funding grant.

Students believe debating hones communication skills

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

It was obvious Mike was nervous during his job interview. He was constantly fidgeting. He stammered when the interviewer asked him an easy question, and lost his train of thought in the middle of another answer. He talked softly, all the time realizing he was not projecting a good image of himself.

Susan, who was interviewed after Mike, was just as nervous. But because of her years of debate training in school she was better able to control it, to think clearly and answer questions assertively, fluently and intelligently.

With equal qualifications, who was probably hired for the job?

"Once you learn to debate and are able to handle yourself under pressure situations you feel more prepared and more confident and you feel you can handle anything," said Kathy George, a senior who has been involved in debate since junior high school and has been seriously competing at Midland High for two years.

"I think debate is very, very important because it gives you the ability to communicate on many different levels, which is so important in later life," added Patrick Culp, another MHS senior who has been involved in debate for the past year. "It also keeps you aware of current issues and helps you work with a team."

"It's an excellent trainer of the mind," senior J.J. Baskin agreed. "It makes you think logically, and it makes you more observant."

All three are participants in Stuart Baker's competitive debate class at MHS, which combines a year-long one-credit class with extracurricular debate activities.

"I think it's the most important class that a student can take," asserted R. Zane Harwell, debate instructor at Lee High School, "especially if they're going into any professional field. They learn the skills of research and logic and how to listen to arguments and pick out the flaws."

Debate is defined as a formal contest of skill in reasoned argument, with two teams taking opposite sides of a specific question. Debate students must be prepared to argue for both sides of an issue.

A formal debate consists of an affirmative team arguing for change and a negative team which defends the status quo. A topic is selected at the national level — this year it is criminal court procedures — and different issues within that topic are debated. Issues vary from telephone search warrants to jurors taking notes during trials.

In a "round," the affirmative team begins by making its argument, and both members can speak for eight minutes. The negative team, which does not know until the other team begins what issue will be debated, gets three minutes to question the opponents. The negative team then gets a turn. Then the process is repeated, and the round ends with each of the four participants making a four-minute argument. Each round lasts about 1⅓ hours, and debaters take part in four rounds per tournament.

One judge presides over each round and awards points on the basis of which team argues its case best.

"There's nothing more satisfying than winning a debate round," Baker said. "That's worth all the hours of work you put in."

The debate course is a demanding one. Students usually are not dismissed until 3:30 p.m., a half hour later than their peers. They also attend a three-hour evening session each week, spend time researching topics and organizing material into files, and participate in tournaments every two or three weeks.

"On the average, a student probably puts in two to 10 hours outside class each week, and that doesn't count the weeks we have tournaments," Harwell said.

"You have to put in a lot more time and it involves a lot more thought," than most high school courses, another student, Patric Monaghan, explained. "It's a lot more challenging and you can do a lot more with it."

Federal wildlife investigators testify at hunting trial

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The commercialism of wildlife in West Texas may be or may have been a thriving business, suggested federal wildlife investigator Jim Stinebaugh.

He is the lead investigator into alleged airborne hunting violations in West Texas.

"It's a hard case to make," Stinebaugh said Wednesday after the federal government and the defense had presented about 15 government and two defense witnesses in the trial of Midland helicopter pilot James Clyde "J.C." Short Jr., 35, and Midland-Odessa sport dealer Larry Todd, 30. "You generally have no eye-witnesses," he said, and the offenders are usually of the higher socio-economic status. Witnesses, he suggested, generally are unwilling to testify.

Short and Todd are on trial for conspiracy and other charges relating to alleged violations of the U.S. Airborne Hunting Act.

The government is accusing Todd, who manages the Sportsman's Den shops in Midland and Odessa, with promoting aerial wildlife hunts for fees ranging up to $5,000.

The 12 jurors started deliberating on the Short-Todd case Wednesday afternoon after U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton read them the lengthy charge.

Couples have to work toward successful relationships

So many people are loners in the quest of a compatible companion who's inclined to be intimate at times.

It's not just sex.

It's something to do with sharing lives and sensing completeness, just as the sea and mainland are inseparable. How can one be without the other?

They can't.

But man and woman seem to manage to limp along at half steam and with sputtering engines if they're not in unison.

Behold Midland. It's scattered clusters of islands — the singles — who wonder what's happening to the other singles. Each wonders why the other isn't married or at least isn't dating.

They see each other, but it's like viewing the Venus de Milo or the Mona Lisa at the Louvre. You can look, love, lust after or long for but don't dwell on the unreachable. You'll get the malaise.

Man is a romantic creature. If he's not in bliss, he'll fantasize 'til he's floating in a dream world or plummets to disillusionment. Those not willing to "take a chance" on a companion imagine they're soaring like a lone eagle who can do well without anyone else. But the wind is not the eagle's only sustenance. He'll descend and again trod the earth. The eagle has to work for a living.

Man and woman have to "work" toward their unity. At the onset, they may imagine that their togetherness is a gift from above. Maybe it is. But even a gift has to be maintained and nurtured to endure.

Back in high school and college and in your early making-the-rounds days, your linking up with a fair maiden or an eligible bachelor probably wasn't so difficult. It just seemed to happen.

Now, as you get older and more particular and discerning, your prospective mate likewise gets more selective and finicky.

You (and he or she) may be compatible, but you may never know. Both are still waiting for Mr. Perfect and Miss Dreamboat to rescue the other from imagined or real loneliness.

In an attempt to satisfy their yearning, some people become joiners. They'll go to church more to see what's on the social platter than to worship or to hear what the person at the lecturn has to say or how well the choir is performing or to grow in knowledge.

Others bar hop. They drink to socialize. Their heads swirl to music, booze and make-believe conquests and lovers.

Or if they do link up with someone, the union probably will lack any blessing, and the lonesome-hearted souls will be back playing the jukebox and ordering drinks one more time.

Others fearful of a commitment may divert their sexual energies to other areas — from work to avocations to various trifling escapes.

Now, a lust for life is greatly desired. You ought to be zealous in your endeavors, for you'll get what you put out.

If your life is whole spiritually, mentally and physically, that is a grand state. It really doesn't matter if you're a "loner" or not. Man and woman do complement one another in many respects; there will be both trials and rewards in their relationships.

But a man should first know himself well before he starts searching for a companion to make "everything all right" in his life. The principle is the same for a woman. There first must be a completeness of the inward spirit before a man or woman can reach for another and find a rewarding companionship.

DEATHS

Arnold Scharbauer

A. Scharbauer

Arnold Scharbauer, 78, of 2810 Sentinel St., died early Wednesday at his home following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church Sanctuary with Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Scharbauer was born April 22, 1905, in New York, where he grew up. He moved to Midland from Albany, N.Y., in 1924 and began work for the Scharbauer Cattle Company, living at the 5 Wells Ranch. He was named foreman in 1942, upon the death of Clarence Scharbauer Sr. He later purchased ranches of his own and became an independent rancher at Seminole and Patricia.

He was a member and deacon of the First Baptist Church of Midland and a member of Midland Rotary Club.

Survivors include his wife, Mae Watkins Scharbauer of Midland; two daughters, Mrs. John T. (Martha) Adams of Fort Worth and Mrs. John (Lynn) Collett of Seminole; a sister, Mrs. Harry Lovejoy of Midland; and six grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Foreign Missions of the First Baptist Church.

M. Shelton

Services for Mrs. Margaret Shelton, 87, of 303 E. Nobles, are set for 2 p.m. Saturday at the Macedonia Baptist Church. Burial will follow in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of the Jackson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Shelton died Tuesday night at her daughter's home.

She was born Nov. 20, 1895, in Emory. She married the Rev. D. Shelton, now deceased, in 1916 and has resided in Midland since 1940.

Survivors, all of Midland, include her daughter, Mrs. Frances Bradford; two sons, A.B. Shelton and J.H. Shelton; a cousin she raised as a daughter, Mrs. Ora Mae Chandler; a niece, two nephews, eight grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be William Hall, Freddie Nelms, Leonard R. Johnson, Leonard J. Johnson, John Cooper and Edgar Cook.

Honorary pallbearers will be deacons of the Macedonia Baptist Church.

Stella Jackson

ABILENE — Services for Stella Brannon Jackson, 77, of Abilene, mother of Mrs. Jim (Gloria) Jordan of Midland and Mrs. Van (Glendia) Brown of Big Spring, were to be at 2:30 p.m. today in Caps Baptist Church near Abilene with the Rev. Kenneth Jones, pastor, officiating. Assisting was to be the Rev. E.V. Brooks, retired Baptist minister.

Burial was to be in Shep Cemetery, directed by Elliott-Hamil Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday evening at her home after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Jackson was born Sept. 27, 1905, in Rucker. She was married to R.J. Jackson Nov. 24, 1923, in Ballinger. She moved to Abilene in December 1962 from the Caps community.

Other survivors include her husband; a daughter, three brothers, three sisters, seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Robert Duffey

Graveside services for Robert Duffey, 28, of rural Midland, will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday at Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Bob Porterfield oficiating.

Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

He died Tuesday at his home.

Carolyn E. Ross

KERMIT — Services for Carolyn Evans Ross, 59, of Kermit, mother of Rube M. Evans Ross of Midland, were Wednesday at the First Baptist Church in Jal, N.M. Graveside services were to be at 11:30 a.m. today at Restlawn Cemetery in El Paso, directed by Cooper Funeral Home.

Mrs. Ross died Monday in a Kermit hospital.

She was born Dec. 13, 1923, in Dallas. She had been a rancher most of her life and moved to Kermit 37 years ago from El Paso. She was a Baptist and a member of Federated Women's Club of Texas. She was active in the Girl's Auxiliary at the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include another son, her mother, a brother, two sisters and four grandchildren.

Former sheriff, deputies convicted

HOUSTON (AP) — Water torture used by a former sheriff and two deputies to force confessions was part of a conspiracy involving a "marijuana trap" in an east Texas county, says the prosecutor who won convictions against the ex-officers.

After the guilty verdicts Wednesday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Scott Woodward raised the possibility of more indictments.

James C. "Humpy" Parker, 47, the former San Jacinto County sheriff, and former deputies John Glover, 65, and Carl Lee, 63, were convicted of conspiring to violate the civil rights of prisoners by subjecting them to water torture.

Witnesses testified that they were handcuffed and their faces wrapped with a towel. Water would be poured on the towel, and the prisoners would kick their feet when they wanted to talk.

The three defendants were also found guilty on multiple charges of torturing inmates to deprive them of liberty without due process of law. Lee was acquitted on one of those charges.

Among those charges were accusations that Parker took $30,000 in kickbacks from a bail bondsman and operated a "marijuana trap" on U.S. Highway 59, about 70 miles north of Houston. The government contended motorists, primarily young people and blacks, were searched without consent and equipment on their cars was altered to make it appear the original stop was valid.

"I think you will find that's one big conspiracy," Woodward said. "It would be improper for me to say who might be indicted. We have been investigating that throughout and even in the course of this trial."

Additional indictments could come soon, he said.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated about five hours before returning their verdict. The defendants showed no emotion as the clerk read the decision, although Glover's wife sobbed quietly.

The conspiracy conviction carries a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison. Each of the other counts of which they were convicted — Parker two, Glover three and Lee three — could result in a year in prison and $1,000 fine.

None of the defendants had any comment. Bert Moser, Glover's attorney, said, "I'm just very disappointed."

Woodward said if asked by U.S. District Judge James DeAnda, he would urge the maximum penalty and that each of the convicted men undergo psychiatric examinations.

"I think what they did to people was inhuman and sadistic," Woodward said.

For Woodward, 34, trying his first case, victory was bittersweet.

"I'm pleased we were able to convict," he said. "But it's rather sobering that we have to admit that the guardians of the law have tortured people as late as 1980."

Sentencing was set for Oct. 18. The defendants remained free on $10,000 personal recognizance bond although DeAnda ordered them to return to court today to review the bond and report to authorities for pre-sentencing investigations.

The trial began Aug. 30 with four defendants. But on Tuesday, DeAnda granted a mistrial for Floyd Baker because his defense was damaging to the overall defense.

Baker will get a new trial Oct. 17. He was the lone defendant to acknowledge the torture took place at the San Jacinto County Jail.

The government's case included victims, all with criminal histories, who told of incidents between 1976 and 1980 and described how they were handcuffed to a table or chair and their faces wrapped tightly with a towel.

According to testimony, the prisoner's head then would be pulled back and water poured over the towel. The prisoner, faced with suffocation, would kick with his feet when he was willing to talk about alleged crimes. Two of the victims testified they wrongly confessed to crimes because of the torture.

Parker had pleaded guilty to similar charges earlier this year but the plea was rejected by a federal judge who believed the sentencing in plea bargaining was too lenient.

Wildlife investigators testify at trial

Short is accused of taking hunters on helicopter trips to kill, with a 12-gauge shotgun, animals of trophy quality. These include deer, elks, javelinas, eagles, antelopes, sheep and bears.

THE REAL DAMAGE, says Stinebaugh, Fort Worth-based agent for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, is that aerial hunters are able to "take the very best" of game, thereby diminishing the wildlife reserve and cutting into the "gene pool."

"He (the chased animal) belongs to whomever is flying the helicopter," Stinebaugh said.

"We believe there are a lot more animals involved" than has surfaced.

"The successful outcome of this (trial) could go a long ways to stopping it (airborne hunting)," he said.

The bald eagle, as the United States national bird, has been protected by federal law since 1940. It is a "very" endangered species, said Stinebaugh. The more aggressive golden eagle has been protected by federal law since 1962 but is more plentiful. Unlike the bald eagle, it is not protected by Texas law.

Texas elk, which is indigenous to the Marathon area, consists of a "very small herd," he said. And the big horn sheep in the Black Gap area of southwest Texas is being "devastated."

But Stinebaugh said aerial hunting is not a true sportsman's way of trailing or tracking wildlife.

"If he (the hunter) has an ounce of sporting blood in him, he would not allow this type of hunting. I don't believe a Texan would want that going on." Unless the animal can crawl into a hole or cave, it has no chance against a trailing or hovering aircraft. The animals have no protection, no escape, he said.

ANOTHER FEDERAL wildlife agent, Steve Hamilton, speculated that the government has an honest case against defendants Todd and Short.

"We're not going to put the integrity of the U.S. Wildlife (service) on the line for something that's not true," he said. "I feel like we're only scratching the surface."

Hamilton said he suspects other airborne hunting activities in Texas but, "We don't have anything definite right now."

In his testimony, Todd denied that he had arranged any illegal airborne hunts. "No arrangements (were made)," he said.

However, he did say that he had paid Short $24,000 in a joint coyote-hunting venture. Coyote pelts, he said, bring $22.50 each in the marketplace. However, he ended the arrangement with Short after he found out Short's coyote-hunting permit had expired.

Short did not testify.

Although four government witnesses — Bruce Young, Brooks Harman Jr., Don Love and Bruce Breckenridge — testified that Todd had offered them hunting trips, Todd denied that he was into any aspect of aerial hunting.

In a tape-recorded telephone conversation between him and Young, Todd said he referred to a "bear hunt" by a third party and denied offering Young any aerial hunt.

Young, who said otherwise, tape recorded his telephone conversation with Todd for the wildlife service in 1982. A year earlier, he said, Todd had talked about airborne hunting of wildlife and shooting them from a helicopter.

"No, illegally airborne hunts," said Todd, who also noted that "I have never" offered airborne hunts to anyone.

TWO GOVERNMENT witnesses, Lee Bell, 29, and Mike Nickell, 23, testified that Short had taken them on paid airborne hunts south of Fort Stockton in January 1982. Nickell said he killed a Barbados sheep, and Lee said he killed a mule deer, javelina and an eagle. In considering Lee's description of the eagle, Stinebaugh later said the bird probably was an immature bald eagle but could have been a golden eagle.

Another government witness, Longfellow Ranch manager Pat Peacock of Fort Stockton, said Short "used to work for us a time or two for predator (coyote) control." He said mule and white-tail deer, wild turkeys, sheep and javelinas are on the 180-section ranch.

He said he was unaware if Short had brought any hunters to the ranch. "No, sir," he said in pointing out he had not seen Short kill any game on the ranch.

The rancher did say that coyotes had killed all but 50 of 800 marked sheep and goats on the spread.

Recently, he noted that "it would seem" that the ranch does not have as many trophy deer it once had. However, he said that situation possibly could be due to the drought.

Retired persons celebrate

American Association of Retired Persons, the nation's largest retiree organization, is celebrating its 25th anniversary with a number of national and local acitivities, according to Chester Powers, president of Midland AARP Chapter 256.

The chapter will hold Open House Saturday at the Midland Senior Center, 2500 Delano Street from 1:30 p.m. — 4 p.m. Mayor Thane Akins has issued a proclamation making Sept. 17, 1983 AARP Day.

According to Powers, the local chapter is one of more than 3,200 AARP chapters throughout the nation which sponsor a wide range of community public service programs; seek to influence the enactment of local, state and national legislation of benefit to older Americans; and acquaint association members and other older citizens with the programs and services offered by the national organization.

Founded in 1958, AARP now has nearly 15 million members, with more than 507,000 members in Texas. The association encourages older Americans to remain active in community and public affairs, provides them with legislative representation at all levels of government, and sponsors a number of services to help them stretch retirement incomes. It also publishes magazines and other materials of special interest to older readers.

The Midland chapter of AARP meets the first and third Monday of each month at 6:30 p.m. at the Midland Senior Center. For further information about AARP, contact Chester Powers at 684-6206.

Woman reports home burglarized

Old coins, a watch and assorted jewelry were reported taken in a burglary of the Carol Davis residence at 3808 Monty. Total loss was placed at $1,755.

In another burglary complaint, Bobby Knox of 4701 Boulder Drive told police that jewelry and a home computer were among the items missing in a Wednesday break-in at his home. Entry was gained by breaking a window. Total loss was placed at $1,469.

Lynne Crawford of 1303 W. Washington said $850 worth of jewelry was stolen from her residence after someone removed a window air conditioner to gain entry.

And Sherri Strawn, 3000 W. Kansas, reported the theft of jewelry and cash worth $725 from her apartment. The theft occurred Monday.

City firefighters early this morning battled a blaze that destroyed a house owned by Mary Mabry at 205 E. Pennsylvania Ave. The fire broke out shortly after 1 a.m. and took 3,000 gallons of water to extinguish.

Students believe debating important class

"The work these kids do is a tremendous amout," Baker agreed. "All these advanced students spent at least two weeks at a workshop this summer, working 16 to 18 hours a day. The hours that they're in class are really a small part of the total. It's definitely more time consuming than most high school courses."

Grades are based on participation in extracurricular activities such as tournaments and work done in class.

Baker said the desire to work at it and do well is the most essential element needed in a successful debate student. "They must be highly motivated students, not necessarily ones with good grades, but students who are willing to put in a lot of time. They have to have a lot of dedication."

"The people I have in this class, I think, are the best and the brightest," Harwell stated.

To be a debater a student needs skills in critical thinking, organization and speaking, Baker said, adding that these skills can be learned by almost anyone. "Desire is really the main ingredient. That's about the only thing I can't teach."

Several of those in Baker's class are honors students, and many plan to go into law.

Skills learned in debate are not only useful in other classes, students maintain, but in later life.

"It helps in school a lot because it teaches you discipline to be able to do research," Miss George said. "I was real shy in junior high and it's brought me out." She said she went into debate because she is thinking of going into law.

"One of the fun things about debate is you meet a lot of people, a lot of educated minds," Baskin said. "It's not only an educational experience, but a social experience."

Tribute to be held for dead deputy

McCAMEY — Upton County residents, still stunned by the shooting death of Sheriff's Department deputy C.A. "Chuck" Renfro, will gather Friday night in McCamey to pay tribute to his memory and show appreciation for all law enforcement officials in the county.

The ceremony will take place at 7:30 p.m. at McCamey High School football field just prior to the Rankin-McCamey football game.

Renfro died July 15 in the line of duty when he responded to a silent alarm inside a McCamey hardware store and sustained a fatal wound.

The city Parks and Recreation Department is offering adult tennis classes for beginning and intermediate players.

The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays for 10 lessons beginning Sept. 27 at Ulmer Park, 2800 W. Kentucky Ave. Beginning class will be from 9 to 9:50 a.m. Intermediate class will be from 10 to 10:50 a.m. Fee is $11.50.

For more information or to register call the Parks and Recreation Office, 683-4281, extension 318.

Cat leash bill vetoed

Remarking, "In my opinion the state of Illinois and its local governing bodies already have enough to do without trying to control feline delinquency," Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson on April 23, 1949, vetoed a bill that would have required that cats be kept leashed.

Midlanders semifinalists in program

Four Midland seniors have qualified as semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship program. More than one million students across the nation entered the competition last fall by taking PSAT/NMSQT tests. Those who qualified as semifinalists include the highest scorers in every state and represent the top half of one percent of this year's senior class.

From Lee High School they include Catherine Burns and Sharon Specht, and from Midland High they are Deirdre Bell and Karen Eggleston. Along with 15,000 other semifinalists, the students will compete for 5,300 Merit Scholarships worth more than $18 million.

Leadership program sponsored

High school seniors have an opportunity to enter the 1983-84 Century III Leaders program, which awards local, state and national prizes to students who demonstrate the leadership abilities and social awareness necessary to help meet America's needs during our third century.

One outstanding senior will collect the $10,000 scholarship at the Century III Leadership National Conference March 2-5 at Williamsburg, Va. National semi-finalists earn $500 awards.

Two students from each state and the District of Columbia — chosen from winners at each participating high school — receive $1,500 scholarships and all-expense-paid trips to the Williamsburg conference. Two state alternates each receive $500 awards.

Now in its ninth year, the program is designed to bring together student leaders to discuss issues facing America in its third century. Students are judged at the local school level on leadership abilities, school and community involvement, a short essay written on an issue facing America and a current events examination.

In all, the Century III Leaders program awards $218,500 in scholarships and provides for 102 students to attend the Williamsburg conference. The program is administered by the National Association of Secondary School Prinicipals and funded by the Shell Companies Foundation Inc.

Deadline for students to apply is Oct. 21. Students interested in participating in the program should contact their principal.

Lee graduate awarded scholarship

Larry Linne, a graduate of Lee High School, has been awarded a $200 scholarship to the University of Texas at El Paso. He is a freshman majoring in business management.

Area students to be in UT ceremony

At least five area people were to participate in ceremonies today commemorating the 100th anniversary of the first day of classes at The University of Texas at Austin.

Carol Brenholtz, 1710 N. A St., Stephen Eric Dehlinger, 2302 Culpepper, and Shannon Koger of Big Spring were chosen to represent the student body by marching in the opening procession with about 200 other UT students.

Dr. Jess H. Parrish, president of Midland College, was to represent MC along with more than 250 representatives from other institutions of higher education and learned societies in the United States. Dr. Duane Leach, president of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, was to represent UTPB.

The Centennial Convocation on the UT campus was to be addressed by Governor Mark White and UT System Chancellor Dr. E. Donald Walker. UT Austin President Dr. Peter T. Flawn was to deliver a Centennial address as part of the program.

Lamb mutilation investigated

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County authorities were investigating the mutilation deaths of four champion lambs that were repeatedly stabbed.

Fishing proposals rejected

From Wire Reports

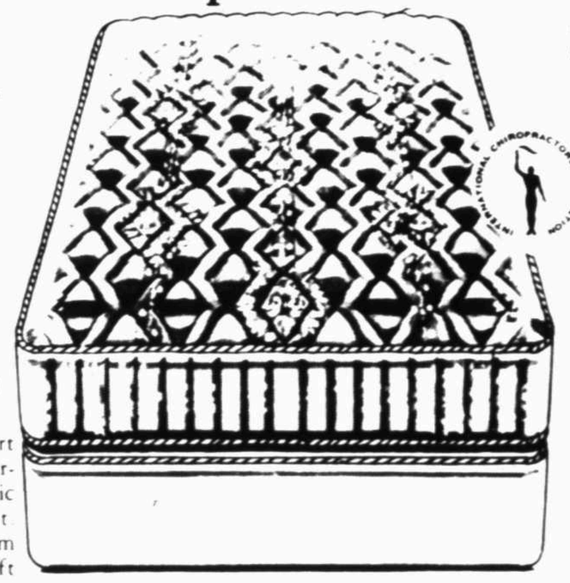

WASHINGTON — Recent negotiations to allow U.S. fishermen to harvest shrimp in Mexican waters ended without an agreement, an aide to Rep. Solomon Ortiz, D-Texas, said Wednesday.

Officials of the Mexican government were "pretty negative" in meetings earlier this week in Mexico with Ortiz and and Rep. John Breaux, D-La., and no further discussions are planned, Susan Clark said.

Ortiz now will push for legislation to repeal amendments to the 83-year-old Lacey Act that prohibit U.S. fishermen from taking shrimp from Mexican waters.

The representatives took to Mexico several proposals, ranging from a simple request to allow fishermen to harvest Mexican shrimp, to threats that they would introduce bills to ban importation of that nation's shellfish.

Phil Angerhofer, home brewer, is known to his friends as "Dr. Brew."

'Dr. Brew' makes own beer

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Dr. Brew brews his beer strictly for the taste of it. Rich, dark and aromatic, it has tiny, creamy bubbles creating a perfect half-inch head that looks thick enough to eat with a spoon.

Since he can't consistently buy fresh, rich lagers and ales in the United States, this beer perfectionist brews his own.

The batch, his own, self-proclaimed "Legendary Number 65," is bitter-sharp. Serving temperature is 55 degrees and it is poured from a recycled champagne bottle that has a designer gray and black cap. He brews it low in alcohol (3 to 4 percent) just so he can drink more. This, his favorite recipe, is only one of 85 he's created since his record-keeping began some four years ago.

"Actually, I've been fermenting various things since I was 9 years old," says 33-year-old Phil Angerhofer (his CB handle is Dr. Brew). The first attempt was in South Dakota with choke cherry wine, he shudders. He made one quart, and "drank it with a friend under a bridge and got totally smashed," he said. Regardless of the rugged hangover that followed, it was the beginning of what he expects to be a lifelong hobby.

BUT IT WASN'T until legislation passed in 1978 making home-brewing legal that he was allowed to bring his expertise out into the limelight, where fellow brewers have proclaimed him one of Washington's best. Today in the United States there are upward of a million home-brewers, many forming brewing clubs, such as his local club, "Brewers United for Real Potables" (BURP), formed in August 1981.

Legalization also has brought a surge in supply houses and has made equipment much easier to obtain. There have been vast improvements in the quality and variety of ingredients available, turning brewing into an art form for people like Angerhofer. While home-brewers can't sell their product, they are allowed to produce up to 200 gallons per year — 100 for the head of the household and up to 100 more if there are other adults in residence.

The flavor differences of the beers you can brew — ales, lagers, stouts and porters — are tremendous, he says, donning a plastic red-white-and-blue John Bull (the English equivalent of John Doe) brewery apron. English ale — often bitter-dry and full-bodied — ranges in color from golden to amber. Lager is a "bottom fermenting" beer, with varying bitterness and generally lighter in body than ales. Stout is heavy and dark, with the color and taste of heavily roasted barley and full bitter taste. Porters, also very dark, generally have the full bitter taste of stout, but with a somewhat lighter body and less-pronounced burned taste.

"I can brew beers that I cannot buy fresh in this country," Angerhofer says. Most commercial American beers aren't bitter or malty enough and are overcarbonated for his tastes. Imports, he says, can sit on the docks "for who knows how long" and are subject to wide temperature variations before they get to the store.

FRESHNESS, he reiterates, is the key to a good-tasting beer. "It is a living thing and has a finite shelf life." After several months in temperature-controlled storage even his own home-brew begins to suffer. While most commercial brewers use preservatives, many pull it from the shelves after 90 days.

"In England they brew for economics," he says, adding that one in every seven adults brews his own beer or wine there because of prohibitive taxes. "But Americans brew for taste. At least that's my motivation."

Though he sometimes brews from scratch, this night in his Beltsville, Md., home he brews an ale, using an uncomplicated recipe to demonstrate how easy it is to brew.

There are four basic ingredients in beer, he explains — malt, hops, yeast and water — and it can cost about $7 to $12 to make each five-gallon batch, depending on the ingredients chosen. Some home and commercial brewers also add rice or corn to lighten them, but this is contrary to the absolute purist's tastes, he says.

Malt, he explains, is made from wheat or barley grains softened in water until they sprout. Most beers are made from barley malt.

The grains are then roasted to determine the color and flavor of the brew. Higher temperatures and longer roasting times produce malts that are used to make darker, heavier-bodied beers.

The grains are then cracked and water is added to form a thick porridge. This mixture, called mash, is held at 150 degrees for an hour while the enzymes formed back during the sprouting stage act on starches, converting them into sugars.

Hops, the female flowers of the hop plant, are added in leaf or pelletized form, and impart a bitter flavor and aroma and act as a preservative. Plain tap water makes up the bulk of the brew.

THE LIQUID — called wort — derived from the grains is boiled. Yeast is added after the mixture cools. Yeast reacts with the sugars in the brew, converting the mixture into alcohol during the fermenting stage.

Summertime is the toughest time of year to make good home-brew, warns Angerhofer. This is a lesson he learned the hard way when his basement temperatures rose to 80 degrees and spoiled eight gallons of his favorite Legendary Number 65. "I opened a bottle and it was wretched. I cried all night," he said.

Taking matters into his own hands, he constructed a tiny 8-by-10 foot windowless fermenting room in the basement. An air conditioner is built into the wall that runs 24-hours a day. The doors are shut tight as a drum. The temperature is kept constant at 70 degrees. His dream, he says, is to turn the room into a one-barrel brewery that will make 31 gallons at a time. His present capacity of five-gallon fermenting jars makes about two cases of 12-ounce beer or 25 champagne bottles.

THE BUBBLING MIX boils a few minutes more just to ensure that everything is dissolved. He stirs occasionally to prevent the malt from carmelizing on the bottom of the pot.

"Germany makes the best beer in the world," he states matter-of-factly while his brew boils on the stove. "Some would disagree and argue that it is England. But there's something about that lager beer. They are legally constrained to use the four basic ingredients and yet produce the most bewildering varieties." Of the more than 1,400 breweries in Germany there are 5,000 different beers. "Every little village has two breweries," he says.

One of the perks of his job as an astronomer in the Earth Orientation Parameters branch of the U.S. Naval Observatory is carrying atomic clocks around the world to synchronize U.S. facilities into one time scale. When on the road he spends his free time sampling beer. He estimates that he's sampled over 200 varieties.

Clubs help brewers

Advice for quality beer tasting given

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — "Appreciation of beer quality has always been important," says Patrick Baker, author of "The New Brewer's Handbook," a 36-page guide to brewing and tasting beer. "People just lost their sensitivity to it during Prohibition."

Today, he says there is a "real movement" in America to promote beer with taste and character, body, aroma and good mouth feel. What these terms mean is a mystery to the beginning taster. Next time you have a beer, drink it at around 55 degrees (lest you lose your sense of taste and smell) and look for the following qualities.

SMELL: The feel of the "nose" is where you really get the flavor of beer, Baker says. Smell for the bitter aroma of hops and a grainy quality from the malt.

APPEARANCE: Look for color, which depends on the style of the beer (ranging from light to dark). Check for clarity. The bubbles should be steady and small, not a big "whoof" of bubbles that disappear immediately. There should be a full head of tiny bubbles making up a nice fine foam. Lighter beers have thinner heads; you should see three-quarters of an inch on a fine stout.

TASTE: Swallow. Light beers should sparkle over the tongue, but not bite (that's a sign of artificial carbonation, Baker says). There should be a nice fullness, no heaviness. If the beer is totally flat, it will be heavy and viscous. There should be a balance between hops and malt — one shouldn't overwhelm the other, and there should be a nice panaroma of taste. Taste for acidity; certain German and Belgian beers should be somewhat acidic.

BALANCE: Think of the beer you are tasting against the ideal of the beer's style. It's important to know the major beer groupings such as bottom-fermented German lagers and top-fermented English ales. Stout, for example, is a top-fermented dark English ale that is heavily flavored with roasted barley and hops. It's a very complex beer, Baker says, and you have to look for a balance.

Jack Daniel's oldest distillery

By The Associated Press

The oldest registered distillery in the United States is the Jack Daniel's distillery in Lynchburg, Tenn. Jack Daniel himself registered the distillery with the federal government in 1866, the year the United States began taxing the production of whiskey. Jack Daniel, in his first year in business for himself, was 16 years old at the time — too young by today's laws to consume the product he was making.

DEAR ABBY

Gesture could bequeath problems

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a businessman with grown children and young grandchildren.

Recently I learned that my son's former girlfriend gave birth to a child conceived while they were living together. Neither of them has mentioned this to me, so if the child is his, apparently they have agreed not to acknowledge it. I am quite certain that he is not providing any financial support.

My estate will not be large, but it seems only fair that this new child, if indeed it is my grandchild, should share in what there is. Yet I cannot find out more without meddling in my adult son's affairs.

My attorney suggests I leave my will as it is, providing in general terms for my children and grandchildren. But I fear my son would face a messy situation should the child's mother claim a share of the estate.

My son would be furious — and justifiably so — were I to approach the girl to "negotiate" at this time. If I questioned him, he'd probably deny paternity and refuse to discuss it further.

I don't want to be a meddler, but a grandchild is a grandchild.

What do you think? — CONCERNED FATHER

DEAR CONCERNED: You come across as a kindly, generous, far-sighted man, but you'll get no medals for meddling, so listen to your attorney. Your son is a big boy now. Let him paddle his own canoe.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but I need help. I don't know if there's a word for what I have, but I have a fear of telephones.

In my job I have to use the phone a lot, and it's making a nervous wreck of me. When I talk on the phone, my throat closes up, I run out of breath and my voice changes. I can't seem to get the words out. I have no trouble talking to people in person, but when I talk on the phone, I fall apart.

Do other people have this problem? Or is it just me? If you have a solution, let's hear it, please. Think up a name, but don't use mine. — PHONAPHOBIC

DEAR PHONAPHOBIC: You are certainly not alone. Make one more phone call — to someone who practices behavior modification therapy. If your physician can't recommend one, consult your local mental health facility.

DEAR ABBY: I went on vacation for three weeks a couple of months ago and fell in love with a man in Portugal. It was love at first sight for both of us. I've been in love before, Abby, but never like this.

The problem: We want to get married and he wants to live in the United States, but I need to find a job for him first. There are no jobs here, and it's worse in Portugal.

I love him so much, Abby, I don't know what to do. Please help me. If I don't find a job for him, I will lose him! — IN LOVE AND CRYING

DEAR CRYING: I can't help you find a job for your new love. But I can give you something far more valuable — some advice: If you will lose this man unless you find a job for him, what you think is "love" is just a summer romance.

Go slowly. If he is unable to come here and find his own job, your marriage doesn't have a chance.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ZELDA: Try sheep's milk. It's wonderful once you get ewes to it.

AT WIT'S END

Boredom not bad

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I saved it until the table was cleared and we were having coffee.

"The kids are coming home for the weekend," I said. "All three of them for our anniversary."

My husband and I savored the moment. It would be nice to be a family again.

We had missed them more than either of us were willing to admit.

They arrived on three different flights, but the shuttle to and from the airport gave us time to talk.

"Why are you bringing a surfboard to Arizona?"

"My apartment's too small to store it."

"Who was the girl who got off the plane with you?"

"Just met her. Gave me her number. Wants to share an apartment."

"This is wonderful having you home. What shall we do first?"

"My laundry. Everything in the suitcase is dirty."

One hung on the phone the entire weekend laughing and saying, "Really."

They used five towels per shower: one for the right arm and one for the left, one for each leg and one to throw around their neck when they shaved.

They left the way they came. Barely making the flights, the bathroom steaming, the refrigerator door ajar, a flip-top cap pressed into a decorative candle, the gas gauge in the car on E.

We returned from the last trip to the airport exhausted. For a long time, we savored the silence. Then my husband said, "We've raised three wonderful, vital, worthwhile human beings who are capable of driving a sane person nuts!"

I nodded. "Do you know what they said about us? They said, 'What in the world do you two talk about after 34 years? Your life seems so boring with all of us gone.'"

"Boring's good," said my husband.

AT WORK

Active effort required to reach goals

By DR. ADELE SCHEELE

Q. Enclosed is a copy of my cover letter and a resume that I'm sending to employers. I've sent out five so far but have received no replies.

Why not? I need these interviews because I am naive about the business world. To help myself, I am improving my typing skills. I'd like to get an entry-level position, with the hope that the company will pay my tuition so that I can obtain a computer science degree and become a programmer. Do you think my goals are realistic?

A. No. You're expecting people who don't know you to grant you time and even pay for your college education, which many companies don't do even for valued, experienced employees.

Because you want a job in the computer business, simply go forth. Try to find someone who already works for one of these companies and ask him or her to help you get a job there. Before you go, look up information about the computer field and about that company in the newspaper or a magazine.

This way you can tell the personnel officer why you're interested in working for them. Dress in the most presentable way you can. Tell them you want to make a career of programming.

To sum it up, where you've gone wrong is in asking them to do for you what you should be doing for them.

Good care of boats advised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Summer lingers in many areas, but now that Labor Day is past, fall and winter aren't far behind — and that means it's time for some preventive maintenance by boat owners.

Putting in some effort now can prevent major weather damage and delays in next year's boating season, the Coast Guard points out.

If you remove your boat from the water, the Coast Guard emphasizes making sure that it is stored with adequate support all around, not with just a few points carrying all the weight.

And put it under cover or place a weatherproof tarp over it, leaving space for air to circulate around the boat.

Most batteries used to start outboard motors should be removed from the boat and stored on a trickle charge during the winter.

But if you leave your boat in the water and use the battery to operate a bilge pump, arrange to have the marina put it on trickle charge and monitor it.

Outboard motors should be flushed and stored upright and out of the weather, in a basement or garage for example. If the motor is too big to take off the boat, make sure it is well covered against the elements.

Transplant patients survive

CHICAGO (AP) — A new study says kidney patients whose bodies reject transplants can return to dialysis and their survival chances would be as good as those of dialysis patients who never undergo transplants.

The study, which contradicts previous research, was published in today's edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Researchers at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York found that 117 patients who returned to dialysis after their bodies rejected the transplants survived as well as patients who had stayed on the machines. The rejected kidneys were removed surgically.

The finding is important because one-third to one-half of U.S. kidney patients who get cadaver transplants lose them, the doctors said. Previous reports have suggested that kidney transplant recipients have a higher death rate when they return to dialysis, the researchers said.

Israeli play shows anti-Semitic Jew

ENTERTAINMENT

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — An Israeli play about an anti-Semitic Jew who hates women could be the drama hit of this year's Edinburgh International Festival.

"The Soul of a Jew," which stirred controversy in Israel, was well received when it played here recently.

It seemed to vindicate festival director John Drummond, who brought the Haifa Municipal Theater from Israel to stage the play. Critics in Israel had said it would only encourage anti-Semitism.

Drummond says that the "warmth of the reception" for the play, by Yehoshua Sobol, justified his choice.

The play is spoken entirely in Hebrew with a simultaneous translation through earphones. It is based on the life and ideas of Otto Weininger, a Viennese Jew who renounced his faith before shooting himself in 1903 in the room in Vienna where Ludwig von Beethoven had died 76 years earlier.

It ties in with this year's festival theme of the arts in Vienna before World War I.

Conway Twitty's stage presence is absolutely flat

A Review

Despite a beef prior to concert time, Conway Twitty gave his audience what they came to hear — his songs, nonstop, for a little over an hour.

But, that's all he gave.

Twitty's stage presentation was absolutely flat. He doesn't have the personal magnetism of a Willie Nelson who is a past master at standing, singing nonstop, saying only a greeting, yet leaving his audiences begging for more.

Although Twitty's mannequin style performance was highlighted on a few occasions with a slight smile, he saved his fuller smiles for the times he was turned toward his band. Honestly, an album would have given the audience as much and possibly cost less.

His deadpan performance may have had something to do with the afternoon's controversy; one which was not resolved until 7 p.m.

The dispute centered around T-shirt sales. Those who went to the concert know there were no Conway Twitty T-shirts sold. What they don't know is there almost was no concert.

"Twitty was paid well for his performance and his people wanted more," said Mike Stevens, Chaparral Center's director.

Twitty's road manager refused to pay 20 percent of T-shirt sales to the center, even though that percentage is clearly stated in the written contract.

Ogden Food Service of Boston gets "20 percent of anything sold in the building and the college gets 10 percent of Ogden's gross (at the center)," explained Stevens. A national company, Ogden handles the same type of accounts at other centers, including Tarrant County Convention Center in Fort Worth, El Paso Civic Center and The Forum in Los Angeles.

Twitty's road manager claimed, "We don't pay anywhere." Stevens said, "You pay everywhere. There's not a public building in the state of Texas where a percentage is not charged for T-shirts. Lubbock, Amarillo, Midland and Odessa are all at 20 percent. Reunion (in Dallas) is a 60-40 split."

The disagreement was between Ogden and Twitty's road manager until it looked, after over two hours, as if it was insoluble. At that point it became Stevens' concern.

The time was 6:50 p.m. Concert time was 8 p.m. The road manager threatened to cancel the show unless they could sell their T-shirts, taking the entire percentage for themselves.

"I felt sorry for the promoter (Fleetwood Bros.)," Stevens said. "It was out of his hands, and he was the one faced with the financial loss."

Nonetheless, Stevens told the road manager he had three choices. They were:

— Take the T-shirts out of the building and go on with the show.

— Leave the T-shirts in the building, go on with the show, and pay the percentage.

— Cancel the show.

He then said, "You have 10 minutes to decide."

By that time, Stevens was willing, if an agreement couldn't be reached, to cancel the show himself. He told the road manager that. He also let him know he was going to make sure, if it became necessary to cancel, that Conway Twitty knew what the situation was, if it meant standing out in the parking lot with a megaphone and yelling to him in his bus.

The road manager checked with those in Twitty's bus and came back within 10 minutes. He told Stevens, "Conway will put on the show. We hope we never have to play Midland, Texas, again."

"I played poker and won," Stevens said. "But it wasn't a matter of having the winning hand, it was a matter of knowing where we stood. The road manager thought he was in a small town; he didn't realize this isn't the sticks."

The problem was a "definite first," Stevens said. "We've never had any problems with any group since I've been here and that's going on three years."

Perhaps Twitty fans would like to argue that he didn't know what was coming down, but the fact remains, the road manager works for him, not the other way around. Had Twitty not performed, it might have shut down the other two acts, Diana Hart and Ronnie McDowell. And both gave the audience more by staging higher energy level performances than he did.

ABC trying to book itself winner on Wednesday night with 'Hotel'

By SEAN MITCHELL
Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — MGM booked itself an Academy Award for best movie with "Grand Hotel" in 1932, and America's readers seemingly had no reservations about Arthur Hailey's "Hotel" in 1965. Now it looks as if we can expect a rush on the front desk Wednesday nights as America checks in to watch Aaron Spelling's new weekly episodic television show about life in a grand hotel named the St. Gregory.

"Hotel," its title acknowledging its Haileyean source, premieres Sept. 21 in the favored 10 p.m. Wednesday time slot on ABC right after Spelling's "Dynasty," currently the gaudiest jewel in the producer's prime-time tiara that also includes "Love Boat," "T.J. Hooker," "Fantasy Island" and three other shows.

Actor James Brolin, who will play a starring role as the hotel's handsome, amorous general manager Peter McDermott, explains part of the show's raison d'etre this way: "There's an underlying sexual anticipation in a hotel. You feel it when you walk into one. Fresh sheets, right? It's like being in someone else's apartment."

Morgan Fairchild will guest star as a prostitute who is gang-raped in the two-hour pilot Sept. 21. Charlene Tilton will also appear in another early episode. And, God willing, Bette Davis will be regularly featured as the St. Gregory's dowager owner, Laura Trent. "That validated the whole thing right away," says Brolin of Davis' casting.

As "Hotel" went into production last month, Davis was recuperating from a neurological disorder in Connecticut and was expected to join the cast in September, but there is yet no official word on when she will be healthy and available. In the meantime, actress Anne Baxter, who has been chosen to play the hotel's co-owner (and Laura Trent's sister-in-law), will be on hand in the early episodes to see that the St. Gregory is running up to standard.

First Counterpoint Concert on Sunday

ODESSA — The first program of the 1983-84 Counterpoint Concerts will feature the Permian Consort from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Sunday at 2 p.m. in the sanctuary of Odessa's First Presbyterian Church.

The members of the Permian Consort are Dr. Craig Lister, director, Julie Osborn, Carol Ross, Thomas Reel and Katie Landis.

The program will be oriented toward wind music of the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries, featuring works for flute, recorder and oboe. Other solo selections will include a sonata for double bass and a suite for 2-manual harpsichord.

The Permian Consort is inaugurating a new keyboard in this concert — a copy of an 18th century French harpsichord by Blanchet. This instrument's soundboard has been decorated by Sally Patton of Odessa.

The Permian Consort's performance will feature period dress, period furniture and authentic performing techniques. Admission is free.

Arts festival adds bluegrass contest

BROWNWOOD — A new addition to the Pecan Valley Arts Festival this year at Brownwood is a Bluegrass Music Contest beginning Saturday at 10 a.m. and a banjo-picking contest Sunday at noon.

Cash prizes will be awarded in both.

The festival will be held Saturday and Sunday in Festival Park near Gordon Wood Stadium in south Brownwood. Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children. Activities, which include a bazaar featuring works for show and sale by 74 artists from throughout the Southwest, will run from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Kennedy miniseries announced

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A second miniseries on the Kennedy family will go into production this fall for CBS.

"Robert Kennedy and His Times," based on the biography by Arthur Schlesinger Jr., will be made into a seven-hour series by Columbia Pictures Television. The cast has not yet been announced.

"Kennedy," a seven-hour series dramatizing the presidential years and personal life of John F. Kennedy, will be telecast on NBC on three nights, Nov. 20, 21 and 22. The final night is the 20th anniversary of the assassination of the late president.

In the NBC series, Martin Sheen stars as John F. Kennedy, Blair Brown as Jacqueline Kennedy and John Shea as Robert F. Kennedy.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, September 16, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Pioneer American merchant J.C. Penney was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Lauren Bacall, basketball great Elgin Baylor, actor Peter Falk, tennis' Rosemary Casals and jazz musician Charlie Byrd. A problem that has slowed career progress will soon be removed. Willpower is the key to getting your finances in better order. You find great comfort in a new friendship. Give romance a chance to develop at its own speed. A family member would like to confide in you but is unsure of your reaction. Be open-minded. Someone you have always admired gives you a second chance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Let others know what you have in mind and they help out. Awards and scholarships are in the spotlight. A job that looked risky now appears to be much more solid. Work hard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not let minor upsets make you lose momentum. Your ambitions are fired by a call from a former employer or colleague. Go after a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow your intuition. If you push too hard for an answer, you could get one you don't like. Family members turn a deaf ear to your weekend plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A selfish approach will boomerang. Stop and think things through before you act. Success comes faster when you work on your own. A temporary sacrifice will produce a gold mine.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your romantic inclinations may be off-base. Step back and take a second look without the rose-colored glasses. A new job offers hard work and a wonderful opportunity for career growth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Careful observation gives you new insights into what a loved one wants. Be prepared for unexpected guests over the weekend. Do not take any chances when driving with children.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A current trend carries you in new career directions. Face up to your financial obligations. A platonic relationship turns romantic. Parents are pleased by a child's change in attitude.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The rumors are correct. Sit back and wait for others to make the first move. You deal with change better than most people do. Consider free-lancing to augment your income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your close relationship with a brother or sister is a great comfort in times of crisis. A prized job may become available. Keep your eyes and ears open.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You convince loved one to make a concession. Remember that you owe him or her one! Creativity should be your watchword today. Celebrate a victory without spending a lot of money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Call a former love when you travel to his/her town. A dispute could harm romance. Backing off from a deal will irritate some people, but it also saves money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A unique relationship will save you from embarrassment today. Consult with a friend of a neighbor. Your optimism is an important asset as you approach a tough contest.

Programs inspire fan mail

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Moyers doesn't get normal celebrity fan mail. He doesn't get requests for autographs and pictures. Instead, people give him intelligent, sensitive reflections — much the sort of thing he gives them.

"(Your show) helped us to become better informed of the changing moods and attitudes of our fellow citizens," wrote a woman from Huntsville, Ala. "And that is without ever leaving our chairs."

Moyers' summer series, "Our Times with Bill Moyers," movingly communicated a concern for humanity in stories ranging from unemployment to AIDS to divorce. In return, Moyers' letter-writers expressed a similar compassion about Moyers and the fate of his program. They wonder if "Our Times," or something similar, will return in the near future.

"I do hope they will allow you to continue informing us and, therefore, I suppose I wish you good ratings," wrote a woman from Coconut Grove, Fla.

All network programs have hard-core followings, but "Our Times" seems to have touched an especially sensitive chord with American audiences. Give the public entertainment programs, and they might be entertained. Give the public shows with humanity and enlightenment, and they might become better human beings.

"We appreciate such an intelligent and responsible program that forces us to look at the issues of the day," wrote a couple from Alton, Ill. "Only by challenging our thinking can we grow as a nation."

"When the credits are shown, and that great music is playing," wrote one viewer from Tampa, Fla., "I stare into space completely immersed in thought of the previous half-hour topic. Programs of this nature are enriching and worthwhile to our national community."

"We need many more like you to champion the cause almost always beneath the headlines," said a man from New York City.

"Thanks to you, your associates and to CBS for having the courage to portray so vividly what is happening in the country so that all of us can see it first hand, and with skillful interviewing to make it more real," wrote a couple from Winnetka, Ill.

CBS should be commended for broadcasting 10 hours of "Our Times" and the equally satisfying "On the Road with Charles Kuralt" this summer. It would have been more profitable to schedule entertainment reruns, but the CBS Broadcast Group and CBS Network found the necessary funds and gave the Moyers and Kuralt programs the appropriate promotional push.

Opening lead: Seven of ♣.

"There is a demand nowadays for the man who can make wrong appear right," wrote Publius Terentius Afer, also known as Terence, more than 2,000 years ago. West would have been a man after Terence's heart.

North's jump to three hearts is not a misprint — North-South were using jump raises in competition as a preemptive measure. East's decision to pass is unusually conservative, but it proved to be right.

West got his side off to a good start by leading a club, which assured the contract's defeat. But this hand is from duplicate bridge, and a second undertrick would guarantee the defenders an excellent result.

East's ten of clubs lost to the king, and declarer tried a low diamond from hand. West rose with the ace of diamonds and reverted to clubs. East took his two tricks in that suit and then led his 13th club. Declarer ruffed with the nine and West smoothly overruffed with the king!

As far as declarer was concerned, that marked East with the jack of hearts. So when West exited with a diamond to dummy's king, declarer ran the seven of hearts. West took his jack gleefully, to register the magic 200 set.

It might seem that West would have made his king even if he overruffed with the jack, for declarer might finesse. But declarer would use his diamond entry to dummy to lead a spade to his hand, and when he discovers that East probably has the ace of spades in addition to the ace of clubs, he would surely play West for the king of trumps for his overcall.

nation in brief

Companies offer bids for leases

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Energy companies offered minimal bids for federal leases on five tracts with an estimated 114.7 million tons of minable coal, and three big parcels believed to contain 428 million tons drew no offers, the government says.

The leases, covering land in North Dakota and Montana, went on sale Wednesday after U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt ignored a House Interior Committee vote against the sale. The five parcels totaled 8,349 acres, with each drawing one bid from companies already mining adjacent land.

The Bureau of Mines said it will study the bids before deciding whether to accept them. The bids ranged from the $100 an acre — with the government had set at a minimum offer — to $110 an acre.

Superintendent praises policy

CHICAGO (AP) — The superintendent of a suburban school district is applauding a new policy tying administrators' merit pay to pupils' test scores as a "realistic approach" to raising the district from the "academic graveyard."

Starting next year, merit pay will be withheld from the superintendent and 11 administrators in the 2,500-student West Harvey Elementary School District. Pupils' scores on the California Test of Basic Skills showed only kindergarteners reaching national averages.

Edward Smith, the district's new superintendent, said Wednesday the new board policy will change the administrator's role from "academic custodian to instructional leader."

Mobile telephone improved

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A new mobile telephone system will allow more motorists to use car phones simultaneously and with less static because the signals will be "following" the moving cars, General Motors Corp. says.

The system, to be offered for 1984 Buick Riviera coupes for a price not yet disclosed, is the first automotive application of cellular technology. The method transfers a signal in computer-controlled cells connected to telephone switching offices.

GM said Wednesday that if the Federal Communications Commission approves, it will introduce the system in the Chicago area and offer it elsewhere as American Telephone & Telegraph Co. expands its availability.

Officials show discrimination

ATLANTA (AP) — U.S. officials have shown a clear pattern of discrimination against Haitians, says a lawyer challenging the government's right to detain Haitian refugees.

About 1,700 Haitians refugees were released from detention camps around the country after a federal judge in June 1982 ordered the government to stop holding them. A panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that order, but the case is being heard again before the full court at the government's request.

Attorney Ira Kurzban said Wednesday the case was not moot because of a pattern of discrimination continues. But government lawyer Michael Singer argued officials were acting properly to protect U.S. borders.

Grocer, family held hostage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A gang kept a grocer and his family "under siege" for two days after one of its members was shot to death during a struggle in the grocer's store, said police.

One gang member, 18-year-old Byron Decker, was arrested Tuesday for for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon.

Fifteen to 20 youths surrounded the home of 39-year-old James Hawkins Jr. on Sunday night, firing about 40 shots into the house and adjacent store, then returned Monday night, said Sheriff's Sgt. Curtis Jackson.

Officials said they would not prosecute Hawkins, who told police that gang member Anttwon Thomas was fatally shot Sunday afternoon as the two scuffled after Hawkins stopped Thomas from robbing passersby.

Math contest to begin nationally

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide competition that could eventually become the "spelling bee of math" for junior high students has been announced by government and private industry.

The new project, called MATHCOUNTS, will begin in 44 states and the District of Columbia this month.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell said Wednesday that seventh and eighth grade students in thousands of schools will participate in a series of exercises designed to build math skills. School teams will enter local and state competitions in preparation for a national contest to be held in Washington in May 1984.

Government won't interfere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has decided not to interfere with an effort by Home Box Office, CBS and Columbia Picture Industries to team up on producing and licensing of movies.

After an extensive investigation, the Justice Department said Wednesday the arrangement would not significantly reduce competition to distribute pay-TV programming to cable operators or in the licensing of movies to pay-TV programming services.

HBO, Columbia and CBS combined to finance a new movie studio, Tri-Star Pictures, to produce and distribute movies for theaters and to provide HBO with exclusive pay-television rights to those pictures.

Increase wanted for program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to ignore the Reagan administration's attempts to kill federal support for juvenile delinquency programs.

The PTA, Camp Fire, the American Legion, and 50 other organizations instead recommends that the current $70 million a year provided for such programs be increased to at least $125 million, with an additional $50 million for programs dealing with runaway and homeless young people.

Congress has continued to fund the programs despite opposition from the Reagan administration for the past three years.

Son admitted killing father

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The eldest son of Texas millionaire Henry Harrison Kyle told his half-sister and her fiance that he killed his father because he was abused and "desperately afraid" of him, according to grand jury testimony.

Henry Harrison Kyle Jr., 20, was arraigned Wednesday in the shooting murder of his father July 22 at the lavish Bel-Air mansion they were restoring.

A defense lawyer expressed confidence that the younger Kyle, known as Rick, would be cleared of killing his 60-year-old father in what a detective asserted was a "crime of greed."

Henry Miller III, fiancee of Rick Kyle's half-sister Jackie Lynn Phillips, testified last month that Rick Kyle approached them after the father's funeral in Dallas on July 26.

"Ricky said that, 'I have to tell both of you: I shot him,'" Miller testified. "He just said that — he just confessed that he shot him. ... He said that he and Scotty, his brother, had had it planned for quite some time."

Miller testified that the son said he killed his father because of extensive abuse.

But police Detective Bob Grogan called the slaying a "crime of greed" motivated by the knowledge that the father, whose estate was estimated at $60 million, was considering excluding Rick Kyle from his will.

The will, written in 1978 and filed six days after Kyle's death, left $100,000 to one of Kyle's daughters, 34-year-old Paula Holtzclaw of Atlanta, $10,000 to Ms. Phillips, and the rest of the estate to Rick and Scott Kyle.

TIPRO officers foresee dangers ahead

By DAVID C. SODAMANN
Business-Energy Editor

There were almost as many "red flags" waved at a petroleum industry meeting in Midland Wednesday, as are waved at Communist rallies in Red Square. The "red flags" waved by oil and gas industry leaders here, however, were verbal warnings to be on guard, instead of symbols of conquest.

Speaking before an audience of about 75 persons, leaders of The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association said at both state and national levels, in legislative assemblies and regulatory bodies, pitfalls are being dug for the petroleum industry.

Oil and gas producers were urged to get involved in the effort to thwart the diggers, lest they be fined and taxed beyond endurance.

Bruce Anderson, independent oil and gas producer and TIPRO president, urged oilmen to get involved in any industry organization, but as a minimum, those in this area certainly ought to be involved in the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, he said.

Anderson alerted his audience to new state regulations that could become a problem for the oil or gas producer who isn't prudent.

"The penalties are scary — from $1,000 to $10,000 per day, if they want to enforce it — and there is no court of appeal."

"Plugging regulations are very serious. Ninety days after a well goes off production, you are supposed to ask for an exemption, or else you're in violation of the regulations."

Anderson said TIPRO is urging the Texas Railroad Commission to use some discretion in enforcing the new rules, so operators won't be unjustly fined.

"We try to point out to them practical things a working man in the oil patch has to use, and get them to work with us — and they do, they're very excellent that way. Thank the Lord for the Railroad Commission, there's nothing like it. They do a good job for us."

Anderson also reminded his audience burning and sediment pits have been outlawed and must be cleaned up; and that strict procedures are now being used to grant drilling permits.

The ground work is being laid in Washington for a massive tax increase in early 1985, after the elections, said Julian Martin, executive vice president of TIPRO. "It definitely will have energy at the top of the list."

TIPRO is also concerned about the possibility of the industry losing percentage depletion allowance for secondary and tertiary recovery projects, Martin added.

"That goes out of existence at the end of this year, unless Congress corrects a glitch in the law. This is an extremely serious problem, not only to secondary and tertiary recovery projects. If they hold that is not applicable, the logical political result will be, 'if it's not available for secondary and tertiary, why on earth is it still available for primary?' "

Independent gas producers are beginning to agree on what they want in a natural gas decontrol bill, Martin said.

"Having traveled around the country the last three weeks, and having talked to people on both sides of the camp ... we found a tremendous amount of desire ... to get together ... and determine what kind of package we can live with where ever we are in the United States."

TIPRO will work for producer-oriented legislation, Martin said. He said independents have "jelled" on the following:

— No provision for unilateral contract termination, or contract abrogation.

— Provision for contract carriage of natural gas buy pipelines.

— Decontrol of all foreign gas.

— Eliminate discrimination that favors pipeline-controlled producers.

— Preserve the state rateable-take authority Texas has had for over 40 years.

Hans Hansen, Midland, chief watchdog on TIPRO's state petroleum issues committee, also spoke. He briefly reviewed recent legislative and regulatory developments. He warned:

"The Governor did promise in his election campaign we would have a substantial increase in teacher salaries and do a considerable amount of highway work. He has not been able to perform on that. There is talk there will be a special session of the legislature next spring ... and he will once again be looking for tax money to fund the teachers pay raises and the highways. And, folks, he'll look at us too.

"Its something we're going to have to be particularly prepared to defend ourselves on."

House committee OKs coal slurry pipeline bill

WASHINGTON — A key House committee Wednesday cleared the way for the House to begin work on a compromise bill that could lead to lower electric bills for consumers in the Southwest.

The bill would permit coal slurry pipeline companies which have secured water rights from state governments to apply to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Interior Department for federal eminent domain authority.

The coal slurry industry, which uses pipelines to transport crushed coal suspended in water, is seeking that authority because railroads, other property owners and some states have refused to allow the companies to cross their land.

Supporters of the legislation say the pipelines, including one which would connect with cities in Arizona and Texas, would provide utility companies in the Southwest with cheaper coal and result in lower electricity bills.

The bill cleared the House Rules Committee Wednesday after two other House panels agreed to a compromise on which federal agencies would have the power to grant eminent domain.

The Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, chaired by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., had wanted to give the Interior Department the power to grant eminent domain. However, the Public Works and Transportation Committee, headed by Rep. James Howard, D-N.J., wanted that authority to go to the ICC.

The men agreed to let both the ICC and the Interior Department have the authority to grant eminent domain. If both agree to grant it – or not to – the decision is final. If they disagree, the president would make the final determination.

Udall said Wednesday he was opposed to giving the ICC the power because "over the years, it has been like a wholly-owned subsidiary of the railroad companies," which are bitterly opposed to any bill favoring coal slurry pipelines.

He said he supported the compromise even though he felt it created a situation in which, "the lion and the lamb lie down together, but the lamb ain't going to get much sleep."

If Wednesday's Rules Committee hearing was any indication, the bill faces stiff debate on the House floor.

Rep. James Quillen, R.-Tenn., contended that the railroad companies would lose coal-hauling business because of the pipeline and would be forced to raise their rates for carrying other commodities, such as farm produce.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Tex., said the pipeline might put the railroads out of business completely and declared, "I don't want to be party to anything that's going to lead" to their decline.

But Rep. Manuel Lujan, R.-N.M., disputed Frost by noting coal production has doubled in recent years from 400 million to 800 million tons, and said the coal transportation business is large enough for both the pipeline and railroads.

Other representatives, mostly from drought-stricken Western states, were concerned that the the bill would provide the federal government with the ability to acquire water in the states and questioned the sense of putting scarce water in a coal pipeline.

Midland American names new president

Sarah Carter
Midland American President

Andrea Carlsen
Administrative Assistant

The first female president of a Midland bank assumes her duties Sept. 19 at Midland American Bank.

The board of directors named Sarah Carter president and acting chief executive officer at the bank, which opened a year ago in temporary facilities at the corner of Loop 250 and Midland Drive.

Carter has been active in Midland banking circles since 1951, when she joined Midland National Bank, now known as First City National Bank. She was a loan officer and vice president in the installment lending department. Carter was most recently assistant vice president in the non-energy commercial loan division of The First National Bank of Midland.

Carter is a member of the American Institute of Banking and the National Bank Women's Association. She graduated from the Commercial Lending School at the University of Oklahoma at Norman.

While Carter said it is too early to announce specific policy changes the bank may make under her leadership, she said she anticipates good growth for Midland American. "I think the possibilities are exciting for the bank right now to grow," she said.

She pointed to future growth in Midland's northwest side, as evidenced by the number of new apartment complexes in that area. Organizers of the bank said last summer the site was chosen with this in mind.

Midland American has been the slowest growing of Midland's three new banks which opened in 1982. At the close of business June 30, the bank listed deposits of $3.7 million and $3.3 million in loans.

Midland American's former president Russell Richardson resigned in June to assume the presidency of a new Fort Worth bank.

A group of Midland investors, meanwhile, is in the process of assuming ownership of the bank. Approval for the transaction is pending with the State Banking Commission. Approximately 99 percent of the bank's 40,000 shares had been tendered as of Sept. 9, sources said.

Andrea Carlsen was named administrative assistant to Carter. A graduate of Midland High School, she received her B.A. from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in 1977. Her previous banking experience includes three years at Midland National Bank and the last four at First National, where she was an assistant to Carter.

Mesa plans to buy KN

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Mesa Petroleum Co. is offering to buy Denver-based KN Energy Inc. and has purchased nearly 4 percent of the firm's stock for $466 million, officials said today.

"Under the terms of the proposal, Mesa would acquire all outstanding common shares of KN Energy through a tax-free exchange of 3.5 Mesa common shares for each KN Energy share," said Mesa Chairman T. Boone Pickens.

"Based on yesterday's closing price of $15.50 per share for Mesa Common stock, the value of the proposal to KN Energy shareholders would be $466 million, or $54.25 per share," Pickens said.

Mesa has bought 338,000 shares so far, Pickens said.

Mesa's board of directors has approved the proposal but the transaction is still subject to the approval of shareholders of both companies and KN Energy's board of directors.

States could share offshore lease income

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The House voted 301-93 Wednesday to give state and local governments a share of up to $300 million a year in the billions of dollars in new revenues expected from the Reagan administration's stepped-up offshore oil and gas leasing program.

The bill requires that the money be used for coastal management and other environmental programs.

The administration, which has begun a drive to lease almost 1 billion offshore acres of the outer continental shelf by 1987, has proposed eliminating or reducing funds for existing programs that help states ease the environmental impact from the additional drilling. It opposes the bill as a "back-door" means of getting federal funding for programs that it says should be the states' responsibility.

Beginning next year, the bill would set aside 10 percent of the increase in revenues from the leases, up to a maximum of $300 million, into a special fund to be distributed to the state and local governments, as well into matching funds for research through the National Sea Grant College program.

Although the administration contends the proposal would worsen the growing federal deficit, its supporters argue that it actually could save the government money by easing state opposition to the federal leasing — opposition that often has resulted in lengthy, costly court battles.

A similar version of the measure is expected to soon reach the floor of the Republican-controlled Senate, where it also is likely to face stiff opposition.

Much of the House debate Wednesday centered on provisions of the bill that would allot significant portions of the funds to states along the Great Lakes, although there has been no leasing off their shores. Support from those states was considered critical to the bill's passage.

Rep. Jack Fields, R-Texas, noted that Michigan would receive one of the largest shares of the federal funds — $10 million — even though it was not likely to feel the impact of offshore leasing "unless they use the money to go out and build an ocean."

However, supporters argued that the bill was not designed to relate only to drilling. Fields' amendment to limit funding to marine coastal states was defeated on a voice vote.

Under the bill, coastal states could use the federal funds for a variety of purposes, including developing and implementing environmental management plans, mitigating possible ill effects of energy development, improving fisheries and other marine resources and acquiring and improving marine and coastal parks.

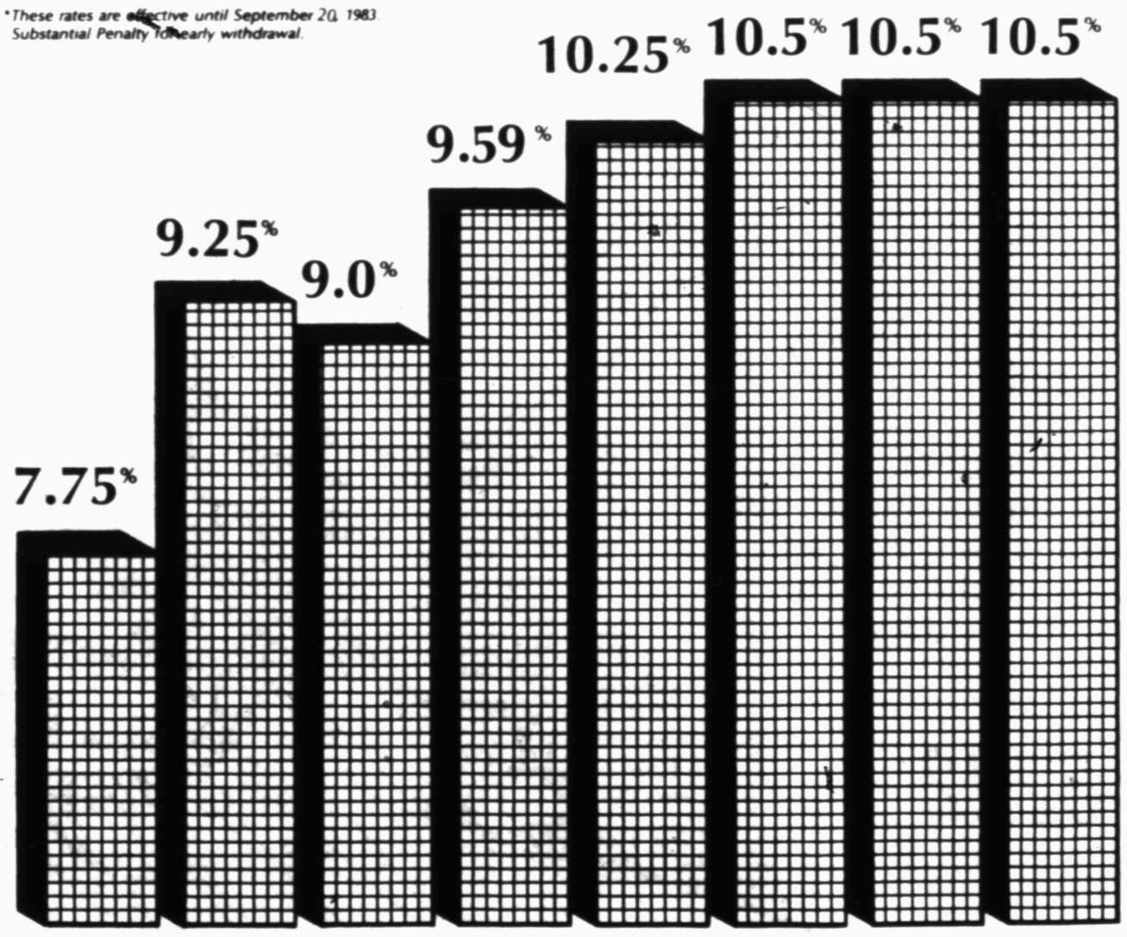

Fields also objected to parts of the bill's funding formula, because it would penalize Texas and other states that do not have federally approved plans for coastal management. But his amendment to revise the formula also was defeated.

Computer guru's fall shakes up industry

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Adam Osborne was one of the gurus of the computer industry in the 1970s, an entrepreneurial genius who pioneered the portable market and lectured his competitors on what they were doing wrong.

So when Osborne Computer Corp. filed for Chapter 11 protection under federal bankruptcy laws and then received temporary financing from three banks Wednesday, it was an occasion for both snickering and sadness among his competitors.

Osborne's magazine column, "From the Fountainhead," made him enemies and admirers, but everyone in the computer business was aware of his influence.

"I know some people will take a measure of satisfaction in seeing him fall, but we really have to feel a little sad about what's happened to him," said George Morrow, chairman of Morrow Designs of San Leandro, Calif.

"If he hadn't been there, most of us in the small and portable computer business wouldn't be here today."

The decline of Osborne Computer has been described widely as part of a major shakeout in the low-priced computer industry. Other companies believed to be having difficulty have been Texas Instruments, Atari, Inc. and Dot Computers.

Osborne, the first company in a highly competitive field of makers of briefcase-sized computers, filed for Chapter 11 protection in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Oakland on Tuesday, which shields the company from creditors' lawsuits while it arranges to pay off its debts.

Testology Inc. and PH Components Inc., two San Jose companies, charged in a suit Monday that Osborne owes them more than $4.5 million for circuit boards and other parts.

A hearing was scheduled today on a request for a court order approving an interim borrowing arrangement.

James Lopes, attorney for Osborne, said Security Pacific Bank, Chemical Bank and National Bank of North America have agreed to lend the company $600,000 "to keep us afloat."

Osborne, known as a marketing whiz with a feel for future trends, perhaps let his company slip by failing to introduce a new product when he needed to, a competitor said.

Using $250,000 of his own money, the British-born Osborne built his success on the Osborne I portable, a $1,795 machine weighing only 24 pounds and small enough to fit under an airline seat. But the next major product, the Executive, a portable priced at $2,495, was not introduced until April.

"Osborne should have had a product out last November," said Morrow, who also is considered an industry leader. "If he had a product out last November, he'd still be in business."

Osborne then shook up his company by stepping down as president and turning the job over to Robert Jaunich, president of Consolidated Foods in Chicago.

Osborne reported sales for the year ended November 1982 at about $100 million, far below predicted sales of $250 million. The plan to go public was scuttled and in May the company yielded to competitive pressure by cutting the price of the Osborne I to $1,295. Last month, the company closed its New Jersey plant and laid off 200 workers at its Hayward headquarters. A week ago, 80 percent of its remaining 350 employees were furloughed.

"My feeling is that you will see a real fire-sale price for the company as the investors quickly try to sell off the company to get a little money back," said Jean Yates, president of a Los Altos microcomputer market research firm.

Lee Felsentstein, a research fellow at Osborne, echoed that feeling.

"Fewer people are expecting someone to ride out of the horizon on a white horse and save us," Felsenstein said.

But not everyone at Osborne was as pessimistic.

Dollar mixed amid interest uncertainty

LONDON (AP) — The dollar was mixed in early trading today amid investor uncertainty over the fate of U.S. interest rates. Gold was little changed.

Investors' eyes were on money supply figures to be released Friday by the U.S. Federal Reserve, traders said.

Most analysts were predicting increases ranging from $2 billion to $8 billion in the Fed's M1 index, which would put upward pressure on interest rates. Higher rates in turn make the dollar a better investment.

However, after four straight weeks of M1 figures that turned out lower than expected, traders were hesitant to buy up dollars in advance, dealers reported.

Disney swap OK'd

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

BURBANK, Calif. — To settle a stockholder derivative lawsuit, relatives of the late Walt Disney have agreed to give back 70,000 of the 880,000 shares of Walt Disney Productions Inc. that the film company swapped them last year, the Burbank-based company said Wednesday.

What Disney Productions bought in the original deal, then valued at $46.2 million, were the rights to Walt Disney's name and likeness, as well as the narrow-gauge steam railroad and monorail at Disneyland.

However, three East Coast shareholders sued in Los Angeles County Superior Court, alleging that the price was "excessive and unfair." Named as defendants were seven Disney Productions directors and two Disney family members, as well as Retlaw Enterprises Inc., a private corporation controlled by Disney family members.

The proposed settlement is subject to approval by the court, which first will hold a hearing at which any Disney shareholders may voice objections to it.

Giraffe breeding program abandoned

BALTIMORE (AP) — A popular 5-year-old Angolan giraffe named Colleen is the latest victim of a disease that has killed four giraffes since August at the Baltimore Zoo, prompting officials to drop plans for a breeding program.

Colleen, the only Angolan giraffe born and successfully reared at the zoo, died Wednesday after a five-day, round-the-clock battle to save her, zoo officials said.

The cause of death for her, the three giraffes that died in August, and two others that died in 1982 and 1981, appears to be ganglio neuritis, said Brian A. Rutledge, the zoo director.

He said the disease causes loss of appetite, chronic anemia and a low-protein condition. Treatment has been ineffective, he said.

An autopsy showed Colleen's condition was apparently complicated by bacteria whose debilitating effects include brain lesions, Rutledge said.

Rutledge said the deaths had forced the zoo to give up plans to specialize in breeding Angolans.

Colleen, one of the most popular animals at the zoo, was the guest of honor each year at a special party commemorating her birth on St. Patrick's Day, 1978.

Zoo workers hand-fed her and kept her warm with an electric blanket during her last five days, Rutledge said.

"She tried and tried. One of the keepers said she was 'Fighting Irish' to the end," said Rutledge. "I've never seen an animal fight like this before."

The Angolan is a desert-type giraffe found in Angola and places farther south on the African continent, Rutledge said.

Orchestra begins its fall season

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Philharmonic, which often starts its season like an energetic race horse bursting to go, sounded quite different — and better — at this season's opening night Wednesday at Avery Fisher Hall.

With pianist Rudolf Serkin as soloist in Beethoven's "Concerto No. 1 for Piano and Orchestra," the orchestra sounded fresh, buoyant, rich but not heavy in tone and confident, relaxed in the knowledge of its own proficiency. It never sounded rushed or anxious.

Rafael Kubelik conducted.

Serkin's piano music sounded extremely youthful. He started with a flourish, which he maintained without tiring, though he was never flamboyant. His playing, always refined, was merrier than it sometimes is. The sound was on the bright side. Sometimes Serkin made the music ripple, sometimes he made it dance.

A sense prevailed that just the right amount of rehearsal had taken place, so that a great soloist and a great orchestra knew exactly what each other was going to do and could perform together with calm enjoyment.

Kubelik also conducted Mahler's "First Symphony." This symphony has a great range both of mood and volume. Kubelik made the changes flow one from the other, so that the symphony had unity instead of the fragmented feeling it sometimes has.

Applause was thunderous after both pieces. The evening was a benefit for the New York Philharmonic.

A program note stated that Serkin's appearance was made possible through the Hedwig Van Ameringen guest artists endowment fund. Kubelik, who has conducted more than 100 concerts by the New York Philharmonic since 1958, will conduct the first three weeks of subscription concerts, the first starting the night after the season opener.

Kennedy seeks help from drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy Jr. has committed himself to a private hospital for treatment of a drug problem after South Dakota authorities began an investigation of the former New York City assistant district attorney.

It was not known where Kennedy, son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was undergoing treatment.

"With the best medical help I can find, I am determined to beat this problem," the 29-year-old Kennedy said in a statement issued Wednesday through the office of his uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

His statement follows an announcement in Pennington County, S.D., on Tuesday that there is an "ongoing investigation involving Bobby Kennedy, Jr."

Rod Lefholz, state's attorney, said he could not characterize the probe as a drug investigation, but police secured a search warrant for "contraband and controlled substances" in Kennedy's luggage after he became ill Sunday night on a flight to Rapid City.

A GOOD USED CAR... MORE CAR FOR THE MONEY.

Year in and year out, cars depreciate in value. You've heard it. But it's not true! Cars only depreciate each year in price, not in value, because the next year's models have arrived.

There's a difference between price and value. Today's late model used cars, specially those that received good care, actually can give you as much value as a new one. When you can buy a good used car for thousands of dollars less than a new one, that's real value. Our reputation for offering good value for the money is your best assurance buying your used car.

STEPPING INTO FALL

Brenda Cauthen is ready for fun in the fall with a light hip wrap bomber, handwoven in natural red fox, with tweed lining. ## SLEEK & CHIC

More Midlanders, including men, predicted to cuddle up in furs for the cooler season ahead.

AUTUMN BRIDES

The new season's brides combine tradition with feminity and romance in ruffled dresses.

YOUNG SET

Fall season brings "more fashion-ey" styles than the preppy era offered, says one local retailer.

'Big Cats' make comeback for glamorous look

The Big Cats are back. Not content to prowl the jungles, the wild felines invaded the fall '83 collections of New York's high-fashion designers Perry Ellis, Ann Klein and Morton Myles.

No need to grab a chair or whip, though. These tigers, leopards and cheetahs are all magnificent fakes. In designs ranging from sporty Shetland wool hand-knit sweaters to entrance-making evening dresses, cats roamed this season's fashion show runways in fabrics richly patterned with ferocious Big Cat stripes and spots.

Myles interprets the look of the jungle tabbies with verve, creating striking designs of sultry nighttime glamour and sophistication. Sleek dresses of tiger- or leopard-print wool challis are spangled with thousands of shimmering iridescent paillettes.

A dolman-sleeved cocktail dress, subtly widened at the shoulders, is held close to the body by a wide, waist-cinching belt. The back and arms are dramatically bared in a long, lean, halter dress vividly ribboned with tiger stripes. A softly draped torso and hips shape a one-shoulder leopard sheath.

Myles also mixes the lush matte texture of midnight-black velvet with his glistening tiger prints in a side-draped velvet tunic worn over a short, slim, spangled skirt.

Designer uses lace to create romance

CNS Graphic

Executive women are beginning to trade their tailored suits for lace, says one designer who is excited about the move.

Lace, until recently exiled to the outer limits of prim collars and cuffs, has made a spectacular return to the fashion spotlight in daring, sophisticated, special-occasion and evening dresses.

Developed from embroidery during the 15th century in Europe, lace and lace-trimmed garments have been worn and cherished by innumerable women through the centuries. Lace has survived wars, Puritan edicts and the whims of fashion, yet seemed to have reached its nadir in the mid-'70s.

Inching up the rungs of corporate ladders, women began "dressing for success" in bleak, stiff man-tailored suits and oxford shirts, pushing their femininity and lace blouses to the back of the closet. Cocktail parties began to resemble scenes from "Victor-Victoria," with both men and women wearing tuxedos and white tie.

With the arrival of the '80s, women are expressing more confidence about their ability to compete equitably alongside men in the business arena. They are discarding the need to dress exactly like their male counterparts at the office — or out on the town.

Joan Wieseneck, the energetic young designer from Sara Mique, is happy to see the resurgence of lace as an important, integral part of a woman's wardrobe, for her well-known soft touch for lace has always been evident in her beautifully feminine designs. "A come-hither dress of all-over lace or one indulged with yards and yards of exquisite lace ruffles brings out the romantic in the woman who's wearing it," she explained, "... not to mention the man she's with!"

True to Wieseneck's philosophy, Sara Mique dresses have a softly sensual, body-conscious quality to them. Shoulders are bared above floating tiers of ruffled lace. A curving lacey hem reveals a flash of leg. Still more skin plays coy peek-a-boo beneath sheer lacey net extravagantly embroidered with floral sprays or hazy clouds of point d'esprit.

"It's so refreshing to see women in lace-lavished cocktail dresses and gowns," she smiled. "The sequined satin sportswear and all the tuxedos are too costumey, too hard-edged for most women to wear."

Sure to inspire many romances, the Sara Mique by Joan Wieseneck fall '83 collection is replete with lacey, fantasy dresses. The highlights include a frothy champagne sheer net dress indulgently embroidered with freewheeling florals. Wafting layers of lacey net form the deep, flounced collar and double-tiered skirt. Another dress, a shoulder-baring column of crinkled crepe with a misty point d'esprit overskirt is delicately embellished at the shoulders, the edge of the sleeves and the hem with yard upon yard of fluttering, ruffled lace.

Even pants receive Wieseneck's lace touch ... a seductive black lacey net tunic with a flounced peplum scalloped by tender floral embroidery is worn over matching, cigarette-slim, sheer lacey pants. —CNS

More Midlanders predicted to cuddle up in furs

By DAIVD LEE FORREST
Lifestyle Writer

More Midland women — and even some men — will be wearing fur coats this season, according to local merchants.

"Every woman wants a fur," said Kay Freeman of Sakowitz. "Women just feel wonderful in fur."

"They make you look pretty," said Sally Reeder of Pappagallo. "It's very softening."

Fur coats also have "just a nice soft feeling," she added. "A little girl will touch a fur and say, 'Oooooh!'"

Although 95 percent of his firm's fur sales are to women, Paul Diener of Szor-Diener said fur coats are not just for women.

"In the last five years we have seen a trend in men accepting fur," he said.

He said Szor-Diener has made a poplin overcoat with a fur lining and fur collar for Tom Landry, which the Dallas Cowboys coach has been seen wearing during games in chilly climes.

Tom Swartz of Swartz said they also have male fur customers.

A typical fur from Swartz for a man is a reversible bomber jacket made of poplin or leather with Opossum fur. The fur can be worn as a warm lining or reversed to the outside for a more formal look.

"You go to the East Coast and you see as many men wearing fur coats," said Eunice Eabes of Skibells.

She also believes that the West Texas winter climate is suitable for wearing fur coats.

"People in Midland always say, 'Oh, you don't need a coat in Midland,' but 13-degree weather here is as cold as anywhere else," Mrs. Eabes said.

Also, a Midland fur wearer is "a well-traveled customer," and often visits places with cooler weather, said Richard Nichols of Swartz.

"She goes to New York to see a Broadway play," he said. "She goes shopping in Europe."

"We have a mobile society here in Midland," Ms. Freeman said.

Local fur retailers report their fur sales have been increasing over the past few years. Many attribute this rise to the growing popularity of furs among younger customers.

"I think we have young people buying fur," Mrs. Eabes said.

Fur customers range from "young girls going off to college to great-grandmothers" Mrs. Reeder said.

"Furs have become so young-looking," said Ms. Freeman, who added she has sold fur coats to customers "age 14 on up."

"The young generation has grown up with affluence," Diener said, and has more sophisticated tastes because of that.

Sportier styling is also credited with increasing fur coats appeal to younger individuals.

"Furs are so innovative," said Mrs. Reeder. "They've gotten to be so much fun."

Some of the innovations pointed out by local retailers are combining several furs with different colors and textures in the same coat, the use of leather and other materials to trim furs, asymmetrical closings, mandarin collars and more detailing on the shoulders and sleeves.

Another sporty — and less expensive — fur look is the "ribbed" or "corduroy" style. Strips of fur are sewn to suede or similar material. The strips are used to form patterns and less fur is required for each coat. Long-haired furs, such as fox, lynx and coyote, are also used for more contemporary styling.

Long-hair furs have a look of "sporty elegance," said Diener.

Many fur merchants said the more traditional classic elegance still reigns among mink coats.

"The very newest thing is not new," Ms. Freeman said. "The more conservative look is 'in' in mink."

"Mink is a classic," Swartz said.

Mink coats are the top seller among most of the retailers with fox coming in a close second.

"The American mink is the mainstay of our business," said Diener.

At the lower end of the price range, rabbit coats are popular, especially among younger customers, according to Mrs. Eabes.

"We have rabbits galore in layaway," she said.

The price range for fur coats begins under $100 for a rabbit coat and can run as high as $150,000 for a coat made from Russian lynx bellies, which Ms. Freeman said is the most expensive one Sakowitz ever sells.

"If you invest money in a fur coat, you don't get your money out of it if you don't wear it," Mrs. Eabes pointed out. She wears her own fur to the grocery store, she said.

Wearing a fur coat more often may be easier now since most retailers said the new more casual styles go with a wider range of clothing.

Many jackets can be worn with both "blue jeans and floor-length formals," said Diener. "It depends on the individual's ability to coordinate it."

"People want a very versatile fur," Swartz said. "There are no limitations on furs. There's a fur for everyone."

More men are expected to be seen in furs this winter, say local fur retailers.

Sleek wraps require care to stay chic

Nothing brings out the feline femininity of a woman or the romantic masculinity of a man better than a fur. But the glamorous wraps require special care to keep them sleek and chic. The following questions and answers, courtesy of Yarmuth-Dion Furriers Inc. of New York, provide professional advice on buying, caring for and storing your fur.

Q. When buying a fur, what quality characteristics should I look for?

A. There are basically four characteristics that a quality garment should have, no matter what the price. These are: first, the color of the garment should be uniform and should have a lustrous sheen; second, the fur should be thick — the underlayer of leather should not show through; third, the leather underneath should be soft and pliable all over the garment; and fourth, the fur should have a silky feel to the touch.

Q. When I get the fur home is there any special place I should hang it?

A. Furs should always be hung on a broad-shouldered hanger, preferably in a dark closet with enough room to allow the garment to breathe while at the same time making sure the hairs will not be crushed.

Q. Should I protect the coat in a plastic bag when I'm not wearing it?

A. Absolutely not. Plastic bags restrict the flow of air to the fur and cause it to dry out. If you want to cover the coat use a cloth protector.

Q. What will happen if I get caught in a rain or snowstorm in my fur coat?

A. It takes a significant amount of moisture to cause worry about a fur. Usually, a simple shaking out of the garment while damp and another shake or two after it has completely dried will take care of it. Never put your coat on a radiator to dry. Simply hang it in your bathroom overnight or in another suitable place, away from heat and moisture. If your

Q. What happens if I get perfume or cologne on my fur?

A. To be on the safe side, apply perfume or cologne before you put on your fur. Alcohol will dry out the leather and stiffen the guard hairs if applied directly to the fur. —CNS

Soft boots gain popularity on campus

Young women on college campuses are finding a new all-purpose foot covering — the soft boot.

Constructed without stiffeners, in fabric or soft leather, it features a small wedge at the back to render it almost flat.

As one college student explained, "This soft boot is fun. I can buy it in all styles, from ankle-high to mid-calf and knee-high. I can tuck in my jeans or khakis and be comfortable all day, biking and walking around campus. I can also have something that looks more suave at night if I go dancing."

Unbeknownst to the happy college wearers, these "new" boots have revived a style over 2,000 years old. According to the experts at the Italian Shoe Center, these soft leather boots had precedence in Rome and were called "soccus." This shoe later evolved into an indoor foot covering, from which we get the word sock.

A similar type soft boot was common in the 13th through 15th century when light shoes, fabricated in both fabric and leather were worn as shoes but were really soled socks. One of the words for shoe in Italian, "calzatura," contains the word for sock, "calza," further evidence of their early integration. In the paintings of Renaissance artist Piero della Francesca, you see long and short versions. In a painting from the 1400s, Vittore Carpaccio shows a pair of boots with different color cuffs not dissimilar to the leather boots sold today.

CNS Photo

The soft leather boots sold today are similar to those shown in an Italian painting by Vittore Carpaccio dated 1497.

Perhaps the appeal of the boot to the current college crowd is comfort — it feels like (and sometimes is) fabric. Or perhaps it's the craftsmanship. It's recorded that in 1497 artisan techniques in Italian boot-making reached perfection. It seems this tradition is still apparent 500 years later and very much alive and well on college campuses this fall. —CNS

Repairs keep pace with shoe sales

Since the days when somebody thought it would be a good idea to wrap something around his feet to ward off the pointy rocks and the chill, shoes have been considered a necessity.

Naturally, once shoes were invented shoe repairmen came close at their heels. Even earliest man undoubtedly had need of someone to supply a replacement skin or thong for his favorite pterodactyl sandals.

But that was a few eons ago and the craft of shoe repair has kept pace with the march of progress. Shoes can now be changed in height, color and conformity. They can be widened, narrowed, made open-toed and vice versa.

Shoes have also become very expensive and the shoe-repair business, once on the downside because of low-cost foreign imports, is again booming.

If there is a general woe in the business now, it is over the quality and difficulties related to plastic shoes.

Vincent Joe Adamo has been in the business 45 years, having learned the art of making and repairing shoes from his father in Sicily.

At 66, Adamo does a brisk business in his shop partly because, as he bluntly put it, "It's hard to find a pair of well-made shoes at any price."

Worst of the lot, he says, are the plastic shoes which are "bad for the feet, don't allow breathing room and are cemented together."

"Some of them are better thrown away than repaired. Sometimes the cement will hold them together; sometimes it won't and they don't take to dye well."

Dorsey Southward, who has spent 34 years in shoe repair and who now puts in a 12- or 13-hour day at his shoe shop, agrees that plastic shoes are sometimes best thrown away rather than repaired.

"They can't be nailed or stitched, usually, and they really don't wear that well, anyway," he says. Southward says it can cost upward of $15 to renovate a good pair of leather shoes but feels it's worth it to the customer.

Southward says there often is a ready explanation for uncomfortable shoes — they may have been made on a last that does not fit the North American foot. (The last is the block or form which is shaped like a foot, and on which shoes are made or repaired.)

"American companies often have the shoes manufactured for them in foreign countries. The German foot, for instance, is broad and short in contrast to the American foot which tends to be narrow and slim," says Southward.

As for caring for a fine pair of shoes, Southward suggests they be polished with saddle soap to protect the finish. —CNS

Sportswear relaxes for autumn season

Women's wear is more comfortable and relaxed for fall, according to Wrangler, the jeans and sportswear manufacturer.

In jeans the reverse silhouette is fast becoming one of the most popular styles, with the looser, more comfortable fit that makes clothes practical as well as stylish. The reverse silhouette is fuller at the top, tapering to a narrow leg. Much of the detailing from sportswear — pleats, slash pockets, dropped-yoke waists — is translated into fashion-jeans looks so that women can have a wardrobe of jeans from basic denims to fashion jeans.

Fabrics are also varied with jeans in bright jewel tones in corduroy and sheeting fabrics. The cords coordinate with blouson bomber jackets, blazers and skirts for outfits that mix and match, adding built-in versatility to a wardrobe.

Oversized is a fashion buzzword for fall with the "grandfather" or "daddy" look being interpreted in oversized shirts and vests with menswear styling to be worn over pants or skirts.

Another strong trend is country provincial with a country interpretation of the ever-popular prairie skirt in denim and colorful corduroy paired with softer, more feminine shirts and blouses.

Active wear once worn just for exercising has taken its place as a casual clothing style that goes practically everywhere.

For fall the fashion focus is on comfort, versatility and wearability with clothes that suits women's active lifstyles. —CNS

Coin jewelry mixes beauty, benefits

The sun's not all that's shining these days as the popularity of gold coin jewelry attests.

Long a European tradition, gold coin jewelry is for good reason fast becoming fashion news in the U.S.

"Today, savvy and fashion-conscious consumers who are jewelry aficionados appreciate owning gold coin jewelry because it marries the beauty of adornment to the benefits of long-term investment," explains Jerri Schwartz, director of marketing at Deak-Perara, a leading foreign currency exchange and precious metals retailer.

Another reason for the popularity may be the lovely contrast of the gold against the dramatic blacks and grays that are so much a part of the fashion scene this fall.

There are several coins from which to choose when selecting your jewelry.

The two most popular are the South African Krugerrand and the Canadian Maple Leaf. Both come in several sizes, in units directly related to the ounce.

The Krugerrand is the No. 1 gold coin sold in the United States and its one-tenth-ounce size is probably used in more jewelry than any other single coin. Canadian Maple Leaf coins are coming on strong. ... They boast a .9999 purity (24 karat), which means they aren't mixed with any alloys that alter the true color.

When having coins set for jewelry Schwartz suggests first choosing the coin, then the bezel (mounting). Usually they're crafted in 14-karat gold which means the gold is mixed with other metal alloys, so shades can vary.

Criteria to consider for deciding upon a coin include style of dress. Is the wearer a casual dresser? If so, perhaps a simple setting is most suitable. Frequent attendees at formal functions or those who prefer wearing their jewelry on special occasions may prefer a bezel punctuated with diamonds.

There are two kinds of bezels: screw-top or with prongs. "Choose a screw-top bezel if possible. It won't damage the coin or catch on your clothing," Schwartz advises.

Coins can be set as pendants, pins, rings, earrings, bracelets, tie tacs or belt buckles, but the pendant is the most popular for gift-giving or self-use.

New bags narrow, tapered

France, long a leader in the world of fashion, has introduced a line of versatile handbags specially designed to complement the wardrobe of today's North American woman.

Accessories play an important part in the lineup of fall fashions, and handbags are a most necessary accessory that captures the most exciting looks of the season.

French Folies' handbag collection incorporates the latest tailored and sportive designs, from neatly narrow and classically tapered to the sinewy long look.

The collection embraces a wide array of looks, including the haute couture look with authentic rabbit fur trim in soft leather bags and luxurious lambskin leather purses.

Then there is the look designed to coordinate with shoes — reflecting the structured style and colors in kidskin leather. Rustic designs feature a less-structured look in primitive, soft, grainy leathers.

The Folies line combines style and practicality for today's versatile wardrobes.

The adjustable shoulder straps are designed to be tucked into the handbags for a more sophisticated touch at business lunches or dinner engagements.

New fall colors make this season's handbags truly exciting. Burgundy, bronze, taupe and gray join the lineup along with the traditional tan, brown and black favorites. And there is a size and shape for every taste.

Variety is the key word in handbags this season just as it is in fashion. This fall, fashion-conscious women will find they can select the bags they've always dreamed of, instead of making the best of what's available.

Men's fall fashions provide opportunity to dress up

The secret is out. Men have finally discovered what women have long known — dressing up is fun! And this fall's men's fashions provide ample opportunity for dressing up in style, whether for business or pleasure.

Fashion experts at Alfred Dunhill of London, a leading men's luxury retailer well known for its elegant British look, predict the re-emergence of the classic double-breasted blazer as a "hot" fashion item. This season's blazer will have six buttons and peaked lapels. Worn with pleated pants, the blazer will be seen at any event that calls for a sophisticated look.

The trend in suit jackets is toward more formal, fitted silhouettes. Taking their cue from the current direction for women, full-shouldered jackets will taper to a longer, straighter line and fit closer to the hip. The important overcoat this season echoes the trend; it has soft shoulders and a slightly shaped body. This fall's strongest color is gray in all shades and fabrics — from the palest gray cotton shirt to the darkest charcoal-gray wool suits. The perennial glen plaids, herringbones and Harris Tweeds are darker toned and still favorites, while stripes and windowpane plaids in a range of browns and grays with rich jewel-tone accents will be seen everywhere.

Along with grays, soft pastel shades will be popular in shirts. Pink, lemon, melon, pale blue, mauve and parchment show up in stripes, solids and minute checks and plaids. Gone are last season's bold plaids; the paler colors and subtler patterns counterbalance the darker tones appearing in this year's jackets and suits.

Interest in sweaters is stronger than ever. A classic crew neck, V-neck, cardigan or vest, in a solid or one of this season's many exciting textures and patterns — especially the new animal motifs — is a key fashion item for an updated fall wardrobe. Worn alone, the sweater creates a polished, pulled-together image. With a blazer, it provides a touch of casual elegance.

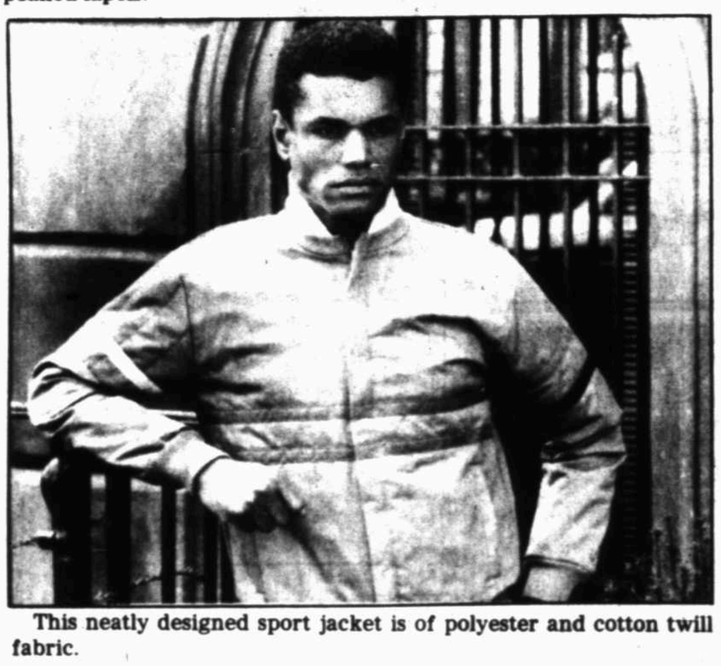

The "dressed-up" look would be incomplete without the proper accessories — those details that help finish off an outfit and say this is 1983. Cuff links, tie bars and pins, dress watches, ascots, dress suspenders, fedoras, silk scarves tucked into a breast pocket or draped around the collar of an overcoat, all help create a look that's classic, elegant and dressed up for fall 1983. —CNS

Handknit sweaters considered works of art

When Lynda Taylor's husband looked at how much she was spending for yarn every week, he insisted she put down her knitting needles long enough to take a pile of handknit sweaters to a Christmas crafts fair.

Mrs. Taylor recalls, "I sold every one in two days — even the one I was wearing. I came home with no sweaters and $1,200."

She took the money, bought more of the fine imported yarns she works with and began knitting again. That's how Opulent Hand Knits was born.

Taylor is an effervescent brunette who began knitting at 8 during icy New England winters, then put it aside years later to go into fashion styling, window dressing and casting for models.

Several years later, when Mrs. Taylor picked up her knitting needles again, there was more than pleasure involved:

"I had quit smoking and gained 50 pounds," she said. "I had to do something to keep my hands off the refrigerator door."

So she began designing and knitting sweaters, using only the finest mohair, wool, linen and cotton yarns from Italy and France and polished silk yarns from Germany.

Some were worked with delicate crochet techniques as finishing touches at the neckline, others sprouted glossy guinea feathers at the shoulder.

When Mrs. Taylor worked alone she turned out about one sweater a week. With the obvious demand for fine sweaters shown at the crafts show, she began introducing the sweaters into several area boutiques and hired several women to knit her designs.

This part of the business is extremely important to her: "I would never, ever go into machine-knit sweaters. Some of the women I hire are supplementing their retirement incomes, others are young with small children to care for. This is work that puts their abilities to work. Every time a machine replaces a person, some very important talent is lost."

Since the sweaters cost from $300 to $600 each, she is careful in her designs. — (CNS)

Lynda Taylor touts handknit sweaters as being the Rolls Royce of sweaters. Though the prices are expensive, she says the sweater can last its wearer up to 30 years.

Clothing care should be considered before buying

There are several types of garments which require special care by both the dry cleaner and the consumer.

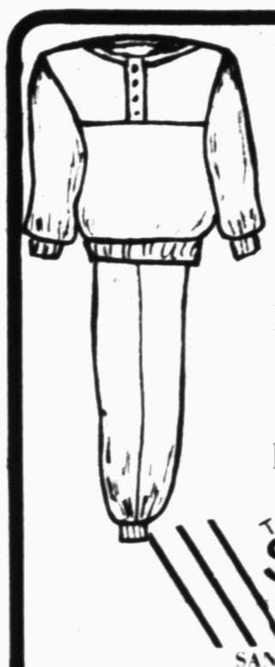

The following types of garments have been tested by the Neighborhood Cleaners' Association in their laboratory where more than 7,000 garments are tested each year. They all have some special features which you should consider when shopping for clothing.

1. Flocked imitation suede contains tiny fibers attached to the base fabric with an adhesive to create the suede-look. Normal wear and subsequent dry cleaning can remove the adhesive, leaving bald areas.

2. Imitation leather made of vinyl has a tendency to become stiff and unwearable after dry cleaning.

3. Some cotton print fabrics are printed and dyed with dyes that are soluble in either dry-cleaning solvent, water or both. Dyes are available and widely used which are impervious to both solvent and water. Be sure that you ask when buying such fabrics.

4. Surface design prints: To determine whether the fabric has a surface design, inspect the reverse side. If the design is on the outside only, it is a surface design and may fade during cleaning or washing. — (CNS)

A reflection of Marilyn Monroe is updated in the neo bob.

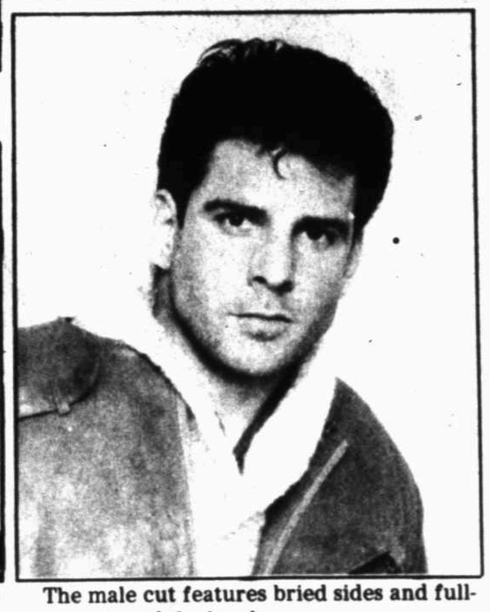

A free-flowing chin bob projects the future.

The shoulder bob is permed and conditioned for wave and sheen.

The ultra cut is tailored to satisfy the interest in short hair.

The male cut features bried sides and fullness on top of the head.

Fall hair styles featured in show

The Texas Hairdressers and Cosmetologist Association will present "Trend Release and Style Show for Fall & Winter" at The Last Tycoon, Oct 8, 8 p.m., in conjunction with the National Cosmetologist Week, Oct 2-8.

Area salons will present new lengths and styles of hair for different individuals.

Proceeds from the show will benefit the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

Bobbed hair winds its way back into fashion

Bobbed hair is making its strongest fashion comeback in years, according to the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Created to add hair-fashion variety to fall-winter apparel, the bob comes in both blunt and layered cuts. It is the fashionable coiffure for the addition of fall-winter's new hats, berets and headwraps, according to Sam Cappelle, styles director for the 52,000 member association.

Bobbed hair has been taken through many fashion directions and revivals since it first swept the country in the 1920s.

However, despite its illustrious past, Cappelle says that the bob has never been more completely updated to current fashion as it has been in the "all-new" Neo Bob collection.

Besides its myriad of styling possibilities, the Neo Bob uses perm-controlled volume to assure true styling flexibility.

"Volumized perming techniques, including the underperm or root perm, move hair away from the head and work together with the precision cut bob to make it new, dramatic and exciting," Cappelle explained.

Bobbed hair is never more attractive than when it has a bright sheen. Coloring, staining and higlighting offer new brilliance to a dull head ofhair, Cappelle said.

The blonde bob revives the memory of Marilyn Monroe, whose style has become fashionable through designed dresses, jewelry and perfume. The glamorous star of the 50s is the subject of a current British stage musical, scheduled to come to Broadway.

In addition to the Neo Bob in various lengths and styles, the collection offers an answer to the growing interest in short hair — the Ultra Cut, an open-eared, brief style designed to higlight the facial bone structure and add extra flair to fashion's tailored looks.

For the male, the association, which includes make hairstylists, features hair designs with short sides, open ears and fullness on top of the head.

Youngsters bring back familiar styles in bold colors

By LISA GERLOCK
Lifestyle Editor

Perky pinks, purples and turquoises burst into this fall's fashion line-up in what Katey Linehan, owner of Upstairs Downstairs Nextdoor, calls "more fashion-ey styles than the preppie era."

"Baggy" jeans, appliqued and monogrammed sweaters, jumpsuits, warm-up suits, shiny formal dresses and anklets, saddle oxfords and poodle skirts reminiscent of the 50s are what Midland's youngsters will be wearing this season.

A "fun year" is in store for children. However, she added, different fashions appeal to different age groups.

Pre-teens, sizes 7—14, like to watch what the juniors are wearing before they decide what they will wear.

"Pre-teens like to be as 'junior' as possible, but the juniors have to establish the style before the younger ones follow the trend."

Young ladies will be seen this fall wearing dreamy designed appliqued or embroidered on soft and classic sweaters.

"This is a big sweater year — bigger than usual. Plain vanilla pullovers with monograms and ski sweaters with stripes, hearts, animals and satin appliques are very popular.

"For blouses, the off-centered button blouse is popular. Self-ruffled blouses, crocheted collars for crew neck sweaters and pleated bow-ties attached to a band are also big.

For hemlines: anything still goes, according to Mrs. Linehan.

"All lengths of skirts are popular. Shorter sport skirts, tailored skirts with below-the-knee hem lengths and wrap around skirts are very popular.

"The problem with sportswear, including mini-dresses and walking shorts, is the dress codes from school to school vary. Private schools allow walking shorts; public schools have banned them because the lengths of shorts were abused."

"Warm-up suits are real popular. Some even wear them to school. They are so comfortable it's easy to see why they're so popular."

Bright and shiny dresses will be seen at cotillions, parties and other gala occasions. "Satin and taffeta with shiny and dull stripes in bright colors are very big this year.

"The dressy dresses are worn with fashion hose, another popular item this year."

New ideas mixed with old concepts brings about the latest trend in leg wear. A pair of anklets, in argyle or coordinating colors are worn over a pair of colored tights.

Whatever is big this season for juniors will be big the next season for pre-teens.

"Juniors have worn baggy jeans for awhile, and last spring, they became very popular for the preteens.

"Baggies," Mrs. Lineham described as brightly colored jeans with narrowed legs as the bottom, loose fitting legs and baggy at the top.

Though poodle skirts are very popular in Dallas right now, Mrs. Linnehan said she doesn't expect them to be 'a hit' in Midland until next year.

Saddle oxfords, worn with bobby socks or anklets, are a popular look right now, she added.

"What's suddenly become popular this fall are pin-striped baggy jeans."

Braid designs are also seen on everything from sweaters, to sports clothes, to anklets, hats belts.

For elementary age children, "their dresses are darling, of course, but much similar to what they've been in the past. We are seeing the primary colors. They think they're pretty, but the color of clothing doesn't matter to the child."

It's usually when they get into size 7 when "they want to be more fashionable and follow adults and juniors." she added.

Tradition updates for autumn brides

By DIANE BOOTH
Lifestyle Writer

Today's bridal fashions combine traditional elegance with contemporary flavors in everything from layers of ruffles to headpieces, whether they're pillbox hats, silk flower wreaths or cathedral trains.

Fall wedding fashions, formal and informal, combine tradition with femininity, romance and trendy fashion touches according to Midland bridal retailers.

Taffeta ball gowns and elaborate Victorian styles with cathedral trains are popular for the fall wedding season, said Elaine Hughes, owner of The Bride's Shop.

Slightly wider shoulders, off-the-shoulder necklines and French puffed sleeves are also in vogue, although most fall styles are long-sleeved.

The shop offers many gowns highlighted by Italian lace, lace bouffants, popular baby ruffles and sheer embroidered yokes.

Satin ribbon, hand-rolled flowers and hand-clipped beaded medallions enhance designs.

Tradition predominates the wedding gown and attendant's dresses scene, said Mrs. Hughes. Off-white dresses are common but white gowns are still traditional for the fall season. The high-necked Victorian look with a sheer bodice is particularly big this autumn. Queen Anne necklines are still popular as are off-the-shoulder necklines and waists that plunge in the back.

Traditional designs include lace medallion covered skirts, satin-embroidered hemlines and richly flounced trains.

For morning and afternoon weddings, tea-length dresses with hemlines above the calf are stylish, Mrs. Hughes said. Many bridal gowns in the tea-length are all lace.

"Tea-length dresses are a big part of our business. They are the real up and coming dress," she said. "A lot of girls want a formal wedding but they don't want the more expensive gowns."

Gown prices at the shop are from $225—$2,000, said Mrs. Hughes.

The fabric for wedding dresses this fall is satin, she said, and many attendants' dresses are made from rustling taffeta.

Attendants add the right touch of color to the wedding in deep jewel tones and this year's most popular color, red. Sweep trains and bare shoulders are big this year and many brides are selecting tea-length dresses for their attendants, Mrs. Hughessaid.

Mother-of-the-bride gowns are elegantly styled to match the wedding party attire.

Mrs. Hughes estimates she helps dress an average of five wedding parties per weekend during the fall, although the Christmas holidays are the most popular time of the season for a wedding, she said.

"We are getting back to the traditional formal weddings and away from people getting married in parks and jumping out of airplanes," she said.

In the seven years she has catered to brides, Mrs. Hughes said she has seen a 30 percent increase in the number of weddings in Midland.

"Every girl wants a wedding; it may be small, but she wants her wedding."

The bridal veil is the traditional head covering, said Mrs. Hughes, but pillbox hats and silk flower wreaths with short veils are also popular.

The shoe style is the pointed-toe look in satin with a small, short heel. The shoes may also be dyed to match attendants' dresses. Many brides select ballet slippers for footwear.

Stylish accessories are white or ivory bridal hose with a touch of pearls or embroidery at the ankle. Short lace or crocheted gloves are popular and may be dyed to match attendants' dresses.

The 'Marilyn Monroe' look is the predominant style at the Bridal Boutique, according to owner, Mrs. Rosa Rey.

The look, adapted from the late actress, is a fitted waist that comes to a point at the bodice. The long gown fashioned from satin or taffeta, has puff sleeves and a low neck, Mrs. Rey said.

Tea-length dresses are also popular at her shop. Made from imported lace, taffeta or satin, the sleeves are puffed at the shoulder and narrow into fitted sleeves, she said. Pillbox hats are the popular accompaniment to the shorter dresses.

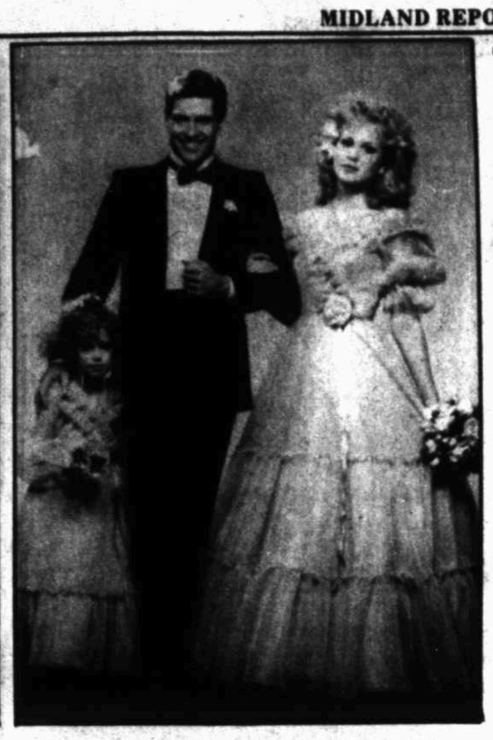

The '20s look is another trend in wedding dresses this season, Mrs. Rey said. "It's a return to elegance," she said. The formal, long-waisted dresses are made from chiffon and are belted with a sash and bow. They have ruffles and long sleeves.

Colors for attendants' dresses are teal, burgundy and dark green, she added.

For accessories, lace pumps and veils are the number one choice at Bridal Boutique for brides-to-be, Mrs. Rey said. "Veils will never lose their popularity."

Piccione, for Alfred Angelo, features a satin wedding dress seamed with pearls. Hand-rolled flowers, pearl scallops, crocheted lace and Venise lace embellish the English Net drop-shouldered yoke.

From Dance-Allure by Michele Piccione, features a Southern belle look for the maid of honor, featured in mauve, blue, wine, sea green, lavender, buttercup, turquoise, apricot and all white.

Also from the "Dance-Allure" collection is a bridesmaid's gown in taffeta with Schiffli embroidered yoke and collar, and bustle-back skirt, in blue, pink, peach, ruby or lavender.

From the Bridallure collection by Michele Piccione is a taffeta gown with a skirt which flows into a cathedral train. Coordinating dotted swiss gowns for the attendents are from the Dance-Allure collection.

Legs take on hosiery of a different color

Sexy stockings are back for fall '83, and the selection of styles and fibers is tremendously tempting. From black lace hose to sweater-knit tights there is a color and pattern for every ensemble.

For evening wear, black lace and mesh look great with high-heeled sandals for dining and dancing. Or the popular and dramatic look of a black-and-white dress, white stockings and black shoes is a sure attention-getter.

If patterns are your thing you'll find hearts, flowers, dots, stripes, spangles and other decorative touches to accent your favorite outfit. Shimmering gold or silver pantyhose add an extra sensuous touch to a late-night fashion look.

Another super look is the semi-opaque pantyhose that gives a hint of color to your legs without the heaviness of tights.

"Leg wear is a wonderful basic, an accessory, an instant body treatment and ready to wear, like a blouse or scarf you buy on a whim," notes Barbara Guzy, vice president of Round-the-Clock, a leading hosiery manufacturer. "There is so much to try, to buy, to wear, to enjoy! And all so affordable."

True, an investment in several styles and shades of leg wear can add new dimensions to your wardrobe, enabling you to achieve strikingly different looks from the same separates. For example, a black dress with gold belt and gold accessories looks dressed for evening with shimmery gold hose and shiny black heels. For the office you can wear the same dress with white accessories and white hose, with perhaps a white jacket for a businesslike effect.

The new colors for fall are reflected in the collections of leg wear in charcoal, jet black, brilliant white, scarlet, wine and muted bone. And patterns from art deco to dainty lace let you reflect your personality and mood via your luscious legs. CNS
