Yarbrough To Court

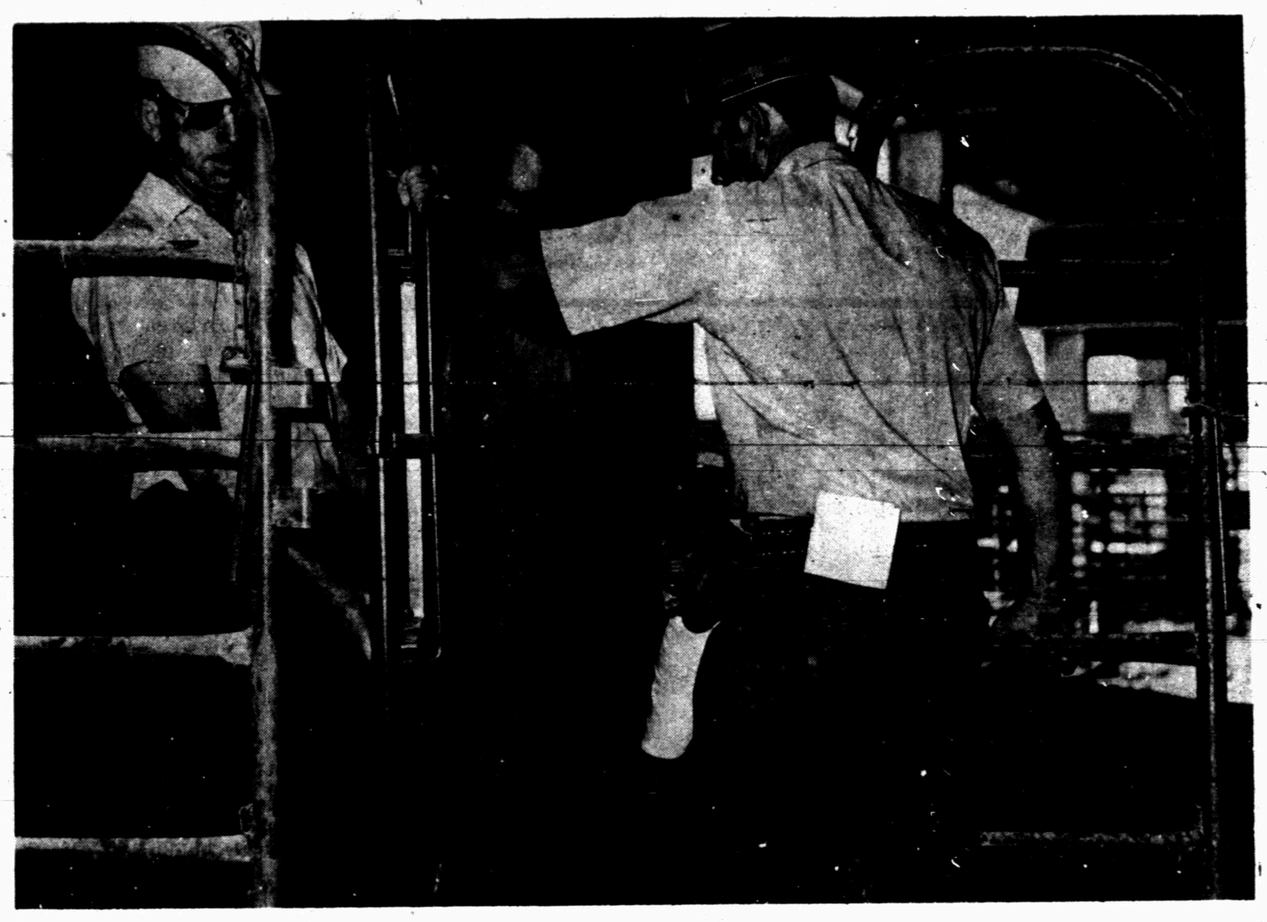

AUSTIN (AP)-Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough goes into federal court today in an effort to halt what he calls the "rush to judgment" being forced on him by Texas lawmakers.

U.S. 5th Circuit Court Judge Tom Gee set a 1 p.m. hearing on a motion by Yarbrough's lawyer, Waggoner Carr, to delay the scheduled Friday legislative hearing on the removal of Yarbrough from the high court.

Nurses Remain Free

DETROIT (AP)-Over strong government objections, a judge today permitted two nurses convicted of poisoning hospital patients to remain free on bond.

"From the record, trial and pretrial hearings, the court doesn't see any indication the defendants will flee," said U.S. District Court Judge Philip Pratt in continuing bond of $75,000 each for Leonora Perez, 33, and Filipina Narciso, 31.

House Cuts School Year

AUSTIN (AP)-Texas House members, debating a school finance bill priced at almost $1 billion, voted today to reduce the school year from 180 to 175 days.

The Senate version of the bill, however, preserves the present 180-day year, creating one more issue that probably will have to be resolved by a joint conference committee.

While approving a shorter year, the House refused, 85-59, to force all school districts after 1977 to delay the start of the academic year until Sept. 1.

Rep. Dan Kubiak D-Rockdale, sponsored the amendment shortening the school year saying that many rural districts lack air conditioning and both students and teachers suffer if school starts during the dog days of August.

As House debate of school finance- the only issue before the special legislative session -began, the philosophical split between urban liberals and rural members surfaced immediately.

Rep. Ben T. Reyes, D-Houston, said the bill provides $159.7 per pupil in new money for districts with $50,000 to $79,999 per student in taxable wealth. But it gives $177 per pupil to those with between $260,000 and $289,000 in wealth per student, he said.

"Any time you increase your state aid, the ones that have been paying get a reduction in what is required of them" said Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, chairman of the House Public Education Committee.

"You're giving more to rich districts than poor ones," replied Reyes.

Massey said in his opening remarks that the bill approved by his committee and pushed by Speaker Bill Clayton was "more equitable, more fair than any of the bills before you."

Those include the Senate passed school finance bill and a more expensive one pushed by House liberals.

An article in the June issue of "Water for Texas," the publication of the state Water Development Board, calls attention to water storage tanks, or "water towers," as many refer to them.

The water towers which dot our cities serve several purposes, the most important of which is the saving of energy. They were in use of course long before the present energy shortage. In fact, they were in use before this country's citizens became accustomed to such things as natural gas and oil.

"These all-welded steel structures provide elevated storage for water which flows by gravity as needed to smooth out pressure variations in distribution mains, or to supply instant sprinkler systems or hydrants for fire protection," says the article. "Elevated storage systems for either municipal or private water suppiy offer advantages like reduced pumping costs, reduced insurance rates associated with increased fire protection, and the added bonus of skyline advertising."

Reference was made to variety of designs offered by builders of water towers, such as the Hemispherical design, the Ellipsoidal, Tripod, Radial Cone, Spheroidal, Watersphere, Waterspheriod, Polyspheroid and Fluted Column, offered by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Co., which has been in the water tower business since 1894.

But water towers serve purposes other than assuring proper pressure on our water lines. They serve as a facility for a city or town to advertise itself, express patriotism and for its more venturesome elements to display their grafitti. Some water towers have signs on them proclaiming only the name of the town, while others may display the name of their high school athletic teams' mascot.

Water towers used to be a source of considerable interest to country boys who came to town. We recall an uncle down there in East Texas who made his first trip to Big D (it was just plain Dallas in those days) to visit relatives. He arose at his customary hour of dawn, and, finding no one else stirring in the house, decided to take a walk. He was a shrewd country bumpkin, however. He had the foresight to zero in on a landmark in case he had trouble finding his way back to the house. Fortunately, there was a water tower only half a block away.

His stroll took him many blocks down the street, and in due time he decided to return. He looked around, and sure enough, there was the friendly water tower in plain view, and he set out toward it. He reached it much sooner than he expected, and was gratified because it was breakfast time. But, as he began looking for the house, it became evident that someone had shuffled things around during the quarter hour he had been walking. After considerable searching and mounting confusion, he encountered a milkman and sought aid. Finally, the milkman convinced him that Dallas had more than one water tower.

Still Reeling From Blackout

NYC Turning Back On

NEW YORK (AP)-They started turning New York back on today but the city was still reeling from a total electrical blackout triggered when lightning hit power lines and generating stations.

The blackout, which shut down the nation's largest city at 9:34 Wednesday night, continued into this afternoon as power technicians struggled to restore electricity one section at a time.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame declared a state of emergency and called for an investigation:

"We cannot tolerate in this age of modern technology a power system that can shut down the nation's largest city."

The blackout, unlike the 1965 power outage that affected the whole Northeast, was limited to New York City most of adjoining Westchester County and parts of Long Island. Also unlike 1965, there was looting in the city this time. Police arrested 2,000 persons during the long, humid night-at least six times as many as on an average night. The worst incidents of looting were in the city's Manhattan primarily East Harlem and the upper West Side, Bronx and Brooklyn boroughs; 78 police officers were reported injured, including one who was shot.

At noon, slightly more than half of Con Edison's nearly 2.8 million residential and commercial customers were still withoug power. Officials said they hoped to have most back in service by 2 p.m., but there was a possibility that some people might not get power for another 24 hours.

Con Ed said that all of Westchester County, all of the borough of Staten Island and most of the borough of Queens had power by noon.

But in the Bronx only 5 per cent had electricity, in Brooklyn less than 20 per cent and in Manhattan, only 25 per cent. Lower Manhattan, the nation's financial hub, was still dark.

Officials said it would be at least two hours after full power restoration before the city's subways, on which millions depend for primary transportation, could start running.

For the most part, New Yorkers took the blackout in friendly stride. When the lights went out, they came out of the apartment buildings and brownstones carrying flashlights and candles to chat with their neighbors, help direct traffic and drink what cold beer and soda they could find.

As dawn brought the first light to the 10 million residents who endured the hot summer night without power, Mayor Beame told the people who live and work here:

"It will not be possible to operate a normal day. I urge you to stay home until the emergency has been resolved."

Most New Yorkers apparently didn't need to be told to stay home.

Beef Vote Ends Friday

Tomorrow is the last day for cattlemen to vote in the beef referendum, John Jarrell, Scurry County Beef Referendum Chairman reminded today, and it appeared this morning that Scurry County was certain to cast enough ballots for its vote to be validated.

At least 50 per cent of the cattle producers who registered in June must vote in the referendum for the county's vote to be counted in the nation-wide referendum.

Through Wednesday, the ASCS office here reported that 90 ballots had been cast. A total of 186 registered here, which means that the Scurry County vote was approaching the 50 per cent requirement. Only those who registered during the June registration period are eligible to vote in the referendum.

Two thirds of the valid votes must favor the proposal in the referendum for it to pass.

If the referendum passes, a Beef Board consisting of large and small cattle producers from throughout the nation who are nominated by producer organizations will be appointed to serve. The board will administer a program of research, promotion, foreign market development and marketing information which many cattlemen believe are vital to keeping the beef industry strong. The program will be supported by a checkoff plan when cattle are marketed. Cattle producers not wanting to participate in the program can obtain a refund by requesting it and providing proof of the amount they contributed.

"The beef industry has been the victim in recent years of poor publicity, bad information and inadequate research and market development techniques," said Jarrell. "Cattle producers can turn that trend around."

City Without Taxi Service

Snyder is without taxicab service and no applications for a taxicab franchise here have been submitted to the city.

Jack Bryant, who operated Snyder Taxicab Co. for a year, notified city officials last month that he planned to give up the franchise. His last day to operate the service was last Saturday, and since that day there has been no taxicab in operation here.

City officials said that they were hopeful that applications for a taxicab franchise would be received, but so far there have been none.

Amendment Hits Snyder School

Snyder School officials today were keeping their eyes on Austin as efforts were underway to knock out an amendment to a school finance bill that might deny some $539,000 in state funds to the school district here.

State Rep. Mike Ezzell advised Snyder Supt. Bill J. Hood that he hoped to get an amendment to House Bill 1 knocked out on the floor. The amendment, sponsored by Rep. Lee Jackson of Dallas, was added to the general school education bill by the House Public Education Committee bill that it recommended to the House.

It would remove most of the per capita apportionment—the only state funds the Snyder district receives— and channel it into the foundation program for use in equalizing finances for schools in the foundation program.

Snyder Independent School District is pegged to received some $770,000 in the per capita apportionment at present. Jackson's bill would reduce this to some $231,000. The Dallas legislator's amendment wold take all be $72 per capita from this source. The legislature cannot cut off the $72 because that amount is set up constitutionally. However, any amount above that is subject to statutory assignment.

If the Jackson amendment should be adopted along with the finance bill, instead of receiving around $239 per student, Snyder Schools would receive only the $72 mandated by the constitution, said Hood.

Over 120 districts in the state receive no state funds other that the per capita apportionment from the available school funds. These are budget-balanced schools, who are budget balanced districts that pay their own way and are not eligible to participate in the foundation program.

Hood said Ezzell had advised school officials here that he was trying to organize forces to get Jackson's amendment deleted when the bill reaches the House floor. Floor debate on HB1 was expected to begin today.

After Copter Gunned Down

North Korean, U. S. Situation Is Tense

WASHINGTON- (AP)--North Korea gunned down an American helicopter today, killed three crewmen, captured another, and rebuffed U.S. demands for an immediate meeting on the tension-raising incident.

President Carter said the craft apparently strayed into communist territory through navigational error. He said he wants to insure "this does not escalte into a confrontation."

The North Koreans charged the Chinook chopper had made a deep intrusion into their air space and was armed. American officials said it was carrying construction materials.

Communist representatives failed to show up at the Panmunjom truce village, although they offered to discuss the incident there on Saturday.

Carter told seven senators who came to the White House that the North Koreans first fired a warning shot and the helicopter landed.

He said the Americans then "got out and inspected their helicopter, and then got into the helicopter and took off. After they took off, the North Koreans who were approaching apparently shot the helicopter down.

"We understand that two of the crew members were killed when the helicopter crashed. Another was killed in the exchange of gunfire in some way, we don't know yet. And the fourth one apparently has been captured."

At Panmunjom, there was no word on the Americans' identity or the disposition of the bodies.

The United Nations command in Seoul said the helicopter flew over North Korean territory unintentionally after it missed its landing site in the south.

"We asked the North Koreans to meet with us immediately at Panmunjom to discuss the whole incident," Carter told the senators. "We are asking them to expedite this meeting. At this time it's scheduled for Friday our time...We are trying to move it up if we can."

The President said the chopper was on "a routine flight from the west coast of Korea to the east coast in daylight" and that it apparently lost a navigational fix.

"Of course, that's a surmise," the President said.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said the helicopter was apparently hit by North Korean gunfire when it crossed the demarcation line. But he said he did not know the sort of weapons used.

"It landed briefly, was inspected by the crew, was evidently approached by North Korean personnel," he said. "The helicopter took off and was shot down."

The spokesman said that while the President used the term "exchange of gunfire" there was "no indication there was an exchange in the sense of American or South Korean fire directed at North Koreans."

He said the helicopter was unarmed but he did not know if the crew members carried weapons.

change comes slowly

One of the more interesting developments since a supposedly liberal Democrat was inducted into the office of President has been the surprising number of instances when conservative points of view prevailed over liberal proposals.

The trend has been in one direction with such consistency the President's decision against construction of a fleet of B1 bombers was hailed by news media scorekeepers as a victory for liberals on Capitol Hill. It received that classification and was headlined in printed media as a marked exception in the pattern of events since January.

It is still too early in the Carter Administration to be certain that a conservative trend is under way. Actually some of the experts are overlooking instances when the President out-liberaled the liberals.

But regardless of how the score stands between conservative and liberal decisions, the fact is that some very significant displays of conservative thinking have surfaced at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. Congress has turned in a few surprises on its own account. So the President isn't alone in taking a slight swing to the right.

Maybe opinions from constituents are getting through. Organized labor has suffered several setbacks. Doughty old George Meany, AFL-CIO's chief spokesman, has let it be known he is unhappy on several counts. Defeat of an effort to repeal the right-to-work provision of the Taft-Hartley Act was a major setback for labor.

In any event President Carter has shown considerable coolness to some of the ideas he expressed during last year's campaign.

But in that he is not unique among our Presidents of the past several decades. Franklin Roosevelt is about the only one in the past 40 years who ran conservative and turned liberal after getting in office. Lyndon Johnson may have some claim on this type of behavior. In the main, however, it has been the other way around.

It isn't hard to find a plausible explanation. The job of being President isn't nearly as easy as it appears to be from the outside. Major, however, is the fact that our national government has attained such unmanageable proportions as to make a change of course all but impossible.

health of colleges

Educators talk dismally about the financial woes of colleges and universities, but the latest figures on the subject seem not to support their complaints.

The National Center for Education Statistics in Washington reports the number of colleges, universities and branch campuses increased from 3,055 to 3,075 during the school year just ended.

The number of public colleges increased by 13. The number of private colleges - many of which are said to be struggling - increased by seven. Which seems to show that higher education may not be quite as anemic as we've been led to believe.

my turn

by john long

The derivations and literal meanings of words are interesting fields of study.

In Wednesday's "My Turn" column, SDN staffer Jo Ann Nunley wrote of right and lefthanded persons.

Although not a classical scholar, I did serve a two-year stint studying Latin.

The word "sinister," in the English language, comes from the Latin "sinister." Sinister, in Latin, meant left as in left-handed. The Romans reputedly held lefthanded persons in distrust, believing only righthanded persons to be normal.

The superstitious suspicion the Romans held for left-handed people accounts, possibly, for the current meaning of the word sinister. Although there is no real proof, Julius Caesar is reputed to have been lefthanded, we were always taught. Julius Caesar was also assassinated.

On the other hand (pardon the pun), the word "dexter" in Latin meant right as in righthanded. The words dexterious and dexterity, which are commonly used in the English language today, are derived from the Latin dexter.

Etymology is the study of the origins, derivations, and meanings of words. This is not to be confused with entomology, which is the study of insects and a study for which I have no liking.

One might say I am an amateur etymologist. This means, of course, that I am a lover of etymology.

The word amateur means, literally, a lover. The English "amateur" comes from the Latin "amare," which meant to love. Thus, an amateur is one who loves or a lover.

What constitutes cruel and unusual punishment is an issue still debated among all associated with law enforcement. However, eating food served in prison cafeterias does not entitle a person to claim he is a victim of either cruel or unusual punishment.

The Associated Press reported that an inmate in the Virginia State Penitentiary filed a suit contending that his constitutional rights were being ill-served (pardon the pun, also) by his being forced to eat the prison gruel.

The suit was dismissed by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

equality doesn't exist

You can look around any classroom and confirm that we are not created equal.

To "equal rights" we are entitled.

But "equality" of course, there is no such thing.

Increasingly, however, we are discovering many of the factors which make us different, one from another, are controllable before conception.

The grade-schoolers you see in school--or in the theater matinee--more than any generation heretofore--wear glasses.

This may not relate to the prenatal condition of the mother.

But it may.

We are learning that women who take drugs during pregnancy--even sleeping pills--affect the enzyme activity in the developing fetus, impairing proper growth of the tiny organs. Including the brain.

There is some evidence that a father who smokes before conception may handicap the subsequent offspring. Certainly, mothers who smoke during pregnancy jeopardize the oxygen supply to the brain cells of the unborn. Massive doses of carbon monoxide can be fatal to the fetus.

Similarly, there is increasing evidence that drinking--by either parent--may have a subtle but deliterious effect on the offspring.

So you want to have a "beautiful baby." There are some specific rules you can follow. They begin with the selection of a mate.

Sensitive and controversial as the subject of heredity may be, sociobiology is now an established science.

Sociobiology relates inherited genes with subsequent behavior.

It theorizes that aggression, altruism, even homosexuality are among traits which can be transmitted genetically.

Generations of scientists have carefully bred race horses--even pet dogs--to perpetuate the best characteristics of the parents.

But up to now we have treated the human species with such indifference as to imagine that the selection of parents--and prenatal influences--don't matter.

In the royal family of Britain there is a tendency to porphyria, a hereditary metabolic disease which may have driven George Third to madness.

Prince Charles recognizes the latest research on this subject and accepts his own vulnerability. He has indicated that he will choose a mate "very carefully."

After the selection of a healthy mate who had healthy parents, what can one do to give the offspring every physical advantage?

Desist from the use of tobacco and alcohol and drugs of any kind altogether for six months prior to conception and, for the mother, throughout pregnancy. Stay off the Pill for six weeks prior to conception.

A balanced diet during pregnancy is preferable to any extreme diet. Avoid excessive consumption of caffein, sugar, white flour, fried foods. Mother, during pregnancy, should avoid sedatives, aspirin and allergy drugs. And, unless urgently required, avoid all X-rav. Avoid long periods in smoke-filled rooms.

Exercise during pregnancy flushes every organ, including those of the fetus, with fresh oxygen, but exercise should not be more strenuous than that to which the mother is accustomed

Isn't it interesting---those newest recommendations based on the latest research include little that's newer than what grandmother knew by heart.

data out-dated

NEW YORK (AP)-A new booklet produced by two environmental groups said to be a guide to 50 industrials for responsible investors, is based on outdated and perhaps misleading data.

The publication, "The Pollution Audit," was published by The Council of Economic Priorities with encouragement and a small grant from the Sierra Club.

Copywrited this year, and with a forward signed Feb. 21, by Michael Mc–Closkey, executive director of the Sierra Club, the data nevertheless are from studies that are from five to seven years old.

The original studies by the council, a nonprofit organization were exhaustive and generally highly regarded, even by some the companies criticized. Since then, however, public concern, legislation, and company efforts have resulted in considerable pollution abatement.

American Can Co., which was ranked among the worst of pulp and paper polluters, maintains it is now "in complete compliance" with state and federal regulations on air and water standards.

A spokesman said that since the original data were compiled in 1970 the company has spent $40.6 million for air and water compliance at pulp and mill sites and has won numerous citations, including a clean water award this month from the Izaak Walton League.

Told of this, Alice Tepper Marlin, founder and executive director of the council, indicated the information in the booklet nevertheless might be useful because it was the only data available.

Asked why the findings weren't updated before publication, especially since it was acknowledged several years ago that American Can "had budgeted adequate equipment even if it wasn't installed," she replied "Because checking it, updating it, takes one and half years and $40,000-$60,000."

The booklet also ranks, in relation to each other, the companies making up the iron and steel, petroleum refining and electric utility industries, again based on studies made several years ago.

Mrs. Markin said two of these studies, of steel and utilities, are now being brought up to date, perhaps for publication later this summer. Conceivably, these studies could make substantial changes in the rankings of companies.

WASHINTON (NEA) - The fate of a new Panama Canal treaty may depend upon President Carter's ability to persuade the Senate to tackle the politically ticklish pact before it adjourns for the year this fall.

Top administration officials are increasingly fearful that attempted ratification of the treaty may have to be postponed until January or February if Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd continues to insist upon adjourning the Senate by Oct. 8.

And that, from the viewpoint of treaty advocates, spells nothing but trouble.

Carter and his foreign policy advisers have recognized all along that the Panama Canal is an explosive domestic political issue.

No matter how carefully qualified, any new treaty ceding U.S. control of the canal to Panama will face extremely rough going on Capitol Hill. To entrust such a pact to the tender mercies of Congress in an election year is an invitation to disaster.

Obtaining Senate ratification by the constitutionally required two-thirds margin of 67 votes will be difficult enough. Persuading the infinitely more volatile House to approve implementing legislation that will accompany the new treaty could be next to impossible in an election year.

U.S. and Panamanian negotiators are nearing final agreement on the outlines of a new treaty, although another month or so may be needed to nail down the fine print details. Congress will be in recess the entire month of August, which means it will be after Labor Day before a completed treaty could even be submitted to the Senate.

That would leave just five weeks for Senate consideration of the most controversial foreign treaty in years if Byrd sticks to his Oct. 6 adjournment date.

And during that five-week period, the Senate will be debating and voting on Carter's energy program.

Thus far, Byrd has displayed little interest in taking up the Panama Canal treaty this year. "The Senate is not ready for the treaty even if the treaty is ready for the Senate," he reportedly has told associates.

State Department lobbyists concede they do not yet have enough votes in the Senate to ratify a new canal treaty. "If we had to take a vote today, cold, we couldn't get more than about 50 votes for it," one nose-counter said.

But treaty negotiators Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz, along with Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard W. Rogers have been patiently briefing small groups of senators on the contents and importance of the new treaty.

So far, the administration team has met with more than half the members of the Senate, and Capitol Hill sources say the briefings have been extremely effective. Gen. Brown's wholehearted support for the new treaty has been especially helpful, these sources said, since many congressional and public fears about the pact center on defense issues.

Nonetheless, said a Senate Foreign Relations Committee source, "the time pressures are just becoming excruciating at this point."

Carter and his strategists are preparing a concentrated campaign to drum up public support for a new Panama Canal treaty once the diplomatic negotiations have been concluded. They know it will be difficult to persuade members of Congress to vote for the pact as long as their constituents remain so emotionally opposed to it.

But the true test of Carter's commitment to a treaty may lie in his willingness to lean on Byrd for speedy Senate action.

staplers kept busy

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Clack-clackity-clack, the raucus, raspy sound came creeping into my dozing thoughts on a quiet July afternoon. After all my years in Washington, I recognized that sound immediately as the dependable, sturdy stapler.

The stapler is that indispensible gadget used in every agency of the Federal Government to hold reams and reams of paper together. The bureaucracy would be absolutely helpless without the stapler and bureaucrats paralyzed in efforts to turn out reports, regulations and directives.

There must have been a primitive version of the stapler. The Fifteenth Century Flemish writer Belartis, the Bemused, used this reference in one of his works: "Ah," he wrote, "That this curs'd and ferrous affixer might be, by happy fortune, deep-sixed." (Hope no one researches the correctness of this quote.)

Anyway, whether the Flemish scholar really knew about the stapler, it would serve good purpose for the President and Congressmen who vote for more and bigger programs, to have Belartis' words engraved and placed on their desks. The stapler explains much about the infestation of Federal functionaries in the daily affairs of Government.

It does not require towering intellect to develop this thesis. Staples have an obvious single purpose - to hold multiple sheets of paper together. A sophisticated stapler can securely bind dozens upon dozens of papers, until full-grown.

This is the way it usually works: a middle-level official would rather miss lunch than to pass along a file on anything without appending three or six or a dozen more pages to it. The process, then, becomes one of geometric accumulation until the executive on whose desk the document finally comes to rest, must be stricken with visions of a small cabin on a little lake deep in the mesquite in Jones County.

The thicker the compilation of stapled entries on a Government matter, less is the inclination of the higher bureaucrat to slog his way, page by page, through all details. This is the time when he may appoint a study committee to deal with the matter in the bulging file. (The Congress often does the same thing but for different reasons - usually to put something off to another day.)

The study committee, to carry out its mission, recruits a staff and months later, issues a report. The stapled sheaves of paper have now given birth to thick volumes, recommending further study and a larger staff.

Many members of congress lament and criticize big Government - controls and regulation - but continue to help churn out legislation which increases bureaucracy and paperwork. The President, who promises reduction in red tape and bigger Government, proposes more of the same. Let it be said in fairness then that it is not just the bureaucrats who create all the red tape which is engulfing the Country. To carry out what the President proposes and the Congress disposes, somebody has to push the button and turn the crank.

That sound could not be a stapler. Out here in the country where stillness crashes on the ears - no telephone or television, only an occasional plane overhead or the distant roar of a diesel truck on the Anson-Stamford Highway - all is quiet. Scores of doves, mockingbirds, red-winged blackbirds, scissor-tails and quail are taking one another's location. At about nine-thirty in the evening and four A.M., coyotes seem to be arguing about something across the pasture. A clacking road-runner came by - which gave the idea of the clinking stapler going steadily in Washington.

To help make the cattle business profitable again, VOTE YES on Beef Referendum. A "no show" is like a "no vote".

Friday is the last day to vote.

All of us have an idea of what our dream house might look like. Few of us ever get to buy it or have it built.

On the west coast of Florida, on Charlotte Harbor north of Ft. Myers, there is such a dream house, created for "someone" who might have imagined it "in his wildest dreams or wildest desires." It exemplifies great imagination, diversity, materials and construction techniques.

Most houses are a series of rectangles or square patterns placed together to form units. This house has no boxes and no squares. It is designed as a series of angles, arches and circles, with everything radiating from a common point. Called "The House of the Waterfall," because of a 13-foot waterfall that cascades down a rock wall into a swimming pool, it has a multiplicity of dramatic views. Every window looks out on water in some form - either a bubbling fountain, a placid pool, a swimming pool, a waterway or the waterfall after which it is named. The bathrooms are constructed on a circular motif, with the door of the master bath opening on a small plunge deck at the deep end of the pool. On the way to the door leading to the pool are a dual shower with a skylight, a sunken tub and double shower heads. For the wine connoiseur, there is a thermostatically-controlled wine "cellar" adjacent to the kitchen.

The structure is concrete block utilizing, in many cases, a double thickness of walls to give mass appearance to wood and other structural materials and techniques used. The foyer and the hobby room are covered with authentic Mexican tile, while the interior of the sauna room is sealed with western red cedar left in its natural state. Luxurious touches are everywhere, including tinted glass, bubble windows, huge closets, open areas, a solar water heater, a ceramic-tiled bar top, massive wood shelves suspended by chains, and Mexican fabrics applied to the walls as part of the interior decorating scheme.

How did this all come about? Wayne Goff, vice president of Building for Punta Gorda Isles, wanted an unusual home that would be a unique attraction in the community. After making a basic design, Goff turned the plan over to Martin Fishback Jr. an architect from St. Petersburg, with instructions to "create a house that someone might want to build in his wildest dreams or wildest desires." Fishback didn't spare the horses - or the car. Even the garage, 28 feet by 28 feet, is completely carpeted. The dimensions of the garage are in line with the generous sizes of the rooms, even though the house is only a two-bedroomer. Those bedrooms are 28 feet by 22 feet, and 24 feet by 13 feet. The living room is 30 feet by 34 feet, the dining room 22 by 15.

What does a dream house cost? It depends on what kind of dream you have. If it includes a house like this, it's $225,000 - not including the cost of the land.

Parents Should Set Teenager's Guidelines

COLLEGE STATION--Teenagers need clearly defined boundaries--with some freedom, says Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Parents have the right, as well as the responsibility, to establish guidelines that might help to reduce their teenager's vulnerability to peer pressures" Miss Taylor says.

"Young people want, above all, to be accepted among their own families and friends and, of course, as long as they 'follow the leader,' there is peace at home and with friends.

"But failure to conform or to 'do as we do' subjects the teenager to namecalling, ridicule and outright snubbing, especially by other teens.

"It is here that parental boundaries can save the teenager from burling in a foolish or even dangerous direction," she advises.

Meanwhile, teens yearn to escape the confines of home. They need to feel a part of their generation and to show their "belonging" in obvious ways--dress, slang, behavior imitation, and all the "in" ways, the specialist says.

"Youthful 'in' ways may even include nosiy disregard for family standards and discipline," Miss Taylor explains.

"Teen pacesetters may demand rejection of parent, teacher, or church value systems.

"War against 'the establishment' is often a reflection of ideals set by the peer group. Recognizing these signs as bids for independence, wise parents give their teenagers freedom--but it is necessarily limited. Without some limits, teens face confusion and chaos."

Parental limits--beyond which a teen is not allowed to go--can protect against peer pressures that would otherwise restrict ultimate growth, the specialist says.

"Family guidance and its support can help offset peer pressures and help teens become responsible for their own behavior.

The unlucky expert had corraled us again. This time he had a question. It was: "How did my partner manage to go down at four hearts after picking up the queen of trumps?"

We couldn't work it out and before telling you what happened, we will give you a hint. West really took advantage of the unfortunate declarer.

West started out by leading the deuce of spades. Normally, it is really poor tactics to lead away from an ace against a suit contract, but this started declarer's downfall. The five was played from dummy and East's 10 forced South's king.

South played king and ace of trumps and then produced the key losing play. He led the 10 of clubs and let it ride to East's jack. There was no reason to give up a club trick, as South put up the king; West was in with the ace and led the six of spades.

Declarer played dummy's nine. We can't blame him for this. East took his jack and West's ace became the setting trick.

An Ohio resident wants to know if there ever was a convention called the Boland Club.

Yes, there was. Invented by Vincent Boland of Cleveland, it was used around Ohio in the early '30s. The club opening was forcing and either showed a normal minimum-type club hand or a good hand of any sort whatsoever.

Denim Gets 'Good Marks' Around World

COLLEGE STATION--Denim is "getting good marks" in school, on the fashion front--and worldwide, according to Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In a recent survey of college women, three-fourths said they wear denim more than half the time because of its practicality and comfort, Mrs. Culp said.

Denim production has increased two and a half times in the past decade--and, as one of the nation's leading exports, it has become an American symbol worldwide, she added.

Looking at denim's place in fashion, the specialist said versatility describes it best.

Its two-tone diagonal weave--and its traditional indigo color--appear in a wide variety of other "denim-looking" fabrics from lighweight knits to sheers or corduroy.

Newest fashion looks for denim are brushed for surface interest and patterned in ticking stripes.

Denim-like belts, bags, shoes, hats and even buttons also are available to complete the picture--or add a denim touch, the specialist said.

"Real' denim fabrics are a strudy twill weave in all-cotton or a blend of 65 or 50 per cent cotton--and polyester. Other denim-like fabrics and products are made from almost any fiber or fabric construction, she explained.

LARGE CUCUMBERS-Mrs. Ivey Herrley of Hermleigh is shown with two cucumbers grown in her and her husband's garden. They are approximately 17 inches long. Many jars of pickles can be made from cucumbers of this size, which is what she had planned for these. She gives Mr. Herrley credit for growing the cucumbers.

Easy Cheese, Tomato Treats

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

There are many ways to prepare and serve fresh tomatoes. One that is very simple is to cut each tomato sunburst fashion almost down to the stem end, then spread it apart into petals and spoon in some seasoned cheese. A double cheese-stuffed tomato offers a decorative and nutritious luncheon dish when served with a hot bread, lettuce and fruit for dessert. It contains cottage cheese and shredded Cheddar cheese with a dash of mustard and onion powder for additional peppiness.

Despite the damage to the winter tomato crop in Florida, for example, a new crop of tomatoes is coming into the market just in time to bridge the gap until homegrown or local tomatoes are available. To get the most flavor from your "winter" tomatoes, buy them several days ahead of when you plan to use them and let them finish ripening at kitchen temperature since they are harvested when "mature green" for shipping.

Refrigerate after ripening but not before because this "shocks" the tomato and you cannot bring it to a more flavorful ripened state. It is a matter of taste but tomato growers feel that tomatoes are at their best when removed from the refrigerator an hour before serving.

FRESH TOMATOES stuffed with cheeses make a light luncheon.

DOUBLE CHEESE-STUFFED TOMATOES

- 6 medium-sized tomatoes
- salt
- 1 pound creamed cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard

Hold tomatoes at room temperature until fully ripe. Place tomatoes, stem side down on a board. Cut each tomato to resemble a flower, cutting into wedges almost through to the bottom. Spread wedges slightly apart. Sprinkle lightly with salt; set aside. Combine cottage and Cheddar cheeses, onion powder, one-half teaspoon salt, black pepper and mustard. Spoon into each tomato. If desired, top with sour cream and serve on a bed of lettuce. Makes 6 portions.

On Helsinki Followup

US-Soviets In Agreement

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)--A U.S.-Soviet deadlock at the preliminary meeting to arrange a Helsinki follow-up conference appears broken, Western diplomats report.

"It looks like we have a major breakthrough," the sources said Wednesday, reporting that the Soviets and Americans agreed to a procedural proposal presented by nine neutral and nonaligned nations.

The Belgrade meeting hopes to draw up an agenda for a conference this fall to assess the effectiveness of the agreements on European cooperation and security signed at Helsinki by the Soviet Union, the United States, Canada and 32 European countries.

The Soviet delegates resisted U.S. efforts to provide opportunities for a full review of how the Helsinki human rights provisions have been carried out.

The Russians demanded a cut-off date for the conference. The Americans feared that if they accepted this, the Russians would block discussion of human rights by filibustering until the conference ended.

As a compromise, the neutral and nonaligned nations proposed that the conference strive to finish by Dec. 15 but that five working groups be set up to consider and debate each aspect of the Helsinki agreements. This would give the Russians the deadline they demanded and the United States a special forum for debate on human rights.

Diplomatic sources said Albert Sherer and Yuri Vorontsov, the chief U.S. and Soviet delegates, agreed to use the proposal as a basis for breaking the impasse. The sources said the agenda probably could now be settled "sooner than we thought."

Human rights were also discussed in London at a meeting between several congressmen and members of the European Parliament. Rep. Donald M. Frazer, D-Minn., said Wednesday at the close of the three-day session that the two bodies were moving closer to joint actions on human rights violations.

He said this would include urgent intervention where lives were in danger, combined hearings on human rights problems and publication of an information bulletin on human rights issues and activities.

Members of the two bodies are to meet again in six months to consider how to proceed. The European Parliament represents the nine Western European nations of the Common Market and meets in Strasbourg, France.

City Firemen Called Twice

Two fires were doused Wednesday evening by Snyder firemen.

A washing machine fire was extinguished in the 206 31st St. home of Bill McDorman. The fire, which reportedly began in a utility room in the house, resulted in minor damages. The fire was reported at 9:30 p.m.

Earlier Wednesday, at 6 p.m., firemen extinguished a minor grass fire on the old Post Road, inside the city limits.

Water Study Group Warns

Oklahoma Must OK Plan

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)-Oklahoma must "get off the fence" in the struggle for water rights or it will lose to surrounding states, a water study group says.

Oklahoma Water Inc., a group promoting development of the state's water resources, gave the warning in a report this week on the study of a plan to transport water from Arkansas to Texas.

"Oklahoma must get off the fence and hasten the completion and adoption of a statewide comprehensive water plan, and initiate the actions required to bring such a cooperative venture about," the report said.

"It's time that we initiated some actions instead of reacting to what Texas and others have already done.

"If Oklahoma fails to do this, she may be left on the sidelines while other states put water which otherwise would legally belong to Oklahoma to work for themselves."

The issue is over water which leaves the state of Oklahoma and flows into Arkansas and Texas.

"At first glance, there appears to be enough water for everyone," the report said.

Estimates, according to the report, are that the annual outflow from Arkansas is about 76.5 million acre-feet and after allowances for that state's needs by the year 2020, it would be reduced to 43 million acre-feet.

"When compared with the projected need of the Texas High Plains of about six million acre-feet per year, the issue seems hardly worth a squabble. Closer scrutiny of the report, however, reveals additional facts and leads to several questions," the report said.

Questions raised, according to Oklahoma Water, Inc., include future use of surface water in Oklahoma, allowances for navigation, high and low flows, consumptive demand in Texas.

The Oklahoma group said the Arkansas-Texas study would allow the six million acre-feet for maintenance of present High Plains irrigation levels in Texas. There are more than 13 million acres in the area suitable for irrigation, more than doubling the current amount, it said.

Insurance Hike Request Justified

AUSTIN (AP)-An insurance industry spokesman says that Texas insurance companies have a good reason to ask for additional auto insurance rate hikes.

"The cost to repair a totally demolished car can cost over four times as much as buying a new one. said Jerry Johns president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service, in a statement.

The statement was issued as the State Board of Insurance began a three-phase hearing on auto insurance rates this year.

The board heard arguments today for all auto matters other than rates.

The board staff and insurance industry will lay out their recommendations for new auto insurance rates at a prehearing conference July 21. After reviewing the written proposals, the board will conduct a hearing on Aug. 2 at which time it will hear testimony, arguments and cross-examination.

Suit Filed In Bed Fall

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)-A man jarred out of bed when a truck hit electric lines attached to his house is suing the truck driver.

Harvey Denton claimed in a damage suit filed Wednesday that he suffered a disabling back injury when he fell out of bed. No specific amount of damages was sought but the suit said medical expenses would continue to accumulate.

Denton, 48, was asleep when the accident a refrigerated lines truck struck an overhead electric line and tore it from Denton's house.

The suit alleges the truck driver was negligent and also claims the city failed to maintain the electric line at a proper height.

Woman Confesses Robbery A Hoax

Sophia Hinojosa, who on Monday told police she had been robbed, pleaded guilty this morning in county court to a charge of making a false report,

Ms. Hinojosa, 19, is alleged to have fabricated a story in which she told police she had been accosted by two men about noon Monday who bound her with ropes and took approximately $110 from her.

In the initial statement Ms. Hinojosa gave to police, she told officers she had been selling photography studio coupons when the two assailants took her underneath a railroad bridge on Ave. G and relieved her of the money.

Ms. Hinojosa is reported to have acknowledged fabricating the story Wednesday, after being told she was going to be administered a polygraph (lie detector) test.

One portion of her story was apparently correct, however. The woman is reported to have tied herself up, in an apparent attempt to lend credence to her story, officers reported.

Ms. Hinojosa was fined $100 Thursday morning in county court to a charge of making a false report, a Class B misdemeanor.

Identity Of Remains Confirmed

HOUSTON (AP)-An autopsy has confirmed that the skeletal remains of a child found in a wooded area near here belonged to Andrea Denise Johnson, 6, who reportedly was abducted from her mother's car June 2.

The autopsy performed Wednesday also showed the child had a fractured skull, medical examiners said.

The remains were found Tuesday by a neighborhood resident riding a horse.

Nancy Catalon, 24, mother of the child, identified scraps of clothing found at the scene, police said.

The child reportedly was taken from her mother's car while it was parked outside a department store.

Theft, Two Mishaps Are Reported Here

Topping the list of police reports were a theft and two traffic accidents.

Ray Courtney told officers a butane tank, hose, and regulator had been taken from a camper at his 2312 31st St. home. The theft is reported to have occurred between June 21 and July 13. Value of the butane tank was set at $50.

The intersection of 13th St. and College Ave. was the scene of a two-car collision Wednesday about 3:30 p.m.

Involved in the mishap were a 1967 Ford driven by Andrew Anderson and a 1967 GMC driven by Deborah Magness. Moderate damages were reported to each vehicle.

At 5:40 p.m., two cars collided at the intersection of 25th St. and Ave. M.

A 1977 GMC driven by Wesley Key of Ira was in collision with a 1969 Ford driven by Johnnie Panter. Minor damages were reported to the two cars.

Blackout Contest To Be Resumed

Mets Get Light-Less Reprieve

By Herschel Nissenson
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-"I always said the Cubs play better without lights," quipped Lenny Randle of the New York Mets.

The Chicago Cubs, of course, play their home games in Wrigley Field, the only ballpark in the major leagues without lights...until Wednesday night.

Add Shea Stadium, home of the Mets.

The lights went out for the last-place Mets some time ago and Wednesday night they went out for real when Shea Stadium was hit by the blackout that darkened New York City just after 9:30 p.m.

The first-place Cubs, with Steve Ontiveros hitting a two-run homer in the second inning and Ray Burris on the mound, led the Mets and Jerry Koosman 2-1 with one out in the bottom of the sixth. The game was suspended and scheduled to be resumed just prior to today's regularly scheduled afternoon contest-conditions permitting.

The Mets managed only two hits off Burris, an infield squib by Steve Henderson with two out in the fourth inning after the Chicago right-hander retired the first 11 New York batters, and a home run by Mike Vail in the fifth.

Koosman grounded out to start the Mets' sixth and Randle was about to step in when everything went black.

"I thought to myself, 'This is my last at-bat. God is coming to get me,'" Randle said.

In Philadelphia, Greg Luzinski tagged former teammate Tom Underwood for a two-run homer in the first inning and a three-run shot in the third. That enabled Steve Carlton, with help from Tug McGraw in the eighth, to record his 12th triumph, tying him for the major league lead with Rick Reuschel of the Cubs and Frank Tanana and Nolan Ryan of the California Angels.

The Astros pushed across a run in the 13th inning to beat the Dodgers when Terry Puhl, playing in his first major league game, singled, was sacrificed to second and scored on Bob Watson's double. Jose Cruz scored Houston's first run in the fifth on Ken Boswell's double and homered in the seventh, tying the score.

The Reds remained 9½ games behind Los Angeles in the NL West as Atlanta's Buzz Capra, in his longest outing since 1975, fired seven strong innings, yielding two runs and six hits. George Foster and Mike Lum homered for the Reds, who fell short when Rick Camp pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

The Pirates snapped a 1-1 tie against Montreal with five runs in the seventh. After Rennie Stennett and Phil Garner delivered RBI singles off loser Steve Rogers, Dave Parker greeted reliever Will McEnaney with a two-run double and scored on a double by Bill Robinson. Gary Carter homered for the Expos.

Rob Andrews drove in three runs, two with a first-inning double, and Jack Clark homered, helping the Giants edge the Padres.

Saturday, a full day is scheduled for the six teams entered. Tentatively, Big Lake faces Monahans at 8:30 a.m., VFW plays Kermit at 10 o'clock, Snyder and Canyon square off at noon, Kermit and Big Lake play at 1:30 p.m., Snyder returns to play Monahans at three o'clock, VFW and Canyon meet at 4:30, Canyon stays to face Monahans at six, Big Lake and VFW match up at 8 p.m. and Snyder and Kermit vie at 9:30.

First, Second and Third place team trophies will be presented and 10 All-Stars chosen.

Martin Names AL 'Star' Pitching Staff

NEW YORK (AP)-California's Frank Tanana and Detroit's Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, both injured and both unavailable for the All-Star Game, nevertheless were named to the American League team today by Manager Billy Martin of the New York Yankees.

In addition to Tanana, tied for the AL lead in victories with teammate Nolan Ryan at 12 and the colorful Fidrych, the starter in last year's game, Martin chose six pitchers.

Two others are starters-Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles and Vida Blue of the Oakland A's-and four are relievers-Bill Campbell of the Boston Red Sox, Jim Kern of the Cleveland Indians, Dave LaRoche of California and Sparky Lyls of the Yankees.

Like Martin, National League Manager Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds is going with an eight-man pitching staff.

Wednesday, he selected 12-game winner Rick Reuschel and relief ace Bruce Sutter of the Chicago Cubs, starters Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Don Sutton of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies, and John Candaleria of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and reliever Gary Lavelle of the San Francisco Giants.

The left-handed Tanana, 12-6, with 2.15 earned run average, has an inflamed triceps tendon, the result of what he claims is overwork. He has been advised not to pitch until July 21, two days after the All-Star game.

Fidrych, a right-hander with a 6-4 record and 2.89 ERA after a late start because of torn cartilage in his left knee, suffered during spring training now has a muscle pull in his right shoulder, also the result of overwork. And Detroit Manager Ralph Houk has said that Fidrych would not pitch until after the All-Star Game.

After Tanana, the winningest pitcher on the AL team is Palmer. The veteran right-hander has 10-8 record with a 3.19 ERA.

Knicks 'N' Nets Keep Up Battle

CHICAGO (AP) -- The New York Nets' request to move to New Jersey has been deferred by the board of governors of the National Basketball Association, but Commissioner Larry O'Brien indicated the dispute with the New York Knickerbockers may go to arbitration.

During a five-hour meeting on Wednesday, representatives for all the NBA teams except the Nets, which abstained, approved a resolution opposing any attack on "exclusive territorial rights" of any of its teams.

The Nets are battling with the Knicks, who claim they have a legal agreement that prevents the Nets from playing in New Jersey.

The Nets have sued the Knicks in U.S. District in New Jersey over the matter.

"There was no change in the Nets' status as a result of this meeting," O'Brien told newsmen afterwards. "Whatever it was this morning it is the same this evening."

O'Brien said the meeting was interrupted for discussion with both teams about the possibility of submitting the issue to binding arbitration in an attempt to avoid a court fight, which NBA owners fear could raise antitrust problems for the league.

O'Brien said, however, that Burke refused to accept the conditions.

Wichita Falls Golfer Leads Trans-Miss

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP)-Upset winner Tod Finkler of Texas Wesleyan College led 32 golfers into today's second and third rounds of the 74th annual Trans-Mississippi Amateur golf tourney at the Midland Country Club.

Finkler of Wichita Falls, upset defending champion Doug Clarke of La Jolla, Calif. one-up Wednesday in a duel that went down to the last putt.

Clarke, 18, won the 1976 Trans-Miss in Pebble Beach Calif.

Other tourney favorites fared better on the 7,400-yard, par-72 course than Clarke, however, as NCAA champion Scott Simpson and the tourney's co-medalists, Dave Edwards and John Fought, all won easily.

Simpson beat Dan Dodson of Las Vegas, Nev., five and four, while Edwards, an Oklahoma State golfer, pounded Brian Pini of Santa Cruz, Calif., five and three and Fought of Portland, Ore., turned back Harry Turner of Ada, Okla., four and three.

Lindy Miller, another Oklahoma State Product and the low amateur at last month's U.S. Open, also won easily, defeating Steve Creekmore, six and five.

Towns Pens With Houston Offense

HOUSTON (AP)-Missouri offensive tackle Morris Towns, who could help solve part of the Houston Oilers' offensive line problems, has signed a series of one-year contracts with the National Football League club.

Terms of the contract were not announced.

"I'm very pleased with the contract," Towns said after Wednesday's signing. "It's about what I expected after talking with some of the other players that were drafted."

Towns, 6-4, 275, was the 11th player selected in the May college draft and will get a shot at a starting berth with the Oilers beginning Sunday when rookies report to the Oilers new training facilities at Stephen F. Austin University in Nacogdoches.

"Starting is something you would like to see happen," the soft-spoken Towns said. "But it takes a lot of work. The only feelings I have right now is that I can contribute to this team whether it be as a starter or backup."

Towns became the sixth Oiler draftee to sign a contract. Nine others, including second-round pick George Reihner, a guard from Penn State, remain unsigned.

Previously signed were wide receiver Warren Anderson, West Virginia State, chosen in the fourth round; two sixth round picks, defensive back Gary Woolford of Florida State and David Carter, a center from Western Kentucky; eighth round pick Steve Davis, a wide receive form Georgia and ninth round choice Bill Currier, a South Carolina defensive back.

Others still unsigned are three third round picks, running back Tim Wilson of Maryland, tight end Jimmy Giles of Alcorn Stat and Rob Carpenter, a running back form Miami, Ohio.

Adamek Rolls Metroplex Win

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)-Donna Adamek of Morovia, Calif., averaged 222 to capture the $25,000 Metroplex Open bowling tourney Wednesday night.

Miss Adamek, who had a total score of 4,419 in the three-day event, had to rally from a 173-pin deficit in the second round to defeat early leader Pam Rutherford.

Miss Adamek finished 53 pins ahead of second-place Mrs. Rutherford of Oroville, Calif.

Virgina Norton of South Gate, Calif., the defending champion, finished third with 4,073.

Betty Morris of Stockton, Calif., was fourth at 4,072 and Patty Costello of Scranton, Pa., captured fifth at 4,047.

Red Sox Strategy Scalps Red Men

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox either club you into submission or rob you blind.

They did both to the Cleveland Indians Wednesday and the result was a 9-7 victory in 10 innings.

Baseball's best long-ball hitters turned on the power as usual with three home runs, but eventually resorted to a hit-robbing fielding play by third baseman Butch Hobson and a stolen base by George Scott to win the game.

Hobson's 16th homer of the season, a three-run shot in the 10th inning drove home the winning runs. But it was the infielder's gem an inning earlier that pulled Boston out of trouble.

The Indians had scored twice in the ninth to tie the game at 6-6 and had the bases loaded when Hobson turned a hard shot off the bat of Charlie Spikes into a forceout, sending the game into extra innings.

After that play, Scott's key steal of second set up Hobson's game-winning homer. After he stole the base, Rick Miller followed with an infield single and Hobson blasted his homer.

Oscar Gamble hit a pair of solo home runs to lead Chicago's 6-3 victory over Toronto in the first game of their doubleheader. Doug Rader hit a tworun shot in the 11th inning as Toronto won the nightcap, 5-3.

Glen Abbott pitched a fourhitter and Dan Meyer hit a two-run homer to lead Seattle over Oakland, 3-1.

Frank White had four hits and keyed a four-run rally in the sixth inning with a single to power Kansas City past Detroit, 6-4. Doug Bird won the game in relief, improving his record to 5-1.

Jim Palmer won his 11th game with late relief help as Baltimore defeated Texas, 4-3, the Orioles' 10th victory in the last 12 games. The Orioles won the game despite a 12-strikeout performance by the Rangers' Dock Ellis.

Don Money hit a two-run homer and Sixto Lezcano and Cecil Cooper had solo shots off Catfish Hunter as Milwaukee defeated New York, 9-8. The Yankees scored five times in the eighth inning, three on a homer by centerfielder Mickey Rivers.

Larry Hisle's three-run homer in the eighth inning broke a 3-3 tie, leading Minnesota over California, 6-3. Dave Goltz, 10-6, pitched a six-hitter as the Twins salvaged the final of a three-game series.

Congress Retains Veto Power

Carter Gets Go Ahead On Neutron Weapons

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- Congress is giving President Carter authority to go ahead with development of controversial neutron warheads, but is retaining the power to veto any effort to place the weapons into production.

After nine hours of frequently emotional debate, the Senate Wednesday night rejected 58 to 38 a move headed by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to cut out funds for the weapon contained in a Public Works Appropriations Bill.

The bill now goes to a House-Senate conference committee which must decide whether to leave in a limitation allowing Congress to reverse a presidential decision to produce the warheads designed for use by NATO forces in western Europe.

Carter has said he will decide next month whether to order production of the warheads, which kill more by highly-concentrated radiation than the explosive power of more traditional nuclear weapons.

In his unsuccessful fight to kill the neutron appropriation, Hatfield had signigicant Democratic support, including Sens. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Gary Hart of Colorado and Majority Whip Alan Cranston of California.

A closer vote had been expected. Hatfield lost a similar attempt by a 43 to 42 vote July 1.

One reflection of the importance placed on the issue by Carter was the presence of Vice President Walter Mondale, who was dressed in a tuxedo and would have been called upon to break any tie votes.

Hatfield and other opponents of providing funding said there is a danger a president might be tempted to use the weapons in the false belief that they would not set off a general nuclear conflict.

Beyond that, Hatfield said there is some scientific evidence that the warheads might create a radioactive hazard to civilian populations, despite the arguments of the Carter administration that the weapons' damage would be limited to a small area.

But many senators who voted with Hatfield said they were not necessarily opposed to the warhead, but instead wanted to insure the Senate reserved its role in setting nuclear weapons policy and did not give the President "a blank check" to go ahead with production.

Both Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd and Minority Leader Howard Baker supported the neutron warhead. But in the end, Byrd and Baker proposed the compromise which passed the Senate 74 to 19 and provides that if both Houses of Congress vote to kill the weapon a production decision by Carter would be reversed. Congress would have 45 days to act on such a proposal, and given the Senate vote on the Hatfield amendment, any congressional veto seemed unlikely.

The Byrd-Baker compromise passed after Kennedy failed in an attempt to allow a veto by just one House of Congress. Until Wednesday, the cost of the neutron warheads, to be installed in artillery shells and Lance missiles, had been classified secret.

But in a legally-required report which Carter sent to Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the midst of the debate, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency set the cost at $32.1 million for production through 1980.

More Americans Are Living In Poverty Now

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thousands of Americans once listed in the lower middle class were pushed below the poverty level by 1974's strange combination of spiraling inflation and long-term unemployment, government figures show.

New Census Bureau figures show the number of people the government considers to be poor rose nearly 11 per cent between 1974 and 1975.

In 1974 there were 23,370,000 Americans listed as poor. The 1975 figures showed that more than 2½ million more people were living in poverty.

"These were years when there were an additional number of people who fell below the poverty line-people who would not normally be poor," said Arno I. Winward, staff assistant for poverty statistics at the Census Bureau.

The bureau released two reports Wednesday, giving statistics on poor people in the United States and on over-all changes in the income of individuals and families from 1974 to 1975.

The bureau's poverty report said the number of Americans with an income below the $5,500 poverty level increased 10.7 per cent from 1974 to 1975. That means there were 25.9 million poor people in America. It was the greatest percentage increase since 1959.

Figures from the report on income showed that median family income was $13,720 in 1975, about 6 per cent higher than the 1974 median. That means there were as many families making more than $13,720 as there were making less than that figure. Yet, the report shows that after being adjusted for a 9 per cent increase in prices, the 1975 median income was actually $360 lower than it was in 1974.

Poor families with lots of children, families headed by women normally make up much of the poor population.

There was an increase of two million or nearly 13 per cent in the number of poor whites in 1975. There was an 11 per cent or 2.3 million increase in the number of poor under 65, and 17½ per cent increase in the number of poor husband-wife families, the figures show.

"These are three groups we don't normally expect to fall into poverty but out of it," said Winard, who helped compile the poverty report.

Winard added that he was not alarmed by the recent increase in the number of poor people because the numbers had dropped dramatically from 1959 when there were about 39.5 million poor Americans.

Figures show there were an average of 7.8 million people unemployed in 1975. The latest government figures, compiled in June 1977, show that the current unemployment rate is 7.1 per cent with about seven million people unemployed.

John Jacob Astor son of a butcher in Baden, Germany, came to America in 1783 at the age of 20. He got his start as a fur trader with the Indians in upper New York State and Canada, and in 1808 he founded the American Fur Co.

Water District Revenues Rise

Revenues of the Colorado River Municipal Water District are up for the first half of the year, although water sales for the period were up only slightly. The reason was the adjustment of rates at the start of the year to cover much higher debt service requirements. Principal payments for the Lake Spence and Ward County well field projects are now being phased in.

June revenues of $765,655 brought to $3,499,147 the resources for the first half, up $427,800 from the same period in 1976. Municipal sales for the first half stood at $2,102,375, up $253,180. Oil company and industrial sales were $1,336,216, up $164,100. Recreational revenues were $53,631, up $11,000, and miscellaneous income of $6,923 was off by $1,000.

Operating expenses for the first half amounted to $1,228,532, of which $217,300 was for general and administrative expense, and $31,969 for recreational out-go. Energy costs for the first half aggregated $586,096, or $160,000 more than for the first half of 1976. Total operating expenses of the initial half of 1976 were $1,081,368.

For the first half of 1977, the district delivered to its customers 8,847,163,000 gallons of water compared to 8,766,360,000 during the initial half of the previous year. The decline was in municipal sales which reached 5,163,000,000 for the first half, down 431,000,000 gallons. Oil company and industrial sales of 3,684,163,000 gallons were up by 512,223,000 gallons. Revenue from water sales lags a month behind the actual metering of the water.

Device Failure Is Mystery

Power Failure Blamed On Electrical Storm

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-Ten million people without power on one of the hottest, most humid nights of the year. How could it happen just three days after the chairman of Consolidated Edison said the utility was in its best shape in 15 years.

Company spokesman blamed Wednesday night's power failure on an electrical storm that damaged transmission lines and it caused a transformer to explode. But no one had an explanation for the failure of devices designed to protect Con Ed equipment from lightning.

"We don't know why they didn't work," Joyce Tucker, Con Ed assistant vice president said of the protective devices.

"There will be autopsy after autopsy after autopsy."

High-ranking company officials, including chairman Charles F. Luce, said the blackout was compounded by the severe heat and the resulting power demands which prevented other power companies from helping.

At about 8:30 p.m., as the electrical storm moved through Westchester County, north of New York City, lightning hit and damaged important transmission lines which connected Con Ed to upstate utilities, Luce said. That prevented Con Ed from drawing power from those sources.

About an hour later, lightning struck a large power transformer near Buchanan, about one-half mile from a Con Ed nuclear generating plant, starting a fire, he said. The transformer later exploded.

Transformers are used to reduce the high voltages of electricity produced by power plants and make the power more suitable for consumer needs.

State trooper W.J. Schultz said a column of flame shot 300 feet into the air.

A resulting explosion forced the nuclear plant to shut down, increasing the load for other power plants. Con Ed Officials stressed that there was no damage to the plant and no danger to nearby residents.

There were no reports of injuries in the explosion.

Meanwhile, at Con Ed's control center in Manhattan, employes struggled to keep power flowing to customers throughout New York City and Westchester County.

"The operators found that because other lines also had been hit, other plants were not able to operate," Luce said early today in a sidewalk interview on a darkened street. "We tried to save the day by reducing voltage by five per cent, then by 8 per cent."

Customers watching television were able to follow the utility's attempts. TV pictures wiggled, then shortened somewhat. Then screens went blank and the lights went out.

"We made selective decisions to drop loads in certain areas," Luce said. "They hardly got started when the whole system went down. Another official said the utility would have been able to supply most New Yorkers with power if the Ravenswood plant in the borough of Queens had not tripped off the line. Without that plant, Con Ed's overloaded system shut itself down at 9:34 p.m.

Then, workers began the long process of restoring power. Each part of the massive system had to be examined for possible damage due to the overloading.

Circuit breakers had to be reset and transmission lines had to be repaired before power plants were restarted.

Last Sunday, Luce said Con Ed was better able to supply power than at any time in the past 15 years.

"We're still in good shape," he said today.

CIA Official Resigns Post

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The man who ran the day-to-day operations of the Central Intelligence Agency for the past year has quit in an apparent dispute over major changes planned by President Carter's CIA director.

The resignation of E. Henry Knoche, submitted to Carter on July 5, may be the first in a series by CIA veterans in what reportedly is a policy disagreement with CIA director Adm. Stansfield Turner.

Knoche, who received the government's highest civilian service award six months ago from then-President Gerald R. Ford, was the No. 2 executive in the CIA, holding the title of deputy director of central intelligence.

A CIA spokesman announced the resignation Wednesday and denied reports that Knoche had been forced to resign.

The 24-year veteran of the scandal-scarred agency explained his decision in a letter distributed to other CIA employes late Wednesday.

"We have successfully come through some difficult times together in recent years," the letter said. "More change looms on the horizon and properly so. Dealing with these changes will be an exciting task."

"But, in the end, having weighed all the factors. I concluded that it would be in the best interests of the agency and the nation's intelligence efforts if I stepped aside now to facilitate the director's task as he prepares to make decisions about new organizational forms and the kind of new leadership that he will need to carry out his future plans."

Knowledgeable sources said Wednesday that Knoche, 52, resigned because of a dispute with Turner over his policies and programs. And the sources said more resignations of CIA veterans are possible because of disgruntlement with Turner's policy initiatives as well as his tactics in running the agency.

Details of the policy dispute were not available.

Despite Knoche's statement, the CIA denied that major personnel changes-forced or voluntary-or major organizational shifts are planned.

Giant Egg

THORNVILLE, Ohio (AP) -- A 9-month-old white leghorn chicken belonging to B.J. Gibbs laid an egg weighing 5 ½ ounces - nearly three times as much as the large size egg available in grocery stores.

Gibbs, 24, says he thinks the egg's size is the result of a new additive he's been putting into his chicken's water, which includes a vitamin supplement.

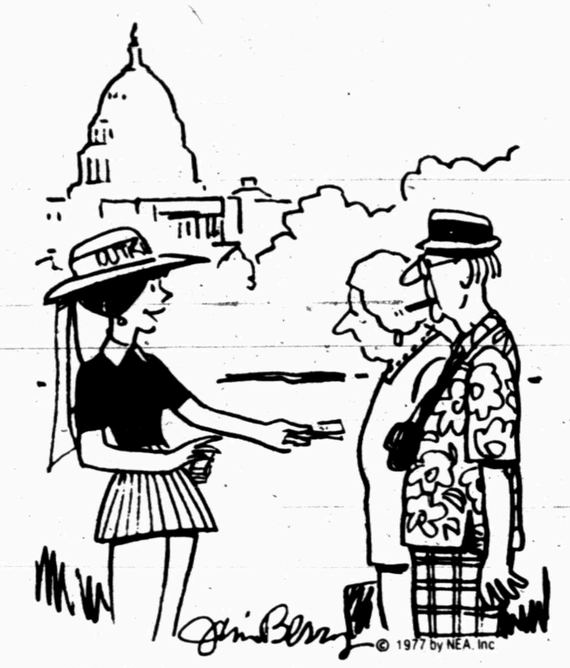

Last year's big egg contest winner at the University of Maine weighed 6 ounces, reports Tom McNutt, Franklin County extension agent.

The capacity of the Seattle Kingdome is 59,095 for baseball games but rises to 65,000 for football contests.

Warren Receives Honor By Jaycees

Steve Warren, a patrolman with the Snyder Police Department, is one of the law enforcement officers honored by the Snyder Jaycees for his contribution to law enforcement.

The Jaycees presented awards to three local lawmen earlier this year. Each man represented a particular branch of law enforcement.

Warren was awarded honorable mention as the outstanding young law enforcement officer of the year.

Warren, 27, has been involved in law enforcement approximately five years. He first entered law enforcement during a stint he served in the Army. He was a military policeman about one year.

Prior to joining the Snyder Police Department in 1974, Warren had been a patrolman in Rotan for about eight months.

The first to enter law enforcment in his family,

STEVE WARREN

Warren said it was "just something I wanted to do. Law enforcement just interested me and I decided to enter the field," he added.

A native of Hobbs, Tex., Warren graduated from high school in 1968. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Warren.

A Snyder resident since 1974, Warren is married and has four children.

At about 8:30 p.m., as the electrical storm moved through Westchester County, north of New York City, lightning hit and damaged important transmission lines which connected Con Ed to upstate utilities, Luce said. That prevented Con Ed from drawing power from those sources.

About an hour later, lightning struck a large power transformer near Buchanan, about one-half mile from a Con Ed nuclear generating plant, starting a fire, he said. The transformer later exploded.

Transformers are used to reduce the high voltages of electricity produced by power plants and make the power more suitable for consumer needs.

State trooper W.J. Schultz said a column of flame shot 300 feet into the air.

A resulting explosion forced the nuclear plant to shut down, increasing the load for other power plants. Con Ed Officials stressed that there was no damage to the plant and no danger to nearby residents.

There were no reports of injuries in the explosion.

Meanwhile, at Con Ed's control center in Manhattan, employes struggled to keep power flowing to customers throughout New York City and Westchester County.

"The operators found that because other lines also had been hit, other plants were not able to operate," Luce said early today in a sidewalk interview on a darkened street. "We tried to save the day by reducing voltage by five per cent, then by 8 per cent."

Customers watching television were able to follow the utility's attempts. TV pictures wiggled, then shortened somewhat. Then screens went blank and the lights went out.

"We made selective decisions to drop loads in certain areas," Luce said. "They hardly got started when the whole system went down. Another official said the utility would have been able to supply most New Yorkers with power if the Ravenswood plant in the borough of Queens had not tripped off the line. Without that plant, Con Ed's overloaded system shut itself down at 9:34 p.m.

Then, workers began the long process of restoring power. Each part of the massive system had to be examined for possible damage due to the overloading.

Circuit breakers had to be reset and transmission lines had to be repaired before power plants were restarted.

Last Sunday, Luce said Con Ed was better able to supply power than at any time in the past 15 years.

"We're still in good shape," he said today.

Warren Receives Honor By Jaycees

Steve Warren, a patrolman with the Snyder Police Department, is one of the law enforcement officers honored by the Snyder Jaycees for his contribution to law enforcement.

The Jaycees presented awards to three local lawmen earlier this year. Each man represented a particular branch of law enforcement.

Warren was awarded honorable mention as the outstanding young law enforcement officer of the year.

Warren, 27, has been involved in law enforcement approximately five years. He first entered law enforcement during a stint he served in the Army. He was a military policeman about one year.

Prior to joining the Snyder Police Department in 1974, Warren had been a patrolman in Rotan for about eight months.

The first to enter law enforcment in his family, Warren said it was "just something I wanted to do. Law enforcement just interested me and I decided to enter the field," he added.

STEVE WARREN

A native of Hobbs, Tex., Warren graduated from high school in 1968. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Warren.

A Snyder resident since 1974, Warren is married and has four children.

CIA Official Resigns Post

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The man who ran the day-to-day operations of the Central Intelligence Agency for the past year has quit in an apparent dispute over major changes planned by President Carter's CIA director.

The resignation of E. Henry Knoche, submitted to Carter on July 5, may be the first in a series by CIA veterans in what reportedly is a policy disagreement with CIA director Adm. Stansfield Turner.

Knoche, who received the government's highest civilian service award six months ago from then-President Gerald R. Ford, was the No. 2 executive in the CIA, holding the title of deputy director of central intelligence.

A CIA spokesman announced the resignation Wednesday and denied reports that Knoche had been forced to resign.

The 24-year veteran of the scandal-scarred agency explained his decision in a letter distributed to other CIA employes late Wednesday.

"We have successfully come through some difficult times together in recent years," the letter said. "More change looms on the horizon and properly so. Dealing with these changes will be an exciting task."

"But, in the end, having weighed all the factors. I concluded that it would be in the best interests of the agency and the nation's intelligence efforts if I stepped aside now to facilitate the director's task as he prepares to make decisions about new organizational forms and the kind of new leadership that he will need to carry out his future plans."

Knowledgeable sources said Wednesday that Knoche, 52, resigned because of a dispute with Turner over his policies and programs. And the sources said more resignations of CIA veterans are possible because of disgruntlement with Turner's policy initiatives as well as his tactics in running the agency.

Details of the policy dispute were not available.

Despite Knoche's statement, the CIA denied that major personnel changes-forced or voluntary-or major organizational shifts are planned.

Giant Egg

THORNVILLE, Ohio (AP) -- A 9-month-old white leghorn chicken belonging to B.J. Gibbs laid an egg weighing 5 1/2 ounces - nearly three times as much as the large size egg available in grocery stores.

Gibbs, 24, says he thinks the egg's size is the result of a new additive he's been putting into his chicken's water, which includes a vitamin supplement.

Last year's big egg contest winner at the University of Maine weighed 6 ounces, reports Tom McNutt, Franklin County extension agent.

The capacity of the Seattle Kingdome is 59,095 for baseball games but rises to 65,000 for football contests.

But Expensive

Pitts Says Untapped Gas Reserves Plentiful

DALLAS (AP)-The head of a Texas gas company believes the United States has enough untapped gas reserves to maintain current production for at least another 50 years-but it may be an expensive task to get them out of the ground.

Al Frank Pitts, president of Pitts Energy Group, also said he believes that John O'Leary, director of the Federal Energy Administration, was wrong when he said "natural gas has had it."

Pitts' company has published a geophysical map of the United States showing natural gas sediment areas in the 48 southern states based on geophysical studies.

Described by other industry sources, as a "reputable man," Pitts runs a company that operates more than 300 gas wells in East Texas and also has holdings and leases in Tennessee, Kentucky, South Dakota and Mississippi.

He also owned a geophysical survey firm until 1967.

"There are three million square miles of potential oil and natural gas on shore and offshore in the United States," he said in an interview.

"Production has been found only on two per cent of the three million square miles. To tell the American public that natural gas has had it is misleading."

Pitts said he has met with FEA officials and also testified before congressional committees.

After explaining that most of the drilling has been done at relatively shallow depths, Pitts added, "There is basin after basin of deep sediments."

Sediment areas off the northeastern coasts where his company made several surveys and found sediments up to 30,000 feet are also marked on his maps. "But not a single well has been drilled there," he said.

He said other basins have been tapped only at shallow depths.

The problem is one of economics, he explained. It costs more to drill at those depths and investors are not going to put their money in a venture that cannot be profitable at prices now regulated by the federal government in the inter-state market.

Pitts said his own company stopped drilling for inter-state markets back in the 60s "because we could not afford it at the low prices."

In Texas, where the price is not regulated by state agencies, he said, "We do not have a crisis. We had one several years ago and as soon as the prices went up more wells were drilled."

In areas like the Mississippi Basin, he said, wells have been drilled at 17,000 feet in sediment areas that go down to 25,000 feet.

He cited the discovery in East Texas of two new fields by drilling to 13,500 feet in areas where previous wells had gone only to 8,000 feet.

There is no absolute guarantee that the gas will be found in some of the basins, he said, but he adds, "if the geological formation is the same as those of areas where we have found gas, it is reasonable to expect that we will find gas there too."

He said what can be guaranteed is that someone will invest the money if the chance of making a profit is there.

The profits can come only if the prices are deregulated, he stated.

Deregulation will bring higher prices, he admitted, but he dismissed rumors of uncontrolled increases saying that a high percentage of the cost of gas goes for the maintenance of existing pipelines which are not being used. Only 20 per cent, he said, goes to the producer at the wellhead.

A higher price for domestic gas would be better than high prices paid for imports or even higher prices for alternate fuels, Pitts said, adding "The important thing is that the consumer will have the gas."

Deregulation will come eventually, he predicted.

He praised President Carter's energy conservation recommendations, but said an energy program, to be successful, must include means of increasing the energy sources

Pitts added "I think Carter failed to recognize the fact that incentives are needed to increase supplies."

Young Shooting Apparent Suicide

WASHINGTON (AP)--Jane Young, the wife of a Texas congressman who figured in last year's congressional sex scandal, has been shot to death in her suburban home. Police said today the shooting appeared to be a suicide.

Mrs. Young, 55, the mother of five, was found unconscious in bed at 7 p.m. Wednesday by her husband, Rep. John Young, D-Tex., police said. Officers said she had a bullet wound in her right temple. A .22 caliber pistol lay nearby.

She was taken by ambulance from her McLean, Va., home to nearby Arlington Hospital where she was given emergency treatment for almost an hour before she was pronounced dead at 9:15 p.m., said nursing supervisor Carol Harrah.

No suicide note was found, police reported. A police spokesman said the cause of the death was under investigation pending a ruling by the Fairfax County medical examiner. But the spokesman added that the wound was "apparently self-inflicted."

The congressman could not be reached. His son, John, told callers: "We will have no comment. Please call back tomorrow." The Youngs' children range in age from 25 to 14.

Young's name surfaced in the sex scandal when a former employe, Colleen Gardner, accused him of putting her on his congressional payroll at a salary that reached $26,000 a year, mainly for sex. She said he refused to allow her to do much meaningful work.

"Poppycock," Young snorted. At the height of the sex scandal, Mrs. Young called the Corpus Christi Caller-Times and defended her husband against Mrs. Gardner's accusations, according to reporter Peter Applebome.

He quoted her as saying: "John and I had 26 fine, good years together and I'm not going to let something like this destroy a relationship. Oh, Lord, mercy no. Her allegations don't concern me. What does concern me is that anyone would take her word and report it."

The sex scandal, involving a handful of members of Congress, forced Rep. Wayne L. Hays, the once-powerful chairman of the House Administration Committee, to resign from Congress. He was accused by one-time aide Elizabeth Ray of hiring her for sex.

The Justice Department investigated the allegations against Hays and Young but closed its books on the sex scandal last December after saying it could not find enough evidence to prosecute anyone.

Young was re-elected last November.

Mrs. Gardner's lawyer, Sol Rosen, said Wednesday night that Young has filed a $6 million lawsuit against Mrs. Gardner, Rosen and the New York Times charging libel and defamation of character in their roles in making public the allegations against Young.

Rosen said the suit was filed June 9 in U.S. District Court here.

He said he also filed a suit last September accusing Young of libel and slander for remarks he made last summer in announcing his prosposed suit.

Rosen said he is asking $5 million in punitive damages and $5 million in compensatory damages.

Execution Of Collins Stayed

AUSTIN (AP)--A federal appeals court judge has indefinitely delayed the scheduled execution of Wilbur Charles Collins, who was scheduled to die in the electric chair midnight Sunday.

The stay was granted Wednesday by Judge Tom Gee of the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of appeals-- only hours after the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals rejected an application for a stay.

Collins was convicted in a 1974 Waco convenience store slaying.

Douglas Bergdn, Collins' attorney, said Judge Gee had not set a date for hearing in the case.

The Texas appeals court affirmed Collins' conviction last Nov. 3. The U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the case on April 4.

In his latest appeal, Collins, a Vietnam veteran, claimed his written confession was not given voluntarily.

He said in the confession he went to the convenience store at 10 a.m. on Oct. 18, 1974. "At first I was hesitant because this was the same store that I robbed about two weeks prior to this date. However, on this date I did not see the same green and black Chevy Malibu in front of the 7-Eleven. I thought there would be a different store manager. I decided to go ahead and go in...." he said.

After he got inside he recognized Billy Abraham, who he said was "the same manager I had robbed before."

He said Abraham pulled a .25-caliber pistol and they struggled for it. Collins got the gun and shot Abraham in the head, he said, and continued to shoot all the remaining bullets.

He then took $150 from the cash register, he said.

Showers Tease Texas

By The Associated Press

Showers too skimpy to relieve Texas' non-stop heat wave tantalized several localities today.

There was even some heavy rain during the night in extreme West Texas from El Paso eastward to the Guadalupe Mountains. It followed a heavy thunderstorm warning which expired without word of serious wind damage or flooding.

After daybreak thundershowers rolled across Northeast Texas between Paris and Sulphur Springs. Another patch of showers headed inland across Matagorda Bay and the Port Arthur area.

Clouds lingered around El Paso. It was mostly clear over the rest of the state.

Early morning temperatures stayed as high as 80 degrees at Galveston and Waco, and Marfa in the West Texas mountains was the coolest spot at 60. The warmest spots Wednesday with highs of 101 were Dallas, Mineral Wells and Victoria.

Five Are Held In Drug Bust

SAN ANTONIO (AP)--A former Alice policeman is among five persons who were arrested here after a narcotics raid which led to the seizure of 500 pounds of marijuana by undercover police officers.

Magistrate Manuel Lopez set bond for the men at $50,000 each after their arrests Tuesday night at a storage facility on San Antonio's south side.

All were charged with possession of more than four ounces of marijuana.

Jailed were Mauricio A. Gonzales, 37, of Alice, the former police officer; Alfredo H. Flores, 42, Falfurias; Gilbert V. Villareal, 49, Falfurrias; Euellardo Daniel, 28, Falcon Heights, and Roel Garcia, 28, of Roma.

Gonzales resigned verbally in May from the Alice Police Department after two and one-half years on the force. Prior to that time, he had worked four years as a Jim Wells County deputy sheriff.

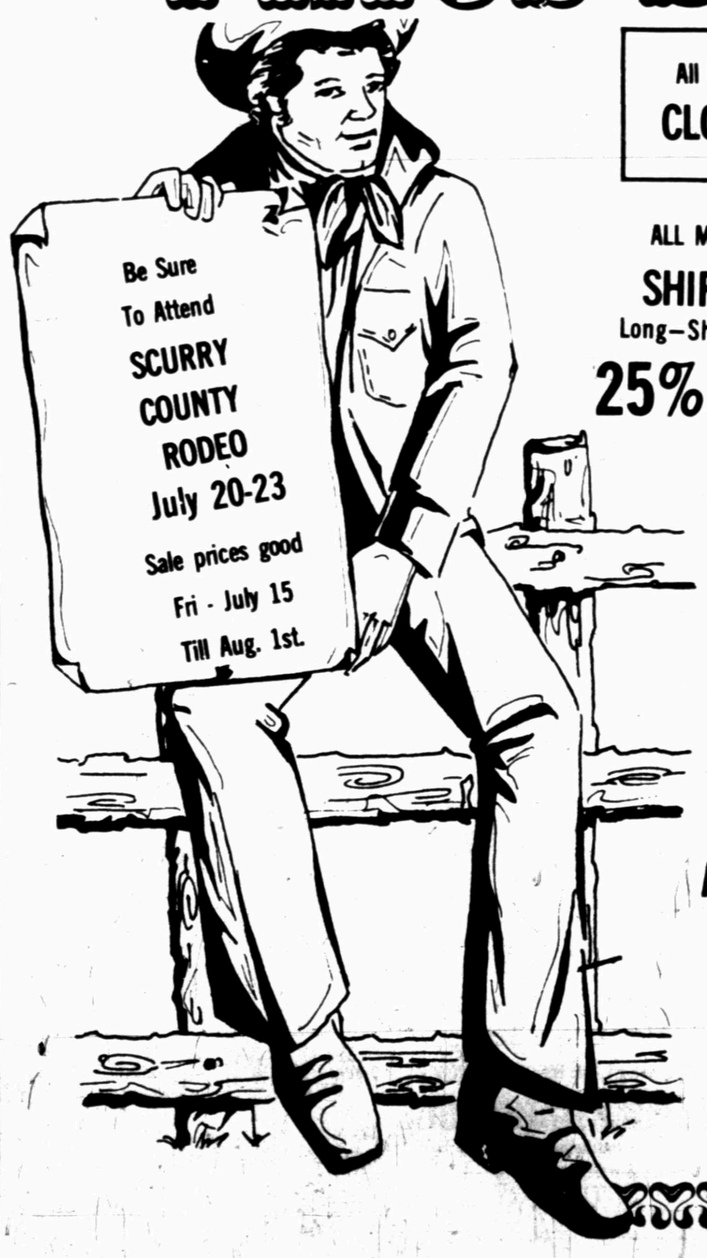

Police said an undercover narcotics officer arranged to meet the five men at the storage facility to purchase 500 to 650 pounds of marijuana.

Officers moved in and made the arrests as the negotiations were being conducted.

Kellogg, Tropicana Make Third Stab To Merge

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)-Kellogg Co., the cold-cereal giant, and Tropicana Products, a major orange juice producer, say they will make a third stab at getting together for breakfast.

Under a new agreement in principle announced Wednesday, Kellogg would swap 1.55 of its shares for each of the Bradenton, Fla.-based Tropicana's 9.4 million outstanding shares.

There are 76.3 million shares of Kellogg stock outstanding.

The tentative agreement marks the third time since 1974 that the two food giants have discussed such a merger.

At current market values, the Kellogg shares would be worth about $378 million to Tropicana shareholders.

The agreement in principle has been approved by both boards of directors, but is subject to further approval of the boards and "if necessary, the shareholders," the firms said in a joint statement.

"The proposed transaction is intended to be tax free and to be accounted for as a pooling of interests," Tropicana officials said.

Kellogg officials declined further comment on the talks Wednesday.

Kellogg, which has 19,000 employes worldwide, has its main plant in Battle Creek, Mich., with subsidiary cereal plants in Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Nebraska and California and overseas operations.

Kellogg produces and markets ready-to-eat cereals and other food products in the U.S. and overseas. Tropicana processes, packages and distributes citrus products.

Two earlier efforts at merging were unsuccessful.

An initial agreement between the two firms was reached in April, 1974 but was not completed. At that time, Kellogg offered a one-for-one stock swap valued at $158.6 million but Tropicana called the deal off without comment a week later.

In May, 1976, executives of the two firms agreed in principle that Kellogg would acquire Tropicana through an exchange of 1.5 shares of Kellogg stock for each of Tropicana's outstanding 9.4 million shares. That proposal had a market value of $313.6 million but again the deal was called off.

The proposed deal is the second in recent months involving a Michigan food giant.

Budworms Infest Forest

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)-Thousands of acres of national forest are infested with budworms, but the U.S. Forest Service says it won't know the extent of the infestation until a survey is finished next month.

Don Graham, director of the Forest Service's insect and disease management office in Albuquerque said the western spruce budworm has infested 16,500 acres since its discovery in 1975.

He said the worm is a foliage eater that first attacks white fir trees, then douglas firs, and finally the spruce. Graham said the worm is capable of "top cutting" trees in three to four years, and unless checked, can kill large numbers of trees in a four to five year period.

Graham said that when the infestation becomes too great, the only known strategy against it is aerial application of a pesticide.

Some Help Full Time, Part Time

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) -- Temporary employment is not just a sometimes thing for nearly 3.5 million persons, representing about 3 per cent of the total U.S. labor force, who do part time work on a full-time basis, says Manpower, Inc.

Some 67 per cent of these temporary workers who devote a few hours each day to their jobs are women, who have raised and educated their children and wish to fill spare time or contribute to the family income, the firm reports.

Dick Kleiner

One more time for this rumor

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Is it true that on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show Farrah Fawcett-Majors stated that, yes, she was going to divorce Lee Majors and, yes, she is a lesbian? P. LARKINS, Urbancrest, Ohio.

This dumb rumor keeps cropping up from time to time. I have reported that it wasn't true before. And I've gotten some nasty letters from readers who insisted I was wrong and said that they had actually seen that program. It's funny what imagination will do. I checked further and the Johnny Carson people tell me that, not only didn't Farrah say such things, but she has never even appeared on the Tonight show.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if John Travolta is taking care of the four-year-old son of Diana Hyland, his girl friend who died recently of cancer. M.S., Tucson, Ariz.

No. The little boy, whose name is Zachary, has gone back to live with his father.

DEAR DICK: Who are the five people who receive the most fan mail? J.G., Portage, Mich.

Figures on fan mail are about as reliable as politicians' promises. In fact, there are none worth noting. So the only way I can judge is by the number of questions I get about stars and, using that as a yardstick, I'd say the top five TV stars are David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser (Starsky and Hutch), Farrah Fawcett-Majors, Henry (Fonz) Winkler and John Travolta. And the top five movie stars are Barbra Streisand, Robert Redford, Al Pacino, Paul Newman and, at the moment, Sylvester Stallone.

DEAR DICK: I've been trying to tell my father that Robert Blake, of Baretta, in the younger years of his life, played Alfalfa in the Our Gang comedies, but he doesn't believe me. Would you please clear up this theory? PATRICK M. BARRETT, Manchester, N.H.

It's a theory that's partly right — you have the right show, but the wrong character. Blake was on Our Gang for five years, but he played the part of Mickey, not Alfalfa.

DEAR DICK: While watching the Ali-Evangelista fight, the question arose as to whether Muhammad Ali got Howard Cosell's job for him as a sportscaster. My Dad says Howard was a window washer before he started sportscasting. True or false? VICKI BIAS, Everton, Mo.

It's a lovely theory. As a practicing Cosellophobe, I endorse it. But it isn't true. Howard was a lawyer before he started in sportscasting, back in '53, and Ali had nothing to do with it.

DEAR DICK: Please tell me who Meredith Baxter Birney's mother is. M. YARWOOD, Orange, Calif.

Meredith's mother is the lovely actress, Whitney Blake.

DEAR DICK: My girl friend and I had an argument about where Patrick Duffy — The Man From Atlantis — lives. I say he lives in Hollywood and she says he lives in Hawaii. Where does he really live? LEANNE ARSCOTT, Duncan, B.C., Can.

You're both wrong, although you're closer. Duffy lives in Santa Monica, Calif. As a matter of fact, he went to Hawaii for the first time recently on vacation, before starting his first full season of shooting the series.

DEAR DICK: I've seen Patrick Duffy in all three episodes of The Man From Atlantis, and I think he's great. What other movies or TV has he done? Also, is he really a swimmer? CINDI, Tuscon, Ariz.

Duffy has had very limited experience — some stage work, two commercials, two bits in TV movies ("Hurricane" and "The Stranger Who Looks Like Me"). And he knew how to swim, but was not a remarkable swimmer at all.

DEAR DICK: Would you please settle a bet for me in your column. What relation is Florence Henderson to Skitch Henderson, the orchestra leader? MRS. A.B. MCMICHAEL, Galesburg, Ill.

None.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if Tony Orlando and Dawn will ever return back on the air, for their own show? THERESA HERBOLD, Harborcreek, Pa.

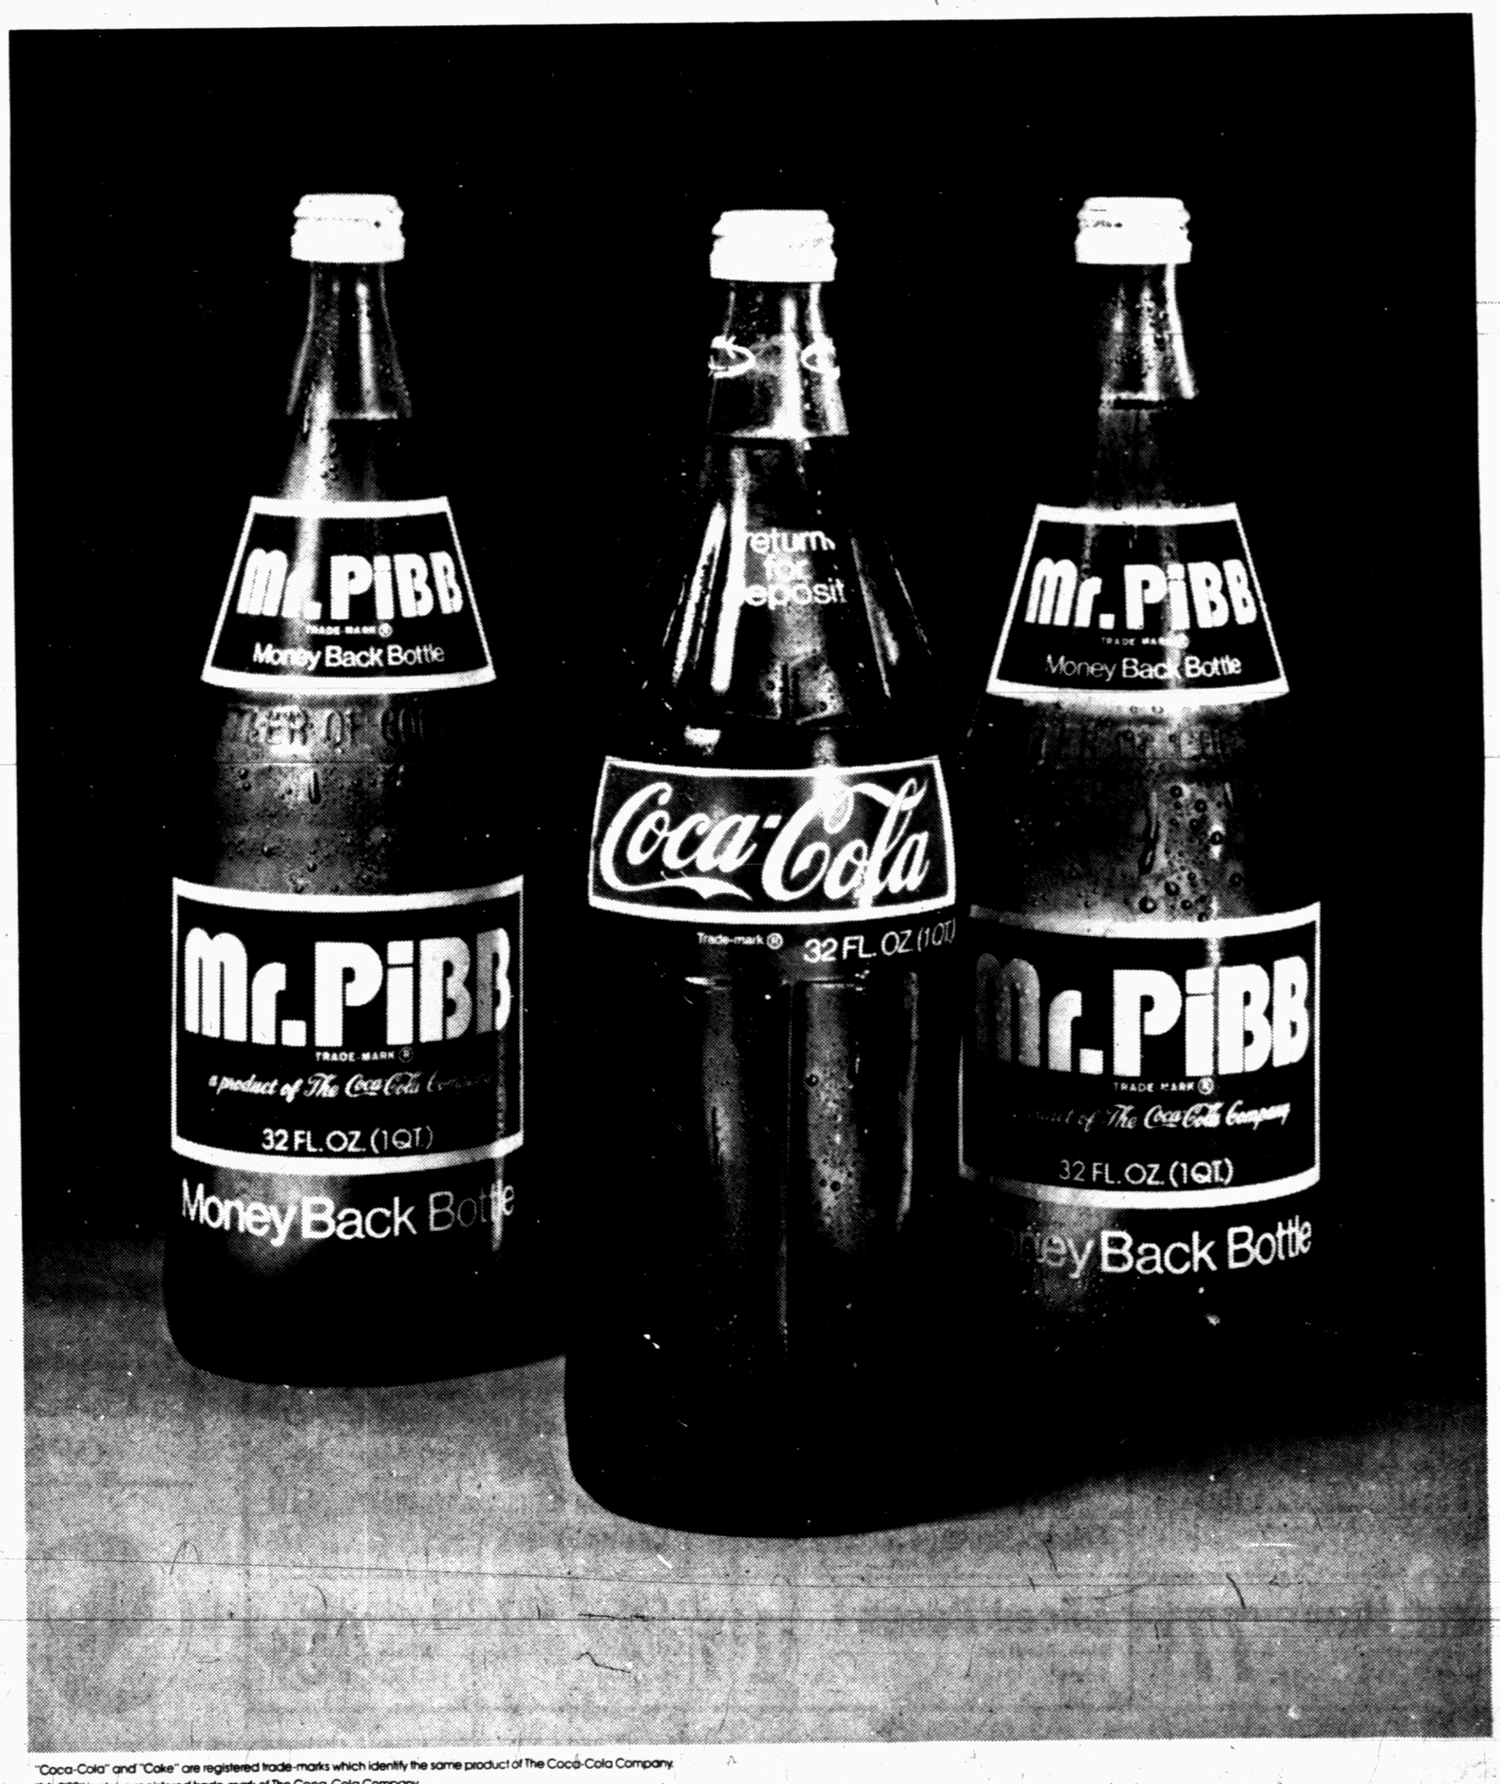

You can't predict the future. There are no immediate plans for another T.O.A.D. show, on a regular basis, but it could happen some day. They'll probably do some specials, but I doubt they'll have their own series for some time.

Try new diet tack

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband had a bad case of diverticulitis two years ago. He was put on a bland diet, a half-cup each of three vegetables a day, and lost 35 pounds. He was taking an antispasmodic and Maalox. He was doing real well for three months and ate popcorn — which is a no no. Now he has it again with lots of gas at night or after eating.

Would you please give us some advice as to how he should eat now? I cook with corn oil and no grease if possible. I broil steaks; I cream vegetables. It seems milk is one of his worst problems. His diet called for a glass of milk three times a day and a half cup of cream.

DEAR READER — Concepts about treating diverticulosis have changed in the past few years. Bland diets used to be the rule but now most doctors at least temper that approach.

Diverticulosis means small pockets of the colon. These are really small hernias where the inner lining of the colon has herniated through a rupture of the wall of the colon itself. These little pockets act like miniature appendicies and when one is inflamed it may resemble appendicitis. Since these pockets are usually on the left side of the colon the condition is sometimes referred to as "left-sided appendicitis."

The colon is often plagued with spasms that some doctors think cause the herniation or the formation of the pockets. The gas and contents above the area of spasm in the lower colon over-stretch that area of the colon and cause a small "blow-out." That is why your doctor gave your husband an anti-spasmodic.

The diet is important and I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-6, Diverticulosis, to give you a better general picture of the dietary management. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. During the acute phase when one of the pockets is inflamed it may be necessary to curtail eating — and in an emergency situation no food at all is given, then finally soft foods such as gelatin. But that is only a temporary state and the ultimate goal is to get on a diet that improves bowel function.

That means including more bulk in the diet. This is now done by increasing the cereal fiber in your menu. An easy way to do this is to eat a good-sized bowl of one of the prepared bran cereals each morning. Better sneak up on this gradually though since All-Bran and some of the pure bran products have a fairly strong laxative effect in some people. I usually recommend starting with 40 per cent Bran Flakes and seeing how you tolerate it.

For those who have trouble with bran it is sometimes necessary to take Metamucil daily. This agar substance swells when it is moist and adds bulk to the food residue to accomplish a lot of what you achieve from cereal fiber. Chemical laxatives should NEVER be used in this condition.

Why don't you start by having your husband discontinue all milk products and stop drinking any coffee. If he still has trouble try him on some bran. He might like it with some fruit juice to moisten it if he needs to avoid milk. ProSobee, a soybean milk substitute for infants works for some people. Milk sometimes causes gas and problems similar to a spastic colon.

Dr. Lamb will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

Bouquet Of Rose Queens

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - The 1978 Tournament of Roses Queen will be the latest in an unbroken chain of Rose Queens dating from Holly Halstead, crowned in 1930.

The first Rose Queen was Hallie Woods, in 1905. In the years following, tournament directors experimented with the idea of parade royalty on and off, even selecting both a queen and king in 1913 and 1914.

Superburglar Has $500-A-Day Habit

SAN ANTONIO (AP)--A convict who already has confessed to more than 600 burglaries in San Antonio may help police in surrounding communities solve hundreds of other thefts, San Antonio authorities say.

The man, who was brought here from the state prison in Huntsville about three weeks ago, told officers he staged the burglaries to support a $500-a-day heroin habit.

Police Sgt. Bill Weilbacher said the 24-year-old man has led teams of detectives to the burglary sites during the past 20 days.

So for, Weilbacher said Wednesday, the man has cleared up 648 residential and business burglaries and estimates that is more than half the total he committed over a three-year period.

The man, who police would not identify by name, was arrested in December.

"The estimated value of property taken in the burglaries cleared and still unsolved must be in the millions of dollars," Weilbacher said.

The detective said the "superburglar" confessed that he and a partner took 22 television sets one day "just to see how many they could get in a day."

The man is still working with officers here and is expected soon to begin helping police in surrounding communities and in Bexar County.

Why Did Bowler Go for Massage?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently confessed to me that he and some of his friends went to a massage parlor after bowling one night.

He swore he had never done anything like that before and he doesn't plan to do it again. I forgave him, but I can't help feeling betrayed.

Abby, he is the last man on earth I would ever suspect of doing such a thing. We have a very satisfying sex life, and my husband has always been a very religious, churchgoing man.

What makes a happily married, religious man go to a place like that?

HURT WIFE

DEAR HURT: Curiosity. Lust. An itch for variety. The fear of missing something. Wanting to be "one of the boys." Being too chicken to refuse when one of his pals suggested it. Temporary insanity. I don't know which of the above applies to your husband, but I'll wager one of them does.

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 years old and in love with a man 29. We are talking about getting married, but we disagree on one important point. He wants children and I don't.

Since the death of my first husband, five years ago, I am more convinced than ever that I do not want children because they will infringe on my freedom. I don't want to share my husband's time with anyone else. The world's problems—crime, violence, famine, disease, pollution and the threat of overpopulation—are more than just a theory. Besides, I'm afraid that I am so set in my ways now I will not have the patience to raise a child properly.

I would appreciate your opinion.

NO CHILDREN

DEAR NO: I agree, you shouldn't have children, but for probably the most important reason of all. You don't really want any.

DEAR ABBY: You are in error when you say, "We all have roots in a foreign country unless we happen to be American Indians, that is."

May I point out that according to the anthropological data available today, the American Indian is also a foreigner, having migrated from Africa some 13,000 years ago? Please reverse yourself in the interest of accuracy.

ANTHROPOLOGY MAJOR

DEAR MAJOR: Aw, come on. I would hesitate to label a people "foreigners" knowing that their ancestors had been here for some 13,000 years. While technically they may not be "natives," they could hardly quality for membership in the "Newcomers Club."

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Farm Wives Movement Now Coordinated Effort

WASHINGTON (AP)--What began as a fragmented movement by a small group of farm women who watched prices of wheat and other commodities plummet is blooming into a coordinated national effort aimed at convincing the Carter administration and Congress that more needs to be done to help the nation's food producers.

For months, waves of farm wives have descended on Washington from Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Washington, Nebraska and other states. Their message is that their family enterprises are being threatened by financial disaster.

Another group, representing a budding national organization, American Agricultural Women, is here this week, trying to raise the consciousness of administration and congressional farm leaders to their plight.

But so far, some of the women admit, they have had a sympathetic ear and understanding but little action to support their cause. Basically, they want a new farm bill with higher federal price support guarantees for key crops than Congress appears ready to approve or President Carter to accept.

Julia Hinther, who farms with her husband, Gary, near Buffalo, Okla., said Wednesday that 61 women are visiting government leaders, urban members of Congress, labor organizations and others to seek help in getting more federal help.

The latest delegation, which will be in Washington through Friday, represents 16 states: Alabama, California, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

One of the main targets is the wheat portion of the new farm legislation. The Senate has passed a bill calling for $2.25 a bushel loan rate for 1977, and the House Agriculture committee has approved a figure of $2.25, a level also in effect for this year's wheat crop in the Agriculture Department's price support program.

Man Saves Liquor Labels

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -- If Maurcie La Kerr had consumed all the liquor required to obtain 25,000 labels from the bottles, it would have taken him a bottle a day for 70 years.

That's how many liquor labels he has saved from all over the world. Five thousand of them are beer labels. All are different in some way - by printing, color, size or vintage.

LaKerr, a former vaudeville performer, explained he acquired numerous counterfeit bootleg labels during the prohibition era.

"When the sale of alcoholic beverages became legal again, I compared some of the counterfeits with the genuine and decided to display both of them together. That started it. I began collecting any and all liquor labels," he said.

Plaka Sections Are Preserved

NEW YORK (AP) -- Four sections of the Plaka, the part of Athens which lies at the foot of the Acropolis, have become "preserved areas," reports the Greek National Tourist Organization.

The organization said that motor traffic will be banned in the designated sections, as well as all taverns, shops and noisy nightclubs.

The Greek government will give long term, low rate loans for the restoration and preservation of all buildings over 200 years old. The Tourist Organization said that it anticipates the building of deluxe apartments, antique shops and fashion salons in the restored sections.

Tecumseh, the Shawnee Indian chief, was the founder of a confederation of tribes to stop the encroachment of whites. He fought on the side of the British during the War of 1812, and was killed in the Battle of the Thames in Canada in 1813.

Teresa Brewer Sings Old And New Music

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — In the late '40s and on through the '50s, nobody had ever heard of Women's Lib but, in pop music, women were making it big.

For every Tony Bennett and Frank Sinatra and Eddie Fisher and Frankie Laine hit, there were hits from Kitty Kallen and Connie Francis and Joni James and Rosemary Clooney. Women not only had equal time, but you could make a good case for them having more than their share.

Most of those gal singers of that era have hung up their spiked heels now. For one reason or another, they don't work much anymore. Some would like to, but just can't get with today's musical styles.

But there is one of the '40s-'50s stars who is still with us, still belting them out and changing to mirror the music of the moment.

And that's Teresa Brewer. While she's hardly competing with Olivia Newton-John and Linda Ronstadt and Carly Simon, she's still doing pretty well wherever she sings.

One big reason why Teresa Brewer can make it now while her sisters of 25 years ago have quit is that she was younger than they were. When Teresa Brewer recorded "Music, Music, Music," in 1949, she was still a teenager.

Today, even though she's a grandmother, she's only 46. And she doesn't look it. She's gone blonde on us, and that, coupled with her always trim figure, gives her the look of a lady in her happy 30s.

Because of her comparative youth, and her ever-youthful attitude, she has embraced today's music. In her act, she still sings the hits that made her big in the first place, but she also does a lot of 1970s tunes.

"It's a question of survival," she says. "I sing all different kinds of songs. I'm fortunate, in that I like the music of today. I really enjoy singing rock."

Having four daughters along the way also helped. Her girls — who are now 25, 24, 22 and 18 — have continually kept her abreast of what's new in music. They wouldn't let her become out of touch.

Then, too, there was — and is — Teresa's voice. She's had the same unique quality since she was two, and began singing on the radio in her home town, Toledo, Ohio. It's a voice that's sharp and clear, and she uses it well. It enables her to sing everything — jazz, rock, country, pop — and it sounds just as right singing rock as it did singing those tear-jerking ballads in the '50s.

The curious thing, though, is that Teresa Brewer still gets as much kick out of singing in clubs today as she did when she first started, soon after World War II ended. That's a lot of segues.

"I've been in the business for more than 40 years," she says. "I've been singing in Las Vegas for 26 years."

Her husband, Bob Thiele, who has been around the music business longer than she has, says he can't think of any other performer who has been working the Vegas scene that long.

"Honest," she says, "I still love performing. As long as I can get to change the songs once in a while, it's fine. As a matter of fact, the older you get, the more you enjoy it — or you'd better stop doing it.

"I was lucky. I had a choice. I could have quit if I'd wanted to. But I didn't."

She doesn't like a lot of travelling any more, so she picks and chooses her engagements. No long tours of one-nighters or concerts. Mostly, it's into one of the big hotels in Las Vegas or Miami Beach for a few weeks, then a few weeks off at home.

Like nearly everybody else in show business, she'd love to have her own TV show. She thinks most variety shows on TV today have too much talk, too little entertainment. She'd change that.

"There's so much nonsense on them," she says. "They try to have a singer be funny, and a lot of times, they're not."

She also wouldn't mind taking another crack at movies. In the early '50s, at the height of her fame, she made one film.

"It was called 'Redheads From Seattle,'" she says. "And it had Gene Barry, Rhonda Fleming and The Bell Sisters — all the biggies. The last time I was here, I ran into Gene Barry and I couldn't remember his name. It was terrible."

She still calls New York home, with an apartment in Manhattan and a home in the suburbs. And she says she loves New York and hopes she never has to leave it.

She spends most of her spare time — and money — in a constant search for antique furniture. She has so many pieces that she no longer has any space for them. But she refuses to part with any, even though she could sell some at a comfortable profit.

But basically, she's a woman with a one-track mind, and that track is a musical one. She has begun recording again and says that her sales are "OK."

"From the letters I'm getting," she says, "it's not my old fans who are buying my records, it's a whole new generation of people. I thank that's great."

She says the same thing is true of the audience who goes to see her in clubs, even in Las Vegas. They are young people, by and large, not the fans who knew her when she was at her peak. But she still does some of her old songs.

"I do some Sedaka things," she says, "and a country medley and some jazz and Dixieland. But I always do a four-minute medley of my old record hits. Even with the young audience, they want that. I tried to throw it out, but I couldn't."

TERESA BREWER was only a teenager when she recorded "Music, Music, Music," in 1949. Now she's a 46-year-old grandmother who enjoys singing rock. "But I always do a four-minute medley of my old record hits. Even with the young audience, they want that."

Pastures In Worse Shape

WASHINGTON (AP)--Livestock pastures and ranges nationally on July 1 were in much worse shape than a year ago because of drought in the West and some other areas, the Agriculture Department says.

Nationally, the Crop Reporting Board said this week, the July 1 condition of pastures was 68 per cent, compared with 75 a year ago and the 10-year average of 84 per cent on July 1.

Under the USDA scale, a rating of 80 per cent or more is considered good to excellent; 65 to 79 poor to fair; 50 to 64 very poor; and 35 to 49 severe drought. Anything under 35 per cent is rated as extreme drought.

Thus, nationally, livestock pastures and range feed conditions on July 1 were in the "poor to fair" category.

Very poor conditions existed in the West and Southeast, with only the New England states, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas rating "good to excellent," the report said.

Among the lowest-rated states were Alabama, 44 per cent; California, 42; and Georgia, 43.

British novelist Joseph Conrad was born Josef Teodor Konrad Nalecz Korzeniowski in the Ukraine. Both his parents were Polish.
