Salomon execs quit

Billionaire Buffett ready to take command

By Rick Gladstone
AP Business writer

NEW YORK — Salomon Inc.'s two top executives said Friday they were willing to resign to contain the damage to the bond-trading giant, immersed in a scandal surrounding its abuses in Treasury auctions.

Salomon also said well-known multibillionaire investor Warren Buffett, who holds a big stake in the company and sits on the board of directors, would take command temporarily.

"We are taking this action to protect the firm, its 9,000 people and its clients," said the statement from John H. Gutfreund, chairman and chief executive officer, and Thomas W. Strauss, president.

The announcement came a week after the leading Wall Street company first disclosed it had flouted the rules in bidding for Treasury bonds, bills and notes, the critical securities auctioned by the federal government to finance its debt and keep the economy running smoothly.

The irregularities snowballed into a major scandal on Wednesday when Salomon admitted additional violations and said Gutfreund, Strauss and Vice Chairman John W. Meriwether knew about at least one of the incidents but failed to tell regulators promptly.

The company said Friday that Gutfreund, pronounced "good friend," and Strauss would submit their resignations at an emergency board meeting Sunday morning. It said Meriwether's status also would be considered at that time, so it was unclear whether he would quit as well.

In addition, Salomon said, "Warren Buffett has advised Salomon that he is prepared to become chairman and chief executive officer on an interim basis."

Word of the Salomon cheating led to a federal investigation, caused a 25 percent drop in the company's own stock price and aroused fears of a drop in investor confidence on Wall Street.

In its statement, Salomon said it wasn't aware of any further irregularities than it had already disclosed.

"Salomon's business is excellent and we have been looking forward to a record year. We cannot allow our unfortunate mistake of not taking prompt action, when in April we learned of one unauthorized bid at a February Treasury auction, to

SATURDAY NEWS WATCH

Ride 'em cowboy

Texas peace officers will compete in the Midland Sheriff's Department Rodeo Association rodeo benefiting the Permian Basin Make-A-Wish Foundation this weekend.

Contestants from all over the state will be competing in 12 events beginning at 6 p.m. today and at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Midland County Rodeo Arena on the Midland County Fairgrounds. A rodeo parade will be held at 2 p.m. today from Dennis the Menace Park to the fairgrounds.

Rodeo events will include bareback-bronc riding, chute dogging, barrel racing, calf roping, two-man calf tying, wild-cow milking, saddle-bronc riding, wild-horse racing, goat tying, team roping, ribbon roping and bull riding.

Proceeds from the Texas Peace Officers Rodeo Association-sanctioned rodeo, will be donated to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, which grants wishes to children who suffer from life-threatening diseases.

What about Bob?

MIAMI — Conditions were ideal Friday for a tropical storm brewing in the Bahamas to turn into a hurricane as it crept toward the Florida coast, weather forecasters said. Tropical Storm Bob packed 45 mph sustained winds Friday afternoon and was threatening the northern Bahama islands, including the chain's capital city of Nassau, the National Hurricane Center said. "It's over warm water and it will cross the Gulf Stream. That's like adding high-octane fuel to your car," said the center's Max Mayfield. The storm was expected to bring showers and possibly violent winds to the Florida coast this weekend. Mayfield said the Georgia-Carolina coastline could be in Bob's path.

Best, worst plates

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — South Carolina's wren-emblazoned license plates edged Georgia's peach by two votes as the best of 1991, while Indiana was tagged the worst, a collectors' association said Friday. Nearly 400 members cast ballots in the 19th annual contest, which encourages states to make more attractive license plates. South Carolina beat Georgia 131-129. Nebraska finished a distant third with 62 votes for its "spiffy looking windmill," while Hawaii collected 46 votes and Texas received 24.

Ex-Gorbachev aide warns of state coup

By Francis X. Clines
New York Times News Service

MOSCOW — Aleksandr N. Yakovlev, an estranged confidant and reform strategist of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, warned Friday that party reactionaries were planning a vindictive Stalinist coup d'etat as he quit the Communist Party.

Yakovlev

Yakovlev's departure had been expected for months. But he left with a melodramatic flourish, cautioning the nation that the leadership of the party, while losing influence, is nevertheless "making preparations for social revenge, a party and state coup."

He offered no details or names and made no estimate of the hard-liners' chances of success as the nation prepares for a new stage of political reorganization in the form of proposed union treaty, which is to decentralize Kremlin power, shifting more authority to the republics, and speed electoral and constitutional change.

In recent months, Yakovlev's personal influence with Gorbachev has waned after their early years in mapping the per-

Councilman opposes certificate proposal

By Debbie Lincecum

The city of Midland is considering buying a parking lot, conducting a drainage study and renovating City Hall as part of $2 million in capital improvements, some of which are expected to be funded by the sale of certificates of obligation.

Some councilmen have said they are unwilling to approve the entire list of proposed projects because it would require a tax increase. City figures show issuance of $2 million in certificates would require slightly above a half-cent tax increase for one year during an 11-year repayment schedule.

City Finance Director Troy Gifford said certificates differ from

Bush, Gephardt trade shots over benefits

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Round two began Friday in the fight between Republicans and Democrats over how to blame the other party for the federal government's failure to ease the financial strain on millions of Americans who have been unemployed for more than six months.

President Bush got in the first punch by announcing in Kennebunkport, Me., that he will block implementation of a $5.3 billion plan for extended unemployment benefits that was passed overwhelmingly by Congress two weeks ago.

The bill specified that benefits would be extended only if the Republican president certified the existence of an emergency that required breaking the budget agreement reached last year between Congress and the White House. Congress put in that condition because it couldn't agree on a way to raise the funds.

Study of bachelors overturns stereotypes, researcher says

By Malcolm Ritter
AP Science writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Men who have never married are often quite happy with their lives, and they can use widely different coping styles to remain satisfied, a researcher said Friday.

A preliminary study of 30 white, heterosexual men between ages 40 and 50 also disputed some longstanding stereotypes about bachelors, said Charles Waehler, an assistant professor of counseling psychology at the University of Akron in Ohio.

Waehler spoke in an interview before presenting his research at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

He said that contrary to some popular beliefs, the men were not women-haters, nor emotionally fixated on a parent or a lost love, unattractive, unluckily isolated by geography or making a "political statement."

He did find three personality styles that formed a continuum, with the happiest men at each extreme.

At one end were "rigid and satisfied" men. They tended to avoid serious relationships with either sex. They frequently lacked warm feelings for others, and tended to define their relationships in terms of a shared activity, like tennis, rather than emotional content.

Drier weather in forecast

Staff Report

Today's forecast is fair in the morning becoming partly cloudy in the afternoon with a high in the mid 90s and south winds 10-15 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is predicted to be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms and a low in the mid 60s.

Sunday is predicted to be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of afternoon showers or thunderstorms and a high near 90, the NWS said.

Yesterday's high was 94, compared to the record high of 104, set in 1946. The record low for today's date is 60, set in 1972.

TEXAS

Sunshine returned to much of Texas on Friday, although skies remained partly cloudy and some scattered showers lingered because of Gulf moisture.

Showers and a few thunderstorms also were scattered along the coastal plains from Brownsville to Beaumont. The activity developed as the sea breeze began to move inland. Isolated thunderstorms, triggered by afternoon heating, developed in the hill country. West Texas was mostly sunny with thin clouds.

Winds were southerly statewide at speeds of 5 to 15 miles per hour.

Temperatures rose into the 90s, with 80s in East Texas. Laughlin Air Force Base near Del Rio reported 101 degrees at 3 p.m.

The North Texas forecast for today called for partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures with a chance of thunderstorms through Sunday. High temperatures in the low to mid 90s were expected with lows in the low to mid 70s.

South Texas was expected to have partly cloudy skies with hot days and mild nights. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms are possible in the southeast and along the coastal plains. Highs were expected to reach near 100 degrees with lows in the 70s.

Forecasters expected West Texas would be partly cloudy through Sunday with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms. High temperatures were expected in the 80s with lows in the 60s. Peaks near 100 were on tap for the Big Bend lowlands.

NATION

Rain was scattered over the central third of the nation Friday and across parts of the South.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended across Kansas, southeastern Nebraska, the eastern Dakotas and into the upper Mississippi Valley.

Heaviest rainfall during the six hours up to 2 p.m. EDT was 1.44 inches at Omaha, Neb.

Wet, stormy weather also was scattered along the Gulf of Mexico coast, southwestern Alabama, southeastern Arkansas, southeastern Oklahoma, northeastern Florida, the Georgia coast and the coast of the Carolinas.

Elsewhere, showers and thunderstorms were widely scattered over north-central Colorado and central Maine.

In the Atlantic, the center of tropical storm Bob was southeast of Freeport, the Bahamas, moving toward the west. It was expected to turn to the northwest on Saturday and could threaten the Georgia and Carolina coast in the next few days, forecasters said.

Friday's low for the Lower 48 states was 38 at Truckee, Calif.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Buffett comes to Salomon's resuce — again

NEW YORK (AP) — This isn't the first time Salomon Inc. leaned on billionaire Warren E. Buffett in a time of need.

Buffett agreed Friday to step in temporarily as chairman and chief executive officer at Salomon as part of a management shake-up aimed at stemming the damage from an embarrassing bond-trading scandal.

John H. Gutfreund, the reigning chief, and Thomas W. Strauss, president, will resign Sunday following the firm's admission that it cheated in several bond auctions.

Buffett came to Salomon's rescue in the fall of 1987 when Salomon was attempting to fend off a hostile takeover bid by Revlon's Ronald O. Perelman. Buffett gained a large stake in Salomon and a seat on the board of directors.

Buffett, 60, is known as "the oracle of Omaha" for his astute investment decisions made through his investment company, Berkshire Hathaway Inc. His personal net worth is estimated at more than $3 billion.

Born in Omaha, Neb., Buffett attended the University of Pennsylvania, University of Nebraska and received a master's degree from Columbia University at age 21.

He founded a partnership in the 1950s with $100,000 borrowed from friends and relatives. By the time the partnership was dissolved in 1969, it was worth millions.

When Buffett acquired Berkshire Hathaway in 1964, the firm had one textile mill and assets of about $10 million. Through conservative "value investing," a strategy to stick with investments through the long haul, Buffett nurtured Berkshire Hathaway into a diversified firm with assets exceeding $6 billion.

Its interests range from encyclopedias to furniture to insurance, as well as investments in Coca Cola Co., Capital Cities-ABC Inc. and the Washington Post Co.

Most recently, Buffett made substantial investments in Wells Fargo & Co. and American Express Co.

Buffett, one of the world's wealthiest men, still buys suits off the rack and has kept his home in a modest Omaha neighborhood.

"I had never put more than 25 percent of our assets into one company," Buffett said.

Some of Buffett's ideas defy the conventional wisdom of American business. For example, he sees no benefit in splitting Berkshire Hathaway's stock even though the price of each share has reached about $8,900. He leaves to shareholders decisions on where the company's charitable donations should be sent.

harm the firm."

The announcement came nearly five hours after the New York Stock Exchange delayed trading in Salomon's shares because it had expected news that would affect the price.

Salomon's stock plunged $4.75 a share in heavy trading on Thursday to $26.87½, and the delay in trading Friday sent a shudder through the entire market.

Salomon is the biggest broker in the $2.2 trillion Treasury market and one of an elite group of 40 primary dealers in Treasury securities, which entitles it to buy them directly from the government and resell them to the public.

The firm admitted violating the 35 percent limit on purchases in some Treasury auctions, using customer names without permission to make some bids, and purchasing $1 billion worth of securities as result of a botched practical joke.

WARNS: Yakovlev predicts Stalinist coup d'etat estroika and glasnost strategies together.

(From 1A)

He resigned from the president's staff this summer after making a direct challenge to the party by co-founding the Democratic Reform Movement, a loosely defined opposition vehicle designed to offer a nationwide political alternative to communism's remaining influence.

Yakovlev's role in this new insurgency movement caused the Communist hierarchy to recommend his expulsion from the party on Thursday, and he responded Friday with his pre-emptive resignation, complaining that his "human dignity has been offended" and that his party rights were violated.

Yakovlev, 67, who has spent most of his career in party and government work, made an earlier coup warning in January when, in defending the Gorbachev program, he said that the possibility of a new sort of coup existed among party middle-managers and grass-roots bureaucrats bent on sabotaging reform.

He predicted, "We are going to pass over from non-freedom to freedom without bloodshed, without total violence." His newest warning said the party leadership was lately "getting rid of the democratic wing in the party and preparing social revenge."

In turning in his party card, Yakovlev said, "I would like to warn society that an influential Stalinist group has formed within the leadership core of the party, speaking against the political course since 1985 and slowing social progess in the country."

He made no mention of Gorbachev, head of the party as general secretary. The Soviet leader has demonstrated a greater willngness to challenge the party's hard-liners, even successfully dictating a more liberal party charter last month at a hierarchy meeting notable mainly for how muted the complaints and challenges to Gorbachev were.

Yakovlev left the party as it prepared to expel him. This is a procedure that amuses rather than alarms the Soviet public as a touch of self-parody for a party losing thousands of members a week beyond Yakovlev.

A more interesting question in the popular mind is precisely what soured the personal relationship between Yakovlev and Gorbachev.

No clear answer has emerged. One school of speculation is that Yakovlev actually is on some final mission for the Soviet leader, building a new non-Communist political vehicle by which Gorbachev could seek popular election to the presidency at some future point when the party is safely at rest.

Yakovlev joined the party in 1944, and did various jobs in party work and journalism until he became an instructor in the Central Committee's department of propaganda and agitation in 1962. He rose to acting chief of the department in 1965.

In 1973 he was sent to Canada as ambassador, in a move widely viewed as exile imposed by Leonid I. Brezhnev, then Soviet leader, for a magazine article criticizing the chauvinism of Russian nationalist writers. When Gorbachev came to power in 1985, he put Yakovlev back in charge of the propaganda department of the Central Committee and made him an adviser.

Gorbachev has gone through a score of inner-sanctum advisers in recent years. One critical moment occurred last fall when he retreated from some of his own reform plans and resorted to traditional central controls of the Kremlin.

This proved ineffective but it stirred the resignation of Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, who issued a warning about the lingering threat of dictatorship and later joined with Yakovlev and other opponents of the hard liners in forming the new Democratic Reform Movement.

In joining, Yakovlev said one basic political difference was that Gorbachev still publicly professed faith in the party, while Yakovlev concluded that it was beyond reform.

"We must not be hypocritical and must honestly admit that democratic rebirth of the Communist Party — its breaking with dictatorship's past and its transformation into a capable political organization — has not taken place," he declared in joining the new movement. "The revolution in society has not led to a revolution in the party."

Dogmatic persistence, political inertia and "the constant search for 'enemies' doom the party to an inevitable slide toward confrontation with society," he said.

In resigning, Yakovlev said he was tired of a "smear committee masterminded and orchestrated" by the party's Central Committee. He said it had become "impossible and immoral" for him to remain in the party.

SHOTS: Bush holds out hope for compromise

(From 1A)

"I will probably sign the legislation, but I will not declare it an emergency," said Bush, who called it a "Democratic" bill. "I won't bust the budget, bust the caps on the budget that was agreed to by Democrats and Republicans alike."

Jobless workers from Maine and New York who had been held on standby by the AFL-CIO quickly struck back with a demonstration a few miles from Bush's vacation home. "George Steals from Jobless and Gives to Savings and Loans," one picket's placard said.

"He signs an unemployment benefits bill to show his concern for the unemployed, but then he prevents them from receiving the checks," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri said on a radio feed released in Washington.

"The president has at his fingertips a bulging $8 billion-dollar trust fund collected specifically to help out-of-work Americans. Instead of making excuses, he should be making use of that money to help America's unemployed," said Senate Finance Chairman Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, in a statement issued by his office after Bentsen dictated it from Brazil.

Bentsen and Gephardt didn't mention their unsuccessful efforts to get their fellow Democrats to agree on a deficit-neutral way to raise the funds.

Gephardt said that when Congress ends its vacation next month, "Passing a new unemployment benefits bill will be our highest priority, and is an ideal candidate for overriding his veto if he continues to oppose helping unemployed Americans."

He didn't mention that assembling a veto-proof majority will be very difficult, because many fiscal conservatives who voted for the bill the first time did so because they never thought Bush would let it go into effect.

Amid the partisan pot shots, Bush held out hopes for a compromise on a more limited bill, along the lines of one proposed two weeks previously by Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

"Senator Dole had a good alternative that would have done this in a responsible manner," Bush said, giving his personal endorsement for the first time to a bill Dole drafted with the aid of Bush's Office of Management and Budget.

Dole's plan would cost $3.4 billion, instead of $5.3 billion, because it would cover fewer jobless workers and cover them for a minimum of 26 regular and 10 extra weeks, instead of the 26 regular and 20 extra weeks called for under the congressional plan.

More important for politicians who are seeking re-election, it wouldn't raise tax rates or the deficit.

OPPOSES: Part of property taxes funds issue bonds, another method of funding projects, in that they do not require citizen vote prior to the sale. However, citizens have a 30-day period during which they may call for a referendum to recall the planned sale of certificates of obligation.

At present, the portion of the property tax rate set aside for debt service is 9.75 cents per $100 valuation. City figures show with the added debt it would increase to 10.38 cents for one year — 1993 — to fund the certificate issue, dropping again and continuing to drop throughout the repayment period.

District 4 Councilman Tom Johnston is one who has said he would not support issuance of the certificates of obligation if it required a tax increase.

"I'm totally against raising taxes to fund debt service," he said.

District 3 Councilman Buddy Sipes said the council will likely authorize only $1.25 million in projects.

"There's not much stomach for a tax increase," he said. "So we've got to cut out three-quarters of a million, and I think it can be done. We're working on it."

Topping a preliminary list — $1 million in projects — are $350,000 to purchase a parking area at the Loraine Center; a $175,000 study to determine if storm drainage should become a city utility; and a $150,000 renovation of City Hall.

Also on that list are Angel Stadium improvements worth $100,000; mobile data terminals for police cars costing $85,300; a $65,000 drainage improvement project; $63,000 in channel excavation; and $20,000 in curb and gutter work on Fairgrounds Road.

A secondary list of $993,000 in projects is topped by $300,000 for Norwood Street bridge and excavation work; a $200,000 fire department pumper; and $175,000 in improvements to Carter Avenue.

— Councilman Buddy Sipes

Other projects are a 120-channel recorder for the police detective division at $118,000; another $100,000 for Angel Stadium work; and $100,000 in unspecified traffic improvements.

Some projects would be partially or completely funded by other sources, including existing bond funds and fund balance reserves. A total of $167,300 in mobile data units, for example, would be purchased with existing bond funds and the proposed certificate issue.

Councilmen said no real priorities have been set for funding projects, but before certificates are sold, they must determine the type of work the money will fund.

Gifford said sale is expected late in October, with delivery in late November or early December.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Cocaine arrest

Staff Reports

A Midland man and woman were both arrested and charged with possession of cocaine Friday afternoon.

Wesley DeWitt Jr. and Doris Jean Harris, both of 107 S. Lee St., were arrested 2:30 p.m. Friday at their home.

Deputies with the Midland County Sheriffs Department recovered approximately 11 packets of cocaine valued at $210.

Justice of the Peace Kieth Jobe set bond for DeWitt at $20,000. He set bond for Ms. Harris at $10,000.

DeWitt was on parole until 1999 for a prior possession of a controlled substance charge.

Belly landing

A Marbles Falls pilot survived a landing without his landing gear Friday morning.

W.E. Howard, 64, landed his Piper 250 on its belly and slid 600 feet when the plane's landing gear failed to open at Midland International Airport. He had departed from Schlemeyer Field in Odessa and landed at the Midland airport about 8:50 a.m.

The pilot was not injured and the plane suffered minimal damage, according to a spokesperson at the Department of Public Safety.

Sexual assault

A 31-year-old woman reported she was sexually assaulted shortly after 4 a.m. Friday in her northeast Midland residence.

The victim awoke to find a naked black male in her room. He used physical force and sexually assaulted her. When leaving, he took her purse and other items valued at approximately $1,000.

STUDY: Three personality types form a continuum

(From 1A)

At the other end were "flexible and satisfied" men. They were able to form more significant relationships with others, producing periods of interdependence rather than just independence, Waehler said.

In the middle of the spectrum were "conflicted and dissatisfied" bachelors. They craved close relationships but retreated from them, finding them demanding and constricting, Waehler said. Twelve of the 15 men in this group were in psychotherapy or had been, he said.

Although half of the study participants fell in the dissatisfied category, and another 30 percent in the "rigid" category, Waehler said he doubted those percentages pertained to bachelors in general.

He also said the finding said nothing about homosexual men.

Waehler said he chose to study men past 40 because few marry for the first time after that age. He also said he has never been married, but "I'm only 34, so I have a few years to go."

'Tootsie' Davis

LAMESA — Services for Bennie "Tootsie" Davis, 63, of Lamesa are set for 2 p.m. Sunday at Second Baptist Church with the Rev. Clifton Igo of Crestview Baptist Church officiating. Burial will follow in Lamesa Memorial Park under the direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Davis died Friday in a local hospital following a lengthy illness.

He was born July 8, 1928, in Mangum, Okla., and moved to Lamesa in 1936.

He married Lavelle McAnally in 1949 in Lamesa. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II and the Korean Conflict.

He was a member of Second Baptist Church for 28 years.

He was preceded in death by his brother, Doug Davis, in 1988.

Survivors include: his wife, Lavelle Davis of Lamesa; one daughter, Phyllis Miller of Lamesa; one son, Terry Davis of Midland; four sisters, Linda Birdwell of Marrietta, Okla., and Wanda Goolsby, Joy McQuien and Darla Scott, all of Lamesa; three brothers, Don Davis of Cortez, Colo., Gary Davis of Lamesa and Glenn Davis of Lake Dallas, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Activist lawyer dies in Berkeley

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Charles Garry, an attorney whose clients included Black Panther Bobby Seale and cult leader Jim Jones, died Friday after a cerebral hermorrhage. He was 82.

Garry represented Chicago Seven co-defendant Seale during the trial of a group of radicals charged with conspiring to disrupt the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

In the 1970s, he represented Jones, the cult minister who in 1977 moved most of his People's Temple from San Francisco to Guyana, on the northern coast of South America. Garry was there in 1978 when Jones led more than 900 American followers to their deaths. He escaped the mass suicide-murder by fleeing through the jungle.

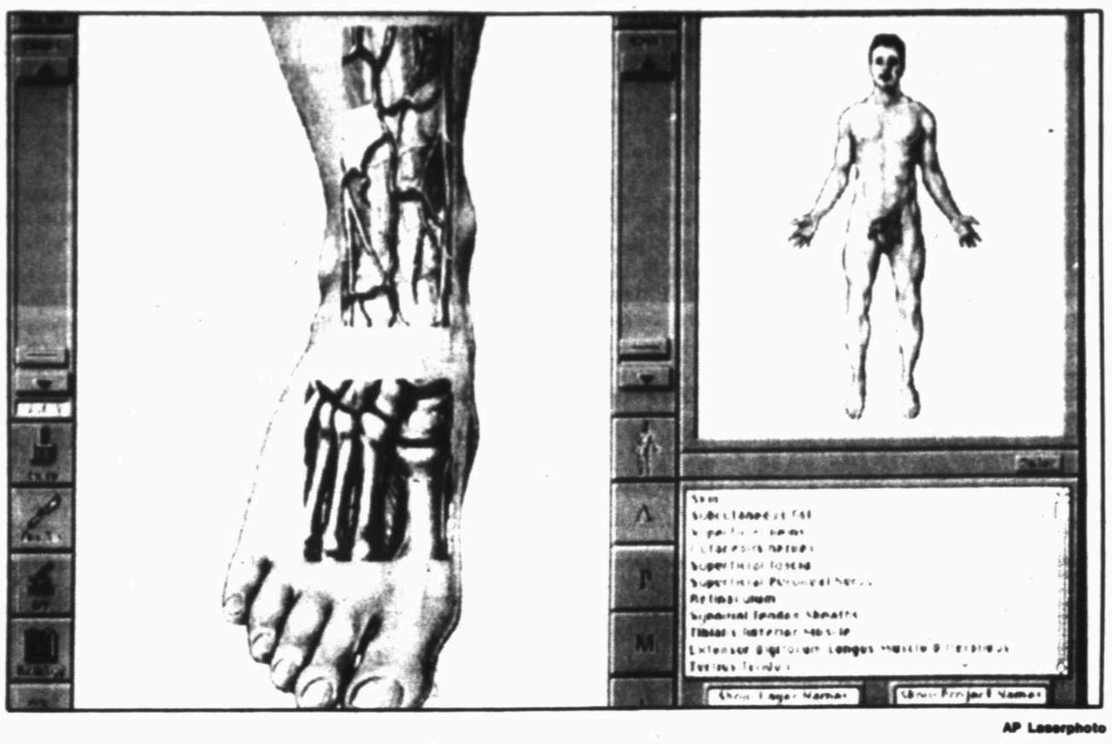
Dissection via computer revolutionizes anatomy



AP Laserphoto

This is a copy of a computer screen showing Animnated Dissection of Anatomy for Medicine (A.D.A.M.) software with which medical students can dissect without cadavers and doctors can show patients exactly what they're about to do to them.

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Adam, a small but muscular fellow who wears only sunglasses and a fig leaf, may eventually revolutionize the way medicine is taught and practiced.

While Adam stands at the ready, the click of a computer mouse — directing an interactive software program — peels off his layers, from his skin to his bone marrow.

The software program takes anatomy out of the textbook and into a computer. With it, medical students can dissect without cadavers and doctors can show patients exactly what they're about to do to them.

"No one has ever illustrated anatomy in this kind of detail," said Greg Swayne, the medical illustrator who's president of A.D.A.M. Software Inc., a medical illustration company. "What we'll end up with is the Gray's Anatomy of the 21st century," he said, referring to the standard anatomy text.

Educators and doctors say they're intrigued by A.D.A.M.

"I've got 20 years teaching anatomy to medical students, and I've seen a lot of different-type innovations come and go," said Dr. Andrew F. Payer, associate professor of anatomy and neuroscience at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston. "I really believe this particular program is probably the most innovative I've seen, with the most potential."

A.D.A.M. stands for Animated Dissection of Anatomy for Medicine, but Swayne admits the acronym came first.

The design team is working its way up Adam's body. The foot and lower leg went on the market in January. The knee and hip are almost done. The thoracic region, upper extremities and head and neck will follow within two years, Swayne said.

Twenty-eight feet programs have been sold to podiatrists.

"I've been on the floor of our exhibit hall at our annual meeting, and there's always a crowd around the A.D.A.M. exhibit," said Dean M. Wakefield, spokesman for the American Podiatric Medical Association.

A.D.A.M. for MacIntosh computers sells for $3,450; IBM users pay $3,750.

The price isn't necessarily a stumbling block for "a modern podiatric medical establishment," Wakefield said. "You know, $3,600 or so in an effort to contribute to patient education may pale by comparison with $36,000 for some automobiles these days."

With the system's "scalpel," students can slice through Adam's skin, exposing what's underneath without any bleeding. They can pry apart his muscles, saw his bones and install screws to heal a nasty fracture.

"This is going to be to doctors what airline simulators have been for pilots," Swayne said.

"Cadaver dissection is really becoming a dying art," he said.

But at least one educator says A.D.A.M. won't mean the end of dissection and surgical practice. "It's not a total replacement," said Dr. Margaret Hougland, who wants to test A.D.A.M. at East Tennessee State University's Division of Health Sciences. "You still have to have the touch."

A.D.A.M.'s designers are already working on improvements. Coming soon will be four races of Adam with changing skin tones, and an Eve.

Indian plane crash kills 69 day after hijack threat

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An Indian Airlines flight caught fire and plunged into the hilly jungle of remote eastern India on Friday, news reports said. All 69 people aboard were killed, officials said.

The crash came a day after the airline received a hijack threat, officials said.

The 13-year-old Boeing 737-200 flying from Calcutta crashed 27 miles short of its destination of Imphal, capital of the state of Manipur on the Burmese border.

Press Trust of India reported that villagers and a guard at Imphal airport said they saw the jet coming down in a ball of fire over a hydroelectric project on nearby Loktak Lake. The news agency did not elaborate on the accounts.

An airline official said a separatist group in the neighboring state of Assam threatened on Thursday to hijack a flight from Calcutta to Jorhat in Assam. The guerrillas are fighting a secessionist campaign against the Indian army.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said authorities were alerted Thursday but that nothing happened. He said the threat came in anonymous calls to the airports in Calcutta and Jorhat.

A government spokesman, Ramohan Rao, said he had not heard anything to indicate that Friday's Flight IC-257 was a target of sabotage or hijacking.

Rao said the cause of the crash was not immediately known. An investigation is mandatory.

■ More world news/5C

Initial reports blamed the disaster on bad weather, which often is stormy at this time of year. But a meteorologist in New Delhi said he had no reports of inclement weather and reported an average wind speed of 12 to 18 mph.

The 65-minute, 370-mile flight was bound for the remotest corner of India, 1,050 miles east of New Delhi.

Two air force helicopters sighted the wreckage near Loktak Lake in the Thanging Hills, a lush area that climbs northward toward the Himalayas, Indian news agencies reported.

Salvage teams traveling on tortuous roads reached the site three to four hours later. Efforts to recover the bodies and wreckage were hampered by heavy rain, Press Trust said.

It was the eighth crash for India's domestic carrier since 1963, and each involved more than 30 deaths. Investigations showed that human error caused at least two of the crashes — the most recent ones, in February 1990 and October 1988.

In Seattle, Boeing spokesman David Jensen said the company only had sketchy information about the crash. Another Boeing spokesman, Steve Smith, said he was unaware of past problems with the aircraft, but "that's not the kind of thing we would divulge anyway."

Jensen said the plane was delivered to Indian Airlines in 1977, and had logged 37,499 flights and 29,870 flight hours, which he characterized "as kind of the mid-range" for 737s that old.

He said the company's representative in Bombay was dispatched to the crash site.

The state-owned airline released a passenger list of 62 names, and said there was an additional infant on board. There were six crew members.

The plane went down a few minutes before 1 p.m. (3:30 a.m. EDT), the airline said. The control tower lost contact five mintues before the plane was scheduled to land.

Officials said the company did not have the nationalities of the passengers, but said it was unlikely any foreigners were on the flight.

Imphal, a city of 150,000 residents, is in a zone restricted to foreigners because of periodic tribal insurrections. Foreign nationals must obtain permits issued by the federal government in New Delhi.

Indian Airlines is one of the largest domestic air carriers outside the United States, flying to 62 destinations, including eight in neighboring countries. It makes at least 240 flights a day.

McCarthy to leave for trip to hideaway

LONDON (AP) — Former hostage John McCarthy said Friday he is still adjusting to a life of freedom and is finding some aspects — such as the taste of beer — even better than he remembered.

McCarthy toasted his freedom with a glass of beer in the officers' mess at the Royal Air Force base at Lyneham, 80 miles west of London, where he has been undergoing medical tests.

"It tastes even better than I remembered. It's a taste I have refound, and I like it," he said.

McCarthy, 34, was freed Aug. 8 after five years as a prisoner of the Islamic Jihad in Lebanon.

A photographer and film crew were allowed to take pictures of him relaxing at RAF Lyneham as a concession to news organizations, which otherwise have been kept away to allow him to recuperate privately with family and close friends.

McCarthy appeared happy and relaxed as he sat with his father Pat and brother Terrence, reading through some of the 300 cards a day he has received from well-wishers.

McCarthy planned to leave RAF Lyneham by helicopter Saturday for a secret hideaway, one of several arranged to enable him to recover away from reporters.

Among his visitors at the undisclosed location will be Peggy Say, sister of U.S. hostage Terry Anderson, with whom McCarthy spent the past year in captivity.

TABC threatens to ban Budweiser

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission is threatening Anheuser-Busch Co.'s beer sales in the Lone Star State over a "Bud Man" promotion that's yielded money for the state Parks and Wildlife Department.

State officials said the promotion amounts to an illegal inducement to buy an alcoholic beverage, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

If the company does not end the promotion, regulators could suspend or cancel its licenses to do business in Texas, said Randy Yarbrough, the commission's assistant administrator.

Anheuser-Busch officials said in a statement that they believe the promotion is legal.

The "Search for Bud Man" promotion features certificates bearing the likeness of the caped Bud Man character. Customers may find the certificates in 12- and 24-packs of Budweiser, Bud Light and Bud Dry beer.

For each certificate a customer mails to the brewer's St. Louis headquarters in the state promotion, Anheuser-Busch makes a $1,000 donation to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The beer company already made a $100,000 contribution to Parks and Wildlife to start off the program, which was to run from Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Texas liquor laws specify that manufacturers cannot induce retailers or customers to buy their products, Yarbrough said.

In other states, consumers who find Bud Man are eligible to collect prizes, which is illegal in Texas, the newspaper reported.

Yarbrough said that when Texas regulators approved the Bud Man promotion, they set rules on how it would have to work to be legal.

"We did give approval with the proviso no purchase was required and every place they advertised it, it was clear someone could tear off this slip and send it in to participate, too, without a purchase," Yarbrough said. "They didn't follow through with what they were told to do."

Court: Casino can't collect debt

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Texas man who left a Bahamas casino holding the bag for $25,000 in gambling markers cannot be forced to pay the debt, a federal appeals court ruled Friday.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said that since Texas public policy prevents enforcement of gambling debts, the Cable Beach Hotel and Casino can do nothing about George J. Aubin's decision to put stop payments on checks.

The decision reversed a ruling by U.S. District Judge Lynn N. Hughes, who ordered Aubin to pay the casino $25,000 plus attorney's fees. The opinion does not reflect Aubin's hometown.

On appeal, the 5th Circuit said it could only consider the law and public policy regarding Texas. The panel quoted a 1973 Texas civil appellate court ruling on a similar case.

Desert Storm veteran finally becomes citizen

HOUSTON (AP) — A Desert Storm veteran who became a United States citizen Friday says he hopes to help other Hispanic immigrants avoid the 16-year battle he fought with the federal bureaucracy.

Jorge Rincones, 28, participated Friday morning in a citizenship ceremony at the Immigration and Naturalization Service, 16 years after his family emigrated from Mexico.

"Everybody has dreams, right? My first dream was to become a soldier in the military," he said Friday.

Rincones enlisted in the Marines in 1985, serving in the Galveston Amphibious Assault Reserve Unit, attached to the 4th Amphibian Battalion of the 4th Division, Fleet Marine Force. The military requires only legal residency to enlist.

"I'll be taking an oath to bear arms for this country. I gotta bear arms? I already did," Rincones said before the ceremony.

But one mixup after another kept delaying his naturalization hearing. The Immigration and Naturalization Service sent a notice for one hearing, but it wasn't forwarded to his new address. When he inquired later, he was told he would have to go through the two-year process again.

A week ago, it took a call from the office of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, to straighten out one more bureaucratic wrinkle.

He ended up in a foxhole in Saudi Arabia during the Persian Gulf War, fighting for a country that hadn't yet adopted him.

He was so frustrated and depressed he almost moved back to Mexico.

"I was telling my wife before the war, if they don't give it to me, I guess I'll go back to Mexico," he said. "What's the use if I'm not a citizen. When you have a goal and you don't get it, you always feel down."

City chief promoted despite indictments

DALLAS (AP) — Fort Worth's city manager, the subject of a federal grand jury investigation, was promoted to the position in 1989 despite then pending indictments, a newspaper reported.

David Ivory, promoted to city manager in September 1989, received at least $200,000 in consulting jobs, cash payments and unsecured bank loans as an assistant city manager, The Dallas Morning News reported Friday in a copyright story.

Ivory sought consulting income and loans far in excess of his salary to try to revive a faltering business investment, the newspaper said.

Federal sources told The News their two-year inquiry has focused in recent months on possible violations of income tax laws, including filing false returns in connection with Ivory's personal business dealings in the mid- to late 1980s.

Ivory

"He got in over his head," an unnamed source knowledgeable about the case told the newspaper.

One area of the investigation has focused on a now-defunct plastics recycling business that reportedly is under scrutiny by Internal Revenue Service investigators, sources familiar with Ivory's case said.

The North Carolina-based business was launched by Ivory and other investors, including his twin brother, in the mid-1980s. At least one official called the company a "get-rich-quick scheme."

Federal authorities reportedly began scrutinizing Ivory's personal finances in late 1989, when he pleaded no contest to state misdemeanor charges after a seven-month investigation by Fort Worth police.

Ivory was accused then of illegally accepting $8,000 in consulting fees from a Missouri insurance company that had business pending before the Fort Worth City Council.

The city manager said he could not speculate on whether he would volunteer to testify if asked.

"That would depend on the advice of my counsel," he said.

Ivory, who earns $96,000 annually as city manager, has an unlisted telephone number and could not be contacted for comment Friday by The Associated Press. He refused to comment to The News on the current federal investigation or his financial dealings.

The newspaper said it had learned that the consulting payments from Business Men's Assurance Company of America, of Kansas City, Mo., were only a fraction of loans and payments Ivory received.

Litter campaign shifts focus to urban children

AUSTIN (AP) — Could the state highway department's new anti-litter campaign be the candy wrapper rap?

The popular "Don't Mess with Texas" campaign has roped Bubba into cutting down the trash he tossed from his pickup window by 70 percent, making the program the most effective in the country, officials said Friday.

Now, the department wants to convince young, hip dudes not to throw their litter down on city streets.

The six-year "Don't Mess with Texas" campaign has targeted males, age 18 to 35, who drove pickup trucks, according to the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Sports stars and entertainers such as Willie Nelson, the late Stevie Ray Vaughan and The Fabulous Thunderbirds who donated their time to make radio and television commercials helped the program become extremely successful — especially in rural areas, officials said.

But studies have shown that deliberate litterers are getting younger and live in cities, making urban litter a growing problem, the department said.

"In addition to Bubba, we're aiming at inner-city kids and candy wrappers," said Al Zucha, highway department spokesman.

"Our target group now includes inner-city males aged 6 to 16. Of course, they don't drive trucks, so the tone of the campaign will reach out to them," Zucha said.

Carlsbad rents water to state

CARLSBAD (AP) — The city of Carlsbad will be leasing some of its water rights to the state of New Mexico to help pay a water debt owed to Texas.

Mayor Bob Forest said the state will lease rights to about 9,000 acre-feet of water from Carlsbad. The city acquired the rights when it bought a farm in nearby Malaga in 1965.

As part of the six-year lease agreement, Carlsbad will get $150,000 a year in the first two years of the agreement. For the remainder of the lease, the city will get $355,000 annually, plus $91,000 a year to get the Malaga farm back in operation. The rest of the income from the lease will be used by Carlsbad to buy future water rights and develop its own water system.

New Mexico expects to deliver 10,000 acre-feet of water to the Texas state line each year.

Wright: Base closings require planning

AUSTIN (AP) — The federal government and military-dependent communities must plan now to avoid problems in cities where bases are slated for closure, former U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright said Friday.

"We're in a new era. The Cold War's over. We're going to be scaling down military activity," Wright said. "If we can channel that intelligently into productive, forward-looking civilian activity, it can be a wonderful thing for the country."

Wright spoke to the Governor's Task Force on Economic Transition, a panel helping Texas towns prepare to lessen their dependence on the military.

Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth, Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin and Chase Field Naval Air Station in Beeville are among 34 military installations nationwide slated for closure.

Local communities and defense contractors should prepare demilitarization plans, and the federal government should make the same type of program it did during World War II to prepare for the conversion to a peacetime economy, Wright said.

"It's ... common sense for everybody involved in the communities that now have defense-related installations to have a standby program and recognize the reality that quite probably they're going to have to phase out," said Wright, of Fort Worth.

He also suggested that one of the three Texas bases that will close be considered as a job training center for workers displaced as a result of the pending free trade agreement with Mexico.

The mayors of Beeville, Austin and Fort Worth described for the task force what they said were the devastating effects the military closures will have on their communities.

Carlos Salazar, Beeville mayor, said Bee County unemployment was expected to increase by 10 percent after Chase closes, while Austin mayor Bruce Todd said the Bergstrom area will lose more than 13,000 jobs in layoffs and the ripple effect on the economy.

Todd and Kay Granger, mayor of Fort Worth, said they also fear that a large percentage of military retirees will move after the bases are closed.

Questions surround writer's death

WASHINGTON (NYT) — A freelance writer who was found dead with his wrists slashed in a hotel room in Martinsburg, W. Va., a week ago was buried near here Friday amid uncertainty about the cause of death and evidence that he was working on an article about a major government conspiracy.

The body of Joseph Daniel Casolaro, 44, of Fairfax City, Va., was discoved by West Virginia authorities on Saturday in what was tentatively ruled a suicide. Casolaro's family and friends said he had told them he was going to Martinsburg to meet a source for the story he had been working on for more than a year.

Family members and associates have said that despite the views of they local authorities and the findings of an autopsy, they strongly believed that Casolaro may have been slain because of what he had discovered.

Casolaro had been investigating a case in which the owners of a computer software company, Inslaw, have accused the Justice Department of stealing programs the company had designed to track criminal cases worldwide. The department has denied the accusations and resisted all court challenges by Inslaw.

The case has been in the courts for nearly a decade and Casolaro's brother, Dr. Anthony Casolaro of Arlington, Va., has told reporters he believed his brother may have been close to uncovering a major conspiracy in connection with the Inslaw case.

He said in an interview that his brother told him in the last two months that if he died in an accident, "don't believe it."

Casolaro said he was very skeptical that his brother committed suicide for several reasons, including the fact that his brother had received numerous death threats recently and none of his investigate notes on the case were found with his body.

Friends of the journalist said he was looking into a connection between the Inslaw matter and the Bank of Credit and Commerce International.

Ryan Hendrickson, 13, thwarted a would-be burglar by bashing him on the hand with this baseball bat.

Teen hits intruder with baseball bat

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The hit movie "Home Alone," about a boy thwarting burglars with imaginative mayhem, wasn't total fantasy. Just ask the guy who tried to break in while 13-year-old Ryan Hendrickson was home alone.

Ryan was watching television Wednesday night when he heard a noise that sounded like a window screen being cut.

"I ran to the closet and grabbed a bat," Ryan said Thursday. "I went ... into the dining room, where I saw him cutting the window with a knife.

"He put his left hand in first, and I was waiting for his right hand to come in ... and I took the baseball bat and I hit him as hard as I could."

The man ran. Ryan called 911.

"I was just afraid, and I hit at the first part I seen," Ryan recalled. "I really didn't have time to think about it."

Joyce Hendrickson, who works nights as a welder, said she has told her son what to do if someone tries to break in while she's not home.

"She said if somebody does break in, get out if you can," Ryan said. "But if they are coming in, hit any part of the body you can see."

Mrs. Hendrickson said the house had already been broken into three times, and that many other houses in the neighborhood had been robbed.

"You worry when you leave your son alone, what with the little kids getting killed and things," she said. "I'm so glad he didn't panic."

Ryan thinks he may have broken the man's hand.

Police Lt. Richard Dugan said Ryan took a chance in hitting the burglar.

"Preferably, we would like to see them in an incident like this call 911," Dugan said.

Police find carpet worker dead

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — A carpet mill worker upset after arguing with his ex-girifriend's boyfriend went on a shooting spree Friday, killing two people, including his father, and wounding four others, before killing himself.

The body of Jimmie L. Williams Jr., 23, of Rome, was found late Friday at the Mannington Carpets Inc. plant, where he shot his former girifriend and a supervisor.

Law officers had searched for Williams throughout the day, believing he was at large, armed with a small-caliber rifle and a 9mm pistol, Police Chief Willie Mitchell said.

The body was found near a rear door of the plant, with a gunshot wound to the head, Gordon County Sheriff Sid Roberts said.

Williams left work after the argument at the plant late Thursday, saying he had personal matters to take care of.

Authorities say he shot four people at his house and a neighbor's home in Rome before dawn Friday, then drove about 25 miles back to the carpet mill, where he shot and wounded two more people.

The dead were identified as Williams' father, Jimmie L. Williams Sr., 42, and Michael Angelo Keith, 20, of Rome.

Another man, Ricky Campbell, was hospitalized in serious condition. Helen Williams, the gunman's stepmother, was in stable condition.

The shooting victims at the mill were identified as William's ex-girifriend, Mary Upshaw, a 24-year-old production worker, and night shift supervisor Alfred Hall, 39, who was hospitalized in critical condition.

Mill president Brian Daniels confirmed the argument and that Upshaw, who was treated at a hospital and released, was William's former girifriend.

Mud fight picks maid of honor

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bride-to-be Katie Schloegel couldn't decide which friend should be her maid of honor Saturday, so Rammin' Slammin' Pam and Heather the Leather Magnet grappled for the honor in a backyard mud-wrestling match.

The loser got a melon and the runner-up title: bridesmaid.

Emily Post would have been appalled.

After three two-minute rounds of shrieking, mudslinging madness, Heather Aldrich emerged from the wading pool muck with the intimidating grimace she used to pin down her victory.

"I practiced faces in the mirror to scare her," she said, laughing as she handed a garden hose to her opponent and friend, Pam Wright.

Pam, an electrical engineer from Boston, said she was disappointed, but content to be a bridesmaid.

Heather, a sales assistant at a Milwaukee television station, wallowed in her victory by pulling the bride into the mud and the three Marquette University alumni hammed it up for a video camera, which captured the event from the ceremonial mud blessing to the bride dunking.

Chaos theory may solve war problems

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — A mathematical theory popularly known as chaos could provide insight on the dynamics of war, knowledge that could improve army training and cut down on friendly fire casualties.

Speaking at a conference on how chaos theory can be applied to psychology, researchers from the U.S. Army Research Institute in Monterey presented data from war exercises.

Chaos is a misleading term, implying pure randomness. Chaos researchers note that a few simple equations can produce complex results that appear random.

If the theory can be applied to the dynamics of war or other human behavior, researchers might be able to model and perhaps even control battles.

Chaos is a misleading term, implying pure randomness. Chaos researchers note that a few simple equations can produce complex results that appear random.

"Sometimes (a battle strategy) seems to work. Sometimes it all falls apart," said Howard McFann, one of the army researchers. "And what we want to do is understand why."

For the past five years, McFann and his colleagues have been collecting data from war exercises at Fort Irwin's National Training Center in Southern California.

During the exercises, radio transceivers track the position of the tanks and personnel carriers of two forces, each consisting of about 3,500 troops, and lasers track the simulated firing of guns and artillery.

Results of the battle exercises are translated into a videotape of shifting red and blue dots that represent the opposing forces. The researchers also keep logs of communication between the different army units.

After comparing the training of the various units and how they performed, "we have been able to provide some ways to enhance performance," McFann said.

The data may also reduce casualties caused by fellow troops, known as friendly fire.

"That's one of the areas we've been studying: what conditions they occur under and when," McFann said.

McFann hopes that chaos theory will help understand how a battle evolves. "It's not a nice simple thing," he said.

In recent years, scientists have used chaos theory to examine a wide range of complex systems, from weather to electrical pulses in the brain.

Psychologists hope that the mathematical techniques will solve problems in their field.

Lujan aides fly to Grand Canyon to study budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top aides to Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan flew to a luxury hotel overlooking the Grand Canyon this week to draft plans for cutting the department's budget.

Agency spokesman Steven Goldstein on Friday defended the trip, but acknowledged that "staying at a three-star hotel" looks bad. Air fare and hotel accommodations for Lujan and the seven aides will probably cost taxpayers about $4,000, Goldstein said.

The trip came under fire from a private group, which scoffed at the Interior Department's explanation that Lujan and his budget aides needed to get away from the agency's noisy Washington headquarters to make tough budget-cutting choices.

"That's ludicrous. Major decisions are made in Washington all the time. Certainly, people can go into a room and say 'no interruptions,'" said Eleanor J. Lewis, director of the Government Procurement Project, a Ralph Nader group.

"Is this going to be a new government expense we're going to have to tolerate? Fly officials out of Washington so they can get some quiet?" she asked.

But Goldstein said the trip, first reported by USA Today, was "appropriate for a Cabinet member and his staff who have to determine a $7 billion budget." The White House Office of Management and Budget has ordered all government agencies to trim spending 5 percent before they submit their 1993 budgets, Goldstein said.

Lujan is in the middle of a three-week trip to western states to inspect parks, dams and other facilities overseen by the Interior Department, Goldstein said.

After this week's stay in the Grand Canyon, he will head to Montana and Wyoming to visit Yellowstone and Glacier national parks, Goldstein said.

Lujan is also attending a $500-a-couple GOP fundraiser for Rep. Ron Marlenee in Bigfork, Mont., Saturday night to help the congressman's bid for the state's soon-to-be single congressional seat in 1992. Another Republican fundraiser is part of Lujan's scheduled trip to New Mexico next week.

It made more sense to fly the seven aides from Washington to the Grand Canyon rather than have Lujan return to Washington for round-the-clock budget briefings, Goldstein said. Two of the seven aides are accompanying Lujan on to Montana and Wyoming, the spokesman said.

IRS delays changing deadlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service is having second thoughts about a proposal to wipe out the traditional April 15 tax-return deadline for most Americans.

The IRS said Friday that it needs more time to study the plan, and that it will not be put into effect before next year's April's deadline.

Under the proposal, the 80 percent of taxpayers who qualify for refunds could file their returns anytime before midnight Aug. 15. Present law allows that extension only for those who file Form 4868 requesting it.

"Our original plan raised concerns for taxpayers and tax professionals," IRS spokesman Frank Keith said in announcing the agency is reconsidering the proposal. "What we want to do now is ... address those concerns.

"But so many people — state tax administrators, accountants, computer programmers and IRS forms and publications writers — need to start planning for next filing season that IRS decided to announce this decision" now, Keith said.

The proposal was offered earlier this year as one way to reduce the heavy paperwork burden on taxpayers and on the IRS itself. Many tax professionals had expected the plan to be put into effect before the next filing season, and IRS officials in some areas had even made public announcements of the change.

Tax experts say the most obvious effect of the proposed change would be to free scores of IRS employees who now process the 5 million or so Forms 4868 filed each year.

There has been speculation that giving most taxpayers an extra four months without any action on their part would prompt tens of millions to put off filing until the last minute. But the IRS says it has no facts on which to base such a conclusion.

Because they are eager to get their refunds, most taxpayers file their returns well before the April 15 deadline.

Mattingly avoids Yankee clipper

Associated Press

■ Baseball roundups/2B

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly did not get his hair cut Friday. It turned out he didn't need to visit the Yankee Clipper, after all.

This latest shear madness in the Bronx ended when Mattingly and New York Yankees management agreed — at least publicly — that the length of his locks wasn't such a big deal.

A day after he was benched and fined $250 because his hair hung at the back of his collar, Mattingly was back in the starting lineup against the Chicago White Sox. He got a big cheer in his first at-bat, then struck out looking against no-hit pitcher Wilson Alvarez.

Mattingly said he'd probably get a haircut soon, and the team captain also softened his stance on being traded.

"I think it's all pretty silly," Mattingly said. "I talked to my dad last night and he asked me what was going on and I said, 'I don't know.'"

"I was pretty much embarrassed by the whole thing. I've never been the kind of player whose been a problem," he said. "We've disagreed on things in the past, but they've never taken the game away from me. If they'd asked me to get a haircut in a day or so, I probably would've done it. But I felt backed into a corner."

The Yankees said Mattingly would not be fined — and that pitchers Pascual Perez and Steve Farr and catcher Matt Nokes, all of whom were told their locks were getting long, would not be forced to get haircuts, either.

None of them got haircuts Friday.

Yankees principal owner George Steinbrenner, banned from the day-to-day operation of the team, said the matter of Mattingly's hair had come up before.

"It was never a problem," Steinbrenner said. "I mentioned it to his agent, and it was always taken care of right away.

"I will not second-guess my people or be critical of them. Besides, I don't know all of the facts," he said. "But anybody who doesn't think Don Mattingly doesn't need to be the leader of this team is crazy. Trade Mattingly? You can't even think of it."

Two months ago, Mattingly told the Yankees he wanted to be traded. He repeated that Thursday, but on Friday said he'd wait until the end of the season before deciding whether to bring it up again.

Writers' lament

Football coaches are a favorite target of sportswriters, and turnabout is fair play. During the Southwest Conference kickoff luncheon, Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes said he read something about the press that he enjoyed.

According to Dykes, it said:

"Dear Abby: I have two brothers. One is a sportswriter. The other was sent to the electric chair. My mother died in an insane asylum. Since I was 3 years old, my father has been a narcotics pusher. One of my sisters is a successful and highly respected prostitute, the other is the common-law wife of the leader of the Hell's Angels.

"Recently I met a wonderful girl shortly after she was released from prison for smothering her illegitimate baby. We are very, very much in love and expect to be married just as soon as her communicable disease clears up.

"My problem is this: Should I tell her about my brother the sportswriter?"

Ryan back

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine will get some relief for his battered pitching staff if Nolan Ryan starts Monday as scheduled.

Ryan, who has not pitched since July 28 because of a strained muscle in his right shoulder, is expected to come off the disabled list Monday and start against the Baltimore Orioles at Arlington Stadium.

Howie's big bat yields big results

■ Midland Angel Mark Howie loves Midland, but he's itching to be in Southern California.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

Howie's Midland Years

	AB	R	H	HR	RBI	AVG
1989	272	51	90	4	51	.331
1990	453	56	132	6	58	.291
*-1991	440	86	158	16	103	.359

*-Through 113 games.

Midland has become Mark Howie's adopted hometown. The Baton Rouge, La., native has played Texas League ball here for three seasons, and he likes it. But there's a part of him that's itching to get out. Itching to get to Southern California.

There's no question that Howie would rather be wearing a California Angels uniform — one he freely admits he deserves — but as long as he's in Midland, he's decided he'll just relax and enjoy it.

With all his popularity, as well as his fondness for West Texas, comes an added bonus: Mark Howie is having the best year of his professional baseball career.

With a .359 average through Thursday, Howie, Midland's first baseman-turned-third baseman, is among the Top Five hitters in all of professional baseball, from the rookie leagues to the majors.

His 103 RBIs are only 16 short of the all-time Midland record (set by Tom Lombarski in 1983). With 18 games to play, Howie's chances are good that he'll establish a new mark.

He has picked up award after award this year, including the Minor League Player of the Month for June, and the Tri-Most Valuable Player at the Class AA All-Star Game in Huntsville, Ala.

"There's a fine line," Howie says of measuring personal success versus team success in the minor leagues. "Everyone in the minors wants to win and they want to get to the big leagues. But if anyone tells you it's more important to stay here and be Texas League champs rather than go ahead and make it to the big leagues, they're lying.

"If you're a ballplayer and you hit .220 and you strike out all the time, but your team wins, it's a Catch-22. Because you're not going anywhere."

Howie, though, is going places. And if anyone has earned it, he has. He is outspoken about that fact, and will be the first to tell you if anyone deserves an extended chance in the majors, it is he.

When major league teams expand their rosters in September, Howie says he expects to get the call to join the Anaheim-based parent team.

"Out of everybody in this organization, I've earned it. No one has done what I've done."

Cowboys, Oilers admit looking ahead

AP Laserphoto

Some feel the Dallas Cowboys are walking in the wrong direction, but Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman feels the team has matured in the past month.

■ The Texas teams meet Sunday night, but it isn't each other the two coaches are looking toward.

HOUSTON (AP) — Two football coaches have finally admitted to looking ahead.

Coach Jack Pardee's Houston Oilers play the Dallas Cowboys in an exhibition game in the Astrodome Sunday night with the Governor's Trophy hanging in the balance, but Pardee is on record as looking two weeks into the future.

"I'd like to see it (trophy) stay in Houston, but I'd rather win the Raiders game," Pardee said.

The Governor's Trophy is awarded each year to the Cowboys-Oilers exhibition winner.

The Oilers host the Cowboys Sunday night and play the Los Angeles Rams Thursday night in Memphis, Tenn., before opening their regular season in the Astrodome Sept. 1 against the Los Angeles Raiders.

"I wouldn't be bothered by 1-3 going into Cleveland, really it wouldn't bother me at all," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "Preseason's more of a preparation for the regular season."

The Cowboys, who open the regular season Sept. 1 at Cleveland, won't worry about the Oilers' run-and-shoot, Johnson said.

"We won't spend much time in preparation for Sunday's game in Houston and we won't show any sort of game plan," he said.

Houston has some rough spots to hone before opening day. Its defense is splintered by injuries and holdouts that have made them easy targets for San Diego and Atlanta quarterbacks.

The Oilers and Cowboys already have scrimmaged twice and Pardee doesn't want to see the injury trend continue.

"Ever since the Dallas scrimmage when we started losing guys," Pardee said. "I'm concerned about the big plays. What we're doing on defense is supposed to take care of the big stuff and give up the short stuff, but big plays are hurting us."

That should be good news for Dallas quarterbacks Troy Aikman and Cliff Stoudt, who couldn't muster a touchdown pass in Monday night's 17-12 loss to the Raiders.

"We've just got a lot of young players on defense," Pardee said. "Defensively we're struggling and we've got to get over it. It's critical, I've been saying that for two or three weeks."

Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

Johnson says the Cowboys are on schedule in their bid for their first playoff berth since 1985 as the team completed the first phase of training camp Friday.

The Cowboys were returning to their Irving headquarters Friday afternoon after the final workout of their second summer at St. Edward's University.

Johnson said at the start of camp that he expects to make the playoffs this season after missing a wild card spot on the final weekend of the 1990 season.

"Everybody's anxious to get back to Valley Ranch," Johnson said. "We're a much better team than when we started camp. We leave Austin with more confidence in ourselves as a team than at any time since I've been here."

Dallas meets the Houston Oilers in an exhibition game Sunday night at the Astrodome and opens the regular season on the road, Sept. 1 against the Cleveland Browns.

The Cowboys break camp with their lineup virtually set for opening day. The latest depth chart shows eight new starters, five on defense.

The greatest shakeup has come in the defensive line, where three of the four starters are new. Ends Jimmie Jones and Tony Tolbert and newly-acquired tackle Tony Casillas join holdover Danny Noonan.

At linebacker, Ken Norton has been installed in the middle to replace Eugene Lockhart, the starter since the middle of the 1984 season until he was dealt to the New England Patriots in April.

Jesse Solomon, another new face to the starting lineup, joins holdover Vinson Smith as the outside linebackers. Offensively, wide receiver Alexander Wright replaces Kelvin Martin on the first unit, although Martin, the team's leading receiver last year, will see plenty of action in possession situations.

Kevin Gogan steps in at left guard for Crawford Ker, who departed via Plan B free agency, and Daryl Johnston has been handed the starting fullback job ahead of incumbent Tommie Agee.

Installing new offensive coordinator Norv Turner's quick-passing scheme has been Johnson's top training camp priority. The Cowboys moved the ball effectively last Saturday but failed to put the ball in the end zone on four trips inside the 20, settling for four field goals in a 17-12 defeat to the Los Angeles Raiders.

"Last year when we left Austin we felt especially good about our defense," Johnson said. "This year we feel the same way about the offense as well as the defense."

The biggest concern for the Cowboys as they break camp is Rob Awalt, whose broken right thumb may force Johnson to place the backup tight end on injured reserve.

HOWIE: Championship, telephone call all that's left land, he figures the big time of the major leagues will feature a more extravagant lifestyle that won't be quite so hard to swallow.

"I think it'll be easier to hit there because the pitchers throw closer to the plate. They pay you tons of money, everything's first class. You get more days off and the hotels are nicer. Huge stadiums, nice fields. How can you not look forward to playing with all that?"

He has toiled in the minors since being drafted by the Oakland A's in 1984. He has played from Medford, Ore., to Huntsville, Ala., to Tacoma, Wash.

Winning the Tri-MVP award at the Class AA All-Star game — where he was 2-for-3 with four RBIs and a three-run homer — was especially gratifying for him.

"All are personally gratifying in one way or another," Howie said of the honors and trophies he's picked up this year. The batting title is nice because it shows people what type of a hitter you are. The Double A All-Star award was good because I had played in Huntsville. The Player of the Month was good because it shows some consistency."

All the accolades come four years after maybe what was one of the lowest points in his career: In 1987, Howie was the last man cut at the end of spring training with Oakland. The A's couldn't use him even though he hit over .300 in spring training.

Howie is a graduate of Louisiana State University and Broadmore High School. He still lives in Baton Rouge in the off-season with his wife Allyson, who was sworn in as a lawyer by the Louisiana Bar in April. The two have a 17-month-old daughter, Michelle. Having to choose between their off-season hometown and Midland in-season is not a bad choice to have to make, Howie said.

"I've never enjoyed a place more to play ball than in Midland. Being from Louisiana, I'm partial to Southern people. Great fans, great weather. We fly everywhere, so the travel's nice."

Manager Don Long won't comment on how he feels Howie would do in the majors, saying it would be pure conjecture. However, he has enjoyed watching his top producer at the plate flourish this season.

"He's had an outstanding year," Long said. "He's worked hard to make himself better defensively, and offensively he's been a really consistent performer all year. He's been really fortunate to have a really good year."

Long said he doesn't know what California's plans are, but said Howie has "obviously played well. If he gets the opportunity, he'd try and make the most of it, I'm sure."

Through all the personal awards and the success of his current team — as well as other teams he's been a part of in the past — Mark Howie has never been a part of a championship baseball team.

"I haven't quite grasped that yet," Howie said. "There would be nothing nicer than to win the championship and then get called up. That would top off a great year."

And after eight years in the minors, he deserves it.

Texas runner Ivan Rodriquez, left, is tagged out at the plate by Cleveland catcher Joel Skinner during first game of a doubleheader Friday night in Cleveland.

Rangers split with Tribe

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Third baseman Dean Palmer committed a three-base error on Carlos Baerga's bases-loaded grounder in the seventh inning as the Indians beat the Rangers 13-9 Friday night for a split of their doubleheader.

Texas won the first game 5-3, ending its five-game losing streak as Juan Gonzalez homered and had one of the Rangers' six doubles.

The second game was tied 8-8 in the seventh when Cleveland loaded the bases on a single and two walks. Mike Jeffcoat (5-3) put the first two runners on, and Kenny Rogers walked Jerry Browne and Luis Lopez in succession to force in the go-ahead run.

In the opener, Kevin Brown (8-9) got his first victory since July 6, allowing three runs and seven hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Gonzalez hit his 22nd home run in the seventh off reliever Jeff Shaw. Ivan Rodriguez and Palmer each had two doubles.

Twins 5, Athelties 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Chuck Knoblauch doubled with one out in the 12th inning, advanced on Kirby Puckett's infield hit and scored on Kent Hrbek's dribbler, lifting Minnesota over Oakland.

Minnesota ended a three-game losing streak and took a 2½-game lead over second-place Chicago in the American League West. Oakland, which lost its fifth straight, fell five games back despite Jose Canseco's first mutliple-homer game since Aug. 2, 1990.

Minnesota tied the game with two runs in the ninth off Dennis Eckersley and won it off Gene Nelson (1-4), who has allowed 12 earned runs in 14 1-3 innings, swelling his ERA to 8.42.

American League

Red Sox 3, Royals 2

BOSTON — Phil Plantier hit his first major league home run, a two-run drive in the eighth inning that led Boston over Kansas City for its eighth victory in nine games.

Bret Saberhagen and Roger Clemens, both former American League Cy Young Award winners, left after seven innings and the score tied 1-1.

With one out in the eighth, Jody Reed singled off Storm Davis (3-8) and Plantier, recalled Aug. 9 for the second time this season, followed with a home run over the screen in left.

Tigers 5, Blue Jays 2

DETROIT — Detroit closed within one game of Toronto in the American League East behind the hitting of Tony Phillips and pitching of former teammate John Cerutti.

Phillips, who earlier hit a solo homer, singled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as the Tigers won 5-2 before the second-largest crowd of the year in Tiger Stadium.

Brewers 8, Orioles 5

MILWAUKEE — Paul Molitor drove in three runs and Don August won his fifth consecutive decision against Baltimore as Milwaukee stopped the Orioles' winning streak at five.

Darryl Hamilton and B.J. Surhoff had three hits each for Milwaukee, which went ahead for good in the fourth.

Yankees 6, White Sox 5

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly made things hairy for Chicago and Roberto Kelly finally beat them with an odd, two-out single in the ninth inning that gave New York a victory.

Mets fold as Bucs roll

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — New York's defense collapsed in its eighth straight loss, committing five run-producing errors as the Pittsburgh Pirates won 8-2 Friday night behind Mets nemesis Randy Tomlin.

Tomlin (8-4) improved to 5-0 lifetime and 4-0 this season against New York by allowing six hits and one run in seven innings. The left-hander has given up just five runs in 30 innings against the Mets this season, a 1.50 ERA.

NL

Don Slaught drove in two runs as the Pirates won for the sixth time in seven games.

All but one of the Pirates' runs resulted from New York errors and a passed ball as the Mets continued their worst late-season slide since August 1982, when they lost 15 straight and 24 of 29. They have lost 20 of 24 and are now fourth in the NL East, a season-high 11½ games behind the first-place Pirates.

Cardinals 4, Expos 2

MONTREAL — Bob Tewksbury allowed only four hits before tiring in the ninth and Ozzie Smith drove in two runs as St. Louis handed Montreal its 19th loss in 24 games.

Smith had three hits as St. Louis won for the fourth straight time.

Tewksbury (8-8) did not allow a runner to reach third base until the bottom of the ninth. Delino DeShields led off with a walk and Ivan Calderon ruined the shutout and chased Tewksbury with a one-out triple. Tewksbury struck out three and walked two.

Lee Smith got the final two outs for his league-leading 32nd save, but surrendered an RBI double to Larry Walker that hit high off the left-field wall.

Cubs 9, Phillies 1

CHICAGO — Rick Sutcliffe pitched his best game in two years, allowing five hits in eight innings and striking out nine.

Sutcliffe (3-4) won for the first time in three starts since coming off the disabled list on Aug. 6. He had surgery on his right shoulder on May 7, 1990, and has been bothered by shoulder weakness during his comeback.

Reds 5, Giants 0

SAN FRANCISCO — Kip Gross allowed five hits in 8⅓ innings and Joe Oliver hit a three-run homer.

Gross (5-4) ended a personal three-game losing streak for the Reds' third victory in 11 games. The Giants lost only their third home game since July 5.

Angels win 8-5 for third straight

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Marcus Lawton robbed Jorge Alvarez of a game-tying home run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning, as the first-place Midland Angels took their third straight win over the San Antonio Missions here Friday, 8-5.

Lawton's heroics in left field moved the Angels into a four-game lead over El Paso in the Texas League Western Division, as Midland's second-half record improved to 29-22 for its biggest lead of the year.

El Paso's 7-3 loss at Wichita Friday enabled the Angels to increase their lead, as the Diablos fell to 25-26. San Antonio and Wichita are five games off Midland's pace at 24-27.

The Angels had blown a one-run lead to fall behind 4-3 in the sixth inning, but a four-run eighth was capped by Edgar Alfonzo's two-run double down the third base line to put the Angels on top for good at 7-4. The Missions got a run in the bottom of the eight, but an insurance run in the top of the ninth gave Hector Berrios his second save and Rafael Montalvo the decision for a 5-1 record.

Midland starter Don Vidmar got a rare no-decision in 5⅓ innings, while San Antonio starter Dennis Springer's knuckleball was unpredictable, giving him seven walks and the loss for a 9-9 record.

Pirates winning, but closer to losing Bonilla, Bonds

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Bonilla, still unsigned and creeping ever closer to free agency, may be in his final two months with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

That raises the inevitable question: Can Barry Bonds be far behind?

Replacing Bonilla's .290 average, 25-plus homers and 100 RBIs a season would be a monumental job should the Pirates fail to re-sign him — especially if they're faced a year from now with trying to replace Bonds.

Bonds, in contention for his second consecutive National League MVP award, has all but told the Pirates that if they lose Bonilla, they'll also lose him.

The Pirates concentrated last winter on trying to re-sign Bonilla, who can become a free agent after this season. They went to arbitration with Bonds rather than attempt to sign him to a long-term deal.

Now, Bonds said it will take the Pirates more than the reported $13 million-plus they've offered Bonilla for three years to sign him again.

"Bobby Bonilla is well-liked in Pittsburgh, is a versatile player who can play right field and third base and doesn't complain. The people love him," Bonds said. "It's up to them what they want to do. Do they want to keep a winning club, or do they want to make excuses?"

Bonilla and Bonds know they play in a smaller market that lacks the financial resources of the New York Mets or Los Angeles Dodgers, but they're obviously weary of the conservative fiscal philosophy of the Pirates' owners.

Former Pirates president Carl Barger acknowledged last winter that the Pirates can afford to re-sign some — but not all — of their stars.

Bonds wonders how breaking up a championship-caliber team will save money, since the Pirates' track record suggests their fans won't support a mediocre club.

They don't have a deep-pockets owner like a Wayne Huizenga in Miami, but Bonds said there's enough money among the Pirates' 14 corporate and private owners to pay competitive salaries.

"They'll save money until the day they die, then it will go to their kids and to their kids," Bonds said. "We've only got a short time in our careers to make money. If we break a leg and can't play, that's it, there's nothing left.

"It's tough to get winning clubs that play every day, if they lose that, they may not get it back. Will they support a losing team? They don't draw big now when we're winning."

Still, if Bonilla and Bonds don't remain in Pittsburgh, there are no assurances they will sign with the same team, in spite of their close personal friendship.

Browns defeat Redskins in OT

NFL Exhibition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Matt Stover kicked a 40-yard field goal in overtime Friday night to lift the Cleveland Browns over the Washington Redskins 24-21 in an exhibition game.

Stover made good on a second chance three minutes after missing a 44-yarder on the Browns' first overtime possession. The winning kick was set up when Redskins reserve quarterback Cary Conklin fumbled on his own 28 and Browns defensive back Anthony Florence recovered. Stover connected four plays later.

The Browns (2-1) forced the overtime when backup quarterback Todd Philcox fired a 3-yard touchdown pass to ex-Redskin Mike Oliphant with no time remaining to tie the score 21-21. The touchdown capped an 80-yard drive after the Redskins' Skip Lohmiller missed a field goal from the 37.

Philcox moved the Browns downfield quickly in their first possession of the overtime, including a 40-yard pass to wide receiver Vernon Joines, but the drive stalled on the Redskins' 27 and Stover missed.

Washington's Earnest Byner broke a 14-14 tie midway through the third quarter with a 1-yard TD run, capping a drive that began after Cleveland's Kevin Mack fumbled on the Redskins' 35.

Cleveland tied the game at 14-14 on its first possession of the second half on Mack's 1-yard touchdown, capping an 83-yard drive highlighted by a 48-yard pass from Bernie Kosar to rookie Michael Jackson that put the ball on the Redskins' 2.

The Redskins (1-2) took a 7-0 lead on their second possession when Gerald Riggs scored from the 4 to cap a 73-yard, 11-play drive. They made it 14-0 on their next possession when Mark Rypien hit Gary Clark for a 49-yard touchdown.

TEA to investigate Conroe

CONROE (AP) — The Texas Education Agency plans to investigate the Conroe school district's decision to declare six football players ineligible because they protested the outcome of cheerleader elections.

The six black athletes boycotted the spring football program because two black finalists for the junior varsity cheerleader squad were not elected by the student body.

The protest prompted the adoption of a new system for cheerleader selection.

But Superintendent Richard Griffin upheld Coach Toby York's decision to declare the players ineligible for the upcoming football season, saying the athletes had chosen to quit the team rather than follow prescribed procedures for lodging their grievances.

Former Baylor player brings steroids suit

DALLAS (AP) — A former Baylor University basketball player, as part of a lawsuit against the school and others, has videotaped a deposition in case he can't talk after throat surgery next week.

John Wheeler, 27, who filed a $3 million lawsuit against the school July 24, taped the message Thursday in his lawyer's office in Dallas.

Wheeler, who has Marfan's Syndrome, a hereditary blood and bone disorder, said steroids taken at Baylor have taken 30 years from his life and caused his illness. His throat surgery is a result of complications from an earlier surgery, family members say.

The 7-0 center from Wilmer-Hutchins High School, just south of Dallas, attended Baylor from 1983-85.

The lawsuit contends that former coach Jim Haller, the school and MBank N.A. of Waco induced Wheeler into signing a promissory note for a car Wheeler could not afford.

The lawsuit states that Haller "purchased and administered illegal steroids to (the) plaintiff to enhance his athletic performance for the benefit of Baylor University and to the plaintiff's detriment."

Wheeler's mother, Nina, said earlier her son has a heart condition, "and you don't give a person with a heart condition steroids."

She said her son gained 30 pounds in two months while taking the steroids, but he has since lost 50 pounds and weighs 185.

Wheeler had open heart surgery in 1986 and June 1990. He said his medical bills have exceeded $200,000.

Ms. Wheeler also said in the lawsuit that her son was given a 1977 Oldsmobile when he transferred to Baylor from Cleveland State in 1983.

Texas gets SWC nod

Klingler's arm alone worthy of No. 2 choice

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Picking the winner of the 1991 Southwest Conference football race might put a strain on the most sophisticated computer.

Such a weighty problem might even blow out a fuse or cause a wire to smoke.

Systems have gone down for hours over more mundane matters.

The big problem is that most SWC teams have strengths that are offset by glaring weaknesses.

There are six teams with legitimate chances to win the host berth in the Cotton Bowl and three — Arkansas, Texas Christian, and Southern Methodist — with enough talent to spring an upset on any given Saturday.

However, the Longhorns have a suspect offensive line, unproven wide receivers, and a questionable kicking game. There is also little depth at backup quarterback with the departure of Steve Clements.

Houston, another big favorite, has record-smashing David Klingler but a young defense and could miss running back Chuck Weatherspoon, a 1,000-yard gainer.

The Texas Aggies won't miss a beat at running back without All-American Darren Lewis but the offensive line is unproven and if there're no blocks, there's no room to run.

How about those Baylor Bears, who will have the toughest front seven in the SWC? The Bears have a green secondary and a questionable passing game.

Rice, Texas Tech and Texas Christian have wide open, touchdown-producing offenses but their defenses are suspect.

And so it goes.

That gets us down to the best guess department and here we go.....

TEXAS — Despite all the Longhorns problems, they still have as much talent as any team in the league. It's mandatory that senior quarterback Peter Gardere have a healthy season. If he goes down, you can turn out the lights in the Orange Tower.

HOUSTON — Klinger will likely be unstoppable but the question remains if the Cougars can stop anybody else. Houston has early road games with Illinois and Miami. Should the Cougars win those games, look out.

BAYLOR — Tough defense and a ball control offense. Grant Teaff is comfortable with that type of game and the Bears should be able to play it well.

TEXAS A&M — Watch out for A&M's newest running star, redshirt sophomore Greg Hill, an absolute speed burner who can break tackles. The Aggies have a highly questionable offensive line but their defense should be tough again.

TEXAS TECH — The Red Raiders will have a high octane offense but it's a new 3-4 defense that will have to keep coach Spike Dykes club from running on empty.

RICE — The Owls will be very dangerous behind classy running back Trevor Cobb and exciting wide receiver Eric Henley. But you win games on defense and Rice hasn't had a good one since the 1960s.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN — Leon Clay will give Horned Frog fans many magic moments with his passing but the real thrill will come if the defense can keep opponents from scoring three touchdowns a game.

SMU — Tom Rossley takes over from Forrest Gregg and the Mustangs will be exciting to watch. They might even win their first league game in three years. However, a less than big league defense will hurt them too many times.

ARKANSAS — The Razorbacks say goodbye to a league in which they were one of the charter members. They leave for the alleged greener pastures of the Southeastern Conference. After the beating they took last year, not much is expected to change in 1991. SWC teams will want to say goodbye in style to the piggies.

Seles barred from Olympics

LONDON (AP) — Monica Seles, the world's top-ranked women's tennis player, will be barred from next summer's Olympics because she played in an exhibition tournament this summer in New Jersey.

The International Tennis Federation on Friday declared Seles ineligible for the 1992 Barcelona Olympics after determining she lacked a valid excuse for skipping this year's Federation Cup.

A player must make herself available for her national team at the Federation Cup to qualify for the Olympics, and Seles withdrew from the Yugoslav team two days before the start of the Federation Cup.

Seles said she skipped the July 22-28 event to avoid reaggravating shin splints and presented the ITF with medical documents to support her case.

But the ITF said Friday it had rejected her excuse because she continued to play in the New Jersey exhibition July 20 and 21, even after withdrawing from the Federation Cup because of injury.

"The Committee of Management of the ITF concluded that Ms. Seles' decision to compete in an exhibition event, while at the same time withdrawing from the Federation Cup on medical grounds, was not justified by the medical documents supplied by her representatives," an ITF statement said.

Seles could not be reached for comment and a spokeswoman for her Cleveland-based agent, IMG, said no one was available there to comment on the ITF decision.

Travers event promises to be 'race of the year'

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The Saratoga Six production of the Travers today at Saratoga figures to be a rousing one.

"It has a good chance of being the race of the year," said Nick Zito, who trains Strike the Gold, winner of the Kentucky Derby.

The six featured players in the $1 million race definitely are quality performers and the supporting cast is deep in talent.

The other five featured performers are Hansel, winner of the Preakness and Belmont Stakes; Fly So Free, the Jim Dandy winner; Lost Mountain, winner of three of his last four starts; Corporate Report, second in the Preakness, and Tong Po, winner of half of his four starts.

One of the supporting players is jockey Angel Cordero Jr., who has been known to steal the show.

Cordero was named to ride Strike the Gold because the colt's owners were displeased with Chris Antley's ride when the colt finished third in the Jim Dandy July 28 at Saratoga.

Cordero has won a record 13 riding titles at Saratoga meetings, but in 18 appearances in the Travers he has won only with Chief's Crown in 1985.

Antley, who rode Strike the Gold in his last five starts, will make his Travers debut on Tong Po.

Tong Po has recovered from physical problems, and, in the opinion of trainer Leon Blusiewicz, has the breeding to handle the 1¼ miles of the Travers.

Strike the Gold would be the eighth Kentucky Derby winner to win the Travers and the first since Shut Out in 1942. He will be only the seventh Derby winner to compete in the race since Shut Out. The last was Alysheba, who was sixth in 1987.

Hansel will be the first Preakness winner to start in the Travers since Alysheba four years ago and he would be the eighth to win it. The last was Damascus in 1967.

Hansel also would be the 27th Belmont winner to win the Travers. The last was Easy Goer in 1989. In 1990, Go and Go finished seventh.

Jerry Bailey, Hansel's jockey, won the Travers in 1986 with Wise Times.

British Open winner Ian Baker-Finch blasts from a sand trap at the 17th green Friday in the International Golf Tournament in Castle Rock, Colorado.

Crafter shares lead with rookie

LPGA Northgate

BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. (AP) — Tour rookie Brandie Burton and Australian Jane Crafter shot 5-under-par 67s Friday to share the first-round lead in the rain-interrupted LPGA Northgate Computer Classic.

Burton made seven birdies and finished in style, holing a 25-foot sand shot on her last shot of the day.

"My putting was a great boost for me, a great confidence-builder," said Burton, whc used a new putter and earned five of her birdies with putts of 10 to 15 feet. "I stroked the ball really well. I let it happen for a change and didn't try to force it into the hole."

Crafter, a proficient short game player, said a graphite driver she recently obtained gave her a boost, adding 10 to 15 yards to her tee shots.

She made six birdies, including four in five holes from No. 11 to 15, before taking her lone bogey on the final hole.

"The greens here are undulating, and putting is a strong part of my game," Crafter said. "It takes a good imagination to putt on them. Sometimes you have to putt over here to get it over there."

Local favorite Jody Anschutz, a three-time Minnesota state high school champion at Edina, and Tina Barrett shot 68s. Ann Walsh, Dee Dee Lasker, Alison Munt, Laurie Rinker and Diana Rauch all were two shots back at 69.

Defending champion Beth Daniel was 1-over after eight holes when rain suspended play for 2 hours and 19 minutes. She finished with an even-par 72.

Play was suspended a second time because of darkness at 8:17 p.m. CDT, with 12 golfers still on the course. They'll finish the second round Saturday, after which the 144-player field in the 54-hole tournament will be cut to the 70 lowest scores and ties.

Chi Chi's 9-under par takes Seniors lead

KENMORE, Wash. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez, the leading money-winner on the Senior PGA Tour, shot a 9-under-par 63 Friday to take the first-round lead in the GTE Northwest Classic.

Rodriguez was two shots ahead of 60-year-old Jim Ferree, who eagled the first and last holes in a round of 65. Gibby Gilbert was third after a 66 on the 6,440-yard Inglewood Country Club course.

Defending champion George Archer and two-time winner Bruce Crampton were among seven players tied at 4-under 68. Mike Hill, DeWitt Weaver, Bob Brue, Jim O'Hern and Dick Hendrickson also carded 68s.

Rodriguez says he's still recovering from his recent loss to Jack Nicklaus in the playoff for the U.S. Senior Open title.

"The Senior Open took a lot out of me," Rodriguez said. "Last week I felt terrible at altitude."

He tied for 26th in the Showdown Classic at Park City, Utah, at an elevation of nearly 7,000 feet.

"I feel better at sea level," he said.

Rodriguez, who has won $528,960 this year, birdied the first two holes and was 4-under after seven holes on the hilly Inglewood layout.

He two-putted the first green from 20 feet, then hit his 8-iron second shot within a foot of the pin on the second. He missed the fifth green, but rolled in a 25-foot birdie putt from the fringe for a birdie, then added another birdie with an eight-foot putt on the seventh hole.

"That's the best round I played in a long time," Rodriguez said. "My irons were very good. When you shoot a 63 and have 10 birdies, everything has to be working."

Rodriguez's last 63 came in 1987, when his 7-under-par effort in the final round of the United Hospitals Classic earned him the title.

Rodriguez remained hot to start the back nine, hitting an 8-iron second shot within 2½ feet on the 10th hole and another 8-iron to nine feet on the 12th, He made birdie on both, then took his only bogey when he missed a four-foot putt on No. 13.

Rodriguez recovered by sinking a 15-footer on the 14th, blasted out of a bunker to two feet on the 15th, hit a sand iron to two feet on the 17th and two-putted the 18th green from 30 feet, all for birdies.

Baker-Finch on top, but rain major foe

PGA

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Ian Baker-Finch appears all but certain of reaching the final round of The International — if the weather allows the final round to be reached.

For the second time in as many days, a series of thunderstorms Friday caused an overnight delay in play.

Seventy-two men — including PGA champion John Daly — still were on the course when darkness fell on the Castle Pines Golf Club and extended second-round play into Saturday. They were scheduled to return at 7 a.m. to complete the second round — complete with the probable playoff for the final few qualifying spots — before third-round play later in the day.

That timetable, of course, is subject to change by the weather. The forecast called for more thundertorms through Sunday.

With the schedule in disarray and the second round incomplete, very little could be determined with any degree of certainty concerning the leaders, contenders or — more importantly — the qualifiers in this survivors-only event with the peculiar scoring system.

Medal scores do not count. Points are awarded for a player's performance on each hole, 5 for an eagle, 2 for birdie, 0 for par, minus-1 for bogey and minus-3 for double bogey and higher.

The format calls for the 144-man field to be cut to the best 72 scorers after 36 holes. Point totals will be carried over to the third round when the field is further reduced to 24 players for the final round.

With 21 points through two complete rounds, Baker-Finch, the British Open champion, is certain of gaining a place in the third round — and, according to his estimate, all but has a lock on a final-round berth.

New conference includes WTSU

DALLAS (AP) — A new athletic conference consisting of seven schools in the Southwest was tentatively agreed upon, officials say.

The conference, which is yet to be named, currently involves seven schools: West Texas State University (Canyon), Tarleton State University (Stephenville), Midwestern State University (Wichita Falls), New Mexico Highlands University (Las Vegas, N.M.), Southeastern Oklahoma State University (Durant, Okla.), Western New Mexico University (Silver City, N.M.) and Louisiana State University (Shreveport, La.).

Tarleton spokesman Reed Richmond said Thursday that the league hopes to begin competition with the 1992-93 season. He said several other schools are interested in the new conference but want more information before committing.

He said the conference's name will depend on how many different states are represented.

"If five states are in the conference, then the name will be the Five-Star Conference, and so on," Richmond said.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numberical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key(*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key(*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned sharply lower this afternoon, as traders nervously watched for developments in the Salomon Brothers Inc. scandal.

At 2 p.m. on Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 31.08 points at 2,967.35.

Declining issues outnumbered advancers by about 5 to 2, with 418 up, 1,091 down and 517 unchanged. Volume on the Big Board came to 131.44 million shares.

First basketball, now baseball

■ Puerto Rico has now beaten the U.S. teams in American sports of basketball and baseball in the Pan Am Games.

HAVANA (AP) — For the second time in as many days, Puerto Rico stopped the United States a game shy of playing for Pan American Games gold in one of America's sports.

On Thursday night, it was basketball. On Friday, it was baseball. Puerto Rico's 7-1 victory not only meant two bronze medal games for the United States today, but there would be no dream gold-medal baseball matchup between the U.S. team and Cuba.

Puerto Rico's upset of the U.S. baseball team came courtesy of one swing of Efrain Garcia's bat — a third-inning grand slam — and some solid pitching by left-hander Wilfredo Velez, who allowed just four hits from the third inning on.

Puerto Rico's fifth run scored on a balk that set off an argument which featured all six umpires and finally saw U.S. coach Ron Polk ejected after he was pushed by an umpire.

The U.S. team, which had beaten Puerto Rico 10-3 in the qualifying round, seemed stunned after Garcia's home run. As the ball rattled around the empty left field bleachers, the Puerto Rican baserunners jumped and clapped their way around the bases. When Garcia, the cleanup hitter, reached third base, he pointed at the screaming, flag-waving delegation of his countrymen in the stands.

"I just enjoyed it," Garcia said. "After the home run, they lost all confidence. They weren't the same team after that."

U.S. starter and loser Jeff Ware had some problems on the pitch to Garcia.

"My spike caught, but I kept may balance and just had nothing on the fastball," he said. "It probably happens one, two or three times a game, and you can stop if the bases are empty. I couldn't stop because I didn't want a run to score, and he hit the ball hard.

"We thought about Cuba a lot this week, but we knew in our heads we had to win this game. Things just didn't go our way."

There will still be 55,000 fans on hand for Sunday's gold medal game, but the U.S. players won't be on the field to enjoy it.

McEnroe faces net retirement

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Goran Ivanisevic sent his longtime idol, John McEnroe, another step closer to retirement on Friday with an easy win in the quarterfinals of the Volvo International.

Following the 6-4, 6-2 loss, McEnroe conceded his tennis days are nearly over unless he wins a Grand Slam event in the next year.

"Next year is going to be the last year I'm going to play a full schedule," the 32-year-old McEnroe said. "But I would reserve the right to play a couple of exhibitions and a tournament here and there."

McEnroe, who owns seven Grand Slam titles, has left tennis twice before — for six months in 1986 and seven months in 1987 — but said he won't make another comeback on the ATP Tour.

"I'm not going to say that I'm never going to step foot on a tennis court again, because that's absurd," he said. "It may be almost nothing, but I reserve the right to play a couple of tournaments."

Though disappointed in his play and his inability to make it past the quarterfinals since winning at Chicago in February, McEnroe still thinks he can win.

"It would be nice to go out next year with a bang. I still entertain the dream of winning a big one, or winning anything at this point. We'll see what happens," he said. "Maybe just knowing it's over will help.'

But Ivanisevic, a 6-foot-4, 19-year-old from Yugoslavia who grew watching McEnroe on television, said his idol no longer can consistently beat the good young players.

"He's still a great champ but his time ... He still can play good tennis, but a guy like me, if I am serving strong and hitting big enough, I am too strong for him these days," Ivanisevic said.

McEnroe disagreed, saying he can still hit with Ivanisevic.

"If I play good and he plays good I'd be happy to play him," McEnroe said.

McEnroe, ranked 15th in the world, and Ivanisevic, ranked No. 18, split their two previous meetings. McEnroe won the first meeting at the Swiss Indoors last year when Ivanisevic, up 7-6, 6-4, 5-2, fell apart. He was broken twice.

"I watched too much what he was doing and my concentration went," he said.

But Ivanisevic didn't give McEnroe any chance to rally on Friday. He pressured his service early, then finished him off with three consecutive aces.

"I just went for my best serves. It was no problem," Ivanisevic said.

TIME WELL SPENT

"If I could save time in a bottle . . ."

The wish expressed in the lyrics of this song is often shared by most of us. No, we cannot harness time. The minutes and the days pass surely and swiftly by, like sand in an hourglass.

Yet, unlike the sand in the hourglass, we cannot invert the flow of time and begin anew. We cannot turn back time and "do it over," but we can use our time wisely by learning from all of our experiences and "do it better" the next time.

The only true failure is the one from which we do not learn and grow. There is a Latin phrase which, when translated, means "Through adversity to the stars." Thus, not a moment of our lives, even the less pleasurable moments, need ever be time wasted.

There is one sure way in which we may spend our time wisely. Each Sabbath, attend your chosen house of worship. Time with God is always time well spent.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church to install Lyman

Installation services for the Rev. Mary Alice Lyman, associate pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church, will be held at 10:55 a.m. Sunday.

Ms. Lyman, who is to be installed as a member of the Presbytery of Tres Rios, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., began her duties in the area of Christian education and youth on July 1.

Members of the presbytery commission to install Ms. Lymann include the Rev. Charles J. Hollingsworth, general presbyter of Tres Rios Presbytery; the Rev. A.J. Moreau, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian; and the Rev. Jerry Kelly, interim executive director of Samaritan Counseling Center.

Other members of the installation commission include: elders Patricia Turner, First Prebyterian Church, Odessa; Marge Neely, Grace Presbyterian Church, Midland; Jame Riddle, First Presbyterian Church, Midland; and Tim Verseput, Trinity Presbyterian, Midland.

Those invited to be corresponding members of the commission are: the Rev. Charles Weaver, First Presbyterian Church, Waco; and the Rev. D. Ellis Nelson, research professor at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Austin. Nelson will preach the sermon.

Ms. Lyman, a graduate of Baylor University, Waco, and McCormick Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Chicago, most recently served as associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Waco. Before that, she served as director of education at First Presbyterian Church, Lake Forest, Ill.

She has served on the board of directors for Learning Club, Waco, a skills enhancement program for underprivileged children and Waco's Youth Center, a residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed youth.

Ms. Lyman also has been involved in Habitat for Humanity.

She lives in Midland with her husband, Dan, and two daughters, Alice and Anna. Her husband is associate pastor for singles and young adults at St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

The service will be held at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave. The public is invited to attend.

■ Solomon visits Odessa

ODESSA — Gershon Solomon, leader of the Temple Mount and Eretz Israel faithful movements in Israel, will arrive in here Sunday.

"The purpose of Salomon's visit is to present ideas regarding the struggle of the Jewish people over the destiny of the land of Israel, the Temple Mount and Jerusalem," said a release from Samuel Saldana Jr. of Odessa.

"He also wants to enlist moral and practical support."

He will be available to speak to groups while he is here. For more information, call 332-1517.

■ Church schedules talks

Jim Loper will deliver four talks at The Living Way Church, 415 Alta Ave., beginning Sunday.

Loper, who is pastor of Cornerstone Fellowship, Borger, will speak at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

A nursery will be provided at all services. For more information, call 683-1750. The public is invited to attend.

■ Deacons to host breakfast

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church has several activities planned as part of a special week of prayer and emphasis on state missions.

The first activity is a men's breakfast at 8:30 a.m. today in the Fellowship Hall. The breakfast is hosted by the church deacons. The program will be a presentation from a group from Crestview Baptist Church on its recent missionary trip to Africa.

In addition, the church is collecting supplies this month to send to several home missionaries as part of the Christmas in August program. Those interested in donating items may do so by calling the church.

Also, the church's annual State Missions Banquet is set for 6 p.m. Aug. 28. Speaker for the banquet will be the Rev. Jim Denison, pastor of First Baptist Church.

■ Founder's Banquet today

The Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell at Jax, is holding its 17th annual Spiritual Explosion through Sunday.

A Founders Banquet is set for 5 p.m. today at the Green Tree Country Club. The closing service of the Spiritual Explosion set for 3 p.m. Sunday will be given by its founder, the Rev. W.C. Kenan.

The public is invited to attend. For more information, call 684-5253 or 684-4055.

■ WTBIS plans registration

West Texas Baptist Institute-Seminary, 3500 Anetta Drive, will begin classes Tuesday.

Registration is today. The school, which is in its fifth year of operation, is open each semester for 16 weeks on Tuesdays only.

Courses include, among others, Bible Philosophy, Church History, Bible Analysis, Defense of the Faith, New Testament Survey, Greek, Homoletics, Practical Evangelism, English, Cults, Pauline Epistles, Personal Evangelism, Old Testament Survey, Family Counseling, Pneumatiology, Missions and Methods and music courses. The music courses begin at 5:25 p.m.

The school is open to those taking the full schedule as well as those taking subjects in which they are interested, said a release from the WTBI.

The institute-seminary is sponsored by Tall City Baptist Church. For more information, call the church's pastor, the Rev. Bill Simpson, 694-7515.

■ Signing classes planned

The Ministry to the Deaf of Golf Course Road Church of Christ will again offer classes in deaf sign language beginning Sept. 9.

The classes will meet for 12 weeks at 7 p.m. Monday and Thursday. Those interested in becoming proficient in communication with the deaf are encouraged to attend.

The classes will be taught by Darrell Rhea, a certified instructor in signing by the Texas Commission for the Deaf.

For more information, call 694-4528 or the church office.

There is no charge for this service.

■ Church holds youth revival

Ranchland Heights Baptist Church is conducting a Youth-Led Revival through Sunday.

Leaders of the revival are the team of Mark Winn and Danny Lewis. Winn is the pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, Seminole. Lewis is the minister of music at First Baptist Church in Bangs. The two have worked together in revivals and camps throughout the area. Winn was camp director of Week One Youth Camp at Circle Six Ranch Encampment, Stanton, in July.

For more information, call 684-6544 or 683-1947.

■ Grace registering youth

The early childhood program of Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road, is accepting registration applications for the fall semester.

The school offers a children's day out program from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday and Thursdays for children 12 months to 36 months old. The preschool program offers two sessions for children 3 and 4 years old.

Also new this fall will be a 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. session on Monday and Wednesday. New students may register Thursday at the church.

For more information, call 694-3063. Director is Patrice S. Allen.

■ Moyer's showair Sunday

The Unitarian-Universalist Church of Midland, Midkiff Street at Neely Avenue, will present a videotape program entitled "A Gathering of Men" at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

This program is part two of Bill Moyer's interview of Robert Bly, who has been described as the "guru" of the Men's Movement and a "modern-day troubadour." The videotape presentation will be followed by an informal discussion of the Men's Movement with

Group to report on Soviet travel

ODESSA — A group of seven Odessans who recently did mission work in the Soviet Union will give a report at 6 p.m. Sunday at Immanuel Baptist Church, 4020 E. University.

Members of the group were the Rev. and Mrs. Bill Cook, Immanuel Baptist Church; Joel Joslin, music minister at Westover Baptist Church; the Rev. Jimmy Braswell, pastor of Kingston Avenue Baptist Church; and Becky Bilyeu, Debbie Rogers and Willard Davis, all of Immanuel Baptist Church.

The group conducted services in Moscow, Leningrad and Odessa. They also distributed about 15,000 tracts and 5,000 Bibles and New Testamants as well as cassette recorders and tapes, a film-strip projector, slide projector and other electronic products.

A highlight of the trip was the time the group spent in Odessa, a city of more than one million in the Ukraine of the Soviet Union.

While there, they were guests of the deputy mayor, who had invited residents of Odessa, Texas, to attend the bicentennial of the Soviet Odessa.

"Another memorable experience from Odessa was the visit to a small Baptist church on a collective farm," Cook said. "The church of 25 members baptized 11 teens and adults during their...worship service."

Southern Baptist moderates map path of their own

NOT AVAILABLE COPY

Associated Press

Southern Baptist moderates gradually are developing institutions of their own as the fundamentalist forces that now run the big denomination tighten their hold on its organizational machinery.

Rev. Hewett

No formal split has been declared, and the new counteroperations still aren't termed the scaffolding of a separate denomination, but they have trappings of it, including:

- A general structure, with a constitution and bylaws.
- A missionary deployment agency.
- Production of Christian educational literature.
- A newly formed seminary.
- A new ethical concerns agency.
- A news service.

Although planners have avoided specifying that a new denomination is the objective, they acknowledge that it could be the eventual result, ultimately dividing a body of about 15 million believers into two folds.

"Whether, in a couple of years, we'll become one new, new permanent entity, I don't know," said the Rev. John Hewett, moderator of the Southern Baptist Cooperative Fellowship, the new national organization of moderates.

They lost their influence on the denomination through 12 years of defeats by fundamentalists. Yet convention votes indicate moderates make up about 45 percent of that largest U.S. Protestant denomination.

This year, they abandoned convention efforts and formed the new fellowship, mapping a different path of their own, acclaiming traditional Baptist freedom — the "soul competence" to interpret the Bible as each understands it.

Hewett of Asheville, N.C., said he sensed many moderates still feel historic ties to the denomination and are reluctant to quit it totally, but see no acceptable future in its present restrictive system.

"Whether we become a new denomination or a new societal approach to doing mission, the jury is still out," he added in an interview.

The fundamentalists, fully in charge, tightened rules of conformity and replaced dissenters. In response, a growing number of Baptist executives and professors have departed. There have been about a dozen resignations or retirements at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest, N.C.

"It's a sad time for all of us," said ethics Professor Furman Hewitt, among those leaving after prolonged turmoil that has brought inquiries into the seminary's accreditation and cut enrollment in half.

But fundamentalist administrators and trustees applauded the departures as making room for "inerrantists," those who insist the Bible is without error — scientifically, historically and religiously.

The Home Missions Board also tightened rules of belief about the Bible, as did the denomination's flagship seminary in Louisville, Ky.

There, a compromise worked out provides that only "conservative evangelical scholars" are to be hired for future openings. At least four professors quit as of last spring., including church historian Karen Smith.

After forcing out the head of the denomination's Sunday School Board, a huge publishing arm with a $199 million annual budget, trustees elected fundamentalist leader the Rev. James Draper to the job in July.

When the fundamentalists ended denominational support of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, a Washington lobbying arm for several Baptist groups for 50 years, moderates replaced the lost cash.

As the shakeups went on at the denomination's headquarters in Nashville, Tenn., and at institutions elsewhere, moderates were shaping their own initiatives.

"We may begin to look like another denomination, but there's no central bureaucracy — not yet," said Jeanette Holt of Washington, D.C., associate director of an interim group, the Southern Baptist Alliance.

Moderates are acting "to meet needs," she said. "It's the day of the entrepreneur. Different people are doing their own thing outside the old structure. There's no way to say with certainty how it will end up."

Among new moderate enterprises:

— The Baptist Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va., launched by the alliance and an autonomous group of moderates, with the Rev. Thomas Graves as president, begins classes in September.

— A Baptist Center for Ethics, set up in Nashville to offer moral guidance on contemporary issues, is headed by the Rev. Robert Parham, who quit the denomination's counterpart, the Christian Life Commission.

— Arrangements were made with Smyth and Helways publishers of Greenville, S.C., to produce educational literature, starting with a 12-month adult curriculum. Curricula for all ages are to be ready by the fall of 1992.

— The Atlanta-based Cooperative Baptist Missions Program has been established as an alternative to funding denominational missions. A dozen, varied projects have already begun.

— The new national organization, the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship, also has offices in Atlanta. Under its constitution, a 79-member coordinating council is the interim decision-making body.

— Associated Baptist Press, started by moderates as an alternative news service after editors of the denomination's Baptist Press were fired last year, is based in Jacksonville, Fla., under executive editor Greg Warner.

Long decline in mainline churches seems to be turning, officials say

Associated Press

Hints of a membership turnaround are appearing in some mainline denominations, including those larger, historically rooted Protestant bodies whose rolls gradually have shrunk for a quarter of a century.

Only wispy, scattered signs of a reversal in that downtrend are showing and generally, it continues. But it lessens and slows.

"We're beginning to turn the corner in numbers," said Presiding Bishop Edmond L. Browning of the 2.5 million-member Episcopal Church. He told a news conference at the denomination's recent convention in Phoenix, Ariz.:

"There are more worshippers on Sunday than at any time in the last 20 years. And giving is higher than it has ever been. These are just some of the indications of the church's health."

Membership and attendance are gaining ground, according to 1991 survey findings. This could be temporary, sociologists note.

But shifts in long-range membership trends may signal more enduring change. As an example, take the 8.8 million-member United Methodist Church. Over the last 25 years, it has lost an average of nearly 90,000 members annually.

But in 1990, the total was down only 62,169, 5,000 less than the year before, and the smallest drop in a decade. Twenty of its 72 regional conferences reported gains in membership. The slump slowed.

Take another big church, the 5.2 million-member Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, a merger whose three antecedant bodies had experienced long, gradual losses. This year, the count crept upward — by 1,959.

The Rev. David Alderfer, the church's director for statistics, points out that a one-year gain doesn't make a trend, but he says denominational officials hope it signals a shift toward gain.

For the 2.8 million-member Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), its loss last year of 38,993 was the lowest in 20 years. It also was the last year in which dissenting congregations could pull out under a 1983 North-South merger.

The 1.6 million-member United Church of Christ suffered precipitous slumps in the '70s, sometimes losing nearly 40,000 members a year. In the late '80s, the losses were fewer — 6,000 in 1986 — but last year, 20,000 left the church.

The 1.1 million-member Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) had gradually shrinking losses, amounting last year to 12,420, the lowest in the last 20 years.

The Rev. William McKinney, dean of Hartford Seminary in Connecticut and co-author of a 1987 book, "American Mainline Religion," said recent figures suggest the long decline may be ending.

"It has beem bottoming out for the last three or four years," he said, and now may be approaching a general upturn. "There are so many baby boomers finding their way back to church, " he said.

However, he said even resumption of an uptrend wouldn't necessarily restore those churches to their former health.

A J. Obregon
Associated Press writer

AUSTIN — The three men wearing gray wool habits, complete with hoods and knotted ropes for belts, would probably turn heads — even in laid-back Austin.

Wool clothing in 100-degree weather is pretty rare. But parishioners at Cristo Rey Catholic Church have been getting used to the idea for the past month.

The three men have formed the first Franciscan community at an Austin church. Two are priests and one is a brother.

They belong to the conventual family of Franciscans, and had been working in San Antonio before deciding to form a community here. They chose Cristo Rey because of the order's guidelines that stress ministry in lower-income parishes that are at least 50 percent Hispanic.

Parishioner Gloria Moreno says the Franciscans are winning over the church community.

"They've really tried to go with the flow and fit in," she said. "And I think they're being accepted."

The men come from diverse backgrounds. Father Michael Laitrello is a registered nurse from New Jersey, who was a hospital administrator before becoming a priest. Father Francisco Gomez is a native of Los Angeles but grew up in El Paso. Brother Kerry Guillory is a Creole from Louisiana, whose brother, Curtis Guillory, is auxiliary bishop of the Diocese of Galveston-Houston.

'Nowadays, we don't care to rebuild. We are not redeemers. We come to work with the cultures. We don't have to take away the traditions and customs.'

— Father Francisco Gomez

What they share is a commitment to serve, and dedication to the people of the parish and the religious community.

"Our duties don't begin and end at the office or at the altar," said Father Francisco.

"We hope that people will come and pray and dine with us," said Brother Kerry. "We want to be part of the community."

■ Ethics class scheduled

"Introduction to Christian Ethics" is being offered here Sept. 8 through Dec. 15 by the West Texas Extention Program of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

Pre-registration has started and will continue through Sept. 3.

Ismael Garcia, associate professor of Christian ethics, Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, will teach the course. Garcia is a graduate of the University of Puerto Rico and the University of Chicago. He lives in Austin with his wife, Ann, and a daughter and son.

Garcia has taught Christian ethics at McCormick Seminary, Chicago, directed traveling seminars to Central America and served as assistant durector to the Hispanic Ministries Program at McCormick Seminary.

The classes will meet at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., from 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays beginning Sept. 8.

Also being offered here is "Ministry of Education in a Particular Church." This course runs Aug. 11-22.

The Rev. Ellis Nelson, research professor at APTS, will teach the course. Nelson is a graduate of Austin College, APTS, the University of Texas, Austin and Columbia University.

The classes will meet at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Sunday through Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. for 30 class hours. These course may be taken either for full credit as a special student of the seminary or for audit.

Director of the extension program is the Rev. A.J. Moreau. For registration information, contact Moreau, P.O. Box 5111, Midland, Texas 79704, or 682-2514. Housing arrangements can be worked out for those needing it.

The West Texas Extension Program began in the summer of 1989 to meet the need for quality graduate theological education in West Texas. Additional courses will be offered in the fall and spring.

Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary is a seminary of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., located in Austin. The seminary has been educating people for the Christian ministry since 1902. It is fully accredited by the Association of Theological School of the U.S. and Canada and by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Population of Jews increased last year

NEW YORK (AP) — The Jewish population of the United States increased slightly last year to 5,981,000, up by about 40,000 and amounting to 2.4 percent of the U.S. population, the 1991 American Jewish Year Book says.

The compilation by the American Jewish Committee reports recent increases in Detroit; Middlesex County, N.J.; Orange County, Calif., and Seattle.

But a long-term decline continued in the Miami-Dade County region of Florida, once an area where American Jews lived in record number. Jewish population there fell more than 20,000 to 201,800, the new figures show.

States with the highest proportion of Jews are New York (10.3 percent), New Jersey (5.6 percent), Massachusetts (4.7 percent), Florida and Maryland (each 4.6 percent) and the District of Columbia (4.2 percent).

Hope fades for 10 men missing in barge sinking

HONG KONG (AP) — Rescuers suspended their search in stormy seas Friday for 10 men missing from a capsized barge. Four of them in a decompression chamber attached to the barge were believed to have perished when its air ran out.

Chances of finding any of the men alive were slim, but the search was expected to resume Saturday, said Trevor C. Berry, spokesman for the Hong Kong Maritime Rescue Center.

"I know this is an awful thing to say, but I'm in the business of bringing back survivors ... . I am not in the business of recovering dead bodies at tremendous risk and tremendous expense," he said.

The oil exploration barge carrying 195 people capsized in a typhoon Thursday in the South China Sea 65 miles east of Hong Kong. Berry said 172 people, including 11 Americans, were rescued. Thirteen people, including American skipper Billy Young, were confirmed dead, he said.

"In all probability" the four men in a decompression chamber being towed by the barge also died, Berry said. Survivors said the chamber's air supply had apparently run out Friday.

The four were undergoing decompression after working on newly laid oil and gas pipes when Typhoon Fred began lashing the area Wednesday with 75-mph winds and 25-foot waves.

Attempts to locate the chamber with underwater cameras were unsuccessful, Berry said, and the situation was made worse Friday when the barge turned over and sank to a depth of about 200 feet.

The four were identified as British citizens Steve Hardy, Brian Sheppard and Terry Dennison, and New Zealander John Lyons.

Berry earlier said sea temperatures were warm and some of the missing men might be able to survive. But he added, "What will kill them is the rough seas. It's just going to knock them around. They will be exhausted."

Berry said Young, from Weatherford, Texas, was last seen trying to lead people on the barge to safety.

The barge was involved in an exploration project with China. It is owned by McDermott (South East Asia) PTE Ltd. of Singapore.

Helicopter carrying EC monitors draws fire

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A helicopter carrying a group of European Community cease-fire monitors was hit by gunfire today while flying over the war-torn republic of Croatia, an EC official said. No injuries were reported.

It was the first time that the monitors, in Yugoslavia to oversee an EC-brokered truce in the republic of Slovenia, have drawn gunfire.

The helicopter, like all the EC choppers in Yugoslavia, was painted a distinctive white and bore the EC emblem.

The helicopter was hit by three bullets near the town of Novska, 55 miles southeast of Zagreb, said Marco Hennis, the Dutch spokesman of the EC monitor group, which has its headquarters in the Croatian capital.

Hennis did not yet know how many monitors were on board or their nationalities.

The helicopter, which was flying in the direction of Belgrade, made an emergency landing on the spot.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will have many opportunities to add to your assets. Family influences will be very strong this fall and could determine some of your career choices. Look for projects that will give your creative talents a chance to blossom in December. Romance will be both rewarding and challenging after the new year. Strengthen your home life by conquering a habit that annoys your loved ones. Being too protective of your offspring next spring could backfire.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Robert De Niro, actress Maureen O'Hara, slugger Boog Powell, frontiersman Davy Crockett.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Morning hours are favorable for monetary matters and creative ventures. Influential people are likely to support your ideas. By afternoon, romance captures your attention. Put your best foot forward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Luck plays an important role in your career or finances now. People at a distance may be overly confident. Put family life first and home life will improve. Offspring follow your example.

GEMINI (May-21-June 20): Try to avoid traveling today. Conditions may be dangerous, especially if you do not pay attention to the rules of the road. Casual at-home entertainment is favored. Invite close friends over.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A legal matter can be settled in your favor today. Your relations with your co-workers improve. Take a partner's financial advice — rich rewards could follow! A love connection leaves you guessing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Acting overly sensitive could alienate family members this morning. Accept constructive criticism in a mature manner. Financial speculation is too risky. Plan a cozy dinner for two at your favorite restaurant.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Behind-the-scenes activities boost both your ego and your finances. A new level of understanding can be reached with professional people. Move ahead with confidence in a property matter. Profits rise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can mix business with pleasure quite successfully today. Family members are less demanding than in the recent past. Evening may bring confusing news from afar. Put thoughts of romance on hold.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A health problem may make it difficult for you to deal with a relative living at a distance. Try not to let your concern affect your emotional well-being. Socializing is favored later today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Certain hopes can be realized if you avoid acting in haste. Be careful not to do anything that could cause personnel problems for your employer. Escaping a romantic trap could prove difficult.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Material possessions could play an important role in revising the family budget. A "sacrifice" is easier than you dreamed possible. A loved one shows unusual patience and understanding. Show tenderness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Unexpected cooperation from foreign sources will make this a profitable and memorable day. Share a secret with your loved ones and family harmony will reach an all-time high. Pursue a favorite hobby.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Music could have a big effect on your spirits today. You may need to include more love in your life. You tend to take on too much work. Welcome an offer of assistance.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are warm and kind by nature but will turn shy when around aggressive people. Occasionally, someone will mistake these Leos' reticence for haughtiness. Nothing could be further from the truth! Direct and honest, these children dislike people who act self-important and can spot a phony a mile off. Shrewd shoppers, they prefer quality to quantity.

Swayze's brazen physique, manner earns 'sexy' title

NEW YORK — He's best known for his dirty dancing or as the world's most muscular ghost, but Patrick Swayze has another claim to fame: the sexiest man alive, 1991 version.

The actor on Friday became the seventh hunky dude so honored by People magazine, succeeding 1990 winner Tom Cruise. Swayze, who is currently filming "The City of Joy" in London, told the magazine he was "flattered and surprised."

Swayze

As proof of Swayze's sexy ways, the magazine spoke with two of his on-screen flames. "He has a very sweet, gentle, kind heart, and all those southern manners," said "Ghost" co-star Demi Moore. "But he's also got a very rugged, animalistic physique."

Agreed "Road House" paramour Kelly Lynch, "He's strong, but he has grace and agility. He's not just this big thug throwing his muscles around out there."

The other past winners are Mel Gibson (1985), Mark Harmon (1986), Harry Hamlin (1987), John F. Kennedy Jr. (1988) and Sean Connery (1989).

ARLINGTON, Va. — Comedian Tim Allen says a prison sentence he served 14 years ago for selling cocaine persuaded him to change his life for the better.

Allen, a native of Birmingham, Mich., a Detroit suburb, stars in a show premiering on ABC this fall called "Home Improvement." It will run between "Full House" and "Roseanne" on Tuesday nights.

Allen, 37, told USA Today in Friday's edition that he hopes revealing his past will prevent a scandal. He served in a Minnesota federal prison shortly after graduating from Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

"I (pleaded) guilty and took responsibility for what I did," Allen told the newspaper. "In a hideous way, aside from the pain it put my family and friends through, getting caught probably saved my life because it had no direction."

Allen will portray a handyman television host who raises his kids.

"As far as we're concerned, this is something in Tim's past that he's taken care of," said Rober Iger, ABC Entertainment president.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music singer Travis Tritt will donate a 20-foot long replica of a guitar to the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum.

He had the guitar built for the Fan Fair country music festival in Nashville in June. Tritt said the estimated cost of the replica, to be installed Monday, is $100,000.

Tritt's album "Country Club" has sold more than 1 million copies. His song "Here's a Quarter (Call Someone Who Cares)" was nominated Thursday as Country Music Association single of the year.

The museum includes costumes, instruments and memorabilia of country music performers.

NEW YORK — Aerosmith has accepted a "mega-offer" reportedly worth $30 million to leave its current label, Geffen Records, for Sony Music.

The deal with Sony's Columbia Records calls for four records for about $30 million, The New York Times reported today, citing unidentified sources involved in the negotiations. A Columbia spokeswoman refused to give specifics.

Bryn Bridenthal, a spokeswoman for Geffen Records, said the company decided against entering a bidding war for the rock group.

"We made them an offer and Sony made them one of those mega-offers and it did not make sense for us financially to make a counter-offer," she said.

Sony previously made waves in the record business when a signed a contract with Michael Jackson worth more than $65 million.

Aerosmith cannot switch labels until it produces two more studio records and a greatest hits album for Geffen.

Arnold

The scholarships will be awarded annually to a male and female student at Indian Hills Community College in Ottumwa, Iowa, said the couple's publicist, David Brokaw.

The scholarships, awarded for humor writing, will cover tuition and books.

Ms. Arnold gained fame as Roseanne Barr before she married Arnold. Arnold, a writer and comic who has a secondary role in his wife's show, earned an associate of arts degree from the college in 1981.

"It's a quality school and we're proud and excited to be a part of discovering some talented writers," the couple said in a statement Friday.

To be eligible for the Arnold scholarship, a student must write a brief, humorous work.

■ Weeklong Chile volcano eruption eases

SANTIAGO, Chile — A weeklong eruption of Hudson volcano eased slightly Friday, but a continued rain of ash and rocks has forced evacuation of 1,200 villagers in the sparsely populated southern area, authorities reported.

Ash drifted to neighboring Argentina, forcing about 1,400 people to flee, officials said.

"There is an extreme emergency down here," said Juan Mercegue, governor of General Carrera, a province near the 7,100-foot volcano, which began erupting eight days ago after lying dormant for two decades.

Mercegue said a thick layer of ash covers several villages, 1,430 miles south of Santiago.

Authorities distributed masks to residents who stayed, and urged them to remain indoors.

School classes were suspended. Residents were told to drink only water that had been boiled. The cloud of ash turned day into night in several towns.

Victor Serrano, an official of the Public Works Ministry, said the towns of Puerto Ibanez and Chile Chico were among the hardest hit.

Vulcanologist Jose Antonio Naranjo said the eruption intensity had "decreased slightly" but bad weather hampered efforts for a closer look.

■ American doctor twice hero, saves girl

OSLO, Norway — An American physician pulled an unconscious girl from a lake and revived her after she was submerged 15 minutes in a boating accident, newspapers reported Friday — the second time he has performed such heroics.

The Oslo daily Dagbladet devoted its front page to the story about Dr. Gerald Kiedrowski of Fargo, N.D.

"I was just doing my job," Kiedrowski, 42, told the newspaper.

On Dec. 4, 1987, Kiedrowski was among the doctors who saved an 11-year-old boy who had been underwater for 45 minutes in the icy Red River, which forms the boundary between North Dakota and Minnesota. Alvaro Garza of Moorhead, Minn., was clinically dead when pulled from the river. His body temperature had dropped to 77 degrees.

On Thursday, the 10-year-old Norwegian girl had stopped breathing and her heart had stopped beating when Kiedrowski leaned over the side of a lifeboat and pulled her out of the 45-degree water. Crewmen held Kiedrowski's ankles as he ducked under the surface of chilly Lake Mjoesa in southern Norway.

"She was white and gray — totally dead," Kiedrowski, an emergency room doctor at Fargo's St. John's Hospital, said in a telephone interview from Oslo.

■ Animal welfare group threatens boycott

WINDHOEK, Namibia — An animal protection group said Friday it would work for an international boycott against Namibia if the government allows companies to kill more than 20,000 seals.

The International Fund for Animal Welfare said it would lobby politicians worldwide to withhold aid from Namibia, discourage tourists from visiting "a country that kills seals" and pressure other countries to stop importing Namibian goods.

The Namibian seals are to be used for dog food. Seal genitalia are prized as aphrodisiacs in the Far East.

David Barritt, the group's southern Africa representative, said it would use all its resources to dissuade Namibia from carrying out the annual harvest of seals from colonies on its Atlantic coast.

The Namibian Ministry of Fisheries and Marine Resources has authorized companies to cull more than 20,000 seal pups and 2,000 bulls starting this month.

Last year, Namibia allowed harvesters to cull 19,400 seals from colonies at Cape Cross in the north and Luderitz in the south. Each area has more than 200,000 seals and the government says the culling is necessary because the environment cannot support all the animals.

South Africa provides aid to Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (NYT) — In a sign of the political realignment taking place in Africa, South African military advisers have begun training units of the Zairian army, Western diplomats said Thursday.

It is believed to be the first time that South Africa has been asked to provide military aid to a black-ruled nation.

Zaire has publicly supported trade sanctions and other measures against South Africa until its apartheid laws and other racial barriers are dismantled. But like many sub-Saharan countries, Zaire maintains low-level diplomatic links with Pretoria and even in the 1970s and early 80s, when all African states claimed to be shunning South Africa, this country had secret ties to Pretoria and South African produce filled the shelves of Kinshasa's supermarkets.

Nonetheless, the current deployment of about 15 South African army instructors to train Zairian troops, which has been reported by Western diplomats, marks a notable step in South Africa's instensifying efforts to find friends and partners on the continent.

The diplomats said the South Africans had been posted to a military base near Kitona, a town in the southwest corner of this sprawling Central African country. South African engineers were also sent to build living quarters for the advisers. Officials in the South African trade mission here, who maintain a very low profile, did not return calls over three days and no Zaire official could be found who claimed knowledge about the South Africans.

It was unclear when the training started, Western diplomats said, but reports of the exercises began to circulate in May and June of this year. Zaire's army, with about 26,000 troops, is one of the largest on the continent.

Meanwhile, local newspapers here have also reported that South African advisers have been involved in the establishment of special units of the Zairean army — men known locally as the "hiboux," or owls — which they claim have been accused of harassing political opponents of Zaire's president, Mobutu Sese Seko.

Zairean government officials denied that the group exists.

The growing military ties between South Africa and Zaire come at a time of rising civil unrest here as opponents of Mobutu have mounted a sustained campaign to force him to allow greater political and social freedoms.

During his 26 years as this country's leader, Mobuto has been very adept at enlisting the support of foreign forces to put down armed challenges to his rule. In the mid-1970s, when a rebel force twice sought to take control of the copper-rich province of Shaba, it was repulsed largely by troops from France, Belgium and Morocco while the United States flew in needed military supplies.

In an effort to quell the current protests and disturbances, groups of khaki-clad soldiers bearing automatic rifles have been positioned along nearly every main thoroughfare.

Meanwhile, the Zairian capital is rife with rumors of attacks almost daily by soldiers on unarmed civilians.

At the moment, a national political conference called to chart Zaire's future has been suspended by feuding between government and opposition leaders over the selection of delegates. A coalition of 165 opposition groups has accused the government of vote-rigging and intimidation, a charge that the prime minister, Mulumba Lukoji, has strongly denied.

Also unresolved is the question of whether the conference is to be soverign as opposition leaders insist — meaning that its decisions are legally binding.

Body of Frederick the Great to be reburied

HECHINGEN, Germany (AP) — With church bells pealing, a stately train carrying the remains of two Prussian kings left this southwestern town late Friday, heading for a symbolically charged reburial that has polarized Germans.

Frederick the Great and his father, King Frederick Wilhelm I, will be reburied Saturday at the Sanssouci palace in Potsdam, just outside Berlin.

Saturday is the 205th anniversary of the death of Frederick the Great, who wished to be buried next to his dogs in the rococo palace he built.

About 3,000 tourists and curiosity-seekers milled about Hechingen as the two coffins were transported from the nearby hilltop castle of the royal Hohenzollern family to the train station where a special train waited.

A military band played a solemn march and about 60 honor guards stood watch as the coffins were placed on the train. Church bells rang in the background during the 10-minute transfer. Then the train pulled out of the station.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl will attend the reburial in Potsdam, despite numerous protests.

For many people, Frederick the Great awakens bad memories of the king who made Prussia a feared military power. Leftist politicians, church groups and some media said Kohl's participation in the ceremony could revive fears of German nationalism and militarism.

Yet, Kohl and others respond by recalling the humanistic values Frederick the Great also fostered during his 18th century reign, and by calling the reburial a symbol of German unification.

"We are again a united people with a common responsibility for our history. One way this can be symbolized is that the sarcophagus of Frederick the Great can be transported to the place laid down in his will," Kohl said in a statement last week.

Nazi officials, who revered the two kings, had moved the bodies to save them from Allied bombing raids and advancing Soviet troops.

New treaty seen as boon in Panama drug war

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Officials say a new treaty with the United States will be a potent weapon against drugs and money laundering, and also may help Panama erase its image as a "paradise of delinquents."

After acrimonious debate, legislators last month approved the Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty, which provides for close cooperation in gathering evidence. It will be submitted to the U.S. Senate in the fall, and the Bush Administration is expected to press for speedy ratification.

Throughout the 1980s, Panama served as a transit point for U.S.-bound Colombian cocaine. But more importantly, many of its banks were used to launder billions of dollars in cocaine profits.

Despite the ouster 20 months ago of dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega, who is jailed in Miami awaiting trial on drug smuggling and money laundering charges, the drug trade and money laundering have continued to thrive.

The U.S. General Accounting Office said last month that the movement of drugs through Panama has increased since Noriega was deposed, and that the country "continues to be a haven for money laundering."

Egyptian library just cornerstone

By Mimi Mann

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The new Library of Alexandria, intended to resurrect ancient glory, remains but a gleam in the architect's eye three years after President Hosni Mubarak laid the cornerstone.

The library, expected to cost at least $100 million, has become mired in Egypt's notorious bureaucracy. More delays could keep it from being built at all, say the architects who designed it.

"We're ready to go, but we don't have the go-ahead," said Christoph Kapeller of Snohetta, an Oslo architectural and landscaping company that won the design competition in 1989.

Kapeller, director of the branch Snohetta opened in Egypt for the project, said his company, the British engineering firm YRM and Norconsult International of Olso have 2,500 specialists at work to make the new Alexandria Library a reality.

"But in Egypt, we're not moving forward, and delays cost money," Kapeller said.

NEARLY TWO years after Snohetta's design won over 1,333 other entries from 77 countries, he said, the architectural firm still has no official contract from the Egyptian government.

Not a spade of earth has been turned at the building site in the historic city on the Mediterranean. Months after construction was to begin, Kapeller said, the architects have not received even such basic requirements as data on soil content at the site.

After years of discussion, Mubarak symbolically launched the project on June 26, 1988, by laying the cornerstone.

Fund raising began in February 1990 with a gathering of oil sheiks, queens, presidents and prime ministers in Aswan.

President Francois Mitterrand of France and Princess Caroline of Monaco attended, as did Melina Mercouri, the former culture minister of Greece; Queen Noor of Jordan, and Queen Sofia of Spain.

Pledges totaled $65 million that first day, including $21 million promised by President Saddam Hussein of Iraq in a telephone call to Mubarak. The rest of the money is to come from fund-raising campaigns conducted by the United Nations.

THE NEW Alexandria Library is intended as a cultural magnet and economic boost for the decaying coastal city designed in 332 B.C. by Alexander the Great.

Alexandria contained the Pharos, or lighthouse, one of the ancient world's seven wonders, but its great fame was built on the library and the city's other centers of intellect and education. The knowledge they imparted spread to Greece and Rome, forming the basis of Western civilization.

At its peak, the Alexandria Library possessed more than half a million scrolls and other documents. They included the contents of a great library at Pergamum in Asia Minor that Mark Antony gave to Cleopatra.

The new library, scheduled to open July 26, 1995, is to include 200,000 volumes initially, but eventually could hold 5 million. Its cost is estimated at $100 million to $150 million.

Changes in government ministers, unanswered requests for technical data and infighting over who should be chairman of the executive committee have caused delays that put the project's future in question. Kapeller said both the cost and opening date now are uncertain.

Bureaucratic delay and red tape have prevailed in Egypt since the Pharaohs, and little work is done in the long, hot summer, so timetables often have to be rewritten.

ECONOMIC CHANGES urged by the International Monetary Fund as the cost of debt relief are causing rapid inflation, particularly in the cost of imported goods.

"We were supposed to start in 1990" on the library, Kapeller said. "This is now 1991. We could still get the library finished on time, but only with no more delays."

Egyptian officials disagree. Four days before Kapeller's firm told journalists its version of the story, the English-language Al-Ahram Weekly carried an optimistic report about the project.

It quoted Mohsen Zahran, head of the founding committee, as predicting construction would start in 1992 and take 30 months.

Kapeller and Kjetil Thorsen, a colleague at Snohetta, said the company had not yet been allowed to choose a local contractor. Its representatives were unable to participate in a government-sponsored analysis of the land at the site, they added.

"A building is more than a design on paper," Kapeller said. "It's our responsibility. This is our design from the beginning and we must see it through. If anything goes wrong, everybody will blame us. We must ensure the work is correct."

THE DESIGN is a sweeping circle of steel, concrete, glass and stone, symbolizing the sun rising, with 566,800 square feet of space in 10 floors. Also planned for the complex are landscaped gardens and a planetarium shaped like an inverted pyramid.

Egypt donated 10 acres of seafront land, worth an estimated $60 million, that already includes a convention center.

Critics of the site say it is waterlogged from the sea water and sewage that threaten major portions of the city.

Since 'intifidah,' Jerusalem's night life almost non-existent

By Said Ghazali

JERUSALEM (AP) — Mustafa Kurd described his vision of music lovers crowding his recital, then added "Inshallah," or "God willing," an Arabic expression used for wishful but often unlikely developments.

The big night came, and the bearded musician's fingers masterfully caressed the strings of the lute-like oud, his voice rose and fell in harmony, creating a rare musical exhilaration.

But only five Germans, five Palestinians and an American woman were in the audience.

In Arab east Jerusalem, after 43 months of an uprising against Israeli occupation, nights animated by culture are few. Time is passed with television, videocassettes and dozing in the city that Israel captured in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

It's uncommon for Jerusalem's 140,000 Arab residents to seek amusement on the other side of town dominated by their Israeli foes.

Each evening at dark, most Arabs rush home before Israeli police and masked Palestinian youths put on their almost nightly carnival among the sloping hills and dark streets. Stones and firebombs fly, sometimes answered by police gunfire.

"It is a risk for me to roam through the empty streets and closed shops in the nighttime," poet Ali Khalili mused. "Recently I wrote a poem but I do not know what to do with it."

He has published 21 books of poetry and stories, but now there are no readings to introduce new works. Four cultural journals and three publishing houses have closed, at least temporarily, because of financial difficulties after the Gulf War.

Khalili considers cultural activities "the most important political front" in keeping alive the idea of the Palestinian nation.

East Jerusalem's three cinemas are closed, their exteriors still pasted with tatters of the posters for movies they featured three years ago. A few restaurants are open but without shows of Palestinian dancing and singing.

Before the "intifadah," or uprising, started in December 1987, east Jerusalem was a center of culture for the occupied West Bank.

There were plays and movies, recitals of music and "dabkeh" folk dancing, and exhibitions of the embroidery that Palestinian women raise to the level of art.

The entertainments were cut both by the sobriety demanded by uprising leaders and curfews ordered by Israeli authorities. A lack of money also is constricting, brought on by the intifadah and the Gulf War.

Now, east Jerusalem's three cinemas are closed, their exteriors still pasted with tatters of the posters for movies they featured three years ago. A few restaurants are open but without shows of Palestinian dancing and singing.

Cultural activities at Palestinian universities in the West Bank and Gaza Strip also have come to a standstill. Israel closed the six universities at the start of the uprising, and the two that have been reopened have barely enough funds for classes.

Bir Zeit University in the West Bank, which remains shut, was known for its three-week Soak Okath cultural festival each year, named for a valley near Mecca where merchants and tribal leaders used to nominate the best poet in the Arabian Peninsula.

In Ramallah, once a summer resort famed for its cool hills among the hot, surrounding flat lands, Lana Abu Hijleh and her troupe of dabkeh dancers still rehearse a few hours a week but sometimes wonder why.

"Curfews and closures made it difficult for us. Sixteen out of 36 dancers stopped coming, and we are not working on new performances," she said.

Palestinian activists organize some cultural events, but these are heavily tinged with politics and usually draw sparse audiences. One bright spot is that some people who turned away from Palestinian culture are now seeking their roots.

Munir Barakat, an antique dealer with a clientele of tourists and diplomats, notes Palestinians are now buying embroidered dresses and Arab furniture they would have thrown out as old-fashioned a few years back.

Kurd, the oud player and singer, sighed when asked about the cultural scene. He returned to the country after 10 years away, taking his music to the Arab world.

He recalled an evening concert in Ramallah years ago with dozens of boy and girl scouts beating drums and spectators jumping to their feet and shouting "Sing it again, Kurd!"

"Where are the scouts? Where are the listeners? All have vanished," Kurd said.

Then he added: "Never mind, the old days will come back. Inshallah."

Army aims at putting out Iraqi oil fires

AHMADI, Kuwait (AP) — The U.S. Army waged war Friday against an oil well ignited by Iraqis, and won.

The mission pitted a Combat Engineering Vehicle — a modified M-60 tank — against a 13-foot mound of coke and debris around a burning well that blocked firefighters.

Shortly after dawn Friday, the vehicle opened fire with 10 high-explosive rounds and broke the hardened coke into chunks that can be scooped away.

"They've done a good job," said Danny Clayton of Houston, Texas, manager of the Red Adair Inc. firefighting team that will extinguish and cap the well. "They probably saved us three or four days of work."

Clayton said that normally, his crew would use dynamite to blast through the coke, a hardened mass of sand, hydrocarbons and salt.

Soviets can buy Western goods in commercial shops

By Clinton O'Brien

MOSCOW (AP) — Maria Repin never shops for good shoes at the state shoe store. It doesn't have any. She used to try the black market sometimes, but now heads for one of the new "commercial" stores.

"It's nice to have a place where at least there is something to buy," said the 32-year-old engineer, who found a pair of Italian shoes in suburban Lyubertsy.

Despite a nationwide shortage of consumer goods, the new shops legalized last summer are full of sought-after items, many imported from Japan and the West. They sell clothing, electronics, cosmetics, athletic equipment, food and drink — for Soviet rubles, not dollars or other currency.

There's a catch, in the prices.

"I spent 500 rubles — two months' salary — on shoes that used to cost 100 rubles" in a government store, Mrs. Repin said. "That's unfair."

Hundreds of the commercial stores have opened in Moscow and other Soviet cities in the past year, one of the clearest signs the government is serious about moving toward a market economy.

Many Soviet citizens who travel abroad bring back VCRs or other items and consign them to the stores for sale, sometimes making enough profit to pay for the trip. The shop returns up to 80 percent of the price to the consignor.

Because the shops pay taxes, the government shares in the profit from sales that used to enrich only the black market.

The stores are controversial because not all their goods are of certain origin. Some items may have been stolen, others bought from state stores at subsidized prices, which makes reselling them a crime.

Half a block from Red Square, the Na Nikolskoi store offers a Hitachi double-cassette boom box for 5,000 rubles ($8,500 at the official exchange rate or $180 at the new tourist rate).

A Panasonic VCR goes for 22,000 rubles ($800 at the tourist rate). The most expensive item is a desktop Xerox copier for 31,000 rubles ($1,125 tourist).

In Leningrad, the city council has been auctioning state stores as part of a plan to make 80 percent of retail outlets private by the end of this year.

Many have been reborn as commercial shops where, says the weekly Moscow News, shoppers can find everything, including kitchen sinks.

"The government was trying to get goods into the shops, to satisfy consumer demand," said Stuart Thom, a financial analyst with the Moscow office of Ernst and Young, a U.S. accounting firm. "This way, the goods are bought legitimately."

Except for cars, computers and a few other items, commercial stores can charge whatever they want. Prices are two to 10 times those in state stores, if the state stores had the items in the first place.

Some commercial stores sell goods purchased by the store owners on buying trips, as well as consignment items.

For people like Maria Repin and her husband Sergei, accustomed to socialist thinking, buying low and selling high is exploitation. They are especially irked that Soviet-made goods sometimes are resold illegally in commercial shops at big markups.

"It's speculation," said Sergei Repin, using the Russian term for economic crime. "It's dishonest toward poor people."

The Repins add, however, that they support the move toward a free market.

Sheik center of hostage crisis

■ Lebanese groups link release of Western captives with release of the Shiite Muslim cleric who is in the hands of the Israelis.

By Ana Puga
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid: Terrorist? Martyr? Or insignificant Shiite Muslim cleric whose symbolic importance has grown far beyond his original power?

The hostage saga has suddenly begun to revolve around this white-turbaned, black-bearded preacher who most of the world had never heard of until his kidnapping two years ago by Israeli troops.

Now Lebanese Shiite Muslim groups are demanding that he and about 300 other Lebanese prisoners in Israel be released in exchange for Western hostages.

Israeli officials say they will consider freeing Obeid, but only after they learn the status of seven of their servicemen missing in Lebanon. That ties the fate of five American hostages, including former Associated Press Beruit Bureau Chief Terry Anderson, to Obeid's future.

Israeli Embassy officials here describe the 38-year-old cleric as "a leader of the extremist Hezbollah, or Party of God, a fanatic, a dangerous man who was involved in terrorist activities."

"If you bring him to trial, he will cause such an uproar and encourage more hostage-taking," an Israeli official said.

SO THE solution of the Israeli government has been to hold Obeid without trial for more than two years, since Israeli troops leapt from a helicopter and abducted the religious leader from his home in the South Lebanese village of Jibsheet on July 28, 1989.

Israeli military officials probably interrogated Obeid in hopes of learning the names of local leaders of the Hezbollah and the locations of safehouses in which the organization kept hostages, experts say. Israeli reports on Obeid's condition have said only that he is in good shape and is learning Hebrew.

AP Laserphoto

Mujahida, 2½, holds a picture of her father, Sheik Abdul Karim Obeid, the Shiite Muslim cleric who has become the key to the hostage situation.

"He is in a jail, not a resort or a hotel. But he is not chained to the wall, like they do in Lebanon," said the Israeli Embassy official, referring to reports that Western hostages had been shackled for long periods.

Lebanese leaders argue that Obeid has suffered unjustly in Israeli hands. They describe him as a young, humble spiritual leader who was doing his best to provide moral support to poor villagers bent under the yoke of Israeli occupation.

"He was not a big Hitler or a small Hitler. He was just an average guy who used to speak in the mosque on Fridays," said Wafa Nassar, a Lebanese journalist and vice president of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee.

Friday noon time mosque sermons, called khotbah, traditionally cover a wide range of subjects, from the moral lessons of the Koran to contemporary political conflicts, Nassar said. Villagers throng to hear their local leaders preach.

"SOMETIMES THE preachers call for a Holy War to defend your land against the enemies of God. They take a very emotional stand," said Nassar. "But after two or three hours everyone goes back to their normal lives. It's mostly rhetoric."

Nassar said he thinks the Israelis wanted Obeid as a scapegoat and a bargaining chip in negotiations with Hezbollah hostage-takers. He does not believe Israeli accusations that Obeid plotted the February 1988 kidnapping of American hostage Lt. Col. William Higgins.

Whatever Obeid's original role in Hezbollah, no one denies that he has since become a rallying point for radical pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim groups in Southern Lebanon.

"He's become a symbol," said Barry Rubin, an expert on terrorism with Johns Hopkins University. "To the Lebanese, he's a symbol of all the prisoners the Israelis hold. For the Israelis, he sent the message that if you support terrorists, there will be a price to pay."

Four months after Obeid's kidnapping, a group affiliated with the Hezbollah, calling itself the Revolutionary Justice Organization, issued a videotape allegedly showing the hanged body of Higgins. The group said it had killed him in revenge for Obeid's kidnapping. But after studying the videotape, U.S. officials concluded that Higgins had probably been killed several months earlier.

Obeid may have relatives among the Lebanese hostage-takers who are especially keen on winning his freedom, some analysts speculated.

IF HE is released in a hostage swap, Obeid will find today's Lebanon very different from the chaotic country he left, analysts said. A fledgling Lebanese government, with support from Syria, is imposing order and squeezing terrorist groups.

Another change is that Iranian leaders, seeking better relations with the West to bolster their floundering economy, are pressuring their religious allies in Lebanon to release hostages.

Army's celebrated VII Corps to be disbanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — From D-day at Normandy to G-day in the Persian Gulf, the Army's VII Corps compiled a celebrated war record. On Thursday, it lost the battle of time.

The VII Corps is pulling up stakes in the sector of Germany it defended for more than 40 years, folding its flag and disappearing into the history books.

The Army announced that as part of a plan to reduce by half the size of the U.S. force in Europe by 1995, the VII Corps will disband next year, leaving its sister unit, V Corps, as the central fighting outfit on the continent.

The VII Corps, commanded in the Persian Gulf War by Lt. Gen. Frederick Franks, delivered the knockout blow to the Iraqi Republican Guard forces in a 100-hour ground offensive that included the largest tank battles in the history of warfare.

To be withdrawn with VII Corps by the end of September 1992 are two of the four American combat divisions in Europe: the 3rd Armored Division at Frankfurt, Germany, and the 8th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Bad Kreuznach, Germany.

The two combat divisions that survived the cutbacks are the 3rd Infantry Division and the 1st Armored Division. Other combat units, including one of the Army's two armored cavalry regiments, also will be withdrawn but no decisions have been announced.

The VII Corps, with more than 71,000 soldiers, 2,200 combat vehicles and 300 helicopters, has defended a 30,000 square mile section of Germany along the former Iron Curtain since the end of World War II. Now that the Cold War is over, the Bush administration sees less need for a large military presence in Europe.

"We need a force that makes sense for the evolving threat" rather than one tailored almost exclusively to handle a Soviet-led invasion of Western Europe, said Col. William Foster, chief of the Army's war plans division at the Pentagon.

Foster said in an interview that whereas the U.S. military previously planned mainly for global war, it now is structuring its armed forces to respond to as many as two major "regional contingencies," such as the Persian Gulf crisis, simultaneously.

The story of VII Corps began in 1918 when it was assembled in France to train doughboys for combat in World War I.

On D-Day, June 6, 1944, the VII Corps led the bloody allied assault on German positions along Normandy's beaches. Under the command of Gen. J. Laughton "Lightning Joe" Collins, the VII Corps rolled east through France and later fought in the decisive stages of the Battle of the Bulge in the Ardennes.

The VII Corps and its war exploits are revered in today's Army.

"The combat operations of VII Corps in World War II is what all future generals of the Army study at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.," said Maj. Pete Keating of the Army public affairs office in the Pentagon.

The Army has known for weeks it would remove one of its two corps from Europe. The decision on choosing which was wrenching, especially because many of the Army's top brass have been a part of one or the other corps.

Gen. Colin Powell, the No. 1 uniformed officer as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is a former commander of V Corps. Gen. John Galvin, commander of NATO forces in Europe, is a former commander of VII Corps.

In its announcement on withdrawals from Europe, the Army said four of VII Corps' main elements, including VII Corps Artillery and the 2nd Support Command, will be removed by March 15. VII Corps headquarters will disband by April 15.

The Army also said four units in Germany will return to the United States.

The 17th Field Artillery Brigade's headquarters and headquarters battery, as well as its 6th Battalion, will move to Fort Sill, Okla.; the 7th Engineer Brigade's headquarters and headquarters company will go to Fort Lewis, Wash.; and the headquarters and headquarters company of the 4th Aviation Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division will go to Fort Bragg, N.C.

Scientist unravel leads to crop circle mystery

Suddenly, the mystery — if it is not all an elaborate series of hoaxes — looks close to solution.

N.Y. Times News Service

The occult-hoopla and abundance of hoaxes surrounding Britain's crop circles have scared off most of the country's scientists. Crop circles — large, photogenic discs and rings that conveniently appear in English wheatfields in the usually newsless summer months — are hard to study.

They happen rapidly, unpredictably and rarely. With few clues to their cause, how do you mimic them in laboratories? And there is always a nagging fear that the day after your learned paper on the subject is published, a gang of cider-drinking tractor drivers will admit to being the real explanation.

But where Britons have feared to tread, a Japanese physicist, Yoshi-Hiko Ohtsuki, has rushed enthusiastically in.

Ohtsuki studies ball lightning — another peculiar phenomenon — at Tokyo's Waseda University. He became interested in crop circles when he noticed that reports of ball lightning, both ancient and modern, often mentioned circular crop damage. Interest blossomed into enthusiasm when he compared notes with Britain's chief circle-ologist, Terence Meaden.

Eschewing the lad-with-a-length-of-chain theory of circle formation, Meaden argued that they were caused by small whirlwinds made of plasma — i.e., gas in which some of the electrons have been separated from their parent atoms. This was very similar to ideas that physicists had dreamt up to explain ball lightning. Since then, Ohtsuki has been a frequent guest of Meaden's in Wiltshire, the crop-circle capital of the world.

HIS LATEST three-week tour — surrounded by student assistants, media camp-followers, whispering mystics and anxious farmers — has been frustrating. He has recorded the circles' shapes, dimensions and orientations, and searched carefully for any evidence of intelligent (human) creation. But despite nocturnal vigils with radar, video cameras and finicky portable generators, he has not yet caught a circle in flagrante delicto.

Such failure is hardly news among the crop-circle fraternity. What sets Ohtsuki apart is that he has a laboratory to go back to. A few months ago, he and a colleague turned from their equations to reality. They created plasma balls in air using strong microwave radiation. Ohtsuki's artificial ball lightning may not have been big enough to bend a wet wheatstalk, but it did show some of natural ball lightning's curious quantum gymnastics: movement into the wind, a tendency to hover near electrical conductors, and ghostlike passage through non-conducting solids. When they published their results in Nature, one of the referees refused to believe them until Ohtsuki sent him the video.

Flushed with success, Ohtsuki introduced a tray of aluminium powder — a crude substitute for a field of crops — into his plasma-creation chamber. Where the glowing balls touched down on to the powder, they left ringed circles, miniatures of a shape familiar to Wiltshire farmers. Ohtsuki has also found the bullseye images on soot-covered walls near large electrical transformers, and by the electrified rails in Japanese subway tunnels.

SUDDENLY, THE MYSTERY — if it is not all an elaborate series of hoaxes — looks close to solution. A few weird and wonderful "land graffiti" apart, most circles are one of four types: a simple flattened disc, a flattened disc with a ring around it, or a flattened disc with either two or four smaller satellite circles. And when Ohtsuki sends one of his mathematical crop-crushing plasma balls through the circuits of his supercomputer and into an imaginary wheat-field, the machine predicts just those kinds of shapes.

How might it work? Plasma is tricky stuff. Very hot plasmas, at temperatures of several million degrees, help power the sun. Cooler ones produce the light in fluorescent tubes.

It was Peter Handel, of the University of Missouri, who suggested that a low-temperature plasma generated by microwaves might explain ball lightning. The microwaves would come from water vapor in the atmosphere. Since water molecules vibrate at the right speed to generate microwaves, this theory is plausible (microwave ovens work on the reverse principle, using microwaves to shake the water molecules in food and so heat it up). But the internal complexity of the Handel model is not enough to create the patterns seen.

OHTSUKI MODIFIED HANDEL'S idea slightly. Instead of a uniform plasma, he envisages a spinning core of positive ions (atoms with less than the usual complement of electrons) surrounded by a shell composed of the liberated electrons. The two are kept apart by pressure from microwaves trapped in the plasma. It is here that the questions start. The trapped microwave field inside the sphere needs outside energy to keep it going. Where that energy comes from is not yet clear.

Meaden's theory — less rigorously mathematical — relies on meteorology rather than microwaves. Observing that circles often form in the lee of hills, he envisages downrushing eddies of air sweeping up naturally occurring ions and spinning them into a plasma vortex.

Crime rate rises in Japan

N.Y. Times News Service

TOKYO — The high degree to which people are safe from crime is one of the things that Japanese can feel proud of. People are rarely murdered or robbed even in big cities. Young women feel little danger when they walk alone outdoors at night. However, recent years have witnessed a decline in this freedom from crime.

This was clearly illustrated this month by the statistics released by the National Police Agency.

According to the White Paper on Police for 1990, the proportion of crimes in which police identified a suspect — called the "clearance rate" — hit a record low of 42.3 percent.

Several days later, a provisional report for the first six months of 1991 contained an even lower clearance rate of 38.9 percent. By contrast, the figure had stood around 60 percent until the late 1980s.

The Japanese police have traditionally considered the clearance rate important as a mark of accomplishment. They solve or "clear" offenses by identifying a suspect.

It is not necessary for the suspect to be arrested or charged for a case to be considered cleared. The suspect may merely be admonished and sent on his or her way. Unlike in the United States, arrests are rare.

David H. Bayley, an internationally renowned researcher in police activity, cited the clearance rate in his 1976 book "Forces of Order," where he praises the good performance of the Japanese police in maintaining safe society.

He wrote that the clearance rate for Japan in 1972 was 57 percent, whereas the arrest rate in the United States in 1972 was 22 percent. But that was more than 20 years ago.

Japanese police consider their clearance rate to correspond with the arrest rate in the United States, citing the comparative rarity of arrests in Japan, which Bayley attributed to the cooperativeness of the Japanese people with the police.

For many years the clearance rate hovered at about 60 percent. The percentage, however, drastically fell beginning in 1988, dropping below the 50 percent mark in 1989 and declining further in 1990.

Does the decline in the clearance rate indicate a rising level of crime in Japan?

Not at all, says Takaji Kunimatsu, director general of the agency's Criminal Investigation Bureau.

"Because we have been making an effort to investigate the more serious cases, the rate decreased for minor crimes such as bicycle thefts and shoplifting, which occur more often," Kunimatsu said.

"The clearance rate for all crimes, including those kinds of minor crimes, does not mean very much and we will not attach great importance to it," he added.

The reality is, however, that the clearance rate for serious crimes or felonies such as murders, robberies and rapes, has also declined by 4 percent in the last five years. The clearance rate for serious crimes stood at 83.8 percent in 1990.

The White Paper clearly reveals that the accomplishments of the police in general have gradually deteriorated, with the investigation of more serious cases being no exception.

MOONLIGHTING!

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

OFTEN ASKED QUESTIONS:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of the distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly! Some make even more!

How long does it take?
The actually delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday - Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME!

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its new "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in additionto the regular monthly route proftis. The route is in the Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for your self) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".
