Tax board braces for protests by property owners

George Popham sat down before members of the city-school tax equalization board. He looked angry, as will many homeowners who get property assessment notices next week. "My taxes are too high," Popham said with a grimace. "My house is not being taxed the same per square foot as my neighbor's."

The board went to work. Is your home as new as the one next door? Is it the same kind of construction? Do you really know your neighbor's square footage — or your own? How does your overall tax value compare with your home's market price?

JOHN BROOKS COACHED THE board from the corner of the room. Be courteous and fair. Get to the point with your questions. Don't ask the "irate taxpayer" to come back with more information — he'll think he's getting the runaround.

"Very good," said Brooks, tax assessor-collector for the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District. "I only hope you can do as well when the real thing starts July 10."

That's the day the tax equalization board will begin hearing residential property assessment complaints. Brooks expects a "very large number" of homeowners to take protests to the board.

"Frankly, people are mad," he said.

SO AFTER THEY WERE SWORN in last week, tax equalization board members held a practice session, hearing mock cases from such "irate taxpayers" as George Popham — who actually is a senior appraiser in the city-school tax department.

The practice session pointed up perhaps the most important thing about the board's work: the board can't give weight to emotional arguments. To be successful, a protesting property owner must present hard evidence — like a building permit, warranty deed or fee appraisal results — that his property is assessed unfairly.

"It's not a question of whether an owner thinks the new assessment is merely too high," Brooks said. "It's a question of whether our appraisal is in line with fair market value."

IN THE 1978 PHASE OF THE tax department's rotating re-evaluation cycle, the department has reappraised commercial property in the city's northeast quadrant (north of 19th Street, east of University Avenue) and residential property in the southwest quadrant (south of 34th Street, west of University Avenue).

The effect on the approximately 2,300 commercial parcels in the northeast has been mixed. Due to a lower rate of inflation in that quadrant and a "depression" in the market there, many northeast commercial properties actually are going down in value.

But the story in the southwest is just the opposite. Homes there were last appraised in 1973-74. Due to ravaging inflation, the average residential assessment in the city's southwest will rise about 50 percent upon re-evaluation, according to a recent Update survey.

Popham said there are "substantial increases throughout" the quadrant. However, Brooks stressed, "This was not an across-the-board percentage increase."

While the average may be around the reported 50 per-

Rigid grading blamed for hike in flunkings

By Jeff South
Update Staff Writer

The number of students flunked by the Lubbock Independent School District in May was 1,307 — double the figure of previous years. School administrators generally attributed the increase to more stringent grading standards implemented at the start of the 1977-78 academic term. They said the standards also contributed to a larger summer-school enrollment.

"I believe these figures definitely reflect a greater consistency in grading at all levels. Our schools are expecting students to meet certain standards before they are promoted to the next grade," Howard Price, secondary education director, said.

For the 1976-77 school year, 631 youngsters were retained (not promoted) by the district. But this past term, the number of retentions jumped 107 percent, to 1,307 students, according to a report compiled by pupil personnel director Bill Parker.

THE LATEST FIGURE IS almost triple that of the 1974-75 year, when only 490 children had to repeat a grade. In the 1975-76 term, the number of students retained was 583.

The increase in retentions was especially marked at the elementary level. For some grades, the number of students retained was up eight-fold over last year.

The number of first-graders not promoted increased from 142 in 1977 to 321 in 1978; second-graders, from 71 to 175; third-graders, from 39 to 139; fourth-graders, from 13 to 109; fifth-graders, from 13 to 100; and sixth-graders, from 13 to 42.

"I feel this is what parents want," said Charles Johnson, principal of Wheelock Elementary School. "Parents are insisting that their children know the basics before they go on to the next grade."

ADDED DENZIL MINYARD, Hardwick Elementary principal: "Even though grading standards are tighter than in the past, we still look at every child's retention on an individual basis. Retentions can be harmful. You're playing with a child's future."

In the case of an over-age pupil, for instance, a retention could be damaging psychologically, Minyard said. That is why factors other than grades must be considered in deciding whether to require a child to repeat a grade, he said.

The school district's new grading policy seems to strike a balance between such psychological considerations and academic achievement, Minyard said. Previously, administrators agree, schools may have been too lax about the achievement part of that equation.

WHILE GRADES IN GENERAL are lower, and passing grades harder to get, many schools are working more closely with parents. Teachers also are using informal notes and other devices to encourage students to do their best.

The effect of the new grading policy on retentions at the junior and senior high level was not too severe. The number of seventh-graders retained increased from 47 in 1977 to 96 in 1978; 10th-graders, from 73 to 101; 11th-graders, from 46 to 47; and 12th-graders, from 25 to 31.

The number of eighth-graders retained dropped slightly, from 66 in 1977 to 64 in 1978; and ninth-graders, from 83 to 82.

Jay Gordon, assistant superintendent for instruction, said analysis would be needed to determine how much of the increase in retentions is due to the tighter grading policy. "Off hand, I'm sure that (the policy) would be part of the reason," he said.

PRICE SAID GRADING standards are not necessarily higher, but that they are being applied with more consistency. "You might say that the standards have been standardized. All schools are demanding basically the same requirements of their students."

In the past, differences may have been too great among schools, he said.

Summer-school enrollment this year also is up substantially. Although not all summer-school students are taking remedial courses — many are working on "enrichment" or advanced studies — the enrollment increase may be partly the result of the new grading policy, school officials say.

Enrollment in elementary summer-school programs is up from 2,222 in 1977 to 2,743 — an increase of 521 students. The number of students in junior high summer school increased from 228 to 361, and in senior high summer school, from 722 to 893.

IN THE NEW GRADING POLICY, the school board has stressed that each student be graded "according to the standards of achievement for the grade or subject in which he is enrolled. Pupils who are two years or more below grade level is reading and other academic subjects should expect to be continued in that grade."

The thrust of the policy was to cut down on "social promotions" — the practice of automatically passing students from grade to grade.

Not so bad any more

Staying in the hospital won't seem so bad any more for small children being treated at the Health Sciences Center Hospital now that they have their own playroom. Auxiliary member Sherri Robinson painted the second floor play area to look like a circus show tent. The artist is shown here adding finishing touches to one of the clowns which brighten the walls.

Project eases hospital stay for children

By Kim Cobb
Update Staff Writer

Health Sciences Center Hospital volunteers are doing their darnedest to make hospital visits less traumatic for children. The hospital's Auxiliary members have sponsored the decoration of a lively toddlers' playroom for the use of children admitted to the facility.

ARTIST SHERRI ROBINSON, an auxiliary member, has been busy with the project for almost two months: from the initial sketchings to hanging of the completed product.

Mrs. Robinson has decorated the playroom to look like a circus show tent. A bulletin board is trimmed to look like an animal wagon, complete with grinning monkeys climbing over it.

WILDLY PAINTED clowns carrying balloons decorate every wall and bright plastic furniture in yellows and reds cover the floor.

"We drew some sketches and they decided they wanted clowns," Mrs. Robinson said of the circus theme choice.

ANN SANDERS, president of the auxiliary, said the decoration was the group's first project for the hospital since its opening in February.

Auxiliary members raised the money for the decorations through money earned in the hospital gift shop, vending room and selling projects.

The wall designs are portable so that they may be moved with the pediatric unit, if necessary.

The playroom will be restricted to toddlers only. Just down the hall pool tables have been set up for teens.

Staying in the hospital won't seem so bad after all for small children with the addition of color and clowns.

Stock price forecast

(c) 1978 Frederick C. Gahagan

For this week's survey we interviewed 31 security analysts who specialize in the steel industry. They were with such important firms as Smith Barney, Wellington Management, J.P. Morgan and Alliance Capital Management. Each security analyst was asked how high and how low he thought each stock would go in the next six months.

Top Six Steel Stocks

Analysts forecast that McLouth Steel stock would rise by an average of 33 percent in the next six months. Allegheny Ludlum Industries stock was forecast to rise by 25 percent and U.S. Steel, the largest American steel company, by 22 percent. Cyclops Steel was expected to go up by 20 percent and Republic Steel and Interlake Steel by 19 percent each.

WHEN ASKED HOW LOW THE TOP six steel stocks might go, analysts forecast that McLouth Steel could go down by 19 percent, U.S. Steel by 15 percent, Interlake Steel by 13 percent and Cyclops by 12 percent. On the other hand, analysts forecast a drop of only 6 percent for Republic Steel and 7 percent for Allegheny Ludlum Industries.

This means that analysts are saying Allegheny Ludlum and Republic steel are likely to have more stable growth than U.S. Steel, Cyclops, Interlake Steel or McLouth Steel. Republic Steel and Allegheny Ludlum Industries were seen as having the best opportunities for increases in stock price because of their capability in specialty steels where there was not as much competition as in basic flat rolled and construction products.

Analysts liked McLouth Steel because of its relationships with General Motors, its updated facilities and its capability in both flat rolled and stainless steel products. On the other hand, McLouth Steel's heavy dependence on General Motors left it vul-

Aggravated robbery, fatality top violent activity in city

Three city men who were arrested within minutes of a convenience store holdup early Tuesday were charged that same day with aggravated robbery. Accused of the robbery of the 27th Street and Avenue Q 7-Eleven Store were Dan Curtis Fitts, 21, of 1103-B 52nd St.; Larry James Carson, 17, of 2807 E. 28th St.; and Larry Dwayne King, 17, of 2618 Weber Drive, No. C.

The Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $5,000 bond for each suspect.

The suspects were arrested within 12 minutes of the 3 a.m. robbery, and police attributed the arrests in part to an alert citizen who provided enough information to put the officers on the robbers' trail.

BRYAN JACKSON O'NEAL, the 19-year-old night manager of the store, said he was in a storeroom when three young men entered the business.

O'Neal told police that the trio said they wanted to call a cab, but when the clerk turned around at the counter, he said he suddenly was faced with a small black pistol.

O'Neal said the man brandishing the weapon said, "This is a holdup," and ushered the attendant back into the storeroom. Just before the men left the store, O'Neal said, one of the armed bandit's companions entered the small room and, with his hand under his shirt as if he, too, had a gun, told the clerk not to leave.

Meanwhile, a nearby apartment resident had seen a suspicious-looking trio enter the store and called police while the robbery was in progress. The informant also watched the car leave heading north on Avenue S and told police of its direction of travel.

WHILE ONE OFFICER TALKED to the visibly-shaken clerk, another officer stopped a car in the 1900-block of Avenue S after he reportedly saw it straddling two lanes of traffic. After ordering the driver out of the vehicle, police at the site of the stopped auto were advised by radio of the nearby robbery.

The car reportedly contained the three suspects as well as four other persons, including a 10-month-old baby.

Police reports indicate an automatic pistol, cocked and containing one live round, was found under the right front seat and a total of $87 was found stuffed behind a rear seat. About $93 reportedly was taken in the holdup.

ALSO TUESDAY, A 71-YEAR-OLD Lubbock man became the county's 13th traffic fatality of the year when the vehicle he was driving was involved in a head-on collision just east of the city on FM 835.

Jack K. King of 2206 Fir Ave. was pronounced dead at the scene of the 7:15 a.m. mishap by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack. Blalack ruled King's death accidental.

Investigating officers said bright early-morning sun may have been a factor in the fatal mishap, which also sent the driver of the second vehicle, 21-year-old Terry Harris of Route 1, Box 460, Lubbock, to Methodist Hospital for treatment.

Department of Public Safety troopers and Lubbock police said King's 1964 Chevrolet was eastbound on the Buffalo Springs road while Harris approached from the opposite direction. The two sedans reportedly collided in the westbound lane.

Officers at the scene said King may have been blinded by the sun.

ACCORDING TO REPORTS, KING was pinned inside the tangled wreckage of his car, which was most heavily damaged on the driver's side. The Lubbock Fire Department was summoned to bring their specially-designed rescue equipment to free King, but becuase the site was just outside the city limits, they were unable to respond.

Big buck falls on hard times

IN ECONOMIC terms, the 1970s are likely to be remembered as a period when the once almighty dollar fell on hard times. Its domestic purchasing power is half what it was in 1965, and its value in gold is one-fifth what it was just six years ago.

Since the end of WWII, most non-communist countries have pegged their economies to the dollar. But in the face of mounting U.S. trade deficits and spiraling inflation, the dollar's role as an international currency is being challenged as never before.

THE STATE Department reported last month that America's trade deficit increased from $9 billion in 1976 to $31 billion in 1977. Imports rose by nearly $28 billion during that time, while exports increased less than $6 billion.

Many economists foresee more of the same in 1978.

Concern about the condition of the dollar has been heightened by rising inflation so far this year. The Consumer Price Index climbed at an annual rate above 9 per cent during the first quarter, well ahead of last year's pace and ahead of the Carter administration's predictions.

Economists are divided on how much the federal budget deficit contributes to inflation. However, many think that policies to restrict the growth of the money supply will reduce the domestic demand for goods and bring the inflation rate down.

In an effort to limit the circulation of money and thus help stabilize prices, the Federal Reserve Board has raised the interest rate on loans to commercial banks to 7.5 percent, from 7. Ostensibly, higher interest rates will increase the dollar's exchange value by attracting foreign investment in Treasury bonds and other government securities.

BUT DESPITE ITS ups and downs, the dollar remains the foundation of the world's monetary system. It is the currency most widely held in reserve by foreign countries and most often accepted in payment for international debts.

Its 20 percent drop in value against the West German mark and the Japanese yen, however, has sparked renewed demands in many quarters for worldwide monetary reform.

A growing number of economists question the wisdom of relying on the money of any single country to serve as an international currency.

How much longer the dollar will fullfil that function depends largely on the ability of politicians and economists to shore up a world economic system that is threatening to fragment into regional and national entities.

Traffic Update: make your vacation safe

RADAR REPORT: The 5200 block of 4th Street and the 900 block of North University Avenue are the selected locations for the Lubbock Police Department's radar surveillance this week. Units also will be patrolling other locations at random.

VACATION DAZE: One person's idea of a perfect vacation may be another's horror story. The great thing about vacations in the '70s is that there are almost unlimited choices in vacation styles.

You may hook a travel trailer to the back of your car and carry all the comforts of home with you. Or you may prefer a small camping trailer that provides shelter for the night and a few home conveniences.

No matter which type of vacation you take, your first concern is having a safe trip.

One way to have a clear mind and comfortable feeling about your trip when you start is to have a check list. Start the list about a week before the trip and add items to it as you think of them. This reduces the chances that you will forget an essential safety item.

Items which should be on the list include flares, first aid kit, battery jumper cables, extra fuses and a fire extinguisher.

Make sure your car is in tip-top shape for your trip.

Tires that show obvious wear spots or have tread worn down to a depth of one-sixteenth of an inch should be replaced for safe highway driving.

If you will be towing a trailer or carrying big loads, you may want to consider using heavy-tread, sturdily constructed tires that are designed for heavy loads.

Before your trip, have the steering and suspension components of your car checked, greased, tightened and realigned if necessary.

Shock absorbers that don't work can contribute to swerving and loss of control in stopping.

Windshield wipers that make streaks are dangerous. Wipers should be checked periodically and replaced if they are hard, or blur and streak the windshield.

Another pre-trip safety suggestion is to plan your itinerary before you leave home. Decide how far you want to go and how many days you have for travel. Be sure to set a safe, realistic goal for the amount of distance you expect to cover each day. Six to eight hours should be counted as one safe day of driving.

Airport boardings hike 70 percent

Lubbock International Airport officials this week said passenger boardings at the facility are up 70 percent for the first five months of 1978 over the same period last year.

Flight tallies show 187,368 passengers boarded flights leaving the airport through May, with a large part of that 77,000-passenger increase attributable to an almost 2,000 percent rise in travelers flying Southwest Airlines.

Southwest boarded 75,324 passengers through May, an increase of 1,931.4 percent over last year that made it the most traveled airline in the Hub City.

Texas International boasted a 27.4 percent increase in boardings to 17,060 passengers for the period, while Continental recorded a 23.3 percent increase to 55,073 passengers. Braniff International showed an 18.6 percent loss in passengers from last year's 48,421 to this year's 39,430.

Boardings for May were up 58.3 percent, with a 381.8 percent increase in Southwest passengers accounting for the largest portion of the boost. Texas International's 3,843 passengers in the month amounted to a 40.3 percent increase, but Braniff dropped 12.6 percent to 8,381 passengers.

For the year, Lubbock's 187,368 boardings compared with 156,934 passengers in Midland-Odessa and 111,116 in Amarillo. Since 1973, boardings here have risen 134.5 percent.

Meeting scheduled

The South Plains Sierra Club will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m., at the Wesley Foundndation, 2420 15th St. Slides of Big Bend will be part of a business and entertainment program. Plans for several outings involving camping, hiking and backpacking will be discussed.

Puppet Selection, Soft Sculptures Among New Christmas Shoppe Items

"Attending the National Festival of the Puppeteers of America in Lubbock beginning June 26? Or attending the pre-festival performances for the general public June 23, 24, 25? Then, there is still more to see, some may not have realized."

The invitation is extended to see the puppet lines stocked at The Christmas Shoppe, No. 20 in unique Cactus Alley, 2610 Salem Ave.!

Because of the ever-present demand for quality in children's toys of the unusual variety, The Christmas Shoppe is happy to announce the arrival of several new lines including Possum Trot puppets and stuffed toys, Princess Puppets, Poppets and Furry Folk, all having unusual quality and variety.

"You will just have to come in to see. (For example, see Ollie the Ostrich or the Momma Sow with five suckling babies!)"

It all is part of the Christmas Shoppe concept of providing a Christmas-type store all year long for the public's fun and convenience.

Year-Round Benefit

Not only does this type shop make Christmas planning extremely easy, but it proves of unique benefit to those appreciating quality and selection for birthdays and other situations. And what a benefit for the collector!

Kits In Stock

Bucilla Christmas kits for '78 are in. As always, Bucilla has the best available for Christmas. There are beautiful stockings, mail bags, advent calendars, ornaments, hooked rugs and wall hangings available in felt, needlepoint and yarn kits.

"Our customers appreciate having thse kits available so that they can work with them at a leisurely pace," emphasizes store owner Jan Lynch, who adds that "many of our customers appreciate having The Christmas Shoppe for the pleasure of an unusual shopping center in which to bring out-of-town guests."

Collector Thimbles

The Christmas Shoppe has a very large selection of collector thimbles . . . from Austria, Thailand, German, Holland, Japan, Spain, Mexico, England, Portugal and Italy.

Some are in pewter, and in silver, bone china, porcelain, leather, some with pettipoint or animals, and engraved designs, and some are hand painted.

There is a large choice in all-year-round music boxes; many from Schmid Bros. Anri wood carvings, and favorites from Germany and Switzerland.

Of course, The Christmas Shoppe has a wide variety of stocking stuffers, unusual Christmas decorations and ornaments from throughout the world, with new arrivals for the '78 season now arriving. It is never too early to put your name on the list for those dated collector items so that you will be assured of getting the ones desired.

The Christmas Shoppe offers free gift wrapping on anything over $10 purchased at the shop, and it has a gift wrapping service for items purchased elsewhere, also.

"We are open from 10 til 5, Tuesdays through Saturdays, with extended hours until 6:30 p.m. on Thursdays for the convenience of working people; and we would love for you to come, browse, visit and have a cup of coffee with us at The Christmas Shoppe, just off the Brownfield Highway at 2610 Salem Avenue in Lubbock."

Sometimes the courts are set up in school parking lots or in city streets.

In many cities, parks and recreation departments are introducing kids to tennis.

Arthur Ashe helps beginning players

This past summer, two NJTL kids got to play tennis against football star Rosey Grier, and movie star and weight-lifter Arnold Schwarzenegger at a pro-celebrity tournament in Forest Hills, New York.

Arthur Ashe is Mr. Tennis to many people.

To kids, he is the man who helped start the National Junior Tennis League. This is a program that offers more free lessons and the use of rackets and balls than any other tennis program.

Hundreds of cities and towns across the country have NJTL summer programs for kids from 8 to 18.

The NJTL also gives free T-shirts. Coca-Cola USA has helped sponsor it for the past nine years.

The idea is not to turn kids into pros . . . but to let them try tennis.

They might love it for life.

Arthur Ashe was the first black man to win the U.S. Open. He has also won Wimbledon. He has just written a book for youngsters, "Getting Started in Tennis."

It's Wimbledon Time Again

This picture was taken when Tracy Austin, of Rolling Hills, California, was much younger. She still keeps that "little girl" look.

Soon it will be Wimbledon time again.

Wimbledon is the most famous tennis tournament in the world. This is the tournament where the best players meet to compete each July in Wimbledon, England.

Last year, Tracy Austin, then 14, didn't win . . . but she got a lot of attention.

She is one of the youngest players to ever play in this event.

Tracy is known for her style. She is also known for her little-girl pigtails, braces and pinafore tennis dresses.

But don't let all that fool you. She doesn't play like a little girl. Some experts say that she is the next Chris Evert.

1977 Wimbledon Winners

Virginia Wade had played in 15 Wimbledons before her first win last year.

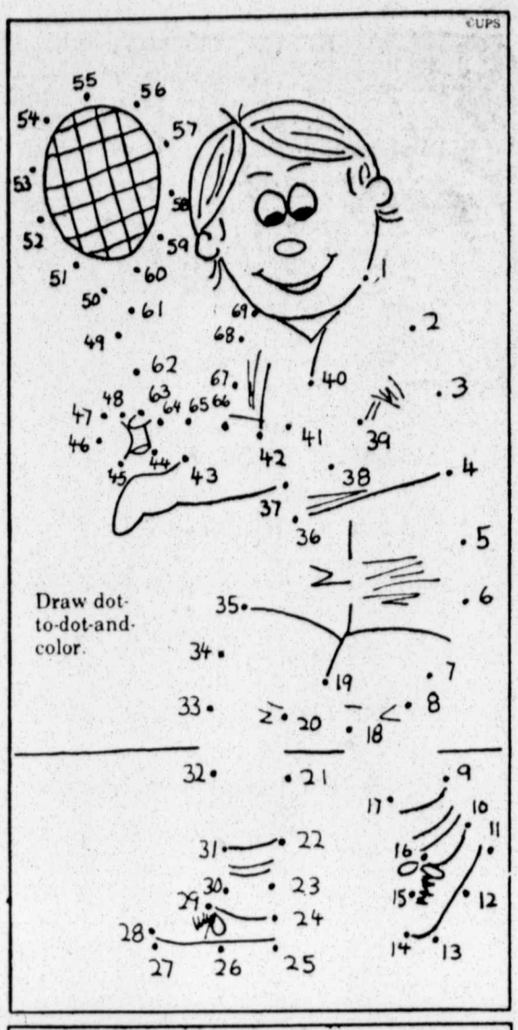

The crowd sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" when England's own "Ginny" Wade, 31, won the women's singles. The Queen gave her the trophy. All England was very proud.

Bjorn Borg won his second straight men's singles title by beating America's Jimmy Connors. The beard that the shy, 21-year-old Swede grew for good luck worked for the second time.

Meet Foster of the singing Sylvers group

©UPS

Foster Sylvers, age 16, says he is no different from other kids.

Except for one thing.

"I am busy all the time," he told the Mini Page.

Foster is busy practicing, singing, traveling, being on TV and cutting records.

He and his two sisters and four brothers make up a popular family singing group.

"My mom's the group's critic. She travels with us and gives us advice," he said.

Foster goes to a regular school. On the road, he has a tutor.

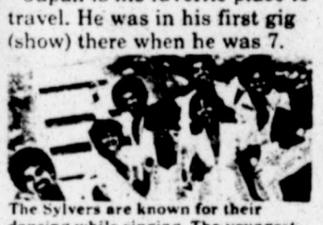

Foster has made two albums. Two singles, "Hey Little Girl" and "Misdemeanor," have been hits.

"It's crazy on the road," he told us.

"We often whip up things to eat in our room," he added.

With such a large family, the group "triples up a lot."

Japan is his favorite place to travel. He was in his first gig (show) there when he was 7.

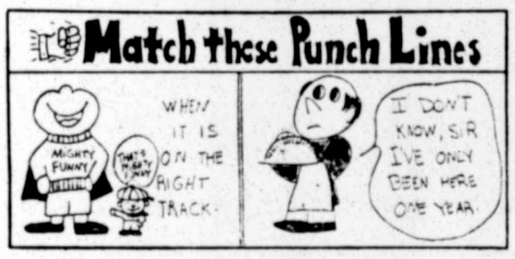

The Sylvers are known for their dancing while singing. The youngest brother, Chris, 11, might someday join the group.

Top-ranked tennis juniors — 12 and under

Each year the U.S. Tennis Association ranks the best players in the country according to age group. The youngest group is the 12-and-unders.

Meet Andrea Jaeger

Lincolnshire, Ill.— Andrea Jaeger didn't pick up a tennis racket until she was 8 years old. Now, she has over 80 trophies to show for four years of play.

"My dad threw balls to me in the driveway," she told The Mini Page.

Her dad is a tennis pro. Her older sister is an excellent tennis player, too.

Andrea lives just a few minutes from the courts where she practices two hours a day in the winter and four hours in the summer.

Not only is Andrea good at singles, she is also ranked number one in doubles, too.

She also finds time to play soccer.

Evonne Goolagong Cawley is the player she admires the most.

Andrea is tiny. She is 4 feet, 8 inches tall and weighs only 75 pounds. She is very BIG on the tennis courts. She is now 13. ©UPS

Rick is now 13 years old and in the seventh grade. Most of the time he practices with his dad.

Meet Rick Leach

Laguna Beach, Ca. — Rick Leach started playing tennis when he was 5 years old. He won his first tournament at the age of 7 . . . in the boys' 14-and-under division.

"I like tournaments. I like competition," Rick told us.

Rick's dad is a tennis pro. Rick has seen top tennis played. He plays it, too.

Rick is known for his sportsmanship as well as super playing.

He has other interests besides tennis. He collects coins and plays the piano and clarinet. He's also good at basketball.

Rick practices three hours a day during the summer and one to two hours a day during the winter.

Someday he would like to be a tennis pro.

The players he admires the most are Stan Smith and Bjorn Borg.

Patti: 'It's a great life'

By Frank Coats
Update Staff Writer

"'Could' is not a word in my vocabulary."

The lady is a bright-smiling beautiful woman with an air of grace and dignity and ... well, maybe the word is "fellowship."

As she walks down the corridors and past the desks in South Park Inn, she greets everyone by their first name, and of course they greet her the same way.

"Hi, Patti," becomes almost a repetitive chorus though the words are not uttered mechanically; there's simply a feeling of "fellowship."

Patti is the director of sales for the Westbrook Corporation, which owns the South Park Inn. She's living in Lubbock now, supervising the remodeling being done at South Park.

SHE FINDS HER JOB extraordinarily exciting; she effervesces actually. "I wish there were words ..." she said in trying to describe how she felt about her job. "We're a family ... (the company) is very concerned about you."

Patti is the sort of person who would be extraordinarily excited about her work. If she didn't like it, she wouldn't stay. She's had a background of always doing what she wanted, and she has the optimism to believe she — or anyone else — should never do anything else.

"If you don't like a job, why go?" she asked.

Patti has been in the hotel business for a number of years, starting as an elevator girl and working her way up. She first started working in Dallas, where she was raised.

She became a cocktail waitress in a private club in Dallas, and her boss, entered her picture in a beauty contest without her knowledge.

TWO WEEKS LATER, SHE TOOK a call from a man telling her she was 30 minutes late for an interview. With her boss laughing in the background, she found out she had become a finalist. A local Dallas television station had a telethon and the viewers were asked to pick the final 13 girls.

Patti was one of the winners, and she and the rest were whisked into the world of dancing, where she stayed for a few years, even becoming the state dancing champion in 1968.

She and her partner won the championship for dancing the Dallas Push and ballroom dancing.

This experience led her to what some would consider a terribly exciting career, but one she simply passes over: she became a Rockette at Radio City Music Hall in New York City.

"THAT WAS A GREAT LIFE," she said. "I enjoyed it very much. It was a great experience, but I didn't want to go back.

"I think every girl, if she gets a chance like this, should carry through with it," she said about the Rockettes. And that's about all she said.

She was unusually reticent about talking about being a Rockette; it wasn't so much that she didn't want to talk about it, it was more a feeling of it was in the past, and not very important.

What is important is what's happening now.

She has a strong drive and a forceful personality; she's one of those people that can make someone feel good, even a little inspired.

"I live, eat and breathe sales," she said.

Her energy seems totally devoted to sales; she views it as an ultimate challenge.

WHEN SHE'S TRAVELLING, TRYING to bring people to the hotels, she's up about 6 a.m. laying the format, deciding what she's going to do.

She'll pick an office building and go door-to-door, trying to sell her product and sell the city. And she's very good.

"When I walk back to the hotel with programs, conventions, seminars and other things that are booked sight unseen...that's because they believe in you, because you (become) the product."

Her enthusiasm for sales is a natural extension of her enthusiasm for simply living. She's one of nature's optimists.

"It's a great life," she said. "I'm going to live every spare moment of my life the way I want because I enjoy it."

"If I died tomorrow, I'd say I enjoyed it. I've had the type of life where people would say, 'I wish I could do that.' 'Could' is not in my vocabulary."

Her last name is McBee. But you can call her Patti.

Twirler dates life's events by contests she has entered

By Ruthanne Brockway
Update Staff Writer

If Bethany Evans were a guest on a "What's My Line?" type of television game show the clues would include: She travels 50,000 miles a year; her diet includes peanut butter and honey sandwiches; she's traveled to almost every state in connection with her talent; a stopwatch is an important accessory in her field.

Give up?

She could be an athlete since an athlete is described as a person possessing strength, agility and endurance.

Miss Evans' sport is competitive baton twirling and she has a fireplace mantel full of trophies and awards to show for her thousands of hours of practice.

"WE HAVEN'T HAD A FIRE in the fireplace for nine years because of all the trophies," said her mother, Benni Dunn Evans.

This month she won the solo twirling and strut categories of the state preliminary leading to the National Baton Twirling Association contest. Miss Evans also was named first runner-up in the Miss Majorette of Texas competition last year.

Twirling is serious business for Miss Evans, who first picked up a baton in her mother's dance studio when she was 2½ years old.

That was 14 years ago and since then Miss Evans has dated events in her life by the contests she has entered.

"Hmmmmm...Mississippi, was I five or six then? No, I was six or seven," she said as she recalled the early competitions in other states.

SHE WON HER FIRST MEDAL at age 2½, but, as her mother explained, the competition wasn't so tough then.

"There were four little girls and Bethany happened to make a cute move — one little girl didn't move at all, she just stood there," Mrs. Evans recalled.

At age 16, Miss Evans devotes at least two hours of practice time seven days a week to twirling.

"I have to keep up my stamina," she said.

Part of her training also includes watching her diet. Chocolate is usually forbidden, although she has been known to nibble a candy bar "for energy" just before a contest.

"Mom gives me minerals too, for energy," she said.

AND HER MOTHER ADDED, "We always take peanut butter with us — she has a lot of peanut butter and honey."

All the hours of practice, attention to diet, and careful selection of a costume culminate in the two and one-half minute performance before the judges.

That's when a stopwatch comes in handy.

"On solo time, it has to be between two minutes and 20 seconds and two minutes and 30 seconds," Mrs. Evans said.

Miss Evans practices to music to make her timing perfect.

"Usually I finish in two minutes and 25 or 26 seconds," she said.

In the recent state competition, contestants were judged 25 percent each on variety, difficulty of routine, timing, and showmanship in presentation.

"THE NAME OF THE GAME is being remembered," Mrs. Evans said and explained part of being remembered as doing a unique routine and wearing a costume a bit farther ahead of style than the other contestants.

Costumes are no problem for Miss Evans because her mother now owns a theatrical supply store.

Although there are dozens of colors to choose from for costumes and an assortment of sequins, tiaris and trim, they have decided on three colors that best suit the twirler.

Pink, red and royal blue compliment her fair skin, blue eyes and light brown hair which she wears in a bun when performing.

But even though the colors are well established in her wardrobe, much thought goes into each new costume.

"IT HAS TO HAVE A GOOD fit but allow for stretching and the trim has to be placed where it will not interfere with the baton," Mrs. Evans, who makes her daughter's costumes, said.

A sleeveless outfit is de rigueur.

Miss Evans will be the feature twirler this fall at Monterey High School where she will be a junior.

After that, she isn't sure what her plans will include.

"I guess I'll go to college and twirl," she said shyly.

If she does, it will probably be at Texas Tech University.

If her small-boned features and twirling style look familiar to fans, it could be because she's taking after mom, who was a feature twirler at Tech.

When the temperatures start to soar and the familiar sights of home start looking just a little too familiar, it's usually time to start thumbing through the World Atlas in search of the perfect vacation.

There are almost as many different kinds of vacations as there are people. Some people prefer to spend their free time basking in the sun at a remote island resort, while others take to the mountains and the simple pleasure of "roughing it." Others spend the days locked in the excitement of a Las Vegas casino, or for some an educational vacation, a few weeks researching material for a novel, is always time well spent.

Of course, finding the perfect vacation is not as easy as finding an enjoyable vacation which also fits the pocketbook. How a vacationer chooses to travel usually plays a major role in deciding on a vacation spot. There are cars, trains, buses, ships and airplanes to choose from.

How do Lubbockites spend those few days away from the working scene?

Dana Bickford noted she prefers quiet vacations. "I like to go to Colorado where it's cooler," she explained. To lower the cost of traveling she enjoys camping out and cooking her own meals.

Lonnie Harrell spends his vacation time at home with his family. "I also like to visit my sister in Houston," he said.

"I like to go fishing and get away from the telephones and the hectic life at home," said Lou Starr.

Denise Struke enjoys recreational vacations. "I like to get a cabin near a lake and spend the time water skiing," she said. To bring down the cost of a recreational vacation, she advises bringing supplies to the lake. At a recreational center food and fuel will be double the cost of the standard price," she said.

"We like to go stay in our cabin and spend time fishing," said Jimmie Payne.

Tina Gaddy, who recently returned from a cruise, noted she prefers to spend her vacations on a ship. "The food is good and there's always a variety of entertainment to choose from," she said.

Laverne Danklefs explained she prefers to travel around the country in a trailer. "In a trailer you get to see more of the country," she noted.

"I spend my time off working around the house," explained S.K. Alexander. His son, Levi Blue, is too young to be much help with yard work, but he makes the vacation more enjoyable.

Cook masters secrets of gourmet recipes

By Janice Jarvis
Update Staff Writer

Surrounded by a collection of cookbooks, over 90 different spices lined on a rack, three ovens and a commercial gas range, Mrs. James Crisp has the makings of a gourmet meal at her fingertips.

To guarantee her well-stocked kitchen is put to good use, Mrs. Crisp recently attended a cooking school in France. While there, she mastered some secrets of fine French cooking.

Mrs. Crisp first experimented with gourmet cooking while her husband was studying medicine in Istanbul. "There wasn't much to do there so I started reading cookbooks," she explained.

FROM THERE SHE BEGAN experimenting, adding her own special touches and combining several recipes to create gourmet meals. She began sharing recipes with other women and her collection of gourmet recipes began to grow.

Mrs. Crisp noted the majority of French cuisine is very simple to make. The exception is the delicate pastry, typical of French desserts.

Garnishes, such as butter rosettes, add the final touches to a gourmet meal, according to Mrs. Crisp. She also collects china and enjoys serving meals on unusual dishes from the countries the family visits.

Fresh fruits and vegetables give French dishes an extra margin of quality, explained Mrs. Crisp. "In France, the vegetables and fruit are picked fresh daily and used immediately," she said. "When you walk through a market in France it seems like a paradise with the beautiful produce they have available," she added.

MEAT DISHES USUALLY ARE limited to fish, chicken, lamb and veal. A typical dinner also includes appetizers, soup, fish or duck, vegetables and dessert. Although France is famous for light pastry, Mrs. Crisp explained the dessert was usually fresh fruit served with sherbert. Wine completed a meal.

French cuisine can be reproduced in Lubbock with few modifications. To cut down on a high caloric content usually found in heavy sauces, a new, low calorie French food is developing. "Instead of adding flour to thicken a sauce a pureed carrot can be substituted to get the same effect," Mrs. Crisp said.

While Lubbock doesn't have as large a supply of fresh fruits and vegetables as a market in France, there is enough good produce to create gourmet meals.

MRS. CRISP SUGGESTS USING whatever vegetables are in season, and keeping an eye open for shipments of fresh fish.

Whenever an item is not available in Lubbock, Mrs. Crisp relies on special shipments from favorite stores she has discovered during her travels. She buys coffee in bulk from a store in San Francisco. "I can tell the difference between coffee in the stores and the coffee I grind myself," she said. She also buys as much as 50 pounds of chocolate at a time.

Gourmet cooking is not an everyday event for Mrs. Crisp but she does enjoy cooking French dishes for dinner parties. "But before I serve guests a meal I've usually tested the dish out on my husband," she said.

Her children, J.B. and Cathy, also occasionally try their hands at French cuisine. A dinner party always requires several days of cooking and both J.B. and Cathy help with the preparation.

ALTHOUGH MRS. CRISP ENJOYS serving gourmet foods to her friends and family in Lubbock, she enjoys visiting France. Last year Crisp and his wife traveled over 3,000 miles, sampling the food at some of the finest restaurants.

Mrs. James Crisp

Mrs. Crisp insists gourmet cooking is simple, as long as the best equipment is available and the person cooking has time to experiment. Adding wine to a simple dish is always a good beginning, she noted.

Gourmet cooking is an enjoyable hobby, according to Mrs. Crisp, but she doesn't neglect the traditional foods. "I love fried chicken but I hope people don't consider it the only food," she said.

Some of her favorite recipes follow:

LEMON MOUSSE

¾ cup fresh squeezed lemon juice
grated rind of three lemons
4 eggs, separated
1½ cups sugar
1 package unflavored gelatin
1 tsp. cornstarch
¼ cup orange flavored brandy
1½ cups heavy cream
3 tbsps. confectioners' sugar
Garnish: additional whipped cream, thin slices lemon

Grate the rind from the lemons and set aside. Be careful not to get the white inner skin of the lemon along with its aromatic yellow peel are it will make the mousse bitter.

Squeeze the juice and set aside.

Beat the egg yolks with the sugar until the mixture is light colored and forms a ribbon when spooned back on itself.

Soften the gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Place over hot water and stir until gelatin is dissolved.

In a medium bowl combine the cornstarch with 1/3 of the lemon juice and stir until smooth. Add remaining juice, lemon rind and gelatin to the mixture. Stir well. Add to the beaten egg mixture. Turn mixture into a double boiler and cook over hot water until it thickens, stirring constantly. Do not allow to boil. Chill until quite syrupy.

Whip the cream with the remaining brandy and confectioners' sugar until stiff.

Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry.

Fold the crean and egg whites into the lemon mixture and spoon into souffle dish. Chill at least six hours.

Garnish with whip cream and lemon slices.

ROLLED FILLET OF SOLE FILLED WITH CRABMEAT

4 fillets of sole
½ pound crabmeat
2 tbsps. butter, melted
2 tbsps. shallots, finely chopped (green onion can be substituted.)
4 ounces champagne
½ cup heavy cream
juice of ½ lemon
2 egg yolks
¼ cup heavy cream
¼ tsp. cornstarch dissolved in 1 tbsp. cold water
Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Rinse the fillets of sole, spread them out flat, and cover with a layer of crabmeat. Roll the fillets and fasten with a toothpick. Pour the melted butter into a shallow ovenproof dish, add the rolled filets, placing them side by side, and sprinkling the shallots over them. Pour the champagne, ½ cup cream and lemon juice over the fish and bake for 10 minutes. Transfer the fillets to a serving dish and keep warm.

Beat the egg yolks lightly with the ¼ cup heavy cream, then pour the liquid in which the filets were cooked into the egg and cream mixture. Blend with the dissolved cornstarch. Put the fillets back into the baking dish, pour the sauce over them and return to the oven for 10 minutes.

Care needed in choosing the perfect diamond

lubbock consumer update

By Jack Douglas
Update Staff Writer

What usually precedes the sound of wedding bells is the ringing of the cash register. Some feel the former sound is pleasant, but few like the latter clatter.

Then there are those who think both strike a sour tune.

Most will agree the spiraling prices for wedding rings have made the dream for the lady a nightmare for the "lucky man."

However, with today's liberated everything, the burden of paying for rings might fall on either, or both, shoulders of the happy couple.

First and foremost, before buying a wedding ring, make sure the person it's intended for wants to marry you. If the answer is "no," you've automatically saved some big bucks.

SECONDLY, SAYS VETERAN Lubbock jeweler Dorman Igo, plan with your spouse-to-be on what kind of ring or rings to purchase — style, size, shape, etc. — then look for the best buy.

Prices of wedding rings vary as much as the public's purchasing power. Most all contain a diamond or diamonds — the "girls best friend."

Bacon Jones, a local manufacturer of custom-made jewelry, said custom-made rings will cost more than mass-produced jewelry, "but not as much more than people imagine."

Jones' son, Spike, said the "average young couple" will pay between $500 and $750 for a high quality diamond weighing a third of a carat or a lesser grade half carat. Fine half carat diamonds retail for $1,200 to $1,300, he said.

Igo, a member of the National Jewelers Association and Texas Jewelers Association, said wedding bands lacking a gem will cost between $30 and $200 for women. Plain wedding bands for men will start at $50 because they are a little heavier.

Engraved bands cost between $50 and $200, and bands with one or more gems will range between $75 and $5,000, Igo said.

WHILE ABOUT FOUR YEARS ago white gold was the most popular, yellow gold is most fashionable now, according to Igo, who has been in the business for 31 years.

According to the American Gem Society, the four most important factors in buying a diamond for your loved one are cutting, color, clarity and carat weight. "Generally, the more colorless a stone is, the finner the quality," AGS says in a trade brochure.

"Value falls as the stone deepens towards a yellow tint. Exceptions to this rule are the very rare, colored diamonds known as 'fancy' stones. Famous examples are the deep blue Hope Diamond, the yellow Tiffany and the green Dresden," AGS states.

Flaws in diamonds can be so slight that the average person will not be able to recognize them, but they will affect the price of the gem drastically, according to Spike Jones. Flaws that are visible to the naked eye do serious harm both to the appearance and value of the gem, AGS says.

"That's why it's so important to deal with reputable people," Jones said.

WILL THE PERSON HAVE TO trust the jeweler's grading of a diamond?

"The only way to question the dealer is to have the stone certified by a gemological lab...but the labs usually will not put a price on the stone, just say what the grade is," Spike Jones, a jeweler the past 15 years, said.

Two such major labs are the Gemological Institute of America in Los Angeles, Calif., and the United States Gemological Service in Santa Ana, Calif.

The Jewelers Vigilance Committee in New York, set up by the jewelry industry, also will handle complaints such as paying for a gem that is of lesser quality than what the dealer rates it. Such a complaint might warrant legal action, Spike Jones says.

Says AGS: "Most important of all is the quality of the cutting. When correct cutting is sacrificed to achieve maximum carat weight, it is always at the expense of brilliance and value.

"Carat weight is the least important consideration, though naturally where the other qualities are equal, a larger stone will be more valuable."

THE MAJOR NAME IN DIAMONDS is DeBeers Consolidated of South Africa. But watch out for DeBeers Diamond Investment Ltd. out of Scottsdale, Ariz., says Mal Cleland, president of Lubbock's Better Business Bureau.

The Arizona operation is of "questionable" status, says Cleland, and the company has saturated the diamond market including Lubbock. States the BBB in Phoenix, Ariz.: "The bureau believes use of the name 'DeBeers' is misleading since they (the Arizona company) are not, nor have they ever been associated with DeBeers Consolidated Mines, Ltd. of South Africa. The bureau believes the value claims of diamonds is difficult to determine and open to question."

Cleland's bureau here has considerably more information about purchasing advice, such as checking claims made by dealers and companies.

Kenneth Hooper, assistant director of enforcement for the State Securities Board, said a "scheme" has cropped up in the last two years where companies have sold diamonds to individuals, promising to buy back the diamonds in a couple of years at a profit for the individual.

However, two years have passed and the companies are not to be found, Hooper said. If a person is met with a "buy-back" provision, he should contact the state board which will study it, he said.

Of course, this advice does not apply to the person about to get married, unless he or she already knows the relationship will not last more than a couple of years.

Retaining maiden names becoming more popular for today's brides

By Debbie Mitchell
Update Staff Writer

More brides today are saying 'I do' to retaining their maiden names.

They say the name they've had from birth is part of their personal identity and they don't see why they have to change it just because of marriage.

And the law backs them up. In every state, except Hawaii, a woman may use any name she wishes as long as she does so consistently and non-fraudulently.

No law in Texas says that a woman must take her husband's surname when she marries. However, questions about whether or not a married woman could use her maiden name on her driver's license and other legal documents prompted an opinion from the Attorney General's office.

ON OCT. 25, 1974, Atty. Gen. John Hill said, "Upon marriage, a woman has the choice either to retain her name as it was before marriage or to assume her husband's surname."

Other legal questions raised across the country prompted the establishment of information centers in Illinios; Massachusetts and Wisconsin. The Center for a Woman's Own Name in Barrington, Ill., Name Change in Newtonville, Mass., and Olympia Brown league in Milwaukee, Wis., mail information booklets to women interested in retaining their maiden names.

Although women in Lubbock can keep their maiden names when they marry, few seem to have chosen to exercise this option.

"I have a feeling there aren't many women in Lubbock who have kept their maiden names," said Elaine Bagley, president of the local chapter of the National Organization for Women. "Only within the last year have I begun receiving calls from women asking about this issue."

PEOPLE WHO FAVOR ALLOWING a woman to keep her maiden name say the practice makes record-keeping more consistent. They say it eliminates the bureaucratic hassle of changing the name on driver's licenses and social security cards.

And for the first time this year, income tax forms have instructions telling couples how to file if they don't share the same name.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1975 also gives a woman the legal power to establish credit in her own name by outlawing discrimination on the basis of marital status.

Both practical and personal reasons encouraged Carol McCoy to keep her own name. She says that although she has had to explain at times, she's glad that she decided to retain her maiden name.

"I didn't see any reason to give up my name," said Miss McCoy. "I didn't feel that I was changing my person by marrying, and my name has always been a part of the person that I am."

Her husband, she said, was agreeable to her decision.

"My husband wouldn't have it any other way," she added.

MISS McCOY, WHO HAS BEEN married a year, said one of the few problems she has had involved getting credit at a jewelry store.

"They said we couldn't put the account in both names until they talked to their lawyer," she said.

Relatives, at first, didn't understand, she said.

"They would call and say 'But I thought you got married.' Then I would explain, and now there's no problem."

While some couples with dual names name the boys after the father and the girls after the mother, Miss McCoy said that they will solve the dilemma by hyphenating their own names.

"Our child's identity will come from both of us, so why shouldn't he share our name?" she said.

Marta Rosas, a Texas Tech University law student, uses both her maiden name and her husband's surname. At school she goes by Rosas, but her bank account is in the name of her husband, Luis V. Perez.

"For me, it's not worth the hassle to keep my maiden name," Miss Rosas said. "I thought about doing it for business purposes, but it's too confusing, especially if we decide to have children."

MOST OF THE WOMEN IN LUBBOCK who have kept their maiden names have tried to solve the potential problems by hyphenating their maiden names to their husbands' surnames.

Pam Danker-Brown, a Tech graduate student, chose to use both names. She says, though, that if she had the choice to make again she would just keep Danker.

"Danker is so much simpler," said Mrs. Danker-Brown. "My husband was hesitant about my staying just Pam Danker when we got married, but he says now that he wouldn't mind if I went by Danker only."

Mrs. Danker-Brown says, nevertheless, that she has received positive attention because of her dual name.

"People think it's neat," she said.

ANOTHER LOCAL WOMAN who chose to combine her name and her husband's is Cecilia Owens-Beckham of the Family Service Association. She says that while she prefers to be called 'Owens-Beckham,' often she must answer to just 'Beckham.'

"People have a hard time remembering both parts," she said.

She adds, though, that she wouldn't consider going by the last name of Beckham alone.

"I have a strong feeling about my family," she said, "and with me the family name will die out. I want to keep the Owens part alive."

ALTHOUGH THE TREND FOR a woman to retain her maiden name has gained momentum only recently, the desire to do so is not a new one.

In 1855 feminist Lucy Stone bucked the standard by saying, "My name is the symbol of my identity."

Other women since that time, especially actresses and writers, have for professional reasons shunned the tradition which stems from the colonial days when a wife was considered to be the property of her husband.

The home of the late W.S. "Walter" Posey, Lubbock banker and civic leader, was located on 10th Street in an earlier day of the town's history. Here is the residence but positive identification of the persons standing inside the white fence gate is not made in an old photo album, loaned to Update.

JUNE 23, 1958: Citizens Plan Protest of County Tax Setup: An irate group of Southwest Lubbock citizens protested "unfair property valuations thoughout Lubbock County" before the commissioners court.

In other news: About 300 businessmen and buyers from the South Plains and Eastern New Mexico had attended the Western Wholesale Market Association's Back to School Showing at the Lubbock Hotel. The event included 66 exhibits.

JUNE 23, 1968: Liquor Board Ties Rapped: Following a five-month investigation, the state attorney general's office and Department of Public Safety, reported the Texas Liquor Control Board was controlled to some extent by the industry the agency regulated.

In other news: A study by a forecaster of the U.S. Weather Bureau at Lubbock Municipal Airport revealed Lubbock's blowing dust would be practically non-existent if thunderstorms and frontal systems did not sweep over the South Plains.

JUNE 23, 1973: Fears of Dollar Crises Ease: Despite the U.S. dollar sinking to a record low in West Germany and weakening across Western Europe, currency in Italy was strengthening, giving economists hopes that the market would stabilize.

In other news: A 21-year-old Plainview man was charged with six felonies of burglary-assaults of three elderly women which had occurred since March 1972.

Hall of Fame

ANSWER: The Hall of Fame is a public display honoring great Americans of the past. It is located in New York City, at the Bronx campus of New York University.

The Hall, financed through the generosity of Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, was dedicated in 1901. The open-air display is a half-circle of columns between which are bronze busts of the famous men and women who have been elected to the Hall. Below each bust is a bronze inscription of a notable quotation made by the person honored.

Elections for the Hall are held every three years. Persons who are U.S. citizens and have contributed significantly to the American way of life are eligible for nomination 25 years after their deaths. Nominations can be made during the election year by the public.

The final list of nominees is submitted to an election committee, made up of 125 prominent Americans from every state. A maximum of seven persons may be elected to the Hall in each election year.

Among the members of the Hall of Fame are George Washington, Mark Twain, Edgar Allen Poe, Alexander Graham Bell, the Wright Brothers and Robert E. Lee.

Students, advisers to attend session

Ten students and faculty advisers from Lubbock's five public high schools are to attend the 42nd National Conference of the National Association of Student Councils and Student Activity Advisers, to be held at Hurst beginning June 25.

The Lubbock delegation will be part of 1,300 student council leaders and advisers selected to attend the conclave. Delegates represent every state, the U.S. territories and several foreign countries.

Lubbock student participants all will be seniors this coming year. They are Troy Barron, Coronado, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Barron, 4403 28th St.; Leslie Cross, Jr., Dunbar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cross, 2310 Birch; Willie Queenan, Estacado, son of Mrs. Hazel Queenan, 1731 E. Cornell; Linda Shrimplin, Lubbock High, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Shrimplin, 3207 19th St.; and Paul Hancock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hancock, 3709 68th St.

Miss Shrimplin is secretary of the Lubbock High student body, and the other delegates are presidents of their student council organizations.

Hundreds of small faces turn doll collector's hobby into big business

By Esther Longoria
Update Staff Writer

The only hint of what is inside the red brick house in this quiet central Lubbock neighborhood is the handmade, bright yellow "DOLLS" sign in the corner of the picture window. On entering the living room, hundreds of small faces peer at the new guest.

Three large tables in Gladyse French's living room are strewn with dolls of every size and shape. Baby dolls, china head dolls, tiny dolls, comical dolls, foreign dolls, even cartoon character dolls, fill the room.

Hundreds of dolls inhabit Mrs. French's living area, but hundreds more may be found in drawers, on shelves and under beds throughout the spacious home.

"I guess the den and the kitchen are the only two rooms in the house which don't have a single doll," Mrs. French said.

Mrs. French, of 2406 33rd St., has collected dolls for 38 years, including some which date to the 1840s.

However, the small, energetic woman is not only a collector of dolls, she repairs them as well.

HER SMALL LAUNDRY ROOM was transformed into a "doll hospital" in 1967, and the 71-year-old woman meticulously mends each and every treasured, but injured "dolly."

Cracked skulls, a chewed up leg or a worn, bald head become new again under Mrs. French's skilled hands.

With her special tools, which must be ordered from New York, she can restring the doll's body, putty a cracked skull or paint on a bright, new face.

"Every doll has a different problem and that particular problem has to be worked out," she says.

The majority of the dolls in Mrs. French's workroom are her own, but she says she never seems to get around to fixing them. "I always have more than enough to do from my customers."

However, Mrs. French does not confine her business to just repairing or selling dolls. She or her daughter, Jean Aaron, also will tackle a torn, worn teddy bear.

They pull out all the old stuffing, or what's left of it, and firm up the lifeless, stuffed toy with a mixture of cotton and Dacron — "so that it's washable," Mrs. French says.

BUT BE PREPARED TO WAIT for that mended bear or doll because the two women are usually a few months behind on their work.

"Normally, I just can't promise a date as to when I'll have the doll repaired," Mrs. French says. "I just never seem to get caught up."

However, Mrs. French cares about her customers, especially the small ones, and realizes how important it may be for a child to have his doll back as soon as possible.

"So, I try not to keep a child's doll for over one night because I know how much they love their baby," she said.

The grandmother says she can fix just about any doll or stuffed animal and recalls turning down only one doll that she couldn't repair.

"When the customer brought her to me, the doll had her head off, and for some reason I just couldn't get it back on."

CHRISTMAS IS PROBABLY THE busiest time of the year for Mrs. French, and she strongly advises that if you want to have that special doll or teddy ready by Christmas to come and see her in October.

She says she never intended for her "first love" to turn into a fulltime business. "I just wanted something to keep me occupied."

But, the word about Mrs. French and her doll hospital spread rapidly across the South Plains and even as far away as California, and she hasn't been without a doll to repair since.

Hologram beats microfilm for high density storage

By Ruthanne Brockway
Update Staff Writer

Researchers at Texas Tech University have an optical system called holography so sensitive it can record all the information in 100,000 Bibles in one second.

The lensless photography has such high density storage it can contain trillions of bits of information on a hologram plate measuring five inches square, weighing one ounce and costing about 50 cents per plate — not including the cost of setting up such a system.

And a system with such capabilities "beats the pants off microfilm" says Mike Jones, a Tech graduate student whose research goal is to replace a system of lenses with a single hologram.

A hologram records three-dimensional images on film using laser beams.

DR. JOHN F. WALKUP AND Dr. Marion O. Hagler of Tech's electrical engineering faculty head the research of space-variant optical systems. Their work and that of others in the relatively new field of holography may lead to:

• Cameras with lens systems transferred to holograms, meaning more precise photographic equipment at less cost.

• Television shows and films in three-dimension quite unlike the 3-D rage of the 1950s when 3-D meant wearing funny-looking glasses. Holograms would mean 3-D without the glasses.

• Farmers too could profit time by measuring plant growth with a series of holograms to determine how fast a fertilizer works.

A DICTIONARY DEFINES holography as the technique of producing images by wavefront reconstruction, especially by using lasers to record on a photographic plate the diffraction pattern from which a three-dimentional image can be projected.

Jones said there are basically two methods of creating a hologram — either reflection (for solid objects) or transmission (in which the laser beam passes through the object).

The idea of holograms was conceived in 1948 but only within the past decade has research soared.

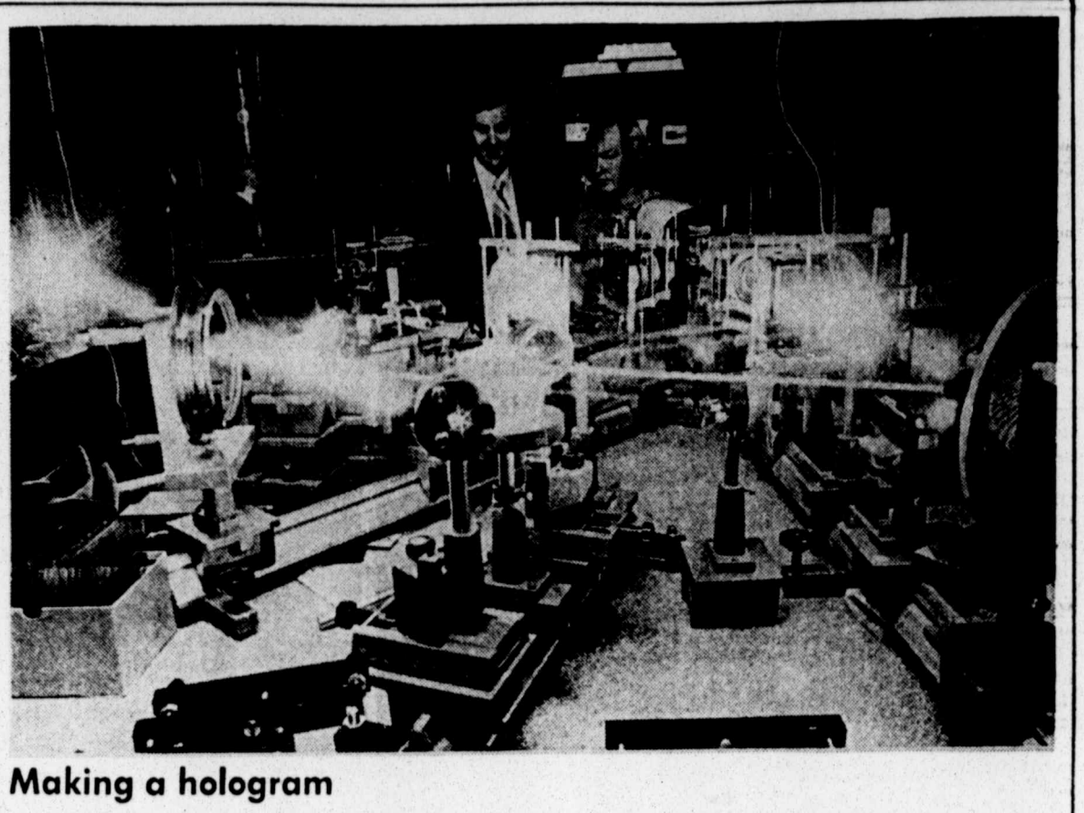

Some scientists predict that by the 1980s or 90s businesses will be using optical computers with holograms as the memory.

SUCH COMPUTER SYSTEMS would mean higher density information capacity and they would take up less office space which are reasons why Jones says they would quickly outdate microfilm.

Information on a hologram is stored at all angles of the film and information can be stacked on top of other information. By suppressing interference or "crosstalk" from other information, any bit of information can be retrieved individually.

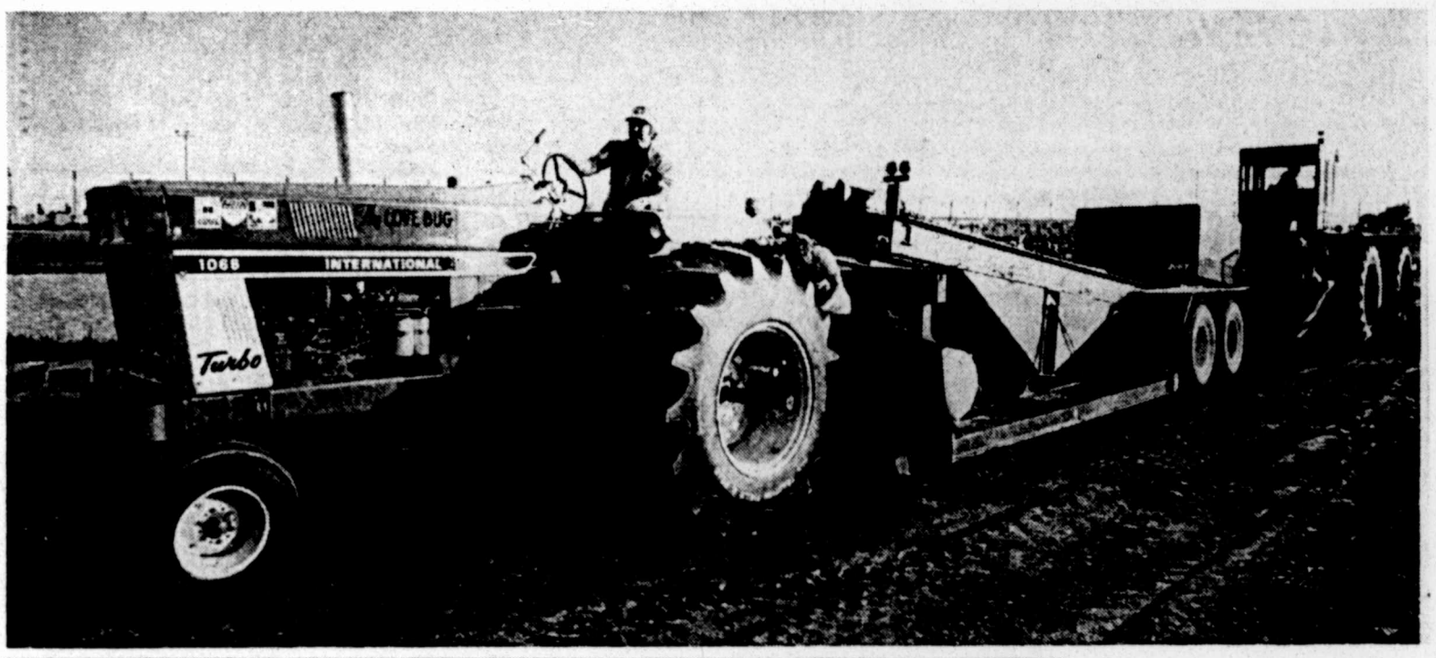

Because recording information on a hologram requires total stillness, equipment at Tech is placed on a 12,000 pound granite slab that measures 6-foot by 8-foot.

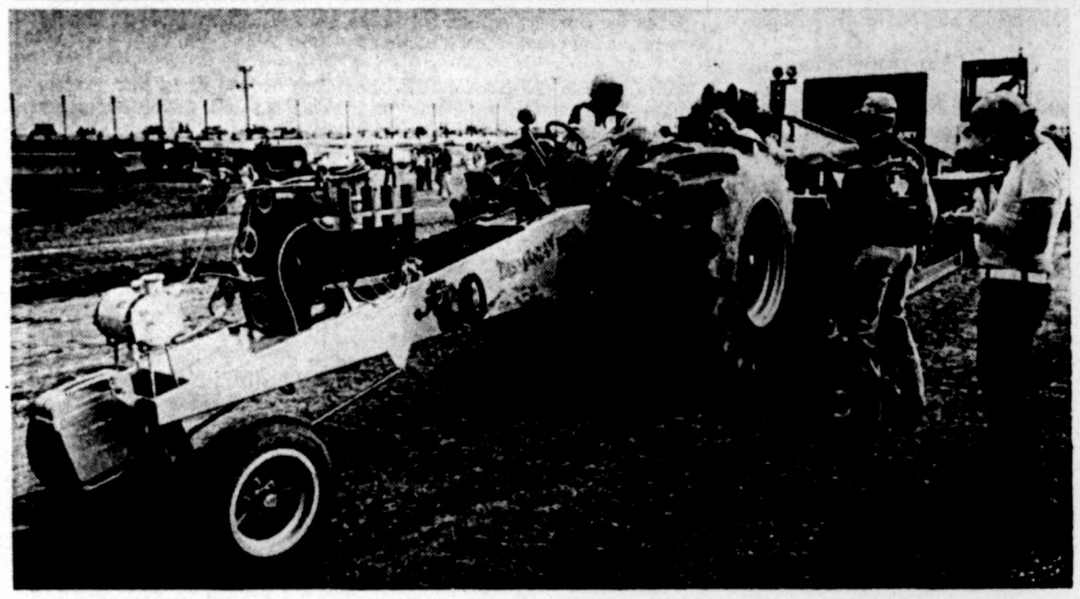

Even a millionth of an inch vibration could change a recording.

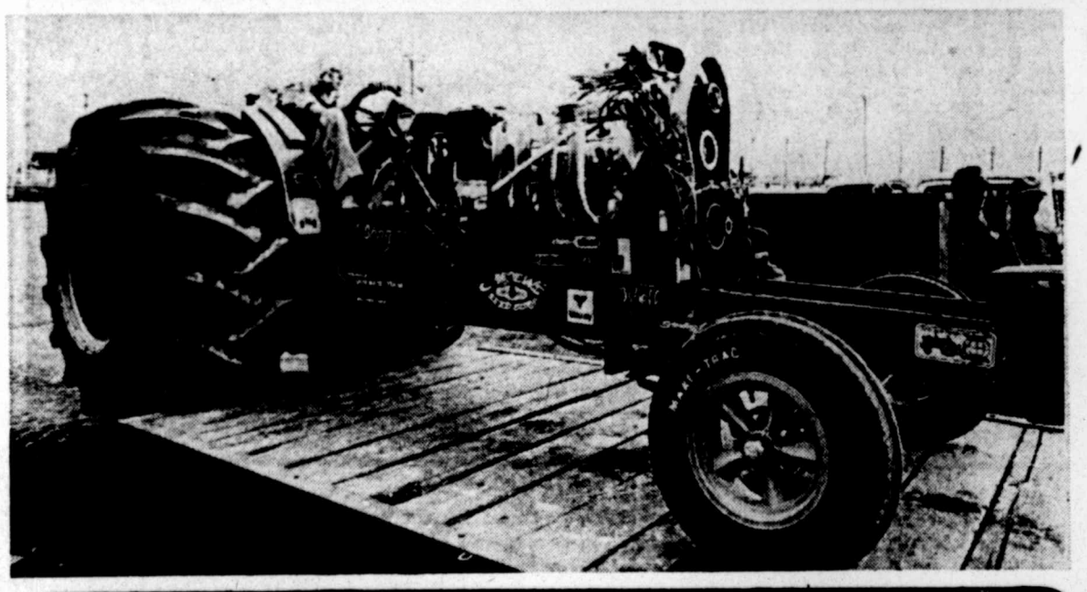

Making a hologram

A time exposure photograph illustrates the path an argon laser beam takes in making a hologram in the Texas Tech optics lab. Dr. John F. Walkup of the electrical engineering faculty, left, is adviser to graduate student Mike Jones whose research goal is to replace a system of lenses with a single hologram.

Using pull

Contestants here were hoping they could tow the weight in their modified tractors at last weekend's tractor pull competition at Lubbock Speed Bowl. In the event, sponsored by the Texas Tractor Pullers Association, tractors of various weights and other specifications were tested against one another in pulling a weighted sled down a dirt track. washington update

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

I am reminded of the story of two young Saudi Arabian princes.

One of them asked for an airplane for his birthday. His dad gave him Pan Am. The other asked his father for a Mickey Mouse outfit and received the U.S. Department of Energy.

They've hatched a new scheme over at that Mickey Mouse outfit to bring down the price of imported residual fuel — used on the East Coast to generate electricity — at the expense of gasoline users in Texas and other states.

The scheme involves the oil entitlements program.

The entitlements program was devised in response to the oil price control system which sets several different price ceilings for different kinds of oil. The ceiling for oil from existing wells in this country is relatively low while the price for oil from new wells, in an effort to encourage increased production, is higher. And foreign oil imports, since U.S. price controls have no effect in other countries, are the highest priced of all.

The problem with this kind of a price control system is that it is potentially unfair to refiners and consumers. If a refiner has access only to higher priced oil he'll have real trouble competing, his customers would have to pay a lot more than they would to a refiner with a supply of cheaper oil.

The entitlements program, a complicated system of government regulations, is intended to equalize the price refiners pay for a barrel of crude oil.

For example, a refiner must pay an entitlement of roughly $2.20 for every barrel of the cheapest oil. But for the most expensive oil the refiner receives a $2.20 entitlement.

The entitlement program was changed significantly in 1976. It was expanded to include not only U.S. refiners, but importers of residual fuel oil which had been refined in foreign countries.

Under the 1976 change residual fuel oil importers were awarded 10 percent of the entitlement paid to U.S. refiners of the most expensive crude oil.

Now the Department of Energy proposes to increase the entitlement for foreign residual fuel oil to 100 percent.

I have lodged an objection to this plan, both on the Senate Floor and in a letter to Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger.

Paying these higher entitlements for oil refined in foreign countries will substantially reduce the size of the pie and will mean smaller entitlements for U.S. refiners.

In response to my objection the Department of Energy claims that this new subsidy is needed to help bring down utility bills along the East Coast. They say the bills are high in that area because it is so dependent on residual fuel oil imports.

They haven't checked utility bills in Texas, which are as high as they are anywhere in the country.

Clearly this new plan is nothing more than retreat in the face of a growing, aggressive regionalism that would divide this country rather than unite it.

Higher gasoline prices would hit hard at Texas, which ranks fourth in per capita gasoline use.

Milk tests ensure safe product

By Wanda Evans
Citizens Traffic Commission

On a routine dairy inspection, Comer Sharp cited the operator for having dirty windows in the milkhouse.

The old farmer looked the young inspector over from head to toe. "Well, young man," he drawled, "I'll wash my windows. But I have to tell you, as a rule, I don't run any milk over them windows."

Since that day, more than 20 years ago, when Comer Sharp first came to work for the City Health Department's Milk Division, he has met several dairy men who thought the milk inspector was a nitpicker.

"Some of them get mad, scream and holler," Sharp says. "But they're the ones who will get busy and correct the violation. Then there are those who don't get mad. They keep promising you they'll correct the situation, but they never get around to it until you suspend their permit."

Nevertheless, milk is a prime target for bacteria growth. The dairy operators know it and they know that one of the guidelines the city's two milk inspectors follow is cleanliness, not only of equipment, but of the interior and exterior of the buildings, including walls, do ors, floors — and windows.

THE MILK DIVISION WAS recently awarded a Grade "A" Pasteurized Milk Honor Roll certificate by the Texas Department of Health, in recognition of the quality of milk control being carried on by the department.

The Health Department has received the Honor Roll Certificate every year for more than 40 years, said health director Dr. Marjorie Orr. It is a symbol of the healthful, sanitary environment which produces the milk city and area residents buy at their local supermarkets.

The area known as the Lubbock milkshed stretches from Tulia on the north, to Hereford, Muleshoe, and south to Denver City. In that wide area, 32 dairies produce milk that is shipped to Lubbock plants for processing.

Every 30 days, Sharp and his assistant, Bennie Marricle, inspect each of these producing dairies. They follow no regular schedule. Each visit is unannounced.

The health of the dairy herd is the first consideration of the inspector. A milk sample from the bulk tank is sent to the Texas Department of Health in Austin, whose laboratory tests the sample for brucellosis. If the sample reveals a suspicion of the disease, each cow in the herd gets a blood test and any diseased cows are removed from the herd.

WHEN INSPECTORS SURVEY the outdoor areas of the producing dairies for general cleanliness, they look for clean lots, note fly breeding areas and the condition of the water wells.

They check the inside of the milk barn for cleanliness of floors, walls, windows, tables and similar non-product contact surfaces, and for the absence of flies. All equipment must be in good repair and must be sanitized.

If an operator has two consecutive violations, inspectors are authorized to suspend his permit.

"If we are forced to suspend a permit," Sharp says, "I feel we're not doing a good job."We want to convince the operator that our requirements are good and in the best interests of everyone concerned, and that they should comply with the regulations as set by the ordinance.

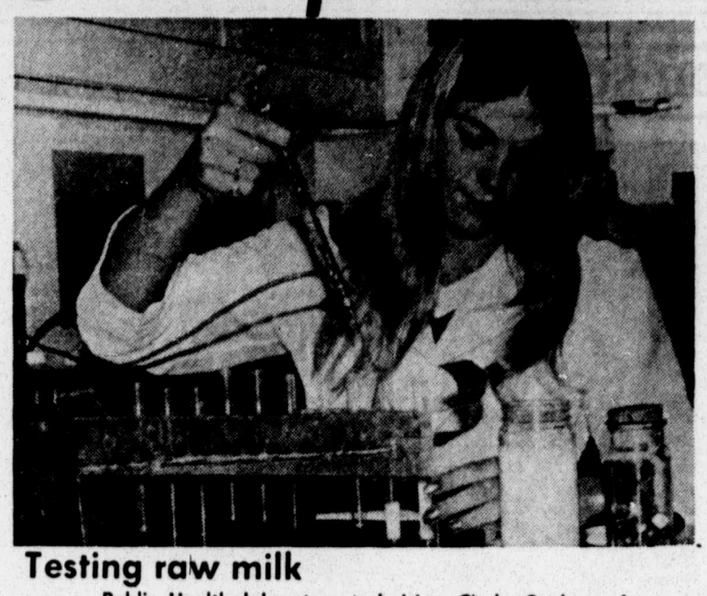

"It's a matter of pride with us to persuade the operator to comply without having to suspend his permit."

If it becomes necessary to suspend a dairy operation, the operator is given seven days to correct the situation, after which another inspection is made.

The two milk plants in the city also are inspected every 30 days. Surroundings outside the plant must be neat and clean. Inside, including all milk contact surfaces, also should be clean.

SAMPLES OF THE MILK are taken to the Health Department laboratory, where they are subjected to several tests, including the standard plate count, coliform count, butter fat tests and phosphatase tests for correct pasteurization. The lab performs an average of 900 tests on 150 samples a month.

Included are street samples, taken from delivery trucks of the two local processors and the seven processors who ship milk into Lubbock for sale.

Testing raw milk

Public Health laboratory technician Cindy Cagle performs a Wisconsin Mastitis Test on a raw milk sample, to screen for abnormal milk that should not be released for public consumption.

Even the cartons which eventually sit in your refrigerator undergo tests quarterly. Inspectors take empty cartons from the plant's assembly lines and the laboratory tests them to be sure they're sanitary.

Regular checks are also made at the supermarket or other retail outlet, to be sure the refrigerator temperature is at the proper setting to keep the milk fresh.

The result of the Milk Division's constant watchfulness is healthy dairy herds, purer milk, and healthier people.

"We haven't had an outbreak of disease associated with milk production in many years," Sharp says. "In fact, we no longer even have to test dairy cows for tuberculosis, since this area has become known as a tuberculosis-free section of the country."

"The decrease in human tuberculosis, particularly in children, is because of the decrease of TB in cows," said Dr. Orr.

Other diseases associated with cows, which can cause human illness, are undulant fever and enteritis, various forms of intestinal upset. The continued health of the area's dairy herds has produced a corresponding freedom of those diseases in area residents.

IF THERE ARE ONLY TWO milk processors in the city, how do you account for being able to choose between several brands when you visit your supermarket?

Stores, which package house brands, buy their milk from the two local processors. While it is less expensive o the consumer, it is of the exact same quality as the processor's own brand. So Lubbock residents shouldn't feel that they are buying an inferior product just because they are buying the less expensive one.

While the purity of the milk you drink is of prime concern to the Milk Division, it's quality is also monitored. Whole milk is required to contain 3.25 percent butterfat, and the laboratory tests all milk samples for butterfat content. Low fat milk also has minimum and maximum butterfat requirements and the lab tests those samples as well, insuring the consumer a safe, high quality product.

Groundbreaking set for underground Catholic church

Groundbreaking for the first "underground" church in Lubbock will be held Sunday, at the present St. Elizabeth's Catholic School, located at 22nd Street and Frankford Avenue.

This new church, to be named St. John Neumann, will be a geo-structure, an earth-covered building. The worship center will be earth-covered to the roof line, with the floor being 10 feet below grade, and the earth being bermed 10 feet up the walls to the height of the roof.

St. John Neumann's church will be built on the east side of the school, which also will be known as St. John Neumann's upon completion of the facilities. The entire complex, consisting of a parish center, connected to the south end of the school; the worship center and administration facility will cost over $1.2 million, and is expected to be completed by fall of 1979.

This parish, which is moving from the old St. Elizabeth's Church at 2305 Main St., will take a gigantic step towards energy conservation, as heating and cooling costs will be drastically reduced with the underground construction.

Bishop Lawrence DeFalco of Amarillo will be present for the ceremonies, which will be held at 5 p.m. A picnic for the families attending will be held following the groundbreaking.

standings

Four S Construction had to go extra innings against the VFW Pirates last week to determine first place in the Dixie Poney League. After having three leads dwindle, the Twins, behind the pitching of Mike Reed, overcame the Pirates to win 6-3 in nine innings. The losing pitcher was Travis Walden.

Walden joins Reed for top pitching honors in the league.

In other action, Roy Horton hit a grand slam home-run to lead VFW past the Furrs Orioles.

take your pick

By William D. Kerns
Update Entertainment Editor

Well there's certainly no reason for anyone but the grumps to stick around the house and mope this summer — not with so many unique entertainment events being staged in Lubbock.

One of the biggest, of course, is the upcoming production of Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man" July 7-8 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. The play, staged through the combined talents of Civic Lubbock and Texas Tech Music Theater, will make the return of popular Lubbock entertainers Jana and Tim King.

The two may be remembered for their performances in Civic Lubbock's "West Side Story," directed by Ric Brame. Both are now working in the Dallas area.

"The Music Man" will be staged as a dinner theater presentation, and all dinner reservations should be made as early as possible. July 5 is the cut-off date for reservations. Call the Texas Tech University music department office for ticket details.

A bit closer to home is the music available tonight and tomorrow — and there's a lot of it. Exceptional bands like Denim and the Joe Ely Band will perform at the clubs, while country poet Tom T. Hall will be singing in the Lubbock Coliseum tomorrow at 8 p.m. Plenty of good seats are still available.

And how about the movies? We not only have new films in the city, we also have new theaters. Two new additional theaters at South Plains Mall open today with some very nicely received films: Neil Simon's "The Cheap Detective" and Howard Smith's "Gizmo." Continuing in Lubbock are hot (very hot) items like "The End," "Grease," "Jaws 2," "The Jungle Book" and "Damien, Omen II." Plan on getting your tickets early if you care to see any of these movies.

Once again, if there is anyone not yet included in the Take Your Pick listings, that person or organization should feel free to call 762-8844 or write Update, Box 491, Lubbock, Tex 79408. We both need and appreciate your cooperation in making Update's entertainment calendar as complete as possible.

Buckingham's — With Bill Browder playing lead guitar, Denim will make yet another appearance at this popular nightspot on 4th Street. A Texas band, Denim has also increased in popularity over the past few years, largely because of its very impressive debut album on Epic Records which boasted tunes like "Tequila" and "(Falling In Love Is A) Long Way Away." If you haven't yet seen Denim in action, make plans to see the group either tonight or Saturday at Buckingham's; you won't regret it. Call the club for ticket prices.

Chelsea Street Pub — Winding up a two-week gig tonight and Saturday is a duo going by the name Dodson and Lee. This Fort Worth duo will be followed in Monday by Payton and Raines. Still never a cover charge at Chelsea's.

Lubbock's Joe Ely performing at Cold Water Country

Cold Water Country, — Lubbock's own singing sensation Joe Ely will be playing country out at Cold Water tonight and Saturday; he'll be backed each night by Capitol recording artists The Dusty Chaps. Ely, of course, records on MCA and has received rave reviews for his LPs called "Joe Ely" and "Honky Tonk Masquerade." The cover charge both nights is $4. Wednesday and Thursday will see entertainment provided by Outlaw Express; there will be no cover collected on those nights.

Continental Room — Brad and Matthew will still be singing this weekend at this exquisite nightspot, which offers a bird's eye view of the city lights along with the drinks and live entertainment. The club is located atop Metro Tower downtown and there is no cover charge.

Cotton Club — This historic club, which once appeased Lubbock's natural hunger for C&W sounds, now caters to the younger set demanding rock and roll. No entertainment is planned for Saturday, but tonight a $3 cover charge will get you in to hear The High Rollers. The club has a BYOB policy.

Hard Rock Cafe — Every Tuesday night, Hard Rock manager Doc Savage holds a local talent contest called "Catch A Rising Star" with divisions for both amateur and professional musicians. The winners of the June 20 contest will be playing tonight and Saturday at the Hard Rock, where there is no cover charge. The unique nightspot also holds open jam sessions on Sunday nights. But the Tuesday contest, highlighting the best musicians in Lubbock, is one of the cafe's top drawing cards.

Honky Tonk — Chuck Cusimano and Country Enough will provide the entertainment tonight, Saturday and Monday through Thursday. The Mid-Night Cowboys will be on stage Sunday night. The cover tonight and Saturday is $2, with the admission dropping to $1 on Sundays. There is no cover charge Monday through Thursday.

Hub Club — Featured entertainment tonight through Thursday is by Ronnie Baron, a California musician concentrating on "hard rock" sounds, according to a club spokesperson. There is no cover charge at the Hub Club, located on the second floor at South Park Inn.

Longhorn Club — Mel Way & The Waysiders will be supplying the country sounds tonight through Sunday, Monday and Wednesday. The cover charge tonight and Saturday is $3 for couples and $2 for men arriving stag, with unescorted women admitted free. The cover charge Sunday is $2 for couples, $1 for men arriving stag and unescorted women admitted free. And there will be no cover collected Monday and Wednesday.

Palace — Jo Ann Parks and The Rounders will be playing tonight and Saturday. There is a $2 cover charge for men, with women admitted free. Tuesday through Thursday will see the Salt River Band supplying the sounds; there will be no cover collected on weekdays.

Pete's Fiesta Ballroom — Conjunto band Los Tigres Del Norte, from Mexico, will offer entertainment Saturday night only. Advance tickets may be purchased for $5 at the Fiesta Record Shop. Those waiting until Saturday night will have to pay $7 at the door.

Red Raider Night Club — Fiddle player Al Dean, the man who became infamous after composing "Cotton Eyed Joe," will be playing tonight at the Red Raider; tickets will be sold at the door for $3. Larry Trider will be entertaining Saturday and Sunday, as well as Wednesday and Thursday, with a $2 cover charge collected on the weekend. And on Monday and Tuesday, entertainers Rick and Neal will return to the club. Both used to play on a regular basis in Lubbock, but decided to move to Dallas and open their own club about a year ago. Their return visits draw large followings. There will be a $4 cover charge Monday and Tuesday.

Show Wagon "Sunset Shows" — The Show Wagon, in its second year of operation, offers traditional, family entertainment of the local variety. The entertainment concept was designed for families who want to spend some time outdoors with their kids, pets and a picnic dinner. Sunset shows are staged every Friday and Monday at Maxey Park, 36th Street and Quaker Avenue. Tonight, the entertainment will start at 8 p.m. with a trampoline act by gymnast Johnny Hamilton and a vocal performance by the Bacon Heights Church Singers. The Maines Brothers Band will perform on Monday. Entertainment generally starts at 8 p.m. and there is no admission charge.

Show Wagon 'Sunset Shows'
Weekly family entertainment on a personal level

Silver Dollar Restaurant — Cal Freeman and Ronnie Frey will play tonight and Saturday at this restaurant, which is located inside South Plains Mall. There is a $1 cover charge.

Waterhole Number Seven — Larry Kinnie and Country Review will be entertaining tonight through Sunday; the cover is $2 tonight and Saturday, and $1 on Sunday. Johnnny Lee will be singing tunes like "Red Sails In The Sunset" Monday and Tuesday; a $3 cover charge will get you in.

Westernaire — Wilburn Roach will play tonight and Saturday, with the Mid-Night Cowboys slated to take the stage Tuesday and Thursday. You can see Roach for $2, but the cover drops to $1 on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

on screen

And in this corner — 'Matilda'
Boxing kangaroo stars with Elliott Gould at Showplace

Arnett-Benson — "Close Encounters Of The Third Kind." This film stars Richard Dreyfuss and Academy Award nominee Melinda Dillon, but the true masters of this effort are director Steven Spielberg and special effects wizard Douglas Trumbull. We care about what happens to the actors when they are confronted by UFOs, and this is important. But what people leave the theater talking about are those glorious lights which look like Christmas in the sky and, of course, the good feeling the overall picture grants us. Who but Spielberg would show us that alien intelligence could just as well be friendly?

Backstage I — "Oh, God!" Some of us are still wondering how George Burns managed to get snubbed in the Oscar race. Burns plays the deity in amusing, yet inspiring fashion, and John Denver does a surprisingly good job as the supermarket manager He chooses as a mouthpiece. A funny movie and one initially thought to be sacreligious by some ... but the brunt of those denouncing the film never bothered to see it first. The religious message is present, and the feelings emitted are of the very warm variety. Admission is $1.

Backstage II — "The Deep." The fact that Jacqueline Bisset wears see-through T-shirts during most of the underwater filming inspired the majority of publicity granted this film. But while reviews were not all favorable, the public did swarm to see the picture when first released last summer. Robert Shaw has a Quint-like role in this watery adventure, and the photography and sound recording in "The Deep" are exceptional. Admission for this picture also is $1.

Cinema I, Mall — "The End." What's the matter with those New York City critics anyway? All the advance publicity said this was a bad movie; even United Artists wondered whether they might have a financial disappointment on its hands. But this movie draws steady long lines and sellout performances at the Cinema I, and for good reason. Namely that it's funny. Sure, it has its weak moments, but Burt Reynolds is to be applauded for the chances he takes in going against type. And Dom DeLuise is rib-tickling, side-splitting, knee-slapping hilarious in a supporting role which, if there is justice, will win him an Academy Award nomination as Best Supporting Actor.

Cinema II, Mall — "Coming Home." With this specific theater having so many big summer films booked, it cannot keep "Coming Home" much longer. It would be a shame if anyone who admires artistic cinema has to miss it. Jon Voight assures himself an Oscar nomination with an endearing portrayal of a football hero who went to Vietnam and returned a paraplegic. Jane Fonda and Bruce Dern also give strong performances in this very important motion picture. The direction is by Hal Ashby.

Cinema III, Mall — "The Cheap Detective." The first Neil Simon film since the box office bonanza called "The Goodbye Girl" last Christmas. The title is self-explanatory, and what better person to play the detective in this comedy than Peter Falk. The supporting cast is, well, loaded with star names. How about trying these on for starters: Louise Fletcher, Marsha Mason, Dom DeLuise, Ann-Margret, Eileen Brennan and Sid Caesar. We haven't seen it yet, but one has to expect a lot of laughs from Simon these days.

Cinema IV, Mall — "Gizmo!" For those who have been clamoring for G-rated films, let's hope they support this one. Believe it or not, this film has received RAVE reviews from the Los Angeles Times and Washington Post and syndicated columnist Rex Reed. The picture is a comedic semi-documentary with original music and narration, using footage to illustrate inventions that just didn't seem to get off the ground. One of my favorites is the magnetic fishing rod that was purported to suck up fish.

Cinema West — "The Buddy Holly Story." Few expected this film to be the hit that it is. In fact, it was not even supposed to still be playing in Lubbock. But large crowds and audience demand dictated that the Cinema West keep it just one more week. The sound recording has problems, but the story is more than pleasant and the film receives a terrific boost from the performance by Gary Busey in the title role. Look for his name to re-appear in the months to come.

Fine Arts Drive-In — "Up" and "Finder's Keepers, Loser's Weepers." X-rated material from the king of soft-core porn, Russ Meyer.

Fox I — "Grease." Though the adults may not understand the attraction, the younger set is swarming to see this movie about the fab '50s. Of course, that could be because the stars are John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John. Preposterous in concept and changed quite a bit from the Broadway play, the film must be taken as tongue-in-cheek. Corny as it is, Travolta gives an excellent performance, considering the material he has to work with. Fox management told Update that every showing of "Grease" this past weekend sold out; that includes the matinees.

Fox II — "Harper Valley PTA." Barbara Eden stars as the mother who "socks it to" the Harper Valley PTA, to quote a few lyrics from the song on which the film is based. The picture's plot is nonsensical, but the Lubbock audiences attending have reacted quite favorably to this brand of whimsy. Ronny Cox, remembered for performances in films like "Deliverance" and "Gray Lady Down," co-stars with Nanette Fabray and Susan Swift. This will most likely be the last weekend for this film at the Fox.

Fox III — "Capricorn One." Everyone is calling this the best trash movie of the summer, but how can it be trash when everyone is enjoying it? So much for logic. For pure summer escapism and nothing else, you can't beat "Capricorn One," which gives us three astronauts in Sam Waterston, James Brolin and O.J. Simpson who are asked by the head of NASA to fake a Mars landing. Hal Holbrook is the Bad Guy; Elliott Gould is the reporter cliche who stumbles on the story and Telly Savalas is a crop duster who offers the best comic relief.

Fox IV — "The Bad News Bears Go To Japan." This film was produced by Michael Ritchie, who directed the first Bears film. It was penned by Bill Lancaster, Burt's baby boy, who wrote the first Bears film. But most will agree that it still does not come across with the same excitement and flavor. Part of the reason is that there is very little baseball played in this second sequel. Tony Curtis stars as a huckster who tries to make big bucks out of a match between the Bears and the Japanese champions. Little Scoody Thornton steals the show as a youngster who won't give up on Curtis.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen — "Malibu Beach" and "Trip With The Teacher." A few laughs, a tad of skin and a bit of violence in this R-rated entertainment. No major stars.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen — "Oh, God" and "The Shootist." See Backstage for comments on "Oh, God." Meanwhile, "The Shootist" should have been nominated for an Academy Award as Best Picture two years ago. It is a classic western, one boasting both dignity and adventure. Some say it is John Wayne's best performance; no doubt it is indeed his best in the past 20 years or so. A film which deserves to be seen again and again and again, "The Shootist" also stars Lauren Bacall, Jimmy Stewart, Hugh O'Brian, Richard Boone and Ron Howard. They are all excellent.

Lindsey — "The Devil Within Her" and "Squirm." For those seeking a different sort of entertainment, how about this double feature? The first film is, naturally, about yet another of the devil's children popping up all over the screen these days. And the second concerns itself with killer worms. Really. You can see them both for only a buck.

Red Raider Drive-In — "Saturday Night Fever" and "First Love." The first film has almost made $100 million nationwide; the latter film did not fare so well. But both are doing well in their current Lubbock engagement, drawing young people with the added attraction of a $5 per carload admission price.

Showplace I — "Damien, Omen II." The antiChrist is approaching manhood in this film, and will realize his purpose in life on his 13th birthday. But until then, he and a raven still manage to kill at least a dozen people. Though there is not much suspense in this picture (the deaths are telegraphed), there are at least two nifty death scenes boasting good photography and effects. One takes place during a hockey game, the other in an elevator. So be prepared. Probably the best part of the picture is the music by Jerry Goldsmith, who won an Oscar for his score in the original "The Omen."

Showplace II — "Matilda." She's not waltzing, she's boxing. And she's a kangaroo. And before you kiss off this new G-rated film from American International Pictures, consider this: it stars Elliott Gould and Robert Mitchum. "Matilda" is also based on a book by noted author Paul Gallico. The title song is sung by Pat and Debbie Boone.

Showplace III — "American Grafitti." Richard Dreyfuss, Ron Howard, Suzanne Somers, Cindy Williams, Paul LeMat, Harrison Ford, Charles Martin Smith, Candy Clark and Bo Hopkins are all in this George Lucas film which covers one night in LA in the early '60s. About six minutes of new material has been added to the original print. New scenes include Terry The Toad (Smith) encountering a used car salesman, Harrison Ford crooning "Some Enchanted Evening" while cruising, and Ron Howard telling off a chaperone at the hop.

Showplace IV — "Jaws 2." Well, sorry if we misled you last week with talk about a hungry female shark which had been impregnated by Bruce, the first Great White shark in "Jaws." That's what the original screenplay (and the book) had in mind. But in the movie, there is just another shark eating people and boats off Amity Bay; no explanation is given. Like most sequels, this film makes the audience appreciate its predecessor even more. But let's not shove "Jaws 2" into a corner. It's an OK little suspense film in its own right, and Roy Scheider is absolutely great as police chief Martin Brody. Mind you, it's a little silly at times, but there are still quite a few scares.

Village — Same as the Arnett-Benson.

Winchester — "The Jungle Book." Doing great business is this animated comedy, the last picture Walt Disney was personally involved with before he died. No doubt all who pay the admission price are leaving satisfied, as this Disney effort is funny, funny, funny. Great songs, too. And if you could get awards for voice-overs, Phil Harris would get one for his vocal performance as Baloo The Bear. The picture is playing with "The Sign Of Zorro," a couple spliced-together episodes off the Disney TV program. Enjoyable.

• • • • • • •

Coming Soon — Manager Bob Scott tells Update that "The Boys In Company C," slated to follow "The Buddy Holly Story" at the Cinema West, has been pushed back in the schedule. This should allow the theater to bring in "TGIF" on June 30. "TGIF" stands for Thank God It's Friday, and the picture is filmed entirely in a disco. Celluloid medicine for people with boogie fever.

The Village and Arnett-Benson should both gets prints of Disney's "In Search Of The Castaways," the re-issue starring Hayley Mills, on June 30. The Lindsey will get two Lee Marvin flicks, "Shout At The Devil" and "Great Scout & Cathouse Thursday," on June 30, the same day the South Plains Cinema plans to start Sam Peckinah's "Convoy."

And somewhere around July 5 or 7, the Winchester will swap its current Disney for a new one called "Hot Lead And Cold Feet."

looking ahead

Tom T. Hall

June 24, Tom T. Hall — Less than 1,000 tickets have been sold for tomorrow's concert appearance by Tom T. Hall, perhaps because of the local appearances by so many top club bands the same night. It seems a pity, though, since Hall is a country poet with several successful LPs and a hatful of hit tunes to his credit. You can still buy tickets at the Shook Tire Centers. The concert is slated for the Lubbock Coliseum, but there is a chance that ticket sales will dictate it move into the Municipal Auditorium next door. At press time, Coliseum officials said there were no plans for cancelling the concert.

June 30, "Texas: Cradle Of Giants" — This historical musical revue, tracing the history of Texas through its music, has been staged across the state by the South Plains College music department. The Lubbock production has been slated for the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. Call the Civic Center for further details.

June 30, Rusty Wier — Rusty headlined a couple of shows at the Municipal Auditorium last year, proving in the process that he and his new band still know how to get an audience on its feet in record time. But the Austin musician who wrote songs like "Don't It Make You Wanna Dance," "Black Hat Saloon" and "I Heard You Been Messin' Around With My Old Lady" will take his act to the clubs this time out, more specifically to Cold Water Country. The tickets will cost $5.

Craig Calvert of St. Elmo's Fire
Rockers to bring classical influences to Cotton Club

June 30 and July 1, St. Elmo's Fire — This Texas rock band has so many classical influences its members have already penned two full scores for ballet ("Caliban" and "Rasputin"); the band performed recently with both the Chicago and Dallas ballet companies. But don't try to label them, because these guys (and one woman) can still let loose with some good-times rock and roll. Like Denim, St. Elmo's Fire is reliable entertainment and one of the best bands in Texas. They'll be making a return appearance at the Cotton Club.

June 30 and July 1, The Grassroots — Yet another band from the 1960s is re-emerging to play Buckingham's in the '70s. Buckingham's manager Carlo Campanelli has already brought in acts like the Jan & Dean Show, Steppenwolf and Iron Butterfly, and there's no reason to expect him to do any worse with The Grassroots. Ah yes, I can see people pulling out those "Golden Grass" LPs now.

June 30-July 14, Texas Tech Repertory Theater — Season tickets are already on sale for Tech's summer rep program, which this summer includes three family plays being staged nightly on a rotating basis. Each play will be performed at least five times. The attractions are "Once Upon A Mattress," directed by Richard A. Weaver; "Ten Nights In A Bar-Room," directed by Clifford Ashby; and "The Real Inspector Hound," directed by Ronald Schulz. Special group rates are being offered for this traditional entertainment at Tech, and details are available by calling the University Theater box office.

July 3, Igo — Igo, better known as the Mexican Evel Kneivel, will be performing stunts at 6 p.m. at Fair Park Coliseum. Tickets for the event, sponsored by Pete Rodriguez of the Fiesta Ballroom, are priced at $5.

July 7-8, "The Music Man" — Civic Lubbock will combine forces with Texas Tech University's Music Theater to present a summer dinner theater production of Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man" at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center. Tickets are priced at $12.50 for both dinner and show; those just interested in seeing the show can buy tickets for $7.50 or $7. Special student tickets are priced at $4.

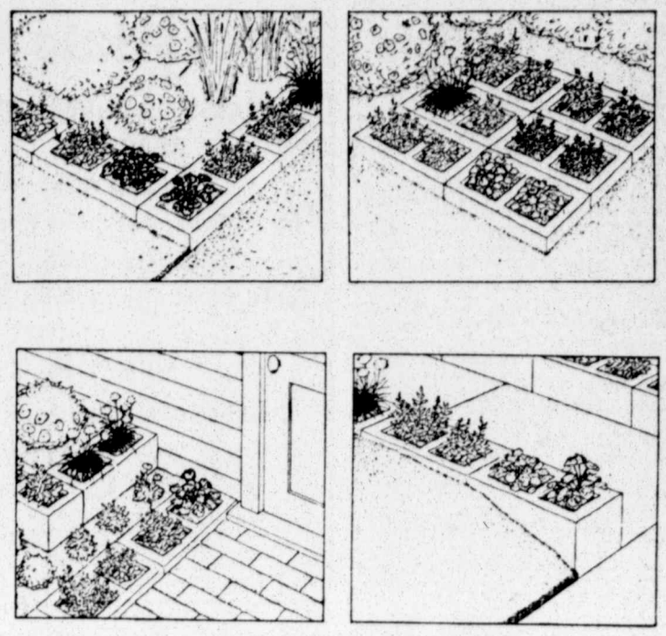

Capacity crowd

Pianist Peter Nero made an appearance with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra during its annual Summer Pops night June 16 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center exhibition hall. Captured above, he is the picture of concentration at the keyboard, playing a medley of hits from the Broadway show "The Wiz." Below, Nero and his attractive wife of two months mingle with the crowd outside the exhibit hall before the concert. The concert drew a capacity crowd of over 3,300 persons, with almost 2,000 taking advantage of a full buffet dinner.

Use cinderblocks as dividers for herbs

Cinderblocks make interesting dividers for outdoor herb plantings. They can be set above ground to line a walk or patio or to border a raised bed; buried in the ground, they make attractive designs and facilitate culture of herbs with different requirements. They are especially good for planting mints in with other herbs because the roots of mint will strangle out other herbs in the garden.

Canada puppets

Arlyn and Luman Coad's puppets are one of North America's leading puppet theater troupes. They will perform at 2 p.m. Sunday in the University Center ballroom as one of many international puppeteers participating in the 39th annual festival of the Puppeteers of America. Tickets for all or any of the performances are available at Hemphill-Wells, South Plains Mall, Furrs' Family Center and University Center Theater.

Horses score high in champion show

Two Lubbock-owned horses placed high in the Region 9 Arabian and Half-Arabian Championship Horse Show in Waco recently.

They were Pretty Lucky O, a 9-year-old gelding, and Kayson, an 11-year-old gelding, owned by Frances Knox and family at Green Acre Stable.

Pretty Lucky O, ridden by Angela Knox, claimed the championship in Half Arabian Mounted Native Costume and Half Arabian Western Pleasure, both for junior exhibitors.

The horse also placed in the top five in Half Arabian Mounted Native Costume with Holly Knox aboard.

Kayson, ridden by Holly Knox, was named champion Half Arabian Park Horse, amateur owner to ride; and in the top three Half Arabian Park Horse, open.

Department chairman announced

Dr. Raffi M. Turian has been named chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering at Texas Tech University.

Dean John R. Bradford of the College of Engineering made the announcement and said Turian's appointment is effective Sept. 1.

Turian succeeds Dr. James E. Halligan, who resigned to become dean of engineering at the University of Missouri, Rolla. Dr. George F. Meenaghan, associate vice president for research at Texas Tech, has been serving as interim chairman since Halligan's resignation.

Turian is a professor in the Department of Chemical Engineering and Materials Science at Syracuse University. He earned his bachelor's degree in chemical engineering at the University of Maryland, College Park, and the master's and doctor's degrees in the same field at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

He joined the faculty at Syracuse in 1965 and left for two years 1975 to 1977, to become director of the Chemical Processes Program of the National Science Foundation. Immediately following his graduation from the University of Wisconsin, he spent one year as an engineer in the Technical Development Laboratory of the Shell Pipe Line Corp., Houston.
